SEC. 922. INFORMATION FOR K NONIMMIGRANTS ABOUT LEGAL RIGHTS AND RESOURCES FOR IMMIGRANT VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Attorney General and the Secretary of State, shall develop consistent and accurate materials, including an information pamphlet described in subsection (b), on legal rights and resources for immigrant victims of domestic violence for dissemination to applicants for K nonimmigrant visas. In preparing such materials, the Secretary shall consult with non-governmental organizations with expertise on the legal rights of immigrant victims of battery, extreme cruelty, sexual assault and other crimes.

(b) INFORMATION PAMPHLET.—The information pamphlet developed under subsection (a) shall include information on the following:

(1) The K nonimmigrant visa application process and the marriage-based immigration process, including conditional residence and adjustment of status.

(2) The illegality of domestic violence, sexual assault, and child abuse in the United States and the dynamics of domestic violence.

(3) Domestic violence and sexual assault services in the United States, including the National Domestic Violence Hotline and the National Sexual Assault Hotline.

(4) The legal rights of immigrant victims of abuse and other crimes in immigration, criminal justice, family law, and other matters.

(5) The obligations of parents to provide child support for children.

(6) Marriage fraud under United States immigration laws and the penalties for committing such fraud.

(7) A warning concerning the potential use of K nonimmigrant visas by individuals who have a history of committing domestic violence, sexual assault, or child abuse.

(c) SUMMARIES.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Attorney General and the Secretary of State, shall develop summaries of the pamphlet developed under subsection (a) that shall be used by consular officers when reviewing the pamphlet in interviews under section (e)(2).

(d) TRANSLATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to best serve the language groups having the greatest concentration of K nonimmigrant visa applicants, the information pamphlet under subsection (b) shall, subject to paragraph (2), be translated by the Secretary of State into the following languages: Russian, Spanish, Tagalog, Vietnamese, Chinese, Ukrainian, Thai, Korean, Polish, Japanese, French, Arabic, Portuguese, and Hindi.

(2) REVISION.—Every two years, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Attorney General and the Secretary of State, shall determine the specific languages into which the information pamphlet is translated based on the languages spoken by the greatest concentrations of K nonimmigrant visa applicants.

(e) AVAILABILITY AND DISTRIBUTION.—The information pamphlet developed under subsection (a) shall be made available and distributed as follows:

(1) MAILINGS TO K NONIMMIGRANT VISA APPLICANTS.—

(A) The pamphlet shall be mailed by the Secretary of State to each applicant for a K nonimmigrant visa at the same time that the instruction packet regarding the visa application process is mailed to such applicant. The pamphlet so mailed shall be in the primary language of the applicant, or in English if no translation into the applicant's primary language is available.

(B) In addition, in the case of an applicant for a nonimmigrant visa under section 101(a)(15)(K)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(K)(i)) the Secretary of Homeland Security shall provide to the Secretary of State, for inclusion in the mailing under subparagraph (A), a copy of the petition submitted by the petitioner for such applicant under section 214(d) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1184(d)).

(C) The Secretary of Homeland Security shall provide to the Secretary of State any criminal background information the Secretary of Homeland Security possesses with respect to a petitioner under such section 214(d). The Secretary of State, in turn, shall share any such criminal background information that is in the public record with the nonimmigrant visa applicant who is the beneficiary of the petition. The visa applicant shall be informed that such criminal background information is based on available records and may not be complete. The Secretary of State also shall provide for the disclosure of such criminal background information to the visa applicant at the consular interview in the primary language of the visa applicant. Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed to authorize the Secretary of Homeland Security to conduct any new or additional criminal background check that is not otherwise conducted in the course of adjudicating such petitions.

(2) CONSULAR INTERVIEWS.— The pamphlet shall be distributed directly to K nonimmigrant visa applicants at all consular interviews for such visas. The consular officer conducting the visa interview shall review the pamphlet and summary with the applicant orally in the applicant's primary language, in addition to distributing the pamphlet to the applicant in English.

(3) CONSULAR ACCESS.—The pamphlet shall be made available to the public at all consular posts. Summaries of the pamphlets under subsection (c) shall be made available to foreign service officers at all consular posts.

(4) POSTING ON STATE DEPARTMENT WEBSITE.—The pamphlet shall be posted on the website of the Department of State as well as on the websites of all consular posts processing K nonimmigrant visa applications.

(f) K NONIMMIGRANT DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term ''K nonimmigrant visa'' means a nonimmigrant visa under clause (i) or (ii) of section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(K)).

''(I) Section 704, Grants to Combat Domestic Violence, Dating Violence, Sexual Assault, and Stalking In Middle And High Schools.

''(b) PURPOSE OF PROGRAM AND GRANTS.—

''(1) GENERAL PROGRAM PURPOSE.—The purpose of the program required by this section is to assist Indian tribal governments to develop and enhance effective governmental strategies to curtail violent crimes against and increase the safety of members of Indian tribes consistent with tribal law and custom, specifically the following:

''(A) To increase tribal capacity to respond to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking crimes against members of Indian tribes.

"(B) To strengthen tribal justice interventions including tribal law enforcement, prosecution, courts, probation, correctional facilities; and enhance services to members of Indian tribes victimized by domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

"(2) PURPOSES FOR WHICH GRANTS MAY BE USED.—The Director may make grants to Indian tribes for the purpose of enhancing participating tribes' capacity to address the safety of members of Indian tribes. Each participating tribe shall exercise its right of self-determination and self-governance in allocating and using funds made available under the program. Each participating tribe may use funds under the program to support its specific tribally based response to increasing the safety of members of Indian tribes. Grants under the program shall support the governmental efforts identified by the Indian tribe required according to its distinctive ways of life to increase the safety of members of Indian tribes from crimes of sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, kidnapping, and murder.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147316

''(c) DISBURSEMENT.—Not later than 120 days after the receipt of an application under this section, the Attorney General, through the Director, shall—

''(1) disburse the appropriate sums provided for under this section; or

''(2) inform the Indian tribe why the application does not conform to the terms of the application requirements.

''(d) REQUIRED PROCEDURES.—

''(1) DEADLINE TO PROVIDE NOTICE.—No later than 60 days after receiving an appropriation of funds supporting the program required by this section, Director shall—

''(A) publish in the Federal Register notification of—

''(i) the availability of those funds to Indian tribes;

''(ii) the total amount of funds available; and

''(iii) the process by which tribes may participate in the program; and

''(B) mail each Indian tribe a notification of the matters required by subparagraph (A), together with instructions on the process, copies of application forms, and a notification of the deadline for submission of an application.

''(2) DEADLINE TO MAKE FUNDS AVAILABLE.—No later than 180 days after receiving an appropriation referred to in paragraph (1), the Director shall distribute and make accessible those funds to Indian tribes opting to participate in the program.

''(3) FORMULA.—The Director shall distribute those funds according to the following formula: —

''(A) 60 percent of the available funds shall be allocated equally to all Indian tribes who exercise the option to access the funds,

''(B) The remaining 40 percent shall be allocated to the same Indian tribes on a per capita basis, according to the population residing in the respective Indian tribe's service area.

''(4) SET-ASIDE.—No later than 120 days after receiving an appropriation referred to in paragraph (1), the Director shall set aside not less than 5 percent and up to 7 percent of the total amount of those funds for the purpose of entering into a cooperative agreement or contract with one or more tribal organizations with demonstrated expertise in providing training and technical assistance to Indian tribes in addressing domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking against members of Indian tribes, tribal law, and customary pratices. At least one of the cooperative agreements or contracts shall be entered into with a single tribal organization to provide comprehensive technical assistance to participating tribal governments. Such training and technical assistance shall be specifically designed to address the unique legal unique legal status, distinct cultural ways of life, and geographic circumstances of the Indian tribes receiving funds under the program.

''(e) RECIPIENT REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Indian tribes may receive funds under the program required by this section as individual tribes or as a consortium of tribes.

''(2) SUBGRANTS AND OTHER ARRANGEMENTS.—Participating tribes may make subgrants or enter into contracts or cooperative agreements with the funds under the program to enhance the safety of, and end domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking against, members of Indian tribes.

''(3) SET ASIDE.—Participating tribes must set aside no less than 50 percent of their total allocation under this section for tribally specific domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking victim services and advocacy for members of Indian tribes. The services supported with funds under the program must be designed to address the unique circumstances of the individuals to be served, including the customary practices and linguistic needs of the individuals within the tribal community to be served. Tribes shall give preference to tribal organizations or tribal nonprofit organizations providing advocacy services to members of Indian tribes within the community to be served such as a safety center or shelter program for members of Indian tribes. In the case where the above organizations do not exist within the participating tribe, the participation and support from members of Indian tribes in the community to be served is sufficient to meet this requirement.

''(f) ADMINISTRATION REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) APPLICATION.—To reduce the administrative burden for Indian tribes, the Director shall prepare an expedited application process for Indian tribes participating in the program required by this section. The expedited process shall facilitate participating tribes' submission of information—

''(A) outlining project activities;

DOJ_NMG_ 0147320

"(B) describing how the project activities will enhance the Indian tribe's response to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking against members of Indian tribes; and

"(C) identifying the tribal partner providing advocacy and related services for members of Indian tribes who are victims of crimes of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

"(2) REPORTING AND EVALUATION.—The Director shall alleviate administrative burdens upon participating Indian tribes by—

"(A) developing a reporting and evaluation process relevant to the distinct governance of Indian tribes;

"(B) requiring only essential data to be collected; and

"(C) limiting reporting to an annual basis.

"(3) GRANT PERIOD.—The Director shall award grants for a two-year period, with a possible extension of another two years to implement projects under the grant.

"(g) PRESUMPTION THAT MATCHING FUNDS NOT REQUIRED.—

DOJ_NMG_ 0147321

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Given the unique political relationship between the United States and Indian tribes differentiates tribes from other entities that deal with or are affected by, the Federal Government, the Director shall not require an Indian tribe to match funds under this section, except as provided in paragraph (2).

"(2) EXCEPTION.—If the Director determines that an Indian tribe has adequate resources to comply with a matching requirement that would otherwise apply but for the operation of paragraph (1), the Director may waive the operation of paragraph (1) for that tribe.

"(h) EVALUATION.—The Director shall award a contract or cooperative agreement to evaluate programs under this section to an entity with the demonstrated expertise in domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking and knowledge and experience in—

"(1) the development and delivery of services to members of Indian tribes who are victimized;

"(2) the development and implementation of tribal governmental responses to such crimes; and

"(3) the traditional and customary practices of Indian tribes to such crimes.".

SEC. 1006. GAO REPORT TO CONGRESS ON STATUS OF PROSECUTION OF SEXUAL ASSAULT AND DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ON TRIBAL LANDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this section, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Congress a report on the prosecution of sexual assault and domestic violence committed against adult American Indians and Alaska Natives.

(b) CONTENTS OF REPORT.—The report required by subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An assessment of the effectiveness of prosecution of such cases by the United States district attorneys of such cases.

(2) For each district containing Indian country, a summary of the number of sexual assault and domestic violence related cases within Federal criminal jurisdiction and charged according to the following provisions of title 18, United States Code: Sections 1153, 1152, 113, 2261(a)(1)(2), 2261A(1), 2261A(2), 2261(a)(1)(2), and 922(g)(8).

(3) A summary of the number of—

(A) reports received;

(B) investigations conducted;

(C) declinations and basis for declination;

(D) prosecutions, including original charge and final disposition;

(E) sentences imposed upon conviction; and

(F) male victims, female victims, Indian defendants, and non-Indian defendants.

(3) The priority assigned by the district to the prosecution of such cases and the percentage of such cases prosecuted to total cases prosecuted.

(4) Any recommendations by the Comptroller General for improved Federal prosecution of such cases.

(c) YEARS COVERED.—The report required by this section shall cover the years 2000 through 2005.

Last rev. Sept 8, 2005 2:00 pm

This presents the views of the Department of Justice on H.R. 3402, the "Department of Justice Appropriation Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2006 through 2009," as reported by the House of Representatives. We support reauthorization of the programs and activities of the Department of Justice and therefore, subject to the concerns noted below, support enactment of H.R. 3402 . We have organized our comments to correspond with the titles of the bill.

TITLE I –AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS:

Section 101 (2), authorizing appropriations for the Office of the Pardon Attorney, uses the phrase "for administration of pardon and clemency petitions" (as do sections 102(2) and 103(2)). "Clemency" is an umbrella term applicable to pardons, commutations (reductions) of sentence, and remissions of a monetary penalty (such as fine or restitution). We recommend editing this phrase throughout Title I to refer either to the "administration of clemency petitions" or to the "administration of pardon and commutation petitions."

TITLE II – IMPROVING THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE'S GRANT PROGRAMS

Subtitle A - Improving the Department of Justice's Grant Programs

Section 201 would create the Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant ("Byrne JAG") Program by merging the current Edward Byrne Memorial State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance ("Byrne Grant") Programs and the current Local Law Enforcement Block Grant ("LLEBG") Program. The Department strongly supports this section as written, with three changes.

First, to ensure the ability to incorporate new information about emerging crime trends into the grant formula, the Department would prefer that this legislation not specify a formula for the allocation of the Byrne grant funds among States and localities. Instead, the inclusion of a provision for the periodic establishment of a formula by regulation would be preferable to the formula included in proposed new 28 U.S.C. § 500.

Second, to ensure that references to the current Byrne Grant Programs and LLEBG Program in laws, regulations, documents, papers, or other records of the United States are understood to apply to the proposed new Byrne JAG program, proposed new 28 U.S .C. § 500(b) contains a savings provision. To ensure that specific references to the Byrne Grant allocation formula in such laws, regulations, documents, papers, and other records are understood to apply to the analogous formula in the Byrne JAG program, new section 500(b) should be amended by inserting:

", and any reference therein to the current section 506 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3765) shall be deemed to be a reference to section 505(a) of that Act (as amended hereby)" immediately before the period.

Third, at present, grantees are prohibited from using LLEBG funds to buy (among other things) tanks, armored personnel carriers, fixed-wing aircraft, limousines, yachts, and vehicles not primarily used for law enforcement. However, such recipients may use LLEBG funds to purchase police cruisers, police boats, and police helicopters. As currently written, proposed new 42 U.S.C. § 3751 (d)(2)(A) would forbid grantees from using Byrne JAG funds to purchase such cruisers, boats, and helicopters, a result that appears to be inconsistent with proposed new 42 U.S .C. § 375 1 (a)(2). Accordingly, we recommend that proposed section (d)(2)(A) be amended to state: "(A) vehicles (other than police cruisers), vessels (other than police boats), or aircraft (other than police helicopters);"."

Section 205 of the bill amends 42 U.S.C. § 3732 to enhance the National Criminal Record Databases. In section 205 (a)(2), the term "National Criminal History Background Check System" does not refer to an existing database and the language should be modified to reflect the intent of the bill to cover the National Instant Criminal Background Check System or other system such as National Crime Information Center Interstate Identification Index or the Fingerprint Identification Records System.

Additionally, if the intent of section 205(c) is to amend 42 U.S.C. 3789g(a) to create a nondisclosure provision for purposes of Exemption 3, of the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"), we recommend the following additional amendment to that statute (noted in bold) should the requirements of S.1181, pass the House become law prior to the enactment of H.R. 3402:

> (c) CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION.-Section 812(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3789g(a)) is amended by striking ''Except as provided by Federal law other than this title, no'' and inserting ''No'' and, following "for any purpose", by adding "including disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. § 552,".

Subtitle B - Building Community Capacity to Prevent, Reduce, and Control Crime

Section 211 would establish an Office of Weed and Seed Strategies and authorize the Weed and Seed Program. The Department strongly supports this section, with the exception of embedded section 104(e)(2)(A), which would reserve "for Seeding activities" "not less than 40 percent" of each Weed and Seed grant. As section 211 makes clear, the very purpose of the Weed and Seed Program is to bring resources from communities and government together in coordinated fashion, by fighting crime ("weeding") and by promoting community-building ("seeding"). There are multiple sources of support for "seeding activities" within the Federal government, including the Departments of Health and Human Services, Education, Commerce, and Transportation. In sharp contrast, little if any "weeding" funding is available from any Federal government source outside the Department of Justice. Accordingly, to mandate a minimum percentage of relevant Justice Department appropriations to "seeding" could impair the "weeding" element of the program. Consequently, embedded section 104(e)(2)(A) should be amended by replacing "not less than 40 percent" with "not more than 40 percent."

Additionally, the Department recommends amending embedded section 104 to include explicitly as a focus of the programs persons returning to the community from prison and to promote reentry and reduce recidivism.

Subtitle C - Assisting Victims of Crime

Section 222 would make certain changes to the Victims of Crime Act of 1984. We support these changes. However, we urge consideration of an additional amendment to the Act. Nearly all appropriations to OJP for assistance typically are made without fiscal year limitation. The primary exception to this general rule has been appropriations from the Crime Victims Fund, which have a one-year character. Practically all appropriations from that Fund are allocated pursuant to mandatory statutory formulae and set-asides and can be obligated before the end of each fiscal year. The only problems occasioned by the one-year character of the funds arise with respect to certain reserved amounts whose expenditure is left by statute to the discretion of the Director of OJP's Office for Victims of Crime. With respect to the antiterrorism reserve, the 21st Century Department of Justice Appropriations Authorization Act (Pub. L. No. 107-273) amended the law to permit funds in that reserve to be carried over from year to year until expended. A similar solution is necessary, however, with respect to the Director's other discretionary funds (including funds for services to victims of Federal crimes, and funds for child victim services in Indian Country). Accordingly, the Department proposes language (below) that would put these other, limited, discretionary funds on the same general footing as the antiterrorism reserve funds. The proposed language would allow the Director greater flexibility to encourage diverse grant proposals, and to retain adequate funding to respond - quickly and in targeted fashion - to immediate and unforeseen victim needs (such as those arising from school shootings), as warranted. The Director needs authority to be able to maximize use of his other discretionary funding for immediate emerging victim needs, and the Department's proposed language would provide it, by enabling him to make maximum use of the flexibility afforded by his discretionary funds. To this end, the Department recommends the following change:

Amend § 222, by adding a new paragraph (4) as follows:

"(4) AUTHORITY TO CARRY OVER CERTAIN AMOUNTS FROM YEAR TO YEAR. - Subsection (d)(5)(C) of such section is amended by inserting after 'subparagraph (A)' the following: ', and amounts made available by law for obligation pursuant to sections 1402(g) and 1404(c) but remaining unobligated at the end of a fiscal year,'."

Section 223 contains an identical confidentiality provision to that contained in Section 205(c), which strengthens the confidentiality of information provision in the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, which we fully support. Section 223, however, should be amended to conform with Section 205(c). The changes recommend below also contain language in bold, to conform with our comment to 205(c) above. We recommend inserting at the end of the heading: "; CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION" AFTER "PURPOSES", and by inserting a new subsection:

"(c) CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION. - Section 1407(d) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 10604(d) is amended by:

(1) striking "Except as otherwise provided by Federal law, no" and inserting "No"; " and, following "for any purpose", by adding "including disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. § 552,";

(2) striking "research or statistical"; and

(3) inserting "or for law enforcement purposes" after "was obtained in accordance with this chapter".

Sections 224-227 contain numerous expansions to Violence Against Women Act ("VAWA") grant programs. Titles IV through IX of this bill, however, reauthorize VAWA and VAWA 2000. Provisions in these sections relevant to VAWA would be more appropriately included in Titles IV through IX and should be amended to be consistent with changes proposed in those titles.

Section 224(a) is designed to expand the purpose provisions of the Violence Against Women formula grant program. Section 502(b) of the bill, however, also amends the same section of the STOP purpose provisions. Read together, these two amendments do not produce a coherent whole. If the amendment in subsection 224(a) is retained – rather than the one in subsection 502(b) – the Department recommends replacing "following: "to develop"" with "following: ", to develop"" to avoid potential confusion. If both provisions are kept, the language will need to be significantly re-worked.

Additionally, section 224(b)(1) would amend 42 U.S.C. 3796gg-1(a), which currently specifies eligible recipients of STOP funds. The Department is concerned that, if the current language is removed, there will be ambiguity regarding which entities may receive STOP grants. We therefore recommend replacing subsection 224(b)(1) with the following:

(1) in subsection (a), replace "to States, for use by States, State and local courts (including juvenile courts), units of local government, nonprofit nongovernmental victim services programs, and Indian tribal governments" with "to States, Indian tribal governments, and nonprofit state and tribal domestic violence and sexual assault coalitions";

In addition, this amendment would be better placed in section 501 of the bill (STOP Grants Improvements), which contains other modifications to the STOP statute.

Section 224 contains very welcome language that would coordinate some of OVW's reports to Congress due biennially (rather than annually) and on a consistent schedule. We recommend retaining these provisions but placing them in Title IV of the bill (which contains other general modifications to VAWA) or elsewhere in the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2005. Additionally, the Department proposes the following language as a consolidated section regarding all of OVW's regular reports to Congress:

SEC. XXX. CHANGE OF CERTAIN REPORTS FROM ANNUAL TO BIENNIAL.

(a) STALKING AND DOMESTIC VIOLENCE. —Section 40610 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (title IV of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994; 42 U.S.C. 14039) is amended by striking "The Attorney General shall submit to the Congress an annual report, beginning one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, that provides" and inserting "Each even- numbered fiscal year, the Attorney General shall submit to the Congress a biennial report that provides".

(b) SAFE HAVENS FOR CHILDREN. —Section 1301(d)(1) of the Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 10420(d)(1)) is amended in the matter preceding subparagraph (A) by striking "Not later than 1 year after the last day of the first fiscal year commencing on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and not later than 180 days after the last day of each fiscal year thereafter," and inserting "Not later than one month after the end of each even-numbered fiscal year,".

(c) STOP VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN FORMULA GRANTS. —Section 2009(b) of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3796gg-3), is amended by striking "Not later than" and all that follows through "the Attorney General shall submit" and inserting the following: "Not later than one month after the end of each even-numbered fiscal year, the Attorney General shall submit".

(d) GRANTS TO COMBAT VIOLENT CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN ON CAMPUS. — Section 826(d)(3) of the Higher Education Amendments Act of 1998 (20 U.S.C. 1152 (d)(3)) is amended by replacing the matter from "Not" through and including "under this section" with "Not later than one month after the end of each even-numbered fiscal year".

DOJ_NMG_ 0147329

(e) TRANSITIONAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE GRANTS FOR CHILD VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, STALKING, OR SEXUAL ASSAULT. —Section 40299(f) of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (42 U.S.C. 13975(f)) is amended by replacing "shall annually prepare and submit to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate a report that contains a compilation of the information contained in the report submitted under subsection (e) of this section." with "shall prepare and submit to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate a report that contains a compilation of the information contained in the report submitted under subsection (e) of this section not later than one month after the end of each even-numbered fiscal year.".

Section 226 contains new language that would coordinate two required OVW regular reports to Congress to have them due biennially (rather than annually) and on a consistent schedule. We support these provisions, but recommend moving those relevant to Title IV or another part of the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2005. Two reports from the Office, however (one specified in the Higher Education Amendments of 1998 and another specified in the recently-enacted PROTECT Act), were not included, and thus would remain due to Congress annually. The Department respectfully recommends making these reports biennial and putting them on the same schedule as the other reports. We have attached above, in Section 224, proposed language for one section that covers all of OVW's regular reports to Congress.

Similarly, the Department would like to include the report to Congress on the activities of the Office of Correctional Job Training and Placement and proposes the following language be included:

Section 20418(d)(4) of Public Law 103-322, the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (42 U.S.C. § 13725(d)(4)), is amended by striking "an annual report" and inserting "a report each even-numbered fiscal year".

We also propose eliminating the report to Congress on substance abuse treatment programs, and we submit the following language:

Section 3621(e) of title 18, United States Code, is amended

(1) by striking paragraph (3) and paragraph (4) and inserting the following:

"(3) Authorization of appropriations.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out this subsection for each of fiscal years 2006 through 2009.";

(2) by renumbering paragraph (5) as paragraph (4); and

(3) by renumbering paragraph (6) as paragraph (5).

The Department also proposes eliminating the report to Congress on the privatization requirements in the District of Columbia Revitalization Act, and we submit the following language:

> Section 11201(c) of Public Law 105-33, the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, is amended—
> (1) by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:
> "(2) DUTIES OF THE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL.– The Deputy Attorney General shall be responsible for overseeing Bureau of Prisons privatization activities.".

Section 227 would amend the Rural program statute so that entities which serve rural areas or rural communities are eligible to receive Rural program funds regardless whether they are located in a rural state. Section 603, proposed section 40295(b) of the bill also accomplishes this same result. The Department therefore recommends deleting section 227.

Subtitle E - Other Matters

Section 241(d), by its operative terms, would provide the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives ("ATF") with the same undercover-operations authorities currently available by statute to the Justice Department's Federal Bureau of Investigation ("FBI") and Drug Enforcement Administration ("DEA"). We strongly support such a provision. Unfortunately, however, the subsection's incorrect heading, and an inaccurate parallel citation contained within the subsection itself, appear to suggest that only the audit and reporting provisions applicable to the FBI and DEA undercover operations (as opposed to the authority to conduct the operations themselves) would be applied to ATF undercover operations. For this reason, we recommend striking "AUDITS AND REPORTS ON" in the subsection's heading, as well as "(28 U.S.C. 533 note)" the first place it appears within the subsection itself.

Section 247 would amend current law to allow the Marshals Service to pay for prisoner medical costs at the Medicare rate and would lift the burdensome requirement that it pay the lesser of the Medicare or Medicaid rate. We strongly support this provision. This change is critical to the continued success of the Marshals' prisoner medical cost containment program.

Using national Medicare rates, the Marshals Service has been able to achieve a medical savings of $89.9 million from fiscal year 2002 to the present. Forced implementation of a 50-State Medicaid structure would result in a substantial loss of medical specialists, a decline in the quality of medical care provided to prisoners, and a substantial increase in medical guard costs.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147331

Section 248 would establish a new "Office of Audit, Assessment, and Management" within OJP. The Office would be "the exclusive element of the Department of Justice, other than the Inspector General," with responsibility for monitoring compliance with any OJP grant program or "[a]ny other grant program carried out by the Department of Justice that the Attorney General considers appropriate." We believe that the COPS office should be exempted from this provision. The COPS Office has devoted significant resources to establish a division that is responsible for responding to OIG audits and a grant monitoring division that conducts on-site and other monitoring strategies, and has developed the expertise to effectively monitor and ensure compliance with COPS grant conditions. Moreover, we object to transferring the automated system for tracking COPS grants to OJP. The COPS Office's automated system (CMS) is a longstanding, highly successful grant management system.

We have four suggestions to improve the language of section 248, as follows:

First, embedded section 105 contains several references to "performance audits." To avoid conflict with the law and regulations relating to the auditing activities of the Inspector General and the Comptroller General (particularly given the exclusivity provision contained at embedded section 105(a)(3)), the Department strongly recommends that all such references be changed to "program assessments," a term that would cover the assessments, both programmatic and financial that appear to be what is actually contemplated by the provision as it is currently drafted.

Second, we also recommend that the name of the Office be changed to the "Office of Assessment and Management."

Third, embedded section 105(f), as currently drafted, provides that "[n]ot to exceed 5 percent of all funding made available for a fiscal year for the programs covered by subsection (b) shall be reserved for the activities of the Office of Audit, Assessment, and Management as authorized by this section." We appreciate the apparent intent of this proposed funding mechanism and believe it would be consistent with a key part of the President's Management Agenda: to ensure that performance is routinely evaluated and considered in government funding and management decisions, and that government programs achieve expected results and work toward continual improvement. We would prefer, however, that the funding be capped at a more reasonable 3 percent (a 40 percent reduction).

Finally, to ensure that the identified funds will be used only for the purposes described in embedded section 105 (which appears to be the intention of subsection (f)), we recommend that the language reserving funds for the activities of the Office, "as authorized by this section," be amended to permit the use of funds "for the activities authorized by this section."

Section 249 would establish a Community Capacity Development Office to provide training and technical assistance to improve and build the capacity of community elements to participate in Justice Department grant programs. The Department strongly supports this provision but recommends a clarifying amendment to embedded section 106(e), which as currently written, makes certain funds available "for the activities of the Community Capacity Development Office." To ensure that the identified funds be used only for the purposes described in embedded section 106 (which appears to be the intention of subsection (e)), the Department recommends that the quoted text be replaced with "for the activities authorized by this section." In addition, our comments about funding of the new Office that would be established by section 248 apply here, as well, to embedded section 106(e).

This section also provides that exclusive jurisdiction over COPS grant funds appropriated for community policing development would be transferred to OJP. We recommend that the COPS Office should be exempted from this provision because it has developed a strong national network of Regional Community Policing Institutes, as well as the Community Policing Consortium. Moreover, the COPS Office has the recognized expertise to continue providing a wide variety of information, training and technical assistance in the field of community oriented policing and also to make grants, through NIJ, to assess its programs. This has resulted in the timely and effective distribution of funds appropriated for these purposes.

Section 250 would create an Office of Applied Law Enforcement Technology within OJP. The Department strongly supports the concept of having a single unit within the Department responsible for coordinating the acquisition of applied law enforcement technology pursuant to its myriad grant programs. To ensure that this new component benefits from the research and evaluation efforts of the Department's National Institute of Justice, however, the Department strongly recommends that it be established as a division of NIJ's Office of Science and Technology, rather than as a separate office. This change would create a forceful and proactive element working across the Department to set minimum information technology standards for equipment and software - especially for interoperability equipment and other communication tools - purchased under the various broad grant options. The linkage between research and setting standards is vital, particularly as standards set often have a broader application than the immediate need being addressed, and NIJ is in the best position by far to oversee this endeavor. Additionally, the Department recommends inclusion of some illustrative examples of "crime reporting programs administered by the Department," for clarification purposes. Accordingly, the Department recommends the following changes:

At embedded section 107,

(I) in the heading, strike "OFFICE" and insert "NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF JUSTICE, OFFICE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY, DIVISION";

(ii) in subsection (a),

(A) strike "the Office an Office" and insert "the Office of Science and Technology of the National Institute of Justice a Division";

DOJ_NMG_ 0147333

(B) strike "Director" and insert "person";

(C) strike "the Office shall" and insert "the Division shall"; and

(iii) in subsection (b),

(A) strike "the Office, the Director" and insert "the Division, its head"; and

(B) insert ", such as the Uniform Crime Reports or the National Incident-Based Reporting System" after "Department".

Additionally, the Department recommends that the COPS Office should be exempted from this provision. The COPS Office has already invested over one billion dollars in State, local and tribal law enforcement equipment and technology through its technology and interoperability programs. The COPS Office has been responsive in meeting the needs of State and local law enforcement for computer systems.

Section 251 would add a new section 108 to part A of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. This new section would establish certain general time limits on the availability of Justice Department grant funds. The Department strongly supports the expeditious awarding of grant appropriations, which appears to be the intention of this provision. Unfortunately, this provision would cause great confusion and severely limit the flexibility that is necessary in making awards under grant programs, given the disparity of fiscal years among the plethora of jurisdictions across the country and the need occasioned by many grants for significant ramp-up activities (including activities necessary to meet eligibility requirements) before grant funds may be awarded. This is particularly the case, given that the provision offers no leeway for circumstances where there may be legitimate cause for extensions of time. Under the circumstances, the Department believes that potentially could have a significant detrimental effect on Federal assistance to State, local, and tribal governments, and to non-profit grantees.

Also, the reversion of funds to the Treasury rather than to DOJ - for example, funds recovered from unsigned awards, withdrawals, grant close-out or misused funds as a result of enforcement action - would not have the desired effect of providing incentive to grantees to spend funds faster, but would rather have the opposite result. For these reasons, we recommend that the provision be stricken. Alternatively, we strongly recommend the deletion of the last sentence of proposed new subsection 108(b), which, as currently written, would have the practical effect of rescinding nearly all deobligations and causing them to revert to the Treasury - a result directly at odds with new proposed subparagraph 108(a)(3).

Section 252 ensures that accounting and procurement activities for the Office of Justice Programs are carried out under the Office of the comptroller and the Office of Administration. The Department believes this provision to be unnecessary because the Assistant Attorney General for Administration (AAG/A) is responsible for, among other things, the Department's financial management, budget, and procurement policies. The AAG/A, in turn, delegates these operations to component heads such as the Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Justice Programs. As such, Section 252 is redundant of current Department management.

Section 253 would reauthorize the use of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) grants for hiring law enforcement officers, providing law enforcement equipment, and addressing interoperable communications needs of State and local law enforcement agencies. The Administration's budget proposes to consolidate the current COPS hiring grants, the Byrne program, and the Local Law Enforcement Block Grant program into Byrne Justice Assistance grants, which would give law enforcement greater flexibility to address local priorities, such as equipment, training, or staffing. In addition, the Administration believes that interoperable communications assistance should be administered by the Department of Homeland Security.

This section would combine all allowable uses of COPS grants into a single COPS grant program. Instead of separately funding programs through separate grants for a specific purpose, COPS would make single grants for any purpose listed. We believe that our grantee recipients would consider this an improvement to the way federal funds are distributed through the COPS Office.

Section 254 would make several welcome changes to the Public Safety Officers' Benefits ("PSOB") Program, and, with two changes, we strongly support it.

The first change relates to a serious administrative problem unintentionally occasioned by one detail of a provision of the Mychal Judge Police and Fire Chaplains Public Safety Officers' Benefit Act of 2002 (Public Law 107- 196) (the Judge Act), to the great detriment of the beneficiaries of fallen public safety officers. Among other things, the Judge Act provides that, in cases where a public safety officer dies without a spouse or eligible children, the PSOB benefit is to be paid to the individuals on the officer's most recently executed life insurance policy, rather than to his parents (who would have been the beneficiaries under prior law). Unfortunately, the Judge Act, which the Administration strongly supported and supports, has proven extraordinarily difficult to administer in one respect, because it is all but impossible to determine what a fallen officer's "most recently executed life insurance policy" might be, without knowing what the universe of potential policies is. (For example, the Judge Act does not expressly require that the "most recently executed life insurance policy" actually be in effect at the time of the fallen officer's death.) Given the inherent uncertainty as to whether a fallen public safety officer had "executed one or more "life insurance polic[ies]," and, if so, whether any policy presented to OJP is the "most recently executed" policy, life-insurance beneficiaries have been afforded a one-year period in which to present their claims and then the Department has been left to decide which such beneficiaries (if any) may be entitled to recover from the program. In several cases, where, by all accounts, there were no life insurance policies, we have been forced to withhold payment from the fallen officer's otherwise eligible parents (parents who may have been economically dependent on the fallen officer) for a full year because of the possibility that someone might appear and claim to be an insurance beneficiary under a current or expired life insurance policy.

Additionally, it is not at all clear that the premise that informs this aspect of the Judge Act - that the beneficiaries under a fallen officer's "most recently executed life insurance policy" are the persons the officer would have desired to receive the PSOB Program death benefit - is accurate. Life insurance can be and is obtained often under widely varying circumstances, such as the purchase of airline tickets, the opening of bank accounts, pursuant to divorce decrees, wholly removed from the concrete contemplation of estate planning or the selection of a PSOB beneficiary. For example, currently pending before the Department is the case of a hired farmhand, the beneficiary of a very small life insurance policy purchased by the generous fallen officer who owned the farm. No evidence has been presented to suggest that the fallen officer intended the farmhand, rather than the officer's family (or some designated beneficiary), to receive the PSOB death benefit, as the Judge Act apparently will require.

Taking all these considerations into account, the House of Representatives included section 254(d) in the bill (passed out last year and continue here). Section 254(d) corrects one aspect of the serious administrative problems associated with the Judge Act, but leaves the rest of those administrative problems untouched. To enhance the operation of the Judge Act by correcting all such administrative problems, and to ensure that the purposes of the Judge Act are not defeated unintentionally, we strongly recommend amending section 254(d) by inserting "on file at the time of death with such officer's public safety agency, organization, or unit" after "policy" in embedded subparagraph (4)(B). Pursuant to this change, any officer who wished to designate a beneficiary to receive the PSOB Program death benefit instead of his parents could do so easily (in fact, more easily than at present), without being required to purchase life insurance as a proxy for making such a designation. This change also would further the purposes of the Judge Act ensuring that the PSOB beneficiary would be the person actually selected by the fallen officer for that purpose, rather than a person who by happenstance was the beneficiary of the most recently executed policy. Finally, this change would enable the Department quickly to determine whether the fallen officer in fact did leave such a designation of beneficiary or policy. If so, the Department would be able to provide that beneficiary with the benefit promptly. If not, the Department would be able to provide the benefit to the fallen officer's parents without further delay.

The second change relates to the Department of Justice's authority to act in cases where an additional beneficiary presents a valid claim after the full amount of the PSOB Program benefit has been paid. Under current law, the Department is obligated in these cases to collect from the other beneficiaries in order to pay the additional beneficiary the amount he is entitled to under the PSOB statute. This problem arose, for example, with the Judge Act when, as of the date of its enactment (June 24, 2002), the Department already had paid all claims arising from the September 11th attacks in which the officer died without children or spouse. Because the Judge Act retroactively covers claims on deaths occurring on or after September 11, 2001, the Department received several claims from individuals who were named on life insurance policies of fallen officers. After enactment of the Judge Act, the parents of several fallen officers, who had already received the PSOB Program benefit, no longer were eligible beneficiaries (i.e., the Judge Act made their entitlement to the PSOB Program benefit subordinate to the claims of that Act's insurance claimants). Because the PSOB Act provides for only one death benefit per fallen officer (which is divided according to the statute among all the members of the eligible class of beneficiaries), the practical effect of the Judge Act's retroactivity provisions was to strip these parents of their PSOB entitlement and transform the payments honestly made to and received by them into debts subject to collection by the federal government.

This "additional beneficiary after the benefit already has been paid" problem arises in other contexts as well. For example, in a recent case involving a fallen officer of September 11th, the full amount of the benefit was paid to his surviving spouse and four children, but a valid claim now has been filed on behalf of an illegitimate child of the officer's. Under current law, that child (of whom the Department knew nothing until long after the PSOB Program benefit had been paid) is entitled to a statutory share of the benefit, but, under the circumstances, the benefits already paid out are subject to collection to the extent of that child's statutory share. In another case currently before the Department, evidence has been presented -- payment of the full PSOB Program benefit already having been made -- that one of the fallen officer's children (who did not receive a statutory share) was a full-time student at the time of the officer's death and accordingly is entitled (despite earlier appearances) to a statutory share of the benefit. Here again, the benefits already paid out are subject to collection to the extent of that child's statutory share.

The House of Representatives was aware of the problems occasioned by the retroactivity provisions of the Judge Act and sought to correct them by including section 254(c) in the bill (passed out last year and continued here), which would create a new section 1201(k). (Because the PSOB Act recently was amended, at very least embedded section 1201(k) should be redesignated.) As currently written, section 254(c) of the bill would correct the double/payment/debt-collection problem associated with those retroactivity provisions, but it would not address the identical problems that arise in non-Judge Act cases. For this reason, the Department strongly recommends that bill section 254(c) be amended by replacing embedded section (k) with the following:

"(m) The Bureau may suspend or end collection action on an amount disbursed pursuant to a statute enacted retroactively or otherwise in error under subsections (a) or (c), where such collection would be impractical, or would cause undue hardship to a debtor who acted in good faith.".

TITLE III – MISCELLANEAUS PROVISIONS:

Section 302 makes miscellaneous technical amendments. Section 302(a) provides that a comma should be added after “fraud” in the heading for 18 U.S.C. § 1591.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147337

We note that there is already a comma after "fraud" in the heading of 18 U.S.C. § 1591 in the 2005 Edition on the Federal Criminal Code and Rules.

Section 20301(c) of Pub. L. No. 103-322 added a termination of limitation provision to 8 U.S.C. § 1252(j), which provision was codified as a note to that section. Subsequently, the program to which the provision referred (i.e. the State Criminal Alien Assistance Program - SCAAP) was the subject of several statutory amendments and was recodified to 8 U.S.C. § 1231(i). Despite these changes to the SCAAP program, section 20301(c) remains codified as a note to section 1252. Therefore, OJP recommends adding the following new subsection:

> "(e) REPEAL OF PROVISION RELATING TO UNAUTHORIZED PROGRAM.— Section 20301 of Public Law 103-322 is amended by striking subsection (c).".

Section 304 would require each component of the Department to use only facilities that do not require a payment to a private entity for predominantly internal training or conference meetings "unless specifically authorized in writing by the Attorney General."[1] The Attorney General would be required to report annually to Congress on the details of each training and conference meeting that is authorized to use a private facility, which would be unduly burdensome. The Department's finance staff would need to set up a new code system for tracking related expenses in the accounting system in order to report to the Attorney General on the details of each training and conference meeting required by 304(b).

Section 304 would also have a dampening effect on the Department's ability to periodically conduct training conferences and related meetings. Federal training capacity is limited, and the training facilities available to Department of Justice components have traditionally had serious capacity issues (e.g., at the National Advocacy Center and the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center). Given this limited capacity of federal facilities, the requirements in Section 304 will jeopardize the scheduling of important meetings and conferences if approval from the AG for alternative facilities cannot be obtained in a timely manner. If this requirement remains in the bill, we would recommend that for the timely approval of requests, language should be added to allow the AG to delegate this authority to component heads, with possibly even further delegation to Executive Officers.

Training for intelligence personnel who are working sensitive issues or are operating undercover (Agents, Surveillance personnel) cannot easily be conducted in federal training facilities. Training in science and technology disciplines, IT for instance, is often better conducted in non-governmental facilities specifically built for that purpose. Foreign language training and conferences are often held in non-governmental facilities due to significant roles played by academia and private industry in the training. The FBI training facility at Quantico is already grappling with capacity issues in order to meet

[1] We assume that the Attorney General's responsibility to make a written certification could be delegated.

internal training requirements. Placing restrictions on the use of non-governmental facilities would hinder training efforts.

This change could potentially affect ANY training class held by a United States Attorney's Office (USAO) in an outside facility (unless the space is free). Unless the Attorney General (AG) could delegate this authority downward, everyone would need to get the AG's approval for holding any kind of training in a private facility. This could be hundreds per year. It may also include the United States Attorneys' conference or any meeting of USAs held at an outside hotel/facility (e.g. OCDETF, Asset Forfeiture). Since the Department's Executive Office of United States Attorneys ("EOUSA") does the majority of USAO training at the National Advocacy Center ("NAC"), this doesn't appear to affect that training, but there are a lot other entities within Justice and the USAO community that could be affected.

Moreover, we are not certain that a provision encouraging the Department to conduct all training in Federal facilities would have the desired effect of reducing the costs of training. Existing GSA regulations (41 CFR 301-74) on conference planning (which can include training) already require agencies to "maximize the use of Government-owned of Government provided conference facilities as much as possible." Additionally, in some cases (for example, in the case of the Bureau of Prisons), our components have negotiated excellent room rates and conference facility prices. For all of these reasons, we oppose this provision and suggest its deletion.

Section 305 would require the Attorney General to designate a "senior official" within the Department of Justice (the "Department") "to assume primary responsibility for privacy policy." The Department recognizes the growing importance of information privacy, and supports creation of a Chief Privacy Officer (CPO) position within DOJ, but strongly believes that more time and study are required before the CPO's duties and responsibilities can or should be specifically delineated. The Department is now actively engaged in assessing its privacy-related functions and personnel, and making recommendations to the Attorney General regarding potential structural changes and resource needs. As this project unfolds, among the difficult questions presented are: what is the scope of the CPO's responsibilities? How does creation of a CPO affect the Department's existing privacy functions? What is the appropriate relationship between the CPO and the Chief Information Officer? Is importing the DHS model the optimal solution for DOJ? The answers to these questions are not obvious, and are not susceptible to "one size fits all" legislation. The Department therefore seeks additional flexibility in the language of the bill, and sufficient time to make an informed recommendation to Congress regarding establishment of a CPO. We submit the following language as a substitute:

Privacy Officer

(a) In General. The Attorney General shall designate a senior official in the Department of Justice to assume primary responsibility for privacy policy.

(b) Responsibilities. The responsibilities of such official shall include –

DOJ_NMG_ 0147339

(1) Advising the Attorney General regarding appropriate privacy protections, relating to the use, collection, and disclosure of personally identifiable information, with respect to the use of information technology policy and information systems; and
(2) Advising the Attorney General regarding the privacy implications of legislative and regulatory proposals affecting the Department and involving the collection, use, and disclosure of personally identifiable information.

(3) In consultation with the Department's Chief Information Officer, ensuring the Department's compliance with Section 208 of the E-Government Act of 2002 (Pub. L. 107-347).

(c) Review of Privacy-Related Functions and Resources and Report. Within 120 days of his designation, the privacy official shall prepare a comprehensive report to the Attorney General and to Congress, describing the organization and resources of the Department with respect to privacy and related information management functions, including access, security, and records management, assessing the Department's current and future needs relating to information privacy issues, and making appropriate recommendations regarding the Department's organizational structure and personnel.

Section 306 of the bill includes language requiring the Director of the Executive Office for United States Trustees to report to the Congress annually on:

"(1) the number and types of criminal referrals; (2) the outcomes of each criminal referral; (3) for any year in which the number of criminal referrals is less than for the prior year, an explanation of the decrease; and (4) the United States Trustee Program's [the Program] efforts to prevent bankruptcy fraud and abuse, particularly with respect to the establishment of uniform internal controls to detect common, higher risk frauds, such as a debtor's failure to disclose all assets."

We believe that a statutory reporting requirement is unnecessary, and therefore oppose Section 306.

This past year, the Program redesigned its criminal database. Moreover, the Program voluntarily makes available to the Committee information on its criminal referral efforts, as well as data from other initiatives undertaken to combat abuse of the bankruptcy system. For the past three years, the Program issued its Annual Report of Significant Accomplishments. Copies were sent to Members of the Judiciary Committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives, and the report is available on the U.S. Trustee Program' s internet web site. Each report summarizes the Program's efforts during a particular fiscal year to combat fraud and abuse through its civil and criminal enforcement initiatives. In addition, training with Program field offices and law enforcement is ongoing; agency manuals and referral protocols are planned; and working relationships with the U.S. Attorneys' offices, as well as other law enforcement agencies, have expanded.

Section 307 would require the Attorney General to report to Congress at least once per year on the status of "United States persons or residents detained on suspicion of terrorism." The report is to specify the number of persons detained, as well as "the standards developed by the Department of Justice for recommending or determining that a person should be tried as a criminal defendant or should be designated as an enemy combatant." We strongly oppose this provision. As we have explained in the past, no one is detained "on suspicion of terrorism" Rather, detainees fall into three categories: (1) material witnesses; (2) those suspected of immigration violations; and (3) those suspected of criminal violations. The first category is governed by grand jury secrecy provisions and is inappropriate for a report to Congress. The second category is best addressed by the Department of Homeland Security. Information about the third category is generally publicly available and therefore inappropriate for a report to Congress. As for enemy combatants, these are detained by the Department of Defense, not the Department of Justice. Regarding the standards for that designation, we discussed these at length in other communications with Congress. We do not believe that a further annual report on this topic should be required.

Section 308: Technical Correction relating to Definition Used in "Terrorism Transcending National Boundaries" Statute. This section, amending 18 USC 1958, is not necessary, as it was enacted at part of the Intel Reform bill, PL 108-458, section 6704.

Section 309 of the bill amends various sexual abuse offenses to cover contract facilities and to ensure that all such offenses would be felonies, rather than misdemeanors. Under the current wording of Title 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241-2244, these sexual abuse provisions apply to offenses occurring in "the special maritime and territorial jurisdiction of the United States or in a Federal prison." The amendments proposed by this section are intended to widen the application of these provisions to ensure that offenses occurring in contract facilities would be covered by these statutes. In addition, based on current sentence lengths, several subsections of title 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241-2244 are misdemeanor offenses. The amendments in Section 309 would increase the sentences for these offenses, thereby ensuring that these sexual abuse crimes are all felonies. However, the current proposed change made by Section 309 is deficient in that it does not address sexual abuse offenses committed by employees in contract facilities.

We support the objective of this initiative, and recommend amending the current statute with language proposed by the Office of Inspector General in the report titled "Report on Deterring Staff Sexual Abuse of Inmates," dated April 15, 2005. That proposal recommends inserting the language "or in any prison, institution, or facility in which persons are held in custody by direction of or pursuant to a contract or agreement with the Attorney General" after "in a Federal prison" in the relevant places in §§ 2241-2244 of Title 18 U.S.C. (the places currently listed in Section 309 of the draft bill). The following amendment will accomplish this goal:

Section 309 should be amended as follows:

"by inserting "or in any prison, institution, or facility in which persons are held in custody by direction of or pursuant to a contract or agreement with the Attorney General" after "in a Federal prison":"

The Department agrees with this section's proposed increases to penalties for sexual abuse offenses.

Section 310 amends title 18 U.S.C. § 1791(a), the statute addressing contraband in correctional facilities, to ensure that the prohibition and penalties will cover the possession or introduction of contraband in contract facilities. To be consistent with the needed changes to the sexual abuse offense statutes made by amending section 309, and to accomplish this goal using a different approach, we propose the following replacement to Section 310:

SEC. 310. EXPANDED JURISDICTION FOR CONTRABAND OFFENSES IN CORRECTIONAL FACILITIES.

Section 1791(d)(4) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting "or any prison, institution, or facility in which persons are held in custody by direction of or pursuant to a contract or agreement with the Attorney General" after "penal facility".

Section 315 permits the Attorney General to use as a grantee the Center for Criminal Justice Technology. The Department suggests deleting this section, as it is permissive, not mandatory, and is thus unnecessary because Department may already use the Center when appropriate.

Section 322 is a sense of Congress related to "good time release." The Department suggests deleting this section because our current sentencing laws already provide for early "good time" release. Our current truth-in-sentencing law allows an inmate to reduce the time served by up to 15 percent for good behavior in prison. The study called for in this section, therefore, is not necessary.

Section 324 would amend Section 475 of title 18, United States Code, by adding at the end the following: ''Nothing in this section applies to evidence of postage payment approved by the United States Postal Service.'' The section as presently written is a "violation" providing for a fine, but no incarceration. The statute makes it a violation to counterfeit any government "obligation or security", or to attach advertising, business cards, any notice or advertisement of any such obligation or security shall be fined. The amendment would exempt "evidence of postage payment" (presumably the e-postage systems now being used). This statute on its face does not appear to apply to evidence of postage payment. We oppose this amendment as superfluous and unnecessary.

TITLE IV – VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2005

Titles IV through X of the bill are the "Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2005." The Department strongly supports the reauthorization of grant programs established by the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (VAWA 1994) and subsequent legislation. Through these grant programs, the Department has provided federal grants to help communities across America develop innovative strategies to combat violence against women. These grant programs are being used to forge focused and effective partnerships among federal, state, local and tribal governments, and between the criminal justice system and victim advocates, and to provide much-needed services to victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking. Titles IV through X of H.R. 3402 would renew the Act and make important improvements to Department-administered grant programs that would enable communities and victim service providers to expand their prevention efforts, ensure the safety of more victims, and hold perpetrators accountable for their crimes.

As an overall comment, several sections in Titles IV – X increase the tribal set-aside for VAWA grant programs from 5% to 10%. (Sections: 501(d)(1)(A); 502(b)(4); 503(6)(B)(i)(I); 504 (proposed 41004(f)(1)); 603 (proposed 40295(d)(1)); and 701 (proposed 41202(d)(1))). The Department does not support this increase. As discussed under Title X, below, we have experienced difficulty meeting the current 5% set aside because tribes lack the resources and infrastructure to benefit under the current structure. At present, OVW supports as many qualified tribal proposals as it receives under these programs. Merely raising the tribal set-aside (which has always been viewed as a minimum, not a cap) will not effectively address the problems we've encountered in administering tribal grants. In Title X, below, the Department proposes a tribal grant structure that is tailored to the problems we have encountered in administering these grant programs.

The Department submits the following comments by Title and Section number:

Section 402. Definitions and Requirements for Programs Relating to Violence Against Women.

Section 402, proposed section 2000A, amends Part T of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 by clarifying that any provision authorizing the Department to make grants, or to carry out other activities, for the assistance of victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, stalking or trafficking shall be construed to cover grants that provide assistance to male as well as female victims. The Department views this provision as unnecessary because the Office already construes any provision regarding assistance to victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking to be gender-neutral. Moreover, regardless whether the relevant statutory language is gender-neutral, OVW grantees and subgrantees can and do serve both female and male victims.

Section 402, proposed sections 2000B and 2000C, amends Part T of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 by adding a list of definitions and grant provisions apparently intended to apply to all OVW programs. In amending Part T, which codifies the STOP Violence Against Women Formula Grant program, and applying the definitions and provisions to "any provision required by law to be carried out by or through the Violence Against Women Office" and to "any grant program required by law to be carried out by or through the Violence Against Women Office," however, the bill language, as drafted may not apply to at least one current and perhaps other future grant programs. Currently, the Violence Against Women Office Act makes the Director of the Office responsible for carrying out the functions of the Department under VAWA 1994 and VAWA 2000. See 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-0b(5). The Grants to Reduce Violent Crimes Against Women on Campus (Campus) program, however, was authorized by the Higher Education Amendments of 1998 and not VAWA 1994 or VAWA 2000. The definitions and provisions therefore would not apply to the Campus Program. In addition, the general provisions would not apply to any new grant programs created by this bill and delegated to the Attorney General with no particular reference to OVW.

For example, section 602 of the bill authorizes the Attorney General to award grants to states and territories to support services for victims of sexual assault with no mention of OVW. The Campus Program appears to fit in both these categories because it is re-authorized in its entirety, rather than amended, in section 702 of the bill. Section 702 does not specify, however, that the program should be codified as part of VAWA 1994. In addition, it does not specify that the program will be administered by OVW. To ensure that the definitions and provisions apply to all OVW programs, we suggest denominating the current text of Section 402 as 402(a) and adding a new subsection 402(b) that would read as follows: "(b) The provisions of sections 2000A, 2000B, and 2000C of Part T of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 apply to all programs authorized or reauthorized by this Act.".

Four of the current program statutes, those for the Grants to Combat Violent Crime Against Women, Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies and Enforcement of Protection Orders (Arrest), Campus, and the Legal Assistance for Victims (LAV) programs, contain separate definitions provisions. These definitions should be removed to avoid conflict with the new universal definitions. Specifically, we suggest the following edits to the bill:[2]

> In section 501, insert a new subsection (f) to read as follows and renumber the remaining subsections accordingly:
> > (f) DEFINITIONS.—Section 2008 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 is amended by striking the current language and

[2] Because section 702 (page 204, line 20 to page 216, line 18) re-authorizes the Campus Program in full, we do not propose language deleting the current definitions section of the Campus statute. We note, however, that the bill does not expressly delete the current Campus Program from 20 U.S.C. § 1152.

replacing it with the following: "In this part, the definitions provided in section 2000B of this part shall apply.".

In section 502, insert a new subsection (d) to read as follows and renumber the current (d) to (e):

"(d) DEFINITIONS.—Section 2105 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 is amended by striking the current language and replacing it with the following: "In this part, the definitions provided in section 2000B of Part T of this act shall apply.".

In section 503, insert a new subsection (2) to read as follows and renumber the remaining subsections accordingly:

"(2) in subsection (b), by striking the current language and replacing it with the following: "In this section, the definitions provided in section 2000B of Part T of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 shall apply.".

Section 402, proposed section 2000B(a)(5), provides a definition of "domestic violence" that would apply to all "violence against women provisions." We recommend modifying this definition by changing the phrase "adult, youth, or minor victim" to "adult or youth victim". Domestic violence is generally considered to be intimate partner violence. With the bill's reference to a "minor victim," however, the definition becomes so broad that (depending on state law) it could include all forms of child abuse, regardless whether the abuse occurred in the context of domestic violence. Although we support federal funding to help child abuse victims, our proposed change would make clear that the limited federal funds available through VAWA to address violence against women should not be used for programs that bear no relation to domestic violence. Assistance for victims of child abuse may be funded through other federal sources, including the Victims of Crime Act and the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act. We recommend similar changes be made to Section 402, proposed section 2000B(a)(14), which provides a definition of "legal assistance;" to Section 503(1)(B); to Section 504, proposed sections 41002(a), 41002(b)(2)(A), 41003(a)(1), 41003(b)(1); to Section 602, proposed section 2014(a)(1)(A); and to Section 606(a)(1).

Section 402, proposed section 2000C(a)(1), would create a new provision for all grantees requiring "Nondisclosure of Confidential or Private Information." The Department recommends several amendments to this provision. First, proposed subparagraph (1)(B) should begin "Subject to subparagraphs (C) and (D)," rather than just "Subject to subparagraph (C)," because both subparagraphs contain exceptions to the nondisclosure rule. Second, subparagraph (1)(B)(ii) (page 125, lines 9-18) provides that a parent or guardian of an unemancipated minor or the guardian of a person with disabilities may consent to release of individual client information. We recommend inserting the following before the period on page 125, line 18 to further specify that consent for release may not be given by the abuser of the minor or person with disabilities or the abuser of the other parent of the minor:

> ", except that consent for release may not be given by the abuser of the minor or person with disabilities, or the abuser of the other parent of the minor".

Finally, subparagraph (1)(D) provides for certain information sharing by grantees but does not provide for sharing for law enforcement or prosecution purposes unless the shared information is contained in "secure, governmental registries." If victim consent must be obtained for a grantee police department to forward information like a police report to a prosecutor's office, this likely would prevent evidence-based prosecutions accomplished without victim participation. We recommend striking "and" on line 15, striking the period and inserting "; and" on line 20 and inserting an additional subparagraph (D)(iii), to read as follows: "law enforcement- and prosecution-generated information necessary for law enforcement and prosecution purposes."

TITLE V - ENHANCING JUDICIAL AND LAW ENFORCEMENT TOOLS TO COMBAT VIOLENCE.

The name of Title V does not reflect the full range of programs authorized and reauthorized under the title. The Department therefore recommends that "judicial and law enforcement" be removed from the title of Title V or that "prosecutorial" and "advocacy" be added, to better reflect the content of the title.

Section 501. STOP Grants Improvements.

Section 501(c)(1) amends 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(c)(2) to require states to use racial classifications as a condition for the receipt of certain federal funds. The Department is concerned that many provisions of this bill contain racial classifications of doubtful constitutionality because they direct the award of grants to groups on the basis of race. Such racial classifications are subject to strict scrutiny under the equal protection requirements of the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment. See Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Pena, 515 U.S. 200, 227 (1995). Under these standards, the use of racial classifications must be narrowly tailored to serve a compelling governmental interest. Id.; MD/DC/DE Broadcasters Ass'n v. FCC, 236 F.3d 13 (D.C. Cir. 2001); Grutter v. Bollinger, 123 S. Ct. 2325, 2337-38 (2003). Programs subject to strict scrutiny are highly vulnerable to constitutional challenge, and absent evidence that the standard can be satisfied, we recommend that each of these provisions be re-drafted in a race-neutral manner. For these reasons, the Department recommends omitting the phrase "racial and ethnic minorities and other" from this section.

Section 501(d)(1)(B) changes the allocation for each state domestic violence coalition from 1/54 to 1/56. The statute, however, still describes 53 entities to receive these allocations (that is, the 50 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia receiving full shares and the U.S. territories receiving fractional shares) because the bill does not specify that the territories are each to receive a full share. Accordingly, we suggest replacing the current text of this subsection with the following:

> (B) in paragraph (2), by striking "and the coalition for the combined Territories of the United States, each receiving an amount equal to 1⁄54'' and inserting "coalitions for Guam, American Samoa, the United States Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, each receiving an amount equal to 1/56";

This proposed language parallels the language in section 501(d)(1)(C) regarding state and territorial sexual assault coalitions.

Section 501(d)(3)(C) would add a requirement that states submit a memorandum of understanding in their applications for funding under the STOP Violence Against Women Formula Grant Program (STOP formula grant program), showing that their potential subgrantees have consulted with victim service programs with respect to certain issues. The Department recommends striking this provision in its entirety and inserting a portion of it into an already existing provision in the STOP statute and additionally amending sections of 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(c)(2) and (d). First, the proposed provision appears to be largely duplicative of a requirement already present in 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(c)(2). Second, if this draft provision were added to the current statutory scheme, it would further complicate an already complicated statutory scheme that is difficult to implement. Specifically, during the course of administering this grant program under the current statutory framework, states have informed the Department and its Office on Violence Against Women, that it is often impracticable for them to identify their subgrantees in advance of applying for STOP grants. States also have difficulty meeting the requirement that they complete their consultations with non-profit, nongovernmental victim services programs in advance of applying for any given fiscal year funding. The current statutory framework is ambiguous because 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(c)(2) appears to require that grantees (States) certify that they, and their and subgrantees, will consult with and coordinate with nonprofit, nongovernmental victim services programs. Section 3796gg-1(d), in its introductory paragraph, however, seems to make the requirement of (c)(2) contemporaneous with the filing of the state application for funding.

For the above stated reasons, the Department recommends deleting the proposed provision, inserting portions of it into the already existing provision in 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(c)(2), and amending the current statutory framework in order to clarify what is expected of states at the time they file an application. We recommend striking the current section 501(d)(3) of the bill in its entirety and adding new section 501(d)(3) and section 501(d)(4) as follows:

> (3) in subsection (c)(2) by inserting at the end "in order to ensure that, among other things, the proposed services, activities and equipment acquisitions are designed to promote the safety, confidentiality, and economic independence of victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, and dating violence"; and

(4) in subsection (d) —

(A) in the introductory paragraph by striking "participation" and inserting "commitment to participate"; and

(B) in paragraph (1) by inserting, before the current words "to be assisted", the words "currently receiving assistance, or those", and by inserting "or from state-wide organizations able to comment on their behalf," before the word, "demonstrating".

Section 501(e), proposed subsection 2007(i)(1), authorizes the use of STOP program funding for training, technical assistance, and data collection. As OVW currently needs to seek re-programming on an annual basis to fund STOP technical assistance (TA) projects, we fully supports this amendment with the following suggestions: A period should be added after "entities" and the following language be removed: "to offer services and assistance to victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking and dating violence." This language limits TA funding to improving victim services, without recognizing the law enforcement, prosecution, and courts purpose areas of the STOP program. The proposed change would permit TA projects that support any STOP purpose area.

Section 501(f), proposed new subsections (c) and (d) to 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-4, would enable states to use STOP formula grant funds to pay for forensic exams performed by trained examiners with the conditions that victims (1) are not required to seek reimbursement from their private insurance carriers and (2) states may not require victim cooperation with law enforcement as a condition of exam payment. The Department strongly support these new subsections. The statute (42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-4) currently requires that, for a state to be eligible for STOP formula grant funds, it must certify that it or another governmental entity "incurs the full out-of-pocket costs of forensic medical exams …." Many states meet this requirement through victims' private insurance companies, even though the exam is for criminal justice and not medical purposes. For incest victims and spousal rape victims, the primary policy holder may be the abuser and using insurance billing would notify the abuser that the person received the exam. The new subsection (c) would encourage states not to require victims to seek reimbursement from private insurers by permitting states to use STOP funds to pay for forensic exams performed by specially trained examiners. In addition, many states will not pay for the exam unless the victim cooperates with the investigation and reports the crime to law enforcement. If victims are undecided about reporting, they should be encouraged to provide a medical forensic history, undergo the forensic exam, and have evidence collected and stored for a possible future prosecution. Proposed subsection (d) therefore may facilitate higher reporting and prosecution rates. We recommend, however, that one correction be made to subsection (d): insert "or Indian tribal government" after "State," both for consistency with subsection (c) and to ensure that Indian tribes, as well as states, may not require victim cooperation as a condition of forensic exam payment.

Section 501(g) creates another new certification requirement, regarding polygraph testing of victims, that states must comply with to receive STOP formula grant funds. We recommend designating the entire current subsection as subsection (g)(1) and inserting a new subsection (g)(2) (after page 135, line 5) to read as follows:

> (2) Compliance. —Section 2007(d) of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3796gg-1(d)) is amended in subsection (2) by striking "and", in subsection (3) by striking the period and replacing it with "; and" and by adding a new subsection (4) to read "proof of compliance with the requirements regarding polygraph testing provided in section 2012.".

This new provision would be consistent with section 2007(d)'s treatment of the STOP program's other certification requirements.

The Department also is concerned that this subsection on the polygraph testing prohibition requires grantees to certify compliance "within three years of the date of enactment of the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2005." This could result in a situation where the Department awards a grant but must suspend or terminate it if the grantee does not submit the certification by the end of the required time period. To correct this problem, we suggest changing the language to read as follows:

> ". . . must certify that, within 3 years of enactment of the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2005, their laws, policies, or practices will ensure. . ."

With this change, the statute would mandate that states certify that they will comply with the new prohibition before they are eligible to receive STOP funds.

Section 501(h) would remove the current matching funds requirement for grants or subgrants awarded to small law enforcement agencies, victim services providers, and any entity that the Attorney General determines has adequately demonstrated financial need. This provision would impose a substantial expense on states receiving funds under the STOP formula grant program, because the state would still have to provide a full 25% match under 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(f). Without the ability to pass the match along to subgrantees, some states may choose not to participate in the STOP formula grant program at all. Also, all OVW grantees who are currently required to provide match are permitted to use in-kind services for match. Thus, victim service providers can use donated goods and services to meet the match requirement. The match requirement is a way to ensure community support for programs funded through this program. In addition, the current language will not relieve state and tribal coalitions of their current statutory obligation to provide match because they do not meet the definition for "victim services" found at proposed section 2000B(a)(33). We therefore suggest removing section 501(h) and instead amending 42 U.S.C. 3796gg-1(f) by striking the current language and replacing it with the following:

DOJ_NMG_ 0147349

(f) FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share of a state grant made under this subtitle may not exceed 75 percent of the total costs of the projects described in the application submitted. The Federal share of a state or tribal coalition grant may not exceed 90 percent of the total costs of the projects described in the application submitted.

This language should be inserted to the bill as a new section 501(e) and the following sections should be renumbered accordingly.

Section 502. Grants to Encourage Arrest and Enforce Protection Orders Improvements.

Several of the specific amendments to "Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies and Enforcement of Protection Orders" (Arrest program) authorize the use of Arrest funds to address sexual assault and stalking. Currently, grantees of the Arrest program can only address sexual assault and stalking in the context of domestic violence and as it specifically relates to violence against women with disabilities and elders. Many sexual assault and stalking victims could benefit from the criminal justice and victim services enhancements funded under this program. Moreover, funding for sexual assault and stalking services nationwide lags behind that available for domestic violence. Therefore, the Department strongly supports this expansion of the Arrest program with the following comments.

Section 502(b)(2)(C)(i) inserts "protection order registries" into the second Arrest program purpose area, which would permit the Department to fund protection order registries in police departments. We agree with Congress that Arrest program grantees should be authorized to use grant funds for protection order registries but believe that the location of protection order registries should be left to the discretion of the state. This amendment, however, would only permit the Department to fund registries that are located in police departments. To allow grant-funded jurisdictions greater flexibility, we suggest the creation of a new purpose area regarding registries, section 42 U.S.C. 3796hh(b)(13), which would read as follows: "To develop, enhance, and maintain protection order registries." This also would allow grantees that currently have domestic violence protection order registries to expand the registries to include sexual assault cases. This should be inserted in the bill at the end of section 102(b)(2)(G).

Section 502(b)(2)(G), proposed new subsection (11), creates a new Arrest program purpose area for family justice centers. Although the Department supports including this important program area, we are concerned that, as drafted, applicants might be misled into thinking that they could support all co-located services, even if those services might not be otherwise eligible for funding under the Arrest program (e.g., civil legal attorneys, forensic medical professionals). To clarify this subsection, we suggest inserting the following language at the end of the proposed purpose area:

Although funds may be used to support the co-location of project partners, funds may not support construction or major renovation expenses or activities that fall outside of the scope of the other statutory purpose areas.

Section 502(b)(2)(G), proposed new subsection (12) creates a new Arrest program purpose area for training police, prosecutors, and judges in responding to sexual assault. We recommend inserting "probation and parole officers," after "prosecutors," because they too are involved in the prevention of repeat crime perpetration by sexual assault offenders.

Section 502(b)(3)(C) imposes a requirement that, to be eligible for Arrest program funds, applicants must certify that their laws, policies and practices ensure that polygraph testing is not required of victims of sex offenses. As noted above with regard to the new polygraph prohibition for the STOP formula grant program, the language in this section would permit certification to occur after grant funds have been awarded. To address this concern, we recommend adding "that" after "certify", deleting "that" before "their laws", and adding "will" before "ensure".

Section 502(d) authorizes use of Arrest program funds for training and technical assistance. To clarify that Arrest program technical assistance projects may support any Arrest program purpose area (rather than just supporting victim services), we suggest that a period be added after "entities" and that "to offer services and assistance to victims of domestic violence and dating violence" be removed .

Section 503. Legal Assistance for Victims Improvements.

Section 503(6)(B)(i) (I) increases the tribal set-aside for the LAV program from 5% to 10%, which the Department does not support. As discussed under Title X, below, we have experienced difficulty meeting the current 5% set aside. At present, the LAV program supports as many competitive tribal proposals as it receives. The number of applicants proposing to serve Native American victims has remained fairly constant from year to year, and increasing the set-aside does not appear to encourage more or better applications. In addition, the Department has never viewed the tribal set-aside percentage as a cap but rather as a minimum. Therefore, there does not have to be an increase in the tribal set-aside to accomplish the goal of providing more legal assistance to Native American victims. One way to respond to the needs of Native American victims is to work to increase the number of successful tribal applications. To this end, the LAV program currently is engaged in special outreach efforts targeted at Indian tribal governments, particularly those that have applied to the LAV program in the past but not been awarded funding.

Moreover, section 503(6)(B)(i)(II) limits the award of LAV tribal set-aside funds to "tribal governments or tribal organizations" rather than any programs that serve victims in Indian country. This has the effect of narrowing eligibility dramatically – and is particularly problematic given the difficulty that the Department has experienced in identifying qualified applicants for LAV tribal set-aside funds. We recommend maintaining the current language in the LAV tribal set-aside provision, which specifically includes "programs that assist victims of domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, and sexual assault on lands within the jurisdiction of an Indian tribe."

The Department also urges consideration of a new section that would permit Legal Services Corporation-funded entities to provide certain legal assistance to aliens who are battered or the parents of battered children, to alien victims of sexual assault, and to aliens who qualify for U visas. Many of our LAV grantees also receive funding from the Legal Services Corporation and have been subject to limits on representing immigrant victims, who face a host of complex legal issues. This provision will enable these grantees to increase their effectiveness in serving immigrant victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, and dating violence. We would look forward to working with Congress to develop legislative language.

Section 504. Court Training and Improvements.

Section 504, proposed section 41002(a)(4)(E), adopts special provisions regarding "court access to programs to racial and ethnic minorities and underserved populations." For the reasons cited above in section 501(c)(1), we recommend omitting the phrase "racial and ethnic minorities and."

Section 504, proposed sections 41002(d)(2) and 41003(c), set aside 10 percent of funds for grants to "tribes." Tribes, however, are not included as eligible grantees under the new court training and improvements program or the national and tribal education curricula program. (See proposed sections 41002(b)(1) and 41003(b)(2)). We therefore recommend amending the set-asides by striking "to tribes" in section 41002(d)(2) and replacing it with "for tribal courts, tribal court-based programs, and tribal nonprofits" and in section 41003(c) changing "tribes" to "a tribal organization" to match up the eligible applicants with the entities covered by the set-aside. In addition, please see the discussion regarding Title X, below, for the Department's recommendation with regard to this and other tribal set-asides.

Section 504, proposed section 41004, is entitled "Access to Justice for Teens" (page 151, line 19), although the stated purpose of the new program addresses cross-training to enhance the provision of services to "youth victims of dating violence, domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking between the ages of 12 and 24." We recommend adding the term "young adults" to the section title to parallel the age range of victims that the program will address.

Section 504, proposed section 41004(f)(1), provides that not less than 10% of funds shall be available for grants to tribal grantees. Please see the discussion regarding Title X, below, for the Department's recommendation with regard to this and other tribal set-asides.

Section 504, proposed section 41004(g)(1), provides that grantees should report on grant activities every 18 months. We recommend striking "every 18 months" as this provision may restrict OVW's ability to require that grantees report more frequently than every 18 months, which would hamper OVW in performing its functions. First, in all but our STOP Violence Against Women Formula Grant Program, we use semi-annual reports to monitor grant performance. If OVW does not receive a report until the end of 18 months, it would not allow us sufficient time to work with grantees on problems that they may be experiencing. Second, an 18-month reporting period is inconsistent with Department of Justice regulations, which follow the Federal common rule for grant administration and provide for more frequent grantee reporting. See 28 CFR 66.40(b)(1) and 70.52(b). Finally, to the extent that OVW is required to report to Congress on its programs, this would not allow time enough to receive and analyze information for those reports. For the same reasons, "every 18 months" should be stricken from Section 701, proposed sections 41201(h)(3) and 41202(f); and Section 801, proposed sections 41302(f) and 41303(f). Additionally, in Section 602, proposed section 2014(b)(4), we recommend striking "submit an annual" (lines 17-18) and changing "that describes" (line 18) to "on".

In addition, subsection 41004(g)(1)(B) requires grantees to report on certain "initiatives undertaken by the Director" (page 156, lines 20-21). There appears to be an error in drafting here, because grantees cannot be expected to report on initiatives undertaken by OVW. We recommend deleting the entirety of subsection 41004(g)(1)(B) and requiring only, as subsection (g)(1)(A) does, that grantees report on their own grant activities.

Section 506: Privacy Protections for Victims of Domestic Violence, Dating Violence, Sexual Violence, and Stalking.

Section 506, proposed section 41101, requires that the Attorney General establish a task force on issues that may affect the privacy and confidentiality of victims of domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, and sexual assault. A task force on this specific issue is too limited and not a good use of resources. The National Advisory Committee on Violence Against Women currently addresses a much broader range of issues, including privacy and confidentiality for victims.

Section 511. Prohibiting Dating Violence.

Section 511 amends section 2261 to expand the definition of victim to include a "dating partner." The term "dating partner," however is undefined. Absent a definition, this proposal is seriously flawed and the Department objects to this amendment. The Department suggests the following language to define "dating partner."

> "The term "dating partner" refers to a person who is or has been in an ongoing relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the abuser. Factors to consider in determining whether the relationship is or was ongoing include, but are not limited to, the length of the relationship and the frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship."

TITLE VI - IMPROVING SERVICES FOR VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, DATING VIOLENCE, SEXUAL ASSAULT, AND STALKING

Section 602. Sexual Assault Services Program.

Section 602 creates a new program for sexual assault services, similar to that created by the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (FVPSA) for domestic violence and administered by HHS. We note that the Department should be given greater discretion to develop and implement the program than the bill currently provides. In the early years of managing a new grant program, it is often crucial that we have had the flexibility to modify our solicitations, grant requirements, and funding allocations as experience dictates.

We also note that this program does not contain any link to the criminal justice system and recommend the following amendments to the program, so that it can support the coordinated community responses that were the cornerstone of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA). Although services for victims are important, the work in the ten years since the passage of VAWA has shown that coordinating traditional victim services with the civil and criminal justice system and other service providers, such as employers, schools, or churches, can enhance the effectiveness of the services.

In section 602, proposed section 2014(a):

Strike the word "and" at the end of subsection (1), change the period at the end of subsection (2) to "; and" and insert a new subsection (3) to read as follows:

"(3) to enhance coordinated community responses to sexual assault."

In proposed section 2014(b)(1):

Insert "and support coordinated community responses to sexual assault" before the period.

In proposed section 2014(d):

Insert new subsections (8) and (9) to read as follows and renumber (8) to (10):

"(8) sexual assault forensic examinations performed by specially trained examiners, including coordination of examiners with other responders and testimony by examiners;"

DOJ_NMG_ 0147354

"(9) Developing and enhancing coordinated community responses to sexual assault, including the development and enhancement of sexual assault response teams;".

Section 602, proposed section 2014(e)(1(A), provides that: "The Attorney General shall award grants to State, territorial, and tribal sexual coalitions to assist in supporting the establishment, maintenance, and expansion of such coalitions as determined by the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control Office in collaboration with the Violence Against Women Office of the Department of Justice." The National Center for Injury Prevention and Control of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), however, does not typically identify tribal coalitions. Compare 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg(c)(2)(B) (CDC determines state sexual assault coalitions that receive OVW funding) and 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg(d)(2) (Attorney General identifies tribal and potential tribal coalitions). To recognize the differences between established state coalitions and tribal coalitions, which may need assistance even to incorporate, we recommend replacing the current language with the following:

> "(A) (i) GRANTS TO STATE AND TERRITORIAL COALITIONS.— The Attorney General shall award grants to State and territorial sexual coalitions, as determined by the Center for Injury Prevention and Control of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention under the Public Health Service Act, to assist in supporting the establishment, maintenance, and expansion of such coalitions.
> (ii) GRANTS TO TRIBAL COALITIONS.— The Attorney General shall award grants to established nonprofit, nongovernmental tribal coalitions addressing sexual assault against American Indian and Alaska Native women, and individuals or organizations that propose to incorporate as nonprofit, nongovernmental tribal coalitions to address sexual assault against American Indian and Alaska Native women to assist in supporting the establishment, maintenance, and expansion of such coalitions.

Section 602, proposed section 2014(i)(2), in the matter following (i)(2)(E) provides a formula for allocating funds remaining after the allocations in subparagraphs (A) through (E) have been made. Because the allocations in subparagraphs (A) through (E) total 100 percent, we recommend removing this matter in its entirety.

Section 602, proposed section 2014(i)(3), creates a funding formula that allocates a minimum amount of funds to each state and territory to fund sexual assault services. This formula, however, will be extremely difficult to administer. Given that the only eligible applicants for the new program are states and territories (excepting tribes, which are addressed with a separate set-aside), it would make more sense to use a formula similar to the STOP Formula Grant Program, see 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-1(b)(5) and (6), under which each state and territory receives a set base amount plus an additional amount based on population. Moreover, the formula used for the STOP program provides more equitable treatment for Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia, both of which have populations comparable in size to smaller states.

Section 603. Amendments to the Rural Domestic Violence and Child Abuse Enforcement Assistance Program.

Several of the amendments to the Rural program in section 603 authorize the use of Rural funds to address sexual assault and stalking. Currently, grantees of the Rural program can only address sexual assault and stalking in the context of domestic violence. As noted above regarding the Arrest program in section 502 above, the Department supports this expansion of the Rural program.

Section 603, proposed section 40295(b), expands eligibility for the Rural program so that entities serving rural communities in non-rural states may apply directly for funding. The Department supports this expansion. The current eligibility standard for the Rural program is state-based: within "rural states" a wide array of entities may apply, including non-profit and faith-based entities; within non-rural states, only the state or a tribal government may apply. This creates a situation where many rural areas within "non-rural" states do not get funds because they cannot persuade their states to apply for them; in contrast, urban areas within "rural" states are eligible themselves to apply for funding under the Rural program. The bill's focus on region rather than state will enhance OVW's ability to provide funds directly to all rural areas, which are the intended beneficiaries of the Rural program.

In section 603, proposed section 40295(b), we recommend inserting after "rural communities" ", including rural areas or rural communities in United States Territories," to clarify that rural parts of territories can benefit from this funding.

Section 603, proposed section 40295(d)(2), allocates 25% of Rural program funding for grants that "meaningfully address sexual assault in rural communities." In addition, the provision includes an escalation clause that provides that, as appropriations increase, the allotment for sexual assault grants will increase as well. The Department is concerned that these sexual assault set-asides may be too high. As the bill would include sexual assault in the Rural program for the first time, OVW cannot predict how many fundable applications to address sexual assault the Office will receive. At this juncture, we therefore suggest a 15% minimum sexual assault set-aside, which could be exceeded if warranted.

Section 603 provides that section 40295(d)(4) of the Safe Homes for Women Act will require the director to "give priority to the needs of racial and ethnic and other underserved populations." For the reasons stated above, the Department recommends deleting the phrase "racial and ethnic and other."

Section 604. Assistance for Victims of Abuse.

Section 604, proposed section 2015, appears to combine the purposes of two current OVW programs: Training Grants to Stop Abuse and Sexual Assault Against Older Individuals or Individuals with Disabilities Program (codified at 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-7) and Education and Technical Assistance Grants to End Violence Against Women with Disabilities (codified at 42 U.S.C. § 14041a). Although we support some of the expanded purposes of the new program, such as providing services for victims, we do not support creating this new program instead of reauthorizing the existing programs. The proposed structure is confusing and does not ensure sufficient attention to the specific issues of elder abuse and violence against women with disabilities. The Department therefore recommends striking the current section 604 and replacing it with the following sections 604 and 605 and renumbering the remaining sections accordingly:

DOJ_NMG_ 0147356

SEC. 604. TRAINING AND SERVICES TO END VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN WITH DISABILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL- Section 1402 of the Violence Against Women Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 3796gg-7) is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 1402. EDUCATION, TRAINING, AND ENHANCED SERVICES TO END VIOLENCE AGAINST AND ABUSE OF WOMEN WITH DISABILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL- The Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, may award grants to eligible entities--

(1) to provide training, consultation, and information on domestic violence, dating violence, abuse by caregivers, stalking, and sexual assault against women who are individuals with disabilities (as defined in section 3 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12102)); and

(2) to enhance direct services to such individuals.

(b) USE OF FUNDS- Grants awarded under this section shall be used--

(1) to provide personnel, training, technical assistance, advocacy, intervention, risk reduction and prevention of domestic violence, dating violence, abuse by caregivers, stalking, and sexual assault against disabled women;

(2) to conduct outreach activities to ensure that disabled women who are victims of domestic violence, dating violence, abuse by caregivers, stalking, or sexual assault receive appropriate assistance;

(3) to conduct cross-training for victim service organizations, governmental agencies, courts, law enforcement, and nonprofit, nongovernmental organizations serving individuals with disabilities about risk reduction, intervention, prevention and the nature of domestic violence, dating violence, abuse by caregivers, stalking, and sexual assault for disabled women;

(4) to provide technical assistance to assist with modifications to existing policies, protocols, and procedures to ensure equal access to the services, programs, and activities of victim service organizations for disabled women;

DOJ_NMG_ 0147357

(5) to provide training and technical assistance on the requirements of shelters and victim services organizations under Federal antidiscrimination laws, including--

(A) the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990; and

(B) section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973;

(6) to purchase equipment and provide personnel so that shelters and victim service organizations can accommodate the needs of disabled women;

(7) to provide advocacy and intervention services for disabled women who are victims of domestic violence, dating violence, abuse by caregivers, stalking, or sexual assault; or

(8) to develop model programs providing advocacy and intervention services within organizations serving disabled women who are victims of domestic violence, dating violence, abuse by caregivers, sexual assault, or stalking.

(c) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES-

(1) IN GENERAL- An entity shall be eligible to receive a grant under this section if the entity is--

(A) a State;

(B) a unit of local government;

(C) an Indian tribal government or tribal organization; or

(D) a nonprofit and nongovernmental victim services organization, such as a State domestic violence or sexual assault coalition or a nonprofit, nongovernmental organization serving disabled women.

(2) LIMITATION- A grant awarded for the purpose described in subsection (b)(8) shall only be awarded to an eligible agency (as defined in section 410 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 796f-5).

(d) UNDERSERVED POPULATIONS- In awarding gr ants under this section, the Director shall ensure that the needs of underserved populations are being addressed.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS- There are authorized to be appropriated $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2006 through 2010 to carry out this section.

