Op-Ed on Pickering from Mobile Register:

PUT YOURSELF, hypothetically, in the shoes of a Democrat in the U.S. Senate.
President Bush has nominated a federal district judge from Mississippi to be promoted to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and you must decide whether to approve the nomination. But this judge isn't a stereotypical Mississippi Republican.
Back in 1967, he testified in a murder trial against members of the Ku Klux Klan when it likely was dangerous to do so -- and lost his run for re-election as a local prosecutor as a result. He has testified that he believes anti-miscegenation statutes are unconstitutional. He led the effort to establish the Institute of Racial Reconciliation at the University of Mississippi.
Black leaders in Mississippi, including four of the five black city council members in his hometown of Laurel, support the judge's promotion almost unanimously. The fifth councilman objects on the odd grounds that the judge worked in favor of integrating a school system. And Charles Evers, brother of slain civil rights leader Medgar Evers, wrote a column for The Wall Street Journal supporting the judge.
It is true that the judge has been criticized for efforts to reduce the sentence of a man convicted in a cross-burning case. But prosecutors from the Civil Rights Division of President Clinton's Justice Department eventually agreed that the judge was correct -- in part, effectively, because they had erred by letting the two more culpable violators in the three-person crime escape with no prison sentences at all.
When the judge sentenced the third man to 27 months in jail, the judge told him: "The type of conduct that you exhibited cannot and will not be tolerated. ... You did that which does hinder good race relations and was a despicable act. ... I would suggest to you that during the time you're in prison that you do some reading on race relations and maintaining good race relations."
Frank Hunger, the assistant U.S. attorney general under Janet Reno, had spoken at length about the case with the judge. Mr. Hunger, an active Democrat, is Al Gore's brother-in-law. Mr. Hunger supports the judge's nomination.
For that matter, the American Bar Association -- called by Senate Democrats "the gold standard" in determining a nominee's fitness -- has proclaimed the judge "well qualified" for the new post.
Back in 1990, both the Judiciary Committee and the full Senate approved the nominee -- unanimously -- for the district judgeship he now holds. Among today's leading Senate Democrats who approved the nomination then are former Judiciary Committee Chairman Pat Leahy of Vermont, Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts, and potential 2004 presidential contender Joseph Biden of Delaware.
If you're a Senate Democrat, wouldn't you feel good about voting for this judge?

Maybe so, but the Democrats on the Judiciary Committee last year killed the nomination of this judge, Charles Pickering, without even letting it receive a vote by the full Senate. They said they objected to his ruling on the cross-burning case, and on a theoretical legal essay on interracial marriage that he wrote in 1959.
Now that President Bush has renominated Judge Pickering, New York's senior Democratic senator, Charles Schumer, says the nomination is evidence that the Bush administration "wants the courts to become the sword that destroys" the "basic civil rights in this country."
Sen. Schumer's attack on Judge Pickering is despicable. The Senate ought to confirm the judge's promotion, and quickly.

The Free Congress Commentary
Re-nominating Pickering Was The Right Choice
By John Nowacki

President Bush re-nominated all of his unconfirmed judicial nominees this week, including federal district judge Charles Pickering, nominated to the federal court of appeals that covers Mississippi, Texas, and Louisiana. Judge Pickering was targeted by liberal interest groups early last year, subjected to an intense campaign of character assassination, and narrowly defeated in a Senate Judiciary Committee vote that ran along party lines.

Those left-wing groups clearly don't want him confirmed, but they appear to relish the idea of another chance to play the race card against Republicans.
Pickering's re-nomination had hardly been announced before they and their Senate allies began sputtering in outrage.

How could Bush do this, they demanded. After Trent Lott, hadn't Republicans learned their lesson? See, Republicans are out to trample on civil rights!
And so on.

From the moment Judiciary Committee Democrats refused to report Pickering's nomination to the full Senate, President Bush made his feelings plain. He believed that the judge wasn't treated fairly by the committee and that he deserved an up-or-down vote before all 100 Senators. It was a sentiment he repeated numerous times over the course of the year, and that's clearly why he decided to send up this nomination.

And Pickering has nothing in common with Trent Lott's infamous remarks. Attempts to link the two are nothing more than race-baiting, a favorite tactic of the Left these days.

The real story is that for more than fifty years, Judge Pickering has compiled an impressive record on race-relations. During the 1960s, he worked with the FBI to prosecute violence against blacks, publicly condemning racially motivated violence. In 1967, he testified against the Imperial Wizard of the KKK in Mississippi--charged with the fire bombing murder of a civil rights activist--putting himself and his family at risk.

In the 1970s, he hired the Mississippi Republican Party's first black political worker. He has served on the board of the University of Mississippi's Institute for Racial Reconciliation. He helped create a program for at-risk black youths in Laurel, Mississippi.

He has the strong support of many of his fellow Mississippians, black and white, from both sides of the aisle. In fact, many in the black community who have known him and worked with him wanted to see him confirmed last year--judges, attorneys, government officials, clergymen, civil rights workers, and others.

But Judge Pickering's opponents would rather pretend that this is all irrelevant. They point instead to various incidents or decisions, twist some facts and ignore others, and claim this makes their case.

They complain about incidental contacts almost 30 years ago (while he was a state senator) with the Mississippi Sovereignty Commission, a group Pickering voted to shut down. What they don't mention is that he had requested information about a union infiltrated by Ku Klux Klan members, one of whom had been charged with murder--with Pickering's signature on the affidavit supporting the indictment. Information about the contact is available thanks to Pickering, who voted to preserve the commission's records instead of burning them.

Liberals point to an academic article Pickering wrote while a law student in 1959, analyzing--after a relevant court decision--how Mississippi's interracial marriage statute differed from those of other states. They ignore the fact that he didn't advocate or support the statute, just as they ignore his statement during his 1990 hearing--repeated in his 2001 hearing--that "marriage between people of different races is a matter of personal choice," and that those statutes are unconstitutional. They also ignore his rulings that follow Supreme Court precedent and put those words into practice.

Their favorite attack, though, is to insinuate that Judge Pickering is soft on cross burning. In a 1994 case, Pickering expressed concern about the sentence federal prosecutors wanted for a man involved in burning a cross at an interracial couple's home. But there's more to the story than that.

With the case before his court, Pickering realized that the ringleader of the three people involved--who had previously shot at the couple's house--cut a deal with prosecutors and got off without any jail time, while the prosecutors demanded seven and a half years in prison for another defendant.

Pickering thought the proposed sentence was disproportionate and asked the government lawyers how the two sentencing statutes they cited had been used in other federal courts. He asked at least three times without getting an answer, until they finally dropped their sentencing request down to two and a half years.

Judge Pickering sentenced the man to 27 months, chewed him out from the bench about his "despicable act" that "cannot and will not be tolerated" and advised him to spend his prison time doing something useful like reading up on how to maintain good race relations.

That's it. Pickering was concerned about a possible sentence even prosecutors called "draconian," sentenced the criminal to prison, and expressed his outrage at "an area that we've got to stamp out" because "we've got to learn to live, races among each other." But you'll never hear all that listening to John Edwards, Charles Schumer, or People for the American Way.

When he was nominated to the U.S. District Court a few years back, the Judiciary Committee reported him out unanimously. Among those who supported him were current committee Democrats Patrick Leahy, Ted Kennedy, Joseph Biden, and Herb Kohl. His nomination went on to the full Senate, where he was then confirmed--unanimously.

Judge Pickering's character hasn't changed since then, and neither has the quality of his record. He has a decade of experience. The people who know him best support him. The American Bar Association examined his qualifications and commitment to equal justice and pronounced him well-qualified. And, like last year, he has the votes on the Senate floor for confirmation.

Pickering deserves that vote in the full Senate. Despite threats of a Democrat filibuster, it looks as if he may finally get it.

REVIEW & OUTLOOK
Playing the Lott Card
"Strom" Schumer gets ready to smear Judge Pickering.

Friday, January 10, 2003 12:01 a.m.

Call it wishful thinking, but we had hoped that GOP control of the Senate meant that we would finally get to stop writing about judicial politics. We hadn't counted on Senator Chuck Schumer.

The New York Democrat and member of the Judiciary Committee has started the New Year with a harangue, playing the race card and vowing to filibuster the nomination of Charles Pickering Sr., whom President Bush renominated Tuesday to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Schumer's threat came just two days after Ralph Neas of People for the American Way released a memo urging Democrats to filibuster President Bush's judicial nominees.

To understand what's going on here, merely listen to Mr. Schumer's remarks: "To renominate Judge Pickering, who has not built a distinguished record and is probably best known for intervening on behalf of a convicted cross-burner, shows unfortunately that Richard Nixon's Southern strategy is still alive and well in the White House." The Schumer Democrats are playing the Trent Lott card, trying to take advantage of the former GOP Senate leader's fall by smearing Judge Pickering as racist in order to smear Republicans as anti-black.

This race-baiting is all the more offensive because it is demonstrably false about Judge Pickering's career and a gross distortion of the 1995 case called U.S. v. Swan over which the judge presided. That case concerned three young white men who burned a cross in the yard of a mixed-race couple. If Mr. Schumer has a complaint it should be with the Clinton Justice Department, which was relaxed enough about the crime to offer the defendants plea bargains. Two--the ring-leader, who was a juvenile, and a low-IQ adult--accepted the offers and served no prison time.

The third defendant, Daniel Swan, rejected a deal that would have meant a year and a half in jail and decided to take his chances with a trial. He was convicted and, under the mandatory sentencing guidelines, received five to seven-and-a-half years. Judge Pickering got Swan's sentence reduced on the grounds that it was disproportionate to the other sentences and because Swan had no history of racial animus.

Swan isn't the only defendant whom Judge Pickering has helped in this manner. He also granted a reduction in sentence to a 20-year-old black man convicted of a first-time drug offense. The man's lawyer said his client's "sentencing experience" with Judge Pickering was "a positive life-changing experience."

Judge Pickering's whole life story, not just his experience on the bench, suggests that he has repeatedly gone out of his way to help African-Americans. Or, as he put it last year, "I helped integrate our schools, the dinner table, my political party, my fraternity, and my church."

In the 1960s, he sent his children to the newly integrated Mississippi public schools even though there was an all-white private school nearby. As county attorney from 1964-68 he helped the FBI prosecute Ku Klux Klansmen, including testifying against the Imperial Wizard, and was defeated for re-election because of it. In 1971, he ran for the state Senate and won with the support of two-thirds of the black voters in his district.

He also has a long record of helping advance civil rights causes in Mississippi, getting white banks to lend money to black businesses and helping get federal funds directed to programs that helped African-Americans. Former Democratic Governor William Winter says Judge Pickering has been "one of this state's most dedicated and effective voices for breaking down racial barriers." African-American leaders in his hometown of Laurel, Mississippi, overwhelmingly support him.

Mr. Schumer knows all of this, but none of it matters because his agenda is to stir up the black vote against Republicans going into 2004. With the Lott debacle fresh in everyone's minds, now is the time to pile on, especially since Mr. Pickering is a Lott friend from Mississippi. Never mind that Mr. Bush and fellow Republicans were the folks who sent Mr. Lott to the backbenches.

Democrats defeated Mr. Pickering the first time on a 10-9 party-line vote in Judiciary, even though they know he would have won on the floor. Now that they are in the minority, they are threatening a filibuster strategy that would take judicial politics to a whole new level of enmity. Since 1949, a study by the Congressional Research Service shows the only successful filibuster against a judge was in 1968, when Strom Thurmond used it against Abe Fortas, LBJ's nominee for Supreme Court Chief Justice. Call him Strom Schumer.

Op-Ed on Pickering from Mobile Register:

PUT YOURSELF, hypothetically, in the shoes of a Democrat in the U.S. Senate.
President Bush has nominated a federal district judge from Mississippi to be promoted to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and you must decide whether to approve the nomination. But this judge isn't a stereotypical Mississippi Republican.
Back in 1967, he testified in a murder trial against members of the Ku Klux Klan when it likely was dangerous to do so -- and lost his run for re-election as a local prosecutor as a result. He has testified that he believes anti-miscegenation statutes are unconstitutional. He led the effort to establish the Institute of Racial Reconciliation at the University of Mississippi.
Black leaders in Mississippi, including four of the five black city council members in his hometown of Laurel, support the judge's promotion almost unanimously. The fifth councilman objects on the odd grounds that the judge worked in favor of integrating a school system. And Charles Evers, brother of slain civil rights leader Medgar Evers, wrote a column for The Wall Street Journal supporting the judge.
It is true that the judge has been criticized for efforts to reduce the sentence of a man convicted in a cross-burning case. But prosecutors from the Civil Rights Division of President Clinton's Justice Department eventually agreed that the judge was correct -- in part, effectively, because they had erred by letting the two more culpable violators in the three-person crime escape with no prison sentences at all.
When the judge sentenced the third man to 27 months in jail, the judge told him: "The type of conduct that you exhibited cannot and will not be tolerated. ... You did that which does hinder good race relations and was a despicable act. ... I would suggest to you that during the time you're in prison that you do some reading on race relations and maintaining good race relations."
Frank Hunger, the assistant U.S. attorney general under Janet Reno, had spoken at length about the case with the judge. Mr. Hunger, an active Democrat, is Al Gore's brother-in-law. Mr. Hunger supports the judge's nomination.
For that matter, the American Bar Association -- called by Senate Democrats "the gold standard" in determining a nominee's fitness -- has proclaimed the judge "well qualified" for the new post.
Back in 1990, both the Judiciary Committee and the full Senate approved the nominee -- unanimously -- for the district judgeship he now holds.
Among today's leading Senate Democrats who approved the nomination then are former Judiciary Committee Chairman Pat Leahy of Vermont, Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts, and potential 2004 presidential contender Joseph Biden of Delaware.
If you're a Senate Democrat, wouldn't you feel good about voting for this judge?

Maybe so, but the Democrats on the Judiciary Committee last year killed the nomination of this judge, Charles Pickering, without even letting it receive a vote by the full Senate. They said they objected to his ruling on the cross-burning case, and on a theoretical legal essay on interracial marriage that he wrote in 1959.
Now that President Bush has renominated Judge Pickering, New York's senior Democratic senator, Charles Schumer, says the nomination is evidence that the Bush administration "wants the courts to become the sword that destroys" the "basic civil rights in this country."
Sen. Schumer's attack on Judge Pickering is despicable. The Senate ought to confirm the judge's promotion, and quickly.

Brett--
This is the New Majority description of their organization on their website:

The New Majority consists of two distinct organizations, the non-profit association and the political action group. The New Majority non-profit association is a public benefit corporation under Internal Revenue Code Section 501(c)(4).
The New Majority non-profit association:
Promotes public policy and conducts research that supports our organization's fiscally conservative values.
Identifies and supports non-profit programs and activities, which benefit women and minorities as well as other under-served communities.
Expands understanding of markets in the new economy and promotes economic freedom in the information age.
Demands a smaller, more efficient government.
Promotes individual liberty.
The New Majority political action committee:
Supports mainstream Republicans for public office.
Builds coalitions with political interest groups and other organizations to create working majorities to accomplish our goals.
Expands the appeal of the Republican Party.
Broadens participation from voters who share core Republican values.
Elects common-sense, fiscally responsible, inclusive Republicans.

Kathy-

Per your discussion with Jeff Montejano from the New Majority, we would be most honored to host a luncheon for Ruben Barrales here in Orange County on January 24, 2003.

I will take care of all logistics for the event, so please let me know what is needed from your end and I will be sure to take care of it. Also, is there a specific topic of discussion that Ruben will be discussing to the membership? If so, please let me know as soon as possible.

Our tax exemption status is a 501-C4 Social Welfare Organization. Our Tax I.D. Number is PRA 6.

Please call me with any further questions, I look forward to hearing from you.

Brett,

Thank you for agreeing to talk to the YLS alums next month. We're looking forward it. Because we can't do the event at Liz and Lane's house, we've run into a conflict on the date that you and I discussed, but I'm confident we can find a date, mid-week, in that time period, that will suit you. So far I've heard back from everyone on the Board except one, and the following dates seem ok: 2/19, 2/25, or 2/26. The other Tuesday through Thursday days those two weeks don't work. Do any of those days work for you? If so, I'll run it by the last person on the Board who I have not heard back from. I've also attached a draft flier (in word and word perfect, the formatting might come out looking a little odd). Please let me know if you have any additions or deletions -- we're pretty much flexible on everything. Have a good weekend.

Grant

By Mike Allen
Washington Post Staff Writer
Around the White House, he was known as "Farm Boy," for his months of toil on the record-setting agriculture bill President Bush signed last year.
Among national Republicans, he is known as one of the party's most promising weapons for reaching young African-Americans.
Now Dylan C. Glenn, after two years as a deputy at the National Economic Council, has gone home to Georgia to join the senior staff of incoming Republican Gov. Sonny Perdue. Glenn, 33, was one of two blacks appointed to Perdue's senior staff, bringing him in-state praise for diversity after his bruising, Bush-supported campaign against Gov. Roy Barnes (D).
Republicans in Washington hope Glenn will parlay his new job into a congressional or statewide race two years from now, extending Republican gains in a traditionally Democratic state.
"We know out outreach in the African-American community is only going to succeed when we have elected leaders from that community," said Charles Black, a Republican consultant. "We hope he makes it. It's critical."
Glenn was raised by a principal and school counselor in Columbus, Ga., and came north to the Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va. He was assistant research director of the 1988 presidential campaign of the president's father, and was a traveling press aide to the vice presidential nominee, Jack Kemp, in 1996.
Glenn challenged Rep. Sanford Bishop (D-Ga.) in 2000 and lost by 6 points, but received the highest vote ever for a Republican in the district. Now Glenn says of a future race, "I'm keeping the door open, without being focused on it." Supporters say he might make a strong House candidate in 2004, or a promising candidate for lieutenant governor or state treasurer in 2006.
During his two years at the White House, Glenn amazed his colleagues with his ability to focus on minority housing by day, then stay in touch with Hollywood celebrities on weekend. He would show up early at the White House after networking late into the night at places like Cafe Milano and the Daily Grill. A going-away dinner at Morton's drew a who's who of conservatives from Capitol Hill and throughout the administration.
"He never stopped running," one White House official said. "We love Dylan."
Glenn will be Perdue's deputy chief of staff for external affairs, overseeing intergovernmental operations and public liaison activities. Happily for his political ambitions, the job will involve traveling throughout the state and staying in touch with interest groups and activists.

Glenn acknowledged that the GOP has a long way to go to make any measurable headway among black voters.

"The Republican National Committee has had an office of outreach since I was a little boy. We've just not been able to get it done," he said. "The one thing the party has in its favor is the fact that younger African-Americans, in particular, are looking for something more than the rhetoric that they've been getting from the Democratic Party."

Judgeship impasse could end
Sens. Dole, Edwards discuss cooperating to place North Carolinian on appeals court
JIM MORRILL
Staff Writer

North Carolina's two U.S. senators say they're working together to do what hasn't been done in 22 years -- put a North Carolinian on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Years of partisan wrangling have left the state without a representative on the Richmond-based court, one step below the U.S. Supreme Court.

In recent years Republican Sen. Jesse Helms and Democratic Sen. John Edwards blocked each other's candidates to the bench.

The 4th Circuit covers Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas. Every state but North Carolina has at least two judges on the bench.

Now Edwards and Helms' successor, Republican Elizabeth Dole, are trying to avoid a similar impasse. Both they and their staffs have talked about the need to fill judicial vacancies.

"They both seem to share a desire to move forward on the judicial nomination process," Dole spokeswoman Mary Brown Brewer said Friday.

Edwards' spokesman sounded a similar note. "There's great promise that they can both cooperate on a way that would help get North Carolinians on the bench," said Mike Briggs. "The senator is very optimistic."

Their first test will come soon.

On Tuesday President Bush renominated Terrence Boyle of Edenton, chief judge of the District Court for Eastern North Carolina and a one-time aide to Helms. It was the fourth time the 57-year-old jurist has been tapped for the post.

In 1991 he was nominated by Bush's father. Democrats who then controlled the Senate refused to hold a hearing on the nomination. Helms went on to block all of President Clinton's N.C. nominees to the 4th Circuit. Edwards killed Boyle's 2001 nomination by the current President Bush.

As a result, no North Carolinian has taken a seat on the court since the late Sam Ervin III in 1980.

The 4th Circuit has three vacancies. Nationwide there are 25 openings among the 179 appeals court seats. With the Supreme Court deciding fewer cases each year, appeals courts increasingly have the final word on many cases.

Most of the 4th Circuit's 12 current judges are generally regarded as conservative. Briggs said if Bush nominates another North Carolinian who offers ideological balance, "that would be the appropriate time (for Edwards) to take another look at the Boyle nomination."

During her campaign, Dole urged a quick hearing for Boyle, saying the 4th Circuit faced a "judicial emergency." The week after she was elected in November, Dole discussed judicial nominations with Edwards during a visit to his office. Their staffs have since held discussions on the subject.

And Brewer says Dole is still weighing a proposal Edwards made in a letter, in which he asked her to consider a recommendation from the N.C. Bar Association.

Last year the bar proposed a bipartisan nominating commission, with three members chosen by each senator. For each court vacancy, the commission would nominate three candidates from among whom the president would be urged to choose.

"It seemed to me to be a proposal that had tremendous common sense to it," said Hank Van Hoy of Mocksville, the bar association's immediate past president. "It essentially removed politics from the issue. ... Then you end this logjam and you get rid of this tit-for-tat game that's being played now."

Diana,

I know you had an opportunity to meet with Mike Horowitz about various legal reform issues, including auto choice. I wondered if you might be interested in a briefing on auto choice alone, inasmuch as it would seem to fit nicely into the president's agenda on a number of scores, including --

(1) The equivalent of roughly a $48 billion tax cut (the approximate number that the new JEC study will produce of annual savings if all motorists chose the new PIP system).

(2) An approximate 5% increase in the income of low-income people, because they receive a disproportionately higher percentage of the savings and, when they reside in inner cities, a higher absolute amount of savings. While acolor blind system, minorities would clearly be among the greatest beneficiaries.

(3) A significant reduction in federal and state Medicaid costs because auto insurance would pay instead of Medicaid in many cases. For the same reason, there would also be savings in Medicare and Social Security.

Needless to say, there are many other good reasons for supporting this legislation. FYI, I am attaching a paper on federalism that was largely put together by the offices of Senator McConnell and Majority Leader Armey. As always, you can get detailed information from my web site at autoreform.org.

I would be pleased to meet with your task force at your convenience. With all best wishes for the holidays.

Subject: Question for you, Sir...

Ashley Davis & Tom Ridge will both be leaving the EOP;next week.; Governor Ridge will be going to Homeland and Ashley to a law firm.; They would both like to have us convert their contact information (personal and professional) from their palm pilots onto diskette/CD.; Do you see any reason we should not do this?

Thank you,

Kim

hey, looks like I'm going on the Thursday med mal trip. Is the President's speech going to be a rehash of last year or is he going to add a new twist? Is it basically going to be a call for a bill to pass that resembles last year's House bill?

Thanks!

I got a call and an email from this woman yesterday. Is it ok to tell her that the Texas Elections dept. should have a record of all contributions to the President's first campaign? or should I not respond at all?

Kate - I spoke with Sara and understand she had left you a message; I am following up with a more detailed email. If we could get validation of the donation from Mr. Carl Rove or Karen Hughes, that would be wonderful.

Here is my dilemma -

My husband and I run Link Aviation, Inc. in Dallas Texas. We provide corporate jet training. Back when President Bush was running for Governor, my husband donated his Citation aircraft and pilot services for Mr. Bush. This was coordinated through Karen Hughes. Part of the expenses was paid for by the late Doris Dixon and the Bayoud Family.

On August 8, 2002 our flight school was raided by the FBI, INS, DOT and FAA. My husband is Algerian. Although they could not find any deficiencies with the school (all students were cleared through the US Dept of Justice and had appropriate visas) my husband was arrested for failure to disclose a DUI from 1984 on his 1997 FAA medical application (these infractions are normally handled administratively by the FAA). We understand the need for national security and were one of the first flight schools to enroll in the U.S. Department of Justice Foreign Training Task Force.

We have six children and live in Plano Texas. There is a good chance that my husband will be sent to jail, fined and / or deported. He has already spent 14 days in jail and we have incurred $60,000 in legal fees. My family and our business have been devastated by this.

I am asking for help from anyone. We need letters to the Honorable Barbara M. Lynn and Honorable Anthony Rogers stating what type of person Marcel Fetamia is. Any help would be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Jana L. Zeeb, CFO

Brett,
You should probably take a look at these too. They deal with some FOIA issues. Sorry for the short turnaround, but I didn't get responses from others on time.

Production or Disclosure of Official Information in Connection With Federal or State Litigation

ACTION: Interim Final Rule.

SUMMARY: This interim final rule establishes procedures for the public to obtain the production or disclosure of official information in connection with litigation, including litigation to which the Department of Homeland Security is not a party.

DATES: This interim final rule is effective [INSERT DATE OF PUBLICATION IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER].

Please refer to the notice of proposed rulemaking published elsewhere in this separate part of this issue of the Federal Register for information how to submit comments concerning this rule.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

On November 25, 2002, the President signed into law the Homeland Security Act (P.L. 107-296), which created the new Department of Homeland Security (DHS). Pursuant to the provisions of the Act, the new Department came into existence on January 24, 2003.

§ 5.46 Procedure when response to demand is required prior to receiving instructions.

(a) If a response to a demand is required before the appropriate Department official designated in §5.44 renders a decision, the Department will request that either a Department of Justice attorney or a Department attorney designated for the purpose:

(1) Appear with the employee upon whom the demand has been made;

(2) Furnish the court or other authority with a copy of the regulations contained in this subpart;

(3) Inform the court or other authority that the demand has been, or is being, as the case may be, referred for the prompt consideration of the appropriate Department official; and

(4) Respectfully request the court or authority to stay the demand pending receipt of the requested instructions.

(b) In the event that an immediate demand for production or disclosure is made in circumstances which would preclude the proper designation or appearance of a Department of Justice or Department attorney on the employee's behalf, the employee shall respectfully request the demanding court or authority for a reasonable stay of proceedings for the purpose of obtaining instructions from the Department.

§ 5.47 Procedure in the event of an adverse ruling.

If the court or other judicial or quasi-judicial authority declines to stay the effect of the demand in response to a request made pursuant to § 5.46, or if the court or other authority rules that the demand must be complied with irrespective of the Department's instructions not to produce the material or disclose the information sought, the employee upon whom the demand has been made shall respectfully decline to comply with the demand, citing this subpart and United States ex rel. Touhy v. Ragen, 340 U.S. 462 (1951).

§ 5.48 Considerations in determining whether the Department will comply with a demand or request.

(a) In deciding whether to comply with a demand or request, Department officials and attorneys shall consider, among others:

(1) Whether such compliance would be unduly burdensome or otherwise inappropriate under the applicable rules of discovery or the rules of procedure governing the case or matter in which the demand arose;

(2) Whether compliance is appropriate under the relevant substantive law concerning privilege or disclosure of information;

(3) The public interest;

(4) The need to conserve the time of Department employees for the conduct of official business;

(5) The need to avoid spending the time and money of the United States for private purposes;

(6) The need to maintain impartiality between private litigants in cases where a substantial government interest is not implicated;

(7) Whether compliance would have an adverse effect on performance by the Department of its mission and duties; and

(8) The need to avoid involving the Department in controversial issues not related to its mission.

(b) Among those demands and requests in response to which compliance will not ordinarily be authorized are those with respect to which, inter alia, any of the following factors exist:

(1) Compliance would violate a statute or a rule of procedure;

(2) Compliance would violate a specific regulation or Executive order;

(3) Compliance would reveal information properly classified in the interest of national security;

(4) Compliance would reveal confidential commercial or financial information or trade secrets without the owner's consent;

(5) Compliance would reveal the internal deliberative processes of the Executive Branch; or

(6) Compliance would potentially impede or prejudice an on-going law enforcement investigation.

§ 5.49 Prohibition on providing expert or opinion testimony.

(a) Except as provided in this section, and subject to 5 CFR 2635.805, Department employees shall not provide opinion or expert testimony based upon information which they acquired in the scope and performance of their official Department duties, except on behalf of the United States or a party represented by the Department of Justice.

(b) Upon a showing by the requestor of exceptional need or unique circumstances and that the anticipated testimony will not be adverse to the interests of the United States, the appropriate Department official designated in § 5.44 may, consistent with 5 CFR 2635.805, in their discretion and with the concurrence of the [Office of the General Counsel], grant special, written authorization for Department employees to appear and testify as expert witnesses at no expense to the United States.

(c) If, despite the final determination of the appropriate Department official designated in § 5.44, a court of competent jurisdiction or other appropriate authority orders the appearance and expert or opinion testimony of a Department employee, such employee shall immediately inform the [Office of the General Counsel] of such order. If the [Office of the General Counsel] determines that no further legal review of or challenge to the court's order will be made, the Department employee shall comply with the order. If so directed by the [Office of the General Counsel], however, the employee shall respectfully decline to testify. See United States ex rel. Touhy v. Ragen, 340 U.S. 462 (1951).

Title

In order to establish procedures to facilitate public interaction with DHS, DHS is issuing an initial series of proposed and interim final regulations.

II. The Interim Final Rule

This interim final rule establishes procedures governing the disclosure of information in connection with litigation. [Provide overview summary of the regulatory provisions].

III. Procedural Requirements

Because the DHS came into existence on January 24, 2002, it is necessary to promptly establish procedures to facilitate the interaction of the public with the Department. Furthermore, this Interim Final Rule generally parallels the procedures concerning the disclosure of information in litigation currently used by other agencies. Accordingly the Department has determined that notice and public procedure are unnecessary and contrary to the public interest pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(B). For the same reasons, the Department has determined that this interim rule should be issued without a delayed effective date pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553 (d)(3).

It has been determined that this rulemaking is not a significant regulatory action for the purposes of Executive Order 12866. Accordingly, a regulatory impact analysis is not required.

List of Subjects in 6 CFR Part 5

[Obtain from OFR]

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth above, subpart C of 6 CFR Part 5 is amended as follows:

PART 5 – DISCLOSURE OF RECORDS AND INFORMATION

1. The authority citation for part 5 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 301, Pub. L. 107-296. Subpart A also issued under 5 U.S.C. 552. Subpart B also issued under 5 U.S.C. 552a.

2. Subpart C of 6 CFR Part 5 is amended by adding §§ 5.41 through 5.49 to read as follows:

§ 5.41 Purpose and scope; definitions.

(a) This subpart C sets forth the procedures to be followed with respect to:

(1) Service of summonses and complaints or other requests or demands directed to the Department of Homeland Security (Department) or to any Department employee or former employee in connection with federal or state litigation arising out of or involving the performance of official activities of the Department; and

(2) The oral or written disclosure, in response to subpoenas, orders, or other requests or demands of federal or state judicial or quasi-judicial authority (collectively, "demands"), whether civil or criminal in nature, or in response to requests for depositions, affidavits, admissions, responses to interrogatories, document production, or other litigation-related matters, pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, or applicable state rules (collectively, "requests"), of any material contained in the files of the Department, any information relating to material contained in the files of the Department, or any information acquired while the subject of the demand or request is or was an employee of the Department as part of the performance of that person's duties or by virtue of that person's official status.

(b) Except to the extent an organizational component has adopted separate regulations governing the subject matter of a provision of this subpart, the provisions of this subpart shall apply each organizational component of the Department.

(c) For purposes of this subpart, and except as the Department may otherwise determine in a particular case, the term employee includes the Secretary and former Secretaries of Homeland Security, and all employees and former employees of the Department of Homeland Security or other federal agencies who are or were appointed by, or subject to the supervision, jurisdiction, or control of the Secretary of Homeland Security, whether residing or working in the United States or abroad, including United States nationals, foreign nationals, and contractors.

(d) For purposes of this subpart, the term litigation encompasses all pre-trial, trial, and post-trial stages of all judicial or administrative actions, hearings, investigations, or similar proceedings before courts, commissions, boards (including the Board of Appellate Review), or other judicial or quasi-judicial bodies or tribunals, whether criminal, civil, or administrative in nature. This subpart governs, inter alia, responses to discovery requests, depositions, and other pre-trial, trial, or post-trial proceedings, as well as responses to informal requests by attorneys or others in situations involving litigation. However, this subpart shall not apply to any claims by Department of Homeland Security employees (present or former), or applicants for Department employment, for which jurisdiction resides with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; the U.S. Merit Systems Protection Board; the Office of Special Counsel; the Federal Labor Relations Authority; the Foreign Service Labor Relations Board; the Foreign Service Grievance Board; or a labor arbitrator operating under a collective bargaining agreement between the Department and a labor organization representing Department employees; or their successor agencies or entities.

(e) For purposes of this subpart, official information means all information of any kind, however stored, that is in the custody and control of the Department, relates to information in the custody and control of the Department, or was acquired by Department employees as part of their official duties or because of their official status within the Department while such individuals were employed by or served on behalf of the Department.

national security information (3 CFR, 1995 Comp., p. 333), the Government in the Sunshine Act, 5 U.S.C. 552b, the Department's implementing regulations or pursuant to congressional subpoena. Nothing in this subpart otherwise permits disclosure of information by the Department or its employees except as provided by statute or other applicable law.

(g) This subpart is intended only to inform the public about Department procedures concerning the service of process and responses to demands or requests and is not intended to and does not create, and may not be relied upon to create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law by a party against the Department or the United States.

(h) Nothing in this subpart affects:

(1) The disclosure of information during the course of legal proceedings in non-United States courts, commissions, boards, or other judicial or quasi-judicial bodies or tribunals; or

(2) The rules and procedures, under applicable U.S. law and international conventions, governing diplomatic and consular immunity.

(h) Nothing in this subpart affects the disclosure of official information to other federal agencies or Department of Justice attorneys in connection with litigation conducted on behalf or in defense of the United States, its agencies, officers, and employees, or to federal, state, local, or foreign prosecuting and law enforcement authorities in conjunction with criminal law enforcement investigations, prosecutions, or other proceedings, e.g., extradition, deportation.

§ 5.42 Service of summonses and complaints.

(a) Only the [Designated Office] is authorized to receive and accept summonses or complaints sought to be served upon the Department or Department employees. All such documents should be delivered or addressed to [Designated Office], United States Department of Homeland Security, [Street Address, City, State, Zip Code].

(b) In the event any summons or complaint described in §5.41(a) is delivered to an employee of the Department other than in the manner specified in this part, such attempted service shall be ineffective, and the recipient thereof shall either decline to accept the proffered service or return such document under cover of a written communication which directs the person attempting to make service to the procedures set forth herein.

(c) Except as otherwise provided §§ 5.42(d) and 5.43(c), the Department is not an authorized agent for service of process with respect to civil litigation against Department employees purely in their personal, non-official capacity. Copies of summonses or complaints directed to Department employees in connection with legal proceedings arising out of the performance of official duties may, however, be served upon [the Designated Office].

(d) Although the Department is not an agent for the service of process upon its employees with respect to purely personal, non-official litigation, the Department recognizes that its employees should not use their official positions to evade their personal obligations and will, therefore, counsel and encourage Department employees to accept service of process in appropriate cases.

(e) Documents for which [the Designated Office] accepts service in official capacity only shall be stamped "Service Accepted in Official Capacity Only". Acceptance of service shall not constitute an admission or waiver with respect to jurisdiction, propriety of service, improper venue, or any other defense in law or equity available under the laws of rules applicable for the service of process.

§ 5.43 Service of subpoenas, court orders, and other demands or requests for official information or action.

(a) Except in cases in which the Department is represented by legal counsel who have entered an appearance or otherwise given notice of their representation, only [the Designated Office] is authorized to receive and accept subpoenas, or other demands or requests directed to the Department, or any component thereof, or its employees, or former employees, whether civil or criminal nature, for:

(1) Material, including documents, contained in the files of the Department;

(2) Information, including testimony, affidavits, declarations, admissions, responses to interrogatories, or informal statements, relating to material contained in the files of the Department or which any Department employee acquired in the course and scope of the performance of his official duties;

(3) Garnishment or attachment of compensation of current or former employees; or

(4) The performance or non-performance of any official Department duty.

(b) In the event that any subpoena, demand, or request is sought to be delivered to a Department employee (including former employees) other than in the manner prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section, such attempted service shall be ineffective. Such employee shall, after consultation with the Office of the [General Counsel], decline to accept the subpoena, demand or request or shall return them to the server under cover of a written communication referring to the procedures prescribed in this subpart.

(c) Except as otherwise provided in this subpart, the Department is not an agent for service, or otherwise authorized to accept on behalf of its employees any subpoenas, show-cause orders, or similar compulsory process of federal or state courts, or requests from private individuals or attorneys, which are not related to the employees' official duties except upon the express, written authorization of the individual Department employee to whom such demand or request is directed.

(d) Acceptance of such documents by [the Designated Office] does not constitute a waiver of any defenses that might otherwise exist with respect to service under the Federal Rules of Civil or Criminal Procedure or other applicable rules.

§ 5.44 Testimony and production of documents prohibited unless approved by appropriate Department officials.

(a) No employee of the Department shall, in response to a demand or request in connection with any litigation, whether criminal or civil, provide oral or written testimony by deposition, declaration, affidavit, or otherwise concerning any information acquired while such person is or was an employee of the Department as part of the performance of that person's official duties or by virtue of that person's official status, unless authorized to do so by [the designated official or Office of the General Counsel], or as authorized in § 5.44(b).

(b) No employee shall, in response to a demand or request in connection with any litigation, produce for use at such proceedings any document or any material acquired as part of the performance of that employee's duties or by virtue of that employee's official status, unless authorized to do so by the [the designated official or Office of the General Counsel] or the delegates thereof, as appropriate.

§ 5.45 Procedure when testimony or production of documents is sought; general.

(a) If official Department information is sought, through testimony or otherwise, by a request or demand, the party seeking such release or testimony must (except as otherwise required by federal law or authorized by the [Office of the General Counsel]) set forth in writing, and with as much specificity as possible, the nature and relevance of the official information sought. Where documents or other materials are sought, the party should provide a description using the types of identifying information suggested in [citation to FOIA definition provisions]. Subject to § 5.47, Department employees may only produce, disclose, release, comment upon, or testify concerning those matters which were specified in writing and properly approved by the appropriate Department official designated in § 5.44. See United States ex rel. Touhy v. Ragen, 340 U.S. 462 (1951). The Office of the [General Counsel] may waive this requirement in appropriate circumstances.

(b) To the extent it deems necessary or appropriate, the Department may also require from the party seeking such testimony or documents a plan of all reasonably foreseeable demands, including but not limited to the names of all employees and former employees from whom discovery will be sought, areas of inquiry, expected duration of proceedings requiring oral testimony, and identification of potentially relevant documents.

(c) The appropriate Department official designated in § 5.42 will notify the Department employee and such other persons as circumstances may warrant of its decision regarding compliance with the request or demand.

(d) The Office of the [General Counsel] will consult with the Department of Justice regarding legal representation for Department employees in appropriate cases.

§ 5.3 Requirements for making requests.

(a) How made and addressed. You may make a request for records of the Department by writing directly to the Department component that maintains those records. You may find the Department's "Freedom of Information Act Reference Guide," which is available electronically at the Department's World Wide Web site and is available in paper form as well, helpful in making your request. [NOTE: FOIA Guide must be created and published on web site.] For additional information about the FOIA, you may refer directly to the statute. If you are making a request for records about yourself, see § XX.41(d) for additional requirements. If you are making a request for records about another individual, either a written authorization signed by that individual permitting disclosure of those records to you or proof that that individual is deceased (for example, a copy of a death certificate or an obituary) will help the processing of your request. Your request should be sent to the component's FOIA office at the address listed in appendix XX to part XX. [See attached appendix of current FOIA addresses for all entities coming into DHS; addresses for DHS Headquarters entities must be added] In most cases, your FOIA request should be sent to a component's central FOIA office. (The functions of each component are summarized elsewhere in this title and in the description of the Department and its components in the "United States Government Manual," which is issued annually and is available in most libraries, as well as for sale from the Government Printing Office's Superintendent of Documents. This manual also can be accessed electronically at the Government Printing Office's World Wide Web site (which can be found at http://www.access.gpo.gov/su__docs).) If you cannot determine where within the Department to send your request, you may send it to the NEED ADDRESS FOIA/PA Mail Referral Unit, Department of Homeland Security, Street Address, City, State, Zip Code. That office will forward your request to the component(s) it believes most likely to have the records that you want. Your request will be considered received as of the date it is received by the proper component's FOIA office. For the quickest possible handling, you should mark both your request letter and the envelope "Freedom of Information Act Request."

(b) Description of records sought. You must describe the records that you seek in enough detail to enable Department personnel to locate them with a reasonable amount of effort. Whenever possible, your request should include specific information about each record sought, such as the date, title or name, author, recipient, and subject matter of the record. In addition, if you want records about a court case, you should provide the title of the case, the court in which the case was filed, and the nature of the case. If known, you should include any file designations or descriptions for the records that you want. As a general rule, the more specific you are about the records or type of records that you want, the more likely the Department will be able to locate those records in response to your request. If a component determines that your request does not reasonably describe records, it shall tell you either what additional information is needed or why your request is otherwise insufficient. The component also shall give you an opportunity to discuss your request so that you may modify it to meet the requirements of this section. If your request does not reasonably describe the records you seek, the agency's response to your request may be delayed.

(c) Agreement to pay fees. If you make a FOIA request, it shall be considered an agreement by you to pay all applicable fees charged under § 5.11 up to $ 25.00, unless you seek a waiver of fees. The component responsible for responding to your request ordinarily will confirm this agreement in an acknowledgement letter. When making a request, you may specify a willingness to pay a greater or lesser amount. If you are seeking a waiver of fees you must provide a justification for your fee waiver request in accordance with the requirements of § 5.11(k). If your request for a fee waiver is denied, the component will notify you of that decision and will request an agreement from you to pay fees up to $25, or a greater or lesser amount specified by you. Your request shall not be considered received and further work shall not be done on it until you agree to pay fees. If you do not provide a firm commitment to pay the anticipated fee within the time period specified by the component, the request will be administratively closed.

§ 5.4 Responsibility for responding to requests.

(a) In general. Except as stated in paragraphs (c), (d), and (e) of this section, the component that first receives a request for a record and has possession of that record is the component responsible for responding to the request. In determining which records are responsive to a request, a component ordinarily will include only records in its possession as of the date the component begins its search for them. If any other date is used, the component shall inform the requester of that date.

(b) Authority to grant or deny requests. The head of a component, or the component head's designee, is authorized to grant or deny any request for a record of that component.

(c) Consultations and referrals. When a component receives a request for a record in its possession, it shall determine whether another component, or another agency of the Federal Government, is better able to determine whether the record is exempt from disclosure under the FOIA and, if so, whether it should be disclosed as a matter of administrative discretion. If the receiving component determines that it is best able to process the record in response to the request, then it shall do so. If the receiving component determines that it is not best able to process the record, then it shall either:

(1) Respond to the request regarding that record, after consulting with the component or agency best able to determine whether to disclose it and with any other component or agency that has a substantial interest in it; or

(2) Refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that record to the component best able to determine whether to disclose it, or to another agency that originated the record (but only if that agency is subject to the FOIA). Ordinarily, the component or agency that originated a record will be presumed to be best able to determine whether to disclose it.

(d) Law enforcement information. Whenever a request is made for a record containing information that relates to an investigation of a possible violation of law and was originated by another component or agency, the receiving component shall either refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that information to that other component or agency or consult with that other component or agency.

(e) Classified information. Whenever a request is made for a record containing information that has been classified, or may be appropriate for classification, by another component or agency under Executive Order 12958 or any other executive order concerning the classification of records, the receiving component shall refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that information to the component or agency that classified the information, should consider the information for classification, or has the primary interest in it, as appropriate. Whenever a record contains information that has been derivatively classified by a component because it contains information classified by another component or agency, the component shall refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that information to the component or agency that classified the underlying information.

(f) Notice of referral. Whenever a component refers all or any part of the responsibility for responding to a request to another component or agency, it ordinarily shall notify the requester of the referral and inform the requester of the name of each component or agency to which the request has been referred and of the part of the request that has been referred.

(g) Timing of responses to consultations and referrals. All consultations and referrals will be handled according to the date the FOIA request initially was received by the first component or agency, not any later date.

(h) Agreements regarding consultations and referrals. Components may make agreements with other components or agencies to eliminate the need for consultations or referrals for particular types of records.

§ 5.5 Timing of responses to requests.

(a) In general. Components ordinarily shall respond to requests according to their order of receipt.

(b) Multitrack processing. (1) A component may use two or more processing tracks by distinguishing between simple and more complex requests based on the amount of work and/or time needed to process the request, including through limits based on the number of pages involved. If a component does so, it shall advise requesters in its slower track(s) of the limits of its faster track(s).

(2) A component using multitrack processing may provide requesters in its slower track(s) with an opportunity to limit the scope of their requests in order to qualify for faster processing within the specified limits of the component's faster track(s). A component doing so will contact the requester either by telephone or by letter, whichever is more efficient in each case.

(c) Unusual circumstances. (1) Where the statutory time limits for processing a request cannot be met because of "unusual circumstances," as defined in the FOIA, and the component determines to extend the time limits on that basis, the component shall as soon as practicable notify the requester in writing of the unusual circumstances and of the date by which processing of the request can be expected to be completed. Where the extension is for more than ten working days, the component shall provide the requester with an opportunity either to modify the request so that it may be processed within the time limits or to arrange an alternative time period with the component for processing the request or a modified request.

(2) Where a component reasonably believes that multiple requests submitted by a requester, or by a group of requesters acting in concert, constitute a single request that would otherwise involve unusual circumstances, and the requests involve clearly related matters, they may be aggregated. Multiple requests involving unrelated matters will not be aggregated.

(d) Expedited processing. (1) Requests and appeals will be taken out of order and given expedited treatment whenever it is determined that they involve:

(i) Circumstances in which the lack of expedited treatment could reasonably be expected to pose an imminent threat to the life or physical safety of an individual;

(ii) An urgency to inform the public about an actual or alleged federal government activity, if made by a person primarily engaged in disseminating information;

(iii) The loss of substantial due process rights; or

(iv) A matter of widespread and exceptional media interest in which there exist possible questions about the government's integrity which affect public confidence.

(2) A request for expedited processing may be made at the time of the initial request for records or at any later time. For a prompt determination, a request for expedited processing must be received by the proper component. Requests based on the categories in paragraphs (d)(1)(i), (ii), and (iii) of this section must be submitted to the component that maintains the records requested. Requests based on the category in paragraph (d)(1)(iv) of this section must be submitted to the FILL IN Director of Public Affairs, whose address is: Office of Public Affairs, Department of Homeland Security, Street Address, City, State, Zip Code. A component that receives a request that must be handled by the FILL IN Office of Public Affairs shall forward it immediately to that office by hand-delivery or fax.

(3) A requester who seeks expedited processing must submit a statement, certified to be true and correct to the best of that person's knowledge and belief, explaining in detail the basis for requesting expedited processing. For example, a requester within the category in paragraph (d)(1)(ii) of this section, if not a full-time member of the news media, must establish that he or she is a person whose main professional activity or occupation is information dissemination, though it need not be his or her sole occupation. A requester within the category in paragraph (d)(1)(ii) of this section also must establish a particular urgency to inform the public about the government activity involved in the request, beyond the public's right to know about government activity generally. The formality of certification may be waived as a matter of administrative discretion.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Act, the new Department came into existence on January 24, 2003.

In order to establish procedures to facilitate public interaction with the DHS Office of the Secretary, DHS is issuing an initial series of proposed and interim final regulations.

II. The Interim Final Rule

This interim final rule establishes procedures for the DHS Office of the Secretary necessary to implement the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) and the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a).

The Freedom of Information Act provides for the full disclosure of agency records and information to the public unless that information is exempted under clearly delineated statutory language. The Privacy Act serves to safeguard public interest in informational privacy by delineating the duties and responsibilities of federal agencies that collect, store, and disseminate personal information about individuals. The procedures established here ensure that the Department of Homeland Security fully satisfies its responsibility to the public to disclose departmental information while simultaneously safeguarding individual privacy.

The Privacy Act serves to balance the government's need to maintain information about individuals with the rights of individuals to be protected against unwarranted invasions of their privacy stemming from federal agencies' collection, maintenance, use, and disclosure of personal information about them. Agencies are required to issue regulations outlining the agency's rules and procedures for implementation of the Privacy Act and its provisions in the agency. This includes procedures on how individuals may

(4) Within ten calendar days of its receipt of a request for expedited processing, the proper component shall decide whether to grant it and shall notify the requester of the decision. If a request for expedited treatment is granted, the request shall be given priority and shall be processed as soon as practicable. If a request for expedited processing is denied, any appeal of that decision shall be acted on expeditiously.

§ 5.6 Responses to requests.

(a) Acknowledgements of requests. On receipt of a request, a component ordinarily shall send an acknowledgement letter to the requester which shall confirm the requester's agreement to pay fees under § 5.3(c) and provide an assigned request number for further reference.

(b) Grants of requests. Ordinarily, a component shall have twenty business days from when a request is received to determine whether to grant or deny the request. Once a component makes a determination to grant a request in whole or in part, it shall notify the requester in writing. The component shall inform the requester in the notice of any fee charged under § 5.11 and shall disclose records to the requester promptly on payment of any applicable fee. Records disclosed in part shall be marked or annotated to show the amount of information deleted unless doing so would harm an interest protected by an applicable exemption. The location of the information deleted also shall be indicated on the record, if technically feasible.

(c) Adverse determinations of requests. A component making an adverse determination denying a request in any respect shall notify the requester of that determination in writing. Adverse determinations, or denials of requests, consist of: a determination to withhold any requested record in whole or in part; a determination that a requested record does not exist or cannot be located; a determination that a record is not readily reproducible in the form or format sought by the requester; a determination that what has been requested is not a record subject to the FOIA; a determination on any disputed fee matter, including a denial of a request for a fee waiver; and a denial of a request for expedited treatment. The denial letter shall be signed by the head of the component, or the component head's designee, and shall include:

(1) The name and title or position of the person responsible for the denial;

(2) A brief statement of the reason(s) for the denial, including any FOIA exemption applied by the component in denying the request;

(3) An estimate of the volume of records or information withheld, in number of pages or in some other reasonable form of estimation. This estimate does not need to be provided if the volume is otherwise indicated through deletions on records disclosed in part, or if providing an estimate would harm an interest protected by an applicable exemption; and

(4) A statement that the denial may be appealed under § 5.9(a) and a description of the requirements of § 5.9(a).

§ 5.7 Classified information.

In processing a request for information that is classified under Executive Order 12958 (3 CFR, 1996 Comp., p. 333) or any other executive order, the originating component shall review the information to determine whether it should remain classified. Information determined to no longer require classification shall not be withheld on the basis of Exemption 1 of the FOIA. On receipt of any appeal involving classified information, the FILL IN Office of Information and Privacy shall take appropriate action to ensure compliance with part XX of this title.

§ 5.8 Business information.

(a) In general. Business information obtained by the Department from a submitter will be disclosed under the FOIA only under this section.

(b) Definitions. For purposes of this section:

(1) Business information means commercial or financial information obtained by the Department from a submitter that may be protected from disclosure under Exemption 4 of the FOIA.

(2) Submitter means any person or entity from whom the Department obtains business information, directly or indirectly. The term includes corporations; state, local, and tribal governments; and foreign governments.

(c) Designation of business information. A submitter of business information will use good-faith efforts to designate, by appropriate markings, either at the time of submission or at a reasonable time thereafter, any portions of its submission that it considers to be protected from disclosure under Exemption 4. These designations will expire ten years after the date of the submission unless the submitter requests, and provides justification for, a longer designation period.

(d) Notice to submitters. A component shall provide a submitter with prompt written notice of a FOIA request or administrative appeal that seeks its business information wherever required under paragraph (e) of this section, except as provided in paragraph (h) of this section, in order to give the submitter an opportunity to object to disclosure of any specified portion of that information under paragraph (f) of this section.

The notice shall either describe the business information requested or include copies of the requested records or record portions containing the information. When notification of a voluminous number of submitters is required, notification may be made by posting or publishing the notice in a place reasonably likely to accomplish it.

(e) Where notice is required. Notice shall be given to a submitter wherever:

(1) The information has been designated in good faith by the submitter as information considered protected from disclosure under Exemption 4; or

(2) The component has reason to believe that the information may be protected from disclosure under Exemption 4.

(f) Opportunity to object to disclosure. A component will allow a submitter a reasonable time to respond to the notice described in paragraph (d) of this section and will specify that time period within the notice. If a submitter has any objection to disclosure, it is required to submit a detailed written statement. The statement must specify all grounds for withholding any portion of the information under any exemption of the FOIA and, in the case of Exemption 4, it must show why the information is a trade secret or commercial or financial information that is privileged or confidential. In the event that a submitter fails to respond to the notice within the time specified in it, the submitter will be considered to have no objection to disclosure of the information. Information provided by the submitter that is not received by the component until after its disclosure decision has been made shall not be considered by the component. Information provided by a submitter under this paragraph may itself be subject to disclosure under the FOIA.

(g) Notice of intent to disclose. A component shall consider a submitter's objections and specific grounds for nondisclosure in deciding whether to disclose business information. Whenever a component decides to disclose business information over the objection of a submitter, the component shall give the submitter written notice, which shall include:

(1) A statement of the reason(s) why each of the submitter's disclosure objections was not sustained;

(2) A description of the business information to be disclosed; and

(3) A specified disclosure date, which shall be a reasonable time subsequent to the notice.

(h) Exceptions to notice requirements. The notice requirements of paragraphs (d) and (g) of this section shall not apply if:

(1) The component determines that the information should not be disclosed;

(2) The information lawfully has been published or has been officially made available to the public;

(3) Disclosure of the information is required by statute (other than the FOIA) or by a regulation issued in accordance with the requirements of Executive Order 12600 (3 CFR, 1988 Comp., p. 235); or

(4) The designation made by the submitter under paragraph (c) of this section appears obviously frivolous, except that in such a case the component shall, within a reasonable time prior to a specified disclosure date, give the submitter written notice of any final decision to disclose the information.

(i) Notice of FOIA lawsuit. Whenever a requester files a lawsuit seeking to compel the disclosure of business information, the component shall promptly notify the submitter.

(j) Corresponding notice to requesters. Whenever a component provides a submitter with notice and an opportunity to object to disclosure under paragraph (d) of this section, the component shall also notify the requester(s). Whenever a component notifies a submitter of its intent to disclose requested information under paragraph (g) of this section, the component shall also notify the requester(s). Whenever a submitter files a lawsuit seeking to prevent the disclosure of business information, the component shall notify the requester(s).

§ 5.9 Appeals.

(a) Appeals of adverse determinations. If you are dissatisfied with a component's response to your request, you may appeal an adverse determination denying your request, in any respect, to the FILL IN (note: should not be same office as referenced above in § 5.5(d)(2). This section 5.9 should reference the office reviewing the work of the disclosure office, e.g., Office of Information and Privacy, Department of Homeland Security, Street Address, City, State, Zip Code.). You must make your appeal in writing and it must be received by the FILL IN Office of Information and Privacy within 60 days of the date of the letter denying your request. Your appeal letter may include as much or as little related information as you wish, as long as it clearly identifies the component determination (including the assigned request number, if known) that you are appealing. For the quickest possible handling, you should mark your appeal letter and the envelope "Freedom of Information Act Appeal." FILL IN – need to designate a

DHS official to act on FOIA appeals for DHS: Unless the [Designated Official] directs otherwise, a Director of the Office of Information and Privacy will act on behalf of the [DHS Designated Official] on all appeals under this section, except that:

(1) In the case of an adverse determination by the [DHS Designated Official, e.g., the Deputy Secretary] or the [Designated Official, e.g., an Under Secretary], the [DHS Designated Official, e.g., the Secretary] or the [DSH Designated Official, .e.g., the Secretary's] designee will act on the appeal;

(2) An adverse determination by the [DHS Designated Official, e.g., the Secretary] will be the final action of the Department; and

(3) An appeal ordinarily will not be acted on if the request becomes a matter of FOIA litigation.

(b) Responses to appeals. The decision on your appeal will be made in writing. A decision affirming an adverse determination in whole or in part shall contain a statement of the reason(s) for the affirmance, including any FOIA exemption(s) applied, and will inform you of the FOIA provisions for court review of the decision. If the adverse determination is reversed or modified on appeal, in whole or in part, you will be notified in a written decision and your request will be reprocessed in accordance with that appeal decision.

(c) When appeal is required. If you wish to seek review by a court of any adverse determination, you must first appeal it under this section.

§ 5.10 Preservation of records.

Each component shall preserve all correspondence pertaining to the requests that it receives under this subpart, as well as copies of all requested records, until disposition or destruction is authorized by title 44 of the United States Code or the National Archives and Records Administration's General Records Schedule 14. Records will not be disposed of while they are the subject of a pending request, appeal, or lawsuit under the FOIA.

§ 5.11 Fees.

(a) In general. Components shall charge for processing requests under the FOIA in accordance with paragraph (c) of this section, except where fees are limited under paragraph (d) of this section or where a waiver or reduction of fees is granted under paragraph (k) of this section. A component ordinarily shall collect all applicable fees before sending copies of requested records to a requester. Requesters must pay fees by check or money order made payable to the Treasury of the United States.

(b) Definitions. For purposes of this section:

(1) Commercial use request means a request from or on behalf of a person who seeks information for a use or purpose that furthers his or her commercial, trade, or profit interests, which can include furthering those interests through litigation. Components shall determine, whenever reasonably possible, the use to which a requester will put the requested records. When it appears that the requester will put the records to a commercial use, either because of the nature of the request itself or because a component has reasonable cause to doubt a requester's stated use, the component shall provide the requester a reasonable opportunity to submit further clarification.

(2) Direct costs means those expenses that an agency actually incurs in searching for and duplicating (and, in the case of commercial use requests, reviewing) records to respond to a FOIA request. Direct costs include, for example, the salary of the employee performing the work (the basic rate of pay for the employee, plus 16 percent of that rate to cover benefits) and the cost of operating duplication machinery. Not included in direct costs are overhead expenses such as the costs of space and heating or lighting of the facility in which the records are kept.

(3) Duplication means the making of a copy of a record, or of the information contained in it, necessary to respond to a FOIA request. Copies can take the form of paper, microform, audiovisual materials, or electronic records (for example, magnetic tape or disk), among others. Components shall honor a requester's specified preference of form or format of disclosure if the record is readily reproducible with reasonable efforts in the requested form or format by the office responding to the request.

(4) Educational institution means a preschool, a public or private elementary or secondary school, an institution of undergraduate higher education, an institution of graduate higher education, an institution of professional education, or an institution of vocational education, that operates a program of scholarly research. To be in this category, a requester must show that the request is authorized by and is made under the auspices of a qualifying institution and that the records are not sought for a commercial use but are sought to further scholarly research.

(5) Noncommercial scientific institution means an institution that is not operated on a "commercial" basis, as that term is defined in paragraph (b)(1) of this section, and that is operated solely for the purpose of conducting scientific research the results of which are not intended to promote any particular product or industry. To be in this category, a requester must show that the request is authorized by and is made under the auspices of a qualifying institution and that the records are not sought for a commercial use but are sought to further scientific research.

(6) Representative of the news media, or news media requester, means any person actively gathering news for an entity that is organized and operated to publish or broadcast news to the public. The term "news" means information that is about current events or that would be of current interest to the public. Examples of news media entities include television or radio stations broadcasting to the public at large and publishers of periodicals (but only in those instances where they can qualify as disseminators of "news") who make their products available for purchase or subscription by the general public. For "freelance" journalists to be regarded as working for a news organization, they must demonstrate a solid basis for expecting publication through that organization. A publication contract would be the clearest proof, but components shall also look to the past publication record of a requester in making this determination. To be in this category, a requester must not be seeking the requested records for a commercial use. However, a request for records supporting the news-dissemination function of the requester shall not be considered to be for a commercial use.

(7) Review means the examination of a record located in response to a request in order to determine whether any portion of it is exempt from disclosure. It also includes processing any record for disclosure (for example, doing all that is necessary to redact it and prepare it for disclosure). Review costs are recoverable even if a record ultimately is not disclosed. Review time includes time spent considering any formal objection to disclosure made by a business submitter under § 5.8, but does not include time spent resolving general legal or policy issues regarding the application of exemptions.

request access to information about themselves, request amendment or correction of those records, and request an accounting of disclosures of their records by the Department.

III. Procedural Requirements

This is an interim final rule under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Department requests public comment on this interim final rule. After considering the comments received, the Department will issue a final rule. Because the Department came into existence on January 24, 2003, it is necessary to promptly establish procedures to facilitate the interaction of the public with the Department.

Given the size of the Department of Homeland Security, it is important to establish mechanisms for sharing needed information within and across the various former components and agencies that will be solidified into the larger DHS structure. For the purposes of using the Privacy Act's (b)(1) exemption, which allows for disclosure of information within the agency to officers of the agency on a need to know basis, DHS is to be considered one single entity. Privacy Act information will be shared across all components of DHS under the (b)(1) exemption.

The Homeland Security Act of 2002 and OMB policy require agencies to conduct privacy impact assessments when establishing new privacy systems. The Department is committed to ensuring that appropriate privacy and security measures are in place for all systems, and will conduct privacy impact assessments (PIAs) on all new systems of records and new information systems, as prescribed by law. For the purposes of the requirement to perform PIAs for all DHS regualtions under the DHS Act, this procedural rule does not provide for new substantive rights and thus its impact on privacy is minimal.

