Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.

- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)

- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.

- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.

- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.

- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.

- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

Today's Schedule

10:00a EST	White House gaggle with Ari Fleischer.
10:55a EST	Secretary Powell to hold a media launch for "Rewards for Justice" campaign, which offers $25 million for information leading to arrests in the War on Terrorism.
12:00p EST	White House daily press briefing with Ari Fleischer.
12:30p EST	State Department daily briefing with spokesman Richard Boucher.
12:30p EST	Secretary Rumsfeld and General Meyers hold daily Pentagon press briefing.
4:00p EST	Secretary Rumsfeld to meets the Prime Minister of Thailand.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.

- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)

- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.

- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.

- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.

- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.

- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

COALITION INFORMATION CENTER

12/13/2001

A Daily Summary of News, Message and Facts About the War on Terrorism

Today's Schedule

10:00a EST	White House gaggle with Ari Fleischer.
10:55a EST	Secretary Powell to hold a media launch for "Rewards for Justice" campaign, which offers $25 million for information leading to arrests in the War on Terrorism.
12:00p EST	White House daily press briefing with Ari Fleischer.
12:30p EST	State Department daily briefing with spokesman Richard Boucher.
12:30p EST	Secretary Rumsfeld and General Meyers hold daily Pentagon press briefing.
4:00p EST	Secretary Rumsfeld to meets the Prime Minister of Thailand.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.

- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)

- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.

- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.

- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.

- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.

- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.

- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)

- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.

- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.

- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.

- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.

- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.
- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)
- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.
- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.
- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.
- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.
- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.

- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)

- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.

- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.

- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.

- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.

- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- On Wednesday, President Bush signed the Afghan Women and Children Relief Act, which committed the United States to providing education and medical assistance to Afghan women and children, and to Afghan refugees in surrounding countries.

- "The Marines have landed. There is activity at the U.S. Embassy here [in Kabul] for the first time in a dozen years. The U.N. envoy for Afghanistan has deemed preparations for a Dec. 22 hand-over of governing power on track. Even the national currency, the afghani, which a day earlier sold for 36,500 to the dollar, took an 8% leap of faith Tuesday that this war-ravaged country is on the cusp of peace and recovery." (L.A. Times, 12/12/01)

- Attorney General Ashcroft announced on Wednesday that a grand jury in the Eastern District of Virginia had charged Zacarias Moussaoui, a native of France of Moroccan ancestry, with conspiring with Osama bin Laden and al Qaeda to murder thousands of innocent people in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania on Sept. 11th.

Message

- Osama bin Laden is a coward who sends people to their deaths without their knowledge and laughs about it.

- Osama bin Laden murders innocents including women and children and Muslims.

- Osama bin Laden is disloyal to his followers and relies on others to fight for him.

- Osama bin Laden defames the religion he purports to follow.

- It is no wonder that thousands of bin Laden and al Qaeda operatives are breaking ranks and deserting. And it's no wonder that Muslim experts around the world continue to condemn al Qaeda's attempt to hijack the peaceful religion of Islam for their terrorist purposes.

In Case You Missed It

- "More than 100 World Health Organization workers are completing an eight-day measles vaccination drive aimed at vaccinating 70,000 children in Afghanistan's Panjshir Valley, the WHO said yesterday at a briefing in Kabul. An estimated 30,000 children die annually from measles in the country." (UN Wire, 12/12/01)

Facts of the Day

- The U.N. announced Wednesday that, "[I]n an effort to inform Afghans about relief activities, the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) is set to launch its Humanitarian Emergency Afghan Radio (HEAR) project through international and local radio networks in two weeks time." The program is funded by USAID.
- On December 7, USAID funded a $2,525,000 grant to the International Center for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas. The funding will support seed multiplication for the spring planting season and will provide technical assistance to Afghan partners enabling them to establish an effective regulatory system and standards for seed procurement.

On December 13, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved the nomination of Callie V. Granade, to be a United States District Judge for the Southern District of Alabama, by a roll call vote of 19-0 . The Committee then approved the following judicial nominees en bloc by a vote of 19-0: Marcia S. Krieger, to be a United States District Judge for the District of Colorado; James C. Mahan, to be a United States District Judge for the District of Nevada; Philip R. Martinez, to be a United States District Judge for the Western District of Texas; and C. Ashley Royal, to be a United States District Judge for the Middle District of Georgia. Additionally, the Committee approved the following U.S. Attorney nominees by unanimous consent: Michael Battle, Western District of New York; Christopher J. Christie, New Jersey; Harry E. Cummins III, Eastern District of Arkansas; and David P. York, Southern District of Alabama. The nomination of Mauricio J. Tamargo, to be Chairman of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, was also approved by unanimous consent. Finally, the Committee approved the nomination of Dwight MacKay, to be the United States Marshal for the District of Montana, with the caveat that the nomination would not be moved on the Senate floor until the file had been reviewed.

Here's Leahy's statement.

ATT CREATION TIME/DATE: 0 00:00:00.00

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I am about to make a unanimous consent request on these judges. I want people to know the three judicial nominations before us today fill vacancies in the District of Columbia, the eastern district of Louisiana, and Kansas. When we act favorably on these nominations, we will have confirmed 24 Federal judges since July, including 6 to the courts of appeals.

I mention that because when I became chairman of the Judiciary Committee in July, Federal court vacancies were rising to 111. Since July, we have worked very hard. The Senate has been cooperative. We have confirmed two dozen judges. We are lowering the number of vacancies. In fact, since I became chairman, we have had 19 additional vacancies arise. But we have not only outpaced this high level of attrition, we have lowered the vacancies to under 100. Of course, we would not have had nearly as many vacancies had the Senate confirmed the judges nominated by President Clinton.

We have made progress and outpaced attrition. We have filled vacancies. We are moving forward. I thank Senators on both sides of the aisle who have helped so much on this, who have worked with us even when we had to move out of the Senate office buildings because of anthrax attacks and the September 11 attacks. We have kept going. Contrary to what one person said on TV, inaccurately, and I assume by mistake, this weekend about not keeping up with attrition, we not only have kept up with attrition, we have outpaced attrition.

We will try to keep that number moving in the right direction. In spite of the upheavals we have experienced this year with the shifts in chairmanship, the delay in reorganizing the Senate and assigning Members to the committees, the vacancies that have arisen since this summer, the need to focus our attention on responsible action in the fight against international terrorism and the threats and dislocations of the anthrax attacks, we are making progress.

Far from taking a ``time out,'' as Republicans were suggesting, this Committee has been in overdrive since July and we redoubled our efforts after September 11, 2001.

During the last 6 1/2 years when a Republican majority controlled the process, the vacancies rose from 65 to at least 103, an increase of almost 60 percent.

Since July, we have been making strides to reverse that record and have worked hard to reduce vacancies below the 111 vacancies that existed in July.

In addition to the three nominations being considered by the Senate today, another three nominations to vacancies on the District Courts in New Mexico, Arizona and Georgia are on the Senate Executive Calendar, and another five nominations were included in a hearing last Wednesday.

If the Committee is able to report those nominations and the Senate acts favorably on them before recessing for the year, we will have confirmed 32 judges since July and 28 since the August recess. This is more judges than were confirmed after the August recess in any of the last 6 1/2 years. It would be more judges than were confirmed in the first year of the Clinton administration and include twice as many judges to the Courts of Appeals as were confirmed that year.

It would be more than twice as many judges as were confirmed in the first year of the first Bush administration, including more judges to the Courts of Appeals.

The President has yet to send nominations to fill more than half of the current vacancies. This is a particular problem with the 71 District Court vacancies, for which 50--more than--70 percent--do not have nominations pending.

We have been able to reduce vacancies over the last 6 months through hard work and a rapid pace of scheduling hearings. Until I became Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, no judicial nominees had been given hearings this year. No judicial nominees had been considered by the Judiciary Committee or been voted upon by the Senate.

After almost a month's delay in the reorganization of the Senate in June while Republicans sought leverage to change the way judicial nominations had traditionally been considered and abruptly abandoned the practices that they had employed for the last 6 1/2 years, I noticed our first hearing on judicial nominees within 10 minutes of the reorganization resolution being adopted by the Senate.

I have previously noted that during the 6 1/2 years that the Republican majority most recently controlled the confirmation process, in 34 of those months they held no confirmations for any judicial nominees at all, and in 30 other months they conducted only a single confirmation hearing involving judicial nominees.

Since the Committee was assigned its members in early July, 2001, we have held confirmation hearings every month, including two in July, two during the August recess, two during December and three hearings during October. Only once during the previous 6 1/2 years has the Committee held as many as three hearings in a single month.

On the other hand, on at least three occasions during the past 6 1/2 years the Committee had gone more than five months without holding a single hearing on a pending judicial nominee. We have held more hearings involving judicial nominees since July 11, 2001 than our Republican predecessors held in all of 1996, 1997, 1999 or 2000. In the last six months of this extraordinarily challenging year, the Committee has held 11 hearings involving judicial nominees.

Last week the Committee held its tenth hearing on judicial nominations and yesterday I chaired our eleventh since the Committee was assigned its membership on July 10, 2001. During the three months since September 11, the Judiciary Committee has held seven judicial confirmation hearings--the same number that the Republican majority held in all of 1999 and one more than they held in all of 1996. Since July we have held hearings on 34 judicial nominees, including seven to the Courts of Appeals.

Since September 11 we have held hearings on 27 judicial nominees, including four to the Courts of Appeals.

Working with the Majority Leader and the Deputy Leader, I have adopted a practice for the second half of this year of working with all Senators and with the Administration to try to fill an many judicial vacancies as possible. To date we have succeeded in confirming 24 judges.

We have persevered through extraordinary circumstances during which the Senate building housing the Judiciary Committee hearing room was closed, as were the buildings housing the offices of all the Senators on the Committee. We persevered through a partisan filibuster preventing action on the bill that funds our nation's foreign policy initiatives and provides funds to help build the international coalition against terrorism.

We showed patience and resolve when at our November hearing a family member of one of the nominees grew faint and required medical attention. That hearing was completed after attending to those medical needs.

We have accomplished more, and at a faster pace, than in years past. Even with the time needed by the FBI to follow up on the allegations that arose regarding Judge Wooten in connection with his confirmation hearing, we have proceeded much more quickly than at any time during the last 6 1/2 years. Thus, while the average time from nomination to confirmation grew to well over 200 days for the last several years, we have considered nominees much more promptly.

Measured from receipt of their ABA peer reviews, we have confirmed the judges this year, including the Court of Appeals nominees, on average in less than 60 days. So, we are working harder and faster than previously on judicial nominations, despite the difficulties being faced by the nation and the Senate.

We have also completed work on a number of judicial nominations in a more open manner than ever before.

For the first time, this Committee is making public the ``blue slips'' sent to home State Senators. Until my chairmanship, these matters were treated as confidential materials and restricted from public view. We have moved nominees with less time from hearings to the Committee's business meeting agenda, and then out to the floor, where nominees have received timely roll call votes and confirmations.

The past practices of extended unexplained anonymous holds on nominees after a hearing have not been evident in the last six months of this year as they were in the past. Indeed over the past 6 1/2 years at least eight judicial nominees who completed a confirmation hearing were never considered by the Committee but left without action.

Likewise, the extended, unexplained, anonymous holds on the Senate Executive Calendar that characterized so much of the last 6 1/2 years have not slowed the confirmation process this year. Majority Leader DASCHLE has moved swiftly on judicial nominees reported to the calendar. Once those judicial nominees have been afforded a timely rollcall vote, the record shows that the only vote against any of President Bush's nominees to the federal courts to date was cast by the Republican Leader.

With respect to law enforcement, I have noted that the administration was quite slow in making United States Attorney nominations, although it had called for the resignations of United States Attorneys early in the year.

Since we began receiving nominations just before the August recess, we have been able to report, and the Senate has confirmed, 57 of these nominations. We have only a few more United States Attorney nominations received in November and December, and await approximately 30 nominations from the Administration. These are the President's nominees based on the standards that he and the Attorney General have devised.

I note, again, that it is most unfortunate that we still have not received even a single nomination for any of the United States Marshal positions. United States Marshals are often the top federal law enforcement officer in their district. They are an important front-line component in homeland security efforts across the country. We are near the end of the legislative year without a single nomination for these 94 critical law enforcement positions.

It will likely be impossible to confirm any United States Marshals this year having not received any nominations in the first 11 and one-half months of the year.

In the wake of the terrorist attacks on September 11, some of us have been seeking to join together in a bipartisan effort in the best interests of the country.

For those on the Committee who have helped in those efforts and assisted in the hard work to review and consider the scores of nominations we have reported this year, I thank them. As the facts establish and as our actions today and all year demonstrate, we are moving ahead to fill judicial vacancies with nominees who have strong bipartisan support. These include a number of very conservative nominees.

Before I became Chairman, the last confirmation to the District Court for the District of Columbia was that of Judge Ellen Huvelle. Despite being a distinguished judge in the D.C. Superior Court for nearly a decade, her nomination was pending for almost seven months before she received a hearing. Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly had similar credentials and suffered even worse delays. Judge Kollar-Kotelly also served as a distinguished local judge. Her confirmation, nonetheless, required two nominations over two years before she was finally confirmed in 1997. She was not confirmed for eight months after her confirmation hearing. Of course, she has now replaced Judge Jackson as the judge in charge of proceedings on the government suit and proposed settlement of that legal action against Microsoft.

Despite nominees for vacancies on the District Court for the District of Columbia over the past several years, no nomination to this District Court had received a hearing in over two years. Things changed this July. First, we moved expeditiously to consider the nomination of Judge Reggie Walton to one of those longstanding vacancies. I chaired an unprecedented August recess hearing for Judge Walton and he was confirmed in September. Now we are proceeding, with the support of Representative Norton, to fill a second longstanding vacancy on the District Court for the District of Columbia. John Bates will be the second confirmation to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in the last three months, after years of inaction.

The vacancy that is being filled by Judge Robinson is one that existed before I became chairman. Indeed, last year the President had nominated Keith Gary Sebelius in anticipation of that vacancy.

In the last 6 months of last year Mr. Sebelius was not included in a hearing and his nomination died without Committee action and without Senate action when it was returned to the White House last December. Last year the Republican majority held only two hearings involving only seven District Court nominees in July and no hearings for any other judicial nominees in August, September, October, November or December, in spite of the vacancies and pending judicial nominations to fill them. This year, during the same time frame, the Committee has held 11 hearings involving 34 judicial nominations of which 27 have already been reported favorably to the Senate.

With respect to the vacancy in Kansas, Senators ROBERTS and BROWNBACK wrote to me in October enclosing a letter from the Chief Judge of that District indicating that the vacancy combined with medical leave for a senior Judge had created a serious problem in that District. Chief Judge Lungstrum noted in his letter to Senator Roberts that the District in Kansas was without an active judge it its Topeka division. Just as we responded quickly to the Chief Judge of the District Court in Montana and the Chief Judge of the District Court in the Eastern District of Kentucky, we have responded to Chief Judge Lungstrum. Judge Robinson was included in a hearing on November 7 and reported by the Committee last month.

With respect to the vacancy on the Eastern District of Louisiana, that vacancy predated my chairmanship, as well. I recall the nomination in 1997 of Judge Lemelle to a vacancy on that court, the hearing held on his nominations more than 11 months later and his confirmation later still that year. I am glad to work with Senators BREAUX and LANDRIEU to help fill another vacancy on that important court and to be able to do so within one-third the time it took to confirm the last judge to this District.

I am proud of the work the Committee has done on nominations, and I am proud that by the end of today we will have confirmed 24 judges. I hope that by the end of this session that total will rise to about 30 as the Committee continues its work on the nominations heard last week and the Senate confirms the additional three nominees previously reported by the Committee.

Attached please find a revised side-by-side (please discard earlier draft) and the outline of what a possible consensus bill might look like. Please let us know your thoughts ASAP.

Also, as I think everyone is already aware, I will be leaving town with my family on Tuesday, and won't be back until the 26th. I've already postponed
our holiday plans once, and I'm afraid my kids will never speak to me again if I try to postpone again. I deeply regret that I won't be around to finalize this legislation (if we reach that point) but wish you all the best in bringing this legislative saga to a successful conclusion. I think we have worked as a highly effective team and, win or lose, we can be proud of our effort.

I'll still be around Monday. From Tuesday on, I can be reached at my parents house in Florida, PRA 6, e-mail, PRA 6 Ed DeMarco, 622-2792, and his team will be carrying on in my absence.

Thanks
Sheila

First, thank you so much for meeting with the group, Brett. You created good will with a group of people who are earnestly interested in the issue of presidential records. It is important to have a strong channel where people feel they can go and be heard.

It is good to know you have such good records practices. The creation and maintenance of records is a critical part of the records issue. Not just full disclosure. Make sure you have good practices in place where people leave the White House so they don't walk away with originals. I know it happens because I have seen them in peoples' homes and offices after they have left.

I have a favor to ask of you and that is to take a quick look at this piece. It is a draft of an article I am doing for Presidential Studies Quarterly. I want it to be a resource article where people can find what are the important elements to consider where looking at the EO.

I have quoted you and alluded to our meeting so make certain and view these parts. The piece is way overdue as it was supposed to be just a short one introducing some of the documents they wanted to run. I decided they needed something different and just kept going. If you want to talk about it, my cell phone is probably best today PRA 6 and tomorrow you can find me on my cell phone and at PRA 6

Warm Wishes,

Martha

First, thank you so much for meeting with the group, Brett. You created good will with a group of people who are earnestly interested in the is sue of presidential records. It is important to have a strong channel where peo ple feel they can go and be heard.

It is good to know you have such good records practices. The creation and m aintenance of records is a critical part of the records issue. Not just full di sclosure. Make sure you have good practices in place where people leave the Whi te House so they don't walk away with originals. I know it happens because I ha ve seen them in peoples' homes and offices after they have left.

I have a favor to ask of you and that is to take a quick look at this piece . It is a draft of an article I am doing for Presidential Studies Quarterly. I want it to be a resource article where people can find what are the important e lements to consider where looking at the EO.

I have quoted you and alluded to our meeting so make certain and view these parts. The piece is way overdue as it was supposed to be just a short one intr oducing some of the documents they wanted to run. I decided they needed somethi ng different and just kept going. If you want to talk about it, my cell phone i s probably best today PRA 6 PRA 6 and tomorrow you can find me on my cell phone and at PRA 6

Executive Order 13233 Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act

Martha Joynt Kumar

Towson University

On November 1st, President Bush signed Executive Order 13233 allowing for the release of a select category of records only after the incumbent and former presidents agree on their release. In addition, the order rescinded Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan in 1989, which established procedures for the incumbent and former President to review certain presidential records twelve years after the Chief Executive left office and to block release of documents based on a claim of executive privilege. The Bush executive order was occasioned by a group of presidential documents coming to the White House from the Reagan Library under the terms of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the regulations provided for in Executive Order 12667.

The reaction to the order from scholars and organizations with members using records was immediate and it was critical of the order. While the President and his staff view the order in terms of the procedures it establishes and, thus, the efficiency it brings

Orderly Process. The heart of the order lies in the procedures it creates relating to the role of former presidents in making claims executive privilege. "What we have done in this executive order is to provide a process, an orderly process, to help the Archivist, with respect to the presidential records of a former President," commented White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[17] He elaborated on this statement in a piece he wrote for USA Today emphasizing the President's statutory and court based obligation to protect the rights of former presidents to exercise executive privilege "The order fulfills the president's statutory obligation to implement the Presidential Records Act, as well as his obligations under a 1977 Supreme Court ruling that held that former presidents continue to have the right to assert privileges over their records even after their term has ended. Neither Bush nor Congress has the power or authority to ignore that Supreme Court ruling. The Presidential Records Act fails to establish a procedure for former presidents to assert their constitutionally guaranteed privilege. President Bush's order provides such procedures and sets a reasonable time frame for review of records and assertion of privileges."[18]

More Information Will Flow. Press Secretary Ari Fleischer indicated the order will result in more information being released than can be counted on as coming from one of the Deed of Gift libraries, those established before the 1978 Presidential Records Act.

> As a result of the new law that is now going into effect, and thanks to the executive order that the President will soon issue, more information will be forthcoming. And it will be available through a much more orderly process. The executive order will lay out the terms of that process, and it will help people to get information. There will be a 90-day time line put on it, so that academicians or whoever can get that information on request to the Archivist of the United States. The Archivist will then get in touch with the former President, with this administration. And unless an objection to releasing the information is raised, on the basis of those objections that are allowable under the law, the information will then become released.

Correcting Problems Contained in Reagan Order. In part administration officials say, the Bush Executive Order is meant to correct the problems of the Reagan order as much as it is to fill in procedures to implement the 1978 law. While the Reagan Executive Order 12677 brought the former President into the process of reviewing documents for an executive privilege component, the Bush White House did not believe the former Chief Executives had a sufficient role in determining the fate of their own records. "There was an executive order that was signed by Ronald Reagan dealing with his presidential records. That will be rescinded by this order. And the reason that we are rescinding that order is because that order gives no deference whatsoever to the opinions of a former President. It basically says – it gives, basically, the decision making to the incumbent President," commented Gonzales in a private briefing with a select group of reporters.[19] "And we felt that was inconsistent with current Supreme Court precedent, and also, quite frankly, reflected bad policy. And we thought it would be more appropriate to really give the primary responsibility regarding presidential records to the former President whose records they belong to, and to have the incumbent President sort of be the backstop in making decisions about whether or not those documents should in fact be released."

Incumbent Will Follow Wishes of Former President. In his explanation of the order in his testimony before the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Committee on Government Reform, Edward Whelan III, Acting Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel at the Department of Justice, commented the incumbent President will have less say over the records of his predecessor than he did prior to the issuance of the order. "Consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v GSA, and with sound policy, President Bush's executive order confers on former presidents, the primary responsibility for asserting privileges with respect to their presidential records. Indeed, by providing that the incumbent president will, absent of compelling circumstances, concur in the former president's decision, whether or not to invoke a privilege. President Bush's executive order grants the incumbent president less authority over the records of a former president than the incumbent president had under the previous 1989 executive order, implementing the Act."[20]

Critics Offer Their Explanations for the Order. Critics of the order quickly came forward with their comments quoted in wire service reports, in the major newspapers, and on the air. Editorials ran in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Los Angeles Times with respectively the following titles, "Cheating History," "A Flawed Approach on Records," and "A Dark Oval Office."[21] Critics of the order, focused on what they saw as reasons for the order. Three recurring themes of the critics are: to protect current administration officials who served in the Reagan White House; the desire to develop a court case to get a reading by the Supreme Court of executive privilege; the order is viewed as part of an overall information and policy seeking to reassert a President's control over the release of information government-wide. Wire service and newspaper articles reporting the order almost uniformly reported in their stories on the order with quotes from or allusions to scholars or others who raised the question whether the order was an effort to protect people currently working in the Bush Administration who served in the White House and in departments and agencies during the Reagan years.[22] Many officials currently serving had a place in the Reagan Administration, including Colin Powell, Andrew Card, Mitch Daniels, Larry Lindsey.

Some critics have alluded to the administration's fights on many fronts over the issue of executive privilege. Professor Peter Shane raised the question in his testimony at the House hearing if the administration was seeking a confrontation on executive privilege. "This administration has seemed to develop what might be called a kind of ideology of executive privilege, it is picking fights over records of past administrations," Shane said. "In one case with regard to the vice president's meetings and his contest of GAO [General Accounting Office], I have to say it's a current president but the information seems almost trivial, it seems like an almost intent to pick a fight."[23] Scholars and others raised concern over the variety of areas in which the administration had restricted the release of information, including in addition to the Cheney example the October 16th order by John Ashcroft departments and agencies informing them they can "be assured" the Justice Department will defend them in their refusal to release records under the Freedom of Information Act, thus reversing an order by Attorney General Janet Reno calling on governmental agencies to err on the side of the release of records. Executive Order 12958, a 1995 order issued by President Clinton declassifying government national security records is currently under review and, in the view of the critics of the Bush order, at risk for major revision.

Perspectives on the Issues Arising From the Order

The order raises important constitutional questions relating to presidential privilege, including its scope, the right of a former President to invoke privilege, the ability of a former President's representative and family members to make such claims for him after his death, and the ability of the Vice President to make claims of executive privilege on his own behalf independent of a presidential claim. In addition to presidential privilege issues, the order raises questions about the role assigned to the Archivist of the United States in the Presidential Records Act as an arbiter of records, the requirement of the order that a person requesting records "establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records." Additionally, scholars point to the impact of the order through the increased length of time provided officials to process records and the need to go through the court system to appeal a negative decision on the release of records rather than work through the Archivist for appeals.

What Is the Proper Scope of Executive Privilege? Critics of the order raise questions about the notion of presidential privilege put forth in the order. Representative Don Ose in his opening statement at the House subcommittee hearing stated his concern that the order creates two new areas of privilege: "Those two areas being communications of the president of his advisors, that is the presidential communications privileges, and legal advice or legal work, meaning the attorney- client or attorney-work-product privilege. I am deeply concerned about the two new broad limitations in the order. Both of them, especially the presidential communications privilege, could severely limit congressional access to key documents in its investigations of any former administration."[24] In his response to Representative Ose's questions, the administration's representative, Edward Whelan III, said no such expansion is intended. "No substantive change is intended, or effected, by the difference in words used to describe the privilege. Nor could any president, through an executive order, change the contours of the constitutional privileges available to existing and former presidents." While that may be so, some take the position the listing of privileges found in the executive order needs to be challenged by the Congress or future presidents might seek to act on the basis of the list.[25]

What Weight Does a Former President's Privilege Claim Have? In Nixon v. Administrator the Supreme Court established that a President's privilege survives the tenure of the Chief Executive. Speaking for the Court, Justice Brennan said "we reject the argument that only an incumbent President may assert such claims and hold that appellant [former President Nixon], as a former President, may also be heard to assert them."[26] At the same time, though, the majority opinion states the "incumbent President is vitally concerned with and in the best position to assess the present and future needs of the Executive Branch, and to support invocation of the privilege accordingly."[27] In the same majority opinion, Justice Brennan noted "the expectation of the confidentiality of executive communications thus has always been limited and subject to erosion over time after an administration leaves office."[28] While Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated White House officials understand erosion takes place, it is unclear how that process takes place. It is, he indicated, a judgment the courts will have to make.[29]

Can Representatives of a President Assert Privilege? The order provides a former President's representative can make executive privilege claims on his behalf, even if the President has died. In a briefing with a select group of reporters, Judge Gonzales indicated representatives will be allowed to speak for presidents. "We will look to the representative of the former President to decide whether or not a privilege should be asserted. And the executive order makes clear that except for compelling circumstances, that this administration will agree with the decision by President Reagan's representative," he said.[30] Queried as to what the qualifications must be for an individual chosen to represent the President, Acting Assistant Attorney General said a former President "may designate whomever he sees fit."[31] He continued: "A former president presumably would want to select as his representative, someone who was knowledgeable about, and sensitive to, the interests that advisors would have so that advisors in the future would have confidence that they could give their full, frank advice." Yet the order does not require a former President choose such a person, nor following his death that his family members select someone with records expertise. As it relates to presidents who have died or are disabled, the order is at odds with the Presidential Records Act, which provides in such cases authority passes to the Archivist.[32]

Who Has the Burden of Proof on Records Issues? A variety of groups representing archivists, academics, and journalists view the order as subverting the Presidential Records Act rather than implementing it as the Congress intended for it to operate. In the House hearings, Professor Mark Rozell raised an issue brought up by many critics:

instead of the government proving why information should be kept secret, the order now requires the public to justify why it needs records. "With regard to legislative executive disputes over information, the burden is on the president to demonstrate a need for confidentiality and not on Congress to prove that it has the right to conduct oversight. Similarly, the burden should be on a president or ex-president to demonstrate a need to close off access to past presidential records and not on citizens to prove that they have a right to examine public records. The Bush administration actions on executive privilege dramatically shifts the burden away from where it belongs."[33]

Executive Order 13233 provides that someone seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[34] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one in implementing the legislation. The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in Nixon v. Freeman [670 F.2d 346 (D.C. Cir.), *cert.Denied,*459 U.S. 1035 (1982) rejected the need of the public to demonstrate a need in order to get access to presidential information, in that case the tapes of former President Nixon. "We also see no justification for requiring the Administrator to condition access upon a showing of particularized need."[35]

Does the Vice-President Have an Independent Claim of Executive Privilege? The executive order allows a Vice President to exercise executive privilege, an authority some question. In the hearings in the House of Representatives Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Government Reform Committee, Professor Peter Shane disputed the right of a Vice President to exercise executive privilege. "The vice-president's privileges, such as they are, could only be part and parcel of the privilege that protects the presidency. I don't read into the Constitution -- I know of no authority that suggests that there is independent executive privilege to protect the office of the vice-presidency. As a presidential advisor, vice- presidents are undoubtedly protected in their communications in order to protect the presidency," Shane said.[36] "But I would imagine that huge quantities of what the vice- presidents read and deliberate upon are no more protected by executive privilege than, say, the records of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission or the Small Business Administration. He's just another federal administrator." While he may be more than "just another federal administrator," it is unclear where his independent claim to executive privilege lies.