SEC. 605. TRAINING AND SERVICES TO END VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN IN LATER LIFE.

(a) TRAINING PROGRAMS- Section 40802 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (42 U.S.C. 14041a) is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 40802. ENHANCED TRAINING AND SERVICES TO END VIOLENCE AGAINST AND ABUSE OF WOMEN LATER IN LIFE.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147358

(a) GRANTS AUTHORIZED- The Attorney General, through the Director of the Office on Violence Against Women, may award grants, which may be used for--

(1) training programs to assist law enforcement, prosecutors, governmental agencies, victim assistants, and relevant officers of Federal, State, tribal, territorial, and local courts in recognizing, addressing, investigating, and prosecuting instances of elder abuse, neglect and exploitation, including domestic violence or sexual assault, against victims who are 60 years of age or older;

(2) providing or enhancing services for victims of elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation, including domestic and sexual violence, who are 60 years of age or older;

(3) creating or supporting multidisciplinary collaborative community responses to victims of elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation, including domestic and sexual violence, who are 60 years of age or older;

(4) conducting cross-training for victim service organizations, governmental agencies, courts, law enforcement, and nonprofit, nongovernmental organizations serving victims of elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation, including domestic and sexual abuse, who are 60 years of age or older; and

(5) creating or supporting services designed to address the needs of victims of elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation, including domestic violence or sexual assault who are ages 50-59.

(b) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES- An entity shall be eligible to receive a grant under this section if the entity is--

(1) a State;

(2) a unit of local government;

(3) an Indian tribal government or tribal organization; or

(4) a nonprofit and nongovernmental victim services organization with demonstrated experience in assisting the elderly or demonstrated experience in addressing domestic violence or sexual assault.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS- Section 40803 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (42 U.S.C. 14041b) is amended by striking "$5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2005" and inserting "$5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2006 through 2010".

Should the current structure of section 604 be retained, we recommend amending proposed section 2015(e) (page 188, lines 8-14) to make the required report to Congress biennial. This will allow sufficient time for grantees to submit progress reports and for OVW to analyze the data and prepare a complete and informative report. This change could be effected by replacing "Not later than 1 year after the last day of the first fiscal year commencing on or after the date of enactment of this Act, and not later than 180 days after the last day of each fiscal year thereafter," (page 188, lines 8-11) with "Not later than one month after the end of each even-numbered fiscal year,". (This schedule would match the schedule for the biennial report required by VAWA 2000 on the effectiveness of grant-funded activities, 42 U.S.C. § 3789p, and would match the proposed schedule for existing reports in the Department's proposed language in comments to Section 224.)

Section 606. Grants for Outreach to Underserved Populations

Section 606 creates a new grant program for public information campaigns focusing on domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, sexual assault, and trafficking within tribal, racial and ethnic populations and immigrant communities. Although the Department supports the objectives of this program, we are concerned that, in these times of budgetary constraint, the limited funds available to respond to violence against women should be focused on programs that already have established records of effectiveness. Also, because this program focuses primarily on providing information on victim services and prevention and lacks a criminal justice component, we question whether the Department is best charged with its administration.

Section 606 (f)(1) requires the Attorney General to ensure "reasonable distribution among eligible grantees representing various racial, ethnic, and immigrant communities." For the reasons state above, the Department recommends omitting the phrase "racial, ethnic, and immigrant communities" and replacing it with "underserved populations."

TITLE VII - SERVICES, PROTECTION, AND JUSTICE FOR YOUNG VICTIMS OF VIOLENCE.

Section 701. Services and Justice for Young Victims of Violence.

In section 701, proposed section 41201(h)(2)(C), we recommend changing "may" to "shall" because courts are a critical component of the collaborations addressed by this grant program.

Section 701, proposed section 41202, creates a new DOJ grant program to serve youth victims of domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, and sexual assault. Although we support the objectives of this program, we are concerned that, in these times of budgetary constraint, the limited funds available to respond to violence against women should be focused on programs that already have established records of effectiveness. Also, because this program focuses primarily on victim services and lacks a criminal justice component, we question whether the Department is best charged with its administration.

Section 702. Grants to Combat Violent Crimes on Campuses.

Section 702(b)(2) amends one of the existing Campus Program purpose areas, which currently focuses on training campus administrators, security personnel, and personnel on disciplinary boards to identify and respond to violence against women on campus. The modification would limit that training so that it would only address development and implementation of policies, protocols and services. The Department does not support this change because these personnel need the more comprehensive training on a wider range of violence against women issue that the current statute permits. We therefore recommend retaining the current language of this purpose area at 20 U.S.C. § 1152(b)(2). We also do not support section 702(b), insofar as it would strike paragraph (6) from the Campus statute (20 U.S.C. § 1152(b)(6)). This sixth Campus Program purpose area currently permits use of Campus funds to develop and implement more effective campus policies, protocols, orders and services specifically devoted to prevent, identify and, respond to violent crimes against women on campus. These activities are important parts of the Campus Program. We therefore recommend retaining purpose area (6) from the Campus statute.

In section 702(b)(4), we recommend deleting the sentence that provides: "The institution shall use not less than 20 percent of the funds made available through the grant for a victim services program provided in accordance with this paragraph." Although the Department agrees that campus and community victim services are vital parts of this program, many Campus grantees already have sufficient victim services and are using their Campus Program funding for other purposes. These grantees should not be constrained to use grant funding for victims services that they are willing to fund from other sources.

Section 702(c)(3) provides that grant funds may be used for technical assistance in complying with section 485(f). Under the current statutory language, the Department will not fund a grantee unless they certify that they are in compliance with section 485(f) (which, as amended, is the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act). Section702(c)(3), however, would appear to authorize a grantee to use grant funds to come into compliance with the Clery Act - or, at least, to use a substantial amount of grant funds for "technical assistance in complying" with the Clery Act reporting requirements. The Department questions whether a grantee could be in compliance and need $200,000 for "technical assistance in complying." The Campus Program is designed to fund strategies to combat violent crime against women on campus and services to victims; it is not supposed to be a grant program to fund compliance with the Clery Act. Institutions of higher education already should be complying with the Clery Act in order to retain their DOE funding. The Department therefore recommends striking this section.

Section 702(d)(2) adds a new confidentiality provision to the Campus Program. If our suggestion above regarding section 402 and how to apply the general grant provisions of that section to the Campus Program is incorporated, then this provision will be unnecessary because the general provision will apply to the Campus Program. If section 402 (proposed section 2000C) is not amended, the Department recommends some edits to make this provision effective. We suggest the following: 1) change "grantees and subgrantees" to "grantees" because no subgrants are awarded under the Campus Program; 2) strike "and subgrants"; 3) strike "and subgrantees"; 4) strike "or subgrantee"; 5) insert "Subject to Subparagraphs (C) and (D), a" before "A grantee" and delete "A"; 6) before the period, insert "except that consent for release may not be given by the abuser of the minor or person with disabilities, or the abuser of the other parent of the minor"; 7) delete "or subgrantee"; 8) delete "and subgrantees"; and 9) delete "with each other" because that language appears to be an error would undermine the ability of grantees to report aggregate data.

Section 702(d)(2)(F)(iv) refers to "personally identifying information" and defines it as including a "telephone number." This definition should be reviewed for consistency with the Office of Management and Budget's 1987 "call detail" guidance concerning phone numbers and identifiability. See 52 Fed. Reg. 12,990-93 (Apr. 20, 1987).

Section 702(d)(3)(A) requires that grantees submit reports every two years. For the reasons stated in the above comment on section 504, proposed section 41004(g)(1), we recommend striking "submit a biennial performance" on line 9 and add "on activities conducted with grant funds" on line 10 after "to the Attorney General". In addition, we suggest changing the title of this subsection from "ANNUAL REPORT" to "PERFORMANCE REPORT".

Section 702(d)(4) continues the current statutory requirement that the Attorney General report annually to Congress on the Campus Program. As requested above in connection to subsection 226(b), the Department requests that the Campus report, like other OVW reports to Congress, be placed on a biennial schedule. If this section is to replace the Campus Program as it appears in the Higher Education Amendments, this change could be made by replacing "Not later than 180 days after the end of the fiscal year for which grants are awarded under this section," with "Not later than one month after the end of each even-numbered fiscal year,".

Section 703. Safe Havens.

The Department supports the reauthorization of this program, which was originally authorized only as a two-year pilot program, but requests a correction to the current statute, which requires an annual report to Congress (42 U.S.C. 10420(d)). This report includes both information about grantees and information regarding individuals served by supervised visitation programs nationwide. To collect this national information, OVW must fund a national survey of supervised visitation programs. Annual - or even biennial - collection of this information is not necessary and requires expenditure of program funds that otherwise could fund more direct services for victims and their children. We therefore request adding to Section 304 an amendment that would clarify that the report needs to contain information only about Supervised Visitation program grantees. This could be accomplished by deleting the "and" after the semi-colon, replacing the period with "; and" and adding the following:

(4) in subsection (d)(1), by striking "(A) the number of— (i) individuals served" and inserting "(A) under this section, (i) the number of victims served".

DOJ_NMG_ 0147362

Section 704. Grants to Combat Domestic Violence, Dating Violence, Sexual Assault, and Stalking in Middle and High Schools.

Section 704 creates a new OVW grant program with grants to middle schools and high schools to address domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking. This program does not contain any link to the criminal justice system. Accordingly, we question whether OVW should be charged with its administration.

Section 704(e) provides that grantees of the new middle and high school program must protect the confidentiality and privacy of persons receiving services. We recommend inserting ", except that consent for release may not be given by the abuser of the minor or of the other parent of the minor" after "or guardian", to clarify that the abuser can not give consent to release of the victim's information. Further, we recommend inserting "Grantees may also share law-enforcement generated information for criminal justice purposes.", so that criminal justice system personnel will not need victim consent to investigate and prosecute a case.

Section 704(g)(1) provides that "Not less than 5 percent of funds appropriated under section (1) in any year shall be available for grants to tribal schools, schools on tribal lands or schools whose student population is more than 25 percent native American." Programs providing benefits to members of federally recognized Indian tribes would likely be upheld under Morton v. Mancari, 417 U.S. 535 (1974), but this provision's reference to "student population" could be viewed as authorizing the award of government benefits on the basis of racial or ethnic criteria, rather than tribal affiliation. We therefore recommend that the phrase "Native American" be replaced with "members of federally recognized Indian tribes."

TITLE VIII - STRENGTHENING AMERICA'S FAMILIES BY PREVENTING VIOLENCE IN THE HOME.

Section 801. Preventing Violence in the Home.

Section 801, proposed section 41302, creates a new OVW grant program that focuses on services for children and youth exposed to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking. Although we support the objectives of this program, we are concerned that the limited funds available to respond to violence against women should be focused on programs that already have established records of effectiveness. Also, because this program focuses primarily services for children and youth and lacks a criminal justice component, we question whether the Department should be charged with its administration.

Similarly, section 801, proposed section 41303 also authorizes a new grant program that focuses on engaging men and youth in preventing domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault and stalking. This program does not contain any link to the criminal justice system. Proposed section 41304 authorizes a new grant program relating to home visitation projects. These programs do not contain any links to the criminal justice system. Accordingly, the Department is concerned whether it would best be charged with administering the programs.

TITLE IX B PROTECTION FOR IMMIGRANT VICTIMS OF VIOLENCE

Title IX amends the Immigration and Nationality Act. The Department, would support a fair and reasonable bill that would be place immigrant victims of domestic violence in the same situation that they would have been in but-for the abuse -- no better, no worse. This bill, by contrast, goes too far in a number of provisions and should be stricken or substantially modified. The most egregious example is the bill's proposal to grant numerous immigration benefits to aliens who merely file an application for relief under VAWA regardless of the underlying merit of the application. This approach which is essentially one that grants relief unless and until relief is actually denied (and all appeals are exhausted) will undoubtedly encourage false and fraudulent applications because the benefits for merely applying are so substantial. The result could easily be that immigration adjudicators will be overwhelmed by the volume of applications and unable to efficiently adjudicate the meritorious cases in a timely fashion. Moreover, other important adjudications, such as asylum cases (where generous benefits do not accrue for merely filing an application), will also suffer because adjudicatory resources will have to be devoted to VAWA cases that lack merit. The more sensible approach, therefore, is for the Secretary of Homeland Security, in the exercise of discretion, to grant any applicant deferred action. That way the status quo for meritorious applicants will be preserved and the incentive for meritless applications will be removed. Section 915 is an example of this approach. However, as described in further detail below, section 915 is arguably unnecessary because the Secretary already possesses this authority. Explicitly affording the Secretary deferred action in this context (when it does not explicitly exist in any other context) might lead some to conclude that the authority to grant deferred action only exists when statutorily authorized. Accordingly, the Department does not support Title IX without modification to the following sections:

Section 901: Conditions Applicable to U and T Visas

Section 901(b) extends the duration of T and U visas to 4 years and allows them to be extended on a year-by-year basis upon certification from a "federal, state or local law enforcement official, prosecutor or judge or other federal, state, or local authority investigating or prosecuting criminal activity." DOJ believes that four years with the possibility of yearly extensions is more time than is necessary for nonimmigrant status. If an alien is a bone fide victim, the investigation and prosecution will not last so long that a 4-year visa, plus extensions, will be necessary. Rather, such a long period would open the door to fraud. Further, DOJ strongly opposes the inclusion of a judge in the authorities able to certify that an alien's presence is necessary for an investigator or prosecution. A judge is not an investigator or prosecutor. If an alien is a bone fide victim then law enforcement officers or a prosecutor will certify that her presence is needed. Allowing a potential victim to ask a judge for certification creates a disincentive for cooperation in the investigation and prosecution. Furthermore, authorizing a judge to certify a victim could allow the defendant to raise constitutional concerns about the impartiality of the judge conducting the trial (particularly if the certified victim testifies against the defendant) and thus thwart the effort to prosecute offenders.

Section 901(d)(1) changes the requirement for victims to assist in investigation and prosecution to a requirement to assist in investigation or prosecution, but adds that they must respond to and cooperate with requests for evidence and information. This formulation does not satisfy DOJ's concern that there be no weakening of the requirement that victims fully assist with investigation and prosecution of trafficking crimes. Any change in that requirement will decrease the ability and effectiveness of prosecutions—which are the only means to combat trafficking. Rescuing victims is not enough. We must also convict traffickers. This provision—by weakening the requirement for victims to cooperate with law enforcement—will make that job much harder and harm the U.S. government's anti-trafficking efforts. The requirement that victims assist in investigation and prosecution must remain in the law unchanged.

Section 901(e) allows T visa holders at the time of enactment of the bill to benefit from the extension of the T visa duration to 4 years plus extension. As DOJ does not support the 4-year T visa, it does not support this section either.

Section 902: Clarification of Basis for Relief Under Harship Waivers for Conditional Permanent Residence

Section 902 amends the hardship waiver in INA section 216 by allowing new grounds for the waiver without the need for an application to be resubmitted. Under INA section 216 the Attorney General may lift the conditional basis of the alien's adjustment of status if the alien demonstrates, inter alia, that removal would result in extreme hardship to the alien. The Department opposes the amendment because there is no necessary connection between domestic violence and the hardship of removal; indeed, removal actually may separate and protect the victim from her abuser. The Department also is concerned with eliminating the requirement of filing an application for section 216 relief, as such applications provide the best (and often only) opportunity to ascertain the identity of the alien and the bona fides and merit of her claim.

Section 903: Adjustment of Status for Victims of Trafficking

Sections 903(a)(1) and (a)(2) allow a certifying official to confer a benefit without any statutory guidance to assist the official in exercising the discretion being conferred by the provision. The Department recommends in both proposals that if Congress retains them the provisions be amended to provide that the certifying official may confer the benefit "only if he makes a finding that it would assist the investigation or prosecution." Furthermore, the determination to certify should be discretionary and not reviewable.

Section 903(b) allows the Secretary of Homeland Security to waive disqualification for admittance as a result of bad moral character if there is a connection between the bad character and trafficking. In principle this is a good idea, but the Department is concerned that it could be abused by voluntary prostitutes seeking admittance to the United States, who would claim to be victims of trafficking in order to benefit from the leniency provided. [I think we should reconsider an outright opposition b/c the Secretary has "sole and unreviewable discretion" in this context – so presumably he would not grant it to a voluntary prostitute. If we still want to object the best approach may be to add a requirement that there be "no other derogatory factors" so that we could easily prohibit a voluntary prostitute from benefiting under the provision.

Section 903(c) adds a requirement starting in FY06 that the annual Attorney General's report to Congress on U.S. government efforts to combat trafficking include statistics regarding the number of law enforcement officials trained to combat trafficking. As written, this requirement is too vague. It should specify that the Attorney General report an estimate of the numbers of law enforcement officers trained by the Federal government. First, exact figures of participants in the numerous training seminars conducted by federal agencies are difficult to ascertain. Second, the Attorney General cannot reasonably report on the training conducted by the 18,000 state and local law enforcement agencies themselves, and should therefore only be responsible for reporting on federal training programs.

Section 911: Definition of VAWA Petitioner.

is the most problematic provision in title IX because it (in conjunction with later provisions) conveys substantial immigration benefits to aliens for merely filing of a petition under VAWA (specifically section 204 and 216 of the INA , the Cuban Adjustment Act, the Haitian Refugee Immigration Fairness Act, the Nicaraguan Adjustment and Central American Relief Act, and section 309(c)(5) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996). The effect of this provision will be profound. Aliens will be encouraged to file petitions regardless of the merit of their case in order to be afforded immigration benefits. Moreover, the alien retains this preferred immigration status until a final decision has been made upon the petition. Affording aliens immigration benefits for merely filing an application is bad immigration policy because it invites and encourages fraudulent, frivolous, and meritless applications. Furthermore, because there are limited immigration adjudication resources, a substantial number of VAWA petitions could easily undermine the adjudication of other immigration benefit cases such as asylum, cancellation of removal, and adjustment of status – none of which grant such generous immigration benefits before a final adjudication. This approach is particularly misguided because it conflicts with section 915 wherein the Secretary is authorized, in his unreviewable discretion, to grant deferred action to any petitioner who sets forth a prima facie case for approval. This is a sensible approach (with the caveat mentioned below) to such cases because it authorizes the Secretary, in effect, to preserve the status quo in any case that appears to be meritorious until the matter is finally resolved. Such petitioners will not be removed until a final decision has been made. This approach will discourage frivolous and fraudulent applications because the mere filing of the application does not convey a benefit and such cases will be denied. Knowing that this is the likely scenario fraudulent and frivolous applications will not be pursued and scarce immigration adjudication resources will be preserved. At the same time, aliens who have legitimate cases will be protected. Accordingly, the opportunity for deferred action strikes the proper balance and section 911 should be deleted.

Section 915: Relief for Certain Victims Pending Actions on petitions and Applications for Relief.

Section 915, as noted above, provides the preferred procedural mechanism from an immigration policy perspective to treat alien abuse victims fairly. Indeed, it is also worth noting that section 915 as drafted does not require providing work authorization until the VAWA petition is approved. Nevertheless, as discussed above, there is a downside to authorizing explicitly the use of deferred action in this context where the Secretary already has such authority. The concern is that the absence of explicit statutory authority in other contexts could lead to the conclusion that the Secretary may only grant defer action in VAWA cases. There are undoubtedly other contexts where the Secretary needs to grant defer action that are not covered by the VAWA cases. On balance, therefore, the best approach is to afford the Secretary the maximum authority to defer action and delete section 915 altogether. Alternatively, section 915 should be modified to say that nothing in this provision is meant to prohibit the Secretary from granting deferred action in any other context.

Notwithstanding those general observations, section 915 itself should be modified. First, the limitation on detention that would be added as section 236(f) of the INA, should be discretionary and not mandatory. Second, and most importantly, section (b) is inconsistent with section (a)'s sensible approach because it grants an alien an automatic stay of removal until the application is denied and all appeals exhausted. This "benefit" is unnecessary when the Secretary can grant deferred action (and thus prevent removal) in appropriate cases The Department opposes the amendment because automatic stays of removal (which here, as proposed, could last several years throughout appellate and judicial review) invite fraud and, in light of the various remedies available from DHS and the immigration courts, are wholly unnecessary. Stays should be determined on the facts and merits of the individual case; moreover, it is bad policy to immunize any group of aliens, however sympathetic their circumstances, from the normal operation of the law. Particularly troubling is the complete lack of any connection between the problem of domestic violence and the proposed response of staying the victim's removal from the United States. The Department also is concerned that the express incorporation of "old" law such as the referenced derelict suspension criteria will cause confusion and lack of consistency in adjudication.

Section 916: Access to VAWA protection regardless of Manner of Entry.

Section 916(a) expands the definition of who can file a VAWA petition to include "relationship intended by the alien to be legally a marriage or to conclude in a valid marriage". The highlighted portion of that phrase is too vague and is likely to invite interpretative difficulty. Section 916(e) would amend the visa waiver program statute (8 U.S.C. 1187) so that a VAWA petitioner would not waive the right to contest a removal order. This is too broad and unnecessary in light of the fact that the Secretary can grant deferred action status to any alien who has a meritorious VAWA petition. Undoubtedly it will encourage frivolous applications from aliens who entered the United States pursuant to the visa waiver program and who can only contest removal by filing a VAWA petition and whereby the mere act of filing the petition will serve to prohibit removal under the visa waiver statute. Similarly, subsection (f) creates an exception to the foreign residency requirement for VAWA petitioners. There is simply no need to grant this immigration benefit, unless and until the VAWA petition is actually approved. Indeed, the mere filing of the petition – even if later denied – may be sufficient for the waiver to be effective. Accordingly, subsections (e) and (f) should be deleted.

Section 917: Eliminating Abusers' Control Over Applications for Adjustments of Status.

Section 917 would confer numerous immigration benefits on aliens who merely file applications and thus become VAWA petitioners. As explained above, granting substantive immigration benefits to aliens for merely filing an application is bad immigration policy. Accordingly, subsections (a), (b), and (c) should be deleted.

Section 919: Exemption of Victims of Domestic Violence, Sexual Assault and Trafficking from Sanctions for Failure to Depart Voluntarily.

Section 919 creates an exception to the penalties for failing to voluntarily depart. These penalties are necessary to enforce voluntary departure orders. Under the bill, an alien can refuse to depart, and he won't be penalized, as long as he files a VAWA petition (and the battery/cruelty occurred before the overstay). [I don't think the foregoing is correct; perhaps it was changed in reaction to this comment]. As noted above, affording immigration benefits (in this instance relief from the strictures of voluntary departure) for merely filing a VAWA petition is bad immigration policy. This benefit should only be available if the petition is approved. Furthermore, an alien should only be excused for failing to depart if the battery or extreme cruelty was the cause. As drafted, the failure to voluntarily depart could be excused if there is a "connection". Phrasing the statute this way is ambiguous and so it would be better to say expressly that an alien's failure to voluntarily depart will only be excused if he failed to depart because of the battery or extreme cruelty.

Section 921: Prohibition of Adverse Determinations of Admissibility or Deportability Based on Protected Information.

Section 921 would amend 8 U.S.C. § 1367, which contains a provision -- at subsection (a)(2) -- that prohibits disclosure of certain information. Section 921 would extend this nondisclosure requirement to the Departments of Homeland Security, State, Health and Human Services, and Labor (presently a 8 U.S.C. § 1367 applies only to the Department of Justice). We recommend consideration of this amendment in relation to S.1181 (109th Congress), which has passed the Senate and could be enacted prior to H.R. 3402. If enacted in its current form, S.1181 would constrain the FOIA Exemption 3 status of 8 U.S.C. § 1367(a)(2), as amended.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147368

Section 921(f) adds INA section 239(e) and restricts removal proceedings as follows: "Removal proceedings shall not be initiated against an alien unless there is a certification [of compliance with the limitations on enforcement actions in shelters or courthouses and the use of information in VAWA petitions]." At the outset, it is important to note that there is no demonstrated need for such a provision. In the event that an alien who is a victim is discovered at such a location, the Secretary's authority to grant deferred action in appropriate cases will resolve this issue. This provision, as drafted, would also insulate abusers and perpetrators who happen to be found at such places. It makes no sense to inoculate such persons from removal proceedings. Finally, it may be difficult (or impossible) for DHS to submit this certification in many cases because no single DHS employee would have sufficient information to make this certification. Finally, this provision is likely to lead to significant litigation regarding the bases for the immigration charges and require DHS to prove that it did not rely upon such information. Accordingly, the provision should be deleted.

Section 936: Motions to Reopen.

Section 936 affords an automatic stay of removal for aliens who file motions to reopen based on domestic violence. The Department strongly opposes any provision that would displace the normal procedures applicable to motions to reopen. As explained regarding Section 915, automatic stays invite fraud and are wholly unnecessary. Here, too, the provisions also are objectionable as having no connection to the problem of domestic violence.

Section 937: Removal Proceedings.

Section 937 provides that any battery or extreme cruelty of an alien by anyone at anytime anywhere in the world constitutes "exceptional circumstances" justifying a failure to appear at an immigration hearing. The Department strongly opposes this provision because it is neither appropriate nor necessary. If the alien missed her hearing because of domestic violence, the immigration judge can provide relief under current law. If the domestic violence had nothing to do with the alien's default, the unrelated fact that the alien is a victim of violence should not relieve her of the obligation to obey the court's orders.

TITLE X B SAFETY ON TRIBAL LANDS.

Section 1002. Consultation.

Section 1002 requires annual consultations with Indian tribal governments on such issues as the timeliness of the grant award process and determinations not to award funds. The Department respects the importance of consulting with tribes on issues that affect them. Annual consultations with tribes, however, would not be an effective use of limited resources. While we value the input of tribes, we communicate through other methods than formal consultations, which are difficult and costly to organize. In addition, the topics covered in the section are not appropriate for such consultations. Finally, the Department opposes the requirement that directs the Secretary of the Interior to consult with Indian tribal governments regarding federal programs established under VAWA and VAWA 2000, none of which are administered by that Department. We recommend that this section be stricken in its entirety. The Attorney General can determine when input from tribes is needed and what form it should take. Should Congress keep this section, it should be revised to make the required consultations occur every three years and leaving the specific areas for recommendation to the discretion of the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior.

Section 1003. Analysis and Research on Violence on Tribal Lands.

Section 1003(a) requires the Attorney General, through the Director of OVW, to conduct a baseline study to examine violence against Indian women. This would be more appropriately handled by the National Institute of Justice ("NIJ"), in consultation with OVW, because they have the expertise on appropriate research methodology. Therefore, we recommend striking "Office on Violence Against Women", and inserting "National Institute of Justice in consultation with the Office on Violence Against Women".

Section 1004. Tracking of Violence on Tribal Lands.

Section 1004 permits Indian law enforcement agencies to enter relevant information into criminal databases regarding domestic violence, stalking and sexual assault offenders. This amendment appears to be helpful but the Department is unaware of restrictions on the entry of this information into Federal databases. If this proposed amendment is consistent with the entry of information from other law enforcement agencies, the Department supports the amendment.

Section 1005. Tribal Division of the Office on Violence Against Women.

Section 1005 creates a new Tribal Division within OVW as section 2016 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. We recommend striking proposed section 2016. OVW, and other Department components, are already implementing many of these new provisions. In OVW, the Department currently has a Tribal Unit, managed by an Assistant Director, so that we can provide tribes with better access to our grant funds and to better monitor our tribal grantees. Furthermore, tribal grants currently comprise fewer than one-sixth of all the grants managed by OVW. The Tribal Division is duplicative and unnecessary.

Section 1005, proposed section 2016(a)(2), mandates the approval of each Indian tribe to be benefited by a grant, which is not appropriate for all grant programs. For example, a Legal Assistance for Victims grantee may serve multiple tribes. This provision would create an extreme hardship on the applicants, which are often nonprofit organizations, if they had to seek approval from every tribe that would benefit from their services. Under the Department's current VAWA programs, any applicant representing a consortium of tribal governments and/or organizations must submit a resolution from the constituent tribal governments and/or organizations supporting the application. We believe that this is a more appropriate and practical means of ensuring tribal approval.

Section 1005 would also add a new section 2017, Safety for Indian Women Formula Grants Program, to Part T of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, funded by tribal set-asides from five existing and one new OVW grant programs. OVW agrees that the current structure creates a hardship for tribes that seek funding because they have to submit up to five separate applications. If a tribe receives more than one award (which is often the case), they have to submit multiple financial reports and progress reports. Moreover, they often are subject to statutory program requirements that are not well-suited for tribes. For example, our current STOP Violence Against Indian Women Discretionary Grant Program (STOP VAIW Program) is funded from a five-percent set-aside for tribes within the statute that creates the STOP Violence Against Women Formula Grant Program. Grantees of the STOP VAIW program therefore must meet most of the requirements of the formula grant program – which are designed for states receiving formula grant funds and impose immense financial and administrative burdens on tribal grantees. We therefore strongly support the concept of creating a consolidated program tailored to the needs of the tribes. We respectfully request certain modifications, however, to the program outlined in the bill.

First, the Department recommends that the tribal set-asides that fund the new program should not be raised above 7%. It is vitally important to provide tribes and those entities that serve tribes with adequate criminal justice and victim services resources to respond to crime against Indian women. Based on our experience in administering grant programs, however, we do not believe that raising the amount of certain tribal set-asides under our grant programs is the best means of addressing the violence against Indian women. At present, OVW administers five statutory tribal set-asides of 5%. With the exception of the Rural Program, OVW has had difficulty meeting the current set-aside requirements. One of the reasons is simply that there either are not enough tribes that apply for these programs or there are not enough tribes that score at a funding level. Additionally, the Rural program has fewer restrictions and is a more general grant program that includes prevention efforts, as opposed to OVW's more prescribed grant programs. Furthermore, many of the tribes that receive our funding have experienced difficulty appropriately using grant funds. Moreover, the bill raises appropriation levels so that more funds will be available. We therefore oppose raising tribal set-asides to 10%. In the future, if we succeed in helping tribes expand their capacity to implement grant projects, it might be appropriate to reconsider and raise the set-aside level.

Second, we do not recommend including the tribal set-aside from the LAV program because the set-aside within LAV is structured differently than the others. All the other set-asides are for tribal governments, whereas the LAV set-aside is for "programs that assist victims . . . on lands within the jurisdiction of an Indian tribe." Many of the grantees receiving funds under this set-aside are nonprofit organizations rather than tribes. This broader eligibility widens the pool of candidates for LAV set-aside funding, which enabled OVW to meet the 5% tribal set-aside for this program this year. Therefore, the Department recommends deleting proposed section 2017(a)((2)(C) from the bill.

Third, we recommend including statutory language that makes clear that the statutory requirements of the programs from which the set-asides are drawn do not apply to grants awarded under the new Safety for Indian Women Formula Grants Program created by proposed section 2017. As noted above regarding the STOP VAIW Program, these requirements often are not tailored to the situation of tribes. We submit language below that could be added to each tribal set-aside to make clear that set-aside funds will not be subject to these restrictions.

Fourth, the very broad "purposes for which grants may be used" set forth in proposed section 2017(b)(2) do not provide enough guidance for either grantees using the funds or the Department in administering the program. Although we recognize the importance of respecting tribal sovereignty and providing flexibility, it is particularly important that a formula grant program – where so much responsibility is vested in the grantee – clearly identify the purposes for which funds may be used. Therefore, we recommend replacing section 2017(b)(2) with more specific purpose areas, which are based broadly on the ones found in the STOP, Arrest, Rural, and Supervised Visitation programs' statutes, as well as those for the new Grants for Court Training and Improvement. Recommended language for a proposed new section 2017(b)(2) is set forth below. In addition, the general program purpose in proposed section 2017(b)(1) states that the purpose of the program is to "assist Indian tribal governments to develop and enhance effective governmental strategies to curtail violent crime. . ." (emphasis added). Because such strategies need not be governmental – services, for example, often are provided by nongovernmental organizations – we recommend removing the word "governmental" from this section and from section 2017(b)(2), if our recommendation to entirely replace this subsection with the suggested language below is not taken.

Fifth, proposed section 2017(a)(1) limits the new tribal program to enhancing "the response of Indian tribal governments to address the safety of members of Indian tribes." This language limiting the program to addressing the safety of member of Indian tribes appears throughout the program. Tribes may have within their service areas, however, victims who are not enrolled members of a tribe. We recommend against restricting the ability of grantees to respond to the needs of those victims.

Sixth, proposed section 2017((d)(1)(B) requires OVW to mail each Indian tribe a notification of the availability of funds as well as copies of application forms. To avoid burdensome mailings, OVW usually provides an Internet link to our applications rather than a paper copy. To permit this practice to continue, we suggest replacing the language "copies of application forms", with "a means to access copies of application forms".

Seventh, proposed section 2017(d)(4) requires that, among technical assistance projects funded under the new tribal program, OVW must fund "a single tribal organization to provide comprehensive technical assistance to participating tribal governments." Although OVW frequently does fund such comprehensive technical assistance providers for its programs, we request that this requirement not be included in the statute. In this way, OVW would retain the discretion to fund the best technical assistance applications that it receives, rather than being constrained always to fund a comprehensive one. We therefore recommend removing the sentence: "At least one of the cooperative agreements or contracts shall be entered into with a single tribal organization to provide comprehensive technical assistance to participating tribal governments."

Eighth, proposed section 2017(e)(3) requires that tribes set aside "no less than 50 percent of their total allocation under this section for tribally specific domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking victim services and advocacy for members of Indian tribes." We recommend against imposing this set-aside. If enough applications are received, grants under this formula program may be quite small and a 50% restriction on funds will greatly limit a grantee's ability to develop projects that do not involve victim services.

Ninth, proposed section 2017(e)(3) requires that tribes "give preference to tribal organizations or tribal nonprofit organizations providing advocacy services to members of Indian tribes[.]" Again, we recommend removing this requirement and giving tribal grantees the discretion to identify service providers who will best meet the needs of victims in their communities.

Tenth, proposed section 2017(f)(2) would mandate that OVW develop a special reporting process for tribes, require only essential data be collected, and limit the reporting to an annual basis. The Department recommends that this entire section be removed. As noted above, grantee reporting is governed by Department of Justice regulations, which follow the Federal common rule for grant administration. See 28 CFR Part 66. Moreover, we have found that semi-annual progress reporting is often an important tool for grant monitoring, and we object to a provision that would prevent us from using it.

For these reasons, the Department recommends the following language to replace parts of proposed Section 2017 in Section 1015 of the bill:

Proposed new 2017(a)(3):

(3) AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FOR PROGRAM. —

(A) AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FROM GRANTS TO COMBAT VIOLENT CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN. —Section 2007(b)(1) of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3796gg-1(b)(1) is revised to read as follows:

"(1) 5 percent shall be available for grants under the program authorized at section 2017. The requirements of this Part shall not apply to funds allocated for such program.".

DOJ_NMG_ 0147373

(B) AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FROM GRANTS TO ENCOURAGE ARREST POLICIES AND ENFORCEMENT OF PROTECTION ORDERS PROGRAM. — Section 2101 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3796hh) is amended in subsection (e) by striking the current text and replacing it with the following:

"(e) Not less than 5 percent of the total amount available under this section for each fiscal year shall be available for grants under the program authorized at section 2017. The requirements of this Part shall not apply to funds allocated for such program.".

(C) AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FROM RURAL DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND CHILD ABUSE ENFORCEMENT ASSISTANCE GRANTS. —Section 40295(c)(3) of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (title IV of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994; 42 U.S.C. 13971(c)(3)) is amended by striking the current text and replacing it with the following:

"(3) Not less than 5 percent of the total amount available under this section for each fiscal year shall be available for grants under the program authorized at section 2017 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. The requirements of this Section shall not apply to funds allocated for such program.".

(D) AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FROM THE SAFE HAVENS FOR CHILDREN PROGRAM. —Section 1301 of the Violence Against Women Act of 2000 (Division B of the Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act of 2000; 42 U.S.C. 10420) is amended in subsection (f) by striking the current text and replacing it with the following:

"(f) Not less than 5 percent of the total amount available under this section for each fiscal year shall be available for grants under the program authorized at section 2017 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. The requirements of this Section shall not apply to funds allocated for such program.".

(E) AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FROM GRANTS FOR COURT TRAINING AND IMPROVEMENTS. —Section 41002 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 is amended in subsection (d)(2) by striking the current text and replacing it with the following:

"(d)(2) SET ASIDE. —Not less than 5 percent of the total amount available under this section for each fiscal year shall be available for grants under the program authorized at section 2017 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. The requirements of this Section shall not apply to funds allocated for such program.".

DOJ_NMG_ 0147374

Proposed new section 2017(b)(2):

(2) PURPOSES FOR WHICH GRANTS MAY BE USED. —The Director may make grants to Indian tribal governments-

(1) to implement, expand, and establish cooperative efforts, training, and projects between law enforcement officers, prosecutors, victim advocacy groups, and other related parties to investigate and prosecute incidents of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking, including collaboration between tribal entities and Federal or State entities;

(2) to develop, enlarge, or strengthen victim services programs, including sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking programs and to address the needs of children exposed to domestic violence;

(3) to work in cooperation with the community to develop education and prevention strategies directed toward issues of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking of native women;

(4) to enhance the response to violence against American Indian and Alaska Native women at the tribal, Federal, and state levels;

(5) to develop, install, or expand data collection and communication systems, including computerized systems, linking police, prosecutors, and courts or for the purpose of identifying and tracking arrests, protection orders, violations of protection orders, prosecutions, and convictions for violent crimes against women, including the crimes of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking;

(6) to provide programs for supervised visitation and safe visitation exchange of children in situations involving domestic violence, sexual assault, or stalking committed by one parent against the other with appropriate security measures, policies, and procedures to protect the safety of victims and their children; and

(7) to improve tribal court responses to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

In addition, we believe that any comprehensive Domestic Violence legislation should include the creation of a felony offense for habitual offenders, and the ability of the Bureau of Indian Affairs Officers to make arrests for misdemeanor domestic violence, if the officer has reasonable cause to believe the offense has occurred.

SUGGESTED NEW PROVISIONS:

DOJ_NMG_ 0147375

In addition to the Department's suggested changes to the bill as reported, the Department requests the following additional improvements:

1. Contraband Cell Phones

Under existing law, if the Bureau of Prisons (BOP) is able to convince a court that a contraband cell phone in a Federal prison is an object designed or intended to be used as a weapon to facilitate an escape, then the potential penalty could be up to 5 years imprisonment. The potential penalty could be as low as a maximum of 6 months if the cell phone is determined merely to be an object that threatens the order, discipline, or security of the prison, or the life, health, or safety of an individual. In order to provide certainty and an appropriate level of severity to punishment for possession or introduction of a cell phone, the Department proposes amending 18 U.S.C. § 1791(d)(1)(B) to read as follows:

> (d)(1)(B) marijuana or a controlled substance in Schedule III, other than a controlled substance referred to in subparagraph (C) of this subsection, ammunition, a weapon (other than a firearm or destructive device), or an object that is designed or intended to be used as a weapon or to facilitate escape from a prison, or an electronic communications device;

And to add new subsection (d)(5) to this section:

> the term "electronic communications device" includes wireless telephones, pagers, computers, and any other device that allows transmission of voice or data communications into or out of a prison without express authorization.

2. Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act Amendment

The Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act requires that funds from inmates with orders of restitution to specific victims be forwarded directly to those victims. The nominal health care copayment fee that an inmate pays might be divided to help satisfy restitution for a number of victims. Victims might be offended at receiving multiple, nominal payments toward a large restitution. This requirement would also result in a burdensome accounting system for the Bureau of Prisons. For inmates without restitution orders, 75 percent of the fees are deposited in the Crime Victims Fund, and the remaining 25 percent are retained by the Bureau for administrative costs of the program. It is anticipated that the administrative costs of maintaining separate funds will exceed any benefit to the Bureau of Prisons in collecting these monies. It would be less costly and more efficient to deposit all collected fees into the Crime Victims Fund. Victim restitution orders would still be fulfilled through the Bureau*s Inmate Financial Responsibility Program.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147376

In order that all of the fees collected from inmates for health care services are deposited in the Crime Victims Fund, the Department proposes amending title 18 U.S.C. § 4048(g) to read as follows:

> (g) Use of amounts. Amounts collected by the Director under this section shall be deposited in the Crime Victims Fund established under section 1402 of the Victims of Crime Act of 1984 (42 U.S.C. § 10610).

3. Delegation of Authority

The current language of 18 U.S.C. § 4002 provides authority only for the incarceration of prisoners in State or local facilities. We believe this statute should be changed to provide explicitly for the incarceration of prisoners by the Department of Justice in State, local, and private facilities and provide authority for the Bureau or the United States Marshals Service to delegate to a private correctional entity the authority necessary to incarcerate prisoners.

The Department proposes amending 18 U.S.C. § 4002 to read as follows:

> § 4002. Federal prisoners in State and private institutions
> For the purpose of providing suitable quarters for the safekeeping, care, and subsistence of all persons held under authority of any enactment of Congress, the Attorney General, the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, or the Director of the United States Marshals Service may contract with the proper authorities of any State, Territory, or political subdivision thereof, or with a private entity, for the imprisonment, subsistence, care, and proper employment of such persons. The Attorney General, the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, or the Director of the United States Marshals Service may, in such a contract, authorize a private entity to exercise any of the authorities, conferred by law upon the Attorney General, the Bureau of Prisons, or the United States Marshals Service, necessary to the orderly operation of such quarters, including, but not limited to, the authorities described in sections 3050 and 4042 of title 18, United States Code.
> Such Federal prisoners imprisoned by any State, Territory, or political subdivision thereof, shall be employed only in the manufacture of articles for, the production of supplies for, the construction of public works for, and the maintenance and care of the institutions of, the State, Territory, or political subdivision in which they are imprisoned.
> The rates to be paid for the care and custody of said persons imprisoned by any State, Territory, or political subdivision thereof, shall take into consideration the character of the quarters furnished, sanitary conditions, and quality of subsistence and may be such as will permit and encourage the proper authorities to provide reasonably decent, sanitary, and healthful quarters and subsistence for such persons.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147377

4. Bullet Proof Vest Testing Program

In recent months, concerns have been raised from the law-enforcement community regarding the effectiveness of body armor in use. These concerns followed the failure of a relatively new Zylon®-based body armor vest worn by a Forest Hills, Pennsylvania, police officer. Law-enforcement agencies have spent over $100 million on Zylon® armor since its introduction. New materials like Zylon® may provide improved ballistic protection for officers, while reducing the weight and stiffness of vests, but they also carry risks from unanticipated failures in real-world use. Further to several statutes, e.g., 42 U.S.C. § 3796*ll*-2(1), law-enforcement agencies rely on the Department, through compliance testing program of the Office of Justice Program, National Institute of Justice, to determine whether armor vests will protect their officers reliably.

The Department requires a sustainable funding base in order to establish an ongoing research program on the safety and effectiveness of body armor and maintain expertise to support an expanded standards program. Among other activities, these funds would support materials research, test method development, enhancements to the current compliance testing program, and reviews of body armor materials and construction methods. Funding in the amount of $5 million is needed to ensure the cost-effective use of the overall taxpayer investment in body armor and prevent future expenditures of millions of dollars on body armor that would have to be replaced in an effort to ensure the safety of law-enforcement officers in the field.

In addition to its compliance testing program, the Department's Bulletproof Vest Program, authorized at 42 U.S.C. §§ 3796*ll* to 3796*ll*-3 and operated through the Bureau of Justice Assistance of the Office of Justice Programs, also contributes significantly to officer safety by providing critical matching funds for the acquisition of body armor by law-enforcement agencies. To make this program even more effective, the Attorney General should be given statutory authority to prescind (in emergencies or under exigent situations) from certain ordinary program requirements, and thus to enable the Department to respond quickly and flexibly to emergent critical needs (such as the current one, in connection with the replacement of Zylon®-based armor) as may develop suddenly from time to time. For these reasons, the Department recommends inserting the following new section:

> "Sec. 256. Bullet Proof Vest Testing Program.
> Section 2501(g) of Public Law 90-351 is amended by inserting the following after "part" in the first sentence: "shall be available as follows: First, $5,000,000 shall be for the testing program referred to in section 2503(1); and second, except as the Attorney General otherwise may determine in emergent or exigent circumstances, the remainder"."

5. Changing the Civil Debt Collection amount in Public Law 107-273

DOJ_NMG_ 0147378

The Department currently retains three percent of the amounts collected pursuant to its civil debt collection litigation activities. These funds are credited to the Department of Justice Working Capital Fund and are used to pay the costs of processing and tracking civil and criminal debt-collection litigation, financial systems, and debt-collection-related personnel, administrative, and litigation expenses. The Department proposes to increase the civil debt collection amount that the Department can retain from 3 percent to 6 percent. The Department recommends the following language to make this change:

> Sec. XXX. Section 11013(a) of Public Law 107-273 is amended by replacing "up to 3" with "up to 6".

6. Combating Child Prostitution: Supporting FBI, State, and Local Law Enforcement Efforts to Reduce or Eliminate Child Prostitution.

Funding in the amount of $1,250,000 is requested to support the task forces through case coordination meetings, payment of state and local overtime and the purchase of equipment in support of child prostitution investigations. In response to the problem of juvenile prostitution, the Violent Crimes Section, Crimes Against Children Unit, in conjunction with both the Department of Justice/Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC), implemented a National Initiative in June of 2003 entitled "Innocence Lost". Together, a multi-faceted strategy was developed to train personnel, establish task forces, share intelligence concerning pimps, juveniles used in prostitution and criminal enterprises, and support long-term investigations with requisite personnel and financial resources.

An intensive curriculum was developed for a week long training class entitled "Protecting Victims of Child Prostitution" which was held at and sponsored by the NCMEC. This program brings state and federal law enforcement agencies, prosecutors, and social service providers from one city to the National Center where the group is trained together. This concept is designed to cultivate cooperation, partnership and an effective integration between the critical enforcement agencies in each city. To date, a total of 263 individuals have received this training. Dedicated funding in the amount of $150,000 is requested to train an additional 100 individuals in FY 2006.

The Criminal Investigative Division reviews and analyzes all intelligence received by the NCMEC through their Intake Reports and CyberTip reports. This information is in turn disseminated to the appropriate field offices. All NCMEC Intake and CyberTip reports are maintained in the FBI's Automated Case System database to provide electronic access to field offices. In addition, the Criminal Investigative Division provides extensive on-site analytical support to pending large-scale child prostitution investigations, including Intelligence Assessments, link charts and cross-case analyses to FBIHQs and the field offices. Based on an initial review of the available intelligence on child prostitution collected from ongoing investigations, human source information, information provided by numerous local and state law enforcement agencies, and the NCMEC, 14 FBI field offices were identified as having the highest incidence of children used in prostitution. The 14 field offices identified were: Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Miami, Minneapolis, New York, San Diego, San Francisco, St. Louis, Tampa and Washington D. C.

Task Forces or working groups were subsequently established in Chicago, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Honolulu, Houston, Indianapolis, Miami, Newark, New York, Oklahoma City, Philadelphia, Portland, San Francisco and Washington D. C. Efforts are ongoing to establish task forces and/or working groups in all field offices in which our intelligence supports a significant investigative increase into the exploitation of children whom are engaged in prostitution. These offices were directed to focus their efforts on the identification, investigation and prosecution of criminal enterprises, including gangs, involved in child prostitution. Sex traffickers or pimps debriefed by the FBI indicate approximately 20-40 percent of the victims forced/recruited into prostitution are juveniles. As of June 7, 2005, 25 field offices are investigating child prostitution matters in support of the Innocence Lost National Initiative.

During FY 2004, the Criminal Investigative Division initiated 67 Innocence Lost investigations which led to 118 arrests, 26 indictments and the conviction of 22 pimps and madams. To date in FY 2005, 31 additional cases were opened and there have been 163 arrests, 8 complaints, 13 indictments and 10 convictions. Since the inception of Innocence Lost, 80 children have been recovered as a result of this national initiative.

7. Law Enforcement Training and Forensic Expenses for Violent Acts Against Women in Indian Country.

It is requested that $500,000 be provided to train local and tribal police, BIA Agents and FBI Agents, on the prevention and investigation of violent crimes on women and to aid with forensic expenses incurred while investigating these crimes.

During the last three fiscal years, October 2001 through September 2004, 488 cases have been opened by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) involving sexual assault/rape in Indian Country. In addition, 1,299 cases have been opened involving assault (of which approximately 40% the victims were women) and 16 cases have been opened concerning domestic violence in Indian Country. The majority of the domestic violence and assault cases is investigated by the local police and tribal police and is not reflected in these numbers due to the fact that only the most extreme/violent cases are investigated by the FBI. The case load has strained the financial resources of the FBI, state and local forensic laboratories to analyze evidence from violent crime cased in Indian Country. The FBI currently has a joint training initiative with Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) which trains local and tribal police, BIA Agents and FBI Agents. The FBI would like to add regional training concerning sexual assault/rape and domestic violence to the extensive training already provided to law enforcement in Indian Country through this training initiative.

8. Technical changes to the Real ID Act.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147380

The Department suggests that the following technical amendments to the Real ID Act, Pub. L. 109-13 Div.B Title I, 101, May 11, 2005, 119 Stat. 311. The technical amendments would clarify an alien's burden of proof with respect to withholding of removal, the credibility of witnesses, and refer to the "trier of fact" rather than just the immigration judge.

WITHHOLDING OF REMOVAL.

(a) IN GENERAL. Section 241(b)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 USC 1231(b)(3)) is amended -

(1) by inserting at the end of subparagraph (A) the following:
"The burden of proof is on the alien to establish that the alien's life or freedom would be threatened in that country, and that race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion would be at least one central reason for such threat."
; and,

(2) by striking from subparagraph (C) "In determining whether an alien has demonstrated that the alien's life or freedom would be threatened for a reason described in subparagraph (A)" and inserting in lieu thereof "For purposes of this paragraph (3)".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE. The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if enacted on May 11, 2005 and shall apply to applications for withholding of removal made on or after such date.

ASYLUM.

(a) IN GENERAL. Section 208(b)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1158(b)(1)) is amended—

(1) by striking "may" in Section 208(b)(3)(B)(ii) and replacing it with "shall"

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE. The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if enacted on May 11, 2005 and shall apply to applications for withholding of removal made on or after such date.

REMOVAL PROCEEDINGS.

(a) IN GENERAL. Section 240(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229a(c)(4)) is amended—

(1) by striking the term "immigration judge" every place it appears in Section 240(c)(4)(B) and replacing it with "trier of fact"; and

(2) by striking "and any inaccuracies or falsehoods in such statements" in Section 240(c)(4)(C) and replacing it with "or any inaccuracies or falsehoods in such statements"

DOJ_NMG_ 0147381

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE. The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if enacted on May 11, 2005 and shall apply to applications for withholding of removal made on or after such date.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147382

REAL ID ACT

(a) Section 101(d) of the REAL ID Act is amended by striking "8 U.S.C. 1230(c)" and replacing it with "8 U.S.C. 1229a(c)".

(b) (EFFECTIVE DATE. The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if enacted on May 11, 2005 and shall apply to applications for withholding of removal made on or after such date.

Appendix A

TECHNICAL COMMENTS:

Section 241(d))—The provision on churning in this section as drafted is worded slightly different than ATF's churning authority in current law (i.e., FY 2005 Consolidated Appropriations Act, Public Law 108-447, Section 116 (effective 12/8/04). The differences are minor and non-substantive. In any event, this provision is unnecessary because ATF's current authority exists notwithstanding any other provision of law and without fiscal year limitation.

Section 301(d): "Capitalization Correction," is unnecessary. It would capitalize the words "wire" and "electronic" at the beginnings of subsections (a) and (b). Those words are not capitalized elsewhere in the statute, and are properly left in lower case.

Section 304 "Use of Federal Training Facilities": In subsection (a), line 13, replace "predominately" with "predominantly".

Section 402

Proposed section 2000B(a)(6) (page 113, lines 3-11) defines "dating partner." On page 113, lines 6-7, we suggest inserting "where the" before "existence of" and "shall be determined" after "such a relationship" to add what appears to have been erroneously omitted language. This is consistent with the definition of "dating violence" currently found in 42 U.S.C. § 3796gg-2.

Proposed section 2000B(a)(26) (page 120, line 17 to page 121, line 5) defines "territorial domestic violence or sexual assault coalition." To correct an error on page 120, line 20, we suggest either adding the phrase "or sexual assault" after "a program addressing domestic violence" and before "that is" or deleting "addressing domestic violence" from the line.

Proposed section 2000B(a)(27) (page 121, lines 6-16) defines "tribal coalition." To clarify that such coalitions need not serve both American Indian and Alaska Native women, we suggest changing the "and" to "or" on page 121, lines 11 and 16.

Section 501

In section 501(a), change "3793(a)(8)" to "3793(a)(18)" to correct a typographical error.

In section 501(d)(1)(C), insert "and the coalitions for" before "Guam" for clarity.

Section 501(d)(3)(C) uses both the term "victim service provider" and "victim services programs". For consistency, we suggest using only one term.

In section 501(e) we recommend changing "Violence Against Women Office" to "Office on Violence Against Women" to use the correct name for the Office.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147384

Section 502

Section 502(b)(2)(C)(ii), we suggest inserting "protection order" before "registries" for clarity.

In section 502(b)(2)(F)(i), we do not recommend striking "other" because juvenile courts are not necessarily civil courts. Instead, we would suggest rewriting this subsection to read "inserting ', civil,' after 'criminal'".

Section 503

Section 503(1)(C) is unnecessary because it was accomplished in the Justice for All Act. Similarly, subsections 503 (3), (4) (A) and (C), and (6)(B)(i)(IV) are also unnecessary.

Section 504

Proposed section 41002(a)(3) and (b)(1)(B), we suggest inserting "tribal, territorial," after "State," for consistency.

Proposed section 41003(b) (2), would make more sense if there were an "or" (instead of an "and") between (b)(2)(A) and (b)(2)(B) (eligible entities for Tribal Curricula development). (The formulation with "or" is used to describe eligible entities for National Education Curricula development in proposed section 41003(a) (2).

Section 504, proposed section 41004(b)(2), provides that grants shall be for a period of 3 fiscal years. We suggest striking "3" and replacing it with "not less than 2" because if all awards are for three years, it will restrict the number of awards that can be made under the program in a given year. Although this results in larger grant awards for a few entities, it may severely limit our ability to reach a broad range of communities with these grant funds. For the same reasons, we recommend making this change to Section 602, proposed section 2014(c)(6), Section 603, proposed section 40295(b); Section 701, proposed section 41201(e); to section 701, proposed section 41202(e); to Section 702(a)(2); and to Section 704(f)(1); to Section 801, proposed section 41302(a)(2); to Section 801, proposed section 41303(a)(2). Similarly, in Section 602, proposed section 2014(c)(2), we recommend striking "for a period of no less than 3 fiscal years" and replacing it with "for periods of not less than 2 years".

Proposed section 41004(c)(4) (page 154, line 17), change "assure" to "ensure" to correct a typographical error.

Section 510

This section calls for increased penalties for repeat offenders under Sections 2261 and 2262. These statutes are not prosecuted often because of the rigorous burdens of proof, so a repeat offender statute seems unnecessary as rarely will we have such recidivism.

Section 602:
Proposed section 2014(c)(1) appears to contain a typographical error. The proposed section directs the Attorney General to award "grants to culturally specific community-based organization that—". Because the bill appears to contemplate more than one grant award, we recommend replacing this language with "grants to culturally specific community-based organizations that—". In addition, to make the remainder of the section grammatical, we recommend replacing "is a private, nonprofit organization that focuses" with "are private, nonprofit organization that focus"; "has expertise" with "have expertise"; "has an advisory board or steering committee and staffing which is" with "have advisory boards or steering committees and staffing which are".

In proposed section 2014(d) replace "subsection (b) and (c) the following services" with "subsection (b) and (c), grant-funded services" to make clear that the activities enumerated in proposed section 2014(d) are those that may be funded.

In proposed section 2014(d)(7) replace "Collaborating" with "collaborating" to correct a typographical error.

In proposed section 2014(d)(8) replace "in clauses (A) through (G)" with "paragraphs (1) through (7)" to correct a drafting error.

In proposed section 2014(f) replace "Funds" with "funds" to correct a typographical error.

Section 603:
Proposed section 40295(b)(2) (page 180, line 24), we recommend inserting ", including assistance in immigration matters" before "; and" to conform to the current statute, which permits Rural program funding of assistance to victims in these matters.

In proposed section 40295(a)(1) (page 179, lines 1-2), we recommend changing "between" to "among" for clarity.

In proposed section 40295(a)(2) (page 179, lines 16-17), we recommend inserting "victim" after "local government" for clarity.

In proposed section 40295(b)(1) (page 180, line 16), we recommend changing "between" to "among" for clarity.

Section 606
In section 606(a)(1) (page 190, lines 7-8), it is unclear whether "within tribal, racial, and ethnic populations and immigrant communities" is intended to modify only "trafficking" or the entire list of crimes.

In section 606(a)(2) (page 190, line 13), we recommend inserting "not less than" before "1 fiscal year." This will give the Attorney General the discretion to award grants of longer duration should it become apparent that longer award periods are needed to meet the section's purposes.

In section 606(c)(1) (page 191, line 15), change "Alaskan native" to "Alaska Native" to correct a typographical error.

Section 701:
In section 701, proposed section 41201(b) (page 194, line 5), change "Violence Against Women Office" to "Office on Violence Against Women" to use the correct name for the Office.

In section 701, proposed section 41201(c)(1) (page 194, line 16), we recommend striking "grantee conferences" because this would be included as part of the "technical assistance" that is addressed by subsection (c)(3) (page 194, lines 24 to page 195, line 9).

In section 701, proposed section 41202 is entitled "Services to Advocate for and Respond to Teens" (page 201, lines 10-11) although the stated purpose of the new program is to fund programs that serve youth between the ages of 12 and 24. (Page 201, line 24). OVW recommends adding the term "young adults" to the section title (page 201, lines 10-11) to parallel the age range of victims that the program will address.

In section 701, proposed section 41201(h)(2)(d) (page 200, line 24), there appears to be a word missing on line 24.

Section 702:
Section 702 duplicates and amends 20 U.S.C. § 1152, which currently authorizes the Campus Program. As discussed above with regard to the applicability of the general definition and grant provisions of section 402, section 702 fails to indicate whether the current Campus statute is being deleted and replaced and also fails to identify where this new provision will be codified. We recommend that language be added to clarify these issues.

In section 702(c)(2)(B) (page 209, line 16), change "any" to "a".

Section 703(3), proposed subsection (e)(2), we recommend deleting the phrase "grantee conferences." Attendance at grantee conferences is usually considered a form of "technical assistance," which is included on line 23.

Section 1004:
In section 1004(b)(1) (page 321, line 7), we recommend changing "any" to "an" for clarity.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147387

In proposed section 2016(b)(2)(D) (page 325, line 1), change "memberes" to "members" to correct a typographical error.

Neil, attached is the DOJ Reauthorization Bill and our comments on it. I thought you might like to see a copy. Most if it concerns OJP matters, which Tracy is looking over. FYI, there is a section on the Chief Privacy Officer, which I provide below. Let me know if you have any comments.
Jeff

Section 305 would require the Attorney General to designate a "senior official" within the Department of Justice (the "Department") "to assume primary responsibility for privacy policy." The Department recognizes the growing importance of information privacy, and supports creation of a Chief Privacy Officer (CPO) position within DOJ, but strongly believes that more time and study are required before the CPO's duties and responsibilities can or should be specifically delineated. The Department is now actively engaged in assessing its privacy-related functions and personnel, and making recommendations to the Attorney General regarding potential structural changes and resource needs. As this project unfolds, among the difficult questions presented are: what is the scope of the CPO's responsibilities? How does creation of a CPO affect the Department's existing privacy functions? What is the appropriate relationship between the CPO and the Chief Information Officer? Is importing the DHS model the optimal solution for DOJ? The answers to these questions are not obvious, and are not susceptible to "one size fits all" legislation. The Department therefore seeks additional flexibility in the language of the bill, and sufficient time to make an informed recommendation to Congress regarding establishment of a CPO. We submit the following language as a substitute:
Privacy Officer

(a) In General. The Attorney General shall designate a senior official in the Department of Justice to assume primary responsibility for privacy policy.

(b) Responsibilities. The responsibilities of such official shall include -

(1) Advising the Attorney General regarding appropriate privacy protections, relating to the use, collection, and disclosure of personally identifiable information, with respect to the use of information technology policy and information systems; and

(2) Advising the Attorney General regarding the privacy implications of legislative and regulatory proposals affecting the Department and involving the collection, use, and disclosure of personally identifiable information.

(3) In consultation with the Department's Chief Information Officer, ensuring the Department's compliance with Section 208 of the E-Government Act of 2002 (Pub. L. 107-347).

(c) Review of Privacy-Related Functions and Resources and Report. Within 120 days of his designation, the privacy official shall prepare a comprehensive report to the Attorney General and to Congress, describing the organization and resources of the Department with respect to privacy and related information management functions, including access, security, and records management, assessing the Department's current and future needs relating to information privacy issues, and making appropriate recommendations regarding the Department's organizational structure and personnel.

Jim and Jeff,
We are submitting the attached letter for ODAG and OASG review for transmission to OMB asap. This bill will be on the House floor very soon and are trying to get it to as quickly as possible.

A couple of notes. The first three titles are "doj reauth" and our comments are very similar to last year's views letter on HR 3036 (most are identical), as the Committee incorporated none of our suggestions. Titles IV-X are "Reauth of the Violence Against Women Act" Given the length of this letter, I sent it to Tracy Henke so she could begin reviewing as well. Tracy is also resolving a conflict between components in Section 250.

The attached version of the bill is the one Reported out of the Committee. Please do not hesitate to call me with any questions 5-9134.

Aloma,

Heard from the FBI and they still have quite a few leads before they complete their investigation. In order to possibly speed things up I'm going to fax you a financial form that Neil needs to sign. This way, the FBI doesn't have to send an investigator to see him. This form is needed to verify state tax records. Please ask him to only sign, date, and put his address. The FBI fills out the rest. I will need you to mail this to me via Intraoffice mail as an original signature is needed. Please let me know when you mail it so I can be on the lookout for it and send it to the FBI. We are at 20 Massachusetts Ave, Room 6221 and put to my attention.

Please let me know your fax# so I can fax the form to you.

We're at the mercy of the FBI. I did ask them to expedite it and they said it should be done in a few weeks. They tell me this is a release for the state of Virginia that needs to be filled out. It takes the FBI approx 4-5 months on average to complete an initial background.

Subject: RE: DOJ Reauthorization HR 3402 Views Letter

Couple of quick items as I continue to review.
1. The Department's OCIO needs to review section 248 and comments pertaining to "Moreover, we object to - transferring the automated system for tracking COPS grants to OJP. The COPS Office's automated system (CMS) is a longstanding, highly successful grant management system." I want us to be careful how we phrase this language since there have been discussions about consolidating the grant management systems into one system. If JMD is fine (also from audit perspective), then I am okay.

2. Section 250--if the Department's position is that we are going to be in the business of setting "minimum information technology standards for equipment and software - especially for interoperability equipment and other communication tools - purchased under the various broad grant options," then COPS must be part of that. I appreciate that COPS has a track record for their past grants, but if the Department is going to set minimum standards (guidance or whatever) then the future COPS grants will need to follow them as well.

However, the Department leadership needs to determine whether we will be in the business of setting minimum standards and if not, then we should oppose the creation of the new office (whether as part of OJP's NIJ or separate) altogether and cite that NIJ's OST division already works on this issue and provides some guidance (not required) to the field.

Will let you know if I have additional comments.

DRAFT DRAFT DRAFT DRAFT DRAFT

MEMORANDUM

To: ALL UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS AND DEPARTMENT COMPONENT HEADS

From: Robert D. McCallum, Jr.
Acting Deputy Attorney General

Subject: Guidance for Federal Prosecutors Regarding Requests for Corporate Waiver of the Attorney-Client Privilege and Work Product Protection

In recent years, the Department has placed significant emphasis on the prosecution of corporate crimes. In connection with the Department's initiative in this area, former Deputy Attorney General Larry D. Thompson issued a Memorandum on January 20, 2003, to all United States Attorneys' Offices regarding Principles of Federal Prosecution of Business Organizations. This memorandum, commonly known as the Thompson Memorandum, found at USAM 9-162, remains the Department's policy on charging business organizations and includes factors to be considered in making charging decisions.

One of the nine factors the Thompson Memorandum sets forth in determining whether to charge a corporation or other business organization is "the corporation's timely and voluntary disclosure of wrongdoing and its willingness to cooperate in the investigation of its agents, including, if necessary, the waiver of corporate attorney-client and work product protection." Thompson Memorandum, Section II.B.4. The Thompson Memorandum elaborates on this factor by providing that a federal prosecutor may ensure the complete and truthful cooperation of a corporation by requesting, "in appropriate circumstances[,]" that the corporation waive the attorney-client privilege and attorney work product protection, which the Memorandum recognizes also may be "critical in enabling the government to evaluate the completeness of a corporation's voluntary disclosure and cooperation." Id., Section VI.B.

The Thompson Memorandum recognizes that the attorney-client privilege and work product protection serve important, long-recognized public policies encouraging candid communications between counsel and client and promoting sound corporate governance. Accordingly, the Thompson memorandum acknowledges that, while cooperation is an important factor in the Department's charging decisions, a business organization's full cooperation may not always require a waiver, expressly stating that the Department "does not . . . consider waiver of a corporation's attorney-client and work product protection an absolute requirement, and prosecutors should consider the willingness of a corporation to waive such protection when necessary to provide timely and complete information as one factor in evaluating the corporation's cooperation." Id. (emphasis added). In applying the factors set forth in the Thompson Memorandum, federal prosecutors have always considered and continue to consider carefully whether and the extent to which a request to a business entity for a waiver of attorney-client privilege or attorney work product protection is necessary to establish corporate cooperation in an investigation.

Since the Thompson Memorandum was issued, the Department has periodically reviewed its use and application. These reviews confirm that federal prosecutors have taken an appropriate and measured approach in seeking waivers of the attorney-client privilege and work product protection and do not "routinely" request such waivers. For example, the Department recently conducted a study of corporate charging decisions at 28 United States Attorneys' Offices and the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and Asset Forfeiture and Money Laundering Section. The study revealed that, out of 52 cases involving corporate entities reported, in 25 cases prosecutors decided not to charge the entities while in 14 cases dispositions were negotiated with the entities. The negotiated dispositions include seven cases that resulted in deferred prosecution agreements, four that resulted in cooperation/non-prosecution agreements, and three that resulted in guilty pleas. Of the 14 negotiated dispositions, in only nine cases was a privilege waiver reported to play a significant role.

The Department's surveys reflect that, at a most basic level, federal prosecutors have consistently explored as a threshold issue in determining "cooperation" whether a business organization has provided or will provide complete access to its employees, business records, organizational charts, compliance program, and any third-party witnesses over which it may have influence, such as customers, vendors, accountants, and former employees. In many cases, such action has been sufficient for the government to obtain timely and complete information concerning a suspected crime. In other instances involving complex business organizations or large volumes of evidence, obtaining timely and complete information has required the corporation to take additional steps, such as identifying for investigators specific witnesses and documents central to the suspected criminal conduct. Business organizations have, without providing counsel's notes or reports, identified promptly and made available to investigators all of the witnesses and documents involved in their own internal investigations by corporate counsel and provided assurances that witnesses will make full disclosure. When such actions have been adequate for federal investigators to determine timely the complete underlying facts, prosecutors have, consistent with the Thompson Memorandum, determined a waiver to be unnecessary and have not required one in order to establish cooperation.

The Department's periodic examinations of the actual application of the Thompson Memorandum by federal prosecutors have also revealed one important "best" or "preferred" practice with respect to waiver requests. A majority of United States Attorneys has required either an informal or a formal review by a senior, uninvolved colleague with supervisory experience before their federal prosecutors may request that the attorney-client privilege or work product protection be waived, and the Department has determined that, consistent with this practice, a formal, written review process for such requests should be instituted by each United States Attorney for his/her district. Such a review process, which may vary from district to district, should be designed to ensure that the "appropriate circumstances" referenced in the Thompson Memorandum are present when federal prosecutors request a waiver. Such a formal review process serves to protect the considerable societal benefits associated with long-recognized legal privileges in relation to the equally significant societal benefits of vigorous enforcement of the federal criminal law. Each United States Attorney is directed to provide the Executive Office of the United States Attorneys with a copy of the review process adopted in that district within sixty days.

In the formulation of the review process and in the review process itself, the United States Attorneys should continue to apply the factors discussed in the Thompson Memorandum. Specifically, the Thompson Memorandum instructs that the "waiver should ordinarily be limited to the factual internal investigation and any contemporaneous advice given to the corporation concerning the conduct at issue." Id., Section VI.B, n.3. It further provides that, "[e]xcept in unusual circumstances, prosecutors should not seek a waiver with respect to communications and work product related to advice concerning the government's criminal investigation." Id. The Thompson Memorandum, therefore, draws an important distinction between underlying factual information and factual work product, on the one hand, and opinion work product or attorney-client communications, on the other hand. It also draws a significant distinction between legal advice rendered "contemporaneous[ly]" with "the conduct at issue" and "advice concerning the government's criminal investigation." Id. Consistent with the Thompson Memorandum, such waivers, when determined to be necessary, have been and should be limited in most cases to factual information gleaned by the corporation's own investigation, including, where warranted by the circumstances, corporate counsel's interview notes and other factual work product, as opposed to privileged attorney-client communications or counsel's opinion work product.

As the Thompson Memorandum outlines, a waiver request seeking privileged communications or opinion work product created contemporaneously with the underlying conduct under investigation may also be sometimes appropriate. Id. (discussing "contemporaneous advice"). However, the need for such information has generally been evaluated independently from the need for interview notes and other fact work product. Frequently, federal prosecutors have determined that inquiry into "contemporaneous advice" is not necessary.

Finally, the Thompson Memorandum indicates that a waiver request for opinion work product or attorney-client communications concerning the government's criminal investigation itself may be warranted. The Memorandum instructs, however, that "prosecutors should not seek a waiver with respect" to such information except in "unusual circumstances." Id. Prosecutors have exercised care when evaluating the need for a waiver for opinion work product or attorney-client communications that were created after the events under investigation and involve self-evaluation activities, and should continue that practice so that companies are not discouraged from engaging in candid self-evaluation and assessing ways to improve corporate governance and compliance. Of course, there will be cases in which even information falling into these categories may be necessary. One example would be a case in which there is strong reason to believe that counsel's advice about the government's current investigation constitutes an obstruction of justice, though undoubtedly there will be others as well. Under the Thompson Memorandum, federal prosecutors retain the discretion in such circumstances to obtain relevant evidence by requesting waivers after the appropriate formal review process instituted by this additional guidance.

[redacted] can give you the details of our proposal, which is set forth below. The proposal has three important elements: 1) the USG may substitute itself as party in any lawsuit against a donor; 2) the litigation would be under the FTCA; and 3) the AG could determine that the provision of such goods (but not services) was a discretionary function under the FTCA.

We are particularly interested in ensuring that any legislative relief from potential civil liability include coverage of commodities. This would protect foreign governments, for example, in a case where someone suffers harm from the use of their donations that may not in all cases conform to all USG safety standards.

SEC. XXX. GIFTS OF GOODS AND SERVICES.

(a) Acceptance and Provision of Goods and Services. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the President may authorize any department or agency of the Government to accept gifts of goods or services from any individual, business, government or other organization and then provide such goods and services to support the response to and recovery from Hurricane Katrina.

(b) Liability.

(1) Upon certification by the Attorney General that gifts of goods or services were provided to the Government by an individual, business, government or other organization to support the response to and recovery from Hurricane Katrina, the United States may substitute itself as party defendant with respect to any third-party claim arising from the provision of such goods or services.

(2) Any third-party claim with respect to which the United States has substituted itself as a party defendant under paragraph (1) shall be subject to and considered under the provisions of Chapter 171 of Title 28, United States Code.

(3) Upon a determination by the Attorney General, the provision of goods shall be considered a discretionary function for the purposes of Section 2680(a) of Title 28, United States Code. Such determination shall be conclusive and not subject to judicial review.

(4) This subsection shall apply to any third-party claim arising from the provision of gifts of goods or services that were accepted by the Government on or after August 25, 2005 from an individual, business, government or other organization to support the response to and recovery from Hurricane Katrina.

(c) Definition. The term "goods" shall include but not be limited to commodities, equipment, supplies, and other material.

SECTIONAL ANALYSIS

In response to the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina there has been an outpouring of generosity by individuals, businesses, governments, and other organizations. Gifts of goods and services from such groups represent a tremendous resource for the Government to use in responding to the aftermath of Katrina. Given the urgency of the situation, the President should have the discretion to authorize departments and agencies to not only accept such gifts but to apply them to response and recovery efforts in a timely manner. Further, the generosity of donors should not be deterred or penalized by subjecting them to potential litigation and claims. This section would allow the Government to take the place of such donors in any litigation arising from the provision of goods or services that the Government has accepted. Claims in which the Government opts to substitute itself for donors would be subject to the provisions of the Federal Tort Claims Act.

Sec. 1 – Short title.

This legislation may be cited as the "Healthcare Emergency Volunteer Protection Act of 2005."

Sec. 2 – Relief to Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

In title __, United States Code, add the following section:

"____. Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

(a) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteers

A healthcare emergency volunteer, as defined in this section, shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency if --

(1) the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the state requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to --

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

(b) Limitation on punitive damages based on actions of healthcare emergency volunteers

(1) General rule

Punitive damages may not be awarded against a healthcare emergency volunteer in an action brought for harm based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an act of such volunteer that constitutes willful or criminal misconduct or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) Construction

Nothing in this section creates or enlarges any cause of action for punitive damages or preempts or supersedes any federal or state law to the extent that such law would further prohibit or limit an award of punitive damages.

(c) Liability of employer or partner of healthcare emergency volunteer

An employer or business partner of a healthcare emergency volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(d) Liability of host or enabling person, entity, or organization

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental entity or a healthcare facility, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a healthcare emergency volunteer to enable such volunteer to render health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(e) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteer for non-economic loss

(1) General rule

In any civil action against a healthcare emergency volunteer based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, the liability of such volunteer for non-economic loss shall be determined in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Amount of liability

(A) Each defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant (determined in accordance with subparagraph (B)) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(B) For purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss allocated to a defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the claimant's harm.

(f) Construction

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in the Volunteer Protection Act, Pub. L. 105-19, 42 U.S.C. 14501-14505, may be entitled to under that Act.

(g) Supplemental Declaration

In the event of a Declared Healthcare Emergency as defined herein, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(1) Temporal effect

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such Declared Healthcare Emergency.
(2) Geographic and other conditions

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that "health care emergency volunteer" as defined herein shall include individuals who are properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a foreign country, under such conditions as the Supplemental Declaration may prescribe.

(h) Definitions

For purposes of this section –

(1) "Declared Healthcare Emergency" means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under 42 U.S.C. 247d; a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with 42 U.S.C. 300hh-11; or an emergency or disaster declaration under 42 U.S.C. 5191 or 42 U.S.C. 5170.

(2) "Healthcare emergency volunteer" means an individual who provides health or medical services or assistance in a location other than his or her usual place of business or practice, without expectation or receipt of compensation for his or her services, in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, provided that such individual is properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a State (as defined herein) or (if and to the extent specified in a Supplemental Declaration under this section) a foreign country.

(3) "Healthcare facility" means, but is not limited to, a hospital, clinic, outpatient facility, or an emergency or mobile services platform or vehicle used for the provision of health or medical services.

(4) "Non-economic loss" means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(5) "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

(6) "Compensation" means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services, but does not include reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 2005
WWW.USDOJ.GOV

AG
(202) 514-2007
TDD (202) 514-1888

STATEMENT OF ATTORNEY GENERAL ALBERTO R. GONZALES ON THE PADILLA DECISION:

"The Department of Justice is pleased that the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals has reaffirmed the President's critical authority to detain enemy combatants who take up arms on behalf of al Qaeda and travel to the United States to kill innocent Americans. As the court noted today, the authority to detain enemy combatants like Jose Padilla plays an important role in protecting American citizens from the very kind of savage attack that took place almost four years ago to the day."

Additional background information:

Padilla Was Closely Associated with Al Qaeda and Trained and Worked Under Their Direction:

- After his release from prison in the United States in the early 1990's, Padilla traveled to Pakistan, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, and Afghanistan, taking the name Abdullah Al Muhajir.
- Padilla met with senior al Qaeda leaders, including Osama bin Laden lieutenant Abu Zubaydah, on several occasions while in Afghanistan and Pakistan in 2001 and 2002.
- At the direction of al Qaeda, Padilla received training from al Qaeda operatives, including how to wire explosive devices. Padilla also conducted research on construction of a uranium-enhanced explosive device at al Qaeda's safehouse in Lahore, Pakistan.
- Padilla discussed with senior al Qaeda operatives his involvement and participation in terrorist operations targeting the United States, including a plan to detonate a "radiological dispersal device" (or "dirty bomb") within the United States as well as other operations involving the detonation of explosive devices in hotel rooms and gas stations.
- Padilla was directed by al Qaeda members to return to the United States to explore and advance the conduct of further attacks against the United States on al Qaeda's behalf.

Multiple Intelligence Sources Separately Confirmed Padilla's Involvement in Planning Future Terrorist Attacks Against the United States with Al Qaeda Leaders. As the Supreme Court said in the unanimous Quirin decision, sustaining the constitutionality of military detention without regard to the combatants' citizenship: "[c]itizens who associate themselves with the military arm of the enemy government, and with its aid, guidance and direction enter this country bent on hostile acts are enemy belligerents within the meaning of the Hague Convention and the law of war."

The Detainment of Padilla by Authorities May Have Prevented the Escalation of His Plan for Further Terrorist Attacks. Padilla, a.k.a. Abdullah al Muhajir, was arrested on May 8, 2002 when he flew from Pakistan to Chicago O'Hare International Airport. That arrest disrupted the exploration of potential terrorist attacks on U.S. soil.

The President Determined that Padilla Poses a Threat to Americans. On Sunday, June 9, 2002, President Bush, acting as Commander in Chief, determined that Padilla is an enemy combatant who poses a serious and continuing threat to the American people and our national security. He was subsequently transferred from the custody of the Justice Department to the control of the Defense Department.

The Court of Appeals Today Held That:

- The President possesses the authority to "detain militarily a citizen of this country who is closely associated with al Qaeda, an entity with which the United States is at war, who took up arms on behalf of the enemy and against our country in a foreign combat zone of that war, and who thereafter traveled to the United States for the avowed purpose of further prosecuting that war on American soil, against American citizens and targets."

- "Padilla unquestionably qualifies as an 'enemy combatant' as that term was defined for purposes of the [Supreme Court's] controlling opinion in Hamdi."

- "Because, like Hamdi, Padilla is an enemy combatant, and because his detention is no less necessary than was Hamdi's in order to prevent his return to the battlefield, the President is authorized by the AUMF [Authorization for Use of Military Force Joint Resolution] to detain Padilla as a fundamental incident to the conduct of war."

- "Because the United States remains engaged in the conflict with al Qaeda in Afghanistan, Padilla's detention has not exceeded in duration that authorized by the AUMF."

- The Supreme Court's reasoning in Hamdi "simply does not admit of a distinction between an enemy combatant captured abroad and detained in the United States, such as Hamdi, and an enemy combatant who escaped capture abroad but was ultimately captured domestically and detained in the United States, such as Padilla."

- "We are convinced, in any event, that the availability of criminal process cannot be determinative of the power to detain, if for no other reason than that criminal prosecution may well not achieve the very purpose for which detention is authorized in the first place-the prevention of return to the field of battle."

DUTCH CITIZEN INDICTED IN TERRORISM CONSPIRACY AGAINST AMERICANS IN IRAQ

WASHINGTON, D.C. - An Iraqi-born Dutch citizen has been indicted by a grand jury in Washington, D.C. for allegedly participating in a conspiracy to attack Americans based in Iraq, Assistant Attorney Alice S. Fisher of the Criminal Division and U.S. Attorney Kenneth L. Wainstein of the District of Columbia announced today. These are the first U.S. criminal charges connected to terrorist activities in Iraq.

The indictment charges Wesam Al Delaema, a/k/a Wesam Khalaf Chayed Delaeme, with six counts: conspiracy to kill U.S. citizens abroad; conspiracy to use a weapon of mass destruction (explosives); conspiracy to maliciously damage or destroy U.S. government property by means of an explosive; possession of a destructive device (explosives) during a crime of violence; conspiracy to possess a destructive device (explosives) during a crime of violence; and teaching or demonstrating the making or use of an explosive with the intent to further a crime of violence. A criminal complaint had previously been filed against Delaema on July 27, 2005, charging four of these offenses.

Delaema, 32, was born in Fallujah, Iraq. He was arrested by Dutch law enforcement authorities on May 2, 2005 and was facing similar charges in that country. Since his arrest, Dutch law enforcement and prosecution authorities have worked cooperatively with the FBI in its investigation of Delaema's alleged terrorist activities. Following the filing of the U.S. criminal complaint against Delaema in July, the United States informed the Dutch authorities of its intention to request Delaema's extradition to face the charges filed here. Shortly thereafter, Dutch authorities announced that Delaema had been transferred into extradition custody in response to the request from the United States. The indictment returned today will now serve as the charges for which the United States will seek Delaema's extradition from the Netherlands.

The indictment alleges that Delaema traveled from the Netherlands to Iraq in October 2003 and met up with a group of co-conspirators calling themselves the "Mujahideen from Fallujah," who declared their intentions to kill Americans in Iraq using explosives. The indictment further alleges that Delaema and his co-conspirators hid explosives in a road in the area of Fallujah, Iraq.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147431

The investigation into this matter was conducted by the FBI's Washington Field Office, with assistance from the Dutch National Police Agency, the National Office of the Public Prosecutor in the Netherlands and the Office of International Affairs in the Criminal Division at the U.S. Department of Justice. The prosecutors handling the case are Justice Department Trial Attorney Gregg N. Sofer of the Counterterrorism Section and Assistant U.S. Attorney Gregg A. Maisel of the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia.

If convicted on the charges filed in the criminal indictment filed today, Delaema faces a maximum sentence of life in prison.

An indictment is merely a formal charge that a defendant violated a criminal law. All defendants are presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

I suggest I be the back up, and we continue to hope that Robert will be able to make it. Let's leave his name on the program, and if he just can't make it, I'll fill in and offer explanation and apologies. I think that if Robert can't make it at the appointed time but could get there a little late, we can have some flexibility to accommodate his schedule - even if I start filling in for him and he arrives, his presence and a few comments would still be terrific.

Luis, with all due respect to Lou, we need to have someone at a higher level who represents Departmental leadership as the speaker. As you can see from the draft agenda attached, this luncheon will follow an executive panel discussion involving the heads of our major operating bureaus, most of whom have confirmed their participation. I think the appropriate persons to follow this type of discussion and talk about the Department's perspective would be the Attorney General (who was invited, but not available) or the Associate or Deputy Attorney General. Additionally, as an aside, the vast majority of attendees are from field offices around the country and are not attorneys. We can discuss at your convenience.

Ted, Anna, Marcus: I am working on determining the Associate's availability for the luncheon. Do we have a draft agenda for the day? Also, do you have a backup speaker (may be Lou Defalaise?) in case we determine that the Associate/Acting Deputy is not available? (I will let you know one way or the other imminently) Thanks.

[DISCUSSION DRAFT]

109TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. _____

To protect volunteers assisting the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. SENSENBRENNER introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To protect volunteers assisting the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Katrina Volunteer Protection Act of 2005''.