(8) Search means the process of looking for and retrieving records or information responsive to a request. It includes page-by-page or line-by-line identification of information within records and also includes reasonable efforts to locate and retrieve information from records maintained in electronic form or format. Components shall ensure that searches are done in the most efficient and least expensive manner reasonably possible. For example, components shall not search line-by-line where duplicating an entire document would be quicker and less expensive.

(c) Fees. In responding to FOIA requests, components shall charge the following fees unless a waiver or reduction of fees has been granted under paragraph (k) of this section:

(1) Search. (i) Subject to paragraph (d) of this section, search fees shall be charged for all requests other than requests made by educational institutions, noncommercial scientific institutions, or representatives of the news media. Components may charge for time spent searching even if they do not locate any responsive record or if they withhold the record(s) located as entirely exempt from disclosure.

(ii) For each quarter hour spent by clerical personnel in searching for and retrieving a requested record, the fee will be $ 4.00. Where a search and retrieval cannot be performed entirely by clerical personnel (for example, where the identification of records within the scope of a request requires the use of professional personnel) the fee will be $ 7.00 for each quarter hour of search time spent by professional personnel. Where the time of managerial personnel is required, the fee will be $ 10.25 for each quarter hour of time spent by those personnel.

(iii) For computer searches of records, requesters will be charged the direct costs of conducting the search, although certain requesters (as provided in paragraph (d)(1) of this section) will be charged no search fee and certain other requesters (as provided in paragraph (d)(3) of this section) will be entitled to the cost equivalent of two hours of manual search time without charge. These direct costs will include the cost of operating a central processing unit for that portion of operating time that is directly attributable to searching for responsive records, as well as the costs of operator/programmer salary apportionable to the search.

(2) Duplication. Duplication fees will be charged to all requesters, subject to the limitations of paragraph (d) of this section. For a paper photocopy of a record (no more than one copy of which need be supplied), the fee will be ten cents per page. For copies produced by computer, such as tapes or printouts, components will charge the direct costs, including operator time, of producing the copy. For other forms of duplication, components will charge the direct costs of that duplication.

(3) Review. Review fees will be charged to requesters who make a commercial use request. Review fees will be charged only for the initial record review (the review done when a component determines whether an exemption applies to a particular record or record portion at the initial request level). No charge will be made for review at the administrative appeal level for an exemption already applied. However, records or record portions withheld under an exemption that is subsequently determined not to apply may be reviewed again to determine whether any other exemption not previously considered applies; the costs of that review are chargeable where it is made necessary by such a change of circumstances. Review fees will be charged at the same rates as those charged for a search under paragraph (c)(1)(ii) of this section.

(d) Limitations on charging fees. (1) No search fee will be charged for requests by educational institutions, noncommercial scientific institutions, or representatives of the news media.

(2) No search fee or review fee will be charged for a quarter-hour period unless more than half of that period is required for search or review.

(3) Except for requesters seeking records for a commercial use, components will provide without charge:

(i) The first 100 pages of duplication (or the cost equivalent); and

(ii) The first two hours of search (or the cost equivalent).

(4) No fee will be charged whenever a total fee calculated under paragraph (c) of this section is $14.00 or less. [NOTE: MUST BE CALCULATED – FOIA prohibits an agency from charging fees when the agency's cost to process the check through the Treasury would exceed the amount of the check. As an example, DOJ's current fee is $14.00. Until the DHS's threshold amount can be calculated by DHS financial personnel, the DHS should be able to use the $14.00 amount.]

(5) The provisions of paragraphs (d) (3) and (d)(4) of this section work together. This means that for requesters other than those seeking records for a commercial use, no fee will be charged unless the cost of search in excess of two hours plus the cost of duplication in excess of 100 pages totals more than $14.00.

(e) Notice of anticipated fees in excess of $25.00. When a component determines or estimates that the fees to be charged under this section will amount to more than $25.00, the component shall notify the requester of the actual or estimated amount of the fees, unless the requester has indicated a willingness to pay fees as high as those anticipated. If only a portion of the fee can be estimated readily, the component shall advise the requester that the estimated fee may be only a portion of the total fee. In cases in which a requester has been notified that actual or estimated fees amount to more than $25.00, the request shall not be considered received and further work shall not be done on it until the requester agrees to pay the anticipated total fee. Any such agreement should be memorialized in writing. A notice under this paragraph will offer the requester an opportunity to discuss the matter with Department personnel in order to reformulate the request to meet the requester's needs at a lower cost.

(f) Charges for other services. Apart from the other provisions of this section, when a component chooses as a matter of administrative discretion to provide a special service (such as certifying that records are true copies or sending them by other than ordinary mail) the direct costs of providing the service ordinarily will be charged.

(g) Charging interest. Components may charge interest on any unpaid bill starting on the 31st day following the date of billing the requester. Interest charges will be assessed at the rate provided in 31 U.S.C. 3717 and will accrue from the date of the billing until payment is received by the component. Components will follow the provisions of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-365, 96 Stat. 1749), as amended, and its administrative procedures, including the use of consumer reporting agencies, collection agencies, and offset.

(h) Aggregating requests. Where a component reasonably believes that a requester or a group of requesters acting together is attempting to divide a request into a series of requests for the purpose of avoiding fees, the component may aggregate those requests and charge accordingly. Components may presume that multiple requests of this type made within a 30-day period have been made in order to avoid fees. Where requests are separated by a longer period, components will aggregate them only where there exists a solid basis for determining that aggregation is warranted under all the circumstances involved. Multiple requests involving unrelated matters will not be aggregated.

(i) Advance payments. (1) For requests other than those described in paragraphs (i)(2) and (3) of this section, a component shall not require the requester to make an advance payment before work is begun or continued on a request. Payment owed for work already completed (such as a prepayment before copies are sent to a requester) is not an advance payment.

(2) Where a component determines or estimates that a total fee to be charged under this section will be more than $250.00, it may require the requester to make an advance payment of an amount up to the amount of the entire anticipated fee before beginning to process the request, except where it receives a satisfactory assurance of full payment from a requester that has a history of prompt payment.

(3) Where a requester has previously failed to pay a properly charged FOIA fee to any component or agency within 30 days of the date of billing, a component may require the requester to pay the full amount due, plus any applicable interest, and to make an advance payment of the full amount of any anticipated fee, before the component begins to process a new request or continues to process a pending request from that requester.

(4) In cases in which a component requires advance payment or payment due under paragraph (i)(2) or (3) of this section, the request shall not be considered received and further work will not be done on it until the required payment is received.

(j) Other statutes specifically providing for fees. The fee schedule of this section does not apply to fees charged under any statute that specifically requires an agency to set and collect fees for particular types of records. Where records responsive to requests are maintained for distribution by agencies operating such statutorily based fee schedule programs, components will inform requesters of the steps for obtaining records from those sources so that they may do so most economically.

(k) Requirements for waiver or reduction of fees. (1) Records responsive to a request will be furnished without charge or at a charge reduced below that established under paragraph (c) of this section where a component determines, based on all available information, that the requester has demonstrated that:

(i) Disclosure of the requested information is in the public interest because it is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the government; and

(ii) Disclosure of the information is not primarily in the commercial interest of the requester.

(2) To determine whether the first fee waiver requirement is met, components will consider the following factors:

(i) The subject of the request: Whether the subject of the requested records concerns "the operations or activities of the government." The subject of the requested records must concern identifiable operations or activities of the federal government, with a connection that is direct and clear, not remote or attenuated.

(ii) The informative value of the information to be disclosed: Whether the disclosure is "likely to contribute" to an understanding of government operations or activities. The disclosable portions of the requested records must be meaningfully informative about government operations or activities in order to be "likely to contribute" to an increased public understanding of those operations or activities. The disclosure of information that already is in the public domain, in either a duplicative or a substantially identical form, would not be as likely to contribute to such understanding where nothing new would be added to the public's understanding.

(iii) The contribution to an understanding of the subject by the public likely to result from disclosure: Whether disclosure of the requested information will contribute to "public understanding." The disclosure must contribute to the understanding of a reasonably broad audience of persons interested in the subject, as opposed to the individual understanding of the requester. A requester's expertise in the subject area and ability and intention to effectively convey information to the public shall be considered. It shall be presumed that a representative of the news media will satisfy this consideration.

(iv) The significance of the contribution to public understanding: Whether the disclosure is likely to contribute "significantly" to public understanding of government operations or activities. The public's understanding of the subject in question, as compared to the level of public understanding existing prior to the disclosure, must be enhanced by the disclosure to a significant extent. Components shall not make value judgments about whether information that would contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the government is "important" enough to be made public.

(3) To determine whether the second fee waiver requirement is met, components will consider the following factors:

(i) The existence and magnitude of a commercial interest: Whether the requester has a commercial interest that would be furthered by the requested disclosure. Components shall consider any commercial interest of the requester (with reference to the definition of "commercial use" in paragraph (b)(1) of this section), or of any person on whose behalf the requester may be acting, that would be furthered by the requested disclosure. Requesters shall be given an opportunity in the administrative process to provide explanatory information regarding this consideration.

(ii) The primary interest in disclosure: Whether any identified commercial interest of the requester is sufficiently large, in comparison with the public interest in disclosure, that disclosure is "primarily in the commercial interest of the requester." A fee waiver or reduction is justified where the public interest standard is satisfied and that public interest is greater in magnitude than that of any identified commercial interest in disclosure. Components ordinarily shall presume that where a news media requester has satisfied the public interest standard, the public interest will be the interest primarily served by disclosure to that requester. Disclosure to data brokers or others who merely compile and market government information for direct economic return shall not be presumed to primarily serve the public interest.

(4) Where only some of the records to be released satisfy the requirements for a waiver of fees, a waiver shall be granted for those records.

(5) Requests for the waiver or reduction of fees should address the factors listed in paragraphs (k)(2) and (3) of this section, insofar as they apply to each request. Components will exercise their discretion to consider the cost-effectiveness of their investment of administrative resources in this decisionmaking process, however, in deciding to grant waivers or reductions of fees.

§ 5.12 Other rights and services.

Nothing in this subpart shall be construed to entitle any person, as of right, to any service or to the disclosure of any record to which such person is not entitled under the FOIA.

Subpart B – Privacy Act

§ 5.20 General provisions.

(a) Purpose and scope. (1) This subpart contains the rules that the Department of Homeland Security (Department) follows under the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a). These rules should be read together with the Privacy Act, which provides additional information about records maintained on individuals. The rules in this subpart apply to all records in systems of records maintained by the Department that are retrieved by an individual's name or personal identifier. They describe the procedures by which individuals may request access to records about themselves, request amendment or correction of those records, and request an accounting of disclosures of those by the Department. In addition, the Department processes all Privacy Act requests for access to records under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) (5 U.S.C. 552), following the rules contained in subpart A of this part, which gives requests the benefit of both statutes.

(2) Except to the extent a component has adopted separate regulations under the Privacy Act, the provisions of this subpart shall apply each component of the Department.

(b) Definitions. As used in this subpart:

(1) Component means each separate bureau, office, board, division, commission, service, or administration of the Department.

(2) Request for access to a record means a request made under Privacy Act subsection (d)(1).

(3) Request for amendment or correction of a record means a request made under Privacy Act subsection (d)(2).

(4) Request for an accounting means a request made under Privacy Act subsection (c)(3).

(5) Requester means an individual who makes a request for access, a request for amendment or correction, or a request for an accounting under the Privacy Act.

(c) Authority to request records for a law enforcement purpose. The head of a component or a designated official, or either's designee, is authorized to make written requests under subsection (b)(7) of the Privacy Act for records maintained by other agencies that are necessary to carry out an authorized law enforcement activity.

(d) Notice on Departmental use of (b)(1) exemption. As a general matter, when applying the (b)(1) exemption for disclosures within an agency on a need to know basis, the Department will consider itself a single entity, meaning that information may be disclosed between components of the Department under the (b)(1) exemption.

Good Cause Exception

The Department's implementation of this rule as an interim rule, with provisions for post-promulgation public comments, is based on the "good cause" exceptions found at 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(3)(B). Implementation of this rule as an interim rule is necessary to ensure privacy protections in the Department of Homeland Security, pursuant to the Privacy Act. It is necessary for these regulations to be implemented concurrently with the establishment of the Department of Homeland Security. Further, this regulation sets forth the procedures that ensure DHS' compliance with the provisions of the Privacy Act. .. Furthermore, this Interim Final Rule generally parallels the procedures currently used by other agencies to implement the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act. Accordingly, the Department finds that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to publish this rule with a prior notice and comment period.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, in accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 605(b)), has reviewed this regulation and, by approving it, certifies that this rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995

This rule will not result in the expenditure by state, local, and tribal governments, in the aggregate, or by the private sector, of $100 million or more in any one year, and it will not significantly or uniquely affect small governments. Therefore, no actions were deemed necessary under the provisions of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995.

(e) Interim Retention of Authorities. As an interim solution, all agencies and components under the Department will retain the necessary authority from their original purpose in order to conduct these necessary activities. This includes the authority to maintain Privacy Act systems of records, and retention of exemption authorities under sections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act, where applicable. This retention of an agency or component's authorities and information practices will remain in effect until this regulation is promulgated as a final rule, or the Department revises all systems of records notices. This retention of authority is necessary to allow components to fulfill their mission and purpose during the transition period of the establishment of the Department.

§ 5.21 Requests for access to records.

(a) How made and addressed. You may make a request for access to a Department of Homeland Security record about yourself by appearing in person or by writing directly to the Department component that maintains the record. Your request should be sent or delivered to the component's Privacy Act office at the address listed in appendix I to this part. In most cases, a component's central Privacy Act office is the place to send a Privacy Act request. For records held by a field office of the U.S. Customs Service, U.S. Secret Service, U.S. Coast Guard, [or any other Department component with field offices], however, you must write directly to that Customs, Secret Service, or Coast Guard field office address, which can be found in most telephone books or by calling the component's central Privacy Act office. (The functions of each component are summarized elsewhere in this title and in the description of the Department and its components in the "United States Government Manual," which is issued annually and is available in most libraries, as well as for sale from the Government Printing Office's Superintendent of Documents. This manual also can be accessed electronically at the Government Printing Office's World Wide Web site (which can be found at http://www.access.gpo.gov/su__docs). Some records are maintained under a government-wide systems of records notice, for example, Official Personnel Files are maintained under the authority of the Office of Personnel Management. In order to access records maintained under a government-wide notice, please send your request to the Privacy Act office of the original department or agency from which the component was transferred to the Department. If you cannot determine where within the Department to send your request, you may send it to the FOIA/PA Mail Referral Unit, Department of Homeland Security, 1800 G Street, NW, 8th floor, Washington, DC, 20504, and that office will forward it to the component(s) it believes most likely to have the records that you seek. For the quickest possible handling, you should mark both your request letter and the envelope "Privacy Act Request."

(b) Description of records sought. You must describe the records that you want in enough detail to enable Department personnel to locate the system of records containing them with a reasonable amount of effort. Whenever possible, your request should describe the records sought, the time periods in which you believe they were compiled, and the name or identifying number of each system of records in which you believe they are kept. The Department publishes notices in the Federal Register that describe its components' systems of records. A description of the Department's systems of records also may be found as part of the "Privacy Act Compilation" published by the National Archives and Records Administration's Office of the Federal Register. This compilation is available in most large reference and university libraries. This compilation also can be accessed electronically at the Government Printing Office's World Wide Web site (which can be found at http://www.access.gpo.gov/su__docs).

(c) Agreement to pay fees. If you make a Privacy Act request for access to records, it shall be considered an agreement by you to pay all applicable fees charged under § 5.29, up to $ 25.00. The component responsible for responding to your request ordinarily shall confirm this agreement in an acknowledgement letter. When making a request, you may specify a willingness to pay a greater or lesser amount.

(d) Verification of identity. When you make a request for access to records about yourself, you must verify your identity. You must state your full name, current address, and date and place of birth. You must sign your request and your signature must either be notarized or submitted by you under 28 U.S.C. 1746, a law that permits statements to be made under penalty of perjury as a substitute for notarization. While no specific form is required, you may obtain forms for this purpose from the FOIA/PA Mail Referral Unit, Department of Homeland Security, 1800 G Street, NW, 8th floor, Washington, DC, 20504. In order to help the identification and location of requested records, you may also, at your option, include your social security number.

(e) Verification of guardianship. When making a request as the parent or guardian of a minor or as the guardian of someone determined by a court to be incompetent, for access to records about that individual, you must establish:

(1) The identity of the individual who is the subject of the record, by stating the name, current address, date and place of birth, and, at your option, the social security number of the individual;

(2) Your own identity, as required in paragraph (d) of this section;

(3) That you are the parent or guardian of that individual, which you may prove by providing a copy of the individual's birth certificate showing your parentage or by providing a court order establishing your guardianship; and

(4) That you are acting on behalf of that individual in making the request.

§ 5.22 Responsibility for responding to requests for access to records.

(a) In general. Except as stated in paragraphs (c), (d), and (e) of this section, the component that first receives a request for access to a record, and has possession of that record, is the component responsible for responding to the request. In determining which records are responsive to a request, a component ordinarily shall include only those records in its possession as of the date the component begins its search for them. If any other date is used, the component shall inform the requester of that date.

(b) Authority to grant or deny requests. The head of a component, or the component head's designee, is authorized to grant or deny any request for access to a record of that component.

(c) Consultations and referrals. When a component receives a request for access to a record in its possession, it shall determine whether another component, or another agency of the Federal Government, is better able to determine whether the record is exempt from access under the Privacy Act. If the receiving component determines that it is best able to process the record in response to the request, then it shall do so. If the receiving component determines that it is not best able to process the record, then it shall either:

(1) Respond to the request regarding that record, after consulting with the component or agency best able to determine whether the record is exempt from access and with any other component or agency that has a substantial interest in it; or

(2) Refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that record to the component best able to determine whether it is exempt from access, or to another agency that originated the record (but only if that agency is subject to the Privacy Act). Ordinarily, the component or agency that originated a record will be presumed to be best able to determine whether it is exempt from access.

(d) Law enforcement information. Whenever a request is made for access to a record containing information that relates to an investigation of a possible violation of law and that was originated by another component or agency, the receiving component shall either refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that information to that other component or agency or shall consult with that other component or agency.

(e) Classified information. Whenever a request is made for access to a record containing information that has been classified by or may be appropriate for classification by another component or agency under Executive Order 12958 or any other executive order concerning the classification of records, the receiving component shall refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that information to the component or agency that classified the information, should consider the information for classification, or has the primary interest in it, as appropriate. Whenever a record contains information that has been derivatively classified by a component because it contains information classified by another component or agency, the component shall refer the responsibility for responding to the request regarding that information to the component or agency that classified the underlying information.

(f) Notice of referral. Whenever a component refers all or any part of the responsibility for responding to a request to another component or agency, it ordinarily shall notify the requester of the referral and inform the requester of the name of each component or agency to which the request has been referred and of the part of the request that has been referred.

(g) Timing of responses to consultations and referrals. All consultations and referrals shall be handled according to the date the Privacy Act access request was initially received by the first component or agency, not any later date.

(h) Agreements regarding consultations and referrals. Components may make agreements with other components or agencies to eliminate the need for consultations or referrals for particular types of records.

§ 5.23 Responses to requests for access to records.

(a) Acknowledgements of requests. On receipt of a request, a component ordinarily shall send an acknowledgement letter to the requester which shall confirm the requester's agreement to pay fees under § XX.41(c) and provide an assigned request number for further reference.

(b) Grants of requests for access. Once a component makes a determination to grant a request for access in whole or in part, it shall notify the requester in writing. The component shall inform the requester in the notice of any fee charged under § XX.49 and shall disclose records to the requester promptly on payment of any applicable fee. If a request is made in person, the component may disclose records to the requester directly, in a manner not unreasonably disruptive of its operations, on payment of any applicable fee and with a written record made of the grant of the request. If a requester is accompanied by another person, the requester shall be required to authorize in writing any discussion of the records in the presence of the other person.

(c) Adverse determinations of requests for access. A component making an adverse determination denying a request for access in any respect shall notify the requester of that determination in writing. Adverse determinations, or denials of requests, consist of: a determination to withhold any requested record in whole or in part; a determination that a requested record does not exist or cannot be located; a determination that what has been requested is not a record subject to the Privacy Act; a determination on any disputed fee matter; and a denial of a request for expedited treatment. The notification letter shall be signed by the head of the component, or the component head's designee, and shall include:

(1) The name and title or position of the person responsible for the denial;

(2) A brief statement of the reason(s) for the denial, including any Privacy Act exemption(s) applied by the component in denying the request; and

(3) A statement that the denial may be appealed under § 5.25(a) and a description of the requirements of § 5.25(a).

§ 5.24 Classified information.

In processing a request for access to a record containing information that is classified under Executive Order 12958 or any other executive order, the originating component shall review the information to determine whether it should remain classified. Information determined to no longer require classification shall not be withheld from a requester on the basis of Exemption (k)(1) of the Privacy Act. On receipt of any appeal involving classified information, the FOIA/Privacy Act Office, Department of Homeland Security, shall take appropriate action to ensure compliance with part ?? of this title.

§ 5.25 Appeals.

(a) Appeals. If you are dissatisfied with a component's response to your request for access to records, you may appeal an adverse determination denying your request in any respect to the FOIA/Privacy Act Office, Department of Homeland Security, 1800 G Street, NW, 8th floor, Washington, DC 20504. You must make your appeal in writing and it must be received by the FOIA/Privacy Act Office within 60 days of the date of the letter denying your request. Your appeal letter may include as much or as little related information as you wish, as long as it clearly identifies the component determination (including the assigned request number, if known) that you are appealing. For the quickest possible handling, you should mark both your appeal letter and the envelope "Privacy Act Appeal." Unless the Designated Official (e.g., the Secretary) directs otherwise, a Director of the FOIA/Privacy Act Office will act on behalf of the Designated Official on all appeals under this section, except that:

(1) In the case of an adverse determination by the Designated Official (e.g., the Deputy Secretary) or the Designated Official (e.g., an Under Secretary), the Designated Official or the Designated Official's designee will act on the appeal;

(2) An adverse determination by the Designated Official will be the final action of the Department; and

(3) An appeal ordinarily will not be acted on if the request becomes a matter of litigation.

(b) Responses to appeals. The decision on your appeal will be made in writing. A decision affirming an adverse determination in whole or in part will include a brief statement of the reason(s) for the affirmance, including any Privacy Act exemption applied, and will inform you of the Privacy Act provisions for court review of the decision. If the adverse determination is reversed or modified on appeal in whole or in part, you will be notified in a written decision and your request will be reprocessed in accordance with that appeal decision.

(c) When appeal is required. If you wish to seek review by a court of any adverse determination or denial of a request, you must first appeal it under this section.

§ 5.26 Requests for amendment or correction of records.

(a) How made and addressed. Unless the record is not subject to amendment or correction as stated in paragraph (f) of this section, you may make a request for amendment or correction of a record of the Department about you by writing directly to the Department component that maintains the record, following the procedures in § XX.41. Your request should identify each particular record in question, state the amendment or correction that you want, and state why you believe that the record is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. You may submit any documentation that you think would be helpful. If you believe that the same record is in more than one system of records, you should state that and address your request to each component that maintains a system of records containing the record.

(b) Component responses. Within ten working days of receiving your request for amendment or correction of records, a component shall send you a written acknowledgment of its receipt of your request, and it shall promptly notify you whether your request is granted or denied. If the component grants your request in whole or in part, it shall describe the amendment or correction made and shall advise you of your right to obtain a copy of the corrected or amended record, in disclosable form. If the component denies your request in whole or in part, it shall send you a letter signed by the head of the component, or the component head's designee, that shall state:

(1) The reason(s) for the denial; and

(2) The procedure for appeal of the denial under paragraph (c) of this section, including the name and business address of the official who will act on your appeal.

(c) Appeals. You may appeal a denial of a request for amendment or correction to the FOIA/Privacy Act Office in the same manner as a denial of a request for access to records (see § 5.25) and the same procedures shall be followed. If your appeal is denied, you shall be advised of your right to file a Statement of Disagreement as described in paragraph (d) of this section and of your right under the Privacy Act for court review of the decision.

Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996

This rule is not a major rule as defined by section 804 of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Act of 1996. This rule will not result in an annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more; a major increase in costs or prices; or significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based companies to compete with foreign-based companies in domestic and export markets.

Executive Order 12866

This rule is not considered by the Department of Homeland Security, a "significant regulatory action" under Executive Order 12866, section 3(f), Regulatory Planning and Review.

Executive Order 13132

This rule will not have substantial direct effects on the States, on the relationship between the National Government and the States, or on the distribution of power and responsibilities among the various levels of government. Therefore, in accordance with section 6 of Executive Order 13132, it is determined that this rule does not have sufficient federalism implications to warrant the preparation of a federalism summary impact statement.

Executive Order 12988 Civil Justice Reform

This rule meets the applicable standards set forth in sections 3(a) and 3(b)(2) of Executive Order 12988

(d) Statements of Disagreement. If your appeal under this section is denied in whole or in part, you have the right to file a Statement of Disagreement that states your reason(s) for disagreeing with the Department's denial of your request for amendment or correction. Statements of Disagreement must be concise, must clearly identify each part of any record that is disputed, and should be no longer than one typed page for each fact disputed. Your Statement of Disagreement must be sent to the component involved, which shall place it in the system of records in which the disputed record is maintained and shall mark the disputed record to indicate that a Statement of Disagreement has been filed and where in the system of records it may be found.

(e) Notification of amendment/correction or disagreement. Within 30 working days of the amendment or correction of a record, the component that maintains the record shall notify all persons, organizations, or agencies to which it previously disclosed the record, if an accounting of that disclosure was made, that the record has been amended or corrected. If an individual has filed a Statement of Disagreement, the component shall append a copy of it to the disputed record whenever the record is disclosed and may also append a concise statement of its reason(s) for denying the request to amend or correct the record.

(f) Records not subject to amendment or correction. The following records are not subject to amendment or correction:

(1) Transcripts of testimony given under oath or written statements made under oath;

(2) Transcripts of grand jury proceedings, judicial proceedings, or quasi-judicial proceedings, which are the official record of those proceedings;

(3) Presentence records that originated with the courts; and

(4) Records in systems of records that have been exempted from amendment and correction under Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a(j) or (k)) by notice published in the Federal Register.

§ 5.27 Requests for an accounting of record disclosures.

(a) How made and addressed. Except where accountings of disclosures are not required to be kept (as stated in paragraph (b) of this section), you may make a request for an accounting of any disclosure that has been made by the Department to another person, organization, or agency of any record about you. This accounting contains the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure, as well as the name and address of the person, organization, or agency to which the disclosure was made. Your request for an accounting should identify each particular record in question and should be made by writing directly to the Department component that maintains the record, following the procedures in § 5.21.

(b) Where accountings are not required. Components are not required to provide accountings to you where they relate to:

(1) Disclosures for which accountings are not required to be kept, such as disclosures that are made to employees within the agency and disclosures that are made under the FOIA;

(2) Disclosures made to law enforcement agencies for authorized law enforcement activities in response to written requests from those law enforcement agencies specifying the law enforcement activities for which the disclosures are sought; or

(3) Disclosures made from law enforcement systems of records that have been exempted from accounting requirements.

(c) Appeals. You may appeal a denial of a request for an accounting to the FOIA/Privacy Act Office in the same manner as a denial of a request for access to records (see § 5.25) and the same procedures will be followed.

§ 5.28 Preservation of records.

Each component will preserve all correspondence pertaining to the requests that it receives under this subpart, as well as copies of all requested records, until disposition or destruction is authorized by title 44 of the United States Code or the National Archives and Records Administration's General Records Schedule 14. Records will not be disposed of while they are the subject of a pending request, appeal, or lawsuit under the Act.

§ 5.29 Fees.

Components shall charge fees for duplication of records under the Privacy Act in the same way in which they charge duplication fees under § 5.11. No search or review fee may be charged for any record unless the record has been exempted from access under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) or (k)(2).

§ 5.30 Notice of court-ordered and emergency disclosures.

(a) Court-ordered disclosures. When a record pertaining to an individual is required to be disclosed by a court order, the component shall make reasonable efforts to provide notice of this to the individual. Notice shall be given within a reasonable time after the component's receipt of the order, except that in a case in which the order is not a matter of public record, the notice shall be given only after the order becomes public.

This notice shall be mailed to the individual's last known address and shall contain a copy of the order and a description of the information disclosed. Notice shall not be given if disclosure is made from a criminal law enforcement system of records that has been exempted from the notice requirement.

(b) Emergency disclosures. Upon disclosing a record pertaining to an individual made under compelling circumstances affecting health or safety, the component shall notify that individual of the disclosure. This notice shall be mailed to the individual's last known address and shall state the nature of the information disclosed; the person, organization, or agency to which it was disclosed; the date of disclosure; and the compelling circumstances justifying the disclosure.

§ 5.31 Security of systems of records.

(a) In general. Each component shall establish administrative and physical controls to prevent unauthorized access to its systems of records, to prevent unauthorized disclosure of records, and to prevent physical damage to or destruction of records. The stringency of these controls shall correspond to the sensitivity of the records that the controls protect. At a minimum, each component's administrative and physical controls shall ensure that:

(1) Records are protected from public view;

(2) The area in which records are kept is supervised during business hours to prevent unauthorized persons from having access to them;

(3) Records are inaccessible to unauthorized persons outside of business hours; and

(4) Records are not disclosed to unauthorized persons or under unauthorized circumstances in either oral or written form.

(b) Procedures required. Each component shall have procedures that restrict access to records to only those individuals within the Department who must have access to those records in order to perform their duties and that prevent inadvertent disclosure of records.

§ 5.32 Contracts for the operation of record systems.

Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(m), any approved contract for the operation of a record system will contain the standard contract requirements issued by the General Services Administration to ensure compliance with the requirements of the Privacy Act for that record system. The contracting component will be responsible for ensuring that the contractor complies with these contract requirements.

§ 5.33 Use and collection of social security numbers.

Each component shall ensure that employees authorized to collect information are aware:

(a) That individuals may not be denied any right, benefit, or privilege as a result of refusing to provide their social security numbers, unless the collection is authorized either by a statute or by a regulation issued prior to 1975; and

(b) That individuals requested to provide their social security numbers must be informed of:

(1) Whether providing social security numbers is mandatory or voluntary;

(2) Any statutory or regulatory authority that authorizes the collection of social security numbers; and

(3) The uses that will be made of the numbers.

§ 5.34 Standards of conduct for administration of the Privacy Act.

Each component will inform its employees of the provisions of the Privacy Act, including the Act's civil liability and criminal penalty provisions. Unless otherwise permitted by law, an employee of the Department shall:

(a) Collect from individuals only the information that is relevant and necessary to discharge the responsibilities of the Department;

(b) Collect information about an individual directly from that individual whenever practicable;

(c) Inform each individual from whom information is collected of:

(1) The legal authority to collect the information and whether providing it is mandatory or voluntary;

(2) The principal purpose for which the Department intends to use the information;

(3) The routine uses the Department may make of the information; and

(4) The effects on the individual, if any, of not providing the information;

(d) Ensure that the component maintains no system of records without public notice and that it notifies appropriate Department officials of the existence or development of any system of records that is not the subject of a current or planned public notice;

(e) Maintain all records that are used by the Department in making any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to ensure fairness to the individual in the determination;

(f) Except as to disclosures made to an agency or made under the FOIA, make reasonable efforts, prior to disseminating any record about an individual, to ensure that the record is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete;

(g) Maintain no record describing how an individual exercises his or her First Amendment rights, unless it is expressly authorized by statute or by the individual about whom the record is maintained, or is pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity;

(h) When required by the Privacy Act, maintain an accounting in the specified form of all disclosures of records by the Department to persons, organizations, or agencies;

(i) Maintain and use records with care to prevent the unauthorized or inadvertent disclosure of a record to anyone.

§ 5.35 Sanctions and penalties.

(a) Civil Penalties. Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1), an individual may bring a civil action and seek damages up to $1,000 against the Department if the Department refused to comply with an individual's request; refuses to amend the individual's record in accordance with his request; fails to maintain a record in a way that has an adverse impact on the individual, or fails to comply with any other provision of the Privacy Act in a way that has an adverse effect on the individual.

(b) Criminal Penalties. Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(1), any officer or employee of the agency, who has access to agency records which contain individually identifiable information the disclosure of which is prohibited by the Privacy Act, and who willing discloses such information to any person or agency not entitled to receive it, or an officer who maintains a system of records without meeting the notice requirements of the Privacy Act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000 in either instance.

§ 5.36 Other rights and services.

Nothing in this subpart shall be construed to entitle any person, as of right, to any service or to the disclosure of any record to which such person is not entitled under the Privacy Act.

Subpart C – Disclosure of Information in Litigation [Reserved]

Appendix A to Part 5 – FOIA Office of the Department of Homeland Security

Subpart A – Freedom of Information Act

§ 5.1 General provisions.

(a) (1) This subpart A contains the rules that the Department of Homeland Security (Department) follows in processing requests for records under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) (5 U.S.C. 552). These rules should be read together with the FOIA, which provides additional information about access to records maintained by the Department. Requests made by individuals for records about themselves under the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a), which are processed under subpart B of this part, are processed under this subpart also. Information routinely provided to the public as part of a regular Department activity (for example, press releases issued by the [FILL IN,

e.g.*, Office of Public Affairs] may be provided to the public without following this subpart. As a matter of policy, the Department makes discretionary disclosures of records or information exempt from disclosure under the FOIA whenever disclosure would not foreseeably harm an interest protected by a FOIA exemption, but this policy does not create any right enforceable in court.

(2) Except to the extent a component has adopted separate regulations under FOIA, the provisions of this subpart shall apply each component of the Department.

(b) As used in this subpart, component means each separate bureau, office, board, division, commission, service, or administration of the Department.

§ 5.2 Public reading rooms.

(a) The Department maintains public reading rooms that contain the records that the FOIA requires to be made regularly available for public inspection and copying. Each Department component is responsible for determining which of the records it generates are required to be made available in this way and for making those records available either in its own reading room or in the Department's central reading room. Each component shall maintain and make available for public inspection and copying a current subject-matter index of its reading room records. Each index shall be updated regularly, at least quarterly, with respect to newly included records.

[DRAFTER'S NOTE: DHS will need to create an electronic public reading room (for all documents post- November 1, 1996, and an actual physical location to house documents (that may be unavailable electronically and created before Nov. 1, 1996) from components such as the Energy Assurance Office, National Disaster

Medical Response System, etc. This assumes that DHS will take custody of all records belonging to entities currently within other Departments.]

(b) The Department maintains public reading rooms or areas at the locations listed below:

(1) Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service Library, 4700 River Road, Riverdale, MD 20737-1232;

(2) Plum Island Animal Disease Center, the APHIS address above or, USDA-ARS, 5601 Sunnyside Avenue, Building 1, Room 2248, Beltsville, MD 20705-5128;

(3) Critical Infrastructure Assurance Office (A former office of the Bureau of Industry and Security) does not maintain a conventional public reading room. Records that are required to be in the public reading room are available electronically at http://www.bis.doc.gov/FOIA/Default.htm;

(4) FIRESTAT (formerly the Integrated Hazard Information System of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration), NOAA Public Reference Facility, 1305 East-West Highway (SSMC4), Room 8627, Silver Spring, MD 20910;

(5) National Communication Service (A former component of the Defense Information Systems Agency) does not maintain a conventional public reading room. Records that are required to be in the public reading room are available electronically at http://disa.mil/gc/foia/foia.html;

(6) The address for each component and program listed below is: U.S. Department of Energy; 1000 Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20585 [Is this going to change to DHS address??]

The e-mail below was the last set of instructions provided to OA. Adam Greenstone then replied with an update on what they were planning to do. Brett responded by asking that a hold be placed on all of this and, to the best of my knowledge, nothing has happened since. No one (myself included) has pushed for a further meeting to hear and resolve Brett's concerns, and I don't believe OA has implemented without Brett's concurrence. I am copying Adam Greenstone on this e-mail to see if this is correct.

Adam: attached please find the final text that Ed McNally, Brett Kavanaugh, and I developed for use with EOP e-mails as we transition to Outlook. Be careful about doing a cut-and-paste from this document, as the redline feature was used in the document, and certain electronic reproduction of a redlined Word document can inadvertently reveal edits or earlier versions.

As for procedure, we have concluded that this footer should be added only to e-mails being sent through the gateway to addresses outside the White House complex.

With respect to other warnings, please proceed with your idea to add a paragraph to the standard OA-62 form and to the logon after the security statement. Please do not arrange for a POSTMASTER message.

If you have any further questions, please don't hesitate to consult us further.

We have not implemented any footer, amended the OA-62, or implemented a splash screen.; We have begun the Outlook implementation (Tim C. coordinated this with David L. around the end of December) and--following coordination with Brett--sent a letter to the Archives advising on them of the resulting elimination of the "non-record" function, and that they should not be disclosing personal records (under the Presidential Records Act) and non-records (that are excluded from FOIA) notwithstanding that they are saved as a matter of incidence.;;;

The e-mail below was the last set of instructions provided to OA.; Adam Greenstone then replied with an update on what they were planning to do.; Brett responded by asking that a hold be placed on all of this and, to the best of my knowledge, nothing has happened since.; No one (myself included) has pushed for a further meeting to hear and resolve Brett's concerns, and I don't believe OA has implemented without Brett's concurrence.; I am copying Adam Greenstone on this e-mail to see if this is correct.

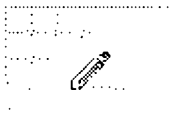
Adam:; attached please find the final text that Ed McNally, Brett Kavanaugh, and I developed for use with EOP e-mails as we transition to Outlook.; Be careful about doing a cut-and-paste from this document, as the redline feature was used in the document, and certain electronic reproduction of a redlined Word document can inadvertently reveal edits or earlier versions.



As for procedure, we have concluded that this footer should be added only to e-mails being sent through the gateway to addresses outside the White House complex.

With respect to other warnings, please proceed with your idea to add a paragraph to the standard OA-62 form and to the logon after the security statement.; Please do not arrange for a POSTMASTER message.

If you have any further questions, please don't hesitate to consult us further.

Coddy,

I have a personal inquiry to make. I don't know if you are able to help on this or point me to a troubleshooter in the INS who may be able to assist me. There is not a whole lot of time to work with.

It basically comes down to this. My cousin who lives in San Diego married a Mexican national who recently had his child. They are having some difficulties with the process to have her enter the United State on a permanent basis. They have to go to the American Counslet in Mexico off the boarder in Texas even though they live in California.

I really hate to bother you with this but family really think I am a big shot in government even though a constantly explain I work for the Party. I really am not sure if anything can be done in such short time but I gave him my word I would try to put in front of people.

Just let me know what you think.

Thanks,
Shane Ostrowski

Below is the email from my cousin, which offers additional information.
Let me start out by telling you thanks for any help that you may provide to us.

For a Mexican national to be petitioned into the U.S., they have to go through a vigorous battery of paper work and money. I have most of all of that done. Once all of that is done, the INS sets up an appointment for the petitioner, to have an interview with an agent. This interview has to take place at the American Counslet in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, just opposite El Paso. Our interview is on the 4th of Feb. Why they couldn't have the interview her in Tijuana, I don't know. Maybe there is a processing center there, your guess is as good as mine. In any case, our interview is on the 4th of Feb. with one of the agents there. If you could help me by having the interview here at the American Counclet in Tijuana, that would be a great help. Maria just having the baby, and the extra expense that would be incurred, would make it that much harder for us. If someone from the American Counselt in Ciudad Juarez, could sent to T.J. or have the interview there, would be a great relief. It would be a lot less stress for the baby and us.

If you have any questions about the case, please don't hesitate to call or a-mail me. My home phone is PRA 6 and my work number is(858) 550-9559.

David-

Thank you so much for your call the other day. I apologize for my delay in getting back to you, but I needed to put some serious thought into what I wanted and needed to do. As you may know, Brian announced he is leaving the office, and we are in a period of uncertainty right now over here as to what will be happening in the office over the next few weeks/months. While I would very, very much like to be considered for a position in the Counsel's Office, I do not feel like now is the time to be leaving Advance. My answer would be different if this situation had not just been presented to us!

Thank you again for thinking of me. I have given Charlotte three excellent candidates for the position- PRA 6 PRA 6 All would compliment the office nicely- extremely hard workers with wonderful attitudes. Please let me know if you would like to speak to me about any of them, and please keep me in mind for a position in the future.

Brett: Ed asked me to forward to you -- at this point, for your review alone -- a draft of the guidance we discussed this morning. Ed is still on the Hill and has not been able to review it in detail, but he has seen an earlier and slightly different version. He is calling you to flag a couple of questions. One further question for you is whether we should say anything in the "request-and-approve" process about classified materials people may want to take over to DHS.
Also, this draft is skimpy on practical guidance on boxing, filing, inventorying, etc. My sense is that there should be a separate Exec Sec-type memo to accompany this, giving all those thoughts. The shorter we keep each memo, the likelier each is to be read -- and followed.

MEMORANDUM TO WHO, OMB AND OTHER STAFF TRANSFERRING TO DHS

FROM: BRETT KAVANAUGH, ASSOCIATE COUNSEL,WHC
PHIL PERRY, GENERAL COUNSEL, OMB
ED McNALLY, GENERAL COUNSEL, OHS

RE: HANDLING OF WH AND TPO MATERIALS UPON TRANSFER TO DHS

This memorandum is designed to provide you with guidance concerning the handling of White House materials and TPO (or other OMB) materials that are in your keeping before you assume your new duties at DHS.

General Rules. White House materials (which means any written, typed, recorded or graphic matter that was originated in or received by a White House entity, including OHS) are subject to the Presidential Records Act. Under that statute, all such materials in your keeping – whether an original or copy – must remain in the possession of the EOP after you transfer over to DHS. This requirement applies whether you are currently employed by a White House entity or by OMB (including TPO). As discussed further below, however, you may, in appropriate circumstances, take with you copies of White House materials that you will need to perform your mission at DHS.

TPO (or other OMB) materials are subject to the Federal Records Act rather than the Presidential Records Act. Nevertheless, in the case of TPO staff transferring over to DHS, any such materials should remain at OMB after your transfer to DHS, rather than being taken with you to DHS. Again, however, these employees may, in appropriate circumstances, take copies of such materials with them to DHS. [Comment: We will need a brief description from OMB/GC of OMB's standard conditions, especially if OMB requires more than "need" to take away copies.] [Should there be a separate OMB/GC memo?]

Transferring TPO personnel who have in their keeping White House materials that have originated in or been received from a White House entity should return those materials to that entity before their transfer. E.g., if you are transferring from TPO to DHS and have received White House materials from an OHS contact, you should return those materials to that contact (if he or she remains at OHS) or to the OHS Executive Secretariat.

Transferring OHS personnel should provide all materials in their keeping to [OHS Exec Sec?] before their transfer. Other transferring EOP personnel should provide all materials in their keeping to [whatever is SOP] before their transfer.

When Copies of Materials May Be Taken to DHS. You are likely to need access in many cases to White House and/or OMB materials that are currently in your keeping after you transfer over to DHS; without such access, you may well be unable to perform your new duties and discharge your new missions efficiently and effectively. To ensure that these compelling DHS needs are served, transferring personnel are authorized to make copies of such needed materials, and to bring those copies with them to DHS, provided that a) they identify the materials, affirm that they are needed for their DHS mission, and request approval to take copies of them; and b) receive the approval of their request from appropriate counsel [after review]. "Appropriate counsel" means OHS counsel in the case where the materials sought originated in OHS; WH counsel in the case in which the materials originated elsewhere in the EOP; and OMB counsel in any case of non-White House materials. A sample request-and-approval form is attached. [1] [Comment: This procedure can be complicated, because a single person would have to categorize the materials correctly and might need three separate sets of sign-offs. An alternative would be to advise OHS or TPO transferees to consult the counsel for their agency -- and for others to consult WHC. The disadvantage here, emphasized by Steve Aitken, is that this approach would have OMB counsel approving the transfer of WH materials.]

Specific Categories of Materials: Specific advice regarding particular categories of materials may be useful.

Typed papers and memoranda. Such documents may well fall into the category of White House materials, even if they are in the keeping of TPO personnel. If they do fall into that category, OHS or WH counsel (as appropriate) should be consulted before any copies of these materials are taken to DHS. If they do not fall into that category, OMB counsel should be consulted.

Copies of such documents may be taken to DHS provided that the general request-and-approval procedure described above is followed. (Originals of such documents must remain at the EOP or at OMB, as appropriate; only copies may be taken away.)

E-Mail Messages. If you are currently in OHS (or another EOP entity), any emails sent from or to your OHS (or EOP) e-mail address are considered White House materials. If you are currently at TPO, any e-mails sent from or to your TPO e-mail address are TPO materials. The same e-mail content may therefore be both a presidential record and an agency record.

Copies of e-mails (whether in typed or electronic form) may be taken to DHS provided that the general request-and-approval procedure described above is followed.

Computer discs, computer files, and computers. Materials on computer discs are usually to be treated like any other kind of materials. Requests to download and take entire computer files to DHS are subject to closer review by counsel. Requests to take computers themselves are [?].

Retrieval of Materials. If you have left materials behind without copying them and discover after your transfer that you need a copy of them for your work at DHS, you will be able to secure a copy. [Describe SOP for EOP, OMB.] Retrieval of material sought will be facilitated if you [describe recommended procedure for boxing, filing, inventorying – or just refer to separate Exec Sec memo for guidance.]

If you have any questions, please contact [].

STATEMENT BY NATIONAL SECURITY ADVISOR DR. CONDOLEEZZA RICE

When the President decided to submit an amicus brief, he asked for my view on how diversity can be best achieved on university campuses. I offered my view, drawing on my experience in academia and as provost of a major university. I agree with the President,s position, which emphasizes the need for diversity and recognizes the continued legacy of racial prejudice, and the need to fight it. The President challenged universities to develop ways to diversify their populations fully. I believe that while race neutral means are preferable, it is appropriate to use race as one factor among others in achieving a diverse student body.

Subject: January 27 meeting request

Pursuant to our telephone conversations, I am writing on behalf of David Sokol, Chairman and CEO of MidAmerican Energy Holdings Company, to request a White House meeting on the afternoon of January 27 to discuss the capital crisis affecting the energy industry. David will be in town that day with Erle Nye, Chairman and CEO of TXU, and M.C. "Skip" McGee, the head of investment banking for Lehman Brothers. I am also scheduling meetings for the three of them with Rep. Billy Tauzin, Sen. Pete Domenici, and DOE Secretary Abraham. Nye will not be available for a White House meeting, but McGee would be able to join Sokol.

Our key messages for the White House meeting (as well as the ones with Tauzin, Domenici and Abraham) are as follows:

1) The industry faces its worst capital crisis in almost 70 years, and Congress is in a unique position to pass legislation addressing these problems.
2) Economic growth will be the number one domestic priority in 2003 for Congress and the Administration.
3) We believe there must be a stimulus effort targeted toward the energy sector, particularly the electricity and natural gas industries. Otherwise, problems in the sector will be a drag on the economy throughout this year and into 2004.
4) This shouldn't be a budget buster, and some of the provisions the industry needs to help solve its own problems don't have any budget impact.
5) However, we can't start to turn the industry around without a pro-investment program that deals with eliminating barriers to investment and provides targeted tax relief for building new infrastructure.

6) These provisions might include: (a) repeal of the outdated Public Utility Holding Company Act (PUHCA) (the SEC has called for its repeal for more than 20 years); (b) bankruptcy reform to facilitate master netting agreements; and (c) targeted tax reductions in areas such as accelerated depreciation for new transmission investments, transmission spin-off, and renewable production tax credits.
7) We and others in the industry are prepared to work closely with the White House on other popular programs, such as increased funding for LIHEAP (Low-Income Heating and Energy Assistance Program) and participation in the Administration's voluntary carbon emissions intensity program, as well as build a long-term consensus on other key energy issues.

These messages are consistent with the views of the Edison Electric Institute (EEI).

I hope this gives you a clear idea of the goals for the meeting. The best time would be after 2:30 p.m., but we can try to move around the schedule to accommodate your needs. Please feel free to e-mail back to me or call any time at the office (202/828-1378) or on my cell PRA 6 Many thanks.

With New York City facing a fiscal crisis and graffiti having returned to the subways, Mayor Mike Bloomberg knows what his priorities are. "Bloomberg is fuming mad over Rolling Stones members smoking on stage at Madison Square Garden during an nationally televised concert this weekend," according to the Drudge Report. "HBO cameras captured band members Keith Richards and Ron Wood smoking cigarettes while performing," Drudge reports:

"The mayor sent cops to issue summonses," one stage source told the Drudge Report late Saturday. "But the cops watched the show, off stage, by a monitor, instead of stopping the concert." . . . "The band raced out of the Garden after they finished their last number, avoiding the police," an insider said. "The music had not even finished playing; and they were in cars already, spinning away. They did not even go to their dressing rooms!"

Ronald Barker of Escondido, Calif., has been convicted of "conspiring with his girlfriend to kill her boss after she slept with the boss on a date, a crime the prosecutor called 'the worst kind of territorial marking,' " reports the San Diego Union-Tribune. Barker, 38, shot David Stevens to death more than three years ago, but the crime went unsolved until the girlfriend, Ny Nourn, now 20, made a videotaped confession to police. Nourn is to go on trial this week; Barker acted as his own lawyer:

Although Barker admitted his role in the killing to police, at trial he said he was tricked into giving a false confession.

"Let me remind you of a statement," Barker told the jury in an effort to demonstrate that police are capable of lying. " 'I did not have sexual relations with that woman.' The man who made that testimony was the highest official in the United States of America."

Speaking of Bill Clinton, London's Guardian <http://www.guardian.co.uk/international/story/0,3604,878219,00.html> reports that Gerhard Schroeder, Germany's chancellor, "was last night said to be seething over a British Sunday newspaper's blatant defiance of a court order issued in Germany forbidding it to repeat claims about his private life." The Mail on Sunday picked up reports that Schroeder was having an extramarital affair; the chancellor argues that the German court's order, based on his country's strict privacy laws, applies throughout the European Union.

Good thing the Europeans are so sophisticated about sex, or this would be a really messy affair.

The Greenhouse Effect--I
<http://www.nytimes.com/2003/01/17/politics/17ASSE.html?pagewanted=all>

Last Wednesday President Bush made a tough speech arguing against racial preferences and announcing that his administration would weigh in on behalf of plaintiffs challenging the University of Michigan's admissions policies in a pair of Supreme Court cases. On Thursday Solicitor General Theodore Olson filed the briefs in the cases of Gratz v. Bollinger (undergraduate) and Grutter v. Bollinger (law school). On Friday the New York Times published a "news analysis" in which Supreme Court reporter Linda Greenhouse claimed that "the reality of [the brief's] legal argument diverged substantially from the rhetoric of the president's prime-time statement." The administration, Greenhouse suggests, pulled a fast one on its conservative supporters.

Well, over the weekend we sat down and read the the Grutter <http://news.findlaw.com/wp/docs/grutter/grutterum11603brf.pdf> <http://news.findlaw.com/wp/docs/grutter/grutterum11603brf.pdf> brief (link in PDF form), and we're pleased to report that the delightfully named Greenhouse is full of hot air.

Here's her argument:

True to [President Bush's] promise, the briefs did ask the court to declare unconstitutional the undergraduate and law school admissions programs in dispute. But it did so by means of a legal analysis that, far from insisting that any consideration of race was impermissible, did not even ask the justices to overturn the Bakke decision, the 1978 landmark ruling that by allowing race to be used as a "plus factor" ushered in a generation of affirmative action in public and private college admissions.

It was as if the administration had filed a brief denouncing abortion without asking the court to overturn Roe v. Wade.

"In the end, this case requires this court to break no new ground" in order to hold the law school's admissions policy unconstitutional, the administration said.

That's the extent of her legal analysis; the rest of the piece consists of speculation about the motives behind the administration's purported two-faced approach to the case.

Greenhouse's analysis is laughable. When the administration says that the case requires the court "to break no new ground," that just means it's basing its argument on existing Supreme Court precedent. And it's true that the administration doesn't ask the court to overturn Bakke <http://caselaw.lp.findlaw.com/scripts/getcase.pl?court=us&vol=438&invol=265> . Indeed, it cites that 1978 case repeatedly in support of its argument. But why would Greenhouse expect otherwise? After all, in Bakke the court came down on the same side the administration is taking now. It struck down the University of California's race-based admissions policy.

Greenhouse doesn't seem to have interviewed any conservative legal activists for this story. If she had, she would have learned that some are indeed disappointed in the brief, because the administration stops short of denying that "diversity" is a "compelling interest" that can justify the use of race in university admissions decisions. Terry Eastland <http://weeklystandard.com/Content/Public/Articles/000/000/002/143mnsrh.asp> is among those making this case.

It turns out, however, that there's less to this conservative complaint than meets the eye.

On page 14 of the brief (page 15 of the PDF document), the administration takes note of the law school's claim that diversity is a compelling interest. Two pages later, the brief declares:

Ensuring that public institutions are open and available to all segments of American society, including people of all races and ethnicities, represents a paramount government objective.

It sounds as if the administration accepts the argument that diversity is a compelling interest. But it's unclear if "ensuring" that institutions are "open and available" is the same as "diversity," and while "paramount government objective" sounds like roughly the same thing as "compelling interest," it's actually an evasion, a phrase devoid of legal meaning, as blogger Josh Chafetz <http://oxblog.blogspot.com/2003_01_12_oxblog_archive.html#87615186> points out in a valuable analysis.

The administration thus takes no position--at least so far--on whether diversity is a compelling interest. Instead, it bases its case against the Michigan admissions policy on two arguments:

1. Even when trying to achieve a "compelling interest," a government agency cannot take race into account unless it does so in a "narrowly tailored" way and--crucially--unless there are no "race-neutral alternatives."

2. Even if the interest is compelling and race-neutral alternatives nonexistent, "quotas" are still unconstitutional. The Michigan plan explicitly seeks to enroll a "critical mass" of students from particular ethnic groups, a quota all but in name. (The university, of course, denies that a "critical mass" is a quota.)

These arguments rest on well-settled Supreme Court precedent, and they ought to be sufficient to strike down the Michigan policy. The administration's conservative critics, however, contend that these arguments are insufficient because they fail to knock down "diversity" as a rationale for racial preferences.

Yet the brief does challenge the idea of diversity, albeit slyly. For Ted Olson has hidden an Easter egg at page 24: "Although respondents [the University of Michigan] have not been clear about what they mean by diversity, we assume that they are not pursuing racial diversity for its own sake." That's actually not true; the University of Michigan brief <http://www.umich.edu/%7Eurel/admissions/legal/grutter/gru-bopcert.html> acknowledges that the policy's aim is "to achieve meaningful racial diversity in its student body." But that admission runs afoul of Justice Lewis Powell's deciding opinion in Bakke, which Olson's brief quotes: "Preferring members of any one group for no reason other than race or ethnic origin is discrimination for its own sake."

The implication is that while diversity of some sort may be a compelling interest (then again, it may not), racial diversity not only is not compelling; it is illegitimate. Thus the only thing the brief concedes--and concedes by omission, not explicitly--is that promoting diversity of something other than race may be a compelling interest that would justify taking race into account (but not using quotas) if there's no race-neutral way of achieving the same goal. To put it more simply, the use of race in university admissions is constitutional (if ever) only if it is the only means to a nonracial end--which seems close to a logical impossibility.

In Bakke, Justice Powell managed to come down on both sides of the diversity question. While he rejected racial diversity "for its own sake," he also maintained that "racial or ethnic origin" was an "important element" of "the diversity that furthers a compelling state interest." It is upon the latter of these logically contradictory propositions that a quarter century of justifications for racial preferences in higher education have been built. That's rather amazing when you consider that these were the views of one man only; not a single other justice joined the portions of Powell's opinion dealing with diversity.

That's why the Bush administration isn't asking the court to "overturn Bakke." On the central issue in question, whether diversity is a compelling interest, there is no precedent to overturn. In any case, Justice Powell's view collapses under the weight of its own illogic. The Supreme Court may not accept every element of the administration's argument, but if it does, conservatives will have won a total victory.

White With Fury
<http://www.boston.com/dailyglobe2/017/oped/The_Great_Demancipator+.shtml>

Boston Globe columnist Derrick Jackson weighs in on the Michigan case:

Bush's effort is so special that this may very well be the first Martin Luther King. Jr. birthday during which the loudest celebrations come not from black churches and integrated downtown breakfasts but from the hallways of segregated suburbia to the romantic enclaves of the Confederacy. Finally for them, this is the day to shout "We Have Overcome." This is the day that a lot of God's white people--Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics--are holding hands and singing in the words of their new spiritual, "Free at last, free at last, thank God almighty, we are free at last!" . . . Lying is all Bush can do now that he has decided to make the White House the national headquarters of the NAACP--the National Association for the Advancement of Caucasian People.

The objections to this are too obvious to enumerate. But there is something slightly daring about the way in which Jackson approaches the issue, for he violates what surely is the first rule of debate over American racial issues: Always seek the moral high ground. Those who argue for preferences and those who argue against them usually cast their argument in terms of grand principles (equality, justice) or of outcomes no one could be against (diversity, opportunity). You're supposed to accuse your opponent of racism; if you harbor racial resentments, you keep them to yourself.

To be sure, these rules don't apply evenly. A white opponent of racial preferences could never write about blacks for the mainstream media the way Jackson, a black proponent of preferences, writes about whites. Such a double standard is entirely understandable, and it's worth noting that it hasn't always been this way. It used to be white racists who expressed their resentment openly, as when Strom Thurmond <http://www.townhall.com/columnists/Armstrongwilliams/aw20021210.shtml> declared, during his 1948 presidential campaign: "All the laws of Washington and all the bayonets of the Army cannot force the Negro into our homes, our schools, our churches."

The civil-rights movement overcame not only the segregationist laws Thurmond was defending but also the attitudes he embodied. Thus hardly anyone defended Trent Lott last month, when he implicitly endorsed Thurmond's 1948 views. Meanwhile, a black columnist for a major newspaper is free to indulge in hate-whitey rhetoric. We don't mean to draw an equivalence between Jackson and Thurmond; while the latter was defending an abominable, oppressive system, the former is more of a crank than a menace. But it's certainly a measure of how much the country has changed.

Duke U: Terrorists Have Rights Too!
<http://www.dukenews.duke.edu/news/newsrelease.asp?id=1333&catid=2&cpg=newsrelease.asp>

A truism about American higher education is that when university officials aren't suppressing free speech, they can usually be found invoking it to deflect criticism. Duke University has officially responded to our Thursday <http://www.opinionjournal.com/best/?id=110002921> item noting that its African and African-American studies program will be providing a forum to terrorist Laura Whitehorn, who bombed the U.S. Capitol in 1983 and subsequently spent 14 years in prison. The statement from Duke flack David Jarmul is oh so predictable:

Duke does not exert control over or pressure its faculty and departments in their selection of campus speakers. One of our nation's greatest values, and one we at Duke celebrate, is the freedom for people to express their thoughts openly. Students, faculty and other members of the Duke community benefit from hearing and debating a wide variety of ideas. We have confidence in the ability of the members of our community to analyze and critique the arguments they hear, an activity that is central to democracy, and to universities in particular.

Duke hosts speakers with a wide array of views. During the week Ms. Whitehorn will appear, for instance, it will also hold campus events on topics ranging from spiritual responses to environmental problems to intellectual property in cyberspace. Some speakers may hold views that others consider too radical or tainted to be provided a forum. Nonetheless, Duke remains committed to the academic freedom that has contributed so much to the traditions and strength of our nation.

Of course, no one is objecting to the "freedom for people to express their thoughts openly." Laura Whitehorn, a felon who has served her time, is entitled to exercise her right to free speech. The issue is whether it is appropriate for a prestigious university to provide a forum to a violent criminal who is, by all accounts, totally unrepentant. Jarmul's statement explains that Whitehorn "was invited to speak about HIV/AIDS in prisons." A worthy topic, no doubt--but couldn't Duke have found someone knowledgeable on the subject who isn't a terrorist?

We have won a small victory. The African and African-American studies program has changed its description of Whitehorn in its announcement <http://www.duke.edu/web/africanameric/specevents.html#Mar3> of her appearance. Originally, as we noted, it described her as having been a "political prisoner." The new version tells the truth: "Laura Whitehorn spent more than 14 years in federal prison for her role in planting a bomb in the U.S. Capitol building in 1983."

We hadn't made the connection until a reader reminded us, but one of Whitehorn's partners in crime, Linda Sue Evans, was among the recipients of 11th-hour clemency from Bill Clinton. "I'm not repentant, that's for sure," she remarked after winning her freedom, as we noted in April 2001 <http://www.opinionjournal.com/best/?id=90000405#evans> . Evans printed fake IDs that enabled the bombers to buy explosives. As far as we know, she has not yet been invited to speak at Duke--a mere oversight, we're sure.

<http://www.scrappleface.com/MT/archives/000601.html#000601> 289 Million Americans Back War

Saturday was a big day for those of us who favor the liberation of Iraq. "Anti-anti-war demonstrators gathered in grocery stores, shopping malls and private homes to proclaim their disagreement with protestors marching in the streets of Washington D.C. and San Francisco," ScrappleFace.com reports. "Police across the nation estimate the crowd that avoided [Saturday's] anti-war demonstrations at about 289 million."

No disturbances were reported. "It was a normal Saturday in America," one law-enforcement officer tells ScrappleFace.

