DRAFT

Dear X:

I am writing regarding S. 2798, in particular the amendment in the nature of a complete substitute intended to be proposed by Senator Durbin.

The bill would make significant revisions to the complex bankruptcy statute. Changes of this magnitude deserve careful study to ensure that they do not create unintended, even potentially destructive incentives for corporate debtors. Such incentives would hurt workers and creditors, and help no one. Given the sweep of the changes contemplated in S. 2798, the Senate Judiciary Committee should hold hearings before concluding consideration of the bill.

These are several of the questions a hearing could address:

(a) Section 2 would create a new "excess benefit test," requiring business leaders to hand back benefits beyond a statutory ceiling received up to four years before. While this provision is grouped with fraudulent transfers, the "excess benefit test" would not make fraud a requirement. Should it be, given the potentially massive liability that this provision would impose unexpectedly on a business leader, when his or her business failed? And should the business leader have to hand back the whole benefit – including the non-excess portion below the "excess" ceiling?

(b) Section 3 would create new restrictions on a debtor's ability to retain key employees and hire advisors. The provision seeks to protect the debtor's assets. Yet the bankruptcy statute must also give a debtor the means to hire talented leaders and professionals when the company's survival is at stake. Does this provision properly balance these two goals?

(c) Section 4 would take the apparently unprecedented step of converting equity interests in the firm in employees' pension plans into high-priority claims, even higher than Federal tax claims. In addition, the provision would value the equity interest as of the time of grant, which amounts to a quasi-guarantee on equity. Is privileging this type of compensation over wages and creditors' claims good policy? Part of the provision's goal seems to be to encourage diversification in employees' pension plans; is the bankruptcy code the right place to do so? And would the provision chill employers' willingness to grant matching stock?

(d) The bill would apply effective immediately, at the risk of throwing existing bankruptcy cases into disarray and re-ordering legal rights without notice to any claimants. Should the bill be prospective?

Hearings with bankruptcy experts would help resolve fundamental questions of this type. In light of the importance of the efficient workings of bankruptcy to our economy, I urge you to take such expertise into your deliberations.

Yours sincerely,

Kirk: This email is from one of my lobbyist to me, which I pass on to you (FYI)----------Bruce

The biggest sticking point in the whole debate, pu nitive damages, has apparently been resolved, and the formal process of written offers and counter-offers has finally started.

However, the Senate Democrats view the Sensenbrenn er/Oxley/(White House) offer as, to quote Dodd's staff, an "insult" a nd a "joke," because of additional provisions, some outside of the sc ope of the conference and, as a result, no further meetings have been scheduled . In fact, Dodd is attempting to meet with Daschle, but as of now, that m eeting hasn't even been scheduled because Daschle doesn't know how to react to this proposal.

In particular, Dodd's reaction to the House offer was very negative, though they have agreed to keep working. Dodd's folks pointed out that the whole discussion has been about punitive damages, and now the House/White House has added a number of provisions that were not even prese nt in either bill, and that has the appearance, to the Democrats, of moving the goal posts.

I pointed out to them that this should be co nsidered encouraging movement in the right direction, and that they should keep working. Specifically, there is an agreement on punitives, these other i ssues have always been festering, but couldn't be addressed until the big issue was resolved. Also, the Democrats cannot credibly raise the punitive dam ages standard of HR 1 and not expect that the House would not raise the rest of the provision that they ignored, even if proportionate liability is "off the table." I also pointed out that the provisions that are containe d in the House offer appear imminently reasonable, even if politically they are not: it is hard to argue against proportionate liability -- the terroris ts were 99.9% of the cause of the incident, and therefore should be 99.9% respo nsible, once the victims have been made whole; it makes sense to have the Treas ury involved in the settlement discussions if they are going to be covering 90% of the award; and because the whole purpose of the fund is to benefit victims , and the money comes out of the Treasury, it also makes some sense to limit at torneys fees.

It appears the the Chamber may be in a unique posi tion to help focus the debate a little, and now may be the time to go to the Wh ite House to point out, gently perhaps, some concerns about the House offer.&nb sp; Specifically:

1) the only issues that the SAP raised were consol idation, federal claim and punitive damages (see below). Therefore, while it appears acceptable to raise proportionate liability in the context of HR 1 since the Democrats "opened the door" to the provisions of HR 1, addi ng attorneys fees is a poke in the eye to the Democrats; and

2) the procedural issues, approval of settlements by the Treasury Secretary and determination of punitive damages awards by the j udge, are not contained in either the House or Senate bill, and therefore are n ot within the scope of conference.

That leaves only the discussion of proportionate l iability left, which I believe the Democrats would be hard pressed politically to argue against.

Therefore, I would suggest that perhaps Bruce call the WH and encourage them to keep working and making progress, but also encour age them to whittle out the provocative/extraneous issues to make it easier to get a final deal done.

Terrorism insurance SAP (emphasis added):

June 13, 2002 (Senate) S. 2600 - Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (Sen. Dodd (D) Connecticut and 4 co sponsors) The Administration strongly supports the creation of a terrorism r isk insurance program that will help provide much needed stability to our econo my. The backstop insurance program that would be established by S. 2600 is an e ffective mechanism for ensuring the continued availability of insurance for ter rorist-related acts. The program would aid the economy by ensuring that busines ses and properties are able to spread risk efficiently by providing access to a well-functioning private insurance market. Increased availability of insurance would help many sectors of the economy. For example, it would facilitate the f inancing of new construction and avoid the risk of further ratings downgrades o f securities that are collateralized by inadequately insured properties. It wou ld also put in place a system for processing claims and establishing the scope of the Federal government's obligation in the payment of losses in the event of another attack, which would help mitigate adverse economic consequences result ing from a future attack. However, the Administra tion cannot support enactment of any terrorism insurance bill that leaves the N ation's economy and victims of terrorist acts subject to predatory lawsuits and punitive damages. Any bill must, at a minimum, contain provisions for an exclu sive Federal cause of action and a consolidation of all cases arising out of a terrorist event, and exclude punitive damages in such mass tort terrorism cases (except against a terrorist or aider or abettor). These reasonable litigation procedures, as included in the November 1st bipartisan agreement among Chairmen Sarbanes and Dodd and Senators Gramm an d Enzi, are an essential element of any terrorism insurance bill. For many comp anies facing rising insurance, a significant part of the increased costs result s from the risk of litigation, which introduces a significant degree of uncerta inty to insurers' assessments of potential losses from a terrorist attack. Sens ible litigation procedures will also ensure an orderly process that will help r esolve claims more expeditiously and preserve the limited pool of defendant res ources for claims by a potentially large number of injured parties, thereby ben efitting plaintiffs and defendants alike. Section 6(h) of S. 2600 relating to Comptroll er General access to information would be construed in a manner consistent with constitutional provisions relating to the separation of powers. Section 10 of S. 2600 does not, and should not, affect existing U.S. law regarding the immuni ties of foreign sovereigns.

U.S. Department of Justice

Office of Legislative Affairs

Office of the Assistant Attorney General Washington, D.C. 20530

October 8, 2002

The Honorable Dan Burton
Chairman
Committee on Government Reform
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This letter sets forth the Administration's views concerning the manager's amendment version of H.R. 4187, the "Presidential Records Act Amendments of 2002." We believe that enactment of this bill is unnecessary and inappropriate and, more importantly, the bill is unconstitutional.

I.

The motivation underlying introduction of H.R. 4187 appears to be some concern in Congress with respect to Executive Order 13233, 66 Fed. Reg. 56025 (Nov. 5, 2001). President Bush issued the Order last November in order to establish polices and procedures governing consideration of the assertion of constitutionally based privileges in connection with the release of presidential records of prior administrations by the National Archives and Records Administration ("NARA") under the Presidential Records Act ("PRA"), 44 U.S.C. §§ 2201-2207. H.R. 4187 would purport to supersede President Bush's Order and put in its place congressionally prescribed procedures.

We respectfully suggest that much of the congressional concern underlying H.R. 4187 is based on a misunderstanding of the purpose and effect of the Executive Order. The Order does not operate to preclude the release of any presidential records. In fact, its most significant policy innovation is a provision establishing that the incumbent President ordinarily will not object to the release of records authorized for release by the former President. The Order merely establishes reasonable and appropriate procedures for review of documents and for privilege determinations to be made. The Order expressly refrains from indicating whether and under what circumstances privileges should be asserted.

Indeed, the Executive Order has operated to facilitate the release of records. Pursuant to the terms of the Order, representatives of former President Ronald Reagan -- the only President whose presidential records are ready for release by NARA after expiration of the PRA's 12-year restricted access period -- reviewed the 68,000 pages of records for which notice was provided in 2001, and on November 29, 2001, former President Reagan, through his representative, stated that he was not asserting constitutional privilege over any of the 68,000 pages. Since that time, representatives of President Bush have reviewed the records, and all of those 68,000 pages have been released. The procedures of the Order are working well, and presidential records are being released to the public consistent with the review that the Constitution requires be available to the former and incumbent Presidents in order that they can determine whether to exercise their constitutional authority.

Much criticism directed at the Order has apparently been premised on the view that a former President should have no right to assert privileges over his presidential records. That criticism is unfounded because the Supreme Court has definitively held, in an opinion by Justice William Brennan, that both incumbent and former Presidents retain the right to assert constitutionally based privileges with respect to the presidential records of the former President. See Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425 (1977). And the PRA expressly preserved the authority of former Presidents in this regard. See 44 U.S.C. § 2204(c)(2). We are disappointed that much of the commentary on the Order never confronts the Supreme Court's ruling or this provision of the PRA.

It bears emphasis that, as under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA), a denied requester can bring suit to challenge a privilege assertion any time that a former or incumbent President asserts a privilege. In other words, the courts will have the final word on the validity of any assertion of privilege. Neither the former nor the incumbent President will possess unreviewable authority to withhold records.

Other criticism of the Executive Order has suggested that the Order threatens Congress's exercise of its authority to seek presidential records in order to discharge its legislative responsibilities. This is incorrect. The only provision in the Order that is pertinent to congressional requests and subpoenas is section 6. That section is not intended to change the law in any way with respect to the legal effectiveness of congressional subpoena return dates, the practice of the executive and legislative branches of engaging in an accommodation process regarding congressional requests for privileged executive branch information, or the period of time that the Constitution requires a former or incumbent President be afforded in order to consider whether to assert a constitutionally based privilege. Section 6 merely sets forth the time periods that will generally apply to the reviews undertaken by former and incumbent Presidents in response to congressional requests for presidential records.

There also have been some questions raised about the fact that under the Executive Order a denied requester must initiate litigation against a former President who asserts a privilege, rather than requiring the former President who asserts a privilege to sue the incumbent President's Administration to block release. The Supreme Court has held that former Presidents have the constitutional right to assert privileges over their records. If such a privilege is asserted, we believe it most appropriate for the requester who disagrees with the privilege assertion to proceed to court -- just as the requester would do in ordinary FOIA litigation -- rather than requiring the former President to take the extraordinary step of suing the incumbent President's Administration. As a practical matter, it is no more difficult for a requester to file suit when a former President asserts a privilege than for an unsuccessful requester to file an ordinary FOIA suit. Because this procedure is so common in the FOIA context, we think it is an entirely appropriate model for these purposes.

In short, Executive Order 13233 is faithful to the PRA and to the Supreme Court's case law; it sets out appropriate procedures that satisfy both the congressional purposes underlying the PRA and the constitutional prerogatives and interests of former and incumbent Presidents; and implementation of the Order is going well. There is no need for legislation concerning the Order.

II.

In any event, H.R. 4187 is unconstitutional. The PRA, which H.R. 4187 would amend, provides for the release of presidential records of prior administrations, but it expressly recognizes that any such release is subject to assertion of constitutionally based privileges: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President." 44 U.S.C. § 2204(c)(2). And the PRA makes no effort to establish policies or procedures for asserting constitutionally based privileges under the PRA, but instead leaves that to the executive branch. See 124 Cong. Rec. 34,895 (1978) (statement of Rep. Preyer) (legislation not "designed to prejudge" issues "involving the manner of assertion of the constitutional privilege"); 44 U.S.C. § 2206 ("The Archivist shall promulgate . . . regulations necessary to carry out the provisions of this [Act]. Such regulations shall include . . . provisions for notice by the Archivist to the former President when the disclosure of particular documents may adversely affect any rights and privileges which the former President may have.").

Consistent with the Constitution and Congress's recognition of the constitutional requirements applicable to privilege claims, the executive branch has been responsible for the establishment of procedures for assertion of constitutionally based privileges under the PRA. The preamble to H.R. 4187, however, states that its purpose is to end that by "establish[ing] procedures for the consideration of claims of constitutionally based privilege against disclosure of Presidential records." That purpose, however, is beyond Congress's legislative authority. The presidential privileges are constitutionally based. Thus, Congress lacks the authority to regulate by legislation the procedures for exercising this constitutional power, which belongs exclusively to the President. This has long been recognized, as reflected in testimony in 1975 by then-Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legal Counsel Antonin Scalia. See Statement of Antonin Scalia, Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, on S. 2170, the Congressional Right to Information Act, before the Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations, Committee on Government Operations, United States Senate, Oct. 23, 1975.

Objecting to legislation setting out requirements governing the manner in which the President's constitutionally based privileges may be asserted, Assistant Attorney General Scalia testified that "[t]he Constitutional basis of Executive privilege means that the President may exercise it without Congressional leave and in spite of Congressional disapproval. In other words, the privilege does not fall within that group of powers which the President may exercise in the silence of Congress but not in derogation of legislation." Id. at 14. To support this position, the Assistant Attorney General quoted several passages from the Supreme Court decision in United States v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683 (1974). Id., quoting from 418 U.S. at 705 (executive privilege is derived from "the supremacy of each branch within its own assigned area of constitutional duties"), 708 ("The privilege is fundamental to the operation of government and inextricably rooted in the separation of powers under the Constitution."), and 711 ("Nowhere in the Constitution . . . is there any explicit reference to a privilege of confidentiality, yet to the extent this interest relates to the effective discharge of a President's powers, it is constitutionally based.").

Assistant Attorney General Scalia went on in his testimony to object to a provision "requir[ing] that Executive privilege be claimed only by the President himself in writing, setting forth the grounds on which it is based." Statement at 14. That provision was substantially the same as section 2208(a)(4) of H.R. 4187 as introduced, a portion of which remains in the substitute bill under section 2208(b)(1). The Assistant Attorney General stated "that Congress lacks the power to preclude the President from adopting . . . reasonable alternative methods of claiming privilege, which he feels to be justified in the circumstances." Id. at 15.

The constitutional principle that is applicable here is that, given "the supremacy of each branch within its own assigned area of constitutional duties," Nixon, 418 U.S. at 705, it is for the President, not the Congress, to set forth the procedural requirements for exercising the constitutionally based privileges available to former and incumbent Presidents. Although Assistant Attorney General Scalia's testimony focused on a particular provision that is comparable to a particular provision in H.R. 4187, the same analysis applies to the remaining provisions in H.R. 4187 because they also seek to regulate the exercise of the constitutionally based presidential privileges, a process that must remain within the discretion of the President.

Other provisions of H.R. 4187 raise specific constitutional concerns beyond the overarching problem of lack of legislative authority (which renders the bill unconstitutional in its entirety). Section 2208(a)(3) would purport to limit the incumbent and former Presidents to a 20-day period, with the possibility of a 20-day extension, to review records and determine whether to assert privilege. Given the volume of records that are involved in the PRA process, that brief period almost always will be unreasonable and therefore constitute an impermissible burden on the Presidents' exercise of their constitutional authority. A similar constitutional concern is raised by section 2208(c), which directs the Archivist to release records subject to a privilege claim by a former President after expiration of a 20-day period unless otherwise directed by a court in an action brought by the former President. Providing that a former President's claim of privilege is effective for only 20 days, and thereafter only with the approval of an officer of another branch of government, would significantly undercut the effect of the claim of privilege and may well also constitute an unconstitutional burden on the former President's exercise of his constitutional authority, as recognized by the Supreme Court in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services.

Section 2208(d)(2) would raise a constitutional concern if it were somehow read to direct the Archivist not to follow an incumbent President's directive to him to withhold records on the basis of privilege if the records have been requested by a congressional committee or the courts. If read in this way, the provision would turn the executive branch hierarchy on its head, making the Archivist superior to the President – in contravention of the settled principle that the President has the constitutional authority to supervise and direct executive branch officials in the discharge of their responsibilities. See Myers v. United States, 272 U.S. 52 (1926).

Finally, to return to the overarching constitutional problem identified earlier in this letter, the attempt in section 3 of the bill to declare that Executive Order 13233 "shall have no force or effect" would itself have no force or effect because Congress lacks the authority to override the President's exercise of his constitutional authority in this area.

In sum, H.R. 4187 constitutes an unconstitutional encroachment on presidential constitutional authority.

III.

Thank you for considering our views. If we can be of further assistance in this matter, please feel free to contact this office. The Office of Management and Budget has advised that there is no objection to the submission of this letter from the standpoint of the Administration's program.

Sincerely,

Daniel J. Bryant
Assistant Attorney General

<<Thurmond 1 pager.wpd>> Lincoln, you can say that Senator Thurmond is expected to go to the floor between 1:30 and 1:45 today to call the Senate's attention to the fact the Senator Leahy failed to keep his word to Thurmond regarding Judge Dennis Shedd's nomination. Senator Lott strongly encourages all Senators to be present on the floor at that time to support Thurmond.

LEAHY'S FAILURE TO KEEP HIS WORD TO THURMOND REGARDING JUDGE SHEDD

Leahy Promises to Thurmond – Fed. Dist. Court Judge Dennis Shedd was Thurmond's Chief Counsel and Staff Director for the Judiciary Cmtee in the 1980's. The leadership has kept in constant contact with Thurmond's COS Duke Short over the last few months as Leahy has made the following promises and failed to keep them

- July – Leahy publicly promised at a July 31 Cmtee meeting that Shedd would be voted on this year.
- August – when Shedd wasn't on the Aug. 1st mark-up, Leahy promised Duke Short that he would be on the first mark-up after the August recess.
- September – when Shedd wasn't on the 1st mark-up back (Sept. 5) Leahy promised he would be on the next one (Sept. 19). Shedd was actually put onthat mark-up but the Democrats held him over to the next mark-up – scheduled for October.
- October – after being held over in Sept., Leahy then told Duke that Shedd would be on the on the Oct. 3rd mark-up last Thursday – the last one for this Congress. However, that mark-up was delayed until Tuesday, Oct. 8 so Leahy could pressure some Republicans on Oct. 3rd to vote for cloture on the only legislation he cared about (DOJ Reauth) – by threatening to take their District Court nominees off the mark-up unless they voted for cloture. He again told Duke Short on the floor Oct. 3rd during the cloture vote that Shedd would be on the Oct. 8 mark-up.

Leahy's Reneging on His Word to Thurmond – at the final Oct. 8 mark-up, Leahy's excuse for taking Shedd off the agenda and breaking his promise to Thurmond was because he expected the 2-hour rule would be invoked by one side or the other and, therefore, the extended debate needed for Shedd would mean that the other 17 nominees and legislation on the agenda would not get finished.

Thurmond's Statement to Leahy in The Cmtee – Thurmond personally said the following to Leahy at the mark-up:

> "Sometime after 5:00 yesterday afternoon, I learned that you had refused to put Judge Dennis Shedd on today's agenda, although his nomination has already been held over. I am hurt and disappointed by your action. You have repeatedly stated that judge Shedd would be given a vote today. I took you at your word. In my 48 years in the United States Senate, I have never been treated in such a manner . . . On July 31, you said before this committee that we had worked out a solution regarding Judge Shedd that would be satisfactory to me. I do not find your recent actions to be satisfactory.

> Mr. Chairman, you assured me on numerous occasions that Judge Shedd would get a vote, and that is all I have ever asked of you. I have waited patiently for over 17 months and have extended every courtesy to you. Mr. Chairman, this is probably my last appearance before this Committee."

Hatch Motion to Consider Shedd – Sen. Hatch then pointed out that the longstanding Committee custom is that legislation or nominees held over at one mark-up are put on the next mark-up. As a result, since Shedd had been held over at the last mark-up (Sept. 19), he should have been on this one. Hatch then made a motion – pursuant to Committee rule 4 – to bring the Shedd nomination up for consideration.

Leahy Rules Hatch's Motion Out of Order – Leahy objected to Hatch's motion and ruled Hatch's motion to consider Shedd out of order because "the nomination was not before the Committee" – even though that is precisely what rule 4 is suppose to allow a member to try to do. Leahy's ruling was therefore contrary to the Committee's rules. Senator Kyl then appealed Leahy's ruling and Leahy put the issue to a vote. The vote was a tie 9-9 roll call vote that Leahy said sustained his previous ruling and thus prevented Shedd from coming up.

Two items (one professional and one personal):

1) Personal first: I understand Margeret Wilson, the Deputy GC at Commerce, is leaving. You may remember that I interviewed with Ted Kassinger, the GC, for the position of GC at NOAA and he rather liked me (I thought), but the interview was too late in the process. Would it be absurd for me to think that I could get that job? I'd be interested in your thoughts . . . I know I'd be great in the job.

2) On behalf of Heritage I'd like to invite you to the Legal Strategy Forum on the afternoon of October 30 [at any time your schedule permits]. LSF is a twice-yearly gathering of all of the major conservative legal advocacy groups (e.g. Washigton Legal, Pacific Legal, Institute for Justice, Beckett Fund, CIR, etc. etc. etc.). We gather them all together to compare notes, strategize, etc.

This year the second meeting is on Oct 30-31 at the Landsdowne Resort out near Dulles. We'd welcome you coming to talk -- the vision is a totally off the record, among friends, review of the success and failures of the Bush adminsitration with emphasis on a) how the legal advocates can help; and b) how they can better present their issues to the adminstration. We had Flannigan at the last one in Philadelphia so he can tell you a bit more about it . . . .

Interested?

Give me a call when you get a chance.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT AT WHITE HOUSE RECEPTION FOR HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH

"...One of my jobs as well is to make sure our bench is strong. I've named a fantastic Hispanic American to the bench, a young guy named Miguel Estrada. I named him to one of the highest courts possible, to the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals. It's an incredibly important appointment. He's well qualified. He is very smart. He came to our country from El Salvador, he couldn't speak English. He's now been picked, amongst all the candidates, to take on this highest of high positions in the bench. He's having trouble in the United States Senate.

"There are some senators -- certainly not Senator Hatch, who is one of his strongest advocates -- there are senators who are paying politics with this good man's nomination. There are senators who would rather not give him the benefit of the doubt; senators looking for a reason to defeat him, as opposed to looking for a reason to herald his intelligence, his capabilities, his talent. I strongly object to the way this man is going to be treated in the Senate. I urge the Senate to confirm the nomination of Miguel Estrada. (Applause.)..."

The Honorable John F. Kerry
Chairman
Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship United States Senate

Dear Mr. Chairman:

As you know, through several ongoing initiatives, the Administration is committed to improving the access of small businesses to government procurement opportunities. In particular, we share your concern about the detrimental effects of contract bundling. However, we are concerned that S. 2466, the Small Business Federal Contractor Safeguard Act, would impede our ability to effectively address contract bundling.

On March 19, 2002, the President announced his Small Business Agenda, a plan to help create an environment where small businesses can flourish. The President's plan calls for the Director of the Office of Management and Budget to prepare a strategy for unbundling contracts, where practicable, and to review Department and agency contracting practices to determine whether these practices reflect a strong commitment to full and open competition. To help carry out the President=s Agenda, my office formed two inter-agency working groups, one focusing on competition and the other focusing on contract bundling issues. The working groups have been considering comments received from the public as they prepare strategies and recommendations that would implement the President's Agenda.

At this point, we are on the verge of presenting to the President an aggressive strategy on contract bundling that will include recommendations for actions to be taken under the existing statutory framework. Considering where we are in this process, it would be an unfortunate time for statutory changes. If enacted now, S. 2466 would add a significant layer of confusion for the contracting community and delay our ability to address real and significant concerns about contract bundling.

As we proceed, we look forward to sharing our views with the Congress, the small business community, and all interested parties.

Sincerely,

Angela B. Styles
Administrator

2) On behalf of Heritage I'd like to invite you to the Legal Strategy Forum on the afternoon of October 30 [at any time your schedule permits]. LSF is a twice-yearly gathering of all of the major conservative legal advocacy groups (e.g. Washigton Legal, Pacific Legal, Institute for Justice, Beckett Fund, CIR, etc. etc. etc.). We gather them all together to compare notes, strategize, etc.

This year the second meeting is on Oct 30-31 at the Landsdowne Resort out near Dulles. We'd welcome you coming to talk -- the vision is a totally off the record, among friends, review of the success and failures of the Bush adminsitration with emphasis on a) how the legal advocates can help; and b) how they can better present their issues to the adminstration. We had Flannigan at the last one in Philadelphia so he can tell you a bit more about it . . . .

Interested?

Give me a call when you get a chance.

Paul

MANION, Circuit Judge. Richard Shick, armed with a sawed-off shotgun, robbed a convenience store in Joliet, Illinois. At the time, he was employed as a case worker at the Illinois Department of Public Aid. After the robbery, he sued the Department, claiming that he was discriminated against because of his disabilities and his sex, and that the discrimination and treatment resulting from it caused him such trauma that he committed the robbery. A jury concluded that the Department did discriminate against him because of his disabilities and sex, and awarded him $5 million in damages and $166,700.00 in back pay. Because the Seventh Circuit ruled that the ADA was not a valid abrogation of the states, Eleventh Amendment immunity, the district court vacated the disability judgment and then capped the judgment for sex discrimination at $300,000.00. The court then awarded $303,830.00 in front pay. The Department appeals. We reverse and remand.

Sorry it has taken me a few days to respond on the Rotunda piece. I think, very frankly, it is extremely unlikely for us. It doesn't set up the issue at all. Why was Leahy talking about this subject?--a reasonable reader might wonder. And the gist of it, in any event, is only that Rotunda's name was taken in vain. I am happy to forward it to the op-ed folks if you'd like, but it's a real longshot.

Kris - Thank you for your note. We look forward to our meeting today where we will be able to have a good discussion with a broad coalition of West Virginia grassroots activists, community leaders, and political leaders. As part of that meeting, we'd be happy to include Jim Reed.
I know that you are having a separate event tonight - a political dinner at the Capitol Hill Club where Ken Mehlman will be the guest speaker - and you are of course free to include whomever you wish in your event this evening.
thanks again - coddy

Coddy,
Jim Reed, maximum donor along with two brothers to the WVGOP, called late last night and asked for us to substitute his name for his son's name for the event at the WH today. I know it is late but if you could make this happen we would greatly appreciate it. Jim and his wife Candace will also be on the West Wing tour tonight.(7 people including Jim and his wife). Thank you for all that you are doing to make the WVGOP successful! This event should raise over $20,000.

My understanding is that you are requesting us to change this to "The Secretary shall be responsible for carrying out and administering the provisions of this Act."

I don't think there would be a problem with that in general. However, I'm not sure the change would be appropriate as applied to the provision on frozen assets, so we might need an exception for that. But this might draw attention to what you are trying to do. So I await your further recommendation.

On review of S. 2600, it seems to us that the "Program" set forth in section 4, over which the Secretary has regulatory authority pursuant to section 5, does not encompass the federal cause of action under section 10. Therefore, if the question is whether the Secretary's section 5 authority would enable him to assert the right to approve settlements of federal causes of action under section 10, courts may very dubious. One way to get past this hurdle would be to rewrite section 5(a) by substituting something like "the provisions of this Act" for "the Program." (There may, of course, still be other obstacles to the Secretary's assertion of settlement-approval authority; we are further looking at this question.)

Sorry it has taken me a few days to respond on the Rotunda piece. I think, very frankly, it is extremely unlikely for us. It doesn't set up the issue at all. Why was Leahy talking about this subject?--a reasonable reader might wonder. And the gist of it, in any event, is only that Rotunda's name was taken in vain. I am happy to forward it to the op-ed folks if you'd like, but it's a real longshot.

FYI--Here's the latest American Banker article from today, mentioning the second letter that I sent. The reporter said sources were puzzled about why it was sent--the answer is that Senator Gramm said (via Tom Korologos) that if I had that letter up by 2:00 p.m. this past Tuesday, he would get me voted out with the others. The letter was up there, but I wasn't voted out.