SEC. 2. PROTECTION OF VOLUNTEERS.

(a) QUALIFIED IMMUNITY FROM SUIT.—Any person or entity that, in response to harm caused by Hurricane Katrina of 2005, voluntarily, in good faith, and without a preexisting duty or expectation of compensation, renders aid, medical treatment, or rescue assistance to any person, shall not be liable for injuries alleged to have been sustained by such person or entity unless the alleged injuries were caused by willful, wanton, or reckless conduct on the part of the volunteer.

(b) PREEMPTION.—This Act preempts the laws of a State to the the extent such laws are inconsistent with this Act, except that this Act shall not preempt any State law that provides additional protection from liability relating to volunteers.

Here is some language we developed today for transmitting the report--

Obviously, we prepared this before the "errata" sheets. I will confer internally and see whether and what changes we might propose.

And, for your amusement only, here is what might have been ... (do not circulate)

I am also in receipt of a letter from Chairman Principi, dated September 8, 2005, regarding a district court injunction then in effect relating to the Bradley International Airport Air Guard Station in Windsor Locks, Connecticut. Chairman Principi's letter indicates~~states~~ that the Commission did not meet or take any action to modify its report in response to the injunction, but that, during and by virtue of the effectiveness of the injunction, ~~as a result of that injunction,~~ "you should consider the portion of Recommendation 85 * * * that recommends realignment of the Connecticut 103rd Fighter Wing withdrawn from the Commission's report." The chairman's letter further states that "[i]f the court's injunction is later vacated, reversed, stayed, or otherwise withdrawn, it is the intent of the Commission that the entirety of the recommendation be a part of the Commission's report * * * ." On September 9, 2005, the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit granted a stay of the district court's injunction. Accordingly, Recommendation 85 in its entirety is part of the Commission's report, and I approve the Commission's recommendations, including Recommendation 85, in their entirety.

All: Like Neil, I don't quarrel with the idea behind this bill. But apart from its breadth, it's a bad idea to use the term qualified immunity and a worse idea to make the immunity turn on the person's "good faith." QI is a term of art that has a different meaning than what seems intended here, and it would be confusing and serve no purpose to use it as the label for the liability protection this bill provides. "Good faith" is a subjective mental state and thus almost never susceptible to determination at the pleading stage. QI, in the constitutional tort context, used to turn on good faith. It worked badly, because plaintiffs simply alleged bad faith and got past a motion to dismiss and into discovery. Now, thankfully, QI law has been repaired by the SCt and is objective rather than subjective. To reintroduce subjective good/bad faith as the touchstone for immunity is a terrible idea.

The bill we worked up a bill the other day provides liability protection to healthcare emergency volunteers. The revised, or alternative, bill we're now working on would be very similar but would apply to any volunteer providing services in a national emergency, not only to volunteers providing health and medical services.

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

Paul,

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

Peter, Neil: Rajeev is asking us to draft a bill on pandemic vaccine liability, including a compensation program. I've left a message for Rajeev to try to get guidance on what the WH wants such a bill to do (should there be a carve-out to the liability protection, if so who should be able to sue within the carve-out, if it's the US where does the money go, etc.). What I'd like to do is ask Paul Figley to draft something, and then we and OLP and others can review it. Unlike the healthcare emergency volunteer bill, this one will not be simple to draft, since there's no ready model for the liability protection side of it. I think it would be realistic to shoot for getting something to the WH by the end of the week.

Peter, maybe we can talk at or right before or after our 9am meeting on Mon. about the unresolved issues for this bill.

Neil, maybe we can then talk about this at the end of our 230pm meeting re: Katrina legislation.

If you want to reach me to talk about this, I'll be in the office most of the day today.

Thanks,

Both thought that the commercial activity exception probably would not apply to the donation of goods, though both thought that that answer wasn't guaranteed. But both thought that the tortious activity exception probably would apply. So the bottom line is that State is justified in its concern that foreign govts might be subject to suit here if they donate goods. Both thought it would be simple enough to draft an amendment to the FSIA to avoid that result, but understood why State was unwilling to suggest opening up the FSIA on the Hill.

As for providing VPA-like protection in a non-FSIA bill, they pointed out that unless we amend the jurisdictional provisions of the FSIA, the foreign govts will be subject to suit here, even if our liability protection bill means that they're likely to win at the end of the day. Because foreign govts don't like having to defend suits here, Sharon and Rupa questioned whether barring liability under most circumstances but not limiting jurisdiction over them would satisfy them. Fair point, but limiting liability is a lot better than nothing, and I would think that if we proposed a bill relating to jurisdiction over foreign govts, it would take about a nanosecond for everyone to figure out we were effectively trying to amend the FSIA. And we can't very well hide the foreign-govt issue by proposing a bill that strips jurisdiction over suits against all govts, including domestic local ones, because that would be crazy. So I think we're stuck where we left this discussion yesterday -- a section relating to liability of govts for donated goods in our national emergency volunteer bill. I'll circulate same on Mon.

I agree with Jeff's analysis. The perfect shouldn't be the enemy of the good here: liability protection should be enough to satisfy State. Note that State's initial proposal talked of holding USG liable for foreign govt donations under the ftca, not limiting jurisdiction over such claims.

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Peter, Neil: Rajeev is asking us to draft a bill on pandemic vaccine liability, including a compensation program. I've left a message for Rajeev to try to get guidance on what the WH wants such a bill to do (should there be a carve-out to the liability protection, if so who should be able to sue within the carve-out, if it's the US where does the money go, etc.). What I'd like to do is ask Paul Figley to draft something, and then we and OLP and others can review it. Unlike the healthcare emergency volunteer bill, this one will not be simple to draft, since there's no ready model for the liability protection side of it. I think it would be realistic to shoot for getting something to the WH by the end of the week.

Peter, maybe we can talk at or right before or after our 9am meeting on Mon. about the unresolved issues for this bill.

Neil, maybe we can then talk about this at the end of our 230pm meeting re: Katrina legislation.

If you want to reach me to talk about this, I'll be in the office most of the day today.

Thanks,
Jeff

OMB has suggested that we move quickly to draft legislation on the pandemic vaccine issue. Would you be able to put together a package, with a compensation option, in the near future? I'd like to take something to OLA in the near future. Let me know your thoughts. Thanks.

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

Executive Order Amendments to Executive Order 12788 Relating to the Defense Economic Adjustment Program

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, including 10 U.S.C. 2391 and the Defense Economic Adjustment, Diversification, Conversion, and Stabilization Act of 1990, enacted as Division D, section 4001 et seq., of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, Public Law 101-510, and in order to update the Defense Economic Adjustment Program, it is hereby ordered that Executive Order 12788 of January 15, 1992, as amended, is further amended as follows:

Section 1. The text of section 2 of Executive Order 12788 is revised to read as follows: "The Defense Economic Adjustment Program shall (1) assist substantially and seriously affected communities, businesses, and workers from the effects of major Defense base closures, realignments, and Defense contract-related adjustments, and (2) assist State and local governments in preventing the encroachment of civilian communities from impairing the operational utility of military installations."

Sec. 2. (a) The text of section 3(c) is amended by deleting "and communities" and inserting in lieu thereof "communities, and businesses";

(b) The text of section 3(l) is amended by deleting "and" after the semicolon;

(c) The text of section 3(m) is amended by adding "and" after "diminish;" and

(d) A new section 3(n) is added to read: "(n) Encourage resolution of regulatory issues that impede encroachment prevention and local economic adjustment efforts."

Sec. 3. (a) Section 4(a) is amended by: (i) deleting "(19) Director of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency;" (ii) deleting "(21) Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency;" and (iii) renumbering the remaining subsections listing the officials on the Economic Adjustment Committee (the "Committee") accordingly;

(b) The text of section 4(b) is revised to read as follows: "The Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary's designee, shall chair the Committee."; and

(c) The text of section 4(c) is revised to read as follows: "The Secretaries of Labor and Commerce shall serve as Vice Chairmen of the Committee. The Vice Chairmen shall co-chair the Committee in the absence of both the Chairman and the Chairman's designee and may also preside over meetings of designated representatives of the concerned executive agencies."

Sec. 4. This order is not intended to, and does not, create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable by any party at law or in equity against the United States, its departments, agencies, entities, officers, employees, agents, or any other person.

GEORGE W. BUSH

THE WHITE HOUSE,

May 12, 2005.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147488

THE PRESIDENT

EXECUTIVE ORDER 12788 As AMENDED

Defense Economic Adjustment Program

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, including 10 U.S.C. 2391 and the Defense Economic Adjustment, Diversification, Conversion, and Stabilization Act of 1990, enacted as Division D, section 4001 et seq., of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, Public Law 101-510, and to provide coordinated Federal economic adjustment assistance necessitated by changes in Department of Defense activities, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. Function of the Secretary of Defense. The Secretary of Defense shall, through the Economic Adjustment Committee, design and establish a Defense Economic Adjustment Program.

Sec. 2. The Defense Economic Adjustment Program shall (1) assist substantially and seriously affected communities, businesses, and workers from the effects of major Defense base closures, realignments, and Defense contract-related adjustments, and (2) assist State and local governments in preventing the encroachment of civilian communities from impairing the operational utility of military installations.

Sec. 3 Functions of the Defense Economic Adjustment Program. The Defense Adjustment Program shall:

(a) Identify problems of States, regions, metropolitan areas, or communities that result from major Defense base closures, realignments, and Defense contract-related adjustments, and the encroachment of the civilian community on the mission of military installations and that require Federal assistance;

(b) Use and maintain a uniform socioeconomic impact analysis to justify the use of Federal economic adjustment resources prior to particular realignments;

(c) Apply consistent policies, practices, and procedures in the administration of Federal programs that are used to assist Defense-affected States, regions, metropolitan areas, communities, and businesses;

(d) Identify and strengthen existing agency mechanisms to coordinate employment opportunities for displaced agency personnel;

(e) Identify and strengthen existing agency mechanisms to improve reemployment opportunities for dislocated Defense industry personnel;

(f) Assure timely consultation and cooperation with Federal, State, regional, metropolitan, and community officials concerning Defense-related impacts on Defense-affected communities' problems;

(g) Assure coordinated interagency and intergovernmental adjustment assistance concerning Defense impact problems;

(h) Prepare, facilitate, and implement cost-effective strategies and action plans to coordinate interagency and intergovernmental economic adjustment efforts;

(i) Encourage effective Federal, State, regional, metropolitan, and community cooperation and concerted involvement of public interest groups and private sector organizations in Defense economic adjustment activities;

(j) Serve as a clearinghouse to exchange information among Federal, State, regional, metropolitan, and community officials involved in the resolution of community economic adjustment problems. Such information may include, for example, previous studies, technical information, and sources of public and private financing;

(k) Assist in the diversification of local economies to lessen dependence on Defense activities;

(l) Encourage and facilitate private sector interim use of lands and buildings to generate jobs as military activities diminish;

(m) Develop ways to streamline property disposal procedures to enable Defense-impacted communities to acquire base property to generate jobs as military activities diminish; and

(n) Encourage resolution of regulatory issues that impede encroachment prevention and local economic adjustment efforts.

Sec. 4. Economic Adjustment Committee.

(a) Membership. The Economic Adjustment Committee ("Committee") shall be composed of the following individuals or a designated principal deputy of these individuals, and such other individuals from the executive branch as the President may designate. Such individuals shall include the:

(1) Secretary of Agriculture;
(2) Attorney General;
(3) Secretary of Commerce;

(4) Secretary of Defense;
(5) Secretary of Education;
(6) Secretary of Energy;
(7) Secretary of Health and Human Services;
(8) Secretary of Housing and Urban Development;
(9) Secretary of Interior;
(10) Secretary of Labor;
(11) Secretary of State;
(12) Secretary of Transportation;
(13) Secretary of Treasury;
(14) Secretary of Veterans Affairs;
(15) Secretary of Homeland Security;
(16) Chairman, Council of Economic Advisers;
(17) Director of the Office of Management and Budget;
(18) Director of the Office of Personnel Management;
(19) Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency;
(20) Administrator of General Services;
(21) Administrator of the Small Business Administration; and
(22) Postmaster General.

(b) The Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary's designee, shall chair the Committee.

(c) The Secretaries of Labor and Commerce shall serve as Vice Chairmen of the Committee. The Vice Chairmen shall co-chair the Committee in the absence of both the Chairman and the Chairman's designee and may also preside over meetings of designated representatives of the concerned executive agencies.

(d) Executive Director. The head of the Department of Defense's Office of Economic Adjustment shall provide all necessary policy and administrative support for the Committee and shall be responsible for coordinating the application of the Defense Economic Adjustment Program to Department of Defense activities.

(e) Duties. The Committee shall:
(1) Advise, assist, and support the Defense Economic Adjustment Programs;
(2) Develop procedures for ensuring that State, regional, and community officials, and representatives of organized labor in those States, municipalities, localities, or labor organizations that are substantially and seriously affected by changes in Defense expenditures, realignments or closures, or cancellation or curtailment of major Defense contracts, are notified of available Federal economic adjustment programs; and
(3) Report annually to the President and then to the Congress on the work of the Economic Adjustment Committee during the preceding fiscal year.

Sec. 5. Responsibilities of Executive Agencies.

(a) The head of each agency represented on the Committee shall designate an agency representative to:
(1) Serve as a liaison with the Secretary of Defense's economic adjustment staff;
(2) Coordinate agency support and participation in economic adjustment assistance projects; and
(3) Assist in resolving Defense-related impacts on Defense-affected communities.

(b) All executive agencies shall:
(1) Support, to the extent permitted by law, the economic adjustment assistance activities of the Secretary of Defense. Such support may include the use and application of personnel, technical expertise, legal authorities, and available financial resources. This support may be used, to the extent permitted by law, to provide a coordinated Federal response to the needs of individual States, regions, municipalities, and communities adversely affected by necessary Defense changes; and
(2) Afford priority consideration to requests from Defense-affected communities for Federal technical assistance, financial resources, excess or surplus property, or other requirements, that are part of a comprehensive plan used by the Committee.

Sec. 6. Judicial Review. This order shall not be interpreted to create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law by a party against the United States, its agencies, its officers, its agents, or any person.

Sec. 7. Construction. (a) Nothing in this order shall be construed as subjecting any function vested by law in, or assigned pursuant to law to, any agency or head thereof to the authority of any other agency or officer or as abrogating or restricting any such function in any manner.

(b) This order shall be effective immediately and shall supersede Executive Order No 12049.

RESCHEDULED MEETING OF THE PRESIDENT's ECONOMIC ADJUSTMENT COMMITTEE

Monday, October 17, 2005
1:00 – 3:00 p.m.
Horizon Room of the Ronald Reagan Building
1300 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C.
(Federal Triangle Metro Station)

The President's Economic Adjustment Committee (EAC) meeting originally scheduled for August 16 will take place on Monday, October 17 to formally begin its efforts to coordinate Federal interagency support for BRAC 2005.

This initial EAC meeting is a joint session of both Advisory Group members and Working Group members of the 22 Federal Departments and Agencies with specific programs for technical and financial assistance to assist communities, businesses, and/or workers adversely impacted by Department of Defense (DoD) program changes, such as BRAC. The EAC members form the core interagency network for program information exchange, resolution of cross-cutting issues and coordination of defense economic adjustment efforts. Your support and participation in this important effort helps mitigate impacts by ensuring a responsive menu of Federal support for affected communities.

A copy of Executive Order 12788, as amended, that updates the Defense Adjustment Program and the President's Economic Adjustment Committee is attached. Additional information and an agenda for the October 17th EAC meeting will be forthcoming. Please contact OEA [redacted] at [redacted] or by email at [redacted]@wso.whs.mil or [redacted] at [redacted] or by email at [redacted]@wso.whs.mil to confirm your attendance, or if you need further information regarding the EAC or this meeting.

Thank you for your attention to this request. We look forward to your support and participation.

Executive Order Amendments to Executive Order 12788 Relating to the Defense Economic Adjustment Program

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, including 10 U.S.C. 2391 and the Defense Economic Adjustment, Diversification, Conversion, and Stabilization Act of 1990, enacted as Division D, section 4001 et seq., of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, Public Law 101-510, and in order to update the Defense Economic Adjustment Program, it is hereby ordered that Executive Order 12788 of January 15, 1992, as amended, is further amended as follows:

Section 1. The text of section 2 of Executive Order 12788 is revised to read as follows: "The Defense Economic Adjustment Program shall (1) assist substantially and seriously affected communities, businesses, and workers from the effects of major Defense base closures, realignments, and Defense contract-related adjustments, and (2) assist State and local governments in preventing the encroachment of civilian communities from impairing the operational utility of military installations."

Sec. 2. (a) The text of section 3(c) is amended by deleting "and communities" and inserting in lieu thereof "communities, and businesses";

(b) The text of section 3(l) is amended by deleting "and" after the semicolon;

(c) The text of section 3(m) is amended by adding "and" after "diminish;" and

(d) A new section 3(n) is added to read: "(n) Encourage resolution of regulatory issues that impede encroachment prevention and local economic adjustment efforts."

Sec. 3. (a) Section 4(a) is amended by: (i) deleting "(19) Director of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency;" (ii) deleting "(21) Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency;" and (iii) renumbering the remaining subsections listing the officials on the Economic Adjustment Committee (the "Committee") accordingly;

(b) The text of section 4(b) is revised to read as follows: "The Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary's designee, shall chair the Committee."; and

(c) The text of section 4(c) is revised to read as follows: "The Secretaries of Labor and Commerce shall serve as Vice Chairmen of the Committee. The Vice Chairmen shall co-chair the Committee in the absence of both the Chairman and the Chairman's designee and may also preside over meetings of designated representatives of the concerned executive agencies."

Sec. 4. This order is not intended to, and does not, create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable by any party at law or in equity against the United States, its departments, agencies, entities, officers, employees, agents, or any other person.

THE PRESIDENT

EXECUTIVE ORDER 12788 As AMENDED

Defense Economic Adjustment Program

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, including 10 U.S.C. 2391 and the Defense Economic Adjustment, Diversification, Conversion, and Stabilization Act of 1990, enacted as Division D, section 4001 et seq., of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, Public Law 101-510, and to provide coordinated Federal economic adjustment assistance necessitated by changes in Department of Defense activities, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. Function of the Secretary of Defense. The Secretary of Defense shall, through the Economic Adjustment Committee, design and establish a Defense Economic Adjustment Program.

Sec. 2. The Defense Economic Adjustment Program shall (1) assist substantially and seriously affected communities, businesses, and workers from the effects of major Defense base closures, realignments, and Defense contract-related adjustments, and (2) assist State and local governments in preventing the encroachment of civilian communities from impairing the operational utility of military installations.

Sec. 3 Functions of the Defense Economic Adjustment Program. The Defense Adjustment Program shall:

(a) Identify problems of States, regions, metropolitan areas, or communities that result from major Defense base closures, realignments, and Defense contract-related adjustments, and the encroachment of the civilian community on the mission of military installations and that require Federal assistance;

(b) Use and maintain a uniform socioeconomic impact analysis to justify the use of Federal economic adjustment resources prior to particular realignments;

(c) Apply consistent policies, practices, and procedures in the administration of Federal programs that are used to assist Defense-affected States, regions, metropolitan areas, communities, and businesses;

(d) Identify and strengthen existing agency mechanisms to coordinate employment opportunities for displaced agency personnel;

(e) Identify and strengthen existing agency mechanisms to improve reemployment opportunities for dislocated Defense industry personnel;

(f) Assure timely consultation and cooperation with Federal, State, regional, metropolitan, and community officials concerning Defense-related impacts on Defense-affected communities' problems;

(g) Assure coordinated interagency and intergovernmental adjustment assistance concerning Defense impact problems;

(h) Prepare, facilitate, and implement cost-effective strategies and action plans to coordinate interagency and intergovernmental economic adjustment efforts;

(i) Encourage effective Federal, State, regional, metropolitan, and community cooperation and concerted involvement of public interest groups and private sector organizations in Defense economic adjustment activities;

(j) Serve as a clearinghouse to exchange information among Federal, State, regional, metropolitan, and community officials involved in the resolution of community economic adjustment problems. Such information may include, for example, previous studies, technical information, and sources of public and private financing;

(k) Assist in the diversification of local economies to lessen dependence on Defense activities;

(l) Encourage and facilitate private sector interim use of lands and buildings to generate jobs as military activities diminish;

(m) Develop ways to streamline property disposal procedures to enable Defense-impacted communities to acquire base property to generate jobs as military activities diminish; and

(n) Encourage resolution of regulatory issues that impede encroachment prevention and local economic adjustment efforts.

Sec. 4. Economic Adjustment Committee.

(a) Membership. The Economic Adjustment Committee ("Committee") shall be composed of the following individuals or a designated principal deputy of these individuals, and such other individuals from the executive branch as the President may designate. Such individuals shall include the:

(1) Secretary of Agriculture;
(2) Attorney General;
(3) Secretary of Commerce;

(4) Secretary of Defense;
(5) Secretary of Education;
(6) Secretary of Energy;
(7) Secretary of Health and Human Services;
(8) Secretary of Housing and Urban Development;
(9) Secretary of Interior;
(10) Secretary of Labor;
(11) Secretary of State;
(12) Secretary of Transportation;
(13) Secretary of Treasury;
(14) Secretary of Veterans Affairs;
(15) Secretary of Homeland Security;
(16) Chairman, Council of Economic Advisers;
(17) Director of the Office of Management and Budget;
(18) Director of the Office of Personnel Management;
(19) Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency;
(20) Administrator of General Services;
(21) Administrator of the Small Business Administration; and
(22) Postmaster General.

(b) The Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary's designee, shall chair the Committee.

(c) The Secretaries of Labor and Commerce shall serve as Vice Chairmen of the Committee. The Vice Chairmen shall co-chair the Committee in the absence of both the Chairman and the Chairman's designee and may also preside over meetings of designated representatives of the concerned executive agencies.

(d) Executive Director. The head of the Department of Defense's Office of Economic Adjustment shall provide all necessary policy and administrative support for the Committee and shall be responsible for coordinating the application of the Defense Economic Adjustment Program to Department of Defense activities.

(e) Duties. The Committee shall:
(1) Advise, assist, and support the Defense Economic Adjustment Programs;
(2) Develop procedures for ensuring that State, regional, and community officials, and representatives of organized labor in those States, municipalities, localities, or labor organizations that are substantially and seriously affected by changes in Defense expenditures, realignments or closures, or cancellation or curtailment of major Defense contracts, are notified of available Federal economic adjustment programs; and
(3) Report annually to the President and then to the Congress on the work of the Economic Adjustment Committee during the preceding fiscal year.

Sec. 5. Responsibilities of Executive Agencies.

(a) The head of each agency represented on the Committee shall designate an agency representative to:
(1) Serve as a liaison with the Secretary of Defense's economic adjustment staff;
(2) Coordinate agency support and participation in economic adjustment assistance projects; and
(3) Assist in resolving Defense-related impacts on Defense-affected communities.

(b) All executive agencies shall:
(1) Support, to the extent permitted by law, the economic adjustment assistance activities of the Secretary of Defense. Such support may include the use and application of personnel, technical expertise, legal authorities, and available financial resources. This support may be used, to the extent permitted by law, to provide a coordinated Federal response to the needs of individual States, regions, municipalities, and communities adversely affected by necessary Defense changes; and
(2) Afford priority consideration to requests from Defense-affected communities for Federal technical assistance, financial resources, excess or surplus property, or other requirements, that are part of a comprehensive plan used by the Committee.

Sec. 6. Judicial Review. This order shall not be interpreted to create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law by a party against the United States, its agencies, its officers, its agents, or any person.

Sec. 7. Construction. (a) Nothing in this order shall be construed as subjecting any function vested by law in, or assigned pursuant to law to, any agency or head thereof to the authority of any other agency or officer or as abrogating or restricting any such function in any manner.

(b) This order shall be effective immediately and shall supersede Executive Order No 12049.

We seem to have consensus with State and I expect us to turn something around by tomorrow representing our shared views. I have a message this morning from OPM expressing interest in this area as well and I intend to invite them to our conf call this afternoon and hope to work them into the effort. Will keep you apprised.

Rajeev - we did send a bill to omb last week. Marc Kesselman PDGC there liked it but said State and others were working on similar bills and asked me to coordinate efforts. Jeff and I met with State Friday and will do so again Monday. We hope to have a revised bill representing our joint recommendation by Tuesday.

For timing purposes, DOJ is putting this provision into final legislative form with a section-by-section analysis. We hope to submit it to OMB by COB today after a very short internal circulation.

We have already provided to OMB (last night) a package of Katrina related proposals on other subjects.

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

Paul,

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

What say you about my accepting this invitation and attending this event. I am very much inclined to do so whether or not DOJ issues the additional guidance memo that has been drafted and is being circulated. Even though it is off "the record", it will become and be public info, certainly if we have issued the guidance memo. Thoughts, caveats, vetoes? Robt.

Robert- We had such a good time visiting at lunch last week that I forgot one of my main duties. The National Center for State Courts was founded by Congress at the urging of Chief Justice Berger to assure greater performace of the state court system. The general counsel committee of the Center is comprised of Fortune 150 GCs who gather with the Chiefs of the States Courts annually to discuss developments within the administration of justice. As you will see from the attachments, a major program to be presented to the Chiefs and the GCs this year is on the Privilege. The Center would very much like for you to be on the program at the place indicated. The program will be the morning of Friday, October 28 and will be off the record. I hope that you are able to join us. Best[redacted]

The next meeting of the General Counsel Committee of the National Center for State Courts (NCSC) will be held on Thursday, October 27, 3:00-4:30pm at the Willard InterContinental Hotel in Washington, D.C. You are also invited to attend the NCSC's Justice Roundtable with the state chief justices on Friday, October 28 (9:00-11:30am). Preliminary agendas are attached for your review and comment. A copy of the May 2005 minutes is also attached.

At the General Counsel Committee meeting, we will once again be meeting with leaders of the nation's judicial policy-making body, the Conference of Chief Justices, to discuss ways to improve the quality of the administration of justice in our state courts. We will also consider how we can collaborate with the NCSC's International Program to advance the rule of law and identify next steps in our constituency-building effort for state courts. A report on the NCSC's Civil Justice Reform Initiative will be followed by an expanded discussion with the chief justices on critical issues facing the state justice system.

This year's Justice Roundtable has been designed to advance the policy debate and recommend action (s) to preserve the attorney-client privilege and work product doctrine in today's enforcement and regulatory climate.
The topic selection, Attorney-Client Privilege: Preserving Essential Principles, responds to suggestions of both the General Counsel Committee and the Professionalism and Competency of the Bar Committee of the Conference of Chief Justices.

In addition to these meetings, you are also invited to attend the William H. Rehnquist Award Dinner at the U. S. Supreme Court on Thursday evening, October 27 and the NCSC's Annual Luncheon at noon on Friday, October 28. Your invitations to these events will be mailed in September.

These are important opportunities to exchange information and insights with the chief justices and other leaders of the NCSC on issues of mutual significance to business and the courts. We look forward to your participation in the October meetings.

NCSC Justice Roundtable 2005
October 28, 2005 9:00 – 11:30 am (continental breakfast at 8:30 am)
Willard Intercontinental Hotel, Washington, D.C.

Attorney-Client Privilege: Preserving Essential Principles

Host: Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard, Chair, NCSC Board of Directors and President of the Conference of Chief Justices
Moderator: Mary McQueen, NCSC President

Panel: ABA Task Force and liaison (Ide, Fricklas)
Law professor (Saltzburg-GW, Rice-AU, Green-Fordham)
GC—Big Four accounting firm
DOJ (Robert McCallum) or SEC (Linda Thompsen, Giovanni Prezioso)
Plaintiffs' perspective (Larry Stewart)

I. Why the privilege is important

Policy and practical reasons for attorney-client privilege
Policy and practical reasons fostering erosion of attorney-client privilege
The sanctity of the privilege vs. need for the information

II. Today's enforcement / regulatory / litigation climate: questions of privilege and waiver

Requests for waiver by the government in criminal or regulatory actions
Requests for waiver by auditors
Effects of waiver as to third parties in civil litigation
Is waiver under pressure a voluntary waiver for all purposes?
What is the role of waiver in civil litigation?

III. What actions should courts / state court leaders / NCSC take to address these issues?

States' role to regulate the legal profession
Are rules of professional conduct arcane?
Possible actions— Judicial education
Develop template for model rules of evidence and discovery
Change lawyers' professional code of conduct
Federal: legislation, rules of evidence

If not, I'm happy to distribute the memo out this afternoon inviting comments to you and me. In this distribution, I think we should include McNulty, Christie, Immergut, Tenpas, Garcia, and Murphy, as well as current head of corp fraud task force, with a cc to Battle, Buchanan, Fisher, and Mercer (we've already sent the memo to these folks). Is there anyone else whose views you want to solicit? I suggest we ask for any further comments by the end of this week.

Subject:	RE: healthcare worker liability

Thanks Neil! As I mentioned I would do on Friday, I raised this issue with the GCs hurricane working group, and a few of them expressed that they may reach out to you today. Everyone seemed on board with the concept, they just had a few ideas about potential additional classes of people whom they want covered. I let them know that this was on a very fast track, and that we were doing our best to wrap this up by COB today or early Tuesday at the latest. I am happy to get involved as you think would be most appropriate, and really appreciate your taking the point on this.

I am about to send the draft to a couple of GCs who hadn't yet seen the draft language. Is there a more recent version that would be most helpful to share?

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

Sec. 1 – Short title.

This legislation may be cited as the "Healthcare Emergency Volunteer Protection Act of 2005."

Sec. 2 – Relief to Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

In title __, United States Code, add the following section:

"____. Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

(a) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteers

A healthcare emergency volunteer, as defined in this section, shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency if --

(1) the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the state requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to --

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

(b) Limitation on punitive damages based on actions of healthcare emergency volunteers

(1) General rule

Punitive damages may not be awarded against a healthcare emergency volunteer in an action brought for harm based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an act of such volunteer that constitutes willful or criminal misconduct or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) Construction

Nothing in this section creates or enlarges any cause of action for punitive damages or preempts or supersedes any federal or state law to the extent that such law would further prohibit or limit an award of punitive damages.

(c) Liability of employer or partner of healthcare emergency volunteer

An employer or business partner of a healthcare emergency volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(d) Liability of host or enabling person, entity, or organization

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental entity or a healthcare facility, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a healthcare emergency volunteer to enable such volunteer to render health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(e) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteer for non-economic loss

(1) General rule

In any civil action against a healthcare emergency volunteer based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, the liability of such volunteer for non-economic loss shall be determined in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Amount of liability

(A) Each defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant (determined in accordance with subparagraph (B)) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(B) For purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss allocated to a defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the claimant's harm.

(f) Construction

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in the Volunteer Protection Act, Pub. L. 105-19, 42 U.S.C. 14501-14505, may be entitled to under that Act.

(g) Supplemental Declaration

In the event of a Declared Healthcare Emergency as defined herein, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(1) Temporal effect

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such Declared Healthcare Emergency.
(2) Geographic and other conditions

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that "health care emergency volunteer" as defined herein shall include individuals who are properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a foreign country, under such conditions as the Supplemental Declaration may prescribe.

(h) Definitions

For purposes of this section –

(1) "Declared Healthcare Emergency" means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under 42 U.S.C. 247d; a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with 42 U.S.C. 300hh-11; or an emergency or disaster declaration under 42 U.S.C. 5191 or 42 U.S.C. 5170.

(2) "Healthcare emergency volunteer" means an individual who provides medical services or assistance in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, in a location other than his or her usual place of business or practice and without expectation or receipt of compensation for such services or assistance, provided that such individual is properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a State (as defined herein) or (if and to the extent specified in a Supplemental Declaration under this section) a foreign country.

(3) "Healthcare facility" means, but is not limited to, a hospital, clinic, outpatient facility, or an emergency or mobile services platform or vehicle used for the provision of health or medical services.

(4) "Non-economic loss" means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(5) "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

(6) "Compensation" means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services, but does not include reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual.

Thanks Neil! As I mentioned I would do on Friday, I raised this issue with the GCs hurricane working group, and a few of them expressed that they may reach out to you today. Everyone seemed on board with the concept, they just had a few ideas about potential additional classes of people whom they want covered. I let them know that this was on a very fast track, and that we were doing our best to wrap this up by COB today or early Tuesday at the latest. I am happy to get involved as you think would be most appropriate, and really appreciate your taking the point on this.

I am about to send the draft to a couple of GCs who hadn't yet seen the draft language. Is there a more recent version that would be most helpful to share?

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section"

Sec. 1 – Short title.

This legislation may be cited as the "Healthcare Emergency Volunteer Protection Act of 2005."

Sec. 2 – Relief to Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

In title __, United States Code, add the following section:

"____. Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

(a) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteers

A healthcare emergency volunteer, as defined in this section, shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency if --

(1) the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the state requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to --

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

(b) Limitation on punitive damages based on actions of healthcare emergency volunteers

(1) General rule

Punitive damages may not be awarded against a healthcare emergency volunteer in an action brought for harm based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an act of such volunteer that constitutes willful or criminal misconduct or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) Construction

Nothing in this section creates or enlarges any cause of action for punitive damages or preempts or supersedes any federal or state law to the extent that such law would further prohibit or limit an award of punitive damages.

(c) Liability of employer or partner of healthcare emergency volunteer

An employer or business partner of a healthcare emergency volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(d) Liability of host or enabling person, entity, or organization

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental entity or a healthcare facility, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a healthcare emergency volunteer to enable such volunteer to render health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(e) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteer for non-economic loss

(1) General rule

In any civil action against a healthcare emergency volunteer based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, the liability of such volunteer for non-economic loss shall be determined in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Amount of liability

(A) Each defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant (determined in accordance with subparagraph (B)) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(B) For purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss allocated to a defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the claimant's harm.

(f) Construction

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in the Volunteer Protection Act, Pub. L. 105-19, 42 U.S.C. 14501-14505, may be entitled to under that Act.

(g) Supplemental Declaration

In the event of a Declared Healthcare Emergency as defined herein, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(1) Temporal effect

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such Declared Healthcare Emergency.
(2) Geographic and other conditions

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that "health care emergency volunteer" as defined herein shall include individuals who are properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a foreign country, under such conditions as the Supplemental Declaration may prescribe.

(h) Definitions

For purposes of this section –

(1) "Declared Healthcare Emergency" means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under 42 U.S.C. 247d; a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with 42 U.S.C. 300hh-11; or an emergency or disaster declaration under 42 U.S.C. 5191 or 42 U.S.C. 5170.

(2) "Healthcare emergency volunteer" means an individual who provides medical services or assistance in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, in a location other than his or her usual place of business or practice and without expectation or receipt of compensation for such services or assistance, provided that such individual is properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a State (as defined herein) or (if and to the extent specified in a Supplemental Declaration under this section) a foreign country.

(3) "Healthcare facility" means, but is not limited to, a hospital, clinic, outpatient facility, or an emergency or mobile services platform or vehicle used for the provision of health or medical services.

(4) "Non-economic loss" means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(5) "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

(6) "Compensation" means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services, but does not include reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual.

Mark, The draft is attached but we are in the process of expanding it to cover (a) all volunteers, not just healthcare volunteers, though the structure of the bill will remain the same, as well as (b) govt employees (whether foreign or domestic). We have a call scheduled for 2:30 with State to discuss these changes further. If you or your designee would like to participate, we'd be glad to have you. NMG

Sec. 1 – Short title.

This legislation may be cited as the "Healthcare Emergency Volunteer Protection Act of 2005."

Sec. 2 – Relief to Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

In title __, United States Code, add the following section:

"____. Healthcare Emergency Volunteers

(a) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteers

A healthcare emergency volunteer, as defined in this section, shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency if --

(1) the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the state requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to --

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

(b) Limitation on punitive damages based on actions of healthcare emergency volunteers

(1) General rule

Punitive damages may not be awarded against a healthcare emergency volunteer in an action brought for harm based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an act of such volunteer that constitutes willful or criminal misconduct or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) Construction

Nothing in this section creates or enlarges any cause of action for punitive damages or preempts or supersedes any federal or state law to the extent that such law would further prohibit or limit an award of punitive damages.

(c) Liability of employer or partner of healthcare emergency volunteer

An employer or business partner of a healthcare emergency volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(d) Liability of host or enabling person, entity, or organization

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental entity or a healthcare facility, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a healthcare emergency volunteer to enable such volunteer to render health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency.

(e) Liability of healthcare emergency volunteer for non-economic loss

(1) General rule

In any civil action against a healthcare emergency volunteer based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of health or medical services in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, the liability of such volunteer for non-economic loss shall be determined in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Amount of liability

(A) Each defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant (determined in accordance with subparagraph (B)) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(B) For purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss allocated to a defendant who is a healthcare emergency volunteer under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the claimant's harm.

(f) Construction

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in the Volunteer Protection Act, Pub. L. 105-19, 42 U.S.C. 14501-14505, may be entitled to under that Act.

(g) Supplemental Declaration

In the event of a Declared Healthcare Emergency as defined herein, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(1) Temporal effect

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such Declared Healthcare Emergency.
(2) Geographic and other conditions

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Healthcare Emergency shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that "health care emergency volunteer" as defined herein shall include individuals who are properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a foreign country, under such conditions as the Supplemental Declaration may prescribe.

(h) Definitions

For purposes of this section –

(1) "Declared Healthcare Emergency" means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under 42 U.S.C. 247d; a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with 42 U.S.C. 300hh-11; or an emergency or disaster declaration under 42 U.S.C. 5191 or 42 U.S.C. 5170.

(2) "Healthcare emergency volunteer" means an individual who provides medical services or assistance in connection with a Declared Healthcare Emergency, in a location other than his or her usual place of business or practice and without expectation or receipt of compensation for such services or assistance, provided that such individual is properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide health or medical services by the appropriate authorities of a State (as defined herein) or (if and to the extent specified in a Supplemental Declaration under this section) a foreign country.

(3) "Healthcare facility" means, but is not limited to, a hospital, clinic, outpatient facility, or an emergency or mobile services platform or vehicle used for the provision of health or medical services.

(4) "Non-economic loss" means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(5) "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

(6) "Compensation" means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services, but does not include reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual.

[redacted] - Here's our current draft. HSC approved a version of this last year, but our new proposal reaches a bit further in (a) protecting healthcare emergency volunteers from liability for gross negligence, and (b) providing that foreign volunteers could be protected under certain circumstances, subject to regulatory control. HSC didn't consider either of these two issues last year, and they now support our approach in both respects. NMG

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

Paul,

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

Rajeev - we did send a bill to omb last week. Marc Kesselman PDGC there liked it but said State and others were working on similar bills and asked me to coordinate efforts. Jeff and I met with State Friday and will do so again Monday. We hope to have a revised bill representing our joint recommendation by Tuesday.

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

What Neil says is right. In addition to foreign govts, which was State's specific concern, domestic state and local govt employees aren't covered by the FTCA either. Our healthcare emergency volunteer bill provides additional protection beyond the VPA in a few respects. One, as Neil says, is raising (or lowering) the threshold for non-protected conduct from gross negligence to reckless misconduct. Another is abrogating the vicarious liability of the volunteer's employer or business partner. A third is covering the volunteer even if his or her professional license is in a state other than the one where he or she provides volunteer services. All three of these issues apply to non-healthcare volunteers, though perhaps with a bit less force (e.g., the question of what state the volunteer is credentialed in is irrelevant if the volunteer isn't providing services for which professional credentials are needed).

Rajeev - we did send a bill to omb last week. Marc Kesselman PDGC there liked it but said State and others were working on similar bills and asked me to coordinate efforts. Jeff and I met with State Friday and will do so again Monday. We hope to have a revised bill representing our joint recommendation by Tuesday.

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Please let me know if I can provide you with any additional background information. Thanks.

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

Understood and I appreciate the clarification. However, while countless healthcare providers have cited liability as an impediment to providing volunteer health/medical services, I have not heard similar concerns expressed on behalf of non-health/medical volunteers (they may exist, but I am just unaware).

WRT S/L employees, wouldn't they be covered by the VPA if the are performing services at the behest of an organization (e.g., S/L govt)?

As for vicarious liability coverage, I think it is one of the most essential provisions in the DOJ healthcare volunteer proposal. That said, I am concerned that expanding this protection to all institutions in which all volunteers provide all services could make this an impossible pill for Congress to swallow.

In any case, I look forward to seeing both versions. Thanks.

What Neil says is right. In addition to foreign govts, which was State's specific concern, domestic state and local govt employees aren't covered by the FTCA either. Our healthcare emergency volunteer bill provides additional protection beyond the VPA in a few respects. One, as Neil says, is raising (or lowering) the threshold for non-protected conduct from gross negligence to reckless misconduct. Another is abrogating the vicarious liability of the volunteer's employer or business partner. A third is covering the volunteer even if his or her professional license is in a state other than the one where he or she provides volunteer services. All three of these issues apply to non-healthcare volunteers, though perhaps with a bit less force (e.g., the question of what state the volunteer is credentialed in is irrelevant if the volunteer isn't providing services for which professional credentials are needed).

Rajeev - (1) USG empees are covered by FTCA, but foreign govt workers remain exposed to liability, something State is concerned about and has asked us to address. (2) Non-healthcare volunteers are currently immunized only for negligence, not gross negligence. The line between the two, however, is very fine and often simple to plead around. Our thought was to raise the bar for all volunteers, creating liability only for willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct. Jeff may have more to add. NMG

Thanks Neil! As I mentioned I would do on Friday, I raised this issue with the GCs hurricane working group, and a few of them expressed that they may reach out to you today. Everyone seemed on board with the concept, they just had a few ideas about potential additional classes of people whom they want covered. I let them know that this was on a very fast track, and that we were doing our best to wrap this up by COB today or early Tuesday at the latest. I am happy to get involved as you think would be most appropriate, and really appreciate your taking the point on this.

I am about to send the draft to a couple of GCs who hadn't yet seen the draft language. Is there a more recent version that would be most helpful to share?

Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Yes, state and local (US) govt employees would be covered by the VPA if they perform their volunteer services within the scope of their responsibilities in the state or local govt and if they satisfied the other conditions of the VPA -- e.g., licensing in the state in which they provide services, if licensing is appropriate and required. This licensing provision may be most obviously a concern for healthcare volunteers, but it may also apply to other categories of volunteers. The VPA is useless to any volunteer who provides services for which some kind of licensing, certification, or authorization by a state is "appropriate," if the volunteer acts outside his or her home (or otherwise licensed) state.

Rajeev - (1) USG empees are covered by FTCA, but foreign govt workers remain exposed to liability, something State is concerned about and has asked us to address. (2) Non-healthcare volunteers are currently immunized only for negligence, not gross negligence. The line between the two, however, is very fine and often simple to plead around. Our thought was to raise the bar for all volunteers, creating liability only for willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct. Jeff may have more to add. NMG

Thanks Neil! As I mentioned I would do on Friday, I raised this issue with the GCs hurricane working group, and a few of them expressed that they may reach out to you today. Everyone seemed on board with the concept, they just had a few ideas about potential additional classes of people whom they want covered. I let them know that this was on a very fast track, and that we were doing our best to wrap this up by COB today or early Tuesday at the latest. I am happy to get involved as you think would be most appropriate, and really appreciate your taking the point on this.

Chris,

As the events of the past week unfolded, it once again became clear that we need to address the issue of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the of liability of volunteer healthcare providers, and that this might be an opportune time to take it to the Hill. I ran a working group on the subject last year, and we took an option of amendment of the Volunteer Protection Act all the way to Deputies and received approval. There was a desire to fold it into the MedMal legislation, and not much happened after that.

DOJ was extremely helpful in the original assessment of this issue, and provided legislative language to address the problem at that time. I contacted them today and asked them to update documents that they had prepared in Nov 2004, and they provided the attached revision.

DOJ just informed me that they plan to formally submit this to OLA tomorrow to be considered as part of a broader legislative package. I will leave it to them to officially transmit that language, but I wanted you to know that this approach has already been vetted by the HSC Deputies Committee, and we fully support it. Rajeev,

I think the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document is a sound approach and would resolve many of the problems we have had this week. In the attached version I have added two passages, neither of which is essential but might prove helpful later on.

The first change is to add the bolded language in paragraph (a):

the volunteer is properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities of some jurisdiction (including foreign countries) to provide such healthcare.

This is consistent with the discussions we had last year that a Canadian doctor who helped out at 9/11 should receive the same protection as a Massachusetts doctor. Explicitly mentioning foreign countries may make it easier to recruit foreign health care volunteers.

The second change is to add the bolded language in the next sentence:

Subsection (b) of section 3 and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter (42 U.S.C. § § 14502(b) and 14503(c) and (d)) shall not apply to any claim arising from acts of a volunteer as defined herein.

This change addresses the opt-out language of the VPA. 42 U.S.C. § 14502(b) provides that the VPA's protections do not apply if a state has specifically elected to make the VPA inapplicable. This change would remove the opt-out option for declared national emergencies. We have researched Louisiana or Mississippi law on the issue, and it does not appear that either has enacted such legislation. It would probably expedite relief efforts in future catatrosphes if the opt-out question were taken off the table. I don't know whether the issue is worth including in emergency legislation.

One other small matter. The "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document contains the language, "for purposes of chapter 139 of title 42, United States Code (popularly known as the "Volunteer Protection Act"), ... and subsections (c) and (d) of section 4 of such chapter ...." I have not found the reference that section 4 is Section 14503; but, relying on it I have referred to the previous section (14502) as "section 3."

Please call if I can be of further assistance.

Paul,

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

Understood and I appreciate the clarification. However, while countless healthcare providers have cited liability as an impediment to providing volunteer health/medical services, I have not heard similar concerns expressed on behalf of non-health/medical volunteers (they may exist, but I am just unaware).

WRT S/L employees, wouldn't they be covered by the VPA if the are performing services at the behest of an organization (e.g., S/L govt)?

As for vicarious liability coverage, I think it is one of the most essential provisions in the DOJ healthcare volunteer proposal. That said, I am concerned that expanding this protection to all institutions in which all volunteers provide all services could make this an impossible pill for Congress to swallow.

In any case, I look forward to seeing both versions. Thanks.

What Neil says is right. In addition to foreign govts, which was State's specific concern, domestic state and local govt employees aren't covered by the FTCA either. Our healthcare emergency volunteer bill provides additional protection beyond the VPA in a few respects. One, as Neil says, is raising (or lowering) the threshold for non-protected conduct from gross negligence to reckless misconduct. Another is abrogating the vicarious liability of the volunteer's employer or business partner. A third is covering the volunteer even if his or her professional license is in a state other than the one where he or she provides volunteer services. All three of these issues apply to non-healthcare volunteers, though perhaps with a bit less force (e.g., the question of what state the volunteer is credentialed in is irrelevant if the volunteer isn't providing services for which professional credentials are needed).

Subject: healthcare worker liability

Paul,

I hesitate to ask for assistance again, but you're the right person. In light of Katrina, I'm interested in proposing liability protection for volunteer healthcare workers again. I've attached three documents that you've sent me in the past. The "VPA document" was sent in November, and the other two in December, 2004. Could you take a look and let me know what you recommend that we use for draft VPA amendment language, with any changes that you think are appropriate.? If the freestanding amendment is still a reasonable approach, any edits to the "Emergency Health Freestanding Section" document would also be appreciated. Thanks in advance for your help.

Sec. 1 – Short title.

This legislation may be cited as the "Disaster Response Volunteer Protection Act of 2005."

Sec. 2 – Relief to Disaster Response Volunteers

In title __, United States Code, add the following section:

"____. Disaster Response Volunteers

(a) Liability of disaster response volunteers

A disaster response volunteer, as defined in this section, shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of disaster response services in connection with a Declared Disaster if --

(1) the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the state requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to --

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

(b) Limitation on punitive damages based on actions of disaster response volunteers

(1) General rule

Punitive damages may not be awarded against a disaster response volunteer in an action brought for harm based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of such volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of disaster response services in connection with a Declared Disaster, unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an act of such volunteer that constitutes willful or criminal misconduct or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) Construction

Nothing in this section creates or enlarges any cause of action for punitive damages or preempts or supersedes any federal or state law to the extent that such law would further prohibit or limit an award of punitive damages.

(c) Liability of employer or partner of disaster response volunteer

An employer or business partner of a disaster response volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of disaster response services in connection with a Declared Disaster.

(d) Liability of host or enabling person, entity, or organization

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental entity, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a disaster response volunteer to enable such volunteer to render disaster response services in connection with a Declared Disaster shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of disaster response services in connection with a Declared Disaster.

(e) Liability of disaster response volunteer for non-economic loss

(1) General rule

In any civil action against a disaster response volunteer based on an act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the volunteer's aiding or facilitating the provision of disaster response services in connection with a Declared Disaster, the liability of such volunteer for non-economic loss shall be determined in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Amount of liability

(A) Each defendant who is a disaster response volunteer shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant (determined in accordance with subparagraph (B)) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(B) For purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss allocated to a defendant who is a disaster response volunteer under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the claimant's harm.

(f) Construction

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in the Volunteer Protection Act, Pub. L. 105-19, 42 U.S.C. 14501-14505, may be entitled to under that Act.

(g) Supplemental Declaration

In the event of a Declared Disaster as defined herein, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(1) Temporal effect

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Disaster shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such Declared Disaster shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such Declared Disaster.

(2) Geographic and other conditions

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Disaster shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that "disaster response volunteer" as defined herein shall include individuals who are properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide relevant disaster response services by the appropriate authorities of a foreign country, under such conditions as the Supplemental Declaration may prescribe.

(h) Definitions

For purposes of this section –

(1) "Declared Disaster" means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under 42 U.S.C. 247d; a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with 42 U.S.C. 300hh-11; or an emergency or disaster declaration under 42 U.S.C. 5191 or 42 U.S.C. 5170.

(2) "Disaster response volunteer" means an individual who provides disaster response services or assistance in connection with a Declared Disaster, in a location other than his or her usual place of business or practice and without expectation or receipt of compensation for such services or assistance, provided that, if appropriate or required, such individual is properly licensed, certified, or authorized to provide the relevant services or assistance by the appropriate authorities of a State (as defined herein) or (if and to the extent specified in a Supplemental Declaration under this section) a foreign country.

(3) "Disaster response services or assistance" means services or assistance provided in preparation for, response to, or recovery from a Declared Disaster, including but not limited to health, medical, firefighting, ___, ____, and any other services or assistance specified by a Supplemental Declaration under this section as necessary or desirable to prepare for, respond to, or recover from such Declared Disaster.

(4) "Non-economic loss" means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(5) "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

(6) "Compensation" means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services, but does not include reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual.

Sec. 3 – Relief to Governmental Entities for Donations of Disaster Response Goods

In title __, United States code, add the following section:

"___. Government Donations of Disaster Response Goods

(a) Liability of governmental entities for donations of disaster response goods

A governmental entity that donates to an agency or instrumentality of the United States disaster response goods in connection with a Declared Disaster shall not be liable for harm caused by such donated goods if the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the goods.

(b) Limitation of governmental entity liability for punitive damages based on donations of disaster response goods

(1) General rule

Punitive damages may not be awarded against a governmental entity in an action brought for harm caused by disaster response goods donated by such governmental entity to an agency or instrumentality of the United States in connection with a Declared Disaster, unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an act of such governmental entity that constitutes willful or criminal misconduct or conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) Construction

Nothing in this section creates or enlarges any cause of action for punitive damages or preempts or supersedes any federal or state law to the extent that such law would further prohibit or limit an award of punitive damages.

(c) Liability of governmental entity for non-economic loss based on donation of disaster response goods

(1) General rule

In any civil action against a governmental entity brought for harm caused by disaster response goods donated by such governmental entity to an agency or instrumentality of the United States in connection with a Declared Disaster, the liability of such governmental entity for non-economic loss shall be determined in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Amount of liability

(A) Each defendant that is a governmental entity shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant (determined in accordance with subparagraph (B)) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(B) For purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss allocated to a defendant that is a governmental entity under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the claimant's harm.

(d) Construction

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that any governmental entity may be entitled to under any other provision of law.

(e) Supplemental Declaration

In the event of a Declared Disaster as defined herein, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(1) Temporal effect

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Disaster shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such Declared Disaster shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such Declared Disaster.

(2) Geographic and other conditions

Such Supplemental Declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such Declared Disaster shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that "disaster response goods" as defined herein shall include goods that it is necessary or appropriate to accept from a foreign governmental entity, under such conditions as the Supplemental Declaration may prescribe.

(f) Definitions

For purposes of this section –

(1) "Declared Disaster" means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under 42 U.S.C. 247d; a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with 42 U.S.C. 300hh-11; or an emergency or disaster declaration under 42 U.S.C. 5191 or 42 U.S.C. 5170.

(2) "Disaster response goods" means goods provided in preparation for, response to, or recovery from a Declared Disaster and reasonably necessary to such preparation, response, or recovery, as defined more fully, if applicable, by a Supplemental Declaration under this section.

(3) "Non-economic loss" means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

[need to define "governmental entity" or "donate"?]

What say you about my accepting this invitation and attending this event. I am very much inclined to do so whether or not DOJ issues the additional guidance memo that has been drafted and is being circulated. Even though it is off "the record", it will become and be public info, certainly if we have issued the guidance memo. Thoughts, caveats, vetoes? Robt.

Robert- We had such a good time visiting at lunch last week that I forgot one of my main duties. The National Center for State Courts was founded by Congress at the urging of Chief Justice Berger to assure greater performace of the state court system. The general counsel committee of the Center is comprised of Fortune 150 GCs who gather with the Chiefs of the States Courts annually to discuss developments within the administration of justice. As you will see from the attachments, a major program to be presented to the Chiefs and the GCs this year is on the Privilege. The Center would very much like for you to be on the program at the place indicated. The program will be the morning of Friday, October 28 and will be off the record. I hope that you are able to join us. Best [redacted]

From [redacted]

The next meeting of the General Counsel Committee of the National Center for State Courts (NCSC) will be held on Thursday, October 27, 3:00-4:30pm at the Willard InterContinental Hotel in Washington, D.C. You are also invited to attend the NCSC's Justice Roundtable with the state chief justices on Friday, October 28 (9:00-11:30am). Preliminary agendas are attached for your review and comment. A copy of the May 2005 minutes is also attached.

At the General Counsel Committee meeting, we will once again be meeting with leaders of the nation's judicial policy-making body, the Conference of Chief Justices, to discuss ways to improve the quality of the administration of justice in our state courts. We will also consider how we can collaborate with the NCSC's International Program to advance the rule of law and identify next steps in our constituency-building effort for state courts. A report on the NCSC's Civil Justice Reform Initiative will be followed by an expanded discussion with the chief justices on critical issues facing the state justice system.

This year's Justice Roundtable has been designed to advance the policy debate and recommend action (s) to preserve the attorney-client privilege and work product doctrine in today's enforcement and regulatory climate.
The topic selection, Attorney-Client Privilege: Preserving Essential Principles, responds to suggestions of both the General Counsel Committee and the Professionalism and Competency of the Bar Committee of the Conference of Chief Justices.

In addition to these meetings, you are also invited to attend the William H. Rehnquist Award Dinner at the U. S. Supreme Court on Thursday evening, October 27 and the NCSC's Annual Luncheon at noon on Friday, October 28. Your invitations to these events will be mailed in September.

These are important opportunities to exchange information and insights with the chief justices and other leaders of the NCSC on issues of mutual significance to business and the courts. We look forward to your participation in the October meetings.

Hi Neil!

Yes, you have been assigned a mentee for this coming year although I'm not sure who your mentee is as TSA has graciously taken the role of matching mentors and mentees. [redacted] will be sending out the name of your mentee to you later this week (there is a TSA meeting tonight and then they will distribute the names). I'm sorry for any confusion and I hope that you're able to join us all for the kick-off event on the evening of the 22nd. Thank you once again for your willingness to serve as a mentor this year!

regards,

Raul,

We miss you here, but I hope you're enjoying the new job.

Here's a quick, shorthand answer to the question: If an agency doesn't respond to a FOIA request within 20 days (or extend that time period for its response as provided for by FOIA), that can be treated as "constructive exhaustion" of administrative remedies and the requestor may file an action in court immediately. However, if the agency provides a response within 20 days (or the period provided for by the extension), the requestor must first exhaust administrative remedies before going to court.

I am adding Betsy Shapiro, the Department's FOIA litigation expert, in case she has any nuances to add.

All the best,

Neil is exactly right. The only other wrinkle is that if a requester waits 20 days, the agency does not respond, but then the agency later responds before the requester files his complaint in federal court, the requester is still required to exhaust administrative remedies.

Good luck at OMB, and feel free to call with FOIA or other government information related questions.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

WWW.USDOJ.GOV

AG
(202) 514-2008
TDD (202) 514-1888

DEFENDANT PLEADS GUILTY IN EASTERN EUROPEAN EMPLOYEE LEASING SCAM

WASHINGTON, D.C. - A Florida resident originally from Poland has pleaded guilty to three charges related to a nationwide employee leasing conspiracy that used hundreds of illegal aliens, Assistant Attorney General Alice S. Fisher of the Criminal Division and U.S. Attorney R. Alexander Acosta of the Southern District of Florida announced today.

Pavel Preus, 39, of Pompano Beach, Florida, pleaded guilty yesterday before U.S. District Judge Kenneth Marra at the federal courthouse in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Preus, a native of Poland, holds conditional lawful permanent residency in the United States.

Preus pleaded guilty to conspiracy to induce and encourage aliens to enter and remain unlawfully in the United States for commercial advantage, conspiracy to transport and conceal aliens in the United States for commercial advantage, and conspiracy to cause the making of false statements to government agencies; conspiracy to commit money laundering; and conspiracy to defraud the United States of taxes due.

Preus faces a maximum sentence of up to 20 years in prison and a fine of up to $500,000 on the money laundering charge, and up to five years in prison and fines of up to $250,000 on the other counts. Sentencing is scheduled for Nov. 21, 2005.

From 1995 to the present, Preus conspired to provide unauthorized workers, mostly Eastern Europeans who had entered the United States on tourist visas, to American companies with which Preus and others had contracted to provide authorized foreign workers. During the course of the conspiracy, Preus and his co-conspirators failed to collect and pay approximately $6 million in federal payroll taxes and laundered in excess of $20 million.

"This defendant constructed an elaborate fraud with others which involved misrepresenting the visa status of hundreds of aliens, taking advantage of laws designed to secure opportunity for legitimate immigrant workers, and defrauding the American public of millions of dollars in revenue," said Assistant Attorney General

Fisher. "The Department of Justice is committed to the vigorous prosecution of this defendant and others who believe that they can cheat the system by circumventing immigration laws for profit."

United States Attorney R. Alexander Acosta added, "Our nation has been built on the sweat and dreams of immigrants. Lawful immigration remains part of the American Dream. Our nation, however, also has been built on the rule of law. We will prosecute violations of immigration laws vigorously."

Preus' plea is the first in the culmination of Operation Pisces, an investigation begun in 2002 and led by the Kansas City Office of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Office of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (then the INS); the U.S. Department of Labor, Office of the Inspector General, Labor Racketeering and Fraud Investigations; and the Miami, Florida, field office of the Internal Revenue Service, and joined by the Miami division of the U.S. Postal Inspection Service.

The case is being prosecuted by Trial Attorneys Michael E. Barr and Judith R. O'Sullivan of the Department of Justice's Criminal Division, Domestic Security Section, and by Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeffrey H. Kay of the Ft. Lauderdale office of the U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Florida.

U.S. ANNOUNCES CLEAN AIR AGREEMENT WITH NATION'S LARGEST HAZARDOUS WASTE TREATMENT AND DISPOSAL OPERATOR

Operator to Properly Calculate Benzene Emissions at 10 Facilities in Eight States

WASHINGTON, D.C.-The Justice Department and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) today announced a settlement with Clean Harbors Environmental Services that is expected to enhance calculating and reporting on benzene emissions from North America's largest operator of hazardous waste treatment and disposal facilities. This settlement involves 10 facilities in eight states. It confirms the proper industry standard for compliance with the Clean Air Act regulation that limits benzene emissions from facilities that treat, store, and dispose of hazardous waste.

The affected facilities are located in Chicago, Illinois; Cincinnati, Ohio; Braintree, Massachusetts; Bristol, Connecticut; Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Plaquemine, Louisiana; La Porte, Texas; Deer Park, Texas; Kimball, Nebraska; and Aragonite, Utah.

The agreement with Clean Harbors is part of EPA's efforts to enhance compliance with benzene regulations among hazardous waste treatment, storage, and disposal facilities. Benzene is a hazardous air pollutant and a known carcinogen.

"By enforcing proper methods to calculate benzene emissions, we move closer to ensuring that this hazardous air pollutant is not unlawfully emitted into our environment," said Acting Assistant Attorney General Kelly A. Johnson. "Today's settlement with the country's largest operator of hazardous waste treatment and disposal facilities should set the standard for the rest of this industry."

A consent decree, filed today in U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, will require Clean Harbors to properly determine the benzene quantities in waste shipments received from its customers. Clean Harbors will not be allowed to estimate the benzene received by using the middle number in a range of possible benzene concentrations that a customer supplies. Instead, Clean Harbors will have to measure the actual benzene concentration or use the high end of the range in order to ensure that benzene is not underreported. Underreporting benzene can result in failing to install pollution controls on tanks and other equipment that handle benzene.

The states of Illinois and Louisiana are joining the settlement.

"This settlement underscores EPA's commitment to enforcing the Clean Air Act. Companies that treat, store, or dispose hazardous waste are required to properly quantify the amount of benzene received at their sites," said Granta Nakayama, EPA Assistant Administrator for the Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance. "It is particularly important for facilities that have the potential to release benzene, a known carcinogen, into the air."

"Benzene is a known carcinogen. With this settlement, Clean Harbors will be required to keep more accurate records of benzene quantities and better train its employees in its handling, so that proper controls can be utilized when it is transported through or disposed of at its Chicago facility," Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan said. "This agreement will provide more protection not only for the company's employees, but also for Illinois residents."

To meet its obligations under the consent decree, Clean Harbors will revise its nationwide "Waste Material Profile Sheet" to ensure that all customers that are covered by the benzene waste regulation properly evaluate and certify the amount of benzene in their waste shipments. Clean Harbors will institute a program to sample these wastes to ensure proper reporting and will train its employees on compliance with the benzene regulations. Clean Harbors will also pay a $300,000 penalty.

The proposed consent decree is subject to a 30-day public comment period. A copy of the consent decree lodged today is available on the Department of Justice website at <http://www.usdoj.gov/enrd/open.html>.

Briefs in CT and TN have been filed, and are attached. We received TRO/PI papers from IL, which I will forward, and the judge in that case has already set a TRO hearing for 10 a.m. Central Time tomorrow. We also have a TRO hearing in the TN case tomorrow at 9 a.m. Central Time. We had a status call with the court in MO this morning, and the judge asked that we try to file our PI opposition by COB tomorrow, and she may conduct a phone argument on Tuesday if she finds it necessary. CT PI hearing is still scheduled for Wed.

Just looking on the web site, it seems like there are two things that might be appropriate. the first would be the AG's john marshall team award, which is an annual award and (i assume) requires a choice among many worthy candidates. the second is an "on-the-spot award," which the web site describes this way:

Information on Performance and On-The-Spot Awards The Office of Personnel Management has established incentive awards as a means to honor those individuals and groups whose contributions are so outstanding as to warrant special recognition. In addition, the various components within the Department have established and administered commendation awards and other special awards which are unique to their workforce to honor and recognize individual or group achievements by employees. Information on these awards may be obtained by contacting the servicing personnel office of your component.

On-the-Spot Awards are awarded to employees who have made a high-quality contribution to a difficult or important project or assignment; produced exceptionally high-quality work under a tight deadline; performed added or emergency assignments in additional to regular duties; demonstrated exceptional courtesy or responsiveness in dealing with the public, client agencies, or colleagues; and exercised extraordinary initiative or creativity in addressing a critical need or a difficult problem. These awards are recommended by supervisors and endorsed by higher-level approving officials.

It seems like these would not be mutually exclusive choices.

There were ten people primarily involved, though I'm not sure whether it makes sense to include all of them (e.g., Tom Hungar or me), so it might be a smaller group. I don't have a clue about what is typically done in these circumstances.

They are working around-the-clock, but it's pretty exciting stuff, and it's clear that the craziness can only last so long, so it's not the worst thing in the world.

This sounds miserable for you and your team -- just before the holiday weekend. We'll have to think of something nice to do for folks once this is over.

Briefs in CT and TN have been filed, and are attached. We received TRO/PI papers from IL, which I will forward, and the judge in that case has already set a TRO hearing for 10 a.m. Central Time tomorrow. We also have a TRO hearing in the TN case tomorrow at 9 a.m. Central Time. We had a status call with the court in MO this morning, and the judge asked that we try to file our PI opposition by COB tomorrow, and she may conduct a phone argument on Tuesday if she finds it necessary. CT PI hearing is still scheduled for Wed.

Subject: Farewell

Goodbye to everyone at the Department. Today is my last day. It's been a wonderful four years to work with all of you and to serve the President and two Attorneys General, Gonzales and Ashcroft. The issues in the environmental area have been ever-interesting and ever-contentious. But working with all of you has always been a joy. Thanks for being my teachers and my colleagues at this wonderful institution, unmatched within the government, of the Department of Justice.

I hope to stay in touch with as many of you as I can. I'll miss everyone, of course. And you can always track me down at my law firm, for which info is below. I'm not going anywhere far off -- just blocks away, across from the Treasury Building.

God Bless all of you!

to: all mentors and mentees for this year's pilot Truman/TSA mentoring program

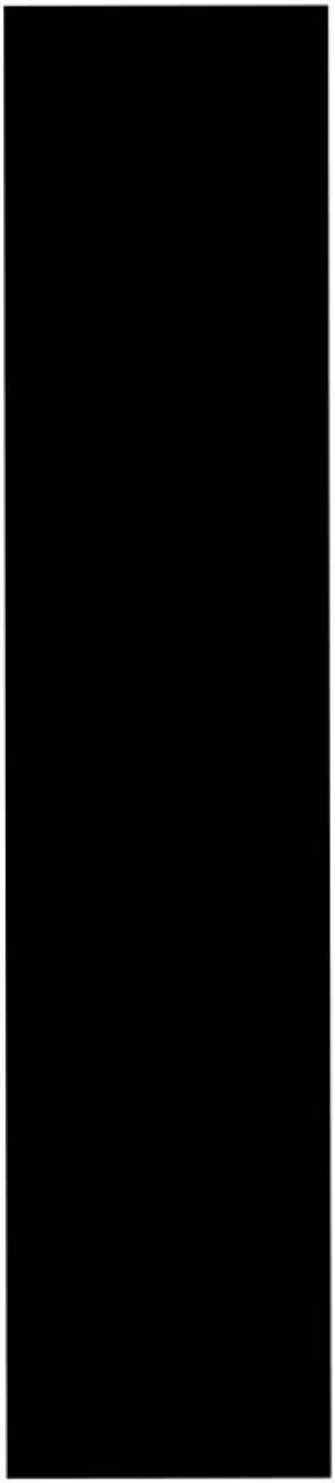
Below are a list of the mentor/mentee matches for the upcoming Fellows Program. In the next day or two, we will be sending e-mails to the individual mentor/mentee pairs with the contact information for your mentor/mentee, but we also wanted to send out a general note about this year's pilot program.

We have two requests with regard to these matches:

(1) Please e-mail [redacted]@nber.org) to RSVP as to whether you will be able to attend the kick-off event on the 22nd.

Please RSVP by this Friday, 16 September if possible.

(2) After you receive the email with your match's contact information, please follow-up with a short introductory e-mail to your mentor/mentee as soon as possible, and be sure to mention whether they should expect to see you at the kick-off event on the 22nd.



If you have any questions, please feel free to contact:

[redacted]@hotmail.com
[redacted]@aya.yale.edu
[redacted]@nber.org

Warm thanks.
sincerely,

Dear Aloma,

Thank you for the phone message. This is just to confirm that Neil will attend the lunch and not need a-v equipment. You need not respond unless that information is wrong.

Just as a reminder, the lunch begins at 12:30pm in the Columbus Room at Union Station. (In my phone conversation with Neil, I may have mistakenly given 12pm as the start time.) Our luncheon speaker will be Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen. The session on the judicial branch from 2:30-3:30pm, following the lunch session. Judge Susan Braden will join Neil on the dais, and each of them will have 20 min. for prepared remarks.

Thank you for all of your help in facilitating Neil's participation.

It is kind of you to think of me. While it sounds like an intersting assignment and good move, I don't think I am the right person for [redacted] due, among other things, to my lack of white collar experience. I will try to think of someone.

Marc/Allyson -

Attached is a revised draft, reflecting comments from the various commenting agencies and our discussion. As you'll see, in the interest of time we've left a place holder for the findings we discussed.

Will M. informs that Sensenbrenner is very anxious to act and that he'd like to share this with the House as soon as possible. Jeff and I remain available for any questions or comments and we'll continue working on the finding section.

Please plan to arrive at the U.S. Court of Appeals between 8:20-8:30 am on Wednesday, March 8th. The Court of Appeals is located at 717 Madison Place, along the east side of Lafayette Park at the White House. The cross streets are Vermont Avenue and H Streets. We were unable to secure parking at this interview site. If you would like to take the metro, the McPherson Square stop on the orange and blue lines is one block from the courthouse. Otherwise, the Foundation will reimburse you for any parking fees and mileage.

You may enter through the main lobby. When everyone has arrived, security will escort us to the conference rooms as a group. Please let me know if you have any questions.

You should receive your panel binder tomorrow or Friday.

Thanks for taking time out of your day to serve on this panel,
Christy

Quite a learned debate. Is our effort DOA now or is there anything we can/should do -- eg in Senate?

Or, e.g., the section-by-section that I was hoping to get to today. At this point is there any reason for me to do one?

Also, do you know whether the House fixed its bill to eliminate the "good faith" and "qualified immunity" language and to clarify the "willful [mis]conduct" standard?

1ST SESSION

H. R. _____

To protect volunteers assisting the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. SENSENBRENNER introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To protect volunteers assisting the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Katrina Volunteer Protection Act of 2005''.

SEC. 2. PROTECTION OF VOLUNTEERS.

(a) QUALIFIED IMMUNITY FROM SUIT.—Any person or entity (including any Indian Tribe) that, in response to harm caused by Hurricane Katrina of 2005, voluntarily, in good faith, and without a preexisting duty or expectation of compensation, renders aid (including medical treatment and rescue assistance) to any individual, shall not be liable for any injury (including personal injury, property damage or loss, and death) arising out of or resulting from that aid that was not caused by—

(1) willful, wanton, reckless or criminal conduct of that person or entity; or

(2) conduct of that person or entity that constitutes a violation of a Federal or State civil rights law.

(b) PREEMPTION.—This Act preempts the laws of a State to the the extent such laws are inconsistent with this Act, except that this Act shall not preempt any State law that provides additional protection from liability relating to volunteers.

TERRORISM NEWS:

Former 9/11 Commissioners Flatly Dismiss Weldon Able Danger Claims. The AP (9/15, Barrett) reports former 9/11 commissioners "on Wednesday dismissed assertions that…Pentagon intelligence unit" Able Danger "identified lead hijacker Mohamed Atta as an member of al-Qaida long before the 2001 attacks. The ex-commissioners also criticized the government for not putting in place changes recommended last year in homeland security and emergency response." The AP notes that Rep. Curt Weldon "had accused the commission of ignoring intelligence about Atta while it investigated the attacks," but former commission chairman Thomas Kean "said there was no evidence anyone in the government knew about Atta before Sept. 11, 2001." Former commissioner and US Sen. Slade Gorton said, "Bluntly, it just didn't happen and that's the conclusion of all 10 of us."

Judge Rules Alleged Mall Bomb Plotter's Statements Admissible. The AP (9/14) reports US District Judge Algenon Marbley on Tuesday ruled federal prosecutors can use statements made by alleged mall bomb plotter Nuradin Abdi at trial. Abdi lawyers "had sought to bar statements he made to authorities in which he admitted to falsifying immigration documents and planning to blow up an undetermined Columbus-area mall." Marbley said "that the statements were admissible because Abdi made them in the presence of his lawyer," despite the fact that "Abdi's arrest in November 2003 was illegal because government agents appeared to act only so they could interrogate him."

Philippine Government Willing To Turn Over Espionage Suspects. The Manila Sun Star (9/15) reports, "The Philippine Government is willing to turn over three public officials tagged by the US Federal Bureau of Investigation…in connection with the espionage case filed against former police official Michael Ray Aquino in the US, Justice Secretary Raul Gonzalez Sr. said. Gonzalez met with US legal attaché to the Philippines Jeff Cole, who furnished him confidential notes on the arrest of Aquino in Queens, New York and his friend, FBI analyst Leandro Aragoncillo, a Filipino-American, in New Jersey. … In a press briefing, Gonzalez said among those who are allegedly involved in Aquino's espionage activities include a former official and two incumbent officials." The Sun Star adds, "Once the names of the three Philippine officials are revealed and it is proven that they are Aquino's cohorts, they will be named as co-conspirators for violation of US laws." The Philippine Star (9/15) also reports the Philippine government is ready to turn over the officials to the US.

FBI To Identify Philippine Officials Who Allegedly Received Documents. Manila-based news Web site ABS-CBN Interactive (9/15) reports the FBI "will reveal next week the names of former and current Philippine government officials who allegedly received classified US government documents sent by Michael Ray Aquino, the National Bureau of Investigation…said Thursday." NBI International Police division chief Ricardo Diaz "said two of the officials identified by the FBI are on active government service. He said the FBI will unseal the documents on the case on September 21 and 22. Diaz said the names in the FBI files pertain to former and current government officials who received classified information stolen by Aragoncillo while working as an intelligence analyst at the US Army's Fort Monmouth facility in New Jersey."

PATRIOT ACT:

Former AG Ashcroft Defends Patriot Act. The South Bend Tribune (9/14, Draeger) reports, "Former Attorney General John Ashcroft is well aware his name is nearly synonymous with the 2001 Patriot Act that gave the FBI and Justice Department broad powers." The Tribune continues, "As its chief enforcer and defender, Ashcroft has been a target of librarians and civil rights activists who say the Patriot Act brings Big Brother into the private lives of ordinary citizens by allowing investigators to detain terrorism suspects. … 'I'm probably a poster boy for the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union),' Ashcroft told members of the Economic Club of SW Michigan Tuesday at the Mendel Center for the Arts and Technology at Lake Michigan College (in Benton Harbor, MI). … 'They've built their membership against me,' he added." The Tribune adds, "But he told the audience of mostly like-minded Republicans why the act is necessary in a post-9/11 country. … The act's measures give federal investigators more tools to prevent future terrorist attacks, such as 'bringing down the wall' of silence that prevented the CIA, FBI and local enforcement agencies from sharing information that could've stopped the planners of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks. … Measures like 'roving wiretaps,' he said, sound alarmist, but they extend to terrorists what law officers have used to fight drug dealers for years. … 'We needed the authority to extend that to terrorists,' he said." The Tribune notes, "Another provision that angered librarians at the time about the federal government being allowed to inquire about reading materials of patrons was also highlighted by a bookstore owner in the audience. … She told Ashcroft she has no safeguards against her records being seized. … Ashcroft said during the first two years of the Patriot Act, no library records were seized to hunt for terrorists."

HOMELAND RESPONSE:

Chertoff Orders Completion Of Border Fence Near San Diego. The Washington Times (9/15, Seper) reports, "Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff yesterday exercised his legal authority to bypass regulatory obstacles that had long delayed completion of a 14-mile border 'enforcement zone' near San Diego." Chertoff said, "Completing the border infrastructure system will strengthen our efforts to reduce illegal entry to the United States. Congress provided us the authority to ensure this project is completed, and I intend to use it." The border fence "has been delayed since 1996 by litigation and environmental challenges." And Rep. James Sensenbrenner "said the project would improve the security of the American public, especially those in the San Diego area; allow CBP to use its resources in a more effective manner; and clean up the environmental destruction that has resulted from illegal border crossings."

Internal Disputes Hinder Goss Efforts To Reform CIA. Highlighting the CIA's lack of progress in improving its intelligence capabilities after the 9/11 attacks, the Washington Times (9/15, Gertz) reports CIA associate deputy director of operations Robert Richer "will leave earlier than announced because of a dispute with CIA Director Porter J. Goss on reforms within the agency's spying branch." Richer's "scheduled departure highlights an ongoing and largely secret political struggle inside the CIA over efforts by Mr. Goss to reform the agency in the aftermath of intelligence failures related to September 11 and Iraq's weapons programs." While the exact nature of Richer's dispute is unclear, "Goss and four close aides have been working behind the scenes to try to improve the agency's spying operations and have encountered resistance from officials who oppose some of the changes." The Times notes, "In particular, Mr. Goss is pressing hard for agency spies to do better in Iraq."

Suspect In Ricin Threat Remains At Large. The Hill (9/15, Kucinich) reports, "It has been nearly 18 months since" a threatening message "was sent with a vile of ricin to the Department of Transportation (DoT). A similar letter was mailed to the White House, and traces of the deadly substance were found on a mail-opening machine in Majority Leader Bill Frist's…mailroom." Although "no one has been implicated yet," Browning See president Lee Browning "said he suspects that the FBI knows where the letters came from and who sent them because of extensive research on the DNA of castor beans, from which ricin is derived." FBI spokeswoman Debbie Wireman "said there are currently no updates on the case but 'it is still being looked at.'" After the attacks funding was "increased for projects that genetically engineer castor beans without ricin"

King Chosen To Chair House Homeland Security Panel. Rep. Peter King has been selected to be the next chairman of the House Homeland Security Committee. Roll Call (9/15, Pershing) reports that the House Republican Steering Committee selected King "at a time when the panel's turf is under heavy scrutiny." Roll Call notes, "The Steering choice is still subject to ratification by the full Republican Conference, but it is highly doubtful that the larger GOP group wouldn't approve the choice." Republican aides said that the choice of King "just days after the fourth anniversary of 9/11 would be important symbolically. The fact that King is a moderate with good relationships across the aisle is also considered helpful, given the nature of the post."

The New York Times (9/15, Hernandez) adds that King is a "moderate" who is "known for his independent streak." The selection of King "provides New York a potentially more prominent voice in a critical area at a time when the state's heavily Democratic delegation in the House finds itself largely sidelined by conservatives from other parts of the country. His appointment is expected to be ratified by House Republicans."

The Hill (9/15, Tiron) notes the for Rep. Curt Weldon, "the vice chairman of the committee, who waged an aggressive campaign based on his two decades of experience on homeland-security issues, the defeat is a stinging blow. The Steering Committee has passed him over for two other chairmanships in the past, including the homeland-security panel when it was first created."

9th Circuit Troubled By US Border Search Requests. The California Recorder (9/15, Scheck) reports, "Judge Betty Fletcher gave the federal government what it wanted Wednesday. But she didn't feel too good about it. And her colleague, Judge Raymond Fisher, wasn't really happy, either." The Recorder continues, "Fletcher, a senior judge on the 9th U.S. Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, authored two opinions Wednesday, and sat on the panel that offered a third, per curiam opinion. They said that border agents searching for contraband may disembowel gas tanks, drill holes in truck beds and disassemble car doors without reasonable cause for suspicion. … Fletcher made her feelings known in a concurrence to her own opinion in U.S.A. v. Chaudhry, 05 C.D.O.S. 8344, that, she wrote, is intended 'to express my distaste for the government's game-playing.'" The Recorder adds, "The game-playing involved the government's goal of getting an appeals court to agree that border agents could take apart an automobile without apparent suspicion. … But in all three cases, there were clear reasons for suspicion that the government chose not to enter into evidence -- from drug-sniffing dogs to visibly nervous drivers. … 'But the government wanted confirmation that no suspicion is required for extensive, intrusive searches at the border,' Fletcher wrote. 'This would have an ancillary benefit for the government -- it would not have to prove the reliability of its drug-sniffing dogs.' … The question of whether the government may conduct such extensive searches without suspicion, she added, 'is an entirely fictional construct. Suspicion existed in each case, and in my view, review of cases at the appellate level is a waste of judicial resources. The only possible purposes are the government's desire to push the envelope to its limits: to find out how much destruction it can do without any suspicion, and to avoid proving it uses reliable dogs.'"

Romney Calls For Increased US Surveillance Of Mosques, International Students. The Boston Globe (9/15, Helman) reports that in a speech to the Heritage Foundation on Wednesday, Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney "raised the prospect of wiretapping mosques and conducting surveillance of foreign students in Massachusetts, as he issued a broad call…for the federal government to devote far more money and attention to domestic intelligence gathering. In remarks that caused alarm among civil libertarians and advocates for immigrants rights, Romney said…that the United States needs to radically rethink how it guards itself against terrorism." The Globe notes, "Ali Noorani, executive director of the Massachusetts Immigrants and Refugee Advocacy Coalition, called the methods Romney suggested misguided and ineffective. Tracking people based on their ethnicity, he said, will only sow resentment among immigrant communities and prevent their cooperation with authorities."

Flight 93 Memorial Draws Criticism For Including Crescent In Design. The Washington Times (9/15, Harper) reports, "It is unbuilt, but already under fire. The proposed memorial to United Flight 93 has a chorus of critics, irked by a single design element that ultimately might be reconfigured." The Times continues, "The 'Crescent of Embrace,' a double arc of maple trees that will turn red in the fall, has drawn the ire of some, who say it will resemble the red crescent -- a symbol of Islam dear to the hearts of the September 11 hijackers on the flight that crashed into a Pennsylvania field." Rep. Tom Tancredo called on the National Park Service "to reject the design as 'a flash point for controversy and criticism.'"

WAR NEWS:

Al Qaeda Stages Series Of Car Bombings In Baghdad. Eleven suicide bombers struck in Baghdad yesterday, killing at least 160 people and wounding an additional 500. The violence was directed against Shiite Muslims, and al Qaeda in Iraq claimed responsibility for the attack, saying it was intended as retaliation for the joint US/Iraqi offensive in Tal Afar. CBS led with the story, while ABC reported it third in its newscast and NBC reported it sixth.

NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 6, 2:20, Engel) reported, "A senior US Commander told NBC News the attacks were timed to embarrass the Iraqi government while both President Talibani and Prime Minister Al Jaafari are in the United States, and to put Zarquawi back in the media spotlight after almost nonstop coverage of Hurricane Katrina. And Zarquawi used that spotlight to declare war on all Shiites in Iraq, his clearest call yet for a civil war."

DOJ_NMG_ 0147724

The CBS Evening News (9/14, lead story , 2:35, Schieffer) reported, "A series of car bombings began early this morning in Baghdad went on until mid-afternoon and by the time it ended it had become the deadliest day in the capital since the war began." A "militant Website then followed up with an al Qaeda declaration of war on all Iraqi Shiites."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 3, 2:35, Vargas) reported it was "a terrible day, the most violence since the US invaded and took control of the country." ABC (Berman) added, "Nearly all of the victims were Shiite Muslims. In a recording released today, a man claiming to be the Sunni terrorist Abu Musab al Zarqawi declared a holy war on all Shiite Muslims in Iraq. He also claimed credit for today's attacks, calling them revenge for the US and Iraqi offensive in the northern city of Tal Afar near the Syrian border." ABC (Vargas) added, "Attacks by insurgents in Iraq have been on the rise. From about 60 attack as day before September to an average of nearly 80 a day this month."