What Is the Appropriate Records Role of the Archivist? In the Presidential Records Act, the Archivist is the linchpin of the process of the dissemination of records. In language inserted on the House floor, the act articulates the role of the Archivist: "The Archivist shall have an affirmative duty to make such records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[37] As an example of his reach, the act provided that "upon the death or disability of a President or former President, any discretion or authority the President or former President may have had under this chapter shall be exercised by the Archivist unless otherwise previously provided by the President or former President in a written notice to the Archivist."[38] The Bush order, however, does not provide for such a role for the Archivist preferring instead to deal with representatives of the President. Executive Order 13233 states: "Upon the death or disability of a former President, the former President's designated representative shall act on his behalf for purposes of the Act [Presidential Records Act] and this order, including with respect to the assertion of constitutionally based privileges."[39] Further, the order provides should there be no designated representative, "the family of the former President may designate a representative (or series or group of alternative representatives, as they in their discretion may determine) to act on the former President's behalf for purposes of the Act and this order, including with respect to the assertion of their constitutionally based privileges."[40]

The Archivist role in records review and decision-making is long-standing. In its 1974 Presidential Recordings and Materials preservation Act, the Congress assigned to the Archivist the duty upheld in Public Citizen v. Burke [843 F. 2nd 1473 (D.C. Circuit. 1988] to review claims of executive privilege. The court commented in that case on the suitability of the Archivist to assess privilege claims. "And the Archivist will be knowledgeable, as appellees emphasize, as to what information is already disclosed and therefore will be. If properly advised as to constitutional matters, uniquely suited to expressing the Executive Branch's determination on such claims."[41] "If, whenever Mr. Nixon asserts executive privilege, the Archivist in effect loses jurisdiction over his responsibilities to affect disclosure, the former President has gained power to withdraw from the Archivist some indefinite portion of the responsibilities that Congress delegated to him – and transfer those responsibilities to the Judiciary. We think that is a strained interpretation of congressional purpose," the Court said in Public Citizen v. Burke.[42] While that case dealt with the Presidential Recordings and Materials Act, the stated role of the Archivist as an arbiter of records is similar to that assigned to him in the

to the records review process, others did not. Critics consider the order to be an impediment to the release of records rather than facilitating their release. The President and his staff describe Executive Order13233 as a procedural one carrying out the requirements of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 relating to a group of confidential advice records scheduled to become available beginning in January 2001. "We responded to a new law written by Congress that lays out a procedure that I think is fair for past Presidents. And it is a process that I think will enable historians to do their job, and at the same time protect state secrets. That's why I did what I did," said President Bush.[1]

A common criticism expressed on editorial pages, stated by scholars, and related by organizations is the restrictive impact of the order on the traditional access of the public to information generated by its government. In addition to organizations and users of records, former President Clinton's representative expressed concern over the impact of the Bush executive order. In a and letter to the White House, Bruce Lindsey, who represents the former President in records matters, expressed the need to make public the decision making process. "A government's legitimacy is based on the trust of its people, and when decisions are made on behalf of the American people, citizens eventually have to be able to see the process of how those decisions came to be," he said.[2]

The members of Congress who have publicly commented on the order have been critical of it, including ones in the President's party. In hearings conducted by Representative Stephen Horn, chairman of the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the House Government Reform Committee, committee member Don Ose (R-Ca.) commented: "The bottom line is that the new order appears to violate not only the spirit

Presidential Records Act. In the Reagan order, the Archivist was assigned a prominent role in records decisions as he was given the authority to open records even when a former President is against it.

The Bush White House regards the Archivist's role in the Reagan executive order to be a mistaken one. The recent executive order effectively takes away the role of the Archivist of the United States to be an arbiter of the records as he no longer has a role in executive privilege claims. Rather than viewing the Archivist to be an independent official in the 1984 legislation creating the National Archives and Records Administration, the White House views him as a member of the President's team. While in Public Citizen v. Burke he is viewed as a "subordinate of the President," his status is not further defined.[43] He is very much an administration official responsible to the President, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Counsel's office. "Just like John Ashcroft or anyone else," he said.[44] The White House saw no distinction between the place in the administration of the Archivist and Cabinet members even though the Presidential Records Act calls upon the President to contact the Congress with his reasons for dismissing the Archivist and does not have such a provision for Cabinet members.

How Long Can Records Be Withheld? The Presidential Records Act set a standard for the release of records to the public when it called for the Archivist to make "records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[45] Executive Order 13233 provides no time limits for the President to make a claim of executive privilege. The Presidential Records Act and the Reagan executive order provide specific time limits for presidents and former presidents to review records although the Reagan order provides for the President or former Chief Executive to request an extension. The impact of the order is to lengthen the process because the Archivist is no longer the intermediary he was intended to be in the Presidential Records Act. Once the White House has received records, another time clock begins. "After receiving the records he requests, the former President shall review those records as expeditiously as possible, and for no longer than 90days for requests that are not unduly burdensome," the act provides.[46] Should the records request prove burdensome, there is no time frame within which the former President must complete review of the records. The same is true with the President.

Because the Archivist is no longer an arbiter, it means the only recourse for a researcher denied papers is to go to court. Under FOIA, if someone is denied records, the researcher could appeal to the Deputy Archivist and then to the Court. Going to court not only lengthens the process for a researcher, it makes it a costly one as well.

What Is the Status of the Reagan Records? The 68,000 records reviewed by the Reagan Library under the Presidential Records Act are under review by lawyers working with the White House. While the records were at the heart of Executive Order 13233, the records themselves only recently came under scrutiny. Before the issuance of the order, the White House viewed only a small portion of the records. "The archivist came to us, asked that we actually sample some of the documents, which we did," said White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[47] "I think we sampled something like 2,000 documents provided to us by the archivist." A team of lawyers is currently going through the bulk of the records, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Office of Counsel to the President.[48] The White House expects the records to be released in coming months with few held back under terms of the order.

Critics Respond with Legal Action

Legal Action: American Historical Association v. National Archives and Records Administration. On November 28th, Public Citizen filed a complaint in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia against the National Archives and Records Administration. Filed under the Administrative Procedures Act, the Presidential Records Act and the plaintiffs "nonstatutory right to judicial review of unlawful executive action," the group of two historians and four organizations seeks "to obtain a declaratory judgment that the Archivist of the United States and the National Archives and Records Administration ('NARA') must administer the Presidential Records Act without regard to the terms of Executive Order No. 13,233 (the 'Bush Order'),and to compel the release of presidential materials of former President Ronald Reagan that are in the custody of NARA and are being withheld in violation of the PRA." The issues cited in the case as cause for the complaint include the expanded notion of executive privilege implied in the order; the charge that the incumbent President will follow the claim of privilege by the former President; the provision that a former President can have a surrogate acting on his behalf after his death, including family members; the stipulation that a Vice President can exercise a claim of executive privilege separate from that of the President.

The Future of the Executive Order. As he was leaving a presentation at the American Enterprise Institute, Karl Rove was asked if the White House had any second thoughts about their order on presidential records, he said "no".[49] His position reflected the public voices of all White House officials who have spoken on the subject. In his meeting with representatives of organizations representing the interests of political scientists, historians, archivists, and journalists, Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated the resolution of differences on the order would be settled by the courts. Indeed that appears to be the most likely venue for settling the dispute over the nature of executive privilege. In United States v. Nixon [418 U.S. 683 (1974)] the Supreme Court reaffirmed its authority to decide claims of privilege and used the landmark case of Marbury v. Madison [1 Cranch 137 (1803)] to do so. "We therefore reaffirm that it is the province and duty of this Court 'to say what the law is' with respect to the claim of privilege presented in this case."[50] It is likely it will be the court system that decides the claims put forward in the Bush order.

With its title "Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act", Executive Order 13233 invites a congressional response. In their letter to President Bush, Representatives Henry Waxman and Janice Schakowsky called upon the President to rescind his order and "instead begin a dialogue with Congress and the public to determine the need for clarification of this law."[51] While there is some discussion of bipartisan action in the House of Representatives, little is going on on the issue in the Senate. With one year left in the session and a packed agenda of domestic and terrorism related issues on the agenda, members of Congress are not likely to build a coalition of support for a measure to revoke the order. Any law would require a veto-proof majority, something difficult to achieve at any time. In addition, organizations and officials are reluctant to open up the Presidential Records Act for amendment for fear of opening up a larger discussion of records that might result in unintended alterations. There are those who would like to increase the number of years for records to be withheld from twelve years to somewhere in the neighborhood of 25.

but also the letter of the Presidential Records Act. In 1978, Congress very clearly expressed its intent to make presidential records available for congressional investigations and then for the public after a 12-year period. This new order undercuts the public's rights to be fully informed about how this government, the people's government, operated in the past."[3] Representative Horn called on the administration to "revisit" the order. "We must insure that the spirit of this law, the Presidential Records Act, needs to be upheld. And in light of the issues raised today and research conducted by the subcommittee staff, the administration should revisit the issue."[4] Democratic subcommittee members Reps. Henry Waxman (D-Ca.) and Janice Schakowsky (D-Ill.) released a joint statement calling on the President to rescind the order because it "violates the intent of Congress and keeps the public in the dark."[5]

Acting on behalf of two historians and a group of organizations representing the interests of their members using presidential records, Public Citizen has filed a complaint in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, American Historical Association v National Archives and Records Administration.

Executive Order 13233: Origins and Explanations

To understand Executive Order 13233 and the issues surrounding it, one needs to review the relevant portions of the basic components of the legal and administrative history of presidential records. The basic documents are the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the Reagan Executive Order 12667 as well as court cases relating to the records issue.

REV_00325329

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 and Presidential Privilege. The Presidential Records Act of 1978 established public control of presidential records and their orderly release depending upon the degree of sensitivity of the documents. It created procedures for the handling of records in presidential libraries beginning with the papers of Ronald Reagan. Prior to the 1978 act, presidential records were under the control of the President whose administration generated them. The earlier presidential libraries, known as Deed of Gift libraries, are governed by different procedures as the materials in those libraries were donated by the presidents through Deeds of Gift to the National Archives.

While there has been an interest of government in records since 1789 when the Department of State was made responsible for their maintenance, the control of presidential records did not fall to the public until the 1978 Act. The courts, however, had stated the public interest in records as far back as 1841. In Nixon v. Administrator of General Services et al, the majority opinion refers to the nineteenth century case: "It has been accepted at least since Mr. Justice Story's opinion in Folsom v. Marsh, 9 F. Cas. 342, 347 (No. 4,901) (CC Mass.1841), that regardless of where legal title lies, 'from the nature of the public service, or the character of the documents, embracing historical, military, or diplomatic information, it may be the right, and even the duty, of the government to give them publicity, even against the will of the writers.'"[6]

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 provides that records of an administration are closed until five years following the end of an administration, except at the request of the courts or the Congress. At that point, records are available through the Freedom of Information Act [FOIA]except for those covered by the following categories: national security, personnel records; records specifically exempt by law; trade secrets; confidential communications between a President and his advisors; personal privacy. A President can deny access to records falling within those categories for up to twelve years and then they become subject to FOIA, except for the confidential advice category that contains the "deliberative process" and executive privilege claims. In order to carry out the provision protecting a President's constitutional claims, the Archivist is required to let the former President view the records "when the disclosure of particular documents may adversely affect any rights and privileges which the former President may have." To implement this provision, the Archivist informs the former President that he or his representative has 30 days to assert any rights or privileges that would prevent release of the records in question. If none is asserted, the documents are released.

President Reagan's Executive Order 12667. Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan on January 16, 1989, further brought the sitting and former presidents into the review process for presidential confidential advice records prior to their public release. The Reagan order requested the Archivist to notify the former President of the intention of the National Archives to release records from his library and to "identify any specific materials, the disclosure of which he [the Archivist] believes may raise a substantial question of Executive privilege."[7] If the former President wanted to prevent the release of records he could claim executive privilege, but the Archivist was not bound by his claim. The order defines executive privilege issues: "A 'substantial question of Executive privilege' exists if NARA's [National Archives and Records Administration] disclosure of Presidential records might impair the national security (including the conduct of foreign relations), law enforcement, or the deliberative processes of the Executive branch."[8] Additionally, the order provided that the incumbent President could act of the advice of the Attorney General and the White House Counsel to assert executive privilege and then order the Archivist not to release the records under review. The review had a time limit of 30 days after which the documents would be released.

It was under the provisions of the Reagan order that in February, President Bush was brought into the process of reviewing the confidential files sent forward by Reagan Library and Archives officials. The records were scheduled for release once the President took his turn at reviewing them under the provisions established by the Reagan executive order. The records scheduled for release by the Reagan Library and Archives officials included 68,000 pages of documents withheld under the confidential advice category. During the twelve year period archivists reviewed nearly four million pages of Reagan records working with FOIA requests. White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales instructed Archivist John Carlin that the White House was extending the review of the records release. After a second 90 day extension, on August 31st Judge Gonzales notified the Archivist that the White House was taking an indefinite extension to consider the release of the identified Reagan records. On November 1st President Bush issued Executive Order 13233.

President Bush's Executive Order 13233. The order revisits the issue of the roles of the current and former President as well as the Archivist. It adds in representatives of the former President and elaborates on the notion of what constitutes executive privilege. Additionally, the order establishes a threshold researchers must meet to get records where executive privilege is at issue. When the National Archives is to release records categorized as confidential advice, the Archivist is to inform the incumbent and former presidents. Each has 90 days to review the documents and request the withholding of those where either believes executive privilege is at issue. Both may request unlimited extensions to review records, which is a provision not found in the original act. The order states that "absent compelling circumstances, the incumbent President will concur in the privilege decision of the former President in response to a request for access under section 2204 (c)(1)."[9] Additionally it provides the "incumbent President will support that privilege claim in any forum in which the privilege claim is challenged."[10] If the former President wants to release records and the incumbent President does not, however, "the incumbent President may independently order the Archivist to withhold privileged records."[11]

To have standing to challenge a claim, the order interprets Supreme Court rulings as providing that "a party seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[12] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one.

The scope of "constitutionally based privilege" is enlarged from the Reagan order, though "law enforcement" concerns are no longer included. In the Bush order privilege is defined as "including those that apply to Presidential records reflecting military, diplomatic, or national security secrets, Presidential communications, legal advice, legal work, or the deliberative processes of the President and the President's advisors."[13] In addition to the incumbent President and the former President whose papers are in question, representatives of the President are authorized to prevent the release of papers by exercising his constitutional privileges. After the President dies, his representative can still exert claims of privilege. There is no provision for disputed papers to ever become public no matter how far back a President died.

Administration Explanations of the Origins and Aims of the Order. Administration officials have elaborated on the origins and aims of Executive Order 13233. The order itself contains the President's explanation of the constitutional and legal background of the order and in public venues administration officials have discussed their reasons for issuing it.

Legal Basis of the Order. The legal basis of their reasoning in the order is found in the original act and two Supreme Court decisions, which establish a President's and former President's constitutionally based privileges in the area of information and records as well as the threshold required to overcome a President's constitutionally based privileges. In the order, the administration points up the recognition in the Presidential Records Act of 1978 [section 2204(c)(2)], "Restrictions on access to Presidential records", that "the former President or the incumbent President may assert any constitutionally based privileges." Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the Office of White House Counsel and the person who crafted the order, said the order is designed to make operational the dictates of two Supreme Court decisions.[14] The cases are Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and United States v. Nixon. From Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, the administration cites the Supreme Court recognition of the need for the President to have confidential communications: 'Unless [the President] can give his advisers some assurance of confidentiality, a President could not expect to receive the full and frank submissions of facts and opinions upon which effective discharge of his duties depends. 433 U.S. at 448-49." The same case also established that "constitutionally based privileges 'survive a President's tenure.'" The administration cites United States v. Nixon for the standard set by the Supreme Court for the order's requirement a person to overcome the President's privileges applying to records "must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records, a standard that turns on the nature of the proceeding and the importance of the information in that proceeding."[15]

Public Explanations by Administration Officials. In several different venues, President Bush, Press Secretary Ari Fleischer, White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales, and Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh have commented on their executive order. In all of their remarks, the President and White House officials explain the need to establish procedures to implement the Presidential Records Act and the benefits they see accruing to historians and others using records coming from presidential libraries covered by the act. They view the order as necessary to effectuate the use of executive privilege by presidents whose records are scheduled for release. President Bush views the order as a procedural one: "There are some documents are privileged, protected. And this is just to make sure those documents remain protected and privileged. I don't see this as anything other than setting a set of procedures that I believe is fair and reasonable."[16]

Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senators Daschle and Lott:

We are writing on behalf of the chief regulators of the nation's insurance industry to urge final action on terrorism insurance legislation before the Congress adjourns this year.

The terrorist attacks on our country have created enormous uncertainty in our nation's commercial property and casualty (P&C) insurance markets. We continue to believe the federal government can and should play a critical, limited role in helping this marketplace adjust to these new market realities. We are aware of the efforts the Senate and the House of Representatives are putting forward to advance this legislation. However, further delay will have a negative impact on insurers and insurance consumers who in this instance are predominantly the nation's business community.

Absent federal assistance, many businesses will be without coverage for future losses related to acts of terrorism. In the event insurance is still available, the costs may be unaffordable for many. Anticipating this possibility, many insurers have asked state regulators to grant terrorism exclusions against future losses. Some carriers are indicating that beginning January 1st they will not renew workers' compensation coverage, a business necessity if an employer is to retain employees. These steps will leave consumers without protection. State insurance regulators must act on these requests in the coming days, and we will be hard-pressed to deny many of these specific requests in the absence of a federal "backstop." Otherwise, we would be exposing the industry to potentially unmanageable financial risks that would have consequences industry-wide and among all insurance consumers.

For these reasons, we urge action on terrorism insurance legislation this year.

Sincerely,

Terri Vaughan

First, thank you so much for meeting with the group, Brett. You created good will with a group of people who are earnestly interested in the issue of presidential records. It is important to have a strong channel where people feel they can go and be heard.

It is good to know you have such good records practices. The creation and maintenance of records is a critical part of the records issue. Not just full disclosure. Make sure you have good practices in place where people leave the White House so they don't walk away with originals. I know it happens because
I have seen them in peoples' homes and offices after they have left.

I have a favor to ask of you and that is to take a quick look at this piece.
It is a draft of an article I am doing for Presidential Studies Quarterly.
I want it to be a resource article where people can find what are the important elements to consider where looking at the EO.

I have quoted you and alluded to our meeting so make certain and view these

Executive Order 13233 Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act

Martha Joynt Kumar

Towson University

On November 1st, President Bush signed Executive Order 13233 allowing for the release of a select category of records only after the incumbent and former presidents agree on their release. In addition, the order rescinded Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan in 1989, which established procedures for the incumbent and former President to review certain presidential records twelve years after the Chief Executive left office and to block release of documents based on a claim of executive privilege. The Bush executive order was occasioned by a group of presidential documents coming to the White House from the Reagan Library under the terms of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the regulations provided for in Executive Order 12667.

The reaction to the order from scholars and organizations with members using records was immediate and it was critical of the order. While the President and his staff view the order in terms of the procedures it establishes and, thus, the efficiency it brings

Orderly Process. The heart of the order lies in the procedures it creates relating to the role of former presidents in making claims executive privilege. "What we have done in this executive order is to provide a process, an orderly process, to help the Archivist, with respect to the presidential records of a former President," commented White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[17] He elaborated on this statement in a piece he wrote for USA Today emphasizing the President's statutory and court based obligation to protect the rights of former presidents to exercise executive privilege "The order fulfills the president's statutory obligation to implement the Presidential Records Act, as well as his obligations under a 1977 Supreme Court ruling that held that former presidents continue to have the right to assert privileges over their records even after their term has ended. Neither Bush nor Congress has the power or authority to ignore that Supreme Court ruling. The Presidential Records Act fails to establish a procedure for former presidents to assert their constitutionally guaranteed privilege. President Bush's order provides such procedures and sets a reasonable time frame for review of records and assertion of privileges."[18]

More Information Will Flow. Press Secretary Ari Fleischer indicated the order will result in more information being released than can be counted on as coming from one of the Deed of Gift libraries, those established before the 1978 Presidential Records Act.

> As a result of the new law that is now going into effect, and thanks to the executive order that the President will soon issue, more information will be forthcoming. And it will be available through a much more orderly process. The executive order will lay out the terms of that process, and it will help people to get information. There will be a 90-day time line put on it, so that academicians or whoever can get that information on request to the Archivist of the United States. The Archivist will then get in touch with the former President, with this administration. And unless an objection to releasing the information is raised, on the basis of those objections that are allowable under the law, the information will then become released.

Correcting Problems Contained in Reagan Order. In part administration officials say, the Bush Executive Order is meant to correct the problems of the Reagan order as much as it is to fill in procedures to implement the 1978 law. While the Reagan Executive Order 12677 brought the former President into the process of reviewing documents for an executive privilege component, the Bush White House did not believe the former Chief Executives had a sufficient role in determining the fate of their own records. "There was an executive order that was signed by Ronald Reagan dealing with his presidential records. That will be rescinded by this order. And the reason that we are rescinding that order is because that order gives no deference whatsoever to the opinions of a former President. It basically says – it gives, basically, the decision making to the incumbent President," commented Gonzales in a private briefing with a select group of reporters.[19] "And we felt that was inconsistent with current Supreme Court precedent, and also, quite frankly, reflected bad policy. And we thought it would be more appropriate to really give the primary responsibility regarding presidential records to the former President whose records they belong to, and to have the incumbent President sort of be the backstop in making decisions about whether or not those documents should in fact be released."

Incumbent Will Follow Wishes of Former President. In his explanation of the order in his testimony before the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Committee on Government Reform, Edward Whelan III, Acting Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel at the Department of Justice, commented the incumbent President will have less say over the records of his predecessor than he did prior to the issuance of the order. "Consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v GSA, and with sound policy, President Bush's executive order confers on former presidents, the primary responsibility for asserting privileges with respect to their presidential records. Indeed, by providing that the incumbent president will, absent of compelling circumstances, concur in the former president's decision, whether or not to invoke a privilege. President Bush's executive order grants the incumbent president less authority over the records of a former president than the incumbent president had under the previous 1989 executive order, implementing the Act."[20]

Critics Offer Their Explanations for the Order. Critics of the order quickly came forward with their comments quoted in wire service reports, in the major newspapers, and on the air. Editorials ran in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Los Angeles Times with respectively the following titles, "Cheating History," "A Flawed Approach on Records," and "A Dark Oval Office."[21] Critics of the order, focused on what they saw as reasons for the order. Three recurring themes of the critics are: to protect current administration officials who served in the Reagan White House; the desire to develop a court case to get a reading by the Supreme Court of executive privilege; the order is viewed as part of an overall information and policy seeking to reassert a President's control over the release of information government-wide. Wire service and newspaper articles reporting the order almost uniformly reported in their stories on the order with quotes from or allusions to scholars or others who raised the question whether the order was an effort to protect people currently working in the Bush Administration who served in the White House and in departments and agencies during the Reagan years.[22] Many officials currently serving had a place in the Reagan Administration, including Colin Powell, Andrew Card, Mitch Daniels, Larry Lindsey.

Some critics have alluded to the administration's fights on many fronts over the issue of executive privilege. Professor Peter Shane raised the question in his testimony at the House hearing if the administration was seeking a confrontation on executive privilege. "This administration has seemed to develop what might be called a kind of ideology of executive privilege, it is picking fights over records of past administrations," Shane said. "In one case with regard to the vice president's meetings and his contest of GAO [General Accounting Office], I have to say it's a current president but the information seems almost trivial, it seems like an almost intent to pick a fight."[23] Scholars and others raised concern over the variety of areas in which the administration had restricted the release of information, including in addition to the Cheney example the October 16th order by John Ashcroft departments and agencies informing them they can "be assured" the Justice Department will defend them in their refusal to release records under the Freedom of Information Act, thus reversing an order by Attorney General Janet Reno calling on governmental agencies to err on the side of the release of records. Executive Order 12958, a 1995 order issued by President Clinton declassifying government national security records is currently under review and, in the view of the critics of the Bush order, at risk for major revision.

Perspectives on the Issues Arising From the Order

The order raises important constitutional questions relating to presidential privilege, including its scope, the right of a former President to invoke privilege, the ability of a former President's representative and family members to make such claims for him after his death, and the ability of the Vice President to make claims of executive privilege on his own behalf independent of a presidential claim. In addition to presidential privilege issues, the order raises questions about the role assigned to the Archivist of the United States in the Presidential Records Act as an arbiter of records, the requirement of the order that a person requesting records "establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records." Additionally, scholars point to the impact of the order through the increased length of time provided officials to process records and the need to go through the court system to appeal a negative decision on the release of records rather than work through the Archivist for appeals.

What Is the Proper Scope of Executive Privilege? Critics of the order raise questions about the notion of presidential privilege put forth in the order. Representative Don Ose in his opening statement at the House subcommittee hearing stated his concern that the order creates two new areas of privilege: "Those two areas being communications of the president of his advisors, that is the presidential communications privileges, and legal advice or legal work, meaning the attorney- client or attorney-work-product privilege. I am deeply concerned about the two new broad limitations in the order. Both of them, especially the presidential communications privilege, could severely limit congressional access to key documents in its investigations of any former administration."[24] In his response to Representative Ose's questions, the administration's representative, Edward Whelan III, said no such expansion is intended. "No substantive change is intended, or effected, by the difference in words used to describe the privilege. Nor could any president, through an executive order, change the contours of the constitutional privileges available to existing and former presidents." While that may be so, some take the position the listing of privileges found in the executive order needs to be challenged by the Congress or future presidents might seek to act on the basis of the list.[25]

What Weight Does a Former President's Privilege Claim Have? In Nixon v. Administrator the Supreme Court established that a President's privilege survives the tenure of the Chief Executive. Speaking for the Court, Justice Brennan said "we reject the argument that only an incumbent President may assert such claims and hold that appellant [former President Nixon], as a former President, may also be heard to assert them."[26] At the same time, though, the majority opinion states the "incumbent President is vitally concerned with and in the best position to assess the present and future needs of the Executive Branch, and to support invocation of the privilege accordingly."[27] In the same majority opinion, Justice Brennan noted "the expectation of the confidentiality of executive communications thus has always been limited and subject to erosion over time after an administration leaves office."[28] While Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated White House officials understand erosion takes place, it is unclear how that process takes place. It is, he indicated, a judgment the courts will have to make.[29]

Can Representatives of a President Assert Privilege? The order provides a former President's representative can make executive privilege claims on his behalf, even if the President has died. In a briefing with a select group of reporters, Judge Gonzales indicated representatives will be allowed to speak for presidents. "We will look to the representative of the former President to decide whether or not a privilege should be asserted. And the executive order makes clear that except for compelling circumstances, that this administration will agree with the decision by President Reagan's representative," he said.[30] Queried as to what the qualifications must be for an individual chosen to represent the President, Acting Assistant Attorney General said a former President "may designate whomever he sees fit."[31] He continued: "A former president presumably would want to select as his representative, someone who was knowledgeable about, and sensitive to, the interests that advisors would have so that advisors in the future would have confidence that they could give their full, frank advice." Yet the order does not require a former President choose such a person, nor following his death that his family members select someone with records expertise. As it relates to presidents who have died or are disabled, the order is at odds with the Presidential Records Act, which provides in such cases authority passes to the Archivist.[32]

Who Has the Burden of Proof on Records Issues? A variety of groups representing archivists, academics, and journalists view the order as subverting the Presidential Records Act rather than implementing it as the Congress intended for it to operate. In the House hearings, Professor Mark Rozell raised an issue brought up by many critics:

instead of the government proving why information should be kept secret, the order now requires the public to justify why it needs records. "With regard to legislative executive disputes over information, the burden is on the president to demonstrate a need for confidentiality and not on Congress to prove that it has the right to conduct oversight. Similarly, the burden should be on a president or ex-president to demonstrate a need to close off access to past presidential records and not on citizens to prove that they have a right to examine public records. The Bush administration actions on executive privilege dramatically shifts the burden away from where it belongs."[33]

Executive Order 13233 provides that someone seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[34] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one in implementing the legislation. The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in Nixon v. Freeman [670 F.2d 346 (D.C. Cir.), *cert.Denied,*459 U.S. 1035 (1982) rejected the need of the public to demonstrate a need in order to get access to presidential information, in that case the tapes of former President Nixon. "We also see no justification for requiring the Administrator to condition access upon a showing of particularized need."[35]

Does the Vice-President Have an Independent Claim of Executive Privilege? The executive order allows a Vice President to exercise executive privilege, an authority some question. In the hearings in the House of Representatives Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Government Reform Committee, Professor Peter Shane disputed the right of a Vice President to exercise executive privilege. "The vice-president's privileges, such as they are, could only be part and parcel of the privilege that protects the presidency. I don't read into the Constitution -- I know of no authority that suggests that there is independent executive privilege to protect the office of the vice-presidency. As a presidential advisor, vice- presidents are undoubtedly protected in their communications in order to protect the presidency," Shane said.[36] "But I would imagine that huge quantities of what the vice- presidents read and deliberate upon are no more protected by executive privilege than, say, the records of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission or the Small Business Administration. He's just another federal administrator." While he may be more than "just another federal administrator," it is unclear where his independent claim to executive privilege lies.