The liberal media, however, chose to cover the tiny pro-Saddam demonstrations instead. According to the Washington Post <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A12060-2003Jan18.html> , turnout at the Washington rally, sponsored by the communist front group International Answer <http://www.internationalanswer.org/> , was somewhere between 30,000 and 500,000. Even if you accept the implausible estimate of half a million, that's still a mere 1/578th of the turnout for the pro-war demonstrations--surely within the margin of error, meaning that it's statistically possible no one showed up to the "antiwar" rallies.

Even so, according to Reuters <http://www.reuters.com/newsArticle.jhtml?type=topNews&storyID=2068566> , "President Saddam Hussein hailed worldwide anti-war demonstrations on Saturday and said the protests showed that Iraq had international support for standing up to the United States."

"America's Ultra-Secret Weapon," reads the headline of a Time magazine article. We won't describe the weapon in question--after all, it's a secret--but it seems to us this is a big embarrassment for Time magazine. If the weapon is still a secret even after Time magazine has published an article about it, that means no one reads Time magazine. Then again, maybe it's not such an embarrassment. If no one reads Time magazine, then no one will see this article.

Reuters reports that the U.N. Human Rights Commission has elected a new chairman--Najat al-Hajjaji of Libya. That's right, Libya, a country still subject to U.N. sanctions because it blew up an American commercial plane back in 1988. Normally the chairmanship rotates among the world's regions; Africa's turn was up, and its delegates settled on Libya. In an unusual move, the U.S. forced a vote, which came out 33-3 in favor of Libya, with 17 abstentions. (The ballot was secret, but three cheers for Canada, which announced beforehand it would vote with America.) As America's Ambassador Kevin Moley said, "This is not a defeat for the United States, this is a defeat for the Human Rights Commission."

An earlier Reuters dispatch <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A14413-2003Jan19.html> reported that "Asian and Middle Eastern states are increasingly opposed to the singling out of states for criticism" by the commission. Does this mean no more ritual denunciations of Israel? Don't hold your breath.

In response to the Post editorial, the Fred Hiatt op-ed in the Post Sunday, and some other quotes, I think it might be useful for you to author a short op-ed that would explain, among other things, that the Texas plan is not only successful and innovative, but also is plainly constitutional, even if motivated simply to ensure that sufficient minorities have access to and are represented in the university system. The reason why it is obviously constitutional is simple: Justices from Brennan in Bakke to Scalia in Croson have recognized that the government may employ race-neutral means such as the Texas plan for the specific purpose of remedying the effects of past societal discrimination (not just identified discrimination) against African-Americans, American Indians, Hispanics, and others. I think this point needs to be stated publicly and succinctly, and I am confident that the Post would run an op-ed by you on this as a "Taking Exception" piece. Let me know what you think.

This is a draft (with a few tweaks to reflect a comment Noel made to me). To be discussed at your convenience, both on specifics and the broader question whether something like this is a good idea.

DRAFT (1/21/03)

Last week, President Bush reiterated his strong and long-standing commitment to educational admissions programs that remedy the effects of past discrimination and ensure that African-Americans, Hispanics, Asian-Americans, and Native Americans have access to and are represented in American universities (a result often described as diversity). He also stated that the appropriate way to remedy such past societal discrimination and ensure minority access and representation is a race-neutral admissions program that does not treat individual applicants differently solely because of their race. The President cited the Texas plan (which guarantees state university admission to the top 10% of all state high-school classes) as an example of a program that results in minority access to and representation in institutions of higher education while also maintaining the basic constitutional principle that, absent a compelling justification, all Americans should be treated equally and without regard to race.

In response to the President,s statement last week, some have questioned whether race-neutral programs will work. Others have questioned whether there is a meaningful constitutional distinction between race-based programs (such as the critical-mass and bonus-point quota systems employed by the University of Michigan) and race-neutral programs such as the Texas plan.

These two questions are critically important, yet the answers are straightforward. Race-neutral programs to remedy past societal discrimination will work and, indeed, have worked in states such as Texas, Florida, and California. And such race-neutral programs are plainly constitutional under existing Supreme Court precedent.

First, the Texas plan, like similar plans instituted in Florida and California, demonstrates convincingly that race-neutral programs to remedy past discrimination will result in minority access to and representation in institutions of higher education. In Texas, 1996 was the last year that race was used as an admissions criterion. At the time, 4% of enrolled freshmen were African-American, 14% were Hispanic, and less than 1% were Native Americans. In 2002, under the new race-neutral program, 3% were African-American (the number has been between 3% and 4% since 1997), 14% were Hispanic, and less than 1% were Native American. Since Florida adopted its Talented Twenty program (which guarantees admission to the top 20% of all state high-school classes), the Florida state university system similarly has maintained or increased the number of enrolled minorities. And in California, the same kind of result has occurred. In 1997, the last year that race was a factor in admissions, African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students were 3.7%, 14.3%, and 0.8% of the freshmen classes. In 2002, these figures were 3.3%, 16.6%, and 0.7%. As demonstrated by these results in three of America,s largest States, race-neutral programs to remedy past discrimination can and will result in minority access to and representation in American universities.

Second, as the Supreme Court has repeatedly recognized, the Constitution permits and prefers efficacious race-neutral programs as a means to remedy the effects of past societal discrimination and ensure minority access to and representation in fields such as higher education, employment, and contracting. All of the Justices have agreed that race-neutral programs must be at least the primary means employed to achieve this objective (the Justices have disagreed, of course, about whether, for what purposes, and under what circumstances race can be considered if race-neutral programs are not efficacious).

The Justices have expressly recognized, moreover, that race-neutral programs designed to remedy the effects of past societal discrimination are constitutional. In a 1989 case involving minority businesses, Justice O,Connor, joined by the Chief Justice, Justice White, and Justice Kennedy, wrote that the government had &at its disposal a whole array of race-neutral devices to increase the accessibility of city contracting entrepreneurs of all races8 and &to increase the opportunities available to minority business without classifying individuals on the basis of race.8 In that same case, Justice Scalia added: &A State can, of course, act to undo the effects of past discrimination in many permissible ways that do not involve classification by race. In the particular field of state contracting, for example, it may adopt a preference for small businesses, or even for new businesses . . . . Such programs may well have racially disproportionate impact, but they are not based on race.8 And Justices Brennan, White, Marshall, and Blackmun concluded in the 1978 Bakke case that admissions programs expressly designed to remedy past discrimination and ensure minority access to and representation in universities were constitutional. In short, Justices with varying constitutional approaches have expressly agreed on one core point: Race-neutral programs to remedy past societal discrimination and thereby ensure minority access and representation are plainly constitutional.

In sum, President Bush has charted a principled course in which government can and should remedy the effects of past societal discrimination in a race-neutral way. His approach will both ensure minority access and representation and uphold the basic constitutional principle that all Americans should be treated equally.

Thanks for copying us on the OMB draft, Kimberly. And you ask a fair question. I'll look at how the language interacts between the two drafts, as Lucy has rightly suggested. But given the very distinct and separate statuses of the WHO and the OMB, my inclination follows that of Phil's memo yesterday and David's today, which is that each entity receive separate and office-specific advice. That reflects the decision by WHCO and OMB GC in July when TPO was launched, and I don't see why that would be reversed.

In response to the President,s statement last week, some have questioned whether race-neutral programs will work.; Others have questioned whether there is a meaningful constitutional distinction between race-based programs (such as the critical-mass and bonus-point quota systems employed by the University of Michigan) and race-neutral programs such as the Texas plan.;

These two questions are critically important, yet the answers are straightforward.; Race-neutral programs to remedy past societal discrimination will work and, indeed, have worked in states such as Texas, Florida, and California.; And such race-neutral programs are plainly constitutional under existing Supreme Court precedent.

First, the Texas plan, like similar plans instituted in Florida and California, demonstrates convincingly that race-neutral programs to remedy past discrimination will result in minority access to and representation in institutions of higher education.; In Texas, 1996 was the last year that race was used as an admissions criterion.; At the time, 4% of enrolled freshmen were African-American, 14% were Hispanic, and less than 1% were Native Americans.; In 2002, under the new race-neutral program, 3% were African-American (the number has been between 3% and 4% since 1997), 14% were Hispanic, and less than 1% were Native American.; Since Florida adopted its Talented Twenty program (which guarantees admission to the top 20% of all state high-school classes), the Florida state university system similarly has maintained or increased the number of enrolled minorities.; And in California, the same kind of result has occurred.; In 1997, the last year that race was a factor in admissions, African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students were 3.7%, 14.3%, and 0.8% of the freshmen classes.; In 2002, these figures were 3.3%, 16.6%, and 0.7%.; As demonstrated by these results in three of America,s largest States, race-neutral programs to remedy past discrimination can and will result in minority access to and representation in American universities.;

Second, as the Supreme Court has repeatedly recognized, the Constitution permits and prefers efficacious race-neutral programs as a means to remedy the effects of past societal discrimination and ensure minority access to and representation in fields such as higher education, employment, and contracting.; All of the Justices have agreed that race-neutral programs must be at least the primary means employed to achieve this objective (the Justices have disagreed, of course, about whether, for what purposes, and under what circumstances race can be considered if race-neutral programs are not efficacious).;

The Justices have expressly recognized, moreover, that race-neutral programs designed to remedy the effects of past societal discrimination are constitutional.; In a 1989 case involving minority businesses, Justice O,Connor, joined by the Chief Justice, Justice White, and Justice Kennedy, wrote that the government had &at its disposal a whole array of race-neutral devices to increase the accessibility of city contracting entrepreneurs of all races8 and &to increase the opportunities available to minority business without classifying individuals on the basis of race.8; In that same case, Justice Scalia added:; &A State can, of course, act to undo the effects of past discrimination in many permissible ways that do not involve classification by race.; In the particular field of state contracting, for example, it may adopt a preference for small businesses, or even for new businesses . . . .;; Such programs may well have racially disproportionate impact, but they are not based on race.8; And Justices Brennan, White, Marshall, and Blackmun concluded in the 1978 Bakke case that admissions programs expressly designed to remedy past discrimination and ensure minority access to and representation in universities were constitutional.; In short, Justices with varying constitutional approaches have expressly agreed on one core point:; Race-neutral programs to remedy past societal discrimination and thereby ensure minority access and representation are plainly constitutional.

In sum, President Bush has charted a principled course in which government can and should remedy the effects of past societal discrimination in a race-neutral way.; His approach will both ensure minority access and representation and uphold the basic constitutional principle that all Americans should be treated equally.

Attached for your review and final edits is a revised version of the draft WHCO memo to WHO staff (again pls note it is not directed to OMB staff) regarding Presidential records possessed by WHO staff who are transferring to the new DHS. It incorporates today's comments and edits by Phil Perry, John Wood, Lucy Clark, and Brett Kavanaugh (including, e.g., the considered and then re-considered deletion of another condensed version of the PRA definitions set forth in the definitive WHCO memo of February 2001).

This memo should be signed as soon as possible tomorrow Thursday. At this point, pls make any remaining edits in the form of blue-line revisions to the att'd document, and transmit them directly to OHS Assoc. Counsel Faisal Gill by 10:00 a.m. Thursday.

It is our understanding that Phil Perry's draft for the (somewhat parallel) OMB docs memo will also be issued tomorrow.

MEMORANDUM FOR OHS AND OTHER WHO STAFF TRANSFERRING TO DHS

FROM: ALBERTO R. GONZALES, COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: HANDLING OF PRESIDENTIAL RECORDS

This memorandum provides guidance concerning the handling of Presidential records by OHS and all other White House Office (WHO) staff transferring to the new Department of Homeland Security (DHS). By way of background, please note my Feb. 26, 2001 memo concerning the Presidential Records Act (PRA), a copy of which is in the White House Staff Manual, as well as the July 26, 2002 memo regarding White House materials made available to the DHS Transition Planning Office (TPO) within OMB.

General Rules. White House documents are generally subject to the Presidential Records Act. Under that statute, all materials in your keeping that qualify as Presidential records (which generally excludes notes and copies), must remain in the possession of the Executive Office of the President (EOP) when you transfer over to DHS. However, you may, in appropriate circumstances, take with you copies of certain Presidential records (including copies of computer disks or e-mails) that you will need to perform your mission at DHS, but you must first receive approval from counsel.

Generally, counsel will not approve requests for wholesale copying of e-mails or other electronic records. Instead, each employee should make a determination of individual such items that are in fact necessary to perform the mission of DHS and request approval to take copies of those particular items only.

Transferring WHO personnel should provide all Presidential records in their keeping to the White House Office of Records Management (ORM) as soon as possible. Therefore, attached are copies of ORM's instructions on preparing your materials for storage, as well ~~as ORM's~~as ORM's check out form. (Please note that the disposition of OMB records, including TPO records, will be addressed in a related memo from OMB.)

Retrieval of Materials. If you have left materials behind without copying them and discover after your transfer that you need a copy of them for your work at DHS, you will be able to secure a copy by contacting ORM. Retrieval of material sought will be facilitated if you follow the guidance in the attached ORM materials. If you have any questions, please contact ORM at 6-2242 (www.eop.gov/ORM). For questions or for approval from counsel for taking copies with you, please contact Faisal Gill for OHS, John Bellinger for NSC, or Brett Kavanaugh for WHO generally.

Brett,

Good talking to you today. I can't tell you how impressed we've all been lately with the President's agenda on tort reform and the courts. Best of luck with all your efforts.

Our president, Lawrence (Larry) Mone, would like to come into the White House to talk to you (and anyone else you think should be in the meeting) regarding tort reform. The dates he has available are January 22nd, 28th, 31st, or February 4th. Let me know which of these dates works for you and I'll lock it in.

If none of these dates are available, give me a few alternates from your calendar and I'll work from those instead.

Best,

Paul:

I don't plan to come to the meeting, but I thought I'd give you my thoughts:

1. As a general proposition, the ability of the United States to obtain foreign government information on a promise of confidentiality and to keep it confidential is a very high priority U.S. interest. (Judge Friedman's opinion acknowledged that the U.S. obtained the documents at issue from Chile on a promise of confidentiality. I have not, of course, seen the actual documents at issue here.)

2. Information obtained in confidence from a foreign government usually can be properly classified under Executive Order 12958 (which would bring them within the scope of FOIA exemption (b)(1) -- which I would bet the court would uphold, having noted Judge Friedman's comments that indicate he understands why the U.S. Government needs the ability to keep confidential information it receives on a promise of confidentiality from a foreign government).

3. Judge Friedman's rejection of FOIA exemption (b)(5) as a basis for withholding seems to me like it is on fairly strong ground -- appealing the (b)(5) decision to the DC Circuit poses a substantial risk of a damaging affirmance on the (b)(5) rejection.

4. The DC Circuit has decent law on coming in with a last-minute FOIA (b)(1) classification claim after a different exemption has been considered and rejected -- they don't like it, of course, but they allow it.

5. Do we know why USTR resists classification of the documents? One possibility is that the documents are not classifiable -- that seems unlikely. Another possibility is that USTR either has shown, or wants to be able to show, the documents to its advisory groups, which may include people who do not have clearances -- this is solvable. Also, I think the E.O. recognizes a concept of providing protection commensurate with that afforded by the foreign government, and I think there is decent case law on the point that the Government does not "waive" classification when it shows classified documents to some people for official purposes.

6. In short, without knowing any more than what is in Judge Friedman's opinion, it strikes me that the best way out of this is to classify the documents (assuming they are classifiable), claim (b)(1), and move to reconsider on (b)(1) grounds before Judge Friedman, being very sheepish about it and citing the DC last-minute-national-security cases. If there is absolutely no way that a (b)(1) claim can lawfully be made, then perhaps we need to bite the bullet now -- it strikes me as very unlikely that you would get a reversal in the DC Circuit of Judge Friedman's decision on the (b)(5) claim.

7. Let me emphasize that my key concern is with the principle that the U.S., in its dealings with foreign governments, needs the ability to promise and deliver confidentiality. I rely on you fellows who know the details of the case, and know best how to litigate, to get to that objective.

Is this potential letter to the editor worth floating to the Judge? I'm not sure I've got the last sentence where I would want it to be, but I'd appreciate your thoughts on the whole thing so we can seize the moment if people think it's advisable.

I am privileged to serve as Deputy Counsel to the President under White House Counsel Alberto R. Gonzales. Robert Novak's recent column concerning Judge Gonzales's purported actions in connection with the Michigan affirmative action case – in addition to being factually inaccurate in ways that we are not ethically at liberty to specify – misses a fundamental point about the nature of our duties. Like most lawyers involved in litigation, we represent a client; in our case, we are honored to serve the President of the United States. Our only "agenda" as we perform our duties is to serve the interests of that client within the bounds of the law. For Mr. Novak to suggest that Judge Gonzales "succeeded in weakening" the government's position, "diluted Bush's position on racial quotas," or should be "blamed" for what Mr. Novak thinks is a "political misstep by the president" does a disservice to both Judge Gonzales and the President. Judge Gonzales is no doubt a key adviser to the President on legal issues, but all of us who are privileged to work in the White House are quite clear – as Mr. Novak apparently is not – that only one man makes the final calls on issues of this magnitude.

GENERAL COUNSEL ORGANIZATION

1. Purpose

This directive provides information about the organization of the Department of Homeland Security, Office of General Counsel (OGC)

2. Scope

This directive applies to the DHS OGC.

3. Authorities

The Homeland Security Act of 2002, codified in Title 6, US Code.

4. Responsibilities

A. General: The Office of General Counsel (OGC) is responsible for all legal activities within DHS, to ensure full implementation of DHS' statutory responsibilities and all policies set forth by the Secretary and all officials of DHS. All DHS sub-unit and agency legal offices report up to the DHS Office of General Counsel. OGC provides legal counsel for all DHS offices except those specifically excluded by regulation or directive. OGC develops plans, policies, and operating methods and represents the agency and determines its position in order to provide effective legal services dealing with claims, protests, litigation, alternative dispute resolution and representation of DHS in all legal forums. OGC drafts legislation proposed by DHS officials and furnishes legal advice in connection with reports on legislation proposed by other Federal agencies. OGC develops, implements and coordinates DHS' ethics program for current and former DHS employees. OGC provides legal services to Boards and Commissions for which DHS provides administrative support. Enclosure (1) is an Organizational Chart for the OGC.

B. General Counsel. The General Counsel is the chief legal advisor of the Department. He or she determines the policy and directs the actions of the Office of General Counsel, the Offices of Regional Counsel and other DHS legal offices.

1. Plans, directs and executes all legal activities within the DHS nationwide to ensure full and legally sound implementation of DHS' statutory responsibilities.

full and legally sound implementation of the Science and Technology Directorate's statutory responsibilities. Assures proper legal and policy support for the mission of the Science and Technology Directorate.

2. Serves as the chief legal advisor to the Under Secretary for Science and Technology, and other S&T senior agency officials in developing and issuing S&T policies and GENERAL COUNSEL regulations.

LEGAL ADVISOR
Bureau of Citizenshi
Immigration Service

3. Provides overall guidance and direction to all components of the S&T Directorate. Directs and DEPUTY GENERAL COUNSEL coordinates the conduct of legal and policy assistance activities within the S&T field jurisdictions.

4. Consults with and advises the General Counsel, other Associate General Counsels, Regional Counsels and other legal offices in the Department on legal matters in assigned areas of responsibility.

5. Monitors Division workloads and resources, making adjustments as necessary. Makes recommendations on resource acquisition, development and allocation to the General Counsel.

6. Provides litigation support to the Department of Justice attorneys and offices of United States Attorneys (with assistance from other elements of the OGC and other agencies) in representation of the Government's interest in court in assigned areas of responsibility.

7. Implements the policies of the General Counsel and provides overall management direction for the S&T Law Division. When requested, represents the General Counsel and/or the OGC with senior DHS management, other Federal agencies, business representatives and others in interpreting OGC or S&T programs, policies and objectives.

M. Questions or Concerns: Any questions or concerns regarding this directive should be addressed to the General Counsel.

Enclosure 1

ASSOCIATE GENERAL COUNSEL EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

ASSOCIATE GENERAL COUNSEL RULES AND ADMINISTRATION

ASSOCIATE GENERAL COUNSEL SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY

ASSOCIATE GENERAL COUNSEL TRANSPORTATION SECURITY

ASSOCIATE GENERAL COUNSEL INFRASTRUCTURE PROTECTION

ASSOCIATE GENERAL COUNSEL BORDER & TRANSPORTATION

LEGAL ADVISOR for I

Assures proper legal and policy support for the missions of DHS.

2. Serves as the chief legal advisor to the Secretary, the Deputy Secretary, and other senior agency officials in developing issuing DHS policies and regulations.

3. Provides overall guidance and direction to all components of the OGC. Directs and coordinates the conduct of legal and policy assistance activities within DHS field jurisdictions and establishes reporting relationships of subordinate legal offices in the Department. Issues directives and instructions to govern execution of the functions of these offices and evaluates their performance by review and inspection.

C. Deputy General Counsel. Assists the General Counsel in the execution of the functions of the Office of General Counsel and acts in the capacity of the General Counsel in the event of absence or vacancy. Performs other delegated and assigned duties.

D. Administrative Support Staff.

1. Provides administrative assistance and support to the General Counsel, Associate General Counsels, Legal Advisors, and Regional Counsels in development and/or execution of staffing plans; employee development programs; hiring and other personnel actions; acquisition, allocation and management of space, equipment and other property; and law office automation programs.

2. Provides administrative assistance and support to the General Counsel, Associate General Counsels and Regional Counsels in formulation and execution of the Office of General Counsel's operating budget, including analysis of budgetary needs. Monitors expenditures to ensure they are within funding limitations and other budget constraints.

3. Provides such additional administrative support to the Office of General Counsel as may be required by the General Counsel.

E. Associate General Counsel for Border and Transportation Security (BTS). As head of the BTS Law Division, plans, develops, and coordinates legal services and advice pertaining to the Border and Transportation Security Directorate:

1. In consultation with the General Counsel, plans, directs and executes all legal activities within the BTS nationwide to ensure full and legally sound implementation of BTS' statutory responsibilities. Assures proper legal and policy support for the varied mission of BTS.

2. Serves as the chief legal advisor to the Under Secretary for Border and Transportation Security, and other BTS senior agency officials in developing and issuing BTS policies and regulations.

3. Provides overall guidance and direction to all components of the BTS. Directs and coordinates the conduct of legal and policy assistance activities within BTS field jurisdictions through Offices of Regional Counsel.

4. Provides legal advice and guidance on all BTS matters with international law implications and coordinates with attorneys from the Department of State, as necessary.

5. Consults with and advises the General Counsel, other Associate General Counsels, Regional Counsels and other legal offices in the Department on legal matters in assigned areas of responsibility.

6. Monitors Division workloads and resources, making adjustments as necessary. Makes recommendations on resource acquisition, development and allocation to the General Counsel.

MEMORANDA OF UNDERSTANDING (MOU) AND MEMORANDA OF AGREEMENT (MOA)

1. Purpose

This directive establishes the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) procedures for entering into Memoranda of Understanding (MOU's) and Memoranda of Agreement (MOA's). It highlights the differences between the two documents, indicates the limiting characteristics of a MOU/MOA, provides a standard MOU/MOA format, and distinguishes the MOU/MOA from other commonly used agreements.

2. Scope

This directive applies to all DHS Headquarters elements.

3. Authorities

The Homeland Security Act of 2002, codified in Title 6, US Code.

4. Definitions

A. Memorandum of Understanding (MOU): A document that describes very broad concepts of mutual understanding, goals and plans shared by the parties.

B. Memorandum of Agreement (MOA): A document describing in detail the specific responsibilities of, and actions to be taken by, each of the parties so that their goals may be accomplished. A MOA may also indicate the goals of the parties, to help explain their actions and responsibilities.

C. Parties: The parties to a MOU/MOA covered by this instruction are the DHS and one or more governmental or private entities.

D. Designated DHS Official: Senior DHS officials as designated by the Secretary, Deputy Secretary or Under Secretaries.

5. Responsibilities

A. All Under Secretaries and Designated DHS Officials: when exercising any authority vested in them by law or delegated by the Secretary, shall be responsible for complying with this instruction when drafting or signing an MOU or MOA.

B. The General Counsel: shall be responsible for providing legal review of all MOUs and MOAs drafted to ensure compliance with applicable laws, rules and regulations. This responsibility may be further delegated by the General Counsel.

6. Policy & Procedures

A. Policy:

1. Every DHS MOU and MOA must be consistent with the DHS mission and be authorized by federal law, regulations and funding constraints. Additionally, the existence of a MOU or MOA does not eliminate or diminish the need for additional contracts, documents, or agreements to execute the activities contemplated by the parties. Neither this directive nor any MOU/MOA can be used as the sole authority or means to acquire or procure goods or services, exchange funds or property, or transfer or assign personnel. Although the MOU/MOA can address those issues and indicate the goals and intent of the parties, all DHS personnel must comply fully with pertinent contracting and procurement regulations.

2. PROHIBITED INDEMNIFICATION AGREEMENTS OR CLAUSES. An agreement to indemnify is an agreement to assume financial, legal, or other liabilities on behalf of that other party. Neither the DHS nor any person in the DHS may agree to indemnify any other party absent specific federal statutory authorization. Federal law, 31 U.S.C. 341(a)(1)(A) and 1341(a)(1)(B), commonly referred to as the Anti-Deficiency Act, prohibits all officers and employees of the United States from making or authorizing expenditures or obligations exceeding appropriated funding and from obligating payment of money before it is appropriated. A typical indemnification clause violates both provisions of that Act because it potentially obligates the federal government (or DHS) to pay an unspecified, unlimited, and unappropriated amount of money should someone else's property be lost, damaged or destroyed, some person be injured or killed, or other parties to the MOU/MOA incur legal liabilities or expenses. Should any prospective party to a MOU/MOA request or demand that the DHS agree to an indemnification clause, contact the General Counsel's office for assistance.

B. Procedures:

1. Each employee drafting or signing an MOU/MOA should comply with the following procedures:

   a) NEGOTIATIONS. When negotiating with another party, the DHS official involved should clearly indicate that he or she cannot commit the DHS until the position advanced has been approved by the Office of General Counsel for legal sufficiency and other policy offices, as appropriate.

b) FORMAT. Enclosure (1) is the format for a two-party MOU/MOA used when the MOU/MOA originates with the DHS. The wording of the agreement may be appropriately changed to reflect multiple parties. Enclosure (1) may also be tailored to accommodate the subject matter of the agreement and needs of the parties, or to conform to an applicable law, regulation or directive. If a party other than the DHS originates the MOU/MOA, the format may differ from enclosure (1). However, every MOU/MOA in which the DHS is a party should include the following basic information:

1. Parties. The parties to be bound by the agreement must be identified.

2. Authority. The legal authority for the agreement must be cited. Federal law, applicable DHS Rules, Regulations or other directives are referenced.

3. Purpose. The purpose or reason for entering the agreement must be stated.

4. Responsibilities. A description of the duties and responsibilities of the parties must be provided. The description should be as specific and detailed as necessary. Extreme details may be provided in an appendix rather than the body of the MOU/MOA.

5. Reporting and Documentation. The MOU/MOA must specify whether follow-up reports or documentation of actions taken are required and state how often and to whom they are to be submitted.

6. Points of Contact. Points of Contact for all parties are provided, including names, office symbols, addresses and phone numbers. Fax numbers, e-mail and Internet addresses should also be provided if available.

7. Modification. A provision stating how to modify or amend the agreement is included. Modifications can be formal (written) or informal (oral). They can be approved by the Points of Contact, by the signatories, or other appropriate individuals. While it is often appropriate for those at the working level to make modifications, either orally or in writing, modifications that change central provisions of the agreement should normally be made in writing and agreed to by the individuals who originally approved the MOU/MOA or their successors.

8. Effective Date. The date the MOU/MOA becomes effective must be stated. This may be a specified date after the MOU/MOA is signed by all parties or it may be the date the last party signs the agreement.

9. Termination. The MOU/MOA must contain several provisions regarding termination. The document will indicate that it will terminate on a certain date, upon the accomplishment of its purpose, or upon agreement of the parties. The MOU/MOA will also contain a provision indicating whether the duration of the agreement may be extended and, if so, the extension mechanism (e.g. by written agreement of the parties). Finally, the agreement will indicate whether a party may terminate the agreement early (usually by written notice to the other parties).

c) APPROVING OFFICIAL. The DHS is a party to the agreement, not the person signing for the DHS. Therefore, that person must have the authority to sign the MOU/MOA and commit the DHS. In determining who that official is, refer to the statute, regulation or directive authorizing DHS participation in the MOU/MOA. Other sources of authority are the DHS Delegations of Authority. Also, prior to signing any MOU or MOA, the person signing for DHS must ensure that Office of General Counsel has reviewed the document for legal sufficiency and approved it. If the head of another Department or Agency is signing the agreement for another party, the agreement must be coordinated with the Office of the Secretary of Homeland Security. Even if the authority to sign a MOU/MOA has been delegated to a lower level, if a higher-level official is signing for another party, it may be appropriate to elevate the signing of the MOU/MOA within DHS as a matter of protocol.

d) CLEARANCE. Clearance of a proposed MOU/MOA can be either consecutive or concurrent. Early coordination and communication with interested offices, and the use of e-mail for reviewing and editing a draft MOU/MOA is encouraged. Prior to submitting a MOU/MOA to the approval authority for signature, the originating office shall ensure that the MOU/MOA does not conflict with any preexisting agreements. The originating office shall also ensure that all interested program offices and the General Counsel has reviewed the MOU/MOA

C. Questions or Concerns Regarding the Process: Any questions or concerns regarding this directive should be addressed to the General Counsel.

J. Attorney General's Memorandum for Heads of All Federal Departments and Agencies Regarding the FOIA, October 12, 2001

K. Guidance on Homeland Security Information, March 19, 2002

4. Definitions

A. Category: The classification assigned to a requester for fee purposes determined by the projected use of the records. The categories are: (a) commercial; (b) educational; (c) non-commercial scientific institutions; (d) representative of the news media; and (e) all other requesters.

B. Department: The Department of Homeland Security (DHS).

C. FOIA Contact: FOIA Contact refers to an employee selected by an Under Secretary or a Designated DHS official to receive FOIA requests assigned to their area by the Departmental Disclosure Officer and to provide assistance in administrative matters pertaining to FOIA request processing. For other offices, FOIA Contact refers to the head of each disclosure office.

D. Responsible Official: The head of the organizational unit having immediate custody of the records requested or a designated official. The responsible official makes initial determinations to grant or deny requests for access to records and requests for fee waivers. The responsible official will also determine a requester's category for fee purposes.

E. Designated DHS Official: Senior DHS officials as designated by the Secretary, Deputy Secretary or Under Secretaries.

5. Responsibilities

A. All Under Secretaries and Designated DHS Officials: shall be responsible for the following tasks relating to their area of responsibility:

1. establish internal procedures to ensure the effectiveness of the Department's FOIA program. For units transferring into DHS where such internal procedures may already exist, they may continue to be used until amended or replaced by the DHS DDO. The procedures shall be consistent with this directive and:
   (a) the FOIA, as amended;
   (b) Executive Order (E.O.) 12600;
   (c) E.O. 12958; and,
   (d) applicable Department of Justice, Office of Management and Budget, and National Archives and Records Administration guidelines.

2. ensure that employees who are responsible in any part for FOIA processing are knowledgeable about the provisions and requirements of the FOIA and ensure that these employees attend FOIA training at least once a year;

3. ensure that accurate and complete data is submitted in a timely manner to the Departmental Disclosure Officer for the Department of Homeland Security's Annual FOIA Report to the Attorney General, and for other reporting purposes, as required;

4. ensure that records that are subject to section (a)(2) of the FOIA which have been created on or after November 1, 1996, are posted;

5. submit proposed directorate disclosure regulations or proposed changes to regulations to the Departmental Disclosure Officer for review;

6. select a FOIA Contact and advise the Departmental Disclosure Officer of the selection and of any subsequent changes in designation of selection;

7. ensure that directorate FOIA Contacts and web masters collaborate with directorate records management officers prior to disposing of records posted on the FOIA web sites and to schedule electronic records on the sites; and,

8. ensure that reasonable efforts are made to maintain records in forms or formats that are reproducible for purposes of the FOIA.

B. The Under Secretary for Management shall:

1. provide technical management support for the Department's FOIA web site on the DHS Internet and technical assistance to the Departmental Disclosure Officer to ensure compliance with the requirements of the FOIA;

2. provide technical assistance to directorates in placing records in the electronic reading room which includes establishing specific procedures for maintaining and posting directorate records;

3. establish and maintain an index of all major information systems and a description of major information and record locator systems in the Department;

4. ensure that DHS-wide, cost-effective, state-of-the-art technical solutions for electronic redaction are implemented to achieve economies of scale and integrate with the information technology infrastructure;

5. provide information technology guidance to department FOIA Contacts, web masters, and records management officers regarding information posted on the DHS FOIA web sites; and,

6. provide oversight, guidance and support to the Departmental Disclosure Officer.

C. The Departmental Disclosure Officer (DDO) shall:

1. act as the Department of the Homeland Security's principal point of contact and agency representative on FOIA-related matters;

2. coordinate the Department's FOIA implementation and management in collaboration with DHS directorates and offices;

3. provide regulatory and policy guidance, and technical advice and assistance to the Department on FOIA-related matters;

4. review proposed changes to disclosure regulations;

5. collect, review, consolidate, and submit the data for the Annual FOIA Report to the Attorney General on behalf of the Department;

6. post Departmental Offices (DO) records that are subject to section (a)(2) of the FOIA which have been created on or after November 1, 1996;

7. grant or deny requests for expedited processing of requests for DO records;

8. supervise the implementation of the FOIA within the DO;

9. notify a requester when information needed to process a request for DO records is lacking;

10. assign FOIA requests to the appropriate FOIA Contact for action;

11. assign FOIA appeals to the appropriate appeal authority within DO;

12. follow up with the assigned office to ensure completion of a request or appeal, when necessary;

13. when a request seeks records in the custody of two or more functions within DO for which separate FOIA Contacts have been designated, assign to one of the FOIA Contacts the responsibility of coordinating one response;

14. assist the general public in making FOIA requests to the Department; and,

15. conduct FOIA training on a regular basis and oversee the FOIA training conducted at DHS offices.

D. Responsible Officials shall:

1. determine:

(a) whether to grant or deny requests for access to records;
(b) whether to grant or deny requests for fee waivers; and,
(c) a requester's category for fee purposes;

2. notify the requester of determination(s) made pursuant to paragraph 5.D.1;

3. determine costs incurred by the Department to process the request and whether or not fees will be charged to the requester;

4. ensure that requests are processed in accordance with all applicable disclosure requirements;

5. compile and provide data for the Annual FOIA Report; and,

6. retrieve records retired to the Federal Records Center if they are needed in processing a request.

E. Appeal Authorities shall, upon receipt of an administrative appeal, either affirm or reverse those initial determinations that:

1. deny access to a record or portion thereof;

2. deny a request for a fee waiver;

3. pertain to a requester's category;

4. advise of no records located; or,

5. deny a request for expedited processing.

F. FOIA Contacts shall:

1. designate a responsible official to respond to each FOIA request assigned pursuant to paragraph 5.C.10;

2. ensure consistency and completeness of a Departmental response when assigned responsibility for coordination pursuant to paragraph 5.C.13;

3. determine, with appropriate program officials, which records in response to FOIA requests have become or are likely to become the subject of repeated requests for the same records and ensure that these records are placed in the electronic reading room of the Department's web site; and,

4. coordinate with the Department web masters and records management officers regarding the disposing of records in the electronic reading room of the Department's web site.

6. Policy & Procedures

A. Policy: It is the policy of the Department of Homeland Security to implement the FOIA uniformly and consistently and to provide maximum allowable disclosure of agency records upon request by any individual.

B. Procedures: Upon receipt of a request satisfying the requirements of the FOIA, records shall be disclosed unless they are appropriate for withholding and are protected by one or more of the FOIA exemptions or exclusions. Requests shall be processed within the time limits defined by the FOIA. Individuals requesting information will be informed of the right and procedure to seek administrative appeal and to seek judicial review of:

1. any partial or total denial of access to records;
2. a fee waiver denial;
3. a determination of requester's category for fee purposes;
4. a no-records determination; or,
5. a denial of a request for expedited processing.

The FOIA requires that, except in "unusual circumstances" as specified in the Act, agency initial decisions on whether to grant or deny access to records must be made within 20 working days of receiving the request and the requester so notified. A requester may administratively appeal an agency's adverse initial determination and may seek judicial review if not satisfied with the agency's final decision. If a court determines that agency personnel have acted arbitrarily or capriciously in withholding records, disciplinary action against the employee primarily responsible may be warranted.

C. Questions or Concerns Regarding the Process: Any questions or concerns regarding this directive should be addressed to the DDO.

Do you know if U.S. Attorneys or Marshals will be discussed at either meeting? If so, I'll need to note it on the proposal.

MATT JOYCE

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) _ U.S. Secretary of Education Rod Paige on Friday voiced strong opposition to racial quotas in higher education and announced new efforts to publicize race-neutral alternatives.

Paige cited as an example a University of Texas policy that grants automatic admission to any Texas high school student who graduated in the to 10 percent of his or her class.

Paige, former head of Houston's public school district, made his remarks at a regional conference of the National Center for Educational Accountability in Austin.

``Let me be clear: It is not right to fight discrimination with discrimination,'' he said in support of President Bush's opposition to an affirmative action program at the University of Michigan.

Paige has been the most vocal of top-ranking black officials in his support of the administration's stance in the dispute, which is now before the Supreme Court.

Secretary of State Colin Powell has supported the University of Michigan's program.

National security adviser Condaleeza Rice backed Bush's decision to step into the case, but said race can be a factor in some circumstances.

Paige said he would direct his department's civil rights office to produce a report providing ideas about ways to diversify the country's colleges and universities. He also called for a national conference on the same subject.

Paige said the No Child Left Behind Act, which the President signed into law one year ago, has the potential to nullify diversity concerns in higher education.

The requires states to devise math and reading tests for every child each year in grades three through eight, beginning in fall 2005. Under current law, states are required to test students in reading and math three times during their K-12 years.

``By raising the bar of achievement in our nation's schools, we raise the quality of high school graduates,'' he said. ``And that increases the number of students capable of winning admission to the college of their choice, based on their talent and potential.''

Snow forecast

Stephen Moore

The Daschle-Democrats are on the war path on the economy. They are crassly rooting against a recovery, and they are working like armies of wood ants behind the scenes to erode any and all of President Bush's economic initiatives - including most prominently his bold tax cut plan. Anything that would hasten an economic growth revival before the 2002 elections, they reflexively oppose.

Now we will find out whether that opposition also applies to any person who wishes to spur faster economic growth. Today, President Bush's Treasury secretary nominee John Snow, the former chief executive officer of CSX Railroad, goes before the Senate for confirmation hearings. Some Senate Democrats have been threatening to convert these hearings into an ugly and coordinated campaign of character assassination against Mr. Snow. Conservatives have become all too familiar with the brutish politics of personal destruction that the Senate Democrats are capable of with regards to many of President Bush's judicial nominees.

It's high time that conservatives in the Senate fight back if those tactics are brought to bear against Mr. Snow - who is an exceptional choice for the job.

I must confess I know John Snow personally, like him very much, and have an unqualified admiration for his political views and his supply-side instincts. We met when we both served on the Kemp Commission on Tax Reform. What became clear during those months is that Mr. Snow wants what the vast majority of Americans want: a radically simplified, single-rate tax system that clears away the barriers to growth in the IRS tax code, eliminates unfair subsidies, flattens tax rates, and doesn't require hoards of accountants, lawyers, and Valium pills to figure out tax liabilities.

Jack Kemp tells me John Snow is "thoroughly on the supply side when it comes to the case for lower tax rates." He is also a free trader and an inflation hawk. There's very little in this man's record not to like from a policy standpoint.

John Snow has a sterling record of accomplishment as a railroad executive. When he became CEO of CSX he helped turn this once-moribund railroad into a profitable enterprise - though it certainly has gone through through rough patches. His stewardship has created wealth for shareholders and tens of thousands of jobs for rail workers.

Any case against Mr. Snow's professional capabilities will be weakened considerably, given that several unions have written letters to President Bush commending him for choosing Mr. Snow for the Treasury secretary slot. Byron Boyd, the president of the United Transportation Union writes: "The thoughtful and successful approaches that CSX has taken on safety and labor relations are but two examples of John's ability. .... I urge the Senate to confirm him expeditiously."

In this post-Enron political environment where every CEO is a member of a suspect class, the Democrats are expected to attack Mr. Snow for receiving multimillion-dollar bonuses and loans. There is no smoking gun here. Mr. Snow's compensation packages were in no way out of line with the incentives given to CEOs of similarly-sized companies.

To get top talent - like John Snow - firms must pay top dollar. This is the economic reality of the marketplace. Why should making money for successfully running a company be invalid? And if it is, how in the world was Robert Rubin ever confirmed as Treasury secretary? Mr. Rubin made far more money running Goldman Sachs than Mr. Snow has. So did Sen. John Corzine, New Jersey Democrat, also a partner at Goldman.

Why is making money only a crime when the wealth creator is a Republican?

Democrats will also certainly use the Snow confirmation hearings as their first opportunity to savage the president's economic plan in a public forum. That's fair game. Mr. Snow must not back off. He, and the Senate Republicans must assault the assaulters. The Republicans should recite the history of supply-side tax reduction successes under John F. Kennedy and Mr. Reagan and even Mr. Clinton, when he signed the capital-gains tax cut in 1997.

They should ridicule the Democratic plan, which stimulates nothing but growth in government - and provides about one-fifth the tax relief for Americans than the president's plan does.

The Republicans in the Senate - but most importantly, Mr. Snow himself - should not suffer fools gladly. If the Democrats attack the tax-cut plan for being "fiscally irresponsible," Mr. Snow should ask his accusers why they vote to continually pad spending bills with billions of dollars of pork and multibillion-dollar program expansions with more debt spending - as they did last week with a $390 billion appropriations bill. If they attack Mr. Snow's business acumen, he should point out that almost none of these prosecutors have ever run a business themselves, or met a payroll themselves, that wasn't paid for with taxpayer dollars.

With the economy showing further signs of weakness in recent weeks (fourth-quarter 2002 GDP growth is now estimated at an anemic rate of 1 percent), the country desperately needs the president's economic growth and jobs tax cut.

What the president's tax plan needs is dogged, determined, and compelling defenders. This is Mr. Snow's first big test. My bet is that he will pass with fling colors - much to the disappointment of the Daschle-Democrats.

Bush's Treasury Choice To Be Questioned on Hill

CSX Chief Is Expected to Be Confirmed

By Mike Allen and Jonathan Weisman

President Bush's nominee for Treasury secretary, John W. Snow of CSX Corp., will face questioning at his confirmation hearing today from Democrats who contend that he was a pampered chief executive who profited from corporate favors, congressional aides said.

Nevertheless, Senate Finance Committee officials said the hearing will last less than one day and even Democrats predicted that Snow will be swiftly confirmed when the committee votes, possibly within a few days of the hearing.

Bush nominated Snow, who is chairman and chief executive of the Richmond-based transportation conglomerate, to succeed Paul H. O'Neill after he was abruptly fired as Treasury secretary in December. Administration officials said a major reason for Snow's selection was that he would be a credible and committed advocate for Bush's $674 billion jobs and growth package, which has so far proved to be a tough sell on Capitol Hill.

The Finance Committee released Snow's responses to senators' questions about his sale of 120,000 CSX shares last year, less than a month before the company announced weak earnings expectations that prompted the stock price to fall. Snow said he had indicated his intent to sell the shares four months in advance, and said that at the time of the August sale, "I had no knowledge that the company's third-quarter revenues would result in lower earnings."

Snow also was asked about CSX's forgiveness of a $24 million corporate loan that he used to buy CSX stock in 1996. Snow said the loan was forgiven because of changes that were made in a program that encouraged managers to buy stock, and he said his 10-year proceeds from participating in the program were $4 million.

The administration portrayed Snow as a champion of ethical corporate policies, noting that he co-chaired the Conference Board's Blue Ribbon Commission on Public Trust and Private Enterprise, which called for tougher corporate governance practices before they drew widespread public attention.

"John Snow has been a leader in the area of corporate best practices and he looks forward to addressing his record on this at the hearing," said Robert Nichols, the Treasury Department's chief spokesman.

Snow has resigned from the Commonwealth Club of Richmond, which excluded African Americans during part of the time he was a member. Snow said on his questionnaire that he "actively supported the application of the Club's first African American member," who joined in 1988. The administration noted that Snow served on the board of Virginia Union University, a historically black institution.

The administration, turning to a key Democratic constituency in an effort to sway potential critics on the committee, collected letters of praise for Snow from union leaders he worked with at CSX.

Snow forecast

Stephen Moore

The Daschle-Democrats are on the war path on the economy. They are crassly rooting against a recovery, and they are working like armies of wood ants behind the scenes to erode any and all of President Bush's economic initiatives - including most prominently his bold tax cut plan. Anything that would hasten an economic growth revival before the 2002 elections, they reflexively oppose.

Now we will find out whether that opposition also applies to any person who wishes to spur faster economic growth. Today, President Bush's Treasury secretary nominee John Snow, the former chief executive officer of CSX Railroad, goes before the Senate for confirmation hearings. Some Senate Democrats have been threatening to convert these hearings into an ugly and coordinated campaign of character assassination against Mr. Snow. Conservatives have become all too familiar with the brutish politics of personal destruction that the Senate Democrats are capable of with regards to many of President Bush's judicial nominees.

It's high time that conservatives in the Senate fight back if those tactics are brought to bear against Mr. Snow - who is an exceptional choice for the job.

I must confess I know John Snow personally, like him very much, and have an unqualified admiration for his political views and his supply-side instincts. We met when we both served on the Kemp Commission on Tax Reform. What became clear during those months is that Mr. Snow wants what the vast majority of Americans want: a radically simplified, single-rate tax system that clears away the barriers to growth in the IRS tax code, eliminates unfair subsidies, flattens tax rates, and doesn't require hoards of accountants, lawyers, and Valium pills to figure out tax liabilities.

Jack Kemp tells me John Snow is "thoroughly on the supply side when it comes to the case for lower tax rates." He is also a free trader and an inflation hawk. There's very little in this man's record not to like from a policy standpoint.

John Snow has a sterling record of accomplishment as a railroad executive. When he became CEO of CSX he helped turn this once-moribund railroad into a profitable enterprise - though it certainly has gone through through rough patches. His stewardship has created wealth for shareholders and tens of thousands of jobs for rail workers.

Any case against Mr. Snow's professional capabilities will be weakened considerably, given that several unions have written letters to President Bush commending him for choosing Mr. Snow for the Treasury secretary slot. Byron Boyd, the president of the United Transportation Union writes: "The thoughtful and successful approaches that CSX has taken on safety and labor relations are but two examples of John's ability. ... I urge the Senate to confirm him expeditiously."

In this post-Enron political environment where every CEO is a member of a suspect class, the Democrats are expected to attack Mr. Snow for receiving multimillion-dollar bonuses and loans. There is no smoking gun here. Mr. Snow's compensation packages were in no way out of line with the incentives given to CEOs of similarly-sized companies.

Brett, I hope all is going well in the White House Counsel's office. PRA 6
PRA 6
PRA 6 I, as you might imagine, am enjoying my last semester of law school, and am looking forward to starting my clerkship in August. Somewhat surprisingly, the Washington Post
saw fit to publish a letter to the editor that I wrote recently.
http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A8990-2003Jan17.html.
Predictably, E.J. Dionne wrote yet another column criticizing W's nominees and judges--specifically Judge John Bates--without any examination of the facts. I merely pointed out one of the many misrepresentations in Dionne's article. Hopefully, with Senator Hatch as Judiciary Committee chairman, W's nominees will have an easier road to confirmation. Best of luck with everything going on.

Adam and Laurie -- This seems like a practical way to address this issue of DHS officials/employees who still have TPO e-mail accounts, and wld avoid or at least minmize the generation of add'l records that cld be subject to litigation or other dispute.

As you may have noticed, you have not been receiving any press releases lately.
That is because Rachael Sunbarger has moved to Homeland Security. In order to continue receiving your daily dose of Press Reports, you need to email Elizabeth Donnan and ask to be placed on the new press release list.

Thanks

Brett,

Good talking to you today. I can't tell you how impressed we've all been lately with the President's agenda on tort reform and the courts. Best of luck with all your efforts.

Our president, Lawrence (Larry) Mone, would like to come into the White House to talk to you (and anyone else you think should be in the meeting) regarding tort reform. The dates he has available are January 22nd, 28th, 31st, or February 4th. Let me know which of these dates works for you and I'll lock it in.

If none of these dates are available, give me a few alternates from your calendar and I'll work from those instead.

Best,

Paul Howard
Deputy Director
Center for Legal Policy
Manhattan Institute

Brett:

I hope you're doing well. Looks like the judicial nominations are finally moving forward. Congratulations!

Sen. Kyl has asked Deputy Secretary of Defense Wolfowitz and Under Secretary of Defense for Policy Doug Feith to address the Republican Bicameral Retreat at the Greenbrier a week from tomorrow. The requested topic is national defense and foreign policy issues. The retreat is hosted by the House and Senate Republican leadership and I understand that it is not a fundraiser.

I don't see a legal problem with Wolfowitz's and Feith's attendance, as it is consistent with DoD policy on political activities. I wanted to run this by you, however, due to the optics. While DoD officials have addressed similar Republican gatherings on Capitol Hill, I haven't been able to find an example of addressing an off-site retreat like this. Do you have any concerns about their attendance?

Also, Jim Haynes is going to send a letter to Ted Olson today on the Densberger case. I'll shoot you a copy once it's signed. What is your fax?

Thanks!

Sen. Harkin to Place Hold On Treasury Nomination

Washington Post

Print This Story

Albert B. Crenshaw

Opponents of pension regulations announced recently by the Treasury Department are expected to place a hold on the nomination of John W. Snow to be Treasury secretary unless the rules are rescinded.

The hold will be placed by Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), sources said. Holds are a Senate custom that allows a single senator to prevent a bill, nomination or other measure from reaching the floor.

The nomination of Snow, who is chairman and chief executive of Richmond-based CSX Corp., had appeared to be heading for a confirmation vote as soon as today.

The rules involved cover "cash balance" pensions, which are being adopted by many large companies to save money or because cash balance plans better suit the needs of the workforce, or both. Cash balance plans provide better benefits for younger and shorter-tenured workers but can penalize older workers.

Opponents of cash balance plans argue that their impact on older workers violates federal age discrimination laws, and a number have filed lawsuits against employers, including International Business Machines Corp., that have converted traditional pensions to cash balance plans.

During the Clinton administration, the Treasury Department and Internal Revenue Service placed a moratorium on cash balance conversions. However, late last year the Treasury Department proposed regulations that would say specifically that cash balance plans are not discriminatory. It is those rules that opponents want to see withdrawn.

Treasury Nominee Snow Faces U.S. Senate Questions on Pensions

Washington, Jan. 29 (Bloomberg) -- John Snow's nomination to be the next U.S. Treasury secretary ran into congressional hurdles as Democratic senators sought assurances about the Bush administration's pension policies.

Democratic Senators Dick Durbin of Illinois and Tom Harkin of Iowa are demanding a guarantee from Snow that older workers will be protected if the Treasury allows companies to switch traditional pension plans to cash-balance programs, which critics say hurt older employees.

``The senators are concerned about the retirement security of many Americans,'' said Joe Shoemaker, a spokesman for Durbin.

An Associated Press report that the lawmakers may try to delay Snow's confirmation was ``premature'' Shoemaker said, adding that the matter could be resolved by a meeting with the nominee.

``There are a number of other steps we can take short of delaying a confirmation,'' he said. Durbin and Harkin plan to hold a press conference on their concerns tomorrow at 10:15 a.m. Washington time.

``We are confident he will be confirmed quickly,'' White House spokesman Taylor Gross said. ``The post of Treasury secretary is important, given the economic issues we are currently facing.''

At issue is last month's proposal from the Treasury to allow companies to revamp their current pension plans to save money. The new rules are intended to help companies avoid age discrimination complaints when they convert defined-benefit pensions into so-called cash-balance accounts.

Younger Workers

Companies that have made the change, such as Xerox Corp. and Cigna Corp., say cash-balance plans also help them attract younger workers.

Debate over such plans has pitted businesses against labor groups and senior citizen advocates since 1999, when the Internal Revenue Service stopped approving pension plan conversions. Protests were raised over proposed changes at companies such as International Business Machines Corp. and AT&T Corp.

In traditional defined-benefit plans, employees are awarded fixed retirement payments, which are skewed to reflect earnings in the last years of a worker's career. In cash-balance plans, benefits are accrued more evenly over the time a worker is employed and are portable from job to job. In recent years, defined-benefit pensions have been supplemented or replaced by employee 401(k) retirement savings plans.

Vote Scheduled

The Senate Finance Committee, which held a four-hour confirmation hearing for Snow Tuesday, has scheduled a vote for tomorrow at 10 a.m. Washington time. A plan for the panel to vote today was dashed after some Democrats, including Arkansas Senator Blanche Lincoln, sought more answers from Snow over issues including Social Security and budget deficits.

In a letter to Senate Finance Chairman Charles Grassley, Lincoln said Snow's answers to her earlier questions on life insurance and Medicare policies were ``adequate'' albeit ``skeletal,'' while he had been ``unresponsive'' on her probes into the threat to Social Security of larger budget deficits.

The Finance Committee and then the full Senate must endorse Snow before he can be sworn-in as the nation's 73rd Treasury chief.

He also faces criticism from his home state. In the House of Representatives today, two Democrats from Ohio criticized the chief executive of CSX Corp. as an ``absentee CEO'' of the No. 3 railroad's operations in the state, leaving in disrepair a railroad bridge that marks the city of Toledo's skyline.

U.S. Representatives Sherrod Brown and Marcy Kaptur also said CSX under Snow's leadership didn't fulfill promises of life insurance for some workers of The Greenbrier, a West Virginia resort that the railroad company owns.

``I hope this will be a red flag to Americans and my Senate colleagues that John Snow is not the American to formulate our economic policy,'' Kaptur said in a statement.

Sen. Harkin to Place Hold On Treasury Nomination

Washington Post

Opponents of pension regulations announced recently by the Treasury Department are expected to place a hold on the nomination of John W. Snow to be Treasury secretary unless the rules are rescinded.

The hold will be placed by Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), sources said. Holds are a Senate custom that allows a single senator to prevent a bill, nomination or other measure from reaching the floor.

The nomination of Snow, who is chairman and chief executive of Richmond-based CSX Corp., had appeared to be heading for a confirmation vote as soon as today.

The rules involved cover "cash balance" pensions, which are being adopted by many large companies to save money or because cash balance plans better suit the needs of the workforce, or both. Cash balance plans provide better benefits for younger and shorter-tenured workers but can penalize older workers.

Opponents of cash balance plans argue that their impact on older workers violates federal age discrimination laws, and a number have filed lawsuits against employers, including International Business Machines Corp., that have converted traditional pensions to cash balance plans.

During the Clinton administration, the Treasury Department and Internal Revenue Service placed a moratorium on cash balance conversions. However, late last year the Treasury Department proposed regulations that would say specifically that cash balance plans are not discriminatory. It is those rules that opponents want to see withdrawn.

Cash-Balance Pension Fight Could Stall Snow Nomination

DOW JONES NEWSWIRES

(This article was originally published Wednesday)

By John Godfrey

OF DOW JONES NEWSWIRES

WASHINGTON -- Two midwest Democratic senators are threatening to block the nomination of CSX (CSX) Chief Executive Officer John Snow to become the next Treasury Secretary, Senate Finance Committee aides said Wednesday.

Snow's qualifications are not issue, but rather, proposed Treasury regulations on a company's conversion of a defined benefit plan to a cash balance pension plan. There has been a moratorium on such conversions since 1999, and the regulations would allow them to resume.

Sens. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and David Durbin, D-Ill., want the regulations stopped, arguing that older workers lose substantial benefits under the conversions.

In a traditional pension plan, benefits are based on a worker's tenure with one employer and average salary in late career, when earnings have peaked. In a cash balance plan, workers build up benefits at a flat rate throughout their careers.

When companies convert from a defined benefit plan to a cash balance plan, longtime workers miss out on the "benefit spike" they would have received under a traditional plan, according to the AARP. Making matters worse, those workers are too close to retirement to make up the difference in a cash balance plan.

Republican Finance Committee aides said cash balance plans can be good for highly mobile workers and for middle-aged workers. Difficulties facing older workers should be addressed, rather than simply trying to block Treasury's efforts to allow conversions, the aides said.

Durbin spokesman Joe Shoemaker would not confirm that his boss is considering holding up Snow's nomination.

"I think you are going to have to go to the press conference [Thursday] to find out how far they will go," Shoemaker said.

Shoemaker would say that neither Durbin, nor Harkin, would be satisfied until they had received a commitment from Snow or the Bush administration that it would withdraw the proposed regulations.

Snow's nomination was scheduled for a vote Thursday morning in the Finance Committee and both Democratic and Republican committee members say they intend to back his nomination. Aides and senators predict similarly bipartisan support when Snow's nomination is considered by the full Senate.

But Senate tradition allows senators to place a "hold" on nominations to block their consideration by the full Senate.

Treasury Nominee Snow Faces U.S. Senate Questions on Pensions

Washington, Jan. 29 (Bloomberg) -- John Snow's nomination to be the next U.S. Treasury secretary ran into congressional hurdles as Democratic senators sought assurances about the Bush administration's pension policies.

Democratic Senators Dick Durbin of Illinois and Tom Harkin of Iowa are demanding a guarantee from Snow that older workers will be protected if the Treasury allows companies to switch traditional pension plans to cash-balance programs, which critics say hurt older employees.

``The senators are concerned about the retirement security of many Americans," said Joe Shoemaker, a spokesman for Durbin.

An Associated Press report that the lawmakers may try to delay Snow's confirmation was ``premature" Shoemaker said, adding that the matter could be resolved by a meeting with the nominee.

``There are a number of other steps we can take short of delaying a confirmation," he said. Durbin and Harkin plan to hold a press conference on their concerns tomorrow at 10:15 a.m. Washington time.

``We are confident he will be confirmed quickly," White House spokesman Taylor Gross said. ``The post of Treasury secretary is important, given the economic issues we are currently facing."

At issue is last month's proposal from the Treasury to allow companies to revamp their current pension plans to save money. The new rules are intended to help companies avoid age discrimination complaints when they convert defined-benefit pensions into so-called cash-balance accounts.

Younger Workers

Companies that have made the change, such as Xerox Corp. and Cigna Corp., say cash-balance plans also help them attract younger workers.

Debate over such plans has pitted businesses against labor groups and senior citizen advocates since 1999, when the Internal Revenue Service stopped approving pension plan conversions. HEADLINE: For Owen, is 2nd time a charm?;
Her odds may be better as Democrats target other judicial nominee

SOURCE: Washington Bureau

BYLINE: MICHELLE MITTELSTADT

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

BODY:
WASHINGTON - Snubbed last year for a federal appeals court seat, Texas Supreme Court Justice Priscilla Owen will be back soon for a second try.

And with the Senate now in Republican hands, Justice Owen and her supporters are hoping for a far different fate than the one she received last year from Democrats.

While her chances are significantly better, the outcome is not guaranteed in a Senate narrowly divided between both parties.

One thing, however, is clear. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which proved to be the most controversial battleground over judicial nominations during the last session of Congress, is sure to remain a flash point.

On party-line votes last year after rancorous confirmation hearings, the Democratic-led Senate Judiciary Committee rejected both Justice Owen and Mississippi Judge Charles Pickering for the New Orleans-based court, which spans Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Critics accused the Texas justice of hostility to consumers' and workers' rights and charged her with injecting her personal beliefs into rulings on abortion. And they attacked Judge Pickering's record on civil rights, focusing in particular on his bid for leniency for a defendant in a cross-burning case.

President Bush led a GOP charge that the two judges' records were badly mischaracterized by Senate Democrats and the alliance of civil rights, consumer and abortion rights groups opposing them. Earlier this month, on the first day of the new Congress, Mr. Bush ensured a second showdown with Democrats by resubmitting the nominations of Justice Owen and Judge Pickering for the court.

Democrats cried foul and were particularly angered by Judge Pickering's renomination so soon after the furor over comments by Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., that seemed nostalgic for former Sen. Strom Thurmond's 1948 pro-segregation campaign.

Filibuster threat

Several Democratic senators, including Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts and Charles Schumer of New York, vowed immediately to use all legislative powers at their disposal to block Judge Pickering, a longtime friend of Mr. Lott.

The threat of a filibuster, which Republicans would need 60 votes to overcome, hasn't been explicitly made against Justice Owen's nomination. But there is no guarantee that the Senate's 51 Republicans would be able to garner nine votes across the aisle.

Some say the Democrats' focus on Judge Pickering could boost Justice Owen's chances.

The Democrats, they say, will have to be very selective in their use of the filibuster, a tactic only rarely invoked on nominations.

"I don't think it would be easy for them to mount two filibusters against two nominees," said John Nowacki, director of legal policy at the conservative Free Congress Foundation, which supports the pair. "They may realize that, which is why they seem to be concentrating all their fire on Pickering, believing he is their easier target."

Democrats "have to be very careful" about the number of filibusters they mount or they'll be viewed as obstructionists, said Elliot Slotnick, an Ohio State University political science professor who studies judicial-confirmation politics. The filibuster "is simply not a standard or normal legislative procedure," he noted.