HEADLINE: Finance Board Fracas Has Letters Flying

BYLINE: BY ROB GARVER

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

BODY:
Two prominent Democrats are demanding investigations into a political fund-raiser involving Federal Housing Finance Board Chairman John T. Korsmo.
Mr. Korsmo has been in lawmakers' sights since Oct. 1, when he appeared as a "special guest" at a $500-a-head reception in support of Rick Clayburgh, a Republican candidate for Congress in North Dakota.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Paul Sarbanes and others have been especially critical because invitations highlighting Mr. Korsmo's expected appearance were sent to the presidents of several Federal Home Loan banks, which he regulates.
Meanwhile, the prospects for a nominee to the Finance Board appeared to darken Thursday. Diana Furchtgott-Roth, who faced a contentious nomination hearing last week, sent a second letter to top Democrats on the Senate Banking Committee, who had asked her in light of the Korsmo controversy to clarify her stand on regulators' participation in fund-raising. Ms. Furchtgott-Roth's Oct. 8 letter consisted of just one sentence, that she "will not do any fund-raising activities for any entity that is regulated by the Federal Housing Finance Board."
Senate sources said they were puzzled by the response, because she had not been asked about raising money for the Federal Home Loan banks but about fund-raisers for political candidates.
Critics' sentiments about Mr. Korsmo were clearer, however.
In letters dated Oct. 9 and released Thursday, Sen. Sarbanes, D-Md., asked the General Accounting Office and the Finance Board's inspector general to conduct detailed investigations of Mr. Korsmo's fund-raising activities.
In a third letter, sent directly to Mr. Korsmo, Sen. Sarbanes criticized him for failing to meet requirements for ethical behavior that the Finance Board chairman himself had codified in a set of "Standards of Conduct" only a few weeks before.
"In my view, your conduct ... raises serious questions as to whether you have lived up to the standard you set for yourself, your fellow board members, and the staff of the FHFB," wrote Sen. Sarbanes, citing a front-page story in American Banker on Oct. 1.
Mr. Korsmo was expected to send a written response late Thursday. "The chairman's letter will address all of the questions raised in Senator Sarbanes' letter," a spokesman for Mr. Korsmo said.
California Rep. Henry A. Waxman, the top Democrat on the House Committee on Government Reform, has called for his panel to launch a probe as well.
In a letter to Committee Chairman Dan Burton, R-Ind., Rep. Waxman noted that in 1997 several congressional committees targeted then-Comptroller of the Currency Eugene Ludwig in a series of similar investigations. Mr. Ludwig was faulted for attending an event at the White House, organized by Democratic National Committee fund-raising staff, to which bank executives were invited.
"Prominent Republicans investigating these allegations insisted that it was highly unethical to ask a banking regulator to meet with bankers at a political event, even if fund-raising did not occur," Rep. Waxman wrote, drawing a distinction with the Oct. 1 event, which carried a $500 entry fee.
The fight over Mr. Ludwig's appearance at the White House was drawn out over several months and ended with President Clinton expressing regret that Mr. Ludwig had been invited. At this stage observers are doubtful that Mr. Korsmo's travails will rise to anything near that level.
"This isn't a pleasant experience for Chairman Korsmo, but with Congress headed toward adjournment I don't know if any of this will amount to much," said Karen Shaw Petrou, managing director of Federal Financial Analytics, a consulting firm here.
Still, Sen. Sarbanes' requests are likely to make the board chairman uncomfortable.
In largely identical letters to the GAO and the inspector general, Sen. Sarbanes asked for answers to detailed questions about the fund-raiser. Among other things, he asked for information about any involvement Mr. Korsmo or his staff may have had in organizing the fund-raiser, soliciting sponsors, or supplying campaign staff with names or contact information for potential invitees.
He asked whether Mr. Korsmo or his staff sought or obtained information about political contributions made by Home Loan bank presidents, or contacted bank officials directly about attending the event. He also wanted to know if any invited bank officials, or their institutions, had been subject to recent enforcement, supervisory, or examination matters.
Sen. Sarbanes also requested that investigators look into communication between Mr. Korsmo and his staff about fund-raising. "To this end, I would ask you to review any letters, memoranda, e-mails, notes, or other written materials written to or by Mr. Korsmo, the FHFB general counsel, or other staff, that may shed light on any possible discussions of fund-raising undertaken by the chairman or his staff."

Rep. Waxman appears to have focused his attention more on Mr. Clayburgh's campaign than on the board chairman.
"Mr. Korsmo's appearance at this event raises questions that Mr. Clayburgh used Mr. Korsmo's position in government to help solicit contributions from banking executives subject to his regulation," he wrote.

FYI--Here's the latest American Banker article from today, mentioning the second letter that I sent. The reporter said sources were puzzled about why it was sent--the answer is that Senator Gramm said (via Tom Korologos) that if I had that letter up by 2:00 p.m. this past Tuesday, he would get me voted out with the others. The letter was up there, but I wasn't voted out.

CURRENT

Regarding the claim of executive privilege over certain Justice Department documents that included a number of prosecution and declination memos, including Clinton Administration memos re whether to seek an independent counsel in the Gore fundraising matter:

Ranking cmte member Henry Waxman (D-CA): "An imperial presidency or an imperial Justice Department conflicts with the democratic principles of our nation" (Chicago Tribune, 12/14).
House Gov't Reform chair Dan Burton (R-IN), "Your guy's acting like he's king." (Boston Globe, 12/14).

Russ Baker, The Nation, re Presidential Records Act executive order: "Kavanaugh, who once defended Starr's insatiable appetite for information as being not about politics but about the sanctity of the law, has apparently changed his tune."

Stanley Kutler, Chicago Tribune, re Presidential Records Act executive order:
"Bush's action drips with irony. A few years ago, Kavanaugh worked with Kenneth Starr, and eagerly argued that President Clinton had no right to retain documents, no executive privilege, and must yield to every demand made by the Office of Independent Counsel."

STARR

Abner Mikva, Chicago Tribune, Aug. 5, 1998: "This [ruling] will materially affect the way public business is going to be done and to the detriment of public business."

Lloyd Cutler: Meanwhile, the inner workings of the White House have already been affected by years of investigative scrutiny. For example, White House lawyers are now careful not to take notes, Mr. [Lloyd] Cutler said. "When the attorney-client privilege with a Government lawyer is virtually destroyed, that means you don't dare take notes," he said. "You are going to be cautious about what you say and the President will be cautious about what he tells you. That's a serious blow to the Presidency."

Judge David Tatel of D.C. Circuit, dissenting in Lindsey case on government attorney-client privilege: "As a result, Presidents may well shift their trust on all but the most routine legal matters from White House counsel, who undertake to serve the Presidency, to private counsel who represent its occupant. . . . I doubt that White House counsel can perform any of these functions without the candor made possible by the attorney-client privilege.
As I said at the outset, weakening the privilege may well cause Presidents to shift their trust from White House lawyers who have undertaken to serve the Presidency, to private lawyers who have not."

CURRENT

Regarding the claim of executive privilege over certain Justice Department documents that included a number of prosecution and declination memos, including Clinton Administration memos re whether to seek an independent counsel in the Gore fundraising matter:

Ranking cmte member Henry Waxman (D-CA): "An imperial presidency or an imperial Justice Department conflicts with the democratic principles of our nation" (Chicago Tribune, 12/14).
House Gov't Reform chair Dan Burton (R-IN), "Your guy's acting like he's king." (Boston Globe, 12/14).

Russ Baker, The Nation, re Presidential Records Act executive order: "Kavanaugh, who once defended Starr's insatiable appetite for information as being not about politics but about the sanctity of the law, has apparently changed his tune."

Stanley Kutler, Chicago Tribune, re Presidential Records Act executive order:
"Bush's action drips with irony. A few years ago, Kavanaugh worked with Kenneth Starr, and eagerly argued that President Clinton had no right to retain documents, no executive privilege, and must yield to every demand made by the Office of Independent Counsel."

Abner Mikva, Chicago Tribune, Aug. 5, 1998: "This [ruling] will materially affect the way public business is going to be done and to the detriment of public business."

Lloyd Cutler: Meanwhile, the inner workings of the White House have already been affected by years of investigative scrutiny. For example, White House lawyers are now careful not to take notes, Mr. [Lloyd] Cutler said. "When the attorney-client privilege with a Government lawyer is virtually destroyed, that means you don't dare take notes," he said. "You are going to be cautious about what you say and the President will be cautious about what he tells you. That's a serious blow to the Presidency."

Judge David Tatel of D.C. Circuit, dissenting in Lindsey case on government attorney-client privilege: "As a result, Presidents may well shift their trust on all but the most routine legal matters from White House counsel, who undertake to serve the Presidency, to private counsel who represent its occupant. . . . I doubt that White House counsel can perform any of these functions without the candor made possible by the attorney-client privilege.
As I said at the outset, weakening the privilege may well cause Presidents to shift their trust from White House lawyers who have undertaken to serve the Presidency, to private lawyers who have not."

6 who worked in starr independent counsel office have senate confirmed positions. John Bates and Amy St. Eve are federal district judges, she in Chicago. Steve Colloton (Iowa) and Bill Duffey (Georgia) are US Attorneys. Kevin Martin is FCC Commissioner. Alex Azar is general counsel of HHS. All were confirmed without a dissenting vote. People who worked closely with Starr at Kirkland now in Admin include Paul Clement, Jay Lefkowitz, Patrick Philbin (Deputy AAG in OLC), and Adam Ciongoli (counselor to AG). None of those is a senate-confirmed position.

President's Remarks on Judges in Michigan 10/14/02

I'm also proud to be traveling with a former United States Senator, now a member of my Cabinet, and that would be Spence Abraham.
Spence, thank you for coming. (Applause.) You know, it's a sad day when he lost for the Senate. It hurt Michigan -- it gave me a chance to put somebody good in the Cabinet. (Laughter.) And he's doing a fine job working on an incredibly important issue, about which I'll speak in a second, and that's energy.

But let me tell you one thing. If we had him in the Senate, if we had people like Spence in the Senate, there would be no question today about my judges getting confirmed. (Applause.)

The Senate is doing a lousy job on my judge nominations. They're treating this like it's politics, not what's good for the country. You see, we need judges who will serve not to write legislation -- we've got plenty of legislators -- we need judges who will strictly interpret the Constitution of the United States sitting on our benches. (Applause.)

No, I heard a lot of reasons why we need to change the Senate, but one of them is to make sure that the federal bench represents the way you want them to serve their jobs. We need a Senate change, and that's why you've got to put Rocky in the United States Senate. (Applause.) Hey, Rocky, good luck to you. You should never count out a guy named Rocky.
(Applause.)

Remarks by President at second Michigan event on 10/14/02

By the way, looking at Spence, or just thinking about Spence -- looking at him, too -- reminds me of why we need to take the Senate back.
I've named really good people to the bench. One of my most awesome responsibilities and important responsibilities is to find good, honorable Americans who will serve well as federal judges; people who will use the bench to strictly interpret the Constitution; people who will not use the bench to rewrite law. We've got plenty of legislators in Washington.
(Applause.)

And this Senate has done a lousy job with my nominees.
(Applause.) The percentage of people confirmed is way below those confirmed under President Clinton or President Bush or President Reagan.
They're playing politics. I named good, strong people up there and they distort their records. The American people deserve better. The nominees for the bench I've named deserve better. For the sake of a good, sound judiciary, we need to change the United States Senate. (Applause.)

Thanks. It was an AP picture that ran in a bunch of papers, such as Chicago Tribune and Time Magazine, in June 1997. It was taken while the three of us were walking to a press conference Ken had in Little Rock on the day the SCt denied cert in the first government attorney-client privilege case. Hope all is well.

Not for wide distribution: DOJ has opined that we can require approval of settlement by regulation -- namely, the Secretary can require that a participating insurer agree to obtain approval of settlements as a condition of the program. The Senate language gives sufficient authority to the Secretary to do this, although the House language would be tougher. I am happy to talk further about this. 202-456-7984. Thanks, Wayne.

Brett,

I apologize, I thought that I had sent this message below to you yesterday when I sent it to Paul Taylor. I was using a list on this subject that I was sure had your name on it, but I just saw this afternoon that it did not. I apologize for that. I just spoke with Senator Gramm who reaffirmed to me his strong insistance that the terrorism insurance bill contain a requirement that subjects out of court settlements to a Treasury review and sign off, for reasons outlined below.

Senator Gramm has looked at the various proposals as they seem to stand right now.

He remains convinced that per-company retentions are a bad idea, and is concerned that the individual company retentions in the offer are too low, though ratcheting them up each year is a very good idea.

He can accept making the third, optional year mandatory, though one year has already passed by for the industry to develop its resources and programs.

With regard to the lawsuit limitation provisions, the latest proposed offer does not seem to be in practice very much better than the Schumer-Dodd offer of last week. It is also below the level referred to in the letter from Secretary O'Neill and Messrs. Lindsey, Daniels, and Hubbard (June 10, 2002), which assurances formed the basis for the Senate agreeing to go to Conference.

Remarkably, there is no mention in the offers of subjecting out of court settlements to Treasury sign off. which has been part of the agreement struck by Senate Republicans as far back as November 1, with Administration concurrence.
Senator Gramm was in the room when Senator Sarbanes made the offer and the Administration representatives agreed to it.

When the party paying the lion's share of the bills is not represented at the negotiating table, you will get bizarre results, and the taxpayer picks up the tab. The insurance companies don't. The taxpayer does. That assertion is hardly effectively rebutted by referring to the payback provisions, since the taxpayers (as policy holders) are on the hook for that tab as well under the offer. The requirement for Treasury approval must be in the final bill. It was part of the November 1 package as referenced in the Administration letter of June 10.

And it must be remembered, when discussing practicalities, that very few if any of these sorts of cases go to judgment. They are almost always are settled.
Yet, without this protection, the parties at the settlement table will consist of one side who wants the maximum amount possible, and the other side with a mere 10% stake in the game (once the per company retentions are met). The folks who pay 90% are not represented, have no say. The other parties are likely to settle very quickly, and at the high end of what is being demanded by the trial attorneys.

Without these protections, we are creating a significant line to the Treasury for predatory lawsuits. We will encourage the suits, with a big payoff dangling before them, and each big payoff being used to justify the next, even bigger one. Hopefully, this program will never have to be tapped. But even in that fortunate scenario, it will become the minimum template for future federal backstop programs.

For these reasons, Senator Gramm must insist that subjecting out of court settlements to Treasury concurrence must remain an essential part of the final legislation, as in the November 1 bipartisan-Administration package and referrenced in the Administration letter of June 10.

American Flag Pride Act (Introduced in House)
HR 5640 IH
107th CONGRESS
2d Session
H. R. 5640
To amend title 5, United States Code, to ensure that the right of Federal employees to display the flag of the United States not be abridged.
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
OCTOBER 10, 2002
Mr. WELDON of Florida (for himself and Mr. HALL of Texas) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Government Reform

A BILL
To amend title 5, United States Code, to ensure that the right of Federal employees to display the flag of the United States not be abridged.
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the `American Flag Pride Act'.
SEC. 2. EMPLOYEES' RIGHT TO DISPLAY THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES.
(a) IN GENERAL- Chapter 72 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:
`SUBCHAPTER III--EMPLOYEES' RIGHT TO DISPLAY THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES
`Sec. 7221. Definitions
`For purposes of this subchapter--
`(1) the term `flag' has the same meaning as is given the term `flag, standard, colors, or ensign' under section 3 of title 4; and `(2) the term `Federal employee' includes a person under a personal services contract with the United States (including an individual employed by such a person).

`Sec. 7222. Employees' right to display the flag of the United States
`No agency, officer, or other authority of the Government of the United States shall adopt or enforce any policy, or enter into any agreement, that would restrict or prevent a Federal employee from displaying the flag of the United States, or a pin of that flag, on his or her person, in his or her workplace, or on a Government vehicle operated by such employee.
`Sec. 7223. Limitations
`Nothing in this subchapter shall be considered to permit any display or use which would be inconsistent with--
`(1) any provision of chapter 1 of title 4 or any rule or custom pertaining to the proper display or use of the flag (as established in or under such chapter or otherwise applicable provisions of law); or `(2) any reasonable restriction pertaining to the time, place, or manner of displaying the flag of the United States which is necessary-- `(A) for reasons of workplace safety; or `(B) to prevent damage to public property.'.
(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT- The analysis for chapter 72 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:
`SUBCHAPTER III--EMPLOYEES' RIGHT TO DISPLAY THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES
`7221. Definitions.
`7222. Employees' right to display the flag of the United States.
`7223. Limitations.'.

exemplary damages may be awarded only if the claimant proves by clear and convincing evidence that the harm with respect to which the claimant seeks recovery of exemplary damages results from:
(1) fraud;
(2) malice; or
(3) wilful act or omission or gross neglect in wrongful death actions brought by or on behalf of a surviving spouse or heirs of the decedent's body, under a statute enacted pursuant to Section 26, Article XVI, Texas Constitution. In such cases, the definition of "gross neglect" in the instruction submitted to the jury shall be the definition stated in Section 41.001(7)(B).
(b) The claimant must prove by clear and convincing evidence the elements of exemplary damages as provided by this section. This burden of proof may not be shifted to the defendant or satisfied by evidence of ordinary negligence, bad faith, or a deceptive trade practice.
(c) If the claimant relies on a statute establishing a cause of action and authorizing exemplary damages in specified circumstances or in conjunction with a specified culpable mental state, exemplary damages may be awarded only if the claimant proves by clear and convincing evidence that the damages result from the specified circumstances or culpable mental state.

The following terms are defined under 41.001:
(2) "Clear and convincing" means the measure or degree of proof that will produce in the mind of the trier of fact a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the allegations sought to be established.

(6) "Fraud" means fraud other than constructive fraud.

(7) "Malice" means:
(A) a specific intent by the defendant to cause substantial injury to the claimant; or
(B) an act or omission:
(i) which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
(ii) of which the actor has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

[This is a little confusing to me b/c "gross neglect" isn't defined]

Good luck with the terrorism insurance legislation. I'll drop you a line next time I'm going to be in D.C.

Best,

President's Remarks on Judges 10/17/02 in Georgia

I'm for Saxby because he will help me make sure that the judges I nominate get a fair hearing and get confirmed. (Applause.) My job is to -- my job is to put good, honorable, hardworking, intelligent, capable people on the federal bench; people who will not use the bench to serve as a legislator, but people who will sit on the bench to strictly interpret the United States Constitution.

And the record of this Senate is a lousy record. (Applause.) If you look -- if you look at the record, the percentage of my nominees who have been approved and look at the reason why they haven't, you'll find that they're playing too much politics in Washington, D.C. (Applause.) They're slow playing the process. And when some of my really good nominees got a hearing, they distorted their records. They listened to the small groups of special interests in Washington, D.C. For the sake of a good, sound federal judiciary, I need a United States senator who will stand strong for my nominees, and that is Saxby Chambliss. (Applause.)

Justice Kennedy has appreciated the support we have given his program to date and was thrilled with the Presidential acknowledgment in the Rose Garden.

He called last week to report on the program's progress. I think we could help increase the number of people involved in, and reached by, the program. How about a meeting among us sometime over the next few weeks to discuss ways in which we might play an appropriate and constructive role, working with the ABA? It would be ideal to announce something specific at the President's Forum on American History, Civics and Service in February.

I know this was not your preferred position - but below is exactly what I was afraid of. It will undermine all future talks.
Lawmakers, White House Agree On Terrorism Insurance
After innumerable false starts and a year's worth of dickering, negotiators on terrorism reinsurance reached a final legislative agreement today that has been given the green light by leading House and Senate conferees and the White House. Sources said that drafting had begun and that the negotiators would scramble to coll ect enough signatures on the conference report in time to have the measure approved by unanimous consent in the Senate today. Leadership sources confirmed that the deal was brokered after a marathon bargaining session that stretched from Wednesday night to early this afternoon. Sources said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., House Financial Services Chairman Oxley, their aides, and White House negotiators hammered out the final deal. Dodd worked into the early morning hours alongside his staff, and Oxley was i n attendance for a portion of the evening, sources said.. The negotiators were expected to issue an official announcement about the terms of the deal after presstime today.
The House and Senate negotiators and White House officials agreed late Wednesday night that they would get rid of their dispute over what evidentiary standard to apply to the awarding of punitive damages against property owners implicated in terror-related lawsuits by simply eliminating any reference to punitive damages in the con ference report, sources said today. That agreement was reached several hours after the House left town for the November election. The Senate bill was silent on punitive damages associated with terror-related lawsuits brought against businesses. The House bill contained a raft of changes, including the barring of any collective punitive damages. Congressional sources said negotiators in the room Wednesday night agreed to retain only the language common to both the House and Senate bills consolidating terror-related cases in federal court. The economic side of the bill is expected to be a melding of the House and Senate versions and White House perspectives.

Not sure the DoJ Reauth bill is "bill signing ceremony material". Will called me on this as well. Keep in mind that we'd have to invite Leahy to that event if we were to do it (it was his bill).

The Pledge bill is a Tim Hutchinson bill, and would make for a great signing ceremony here or on the road. SC, AR, GA are all good locations to highlight the reasons why the Pledge bill was needed (left-wing activist judges) and the fact that the President is committed to making sure common sense judges are put on the bench... obviously, then highlighting the fact that the Dem controlled Senate has impeded his efforts.

I sent an email to Nick earlier today suggesting signing ceremony for the Pledge bill.

Will Maschella of Sensenbrenner's staff just called me with suggestion for signing ceremonies for pledge of allegiance bill and DOJ reauthorization (which has new dct judgeships in it).

On the judgeships, the President likely would mention these new judgeships as part of the larger judges event now tentatively slated (which may not occur, however, until after election). On the Pledge resolution, not sure what we are doing, but I raise it for you all. In any event, on both, we should obviously include and praise Sensenbrenner.

Dear FIRST NAME,

In just a few weeks, Americans will go to the polls in a critical election. I need your help. The Republican Party needs your help. Our Republican candidates do, too.

I'm asking you to do two things: support the Republican National Committee with your contribution today and make certain you and every family member and friend who supports what I am doing as President get to the polls.

Your donation at www.GOP.com/ElectRepublicans/ to the Republican National Committee and your help in getting out the vote will make a big difference to my agenda to make America safer, stronger, and better.

We have made great progress, starting with the largest tax cut in decades. What Washington spends is not the government's money, it's the people's money. Tax relief was the right policy at just the right time to help our economy. I look forward to working with Congress to make tax relief permanent, starting with killing the death tax once and for all.

We worked with Republicans and Democrats on education reform - to make certain every child learns to read. We're insisting on high standards, local control of schools and strong accountability so every child succeeds and no child is left behind.

Republicans are helping end dependency on government by fighting to extend the reforms that require those on welfare to work for their checks and limit how long the able-bodied can get welfare. And we want to broaden welfare reform by making it easier for faith-based groups to be involved in the tackling of hopelessness and despair.

From important health care reforms that put the patient in charge, to a national energy plan to create jobs and reduce our dependence on foreign oil, to trade policy to create jobs, to common sense measures to make our forests healthier and our environment cleaner, Republicans are showing the American people that our compassionate conservative philosophy improves people's lives.

And while I appreciate the support of many Democrats on the war against terrorism and homeland security, my requests for more defense spending and a stronger homeland defense department with management authority to get the job done would have a better reception in a Congress with a Republican Majority in both the House and Senate.

We've accomplished a lot and it is significant that all of our major legislative accomplishments -- from tax relief, to education reforms, to trade promotion authority, to a crackdown on corporate wrongdoing -- started in the House of Representatives, whose leaders share my philosophy and approach to governing. I believe we can accomplish a great deal for the American people during the next several years if the leaders of the House and Senate are Republicans who are committed to working with me to make America safer, stronger and better.

So please, help me today by sending the Republican National Committee as much as you can afford -- $35, $50, $100, $250, $500, $1000 or even more today at www.GOP.com/ElectRepublicans/ .

All you give will go for the Republican Party's election activities, helping candidates who back me and my agenda. They are counting on your help and so am I.

And, please, also make certain everyone you know who supports my compassionate conservative agenda and approves of my leadership is registered and votes.

The other party -- along with some of their liberal interest group allies - will do all they can to get out their vote. They know the stakes, and I'm counting on you to outwork them.

Thank you for your support of our candidates, our philosophy and me.

Sincerely,

George W. Bush

P.S. The U.S. House and Senate are both up for grabs. A record number of Governors' races are in play, as well as offices up and down the ballot. This election matters a lot.

The Republican Party needs your help today to win. I'm counting on your support to help bring home victory. Please respond today at www.GOP.com/ElectRepublicans/ and thanks.

Dear Mr. President,
I am proud to stand with you! I understand how important it is to elect more Republicans to Congress and at the state level on November 5. To help the RNC lead the charge for Republican victories up and down the ticket, I am making my donation of $35, $50, $100, $250, $500, $1000 or even more today.

Again, new events are coming on board. Some designed only for Appointees (Oct 29, 30 and Nov. 14) and we hope you help us get this word out to others in your offices. These sessions are designed to be topical, timely and helpful to you and your colleagues, while providing a forum where you can interact with fellow appointees. Some will be policy-oriented and others, process-oriented. Stay tuned for more. Thanks, Ginni

P.S. How is it that 45,000 union members are preventing 270 million Americans from having improved homeland security?

The Heritage Foundation

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO A LUNCHEON BRIEFING FOR ADMINISTRATION APPOINTEES ON:

"AMERICA'S FAILED MULTI-TRILLION WAR ON POVERTY

An Overview of all Welfare Programs and Current Issues"

Featuring

HON. WADE HORN
Assistant Secretary for Children and Families,
U.S. Department of Health & Human Services

ROBERT RECTOR Visiting Fellow,
The Heritage Foundation

This briefing is designed to provide an overview of America's 70 means-tested and overlapping welfare programs. On average, the cost of welfare amounts to roughly $5,600 in taxes from each tax-paying household. Costs have only escalated. Today, in spite of the 1996 welfare reform law, we spend twice as much on welfare as we did when Ronald Reagan was President.

Hon. Wade Horn was named the Assistant Secretary for Children and Families, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, on July 30, 2001. Prior to this appointment, Dr. Horn was President of the National Fatherhood Initiative and had served as a Presidential appointee in various capacities from 1989-1993. He was a member of the National Commission on Childhood Disability from 1994-1995, and the U.S. Advisory Board on Welfare Indicators from 1996-1997. Dr. Horn is the author of numerous books and articles on children and family.

Robert Rector is a Senior Research Fellow with The Heritage Foundation. He is a leading authority on poverty and the U.S. welfare system. He focuses on a range of issues relating to welfare reform, family breakdown, and America's various social ills. He played a major role in crafting the federal welfare reform legislation passed in 1996, and he has conducted extensive research on the economic costs of welfare and its role in undermining families.

Thursday, November 14, 2002
12:00 – 1:30 p.m.
THE HERITAGE FOUNDATION, Van Andel (1st floor)
214 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, NE

Please, RSVP by writing to mira.zawadzski@heritage.org or by calling (202) 608-6175 before November 8th.

This event continues the Heritage-sponsored series of policy and process-oriented briefings for political appointees. These sessions are designed to be topical, timely and helpful to you and your colleagues, while providing a forum where you can interact with fellow appointees.

Future of a Homeland Security Department: Challenges and Consequences

Tuesday, October 29, 2002

8:30 - 10:00 a.m.

[Breakfast available at 8:00]

At

The Heritage Foundation's Van Andel Center (1st floor)

FEATURING

- Peter Brookes, Senior Research Fellow for Homeland Defense and National Security
- George Nesterczuk, President of Nesterczuk and Associates
- Mike Scardaville, Homeland Security Analyst

Hosted by

Ginni Thomas, Director, Director, Executive Branch Relations, The Heritage Foundation

& Gina Marie Hatheway, Deputy Director of Government Relations for Foreign Policy and Defense

With a potential war in Iraq looming, and the economy and corporate scandals crowding the political agenda this fall, the fate of the homeland security department regrettably may not be determined until next year. To date, the U.S. Senate has failed to act on this important and timely legislation. Yet much remains to be done to ensure our country is prepared for future terrorist attacks. What issues has the U.S. Senate failed to address in its debate on this front and how will that affect the long-term prospects for the proposed department of homeland security? What should existing federal, state and local agencies be doing in the time being to promote better domestic security? Join other political appointees from the Bush Administration for this breakfast briefing on the current state of homeland security initiatives by leading experts here at The Heritage Foundation. Continental breakfast will be served at 8:00 a.m.

Please RSVP by Friday, October 25

Policymaker's Guide to Trade Agreements with Chile and Singapore

Featuring:

Sara Fitzgerald
Policy Analyst, Center for International Trade and Economics, The Heritage Foundation

Brink Lindsey
Director of the Center for Trade Policy Studies, The CATO Institute

Josette Shiner (invited)
Associate U.S. Trade Representative for Policy and Communications

Hosted by:

Director, Center for International Trade and Economics, The Heritage Foundation

The USTR is moving forward to conclude bilateral free trade agreements with Chile and Singapore. These agreements will demonstrate America's commitment to free trade in Asia and Latin America. Additionally, such agreements will rejuvenate U.S. credibility in the global market. Decisions on steel and farm subsidies have crippled American credibility. With only three out of the 190 trade agreements in the world, it is crucial for the United States to sign more free trade agreements to push market liberalization forward and to expand access for U.S. producers. Please join us as we discuss the negotiations with Singapore and Chile.

President's Remarks on Judges in Pennsylvania 10/22/02

Before I do, I want to recognize a fine United States Senator, and that is Arlen Specter. I'm proud that Arlen is here with us today. (Applause.) And I'm sorry that old Rick Santorum isn't going to be here, but he's a good fellow. (Applause.) He's a good fellow, too. I appreciate these two Senators a lot.

I'll tell you one reason I appreciate them. Because they understand what it takes to have a good federal judiciary. (Applause.) I've appointed good people to the bench; good, solid citizens who are not only fine lawyers -- (applause) -- but people who understand their job is not to serve as a legislator, but as a judge. We've got plenty of legislators. (Applause.) What we need are good, solid, sound judges. And the record of the United States Senate is abysmal when it comes to confirming my judges; it is a lousy record.

If we had more senators like Specter and Santorum, we would get the judges through. We would have a record for which the Senate could be proud. We need to change the Senate for a lot of reasons, and one of them is to make sure we've got a good, sound federal judiciary. (Applause.)

Fellow colleagues and friends,

Friday afternoon I will be leaving the gates of the White House for the last time as a member of the staff. I am moving back to Houston where, starting in January, I will be attending South Texas College of Law.

This marks the end of an incredible journey that began in 1998 with an internship on Governor Bush,s re-election campaign. I am lucky and grateful to have known each of you and to have shared the events of the past four years with such a great group of people - I will miss you all. Finally, thank you for your friendship and the special memories that I will take back to Texas.

Let me know if you are ever in Houston, and please stay in touch.

All the best,

Brent

Fellow colleagues and friends,

Friday afternoon I will be leaving the gates of the White House for the last time as a member of the staff. I am moving back to Houston where, starting in January, I will be attending South Texas College of Law.

This marks the end of an incredible journey that began in 1998 with an internship on Governor Bush,s re-election campaign. I am lucky and grateful to have known each of you and to have shared the events of the past four years with such a great group of people - I will miss you all. Finally, thank you for your friendship and the special memories that I will take back to Texas.

Let me know if you are ever in Houston, and please stay in touch.

All the best,

Brent

Fellow colleagues and friends,

Friday afternoon I will be leaving the gates of the White House for the last time as a member of the staff. I am moving back to Houston where, starting in January, I will be attending South Texas College of Law.

This marks the end of an incredible journey that began in 1998 with an internship on Governor Bush,s re-election campaign. I am lucky and grateful to have known each of you and to have shared the events of the past four years with such a great group of people - I will miss you all. Finally, thank you for your friendship and the special memories that I will take back to Texas.

Let me know if you are ever in Houston, and please stay in touch.

All the best,

Brent

Although I did not personally make it up to Huntsville, my team that did said the NASA event went very well -- O'Keefe was great. News coverage was excellent, including two local network affiliates and the Birmingham and Huntsville papers. Below are the two Huntsville Times stories - one the day of the event and the second the day after (the Hsv Times is an afternoon paper).