What Is the Appropriate Records Role of the Archivist? In the Presidential Records Act, the Archivist is the linchpin of the process of the dissemination of records. In language inserted on the House floor, the act articulates the role of the Archivist: "The Archivist shall have an affirmative duty to make such records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[37] As an example of his reach, the act provided that "upon the death or disability of a President or former President, any discretion or authority the President or former President may have had under this chapter shall be exercised by the Archivist unless otherwise previously provided by the President or former President in a written notice to the Archivist."[38] The Bush order, however, does not provide for such a role for the Archivist preferring instead to deal with representatives of the President. Executive Order 13233 states: "Upon the death or disability of a former President, the former President's designated representative shall act on his behalf for purposes of the Act [Presidential Records Act] and this order, including with respect to the assertion of constitutionally based privileges."[39] Further, the order provides should there be no designated representative, "the family of the former President may designate a representative (or series or group of alternative representatives, as they in their discretion may determine) to act on the former President's behalf for purposes of the Act and this order, including with respect to the assertion of their constitutionally based privileges."[40]

The Archivist role in records review and decision-making is long-standing. In its 1974 Presidential Recordings and Materials preservation Act, the Congress assigned to the Archivist the duty upheld in Public Citizen v. Burke [843 F. 2nd 1473 (D.C. Circuit. 1988] to review claims of executive privilege. The court commented in that case on the suitability of the Archivist to assess privilege claims. "And the Archivist will be knowledgeable, as appellees emphasize, as to what information is already disclosed and therefore will be. If properly advised as to constitutional matters, uniquely suited to expressing the Executive Branch's determination on such claims."[41] "If, whenever Mr. Nixon asserts executive privilege, the Archivist in effect loses jurisdiction over his responsibilities to affect disclosure, the former President has gained power to withdraw from the Archivist some indefinite portion of the responsibilities that Congress delegated to him – and transfer those responsibilities to the Judiciary. We think that is a strained interpretation of congressional purpose," the Court said in Public Citizen v. Burke.[42] While that case dealt with the Presidential Recordings and Materials Act, the stated role of the Archivist as an arbiter of records is similar to that assigned to him in the

to the records review process, others did not. Critics consider the order to be an impediment to the release of records rather than facilitating their release. The President and his staff describe Executive Order13233 as a procedural one carrying out the requirements of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 relating to a group of confidential advice records scheduled to become available beginning in January 2001. "We responded to a new law written by Congress that lays out a procedure that I think is fair for past Presidents. And it is a process that I think will enable historians to do their job, and at the same time protect state secrets. That's why I did what I did," said President Bush.[1]

A common criticism expressed on editorial pages, stated by scholars, and related by organizations is the restrictive impact of the order on the traditional access of the public to information generated by its government. In addition to organizations and users of records, former President Clinton's representative expressed concern over the impact of the Bush executive order. In a and letter to the White House, Bruce Lindsey, who represents the former President in records matters, expressed the need to make public the decision making process. "A government's legitimacy is based on the trust of its people, and when decisions are made on behalf of the American people, citizens eventually have to be able to see the process of how those decisions came to be," he said.[2]

The members of Congress who have publicly commented on the order have been critical of it, including ones in the President's party. In hearings conducted by Representative Stephen Horn, chairman of the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the House Government Reform Committee, committee member Don Ose (R-Ca.) commented: "The bottom line is that the new order appears to violate not only the spirit

Presidential Records Act. In the Reagan order, the Archivist was assigned a prominent role in records decisions as he was given the authority to open records even when a former President is against it.

The Bush White House regards the Archivist's role in the Reagan executive order to be a mistaken one. The recent executive order effectively takes away the role of the Archivist of the United States to be an arbiter of the records as he no longer has a role in executive privilege claims. Rather than viewing the Archivist to be an independent official in the 1984 legislation creating the National Archives and Records Administration, the White House views him as a member of the President's team. While in Public Citizen v. Burke he is viewed as a "subordinate of the President," his status is not further defined.[43] He is very much an administration official responsible to the President, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Counsel's office. "Just like John Ashcroft or anyone else," he said.[44] The White House saw no distinction between the place in the administration of the Archivist and Cabinet members even though the Presidential Records Act calls upon the President to contact the Congress with his reasons for dismissing the Archivist and does not have such a provision for Cabinet members.

How Long Can Records Be Withheld? The Presidential Records Act set a standard for the release of records to the public when it called for the Archivist to make "records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[45] Executive Order 13233 provides no time limits for the President to make a claim of executive privilege. The Presidential Records Act and the Reagan executive order provide specific time limits for presidents and former presidents to review records although the Reagan order provides for the President or former Chief Executive to request an extension. The impact of the order is to lengthen the process because the Archivist is no longer the intermediary he was intended to be in the Presidential Records Act. Once the White House has received records, another time clock begins. "After receiving the records he requests, the former President shall review those records as expeditiously as possible, and for no longer than 90days for requests that are not unduly burdensome," the act provides.[46] Should the records request prove burdensome, there is no time frame within which the former President must complete review of the records. The same is true with the President.

Because the Archivist is no longer an arbiter, it means the only recourse for a researcher denied papers is to go to court. Under FOIA, if someone is denied records, the researcher could appeal to the Deputy Archivist and then to the Court. Going to court not only lengthens the process for a researcher, it makes it a costly one as well.

What Is the Status of the Reagan Records? The 68,000 records reviewed by the Reagan Library under the Presidential Records Act are under review by lawyers working with the White House. While the records were at the heart of Executive Order 13233, the records themselves only recently came under scrutiny. Before the issuance of the order, the White House viewed only a small portion of the records. "The archivist came to us, asked that we actually sample some of the documents, which we did," said White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[47] "I think we sampled something like 2,000 documents provided to us by the archivist." A team of lawyers is currently going through the bulk of the records, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Office of Counsel to the President.[48] The White House expects the records to be released in coming months with few held back under terms of the order.

Critics Respond with Legal Action

Legal Action: American Historical Association v. National Archives and Records Administration. On November 28th, Public Citizen filed a complaint in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia against the National Archives and Records Administration. Filed under the Administrative Procedures Act, the Presidential Records Act and the plaintiffs "nonstatutory right to judicial review of unlawful executive action," the group of two historians and four organizations seeks "to obtain a declaratory judgment that the Archivist of the United States and the National Archives and Records Administration ('NARA') must administer the Presidential Records Act without regard to the terms of Executive Order No. 13,233 (the 'Bush Order'),and to compel the release of presidential materials of former President Ronald Reagan that are in the custody of NARA and are being withheld in violation of the PRA." The issues cited in the case as cause for the complaint include the expanded notion of executive privilege implied in the order; the charge that the incumbent President will follow the claim of privilege by the former President; the provision that a former President can have a surrogate acting on his behalf after his death, including family members; the stipulation that a Vice President can exercise a claim of executive privilege separate from that of the President.

The Future of the Executive Order. As he was leaving a presentation at the American Enterprise Institute, Karl Rove was asked if the White House had any second thoughts about their order on presidential records, he said "no".[49] His position reflected the public voices of all White House officials who have spoken on the subject. In his meeting with representatives of organizations representing the interests of political scientists, historians, archivists, and journalists, Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated the resolution of differences on the order would be settled by the courts. Indeed that appears to be the most likely venue for settling the dispute over the nature of executive privilege. In United States v. Nixon [418 U.S. 683 (1974)] the Supreme Court reaffirmed its authority to decide claims of privilege and used the landmark case of Marbury v. Madison [1 Cranch 137 (1803)] to do so. "We therefore reaffirm that it is the province and duty of this Court 'to say what the law is' with respect to the claim of privilege presented in this case."[50] It is likely it will be the court system that decides the claims put forward in the Bush order.

With its title "Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act", Executive Order 13233 invites a congressional response. In their letter to President Bush, Representatives Henry Waxman and Janice Schakowsky called upon the President to rescind his order and "instead begin a dialogue with Congress and the public to determine the need for clarification of this law."[51] While there is some discussion of bipartisan action in the House of Representatives, little is going on on the issue in the Senate. With one year left in the session and a packed agenda of domestic and terrorism related issues on the agenda, members of Congress are not likely to build a coalition of support for a measure to revoke the order. Any law would require a veto-proof majority, something difficult to achieve at any time. In addition, organizations and officials are reluctant to open up the Presidential Records Act for amendment for fear of opening up a larger discussion of records that might result in unintended alterations. There are those who would like to increase the number of years for records to be withheld from twelve years to somewhere in the neighborhood of 25.

but also the letter of the Presidential Records Act. In 1978, Congress very clearly expressed its intent to make presidential records available for congressional investigations and then for the public after a 12-year period. This new order undercuts the public's rights to be fully informed about how this government, the people's government, operated in the past."[3] Representative Horn called on the administration to "revisit" the order. "We must insure that the spirit of this law, the Presidential Records Act, needs to be upheld. And in light of the issues raised today and research conducted by the subcommittee staff, the administration should revisit the issue."[4] Democratic subcommittee members Reps. Henry Waxman (D-Ca.) and Janice Schakowsky (D-Ill.) released a joint statement calling on the President to rescind the order because it "violates the intent of Congress and keeps the public in the dark."[5]

Executive Order 13233: Origins and Explanations

To understand Executive Order 13233 and the issues surrounding it, one needs to review the relevant portions of the basic components of the legal and administrative history of presidential records. The basic documents are the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the Reagan Executive Order 12667 as well as court cases relating to the records issue.

REV_00325373

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 and Presidential Privilege. The Presidential Records Act of 1978 established public control of presidential records and their orderly release depending upon the degree of sensitivity of the documents. It created procedures for the handling of records in presidential libraries beginning with the papers of Ronald Reagan. Prior to the 1978 act, presidential records were under the control of the President whose administration generated them. The earlier presidential libraries, known as Deed of Gift libraries, are governed by different procedures as the materials in those libraries were donated by the presidents through Deeds of Gift to the National Archives.

While there has been an interest of government in records since 1789 when the Department of State was made responsible for their maintenance, the control of presidential records did not fall to the public until the 1978 Act. The courts, however, had stated the public interest in records as far back as 1841. In Nixon v. Administrator of General Services et al, the majority opinion refers to the nineteenth century case: "It has been accepted at least since Mr. Justice Story's opinion in Folsom v. Marsh, 9 F. Cas. 342, 347 (No. 4,901) (CC Mass.1841), that regardless of where legal title lies, 'from the nature of the public service, or the character of the documents, embracing historical, military, or diplomatic information, it may be the right, and even the duty, of the government to give them publicity, even against the will of the writers.'"[6]

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 provides that records of an administration are closed until five years following the end of an administration, except at the request of the courts or the Congress. At that point, records are available through the Freedom of Information Act [FOIA]except for those covered by the following categories: national security, personnel records; records specifically exempt by law; trade secrets; confidential communications between a President and his advisors; personal privacy. A President can deny access to records falling within those categories for up to twelve years and then they become subject to FOIA, except for the confidential advice category that contains the "deliberative process" and executive privilege claims. In order to carry out the provision protecting a President's constitutional claims, the Archivist is required to let the former President view the records "when the disclosure of particular documents may adversely affect any rights and privileges which the former President may have." To implement this provision, the Archivist informs the former President that he or his representative has 30 days to assert any rights or privileges that would prevent release of the records in question. If none is asserted, the documents are released.

President Reagan's Executive Order 12667. Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan on January 16, 1989, further brought the sitting and former presidents into the review process for presidential confidential advice records prior to their public release. The Reagan order requested the Archivist to notify the former President of the intention of the National Archives to release records from his library and to "identify any specific materials, the disclosure of which he [the Archivist] believes may raise a substantial question of Executive privilege."[7] If the former President wanted to prevent the release of records he could claim executive privilege, but the Archivist was not bound by his claim. The order defines executive privilege issues: "A 'substantial question of Executive privilege' exists if NARA's [National Archives and Records Administration] disclosure of Presidential records might impair the national security (including the conduct of foreign relations), law enforcement, or the deliberative processes of the Executive branch."[8] Additionally, the order provided that the incumbent President could act of the advice of the Attorney General and the White House Counsel to assert executive privilege and then order the Archivist not to release the records under review. The review had a time limit of 30 days after which the documents would be released.

It was under the provisions of the Reagan order that in February, President Bush was brought into the process of reviewing the confidential files sent forward by Reagan Library and Archives officials. The records were scheduled for release once the President took his turn at reviewing them under the provisions established by the Reagan executive order. The records scheduled for release by the Reagan Library and Archives officials included 68,000 pages of documents withheld under the confidential advice category. During the twelve year period archivists reviewed nearly four million pages of Reagan records working with FOIA requests. White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales instructed Archivist John Carlin that the White House was extending the review of the records release. After a second 90 day extension, on August 31st Judge Gonzales notified the Archivist that the White House was taking an indefinite extension to consider the release of the identified Reagan records. On November 1st President Bush issued Executive Order 13233.

President Bush's Executive Order 13233. The order revisits the issue of the roles of the current and former President as well as the Archivist. It adds in representatives of the former President and elaborates on the notion of what constitutes executive privilege. Additionally, the order establishes a threshold researchers must meet to get records where executive privilege is at issue. When the National Archives is to release records categorized as confidential advice, the Archivist is to inform the incumbent and former presidents. Each has 90 days to review the documents and request the withholding of those where either believes executive privilege is at issue. Both may request unlimited extensions to review records, which is a provision not found in the original act. The order states that "absent compelling circumstances, the incumbent President will concur in the privilege decision of the former President in response to a request for access under section 2204 (c)(1)."[9] Additionally it provides the "incumbent President will support that privilege claim in any forum in which the privilege claim is challenged."[10] If the former President wants to release records and the incumbent President does not, however, "the incumbent President may independently order the Archivist to withhold privileged records."[11]

To have standing to challenge a claim, the order interprets Supreme Court rulings as providing that "a party seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[12] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one.

The scope of "constitutionally based privilege" is enlarged from the Reagan order, though "law enforcement" concerns are no longer included. In the Bush order privilege is defined as "including those that apply to Presidential records reflecting military, diplomatic, or national security secrets, Presidential communications, legal advice, legal work, or the deliberative processes of the President and the President's advisors."[13] In addition to the incumbent President and the former President whose papers are in question, representatives of the President are authorized to prevent the release of papers by exercising his constitutional privileges. After the President dies, his representative can still exert claims of privilege. There is no provision for disputed papers to ever become public no matter how far back a President died.

Administration Explanations of the Origins and Aims of the Order. Administration officials have elaborated on the origins and aims of Executive Order 13233. The order itself contains the President's explanation of the constitutional and legal background of the order and in public venues administration officials have discussed their reasons for issuing it.

Legal Basis of the Order. The legal basis of their reasoning in the order is found in the original act and two Supreme Court decisions, which establish a President's and former President's constitutionally based privileges in the area of information and records as well as the threshold required to overcome a President's constitutionally based privileges. In the order, the administration points up the recognition in the Presidential Records Act of 1978 [section 2204(c)(2)], "Restrictions on access to Presidential records", that "the former President or the incumbent President may assert any constitutionally based privileges." Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the Office of White House Counsel and the person who crafted the order, said the order is designed to make operational the dictates of two Supreme Court decisions.[14] The cases are Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and United States v. Nixon. From Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, the administration cites the Supreme Court recognition of the need for the President to have confidential communications: 'Unless [the President] can give his advisers some assurance of confidentiality, a President could not expect to receive the full and frank submissions of facts and opinions upon which effective discharge of his duties depends. 433 U.S. at 448-49." The same case also established that "constitutionally based privileges 'survive a President's tenure.'" The administration cites United States v. Nixon for the standard set by the Supreme Court for the order's requirement a person to overcome the President's privileges applying to records "must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records, a standard that turns on the nature of the proceeding and the importance of the information in that proceeding."[15]

Public Explanations by Administration Officials. In several different venues, President Bush, Press Secretary Ari Fleischer, White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales, and Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh have commented on their executive order. In all of their remarks, the President and White House officials explain the need to establish procedures to implement the Presidential Records Act and the benefits they see accruing to historians and others using records coming from presidential libraries covered by the act. They view the order as necessary to effectuate the use of executive privilege by presidents whose records are scheduled for release. President Bush views the order as a procedural one: "There are some documents are privileged, protected. And this is just to make sure those documents remain protected and privileged. I don't see this as anything other than setting a set of procedures that I believe is fair and reasonable."[16]

I like this version much better. I would suggest changing the word "crucial" to "needed" and adding one or two sentences on the legal procedures. I believe that Kristen Silverberg is working on this. I would urge everyone to send their changes in to Ed by noon, and then have Ed send to OMB for immediate circulation in their SAP process (with a short turnaround). We should have a final version ready by late this afternoon.

Thanks,

Marc

SECOND DRAFT

Senate SAP on Terrorism Risk Insurance

The Administration strongly supports the creation of a terrorism risk insurance program that will provide much needed stability to our economy. The backstop insurance program established in the Senate-amended version of H.R. 3210 is a well-crafted and effective mechanism for ensuring the continued availability of insurance for terrorist-related acts. The program provides insurance companies with transparency in assessing their potential loss exposure while appropriately limiting that exposure and encouraging the private sector to build new capacity. It will aid the economy by dampening any increases in insurance costs or curtailment of insurance coverage while limiting federal intrusion into private activity.

The Administration urges Senate passage of the Senate-amended version of H.R. 3210 as a crucial step towards enactment of a terrorism risk insurance program. However, the Administration cannot support final enactment of the bill unless stronger procedures for terrorist-related litigation management are added in conference.

Tomorrow morning I have to turn in my piece on the EO, Brett. If you could, please look at least at the parts where your name comes up. There are references to you on pages: 8 [footnote 14], 9, 15 [footnote 29], 20 [footnote 44], 22 [48], and 23.

Let me know what you would like to do with your quotes. I think the piece benefits from having you in it as you are the person most involved with the order and, therefore, a very informed voice. I can be reached tomorrow at PRA 6 and PRA 6.

Warm Wishes,

Executive Order 13233 Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act

Martha Joynt Kumar

Towson University

On November 1st, President Bush signed Executive Order 13233 allowing for the release of a select category of records only after the incumbent and former presidents agree on their release. In addition, the order rescinded Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan in 1989, which established procedures for the incumbent and former President to review certain presidential records twelve years after the Chief Executive left office and to block release of documents based on a claim of executive privilege. The Bush executive order was occasioned by a group of presidential documents coming to the White House from the Reagan Library under the terms of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the regulations provided for in Executive Order 12667.

The reaction to the order from scholars and organizations with members using records was immediate and it was critical of the order. While the President and his staff view the order in terms of the procedures it establishes and, thus, the efficiency it brings

Orderly Process. The heart of the order lies in the procedures it creates relating to the role of former presidents in making claims executive privilege. "What we have done in this executive order is to provide a process, an orderly process, to help the Archivist, with respect to the presidential records of a former President," commented White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[17] He elaborated on this statement in a piece he wrote for USA Today emphasizing the President's statutory and court based obligation to protect the rights of former presidents to exercise executive privilege "The order fulfills the president's statutory obligation to implement the Presidential Records Act, as well as his obligations under a 1977 Supreme Court ruling that held that former presidents continue to have the right to assert privileges over their records even after their term has ended. Neither Bush nor Congress has the power or authority to ignore that Supreme Court ruling. The Presidential Records Act fails to establish a procedure for former presidents to assert their constitutionally guaranteed privilege. President Bush's order provides such procedures and sets a reasonable time frame for review of records and assertion of privileges."[18]

More Information Will Flow. Press Secretary Ari Fleischer indicated the order will result in more information being released than can be counted on as coming from one of the Deed of Gift libraries, those established before the 1978 Presidential Records Act.

> As a result of the new law that is now going into effect, and thanks to the executive order that the President will soon issue, more information will be forthcoming. And it will be available through a much more orderly process. The executive order will lay out the terms of that process, and it will help people to get information. There will be a 90-day time line put on it, so that academicians or whoever can get that information on request to the Archivist of the United States. The Archivist will then get in touch with the former President, with this administration. And unless an objection to releasing the information is raised, on the basis of those objections that are allowable under the law, the information will then become released.

Correcting Problems Contained in Reagan Order. In part administration officials say, the Bush Executive Order is meant to correct the problems of the Reagan order as much as it is to fill in procedures to implement the 1978 law. While the Reagan Executive Order 12677 brought the former President into the process of reviewing documents for an executive privilege component, the Bush White House did not believe the former Chief Executives had a sufficient role in determining the fate of their own records. "There was an executive order that was signed by Ronald Reagan dealing with his presidential records. That will be rescinded by this order. And the reason that we are rescinding that order is because that order gives no deference whatsoever to the opinions of a former President. It basically says – it gives, basically, the decision making to the incumbent President," commented Gonzales in a private briefing with a select group of reporters.[19] "And we felt that was inconsistent with current Supreme Court precedent, and also, quite frankly, reflected bad policy. And we thought it would be more appropriate to really give the primary responsibility regarding presidential records to the former President whose records they belong to, and to have the incumbent President sort of be the backstop in making decisions about whether or not those documents should in fact be released."

Incumbent Will Follow Wishes of Former President. In his explanation of the order in his testimony before the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Committee on Government Reform, Edward Whelan III, Acting Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel at the Department of Justice, commented the incumbent President will have less say over the records of his predecessor than he did prior to the issuance of the order. "Consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v GSA, and with sound policy, President Bush's executive order confers on former presidents, the primary responsibility for asserting privileges with respect to their presidential records. Indeed, by providing that the incumbent president will, absent of compelling circumstances, concur in the former president's decision, whether or not to invoke a privilege. President Bush's executive order grants the incumbent president less authority over the records of a former president than the incumbent president had under the previous 1989 executive order, implementing the Act."[20]

Critics Offer Their Explanations for the Order. Critics of the order quickly came forward with their comments quoted in wire service reports, in the major newspapers, and on the air. Editorials ran in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Los Angeles Times with respectively the following titles, "Cheating History," "A Flawed Approach on Records," and "A Dark Oval Office."[21] Critics of the order, focused on what they saw as reasons for the order. Three recurring themes of the critics are: to protect current administration officials who served in the Reagan White House; the desire to develop a court case to get a reading by the Supreme Court of executive privilege; the order is viewed as part of an overall information and policy seeking to reassert a President's control over the release of information government-wide. Wire service and newspaper articles reporting the order almost uniformly reported in their stories on the order with quotes from or allusions to scholars or others who raised the question whether the order was an effort to protect people currently working in the Bush Administration who served in the White House and in departments and agencies during the Reagan years.[22] Many officials currently serving had a place in the Reagan Administration, including Colin Powell, Andrew Card, Mitch Daniels, Larry Lindsey.

Some critics have alluded to the administration's fights on many fronts over the issue of executive privilege. Professor Peter Shane raised the question in his testimony at the House hearing if the administration was seeking a confrontation on executive privilege. "This administration has seemed to develop what might be called a kind of ideology of executive privilege, it is picking fights over records of past administrations," Shane said. "In one case with regard to the vice president's meetings and his contest of GAO [General Accounting Office], I have to say it's a current president but the information seems almost trivial, it seems like an almost intent to pick a fight."[23] Scholars and others raised concern over the variety of areas in which the administration had restricted the release of information, including in addition to the Cheney example the October 16th order by John Ashcroft departments and agencies informing them they can "be assured" the Justice Department will defend them in their refusal to release records under the Freedom of Information Act, thus reversing an order by Attorney General Janet Reno calling on governmental agencies to err on the side of the release of records. Executive Order 12958, a 1995 order issued by President Clinton declassifying government national security records is currently under review and, in the view of the critics of the Bush order, at risk for major revision.

Perspectives on the Issues Arising From the Order

The order raises important constitutional questions relating to presidential privilege, including its scope, the right of a former President to invoke privilege, the ability of a former President's representative and family members to make such claims for him after his death, and the ability of the Vice President to make claims of executive privilege on his own behalf independent of a presidential claim. In addition to presidential privilege issues, the order raises questions about the role assigned to the Archivist of the United States in the Presidential Records Act as an arbiter of records, the requirement of the order that a person requesting records "establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records." Additionally, scholars point to the impact of the order through the increased length of time provided officials to process records and the need to go through the court system to appeal a negative decision on the release of records rather than work through the Archivist for appeals.

What Is the Proper Scope of Executive Privilege? Critics of the order raise questions about the notion of presidential privilege put forth in the order. Representative Doug Ose in his opening statement at the House subcommittee hearing stated his concern that the order creates two new areas of privilege: "Those two areas being communications of the president of his advisors, that is the presidential communications privileges, and legal advice or legal work, meaning the attorney- client or attorney-work-product privilege. I am deeply concerned about the two new broad limitations in the order. Both of them, especially the presidential communications privilege, could severely limit congressional access to key documents in its investigations of any former administration."[24] In his response to Representative Ose's questions, the administration's representative, Edward Whelan III, said no such expansion is intended. "No substantive change is intended, or effected, by the difference in words used to describe the privilege. Nor could any president, through an executive order, change the contours of the constitutional privileges available to existing and former presidents." While that may be so, some take the position the listing of privileges found in the executive order needs to be challenged by the Congress or future presidents might seek to act on the basis of the list.[25]

What Weight Does a Former President's Privilege Claim Have? In Nixon v. Administrator the Supreme Court established that a President's privilege survives the tenure of the Chief Executive. Speaking for the Court, Justice Brennan said "we reject the argument that only an incumbent President may assert such claims and hold that appellant [former President Nixon], as a former President, may also be heard to assert them."[26] At the same time, though, the majority opinion states the "incumbent President is vitally concerned with and in the best position to assess the present and future needs of the Executive Branch, and to support invocation of the privilege accordingly."[27] In the same majority opinion, Justice Brennan noted "the expectation of the confidentiality of executive communications thus has always been limited and subject to erosion over time after an administration leaves office."[28] While Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated White House officials understand erosion takes place, it is unclear how that process takes place. It is, he indicated, a judgment the courts will have to make.[29]

Can Representatives of a President Assert Privilege? The order provides a former President's representative can make executive privilege claims on his behalf, even if the President has died. In a briefing with a select group of reporters, Judge Gonzales indicated representatives will be allowed to speak for presidents. "We will look to the representative of the former President to decide whether or not a privilege should be asserted. And the executive order makes clear that except for compelling circumstances, that this administration will agree with the decision by President Reagan's representative," he said.[30] Queried as to what the qualifications must be for an individual chosen to represent the President, Acting Assistant Attorney General said a former President "may designate whomever he sees fit."[31] He continued: "A former president presumably would want to select as his representative, someone who was knowledgeable about, and sensitive to, the interests that advisors would have so that advisors in the future would have confidence that they could give their full, frank advice." Yet the order does not require a former President to choose such a person, nor following his death that his family members select someone with records expertise. As it relates to presidents who have died or are disabled, the order is at odds with the Presidential Records Act, which provides in such cases authority passes to the Archivist.[32]

Who Has the Burden of Proof on Records Issues? A variety of groups representing archivists, academics, and journalists view the order as subverting the Presidential Records Act rather than implementing it as the Congress intended for it to operate. In the House hearings, Professor Mark Rozell raised an issue brought up by many critics:

instead of the government proving why information should be kept secret, the order now requires the public to justify why it needs records. "With regard to legislative executive disputes over information, the burden is on the president to demonstrate a need for confidentiality and not on Congress to prove that it has the right to conduct oversight. Similarly, the burden should be on a president or ex-president to demonstrate a need to close off access to past presidential records and not on citizens to prove that they have a right to examine public records. The Bush administration actions on executive privilege dramatically shifts the burden away from where it belongs."[33]

Executive Order 13233 provides that someone seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[34] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one in implementing the legislation. The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in Nixon v. Freeman [670 F.2d 346 (D.C. Cir.), *cert.Denied,*459 U.S. 1035 (1982) rejected the need of the public to demonstrate a need in order to get access to presidential information, in that case the tapes of former President Nixon. "We also see no justification for requiring the Administrator to condition access upon a showing of particularized need."[35]

Does the Vice-President Have an Independent Claim of Executive Privilege? The executive order allows a Vice President to exercise executive privilege, an authority some question. In the hearings in the House of Representatives Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Government Reform Committee, Professor Peter Shane disputed the right of a Vice President to exercise executive privilege. "The vice-president's privileges, such as they are, could only be part and parcel of the privilege that protects the presidency. I don't read into the Constitution -- I know of no authority that suggests that there is independent executive privilege to protect the office of the vice-presidency. As a presidential advisor, vice- presidents are undoubtedly protected in their communications in order to protect the presidency," Shane said.[36] "But I would imagine that huge quantities of what the vice- presidents read and deliberate upon are no more protected by executive privilege than, say, the records of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission or the Small Business Administration. He's just another federal administrator." While he may be more than "just another federal administrator," it is unclear where his independent claim to executive privilege lies.

What Is the Appropriate Records Role of the Archivist? In the Presidential Records Act, the Archivist is the linchpin of the process of the dissemination of records. In language inserted on the House floor, the act articulates the role of the Archivist: "The Archivist shall have an affirmative duty to make such records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[37] As an example of his reach, the act provided that "upon the death or disability of a President or former President, any discretion or authority the President or former President may have had under this chapter shall be exercised by the Archivist unless otherwise previously provided by the President or former President in a written notice to the Archivist."[38] The Bush order, however, does not provide for such a role for the Archivist preferring instead to deal with representatives of the President. Executive Order 13233 states: "Upon the death or disability of a former President, the former President's designated representative shall act on his behalf for purposes of the Act [Presidential Records Act] and this order, including with respect to the assertion of constitutionally based privileges."[39] Further, the order provides should there be no designated representative, "the family of the former President may designate a representative (or series or group of alternative representatives, as they in their discretion may determine) to act on the former President's behalf for purposes of the Act and this order, including with respect to the assertion of their constitutionally based privileges."[40]

The Archivist role in records review and decision-making is long-standing. In its 1974 Presidential Recordings and Materials preservation Act, the Congress assigned to the Archivist the duty upheld in Public Citizen v. Burke [843 F. 2nd 1473 (D.C. Circuit. 1988] to review claims of executive privilege. The court commented in that case on the suitability of the Archivist to assess privilege claims. "And the Archivist will be knowledgeable, as appellees emphasize, as to what information is already disclosed and therefore will be. If properly advised as to constitutional matters, uniquely suited to expressing the Executive Branch's determination on such claims."[41] "If, whenever Mr. Nixon asserts executive privilege, the Archivist in effect loses jurisdiction over his responsibilities to affect disclosure, the former President has gained power to withdraw from the Archivist some indefinite portion of the responsibilities that Congress delegated to him – and transfer those responsibilities to the Judiciary. We think that is a strained interpretation of congressional purpose," the Court said in Public Citizen v. Burke.[42] While that case dealt with the Presidential Recordings and Materials Act, the stated role of the Archivist as an arbiter of records is similar to that assigned to him in the

to the records review process, others did not. Critics consider the order to be an impediment to the release of records rather than facilitating their release. The President and his staff describe Executive Order13233 as a procedural one carrying out the requirements of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 relating to a group of confidential advice records scheduled to become available beginning in January 2001. "We responded to a new law written by Congress that lays out a procedure that I think is fair for past Presidents. And it is a process that I think will enable historians to do their job, and at the same time protect state secrets. That's why I did what I did," said President Bush.[1]

A common criticism expressed on editorial pages, stated by scholars, and related by organizations is the restrictive impact of the order on the traditional access of the public to information generated by its government. In addition to organizations and users of records, former President Clinton's representative expressed concern over the impact of the Bush executive order. In a and letter to the White House, Bruce Lindsey, who represents the former President in records matters, expressed the need to make public the decision making process. "A government's legitimacy is based on the trust of its people, and when decisions are made on behalf of the American people, citizens eventually have to be able to see the process of how those decisions came to be," he said.[2]

The members of Congress who have publicly commented on the order have been critical of it, including ones in the President's party. In hearings conducted by Representative Stephen Horn, chairman of the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the House Government Reform Committee, committee member Doug Ose (R-Ca.) commented: "The bottom line is that the new order appears to violate not only the spirit

Presidential Records Act. In the Reagan order, the Archivist was assigned a prominent role in records decisions as he was given the authority to open records even when a former President is against it.