Between 1949 and 2000, only 30 nominations were threatened by a filibuster, according to the Congressional Research Service.

Democrats "are not going to willy-nilly filibuster large numbers of nominees. But more than one? Probably so. How many more than one? Hard to tell," said Elliot Mincberg, legal director of the liberal People for the American Way, which opposes many Bush nominees.

Unparalleled action

Although the filibuster is an uncommon tactic, Mr. Mincberg said it is unprecedented to renominate rejected candidates.

White House officials say they think that nominations aren't resolved until the full Senate has voted on the matter.

Critics of the Bush nominees are pressing Democrats to block a number of judges - Justice Owen among them - saying the president has left them little choice by advancing candidates they consider well outside the mainstream.

"It was quite a gauntlet thrown down by the president to the Senate in renominating Charles Pickering and Priscilla Owen," said Kate Michelman, head of NARAL Pro-Choice America. "The Senate needs to stand up against the president's intimidation and not let either one of these nominees be confirmed.

"We expect pro-choice senators to filibuster against Priscilla Owen."

Republicans want to avoid roadblocks.

"We hope that there won't be any obstructionist tactics on any nominee," said Margarita Tapia, a spokeswoman for Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. "We feel that Justice Owen has been an outstanding jurist, and we feel that she will be outstanding on the circuit court and that she deserves confirmation."

Democrats have to pick their battles carefully, an aide to one Judiciary Committee Democrat acknowledged, particularly because a few conservative Democrats, including Georgia Sen. Zell Miller, have said they would not back filibusters. In Justice Owen's case, "there very well could be" a filibuster, the aide said on condition of anonymity.

Partisan split

Sen. John Cornyn, who once served on the Texas Supreme Court with Justice Owen, said Democrats would do well to treat her nomination carefully.

"If they are smart, they will realize that they tried to defeat Justice Owen and we had, in essence, a referendum on that on November 5," he said, referring to election returns that swept him to victory over Democrat Ron Kirk and gave Republicans control of both houses of Congress.

Mr. Cornyn, who hopes to help Justice Owen's chances from his new perch on the Judiciary Committee, said she got a "raw deal" from Democrats last year. In a move that surprised some Democrats, Mr. Hatch said Friday that he would convene new hearings on Justice Owen and Judge Pickering. Some had anticipated that he would move directly to votes on the nominees, who were extensively questioned last year.

"I think people will have a second opportunity to look at her qualifications," said White House counsel Al Gonzales. "And again, I think once they do that, she'll be confirmed."

Nan Aron, head of the liberal Alliance for Justice, disagreed.

"No amount of backpedaling rehabilitation is going to be able to improve a record that is so hostile to workers, consumers, environmentalists and women," she said, predicting Justice Owen's nomination would be defeated again.

The woman at the center of the storm is keeping her own counsel, referring media calls about her nomination to the administration.

"She was discouraged by what happened to her last year," Mr. Cornyn said. "But I think she is encouraged by the fact the president would see fit to renominate her and, I think, is hopeful that things will go much better."

G. Robert Hillman and Jim Fry of the Belo Capital Bureau contributed to this report.

While we're adding addendums, my son Leonard is 15, not 16 although he would rather like the revision to enable hime to get his driver's license. We are fiercely resisting and dreading this upcoming date.

Quick clarification on Patrick's directory: Brent Greenfield is not my husband, contrary to popular belief. Thank you, Patrick.

While we're adding addendums, my son Leonard is 15, not 16 although he would rather like the revision to enable hime to get his driver's license. We are fiercely resisting and dreading this upcoming date.

Updated Staff information.

I'll have to re-send when we hire a new staff assistant and paralegal. Please note that all former staff members are located on page 2 of the Home and Family directory.

thanks

I am fine with them going given all of the facts and circumstances. We may hear

Brett:

Thanks for looking at this. On the other side of the ledger, I understand the President and the Vice President are going to be attending various aspects of the retreat, so it's unlikely that Wolfowitz or Feith would be singled out for criticism. Also, as long as whoever attends is willing to speak at a similar Democrat session if asked, the speaker could not be criticized for unfair treatment of the parties. Does the concern you raise about potential criticism still stand?

Thanks.

I would think there is some risk of complaints and stories about "politicization" if Iraq is a subject of discussion or questions, which I would imagine it would be.

Subject: Republican Bicameral Retreat

Brett:

I hope you're doing well. Looks like the judicial nominations are finally moving forward. Congratulations!

Sen. Kyl has asked Deputy Secretary of Defense Wolfowitz and Under Secretary of Defense for Policy Doug Feith to address the Republican Bicameral Retreat at the Greenbrier a week from tomorrow. The requested topic is national defense and foreign policy issues. The retreat is hosted by the House and Senate Republican leadership and I understand that it is not a fundraiser.

I don't see a legal problem with Wolfowitz's and Feith's attendance, as it is consistent with DoD policy on political activities. I wanted to run this by you, however, due to the optics. While DoD officials have addressed similar Republican gatherings on Capitol Hill, I haven't been able to find an example of addressing an off-site retreat like this. Do you have any concerns about their attendance?

Also, Jim Haynes is going to send a letter to Ted Olson today on the Densberger case. I'll shoot you a copy once it's signed. What is your fax?

Thanks!

Awsome!

FYI to all(. Strong suggestion on the part of Frist office that we add California to our list of target states (hit Boxer and Feinstein). And add this two members to our target list (not b/c we could actually get their votes by to make them get a little nervous about protracted floor debate.

Can we get these targets added to original list?;

Hey Brett,

Hope all is well. Sorry to bug you about this but wanted to see if it is possible to get a letter in time for my trip up to New Haven next weekend. Right now, over 40 alumni are going up to spend a weekend and raise money for a scholarship in honor of the 4 guys who were killed.

Don't know if you followed it at all, but the toxicology reports on the DKE brother driving the vehicle were negative... he did NOT have a drop of alcohol in his system plus he was going the speed limit. The main cause of the crash looks to be that the lights on the highway were not working. The Safety board recreated the crash scene and said that from 50 feet you could not see the trailer -- this was a freak accident.

Anyway, didn't know if you knew anyone i could talk to about facilitating this... i could put a draft letter together. The current president of DKE is Nick Sinatra. I appreciate your help. You can reach me by email or cell

RADIO ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT

TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Earlier this week I reported to the American people on the state of our union. I asked Congress to join me in meeting the great challenges that confront our nation with the courage and resolve our times require.

Working together, we'll strengthen our economy and lay the foundation for sustained growth so that every person who wants to work can find a job. We will modernize Medicare to make sure that seniors can choose the coverage that fits them best, including coverage for prescription drugs. We will reform America's medical liability system to cut down on excessive lawsuits that are driving up the cost of health care. We will make America less dependant on foreign sources of energy by speeding up development of pollution-free cars that run on hydrogen.

We will renew the hope of welfare reform and support the faith-based and community groups who bring hope and healing to children who need mentors and men and women who struggle with drug addiction.

The qualities of courage and compassion that we strive for in America also determine our conduct abroad. Across the world, we are meeting the threat of terrorism to make the world safer, and confronting the grave dangers posed by outlaw regimes. At the same time, America can also make this world better by bringing the merciful powers of modern medicine to people in great need.

Today in Africa, nearly 30 million people have the AIDS virus, including 3 million children under the age of 15. To meet this growing crisis, I am proposing the Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief. This comprehensive plan will prevent 7 million new AIDS infections, treat at least 2 million people with life-extending drugs, and provide humane care for millions of people suffering from AIDS and for children orphaned by AIDS. Facilities across Africa will have the medicine to treat AIDS because it will be purchased with funds provided by the United States.

I'm asking the Congress to commit $15 billion to fight AIDS overseas for the next five years, beginning with $2 billion in 2004. This plan, coupled with our ongoing efforts, will nearly triple our current annual spending on the global fight against AIDS, malaria and tuberculosis.

Our efforts to combat AIDS in Africa remain more difficult by severe food shortage sweeping that continent, a crisis that affects up to 30 million people in Southern Africa and the Horn of Africa, particularly Ethiopia. Hunger, sickness and grief have left people across the continent even more vulnerable to the effects of AIDS.

Across the earth, America is feeding the hungry. More than 60 percent of international emergency food aid comes as a gift from the people of the United States. Building on this commitment, my budget for 2004 calls for more than $1 billion dollars to meet emergency food needs worldwide. Today, I announced a new proposal for a $200 million famine fund to bring immediate assistance to Africa and other regions facing starvation. Money from the fund will be available to purchase food supplies directly, or to support farmers in food production. We will encourage friends around the world to set up similar funds and leverage our combined resources to provide the most help to famine-stricken lands.

Through all our efforts to fight disease and hunger, we can spare people in many nations from untold suffering, and Africa especially. Millions are facing great affliction, but with our help, they will not face it alone. America has a special calling to come to their aid and we will do so with the compassion and generosity that have always defined the United States.

Thank you for listening.

Department of Veterans Affairs

Biennial Report to Congress

on the

Montgomery GI Bill
(38 U.S.C. Chapter 30)

January 2003

REV_00366478

Reporting Requirement

Section 3036 of Title 38, United States Code requires the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to send Congress a report on the chapter 30, Montgomery GI Bill—Active Duty Educational Assistance Program every other year. The report is to include:

- information on the level of utilization of educational assistance and expenditures under the program
- any appropriate recommendations for administrative and legislative changes to the program

Level of Enrollment

Individuals who first enter active duty after June 30, 1985, enroll in the MGIB program through a pay reduction of $100 per month for 12 months. Individuals can elect not to enroll in MGIB and not have the pay reduction. Since the start of MGIB, 79.71 percent of eligible enlistees and officers have chosen to be enrolled in the program. The table below shows the enrollment rate by branch of service.

	Fiscal Year 1999			Fiscal Year 2000

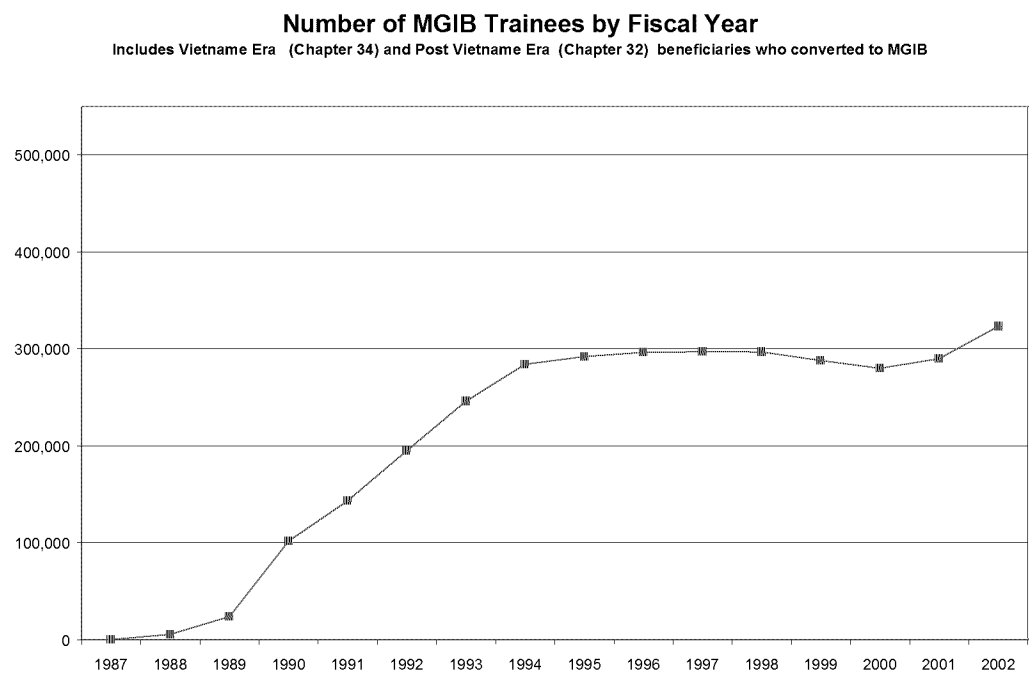
Level of Utilization



The Department of Defense reports that, through Fiscal Year 2002, almost 1.4 million individuals have entered the military, enrolled in the Montgomery GI Bill, by agreeing to have their pay reduced by $100 a month for 12 months, and honorably completed their active duty. More than 850,000, or about 59 percent, had used some or all of their benefits by the end of FY 2002. Veterans generally have ten years from the date of their release from active duty in which to use their benefits. The following chart shows the number of beneficiaries who passed their eligibility period each year and the percentage of these individuals who had used some of their benefits.

	Beneficiaries Who Passed Eligibility Period	Percent Who Used MGIB
FY 1999	54,000	70.2%
FY 2000	94,000	69.1%
FY 2001	83,000	70.3%
FY 2002	128,000	70.6%

Even though the program's effective date was July 1, 1985, the first MGIB trainee did not begin receiving benefits until November 1986. The level of utilization had been affected by the requirement that an individual must complete his or her initial period of service, normally 2 or 3 years, before the service member is eligible for educational assistance. Significant increases in trainees began during the last quarter of Fiscal Year 1988. The chart below shows the number of trainees in each fiscal year.

*The term "Ever" means the cumulative total of those who have received benefits. This includes Vietnam Era veterans who converted to MGIB without "paying in." Eligibility for flight training was established as of September 30, 1990.

A majority of beneficiaries attending colleges and vocational/technical schools go to school full-time. The table below gives a further breakdown by training time.

*VA expenditures include MGIB basic benefits and workstudy payments.

DOD expenditures include MGIB supplemental benefits (known as "kickers") Kickers are amounts DOD contributes to a participant's education fund to encourage enlistment or retention in the Armed Forces.

This constitutes the MGIB rate increase paid by the Defense Cooperation Account (DCA). This was money appropriated by Congress to use during the Gulf War.

Recommendations for Administrative and Legislative Changes

A comprehensive evaluation of VA's education assistance programs, completed in calendar year 2000 by Klemm Analysis Group, addressed usage and other issues surrounding the administration of VA education benefits. In general, the programs show success in meeting the intended purposes of the legislation while returning over $2 to the economy for every $1 in taxpayer funding. By many measures the centerpiece of the VA's education programs, The Montgomery GI Bill, has continued the success established by the original GI Bill of Rights. Compared to those who have not taken advantage of the MGIB, veterans who furthered their education under the program have lower unemployment, increased career and education goals, and higher earnings.

However, the evaluation showed that VA education benefits have not kept pace with education costs, do not reflect the increased diversity in available education and training programs, and are not communicated effectively. The 106th and 107th Congresses passed legislation to address the major issues raised in the program evaluation study. Public

Law 106-419 provided for MGIB benefits for some licensing and certification tests. This provision allows claimants to take an unlimited number of tests and receive MGIB benefits of up to $2,000 per test. The program took effect March 1, 2001. 1,552 tests were approved for payment of MGIB benefits by the end of Fiscal Year 2002. MGIB benefits for licensing and certification tests were paid to 3,217 people in Fiscal Year 2002. This law also contained a provision allowing service members to add an additional $600 to their MGIB account for an additional $5,400 in benefits.

Public Law 106-398 allows in-service students to receive VA benefits to pay for any tuition or school expenses not paid by the military services through their tuition assistance programs. Referred to as Tuition Assistance Top-Up, or just "Top-Up," more than 30,000 service members received this benefit during Fiscal Year 2002. Payments are generally less than VA pays veterans while attending school because active duty personnel use "Top-Up" to supplement the military tuition assistance programs. In addition, payment amounts vary by the number of courses taken, type of institution, and tuition charged. Ranging from less than $100 to well over $1,000, the average payment is about $480. During Fiscal Year 2002, VA made about 5,000 "Top-Up" payments each month. The number of "Top-Up" claims may decrease in Fiscal Year 2003 due to a change in the amount of tuition assistance the branches of service will pay.

Public Law 107-103 provides significant rate increases through Fiscal Year 2004. Starting in Fiscal Year 2003, this law also allows for accelerated payments for education leading to employment in high technology industries. It further expanded the definition of "educational institution" to allow for more flexibility in approving courses given by private entities.

Finally, Public Law 107-107 permits military services to allow service members, as a reenlistment option, to transfer MGIB entitlement to their dependents. This provision of the law will be funded in Fiscal Year 2003.

While Congress has made great progress in strengthening the MGIB, the level of education benefits, even with the significant rate increases, does not maintain the purchasing power it had when the MGIB was enacted in 1984. A solution to this weakness, provided budgetary restraints will allow, would be to tie the MGIB benefit rate to the average cost of a commuter student attending a four-year college. This cost is defined each year by the Department of Education.

ALLEGATION: Estrada's memoranda would be particularly important in light of a critical comment about him made by former Clinton Administration Deputy Solicitor General Paul Bender.

FACTS:

- Estrada received an "outstanding" rating in every performance category in the years that he worked in the Solicitor General's office. In the two years when Mr. Bender and Mr. Estrada worked together, the reviews were signed by Mr. Bender. (All ratings during those years were then reviewed and approved by Solicitor General Days.)
    - In the contemporaneous performance reviews, Mr. Bender stated the following about Mr. Estrada to support his judgment that Mr. Estrada's performance was "outstanding."
        - "states the operative facts and applicable law completely and persuasively, with record citations, and in conformance with court and office rules, and with concern for fairness, clarity, simplicity, and conciseness."
        - "[i]s extremely knowledgeable about resource materials and uses them expertly; acting independently, goes directly to the point of the matter and gives reliable, accurate, responsive information in communicating position to others."
        - "[a]ll dealings, oral, and written, with the courts, clients, and others are conducted in a diplomatic, cooperative, and candid manner."
        - "[a]ll briefs, motions or memoranda reviewed consistently reflect no policies at variance with Departmental or Governmental policies, or fails to discuss and analyze relevant authorities."
        - "constantly sought for advice and counsel [and] inspires co-workers by example."
- Estrada's superiors and colleagues have stated that Estrada's work in the Solicitor General's office was superb and that he was a well-respected colleague.
    - Seth Waxman, who was President Clinton's Solicitor General, wrote that Estrada is a "model of professionalism and competence" and that he has "great respect both for Mr. Estrada's intellect and for his integrity." He continued: "In no way did I ever discern that the recommendations Mr. Estrada made or the views he propounded were colored in any way by his personal views – or indeed that they reflected anything other than the long-term interests of the United States."
    - A bipartisan group of 14 colleagues from the Office of Solicitor General wrote to the Committee that Estrada "would be a fair and honest judge who would decide cases in accordance with applicable legal principles and precedents."

REV_00366649

ALLEGATION: In private practice, Estrada defended anti-loitering laws that civil rights groups have attacked.

FACTS:

- In private practice, Estrada's primary pro bono work was to defend a death row inmate in the Supreme Court seeking to overturn the death sentence.

- Estrada was retained to defend the constitutionality of anti-gang ordinances, which were enacted in Chicago with the strong public support of Democrat Mayor Daley, after Estrada was contacted by the Democrat City Solicitor of Chicago.

ALLEGATION: Estrada does not have support in the Hispanic community.

FACTS:

- Estrada has overwhelming support among Hispanic organizations and in the Hispanic community. For example, the League of United Latin American Citizens (which is the country's oldest Hispanic civil rights organization), the Hispanic National Bar Association, the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, the Hispanic Business Roundtable, the Latino Coalition, and many other Latino organizations strongly support Estrada.

ALLEGATION: Estrada did not answer questions on critical issues.

FACTS:

- Estrada testified at his hearing that he would "follow binding case law in every case" even when he may disagree with that precedent. He also stated that he recognized that "the Supreme Court has said in numerous occasions in the area of privacy and elsewhere that there are unenumerated rights in the Constitution. And I have no view of any sort, whether legal or personal, that would hinder me from applying those rulings by the Court."

- Estrada properly refused to say how he would rule on specific matters or cases that might come before him as a judge, which is both traditional and appropriate for a judicial nominee. He also refused to say how he might have ruled in certain past cases given that he had not read the briefs, heard oral arguments, and taken the other steps that are necessary before any good and neutral judge would or could indicate how he or she would rule.

- Lloyd Cutler, who served as Counsel to President Carter and President Clinton, has stated that "candidates should decline to reply when efforts are made to find out how they would decide a particular case."

No More Stalling; It's time for the Senate to confirm Miguel Estrada.
By Alberto R. Gonzales, Counsel to the President
Washington Post*, September 26, 2002

After 16 months of delay, the Senate Judiciary Committee will hold a hearing today on Miguel Estrada, one of President Bush's nominees to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. Estrada is superbly qualified for the job and would be the first Hispanic to serve on that court, which some consider to be the second-most-important federal court in America after the Supreme Court.

His extraordinary intellect, experience, integrity and support normally would mean a swift Senate confirmation -- particularly given the historic nature of the nomination. But some Senate Democrats have deemed Estrada controversial and are apparently threatening to block his confirmation. Sen. Charles E. Schumer (D-N.Y.) stated last April: "From my perusal of the record, [Estrada] is way out of the mainstream." I do not know what record Schumer could have been referring to. Estrada has not been the author of controversial opinions or articles, nor has he spoken out on divisive issues. He is not a politician or an interest-group leader who has sought to make policy. What he has done is serve, in a variety of public and private capacities, as a brilliant and careful lawyer devoted to the courts and the law.

But in the current political atmosphere, some nominees are not being assessed by the traditional standards of quality and ability to follow the law as a judge, but rather are being delayed or outright blocked because of distorted analyses of their perceived policy or personal views. As the president, the chief justice and the American Bar Association have stated, every judicial nominee deserves a prompt hearing and fair vote -- no matter who is president or which party controls the Senate. In the words of the ABA, "Vote them up or down, but don't hang them out to dry." It is past time for the Senate to act on a bipartisan basis to institute a fair and timely judicial confirmation process that will endure well into the future.

The problems in the judicial confirmation process have gone beyond mere delay, however. Even after hearings, for example, the Senate Judiciary Committee has refused to allow full Senate votes on well-qualified nominees -- despite the fact that the president's nominees would be confirmed if they received a full Senate vote. Single-issue Washington interest groups have played an unfortunate role in the process, moreover, by distorting records, leveling unfair charges and ignoring bipartisan support for the president's nominees.

That Estrada could be seen as controversial is an example of this regrettable trend. By any reasonable standard, he is an American success story. He came to this country as a teenager from Honduras speaking little English. He attended Columbia College and Harvard Law School, graduating with honors from both. He clerked for Justice Anthony M. Kennedy on the Supreme Court, served as an assistant U.S. attorney in the Southern District of New York and has worked at leading law firms in New York and Washington. He spent five years -- four during the Clinton administration -- in the U.S. solicitor general's office, which represents the United States before the Supreme Court. Estrada has argued 15 cases before the high court and is well known for his written and oral advocacy.

While in private practice, he devoted hundreds of hours -- for free -- to the representation of a death row inmate before the Supreme Court. Estrada's co-counsel in that case has written to the Senate that "[o]ne would not expect the defense of a death row inmate to become the legal mission of a strong political conservative." Estrada's decision to involve himself in that case demonstrates his devotion to the rule of law.

Estrada also has tremendous bipartisan support. He received a unanimous "well qualified" rating -- the highest possible -- from the ABA, which Schumer and Democratic Sen. Patrick J. Leahy (Vt.) have referred to as the "gold standard" for evaluating judicial nominees. A number of prominent Hispanic organizations have supported Estrada and urged the Senate to treat him fairly. He is supported by leading Democratic lawyers, including Ron Klain, who served as chief of staff to Vice President Al Gore, and by high-level officials of the Clinton Justice Department.

Former colleagues in the solicitor general's office also have publicly praised Estrada. Seth Waxman, solicitor general under President Clinton, has written to the Senate that he has "great respect both for Mr. Estrada's intellect and for his integrity" and that he is "a model of professionalism and competence." A bipartisan group of 14 former colleagues who served with Estrada in that office wrote to the Senate that Estrada "would be a fair and honest judge who would decide cases in accordance with applicable legal principles and precedents."

Few lawyers in the United States have the combination of intellect and experience that Miguel Estrada will bring to the D.C. Circuit. A mainstream nominee who has exhibited throughout his career the integrity and temperament to be a superb appeals court judge, a Hispanic immigrant who has risen to the peak of the legal profession, Miguel Estrada is an inspiration to Hispanics and to all Americans. The Senate should confirm him promptly.

MIGUEL ESTRADA
NOMINEE TO U.S. COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE D.C. CIRCUIT
(Nominated May 9, 2001)

Summary

Miguel Estrada is an American success story who represents the mainstream of American law and American values. He came to this country at age 17 as an immigrant from Honduras speaking little English. He has risen to the top of the legal profession – a magna cum laude graduate of Harvard Law School, law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy, federal prosecutor in New York, Assistant Solicitor General of the United States for one year in the Bush Administration and for four years in the Clinton Administration, and leading appellate lawyer at a national law firm. Miguel Estrada has argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, including one case in which he represented a death row inmate pro bono. He has strong bipartisan support from prominent Democrats, including from many high-ranking officials in the Clinton Administration such as Ron Klain, Seth Waxman, Bob Litt, and Randy Moss. The American Bar Association unanimously rated Miguel Estrada "well-qualified," its highest possible ranking. Miguel Estrada has strong support in the Hispanic community, including from LULAC, the Hispanic National Bar Association, the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, and numerous other Hispanic organizations. This is an historic appointment: If confirmed, Estrada would be the first Hispanic ever to serve on the D.C. Circuit, which many consider to be the second most important federal court in America. Miguel Estrada's nomination has been pending since May 9, 2001. The Senate should confirm him promptly.

STATEMENTS BY SELECT SUPPORTERS OF MIGUEL ESTRADA

League of United Latin American Citizens, Rick Dovalina, National President

> "On behalf of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the nation's oldest and largest Hispanic civil rights organization, I write to express our strong support for the confirmation of Mr. Miguel A. Estrada. . . . Few Hispanic attorneys have as strong educational credentials as Mr. Estrada who graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Columbia and magna cum laude from Harvard Law School, where he was editor of the Harvard Law Review. He also served as a law clerk to the Honorable Anthony M. Kennedy in the U.S. Supreme Court making him one of a handful of Hispanic attorneys to have had this opportunity. He is truly one of the rising stars in the Hispanic community and a role model for our youth." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, July 3, 2001.)

The Latino Coalition, Robert Deposada, President

> "To deny Latinos, the nation's largest minority, the opportunity to have one of our own serve on this court in our nation's capital is unforgivable." (April 10, 2002, press release.)

United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Elizabeth Lisboa-Farrow, President

> "We unanimously endorse this nominee and strongly urge you to move on the confirmation of Miguel Estrada. As a judge, he will be a credit to the federal judiciary, the President, Hispanics, and all Americans." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, October 23, 2001)

Hispanic National Bar Association, Rafael A. Santiago, National President

> "The Hispanic National Bar Association, national voice of over 25,000 Hispanic lawyers in the United States, issues its endorsement ... Mr. Estrada's confirmation will break new ground for Hispanics in the judiciary. The time has come to move on Mr. Estrada's nomination. I urge the Senate Committee on the Judiciary to schedule a hearing on Mr. Estrada's nomination and the U.S. Senate to bring this highly qualified nominee to a vote." (Excerpt from HBNA Press Release, October 12, 2001).

National Association of Small Disadvantaged Businesses, Henry T. Wilfong, Jr., President

> "The NASDB would like to add our support . . . for Miguel Estrada's nomination as United States Court of Appeals Judge for the District of Columbia Circuit. Mr. Estrada is a brilliantly talented and accomplished attorney who will make an outstanding addition to the prestigious D.C. Circuit. . . . While we do not dwell on symbolism, we feel that Mr. Estrada's appointment as the first Hispanic member of the DC Circuit will be of benefit to us in further illustrating the wide range of talent in the minority communities, just waiting to be effectively and fully used." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, July 12,

Hispanic Business Roundtable, Mario Rodriguez, President

"From his humble beginnings as an immigrant from Honduras who achieved a stellar academic career at Columbia University and Harvard Law School, to his varied and impressive achievements in the Justice Department and private firms, Mr. Estrada has shown himself to be of superior talents and accomplishments. . . . I am confident that this first Hispanic member of the DC Circuit will continue to lead a distinguished career with thoughtful and fair decisions." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, July 17, 2001.)

Barbara Hartung, co-counsel with Estrada in pro bono case representing death row inmate

"Miguel's respect for the Constitution and the law may explain why he took on Mr. Strickler's case [the death row inmate], which at bottom concerned the fundamental fairness of a capital trial and death sentence. One would not expect the defense of a death row inmate to become the legal mission of a strong political conservative." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, September 10, 2002.)

Herman Badillo, former Congressman from New York

"When confirmed by the Senate, Miguel Estrada, a brilliant lawyer with extraordinary credentials, will be the first Hispanic on the second most prestigious court in the land. He will be a role model not just for Hispanics, but for all immigrants and their children. His is the great American success story. . . . This treatment of Mr. Estrada is demeaning and unfair." (Wall Street Journal, January 30, 2003)

Seth Waxman, former Solicitor General to President Clinton

"During the time Mr. Estrada and I worked together, he was a model of professionalism and competence. . . . I greatly enjoyed working with Miguel, profited from our interactions, and was genuinely sorry when he decided to leave the office in favor of private practice. . . . I have great respect both for Mr. Estrada's intellect and for his integrity. . . . In no way did I ever discern that the recommendations Mr. Estrada made or the views he propounded were colored in any way by his personal views – or indeed that they reflected anything other than the long-term interests of the United States." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, September 17, 2001.)

Ronald Klain, former Counselor to Vice President Al Gore

"Miguel is a person of outstanding character, tremendous intellect, and with a deep commitment to the faithful application of precedent. . . . Miguel will rule justly toward all, without showing favor to any group or individual. . . . the challenges he has overcome in his life have made him genuinely compassionate, genuinely concerned for others, and genuinely devoted to helping those in need." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, January 16, 2002.)

REV_00366645

Bipartisan group of 14 former colleagues in the Office of the Solicitor General at U.S. Department of Justice

"Miguel is a brilliant lawyer, with an extraordinary capacity for articulate and incisive legal analysis and a commanding knowledge and appreciation for the law. Moreover, he is a person whose conduct is characterized by the utmost integrity and scrupulous fairness, as befits a nominee to the federal bench. In addition, Miguel has a deep and abiding love for his adopted country and the principles for which it stands, and in particular the rule of law. We hold varying ideological views and affiliations that range across the political spectrum, but we are unanimous in our conviction that Miguel would be a fair and honest judge who would decide cases in accordance with the applicable legal principles and precedents, not on the basis of personal preferences or political viewpoints." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, September 19, 2002.)

Randolph Moss, former Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legal Counsel for President Clinton

"I write to express my strong support for the nomination of Miguel Estrada to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ... Although I am a Democrat and Miguel and I do not see eye-to-eye on every issue, I hold Miguel in the highest regard, and I urge the Committee to give favorable consideration to his nomination." (Excerpt from Letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee, May 18, 2001).

"Randolph Moss, who clerked for Justice John Paul Stevens while Estrada clerked for Kennedy, says he 'did not find Estrada at all divisive. He was always an extremely principled guy, very honest and ethical. I worked amicably with him.'" (Legal Times, June 25, 2001.)

Leonard F. Joy, Attorney-in-Charge, Federal Defender Division, Legal Aid Society of New York

"Over Miguel's tenure in the United States Attorney's Office, we became good friends and frequently had lunch together. He has a good sense of humor and never had an ivory tower approach to life. It is fair to say that all the lawyers in my office liked him. Many of them are liberal in their politics and it is a credit to Miguel that he was able to get along with people who may have had different views than he. I think Miguel would make an excellent Circuit Court Judge. He is as fine a lawyer as I have met and, on top of all his intellectual abilities and judgment he would bring to bear, he would bring a desirable diversity to the Court. I heartily recommend him." (Excerpt of Letter to Senator Leahy, September 16, 2002.)

Robert S. Litt, Deputy Assistant Attorney General for President Clinton

"I disagreed with Mr. Estrada on a number of the issues that we faced, but I have no doubt that his positions were sincerely held and honestly advocated. . . . I never felt that the arguments he made were in any way outside the scope of legitimate legal analysis. . . . While I may disagree with some aspects of Mr. Estrada's legal philosophy, I believe that he is eminently qualified to serve on the Court of Appeals." (Excerpt from Letter to Senator Leahy, August 28, 2002.)

Washington Post* Editorial, September 29, 2002

"Democrats have suggested opposing him because of general concerns about the partisan 'balance' on the D.C. Circuit or because they don't know enough about his views to trust him. They also continue to fish for dirt on him. Sen. Charles E. Schumer (D-N.Y.) grilled him at his hearing about questions that have been raised anonymously concerning his aid to Justice Anthony M. Kennedy in picking clerks. And Democrats are still pushing to see confidential memos Mr. Estrada wrote in the solicitor general's office and trumpeting criticism of him by a single supervisor in that office -- criticism that has been discredited by that same colleague's written evaluations. Seeking Mr. Estrada's work product as a government lawyer is beyond any reasonable inquiry into what sort of judge he would be. Nor is it fair to reject someone as a judge because that person's decision to practice law, rather than write articles or engage in politics, makes his views more opaque. And it is terribly wrong to demand that Mr. Estrada answer charges to which nobody is willing to attach his or her name. . . . At the end of the day, Mr. Estrada must be considered on his merits. His confirmation is an easy call."

MIGUEL ESTRADA
Responses to False Allegations

ALLEGATION: Because Estrada has no judicial experience, he should not be confirmed.

FACTS:

- Those making this claim are employing a double standard.
    - Five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no previous judicial experience. That includes two of President Clinton's nominees, Merrick Garland, whose Justice Department record was quite similar to that of Miguel Estrada, and David Tatel. That also includes Judge Harry Edwards, who was appointed by President Carter in 1980 (when Edwards was younger than Estrada currently is).
        - Indeed, two recent Supreme Court Justices – Byron White, nominated by President Kennedy, and William Rehnquist, currently the Chief Justice -- had no prior judicial experience when appointed to the Supreme Court.
    - The American Bar Association, which Democrat Senators Leahy and Schumer have referred to as the "gold standard," unanimously rated Estrada "well qualified" for the D.C. Circuit, the ABA's highest possible rating.
    - Estrada has argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court and was a member of the Solicitor General's office in both the Bush and Clinton Administrations. He also has been a highly respected federal prosecutor in New York.

ALLEGATION: The Administration has refused to produce memoranda that Estrada wrote when he was an Assistant to the Solicitor General.

FACTS:

- Again, a double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada. These confidential attorney-client memos were not requested for the seven previous nominees to the Courts of Appeals who had worked in the Solicitor General's office.
- In addition, every living former Solicitor General – Democrat and Republican – signed a joint letter to the Committee, stating that this request would have a debilitating effect on the ability of the Department of Justice to represent the United States before the Supreme Court. The letter was signed by Democrats Archibald Cox, Seth Waxman, Drew Days, and Walter Dellinger.

The Loyalist

With devotion to the president and the office, Alberto Gonzales '82 tackles the complications and controversies of the White House counsel's job

by Lewis Rice <mailto:lrice@law.harvard.edu>

Alberto Gonzales '82 (in his West Wing office) advises President Bush on all legal issues concerning the president and the White House.

Alberto Gonzales '82 was back in Texas not long after he left for his first job outside his home state. He stood at the front of a lecture hall at Rice University, where as a youngster he had sold soft drinks in the football stadium. Now it was his alma mater, and he was a local boy made good, made famous even. And he spoke about who had made him good, who had made him famous. He was answering a question he gets a lot, about who his heroes are, and he answered it--at least at first--in a way a lot of people do. Though he had more reason than most to choose as heroes his parents: natives of Mexico with little education or money, who raised eight children in a two-bedroom house and, he noted, not once asked for help from the government. But he also called his boss a hero. It may sound self-serving, he said, but that doesn't make it untrue. For he has seen his boss, who happens to be the president of the United States, not only as an employer, but as a statesman, a father, a friend, a mentor.

That admiration and respect for George W. Bush infuse everything Gonzales does in a job that is as unpredictable as it is demanding: the White House counsel, the lawyer for the president and for the presidency, a person with an imprint on almost everything that originates from the seat of executive power. The job has catapulted Gonzales to the center of attention and contention on such issues as judicial nominations, Iraq and executive privilege. It is the fourth time he has taken a job at the behest of Bush, his fourth once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, he says. And the Washington chatter indicates that it may not be the last: Gonzales, many say, is a leading contender to fill the next vacancy on the U.S. Supreme Court. Such talk is flattering, Gonzales says, but he has enough to worry about now.

He painstakingly outlines those concerns in his speech, listing nine responsibilities of the job, including vetting people appointed to work in the White House, drafting legislation, monitoring litigation in the Department of Justice, developing policy, offering legal advice on national security matters and chairing the White House judicial selection committee. Then there are the responsibilities that can't be anticipated, of which he's had many.

Sometimes the job seems to entail, more than anything, responding to the crisis of the moment, he says in an interview with the Bulletin. He's there in the meetings that drive the White House operation, answering legal questions when they come up. And there are times when he practices very little law. But his most crucial function, he says, is simply to be there for the person at whose pleasure he serves.

"For me, the most important part of this job is being able to work for this president based upon my relationship with him, and that is what makes this job so special for me--being able to help him in an extraordinarily difficult time," said Gonzales. "It is a tremendously burdensome position. Everything that I say, everything that I do publicly, is monitored, is analyzed, is cataloged away for future reference."

Put another way, the job can be "one damn thing after another," as a White House counsel for Ronald Reagan once described it. But that's not the kind of language or tone Gonzales would use; during a visit to his West Wing office, he shows why people who work with him call him "the judge," a formal title from his stint as a Texas Supreme Court justice but also an affectionate description of a courtly manner: polite, soft-spoken, reflective. He describes himself as mild-mannered, as do those who know him. But that mildness should not be mistaken for weakness, nor should his lack of wordiness be taken as lack of conviction, says Viet Dinh '93, who has worked closely with Gonzales as head of the Justice Department's Office of Legal Policy.

"He is a very effective leader because he has a quiet resolve--he provides leadership and does it through consensus rather than steamrolling," said Dinh. "Any fear that his consensus is not backed by leadership is misplaced because behind the congenial operating manner is a very clear vision and very good leadership style."

That style has helped him negotiate the many shared responsibilities of the Justice Department and the counsel's office, says Dinh, who crafted the USA Patriot Act and credits Gonzales as "critical to its passage." Just as they did to everyone else in the administration, the attacks of 9/11 turned Gonzales' focus to anti-terror measures and thrust him into the debate over a possible war with Iraq. Over the summer, the counsel reportedly advised the president that congressional approval was not required to take action against Iraq. But on the same day in October that the president would sign the joint congressional resolution authorizing him to use force against Iraq if necessary, Gonzales would rather talk about the drafting of the language in the counsel's office and the series of meetings with staff and leadership in Congress that led to agreement. The point, said Gonzales, is that the president decided to go to Congress to get authorization. And he got it done.

President Bush returns to the White House on Sept. 11, 2001, followed by Karen Hughes, then White House counselor, and Gonzales.

Gonzales will always credit the president first, not least for leading him to the place he is today. Many people with much more privileged backgrounds don't get the same opportunities, but he has, he says, because one person believed in him.

"I owe all that, really, to the president," said Gonzales. "Sometimes life works out that way; there is really no good explanation. All you can do is prepare yourself, get a good education, get good training, and the next time the next George W. Bush comes along, you're there and you're ready, and that person could turn the tables for you."

Gonzales began the training for his career after serving in the U.S. Air Force, attending the Air Force Academy and getting his bachelor's degree from Rice. He had never seen Harvard Law School before arriving as a student in the summer of 1979. That first day, he remembers riding a 10-speed bike and parking in front of Langdell Hall, and feeling joy and pride and even awe at being a part of such a place. But soon enough came another feeling, one not as often associated with students at HLS. He felt comfortable. It helped that he was older than many other students, and it helped to realize that it wouldn't be the end of the world if he didn't make straight A's (which was a good thing because he didn't). He hung around with a group of students who shared his feeling of calm and feeling of good fortune, people who knew they would get great jobs, were there to learn but also to enjoy themselves. They knew the world, eventually, would come to them.

It did to Gonzales in the form of an offer from Vinson & Elkins in Houston. He worked there on corporate transactions, aiming for partnership. He even declined a job offer from George H.W. Bush to serve in his administration in Washington. It was a low-level position, and Gonzales saw better opportunities ahead if he stayed and made partner.

He proved himself on a public offering that took half a year and involved local counsels in more than a dozen states, according to Robert Baird '69, a partner at Vinson & Elkins. Gonzales was a "get-the-job-done kind of guy," said Baird, working hard and showing sound judgment. Just as important, however, was the way he did it.

"Being the kind of gentleman that Al is," he said, "is probably the most effective way to approach the situation, because most corporate transaction projects are projects where different constituencies with different interests are working together toward a common end, and there is a lot of persuasion involved. So if you get everybody on your team and you get everyone working in parallel, the transaction goes so much more smoothly. I think Al, with his personality, is superb at that. And I would guess that quality is extremely important in the kind of arena that he is playing in now."

Gonzales eventually did make partner and made a good living at it. So some people questioned whether it really was a better opportunity when Texas Gov. George W. Bush, then a political newcomer, asked him to serve as his general counsel at the recommendation of local attorneys. But he wanted to do something different, wanted to go into public service and, though he didn't know Bush well then, saw his chance to do something important. After three years in the counsel job, he went on to serve as Texas secretary of state and a justice on the Supreme Court of Texas. Over the years, Gonzales says, he and Bush have built a good relationship. The president, he says, is comfortable with his style of providing advice. One of the first things Bush did after he became president-elect was ask Gonzales, with his wife and three boys, to come with him to Washington. Gonzales didn't really need to think about it. "I am not sure that there will ever be a job that I would say 'no' to, if he asked me to do it," he said.

The words "first" and "Hispanic" cling to Gonzales in life and on the page. They are used in the typical summary of him: the first Hispanic White House counsel, the first Hispanic partner at his firm, a leading candidate to become the first Hispanic justice on the Supreme Court (though, depending on how one defines the term, Benjamin Cardozo, a Sephardic Jew of Portuguese descent who served on the high court from 1932 to 1938, may actually have been the first Hispanic justice). Throughout Gonzales' career, he has belonged to Hispanic organizations, serving as president of the Houston Hispanic Bar Association and chairman of the Republican National Hispanic Assembly of Harris County, Texas. In 1999, the Hispanic National Bar Association gave him the Latino Lawyer of the Year award.

His heritage is important to him and also important to a president who has emphasized including people of all backgrounds and ethnicities in his administration, Gonzales says. When the White House counsel wrote an op-ed in the Washington Post in September advocating for Miguel Estrada's ('86) confirmation to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit (the confirmation was stalled in committee last year), he noted that Estrada "is an inspiration to Hispanics and to all Americans." Many people do feel special pride in seeing someone who looks like them in positions of prominence, he says.

"It is true that, for some Americans, they couldn't care less that I am Hispanic, doing this job. What they care about is that the job gets done right," he said. "But I am always very mindful that for another segment of the population, there is a special pride that someone named Gonzales is advising the president of the United States on legal issues."

But he also is quick to note that there is no Hispanic way to judge a case or to do a job, and that, while it pleases Bush when a well-qualified person may also happen to be Hispanic or another minority, merit will always be the priority for the president. Gonzales agrees, and that's why he says he doesn't concern himself with debates on whether he got this far because of his heritage. It's what he has done with the opportunities that matters, he says.

Judging that, of course, may depend largely on what you think of what President Bush has done in office. Gonzales doesn't like to talk about the advice he's given to the president, but he has helped guide Bush through legal questions surrounding the war on terrorism, such as military tribunals and detaining suspects without counsel. Tribunals, Gonzales said, "would provide basic rights to terrorists, but they would be structured in a way which would ensure the continued protection of the national security of this country." And in every war this country has fought, he says, people have been detained without access to a lawyer, even if they are American citizens. "I think legally we are right, and that will be confirmed in the courts," said Gonzales. "[But] maybe we need to do a better job of educating the American public about what we are doing here and the need for that course of action."

Though his office tries to find ways to allow the president to do what he believes needs to be done to protect the country, there are times, Gonzales says, when he has to tell the president what he doesn't want to hear. An effective White House counsel is one who can say "no" to his boss. That has happened occasionally, particularly on questions of executive privilege. People have criticized the secrecy of this White House, but that charge is leveled against most administrations, he says. The White House has released most documents that Congress has requested, Gonzales says, and has reached agreement on releasing some disputed records, such as those detailing the administration's contacts with Enron. In addition, the president may want to turn over communications that, in the opinion of his counsel, should be privileged, and his counsel doesn't hesitate to advise him that he shouldn't. "My job is to protect the institution of the presidency, and so, in that case, my job is to make the president understand that 'by doing this, Mr. President, you'll weaken the institution of the presidency,'" said Gonzales. "This president has great respect for that institution, so when someone tells him that it weakens it, he considers that very, very seriously."

Gonzales also advises the president on the judiciary, an institution of government that he fears has been weakened by the Senate's failure to fill a number of vacancies. Indeed, by the end of November the Senate had confirmed only about half of Bush's circuit court nominees, while it confirmed a much higher percentage for recent presidents in their first two years in office. The dearth of confirmations and the long delays in hearings for many nominees are frustrating, he acknowledges. Particularly unfortunate, he says, was the failed 5th Circuit nomination last year of Priscilla Owen, with whom he served on the Supreme Court of Texas. (In January, she was renominated to the appeals court.) Her critics cited Gonzales' own words in an abortion case, in which he characterized Owen's interpretation of a statute as an "unconscionable act of judicial activism," as evidence of her unfitness for the court of appeals. But disagreement, he notes, should not mean disqualification, a point he made in a letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Earlier last year, he cited the judicial issue as one key reason that the Republicans needed to take back the Senate in the fall elections. Before the Republican victory, in fact, came to pass, Bush and his counsel unveiled a proposal that would streamline the judicial confirmation process. The initiative calls for the Senate Judiciary Committee to hold a hearing within 90 days of receiving a nomination and for the full Senate to vote on each nominee within 180 days after the nomination is submitted. "All Americans would see a more dignified process and have their federal courts fully staffed to protect their rights and their liberties," Bush said. "And the vacancy crisis would be resolved once and for all."

At its core, the wrangling over judicial nominees exemplifies a fundamental disagreement on what makes a person qualified for the job, according to Gonzales. "That person should come to the bench with no personal agenda to follow," he said. "Certain Democrats on the Judiciary Committee believe that judges do come with a personal agenda. . . . [They] ask, 'What are your personal beliefs about an issue?' because they believe that that is going to impact your decision making as a judge. I think that that is wholly inappropriate; I think it is wrong for a judge to pursue a personal agenda, and their own personal beliefs, in my judgment, are wholly irrelevant to how they should do their job as a judge."

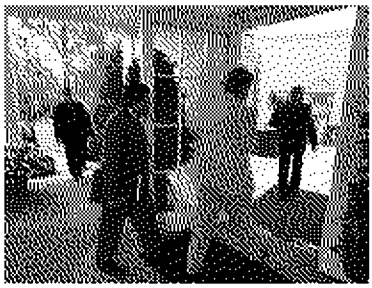
He believed the same when he was a judge. And he has been criticized for it by people in his own party, as in the abortion case in which he differed from Owen. In that opinion, he ruled with the majority to overturn a lower court ruling, thereby allowing a minor to have an abortion without parental consent. In doing so, he was following the law, not his own values, he wrote: "While the ramifications of such a law and the results of the Court's decision may be personally troubling to me as a parent, it is my obligation as a judge to impartially apply the laws of this state without imposing my moral view on the decisions of the Legislature."

That deference to legislative intent pervaded Gonzales' time on the bench, according to Supreme Court of Texas Chief Justice Thomas Phillips ' 74. For example, Gonzales' opinion in another case, Fitzgerald v. Advanced Spine Fixation Systems, reads as a "paean to strict statutory construction," he said.

Gonzales' decisions "show an equal disdain for activism, regardless of what side of the political spectrum it comes from," Phillips said. "I never saw anything inconsistent on that, and I never had any sense that he was casting any votes based on whether somebody--a former employee, a contributor, a friend who was governor or anybody else--would approve or disapprove."

On the court, Gonzales was soft-spoken, not confrontational, said Phillips: "He tried to prevail through reason rather than intimidation." Perhaps it is a testimony to that style that the case Phillips cites to praise his former colleague is one in which he took the opposite side.

* * *



Kenneth Starr's book about the Rehnquist court, "First Among Equals," lies on a shelf outside Gonzales' office on the day of the interview. Whether Gonzales will be a member of that court is a topic of much speculation. But of course no one who has any say in the matter, least of all Gonzales himself, is talking about it. Viet Dinh, who helps recommend judges to the president, was asked what he would think of a candidate for the Supreme Court with Judge Gonzales' credentials. He laughed and laughed at the question, and he didn't stop laughing until he said goodbye.

Such talk is not a distraction to Gonzales at all, he says. There is nothing he can do about it, and he is a person who focuses on what he can do. But he does worry about something, on top of the worries inherent in his current role. He wonders what he will do next after his job in the White House is done, what will be as exciting and satisfying. After all, how many once-in-a-lifetime opportunities can one person have?

The White House Case for Miguel Estrada
A final attempt to correct the record.

Senate debate is set to begin today on the nomination of Miguel Estrada to a place on the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals. It is still not clear whether Democrats will attempt to block a vote on Estrada, who won approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee last week on a straight party-line vote. On Monday, White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales sent a letter to Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein in a last attempt to gain her support * if not for the nomination itself, then at least for allowing a full-Senate vote. Although the letter is framed as an effort to correct some of the "inaccurate or incomplete information" that Feinstein has cited in her opposition to Estrada, it is in fact the most concise and effective argument the White House has yet made for the nomination. What follows is the full text of the Gonzales letter.
* Byron York

February 3, 2003

Dear Senator Feinstein:
I write in response to your vote in the Judiciary Committee on the nomination of Miguel Estrada and to respectfully urge that you reconsider this important nomination when you vote on it in the full Senate. I write in particular because it appears from your statement in the Committee (and on your web site) that you may possess inaccurate or incomplete information on certain issues that you have deemed important to the Estrada nomination.
First, it appears you relied on the fact that Estrada has no previous judicial service. But five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no previous judicial experience when appointed. That includes two of President Clinton's nominees, Merrick Garland, whose Justice Department record was quite similar to that of Miguel Estrada, and David Tatel. In addition, Judge Harry Edwards had no prior judicial experience when he was nominated by President Carter in 1979, and he was younger than Estrada. In addition, several Ninth Circuit judges from California who were appointed by President Clinton, and had your support, had no prior judicial experience. That includes Judge William Fletcher, Judge Raymond Fisher, and Judge Marsha Berzon.
The American Bar Association, which Democrat Senators Leahy and Schumer have referred to as the "gold standard," unanimously rated Estrada "well qualified" for the D.C. Circuit, the ABA's highest possible rating. We think the ABA rating was quite appropriate in light of Estrada's excellent record, including his work as an Assistant Solicitor General in the Clinton and Bush Administrations, his record as a federal prosecutor in New York, his service as a law clerk to Justice Kennedy, and his pro bono work including his volunteer representation of a death row inmate before the Supreme Court. He has argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, a figure that few lawyers can match, and particularly impressive for someone who immigrated to this country at age 17 speaking little English.

Second, you also referenced a news report quoting the views of Paul Bender, a former Deputy Solicitor General. Mr. Bender has not written a letter to the Committee or otherwise publicly explained his views, so we are unclear whether this news report was accurate. But more important, as I explained in a September 17, 2002, letter to then-Chairman Leahy and Senator Hatch, Paul Bender in fact signed the performance reviews of Miguel Estrada for the two years that they worked together. The performance reviews for those years gave Estrada the highest possible rating of "outstanding" in every possible category. Significantly, the performance reviews that Bender signed also stated the following to support the judgment that Estrada's performance was "outstanding."

"states the operative facts and applicable law completely and persuasively, with record citations, and in conformance with court and office rules, and with concern for fairness, clarity, simplicity, and conciseness."

"[i]s extremely knowledgeable of resource materials and uses them expertly; acting independently, goes directly to point of the matter and gives reliable, accurate, responsive information in communicating position to others."

"[a]ll dealings, oral and written, with the courts, clients, and others are conducted in a diplomatic, cooperative, and candid manner."

"[a]ll briefs, motions or memoranda reviewed consistently reflect no policies at variance with Departmental or Governmental policies, or fails to discuss and analyze relevant authorities."

"[i]s constantly sought for advice and counsel. Inspires co-workers by example."

Apart from the contemporaneous reviews that Mr. Bender himself signed, it also bears mention that the Committee has received letters from Seth Waxman, President Clinton's Solicitor General, and a bipartisan group of 14 former colleagues of Mr. Estrada in the Solicitor General's office. Seth Waxman wrote to the Committee that Estrada is a "model of professionalism and competence" and that he has "great respect both for Mr. Estrada's intellect and for his integrity." He continued: "In no way did I ever discern that the recommendations Mr. Estrada made or the views he propounded were colored in any way by his personal views - or indeed that they reflected anything other than the long-term interests of the United States." And the bipartisan group of former colleagues from the Office of Solicitor General wrote to the Committee that Estrada "would be a fair and honest judge who would decide cases in accordance with applicable legal principles and precedents." Finally, to the extent Mr. Bender's own personal political and ideological views are relevant, we call your attention to Senator Hatch's opening statement at the hearing on September 26, 2002.

Third, you referenced the fact that Miguel Estrada has been "accused" of using an ideological litmus test when assisting Justice Kennedy in the selection of his law clerks. We respectfully do not think this "accusation" is credible or supported. In fact, Mr. Estrada explained at his hearing that he in fact had been very supportive, for example, of the hiring of one law clerk for Justice Kennedy who at the time worked for President Clinton, is a strong Democrat, and now works for Senator Leahy on the Judiciary Committee.

Fourth, you noted concern among "Hispanic organizations." In fact, the overwhelming majority of national Hispanic organizations have supported Mr. Estrada. That includes the Hispanic National Bar Association, the League of United Latin American Citizens, the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, the Hispanic Business Roundtable, and the Latino Coalition, among many others. To be sure, MALDEF and PRLDEF do oppose Mr. Estrada. As to Hispanic members of the House, we understand that all of the Republican Hispanics support him while the Democrat Hispanics do not. In any event, LULAC's statement is noteworthy, as it states: "[Estrada] is truly one of the rising stars in the Hispanic community and a role model for our youth."

Thank you for considering this nominee in light of the above information. This is an historic nomination, as Miguel Estrada would be the first Hispanic to serve on the D.C. Circuit. We urge you to vote to confirm him.
Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales

NAT HENTOFF SWEET LAND OF LIBERTY
According to vociferous Democrats on the Senate judiciary committee, Mississippi Judge Charles Pickering is an especially outrageous presidential nominee to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. Minority Senate leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota pledges that ''we're going to do eve rything we can to stop that nomination.'' If need be, say Sens. Ted Kennedy (Massachusetts) and Charles Schumer (New York), they will paralyze Senate business and filibuster.
Whatever one's attitude about whether Pickering merits the promotion, the way these Democratic senators have ignored -- or deliberately misstated -- the facts in their key charge against Pickering reveals how scrofulous the partisanship on this committee c an become.
This behavior is not exclusive to these senators. I also include in this the various anti-Pickering organizations who imply that he is a racist, and who are complicit in denying him basic fairness on this widely publicized accusation.
Indeed, I cite The Washington Post, which last year called the U.S. District Court judge's first hearing ''a degradation of the confirmation process.''
The anti-Pickering campaign's keystone concerns United States v. Swan, a 1994 case involving three white men who burned a cross in front of the home of a white man and his black wife in a rural Mississippi county. The Civil Rights Division of the U.S. Justice Department decided to make a plea bargain with two of the three defendants. It made sense for 25-year-old Mickey Thomas, because of his low I.Q. But the other, a 17-year-old whose name was not released because of his age, turned out to be the ringleader. Both pleaded guilty and, based on the prosecutors' recommendations, received no jail time.

But the government insisted that 20-year-old Daniel Swan be given a mandatory minimum sentence of 7 1/2 years under the federal hate crimes statute. According to that law, the government had to prove that the considerable jail time was justified because the defendant had sufficient racial animus to be punished under that law.

The ringleader had previously fired a gun into the home of the interracial couple. The other defendants were not involved in that incident. And the 17-year-old defendant also had a history of anti-black attitudes. Swan, clearly involved in the cross-burning, did not have a prior record of violent hostility toward blacks.

Swan refused to bargain and pleaded not guilty. In a two-part documented account of why Pickering did not want to impose the 7 1/2 year sentence on Swan -- as appeared in the National Review Online article ''The Cross-Burning Case: What Really Happened'' -- reporter Byron York wrote: ''When it came time to sentence Swan, Pickering questioned whether it made sense that the most-guilty defendant got off with a misdemeanor and no jail time, while a less-guilty defendant would be sentenced to 7 1/2 years in prison.''

One of the prosecutors, Jack Lacy, wrote to Pickering that he ''personally agreed with the judge that the sentence is draconian,'' but added that Swan had ''repeatedly chucked our (plea) offer in our teeth.''

Pickering did try hard to get the Justice Department to recommend a lower sentence that would have more to do with justice than with the prosecutor's pique that Swan had refused to accept a plea bargain. ''Finally,'' York wrote, ''Pickering got word from Civil Rights Division prosecutors, who said they had decided to drop the demand that Swan be given the five-year minimum portion of the recommended sentence. Pickering then sentenced Swan to 27 months in jail.''

At the sentencing, Pickering told Swan that he had committed ''a despicable act ... and it's an area that we've got to stamp out; that we've got to learn to live (together).'' Yet, Schumer threatened to filibuster against Pickering's elevation to the 5th Circuit because the judge, Schumer said, showed ''glaring racial insensitivity'' in working to get a lighter sentence for Swan. And New York Times columnist Maureen Dowd writes that Pickering has ''a soft spot for cross-burners.''

Sen. Kennedy has also charged that Pickering showed selective leniency toward this white cross-burner, while coming down hard on black defendants before him.

However, I have copies of the letters to the Senate Judiciary Committee from four lawyers in Hattiesburg, Miss., who represented black defendants before Pickering. Each tells of cases in which Pickering made significant downward departures from federal sentencing guidelines for these black defendants. Are these the actions of a racist?

Adrian/Susan - is this format okay for the Pulaski County event on 3/5?
You'll see that they have a pre-reception - no photos or anything, just a mix and mingle before remarks at the dinner.

Brett - once they take out his official title, does the invitation pass muster with you?

Tom Josefiak is also reviewing.

Brett

Thanks again
THere indeed is a formal event. Yale University has started a scholarship through their endowment for the four kids... each DKE class is doing a fundraising drive within their year... We the class of 1990 have raised over $6000 dollars from 14 individuals. Each class is going to present to the current DKEs a "fake big check" in the amount they raised.

I hope that is helpful.

Subject:	Ari Press Briefing 2/6/03 (Response to a question on Estrada)

Q Second, unrelated question. Is the President involved in the Miguel Estrada nomination and getting him passed -- is he involved personally, or who's handling that for him here in the White House?

MR. FLEISCHER: Well, the President obviously is monitoring it very closely. The President looks at the judiciary and sees the number of vacancies that exist, and is cognizant of the fact that there's a judicial emergency in America, where a large number of seats in both the appellate level and the district level remain unfilled, particularly at the appellate level.

The nomination of Miguel Estrada has now been passed out of the Senate Judiciary Committee. It will proceed shortly to the floor of the United States Senate, and already a number of important Democrats are distancing themselves from the rare efforts of some in the Democrat Party to filibuster the naming of a judge who obviously has bipartisan support to be confirmed. It is rare; it would be absolutely unprecedented for a filibuster to be successful. It has never, ever happened on this level. Neither party has ever successfully filibustered an appeals court nominee.

So the President understands that there may be some who oppose -- let them have their day on the floor, put it to a vote. And if a majority passes and the finest traditions of our country have been honored, and the President's right to name people in his constitutional role as the Chief Executive to the judiciary will be honored.

As some of you know, on Monday I will begin as a counsel to the Majority Leader.

Thank you all for your collegiality and friendship, and your hard work in all of our past work together, especially in defense of very good people who want to serve our country as judges. There is nothing that I enjoyed more than when we all worked as a team, and in all of my professional life there is nothing of which I am prouder than my association with Senator Hatch.

Now moving on, I share in the excitement that I see in all of you, and the desire to do some good.

Two last things: don't believe what you read in the papers, and,

Department of Veterans Affairs

Biennial Report to Congress

on the

Montgomery GI Bill
(38 U.S.C. Chapter 30)

January 2003

REV_00367307

Reporting Requirement

Section 3036 of Title 38, United States Code requires the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to send Congress a report on the chapter 30, Montgomery GI Bill—Active Duty Educational Assistance Program every other year. The report is to include:

- information on the level of utilization of educational assistance and expenditures under the program
- any appropriate recommendations for administrative and legislative changes to the program

Level of Enrollment

Individuals who first enter active duty after June 30, 1985, enroll in the MGIB program through a pay reduction of $100 per month for 12 months. Individuals can elect not to enroll in MGIB and not have the pay reduction. Since the start of MGIB, 79.71 percent of eligible enlistees and officers have chosen to be enrolled in the program. The table below shows the enrollment rate by branch of service.

	Fiscal Year 1999			Fiscal Year 2000
Service Branch	Eligible	Enrollees	Enrollment Rate	Eligible	Enrollees	Enrol Ra
Army	64,464	60,625	94.0%	63,519	60,437	95.