USA Today (9/15, Jervis, Mahmoud) adds that in its Web posting, "al-Qaeda in Iraq linked the attacks to an offensive by Iraqi and U.S. forces in Tal Afar, near the Syrian border. The offensive began Saturday and evicted most insurgents from the city. The U.S. military estimated 200 militants were killed. No Americans were killed." Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, "al-Qaeda's leader in Iraq, purportedly declared 'all-out war' on Shiite Muslims, Iraqi troops and the country's government in an audio recording released on the Internet."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Daragahi) reports, "A senior US military official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the attacks were evidence of insurgents' weakness against Iraq's nascent security forces. '(The insurgents) failed to stand up to the assault up north, so they slink away and kill civilians in Baghdad,' he said. 'It is astonishing that they can try to claim some victory from pure murder.'"

The Financial Times (9/15, Negus) reports "witnesses said that no US or Iraqi military or police targets were in the vicinity, suggesting that the attacker had aimed to cause as much civilian carnage as possible." The blast "comes two weeks after a stampede at a Shia religious commemoration sparked by fears of a suicide bomber killed over 1,000 people in the same area."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Fassihi) says "the scale and scope of the attacks, with Sunni Arab militants targeting and killing groups of Shiites, shows the increasingly sectarian nature of the conflict, and is reviving doubts about whether the newly trained Iraqi forces can properly secure it." The Journal adds, "Many analysts believe the buffer keeping Iraq's Sunni and Shiites from a full-fledge civil war has been the Shiite religious and political leaders' restraint from accusing the Sunnis outright and calling for Shiites to retaliate." But "no one is sure how much longer the Shiite community will be willing to heed their advice."

The New York Times (9/15, Worth) notes Iraq's "National Assembly and Iraqi government, led by Mr. Jaafari, who had given approval for the Tal Afar offensive, are both dominated by Shiites." Iraqi and American officials have been "anticipating a rise in violence in reaction to Iraq's new constitution, which has provoked angry opposition from many Sunni leaders and demonstrations in several cities since it was presented in the National Assembly last month."

The Washington Post (9/15, Knickmeyer, Nouri) reports, "The attacks appeared calculated to undermine public faith in the ability of the fledgling government to protect its people, by showing that insurgents could strike in Baghdad despite the US and Iraqi military efforts to stop them."

The Washington Times (9/15, Hurst) runs a similar AP story on the bombings.

Insurgents Avoid US-Iraqi Efforts To Limit Mobility. The latest bombings in Iraq are a sign the insurgent's strategy to avoid being captured by US and Iraqi forces by abandoning cities until coalition forces leave is having some success. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Carroll, Murphy) says the "contrast between what are being described as largely successful operations against insurgent hotbeds in Tal Afar, Qaim, and Haditha…and ongoing violence across the country, demonstrates the fluidity of Iraq's insurgency against thinly spread US and Iraqi forces." For example, the coalition attack on Tal Afar "was aimed at limiting the mobility of Sunni insurgents." Approximately "200 militants were killed and hundreds captured. But as forces moved on the city, the US military said many insurgents simply fled, using a network of tunnels they'd created in advance of the assault. That pattern has become increasingly common since the April assault on Fallujah, where hundreds of insurgents died in the most sustained combat of the war."

WSJournal Sees Iraqi Forces As Key To Stabilizing Border. The Wall Street Journal (9/15) editorializes, "There are good reasons to believe the…operation in Tal Afar…will be a model of things to come." Unlike previous operations when US forces would eventually leave the area, "Iraqis are leading the fight and, most important, many will stay so the people of Tal Afar can begin to believe they can live free of terrorist intimidation." It also "calls into question the contention of war critics like Senator Joe Biden that there are only a handful of Iraqi troops capable of meaningful operations. … U.S. commanders classify about 40 battalions -- roughly 750 soldiers in each -- as 'fully independent' or able to fight 'in the lead.'" The Journal concludes, "Whether those Iraqi troops are competently led and deployed will depend on a political process that includes a constitutional referendum and another parliamentary election before the year is out. But" it "is the best sign of anti-insurgent progress since the Marine sweep through Fallujah."

Iraqi Families Rush To Retrieve Bodies Of Attack Victims. The Washington Post (9/15, A25, Knickmeyer) describes the efforts by local Iraqis to retrieve the bodies of the victims of the latest insurgent attacks, reporting "Bedlam was bubbling up in Iraq's capital all day Wednesday, bursting through the thin surface of what passes for routine. Families rushed to find loved ones and ambulances sped to aid survivors, even as new bombings sent more waves of frantic searchers into the chaos. Towers of black smoke rose into the sky as police turned away cars from hospitals, fearing secondary attacks that might target medical centers treating the bombing victims."

Rice Says More Allied Forces In Iraq Unnecessary. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked why NATO was not playing a larger role in Iraq. Rice said, "Well, NATO is doing some work in Iraq." Asked why NATO couldn't help increase security along Iraq's borders, Rice replied, "Actually, at this point now we don't need more foreign forces in Iraq. What we need is Iraqi forces to be trained up." Asked whether the US might need "more boots on the ground," Rice maintained, "We need Iraqi forces to be trained up, and that's what's happening. This fight has got to become the Iraqis' fight."

Rice Says Media Not Covering Long-Term Progress In Iraq. Rice, also on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14), was asked whether negative coverage by the press was responsible for public opposition to the war in Iraq. Rice said, "Quite apart from what the press may or may not like, there's also the problem that the press reports on a daily basis headlines every day when, in fact, this is a somewhat longer-term process in Iraq. And where the political process has been moving just inexorably along, that's harder to see. That's harder to report on. But there are times when people see it. When 8.5 million Iraqis vote out and voted, people knew we were in Iraq for the right reasons."

CBS Questions Detention Of Iraqi Cameraman. Iraqi officials and Western media have raised questions about the continued detention of Iraqis helping US reporters. The dispute over the detention of freelance cameraman Abdul Amir Younes Hussein is the latest flashpoint. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Dreazen) reports the US military's explanation that Hussein had been "detained for alleged insurgent activity" has "sparked a bitter legal and political dispute with Viacom Inc.'s CBS, which has lobbied senior military and civilian officials to try to win the cameraman's release. Mr. Hussein, who has been unable to see his family or his lawyer since being detained, faces a hearing today in Baghdad that will determine whether he will be released."

The New York Times (9/15, Worth) notes, "Iraqi criminal authorities have reviewed his case and declined to prosecute him. Colleagues who were with him that day have produced affidavits supporting his innocence. The American military has not released any evidence against him, despite repeated requests for information by CBS producers, lawyers and even the network's president, Andrew Heyward." And recently "Iraq's justice minister, Abdul Hussein Shandal, criticized the detentions of Iraqi journalists in an interview with Reuters, saying he wanted to change a United Nations resolution that gives American troops immunity from Iraqi law."

Diverse Field Of Candidates Seek Office In Afghan Elections. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Baldauf) reports the diversity of the approximately 5,700 candidates running for office in Afghanistan "is both an endorsement of democracy, and a challenge to its very existence." Afghanis "will be selecting from candidates who hold conflicting views over concepts as fundamental as the very definition of democracy itself." The Monitor notes, "Many, perhaps the majority, pose as opponents of President Hamid Karzai, and some demand the removal of US troops as a sign that Afghanistan can now run itself."

Former Taliban Foes See Chance For Return To Power. The Washington Post (9/15, A20, Aizenman) reports, "As leading members of a coalition of northern ethnic militias that joined forces with the United States to topple the Taliban rulers after the Sept. 11 attacks, Massoud's Panjshiri successors were a dominant force in Afghanistan's first post-Taliban government. But over the last year and a half, the ethnic Tajiks of the Panjshir Valley have watched with dismay as President Hamid Karzai, a member of Afghanistan's majority Pashtun ethnic group, has replaced some of their most prominent leaders with Pashtuns and welcomed former Taliban officials back into the country as part of a reconciliation program." Now they "see Afghanistan's parliamentary elections, to be held Sunday, as their chance at a comeback."

Young Afghans Strive To Make Voices Heard. The New York Times (9/15, Gall) reports, "The young people of Afghanistan stand out in this already industrious nation as particularly motivated and politically aware and are seen by some here as an important constituency in the coming parliamentary elections, on Sunday." Similar to their parents "younger adults want security, good educational systems and a good health system, in that order," according to National Youth Solidarity Party leader Jamil Karzai, who is "a second cousin of President Hamid Karzai."

Female Candidate Sees Hope In Election. The Washington Times (9/15, Gentile) reports, "Jamilah Mujahid, who hopes to win one of 68 seats set aside for women in Afghanistan's parliament, view's Sunday's election as a turning point for her war-ravaged nation." Among her "priorities if elected would be education for women, especially those who are behind the learning curve because they grew up under the Taliban regime." She "called Sunday's scheduled parliamentary and provincial elections 'a new beginning for Afghanistan.'"

First Female Governor Provides Inspiration For Afghan Women. USA Today (9/15, Wiseman) reports describes the success of Afghani provincial governor Habiba Sarabi who is "the first woman to run a province in Afghan history." In her province of Bamiya women "are leaping into the political space created by the U.S.-led overthrow of the Islamic fundamentalist Taliban militia four years ago. They are more likely to run for office and to vote than other Afghan women." She "was appointed six months ago by Afghan President Hamid Karzai. She has emerged as a role model for Bamiyan's aspiring female politicians."

Afghan Commanders Said To Have Helped Bin Laden Escape To Pakistan. The Los Angeles Times/Reuters (9/15) reports that according to Afghan Interior Ministry spokesman Lutfullah Mashal "Osama bin Laden was given safe passage to Pakistan in 2001 by Afghan commanders paid by Al Qaeda and sympathetic to the terrorist network's cause." Mashal said, "Osama, along with other Al Qaeda people, managed to go to Parachinar at the time, and then Pakistani forces battled the Al Qaeda runaways, killing around 70 of them." He "told private Pakistani television channel Geo on Tuesday that U.S. forces had made a mistake in entrusting the capture of Bin Laden to Afghan commanders." He "said Bin Laden later recrossed the border to Khowst, where the leader of the Taliban there gave him refuge. He then returned to Pakistan, this time heading for Miranshah, the main town in another tribal area, North Waziristan."

CORPORATE SCANDALS:

Merrill Lynch To Change Forecasting Of Stock Option Earnings. USA Today/Reuters (9/15) reports, "Merrill Lynch on Wednesday said it will require all U.S. equity research analysts to include options and other stock-based compensation in their earnings forecasts for U.S. companies." Reuters continues, "The changes by the largest U.S. full-service brokerage, which covers more than 1,000 U.S. companies in 50 industries, are intended to reflect a controversial new accounting rule. That rule requires public companies in fiscal years beginning after June 15 to treat stock options as routine business expenses, such as salaries. … Many technology companies, including Cisco Systems, opposed the new rule, fearing it might increase operating costs and reduce profits. … But the Financial Accounting Standards Board and Securities and Exchange Commission backed the change, and companies such as Wal-Mart began implementing it before the deadline. Meanwhile, some companies, including Microsoft, have stopped granting stock options."

Former Marsh Executives Expect New York Fraud Indictments. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, McDonald) reports, "As many as eight former Marsh Inc. executives are expected to be indicted on criminal-fraud charges Thursday, according to two people close to the situation." The Journal continues, "As reported last month in The Wall Street Journal, a grand jury impaneled in Manhattan has been weighing criminal charges against the former executives. The probe is an outgrowth of a fraud investigation last year by New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer that resulted in a $850 million settlement by Marsh & McLennan Cos. of bid-rigging charges early this year. Marsh Inc. is the New York company's insurance-brokerage unit. … In settling, Marsh apologized to clients for the 'shameful' conduct of some employees who 'unlawfully deceived their customers.'" The Journal adds, "Mr. Spitzer is expected to unseal indictments charging the former Marsh employees with scheming to defraud, according to the two people, barring any last-minute guilty-pleas hammered out with prosecutors. … In the civil suit settled by Marsh, state authorities alleged that some Marsh brokers cheated institutional clients by rigging bids for large insurance contracts and steering business to insurers who paid Marsh large commission payments. All told, more than 15 insurance managers and executives have pleaded guilty to criminal charges stemming from the probe, including other former Marsh brokers and former employees of large insurers American International Group Inc.; Zurich American Insurance Co., a unit of Zurich Financial Services AG; and ACE Ltd."

Former NYSE Regulator Testifies Before SEC On E-Mail Policies. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Hughes) reports, "The Securities and Exchange Commission asked the New York Stock Exchange in 2001 to drop enforcement cases against a dozen Wall Street firms whose email retention and storage policies were deficient, according to a former NYSE regulator." The Journal continues, "Annette Nazareth, then-director of the SEC's market regulation and now an SEC commissioner, called the NYSE in the spring of 2001 and asked that the exchange's regulatory arm stop reporting email-retention violations to the NYSE's enforcement division and withdraw referrals that had already been made, according to testimony by Salvatore Pallante, former NYSE executive vice president for member-firm regulation." The Journal adds, "At the time, the SEC was in discussions with Wall Street over changes to its email rules, which the industry had criticized as being too broad. Because of those discussions, Ms. Nazareth believed it would be 'unreasonable' to bring enforcement actions, according to Mr. Pallante's testimony. … Mr. Pallante testified on behalf of Raymond James Financial Services Inc., which is fighting civil fraud charges filed by the SEC last year. The SEC sued Raymond James for failing to supervise a broker who allegedly bilked investors out of millions of dollars and also accused the firm of failing to fully preserve email records. The testimony was available through the SEC's public records office."

Risks Of Credit Derivatives Are Focus Of New York Meeting. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Sender) reports, "The New York Federal Reserve Bank is gathering the big Wall Street players today. The topic: rising concerns about risk in what is known as the credit-derivatives markets." The Journal continues, "The talks come amid frustration about the failure of the structure of the market to keep pace with the explosive growth in the trading of these complex securities. … 'People have the best intentions, but there are resource issues,' says Donna Parisi, head of the derivatives practice at the law firm of Shearman & Sterling. Credit derivatives, which allow investors to take positions on the risk of default of both companies and countries, have been one of the most rapidly growing financial products on Wall Street." The Journal adds, "Infrastructure issues that have bedeviled the market involve processing and settling trades, or what some experts such as Thomas Russo, vice chairman of Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc., refer to as the 'plumbing of the market.' Such descriptions sound boring and technical. But the credit-derivatives arena has become increasingly important in terms of managing investment risk, which means regulators are eager to ensure that these complex and often opaque markets operate smoothly. … Thus far, their proddings have largely gone unheeded, leading to the unusual summit at the New York Fed." The Journal notes, "The love-hate relationship between Wall Street firms and their hedge-fund clients has grown more acrimonious when it comes to credit derivatives. Hedge funds claim that Wall Street firms are reluctant to move to more efficient electronic trading and processing systems, because such a move would crimp the Street's margins. The dealers in turn say that hedge funds have been reluctant to invest sufficient funds in their back offices, and that it is the hedge funds, not Wall Street firms, that are the problem. … In any case, the result is stacks of paper at both hedge funds and at Wall Street firms. And the paper load is growing, as the labor-intensive review of documents and agreements confirming trades falls increasingly behind the growing volume of new trades."

Greenspan Warns Congress Against Lack Of Control Over Fannie, Freddie. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, McKinnon, Kopecki) reports, "Federal Reserve

DOJ_NMG_ 0147728

Chairman Alan Greenspan, in his strongest warning yet, said in a recent letter that Wall Street investment firms eventually could be incapable of hedging all the financial risk posed by mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, if Congress doesn't impose meaningful limits on them." Greenspan wrote Sen. Robert Bennett, "As Fannie and Freddie increase in size relative to the counterparties for their hedging transactions, the ability of these [companies] to quickly correct the inevitable misjudgments inherent in their complex hedging strategies becomes more difficult." The House is expected to vote on its version of GSE reform next week and its supporters "sought to improve chances for their bill by amending it to steer more of the companies' profits into affordable housing in the stricken Gulf Coast region." But "it isn't clear that the changes will be enough to overcome objections to the House measure among conservative critics" and Greenspan.

CRIMINAL LAW:

House Passes Child Safety Bill With Gay Hate Crime Protection Provision. The House passed the Children's Safety Act by an overwhelming 371-52 vote. The bill is focused on protecting children from child molesters but in an unexpected move lawmakers also approved expanding hate crime laws to protect homosexuals. USA Today (9/15) reports, "Sex offenders who abuse children would be subject to stringent monitoring requirements and face new mandatory penalties under" the bill which "would create a national website on pedophile sex offenders and stipulate that sex felons face up to 20-year sentences for not complying with registration requirements."

The Washington Post/AP (9/15, A2) notes, "Unexpectedly, the House voted 223 to 199 in favor of an amendment by Rep. John Conyers Jr. (D-Mich.) that expands current hate crime law to include some crimes involving sexual orientation, gender and disability." The AP adds, "The House has been the chief obstacle in numerous previous attempts to expand hate crimes law, and Joe Solmonese, president of the Human Rights Campaign, the nation's largest gay rights group, said it was an 'incredibly historic vote' that could give momentum to similar action in the Senate."

House GOP Blocks Democratic Resolutions Forcing Release Of Plame Documents. The AP (9/15, Sidoti) reports, "House Republicans derailed Democratic attempts on Wednesday to force the Bush administration to surrender documents on prewar intelligence and the disclosure of the identity of…CIA operative" Valerie Plame. "Largely along party lines, the House International Relations Committee unfavorably reported two of the resolutions on Iraq and one resolution on the Plame matter. Earlier, the House Judiciary Committee 'unfavorably' reported a similar Plame resolution." The AP adds that "the votes Wednesday against the measures all but prevented them from ever being taken up by the House."

Reuters (9/15) notes that Republicans "said Congress should await the outcome of a federal investigation by special counsel Patrick Fitzgerald. Democrats countered that Republicans were trying to protect President George W. Bush and his top political adviser, Karl Rove. 'We know that this is a political decision because there is potential embarrassment to the administration,' said Massachusetts Democratic Rep. William Delahunt."

USAT Endorses .xxx Domain Concept For Pornography. USA Today (9/15) editorializes, "The Internet has transformed the pornography business. In little more than a decade, online 'adult entertainment' has become a booming multibillion dollar industry, enabled by the World Wide Web's easy, impersonal accessibility. … Avoiding or blocking the X-rated onslaught can be nearly impossible. Internet content moves with no respect for borders and at such slippery speed that tracking it is like trying to grab hold of mercury. … For those who want porn, that may be fine. But for others, it can be deeply offensive. And for children, it can be damaging." USA continues, "A blanket ban is not a useful option because foreign sites are beyond the reach of U.S. law, which is why one fresh approach deserves encouragement. … It's a proposal for a virtual red-light district in the form of a new Internet domain. Instead of .com or one of the other familiar Web address suffixes, porn would have .xxx. People would know what they're getting. Parents could more easily filter it out." USA adds, "The idea is no cure-all. For one, it would be voluntary. Critics point out, correctly, that pornographers could still keep their .com addresses, and many probably would. Nor would it stop those deceptive e-mails. But that's not the point. … Its value is as an experiment, particularly for protecting children. Why not? … But the .xxx idea is running into opposition. Some critics say it would encourage online porn. Hello? Do they have computers? … Other opponents fear that the new domain would legitimize porn. Their protests — including more than 6,000 letters, many part of a campaign by the conservative Family Research Council — forced a delay in implementing .xxx. The regulatory board, the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers, is to meet today on the issue. … The board shouldn't bow to the pressure. Internet porn is big business driven by big demand. It can't be eradicated. But trying to improve the protections for parents is a good idea — including a .xxx domain experiment."

More Commentary. In an op-ed in USA Today (9/15), Patrick Trueman, senior legal counsel at the Family Research Council, writes, "For years there has been near unanimous condemnation of the notion that (pornographers) should be rewarded with even more space on the Internet. Yet, the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN), the Internet's governing agency, is moving ahead on this seductive idea." Trueman continues, "Most who advocate for a .xxx domain for porn sites say children would be the chief beneficiaries because filtering pornography would become a simple matter — just block .xxx sites. That assumes that pornographers would give up their .com sites, the cash cow of the porn industry, and move to .xxx. … Pornographers may be sleazy, but that hasn't affected their sound business sense. They have been making millions on the .com domain since long before Michael Dell sold his first computer over the Internet, and they would keep all their current .com locations. … Nor would they be evicted. Indeed, any law attempting to force all pornographers to relocate to .xxx would likely be challenged in court. Although it is a myth that all pornography is protected by the First Amendment, the U.S. Supreme Court has said that it is "presumptively protected" unless and until it is ruled obscenity or child porn in a court." Trueman adds, "A relatively small number of U.S. pornographers own the vast majority of Web sites selling illegal material. That is why the Family Research Council supports the efforts of Attorney General Alberto Gonzales to establish an obscenity prosecution task force to prosecute violators of the obscenity law — rather than making them masters of a new domain."

Texas Executes Black Woman For 1987 Killing Of Family. The New York Times (9/15, Barnes) reports, "Frances Newton, convicted of murdering her husband and their two children in 1987, was executed last night in Huntsville, Tex." The Times continues, "The Supreme Court declined to review Ms. Newton's case earlier, and Gov. Rick Perry declined to intervene." The times add,s "The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles unanimously refused on Monday to recommend that Mr. Perry, a Republican, commute her sentence to life in prison. … Ms. Newton, 40, was the third woman put to death in Texas since capital punishment resumed in 1982."

Ohio County Commissioner Seeks FBI Probe Of Equipment Lease. The Cincinnati Enquirer (9/15, Morse) reports, "Butler County Commissioner Chuck Furmon on Wednesday asked the FBI in Cincinnati to investigate a multimillion-dollar equipment lease that included the county's name without the commissioners' approval. FBI spokesman Michael Brooks confirmed that Furmon contacted the office. 'We'll look into the information that he provided and see if an investigation should be opened,' Brooks said, declining further comment." The Enquirer notes that Dynus Technologies "is a party to the disputed contract involving the lease of at least $5.3 million in telecommunications equipment used to transmit data via fiber-optic lines. The lease was signed before Dynus and Butler County commissioners finalized a contract in which Dynus is supposed to sign up customers for the county's fiber-optic loop." Dynus spokesman Tom Rowe said, "Based upon what we've looked into thus far, we haven't seen anything that would appear to warrant that type of action or an FBI investigation."

Massachusetts GOP Official Resigns After Drug Money Laundering Arrest. The AP (9/15) reports Massachusetts GOP vice chairman Lawrence Novak "resigned after a federal sting led to money-laundering charges accusing him of offering to 'cleanse' drug proceeds for a legal client," Scott Holyoke. "Novak resigned his party position on Tuesday after his release on bond. Holyoke is awaiting trial on federal drug trafficking charges and agreed to be a cooperating witness against Novak for the FBI." The AP notes state GOP chairman Darrell Crate "said in a statement the charges are strictly related to Novak's private business dealings and 'have absolutely no connection to the Republican Party.'" The Boston Globe (9/15, Lewis) also reports on Novak's resignation.

Tennessee Lawmakers Weigh Ethics Legislation In Wake Of Corruption Charges. The Tennessean (9/15, Seibert) reports, "Ethics legislation began to take shape yesterday as a panel of legislators unveiled proposals to prevent some of the problems revealed by the FBI's Operation Tennessee Waltz sting. But to some, the movement toward tougher laws for lawmakers is creeping along. At yesterday's meeting…the discussion revolved not around ethics, but largely around how lawmakers can efficiently use the state's electronic filing system for disclosures of their campaign contributions. … It was only in the last few minutes of the hours-long meeting that its leaders said they had plans for tougher ethics legislation. They put off discussion of those proposals until Oct. 10.

FBI Raids Denver Law Firm. The Rocky Mountain News (9/15, Accola) reports, "Federal agents raided the downtown offices of a Denver law firm Tuesday, seizing computers and records for evidence in an undisclosed FBI probe. Witnesses said as many as 20 agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation searched the 11th-floor offices of Futro & Associates PC." The News notes, "The small law firm is headed by Denver attorney Peter Futro, who until last May was chairman of U.S. MedSys Corp., a one-time Denver company that is now the subject of a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation. … 'It's a confidential client-related matter,' he said of the FBI search that lasted most of Tuesday."

Louisiana Teamsters President Claims FBI Illegally Recorded Contract Negotiations. The Baton Rouge Advocate (9/15, Roberts) reports Baton Rouge Teamsters president Byron Keith Partin "claims the FBI illegally recorded his contract negotiations with Formosa Plastics Corp. In new court documents filed in federal court last month…Partin contends the FBI convinced Formosa Human Resources Manager Tim LeBlanc to record as many as eight conversations in 2001. Partin's lawyer…argues in two separate motions that secretly recording labor contract negotiations is a violation of the National Labor Relations Act. The motions seek to have the tapes thrown out and the case dismissed." The Advocate notes, "Federal authorities say Partin threatened to report the company for illegally discharging ethylene dicloride into the Mississippi River if it didn't pay the wages of eight union members for hours of work they missed during the negotiations."

Florida Pair Arrested On Real Estate Fraud Charges. The South Florida Sun Sentinel (9/14) reports, "Federal authorities arrested two Fort Lauderdale residents Tuesday on more than a dozen charges involving real estate and bankruptcy fraud, the U.S. Attorney's Office said. Edward Garnett, 62, and Shirley Akey, 69, lied on loan applications about income, assets, and tax information, a U.S. Attorney's Office news release says. According to the release, the two racked up $1.4 million in loans, which Akey laundered through different bank accounts. Garnett also hid money and assets from a bankruptcy proceeding." The Sun Sentinel notes, "Penalties for the charges could total more than 100 years in prison and $6 million in fines."

Three High School Students Held In Michigan Bank Robbery. The Detroit News (9/15, Shepardson) reports from Ann Arbor, MI, "On Monday, three 17-year-old Pioneer High School students were worrying about keeping up their grades and where to go to college next fall. … Today, they're spending their third day in the county jail, facing a lengthy prison sentence if convicted in the Aug. 22 robbery of an Ann Arbor bank." The News continues, "On Wednesday, the mothers of two of the students put their arms around each other as they watched grainy black and white closed-circuit video of their sons' brief arraignment on three felony charges. All three are charged as adults." The News adds, "Prosecutors contend that in the waning days of a quiet Ann Arbor summer, two of the students, Charles Spencer Heath and Brian Keith Jackson, robbed the Bank One branch on West Stadium and made off with about $19,000 -- after they had demanded $50,000 and access to the vault while brandishing a toy gun. … They apparently spent some of the money on clothes and music equipment and the alleged motive, lawyers say, was simply to get money. None of the three has any prior criminal record, and none has been in any serious disciplinary trouble at school. … The third student, Brian Christopher White, the son of a former teacher and a Big Three auto executive, told police he allowed his friends to use his car, but didn't know they planned to rob the bank, according to a written statement he gave police. He is charged with conspiracy and bank robbery -- even though police say he didn't enter the bank Aug. 22." The News notes that the magistrate "set bond at $100,000 cash for each of them. Their parents might be required to put up their homes as collateral. … The three students will have a chance to get a reduced bond Wednesday, when they face a preliminary examination in Ann Arbor District Court. All three likely will remain in the Washtenaw County Jail until then."

Rep. Jefferson Fights More Allegations Of Wrongdoing. Roll Call (9/15, Billings, Whittington) reports, "Rep. William Jefferson (D-La.), under investigation by the FBI, went on the defensive Wednesday in the wake of a damaging ABC News report that the Congressman allegedly used National Guard resources to gather personal belongings from his New Orleans home amid the Hurricane Katrina rescue operation." Roll Call continues, "Jefferson is apparently gearing up for a tough legal fight. He recently retained defense attorney Robert Trout of the Washington, D.C., law firm Trout Cacheris, in addition to his New Orleans-based attorney, Michael Fawer. Trout is a former federal prosecutor. Jefferson also recently set up a legal defense fund." Roll Call adds, "Jefferson, according to sources, spoke to his colleagues at the Congressional Black Caucus meeting Wednesday. During the session, the Louisiana Democrat defended his tour of his damaged district on Sept. 2 and insisted that the ABC story that aired Tuesday night distorted the facts and misrepresented his actions. … In an interview, Melanie Rouffell, a Jefferson spokeswoman, reiterated her boss's belief that the story was unfair, noting that National Guard officials refused to let the Congressman tour the devastated area without the presence of armed guards. … She said that Jefferson was only doing his job by trying to assess the damage in his district and that he was concerned about his neighbors, whom he knew had not evacuated their homes." Roll Call notes, "But even as some of Jefferson's colleagues defended their friend, some Democrats wonder about the broader implications that the FBI investigation could have for their party. The Congressman had his homes in New Orleans and Washington, D.C., searched last month as part of an ongoing FBI investigation. … Authorities are investigating whether Jefferson illegally pocketed hundreds of thousands of dollars from a start-up technology firm during an FBI-authorized sting, according to published reports."

CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Cooper) reported on "questions on whether a congressman by the name of William Jefferson in New Orleans abused his power by getting National Guard troops to take him to his home when the city was under lockdown after Katrina hit. Congressman Jefferson was reportedly in the house for an hour, gathering his laptop computer, three suitcases and other items, while the troops waited for him outside. This was on Friday when there were still many people to be evacuated from this city." CNN's Paula Zahn Now (9/14, Griffin) reported, "Jefferson maintains he wanted an up-close look at the devastation in his district and only accepted the offer of an escort when National Guard officials urged it upon him for safety reasons."

CIVIL RIGHTS:

Senate Approves New DOJ Cold-Case Unit For Civil Rights Crimes. The AP (9/15, Hananel) reports, "A new Justice Department office would investigate and prosecute 'cold case' murders from the civil rights era, under a measure approved by the Senate on Wednesday." The AP continues, "The Unsolved Crimes Section would target pre-1970 homicides motivated by racial hatred that remain unsolved, often because of lax state and federal prosecution at the time they occurred. … The bill was inspired by efforts to reopen the case of Emmett Till, a 14-year old black boy who was murdered in 1955 after being accused of whistling at a white woman in Mississippi, said Sen. Jim Talent, R-Mo., who sponsored the legislation with Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. … 'We want the murderers and their accomplices who are still living to know there's an entire section of the Department of Justice that is going after them,' Talent said in a statement. 'We need to unearth the truth and do justice because there cannot be healing without the truth.'" The AP adds, "The Senate voted by unanimous consent to add the measure to the massive Commerce, Justice and Science appropriations bill, expected to pass the Senate this week. … A House-passed version of the bill does not include the civil rights measure, but lawmakers will try to include it in legislation that emerges from a conference committee."

Federal Judge Rules "Under God" In Pledge Unconstitutional. US District Judge Lawrence Karlton of Sacramento, California, yesterday ruled that the phrase "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance is an unconstitutional introduction of prayer into public schools. Michael Newdow, the atheist whose case was dismissed by the Supreme Court for a technicality, filed the case on behalf of the parents of two children. The new case means it is likely that the Supreme Court will have to rule on the merits of the case.

The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 5, 1:50, Andrews) reported, "The case, which is almost identical to the one argued at the Supreme Court last year was brought, again, by Michael Newdow, a California atheist who says his school-aged daughter should not be forced to recite 'under God.'" ABC World News Tonight (9/14, lead story, 2:45, Woodruff) reported that for now, the case "just impacts three school districts in California. But here is the bigger issue. It is already unconstitutional for the government to introduce prayer into the schools. So the question is, is the Pledge of Allegiance like a prayer? The District court in California said it was." Michael Newdow, the "acknowledged atheist who brought the case, called it justice." The school district "and a group representing parents in favor of the pledge today vowed to appeal. They said school children have always had the right to stand silently during the pledge." NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 9, 0:25, Williams) ran a similar report on the case.

Most major newspapers run articles on the pledge decision. USA Today (9/15, Willing) reports, "The phrase "under God" was added to the Pledge of Allegiance by Congress in 1954 after a campaign by the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic men's group." The Supreme Court "has never ruled on the constitutionality of reciting the pledge in public schools and has a mixed record in other cases involving the public invocation of the deity."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Dolan) adds "the Becket Fund, a religious rights group that is a party to the case, said it would immediately appeal the case to the San Francisco-based US 9th Circuit Court of Appeals." If the court "does not change its precedent, the group would go to the Supreme Court." The Washington Post (9/15, Pomfret), New York Times (9/15, Murphy), the AP (9/15, Kravets) Bloomberg News (9/15) and the Washington Times (9/15, Duin), among other sources, run similar stories.

Massachusetts Legislature Defeats Amendment To Ban Gay Marriage. The New York Times (9/15, Belluck) reports that in a "sign that the legalization of same-sex marriage has changed the political landscape in Massachusetts, the legislature soundly defeated a proposed constitutional amendment on Wednesday to ban gay marriage and create civil unions, an amendment that lawmakers gave preliminary approval to in a raucous constitutional convention last year." The 157-to-39 vote "by a joint session of the House and Senate partly reflected the fact that some legislators now consider same-sex marriage more politically acceptable, after a largely conflict-free year in which some 6,600 same-sex couples got married and lawmakers who supported it got re-elected." The vote also "reflected some lawmakers' reluctance to pass a bill that could either withdraw rights from already married couples or create a class of married gay men and lesbians and a class of those unable to marry."

The Washington Post (9/15, A3, Fahrenthold) reports that amid "a pep-rally atmosphere, Massachusetts legislators on Wednesday overwhelmingly rejected an attempt to halt same-sex marriages here -- showing how quickly gay nuptials have moved from being a court-ordered imposition to a powerful political cause." The vote "leaves same-sex marriage as the status quo in Massachusetts, and it now seems likely to remain so until at least 2008. But, in a broader sense, the vote also illuminated how widely Massachusetts has diverged from much of the nation, where several dozen states have passed laws limiting marriage to heterosexual couples." Politicians in Massachusetts "credit the weddings themselves with shifting the political momentum, saying their growing ordinariness has defused some of the opposition."

The Washington Times (9/15, Wetzstein) reports Massachusetts lawmakers "yesterday rejected a marriage constitutional amendment, guaranteeing that same-sex 'marriage' will continue in that state for at least three more years." The amendment was "approved last year, 105-92, and lawmakers had to pass it a second time to place it on the 2006 ballot. However, yesterday's 157-39 rejection showed how little support the amendment had after a year." Many lawmakers said they "rejected the measure because they no longer wanted to undo the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court's 2004 ruling legalizing same-sex 'marriage.'" With "yesterday's defeat, the battle shifts to a petition drive for a marriage constitutional amendment aimed at the 2008 ballot. The amendment, sponsored by VoteOnMarriage.org and supported by Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney, a Republican, would outlaw same-sex 'marriage' in Massachusetts upon passage."

Realtors' Study Finds Robust Real Estate Brokerage Competition. The Inman News (9/14, Swesey) reports, "A new study funded by the National Association of Realtors concludes that competition for customers among real estate brokerage firms in local housing markets across the nation is strong." Inman continues, "The study, compiled by researchers at Pennsylvania State University, looks at 12 local real estate markets and draws data from multiple listing services, interviews and secondary sources. … 'The central finding is the intense competition in local real estate markets,' Professor Steve Sawyer of Penn State's School of Information Sciences & Technology writes." Inman adds, "The report is timely in the continuing battle between the U.S. Justice Department and organized real estate. Competition in the real estate industry has come under fire after the DOJ filed an antitrust lawsuit last week against the National Association of Realtors over its policies for online listings. The DOJ charges that the powerful trade group's policies restrain competition by obstructing real estate brokers who use Web-based systems to offer consumers lower costs."

House Democrats Launch Attack On High Gas Prices. Knight Ridder (9/15, Recio) reports, "House Democratic leaders unveiled a plan Wednesday to combat what they said was price gouging at the pump, as some Republican lawmakers worried about the lackluster Bush administration response to high gasoline prices. … 'Many of America's families are experiencing a middle-class squeeze, and the price at the pump is becoming oppressive,' said House Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif, adding that prices were high even before Hurricane Katrina knocked out 20 percent of the nation's supply lines. … 'Something must be done about this,' Pelosi told reporters after House Democrats signed off on the plan at their weekly meeting. 'There must be a federal law to investigate and prosecute price gouging, and to receive damages from those in violation of the law' that would be directed to the federal home heating oil assistance program." Knight Ridder adds, "The nationwide average price of regular gasoline was $2.93 per gallon Wednesday, according to the AAA, down from the Sept. 5 high of $3.05, but still 49 cents higher than a month ago and $1.10 a gallon more expensive than a year ago. The average price in Texas was $2.83 per gallon Wednesday. … House Democratic Caucus Chairman Robert Menendez of New Jersey faulted the Bush administration for not having 'sensitivity' on the issue. 'Maybe it's because we have two oilmen in the White House,' Menendez said. … President Bush is a former Texas oilman and Vice President Dick Cheney ran the oil services giant Halliburton Co. Bush has said he will not tolerate gouging and White House spokesman Scott McClellan said last week that gasoline prices were too high and the administration's sales from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve would ease supplies - and prices."

Gillette Launches New Shaving System Amid Merger Concerns. The New York Times (9/15, Deutsch) reports, "Let regulators worry whether Gillette's proposed merger with Procter & Gamble poses antitrust problems. Let investors worry about how that merger will affect the fused companies' stocks. The people at Gillette have a far more immediate challenge: persuading men that they need to buy yet another new shaving system." The Times continues, "Yesterday, Gillette unveiled Fusion (manual) and Fusion Power (battery operated), a wet-shaving system with a lot more bells and whistles than the company's Mach3Turbo and M3Power, currently the top-selling shavers. It also announced a line of shaving creams and gels to go with the new razors. … Gillette Fusion is 'the future of shaving,' James M. Kilts, Gillette's chairman and chief executive, told analysts and reporters who had gathered in a Manhattan auditorium to hear the latest news. Not to be outdone in hyperbole, Peter K. Hoffman, president of Gillette's blades and razors unit, defined fusion for the crowd – 'a nuclear reaction in which nuclei combine to create power' - and intimated that the Fusion system's 'breakthrough technology' lives up to the analogy." The Times adds, "Much is at stake. According to Gillette, American men spent about $1.7 billion on blades and razors last year, and another $300 million on shaving creams and gels. Globally, shaving products accounted for more than $10.4 billion in sales. … Gillette has already filed 70 patents on the Fusion razors, and it expects to be able to command prices about 30 percent higher than for the Mach3. The manual razor and two cartridges will sell for about $9.99, with a 4-pack of refill cartridges going for about $11.99. Fusion Power, with one cartridge and a battery - Duracell, of course, since Gillette owns that brand - will retail for about $11.99, with refill 4-packs going for $13 or $14. … The elephant in the room, though, is the merger with Procter, which, barring regulatory holdups, should be completed this fall. Procter is already doing pre-emptive divestitures to ward off the antitrust cops - for example, it is selling its SpinBrush electric toothbrush business to Church & Dwight to avoid becoming too dominant in that area when it joins forces with Gillette's formidable Oral-B line."

P&G To Sell SpinBrush To Church & Dwight. The New York Times/Reuters (9/15) reports, "Church & Dwight Co. Inc. on Wednesday said it has agreed to buy the SpinBrush toothbrush business from Procter & Gamble Co., a sale P&G hopes will help lead to antitrust approval of its multibillion dollar acquisition of Gillette Co." Reuters continues, "P&G had agreed to divest the business, which had $110 million in sales in the fiscal year that ended June 30, as part of its negotiations over the Gillette deal with the European Commission. … SpinBrush competes with some of Gillette's Oral-B toothbrushes." Reuters adds, "Church & Dwight would pay an initial $75 million in cash at the closing of the deal, which would unite the battery-powered toothbrush with its Arm & Hammer and Mentadent toothpaste brands. An additional inventory settlement would be paid following the transfer of the business and Church & Dwight would also pay up to another $30 million based on near-term performance, Church & Dwight said. … The price would be sharply lower than the $475 million P&G paid for SpinBrush between 2000 and 2002. But while battery powered toothbrushes were a hot item in the oral care industry for a while, sales have waned in the category lately."

RIAA Urges File-Sharing Firms To Protect Music Industry Rights. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Mcbride) reports, "The Recording Industry Association of America has sent cease-and-desist letters to several file-sharing companies, including BearShare, LimeWire and WinMX, asking that they stop activities that allow users to download copyrighted music." The Journal continues, "The letters ask the companies to 'immediately cease and desist from enabling and inducing the infringement of RIAA member sound recordings,' according to a copy of the letter reviewed by The Wall Street Journal." The Journal adds, "The letters are an attempt by the music industry to build on the favorable ruling it received from the U.S. Supreme Court in June in the so-called Grokster case, involving a file-sharing company that was accused by the industry of facilitating copyright violations. In that ruling, the court found that copyright holders could sue file-sharing companies for encouraging people to violate copyrights. Now, the industry is taking the first step toward enforcing the ruling against other file-sharing companies. … 'Companies similar to Grokster have been given ample opportunity to do the right thing,' said the RIAA, which confirmed sending the letters to seven file-sharing companies. … The RIAA has long said it supports legal uses of file sharing. It wants file-sharing firms to alter their software -- for example, by creating filters to strip out copyrighted material or creating mechanisms to pay copyright holders. In recent months, it has been working with several file-sharing firms, including iMesh and Mashboxx, to create services that wouldn't violate copyrights."

Merger Specialist Joins JP Morgan Chase. The New York Times (9/15, Creswell) reports, "J. P. Morgan Chase said yesterday that Robert I. Lipp, a longtime financial services executive who has played a role in some of the biggest bank and insurance mergers in recent decades, is joining the bank as a senior adviser." The Times continues, "In his new role, Mr. Lipp, 67, will work closely with J. P. Morgan's chairman, William B. Harrison Jr., and its president, James Dimon, in strategic planning as the bank continues to integrate operations after last year's merger between J. P. Morgan Chase and Bank One." The Times adds, "While Morgan has been hampered from deal making by its low-valued stock, Mr. Dimon alluded in remarks this summer to analysts that the bank could be on the hunt for acquisitions as early as next year. … Mr. Lipp has a long personal and professional history with both Mr. Harrison and Mr. Dimon. He spent 23 years at Chemical Bank, where he worked with Mr. Harrison before leaving in the mid-1980's to join Sanford I. Weill at Commercial Credit, which is based in Baltimore. There, he worked alongside Mr. Dimon in turning the sleepy consumer finance company into the nation's largest financial services giant, Citigroup, through a series of acquisitions."

EU Fines Thread-Makers For Fixing Prices. Bloomberg News (9/15) reports, "European Union regulators fined manufacturers of industrial thread including Coats Ltd., the world's biggest, 43.5 million euros ($53 million) for operating a price-fixing cartel." Bloomberg continues, "The makers of thread used in products such as clothes, shoes, furniture and car seats held meetings starting in the 1990s to agree on prices, exchange information and allocate customers, the Brussels-based European Commission said today. The fine ends a probe that began with raids in the U.K. and Germany in 2001. … 'Cartel behavior is illegal, unjustified and unjustifiable, and will be punished severely no matter how large or small the companies involved,' Competition Commissioner Neelie Kroes said in a statement. 'I will not allow consumers to be denied the benefits of the single market by companies carving up markets between themselves.'" Bloomberg adds, "Under EU law, the commission, the EU's antitrust regulator, can fine companies accused of operating a cartel as much as 10 percent of their annual sales. It typically opts for about 2-3 percent of sales. The largest EU cartel fine was 462 million euros levied against Hoffmann-La Roche AG in 2001 for fixing the price of vitamins."

South Korea Fines Fixed-Line Telecom Firms For Price-Fixing. Asia Pulse (9/15) reports, "South Korea's antitrust regulator decided Thursday to slap fines on four local fixed-line telecommunication service providers for illegal cartel activities." Asia Pulse continues, "The nine-person committee of the Fair Trade Commission (FTC) ruled to levy a combined 25.74 billion won (US$25.1 million) in fines against the country's four fixed-line companies - KT Corp., Hanarotelecom Inc., Onse Telecom Co. and Dacom Corp.. … KT, the country's largest fixed-line telephone and broadband Internet operator, has been ordered to pay 23.87 billion won in fines for rigging the prices of both its long distance domestic services and international telephone services. … Dacom, the nation's second-largest long-distance telephone company, was slapped with a total 1.6 billion won in fines, with Onse being ordered to pay 2.1 billion won for its involvement in illegally fixing long distance and international telephone services. … Hanarotelecom was fined 60 million won for irregularities in its domestic long distance line operations."

Reuters (9/15) reports, "The commission also found evidences of collusion in the high-speed Internet service charges, but only issued orders to improve business practices without imposing fines, the spokesman said. … The punishment comes as local operators struggle with stalled growth and cut-throat competition. In a separate case in May, the FTC slapped a record $120 million fine on KT, hanarotelecom and Dacom over collusion in local calls and network connection charges."

European Bank Head Warns Against Removal Of Governor. The Financial Times (9/15, Atkins, Barber) reports, "Jean-Claude Trichet, the European Central Bank president, made clear on Wednesday he would oppose unwarranted political attempts to remove Antonio Fazio, the Bank of Italy governor engulfed in controversy over his handling of bank takeover bids." The Times continues, "Using national legislation to eject a central bank governor would set 'a catastrophic precedent for the independence of all central banks', Mr Trichet told the European parliament's monetary affairs committee." The Times adds, "He was speaking as Domenico Siniscalco, Italy's finance minister, put more pressure on Mr Fazio by saying Italy risked isolation in international financial markets unless its central bank and regulatory systems were profoundly reformed. … Mr Siniscalco and several other government ministers are demanding Mr Fazio's resignation for alleged improper conduct in two takeover battles for Italian banks. Critics accuse Mr Fazio of favouring domestic bidders over foreign ones. The central banker denies wrongdoing and has benefited from divisions in Italy's centre-right government over how, or even whether, to remove him."

ENVIRONMENT/INDIAN AFFAIRS:

Mirant Corp To Request Reopening Of Virginia Plant. The Washington Post (9/15, Markon) reports, "Mirant Corp. plans to propose that its Alexandria power plant, which provides electricity to homes in the District and Maryland, be allowed to reopen on a limited basis. The plant was closed last month because of environmental problems." The Post continues, "Under a tentative plan Mirant outlined last week in documents filed with federal regulators, the Potomac River plant would operate at a level 'significantly reduced from full capacity' that does not violate national air quality standards. At the same time, Mirant would continue studying long-term fixes such as burning cleaner coal or raising the height of the plant's smokestacks to disperse pollutants." The Post adds, "The plan must pass muster with the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ), which has ordered Mirant to take immediate steps to reduce pollution. DEQ spokesman Bill Hayden said the department has not seen a proposal from Mirant but 'will take a look at what they do propose. The main thing we're looking for is, if they are continuing to operate, it must be in a way that does not violate air quality standards.' … Federal regulators, meanwhile, are also evaluating a petition, filed by the D.C. Public Service Commission, that asks them to order the plant to reopen. Mirant revealed that it will probably propose the partial reopening in documents the company filed last week with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission." The Post notes, "Amid the blitz of regulatory activity, it remains unclear when the plant might reopen, even temporarily. And Mirant acknowledges that a full-scale resumption of operations could be more than a year away. Although the plant is in Alexandria, it does not serve Virginia."

Controversial Judge In Indian Trust Fund Case Profiled. The Washington Post (9/15, A31, Leonnig) reports, "The fans of U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth praise his straight-talking ways, his defense of the wronged, and his stinging rebukes of lawyers and officials who try to fudge the facts. … So many decades after he left his beloved Texas and cowboy roots for a legal career in government service, fellow judges and former colleagues say, old Royce still gets riled up when he smells a bunch of bull." The Post continues, "When Lamberth theorized in a July ruling that the Interior Department's failure, over many decades, to account for potentially billions of dollars owed to Native Americans could only be explained by outright evil, apathy, cowardice or -- more likely -- crushing bureaucratic incompetence, the Justice Department decided to go after the judge. … In one of the rarest legal moves Justice has ever taken, the government asked that a higher court remove Lamberth from a case he has overseen for the past nine years." The Post adds, "In the escalating and unparalleled war between the judge and Interior, Justice lawyers said privately they saw no other option. They argued to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit that Lamberth has gone overboard in a string of verbal harangues in recent years, accused agency officials of racism and lost the appearance of impartiality in the case. Already, he has found two secretaries of Interior in contempt of court and ordered sanctions against numerous government lawyers for improper conduct in the case. … When they stand before a different bench tomorrow, government lawyers are expected to try to shift the discussion from the acknowledged failure of Interior to properly account for money held in trust and due 50,000 Indians, to the often assaulting words and actions of a powerful Reagan appointee who has made no secret of his disgust. Only three times before has this appeals court disqualified a trial judge from a case."

Report Finds FBI Turnover Hampers Cooperation. The AP (9/15, Sherman) reports, "The FBI has experienced excessive turnover among senior officials, hampering cooperation with state and local authorities since the Sept. 11 attacks, a new report released Wednesday said." The AP continues, "The senior agents who run the 56 FBI field offices average just 15 months in their jobs before moving on to new assignments or leaving the bureau altogether, according to a report by the congressionally chartered National Academy of Public Administration. At FBI headquarters in Washington, the average posting for high-ranking officials is 13 months, the report said." The AP adds, "The short tenures of Special Agents in Charge of the field offices, or SACs in FBI parlance, make "it difficult for them to perform one of their most important functions, developing effective relationships with state and local officials," said former Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, chairman of the panel that produced the report. It was released at a House Appropriations subcommittee hearing on changes at the FBI following the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks. … Thornburgh told lawmakers at the hearing that he was 'astonished to see the short tenures of SACs.'" The AP notes, "No senior executive in Washington and only four SACs have been in their jobs longer than FBI Director Robert Mueller, who started work 10 days before the attacks."

Appellate Court Rules FBI Whistleblower May Seek Damages, Jury Trial. The AP (9/15, Jalonick) reports the 8th US Circuit "has ruled that Jane Turner, an FBI whistleblower who accused the agency of discrimination and retaliation, may seek monetary damages and a jury trial. Turner accused male FBI agents of mishandling several cases of sexual abuse in Indian country and alleged her superiors transferred her from Minot, N.D., to Minneapolis in retaliation for complaints about sexual discrimination." The 8th Circuit "said Turner had sufficient evidence to justify at trial over whether the transfer was in retaliation for her complaints. But the judges dismissed Turner's claims that she worked in a hostile environment and was a victim of discrimination because of her gender. An FBI spokeswoman said the agency would not comment on the case because the litigation is ongoing."

Mayor Of LA Meets With Gonzales Over Gang Intervention Programs. KCAL-TV Los Angeles (9/14, 12:13 p.m.) reported that mayor "Villaraigosa, is meeting with…Alberto Gonzales. Villaraigosa hopes to encourage Washington to develop gang intervention programs."

KABC-TV Los Angeles (9/14, 11:14 a.m.) also covered this story.

Guru Of Ganja" Challenges Drug Convictions. The AP (9/15, Kravets) reports, "Attorneys for a man who has written books on how to grow marijuana and avoid getting caught asked a federal appeals court Tuesday to overturn his drug convictions." The AP continues, "Ed Rosenthal, the self-described 'Guru of Ganja,' was convicted two years ago of growing and distributing hundreds of marijuana plants. He says he was authorized to do so by the city of Oakland under a 1996 California medical marijuana law." The AP adds, After U.S. District Judge Charles Breyer refused to allow a jury to hear that defense, Rosenthal was convicted of being a major drug supplier. … Breyer sentenced him to one day in prison on grounds that Rosenthal reasonably believed he was immune from prosecution because he was acting on behalf of Oakland city officials. The government and Rosenthal both appealed." The AP notes, "The government maintained Rosenthal, now 60, should have gotten at least 24 months. Amber Rosen, an assistant United States attorney, told a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that Breyer abused his discretion by issuing a sentence that fell outside sentencing guidelines."

Venezuela May Lose 'Certification' As Collaborating In The War On Drugs. The Financial Times (9/15, Webb-vidal) profiles Pedro Salcedo of Venezuela writing, "Fishing, however, is just an occasional pastime for Mr Salcedo. He makes better money transporting drugs to far-flung islands in the Caribbean, for a couple of thousand dollars a journey." The Times continues, "Mr Salcedo, and others like him, used to avoid soldiers from Venezuela's National Guard, the body charged with combating drugs-trafficking in the country, through which up to one-third of the cocaine smuggled from Colombia passes. But increasingly, US officials say, the fishermen are in competition with the National Guard, rogue elements of which also take part in drug-running. This may be one reason why the US...could remove Venezuela from its annual list of countries 'certified' as adequately collaborating in the war on drugs."

New Hampshire Drug Raids Yield 100 Indictments. New Hampshire's Union Leader (9/15) reports, "Operation Summer Sizzle" drug raids yielded more than 100 indictments against 41 people. The raids took place on Aug. 31 and involved 15 state and local law enforcement agencies, as well as the federal Drug Enforcement Administration. "The indictments were handed up on Monday by the Sullivan County grand jury. The raids took place mostly in Newport and Claremont, although arrests were made in Charlestown and Sunapee as well."

Texas Man Gets 55-Year Prison Sentence In Drug Case. The San Antonio (TX) Express (9/15) reports, "A federal judge on Wednesday sentenced a Texas Mexican Mafia member to 60 years in prison for his role in a violent drug-dealing conspiracy. Johnny "Gira" Garcia-Esparza, 45, was the last of four Mexican Mafia members awaiting punishment on charges stemming from their April conviction on drug-related charges." Garcia-Esparza was sentenced to 55 years in prison on the conspiracy and drug charges, plus five years on the gun charges. "Between 1999 and 2004, as many as 28 gang members were accused of delivering more than 150 kilos of cocaine and more than 30 kilos of heroin."

Mississippi Teen Convicted In Bomb Case. The Jackson Clarion-Ledger (9/15, Gates) reports, "A Brandon (MS) teenager who made a bomb powerful enough to blow up half of a car was convicted Tuesday of federal charges." The Clarion-Ledger continues, "U.S. District Judge William Barbour Jr. set James Vaughn Rankin, 19, sentencing for Dec. 1. He faces a maximum 30 years in prison. … Rankin was convicted of possession of an unregistered firearm, transfer of an unregistered firearm and the manufacture of an unregistered firearm." The Clarion-Ledger adds, "U.S. Assistant Attorney David Fulcher said Rankin intended for the bomb to kill. 'He said on the videotape it will destroy half of a car,' Fulcher said." The Clarion-Ledger notes, "During the two-day trial, jurors watched a videotape of Rankin selling the bomb to an undercover agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives. … Rankin's attorney, Federal Assistant Public Defender Kathy Nester, argued her client may have possessed the bomb, but the government didn't prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he intended to harm anyone. … Nester said ATF agent Connie Wilson testified on cross-examination that she didn't mention anything about wanting the bomb to kill an ex-husband until after Rankin had placed the device in her car. Also, Nester said the government didn't prove her client transported across state lines gunpowder used in making the bomb."

US Targets Alabama Gun Crime. The Fort Payne (AL) Times-Journal (9/13, Townsend) reports, "DeKalb County was one of five counties in Alabama that had indictments handed down Sept. 2 in federal court for various federal firearm violations. … The others were Cullman, Madison, Shelby and Jefferson counties." The Times-Journal continues, "U.S. Attorney Alice Martin would not release the names of those indicted. … 'The names of theses individuals are being withheld pending service of outstanding warrants,' Martin said. 'We cannot release any of this information, including how many were indicted in each county, until all the warrants have been served.'" The Times-Journal adds, "DeKalb County Drug Task Force Agent Darrell Collins said he couldn't recall the number of gun cases worked in the past couple of months. But he did say that normally, three-fourths of the methamphetamine cases they do work involve some type of firearm. … 'That is why we work with the ATF on a daily basis, in an effort to enforce the reduction of illegal gun use,' Collins said. … Martin, along with James M. Cavanaugh, Special Agent in Charge of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, said a grand jury returned indictments against 12 people in unrelated cases."

US Plan To Blow Up Rudolph Truck Upsets Bomb Victims' Families. The AP (9/15, Reeves) reports, "The government wants to blow up the truck Eric Rudolph was driving when he bombed an Alabama abortion clinic, a plan that has upset some of Rudolph's victims." The AP continues, "Authorities said they want to use the pickup truck in a training drill to prevent it from ending up in the hands of Rudolph's admirers. … 'It was done partly out of concern that it would show up on eBay,' said Assistant U.S. Attorney James Ingram, referring to the Internet auction site. 'Somebody would plunk down some money for it.' … But nurse Emily Lyons, who was badly wounded in the clinic bombing, believes the truck should go to Rudolph's victims, who are unlikely to get any other compensation, according to her husband, Jeff Lyons." The AP adds, "In 2003, a state court judge awarded the couple $115 million in a lawsuit against Rudolph, who was declared indigent in federal court and has not paid anything. Trucks similar to Rudolph's 1989 Nissan have a retail value of about $1,700, according to Kelley Blue Book, a pricing guide for used vehicles. … 'We had the judgment before they did the seizure,' Jeff Lyons said Wednesday. … Shortly after the clinic bombing, a witness recorded the truck's license plate number and reported it to police, who used the information to identify Rudolph as a suspect in the explosion. He was later tied to the 1996 Olympic park bombing and two other bombings in Atlanta in 1997."

Marshals Reverse Ban On Releasing Mug Shots. The Detroit News (9/15, Shepardson) reports, "The U.S. Marshals Service has reversed a ban on releasing mug shots in response to a pair of federal lawsuits." The News continues, "In an Aug. 10 memorandum made public Friday, the service's Office of General Counsel told officials in Michigan, Kentucky, Ohio and Tennessee -- the states covered by the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals -- that they must release the photographs." The News adds, "The memo rescinded an Aug. 19, 2004, order that said officials would no longer release the mug shots, citing a March U.S. Supreme Court decision. … In that unanimous decision, the court said the government wasn't required to release four photographs of former White House lawyer Vincent Foster's dead body, saying it would violate the family's privacy." The News notes, "Two newspapers filed separate lawsuits this spring seeking to overturn an August 2004 decision by the U.S. Marshal Service to stop releasing the booking photos of prisoners to news media outlets and others under the Freedom of Information Act. … The Justice Department reversed itself and agreed to release the mugshots."

IMMIGRATION:

Arizona Bosnian Serbs Charged With Lying On Immigration Applications. The AP (9/15, DeFalco) reports, "Thirteen Bosnian Serbs living here were indicted on charges of lying to American authorities about their service in the Serbian Army and seven others were being detained for similar reasons, federal authorities said Wednesday." The AP notes, "This week's apprehensions left many in Phoenix's Bosnian Serbian community confounded as to why their friends and family members were taken away after living in this country peacefully for so many years." Goran Spiric, whose father and brother were among those arrested, "said he came to America 11 years ago from a concentration camp where he was kept by Bosnian Muslims, wondered if he would also be apprehended. 'Every single morning I go to work, I carefully watch on both sides and wonder if the FBI or someone is watching me,' Spiric said."

Defense Lawyer Seeks Dismissal Of Charges Against Bosnian Serb In Massachusetts. The Boston Globe (9/15) reports, "Charges against a Peabody construction worker accused of hiding his role in a Bosnian Muslim massacre should be thrown out because Marko Boskic was forced under threat of death to participate in the Srebrenica killings, his lawyer said yesterday." Defense attorney Max Stern told a US District Judge Douglas Woodlock "that Boskic was not deceptive on immigration forms when he entered the United States in 2000 and that he was never motivated by the fact that the victims were Muslim." The Globe notes, "Boskic faces a five-count indictment of fraudulently entering the US as a refugee, as well as concealing his past in a Bosnian Serb Army unit accused of killing some 7,000 Muslim men and boys."

Rove Discusses Immigration Reform With Lawmakers. With the capitol's focus on hurricane Katrina relief threatening to crowd the legislative agenda, White House Deputy Chief of Staff Karl Rove met with Reps. Jeff Flake and Jim Kolbe to discuss immigration reform. The key issue splitting the GOP seems to be whether an immigration reform bill registering illegal immigrants currently employed in the US should require immigrants to return to their countries of origin. The Hill (9/15, O'Connor) reports that while immigration reform is a difficult issue for GOP lawmakers because it "divides supporters of the business community from those social conservatives," with "the political climate favoring "a strong border-security measure, the business lobby could be essential in creating the political momentum to pass a broader bill through the Senate." Sens. Jon Kyl and John Cornyn support requiring immigrants to return while Kolbe, Flake and Sens. Edward Kennedy and John McCain support legislation without the requirement.

Kilgore Pledges Crackdown On Firms Hiring Illegal Aliens. The Washington Times (9/15, Bellantoni) reports Republican candidate Jerry W. Kilgore said "if elected he will go after businesses that knowingly hire illegal aliens." Kilgore said, "They are supposed to check for legal status. If they are knowingly violating the law they shouldn't be getting state contracts and they should not be getting state credits and benefits." The Times adds that Kilgore's "comments come one day after he debated" Democrat Timothy M. Kaine "over a host of topics, including the establishment of a day laborer center in Herndon that will provide services for legal immigrants and illegal aliens." Kilgore has said "officials in Northern Virginia are giving incentives to illegals by allowing such centers. One way to address the problem would be to revoke any tax credits or benefits companies receive from the state if they knowingly hire illegal aliens, he said."

TAX:

Anti-Tax Advocate Schiff Stands Trial In Nevada. The Las Vegas Sun (9/14, Kihara) reports, "The defendant in a tax evasion trial that began on Tuesday said he is innocent of the charges against him because there is essentially no law that requires people to pay income tax." The Sun continues, "In a rambling opening statement that brought at least seven objections from a Justice Department lawyer and just as many admonitions from U.S. District Judge Kent Dawson, Irwin Schiff also tried to discount his alleged influence, saying that doctors, lawyers and others wouldn't stop paying income taxes just because he told them to. … 'In my view, there is no law requiring people to pay income tax,' said Schiff, who is representing himself in the criminal case against him. … The trial is expected to last five weeks."

The Las Vegas Review-Journal (9/14, Thevenot) reports, "Prosecutors began presenting evidence Tuesday against Schiff and two of his followers, Cynthia Neun and Lawrence Cohen, who are accused of conspiring to defraud the federal government. … 'Nobody likes to pay taxes, but that's not what this case is about,' Justice Department attorney Jeffrey Neiman told the jury." The Review-Journal adds, "Schiff, the 77-year-old owner of Freedom Books in Las Vegas, has made a career of teaching his customers how to avoid paying federal income tax. … He claims no law requires Americans to pay the tax, and he has written several books advocating his position. … Neiman said the main issue in the criminal case is: 'What were the defendants aware of, and what were they told?' … The prosecutor said evidence will prove that the defendants knew the law and chose to violate it."

The AP (9/14) reports, "Schiff is accused of failing to report income on federal tax returns from 1987 to 2002, and of evading payment of $1.3 million in taxes, penalties and interest between 1979 and 1985. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of 43 years in prison and $3.25 million in fines. … Attorneys for co-defendants Cynthia Neun and Lawrence Cohen, who worked for Schiff, said their clients believed their conduct was legal." The AP adds, "Neun's lawyer, Michael Cristalli, said Neun followed Schiff's tax advice partly because of his powerful personality but also because she did not believe she was violating the law."

CONGRESS-ADMINISTRATION:

Roberts Jousts With Senators On Second Day Of Confirmation Hearing. Chief Justice nominee John Roberts yesterday appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee for a second day. He again received praise from observers for his intellect and wit, but Democrats were "frustrated" by some Roberts' answers, which some Democrats found evasive. Despite the Democrats' complaints, the media consensus continues to be that Roberts will easily be confirmed. CBS' Bob Schieffer summed up what most observers are predicting when he said it "sounds like it is going to be a slam dunk right now." Likewise, Dana Milbak writes in today's Washington Post (9/15) that by yesterday "the confirmation hearing had lost much of what little suspense it had in the first place. The only speculation in the halls outside the hearing was how many, if any, Democrats on the committee would vote for Roberts en route to his all-but-certain confirmation."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 2, 2:10, Douglass) reported, "Senators were frustrated as they tried to pin Roberts down on some of the country's most emotional issues." Without "mentioning Terri Schiavo by name, Democrats demanded to know if families have the right to remove a loved one from life support." Some Republicans "pushed him on abortion, pushing him to say a fetus is a person with rights." Democrats "tried to shake Roberts by suggesting that he's been deceptive. He told them firmly that he's answered more questions than any other nominee."

The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 8, 2:55, Schieffer) reported, "Roberts said little on key issues, but that didn't stop senators from asking." CBS (Borger) added, "Today, the confirmation hearing of Judge John Roberts moved between the controversies of when life begins to when it ends." Roberts "did give some hints on issues, such as his approval of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's view of affirmative action, which she considered acceptable in some cases." Yet Roberts "didn't miss the chance to defend his view of both the confirmation process and the job of a judge." Judge Roberts: "It is not a process under which senators get to say, 'I want you to rule this way, and if you tell me that you'll rule this way, I'll vote for you.' Judges are not politicians. They cannot promise to do certain things in exchange for votes. I think I've been much more forthcoming than other nominees." After the hearing, Sen. Biden "said that Judge Roberts is one of the best witnesses they had had before the committee in 30 years. And he was a great witness, but he didn't answer the questions the Democrats wanted answered." Schieffer: "It sounds like it's going to be a slam dunk right now." Borger: "Sure does."

NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 10, 1:10, Williams) reported, "There were more tough questions today, although the reviews are high for his intellect and ability."

The Washington Post (9/15, C1, Davis) reports, "Things are going pretty much like the day before: Democrats are pressing Roberts on voting rights and issues of privacy (translation: Roe v. Wade), and Roberts is looking a little bit like a young Muhammad Ali dancing his way around the hearing room."

The New York Times (9/15, Liptak, Toner) says Roberts "faced increasingly contentious questions from Democrats on Wednesday as he outlined his views on an array of legal issues," but "repeatedly declined to address some of the most ideologically charged matters, including whether the Constitution establishes a right to abortion and a right to die. 'I'm not standing for election,' Judge Roberts said in one testy exchange on end-of-life issues on the third day of his confirmation hearings for chief justice of the United States." His "refusal to elaborate on his statement that there is a constitutionally protected right to privacy drew criticism from Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware, one of several Democrats on the Judiciary Committee who challenged him with growing frustration on Wednesday. 'Without any knowledge of your understanding of the law, because you will not share it with us,' Mr. Biden said, 'we are rolling the dice with you, Judge.'" But Roberts, "by the end of a second long day of careful, unflappable testimony, appeared in comfortable position for a confirmation vote next Thursday." A second New York Times (9/15, Stolberg) story reports "the nominee is not talking nearly enough to satisfy Democrats, and how he is interpreting his standard has become a major flashpoint in the hearings."

The Baltimore Sun (9/15, Shaw) also says that "barring a major surprise, the Senate will confirm him as the nation's 17th chief justice this month." The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Cummings, Bravin), however, says "White House hopes for Judge John Roberts to be confirmed as chief justice by a wide margin in the Senate grew dimmer yesterday, as Democrats complained that the nominee gave narrowly crafted responses or declined to answer questions about civil rights, privacy and other issues." Roberts "is likely to be confirmed," but "Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee have stepped up their accusations that he is being evasive, and will use that claim to lobby their colleagues to withhold their votes."

USA Today (9/15, Biskupic, Kiely) says Roberts "suggested Wednesday that his views on civil rights were more moderate than those he expressed during his days as a Reagan administration lawyer," and he "hinted at a concern for gay men and lesbians who might face discrimination." Roberts also "described several principles that seemed to separate his legal views from those of Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas, the high court's most conservative members." The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Savage) headlines its story "Roberts Distances Himself From Court Originalists," reporting Roberts "went out of his way at his Senate confirmation hearing to put some distance between himself and Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas."

In an analysis piece, Charles Lane writes in the Washington Post (9/15) that "a new image of President Bush's nominee for chief justice of the United States is coming into focus. Still blurry at the edges, thanks to Roberts's refusal to declare how he would rule on abortion rights and other specific issues, it is nevertheless a picture of a conservative different in important respects from the two members of the Supreme Court whom Bush has said he most admires," Scalia and Thomas.

The Legal Times (9/15, Goldman, Mauro) reports, "John Roberts Jr. moved into the second day of questioning before the Senate Judiciary Committee on Wednesday, with Democrats still complaining that the likely future chief justice remains too much of a cipher, and with GOP committee members stressing that Roberts has answered more questions than any other nominee. … 'I do think I've been more expansive than most nominees, and those justices were confirmed,' Roberts told Sen. Jon Kyl, R-Ariz." The Times continues, "The committee will wrap up questioning of Roberts on Thursday morning, then proceed directly to six panels of witnesses, who will speak for and against the nominee. … Committee Chairman Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said late Wednesday that he would conclude the Roberts hearings on Thursday and set a committee vote on the nominee for Sept. 22." The Times adds, "As in his testimony on the previous day, Roberts was probed about his views on the Voting Rights Act, privacy and the judiciary's proper role in interpreting congressional statutes. … And as in Tuesday's performance, Roberts was loath to do more than outline in the broadest terms his view of how he would adjudicate certain issues … " The Times notes, "One chief counsel for a committee Republican noted the reams of paperwork being passed between staff and the panel's 18 members and remarked, 'Roberts has just got all this stuff in his head.' … Indeed, by the end of the day, the most interesting question was not whether Roberts would win confirmation, but whether he would secure any Democratic votes in the process."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Schmitt, Reynolds) describes the Democrats' questioning as "relentless and occasionally sharp," and adds "his new comments leaned toward a more moderate position than some of his writings as a Justice Department lawyer in the Reagan administration." However, "they were so sparse and cautiously phrased that they sparked protests from Democrats about his refusal to be more forthcoming."

A similar Reuters dispatch (9/15, Ferraro) reports Roberts said that if confirmed "he would seek consensus on the often bitterly divided Supreme Court that has spawned frustration with a series of 5-4 rulings." Roberts "calmly countered the complaint as he appeared headed toward confirmation by the Republican-led Senate before the court begins its new term on October 3."

The Democrats' frustration is also the major topic in the Washington Post (9/15, Babington, Becker), which says Democratic senators "angrily accused" the nominee "of hiding his views on end-of-life questions, privacy and other contentious issues." Roberts "Republican supporters," adds the Post, "said his confirmation is virtually assured." Sen. Charles E. Schumer "accused Roberts of treating the hearing room as a 'cone of silence.' 'It seems strange, I think, to the American people that you can't talk about decided cases -- past cases, not future cases -- when you've been nominated to the most important job in the federal judiciary,' the senator said."

The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Richey) says Roberts' plan is to "reveal just enough information about his approach to judging to convince the senators of his integrity and constitutional expertise -0 but not enough to permit someone to forecast how he might vote once on the high court." Roberts "isn't just fighting for himself. If he is successful in holding that line he will help set the stage for the president's next high court nominee -- the pick that will replace centrist Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and potentially swing the court to the right." So far, "Roberts has fended off, dodged, and sidestepped his way through a gauntlet of Senate Judiciary Committee questions." But he "bottom line" is "Senators -- and the American public -- are learning precious little about which way Roberts is likely rule as the nation's most powerful judge."

The Hill (9/15, Allen) says the nominee "sailed through a second day of inquiries from the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, leaving some lawmakers and analysts to wonder whether President Bush's pick to fill a second Supreme Court vacancy will be able to measure up." Roberts "fielded and at times sidestepped questions with poise and humor, even as Democratic Senate heavyweights Joseph Biden (Del.) and Edward Kennedy (Mass.) pressed him repeatedly on civil rights and whether people have a right to determine when they die." Some "wondered if Roberts's composure and ability to establish his own framework for which questions to answer and which to avoid will set an artificially high bar for the next nominee."

The Washington Post (9/15, Goldstein) reports, "As Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee try to cast doubt on whether…Roberts deserves to become chief justice of the United States, the main club they are wielding are his own words -- as glimpsed in memos he wrote, as a young but well-positioned legal adviser inside the Reagan revolution, on the most polarizing civil rights issues of a generation ago." For two days, "the Democrats have read excerpts -- and at times even handed the nominee copies of his own work -- on voting rights, sex discrimination, affirmative action, racial bias, and the possibility of stripping the Supreme Court of jurisdiction over certain kinds of rights cases." The Post adds, "To try to blunt the impact of this document assault, Roberts has employed a two-pronged strategy: He has asserted that his words and legal reasoning were merely those of a staff lawyer. And he has largely refused to embrace or disavow the views his memos espouse."

The Washington Times (9/15, Hurt) focuses on Roberts' comments on eminent domain, reporting Roberts "told senators yesterday that laws restricting the government's power of eminent domain are legitimate, despite a landmark Supreme Court decision earlier this year that broadly expanded that authority." Roberts, adds the Times, "finished a second day of testimony yesterday with a few flare-ups, but no major upsets." The hearings "have been so devoid of fireworks that Senate staffers are having a hard time keeping the limited public seating area filled."

A second Washington Times (9/15, Hurt) adds that with Roberts' confirmation "appearing more likely, members of the Senate Judiciary Committee have resorted to using the hearings to lobby the nominee about their own favorite issues." Senators "have pressed their views on the prospective chief justice about televising Supreme Court proceedings, the right to die and abortion, among other issues."

The Washington Times (9/15, Taylor) also focuses on Roberts' "management of the Supreme Court," and how it "could differ starkly from his predecessor and mentor William H. Rehnquist: The number of cases the court takes on is likely to increase." Under Rehnquist, "the average high court caseload dropped from about 150 to 80 cases a year -- a trend Judge Roberts appeared intent on reversing during exchanges yesterday."

54% Paying "Close Attention" To Roberts Hearing. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 7, 0:20, Schieffer) reported, "Even with so much attention on Hurricane Katrina, more Americans now say they are paying attention to the nomination of Judge John Roberts to be the next chief justice of the United States. In a new CBS News/'New York Times' poll, 54% said they were paying close attention. But 63% felt they didn't know enough to say whether Roberts should be confirmed."

Conservatives Seek Memos Detailing Contacts Between Democrats, Interest Groups. The Hill (9/15, Bolton) reports, "Conservative strategists are drafting a letter to Democratic members of the Senate Judiciary Committee demanding the release of hundreds of internal memos detailing contacts between the lawmakers and liberal interest groups opposing John Roberts's nomination to the Supreme Court." By "planning to press Democrats on the sensitive subject, conservatives seem to be pulling a page from the Democrats' own political playbook. In the weeks leading up to the confirmation hearings, Senate Democrats have repeatedly called on the White House to give them memos Roberts penned while he was deputy solicitor general in President George H.W. Bush's administration." In their letter, "conservatives quote [Sen. Pat] Leahy's argument that the Senate should have access to the withheld documents. In the letter, they assert that the public is equally entitled to know what is motivating and directing Senate Democratic scrutiny of Roberts, according to a verbal summary given to The Hill."

"Testy" Specter Questioning Seen As Sign Of Estrangement Between Congress, Court. The New York Times (9/15, Greenhouse) reports, "Senator Arlen Specter's testy interrogation of Judge John G. Roberts Jr. on the Supreme Court's treatment of Congress may well have left viewers scratching their heads on Wednesday morning, with cryptic references to the 'congruence and proportionality test' and to unfamiliar case names like 'Lane and Hibbs.'" But "the line of questioning that Mr. Specter, the Pennsylvania Republican who is Judiciary Committee chairman, chose to pursue offered a window on the increasingly troubled relationship between the court and Congress, as well as on one of the most consequential developments of the Rehnquist court's later years." In a series of decisions, "many written by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist himself, the court declared unconstitutional acts of Congress that had been passed by broad bipartisan majorities. … From 1995 to 2003, the Supreme Court overturned all or parts of 33 federal statutes, 10 of them on the ground that Congress had exceeded its authority either to regulate interstate commerce or to enforce the constitutional guarantees of due process and equal protection."

Meanwhile, The Hill (9/15, Savodnik) reports this morning "the anti-abortion-rights group Concerned Women for America (CWA) is applying pressure on…Specter…to back Supreme Court Chief Justice nominee John Roberts. 'When it comes time for the committee to vote, Chairman Specter's promise of fairness should lead him to the inescapable conclusion that it couldn't possibly be fair not to vote for this exceptionally qualified nominee,' said the CWA chief counsel, Jan LaRue."

Brownback Hopes Next High Court Nominee Will Have Track Record Of Opposition To Roe. Roll Call (9/15, Kane) reports, "Sen. Sam Brownback (R-Kan.) said Wednesday that he would like the next Supreme Court nominee to have a detailed track record opposing the Roe v. Wade decision, as opposed to the relatively limited record on abortion issues held by Judge John Roberts." While Brownback "expects to support Roberts as President Bush's pick for chief justice of the United States, he warned that he and many in the conservative movement would like the nominee to replace retiring Associate Justice Sandra Day O'Connor to have a clearer record of opposing abortion rights than Roberts."

More Commentary On Roberts Hearings. The New York Times (9/15) writes in an editorial, "Roberts's record, on the bench and off, puts him well to the right end of the ideological spectrum." The Times adds that "there's reason for concern. He did not say he agrees with Roe, for instance, only that it is entitled to deference. That is a truism: all of the court's decisions are entitled to such deference, but some are reversed anyway." Senate Democrats "have two goals. Before Mr. Roberts…becomes chief justice for life, they want to try to determine that he does not hold far-right views on important issues. … No less important, Senate Democrats are putting down markers for the next judicial battle. … By subjecting Judge Roberts to tough questioning, they are sending a message that if President Bush chooses a far-right nominee, he can expect a major fight."

Meanwhile, the Washington Post (9/15) editorializes, "The cumulative impression is of a cautious, incremental conservative, unlikely to unmask himself as a liberal once on the bench but unlikely as well to try to impose his own political agenda."

Morton Kondracke writes in Roll Call (9/15), "It's about as certain as anything that John Roberts will be the next chief justice of the United States, but it's anything but certain where he'll come out ideologically." Roberts "may be a conservative, but he's not a rigid, big-C conservative ideologue. And, assuming he's being honest, he's not going to be the activist hoped for by the right and feared by the left."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15) runs an editorial titled "Dean Of The Democrats," but "not Howard. The Dean whom Democrats have tapped to represent them at John Roberts's confirmation hearings this week is John W. Dean III, White House Counsel to President Nixon and one of the architects of the Watergate coverup. … This paragon of the law is now a columnist for FindLaw.com, where he has been writing articles opposing Mr. Roberts's confirmation. … In other words, the Democrats are using a man who will go down in history for facilitating a Presidential coverup to make the case for open government." Meanwhile, "they ignore six Solicitors General from several administrations, Democrat and Republican, who have said publicly that the Roberts documents are covered by attorney-client privilege and should be kept confidential. So: a bipartisan group of law-abiding SGs vs. a convicted felon and Watergate enabler? You make the call."

Bush Thanks Nations For Katrina Help, Links Terror Fight To Reducing Poverty.

President Bush yesterday spoke to the UN General Assembly, calling for reform of the international body, particularly its handling of human rights, and a stepped up effort to end poverty and defeat terrorism. The speech received coverage in major newspapers, local TV stations across the country and the network's evening newscasts. The most notable exception was CBS, which offered no coverage of Bush's remarks on the CBS Evening News.

With the speech covering a variety of topics, TV reports have no overarching theme. Most print stories, meanwhile, focus on what they describe as the President's "conciliatory" tone in addressing the UN. Most newspaper articles also note Bush's words linking the reduction of trade barriers to eliminating poverty and defeating terrorism. That theme was largely ignored by network news and local TV stations.

For example, ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 4, 1:05, Vargas) reported, "Bush addressed the UN General Assembly and thanked the international community for helping victims of Katrina. Then he said the UN must work to reform itself, especially when it comes to human rights." Bush was shown saying, "When this great institution's member states choose notorious abusers of human rights to sit on the UN Human Rights Commission, they discredit a noble effort and undermine the credibility of the whole organization." Vargas: "These meetings bring together all sorts of strange bedfellows. The new President of Iran, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, was there for President Bush's speech. And he addressed the assembly later in the day. The US accuses his country of trying to build nuclear weapons, and right after the Iranian president began speaking, the US delegation walked out."

Meanwhile, NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 7, 0:50, Williams) reported, "Bush called on world leaders at the United Nations to step up the global war on terrorism." Bush was shown saying, "The terrorists must know that wherever they go, they cannot escape justice. We must send a clear message to the rulers of outlaw regimes that sponsor terror and pursue weapons of mass murder -- you will not be allowed to threaten the peace and stability of the world." NBC also noted the President today "thanked the more than 100 nations -- including Iraq and North Korea -- that have offered help to the victims of Hurricane Katrina."

Likewise, local TV stations chose to emphasize different aspects of the President's remarks. However, the subject most mentioned by local news was terrorism. Typical of that kind of story was WTSP-TV Tampa (9/14, 12:13 p.m.), which reported, "The global war on terror is the main issue" in the speech. WCCO-TV Minneapolis (9/14, 12:06 p.m.) said, "Once again he called on the nations to put the terrorists on notice." WOIO-TV Cleveland (9/14, 12:09 p.m.) added Bush was addressing "a skeptical and silent audience"

A few stations mentioned that the President signed an agreement to suppress nuclear terrorism. KING-TV Seattle (9/14, 12:21 p.m.) reported, "President Bush signed a United Nations resolution to formally strengthen international steps to combat terrorism. It would mandate a global commitment to prosecute and extradite those who are not in accordance."

WEWS-TV Cleveland (9/14, 5:15 p.m.) and KATU-TV Portland, OR (9/14, 11:10 p.m.) also reported on the resolution.

Coverage of the President's thanking the world for its help with the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina did not receive quite as much coverage as the terrorism issue. A typical example is KPHO-TV Phoenix (9/14, 5:13 p.m.) which reported, "President Bush thanked all who had offered help to victims of Katrina. Then he got down to other business: terrorism." KPRC-TV Houston (9/14, 5:17 p.m.) also said, "Addressing the United Nations, President Bush thanks the countries around the world that sent help for victims of Hurricane Katrina. The president says that just as Americans have seen the awesome power of nature, they have also witnessed the greater power of human compassion."

The third most commonly mentioned issue was the President's call for support in Iraq. KMGH-TV Denver (9/14, 5:13 p.m.) said Bush "focused most of the speech on Iraq and warned of the problems they could face if the blueprint for a free Iraq fails." WAGA-TV Atlanta (9/14, 12:23 p.m.), WJW-TV Cleveland (9/14, 10:13 p.m.), and WFOR-TV Miami (9/14, 5:12 p.m.) ran almost identical reports.

Bush's call for lowering trade barriers received a lot less attention than the topics covered above. KING-TV Seattle (9/14, 12:20 p.m.), for example, reported, "Bush challenged the countries of the United Nations to eliminate trade barriers saying if they do, the United States would also." WAGA-TV Atlanta (9/14, 12:23 p.m.) said that he "made a major pitch for scrapping agricultural tariffs saying more open trade would be a boost to nations."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Farley, Vieth) says Bush "surprised delegates by reversing US stances on trade and development that had nearly scuttled weeks of negotiation on the reforms. 'To spread a vision of hope, the United States is determined to help nations that are struggling with poverty,' Bush said. 'We are committed to the Millennium Development Goals.'" Those goals "include cutting poverty and hunger in half, ensuring universal education and stemming the spread of AIDS by 2015." Reuters (9/15, Bohan) adds trade "experts saw little chance of the pledge becoming a reality."

Under the headline "At UN, Bush Links War On Terrorism To Anti-Poverty Efforts," the Washington Post (9/15, Baker, Lynch) reports, "Bush's two-day visit here focused his attention back on world affairs at a time of domestic crisis along the Gulf Coast. Many of his counterparts expressed their sympathy following the death and devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina; more than 115 countries have offered assistance. " Bush's "rhetorical nod to international harmony contrasted with past visits by Bush to the United Nations that were marked by bitter disagreement over the war in Iraq. Since his reelection last year, Bush has worked to heal those wounds and has adopted a more multilateral approach to sensitive issues such as Iran's nuclear program." A second Washington Post story (9/15, Kessler) reports, "Bush's speech Wednesday lacked the confrontational tone of his previous addresses here, and he reached out for common goals and objectives." Bush "even lingered to participate for the first time in a session of the UN Security Council and then joined other world leaders for a meal."