The Bush White House regards the Archivist's role in the Reagan executive order to be a mistaken one. The recent executive order effectively takes away the role of the Archivist of the United States to be an arbiter of the records as he no longer has a role in executive privilege claims. Rather than viewing the Archivist to be an independent official in the 1984 legislation creating the National Archives and Records Administration, the White House views him as a member of the President's team. While in Public Citizen v. Burke he is viewed as a "subordinate of the President," his status is not further defined.[43] He is very much an administration official responsible to the President, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Counsel's office. "Just like John Ashcroft or anyone else," he said.[44] The White House saw no distinction between the place in the administration of the Archivist and Cabinet members even though the Presidential Records Act calls upon the President to contact the Congress with his reasons for dismissing the Archivist and does not have such a provision for Cabinet members.

How Long Can Records Be Withheld? The Presidential Records Act set a standard for the release of records to the public when it called for the Archivist to make "records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[45] Executive Order 13233 provides no time limits for the President to make a claim of executive privilege. The Presidential Records Act and the Reagan executive order provide specific time limits for presidents and former presidents to review records although the Reagan order provides for the President or former Chief Executive to request an extension. The impact of the order is to lengthen the process because the Archivist is no longer the intermediary he was intended to be in the Presidential Records Act. Once the White House has received records, another time clock begins. "After receiving the records he requests, the former President shall review those records as expeditiously as possible, and for no longer than 90days for requests that are not unduly burdensome," the act provides.[46] Should the records request prove burdensome, there is no time frame within which the former President must complete review of the records. The same is true with the President.

Because the Archivist is no longer an arbiter, it means the only recourse for a researcher denied papers is to go to court. Under FOIA, if someone is denied records, the researcher could appeal to the Deputy Archivist and then to the Court. Going to court not only lengthens the process for a researcher, it makes it a costly one as well.

What Is the Status of the Reagan Records? The 68,000 records reviewed by the Reagan Library under the Presidential Records Act are under review by lawyers working with the White House. While the records were at the heart of Executive Order 13233, the records themselves only recently came under scrutiny. Before the issuance of the order, the White House viewed only a small portion of the records. "The archivist came to us, asked that we actually sample some of the documents, which we did," said White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[47] "I think we sampled something like 2,000 documents provided to us by the archivist." A team of lawyers is currently going through the bulk of the records, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Office of Counsel to the President.[48] The White House expects the records to be released in coming months with few held back under terms of the order.

Critics Respond with Legal Action

Legal Action: American Historical Association v. National Archives and Records Administration. On November 28th, Public Citizen filed a complaint in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia against the National Archives and Records Administration. Filed under the Administrative Procedures Act, the Presidential Records Act and the plaintiffs "nonstatutory right to judicial review of unlawful executive action," the group of two historians and four organizations seeks "to obtain a declaratory judgment that the Archivist of the United States and the National Archives and Records Administration ('NARA') must administer the Presidential Records Act without regard to the terms of Executive Order No. 13,233 (the 'Bush Order'),and to compel the release of presidential materials of former President Ronald Reagan that are in the custody of NARA and are being withheld in violation of the PRA." The issues cited in the case as cause for the complaint include the expanded notion of executive privilege implied in the order; the charge that the incumbent President will follow the claim of privilege by the former President; the provision that a former President can have a surrogate acting on his behalf after his death, including family members; the stipulation that a Vice President can exercise a claim of executive privilege separate from that of the President.

The Future of the Executive Order. As he was leaving a presentation at the American Enterprise Institute, Karl Rove was asked if the White House had any second thoughts about their order on presidential records, he said "no".[49] His position reflected the public voices of all White House officials who have spoken on the subject. In his meeting with representatives of organizations representing the interests of political scientists, historians, archivists, and journalists, Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated the resolution of differences on the order would be settled by the courts. Indeed that appears to be the most likely venue for settling the dispute over the nature of executive privilege. In United States v. Nixon [418 U.S. 683 (1974)] the Supreme Court reaffirmed its authority to decide claims of privilege and used the landmark case of Marbury v. Madison [1 Cranch 137 (1803)] to do so. "We therefore reaffirm that it is the province and duty of this Court 'to say what the law is' with respect to the claim of privilege presented in this case."[50] It is likely it will be the court system that decides the claims put forward in the Bush order.

With its title "Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act", Executive Order 13233 invites a congressional response. In their letter to President Bush, Representatives Henry Waxman and Janice Schakowsky called upon the President to rescind his order and "instead begin a dialogue with Congress and the public to determine the need for clarification of this law."[51] While there is some discussion of bipartisan action in the House of Representatives, little is going on on the issue in the Senate. With one year left in the session and a packed agenda of domestic and terrorism related issues on the agenda, members of Congress are not likely to build a coalition of support for a measure to revoke the order. Any law would require a veto-proof majority, something difficult to achieve at any time. In addition, organizations and officials are reluctant to open up the Presidential Records Act for amendment for fear of opening up a larger discussion of records that might result in unintended alterations. There are those who would like to increase the number of years for records to be withheld from twelve years to somewhere in the neighborhood of 25.

but also the letter of the Presidential Records Act. In 1978, Congress very clearly expressed its intent to make presidential records available for congressional investigations and then for the public after a 12-year period. This new order undercuts the public's rights to be fully informed about how this government, the people's government, operated in the past."[3] Representative Horn called on the administration to "revisit" the order. "We must insure that the spirit of this law, the Presidential Records Act, needs to be upheld. And in light of the issues raised today and research conducted by the subcommittee staff, the administration should revisit the issue."[4] Democratic subcommittee members Reps. Henry Waxman (D-Ca.) and Janice Schakowsky (D-Ill.) released a joint statement calling on the President to rescind the order because it "violates the intent of Congress and keeps the public in the dark."[5]

Acting on behalf of two historians and a group of organizations representing the interests of their members using presidential records, Public Citizen has filed a complaint in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, American Historical Association v National Archives and Records Administration.

Executive Order 13233: Origins and Explanations

To understand Executive Order 13233 and the issues surrounding it, one needs to review the relevant portions of the basic components of the legal and administrative history of presidential records. The basic documents are the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the Reagan Executive Order 12667 as well as court cases relating to the records issue.

REV_00325874

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 and Presidential Privilege. The Presidential Records Act of 1978 established public control of presidential records and their orderly release depending upon the degree of sensitivity of the documents. It created procedures for the handling of records in presidential libraries beginning with the papers of Ronald Reagan. Prior to the 1978 act, presidential records were under the control of the President whose administration generated them. The earlier presidential libraries, known as Deed of Gift libraries, are governed by different procedures as the materials in those libraries were donated by the presidents through Deeds of Gift to the National Archives.

While there has been an interest of government in records since 1789 when the Department of State was made responsible for their maintenance, the control of presidential records did not fall to the public until the 1978 Act. The courts, however, had stated the public interest in records as far back as 1841. In Nixon v. Administrator of General Services et al, the majority opinion refers to the nineteenth century case: "It has been accepted at least since Mr. Justice Story's opinion in Folsom v. Marsh, 9 F. Cas. 342, 347 (No. 4,901) (CC Mass.1841), that regardless of where legal title lies, 'from the nature of the public service, or the character of the documents, embracing historical, military, or diplomatic information, it may be the right, and even the duty, of the government to give them publicity, even against the will of the writers.'"[6]

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 provides that records of an administration are closed until five years following the end of an administration, except at the request of the courts or the Congress. At that point, records are available through the Freedom of Information Act [FOIA]except for those covered by the following categories: national security, personnel records; records specifically exempt by law; trade secrets; confidential communications between a President and his advisors; personal privacy. A President can deny access to records falling within those categories for up to twelve years and then they become subject to FOIA, except for the confidential advice category that contains the "deliberative process" and executive privilege claims. In order to carry out the provision protecting a President's ability to assert constitutional claims, the Archivist is required to let the former President view the records "when the disclosure of particular documents may adversely affect any rights and privileges which the former President may have." To implement this provision, the Archivist informs the former President that he or his representative has 30 days to assert any rights or privileges that would prevent release of the records in question. The time can be extended. If none is asserted, the documents are released.

President Reagan's Executive Order 12667. Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan on January 16, 1989, further brought the sitting and former presidents into the review process for presidential confidential advice records prior to their public release. The Reagan order requested the Archivist to notify the former President of the intention of the National Archives to release records from his library and to "identify any specific materials, the disclosure of which he [the Archivist] believes may raise a substantial question of Executive privilege."[7] If the former President wanted to prevent the release of records he could claim executive privilege, but the Archivist was not bound by his claim. The order defines executive privilege issues: "A 'substantial question of Executive privilege' exists if NARA's [National Archives and Records Administration] disclosure of Presidential records might impair the national security (including the conduct of foreign relations), law enforcement, or the deliberative processes of the Executive branch."[8] Additionally, the order provided that the incumbent President could act of the advice of the Attorney General and the White House Counsel to assert executive privilege and then order the Archivist not to release the records under review.

It was under the provisions of the Reagan order that in February, President Bush was brought into the process of reviewing the confidential files sent forward by Reagan Library and Archives officials. The records were scheduled for release once the President took his turn at reviewing them under the provisions established by the Reagan executive order. The records scheduled for release by the Reagan Library and Archives officials included 68,000 pages of documents withheld under the confidential advice category. During the twelve year period archivists reviewed nearly four million pages of Reagan records working with FOIA requests. White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales instructed Archivist John Carlin that the White House was extending the review of the records release. After a second 90 day extension, on August 31st Judge Gonzales notified the Archivist that the White House was taking an indefinite extension to consider the release of the identified Reagan records. On November 1st President Bush issued Executive Order 13233.

President Bush's Executive Order 13233. The order revisits the issue of the roles of the current and former President as well as the Archivist. It adds in representatives of the former President and elaborates on the notion of what constitutes executive privilege. Additionally, the order establishes a threshold researchers must meet to get records where executive privilege is at issue. When the National Archives is to release records categorized as confidential advice, the Archivist is to inform the incumbent and former presidents. Each has 90 days to review the documents and request the withholding of those where either believes executive privilege is at issue. Both may request unlimited extensions to review records, which is a provision not found in the original act. The order states that "absent compelling circumstances, the incumbent President will concur in the privilege decision of the former President in response to a request for access under section 2204 (c)(1)."[9] Additionally it provides the "incumbent President will support that privilege claim in any forum in which the privilege claim is challenged."[10] If the former President wants to release records and the incumbent President does not, however, "the incumbent President may independently order the Archivist to withhold privileged records."[11]

To have standing to challenge a claim, the order interprets Supreme Court rulings as providing that "a party seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[12] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one.

The scope of "constitutionally based privilege" is enlarged from the Reagan order, though "law enforcement" concerns are no longer included. In the Bush order privilege is defined as "including those that apply to Presidential records reflecting military, diplomatic, or national security secrets, Presidential communications, legal advice, legal work, or the deliberative processes of the President and the President's advisors."[13] In addition to the incumbent President and the former President whose papers are in question, representatives of the President are authorized to prevent the release of papers by exercising his constitutional privileges. After the President dies, his representative can still exert claims of privilege. There is no provision for disputed papers to ever become public no matter how far back a President died.

Administration Explanations of the Origins and Aims of the Order. Administration officials have elaborated on the origins and aims of Executive Order 13233. The order itself contains the President's explanation of the constitutional and legal background of the order and in public venues administration officials have discussed their reasons for issuing it.

Legal Basis of the Order. The legal basis of their reasoning in the order is found in the original act and two Supreme Court decisions, which establish a President's and former President's constitutionally based privileges in the area of information and records as well as the threshold required to overcome a President's constitutionally based privileges. In the order, the administration points up the recognition in the Presidential Records Act of 1978 [section 2204(c)(2)], "Restrictions on access to Presidential records", that "the former President or the incumbent President may assert any constitutionally based privileges." Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the Office of White House Counsel and the person who crafted the order, said the order is designed to make operational the dictates of two Supreme Court decisions.[14] The cases are Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and United States v. Nixon. From Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, the administration cites the Supreme Court recognition of the need for the President to have confidential communications: 'Unless [the President] can give his advisers some assurance of confidentiality, a President could not expect to receive the full and frank submissions of facts and opinions upon which effective discharge of his duties depends. 433 U.S. at 448-49." The same case also established that "constitutionally based privileges 'survive a President's tenure.'" The administration cites United States v. Nixon for the standard set by the Supreme Court for the order's requirement a person to overcome the President's privileges applying to records "must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records, a standard that turns on the nature of the proceeding and the importance of the information in that proceeding."[15]

Public Explanations by Administration Officials. In several different venues, President Bush, Press Secretary Ari Fleischer, White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales, and Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh have commented on their executive order. In all of their remarks, the President and White House officials explain the need to establish procedures to implement the Presidential Records Act and the benefits they see accruing to historians and others using records coming from presidential libraries covered by the act. They view the order as necessary to effectuate the use of executive privilege by presidents whose records are scheduled for release. President Bush views the order as a procedural one: "There are some documents are privileged, protected. And this is just to make sure those documents remain protected and privileged. I don't see this as anything other than setting a set of procedures that I believe is fair and reasonable."[16]

Let me lodge an appeal here, Brett. I will take out the references but I think some recognition that you are meeting with groups and talking through the order lets people know you are open to talking about it with the critics of the order.

What about backgrounding some of it? I am taking everything out though in with it early tomorrow while it is being edited.

Executive Order 13233 Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act

Martha Joynt Kumar

Towson University

On November 1st, President Bush signed Executive Order 13233 allowing for the release of a select category of records only after the incumbent and former presidents agree on their release. In addition, the order rescinded Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan in 1989, which established procedures for the incumbent and former President to review certain presidential records twelve years after the Chief Executive left office and to block release of documents based on a claim of executive privilege. The Bush executive order was occasioned by a group of presidential documents coming to the White House from the Reagan Library under the terms of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the regulations provided for in Executive Order 12667.

The reaction to the order from scholars and organizations with members using records was immediate and it was critical of the order. While the President and his staff view the order in terms of the procedures it establishes and, thus, the efficiency it brings

Orderly Process. The heart of the order lies in the procedures it creates relating to the role of former presidents in making claims executive privilege. "What we have done in this executive order is to provide a process, an orderly process, to help the Archivist, with respect to the presidential records of a former President," commented White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[17] He elaborated on this statement in a piece he wrote for USA Today emphasizing the President's statutory and court based obligation to protect the rights of former presidents to exercise executive privilege "The order fulfills the president's statutory obligation to implement the Presidential Records Act, as well as his obligations under a 1977 Supreme Court ruling that held that former presidents continue to have the right to assert privileges over their records even after their term has ended. Neither Bush nor Congress has the power or authority to ignore that Supreme Court ruling. The Presidential Records Act fails to establish a procedure for former presidents to assert their constitutionally guaranteed privilege. President Bush's order provides such procedures and sets a reasonable time frame for review of records and assertion of privileges."[18]

More Information Will Flow. Press Secretary Ari Fleischer indicated the order will result in more information being released than can be counted on as coming from one of the Deed of Gift libraries, those established before the 1978 Presidential Records Act.

> As a result of the new law that is now going into effect, and thanks to the executive order that the President will soon issue, more information will be forthcoming. And it will be available through a much more orderly process. The executive order will lay out the terms of that process, and it will help people to get information. There will be a 90-day time line put on it, so that academicians or whoever can get that information on request to the Archivist of the United States. The Archivist will then get in touch with the former President, with this administration. And unless an objection to releasing the information is raised, on the basis of those objections that are allowable under the law, the information will then become released.

Correcting Problems Contained in Reagan Order. In part administration officials say, the Bush Executive Order is meant to correct the problems of the Reagan order as much as it is to fill in procedures to implement the 1978 law. While the Reagan Executive Order 12677 brought the former President into the process of reviewing documents for an executive privilege component, the Bush White House did not believe the former Chief Executives had a sufficient role in determining the fate of their own records. "There was an executive order that was signed by Ronald Reagan dealing with his presidential records. That will be rescinded by this order. And the reason that we are rescinding that order is because that order gives no deference whatsoever to the opinions of a former President. It basically says – it gives, basically, the decision making to the incumbent President," commented Gonzales in a private briefing with a select group of reporters.[19] "And we felt that was inconsistent with current Supreme Court precedent, and also, quite frankly, reflected bad policy. And we thought it would be more appropriate to really give the primary responsibility regarding presidential records to the former President whose records they belong to, and to have the incumbent President sort of be the backstop in making decisions about whether or not those documents should in fact be released."

Incumbent Will Follow Wishes of Former President. In his explanation of the order in his testimony before the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Committee on Government Reform, Edward Whelan III, Acting Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel at the Department of Justice, commented the incumbent President will have less say over the records of his predecessor than he did prior to the issuance of the order. "Consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v GSA, and with sound policy, President Bush's executive order confers on former presidents, the primary responsibility for asserting privileges with respect to their presidential records. Indeed, by providing that the incumbent president will, absent of compelling circumstances, concur in the former president's decision, whether or not to invoke a privilege. President Bush's executive order grants the incumbent president less authority over the records of a former president than the incumbent president had under the previous 1989 executive order, implementing the Act."[20]

Critics Offer Their Explanations for the Order. Critics of the order quickly came forward with their comments quoted in wire service reports, in the major newspapers, and on the air. Editorials ran in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Los Angeles Times with respectively the following titles, "Cheating History," "A Flawed Approach on Records," and "A Dark Oval Office."[21] Critics of the order, focused on what they saw as reasons for the order. Three recurring themes of the critics are: to protect current administration officials who served in the Reagan White House; the desire to develop a court case to get a reading by the Supreme Court of executive privilege; the order is viewed as part of an overall information and policy seeking to reassert a President's control over the release of information government-wide. Wire service and newspaper articles reporting the order almost uniformly reported in their stories on the order with quotes from or allusions to scholars or others who raised the question whether the order was an effort to protect people currently working in the Bush Administration who served in the White House and in departments and agencies during the Reagan years.[22] Many officials currently serving had a place in the Reagan Administration, including Colin Powell, Andrew Card, Mitch Daniels, Larry Lindsey.

Some critics have alluded to the administration's fights on many fronts over the issue of executive privilege. Professor Peter Shane raised the question in his testimony at the House hearing if the administration was seeking a confrontation on executive privilege. "This administration has seemed to develop what might be called a kind of ideology of executive privilege, it is picking fights over records of past administrations," Shane said. "In one case with regard to the vice president's meetings and his contest of GAO [General Accounting Office], I have to say it's a current president but the information seems almost trivial, it seems like an almost intent to pick a fight."[23] Scholars and others raised concern over the variety of areas in which the administration had restricted the release of information, including in addition to the Cheney example the October 16th order by John Ashcroft departments and agencies informing them they can "be assured" the Justice Department will defend them in their refusal to release records under the Freedom of Information Act, thus reversing an order by Attorney General Janet Reno calling on governmental agencies to err on the side of the release of records. Executive Order 12958, a 1995 order issued by President Clinton declassifying government national security records is currently under review and, in the view of the critics of the Bush order, at risk for major revision.

Perspectives on the Issues Arising From the Order

The order raises important constitutional questions relating to presidential privilege, including its scope, the right of a former President to invoke privilege, the ability of a former President's representative and family members to make such claims for him after his death, and the ability of the Vice President to make claims of executive privilege on his own behalf independent of a presidential claim. In addition to presidential privilege issues, the order raises questions about the role assigned to the Archivist of the United States in the Presidential Records Act as an arbiter of records, the requirement of the order that a person requesting records "establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records." Additionally, scholars point to the impact of the order through the increased length of time provided officials to process records and the need to go through the court system to appeal a negative decision on the release of records rather than work through the Archivist for appeals.

What Is the Proper Scope of Executive Privilege? Critics of the order raise questions about the notion of presidential privilege put forth in the order. Representative Doug Ose in his opening statement at the House subcommittee hearing stated his concern that the order creates two new areas of privilege: "Those two areas being communications of the president of his advisors, that is the presidential communications privileges, and legal advice or legal work, meaning the attorney- client or attorney-work-product privilege. I am deeply concerned about the two new broad limitations in the order. Both of them, especially the presidential communications privilege, could severely limit congressional access to key documents in its investigations of any former administration."[24] In his response to Representative Ose's questions, the administration's representative, Edward Whelan III, said no such expansion is intended. "No substantive change is intended, or effected, by the difference in words used to describe the privilege. Nor could any president, through an executive order, change the contours of the constitutional privileges available to existing and former presidents." While that may be so, some take the position the listing of privileges found in the executive order needs to be challenged by the Congress or future presidents might seek to act on the basis of the list.[25]

What Weight Does a Former President's Privilege Claim Have? In Nixon v. Administrator the Supreme Court established that a President's privilege survives the tenure of the Chief Executive. Speaking for the Court, Justice Brennan said "we reject the argument that only an incumbent President may assert such claims and hold that appellant [former President Nixon], as a former President, may also be heard to assert them."[26] At the same time, though, the majority opinion states the "incumbent President is vitally concerned with and in the best position to assess the present and future needs of the Executive Branch, and to support invocation of the privilege accordingly."[27] In the same majority opinion, Justice Brennan noted "the expectation of the confidentiality of executive communications thus has always been limited and subject to erosion over time after an administration leaves office."[28] While Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated White House officials understand erosion takes place, it is unclear how that process takes place. It is, he indicated, a judgment the courts will have to make.[29]

Can Representatives of a President Assert Privilege? The order provides a former President's representative can make executive privilege claims on his behalf, even if the President has died. In a briefing with a select group of reporters, Judge Gonzales indicated representatives will be allowed to speak for presidents. "We will look to the representative of the former President to decide whether or not a privilege should be asserted. And the executive order makes clear that except for compelling circumstances, that this administration will agree with the decision by President Reagan's representative," he said.[30] Queried as to what the qualifications must be for an individual chosen to represent the President, Acting Assistant Attorney General said a former President "may designate whomever he sees fit."[31] He continued: "A former president presumably would want to select as his representative, someone who was knowledgeable about, and sensitive to, the interests that advisors would have so that advisors in the future would have confidence that they could give their full, frank advice." Yet the order does not require a former President to choose such a person, nor following his death that his family members select someone with records expertise. As it relates to presidents who have died or are disabled, the order is at odds with the Presidential Records Act, which provides in such cases authority passes to the Archivist.[32]

Who Has the Burden of Proof on Records Issues? A variety of groups representing archivists, academics, and journalists view the order as subverting the Presidential Records Act rather than implementing it as the Congress intended for it to operate. In the House hearings, Professor Mark Rozell raised an issue brought up by many critics:

instead of the government proving why information should be kept secret, the order now requires the public to justify why it needs records. "With regard to legislative executive disputes over information, the burden is on the president to demonstrate a need for confidentiality and not on Congress to prove that it has the right to conduct oversight. Similarly, the burden should be on a president or ex-president to demonstrate a need to close off access to past presidential records and not on citizens to prove that they have a right to examine public records. The Bush administration actions on executive privilege dramatically shifts the burden away from where it belongs."[33]

Executive Order 13233 provides that someone seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[34] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one in implementing the legislation. The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in Nixon v. Freeman [670 F.2d 346 (D.C. Cir.), *cert.Denied,*459 U.S. 1035 (1982) rejected the need of the public to demonstrate a need in order to get access to presidential information, in that case the tapes of former President Nixon. "We also see no justification for requiring the Administrator to condition access upon a showing of particularized need."[35]

Does the Vice-President Have an Independent Claim of Executive Privilege? The executive order allows a Vice President to exercise executive privilege, an authority some question. In the hearings in the House of Representatives Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the Government Reform Committee, Professor Peter Shane disputed the right of a Vice President to exercise executive privilege. "The vice-president's privileges, such as they are, could only be part and parcel of the privilege that protects the presidency. I don't read into the Constitution -- I know of no authority that suggests that there is independent executive privilege to protect the office of the vice-presidency. As a presidential advisor, vice- presidents are undoubtedly protected in their communications in order to protect the presidency," Shane said.[36] "But I would imagine that huge quantities of what the vice- presidents read and deliberate upon are no more protected by executive privilege than, say, the records of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission or the Small Business Administration. He's just another federal administrator." While he may be more than "just another federal administrator," it is unclear where his independent claim to executive privilege lies.

What Is the Appropriate Records Role of the Archivist? In the Presidential Records Act, the Archivist is the linchpin of the process of the dissemination of records. In language inserted on the House floor, the act articulates the role of the Archivist: "The Archivist shall have an affirmative duty to make such records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[37] As an example of his reach, the act provided that "upon the death or disability of a President or former President, any discretion or authority the President or former President may have had under this chapter shall be exercised by the Archivist unless otherwise previously provided by the President or former President in a written notice to the Archivist."[38] The Bush order, however, does not provide for such a role for the Archivist preferring instead to deal with representatives of the President. Executive Order 13233 states: "Upon the death or disability of a former President, the former President's designated representative shall act on his behalf for purposes of the Act [Presidential Records Act] and this order, including with respect to the assertion of constitutionally based privileges."[39] Further, the order provides should there be no designated representative, "the family of the former President may designate a representative (or series or group of alternative representatives, as they in their discretion may determine) to act on the former President's behalf for purposes of the Act and this order, including with respect to the assertion of their constitutionally based privileges."[40]

The Archivist role in records review and decision-making is long-standing. In its 1974 Presidential Recordings and Materials preservation Act, the Congress assigned to the Archivist the duty upheld in Public Citizen v. Burke [843 F. 2nd 1473 (D.C. Circuit. 1988] to review claims of executive privilege. The court commented in that case on the suitability of the Archivist to assess privilege claims. "And the Archivist will be knowledgeable, as appellees emphasize, as to what information is already disclosed and therefore will be. If properly advised as to constitutional matters, uniquely suited to expressing the Executive Branch's determination on such claims."[41] "If, whenever Mr. Nixon asserts executive privilege, the Archivist in effect loses jurisdiction over his responsibilities to affect disclosure, the former President has gained power to withdraw from the Archivist some indefinite portion of the responsibilities that Congress delegated to him – and transfer those responsibilities to the Judiciary. We think that is a strained interpretation of congressional purpose," the Court said in Public Citizen v. Burke.[42] While that case dealt with the Presidential Recordings and Materials Act, the stated role of the Archivist as an arbiter of records is similar to that assigned to him in the

to the records review process, others did not. Critics consider the order to be an impediment to the release of records rather than facilitating their release. The President and his staff describe Executive Order13233 as a procedural one carrying out the requirements of the Presidential Records Act of 1978 relating to a group of confidential advice records scheduled to become available beginning in January 2001. "We responded to a new law written by Congress that lays out a procedure that I think is fair for past Presidents. And it is a process that I think will enable historians to do their job, and at the same time protect state secrets. That's why I did what I did," said President Bush.[1]

A common criticism expressed on editorial pages, stated by scholars, and related by organizations is the restrictive impact of the order on the traditional access of the public to information generated by its government. In addition to organizations and users of records, former President Clinton's representative expressed concern over the impact of the Bush executive order. In a and letter to the White House, Bruce Lindsey, who represents the former President in records matters, expressed the need to make public the decision making process. "A government's legitimacy is based on the trust of its people, and when decisions are made on behalf of the American people, citizens eventually have to be able to see the process of how those decisions came to be," he said.[2]

The members of Congress who have publicly commented on the order have been critical of it, including ones in the President's party. In hearings conducted by Representative Stephen Horn, chairman of the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency of the House Government Reform Committee, committee member Doug Ose (R-Ca.) commented: "The bottom line is that the new order appears to violate not only the spirit

Presidential Records Act. In the Reagan order, the Archivist was assigned a prominent role in records decisions as he was given the authority to open records even when a former President is against it.

The Bush White House regards the Archivist's role in the Reagan executive order to be a mistaken one. The recent executive order effectively takes away the role of the Archivist of the United States to be an arbiter of the records as he no longer has a role in executive privilege claims. Rather than viewing the Archivist to be an independent official in the 1984 legislation creating the National Archives and Records Administration, the White House views him as a member of the President's team. While in Public Citizen v. Burke he is viewed as a "subordinate of the President," his status is not further defined.[43] He is very much an administration official responsible to the President, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Counsel's office. "Just like John Ashcroft or anyone else," he said.[44] The White House saw no distinction between the place in the administration of the Archivist and Cabinet members even though the Presidential Records Act calls upon the President to contact the Congress with his reasons for dismissing the Archivist and does not have such a provision for Cabinet members.