Toby,

All of us are curious how the event with the NASA folks went. I know you're slammed with the trip but we would appreciate a rundown if you could.

Thanks,
Tony

Subject: Wealthy Personal Injury Lawyer Lobby Should Not Blunt Economic Recovery

Dear Editor:

One can appreciate the feelings behind your editorial of October 24, 1992, "A Bad Terrorism-Insurance Bill," but it may have inadvertently overlooked the benefits of the bill and the full power of the wealthy personal injury lawyer lobby.

The bill will help the economy. It will create jobs. Right now, a great deal of projects are on hold, because in the absence of terrorism insurance, their lenders cannot confidently loan money to business and property owners. This bill would change that status, and workers could then get good paying jobs in construction.

As much as anyone who has followed this legislation, I wanted reasonable limits on punitive damages. It is ridiculous to permit wealthy personal injury lawyers to obtain punitive damages for acts of terrorism from anyone other than the terrorists, or those who aid them or commit a crime connected with an act of horror. Under the Democratic-controlled Senate, wealthy personal injury lawyers would not budge on the issue of limited punitive damages. Both the personal injury lawyers and the Democratic leadership were willing to sacrifice the bill and jobs over this issue.

While some Democrats, such as Senator Chris Dodd, supported sound reform, the punitive damage proposals put forth by the Democratic leadership would have made a bad situation worse. What few people know is that some of those proposals which set forth a standard for when punitive damages could be awarded would also have created a right to bring punitive damages in a number of states that presently do not have them.

It was clear that only one civil justice reform could have been obtained in this bill. In light of this "devil's choice" created by the Democratic leadership in the Senate and their wealthy personal injury friends, the White House made the right choice; it was either a weak punitive damage standard or having all cases consolidated before a single federal judge in a single federal court. The second option was better. This is why.

The single federal court provision avoids one of the most serious problems in our civil justice system today: forum shopping by wealthy personal injury lawyers to bring their cases in what we term "judicial hellholes." These are courts in certain jurisdictions in the United States which simply ignore rules of law. Even if there had been clear standards on punitive damages in the bill, these courts would have been paid them little more than lip service. Now, these courts cannot be reached.

Unless there is a change in the Senate leadership, this Administration will continue to be faced with Hobson's Choices, as was the case in this legislation. The Administration chose jobs this time. The choice made will also confine wealthy personal injury lawyers to the federal courts, which should exercise fairness if another act of terrorism is perpetrated against our country.

Sincerely, Victor Schwartz

Victor Schwartz is a partner in the Washington office of the Kansas City-based law firm of Shook, Hardy & Bacon LLP, and chairs its Public Policy Group. The focus of the group is to integrate litigation, government affairs and public relations. Mr. Schwartz has an active appellate practice, and advises product manufacturers on liability issues.

Mr. Schwartz served as a professor and dean at the University of Cincinnati College of Law prior to entering the full time practice of law. He currently sits on the College's Board of Visitors.

As Chairman of the Federal Inter-Agency Task Force on Product Liability, he received the Department of Commerce Secretary's Award for Professional Excellence for his government service. He helped draft the Uniform Product Liability Act and the Risk Retention Act.

For over two decades, Mr. Schwartz has been co-author of the most widely used torts casebook in the United States, Prosser, Wade and Schwartz's Torts (10th ed. 2000). He also is author of the leading text, Comparative Negligence, and co-authored Guide to Multistate Litigation.

Mr. Schwartz is a member of the American Law Institute (ALI) and served on the Advisory Committee to the Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability, and Apportionment of Liability Projects. He currently serves on the Advisory Committee to the Restatement (Third) of Torts: General Principles. He was inducted as a Life Member of the ALI in 1997.

He serves as General Counsel to the American Tort Reform Association. He co-chairs the Civil Justice Reform Committee of the American Legislative Exchange Council and chairs the American Bar Association's Legislative Subcommittee of the Product Liability Committee.

Sought by print and broadcast media, Mr. Schwartz is frequently quoted in The Wall Street Journal, Washington Post and The New York Times and has appeared on Oprah, 60 Minutes, and network news programs. He and his colleagues, Mark Behrens and Leah Lorber, were the recipients of the 2001 Phillip Burton Award for Outstanding Legal Scholarship for a law review article in the Harvard Journal on Legislation entitled, "Federal Forums Should Decide Multistate Class Actions: A Call For Federal Class Action Diversity Jurisdiction Reform."

In light of his accomplishments, the National Law Journal has twice named Mr. Schwartz one of the 100 most influential attorneys in the United States, and the Washingtonian magazine has twice named him one of the top 50 lobbyists in the Nation's capital.

Mr. Schwartz obtained his A.B. summa magna laude from Boston University and J.D. magna cum laude from Columbia Law School. He is a member of the bars of the States of New York, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

Where do I park?

At Livingston Road, look for purple and orange balloons and follow the parking signs. P.R. Harris Elementary School will be on your right, and the site is just before the school. Signs and AmeriCorps members will direct you where to park.

What if I want to take public transportation?

The Anacostia metro stop is the closest, but it requires a bus transfer to get to the playground build site. I would recommend carpooling with a colleague and avoiding this option. If you need a ride, I?ll provide you a list of other attendees so that you can arrange it.

Will we really finish in a day?

Yes! The folks at KaBOOM! are experts in building from the ground up in one day, and they plan to keep us very busy.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for joining your colleagues to answer the President?s Call to Service and build a playground this Saturday at the Make A Difference playground build.

The following should answer most of your questions about the project. If you have other questions, I can be reached by e-mail or at 6-7350. On Saturday, I will have my cell phone with me PRA 6

We look forward to seeing you on Saturday at 8:00 a.m.

Who?s coming?

More than 150 of your colleagues, their friends and family members have signed up to build and we will also have volunteers from the Points of Light Foundation, USA WEEKEND Magazine, the Peace Corps and Corporation for National and Community Service.

Miss America 2003, Erika Harold, Commerce Secretary Don Evans and Washington, DC Mayor Anthony Williams will help us kick the build off at 8:30.

What if it rains?

We will build rain or shine, and the good news is that the forecast shows only some morning showers on Saturday. That forecast may improve tomorrow, but please bring rain gear or other appropriate clothes.

What should I wear to build?

Think about dressing in layers so you can shed or add clothing as weather demands. Work boots are not necessary, although you should wear sturdy shoes that you don?t mind getting dirty. And no sandals!

Will there be food?

Coffee and morning snacks will be provided. Lunch will be pizza. At the end of the day when we cut the ribbon on the new playground, we?ll be treated to brownies and ice cream.

What is the agenda?

8:00 a.m. ? 8:30 a.m. Registration

8:30 a.m. ? 9:00 a.m. Kick off ceremony and building instructions, begin promptly

9:00 a.m. Build, Build, Build

Noon ? 1:00 p.m. Lunch in shifts

3:00 p.m. Ribbon Cutting

How do I get there?

These are directions from Northern Virginia. Yahoo! Maps or another service can give you door to door directions, but regardless of where you live you will need to make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to get to 295-South. The address for the site if you use an Internet map service for driving directions is 4415 Livingston Road, SE, Washington, DC.

From Northern Virginia:

1: I-395 North.

(From other points make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to 295-South)

2: I-395 North becomes the Southeast/Southwest Freeway

3: Take the I-295 exit on the left towards ANACOSTIA.

4: Merge onto I-295 South.

5: Take the SOUTH CAPITOL ST. EXIT- exit number 2- towards PORTLAND

St./BOLLING AFB.

7: At the top of the hill turn RIGHT onto S. CAPITOL St.

8: Turn LEFT onto ATLANTIC St., SE.

9. Turn Right on LIVINGSTON RD., SE

Where do I park?

At Livingston Road, look for purple and orange balloons and follow the parking signs. P.R. Harris Elementary School will be on your right, and the site is just before the school. Signs and AmeriCorps members will direct you where to park.

What if I want to take public transportation?

The Anacostia metro stop is the closest, but it requires a bus transfer to get to the playground build site. I would recommend carpooling with a colleague and avoiding this option. If you need a ride, I?ll provide you a list of other attendees so that you can arrange it.

Will we really finish in a day?

Yes! The folks at KaBOOM! are experts in building from the ground up in one day, and they plan to keep us very busy.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for joining your colleagues to answer the President?s Call to Service and build a playground this Saturday at the Make A Difference playground build.

The following should answer most of your questions about the project. If you have other questions, I can be reached by e-mail or at 6-7350. On Saturday, I will have my cell phone with me PRA 6 .

We look forward to seeing you on Saturday at 8:00 a.m.

Who?s coming?

More than 150 of your colleagues, their friends and family members have signed up to build and we will also have volunteers from the Points of Light Foundation, USA WEEKEND Magazine, the Peace Corps and Corporation for National and Community Service.

Miss America 2003, Erika Harold, Commerce Secretary Don Evans and Washington, DC Mayor Anthony Williams will help us kick the build off at 8:30.

What if it rains?

We will build rain or shine, and the good news is that the forecast shows only some morning showers on Saturday. That forecast may improve tomorrow, but please bring rain gear or other appropriate clothes.

What should I wear to build?

Think about dressing in layers so you can shed or add clothing as weather demands. Work boots are not necessary, although you should wear sturdy shoes that you don?t mind getting dirty. And no sandals!

Will there be food?

Coffee and morning snacks will be provided. Lunch will be pizza. At the end of the day when we cut the ribbon on the new playground, we?ll be treated to brownies and ice cream.

What is the agenda?

8:00 a.m. ? 8:30 a.m. Registration

8:30 a.m. ? 9:00 a.m. Kick off ceremony and building instructions, begin promptly

9:00 a.m. Build, Build, Build

Noon ? 1:00 p.m. Lunch in shifts

3:00 p.m. Ribbon Cutting

How do I get there?

These are directions from Northern Virginia. Yahoo! Maps or another service can give you door to door directions, but regardless of where you live you will need to make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to get to 295-South. The address for the site if you use an Internet map service for driving directions is 4415 Livingston Road, SE, Washington, DC.

From Northern Virginia:

1: I-395 North.

(From other points make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to 295-South)

2: I-395 North becomes the Southeast/Southwest Freeway

3: Take the I-295 exit on the left towards ANACOSTIA.

4: Merge onto I-295 South.

5: Take the SOUTH CAPITOL ST. EXIT- exit number 2- towards PORTLAND

St./BOLLING AFB.

Subject: Where to go on Saturday

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for joining your colleagues to answer the President's Call to Service and build a playground this Saturday at the Make A Difference playground build.

The following should answer most of your questions about the project. If you have other questions, I can be reached by e-mail or at 6-7350. On Saturday, I will have my cell phone with me (202-329-6729).

We look forward to seeing you on Saturday at 8:00 a.m.

Who's coming?

More than 150 of your colleagues, their friends and family members have signed up to build and we will also have volunteers from the Points of Light Foundation, USA WEEKEND Magazine, the Peace Corps and Corporation for National and Community Service.

Miss America 2003, Erika Harold, Commerce Secretary Don Evans and Washington, DC Mayor Anthony Williams will help us kick the build off at 8:30.

What if it rains?

We will build rain or shine, and the good news is that the forecast shows only some morning showers on Saturday. That forecast may improve tomorrow, but please bring rain gear or other appropriate clothes.

What should I wear to build?

Think about dressing in layers so you can shed or add clothing as weather demands. Work boots are not necessary, although you should wear sturdy shoes that you don't mind getting dirty. And no sandals!

Will there be food?

Coffee and morning snacks will be provided. Lunch will be pizza. At the end of the day when we cut the ribbon on the new playground, we'll be treated to brownies and ice cream.

What is the agenda?

8:00 a.m. – 8:30 a.m.	Registration
8:30 a.m. – 9:00 a.m.	Kick off ceremony and building instructions, begin promptly
9:00 a.m.	Build, Build, Build
Noon – 1:00 p.m.	Lunch in shifts
3:00 p.m.	Ribbon Cutting

How do I get there?

These are directions from Northern Virginia. Yahoo! Maps or another service can give you door to door directions, but regardless of where you live you will need to make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to get to 295-South. The address for the site if you use an Internet map service for driving directions is 4415 Livingston Road, SE, Washington, DC.

From Northern Virginia:

1: I-395 North.

(From other points make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to 295-South)

2: I-395 North becomes the Southeast/Southwest Freeway

3: Take the I-295 exit on the left towards ANACOSTIA.

4: Merge onto I-295 South.

5: Take the SOUTH CAPITOL ST. EXIT- exit number 2- towards PORTLAND St./BOLLING AFB.

8: Turn LEFT onto ATLANTIC St., SE.

9. Turn Right on LIVINGSTON RD., SE

Where do I park?

At Livingston Road, look for purple and orange balloons and follow the parking signs. P.R. Harris Elementary School will be on your right, and the site is just before the school. Signs and AmeriCorps members will direct you where to park.

What if I want to take public transportation?

The Anacostia metro stop is the closest, but it requires a bus transfer to get to the playground build site. I would recommend carpooling with a colleague and avoiding this option. If you need a ride, I'll provide you a list of other attendees so that you can arrange it.

Will we really finish in a day?

Yes! The folks at KaBOOM! are experts in building from the ground up in one day, and they plan to keep us very busy.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for joining your colleagues to answer the President,s Call to Service and build a playground this Saturday at the Make A Difference playground build.

The following should answer most of your questions about the project. If you have other questions, I can be reached by e-mail or at 6-7350. On Saturday, I will have my cell phone with me PRA 6

We look forward to seeing you on Saturday at 8:00 a.m.

Who,s coming?
More than 150 of your colleagues, their friends and family members have signed up to build and we will also have volunteers from the Points of Light Foundation, USA WEEKEND Magazine, the Peace Corps and Corporation for National and Community Service.

Miss America 2003, Erika Harold, Commerce Secretary Don Evans and Washington, DC Mayor Anthony Williams will help us kick the build off at 8:30.

What if it rains?
We will build rain or shine, and the good news is that the forecast shows only some morning showers on Saturday. That forecast may improve tomorrow, but please bring rain gear or other appropriate clothes.

What should I wear to build?
Think about dressing in layers so you can shed or add clothing as weather demands. Work boots are not necessary, although you should wear sturdy shoes that you don,t mind getting dirty. And no sandals!

Will there be food?
Coffee and morning snacks will be provided. Lunch will be pizza. At the end of the day when we cut the ribbon on the new playground, we,ll be treated to brownies and ice cream.

What is the agenda?

8:00 a.m.) 8:30 a.m. Registration

8:30 a.m.) 9:00 a.m. Kick off ceremony and building instructions, begin promptly

9:00 a.m. Build, Build, Build

Noon) 1:00 p.m. Lunch in shifts

3:00 p.m. Ribbon Cutting

How do I get there?
These are directions from Northern Virginia. Yahoo! Maps or another service can give you door to door directions, but regardless of where you live you will need to make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to get to 295-South. The address for the site if you use an Internet map service for driving directions is 4415 Livingston Road, SE, Washington, DC.

From Northern Virginia:

1: I-395 North.
(From other points make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to 295-South)

2: I-395 North becomes the Southeast/Southwest Freeway

3: Take the I-295 exit on the left towards ANACOSTIA.

4: Merge onto I-295 South.

5: Take the SOUTH CAPITOL ST. EXIT- exit number 2- towards PORTLAND St./BOLLING AFB.

8: Turn LEFT onto ATLANTIC St., SE.

9. Turn Right on LIVINGSTON RD., SE

Where do I park?
At Livingston Road, look for purple and orange balloons and follow the parking signs. P.R. Harris Elementary School will be on your right, and the site is just before the school. Signs and AmeriCorps members will direct you where to park.

What if I want to take public transportation?
The Anacostia metro stop is the closest, but it requires a bus transfer to get to the playground build site. I would recommend carpooling with a colleague and avoiding this option. If you need a ride, I,ll provide you a list of other attendees so that you can arrange it.

Will we really finish in a day?
Yes! The folks at KaBOOM! are experts in building from the ground up in one day, and they plan to keep us very busy.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for joining your colleagues to answer the President,s Call to Service and build a playground this Saturday at the Make A Difference playground build.

The following should answer most of your questions about the project. If you have other questions, I can be reached by e-mail or at 6-7350. On Saturday, I will have my cell phone with me PRA 6 .

We look forward to seeing you on Saturday at 8:00 a.m.

Who,s coming?
More than 150 of your colleagues, their friends and family members have signed up to build and we will also have volunteers from the Points of Light Foundation, USA WEEKEND Magazine, the Peace Corps and Corporation for National and Community Service.

Miss America 2003, Erika Harold, Commerce Secretary Don Evans and Washington, DC Mayor Anthony Williams will help us kick the build off at 8:30.

What if it rains?
We will build rain or shine, and the good news is that the forecast shows only some morning showers on Saturday. That forecast may improve tomorrow, but please bring rain gear or other appropriate clothes.

What should I wear to build?
Think about dressing in layers so you can shed or add clothing as weather demands. Work boots are not necessary, although you should wear sturdy shoes that you don,t mind getting dirty. And no sandals!

Will there be food?
Coffee and morning snacks will be provided. Lunch will be pizza. At the end of the day when we cut the ribbon on the new playground, we,ll be treated to brownies and ice cream.

What is the agenda?

8:00 a.m.) 8:30 a.m. Registration

8:30 a.m.) 9:00 a.m. Kick off ceremony and building instructions, begin promptly

9:00 a.m. Build, Build, Build

Noon) 1:00 p.m. Lunch in shifts

3:00 p.m. Ribbon Cutting

How do I get there?
These are directions from Northern Virginia. Yahoo! Maps or another service can give you door to door directions, but regardless of where you live you will need to make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to get to 295-South. The address for the site if you use an Internet map service for driving directions is 4415 Livingston Road, SE, Washington, DC.

From Northern Virginia:

1: I-395 North.
(From other points make your way to the SE/SW Freeway to 295-South)

2: I-395 North becomes the Southeast/Southwest Freeway

3: Take the I-295 exit on the left towards ANACOSTIA.

4: Merge onto I-295 South.

5: Take the SOUTH CAPITOL ST. EXIT- exit number 2- towards PORTLAND St./BOLLING AFB.

8: Turn LEFT onto ATLANTIC St., SE.

9. Turn Right on LIVINGSTON RD., SE

Where do I park?
At Livingston Road, look for purple and orange balloons and follow the parking signs. P.R. Harris Elementary School will be on your right, and the site is just before the school. Signs and AmeriCorps members will direct you where to park.

What if I want to take public transportation?
The Anacostia metro stop is the closest, but it requires a bus transfer to get to the playground build site. I would recommend carpooling with a colleague and avoiding this option. If you need a ride, I,ll provide you a list of other attendees so that you can arrange it.

Will we really finish in a day?
Yes! The folks at KaBOOM! are experts in building from the ground up in one day, and they plan to keep us very busy.

The way "the choice" was phrased was not precisely accurate, but this gets the job done, I believe.

Subject: Wealthy Personal Injury Lawyer Lobby Should Not Blunt Economic Recovery

Dear Editor:

One can appreciate the feelings behind your editorial of October 24, 1992, "A Bad Terrorism-Insurance Bill," but it may have inadvertently overlooked the benefits of the bill and the full power of the wealthy personal injury lawyer lobby.

The bill will help the economy. It will create jobs. Right now, a great deal of projects are on hold, because in the absence of terrorism insurance, their lenders cannot confidently loan money to business and property owners. This bill would change that status, and workers could then get good paying jobs in construction.

As much as anyone who has followed this legislation, I wanted reasonable limits on punitive damages. It is ridiculous to permit wealthy personal injury lawyers to obtain punitive damages for acts of terrorism from anyone other than the terrorists, or those who aid them or commit a crime connected with an act of horror. Under the Democratic-controlled Senate, wealthy personal injury lawyers would not budge on the issue of limited punitive damages. Both the personal injury lawyers and the Democratic leadership were willing to sacrifice the bill and jobs over this issue.

While some Democrats, such as Senator Chris Dodd, supported sound reform, the punitive damage proposals put forth by the Democratic leadership would have made a bad situation worse. What few people know is that some of those proposals which set forth a standard for when punitive damages could be awarded would also have created a right to bring punitive damages in a number of states that presently do not have them.

It was clear that only one civil justice reform could have been obtained in this bill. In light of this "devil's choice" created by the Democratic leadership in the Senate and their wealthy personal injury friends, the White House made the right choice; it was either a weak punitive damage standard or having all cases consolidated before a single federal judge in a single federal court. The second option was better. This is why.

The single federal court provision avoids one of the most serious problems in our civil justice system today: forum shopping by wealthy personal injury lawyers to bring their cases in what we term "judicial hellholes." These are courts in certain jurisdictions in the United States which simply ignore rules of law. Even if there had been clear standards on punitive damages in the bill, these courts would have been paid them little more than lip service. Now, these courts cannot be reached.

Unless there is a change in the Senate leadership, this Administration will continue to be faced with Hobson's Choices, as was the case in this legislation. The Administration chose jobs this time. The choice made will also confine wealthy personal injury lawyers to the federal courts, which should exercise fairness if another act of terrorism is perpetrated against our country.

Sincerely, Victor Schwartz

Victor Schwartz is a partner in the Washington office of the Kansas City-based law firm of Shook, Hardy & Bacon LLP, and chairs its Public Policy Group. The focus of the group is to integrate litigation, government affairs and public relations. Mr. Schwartz has an active appellate practice, and advises product manufacturers on liability issues.

Mr. Schwartz served as a professor and dean at the University of Cincinnati College of Law prior to entering the full time practice of law. He currently sits on the College's Board of Visitors.

As Chairman of the Federal Inter-Agency Task Force on Product Liability, he received the Department of Commerce Secretary's Award for Professional Excellence for his government service. He helped draft the Uniform Product Liability Act and the Risk Retention Act.

For over two decades, Mr. Schwartz has been co-author of the most widely used torts casebook in the United States, Prosser, Wade and Schwartz's Torts (10th ed. 2000). He also is author of the leading text, Comparative Negligence, and co-authored Guide to Multistate Litigation.

Mr. Schwartz is a member of the American Law Institute (ALI) and served on the Advisory Committee to the Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability, and Apportionment of Liability Projects. He currently serves on the Advisory Committee to the Restatement (Third) of Torts: General Principles. He was inducted as a Life Member of the ALI in 1997.

He serves as General Counsel to the American Tort Reform Association. He co-chairs the Civil Justice Reform Committee of the American Legislative Exchange Council and chairs the American Bar Association's Legislative Subcommittee of the Product Liability Committee.

Sought by print and broadcast media, Mr. Schwartz is frequently quoted in The Wall Street Journal, Washington Post and The New York Times and has appeared on Oprah, 60 Minutes, and network news programs. He and his colleagues, Mark Behrens and Leah Lorber, were the recipients of the 2001 Phillip Burton Award for Outstanding Legal Scholarship for a law review article in the Harvard Journal on Legislation entitled, "Federal Forums Should Decide Multistate Class Actions: A Call For Federal Class Action Diversity Jurisdiction Reform."

In light of his accomplishments, the National Law Journal has twice named Mr. Schwartz one of the 100 most influential attorneys in the United States, and the Washingtonian magazine has twice named him one of the top 50 lobbyists in the Nation's capital.

Mr. Schwartz obtained his A.B. summa magna laude from Boston University and J.D. magna cum laude from Columbia Law School. He is a member of the bars of the States of New York, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

End Original ARMS Header

Thanks again for signing up to join your colleagues to build a playground tomorrow. It is going to be a great day.

One last bit of information.....tools necessary to build the playground will be provided. If you want to wear work gloves, you should bring your own pair.
Work gloves will not be provided.

See you tomorrow.

Rhonda

Thanks again for signing up to join your colleagues to build a playground tomorrow. It is going to be a great day.

One last bit of information.....tools necessary to build the playground will be provided. If you want to wear work gloves, you should bring your own pair.
Work gloves will not be provided.

See you tomorrow.

End Original ARMS Header

Thanks again for signing up to join your colleagues to build a playground tomorrow. It is going to be a great day.

One last bit of information.....tools necessary to build the playground will be provided. If you want to wear work gloves, you should bring your own pair. Work gloves will not be provided.

See you tomorrow.

Rhonda

Thanks again for signing up to join your colleagues to build a playground tomorrow. It is going to be a great day.

One last bit of information.....tools necessary to build the playground will be provided. If you want to wear work gloves, you should bring your own pair. Work gloves will not be provided.

See you tomorrow.

Rhonda

Brett - We are finalizing our plans for the seminar. We have you scheduled for 45 minutes from 2:45 to 3:30. That will give you and Steve plenty of time to make it to Iowa City for the game.

We are in the process of putting together the handouts for the seminar. I hope you will be able to get me an outline of your presentation in the next ten days to two weeks. You can e-mail it to me and I will get it to the right place. I will also need a short resume so that I can make an appropriate introduction.

Please let me know if you will have any problems getting me an outline. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to e-mail or call.
thanks. Roger 515-283-4633

TERRORISM INSURANCE:
THE HOBSON'S CHOICE FOR THE ADMINISTRATION
By Victor E. Schwartz*

People use the term "Hobson's Choice," but many do not know its origin. In England, a man named Hobson provided horse carriage service from one town to another. Customers were required to take the next horse in line, regardless of how unsuitable it appeared for travel; that was the only way passengers could move between towns.

Unfortunately, the Bush Administration recently faced such a "Hobson's Choice" with terrorism insurance legislation. If Administration officials were to have a bill that would help the economy and create jobs to help assure that there was full insurance against terrorism for business and property owners, they had to accede, at least in part, to the Senate Democratic leadership and the wealthy personal injury lobby.

As The Wall Street Journal has indicated, terrorism insurance legislation is necessary to assure that lenders can confidently loan money to businesses and property owners and start new projects. These projects would create meaningful jobs for hard-hat workers and help our economy when it needs it most.

Federal money is a prop for federal terrorism insurance. In light of that fact, reasonable liability limits should be placed on anyone's right to sue. Moreover, both common sense and the national interest suggest that if there is another tragedy, liability lawsuits should be limited to people's needs, not wealthy personal injury lawyer greed.

As the terrorism insurance legislation developed in the House of Representatives, meaningful liability reforms accompanied the proposal. Punitive damages were limited; joint and several liability limits were also imposed, so that a relatively innocent business did not pay for harm caused by terrorisms; and curbs were placed on contingency fees.

When it comes to limits on our liability system, the Senate is a very different body than the House. A wealthy personal injury lawyer, Fred Baron, has stated that the personal injury bar, in effect, "own the Senate." For that reason, the much-needed terrorism insurance bill has been held captive by both the Democratic leadership and the wealthy personal injury lawyers since December 2001.

The nation's economy has had greater needs in 2002, and the need for terrorism insurance and putting people back to work has become more urgent. Whether one was to have any liability limits in the Senate bill came down to choices. One choice was to fight for limits on punitive damages. While some Democrats, such as Senator Dodd (D-CT), supported sound reform in this area, the punitive damage proposals put forth by the Democratic leadership would have made a bad situation worse. What few people know is that some of those proposals, which set forth a standard for when punitive damages could be awarded, would have simultaneously created a right to bring punitive damage lawsuits in a number of states that presently do not have them.

In October 2002, it was clear that only one civil justice reform provision could be obtained in the terrorism bill. In light of this "devil's choice," created by the Democratic leadership in the Senate and their wealthy personal injury friends, the White House was faced with a difficult choice. It could have either a weak punitive damage standard or have all cases consolidated before a single federal judge in a single federal court. The White House chose the second option, and that was the wiser choice. This is why.

The single federal court provision awards one of the most serious problems in our civil justice system today – forum shopping by wealthy personal injury lawyers seeking to bring their cases in what personal injury lawyers themselves call "magic" jurisdictions. Others, such as the American Tort Reform Association, call the same jurisdictions "judicial hellholes." These include courts in certain jurisdictions which foster claims made by plaintiffs, however that might be obtained. In that regard, even if clear standards on punitive damages had existed in the terrorism bill, these courts would have likely ignored these federally mandated provisions, but stretch them to the edge to allow claims. In light of the Administration's "Hobson's Choice," these courts cannot be reached.

Again, this does not suggest that all Democrats block liability reform. Unless there is a change in the Senate leadership, this Administration will continue to be faced with "Hobson's Choices" when it comes to societal goals versus the desires of the wealthy personal injury bar. The Administration chose to put a jolt in the economy this time, and chose to create jobs. They also will confine claims brought by wealthy personal injury lawyers to a federal court. More was needed, but the choice for more was not attainable now.

I got word that OLP has a retreat next Thursday/Friday. I thought about moving it to Wed., but that's the day after the election. So, what about next Wed. at 2 pm instead of 10 am.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for your hard work! In just seven hours (including time out for pizza and ice cream) you helped to make an important difference for the children and families of the Oxon Run Park community. On Monday the playground was open for business. The planters were complete with little pine trees. The mud had dried. And according to all reports, our work is a smash with the kids.

We also thank you for giving meaning to the President,s Call to Service, for setting an example for our colleagues, and in many cases for bringing friends and family members with you. We hope that you enjoyed yourselves as much as we did, and that you will consider joining the USA Freedom Corps for future building and restoration programs.

We will stay in touch with photos from the build and with invitations to work with KaBOOM! and other outstanding organizations in this area, and we hope that you will continue to join the millions of Americans who are answering the Call to Service.

-- The USA Freedom Corps

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for your hard work! In just seven hours (including time out for pizza and ice cream) you helped to make an important difference for the children and families of the Oxon Run Park community. On Monday the playground was open for business. The planters were complete with little pine trees. The mud had dried. And according to all reports, our work is a smash with the kids.

We also thank you for giving meaning to the President,s Call to Service, for setting an example for our colleagues, and in many cases for bringing friends and family members with you. We hope that you enjoyed yourselves as much as we did, and that you will consider joining the USA Freedom Corps for future building and restoration programs.

We will stay in touch with photos from the build and with invitations to work with KaBOOM! and other outstanding organizations in this area, and we hope that you will continue to join the millions of Americans who are answering the Call to Service.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for your hard work! In just seven hours (including time out for pizza and ice cream) you helped to make an important difference for the children and families of the Oxon Run Park community. On Monday the playground was open for business. The planters were complete with little pine trees. The mud had dried. And according to all reports, our work is a smash with the kids.