A similar theme runs though a New York Times story (9/15, Sanger, Hoge) headlined "Bush Thanks World Leaders And Takes Conciliatory Tone." The Times reports Bush described himself as "the grateful leader of a superpower that in recent days has received emergency aid from nations around the world." The President "balanced his discussion of the need to chase down terrorists with his endorsement of a set of antipoverty objectives called the millennium development goals. … Rather than declare, as he had in the past, that countries had to choose to be 'with us or against us' in battling terrorists, Mr. Bush cast himself as the leader of one of many nations fighting the same plague."

Print media emphasizes that the President suggested a link between lowering trade barriers and ending terrorism. USA Today (9/15) reports, "Declaring that poverty breeds despair and terrorism, Bush challenged world leaders to abolish trade tariffs and subsidies to promote prosperity and opportunity in poor nations, a move that would be worth billions of dollars." The President is quoted saying, "There can be no safety in looking away or seeking the quiet life by ignoring the hardship and oppression of others. Either hope will spread, or violence will."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, King Jr.) reports, "Bush traveled here with several aims. The US hopes to build support from China, Russia and other nations to bring Iran's nuclear program before the Security Council, and to keep up pressure on North Korea through the six-party talks under way in Beijing." Bush "and his aides also have used the gathering to push for other goals, such as health programs and trade."

Meanwhile, the Washington Times (9/15, Sammon) runs a story titled "Bush Hits UN Corruption," reporting the President "implored the United Nations to rid itself of corruption and scolded the global body for squandering the world's respect and making a mockery of human rights."

More Commentary On Bush's Speech. In an editorial, the Los Angeles Times (9/15) says that Bush "deserves credit for making foreign aid a priority in a country where African poverty seldom shows up on the political radar screen. Yet this has the effect of making the administration's truculence on the Millennium Development Goals all the more frustrating. The administration has not met its commitments, and the president has failed to live up to his own inspirational rhetoric. Until it has and he does, speeches like the one Bush delivered on Wednesday will continue to be seen as cynical political ploys."

The New York Times (9/15) writes in an editorial, "Yesterday, Mr. Bush declared: 'The United States is ready to eliminate all tariffs, subsidies and other barriers to free flow of goods and services as other nations do the same. This is key to overcoming poverty in the world's poorest nations.' These were exactly the right words, and we applaud them. Now, let's get to it. The world is waiting."

USA Today (9/15) editorializes, "Bush is following the path of many second-term presidents who show a better understanding of the way the world works after a steep foreign-policy learning curve. In the short run, the legacy of the administration's in-your-face approach during Bush's first term is that the United States faces an increasingly lonely task trying to extricate itself from Iraq during his second." However, "over time…Bush's new attitude toward international cooperation might help turn global opinion around."

In Prime Time Speech From New Orleans, Bush Will Vow To Rebuild Gulf Coast.

President Bush will address the nation tonight from New Orleans. In his remarks, the President is expected to pledge additional Federal help to rebuilt the areas ravaged by Katrina. Moreover, Bush will outline steps to incorporate what the Wall Street Journal (9/15, Wilke, Mullins) calls "a broad range of conservative economic and social policies" into the government's rebuilding effort. Some of those measures, adds the Journal, "are already taking shape. In the past week, the Bush administration has suspended some union-friendly rules that require federal contractors pay prevailing wages, moved to ease tariffs on Canadian lumber, and allowed more foreign sugar imports to calm rising sugar prices. Just yesterday, it waived some affirmative-action rules for employers with federal contracts in the Gulf region. Now, Republicans are working on legislation that would limit victims' right to sue, offer vouchers for displaced school children, lift some environment restrictions on new refineries and create tax-advantaged enterprise zones to maximize private-sector participation in recovery and reconstruction."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Hart, Hook) adds, "White House aides said President Bush's address to the nation tonight would call for reconstructing the Gulf Coast using conservative blueprints and private-sector initiatives. In preparing for his speech to be delivered from New Orleans, the president consulted widely with Republican leaders and conservative thinkers."

USA Today (9/15, Keen) reports that in his prime-time address tonight, President Bush "will tell the nation…that he's committed to rebuilding New Orleans and the Gulf Coast, while eliminating the poverty and joblessness that were exposed in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. Dan Bartlett, Bush's counselor, said the president will reflect on 'the horrific suffering' in the region and 'outline the beginnings of a vision of the future.'" Bush will speak from New Orleans and "pledge more federal help providing housing, health care and education to evacuees." The speech "is part of a White House plan to show the president's concern and commitment to the devastated region after criticism about initial slow responses by Bush and federal agencies. Bush's statement Tuesday that he takes responsibility for those problems was part of the plan."

The Washington Post (9/15, A1, Weisman, VandeHei) also reports Bush "will call tonight for an unprecedented federal commitment to rebuild New Orleans and other areas obliterated by Hurricane Katrina, putting the United States on pace to spend more in the next year on the storm's aftermath than it has over three years on the Iraq war, according to White House and congressional officials. With the federal tab for Katrina already nearly quadruple the cost of the country's previous most expensive natural disaster cleanup, Bush plans to offer federal assistance to help flood victims find jobs, get housing and health care, and attend school."

USA Today (9/15, Hall) writes, "More than 100 tractor-trailers packed with water, ice and other critical hurricane-relief supplies have been sitting at an Air Force base in Montgomery, Ala., for nearly a week while the federal government pays $600 a day for each truck." The "idle trucks," called up by FEMA "to deliver supplies, are just the latest example of the waste, bureaucratic errors and miscommunication that continue to foul Hurricane Katrina relief efforts." Rep. Mike Pence said Congress "should create a special inspector general for hurricane relief, similar to the position overseeing spending on Iraq reconstruction. 'It is imperative that those most in need receive assistance and that no resources are wasted,' Pence said."

Labor Department Earmarks $12 Million To Train Recovery Workers. CNN's The Situation Room (9/14, Blitzer) reported, "The Labor Department says it's earmarking $12 million for training Katrina recovery workers. The money is going on, going to continue in grants to Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. It will fund training in fields including construction, energy, transportation, and security."

Katrina Response Drives Down Bush Approval In Two New Polls. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Harwood) reports that Hurricane Katrina "has accelerated the erosion in public support for the Iraq war as President Bush's core of supporters dwindles and economic pessimism turns Americans' attention inward. A new Wall Street Journal/NBC News Poll shows that cutting spending on Iraq is Americans' top choice for financing the recovery from Katrina. Shaken by high gas prices and bracing for further jolts, Americans have turned negative about Mr. Bush across the board -- on handling the economy, foreign policy, and even the war on terrorism." Bush's overall approval "has fallen to a record-low for Mr. Bush of 40%, reflecting a shrunken core of base supporters. That promises to have repercussions for his domestic agenda on issues like Social Security, taxes and immigration, and leaves Mr. Bush with a steeper challenge on his most significant second-term priority: using American power and resources to transform Iraq and the broader Middle East."

On the NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 8, 2:20, Williams), Washington bureau chief Tim Russert discussed the new NBC/WSJ poll, saying it showed "the lowest favorable rating in the five-year presidency of George Bush, 40% approval. And this haunting question: If the victims were white, would there have been a faster response? Two-thirds of whites disagree with that, but seven out of 10 blacks think that is the case -- a huge racial divide confronting this President and this country." Williams: "That's a worrisome number for the White House."

The New York Times (9/15, Purdum, Connelly) reports that a "summer of bad news from Iraq, high gasoline prices, economic unease and now the devastation" of Katrina has left Bush with "overall approval ratings for his job performance and handling of Iraq, foreign policy and the economy at or near the lowest levels of his presidency, according to the latest New York Times/CBS News Poll. For the first time, just half of Americans approve of Mr. Bush's handling of terrorism, which has been his most consistent strength since he scored 90 percent approval ratings in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 attacks. More than 6 in 10 now say that he does not share their priorities for the country, 10 percentage points worse than on the eve of his re-election last fall, while barely half say he has strong qualities of leadership, about the same as said so at the early low-ebb of his presidency in the summer of 2001." In the Times/CBS poll, "41 percent of respondents approved of Mr. Bush's performance in office, while 53 percent disapproved."

The AP (9/15, Press) reports that the Times/CBS poll also found that most Americans "say rebuilding New Orleans is more important to them than cutting taxes or changing Social Security. … Cutting taxes and changing Social Security were both priorities of the Bush administration before the storm."

Rice Touts Bush Efforts For Minorities. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked about President Bush's low public support from African Americans, particularly in Katrina's wake. Rice said, "Let me just say right here that this is a President who has not only cared about minority empowerment, not only cared about equal opportunity for minorities, but he's done more than any other president I can think of in recent memory." For example, "the standards for -- so that school children are actually reading at the grade level they're supposed to be at, No Child Left Behind."

More Commentary On Bush's Speech, Declaration Of Responsibility. In his Washington Post (9/15, A33) column, Richard Cohen writes, "As if in the grand tradition of presidents affirming that the buck stops where Truman said it did -- the Oval Office -- George Bush has taken responsibility for the shortcomings in the federal effort regarding Hurricane Katrina. I f he means what he said, then Katrina washed up a whole new George Bush. But a little skepticism is in order here. After all, the George Bush we have come to know sorely lacks a rearview mirror. … For Bush there is only today and tomorrow. Yesterday is someone else's responsibility."

The New York Times (9/15) editorializes, "When President Bush addresses the country from New Orleans tonight, he will have the opportunity to build on the good beginning he made earlier this week, when he took responsibility for the federal government's failures in responding to Hurricane Katrina. In an administration that has hated to acknowledge that it ever does anything wrong, it was refreshing to hear Mr. Bush freely admit that Katrina demonstrated that there is a question about whether the nation is really prepared to respond to a terrorist attack or another natural disaster. It is only by squarely acknowledging past failure that the country will be able to do better in the future."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15) editorializes, "President Bush addresses the nation on Hurricane Katrina tonight, and after keeping too quiet for too long there's a lot for him to say. We hope he tells Americans that such a demonstrable failure at all levels of government is a rare opportunity to change that government, not another excuse to expand it willy-nilly. … The political trauma that has followed Katrina is almost entirely a result of the slow, haphazard government response in the first days after the storm hit. Mayor Nagin had an evacuation plan sitting in a drawer but never got the buses in place to implement it. He then blamed everyone else. Louisiana Governor Kathleen Blanco froze amid the crisis and failed to deploy the National Guard properly to protect those stranded at the Convention Center and Superdome. She is still blaming everyone else. FEMA was overwhelmed by the magnitude of the storm, and former director Michael Brown showed he was clueless about events that he could see merely by turning on his TV set. Notably, he is the only public official so far to lose his job, just as Mr. Bush is the only elected official who has so far accepted any public 'responsibility.' Alas, tonight the President isn't likely to assail the Department of Homeland Security that he helped to create, but he at least ought to admit that federal and state disaster duties and communication need to be better sorted out. He could also praise the Pentagon's relief success."

Gonzales Appoints Katrina Internet Fraud Task Force. WHBQ-TV Memphis (9/14, 11:13 p.m.) reported, "Attorney general Alberto Gonzales has appointed a task force specifically to deal with on-line fraud from Hurricane Katrina."

DOJ_NMG_ 0147748

WOWT-TV Omaha (9/14, 5:23 p.m.) also covered this story.

Kentucky Women Charged With Katrina Aid Fraud. The Louisville Courier Journal (9/15, Davis) reports, "Three Louisville women have been charged with felony fraud, accused of trying to cheat the American Red Cross in Jeffersonville, Ind., out of hundreds of dollars in Hurricane Katrina aid. Red Cross officials said yesterday that they believe that the case is part of a pattern of deceit in Clark County, Ind., that may include at least seven other individuals and families. Some people who received Red Cross debit cards in Jeffersonville over the last two weeks have used them to shop at Victoria's Secret, Circuit City and other stores that are 'not typical' destinations for disaster victims, said Phyllis Wilkins, executive director of the agency's Clark County chapter." The Courier Journal notes, "Several measures are now being taken to combat thefts in Clark County. Police began stationing a uniformed officer at the chapter's disaster resource center yesterday, and Capt. Bruce Wilkerson of the Jeffersonville Police Department said names of applicants were being entered into a national crime database run by the FBI."

Scam Artists May Try To Cash In On Relief Efforts. CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Dobbs) reported, "Rising concerns tonight that scam artists are trying to cash in on the huge relief effort for victims of Hurricane Katrina. Criminals are using fake web sites to steal money that millions of Americans want to send to the survivors of the victims. And prosecutors are concerned about possible fraud in reconstruction contracts, as well." CNN (Sylvester) added, "Federal investigators are looking at 2,100 questionable web sites, seeking Katrina relief services. About 60 percent of them are from overseas, a possible red flag. … Donors should check out charities before giving or stick with reputable agencies. … But charity scams are not the only type of fraud the government is worried about. When the hurricanes hit Florida last year, dozens of residents and businesses filed false government claims. Rent paid for those who didn't need it, funerals covered by the government, unrelated to the hurricanes. … Democrats are asking for an oversight commission to review how FEMA spends $60 billion in hurricane relief aid. The Department of Justice is establishing a task force of law enforcement officials to investigate Katrina related crimes, including Internet fraud, identity theft and false government claims."

Senate GOP Leaders Seek "Marshall Plan" For Region. Reuters (9/15, Kenen) reports that Senate Republican leaders urged Bush to "establish a 'Marshall Plan' for the recovery after Hurricane Katrina, similar to the massive post-World War II effort to rebuild western Europe. In a letter to Bush, Majority Leader Bill Frist and the rest of the Senate Republican leadership called for a 'Marshall Plan' to establish a 'coordinated and comprehensive plan to help the Gulf Coast region.' They did not spell out precisely what such a plan would entail, but lawmakers are beginning to consider ways of assembling a public-private partnership to redevelop the shattered region in the coming years."

Novak Says Coburn's Calls For Post-Katrina Government Sacrifice Fall On Deaf Ears. Syndicated columnist Robert Novak (9/15) writes this morning that Oklahoma Sen. Tom Coburn "is arguing that massive federal spending in the wake of Hurricane Katrina must entail some sacrifice. By that he meant the pork so dear to his colleagues." Coburn called OMB Director Joshua Bolten "to ask support for $15.3 billion in offsets based on the administration's own proposed terminations and spending reductions," but Bolten told Coburn "that the administration's hands were full dealing with Katrina's aftermath. Coburn told me he did not blame Bolten but his superiors. The superior he meant was George W. Bush." But Coburn's "problem is less Bolten or even Bush and more his Senate colleagues," whom threaten "to run wild with new earmarks and additional spending." Meanwhile, Novak notes, "In the House, one liberal Democrat after another has taken the floor to demand higher taxes in upper income brackets." Coburn "contends any government worker could find room to cut back spending in his own department before the federal leviathan demands more funds from any individual taxpayers. … As Coburn asserts, 'It is inexcusable for the White House and Congress to not even make the effort to find any offsets.'"

Fight Looming Over Control Of Gulf Coast Rebuilding Effort. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, A1, Calmes, Carrns, Opdyke) reports in a front page story that with "as much as $200 billion beginning to gush out of Washington for the Hurricane Katrina disaster zone, the fight already has begun over who will control the spending and make critical decisions about the future of New Orleans and the Gulf Coast." The battle is "shaping up around three key questions: Will state, local or federal officials have the final say about the shape of redevelopment? Will existing government bodies spend the reconstruction bonanza, or will some new agency be created for the job? And finally, will New Orleans be rebuilt as it was, or will some low-lying areas -- often poor, working class or predominantly African-American -- be sacrificed to improve flood protection?" Washington officials "from both parties are concluding the reconstruction job is so immense that it demands an entirely new government entity, perhaps similar to the Depression-era Tennessee Valley Authority." Deputy White House Chief of Staff Karl Rove "and other administration officials have begun soliciting names for the new organization's czar. Former General Electric Co. chief Jack Welch has been mentioned as a possible candidate, as have former Secretary of State Colin Powell and former New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani, though those two have detractors within the White House." But the "prospect of a big federal role is arousing suspicion and anger along the Gulf Coast, an area with long memories of a painful post-Civil War reconstruction and powerful suspicions of intrusions on states' rights and local autonomy."

Firms Awarded No-Bid Contracts Have Checkered Pasts. USA Today (9/15, McCoy) reports two of "the first companies that got emergency no-bid federal contracts for Hurricane Katrina recovery work have faced questions over past business practices, court and government records show." A division of Fluor, "a California firm awarded a housing contract worth up to $100 million, has paid millions of dollars to settle federal government lawsuits — including one that accused it of overbilling for 1989 hurricane cleanup work." The Shaw Group, a Louisiana firm "that won housing and engineering contracts worth up to $200 million, has disclosed that it is being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The firm is also a defendant in federal securities class-action cases." The contracts "were awarded by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Federal Emergency Management Agency as part of a relief effort expected to top $100 billion."

Union Officials Resisting Suspension Of Davis-Bacon Act. The Hill (9/15, Schor) reports that among the "litany of regulations in line to be eased or suspended during the daunting rebuilding process on the Gulf Coast are several that have greatly alarmed labor unions, whose furious lobbying efforts are hitting a brick wall of conservative might." Union officials are "concerned that President Bush's Sept. 8 suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires federal contractors to pay construction workers a prevailing wage, was only the beginning. Further hurting the union cause is GOP lawmakers' support for broad bureaucratic relaxation in the Labor Department, a push rooted in the long-standing bad blood between unions and Republican think tanks." The "presidents of LIUNA, the carpenters union and the engineers union wrote to Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist (R-Tenn.) and House Speaker Dennis Hastert (R-Ill.) yesterday decrying the Davis-Bacon suspension."

Officials Urged To Reshape New Orleans. In a USA Today (9/15), Alcestis "Cooky" Oberg says, "We have a historic opportunity to rebuild New Orleans better, safer — to change its shape, the location of its neighborhoods, even its topography. It's all been done before." The "greatest natural disaster to hit the USA — and the only one comparable to Katrina in the scope of its destruction — was the 1900 storm that devastated Galveston, Texas. Between 6,000 and 12,000 people died and, afterward, 75 looters had to be shot dead before law and order could be restored. Every Galvestonian knew that some places never come back from a storm like that." The project "took eight years and was financed by bonds underwritten by Galveston itself, along with tax relief from the state. When another monster hurricane came, in 1915, the city was ready: Only eight people died, and damage was relatively limited. The 1900 storm was a historic opportunity to change Galveston's vulnerability to hurricanes forever with an engineering project so vast, it was breathtaking. Such an opportunity now exists for New Orleans."

Documents Suggest Chertoff Had Authority To Authorize Early Response. Knight Ridder (9/15, Landay, Young, McCaffrey) reports, "The federal official with the power to mobilize a massive federal response to Hurricane Katrina was Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff, not the former FEMA chief who was relieved of his duties and resigned earlier this week, federal documents reviewed by Knight Ridder show. Even before the storm struck the Gulf Coast, Chertoff could have ordered federal agencies into action without any request from state or local officials." Brown "had only limited authority to do so until about 36 hours after the storm hit, when Chertoff designated him as the 'principal federal official' in charge of the storm." As "thousands of hurricane victims went without food, water and shelter in the days after Katrina's early morning Aug. 29 landfall, critics assailed Brown for being responsible for delays that might have cost hundreds of lives. But Chertoff -- not Brown -- was in charge of managing the national response to a catastrophic disaster, according to the National Response Plan, the federal government's blueprint for how agencies will handle major natural disasters or terrorist incidents."

Chertoff "Right In The Middle" As FEMA Scrutinized. CNN's The Situation Room (9/14, Blitzer) reported, "The finger-pointing continuing even after FEMA Director Mike Brown took the fall a few days ago. Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff was Brown's boss, and now is coming under fire for his scrutiny and for his involvement." CNN (Foreman) added, "They are very unhappy at Homeland Security today. That's what's going on right now. … Chertoff is the head of Homeland Security. They are in charge of FEMA. The President has now said he takes the blame for what went wrong. Michael Brown at FEMA has now lost his job for what went wrong. And right in the middle is Michael Chertoff."

Brown Says He Stressed Katrina Urgency, Blames Blanco For Delays. The New York Times (9/15, A1, Kirkpatrick, Shane) reports," Hours after Hurricane Katrina passed New Orleans on Aug. 29, as the scale of the catastrophe became clear, Michael D. Brown recalls, he placed frantic calls to his boss," DHS Secretary Michael Chertoff, "and to the office of the White House chief of staff, Andrew H. Card Jr." Brown, then head of FEMA, "said he told the officials in Washington that the Louisiana governor, Kathleen Babineaux Blanco, and her staff were proving incapable of organizing a coherent state effort and that his field officers in the city were reporting an 'out of control' situation. 'I am having a horrible time,' Mr. Brown said he told Mr. Chertoff and a White House official - either Mr. Card or his deputy, Joe Hagin -- in a status report that evening. 'I can't get a unified command established.'" In his "first extensive interview since resigning as FEMA director on Monday under intense criticism, Mr. Brown declined to blame President Bush or the White House for his removal or for the flawed response." Instead, he "focused much of his criticism on Governor Blanco, contrasting what he described as her confused response with far more agile mobilizations in Mississippi and Alabama, as well as in Florida during last year's hurricanes. But Mr. Brown's account, in which he described making 'a blur of calls' all week to Mr. Chertoff, Mr. Card and Mr. Hagin, suggested that Mr. Bush, or at least his top aides, were informed early and repeatedly by the top federal official at the scene that state and local authorities were overwhelmed and that the overall response was going badly." However, a "senior administration official said Wednesday night that White House officials recalled the conversations with Mr. Brown but did not believe they had the urgency or desperation he described in the interview."

CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Henry) reported, "Democrats have acted surprised and outraged that the President's FEMA director had next to no experience. … But Democrats were running the Senate when Brown was easily confirmed as FEMA's deputy director in June 2002. The Democrat in charge of the confirmation hearing, Joe Lieberman, declared he would support Brown because of his, quote, 'extensive management experience.'"

Blanco Accepts "Full Responsibility." USA Today (9/15, 3A) reports Blanco "admitted 'failures at every level of government" in the response to Hurricane Katrina on Wednesday. New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin also conceded missteps." In an "evening address to a special meeting of the state Legislature in Baton Rouge, Blanco said she shouldered blame for her state's situation." Blanco said, "The buck stops here, and as your governor, I take full responsibility." Nagin "also struck a more conciliatory note. 'We could have all done things better,' Nagin said."

The Washington Times/AP (9/15, Deslatte) reports Blanco "took responsibility for failures and missteps in the immediate response to Hurricane Katrina and pledged a united effort to rebuild areas ravaged by the storm." Her statement "came a day after President Bush said he would 'take responsibility' for federal failures in dealing with Katrina."

Senate Opens Hearings On Future Role Of FEMA. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Block) reports that Congress "opened hearings yesterday to figure out what went wrong in the immediate response to Hurricane Katrina and resolve the question of what is to become" of FEMA, an agency that "has become synonymous with the government's bungled response to the hurricane, with a number of politicians saying part of the problem is that the agency is no longer cabinet-level but rather a small cog in the mammoth Department of Homeland Security." Prominent Democrats including Sen. Hillary Clinton "have proposed bills that would make FEMA an independent agency -- a move enthusiastically endorsed by several state emergency managers, who are effectively FEMA's 'clients.'" But the hearings "showed that such a move has far from unanimous backing in the Senate." Senate Homeland Security

Chairwoman Susan Collins said she "would explore the idea but cautioned her colleagues against making any hasty moves." Collins said, "My inclination is that FEMA should be part of the Department of Homeland Security."

Paulison Shaking Up FEMA Personnel. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 3, 0:20, Schieffer) reported, "More heads will apparently roll at FEMA. Administration sources say the new director, David Paulison, plans a series of changes and reassignments in the coming days."

Economist Says Congress Should "Sharpen" FEMA Mission. In a New York Times (9/15) "Economic Scene" column, Princeton economist Alan B. Krueger writes, "Although declaring a disaster should be clear-cut and above politics, the legislation that governs FEMA gives the president much discretion to decide whether an event is a disaster that qualifies for assistance. Upon receiving a request by a state's governor, the president may declare a 'major disaster' if a natural catastrophe 'causes damage of sufficient severity and magnitude to warrant major disaster assistance.' … When Congress turns to evaluating the Hurricane Katrina disaster, it should also consider sharpening FEMA's mission. One helpful step would be to define more precisely the requirements necessary for the president to declare a disaster."

Lawmakers To Visit Gulf Coast Friday. CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Cooper) reported, "Congressional lawmakers are planning to get their own firsthand look at the devastation. Today Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist and Democratic Leader Harry Reid announced they will lead a 14-member congressional delegation to the Gulf coast on Friday."

Columnist Sees Methodist Hospital Debacle As Example Of FEMA Failures. In his New York Times (9/15) column, Bob Herbert writes that the patients and staff at Methodist Hospital in New Orleans "could have been evacuated before Hurricane Katrina hit. But instead they were condemned to several days of fear and agony by bad decision-making in Louisiana and the chaotic ineptitude of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Some of the patients died. Incredibly, when the out-of-state corporate owners of the hospital responded to the flooding by sending emergency relief supplies, they were confiscated at the airport by FEMA and sent elsewhere. … Everybody's suffering would have been eased if the emergency relief effort mounted by the hospital's owner…had not been interfered with by FEMA. … When you consider that the Methodist Hospital experience was just one small part of the New Orleans catastrophe, you get a sense of the size of the societal failure that we allowed to happen. Welcome to the United States in 2005."

Senate Rejects Independent Katrina Investigation. The Washington Post (9/15, A15, Hsu, White) reports the Senate "voted along party lines yesterday to reject creation of an independent panel to investigate the government's fumbling response to Hurricane Katrina." The proposal, from Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton (D-N.Y.), "would have established a panel similar to the one that examined the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. The partisan wrangling came amid rising calls from members of both parties to change how the nation manages major disasters." The House and Senate GOP leadership plan "to form a joint congressional investigative committee with a Republican majority. A House vote is scheduled for today. Democrats oppose the move." The stalemate "over the makeup of the panel muted the first hearing in Congress into the Katrina response led by the Senate Committee for Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs."

The Hill (9/15, Hearn, O'Connor) reports Republicans and Democrats "remained in a partisan deadlock yesterday as they prepared for a floor vote to determine how to investigate the bungled response to Hurricane Katrina." Republican House leaders "plan to bring their proposal to the floor today, despite Democratic opposition, and pass it in a largely party-line vote." The proposal "would set up a 20-member committee consisting of 11 Republicans and nine Democrats on the House side, according to a draft of the resolution. The minority will be extended the ability to call for extra witnesses at hearings. A budget of $500,000 will be provided through the House Administration Committee." Both parties "face potential political fallout from the bitter standoff. Democrats could face charges of partisanship for failing to go along with the Republicans' joint panel, a type of committee that has been used dozens of times in recent decades to investigate different administrations, including the Iran-Contra scandal, Republicans argue." Democrats "counter that the circumstances were different during the 1980s because Democrats controlled Congress and were investigating a Republican administration."

The Washington Times/AP (9/15) reports Sen. Clinton's "bid to establish the panel -- which also would have made recommendations on how to improve the government's disaster-response apparatus -- failed to win the two-thirds majority needed to overcome procedural hurdles." But the Senate vote "likely won't be the last word on whether to create an independent commission or, as an alternative, a special congressional committee to investigate the Katrina response. A CNN/USA Today/Gallup poll taken last Thursday through Sunday found that 70 percent of those surveyed supported an independent panel to investigate the government's response to Katrina."

Katrina Survivors Now Negotiating Maze Of Federal Assistance Bureaucracy. The Washington Post (9/15, D1, Alexander, Henderson) reports, "First they had to ride out a howling storm. Then find shelter. Then food and water. Now, the thousands of families driven from their homes by Hurricane Katrina face the daunting challenge of applying for financial assistance under a dizzying mix of government programs." The Congressional Budget Office "has estimated that the storm wiped out about as many as 400,000 jobs in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, prompting a surge in new claims for unemployment insurance benefits." Many of those impacted are "newly eligible for food stamps, Medicaid, housing assistance, subsidized school lunches, emergency cash assistance" from FEMA, "and other programs. But many have never received such benefits and will have to navigate through multiple government agencies to find out if they qualify and how to apply."

FEMA Organizing Trailer Complexes For Katrina Evacuees. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 10, 2:50, Schieffer) reported, "FEMA estimated today that the number of people living in shelters after Hurricane Katrina is 112,000. Many of them may be moved to trailers FEMA is setting up with your tax dollars." CBS (Attkisson) added, "As many as 300,000 trailers will eventually be set up in cities of trailers where evacuees can live for up to five years. … In fairness to FEMA, it's not an easy process. Nothing on this scale has ever been attempted before."

Kolbe Seeks Appointment Of IG To Oversee Katrina Relief Funding Efforts. The Washington Times (9/15, McCaslin) reports in its "Inside The Beltway" column that Rep. Jim Kolbe has introduced the "Special Inspector General for Hurricane Katrina Recovery Act of 2005," seeking "to appoint an independent inspector general to oversee continued funding efforts. Rep. Jeb Hensarling, Texas Republican, agrees that Capitol Hill 'must do everything necessary' to help Katrina's victims, but stresses 'Congress must also use its head.' Which means, he says, that 'Congress cannot continue to fund projects like the $800,000 outhouse, $1.2 million for panda research or the $1 million rain forest in Iowa.'"

9/11 Panelists Criticize Federal Response To Katrina. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 8, :25, Vargas) reported, "In Washington today, former members of the 9/11 Commission issued a report, saying the government is still not ready for a catastrophic event and failed to make reforms that could have saved lives during Katrina. The report says local emergency officials still can't reliably communicate with each other, the government has no clear system of command and control in a crisis, and that border controls have not been enacted."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Paltrow) reports that former New Jersey Gov. Tom Kean, who chaired the panel, "said many of the steps should have been taken immediately after the 2001 attacks. He also said quick implementation of certain commission recommendations issued more than a year ago 'could have saved peoples' lives' in New Orleans.'

The New York Times (9/15, Shenon) adds, "John F. Lehman, a Republican on the panel who was a Navy secretary in the Reagan administration, said he feared that the 'unconscionable' failures of the rescue effort along the Gulf Coast would embolden terrorist groups to attack again on American soil, making quick adoption of the commission's year-old recommendations all the more important."

The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Cook) reports on a recent "Monitor Breakfast" with Kean and 9/11 Commission Vice Chairman Lee Hamilton. The Monitor says Katrina "has altered Mr. Hamilton's assessment of overall security. 'We often said during...the 9/11 hearings that we were safer but not safe,' he said. 'What struck me after Katrina was that we were not as safe as I thought we were.' Two reforms are vital in the post-Katrina world, they argue. One is to make clear who is in charge at the federal level during emergencies. The other, they say, is to require every state to adopt a detailed command-and-control plan for disasters - and link it to receiving funding from the US Department of Homeland Security. 'It was obvious that nobody knew who was in charge when Katrina struck. We had the same problem on 9/11,' Kean said. 'If you don't have a unified command structure with somebody in charge and somebody following through ... it is going to cost lives.'"

Officials Announce Plan To Repopulate New Orleans. Thousands of New Orleans residents could return to their homes as early as Monday. The Washington Post (9/15, A14, Whoriskey) reports that "city and federal authorities have set out an accelerated plan to repopulate the city, reversing earlier estimates that the metropolis could be closed for months. The plan would reopen a portion of New Orleans that was home to about 170,000 people, or one-third of the city's population, federal officials said, and be rolled out over the next two weeks." The Post adds, "The reentry plan would unfold by Zip code, depending on which section gets power and water utilities online, and how quickly hospital and emergency services can be restored. It involves portions of New Orleans that largely were unflooded: downtown, the French Quarter, Uptown and Algiers."

The Washington Post (9/15, A14, Vedantam) reports on New Orleans evacuees, noting that their stories "illustrate the game of chance that the resettlement effort is for so many victims of Katrina. Evacuees enter the relief roulette wheel with little idea whether they will emerge in a dreary shelter or in the cool air of the Ozark Mountains."

CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Lavendera) reported, "New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin has seen the signs that his wish, to get his city up and running, is one step closer to coming true. Three of the city's suburbs, Westwego, Lafitte and Gretna reopened for business today."

EPA Says New Orleans Cleanup Will Require Razing Neighborhoods. The Washington Times (9/15, Price) reports, "Environmental Protection Agency officials and environmental specialists said yesterday that the cleanup of flood-soaked New Orleans will require razing neighborhoods, comprehensive disinfection, and extensive removal of soil and sediment infused with chemicals and bacteria. … EPA Administrator Stephen L. Johnson said tests continue to show high, unsafe levels of sewage and lead in New Orleans' water and evidence of other chemicals, such as chromium, copper, iron and sodium. He characterized Hurricane Katrina as the 'largest natural disaster the EPA and the nation have ever faced.'"

Rescue Effort Scaled Back. Fox News' Special Report (9/14, Hume) reported, "The rescue portion of the search and rescue effort is being scaled back." Fox (Keeting) added, "Essentially in New Orleans as well as the surrounding parishes they are as evacuated at this point as they are going to be. No more helicopter search and rescue operations. Only 30 people rescued yesterday, so those helicopters now can be better used."

New Orleans Could Be Ready For Tourists By New Year. USA Today (9/15, Sloan) says Stephen Perry, president of the New Orleans Metropolitan Convention & Visitors Bureau said that while "it could be years before some residential areas bounce back from Hurricane Katrina… tourist areas will be ready for visitors far, far sooner. … Half a dozen hotels, including the Sheraton, Hyatt, Hilton and W, already have reopened, and an additional 35 to 40 will be open by the end of next week, Perry says. For now, they house relief workers, government officials and journalists. But the city's power brokers hope to have them ready for tourists by New Year's. Already there are plans for a scaled-down version of Mardi Gras in February."

Real Estate Speculators Buying New Orleans Properties On The Cheap. Hurricane Katrina has made New Orleans' "vibrant" real estate market "hotter," reports the Los Angeles Times (9/15, Streitfeld). The Times adds, "Large sections of the city are under water, but that's only increasing the demand for dry houses. And in flooded areas, speculators are trying to buy properties on the cheap, hoping that the redevelopment of New Orleans will start a boom. This land rush has long-term implications in a city where many of the poorest residents were flooded out. It raises the question of what sort of housing -- if any -- will be available to those without a six-figure salary. If New Orleans ends up a high-priced enclave, without a mix of cultures, races and incomes, something vital may be lost."

Scam Artists May Try To Cash In On Relief Efforts. CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Dobbs) reported, "Rising concerns tonight that scam artists are trying to cash in on the huge relief effort for victims of Hurricane Katrina. Criminals are using fake web sites to steal money that millions of Americans want to send to the survivors of the victims. And prosecutors are concerned about possible fraud in reconstruction contracts, as well." CNN (Sylvester) added, "Federal investigators are looking at 2,100 questionable web sites, seeking Katrina relief services. About 60 percent of them are from overseas, a possible red flag. … Donors should check out charities before giving or stick with reputable agencies. … But charity scams are not the only type of fraud the government is worried about. When the hurricanes hit Florida last year, dozens of residents and businesses filed false government claims. Rent paid for those who didn't need it, funerals covered by the government, unrelated to the hurricanes. … Democrats are asking for an oversight commission to review how FEMA spends $60 billion in hurricane relief aid. The Department of Justice is establishing a task force of law enforcement officials to investigate Katrina related crimes, including Internet fraud, identity theft and false government claims."

Mail Service Resumes At 80% Of Affected Post Offices. NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 4, 0:10, Williams) reported, "Then there is the mail service. The Postmaster General said today at more than 80% of the post offices affected by the storm, service has resumed."

German Government Team Helping With Cleanup. The Washington Times (9/15, Doolittle) reports on the "90 men and women sent by the German government to drain flood water from" New Orleans. The team of Germans, "volunteers with Technisches Hilfswerk, a German disaster-relief organization, arrived Friday at Belle Chasse Naval Air Base with 15 pumps that can move almost 6 million gallons of water a day." The Times adds, "The German team is just one of many on hand to clean up and to protect those doing the work. The special-response teams of the D.C.-based Immigration Customs Enforcement patrol outside the Superdome, which was a major evacuation center for tens of thousands, while crews inside clear broken bottles, water-soaked plaster, rotting trash and other messes."

Death Toll In Louisiana Rises To 423. NBC Nightly News (9/14, lead story, 3:00, Savidge) reported, "The death toll in Louisiana, 423 at last report, is nowhere near the 10,000 predicted, but all day recovery teams have been pulling bodies out of attics, basements, and mud. It's slow work, too slow, says state coroner, Dr. Louis Cataldie." Some "recovery sites are also potential crime scenes. 34 patients died in this nursing home, the husband and wife owners charged with homicide for not evacuating them." Authorities are "investigating other cases, like the more than 40 bodies left behind in New Orleans' Memorial Medical Center. The question for weeks ahead, was the disaster that killed the ones left behind natural or manmade? The couple that owns that nursing home, in their defense, said that it would have been too dangerous to move their elderly patients before the storm and that they rode out the storm with them, saving two dozen, even though 34 others died."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 7, :20, Vargas) reported, "The owners of that nursing home were 35 people drowned said they were afraid if they moved their patients, some would die. According to their lawyer, they stayed during the hurricane and tried to rescue as many as they could. They've been charged with negligent homicide in the first attempt to hold people criminally responsible for what happened during the hurricane."

More Nursing Home Deaths Reported. The New York Times (9/15, Rohde, Dewan) reports that "a day after Louisiana officials charged the owners of a nursing home in the deaths of 34 patients there, the owners of two other nursing homes confirmed yesterday that an additional 13 patients died in their homes in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. State officials also said they were investigating the deaths of 14 patients at yet another nursing home in New Orleans. The new reports suggest that at least 61 patients died in four New Orleans-area nursing homes after their operators ignored a mandatory evacuation order a day before Hurricane Katrina hit."

911 Tapes Provide "Harrowing Window" Into Katrina Flooding. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 5, 2:20, Vargas) reported the "911 tapes of people seeking rescue from the flood waters provide a harrowing window into the disaster. A glimpse of what it was like for the victims and the police."

Louisiana AG Examining Evacuation Procedures Of Hospitals, Nursing Homes. CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Feyerick) reported, "The attorney general for Louisiana investigating whether hospitals and nursing homes followed evacuation procedures and did everything they could to get patients to safety before the hurricane hit. 45 people were found dead at Memorial Hospital in New Orleans. Staff there without power, food, or water during the entire storm and days after. Yesterday, the owners of a nursing home were charged with 34 counts of negligent homicide after residents there were left to drown."

Military, Law Enforcement Describe Chaos In New Orleans Convention Center. The Washington Post (9/15, Haygood, Tyson) reports, "For five eternal-seeming days, as many as 20,000 people, most of them black, waited to be rescued, not just from the floodwaters of Hurricane Katrina but from the nightmarish place where they had sought refuge," the Ernest N. Morial Convention Center in New Orleans. The Post adds that "what happened in the convention center stands as a harsh indictment of government's failure to help its citizens when they needed it most. That futility was symbolized by the presence in the convention center for three of the most chaotic days of at least 250 armed troops from the Louisiana National Guard. … In more than 70 interviews, with both military and law enforcement officials -- who were themselves sometimes inside the center -- and with many of the survivors who suffered over the course of several nights, a chilling portrait emerges of anarchy and violence, exacerbated by young men from rival housing projects."

Number Of Katrina Evacuees In Houston Astrodome Down To 1,000. NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 3, 0:30, Williams) reported, "At the Houston Astrodome, 10 days ago, there were more than 17,000 evacuees getting shelter there. Today, just over 1,000 people remain. Officials say the rest have now moved on to more permanent shelters or housing. Those still at the Astrodome are getting assistance to do the same."

Utah Proves Great Contrast For Many New Orleans Evacuees. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 10, 2:25, Avila) reported, "More than 600 displaced Katrina victims were flown to Utah, a state so very different than Louisiana." One evacuee "said it's like being a fly in a bowl of milk. New Orleans is 67% African American, here it is less than 2%. Beyond the culture shock there is a difference between as Salt Lake City and New Orleans that is to the advantage of the evacuees. And that is opportunity. Black unemployment is half that of New Orleans. There has already been a job fair for the evacuees."

Officials Will Make Flu Vaccines Available To Hurricane Evacuees. The Wall Street Journal/AP (9/15) reports, "Federal health officials are pressing forward with plans to ensure flu vaccinations for hurricane evacuees in shelters as well as all people in nursing homes, populations they say are particularly at risk for catching the illness while living in tight quarters. Julie L. Gerberding, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said Wednesday that elderly evacuees, as well as those of all ages at shelters, will be among the first to receive flu shots this fall. Manufacturer Sanofi-Pasteur is making 200,000 of the first flu shots available to those evacuees. … Federal stocks of all vaccines are being made available to children who are evacuees, Dr. Gerberding said."

USA Today (9/15, Szabo) reports, "Although the vaccine supply should be ample this year, with 71 million to 97 million doses, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention expects some shots to be delayed."

USED Officials Visit Districts Schooling Evacuees. The Dallas Morning News (9/15, Hobbs) reports, "One thing is obvious at Madison High School in South Dallas. Students who evacuated here because of Hurricane Katrina appreciate Texas. U.S. Department of Education Assistant Secretary Tom Luce, Texas Education Commissioner Shirley Neeley, Dallas Superintendent Michael Hinojosa and Dallas trustee Ron Price toured the school on Wednesday and were thanked profusely by some students."

The San Antonio Express-News (TX) (9/15, LaCoste-Caputo) reports, "San Antonio school leaders concerned about the ramifications of taking in nearly 1,400 new students escaping the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina will have the chance to voice their worries and ask for help today. Ray Simon, deputy secretary for the U.S. Education Department, will visit San Antonio today to meet with superintendents and visit schools."

Louisiana Officials Postpone Local Elections. Local elections in Louisiana scheduled for October 15 have been postponed. The Washington Times (9/15, Hudson) reports that officials made the decision "citing a lack of equipment and manpower." The cancellation "affects judicial candidates, a school board race and one council seat in the parishes of Orleans and Jefferson, special propositions for tax increases for security patrols in two neighborhoods, and a 'beautification, security and overall betterment' tax increase in eastern New Orleans. According to Louisiana law, an office holder remains at his or her post until a successor is sworn into office."

Lloyd's Says Its Katrina Claims Could Reach $2.55 Billion. Lloyd's of London has estimated that claims stemming from Hurricane Katrina could cost it a net $2.55 billion. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Fleming) says, "Lloyd's estimate of its losses makes Katrina the second-most-expensive single disaster ever in nominal terms for the Lloyd's insurance market, whose members paid out about $3.5 billion for the World Trade Center terrorist attacks in New York in 2001. It also tops all other insurance groups' estimates of their individual exposure to Katrina claims so far.

Lloyd's functions as a marketplace for syndicates that underwrite insurance policies."

Many Gulf Coast Homeowners Did Not Have Flood Insurance. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 4, 2:20, Schieffer) reported, "Insurance companies are expected to pay tens of billions of dollars in claims, but some homeowners are having their claims denied." CBS (Whitaker) added, People here on the Gulf Coast are facing an ugly surprise: When it comes to hurricanes, most homeowner policies cover damage from wind only, not water. So most of this, caused by Katrina's unprecedented tidal surge -- not covered. In fact, almost 80% of homeowners in Mississippi and Alabama don't have the separate Federal flood insurance that would have covered losses like this." Katrina "certainly will trigger the biggest insurance payout in US history by far, as much as $60 billion, three times more than Hurricane Andrew."

Mississippi AG May Sue Insurers. Mississippi Attorney General Jim Hood is considering filing suit against insurers to force them to pay flood damage from Hurricane Katrina, seeking to override exclusions in standard homeowners' policies. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Francis) reports that damage "could total billions of dollars." Hood's examination of legal moves "comes as tens of thousands of Mississippi homeowners are grappling with the cost of rebuilding homes that in many cases were badly damaged by the huge storm surge that accompanied the category-four hurricane's strong winds. Mr. Hood and a spokesman for his office couldn't be reached for comment late yesterday."

North Carolina Braces For Hurricane Ophelia. USA Today (9/15, Brook) reports that Hurricane Ophelia was about 20 miles south-southeast of Cape Lookout, North Carolina at 11:00 p.m. Wednesday evening. Ophelia "had maximum sustained winds of 85 mph, making it a Category 1 hurricane on the five-stage scale." USA adds, "North Carolina Gov. Mike Easley warned people not to be complacent. Tourists were told to leave the popular beaches of the Outer Banks. Residents of some low-lying areas were evacuated." FEMA "said it was doing nothing different than normal."

The Los Angeles Times/AP (9/15) reports that Ophelia "lashed the North Carolina coast with high winds and heavy rains Wednesday, beginning an anticipated two-day assault that threatened serious flooding and an 11-foot storm surge. … Ophelia was moving so slowly -- just 7 mph Wednesday night -- that authorities expected the storm's passage through North Carolina to take 48 hours from the start of rainfall on the southeastern coast Tuesday afternoon to the storm's anticipated exit into the Atlantic late Thursday."

The New York Times (9/15, Desantis) adds, "Officials said that voluntary evacuations went smoothly and that by 3 p.m. Wednesday, 519 people had taken refuge in shelters. Residents and officials alike said the cataclysmic effects of Hurricane Katrina on New Orleans and the Gulf Coast had made little difference in how they responded to the storm.'

However, a front page story in the Washington Post (9/15, A1, Cooperman) says "federal, state and local officials were taking no chances of a repeat of the sluggish response to Hurricane Katrina. Here on Hatteras Island, which was expected to bear the worst of the storm, emergency officials stockpiled enough water and military rations to last 3,000 people for three days. The National Guard was standing by with all-terrain vehicles and four-wheel-drive ambulances. The National Forest Service had 10 chain-saw teams ready to remove fallen trees. Gov. Mike Easley (D) urged residents of low-lying coastal areas to evacuate. … But despite a 'mandatory' evacuation order -- which state officials acknowledged was not really mandatory at all -- many residents stayed behind on Hatteras and neighboring islands along the Outer Banks."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 6, 1:25, Vargas) said, "Emergency management officials are taking no chances this time." Among those "in the area are victims of the Hurricane Katrina. They are now living through their second hurricane in a month."

The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 2, 2:00, Schieffer) reported, "Officials are determined to get this one right." CBS (Bowers) added, "Anxious to avoid another disastrous response like with Katrina, the National Guard and FEMA have already been called out." NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 5, 1:15, Kosinski) reported, "The biggest problem you get with a storm that just won't go away like this is significant flooding. Already we're seeing several feet of standing water in this area." NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 12, 2:00, Potter) reported on Geraldine Sanders, who with "most of her extended family fled New Orleans and Hurricane Katrina and headed for North Carolina, only to run into Ophelia."

Katrina Renews Scrutiny Of Superfund. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Knickerbocker) reports that as floodwaters in New Orleans and other parts of the Gulf Coast recede, they "are exposing hazardous chemicals and other dangerous waste. But they're also revealing the accomplishments - and the limits - of government programs designed to clean up such pollution. Among the concerns: That natural disasters such as earthquakes and hurricanes haven't been adequately considered in fashioning safe and secure remedies; that areas tainted by toxic waste, such as rivers in the East and old mines in the West, are becoming larger and more complex; that many newly closed military bases will require considerable cleanup before they're ready for private or local government use; and that federal funding is falling behind the need. The main program here is a bureaucratic mouthful: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), commonly known as Superfund. … Congress and the Bush administration are sure to address hazardous waste cleanup as part of the massive federal response to Katrina. But they're also faced with renewed scrutiny of the whole Superfund program. The industry tax fund ran out of money when Congress refused to renew it in 1995."

The New York Times (9/15, Barringer, Janofsky) says the EPA "is struggling to determine what the worst hazards are, where they are and what can be done about them, the agency's administrator said Wednesday. The difficulties could cast doubt on plans of the New Orleans mayor and other city officials to reopen drier neighborhoods within days. … At a Congressional briefing and at a separate news conference, the E.P.A. administrator, Stephen L. Johnson, described for the first time the wide variety of problems the agency was confronting, including the difficulty of determining the extent and toxicity of the sludge left by the floodwaters. Mr. Johnson said the agency was using aircraft to test for air pollution and taking daily samples of floodwaters and the sludge. The sampling is concentrated in residential areas. The agency has not completed or released details about specific strategies and the scientific protocols it is using as it tries to analyze the hazards posed by what Mr. Johnson called 'the largest national disaster that we at E.P.A., or we believe, that the nation has faced.'"

Officials Say Pollutants In Floodwater Are Fairly Typical. CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Cooper) reported, "The Army Corps of Engineers says about nine million gallons of water is being pumped out of the New Orleans area every day. If all goes well, New Orleans could be pumped dry by the end of October."

The Washington Post (9/15, A15, Brown) says that early tests on the floodwater "do not suggest it will leave a permanent toxic residue or render residential areas uninhabitable for more than a short time, officials of both state and federal environmental agencies said yesterday. The pollution consists primarily of fecal matter and slightly elevated concentrations of metals such as lead and chromium that were in the city's soil before Hurricane Katrina. There are also trace amounts of many petroleum-based chemicals and some pesticides. Despite descriptions of the floodwater as a 'toxic soup' and a 'witch's brew' of contaminants, the preliminary tests reveal it contains little that is different from what has been seen after past floods in other cities and here."

However, USA Today (9/15, Frank, Kenworthy) notes that "Louisiana's top environmental official warned Wednesday that many houses will have to be bulldozed because of contamination." Mike McDaniel, secretary of the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality, "said residents of those areas will be allowed to return to their homes briefly to retrieve personal items but will be told about the health risks and given protective gear. McDaniel said many houses in flooded parts of the New Orleans area 'will have to be disposed of.'"

Katrina Has Negative Effect On Consumer Spending, Gasoline Consumption. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Gerena-Morales) reports, "Consumer spending showed some signs of cooling during the weeks leading up to Hurricane Katrina, and the storm could further damp consumption in the weeks ahead if gasoline prices don't retreat. In addition, Katrina affected industrial production in August." Retail sales in August "fell 2.1% from the month before to $350 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis, following a 1.8% increase in July." It was "the largest monthly sales decline since demand tumbled 2.9% in November 2001."

Meanwhile, anther Wall Street Journal story (9/15, Herrick) adds "Americans used considerably less gasoline in the final weeks of the summer driving season than a year earlier as Hurricane Katrina limited fuel supplies and distribution and drove up prices." Data released by the US Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration "could indicate that US drivers are responding to soaring gasoline prices by conserving fuel, though the supply disruptions and gasoline lines that followed could also be a factor." Gasoline demand for the week ended Sept. 9 "dropped 4.3% to 8.64 million barrels a day from 9.03 million barrels the previous week." The New York Times (9/15, Bajaj) runs a similar story in which it mentions "some anecdotal evidence that fewer consumers drove over the Labor Day holiday and that more people are taking mass transit when possible, but there is little hard data."

In addition, the New York Times/AP (9/15) adds Katrina "is eating into the economy, leading to concern that consumers will lose confidence and curtail spending. … Analysts said they still believed that Katrina would amount to only a temporary blow to the economy and that strong growth would follow as rebuilding begins."

Rice Says Pressuring OPEC To Lower Prices Will Not Work. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked whether there was anything she could do to stop OPEC from "price gouging." Rice said, "Well, we talked to OPEC and they have every reason in the world not to sink the world economy. As you know, we have an energy problem because we don't have diversified energy sources. And that's what we have to concentrate on."

Stocks Down. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Gaffen) reports, "Major stock indexes wilted Wednesday as crude oil jumped nearly $2 a barrel and traders fretted over tepid economic reports. A profit warning from Walt Disney sank the Dow industrials in the last hour of trading." The Dow Jones Industrial Average "fell 52.54 points to 10544.90, hurt by Disney's 2.8% drop, which led decliners on the average. The Nasdaq Composite Index fell 22.42 points, or 1.03%, to 2149.33, just off the day's low. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 4.15 to 1226.51."

Georgia Chief Justice Tries To Help Katrina-Displaced Attorneys. The Fulton County (GA) Daily Report (9/15, Hobbs) reports, "Georgia's top judge is trying to make things easier for hurricane-displaced lawyers who want to start a practice in Georgia." The Report continues, "Chief Justice Leah Ward Sears of the Georgia Supreme Court has asked her counterparts in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama to change their rules so that lawyers from those states could get a State Bar of Georgia license in as little as eight weeks. … Right now, those lawyers can practice in Georgia temporarily but must pass the state's bar exam to set up shop permanently -- a process that would take at least nine months. The next bar exam is not offered until February, and results do not arrive until late May." The Report adds, "The problem is that Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama do not allow reciprocity with other states. For states that do, lawyers licensed in one state can join another state's bar without having to take its bar exam. … Currently 33 states, including Georgia, allow this kind of reciprocity, said Hulett H. 'Bucky' Askew, the director of the Georgia Office of Bar Admissions. … If the top judges in those states agree, then lawyers from the Gulf Coast states would need only to pass a certification of fitness to practice in Georgia, a process that ordinarily takes eight to 12 weeks, said Askew, who added that his office would try to speed things up for displaced lawyers."

Lawmakers Remain At Odds With Bush Over Spending Bill. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Rogers) in an article on Senate debate over the Commerce, Justice and Science appropriations bill reports, "To date, the House and Senate have sidestepped confrontation with the president by quietly borrowing from defense and foreign-aid accounts to fill gaps in Mr. Bush's domestic budget. But as the Oct. 1 deadline approaches, some reckoning will soon be required." Only two of the annual spending bills have been completed and "there is an estimated $7 billion gap between the House and Senate over the remaining measures. Republican lawmakers must reconcile these differences and then try to reach some agreement with the president." As the deadline approaches, "some stopgap measure will be needed again to keep agencies funded for the first few months. The House Appropriations Committee leadership is considering a very restrictive funding formula to give itself more leverage in talks with the Senate. But this strategy could backfire if it leaves agencies such as the Army Corps of Engineers at a disadvantage, just when they are trying to cope with Katrina relief."

Labor Split Deepens As Fourth Union Quits AFL-CIO. The New York Times (9/15, Greenhouse) reports, "Deepening the split in organized labor, Unite Here, a union that represents" 450,000 "apparel, hotel, casino and restaurant workers, announced yesterday that it was quitting the A.F.L.-C.I.O., becoming the fourth union to do so this summer." Unite Here leaders "said the dissident unions would focus on large-scale organizing drives to try to unionize thousands of workers at the same time." The Times notes, "Immigrants will be a particular focus, they said, because the breakaway unions cover industries with millions of immigrant workers, like restaurants, nursing homes, supermarkets, hotels and janitorial companies."

Delta, Northwest Airlines Declare Bankruptcy. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 9, 1:55, Vargas) reported, "This has been an extraordinary day for the airline industry. Delta and Northwest both filed for bankruptcy. This means that four of the seven largest airlines will be operating under bankruptcy protection." ABC (B. Stark) added, "The third and fourth largest airlines in the country were brought to their knees today, crippled by stiff competition from discount carriers and by the exorbitant price of jet fuel after Katrina." That "will surely mean more cuts in wages, pensions, and benefits for employees of those airlines, but both Delta and Northwest tried to reassure the flying public today that for them, it would be business as usual. Planes will keep flying, tickets will be honored. Frequent flier programs will continue." Bankruptcy protection "hasn't hurt the safety records of US Airways or United, but the FAA increases the safety inspections of airlines in bankruptcy."

NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 11, 2:10, Williams) reported, "Now to the business news headlines of the day: Two of this nation's major airlines, Northwest and Delta, along with Delta's low-cost carriers, Comair and Song, all declared bankruptcy today, becoming the latest of the brand-name carriers to take that step." NBC (Thompson) added, "Already burdened by high labor costs and fierce competition from discount carriers that has snapped them of pricing power, the final blow, analysts say, proved to be jet fuel prices that rose as much as 50 cents a gallon in the aftermath of the hurricane." The two "are losing money rapidly. Northwest, in the midst of a mechanics' strike, is nearly $18 billion in the red, Delta $28 billion." The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 9, 0:40, Schieffer) also said both airlines "were expected to fly their normal schedules while they reorganize."

This morning, stories about the bankruptcies run in USA Today (9/15, Adams, Reed), New York Times (9/15, Maynard), Wall Street Journal (9/15, Perez, Carey), Financial Times (9/15, Cameron, Daniel), Los Angeles Times (9/15, Peltz), Washington Post (9/15, Goo) and Washington Times (9/15, Glanz), among other sources.

In an analysis piece, USA Today (9/15, Adams, Reed) says, "The slide into bankruptcy protection of two of the USA's largest airlines is more a result of the carriers' bad assumptions and slowness to act than the recent rise in fuel prices or the devastating terror attacks four years ago." The Delta and Northwest bankruptcies "are different in key respects from that of No. 2 United and No. 7 US Airways. Both United and US Airways were directly affected by the 9/11 attacks. Two of United's planes were hijacked that day, and Washington Reagan National Airport, where US Airways has a major operation, was shut down for weeks." Neither Delta nor Northwest "was similarly affected by the attacks, and four years have passed. Industry experts say that in the case of Delta, and to some extent Northwest, these filings are more a reflection of how traditional, hub-and-spoke airlines failed to adapt in the face of aggressive low-cost carriers, falling fares and rising oil prices."

Bankruptcy Filing Complicates Delta's Legal Fight With Employees, Retirees. The Fulton County (GA) Daily Report (9/15, Peters) reports, Now that Delta Air Lines Inc. has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, the carrier will have a legal fight on its hands from employees and retirees seeking to protect their benefits, legal experts said." The Report continues, "Delta, the third-largest U.S. airline, filed late Wednesday for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code, No. 1-05-bk-17923. (U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York, filed Sept. 14, 2005). … The filing comes after repeated warnings from Delta CEO Gerald Grinstein that higher fuel costs and lower demand have crippled the airline. Delta also has faced stiff competition from carriers such as AirTran Airways that have lower labor and operating costs." The Report adds, "Delta has been in talks with Stamford, Conn.-based GE Commercial Finance to provide the airline with $2 billion in debtor-in-possession financing, which would allow the airline to continue operating after a bankruptcy filing. Details of the loan had not been released early Wednesday, but industry analysts said they expect Delta to pledge virtually all of its remaining unencumbered assets, such as aircraft, as collateral for the loan. … Bankruptcy protection will allow Delta to change the terms of its agreements with other creditors. The airline is expected to sell many assets and slash costs, the latter by renegotiating pilot salaries and perhaps cutting back its workforce. … Delta also could cut or even abandon its pension plan and health care benefits for retirees and employees. Such a move likely would lead to a legal fight from employee groups."

Weiner Concedes Mayoral Primary; Ferrer To Face Bloomberg. The New York Times (9/15, A1, Healy) reports in a front page story that Rep. Anthony D. Weiner "conceded the 2005 Democratic mayoral nomination yesterday to Fernando Ferrer, the top vote-getter in the race, in hopes of averting a potentially destructive runoff election and strengthening Mr. Ferrer's hand as he begins the final eight-week campaign against Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg." Weiner's decision, "made after a long night of strategizing with aides and his mentor, Senator Charles E. Schumer, came as a surprise to New York Democrats, not least Mr. Ferrer, who was said to be ecstatic. Mr. Ferrer lost a bruising mayoral runoff to Mark Green in 2001, and faced an uncertain bout against the scrappy Mr. Weiner; yesterday, he embraced a nomination that had eluded him in two previous runs for mayor." But in a "surprising development, however, city elections officials announced that they were required under state law to hold a runoff despite Mr. Weiner's withdrawal - at a cost to taxpayers of at least $10 million." But even among Democrats "supporting Mr. Ferrer, beating Mr. Bloomberg is seen as an awesome and perhaps impossible challenge, given his money and approval ratings of about 60 percent. Even one of Mr. Ferrer's most prominent supporters, who is also a New York officeholder, offered a grim prediction yesterday that the mayor would beat Mr. Ferrer, 53 percent to 47 percent, if Mr. Ferrer did not invigorate his Democratic campaign."

The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Marks) reports Ferrer's avoidance of a run-off campaign "is very good news for the Democrats, who despite their 5-to-1 edge over Republicans in voter registration, haven't controlled City Hall for more than a decade, in part because of past divisive and expensive internecine contests." Some analysts "contend that Mr. Weiner's expected decision to concede is a testament to the Democrats' determination to take back City Hall. But Ferrer still faces a daunting, uphill battle against Bloomberg, whose popularity has been steadily increasing."

The Washington Post (9/15, A2, Powell) reports political strategists "say the prospects for Ferrer, who could become the city's first mayor of Puerto Rican descent, are not terribly encouraging. Bloomberg, who can project a CEO's disdain for the symbols and ceremonies of politics, has rebounded from low poll numbers of 2002 and now rides well ahead of Ferrer. The city's economy is no longer reeling as it was in 2001. And Bloomberg, if rarely loved, is regarded by many residents as an able manager."

Schwarzenegger Hints He Will Seek Second Term. The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Salladay) reports Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger "all but declared today that he would run for a second term next year, saying, 'Let me tell you, I am not in this for the short run.'" At a "special election campaign event," Schwarzenegger was "asked by an audience member if Californians would get 'a chance to vote for you again," and he "then revealed what his campaign staff had been hinting for several days: 'I'm going to make an official announcement on Friday, this Friday. I believe very strongly in follow-through. Follow-through is the most important thing. If you start something, you've got to finish it."

Reuters (9/15, Tanner) reports Schwarzenegger "signaled on Wednesday that he would seek a second term as governor in what would already be his fifth major campaign since seeking the office in 2003." The Governor "kicked off a series of campaign events this week ahead of a special election he has called for November on teacher pay, redistricting and the state budget. In an appearance before an invited audience in Clovis, California, he said he would announce on Friday whether he will seek a second term for governor starting in 2006."

Legislator Says Mississippi Has Benefited From Tort Reform. Charlie Ross, a Mississippi state senator and chairman of the Senate Judiciary A Committee, writes in the Wall Street Journal (9/15, A21) that the Mississippi Legislature in 2004 approved a comprehensive Tort Reform Bill that included "venue reform (so trial lawyers cannot shop around for favorable courts) and caps on subjective noneconomic damages (such as pain and suffering)." Ross adds, "Prior to the legislation, Mississippi was known as the 'jackpot justice capital of America.' … Insurance companies were fleeing the state. Others were refusing to write new policies. .. One year later, the story is very different. Mass Mutual Insurance Group, St. Paul Travelers, World Insurance Co. and Equitable Life Insurance Co. are returning to Mississippi. … The Medical Assurance Company of Mississippi, which writes 60% of the medical malpractice coverage for doctors in the state, had raised its rates 20% the year prior to the tort reform legislation. After its passage, MACM did not raise its rates at all. … Insurance was becoming less available and less affordable prior to the passage of the tort reform legislation. Now, the opposite is true." Ross notes, "Since only a year has passed, the long-term consequences of tort reform cannot be known. …

There is enough information, however, to state unequivocally that tort reform has made the Mississippi legal environment more fair, more predictable and less expensive."

North Korea Demands Reactor In Exchange For Ending Arms Program. The New York Times (9/15, Kahn) reports, "North Korea demanded on Wednesday that the United States and other nations give it money to build a new light-water nuclear reactor before it will end its nuclear weapons program, a condition that appeared to undermine prospects for a breakthrough in the talks here" and "suggested that North Korea was coming up with fresh obstacles to signing a broadly worded commitment to denuclearize." While the Americans "recently signaled a softening of" the positions that the North cannot be trusted with any nuclear technology, "saying they would be willing to leave aside the issue of civilian uses of nuclear technology for now," they "drew a sharp line at building new reactors for North Korea."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Fairclough) adds that this is a "replay of demands made during negotiations in the early 1990s," and that "any such deal would be an extremely tough sell for the conservative U.S. Congress."

The Washington Post (9/15, A28, Cody) adds that chief U.S. negotiator, Assistant Secretary of State Christopher Hill said, "It's very clear they wanted to make this light-water reactor day ... I hope they don't want to make it light-water reactor week. I don't know how many ways I can say no."

Rice Predicts Regional Changes Will Help Isolate Iran. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked whether Iran was "America's biggest enemy next to North Korea." Rice said, "Iran is a state that is moving in the wrong direction. I would say 180 degrees in the wrong direction. But on one order, they have now an Afghanistan that is a democratic state and an ally of the United States in the war on terror, military ally of the United States. On the other hand, they have a not-yet-finished project in Iraq but one that when it is will be a nontheocratic majority state that is the center now of a nontheocratic Islamic-related democracy."

French Pushing Referral Of Iranian Nuclear Program To Security Council. The Washington Times (9/15, Pisik) reports, "French Prime Minister Dominique de Villepin yesterday threatened to refer Iran's nuclear program to the U.N. Security Council ... For months, France had resisted U.S. pressure to send a dispute over Iran's nuclear program to the United Nations for possible sanctions."

Indian Hesitation At Confronting Iran Straining Ties With US. The New York Times (9/15, Weisman) reports, "A few months after the United States and India elevated their relationship to a new level with a broad accord, a fresh irritant has disrupted the friendship - the Bush administration's insistence that a reluctant India join in the confrontation over Iran's suspected nuclear weapons program. India, with a longstanding friendship with Tehran, is demurring," Indian officials say that "bringing the issue to the Security Council will backfire, especially by provoking Iran's new president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad."

Hundreds Of Arms Smuggled Over Egypt-Gaza Border. The New York Times/AP (9/15, Press) reports, "Palestinian gunrunners smuggled hundreds of assault rifles and pistols across the Egyptian frontier into Gaza," confirming "Israeli fears about giving up border control and could further destabilize Gaza ... Egypt had assured Israel that it would prevent weapons smuggling once its troops took over from Israel along the Gaza frontier, and Cairo and the Palestinian Authority pledged to seal the border by Wednesday evening," but "Palestinian security forces in Gaza appeared to be doing little to stop infiltrators."

The Washington Times/AP (9/15, Barzak) reports, "Scores of Palestinians crossed from the Gaza Strip into Egypt yesterday evening before Egyptian security forces moved to close the border in an attempt to restore order ... Hundreds of Egyptian border guards were expected this morning to enforce the closure in earnest." Yesterday "Hamas militants -- unhindered by Palestinian police -- blew a hole in the Gaza barrier ... Mr. Abbas' security forces largely have displayed weakness since the Israeli withdrawal." Even though "imposing security in unruly Gaza is seen as the key test of Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas' government," Palestinian officials said that they "will not risk civil war," by trying to disarm Hamas, "despite intense international pressure to confront militants."

Gaza "On Brink Of Lawlessness" In Absence Of Israelis. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, A1 Leggett) reports, "With the Israelis gone, Gaza teeters on the brink of lawlessness as armed groups fight each other and the official Palestinian quasi-government, the Palestinian Authority. The Palestinian Authority remains weak and plagued by corruption." Palestinians worry "some officials may seek kickbacks in return for releasing aid funds" and are concerned about "Gaza's rampant lawlessness."

Commenting on the situation in Gaza, the Washington Post (9/15) editorializes, "Unless Palestinian and Egyptian leaders take immediate steps to fulfill their commitments in Gaza, they will bear the responsibility for a new stalemate -- or worse -- in the Middle East." The Gaza withdrawal "could become a leap away from" an Israeli-Palestinian settlement. "The Gaza Strip is on the verge of anarchy," and "the Palestinian Authority has allowed mobs of looters and armed extremists to rampage through former Jewish settlements" and "the valuable greenhouses…have been stripped of equipment as police stood by and watched." Egypt "allowed thousands of Palestinians to illegally cross its border, including rifle-brandishing militants." If it is not quickly checked, "he disorder will destroy Palestinian hopes that the Gaza transfer will become a step toward statehood."

US-EU Trade Talk Efforts Hindered By Farm Tariffs. The New York Times (9/15, Andrews) reports, "American and European officials are trying to breathe new life into the so-called Doha Round of trade talks," with a crucial deadline only three months away. However, it has become "bogged down in large part because of the reluctance by the United States and the European Union to reduce tariffs on imported crops and subsidies for domestic farmers," which have "spurred a rebellion of sorts by many large developing countries."

"Untested" Merkel Expected To Win German Election. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, A1, Walker, Champion) reports, "Merkel is favored to become leader of the world's third-largest economy." Her party, "which maintains a narrowing lead in the polls, has promised to end Germany's economic malaise by shaking up longstanding labor, tax and social policies," and "could also shift the balance of European politics, drawing Germany closer to the flexible markets of countries like Britain and isolating its longtime ally, France." Still, "her ability to drive profound political change is untested. She has been uncomfortable and distant on the campaign trail, and even Germans in her own party oppose many of her economic proposals … Even if Ms. Merkel wins an outright majority, she may find it difficult to push through her reform agenda."

In an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal (9/15) Gabor Steingart, the Berlin bureau chief for Der Spiegel and author of "Der Abstieg eines Superstars," argues, "Angela Merkel has a chance if she succeeds in mobilizing" willpower, "society's most underestimated productive force," behind "her policies." She "knows the forces at work here. They are pulling the country, as well as its chancellor, down -- down to the place where the wellspring of eternal fear flows. No nation likes to lose a piece of its power and prosperity each day. German assertiveness is thus Ms. Merkel's natural coalition partner. She must ally herself with it, promote it and let it grow into a mighty political force." The "Fear of reform, fear of stagnation, fear of a failure of democracy and now -- as the frantic climax of this collective neurosis -- the fear of a further growth of fear," have resulted in "political exhaustion on all sides" that such force of will must counteract.

Father's Choices Put Merkel In East Germany, Shaped Her Life. The New York Times (9/15, Dempsey) reports that Merkel was "just 3 months old when the family moved" to East Germany, her father, a Reverend, looking to teach Christianity. When he was asked by the Stasi, the secret police, to become an informer, he refused. As a result, "his daughter ran into difficulty … She had wanted to train to become a teacher and translator, but was not allowed to because of her father's profession."

German MP Says Close European-US Relationships Key To Future. In an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal (9/15) Wolfgang Schauble, a member of the German parliament and Angela Merkel's foreign and security advisor, "To preserve peace, freedom and security in Europe, the success of the European unification process and a functioning trans-Atlantic partnership are of paramount importance." The Christian Democratic Union will "avoid everything that could weaken trust," unlike "the wrong maneuvers of Gerhard Schröder's government, which have contributed greatly to the fact that Europe and the trans-Atlantic relationship are today experiencing their deepest crisis … If we succeed in strengthening Europe's cohesion, achieving common Euro-Atlantic positions, and binding Russia, China and others into a system of cooperative international responsibility, then we will also face down the greatest challenge for our future: to credibly convince the non-Western world that the West does not stand against them."

Protestant Anger Dashes Ulster Reconciliation, Fuels Violence. The New York Times (9/15, Lavery) reports, "Deep-seated anger among Protestants has dashed hopes of a reconciliation with Roman Catholics anytime soon … The police have blamed Protestant paramilitaries for organizing the recent violence." Many say the riots are due to a "rift between the British government and Protestants … No prominent unionists, who are largely Protestant and want the province to remain part of Britain, condemned the violence … Protestants continue to feel slighted" as their "privileged position in Northern Ireland" has "gradually eroded since the 1960's." They "are also infuriated that Britain has rewarded the I.R.A.…before the terrorist group fulfills its promise to disarm."

DOJ_NMG_ 0147763

Family Of Man Killed By IRA Suffers Violence, Intimidation. The Washington Post (9/15, A21, Sullivan) reports, "The family of Robert McCartney, a Catholic whose death at the hands of Irish Republican Army members in January caused international outrage and brought White House condemnation, said Wednesday it was being subjected to a campaign of violence and intimidation for speaking out forcefully against the IRA." Teenaged cousins and Jeff Commander, a friend, have been beaten, and "at least 50 people, mostly women, demonstrated outside the home of Bridgeen Hagans, McCartney's fiancee, vowing to return every night until she moves out of the neighborhood." Sinn Fein issued a statement Wednesday "denying any link to the beating."

Factory Seizure Fans Corruption Claims In Ukraine. The New York Times (9/15, Myers) reports that on Sept. 2, camouflaged men "seized the headquarters of…the Severodonetsk Azot Association," accompanied by officials of a new government carrying an order signed by a minister under" Ukrainian President Yushchenko, "based on a court case filed by a fictitious company, on behalf of a politician who stood to gain from the seizure." This has raised "questions about the true success of what came to be known as the Orange Revolution, as members of Mr. Yushchenko's team volley accusations of abuse of power, bribery and other forms of corruption." "Reports of bribery and corruption have swirled around" Yushchenko's circle "from the time of his inauguration in January," and the resignation of Oleksandr O. Zinchenko, Mr. Yushchenko's chief of staff, "provoked a political firestorm here that shows little sign of subsiding."

Ortega Has "Fighting Chance" Of Returning To Power. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Harman) reports, "Fifteen years after unexpectedly being voted out of power, and with two unsuccessful runs for the presidency since," Daniel Ortega, "the iconic head of the Marxist Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN) is back on the campaign trail" and "has a fighting chance of returning to power … Even his critics say divisions within the ruling party, coupled with Ortega's grip on the electoral machine, make his resurrection possible." Roger Noriega, the Bush administration's outgoing top envoy to Latin America said "that if the Sandinistas returned to power, Nicaragua would 'sink like a stone and reach depths such as those of Cuba.'" However, Carlos Fernando Chamorro, a former editor of the Sandinista newspaper Barricada, says "too much US interference in the lead up to the election could actually help Ortega."

Former USTR Urges US To See China As Tough Competitor. In an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal (9/15), Charlene Barshefsky, U.S. Trade Representative from 1997 to 2001, and Edward Gresser, director of trade and global markets at the Progressive Policy Institute, "The plain fact is that our competition has gotten tougher, and we need to match it." China's economic "emergence is reshaping not only trade, but also world finances, global manufacturing and the entire East Asian economy. This should naturally give rise to searching debate. But the debate we are actually having is limited to a series of complaints about currency rates, intellectual property piracy and Chinese investment intentions in the U.S. … The U.S. must develop an integrated policy to address this emerging challenge in all its aspects, by reducing "the risk of global trade and financial imbalances," raising "its game at home to remain the world's technological leader," maintaining our "central place in the Pacific economy," and restructuring our "economic relationship with China." The first step is "recognition by the administration, Congress, businesses and the public that we face a powerful competitive challenge, one that cannot be attributed to undervalued currencies or unfair trade."

TERRORISM NEWS:

Former 9/11 Commissioners Flatly Dismiss Weldon Able Danger Claims. The AP (9/15, Barrett) reports former 9/11 commissioners "on Wednesday dismissed assertions that…Pentagon intelligence unit" Able Danger "identified lead hijacker Mohamed Atta as an member of al-Qaida long before the 2001 attacks. The ex-commissioners also criticized the government for not putting in place changes recommended last year in homeland security and emergency response." The AP notes that Rep. Curt Weldon "had accused the commission of ignoring intelligence about Atta while it investigated the attacks," but former commission chairman Thomas Kean "said there was no evidence anyone in the government knew about Atta before Sept. 11, 2001." Former commissioner and US Sen. Slade Gorton said, "Bluntly, it just didn't happen and that's the conclusion of all 10 of us."

Judge Rules Alleged Mall Bomb Plotter's Statements Admissible. The AP (9/14) reports US District Judge Algenon Marbley on Tuesday ruled federal prosecutors can use statements made by alleged mall bomb plotter Nuradin Abdi at trial. Abdi lawyers "had sought to bar statements he made to authorities in which he admitted to falsifying immigration documents and planning to blow up an undetermined Columbus-area mall." Marbley said "that the statements were admissible because Abdi made them in the presence of his lawyer," despite the fact that "Abdi's arrest in November 2003 was illegal because government agents appeared to act only so they could interrogate him."

Philippine Government Willing To Turn Over Espionage Suspects. The Manila Sun Star (9/15) reports, "The Philippine Government is willing to turn over three public officials tagged by the US Federal Bureau of Investigation…in connection with the espionage case filed against former police official Michael Ray Aquino in the US, Justice Secretary Raul Gonzalez Sr. said. Gonzalez met with US legal attaché to the Philippines Jeff Cole, who furnished him confidential notes on the arrest of Aquino in Queens, New York and his friend, FBI analyst Leandro Aragoncillo, a Filipino-American, in New Jersey. … In a press briefing, Gonzalez said among those who are allegedly involved in Aquino's espionage activities include a former official and two incumbent officials." The Sun Star adds, "Once the names of the three Philippine officials are revealed and it is proven that they are Aquino's cohorts, they will be named as co-conspirators for violation of US laws." The Philippine Star (9/15) also reports the Philippine government is ready to turn over the officials to the US.

FBI To Identify Philippine Officials Who Allegedly Received Documents. Manila-based news Web site ABS-CBN Interactive (9/15) reports the FBI "will reveal next week the names of former and current Philippine government officials who allegedly received classified US government documents sent by Michael Ray Aquino, the National Bureau of Investigation…said Thursday." NBI International Police division chief Ricardo Diaz "said two of the officials identified by the FBI are on active government service. He said the FBI will unseal the documents on the case on September 21 and 22. Diaz said the names in the FBI files pertain to former and current government officials who received classified information stolen by Aragoncillo while working as an intelligence analyst at the US Army's Fort Monmouth facility in New Jersey."

PATRIOT ACT:

Former AG Ashcroft Defends Patriot Act. The South Bend Tribune (9/14, Draeger) reports, "Former Attorney General John Ashcroft is well aware his name is nearly synonymous with the 2001 Patriot Act that gave the FBI and Justice Department broad powers." The Tribune continues, "As its chief enforcer and defender, Ashcroft has been a target of librarians and civil rights activists who say the Patriot Act brings Big Brother into the private lives of ordinary citizens by allowing investigators to detain terrorism suspects. … 'I'm probably a poster boy for the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union),' Ashcroft told members of the Economic Club of SW Michigan Tuesday at the Mendel Center for the Arts and Technology at Lake Michigan College (in Benton Harbor, MI). … 'They've built their membership against me,' he added." The Tribune adds, "But he told the audience of mostly like-minded Republicans why the act is necessary in a post-9/11 country. … The act's measures give federal investigators more tools to prevent future terrorist attacks, such as 'bringing down the wall' of silence that prevented the CIA, FBI and local enforcement agencies from sharing information that could've stopped the planners of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks. … Measures like 'roving wiretaps,' he said, sound alarmist, but they extend to terrorists what law officers have used to fight drug dealers for years. … 'We needed the authority to extend that to terrorists,' he said." The Tribune notes, "Another provision that angered librarians at the time about the federal government being allowed to inquire about reading materials of patrons was also highlighted by a bookstore owner in the audience. … She told Ashcroft she has no safeguards against her records being seized. … Ashcroft said during the first two years of the Patriot Act, no library records were seized to hunt for terrorists."

HOMELAND RESPONSE:

Chertoff Orders Completion Of Border Fence Near San Diego. The Washington Times (9/15, Seper) reports, "Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff yesterday exercised his legal authority to bypass regulatory obstacles that had long delayed completion of a 14-mile border 'enforcement zone' near San Diego." Chertoff said, "Completing the border infrastructure system will strengthen our efforts to reduce illegal entry to the United States. Congress provided us the authority to ensure this project is completed, and I intend to use it." The border fence "has been delayed since 1996 by litigation and environmental challenges." And Rep. James Sensenbrenner "said the project would improve the security of the American public, especially those in the San Diego area; allow CBP to use its resources in a more effective manner; and clean up the environmental destruction that has resulted from illegal border crossings."

Internal Disputes Hinder Goss Efforts To Reform CIA. Highlighting the CIA's lack of progress in improving its intelligence capabilities after the 9/11 attacks, the Washington Times (9/15, Gertz) reports CIA associate deputy director of operations Robert Richer "will leave earlier than announced because of a dispute with CIA Director Porter J. Goss on reforms within the agency's spying branch." Richer's "scheduled departure highlights an ongoing and largely secret political struggle inside the CIA over efforts by Mr. Goss to reform the agency in the aftermath of intelligence failures related to September 11 and Iraq's weapons programs." While the exact nature of Richer's dispute is unclear, "Goss and four close aides have been working behind the scenes to try to improve the agency's spying operations and have encountered resistance from officials who oppose some of the changes." The Times notes, "In particular, Mr. Goss is pressing hard for agency spies to do better in Iraq."

Suspect In Ricin Threat Remains At Large. The Hill (9/15, Kucinich) reports, "It has been nearly 18 months since" a threatening message "was sent with a vile of ricin to the Department of Transportation (DoT). A similar letter was mailed to the White House, and traces of the deadly substance were found on a mail-opening machine in Majority Leader Bill Frist's…mailroom." Although "no one has been implicated yet," Browning See president Lee Browning "said he suspects that the FBI knows where the letters came from and who sent them because of extensive research on the DNA of castor beans, from which ricin is derived." FBI spokeswoman Debbie Wireman "said there are currently no updates on the case but 'it is still being looked at.'" After the attacks funding was "increased for projects that genetically engineer castor beans without ricin"

King Chosen To Chair House Homeland Security Panel. Rep. Peter King has been selected to be the next chairman of the House Homeland Security Committee. Roll Call (9/15, Pershing) reports that the House Republican Steering Committee selected King "at a time when the panel's turf is under heavy scrutiny." Roll Call notes, "The Steering choice is still subject to ratification by the full Republican Conference, but it is highly doubtful that the larger GOP group wouldn't approve the choice." Republican aides said that the choice of King "just days after the fourth anniversary of 9/11 would be important symbolically. The fact that King is a moderate with good relationships across the aisle is also considered helpful, given the nature of the post."

The New York Times (9/15, Hernandez) adds that King is a "moderate" who is "known for his independent streak." The selection of King "provides New York a potentially more prominent voice in a critical area at a time when the state's heavily Democratic delegation in the House finds itself largely sidelined by conservatives from other parts of the country. His appointment is expected to be ratified by House Republicans."

The Hill (9/15, Tiron) notes the for Rep. Curt Weldon, "the vice chairman of the committee, who waged an aggressive campaign based on his two decades of experience on homeland-security issues, the defeat is a stinging blow. The Steering Committee has passed him over for two other chairmanships in the past, including the homeland-security panel when it was first created."

9th Circuit Troubled By US Border Search Requests. The California Recorder (9/15, Scheck) reports, "Judge Betty Fletcher gave the federal government what it wanted Wednesday. But she didn't feel too good about it. And her colleague, Judge Raymond Fisher, wasn't really happy, either." The Recorder continues, "Fletcher, a senior judge on the 9th U.S. Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, authored two opinions Wednesday, and sat on the panel that offered a third, per curiam opinion. They said that border agents searching for contraband may disembowel gas tanks, drill holes in truck beds and disassemble car doors without reasonable cause for suspicion. … Fletcher made her feelings known in a concurrence to her own opinion in U.S.A. v. Chaudhry, 05 C.D.O.S. 8344, that, she wrote, is intended 'to express my distaste for the government's game-playing.'" The Recorder adds, "The game-playing involved the government's goal of getting an appeals court to agree that border agents could take apart an automobile without apparent suspicion. … But in all three cases, there were clear reasons for suspicion that the government chose not to enter into evidence -- from drug-sniffing dogs to visibly nervous drivers. … 'But the government wanted confirmation that no suspicion is required for extensive, intrusive searches at the border,' Fletcher wrote. 'This would have an ancillary benefit for the government -- it would not have to prove the reliability of its drug-sniffing dogs.' … The question of whether the government may conduct such extensive searches without suspicion, she added, 'is an entirely fictional construct. Suspicion existed in each case, and in my view, review of cases at the appellate level is a waste of judicial resources. The only possible purposes are the government's desire to push the envelope to its limits: to find out how much destruction it can do without any suspicion, and to avoid proving it uses reliable dogs.'"