How Long Can Records Be Withheld? The Presidential Records Act set a standard for the release of records to the public when it called for the Archivist to make "records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act."[45] Executive Order 13233 provides no time limits for the President to make a claim of executive privilege. The Presidential Records Act and the Reagan executive order provide specific time limits for presidents and former presidents to review records although the Reagan order provides for the President or former Chief Executive to request an extension. The impact of the order is to lengthen the process because the Archivist is no longer the intermediary he was intended to be in the Presidential Records Act. Once the White House has received records, another time clock begins. "After receiving the records he requests, the former President shall review those records as expeditiously as possible, and for no longer than 90days for requests that are not unduly burdensome," the act provides.[46] Should the records request prove burdensome, there is no time frame within which the former President must complete review of the records. The same is true with the President.

Because the Archivist is no longer an arbiter, it means the only recourse for a researcher denied papers is to go to court. Under FOIA, if someone is denied records, the researcher could appeal to the Deputy Archivist and then to the Court. Going to court not only lengthens the process for a researcher, it makes it a costly one as well.

What Is the Status of the Reagan Records? The 68,000 records reviewed by the Reagan Library under the Presidential Records Act are under review by lawyers working with the White House. While the records were at the heart of Executive Order 13233, the records themselves only recently came under scrutiny. Before the issuance of the order, the White House viewed only a small portion of the records. "The archivist came to us, asked that we actually sample some of the documents, which we did," said White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales.[47] "I think we sampled something like 2,000 documents provided to us by the archivist." A team of lawyers is currently going through the bulk of the records, indicated Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the White House Office of Counsel to the President.[48] The White House expects the records to be released in coming months with few held back under terms of the order.

Critics Respond with Legal Action

Legal Action: American Historical Association v. National Archives and Records Administration. On November 28th, Public Citizen filed a complaint in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia against the National Archives and Records Administration. Filed under the Administrative Procedures Act, the Presidential Records Act and the plaintiffs "nonstatutory right to judicial review of unlawful executive action," the group of two historians and four organizations seeks "to obtain a declaratory judgment that the Archivist of the United States and the National Archives and Records Administration ('NARA') must administer the Presidential Records Act without regard to the terms of Executive Order No. 13,233 (the 'Bush Order'),and to compel the release of presidential materials of former President Ronald Reagan that are in the custody of NARA and are being withheld in violation of the PRA." The issues cited in the case as cause for the complaint include the expanded notion of executive privilege implied in the order; the charge that the incumbent President will follow the claim of privilege by the former President; the provision that a former President can have a surrogate acting on his behalf after his death, including family members; the stipulation that a Vice President can exercise a claim of executive privilege separate from that of the President.

The Future of the Executive Order. As he was leaving a presentation at the American Enterprise Institute, Karl Rove was asked if the White House had any second thoughts about their order on presidential records, he said "no".[49] His position reflected the public voices of all White House officials who have spoken on the subject. In his meeting with representatives of organizations representing the interests of political scientists, historians, archivists, and journalists, Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh indicated the resolution of differences on the order would be settled by the courts. Indeed that appears to be the most likely venue for settling the dispute over the nature of executive privilege. In United States v. Nixon [418 U.S. 683 (1974)] the Supreme Court reaffirmed its authority to decide claims of privilege and used the landmark case of Marbury v. Madison [1 Cranch 137 (1803)] to do so. "We therefore reaffirm that it is the province and duty of this Court 'to say what the law is' with respect to the claim of privilege presented in this case."[50] It is likely it will be the court system that decides the claims put forward in the Bush order.

With its title "Further Implementation of the Presidential Records Act", Executive Order 13233 invites a congressional response. In their letter to President Bush, Representatives Henry Waxman and Janice Schakowsky called upon the President to rescind his order and "instead begin a dialogue with Congress and the public to determine the need for clarification of this law."[51] While there is some discussion of bipartisan action in the House of Representatives, little is going on on the issue in the Senate. With one year left in the session and a packed agenda of domestic and terrorism related issues on the agenda, members of Congress are not likely to build a coalition of support for a measure to revoke the order. Any law would require a veto-proof majority, something difficult to achieve at any time. In addition, organizations and officials are reluctant to open up the Presidential Records Act for amendment for fear of opening up a larger discussion of records that might result in unintended alterations. There are those who would like to increase the number of years for records to be withheld from twelve years to somewhere in the neighborhood of 25.

but also the letter of the Presidential Records Act. In 1978, Congress very clearly expressed its intent to make presidential records available for congressional investigations and then for the public after a 12-year period. This new order undercuts the public's rights to be fully informed about how this government, the people's government, operated in the past."[3] Representative Horn called on the administration to "revisit" the order. "We must insure that the spirit of this law, the Presidential Records Act, needs to be upheld. And in light of the issues raised today and research conducted by the subcommittee staff, the administration should revisit the issue."[4] Democratic subcommittee members Reps. Henry Waxman (D-Ca.) and Janice Schakowsky (D-Ill.) released a joint statement calling on the President to rescind the order because it "violates the intent of Congress and keeps the public in the dark."[5]

Executive Order 13233: Origins and Explanations

To understand Executive Order 13233 and the issues surrounding it, one needs to review the relevant portions of the basic components of the legal and administrative history of presidential records. The basic documents are the Presidential Records Act of 1978 and the Reagan Executive Order 12667 as well as court cases relating to the records issue.

REV_00326083

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 and Presidential Privilege. The Presidential Records Act of 1978 established public control of presidential records and their orderly release depending upon the degree of sensitivity of the documents. It created procedures for the handling of records in presidential libraries beginning with the papers of Ronald Reagan. Prior to the 1978 act, presidential records were under the control of the President whose administration generated them. The earlier presidential libraries, known as Deed of Gift libraries, are governed by different procedures as the materials in those libraries were donated by the presidents through Deeds of Gift to the National Archives.

While there has been an interest of government in records since 1789 when the Department of State was made responsible for their maintenance, the control of presidential records did not fall to the public until the 1978 Act. The courts, however, had stated the public interest in records as far back as 1841. In Nixon v. Administrator of General Services et al, the majority opinion refers to the nineteenth century case: "It has been accepted at least since Mr. Justice Story's opinion in Folsom v. Marsh, 9 F. Cas. 342, 347 (No. 4,901) (CC Mass.1841), that regardless of where legal title lies, 'from the nature of the public service, or the character of the documents, embracing historical, military, or diplomatic information, it may be the right, and even the duty, of the government to give them publicity, even against the will of the writers.'"[6]

The Presidential Records Act of 1978 provides that records of an administration are closed until five years following the end of an administration, except at the request of the courts or the Congress. At that point, records are available through the Freedom of Information Act [FOIA]except for those covered by the following categories: national security, personnel records; records specifically exempt by law; trade secrets; confidential communications between a President and his advisors; personal privacy. A President can deny access to records falling within those categories for up to twelve years and then they become subject to FOIA, except for the confidential advice category that contains the "deliberative process" and executive privilege claims. In order to carry out the provision protecting a President's ability to assert constitutional claims, the Archivist is required to let the former President view the records "when the disclosure of particular documents may adversely affect any rights and privileges which the former President may have." To implement this provision, the Archivist informs the former President that he or his representative has 30 days to assert any rights or privileges that would prevent release of the records in question. The time can be extended. If none is asserted, the documents are released.

President Reagan's Executive Order 12667. Executive Order 12667 signed by President Reagan on January 16, 1989, further brought the sitting and former presidents into the review process for presidential confidential advice records prior to their public release. The Reagan order requested the Archivist to notify the former President of the intention of the National Archives to release records from his library and to "identify any specific materials, the disclosure of which he [the Archivist] believes may raise a substantial question of Executive privilege."[7] If the former President wanted to prevent the release of records he could claim executive privilege, but the Archivist was not bound by his claim. The order defines executive privilege issues: "A 'substantial question of Executive privilege' exists if NARA's [National Archives and Records Administration] disclosure of Presidential records might impair the national security (including the conduct of foreign relations), law enforcement, or the deliberative processes of the Executive branch."[8] Additionally, the order provided that the incumbent President could act of the advice of the Attorney General and the White House Counsel to assert executive privilege and then order the Archivist not to release the records under review.

It was under the provisions of the Reagan order that in February, President Bush was brought into the process of reviewing the confidential files sent forward by Reagan Library and Archives officials. The records were scheduled for release once the President took his turn at reviewing them under the provisions established by the Reagan executive order. The records scheduled for release by the Reagan Library and Archives officials included 68,000 pages of documents withheld under the confidential advice category. During the twelve year period archivists reviewed nearly four million pages of Reagan records working with FOIA requests. White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales instructed Archivist John Carlin that the White House was extending the review of the records release. After a second 90 day extension, on August 31st Judge Gonzales notified the Archivist that the White House was taking an indefinite extension to consider the release of the identified Reagan records. On November 1st President Bush issued Executive Order 13233.

President Bush's Executive Order 13233. The order revisits the issue of the roles of the current and former President as well as the Archivist. It adds in representatives of the former President and elaborates on the notion of what constitutes executive privilege. Additionally, the order establishes a threshold researchers must meet to get records where executive privilege is at issue. When the National Archives is to release records categorized as confidential advice, the Archivist is to inform the incumbent and former presidents. Each has 90 days to review the documents and request the withholding of those where either believes executive privilege is at issue. Both may request unlimited extensions to review records, which is a provision not found in the original act. The order states that "absent compelling circumstances, the incumbent President will concur in the privilege decision of the former President in response to a request for access under section 2204 (c)(1)."[9] Additionally it provides the "incumbent President will support that privilege claim in any forum in which the privilege claim is challenged."[10] If the former President wants to release records and the incumbent President does not, however, "the incumbent President may independently order the Archivist to withhold privileged records."[11]

To have standing to challenge a claim, the order interprets Supreme Court rulings as providing that "a party seeking to overcome the constitutionally based privileges that apply to Presidential records must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records."[12] The Presidential Records Act does not establish a demonstrated need threshold of any sort for access to presidential records nor do Archives officials use one.

The scope of "constitutionally based privilege" is enlarged from the Reagan order, though "law enforcement" concerns are no longer included. In the Bush order privilege is defined as "including those that apply to Presidential records reflecting military, diplomatic, or national security secrets, Presidential communications, legal advice, legal work, or the deliberative processes of the President and the President's advisors."[13] In addition to the incumbent President and the former President whose papers are in question, representatives of the President are authorized to prevent the release of papers by exercising his constitutional privileges. After the President dies, his representative can still exert claims of privilege. There is no provision for disputed papers to ever become public no matter how far back a President died.

Administration Explanations of the Origins and Aims of the Order. Administration officials have elaborated on the origins and aims of Executive Order 13233. The order itself contains the President's explanation of the constitutional and legal background of the order and in public venues administration officials have discussed their reasons for issuing it.

Legal Basis of the Order. The legal basis of their reasoning in the order is found in the original act and two Supreme Court decisions, which establish a President's and former President's constitutionally based privileges in the area of information and records as well as the threshold required to overcome a President's constitutionally based privileges. In the order, the administration points up the recognition in the Presidential Records Act of 1978 [section 2204(c)(2)], "Restrictions on access to Presidential records", that "the former President or the incumbent President may assert any constitutionally based privileges." Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel in the Office of White House Counsel and the person who crafted the order, said the order is designed to make operational the dictates of two Supreme Court decisions.[14] The cases are Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and United States v. Nixon. From Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, the administration cites the Supreme Court recognition of the need for the President to have confidential communications: 'Unless [the President] can give his advisers some assurance of confidentiality, a President could not expect to receive the full and frank submissions of facts and opinions upon which effective discharge of his duties depends. 433 U.S. at 448-49." The same case also established that "constitutionally based privileges 'survive a President's tenure.'" The administration cites United States v. Nixon for the standard set by the Supreme Court for the order's requirement a person to overcome the President's privileges applying to records "must establish at least a 'demonstrated, specific need' for particular records, a standard that turns on the nature of the proceeding and the importance of the information in that proceeding."[15]

Public Explanations by Administration Officials. In several different venues, President Bush, Press Secretary Ari Fleischer, White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales, and Associate Counsel Brett Kavanaugh have commented on their executive order. In all of their remarks, the President and White House officials explain the need to establish procedures to implement the Presidential Records Act and the benefits they see accruing to historians and others using records coming from presidential libraries covered by the act. They view the order as necessary to effectuate the use of executive privilege by presidents whose records are scheduled for release. President Bush views the order as a procedural one: "There are some documents are privileged, protected. And this is just to make sure those documents remain protected and privileged. I don't see this as anything other than setting a set of procedures that I believe is fair and reasonable."[16]

To implement the International Convention for the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings to strengthen criminal laws relating to attacks on places of public use, to implement the International Convention of the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism, to combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, and for other purposes.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

DECEMBER 5, 2001

Mr. LEAHY introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary

A BILL

To implement the International Convention for the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings to strengthen criminal laws relating to attacks on places of public use, to implement the International Convention of the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism, to combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

other person not taking an active part in the hostilities in a situation of armed conflict, when the purpose of such act, by its nature or context, is to intimidate a population, or to compel a government or an international organization to do or to abstain from doing any act, shall be punished as prescribed in subsection (d)(1).

"(2) ATTEMPTS AND CONSPIRACIES.—Whoever attempts or conspires to commit an offense under paragraph (1) shall be punished as prescribed in subsection (d)(1).

"(3) RELATIONSHIP TO PREDICATE ACT.—For an act to constitute an offense set forth in this subsection, it shall not be necessary that the funds were actually used to carry out a predicate act.

"(b) JURISDICTION.—There is jurisdiction over the offenses in subsection (a) in the following circumstances—

"(1) the offense takes place in the United States and—

"(A) a perpetrator was a national of another state or a stateless person;

"(B) on board a vessel flying the flag of another state or an aircraft which is registered under the laws of another state at the time the offense is committed;

REV_00326162

"(C) on board an aircraft which is operated by the government of another state;

"(D) a perpetrator is found outside the United States;

"(E) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act against—

"(i) a national of another state; or

"(ii) another state or a government facility of such state, including its embassy or other diplomatic or consular premises of that state;

"(F) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act committed in an attempt to compel another state or international organization to do or abstain from doing any act; or

"(G) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act—

"(i) outside the United States; or

"(ii) within the United States, and either the offense or the predicate act was conducted in, or the results thereof affected, interstate or foreign commerce;

"(2) the offense takes place outside the United States and—

REV_00326163

"(A) a perpetrator is a national of the United States or is a stateless person whose habitual residence is in the United States;

"(B) a perpetrator is found in the United States; or

"(C) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act against—

"(i) any property that is owned, leased, or used by the United States or by any department or agency of the United States, including an embassy or other diplomatic or consular premises of the United States;

"(ii) any person or property within the United States;

"(iii) any national of the United States or the property of such national; or

"(iv) any property of any legal entity organized under the laws of the United States, including any of its States, districts, commonwealths, territories, or possessions;

"(3) the offense is committed on board a vessel flying the flag of the United States or an aircraft

which is registered under the laws of the United States at the time the offense is committed;

"(4) the offense is committed on board an aircraft which is operated by the United States; or

"(5) the offense was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act committed in an attempt to compel the United States to do or abstain from doing any act.

"(c) PENALTIES.—Whoever violates subsection (a) shall be fined under this title, imprisoned for not more than 20 years, or both.

"(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

"(1) the term 'funds' means assets of every kind, whether tangible or intangible, movable or immovable, however acquired, and legal documents or instruments in any form, including electronic or digital, evidencing title to, or interest in, such assets, including coin, currency, bank credits, travelers checks, bank checks, money orders, shares, securities, bonds, drafts, and letters of credit;

107TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. 1770

To implement the International Convention for the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings to strengthen criminal laws relating to attacks on places of public use, to implement the International Convention of the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism, to combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, and for other purposes.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

DECEMBER 5, 2001

Mr. LEAHY introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary

A BILL

To implement the International Convention for the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings to strengthen criminal laws relating to attacks on places of public use, to implement the International Convention of the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism, to combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

other person not taking an active part in the hostilities in a situation of armed conflict, when the purpose of such act, by its nature or context, is to intimidate a population, or to compel a government or an international organization to do or to abstain from doing any act, shall be punished as prescribed in subsection (d)(1).

"(2) ATTEMPTS AND CONSPIRACIES.—Whoever attempts or conspires to commit an offense under paragraph (1) shall be punished as prescribed in subsection (d)(1).

"(3) RELATIONSHIP TO PREDICATE ACT.—For an act to constitute an offense set forth in this subsection, it shall not be necessary that the funds were actually used to carry out a predicate act.

"(b) JURISDICTION.—There is jurisdiction over the offenses in subsection (a) in the following circumstances—

"(1) the offense takes place in the United States and—

"(A) a perpetrator was a national of another state or a stateless person;

"(B) on board a vessel flying the flag of another state or an aircraft which is registered under the laws of another state at the time the offense is committed;

REV_00326276

"(C) on board an aircraft which is operated by the government of another state;

"(D) a perpetrator is found outside the United States;

"(E) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act against—

"(i) a national of another state; or

"(ii) another state or a government facility of such state, including its embassy or other diplomatic or consular premises of that state;

"(F) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act committed in an attempt to compel another state or international organization to do or abstain from doing any act; or

"(G) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act—

"(i) outside the United States; or

"(ii) within the United States, and either the offense or the predicate act was conducted in, or the results thereof affected, interstate or foreign commerce;

"(2) the offense takes place outside the United States and—

REV_00326277

"(A) a perpetrator is a national of the United States or is a stateless person whose habitual residence is in the United States;

"(B) a perpetrator is found in the United States; or

"(C) was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act against—

"(i) any property that is owned, leased, or used by the United States or by any department or agency of the United States, including an embassy or other diplomatic or consular premises of the United States;

"(ii) any person or property within the United States;

"(iii) any national of the United States or the property of such national; or

"(iv) any property of any legal entity organized under the laws of the United States, including any of its States, districts, commonwealths, territories, or possessions;

"(3) the offense is committed on board a vessel flying the flag of the United States or an aircraft

which is registered under the laws of the United States at the time the offense is committed;

"(4) the offense is committed on board an aircraft which is operated by the United States; or

"(5) the offense was directed toward or resulted in the carrying out of a predicate act committed in an attempt to compel the United States to do or abstain from doing any act.

"(c) PENALTIES.—Whoever violates subsection (a) shall be fined under this title, imprisoned for not more than 20 years, or both.

"(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

"(1) the term 'funds' means assets of every kind, whether tangible or intangible, movable or immovable, however acquired, and legal documents or instruments in any form, including electronic or digital, evidencing title to, or interest in, such assets, including coin, currency, bank credits, travelers checks, bank checks, money orders, shares, securities, bonds, drafts, and letters of credit;

"(2) the term 'government facility' means any permanent or temporary facility or conveyance that is used or occupied by representatives of a state, members of a government, the legislature, or the judiciary, or by officials or employees of a state or any other public authority or entity or by employees or officials of an intergovernmental organization in connection with their official duties;

"(3) the term 'proceeds' means any funds derived from or obtained, directly or indirectly, through the commission of an offense set forth in subsection (a);

"(4) the term 'provides' includes giving, donating, and transmitting;

"(5) the term 'collects' includes raising and receiving;

"(6) the term 'predicate act' means any act referred to in subparagraph (A) or (B) of subsection (a)(1);

"(A) a perpetrator is a national of the United States or is a stateless person whose habitual residence is in the United States;

"(B) a victim is a national of the United States;

"(C) a perpetrator is found in the United States;

"(D) the offense is committed in an attempt to compel the United States to do or abstain from doing any act;

"(E) the offense is committed against a state or government facility of the United States, including an embassy or other diplomatic or consular premises of the United States;

"(F) the offense is committed on board a vessel flying the flag of the United States or an aircraft which is registered under the laws of the United States at the time the offense is committed; or

"(G) the offense is committed on board an aircraft which is operated by the United States.

"(c) PENALTIES.—Whoever violates this section shall be imprisoned for any term of years or for life.

"(d) EXEMPTIONS TO JURISDICTION.—This section does not apply to—

"(1) the activities of armed forces during an armed conflict, as those terms are understood under the law of war, which are governed by that law;

"(2) activities undertaken by military forces of a state in the exercise of their official duties; or

"(3) offenses committed within the United States, where the alleged offender and the victims are United States citizens and the alleged offender is found in the United States, or where jurisdiction is predicated solely on the nationality of the victims or the alleged offender and the offense has no substantial effect on interstate or foreign commerce.

"(e) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section, the term—

"(1) 'serious bodily injury' has the meaning given that term in section 1365(g)(3) of this title;

REV_00326271

"(2) 'national of the United States' has the meaning given that term in section 101(a)(22) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(22));

"(3) 'state or government facility' includes any permanent or temporary facility or conveyance that is used or occupied by representatives of a state, members of Government, the legislature or the judiciary or by officials or employees of a state or any other public authority or entity or by employees or officials of an intergovernmental organization in connection with their official duties;

"(4) 'intergovernmental organization' includes international organization (as defined in section 1116(b)(5) of this title);

"(5) 'infrastructure facility' means any publicly or privately owned facility providing or distributing services for the benefit of the public, such as water, sewage, energy, fuel, or communications;

"(6) 'place of public use' means those parts of any building, land, street, waterway, or other location that are accessible or open to members of the public, whether continuously, periodically, or occasionally, and encompasses any commercial, business, cultural, historical, educational, religious, governmental, entertainment, recreational, or similar place that is so accessible or open to the public;

"(7) 'public transportation system' means all facilities, conveyances, and instrumentalities, whether publicly or privately owned, that are used in or for publicly available services for the transportation of persons or cargo;

"(8) 'explosive' has the meaning given in section 844(j) of this title insofar that it is designed, or has the capability, to cause death, serious bodily injury, or substantial material damage;

"(9) 'other legal device' means any weapon or device that is designed or has the capability to cause death, serious bodily injury, or substantial damage to property through the release, dissemination, or impact of toxic chemicals, biological agents, or toxins (as those terms are defined in section 178 of this title) or radiation or radioactive material;

"(10) 'military forces of a state' means the armed forces of a state which are organized, trained, and equipped under its internal law for the primary purpose of national defense or security, and persons acting in support of those armed forces who are under their formal command, control, and responsibility;

"(11) 'armed conflict' does not include internal disturbances and tensions, such as riots, isolated, and sporadic acts of violence, and other acts of a similar nature; and

"(12) 'state' has the same meaning as that term has under international law, and includes all political subdivisions thereof.".

Let me lodge an appeal here, Brett. I will take out the references but I think some recognition that you are meeting with groups and talking through the order lets people know you are open to talking about it with the critics of the order.

What about backgrounding some of it? I am taking everything out though in case we don't make contact before I send it in. I can still do something with it early tomorrow while it is being edited.

Warm Wishes,

Martha

Congress Daily is saying the Daschle compromise is an agreement with the White House and some Republicans in the Senate.
What is going on? If you can, please call me PRA 6

Public backs Republican economic policies

President's Gallup job approval above 86% for 100 days

"War's success boosts Bush. Poll: Public behind his economic policy"
-USA Today Front Page, December 20, 2001

ECONOMIC STIMULUS

In dealing with the country's economic problems, Americans favor Republican policies over Democratic ones. 44% prefer the Republicans' approach to dealing with the recession, compared to 35% who favor the Democrats' plan. And last week's NBC/WSJ poll showed that by almost a 2-1 margin, the public favors President Bush's approach to getting the country out of recession over the Congressional Democrats' approach.

THE RECESSION

Americans believe September 11, Congress and the Clinton administration bear more responsibility for the recession than the Bush administration. Eight in ten think September 11 contributed to the country's economic problems. 75% say Congress deserves blame for the recession, while 62% blame the Clinton administration. Only 44% blame the Bush administration. Other recent surveys show that many Americans attribute the recession to normal fluctuations in the business cycle.

JOB APPROVAL

President Bush's job approval has been above 86% for 100 days. The President's approval rating has been between 86% and 90% for ten consecutive Gallup polls – the longest duration of such ratings for any president in polling history.

CONGRESSIONAL BALLOT

Republicans now enjoy a 5% lead over Democrats in the 2002 generic ballot. In June, Democrats were favored over Republicans in the 2002 generic ballot by 4 points; last month the parties were at parity. Republicans now lead 48% to 43% among registered voters. In 1994, Republicans trailed Democrats by an average of 1% leading up to the mid-term elections.

THE WAR ON TERRORISM

The public supports a long-term war against terrorism. 67% say we should actively use military forces in other countries that harbor terrorists, while only 30% say we should end our current military action after Osama bin Laden is captured or killed and his terrorist network in Afghanistan is destroyed.

MISSILE DEFENSE

Overwhelming support exists for spending the money to build a missile defense system. 67% favor spending the necessary money to build a defense system against nuclear missiles. Furthermore, a plurality approves of the President's decision to "abandon" the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty with Russia.

U.S. Department of Justice

Office of Legislative Affairs

Office of the Assistant Attorney General

Washington, D.C. 20530

December 19, 2001

The Honorable Dan Burton
Chairman
Committee on Government Reform
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am writing to follow up regarding the Committee's subpoenas seeking prosecutorial decisonmaking memoranda in connection with the Committee's investigations of campaign finance matters, alleged false statements by an individual (Ernest Howard) in a separate investigation, and the FBI's handling of informants in Boston. The Department stands ready to work with the Committee to seek to accommodate the legitimate needs that the Committee may have for information regarding these matters.

The Department has a strong confidentiality interest in the extremely sensitive prosecutorial decisionmaking documents called for by the subpoenas. The Attorney General and other Department decisionmakers must have the benefit of candid and confidential advice and recommendations in making investigative and prosecutorial decisions. Consistent with the longstanding position of the executive branch with respect to these kinds of highly sensitive memoranda, the President has therefore asserted executive privilege with respect to the subpoenaed documents. At the same time, he has requested that the Department remain willing to work with the Committee to provide such information as the Department can, consistent with his instructions and without violating the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers.

Pursuant to longstanding executive branch policy, in responding to congressional requests for confidential information, the Department seeks in all cases to engage in an accommodation process in an effort to satisfy legitimate congressional needs while protecting executive branch confidentiality interests. The Department has already accommodated the Committee's information needs with respect to the prosecutorial memoranda relating to campaign finance and the Howard matter. We have provided briefings on the reasons for the decisions to decline prosecutions for Ernest Howard and Mark Middleton, which your August 30, 2001, letter indicated were very helpful. With regard to the Conrad collection of memoranda, on August 23, 2000, then Attorney General Reno publicly stated the reasons for her decision not to appoint a Special Counsel and, on October 5, 2000, you questioned her about that decision in an interview on the record. Prior to these explanations, the Department had provided the underlying factual records relating to each matter, to the extent permissible under the grand jury secrecy requirements of Rule 6(e) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. In the October 2000 meeting, some information also could not be provided because of its relevance to then pending investigations.

As to the Boston matter, we believe that the Department and the Committee can work together to provide the Committee additional information without compromising the principles maintained by the executive branch. We will be prepared to make a proposal as to how further to accommodate the Committee's needs as soon as you inform us in writing of the specific needs the Committee has for additional information. See United States v. American Tel. & Tel. Co., 567 F.2d 121, 127 (D.C. Cir. 1977); Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities v. Nixon, 498 F.2d 725, 731 (D.C. Cir. 1974) (en banc).

The Department has been providing an extensive body of other materials to the Committee since April 27, 2001, when we provided approximately 1178 pages in response to your request of March 30, 2001 for documents about the murder of Mr. Edward Deegan, for which Mr. Joseph Salvati and six others were convicted. Since the crime was not prosecuted federally, the FBI does not have a discrete file on the subject. Hence, the responsive documents were found in other files and some information was redacted because it pertained to other matters outside the scope of the Committee's request. In August 2001, Committee counsel reviewed unredacted copies of these documents and some pages were re-processed to restore information that was responsive to your June 5 request for documents on other Boston matters. More than 3800 pages have been produced in response to that request and the FBI is still processing responsive documents regarding the FBI's handling of informants in Boston. We expect to provide documents regarding the FBI's Top Hoodlum Program this week and to produce additional documents after the Holiday recess.

The document production process for the Boston matters has thus been proceeding since March of this year. We note, moreover, that the Committee's March and June requests did not indicate any interest in the prosecutorial decision-making memoranda and the Committee did not even request them until it subpoenaed them on September 6. The Committee then immediately scheduled for September 13 a hearing regarding its demand for these documents. When that hearing was postponed due to the events of September 11, the Department was advised that the matter would be deferred until a later time. We first learned that the Committee was renewing the matter during the week following Thanksgiving when the hearing was re-scheduled for December 6. It was postponed to December 13 at the Department's request so that Assistant Attorney General Michael Chertoff could testify, but his obligations relating to the September 11 investigation made that appearance impossible and the Chairman refused the Attorney General's request that the hearing be postponed to the week of December 17.

The Department fully respects the Committee's interest in reviewing allegations of misconduct by government employees, and we have provided, and will continue to provide, investigative records, judicial filings, and other records responsive to your requests, consistent with the accommodation process. Of course, we cannot provide grand jury information covered by Rule 6(e), electronic surveillance information subject to Title III, or information that would identify confidential informants.