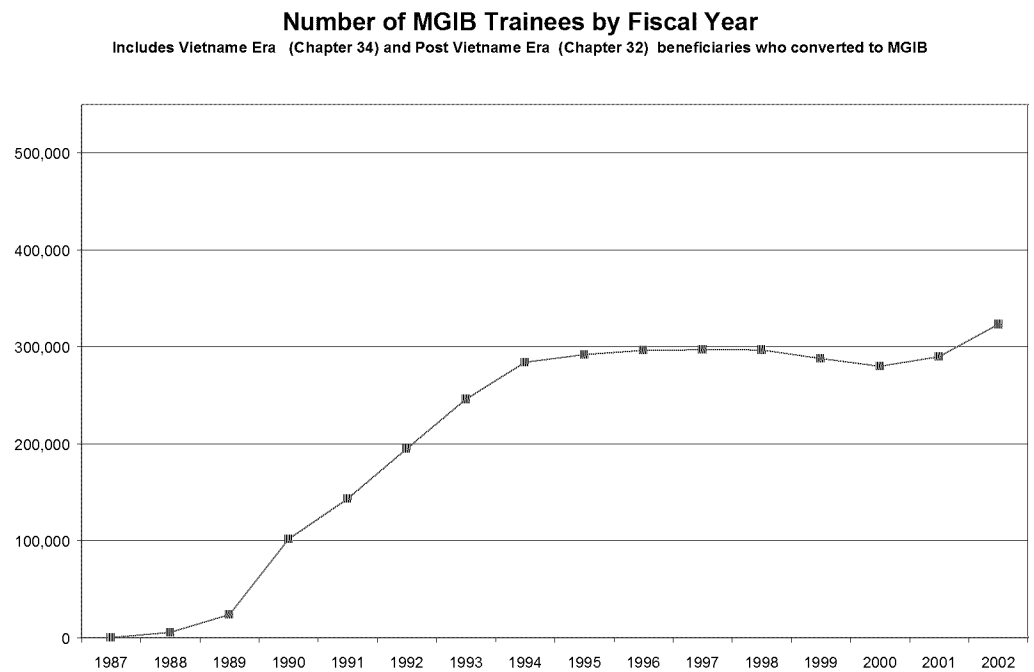
Note: FY 2002 DoD data is unavailable at this time.

Level of Utilization



The Department of Defense reports that, through Fiscal Year 2002, almost 1.4 million

individuals have entered the military, enrolled in the Montgomery GI Bill, by agreeing to have their pay reduced by $100 a month for 12 months, and honorably completed their active duty. More than 850,000, or about 59 percent, had used some or all of their benefits by the end of FY 2002. Veterans generally have ten years from the date of their release from active duty in which to use their benefits. The following chart shows the number of beneficiaries who passed their eligibility period each year and the percentage of these individuals who had used some of their benefits.

	Beneficiaries Who Passed Eligibility Period	Percent Who Used MGIB
FY 1999	54,000	70.2%
FY 2000	94,000	69.1%
FY 2001	83,000	70.3%
FY 2002	128,000	70.6%

Even though the program's effective date was July 1, 1985, the first MGIB trainee did not begin receiving benefits until November 1986. The level of utilization had been affected by the requirement that an individual must complete his or her initial period of service, normally 2 or 3 years, before the service member is eligible for educational assistance. Significant increases in trainees began during the last quarter of Fiscal Year 1988. The chart below shows the number of trainees in each fiscal year.

Utilization During Fiscal Year 1999, 2000, 2001, and 2002

The table below shows the number of trainees by type of training during each of the last four fiscal years and cumulative from the start of the MGIB program.

*The term "Ever" means the cumulative total of those who have received benefits. This includes Vietnam Era veterans who converted to MGIB without "paying in." Eligibility for flight training was established as of September 30, 1990.

A majority of beneficiaries attending colleges and vocational/technical schools go to school full-time. The table below gives a further breakdown by training time.

*VA expenditures include MGIB basic benefits and workstudy payments.

DOD expenditures include MGIB supplemental benefits (known as "kickers") Kickers are amounts DOD contributes to a participant's education fund to encourage enlistment or retention in the Armed Forces.

This constitutes the MGIB rate increase paid by the Defense Cooperation Account (DCA). This was money appropriated by Congress to use during the Gulf War.

Recommendations for Administrative and Legislative Changes

A comprehensive evaluation of VA's education assistance programs, completed in calendar year 2000 by Klemm Analysis Group, addressed usage and other issues surrounding the administration of VA education benefits. In general, the programs show success in meeting the intended purposes of the legislation while returning over $2 to the economy for every $1 in taxpayer funding. By many measures the centerpiece of the VA's education programs, The Montgomery GI Bill, has continued the success established by the original GI Bill of Rights. Compared to those who have not taken advantage of the MGIB, veterans who furthered their education under the program have lower unemployment, increased career and education goals, and higher earnings.

However, the evaluation showed that VA education benefits have not kept pace with education costs, do not reflect the increased diversity in available education and training programs, and are not communicated effectively. The 106th and 107th Congresses passed legislation to address the major issues raised in the program evaluation study. Public

Law 106-419 provided for MGIB benefits for some licensing and certification tests. This provision allows claimants to take an unlimited number of tests and receive MGIB benefits of up to $2,000 per test. The program took effect March 1, 2001. 1,552 tests were approved for payment of MGIB benefits by the end of Fiscal Year 2002. MGIB benefits for licensing and certification tests were paid to 3,217 people in Fiscal Year 2002. This law also contained a provision allowing service members to add an additional $600 to their MGIB account for an additional $5,400 in benefits.

Public Law 106-398 allows in-service students to receive VA benefits to pay for any tuition or school expenses not paid by the military services through their tuition assistance programs. Referred to as Tuition Assistance Top-Up, or just "Top-Up," more than 30,000 service members received this benefit during Fiscal Year 2002. Payments are generally less than VA pays veterans while attending school because active duty personnel use "Top-Up" to supplement the military tuition assistance programs. In addition, payment amounts vary by the number of courses taken, type of institution, and tuition charged. Ranging from less than $100 to well over $1,000, the average payment is about $480. During Fiscal Year 2002, VA made about 5,000 "Top-Up" payments each month. The number of "Top-Up" claims may decrease in Fiscal Year 2003 due to a change in the amount of tuition assistance the branches of service will pay.

Public Law 107-103 provides significant rate increases through Fiscal Year 2004. Starting in Fiscal Year 2003, this law also allows for accelerated payments for education leading to employment in high technology industries. It further expanded the definition of "educational institution" to allow for more flexibility in approving courses given by private entities.

Finally, Public Law 107-107 permits military services to allow service members, as a reenlistment option, to transfer MGIB entitlement to their dependents. This provision of the law will be funded in Fiscal Year 2003.

While Congress has made great progress in strengthening the MGIB, the level of education benefits, even with the significant rate increases, does not maintain the purchasing power it had when the MGIB was enacted in 1984. A solution to this weakness, provided budgetary restraints will allow, would be to tie the MGIB benefit rate to the average cost of a commuter student attending a four-year college. This cost is defined each year by the Department of Education.

Department of Veterans Affairs

on the

Montgomery GI Bill
(38 U.S.C. Chapter 30)

January 2003

REV_00367325

Reporting Requirement

Section 3036 of Title 38, United States Code requires the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to send Congress a report on the chapter 30, Montgomery GI Bill—Active Duty Educational Assistance Program every other year. The report is to include:

- information on the level of utilization of educational assistance and expenditures under the program
- any appropriate recommendations for administrative and legislative changes to the program

Level of Enrollment

Individuals who first enter active duty after June 30, 1985, enroll in the MGIB program through a pay reduction of $100 per month for 12 months. Individuals can elect not to enroll in MGIB and not have the pay reduction. Since the start of MGIB, 79.71 percent of eligible enlistees and officers have chosen to be enrolled in the program. The table below shows the enrollment rate by branch of service.

	Fiscal Year 1999			Fiscal Year 2000

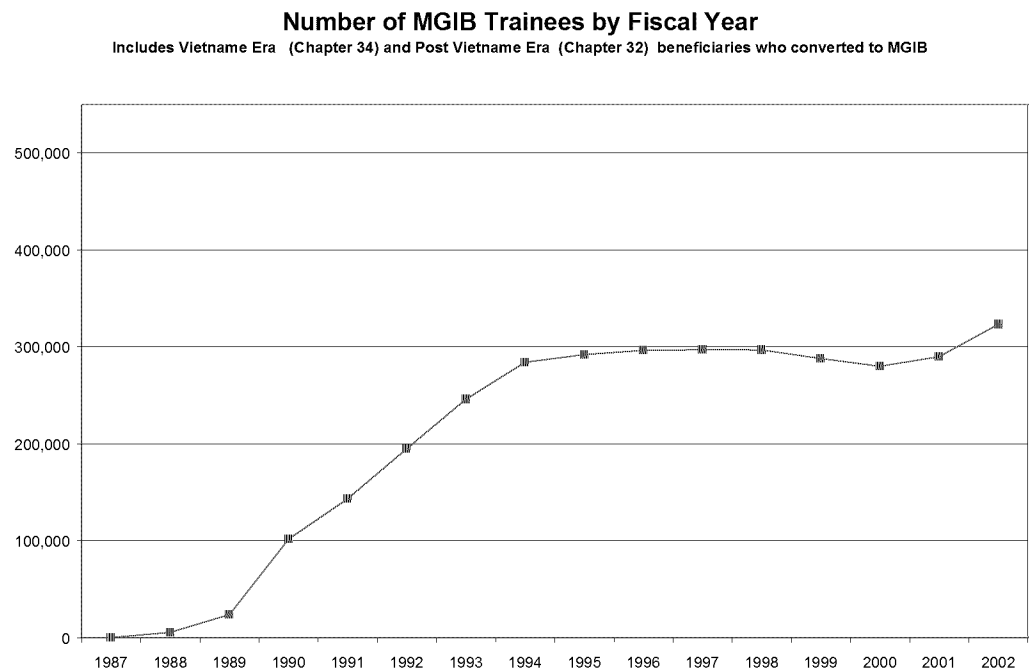
Level of Utilization



The Department of Defense reports that, through Fiscal Year 2002, almost 1.4 million

individuals have entered the military, enrolled in the Montgomery GI Bill, by agreeing to have their pay reduced by $100 a month for 12 months, and honorably completed their active duty. More than 850,000, or about 59 percent, had used some or all of their benefits by the end of FY 2002. Veterans generally have ten years from the date of their release from active duty in which to use their benefits. The following chart shows the number of beneficiaries who passed their eligibility period each year and the percentage of these individuals who had used some of their benefits.

	Beneficiaries Who Passed Eligibility Period	Percent Who Used MGIB
FY 1999	54,000	70.2%
FY 2000	94,000	69.1%
FY 2001	83,000	70.3%
FY 2002	128,000	70.6%

Even though the program's effective date was July 1, 1985, the first MGIB trainee did not begin receiving benefits until November 1986. The level of utilization had been affected by the requirement that an individual must complete his or her initial period of service, normally 2 or 3 years, before the service member is eligible for educational assistance. Significant increases in trainees began during the last quarter of Fiscal Year 1988. The chart below shows the number of trainees in each fiscal year.

The table below shows the number of trainees by type of training during each of the last four fiscal years and cumulative from the start of the MGIB program.

*The term "Ever" means the cumulative total of those who have received benefits. This includes Vietnam Era veterans who converted to MGIB without "paying in." Eligibility for flight training was established as of September 30, 1990.

A majority of beneficiaries attending colleges and vocational/technical schools go to school full-time. The table below gives a further breakdown by training time.

*VA expenditures include MGIB basic benefits and workstudy payments.

DOD expenditures include MGIB supplemental benefits (known as "kickers") Kickers are amounts DOD contributes to a participant's education fund to encourage enlistment or retention in the Armed Forces.

This constitutes the MGIB rate increase paid by the Defense Cooperation Account (DCA). This was money appropriated by Congress to use during the Gulf War.

Recommendations for Administrative and Legislative Changes

A comprehensive evaluation of VA's education assistance programs, completed in calendar year 2000 by Klemm Analysis Group, addressed usage and other issues surrounding the administration of VA education benefits. In general, the programs show success in meeting the intended purposes of the legislation while returning over $2 to the economy for every $1 in taxpayer funding. By many measures the centerpiece of the VA's education programs, The Montgomery GI Bill, has continued the success established by the original GI Bill of Rights. Compared to those who have not taken advantage of the MGIB, veterans who furthered their education under the program have lower unemployment, increased career and education goals, and higher earnings.

However, the evaluation showed that VA education benefits have not kept pace with education costs, do not reflect the increased diversity in available education and training programs, and are not communicated effectively. The 106th and 107th Congresses passed legislation to address the major issues raised in the program evaluation study. Public

Law 106-419 provided for MGIB benefits for some licensing and certification tests. This provision allows claimants to take an unlimited number of tests and receive MGIB benefits of up to $2,000 per test. The program took effect March 1, 2001. 1,552 tests were approved for payment of MGIB benefits by the end of Fiscal Year 2002. MGIB benefits for licensing and certification tests were paid to 3,217 people in Fiscal Year 2002. This law also contained a provision allowing service members to add an additional $600 to their MGIB account for an additional $5,400 in benefits.

Public Law 106-398 allows in-service students to receive VA benefits to pay for any tuition or school expenses not paid by the military services through their tuition assistance programs. Referred to as Tuition Assistance Top-Up, or just "Top-Up," more than 30,000 service members received this benefit during Fiscal Year 2002. Payments are generally less than VA pays veterans while attending school because active duty personnel use "Top-Up" to supplement the military tuition assistance programs. In addition, payment amounts vary by the number of courses taken, type of institution, and tuition charged. Ranging from less than $100 to well over $1,000, the average payment is about $480. During Fiscal Year 2002, VA made about 5,000 "Top-Up" payments each month. The number of "Top-Up" claims may decrease in Fiscal Year 2003 due to a change in the amount of tuition assistance the branches of service will pay.

Public Law 107-103 provides significant rate increases through Fiscal Year 2004. Starting in Fiscal Year 2003, this law also allows for accelerated payments for education leading to employment in high technology industries. It further expanded the definition of "educational institution" to allow for more flexibility in approving courses given by private entities.

Finally, Public Law 107-107 permits military services to allow service members, as a reenlistment option, to transfer MGIB entitlement to their dependents. This provision of the law will be funded in Fiscal Year 2003.

While Congress has made great progress in strengthening the MGIB, the level of education benefits, even with the significant rate increases, does not maintain the purchasing power it had when the MGIB was enacted in 1984. A solution to this weakness, provided budgetary restraints will allow, would be to tie the MGIB benefit rate to the average cost of a commuter student attending a four-year college. This cost is defined each year by the Department of Education.

BODY:

Alberto "Al" Gonzales may be the first Latino to reach the U.S. Supreme Court. As President Bush's White House counsel, he has both the legal experience and the political dossier to be a top contender for the job. Word is that Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist or Justice Sandra Day O'Connor will retire this year, giving the president an opportunity to name the first Hispanic American to the high court.

To reach this most coveted place in history, however, Gonzales will have to survive the spotlight glaring on him, particularly from the right flank of the president's party. The same Republican extremists who want to give conservative Miguel A. Estrada a free pass to the federal appeals court should not be allowed to choose who is a potentially qualified Latino Supreme Court candidate by pre-empting Gonzales. Unlike Estrada (nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit), Gonzales does have a compelling personal story that resonates with Latinos in this country. Gonzales was one of eight children of Mexican immigrants who settled in Texas and who had never finished elementary school. In remarks he made during National Hispanic Heritage Month in 2001, Gonzales recalled patiently waiting for his father to return home from work every day, six days a week. He said his father worked harder than any person he has ever known. After graduating from high school, Gonzales joined the U.S. Air Force, attended the Air Force Academy and eventually realized his childhood dream by transferring to Rice University: "At the age of 12, I got a job selling soft drinks at Rice Stadium. I dreamed of being a student there one day." Gonzales was the first in his family to go to college.

From Rice, he went to Harvard Law School. He became a lawyer in 1982 and went on to practice corporate business law for 13 years at Vinson and Elkins in Houston. He became the first minority partner at Vinson. While at Vinson, he caught then-Gov. George W. Bush's eye, becoming his general counsel in 1995. Thereafter, Bush appointed him Texas' secretary of state and later to the state Supreme Court. The president then brought him to Washington to be his White House counsel. Gonzales clearly has the president's confidence.

The close relationship between these two Tejanos may not be enough to elevate Gonzales to the job. Influential voices within the president's party have started a campaign to discredit Gonzales. They claim he is simply not conservative enough. Patrick Buchanan says Gonzales may be another David Souter. Justice Souter was appointed by President George H.W. Bush and is a disappointment to many conservatives because he is not in the extreme mold of Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas. Recently, syndicated conservative columnist Robert D. Novak echoed Buchanan's concern when he said that conservatives were cautioning Bush not to commit a "grave political blunder" by appointing Gonzales to the high court. Some are beginning to call the attacks on Gonzales a whisper campaign, although the voices don't seem so hushed.

These attacks are familiar. They often happen to high-ranking, successful individuals of color in positions of real power. Similar attacks were made when Secretary of State Colin Powell was emerging as a leading figure in the Republican Party. Such attacks are an odious tool used to discredit people who don't meet the ideological agenda set forth by extremists in the Republican Party. The president should be leery of those who need to discredit the likes of Gonzales because they do not meet the far-right litmus test. That is nothing more than a flagrant attempt to curtail Latino power and influence. And it will surely affect one of Karl Rove's current obsessions: the Latino vote in next year's presidential election.

Alberto Gonzales needs to be vetted like anyone else being considered for such an important position. The Latino community is far from endorsing him. If the president does nominate him, a careful analysis will need to be done concerning his commitment to individual rights and civil liberties as a government official and as a Texas Supreme Court justice. He will need to respond to questions concerning White House policies to set up military commissions/tribunals, state-sponsored assassinations and other matters in which he has pushed the envelope on the law as the president's lawyer.

The packaging is nearly perfect for this potential Supreme Court nominee. Extremists within the president's party should not be allowed to pre-empt it.

HEADLINE: EXTREMISTS UNDERMINE LATINO SUPREME COURT CANDIDATE

BODY:

Alberto "Al" Gonzales may be the first Latino to reach the U.S. Supreme Court. As President Bush's White House counsel, he has both the legal experience and the political dossier to be a top contender for the job. Word is that Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist or Justice Sandra Day O'Connor will retire this year, giving the president an opportunity to name the first Hispanic American to the high court.

To reach this most coveted place in history, however, Gonzales will have to survive the spotlight glaring on him, particularly from the right flank of the president's party. The same Republican extremists who want to give conservative Miguel A. Estrada a free pass to the federal appeals court should not be allowed to choose who is a potentially qualified Latino Supreme Court candidate by pre-empting Gonzales. Unlike Estrada (nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit), Gonzales does have a compelling personal story that resonates with Latinos in this country. Gonzales was one of eight children of Mexican immigrants who settled in Texas and who had never finished elementary school. In remarks he made during National Hispanic Heritage Month in 2001, Gonzales recalled patiently waiting for his father to return home from work every day, six days a week. He said his father worked harder than any person he has ever known. After graduating from high school, Gonzales joined the U.S. Air Force, attended the Air Force Academy and eventually realized his childhood dream by transferring to Rice University: "At the age of 12, I got a job selling soft drinks at Rice Stadium. I dreamed of being a student there one day." Gonzales was the first in his family to go to college.

From Rice, he went to Harvard Law School. He became a lawyer in 1982 and went on to practice corporate business law for 13 years at Vinson and Elkins in Houston. He became the first minority partner at Vinson. While at Vinson, he caught then-Gov. George W. Bush's eye, becoming his general counsel in 1995. Thereafter, Bush appointed him Texas' secretary of state and later to the state Supreme Court. The president then brought him to Washington to be his White House counsel. Gonzales clearly has the president's confidence.

The close relationship between these two Tejanos may not be enough to elevate Gonzales to the job. Influential voices within the president's party have started a campaign to discredit Gonzales. They claim he is simply not conservative enough. Patrick Buchanan says Gonzales may be another David Souter. Justice Souter was appointed by President George H.W. Bush and is a disappointment to many conservatives because he is not in the extreme mold of Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas. Recently, syndicated conservative columnist Robert D. Novak echoed Buchanan's concern when he said that conservatives were cautioning Bush not to commit a "grave political blunder" by appointing Gonzales to the high court. Some are beginning to call the attacks on Gonzales a whisper campaign, although the voices don't seem so hushed.

These attacks are familiar. They often happen to high-ranking, successful individuals of color in positions of real power. Similar attacks were made when Secretary of State Colin Powell was emerging as a leading figure in the Republican Party. Such attacks are an odious tool used to discredit people who don't meet the ideological agenda set forth by extremists in the Republican Party. The president should be leery of those who need to discredit the likes of Gonzales because they do not meet the far-right litmus test. That is nothing more than a flagrant attempt to curtail Latino power and influence. And it will surely affect one of Karl Rove's current obsessions: the Latino vote in next year's presidential election.

Alberto Gonzales needs to be vetted like anyone else being considered for such an important position. The Latino community is far from endorsing him. If the president does nominate him, a careful analysis will need to be done concerning his commitment to individual rights and civil liberties as a government official and as a Texas Supreme Court justice. He will need to respond to questions concerning White House policies to set up military commissions/tribunals, state-sponsored assassinations and other matters in which he has pushed the envelope on the law as the president's lawyer.

The packaging is nearly perfect for this potential Supreme Court nominee. Extremists within the president's party should not be allowed to pre-empt it.

Brett:

The following options pertain to the records management aspects of the just completed FY04 Budget Authoring exercise.

Following a meeting yesterday, I volunteered to raise these options with you.

Terry

Phil Droege and I attended a meeting yesterday with various people involved with the budget preparations and the documentation of that portion that was White House related.

We will be receiving in electronic format, a record of what was submitted to the White House for review and comment along with the White House suggestions that were sent back to OMB. This will provide us with a satisfactory historical record of the White House role in the budget preparations.

In addition, if we wish, a copy in electronic format would be available of all the archived documentation created or received on the OMB side. Recognizing that these were clearly Federal records, I had raised this possibility, emphasizing that my interest was solely from a historical research perspective, believing that research at the future Presidential library on budget matters would be so much more successful if copies of all the archived records were available there. Scholars would not be faced with the logistical time and costs of traveling to/from Washington, D.C. and the Bush Presidential library in order to examine all the relevant records. While no one objected to providing a copy to the White House, everyone agreed that your views were essential.

May we receive a copy of the budget documents that are Presidential records?

NO AFFIRMATIVE ACTION, BUT ...

The Department of Justice may be opposing affirmative action in the courts, but it is instituting initiatives to boost minority representation in its own attorney ranks. Last week Attorney General John Ashcroft and Deputy AG Larry Thompson announced plans to create a new position devoted to recruiting minority lawyers. Other plans for increasing the racial, ethnic, economic, and geographic mix among Justice Department lawyers include diversity training for managers, a formal mentoring program for new hires, and the posting of attorney vacancies on the Internet. The new initiatives come one year after the Justice Department commissioned an outside study by KPMG Consulting to analyze diversity in the department's attorney work force. The completed report has not been released. The Justice Department also announced a student loan repayment program for new attorneys, through which eligible lawyers may receive up to $6,000 annually toward the repayment of federal student loans.

Subject: Jim Ho Happy Hour

Pat Philbin and I would like to invite you to a happy hour this Thursday in honor of Jim Ho, who is leaving OLC to become Chief Counsel of the Constitution Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee (the launching pad from which others have begun their ascent toward greatness). It will be Thursday evening at the Caucus Room bar at 6:30.

David:

Just wanted to congratulate you on your meteoric rise through the ranks. Best of luck in your new role.

Hope to have Andy Card on our campus on February 24. He will be in the area for a Specter fund-raiser.

CHUCK'S FULL OF FILI-BLUSTER: GOP

By VINCENT MORRIS and KENNETH LOVETT

February 11, 2003 --
New York Republicans yesterday attacked Sen. Charles Schumer (D-N.Y.) for threatening to filibuster against Miguel Estrada, a Hispanic lawyer President Bush nominated as a judge.

Gov. Pataki ripped Schumer's "hypocrisy" in an upstate speech.

"Those on the left who talk about immigrants, who talk about America being an inclusive society, are blocking him because he may not fit their political ideology," Pataki said.

And state GOP Chairman Sandy Treadwell accused Schumer of "petty, partisan political games to prevent this highly qualified Hispanic-American from becoming a judge."

Former Congressman Herman Badillo hinted he might work against Schumer's re-election, saying, "New York Hispanics will not forget this next year."

Senate Republicans want a vote on Estrada's nomination tomorrow. It was unclear yesterday if Democrats would block the vote with a filibuster.

Schumer and other Democrats complain the appeals-court nominee offered no opinion on several hot-button issues.

Estrada is a Washington D.C., lawyer who came to the United States from Honduras as a teenager and graduated from Harvard Law School in 1986. He has practiced constitutional law and argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court.

NOMINATION OF MERRICK B. GARLAND

Senator Specter: Do you favor, as a personal matter, capital punishment?
Mr. Garland: This is really a matter of settled law now. The Court has held that capital punishment is constitutional and lower courts are to follow that rule.
Senator Specter: Well, I shall now push you on a direct response to my question. You are prepared to apply the law which supports capital punishment as a constitutional punishment?
Mr. Garland: Yes. Mr. Chairman, I have been a prosecutor. As a prosecutor I have recommended that the Government seek the death penalty. I don't see any way in which my views would be inconsistent with the law in this area.

Senator Specter: You have worked, Mr. Garland, as independent counsel investigating into Wedtech. What is your evaluation of the constitutionality of the independent counsel statute?
Mr. Garland: Well, that, too, the Supreme Court in Morrison v. Olson upheld as constitutional, and, of course, I would follow that ruling.

NOMINATION OF JUDITH ANN WILSON ROGERS

Senator Cohen: We talk about constitutional principles. I think you would probably agree that the Constitution as written is not locked in the concrete of the original time in which it was formulated. You would agree with that, would you not? It evolves over a period of time in terms of our interpretation, as we become either more sophisticated or more morally conscious of certain practices? There is an evolutionary interpretation of what was originally defined, at least, in the Constitution. Would you agree with that general statement?
Judge Rogers: My obligation as an appellate judge is to apply precedent. Some of the debates which I have heard and to which I think you may be alluding are interesting, but as an appellate judge, my obligation is to apply precedent. And so the interpretations of the Constitution by the U.S. Supreme Court would be binding on me.
Senator Cohen: In the absence of precedent?
Judge Rogers: In what context?
Senator Cohen: You are now faced with a constitutional issue or interpretation of the Constitution that the Court has not ruled on directly or has ruled on directly 50 or 60 or 100 years before. The case has not come up specifically on that point, and you are not necessarily bound by precedent in that case or it does not exist.

The question I have is do you believe that the Constitution is in fact something that is subject to interpretation in a different time and a different era? As society's attitudes change about certain mores and practices, the interpretation of those original words also change. I think you would concede that, would you not?
Judge Rogers: When I was taking my---

Senator Cohen: Unless you are prepared to endorse Judge Bork's interpretation of the original meaning of the Constitution, which was severely criticized, because he seemed to be articulating a philosophy that existed a century or so before.
Judge Rogers: When I was taking my master's in judicial process at the University of Virginia Law School, one of the points emphasized was the growth of our common law system based on the English common law judge system. And my opinions, I think if you look at them, reflect that where I am presented with a question of first impression, that I look to the language of whatever provision we are addressing, that I look to the interpretations of other State courts, and it may be necessary, as well, to look at the interpretations suggested by commentators. And within that framework, which I consider to be a discipline, that I would reach a view in a case of first impression.
Senator Cohen: Do social mores play any role in your interpretation of a constitutional provision?
Judge Rogers: I am not sure I know what you mean, Senator.
Senator Cohen: What I mean is that, as we look at civil rights, for example, over a period of time, we have expanded civil rights in this country, and I think justifiably so. We have expanded interpretations of provisions of search and seizure over a period of time. As we have become more sophisticated our interpretation of the Constitution has changed. Justice Holmes or one of his predecessors might have interpreted the specific language of the Constitution differently.

The question I am really asking is: what happens when we go the other way? What happens when a society is so overwhelmed with fear or crime that they decide that sterner actions have to be taken? Take for example, stop and frisk laws. I assume you might have some problems with that particular policy in the practice of certain police. I notice that Virginia just this year started the practice of setting up roadblocks during holiday periods, during Christmas and New Year's Eve, to stop vehicles to check them for the driver's sobriety. So we are seeing concern about what is taking place in society and I am asking you whether or not that should or would have any influence on your particular interpretation of the Constitution.
Judge Rogers: As an appellate judge, I have been faced with a roadblock case, and I relied on Supreme Court decisions as to what is the proper scope for a roadblock. I would do the same type of thing with other issues. That is my role as an appellate judge, to apply precedent and look for the closest analogy I can find.
Senator Cohen: A couple more questions. What is your opinion about the minimum mandatory sentencing provisions that Congress enacts? Senator Kohl asked you about this. What is your feeling, as a judge, as to their utility?
Judge Rogers: I am aware, Senator, of some of the debate on the pros and cons, and certainly before I was a judge I was engaged in comment on them. But as a judge, I have been dealing with the strictly from the point of view of legal challenges to them. I have sat on a case where a mandatory minimum sentence was challenged, and we upheld it.
Senator Cohen: What I am asking you is not whether you think they are constitutional or should be upheld, but from your point of view as a judge, what is their effectiveness? There is a good deal of controversy right now in terms of the mandatory guidelines that were adopted back in the early 1980's to minimize judicial discretion in the imposition of sentences. Now we have Federal mandatory sentencing provisions, and some argue that they are now in conflict and we are back to a chaotic situation. I am wondering, not about your interpretation of their constitutionality, but your feeling about their effectiveness, as a judge.

Judge Rogers: Well, as a judge, I have not been exposed to the Federal sentencing guidelines. We do not have such guidelines in the District of Columbia. We do have mandatory minimum sentences and I have enforced them, as I mentioned, when the issue has arisen.

Senator Cohen: One final question: In the State of the Union Message this week President Clinton supported a provision which is now commonly known as three strikes you are out, or actually three strikes and you are in. What is your reaction to such a proposal? Is that something you would favor?

Judge Rogers: As an appellate judge, my obligation is to enforce the laws that Congress passes or, where I am now, that the District of Columbia Council passes.

Senator Cohen: Assuming it is constitutional?

Judge Rogers: Assuming it is constitutional.

Senator Cohen: I think that is all I have right now.

Ed --

I spoke to Tom Klitsner at DHS about this issue (he's at the bottom of this e-mail chain). As I understand the issue, DHS has not been as successful as they had hoped to be in transitioning folks from their TPO accounts to DHS accounts. Consequently, a number of folks still need access to their TPO accounts (both to use in the interim and for data transfers already covered by the guidance our office and WHCO has issued). That being said, I don't see any issue with extending the time period for access to TPO accounts (I'm cc:ing Adam Greenstone in OA who is also aware of this issue ... his technical folks are responsible for dealing with account access). Let me know if you have questions or if we can be of further help (I don't have Steve Cooper's e-mail, so if someone could forward on the info he needs, that'd be great).

On a technical note, as I've discussed with some folks, bear in mind that records generated by those who still have TPO accounts are DHS records (since TPO no longer exists) and need to be managed by DHS accordingly.

FYI -- I'll be out of the office tomorrow. If you need to reach me before Thursday, please call me on my cell: PRA 6

Subject: Request for TPO account extensions

Laurie -- Thanks your quick clarification earlier. Looking at the original request more closely, I note that what Steve Cooper was actually requesting was extensions for TPO accounts (see bolded portion below), which are of course exclusively within OMB. We defer to OMB entirely as to all aspects of OMB e-mail & etc. I think Kimberly has the action on that in Phil Perry's office.

given our delay in getting an approved process to transfer data, and additionally that we have many people who have not completed the detail process from their home agencies to dhs, i would like to request an extension of the time needed to migrate tpo accounts...

we have begun transfer/copy and i anticipate that we will need an additional two weeks...can we extend to feb 28th just to be safe? thank you for your consideration of this request on behalf of the new department...steve

Mr. Cooper,

I'm working with the S&T Directorate as a liason to your group to help S&T with their connectivity (and general IT) requirements. As part of this I've been trying to get the group onto the DHS network, but so far we haven't been able to wend our way completely through this process. At this point it doesn't appear we will be able to have DHS systems for the staff before the Feb 10 date that was set as the time our EOP accounts would be removed. As you might imagine, should this occur it will cause considerable problems for S&T. Is there a way to request an extension for the EOP accounts until the migration to DHS is completed? Please let me know if there is anything I can do to help with this issue.

Thank you for your time and help with this.

We can do phone. How about Wed. at 11:00 for 1/2 hour? In interim, can you send me updated list of all outstanding issues (and notices) from your perspective. Also, I have one new issue: namely, whether NARA can pay for items that seem appropriate to purchase for future Presidential library (e.g., books about President, desk and chairs from Offutt on 9/11/01, etc.).

Friends,

My time here is coming to an end. Friday, February 14th is my last day and I didn't want to miss the opportunity to say goodbye to each and every one of you. This has been the most memorable two years of my professional life for many reasons, one of which is the chance to work alongside such wonderful people. Many of you were incredibly kind to me during my recuperation from surgery and I will never forget your prayers, support and friendship.

I'm just hopping over to HHS, and for a short time, will temporarily head up the President's HIV and AIDS council, but look forward to some form of communication with you all as I continue working on the President's healthcare agenda.

I haven't confirmed my direct phone number at HHS yet, but can be reached on my cell PRA 6 if there are White House issues that need my assistance or you just want to drop a line. My home info remains the same and I truly look forward to the occasional call. Please don't be strangers.

Continue to take care of yourself and the President. I have never met and worked with a better group of people.

Blessings to all,

Josephine

Friends,

My time here is coming to an end. Friday, February 14th is my last day and I didn't want to miss the opportunity to say goodbye to each and every one of you. This has been the most memorable two years of my professional life for many reasons, one of which is the chance to work alongside such wonderful people. Many of you were incredibly kind to me during my recuperation from surgery and I will never forget your prayers, support and friendship.

I'm just hopping over to HHS, and for a short time, will temporarily head up the President's HIV and AIDS council, but look forward to some form of communication with you all as I continue working on the President's healthcare agenda.

I haven't confirmed my direct phone number at HHS yet, but can be reached on my cell PRA 6 if there are White House issues that need my assistance or you just want to drop a line. My home info remains the same and I truly look forward to the occasional call. Please don't be strangers.

Continue to take care of yourself and the President. I have never met and worked with a better group of people.

Blessings to all,

Josephine

Friends,

My time here is coming to an end. Friday, February 14th is my last day and I didn't want to miss the opportunity to say goodbye to each and every one of you. This has been the most memorable two years of my professional life for many reasons, one of which is the chance to work alongside such wonderful people. Many of you were incredibly kind to me during my recuperation from surgery and I will never forget your prayers, support and friendship.

I'm just hopping over to HHS, and for a short time, will temporarily head up the President's HIV and AIDS council, but look forward to some form of communication with you all as I continue working on the President's healthcare agenda.

I haven't confirmed my direct phone number at HHS yet, but can be reached on my cell (PRA 6 if there are White House issues that need my assistance or you just want to drop a line. My home info remains the same and I truly look forward to the occasional call. Please don't be strangers.

Continue to take care of yourself and the President. I have never met and worked with a better group of people.

Blessings to all,

Josephine

Left the judge a message. Conference went well. No cloture filing or vote this week. Frist did not propose any addtl questions or other offer to daschle. The position taken was to continue to press the message. Most agree that this is still inside the beltway stuff given the war and threat alert. Recess will go forward. We will return to estrada when we come back.

HANNITY AND COLMES
Sharon Castillo And Ann Lewis Discuss Miguel Estrada

SEAN HANNITY: But first, why won't Democrats allow the democratic process to proceed for the president's judicial nominees? Appeals Court nominee

Miguel Estrada is still waiting for a confirmation vote in the Senate despite being nominated for the bench in May of 2001. That's 21 months ago. Senate Democrats have threatened to filibuster for months and now claim to have the votes to sustain one. But why won't they let the people's business go forward? We are joined tonight by the national chair of the Women's Voting Center at the Democratic National Committee, Ann Lewis. And by the deputy communications director for the Republican National Committee, Sharon Castillo.

Ann Lewis, welcome back. Let's just go over Mr. Estrada, some of his background and record here. Graduated with honors from college, Harvard Law School. Editor of "Law Review." Clerked for Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy. Was a federal prosecutor and a very successful one. Solicitor general, worked and served in that office.

He's argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court, most of them successfully. An immigrant who came to this country when he was 17 years old. The highest rating from the American Bar Association without any negative votes, and the first Hispanic ever nominated to the court.

He just doesn't have your personal view on abortion so you're going to discriminate against a Hispanic-American. Is that where we are now, Ann?

ANN LEWIS, DNC WOMEN'S VOTING CENTER: Well, first, this is clearly not discriminating against a Hispanic-American. In fact, the Judiciary Committee last year, when Democrats were in the majority, confirmed six Hispanic nominees for judgeships who had been nominated by George Bush.

But here is the problem with Miguel Estrada. He would not in his appearances before the committee -- he would not answer any questions about legal philosophy. He claimed to have no opinion about whatever about Supreme Court decisions.

HANNITY: Is he a liar? Did he lie?
LEWIS: Well you tell me, Sean. Here is my question.
HANNITY: Are you calling him a liar?
LEWIS: Because it makes me very uneasy. I'm going to tell you the facts and you're going to tell me what it says to you. Senator Feinstein said to him, "Mr. Estrada, have you any opinion on whether Roe v. Wade was properly, appropriately decided? He said, "I can't get into that because I've never had an occasion to study it legally."

HANNITY: OK. Are you saying he's a liar? Why don't you say what you mean. Are you calling the man a liar? Yes or no?
LEWIS: No. I'm giving the facts. And all your audience -- you really don't want to hear -- do you not want to hear that, when a case came up approaching (ph) Roe, I'm telling you that these are the facts that leave me very uneasy.

HANNITY: I want you to answer a direct question.
LEWIS: He was actually a clerk to Supreme Court Justice Kennedy at a time when a case came before the court. Do you believe that he never thought about this?

HANNITY: Sharon, what do you hear from Ann Lewis, as much as we like her and respect her, is an innuendo campaign against somebody that they don't like. Now this is what I see with the Democratic Party. I think the Democratic Party today has a race problem.

They abandoned Carl McCall. They abandoned Maynard Jackson. Bill Clinton is president, he doesn't make appointments to high office like secretary of state and national security advisor. And they are smearing and (UNINTELLIGIBLE) the Hispanic American's name because they don't like the fact that he has a religious point of view that personally makes him pro-life.

And they basically said all Christians, all Catholics, all evangelicals are not qualified for the Supreme Court. And I think that's religious discrimination. And in this case, I think it's racial discrimination.

SHARON CASTILLO, RNC DEPUTY COMM DIRECTOR: Well I think the truth of the matter is that Miguel has answered every question. I don't know what (UNINTELLIGIBLE) Ann watch on TV. And my question to here is, how come he was good for high-ranking officials in the Clinton Justice Department, but he's not good enough for the Democrats in the Senate right now?

COLMES: He wasn't a judge back then, Sharon. Let me just show you. On the Senate floor right now the Republicans are rallying behind Estrada, trying to make a statement. They are all there in solidarity with Estrada.

Ann Lewis, I think it's a mistake for the Democrats -- I say this as a Democrat-- to be perceived as obstructionists. I don't think it's good for the party. The Republicans already tried to tag Democrats with that. They tagged Daschle with it. To the victors go the spoils.

I mentioned the last time you came on the show and we talked about it, the president gets to nominate. We're not going to -- he's not going to nominate a liberal judge.

LEWIS: Right. The president gets to nominate...
(CROSSTALK)
LEWIS: Here's the way the Constitution works. The president gets to nominate and the Senate has the responsibility to advise and consent. That's their job. When they get elected, when they run for office, they tell the people they represent they are going to bring their responsibility and take it.

(CROSSTALK)
COLMES: But a filibuster makes the Democrats look bad, Ann.
LEWIS: How can you -- this is not -- so far they are just talking, and what they are saying is, how can we vote on someone who will not answer questions?

COLMES: Well I'd love to see him answer the questions.
(CROSSTALK)
LEWIS: ... on a blank slate? How do we appoint someone to a lifetime appointment when he will not discuss or answer questions in a reasonable way?

COLMES: Hold on, please. One at a time. Sharon, let me ask you a question. One thing that concerns me, I agree with you, Sharon, Democrats should not filibuster. I think it's a mistake. It's obstructionism.

Let me ask you this. Orrin Hatch made a statement and it was insinuated that, you know, Hispanics ought to support Hispanics because they are Hispanic. And you know, you don't just support somebody based on their race. And that's not a racial aspect of this.

You can oppose somebody irrespective of what their race is. And Democrats are not playing that card.
CASTILLO: Absolutely. And we don't want Miguel to be judged because he is Latino. We want him to be judged because he's well qualified...

COLMES: Orrin Hatch shouldn't have said that Latinos should vote for Latinos. You know what I mean? Orrin Hatch shouldn't have made that statement.

CASTILLO: What I'm saying is Miguel has been answering questions. We had plenty of time to look at his record, and he is right now making the rounds with senators who still may have question abouts his record. But to say that he hasn't answered questions is to say the Democrats haven't heard what they want to hear, therefore he hasn't answered questions. It's just preposterous.

LEWIS: Well I would like to give -- here is an answer to your question.
HANNITY: We're out of time, Ann. But we will invite you back.

Tim:

On #1, great. Carrie, please set up time for Judge tomorrow if he and Ashley agree. [I think it is an excellent idea.]

On #2, Carrie, same drill. [Again, I think it an excellent idea.]

On #3, ditto, but Tim, what time is the telecon slated for?

Thanks much.

Three follow ups

x Jay Sekulow wants to interview Judge G. tomorrow x National Religious Broadcasters want to interview the Judge next week x I would like to have the Judge come on a teleconference tomorrow with the state think tanks, the family policy councils, and the state legal foundations.

Will he do?

Cheers

Sharon Castillo And Ann Lewis Discuss Miguel Estrada

SEAN HANNITY: But first, why won't Democrats allow the democratic process to proceed for the president's judicial nominees? Appeals Court nominee Miguel Estrada is still waiting for a confirmation vote in the Senate despite being nominated for the bench in May of 2001. That's 21 months ago. Senate Democrats have threatened to filibuster for months and now claim to have the votes to sustain one. But why won't they let the people's business go forward? We are joined tonight by the national chair of the Women's Voting Center at the Democratic National Committee, Ann Lewis. And by the deputy communications director for the Republican National Committee, Sharon Castillo.

Ann Lewis, welcome back. Let's just go over Mr. Estrada, some of his background and record here. Graduated with honors from college, Harvard Law School. Editor of "Law Review." Clerked for Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy. Was a federal prosecutor and a very successful one. Solicitor general, worked and served in that office.

He's argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court, most of them successfully. An immigrant who came to this country when he was 17 years old. The highest rating from the American Bar Association without any negative votes, and the first Hispanic ever nominated to the court.

He just doesn't have your personal view on abortion so you're going to discriminate against a Hispanic-American. Is that where we are now, Ann?

ANN LEWIS, DNC WOMEN'S VOTING CENTER: Well, first, this is clearly not discriminating against a Hispanic-American. In fact, the Judiciary Committee last year, when Democrats were in the majority, confirmed six Hispanic nominees for judgeships who had been nominated by George Bush.

But here is the problem with Miguel Estrada. He would not in his appearances before the committee -- he would not answer any questions about legal philosophy. He claimed to have no opinion about whatever about Supreme Court decisions.

HANNITY: Is he a liar? Did he lie?

LEWIS: Well you tell me, Sean. Here is my question.

HANNITY: Are you calling him a liar?

LEWIS: Because it makes me very uneasy. I'm going to tell you the facts and you're going to tell me what it says to you. Senator Feinstein said to him, "Mr. Estrada, have you any opinion on whether Roe v. Wade was properly, appropriately decided? He said, "I can't get into that because I've never had an occasion to study it legally."

HANNITY: OK. Are you saying he's a liar? Why don't you say what you mean. Are you calling the man a liar? Yes or no?

LEWIS: No. I'm giving the facts. And all your audience -- you really don't want to hear -- do you not want to hear that, when a case came up approaching (ph) Roe, I'm telling you that these are the facts that leave me very uneasy.

HANNITY: I want you to answer a direct question.

LEWIS: He was actually a clerk to Supreme Court Justice Kennedy at a time when a case came before the court. Do you believe that he never thought about this?

HANNITY: Sharon, what do you hear from Ann Lewis, as much as we like her and respect her, is an innuendo campaign against somebody that they don't like. Now this is what I see with the Democratic Party. I think the Democratic Party today has a race problem.

They abandoned Carl McCall. They abandoned Maynard Jackson. Bill Clinton is president, he doesn't make appointments to high office like secretary of state and national security advisor. And they are smearing and (UNINTELLIGIBLE) the Hispanic American's name because they don't like the fact that he has a religious point of view that personally makes him pro-life.

And they basically said all Christians, all Catholics, all evangelicals are not qualified for the Supreme Court. And I think that's religious discrimination. And in this case, I think it's racial discrimination.

SHARON CASTILLO, RNC DEPUTY COMM DIRECTOR: Well I think the truth of the matter is that Miguel has answered every question. I don't know what (UNINTELLIGIBLE) Ann watch on TV. And my question to here is, how come he was good for high-ranking officials in the Clinton Justice Department, but he's not good enough for the Democrats in the Senate right now?

COLMES: He wasn't a judge back then, Sharon. Let me just show you. On the Senate floor right now the Republicans are rallying behind Estrada, trying to make a statement. They are all there in solidarity with Estrada.

Ann Lewis, I think it's a mistake for the Democrats -- I say this as a Democrat-- to be perceived as obstructionists. I don't think it's good for the party. The Republicans already tried to tag Democrats with that. They tagged Daschle with it. To the victors go the spoils.

I mentioned the last time you came on the show and we talked about it, the president gets to nominate. We're not going to -- he's not going to nominate a liberal judge.

LEWIS: Right. The president gets to nominate...

(CROSSTALK)

LEWIS: Here's the way the Constitution works. The president gets to nominate and the Senate has the responsibility to advise and consent. That's their job. When they get elected, when they run for office, they tell the people they represent they are going to bring their responsibility and take it.

(CROSSTALK)

COLMES: But a filibuster makes the Democrats look bad, Ann.

LEWIS: How can you -- this is not -- so far they are just talking, and what they are saying is, how can we vote on someone who will not answer questions?

COLMES: Well I'd love to see him answer the questions.

(CROSSTALK)

LEWIS: ... on a blank slate? How do we appoint someone to a lifetime appointment when he will not discuss or answer questions in a reasonable way?

COLMES: Hold on, please. One at a time. Sharon, let me ask you a question. One thing that concerns me, I agree with you, Sharon, Democrats should not filibuster. I think it's a mistake. It's obstructionism.

Let me ask you this. Orrin Hatch made a statement and it was insinuated that, you know, Hispanics ought to support Hispanics because they are Hispanic. And you know, you don't just support somebody based on their race. And that's not a racial aspect of this.

You can oppose somebody irrespective of what their race is. And Democrats are not playing that card.

CASTILLO: Absolutely. And we don't want Miguel to be judged because he is Latino. We want him to be judged because he's well qualified...

COLMES: Orrin Hatch shouldn't have said that Latinos should vote for Latinos. You know what I mean? Orrin Hatch shouldn't have made that statement.

CASTILLO: What I'm saying is Miguel has been answering questions. We had plenty of time to look at his record, and he is right now making the rounds with senators who still may have question abouts his record. But to say that he hasn't answered questions is to say the Democrats haven't heard what they want to hear, therefore he hasn't answered questions. It's just preposterous.

LEWIS: Well I would like to give -- here is an answer to your question.

HANNITY: We're out of time, Ann. But we will invite you back.

Dear Brett,

Hope all is well. Some friends of my wife and mine -- good Republicans from Coral Gables, Florida -- are bringing their two kids to DC from April 17-21st. They are hoping to see civic sites, etc., and contacted me to see if I knew anyone who might be able to help w/ tours of the White House. I don't know if those sorts of tours exist anymore, given the security concerns, but if they do, do you know anyone I might contact to arrange for tickets for a tour?

Answers to Post-Hearing Questions Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship to
The Honorable Hector V. Barreto, Administrator,
U.S. Small Business Administration

"The Small Business Health Care Crisis: Possible Solutions"
February 5, 2003

Questions submitted by Senator John Kerry, Ranking Member:

1. In your testimony submitted for the record, you cite a survey finding, confirmed through your own extensive travels, that the "cost and availability of affordable health insurance continues to be the biggest problem facing small businesses." You note the problems of MEWAs and state that once Congress passes AHPs, under your leadership SBA will engage to connect small businesses. Does SBA coordinate education currently with the Department of Labor? With the Agency's contact with more than a million small businesses every year through its website and partners, what can SBA do immediately to inform small businesses about the issues involved with health care?

Answer: SBA does not currently coordinate education efforts on Association Health Plans (AHPs) with the Department of Labor (DOL). SBA does however regularly coordinates with numerous federal agencies on issues of importance to small businesses and looks forward to working with DOL on connecting small businesses with AHPs were Congress to pass the appropriate legislation. SBA can continue to inform small businesses of issues involved in health care through its existing outreach infrastructure and will continue to receive feedback from small businesses about the staggering costs they face through, among other means, business roundtables regularly hosted throughout the country by SBA's Office of the National Ombudsman.

2. In your testimony, you said that "as the head of an association, insurance companies constantly told [you] that they could not provide coverage to [your] members because, despite having thousands of members, [the association was] simply not big enough. [Your] pool of employers was too small." What association were you referring to and how many members were there?

Answer: The association to which I referred in my testimony was the Latin Business Association in Los Angeles, for which I served as Chairman of the Board. It currently has more than 1,150 active members.

3. Who conducted and what is the title of the study you cite in your written testimony regarding the disproportionate increase in premiums for small and large companies? What did the study identify as the reason(s) for the difference?

Answer: DOL wrote the study, "Association Health Plans: Improving Access to Affordable Quality Health Care for Small Business," to which I referred on page two of my written testimony regarding the disproportionate increase in premiums for small and large companies. The study cites several reasons for this disparity: higher administrative expenses, lesser buying power and disproportionate impact of state mandates on small businesses.

4. In your testimony, you note that Hispanics are the least-insured ethnic group in the U.S. and that coverage is worst among smaller firms, firms headed by Hispanic executives with little or no education, and small businesses more likely to employ Hispanic labor. You also state that enhancing AHPs will level the playing field for small businesses and that AHPs will allow small businesses to have access to the same quality of health care across state lines. Mr. Administrator, do you believe that an AHP formed by the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce or Women Impacting Public Policy would be able to offer the same quality of benefits for the same price as an AHP formed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce or the National Federation of Independent Businesses? Please describe the assumptions upon which your response is based.

Answer: Strengthening AHPs will provide greater access to quality, affordable health care for all of those associations you cited above. Each individual association will have the ability to tailor coverage options for its individual members, allowing the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce to provide the highest quality health care possible under strengthened AHPs. I base this response on research about AHPs conducted by various private and public-sector sources, including the DOL study I referenced earlier as well as a report, "Study of the Administrative Costs and Actuarial Values of Small Health Plans," recently released by the SBA's Office of Advocacy.

5. In anticipation of enactment of AHP legislation, what staff and funding in the FY2004 budget has the Administration requested for projected efforts to connect small businesses and educate them?

Answer: President Bush has not requested funding for SBA in its FY 2004 budget specific for educating small businesses about the many benefits of AHPs were Congress to pass legislation strengthening them. SBA would educate small businesses about AHPs through its outreach infrastructure already in place for educating small businesses about its myriad of programs. This infrastructure includes its website, district offices and lending partners.

STATEMENT BY MARK EARLEY
ON SUITS BROUGHT IN IOWA AGAINST

INNERCHANGE FREEDOM INITIATIVE AND PRISON FELLOWSHIP

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 12, 2003*&I am saddened to learn of the suits brought today in Iowa against InnerChange Freedom Initiative, the nation,s most successful program for reducing prisoner recidivism, and Prison Fellowship, an organization that has served inmates and their families for more than a quarter century.

InnerChange Freedom Initiative is a faith-based prisoner rehabilitation program that has proven to dramatically reduce re-incarceration rates among inmates. Just this past week, the Criminal Justice Policy Council in Texas released an evaluation which found that of the inmates who completed the Texas InnerChange Freedom Initiative program, only 8 % returned to prison within two years, compared a 22% return rate for inmates who were eligible for the program but did not participate.

Furthermore, the University of Pennsylvania is conducting an extensive evaluation of the Texas InnerChange Freedom Initiative program that will be released this spring. This research, conducted over the past six years, will provide significant evidence that faith-based prison rehabilitation programs are not only effective, but also have significant advantages over comparable secular programs in helping inmates to successfully return to society.

While the legal allegations put forth by Americans United for the Separation of Church and State are most appropriately answered in legal proceedings, I believe it is important to ensure that several egregious misrepresentations of InnerChange Freedom Initiative are not left unchallenged.

Contrary to the representation by the suits, plaintiffs, the InnerChange Freedom Initiative in operation in Iowa in no way violates the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the Constitution. In fact, Federal law allows a state to include religious organizations as social service providers. Congress itself enacted a Charitable Choice provision to encourage States to include religious providers among organizations helping welfare recipients.

In Iowa, InnerChange Freedom Initiative uses state monies solely for non-sectarian expenses while private funds are used for all religious programming.

Furthermore, all inmates who take part in the Iowa InnerChange program*and indeed in all InnerChange programs*voluntarily choose to participate. While the program is open to inmates of all faiths or no faith, participants are fully apprised of the faith-centered nature of the program in advance of their participation.

It is my hope that these suits will be dismissed quickly. InnerChange Freedom Initiative is committed to the transformation of the lives of prisoners to the benefit of themselves, their families, and, ultimately, society.8

Mark Earley, former Attorney General for the Commonwealth of Virginia, currently serves as President of Prison Fellowship, an organization founded by Charles Colson in 1976 to help prisoners and their families turn their lives around.

Subject: Prison Fellowship - Statement in response to suit in Iowa1

INNERCHANGE FREEDOM INITIATIVE AND PRISON FELLOWSHIP

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 12, 2003??I am saddened to learn of the suits brought today in Iowa against InnerChange Freedom Initiative, the nation?s most successful program for reducing prisoner recidivism, and Prison Fellowship, an organization that has served inmates and their families for more than a quarter century.

InnerChange Freedom Initiative is a faith-based prisoner rehabilitation program that has proven to dramatically reduce re-incarceration rates among inmates. Just this past week, the Criminal Justice Policy Council in Texas released an evaluation which found that of the inmates who completed the Texas InnerChange Freedom Initiative program, only 8 % returned to prison within two years, compared a 22% return rate for inmates who were eligible for the program but did not participate.

Furthermore, the University of Pennsylvania is conducting an extensive evaluation of the Texas InnerChange Freedom Initiative program that will be released this spring. This research, conducted over the past six years, will provide significant evidence that faith-based prison rehabilitation programs are not only effective, but also have significant advantages over comparable secular programs in helping inmates to successfully return to society.

While the legal allegations put forth by Americans United for the Separation of Church and State are most appropriately answered in legal proceedings, I believe it is important to ensure that several egregious misrepresentations of InnerChange Freedom Initiative are not left unchallenged.

Contrary to the representation by the suits? plaintiffs, the InnerChange Freedom Initiative in operation in Iowa in no way violates the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the Constitution. In fact, Federal law allows a state to include religious organizations as social service providers. Congress itself enacted a Charitable Choice provision to encourage States to include religious providers among organizations helping welfare recipients.

In Iowa, InnerChange Freedom Initiative uses state monies solely for non-sectarian expenses while private funds are used for all religious programming.

Furthermore, all inmates who take part in the Iowa InnerChange program*and indeed in all InnerChange programs*voluntarily choose to participate. While the program is open to inmates of all faiths or no faith, participants are fully apprised of the faith-centered nature of the program in advance of their participation.

It is my hope that these suits will be dismissed quickly. InnerChange Freedom Initiative is committed to the transformation of the lives of prisoners to the benefit of themselves, their families, and, ultimately, society.?

Mark Earley, former Attorney General for the Commonwealth of Virginia, currently serves as President of Prison Fellowship, an organization founded by Charles Colson in 1976 to help prisoners and their families turn their lives around.

Hello -- I am writing to you with a matter of concern regarding publicity materials for John Bridgeland's speech at the Hamilton County Republican Club 2003 Lincoln-Reagan dinner. We explicitly stated that his title could not be used on the invitation or in any other announcement or publicity materials in connection with this event. It has come to my attention that an article in the Lincoln Line, a publication of the Hamilton County Republican Party, broke this rule and identified him in an inappropriate way in the February newsletter. This is prohibited. Please gather up any remaining copies of this newsletter and ensure that they are destroyed. Please also ensure that such information is not listed in any other public materials. Thank you,
Britt Grant

Hello -- I am writing to you with a matter of concern regarding publicity materials for John Bridgeland's speech at the Hamilton County Republican Club 2003 Lincoln-Reagan dinner. We explicitly stated that his title could not be used on the invitation or in any other announcement or publicity materials in connection with this event. It has come to my attention that an article in the Lincoln Line, a publication of the Hamilton County Republican Party, broke this rule and identified him in an inappropriate way in the February newsletter. DRAFT

February 17, 2002

PRA 6

Dear John:

Martha and I would like to extend an invitation to you to serve on the host committee for a reception and dinner with the Honorable Karl Rove and Jack Oliver at our home in McLean, Virginia on Wednesday, April 30th. The purpose of the dinner will be to recruit financial support for the Republican National Committee by signing up Regents, Team 100 members and Eagles.

A lot has happened in America since President George W. Bush was elected in November 2000. It is our thought that we have the right man for the times in the Oval Office today. A man of honor and a man of resolve, President Bush has been a great leader in a time of economic and geopolitical uncertainty. We must do all we can to see that he is reelected next year.

The purpose of this letter is to see if you and XXXX would be willing to contribute to one of the RNC membership clubs and serve as a co-host of the dinner. For your support, your name would be included on the invitation that is to be mailed sometime in late March. I have asked Tom Benedetti to call you in the next week to gauge your interest in this event and confirm that we may use your name on the invitation.

Thank you for all of your support of the President and the RNC and feel free to call me directly at PRA 6 PRA 6 to discuss the event.

Sincerely,

Dwight Schar

Give Mr. Estrada A Vote
February 14, 2003

It would be best if a president's - any president's - nominees to the federal bench were not too far left or right of the ideological center and were as forthcoming as possible during Senate confirmation hearings. It would be helpful if the opposition party in the Senate did not employ delaying tactics during the confirmation process that for years have left scores of vacancies in the federal district and circuit courts.

But in the real world, filling federal judgeships is often a vituperative, ideological slugfest in which the ideals of moderation and consultation between the president and members of the opposition in Congress are ignored. President Bill Clinton, for example, put forward nominees thought to be too liberal and activist by Republicans, who did their best in many cases to slow or stop such appointments. Democrats have done the same in the case of some of President Bush's nominees. It's time that toxic partisanship is drained from the all-important pursuit of selecting judges.

A case in point is Mr. Bush's nomination of 42-year-old lawyer Miguel Estrada to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. Senate Democrats are filibustering the appointment, preventing the body from considering any other business. They believe Mr. Estrada to be extremely conservative and complain that he did not answer questions fully during his confirmation hearing.

The nominee's defenders charge that Democrats are being "unfair to a Hispanic lawyer." Republicans' playing the ethnicity card is a cheap political ploy. The fact that Mr. Estrada is Hispanic is not an issue. Democrats should give up their filibuster nonetheless.

Mr. Estrada probably could have been more cooperative in hearings, but there is little reason to doubt his qualifications and fitness for the job. Reputed to be a brilliant lawyer, Mr. Estrada received rave reviews from superiors for his work in the office of solicitor general, where he has served under both the Clinton and Bush administrations. Further, he was given high marks by the American Bar Association committee that reviews judicial nominees. That he is thought to be very conservative is not reason enough for Democrats to try to block his confirmation.

His opponents can vote against him if they wish. But this able lawyer who has Mr. Bush's confidence deserves a vote by the full Senate.

Hmmm . . . well hotmail does stink.
Presuming you can read my Kirkland e-mail,

I just wrote to say that I read Judge Gonzales letter's re: Miguel's nomination. Don't know who worked on it in your office, but I thought it was extremely well done. It shows that to the extent reason matters (admittedly, a debatable proposition), there really aren't two sides to this issue.

JANUARY 2003 DRAFT

{PRIVATE }

SEC. ___. TRANSFER OF EMERGENCY FOOD AND SHELTER PROGRAM FROM FEMA TO HUD.