We also thank you for giving meaning to the President,s Call to Service, for setting an example for our colleagues, and in many cases for bringing friends and family members with you. Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for your hard work! In just seven hours (including time out for pizza and ice cream) you helped to make an important difference for the children and families of the Oxon Run Park community. On Monday the playground was open for business. The planters were complete with little pine trees. The mud had dried. And according to all reports, our work is a smash with the kids.

We also thank you for giving meaning to the President,s Call to Service, for setting an example for our colleagues, and in many cases for bringing friends and family members with you. We hope that you enjoyed yourselves as much as we did, and that you will consider joining the USA Freedom Corps for future building and restoration programs.

We will stay in touch with photos from the build and with invitations to work with KaBOOM! and other outstanding organizations in this area, and we hope that you will continue to join the millions of Americans who are answering the Call to Service.

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for your hard work! In just seven hours (including time out for pizza and ice cream) you helped to make an important difference for the children and families of the Oxon Run Park community. On Monday the playground was open for business. The planters were complete with little pine trees. The mud had dried. And according to all reports, our work is a smash with the kids.

We also thank you for giving meaning to the President,s Call to Service, for setting an example for our colleagues, and in many cases for bringing friends and family members with you. We hope that you enjoyed yourselves as much as we did, and that you will consider joining the USA Freedom Corps for future building and restoration programs.

We will stay in touch with photos from the build and with invitations to work with KaBOOM! and other outstanding organizations in this area, and we hope that you will continue to join the millions of Americans who are answering the Call to Service.

-- The USA Freedom Corps

Dear Playground Builders,

Thank you for your hard work! In just seven hours (including time out for pizza and ice cream) you helped to make an important difference for the children and families of the Oxon Run Park community. On Monday the playground was open for business. The planters were complete with little pine trees. The mud had dried. And according to all reports, our work is a smash with the kids.

We also thank you for giving meaning to the President,s Call to Service, for setting an example for our colleagues, and in many cases for bringing friends and family members with you. We hope that you enjoyed yourselves as much as we did, and that you will consider joining the USA Freedom Corps for future building and restoration programs.

We will stay in touch with photos from the build and with invitations to work with KaBOOM! and other outstanding organizations in this area, and we hope that you will continue to join the millions of Americans who are answering the Call to Service.

I was slated to appear on a Heritage panel this afternoon starting at 4:30.
I no longer can do it because I have to stick around here for something according to my boss. Can one of you take my place? I think Alex Azar is also on the panel. It's basically a mid-term review of Administration. No prep required and a good group. It is out at Landsdowne Resort. Let me know if any can/want to do it. THANKS.

'A Lousy Record'

In a tough speech delivered at the White House this afternoon, attended by FRC's Connie Mackey and Richard Lessner, President Bush characterized the lack of Senate action on judicial confirmations as "a lousy record." The president challenged the Senate to adopt new bipartisan rules to give all nominees committee hearings within 90 days and full Senate votes within 180 days. Whether the bitterly partisan Democrats who control the Senate are likely to embrace these changes is doubtful. But President Bush was right to highlight the crisis in the federal courts. In some circuits, judicial benches are nearly half empty. Only three of the 11 original circuit court judges President Bush nominated in May 2001 have had Senate votes. Of 32 circuit court nominees Mr. Bush has sent up to the Senate, only 14 have been confirmed. The president has proposed reasonable rules to speed up the confirmation process and ensure fair treatment for all nominees. Let's see if Sens. Daschle, Leahy and others respond positively or continue to hold the federal courts hostage to partisan politics.

Turning Up the Heat in South Dakota

Today I spoke to a luncheon in Sioux Falls sponsored by the Rushmore Policy Council on the impact next week's election will have on our pro-family issues. FRC has been running radio ads all over South Dakota on the topic of partial-birth abortion. Although the House passed a bill in August banning this horrific procedure, and although he voted for such a ban three times when Bill Clinton was in the White House, Sen. Tom Daschle has not allowed a vote on the ban in the Senate. FRC's sister lobbying organization American Renewal also is running newspaper ads across South Dakota this week urging people to contact Sen. Daschle and Sen. Tim Johnson and ask them to hold a vote on the PBA ban when the Senate returns for a lame-duck session after the election (both the radio and print ads are available on our web site www.frc.org). We must take advantage of this limited window of opportunity when the Senate returns; otherwise we will have to start the whole process over again next year in the 108th Congress. Sens. Daschle and Johnson say they oppose partial-birth abortion, but talk is cheap. It's time for action.

New Rules Protect the Smallest Humans

The Bush administration continues to advance a culture of life. New rules governing research proposed by an advisory panel to the Department of Health and Human Services would, for the first time, extend protections to human embryos. Advocates of experimenting with human embryos have criticized the proposed rules as an intrusion of religion into science. It's nothing of the kind. The product of human conception is a human being and nothing else. As FRC board member and Princeton University Professor Robert George points out, this is not a theological conclusion but a scientific fact. By proposing to extend protections against experimentation embryonic humans, the Bush administration is ensuring that medical ethics keeps pace with advances in science and medicine.

Gentlemen,

Do you have flight info for me? I am hoping to be at the airport for one or both of you. Let's see how the schedule goes.

On another note, I hope the President finds time to swing through Coleman country this weekend. After that display in Minneapolis last night, we need a breath of fresh air. Minnesotans admire Bush and respond to leadership.

Remarks by President in South Dakota 10/31/02

I need somebody I can work with in the Senate to make sure that the crisis of our -- in our judiciary gets solved. (Applause.) There's too many vacancies in our -- on our federal benches, which means the dockets are crowded. It means Americans aren't getting the justice they deserve. The Senate has done a lousy job with my nominees. I need a senator with whom I can work to make sure -- (applause) -- to make sure that we stop playing petty partisan politics with the judicial nominations I've sent up; to make sure people's records aren't distorted; and to make sure we have a bench that is full of judges who aren't there to write the law, they're there to strictly interpret the United States Constitution. (Applause.) And make no mistake about it; that senator is John Thune. (Applause.)

Remarks on judges in Pennsylvania 11/1/02

I want to thank Senator Arlen Specter for being here. I want to thank him for his service to Pennsylvania. I want to thank him for working with me on a lot of big issues -- no bigger issue than to make sure the federal judiciary is staffed and full of fine, fine people. The record of this Senate is a lousy record when it comes to the approval of judges that I name. We have a vacancy problem in America. We can't get our judges through the United States Senate because there's too much politics in Washington, D.C. (Applause.)

The current Senate distorts the record of good people I put up.
I'm going to continue to name judges that are honorable and decent and honest. (Applause.) Judges who recognize their job is to interpret the Constitution, not to try to write new law. (Applause.) And I want to thank Senator Specter for being one of the leaders in the Senate to work with the administration to make sure our good judges get approved on a timely basis. (Applause.)

One way to make sure our judges get approved on a timely basis is to change the leadership in the United States Senate. (Applause.)

Hi. Attached is a proposed op-ed on the virtues and vices of President Bush's proposal to streamline judicial confirmations, with some special attention paid to the nomination of John Roberts to the DC Circuit. I'm sending it to you exclusively, and would greatly appreciate it if you could let me know if you don't want it.

President Bush on Tuesday outlined a wise and sensible approach to the judicial confirmation mess. The problem is pervasive ? in both the last Administration and this one, the Senate has too often stalled well qualified nominees. Anyone who doubts that the problem exists should look no further than Washington's own John Roberts, nominated over a year ago for a seat on the Court of Appeals. Having given 38 Supreme Court arguments and enjoying the respect of the entire Bar, Roberts is one of the most qualified individuals to be nominated to any appellate court in this nation's history, and yet he can't even get a hearing.

President Bush's proposal asks sitting judges to announce their plans to retire in advance, the President to select a nominee within 180 days, a Senate hearing within three months after the nomination, and an up or down vote on the nominee by the full Senate within 180 days of the nomination. President Bush, ignoring the, well, elephant in the room, claimed that his proposal created a "clean start" and "would not favor Democrats or Republicans" because "it doesn't matter who the President is." But, apart from the timing (six days before an election), there are two obvious problems. First, it pretends that the judicial vacancy crisis started with his Administration, but a Republican Senate obstructed President Clinton's nominees precisely to have more seats to fill in a Republican Administration. (No doubt Democrats wanted a "clean start" after they won the White House in 1992, too, after their mistreatment of Robert Bork.) Second, there is no guarantee whatsoever that a future Senate would adhere to this streamlined process once a Democrat became President. Indeed, President Bush's view is an amplified version of the patently false claim that campaign finance reform doesn't benefit incumbents because the limits apply to everyone, ignoring the obvious advantages of being a sitting legislator. And these two problems are exacerbated by the fact that President Bush has nominated individuals to the courts that are well to the right of the country, a far cry from President Clinton's moderate choices.

Nevertheless, no nominee, regardless of ideology, should be treated with the inertia that the Republican and Democratic Senates have applied in recent years. If nominees are unqualified to serve, then the Senate should say so. The President is absolutely right on this key point. Yet the decisions not to decide, by Senators of both parties, are understandable reactions to the veil of ignorance: they do not know what the future holds, and they know that nominees were mistreated by the other party in the past. The difficulty is that everyone thinks the fight started when the other side hit them back.

To solve this problem, two things need to happen. First, the President must offer a mechanism to compensate for the self-dealing of the last Senate, which blocked President Clinton's nominees only to give President Bush extra vacancies to fill. Second, the Senate must develop a credible procedure that would help ensure that the President's streamlining proposal would apply in 2005 and 2009. The second problem is easier to solve: The Senate could enshrine the President's proposed streamlining into its Senate Rules (thus making it more difficult for the Senate to change this baseline rule in future administrations) and each Republican Senator could publicly pledge now to adhere to the rule in the next Administration, regardless of who the nominees are.

But the reward-for-obstructionism problem is more difficult, because it illustrates why President Bush's proposal is not politically neutral. The most obvious way to get true neutrality is to have the proposal take effect later, in 2005. Short of that, real neutrality today requires the President to re-nominate the individuals who didn't get the benefit of the streamlining in the last Administration. The idea of President Bush nominating President Clinton's candidates may sound like a nonstarter, but it creates neutrality and divests the rewards from obstruction the last time around. (Many of the Clinton nominees had substantial Republican support anyway, due to the past Administration's deference to home state legislators.) Of course, the Senate can vote any of these nominees down, and if the President agreed to do this before next Tuesday, the veil of ignorance can become a way to propel reform. The point is not that any of this will happen, only that it explains why real neutrality is so elusive. Another, more palatable way to restore some neutrality is to ensure that streamlining is not used to reward past obstructionism; so the holdover slots left unfilled from the last Administration should be treated quite differently from the new vacancies which arose after Inauguration Day, with strong deference to Democratic home State Senators picks for holdover seats.

President Bush should be commended for putting a smart proposal on the table. It is now time to develop ways to make sure that it is implemented fairly, in a way that penalizes obstruction by both parties. No one knows this better than John Roberts, who was nominated by President George H.W. Bush to the same court in 1992, only to be a victim of obstruction and election year politics then too. It's time for this to end. But it won't happen without more from this Administration to create a real clean start.

Iowa Welcome
November 4, 2002
Draft #2

You may have heard I,m a big baseball guy. When I come to Iowa I always think of one of the great baseball movies, Field of Dreams. I see the open fields and the small cities and the warm people and I know why some people might think this is heaven.1 It,s pretty darn close.

I know you raise a lot of crops here, but you also raise the kind of leaders our Nation needs) folks who are straight-forward and honest, with a strong belief in faith, family, and country. Today I,m asking you to support some fine candidates) your good Congressman, Jim Leach (your next United States Senator, Greg Ganske (your next Governor, Doug Gross (and another strong member of Congress, Jim Nussle.

Acknowledgments
ú Congressman Jim Leach (R-IA) (will introduce the President)
ú Congressman Greg Ganske (R-IA), Republican candidate for U.S. Senate ú Most folks know that Greg is a doctor as well as a Congressman. So it shouldn,t surprise anyone that he is a leader on health care issues in the Congress. He,s worked to make sure Medicare pays its fair share of benefits in Iowa (to modernize Medicare with a prescription drug benefit (and to pass a Patients, Bill of Rights.
ú Greg knows how important economic development is to Iowa families and Iowa farmers. He voted to lower your taxes) and eliminate the death tax that hurts so many farm families. And he voted to give me Trade Promotion Authority so I can help open foreign markets to Iowa corn and John Deere tractors.
ú I need Greg,s values, Greg,s priorities, and Greg,s support in the United States Senate.
ú Congressman Jim Nussle (R-IA)) Jim is the budget chairman in Congress. He reminds me of my dad when I was growing up. Whenever I want to spend any money I have to run it by him. Luckily, Jim and I share the same priorities) a responsible budget, lower taxes, and the funding to fight and win the war on terror.

ú Tom Latham (R-IA)) Tom is a strong voice for Iowa in the Congress, working to strengthen Social Security. He wants to make sure today,s seniors are protected) and he wants to make sure it is strong and secure for his own granddaughter when she retires.
ú Doug Gross, Republican candidate for Governor of Iowa ú Debi Durham, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Iowa ú Doug and Debi know that to be good leaders, they need to set priorities. They will focus on the issues that matter most to the people of this state: a strong education for every child (economic development throughout Iowa (and quality, affordable health care. With a clear set of priorities they will set to work on lowering tax rates and making higher education more affordable at Iowa,s great universities.
ú Stan Thompson, Republican candidate for Congress) Stan will make education and economic development his top priorities in the Congress.

ú Republican candidates, supporters, and grassroots activists

Jim Leach

ú Jim Leach is a respected, independent voice for Iowa in the Congress. He votes his conscience and his values. Jim is also an old friend. I rely on his advice and support in the Congress, and I need him back in Washington come January.

ú Thanks to Jim,s support, we are spending more money on education in this school year than ever before. Iowa schools are receiving more than nearly 400 million dollars in federal education funding. As we spend more, we expect more in return.

ú Jim works every day to make it easier for entrepreneurs to create jobs in Iowa. He voted for the tax cuts that put more money in the hands of the workers who earned it) and lowered the tax bill for a lot of sole proprietorships that need that extra money to invest and grow.

ú We learned this week that the number of Americans looking for jobs has gone up. We have more work to do and we will not be satisfied until every person who wants to work can find a job. We will not be satisfied until there is faster growth in America,s economy, and faster growth in worker paychecks.

ú Make Tax Relief Permanent) Congress can help by making the tax cuts permanent so families and businesses can plan, and spend, and invest to lift our economy. In their first ten years, the tax cuts we passed will save the people of Iowa more than ten and a half billion dollars in income taxes (death taxes (and gift taxes. In that same period, they will save nearly two billion dollars in income taxes through the child tax credit and 800 million dollars in marriage penalty tax relief.

ú Terrorism Insurance) We need to pass terrorism insurance right away) to let these projects go forward, and to create thousands of good, hard-hat jobs all over America.

ú One of the problems we have in Washington right now is that the House is getting a lot done with Denny Hastert in charge, but the Senate isn,t finishing the job. A good case in point is prescription drugs. Jim voted to modernize Medicare by adding a good prescription drug benefit. If the Senate had acted, we,d have a prescription drug benefit in Medicare right now. We need Jim Leach back in Washington to keep the heat on until we make a prescription drug benefit available to America,s seniors.

Judges

Homeland Security

ú The House moved quickly to approve the Department of Homeland Security. The Senate is struggling, though. The Senate leaders are saying, you can have a Department of Homeland Security, but there is going to be a price for it. And that price will be to roll back important authority every President since John F. Kennedy has had to act in the interests of national security. For forty years, Presidents have had the ability to suspend collective bargaining rules in any department in the federal government when national security is at stake.

Remarks by President in Iowa 11/4/02

Ganske is leading a lot of issues. He's leading on his medical issues that are going to make a big difference in people's lives. He's for patients bill of rights; he's for modernizing Medicare. He wants to make sure the Iowa seniors are treated fairly. He's a doctor. He's a compassionate soul. He's the kind of person with whom I can work. And there's a lot of issues I need to work on in the United States Senate.

Perhaps one of the most crucial issues is the judiciary.
(Applause.) It's a defining issue as far as I'm concerned. It's a fundamental issue. And we've got a problem because the leadership in the Senate has done a lousy job with my nominees. (Applause.) And the problem is there's a vacancy gap in America, there's a problem on the bench. We can't get our nominees through the Senate. They're playing needless politics with them. And in some cases, they're distorting their records. They don't like my nominees because I'm putting good, honorable people up there who will not use the bench from which to legislate, but will use the bench to strictly interpret the United States Constitution.
(Applause.)

I know I can count on Greg, just like I've been counting on Chuck Grassley's support. I hope you send him to the Senate. It's in the best interest of this state, it's in the best interest of our country that Greg Ganske represent us in Washington, D.C. (Applause.)

Reason (3): Inherently conservative nature of electorate (even taking account of northern, yuppy imports in certain areas).

Remarks by President in Texas 11/4/02

And I need a senator from Texas with whom I can work, to help fulfil one of my most serious responsibilities, and that is to put good people on the federal bench. (Applause.) There is a vacancy on our benches. There is vacancies all around the country, because the bunch that's running the Senate right now won't give my nominees a fair hearing. And when they do give them a hearing, some of them have their records distorted. I need a United States senator who will stand strong for what most Texans want, and that is a judiciary full of honest and honorable people who will not use their bench from which to legislate, but to interpret the Constitution of the United States. (Applause.)

You may remember what happened to one of our finest Texans, Priscilla Owen. I picked Priscilla to serve on one of our top benches. I did so because she's a brilliant lady, she's an honest person, she finished tops in her law school, she was ranked by the ABA as one of the top picks. She is backed by Republicans and Democrats from the state of Texas. She ran statewide and was overwhelmingly elected. I put her up there. Because these people are playing politics, petty politics, with the nominees I've picked, her record was distorted and she was denied a seat. She was grossly treated. I can assure you that with John Cornyn in the Senate he would be a strong supporter of Priscilla Owen and my judges. (Applause.)

There's a big difference in this race between the two running for the United States Senate. And that Priscilla Owen case is a clear example of what I'm talking about. There's going to be a lot of issues we'll work on together. The biggest issue we've got is to protect America, to protect you from further attack, to do everything we can to prevent an enemy from hitting this country again. (Applause.)

Adam:

Your e-mail included the following sentence: "If anyone does have any reason to think that this would or should not be the case, please advise me as soon as possible, as that would require that the signing statement be evaluated in that light and at the appropriate level."

Just to let you know my general practice, my silence in response to an e-mail -- even if it says or implies failure-to-reply-constitutes-consent -- is simply silence, not consent or dissent. And my reply to your e-mail is silence.

A blanket determination of agency interest may be issued to cover all or any category of invitees for a widely attended gathering. I have reviewed the invitation by the Directors, Board of Visitors, and Officers of the Federalist Society for the November 14th, 2002 Gala to be held at the Mayflower Hotel and have made a determination that the attendance by attorneys invited from the Office of the Counsel to the President is in the interest of the agency and will further agency programs and operations.

You may accept an unsolicited gift of attendance from the sponsor for yourself and your spouse.

Nanette --

The Federalist Society has invited several members of our office, along with our spouses, to attend its 30th Anniversary Dinner as its guests. Tickets for the dinner would otherwise cost $200 each. May we and our spouses accept this invitation consistent our ethical obligations? If so, could you provide us with an e-mail so stating?

Thanks,

Noel

Last week at the White House Radio Day event on the North Lawn I spoke with Judge Gonzales, Brett. We talked about the release you all have done of all of the original Reagan records and also about having another meeting now that six months has gone by since the last one we had in May. He said it was fine with him. I know that you are going to be busy with the upcoming congressional session so something next month would probably be better. Let me know what would be good for you and Judge Gonzales and we can work around your timing. Friday afternoons seem to be good with the President often going to Camp David and the rhythms of the White House slowing down a bit.

Warm Wishes,

Martha

Brett,

I have been invited to speak to a group of Jewish doctors about the President's tort reform plans, among other topics. This is not a fundraiser or anything other than a discussion on the issues at someone's house.

A 501(c)(3) entity, the Republican Jewish Coalition Florida Chapter, will pay for me to get there and put me up.

I do not see anything wrong with the event (based on other events I have participated in with the national RJC) but wanted to double check on the invitation they want to send out.

Can you let me know as soon as you know, or please forward to whomever in your shop handles this?

Thanks!

TERRORISM INSURANCE:
By Victor E. Schwartz*

People use the term "Hobson's Choice," but many do not know its origin. In England, a man named Hobson provided horse carriage service from one town to another. Customers were required to take the next horse in line, regardless of how unsuitable it appeared for travel; that was the only way passengers could move between towns.

Unfortunately, the Bush Administration recently faced such a "Hobson's Choice" with terrorism insurance legislation. If Administration officials were to have a bill that would help the economy and create jobs to help assure that there was full insurance against terrorism for business and property owners, they had to accede, at least in part, to the Senate Democratic leadership and the wealthy personal injury lobby.

As The Wall Street Journal has indicated, terrorism insurance legislation is necessary to assure that lenders can confidently loan money to businesses and property owners and start new projects. These projects would create meaningful jobs for hard-hat workers and help our economy when it needs it most.

Federal money is a prop for federal terrorism insurance. In light of that fact, reasonable liability limits should be placed on anyone's right to sue. Moreover, both common sense and the national interest suggest that if there is another tragedy, liability lawsuits should be limited to people's needs, not wealthy personal injury lawyer greed.

As the terrorism insurance legislation developed in the House of Representatives, meaningful liability reforms accompanied the proposal. Punitive damages were limited; joint and several liability limits were also imposed, so that a relatively innocent business did not pay for harm caused by terrorisms; and curbs were placed on contingency fees.

* Victor Schwartz is chairman of the Public Policy Group in the Washington office of the Kansas City-based law firm of Shook, Hardy & Bacon L.L.P.

When it comes to limits on our liability system, the Senate is a very different body than the House. A wealthy personal injury lawyer, Fred Baron, has stated that the personal injury bar, in effect, "own the Senate." For that reason, the much-needed terrorism insurance bill has been held captive by both the Democratic leadership and the wealthy personal injury lawyers since December 2001.

The nation's economy has had greater needs in 2002, and the need for terrorism insurance and putting people back to work has become more urgent. Whether one was to have any liability limits in the Senate bill came down to choices. One choice was to fight for limits on punitive damages. While some Democrats, such as Senator Dodd (D-CT), supported sound reform in this area, the punitive damage proposals put forth by the Democratic leadership would have made a bad situation worse. What few people know is that some of those proposals, which set forth a standard for when punitive damages could be awarded, would have simultaneously created a right to bring punitive damage lawsuits in a number of states that presently do not have them.

In October 2002, it was clear that only one civil justice reform provision could be obtained in the terrorism bill. In light of this "devil's choice," created by the Democratic leadership in the Senate and their wealthy personal injury friends, the White House was faced with a difficult choice. It could have either a weak punitive damage standard or have all cases consolidated before a single federal judge in a single federal court. The White House chose the second option, and that was the wiser choice. This is why.

The single federal court provision awards one of the most serious problems in our civil justice system today – forum shopping by wealthy personal injury lawyers seeking to bring their cases in what personal injury lawyers themselves call "magic" jurisdictions. Others, such as the American Tort Reform Association, call the same jurisdictions "judicial hellholes." These include courts in certain jurisdictions which foster claims made by plaintiffs, however that might be obtained. In that regard, even if clear standards on punitive damages had existed in the terrorism bill, these courts would have likely ignored these federally mandated provisions, but stretch them to the edge to allow claims. In light of the Administration's "Hobson's Choice," these courts cannot be reached.

Again, this does not suggest that all Democrats block liability reform. Unless there is a change in the Senate leadership, this Administration will continue to be faced with "Hobson's Choices" when it comes to societal goals versus the desires of the wealthy personal injury bar. The Administration chose to put a jolt in the economy this time, and chose to create jobs. They also will confine claims brought by wealthy personal injury lawyers to a federal court. More was needed, but the choice for more was not attainable now.

Victor Schwartz is a partner in the Washington office of the Kansas City-based law firm of Shook, Hardy & Bacon LLP, and chairs its Public Policy Group. The focus of the group is to integrate litigation, government affairs and public relations. Mr. Schwartz has an active appellate practice, and advises product manufacturers on liability issues.

Mr. Schwartz served as a professor and dean at the University of Cincinnati College of Law prior to entering the full time practice of law. He currently sits on the College's Board of Visitors.

As Chairman of the Federal Inter-Agency Task Force on Product Liability, he received the Department of Commerce Secretary's Award for Professional Excellence for his government service. He helped draft the Uniform Product Liability Act and the Risk Retention Act.

For over two decades, Mr. Schwartz has been co-author of the most widely used torts casebook in the United States, Prosser, Wade and Schwartz's Torts (10th ed. 2000). He also is author of the leading text, Comparative Negligence, and co-authored Guide to Multistate Litigation.

Mr. Schwartz is a member of the American Law Institute (ALI) and served on the Advisory Committee to the Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability, and Apportionment of Liability Projects. He currently serves on the Advisory Committee to the Restatement (Third) of Torts: General Principles. He was inducted as a Life Member of the ALI in 1997.

He serves as General Counsel to the American Tort Reform Association. He co-chairs the Civil Justice Reform Committee of the American Legislative Exchange Council and chairs the American Bar Association's Legislative Subcommittee of the Product Liability Committee.

Sought by print and broadcast media, Mr. Schwartz is frequently quoted in The Wall Street Journal, Washington Post and The New York Times and has appeared on Oprah, 60 Minutes, and network news programs. He and his colleagues, Mark Behrens and Leah Lorber, were the recipients of the 2001 Phillip Burton Award for Outstanding Legal Scholarship for a law review article in the Harvard Journal on Legislation entitled, "Federal Forums Should Decide Multistate Class Actions: A Call For Federal Class Action Diversity Jurisdiction Reform."

In light of his accomplishments, the National Law Journal has twice named Mr. Schwartz one of the 100 most influential attorneys in the United States, and the Washingtonian magazine has twice named him one of the top 50 lobbyists in the Nation's capital.

Mr. Schwartz obtained his A.B. summa magna laude from Boston University and J.D. magna cum laude from Columbia Law School. He is a member of the bars of the States of New York, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

There appears to be a technical error. I think the legislation was meant to say "Act 107 of the Session Laws of Hawaii, 2000," not "2001." If I am correct, then the legislation would change the Act's fixed interest rate of 2.5 percent on loans and allow the agency to set the interest rate. This seems to be in line with the CRS summary, which says that the legislation would permit "home loan interest rate flexibility" for the Hawaii Homes Commission.

Let's take the 12th as I know that will work for most of them and we need to get it on your schedule. Is that ok with you?

All I was aware would be in the Homeland Security bill was the House's Safety Act and possibly the Warner/Thompson amendment (that Brett worked out) that doesn't mandate indemnification but directs the President to examine it and include certain critera. Both are good. I am hearing that there may actually be legislative indemnity, that Lockheed got even more than they were asking for. Is this true or is it just someone misunderstanding the Warner/Thompson language? Please let me know asap.

Can these guys be any lazier? The bill has been out for more than 24 hrs.

Warner indemn language is out. There IS indemnification language in there for smallpox vaccine. And safety act is in.

Lucy, am I missing anything?

We have located a copy of the IRS correspondence holding that the White House Travel Office is required to collect and deposit the Federal Excise Tax and will fax it to Eric.

I recommend that we cease any activity predicated on Airpartner's declaration below, and request that Airpartner retract this statement pending consideration of whether changes in the chartering and billing arrangements affect obligations under the IRS rulings.

Please do not forward this e-mail outside to non-Government personnel as it is a privileged attorney communication.

Subject: Federal Excise Tax (FET)

Effective immediately, please include the FET taxes in each of your bids, contracts, and final invoices for White House trips. The White House will not longer be responsible for reporting and payment of this tax and the responsibility reverts back to the press charter carrier (in this case United).

The White House Travel Office press billing has been outsourced to American Express and their press charter program to Air Partner, Inc.

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to call me at 202-625-6600.

Thank you.

Al kamen of post called me. Said he is putting piece in loop column about tim leaving and about me and others being talked about as subs. I said nothing, just as I have done with many others internally and externally who have grilled me about this. Clear though that lots of people on outside had talked to him and said same stuff over and over -- given number of people at fed society function who were buzzing about same topic, no surprise. But irritating.

the following article from the sunday new york times indicates the opportunity which is developing.
I had a good talk with Governor Rowland who will head the RGA about developing a nationwide effort to pass tort reform in every state both to stretch the trial lawyers so that they could not cover everything and also
to educate the news media and the public by having many different people advocating similar reforms using similar language so the concepts would penetrate the society at large.

this is a remarkable moment of opportunity

Shot in the Arm for Tort Overhaul

It is all but certain that the G.O.P.'s election victories will move the call for tort reform, sought by the business world for years, higher on the legislative agenda.

Subject: tort reform opportunity

the following article from the sunday new york times indicates the opportunity which is developing.
I had a good talk with Governor Rowland who will head the RGA about developing a nationwide effort to pass tort reform in every state both to
to educate the news media and the public by having many different people advocating similar reforms using similar language so the concepts would penetrate the society at large.

this is a remarkable moment of opportunity

It is all but certain that the G.O.P.'s election victories
will move the call for tort reform, sought by the business world for years, higher on the legislative agenda.

Louisiana Victory Fund 2002

Dear XXXX,

President Bush will be in New Orleans for a luncheon on Tuesday, December 3rd and we are once again asking for your help. Because of our tremendous success in 2000, I would like to reconstitute the finance committee we put together.

We have only two weeks and we must raise over $1 Million for the Louisiana Victory Fund 2002. With your commitment to participate on our committee again, we know we will surpass this goal and ensure victory in Louisiana and show President Bush Louisiana Stands With Him.

Prior to the luncheon there will be a photo opportunity for the event committee.

Please fax the attached acceptance form to Dee Dee Lancaster at 504-584-5005 at your earliest convenience, as we must get invitations out as soon as possible.

Thank you in advance for your commitment once again. We look forward to your help and our victory on December 7th.

Sincerely,

Donald T. "Boysie" Bollinger

Joseph C. Canizaro

Pat Brister

Gen. James Livingston

Chris Bollinger

Brett,

Please let me know if you would like me to make a hotel reservation for you at the Omni. Also, I would appreciate it if you would let me know as soon as you can about whether you would like to have dinner with some students tomorrow evening. I would prefer to have at least several hours lead time before the event to invite the members of the Federalist Society here. However, there are several students here who have already said they would like to go.