Finally, as the Committee is aware, the Department is fully committed to addressing corruption in the handling of informants by the FBI in Boston and has dedicated extensive resources to that purpose. In 1999, the Justice Task Force was established to investigate law enforcement corruption relating to Messrs. James Bulger and Stephen Flemmi. The Task Force has expanded the scope of the inquiry to include allegations that FBI agents and prosecutors allowed a witness to frame Mr. Salvati and others for the Deegan murder while permitting that witness to protect another individual, who was central to the murder conspiracy. It was the Task Force that located exculpatory documents, which led to the release of Peter Limone and the dismissal of charges against Mr. Salvati and Mr. Limone. The Task Force also has obtained the indictment of former FBI Special Agent John Connolly, which is expected to go to trial early in 2002. Additionally, the United States Attorney's Office in Boston obtained indictments against Messrs. Bulger and Flemmi in 1995 and in 2000, charging them with 19 and 10 murders, respectively. The ongoing work of the Task Force and the United States Attorney's Office is dedicated to investigating and prosecuting corruption by FBI agents and prosecutors relating to the handling of informants, as well as any underlying crimes that may have been committed by those individuals. As these efforts proceed, it will be important to ensure that they are based only on the evidence and the law, free from any political influence or coercion.

We have not objected to the Committee's undertaking its own investigation and we understand that Committee staff have conducted interviews and may have undertaken other investigative steps in Boston and elsewhere. We ask that the Committee provide us with information that it believes may be relevant to potential violations of federal criminal law. We understand the Committee's interest in not deferring its own inquiry while our criminal investigations continue, and we trust that the two can continue independently, as has often happened historically.

The Department looks forward to a continued dialogue with the Committee so we can accommodate your legitimate oversight needs for information in a manner that is consistent with our law enforcement responsibilities. We would like to resume such a constructive conversation as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

Daniel J. Bryant
Assistant Attorney General

Chairman
Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management and Intergovernmental Relations
Committee on Government Reform
United States House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Thank you very much for providing me your thoughts and insights about the President's recent Executive Order No. 13233, dated November 1, 2001, implementing the Presidential Records Act, 44 U.S.C. § 2001 et seq. Our discussion identified several areas where some outside parties have mistakenly described the Order, and I therefore wanted to take this opportunity to further explain ~~explain~~ certain aspects of the Order for the benefit of you and your colleagues and to reiterate the position of the Administration. As you know, there is litigation currently pending, and I concur with the Department of Justice that, in light of the pending litigation, the Department cannot appropriately respond to all of the Subcommittee's specific follow-up questions at this time, but we also believe this summary will be of assistance to the Subcommittee (and to the full Committee as well).

At the outset, we are well aware that historians and academics have publicly suggested that the Act requires release of all Presidential records, including otherwise privileged records, after expiration of the statutory 12-year period. As you know, that suggestion is simply incorrect. In fact, among other exemptions, the Act expressly provides that former and current Presidents retain the right to assert constitutional privileges over Presidential records, including after the 12-year period has elapsed, a point that is reflected in the Act's legislative history as well.

A few of the Order's critics have stated that the Order itself precludes the release of Presidential records. That, too, is inaccurate. The Order merely sets up appropriate procedures for review of documents and for privilege determinations to be made. The Order expressly refrains from indicating whether and under what circumstances privileges should be asserted.

Many have complained that a former President should have no right to assert privileges over his records. That criticism blatantly ignores the law. The Supreme Court, in its landmark 1977 Nixon v. GSA decision written by Justice Brennan, definitively held that the Constitution guarantees former Presidents the right to assert privileges over their records if they so choose.

In that regard, it may be that much of the criticism of the Order is, at root, misdirected criticism of that Supreme Court decision, as well as of the Act's express preservation of the former President's right to assert privilege. Given that the Order is expressly designed to implement and abide by the Supreme Court's dictates, and by the Act's preservation of the former President's authority, we are disappointed that much of the public commentary on the Order never mentions the Court's ruling or that provision of the Act.

TThe fact that the Order sets up procedures for former Presidents to assert their constitutionally guaranteed privileges does not mean, moreover, that former Presidents will improperly assert such privileges. History proves as much. Even before the Act was enacted, at a time when former Presidents enjoyed complete control over the disposition of their Presidential records, most former Presidents authorized release over time of the vast majority of their records even though they were under no legal obligation to release any records. Those who visit the Kennedy Library or the Ford Library or the Carter Library, for example, know the rich and valuable array of historical materials that are available. There is no basis for presuming that former Presidents subject to the Act will exercise their constitutional and statutory authority to seek withholding of privileged records inappropriately or more aggressively than earlier Presidents -- from President Washington to President Carter -- exercised their plenary and far broader authority to withhold all records.

Let me turn next to some specific areas that may benefit from further explanation.

First, some have suggested that the Order somehow alters the scope of "constitutionally based privileges" by expressly identifying attorney-client and work product protections as subsumed within executive privilege. ~~In fact~~As we have previously explained to you, the Order simply reiterates the longstanding position of the Executive Branch that the interests implicated under the common law by the attorney-client and work product protections are also subsumed by executive privilege. We understand that some commentators may disagree with the Executive Branch's traditional legal analysis on that point. But the Order does not purport to resolve that debate because the Order cannot and does not alter the scope of constitutionally based privileges. For example, if a former President seeks to withhold particular records by asserting a privilege that the courts subsequently determine not to be constitutionally based, then the courts will order disclosure of those records -- regardless whether that privilege was or was not identified in the Order as being within the scope of executive privilege.

Second, some have asked about the legal effect of section 6 of the Order on the return dates set forth in congressional subpoenas. Section 6 is not intended to change the law in any way with respect to the legal effectiveness of subpoena return dates, the practice of the Executive and Legislative Branches to engage in an accommodation process regarding Legislative Branch requests for privileged Executive Branch information, or the period of time that the Constitution requires a former or current President be afforded in order to consider whether to assert a constitutionally based privilege.

Section 6 merely sets forth the time periods that will generally apply to the reviews undertaken by a former and current President in response to congressional requests for such records. Of course, the time in which the Executive Branch will respond to a congressional request for information is a matter that is appropriate for discussion between the two branches.

Third, some have suggested that the Order requires a requester of Presidential records to make some showing of "need" in order to request Presidential records. That also is incorrect. A requester need not make any showing of need to submit a request for Presidential records. If a former President asserts a privilege in response to a request, and the requester chooses to challenge that privilege claim in court, the requester only then must satisfy whatever standards the courts have established for executive privilege cases. The President's Order, of course, could not and does not affect the standards the courts have established with respect to executive privilege claims. In any event, the important point for present purposes is that a requester need not make any showing of need when submitting a request for records.

There also have been some questions raised about the fact that an unsuccessful requester must initiate litigation against a former President who asserts a privilege, rather than requiring the former President who asserts a privilege to sue the current President's Administration to block release. Even assuming arguendo that it is constitutionally permissible to force a former President, in effect, to sue the current President when asserting his constitutional privileges, we do not think such a procedure constitutionally appropriate or sound policy. The Supreme Court has held that former Presidents have the constitutional right to assert privileges over their records. If such a privilege is asserted, we believe it most appropriate for the requester who disagrees with the privilege assertion to proceed to court -- just as the requester would do in ordinary Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) litigation -- rather than requiring the former President to take the extraordinary and jarring public step of suing the current President's Administration. In our view, the alternative procedure contained in Executive Order 12667, dated January 18, 1989, would confuse the public and burden the former President's exercise of his constitutionally guaranteed rights in a manner inconsistent with the spirit, if not the letter, of the Supreme Court's decision guaranteeing the former President's rights.

As a practical matter, moreover, it is no more difficult for a requester to file suit when a former President asserts a privilege than for an unsuccessful requester to file an ordinary FOIA suit, which happens routinely. Because this procedure is so common in the FOIA setting, we think it an entirely appropriate model for these purposes, particularly given the countervailing considerations we have identified. That is especially true given that the Act incorporates certain other aspects of FOIA, such as the FOIA exemptions themselves.

We hope these comments are of assistance to you and your colleagues. As I said, respectfully, the President's Order is faithful to the Act and to the Supreme Court's case law.

Mr. Chairman, thank you for your careful attention and devotion to these important issues. We look forward to working together with you on this and other issues in the future.

Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales
Counsel to the President

Public backs Republican economic policies

President's Gallup job approval above 86% for 100 days

ECONOMIC STIMULUS

In dealing with the country's economic problems, Americans favor Republican policies over Democratic ones. 44% prefer the Republicans' approach to dealing with the recession, compared to 35% who favor the Democrats' plan. And last week's NBC/WSJ poll showed that by almost a 2-1 margin, the public favors President Bush's approach to getting the country out of recession over the Congressional Democrats' approach.

THE RECESSION

Americans believe September 11, Congress and the Clinton administration bear more responsibility for the recession than the Bush administration. Eight in ten think September 11 contributed to the country's economic problems. 75% say Congress deserves blame for the recession, while 62% blame the Clinton administration. Only 44% blame the Bush administration. Other recent surveys show that many Americans attribute the recession to normal fluctuations in the business cycle.

JOB APPROVAL

President Bush's job approval has been above 86% for 100 days. The President's approval rating has been between 86% and 90% for ten consecutive Gallup polls – the longest duration of such ratings for any president in polling history.

CONGRESSIONAL BALLOT

Republicans now enjoy a 5% lead over Democrats in the 2002 generic ballot. In June, Democrats were favored over Republicans in the 2002 generic ballot by 4 points; last month the parties were at parity. Republicans now lead 48% to 43% among registered voters. In 1994, Republicans trailed Democrats by an average of 1% leading up to the mid-term elections.

THE WAR ON TERRORISM

The public supports a long-term war against terrorism. 67% say we should actively use military forces in other countries that harbor terrorists, while only 30% say we should end our current military action after Osama bin Laden is captured or killed and his terrorist network in Afghanistan is destroyed.

MISSILE DEFENSE

Overwhelming support exists for spending the money to build a missile defense system. 67% favor spending the necessary money to build a defense system against nuclear missiles. Furthermore, a plurality approves of the President's decision to "abandon" the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty with Russia.

Public backs Republican economic policies

President's Gallup job approval above 86% for 100 days

ECONOMIC STIMULUS

In dealing with the country's economic problems, Americans favor Republican policies over Democratic ones. 44% prefer the Republicans' approach to dealing with the recession, compared to 35% who favor the Democrats' plan. And last week's NBC/WSJ poll showed that by almost a 2-1 margin, the public favors President Bush's approach to getting the country out of recession over the Congressional Democrats' approach.

THE RECESSION

Americans believe September 11, Congress and the Clinton administration bear more responsibility for the recession than the Bush administration. Eight in ten think September 11 contributed to the country's economic problems. 75% say Congress deserves blame for the recession, while 62% blame the Clinton administration. Only 44% blame the Bush administration. Other recent surveys show that many Americans attribute the recession to normal fluctuations in the business cycle.

JOB APPROVAL

President Bush's job approval has been above 86% for 100 days. The President's approval rating has been between 86% and 90% for ten consecutive Gallup polls – the longest duration of such ratings for any president in polling history.

CONGRESSIONAL BALLOT

Republicans now enjoy a 5% lead over Democrats in the 2002 generic ballot. In June, Democrats were favored over Republicans in the 2002 generic ballot by 4 points; last month the parties were at parity. Republicans now lead 48% to 43% among registered voters. In 1994, Republicans trailed Democrats by an average of 1% leading up to the mid-term elections.

THE WAR ON TERRORISM

The public supports a long-term war against terrorism. 67% say we should actively use military forces in other countries that harbor terrorists, while only 30% say we should end our current military action after Osama bin Laden is captured or killed and his terrorist network in Afghanistan is destroyed.

MISSILE DEFENSE

Overwhelming support exists for spending the money to build a missile defense system. 67% favor spending the necessary money to build a defense system against nuclear missiles. Furthermore, a plurality approves of the President's decision to "abandon" the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty with Russia.

,Dear Senator Sarbanes/Gramm:

It is my understanding that the Senate may shortly take under consideration S. 1841, "The True American Heroes Act." We commend the Congress for its recognition of the heroes who lost their lives in the terrorist attacks on September 11th and we look forward to working with the Congress to develop a Congressional Gold Medal to honor them.

We do, however, have several technical concerns with S. 1841 that, due to the short time left in this Congressional session, have not been addressed. Among our concerns, the legislation requires the Secretary of the Treasury to determine the appropriate recipients of the medals to honor the public safety officials who perished at the World Trade Center. We believe the Secretary is not the most appropriate person to make these determinations. We would recommend that the bill be amended to provide that the Governors of New York and New Jersey provide the official certification of the appropriate recipients from their respective States. Additionally, the legislation does not allow the U.S. Mint to recoup the cost of producing and selling the duplicate bronze medals.

We look forward to working with you on this special tribute. Should you have any questions please feel free to contact me at (202) 354-7200.

Sincerely,

HHF Director
US Mint

Terri -

Please see the attached op ed attached to Anne Womack's email.

The Judge would like for you to work up a letter to the editor of the Washington Post addressing the gubernatorial records. The Judge indicated that this letter needs to be written this week and would appreciate it if you would allow Brett Kavanaugh a chance to review your draft letter prior to submission to the Post.

Brett's email address is referenced above.

Thank you and please call me at PRA 6 if you have any questions.

I didn't handle the money laundering provisions of the USA PATRIOT Act. Pippa did. You might want to include her on any list of interested parties. It might be worthwhile, however, for you to participate as well. I am not sure Pippa is always sensitive to the legal issues. And I know from John (Elwood) that some at DOJ were surprised and concerned about some of the lesser-known provisions.

I checked with Noel who is our expert on our policy on use of the Presidential likeness. As a general matter, this kind of thing is technically ok so long as it does not say that the President is endorsing the candidate. Of course, the entire point of this kind of mailing would be to create such an impression with voters even if the mailing never actually says as much. We therefore can contact the company and inquire into this some more if you want us to do so. Just let me know.

I think it looks fine, as it doesn't suggest that the President is endorsing the candidate.

II. Ensuring a Well-Qualified and Fully Staffed Judicial Branch
The federal courts were created by the Judiciary Act of 1789, which established a Supreme Court and divided the country into three circuits and 13 districts. This structure has obviously changed greatly since 1789, but one thing has not changed: the federal courts have functioned through wars, natural disasters, and terrorist attacks. During times such as these, the role of the courts becomes even more important in order to enforce the rule of law. To continue functioning effectively and efficiently, however, the courts must be appropriately staffed. This means that necessary judgeships must be created and judicial vacancies must be timely filled with well-qualified candidates.

Promptly Filling Vacant Judgeships

It is becoming increasingly difficult to find qualified candidates for federal judicial vacancies. This is particularly true in the case of lawyers in private practice. There are two reasons for these difficulties: the relatively low pay that federal judges receive, compared to the amount that a successful, experienced practicing lawyer can make, and the often lengthy and unpleasant nature of the confirmation process.

Of the inadequacy of judicial pay I have spoken again and again, without much result. Judges along with Congress have received a cost-of-living adjustment this year, and for this they are grateful. But a COLA only keeps judges from falling further behind the median income of the profession. I can only refer back to what I have previously said on this subject.

I spoke to delays in the confirmation process in my annual report in 1997. Then as now I recognize that part of the problem is endemic to the size of the federal Judiciary. With more judges, there are more retirements and more vacancies to fill. But as I said in 1997, "[w]hatever the size of the federal judiciary, the President should nominate candidates with reasonable promptness, and the Senate should act within a reasonable time to confirm or reject them. Some current nominees have been waiting a considerable time for a Senate Judiciary Committee vote or a final floor vote. The Senate confirmed only 17 judges in 1996 and 36 in 1997, well under the 101 judges it confirmed during 1994."

At that time, President Clinton, a Democrat, made the nominations, and the Senate, controlled by the Republicans, was responsible for the confirmation process. Now the political situation is exactly the reverse, but the same situation obtains: the Senate confirmed only 28 judges during 2001. When the Senate adjourned on December 20th, 23 court of appeals nominees and 14 district court nominees were left awaiting action by the Judiciary Committee or the full Senate. When I spoke to this issue in 1997, there were 82 judicial vacancies; when the Senate adjourned on December 20th there were 94 vacancies. The Senate ought to act with reasonable promptness and to vote each nominee up or down. The Senate is not, of course, obliged to confirm any particular nominee. But it ought to act on each nominee and to do so within a reasonable time. I recognize that the Senate has been faced with many challenges this year, but I urge prompt attention to the challenge of bringing the federal judicial branch closer to full staffing.

The combination of inadequate pay and a drawn-out and uncertain confirmation process is a handicap to judicial recruitment across the board, but it most significantly restricts the universe of lawyers in private practice who are willing to be nominated for a federal judgeship. United States attorneys, public defenders, federal magistrate and bankruptcy judges, and state court judges are often nominated to be district judges. For them the pay is a modest improvement and the confirmation process at least does not damage their current income. Most academic lawyers are in a similar situation. But for lawyers coming directly from private practice, there is both a strong financial disincentive and the possibility of losing clients in the course of the wait for a confirmation vote.

Former magistrate, bankruptcy, and state court judges, as well as prosecutors and public defenders, have served ably as federal district and circuit judges, bringing their insights into the process gained from experience. But we have never had, and should not want, a Judiciary composed only of those persons who are already in the public service. It would too much resemble the judiciary in civil law countries, where a law graduate may choose upon graduation to enter the judiciary, and will thereafter gradually work his way up over time. The result is a judiciary quite different from our common law system, with our practice of drawing on successful members of the private bar to become judges. Reasonable people, not merely here but in Europe, think that many civil law judicial systems simply do not command the respect and enjoy the independence of ours. We must not drastically shrink the number of judicial nominees who have had substantial experience in private practice.

The federal Judiciary has traditionally drawn from a wide diversity of professional backgrounds, with many of our most well-respected judges coming from private practice. As to the Supreme Court, Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who was known as "the people's attorney" for his pro bono work, spent his entire career in private practice before he was named to the Supreme Court in 1916 by President Wilson. Justice John Harlan served in several government posts early in his career, but the lion's share of his experience prior to his nomination by President Eisenhower in 1954 was in private practice. When appointed to the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, a year before his appointment to the Supreme Court, Justice Harlan succeeded Judge Augustus Hand. Judge Hand and his cousin, Learned Hand, are well known as great court of appeals judges; both spent virtually all the time between their graduation from law school and their appointment as federal judges in private practice. Retired Justice Byron White, who played professional football for the Detroit Lions on the weekends while attending Yale Law School, was in private practice in Colorado for nearly 14 years before joining the Justice Department as deputy attorney general to Robert Kennedy. Less than a year later, President Kennedy named Justice White to the Court. Justice White was the circuit Justice for the Tenth Circuit, where Judge Alfred P. Murrah served as a district judge in Oklahoma and as a judge on the court of appeals. Judge Murrah, who spent his entire career in private practice before becoming a judge, is remembered for much more than having the Oklahoma City federal building named after him. Before being named a judge on the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, Justice Thurgood Marshall spent his career in the private sector. He first opened his own law practice in Baltimore and then for many years worked as the top lawyer for the NAACP, becoming known as "Mr. Civil Rights." Justice Marshall left his seat on the court of appeals to become Solicitor General of the United States before President Johnson named him to the Supreme Court in 1967. John Brown, Richard Rives, Elbert Tuttle and John Minor Wisdom, well-known for their courage in enforcing this Court's civil rights decisions as judges on the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, all served almost exclusively in private practice before their appointments to the bench.

On behalf of the Judiciary, I ask Congress to raise the salaries of federal judges, and I ask the Senate to schedule up or down votes on judicial nominees within a reasonable time after receiving the nomination.

Creating Necessary New Judgeships

Last year I expressed hope that the 107th Congress would take action on the Judicial Conference's request to establish 10 additional court of appeals judgeships, 44 additional district court judgeships and 24 new bankruptcy judgeships. No additional court of appeals judgeships have been created since 1990. No new bankruptcy judgeships have been created since 1992, although the number of cases filed has increased by nearly 500,000 since then. The 107th Congress has not created a single new judgeship. Despite a significant increase in workload, the Courts of Appeals for the First, Second, and Ninth Circuits have not increased in size for 17 years -- since 1984. During that time period, appellate filings in the First Circuit have risen 65%, in the Second Circuit they have risen almost 58%, and in the Ninth Circuit appellate filings have almost doubled -- rising 94.6%. The Judicial Conference has asked that the Congress create one new appellate judgeship for the First Circuit, two judgeships for the Second Circuit, five for the Ninth Circuit and two for the Sixth Circuit, which has had only one additional judgeship since 1984.

Congress has recognized the crisis faced by the overwhelming caseloads in the Southwestern border states. Although we are thankful that Congress has provided additional judges during the 106th Congress for four of the five affected districts, it has not alleviated the very serious problem faced by the Southern District of California, based in San Diego, a district with no judicial vacancies. The judges there have the highest number of filings per judge of any federal district court in the nation and the Judicial Conference has requested that eight additional district judgeships be created for this district.

I urge the Congress to act on all of the pending requests for new judgeships during its next session.

Brett-

Just to update you on the space issue -- we have space, but we need to work out exactly how the physical transfer would be accomplished. In order to help me work out the details on our end with the folks who control the doors to our building, can you give me an idea of how you envision the boxes might be transferred, where exactly they would be coming from, etc.? Thanks.

Ken has obtained Rooms 7523 and 7521 in the Main Justice Building for storing and, if need be, reviewing the Reagan documents. The rooms are adjoining and secure.

I foresee one problem in having the documents shipped to Main Justice. As you know, packages and mail must go through a timely irradiation process. I currently receive mail at least two weeks from the postmark date. Since the decision to establish this process originated with the Deputy Attorney General's Office, perhaps you will know of some exceptions or alternative means for immediately delivery. Otherwise, we will need to consider something else, including having them sent elsewhere before being delivered here.

Let me know if you need any additional information regarding the space we have obtained.

Brett,
I am writing another piece about the entire issue of the Presidential Records Act and President George W. Bush's recent Executive Order, and am mentioning that the scholars met in December with the White House counsel's office so the two sides could exchange views. I would like to quote you in a couple of places, but under the ground rules we agreed to,
I'm required to get your permission first.
The first quote I would like to use, went (according to my notes), like this:
"Give us a little time here. We think you'll be happy with the procedures. We think they will work -- and work well." (You then invited
the group to revisit the issue in six months or so, predicting that they might be pleasantly surprise by the results, before concluding....) "We'll work with you."

The other quote I would like to use came after you were asked why this administration got involved so deeply in this issue at all. You replied: "This was the first time (the law) had taken effect. We wanted to write regulations that would stand the test of time."

MERRITT, GILBERT S., CHIEF JUDGE, SIXTH CIRCUIT on 6TH CIRCUIT

U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit
Nashville, TN, March 20, 2000
Re: Vacancies on the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals
Hon. Orrin Hatch
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

Dear Senator Hatch: Several years ago during the period that I was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the United States Judicial Conference, we met from time to time, and you were always concerned that the Senate Judiciary Committee do its duty in filling the vacancies on the various Courts of Appeals. I write now to you to request that the Judiciary Committee bring up for a hearing and a vote nominations to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

I was taken aback to see an alleged statement of Senator Mike DeWine from Ohio that no vote would be taken for a nomination to fill the vacancy currently existing from Ohio. Senator DeWine was quoted as saying that due to partisan considerations there would be no more hearings or votes on vacancies for the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. I hope that this was not an accurate quote.

The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals now has four vacancies. Twenty-five per cent of the seats on the Sixth Circuit are vacant. The Court is hurting badly and will not be able to keep up with its work load due to the fact that the Senate Judiciary Committee has acted on none of the nominations to our Court. One of the vacancies is five years old and no vote has ever been taken. One is two years old. We have lost many years of judge time because of the vacancies.

By the time the next President is inaugurated, there will be six vacancies on the Court of Appeals. Almost half of the Court will be vacant and will remain so for most of 2001 due to the exigencies of the nomination process. Although the President has nominated candidates, the Senate has refused to take a vote on any of them.

Our Court should not be treated in this fashion. The public's business should not be treated this way. The litigants in the federal courts should not be treated this way. The remaining judges on a court should not be treated this way. The situation in our Court is rapidly deteriorating due to the fact that 25% of the judgeships are vacant. Each active judge of our Court is now participating in deciding more than 550 cases a year--a case load that is excessive by any standard. In addition, we have almost 200 death penalty cases that will be facing us before the end of next year. I presently have six pending before me right now and many more in the pipeline. Although the death cases are very time consuming (the records often run to 5000 pages), we are under very short deadlines imposed by Congress for acting on these cases. Under present circumstances, we will be unable to meet these deadlines. Unlike the Supreme Court, we have no discretionary jurisdiction and must hear every case.

The Founding Fathers certainly intended that the Senate "advise'' as to judicial nominations, i.e., consider, debate and vote up or down. They surely did not intend that the Senate, for partisan or factional reasons, would remain silent and simply refuse to give any advice or consider and vote at all, thereby leaving the courts in limbo, understaffed and unable properly to carry out their responsibilities for years.

You and other members of the Senate have appeared before the Judicial Conference and other judges' groups many times and said that you care about the federal courts. I hope that you will now act to help us on the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. We need your help and the help of the two Senators from Ohio, the two Senators from Tennessee, the two Senators from Kentucky, and the Senators from Michigan.

Sincerely,
Gilbert S. Merritt.

New York Times-Editorial, January 7, 2002
Frustrated over delays in the Senate's consideration of two controversial nominees, President Bush says he might bypass Congress altogether and name them as recess appointments. With the Senate out of town, Mr. Bush certainly has the power to act in that fashion. Former President Bill Clinton did something similar in at least two cases, with the support of this page. In the Clinton years, we criticized Senate Republicans for their obstruction. Now that the Democrats are in control, they have no less of a responsibility to give Mr. Bush's nominees fair treatment.
The two nominees in question are Eugene Scalia, named as solicitor in the Labor Department, and Otto Reich, chosen to be assistant secretary of state for Western Hemispheric affairs. There is ample reason to question both nominations. Mr. Scalia, a Washington labor lawyer and the son of Justice Antonin Scalia of the Supreme Court, has dismissed as "quackery" the legitimate concerns about repetitive stress injuries in the workplace. Mr. Reich engaged in prohibited propaganda activities on Central America when he ran the State Department's Office of Public Diplomacy in 1987. The merits of their cases are not the point, however. Getting fair consideration in the Senate is. Mr. Scalia has been approved by committee, but a vote for him has never been scheduled by Tom Daschle, the Senate majority leader. Mr. Daschle has promised a vote early this year. He should not delay any further.

Mr. Reich has not been given a vote in the Foreign Relations Committee because of the opposition of Senator Christopher Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat, who charges that the administration has failed to provide information he has requested about Mr. Reich's lobbying activities and his record as ambassador to Venezuela in the late 1980's. The administration needs to answer such requests. Then the committee should schedule a vote and allow Mr. Dodd to make his arguments in an open debate.

Mr. Bush has a right to nominate anyone he wants to his cabinet and sub-cabinet, and the Senate has the right to reject any nominees it deems unfit. What no one should do is dodge the process. The Democrats should allow a fair and open vote on both nominations, just as the Republicans should have done when the shoe was on the other foot.

Re: Seattle Hebrew Academy

Dear Ms. Voss:

This is an appeal from the decision of Region X of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (Bothell, Washington office) ("Region X"), which your office forwarded to Ms. Rebecca Almo, President of Seattle Hebrew Academy ("SHA") on October 27, 2001 that SHA is not an eligible PNP under 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1).

Pursuant to 44 C.F.R. 206.206, SHA has sixty (60) days from receipt of the determination to appeal Region X's decision. This letter appeals Region X's decision that SHA does not meet the eligibility requirements of 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1). SHA requests that this determination be reversed, and that SHA be classified eligible for FEMA assistance under the aforementioned Regulation.

I Summary

This is SHA's second appeal under 44 C.F.R. § 206.206. Region X denied SHA's application for disaster relief, determining that SHA is not "open to the general public" (44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1)) and therefore not eligible to receive disaster relief. SHA submits that this determination is both legally nonapplicable and factually inappropriate. From a legal perspective, the requirement of "open to the general public" does not apply to a nonprofit educational facility; 42 U.S.C.A. §5122(9), 44 C.F.R. §206.221(e)(1) so that, even if SHA were deemed not "open to the general public" it would be eligible for public assistance. Moreover, reliance by Region X exclusively on SHA's old bylaws and articles of incorporation gives an incomplete factual picture of the nature of SHA's student body.

In addition, the Stafford act's nondiscrimination provisions mandate that FEMA provide SHA with public assistance. Finally, Region X has conceded that SHA's building is not "used primarily for religious purposes," 44 C.F.R. § 206.221(e)(1), and is therefore not ineligible on these grounds. Regardless, granting relief to SHA neither constitutes the promotion of religion, nor excessive government entanglement with a religious institution.

statutory provisions are intended as binding directives with regard to the government agencies applying them; any form of discrimination constitutes a violation.

Furthermore, FEMA's Director's Policy No. 1-97 of May 12, 1997 (as updated on December 4, 1998) and Director's Policy No. 2-01 of July 17, 2001 (as updated on August 1, 2001) provide the following:

> 1. It is the policy of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to ensure that the Civil Rights of all persons receiving services or benefits from agency programs and activities are protected. No person shall, on the grounds of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, or economic status, be denied the benefits of, be deprived of participation in, or be discriminated against in any program or activity receiving financial assistance from FEMA. In particular, all personnel carrying out Federal major disaster or emergency assistance functions, including the distribution of supplies, the processing of the applications, and other relief and assistance activities, shall perform their work in an equitable and impartial manner without discrimination. It is Agency policy to prohibit such discrimination in any programmatic guidelines, procedures, or other directives. (…)
> 5. As an Agency, our goals are to protect lives and prevent the loss of property; to reduce human suffering and enhance the recovery of communities after disaster strikes; and to ensure that FEMA is a high-performance organization serving the public in a timely and cost-efficient manner. We will not truly fulfill these goals unless we also protect precious rights and prevent discrimination. I expect support from every employee of FEMA in carrying out our Civil Rights mandates.
> (See Exhibits 6-A and 6-B) (Emphasis supplied.)