(a) TRANSFER.--Title III of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11331 et seq.) is amended--

(1) in the title heading, by striking "FEDERAL" and "MANAGEMENT";

(2) in section 301(a), by striking "Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency" and inserting "Secretary of Housing and Urban Development";

(3) by revising the first and second sentences of section 301(b) to read as follows: "The National Board shall consist of the Secretary and six members. The Secretary shall appoint members to vacancies on the National Board existing on, or occurring after, the effective date of this sentence.";

(4) in section 301(c), by striking "Director" and inserting "Secretary";

(5) by repealing section 301(e);

(6) in the heading for section 303, by striking "FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY" and inserting "DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT";

(7) in section 303, by striking "Director" the two places it appears and inserting "Secretary";

(8) in section 303(b)(1), by striking "legal counsel and Inspector General of the Federal Emergency Management Agency" and inserting "General Counsel and Inspector General of the Department of Housing and Urban Development";

(9) in the heading for section 311, by striking "DIRECTOR" and inserting "SECRETARY";

(10) in section 311, by striking "Director" and inserting "Secretary";

(11) by revising section 321(1) to read as follows:

"(1) The term `Secretary' means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.";

(12) in section 322, by striking "$180,000,000 for fiscal year 1993 and $187,560,000 for fiscal year 1994" and inserting "$153,000,000 for fiscal year 2004 and such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2005".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.--The amendments made by subsection (a) shall be effective on the later of the date of enactment of this Act or October 1, 2003.

TRANSFER OF EMERGENCY FOOD AND SHELTER PROGRAM FROM FEMA TO HUD

Currently, the Emergency Food and Shelter program is administered by FEMA with the assistance of a National Board consisting of the Director of FEMA as chairperson and six other members appointed by the Director. Section ___ would support the proposal in HUD's FY 2004 Budget to transfer the program from FEMA to HUD.

Under this proposal, the Secretary of HUD would replace the Director of FEMA as chairperson of the Board and the Secretary would appoint members to the Board when there are Board vacancies. In addition, this proposal would reauthorize the program through FY 2004. The transfer of this program to HUD would improve the coordination and delivery of homeless resources, given HUD's lead responsibility for housing and shelter.

Hi Brett,

Just met w/ Senator Specter this morning, and he extended a formal offer.&nb sp; He knows the Chief won't let me accept before my clerkship e nds, and that I'm looking seriously at other opportunities (esp. OLC).

Mark Heilburn, his deputy chief of staff, offered to speak w/ people at OLC, OLP and/or your office to talk about the possibility of my formally being hire d there, but then working for the Judiciary Committee staff for 9-12 months "on loan." I don't know if that sort of arrangement is feasible--i t sounds pretty novel--and asked Mark to hold off. Obviously, I'd li ke to hear what you and the Judge think about the relative merits of these govt jobs before I go too much further. Right now, I think OLC would be the b est place to go (and I've heard that they have 3 openings).

I sent my re sume to Nick Rosenkranz, and he said he put it in front of the right people at OLC. I don't know what their timeframe is, though; I'll give Nick a call sometime next week.

Hope all is well,

Rob

February 12, 2003

Dear Senator Daschle and Senator Leahy:

On behalf of President Bush, I write in response to your letter to the President dated February 11, 2003. In the letter, you renew your previous request for confidential Department of Justice memoranda in which Mr. Estrada provided appeal, certiorari, and amicus recommendations while he was a career attorney in the Office of Solicitor General for four years in the Clinton Administration and one year in the George H.W. Bush Administration. You also request that Mr. Estrada answer certain questions beyond the extensive questions that he already answered appropriately and forthrightly during his Committee hearing and in follow-up written responses.

We respect the Senate's constitutional role in the confirmation process, and we agree that the Senate must make an informed judgment consistent with its traditional role and practices. However, your requests have no persuasive support in the history and precedent of judicial appointments. Indeed, the relevant history and precedent convincingly demonstrate that a new and shifting standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada.

First, as the Department of Justice explained in its letters of June 5, 2002, October 8, 2002, and January 23, 2003, all living former Solicitors General (four Democrats and three Republicans) have strongly opposed your request for Solicitor General memoranda and stated that it would sacrifice and compromise the ability of the Justice Department to effectively represent the United States in court. Even more telling, we are informed that the Senate has not requested memos such as these for any of the 67 appeals court nominees since 1977 who had previously worked in the Justice Department (including the seven nominees who had previously worked in the Solicitor General's office). The few isolated examples you have cited – in which targeted requests for particular documents about specific issues were accommodated for nominees to positions other than the U.S. Courts of Appeals – similarly do not support your request here.

Second, as explained more fully below with respect to your request that Mr. Estrada answer additional questions, the only specific question identified in your letter refers to his judicial role models. You claim that Mr. Estrada refused to answer a question on this topic. In fact, in his written responses to Senator Durbin's question on this precise subject that Mr. Estrada submitted three months ago, he cited Justice Anthony Kennedy, Justice Lewis Powell, and Judge Amalya Kearse as judges he admires (he clerked for Justice Kennedy and Judge Kearse), and he further pointed out, of course, that he would seek to resolve cases as he analyzed them "without any preconception about how some other judge might approach the question." Your letter to the President ignores Mr. Estrada's answer to this question. In any event, beyond this one query, your letter does not pose any additional questions to him. Additionally, neither of you has posed any written questions to Mr. Estrada in the more than three months since his all-day Committee hearing. Since the hearing, Mr. Estrada also has met (and continues to meet) with numerous Democrat Senators interested in learning more about his record. Finally, as I will view that would keep me from applying that case law faithfully." When asked whether Roe v. Wade was "settled law," Mr. Estrada replied, "I believe so."

General Approach to Judging

When asked by Senator Edwards about judicial review, Mr. Estrada explained: "Courts take the laws that have been passed by you and give you the benefit of understanding that you take the same oath that they do to uphold the Constitution, and therefore they take the laws with the presumption that they are constitutional. It is the affirmative burden of the plaintiff to show that you have gone beyond your oath. If they come into court, then it is appropriate for courts to undertake to listen to the legal arguments – why it is that the legislature went beyond [its] role as a legislat[ure] and invaded the Constitution."

Mr. Estrada stated to Senator Edwards that there are 200 years of Supreme Court precedent and that it is not the case that "the appropriate conduct for courts is to be guided solely by the bare text of the Constitution because that is not the legal system that we have."

When asked by Senator Edwards whether he was a strict constructionist, Mr. Estrada replied that he was "a fair constructionist" – meaning that "I don't think that it should be the goal of courts to be strict or lax. The goal of courts is to get it right. . . . It is not necessarily the case in my mind that, for example, all parts of the Constitution are suitable for the same type of interpretative analysis. . . . [T]he Constitution says, for example, that you must be 35 years old to be our chief executive. . . . There are areas of the Constitution that are more open-ended. And you adverted to one, like the substantive component of the due process clauses, where there are other methods of interpretation that are not quite so obvious that the court has brought to bear to try to bring forth what the appropriate answer should be."

When Senator Kohl asked him about environmental statutes, for example, Mr. Estrada explained that those statutes come to court "with a strong presumption of constitutionality."

In response to Senator Leahy, Mr. Estrada described the most important attributes of a judge: "The most important quality for a judge, in my view Senator Leahy, is to have an appropriate process for decisionmaking. That entails having an open mind. It entails listening to the parties, reading their briefs, going back beyond those briefs and doing all of the legwork needed to ascertain who is right in his or her claims as to what the law says and what the facts [are]. In a court of appeals court, where judges sit in panels of three, it is important to engage in deliberation and give ear to the views of colleagues who may have come to different conclusions. And in sum, to be committed to judging as a process that is intended to give us the right answer, not to a result. And I can give you my level best solemn assurance that I firmly think I do have those qualities or else I would not have accepted the nomination."

In response to Senator Durbin, Miguel Estrada stated that "the Constitution, like other legal texts, should be construed reasonably and fairly, to give effect to all that its text contains."

Mr. Estrada indicated to Senator Durbin that he admired the judges for whom he clerked, Justice Kennedy and Judge Kearse, as well as Justice Lewis Powell.

REV_00369290

Mr. Estrada stated to Senator Durbin that "I can absolutely assure the Committee that I will follow binding Supreme Court precedent until and unless such precedent has been displaced by subsequent decisions of the Supreme Court itself."

In response to Senator Grassley, Mr. Estrada stated: "When facing a problems for which there is a not a decisive precedent from a higher court, my cardinal rule would be to seize aid from anyplace where I could get it. Depending on the nature of the problem, that would include related case law in other areas that higher courts had dealt with that had had some insights to teach with respect to the problem at hand. It could include the history of the enactment, including in the case of a statute legislative history. It could include the custom and practice under any predecessor statute or document. It could include the views of academics to the extent that they purport to analyze what the law is instead of – instead of prescribing what it should be. And in sum, as Chief Justice Marshall once said, to attempt not to overlook anything from which aid might be derived."

In response to Senator Sessions, Estrada stated: "I am very firmly of the view that although we all have views on a number of subjects from A to Z, the first duty of a judge is to self-consciously put that aside and look at each case by starting withholding judgment with an open mind and listen to the parties. So I think that the job of a judge is to put all of that aside, and to the best of his human capacity to give a judgment based solely on the arguments and the law."

In response to Senator Sessions, Mr. Estrada stated that "I will follow binding case law in every case. . . . I may have a personal, moral, philosophical view on the subject matter. But I undertake to you that I would put all that aside and decide cases in accordance with binding case law and even in accordance with the case law that is not binding but seems constructive on the area, without any influence whatsoever from any personal view I may have about the subject matter."

Miranda/Stare Decisis

Mr. Estrada stated that United States v. Dickerson – a case raising the question whether Miranda should be overruled – reflected a "reasonable application of the doctrine of stare decisis. In my view, it is rarely appropriate for the Supreme Court to overturn one of its own precedents."

Affirmative Action

With respect to affirmative action, Mr. Estrada responded to Senator Kennedy that "any policy views I might have as a private citizen on the subject of affirmative action would not enter into how I would approach any case that comes before me as a judge. Under controlling Supreme Court authority, particularly Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Pena, 515 U.S. 200 (1995), if a government program creates a racial classification, it will be subject to strict scrutiny. Whether the program survives that sort of scrutiny will often involve a highly contextual and fact-specific inquiry into the nature of the justifications asserted by the government and the fit between those justifications and the classification at issue. Adarand and similar cases provide the framework that I would be required to apply, and would apply, in considering these issues as a judge."

Asked by Senator Leahy about the strict scrutiny test, Mr. Estrada replied, "the Supreme Court in the Adarand case stated, as a general rule, that the consideration of race is subject to strict scrutiny. That means that though it may be used in some cases, it has to be justified by a compelling state interest. And with respect to the particular context, there must be a fairly fact-bound individual assessment of the fit between the interest that is being asserted and the category being used. That is just another way of saying that it is a very fact-intensive analysis in the context of a specific program and in the context of the justifications that are being offered in support of the program."

Congressional Authority

With respect to the outer limits of Congress' power to confer authority on other governmental bodies, Miguel responded to Senator Kennedy that the Supreme Court has said that "particular factual context is significant in analyzing the appropriateness of a particular delegation. . . . Of course, the fact that the Supreme Court only rarely has struck down statutes on this ground suggests that the Court has been quite deferential to congressional judgments about the types of delegations that reasonably might be needed to carry on the business of government."

When Senator Kohl asked Mr. Estrada about the 1995 Lopez case concerning the scope of Congress' power to regulate, Mr. Estrada pointed out that he had argued in a companion case "for a very expansive view of the power to Congress to pass statutes under the Commerce Clause and have them be upheld by the court. . . . Lopez has given us guidance on when it is appropriate for the court to exercise the commerce power. It is binding law and I would follow it."

Ethnicity

With respect to the fact that the President had noted Miguel's ethnicity, Miguel responded to Senator Kennedy: "The President is the leader of a large and diverse country, and it is accordingly appropriate for him, in exercising his constitutional nomination and appointment powers, to select qualified individuals who reflect the breadth and diversity of our Nation."

With respect to the Democrat Congressional Hispanic Caucus's criticism of him, Miguel responded to Senator Kennedy that "I strongly disagree, however, with the Congressional Hispanic Caucus' view that I lack an understanding of the role and importance of courts in protecting the legal rights of minorities, of the values and mores of Latino culture, or the significance of role models for minority communities."

REV_00369292

Racial Discrimination

With respect to race discrimination, Mr. Estrada stated in response to Senator Kennedy: "I take a backseat to no one in my abhorrence of race discrimination in law enforcement or anything else."

Senator Feingold asked Mr. Estrada whether he believed that racial profiling and racially motivated law enforcement misconduct are problems in this country today. Mr. Estrada replied, "I am – I will once again emphasize I'm unalterably opposed to any sort of race discrimination in law enforcement, Senator, whether it's called racial profiling or anything else. . . . I know full well that we have real problems with discrimination in our day and age."

Senator Leahy asked Mr. Estrada about whether statistical evidence of discriminatory impact is relevant in establishing discrimination. Mr. Estrada replied: "I am not a specialist in this area of the law, Senator Leahy, but I am aware that there is a line of cases, beginning with the Supreme Court's decision in Griggs, that suggests that in appropriate cases that [such evidence] may be appropriate. . . . I do understand that there is a major area of law that deals with how you prove and try disparate-impact cases."

Congressional Authority to Regulate Firearms

Senator Feinstein asked whether Congress may legislate in the area of dangerous firearms, and Mr. Estrada responded that the Supreme Court had ruled that "if the government were to prove that the firearm had at any time in its lifetime been in interstate commerce even if that had nothing to do with the crime at issue, that that would be an adequate basis for the exercise of Congress' power."

Right to Counsel

Senator Edwards asked about Gideon v. Wainwright, the Supreme Court case guaranteeing the right to counsel for poor defendants who could not afford counsel. Although Senator Edwards appeared to question the reasoning in that landmark case, Mr. Estrada responded that "I frankly have always taken it as a given that that's – the ruling in the case."

C. Answers by President Clinton's Nominees

Your criticism of Miguel Estrada's testimony creates a double standard. You did not require nominees of President Clinton to answer questions of this sort (keeping in mind that you have not identified what your additional questions to Mr. Estrada are). President Clinton's appeals court nominees routinely testified without discussing their views of specific issues or cases. A few select examples, including of several nominees who had no prior judicial experience, illustrate the point. (Please note that these are isolated examples; there are many more we can provide if necessary.)

Merrick Garland (no prior judicial experience). In the nomination of Merrick Garland to the D.C. Circuit, Senator Specter asked him: "Do you favor, as a personal matter, capital punishment?" Judge Garland replied only that he would follow Supreme Court precedent: "This is really a matter of settled law now. The Court has held that capital punishment is constitutional and lower courts are to follow that rule." Senator Specter also asked him about his views of the independent counsel statute's constitutionality, and Judge Garland responded: "Well, that, too, the Supreme Court in Morrison v. Olson upheld as constitutional, and, of course, I would follow that ruling." Judge Garland did not provide his personal view of either subject.

Judith Rogers. In the hearing on Judge Judith Rogers' nomination to the D.C. Circuit, Judge Rogers was asked by Senator Cohen about the debate over an evolving Constitution. Judge Rogers responded: "My obligation as an appellate judge is to apply precedent. Some of the debates which I have heard and to which I think you may be alluding are interesting, but as an appellate judge, my obligation is to apply precedent. And so the interpretations of the Constitution by the U.S. Supreme Court would be binding on me." She then was asked how she would rule in the absence of precedent and responded: "When I was taking my master's in judicial process at the University of Virginia Law School, one of the points emphasized was the growth of our common law system based on the English common law judge system. And my opinions, I think if you look at them, reflect that where I am presented with a question of first impression, that I look to the language of whatever provision we are addressing, that I look to whatever debates are available, that I look to the interpretations by other Federal courts, that I look to the interpretations of other State courts, and it may be necessary, as well, to look at the interpretations suggested by commentators. And within that framework, which I consider to be a discipline, that I would reach a view in a case of first impression." Finally, Judge Rogers was asked her view of the three-strikes law and stated: "As an appellate judge, my obligation is to enforce the laws that Congress passes or, where I am now, that the District of Columbia Council passes." Judge Rogers did not provide her personal view of these subjects.

Marsha Berzon (no prior judicial experience). Senator Smith asked her views on Roe v. Wade and whether "an unborn child is a human being." Judge Berzon stated: "[M]y role as a judge is not to further anything that I personally believe or don't believe, and I think that is the strength of our system and the strength of our appellate system. The Supreme Court has been quite definitive quite recently about the applicable standard, and I absolutely pledge to you that I will follow that standard as it exists now, and if it is changed, I will follow that standard. And my personal views in this area, as in any other, will have absolutely no effect." When Senator Smith probed about their personal views on abortion and Roe v. Wade, Chairman Hatch interrupted: "I don't know how they can say much more than that at this point in this meeting."

Richard Tallman (no prior judicial experience). In response to written questions, Judge Tallman explained that "[j]udicial nominees are limited by judicial ethical considerations from answering any question in a manner that would call for an 'advisory opinion' as the courts have defined it or that in effect ask a nominee to suggest how he or she would rule on an issue that could foreseeably require his or her attention in a future case or controversy after confirmation." He was asked how he would have ruled in Plessy v. Ferguson. He stated: "It is entirely conjectural as to what I would have done without having the opportunity to thoroughly review the record presented on appeal, the briefs and arguments of counsel, and supporting legal authorities that were applicable at that time." He gave the same response when asked how he would have ruled on Roe v. Wade. When asked his personal view on abortion, he wrote: "I hold no personal views that would prevent me from doing my judicial duty to follow the precedent set down by the Supreme Court." He gave the same answer about the death penalty.

Kim Wardlaw. In the hearing on Judge Kim Wardlaw's nomination to the Ninth Circuit, Judge Wardlaw was asked about the constitutionality of affirmative action. She stated (in an answer similar to Miguel Estrada's answer to the same question): "The Supreme Court has held that racial classifications are unconstitutional unless they are narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest."

Maryanne Trump Barry. In the hearing on Judge Maryanne Trump Barry's nomination to the Third Circuit, Senator Smith asked for her personal opinion on whether "an unborn child at any stage of the pregnancy is a human being." Judge Barry responded: "Casey is the law that I would look at. If I had a personal opinion – and I am not suggesting that I do – it is irrelevant because I must look to the law which binds me."

Raymond Fisher. In the hearing on Judge Raymond Fisher's nomination to the Ninth Circuit, Senator Sessions asked Judge Fisher's own personal views on whether the death penalty was constitutional. Judge Fisher responded that "My view, Senator, is that, as you indicated, the Supreme Court has ruled that the death penalty is constitutional. As a lower appellate court judge, that is the law that I am governed by. I don't want in my judicial career, should I be fortunate enough to have one, to inject my personal opinions into whether or not I follow the law. I believe that the precedent of the Supreme Court is binding and that is what my function is."

V. Conclusion

Miguel Estrada is a well-qualified and well-respected judicial nominee who has very strong bipartisan support. Based on our reading of history, we believe that you have ample information about this nominee and have had more than enough time to consider questions about his qualifications and suitability. We urge you to stop the unfair treatment, end the filibuster, allow an up-or-down vote, and vote to confirm Mr. Estrada.

Sincerely,

explain below, Mr. Estrada forthrightly answered numerous questions about his judicial approach and views in a manner that matches or greatly exceeds answers demanded of previous appeals court nominees.

With respect, it appears that a double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada. That is highly unfair and inappropriate, particularly for this well-qualified and well-respected nominee.

I will turn now in more detail to the various issues raised by your letter. I will address them at some length given the importance of this issue and the nature of your requests.

I. Miguel Estrada's Qualifications and Bipartisan Support

Miguel Estrada is an extraordinarily qualified judicial nominee. The American Bar Association, which Senators Leahy and Schumer have referred to as the "gold standard," unanimously rated Estrada "well qualified" for the D.C. Circuit, the ABA's highest possible rating. The ABA rating was entirely appropriate in light of Mr. Estrada's superb record as Assistant to the Solicitor General in the Clinton and George H.W. Bush Administrations, as a federal prosecutor in New York, as a law clerk to Justice Kennedy, and in performing significant pro bono work.

Some who are misinformed have seized on Mr. Estrada's lack of prior judicial experience, but five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no prior judicial experience, including two appointees of President Clinton and one appointee of President Carter. Miguel Estrada has tried numerous cases before federal juries, argued many cases in the federal appeals courts, and argued 15 cases before the Supreme Court of the United States. That is a record that few judicial nominees can match. And few lawyers, whatever their ideology or philosophy, have volunteered to represent a death row inmate pro bono before the Supreme Court as did Miguel Estrada.

Mr. Estrada's excellent legal qualifications are all the more extraordinary given his personal history. Simply put, Miguel Estrada is an American success story. He came to this country at age 17 from Honduras speaking little English. Through hard work and dedicated service to the United States, Miguel Estrada has risen to the very pinnacle of the legal profession. If confirmed, he would be the first Hispanic judge to sit on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. Given his record, his background, and his integrity, it is no surprise that Miguel Estrada is strongly supported by the vast majority of national Hispanic organizations. The League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), for example, wrote to Senator Leahy to urge Mr. Estrada's confirmation and explain that he "is truly one of the rising stars in the Hispanic community and a role model for our youth." A group of 19 Hispanic organizations, including LULAC and the Hispanic National Bar Association, recently wrote to the Senate urging "on behalf of an overwhelming majority of Hispanics in this country" that "both parties in the U.S. Senate . . . put partisan politics aside so that Hispanics are no longer denied representation in one of the most prestigious courts in the land."

The current effort to filibuster Mr. Estrada's nomination is particularly unjustified given that those who have worked with Miguel -- including prominent Democrat lawyers whom you know well -- strongly support his confirmation. For example, Ron Klain, who served as a high-ranking adviser to former Vice President Gore and former Chief Counsel to the Senate Judiciary Committee, wrote: "Miguel is a person of outstanding character, tremendous intellect, and with a deep commitment to the faithful application of precedent. . . . [T]he challenges that he has overcome in his life have made him genuinely compassionate, genuinely concerned for others, and genuinely devoted to helping those in need."

President Clinton's Solicitor General, Seth Waxman, wrote: "During the time Mr. Estrada and I worked together, he was a model of professionalism and competence. . . . In no way did I ever discern that the recommendations Mr. Estrada made or the analyses he propounded were colored in any way by his personal views – or indeed that they reflected any consideration other than the long-term interests of the United States. I have great respect both for Mr. Estrada's intellect and for his integrity."

A bipartisan group of 14 former colleagues in the Office of the Solicitor General at the U.S. Department of Justice wrote: "We hold varying ideological views and affiliations that range across the political spectrum, but we are unanimous in our conviction that Miguel would be a fair and honest judge who would decide cases in accordance with the applicable legal principles and precedents, not on the basis of personal preferences or political viewpoints." One former colleague, Richard Seamon, wrote that he is a pro-choice, lifelong Democrat with self-described "liberal views on most issues" who said he would "consider it a disgrace" if Mr. Estrada is not confirmed.

Similarly, Leonard Joy, head of the Federal Defender Division of the Legal Aid Society of New York, wrote that "Miguel would make an excellent Circuit Court Judge. He is as fine a lawyer as I have met and, on top of all his intellectual abilities and judgment he would bring to bear, he would bring a desirable diversity to the Court. I heartily recommend him."

Beyond the extensive personal testimony from those who worked side-by-side with him for many years, the performance reviews of Miguel for the years that he worked in the Office of Solicitor General gave him the highest possible rating of "outstanding" in every possible category. The reviews stated that Miguel:

- "states the operative facts and applicable law completely and persuasively, with record citations, and in conformance with court and office rules, and with concern for fairness, clarity, simplicity, and conciseness."
- "[i]s extremely knowledgeable of resource materials and uses them expertly; acting independently, goes directly to point of the matter and gives reliable, accurate, responsive information in communicating position to others."
- "[a]ll dealings, oral and written, with the courts, clients, and others are conducted in a diplomatic, cooperative, and candid manner."
- "[a]ll briefs, motions or memoranda reviewed consistently reflect no policies at variance with Departmental or Governmental policies, or fails to discuss and analyze relevant authorities."
- "[i]s constantly sought for advice and counsel. Inspires co-workers by example."

REV_00369283

In the two years that Miguel Estrada and Paul Bender worked together, Mr. Bender signed those reviews. These employment reviews thus call into serious question some press reports containing a negative comment from Mr. Bender about Mr. Estrada's temperament (which is the only negative comment made by anyone who actually knows Mr. Estrada). Just as important, President Clinton's Solicitor General Seth Waxman expressly refuted Mr. Bender's statement.

In sum, based on his experience, his intellect, his integrity, and his bipartisan support, Miguel Estrada should be confirmed promptly.

II. The Senate's Role

President Bush nominated Miguel Estrada nearly two years ago on May 9, 2001. As explained above, he is well-qualified and well-respected. By any traditional measure that the Senate has used to evaluate appeals court nominees, Miguel Estrada should have been confirmed long ago. Your letter and public statements indicate, however, that you are applying both a new standard and new tactics to this particular nominee.

As to the standard, the Senate has a very important role in the process, but the Senate's traditional approach to appeals court nominees, and the approach envisioned by the Constitution's Framers, is far different from the standard that you now seek to apply. Senator Biden stated the traditional approach in 1997: "Any person who is nominated for the district or circuit court who, in fact, any Senator believes will be a person of their word and follow stare decisis, it does not matter to me what their ideology is, as long as they are in a position where they are in the general mainstream of American political life, and they have not committed crimes of moral turpitude, and have not, in fact, acted in a way that would shed a negative light on the court." Congressional Record, March 19, 1997. Alexander Hamilton explained that the purpose of Senate confirmation is to prevent appointment of "unfit characters from State prejudice, from family connection, from personal attachment, or from a view to popularity." Federalist No. 76. It was anticipated that the Senate's approval would not often be refused unless there were "special and strong reasons for the refusal." No. 76.

As to tactics, you have indicated that some Senate Democrats intend to filibuster to prevent a vote on this nominee. As you know, there has never been a successful filibuster of a court of appeals nominee. Only a few years ago, Senator Leahy and other Democrat Senators expressly agreed with then-Governor Bush that every judicial nominee was entitled to an up-or-down floor vote within a reasonable time. On October 3, 2000, for example, Senator Leahy stated:

> Governor Bush and I, while we disagree on some issues, have one very significant issue on which we agree. He gave a speech a while back and criticized what has happened in the Senate where confirmations are held up not because somebody votes down a nominee but because they cannot ever get a vote. Governor Bush said: You have the nominee. Hold the hearing. Then, within 60 days, vote them up or vote them down. Don't leave them in limbo. Frankly, that is what we are paid to do in this body. We are paid to vote either yes or no – not vote maybe. When we hold a nominee up by not allowing them a vote and not taking any action one way or the other, we are not only voting 'maybe,' but we are doing a terrible disservice to the man or woman to whom we do this.

Senator Daschle similarly stated on October 5, 1999, that "[t]he Senate is surely under no obligation to confirm any particular nominee, but after the necessary time for inquiry it should vote him up or vote him down. An up or down vote, that is all we seek for Berzon and Paez. And after years of waiting, they deserve at least that much."

In his East Room speech of October 30, 2002, President Bush reiterated that every judicial nominee deserves a timely up-or-down floor vote in the Senate, no matter who is President or which party controls the Senate. Contrary to President Bush's attempts at permanent reform to bring order to the process, your current effort to employ a filibuster and block an up-or-down vote on the Estrada nomination may significantly exacerbate the cycle of bitterness and recrimination that President Bush has sought to resolve on a bipartisan basis. We fear that the damage caused by a filibuster could take many years to undo. To continue on this path would also be, in Senator Leahy's words, "a terrible disservice" to Mr. Estrada. We urge you to reconsider this extraordinary action, to end the filibuster of Mr. Estrada's nomination, and to allow the full Senate to vote up or down.

III. Request for Confidential Solicitor General Memos

You have suggested that Mr. Estrada's background, experience, and support are insufficient to assess his suitability for the D.C. Circuit. You have renewed your request for Solicitor General memos authored by Mr. Estrada. But every living former Solicitor General signed a joint letter to the Senate opposing your request. The letter was signed by Democrats Archibald Cox, Walter Dellinger, Drew Days, and Seth Waxman. They stated: "Any attempt to intrude into the Office's highly privileged deliberations would come at the cost of the Solicitor General's ability to defend vigorously the United States' litigation interests – a cost that also would be borne by Congress itself. . . . Although we profoundly respect the Senate's duty to evaluate Mr. Estrada's fitness for the federal judiciary, we do not think that the confidentiality and integrity of internal deliberations should be sacrificed in the process."

It bears mention that the interest asserted here is that of the United States, not the personal interest of Mr. Estrada. Indeed, Mr. Estrada himself testified that "I have not opposed the release of those records. . . . I am exceptionally proud of every piece of legal work that I have done in my life. If it were up to me as a private citizen, I would be more than proud to have you look at everything that I have done for the government or for a private client."

The history of Senate confirmations of nominees who had previously worked in the Department of Justice makes clear that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada's nomination. Since the beginning of the Carter Administration in 1977, the Senate has approved 67 United States Court of Appeals nominees who previously had worked in the Department of Justice. Of those 67 nominees, 38 had no prior judicial experience, like Miguel Estrada. The Department of Justice's review of those nomination records disclosed that in none of those cases did the Department of Justice produce internal deliberative materials created by the Department. In fact, the Department's review disclosed that the Senate did not even request such materials for a single one of these 67 nominees.

Of this group of 67 nominees, seven were nominees who had worked as a Deputy Solicitor General or Assistant to the Solicitor General. These seven nominees, nominated by Presidents of each party and confirmed by Senates controlled by each party, included Samuel Alito, Danny Boggs, William Bryson, Frank Easterbrook, Daniel Friedman, Richard Posner, and Raymond Randolph.

The five isolated historical examples you have cited do not support your current request. In each of those five cases, the Committee made a targeted request for specific information primarily related to allegations of misconduct or malfeasance identified by the Committee. Even in those isolated cases, the vast majority of deliberative memoranda written by those nominees were neither requested nor produced. With respect to Judge Bork's nomination, for example, the Committee received access to certain particular memoranda (many related to Judge Bork's involvement in Watergate-related issues). The vast majority of memoranda authored by Judge Bork were never received. With respect to Judge Trott, the Committee requested documents unrelated to Judge Trott's service to the Department. So, too, in the three other examples you cite, the Committee requested specific documents primarily related to allegations of misconduct or malfeasance identified by the Committee. Of course, no such allegations have been made in the case of Mr. Estrada.

In sum, the examples you have cited only highlight the lack of precedent for the current request. As the Justice Department has explained to you previously, the existence of a few isolated examples where the Executive Branch on occasion accommodated a Committee's targeted requests for very specific information primarily related to allegations of misconduct does not in any way alter the fundamental and long-standing principle that memos from the Office of Solicitor General – and deliberative Department of Justice memoranda more broadly – must remain protected in the confirmation context so as to maintain the integrity of the Executive Branch's decisionmaking process. That is a fundamental principle that has been followed irrespective of the party that controls the White House and the Senate.

Your continued requests for these memoranda have provoked a foreseeable and inevitable conflict that, in turn, has been cited as a basis for obstructing a vote on Mr. Estrada's nomination. Respectfully, the conflict is unnecessary because your desire to assess the nominee can be readily accommodated in many ways other than intruding into and severely damaging the deliberative process of the Office of Solicitor General. For example, you can review Mr. Estrada's written briefs and oral arguments both as an attorney for the United States and in private practice. As you know, those documents are publicly available and easily accessible; that said, we would be pleased to facilitate your access to them. (Mr. Estrada's hearing transcript suggests that no Democrat Member of the Committee had read Mr. Estrada's many dozens of Solicitor General merits briefs, certiorari petitions, and opposition briefs or the transcripts of his 14 oral arguments when he represented the United States.) You also may consider the opinions of others who served in the Office at the same time (discussed above) and examine the nominee's written performance reviews (also discussed above). There is more than ample information for you to assess Mr. Estrada's qualifications and suitability for the D.C. Circuit based on the traditional standards the Senate has employed.

It also is important to recognize that political appointees of President Clinton have read virtually all of the memoranda in question – namely, the Democrat Solicitors General Drew Days, Walter Dellinger, and Seth Waxman. None of those three highly respected Democrat lawyers has expressed any concern whatever about Mr. Estrada's nomination. Indeed, Mr. Waxman wrote a letter of strong support, and Mr. Days made public statements in support of Mr. Estrada.

In sum, the historical record and past precedent convincingly demonstrate that this request creates and applies an unfair double standard to Miguel Estrada.

IV. Request that Miguel Estrada Answer Additional Questions

Your letter also suggests that Miguel Estrada should answer certain questions that he allegedly did not answer in his hearing. To begin with, we do not know what your specific questions are. In addition, this request frankly comes as a surprise given that (i) Senator Schumer chaired the hearing on Mr. Estrada, (ii) the hearing lasted an entire day, (iii) Senators at the all-day hearing asked numerous far-reaching questions that Mr. Estrada answered forthrightly and appropriately, and (iv) only two of the 10 Democrat Senators then on the Committee even submitted any follow-up written questions, and they submitted only a few questions (in marked contrast to other nominees who received voluminous follow-up questions).

It also bears mention that Mr. Estrada has personally met with a large number of Democrat Senators, including Senators Landrieu, Lincoln, Bill Nelson, Ben Nelson, Leahy, Feinstein, Kohl, and Breaux; is scheduled to meet with Senator Carper; and would be pleased to meet with additional Senators.

The only specific question your letter identifies refers to Mr. Estrada's judicial role models, and you claim that he refused to answer a question on this topic. In fact, in Mr. Estrada's written responses to Senator Durbin's question on this precise subject, Mr. Estrada cited Justice Anthony Kennedy, Justice Lewis Powell, and Judge Amalya Kearse as judges he admires, and he further pointed out, of course, that he would seek to resolve cases as he analyzed them "without any preconception about how some other judge might approach the question."

In our judgment, moreover, Mr. Estrada answered the Committee's questions in a manner that was both entirely appropriate and entirely consistent with the approach that judicial nominees of Presidents of both parties have taken for many years. Your suggestions to the contrary do not square with the hearing record or traditional practice.

A. Judicial Ethics and Traditional Practice

In assessing your request that Miguel Estrada did not answer appropriate questions, we begin with rules of judicial ethics that govern prospective nominees. Canon 5A(3)(d) provides that prospective judges "shall not . . . make statements that commit or appear to commit the candidate with respect to cases, controversies or issues that are likely to come before the court"

REV_00369287

(emphasis added). Justice Thurgood Marshall made the point well in 1967 when asked about the Fifth Amendment: "I do not think you want me to be in a position of giving you a statement on the Fifth Amendment and then, if I am confirmed and sit on the Court, when a Fifth Amendment case comes up, I will have to disqualify myself." Lloyd Cutler, who served as Counsel to President Carter and President Clinton, has stated that "candidates should decline to reply when efforts are made to find out how they would decide a particular case."

In 1968, in the context of the Justice Abe Fortas' nomination to be Chief Justice, the Senate Judiciary Committee similarly stated: "Although recognizing the constitutional dilemma which appears to exist when the Senate is asked to advise and consent on a judicial nominee without examining him on legal questions, the Committee is of the view that Justice Fortas wisely and correctly declined to answer questions in this area. To require a Justice to state his views on legal questions or to discuss his past decisions before the Committee would threaten the independence of the judiciary and the integrity of the judicial system itself. It would also impinge on the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers among the three branches of Government as required by the Constitution." S. Exec. Rep. No. 8, 90th Cong. 2d Sess. 5 (1968).

Even in the context of a Supreme Court confirmation hearing, Senator Kennedy defended Sandra Day O'Connor's refusal to discuss her views on abortion: "It is offensive to suggest that a potential Justice of the Supreme Court must pass some presumed test of judicial philosophy. It is even more offensive to suggest that a potential justice must pass the litmus test of any single-issue interest group." Nomination of Sandra O'Connor: Hearings Before the Senate Comm. on the Judiciary on the Nomination of Judge Sandra Day O'Connor of Arizona to Serve as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, 97th Cong. 6 (1981) (statement of Sen. Kennedy).

Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg likewise declined to answer certain questions: "Because I am and hope to continue to be a judge, it would be wrong for me to say or to preview in this legislative chamber how I would cast my vote on questions the Supreme Court may be called upon to decide. Were I to rehearse here what I would say and how I would reason on such questions, I would act injudiciously." Similarly, Justice John Paul Stevens stated in his hearing: "I really don't think I should discuss this subject generally, Senator. I don't mean to be unresponsive but in all candor I must say that there have been many times in my experience in the last five years where I found that my first reaction to a problem was not the same as the reaction I had when I had the responsibility of decisions and I think that if I were to make comments that were not carefully thought through they might be given significance that they really did not merit."

Justice Ginsburg described the traditional practice in a case decided last year: "In the context of the federal system, how a prospective nominee for the bench would resolve particular contentious issues would certainly be 'on interest' to the President and the Senate . . . . But in accord with a longstanding norm, every Member of this Court declined to furnish such information to the Senate, and presumably to the President as well." Republican Party of Minnesota v. White, 122 S. Ct. 2528, 2552 n.1 (2002) (Ginsburg, J., dissenting) (emphasis added). Justice Ginsburg added that this adherence to this "longstanding norm" was "crucial to the health of the Federal Judiciary." Id. In his majority opinion, Justice Scalia did not take issue with that description and added: "Nor do we assert that candidates for judicial office should be compelled to announce their views on disputed legal issues." Id. at 2539 n.11 (emphasis in original).

In some recent hearings, including Mr. Estrada's, Senator Schumer has asked that nominees identify particular Supreme Court cases of the last few decades with which they disagree. But the problems with such a question and answer were well stated by Justice Stephen Breyer. As Justice Breyer put it, "Until [an issue] comes up, I don't really think it through with the depth that it would require. . . . So often, when you decide a matter for real, in a court or elsewhere, it turns out to be very different after you've become informed and think it through for real than what you would have said at a cocktail party answering a question." 34 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 425, 462.

Senator Schumer also has asked nominees how they would have ruled in particular Supreme Court cases. Again, a double standard is being applied. The nominees of President Clinton did not answer such questions. For example, Richard Tallman, a nominee with no prior judicial service who would now serves on the Ninth Circuit, not only would not answer how he would have ruled as a judge in Roe v. Wade – but even how he would have ruled in Plessy v. Ferguson, the infamous case that upheld the discredited and shameful "separate but equal" doctrine. So, too, in the hearing on President Clinton's nomination of Judges Barry and Fisher, Senator Smith asked whether the nominees would have voted for a constitutional right to abortion before Roe v. Wade. Chairman Hatch interrupted Senator Smith to say "that is not a fair question to these two nominees because regardless of what happened pre-1973, they have to abide by what has happened post-1973 and the current precedents that the Supreme Court has."

B. Answers by Miguel Estrada

Miguel Estrada answered the Committee's questions forthrightly and appropriately. Indeed, Miguel Estrada was more expansive than many judicial nominees traditionally have been in Senate hearings, and he was asked a far broader range of questions than many previous appeals court nominees were asked. We will catalogue here a select sample of his answers.

Unenumerated rights, privacy, and abortion

When asked by Senator Edwards about the Constitution's protection for rights not enumerated in the Constitution, Mr. Estrada replied: "I recognize that the Supreme Court has said [on] numerous occasions in the area of privacy and elsewhere that there are unenumerated rights in the Constitution, and I have no view of any sort, whether legal or personal, that would hinder me from applying those rulings by the court. But I think the court has been quite clear that there are a number of unenumerated rights in the Constitution. In the main, the court has recognized them as being inherent in the right of substantive due process and the liberty clause of the Fourteenth Amendment."

When asked by Senator Feinstein whether the Constitution encompasses a right to privacy and abortion, Mr. Estrada responded, "The Supreme Court has so held, and I have no view of any nature whatsoever, whether it be legal, philosophical, moral, or any other type of

The President should back loyal envoy Otto Reich
December 9, 2002 | Miami Herald
When Congress adjourned Nov. 21, the expected end of Assistant Secretary of State Otto Reich's temporary recess appointment was greeted with jubilation in Havana and silence from the White House. This allowed some to claim that he was somehow ''forced'' from his post as President Bush's top diplomat for the Western Hemisphere. While that wasn't exactly accurate, his political future -- despite Republican control of the Senate -- appears uncertain. Disappointed supporters are asking Bush to actively back Reich.
Denied a confirmation hearing by Senate Democrats for months -- and the target of mudslinging by the likes of Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. -- Reich performed admirably during his year in office. He's now ''special advisor'' to Secretary of State Colin Powell -- whatever that means.
Some wonder whether Powell, who has been less than supportive of Reich, is now trying to dump him. Hopefully this isn't so. Reich shouldn't be punished for successfully implementing the president's policies. Still, U.S. Reps. Lincoln D¡az-Balart, Ileana Ros-Lehtinen and others have openly expressed their concern.
Although Reich is caricatured by opponents as a ''right-wing ideologue,'' his background and distinguished government service paints a different picture. He has been endorsed by former ambassadors, diplomats, Pentagon officials and members of Congress.
Born in Havana, Reich fled Fidel Castro's communist dictatorship as a boy. His Jewish father had previously fled fascist Austria, where Reich's grandparents were killed by the Nazis. Not surprisingly, he disdains dictatorships of the right and left. A patriot, he served as a U.S. Army officer based in Panama.
While much is said of his ardent, pro-democracy views on Cuba, little of Reich's varied career has focused on Cuba. He earned a master's degree from Georgetown University in Latin American economic development -- not ''anti-Castroism.'' He was assistant administrator for the U.S. Agency for International Development and alternate U.S. representative to the United Nations Human Rights Commission in Geneva -- far from the ''right-wing'' norm.
Reich did head the State Department's office of public diplomacy under Ronald Reagan; his job was to counter Soviet-sponsored propaganda supporting communist revolutionary groups in Latin America. While detractors claimed nefarious motives behind this effort, his work helped to bring democracy to the region. Reich was later confirmed by the Senate and served as U.S. ambassador to Venezuela.
As top diplomat for the Americas, Reich faithfully pursued Bush's policy on Cuba. He clamped down on Castro's espionage efforts in the United States -- recently expelling several Cuban diplomat-spies -- and helped with a U.N. resolution condemning Cuba's human-rights abuses. For the first time, 10 Latin American countries joined the effort. But, while dealing firmly with the Cuban dictator, Reich has spent most of his energy elsewhere.

Reich has eagerly backed President Alvaro Uribe's promising counter-terrorism efforts in Colombia. And although Dodd criticized Reich for the administration's initial response to President Hugo Ch vez's short-lived ouster in Venezuela in April, recent events there only reinforce that Ch vez is a dangerous and authoritarian demagogue taking the country to the brink of civil war. Reich understands the real threats to democracy in the region.

He also understands that corruption in Latin America has undermined free-market reforms and provoked leftist populism and anti-Americanism. He thus made combating corruption and deepening democratic institutions a top priority. Despite opposition from the State Department bureaucracy, he denied visas to corrupt officials and human-rights violators, keeping them from enjoying their ill-gotten gains in the United States -- former Nicaraguan President Arnoldo Alem n is the most recent example.

An effective diplomat, Reich just completed a successful visit to Brazil, where he helped persuade newly elected President Inacio ''Lula'' da Silva to support the Free Trade Area of the Americas -- a significant about-face for the avowed leftist.

With the region in crisis, our relations with the Americas require vision, leadership and continuity. Reich provides all three. Bush should quickly renominate him and push for his confirmation. Barring that, he should make Reich a presidential special envoy with the authority to implement Latin American policy outside the State Department bureaucracy. Doing anything less would be a disservice to Reich -- and a blow to freedom and democracy in the hemisphere.

BYLINE: By TOM FAHEY

BODY:

Going to the Reagan-Lincoln Day Dinner on Friday at Yoken's in Portsmouth? Check your ticket. If it identifies guest speaker Andrew Card as the White House chief of staff, trade it in quick.

State Republican Committee Chairwoman Jayne Millerick said the Strafford and Belknap county Republicans printed the tickets without knowing the latest campaign finance laws. Now-departed state GOP Executive Director Chuck McGee warned event organizers that using Card's title on the tickets or advertising fliers could be construed as a felony.

About 500 of the tickets were printed up, so 500 new tickets were printed up with the instructions to distributors to exchange old tickets for new. The new ones just describe Card as "Honorable."

Most people willing to pay $40 to hear him speak know the rest anyway.

Millerick, meanwhile, is seeking a replacement for McGee, who resigned right after word came out that a Republican-hired company jammed get-out-the-vote phone lines in four New Hampshire cities. She has about a dozen resumes on her desk.

"We want to make sure that our next executive director is the best candidate," she said. "We're looking forward to hiring a very qualified and hard-working person."

Below is a draft of the letter that we will send out next week to officially notify the Hill that we are beginning our contingency measures (G Fund in this case). I will give them a heads-up the day before it is released. We generally release a day or 2 ahead of time (same as last year), so that could be as early as 2/18.

DRAFT

February 18, 2003

The Honorable Dennis Hastert

Speaker of the House

United States House of Representatives

Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Speaker:

In December of last year, Deputy Secretary Kenneth Dam wrote Congress requesting an increase in the statutory debt limit. Because the debt limit has not yet been raised, I must inform Congress that, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 8438(h)(2), it is my determination that by reason of the public debt limit I will be unable to fully comply with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. § 8438(e), beginning on February 20, 2003. This statute provides for the investment of the Government Securities Investment Fund ("G-Fund") of the Federal Employees Retirement System in special interest-bearing Treasury securities; it also grants the Secretary of the Treasury explicit authority to suspend this G-Fund investment to avoid breaching the statutory debt limit. Such a suspension action was taken by my predecessors both last year and also in 1995.

G-Fund beneficiaries are fully protected and will suffer no adverse consequences from this action. The statute ensures that once the Secretary of the Treasury can make the G-Fund whole without exceeding the public debt limit, he is to do so. Under the governing law in this case, the G-Fund will receive complete restoration of all funds temporarily affected by this necessary action, including full and automatic restoration of any interest that would have been credited to the Fund. In short, the result on the G-Fund and its beneficiaries will be the same as if this temporary action had never taken place.

I know that you share the President's and my commitment to maintaining the full faith and credit of the U.S. government, especially at this critical time. Together we must continue working to enact an increase in the statutory debt limit as quickly as possible to avoid any negative repercussions at home or abroad.

Sincerely,

As you know Boyden Gray was scheduled to debate Nan Aron on last Tuesday.

This is rescheduled for TODAY at 1:30 and will be carried on C-Span live.

As is appropriate for each of your offices, you may want to advise your media contacts to keep the issue alive.

Where's the Posse?

It's high noon for the civilized world. Let timorous Europeans go home to their kids.

BY R. JAMES WOOLSEY

Monday, February 25, 2002 12:01 a.m.

Paris, Berlin and Brussels are unhappy with the United States. French Foreign Minister Hubert Vedrine has called President Bush's axis-of-evil characterization of Iraq, Iran and North Korea "simplistic." German Foreign Minister Joschka Fischer said the U.S. was treating Europeans like "satellites." And the normally sensible European Foreign Affairs Commissioner Chris Patten called Mr. Bush's approach "absolutist" and "unilateralist overdrive."

Mr. Patten excepted, much of what is going on here is that many generally leftist members of the European elite have craws in which plain talk gets stuck--they gagged on Ronald Reagan's characterization of the Soviet Union as an evil empire and they are gagging again now.

It's hard to understand the Europeans' problem if one looks at the specific behavior of the regimes that rule Iraq and North Korea by torture and murder, and that also develop weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missiles in violation of their international obligations. There's virtually nothing about them that is not evil. Iran is a more complex case, because there is a genuine reform movement in the country as a whole and within part of the government, but the nation's power is still wielded--and the use of terrorism supported--by the small group of murderous mullahs whose behavior is on a par with their kindred spirits in North Korea and Iraq.

"Axis" may be a slight stretch because Germany, Japan and Italy were somewhat more aligned than the current gang, although there is definite cooperation on missilery between Iran and North Korea, and some past cooperation on terror between Iran and Iraq.

And my goodness, as Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld might say, how is the U.S. not consulting? Mr. Bush has just been in Asia consulting. Vice President Dick Cheney is headed to the Mideast to consult. Secretary of State Colin Powell is never not consulting.

No, what is agitating the Europeans is not really any inaccuracy in what the president has said, nor is it any failure on America's part to act collegially. Rather, it is a perverse commitment to the proposition that no American good deed should go unpunished. Many members of Europe's elites--British Prime Minister Tony Blair and a few other stalwarts being conspicuous exceptions--persist in a waspish and reality-denying worldview, the centerpiece of which is that anything that America is decisive and enthusiastic about is highly questionable at best.

A substantial part of this derives from their having chosen to lead the good life, to maintain generous social services, take long vacations and let the U.S. bear the principal burden of preserving the world's peace. There is no disdain quite as sour as guilt-driven disdain.

Life is imitating art here--the particular piece of art being the classic Western of half a century ago: "High Noon."

In the film, the marshal of the small town of Hadleyville, Will Kane (played by Gary Cooper), has just stepped down from his job and gotten married. As he is leaving town with his new bride, played by Grace Kelly, he learns that the gang leader who once dominated and terrorized the town has been pardoned by the governor of the state and is arriving on the noon train to meet his old gang and return to power. After a few minutes of indecision, the marshal decides to return to town over the strong objections of his pacifist wife. He starts to organize a posse to protect the town.

But as high noon nears, it becomes increasingly clear that the good citizens of Hadleyville, who had helped the marshal clean the town up years before, can now produce only a cornucopia of excuses: "If the marshal's not here there won't be any trouble--it's just personal trouble between him and Miller [the gang leader]"; "the politicians up north caused the mess--let them deal with it"; "what will they [potential investors] think if they read about shooting in the streets?"; "I'm no lawman, I just live here."

Most poignant is the scene between the marshal and a longtime loyal deputy who backs out of helping as noon approaches because he is worried about his young children. "Go on home to your kids, Herb," says the marshal, and goes out to face the gang alone.

Only the marshal's new wife, who at first had left him, returns at the last minute and helps him prevail against all odds. For a small Quaker lady who hates guns, she does quite well: one kill and one assist. As the townspeople realize he has won and come out of hiding to congratulate him, the marshal looks at them sternly, drops his badge in the dirt, and he and his wife drive away.

In today's front-page version of this story, the work on weapons of mass destruction being conducted by states that support terrorism is the noon train pulling relentlessly nearer. The French government and French oil companies are surely Academy Award material as a collective real-life version of the film's hotel clerk who is fixated on how good the saloon business will be once the gang is back in town.

Many other Europeans will find excellent models in the film to help them perfect both their excuses for inaction and their condescension toward their protector. Fred Zinnemann, the director of "High Noon," knew this moral territory well--as a refugee from Austria he had seen all the techniques for rationalizing appeasement and the deadly consequences of not challenging evil regimes before they can wreak total havoc.

"Ah," anti-American Europeans reading this very piece this morning will likely respond, "you see how the Americans idealize the impulsive Wild West cowboy and his unilateralist approach to dealing with the world. How naive. How droll."

So here are two quick ripostes. Cowboys are normal people--some are impulsive, some are loners, some are neither. But what you are rejecting is not a modern-day cowboy, but rather a modern-day marshal, and marshals are different. They and their equivalents, such as GIs, have chosen to live a life of protecting others, whatever it takes. That's not being impulsive--it's deciding to be a shepherd instead of a sheep.

Second, like the U.S. today in moving against the axis, the marshal in "High Noon" was trying very hard to be multilateral--he desperately wanted a posse.

He just had no takers. What the marshal was unwilling to do is to give up doing his duty just because everyone else found excuses to stay out of the fight.

Go on home to your kids, Europeans. Go on home to your kids. And then start praying that when it's over we won't drop our badge in the dirt.

RIN 1505-AA96

Terrorism Risk Insurance Program

AGENCY: Departmental Offices, Treasury.

ACTION: Interim final rule with request for comments.

SUMMARY: The Department of the Treasury (Treasury) is issuing this interim final rule as part of its implementation of Title I of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (Act). That Act established a temporary Terrorism Risk Insurance Program (Program) under which the Federal Government will share the risk of insured loss from certified acts of terrorism with commercial property and casualty insurers until the Program sunsets on December 31, 2005. This interim final rule sets forth the purpose and scope of the Program and key definitions that Treasury will use in implementing the Program. In general, this interim final rule incorporates interim guidance previously issued by Treasury concerning these definitions. However, the preamble indicates those areas in which Treasury has modified the interim guidance. This interim final rule is the first of a series of regulations Treasury will issue to implement the Program.

insurer and a Federal or State program or regulatory authority to be extremely important to the effective and efficient administration of the Program. A pre-existing nexus between an insurer and a regulatory structure, for example, assists Treasury in ensuring the financial integrity of participating entities, in obtaining necessary data to implement and evaluate the Program and in carrying out Treasury's surcharge and recoupment, audit and enforcement responsibilities under the Act. Treasury's emphasis on such a nexus is also in accord with the temporary nature of the Program and other aspects of the Program's statutory structure.

"State Licensed or Admitted"

Insurers under clause (i) of section 102 (6)(A) include all entities that are licensed or admitted by a State's insurance regulatory authority. This group of insurers includes captive insurers, risk retention groups, and farm and county mutuals, if such entities are State licensed or admitted. The Program treats all State licensed or approved insurers consistently in accord with the plain language of section 102(6)(A)(i). This treatment also furthers other statutory objectives such as ensuring that policyholders have widespread access to the terrorism risk insurance benefits of Program, and spreading potential costs of the Program associated with any federal loss-sharing payments. (For example, see the cost spreading provisions in connection with recoupment as required by section 103(e)(7) and in connection with surcharges as required by section 103(e)(8) to be applied to all commercial property and casualty policyholders).

Other Categories of Insurers

The NAIC has established criteria for approval of eligible surplus line carriers for listing on the NAIC's Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers. Federally approved insurers under section 102(6)(A)(iii) are addressed in detail below. Treasury intends to issue additional regulations to apply the provisions of the Act to insurers in clause (iv) of State residual market insurance entities and State workers' compensation funds pursuant to section 103(d)

As described above, all State licensed or admitted captive insurers are insurers within the Program under section 102(6)(A)(i). Treasury may, in consultation with the NAIC or the appropriate State regulatory authority, apply the provisions of the Act to "other classes or types of captive insurers and other self insurance arrangements" pursuant to section 103(f) of the Act, but only if such an application is determined before the occurrence of an act of terrorism and all of the provisions of the Act are applied comparably to such entities. Treasury has engaged in consultations, but has not yet made a decision regarding the participation in the Program of captives and other self insurance arrangements that do not fall into other categories in clauses (i)-(iv).

b. Must Receive Direct Earned Premiums As Required by Section 102(6)(B)

The second criteria an entity must meet to be an insurer for purposes of the Program is prescribed by section 102(6)(B). In addition to falling within a category in section 102(6)(A), to be an "insurer" under the Act, an entity must receive "direct earned premiums" (as defined) on any type of commercial property and casualty insurance (as defined). The key aspect of this requirement in the statutory definition of insurer is the Act's specification of a direct measure of premium income as opposed, for example, to a net measure of premium income which accounts for reinsurance. Although the legislative history and design of the Act envision reinsurance arrangements as an important component of capacity within the insurance market, the Act excludes reinsurance from the Program. (Section 103(g) of the Act provides that the Act does not limit or prevent "insurers" from obtaining reinsurance coverage for "insurer deductibles" or "insured losses" retained by insurers.) Therefore, consistent with the Act and Treasury's Interim

REV_00369828

Guidance II, the interim final rule provides that, if an entity does not receive direct earned premiums as required by section 102(6)(B), and subject to statutory exceptions, then the entity is not an "insurer" under the Act. In that regard, Section 102(6)(B) excepts State residual market insurance entities from the direct earned premium requirement.

c. Must Meet Additional Criteria Prescribed by Treasury Under Section 102(6)(C)

In addition to the requirements of Section 102(6)(A) and (B) described above, Section 102(6)(C) of the Act requires that an insurer also meet "any other criteria that the Secretary of the Treasury may reasonably prescribe." The interim final rule does not prescribe additional criteria under section 106 (C). Published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register is a notice of proposed rulemaking in which Treasury solicits public comment on whether the Secretary should prescribe other criteria for certain insurers pursuant to the authority provided by section 102(6)(C) and, if so, what criteria Treasury should prescribe. In this regard, in the notice of proposed rulemaking Treasury solicits comment on appropriate criteria to prevent participation in the Program by newly formed insurance companies deemed by Treasury to be established for the purpose of evading the insurer deductible requirements of the Act and the Program. As stated in the notice of proposed rulemaking, Treasury's objectives are to encourage new sources of capital in the market for terrorism risk insurance, and at the same time, ensure the integrity of the Program and provide comparable treatment of Program participants. Accordingly, the intent of any additional criteria, if proposed, is not to discourage Program participation by newly formed commercial property and casualty insurance companies in their normal course of business, but to administer the Program effectively and fairly, including preventing evasion of insurer deductible requirements by special purpose entities formed to provide terrorism risk only coverage.

REV_00369829

Also in the notice of proposed rulemaking published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register, Treasury is solicits comment on appropriate additional criteria, including financial standards, that should be proposed for federally approved insurers under Treasury's authority in section 102(6)(C). One reason for imposing additional criteria on federally approved insurers is because there are no uniform requirements or standards for federal approval under various federal programs. Although some federal programs impose minimum financial standards, others do not. Therefore, Treasury is considering whether additional criteria for federally approved insurers should be proposed to promote the financial integrity of the Program and to otherwise effectively administer the Program. In addition, in the notice of proposed rulemaking published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register, Treasury solicits comment on criteria that Treasury should propose and prescribe under section 102(6)(C) to ensure that payments under the Program do not benefit entities with connections to terrorist organizations.

d. "Federally Approved" Insurer

If an entity does not fall within section 102(6)(A)(i) or (ii), but is approved or accepted by a Federal agency to offer property and casualty insurance in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activities; receives direct earned premiums for any type of commercial property and casualty insurance as required by 102(6)(B), and, if prescribed, meets any criteria established by Treasury under 102(6)(C), then, such an entity is considered by Treasury to be a federally approved "insurer" under section 102(6)(A)(iii).

As reflected in Interim Guidance II, this interim final rule provides that the scope of insurance coverage (insured losses) under the Program for federally approved insurers under section 102(6)(A)(iii) is only to the extent of federal approval of the commercial property and casualty insurance coverage approved by the Federal Agency in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activity. Insured losses under other insurance coverage that may be offered by a federally approved insurer under section 102(6)(A)(iii) is not covered by the Program. This treatment of federally approved insurers is in accord with the statutory language of the Act in section 102(6)(A)(iii) ("approved for the purpose of offering property and casualty insurance by a Federal agency in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activity"). This treatment is also in accord with Treasury's consideration of a pre-existing nexus (for example, the nexus of State-licensing or NAIC approval for listing on the Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers) as very important to the effective and efficient administration of the Program. This nexus is considered by Treasury to be an important aid in ensuring financial integrity of participants in the Program, in obtaining data, and in connection with recoupment, audit and enforcement responsibilities, among others. In addition, this treatment is consistent with the temporary nature and other statutory structure of the Program. Treasury recognizes that it is possible to interpret section 102(6)(A)(iii) more broadly, but for reasons stated above has determined that the narrower reading is not only in accord with the statutory language but serves other important purposes in the administration of the Program.

Examples of federally approved insurers under section 102(6)(A)(iii) are those insurers that do not fall within section 102(6)(A)(i) or (ii), and are approved or accepted by a Federal agency under the following federal programs and statutes:

• Approval of Underwriters for Marine Hull Insurance (Maritime Administration, U.S. Department of Transportation)

• Aircraft Accident Liability Insurance (U.S. Department of Transportation)

• Oil Spill Financial Responsibility for Offshore Facilities (Minerals Management Service, U.S. Department of the Interior

REV_00369831

• Oil Spill Financial Responsibility for Vessels (United States Coast Guard, U.S. Department of Transportation)

• Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (Employment Standards Administration, U.S. Department of Labor)

• Price Anderson Act (Nuclear Regulatory Commission, U.S. Department of Energy)

The above list of Federal insurance programs contains an addition to the list contained in Interim Guidance II through the express inclusion of insurers approved or accepted under the Price Anderson Act. This list is provided as a starting reference point and is not exclusive. Any entity that is approved or accepted by a U.S. agency to offer commercial property and casualty insurance in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activities by a program that is not listed above is particularly encouraged to advise the designated Treasury contacts provided by this rule with the name of the program and the name of the Federal agency that approved or accepted them.

Treasury is not prescribing additional criteria under section 102(6)(C) in the interim final rule for federally approved insurers, but solicits comments elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register on whether and what additional criteria should be prescribed for federally approved insurer.

3. "Affiliates"

The definition of "insurer" in section 102(6) includes "any affiliate thereof." Section 102(2) of the Act defines "affiliate" to mean "with respect to any insurer, any entity that controls, is controlled by or is under common control with the insurer"(emphasis supplied). Any affiliate that does not meet the definition of insurer, for example, it does not fall into any of the categories in section 102(6)(A) or does not receive direct earned premiums for commercial property and casualty insurance as required by section 102(6)(B), is not an "insurer" for purposes of the Program. Consistent with Interim Guidance II, and the definition of "control" discussed below, Treasury will treat the parent company, and all affiliates that meet the requirements of "insurer" in section 102(6)(A), (B) and (C), collectively as one "insurer" for purposes of calculating the direct earned premiums on which the insurer deductible is based under the Program. This consolidated treatment is also in accord with the Conference Report to accompany the Act, which states, in the explanation of section 102 of the Act, that "the terms 'affiliate' and 'control' are meant to ensure that affiliated insurers are treated as a consolidated entity for calculating direct earned premiums." H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 107-779 (2002).