I look forward to seeing you tomorrow. Please let me know if you have any questions. I can also be reached via cell phone at PRA 6.

JUDICIAL WATCH, INC. Plaintiff, v. UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, Defendant.	)	Civil Action No. 1:01CV00639 (GK)

DEFENDANT'S REPLY MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT ITS MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Owing to the unique responsibility entrusted to the Deputy Attorney General, with the assistance of the Pardon Attorney and his staff, to advise and assist the President in the exercise of his constitutional pardon authority, defendant, the United States Department of Justice, has properly withheld certain documents responsive to plaintiff's Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA") request under FOIA Exemption 5. Those documents fall within the protections of the privilege for presidential communications, which protects the communications of the President and his advisors relating to the exercise of the President's duties, and thus are exempt from disclosure under Exemption 5.

The same documents are also exempt, either in whole or in part, pursuant to the deliberative process privilege protected by FOIA Exemption 5. Although the Court need not address this issue owing to the applicability of the presidential communications privilege, which is broader in scope (applying to documents in their entirety and not just to deliberations and which clemency is requested, official comments, if any (from such sources as the prosecuting attorneys or the sentencing judge), and reasons for the Deputy Attorney General's proposed decision, either for or against clemency. See Adams Declaration, ¶¶ 6-7; Declaration of Melanie Ann Pustay, Deputy Director of the Office of Information and Privacy, Justice Department, ¶¶ 27-29.

More specifically, defendant's declarations set forth the nature of the information contained in the letters of advice and the sources for such information, including information obtained from the pardon applications themselves about the individual's criminal record and the reasons for seeking clemency, and information about the applicant obtained from outside sources, such as the United States Probation Office, the FBI, the prosecuting attorney, and possibly the sentencing judge. Adams Declaration, ¶ 6. Other information might include, if deemed pertinent to a particular case, the applicant's employment history, residence history, credit and financial information, reputation in the community, and charitable or other civil activities. Id.

Defendant's declarations also explain at length the process by which the letters of advice to be submitted to the President are prepared, beginning with draft letters and recommendations authored by OPA and culminating in a final product as approved and signed by the Deputy Attorney General, setting forth his frank opinion and judgment about the merits of individual applications. Id.; Pustay Declaration, ¶¶ 14-15, 27. As the Pardon Attorney explains in his declaration, this process is "designed to create a complete and adequate informational foundation upon which to formulate and provide advice to the President on clemency matters." Adams Declaration, ¶ 6.

Pursuant to this information, plaintiff's bald, declaratory assertion that defendant failed adequately to describe the nature and content of the documents at issue is without merit.

Plaintiff simply chooses to ignore this information, as it also chooses to ignore defendant's discussion of governing authorities which establish that the documents at issue unquestionably come within the deliberative process privilege because they are predecisional and deliberative. See Def. Mem. at 24-31.

Plaintiff's only other argument regarding the deliberative process privilege is that defendant purportedly failed "to explain how the decision making would be harmed if the documents at issue were released." Pl. Op. Mem. at 7. This statement is remarkable as it ignores entirely the declarations submitted by the Deputy Attorney General, the Counsel to the President, and Ms. Pustay of the Department of Justice, who explain the damage that would result if the documents at issue subject to public disclosure under the FOIA. See e.g., Gonzales Delcaration, ¶ 4 ("[t]he President relies on the full and frank submission of facts by Justice Department officials relating to clemency petitions, and full and frank opinions, recommendations, and advice regarding possible actions to be taken by the President on such petitions"). Based on the uncontradicted record in this case, the ability of the President's advisors and their staffs at the Justice Department to provide such assistance would unquestionably be compromised if the records at issue were subject to public release. For all of these reasons, summary judgment is appropriate on behalf of defendant with respect to application of the deliberative process privilege.

III. FOIA EXEMPTION 6 APPLIES IN THIS CASE TO PROTECT AGAINST THE UNWARRANTED INVASION OF PERSONAL PRIVACY

Defendant established in support of its summary judgment motion that FOIA Exemption 6 applies in this case to protect against the unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. See Def. Mem. at 31-41 (setting forth the standards applicable under Exemption 6 and identifying the documents that are subject to this Exemption and the reasons therefore). Plaintiff responds to this showing by arguing that the people who petitioned former President Clinton for clemency consist largely of convicted felons who are purportedly not entitled to privacy protection under FOIA. See Pl. Opp. Mem. at 11-12. That this argument is utterly without merit is immediately revealed by plaintiff's own authorities, which hold only that prison inmates, for reasons of security, are not entitled to the same privacy protections as other citizens. United States v. Amen, 831 F.2d 373, 379 (2d Cir. 1987) ("prison inmates have no reasonable expectation of privacy"); Smith v. Fairman, 678 F.2d 52, 54 (7th Cir. 1982).

More to the point, plaintiff ignores the governing precedent in this area, United States Department of Justice v. Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, 489 U.S. 749 (1989), in which the Supreme Court held that "rap sheets," containing information on arrests, indictments, acquittals, convictions, and sentences, are subject to privacy protection under FOIA. Id. at 762. Regardless that the events summarized in such documents have been previously disclosed to the public in criminal proceedings, the Supreme Court determined that the "privacy interest in a rap sheet is substantial," id. at 771, and the FOIA's various provisions relating to privacy "reflect a congressional understanding that disclosure of records containing personal details about private citizens can infringe significantly on privacy interests." Id. at 766.

Rather than address this authority, plaintiff simply declares, without any supporting evidence or argument, "that the information sought on the prisoners granted clemency by former President Clinton does not go to personal information about these individuals * * *." Pl. Op. Mem. at 12. However, as demonstrated by the undisputed evidence in the record, the information withheld by defendant under FOIA Exemption 6 unquestionably consists of personal information about individual pardon applicants, including their names and other identifying information, the identities of other third parties connected to them including members of their families, and details about the crimes they committed and about their lives before and after their convictions for their crimes. See Def. Mem. at 34. Indeed, much of the information withheld under FOIA Exemption 6 goes far beyond an individual's criminal history, which the Supreme Court has held is subject to protection, and includes deeply intrusive information about an individual's life and family. Id. at 39. The privacy interest protected under FOIA is at its apex in regard to such information. Reporters Committee, 489 U.S. at 779.

Lastly, plaintiffs do not even attempt to demonstrate how the public disclosure of such information could possibly serve FOIA's basic purpose, which is to "open agency action to the light of public scrutiny." Id. at 772. As the Supreme Court has explained, that purpose "is not fostered by disclosure of information about private citizens that is accumulated in various governmental files but reveals little or nothing about an agency's own conduct." Id. at 773. The particular information at issue here would shed no light on the conduct of the Department of Justice, and plaintiff fails to establish any basis for requiring its public release.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, defendant's motion for summary judgment should be granted.

Respectfully submitted, advice), these records are unquestionably subject to the deliberative process privilege to the extent that they reveal advice, recommendations, and deliberations comprising part of the process by which Justice Department officials assisted and advised the President in the exercise of his clemency powers. Finally, public disclosure of a separate sub-category of documents requested by plaintiff would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy in regard to those individuals, and their families, who requested clemency from the President. It is black letter law that FOIA's purpose is not served by the release of information about private citizens that exists in government files but that reveals little or nothing about an agency's own conduct.

Plaintiff opposes the applicability of these FOIA exemptions based on fundamental misstatements of the law. See Plaintiff's Opposition Memorandum (October 31, 2002)("Pl. Opp. Mem."). Plaintiff contends, for example, that the presidential communications privilege is entitled to less "weight" in this lawsuit because the documents at issue refer to communications "to and from a former President." Pl. Opp. Mem. at 7 (emphasis in original). The Supreme Court, however, has made clear that, within the context of FOIA litigation, the courts do not balance or "weigh" respective interests between litigants to determine whether specific documents are subject to privilege under FOIA Exemption 5. National Labor Relations Board v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 421 U.S. 132, 149 (1975). So long as the documents in question are normally privileged, that is enough. Id. Moreover, plaintiff's own authority, Dellums v. Powell, 561 F.2d 242 (D.C. Cir. 1977), refutes the contention that the presidential communications privilege is entitled to less "weight" in this case and makes clear that the privilege presumptively applies to the records at issue based on defendant's showing in support of this privilege.

In addition, plaintiff is equally wrong in arguing that the presidential privilege does not extend beyond communications directly between the White House and the President's advisers in the Justice Department. Pursuant to established law, in addition to the advice and assistance provided to the President by his advisors, the privilege also extends to information and analysis obtained by these advisors from others, including members of their staff in the Justice Department. As the courts have recognized, the President must rely substantially, if not entirely, on information and analysis supplied by advisors who, in turn, are dependent on others to provide necessary facts, information, and expertise. As a result, the privilege unquestionably applies here where the communications in question are "intimately connected" to presidential decisionmaking in the exercise of a "quintessential and nondelegable Presidential Power," In re Sealed Case, 121 F.3d 729, 752 (D.C. Cir. 1997), such as the pardon power.

Plaintiff's other arguments concerning application of the deliberative process privilege can quickly be dismissed. Plaintiff's assertion that defendant has not sufficiently described certain categories of the documents which are subject to this privilege is belied by defendant's Vaughn Index and accompanying declarations, which describe at length the nature of the documents at issue and the harm that would result if they were publicly disclosed. Plaintiff's bare and declaratory assertions to the contrary are not nearly enough to defeat the entry of summary judgment on defendant's behalf.

Plaintiff's final arguments regarding defendant's withholding of a discrete subset of documents under FOIA Exemption 6 are, if anything, on even weaker ground. Plaintiff contends that the persons who are the subject of the documents in question, i.e., persons who applied to the President for clemency and their families, are not entitled to privacy protection under Exemption 6. That this argument is patently without merit is demonstrated by the authorities on which plaintiff relies, which hold only that prison inmates are not entitled to the same level of constitutional protection as are other citizens. E.g. United States v. Amen, 831 F.2d 373, 379 (2d Cir. 1987). This authority has no application outside of a prison context, and most certainly has no relevance to the personal information at issue here which, pursuant to controlling precedent, is protected from public disclosure under FOIA Exemption 6. For this reason, in addition to the other grounds stated above, summary judgment should appropriately be entered on defendant's behalf dismissing plaintiff's FOIA claims in toto.

REV_00359642

ARGUMENT

I. THE PRESIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS PRIVILEGE APPLIES TO THE DOCUMENTS AT ISSUE UNDER FOIA EXEMPTION 5

a. Noting that the documents at issue were generated in a previous Administration, plaintiff argues that "President Bush's decision-making process can in no way be harmed by the release of the requested documents since [it is not] the current President's decision-making process that is at issue." Pl. Op. Mem. at 9. Plaintiff argues that, as a result, "the presidential communications privilege is not valid in this case, and the requested documents should be turned over immediately." Id.

This argument is fundamentally misconceived. This case does not involve, and does not turn on, the assertion of a privilege by either a former or incumbent President. Rather – within the context of responding to a FOIA request for documents – this case requires the recognition of the presidential privilege on behalf of the institution of the Presidency for the purpose of protecting the quality of present and future presidential decision-making. It is irrelevant for this purpose whether the documents at issue were generated in the last 12 months or the last 12 years. The Supreme Court has addressed this principle, although within a different, non-FOIA context:

> 'Unless he can give his advisers some assurance of confidentiality, a President could not expect to receive the full and frank submissions of facts and opinions upon which effective discharge of his duties depends. The confidentiality necessary to this exchange cannot be measured by the few months or years between the submission of the information and the end of the President's tenure; the privilege is not for the benefit of the President as an individual, but for the benefit of the Republic. Therefore the privilege survives the individual President's tenure.'

Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425, 448-449 (1977). In this case, as defendant has previously established, substantial harm unquestionably would result to the Office of the President if communications concerning a President's (any President's) constitutionally delegated pardon authority were subject to routine public disclosure under the FOIA.[1]

[1] See Defendant's Exhibit 3 (Declaration of Larry D. Thompson, Deputy Attorney

REV_00359643

Otherwise, plaintiff's discussion of the D.C. Circuit's decision in Dellums v. Powell is entirely besides the point. The court in Dellums did not address the invocation of the presidential privilege within the context of FOIA litigation. Rather, the court addressed whether former President Nixon's assertion of the privilege in response to a subpoena duces tecum in civil discovery prevailed over plaintiffs' need for the information at issue.[2] Within that context, the court was called upon to weigh the respective interests involved, including the interest of a former President in maintaining the confidentiality of the information at issue. See 561 F.2d at 249 (plaintiffs "established a specific need for the requested information sufficient to overcome the rebuttable presumption of privilege of a former President").

In the context of FOIA litigation, on the other hand, it is established law that the courts do not engage in a balancing or weighing of interests to determine whether particular documents are subject to privilege and therefore exempt from public disclosure under FOIA Exemption 5. The Supreme Court has made this clear, explaining that Exemption 5 must be construed to exempt "those documents normally privileged in the civil discovery context." National Labor Relations Board v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 421 U.S. at 149 (emphasis supplied). In other words, a FOIA litigant cannot overcome a privilege under Exemption 5 based on his or her stated "need [for the documents] in the context of the facts of his particular case." Id. at 149 n.16. As explained by the Supreme Court, "it is not sensible to construe the * * * [FOIA] to require disclosure of any document which would be disclosed in the hypothetical litigation in which the private party's claim is the most compelling." Id. Instead, so long as the documents in question are "normally" privileged in the civil discovery context, that is the end of the inquiry. Id. at 149.

General)(attesting to the harm that would result from disclosure of the documents at issue); Defendant's Exhibit 4 (Declaration of Alberto R. Gonzales, Counsel to the President of the United States)(same).

[2] The challenged subpoena demanded the production of transcripts and tapes of Nixon White House conversations about "May Day" demonstrations, which were sought by plaintiffs in civil litigation in support of their constitutional damage claims relating to their arrests at these demonstrations. Former President Nixon sought to quash this subpoena based on the presidential communications privilege. 561 F.2d at 245.

REV_00359644

In this case, as defendant previously established in support of its summary judgment motion, because the documents in question come within the contours of the presidential communications privilege, and are therefore "presumptively privileged," they are exempt from public disclosure under FOIA Exemption 5. See In re Sealed Case, 121 F.3d at 743 (a "presumptive privilege" exists for Presidential communications "founded on 'a President's generalized interest in confidentiality'") (citation omitted). The decision in Dellums does not detract from and, indeed, has no bearing on this conclusion.

b. Plaintiff additionally argues that the presidential communications privilege does not extend beyond communications directly between the White House and the President's advisors in the Justice Department. In support, plaintiff relies on dicta in In re Sealed Case for the proposition that the presidential communications privilege "should not extend to staff outside of the White House in executive branch agencies," and should apply only "to communications authored or solicited and received by those members of an immediate White House adviser's staff * * *." 121 F.3d at 752. Based on this dicta, plaintiff identifies certain categories of documents in defendant's Vaughn Index that allegedly do not "qualify for the presidential communications privilege" because they "do not appear to document communications between members of an immediate White House advisor's staff." Pl. Op. Mem. at 10.[3]

Notably, plaintiff effectively concedes by this argument that the presidential communications privilege is applicable at least with respect to communications between the

[3] Such communications include, by way of example, recommendations on pardon applications from the Office of the Pardon Attorney ("OPA") to the counsel for the Deputy Attorney General (Vaughn Index Category 1); electronic mail and other communications from the counsel for the Deputy Attorney General to OPA asking questions about individual pardon applications (Vaughn Index Category 4); handwritten notes by and between the staff of the Office of the Deputy Attorney General regarding recommendations on individual clemency cases (Vaughn Index Category 13); and memoranda between the OPA and FBI regarding the background investigations of certain pardon applicants (Vaughn Index Category 17).

White House and the Deputy Attorney General and/or the OPA regarding the President's exercise of his clemency authority.[4] Plaintiff, however, is wrong in asserting that the privilege is limited to such communications. As the D.C. Circuit explains, "[g]iven the need to provide sufficient elbow room for advisors to obtain information from all knowledgeable sources, the privilege must apply both to communications which these advisors solicited and received from others as well as those they authored themselves." In re Sealed Case, 121 F.3d at 752. In other words, the privilege must apply both to the recommendations and advice that the Deputy Attorney General (with the assistance of the Pardon Attorney) provides to the President and the communications that these advisors solicit from others, including members of their own staffs.

> Presidential advisers do not explore alternatives only in conversations with the President or pull their final advice to him out of thin air – if they do, their advice is not likely to be worth much. Rather, the most valuable advisers will investigate the factual context of a problem in detail, obtain input from all others with significant expertise in the area, and perform detailed analyses of several different policy options before coming to closure on a recommendation for the Chief Executive. The President himself must make decisions relying substantially, if not entirely, on the information and analysis supplied by advisers.

Id. See also id., at 751-52 ("the public interest is best served by holding that communications made by presidential advisors in the course of preparing advice for the President come under the presidential communications privilege, even when these communications are not made directly to the President").

[4] For example, plaintiff effectively concedes that the presidential communications privilege applies to communications from the OPA to the White House Counsel's Office (Vaughn Index Category 3); letters of advice regarding individual clemency applications from the Deputy Attorney General or the Pardon Attorney to the President (Vaughn Index Category 5); letters and memoranda between the OPA, the White House, and various U.S. Attorney's offices regarding individual pardon applications (Vaughn Index Category 12); and memoranda and charts from the Office of the Deputy Attorney General to the White House Counsel's Office concerning the status of individual clemency applications pending before the President for decision (Vaughn Index Category 31) Other examples are found in Vaughn Index Categories 9, 16, 18, 19, 24, 26, and 32. See Pl. Op. Mem. at 10.

REV_00359646

In addition, of key importance to this case is the fact that the documents at issue were generated in the course of advising the President on matters relating to the exercise of his clemency authority, which is "a quintessential and nondelegable Presidential power." In re Sealed Case, 121 F.3d at 752. As a result, "in this case there is assurance that even if the President were not a party to the communications over which the government is asserting presidential privilege, these communications nonetheless are intimately connected to his presidential decisionmaking." Id. at 753.

For these reasons, the dicta relied on by plaintiff in In re Sealed Case is inapplicable to this case. See Def. Mem. at 17-19. As we have noted before, this dicta was offered in conjunction with the D.C. Circuit's stated concern that "[n]ot every person who plays a role in the development of presidential advice, no matter how remote and removed from the President, can qualify for the privilege." Id. As such, it has no application here where the President, consistent with a century-old practice, relies directly and substantially on the advice of persons at the Justice Department who are charged with assisting him in the exercise of his exclusive constitutional authority over clemency decisions.[5] Quite simply, the D.C. Circuit in In re Sealed Case did not have occasion to consider the unique role the President has assigned to the Deputy Attorney General in relation to the President's pardon decision-making process. In addition, as defendant has previously demonstrated, to exclude the documents at issue from the scope of the presidential communications privilege merely because they were generated at the Justice Department rather than the White House would arbitrarily and unconstitutionally frustrate the President in his choice of key advisors regarding the exercise of his clemency power, which is entrusted to him directly under the constitution without limit. United States v. Klein, 80 U.S.

[5] See Declaration of Roger C. Adams, U.S. Pardon Attorney, ¶¶ 2-3, 7 (Defendant's Exhibit 2)("Adams Declaration"); Declaration of Alberto R. Gonzales, Counsel to the President of the United States, ¶ 4 (explaining how the President relies on his advisors at the Justice Department to assist in his decision-making)(Defendant's Exhibit 4).

128, 147 (1871). See Def. Mem. at 18-19.

For all of these reasons the dicta in In re Sealed Case on which plaintiff relies must appropriately be limited to the context within which it was offered, which was to prevent the presidential privilege from being extended to persons who play a "remote" and "removed" role in the development of presidential advice. See 121 F.3d at 752. Because that concern does not apply to the documents at issue, summary judgment can appropriately be entered on defendant's behalf.

II. THE DELIBERATIVE PROCESS PRIVILEGE APPLIES EITHER IN WHOLE OR IN PART TO THE DOCUMENTS WITHHELD BY DEFENDANT UNDER FOIA EXEMPTION 5

Plaintiff argues that defendant's Vaughn Index insufficiently describes the documents at issue for plaintiff or the Court to determine whether the deliberative process privilege applies. See Pl. Op. Mem. at 6. More specifically, plaintiff argues that two categories of the documents identified in the Vaughn Index are inadequate: Category 5, which consists of "[s]igned letters of advice from the DAG, Acting DAG, or the Pardon Attorney to the President of the United States"; and Category 19, which consists of "[u]nsigned draft letters of advice from the DAG to the President." See defendant's Vaughn Index Categories 5, 19. Plaintiff contends that "such brief descriptions for [the] thousands of pages of documents [withheld in these categories] are not sufficient." Pl. Op. Mem. at 6.

Plaintiff's contention is refuted by the declarations submitted in support of defendant's summary judgment motion which address at length the process by which the Deputy Attorney General, with the assistance of the Pardon Attorney, provides advice to the President regarding individual pardon applications pursuant, primarily, to the "letters of advice" described in Vaughn Index Categories 5 and 19. These letters are directed to the President himself, and generally set forth a summary of essential facts relating to the pardon application in question, the grounds on Oh, one more!!

Charles Hooten - WV GOP donor. He should not receive an offical stationary letter. Correct?

Thanks for your help.

Brett -

I'm the new Katye Balls over in Presidential Correspondence.

I have a question regarding the below Memo. I just want to clarify the perameter "performing an official duty at an otherwise political event." My understanding is this would include Motorcade, volunteers or other assistance which would have been performed regardless of the nature of the trip.

Where do greeters stand on this list? I have James Tobin - Regional Political Director for the RNC and Manny Gonzales - Chairman for the Otero County GOP. They greeted POTUS. Please confirm if they should receive a letter on official stationary.

Thank you for your help. I appreciate your assistance.

MEMORANDUM FOR KATHARINE BALLS

FROM: BRETT KAVANAUGH

SUBJECT: THANK YOU NOTES

You asked about use of stationery for thank-you notes to people who may have assisted the President on a political trip or the mixed portion of an official-political trip. As a general matter, you should use political stationery only for those who assisted directly and solely with political events. You should use official stationery for notes to those who assisted with official events, who assisted on both aspects of a mixed trip, who assisted with official functions on an otherwise political trip, and for whom a clear determination cannot be made. As a general matter, for example, notes to airport greeters and motorcade drivers can be on official stationery regardless of the nature of the trip.

We will revisit these guidelines if and when the President becomes a candidate for re-election to the Presidency.

Brett:

In my continuing obsessive/compulsive series on ex-Starrs, I'm planning to do next week's notebook on John Bates. Decision is due soon on the GAO case and I wanted to note its similarities (or lack thereof) to the Hillary notes case he argued. Could we have one of those background talks and perhaps produce a nice puffy quote? Anybody else (preferably outside of govt) who could give me the fill?

Thanks much, Mr. Deputy.

Letters to greeters are probably best done on political paper, although we have discretion to do them either way based on the circumstances of a particular trip. (Also, apologies for the delay on this.)

SUBJECT: THANK YOU NOTES

You asked about use of stationery for thank-you notes to people who may have assisted the President on a political trip or the mixed portion of an official-political trip. As a general matter, you should use political stationery only for those who assisted directly and solely with political events. You should use official stationery for notes to those who assisted with official events, who assisted on both aspects of a mixed trip, who assisted with official functions on an otherwise political trip, and for whom a clear determination cannot be made. As a general matter, for example, notes to airport greeters and motorcade drivers can be on official stationery regardless of the nature of the trip.

We will revisit these guidelines if and when the President becomes a candidate for re-election to the Presidency.

Heard from ed, we're good to go with a survey in 4 CD's; these must include the following two, but we can pick and choose the other two. Since the client is steel, they ought to involve the steel issue, rather then coal or more interesting resources. the two that must be included are Shimkus in IL and Capito in WVa. Could you give me suggestions on:

what the other two districts ought to be.
what topics you would like to see included in addition to 'steel is good for america and thats why we won',

I am supposed to get back to ed early next week with a draft, so I'd really appreciate your feedback soonest.

matthew: this is fyi. If you have any thoughts on this, let me know. Call if you have questions. Thanks. Jan.

Brett, We still don't have a stay from the D.C. Circuit in the NEPDG matter. Can you please get us the documents that you pulled together from Lindsey and Bolten's offices (if you haven't already done so), so that my

I am sure you saw the latest weyrich piece praising the President, but just in case:

Right after Republicans won their unexpected victory in the off-year elections, an article appeared in the front section of The Washington Post that suggested prominent Bush aides were concerned that the Republicans were going to push those dreadful social issues.

Soon to be Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott (R- MS) said he intended to bring up the partial birth abortion bill which had passed the House by a near-two to one margin this year, but which then-Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle (D-SD) failed to call up in the Senate.

The Post piece said that Bush aides expressed dismay over this development and suggested that Bush dealing with partial birth abortion at the beginning of the 108th Congress was equivalent to Bill Clinton's calling up gays in the military as soon as he took office. Never mind that the partial birth abortion measure is favored by over 70 percent of the public, whereas Clinton's initiative on gays in the military was opposed by a similar majority.

Anyway, a senior White House aide told me that the morning that piece appeared in the Post, Bush staff members, at their regular early-morning meeting, looked at each other and said, "Who could have said that?" Later, they concluded that the piece was concocted by the Post. That paper HATES the social issues and it may be that this was their way of whistling past the graveyard.

The article had its impact, however. Social conservatives, who are used to being betrayed by Republicans, mostly believed the Post piece and were downhearted. "Once again we've been had," the leader of a national

Christian group told me. "They want our work at the grass roots level. Then as soon as they get in, they kick us in the face."

The problem is that there is no truth to the Post story. If someone did indeed give those anonymous quotes to the Post, they were not in a position to know or influence Bush's mindset on the issue. Look at the record of the Bush Administration during its first two years, just on the issue of the sanctity of life.

The administration, through the Department of Justice, formally supported the Ohio law on partial birth abortion in the courts.

The President has supported the banning of all human cloning. He urged passage of the bill to ban cloning which then passed the House but which never saw the light of day in the Senate.

Bush opposed taxpayer financed embryonic stem cell research. And he signed the Born Alive Infant Protection Act at a public ceremony.

The administration supported the child custody protection act, as well as the Abortion Non-Discrimination Act.

The administration took a highly controversial position on euthanasia as reflected in the Justice Department's work on the Oregon case.

In another controversial move, the Department of HHS issued a new regulation allowing states to use the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) to provide health coverage for prenatal care and delivery to mothers and their unborn children-helping to ensure that low income mothers have healthy pregnancies and that their babies are born healthy.

Bush cut off funding for the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) and at the same time, on the morning after his inauguration, reaffirmed the Mexico City policy, which had been established by President Ronald Reagan, but rescinded by Bill Clinton as his first official act in office. The Mexico City policy says that taxpayer funds should not be used to pay for abortions either here or abroad or to advocate or actively promote abortion.

The administration promoted adoption throughout the nation with Public Service Announcements (PSAs).

And of course the President made remarks in a call to participants at the annual March for Life and issued a proclamation on the National Sanctity of Human Life Day in 2002.

All of this just as the administration was getting itself organized and on top of many, many other pro-family initiatives.

While it is understandable that conservatives, who have been betrayed many times, would believe the Post, it is surprising in view of the record of this administration, which has done more for life than either the administrations of Ronald Reagan or Bush's father.

Of course, there is more to be done. All late-term abortions - not just partial birth abortions - should be outlawed. The Abortion Non-Discrimination Act and the Child Custody Protection Act didn't see action in the Senate so they should be passed again by the House and this time by the Senate and signed into law by the President. The same for the cloning ban, as well as the Unborn Victims of Violence Act. And there is the Vitter amendment that deals with Planned Parenthood.

And, of course, there is the issue of confirming the President's outstanding nominees for the federal judiciary. Senator Daschle has made it clear that his Democrats will filibuster any judicial nominee in whom they can find any trace of pro-life sentiment. That was why he went to the trouble of getting 45 votes against Sen. Strom Thurmond's nominee for the court of appeals, Dennis Shedd. It takes 41 votes to sustain a filibuster and Daschle wanted Bush to understand he can stop any judge he wishes.

Having won back control of the Senate with strongly pro-life candidates, it is highly unlikely that the Bush Administration will cut and run on the life issues now. On the contrary, the impressive record of the administration suggests that it will continue on the path it started on the day after Bush's inauguration when he re-instated the Mexico City policy.

I'm the new Katye Balls over in Presidential Correspondence.

I have a question regarding the below Memo. I just want to clarify the perameter "performing an official duty at an otherwise political event." My understanding is this would include Motorcade, volunteers or other assistance which would have been performed regardless of the nature of the trip.

Where do greeters stand on this list? I have James Tobin - Regional Political Director for the RNC and Manny Gonzales - Chairman for the Otero County GOP. They greeted POTUS. Please confirm if they should receive a letter on official stationary.

Thank you for your help. I appreciate your assistance.

if it answers your questions, then i'm comfortable with it. one conern: it addresses the logistical and volunteer personnel, but not the actual participants (the ones that would typically be for HS) in the events - the candidate, his family, other event hosts, etc.

for example, which stationery should the president use to thank the kennedy's, who hosted a finance event for gov. jeb bush at their residence on friday?

MEMORANDUM FOR KATHARINE BALLS

SUBJECT: THANK YOU NOTES

You asked about use of stationery for thank-you notes to people who may have assisted the President on a political trip or the mixed portion of an official-political trip. As a general matter, you should use political stationery only for those who assisted directly and solely with political events. You should use official stationery for notes to those who assisted with official events, who assisted on both aspects of a mixed trip, who assisted with official functions on an otherwise political trip, and for whom a clear determination cannot be made. As a general matter, for example, notes to airport greeters and motorcade drivers can be on official stationery regardless of the nature of the trip.

We will revisit these guidelines if and when the President becomes a candidate for re-election to the Presidency.

Texas Sodomy Law Challenge in Supreme Court
Mon December 2, 2002 10:10 AM ET
WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The U.S. Supreme Court said on Monday it would decide a challenge to a Texas law that makes it a crime for gays and lesbians to have consensual sex in their own homes, agreeing to consider overruling its 1986 decision that upheld state sodomy laws.

The high court said it would hear an appeal by two men convicted of engaging in "homosexual conduct." They argued the law violates constitutional privacy and equal protection rights, subjecting gays to criminal penalties while allowing different-sex couples to engage in the same conduct.