Discrimination, however, does not only occur when a statute itself (on its face) provides for disparate treatment on the basis of religion. As such, the language of 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1), which excludes facilities "primarily used for religious instruction" from eligibility, is inherently suspect; see McDaniel v. Paty (1978) 435 U.S. 618 and Larson v. Valente (1982) 456 U.S. 228, 244-246. Discrimination can also occur if such disparate treatment takes place in the application of an otherwise neutral statute to a given case. Further, discrimination does not only involve giving preference to one religion over another (McDaniel, 435 U.S. 618 and Larson, 456 U.S. at 244-246); it also involves the unequal treatment of religious groups and organizations on the one hand and secular groups and organizations on the other hand. The Stafford Act, FEMA Regulation 206.11(b) (mandating non-discrimination) and FEMA's written policies prohibit any and all such practices. It is a well-established principle that the government must not impose any special disabilities on the basis of religious views or status (McDaniel, 435 U.S. 618, and Larson, 456 U.S. at 245).

Even indirect coercion is subject to constitutional scrutiny. In particular, governmental benefits may not be withheld based on an individual's choice to follow the laws of his religion. See Everson v. Board of Education (1947) 330 U.S. 1, 16 and Sherbert v. Verner (1963) 374 U.S. 398, 404 (analogizing the denial of benefits to the imposition of a fine); accord, Thomas v. Review Board (1981) 450 U.S. 707, 716-718. Similarly, the religion-based exclusion from a public forum is subject to strict constitutional scrutiny and requires the government to advance a compelling interest and show that its course of action is narrowly tailored to realize that interest. Widmar v. Vincent (1981) 454 U.S. 263, 270. Only where the incidental effect of a governmental program is to make it more difficult to practice certain religions, without any tendency to coerce members of that religion to act contrary to their beliefs, does government not have to provide a compelling justification for its course of action. Lyng v. Northwest Indian Cemetery Protective Ass'n (1988) 485 U.S. 439, 450. Here, however, the denial of FEMA aid on the basis of SHA's old bylaws is of such a coercive nature, because it penalizes SHA based on the strict interpretation of Judaic principles embedded in the school's old bylaws.

As stated above, both the Stafford Act in section 5151(a) and 44 C.F.R. 206.11(b) unequivocally prohibit discrimination, in whichever form it may occur; and so do FEMA's written policies. Significantly, by including the word "accomplished," the Act and the Regulations emphasize that discrimination is also prohibited in their application. This, too, is underscored in FEMA's written policies. Yet, in arguing – erroneously, see part III.B and C of this appeal – that SHA is not eligible for public assistance because under SHA's old bylaws admission to the school could be restricted on religious grounds, Region X draws a distinction which not only misinterprets the applicable statutes but moreover, runs afoul of the prohibition of discrimination codified in 42 U.S.C.A. 5151(a), 44 C.F.R and FEMA's written policies. Further, in not expressly relying on First Amendment grounds, Region X does not even undertake to set forth a compelling governmental interest that would justify its denial of aid to SHA (nor does it advance a legitimate governmental interest forming a rational basis for the denial, which would be required even if strict scrutiny did not apply here). Region X merely purports to interpret the applicable statutes, and it does so in an erroneous manner.

E. Region X Does Not Argue that the SHA Building is Not "Used Primarily for Religious Purposes."

Because Region X has conceded this argument, we do not need to point out that, under the definition given in the Public Assistance Guide, FEMA Publication Manual 322 p. 15, SHA's building is not "used primarily for religious purposes."[5]

F. Granting Relief To SHA Neither Constitutes The Promotion Of Religion Nor Excessive Government Entanglement With A Religious Institution.

While FEMA has not expressly denied assistance to SHA based on First Amendment grounds, the language of 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1) ("primarily used for religious instruction"), and the definition of eligible facilities under this section in the Public Assistance Guide, FEMA Publication Manual 322 p. 15 ("used over 50 percent of the time for eligible activities, or 50 percent of its space is used for eligible activities") suggests that FEMA is concerned that assistance given to institutions inter alia engaged in religious instruction might constitute excessive government entanglement with a religious institution or the promotion of religion, as defined in the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and the U.S. Supreme Court's case law. In the present case, however, this is not true.

[5] Rather, the facility is used, in accordance with the Public Assistance Guide, "over 50 percent of the time for eligible activities, or 50 percent of its space is used for eligible activities;" see Exhibit 2-B.

The criteria traditionally considered to govern the permissibility of government aid to educational institutions were first articulated in the Supreme Court's decision in Lemon v. Kurtzman (1971) 403 U.S. 602. The tripartite so-called "Lemon test" requires an analysis (1) whether the government program serves a purely secular purpose, (2) whether it has the effect of advancing religion, and (3) whether it creates excessive government entanglement with religion. Lemon, 403 U.S. at 612-613. In a number of cases, however, the Supreme Court has reevaluated and elaborated on these criteria, and SHA submits that granting FEMA assistance to SHA would not run afoul of the standards established in the Supreme Court's case law.

1. SHA Is Eligible To Receive FEMA Aid Because Such Assistance Neither Has The Purpose Nor The Effect Of Promoting Religion.

Even if government aid is given directly to religious institutions, it is not necessarily invalid. The mere identity of the recipient of the aid is not dispositive. Pursuant to Agostini v. Felton (1997) 521 U.S. 203, 225-228, Witters v. Washington Dept. of Services for the Blind (1986) 474 U.S. 481, 486-489 and Mueller v. Allen (1983) 463 U.S. 388, 396-399 government grants that are made available "generally without regard to the sectarian-nonsectarian, or public-nonpublic nature of the institution benefited" are permissible even if they are given to recipients who ultimately use them to engage in or obtain religious education, and even if the government agency administering the grants is aware of this use. Agostini, 521 U.S. at 225, quoting Witters, 474 U.S. at 488; see also Zobrest v. Catalina Foothills School District (1993) 509 U.S. 1, 10 and Walker v. San Francisco Unified School District (9th Cir. 1995) 46 F.3d 1449, 1458, 1462 and 1464-1467. The key element, according to these cases, is not what kind of institution is the ultimate recipient of the funds but rather, whether the funds are made available pursuant to neutral criteria, and to religious and non-religious beneficiaries alike. Where aid is provided on such neutral, secular criteria, and made available to various kinds of beneficiaries regardless of their religious or other orientation, it neither creates an incentive to undertake religious indoctrination, nor can any religious indoctrination occurring in an educational institution reasonably be attributed to the government aid granted. This type of aid, therefore, is permissible, regardless whether granted in the context of a religious institution or otherwise. Agostini, 521 U.S. at 226 and 230-231, Witters, 474 U.S. at 488 and Mueller, 463 U.S. at 398-399; accord, Mitchell v. Helms (2000) 530 U.S. 793, 809-814 and 822 ["Where the aid would be suitable for use in a public school, it is also suitable for use in any private school."]

FEMA aid fits these neutral criteria: Its purpose is to provide disaster relief, not to advance or promote religion (42 U.S.C.A. § 5121 and 44 C.F.R. § 206.3). Further, while 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1) places certain restrictions on assistance to "primarily" religious institutions, the Regulations do not, in any event, provide for preferential treatment of religious institutions.[6]

[6] Under the Supreme Court case law requirement that public assistance must neither further nor hinder religion, and that the religious character of an institution may not be inquired into (infra), it is debatable whether 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1), insofar as it expressly excludes aid to primarily religious institutions, is in compliance with the Supreme Court's interpretation of the First

In fact, pursuant to 42 U.S.C.A. 5151(a), the Regulations "shall include provisions for insuring that the distribution of supplies, the processing of applications, and other relief and assistance activities shall be accomplished in an equitable and impartial manner, without discrimination on the grounds of … religion …" (emphasis supplied). 44 C.F.R. § 206.11(b)-(d) implement this requirement with regard to disaster relief, providing (again) that all personnel carrying out disaster relief or assistance functions shall perform their work "in an equitable and impartial]manner, without discrimination on the basis of [inter alia] religion," that as a condition of participation in Stafford Act programs, government bodies and other organizations shall provide written assurances of their intent to comply with regulations relating to nondiscrimination, and that information regarding these provisions shall be made available to applicants and other interested parties. Neither the Act nor the Regulations therefore foster religion; to the contrary, 42 U.S.C.A. § 5151(a) and 44 C.F.R. § 206.11(b)-(d) expressly mandate neutral and non-discriminatory disbursement criteria and procedures.

The Regulations further set forth an elaborate scheme defining the procedures according to which FEMA disaster relief is granted, and detailing a review process designed to make sure aid is only granted and used in accordance with the purpose stated in 42 U.S.C.A. § 5121 and 44 C.F.R. § 206.3. An analysis of these criteria shows that FEMA aid is not only secular in its purpose but, likewise, in its effect.

Pursuant to 44 C.F.R. § 206.48(a), the factors considered by FEMA in reviewing a Governor's request for a major disaster declaration (44 C.F.R. § 206.36) with regard to FEMA's public assistance program – which is applicable to grants to private nonprofit educational institutions such as SHA (44 C.F.R. §§ 206.200 et seq. and 206.220 et seq.) – are the estimated costs of the assistance, the localized impacts of the disaster, any insurance coverage in force, hazard mitigation measures in place in the state, the state's recent disaster history and the applicability of other federal aid programs. Upon issuing of the Presidential declaration of a major disaster or emergency and notification of the Governor (44 C.F.R. §§ 206.38 and 206.39), the Associate Director determines and designates the areas eligible to receive assistance, as well as the types of assistance to be made available, based on findings as to the magnitude and effects of the disaster, the response capabilities of the State, local governments and other potential recipients of FEMA assistance (44 C.F.R. § 206.40). More detailed determinations as to the types of relief to be granted, and as to the coordination between federal and state governments are made by the Federal and State Coordinating officers (44 C.F.R. §§ 206.41, 206.42). The mutual understandings, commitments and conditions under which FEMA assistance is provided, as well as the period for which aid is made available and the type and extent of aid, are laid down, in a form binding and legally enforceable upon all parties, governments and private nonprofit organizations, in a FEMA-state agreement, the so-called Memorandum of Understanding (44 C.F.R. § 206.44). None of the factors and criteria considered in any of the aforementioned determinations and agreements is applicable to religious institutions in a way different from the treatment of secular institutions.

Likewise, the types of assistance granted in the context of FEMA's public assistance program are the same with regard to all classes of beneficiaries, namely, cost-sharing (subject to the limitations set by the FEMA-State Agreement and the Stafford Act), and project-funding, in degrees varying with the size of the project (44 C.F.R. § 206.203) and according to specific deadlines and payment procedures (44 C.F.R. §§ 206.204 and 206.205), but not in any particular consideration of the religious or non-religious affiliation of the ultimate recipient of the funds.

Detailed program standards, reporting systems, and procedures for further review and studies are established by the Associate Director and the Regional Director pursuant to § 206.13; in addition, the Associate Director and the Regional Director conduct audits and investigations to assure compliance with the Stafford Act (44 C.F.R. § 206.16; see also 42 U.S.C.A. § 5161). The State, likewise, develops an administrative plan setting forth procedures for the notice, hearing, and processing of the applications of potential beneficiaries, cooperation with FEMA, and auditing and review requirements (44 C.F.R. § 206.207). Again, none of these procedures and standards affect religious institutions in a way different from their effect on non-religious institutions.

Lastly, an analysis of the types of applicants eligible under 44 C.F.R. §§ 206.221 and 206.222 shows that the Regulations' only focus is on the support and maintenance of essential services to the public in the wake of a disaster. In addition to educational institutions, pursuant to 44 C.F.R. § 206.221(e),[7] eligible applicants include facilities such as water, sewer, irrigation, energy, communication and similar utilities, ambulance, rescue, fire and other emergency service providers, medical, rehabilitation and custodial care facilities, homeless shelters, and cultural institutions such as museums, libraries and zoos. A number of the aforementioned types of facilities, particularly those maintained by ambulance, rescue and other emergency service providers, medical, rehabilitation and custodial care facilities and homeless shelters, but also certain cultural institutions such as museums, are often operated by religious organizations and, in varying degrees depending on the "mission" of the organization in question, utilized for the purpose of religious indoctrination. Yet, their eligibility is neither curtailed nor enhanced by their potential religious affiliation. This shows that regardless of any non-secular side effect which the assistance may have in the context of these institutions, religion is not a consideration in granting or denying assistance. The only effect of FEMA aid given importance by the creators of the Regulations is the maintenance of the essential public services provided by these and all other eligible institutions in the wake of a disaster. This effect is purely secular and does not change with the kind of institution providing the services.

In this context, the exclusion of facilities "primarily used" for religious education from the catalog of eligible institutions in 44 C.F.R. § 206.221(e)(1) can only be understood as a reflection of earlier Supreme Court decisions, now expressly abandoned in Mitchell v. Helms (2000) 530 U.S. 793, 827-828, which considered aid to "pervasively sectarian" organizations and institutions a potential violation of the First Amendment. In the context of 44 C.F.R. 206.221 and the Stafford Act and Regulations as a whole, it is an anomaly as it is the only instance where religion is declared a determinative factor. Even this, however, shows the concern of the creators of the Regulations with the non-religious effect of FEMA aid. See section C.2 of this appeal, infra.

[7] As amended by Interim Final Rule RIN3067-AD20, 66 Fed. Reg. 87, pp. 22443-22445.

The focus on the use of FEMA aid for disaster relief only is further reinforced by provisions according to which the knowing misapplication of funds or other benefits granted pursuant to the Stafford Act and Regulations is fined at a rate of 1 ½ times the misappropriated funds, and the Attorney General may initiate both criminal prosecutions and civil actions against suspected violators (42 U.S.C.A. § 5157; 44 C.F.R. § 206.14).

Lastly, it must not be forgotten that FEMA aid is not provided directly to any particular beneficiary but rather distributed to the respective State's disaster relief agencies (here: the Washington State Disaster Field Offices) which then in turn dispense the funds pursuant to the Memorandum of Understanding reached with FEMA and pursuant to the Regulations. This, too, can be a factor indicating that the funds are not used to foster or otherwise establish a religion. Agostini, 521 U.S. at 228-229.

2. Neither The Divertibility Of Funds Nor The Allegedly "Pervasively Sectarian" Character Of The Beneficiary Nor The Size Of A Particular Class Of Recipients Are Legitimate Considerations.

So long as government aid is available pursuant to neutral criteria and therefore does not create an incentive for religious indoctrination, it is irrelevant whether it is divertible in the sense that it frees the institution to spend its own resources on religious ends. Mitchell, 530 U.S. at 824-825 [rejecting "divertibility" as an unworkable and overbroad criterion]; see also Committee for Public Education and Religious Liberty v. Regan (1980) 444 U.S. 646, 658. If SHA receives FEMA assistance, it is irrelevant to what extent the school is consequently able to use funds for educational purposes which, to the extent that it would not have received financial support, it would have had to spend on the restoration of its facility. Every type of public funding incidentally has this effect, and none of the agencies involved in the instant proceedings have even suggested that SHA is applying for disaster relief with the intention to divert these funds to religious indoctrination (which, indeed, it of course does not intend. See declaration of Marc Maislen, attached hereto as Exhibit 1). In addition, such intentional diversion is penalized in 42 U.S.C.A. § 5157 and 44 C.F.R. § 206.14.

Moreover, the Supreme Court has expressly given up reliance on the "pervasively sectarian" character of a recipient as a factor that must be considered: regardless whether the institution in question provides primary or secondary school education, its potentially pervasive sectarian character is irrelevant. Mitchell, 530 U.S. at 827-828 [pointing out that to receive aid granted pursuant to otherwise neutral criteria does not constitute a "special favor," and that a court's focus on the pervasively sectarian nature of a school is "not only unnecessary but also offensive," because "[i]t is well established … that courts should refrain from trolling through a person's or institution's religious beliefs," and because the application of this factor "collides with our decisions that have prohibited governments from discriminating in the distribution of public benefits based upon religious status or sincerity."] Under Mitchell, FEMA aid would have to be granted to SHA even if it were to devote more than 50% of its time and other resources to Judaic instruction (which it does not; supra), because FEMA aid has a religiously neutral purpose and effect and is appropriately granted to public and non-religious private schools, and because in consideration of these factors, the government is not allowed to pry into SHA's (or its students') religious beliefs.

Similarly, the constitutionality of a particular type of otherwise neutrally granted assistance does not depend on the number of sectarian or religiously oriented recipients who are among its beneficiaries. Agostini, 521 U.S. at 229; Mueller, 463 U.S. at 401 [stating that the Court would be "loath to adopt a rule grounding the constitutionality of a facially neutral law" on reports on such facts]. Even if only schools operated by religious organizations would apply for FEMA aid in the State of Washington with regard to this particular earthquake, those schools would still be entitled to assistance as long as the aid is granted pursuant to facially neutral criteria and would also be available to secular schools if they applied.

3. FEMA Aid Does Not Create An "Excessive Entanglement" Between SHA And The Government.

Insofar as "excessive entanglement" of government and religion is still a factor to be considered separately, it is likewise analyzed in the context of a statute's effect. Not all entanglements have the effect of advancing religion, and some level of involvement between church and state has always been tolerated. Agostini, 521 U.S. at 233. Aid that is granted to religious and secular institutions alike, pursuant to the same neutral criteria, does not embody excessive entanglement; at least not if, like here, no permanent relationship or "symbolic link" between SHA and the government is created by granting government assistance. Regan, 444 U.S. at 659-661 and Walker, 46 F.3d at 1458-1459; see also Committee for Public Education and Religious Liberty v. Secretary, U.S. Dept. of Education (E.D.N.Y. 1996) 942 F. Supp. 842, 866 ["In order for such a [symbolic link] to be found, the activity must give the appearance of public endorsement or support for a religion or a religious tenet"] and id. at 868-869 [neither administrative contacts nor political divisiveness created by a government program alone have the effect of unconstitutional entanglement]; see also, Nat'l Coalition for Public Education and Religious Liberty v. Harris (S.D.N.Y. 1980) 489 F.Supp. 1248, 1268-1270 [same]. SHA neither receives special benefits if it is granted FEMA aid nor does this create the need for onerous, intrusive, day-to-day oversight. Any furtherance of SHA's religious orientation would be merely incidental and thus, permissible. Zobrest, 509 U.S. at 8; Walker, 46 F.3d at 1461 and 1469.

4. The Government Is Prohibited From Taking An Adversary Position Towards Religion.

Lastly, it must not be overlooked that the First Amendment requires the state to be neutral in its relations with religious believers and nonbelievers, not adversarial. Benefits may not be denied to a particular recipient based on his/her or its religion alone. Everson, 330 U.S. at 16-17 [pointing out that "state power is no more to be used so as to handicap religions than it is to favor them;" id. at 17]; accord, Mitchell, 530 U.S. at 827-828 ["[i]t is most bizarre" if, in the case of a facially neutral program, "the Court would … reserve special hostility for those who take their religion seriously," and "profoundly troubling" if the Court were "discriminating in the distribution of public benefits based upon religious status or sincerity"]; see also 42 U.S.C.A. 5151(a) [the Regulations "shall include provisions for insuring that the distribution of supplies, the processing of applications, and other relief and assistance activities shall be accomplished in an equitable and impartial manner, without discrimination on the grounds of …religion ..."](emphasis supplied)].

Yet, the government has taken an adversarial position to religion in general, and to SHA in particular (based on its religious orientation) in two instances here: first, generally, in singling out all "primarily religious institutions" as the only institutions otherwise defined as providing essential government services excluded from access to FEMA disaster relief in 44 C.F.R. 206.221(e)(1); and second, specifically, in denying SHA's application based on their old bylaws alone without performing a complete analysis of the underlying facts of SHA's application. This position is irreconcilable with the First Amendment's requirement that the government take a neutral stance towards religion.

IV Conclusion

For all the aforementioned reasons, this appeal should be granted and SHA should be awarded the assistance it has applied for.

Truly yours,

Ulrike I. Boehm

II Statement of Facts

SHA is a private nonprofit organization devoted to educational purposes (see Bylaws of the Seattle Hebrew Academy as amended and adopted on May 1, 2001, attached hereto as Exhibit 1-A; hereinafter: "Bylaws").[1] It is incorporated as a Washington nonprofit corporation pursuant to the state's March 31, 1895 Act regarding the incorporation of educational, charitable and religious associations (see Articles of Incorporation of June 10, 1920, Certificate of Reinstatement of July 16, 1993, and Certificate of Amendment of November 15, 1996 reflecting the school's name change to Seattle Hebrew Academy, all attached hereto as Exhibits 1B through 1-D). The facility enjoys tax-exempt status under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (see June 1, 1971 confirmation letter from the District Director of the Internal Revenue Service, attached hereto as Exhibit 1-E), is a candidate for membership with the Pacific Northwest Association of Independent Schools ("PNAIS"), which only accepts schools that adhere to a non-discrimination policy as members (see May 23, 2001 letter from PNAIS and attachments, attached hereto as Exhibit 1-F), and is a recipient of various forms of state and federal funding. SHA offers a full range of academic courses of study to students in grades Kindergarten through eight. Its graduates have been successful in high schools throughout the Seattle area, and in many colleges and universities around the country (see declaration of Marc Maislen, attached hereto as Exhibit 1).

SHA's site consists of a four-story building and over 15 classrooms, offices, a library, a full sized school kitchen which serves a hot lunch, a large auditorium, a large gym, a three-room preschool facility, and a small outdoor field and play area. The main building dates from 1909 and qualifies as historic building (see Seattle City Ordinance No. 102229, attached hereto as Exhibit 1-G).

SHA's facility sustained severe damage as a result of the magnitude 6.8 Nisqually Earthquake on February 28, 2001, which was centered near Olympia, WA, and caused destruction throughout the Puget Sound area. The President immediately declared the quake zone a National Disaster Area. Because of the damages the facility sustained, it is currently unoccupied, in accordance with recommendations by SHA's architects. In addition to widespread damage to the interior architectural finish work, such as cracked and fallen plaster, the facility also sustained extensive structural damage, and according to the architects' professional estimate, areas showing certain forms of non-structural damage are likely to have underlying structural damage as well.

In the basement/foundation of the building, the exterior concrete walls at the basement floor contain several diagonal and vertical cracks, spreading from the corners, sills, or headers of window and door openings (in some cases, these cracks are extensions of pre-existing cracks, widened due to the building motion). Cracks in several locations begin in the concrete

[1] At the time of the earthquake, SHA had initiated procedures to amend its Bylaws to more accurately reflect the educational practices and the policies which at that time had already been followed for a considerable amount of time. The earthquake interrupted this process to amend the bylaws; it was, however, promptly resumed after the school had taken the steps necessary to deal with the immediate effects of the disaster. See declaration of Marc Maislen and copy of the revised Bylaws, attached hereto as Exhibits 1 and 1-A.

wall and extend upward into the brick walls above. There is also a large vertical crack at the interior wall of the boiler room in the building's central wing.

Further, the exterior balcony on the third floor at the east end of the central wing, which is located directly above the building's east entrance, has pulled away from the building. There is a visible separation at the railing between the building and the balcony, which continues down to the columns below. Also on the third floor, the east exterior wall of the north wing has pulled away from the floor and ceiling, the north-south corridor at the intersection of the north wing has a large crack a the walls and ceiling, and the north and east exterior walls in the vicinity of the north stair have pulled away slightly from the stair framing, with cracks at the intersection of the floor and walls. Similar structural damage as on the third floor also exists on the fourth floor, and even appears to be slightly worse.

On the roof, the east exterior wall of the north wing has separated from the roof framing, tearing the roofing material above in the process. The north exterior wall at the dormer roof at the top of the stairwell has separated slightly from the roof framing. The east exterior wall of the central wing has pulled away from the roof framing. All of the parapets, which exist at all three wings and at the dormer roofs of the building, were damaged, in degrees ranging from cracking and misalignment to fallen brick. While none of the parapets failed completely, several bricks were dislodged and fell on the roofs and surrounding area below.

Based on the existing structural damage, SHA's architects also expect certain areas of apparent non-structural damage to have similar underlying structural damage. At locations where the perpendicular floor framing is parallel to the walls, inadequate connection between the floor and the walls allowed for separation; and damage requiring repair also exists at the stairwell, where the floor framing changes and inadequate connection of the floor and roof's diaphragm exists. For example, plaster cracking exists at the wall corners and floor of the north and south wing at the east walls and the stairwells of the second floor, and structural damage in the form of mild separation of the walls from the floor are expected by SHA's architects at the east and west walls of the north and south wing, as well as the exterior walls of the stairwells of both wings. On the third and fourth floor, there is plaster cracking at the east wall and stairwell of the south wing, and structural damage in the form of a slight separation of the walls from the floor is expected at the east and west walls of the south wing and at the south wall of the stairwell. On the roof, where the framing of the pitched roof areas of the dormer roof system and the end walls of the north, central and south wings runs parallel to the exterior wall and forms a ridge member at the roof peak, there is no adequate connection between the roof diaphragm and the walls. Similar conditions exist at the east and west ends of the north and south wings, and the east end of the central wing.

Even the initial repairs, which would not yet bring the building into compliance with current building codes or seismic safety provisions but will enable it to retain the level of seismic safety present prior to the earthquake and allow it to be re-occupied, are quite extensive. Repair work will have to include the mending of the cracks in the facility's foundation/basement; either by injection with a structural epoxy (in the case of large cracks), or by sealing with elastomeric paint. The second, third and fourth floor diaphragms will need to have ties installed to connect the floor to the masonry walls at locations where the framing runs perpendicular to the wall. Likewise, the roof diaphragm will have to have ties with the top of the masonry walls at all dormer roofs and peak configurations installed. Finally, the parapets at all sides of the building will need to be repaired or reconstructed, and external bracing will have to be installed from the parapets to the roof framing. The review of the damage and the design of a cost-effective repair scheme has not yet been completed by SHA's architects. Current estimates for the damage and necessary repair work described herein are between two and four million dollars (with regard to the extent of the damage and necessary minimal repairs, see declaration of Marc Maislen, attached hereto as Exhibit 1, and Report of Coughlin Porter Lundeen, SHA's architects, attached hereto as Exhibit 1-H).

SHA applied for disaster assistance with the U.S. Small Business Administration ("SBA") and with FEMA, in accordance with the Stafford Act, as amended on October 30, 2000, and in accordance with the Regulations and Interim Final Rule RIN3067-AD20. However, both SHA's application with the SBA and with FEMA were denied; its application with the SBA by letter dated April 4, 2001 and its application with FEMA by fax dated March 29, 2001 (see April 4, 2001 letter and March 29, 2001 fax, attached hereto as Exhibits 1-K and 1-L). In addition, SHA's first appeal of the denial of its application for FEMA assistance was also denied (see October 27, 2001 letter from Donna J. Voss, attached hereto as Exhibit 1-M).

This is SHA's second appeal of the denial of its application for FEMA assistance, filed in accordance with 44 C.F.R. § 206.206. SHA submits that the denial of its application with FEMA is unjustified. Contrary to the conclusion reached by Region X, the requirement of being "open to the general public" is not applicable to a private nonprofit educational facility, either by statute or regulation. Furthermore, reliance by Region X exclusively on SHA's old bylaws and articles of incorporation gives an incomplete factual picture of the nature of SHA's student body. Finally, as Region X has conceded, SHA is not an institution "primarily used" for religious instruction. Further, granting assistance to SHA is not contrary to the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

III Analysis

A. The Regulatory Framework Of The Stafford Act And Regulations

Pursuant to 42 U.S.C.A. § 5121 and 44 C.F.R. § 206.3, the purpose of FEMA assistance is to provide disaster relief in cases of major disasters, which surpass an individual state's or local government's financial ability to cope with the effects of the disaster. 42 U.S.C.A. 5151(a) and 44 C.F.R. § 206.11(b) mandate that FEMA's distribution of supplies, the processing of applications, and other relief and assistance activities "shall be accomplished in an equitable and impartial manner, without discrimination on the grounds of …religion …" (emphasis supplied).

The eligibility requirements for FEMA disaster assistance are set forth in 44 C.F.R. § 206.221(e) and (f). Pursuant to 44 C.F.R. § 206.221(f), a private nonprofit organization is eligible if it has been declared tax-exempt under § 501(c)-(e) of the Internal Revenue Code or if it is organized or doing business as a nonprofit entity under state law. Pursuant to in 44 C.F.R. § 206.221(e), private nonprofit institutions providing educational services are eligible for FEMA disaster assistance, except if they are "primarily used" for religious instruction. According to the definition given in the Public Assistance Guide, FEMA Publication Manual 322 p. 15, a facility is "not primarily used" for religious instruction if it is used "over 50 percent of the time for eligible activities, or 50 percent of its space is used for eligible activities." Lastly, according to 44 C.F.R. 206.206, a party whose application has been denied has sixty (60) days from receipt of the determination to appeal FEMA's decision.

B. SHA is not Required by Statute or Regulation to be "Open to the General Public" in order to be Eligible for Public Assistance.

As already explained, SHA is a private nonprofit organization devoted to educational purposes, incorporated as a Washington nonprofit corporation pursuant to the state's March 31, 1895 Act regarding the incorporation of educational, charitable and religious associations. The facility enjoys tax-exempt status under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, is a candidate member of PNAIS, and is a recipient of state and federal funding.