Romney Calls For Increased US Surveillance Of Mosques, International Students. The Boston Globe (9/15, Helman) reports that in a speech to the Heritage Foundation on Wednesday, Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney "raised the prospect of wiretapping mosques and conducting surveillance of foreign students in Massachusetts, as he issued a broad call…for the federal government to devote far more money and attention to domestic intelligence gathering. In remarks that caused alarm among civil libertarians and advocates for immigrants rights, Romney said…that the United States needs to radically rethink how it guards itself against terrorism." The Globe notes, "Ali Noorani, executive director of the Massachusetts Immigrants and Refugee Advocacy Coalition, called the methods Romney suggested misguided and ineffective. Tracking people based on their ethnicity, he said, will only sow resentment among immigrant communities and prevent their cooperation with authorities."

Flight 93 Memorial Draws Criticism For Including Crescent In Design. The Washington Times (9/15, Harper) reports, "It is unbuilt, but already under fire. The proposed memorial to United Flight 93 has a chorus of critics, irked by a single design element that ultimately might be reconfigured." The Times continues, "The 'Crescent of Embrace,' a double arc of maple trees that will turn red in the fall, has drawn the ire of some, who say it will resemble the red crescent -- a symbol of Islam dear to the hearts of the September 11 hijackers on the flight that crashed into a Pennsylvania field." Rep. Tom Tancredo called on the National Park Service "to reject the design as 'a flash point for controversy and criticism.'"

WAR NEWS:

Al Qaeda Stages Series Of Car Bombings In Baghdad. Eleven suicide bombers struck in Baghdad yesterday, killing at least 160 people and wounding an additional 500. The violence was directed against Shiite Muslims, and al Qaeda in Iraq claimed responsibility for the attack, saying it was intended as retaliation for the joint US/Iraqi offensive in Tal Afar. CBS led with the story, while ABC reported it third in its newscast and NBC reported it sixth.

NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 6, 2:20, Engel) reported, "A senior US Commander told NBC News the attacks were timed to embarrass the Iraqi government while both President Talibani and Prime Minister Al Jaafari are in the United States, and to put Zarquawi back in the media spotlight after almost nonstop coverage of Hurricane Katrina. And Zarquawi used that spotlight to declare war on all Shiites in Iraq, his clearest call yet for a civil war."

The CBS Evening News (9/14, lead story , 2:35, Schieffer) reported, "A series of car bombings began early this morning in Baghdad went on until mid-afternoon and by the time it ended it had become the deadliest day in the capital since the war began." A "militant Website then followed up with an al Qaeda declaration of war on all Iraqi Shiites."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 3, 2:35, Vargas) reported it was "a terrible day, the most violence since the US invaded and took control of the country." ABC (Berman) added, "Nearly all of the victims were Shiite Muslims. In a recording released today, a man claiming to be the Sunni terrorist Abu Musab al Zarqawi declared a holy war on all Shiite Muslims in Iraq. He also claimed credit for today's attacks, calling them revenge for the US and Iraqi offensive in the northern city of Tal Afar near the Syrian border." ABC (Vargas) added, "Attacks by insurgents in Iraq have been on the rise. From about 60 attack as day before September to an average of nearly 80 a day this month."

USA Today (9/15, Jervis, Mahmoud) adds that in its Web posting, "al-Qaeda in Iraq linked the attacks to an offensive by Iraqi and U.S. forces in Tal Afar, near the Syrian border. The offensive began Saturday and evicted most insurgents from the city. The U.S. military estimated 200 militants were killed. No Americans were killed." Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, "al-Qaeda's leader in Iraq, purportedly declared 'all-out war' on Shiite Muslims, Iraqi troops and the country's government in an audio recording released on the Internet."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Daragahi) reports, "A senior US military official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the attacks were evidence of insurgents' weakness against Iraq's nascent security forces. '(The insurgents) failed to stand up to the assault up north, so they slink away and kill civilians in Baghdad,' he said. 'It is astonishing that they can try to claim some victory from pure murder.'"

The Financial Times (9/15, Negus) reports "witnesses said that no US or Iraqi military or police targets were in the vicinity, suggesting that the attacker had aimed to cause as much civilian carnage as possible." The blast "comes two weeks after a stampede at a Shia religious commemoration sparked by fears of a suicide bomber killed over 1,000 people in the same area."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Fassihi) says "the scale and scope of the attacks, with Sunni Arab militants targeting and killing groups of Shiites, shows the increasingly sectarian nature of the conflict, and is reviving doubts about whether the newly trained Iraqi forces can properly secure it." The Journal adds, "Many analysts believe the buffer keeping Iraq's Sunni and Shiites from a full-fledge civil war has been the Shiite religious and political leaders' restraint from accusing the Sunnis outright and calling for Shiites to retaliate." But "no one is sure how much longer the Shiite community will be willing to heed their advice."

The New York Times (9/15, Worth) notes Iraq's "National Assembly and Iraqi government, led by Mr. Jaafari, who had given approval for the Tal Afar offensive, are both dominated by Shiites." Iraqi and American officials have been "anticipating a rise in violence in reaction to Iraq's new constitution, which has provoked angry opposition from many Sunni leaders and demonstrations in several cities since it was presented in the National Assembly last month."

The Washington Post (9/15, Knickmeyer, Nouri) reports, "The attacks appeared calculated to undermine public faith in the ability of the fledgling government to protect its people, by showing that insurgents could strike in Baghdad despite the US and Iraqi military efforts to stop them."

The Washington Times (9/15, Hurst) runs a similar AP story on the bombings.

Insurgents Avoid US-Iraqi Efforts To Limit Mobility. The latest bombings in Iraq are a sign the insurgent's strategy to avoid being captured by US and Iraqi forces by abandoning cities until coalition forces leave is having some success. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Carroll, Murphy) says the "contrast between what are being described as largely successful operations against insurgent hotbeds in Tal Afar, Qaim, and Haditha…and ongoing violence across the country, demonstrates the fluidity of Iraq's insurgency against thinly spread US and Iraqi forces." For example, the coalition attack on Tal Afar "was aimed at limiting the mobility of Sunni insurgents." Approximately "200 militants were killed and hundreds captured. But as forces moved on the city, the US military said many insurgents simply fled, using a network of tunnels they'd created in advance of the assault. That pattern has become increasingly common since the April assault on Fallujah, where hundreds of insurgents died in the most sustained combat of the war."

WSJournal Sees Iraqi Forces As Key To Stabilizing Border. The Wall Street Journal (9/15) editorializes, "There are good reasons to believe the…operation in Tal Afar…will be a model of things to come." Unlike previous operations when US forces would eventually leave the area, "Iraqis are leading the fight and, most important, many will stay so the people of Tal Afar can begin to believe they can live free of terrorist intimidation." It also "calls into question the contention of war critics like Senator Joe Biden that there are only a handful of Iraqi troops capable of meaningful operations. … U.S. commanders classify about 40 battalions -- roughly 750 soldiers in each -- as 'fully independent' or able to fight 'in the lead.'" The Journal concludes, "Whether those Iraqi troops are competently led and deployed will depend on a political process that includes a constitutional referendum and another parliamentary election before the year is out. But" it "is the best sign of anti-insurgent progress since the Marine sweep through Fallujah."

Iraqi Families Rush To Retrieve Bodies Of Attack Victims. The Washington Post (9/15, A25, Knickmeyer) describes the efforts by local Iraqis to retrieve the bodies of the victims of the latest insurgent attacks, reporting "Bedlam was bubbling up in Iraq's capital all day Wednesday, bursting through the thin surface of what passes for routine. Families rushed to find loved ones and ambulances sped to aid survivors, even as new bombings sent more waves of frantic searchers into the chaos. Towers of black smoke rose into the sky as police turned away cars from hospitals, fearing secondary attacks that might target medical centers treating the bombing victims."

Rice Says More Allied Forces In Iraq Unnecessary. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked why NATO was not playing a larger role in Iraq. Rice said, "Well, NATO is doing some work in Iraq." Asked why NATO couldn't help increase security along Iraq's borders, Rice replied, "Actually, at this point now we don't need more foreign forces in Iraq. What we need is Iraqi forces to be trained up." Asked whether the US might need "more boots on the ground," Rice maintained, "We need Iraqi forces to be trained up, and that's what's happening. This fight has got to become the Iraqis' fight."

Rice Says Media Not Covering Long-Term Progress In Iraq. Rice, also on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14), was asked whether negative coverage by the press was responsible for public opposition to the war in Iraq. Rice said, "Quite apart from what the press may or may not like, there's also the problem that the press reports on a daily basis headlines every day when, in fact, this is a somewhat longer-term process in Iraq. And where the political process has been moving just inexorably along, that's harder to see. That's harder to report on. But there are times when people see it. When 8.5 million Iraqis vote out and voted, people knew we were in Iraq for the right reasons."

CBS Questions Detention Of Iraqi Cameraman. Iraqi officials and Western media have raised questions about the continued detention of Iraqis helping US reporters. The dispute over the detention of freelance cameraman Abdul Amir Younes Hussein is the latest flashpoint. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Dreazen) reports the US military's explanation that Hussein had been "detained for alleged insurgent activity" has "sparked a bitter legal and political dispute with Viacom Inc.'s CBS, which has lobbied senior military and civilian officials to try to win the cameraman's release. Mr. Hussein, who has been unable to see his family or his lawyer since being detained, faces a hearing today in Baghdad that will determine whether he will be released."

The New York Times (9/15, Worth) notes, "Iraqi criminal authorities have reviewed his case and declined to prosecute him. Colleagues who were with him that day have produced affidavits supporting his innocence. The American military has not released any evidence against him, despite repeated requests for information by CBS producers, lawyers and even the network's president, Andrew Heyward." And recently "Iraq's justice minister, Abdul Hussein Shandal, criticized the detentions of Iraqi journalists in an interview with Reuters, saying he wanted to change a United Nations resolution that gives American troops immunity from Iraqi law."

Diverse Field Of Candidates Seek Office In Afghan Elections. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Baldauf) reports the diversity of the approximately 5,700 candidates running for office in Afghanistan "is both an endorsement of democracy, and a challenge to its very existence." Afghanis "will be selecting from candidates who hold conflicting views over concepts as fundamental as the very definition of democracy itself." The Monitor notes, "Many, perhaps the majority, pose as opponents of President Hamid Karzai, and some demand the removal of US troops as a sign that Afghanistan can now run itself."

Former Taliban Foes See Chance For Return To Power. The Washington Post (9/15, A20, Aizenman) reports, "As leading members of a coalition of northern ethnic militias that joined forces with the United States to topple the Taliban rulers after the Sept. 11 attacks, Massoud's Panjshiri successors were a dominant force in Afghanistan's first post-Taliban government. But over the last year and a half, the ethnic Tajiks of the Panjshir Valley have watched with dismay as President Hamid Karzai, a member of Afghanistan's majority Pashtun ethnic group, has replaced some of their most prominent leaders with Pashtuns and welcomed former Taliban officials back into the country as part of a reconciliation program." Now they "see Afghanistan's parliamentary elections, to be held Sunday, as their chance at a comeback."

Young Afghans Strive To Make Voices Heard. The New York Times (9/15, Gall) reports, "The young people of Afghanistan stand out in this already industrious nation as particularly motivated and politically aware and are seen by some here as an important constituency in the coming parliamentary elections, on Sunday." Similar to their parents "younger adults want security, good educational systems and a good health system, in that order," according to National Youth Solidarity Party leader Jamil Karzai, who is "a second cousin of President Hamid Karzai."

Female Candidate Sees Hope In Election. The Washington Times (9/15, Gentile) reports, "Jamilah Mujahid, who hopes to win one of 68 seats set aside for women in Afghanistan's parliament, view's Sunday's election as a turning point for her war-ravaged nation." Among her "priorities if elected would be education for women, especially those who are behind the learning curve because they grew up under the Taliban regime." She "called Sunday's scheduled parliamentary and provincial elections 'a new beginning for Afghanistan.'"

First Female Governor Provides Inspiration For Afghan Women. USA Today (9/15, Wiseman) reports describes the success of Afghani provincial governor Habiba Sarabi who is "the first woman to run a province in Afghan history." In her province of Bamiya women "are leaping into the political space created by the U.S.-led overthrow of the Islamic fundamentalist Taliban militia four years ago. They are more likely to run for office and to vote than other Afghan women." She "was appointed six months ago by Afghan President Hamid Karzai. She has emerged as a role model for Bamiyan's aspiring female politicians."

Afghan Commanders Said To Have Helped Bin Laden Escape To Pakistan. The Los Angeles Times/Reuters (9/15) reports that according to Afghan Interior Ministry spokesman Lutfullah Mashal "Osama bin Laden was given safe passage to Pakistan in 2001 by Afghan commanders paid by Al Qaeda and sympathetic to the terrorist network's cause." Mashal said, "Osama, along with other Al Qaeda people, managed to go to Parachinar at the time, and then Pakistani forces battled the Al Qaeda runaways, killing around 70 of them." He "told private Pakistani television channel Geo on Tuesday that U.S. forces had made a mistake in entrusting the capture of Bin Laden to Afghan commanders." He "said Bin Laden later recrossed the border to Khowst, where the leader of the Taliban there gave him refuge. He then returned to Pakistan, this time heading for Miranshah, the main town in another tribal area, North Waziristan."

CORPORATE SCANDALS:

Merrill Lynch To Change Forecasting Of Stock Option Earnings. USA Today/Reuters (9/15) reports, "Merrill Lynch on Wednesday said it will require all U.S. equity research analysts to include options and other stock-based compensation in their earnings forecasts for U.S. companies." Reuters continues, "The changes by the largest U.S. full-service brokerage, which covers more than 1,000 U.S. companies in 50 industries, are intended to reflect a controversial new accounting rule. That rule requires public companies in fiscal years beginning after June 15 to treat stock options as routine business expenses, such as salaries. … Many technology companies, including Cisco Systems, opposed the new rule, fearing it might increase operating costs and reduce profits. … But the Financial Accounting Standards Board and Securities and Exchange Commission backed the change, and companies such as Wal-Mart began implementing it before the deadline. Meanwhile, some companies, including Microsoft, have stopped granting stock options."

Former Marsh Executives Expect New York Fraud Indictments. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, McDonald) reports, "As many as eight former Marsh Inc. executives are expected to be indicted on criminal-fraud charges Thursday, according to two people close to the situation." The Journal continues, "As reported last month in The Wall Street Journal, a grand jury impaneled in Manhattan has been weighing criminal charges against the former executives. The probe is an outgrowth of a fraud investigation last year by New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer that resulted in a $850 million settlement by Marsh & McLennan Cos. of bid-rigging charges early this year. Marsh Inc. is the New York company's insurance-brokerage unit. … In settling, Marsh apologized to clients for the 'shameful' conduct of some employees who 'unlawfully deceived their customers.'" The Journal adds, "Mr. Spitzer is expected to unseal indictments charging the former Marsh employees with scheming to defraud, according to the two people, barring any last-minute guilty-pleas hammered out with prosecutors. … In the civil suit settled by Marsh, state authorities alleged that some Marsh brokers cheated institutional clients by rigging bids for large insurance contracts and steering business to insurers who paid Marsh large commission payments. All told, more than 15 insurance managers and executives have pleaded guilty to criminal charges stemming from the probe, including other former Marsh brokers and former employees of large insurers American International Group Inc.; Zurich American Insurance Co., a unit of Zurich Financial Services AG; and ACE Ltd."

Former NYSE Regulator Testifies Before SEC On E-Mail Policies. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Hughes) reports, "The Securities and Exchange Commission asked the New York Stock Exchange in 2001 to drop enforcement cases against a dozen Wall Street firms whose email retention and storage policies were deficient, according to a former NYSE regulator." The Journal continues, "Annette Nazareth, then-director of the SEC's market regulation and now an SEC commissioner, called the NYSE in the spring of 2001 and asked that the exchange's regulatory arm stop reporting email-retention violations to the NYSE's enforcement division and withdraw referrals that had already been made, according to testimony by Salvatore Pallante, former NYSE executive vice president for member-firm regulation." The Journal adds, "At the time, the SEC was in discussions with Wall Street over changes to its email rules, which the industry had criticized as being too broad. Because of those discussions, Ms. Nazareth believed it would be 'unreasonable' to bring enforcement actions, according to Mr. Pallante's testimony. … Mr. Pallante testified on behalf of Raymond James Financial Services Inc., which is fighting civil fraud charges filed by the SEC last year. The SEC sued Raymond James for failing to supervise a broker who allegedly bilked investors out of millions of dollars and also accused the firm of failing to fully preserve email records. The testimony was available through the SEC's public records office."

Risks Of Credit Derivatives Are Focus Of New York Meeting. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Sender) reports, "The New York Federal Reserve Bank is gathering the big Wall Street players today. The topic: rising concerns about risk in what is known as the credit-derivatives markets." The Journal continues, "The talks come amid frustration about the failure of the structure of the market to keep pace with the explosive growth in the trading of these complex securities. … 'People have the best intentions, but there are resource issues,' says Donna Parisi, head of the derivatives practice at the law firm of Shearman & Sterling. Credit derivatives, which allow investors to take positions on the risk of default of both companies and countries, have been one of the most rapidly growing financial products on Wall Street." The Journal adds, "Infrastructure issues that have bedeviled the market involve processing and settling trades, or what some experts such as Thomas Russo, vice chairman of Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc., refer to as the 'plumbing of the market.' Such descriptions sound boring and technical. But the credit-derivatives arena has become increasingly important in terms of managing investment risk, which means regulators are eager to ensure that these complex and often opaque markets operate smoothly. … Thus far, their proddings have largely gone unheeded, leading to the unusual summit at the New York Fed." The Journal notes, "The love-hate relationship between Wall Street firms and their hedge-fund clients has grown more acrimonious when it comes to credit derivatives. Hedge funds claim that Wall Street firms are reluctant to move to more efficient electronic trading and processing systems, because such a move would crimp the Street's margins. The dealers in turn say that hedge funds have been reluctant to invest sufficient funds in their back offices, and that it is the hedge funds, not Wall Street firms, that are the problem. … In any case, the result is stacks of paper at both hedge funds and at Wall Street firms. And the paper load is growing, as the labor-intensive review of documents and agreements confirming trades falls increasingly behind the growing volume of new trades."

Greenspan Warns Congress Against Lack Of Control Over Fannie, Freddie. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, McKinnon, Kopecki) reports, "Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, in his strongest warning yet, said in a recent letter that Wall Street investment firms eventually could be incapable of hedging all the financial risk posed by mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, if Congress doesn't impose meaningful limits on them." Greenspan wrote Sen. Robert Bennett, "As Fannie and Freddie increase in size relative to the counterparties for their hedging transactions, the ability of these [companies] to quickly correct the inevitable misjudgments inherent in their complex hedging strategies becomes more difficult." The House is expected to vote on its version of GSE reform next week and its supporters "sought to improve chances for their bill by amending it to steer more of the companies' profits into affordable housing in the stricken Gulf Coast region." But "it isn't clear that the changes will be enough to overcome objections to the House measure among conservative critics" and Greenspan.

CRIMINAL LAW:

House Passes Child Safety Bill With Gay Hate Crime Protection Provision. The House passed the Children's Safety Act by an overwhelming 371-52 vote. The bill is focused on protecting children from child molesters but in an unexpected move lawmakers also approved expanding hate crime laws to protect homosexuals. USA Today (9/15) reports, "Sex offenders who abuse children would be subject to stringent monitoring requirements and face new mandatory penalties under" the bill which "would create a national website on pedophile sex offenders and stipulate that sex felons face up to 20-year sentences for not complying with registration requirements."

The Washington Post/AP (9/15, A2) notes, "Unexpectedly, the House voted 223 to 199 in favor of an amendment by Rep. John Conyers Jr. (D-Mich.) that expands current hate crime law to include some crimes involving sexual orientation, gender and disability." The AP adds, "The House has been the chief obstacle in numerous previous attempts to expand hate crimes law, and Joe Solmonese, president of the Human Rights Campaign, the nation's largest gay rights group, said it was an 'incredibly historic vote' that could give momentum to similar action in the Senate."

House GOP Blocks Democratic Resolutions Forcing Release Of Plame Documents. The AP (9/15, Sidoti) reports, "House Republicans derailed Democratic attempts on Wednesday to force the Bush administration to surrender documents on prewar intelligence and the disclosure of the identity of…CIA operative" Valerie Plame. "Largely along party lines, the House International Relations Committee unfavorably reported two of the resolutions on Iraq and one resolution on the Plame matter. Earlier, the House Judiciary Committee 'unfavorably' reported a similar Plame resolution." The AP adds that "the votes Wednesday against the measures all but prevented them from ever being taken up by the House."

Reuters (9/15) notes that Republicans "said Congress should await the outcome of a federal investigation by special counsel Patrick Fitzgerald. Democrats countered that Republicans were trying to protect President George W. Bush and his top political adviser, Karl Rove. 'We know that this is a political decision because there is potential embarrassment to the administration,' said Massachusetts Democratic Rep. William Delahunt."

USAT Endorses .xxx Domain Concept For Pornography. USA Today (9/15) editorializes, "The Internet has transformed the pornography business. In little more than a decade, online 'adult entertainment' has become a booming multibillion dollar industry, enabled by the World Wide Web's easy, impersonal accessibility. … Avoiding or blocking the X-rated onslaught can be nearly impossible. Internet content moves with no respect for borders and at such slippery speed that tracking it is like trying to grab hold of mercury. … For those who want porn, that may be fine. But for others, it can be deeply offensive. And for children, it can be damaging." USA continues, "A blanket ban is not a useful option because foreign sites are beyond the reach of U.S. law, which is why one fresh approach deserves encouragement. … It's a proposal for a virtual red-light district in the form of a new Internet domain. Instead of .com or one of the other familiar Web address suffixes, porn would have .xxx. People would know what they're getting. Parents could more easily filter it out." USA adds, "The idea is no cure-all. For one, it would be voluntary. Critics point out, correctly, that pornographers could still keep their .com addresses, and many probably would. Nor would it stop those deceptive e-mails. But that's not the point. … Its value is as an experiment, particularly for protecting children. Why not? … But the .xxx idea is running into opposition. Some critics say it would encourage online porn. Hello? Do they have computers? … Other opponents fear that the new domain would legitimize porn. Their protests — including more than 6,000 letters, many part of a campaign by the conservative Family Research Council — forced a delay in implementing .xxx. The regulatory board, the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers, is to meet today on the issue. … The board shouldn't bow to the pressure. Internet porn is big business driven by big demand. It can't be eradicated. But trying to improve the protections for parents is a good idea — including a .xxx domain experiment."

More Commentary. In an op-ed in USA Today (9/15), Patrick Trueman, senior legal counsel at the Family Research Council, writes, "For years there has been near unanimous condemnation of the notion that (pornographers) should be rewarded with even more space on the Internet. Yet, the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN), the Internet's governing agency, is moving ahead on this seductive idea." Trueman continues, "Most who advocate for a .xxx domain for porn sites say children would be the chief beneficiaries because filtering pornography would become a simple matter — just block .xxx sites. That assumes that pornographers would give up their .com sites, the cash cow of the porn industry, and move to .xxx. … Pornographers may be sleazy, but that hasn't affected their sound business sense. They have been making millions on the .com domain since long before Michael Dell sold his first computer over the Internet, and they would keep all their current .com locations. … Nor would they be evicted. Indeed, any law attempting to force all pornographers to relocate to .xxx would likely be challenged in court. Although it is a myth that all pornography is protected by the First Amendment, the U.S. Supreme Court has said that it is "presumptively protected" unless and until it is ruled obscenity or child porn in a court." Trueman adds, "A relatively small number of U.S. pornographers own the vast majority of Web sites selling illegal material. That is why the Family Research Council supports the efforts of Attorney General Alberto Gonzales to establish an obscenity prosecution task force to prosecute violators of the obscenity law — rather than making them masters of a new domain."

Texas Executes Black Woman For 1987 Killing Of Family. The New York Times (9/15, Barnes) reports, "Frances Newton, convicted of murdering her husband and their two children in 1987, was executed last night in Huntsville, Tex." The Times continues, "The Supreme Court declined to review Ms. Newton's case earlier, and Gov. Rick Perry declined to intervene." The times add,s "The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles unanimously refused on Monday to recommend that Mr. Perry, a Republican, commute her sentence to life in prison. … Ms. Newton, 40, was the third woman put to death in Texas since capital punishment resumed in 1982."

Ohio County Commissioner Seeks FBI Probe Of Equipment Lease. The Cincinnati Enquirer (9/15, Morse) reports, "Butler County Commissioner Chuck Furmon on Wednesday asked the FBI in Cincinnati to investigate a multimillion-dollar equipment lease that included the county's name without the commissioners' approval. FBI spokesman Michael Brooks confirmed that Furmon contacted the office. 'We'll look into the information that he provided and see if an investigation should be opened,' Brooks said, declining further comment." The Enquirer notes that Dynus Technologies "is a party to the disputed contract involving the lease of at least $5.3 million in telecommunications equipment used to transmit data via fiber-optic lines. The lease was signed before Dynus and Butler County commissioners finalized a contract in which Dynus is supposed to sign up customers for the county's fiber-optic loop." Dynus spokesman Tom Rowe said, "Based upon what we've looked into thus far, we haven't seen anything that would appear to warrant that type of action or an FBI investigation."

Massachusetts GOP Official Resigns After Drug Money Laundering Arrest. The AP (9/15) reports Massachusetts GOP vice chairman Lawrence Novak "resigned after a federal sting led to money-laundering charges accusing him of offering to 'cleanse' drug proceeds for a legal client," Scott Holyoke. "Novak resigned his party position on Tuesday after his release on bond. Holyoke is awaiting trial on federal drug trafficking charges and agreed to be a cooperating witness against Novak for the FBI." The AP notes state GOP chairman Darrell Crate "said in a statement the charges are strictly related to Novak's private business dealings and 'have absolutely no connection to the Republican Party.'" The Boston Globe (9/15, Lewis) also reports on Novak's resignation.

Tennessee Lawmakers Weigh Ethics Legislation In Wake Of Corruption Charges. The Tennessean (9/15, Seibert) reports, "Ethics legislation began to take shape yesterday as a panel of legislators unveiled proposals to prevent some of the problems revealed by the FBI's Operation Tennessee Waltz sting. But to some, the movement toward tougher laws for lawmakers is creeping along. At yesterday's meeting…the discussion revolved not around ethics, but largely around how lawmakers can efficiently use the state's electronic filing system for disclosures of their campaign contributions. … It was only in the last few minutes of the hours-long meeting that its leaders said they had plans for tougher ethics legislation. They put off discussion of those proposals until Oct. 10.

FBI Raids Denver Law Firm. The Rocky Mountain News (9/15, Accola) reports, "Federal agents raided the downtown offices of a Denver law firm Tuesday, seizing computers and records for evidence in an undisclosed FBI probe. Witnesses said as many as 20 agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation searched the 11th-floor offices of Futro & Associates PC." The News notes, "The small law firm is headed by Denver attorney Peter Futro, who until last May was chairman of U.S. MedSys Corp., a one-time Denver company that is now the subject of a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation. … 'It's a confidential client-related matter,' he said of the FBI search that lasted most of Tuesday."

Louisiana Teamsters President Claims FBI Illegally Recorded Contract Negotiations. The Baton Rouge Advocate (9/15, Roberts) reports Baton Rouge Teamsters president Byron Keith Partin "claims the FBI illegally recorded his contract negotiations with Formosa Plastics Corp. In new court documents filed in federal court last month…Partin contends the FBI convinced Formosa Human Resources Manager Tim LeBlanc to record as many as eight conversations in 2001. Partin's lawyer…argues in two separate motions that secretly recording labor contract negotiations is a violation of the National Labor Relations Act. The motions seek to have the tapes thrown out and the case dismissed." The Advocate notes, "Federal authorities say Partin threatened to report the company for illegally discharging ethylene dicloride into the Mississippi River if it didn't pay the wages of eight union members for hours of work they missed during the negotiations."

Florida Pair Arrested On Real Estate Fraud Charges. The South Florida Sun Sentinel (9/14) reports, "Federal authorities arrested two Fort Lauderdale residents Tuesday on more than a dozen charges involving real estate and bankruptcy fraud, the U.S. Attorney's Office said. Edward Garnett, 62, and Shirley Akey, 69, lied on loan applications about income, assets, and tax information, a U.S. Attorney's Office news release says. According to the release, the two racked up $1.4 million in loans, which Akey laundered through different bank accounts. Garnett also hid money and assets from a bankruptcy proceeding." The Sun Sentinel notes, "Penalties for the charges could total more than 100 years in prison and $6 million in fines."

Three High School Students Held In Michigan Bank Robbery. The Detroit News (9/15, Shepardson) reports from Ann Arbor, MI, "On Monday, three 17-year-old Pioneer High School students were worrying about keeping up their grades and where to go to college next fall. … Today, they're spending their third day in the county jail, facing a lengthy prison sentence if convicted in the Aug. 22 robbery of an Ann Arbor bank." The News continues, "On Wednesday, the mothers of two of the students put their arms around each other as they watched grainy black and white closed-circuit video of their sons' brief arraignment on three felony charges. All three are charged as adults." The News adds, "Prosecutors contend that in the waning days of a quiet Ann Arbor summer, two of the students, Charles Spencer Heath and Brian Keith Jackson, robbed the Bank One branch on West Stadium and made off with about $19,000 -- after they had demanded $50,000 and access to the vault while brandishing a toy gun. … They apparently spent some of the money on clothes and music equipment and the alleged motive, lawyers say, was simply to get money. None of the three has any prior criminal record, and none has been in any serious disciplinary trouble at school. … The third student, Brian Christopher White, the son of a former teacher and a Big Three auto executive, told police he allowed his friends to use his car, but didn't know they planned to rob the bank, according to a written statement he gave police. He is charged with conspiracy and bank robbery -- even though police say he didn't enter the bank Aug. 22." The News notes that the magistrate "set bond at $100,000 cash for each of them. Their parents might be required to put up their homes as collateral. … The three students will have a chance to get a reduced bond Wednesday, when they face a preliminary examination in Ann Arbor District Court. All three likely will remain in the Washtenaw County Jail until then."

Rep. Jefferson Fights More Allegations Of Wrongdoing. Roll Call (9/15, Billings, Whittington) reports, "Rep. William Jefferson (D-La.), under investigation by the FBI, went on the defensive Wednesday in the wake of a damaging ABC News report that the Congressman allegedly used National Guard resources to gather personal belongings from his New Orleans home amid the Hurricane Katrina rescue operation." Roll Call continues, "Jefferson is apparently gearing up for a tough legal fight. He recently retained defense attorney Robert Trout of the Washington, D.C., law firm Trout Cacheris, in addition to his New Orleans-based attorney, Michael Fawer. Trout is a former federal prosecutor. Jefferson also recently set up a legal defense fund." Roll Call adds, "Jefferson, according to sources, spoke to his colleagues at the Congressional Black Caucus meeting Wednesday. During the session, the Louisiana Democrat defended his tour of his damaged district on Sept. 2 and insisted that the ABC story that aired Tuesday night distorted the facts and misrepresented his actions. … In an interview, Melanie Rouffell, a Jefferson spokeswoman, reiterated her boss's belief that the story was unfair, noting that National Guard officials refused to let the Congressman tour the devastated area without the presence of armed guards. … She said that Jefferson was only doing his job by trying to assess the damage in his district and that he was concerned about his neighbors, whom he knew had not evacuated their homes." Roll Call notes, "But even as some of Jefferson's colleagues defended their friend, some Democrats wonder about the broader implications that the FBI investigation could have for their party. The Congressman had his homes in New Orleans and Washington, D.C., searched last month as part of an ongoing FBI investigation. … Authorities are investigating whether Jefferson illegally pocketed hundreds of thousands of dollars from a start-up technology firm during an FBI-authorized sting, according to published reports."

CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Cooper) reported on "questions on whether a congressman by the name of William Jefferson in New Orleans abused his power by getting National Guard troops to take him to his home when the city was under lockdown after Katrina hit. Congressman Jefferson was reportedly in the house for an hour, gathering his laptop computer, three suitcases and other items, while the troops waited for him outside. This was on Friday when there were still many people to be evacuated from this city." CNN's Paula Zahn Now (9/14, Griffin) reported, "Jefferson maintains he wanted an up-close look at the devastation in his district and only accepted the offer of an escort when National Guard officials urged it upon him for safety reasons."

CIVIL RIGHTS:

Senate Approves New DOJ Cold-Case Unit For Civil Rights Crimes. The AP (9/15, Hananel) reports, "A new Justice Department office would investigate and prosecute 'cold case' murders from the civil rights era, under a measure approved by the Senate on Wednesday." The AP continues, "The Unsolved Crimes Section would target pre-1970 homicides motivated by racial hatred that remain unsolved, often because of lax state and federal prosecution at the time they occurred. … The bill was inspired by efforts to reopen the case of Emmett Till, a 14-year old black boy who was murdered in 1955 after being accused of whistling at a white woman in Mississippi, said Sen. Jim Talent, R-Mo., who sponsored the legislation with Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. … 'We want the murderers and their accomplices who are still living to know there's an entire section of the Department of Justice that is going after them,' Talent said in a statement. 'We need to unearth the truth and do justice because there cannot be healing without the truth.'" The AP adds, "The Senate voted by unanimous consent to add the measure to the massive Commerce, Justice and Science appropriations bill, expected to pass the Senate this week. … A House-passed version of the bill does not include the civil rights measure, but lawmakers will try to include it in legislation that emerges from a conference committee."

Federal Judge Rules "Under God" In Pledge Unconstitutional. US District Judge Lawrence Karlton of Sacramento, California, yesterday ruled that the phrase "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance is an unconstitutional introduction of prayer into public schools. Michael Newdow, the atheist whose case was dismissed by the Supreme Court for a technicality, filed the case on behalf of the parents of two children. The new case means it is likely that the Supreme Court will have to rule on the merits of the case.

The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 5, 1:50, Andrews) reported, "The case, which is almost identical to the one argued at the Supreme Court last year was brought, again, by Michael Newdow, a California atheist who says his school-aged daughter should not be forced to recite 'under God.'" ABC World News Tonight (9/14, lead story, 2:45, Woodruff) reported that for now, the case "just impacts three school districts in California. But here is the bigger issue. It is already unconstitutional for the government to introduce prayer into the schools. So the question is, is the Pledge of Allegiance like a prayer? The District court in California said it was." Michael Newdow, the "acknowledged atheist who brought the case, called it justice." The school district "and a group representing parents in favor of the pledge today vowed to appeal. They said school children have always had the right to stand silently during the pledge." NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 9, 0:25, Williams) ran a similar report on the case.

Most major newspapers run articles on the pledge decision. USA Today (9/15, Willing) reports, "The phrase "under God" was added to the Pledge of Allegiance by Congress in 1954 after a campaign by the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic men's group." The Supreme Court "has never ruled on the constitutionality of reciting the pledge in public schools and has a mixed record in other cases involving the public invocation of the deity."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Dolan) adds "the Becket Fund, a religious rights group that is a party to the case, said it would immediately appeal the case to the San Francisco-based US 9th Circuit Court of Appeals." If the court "does not change its precedent, the group would go to the Supreme Court." The Washington Post (9/15, Pomfret), New York

Times (9/15, Murphy), the AP (9/15, Kravets) Bloomberg News (9/15) and the Washington Times (9/15, Duin), among other sources, run similar stories.

Massachusetts Legislature Defeats Amendment To Ban Gay Marriage. The New York Times (9/15, Belluck) reports that in a "sign that the legalization of same-sex marriage has changed the political landscape in Massachusetts, the legislature soundly defeated a proposed constitutional amendment on Wednesday to ban gay marriage and create civil unions, an amendment that lawmakers gave preliminary approval to in a raucous constitutional convention last year." The 157-to-39 vote "by a joint session of the House and Senate partly reflected the fact that some legislators now consider same-sex marriage more politically acceptable, after a largely conflict-free year in which some 6,600 same-sex couples got married and lawmakers who supported it got re-elected." The vote also "reflected some lawmakers' reluctance to pass a bill that could either withdraw rights from already married couples or create a class of married gay men and lesbians and a class of those unable to marry."

The Washington Post (9/15, A3, Fahrenthold) reports that amid "a pep-rally atmosphere, Massachusetts legislators on Wednesday overwhelmingly rejected an attempt to halt same-sex marriages here -- showing how quickly gay nuptials have moved from being a court-ordered imposition to a powerful political cause." The vote "leaves same-sex marriage as the status quo in Massachusetts, and it now seems likely to remain so until at least 2008. But, in a broader sense, the vote also illuminated how widely Massachusetts has diverged from much of the nation, where several dozen states have passed laws limiting marriage to heterosexual couples." Politicians in Massachusetts "credit the weddings themselves with shifting the political momentum, saying their growing ordinariness has defused some of the opposition."

The Washington Times (9/15, Wetzstein) reports Massachusetts lawmakers "yesterday rejected a marriage constitutional amendment, guaranteeing that same-sex 'marriage' will continue in that state for at least three more years." The amendment was "approved last year, 105-92, and lawmakers had to pass it a second time to place it on the 2006 ballot. However, yesterday's 157-39 rejection showed how little support the amendment had after a year." Many lawmakers said they "rejected the measure because they no longer wanted to undo the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court's 2004 ruling legalizing same-sex 'marriage.'" With "yesterday's defeat, the battle shifts to a petition drive for a marriage constitutional amendment aimed at the 2008 ballot. The amendment, sponsored by VoteOnMarriage.org and supported by Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney, a Republican, would outlaw same-sex 'marriage' in Massachusetts upon passage."

ANTITRUST:

Realtors' Study Finds Robust Real Estate Brokerage Competition. The Inman News (9/14, Swesey) reports, "A new study funded by the National Association of Realtors concludes that competition for customers among real estate brokerage firms in local housing markets across the nation is strong." Inman continues, "The study, compiled by researchers at Pennsylvania State University, looks at 12 local real estate markets and draws data from multiple listing services, interviews and secondary sources. … 'The central finding is the intense competition in local real estate markets,' Professor Steve Sawyer of Penn State's School of Information Sciences & Technology writes." Inman adds, "The report is timely in the continuing battle between the U.S. Justice Department and organized real estate. Competition in the real estate industry has come under fire after the DOJ filed an antitrust lawsuit last week against the National Association of Realtors over its policies for online listings. The DOJ charges that the powerful trade group's policies restrain competition by obstructing real estate brokers who use Web-based systems to offer consumers lower costs."

House Democrats Launch Attack On High Gas Prices. Knight Ridder (9/15, Recio) reports, "House Democratic leaders unveiled a plan Wednesday to combat what they said was price gouging at the pump, as some Republican lawmakers worried about the lackluster Bush administration response to high gasoline prices. … 'Many of America's families are experiencing a middle-class squeeze, and the price at the pump is becoming oppressive,' said House Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif, adding that prices were high even before Hurricane Katrina knocked out 20 percent of the nation's supply lines. … 'Something must be done about this,' Pelosi told reporters after House Democrats signed off on the plan at their weekly meeting. 'There must be a federal law to investigate and prosecute price gouging, and to receive damages from those in violation of the law' that would be directed to the federal home heating oil assistance program." Knight Ridder adds, "The nationwide average price of regular gasoline was $2.93 per gallon Wednesday, according to the AAA, down from the Sept. 5 high of $3.05, but still 49 cents higher than a month ago and $1.10 a gallon more expensive than a year ago. The average price in Texas was $2.83 per gallon Wednesday. … House Democratic Caucus Chairman Robert Menendez of New Jersey faulted the Bush administration for not having 'sensitivity' on the issue. 'Maybe it's because we have two oilmen in the White House,' Menendez said. … President Bush is a former Texas oilman and Vice President Dick Cheney ran the oil services giant Halliburton Co. Bush has said he will not tolerate gouging and White House spokesman Scott McClellan said last week that gasoline prices were too high and the administration's sales from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve would ease supplies - and prices."

Gillette Launches New Shaving System Amid Merger Concerns. The New York Times (9/15, Deutsch) reports, "Let regulators worry whether Gillette's proposed merger with Procter & Gamble poses antitrust problems. Let investors worry about how that merger will affect the fused companies' stocks. The people at Gillette have a far more immediate challenge: persuading men that they need to buy yet another new shaving system." The Times continues, "Yesterday, Gillette unveiled Fusion (manual) and Fusion Power (battery operated), a wet-shaving system with a lot more bells and whistles than the company's Mach3Turbo and M3Power, currently the top-selling shavers. It also announced a line of shaving creams and gels to go with the new razors. … Gillette Fusion is 'the future of shaving,' James M. Kilts, Gillette's chairman and chief executive, told analysts and reporters who had gathered in a Manhattan auditorium to hear the latest news. Not to be outdone in hyperbole, Peter K. Hoffman, president of Gillette's blades and razors unit, defined fusion for the crowd – 'a nuclear reaction in which nuclei combine to create power' - and intimated that the Fusion system's 'breakthrough technology' lives up to the analogy." The Times adds, "Much is at stake. According to Gillette, American men spent about $1.7 billion on blades and razors last year, and another $300 million on shaving creams and gels. Globally, shaving products accounted for more than $10.4 billion in sales. … Gillette has already filed 70 patents on the Fusion razors, and it expects to be able to command prices about 30 percent higher than for the Mach3. The manual razor and two cartridges will sell for about $9.99, with a 4-pack of refill cartridges going for about $11.99. Fusion Power, with one cartridge and a battery - Duracell, of course, since Gillette owns that brand - will retail for about $11.99, with refill 4-packs going for $13 or $14. … The elephant in the room, though, is the merger with Procter, which, barring regulatory holdups, should be completed this fall. Procter is already doing pre-emptive divestitures to ward off the antitrust cops - for example, it is selling its SpinBrush electric toothbrush business to Church & Dwight to avoid becoming too dominant in that area when it joins forces with Gillette's formidable Oral-B line."

P&G To Sell SpinBrush To Church & Dwight. The New York Times/Reuters (9/15) reports, "Church & Dwight Co. Inc. on Wednesday said it has agreed to buy the SpinBrush toothbrush business from Procter & Gamble Co., a sale P&G hopes will help lead to antitrust approval of its multibillion dollar acquisition of Gillette Co." Reuters continues, "P&G had agreed to divest the business, which had $110 million in sales in the fiscal year that ended June 30, as part of its negotiations over the Gillette deal with the European Commission. … SpinBrush competes with some of Gillette's Oral-B toothbrushes." Reuters adds, "Church & Dwight would pay an initial $75 million in cash at the closing of the deal, which would unite the battery-powered toothbrush with its Arm & Hammer and Mentadent toothpaste brands. An additional inventory settlement would be paid following the transfer of the business and Church & Dwight would also pay up to another $30 million based on near-term performance, Church & Dwight said. … The price would be sharply lower than the $475 million P&G paid for SpinBrush between 2000 and 2002. But while battery powered toothbrushes were a hot item in the oral care industry for a while, sales have waned in the category lately."

RIAA Urges File-Sharing Firms To Protect Music Industry Rights. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Mcbride) reports, "The Recording Industry Association of America has sent cease-and-desist letters to several file-sharing companies, including BearShare, LimeWire and WinMX, asking that they stop activities that allow users to download copyrighted music." The Journal continues, "The letters ask the companies to 'immediately cease and desist from enabling and inducing the infringement of RIAA member sound recordings,' according to a copy of the letter reviewed by The Wall Street Journal." The Journal adds, "The letters are an attempt by the music industry to build on the favorable ruling it received from the U.S. Supreme Court in June in the so-called Grokster case, involving a file-sharing company that was accused by the industry of facilitating copyright violations. In that ruling, the court found that copyright holders could sue file-sharing companies for encouraging people to violate copyrights. Now, the industry is taking the first step toward enforcing the ruling against other file-sharing companies. … 'Companies similar to Grokster have been given ample opportunity to do the right thing,' said the RIAA, which confirmed sending the letters to seven file-sharing companies. … The RIAA has long said it supports legal uses of file sharing. It wants file-sharing firms to alter their software -- for example, by creating filters to strip out copyrighted material or creating mechanisms to pay copyright holders. In recent months, it has been working with several file-sharing firms, including iMesh and Mashboxx, to create services that wouldn't violate copyrights."

Merger Specialist Joins JP Morgan Chase. The New York Times (9/15, Creswell) reports, "J. P. Morgan Chase said yesterday that Robert I. Lipp, a longtime financial services executive who has played a role in some of the biggest bank and insurance mergers in recent decades, is joining the bank as a senior adviser." The Times continues, "In his new role, Mr. Lipp, 67, will work closely with J. P. Morgan's chairman, William B. Harrison Jr., and its president, James Dimon, in strategic planning as the bank continues to integrate operations after last year's merger between J. P. Morgan Chase and Bank One." The Times adds, "While Morgan has been hampered from deal making by its low-valued stock, Mr. Dimon alluded in remarks this summer to analysts that the bank could be on the hunt for acquisitions as early as next year. … Mr. Lipp has a long personal and professional history with both Mr. Harrison and Mr. Dimon. He spent 23 years at Chemical Bank, where he worked with Mr. Harrison before leaving in the mid-1980's to join Sanford I. Weill at Commercial Credit, which is based in Baltimore. There, he worked alongside Mr. Dimon in turning the sleepy consumer finance company into the nation's largest financial services giant, Citigroup, through a series of acquisitions."

EU Fines Thread-Makers For Fixing Prices. Bloomberg News (9/15) reports, "European Union regulators fined manufacturers of industrial thread including Coats Ltd., the world's biggest, 43.5 million euros ($53 million) for operating a price-fixing cartel." Bloomberg continues, "The makers of thread used in products such as clothes, shoes, furniture and car seats held meetings starting in the 1990s to agree on prices, exchange information and allocate customers, the Brussels-based European Commission said today. The fine ends a probe that began with raids in the U.K. and Germany in 2001. … 'Cartel behavior is illegal, unjustified and unjustifiable, and will be punished severely no matter how large or small the companies involved,' Competition Commissioner Neelie Kroes said in a statement. 'I will not allow consumers to be denied the benefits of the single market by companies carving up markets between themselves.'" Bloomberg adds, "Under EU law, the commission, the EU's antitrust regulator, can fine companies accused of operating a cartel as much as 10 percent of their annual sales. It typically opts for about 2-3 percent of sales. The largest EU cartel fine was 462 million euros levied against Hoffmann-La Roche AG in 2001 for fixing the price of vitamins."

South Korea Fines Fixed-Line Telecom Firms For Price-Fixing. Asia Pulse (9/15) reports, "South Korea's antitrust regulator decided Thursday to slap fines on four local fixed-line telecommunication service providers for illegal cartel activities." Asia Pulse continues, "The nine-person committee of the Fair Trade Commission (FTC) ruled to levy a combined 25.74 billion won (US$25.1 million) in fines against the country's four fixed-line companies - KT Corp., Hanarotelecom Inc., Onse Telecom Co. and Dacom Corp.. … KT, the country's largest fixed-line telephone and broadband Internet operator, has been ordered to pay 23.87 billion won in fines for rigging the prices of both its long distance domestic services and international telephone services. … Dacom, the nation's second-largest long-distance telephone company, was slapped with a total 1.6 billion won in fines, with Onse being ordered to pay 2.1 billion won for its involvement in illegally fixing long distance and international telephone services. … Hanarotelecom was fined 60 million won for irregularities in its domestic long distance line operations."

Reuters (9/15) reports, "The commission also found evidences of collusion in the high-speed Internet service charges, but only issued orders to improve business practices without imposing fines, the spokesman said. … The punishment comes as local operators struggle with stalled growth and cut-throat competition. In a separate case in May, the FTC slapped a record $120 million fine on KT, hanarotelecom and Dacom over collusion in local calls and network connection charges."

European Bank Head Warns Against Removal Of Governor. The Financial Times (9/15, Atkins, Barber) reports, "Jean-Claude Trichet, the European Central Bank president, made clear on Wednesday he would oppose unwarranted political attempts to remove Antonio Fazio, the Bank of Italy governor engulfed in controversy over his handling of bank takeover bids." The Times continues, "Using national legislation to eject a central bank governor would set 'a catastrophic precedent for the independence of all central banks', Mr Trichet told the European parliament's monetary affairs committee." The Times adds, "He was speaking as Domenico Siniscalco, Italy's finance minister, put more pressure on Mr Fazio by saying Italy risked isolation in international financial markets unless its central bank and regulatory systems were profoundly reformed. … Mr Siniscalco and several other government ministers are demanding Mr Fazio's resignation for alleged improper conduct in two takeover battles for Italian banks. Critics accuse Mr Fazio of favouring domestic bidders over foreign ones. The central banker denies wrongdoing and has benefited from divisions in Italy's centre-right government over how, or even whether, to remove him."

ENVIRONMENT/INDIAN AFFAIRS:

Mirant Corp To Request Reopening Of Virginia Plant. The Washington Post (9/15, Markon) reports, "Mirant Corp. plans to propose that its Alexandria power plant, which provides electricity to homes in the District and Maryland, be allowed to reopen on a limited basis. The plant was closed last month because of environmental problems." The Post continues, "Under a tentative plan Mirant outlined last week in documents filed with federal regulators, the Potomac River plant would operate at a level 'significantly reduced from full capacity' that does not violate national air quality standards. At the same time, Mirant would continue studying long-term fixes such as burning cleaner coal or raising the height of the plant's smokestacks to disperse pollutants." The Post adds, "The plan must pass muster with the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ), which has ordered Mirant to take immediate steps to reduce pollution. DEQ spokesman Bill Hayden said the department has not seen a proposal from Mirant but 'will take a look at what they do propose. The main thing we're looking for is, if they are continuing to operate, it must be in a way that does not violate air quality standards.' … Federal regulators, meanwhile, are also evaluating a petition, filed by the D.C. Public Service Commission, that asks them to order the plant to reopen. Mirant revealed that it will probably propose the partial reopening in documents the company filed last week with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission." The Post notes, "Amid the blitz of regulatory activity, it remains unclear when the plant might reopen, even temporarily. And Mirant acknowledges that a full-scale resumption of operations could be more than a year away. Although the plant is in Alexandria, it does not serve Virginia."

Controversial Judge In Indian Trust Fund Case Profiled. The Washington Post (9/15, A31, Leonnig) reports, "The fans of U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth praise his straight-talking ways, his defense of the wronged, and his stinging rebukes of lawyers and officials who try to fudge the facts. … So many decades after he left his beloved Texas and cowboy roots for a legal career in government service, fellow judges and former colleagues say, old Royce still gets riled up when he smells a bunch of bull." The Post continues, "When Lamberth theorized in a July ruling that the Interior Department's failure, over many decades, to account for potentially billions of dollars owed to Native Americans could only be explained by outright evil, apathy, cowardice or -- more likely -- crushing bureaucratic incompetence, the Justice Department decided to go after the judge. … In one of the rarest legal moves Justice has ever taken, the government asked that a higher court remove Lamberth from a case he has overseen for the past nine years." The Post adds, "In the escalating and unparalleled war between the judge and Interior, Justice lawyers said privately they saw no other option. They argued to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit that Lamberth has gone overboard in a string of verbal harangues in recent years, accused agency officials of racism and lost the appearance of impartiality in the case. Already, he has found two secretaries of Interior in contempt of court and ordered sanctions against numerous government lawyers for improper conduct in the case. … When they stand before a different bench tomorrow, government lawyers are expected to try to shift the discussion from the acknowledged failure of Interior to properly account for money held in trust and due 50,000 Indians, to the often assaulting words and actions of a powerful Reagan appointee who has made no secret of his disgust. Only three times before has this appeals court disqualified a trial judge from a case."

FBI/DEA/ATF/USMS:

Report Finds FBI Turnover Hampers Cooperation. The AP (9/15, Sherman) reports, "The FBI has experienced excessive turnover among senior officials, hampering cooperation with state and local authorities since the Sept. 11 attacks, a new report released Wednesday said." The AP continues, "The senior agents who run the 56 FBI field offices average just 15 months in their jobs before moving on to new assignments or leaving the bureau altogether, according to a report by the congressionally chartered National Academy of Public Administration. At FBI headquarters in Washington, the average posting for high-ranking officials is 13 months, the report said." The AP adds, "The short tenures of Special Agents in Charge of the field offices, or SACs in FBI parlance, make "it difficult for them to perform one of their most important functions, developing effective relationships with state and local officials," said former Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, chairman of the panel that produced the report. It was released at a House Appropriations subcommittee hearing on changes at the FBI following the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks. … Thornburgh told lawmakers at the hearing that he was 'astonished to see the short tenures of SACs.'" The AP notes, "No senior executive in Washington and only four SACs have been in their jobs longer than FBI Director Robert Mueller, who started work 10 days before the attacks."

Appellate Court Rules FBI Whistleblower May Seek Damages, Jury Trial. The AP (9/15, Jalonick) reports the 8th US Circuit "has ruled that Jane Turner, an FBI whistleblower who accused the agency of discrimination and retaliation, may seek monetary damages and a jury trial. Turner accused male FBI agents of mishandling several cases of sexual abuse in Indian country and alleged her superiors transferred her from Minot, N.D., to Minneapolis in retaliation for complaints about sexual discrimination." The 8th Circuit "said Turner had sufficient evidence to justify at trial over whether the transfer was in retaliation for her complaints. But the judges dismissed Turner's claims that she worked in a hostile environment and was a victim of discrimination because of her gender. An FBI spokeswoman said the agency would not comment on the case because the litigation is ongoing."

Mayor Of LA Meets With Gonzales Over Gang Intervention Programs. KCAL-TV Los Angeles (9/14, 12:13 p.m.) reported that mayor "Villaraigosa, is meeting with…Alberto Gonzales. Villaraigosa hopes to encourage Washington to develop gang intervention programs."

KABC-TV Los Angeles (9/14, 11:14 a.m.) also covered this story.

Guru Of Ganja" Challenges Drug Convictions. The AP (9/15, Kravets) reports, "Attorneys for a man who has written books on how to grow marijuana and avoid getting caught asked a federal appeals court Tuesday to overturn his drug convictions." The AP continues, "Ed Rosenthal, the self-described 'Guru of Ganja,' was convicted two years ago of growing and distributing hundreds of marijuana plants. He says he was authorized to do so by the city of Oakland under a 1996 California medical marijuana law." The AP adds, After U.S. District Judge Charles Breyer refused to allow a jury to hear that defense, Rosenthal was convicted of being a major drug supplier. … Breyer sentenced him to one day in prison on grounds that Rosenthal reasonably believed he was immune from prosecution because he was acting on behalf of Oakland city officials. The government and Rosenthal both appealed." The AP notes, "The government maintained Rosenthal, now 60, should have gotten at least 24 months. Amber Rosen, an assistant United States attorney, told a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that Breyer abused his discretion by issuing a sentence that fell outside sentencing guidelines."

Venezuela May Lose 'Certification' As Collaborating In The War On Drugs. The Financial Times (9/15, Webb-vidal) profiles Pedro Salcedo of Venezuela writing, "Fishing, however, is just an occasional pastime for Mr Salcedo. He makes better money transporting drugs to far-flung islands in the Caribbean, for a couple of thousand dollars a journey." The Times continues, "Mr Salcedo, and others like him, used to avoid soldiers from Venezuela's National Guard, the body charged with combating drugs-trafficking in the country, through which up to one-third of the cocaine smuggled from Colombia passes. But increasingly, US officials say, the fishermen are in competition with the National Guard, rogue elements of which also take part in drug-running. This may be one reason why the US...could remove Venezuela from its annual list of countries 'certified' as adequately collaborating in the war on drugs."

New Hampshire Drug Raids Yield 100 Indictments. New Hampshire's Union Leader (9/15) reports, "Operation Summer Sizzle" drug raids yielded more than 100 indictments against 41 people. The raids took place on Aug. 31 and involved 15 state and local law enforcement agencies, as well as the federal Drug Enforcement Administration. "The indictments were handed up on Monday by the Sullivan County grand jury. The raids took place mostly in Newport and Claremont, although arrests were made in Charlestown and Sunapee as well."

Texas Man Gets 55-Year Prison Sentence In Drug Case. The San Antonio (TX) Express (9/15) reports, "A federal judge on Wednesday sentenced a Texas Mexican Mafia member to 60 years in prison for his role in a violent drug-dealing conspiracy. Johnny "Gira" Garcia-Esparza, 45, was the last of four Mexican Mafia members awaiting punishment on charges stemming from their April conviction on drug-related charges." Garcia-Esparza was sentenced to 55 years in prison on the conspiracy and drug charges, plus five years on the gun charges. "Between 1999 and 2004, as many as 28 gang members were accused of delivering more than 150 kilos of cocaine and more than 30 kilos of heroin."

Mississippi Teen Convicted In Bomb Case. The Jackson Clarion-Ledger (9/15, Gates) reports, "A Brandon (MS) teenager who made a bomb powerful enough to blow up half of a car was convicted Tuesday of federal charges." The Clarion-Ledger continues, "U.S. District Judge William Barbour Jr. set James Vaughn Rankin, 19, sentencing for Dec. 1. He faces a maximum 30 years in prison. … Rankin was convicted of possession of an unregistered firearm, transfer of an unregistered firearm and the manufacture of an unregistered firearm." The Clarion-Ledger adds, "U.S. Assistant Attorney David Fulcher said Rankin intended for the bomb to kill. 'He said on the videotape it will destroy half of a car,' Fulcher said." The Clarion-Ledger notes, "During the two-day trial, jurors watched a videotape of Rankin selling the bomb to an undercover agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives. … Rankin's attorney, Federal Assistant Public Defender Kathy Nester, argued her client may have possessed the bomb, but the government didn't prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he intended to harm anyone. … Nester said ATF agent Connie Wilson testified on cross-examination that she didn't mention anything about wanting the bomb to kill an ex-husband until after Rankin had placed the device in her car. Also, Nester said the government didn't prove her client transported across state lines gunpowder used in making the bomb."

US Targets Alabama Gun Crime. The Fort Payne (AL) Times-Journal (9/13, Townsend) reports, "DeKalb County was one of five counties in Alabama that had indictments handed down Sept. 2 in federal court for various federal firearm violations. … The others were Cullman, Madison, Shelby and Jefferson counties." The Times-Journal continues, "U.S. Attorney Alice Martin would not release the names of those indicted. … 'The names of theses individuals are being withheld pending service of outstanding warrants,' Martin said. 'We cannot release any of this information, including how many were indicted in each county, until all the warrants have been served.'" The Times-Journal adds, "DeKalb County Drug Task Force Agent Darrell Collins said he couldn't recall the number of gun cases worked in the past couple of months. But he did say that normally, three-fourths of the methamphetamine cases they do work involve some type of firearm. … 'That is why we work with the ATF on a daily basis, in an effort to enforce the reduction of illegal gun use,' Collins said. … Martin, along with James M. Cavanaugh, Special Agent in Charge of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, said a grand jury returned indictments against 12 people in unrelated cases."

US Plan To Blow Up Rudolph Truck Upsets Bomb Victims' Families. The AP (9/15, Reeves) reports, "The government wants to blow up the truck Eric Rudolph was driving when he bombed an Alabama abortion clinic, a plan that has upset some of Rudolph's victims." The AP continues, "Authorities said they want to use the pickup truck in a training drill to prevent it from ending up in the hands of Rudolph's admirers. … 'It was done partly out of concern that it would show up on eBay,' said Assistant U.S. Attorney James Ingram, referring to the Internet auction site. 'Somebody would plunk down some money for it.' … But nurse Emily Lyons, who was badly wounded in the clinic bombing, believes the truck should go to Rudolph's victims, who are unlikely to get any other compensation, according to her husband, Jeff Lyons." The AP adds, "In 2003, a state court judge awarded the couple $115 million in a lawsuit against Rudolph, who was declared indigent in federal court and has not paid anything. Trucks similar to Rudolph's 1989 Nissan have a retail value of about $1,700, according to Kelley Blue Book, a pricing guide for used vehicles. … 'We had the judgment before they did the seizure,' Jeff Lyons said Wednesday. … Shortly after the clinic bombing, a witness recorded the truck's license plate number and reported it to police, who used the information to identify Rudolph as a suspect in the explosion. He was later tied to the 1996 Olympic park bombing and two other bombings in Atlanta in 1997."

Marshals Reverse Ban On Releasing Mug Shots. The Detroit News (9/15, Shepardson) reports, "The U.S. Marshals Service has reversed a ban on releasing mug shots in response to a pair of federal lawsuits." The News continues, "In an Aug. 10 memorandum made public Friday, the service's Office of General Counsel told officials in Michigan, Kentucky, Ohio and Tennessee -- the states covered by the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals -- that they must release the photographs." The News adds, "The memo rescinded an Aug. 19, 2004, order that said officials would no longer release the mug shots, citing a March U.S. Supreme Court decision. … In that unanimous decision, the court said the government wasn't required to release four photographs of former White House lawyer Vincent Foster's dead body, saying it would violate the family's privacy." The News notes, "Two newspapers filed separate lawsuits this spring seeking to overturn an August 2004 decision by the U.S. Marshal Service to stop releasing the booking photos of prisoners to news media outlets and others under the Freedom of Information Act. … The Justice Department reversed itself and agreed to release the mugshots."

IMMIGRATION:

Arizona Bosnian Serbs Charged With Lying On Immigration Applications. The AP (9/15, DeFalco) reports, "Thirteen Bosnian Serbs living here were indicted on charges of lying to American authorities about their service in the Serbian Army and seven others were being detained for similar reasons, federal authorities said Wednesday." The AP notes, "This week's apprehensions left many in Phoenix's Bosnian Serbian community confounded as to why their friends and family members were taken away after living in this country peacefully for so many years." Goran Spiric, whose father and brother were among those arrested, "said he came to America 11 years ago from a concentration camp where he was kept by Bosnian Muslims, wondered if he would also be apprehended. 'Every single morning I go to work, I carefully watch on both sides and wonder if the FBI or someone is watching me,' Spiric said."

Defense Lawyer Seeks Dismissal Of Charges Against Bosnian Serb In Massachusetts. The Boston Globe (9/15) reports, "Charges against a Peabody construction worker accused of hiding his role in a Bosnian Muslim massacre should be thrown out because Marko Boskic was forced under threat of death to participate in the Srebrenica killings, his lawyer said yesterday." Defense attorney Max Stern told a US District Judge Douglas Woodlock "that Boskic was not deceptive on immigration forms when he entered the United States in 2000 and that he was never motivated by the fact that the victims were Muslim." The Globe notes, "Boskic faces a five-count indictment of fraudulently entering the US as a refugee, as well as concealing his past in a Bosnian Serb Army unit accused of killing some 7,000 Muslim men and boys."

Rove Discusses Immigration Reform With Lawmakers. With the capitol's focus on hurricane Katrina relief threatening to crowd the legislative agenda, White House Deputy Chief of Staff Karl Rove met with Reps. Jeff Flake and Jim Kolbe to discuss immigration reform. The key issue splitting the GOP seems to be whether an immigration reform bill registering illegal immigrants currently employed in the US should require immigrants to return to their countries of origin. The Hill (9/15, O'Connor) reports that while immigration reform is a difficult issue for GOP lawmakers because it "divides supporters of the business community from those social conservatives," with "the political climate favoring "a strong border-security measure, the business lobby could be essential in creating the political momentum to pass a broader bill through the Senate." Sens. Jon Kyl and John Cornyn support requiring immigrants to return while Kolbe, Flake and Sens. Edward Kennedy and John McCain support legislation without the requirement.

Kilgore Pledges Crackdown On Firms Hiring Illegal Aliens. The Washington Times (9/15, Bellantoni) reports Republican candidate Jerry W. Kilgore said "if elected he will go after businesses that knowingly hire illegal aliens." Kilgore said, "They are supposed to check for legal status. If they are knowingly violating the law they shouldn't be getting state contracts and they should not be getting state credits and benefits." The Times adds that Kilgore's "comments come one day after he debated" Democrat Timothy M. Kaine "over a host of topics, including the establishment of a day laborer center in Herndon that will provide services for legal immigrants and illegal aliens." Kilgore has said "officials in Northern Virginia are giving incentives to illegals by allowing such centers. One way to address the problem would be to revoke any tax credits or benefits companies receive from the state if they knowingly hire illegal aliens, he said."

TAX:

Anti-Tax Advocate Schiff Stands Trial In Nevada. The Las Vegas Sun (9/14, Kihara) reports, "The defendant in a tax evasion trial that began on Tuesday said he is innocent of the charges against him because there is essentially no law that requires people to pay income tax." The Sun continues, "In a rambling opening statement that brought at least seven objections from a Justice Department lawyer and just as many admonitions from U.S. District Judge Kent Dawson, Irwin Schiff also tried to discount his alleged influence, saying that doctors, lawyers and others wouldn't stop paying income taxes just because he told them to. … 'In my view, there is no law requiring people to pay income tax,' said Schiff, who is representing himself in the criminal case against him. … The trial is expected to last five weeks."

The Las Vegas Review-Journal (9/14, Thevenot) reports, "Prosecutors began presenting evidence Tuesday against Schiff and two of his followers, Cynthia Neun and Lawrence Cohen, who are accused of conspiring to defraud the federal government. … 'Nobody likes to pay taxes, but that's not what this case is about,' Justice Department attorney Jeffrey Neiman told the jury." The Review-Journal adds, "Schiff, the 77-year-old owner of Freedom Books in Las Vegas, has made a career of teaching his customers how to avoid paying federal income tax. … He claims no law requires Americans to pay the tax, and he has written several books advocating his position. … Neiman said the main issue in the criminal case is: 'What were the defendants aware of, and what were they told?' … The prosecutor said evidence will prove that the defendants knew the law and chose to violate it."

The AP (9/14) reports, "Schiff is accused of failing to report income on federal tax returns from 1987 to 2002, and of evading payment of $1.3 million in taxes, penalties and interest between 1979 and 1985. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of 43 years in prison and $3.25 million in fines. … Attorneys for co-defendants Cynthia Neun and Lawrence Cohen, who worked for Schiff, said their clients believed their conduct was legal." The AP adds, "Neun's lawyer, Michael Cristalli, said Neun followed Schiff's tax advice partly because of his powerful personality but also because she did not believe she was violating the law."

CONGRESS-ADMINISTRATION:

Roberts Jousts With Senators On Second Day Of Confirmation Hearing. Chief Justice nominee John Roberts yesterday appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee for a second day. He again received praise from observers for his intellect and wit, but Democrats were "frustrated" by some Roberts' answers, which some Democrats found evasive. Despite the Democrats' complaints, the media consensus continues to be that Roberts will easily be confirmed. CBS' Bob Schieffer summed up what most observers are predicting when he said it "sounds like it is going to be a slam dunk right now." Likewise, Dana Milbak writes in today's Washington Post (9/15) that by yesterday "the confirmation hearing had lost much of what little suspense it had in the first place. The only speculation in the halls outside the hearing was how many, if any, Democrats on the committee would vote for Roberts en route to his all-but-certain confirmation."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 2, 2:10, Douglass) reported, "Senators were frustrated as they tried to pin Roberts down on some of the country's most emotional issues." Without "mentioning Terri Schiavo by name, Democrats demanded to know if families have the right to remove a loved one from life support." Some Republicans "pushed him on abortion, pushing him to say a fetus is a person with rights." Democrats "tried to shake Roberts by suggesting that he's been deceptive. He told them firmly that he's answered more questions than any other nominee."

The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 8, 2:55, Schieffer) reported, "Roberts said little on key issues, but that didn't stop senators from asking." CBS (Borger) added, "Today, the confirmation hearing of Judge John Roberts moved between the controversies of when life begins to when it ends." Roberts "did give some hints on issues, such as his approval of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's view of affirmative action, which she considered acceptable in some cases." Yet Roberts "didn't miss the chance to defend his view of both the confirmation process and the job of a judge." Judge Roberts: "It is not a process under which senators get to say, 'I want you to rule this way, and if you tell me that you'll rule this way, I'll vote for you.' Judges are not politicians. They cannot promise to do certain things in exchange for votes. I think I've been much more forthcoming than other nominees." After the hearing, Sen. Biden "said that Judge Roberts is one of the best witnesses they had had before the committee in 30 years. And he was a great witness, but he didn't answer the questions the Democrats wanted answered." Schieffer: "It sounds like it's going to be a slam dunk right now." Borger: "Sure does."

NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 10, 1:10, Williams) reported, "There were more tough questions today, although the reviews are high for his intellect and ability."

The Washington Post (9/15, C1, Davis) reports, "Things are going pretty much like the day before: Democrats are pressing Roberts on voting rights and issues of privacy (translation: Roe v. Wade), and Roberts is looking a little bit like a young Muhammad Ali dancing his way around the hearing room."

The New York Times (9/15, Liptak, Toner) says Roberts "faced increasingly contentious questions from Democrats on Wednesday as he outlined his views on an array of legal issues," but "repeatedly declined to address some of the most ideologically charged matters, including whether the Constitution establishes a right to abortion and a right to die. 'I'm not standing for election,' Judge Roberts said in one testy exchange on end-of-life issues on the third day of his confirmation hearings for chief justice of the United States." His "refusal to elaborate on his statement that there is a constitutionally protected right to privacy drew criticism from Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware, one of several Democrats on the Judiciary Committee who challenged him with growing frustration on Wednesday. 'Without any knowledge of your understanding of the law, because you will not share it with us,' Mr. Biden said, 'we are rolling the dice with you, Judge.'" But Roberts, "by the end of a second long day of careful, unflappable testimony, appeared in comfortable position for a confirmation vote next Thursday ." A second New York Times (9/15, Stolberg) story reports "the nominee is not talking nearly enough to satisfy Democrats, and how he is interpreting his standard has become a major flashpoint in the hearings."

The Baltimore Sun (9/15, Shaw) also says that "barring a major surprise, the Senate will confirm him as the nation's 17th chief justice this month." The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Cummings, Bravin), however, says "White House hopes for Judge John Roberts to be confirmed as chief justice by a wide margin in the Senate grew dimmer yesterday, as Democrats complained that the nominee gave narrowly crafted responses or declined to answer questions about civil rights, privacy and other issues." Roberts "is likely to be confirmed," but "Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee have stepped up their accusations that he is being evasive, and will use that claim to lobby their colleagues to withhold their votes."

USA Today (9/15, Biskupic, Kiely) says Roberts "suggested Wednesday that his views on civil rights were more moderate than those he expressed during his days as a Reagan administration lawyer," and he "hinted at a concern for gay men and lesbians who might face discrimination." Roberts also "described several principles that seemed to separate his legal views from those of Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas, the high court's most conservative members." The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Savage) headlines its story "Roberts Distances Himself From Court Originalists," reporting Roberts "went out of his way at his Senate confirmation hearing to put some distance between himself and Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas."

In an analysis piece, Charles Lane writes in the Washington Post (9/15) that "a new image of President Bush's nominee for chief justice of the United States is coming into focus. Still blurry at the edges, thanks to Roberts's refusal to declare how he would rule on abortion rights and other specific issues, it is nevertheless a picture of a conservative different in important respects from the two members of the Supreme Court whom Bush has said he most admires," Scalia and Thomas.

The Legal Times (9/15, Goldman, Mauro) reports, "John Roberts Jr. moved into the second day of questioning before the Senate Judiciary Committee on Wednesday, with Democrats still complaining that the likely future chief justice remains too much of a cipher, and with GOP committee members stressing that Roberts has answered more questions than any other nominee. … 'I do think I've been more expansive than most nominees, and those justices were confirmed,' Roberts told Sen. Jon Kyl, R-Ariz." The Times continues, "The committee will wrap up questioning of Roberts on Thursday morning, then proceed directly to six panels of witnesses, who will speak for and against the nominee. … Committee Chairman Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said late Wednesday that he would conclude the Roberts hearings on Thursday and set a committee vote on the nominee for Sept. 22." The Times adds, "As in his testimony on the previous day, Roberts was probed about his views on the Voting Rights Act, privacy and the judiciary's proper role in interpreting congressional statutes. … And as in Tuesday's performance, Roberts was loath to do more than outline in the broadest terms his view of how he would adjudicate certain issues … " The Times notes, "One chief counsel for a committee Republican noted the reams of paperwork being passed between staff and the panel's 18 members and remarked, 'Roberts has just got all this stuff in his head.' … Indeed, by the end of the day, the most interesting question was not whether Roberts would win confirmation, but whether he would secure any Democratic votes in the process."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Schmitt, Reynolds) describes the Democrats' questioning as "relentless and occasionally sharp," and adds "his new comments leaned toward a more moderate position than some of his writings as a Justice Department lawyer in the Reagan administration." However, "they were so sparse and cautiously phrased that they sparked protests from Democrats about his refusal to be more forthcoming."

A similar Reuters dispatch (9/15, Ferraro) reports Roberts said that if confirmed "he would seek consensus on the often bitterly divided Supreme Court that has spawned frustration with a series of 5-4 rulings." Roberts "calmly countered the complaint as he appeared headed toward confirmation by the Republican-led Senate before the court begins its new term on October 3."

The Democrats' frustration is also the major topic in the Washington Post (9/15, Babington, Becker), which says Democratic senators "angrily accused" the nominee "of hiding his views on end-of-life questions, privacy and other contentious issues." Roberts "Republican supporters," adds the Post, "said his confirmation is virtually assured." Sen. Charles E. Schumer "accused Roberts of treating the hearing room as a 'cone of silence.' 'It seems strange, I think, to the American people that you can't talk about decided cases -- past cases, not future cases -- when you've been nominated to the most important job in the federal judiciary,' the senator said."

The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Richey) says Roberts' plan is to "reveal just enough information about his approach to judging to convince the senators of his integrity and constitutional expertise -0 but not enough to permit someone to forecast how he might vote once on the high court." Roberts "isn't just fighting for himself. If he is successful in holding that line he will help set the stage for the president's next high court nominee -- the pick that will replace centrist Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and potentially swing the court to the right." So far, "Roberts has fended off, dodged, and sidestepped his way through a gauntlet of Senate Judiciary Committee questions." But he "bottom line" is "Senators -- and the American public -- are learning precious little about which way Roberts is likely rule as the nation's most powerful judge."

The Hill (9/15, Allen) says the nominee "sailed through a second day of inquiries from the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, leaving some lawmakers and analysts to wonder whether President Bush's pick to fill a second Supreme Court vacancy will be able to measure up." Roberts "fielded and at times sidestepped questions with poise and humor, even as Democratic Senate heavyweights Joseph Biden (Del.) and Edward Kennedy (Mass.) pressed him repeatedly on civil rights and whether people have a right to determine when they die." Some "wondered if Roberts's composure and ability to establish his own framework for which questions to answer and which to avoid will set an artificially high bar for the next nominee."

The Washington Post (9/15, Goldstein) reports, "As Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee try to cast doubt on whether…Roberts deserves to become chief justice of the United States, the main club they are wielding are his own words -- as glimpsed in memos he wrote, as a young but well-positioned legal adviser inside the Reagan revolution, on the most polarizing civil rights issues of a generation ago." For two days, "the Democrats have read excerpts -- and at times even handed the nominee copies of his own work -- on voting rights, sex discrimination, affirmative action, racial bias, and the possibility of stripping the Supreme Court of jurisdiction over certain kinds of rights cases." The Post adds, "To try to blunt the impact of this document assault, Roberts has employed a two-pronged strategy: He has asserted that his words and legal reasoning were merely those of a staff lawyer. And he has largely refused to embrace or disavow the views his memos espouse."

The Washington Times (9/15, Hurt) focuses on Roberts' comments on eminent domain, reporting Roberts "told senators yesterday that laws restricting the government's power of eminent domain are legitimate, despite a landmark Supreme Court decision earlier this year that broadly expanded that authority." Roberts, adds the Times, "finished a second day of testimony yesterday with a few flare-ups, but no major upsets." The hearings "have been so devoid of fireworks that Senate staffers are having a hard time keeping the limited public seating area filled."

A second Washington Times (9/15, Hurt) adds that with Roberts' confirmation "appearing more likely, members of the Senate Judiciary Committee have resorted to using the hearings to lobby the nominee about their own favorite issues." Senators "have pressed their views on the prospective chief justice about televising Supreme Court proceedings, the right to die and abortion, among other issues."

The Washington Times (9/15, Taylor) also focuses on Roberts' "management of the Supreme Court," and how it "could differ starkly from his predecessor and mentor William H. Rehnquist: The number of cases the court takes on is likely to increase." Under Rehnquist, "the average high court caseload dropped from about 150 to 80 cases a year -- a trend Judge Roberts appeared intent on reversing during exchanges yesterday."

54% Paying "Close Attention" To Roberts Hearing. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 7, 0:20, Schieffer) reported, "Even with so much attention on Hurricane Katrina, more Americans now say they are paying attention to the nomination of Judge John Roberts to be the next chief justice of the United States. In a new CBS News/'New York Times' poll, 54% said they were paying close attention. But 63% felt they didn't know enough to say whether Roberts should be confirmed."

Conservatives Seek Memos Detailing Contacts Between Democrats, Interest Groups. The Hill (9/15, Bolton) reports, "Conservative strategists are drafting a letter to Democratic members of the Senate Judiciary Committee demanding the release of hundreds of internal memos detailing contacts between the lawmakers and liberal interest groups opposing John Roberts's nomination to the Supreme Court." By "planning to press Democrats on the sensitive subject, conservatives seem to be pulling a page from the Democrats' own political playbook. In the weeks leading up to the confirmation hearings, Senate Democrats have repeatedly called on the White House to give them memos Roberts penned while he was deputy solicitor general in President George H.W. Bush's administration." In their letter, "conservatives quote [Sen. Pat] Leahy's argument that the Senate should have access to the withheld documents. In the letter, they assert that the public is equally entitled to know what is motivating and directing Senate Democratic scrutiny of Roberts, according to a verbal summary given to The Hill."

"Testy" Specter Questioning Seen As Sign Of Estrangement Between Congress, Court. The New York Times (9/15, Greenhouse) reports, "Senator Arlen Specter's testy interrogation of Judge John G. Roberts Jr. on the Supreme Court's treatment of Congress may well have left viewers scratching their heads on Wednesday morning, with cryptic references to the 'congruence and proportionality test' and to unfamiliar case names like 'Lane and Hibbs.'" But "the line of questioning that Mr. Specter, the Pennsylvania Republican who is Judiciary Committee chairman, chose to pursue offered a window on the increasingly troubled relationship between the court and Congress, as well as on one of the most consequential developments of the Rehnquist court's later years." In a series of decisions, "many written by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist himself, the court declared unconstitutional acts of Congress that had been passed by broad bipartisan majorities. … From 1995 to 2003, the Supreme Court overturned all or parts of 33 federal statutes, 10 of them on the ground that Congress had exceeded its authority either to regulate interstate commerce or to enforce the constitutional guarantees of due process and equal protection."

Meanwhile, The Hill (9/15, Savodnik) reports this morning "the anti-abortion-rights group Concerned Women for America (CWA) is applying pressure on…Specter…to back Supreme Court Chief Justice nominee John Roberts. 'When it comes time for the committee to vote, Chairman Specter's promise of fairness should lead him to the inescapable conclusion that it couldn't possibly be fair not to vote for this exceptionally qualified nominee,' said the CWA chief counsel, Jan LaRue."

Brownback Hopes Next High Court Nominee Will Have Track Record Of Opposition To Roe. Roll Call (9/15, Kane) reports, "Sen. Sam Brownback (R-Kan.) said Wednesday that he would like the next Supreme Court nominee to have a detailed track record opposing the Roe v. Wade decision, as opposed to the relatively limited record on abortion issues held by Judge John Roberts." While Brownback "expects to support Roberts as President Bush's pick for chief justice of the United States, he warned that he and many in the conservative movement would like the nominee to replace retiring Associate Justice Sandra Day O'Connor to have a clearer record of opposing abortion rights than Roberts."

More Commentary On Roberts Hearings. The New York Times (9/15) writes in an editorial, "Roberts's record, on the bench and off, puts him well to the right end of the ideological spectrum." The Times adds that "there's reason for concern. He did not say he agrees with Roe, for instance, only that it is entitled to deference. That is a truism: all of the court's decisions are entitled to such deference, but some are reversed anyway." Senate Democrats "have two goals. Before Mr. Roberts…becomes chief justice for life, they want to try to determine that he does not hold far-right views on important issues. … No less important, Senate Democrats are putting down markers for the next judicial battle. … By subjecting Judge Roberts to tough questioning, they are sending a message that if President Bush chooses a far-right nominee, he can expect a major fight."

Meanwhile, the Washington Post (9/15) editorializes, "The cumulative impression is of a cautious, incremental conservative, unlikely to unmask himself as a liberal once on the bench but unlikely as well to try to impose his own political agenda."

Morton Kondracke writes in Roll Call (9/15), "It's about as certain as anything that John Roberts will be the next chief justice of the United States, but it's anything but certain where he'll come out ideologically." Roberts "may be a conservative, but he's not a rigid, big-C conservative ideologue. And, assuming he's being honest, he's not going to be the activist hoped for by the right and feared by the left."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15) runs an editorial titled "Dean Of The Democrats," but "not Howard. The Dean whom Democrats have tapped to represent them at John Roberts's confirmation hearings this week is John W. Dean III, White House Counsel to President Nixon and one of the architects of the Watergate coverup. … This paragon of the law is now a columnist for FindLaw.com, where he has been writing articles opposing Mr. Roberts's confirmation. … In other words, the Democrats are using a man who will go down in history for facilitating a Presidential coverup to make the case for open government." Meanwhile, "they ignore six Solicitors General from several administrations, Democrat and Republican, who have said publicly that the Roberts documents are covered by attorney-client privilege and should be kept confidential. So: a bipartisan group of law-abiding SGs vs. a convicted felon and Watergate enabler? You make the call."

Bush Thanks Nations For Katrina Help, Links Terror Fight To Reducing Poverty. President Bush yesterday spoke to the UN General Assembly, calling for reform of the international body, particularly its handling of human rights, and a stepped up effort to end poverty and defeat terrorism. The speech received coverage in major newspapers, local TV stations across the country and the network's evening newscasts. The most notable exception was CBS, which offered no coverage of Bush's remarks on the CBS Evening News.

With the speech covering a variety of topics, TV reports have no overarching theme. Most print stories, meanwhile, focus on what they describe as the President's "conciliatory" tone in addressing the UN. Most newspaper articles also note Bush's words linking the reduction of trade barriers to eliminating poverty and defeating terrorism. That theme was largely ignored by network news and local TV stations.

For example, ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 4, 1:05, Vargas) reported, "Bush addressed the UN General Assembly and thanked the international community for helping victims of Katrina. Then he said the UN must work to reform itself, especially when it comes to human rights." Bush was shown saying, "When this great institution's member states choose notorious abusers of human rights to sit on the UN Human Rights Commission, they discredit a noble effort and undermine the credibility of the whole organization." Vargas: "These meetings bring together all sorts of strange bedfellows. The new President of Iran, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, was there for President Bush's speech. And he addressed the assembly later in the day. The US accuses his country of trying to build nuclear weapons, and right after the Iranian president began speaking, the US delegation walked out."