For example, if an insurance company is licensed or admitted to engage in the business of providing primary or excess insurance in a State and receives direct earned premiums as required in section 102(6)(B), and three out of four of its affiliate insurance companies also are State licensed and meet the requirements of section 102(6)(B)and (C), then the parent company and the three affiliates that meet the definition of "insurer" are, collectively, one insurer for purposes of calculating and consolidating direct earned premiums and calculating insurer deductibles under the Program. The affiliate that does not fall within one of the categories in section 102(6)(A) or fails to meet all the requirements to be an "insurer" under section 102(6) is not included in the Program.

As discussed previously in Interim Guidance II, if an entity is "under common control with the insurer," and that entity meets the requirements to be an "insurer" in section 102(6)(A)-(C), Treasury will consider that entity collectively with the other insurer (its affiliate) as one "insurer" for the Program purposes of consolidating direct earned premiums and calculating the insurer deductible. For example, assume that two insurance companies are licensed to engage in the business of providing primary or excess insurance in any State (either in one State or in separate States) and both receive direct earned premiums as required by section 102(6)(B). Each company, would meet the definition of "insurer." Assume additionally that the common parent of the two companies does not fall into any of the categories in section 102(6)(A). Treasury will consider the two affiliated companies to be, collectively, one insurer for purposes of calculating and consolidating direct earned premiums and their insurer deductible under the Program, but their parent company is not an insurer and not included in the Program.

4. "Control"

Related to the definition of insurer and affiliate is the definition of "control" in Section 102(3)(A)-(C) of the Act. The definition and determination of "control" for purposes of the Program is used by Treasury to calculate the insurer deductible on a consolidated basis for an insurer "including any affiliate thereof"(see discussion of affiliate above). Under the Act, an entity is in control of another entity if the statutory definition is met under section 102(3)(A) or (B), or if Treasury makes a determination under (C) that the entity directly or indirectly exercises a controlling influence over the management or policies of the other entity. Each category of control for purposes of the Program is described below with examples.

a. "Owns, Controls or has the Power to Vote" 25 Percent of Voting Securities

Section 102(3)(A) provides that an entity has "control" over another if the entity directly or indirectly or acting through 1 or more other persons owns, controls or has power to vote, 25 percent or more of any class of voting securities of the other entity. For example, if Insurer X owns, or has the power to vote, 25 percent or more of any class of voting securities of Insurer Y, then Insurer X is in control of Insurer Y under section 102(3)(A). This control relationship means, among other things, that Treasury will consolidate the direct earned premiums of these two insurers under Insurer X for purposes of calculating the insurer deductible and evaluating a claim for federal payment.

Published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register is a notice of proposed rulemaking in which Treasury solicits comments on whether the definition of control contained in the interim final rule should be supplemented by proposing a rule to address situations in which a corporate insurance structure may contain multiple insurers that own, control or have the power to vote more than 25 percent of the voting shares of another insurer. Based on available information, such control arrangements exist but they do not appear to be common. In particular, Treasury is considering consolidating direct earned premiums for purposes of calculating the insurer deductible on a pro rata basis among the multiple controlling owners. For example, if Insurer Y owns 40 percent of the voting shares of Insurer Z and Insurer X owns 30 percent of the voting shares of Insurer Z, then a pro rata allocation of premium income and insured loss under the Program would be, respectively, 57 percent and 43 percent.

b. Controls Election of Majority of Directors or Trustees

REV_00369835

Pursuant to section 102(3)(B), an entity also is in control over another entity for purposes of the Program if the entity controls in any manner the election of a majority of the directors or trustees of the other entity. For example, even if Insurer A does not own or have the power to vote 25 percent or more of any class of voting securities of Insurer B, if Insurer A controls in any manner the election of a majority of the directors or trustees of Insurer B, then Insurer A "controls" Insurer B under the Act. This means that , for purposes of the Program, Treasury will consolidate the direct earned premiums of these two insurers under Insurer A in calculating the insurer deductible and evaluating a claim for federal payment.

c. Control Determination by Treasury under Section 102(3)(C)

If no control relationship exists on the basis of either section 102(3)(A) or (B), Treasury has authority, under section 102(3)(C), to determine, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that an insurer directly or indirectly exercises a controlling influence over the management or policies of another insurer. To provide further guidance for purposes of a control determination under this subsection (C), the interim final rule establishes several rebuttable presumptions. The first rebuttal presumption under section 102(3)(C) is that an entity is in control of another entity for purposes of the Program (including consolidation of direct earned premiums in calculating the insurer deductible) if a State has determined that a control relationship exists between the two entities. If a State has made such a control determination with regard to two insurers, and the affected insurers wish to rebut the presumption established in this interim final rule, then the insurers may request an informal hearing (e.g. exchange of documents) in which they will be given an opportunity by Treasury to present and support their position that no control relationship exists, prior to a final determination by Treasury.

The second rebuttable presumption Treasury is establishing is that an insurer exercises

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

A. Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002

On November 26, 2002, President Bush signed into law the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (Public Law 107-297, 116 Stat. 2322). The Act was effective immediately. Title I of the Act establishes a temporary federal program of shared public and private compensation for directly or indirectly a controlling influence over the management or policies of another insurer under section 102(3)(C) if 25 percent or more of capital of a stock insurer, policyholder surplus of a mutual insurer, or corporate capital of other entities qualifying as insurers is provided by another insurer, even in the absence of voting shares or of control of the election of a majority of the directors or trustees of the other insurer. The third rebuttable presumption is that an insurer exercises directly or indirectly a controlling influence over the management or policies of a syndicate insurer if, at any time during the Program Year, the insurer supplies 25 percent or more of the underwriting capacity for that year to the other insurer that is a syndicate consisting of a group including incorporated and individual unincorporated underwriters.

If the affected insurers wish to rebut the presumptions described above and established by this interim final rule, then such insurers may request a hearing in which they will be given an opportunity to rebut the presumption of control by presenting and supporting their position through written submissions to Treasury and, in Treasury's discretion, through informal oral presentation.

Published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register is a notice of proposed rulemaking in which Treasury solicits comment on a pro rata allocation method for control determinations under section 102(3)(C) of the Act, similar to the pro rata method under consideration for controlling insurers under section 102(3)(A), in situations in which multiple insurers each provide 25 percent or more of the capital of a stock insurer, policyholder surplus of a mutual insurer or corporate capital of other entities that meet the definition of insurer under the Act and in the interim final rule. The pro rata approach under consideration by Treasury would treat each insurer on a standalone basis for Program purposes such as calculation of direct earned premiums and the insurer deductible if no insurer provides 25 percent or more of the capital of a stock insurer, policyholder surplus of a mutual insurer or corporate capital of other entities that meet the definition of insurer under the Act and the Program.

At a later date, Treasury will be issuing claims procedures. In accordance with the consolidated treatment of direct earned premiums among insurer affiliates, Treasury anticipates that the controlling insurer will be the insurer that will be required to file any claim with Treasury for federal payment under the Program and that this insurer will receive the federal payment that is to be distributed within the consolidated insurer group in accordance with distribution of risk within the consolidated insurer group. Elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register, Treasury solicits comments on various means to ensure the prompt distribution of the federal payment as appropriate to ensure that the purposes of the Program are not thwarted or evaded, and that the ultimate risk bearing entities are treated in an equitable manner, within the Act's requirements.

C. What is the scope of insurance coverage under the Program? ("insured loss", "property and casualty insurance", "direct earned premium" and insurer deductible")

REV_00369838

1. "Insured Loss"

The definition of "insured loss" in the interim final rule incorporates the statutory definition in section 102(5) supplemented by the guidance concerning scope of the term "insured loss" that is contained in Interim Guidance II and Interim Guidance III. Section 102(5) of the Act defines insured loss to mean any loss resulting from a certified "act of terrorism" covered by primary or excess "property and casualty insurance," that is issued by an "insurer," if such loss:

- "occurs within the United States," or
- occurs to an "air carrier"; a U.S. flag vessel or a vessel "based principally in the United States on which United States income tax is paid and whose insurance coverage is subject to regulation in the United States, regardless of where the loss occurs," or
- occurs "at the premises of any United States mission."

In general, if the property and casualty insurance coverage is provided within the geographic and other statutory parameters of the definition of "insured loss" in the Act as described above, and is provided by an "insurer" as defined in section 102(6) of the Act (whether or not the insurer is non-U.S. based or owned), then such losses will be covered by the Program, subject to the conditions for payment and other requirements of the Act. However, if insurance coverage is provided by an entity that is not an "insurer" under the Act, then, even if a loss occurs within the United States, or otherwise meets the definitional parameters of "insured loss," e.g. occurs to an air carrier or vessel or mission as defined in the Act, the loss would not be covered by the Program. In addition, if insurance is provided by a U.S. insurer, but the loss does not fall within the definition of "insured loss," for example, it occurs on foreign soil and not to a U.S. mission or covered air carrier or vessel, then the loss would not be covered by the Program.

REV_00369839

Section 102(5)(A) provides that "insured losses" means any loss resulting from a certified act of terrorism and covered by primary or excess property and casualty insurance issued by an insurer if such loss occurs within the United States.

As described in Interim Guidance III, insured losses under section 102(5)(B) are only those losses that are incurred by covered air carriers or vessels, if the insured loss occurs beyond the geographic boundaries of the United States as described in Section 102(5)(A). Losses that are incurred by covered air carriers or vessels would include losses covered by insurance coverage provided to those entities (for example, property insurance coverage and liability coverage). Not included under section 102(5)(B) are losses that are not incurred by covered air carriers or vessels, such as losses covered by third party insurance contracts that are separate from the insurance coverage provided to covered air carriers or vessels.

2. "Property and casualty insurance"

Section 102(12) of the Act defines "property and casualty insurance" to mean commercial lines of property and casualty insurance. The statutory definition expressly includes "excess insurance, workers compensation insurance and surety insurance." In addition, the Act specifically excludes (i) federal crop insurance issued or reinsured under the Federal Crop Insurance Act or any other type of crop or livestock insurance that is privately issued or reinsured; (ii) private mortgage insurance as defined in the Homeowners Protection Act of 1998 or title insurance; (iii) financial guaranty insurance issued by monoline financial guaranty insurance corporations; (iv) insurance for medical malpractice; (v) health or life insurance including group life insurance; (vi) flood insurance provided under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968; and (vii) reinsurance or retrocessional reinsurance.

REV_00369840

Insurance is generally regulated by State law in the United States. There is no uniform or consistent definition of "commercial property and casualty insurance" among the States. In some States, a line of insurance may be considered commercial and in other States the same line of insurance is considered personal. However, as Program administrator, Treasury must designate types or lines of commercial property and casualty insurance on which direct earned premiums and insurer deductibles are to be calculated and for which federal payments will be made for "insured losses" under the Program. Direct earned premiums received by insurers for commercial property and casualty insurance under the Program are the basis for the Program's statutory reinsurance structure, for other terms and for federal payments. In developing a definition of property and casualty insurance for purposes of administrating and implementing the Program, Treasury considered the statutory definition, the Program structure, and effective administration of the Program. In this regard, Treasury also consulted with the NAIC and others regarding State law and premium reports filed with the NAIC.

The interim final rule defines the scope of commercial property and casualty insurance for purposes of the Program to include commercial property and casualty insurance, including those lines of insurance expressly included in section 102(12) of the Act and excluding those lines of insurance expressly excluded by the same statutory definition. Treasury's interim final rule incorporates the suggested guidance in Interim Guidance I that commercial lines within the following lines of insurance coverage that are reported on the NAIC Annual Statement of the Exhibit of Premiums and Losses--commonly known as Statutory Page 14 are included in the Program: Line 1—Fire; Line 2.1—Allied Lines; Line 3—Farmowners Multiple Peril; Line 5.1—Commercial Multiple Peril (non-liability portion); Line 5.2—Commercial Multiple Peril (liability portion); Line 8—Ocean Marine; Line 9—Inland Marine; Line 16—Workers' Compensation;

Line 17—Other Liability; Line 18—Products Liability; Line 19.3—Commercial Auto No-Fault (personal injury protection); Line 19.4—Other Commercial Auto Liability; Line 21.2—Commercial Auto Physical Damage; Line 22—Aircraft (all perils); Line 24—Surety; Line 26—Burglary and Theft; and Line 27—Boiler and Machinery.

The interim final rule also clarifies that premium information on such lines of Statutory Page 14 should only be included in calculating an insurer's direct earned premium and insurer deductible to the extent that coverage is provided for commercial property and casualty exposures. In other words, personal insurance that is reported on the specified covered lines of Statutory Page 14 should be excluded from an insurer's calculation of its direct earned premium and insurer deductible. In making that determination for purposes of the Program, insurers may consider insurance coverage primarily designed to cover personal, family or household purposes to be personal insurance and, therefore, not covered by the Program. Personal insurance policies that include incidental coverage for commercial purposes would be considered to be primarily personal policies. For purposes of the Program, as reflected in this interim final rule, Treasury considers incidental commercial coverage to exist where less than 25 percent of total premium is attributable to commercial coverage.

In contrast, commercial property and casualty insurance generally is designed to cover the commercial interests of business, civic, not-for-profit or governmental entities, or other similar individuals, organizations, or professional practices. In cases where an insurance policy covers both commercial and personal exposures, and is not primarily a personal policy, insurers should allocate the proportion of risk between commercial and personal components in determining what portion of the policy falls under the Program. In suggesting this allocation, Treasury is not establishing a new reporting requirement at this time, but is suggesting a method by which insurers may calculate their deductibles and for Treasury to verify any claims under the Program.

Insurers that do not report premiums to the NAIC on Statutory Page 14 may use the guidance provided above as an analogy or reference point in determining whether and what lines of their commercial property and casualty insurance are included in the Program and in calculating their direct earned premium and insurer deductible. In this regard, as discussed earlier, the insurance coverage of federally approved insurers within the Program covers only those lines for which the insurer has received federal approval.

3. "Direct earned premium"

Section 102(4) of the Act defines direct earned premium as a "direct earned premium for property and casualty insurance issued by any insurer for insurance against" insured losses as defined in section 102(5). As discussed below, the term "insurer deductible" is based on direct earned premiums received by insurers during specified time periods. Interim Guidance I and II, provided guidance to concerning the term "direct earned premium" in relation to the terms "insurer deductible", "insured loss" and "property and casualty insurance". The interim final rule reflects this previous guidance but contains further clarifications and supplementary guidance. For insurers that report premiums to the NAIC on Statutory Page 14, "direct earned premium" is the information reported on column 2 for the lines of commercial property and casualty insurance referenced above, with the specified adjustments to remove personal insurance coverage. This interpretation of direct earned premium information is consistent with scope of "insured loss" as defined in the Act and will be used by Treasury to calculate the insurer deductible for these insurers.

REV_00369843

Other insurers that are required to participate in the Program but that do not report on Statutory Page 14 may use the discussion above with reference to Statutory Page 14 as an analogy in developing a comparable means by which they may calculate their direct earned premiums. Treasury will use similar premium information (compiled by these entities or their State regulators) to calculate an insurer's deductible. For county or town mutual insurers that do not report to the NAIC, for purposes of calculating direct earned premium, data that is reported to their State regulator or maintained by the insurer should be adjusted to: (1) reflect an appropriate breakdown between commercial and personal risks as outlined above; and (2) if necessary, re-stated to reflect the accrual method of determining direct earned premium versus direct premium. In addition, such entities should also consider other types of payments that compensate an insurer for the risk of loss (for example, assessments, contributions, or other similar concepts) as being equivalent to premium income for purposes of the Program.

Eligible surplus line carrier insurers may determine the scope of insurance coverage and their insurer deductible under the Program for policies that are in-force as of the date of enactment or that are entered into prior to January 1, 2003, with reference to the geographic scope in the definition of "insured loss," and with reference to the covered commercial property and casualty lines of insurance described above. For policies issued by eligible surplus line carriers after January 1, 2003, as stated in Interim Guidance II, the premium for insurance coverage within the geographic scope of "insured loss" must be priced separately by eligible surplus line carrier insurers.

In calculating the appropriate measure of direct earned premium to determine the deductible for Program Year 1, eligible surplus line carriers may use and rely on the same allocation methodologies contained within the NAIC's "Allocation of Surplus Lines and Independently Procured Insurance Premium Tax on Multi-State Risks Model Regulation" for allocating premium between coverage within the geographic scope of "insured loss" and all other coverage to estimate the appropriate percentage of premium income for such policies that applies to such risks.

Similarly, consistent with the scope of insurance coverage under the Program and other limitations that apply to federally approved insurers, such insurers should a use methodology similar to that used by eligible surplus line carriers in calculating the appropriate measure of their direct earned premium.

4. "Insurer Deductible"

The Act defines an "Insurer Deductible" in Section 102(7) for the various "Program Years" and other periods covered by the Program. For example, Section 102(7)(B) defines the insurer deductible for Program Year 1 (January 1, 2003 through December 31, 2003) as "the value of an insurer's direct earned premiums over the calendar year immediately preceding Program Year 1 multiplied by 7 percent". A State licensed or admitted insurer may estimate its insurer deductible by multiplying the applicable percentage (listed in the Act for each of the Program Years) by the direct earned premium information for commercial lines of property and casualty insurance reported on Statutory Page 14 with the appropriate adjustments as described above. Other entities should follow a similar methodology based the definitions of "insured loss," "property and casualty insurance," and "direct earned premium."

Section 102(7)(E) provides Treasury with authority to determine the appropriate methodology for measuring the direct earned premium if an insurer has not had a full year of operations during the calendar year immediately preceding the Program Year.

Because new companies have only had limited business operations, it is likely that their premium income will be somewhat volatile. Such volatility could persist throughout the life of the three-year Program. Thus, to treat these newly formed insurers in a manner that is consistent with other insurers under the Program and to prevent newly formed insurers from having the unfair advantage of lower relative deductibles, this interim final rule specifies that the deductible measure for new companies formed after the date of enactment (November 26) will be based on contemporaneous data for direct earned premium that corresponds to the current Program Year. If a newly formed insurer does not have a full year of operations within a particular Program year, this interim final rule provides that an insurer's direct earned premium for Program year will be annualized to determine an insurer's deductible.

III. Procedural Requirements

Effective on the date of enactment (November 26, 2002), the Act established a Program to provide for loss sharing payments by the Federal Government for insured losses resulting from certified acts of terrorism. No one can predict if, or when, such terrorist acts may occur. Preemptions of terrorism risk exclusions in policies, mandatory participation provisions, disclosure and other requirements and conditions for federal payment contained in the Act applied immediately to those entities that come within the Act's definition of "insurer." There is an urgent need for Treasury, as Program administrator, to implement the Program through interim final regulations to provide clarity and certainty concerning which entities are required to participate in the Program; the scope and conditions of Program coverage; and other implementation issues that immediately affect insurers, their policyholders, State regulators and other interested parties. This includes the need to supplement, or modify as necessary, previously issued interim guidance.

insured commercial property and casualty losses resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in the Act and certified by the Secretary of the Treasury, in concurrence with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General. The Act authorizes Treasury to administer and implement the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program, including the issuance of regulations and procedures. The Program will sunset on December 31, 2005.

The Act's purposes are to address market disruptions, ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of commercial property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk and to allow for a transition period for the private markets to stabilize and build capacity while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

The amount of Federal payment for an insured loss resulting from an act of terrorism is to be determined based upon the insurance company deductibles and excess loss sharing with the Federal Government, as specified by the Act. Thus, the Program provides a Federal reinsurance backstop for a temporary period of time. The Act also provides Treasury with authority to recoup Federal payments made under the Program through policyholder surcharges, up to a maximum annual limit.

Each entity that meets the definition of "insurer" must participate in the Program. From the date of enactment of the Act through the last day of Program Year 2 (December 31, 2004), insurers under the Program must "make available" terrorism risk insurance in their commercial property and casualty insurance policies and the coverage must not differ materially from the terms, amounts and other coverage limitations applicable to commercial property and casualty losses arising from events other than acts of terrorism. The Act permits Treasury to extend the "make available" requirement into Program Year 3, based on an analysis of factors referenced in the study required by section 108(d)(1) of the Act, and not later than September 1, 2004.

Accordingly, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(B), Treasury has determined that it would be contrary to the public interest to delay the publication of this rule in final form during the pendency of an opportunity for public comment. For the same reasons, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553(d)(3), Treasury has determined that there is good cause for the interim final rule to become effective immediately upon publication. While this regulation is effective immediately upon publication, Treasury is seeking public comment on the regulation and will consider all comments in developing a final rule.

It has been determined that this proposed rule is not a significant regulatory action for purposes of Executive Order 12866.

Because no notice of proposed rulemaking is required, the provisions of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6) do not apply.

§ 50.1 Authority, purpose and scope.

(a) Authority. This Part is issued pursuant to authority in Title I of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107-297, 116 Stat. 2322.

(b) Purpose. This Part contains rules prescribed by the Department of the Treasury to implement and administer the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program.

(c) Scope. This Part applies to insurers subject to the Act and their policyholders.

§ 50.4 Mandatory participation in Program.

Any entity that meets the definition of an insurer under the Act is required to participate in the Program.

§ 50.5 Definitions.

For purposes of this Part:

(a) Act means the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002.

(b) Act of terrorism. (1) In general. The term act of terrorism means any act that is certified by the Secretary, in concurrence with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General of the United States:

(i) To be an act of terrorism;

(ii) To be a violent act or an act that is dangerous to human life, property, or infrastructure;

(iii) To have resulted in damage within the United States, or outside of the United States in the case of:

(A) An air carrier (as defined in 49 U.S.C. 40102) or a United States flag vessel (or a vessel based principally in the United States, on which United States income tax is paid and whose insurance coverage is subject to regulation in the United States); or

(B) The premises of a United States mission; and

(iv) To have been committed by an individual or individuals acting on behalf of any foreign person or foreign interest, as part of an effort to coerce the civilian population of the United States or to influence the policy or affect the conduct of the United States Government by coercion.

REV_00369849

(2) Limitations. The Secretary is not authorized to certify an act as an act of terrorism if:

(i) The act is committed as part of the course of a war declared by the Congress (except with respect to any coverage for workers' compensation); or

(ii) property and casualty losses resulting from the act, in the aggregate, do not exceed $5,000,000.

(3) Judicial review precluded. The Secretary's certification of an act of terrorism, or determination not to certify an act as an act of terrorism, is final and is not subject to judicial review.

(c)(1) Affiliate means, with respect to an insurer, any entity that controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the insurer. An affiliate must itself meet the definition of insurer to participate in the Program.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (c)(1) of this section, an insurer has control over another insurer for purposes of the Program if:

(i) An insurer directly or indirectly or acting through one or more other persons owns, controls, or has power to vote 25 percent or more of any class of voting securities of the other insurer;

(ii) An insurer controls in any manner the election of a majority of the directors or trustees of the other insurer; or

(iii) The Secretary determines, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that an insurer directly or indirectly exercises a controlling influence over the management or policies of the other insurer, even if there is no control as defined in paragraph (c)(2)(i) or (c)(2)(ii) of this section.

(3) For purposes of a determination of controlling influence under paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of this section, the following rebuttable presumptions will apply:

(i) If a State has determined that an insurer controls another insurer, there is a rebuttable presumption that the insurer that is determined by the State to control another insurer exercises a controlling influence over the management or policies of the other insurer for purposes of paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of this section; and

(ii) If an insurer provides 25 percent or more of another insurer's capital (in the case of a stock insurer), policyholder surplus (in the case of a mutual insurer), or corporate capital (in the case of other entities that qualify as insurers), there is a rebuttable presumption that the insurer providing such capital, policyholder surplus, or corporate capital exercises a controlling influence over the management or policies of the receiving insurer for purposes of paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of this section.

(iii) If an insurer, at anytime during a Program Year, supplies 25 percent or more of the underwriting capacity for that year to an insurer that is a syndicate consisting of a group including incorporated and individual unincorporated underwriters, there is a rebuttable presumption that the insurer exercises a controlling influence over the syndicate for purposes of paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of this section.

(4) An insurer deemed to be in a control relationship pursuant to paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of this section as a result of the rebuttable presumption in paragraph (c)(3)(i), (ii) or (iii) of this section may request a hearing in which the insurer will be given an opportunity to rebut the presumption of control by presenting and supporting its position through written submissions to Treasury and, in Treasury's discretion, through informal oral presentations.

(d) Direct earned premium means the direct earned premium(s) received by an insurer for commercial property and casualty insurance issued by the insurer against insured losses under the Program.

(1) State licensed or admitted insurers. For a State licensed or admitted insurer that reports to the NAIC, direct earned premium is the premium information for commercial property and casualty insurance coverage reported by the insurer on column 2 of the NAIC Exhibit of Premiums and Losses of the Annual Statement (commonly known as Statutory Page 14). (See definition of property and casualty insurance).

(i) Premium information as reported to the NAIC is included in the calculation of direct earned premiums for purposes of the Program only for commercial property and casualty coverage issued by the insurer.

(ii) Premiums for personal property and casualty insurance coverage (coverage primarily designed to cover personal, family or household risk exposures) are excluded in the calculation of direct earned premiums for purposes of the Program.

(iii) Personal property and casualty insurance coverage that includes incidental coverage for commercial purposes is primarily personal coverage, and therefore premiums are excluded from the calculation of direct earned premium. For purposes of the Program, commercial coverage is incidental if less than 25 percent of the total direct earned premium is attributable to commercial coverage.

(iv) If a property and casualty insurance policy covers both commercial and personal risk exposures and is not primarily a personal insurance policy, insurers may allocate the premiums in accordance with the proportion of risk between commercial and personal components in order to ascertain direct earned premium.

(2) Insurers that do not report to NAIC. An insurer that does not report to the NAIC, but that is licensed or admitted by any State (such as certain farm or county mutual insurers), should use the guidance provided in paragraph (d)(1) of this section to assist in ascertaining its direct earned premium.

(i) Direct earned premium may be ascertained by adjusting data maintained by such insurer or reported by such insurer to its State regulator to reflect a breakdown of premiums for commercial and personal property and casualty exposure risk as described in paragraph (d)(1) of this section and, if necessary, re-stated to reflect the accrual method of determining direct earned premium versus direct premium.

(ii) Such an insurer should consider other types of payments that compensate the insurer for risk of loss (contributions, assessments, etc.) as part of its direct earned premium.

(3) Certain eligible surplus line carrier insurers. An eligible surplus line carrier insurer listed on the NAIC Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers must ascertain its direct earned premium as follows:

(i) For policies that were in-force as of November 26, 2002, or entered into prior to January 1, 2003, direct earned premiums are to be determined with reference to the definitions of insured loss and property and casualty insurance by allocating the appropriate portion of premium income that falls within the definition of insured loss. The same allocation methodologies contained within the NAIC's "Allocation of Surplus Lines and Independently Procured Insurance Premium Tax on Multi-State Risks Model Regulation" for allocating premium between coverage within the definition of insured loss and all other coverage to ascertain the appropriate percentage of premium income to be included in direct earned premium may be used; and

(ii) For policies issued after January 1, 2003, premium for insured losses covered by property and casualty insurance under the Program must be priced separately by such eligible surplus line carrier insurers.

(4) Federally approved insurers. A federally approved insurer under section 102(6)(A)(iii) of the Act should use a methodology similar to that specified for eligible surplus line carrier insurers in paragraph (d)(3) of this section to calculate its direct earned premium. Such calculation should be adjusted to reflect the limitations on scope of insurance coverage under the Program (i.e. to the extent of federal approval of commercial property and casualty insurance in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activities).

(e) Insured loss. (1) The term insured loss means any loss resulting from an act of terrorism (including an act of war, in the case of workers' compensation) that is covered by primary or excess property and casualty insurance issued by an insurer if the loss:

(i) Occurs within the United States;

(ii) Occurs to an air carrier (as defined in 49 U.S.C. 40102), to a United States flag vessel (or a vessel based principally in the United States, on which United States income tax is paid and whose insurance coverage is subject to regulation in the United States), regardless of where the loss occurs; or

(iii) Occurs at the premises of any United States mission.

(2)(i) A loss that occurs to an air carrier (as defined in 49 U.S.C. 40102), to a United States flag vessel, or a vessel based principally in the United States, on which United States income tax is paid and whose insurance coverage is subject to regulation in the United States, is not an insured loss under section 102(5)(B) of the Act unless it is incurred by the air carrier or vessel outside the United States.

(ii) An insured loss to an air carrier or vessel outside the United States under section 102(5)(B) of the Act does not include losses covered by third party insurance contracts that are separate from the insurance coverage provided to the air carrier or vessel.

(f) Insurer means any entity, including any affiliate of the entity, that meets the following requirements:

(1)(i) The entity must fall within at least one of the following categories:

(A) It is licensed or admitted to engage in the business of providing primary or excess insurance in any State (including, but not limited to, State licensed captive insurance companies, State licensed or admitted risk retention groups, and State licensed or admitted farm and county mutuals);

(B) It is not licensed or admitted to engage in the business of providing primary or excess insurance in any State, but is an eligible surplus line carrier listed on the Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers of the NAIC, or any successor to the NAIC;

(C) It is approved or accepted for the purpose of offering property and casualty insurance by a Federal agency in connection with maritime, energy, or aviation activity, but only to the extent of such federal approval of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage offered by the insurer in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activity;

(D) It is a State residual market insurance entity or State workers' compensation fund; or

(E) As determined by the Secretary, it falls within any other class or type of captive insurer or other self-insurance arrangement by a municipality or other entity, to the extent provided in Treasury regulations issued under section 103(f) of the Act.

(ii) If an entity falls within more than one category described in paragraph (f)(1)(i) of this section, the entity is considered to fall within the first category within which it falls for purposes of the Program;

(2) The entity must receive direct earned premiums for any type of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage, except in the case of:

(i) State residual market insurance entities and State workers' compensation funds, to the extent provided in Treasury regulations; and

(ii) Other classes or types of captive insurers and other self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, if such entities are included in the Program by Treasury under regulations in this Part.

(3) The entity must meet any other criteria as prescribed by Treasury.

(g) Insurer deductible means:

(1) For an insurer that was in existence on November 26, 2002 and has had a full year of operations during the calendar year immediately preceding the applicable Program Year:

(i) For the Transition Period (November 26, 2002 through December 31, 2002), the value of an insurer's direct earned premiums over calendar 2001, multiplied by 1 percent;

(ii) For Program Year 1 (January 1, 2003 through December 31, 2003), the value of an insurer's direct earned premiums over calendar year 2002, multiplied by 7 percent;

(iii) For Program Year 2 (January 1, 2004 through December 31, 2004), the value of an insurer's direct earned premiums over calendar year 2003, multiplied by 10 percent;

(iv) For Program Year 3 (January 1, 2005 through December 31, 2005), the value of an insurer's direct earned premiums over calendar year 2004, multiplied by 15 percent; and

(2) For an insurer that came into existence after November 26, 2002, the insurer deductible will be based on data for direct earned premiums for the current Program Year. If the insurer has not had a full year of operations during the applicable Program Year, the direct earned premiums for the current Program Year will be annualized to determine the insurer deductible.

(h) NAIC means the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

(i) Person means any individual, business or nonprofit entity (including those organized in

REV_00369856

An insurer's deductible increases each year of the Program, thereby reducing the Federal government's involvement prior to sunset of the Program. An insurer's deductible is based on "direct earned premiums" over a statutory Transition Period and the three Program Years. Once an insurer has met its deductible, the Federal payments cover 90 percent of insured losses above the deductible, subject to an aggregate annual cap of $100 billion. The Act prohibits duplicative payments for insured losses that have been covered under any other Federal program.

As conditions for federal payment under the Program, insurers must provide clear and conspicuous disclosure to the policyholders of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program, and must submit a claim and certain certifications to Treasury. Treasury will be prescribing claims procedures at a later date.

The Act also contains specific provisions designed to manage litigation arising from or relating to a certified act of terrorism. Section 107 creates an exclusive federal cause of action, provides for claims consolidation in federal court and contains a prohibition on Federal payments for punitive damages under the Program. This section also provides the United States with the right of subrogation with respect to any payment or claim paid by the United States under the Program.

B. Previously Issued Interim Guidance

To assist insurers, policyholders and other interested parties in complying with immediately applicable and time sensitive requirements of the Act prior to the issuance of these and future regulations, Treasury issued interim guidance in three separate notices. Treasury publicly released these interim guidance notices on its Program website, www.treasury.gov/trip, and published each notice in the Federal Register.

the form of a partnership, limited liability company, corporation, or association), trust or estate, or a State or political subdivision of a State or other governmental unit.

(j) Program means the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program established by the Act.

(k) Program Years means the Transition Period (November 26, 2002 through December 31, 2002), Program Year 1 (January 1, 2003 through December 31, 2003), Program Year 2 (January 1, 2004 through December 31, 2004), and Program Year 3 (January 1, 2005 through December 31, 2005).

(l) Property and casualty insurance means commercial lines of property and casualty insurance, including excess insurance, workers' compensation insurance, and surety insurance. Property and casualty insurance:

(1) Includes commercial lines within the following lines of insurance from the NAIC's Exhibit of Premiums and Losses (commonly known as Statutory Page 14): Line 1—Fire; Line 2.1—Allied Lines; Line 3—Farmowners Multiple Peril; Line 5.1—Commercial Multiple Peril (non-liability portion); Line 5.2—Commercial Multiple Peril (liability portion); Line 8—Ocean Marine; Line 9—Inland Marine; Line 16—Workers' Compensation; Line 17—Other Liability; Line 18—Products Liability; Line 19.3—Commercial Auto No-Fault (personal injury protection); Line 19.4—Other Commercial Auto Liability; Line 21.2—Commercial Auto Physical Damage; Line 22—Aircraft (all perils); Line 24—Surety; Line 26—Burglary and Theft; and Line 27—Boiler and Machinery; and

(2) Does not include:

(i) Federal crop insurance issued or reinsured under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.), or Multiple Peril Crop insurance reported on Line 2.2 of the NAIC's Exhibit of Premiums and Losses (commonly known as Statutory Page 14);

(ii) Private mortgage insurance (as defined in section 2 of the Homeowners Protection Act of 1988 (12 U.S.C. 4901)) or title insurance;

(iii) Financial guaranty insurance issued by monoline financial guaranty insurance corporations;

(iv) Insurance for medical malpractice;

(v) Health or life insurance, including group life insurance;

(vi) Flood insurance provided under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 4001 et seq.); or

(vii) Reinsurance or retrocessional reinsurance.

(m) Secretary means the Secretary of the Treasury.

(n) State means any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, Guam, each of the United States Virgin Islands, and any territory or possession of the Untied States.

(o) Treasury means the United States Department of the Treasury.

(p) United States means the several States, and includes the territorial sea and the continental shelf of the United States, as those terms are defined in the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (18 U.S.C. 2280 and 2281).

§ 50.6 Rule of construction for dates.

Unless otherwise expressly provided in the regulation, any date in these regulations is intended to be applied so that the day begins at 12:01 a.m. and ends at midnight on that date.

§ 50.7 Special rules for Interim Guidance safe harbors.

(a) An insurer will be deemed to be in compliance with the requirements of the Act to the extent the insurer reasonably relied on Interim Guidance prior to the effective date of applicable regulations.

(b) For purposes of this section, Interim Guidance means the following documents, which are also available from the Department of the Treasury at www.treasury.gov/trip:

(1) Interim Guidance I issued by Treasury on December 3, 2002, and published at 67 FR 76206 (December 11, 2002);

(2) Interim Guidance II issued by Treasury on December 18, 2002, and published at 67 FR 78864 (December 26, 2002); and

Wayne A. Abernathy

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury

REV_00369859

Treasury released the first notice of Interim Guidance on December 3, 2002, within a week of the Act's enactment (Interim Guidance I). Interim Guidance I was published at 67 FR 76206 on December 11, 2002 and addressed several issues pertaining to immediately applicable provisions of the Act, including statutory disclosure obligations of insurers as conditions for Federal payment under the Program and the requirement that an insurer "make available" terrorism risk insurance. The disclosure guidance in Interim Guidance I references certain model forms of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) and provides safe harbor for those insurers that make use of such forms prior to the issuance of regulations, but Interim Guidance I stated that these forms are not the exclusive means by which insurers could comply with the disclosure conditions prior to the issuance of regulations. Interim Guidance I also provided guidance concerning the "direct earned premium" on lines of property and casualty insurance to enable insurers to calculate their "insurer deductible" and enable insurers to price and disclose their premiums for terrorism risk insurance to policyholders within statutory time periods.

On December 18, 2002, Treasury issued a second notice of interim guidance. This interim guidance was published at 67 FR 78864 on December 26, 2002 (Interim Guidance II). Interim Guidance II further addressed the statutory categories of "insurers" that are required to participate in the Program, including their "affiliates"; provided clarification on the scope of "insured loss" covered by the Program and provided additional guidance to enable eligible surplus line carriers listed on the Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers of the NAIC or federally approved insurers to calculate their insurer deductible for purposes of the Program.

On January 22, 2003, Treasury issued a third notice of interim guidance, published at 68 FR 4544 on January 29, 2003 (Interim Guidance III). Interim Guidance III further clarified certain disclosure and certification questions, issues for non-U.S. insurers, and the scope of the term "insured loss" under the Act.

In issuing each notice of Interim Guidance, Treasury stated that the Interim Guidance may be relied upon by insurers until superseded by regulations or a subsequent notice. Treasury provided safe harbors for actions by those insurers taken in accordance with, and in reliance on, the interim guidance for the time period prior to the issuance of regulations. Treasury now is issuing an interim final rule with request for comment. The interim final rule addresses certain general Program provisions and Program definitions. Treasury is also issuing a companion proposed rule with request for comment.

II. Analysis of the Interim Final Rule

The interim final rule establishes a new Part 50 in Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations, 31 CFR Part 50. Part 50 eventually will include other regulations deemed necessary by Treasury to implement the Program. Subpart A of new Part 50 contains certain general provisions and definitions of Program terms.

Some of the definitions are taken virtually verbatim from the Act because they do not need further clarification and are included in the interim final regulations primarily for ease of reference. In addition, the interim final rule generally incorporates the interim guidance provided previously by Treasury as it pertains to Program terms, for example, the terms "insurer," "affiliate", "property and casualty insurance" and "direct earned premium." In several areas, the interim final regulation makes clarifying modifications to, or supplements, the interim guidance. For example, the interim final rule clarifies and emphasizes that the Program covers only commercial lines of property and casualty insurance, subject to the inclusions and exclusions of certain lines of insurance as set forth in the definition of property and casualty insurance in section 102(12) of the

Act. The Program does not cover personal lines of property and casualty insurance, even if the latter are reported by an insurer on the NAIC's Exhibit of Premiums and Losses (commonly know as Statutory Page 14).

In implementing the Program, Treasury has been guided by several goals. First, we strive to implement the Act in a transparent and effective manner that, for example, treats comparably those insurers required to participate in the Program and that provides necessary information to policyholders in a useful and efficient manner. Second, Treasury seeks to rely as much as possible on the State insurance regulatory structure. In that regard, Treasury is closely coordinating with the NAIC in implementing definitions and other aspects of the Program. Third, to the extent possible within statutory constraints, Treasury seeks to allow insurers to participate in the Program in a manner consistent with their normal course of business. Finally, given the temporary and transitional nature of the Program, Treasury is guided by the Act's goal for insurers to develop their own capacity, resources and mechanisms for terrorism risk insurance coverage when the Program expires.

Key Program definitions contained in the interim final regulation are analyzed below.

A. What is an "act of terrorism" under the Program?

The Program definition of "act of terrorism" in the interim final rule is the same definition that is contained in section 102(1) of the Act. Section 106(a)(2) of the Act provides that the Act's definition is the exclusive definition of the term "act of terrorism" for purposes of compensation for insured losses under the Act. The Act's definition requires a certification by the Treasury Secretary, in concurrence with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General of the United States, that an act is an act of terrorism within the statutory parameters. These parameters include an act that is violent or dangerous to human life, property or infrastructure; that has resulted in damage within the United States, or outside the United States in the case of certain air carriers or vessels or if on the premises of a U.S. mission; and that has been committed by individual(s) on behalf of any foreign person or foreign interest, as part of an effort to coerce the U.S. civilian population or to influence the policy or affect the conduct of the U.S. government by coercion.

Thus, for example, acts of domestic civil disturbance would not be covered by the Act's definition of "act of terrorism" or therefore, by the Program. As in the Act, the interim final rule provides that the Secretary's determination or certification with regard to an act is final and is not subject to judicial review. An act of terrorism must meet a $5,000,000 de minimis aggregate loss requirement before it may be certified. The Act also provides that an act is not certifiable if committed as part of a course of war declared by Congress, except with respect to workers compensation coverage.

B. What Entities Must Participate in the Program ("Affiliate", "Control", Insurer")?

1. Mandatory participation of insurers

The general provisions of the interim final rule incorporate the Act's requirement in section 103(a)(3) that each entity meeting the definition of "insurer" under the Act must participate in the Program.

2. "Insurer"

The interim final rule incorporates the statutory definition of "insurer" and generally incorporates the guidance set forth in Interim Guidance II concerning the categories of insurer and the definition of affiliate. To participate in the Program, an entity, including an affiliate of an insurer, must itself meet all of the requirements of section 102(6)(A),(B) and, as the Treasury may prescribe, (C). This means that to be an insurer, an entity must 1) fall within one of the categories in section 102(6)(A) described below, and 2) must receive direct earned premiums as required by section 102(6)(B) and 3) must meet any additional criteria established by Treasury pursuant to section 102(6)(C).

a. Must Fall Within a Category of Insurers in Section 102(6)(A)

First, an insurer must fall within at least one of the following several categories set forth in section 102(6)(A):

(i) Licensed or admitted to engage in the business of providing primary or excess insurance in any State ("State" includes the District of Columbia and territories of the United States);

(ii) Not so licensed or admitted, but is an eligible surplus line carrier listed on the Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners;

(iii) Approved for the purpose of offering property and casualty insurance by a Federal agency in connection with maritime, energy or aviation activity; or

(iv) A State residual market insurance entity or State workers' compensation fund.

Consistent with Interim Guidance II, the interim final rule provides that an entity that falls within two categories will be considered by Treasury to fall within the first category it meets under section 102(6)(A)(i)-(v). Therefore, if an entity is a federally approved insurer under section 102(6)(A)(iii) and is licensed or admitted in any State, it will be treated under the Program as a State licensed or admitted insurer under section 102(6)(A)(i).

In each of the categories of insurer in section 102(6)(A)(i)-(iv), the insurer has a pre-existing State or NAIC regulatory framework, or has a relationship with a Federal or State program. In developing this interim final rule, Treasury considers such a nexus between an

AGENCY: Departmental Offices, Treasury.

ACTION: Notice of proposed rulemaking.

SUMMARY: The Department of the Treasury (Treasury) is issuing this proposed rule as part of its implementation of Title I of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002. That Act established a temporary Terrorism Risk Insurance Program (Program) under which the Federal Government will share the risk of insured loss from certified acts of terrorism with commercial property and casualty insurers until the Program sunsets on December 31, 2005. This proposed rule sets forth the purpose and scope of the Program and key definitions that Treasury will use in implementing the Program. In general, the proposed rule incorporates interim guidance previously issued by Treasury concerning these definitions, but with some modifications. This proposed rule, together with the interim final rule published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register, are the first in a series of regulations Treasury will issue to implement the Act.

DATES: Written comments may be submitted on or before [INSERT DATE THAT IS 30 DAYS AFTER DATE OF PUBLICATION IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER].

ADDRESSES: Submit comments (if hard copy, preferably an original and two copies) to Office of Financial Institutions and GSE Policy, Attention: Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Public Comment Record, Room 3160 Annex, Department of the Treasury, 1500 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Washington, DC 20220. Because paper mail in the Washington, DC area may be subject to delay, it is recommended that comments be submitted by electronic mail to: triacomments@do.treas.gov. Please include your name, affiliation, address, e-mail address and telephone number in your comment. Comments will be available for public inspection by appointment only at the Reading Room of the Treasury Library. To make appointments, call (202) 622-0990 (not a toll-free number).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. The Proposed Rule

Published elsewhere in this separate part of the Federal Register is an interim final rule establishing 31 CFR Part 50, which will comprise Treasury's regulations implementing the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (the Act). The preamble to the interim final rule explains these provisions of the proposed rule in detail, and the text of the interim final rule serves as the text for this proposed rule.

In addition, Treasury specifically solicits public comment on whether the Secretary should prescribe criteria for certain insurers pursuant to the authority provided to Treasury in section 102(6)(C) and, if so, what criteria Treasury should prescribe. First, Treasury solicits comment on appropriate criteria to prevent participation in the Program by newly formed insurance companies deemed by Treasury to be established for the purpose of evading the insurer deductible requirements of the Act and the Program. In this regard, Treasury's objectives are to encourage new sources of capital in the market for terrorism risk insurance, and at the same time, ensure the integrity of the Program and provide comparable treatment of Program participants. Accordingly, the intent of any additional criteria, if proposed under section 102(6)(C), is not to discourage Program participation by newly formed commercial property and casualty insurance companies in their normal course of business, but to administer the Program effectively and fairly, including preventing evasion of insurer deductible requirements by special purpose entities formed to provide terrorism risk only coverage.

Second, Treasury solicits comment on appropriate additional criteria, including financial standards, that should be proposed for federally approved insurers under Treasury's authority in section 102(6)(C) of the Act. One reason for imposing additional criteria on federally approved insurers is because there are no uniform requirements or standards for federal approval under various federal programs. Although some federal programs impose minimum financial standards, others do not. Therefore, Treasury is considering whether additional criteria for federally approved insurers should be proposed to promote the financial integrity of the Program and to otherwise effectively administer the Program. Third, Treasury solicits comment on appropriate additional criteria that should be proposed pursuant to section 102(6)(C) to ensure that federal payments made under the Program do not benefit entities with connections to terrorist organizations.

In addition to comments concerning possible additional criteria under section 102(6)(C), Treasury is soliciting comments on whether the definition of control contained in the interim final rule should be supplemented by proposing a rule to address situations in which a corporate insurance structure may contain multiple insurers that own, control or have the power to vote more than 25 percent of the voting shares of another insurer. See Section 102(3)(A) of the Act. Based on available information, such control arrangements exist but they do not appear to be common. In particular, Treasury is considering and solicits comment on consolidating direct earned premiums for purposes of calculating the insurer deductible on a pro rata basis among the multiple controlling owners. For example, if Insurer Y owns 40 percent of the voting shares of Insurer Z and Insurer X owns 30 percent of the voting shares of Insurer Z, then a pro rata allocation of premium income and insured loss under the Program would be, respectively, 57 percent and 43 percent.

Treasury also is considering and solicits comment on a similar pro rata allocation method for control determinations under section 102(3)(C) of the Act in situations in which multiple insurers each provide 25 percent or more of the capital of a stock insurer, policyholder surplus of a mutual insurer or corporate capital of other entities that meet the definition of insurer under the Act and in the interim final rule. If proposed as considered, this pro rata approach would treat each insurer on a standalone basis for purposes of section 102(3)(C) of the Act if no insurer provides 25 percent or more of the capital of a stock insurer, policyholder surplus of a mutual insurer or corporate capital of other entities that meet the definition of insurer under the Act and the Program.

In accordance with the consolidated treatment of direct earned premiums among insurer affiliates, Treasury anticipates that the controlling insurer will be the insurer that will be required to file any claim with Treasury for federal payment under the Program and that this insurer will receive the federal payment that is to be distributed within the consolidated insurer group in accordance with distribution of risk within the consolidated insurer group. Treasury solicits comments on various means to ensure the prompt and equitable distribution of the federal payment as appropriate to ensure that the purposes of the Program are not thwarted or evaded, and that the ultimate risk bearing entities are treated in an equitable manner, within the Act's requirements.

II. Procedural Requirements

It has been determined that this proposed rule is not a significant regulatory action for purposes of Executive Order 12866.

It is hereby certified that this proposed rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The Act requires all licensed or admitted insurers to participate in the Program. This includes all insurers regardless of size or sophistication. The Act also defines property and casualty insurance to mean commercial lines without any reference to the size or scope of the commercial entity. Accordingly, any economic impact associated with the proposed rule flows from the Act and not the proposed rule.

Terrorism risk insurance.

Authority and Issuance

For the reasons set forth above, the Department of the Treasury proposes to adopt as a final rule the interim final rule adding part 50 to 31 CFR subtitle A, as follows:

[The part title and text of proposed Part 50 is the same as the part title and text of Part 50 in the interim final rule published elsewhere in this separate part of this issue of the Federal Register.]

Actually, Friday the 28th does not work. Does Wednesday or Thursday work for you, or the following week (except for Monday)? Sorry for scheduling difficulties on our end.

Fire Alarm Speaker System Maintenance

The Fire Alarm Speaker System was undergoing maintenance between 1:30 PM and 2:00 PM when a message was unintenitally broadcast to some units in the in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion this may have caused.

If this had been an actual emergency, the Emergency Notification System
(ENS) would have broadcast additional instructions.

If you have any questions, please contact Management & Administration at x6-5400.

Thank You.

It's not. Gary said that he wanted to write a response and offered the chance to review it. If we were moving forward on the subject line idea, I think that would obviate at much of the stated reasons for the letter. I'm inclined to take a stab at drafting something that could go out to the whole complex on that. Okay with you?

Ken/Heather, per Bruce's/Heather's request, attached is a cover information memo from me to the Secretary and the Deputy Secretary transmitting four memoranda that they may consider issuing regarding permissible and prohibited political activity by department employees depending upon their respective categories. Since I'm not physically at the NAC(yet), may I count on you to get it through the Secretariat process? Thank you.

Memorandum to all Department of Homeland Security Career Employees (Other than Career Senior Executive Service, Secret Service or Certain Employees of the Customs Service)

Subject: Rules on Political Activities

The Hatch Act restricts the political activity of executive branch employees of the federal government. Employees who violate the Hatch Act face removal from their position or suspension of not less than 30 days. Federal employees also should be aware that certain political activities also may be criminal offenses under various provisions of title 18 of the U.S. Code. This memorandum outlines the restrictions on political activities that apply to career employees at the Department of Homeland Security, other than employees of the Senior Executive Service ("SES"), the Secret Service, or the Office of Investigative Programs of the United States Customs. This guidance reflects amendments made in 1993 to the Hatch Act. The Hatch Act amendments made it possible for you to take an active part in political campaigns and other political activities when not on duty. Under the amendments, however, you are prohibited from personally soliciting, accepting, or receiving partisan political contributions, running for partisan political office, and engaging in otherwise permissible political activities while on duty. If you have any questions regarding whether an activity is permissible, contact the Designated Agency Ethics Official.

Permissible Activities

NOTE:

- Time, place and manner restrictions: you may NOT engage in the otherwise permissible partisan political activities listed below while on duty, or in a government office or building, or wearing a uniform, badge, insignia or other item identifying you as a federal employee, or using a government owned or leased vehicle, or using a privately owned vehicle that is used on a recurrent basis for official business or that is clearly identified as being on government business.

- "On duty" includes the time period during which you are either (1) in a pay status other than paid leave, compensatory time off, credit hours, time off as an incentive award, or excused or authorized absence (including leave without pay), or (2) representing any agency or instrumentality of the United States in an official capacity.

- Registration and Voting: You may register and vote.

- Freedom of Expression: You may:

- Express personal opinions on partisan political subjects and candidates, subject to the prohibition on misuse of official position described below;

- Sign a partisan political petition as an individual;

- Display partisan pictures, signs, stickers, badges or buttons as an individual expression of opinion;

- Place a partisan bumper sticker on your privately owned vehicle and park it in a federal lot. If the car is used for official business on a recurrent basis or is clearly identified as being used on official business, however, you must cover the sticker while the car is being used for official business; and

- Place a sign or banner supporting a partisan political candidate at your home.

- Political Contributions: You may make financial contributions to partisan political candidates, parties, or organizations, including to campaign committees or party committees, subject to state and federal limitations.

- Political Party Participation: You may:

  - Join and maintain membership in a partisan political party or club; and

  - Hold office in or organize a partisan political party or club or be a delegate to a party convention as long as the duties of the office do not involve personal solicitation, acceptance, or receipt of political contributions.

- Working for a Candidate or Party: You may:

  - Initiate, circulate, and sign nominating petitions for candidates for partisan political office or other political petitions;

  - Campaign for or against, make campaign speeches for or against, and distribute campaign literature for or against candidates in partisan elections;

  - Host, help organize, and attend a partisan political rally or meet-the-candidate event which is not a fundraiser (see the rules on fundraisers below);

  - Serve as officer or chairperson of a partisan political fundraising organization or committee, as long as you do not personally solicit, accept, or receive political contributions;

  - Give a speech or keynote address at a partisan political fundraiser, as long as you do not solicit political contributions;

- Allow your name (but not your official title) to appear on an invitation to a partisan political fundraiser as a guest speaker, as long as the reference in no way suggests that you solicit or encourage contributions;

- Organize mail or phone solicitations, or stuff envelopes with requests for partisan political contributions (including funds, in-kind contributions, paid and unpaid services from businesses, and paid and unpaid services from individuals), as long as you do not personally solicit, accept or receive contributions;

- Help organize a partisan fundraiser including supplying names for the invitation list, as long as you do not personally solicit, accept, or receive contributions;

- Donate an item to be auctioned off in a fundraising raffle for the benefit of a partisan candidate's campaign;

- Solicit, accept, or receive uncompensated volunteer services related to partisan fundraising from an individual other than a subordinate; and

- Attend a partisan political convention or rally, fundraising function, election party, or meet-the candidate event.

- Endorsements: You may endorse or oppose a candidate for partisan political office in a political advertisement, broadcast, campaign literature, or similar material, provided you do not reference your title or official position.

- Voter Registration: You may assist in partisan voter registration efforts.

- Get out the Vote: You may drive voters in a private vehicle to polling places for a partisan political candidate, group, or party.

- Working at a Polling Station: You may:

  - Act as a recorder, watcher, challenger or similar officer at a polling place for a partisan election; or

  - Serve as an election judge or clerk, or in a similar position, performing nonpartisan duties as prescribed by state or local law.

- Running for Office: If you reside in a designated location, which includes most cities and counties in the Washington, DC area, you may run as an independent candidate for election to partisan political office at the municipal level and accept political contributions in connection with municipal elections, but you may not personally solicit political contributions from the general public.

- Nonpartisan Activities: You may:

- Express personal opinions on nonpartisan political subjects and candidates, subject to the prohibition on misuse of official position described below;

- Sign a nonpartisan political petition as an individual;

- Provide policy briefings in your official capacity to candidates and political groups on a nonpartisan basis;

- Participate in nonpartisan activities of a civic, community, social, labor, or professional organization, such as nonpartisan voter registration efforts;

- Campaign for or against nonpartisan issues, such as referendum questions, constitutional amendments, or municipal reforms;

- Participate actively as a candidate or in support of a candidate in a nonpartisan election; and

- Serve as an election judge or clerk, or in a similar position, performing nonpartisan duties as prescribed by state or local law.

■ Authorized Statements of Administration Policy: You may defend or debate current Administration policy in an appropriate forum in your official capacity, when properly authorized.

■ Support for a Candidate who is a Family Member: If your spouse or other family member is a candidate for partisan political office, you may:

- Attend a fundraiser or rally supporting him or her, stand in the receiving line, sit at the head table, distribute flyers and urge others to vote for him or her, provided that you do not personally solicit, accept, or receive contributions of money or paid or unpaid services or sell or collect money for tickets to the fundraiser or rally.

- Appear with your candidate family member in a political advertisement, broadcast, campaign literature, or similar material and urge others to vote for your spouse or family member, as long as you do not personally solicit political contributions.

Prohibited Activities

■ Running for Office: You may not run for nomination or as a candidate for election to a partisan political office, unless you are running as an independent candidate for a partisan political office on the local level in a designated municipality.

- Fundraising: You may not personally solicit, accept, or receive a partisan political contribution (except in certain circumstances involving a federal labor union), including by allowing your name to be listed on a fundraising invitation as a point of contact for the fundraiser or as part of the host committee for such an event, or by personally hosting a fundraiser at your residence. A "political contribution" includes funds, in-kind goods, and paid or unpaid personal services.

  - Exception: you may solicit, accept and receive uncompensated volunteer services from individuals who are not your subordinates (e.g., you may work in a phone bank asking individuals to volunteer).

  - Exception: Your spouse may host a fundraiser at your home, and you may attend and help organize it (e.g., by supplying names for the invitation list, addressing invitations, checking coats or serving drinks at the event), as long as you do not personally solicit, accept, or receive political contributions.

- Misuse of Official Position: You may not:

  - Use your official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with or affecting the result of an election (for example, you may not use your official authority to coerce any person to participate in partisan political activity, or solicit, accept, or receive partisan political contributions from anyone, with the exception for uncompensated voluntary services from individuals noted above);

  - Knowingly solicit or discourage the participation in any partisan political activity of any employee or person regulated by or doing business with the Department (for example, someone who has a matter pending before the Department); or

  - Use your official title while participating in otherwise permissible political activities.

- Recommendations: If you are involved in examining or appointing an applicant for the competitive service, you may not receive or consider a recommendation of the applicant by a Senator or Representative, except as to the character or residence of the applicant.

Subject: Rules on Political Activities

The Hatch Act restricts the political activity of executive branch employees of the federal government. Employees who violate the Hatch Act face removal from their position or suspension of not less than 30 days. Federal employee also should be aware that certain political activities also may be criminal offenses under various provisions of title 18 of the U.S. Code. This memorandum outlines the restrictions on political activities that apply to political appointees other than Senate-confirmed Presidential appointees. Under the Hatch Act, you are subject to several restrictions, including prohibitions on soliciting, accepting or receiving partisan political contributions and running for partisan political office. You are also barred from otherwise engaging in political activities while on duty and on many off-duty occasions as well.

Regulations implementing the 1993 Hatch Act amendments specifically provide agencies with discretion to impose additional restrictions on political appointees. In recognition of the character of our responsibilities, the Secretary has decided to limit participation in partisan campaigns by its top officials and political appointees, which are incorporated into the list of "do's" and "don'ts" below. If you have any questions regarding whether an activity is permissible, contact the Designated Agency Ethics Official.

Permissible Activities

NOTE:

- The combination of Department policy and Hatch Act requirements effectively bars you from engaging in partisan political activities while "on duty," and, in many circumstances, even when you are "off duty."

- Time, place and manner restrictions: you may NOT engage in the otherwise permissible partisan political activities listed below while on duty, or in a government office or building, or wearing a uniform, badge, insignia or similar item identifying you as a federal employee, or using a government owned or leased vehicle, or using a privately owned vehicle that is used on a recurrent basis for official business or that is clearly identified as being on government business.

- "On duty" includes the time period during which you are either (1) in a pay status other than paid leave, compensatory time off, credit hours, time off as an incentive award, or excused or authorized absence (including leave without pay), or (2) representing any agency or instrumentality of the United States in an official capacity.

- Registration and Voting: You may register and vote.

- Freedom of Expression: You may:

  - Express personal opinions on partisan political subjects and candidates, subject to the prohibition on misuse of official position described below;

  - Sign a partisan political petition as an individual;

  - Display partisan pictures, signs, stickers, badges or buttons as an individual expression of opinion;

  - Place a partisan bumper sticker on your privately owned vehicle and park it in a federal parking facility. If the car is used for official business on a recurrent basis or is clearly identified as being used on official business, however, you must cover the sticker while the car is being used for official business; and

- Political Party Membership: You may join and maintain membership in a partisan political party or group.

- Political Contributions: You may make financial contributions to partisan political candidates, parties or organizations, including to campaign committees or party committees, subject to state and federal limitations.

- Prior Relationship to a Candidate: You may provide political advice to a partisan candidate with whom you have had a prior relationship, subject to the compensation limitations on certain political appointees.

- Authorized Statements of Administration Policy: You may debate or defend current Administration policy in an appropriate forum in an official capacity, when properly authorized.

- Nonpartisan Activities: You may:

  - Express personal opinions on nonpartisan political subjects and candidate, subject to the prohibition on misuse of official position described below;

  - Sign a nonpartisan political petition as an individual;

  - Provide policy briefings in your official capacity to candidates and political groups on a nonpartisan basis;

  - Participate in nonpartisan activities of a civic, community, social, labor, or professional organization, such as nonpartisan voter registration efforts;

- Campaign for or against nonpartisan issues, such as referendum questions, constitutional amendments, or municipal reforms;

- Participate actively as a candidate or in support of a candidate in a nonpartisan election; and

- Serve as an election judge or clerk, or in a similar position, performing nonpartisan duties as prescribed by state or local law.

- Conventions: You may attend political party conventions, but not as a delegate, proxy or alternate and only on your own time.

- Partisan Fundraisers, Rallies and Meet-the Candidate Events: You may attend partisan fundraisers, rallies, meet-the-candidate events and election celebrations on your own time, subject to the restrictions on working for a party or candidate and on fundraising that are set forth below.

Prohibited Activities

- Running for Office: You may not run for a nomination or as a candidate for election to a partisan political office.

- Working for a Party or Candidate: You may not:

  - Take a visible or active management position in a partisan political campaign, e.g., by serving as a campaign officer;

  - Serve as an officer or organizer of a political party or other partisan political group;

  - Serve as a delegate, alternate or proxy to a political party convention;

  - Host, help organize, speak or work at a partisan rally or meet-the-candidate event;

  - Endorse or oppose a candidate for partisan political office in a political advertisement, broadcast, campaign literature, or similar medium;

  - Work at the polls on behalf of a partisan candidate or political party by acting as a checker, challenger or watcher, or in a similar partisan position; or

  - Otherwise volunteer or work in a partisan campaign in a role that involves direct contact with the electorate, including advance work.