Region X posits that, because SHA is not "open to the general public," it is ineligible for public assistance under the Stafford Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. This is a fundamental misreading of the Stafford Act. 42 USC §5122(9) defines "private nonprofit facility" as any one of the following:

> private nonprofit educational, utility, emergency medical, rehabilitation, and temporary or permanent custodial care facilities (including those for the aged and disabled), other private nonprofit facilities which provide essential services of a governmental nature to the general public, and facilities on Indian reservations as defined by the President.

The key phrase within this definition is "which provide essential services of a governmental nature to the general public." Region X maintains that this phrase modifies not only "other private nonprofit facilities," but also the first list of facilities, namely "educational, utility, emergency medical . . . facilities." Region X also points to the regulations set forth at 42 CFR §206.221(e), which contain language almost identical to the statute.

A proper understanding of the definition of "private nonprofit facility" (above) begins with the recognition that it includes three separate categories; two of these were included as eligible facilities in disaster relief law prior to adoption of the Stafford Act: (1) "private nonprofit educational, utility, emergency medical, rehabilitation, and temporary or permanent custodial care facilities (including those for the aged and disabled)," and (2) "facilities on Indian reservations as defined by the President." The third category, which the Stafford Act placed in between these two, is other private nonprofit facilities which provide essential services of a governmental nature to the general public."

The Disaster Mitigation Act of 1974, P.L. 93-288 (the "1974 Act") was the first statute to provide for public assistance to private nonprofit facilities (an earlier law had provided this only in the case of one specific hurricane, not as a general rule). Section 402(b) of the 1974 Act provides as follows:

> The President is also authorized to make grants to help repair, restore, reconstruct or replace private nonprofit educational, utility, emergency, medical and custodial care facilities, including those for the aged or disabled, and facilities on Indian reservations as defined by the President, which were damaged or destroyed by a major disaster.

The Legislative History calls this section a "significant amendment" to the law and describes it as "authorizing 100% grants for repairing or reconstructing . . . private, nonprofit medical and educational facilities and utilities damaged by major disasters." 1994 USCCAN 3071. The Legislative History also provides: "This bill . . . includes private non-profit educational, emergency, medical, custodial care and utility facilities. . ." 1994 USCCAN 3074. You will note that the words "provide essential services of a governmental nature to the general public" do not appear in the 1974 Act, and are not mentioned in the legislative history. The category of private, nonprofit educational facility is not qualified.

In 1988, the Stafford Act, P.L. 100-707, amended the Disaster Mitigation Act of 1974 to include the current language of 42 U.S.C. §5122(9) as set forth above. Prior to adoption of the Stafford Act, there was not a separate definition of "private nonprofit facility" in the statute; rather, the list of these types of facilities was included within Section 402(b) of the 1974 Act, as set forth above. The Legislative History accompanying the Stafford Act explains how the definition of "private nonprofit facility" (42 U.S.C. §5122(9)) entered the definitions section of the statute:

> Subsection (e) [of Section 104 of the Stafford Act] places the definition of public facility and private non-profit facility as those terms are used throughout the Act into the definition section. The definition of public facility is amended to include those facilities used for cultural purposes, such as museums. The definition of private non-profit facility is also broadened [i.e., the middle category was inserted] to include facilities which provide to the general public services of a governmental nature. Examples of eligible facilities include museums, zoos, community centers, libraries, homeless shelters, senior citizen centers, rehabilitation facilities, and shelter workshops (emphasis supplied).

1988 USCCAN 6088. Thus, this new section of the Stafford Act is the first time that these words, "provide essential services of a governmental nature to the general public," appear in disaster relief law. It is clear from both the Stafford Act's amendment to the language of the Disaster Mitigation Act of 1974 and from the accompanying Legislative History that the entire phrase, "other private nonprofit facilities which provide essential services of a governmental nature to the general public," was inserted right into the middle of the prior language, not intending to change the meaning of either the category before it or after it, but only intending to broaden the definition of "private nonprofit facility." There is no reference in either the Stafford Act or the accompanying Legislative History to any attempt to narrow the definition of "educational facility," or to modify it in any way. Region X's reading of the Stafford Act, on the other hand, would have its amendments narrowing the category of eligible educational facilities, a reading clearly rebutted by the legislative history, and one which should be reversed.[2]

This understanding of the Stafford Act definition of "private nonprofit facility" is further buttressed by FEMA's own regulations. In 42 CFR §206.221(e), after repeating the statutory definition of "private nonprofit facility," the regulation states:

> (1) Educational facilities means classrooms plus related supplies, equipment, machinery, and utilities of an educational institution necessary or appropriate for instructional, administrative, and support purposes, but does not include buildings, structures and related items used primarily for religious purposes or instruction[3].
> (2) Utility means buildings, structures, or systems of energy, communication, water supply, sewage collection and treatment, or other similar public service facilities.
> (3) Emergency facility means those buildings, structures, equipment, or systems used to provide emergency services, such as fire protection, ambulance, or rescue, to the general public, including the administrative and support facilities essential to the operation of such emergency facilities even if not contiguous.
> (4) Medical facility means and hospital, outpatient facility, rehabilitation facility, or facility for long term care as such terms are defined in section 645 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 2910) and any similar facility offering diagnosis or treatment of mental or physical injury or disease, including the administrative and support facilities essential to the operation of such medical facilities even if not contiguous.
> (5) Custodial care facility means those buildings, structures, or systems including those for essential administration and support, which are used to provide institutional care for persons who require close supervision and some physical constrains on their daily activities for their self-protection, but do not require day-to-day medical care.

[2] Region X asserts that the requirement that any PNP be "open to the general public" is included in the statute in order to implement the statute's nondiscrimination provisions, 42 U.S.C. §5151(a). There is not statutory basis, or basis in the Stafford Act's legislative history, to support this assertion in any way.

[3] Region X has conceded that, because the SHA building is used a majority of the time for secular instruction, it is not a "structure . . . used primarily for religious purposes or instruction." See Section III.E.

> (6) Other essential governmental service facility means museums, zoos, community centers, libraries, homeless shelters, senior citizen centers, rehabilitation facilities, shelter workshops and facilities which provide health and safety services of a governmental nature. All such facilities must be open to the general public.

Most important about this list is that Paragraph (1) contains no reference to "the general public." Other paragraphs include this reference, and Paragraph (6), which incorporates the language of the Legislative History quoted above to further define the new language placed within the definition by the Stafford Act, states explicitly that, as to those facilities, "[a]ll such facilities must be open to the general public." Region X is reading the introductory paragraph of 44 C.F.R. §206.221(e) in a way which is inconsistent with the further definitions which follow.

C. Even if Region X's Understanding of the Stafford Act Definition of "Private Nonprofit Facility" is Correct, SHA Should be Eligible for Public Assistance.

Even if the requirement of being "open to the general public" is applicable to a private nonprofit educational facility, SHA should be eligible for public assistance. Region X's exclusive reliance on the wording of old bylaws (which were in the process of being rewritten, see Exhibit 4), to the exclusion of SHA's actual admissions policy which was in effect at the time, is misplaced. Under the guidelines of FEMA's Public Assistance Guide, SHA is a qualified PNP and is eligible for public assistance.

SHA is in compliance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, section 2000d, which states:

> No person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.

SHA is also a candidate member of Pacific Northwest Association of Independent Schools ("PNAIS") (see Exhibit 1-F). One of the key philosophies of PNAIS is:

> Member schools do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, gender, disability , national or ethnic origin, or other legally protected status in admission of otherwise qualified students or in providing access t o the rights, privileges, programs, or activities generally available to all students or their families, including educational polices, scholarship and other financial aid programs, or athletic, extra-curricular, and other school-administered programs and activities.

In addition, SHA has consistently participated in PNAIS advertisement of non-discriminatory practices; see Exhibits 1-F, 2-A and 3. For the 2000-2001 school year, SHA's student body included two African Americans, three Asian Americans, and four Hispanic students. Student nationalities included Russian, Bulgarian, Australian, and French.

SHA's bylaws in effect on February 28, 2001 were old, and were not being followed at the time of the earthquake; see Exhibit 4. In fact, the bylaws were being rewritten as mentioned in the February 6, 2001 SHA board minutes (Exhibit 5). The bylaws have been revised to state in Article I: "The purpose of this corporation shall be to own, maintain and operate a school or schools for the education of children." See Exhibit 1-A.

SHA had disregarded the old bylaws, in that students who, under the old bylaws definition, were not eligible for admission, were admitted. See Exhibit 4. Such students have been those whose non-Jewish families are seriously studying and practicing Jewish law and culture in their home, under the supervision and instruction of a rabbi. Under Paragraph 7.E.2 of RR Policy Number 9521.3 (April 25, 2000)[4], if such a qualification is deemed a restriction, then SHA is nonetheless eligible for public assistance because it meets the Public Assistance Guide requirement that its restriction to users has at least one open ended parameter. Specifically, attendance is open to children of any race, color, or national original. Since SHA is a Jewish school, and a significant portion of the curriculum taught to students is Jewish, SHA's selection criteria (set forth above) should be considered a use restriction, clearly related to the nature of the facility and allowable under Paragraph 7.E.2.

Region X's exclusive reliance on the language of the old bylaws and articles of incorporation is misplaced. These bylaws were in the process of being rewritten prior to the earthquake. Moreover, SHA's admissions practices prior to the earthquake did not adhere to the requirements of the bylaws. Even if "open to the general public" is a requirement applicable to SHA, SHA is eligible for public assistance from FEMA.

D. It Constitutes a Violation of the Stafford Act's, the FEMA Regulations' and FEMA's Written Policies' Nondiscrimination Mandate not to Provide Public Assistance Relying on SHA's Religious Orientation.

42 U.S.C.A. 5151(a) and 44 C.F.R. § 206.11(b) mandate that FEMA's distribution of supplies, the processing of applications, and other relief and assistance activities "shall be accomplished in an equitable and impartial manner, without discrimination on the grounds of …religion ..." (emphasis supplied). The use of the word "shall" indicates that these

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Florida Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Florida:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 2.3 million students in Florida by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Florida public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 3,131 public schools in Florida by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Florida:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 2.3 million Florida public school children, 3,131 Florida public schools, and 133,545 Florida teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Florida to more than $2.1 billion to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $296 million more than last year, and a 35.5 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $602.8 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Florida – more than $144 million more than last year, and a 47.2 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $45.6 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Florida learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Florida to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $129.6 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $23.8 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Florida
- ✓ Provides an estimated $14.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Florida
- ✓ Provides more than $13.5 million in funding to help Florida school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $522.7 million – $36.5 million more than last year, and a 24.8 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Florida students from disadvantaged backgrounds

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Connecticut Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Connecticut:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 553,993 students in Connecticut by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Connecticut public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,073 public schools in Connecticut by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Connecticut:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 553,993 Connecticut public school children, 1,073 Connecticut public schools, and 42,512 Connecticut teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Connecticut to more than $399.3 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $58 million more than last year, and a 38.9 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $ 121 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Connecticut – nearly $27 million more than last year, and a 55 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $7.3 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Connecticut learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Connecticut to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $26.9 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $4.5 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Connecticut
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Connecticut
- ✓ Provides more than $5.4 million in funding to help Connecticut school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $56 million – $3.7 million more than last year, and a 24.4 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Connecticut students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Wyoming Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Wyoming:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 92,105 in Wyoming by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Wyoming public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 385 public schools in Wyoming by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Wyoming:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 92,105 Wyoming public school children, 385 Wyoming public schools, and 6,895 Wyoming teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Wyoming to more than $118.2 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $16 million more than last year, and a 36 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $28.3 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Wyoming – more than $6 million more than last year, and a 45 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $2 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Wyoming learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Wyoming to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides nearly $13.6 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $2.3 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Wyoming
- ✓ Provides an estimated $1.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Wyoming
- ✓ Provides more than $3.3 million in funding to help Wyoming school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $18.3 million – $1.2 million more than last year, and a 24.4 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Wyoming students from disadvantaged backgrounds

- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Virginia public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,816 public schools in Virginia by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Virginia:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated more than 1 million Virginia public school children, 1,816 Virginia public schools, and 82,616 Virginia teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Virginia to more than $897.9 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $126 million more than last year, and a 38 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $196.5 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Virginia – nearly $46 million more than last year, and a 55 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $16.9 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Virginia learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Virginia to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $52 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $8.9 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Virginia
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Virginia
- ✓ Provides more than $7.9 million in funding to help Virginia school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $205.6 million – $13.6 million more than last year, and a 24.6 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Virginia students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Washington Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Washington:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated more than 1 million students in Washington by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Iowa Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Iowa:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 497,301 students in Iowa by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Iowa public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,531 public schools in Iowa by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Iowa:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 497,301 Iowa public school children, 1,531 Iowa public schools, and 34,203 Iowa teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Iowa to more than $388.7 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $43 million more than last year, and a 27.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $72.2 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Iowa – more than $11 million more than last year, and a 24.9 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $5.7 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Iowa learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Iowa to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $22 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.4 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Iowa
- ✓ Provides an estimated $1.7 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Iowa
- ✓ Provides more than $5.1 million in funding to help Iowa school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $108 million – $7.2 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Iowa students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Illinois Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Illinois:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 2 million students in Illinois by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Illinois public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 4,290 public schools in Illinois by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Illinois:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 2 million Illinois public school children, 4,290 Illinois public schools, and 128,817 Illinois teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Illinois to more than $1.7 billion to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $230 million more than last year, and a 34.2 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $490.4 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Illinois – more than $101 million more than last year, and a 40.5 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $32.8 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Illinois learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Illinois to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $115.5 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $19.1 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Illinois
- ✓ Provides an estimated $12.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Illinois
- ✓ Provides more than $12.3 million in funding to help Illinois school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $347.4 million – $23.6 million more than last year, and a 25 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Illinois students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Iowa Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Iowa:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 497,301 students in Iowa by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Iowa public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,531 public schools in Iowa by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Iowa:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 497,301 Iowa public school children, 1,531 Iowa public schools, and 34,203 Iowa teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Iowa to more than $388.7 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $43 million more than last year, and a 27.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $72.2 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Iowa – more than $11 million more than last year, and a 24.9 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $5.7 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Iowa learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Iowa to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $22 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.4 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Iowa
- ✓ Provides an estimated $1.7 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Iowa
- ✓ Provides more than $5.1 million in funding to help Iowa school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $108 million – $7.2 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Iowa students from disadvantaged backgrounds

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Indiana:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 988,702 students in Indiana by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Indiana public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,874 public schools in Indiana by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Indiana:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 988,702 Indiana public school children, 1,874 Indiana public schools, and 59,728 Indiana teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Indiana to more than $778 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $99 million more than last year, and a 32.3 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $182.3 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Indiana – nearly $38 million more than last year, and a 42.5 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $12.9 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Indiana learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Indiana to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $47.5 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $7.4 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Indiana
- ✓ Provides an estimated $4.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Indiana
- ✓ Provides more than $7.5 million in funding to help Indiana school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $175.3 million – $11.6 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Indiana students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Georgia Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Michigan Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Michigan:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 1.7 million students in Michigan by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Michigan public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 3,606 public schools in Michigan by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Michigan:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 1.7 million Michigan public school children, 3,606 Michigan public schools, and 95,200 Michigan teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Michigan to more than $1.4 billion to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $173 million more than last year, and a 30.4 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $469.4 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Michigan – nearly $84 million more than last year, and a 29.1 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $28.4 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Michigan learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Michigan to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $110 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $16.4 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Michigan
- ✓ Provides an estimated $11.7 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Michigan
- ✓ Provides more than $10.6 million in funding to help Michigan school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $258.6 million – $16.6 million more than last year, and a 24.9 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Michigan students from disadvantaged backgrounds

- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Massachusetts public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for Massachusetts' estimated 1,900 public schools by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families of Massachusetts:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 971,425 Massachusetts public school children, 1,900 Massachusetts public schools, and 79,473 Massachusetts teachers
- ✓ Increases Massachusetts' federal education funding to more than $902.4 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $117 million more than last year, and a 34.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Massachusetts' Title I funding 25.8 percent to more than $249.6 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children – more than $51 million more than last year, and a 50 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $15 million for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Massachusetts learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Massachusetts to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $52.5 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides nearly $9 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Massachusetts
- ✓ Provides more than $6.3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Massachusetts
- ✓ Provides more than $7.3 million to help Massachusetts' school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to $167.6 million – $11.1 million more than last year, and a 24.6 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Massachusetts students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Kansas Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Kansas:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 472,188 students in Kansas by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Kansas public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,440 public schools in Kansas by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels

- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Kansas:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 472,188 Kansas public school children, 1,440 Kansas public schools, and 33,010 Kansas teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Kansas to more than $391.2 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $49 million more than last year, and a 32.7 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $95.5 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Kansas – more than $18 million more than last year, and a 34.7 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $6.3 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Kansas learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Kansas to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $22.7 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.7 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Kansas
- ✓ Provides an estimated $2.1 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Kansas
- ✓ Provides more than $5 million in funding to help Kansas school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $92.6 million – $6.1 million more than last year, and a 24.6 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Kansas students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for New Hampshire Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and New Hampshire:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 206,783 students in New Hampshire by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in New Hampshire public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 521 public schools in New Hampshire by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families of New Hampshire:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 206,783 New Hampshire public school children, 521 New Hampshire public schools, and more than 14,000 New Hampshire teachers
- ✓ Increases New Hampshire federal education funding to more than $154.2 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $21 million more than last year, and a 35 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases New Hampshire Title I funding to more than $31 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children – more than $7 million more than last year, and a 45 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $2.1 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in New Hampshire learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in New Hampshire to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $13.6 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides nearly $2.3 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in New Hampshire
- ✓ Provides more than $1.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in New Hampshire
- ✓ Provides more than $3.9 million in funding to help New Hampshire school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to $27 million – nearly $2 million more than last year, and a 24 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving New Hampshire students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Minnesota Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Minnesota:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 854,034 students in Minnesota by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Minnesota public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 2,072 public schools in Minnesota by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Minnesota:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 854,034 Minnesota public school children, 2,072 Minnesota public schools, and 56,000 Minnesota teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Minnesota to more than $609.4 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $76 million more than last year, and a 31.4 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $131.9 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Minnesota – nearly $26 million more than last year, and a 37.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $9.6 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Minnesota learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Minnesota to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $38.7 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.9 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides more than $6.8 million in funding to help Minnesota school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $136.6 million – $9 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Minnesota students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for New Hampshire Schools

"These reforms express my deep belief in our public schools and their mission to build the mind and character of every child, from every background, in every part of America."
– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and New Hampshire:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 206,783 students in New Hampshire by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Mississippi Schools

"These reforms express my deep belief in our public schools and their mission to build the mind and character of every child, from every background, in every part of America."
– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Mississippi:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 500,716 students in Mississippi by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Mississippi public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 875 public schools in Mississippi by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Minnesota:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 854,034 students in Minnesota by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Minnesota public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 2,072 public schools in Minnesota by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Minnesota:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 854,034 Minnesota public school children, 2,072 Minnesota public schools, and 56,000 Minnesota teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Minnesota to more than $609.4 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $76 million more than last year, and a 31.4 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $131.9 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Minnesota – nearly $26 million more than last year, and a 37.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $9.6 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Minnesota learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Minnesota to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $38.7 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.9 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides more than $6.8 million in funding to help Minnesota school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $136.6 million – $9 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Minnesota students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for New Hampshire Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and New Hampshire:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 206,783 students in New Hampshire by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in New Hampshire public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 521 public schools in New Hampshire by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families of New Hampshire:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 206,783 New Hampshire public school children, 521 New Hampshire public schools, and more than 14,000 New Hampshire teachers
- ✓ Increases New Hampshire federal education funding to more than $154.2 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $21 million more than last year, and a 35 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases New Hampshire Title I funding to more than $31 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children – more than $7 million more than last year, and a 45 percent increase over 2000 levels

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Mississippi Schools

"These reforms express my deep belief in our public schools and their mission to build the mind and character of every child, from every background, in every part of America."
– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Mississippi:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 500,716 students in Mississippi by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Mississippi public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 875 public schools in Mississippi by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Mississippi:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 500,716 Mississippi public school children, 875 Mississippi public schools, and 30,782 Mississippi teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Mississippi to more than $553 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $49 million more than last year, and a 23.8 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $148.9 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Mississippi – more than $13 million more than last year, and an 11.8 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $11 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Mississippi learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Mississippi to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $40.3 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.3 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Mississippi
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.9 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Mississippi
- ✓ Provides more than $5.2 million in funding to help Mississippi school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $156.4 million – $10.3 million more than last year, and a 24.6 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Mississippi students from disadvantaged backgrounds

- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Minnesota public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 2,072 public schools in Minnesota by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Minnesota:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 854,034 Minnesota public school children, 2,072 Minnesota public schools, and 56,000 Minnesota teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Minnesota to more than $609.4 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $76 million more than last year, and a 31.4 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $131.9 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Minnesota – nearly $26 million more than last year, and a 37.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $9.6 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Minnesota learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Minnesota to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $38.7 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.9 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides more than $6.8 million in funding to help Minnesota school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $136.6 million – $9 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Minnesota students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for New Hampshire Schools

"These reforms express my deep belief in our public schools and their mission to build the mind and character of every child, from every background, in every part of America."
– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and New Hampshire:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 206,783 students in New Hampshire by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in New Hampshire public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 521 public schools in New Hampshire by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families of New Hampshire:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 206,783 New Hampshire public school children, 521 New Hampshire public schools, and more than 14,000 New Hampshire teachers
- ✓ Increases New Hampshire federal education funding to more than $154.2 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $21 million more than last year, and a 35 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases New Hampshire Title I funding to more than $31 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children – more than $7 million more than last year, and a 45 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $2.1 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in New Hampshire learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in New Hampshire to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $13.6 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides nearly $2.3 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in New Hampshire
- ✓ Provides more than $1.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in New Hampshire
- ✓ Provides more than $3.9 million in funding to help New Hampshire school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to $27 million – nearly $2 million more than last year, and a 24 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving New Hampshire students from disadvantaged backgrounds

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Mississippi:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 500,716 students in Mississippi by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Mississippi public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 875 public schools in Mississippi by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Mississippi:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 500,716 Mississippi public school children, 875 Mississippi public schools, and 30,782 Mississippi teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Mississippi to more than $553 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $49 million more than last year, and a 23.8 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $148.9 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Mississippi – more than $13 million more than last year, and an 11.8 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $11 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Mississippi learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Mississippi to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $40.3 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.3 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Mississippi
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.9 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Mississippi
- ✓ Provides more than $5.2 million in funding to help Mississippi school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $156.4 million – $10.3 million more than last year, and a 24.6 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Mississippi students from disadvantaged backgrounds

- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.9 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Minnesota
- ✓ Provides more than $6.8 million in funding to help Minnesota school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $136.6 million – $9 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Minnesota students from disadvantaged backgrounds

Note: Funding figures are U.S. Department of Education estimates
Other figures include data from the Department's National Center for Education Statistics at www.nces.ed.gov

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Oklahoma Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Oklahoma:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 627,032 students in Oklahoma by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Oklahoma public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,809 public schools in Oklahoma by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Oklahoma:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 627,032 Oklahoma public school children, 1,809 Oklahoma public schools, and 42,120 Oklahoma teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Oklahoma to more than $611.5 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $79 million more than last year, and a 35.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $141.3 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Oklahoma – more than $29 million more than last year, and a 35.8 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $12.5 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Oklahoma learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Oklahoma to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $33.8 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $5.5 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Oklahoma
- ✓ Provides an estimated $3.5 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Oklahoma
- ✓ Provides more than $5.6 million in funding to help Oklahoma school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $151.4 million – $10.1 million more than last year, and a 24.6 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Oklahoma students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for New York Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and New York:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 2.8 million students in New York by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in New York public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 4,273 public schools in New York by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels

- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in New York:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 2.8 million New York public school children, 4,273 New York public schools, and 216,000 New York teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for New York to more than $3.5 billion to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – nearly $468 million more than last year, and a 36 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to nearly $1.2 billion to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of New York – more than $258 million more than last year, and a 47.3 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $68.4 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in New York learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in New York to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $230 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $37.8 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in New York
- ✓ Provides an estimated $29.2 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in New York
- ✓ Provides more than $16 million in funding to help New York school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $920 million – $65.3 million more than last year, and a 25.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving New York students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Tennessee Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Tennessee:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 916,202 students in Tennessee by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Tennessee public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,554 public schools in Tennessee by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Tennessee:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 916,202 Tennessee public school children, 1,554 Tennessee public schools, and 56,971 Tennessee teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Tennessee to more than $745.3 million to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $83 million more than last years, and a 28 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $174.2 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Tennessee – more than $25 million more than last year, and a 22 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $14.3 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Tennessee learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Tennessee to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $47.4 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $7.3 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Tennessee
- ✓ Provides an estimated $4.4 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Tennessee
- ✓ Provides more than $6.9 million in funding to help Tennessee school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $179 million – $11.8 million more than last year, and a 24.5 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Tennessee students from disadvantaged backgrounds

President Bush Signs Landmark Education Reforms into Law

Bipartisan Effort Reaps Historic Freedom and Flexibility for Puerto Rico Schools

– President George W. Bush

President Bush vowed to make educating every child his number-one domestic priority and reform a system that – despite nearly $200 billion in federal funding since 1965 – has failed the neediest in our nation's classrooms.

In response, President Bush proposed a comprehensive, bipartisan plan to improve overall student performance and close the achievement gap between rich and poor students in America's more than 89,599 public schools.

In his first year in office, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 was passed with an overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress. On January 8, 2002, the President signed into law this landmark legislation that promotes educational excellence for America's:

- ✓ Estimated 46.8 million public school children
- ✓ Nearly 3 million public school teachers
- ✓ More than 89,599 public schools
- ✓ Nearly 17,000 local school districts

The Leave No Child Behind Act Ushers in Sweeping Reforms Based Upon the President's Priorities for Schools throughout America and Puerto Rico:

➢ Stronger Accountability for Results

- ✓ Provides the most sweeping reform of the Elementary & Secondary Education Act since it was enacted in 1965 by turning federal spending on schools into a federal investment in improved student performance
- ✓ Redefines the federal role in K-12 education for an estimated 613,019 students in Puerto Rico by requiring all states to set high standards of achievement and create a system of accountability to measure results
- ✓ Insists that states set high standards for achievement in reading and math — the building blocks of all learning – and test every child in grades 3 through 8 to ensure that students are making progress

➢ Greater Flexibility and Local Control

- ✓ Offers school districts powerful tools to provide the best possible education to all children – especially those most in need – by cutting federal red tape, reducing the number of federal education programs, and creating larger more flexible programs that place decision-making at the local level where it belongs
- ✓ Trusts local parents, educators and school boards to make the best decisions for their children
- ✓ Frees local school districts to spend up to half their federal education dollars however they see fit

➢ Expanded Options and Choice for Parents

- ✓ Empowers parents by providing unprecedented federal support for children from disadvantaged backgrounds who are trapped in low-performing schools
  - Students in failing schools may transfer to higher-performing public schools or get help such as tutoring
  - Students in persistently dangerous schools may transfer to safer public schools
- ✓ Informs parents by requiring states to provide annual report cards of school performance and statewide progress
  - Requirement arms parents with information about the quality of their children's schools, the qualifications of teachers, and their children's progress in key subjects

➢ Emphasis on Teaching Methods that Work

- ✓ Supports reading instruction based upon research-based methods that work to ensure that every child in Puerto Rico public schools reads at or above grade level by third grade
- ✓ Strengthens teacher quality for an estimated 1,523 public schools in Puerto Rico by investing in training and retention of high-quality teachers

The Leave No Child Behind Act Provides Resources to Support the Reforms:

- ✓ Increases federal education funding under the ESEA to more than $22.1 billion for America's elementary and secondary schools – a 27 percent increase over last year, and a 49 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases federal funding to an estimated $10.4 billion for the Title I program to help disadvantaged students succeed – an 18 percent increase over last year, and a 30 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides nearly $3 billion in federal funding to recruit and retain highly qualified teachers and principals
- ✓ Boosts funding for reading programs to nearly $1 billion so every child in America learns to read
- ✓ Provides an estimated $200 million for charter schools to expand parental choice and free children trapped in persistently failing schools

The No Child Left Behind Act is Especially Good News for the Children and Families in Puerto Rico:

- ✓ Benefits an estimated 613,019 Puerto Rico public school children, 1,523 Puerto Rico public schools, and 41,708 Puerto Rico teachers
- ✓ Increases federal education funding for Puerto Rico to more than $1.2 billion to help local schools ensure that no child is left behind – more than $159 million more than last year, and a 30.6 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Increases Title I funding to more than $376 million to boost the quality of education for disadvantaged children of Puerto Rico – nearly $83 million more than last year, and a 32.9 percent increase over 2000 levels
- ✓ Provides more than $27.3 million in funding for Reading First to ensure that every public school child in Puerto Rico learns to read at or above grade level by the third grade
- ✓ Requires every classroom in Puerto Rico to have a highly-qualified teacher and provides more than $93.8 million to train and retain skilled educators
- ✓ Provides an estimated $11.8 million to help ensure safe and drug-free schools in Puerto Rico
- ✓ Provides an estimated $9.3 million to fund after-school programs for at-risk children in Puerto Rico
- ✓ Provides more than $6.3 million in funding to help Puerto Rico school districts assess how well children are learning and schools are teaching
- ✓ Increases Pell Grant funding to an estimated $545 million – $44.3 million more than last year, and a 27.2 percent increase over 2000 levels – to ensure greater access to a college education for deserving Puerto Rico students from disadvantaged backgrounds