Meanwhile, NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 7, 0:50, Williams) reported, "Bush called on world leaders at the United Nations to step up the global war on terrorism." Bush was shown saying, "The terrorists must know that wherever they go, they cannot escape justice. We must send a clear message to the rulers of outlaw regimes that sponsor terror and pursue weapons of mass murder -- you will not be allowed to threaten the peace and stability of the world." NBC also noted the President today "thanked the more than 100 nations -- including Iraq and North Korea -- that have offered help to the victims of Hurricane Katrina."

Likewise, local TV stations chose to emphasize different aspects of the President's remarks. However, the subject most mentioned by local news was terrorism. Typical of that kind of story was WTSP-TV Tampa (9/14, 12:13 p.m.), which reported, "The global war on terror is the main issue" in the speech. WCCO-TV Minneapolis (9/14, 12:06 p.m.) said, "Once again he called on the nations to put the terrorists on notice." WOIO-TV Cleveland (9/14, 12:09 p.m.) added Bush was addressing "a skeptical and silent audience"

A few stations mentioned that the President signed an agreement to suppress nuclear terrorism. KING-TV Seattle (9/14, 12:21 p.m.) reported, "President Bush signed a United Nations resolution to formally strengthen international steps to combat terrorism. It would mandate a global commitment to prosecute and extradite those who are not in accordance."

WEWS-TV Cleveland (9/14, 5:15 p.m.) and KATU-TV Portland, OR (9/14, 11:10 p.m.) also reported on the resolution.

Coverage of the President's thanking the world for its help with the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina did not receive quite as much coverage as the terrorism issue. A typical example is KPHO-TV Phoenix (9/14, 5:13 p.m.) which reported, "President Bush thanked all who had offered help to victims of Katrina. Then he got down to other business: terrorism." KPRC-TV Houston (9/14, 5:17 p.m.) also said, "Addressing the United Nations, President Bush thanks the countries around the world that sent help for victims of Hurricane Katrina. The president says that just as Americans have seen the awesome power of nature, they have also witnessed the greater power of human compassion."

The third most commonly mentioned issue was the President's call for support in Iraq. KMGH-TV Denver (9/14, 5:13 p.m.) said Bush "focused most of the speech on Iraq and warned of the problems they could face if the blueprint for a free Iraq fails." WAGA-TV Atlanta (9/14, 12:23 p.m.), WJW-TV Cleveland (9/14, 10:13 p.m.), and WFOR-TV Miami (9/14, 5:12 p.m.) ran almost identical reports.

Bush's call for lowering trade barriers received a lot less attention than the topics covered above. KING-TV Seattle

DOJ_NMG_ 0147792

(9/14, 12:20 p.m.), for example, reported, "Bush challenged the countries of the United Nations to eliminate trade barriers saying if they do, the United States would also." WAGA-TV Atlanta (9/14, 12:23 p.m.) said that he "made a major pitch for scrapping agricultural tariffs saying more open trade would be a boost to nations."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Farley, Vieth) says Bush "surprised delegates by reversing US stances on trade and development that had nearly scuttled weeks of negotiation on the reforms. 'To spread a vision of hope, the United States is determined to help nations that are struggling with poverty,' Bush said. 'We are committed to the Millennium Development Goals.'" Those goals "include cutting poverty and hunger in half, ensuring universal education and stemming the spread of AIDS by 2015." Reuters (9/15, Bohan) adds trade "experts saw little chance of the pledge becoming a reality."

Under the headline "At UN, Bush Links War On Terrorism To Anti-Poverty Efforts," the Washington Post (9/15, Baker, Lynch) reports, "Bush's two-day visit here focused his attention back on world affairs at a time of domestic crisis along the Gulf Coast. Many of his counterparts expressed their sympathy following the death and devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina; more than 115 countries have offered assistance. " Bush's "rhetorical nod to international harmony contrasted with past visits by Bush to the United Nations that were marked by bitter disagreement over the war in Iraq. Since his reelection last year, Bush has worked to heal those wounds and has adopted a more multilateral approach to sensitive issues such as Iran's nuclear program." A second Washington Post story (9/15, Kessler) reports, "Bush's speech Wednesday lacked the confrontational tone of his previous addresses here, and he reached out for common goals and objectives." Bush "even lingered to participate for the first time in a session of the UN Security Council and then joined other world leaders for a meal."

A similar theme runs though a New York Times story (9/15, Sanger, Hoge) headlined "Bush Thanks World Leaders And Takes Conciliatory Tone." The Times reports Bush described himself as "the grateful leader of a superpower that in recent days has received emergency aid from nations around the world." The President "balanced his discussion of the need to chase down terrorists with his endorsement of a set of antipoverty objectives called the millennium development goals. … Rather than declare, as he had in the past, that countries had to choose to be 'with us or against us' in battling terrorists, Mr. Bush cast himself as the leader of one of many nations fighting the same plague."

Print media emphasizes that the President suggested a link between lowering trade barriers and ending terrorism. USA Today (9/15) reports, "Declaring that poverty breeds despair and terrorism, Bush challenged world leaders to abolish trade tariffs and subsidies to promote prosperity and opportunity in poor nations, a move that would be worth billions of dollars." The President is quoted saying, "There can be no safety in looking away or seeking the quiet life by ignoring the hardship and oppression of others. Either hope will spread, or violence will."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, King Jr.) reports, "Bush traveled here with several aims. The US hopes to build support from China, Russia and other nations to bring Iran's nuclear program before the Security Council, and to keep up pressure on North Korea through the six-party talks under way in Beijing." Bush "and his aides also have used the gathering to push for other goals, such as health programs and trade."

Meanwhile, the Washington Times (9/15, Sammon) runs a story titled "Bush Hits UN Corruption," reporting the President "implored the United Nations to rid itself of corruption and scolded the global body for squandering the world's respect and making a mockery of human rights."

More Commentary On Bush's Speech. In an editorial, the Los Angeles Times (9/15) says that Bush "deserves credit for making foreign aid a priority in a country where African poverty seldom shows up on the political radar screen. Yet this has the effect of making the administration's truculence on the Millennium Development Goals all the more frustrating. The administration has not met its commitments, and the president has failed to live up to his own inspirational rhetoric. Until it has and he does, speeches like the one Bush delivered on Wednesday will continue to be seen as cynical political ploys."

The New York Times (9/15) writes in an editorial, "Yesterday, Mr. Bush declared: 'The United States is ready to eliminate all tariffs, subsidies and other barriers to free flow of goods and services as other nations do the same. This is key to overcoming poverty in the world's poorest nations.' These were exactly the right words, and we applaud them. Now, let's get to it. The world is waiting."

USA Today (9/15) editorializes, "Bush is following the path of many second-term presidents who show a better understanding of the way the world works after a steep foreign-policy learning curve. In the short run, the legacy of the administration's in-your-face approach during Bush's first term is that the United States faces an increasingly lonely task trying to extricate itself from Iraq during his second." However, "over time…Bush's new attitude toward international cooperation might help turn global opinion around."

In Prime Time Speech From New Orleans, Bush Will Vow To Rebuild Gulf Coast. President Bush will address the nation tonight from New Orleans. In his remarks, the President is expected to pledge additional Federal help to rebuilt the areas ravaged by Katrina. Moreover, Bush will outline steps to incorporate what the Wall Street Journal (9/15, Wilke, Mullins) calls "a broad range of conservative economic and social policies" into the government's rebuilding effort. Some of those measures, adds the Journal, "are already taking shape. In the past week, the Bush administration has suspended some union-friendly rules that require federal contractors pay prevailing wages, moved to ease tariffs on Canadian lumber, and allowed more foreign sugar imports to calm rising sugar prices. Just yesterday, it waived some affirmative-action rules for employers with federal contracts in the Gulf region. Now, Republicans are working on legislation that would limit victims' right to sue, offer vouchers for displaced school children, lift some environment restrictions on new refineries and create tax-advantaged enterprise zones to maximize private-sector participation in recovery and reconstruction."

The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Hart, Hook) adds, "White House aides said President Bush's address to the nation tonight would call for reconstructing the Gulf Coast using conservative blueprints and private-sector initiatives. In preparing for his speech to be delivered from New Orleans, the president consulted widely with Republican leaders and conservative thinkers."

USA Today (9/15, Keen) reports that in his prime-time address tonight, President Bush "will tell the nation…that he's committed to rebuilding New Orleans and the Gulf Coast, while eliminating the poverty and joblessness that were exposed in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. Dan Bartlett, Bush's counselor, said the president will reflect on 'the horrific suffering' in the region and 'outline the beginnings of a vision of the future.'" Bush will speak from New Orleans and "pledge more federal help providing housing, health care and education to evacuees." The speech "is part of a White House plan to show the president's concern and commitment to the devastated region after criticism about initial slow responses by Bush and federal agencies. Bush's statement Tuesday that he takes responsibility for those problems was part of the plan."

The Washington Post (9/15, A1, Weisman, VandeHei) also reports Bush "will call tonight for an unprecedented federal commitment to rebuild New Orleans and other areas obliterated by Hurricane Katrina, putting the United States on pace to spend more in the next year on the storm's aftermath than it has over three years on the Iraq war, according to White House and congressional officials. With the federal tab for Katrina already nearly quadruple the cost of the country's previous most expensive natural disaster cleanup, Bush plans to offer federal assistance to help flood victims find jobs, get housing and health care, and attend school."

USA Today (9/15, Hall) writes, "More than 100 tractor-trailers packed with water, ice and other critical hurricane-relief supplies have been sitting at an Air Force base in Montgomery, Ala., for nearly a week while the federal government pays $600 a day for each truck." The "idle trucks," called up by FEMA "to deliver supplies, are just the latest example of the waste, bureaucratic errors and miscommunication that continue to foul Hurricane Katrina relief efforts." Rep. Mike Pence said Congress "should create a special inspector general for hurricane relief, similar to the position overseeing spending on Iraq reconstruction. 'It is imperative that those most in need receive assistance and that no resources are wasted,' Pence said."

Labor Department Earmarks $12 Million To Train Recovery Workers. CNN's The Situation Room (9/14, Blitzer) reported, "The Labor Department says it's earmarking $12 million for training Katrina recovery workers. The money is going on, going to continue in grants to Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. It will fund training in fields including construction, energy, transportation, and security."

Katrina Response Drives Down Bush Approval In Two New Polls. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Harwood) reports that Hurricane Katrina "has accelerated the erosion in public support for the Iraq war as President Bush's core of supporters dwindles and economic pessimism turns Americans' attention inward. A new Wall Street Journal/NBC News Poll shows that cutting spending on Iraq is Americans' top choice for financing the recovery from Katrina. Shaken by high gas prices and bracing for further jolts, Americans have turned negative about Mr. Bush across the board -- on handling the economy, foreign policy, and even the war on terrorism." Bush's overall approval "has fallen to a record-low for Mr. Bush of 40%, reflecting a shrunken core of base supporters. That promises to have repercussions for his domestic agenda on issues like Social Security, taxes and immigration, and leaves Mr. Bush with a steeper challenge on his most significant second-term priority: using American power and resources to transform Iraq and the broader Middle East."

On the NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 8, 2:20, Williams), Washington bureau chief Tim Russert discussed the new NBC/WSJ poll, saying it showed "the lowest favorable rating in the five-year presidency of George Bush, 40% approval. And this haunting question: If the victims were white, would there have been a faster response? Two-thirds of whites disagree with that, but seven out of 10 blacks think that is the case -- a huge racial divide confronting this President and this country." Williams: "That's a worrisome number for the White House."

The New York Times (9/15, Purdum, Connelly) reports that a "summer of bad news from Iraq, high gasoline prices, economic unease and now the devastation" of Katrina has left Bush with "overall approval ratings for his job performance and handling of Iraq, foreign policy and the economy at or near the lowest levels of his presidency, according to the latest New York Times/CBS News Poll. For the first time, just half of Americans approve of Mr. Bush's handling of terrorism, which has been his most consistent strength since he scored 90 percent approval ratings in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 attacks. More than 6 in 10 now say that he does not share their priorities for the country, 10 percentage points worse than on the eve of his re-election last fall, while barely half say he has strong qualities of leadership, about the same as said so at the early low-ebb of his presidency in the summer of 2001." In the Times/CBS poll, "41 percent of respondents approved of Mr. Bush's performance in office, while 53 percent disapproved."

The AP (9/15, Press) reports that the Times/CBS poll also found that most Americans "say rebuilding New Orleans is more important to them than cutting taxes or changing Social Security. … Cutting taxes and changing Social Security were both priorities of the Bush administration before the storm."

Rice Touts Bush Efforts For Minorities. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked about President Bush's low public support from African Americans, particularly in Katrina's wake. Rice said, "Let me just say right here that this is a President who has not only cared about minority empowerment, not only cared about equal opportunity for minorities, but he's done more than any other president I can think of in recent memory." For example, "the standards for -- so that school children are actually reading at the grade level they're supposed to be at, No Child Left Behind."

More Commentary On Bush's Speech, Declaration Of Responsibility. In his Washington Post (9/15, A33) column, Richard Cohen writes, "As if in the grand tradition of presidents affirming that the buck stops where Truman said it did -- the Oval Office -- George Bush has taken responsibility for the shortcomings in the federal effort regarding Hurricane Katrina. I f he means what he said, then Katrina washed up a whole new George Bush. But a little skepticism is in order here. After all, the George Bush we have come to know sorely lacks a rearview mirror. … For Bush there is only today and tomorrow. Yesterday is someone else's responsibility."

The New York Times (9/15) editorializes, "When President Bush addresses the country from New Orleans tonight, he will have the opportunity to build on the good beginning he made earlier this week, when he took responsibility for the federal government's failures in responding to Hurricane Katrina. In an administration that has hated to acknowledge that it ever does anything wrong, it was refreshing to hear Mr. Bush freely admit that Katrina demonstrated that there is a question about whether the nation is really prepared to respond to a terrorist attack or another natural disaster. It is only by squarely acknowledging past failure that the country will be able to do better in the future."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15) editorializes, "President Bush addresses the nation on Hurricane Katrina tonight, and after keeping too quiet for too long there's a lot for him to say. We hope he tells Americans that such a demonstrable failure at all levels of government is a rare opportunity to change that government, not another excuse to expand it willy-nilly. … The political trauma that has followed Katrina is almost entirely a result of the slow, haphazard government response in the first days after the storm hit. Mayor Nagin had an evacuation plan sitting in a drawer but never got the buses in place to implement it. He then blamed everyone else. Louisiana Governor Kathleen Blanco froze amid the crisis and failed to deploy the National Guard properly to protect those stranded at the Convention Center and Superdome. She is still blaming everyone else. FEMA was overwhelmed by the magnitude of the storm, and former director Michael Brown showed he was clueless about events that he could see merely by turning on his TV set. Notably, he is the only public official so far to lose his job, just as Mr. Bush is the only elected official who has so far accepted any public 'responsibility.' Alas, tonight the President isn't likely to assail the Department of Homeland Security that he helped to create, but he at least ought to admit that federal and state disaster duties and communication need to be better sorted out. He could also praise the Pentagon's relief success."

Gonzales Appoints Katrina Internet Fraud Task Force.

WHBQ-TV Memphis (9/14, 11:13 p.m.) reported, "Attorney general Alberto Gonzales has appointed a task force specifically to deal with on-line fraud from Hurricane Katrina."

WOWT-TV Omaha (9/14, 5:23 p.m.) also covered this story.

Kentucky Women Charged With Katrina Aid Fraud. The Louisville Courier Journal (9/15, Davis) reports, "Three Louisville women have been charged with felony fraud, accused of trying to cheat the American Red Cross in Jeffersonville, Ind., out of hundreds of dollars in Hurricane Katrina aid. Red Cross officials said yesterday that they believe that the case is part of a pattern of deceit in Clark County, Ind., that may include at least seven other individuals and families. Some people who received Red Cross debit cards in Jeffersonville over the last two weeks have used them to shop at Victoria's Secret, Circuit City and other stores that are 'not typical' destinations for disaster victims, said Phyllis Wilkins, executive director of the agency's Clark County chapter." The Courier Journal notes, "Several measures are now being taken to combat thefts in Clark County. Police began stationing a uniformed officer at the chapter's disaster resource center yesterday, and Capt. Bruce Wilkerson of the Jeffersonville Police Department said names of applicants were being entered into a national crime database run by the FBI."

Scam Artists May Try To Cash In On Relief Efforts. CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Dobbs) reported, "Rising concerns tonight that scam artists are trying to cash in on the huge relief effort for victims of Hurricane Katrina. Criminals are using fake web sites to steal money that millions of Americans want to send to the survivors of the victims. And prosecutors are concerned about possible fraud in reconstruction contracts, as well." CNN (Sylvester) added, "Federal investigators are looking at 2,100 questionable web sites, seeking Katrina relief services. About 60 percent of them are from overseas, a possible red flag. … Donors should check out charities before giving or stick with reputable agencies. … But charity scams are not the only type of fraud the government is worried about. When the hurricanes hit Florida last year, dozens of residents and businesses filed false government claims. Rent paid for those who didn't need it, funerals covered by the government, unrelated to the hurricanes. … Democrats are asking for an oversight commission to review how FEMA spends $60 billion in hurricane relief aid. The Department of Justice is establishing a task force of law enforcement officials to investigate Katrina related crimes, including Internet fraud, identity theft and false government claims."

Senate GOP Leaders Seek "Marshall Plan" For Region. Reuters (9/15, Kenen) reports that Senate Republican leaders urged Bush to "establish a 'Marshall Plan' for the recovery after Hurricane Katrina, similar to the massive post-World War II effort to rebuild western Europe. In a letter to Bush, Majority Leader Bill Frist and the rest of the Senate Republican leadership called for a 'Marshall Plan' to establish a 'coordinated and comprehensive plan to help the Gulf Coast region.' They did not spell out precisely what such a plan would entail, but lawmakers are beginning to consider ways of assembling a public-private partnership to redevelop the shattered region in the coming years."

Novak Says Coburn's Calls For Post-Katrina Government Sacrifice Fall On Deaf Ears. Syndicated columnist Robert Novak (9/15) writes this morning that Oklahoma Sen. Tom Coburn "is arguing that massive federal spending in the wake of Hurricane Katrina must entail some sacrifice. By that he meant the pork so dear to his colleagues." Coburn called OMB Director Joshua Bolten "to ask support for $15.3 billion in offsets based on the administration's own proposed terminations and spending reductions," but Bolten told Coburn "that the administration's hands were full dealing with Katrina's aftermath. Coburn told me he did not blame Bolten but his superiors. The superior he meant was George W. Bush." But Coburn's "problem is less Bolten or even Bush and more his Senate colleagues," whom threaten "to run wild with new earmarks and additional spending." Meanwhile, Novak notes, "In the House, one liberal Democrat after another has taken the floor to demand higher taxes in upper income brackets." Coburn "contends any government worker could find room to cut back spending in his own department before the federal leviathan demands more funds from any individual taxpayers. … As Coburn asserts, 'It is inexcusable for the White House and Congress to not even make the effort to find any offsets.'"

Fight Looming Over Control Of Gulf Coast Rebuilding Effort. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, A1, Calmes, Carrns, Opdyke) reports in a front page story that with "as much as $200 billion beginning to gush out of Washington for the Hurricane Katrina disaster zone, the fight already has begun over who will control the spending and make critical decisions about the future of New Orleans and the Gulf Coast." The battle is "shaping up around three key questions: Will state, local or federal officials have the final say about the shape of redevelopment? Will existing government bodies spend the reconstruction bonanza, or will some new agency be created for the job? And finally, will New Orleans be rebuilt as it was, or will some low-lying areas -- often poor, working class or predominantly African-American -- be sacrificed to improve flood protection?" Washington officials "from both parties are concluding the reconstruction job is so immense that it demands an entirely new government entity, perhaps similar to the Depression-era Tennessee Valley Authority." Deputy White House Chief of Staff Karl Rove "and other administration officials have begun soliciting names for the new organization's czar. Former General Electric Co. chief Jack Welch has been mentioned as a possible candidate, as have former Secretary of State Colin Powell and former New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani, though those two have detractors within the White House." But the "prospect of a big federal role is arousing suspicion and anger along the Gulf Coast, an area with long memories of a painful post-Civil War reconstruction and powerful suspicions of intrusions on states' rights and local autonomy."

Firms Awarded No-Bid Contracts Have Checkered Pasts. USA Today (9/15, McCoy) reports two of "the first companies that got emergency no-bid federal contracts for Hurricane Katrina recovery work have faced questions over past business practices, court and government records show." A division of Fluor, "a California firm awarded a housing contract worth up to $100 million, has paid millions of dollars to settle federal government lawsuits — including one that accused it of overbilling for 1989 hurricane cleanup work." The Shaw Group, a Louisiana firm "that won housing and engineering contracts worth up to $200 million, has disclosed that it is being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The firm is also a defendant in federal securities class-action cases." The contracts "were awarded by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Federal Emergency Management Agency as part of a relief effort expected to top $100 billion."

Union Officials Resisting Suspension Of Davis-Bacon Act. The Hill (9/15, Schor) reports that among the "litany of regulations in line to be eased or suspended during the daunting rebuilding process on the Gulf Coast are several that have greatly alarmed labor unions, whose furious lobbying efforts are hitting a brick wall of conservative might." Union officials are "concerned that President Bush's Sept. 8 suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires federal contractors to pay construction workers a prevailing wage, was only the beginning. Further hurting the union cause is GOP lawmakers' support for broad bureaucratic relaxation in the Labor Department, a push rooted in the long-standing bad blood between unions and Republican think tanks." The "presidents of LIUNA, the carpenters union and the engineers union wrote to Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist (R-Tenn.) and House Speaker Dennis Hastert (R-Ill.) yesterday decrying the Davis-Bacon suspension."

Officials Urged To Reshape New Orleans. In a USA Today (9/15), Alcestis "Cooky" Oberg says, "We have a historic opportunity to rebuild New Orleans better, safer — to change its shape, the location of its neighborhoods, even its topography. It's all been done before." The "greatest natural disaster to hit the USA — and the only one comparable to Katrina in the scope of its destruction — was the 1900 storm that devastated Galveston, Texas. Between 6,000 and 12,000 people died and, afterward, 75 looters had to be shot dead before law and order could be restored. Every Galvestonian knew that some places never come back from a storm like that." The project "took eight years and was financed by bonds underwritten by Galveston itself, along with tax relief from the state. When another monster hurricane came, in 1915, the city was ready: Only eight people died, and damage was relatively limited. The 1900 storm was a historic opportunity to change Galveston's vulnerability to hurricanes forever with an engineering project so vast, it was breathtaking. Such an opportunity now exists for New Orleans."

Documents Suggest Chertoff Had Authority To Authorize Early Response. Knight Ridder (9/15, Landay, Young, McCaffrey) reports, "The federal official with the power to mobilize a massive federal response to Hurricane Katrina was Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff, not the former FEMA chief who was relieved of his duties and resigned earlier this week, federal documents reviewed by Knight Ridder show. Even before the storm struck the Gulf Coast, Chertoff could have ordered federal agencies into action without any request from state or local officials." Brown "had only limited authority to do so until about 36 hours after the storm hit, when Chertoff designated him as the 'principal federal official' in charge of the storm." As "thousands of hurricane victims went without food, water and shelter in the days after Katrina's early morning Aug. 29 landfall, critics assailed Brown for being responsible for delays that might have cost hundreds of lives. But Chertoff -- not Brown -- was in charge of managing the national response to a catastrophic disaster, according to the National Response Plan, the federal government's blueprint for how agencies will handle major natural disasters or terrorist incidents."

Chertoff "Right In The Middle" As FEMA Scrutinized. CNN's The Situation Room (9/14, Blitzer) reported, "The finger-pointing continuing even after FEMA Director Mike Brown took the fall a few days ago. Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff was Brown's boss, and now is coming under fire for his scrutiny and for his involvement." CNN (Foreman) added, "They are very unhappy at Homeland Security today. That's what's going on right now. … Chertoff is the head of Homeland Security. They are in charge of FEMA. The President has now said he takes the blame for what went wrong. Michael Brown at FEMA has now lost his job for what went wrong. And right in the middle is Michael Chertoff."

Brown Says He Stressed Katrina Urgency, Blames Blanco For Delays. The New York Times (9/15, A1, Kirkpatrick, Shane) reports," Hours after Hurricane Katrina passed New Orleans on Aug. 29, as the scale of the catastrophe became clear, Michael D. Brown recalls, he placed frantic calls to his boss," DHS Secretary Michael Chertoff, "and to the office of the White House chief of staff, Andrew H. Card Jr." Brown, then head of FEMA, "said he told the officials in Washington that the Louisiana governor, Kathleen Babineaux Blanco, and her staff were proving incapable of organizing a coherent state effort and that his field officers in the city were reporting an 'out of control' situation. 'I am having a horrible time,' Mr. Brown said he told Mr. Chertoff and a White House official - either Mr. Card or his deputy, Joe Hagin -- in a status report that evening. 'I can't get a unified command established.'" In his "first extensive interview since resigning as FEMA director on Monday under intense criticism, Mr. Brown declined to blame President Bush or the White House for his removal or for the flawed response." Instead, he "focused much of his criticism on Governor Blanco, contrasting what he described as her confused response with far more agile mobilizations in Mississippi and Alabama, as well as in Florida during last year's hurricanes. But Mr. Brown's account, in which he described making 'a blur of calls' all week to Mr. Chertoff, Mr. Card and Mr. Hagin, suggested that Mr. Bush, or at least his top aides, were informed early and repeatedly by the top federal official at the scene that state and local authorities were overwhelmed and that the overall response was going badly." However, a "senior administration official said Wednesday night that White House officials recalled the conversations with Mr. Brown but did not believe they had the urgency or desperation he described in the interview."

CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Henry) reported, "Democrats have acted surprised and outraged that the President's FEMA director had next to no experience. … But Democrats were running the Senate when Brown was easily confirmed as FEMA's deputy director in June 2002. The Democrat in charge of the confirmation hearing, Joe Lieberman, declared he would support Brown because of his, quote, 'extensive management experience.'"

Blanco Accepts "Full Responsibility." USA Today (9/15, 3A) reports Blanco "admitted 'failures at every level of government" in the response to Hurricane Katrina on Wednesday. New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin also conceded missteps." In an "evening address to a special meeting of the state Legislature in Baton Rouge, Blanco said she shouldered blame for her state's situation." Blanco said, "The buck stops here, and as your governor, I take full responsibility." Nagin "also struck a more conciliatory note. 'We could have all done things better,' Nagin said."

The Washington Times/AP (9/15, Deslatte) reports Blanco "took responsibility for failures and missteps in the immediate response to Hurricane Katrina and pledged a united effort to rebuild areas ravaged by the storm." Her statement "came a day after President Bush said he would 'take responsibility' for federal failures in dealing with Katrina."

Senate Opens Hearings On Future Role Of FEMA. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Block) reports that Congress "opened hearings yesterday to figure out what went wrong in the immediate response to Hurricane Katrina and resolve the question of what is to become" of FEMA, an agency that "has become synonymous with the government's bungled response to the hurricane, with a number of politicians saying part of the problem is that the agency is no longer cabinet-level but rather a small cog in the mammoth Department of Homeland Security." Prominent Democrats including Sen. Hillary Clinton "have proposed bills that would make FEMA an independent agency -- a move enthusiastically endorsed by several state emergency managers, who are effectively FEMA's 'clients.'" But the hearings "showed that such a move has far from unanimous backing in the Senate." Senate Homeland Security Chairwoman Susan Collins said she "would explore the idea but cautioned her colleagues against making any hasty moves." Collins said, "My inclination is that FEMA should be part of the Department of Homeland Security."

Paulison Shaking Up FEMA Personnel. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 3, 0:20, Schieffer) reported, "More heads will apparently roll at FEMA. Administration sources say the new director, David Paulison, plans a series of changes and reassignments in the coming days."

Economist Says Congress Should "Sharpen" FEMA Mission. In a New York Times (9/15) "Economic Scene" column, Princeton economist Alan B. Krueger writes, "Although declaring a disaster should be clear-cut and above politics, the legislation that governs FEMA gives the president much discretion to decide whether an event is a disaster that qualifies for assistance. Upon receiving a request by a state's governor, the president may declare a 'major disaster' if a natural catastrophe 'causes damage of sufficient severity and magnitude to warrant major disaster assistance.' … When Congress turns to evaluating the Hurricane Katrina disaster, it should also consider sharpening FEMA's mission. One helpful step would be to define more precisely the requirements necessary for the president to declare a disaster."

Lawmakers To Visit Gulf Coast Friday. CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Cooper) reported, "Congressional lawmakers are planning to get their own firsthand look at the devastation. Today Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist and Democratic Leader Harry Reid announced they will lead a 14-member congressional delegation to the Gulf coast on Friday."

Columnist Sees Methodist Hospital Debacle As Example Of FEMA Failures. In his New York Times (9/15) column, Bob Herbert writes that the patients and staff at Methodist Hospital in New Orleans "could have been evacuated before Hurricane Katrina hit. But instead they were condemned to several days of fear and agony by bad decision-making in Louisiana and the chaotic ineptitude of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Some of the patients died. Incredibly, when the out-of-state corporate owners of the hospital responded to the flooding by sending emergency relief supplies, they were confiscated at the airport by FEMA and sent elsewhere. … Everybody's suffering would have been eased if the emergency relief effort mounted by the hospital's owner…had not been interfered with by FEMA. … When you consider that the Methodist Hospital experience was just one small part of the New Orleans catastrophe, you get a sense of the size of the societal failure that we allowed to happen. Welcome to the United States in 2005."

Senate Rejects Independent Katrina Investigation. The Washington Post (9/15, A15, Hsu, White) reports the Senate "voted along party lines yesterday to reject creation of an independent panel to investigate the government's fumbling response to Hurricane Katrina." The proposal, from Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton (D-N.Y.), "would have established a panel similar to the one that examined the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. The partisan wrangling came amid rising calls from members of both parties to change how the nation manages major disasters." The House and Senate GOP leadership plan "to form a joint congressional investigative committee with a Republican majority. A House vote is scheduled for today. Democrats oppose the move." The stalemate "over the makeup of the panel muted the first hearing in Congress into the Katrina response led by the Senate Committee for Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs."

The Hill (9/15, Hearn, O'Connor) reports Republicans and Democrats "remained in a partisan deadlock yesterday as they prepared for a floor vote to determine how to investigate the bungled response to Hurricane Katrina." Republican House leaders "plan to bring their proposal to the floor today, despite Democratic opposition, and pass it in a largely party-line vote." The proposal "would set up a 20-member committee consisting of 11 Republicans and nine Democrats on the House side, according to a draft of the resolution. The minority will be extended the ability to call for extra witnesses at hearings. A budget of $500,000 will be provided through the House Administration Committee." Both parties "face potential political fallout from the bitter standoff. Democrats could face charges of partisanship for failing to go along with the Republicans' joint panel, a type of committee that has been used dozens of times in recent decades to investigate different administrations, including the Iran-Contra scandal, Republicans argue." Democrats "counter that the circumstances were different during the 1980s because Democrats controlled Congress and were investigating a Republican administration."

The Washington Times/AP (9/15) reports Sen. Clinton's "bid to establish the panel -- which also would have made recommendations on how to improve the government's disaster-response apparatus -- failed to win the two-thirds majority needed to overcome procedural hurdles." But the Senate vote "likely won't be the last word on whether to create an independent commission or, as an alternative, a special congressional committee to investigate the Katrina response. A CNN/USA Today/Gallup poll taken last Thursday through Sunday found that 70 percent of those surveyed supported an independent panel to investigate the government's response to Katrina."

Katrina Survivors Now Negotiating Maze Of Federal Assistance Bureaucracy. The Washington Post (9/15, D1, Alexander, Henderson) reports, "First they had to ride out a howling storm. Then find shelter. Then food and water. Now, the thousands of families driven from their homes by Hurricane Katrina face the daunting challenge of applying for financial assistance under a dizzying mix of government programs." The Congressional Budget Office "has estimated that the storm wiped out about as many as 400,000 jobs in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, prompting a surge in new claims for unemployment insurance benefits." Many of those impacted are "newly eligible for food stamps, Medicaid, housing assistance, subsidized school lunches, emergency cash assistance" from FEMA, "and other programs. But many have never received such benefits and will have to navigate through multiple government agencies to find out if they qualify and how to apply."

FEMA Organizing Trailer Complexes For Katrina Evacuees. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 10, 2:50, Schieffer) reported, "FEMA estimated today that the number of people living in shelters after Hurricane Katrina is 112,000. Many of them may be moved to trailers FEMA is setting up with your tax dollars." CBS (Attkisson) added, "As many as 300,000 trailers will eventually be set up in cities of trailers where evacuees can live for up to five years. … In fairness to FEMA, it's not an easy process. Nothing on this scale has ever been attempted before."

Kolbe Seeks Appointment Of IG To Oversee Katrina Relief Funding Efforts. The Washington Times (9/15, McCaslin) reports in its "Inside The Beltway" column that Rep. Jim Kolbe has introduced the "Special Inspector General for Hurricane Katrina Recovery Act of 2005," seeking "to appoint an independent inspector general to oversee continued funding efforts. Rep. Jeb Hensarling, Texas Republican, agrees that Capitol Hill 'must do everything necessary' to help Katrina's victims, but stresses 'Congress must also use its head.' Which means, he says, that 'Congress cannot continue to fund projects like the $800,000 outhouse, $1.2 million for panda research or the $1 million rain forest in Iowa.'"

9/11 Panelists Criticize Federal Response To Katrina. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 8, :25, Vargas) reported, "In Washington today, former members of the 9/11 Commission issued a report, saying the government is still not ready for a catastrophic event and failed to make reforms that could have saved lives during Katrina. The report says local emergency officials still can't reliably communicate with each other, the government has no clear system of command and control in a crisis, and that border controls have not been enacted."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Paltrow) reports that former New Jersey Gov. Tom Kean, who chaired the panel, "said many of the steps should have been taken immediately after the 2001 attacks. He also said quick implementation of certain commission recommendations issued more than a year ago 'could have saved peoples' lives' in New Orleans.'

The New York Times (9/15, Shenon) adds, "John F. Lehman, a Republican on the panel who was a Navy secretary in the Reagan administration, said he feared that the 'unconscionable' failures of the rescue effort along the Gulf Coast would embolden terrorist groups to attack again on American soil, making quick adoption of the commission's year-old recommendations all the more important."

The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Cook) reports on a recent "Monitor Breakfast" with Kean and 9/11 Commission Vice Chairman Lee Hamilton. The Monitor says Katrina "has altered Mr. Hamilton's assessment of overall security. 'We often said during...the 9/11 hearings that we were safer but not safe,' he said. 'What struck me after Katrina was that we were not as safe as I thought we were.' Two reforms are vital in the post-Katrina world, they argue. One is to make clear who is in charge at the federal level during emergencies. The other, they say, is to require every state to adopt a detailed command-and-control plan for disasters - and link it to receiving funding from the US Department of Homeland Security. 'It was obvious that nobody knew who was in charge when Katrina struck. We had the same problem on 9/11,' Kean said. 'If you don't have a unified command structure with somebody in charge and somebody following through ... it is going to cost lives.'"

Officials Announce Plan To Repopulate New Orleans. Thousands of New Orleans residents could return to their homes as early as Monday. The Washington Post (9/15, A14, Whoriskey) reports that "city and federal authorities have set out an accelerated plan to repopulate the city, reversing earlier estimates that the metropolis could be closed for months. The plan would reopen a portion of New Orleans that was home to about 170,000 people, or one-third of the city's population, federal officials said, and be rolled out over the next two weeks." The Post adds, "The reentry plan would unfold by Zip code, depending on which section gets power and water utilities online, and how quickly hospital and emergency services can be restored. It involves portions of New Orleans that largely were unflooded: downtown, the French Quarter, Uptown and Algiers."

The Washington Post (9/15, A14, Vedantam) reports on New Orleans evacuees, noting that their stories "illustrate the game of chance that the resettlement effort is for so many victims of Katrina. Evacuees enter the relief roulette wheel with little idea whether they will emerge in a dreary shelter or in the cool air of the Ozark Mountains."

CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Lavendera) reported, "New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin has seen the signs that his wish, to get his city up and running, is one step closer to coming true. Three of the city's suburbs, Westwego, Lafitte and Gretna reopened for business today."

EPA Says New Orleans Cleanup Will Require Razing Neighborhoods. The Washington Times (9/15, Price) reports, "Environmental Protection Agency officials and environmental specialists said yesterday that the cleanup of flood-soaked New Orleans will require razing neighborhoods, comprehensive disinfection, and extensive removal of soil and sediment infused with chemicals and bacteria. … EPA Administrator Stephen L. Johnson said tests continue to show high, unsafe levels of sewage and lead in New Orleans' water and evidence of other chemicals, such as chromium, copper, iron and sodium. He characterized Hurricane Katrina as the 'largest natural disaster the EPA and the nation have ever faced.'"

Rescue Effort Scaled Back. Fox News' Special Report (9/14, Hume) reported, "The rescue portion of the search and rescue effort is being scaled back." Fox (Keeting) added, "Essentially in New Orleans as well as the surrounding parishes they are as evacuated at this point as they are going to be. No more helicopter search and rescue operations. Only 30 people rescued yesterday, so those helicopters now can be better used."

New Orleans Could Be Ready For Tourists By New Year. USA Today (9/15, Sloan) says Stephen Perry, president of the New Orleans Metropolitan Convention & Visitors Bureau said that while "it could be years before some residential areas bounce back from Hurricane Katrina… tourist areas will be ready for visitors far, far sooner. … Half a dozen hotels, including the Sheraton, Hyatt, Hilton and W, already have reopened, and an additional 35 to 40 will be open by the end of next week, Perry says. For now, they house relief workers, government officials and journalists. But the city's power brokers hope to have them ready for tourists by New Year's. Already there are plans for a scaled-down version of Mardi Gras in February."

Real Estate Speculators Buying New Orleans Properties On The Cheap. Hurricane Katrina has made New Orleans' "vibrant" real estate market "hotter," reports the Los Angeles Times (9/15, Streitfeld). The Times adds, "Large sections of the city are under water, but that's only increasing the demand for dry houses. And in flooded areas, speculators are trying to buy properties on the cheap, hoping that the redevelopment of New Orleans will start a boom. This land rush has long-term implications in a city where many of the poorest residents were flooded out. It raises the question of what sort of housing -- if any -- will be available to those without a six-figure salary. If New Orleans ends up a high-priced enclave, without a mix of cultures, races and incomes, something vital may be lost."

Scam Artists May Try To Cash In On Relief Efforts. CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Dobbs) reported, "Rising concerns tonight that scam artists are trying to cash in on the huge relief effort for victims of Hurricane Katrina. Criminals are using fake web sites to steal money that millions of Americans want to send to the survivors of the victims. And prosecutors are concerned about possible fraud in reconstruction contracts, as well." CNN (Sylvester) added, "Federal investigators are looking at 2,100 questionable web sites, seeking Katrina relief services. About 60 percent of them are from overseas, a possible red flag. … Donors should check out charities before giving or stick with reputable agencies. … But charity scams are not the only type of fraud the government is worried about. When the hurricanes hit Florida last year, dozens of residents and businesses filed false government claims. Rent paid for those who didn't need it, funerals covered by the government, unrelated to the hurricanes. … Democrats are asking for an oversight commission to review how FEMA spends $60 billion in hurricane relief aid. The Department of Justice is establishing a task force of law enforcement officials to investigate Katrina related crimes, including Internet fraud, identity theft and false government claims."

Mail Service Resumes At 80% Of Affected Post Offices. NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 4, 0:10, Williams) reported, "Then there is the mail service. The Postmaster General said today at more than 80% of the post offices affected by the storm, service has resumed."

German Government Team Helping With Cleanup. The Washington Times (9/15, Doolittle) reports on the "90 men and women sent by the German government to drain flood water from" New Orleans. The team of Germans, "volunteers with Technisches Hilfswerk, a German disaster-relief organization, arrived Friday at Belle Chasse Naval Air Base with 15 pumps that can move almost 6 million gallons of water a day." The Times adds, "The German team is just one of many on hand to clean up and to protect those doing the work. The special-response teams of the D.C.-based Immigration Customs Enforcement patrol outside the Superdome, which was a major evacuation center for tens of thousands, while crews inside clear broken bottles, water-soaked plaster, rotting trash and other messes."

Death Toll In Louisiana Rises To 423. NBC Nightly News (9/14, lead story, 3:00, Savidge) reported, "The death toll in Louisiana, 423 at last report, is nowhere near the 10,000 predicted, but all day recovery teams have been pulling bodies out of attics, basements, and mud. It's slow work, too slow, says state coroner, Dr. Louis Cataldie." Some "recovery sites are also potential crime scenes. 34 patients died in this nursing home, the husband and wife owners charged with homicide for not evacuating them." Authorities are "investigating other cases, like the more than 40 bodies left behind in New Orleans' Memorial Medical Center. The question for weeks ahead, was the disaster that killed the ones left behind natural or manmade? The couple that owns that nursing home, in their defense, said that it would have been too dangerous to move their elderly patients before the storm and that they rode out the storm with them, saving two dozen, even though 34 others died."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 7, :20, Vargas) reported, "The owners of that nursing home were 35 people drowned said they were afraid if they moved their patients, some would die. According to their lawyer, they stayed during the hurricane and tried to rescue as many as they could. They've been charged with negligent homicide in the first attempt to hold people criminally responsible for what happened during the hurricane."

More Nursing Home Deaths Reported. The New York Times (9/15, Rohde, Dewan) reports that "a day after Louisiana officials charged the owners of a nursing home in the deaths of 34 patients there, the owners of two other nursing homes confirmed yesterday that an additional 13 patients died in their homes in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. State officials also said they were investigating the deaths of 14 patients at yet another nursing home in New Orleans. The new reports suggest that at least 61 patients died in four New Orleans-area nursing homes after their operators ignored a mandatory evacuation order a day before Hurricane Katrina hit."

911 Tapes Provide "Harrowing Window" Into Katrina Flooding. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 5, 2:20, Vargas) reported the "911 tapes of people seeking rescue from the flood waters provide a harrowing window into the disaster. A glimpse of what it was like for the victims and the police."

Louisiana AG Examining Evacuation Procedures Of Hospitals, Nursing Homes. CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight (9/14, Feyerick) reported, "The attorney general for Louisiana investigating whether hospitals and nursing homes followed evacuation procedures and did everything they could to get patients to safety before the hurricane hit. 45 people were found dead at Memorial Hospital in New Orleans. Staff there without power, food, or water during the entire storm and days after. Yesterday, the owners of a nursing home were charged with 34 counts of negligent homicide after residents there were left to drown."

Military, Law Enforcement Describe Chaos In New Orleans Convention Center. The Washington Post (9/15, Haygood, Tyson) reports, "For five eternal-seeming days, as many as 20,000 people, most of them black, waited to be rescued, not just from the floodwaters of Hurricane Katrina but from the nightmarish place where they had sought refuge," the Ernest N. Morial Convention Center in New Orleans. The Post adds that "what happened in the convention center stands as a harsh indictment of government's failure to help its citizens when they needed it most. That futility was symbolized by the presence in the convention center for three of the most chaotic days of at least 250 armed troops from the Louisiana National Guard. … In more than 70 interviews, with both military and law enforcement officials -- who were themselves sometimes inside the center -- and with many of the survivors who suffered over the course of several nights, a chilling portrait emerges of anarchy and violence, exacerbated by young men from rival housing projects."

Number Of Katrina Evacuees In Houston Astrodome Down To 1,000. NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 3, 0:30, Williams) reported, "At the Houston Astrodome, 10 days ago, there were more than 17,000 evacuees getting shelter there. Today, just over 1,000 people remain. Officials say the rest have now moved on to more permanent shelters or housing. Those still at the Astrodome are getting assistance to do the same."

Utah Proves Great Contrast For Many New Orleans Evacuees. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 10, 2:25, Avila) reported, "More than 600 displaced Katrina victims were flown to Utah, a state so very different than Louisiana." One evacuee "said it's like being a fly in a bowl of milk. New Orleans is 67% African American, here it is less than 2%. Beyond the culture shock there is a difference between as Salt Lake City and New Orleans that is to the advantage of the evacuees. And that is opportunity. Black unemployment is half that of New Orleans. There has already been a job fair for the evacuees."

Officials Will Make Flu Vaccines Available To Hurricane Evacuees. The Wall Street Journal/AP (9/15) reports, "Federal health officials are pressing forward with plans to ensure flu vaccinations for hurricane evacuees in shelters as well as all people in nursing homes, populations they say are particularly at risk for catching the illness while living in tight quarters. Julie L. Gerberding, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said Wednesday that elderly evacuees, as well as those of all ages at shelters, will be among the first to receive flu shots this fall. Manufacturer Sanofi-Pasteur is making 200,000 of the first flu shots available to those evacuees. … Federal stocks of all vaccines are being made available to children who are evacuees, Dr. Gerberding said."

USA Today (9/15, Szabo) reports, "Although the vaccine supply should be ample this year, with 71 million to 97 million doses, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention expects some shots to be delayed."

USED Officials Visit Districts Schooling Evacuees. The Dallas Morning News (9/15, Hobbs) reports, "One thing is obvious at Madison High School in South Dallas. Students who evacuated here because of Hurricane Katrina appreciate Texas. U.S. Department of Education Assistant Secretary Tom Luce, Texas Education Commissioner Shirley Neeley, Dallas Superintendent Michael Hinojosa and Dallas trustee Ron Price toured the school on Wednesday and were thanked profusely by some students."

The San Antonio Express-News (TX) (9/15, LaCoste-Caputo) reports, "San Antonio school leaders concerned about the ramifications of taking in nearly 1,400 new students escaping the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina will have the chance to voice their worries and ask for help today. Ray Simon, deputy secretary for the U.S. Education Department, will visit San Antonio today to meet with superintendents and visit schools."

Louisiana Officials Postpone Local Elections. Local elections in Louisiana scheduled for October 15 have been postponed. The Washington Times (9/15, Hudson) reports that officials made the decision "citing a lack of equipment and manpower." The cancellation "affects judicial candidates, a school board race and one council seat in the parishes of Orleans and Jefferson, special propositions for tax increases for security patrols in two neighborhoods, and a 'beautification, security and overall betterment' tax increase in eastern New Orleans. According to Louisiana law, an office holder remains at his or her post until a successor is sworn into office."

Lloyd's Says Its Katrina Claims Could Reach $2.55 Billion. Lloyd's of London has estimated that claims stemming from Hurricane Katrina could cost it a net $2.55 billion. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Fleming) says, "Lloyd's estimate of its losses makes Katrina the second-most-expensive single disaster ever in nominal terms for the Lloyd's insurance market, whose members paid out about $3.5 billion for the World Trade Center terrorist attacks in New York in 2001. It also tops all other insurance groups' estimates of their individual exposure to Katrina claims so far. Lloyd's functions as a marketplace for syndicates that underwrite insurance policies."

Many Gulf Coast Homeowners Did Not Have Flood Insurance. The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 4, 2:20, Schieffer) reported, "Insurance companies are expected to pay tens of billions of dollars in claims, but some homeowners are having their claims denied." CBS (Whitaker) added, People here on the Gulf Coast are facing an ugly surprise: When it comes to hurricanes, most homeowner policies cover damage from wind only, not water. So most of this, caused by Katrina's unprecedented tidal surge -- not covered. In fact, almost 80% of homeowners in Mississippi and Alabama don't have the separate Federal flood insurance that would have covered losses like this." Katrina "certainly will trigger the biggest insurance payout in US history by far, as much as $60 billion, three times more than Hurricane Andrew."

Mississippi AG May Sue Insurers. Mississippi Attorney General Jim Hood is considering filing suit against insurers to force them to pay flood damage from Hurricane Katrina, seeking to override exclusions in standard homeowners' policies. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Francis) reports that damage "could total billions of dollars." Hood's examination of legal moves "comes as tens of thousands of Mississippi homeowners are grappling with the cost of rebuilding homes that in many cases were badly damaged by the huge storm surge that accompanied the category-four hurricane's strong winds. Mr. Hood and a spokesman for his office couldn't be reached for comment late yesterday."

North Carolina Braces For Hurricane Ophelia. USA Today (9/15, Brook) reports that Hurricane Ophelia was about 20 miles south-southeast of Cape Lookout, North Carolina at 11:00 p.m. Wednesday evening. Ophelia "had maximum sustained winds of 85 mph, making it a Category 1 hurricane on the five-stage scale." USA adds, "North Carolina Gov. Mike Easley warned people not to be complacent. Tourists were told to leave the popular beaches of the Outer Banks. Residents of some low-lying areas were evacuated." FEMA "said it was doing nothing different than normal."

The Los Angeles Times/AP (9/15) reports that Ophelia "lashed the North Carolina coast with high winds and heavy rains Wednesday, beginning an anticipated two-day assault that threatened serious flooding and an 11-foot storm surge. … Ophelia was moving so slowly -- just 7 mph Wednesday night -- that authorities expected the storm's passage through North Carolina to take 48 hours from the start of rainfall on the southeastern coast Tuesday afternoon to the storm's anticipated exit into the Atlantic late Thursday."

The New York Times (9/15, Desantis) adds, "Officials said that voluntary evacuations went smoothly and that by 3 p.m. Wednesday, 519 people had taken refuge in shelters. Residents and officials alike said the cataclysmic effects of Hurricane Katrina on New Orleans and the Gulf Coast had made little difference in how they responded to the storm.'

However, a front page story in the Washington Post (9/15, A1, Cooperman) says "federal, state and local officials were taking no chances of a repeat of the sluggish response to Hurricane Katrina. Here on Hatteras Island, which was expected to bear the worst of the storm, emergency officials stockpiled enough water and military rations to last 3,000 people for three days. The National Guard was standing by with all-terrain vehicles and four-wheel-drive ambulances. The National Forest Service had 10 chain-saw teams ready to remove fallen trees. Gov. Mike Easley (D) urged residents of low-lying coastal areas to evacuate. … But despite a 'mandatory' evacuation order -- which state officials acknowledged was not really mandatory at all -- many residents stayed behind on Hatteras and neighboring islands along the Outer Banks."

ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 6, 1:25, Vargas) said, "Emergency management officials are taking no chances this time." Among those "in the area are victims of the Hurricane Katrina. They are now living through their second hurricane in a month."

The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 2, 2:00, Schieffer) reported, "Officials are determined to get this one right." CBS (Bowers) added, "Anxious to avoid another disastrous response like with Katrina, the National Guard and FEMA have already been called out." NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 5, 1:15, Kosinski) reported, "The biggest problem you get with a storm that just won't go away like this is significant flooding. Already we're seeing several feet of standing water in this area." NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 12, 2:00, Potter) reported on Geraldine Sanders, who with "most of her extended family fled New Orleans and Hurricane Katrina and headed for North Carolina, only to run into Ophelia."

Katrina Renews Scrutiny Of Superfund. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Knickerbocker) reports that as floodwaters in New Orleans and other parts of the Gulf Coast recede, they "are exposing hazardous chemicals and other dangerous waste. But they're also revealing the accomplishments - and the limits - of government programs designed to clean up such pollution. Among the concerns: That natural disasters such as earthquakes and hurricanes haven't been adequately considered in fashioning safe and secure remedies; that areas tainted by toxic waste, such as rivers in the East and old mines in the West, are becoming larger and more complex; that many newly closed military bases will require considerable cleanup before they're ready for private or local government use; and that federal funding is falling behind the need. The main program here is a bureaucratic mouthful: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), commonly known as Superfund. … Congress and the Bush administration are sure to address hazardous waste cleanup as part of the massive federal response to Katrina. But they're also faced with renewed scrutiny of the whole Superfund program. The industry tax fund ran out of money when Congress refused to renew it in 1995."

The New York Times (9/15, Barringer, Janofsky) says the EPA "is struggling to determine what the worst hazards are, where they are and what can be done about them, the agency's administrator said Wednesday. The difficulties could cast doubt on plans of the New Orleans mayor and other city officials to reopen drier neighborhoods within days. … At a Congressional briefing and at a separate news conference, the E.P.A. administrator, Stephen L. Johnson, described for the first time the wide variety of problems the agency was confronting, including the difficulty of determining the extent and toxicity of the sludge left by the floodwaters. Mr. Johnson said the agency was using aircraft to test for air pollution and taking daily samples of floodwaters and the sludge. The sampling is concentrated in residential areas.

The agency has not completed or released details about specific strategies and the scientific protocols it is using as it tries to analyze the hazards posed by what Mr. Johnson called 'the largest national disaster that we at E.P.A., or we believe, that the nation has faced.'"

Officials Say Pollutants In Floodwater Are Fairly Typical. CNN's Anderson Cooper 360 Degrees (9/14, Cooper) reported, "The Army Corps of Engineers says about nine million gallons of water is being pumped out of the New Orleans area every day. If all goes well, New Orleans could be pumped dry by the end of October."

The Washington Post (9/15, A15, Brown) says that early tests on the floodwater "do not suggest it will leave a permanent toxic residue or render residential areas uninhabitable for more than a short time, officials of both state and federal environmental agencies said yesterday. The pollution consists primarily of fecal matter and slightly elevated concentrations of metals such as lead and chromium that were in the city's soil before Hurricane Katrina. There are also trace amounts of many petroleum-based chemicals and some pesticides. Despite descriptions of the floodwater as a 'toxic soup' and a 'witch's brew' of contaminants, the preliminary tests reveal it contains little that is different from what has been seen after past floods in other cities and here."

However, USA Today (9/15, Frank, Kenworthy) notes that "Louisiana's top environmental official warned Wednesday that many houses will have to be bulldozed because of contamination." Mike McDaniel, secretary of the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality, "said residents of those areas will be allowed to return to their homes briefly to retrieve personal items but will be told about the health risks and given protective gear. McDaniel said many houses in flooded parts of the New Orleans area 'will have to be disposed of.'"

Katrina Has Negative Effect On Consumer Spending, Gasoline Consumption. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Gerena-Morales) reports, "Consumer spending showed some signs of cooling during the weeks leading up to Hurricane Katrina, and the storm could further damp consumption in the weeks ahead if gasoline prices don't retreat. In addition, Katrina affected industrial production in August." Retail sales in August "fell 2.1% from the month before to $350 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis, following a 1.8% increase in July." It was "the largest monthly sales decline since demand tumbled 2.9% in November 2001."

Meanwhile, anther Wall Street Journal story (9/15, Herrick) adds "Americans used considerably less gasoline in the final weeks of the summer driving season than a year earlier as Hurricane Katrina limited fuel supplies and distribution and drove up prices." Data released by the US Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration "could indicate that US drivers are responding to soaring gasoline prices by conserving fuel, though the supply disruptions and gasoline lines that followed could also be a factor." Gasoline demand for the week ended Sept. 9 "dropped 4.3% to 8.64 million barrels a day from 9.03 million barrels the previous week." The New York Times (9/15, Bajaj) runs a similar story in which it mentions "some anecdotal evidence that fewer consumers drove over the Labor Day holiday and that more people are taking mass transit when possible, but there is little hard data."

In addition, the New York Times/AP (9/15) adds Katrina "is eating into the economy, leading to concern that consumers will lose confidence and curtail spending. … Analysts said they still believed that Katrina would amount to only a temporary blow to the economy and that strong growth would follow as rebuilding begins."

Rice Says Pressuring OPEC To Lower Prices Will Not Work. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked whether there was anything she could do to stop OPEC from "price gouging." Rice said, "Well, we talked to OPEC and they have every reason in the world not to sink the world economy. As you know, we have an energy problem because we don't have diversified energy sources. And that's what we have to concentrate on."

Stocks Down. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Gaffen) reports, "Major stock indexes wilted Wednesday as crude oil jumped nearly $2 a barrel and traders fretted over tepid economic reports. A profit warning from Walt Disney sank the Dow industrials in the last hour of trading." The Dow Jones Industrial Average "fell 52.54 points to 10544.90, hurt by Disney's 2.8% drop, which led decliners on the average. The Nasdaq Composite Index fell 22.42 points, or 1.03%, to 2149.33, just off the day's low. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 4.15 to 1226.51."

Georgia Chief Justice Tries To Help Katrina-Displaced Attorneys. The Fulton County (GA) Daily Report (9/15, Hobbs) reports, "Georgia's top judge is trying to make things easier for hurricane-displaced lawyers who want to start a practice in Georgia." The Report continues, "Chief Justice Leah Ward Sears of the Georgia Supreme Court has asked her counterparts in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama to change their rules so that lawyers from those states could get a State Bar of Georgia license in as little as eight weeks. … Right now, those lawyers can practice in Georgia temporarily but must pass the state's bar exam to set up shop permanently -- a process that would take at least nine months. The next bar exam is not offered until February, and results do not arrive until late May." The Report adds,

DOJ_NMG_ 0147804

"The problem is that Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama do not allow reciprocity with other states. For states that do, lawyers licensed in one state can join another state's bar without having to take its bar exam. … Currently 33 states, including Georgia, allow this kind of reciprocity, said Hulett H. 'Bucky' Askew, the director of the Georgia Office of Bar Admissions. … If the top judges in those states agree, then lawyers from the Gulf Coast states would need only to pass a certification of fitness to practice in Georgia, a process that ordinarily takes eight to 12 weeks, said Askew, who added that his office would try to speed things up for displaced lawyers."

Lawmakers Remain At Odds With Bush Over Spending Bill. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Rogers) in an article on Senate debate over the Commerce, Justice and Science appropriations bill reports, "To date, the House and Senate have sidestepped confrontation with the president by quietly borrowing from defense and foreign-aid accounts to fill gaps in Mr. Bush's domestic budget. But as the Oct. 1 deadline approaches, some reckoning will soon be required." Only two of the annual spending bills have been completed and "there is an estimated $7 billion gap between the House and Senate over the remaining measures. Republican lawmakers must reconcile these differences and then try to reach some agreement with the president." As the deadline approaches, "some stopgap measure will be needed again to keep agencies funded for the first few months. The House Appropriations Committee leadership is considering a very restrictive funding formula to give itself more leverage in talks with the Senate. But this strategy could backfire if it leaves agencies such as the Army Corps of Engineers at a disadvantage, just when they are trying to cope with Katrina relief."

Labor Split Deepens As Fourth Union Quits AFL-CIO. The New York Times (9/15, Greenhouse) reports, "Deepening the split in organized labor, Unite Here, a union that represents" 450,000 "apparel, hotel, casino and restaurant workers, announced yesterday that it was quitting the A.F.L.-C.I.O., becoming the fourth union to do so this summer." Unite Here leaders "said the dissident unions would focus on large-scale organizing drives to try to unionize thousands of workers at the same time." The Times notes, "Immigrants will be a particular focus, they said, because the breakaway unions cover industries with millions of immigrant workers, like restaurants, nursing homes, supermarkets, hotels and janitorial companies."

Delta, Northwest Airlines Declare Bankruptcy. ABC World News Tonight (9/14, story 9, 1:55, Vargas) reported, "This has been an extraordinary day for the airline industry. Delta and Northwest both filed for bankruptcy. This means that four of the seven largest airlines will be operating under bankruptcy protection." ABC (B. Stark) added, "The third and fourth largest airlines in the country were brought to their knees today, crippled by stiff competition from discount carriers and by the exorbitant price of jet fuel after Katrina." That "will surely mean more cuts in wages, pensions, and benefits for employees of those airlines, but both Delta and Northwest tried to reassure the flying public today that for them, it would be business as usual. Planes will keep flying, tickets will be honored. Frequent flier programs will continue." Bankruptcy protection "hasn't hurt the safety records of US Airways or United, but the FAA increases the safety inspections of airlines in bankruptcy."

NBC Nightly News (9/14, story 11, 2:10, Williams) reported, "Now to the business news headlines of the day: Two of this nation's major airlines, Northwest and Delta, along with Delta's low-cost carriers, Comair and Song, all declared bankruptcy today, becoming the latest of the brand-name carriers to take that step." NBC (Thompson) added, "Already burdened by high labor costs and fierce competition from discount carriers that has snapped them of pricing power, the final blow, analysts say, proved to be jet fuel prices that rose as much as 50 cents a gallon in the aftermath of the hurricane." The two "are losing money rapidly. Northwest, in the midst of a mechanics' strike, is nearly $18 billion in the red, Delta $28 billion." The CBS Evening News (9/14, story 9, 0:40, Schieffer) also said both airlines "were expected to fly their normal schedules while they reorganize."

This morning, stories about the bankruptcies run in USA Today (9/15, Adams, Reed), New York Times (9/15, Maynard), Wall Street Journal (9/15, Perez, Carey), Financial Times (9/15, Cameron, Daniel), Los Angeles Times (9/15, Peltz), Washington Post (9/15, Goo) and Washington Times (9/15, Glanz), among other sources.

In an analysis piece, USA Today (9/15, Adams, Reed) says, "The slide into bankruptcy protection of two of the USA's largest airlines is more a result of the carriers' bad assumptions and slowness to act than the recent rise in fuel prices or the devastating terror attacks four years ago." The Delta and Northwest bankruptcies "are different in key respects from that of No. 2 United and No. 7 US Airways. Both United and US Airways were directly affected by the 9/11 attacks. Two of United's planes were hijacked that day, and Washington Reagan National Airport, where US Airways has a major operation, was shut down for weeks." Neither Delta nor Northwest "was similarly affected by the attacks, and four years have passed. Industry experts say that in the case of Delta, and to some extent Northwest, these filings are more a reflection of how traditional, hub-and-spoke airlines failed to adapt in the face of aggressive low-cost carriers, falling fares and rising oil prices."

Bankruptcy Filing Complicates Delta's Legal Fight With Employees, Retirees. The Fulton County (GA) Daily Report (9/15, Peters) reports, Now that Delta Air Lines Inc. has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, the carrier will have a legal fight on its hands from employees and retirees seeking to protect their benefits, legal experts said." The Report continues, "Delta, the third-largest U.S. airline, filed late Wednesday for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code, No. 1-05-bk-17923. (U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York, filed Sept. 14, 2005). … The filing comes after repeated warnings from Delta CEO Gerald Grinstein that higher fuel costs and lower demand have crippled the airline. Delta also has faced stiff competition from carriers such as AirTran Airways that have lower labor and operating costs." The Report adds, "Delta has been in talks with Stamford, Conn.-based GE Commercial Finance to provide the airline with $2 billion in debtor-in-possession financing, which would allow the airline to continue operating after a bankruptcy filing. Details of the loan had not been released early Wednesday, but industry analysts said they expect Delta to pledge virtually all of its remaining unencumbered assets, such as aircraft, as collateral for the loan. … Bankruptcy protection will allow Delta to change the terms of its agreements with other creditors. The airline is expected to sell many assets and slash costs, the latter by renegotiating pilot salaries and perhaps cutting back its workforce. … Delta also could cut or even abandon its pension plan and health care benefits for retirees and employees. Such a move likely would lead to a legal fight from employee groups."

Weiner Concedes Mayoral Primary; Ferrer To Face Bloomberg. The New York Times (9/15, A1, Healy) reports in a front page story that Rep. Anthony D. Weiner "conceded the 2005 Democratic mayoral nomination yesterday to Fernando Ferrer, the top vote-getter in the race, in hopes of averting a potentially destructive runoff election and strengthening Mr. Ferrer's hand as he begins the final eight-week campaign against Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg." Weiner's decision, "made after a long night of strategizing with aides and his mentor, Senator Charles E. Schumer, came as a surprise to New York Democrats, not least Mr. Ferrer, who was said to be ecstatic. Mr. Ferrer lost a bruising mayoral runoff to Mark Green in 2001, and faced an uncertain bout against the scrappy Mr. Weiner; yesterday, he embraced a nomination that had eluded him in two previous runs for mayor." But in a "surprising development, however, city elections officials announced that they were required under state law to hold a runoff despite Mr. Weiner's withdrawal - at a cost to taxpayers of at least $10 million." But even among Democrats "supporting Mr. Ferrer, beating Mr. Bloomberg is seen as an awesome and perhaps impossible challenge, given his money and approval ratings of about 60 percent. Even one of Mr. Ferrer's most prominent supporters, who is also a New York officeholder, offered a grim prediction yesterday that the mayor would beat Mr. Ferrer, 53 percent to 47 percent, if Mr. Ferrer did not invigorate his Democratic campaign."

The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Marks) reports Ferrer's avoidance of a run-off campaign "is very good news for the Democrats, who despite their 5-to-1 edge over Republicans in voter registration, haven't controlled City Hall for more than a decade, in part because of past divisive and expensive internecine contests." Some analysts "contend that Mr. Weiner's expected decision to concede is a testament to the Democrats' determination to take back City Hall. But Ferrer still faces a daunting, uphill battle against Bloomberg, whose popularity has been steadily increasing."

The Washington Post (9/15, A2, Powell) reports political strategists "say the prospects for Ferrer, who could become the city's first mayor of Puerto Rican descent, are not terribly encouraging. Bloomberg, who can project a CEO's disdain for the symbols and ceremonies of politics, has rebounded from low poll numbers of 2002 and now rides well ahead of Ferrer. The city's economy is no longer reeling as it was in 2001. And Bloomberg, if rarely loved, is regarded by many residents as an able manager."

Schwarzenegger Hints He Will Seek Second Term. The Los Angeles Times (9/15, Salladay) reports Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger "all but declared today that he would run for a second term next year, saying, 'Let me tell you, I am not in this for the short run.'" At a "special election campaign event," Schwarzenegger was "asked by an audience member if Californians would get 'a chance to vote for you again," and he "then revealed what his campaign staff had been hinting for several days: 'I'm going to make an official announcement on Friday, this Friday. I believe very strongly in follow-through. Follow-through is the most important thing. If you start something, you've got to finish it."

Reuters (9/15, Tanner) reports Schwarzenegger "signaled on Wednesday that he would seek a second term as governor in what would already be his fifth major campaign since seeking the office in 2003." The Governor "kicked off a series of campaign events this week ahead of a special election he has called for November on teacher pay, redistricting and the state budget. In an appearance before an invited audience in Clovis, California, he said he would announce on Friday whether he will seek a second term for governor starting in 2006."

Legislator Says Mississippi Has Benefited From Tort Reform. Charlie Ross, a Mississippi state senator and chairman of the Senate Judiciary A Committee, writes in the Wall Street Journal (9/15, A21) that the Mississippi Legislature in 2004 approved a comprehensive Tort Reform Bill that included "venue reform (so trial lawyers cannot shop around for favorable courts) and caps on subjective noneconomic damages (such as pain and suffering)." Ross adds, "Prior to the legislation, Mississippi was known as the 'jackpot justice capital of America.' … Insurance companies were fleeing the state. Others were refusing to write new policies. .. One year later, the story is very different. Mass Mutual Insurance Group, St. Paul Travelers, World Insurance Co. and Equitable Life Insurance Co. are returning to Mississippi. … The Medical Assurance Company of Mississippi, which writes 60% of the medical malpractice coverage for doctors in the state, had raised its rates 20% the year prior to the tort reform legislation. After its passage, MACM did not raise its rates at all. … Insurance was becoming less available and less affordable prior to the passage of the tort reform legislation. Now, the opposite is true." Ross notes, "Since only a year has passed, the long-term consequences of tort reform cannot be known. … There is enough information, however, to state unequivocally that tort reform has made the Mississippi legal environment more fair, more predictable and less expensive."

North Korea Demands Reactor In Exchange For Ending Arms Program. The New York Times (9/15, Kahn) reports, "North Korea demanded on Wednesday that the United States and other nations give it money to build a new light-water nuclear reactor before it will end its nuclear weapons program, a condition that appeared to undermine prospects for a breakthrough in the talks here" and "suggested that North Korea was coming up with fresh obstacles to signing a broadly worded commitment to denuclearize." While the Americans "recently signaled a softening of" the positions that the North cannot be trusted with any nuclear technology, "saying they would be willing to leave aside the issue of civilian uses of nuclear technology for now," they "drew a sharp line at building new reactors for North Korea."

The Wall Street Journal (9/15, Fairclough) adds that this is a "replay of demands made during negotiations in the early 1990s," and that "any such deal would be an extremely tough sell for the conservative U.S. Congress."

The Washington Post (9/15, A28, Cody) adds that chief U.S. negotiator, Assistant Secretary of State Christopher Hill said, "It's very clear they wanted to make this light-water reactor day … I hope they don't want to make it light-water reactor week. I don't know how many ways I can say no."

Rice Predicts Regional Changes Will Help Isolate Iran. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice in an interview on The O'Reilly Factor (9/14) was asked whether Iran was "America's biggest enemy next to North Korea." Rice said, "Iran is a state that is moving in the wrong direction. I would say 180 degrees in the wrong direction. But on one order, they have now an Afghanistan that is a democratic state and an ally of the United States in the war on terror, military ally of the United States. On the other hand, they have a not-yet-finished project in Iraq but one that when it is will be a nontheocratic majority state that is the center now of a nontheocratic Islamic-related democracy."

French Pushing Referral Of Iranian Nuclear Program To Security Council. The Washington Times (9/15, Pisik) reports, "French Prime Minister Dominique de Villepin yesterday threatened to refer Iran's nuclear program to the U.N. Security Council … For months, France had resisted U.S. pressure to send a dispute over Iran's nuclear program to the United Nations for possible sanctions."

Indian Hesitation At Confronting Iran Straining Ties With US. The New York Times (9/15, Weisman) reports, "A few months after the United States and India elevated their relationship to a new level with a broad accord, a fresh irritant has disrupted the friendship - the Bush administration's insistence that a reluctant India join in the confrontation over Iran's suspected nuclear weapons program. India, with a longstanding friendship with Tehran, is demurring," Indian officials say that "bringing the issue to the Security Council will backfire, especially by provoking Iran's new president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad."

Hundreds Of Arms Smuggled Over Egypt-Gaza Border. The New York Times/AP (9/15, Press) reports, "Palestinian gunrunners smuggled hundreds of assault rifles and pistols across the Egyptian frontier into Gaza," confirming "Israeli fears about giving up border control and could further destabilize Gaza … Egypt had assured Israel that it would prevent weapons smuggling once its troops took over from Israel along the Gaza frontier, and Cairo and the Palestinian Authority pledged to seal the border by Wednesday evening," but "Palestinian security forces in Gaza appeared to be doing little to stop infiltrators."

The Washington Times/AP (9/15, Barzak) reports, "Scores of Palestinians crossed from the Gaza Strip into Egypt yesterday evening before Egyptian security forces moved to close the border in an attempt to restore order … Hundreds of Egyptian border guards were expected this morning to enforce the closure in earnest." Yesterday "Hamas militants -- unhindered by Palestinian police -- blew a hole in the Gaza barrier … Mr. Abbas' security forces largely have displayed weakness since the Israeli withdrawal." Even though "imposing security in unruly Gaza is seen as the key test of Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas' government," Palestinian officials said that they "will not risk civil war," by trying to disarm Hamas, "despite intense international pressure to confront militants."

Gaza "On Brink Of Lawlessness" In Absence Of Israelis. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, A1 Leggett) reports, "With the Israelis gone, Gaza teeters on the brink of lawlessness as armed groups fight each other and the official Palestinian quasi-government, the Palestinian Authority. The Palestinian Authority remains weak and plagued by corruption." Palestinians worry "some officials may seek kickbacks in return for releasing aid funds" and are concerned about "Gaza's rampant lawlessness."

Commenting on the situation in Gaza, the Washington Post (9/15) editorializes, "Unless Palestinian and Egyptian leaders take immediate steps to fulfill their commitments in Gaza, they will bear the responsibility for a new stalemate -- or worse -- in the Middle East." The Gaza withdrawal "could become a leap away from" an Israeli-Palestinian settlement. "The Gaza Strip is on the verge of anarchy," and "the Palestinian Authority has allowed mobs of looters and armed extremists to rampage through former Jewish settlements" and "the valuable greenhouses…have been stripped of equipment as police stood by and watched." Egypt "allowed thousands of Palestinians to illegally cross its border, including rifle-brandishing militants." If it is not quickly checked, "he disorder will destroy Palestinian hopes that the Gaza transfer will become a step toward statehood."

US-EU Trade Talk Efforts Hindered By Farm Tariffs. The New York Times (9/15, Andrews) reports, "American and European officials are trying to breathe new life into the so-called Doha Round of trade talks," with a crucial deadline only three months away. However, it has become "bogged down in large part because of the reluctance by the United States and the European Union to reduce tariffs on imported crops and subsidies for domestic farmers," which have "spurred a rebellion of sorts by many large developing countries."

"Untested" Merkel Expected To Win German Election. The Wall Street Journal (9/15, A1, Walker, Champion) reports, "Merkel is favored to become leader of the world's third-largest economy." Her party, "which maintains a narrowing lead in the polls, has promised to end Germany's economic malaise by shaking up longstanding labor, tax and social policies," and "could also shift the balance of European politics, drawing Germany closer to the flexible markets of countries like Britain and isolating its longtime ally, France." Still, "her ability to drive profound political change is untested. She has been uncomfortable and distant on the campaign trail, and even Germans in her own party oppose many of her economic proposals … Even if Ms. Merkel wins an outright majority, she may find it difficult to push through her reform agenda."

In an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal (9/15) Gabor Steingart, the Berlin bureau chief for Der Spiegel and author of "Der Abstieg eines Superstars," argues, "Angela Merkel has a chance if she succeeds in mobilizing" willpower, "society's most underestimated productive force," behind "her policies." She "knows the forces at work here. They are pulling the country, as well as its chancellor, down -- down to the place where the wellspring of eternal fear flows. No nation likes to lose a piece of its power and prosperity each day. German assertiveness is thus Ms. Merkel's natural coalition partner. She must ally herself with it, promote it and let it grow into a mighty political force." The "Fear of reform, fear of stagnation, fear of a failure of democracy and now -- as the frantic climax of this collective neurosis -- the fear of a further growth of fear," have resulted in "political exhaustion on all sides" that such force of will must counteract.

Father's Choices Put Merkel In East Germany, Shaped Her Life. The New York Times (9/15, Dempsey) reports that Merkel was "just 3 months old when the family moved" to East Germany, her father, a Reverend, looking to teach Christianity. When he was asked by the Stasi, the secret police, to become an informer, he refused. As a result, "his daughter ran into difficulty … She had wanted to train to become a teacher and translator, but was not allowed to because of her father's profession."

German MP Says Close European-US Relationships Key To Future. In an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal (9/15) Wolfgang Schauble, a member of the German parliament and Angela Merkel's foreign and security advisor, "To preserve peace, freedom and security in Europe, the success of the European unification process and a functioning trans-Atlantic partnership are of paramount importance." The Christian Democratic Union will "avoid everything that could weaken trust," unlike "the wrong maneuvers of Gerhard Schröder's government, which have contributed greatly to the fact that Europe and the trans-Atlantic relationship are today experiencing their deepest crisis … If we succeed in strengthening Europe's cohesion, achieving common Euro-Atlantic positions, and binding Russia, China and others into a system of cooperative international responsibility, then we will also face down the greatest challenge for our future: to credibly convince the non-Western world that the West does not stand against them."

Protestant Anger Dashes Ulster Reconciliation, Fuels Violence. The New York Times (9/15, Lavery) reports, "Deep-seated anger among Protestants has dashed hopes of a reconciliation with Roman Catholics anytime soon … The police have blamed Protestant paramilitaries for organizing the recent violence." Many say the riots are due to a "rift between the British government and Protestants … No prominent unionists, who are largely Protestant and want the province to remain part of Britain, condemned the violence … Protestants continue to feel slighted" as their "privileged position in Northern Ireland" has "gradually eroded since the 1960's." They "are also infuriated that Britain has rewarded the I.R.A.…before the terrorist group fulfills its promise to disarm."

Family Of Man Killed By IRA Suffers Violence, Intimidation. The Washington Post (9/15, A21, Sullivan) reports, "The family of Robert McCartney, a Catholic whose death at the hands of Irish Republican Army members in January caused international outrage and brought White House condemnation, said Wednesday it was being subjected to a campaign of violence and intimidation for speaking out forcefully against the IRA." Teenaged cousins and Jeff Commander, a friend, have been beaten, and "at least 50 people, mostly women, demonstrated outside the home of Bridgeen Hagans, McCartney's fiancee, vowing to return every night until she moves out of the neighborhood." Sinn Fein issued a statement Wednesday "denying any link to the beating."

Factory Seizure Fans Corruption Claims In Ukraine. The New York Times (9/15, Myers) reports that on Sept. 2, camouflaged men "seized the headquarters of…the Severodonetsk Azot Association," accompanied by officials of a new government carrying an order signed by a minister under" Ukrainian President Yushchenko, "based on a court case filed by a fictitious company, on behalf of a politician who stood to gain from the seizure." This has raised "questions about the true success of what came to be known as the Orange Revolution, as members of Mr. Yushchenko's team volley accusations of abuse of power, bribery and other forms of corruption." "Reports of bribery and corruption have swirled around" Yushchenko's circle "from the time of his inauguration in January," and the resignation of Oleksandr O. Zinchenko, Mr. Yushchenko's chief of staff, "provoked a political firestorm here that shows little sign of subsiding."

Ortega Has "Fighting Chance" Of Returning To Power. The Christian Science Monitor (9/15, Harman) reports, "Fifteen years after unexpectedly being voted out of power, and with two unsuccessful runs for the presidency since," Daniel Ortega, "the iconic head of the Marxist Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN) is back on the campaign trail" and "has a fighting chance of returning to power … Even his critics say divisions within the ruling party, coupled with Ortega's grip on the electoral machine, make his resurrection possible." Roger Noriega, the Bush administration's outgoing top envoy to Latin America said "that if the Sandinistas returned to power, Nicaragua would 'sink like a stone and reach depths such as those of Cuba.'" However, Carlos Fernando Chamorro, a former editor of the Sandinista newspaper Barricada, says "too much US interference in the lead up to the election could actually help Ortega."

Former USTR Urges US To See China As Tough Competitor. In an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal (9/15), Charlene Barshefsky, U.S. Trade Representative from 1997 to 2001, and Edward Gresser, director of trade and global markets at the Progressive Policy Institute, "The plain fact is that our competition has gotten tougher, and we need to match it." China's economic "emergence is reshaping not only trade, but also world finances, global manufacturing and the entire East Asian economy. This should naturally give rise to searching debate. But the debate we are actually having is limited to a series of complaints about currency rates, intellectual property piracy and Chinese investment intentions in the U.S. … The U.S. must develop an integrated policy to address this emerging challenge in all its aspects, by reducing "the risk of global trade and financial imbalances," raising "its game at home to remain the world's technological leader," maintaining our "central place in the Pacific economy," and restructuring our "economic relationship with China." The first step is "recognition by the administration, Congress, businesses and the public that we face a powerful competitive challenge, one that cannot be attributed to undervalued currencies or unfair trade."

OAG asked that we prepare -- internally -- comments on the various detainee bills being discussed on the Hill. The thought being that we should be prepared if/when this breaks.

Toward that end, could you send me copies of whatever draft bills are out there, in their current form? I received a draft of bills by Specter and Graham some time ago, but don't know if they've changed, or whether others have gotten into the fray. I will then coordinate with you to share the bills with various folks internally to get their thoughts and comments.

Many thanks,

You should know, when this came in we first tried to get the Criminal Division to take it, but they represented that they had no applicable statute. That's why we had to think creatively to come up with the disability theory.

Re: Morristown Memorial Hospital

Dear [redacted]

On February 3, 2005, the Department of Justice informed you that it was conducting an investigation, pursuant to Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act, into the treatment of disabled children who are born alive after early inducement procedures at Morristown Memorial Hospital. We received your March 11 letter declining to provide the requested information. We have since engaged in interviews and reviewed various materials in conjunction with our investigation. We would like to offer you an additional opportunity to respond to our requests voluntarily prior to litigation.

Your March 11 letter expressed concern that release of the requested information may violate the privacy provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA). However, the Department's February 3, 2005 request for information sought only general information regarding written and unwritten policies regarding how the hospital treats newborn children in various situations and conditions, policies regarding early inducement abortion procedures, and polices regarding disposal of infant and fetal remains. It did not request any information about individual cases or other individually identifiable health information. In other words, the requested information about hospital policies simply is not protected by HIPAA. Moreover, even if HIPAA-protected health information had been requested, such information may be produced to the Justice Department where, as here, the information is sought to determine if a violation of the ADA has occurred. The HIPAA regulations explicitly authorize covered entities to "disclose protected health information to a health oversight agency[1] for oversight activities[2] authorized by law, including . . . civil . . . investigations . . . proceedings or actions; or other activities necessary for appropriate oversight of . . . entities subject to civil rights laws for which health information is necessary for determining compliance." 45 C.F.R. §164.512(d)(1). Such information may be released "without the written authorization" of the individual and without the "opportunity for the individual to agree or object," 45 C.F.R. §164.512.

Your letter also stated that you had "attempted to gain additional information from [the Department of Justice] in order to further investigate but have been advised that further information from [the Department of Justice] would not be forthcoming." This recitation misstates the telephone communication between Kathleen Devine and [redacted] an attorney with Atlantic Health Systems. On February 22, 2005, [redacted] sought to determine the identity of the individual or entity that had complained to the Department. Ms. Devine advised [redacted] that such information could not be provided because it would inhibit the free flow of information between complainants and the federal agency vested with responsibility for enforcing the statute at issue. [redacted] also asked if we would narrow the scope of our information request–a request which already had been limited to five hospital policies–claiming that the United States' request was too broad. Ms. Devine informed her that such a request was premature where, as here, [redacted] did not yet know the volume of responsive information. Since that time, we did not hear from [redacted] nor from any other representative of Morristown until the United States received Morristown's letter refusing to provide the requested information.

You additionally have expressed concern that the hospital's polices and procedures are proprietary information, and that you cannot be required to produce such information without a subpoena. Please let us clarify the nature of our request. We are asking for your voluntary cooperation in this investigation into disability discrimination under the ADA. The Department of Justice is vested with authority to investigate alleged violations of Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), including allegations such as those presented here. See 42 U.S.C. § 12188. The Department is also authorized to bring a civil suit to enforce the ADA, which would bring with it the full panoply of civil discovery tools. Id. We are asking for your cooperation to avert any necessity for litigation and exhaustive discovery of the hospital's procedures. To the extent that you are concerned with the hospital's business interest in protecting proprietary information, we believe that that interest is best served by your cooperation with this investigation rather than facing civil litigation, with the attendant publicly accessible filings.

[1]Health oversight agency includes an agency, such as the Department of Justice, that is authorized by law to enforce civil rights laws for which health information is relevant. 45 C.F.R. §164.501.

[2]The Department of Health and Human Services' comments to the rule expressly provide that, "[i]n the final rule, we include the following as additional examples of health oversight activities: (1) the U.S. Department of Justice's civil rights enforcement activities, and in particular, enforcement of . . . the Americans with Disabilities Act." 65 Fed. Reg. 82462, 82492 (Dec. 28, 2000).

The investigation of allegations of potential ADA violations at Morristown Hospital is continuing. Interviews[3] have indicated that several babies were born alive as a result of early inducement abortions because these babies were thought to have disabilities. These babies were put in a room with soiled and unsanitary equipment and left to die. They all showed signs of life, including gasping for air and/or movement. In certain instances, their Apgar scores were recorded as 0-0. In certain instances, their parents appeared to be unaware that their babies were born alive. While it appears that all of these babies were swaddled after birth, in one instance a head apparently was covered and, in another, the baby was unwrapped before death.

We understand from our investigation that Morristown itself has looked into the above-referenced allegations. We also have been informed that, in July, Morristown announced a change in policy regarding the care and treatment of newborn infants. As such, the United States' original request for information has assumed added significance and we now expand that request to include any additional policies that fall within the terms of the five original requests up to the present. We also make the following additional requests:

1. If not included within the list of previously requested policies, a copy of the policy announced in July 2005 regarding the care of babies born alive as a result of abortions or spontaneous labor, and any related documents. If this policy is not in written form, please provide a description of the policy.