- Fundraising: You may not knowingly solicit, accept, or receive a partisan political contribution, regardless of whether the candidate is a spouse or family member. A "political contribution" includes funds, in-kind goods, and paid or unpaid personal services. In particular, you may not:

- Sell tickets for or otherwise promote fundraising activities such as political dinners for a partisan candidate or political committee;
- Speak at partisan fundraising events;
- Allow your name and/or official title to be listed on a partisan fundraising invitation, or as part of a host committee for such an event;
- Serve as an individually named guest of honor at a partisan fundraising event;
- Help organize or work at a partisan fundraiser; or
- Personally host a partisan fundraiser at your residence in the United States (although your spouse may host a fundraiser at your residence, provided he or she is hosting it in his or her own right and not as a surrogate for you, and you may attend, subject to the restrictions on participation in such events described above).

- Misuse of Official Position: You may not:
  - Use your official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with or affecting the result of an election (for example, you may not use your official authority to coerce any person to participate in partisan political activity, or solicit, accept, or receive partisan political contributions from anyone, including a subordinate);
  - Knowingly solicit or discourage the participation in any partisan political activity of any employee or person regulated by or doing business with the Department (for example, someone who has a matter pending before the Department); or
  - Use your official title while participating in otherwise permissible political activities.

- Recommendations: If you are involved in examining or appointing an applicant for the competitive service, you may not receive or consider a recommendation of the applicant by a Senator or Representative, except as to the character or residence of the applicant.

- Special Rule –Support for a Candidate Who is a Family Member: If your spouse or other family member is a candidate for partisan political office, you should seek further guidance from the Designated Agency Ethics Official.

MEMORANDUM

DATE: February 17, 2003

TO: Career Senior Executive Service,
Secret Service, and Certain Employees of the Customs Service

FROM: Secretary Tom Ridge
Deputy Secretary Gordon England

Subject: Rules on Political Activities

The Hatch Act restricts the political activity of executive branch employees of the federal government. Employees who violate the Hatch Act face removal from their position or suspension of not less than 30 days. Federal employees also should be aware that certain political activities also may be criminal offenses under various provisions of title 18 of the U.S. Code. This memorandum outlines the restrictions on political activities that apply to career Senior Executive Service ("SES"), Secret Service, and employees of the Office of Investigative Programs of the United States Customs Service.

Under the Hatch Act, you are prohibited from soliciting, accepting or receiving partisan political contributions, from running for partisan political office, and from pursuing otherwise permissible political activities while on duty. Although the amendments to the Act in 1993 liberalized the statutory restrictions on taking an active part in partisan political campaigns for most career employees, it did NOT do so for the career Senior Executive Service, Secret Service personnel, or employees of the Office of Investigative Programs of the United States Customs Service. You remain subject to the previous Hatch Act restrictions prohibiting you from taking an active part in such campaigns. If you have any questions about whether an activity is permissible, contact the Designated Agency Ethics Official.

Permissible Activities

NOTE:

- Time, place and manner restrictions: you may NOT engage in the otherwise permissible partisan activities listed below while on duty, or in a government office or building, or wearing a uniform, badge, insignia or other item identifying you as a federal employee, or using a government owned or leased vehicle, or using a privately owned vehicle that is used on a recurrent basis for official business or that is clearly identified as being on government business.

REV_00371853

- "On duty" includes the time period during which you are either (1) in a pay status other than paid leave, compensatory time off, credit hours, time off as an incentive award, or excused or authorized absence (including leave without pay), or (2) representing any agency or instrumentality of the United States in an official capacity.

- Registration and Voting: You may register and vote.

- Freedom of Expression: You may:

  - Express personal opinions on partisan political subjects and candidates, subject to the prohibition on misuse of official position described below;

  - Sign a partisan political petition as an individual;

  - Display partisan pictures, signs, stickers, badges or buttons as an individual expression of opinion;

  - Place a partisan bumper sticker on your privately owned vehicle and park it in a federal parking facility. If the car is used for official business on a recurrent basis or is clearly identified as being used on official business, however, you must cover the sticker while the car is being used for official business; and

  - Place a sign or banner supporting a partisan political candidate at your home.

- Political Contributions: You may make financial contributions to partisan political candidates, parties or organizations, including to campaign committees or party committees, subject to state and federal limitations.

- Attendance at Political Events. You may attend a partisan political convention or rally, fundraising function or meet-the-candidate event solely as a spectator, but you may not participate in demonstrations or parades which are sponsored by a political party, a partisan political group, or an individual who is a candidate for partisan political office.

- Political Party Membership: You may join and maintain membership in a partisan political party or club.

- Nonpartisan Activities: You may:

  - Express personal opinions on nonpartisan political subjects and candidates;

  - Sign a nonpartisan political petition as an individual;

- Provide policy briefings in your official capacity to candidates and political groups on a nonpartisan basis;

- Participate in nonpartisan activities of a civic, community, social, labor, or professional organization, such as nonpartisan voter registration efforts;

- Campaign for or against nonpartisan issues, such as referendum questions, constitutional amendments, or municipal reforms;

- Participate actively as a candidate or in support of a candidate in a nonpartisan election; and

- Serve as an election judge or clerk, or in a similar position, performing nonpartisan duties as prescribed by state or local law.

- Authorized Statements of Administration Policy: You may defend or debate current administration policy in an appropriate forum in your official capacity, when properly authorized.

- Support for a Candidate who is a Family Member: If you are the spouse or family member of a candidate for partisan political office, you may:

  - Appear in photographs of the candidate's family shown in a political advertisement, broadcast, campaign literature, or similar material; and

  - Attend political functions with the candidate (including sitting at the head table and standing in the receiving line) as long as you do not distribute campaign literature, personally solicit, accept, or receive contributions of money or services, or collect money for tickets to the event.

Prohibited Activities

- Running for Office: You may not run for nomination or as a candidate for election to a partisan political office.

- Working for a Party or a Candidate: You may not:

  - Campaign for or against a political party or candidate or take a visible or active part in managing the political campaign of a candidate in a partisan political election, e.g., by serving as a campaign officer;

  - Make campaign speeches for or against a political party or candidate in partisan elections or on a partisan political question, if the address is given in concert with such a candidate or political party;

- Serve as an officer of a political party, a member of a national, state or local committee of a political party, or an officer or member of a committee of a partisan political club, or be a candidate for any of these positions;

- Organize or reorganize a partisan political party organization or partisan political group;

- Organize or manage partisan political rallies or meetings;

- Distribute campaign literature for or against a political party or candidates in partisan elections;

- Canvass for votes in support of or in opposition to a partisan candidate or political party;

- Initiate or circulate a partisan nominating petition;

- Work at the polls on behalf of a partisan candidate or political party by acting as a checker, challenger, or watcher, or in a similar partisan position;

- Serve as a delegate, alternate, or proxy to a political party convention;

- Drive voters in a private vehicle to polling places for a partisan political candidate, group, or party; or

- Endorse or oppose a candidate for partisan political office in a political advertisement, broadcast, campaign literature, or similar material sponsored or prepared by the candidate's campaign committee, a political party, or a partisan political group.

- Exception: You may purchase air time on a radio or television station, have fliers printed at your own expense, or stand outside of a political party convention with a homemade sign to state your personal opinion that a partisan political candidate is the best for a job, as long as the commercial, program or written material is not prepared at the request of, and is not sponsored by or paid for by, the candidate's campaign committee, a political party, or a partisan political group and you do not use your official title or reference your official position.

■ Fundraising: You may not:

- Personally solicit, accept, or receive a partisan political contribution (except in certain circumstances involving a federal labor union), including by allowing your name to be listed on a fundraising invitation as a point of contact for the fundraiser or as part of the host committee for such an event or by personally hosting a fundraiser at your residence; or

- Sell tickets, distribute invitations, or otherwise organize or promote such partisan fundraising events.

- A "political contribution" includes funds, in-kind goods, and paid or unpaid personal services.

- Exception: Your spouse may host a partisan fundraiser at your home and you may attend as long as you do not personally solicit, accept, or receive political contributions, and you do not speak at, organize, promote, or assist at the event.

- Misuse of Official Position: You may not:

  - Use your official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with or affecting the result of an election (for example, you may not use your official authority to coerce any person to participate in partisan political activity, or solicit, accept, or receive partisan political contributions from anyone, including a subordinate);

  - Knowingly solicit or discourage the participation in any partisan political activity of any employee or person regulated by or doing business with the Department (for example, someone who has a matter pending before the Department); or

  - Use your official title while participating in otherwise permissible political activities.

- Recommendations: If you are involved in examining or appointing an applicant for the competitive service, you may not receive or consider a recommendation of the applicant by a Senator or Representative, except as to the character or residence of the applicant.

MEMORANDUM FOR: The Secretary
The Deputy Secretary

FROM: Clark Kent Ervin – Acting Inspector General

SUBJECT: Permitted and Prohibited Political Activity

Per the Chief of Staff's request, my office provides herewith suggested memoranda that you may consider issuing to applicable department employees regarding what political activity they may and may not engage in. We have modeled these memoranda on the guidance issued by the Secretaries of State and Defense, reasoning that this department and its employees likewise should be as apolitical and nonpartisan as possible.

Fire Alarm Speaker System Maintenance

The Fire Alarm Speaker System was undergoing maintenance between 1:30 PM and 2:00 PM when a message was unintenitally broadcast to some units in the in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion this may have caused.

If this had been an actual emergency, the Emergency Notification System
(ENS) would have broadcast additional instructions.

If you have any questions, please contact Management & Administration at x6-5400.

Thank You.

Fire Alarm Speaker System Maintenance

The Fire Alarm Speaker System was undergoing maintenance between 1:30 PM and 2:00 PM when a message was unintenitally broadcast to some units in the in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion this may have caused.

If this had been an actual emergency, the Emergency Notification System
(ENS) would have broadcast additional instructions.

If you have any questions, please contact Management & Administration at x6-5400.

Thank You.

Fire Alarm Speaker System Maintenance

The Fire Alarm Speaker System was undergoing maintenance between 1:30 PM and 2:00 PM when a message was unintenitally broadcast to some units in the in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion this may have caused.

If this had been an actual emergency, the Emergency Notification System
(ENS) would have broadcast additional instructions.

If you have any questions, please contact Management & Administration at x6-5400.

Thank You.

Fire Alarm Speaker System Maintenance

The Fire Alarm Speaker System was undergoing maintenance between 1:30 PM and 2:00 PM when a message was unintenitally broadcast to some units in the in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion this may have caused.

If this had been an actual emergency, the Emergency Notification System
(ENS) would have broadcast additional instructions.

If you have any questions, please contact Management & Administration at x6-5400.

Thank You.

Fire Alarm Speaker System Maintenance

The Fire Alarm Speaker System was undergoing maintenance between 1:30 PM and 2:00 PM when a message was unintenitally broadcast to some units in the in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion this may have caused.

If this had been an actual emergency, the Emergency Notification System (ENS) would have broadcast additional instructions.

If you have any questions, please contact Management & Administration at x6-5400.

Thank You.

RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. This week, members of the House and Senate will return to Washington with a full agenda to address; from strengthening our economy to reforming health care to protecting national security.

On the Senate side, there is a crucial item of business that has been delayed for too long. We face a vacancy crisis in the federal courts, made worse by senators who block votes on qualified nominees. These delays endanger American justice. Vacant federal benches lead to crowded court dockets, overworked judges and longer waits for Americans who want their cases heard.

Regional appeals courts have a 15 percent vacancy rate, and filings in those courts reached an all-time high again last year. Since taking office, I have sent to the Senate 34 qualified, mainstream nominees for the federal courts of appeals. To date, only half of them have received a vote in the Senate, and 12 of the remaining 17 nominees have been waiting more than a year for a floor vote.

It is my responsibility to submit judicial nominations. It is the Senate's responsibility to conduct prompt hearings and an up or down floor votes on all judicial nominees.

Yet a handful of Democratic senators, for partisan reasons, are attempting to prevent any vote at all on highly qualified nominees. One of these nomiees is Miguel Estrada, my selection for the D.C. Court of Appeals. I submitted his nomination in May of 2001, and Miguel Estrada has been waiting ever since. That's almost two years, and that's a disgrace.

Miguel Estrada's credentials are impecable. He has served in the Justice Department under Presidents of both political parties. He has argued 15 cases before the U.S. Supreme Court, and he has earned the American Bar Association's highest mark, a unaimous rating of well qualified.

Miguel Estrada is an exceptional nominee for the federal bench. He also has a remarkable personal story. He came to America from Honduras as a teenager, speaking little English. Within a few years, he had graduated from high honors from Columbia College and Harvard Law School. Miguel Estrada then served as a law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy, as a federal prosecutor in New York, and as assistant to the solicitor general of the United States.

If confirmed, Miguel Estrada would be the first Hispanic American ever to serve on this court, which is often considered the second highest in the land. He would break through a barrier that has stood for too long. His nomination has strong support from citizens and leaders in both parties, and endorsements from the Hispanic National Bar Association, the League of United Latin American Citizens, and more than a dozen other distinguished groups. He is a role model for young people all across this nation; living proof that in America anything is possible.

I nominated Miguel Estrada for the Court of Appeals because he's a man of talent and character who will be an excellent judge. Yet after 21 months, he still cannot get an up or down vote from the Senate. Democrats are stalling Miguel Estrada's nomination, while they search in vain for a reason to reject him.

Some senators who once insisted that every appeals court nominee deserves a vote have abandoned that principle for partisan politics. Their tactics are unfair to the good man I have nominated, and unfaithful to the Senate's own obligations. I call on the Senate Democratic leadership to stop playing politics, and permit a vote on Miguel Estrada's nomination.

Let each senator vote as he or she thinks best, but give the man a vote. Thank you for listening.

Do you have the final version of radio address that went to President.
There was a word missing in transcription, and we wanted to check whether the word had been in final version (the word was in version 7 that went to this one, and we are checking it closely.

Can this go on White House stationery? It is in response to a letter that asks us to confirm that the President left her a voicemail message.

We apologize for the delay in responding to your letter concerning the recorded message from President Bush. Due to mail screening procedures, we have only recently received your correspondence.

During the 2002 election cycle, the President did, in fact, record messages on behalf of several Republican candidates in order to encourage citizens to head to the polls in November.

The President appreciates your continued support. Best wishes.

Sincerely,

Ken Mehlman

Revised DRAFT, 20 Feb 2003,

DEPOSIT INSURANCE REFORM

Testimony of Peter R. Fisher
Under Secretary for Domestic Finance
U.S. Department of the Treasury

Before the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs
United States Senate

February 26, 2003

Mr. Chairman, Senator Sarbanes, and Members of the Committee, I appreciate the opportunity to provide the Administration's views on deposit insurance reform.

The Administration strongly supports reforms to our deposit insurance system that would, first, merge the bank and thrift insurance funds, second, allow more flexibility in the management of fund reserves while maintaining adequate reserve levels and, third, ensure that all participating institutions fairly share in the maintenance of FDIC resources in accordance with the insurance fund's loss exposure from each institution. The Administration strongly opposes any changes in deposit insurance coverage limits.

Our current deposit insurance system managed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) serves to protect insured depositors from exposure to bank losses and, as a result, helps to promote public confidence in the U.S. banking system. I am concerned today that our deposit insurance system has structural weaknesses that, in the absence of reform, could deepen over time. I want to emphasize that there is no crisis in the FDIC; both of its funds are strong, well managed, with adequate reserves. This is the right time to act – when we do not face

Conclusion

In conclusion, I reaffirm the Administration's support for the three-part general framework that I have outlined to correct the structural flaws in the deposit insurance system. I encourage Congress to pursue these improvements with a steady focus on the important work that needs to be done. The Administration cannot support legislation that raises deposit insurance coverage limits in any form, and we urge that Congress avoid such an unneeded and counterproductive diversion from real and necessary reform.

REV_00372462

a crisis – and the Administration supports legislation focused on the repair of these structural weaknesses.

Increases in FDIC benefits, however, including any increases in the level of insurance coverage, are not part of the solution to these problems and should be avoided. When I testified before this Committee last April, I argued that an increase in deposit insurance coverage limits would serve no sound public policy purpose. Nothing has occurred since to change that view. The Administration continues to oppose higher coverage limits in any form. Indeed, we feel that the entire issue of coverage limits regrettably diverts attention from the important reforms that are needed.

Merging the Bank and Thrift Insurance Funds

We support a merger of the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF) as soon as practicable. A larger, combined insurance fund would be better able to diversify risks, and thus withstand losses, than would either fund separately. Merging the funds while the industry is strong and both funds adequately capitalized would not burden either BIF or SAIF members. A merged fund would also end the possibility that similar institutions could pay significantly different premiums for the same product, as was the case in the recent past and could occur again in the near future without this change. A merger would also recognize what has taken place in practice. As a result of mergers and consolidations, each fund now insures deposits of both commercial banks and thrifts. Indeed, commercial banks now account for 45 percent of all SAIF-insured deposits.

REV_00372454

Flexibility in the Management of FDIC Reserves

Current law generally requires each insurance fund to maintain reserves equal to 1.25 percent of estimated insured deposits, the "designated reserve ratio." When the designated reserve ratio falls below this threshold, the FDIC must charge either a premium sufficient to restore the reserve ratio to 1.25 percent within one year, or a minimum of 23 basis points if the reserve ratio would remain below 1.25 percent for a longer period. Since that latter likelihood would be expected when the banking system, and probably the economy as well, were under stress, such a sharp increase in industry assessments could have an undesirable pro-cyclical effect, further reducing liquidity precisely when liquidity is needed. Were FDIC fund contributions to come from resources that otherwise might be part of capital, every dollar paid would mean a reduction of 10 or 12 dollars in lending, or as much as $12 billion in reduced lending for a $1 billion FDIC replenishment.

Reserves should be allowed to grow when conditions are good. This would enable the fund to absorb losses under adverse conditions without sharp increases in premiums. In order to achieve this objective and also account for changing risks to the insurance fund over time, we support greater latitude for the FDIC to alter the designated reserve ratio within statutorily prescribed upper and lower bounds. The FDIC should have discretion in determining how quickly the fund meets its targeted designated reserve ratio as long as the actual reserve ratio is within these bounds. If the reserve ratio were to fall below the lower bound, the FDIC should restore it to within the statutory range promptly, over a reasonable but limited timeframe. We would also support some reduction in the prescribed minimum premium rate – currently 23 basis points – that would be in effect when it would take more than one year to restore reserves.

Nevertheless, as we learned from the deposit insurance experience of the 1980s, flexibility must be tempered by a clear requirement for prudent and timely fund replenishment. The statutory range for the designated reserve ratio should strike an appropriate balance between the burden of pre-funding future losses and the avoidance of pro-cyclical costs of replenishing the insurance fund in a downturn. A key benefit to giving the FDIC greater flexibility in managing the reserve ratio within statutorily prescribed bounds is the ability to achieve low, stable premiums over time, adequate to FDIC needs in bad times, with the least burden on financial institutions and on the economy. We also believe that with this reform, the possibility of recourse to taxpayer resources is even further removed.

Full Risk-Based Shared Funding

Every day that they operate, banks and thrifts benefit from their access to federal deposit insurance. For several years, however, the FDIC has been allowed to obtain premiums for deposit insurance from only a few institutions. Currently, over 90 percent of banks and thrifts pay nothing to the FDIC. This is an untenable formula for the long-term stability of the FDIC.

Moreover, current rules frustrate one of the most important reforms enacted in the wake of the collapse of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) and the depletion of FDIC reserves: the requirement for risk-based premiums. When 90 percent of the industry pays no premiums, there is little opportunity to do what any prudent insurer would do, adjust premiums for risk. Nearly all banks are treated the same, and lately they have been treated to free service.

For example, today a bank can rapidly increase its insured deposits without paying anything into the insurance fund. As is now well known, some large financial companies have greatly augmented their insured deposits in the past few years by sweeping uninsured funds into their affiliated depository institutions – without compensating the FDIC at all. Other major financial companies might be expected to do the same in the future. In addition, most of the over 1,100 banks and thrifts chartered after 1996 have never paid a penny in insurance premiums. Yet if insured deposit growth by a relatively few institutions were to cause the reserve ratio to decline below the designated reserve ratio, all banks would be required to pay premiums to raise reserves.

To rectify this "free rider" problem and ensure that institutions appropriately compensate the FDIC commensurate with their risk, Congress should remove the current restrictions on FDIC premium-setting. In order to recognize past payments to build up current reserves, we support the proposal to apply temporary transition credits against future premiums that would be distributed based on a measure of each institution's contribution to the build-up of insurance fund reserves in the early-to-mid 1990s. In addition to transition credits, allowing the FDIC to provide assessment credits on an on-going basis would permit the FDIC to collect payments from institutions more closely in relation to their deposit growth.

We strongly oppose rebates, which would drain the insurance fund of cash. Over much of its history, the FDIC insurance fund reserve ratio remained well above the current target, only to drop into deficit conditions by the beginning of the 1990s. Therefore, it is vital that funds collected in good times, and the earnings on those collections, be available for times when they will be needed.

There are other important structural issues that need to be addressed sooner than later. It would be appropriate to evaluate whether there are changes to the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (NCUSIF) that would be suitable in light of the proposed reforms made to FDIC insurance so as to avoid unintended disparities between the two programs. Perhaps even more important is the need to address the long-term funding of supervision by the National Credit Union Administration, particularly in view of recent trends toward conversions from federal to state charters and growing consolidation of credit unions. Similarly, there are structural problems in the funding of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Office of Thrift Supervision, the resolution of which should not be delayed.

Deposit Insurance Coverage Limits

The improvements to the deposit insurance system that I have just outlined are vital to the system's long-term health. Other proposals, however, would not contribute to the strength of the taxpayer-backed deposit insurance system any may actually weaken it.

Increasing the general coverage limit up front or through indexation, or raising coverage limits for particular categories of deposits, is unneeded and harmful. Savers do not need an increase in coverage limits and would receive no real financial benefit. Higher coverage limits would not predictably advantage any particular size of banks, but could increase all banks' insurance premium costs. Higher coverage limits would mean greater taxpayer exposure by adding to the contingent liabilities of the government and by weakening market discipline. An increase in coverage limits would reduce – not enhance – competition among banks in general as the efficient and inefficient offer the same investment risk to depositors; in fact, perversely, investors would be drawn at no risk to the worst banks, which usually offer the highest interest rates.

Higher Coverage Limits Not Sought by Savers

First of all, the clamor for raising coverage limits does not come from savers. The evidence that current coverage limits constitute a burden to savers is scant; there has been little demand from depositors for higher maximum levels. The recent consumer finance survey data released by the Federal Reserve confirm what we found in the previous survey, namely that raising the coverage limit would do little, if anything, for most savers. Median family deposit balances are only $4,000 for transaction account deposits and $15,000 for certificates of deposit, far below the current $100,000 ceiling. The same holds true even when considering only older Americans, a segment of the population with higher bank account usage: median transaction account balances and certificates of deposit total $8,000 and $20,000, respectively, for those households headed by individuals between the ages of 65 and 74.

Examining the Federal Reserve data for retirement accounts shows present maximum deposit insurance coverage to be more than adequate. The median balance across age groups held in IRA/Keogh accounts at insured depository institutions is only $15,000. For the 65 to 69 age group, median household IRA/Keogh deposits total $30,000.

A small group of relatively affluent savers might find greater convenience from increased maximum coverage levels. But it is a tiny group. Only 3.4 percent of households with bank accounts held any uninsured deposits, and the median income of these households was more than double the median income of all depositors in the survey.

Under current rules, these savers have plenty of options, with the market place presenting new options for unlimited deposit insurance coverage without changing federal coverage limits. At little inconvenience, savers with substantial bank deposits – including retirees and those with large bank savings for retirement – may place deposits at any number of banks to obtain as much FDIC coverage as desired. They may also establish accounts within the same bank under different legal capacities, qualifying for several multiples of current maximum coverage limits. Firms are now developing programs for exchanging depositor accounts that could offer seamless means of providing unlimited coverage for depositors without any change in current limits, and in a manner that strengthens market discipline on banks.

One of the fundamental rules of prudent retirement planning is to diversify investment vehicles. Many individuals, including those who are retired or planning for retirement, feel comfortable putting substantial amounts into uninsured mutual funds, money market accounts, and a variety of other investment instruments. Just 21 percent of all IRA/Keogh funds are in insured depository institutions. There is simply no widespread consumer concern about existing coverage limits that would justify extending taxpayer exposure by creating a new government-insured retirement program under the FDIC.

Coverage Limits and Bank Competition

Banks, regardless of size, continue to have little trouble attracting deposits under the existing coverage limits. Federal Reserve data have shown that smaller banks have grown more rapidly and experienced higher rates of growth in both insured and uninsured deposits than have larger banks over the past several years. After adjusting for the effects of mergers, domestic assets of the largest 1,000 commercial banks grew 5.5 percent per year on average from 1994 to 2002; all other banks grew 13.8 percent per year on average. Nor are smaller banks losing the competition for uninsured deposits. Uninsured deposits of the top 1,000 grew 9.9 percent annually on average over this period, while such deposits at smaller banks on average grew 21.4 percent annually.

Higher Coverage Limits for Municipal Funds Erode Discipline

Proposals for substantially higher levels of protection of municipal deposits than of other classes of deposits would exacerbate the inherent moral hazard problems of deposit insurance. Rather than keep funds in local institutions, state and municipal treasurers would have powerful incentives to seek out not the safest institutions in which to place taxpayer funds but rather those offering the highest interest rates. Since these are usually riskier institutions, state and municipal treasurers would be drawn into funding the more troubled banks. Local, well run, healthy banks might have to pay a premium in increased deposit rates to retain municipal business. Today there are incentives for state and local government treasurers to monitor risks taken with large volumes of public sector deposits. Should the FDIC largely protect these funds, an important source of credit judgment on the lending and investment decisions of local banks would be lost.

Dear Senator Schumer:

Based on your public comments yesterday, I am concerned that you may have inaccurate and incomplete information about Miguel Estrada's qualifications and about the historical practice with respect to judicial confirmations. Therefore, I write to respectfully reiterate and explain our conclusion that you and certain other Senators are applying an unfair double standard -- indeed, a series of unfair double standards -- to Miguel Estrada.

First, your request for confidential attorney-client memoranda Mr. Estrada wrote in the Office of Solicitor General seeks information that, based on our review, has not been demanded from past nominees to the federal courts of appeals. We are informed that the Senate has not requested memoranda such as these for any of the 67 appeals court nominees since 1977 who had previously worked in the Justice Department -- including the seven nominees who had previously worked in the Solicitor General's office. Nor have such memoranda been demanded from nominees in similar attorney-client situations: The Senate has not demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as Senate lawyers, such as memoranda written by Stephen Breyer as a Senate counsel before Justice Breyer was confirmed to the First Circuit in 1980. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as law clerks to Supreme Court Justices or other federal or state judges. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had worked for private clients.

The very few isolated examples you have cited were not nominees for federal appeals courts. Moreover, those situations involved Executive Branch accommodations of targeted requests for particular documents about specific issues that were primarily related to allegations of malfeasance or misconduct in a federal office. We respectfully do not believe these examples support your request. Our conclusion about the general lack of support and precedent for your position is buttressed by the fact that every living former Solicitor General (four Democrats and three Republicans) has strongly opposed your request and stated that it would sacrifice and compromise the ability of the Justice Department to effectively represent the United States in court. In short, the traditional practice of the Senate and the Executive Branch with respect to federal appeals court nominations stands in contrast to your request here and supports our conclusion that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada. (Also, contrary to your suggestion yesterday, please note that no one in the Executive Branch has reviewed these memoranda since President Bush took office in January 2001.)

Second, you suggested that "no judicial nominee that I'm aware of, for such a high court, has ever had so little of a record." I respectfully disagree. Miguel Estrada has been a very accomplished lawyer, trying cases before federal juries, briefing and arguing numerous appeals before federal and state appeals courts, and arguing 15 cases before the Supreme Court, among his other significant work. His record and breadth of experience exceeds that of many judicial nominees, which is no doubt why the American Bar Association -- which you have labeled the "gold standard" -- unanimously rated him "well-qualified." In noting yesterday that Mr. Estrada's career had been devoted to "arguing for a client," you appeared to imply that only those with prior judicial service (or perhaps "a lot of [law review] articles") may serve on the federal appeals courts. But five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no prior judicial service at the time of their appointments. Indeed, Supreme Court Justices Rehnquist, White, and Powell -- to name three of the most recent -- had not served as judges before being confirmed to the Supreme Court. And like Mr. Estrada, two appointees of President Clinton to the D.C. Circuit (Judge David Tatel and Judge Merrick Garland) had similarly spent their careers "arguing for a client," but were nonetheless confirmed.

As the Chief Justice noted in his 2001 Year-End Report, moreover, "[t]he federal Judiciary has traditionally drawn from a wide diversity of professional backgrounds." The Chief Justice cited Justice Louis Brandeis, Justice John Harlan, Justice Byron White, Judge Thurgood Marshall (as nominee to the Second Circuit), Judge Learned Hand, and Judge John Minor Wisdom as just a few examples of great judges who had spent virtually their entire careers "arguing for a client" before becoming Supreme Court Justices or federal appeals court judges. As these examples show, had the "arguing for a client" standard been applied in the past, it would have deprived the American people of many of our most notable appellate judges. Based on our understanding, this standard has not been applied in the past. This further explains why we have concluded that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada.

Third, you stated that "when you went to those hearings, Mr. Estrada answered no questions." The record demonstrates otherwise. Mr. Estrada answered more than 100 questions at his hearing (and another 25 in follow-up written answers). He explained in some detail his approach to judging on many issues, and did so appropriately without providing his personal views on specific legal or policy questions that could come before him – which is how previous judicial nominees of Presidents of both parties have appropriately answered questions. Indeed, at his hearing, Mr. Estrada was asked and answered more questions, and did so more fully, than did President Clinton's appointees to this same court. Judge David Tatel was asked a total of three questions at his hearing. Judges Judith Rogers and Merrick Garland were each asked fewer than 20 questions. The three appointees of President Clinton – combined – thus answered fewer than half the number of questions at their hearings that Mr. Estrada answered at his hearing. What is more, like Mr. Estrada, both Judge Rogers and Judge Garland declined to give their personal views on disputed legal and policy questions at the hearing. Judge Rogers refused to give her views when asked about the notion of an evolving Constitution. And Mr. Garland did not answer questions about his personal views on the death penalty, stating that he would follow precedent. In short, we believe that your criticism of Mr. Estrada's answers at his hearing reveals that another unfair double standard is being applied to Mr. Estrada.

Fourth, you stated that the Founding Fathers "came to the conclusion that the Senate ought to ask a whole lot of questions" of judicial nominees. We respect the Senate's constitutional role in the confirmation process, and we agree that the Senate should make an informed judgment consistent with its traditional role and practices. But your characterization of the Senate's role with respect to judicial nominations is not consistent with our reading of historical or traditional practice. Alexander Hamilton explained that the purpose of Senate confirmation is to prevent appointment of "unfit characters from State prejudice, from family connection, from personal attachment, or from a view to popularity." The Federalist 76. The Framers anticipated that the Senate's approval would not often be refused unless there were "special and strong reasons for the refusal." Id. Moreover, the Senate did not hold hearings on judicial nominees for much of American history, and the hearings for lower-court nominees in modern times traditionally have not included the examination of personal views that you have advocated. (My letter of February 12, 2003, to Senators Daschle and Leahy contains more detail on this point.) Indeed, just a few years ago, Senator Biden made clear, consistent with the traditional practice, that he would vote to confirm an appeals court judge if he were convinced that the nominee would follow precedent and otherwise was of high ability and integrity.

In short, it appears that you are seeking to change the Senate's traditional standard for assessing judicial nominees. We respect your right to advocate a change, but we do not believe that the standard you seek to apply is consistent with the Framers' vision, the traditional Senate practice, or the Senate's treatment of President Clinton's nominees. Rather, we believe a new standard is being devised and applied to Miguel Estrada.

Fifth, you stated yesterday that a "filibuster" is not an appropriate term to describe what has been occurring in the Senate. We respectfully disagree. Democrat Senators have objected to unanimous consent motions to schedule a vote, and they have indicated that they will continue to do so. That tactic is historically and commonly known as a filibuster, and is a dramatic escalation of the tactics used to oppose judicial nominees. Indeed, in 1998, Senator Leahy stated: "I have stated over and over again on this floor that I would refuse to put an anonymous hold on any judge; that I would object and fight against any filibuster on a judge, whether it is somebody I opposed or supported; that I felt the Senate should do its duty. If we don't like somebody the President nominates, vote him or her down. But don't hold them in this anonymous unconscionable limbo, because in doing that, the minority of Senators really shame all Senators." 144 Cong. Rec. S6522 (June 18, 1998). In our judgment, the tactics now being employed again show that Miguel Estrada is receiving differential treatment.

* * *

Sincerely,

/s/

I hope this email finds you well. I was so happy to hear about your marriage plans. Best wishes to you both!

I am writing in the hopes that you'd be willing to do a brief talk on the Hill regarding the judicial confirmations crisis, probably for some time in March. As you may have heard, the Federalist Society now has a Capitol Hill chapter that has received status as a CSO (Congressional Staff Organization). This would be the group's third meeting (Congressman John Shadegg and Boyden were the first two).

You would expect a lunch crowd of 50-70 staff and members. We probably would hold the meeting on the Senate side given the topic.

What do you think? Are there any dates in March where the 12-1 pm hour would not work?

Dear Senator Schumer:

Based on your public comments yesterday, I am concerned that you may have inaccurate and incomplete information about Miguel Estrada's qualifications and about the historical practice with respect to judicial confirmations. Therefore, I write to respectfully reiterate and explain our conclusion that you and certain other Senators are applying an unfair double standard -- indeed, a series of unfair double standards -- to Miguel Estrada.

First, your request for confidential attorney-client memoranda Mr. Estrada wrote in the Office of Solicitor General seeks information that, based on our review, has not been demanded from past nominees to the federal courts of appeals. We are informed that the Senate has not requested memoranda such as these for any of the 67 appeals court nominees since 1977 who had previously worked in the Justice Department -- including the seven nominees who had previously worked in the Solicitor General's office. Nor have such memoranda been demanded from nominees in similar attorney-client situations: The Senate has not demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as Senate lawyers, such as memoranda written by Stephen Breyer as a Senate counsel before Justice Breyer was confirmed to the First Circuit in 1980. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as law clerks to Supreme Court Justices or other federal or state judges. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had worked for private clients.

The very few isolated examples you have cited were not nominees for federal appeals courts. Moreover, those situations involved Executive Branch accommodations of targeted requests for particular documents about specific issues that were primarily related to allegations of malfeasance or misconduct in a federal office. We respectfully do not believe these examples support your request. Our conclusion about the general lack of support and precedent for your position is buttressed by the fact that every living former Solicitor General (four Democrats and three Republicans) has strongly opposed your request and stated that it would sacrifice and compromise the ability of the Justice Department to effectively represent the United States in court. In short, the traditional practice of the Senate and the Executive Branch with respect to federal appeals court nominations stands in contrast to your request here and supports our conclusion that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada. (Also, contrary to your suggestion yesterday, please note that no one in the Executive Branch has reviewed these memoranda since President Bush took office in January 2001.)

Second, you suggested that "no judicial nominee that I'm aware of, for such a high court, has ever had so little of a record." I respectfully disagree. Miguel Estrada has been a very accomplished lawyer, trying cases before federal juries, briefing and arguing numerous appeals before federal and state appeals courts, and arguing 15 cases before the Supreme Court, among his other significant work. His record and breadth of experience exceeds that of many judicial nominees, which is no doubt why the American Bar Association -- which you have labeled the "gold standard" -- unanimously rated him "well-qualified." In noting yesterday that Mr. Estrada's career had been devoted to "arguing for a client," you appeared to imply that only those with prior judicial service (or perhaps "a lot of [law review] articles") may serve on the federal appeals courts. But five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no prior judicial service at the time of their appointments. Indeed, Supreme Court Justices Rehnquist, White, and Powell -- to name three of the most recent -- had not served as judges before being confirmed to the Supreme Court. And like Mr. Estrada, two appointees of President Clinton to the D.C. Circuit (Judge David Tatel and Judge Merrick Garland) had similarly spent their careers "arguing for a client," but were nonetheless confirmed.

As the Chief Justice noted in his 2001 Year-End Report, moreover, "[t]he federal Judiciary has traditionally drawn from a wide diversity of professional backgrounds." The Chief Justice cited Justice Louis Brandeis, Justice John Harlan, Justice Byron White, Judge Thurgood Marshall (as nominee to the Second Circuit), Judge Learned Hand, and Judge John Minor Wisdom as just a few examples of great judges who had spent virtually their entire careers "arguing for a client" before becoming Supreme Court Justices or federal appeals court judges. As these examples show, had the "arguing for a client" standard been applied in the past, it would have deprived the American people of many of our most notable appellate judges. Based on our understanding, this standard has not been applied in the past. This further explains why we have concluded that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada.

Third, you stated that "when you went to those hearings, Mr. Estrada answered no questions." The record demonstrates otherwise. Mr. Estrada answered more than 100 questions at his hearing (and another 25 in follow-up written answers). He explained in some detail his approach to judging on many issues, and did so appropriately without providing his personal views on specific legal or policy questions that could come before him – which is how previous judicial nominees of Presidents of both parties have appropriately answered questions. Indeed, at his hearing, Mr. Estrada was asked and answered more questions, and did so more fully, than did President Clinton's appointees to this same court. Judge David Tatel was asked a total of three questions at his hearing. Judges Judith Rogers and Merrick Garland were each asked fewer than 20 questions. The three appointees of President Clinton – combined – thus answered fewer than half the number of questions at their hearings that Mr. Estrada answered at his hearing. What is more, like Mr. Estrada, both Judge Rogers and Judge Garland declined to give their personal views on disputed legal and policy questions at the hearing. Judge Rogers refused to give her views when asked about the notion of an evolving Constitution. And Mr. Garland did not answer questions about his personal views on the death penalty, stating that he would follow precedent. In short, we believe that your criticism of Mr. Estrada's answers at his hearing reveals that another unfair double standard is being applied to Mr. Estrada.

Fourth, you stated that the Founding Fathers "came to the conclusion that the Senate ought to ask a whole lot of questions" of judicial nominees. We respect the Senate's constitutional role in the confirmation process, and we agree that the Senate should make an informed judgment consistent with its traditional role and practices. But your characterization of the Senate's role with respect to judicial nominations is not consistent with our reading of historical or traditional practice. Alexander Hamilton explained that the purpose of Senate confirmation is to prevent appointment of "unfit characters from State prejudice, from family connection, from personal attachment, or from a view to popularity." The Federalist 76. The Framers anticipated that the Senate's approval would not often be refused unless there were "special and strong reasons for the refusal." Id. Moreover, the Senate did not hold hearings on judicial nominees for much of American history, and the hearings for lower-court nominees in modern times traditionally have not included the examination of personal views that you have advocated. (My letter of February 12, 2003, to Senators Daschle and Leahy contains more detail on this point.) Indeed, just a few years ago, Senator Biden made clear, consistent with the traditional practice, that he would vote to confirm an appeals court judge if he were convinced that the nominee would follow precedent and otherwise was of high ability and integrity.

In short, it appears that you are seeking to change the Senate's traditional standard for assessing judicial nominees. We respect your right to advocate a change, but we do not believe that the standard you seek to apply is consistent with the Framers' vision, the traditional Senate practice, or the Senate's treatment of President Clinton's nominees. Rather, we believe a new standard is being devised and applied to Miguel Estrada.

Fifth, you stated yesterday that a "filibuster" is not an appropriate term to describe what has been occurring in the Senate. We respectfully disagree. Democrat Senators have objected to unanimous consent motions to schedule a vote, and they have indicated that they will continue to do so. That tactic is historically and commonly known as a filibuster, and is a dramatic escalation of the tactics used to oppose judicial nominees. Indeed, in 1998, Senator Leahy stated: "I have stated over and over again on this floor that I would refuse to put an anonymous hold on any judge; that I would object and fight against any filibuster on a judge, whether it is somebody I opposed or supported; that I felt the Senate should do its duty. If we don't like somebody the President nominates, vote him or her down. But don't hold them in this anonymous unconscionable limbo, because in doing that, the minority of Senators really shame all Senators." 144 Cong. Rec. S6522 (June 18, 1998). In our judgment, the tactics now being employed again show that Miguel Estrada is receiving differential treatment.

* * *

Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales

We are informed that the Senate has not requested memoranda such as these for any of the 67 appeals court nominees since 1977 who had previously worked in the Justice Department -- including the seven nominees who had previously worked in the Solicitor General's office. Nor have such memoranda been demanded from nominees in similar attorney-client situations: The Senate has not demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as Senate lawyers, such as memoranda written by Stephen Breyer as a Senate counsel before Justice Breyer was confirmed to the First Circuit in 1980. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as law clerks to Supreme Court Justices or other federal or state judges. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had worked for private clients.

The very few isolated examples you have cited were not nominees for federal appeals courts. Moreover, those situations involved Executive Branch accommodations of targeted requests for particular documents about specific issues that were primarily related to allegations of malfeasance or misconduct in a federal office. We respectfully do not believe these examples support your request. Our conclusion about the general lack of support and precedent for your position is buttressed by the fact that every living former Solicitor General (four Democrats and three Republicans) has strongly opposed your request and stated that it would sacrifice and compromise the ability of the Justice Department to effectively represent the United States in court. In short, the traditional practice of the Senate and the Executive Branch with respect to federal appeals court nominations stands in contrast to your request here and supports our conclusion that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada. (Also, contrary to your suggestion yesterday, please note that no one in the Executive Branch has reviewed these memoranda since President Bush took office in January 2001.)

Second, you suggested that "no judicial nominee that I'm aware of, for such a high court, has ever had so little of a record." I respectfully disagree. Miguel Estrada has been a very accomplished lawyer, trying cases before federal juries, briefing and arguing numerous appeals before federal and state appeals courts, and arguing 15 cases before the Supreme Court, among his other significant work. His record and breadth of experience exceeds that of many judicial nominees, which is no doubt why the American Bar Association -- which you have labeled the "gold standard" -- unanimously rated him "well-qualified." In noting yesterday that Mr. Estrada's career had been devoted to "arguing for a client," you appeared to imply that only those with prior judicial service (or perhaps "a lot of [law review] articles") may serve on the federal appeals courts. But five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no prior judicial service at the time of their appointments. Indeed, Supreme Court Justices Rehnquist, White, and Powell -- to name three of the most recent -- had not served as judges before being confirmed to the Supreme Court. And like Mr. Estrada, two appointees of President Clinton to the D.C. Circuit (Judge David Tatel and Judge Merrick Garland) had similarly spent their careers "arguing for a client," but were nonetheless confirmed.

As the Chief Justice noted in his 2001 Year-End Report, moreover, "[t]he federal Judiciary has traditionally drawn from a wide diversity of professional backgrounds." The Chief Justice cited Justice Louis Brandeis, Justice John Harlan, Justice Byron White, Judge Thurgood Marshall (as nominee to the Second Circuit), Judge Learned Hand, and Judge John Minor Wisdom as just a few examples of great judges who had spent virtually their entire careers "arguing for a client" before becoming Supreme Court Justices or federal appeals court judges. As these examples show, had the "arguing for a client" standard been applied in the past, it would have deprived the American people of many of our most notable appellate judges. Based on our understanding, this standard has not been applied in the past. This further explains why we have concluded that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada.

Third, you stated that "when you went to those hearings, Mr. Estrada answered no questions." The record demonstrates otherwise. Mr. Estrada answered more than 100 questions at his hearing (and another 25 in follow-up written answers). He explained in some detail his approach to judging on many issues, and did so appropriately without providing his personal views on specific legal or policy questions that could come before him – which is how previous judicial nominees of Presidents of both parties have appropriately answered questions. Indeed, at his hearing, Mr. Estrada was asked and answered more questions, and did so more fully, than did President Clinton's appointees to this same court. Judge David Tatel was asked a total of three questions at his hearing. Judges Judith Rogers and Merrick Garland were each asked fewer than 20 questions. The three appointees of President Clinton – combined – thus answered fewer than half the number of questions at their hearings that Mr. Estrada answered at his hearing. What is more, like Mr. Estrada, both Judge Rogers and Judge Garland declined to give their personal views on disputed legal and policy questions at the hearing. Judge Rogers refused to give her views when asked about the notion of an evolving Constitution. And Mr. Garland did not answer questions about his personal views on the death penalty, stating that he would follow precedent. In short, we believe that your criticism of Mr. Estrada's answers at his hearing reveals that another unfair double standard is being applied to Mr. Estrada.

Fourth, you stated that the Founding Fathers "came to the conclusion that the Senate ought to ask a whole lot of questions" of judicial nominees. We respect the Senate's constitutional role in the confirmation process, and we agree that the Senate should make an informed judgment consistent with its traditional role and practices. But your characterization of the Senate's role with respect to judicial nominations is not consistent with our reading of historical or traditional practice. Alexander Hamilton explained that the purpose of Senate confirmation is to prevent appointment of "unfit characters from State prejudice, from family connection, from personal attachment, or from a view to popularity." The Federalist 76. The Framers anticipated that the Senate's approval would not often be refused unless there were "special and strong reasons for the refusal." Id. Moreover, the Senate did not hold hearings on judicial nominees for much of American history, and the hearings for lower-court nominees in modern times traditionally have not included the examination of personal views that you have advocated. (My letter of February 12, 2003, to Senators Daschle and Leahy contains more detail on this point.) Indeed, just a few years ago, Senator Biden made clear, consistent with the traditional practice, that he would vote to confirm an appeals court judge if he were convinced that the nominee would follow precedent and otherwise was of high ability and integrity.

In short, it appears that you are seeking to change the Senate's traditional standard for assessing judicial nominees. We respect your right to advocate a change, but we do not believe that the standard you seek to apply is consistent with the Framers' vision, the traditional Senate practice, or the Senate's treatment of President Clinton's nominees. Rather, we believe a new standard is being devised and applied to Miguel Estrada.

Fifth, you stated yesterday that a "filibuster" is not an appropriate term to describe what has been occurring in the Senate. We respectfully disagree. Democrat Senators have objected to unanimous consent motions to schedule a vote, and they have indicated that they will continue to do so. That tactic is historically and commonly known as a filibuster, and is a dramatic escalation of the tactics used to oppose judicial nominees. Indeed, in 1998, Senator Leahy stated: "I have stated over and over again on this floor that I would refuse to put an anonymous hold on any judge; that I would object and fight against any filibuster on a judge, whether it is somebody I opposed or supported; that I felt the Senate should do its duty. If we don't like somebody the President nominates, vote him or her down. But don't hold them in this anonymous unconscionable limbo, because in doing that, the minority of Senators really shame all Senators." 144 Cong. Rec. S6522 (June 18, 1998). In our judgment, the tactics now being employed again show that Miguel Estrada is receiving differential treatment.

* * *

Sincerely,

/s/

Dear Senator Schumer:

Based on your public comments yesterday, I am concerned that you may have inaccurate and incomplete information about Miguel Estrada's qualifications and about the historical practice with respect to judicial confirmations. Therefore, I write to respectfully reiterate and explain our conclusion that you and certain other Senators are applying an unfair double standard -- indeed, a series of unfair double standards -- to Miguel Estrada.

First, your request for confidential attorney-client memoranda Mr. Estrada wrote in the Office of Solicitor General seeks information that, based on our review, has not been demanded from past nominees to the federal courts of appeals. We are informed that the Senate has not requested memoranda such as these for any of the 67 appeals court nominees since 1977 who had previously worked in the Justice Department -- including the seven nominees who had previously worked in the Solicitor General's office. Nor have such memoranda been demanded from nominees in similar attorney-client situations: The Senate has not demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as Senate lawyers, such as memoranda written by Stephen Breyer as a Senate counsel before Justice Breyer was confirmed to the First Circuit in 1980. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had served as law clerks to Supreme Court Justices or other federal or state judges. Nor has the Senate demanded confidential memoranda written by judicial nominees who had worked for private clients.

The very few isolated examples you have cited were not nominees for federal appeals courts. Moreover, those situations involved Executive Branch accommodations of targeted requests for particular documents about specific issues that were primarily related to allegations of malfeasance or misconduct in a federal office. We respectfully do not believe these examples support your request. Our conclusion about the general lack of support and precedent for your position is buttressed by the fact that every living former Solicitor General (four Democrats and three Republicans) has strongly opposed your request and stated that it would sacrifice and compromise the ability of the Justice Department to effectively represent the United States in court. In short, the traditional practice of the Senate and the Executive Branch with respect to federal appeals court nominations stands in contrast to your request here and supports our conclusion that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada. (Also, contrary to your suggestion yesterday, please note that no one in the Executive Branch has reviewed these memoranda since President Bush took office in January 2001.)

Second, you suggested that "no judicial nominee that I'm aware of, for such a high court, has ever had so little of a record." I respectfully disagree. Miguel Estrada has been a very accomplished lawyer, trying cases before federal juries, briefing and arguing numerous appeals before federal and state appeals courts, and arguing 15 cases before the Supreme Court, among his other significant work. His record and breadth of experience exceeds that of many judicial nominees, which is no doubt why the American Bar Association -- which you have labeled the "gold standard" -- unanimously rated him "well-qualified." In noting yesterday that Mr. Estrada's career had been devoted to "arguing for a client," you appeared to imply that only those with prior judicial service (or perhaps "a lot of [law review] articles") may serve on the federal appeals courts. But five of the eight judges currently serving on the D.C. Circuit had no prior judicial service at the time of their appointments. Indeed, Supreme Court Justices Rehnquist, White, and Powell -- to name three of the most recent -- had not served as judges before being confirmed to the Supreme Court. And like Mr. Estrada, two appointees of President Clinton to the D.C. Circuit (Judge David Tatel and Judge Merrick Garland) had similarly spent their careers "arguing for a client," but were nonetheless confirmed.

As the Chief Justice noted in his 2001 Year-End Report, moreover, "[t]he federal Judiciary has traditionally drawn from a wide diversity of professional backgrounds." The Chief Justice cited Justice Louis Brandeis, Justice John Harlan, Justice Byron White, Judge Thurgood Marshall (as nominee to the Second Circuit), Judge Learned Hand, and Judge John Minor Wisdom as just a few examples of great judges who had spent virtually their entire careers "arguing for a client" before becoming Supreme Court Justices or federal appeals court judges. As these examples show, had the "arguing for a client" standard been applied in the past, it would have deprived the American people of many of our most notable appellate judges. Based on our understanding, this standard has not been applied in the past. This further explains why we have concluded that an unfair double standard is being applied to Miguel Estrada.

Third, you stated that "when you went to those hearings, Mr. Estrada answered no questions." The record demonstrates otherwise. Mr. Estrada answered more than 100 questions at his hearing (and another 25 in follow-up written answers). He explained in some detail his approach to judging on many issues, and did so appropriately without providing his personal views on specific legal or policy questions that could come before him – which is how previous judicial nominees of Presidents of both parties have appropriately answered questions. Indeed, at his hearing, Mr. Estrada was asked and answered more questions, and did so more fully, than did President Clinton's appointees to this same court. Judge David Tatel was asked a total of three questions at his hearing. Judges Judith Rogers and Merrick Garland were each asked fewer than 20 questions. The three appointees of President Clinton – combined – thus answered fewer than half the number of questions at their hearings that Mr. Estrada answered at his hearing. What is more, like Mr. Estrada, both Judge Rogers and Judge Garland declined to give their personal views on disputed legal and policy questions at the hearing. Judge Rogers refused to give her views when asked about the notion of an evolving Constitution. And Mr. Garland did not answer questions about his personal views on the death penalty, stating that he would follow precedent. In short, we believe that your criticism of Mr. Estrada's answers at his hearing reveals that another unfair double standard is being applied to Mr. Estrada.

Fourth, you stated that the Founding Fathers "came to the conclusion that the Senate ought to ask a whole lot of questions" of judicial nominees. We respect the Senate's constitutional role in the confirmation process, and we agree that the Senate should make an informed judgment consistent with its traditional role and practices. But your characterization of the Senate's role with respect to judicial nominations is not consistent with our reading of historical or traditional practice. Alexander Hamilton explained that the purpose of Senate confirmation is to prevent appointment of "unfit characters from State prejudice, from family connection, from personal attachment, or from a view to popularity." The Federalist 76. The Framers anticipated that the Senate's approval would not often be refused unless there were "special and strong reasons for the refusal." Id. Moreover, the Senate did not hold hearings on judicial nominees for much of American history, and the hearings for lower-court nominees in modern times traditionally have not included the examination of personal views that you have advocated. (My letter of February 12, 2003, to Senators Daschle and Leahy contains more detail on this point.) Indeed, just a few years ago, Senator Biden made clear, consistent with the traditional practice, that he would vote to confirm an appeals court judge if he were convinced that the nominee would follow precedent and otherwise was of high ability and integrity.

In short, it appears that you are seeking to change the Senate's traditional standard for assessing judicial nominees. We respect your right to advocate a change, but we do not believe that the standard you seek to apply is consistent with the Framers' vision, the traditional Senate practice, or the Senate's treatment of President Clinton's nominees. Rather, we believe a new standard is being devised and applied to Miguel Estrada.

Fifth, you stated yesterday that a "filibuster" is not an appropriate term to describe what has been occurring in the Senate. We respectfully disagree. Democrat Senators have objected to unanimous consent motions to schedule a vote, and they have indicated that they will continue to do so. That tactic is historically and commonly known as a filibuster, and is a dramatic escalation of the tactics used to oppose judicial nominees. Indeed, in 1998, Senator Leahy stated: "I have stated over and over again on this floor that I would refuse to put an anonymous hold on any judge; that I would object and fight against any filibuster on a judge, whether it is somebody I opposed or supported; that I felt the Senate should do its duty. If we don't like somebody the President nominates, vote him or her down. But don't hold them in this anonymous unconscionable limbo, because in doing that, the minority of Senators really shame all Senators." 144 Cong. Rec. S6522 (June 18, 1998). In our judgment, the tactics now being employed again show that Miguel Estrada is receiving differential treatment.

SOUTHERN LEADERSHIP MEETING
SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 2003
1:00 P.M. - 6:00 P.M.
JONES WALKER
201 ST. CHARLES AVENUE
NEW ORLEANS, LA

1. Welcome and introduction of those present.

2. Lawyers Division's briefing: current activity.

   A. National trends:

      - Lawyers Chapters.
      - Practice Groups.
      - Membership.
      - Leadership recruitment.
      - Web Site.

   B. Government, corporate, and media relations.

3. Chapter and Practice Group Experiences: strengths and weaknesses.

   A. Each chapter should be prepared to address the session for absolutely no more than five minutes, providing a couple of illustrations of particularly noteworthy successes over the past 12 months and noting as well any challenges or hurdles that need resolution. Each five-minute presentation will be followed by five minutes of comments from other groups. Possible topics could include leadership and volunteer recruitment, program planning and execution, membership growth and communications, outreach to other policy groups. Please try to touch on broad themes or best practices, rather than simply providing a summary of events held.

   B. An open discussion about the work and activities of the Practice Groups. How successful do our Practice Groups appear to be outside the beltway? How can we better ensure that the Practice Groups are more visible throughout the country? Is the Web site serving as a good virtual link to the work of our groups, or is it an inadequate substitute for physical programming? Other observations?

4. Agenda for the Lawyers Division.

   A. State Courts Project: Local Chapter Responsiveness.

   B. Membership Growth: "Personal Contact Campaigns."

   C. External Relations & Outreach.

5. Current issues and initiatives.

   A. Report from Washington, D.C.

      1. Brett Kavanaugh, Associate Counsel to the President, Washington, DC.
      2. Michael Wiggins, Principal Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division, U.S. Department of Justice.
      3. James Ho, Chief Counsel to Senator John Cornyn, U.S. Senate.

   B. Open Discussion: Issue priorities for programming.

January 2003

TO: Southern Federalist Society Leadership

FROM: Leonard A. Leo, Executive Vice President
Lisa A. Budzynski, Director, Lawyers Chapters
Dean Reuter, Director, Practice Groups

RE: ANNUAL SOUTHERN LEADERHIP MEETING—MARCH 8, 2003

We are writing to urge you to join us for an important leadership meeting on the afternoon of Saturday, March 8 in New Orleans to discuss the organization's priorities for the next few months and to develop a plan of action for accomplishing the goals and future work of our Lawyers Division.

As in previous years, one important purpose of this meeting is to identify the current strengths and weaknesses of the Lawyers Division, and, even more importantly, to develop a plan of action for ensuring that the Federalist Society has meaningful, long term impact. This entails having some serious and candid discussions regarding leadership, membership, programs, and other projects. Our hope is that we can share with you some of the national office's experience regarding successful chapter and Practice Group development. But even more importantly, we hope you will be on hand to ask questions, offer criticism, identify concerns, and target legal policy issues that warrant attention. Your first hand experiences with the Society, and, in general, with the legal communities in the South, are a necessary ingredient for developing a workable plan of action for future activity.

In our own experience, these planning sessions do not work unless there is a critical mass of local Federalist Society talent on hand to contribute to the discussion. And, as you can imagine, it will cost the national organization a significant amount of time and resources to organize and attend the meeting. Your participation is therefore vital. We have been extremely pleased with the turnout over the past couple of years, and we hope this year will yield similar interest.

The meeting will take place on Saturday, March 8 from 1:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. at the law firm of Jones Walker, 201 Charles Avenue in New Orleans. On Saturday night, following the meeting, we invite you as our guest for dinner at Commander's Palace

For those wishing to stay overnight on Friday or Saturday night, there is a block of rooms reserved at the International House (800-633-5770). Please make your reservations as soon as possible. Also, please complete the attached response form and return it to our office as quickly as possible.

ESTRADA: THE BIG FIX

REPORT: WHITE HOUSE COOKED
ABA APPROVAL FOR ESTRADA

How Bush Tried To Rig Estrada Nomination
Ethics Meltdown in White House
Bush's Partisan Bad Faith Smacks Dems

The Bush Administration is reeling today from the revelation of a major new ethics and judiciary scandal concerning the nomination of stealth appellate court candidate Miguel Estrada.

The supposedly non-partisan lawyer who recommended Miguel Estrada's "well qualified" rating from the American Bar Association, turns out to be an extremely partisan right-wing Republican, Newsday reports.

The lawyer, Fred F. Fielding, worked for the Bush-Cheney transition team to vet potential judiciary nominations, has received a huge patronage plum appointment from the Bush White House, and has joined Bush family consigliere C. Boyden Gray in a right-wing funded, highly partisan effort to propagandize on behalf of Estrada and other Bush judicial nominees.

On the face of it, Fielding appears to have acted in gross violation of A.B.A. rules, which ban members of its non-partisan Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary from engaging in partisan activities. But Fielding, a strident G.O.P. activist, recommended Estrada and helped push him through the committee.

Gray and others have replied to the shocker revelation by noting that Fielding pushed for Estrada at the A.B.A. between the time that he worked for Bush-Cheney and the time that he joined Gray's right-wing Committee for Justice. But few in Washington appear to have been taken in by this strained-to-the-breaking-point argument.

The fact remains: Fielding was formally on the board of directors of Gray's group even while he was still a member of the "non-partisan" A.B.A. board.

Sen. Harry Reid (D-Nev.) charged nearly two weeks ago that Fielding had a conflict: "Doesn't Mr. Fielding's dual role - purportedly 'independent' evaluator and partisan foot soldier - violate ABA rules?"

Plainly, it did.

But it has only now has the extent of Fielding's involvement in getting the coveted A.B.A. nod for Estrada been revealed.

In short, Estrada's is not only a stealth nomination: it's a cooked nomination.

The Bush White House managed to get the A.B.A. to pass on Estrada on the word of one of its leading lieutenants and Boyden Gray ally, Fred Fielding.

Strangely, the White House and Capitol Hill Republicans, led by Judiciary Committee chair Orrin Hatch, have been brandishing the A.B.A. endorsement as a major selling point for Estrada.

Strangely -- because earlier during Bush's tenure, the White House flamboyantly rejected the A.B.A.'s recommendations on the grounds that the group is too liberal. Instead, the Bush team elected to go with recommendations from the brash right-wing lawyers' group, the Federalist Society, founded by Antonin Scalia.

This time, though, Bush and the White House thought they had rigged the process. Again. One of their own, under cover, got the A.B.A. approval for Estrada -- and all of a sudden, A.B.A. approval was, in the G.O.P.'s words "the gold standard" for judicial nominations.

Now the rig-job has been exposed -- and the White House is in the middle of a full-scale ethics meltdown.

Prior to working for the Bush-Cheney transition team, Fielding was President Ronald Reagan's White House counsel, an adviser to Vice President Dan Quayle and assistant to John Dean, President Richard M. Nixon's White House counsel when Watergate broke.

Last May, Bush appointed Fielding to an international center that settles trade disputes -- a job that pays a whopping $2,000 a day plus expenses. (Yes, that's more than half-a-million a year, folks, of your hard-earned money -- plus perks!)

Last fall Bush thanked Fielding publicly during a rally for his judicial nominees.

Fielding is still listed as a board member of Gray's pro-Estrada outfit. He did not return telephone calls, Newsday reports.

Email Sen. Orrin Hatch (webform) demanding that, in light of the scandal concerning Fred Fielding's heavy involvement in the A.B.A. approval of Miguel Estrada, he advise the White House to withdraw Estrada's nomination.
Email Sen. Patrick Leahy telling him that you expect, in light of the Fielding/Estrada scandal, that

colleagues will increase their pressure to defeat Estrada's nomination.
Send the same email to Sen. Tom Daschle (webform).