The justices also said they would consider overturning their 5-4 ruling in 1986 that handed gay rights advocates a defeat by declaring that homosexuals have no constitutional right to engage in sodomy.

I'm traveling tomorrow in business but plan on calling when I get back. As I mentioned, I'm very excited about being considered for a WH Counsel slot and believe I would bring a lot to your operation. My skill set and background is obviously a little different than the normal clerkship crew, but I think that having somebody who knows the Hill inside and out and has worked on many of the substantive and constitutional issues that your office has to grapple with would be extremely useful to you guys heading into years 3 and 4. I'll wait until we get a chance to talk to make the full selling pitch, but I'd appreciate your help and support, whether you're in your current slot or moving on up as the papers would indicate is a possibility. I understand from Brad that my name is on whatever loose lists are floating around and obviously hope I get a chance to present myself to Judge Gonzales. I've been advised not to unleash my references, which run the gamut from Sen. Nickles to Judge Wilkinson to Clement, until after I get a formal interview scheduled. Attached is a resume that might refresh your memory a bit on my background - this was sent to the judge about 10 days ago.

Hey, Manny, could you email me the names of the other notables coming in to brief your folks? I just want to let Matt Schlapp know who else will be on your agenda. Thanks!

Subject: Thursday 3:45 pm

Note change, we will begin promptly at 3:45. So be in your seats.
This Thursday afternoon, from 3:45 to 5:30, we will have a series of voter analysis presentations to help the Judiciary Committee and friends better understand the American people, including a very professional presentation from White House staff. The presentations will be in the Utah Room (SH 104). These presentations will help us better understand how some of our issues played in the election, and help us hone our messages in the two years ahead. (If there is a particular question you might wnat addressed with forethought, please send.?
You and your colleagues are cordially invited. Please RSVP.

My friend

Sounds very good. Fyi: the 12th is very bad for me: two events with POTUS.

May we think about between 2-4 pm on the 11th?

I would be in your debt.

Warmly

tsg

Subject: Tony Feather meeting

Tony is coming to town next week and I'd like to arrange a meeting for all of us if possible. While I've obviously been communicating regularly with him, I think it's time for him to sit down and talk with y'all about moving forward next year. He obviously has broader political knowledge than I do and will provide helpful insight, as well as gain insight from the meeting that he can take to others as PFA rolls out it's '03 plan. The main topic will be strategy for USSC, so we can plan accordingly, but there will be no set agenda - just an informal back & forth. He will be in town on the 11-12 and I'm still waiting to find his availability.

Please consider this email a heads up, and I'll get back to you by early next week with times and we'll see what we can work out for everyone. Thanks - I think this will be helpful and hope you'll be willing to join. Of course others are welcome if you think appropriate. JO

Subject: Meeting on the 12th

I am about to send you the list of the dozen people who are coming, Brett.
I have their Soc and DOB listed along with the organizations they are representing. I wanted to check and make sure we still are on for 5:00 on the 12th.

You have been getting lots of good ink recently, especially along the line of possible job promotions. Wherever you go, it has been terrific working with you. You will be an asset to the administration from any position they have for you because your qualities of being a good listener and an effective articulator of administration positions travel well wherever one is.

Warm Wishes,

Martha

Tony is coming to town next week and I'd like to arrange a meeting for all of us if possible. While I've obviously been communicating regularly with him, I think it's time for him to sit down and talk with y'all about moving forward next year. He obviously has broader political knowledge than I do and will provide helpful insight, as well as gain insight from the meeting that he can take to others as PFA rolls out it's '03 plan. The main topic will be strategy for USSC, so we can plan accordingly, but there will be no set agenda - just an informal back & forth. He will be in town on the 11-12
and I'm still waiting to find his availability.

Please consider this email a heads up, and I'll get back to you by early next week with times and we'll see what we can work out for everyone. Thanks - I think this will be helpful and hope you'll be willing to join. Of course others are welcome if you think appropriate. JO

I think the process issues here warrant further discussion with a quick meeting of the three of us. My schedule is basically open Friday except between 2 and 4.

Below are 2 emailed questions that we got some time ago from the Minority and have either not answered yet or the answers we gave spawned more questions. Since we are about to implement a new procedure---- whereby all Hill questions will come in writing to your offices first and then you'll determine which will be "farmed out" for answers that you'll provide the formal answer back to the Committee---- I wonder if we should use these questions as the first one's to be handled by this new procedure?? If so, you can send them the notification letter to this effect and then follow the new procedure if they ask these questions via a letter from the Chairman or ranking Minority Member... whatcha' think??

Tim

Liz --

We've already approved the VP's reprogramming so it's a little late to be mentioning this but...

in the e-mail below, Chip asked for a list of all VP travel in FEY and FEY. The lists we were provided seem to leave off dozens of trips. I noticed this when I was looking back to see when he visited my hometown -- Fayetteville, AR. It's nowhere to be found on the list. As I looked further, I don't see most of the VP's trips. In April alone, I found mentions in the news of Cheney travel to Denver, Fayetteville, Charleston

WV, Richmond, Long Island, Ft. Lauderdale and Orlando that aren't on the list. Also, what happened to the 100% political trips? Why aren't they on the list?

We asked for all the trips -- not just some of the list. Now that I've noticed so many trips missing, I'd like to see the entire list as originally requested (excluding travel to secure locations). I'd also like a list of the traveling VP staff positions that are classified as "official" travelers even on a 100% political trip.

I know you have a lot going so we can talk about this after the current CR crisis subsides. I just noticed this today and wanted to get it to you for a response as soon as possible.

Thanks.

Mike

Liz --

I have a couple of questions about reimbursements for political activities.

1) Who reimbursed the Executive Residence for the White House reception for Congressional leadership held earlier this week (on the 16th, I think)? Has the organization been billed for this event yet? Has the organization paid the bill yet?

2) What steps have been taken to reimburse the government for the political activity undertaken by Jennifer Hugo when she sent political e-mails using her official EOP e-mail account? What is the formula for determining the cost to the government of this political activity? What is the amount to be reimbursed to the government? To which organization was the bill sent? Has the organization reimbursed the government yet? To which EOP agency will the reimbursement be credited?

Thanks.

Mike

Filed On:

In re: Richard B. Cheney, Vice President of the United States et al., Petitioners

FOR DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT
FILED DEC - 6 2002
CLERK

No. 02-5355

Judicial Watch, Inc., Appellee

v.

National Energy Policy Development Group, et al., Appellees

Richard B. Cheney, Vice President of the United States, Appellant

Consolidated with 02-5356

BEFORE: Edwards, Sentelle, and Tatel, Circuit Judges

ORDER

Upon consideration of the petition for writ of mandamus, the response thereto, and the reply; the motions to dismiss, the response thereto, and the reply; the motion for stay pending appeal, the response thereto, and the reply, it is ORDERED, on the court's own motion, that the above-captioned cases be consolidated. It is FURTHER ORDERED, on the court's own motion, that the Clerk schedule these cases for oral argument in the normal course. The cases will be considered on the basis of the pleadings previously filed by the parties. It is

United States Court of Appeals

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT

No. 02-5354 September Term, 2002

FURTHER ORDERED, on the court's own motion, that the district court's orders under review in these actions be stayed pending further order of the court. The purpose of this administrative stay is to give the court sufficient opportunity to consider the merits of the case and should not be construed in any way as a ruling on the merits. See D.C. Circuit Handbook of Practice and Internal Procedures 32-33 (2002).

My friend

Sounds very good. Fyi: the 12th is very bad for me: two events with POTUS.

May we think about between 2-4 pm on the 11th?

I would be in your debt.

Warmly

tsg

Subject: Tony Feather meeting

Tony is coming to town next week and I'd like to arrange a meeting for all of us if possible. While I've obviously been communicating regularly with him, I think it's time for him to sit down and talk with y'all about moving forward next year. He obviously has broader political knowledge than I do and will provide helpful insight, as well as gain insight from the meeting that he can take to others as PFA rolls out it's '03 plan. The main topic will be strategy for USSC, so we can plan accordingly, but there will be no set agenda - just an informal back & forth. He will be in town on the 11-12
and I'm still waiting to find his availability.

Please consider this email a heads up, and I'll get back to you by early next week with times and we'll see what we can work out for everyone. Thanks - I think this will be helpful and hope you'll be willing to join. Of course others are welcome if you think appropriate. JO

Subject: Remarks by President today in Mississippi

And I want to say something as clearly as I can about why we need to control the United States Senate. I put a good man up named Judge Pickering for a higher court -- (applause) -- and the people who control the Senate maligned this good man's character. They didn't treat him right. It's not good for America to have this kind of politics -- take a good person and not treat him well, not give him the benefit of the doubt. We need to change the United States Senate, so that we end this kind of politics on the judiciary and allow good people, good, honorable judges to serve our nation. The Senate did wrong by Judge Pickering. I did right by naming him to the bench. (Applause.)

so that we have this information collected in one place . . .

September 25 NRSC dinner

And for a stronger America, we need good judges. We need people who will not write the law from the benches, but people who strictly interpret the Constitution. I have been appalled at what has taken place in the United States Senate recently. I named two good judges, one from Mississippi and one from my home state of Texas -- Charles Pickering, Pricilla Owen. Their records were distorted. I don't think they were given a fair hearing. Special interests got a hold of the committee. It is not right that these two fine, fine people were denied the bench.

Soon the Senate will take up the nomination of Miguel Estrada. Miguel Estrada is an excellent lawyer. He's a fine man. He's an American success story. The Senate should not play politics with this nomination, for he will be an outstanding judge. One of the reasons to change the United States Senate is to make sure the good judges I nominate get a fair hearing, a swift vote, and approval. (Applause.)

August 7 in Mississippi

And I want to say something as clearly as I can about why we need to control the United States Senate. I put a good man up named Judge Pickering for a higher court -- (applause) -- and the people who control the Senate maligned this good man's character. They didn't treat him right. It's not good for America to have this kind of politics -- take a good person and not treat him well, not give him the benefit of the doubt. We need to change the United States Senate, so that we end this kind of politics on the judiciary and allow good people, good, honorable judges to serve our nation. The Senate did wrong by Judge Pickering. I did right by naming him to the bench. (Applause.)

President's written statement after vote on Pickering

I am deeply disappointed that Judge Charles Pickering, a distinguished judge who was unanimously confirmed by the Senate in the past, is being denied the opportunity to further serve his country. The action of the Senate Judiciary Committee to refuse Judge Pickering a vote by the full Senate leaves another empty seat in the federal judiciary at a time when we face a vacancy crisis. It was unfortunate for democracy and unfortunate for America.

Judge Pickering has earned the praise and support of those who know him and know his record best -- both Democrats and Republicans from his home state of Mississippi. They know him to be a fair and measured judge, an advocate of civil rights and a dedicated member of his community. He has served with distinction, and deserves better than to be blocked by a party line vote of ten Senators on one Committee. The voice of the entire Senate deserves to be heard.

President's remarks the day before the vote on Pickering

Tomorrow the Senate Judiciary Committee will vote on the nomination of Charles Pickering to serve on the United States Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit. Judge Pickering is a respected and well-qualified nominee who was unanimously confirmed 12 years ago to the District bench. His nomination deserves a full vote, a vote in a full Senate. I strongly urge his confirmation.

While tomorrow's vote is about one man, a much larger principle is also at stake. Under our Constitution, the President has the right and responsibility to nominate qualified judges, and the Legislative Branch has the responsibility to vote on them in a fair and timely manner. This process determines the quality of justice in America, and it demands that both the President and Senate act with care and integrity, with wisdom and deep respect for the Constitution.
Unfortunately, we are seeing a disturbing pattern, where too often judicial confirmations are being turned into ideological battles that delay justice and hurt our democracy. We now face a situation in which a handful of United States senators on one committee have made it clear that they will block nominees, even highly-qualified, well-respected nominees, who do not share the senators' view of the bench, of the federal courts. They seek to undermine the nominations of candidates who agree with my philosophy that judges should interpret the law, not try to make law from the bench.

And because these senators fear the outcome of a fair vote in the full Senate, they're using tactics of delay. As a result, America is facing a vacancy crisis in the federal judiciary. Working with both Republicans and Democrats, I have nominated 92 highly-qualified, highly-respected individuals to serve as federal judges. These are men and women who will respect and follow the law. Yet the Senate has confirmed only 40 of these 92 nominees, and only 7 of the 29 nominees to the circuit courts, the courts of last resort in a vast majority of cases.

This is unacceptable. It is a bad record for the Senate. The Senate has an obligation to provide fair hearings and prompt votes to all nominees, no matter who controls the Senate or who controls the White House. By failing to allow full Senate votes on judicial nominees, a few senators are standing in the way of justice. This is wrong, and the American people deserve better.

Ken - I need to get in touch with someone at homeland defense at as high a level as possible. We have a site in Washington DC that would work VERY well from a standpoint of setbacks, location to capitol hill, size, parking.
Do you know who reports to Tom Ridge with regard to their pending facilities requirements? If you know them well enough, can you warm up a call for a meeting? Don't want to impose on you but this would be an excellent site for HD and they should really consider it as a possible location.

Please call me if you can.

Thanks

Hi Brett,
I hope that you're doing well.
I've had great fun teaching this year -- especially my very favorite course: National Security Law. Even though I've taught it a couple of times before, it seemed like a brand new course this time around. Funny how current events require us to keep current on the law . . .
I'm checking in to see whether you can be persuaded to take an hour out of your day and talk with my students about attorney-client privilege and executive privilege.
Is Monday, January 27th a possibility for you?
Take care,
--Kathleen

Roger: My assistant Raquel is calling you about the flights and to obtain a credit card from you, which is necessary under our rules. I plan to arrive at 1:30 on Monday at Des Moines. If the weather looks bad, I will switch that morning to an earlier flight to make sure there are no problems.

Attached are the President's book-end speeches (May 9, 2001, and October 30, 2002) on the judicial confirmation process, which I will discuss during my remarks. I suggest that you include them in the CLE materials.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
DURING FEDERAL JUDICIAL APPOINTEES ANNOUNCEMENT

May 9, 2001
The East Room

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you all very much. Attorney General, it's good to see you, sir, and happy birthday. Today is his birthday. Also, Judge Al Gonzales. Judge Gonzales is a great friend of mine who, fortunately, is my lawyer and is a part of the process, judicial selection process. Thank you for being here, Judge.

I'm also honored to welcome members of the United States Senate who are here to welcome the nominees to Washington: of course, Senator Orrin Hatch, Chairman of the Judiciary; as well as Senator Patrick Leahy, ranking member on the Judiciary. It's good to see you men, thank you both for coming.

John Warner, George Allen, George Voinovich and last, but not least, Senator Strom Thurmond. Welcome. (Applause.) Thank you all for coming.

I'm pleased to welcome my judicial nominees to the White House. And I'm pleased to welcome their family and friends, as well.

This is a proud moment for all of you, and it's a proud moment for me, as well. A President has fewer greater responsibilities than that of nominating men and women to the courts of the United States. A federal judge holds a position of great influence and respect, and can hold it for a lifetime.

When a President chooses a judge, he is placing in human hands the authority and majesty of the law. He owes it to the Constitution and to the country to choose with care. I have done so.

With me this afternoon are my first 11 judicial nominees, individuals of experience and character. Four of them serve as United States district judges, all four confirmed by unanimous votes. Two others are sitting judges on state supreme courts. Four have served as law clerks in the Supreme Court of the United States. One has served here as an associate counsel to the President. One already holds the position for which I nominate him, by recess appointment of President Clinton.

These men and women have followed different paths to this nomination. They come from diverse backgrounds, and will bring a wide range of experience to the bench. All have sterling credentials and have met high standards of legal training, temperament and judgment.

As a group, they command broad, bipartisan support among those who know them and who have served with them. I submit their names to the Senate with full confidence that they will satisfy any test of judicial merit.

These first nominations are also an opportunity to outline the standards by which I will choose all federal judges. The American people expect judges of the highest caliber, and my nominees will meet that test. A judge, by the most basic measure, has an obligation shared by the President and members of Congress. All of us are constitutional officers, sworn to serve within the limits of our Constitution and laws. When we observe those limits, we exercise our rightful power. When we exceed those limits, we abuse our powers.

Every judge I appoint will be a person who clearly understands the role of a judge is to interpret the law, not to legislate from the bench. To paraphrase the third occupant of this house, James Madison, the courts exist to exercise not the will of men, but the judgment of law. My judicial nominees will know the difference. Understanding this will make them more effective in the defense of rights guaranteed under the Constitution, the enforcement of our laws, and more effective in assuming that justice is done to the guilty and for the innocent.

My standard is informed by the oath that each judge will take: to administer justice without respect to persons, and to do equal right to poor and to the rich. A good judge exercises these powers with discernment, courage and humility. These are commitments, not just to philosophy, but of character.

My nominees today and in the years to come will be notable for their distinction and accomplishments. And all will be exceptional for their humanity and their integrity. With today's 11 nominees, we continue a constitutional process that involves all three branches of government.

For many weeks now, we have sought and received advice from senators of both parties. I now submit these nominations in good faith, trusting that good faith will also be extended by the United States Senate. Over the years, we have seen how the confirmation process can be turned to other ends. We have seen political battles played out in committee hearings -- battles that have little to do with the merits of the person sitting before the committee.

This is not good for the Senate, for our courts or for the country.

There are, today, over a hundred vacancies on the federal courts, causing backlogs, frustration and delay of justice. I urge senators of both parties to rise above the bitterness of the past, to provide a fair hearing and a prompt vote to every nominee. That should be the case for no matter who lives in this house, and no matter who controls the senate.

I ask for the return of civility and dignity to the confirmation process. And with this distinguished group of nominees awaiting confirmation, there is no better opportunity than right now. I congratulate all of you on your service past, and for your service to come.

God bless. (Applause.)

ON JUDICIAL CONFIRMATIONS

October 30, 2002
The East Room

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you all very much. Thank you, Al. He's -- everybody must have a good lawyer, and I got one in Al Gonzales.

I want to welcome you all here to the White House. Thank you for coming.

The federal courts play a central role in American justice, protecting the innocent, punishing the guilty, resolving disputes and upholding the rule of law. Yet, today, our federal courts are in crisis.

The judicial confirmation process does not work as it should. Nominees are too often mistreated, votes are delayed, hearings are denied, and dozens of federal judgeships sit empty, and this endangers the quality of justice in America.

Everyone knows these facts. Everyone knows the system isn't working. These concerns are not new. And we will not find a solution in an endless cycle of blame and bitterness.

Today, I'm proposing a clean start for the process of nominating and confirming federal judges. We must have an even-handed, predictable procedure from the day a vacancy is announced to the day a new judge is sworn in. This procedure should apply now and in the future, no matter who lives in this house or who controls the Senate. We must return fairness and dignity to the judicial confirmation process.

I want to thank the Judge Al Gonzales for working on this initiative and I want to thank his team for working hard. I appreciate John Ashcroft's service to our country; he is a great Attorney General. (Applause.) And I'm not saying that just because his wife and her twin sister are here. (Laughter.)

I'm so pleased that Ted Olson, the Solicitor General, is with us. I thank Fred Fielding, the former counsel to President Ronald Reagan. Boyd Gray is with us, former counsel to Number 41. Dennis Archer is with us today, President-elect of the American Bar Association and, of course, the former mayor of Detroit. Mr. Mayor, thank you for coming. Thomas Hayward, Chair of the Committee of Federal Judicial Improvements for the American Bar Association. And all of you, thank you for your interest in this subject.

Nearly 18 months ago, at an event right here in the East Room, I introduced my first 11 nominees to the Court of Appeals. I urged Senators of both parties to provide a fair hearing and a prompt vote to each nominee. Thus far, only three of these 11 nominations have been brought to a vote in the United States Senate.

The eight who are stalled in the Judiciary Committee include people such as John Roberts. John Roberts has argued 38 cases before the Supreme Court. He has served as Deputy Solicitor General of the United States. He's widely regarded as one of the best Supreme Court lawyers in America.

And they include Miguel Estrada, who has argued 15 cases before the U.S. Supreme Court, and has served in the Justice Department under Presidents of both political parties as a federal prosecutor and as the Assistant to the Solicitor General.

The Judiciary Committee has prevented full Senate action on people such as Priscilla Owen, who has served brilliantly on the Texas Supreme Court since 1995, and was overwhelmingly reelected by the people of Texas in the year 2000. Mr. Roberts, Mr. Estrada and Justice Owen have the highest ratings from the American Bar Association, which some Democrat Senators have called, "the gold standard." They have broad support among lawyers in both political parties. Both Mr. Roberts and Mr. Estrada have the support of former President Clinton's Solicitor General. Justice Owen is supported by three former Democrat justices of the Texas Supreme Court.

In all, I have sent to the Senate 32 nominees for the Court of Appeals. They are well qualified men and women with experience, intelligence, character and bipartisan home state support. They represent the mainstream of American law and American values. Yet the Senate has confirmed only 14 of these 32 nominees, which is far below the pace of past Senates at the start of an administration. It's a lousy record. Not one of my nine pending nominees to fill vacancies on the Sixth and D.C. Circuit Courts has received a Senate vote, not one. As of November, 15 of my Appeals Court nominees will have been forced to wait over a year for a hearing. That's more in this Presidency than under the previous nine Presidents combined.

There's no good reason why any nominee should endure a year, a year-and-a-half, or more, without the courtesy of an up or down floor vote; there is not one good reason why. Whatever the explanation, we clearly have a poisoned and polarized atmosphere in which well qualified nominees are neither voted up or down; they are just left in limbo. This is unfair to the nominees and their families. This process discourages good people from serving as judges. It's also unfair to the courts themselves, which are forced to handle a growing caseload without the judges they need.

Nine percent of all federal judgeships in America are now vacant, nine percent. Of the 12 regional Courts of Appeals, the courts right below the Supreme Court, there is a 17 percent vacancy rate. The Court of Appeals for the D.C. Court, which rules on many significant Constitutional and regulatory issues, now operates with one-third of its judgeships empty. And the Sixth Court of Appeals which covers Kentucky and Ohio, Michigan and Tennessee, is nearly half empty, with nine active judges doing the work of 16.

Meanwhile, the number of federal appeal court filings reached an all-time high this year. Benches are empty, the number of court filings has increased to an all-time high. We can expect them to increase even further as a result of the war on terror, corporate fraud prosecutions, and issues arising out of the September the 11th attacks.

The judicial vacancies go unfulfilled, we will see more crowded dockets and longer delays. The federal courts will be unable to act in a timely manner to protect constitutional rights, to resolve civil disputes, and enforce the criminal laws, the environmental laws, and the civil rights laws that affects the lives and liberties of every single American. Chief Justice Rehnquist has called this situation alarming. The American Bar Association's report has described the current status of the federal judiciary as an emergency situation.

The judicial crisis is the result of a broken system, and we have a duty to repair it. I want to work with the Senate to fashion a new approach to filling federal court vacancies. We should leave behind the arguments and grievances of the past. We need to fix this problem together. That's why we've come to Washington, to fix problems. And each branch of government can contribute and must contribute to a better system.

So today, I'm offering four specific proposals to break the logjam in Washington and bring the federal courts of appeals and district courts to full strength.

First, I call on federal judges on the courts of appeals and district courts to notify the President of their intention to retire at least a year in advance, whenever this is possible. Because the nomination and confirmation of a federal judge is a lengthy process under the best of circumstances, judges who retire without advance notice can unintentionally create a judicial vacancy that can last for many months. The request for one year advance notice builds on existing policy of the judiciary and will help us work toward a system in which a new federal judge is ready to take the bench on a day the sitting judge retires -- that's the goal.

Second, I propose that Presidents submit a nomination to the Senate within 180 days of receiving notice of a federal court vacancy or intended retirement. In other words, we have a responsibility as well to make sure the judiciary is sound and whole. This will speed up the sometimes time-consuming process of obtaining recommendations and evaluations from home-state senators and representatives and governors and bar leaders, while leaving ample time for Presidents to vet and choose nominees of the highest quality.

Third, I call on the Senate Judiciary -- Senate Judiciary Committee to commit to holding a hearing within 90 days of receiving a nomination. A strict deadline is the best way to ensure that judicial nominees are promptly and fairly considered. And 90 days is more than enough time for the committee to conduct necessary research before holding a hearing -- that's plenty of time.

Finally, I call on the full Senate to commit to an up or down floor vote on each nominee no later than 180 days after the nomination is submitted. This is a very generous period of time that will allow all the Senators to evaluate nominees and have their votes counted.

Our proposals would not favor Democrats or Republicans. The plan would be fair and would apply to -- regardless of who the President is. It doesn't matter who the President is. What matters is a system which works.

For the first time in years, the judicial confirmation process would work as it was intended to work. All Senators would have a chance to make their voices heard, and their views known, and that's important. All nominees would have the certainty of an up or down Senate floor vote within a reasonable period of time, and that is important. All Presidents would know that their judicial nominations would be addressed promptly. All Americans would see a more dignified process, and have their federal courts fully staffed to protect their rights and their liberties. And the vacancy crisis would be resolved once and for all.

I urge every member of the Senate, in particular those serving on the Judiciary Committee, to carefully consider this new beginning for the judicial nomination process, to weigh their responsibilities, to look at the vacancy problem we have, to act in a responsible fashion.

The failure of the judicial confirmation process is harming the administration of justice in America. That is a fact. The current state of affairs is not merely another round of political wrangling. It is a disturbing failure to meet our responsibilities under the Constitution. The Constitution has given us a shared duty and we must meet that duty together.

Thank you all for coming.

We are unlikely to have an e-mail account set up for Mr. Snow, per guidance from Judge Gonzales. Thanks. I will let you know if that changes.

An invite from Aimee and Michael Fleischer - hope you can join us!

Everyone is leaving Washington-- but not you...

No, it's soon going to be Saturday, the 21st of December and you'll still be here, wondering how things can possibly have become so quiet.

Well, wonder no more. The Fleischer's have solved the problem of what to do on the Saturday before Christmas, and solved it in fine style, indeed.

So do something that night. Meet up with the other people who didn't know enough to get out when the getting was good.

Join us for a Holiday Buffet (and drinks, too) at 7:30 p.m.

Aimee and Michael's 1654 35th Street NW
RSVP 202-944-9640

Subject: NO E-MAIL SUNDAY-- FINAL REMINDERS
Author: Brian Wikner
Date: 12/13/2002 4:01 PM

Please be aware that the cc:Mail system will be shut down (permanently) around noon this Sunday to get an early start on next week's conversion.
Hopefully
this will help reduce the amount of downtime projected for next week. You should, however, still plan on not having e-mail Sunday afternoon through Thursday.

Thanks for your patience and continued assistance with this migration.

Is Ken allowed to be an honorary host to a fundraiser? I believe he might only be allowed to be "with special guest The Honorable Ken Mehlman". Please let me know the guidelines. thanks.

Hi Ken,

You and I met in July of this year, when you were kind enough to appear at an event that Jim Brandell and I put together for Congresswoman Morella. We very much appreciated your interest and assistance, and I know that Connie did, as well.

Some of her longtime staffers and loyal fans are putting together a tribute dinner in Montgomery County for her on Wednesday, January 29th, and we'd love it if you could participate with us. If your schedule permits you to join us, that would be terrific, but if not, we'd love to have you as an honorary host. Governor Ehrlich will be with us, as well as numerous friends of Connie's from the Congress and the Administration, we anticipate. The event is not a fundraiser (only a nominal fee will be charged to defray some costs); instead, it's a chance for Connie to be surrounded and feted by those of us who have appreciated her work and mettle over so many years.

I know that she'd love to have you on board in some fashion and, I'd be happy to provide you with further details as we iron them out.

Thanks in advance for your consideration.

Best,
Mario Correa

In observance of the Holiday Season, the White House Mess will close on Tuesday, December 24, 2002 at 3:00pm and will reopen on regular schedule on Thursday, December 26, 2002. It will be closed during the weekend of December 28-29, 2002 reopening Monday, December 30, 2002. On Tuesday, December 31, 2002, the Mess will close at 3:00pm until January 2, 2003. If the need arises, we will change this schedule to accommodate staff members.

Thank you.

All:

I wanted to take some time before I left today, my last day, and thank all of you for being such wonderful people and such great assets for our country. I have enjoyed working with each of you and encourage any of you to contact me if you ever make it down in the direction of Charleston. I would be happy to hear from you.

Judge Me By My Work, Not My Faith
By Douglas W. Kmiec

WASHINGTON -- Last week, the New York Times reported that President Bush was considering nominating me to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. While many friends from my days in the Justice Department, former students now practicing at law firms across the country, and sitting judges wrote or called to encourage this development, a stark, inside-the- Beltway question emerged from the report: Can an avowedly pro-life Catholic actually serve on such court?

The Times noted fairly that over my 25 years teaching law, I have "written about the need for judges to interpret the Constitution with an eye to what . . . scholars call 'natural law."' Properly, the report traced this conviction not to a particular religious belief but to the country's fundamental incorporation document -- the Declaration of Independence.

It was my assumption that the average, well-informed citizen would find all this to be rather more basic than controversial, but this is not the way of activists with fax machines in Washington. By the afternoon, the speculation of my nomination produced an overly heated press release from an organization that styles itself the Alliance for Justice -- a group that generally opposes Bush nominees, but apparently has a special dislike for those who are pro-life.

The president of Alliance for Justice, Nan Aron, commented: "Kmiec's record reflects a . . . philosophy opposing a woman's right to choose," noting that I testified some years ago before Congress that "abortion is more than the killing, it is also the coarsening of the American heart . . . abortion undermines all life." Ms. Aron and her organization also expressed dislike for other aspects of my scholarship, such as my urging of just compensation for property owners confronted with excessive regulation, or my inquiring into whether various federal enactments were consistent with the powers granted to Congress.

These are my writings. Put in their full context, I stand by them. As reporter James Meeks for the Los Angeles Daily Journal noted, "a closer look at that testimony shows that, while he clearly is anti-abortion, the former Notre Dame law professor demonstrated in his testimony a broader view of abortion's impact on society. In fact, Kmiec stated then: '. . . abortion invites male irresponsibility and skyrocketing rates of illegitimacy that plague every part of this nation; . . . abortion insinuates the cold formality and language of 'rights' into places, like the relations between husband and wife and parent and child, where only duty and fidelity can sustain marriages, form homes and build communities . . . ."'

Does someone with this strong embrace of life and family warrant a presidential nomination to the federal bench? That is hardly for me to say, and I am not campaigning for appointment. I like teaching far too much for that, and I fully recognize that judicial service would preclude other counsel that I may now freely share with government leaders in these times of national emergency. I will point out, however, that as Ms. Aron and her counterparts frame the question, it is irrelevant. Transparent moral beliefs and a gratitude for the gift of life may be measures of the quality of a person; they are not, however, the most appropriate or direct yardstick for sizing up a potential federal appellate judge.

Why not an appropriate yardstick? Because disqualifying a person from a federal post on the basis of his religious or moral beliefs cuts deeply against the guarantee of religious freedom secured in the First Amendment; it might even contravene the Article VI admonition that "no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office or public Trust under the United States." And why not a direct yardstick? Because the job of a federal appellate judge is far more straightforward than these intractable issues -- issues that, in the end, must be resolved as best we can within our many communities, informed less by top-down government edict than by bottom-up moral, religious and family belief.

By contrast, a federal appellate judge must understand the law as written by the legislature. He must have a good grasp of the facts as determined at trial, listen and consider fairly the opposing positions presented by the litigants, and write an opinion that follows the precedents established by the Supreme Court and the decisions of his circuit. A member of the federal judiciary is not to sit as philosopher-king, telling the elected branches -- either the Congress or the president -- which of the thousands of policy alternatives it must choose. Nor is the task of an appellate judge to find, in the text of the Constitution, rights which are inconsistent with the first principles of our nation, which, as recorded in the Declaration, are self-evident.

"All. . . are created equal . . . endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Governments, Jefferson reminded us, derive power from the consent of the people, and are fashioned to preserve those rights. All judges are bound by these postulates. Each in his respective operations must never be unmindful of them, lest he invite "government to be destructive of these ends." By founding design, a federal appellate judge is more likely to be faithful in this duty if he fully comprehends our Constitution, which is carefully etched with provisions that create overlapping checks and balances at the federal level and a federal-state division of authority.

So then, can a pro-life Catholic serve as an appellate judge? Of course. As much as someone without those beliefs could, if both accepted the constitutional structure, possessed sufficient legal study, and demonstrated personal traits that ensure the evenhanded application of the law. Some say the D.C. Circuit is the second most significant federal bench in the land. By location and docket it may be. Yet for those whose lives, liberties or economic fortunes are in jeopardy, any court hearing one's case has that importance, for it is there that some hope of justice remains.

Mr. Kmiec is the dean and St. Thomas More professor of Law at the Catholic University of America School of Law. He is a former assistant attorney general in the Office of Legal Counsel in the Reagan and first Bush administrations.

I have received about 6 emails in the last week from people requesting a pardon. Can I send a short response so they will stop? Or should I just ignore. They are addressed to the President, Ken, and Karl and request a meeting.

Dear Mr. Mehlman,

I'm writing this letter on behalf of my Pastor, Dino Gentile who is currently in prison for being wrongfully accused. I strongly request for mercy, pardon and clemency for this righteous man of God. Dino is an innocent man who is devoted and faithful to his family, church and God. Everyone believes that this was a plan of the enemy to have our pastor be put in prison or to be dead. This precious man of God knows that he is fighting a spiritual battle and even though he is in prison he puts his hope, trust and faith in our lord and savior Jesus Christ. He continues to do Gods work by preaching the word, baptizing in Jesus name, ministering to others and praying that one day he will be free and be with his wife and his two precious daughters and continue his faithful walk in God. I have been so bless to have met my Pastor, God has anointed and use this man to touch my heart and my families as well. I admire his courage to care and help those who are lost in this world. I don't know where I woul d have been without the help and spiritual guidance of my pastor and the church members. When I met my wife I invited her to this Church that Dino Gentile established and her life began to change tremendously and still to this moment she continues to be amazed on how powerful this church is. We are blessed to have weekly Bible studies, mens prayer and marriage counseling when needed. This man continues have visions and one of them is save souls and guide them to eternal life.

We believe that Dino Gentile should be free, So please make this an urgency, this is very important to us have mercy and let there be pardon and justice for this man because he is a righteous man who loves Jesus with all heart mind and soul.

Sincerely,

Levyn Polanco

Hi All: I am currently putting together an "Easter Invitational" Golf

Tournament to be held on April 17th, 18th, and 19th, 2003 in Washington, DC

at Westfield's Golf Club. The format will be similar to Joe Bailey's

"Chicken City Open", with a Calcutta, plenty of side bets, and (36 holes of a two man (team) best ball and 36 holes of a two man (team) scramble).

The

tournament information package, which will explain everything, is being assembled and I will mail it out once I have everyone's mailing address.

If possible, can you please e-mail me back with your current mailing address.

Because the tournament will be held during the Easter weekend, I am encouraging everyone to include their families when traveling to DC. I will make tickets available for the White House Easter Egg Role, Hosted by The President and Mrs. Bush on the South Lawn of the White House on Easter

Monday, April 21, 2003. I will also attempt to provide White House Tours to those of you who have never seen the White House and assistance with your lodging needs. If you are interested please shoot me your mailing address and I will send you an info package. Have a Merry Christmas and I will talk to you soon. Spencer

Per our meeting last Friday, we plan to circulate later today a DRAFT memo concerning a number of issues raised with respect to recent passage of the TRIA. We should get comments as soon as reasonably possible so that the memo can be distributed and decisions can be made.

Before decisions are likely to be made with respect to many of the issues raised in the memo, however, we will be faced with filing a substantive pleading in the Frazier case (and possibly in the related Daliberti case) in SDNY by December 30 (next Monday)(see emails below). One possibility would be to see whether we could get consensus among us on the question of central bank immunity in time for the filing in Frazier. If there is agreement that under Section 201 of the TRIA assets in the Central Bank of Iraq account held by JP Morgan are no longer immune, then we could possibly so advise the court of our position on that and ask the court not to reach a decision with respect to any of the other accounts at issue in the proceeding. (We understand that the Central Bank of Iraq account in JP Morgan has approximately $.5 billion, and that the judgments held by the Frazier and Daliberti plaintiffs against Iraq together would not meet this amount. NOTE: We need to confirm that, in fact, plaintiffs in Frazier and Daliberti have proceeded against the proper account -- i.e., of the Central Bank of Iraq -- and that they have proceeded against such an account with sufficient funds to cover their judgments.) It should be noted, among other things, that taking this approach could raise certain timely foreign policy/national defense issues and concerns that would need to be considered. With this in mind, please advise as soon as possible:

1. Is there agreement among us that Section 201 of the TRIA makes central bank assets available for attachment and/or execution?

2. Are there timely foreign policy/national defense reasons why we would not now want to take the position that central bank funds are available for attachment and/or execution?

3. Are there other reasons why we would not now want to take the position that central bank funds are available for attachment and/or execution?

4. Is there a reason that the court will find it necessary to reach other issues (that we are trying to avoid in the short term) if we now seek to have it reach a decision only with respect to the question of central bank immunity?

5. Is there any reason (other than in response to #s 1 through 4 above) why we should not now pursue the course outlined above in responding by December 30th in Frazier (i.e., to argue that the Central Bank of Iraq account is available, that it will more than satisfy the judgments at issue, and that there is therefore no reason to reach any decisions with respect to any of the other accounts/assets)?

6. Should we attempt to have the plaintiffs stay execution with respect to other accounts and assets by agreeing that we would now not oppose execution on the central bank account?

7. What is the likely response of the banks to our taking the position set forth above (i.e., that the central bank funds are not immune from attachment and/or execution)?

8. If the course outlined above is not satisfactory, what is recommended as an alternative that will allow us to file a responsive pleading by December 30?

It would be most helpful to have input on these questions as soon as possible so that a litigation position can be reached before the end of the week.

This is not my issue, but on the first point, I think the answer is that the Terrorism Insurance law is brand new and thus its application to particular assets -- i.e whether it eliminates the immunity of the assets -- is an issue of first impression. I agree on all the foreign policy points -- these are among the sorts of reasons why we strongly opposed this provision, though we were unsuccessful.

Subject: RE: Frazier v. JP Morgan Chase and O'Neill (SDNY)

I feel a bit in the dark here, i.e. that I do not have all the facts. That said, two comments. First, the issue of how Central Bank assets are treated is presumably settled, by lots of previous cases. I don't know what immunity those accounts get, but why would this case set a new precedent on that point?
Second, the foreign policy angle. From my standpoint, Iraq is a country whose needs and obligations far exceed its assets. Iraq is paying its reparations to Kuwait because that money is 'taken off the top' from UN OFF oil sales; Iraq has made no debt payments since 1991. Moreover, after a possible conflict Iraq will very badly need all its assets to feed its people and begin reconstruction of its electric power system, water and sewage systems, hospital/medical system, etc-- matters of life and death. And it is very clear that current oil revenues do not cover all these needs. From that point of view, the assets in banks may be needed to cover those latter costs.

In addition, we will be seeking to avoid the impression that we are 'seizing' Iraq's assets for our own purposes rather than to benefit the people of Iraq. Indeed one way a transitional or military government will achieve legitimacy is to address the people's needs. Here again, diversion of large sums away and into the hands of Americans would seem to contravene this goal.

Aides Weigh Supreme Court Picks

By NEIL A. LEWIS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 - White House officials are so convinced that there will be at least one Supreme Court vacancy by the end of the current term in early summer that President Bush's senior aides have been quietly conducting serious internal discussions about possible nominees.

These conversations have begun with a discussion of whether Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist will decide to end his 31-year career on the court at the end of this term and whether Mr. Bush will have to fill one or two vacancies.

In almost all of the possibilities, officials said, Alberto R. Gonzales, the White House counsel and a longtime legal adviser to Mr. Bush from Texas, would be a candidate. Mr. Gonzales would be the first Hispanic member of the Supreme Court. Mr. Bush's top aides, notably Karl Rove, the president's chief political adviser, are described as keenly aware that this would provide a political bonus for both him and the Republican Party, which has been aggressively courting Hispanic voters.

"I don't think there's any question the president would turn to him," said a senior administration official who knew details of the informal but high-level discussions.

The political considerations, and delicate ethnic balancing, are so central to the deliberations that administration officials said the chances of one possible candidate, Judge Samuel A. Alito Jr., a federal appeals court judge in Newark, may have lessened after one senior official noted that there was already an Italian-American on the Supreme Court, Justice Antonin Scalia.

Besides Mr. Gonzales, the other figure who has emerged as a strong candidate is Judge J. Harvie Wilkinson III, the chief judge of the appeals court based in Richmond, Va.

President Bush has been briefed on the internal conversations, which have taken on a new urgency because of the age of several justices and, if for no other reason, because Republicans have been waiting so long to make new appointments. The court began its ninth term this year without a turnover, the longest such period since the early 19th century.

The three oldest justices are Republicans, and White House officials believe that two of them, Chief Justice Rehnquist and Justice Sandra Day O`Connor, would be most likely to retire, given the knowledge that a Republican president would pick their replacements.

The incoming chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Orrin G. Hatch, said one or more retirements were so inevitable that he was calling on any justices who plan to leave at the end of the term this spring to end the suspense and announce their intentions now.

"I believe we'll have at least one before June" when the court's current term ends, Mr. Hatch said in a recent interview.

Speculation about court retirements have been a regular feature in recent years given the ages of the three oldest justices, John Paul Stevens, who is 82, Chief Justice Rehnquist, 78, and Justice O'Connor, 72.

Another factor has changed the nature of the discussion from the inevitable speculation to a growing assumption that one or more of the justices may soon retire: The administration's let's-be-prepared deliberations were set in motion by the November election and the impending shift to Republican control of the Senate, which must vote on confirming any Supreme Court nominees.

When Mr. Rehnquist told the television interviewer Charlie Rose last year that "traditionally, Republican appointees have tended to retire during Republican administrations," he meant that it would be far easier for a justice to leave when his or her successor would bring a similar ideology. That reasoning becomes even stronger with an aggressive Republican Senate taking over in January. If all the Republicans supported a nominee, the Democrats could not block confirmation unless they engaged in a filibuster, a difficult political task.

Administration officials do not expect that Justice Stevens intends to retire soon or has much interest in leaving and giving them the opportunity to replace him.

If the chief justice retires, Mr. Bush will have to decide whether to elevate one of the current justices to the chief's position and nominate a new associate justice or simply name a new candidate for chief justice from outside the court.

That calculation will change, of course, if a second justice, also chose to leave the court, creating a different situation.

Administration officials say the short list of candidates for Supreme Court seats besides Mr. Gonzales includes Judge Wilkinson, Judge J. Michael Luttig who also sits on the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit and Justice Janice Rogers Brown of the California Supreme Court. Justice Brown, a black woman, wrote the majority opinion in 2000 interpreting the state's referendum against affirmative action in a way that delighted conservatives.

Other possibilities, officials say, include Judge Alito, who was a clerk for Justice Scalia and is nicknamed Scalito by some lawyers but who is seen as a far less confrontational figure.

Another candidate is Judge Edith H. Jones of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in New Orleans who is noted for sharp conservative opinions. Judge Jones was poised to be named by President Bush's father in 1990 when he decided instead to choose David H. Souter. Also mentioned has been Larry D. Thompson, the deputy attorney general, who would give the court two black members.

If Mr. Bush decides to elevate a current justice to the chief's position, the most likely candidates, officials said, would be Justice Scalia or Justice O`Connor because the other Republican-appointed members of the court have assorted liabilities. The two possibilities come with different political dimensions. Justice O`Connor would add to her historical legacy as the court's first woman by becoming the first woman chief justice. But Republicans have, for years, favored younger people as judicial choices so they can remain longer and have greater impact on the bench.

Elevating Justice Scalia would almost certainly entail a confirmation battle, but one in which the White House might be willing to engage.

If Mr. Bush needs to name someone from outside to become chief justice, a leading candidate, officials said, would be Judge Wilkinson, who sits in Charlottesville and is 58.

Judge Wilkinson, they said, would provide the stature needed to be chief justice because of his courtly manner and his years leading the circuit court, the nation's boldest conservative appeals court. Moreover, they said, he would stand in relief to his more aggressively conservative benchmate, Judge Luttig and might thus be more palatable to Democrats.

Some conservatives are wary of Mr. Gonzales, unsure if he is sufficiently faithful to their views. They have been deeply disappointed by the performance of Justice Souter on the court after they had been assured he would be to their liking. "No more Souters" became a rallying cry, meaning no support for anyone whose views were uncertain.

These conservatives have suggested to administration officials that they would prefer that Mr. Bush abstain from putting Mr. Gonzales on the court now and wait for a later vacancy, which he could fill with Miguel Estrada who would by then have some judicial experience. Mr. Estrada, a Washington lawyer and reliable conservative, is expected to soon be confirmed to a seat on the federal appeals court in Washington.

In his most publicized ruling as a justice on the Texas Supreme Court, Mr. Gonzales charged that some conservative colleagues were engaging in "judicial activism" when they wanted to enforce a more rigid reading of a statute requiring minor girls to inform their parents before receiving an abortion. But in the same opinion, Justice Gonzalez suggested that while he was obligated to read the statute as he believed the legislature intended, his personal views were strongly opposed to abortion.

Officials believe that, in any event, his personal story in becoming the first Hispanic justice would become the dominant issue in any public debate. He was raised in humble circumstances by parents who never got past elementary school and he eventually graduated from Harvard Law School.

One official said that Mr. Gonzales had cultivated a notion that he was reluctant to be named to the court but that was untrue. The official noted that he still likes to be addressed as "Judge Gonzalez."

Judge Wilkinson may have a clearer judicial record on the abortion issue, upholding state restrictions in some cases.

One senior official said that while the prospect of filling a seat or two on the Supreme Court was exciting, it was also daunting. It is, the official said, "as much a burden as an opportunity."

This "summit" is a "for real" gathering of legitimate (law abiding) organizations. They are seeking to meet with Viet and Judge Gonzalez. The letter is self explanatory. They will be sending formal letters. The meeting is unofficial. But let me know if deputies are more advisable. What they do not want is outreach folks.

This unofficial leaders group will be key in shaping the reaction to the President's S.Ct nominees and communicating in general on nominations in general.

Dear Manny,

I'm writing to ask your help. On January 23, 2003, the Life Forum group will be meeting. As you know, this is the off-the-record, invitation-only, confidential summit meeting of the leaders of about 50 different major pro-life organizations.

You haven't heard of the Forum because in its nearly 12 years of existence it has not appeared in print. The group includes all the legitimate streams of the movement: educational, political, and care ministries, and deals with life issues ranging from abstinence to bioethics, all the way through what is usually considered "life".

Over the years, our agenda has had a recurring item on the topic of judicial nominations. This forthcoming meeting seems a very apropos time to revisit that topic. I would like to invite Al Gonzales and Viet Dinh to speak to the group, along with yourself.

It is important that this group have a high level of confidence in the decisionmaking process of the Administration. As you know, the yappers-at-the-heels on the fringes will be negative, but if the mainstream, which is what the group primarily is, has confidence, that fringe group will be relegated to precisely that -- the fringes.

I believe if the White House and the Department of Justice were to honor us with their presence, it would go a long way to building a good working relationship with this important part of the coalition.

I would appreciate any influence you could bring to bear to speak to these gentlemen, or their deputies, to dispose them to look with favor on an invitation to the Life Forum on January 23.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely yours,

Connie Marshner
Chairman, Life Forum

Subject: Airline War Risk Insurance Report

Something I wanted to bring to your attention:

Section 1204 of the HS Act requires "the Secretary" to transmit to Congress a report that evaluates the availability and cost of commercial war risk insurance for air carriers and other aviation entities for passengers and third parties;

analyzes the economic effect upon air carriers and other aviation entities of available commercial war risk insurance; and describes the manner in which "the Department" could provide an alternative means of providing aviation war risk reinsurance covering passengers crew, and third parties through use of a risk-retention group or by other means.

The deadline is 90 days after the date of enactment (Nov. 25) , ie Feb.
23.

Note that the reference to "the Secretary" is incongruous. Given the amendments made in the rest of Title XII (section 1201-1203), Congress probably meant to refer to the Secretary of Transportation and the Department of Transportation. But, on its face the reference has to be read to mean the Secretary of DHS and the Department of HS. We can explore a fix to this prior to Feb. 23; if we don't get a fix, DHS will be need a lot of help getting this report done on time.

I'll be over in EEOB on Thursday and will swing by to see you.

Agreed. But note that we have generally authorized this in past when there has been a need. But we should be consulted on an individual basis as a check.

TPO is in OMB as you know under FRA. So you'll want to loop in Phil Perry's office re: any questions about OMB e-mail.

OHS and other WHO e-mail is under the PRA and basically should not be leaving WHO. So yes -- it's fine to tell the IT folks that the answer is no, unless there is specific and individual approval from counsel.

Subject: Homeland/TPO Electronic Records

One of our IT branches raised a good issue this morning. As various Homeland Office and TPO folks prepare to leave for the Homeland Department, OA technical staff are anticipating requests to copy their e-mail, network drives and other electronic media to take to the new Department. My general guidance to technical staff is not to fulfill requests to take records to another office or agency unless we receive approval by counsel for the office that owns the records. Are there any particular rules or a process that you would like us to follow when this comes up?

Personal - Non-PR

Personal - Non-PR I'm also working through my disclosure forms & questionairres (that's why I'm here at midnight). They are coming along, although they take a lot of time, esp. the senate one.

Thanks for all of your help & advice in the process. Also, please make sure apropriate people know about my timeframe issue (the need to start in late 2003, like 11/1/03). I'm excited about the (unexpected) opportunity, but my ability to do this financially (esp. over the long-haul, if CA7 opens up as we hope), depends on me getting through most of '03 here at Skadden. I have various pension and benefits accounts that have vesting dates in late '03, and staying here until late '03 likely means about $150,000 to $200,000 to me (and my wife and four kids).

Thanks a lot for your help. Talk to you soon.

Judge Gonzales received a letter today from Ralph Mecham, the Director of the Administrative Office of the US Courts. The letter indicates that the Committee on Judicial Resources of the Judicial Conference of the United States has taken favorable action consistent with President's proposal on judges. In December, the Committee (chaired by Judge Dennis Jacobs of the Second Circuit) approved the following language, which in turn will be considered and voted on in March by the full Judicial Conference: "The Judicial Conference strongly urges all judges to notify the President and the Administrative Office of the United States Courts as far in advance as possible of a change in status, and if possible, twelve months before the contemplated date of changes in status." They also adopted language that "regular reminders of the policy be transmitted to judges."

Mr. Mecham's letter states: "I am sure that the Judicial Conference will approve this strengthened policy."

This is good news, of course.

I think there may have been a miscommunication here.; Here's my understanding of what we're doing.; Every year OMB gets markups from the White House Office on; the budget.; In previous years that process has been done manually--OA has been asked by OMB to help automate it.; My presumption in conjunction with such a request is that the information transmitted from one entity to another should be the same--the process will just be automatic.; In any case, Steve McDevitt will be speaking to Terry Good to make sure that OA correctly understands the White House's requirements here and can implement them.;

Terry;

The markup of the budget documents are NOT being done via E-mail and therefore are NOT records managed by the system that manages EOP Notes E-mail i.e. ARMS.

However, It is my understanding that special provisions have been made (Please see the attached e-mail from Andy Schoenbach,OMB) to create backups of the server on which the markup will take place.; Whether or not those backups constitute Federal or Presidential records and what will be done with them, is a an open issue.; Additionally, I do not know what; the content of the files is that will be on the backups.; Per the Schoenbach memo, Chip Sparks is the one setting up the preservation mechanism,; I looked for him today but was unable to find him for further information.

I believe, Markus is out on leave, but he should weigh in on the situation also.

Let me know if you have other questions or issues.

Later... Tony

Harriet Miers has asked ORM for our understanding of the legal status of certain electronic communications,; specifically those relating to the preparation of the President's Budget.; Evidently, this year, much of this process is being conducted electronically.

Please provide your views on my proposed response.

It is intended to be simple and short.

I would like to respond to her by this afternoon.

Thanks,

RE:;;;; Managing the records created during the process of editing the President's Budget; volume(s).

Thanks to the state of technology,; the management of these records creates no great heartburn or headaches.

Electronic communications sent to anyone on the White House staff are saved automatically as Presidential records.; Likewise, with one caveat, electronic communications sent from anyone on the White House staff will be saved automatically as Presidential records.

The caveat:

All electronic messages sent from White House staff default to "Record" status.

However, the record can be deleted if the White House staffer goes out of their way to make their message "Non-Record".;

Of course, these same communications, in the files of a Federal agency (OMB), become Federal records.

Subject: ;;;;;; Revised Records Management Plans for Electonic Editing of the President's Budget Volume by 'West Wing' Staff;; << OLE Object: StdOleLink >>

The following updates and replaces the earlier plans I sent to you for the electronic review of the President's Budget chapters by 'West Wing' staff.; The major change is that the shared file server is now an OMB-owned server to which both 'West Wing' and certain OMB staff have write access.; It is our understanding that all electronic files in the process will therefore be 'Federal Records'.; An electronic copy of the files containing all 'West Wing' markups will be provided to the appropriate records management official (please let me know who that should be).

Records Management Plans for Electronic Editing of the President's Budget by 'West Wing' Staff

OMB is in the midst of preparing the Budget volume of the 2004 President's Budget.; As has occurred every year, this process includes a review by designated staff from the Staff Secretary's Office, OVP, NEC, DPC, White House Counsel, and others -- collectively referred to as 'West Wing' reviewers.;; I have attached the current list of projected reviewers.; The review process is scheduled to start on January 2nd and end between January 6-10.

This year, we are attempting for the first time to have the markups and comments of the 'West Wing' phase of the review occur electronically using the change-tracking features contained within Microsoft Word.; These features keep track of the author, date, and time of every change and comment that is made to the document.; Those reviewers who choose to make their comments on paper will have them electronically entered into the document for them by an assistant using an alias feature of the software.; The Word document will be password protected so that reviewers cannot turn change-tracking off or 'accept/reject' changes that have been made by others.

This is the second year that OMB has used electronic collaboration in the preparation of the Budget volume.; However, last year for the 'West Wing' phase the process reverted to a traditional paper markup.; Our plan for this year is to copy the current version of each chapter to a special limited-access shared directory on an OMB file server -- SFOMB1.; Each chapter will have its own highly structured access controls that will limit read and write access to the specific WW reviewers and key OMB staff (and several process support staff).;

When the 'West Wing' reviewers have completed their markup for a chapter, write access will be turned off and the document will be copied back to the SharePoint document management system that OMB is using for its part of the process.; The documents on the server with all 'West Wing' reviewer markups will be backed up by OA IS&T staff provided to the appropriate records management official.

In discussions with Chip Sparks, it is our understanding that these file server backups meet your special needs for Presidential Records.;; We will also be keeping complete backups of the SharePoint files for our records management needs including all of the markups.

FYI, here are the instructions that were included in the User Guide relating to Records Management requirements:

How are these activities being handled for Records Management requirements?

- Materials associated with the Budget Volume will be handled as Federal Records.
- All electronic markups and comments are being tracked and retained in the Word 2002 documents.;
- When the review process is complete, a copy of the documents including all electronic markups and comments will be archived.

- If you choose to provide handwritten paper markups instead of electronic markups, a copy should be retained per normal records management procedures.;

If you have any questions or wish to discuss further, please let me know.

Brett,

Thank you again for coming to speak at Yale! The judicial selection event is widely considered to have been one of the best of the year. I have heard all kinds of positive feedback.

I'm sure you must have some travel receipts from your trip to New Haven. Please send them to me so that I can make sure you are reimbursed for your expenses. My address is:

End Original ARMS Header

Today is my last day on the White House staff as I am leaving for Georgia to become Deputy Chief of Staff to Governor Perdue, our first Republican Governor in 132 years.

I want to thank each of you for your friendship, your guidance and your cooperation during my two years at the White House. These two years have been the most rewarding and exciting of my life. I am immensely grateful to the President for giving me this opportunity, and my gratitude to each of your for your help and friendship knows no bounds.

I am providing my vitals in Georgia, and hope you will contact me whenever I can be of assistance and come to see me whenever you are in Atlanta.

End Original ARMS Header

Today is my last day on the White House staff as I am leaving for Georgia to become Deputy Chief of Staff to Governor Perdue, our first Republican Governor in 132 years.

I want to thank each of you for your friendship, your guidance and your cooperation during my two years at the White House. These two years have been the most rewarding and exciting of my life. I am immensely grateful to the President for giving me this opportunity, and my gratitude to each of your for your help and friendship knows no bounds.

I am providing my vitals in Georgia, and hope you will contact me whenever I can be of assistance and come to see me whenever you are in Atlanta.

End Original ARMS Header

Today is my last day on the White House staff as I am leaving for Georgia to become Deputy Chief of Staff to Governor Perdue, our first Republican Governor in 132 years.

I want to thank each of you for your friendship, your guidance and your cooperation during my two years at the White House. These two years have been the most rewarding and exciting of my life. I am immensely grateful to the President for giving me this opportunity, and my gratitude to each of your for your help and friendship knows no bounds.

I am providing my vitals in Georgia, and hope you will contact me whenever I can be of assistance and come to see me whenever you are in Atlanta.

Here is the email we sent yesterday to the Hill. Let me know if you need anything else.

As Congress returns to Washington, enclosed is a copy of a PFAW Foundation
memorandum being sent out today concerning the crucial subject of federal judicial nominations. While the title is stark, it underlines the huge stakes on this issue over the next 12 to 24 months. We hope that you will find it useful, and please contact Elliot Mincberg or Marge Baker at

Re: The Approaching Armageddon on Judicial Nominations

Introduction: The Compelling Need for a National Debate

The next 12 to 24 months – beginning with the Senate's return to Washington this week and President Bush's expected nominations to the federal judiciary – could determine the law of the land and the shape of our government for the next several decades. The judicial choices President Bush makes, and the response of the U.S. Senate, will have an extraordinary impact on the lives and liberties of all Americans, their children and their grandchildren. Consider:

- By 2004, all 13 federal circuit courts of appeal could well be controlled by Republican-appointed judges. And seven of the nine current Supreme Court justices were appointed by Republican presidents. Rarely if ever in our history has the entire federal judiciary been dominated by the appointees of one political party. If the judges appointed over the next two years are ultraconservative ideologues rather than more moderate or conservative judges, the long-term consequences will be devastating.

- It is expected that President Bush will send the Senate a batch of judicial nominations as early as January 7, the first day that the Senate is back in session. If the rhetoric from the White House and its allies is any indication, the President will ensure a series of contentious confirmation battles by pushing appellate court nominees whose judicial philosophies are in sync with the most far right members of the Supreme Court, Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas. The President could choose a different course of action, one grounded in genuine bipartisan consultation, but for the past two years the White House has defiantly rejected that option.

- It has been more than eight years since the last Supreme Court vacancy, the longest interval between vacancies in 180 years. Indeed, over the past half century, there has been on the average one Supreme Court nomination every two years. It is very likely that one or two vacancies – perhaps as early as this summer – will give President Bush the chance to put his stamp on the Supreme Court for decades to come. And it is possible that over the next several years, we could have multiple vacancies, comparable to the four vacancies between 1969 and 1972 and the five vacancies between 1987 and 1994.

- A Supreme Court with a Scalia-Thomas majority could overturn more than 100 precedents and turn back the clock decades on civil and voting rights, privacy and reproductive choice, religious liberty, environmental protection, consumer and worker safety, and more. Preventing ideologues who want to return our Constitution and country to the "states' rights" judicial era from dominating our highest court will be a monumental struggle over the nation's future.

There is an urgent need for a vigorous national debate on the Bush-Scalia-Thomas judicial philosophy and the impact the President's judicial nominations could have on the daily lives of every American. What would it mean to privacy rights, civil rights, reproductive choice, clean air and water, and religious liberty if President Bush fulfills his promise to appoint judges like Clarence Thomas and Antonin Scalia? Americans have a right to know what is at stake before they wake up one morning in 2004 or in 2005 and discover that overnight they have lost fundamental rights, liberties, and protections that they thought were theirs forever.

It should be made clear at the outset of this year's debate that discussing the impact of a states' rights judicial philosophy on the enforcement of civil rights protections is not the equivalent of accusing any individuals of racism or other animus. The issue before the Senate is not what is any individual's heart, but rather the practical impact of a legal and judicial philosophy that would limit the federal government's ability to enforce civil rights laws. Whether or not judges embrace a judicial philosophy that would restrict civil rights enforcement is an urgent and entirely legitimate line of inquiry, and it should not be derailed by false charges that raising the question amounts to "playing the race card."

The Supreme Court: Looking Ahead to the Past

President Bush is likely to have the opportunity to appoint more than one Supreme Court justice between now and the end of 2004. If Chief Justice William Rehnquist retires this year, and President Bush nominates a sitting justice for that position , there could be multiple confirmation hearings this summer. If newly appointed justices are adherents of the judicial philosophies represented by President Bush's favorite justices, Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas, the result would be not only the reversal of more than half a century of legal and social justice accomplishments, but also a return to a situation America faced in the first third of the 20th Century, when progressive legislation adopted by Congress and signed by the President was repeatedly rejected on constitutional grounds by the Supreme Court. A Court dominated by the states' rights judicial philosophy could prevent the federal government from taking action on a range of national issues, regardless of who is elected to the White House or Congress.

The Supreme Court and other federal courts exercise tremendous power in deciding cases on such issues as the right to privacy, reproductive freedom, religious liberty, environmental protection, consumer and worker safety and health, and the civil rights of women, minorities, people with disabilities, older individuals, gay and lesbian Americans, indeed, all Americans. The Bush administration's judicial nominations could result in a federal judiciary hostile to these concerns and dominated by a states' rights approach to the Constitution that had been rejected on a bipartisan basis for half a century.

Because most cases before the Supreme Court that raise fundamental constitutional questions are now decided by slim majorities, more than 100 Supreme Court precedents could be overturned with just one or two more appointments of individuals who share the judicial philosophies of Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas. Beginning in 1995, a narrow 5-4 Supreme Court majority began a series of rulings that have restricted the power of Congress to protect citizens whose rights have been abused by state governments and others. Justices Scalia and Thomas embrace an even more radical states' rights judicial philosophy and have advocated overturning other key precedents that protect civil rights and liberties.

A Scalia-Thomas majority on the Supreme Court could, among other things:

- gut the Voting Rights Act and abolish affirmative action and other remedies that undo the effects of past and present discrimination;
- eliminate a woman's constitutional right to reproductive freedom and privacy;
- dismantle vital environmental protections for clean water and clean air;
- tear down the wall separating church and state.

The result would be a dramatic rollback in decades of legal and social justice gains, and a return to a constitutional framework in which states' rights and property rights were predominant. Ironically, this could occur even as the nation decisively rejected Trent Lott's embrace of Strom Thurmond's earlier segregationist political views, which were the animating force behind the states' rights movement in opposition to federal civil rights enforcement.

For more information about the impact of a further rightward shift on the Supreme Court, see Courting Disaster, published in 2000 by People For the American Way Foundation, as well as 2001 and 2002 Courting Disaster updates at www.pfaw.org/pfaw/general/default.aspx?oid=830.

The Circuit Courts of Appeal

The vast majority of federal cases never make it to the Supreme Court, but are decided by lower federal courts. Every year these courts decide thousands of cases that affect Americans' daily lives and kind of country which their children and grandchildren will inherit. In 2001, for example, the federal appellate courts decided more than 28,000 cases, many of which were important rulings on privacy, reproductive rights, environmental protection, and human and civil rights. The United States Supreme Court, however, issued fewer than 100 decisions. So in more than 99 percent of the cases, the circuit courts have the final say on issues affecting millions of Americans.

These crucial courts are on the verge of falling under the ideological domination of the far right wing of American legal thought. As a result an unprecedented blockade of the circuit courts led by Trent Lott, John Ashcroft, and Orrin Hatch, 35 percent of President Clinton's appellate court nominees were blocked from 1995-2000; 45 percent failed to receive a vote in the Congress during which they were nominated. The impact of this six-year Republican Senate blockade was to perpetuate a large number of appeals court vacancies in the hopes that a Republican president could then fill those vacancies with ultraconservative judicial ideologues.

By preventing President Clinton from filling so many appeals court seats, Republican senators set up the current situation in which all thirteen federal circuit courts of appeal could soon be controlled by judges appointed by one political party. Republican-nominated judges currently hold a majority on eight of the 13 circuit courts of appeal – three have a majority of Democratic appointees and two are split. If President Bush fills all the current vacancies, that number will rise to 11. And by the end of 2004, Republican-appointed judges could make up a majority on every one of the 13 circuit courts of appeals (see attached chart).If President Bush and the Senate fill those vacancies with states' rights ideologues, the consequences will be enormously damaging to our constitutional framework and the rights and freedoms it protects.

For more information about the importance of the appellate courts see President Bush, the Senate and the Federal Judiciary: Unprecedented Situation Calls for Unprecedented Solution, published by People For the American Way Foundation and available at www.pfaw.org/pfaw/general/default.aspx?oid=628.

The Senate's Advise and Consent Role

In our system of checks and balances, the Senate has a co-equal role with the President in appointing federal judges, since it must provide its "advice and consent" before any nominee becomes a judge. It is imperative that the Senate carries out this constitutional role in a careful, thorough and diligent manner. Judicial nominees – who are confirmed for lifetime appointments – must be subject to the highest standard of scrutiny. The decisions of judges last long after they and the President who appointed them have retired.

No nominee is presumptively entitled to confirmation to a lifetime appointment to any federal court. Particularly for the courts of appeals and the Supreme Court, a nominee bears the burden of demonstrating that he or she meets the appropriate qualifications, which should include a demonstrated commitment to civil rights and individual liberties, and a clear respect for Congress' proper constitutional role in protecting constitutional and civil rights and the health and safety of all Americans. More than 200 law professors have written to the Senate, setting forth these qualifications (A copy of the July 13, 2001 letter is available from People For the American Way Foundation).

Each nominee's record must be examined carefully, including unpublished opinions and other information that may not be readily available. By its very nature, this sometimes is a time-consuming process but one that is essential to the Senate's obligation to evaluate the full record of a nominee. The mere absence of disqualifying evidence in a nominee's record should not constitute sufficient grounds for confirmation.

The Senate should reject court-packing efforts. Senators should openly discuss the potential impact of far-right domination of the federal courts and the importance of opposing nominees whose lifetime appointments would threaten America's rights and liberties. More moderate, mainstream nominees who reflect genuine bipartisan consultation should receive priority in processing.

With the return of the Senate to Republican control, there are serious concerns that the Senate may simply rubberstamp judicial nominees. Senate Democrats and moderate Republicans must prevent this from occurring. Bipartisan rules and practices that help prevent Senate leaders from railroading nominees through the Senate, such as respecting the "blue slip" authority of home state senators and ensuring that each controversial nominee receives a separate hearing, should not be improperly altered. All these safeguards are especially important with respect to appellate court vacancies that Republican Senators blocked from being filled in 1995-2000 for political reasons. When necessary, senators must be willing to use the filibuster to prevent the lifetime appointment of particularly damaging nominees. As the New York Times wrote in a post-election editorial, Senate Democrats "should reach out to moderate Republican senators and build a mainstream coalition. And when a judicial nominee is unacceptable, they should not be afraid to mount a filibuster...."

Senate Handling of President Bush's Nominees under Democratic Control

President Bush and Republican Senate leaders have falsely claimed that the administration's judicial nominees were not treated fairly during the time that Democrats held a majority in the Senate. In fact, Bush's judicial nominees were confirmed at a rapid pace, and were given far better treatment than President Clinton's nominees received at the hands of the Republican Senate majority. The Senate's record in 2001-2002 affords no justification for a rush to rubberstamp administration nominees this year.

The Senate under Democratic control confirmed 100 of President Bush's judicial nominees in 17 months. The 100 confirmations represent significantly more than the 71 judges confirmed during the first two years of the first Bush administration and the 75 confirmed during the first two years of Republican Senate control during the Clinton administration. In fact, these 100 confirmations are more than the number confirmed during any of the Republican controlled Congresses under President Clinton, when there was an average of only 38 confirmations per year.

In just one year, the Senate Judiciary Committee under the chairmanship of Senator Leahy held 21 nomination hearings on 78 nominees—despite the serious disruptions in Senate business and distractions caused by the 9/11 and anthrax attacks. Before the Senate recessed, 26 hearings were held on 103 nominees in 2001-2002. During six years of Republican Senate control, the Judiciary Committee averaged only about 10 hearings per a year. During the Reagan, Bush, and Clinton presidencies, four nominees on average were confirmed each month. By contrast, after the first 17 months of Senator Leahy's chairmanship, the average was 6 confirmations per month.

In 2001-2002, the Senate reversed the rise in judicial vacancies caused by the previous Republican controlled Senate. As a result of the serious delays during the years that the Republican Senate majority controlled the process, the total number of federal court vacancies increased from 65 in 1995 to 111 in July 2001, an increase of more than 70 percent. Between July 2001, when Senate Democrats resumed control, and November 21, 2002, the number of vacancies decreased from 111 to 60. For nearly half of these vacancies (29), the President has yet to submit a nominee.

Contradicting claims by the Bush administration and its Senate allies, the pace of appellate court confirmations over the past year and a half significantly exceeded prior confirmation rates. The Democratic-majority Senate confirmed 17 of President Bush's appellate court nominations, 11 of which were confirmed during the first year of Democratic control. Two appeals court nominees were rejected in public votes by the Judiciary Committee after open hearings. In comparison, Republicans averaged fewer than eight confirmations per year in the 1990s, and blocked many nominees from ever having hearings or votes. Because of the delay and refusal to vote on President Clinton's nominations from 1995 through 2000. the total number of vacancies on the courts of appeals more than doubled during that period, growing from 16 to 33. Despite new vacancies, the total number of appellate court vacancies was reduced to 25 during 2001-2002.

Troublesome Bush Administration Nominees

Many of President Bush's 2001-2002 nominees to the appellate courts, recommended by the Federalist Society and its allies within and outside the administration, have troubling records and could cause serious damage to the enforcement of our constitutional rights and liberties, the ability of the federal government to protect our air and water, and much more.

This is particularly true of a number of the first group of appellate court nominees Bush named in May 2001 who are being aggressively pushed for renomination this year by right-wing senators and advocates. Yet Newsday suggested that these initial nominees were "peppered with members of the Federalist Society, heavy on states'-rights rhetoric, and inhospitable to abortion rights," while a Detroit Free Press editorial suggested that many "seem to have been selected because of their ideology, not their judicial qualifications." (For more information on the philosophy and extraordinary influence of the Federalist Society on this administration and its judicial selection process, see The Federalist Society: From Obscurity to Power, published by People For the American Way Foundation and available at www.pfaw.org/pfaw/general/default.aspx?oid=653.)

Two nominees, Judges Charles Pickering and Priscilla Owen, were rejected by the Senate Judiciary Committee in 2002. Although many believe that the Trent Lott controversy may forestall the renomination of Pickering, whose initial nomination Lott had championed, serious civil rights and other concerns remain with respect to many other candidates for renomination. For example:

- Jeffrey Sutton, an officer in the Federalist Society's Separation of Powers and Federalism practice group, was nominated to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. Sutton has been criticized for his extensive efforts as a lawyer to severely limit federal protections against discrimination and injury based on disability, race, age, sex, and religion. More than 70 national organizations and over 375 regional, state, and local groups have opposed his confirmation. Sutton has vigorously advocated going further even than the current 5-4 Supreme Court majority in restricting Congress' authority to protect civil rights.

As the Wall Street Journal reported, Sutton was described even by one of his supporters as the "perfect kind of poster child for what Democrats see as prototypical George W. Bush judges."

- Priscilla Owen, a Federalist Society member and currently a justice on the Texas Supreme Court, was nominated to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. Owen has been criticized as one of two judges on the "far right wing" of the conservative Texas court, further to the right than President Bush's own appointees to that court when he was governor. In one decision in which she dissented, Owen called for a very narrow view of a state law concerning the ability of minors to obtain an abortion without parental notification. Then-Texas Supreme Court Justice Alberto Gonzales - who is now chief White House counsel - warned that adopting the dissenters' view would be an "unconscionable act of judicial activism." (This was only one of 11 cases in which Gonzales criticized or joined other justices' criticism of positions taken by Owen.) In another dissent, Owen effectively sought to rewrite an important state civil rights law to make it much harder for employees to prove that their rights were violated. Owen's confirmation was rejected by the Senate Judiciary Committee on September 5, 2002.

- Carolyn Kuhl, a Federalist Society member and currently a California state trial court judge, was nominated to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. She has been severely criticized for her record on civil rights and abortion. For example, while in the Justice Department under the Reagan Administration, Kuhl urged the Supreme Court to overturn Roe v. Wade as "flawed." According to news reports, she also reportedly played a key role in convincing then-Attorney General William French Smith to reverse prior policy and support the granting of tax-exempt status to Bob Jones University despite its racially discriminatory practices. The Supreme Court, by an 8-1 vote, later rejected the Reagan administration's position and upheld the Internal Revenue Service's denial of tax exempt status to Bob Jones University.

- Terrence Boyle, a former staffer to Senator Jesse Helms and a district court judge in North Carolina, was nominated to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. A number of civil rights groups have criticized Boyle for his right-wing judicial activism in civil rights cases. Boyle twice ruled that congressional redistricting in North Carolina was unconstitutional because it favored minority voters, but was reversed both times by the Supreme Court, once in a unanimous ruling. In another case, Boyle refused to accept a settlement of a Justice Department gender discrimination claim against a North Carolina agency, even though the state had agreed to the settlement. He later allowed the state to withdraw from the settlement, a ruling reversed by the court of appeals.

- Deborah Cook, a justice on the Ohio Supreme Court, was nominated to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. One of the most frequent dissenters on her court, Cook's judicial record has prompted strong opposition to her confirmation from Ohio organizations concerned with protecting individual, civil, and consumer rights. According to Ohio Citizen Action, Cook's dissents "reveal a callousness toward the rights of ordinary citizens which offends any reasonable sense of justice." For example, in one case in which Cook dissented from a ruling by the Ohio Supreme Court favorable to a disabled worker, the court majority criticized her opinion as "confused," "lack[ing] [in] statutory support for its position," "pure fantasy," and "entirely without merit." In another case, Cook dissented from a ruling by the court striking down a state law that would have made it virtually impossible for an employee to recover damages from an employer caused by an intentional tort committed by the employer.

- Miguel Estrada, a Federalist Society member and D.C. lawyer, was nominated to the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals. His confirmation has been opposed by the Congressional Hispanic Caucus and the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund, and serious concerns about his nomination have been raised by many other Latino and civil rights groups. He has been criticized for extensive efforts to defend so-called anti-loitering laws, which have been shown to have a disproportionately negative effect on African-Americans and Latinos; in one case, he argued that the NAACP did not even have standing to challenge such an ordinance. A former supervisor in the Solicitor General's office concluded that Estrada "lacks the judgement" and is "too much of an ideologue to be an appeals court judge." Estrada's refusal to fully answer a number of important questions asked by senators during his fall confirmation hearing requires that his nomination, if resubmitted by Bush, should be returned to the Judiciary Committee for another hearing.

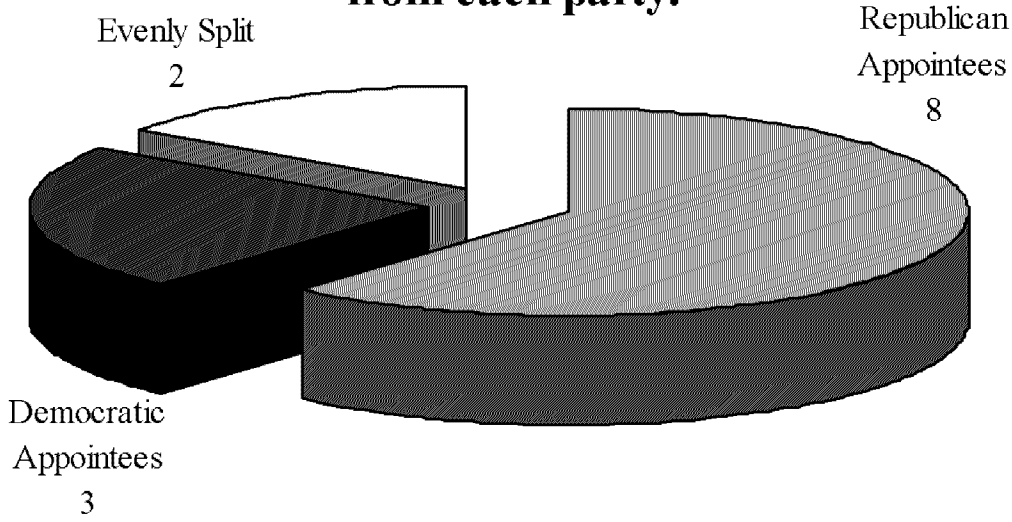
Renomination of these individuals promises to create significant controversies.

Conclusion

A more energetic and substantive debate on the importance of judicial nominations to Americans' lives must begin immediately, and must be broader than the battle lines that are drawn on any particular nomination. There is no doubt that other urgent policy issues are facing the administration, Congress, and the American people – from war to the state of the economy. But those issues must not be allowed to prevent the necessary attention from being given to what is at stake with the President's judicial nominations.



Americans must come to understand that struggles over judicial nominations are not just partisan political battles. The judges who are appointed to lifetime positions on the federal appeals courts and the Supreme Court will answer questions that shape for decades how America works and Americans live: Will the Supreme Court undermine the federal government's ability to safeguard the air we breathe and the water we drink? Will the courts abandon their role in preserving Americans' right to privacy and strip women of the constitutional right to make their own family planning and reproductive choices? Will Congress lose the power to protect Americans' civil rights from abuses by state governments and others? Will the Voting Rights Act be applied so narrowly that it fails to protect citizens' most fundamental rights?

This is a defining moment for the meaning of the Constitution and the direction of the nation for the first half of the 21st Century. That fact is clearly understood by Religious Right leaders and their allies in the White House and Congress. That is why they have focused so intently on judicial nominations. It is time for the American people – and for members of the Senate – to focus on the issue with the same intensity and clarity of purpose.

WASHINGTON -- President Bush reaffirmed his support for Judge Charles Pickering Sr., his nominee to a federal appeals court post, after meeting Wednesday with a bipartisan delegation of Mississippi officials and lawyers who support the nomination.

Bush shrugged off questions raised by Democrats about Pickering's "insensitivity" on racial issues and called for the Senate Judiciary Committee to send his nomination to the full Senate when they vote on it today at 10 a.m. The Pickering nomination turned into a partisan war in January, when People for the American Way, a liberal advocacy group, said that the judge's past demonstrated "insensitivity and sometimes hostility" to civil rights.

Most damaging to Pickering has been a 1995 case in which he contacted the Justice Department in search of a lighter sentence for a man convicted in his court of cross-burning.

"All those allegations have been reviewed before, and he was confirmed unanimously by the United States Senate," Bush said, referring to the 1990 confirmation of Pickering as a U.S. District Court judge. "I think (Democrats) are holding this nomination up for political reasons." Though Bush's comment represents his most direct endorsement of Pickering since he nominated him to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in May, it may not be enough to overcome the opposition of Senate Judiciary Democrats, all of whom are reported to oppose the nomination. Democrats hold a 10-9 majority on the committee.

The nomination needs only a one-vote majority to be sent to the Senate floor. The committee has three options: Kill the nomination or send it to the floor with a positive or negative recommendation. Republicans would be satisfied if they could swing one Democratic vote to send the nomination to the floor, even with a negative recommendation.

If the nomination goes to the full Senate for a vote, it would have the support of at least two Democrats, Sens. Zell Miller of Georgia and Ernest "Fritz" Hollings of South Carolina. With all Republicans voting yes, it would be enough to confirm the nomination.

After their meeting with Bush on Wednesday, the Mississippi delegation said the judge's past has been distorted. They said Pickering was a fair jurist who fought the Ku Klux Klan in his home county throughout the 1960s, represented black defendants in unpopular cases and kept his children in public schools after integration.

The group included about 15 people, most of them Democrats. "This looks like a Democratic rally, but we're really here for Judge Pickering," said former U.S. Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, a Democrat and longtime friend of the Bush family who is now a Washington lobbyist.

The group's only Republican was Charles Evers, the former mayor of Fayette and brother of slain civil rights leader Medgar Evers. "I'm not going to stand by and let these Yankees scuttle this nomination," said Evers, echoing other group members' contention that the fight over Pickering has also been a thinly veiled smear campaign against Mississippi.

"It's really easy to beat up on Mississippi, with our history," Attorney General Mike Moore said. Moore, a Democrat, pointed out that several of those who met with Bush were black officials from Laurel, Pickering's hometown, and Hattiesburg, where he now sits as a U.S. District Court judge.

After meeting with the president, the Mississippi group left the White House to campaign on Capitol Hill for Pickering's nomination.

At the same time, members of the Congressional Black Caucus held a news conference to reaffirm their opposition to Pickering. One congressman, Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Md., said Pickering's confirmation would be a "setback" for civil rights.

Back at the White House, U.S. Rep. Chip Pickering, R-Miss., the judge's son, stayed to answer reporters' questions after the Mississippi delegation left. He said his father would not withdraw from the confirmation process.

"He wants to preserve his honor and he wants to preserve our state's reputation," the younger Pickering said.

Adam,
I received an OA65 today requesting that we copy to CD all data from the computer of Barbara Chaffee so she can take it with her to TPO and then DHS. It states in the remarks that Brett Kavanaugh approved this action. Is that approval a green light for us to complete the request for her?
Thanks. Bart (x50945)

Outside view: Taking stock on life
By Paul M. Weyrich
A UPI Outside view commentary

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (UPI) -- The 30th anniversary of the Supreme Court's Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion on demand is fast approaching. It is time to take stock about where the pro-life community now stands. From the pro-life standpoint, President George W. Bush has arguably the best record on this issue for either a Republican or Democrat president since the unfortunate, deadly ruling in Roe vs. Wade was handed down on Jan. 22, 1973.
The president has supported the banning of all human cloning, essential to ensuring that each human life is respected as an individual person, not just a collection of parts to be harvested for medical research purposes. He played an active role in urging passage of a comprehensive ban. Indeed, the legislation that provided a comprehensive ban on cloning was able to pass the House of Representatives, only to run afoul of the Senate Democrats' obstruction campaign led by then-Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D.
Any infant born alive -- including those who survive an abortion procedure

-- can no longer be viewed as a "choice." Under federal law they are now legally defined as a person thanks to Bush's willingness to sign the Born Alive Infants Protection Act.

The Bush administration went to bat for two other important pieces of pro-life legislation.

One was the Child Custody Protection Act, which safeguards the rights of parents to have a say in medical procedures performed on their children, rather than allowing someone's daughter to follow the advice of abortion and health clinic counselors and school nurses who often try to push abortion.

The Abortion Non-Discrimination Act also drew support from the administration. It would protect the right of healthcare professionals and organizations from having to engage in abortion procedures in order to receive federal funding in the same manner that teaching hospitals are already protected.

Then, there was the ruling issued by Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson permitting the states to use the State Children's Health Insurance Program to provide coverage for prenatal care and delivery to mothers and unborn children -- a move that was controversial.

By broadening the definition of child to include from the point of conception, Thompson ensured the expansion of prenatal care for low-income women.

In a blow to common sense Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion Rights Action League, criticized the move and the Bush administration for demonstrating its "commitment to the strategy of undermining a woman's right to choose by ascribing legal rights to embryos."

The Department of Justice under Attorney General John Ashcroft has been supportive of the pro-life agenda too.

The Supreme Court in 2000 had struck down Nebraska's ban of partial-birth abortion in 2000, a decision that threatened similar laws in 30 states including Ohio. However, the Department of Justice filed a brief that stated Ohio's law should be upheld.

One reason mentioned by the Justice Department for its preparation of the Ohio brief: Bush's advocacy of a federal ban of the partial-birth abortion procedure.

Under Ashcroft's direction the Justice Department also struck down a 1998 ruling by Clinton administration Attorney General Janet Reno, that permitted the use of federally controlled drugs to be used to assist suicides in Oregon -- the only state in the nation that had permitted euthanasia.

Burke Balch, director of the National Right to Life Committee, commended the attorney general and the Bush administration for issuing this ruling "cutting off this outrageous misuse of drugs."

Bush also cut off funding for the U.N. Population Fund and, at the same time, after his inauguration, reaffirmed the Mexico City policy that had been established by President Ronald Reagan that President Bill Clinton rescinded as his first official act as president.

The Mexico City policy says that taxpayer funds should not be used to pay for abortions either here or abroad or to actively promote abortion.

The administration has aggressively promoted adoption. Bush addressed participants at the annual March for Life this year through a phone call and issued a proclamation on the National Sanctity of Human Life Day.

Still, there is much more to be done. All late-term abortions, not just partial-birth abortions should be outlawed.

The Abortion Non-Discrimination Act and the Child Custody Protection Act did not see Senate action so they each will need to be passed by the House again, and passed by the Senate, to be signed into law by Bush. The same would apply for the cloning ban as well as the Unborn Victims of Violence Act.

There is also an amendment sponsored by Rep. David Vitter, R-La., that would erase eligibility to receive Title X family planning funding for any private agency that provides abortions, chemical or surgical, using non-federal funds.

The president's nominees for the federal judiciary also have to be considered. The Democrats spent the last year and a half using their majority status to stop qualified nominees like Texas state Supreme Court Justice Priscilla Owen from being seated on the court of appeals.

Daschle, now the Senate minority leader, has pointedly made it clear that his Democrats will filibuster any nominee in whom they can find any trace of pro-life sentiment.

To underscore the point, Daschle went to the trouble of getting 45 votes against Dennis Shedd, a nominee favored by retiring Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., for the federal Court of Appeals. It takes 41 votes to sustain a filibuster and Daschle wanted Bush to understand that he can stop the confirmation of any judge Daschle and the Democrats want to keep off the bench.

Senate Democrats should be careful in deciding what judicial nominees and what policies they attack. After all, the public has become increasingly apprehensive about unrestricted legal abortion in the 30 years since the Roe decision. Though the United States certainly cannot be described as an avowed "pro-life" or culturally conservative nation, candidates opposed to abortion made it across the finish line first in the November 2002 midterm congressional elections, allowing the GOP to seize control of the Senate. If Daschle pushes too hard to stop pro-life policies and judges who are committed to restraint and unwilling to be NARAL surrogates on the bench, it could play to Bush's advantage in the upcoming 2004 election.

With that being the case, abortion opponents have every reason to hope that the administration will continue its impressive record of achievement in defense of human life.

REVIEW & OUTLOOK
Playing the Lott Card
"Strom" Schumer gets ready to smear Judge Pickering.

Friday, January 10, 2003 12:01 a.m.

Call it wishful thinking, but we had hoped that GOP control of the Senate meant that we would finally get to stop writing about judicial politics. We hadn't counted on Senator Chuck Schumer.

The New York Democrat and member of the Judiciary Committee has started the New Year with a harangue, playing the race card and vowing to filibuster the nomination of Charles Pickering Sr., whom President Bush renominated Tuesday to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Schumer's threat came just two days after Ralph Neas of People for the American Way released a memo urging Democrats to filibuster President Bush's judicial nominees.

To understand what's going on here, merely listen to Mr. Schumer's remarks: "To renominate Judge Pickering, who has not built a distinguished record and is probably best known for intervening on behalf of a convicted cross-burner, shows unfortunately that Richard Nixon's Southern strategy is still alive and well in the White House." The Schumer Democrats are playing the Trent Lott card, trying to take advantage of the former GOP Senate leader's fall by smearing Judge Pickering as racist in order to smear Republicans as anti-black.

This race-baiting is all the more offensive because it is demonstrably false about Judge Pickering's career and a gross distortion of the 1995 case called U.S. v. Swan over which the judge presided. That case concerned three young white men who burned a cross in the yard of a mixed-race couple. If Mr. Schumer has a complaint it should be with the Clinton Justice Department, which was relaxed enough about the crime to offer the defendants plea bargains. Two--the ring-leader, who was a juvenile, and a low-IQ adult--accepted the offers and served no prison time.

The third defendant, Daniel Swan, rejected a deal that would have meant a year and a half in jail and decided to take his chances with a trial. He was convicted and, under the mandatory sentencing guidelines, received five to seven-and-a-half years. Judge Pickering got Swan's sentence reduced on the grounds that it was disproportionate to the other sentences and because Swan had no history of racial animus.

Swan isn't the only defendant whom Judge Pickering has helped in this manner. He also granted a reduction in sentence to a 20-year-old black man convicted of a first-time drug offense. The man's lawyer said his client's "sentencing experience" with Judge Pickering was "a positive life-changing experience."

Judge Pickering's whole life story, not just his experience on the bench, suggests that he has repeatedly gone out of his way to help African-Americans. Or, as he put it last year, "I helped integrate our schools, the dinner table, my political party, my fraternity, and my church."

In the 1960s, he sent his children to the newly integrated Mississippi public schools even though there was an all-white private school nearby. As county attorney from 1964-68 he helped the FBI prosecute Ku Klux Klansmen, including testifying against the Imperial Wizard, and was defeated for re-election because of it. In 1971, he ran for the state Senate and won with the support of two-thirds of the black voters in his district.

He also has a long record of helping advance civil rights causes in Mississippi, getting white banks to lend money to black businesses and helping get federal funds directed to programs that helped African-Americans. Former Democratic Governor William Winter says Judge Pickering has been "one of this state's most dedicated and effective voices for breaking down racial barriers." African-American leaders in his hometown of Laurel, Mississippi, overwhelmingly support him.

Mr. Schumer knows all of this, but none of it matters because his agenda is to stir up the black vote against Republicans going into 2004. With the Lott debacle fresh in everyone's minds, now is the time to pile on, especially since Mr. Pickering is a Lott friend from Mississippi. Never mind that Mr. Bush and fellow Republicans were the folks who sent Mr. Lott to the backbenches.

Democrats defeated Mr. Pickering the first time on a 10-9 party-line vote in Judiciary, even though they know he would have won on the floor. Now that they are in the minority, they are threatening a filibuster strategy that would take judicial politics to a whole new level of enmity. Since 1949, a study by the Congressional Research Service shows the only successful filibuster against a judge was in 1968, when Strom Thurmond used it against Abe Fortas, LBJ's nominee for Supreme Court Chief Justice. Call him Strom Schumer.