2. We have attached a document entitled "Guidelines for Care of the Family Experiencing A Fetal Demise or Pregnancy Termination." Please identify this document, and indicate whether and to what extent it was distributed and used at Morristown Memorial Hospital.

[3]Federal law prohibits retaliating against any person for making a complaint or otherwise assisting in any way in an ADA investigation, or for encouraging others in doing so. 42 U.S.C. § 12203. The Department aggressively pursues violations of this provision.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Kathleen Devine at (202) 307-0480. We thank you for your cooperation in this matter.

GUIDELINES FOR CARE OF THE FAMILY EXPERIENCING A FETAL DEMISE OR PREGNANCY TERMNATION

Purpose

Atlantic Health System provides humane, dignified and compassionate care to families experiencing a stillbirth or pregnancy termination. This is a difficult time for the patient and family and requires supportive care of both physical and emotional needs.

Definitions

1. Fetal Death: (Stillbirth) Death prior to complete expulsion or extraction from the mother of a product of human conception, fetus and placenta, irrespective of duration of pregnancy. The death is indicated by the fact that, after such expulsion or extraction, the fetus does not breathe or show any other evidence of life, such as heartbeat, pulsation of umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles. Heartbeats are to be distinguished from transient cardiac contractions; respirations are to be distinguished from fleeting respiratory efforts or gasps. (ACOG, p.313)

2. Termination of pregnancy: A voluntary cessation of pregnancy performed by an MD/CNM. Pregnancy terminations are only performed on Labor & Delivery when there is a fetal demise, a fetal diagnosis incompatible with life or PPROM with oligohyramnios.
3. Non viable live born infant: An infant born with signs of life but that is not expected to survive for more than several hours. A plan of care for the infant must be discussed and agreed upon by the patient/family, physician and neonatologist before delivery.

Admission

1. All routine admission procedures, including but not limited to;
   a. Orientation to room and plan of care
   b. Vital signs
   c. Consent
   d. IV
   e. Blood work
   f. History/ review of prenatal record
2. Routine L&D orders or termination orders may be used at the discretion of the physician, depending on gestational age.
3. Initiate bereavement checklist and provide bereavement materials as appropriate.
4. Place bereavement door card on patient's door to alert other hospital staff as to the situation.
5. Discuss the desires of the parents for spiritual care and contact the Chaplain's office as appropriate.

Induction

1. Follow the routine orders or termination orders according to gestational age.
2. A physician will insert the first dose of medication (nurses may place subsequent doses if trained to do so).
3. Patient must remain in bed for 1 hour post insertion of medication.

Monitoring

1. Uterine tocometer may be placed at the discretion of the physician < 28 weeks and no history of uterine surgery but the tone of the uterus should be monitored by palpation hourly.

Vital Signs

Vital signs should be monitored closely

1. Blood pressure, pulse and respirations Q30 minutes x2 after

2. Temp Q2 hours and report > 100.4F. A cooling blanket may be used for temperatures between 100 and 104 F.

Pain Management

1. Assess the patient's wishes for pain medication/sedation.
2. Administer as ordered.
3. Continually assess the patient's level of comfort and remedicate as ordered.

Delivery

1. The physician will be notified when delivery is imminent (if possible) or immediately thereafter. It should be noted that dilatation is not progressive and may change suddenly leading to delivery without warning.
2. 20 units of pitocin should be added to the IV after delivery of the fetus.
3. The placenta may take up to 4 hours to deliver;
   g. Monitor patient closely for bleeding
   h. Monitor vital signs q 15 minutes

Recovery

1. Offer parents opportunity to view and/or hold the fetus.
2. Give parents memory box, which should include;
   a. Pictures
   b. ID bands
   c. Crib card
   d. Footprints
   e. Mementos
   f. Lock of hair
   g. Hat and/or clothing
   h. Blanket
   i. JR Bear
3. If the parents decline the memory box it should be stored carefully in the bereavement closet.
4. Pictures must be taken of every fetus regardless of gestational age or indication for termination.

5. Autopsy, genetic studies, pathology and disposition forms must be completed and explained to the parents;
    a. If genetic studies are ordered do not place the fetus in formalin.
    b. If placental cultures are ordered swab each side of the placenta and label correctly.
    c. Send all placentas to pathology.

Postpartum

1. Patient may be discharged home from Labor & Delivery 6-8 hours postpartum;
    a. If vital signs stable
    b. If bleeding stable, draw CBC as ordered
    c. Rubella and rhogam given as ordered
    d. Able to ambulate
    e. Able to void
    f. Able to tolerate diet and fluids
2. If the patient remains hospitalized after delivery then the option of transferring off of the OB floor should be offered.
3. Ensure patient/family have a copy of the bereavement discharge instructions.
4. Refer to Perinatal or NICU Social Worker if there a history of depression or any concerns.

Paperwork

1. Initiate Fetal Death Certificate worksheet. The original yellow copy can have no errors on it and must be signed by the physician. Fetal Death Certificate only required for deliveries less than 20 weeks if private disposition is requested.
2. Autopsy Disposition Form must be completed on all fetal demise deliveries and terminations. It is the responsibility of the physician to discuss autopsy and disposition options with the parents.

3. EBC must be completed on all fetal demise deliveries and terminations using the specific worksheet (copies in bereavement file).
4. Labor & Delivery record must be completed on all fetal demise deliveries and terminations.
5. If there are any signs of life at delivery a Notification of Death Form and then a Certificate of Death will be issued. The parents must select private disposition in this case.
6. Place a copy of the Bereavement Checklist on the patients chart as a record of bereavement care given.

Disposition

1. Fetus should be transported to the morgue with the appropriate completed paperwork, i.e. fetal death certificate and disposition form.
2. If private disposition is requested the family must contact a funeral home of their choice who will make all the necessary arrangements with the morgue.
3. If hospital disposition is requested the family must be aware that it is via incineration and there is no option for religious service or burial arrangements.

Follow Up

The nurse caring for the family and/or bereavement group nurses will contact the patient/family in 1-4 weeks as appropriate. The bereavement group telephone number is located throughout the bereavement materials to ensure the patient/family have a way of reaching out sooner if necessary.
Fetal Infant Mortality Review (FIMR) will be notified by the bereavement group nurse.

POSTPARTUM INSTRUCTIONS FOLLOWING PERINATAL LOSS

We would like to extend our deepest sympathy over your loss.

The following list is a guideline for your physical recovery you should also have received bereavement literature to help you in your grief.

Activity; Get as much rest as possible at home for the first few weeks. You may gradually resume normal activities but should refrain from heavy lifting. You can drive once you are pain free enough to be safe, usually a few weeks. Use common sense.

Diet; Eat a well balanced diet and drink plenty of liquids. Continue taking the vitamins and iron that your doctor had previously prescribed.

Breasts; Wear a good fitting bra or sports bra 24 hours a day for the first few days. Breast engorgement will usually only last 1 or 2 days. Use Tylenol or ibuprofen as per the package instructions. Apply ice packs (or bags of frozen peas) to uncomfortable breasts and/or underarms. Avoid hot showers and limit stimulation. Call your doctor for a fever with hot, red and tender localized areas.

Bleeding; Vaginal bleeding may last for several weeks. The color will change from red to brown to pink. You may notice an increase when you are overdoing any activity. An occasional small clot is not unusual. Do not use tampons or douches until you have been seen for your 6 week check up.

Personal Care; You may shower and wash your hair but do not tub bathe. Use the peri bottle filled with warm water to cleanse after using pads and anusol cream/ointment. If you do not have a bowel movement within two days of leaving the hospital use a laxative such as milk of magnesia at bedtime.

- Episiotomy; Keep the area clean and dry. Keep your stools soft, one or two colace a day may help as well as eating a high fiber diet and drinking plenty of water. The stitches used do not need to be removed. Use a sitz bath for comfort.
- C/section wound; Keep the area clean and dry. Wear loose fitting clothing over the incision. The steri-strips may start to peel off after a week or so and may be removed as they do. Wash the incision with soapy water in the shower, rinse and pat dry carefully. Numbness, itching, pulling and firmness are all normal. Call if any localized hot red areas, bleeding, foul odor or separation of the incision.

Call your physician for;

1. very heavy bleeding
2. severe pain not controlled by the medications your doctor prescribed/recommended
3. foul smelling discharge/vaginal odor
4. fever greater than 100.4 F/38 C that persists

Please remember to call your doctor's office to schedule a 6 week check up.

Remember that if you need to talk with someone about your loss you can reach the Bereavement Support Group @ 973-971-5748.

SUBJECT: Interaction of the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA) and the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002

Letter Summary

- The Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002 (Pub. L. 107-207) adds to the United States Code a definition of the term "individual" to include every infant who is born alive, at any stage of development; it also adds a definition of the term "born alive."
- The Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA) provides certain rights to "any individual" who comes to an emergency department and "any individual" who comes to a hospital. In particular, hospitals must provide an appropriate medical screening examination to any individual who comes to an emergency department, and either stabilizing treatment or an appropriate transfer for an individual who comes to a hospital and who is determined to have an emergency medical condition.
- Attachment: The attached Guidance provides direction to regional office and state survey agency personnel on how to apply EMTALA in investigations when the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act is potentially implicated.

The purpose of this memorandum is to provide guidance to regional office (RO) and state survey agency (SA) personnel regarding the enforcement of the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA) during investigations of hospitals where the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act could be potentially implicated. It has recently come to the agency's attention that there may be occasions where, in hospitals, an infant may be born alive within the meaning of the definition added to the U.S. Code by the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act, but where hospitals have failed to comply with the requirements of EMTALA.

Under the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act, such an infant is defined as an "individual." Since EMTALA provides protection to "individual[s]," RO and SA personnel conducting EMTALA investigations need to be aware of the interaction of both statutes in order to appropriately comply with their obligations to conduct EMTALA surveys. This memorandum provides guidance on the interaction of the two statutes.

Background

Congress enacted EMTALA to ensure public access to emergency services, regardless of ability to pay. Section 1867 of the Social Security Act imposes specific obligations on Medicare-participating hospitals that offer emergency services to provide a medical screening examination (MSE) when an individual comes to the emergency department and a request is made for examination or treatment for a medical condition, including active labor, regardless of an individual's ability to pay. In addition, when an individual comes to a hospital, and the hospital determines that the individual has an emergency medical condition, the hospital is required to provide either stabilizing treatment within its capabilities, or to effect an appropriate transfer. If a hospital is unable to stabilize an individual with an emergency medical condition within its capability, or if the individual requests, an appropriate transfer should be implemented.

To help promote consistent application of the regulations concerning the special responsibilities of Medicare-participating hospitals in emergency cases, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) has occasionally published regulations clarifying hospitals' responsibilities and obligations under EMTALA. Most recently, in September of 2003, CMS published such regulations. Shortly after those regulations became effective, we issued revised Interpretive Guidelines to implement those regulations. We also amended our State Operations Manual to incorporate the new regulations. From time to time, we also issue guidance to surveyors to use when conducting an investigation and assessing a hospital's compliance with EMTALA.

Effective Date: Immediately. Please orient surveyors and implement procedures to ensure that the information in this memorandum is operational within 60 days.

Training: This information should be distributed to all survey and certification staff, their managers, and the state/RO training coordinators.

GUIDANCE ON THE INTERACTION OF THE BORN-ALIVE INFANTS PROTECTION ACT AND EMTALA

Summary of the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act

The Born-Alive Infants Protection Act, Pub. L. 107-207, amended title 1 of the United States Code by defining the terms "person," "human being," "child," and "individual." In particular, the statute instructs that,

> [i]n determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the various administrative bureaus and agencies of the United States, the words "person", "human being", "child", and "individual", shall include every infant member of the species homo sapiens who is born alive at any stage of development.
> 1 U.S.C. § 8(a).

The statute goes on to define the term "born alive" with respect to the species homo sapiens, as any member of that species expelled or extracted > from his or her mother … at any stage of development, who after such expulsion or extraction breathes or has a beating heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles, regardless of whether the expulsion or extraction occurs as a result of natural or induced labor, cesarean section or induced abortion.

> 1 U.S.C. § 8(b).

Summary of the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA)

The EMTALA statute is codified at section 1867 of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd. Hospitals and physicians generally have three obligations under EMTALA. The first is commonly referred to as the screening requirement, and applies to any individual who comes to the emergency department of a hospital and for whom a request is made for examination or treatment for a medical condition. Such an individual is entitled to have a medical screening examination to determine whether or not an emergency medical condition exists. The second is commonly referred to as the stabilization requirement, and applies to any individual who comes to the hospital and whom the hospital determines has an emergency medical condition. Such an individual is entitled to stabilizing treatment within the capability of the hospital. The third obligation flows from the second, and also applies to any individual in a hospital with an emergency medical condition. This obligation is sometimes known as the transfer requirement, and restricts the ability of the hospital to transfer that individual to another hospital unless the individual is stabilized. If the individual is not stabilized, they may only be transferred if the individual requests the transfer or if the medical benefits of the transfer outweigh the risks.

In addition to the basic requirements of EMTALA, the statute contains "whistleblower" protection. In particular, section 1867(i) of the Act prohibits a hospital from taking adverse action against an employee because the employee reports a violation of the section. EMTALA is enforced by penalties that can be imposed against the hospital in an amount up to $50,000 per violation ($25,000 per violation in the case of a hospital with less than 100 beds); hospitals that violate EMTALA also put their Medicare provider agreements at risk. A physician that violates EMTALA is subject to a penalty of $50,000 per violation and, if the violation is gross or flagrant, or repeated, to exclusion from the Medicare and Medicaid programs. In addition, EMTALA can be enforced by a private right of action brought in the U.S. District Courts by any individual harmed as a direct result of an EMTALA violation by a hospital.

The 2003 regulations included some modifications and clarifications to hospitals' responsibilities and obligations under EMTALA. For example, the regulations clarified the screening requirement and made clear that it applied to any individual who presented to an area of the hospital that met the definition of a "dedicated emergency department" and made a request for a medical screening examination. The regulation defined dedicated emergency department as the area of the hospital that met any one of three tests: that it is licensed by the state as an emergency department; that it held itself out to the public as providing emergency care; or that during the preceding calendar year, at least one-third of its outpatient visits were for the treatment of emergency medical conditions. The preamble to the regulation noted that it is possible that the labor and delivery department of a hospital could meet the definition of dedicated emergency department. (See 68 Fed. Reg. at 53229 (September 9, 2003)).

The regulation also clarified other circumstances in which the screening requirement may apply. For example, an individual who comes to certain locations on the hospital's campus, but not to the dedicated emergency department, is entitled to the protection of EMTALA in certain circumstances. In particular, if the individual comes to the hospital and makes request for examination or treatment for an emergency medical condition, then the screening requirement will apply. If the individual does not make a verbal request, but a prudent layperson observer would conclude, based on the person's appearance or behavior, that the person needed emergency examination or treatment, the screening requirement also applies.

In addition, the regulation also clarified the application of EMTALA with respect to inpatients. Prior to the issuance of the regulations, CMS had never made clear whether EMTALA applied to inpatients. With the new regulations, as codified at 42 C.F.R. § 489.24(d)(2), it is clear that EMTALA does not apply to inpatients, whether admitted after the individual has been admitted through the emergency department or whether the individual has been admitted for an elective procedure.

Notably, the regulations retained an earlier requirement that any individual (whether or not that individual is a Medicare beneficiary) who comes to the hospital and who is determined to have an emergency medical condition is protected by both the stabilization requirement and the transfer requirement if the individual is not admitted. (See 42 C.F.R. § 489.24(d)(1)). The retention of this requirement meant that CMS continued to intend for hospitals to stabilize any individual (or to meet the applicable transfer requirements for any individual) who has not been admitted as an inpatient, but who is determined by the hospital to have an emergency medical condition. The preamble to the regulation also notes that it would be a violation of EMTALA to admit an individual to the hospital in a bad faith attempt to evade EMTALA obligations.

The preamble to the regulation also noted that even though EMTALA does not apply to inpatients, hospitals were still bound by the Medicare conditions of participation (CoPs) to provide appropriate care to inpatients. In particular, the preamble noted four CoPs that are potentially applicable when a hospital provides treatment for an admitted patient. For example, hospital governing bodies must ensure that the hospital medical staff has written policies and procedures for appraisal of inpatients who develop an acute medical condition while admitted. The preamble also notes the discharge planning CoP, which requires that hospitals have a discharge planning process that applies to all patients. Hospitals must also have an organized medical staff that is responsible to the hospital's governing body for the quality of medical care provided to patients. Finally, the hospital governing body must ensure that the hospital has an organization-wide quality assessment and performance improvement program to evaluate the provision of patient care. These CoPs are intended to protect patient health and safety, and to ensure that high quality medical care is provided to all patients. Failure to meet these CoPs could result in a finding of noncompliance at the condition level for the hospital and lead to termination of the hospital's Medicare provider agreement.

Interaction of the Born-Alive Infant Protection Act and EMTALA

With the definition of the terms "person" and "individual" codified at 1 U.S.C. § 8, it is clear that there may be some circumstances where EMTALA protections can attach to an infant who is born alive, as that term is defined in 1 U.S.C. § 8(b). For example, assume that a hospital's labor and delivery department meets the definition of a "dedicated emergency department" under the new regulations. If an infant were born alive (again, as that term is defined in 1 U.S.C. § 8(b)) in that dedicated emergency department, and a request were made on that infant's behalf for screening for a medical condition, (or if a prudent layperson would conclude, based on the infant's appearance or behavior, that the infant needed examination or treatment for an emergency medical condition and that a request would have been made for screening) the hospital and physician could be liable for violating EMTALA for failure to provide such a screening examination. This follows because the born-alive infant is a "person" and an "individual" under 1 U.S.C. § 8(a), and the screening requirement of EMTALA applies to "any individual" who comes to the emergency department.

Another example could occur were an infant to be born alive elsewhere on the hospital's campus (i.e., not in the hospital's dedicated emergency department) and a prudent layperson observer concluded, based on the born-alive infant's appearance or behavior, that the born-alive infant were suffering from an emergency medical condition. In such a circumstance, the hospital and its medical staff would be required to perform a medical screening examination on that born-alive infant to determine whether or not an emergency medical condition existed. If the hospital or its medical staff determined that the born-alive infant were suffering from an emergency medical condition, there would then arise an obligation to admit the infant, or to comply with either the stabilization requirement or the transfer requirement, or risk a finding of an EMTALA violation. This follows because the born-alive infant is a "person" and an "individual," as described above, and the stabilization and transfer requirements of EMTALA apply to "any individual" who comes to the hospital.

Finally, a third example could occur if the hospital were to admit a born-alive infant. As noted above, EMTALA does not apply to inpatients. Were an infant born alive and then admitted to the hospital, EMTALA would not apply to protect the infant in most circumstances. However, the CoPs described above clearly would apply to the infant once he or she was admitted to the hospital as an inpatient. If a hospital were to violate those CoPs, it would put at risk its Medicare provider agreement.

Conduct of Investigations

EMTALA is a complaint-driven statute. If you receive a complaint that suggests that a born-alive infant has been denied a screening examination, stabilizing treatment, or an appropriate transfer, you should treat that complaint as potentially triggering an EMTALA investigation of the hospital. Note that it is not necessary to determine that the hospital acted with an improper motive in any failure to provide a screening examination, stabilizing treatment, or an appropriate transfer in order to conclude that an EMTALA violation has occurred. The Supreme Court of the United States has held that a finding of improper motive is not required to conclude that an EMTALA violation has occurred.

PROGRAM INSTRUCTION

TO: State and Territorial Agencies Administering or Supervising the Administration of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) Program.

SUBJECT: Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act requirements and the Born Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002.

LEGAL AND RELATED REFERENCES: The Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002, Public Law 107-207; and the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act.

PURPOSE: The purpose of this Program Instruction (PI) is to provide instruction to States about the requirements of the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act that are applicable to the CAPTA State grant program.

BACKGROUND: The Born-Alive Infants Protection Act, Public Law 107-207, was enacted on August 5, 2002, and amends the United States Code to provide that, in determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation or interpretation of a federal administrative bureau or agency, the words "person," "human being," "child," and "individual" "shall include every infant member of the species homo sapiens who is born alive at any stage of development." (1 U.S.C. 8(a)). The Act also defines the term "born alive" to mean the complete expulsion or extraction, at any stage of development, of a member of the homo sapiens species from his or her mother who – regardless of whether the umbilical cord has been cut, or whether the expulsion or extraction occurs as a result of natural or induced labor, cesarean section, or induced abortion – after such expulsion or extraction, possesses certain indicia of life (1 U.S.C. 8 (b)). The text of the Act is attached.

The purpose of the Act was to reaffirm the legal principle that infants who are born alive, at any stage of development – including those born alive after failed abortions – are persons entitled to the protections of the law. See H.R. Rep. 107-186 at 3 and throughout (2001).

INSTRUCTION:

All references to a "child" or "children" in the definitions, provisions and assurances of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, as amended, are to be read to include infants who are "born-alive" as that term is defined at 1 U.S.C. 8. States also must ensure that their State laws, procedures and practices with respect to child abuse and neglect conform to the requirements of CAPTA as its terms are interpreted in accordance with Public Law 107-207.

In particular, States must ensure that implementation of section 106(b)(2)(B) of CAPTA, which requires States to have procedures for responding to reports of medical neglect (including the withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life-threatening conditions), applies to born-alive infants. This means that the State must provide the following with regard to born-alive infants:

X Coordination and consultation with individuals designated by and within health-care facilities with regard to responding to medical neglect (section 106(b)(2)(B)(i) of CAPTA);

X Prompt notification by the individuals designated within health-care facilities of cases of suspected medical neglect (including withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life-threatening conditions) to child protective services (section 106(b)(2)(B)(ii) of CAPTA);

Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002: Public Law 107-207

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ``Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002''.

SEC. 2. DEFINITION OF BORN-ALIVE INFANT.

(a) In General.--Chapter 1 of title 1, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

Sec. 8. `Person', `human being', `child', and `individual' as including born-alive infant.

(a) In determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the various administrative bureaus and agencies of the United States, the words `person', `human being', `child', and `individual', shall include every infant member of the species homo sapiens who is born alive at any stage of development.

(b) As used in this section, the term `born alive', with respect to a member of the species homo sapiens, means the complete expulsion or extraction from his or her mother of that member, at any stage of development, who after such expulsion or extraction breathes or has a beating heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles, regardless of whether the umbilical cord has been cut, and regardless of whether the expulsion or extraction occurs as a result of natural or induced labor, cesarean section, or induced abortion.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affirm, deny, expand, or contract any legal status or legal right applicable to any member of the species homo sapiens at any point prior to being born alive' as defined in this section.'

(b) Clerical Amendment.--The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 1 of title 1, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

8. `Person', `human being', `child', and `individual' as including born-alive infant.'

STATEMENT BY MIKE LEAVITT
Secretary of Health and Human Services
Regarding Born-Alive Infant Protection

Shortly after I was confirmed as Secretary, I received several inquiries on whether the Department of Health and Human Services was planning to issue regulations to implement the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002. The Born-Alive Act, passed with overwhelming bipartisan support in Congress and signed into law by President Bush in August 2002, is a law that defines the term "individual," "person," "human being," or "child" as any infant who is born alive, at any stage of development. While that definition seems so self-evident, Congress had received testimony that some infants who had been born alive after unsuccessful abortions were left to die. Because the Born-Alive Act is self-implementing and applies to all federal statutes, rulings, and regulations, no regulations are necessary.

The Act reaffirms the legal principle that all infants born alive are entitled to the full protection of the law. That is a principle I will vigorously uphold as Secretary. As a matter of law and policy, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will investigate all circumstances where individuals and entities are reported to be withholding medical care from an infant born alive in potential violation of federal statutes for which we are responsible. We will also take proactive steps to educate state officials, health care providers, hospitals and child protection agencies about their obligations to born-alive infants under federal law.

We took the first of these educational steps today by notifying relevant entities that we aggressively enforce federal laws that protect born-alive infants. We issued clear guidance that withholding medical care from an infant born alive may constitute a violation of the federal Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act and the Medicare Conditions of Participation. We also notified state agencies that receive grants under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act that they must have procedures in place to respond to reports of medical neglect as it applies to born-alive infants.

Ours is a society that values and defends life. The Department of Health and Human Services will continue to seek ways to revere and protect the dignity of life.

Gordon,

Thanks very much. As I understand from the attached, then, HHS has issued two guidance memos. The first, under CAPTA, requires, at a minimum, that hospitals self-report cases where all children, including those born alive after an unsuccessful abortion, are mistreated. Second, under EMTALA, HHS will pursue allegations of mistreatment or neglect by hospitals as it relates to such children, even if the mistreatment did not occur in the emergency room. Is my understanding accurate?

Also, is there anything more we can do through CRT or HHS on this issue? Eg, say Morristown didn't self report the problem under CAPTA, what sort of relief does that merit (independent from the underlying conduct)? Are there ways we can identify leads of similar cases and pursue them? Is there anything can we do (HHS and CRT) to coordinate efforts to ensure that hospitals have in place regulations that prevent this sort of killing?

I'd appreciate and be interested in your creative thinking on this.

Here is what HHS put out on Born Alive, and also the letter we sent Morristown yesterday. You should know, when this came in we first tried to get the Criminal Division to take it, but they represented that they had no applicable statute. That's why we had to think creatively to come up with the disability theory.

Neil,
I would appreciate if you could put me in touch with someone at DOJ who can advise on the intellectual property issues that might arise from Mrs. Bush using the theme "All Things Bright and Beautiful" for the White House Christmas Visitor's Guide. The theme would be a part various White House Christmas materials. This phrase comes from a well-known hymn, but is also the title of a book by James Herriot that is currently in publication. Robert:
Hola.
As you may know, my term concludes on September 30th of this year. I have previously advised presidential personnel of my desire not to be re-appointed. I felt the position offers a unique opportunity for service that should be made available to some else who is seeking to be part of the administration. Also, my two older kids are in prep school in PA, and the two younger ones are not far behind. I must return to the full time payment of tuition.

I have been advised by PPO that my successor is in process, but understandably, no timetable is set for their confirmation. I have agreed to remain at the FCSC to ensure qorum until circumstances dictate otherwise.

I know you are wearing many hats, but I wanted to keep you apprized of my status.

109TH CONGRESS

S. _____

To limit liability for actions by volunteers providing disaster relief.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. CORNYN introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To limit liability for actions by volunteers providing disaster relief.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Disaster Relief Volunteer Protection Act of 2005".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

[To be added: findings regarding need for the legislation and connection to interstate commerce.]

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this Act—

(1) the term ''compensation'' means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services, but does not include reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual;

(2) the term ''declared disaster'' means a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under section 319 of the Public Health Services Act (42 U.S.C. 247d), a determination by the Secretary of Homeland Security [Secretary of Health and Human Services?] in accordance with section 2811 of the Public Health Services Act (42 U.S.C. 300hh-11), or an emergency or disaster declaration under section 401 or 501 of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5170, 5191);

(3) the term ''disaster relief goods'' means either—

(A) those goods provided in preparation for, response to, or recovery from a declared disaster and reasonably necessary to such preparation, response, or recovery; or

(B) those goods defined by a supplemental declaration under this section;

(4) the term ''disaster relief services'' means services or assistance provided in preparation for, response to, or recovery from a declared disaster, including but not limited to health, medical, firefighting, rescue, reconstruction, and any other services or assistance specified by a supplemental declaration under this Act as necessary or desirable to prepare for, respond to, or recover from such declared disaster;

(5) the term ''disaster relief volunteer'' means an individual—

(A) who provides disaster relief services or assistance in connection with a declared disaster without expectation or receipt of compensation for such services or assistance; and

(B) who, to the extent required by the appropriate authorities of a State (even if such State is not the State in which the volunteer provides services or assistance) or [if and to the extent specified in a supplemental declaration under this section] a foreign country, is licensed, certified, or authorized to provide the relevant services or assistance;

(6) the term ''employer or business partner'' means [define?];

(7) the term ''non-economic loss'' means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature;

(8) the term ''supplemental declaration'' means [a declaration under section 9 regarding the scope of a declared disaster];

(9) the term ''State'' means each of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, and any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

SEC. 4. LIABILITY OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEERS.

A disaster relief volunteer shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of the volunteer that is within the scope of the activities of the volunteer to provide aid or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster if—

(1) the harm was not caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the State requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to—

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

SEC. 5. LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER OR PARTNER OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEER.

An employer or business partner of a disaster relief volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the activities of the volunteer to provide aid or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster.

SEC. 6. LIABILITY OF HOST OR ENABLING PERSON, ENTITY, OR ORGANIZATION.

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental entity, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a disaster relief volunteer to enable the volunteer to render disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster shall not be liable for any act or omission of a disaster relief volunteer. [no exception?]

SEC. 7. LIABILITY OF GOVERNMENTAL ENTITIES FOR DONATIONS OF DISASTER RELIEF GOODS .

A governmental entity that donates disaster relief goods to an agency or instrumentality of the United States in connection with a declared disaster shall not be liable for harm caused by such donated goods if the harm was not caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by the governmental entity.

SEC. 8. LIMITATION ON PUNITIVE AND NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES BASED ON ACTIONS OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEERS AND GOVERNMENTAL DONORS.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—Punitive damages may not be awarded in any civil action against a disaster relief volunteer or governmental entity unless a claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the damages to the claimant were proximately caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by either—

(1) a disaster relief volunteer in an action brought for harm caused by the volunteers activities of the volunteer to provide aid or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster; or

(2) a governmental entity for harm caused by disaster relief goods donated by such governmental entity in connection with a declared disaster.

(b) NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Liability for non-economic loss in any civil action brought against either a disaster relief volunteer for harm caused the activities of the volunteer to provide aid or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster, or a governmental entity for harm caused by disaster relief goods donated by such governmental entity in connection with a declared disaster, if permitted under this section 4 or 7, shall be determined in accordance with paragraph (2).

(2) AMOUNT OF LIABILITY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of damages for non-economic loss allocated to a disaster relief volunteer or governmental entity defendant shall be in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant, determined in accordance with subparagraph (B), for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable.

(B) PERCENTAGE.—In a civil action described in paragraph (1), for purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of each defendant found liable for harm to the claimant.

(C) SEPARATE JUDGMENTS.—The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant for any non-economic loss.

SEC. 9. SUPPLEMENTAL DECLARATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the event of a declared disaster, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a supplemental declaration.

(b) TEMPORAL EFFECT.—A supplemental declaration may [establish an effective date or termination date for the declared disaster as the President or relevant Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest.] provide that, for purposes of this section, such declared disaster shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such declared disaster shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such declared disaster.

(c) GEOGRAPHIC AND OTHER CONDITIONS.—A supplemental declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such declared disaster shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the relevant Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest.

SEC. 10. CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in section 6(6) of the Volunteer Protection Act (42 U.S.C. 14505(6)), may be entitled to under that Act. Neither shall anything in this section be construed to confer any right or action or to abrogate or limit any protection with respect to either liability or damages that any disaster relief volunteer or governmental entity may be entitled to under any other provision of law.

I am no tort lawyer, but my sense is that the exception for wilful or reckless misconduct covers criminal acts. It is true that criminal liability is sometimes imposed for negligent acts, but those instances(aside from negligent homicide, usually from careless driving, which is already exempted from the bill's coverage) are rare. I see no reason to cover separately criminal misconduct. If Jeff thinks otherwise, I defer to him. rah

Neil,
I would appreciate if you could put me in touch with someone at DOJ who can advise on the intellectual property issues that might arise from Mrs. Bush using the theme "All Things Bright and Beautiful" for the White House Christmas Visitor's Guide. The theme would be a part various White House Christmas materials. This phrase comes from a well-known hymn, but is also the title of a book by James Herriot that is currently in publication. I appreciate your assistance with this.

Neomi

John Fargo is the Director of the Intellectual Property section of the Commerical Litigation branch, and he is in charge of handling claims (or potential claims) that a USG component is violating someone's IP rights. By this email, i'm inviting John to contact you directly to discuss. Obvious issues are whether a phrase from a hymn is copyrightable, whether this is fair use anyway, and whether it might not be very simple to get permission just in case. But I'll let John advise, because unlike me he actually knows something about these issues.

Dan

Good. Thanks. I was just making sure. Doesn't look like we will be in session tomorrow, so I am guessing we will just see what the President says, clean some stuff up tomorrow and introduce on Monday.

Some additional questions:

1. is the phrase "in connection with" in the definition of disaster relief volunteer sufficient enough? I don't want that to be interpreted as "requested by," so... I query if there is a different approach.
2. Why shouldn't the volunteer organization itself be covered by the act as opposed only to for acts/omissions of the volunteer?
3. I realize that you have shot me down a coupla times, but are we sure that we shouldn't/can't cover business/organizations/individuals who donate equipment or services?
4. What do you think about a Class-Action like diversity provision that puts a lot of these claims in Federal Court?
5. I know you are still working on findings, let me know what you think.

Finally - any feedback on the criminal provisions - both new ones and the ones we sent you?

Thanks much for all the help.

I agree with Richard. There actually are some strict-liability crimes (e.g., Food, Drug & Cosmetic Act violations), as well as crimes requiring only a negligence mental state. I wouldn't want a volunteer who acts with a pure mental state but violates some technical criminal provision to be excluded from coverage under this bill.

I am no tort lawyer, but my sense is that the exception for wilful or reckless misconduct covers criminal acts. It is true that criminal liability is sometimes imposed for negligent acts, but those instances(aside from negligent homicide, usually from careless driving, which is already exempted from the bill's coverage) are rare. I see no reason to cover separately criminal misconduct. If Jeff thinks otherwise, I defer to him. rah

Neil and Peter,

I made one last suggested edit, to the last sentence of the requisitioning parag. I have been bothered by the fact that a lot of the failure to return requisitioned property was probably according to Zweig the result of breakage, but that possibility was not addressed by the statement, which instead suggested that the property was either abandoned or stolen. Unfortunately, the only fix I could come up with required changing the last half of the sentence into the passive voice. Let me know what you think. (All of the active voice formulations I came up with implied too much malice or deliberateness).

Detainee Legislation

I. Potential Amendments to the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006, S. 1042

- SA 1494 (Levin) -- Proposal to establish an independent commission on policies and practices on treatment of detainees.

- SA 1505 (Graham) – codifies POTUS' authority to utilize CSRTs and ARBs in Guantanamo Bay, using procedures in effect as of July 1, 2005 except: (1) to the extent practicable, the CSRT shall determine, by a preponderance of the evidence, whether statements derived from persons held in foreign custody were obtained without undue coercion; (2) creates a Senate-confirmed Designated Civilian Official.

- SA 1556 (McCain, Warner, Graham, Collins) -- No individual in the custody or under the physical control of the United States Government, regardless of nationality or physical location, shall be subject to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment (as defined by U.S. Reservations, Declarations and Understandings to CAT). President may waive on a case-by-case basis if required for a military or national security necessity and submits timely notice to appropriate Congressional committees.

- SA 1557 (McCain, Warner, Graham, Collins) -- No person in the custody or under the effective control of DoD or under detention in a DoD facility shall be subject to any treatment or technique of interrogation not authorized by and listed in the US Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation (in current form or future revised version). Army Field Manual cannot include technique that constitutes torture, or cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws or treaties of the United States.

- SA 1566 (Warner) -- The Secretary of Defense shall establish uniform standards and procedures for the detention and interrogation of persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense, which shall be consistent with U.S. law and international treaty obligations.

- SA __ (unnumbered amendment) (Specter) – Unprivileged Combatant Act of 2005 creates discretionary authority to the President to employ procedures for detainees (field tribunal, classification tribunals and military commissions) and if these procedures are adopted, unprivileged combatants may not challenge their detention in U.S. courts via habeas corpus or any other statute.

House Bills:

- H.R. __ (unnumbered bill) (Rep. Adam Schiff D-CA) – "Guantanamo Detainees Procedures Act of 2005" affirms the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, enables person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

- Unnumbered Draft of "Antiterrorism Detentions and Interrogations Procedures Act" (7/26/05 Rep. Jane Harman D-CA): Mandates detention of detainees in U.S. Provides detainee with Common Article 3 protection. Gives detainee the right to challenge detention in U.S. courts. Gives detainee right to trial "as soon as possible"—within 2 years of detention or must be released. Trial for violation of Law of Armed Conflict must be before U.S. Courts Martial. Interrogation techniques limited to current Army FM 34-52. Provides private cause of action in U.S. courts.

Subject: OVW grant solicitation template

Diane Stuart asked that I send you a copy of our solicitation template, in case you (or someone on your staff) would like to review it. The template will be used as the basis for all of our grant solicitations, so that they have common language as much as possible. There will be some changes to this language made later, due to the conversion from the OJP Grants Management System to Grants.gov, but the changes will not be substantive. We are working with OJP to determine the necessary changes as soon as possible.

I would greatly appreciate your comments, if any, by September 16, because the individual solicitations are already under development and in need of this template language. Also, please let me know if you would like to review copies of the individual grant program solicitations.

Thank you very much!

About the Office on Violence Against Women

The Office on Violence Against Women (OVW) is a component of the U.S. Department of Justice. Created in 1995, OVW implements the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) and subsequent legislation and provides national leadership against domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking. Since its inception, the Office has launched a multifaceted approach to responding to these crimes. By forging state, local and tribal partnerships among police, prosecutors, the judiciary, victim advocates, health care providers, faith leaders, and others, OVW grants help provide victims with the protection and services they need to pursue safe and healthy lives and enable communities to hold offenders accountable.

Letter of Intent

All applicants who intend to apply for FY 2006 funding under this program are encouraged to submit a non-binding letter of intent, (please see Appendix [insert appropriate letter]), to OVW by [insert date]. You may fax the letter to OVW at [insert fax number]. OVW will use these letters to forecast the number of peer review panels needed to review competitive applications.

Application Due Date

Please note that final applications are due by 5:30 pm (EST) [insert date], and will be accepted only through Grants.gov, an e-Government initiative that is included in the President's Management Agenda. Please note that Grants.gov is not the Grants Management System (GMS) that OVW applicants have submitted applications to in previous years. Applicants should register with Grants.gov by [Insert date]. First-time registering will take up to one week to be validated and confirmed and for you to receive your user names and passwords. In addition, an original hard copy must be sent to Aspen Systems Corporation via overnight delivery not later than [insert date]. We strongly recommend that you use a trackable shipping method which will allow you to confirm the delivery of your application. Applications should retain proof of timely submission.

Activities that May Compromise Victim Safety

Ensuring victim safety is the guiding principle underlying this Program. Experience has shown that certain practices may compromise victim safety rather than enhance it. Certain responses by the authorities may have the effect of minimizing or trivializing the offender's criminal behavior. Accordingly, consistent with the goals of ensuring victim safety while holding perpetrators accountable for their criminal conduct, applicants are strongly discouraged from proposing projects that include any activities that may compromise victim safety such as the following:

- [Insert program specific activities]

Review Process

[NOTE: This section is not needed for STOP Formula and State Coalitions]

All applications will be subject to internal review by OVW staff and peer review and will be scored according to the criteria set forth in this solicitation. If the application fails to meet the criteria listed below for the initial internal review, the application will not receive further consideration. If applications that are partially beyond the scope of the program are sent to peer review, only those sections of the application that are within scope will be reviewed. Criteria for the initial internal review follow:

- Whether the application is complete;
- Whether the proposed activities are within the scope of the program (see page [insert page number]);
- Whether all statutory eligibility criteria are met (see page [insert page number]);
- [If applicable: Whether the minimum requirements for the program are met (see page [insert page number])];
- [If applicable: Whether the certification requirements for the program are met (see page [insert page number])];
- Whether the application proposes significant activities that may compromise victim safety (see page [insert page number])];

DOJ_NMG_ 0147920

- Whether the proposed budget is within the established limits (see page [insert page number])];

In addition, applications for continuation funding will be reviewed for prior compliance with Program and Office requirements and the status of current grant-funded activities. (See page [insert page number] for further details on criteria for this review.)

OVW will establish panels of experts and practitioners to review applications. [Insert language about tribal applications if appropriate.] Each panel will review the information provided in the application against the selection criteria for the program. Following peer review, a second internal review will consider the geographic distribution of the applications for a national and statewide perspective, the ratio of population to services, the existence of underserved communities, and the type of projects already funded within an applicant's state or community. The total points possible for an application are 100 (65 points for Narrative, 15 points for Budget, and 20 points for the MOU [use EMOU, IMOU, and/or MOE as applicable]. Applications with the highest composite scores will be considered for funding.

Application Content

Applicants must complete each of the following sections as part of their proposals. It is the responsibility of the applicant to ensure the application is complete. OVW will remove the application from consideration prior to peer review if the application is incomplete. For each section listed below, please note the corresponding maximum point value that may be assigned during the review process. The proposal should follow the order below for easy reading. Please be sure to number each page of the application. Please note that incomplete applications may not be considered for funding. Peer reviewers will not receive materials submitted beyond those required by this solicitation.

Applications must use the following page format requirements:

- Double spaced (except for the Summary Data Sheet and Abstract which should be single spaced)
- 8 ½ x 11 inch paper
- One inch margins
- Type no smaller than 12 point, Times New Roman font
- No more than one page each for Summary Data Sheet and Abstract
- No more than 5 pages for Status of the Project (if applicable)
- No more than 20 pages for the Project Narrative
- Include your application number on every page and all attachments

Peer reviewers will not review applications exceeding the page limits, or their equivalent.

The following will be submitted online through Grants.gov.

DUNS Number

DOJ_NMG_ 0147921

A Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number must be included in every application for a new award or renewal of an award. The DUNS number will be entered into Grants.gov by the applicant. An application will not be considered complete until a valid DUNS number is provided by the applicant. Individual persons who receive a grant or cooperative agreement from the Federal government are exempt from this requirement.

Applicants can receive a DUNS number at no cost by calling the dedicated toll-free DUNS Number request line at 1-800-333-0505.

If you have any questions about the DUNS number requirement, please contact the Office of the Comptroller's Customer Service Center at 1-800-458-0786.

Application for Federal Assistance (SF-424)

The SF-424 will be filled out online through Grants.gov. However, it should also be printed out and included in the hard copy that it submitted. The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance number for this program is [Insert number] (block 10). The cognizant Federal audit agency and fiscal year of the applicant organization should be listed in block 11 of the form. Please be sure that the amount requested matches the amount in the submitted budget.

Applicants must ensure that the information for the authorizing official and alternate contact is filled out correctly. The authorizing official is the individual authorized to accept grant funds on behalf of the jurisdiction or non-governmental private entity applying. If the individual applying online is not the authorizing official, that individual must list the authorizing official's name and contact information where appropriate.

Standard Assurances and Certifications Regarding Lobbying; Debarment, Suspension, and Other Responsibility Matters; and Drug-Free Workplace Requirements (Form 4061/6)

Review the assurances and certification forms. Agreement to these assurances and certifications will be assumed upon receipt of an application received through Grants.gov. NOTE: If the authorizing official is not the individual submitting the application via Grants.gov, be sure the correct authorizing official information has been entered.

The following will be submitted as attachments in Grants.gov. Please save your attachments with names that indicate the substance of the attachment (e.g. save your program narrative as "Program Narrative").

Summary Data Sheet

[Insert program specific information] Is the applicant organization a faith-based entity? Are one or more of the applicant's MOU partners faith-based organizations? If so, please list each one and the amount of program funding they will receive.

Abstract/Proposal Summary:

[Insert program specific information]

DOJ_NMG_ 0147922

Status of the Current Project: [Do not include this section for STOP or State Coalitions]. Applicants for continuation funding only. This section will be used for internal review only. The application may receive a deduction in points based on the criteria listed below. This section should be provided on a separate page as it is a separate section from the program narrative and does not count toward the page limits of the narrative. State what has been accomplished with previous funding under the [Insert program], including the following:

- A description of the goals and objectives from the prior grant period and a brief discussion of the status of the existing project:
- The status of any project products;
- Any unanticipated obstacles to project implementation.

This section should be as clear and succinct as possible.

Current projects will be rated by OVW using the following criteria:

- Whether progress reports submitted by the applicant, in conjunction with monitoring conducted by OVW, demonstrate the effectiveness of the current project, indicating progress toward meeting project goals and objectives, and demonstrate that the current project has progressed in a timely manner as outlined in the original proposal;
- Whether the grantee has demonstrated that past activities supported with [Insert program] funds have been limited to program Purpose Areas;
- Whether the grantee has complied with all special conditions of its existing grant award from the Department of Justice;
- Whether the grantee has adhered to programmatic and financial reporting requirements;
- Whether the grantee has completed the project goals, objectives, and products according to the approved time line;
- Whether the grantee has demonstrated a commitment to sustaining the project after federal funds are no longer available;
- Whether the grantee appropriately utilized and actively participated in OVW-sponsored workshops and other technical assistance events as required by a special condition of the current award;
- Whether the grantee has received financial clearances on all current grants from DOJ;
- Whether the grantee has complied with the Office of Management and Budget audit requirement;
- How much funding is remaining in the current award.

Project Narrative:

The narrative should include the following (totaling 65 [This should be 85 for Tribal Coalitions] points): [NOTE: For STOP and State Coalitions, leave out point values]

Need for the Project: 10 points

[Insert program specific information]

DOJ_NMG_ 0147923

What Will be Done: 40 points
[Insert program specific information]

Who Will Implement the Project: 10 [30 For Tribal Coalitions] points
[Insert program specific information]

Sustainability Plan: 5 points [Not included for STOP or State Coalitions]
Because this is a competitive, discretionary program, there is no guarantee of continuation funding. Applicants are required to include a plan describing their commitment and capacity to continue the project if Federal funding through the [Insert program] were no longer available.

The plan will be evaluated on whether it proposes feasible strategies to preserve project activities long-term. Continuation or supplemental funding is not guaranteed and applicants are encouraged to seek additional means of support to sustain their current projects.

Budget Detail Worksheet and Narrative: 15 Points
Each application must include a detailed budget and budget narrative for the project. The budget must be complete, reasonable, and cost-effective in relation to the proposed project. The budget should provide the basis for the computation of all project-related costs. It should cover the cost of all components of the project. There must be a clear link between the proposed activities and the proposed budget items. The budget should include only those activities, products, and resources that are necessary for project implementation and discussed in the project narrative.

In developing the budget, applicants should fairly compensate all project partners for their participation in any project-related activities, including but not limited to compensation for time and travel expenses to attend or provide project development, training, and implementation. The budget must include compensation for all services rendered by project partners, including nonprofit, nongovernmental domestic violence and/or sexual assault victim services programs and state and tribal domestic violence and/or sexual assault coalitions.

Budget Caps
[Insert program specific information]

OVW has the discretion to make grants for greater or lesser amounts than requested and to negotiate the scope of work and budget with applicants prior to award of a grant.

[If appropriate (STOP, STOP VAIW, and Coalitions), insert section on match here]

Budget requirements
The following is a short list of budget guidelines:

- Applicants are strongly discouraged from requesting consultant rates in excess of $450 per day because they require prior approval from the Director of the Office on Violence Against Women.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147924

- Applicants may not allocate any funds for building renovations. This includes such seemingly minor things as painting or carpeting.

- [Do not include this for STOP, STOP VAIW, and the Coalition Programs. Instead add a separate section on match as indicated above] A contribution of non-Federal dollars ("match") is not required for this program, but applicants are encouraged to maximize the impact of federal dollars by contributing to the costs of their projects. Supplemental contributions may be cash, in-kind services, or a combination of both. Any non-Federal contributions can be discussed in the project narrative; however, these supplemental contributions should not be included in the budget or budget narrative.

- All applicants are required to allocate funds ([Insert appropriate amount]), to support travel costs associated with technical assistance and capacity-building activities sponsored by OVW-designated technical assistance providers. Applications selected for funding which do not include the entire recommended amount will not receive additional funds for this purpose, but will be required to adjust their budgets to cover these costs prior to final approval of the proposal. This required amount must be included in the "travel" category. Please provide an estimated breakdown for this amount (include the number of trips, number of travelers, airfare or mileage, lodging, per diem, etc.). These funds are to be used only for OVW-designated technical assistance unless otherwise approved by OVW. Travel funds should be used to support travel by all partners, including nonprofit, nongovernmental victim services providers.

- Applicants are also encouraged to include funds in their budgets to attend Financial Management Training Seminars sponsored by OJP's Office of the Comptroller. These seminars instruct participants in the financial administration of OJP and OVW formula and discretionary grant programs. A schedule listing the financial training seminars is available at www.ojp.usdoj.gov/oc/fmts.htm.

A Sample Budget Detail Worksheet is included in Appendix [Insert letter] of this solicitation. The budget and budget narrative should be submitted online as one attachment. When preparing these items, please use the Budget Detail Worksheet as a guide and be sure to include all necessary budget categories. The budget should clearly describe the proposed amounts and uses of grant funds for the duration of the grant period and how the amounts of the specific budget items were determined.

The following can be submitted either via fax to [Insert fax number], or electronically through Grants.gov. Please be sure to include your application number prominently on the cover sheet and all pages of the fax.

Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) [EMOU, IMOU, and MOE can also be included here if appropriate. Leave this out for Tribal Coalitions.]: 20 points

[Insert program specific information]

The MOU should be a single document that includes signatures and dates from all partners.

Letter of Nonsupplanting
Applicants must submit a letter to OVW's Director, Diane M. Stuart, certifying that Federal funds will not be used to supplant State or local funds should a grant award be made. This letter must be faxed to [Insert fax number] or electronically scanned and submitted as an attachment via Grants.gov. If faxed, the application number must be prominently included on the fax cover page as well as the letter. Please refer to Appendix [Insert letter] for a sample letter.

Financial Capability Questionnaire
[Insert the following section, if appropriate:] All nonprofit, nongovernmental organizations that apply for funding with OVW that have not previously (or within the last 3 years) received funding from OVW or OJP must complete a Financial Capability Questionnaire. The form can be found at http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/oc. Please fax this form to [Insert number] and include the application number predominantly on the cover page and on each page of the form. When submitting your application, please make sure that your current year's audit report has been submitted to the Federal Audit Clearinghouse, Bureau of the Census, 1201 East 10th Street, Jacksonville, IN 47132.

Indirect Cost Rate Agreement [Leave out for STOP]
If your organization is requesting indirect costs for this project, please include a copy of your current, signed indirect cost rate agreement.

[Insert other program specific sections of the application in the appropriate application content section (i.e. on Grants.gov, attachment, or fax)]

Additional Program Requirements

Technical Assistance
[Insert program specific information]

Performance Measurement
There are two [Change this to "three" for STOP, Campus, and Safe Havens] statutory requirements that require OVW grantees to collect and maintain data that measures the effectiveness of the funded projects. First, the Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 (GPRA) requires agencies to report on the results of government programs and activities. Second, the Violence Against Women Act of 2000 mandates that all OVW grant recipients report on the effectiveness of their programs. [For STOP, Safe Havens, and Campus, add a description of the third requirement – see Jen Kaplan for language)] To address these statutory requirements, OVW has developed a(n) [Insert program] semi-annual Progress Report that requests specific data on grantee activities. Information that grantees must collect for this progress report includes:

[Insert program specific information. You may want to check with Jen Kaplan or Marylouise Kelley to make sure you have the most current measures.]

Reporting Requirements

DOJ_NMG_ 0147926

Grantees will be required to submit quarterly Financial Status Reports and semi-annual Progress Reports. In addition, grant recipients who expend $500,000 or more in Federal funds during their fiscal year are required to submit a single organization-wide audit. Additional information on these reporting requirements will be provided to successful applicants in the award package.

OJP Financial Guide

All grantees are required to comply with the regulations and requirements outlined in the OJP Financial Guide. The Financial Guide includes information on allowable costs, methods of payment, audit requirements, accounting systems, and financial records. Copies are available from the Department of Justice Response Center (1-800-421-6770) and also through the OJP web page: http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/FinGuide.

Suspension or Termination of Funding

OVW may suspend funding in whole or in part, terminate funding, or impose another sanction on a recipient who has failed to comply substantially with the following:

- The requirements of VAWA and statutory objectives of [Insert program];
- Timely submission of quarterly Financial Status Reports;
- Timely submission of semi-annual Progress Reports;
- The regulations and/or guidelines issued for the [Insert program] and any other regulations applicable to OVW grantees; or
- The application submitted in accordance with the provisions of VAWA or any other applicable federal Act.

OVW will provide reasonable notice of its intent to impose sanctions and will attempt informally to resolve the problem. Hearing and appeal procedures will follow those in the Department of Justice regulations at 28 CFR Part 18. References to the Office of Justice Programs and its components are deemed to refer to the Office on Violence Against Women. The responsible agency official, as defined by 28 CFR § 18.3(h), is the Director, Office on Violence Against Women.

Single Point of Contact Review

Executive Order 12372 requires applicants from State and local units of government or other organizations providing services with a State to submit a copy of the application to the State Single Point of Contact (SPOC) if one exists, and if this program has been selected for review of the State. Applicants must contact the State SPOC to determine if the program has been selected for State review. The date that the application was sent to the SPOC or the reason such submission is not required should be indicated on the Form SF-424. The list of SPOCs can be found at: http://www.whitehouse.gov/omb/grants/spoc.html.

Faith-Based Organizations

Consistent with President Bush Executive Order 13279, December 12, 2002, and 28 CFR Part 38, it is OVW policy that faith-based and community organizations, that statutorily qualify as eligible applicants under OVW programs, are invited and encouraged to apply for assistance awards. Faith-based and community organizations will be considered for awards on the same basis as other eligible applicants and, if they receive assistance awards, will be treated on an equal basis with non faith-based and community organization grantees in the administration of such awards. No eligible applicant or grantee will be discriminated against on the basis of its religious character or affiliation, religious name, or the religious composition of its board of directors or persons working in the organization.

Civil Rights Compliance

All recipients of Federal grant funds are required to comply with nondiscrimination requirements contained in various Federal laws. In the event that a court or administrative agency makes a finding of discrimination on grounds of race, color, religion, national origin, gender, disability, or age against a recipient of funds after a due process hearing, the recipient must agree to forward a copy of the finding to the Office for Civil Rights of OJP. All applicants should consult the Assurances required with the application funds to understand the applicable legal and administrative requirements.

Services to Limited-English-Proficient (LEP) Persons:

National origin discrimination includes discrimination on the basis of limited English proficiency (LEP). To ensure compliance with Title VI and the Safe Streets Act, recipients are required to take reasonable steps to ensure that LEP persons have meaningful access to their programs. Meaningful access may entail providing language assistance services, including interpretation and translation services, where necessary. Grantees are encouraged to consider the need for language services for LEP persons served or encountered both in developing their proposals and budgets and in conducting their programs and activities. Reasonable costs associated with providing meaningful access for LEP individuals are considered allowable program costs. The U.S. Department of Justice has issued guidance for grantees to assist them in complying with Title VI requirements. The guidance document can be accessed on the Internet at www.lep.gov or by contacting the Office of Justice Program's Office for Civil Rights at (202) 307-0690, or by writing to the following address:

Anti-Lobbying Act

In 2002, the Anti-Lobbying Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1913, was amended to expand significantly the restriction on use of appropriated funding for lobbying. This expansion also makes the anti-lobbying restrictions enforceable via large civil penalties, with civil fines between $10,000 and $100,000 per each individual occurrence of lobbying activity. These restrictions are in addition to the anti-lobbying and lobbying disclosure restrictions imposed by 31 U.S.C. § 1352. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is currently in the process of amending the OMB cost circulars and the common rule (codified at 28 C.F.R. part 69 for DOJ grantees) to reflect these modifications. However, in the interest of full disclosure, all applicants must understand that no federally-appropriated funding made available under this grant program may be used, either directly or indirectly, to support the enactment, repeal, modification or adoption of any law, regulation, or policy, at any level of government, without the express approval of OVW. Any violation of this prohibition is subject to a minimum $10,000 fine for each occurrence. This prohibition applies to all activity, even if currently allowed within the parameters of the existing OMB circulars.

How To Apply

Applicants must submit a fully executed application to OVW through Grants.gov, including all required supporting documentation. Faxed applications will not be accepted. However, certain supporting documentation may be submitted to Grants.gov via fax as described below. Applications submitted via Grants.gov must be in the following work processing formats: Microsoft Word (.doc), PDF files, (.pdf) or Text Documents (.txt). (Please refer to Appendix [Insert letter], the Step-by-Step Guide to Grants.gov.)

The following documents must be submitted via Grants.gov:

- The SF-424;
- Standard Assurances and Certifications Regarding Lobbying; Debarment, Suspension and Other Responsibility Matters; and Drug Free Workplace Requirements;
- the project abstract and project narrative; and
- the budget, budget summary, and budget narrative.

Note: The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance number for the [Insert Program is [Insert number].

Supporting documentation can be submitted either via fax to [Insert fax number], or electronically through Grants.gov, and should include:

- Letter of nonsupplanting
- An MOU [Insert EMOU, IMOU, and/or MOE as applicable and delete this for Tribal Coalitions]
- A current Indirect Cost Rate Agreement (if applicable)
- [Insert any other program specific attachments]

The application number must be prominently included on the cover page of all faxes, as well as each page of the faxed documents. Detailed instructions on how to use the Grants.gov system to submit your application online are available at OVW's web page, www.ojp.usdoj.gov/vawo. Also, a toll-free telephone number has been established for you to receive technical assistance as you work through the online application process, 1-888-549-9901.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147929

To help expedite the peer review process, applicants must send via overnight delivery a complete hard-copy original of the application, postmarked by [Insert date] to:
Aspen Systems Corporation
OVW [Insert program name]
Mail Stop 2K
2277 Research Boulevard
Rockville, MD 20850
(301) 519-5000

A complete application must include the following:

- SF 424
- Standard Assurances and Certifications Regarding Lobbying; Debarment, Suspension and Other Responsibility Matters; and Drug Free Workplace Requirements;
- the project abstract, project narrative, and for continuation applicants, the status of the project;
- the budget, budget summary, and budget narrative.
- Letter of nonsupplanting
- An MOU [Insert EMOU, IMOU, and/or MOE as applicable and delete this for Tribal Coalitions]
- A current Indirect Cost Rate Agreement (if applicable)
- [Insert any other program specific attachments]

Applicants that fail to submit the required hard copy original will not be considered for funding.

Application Due Date
Application must be electronically received by the close of business (5:30 p.m. EST) on [Insert date]. The application attachments (e.g., MOU, Letter of Non-Supplanting, etc) that may be faxed to [Insert fax number] or submitted through Grants.gov as attachments must be received by 5:30 p.m. EST on [Insert date]. The hard copy original must be sent to OVW c/o Aspen Systems Corporation at the address provided above via overnight delivery not later than [Insert date]. Applicants should retain proof of timely submission.

We recommend that you register through Grants.gov at least three weeks before the application due date, or no later than [Insert date]. All applicants must receive confirmation of eligibility that they are eligible to submit an application through Grants.gov prior to completing the application submission process.

Detainee Legislation

I. Potential Amendments to the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006, S. 1042

- SA 1494 (Levin) -- Proposal to establish an independent commission on policies and practices on treatment of detainees.

- SA 1505 (Graham) – codifies POTUS' authority to utilize CSRTs and ARBs in Guantanamo Bay, using procedures in effect as of July 1, 2005 except: (1) to the extent practicable, the CSRT shall determine, by a preponderance of the evidence, whether statements derived from persons held in foreign custody were obtained without undue coercion; (2) creates a Senate-confirmed Designated Civilian Official.

- SA 1556 (McCain, Warner, Graham, Collins) -- No individual in the custody or under the physical control of the United States Government, regardless of nationality or physical location, shall be subject to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment (as defined by U.S. Reservations, Declarations and Understandings to CAT). President may waive on a case-by-case basis if required for a military or national security necessity and submits timely notice to appropriate Congressional committees.

- SA 1557 (McCain, Warner, Graham, Collins) -- No person in the custody or under the effective control of DoD or under detention in a DoD facility shall be subject to any treatment or technique of interrogation not authorized by and listed in the US Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation (in current form or future revised version). Army Field Manual cannot include technique that constitutes torture, or cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws or treaties of the United States.

- SA 1566 (Warner) -- The Secretary of Defense shall establish uniform standards and procedures for the detention and interrogation of persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense, which shall be consistent with U.S. law and international treaty obligations.

- SA __ (unnumbered amendment) (Specter) – Unprivileged Combatant Act of 2005 creates discretionary authority to the President to employ procedures for detainees (field tribunal, classification tribunals and military commissions) and if these procedures are adopted, unprivileged combatants may not challenge their detention in U.S. courts via habeas corpus or any other statute.

House Bills:

- H.R. __ (unnumbered bill) (Rep. Adam Schiff D-CA) – "Guantanamo Detainees Procedures Act of 2005" affirms the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, enables person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

- Unnumbered Draft of "Antiterrorism Detentions and Interrogations Procedures Act" (7/26/05 Rep. Jane Harman D-CA): Mandates detention of detainees in U.S. Provides detainee with Common Article 3 protection. Gives detainee the right to challenge detention in U.S. courts. Gives detainee right to trial "as soon as possible"—within 2 years of detention or must be released. Trial for violation of Law of Armed Conflict must be before U.S. Courts Martial. Interrogation techniques limited to current Army FM 34-52. Provides private cause of action in U.S. courts.

Neil,
I would appreciate if you could put me in touch with someone at DOJ who can advise on the intellectual property issues that might arise from Mrs. Bush using the theme "All Things Bright and Beautiful" for the White House Christmas Visitor's Guide. The theme would be a part various White House Christmas materials. This phrase comes from a well-known hymn, but is also the title of a book by James Herriot that is currently in publication. I appreciate your assistance with this.

Robert -- I missed you Friday but wanted to let you know that I have decided to leave the Administration in October to return to the private sector. You may have already heard that from Judge or others, but I did want to reach out directly to you and let you know. It is tough to leave, as it is the honor of a lifetime to serve in President Bush's administration, especially with the Judge, and here at DOJ this has been the most exciting and interesting job of my life, with superb colleagues, you prominent among those. Nonetheless, the time comes for each of us to return to the private sector -- and for me, the combination of my coming up on the 3-year mark in the Administration, plus a great opportunity presenting itself (it's a GC job), led me to decide that this is the right time for me. It has been an enormous privilege to work with you and observe + learn from your great judgment, legal acumen, and steady demeanor. I look forward to our last couple of weeks working as colleagues, and to continuing our friendship in the years to come.
With respect and appreciation -- from a Deerfield man to a Choate man, Ted will not be able to make it after all to the symposium. He laments not being able to attend very much as this was of great interest to him. In his stead, Neil Gorsuch, Principal Deputy Associate Attorney General, is ready to appear and deliver remarks (unless, Paul, you feel that you should address the symposium in Robert's place). Neil M. Gorsuch is Principal Deputy to the Associate Attorney General. The Office of the Associate Attorney General is responsible for overseeing the Antitrust, Civil, Civil Rights, Environment and Natural Resources, and Tax Divisions of the Department of Justice. It also advises and assists the Attorney General in formulating and implementing departmental policies and programs pertaining to a broad range of civil justice, federal and local law enforcement, and public safety matters.

Prior to joining the Department of Justice, Mr. Gorsuch was a partner at the Washington, D.C. firm of Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd, Evans & Figel, PLLC, where he specialized in complex trial and appellate litigation. Mr. Gorsuch is a former clerk to Justice Byron R. White and Justice Anthony M. Kennedy of the U.S. Supreme Court, and to Judge David B. Sentelle of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit.

Mr. Gorsuch holds a doctorate from Oxford University (Marshall Scholar), a law degree from Harvard Law School (cum laude, Harry S. Truman Scholar), and an undergraduate degree from Columbia University (Phi Beta Kappa, Class Marshal, Nachems Society). Mr. Gorsuch is a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations and has published and spoken widely on a variety of legal issues. A native of Colorado, he is married to the former Louise Burletson of Henley-on-Thames, England, and they have two daughters, Emma (6) and Belinda (3).

U.S. Department of Justice
National EEO & Diversity Symposium 2005
Tuesday, September 20, 2005

DOJ_NMG_ 0147962

Good afternoon. Thank you Dr. Corts for that kind introduction.

I want to thank Ted McBurrows (Director of DOJ Equal Employment Opportunity Office) and all involved in putting together this great event. For those who do not know me, I am Robert McCallum's principal deputy in the Associate Attorney General's office.

I bring you greetings from Attorney General Alberto Gonzales, as well as from Mr. McCallum. I know that both of these men care deeply and personally about the issues you are discussing and honor the work you do for the Department and the cause of justice.

In their view, EEO efforts are integral to the Department's success.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147963

Indeed, the Department's overall mission of defending freedom has no place for those who would exclude on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, age, or disability. As an institution charged with enforcing federal laws prohibiting discrimination in employment and upholding justice, we must lead by example.

We are at our best when we can say with confidence that equal treatment and individual merit are the guiding lights of our employment actions. I know we all take this mission to heart.

The Department of Justice employs over 102,000 men and women across the country and around the world. Our mission truly depends on our ability to attract, develop, and retain a competitive and highly qualified workforce. Equal opportunity serves this goal by promoting open and fair competition in the Federal workplace. It also ensures that law enforcement reflects the community we serve.

I am proud to be able to say that the Department has had a significant level of success in attracting a diverse team of employees committed to defending freedom while preserving justice for all Americans.

Over the past decade the Department has seen an increase in the total percentage of minorities employed. By the close of fiscal year 2004, that number rose to 30,311 – or fully 30% of the DOJ workforce.

*** * ***

We must continue to ensure that recruitment and hiring processes reach qualified applicants and that individuals are considered fairly. Many of the DOJ bureaus and components represented here today have taken steps to reach and retain qualified applicants of all backgrounds.

As part of our nation wide recruiting efforts we have made employment presentations at Historically Black Colleges, and also at universities serving large Hispanic student bodies. We have also engaged in substantial outreach and recruitment initiatives through national minority and women organizations.

Our employment and retention efforts are also enhanced by the promotion of a culture of equality and merit within our walls. As an agency, therefore, we continue to work together to ensure that allegations of discrimination are addressed in accordance with federal law and regulations.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147966

Even just a few instances of discrimination can have a harmful effect on morale, negatively impact our ability to retain valuable employees, and undermine a productive work environment.

Last fiscal year, 1,616 persons sought assistance from a DOJ EEO professional. While this number is never low enough, it represents less than 2% of the Department's total workforce.

Of that total number, 610 persons, or 37%, filed a formal EEO complaint. This means that 63% of these matters were resolved informally. I am gratified to see this high rate of informal resolution, which testifies to the skills, dedication, and hard work of many of you in this room today.

*** * ***

Over the past several years, we have worked steadily to implement the President's Management Agenda which enumerates many goals, including the strategic management of our human resources and talent.

Consistent with this goal, on February 5, 2003, the Department announced a series of initiatives to strengthen our attorney workforce by intensifying outreach to individuals from a wide variety of racial, ethnic, economic, and geographic backgrounds.

As a result of these initiatives, the Department has:

- Instituted a policy requiring that all attorney openings are posted on the Internet and Intranet, ensuring that potential candidates throughout the country have access to available attorney positions;

DOJ_NMG_ 0147968

- Implemented and expanded e-transmission applications for Attorney General's Honors Program and Summer Law Intern Program;
- Developed a Mentor Program for all new Honors Program attorneys in the fall of 2003 and expanded this Program to include all new attorneys in the litigating divisions in fall 2004. The program sponsors formal, as well as informal, inter- and intra-departmental networking events. The program will be expanded to the United States Attorneys' Offices in fall 2005;
- Implemented the Attorney Student Loan Repayment Program (ASLRP), designed to retain employees in key positions and to encourage new hires to remain at the Department by reducing the burden of qualified student loan debt.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147969

- In the last two years, the Department issued student loan repayments to 115 attorneys, almost a third of which have gone to minority employees.
- This year, the Department received 147 new applications

- The Department has also developed an Exit Survey which is distributed to all voluntarily departing attorneys to gather information that can help us increase retention within our existing attorney workforce;
- It has conducted diversity training for over 300 attorney managers and supervisors.

Made annual presentations at more than 60 law schools across the country in an outreach effort designed to educate law students about the benefits of a career at the Department of Justice.

DOJ_NMG_ 0147970

We are all committed to developing and maintaining a highly qualified and diverse work force to enhance the integrity and performance of the Department of Justice. Each of you play an important role in ensuring that the Department continues to perform its mission in a way that inspires the confidence of all Americans.

Thank you all for having me here today and for putting together this symposium. On behalf of the Attorney General and Acting Deputy Attorney General, I want to thank each of you for your commitment to the EEO mission and for your dedication to the work of the Justice Department and to the work of justice itself.

HR 3038 IH

109th CONGRESS
1st Session
H. R. 3038

To affirm the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, to enable a person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

June 22, 2005

Mr. SCHIFF (for himself, Mr. UDALL of Colorado, and Mr. OWENS) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

---

A BILL

To affirm the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, to enable a person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the `Guantanamo Detainees Procedures Act of 2005'.

SEC. 2. AUTHORITY OF EXECUTIVE BRANCH TO DETAIN PERSONS COVERED BY THIS ACT AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANTS.

(a) Finding- Congress finds that the executive branch has authority to detain persons covered by this Act as unlawful combatants.
(b) Persons Covered by This Act- In this Act, the term `person covered by this Act' means an individual who--
(1) is accused of knowingly--
(A) planning, authorizing, committing, aiding, or abetting one or more terrorist acts against the United States; or

(B) being part of or supporting forces engaged in armed conflict against the United States;

(2) is not a United States person or lawful permanent resident; and

(3) is not a prisoner of war within the meaning of the Geneva Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, done on August 12, 1949.

SEC. 3. RIGHT OF PERSON DETAINED AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANT OR ON SIMILAR BASIS TO CHALLENGE THAT BASIS.

(a) In General- Whenever the United States detains a person covered by this Act on the basis of a determination that the person can be detained as an unlawful combatant or can be detained on any similar basis, the person is entitled to a hearing under this section as expeditiously as practicable but not later than 6 months after the date on which the United States first made the determination.

(b) Requirements for Hearing- A hearing required by subsection (a) must meet the following requirements:

(1) The hearing officer is an active member of one of the Courts of Criminal Appeals of the Armed Forces.

(2) The hearing officer has authority to decide de novo whether the basis of a determination under subsection (a) is valid and to grant appropriate relief if the hearing officer decides that the basis is invalid.

(3) The hearing officer is impartial in fact, and is in a position independent from--

(A) the individuals who first determined that the person can be detained; and

(B) the individuals on whose orders the person is being detained.

(4) The person is provided with access to the evidence that tends to support the determination that the person can be detained.

(5) The person is provided with an opportunity to address the hearing officer, and is provided with an interpreter for that purpose.

(c) Administrative Review- The Secretary of Defense shall conduct administrative review of the activities of a hearing officer under this section.

SEC. 4. RIGHT OF PERSON DETAINED TO DISPOSITION WITHIN 2 YEARS.

(a) In General- Whenever the United States detains a person covered by this Act on the basis of a determination that the person can be detained as an unlawful combatant or can be detained on any similar basis, the person is entitled to a disposition under this section not later than 2 years after the date on which the United States first made the determination.

(b) Requirements for Disposition- A disposition under this section is any one of the following:

(1) Repatriation to the governing authority in the area in which the person was first detained or the person's country of origin, except where there are substantial grounds to believe that the person would be in danger of being subjected to torture.

(2) The commencement, by formal charges, of prosecution in an appropriate court, which may include an extraordinary tribunal under section 5 of this Act, an international criminal tribunal, or a district court of the United States.

(c) Extension-

(1) CERTIFICATION- The period required by subsection (a) for the repatriation of the person or the commencement of formal charges may be extended if the Secretary of Defense certifies, in writing, with respect to the person that the Secretary of Defense has determined that the person is a continuing threat to the national security of the United States due to a likelihood that the person will undertake terrorist or belligerent acts against the United States based on the person's past conduct, level of authority within the group or organization, statement and actions during confinement, age and health, psychological profile, and other pertinent factors, and the repatriation of the person or the commencement of formal charges will compromise the national security of the United States by curtailing intelligence gathering from the person, jeopardize intelligence sources necessary to prosecute the person, or other extraordinary circumstances justify the extension.

(2) DETAILED BASIS- A certification under this subsection must include a detailed account of the factual basis for that determination.

(3) ACCESS TO CERTIFICATION- A person covered by a certification under this subsection is entitled to an unclassified copy of the certification.

(4) DURATION OF CERTIFICATION- A certification under this subsection is effective for not more than 1 year. The Secretary may make successive certifications with respect to a person so long as each additional certification is made while an imminent threat to national security continues to be posed by the group or organization in which the person is a member or by other persons associated with, or acting on behalf of, the group, organization, or person.

(5) JUDICIAL REVIEW- The United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces shall provide judicial review with respect to any issue under this subsection, including whether the determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) is justified by the factual basis under paragraph (2).

SEC. 5. EXTRAORDINARY TRIBUNALS.

(a) Authority- The President is hereby authorized to establish tribunals for the trial of persons covered by this Act.

(b) Jurisdiction- Tribunals established under subsection (a) may adjudicate violations of the law of war, international laws of armed conflict, and crimes against humanity targeted against United States persons or residents.

(c) Authority to Establish Procedural Rules- The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General, shall prescribe and publish in the Federal Register, and report to the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the rules of evidence and procedure that are to apply to tribunals established under subsection (a).

SEC. 6. PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General- The rules prescribed for a tribunal under section 5(c) shall be designed to ensure a full and fair hearing of the charges against the accused. The rules shall require the following:

(1) That the tribunal be independent and impartial.

(2) That the accused be notified of the particulars of the offense charged or alleged without delay.

(3) That the proceedings be made simultaneously intelligible for participants not conversant in the English language by translation or interpretation.

(4) That the evidence supporting each alleged offense be given to the accused, except as provided in subsection (d).

(5) That the accused have the opportunity to be present at trial.

(6) That the accused have a right to be represented by counsel.

(7) That the accused have the opportunity--

(A) to respond to the evidence supporting each alleged offense;

(B) to obtain exculpatory evidence from the prosecution; and

(C) to present exculpatory evidence.

(8) That the accused have the opportunity to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses and to offer witnesses.

(9) That the proceeding and disposition be expeditious.

(10) That the tribunal apply reasonable rules of evidence designed to ensure admission only of reliable information or material with probative value.

(11) That the accused be afforded all necessary means of defense before and after the trial.

(12) That conviction of an alleged offense not be based upon an act, offense, or omission that was not an offense under law when it was committed.

(13) That the penalty for an offense not be greater than it was when the offense was committed.

(14) That the accused--

(A) be presumed innocent until proven guilty, and

(B) not be found guilty except upon proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

(15) That the accused not be compelled to confess guilt or testify against himself.

(16) That, subject to subsections (c) and (d), the trial be open and public and include public availability of the transcripts of the trial and the pronouncement of judgment.

(17) That a convicted person be informed of remedies and appeals and the time limits for the exercise of the person's rights to the remedies and appeals under the rules.

(18) That a preliminary proceeding be held within 30 days of detention to determine whether there is jurisdiction under section 4 over the person and the offenses charged. The preliminary proceeding may be continued for an additional 30 days for good cause shown.

(19) That the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus under title 28, United States Code, or under any other provision of law not be infringed.

(20) That the tribunal be comprised of a military judge and not less than five members.

(b) Imposition of the Death Penalty- The requirements of the Uniform Code of Military Justice for the imposition of the death penalty shall apply in any case in which a tribunal established under section 5 is requested to adjudge the death penalty.

(c) Public Proceedings- Any proceedings conducted by a tribunal established under section 5, and the proceedings on any appeal of an action of the tribunal, shall be accessible to the public consistent with any demonstrable necessity to secure the safety of observers, witnesses, tribunal judges, counsel, or other persons.

(d) Confidentiality of Evidence- Evidence available from an agency of the Federal Government that is offered in a trial by a tribunal established under section 5 may be kept secret from the public only when the head of the agency personally certifies in writing that disclosure will cause--

(1) identifiable harm to the prosecution of military objectives;

(2) significant, identifiable harm to intelligence sources or methods; or

(3) substantial risk that such evidence could be used for planning future terrorist attacks.

(e) Review-

(1) PROCEDURES REQUIRED- The Secretary of Defense shall provide for prompt review of convictions by tribunals established under section 5 to ensure that the procedural requirements of a full and fair hearing have been met and that the evidence reasonably supports the convictions.

(2) UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES- The procedures established under paragraph (1) shall, at a minimum, allow for review of the proceedings of the tribunals, and the convictions and sentences of such tribunals, by the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces established under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

(3) SUPREME COURT- The decisions of the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces regarding proceedings of tribunals established under section 5 shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari.

SEC. 7. ANNUAL REPORT ON PERSONS COVERED BY THIS ACT WHO ARE DETAINED AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANTS BY THE UNITED STATES.

(a) Report Required- The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress an annual report on persons covered by this Act who are detained as unlawful combatants by the United States.

(b) Current Detainees- The report shall include, for each person currently so detained, the following:

(1) The name and nationality of the person.

(2) The period during which the person has been so detained.

(3) A description of the specific process afforded to the person under sections 3 and 4 of this Act and the outcome of those processes.

(c) Former Detainees- The report shall include, for each person formerly so detained, the following:

(1) The name and nationality of the person.

(2) The terms of the conditional release agreement with respect to the person.

(3) A statement of the basis for the determination of the United States Government that release was warranted.

(4) The period during which the person was so detained, including the release date of the person.

(d) Classification- The report required by this section shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

SA 1494

Mr. LEVIN (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, and Mr. REED) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of division A, add the following:

TITLE XV--NATIONAL COMMISSION ON POLICIES AND PRACTICES ON TREATMENT OF DETAINEES SINCE SEPTEMBER 11, 2001

SEC. 1501. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The vast majority of the members of the Armed Forces have served honorably and upheld the highest standards of professionalism and morality.

(2) While there have been numerous reviews, inspections, and investigations by the Department of Defense and others regarding aspects of the treatment of individuals detained in the course of Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, or United States activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001, none has provided a comprehensive, objective, and independent investigation of United States policies and practices relating to the treatment of such detainees.

(3) The reports of the various reviews, inspections, and investigations conducted by the Department of Defense and others have left numerous omissions and reached conflicting conclusions regarding institutional and personal responsibility for United States policies and practices on the treatment of the detainees described in paragraph (2) that may have caused or contributed to the mistreatment of such detainees.

(4) Omissions in the reports produced to date also include omissions relating to--

(A) the authorities of the intelligence community for activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001, including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries, and whether such authorities differed from the authorities of the military for the detention and interrogation of detainees;

(B) the role of intelligence personnel in the detention and interrogation of detainees;

(C) the role of special operations forces in the detention and interrogation of detainees; and

(D) the role of contract employees in the detention and interrogation of detainees.

SEC. 1502. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION.

There is established the National Commission on United States Policies and Practices Relating to the Treatment of Detainees Since September 11, 2001 (in this title referred to as the ``Commission'').

SEC. 1503. COMPOSITION OF THE COMMISSION.

(a) Members.--The Commission shall be composed of 10 members, of whom--

(1) 1 member shall be appointed by the President, who shall serve as chairman of the Commission;

(2) 1 member shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the Senate of the Democratic Party, in consultation with the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Democratic Party, who shall serve as vice chairman of the Commission;

(3) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the Senate leadership of the Republican Party;

(4) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the Senate leadership of the Democratic Party;

(5) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Republican Party; and

(6) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Democratic Party.

(b) Qualifications; Initial Meeting.--

(1) POLITICAL PARTY AFFILIATION.--Not more than 5 members of the Commission shall be from the same political party.

(2) NONGOVERNMENTAL APPOINTEES.--An individual appointed to the Commission may not be an officer or employee of the Federal Government or any State or local government.

(3) OTHER QUALIFICATIONS.--It is the sense of Congress that individuals appointed to the Commission should be prominent United States citizens, with national recognition and significant depth of experience in such professions as governmental service, the Armed Forces, intelligence gathering or analysis, law, public administration, law enforcement, and foreign affairs.

(4) DEADLINE FOR APPOINTMENT.--All members of the Commission shall be appointed not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) Meetings; Quorum; Vacancies.--

(1) INITIAL MEETING.--The Commission shall meet and begin the operations as soon as practicable after all members have been appointed under subsection (b).

(2) MEETINGS.--After its initial meeting under paragraph (1), the Commission shall meet upon the call of the chairman or a majority of its members.

(3) QUORUM.--Six members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum.

(4) VACANCIES.--Any vacancy in the Commission shall not affect its powers, but shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

SEC. 1504. PURPOSES.

(a) In General.--The purposes of the Commission are to--

(1) examine and report upon the policies and practices of the United States relating to the treatment of individuals detained in Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF), Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF), or United States activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001 (in this title referred to as ``detainees") , including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries;

(2) examine, evaluate, and report on the causes of and factors that may have contributed to the alleged mistreatment of detainees, including, but not limited to--

(A) laws and policies of the United States relating to the detention or interrogation of detainees, including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries;

(B) activities of special operations forces of the Armed Forces;

(C) activities of contract employees of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government, including for the rendition of detainees to foreign countries; and

(D) activities of employees of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, or any other element of the intelligence community;

(3) assess the responsibility of leaders, whether military or civilian, within and outside the Department of Defense for policies and actions, or failures to act, that may have contributed, directly or indirectly, to the mistreatment of detainees;

(4) ascertain, evaluate, and report on the effectiveness and propriety of interrogation techniques, policies, and practices for producing useful and reliable intelligence;

(5) ascertain, evaluate, and report on all planning for long-term detention, or procedures for prosecution by civilian courts or military tribunals or commission, of detainees in the custody of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government or who have been rendered to any foreign government or entity; and

(6) investigate and submit a report to the President and Congress on the Commission's findings, conclusions, and recommendations, including any modifications to existing treaties, laws, policies, or regulations, as appropriate.

(b) Utilization of Other Materials.--The Commission may build upon reports conducted by the Department of Defense or other entities by reviewing the source materials, findings, conclusions, and recommendations of those other reviews in order to--

(1) avoid unnecessary duplication; and

(2) identify any omissions in or conflicts between such reports which in the Commission's view merit further investigation.

SEC. 1505. FUNCTIONS OF COMMISSION.

The functions of the Commission are to--

(1) conduct an investigation that ascertains relevant facts and circumstances relating to--

(A) laws, policies, and practices of the United States relating to the treatment of detainees since September 11, 2001, including any relevant treaties, statutes, Executive orders, regulations, plans, policies, practices, or procedures;

(B) activities of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government relating to Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, and efforts to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001;

(C) the role of private contract employees in the treatment of detainees;

(D) the role of legal and medical personnel in the treatment of detainees, including the role of medical personnel in advising on plans for, and the conduct of, interrogations;

(E) dealings of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government with the International Committee of the Red Cross;

(F) the role of congressional oversight; and

(G) other areas of the public and private sectors determined relevant by the Commission for its inquiry;

(2) identify and review how policies regarding the detention, interrogation, and rendition of detainees were formulated and implemented, and evaluate such policies in light of lessons learned from activities in Iraq, Afghanistan, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and elsewhere; and

(3) submit to the President and Congress such reports as are required by this title containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as the Commission shall determine, including proposing any appropriate modifications in legislation, organization, coordination, planning, management, procedures, rules, and regulations.

SEC. 1506. POWERS OF COMMISSION.

(a) In General.--

(1) HEARINGS AND EVIDENCE.--The Commission or, on the authority of the Commission, any subcommittee or member thereof, may, for the purpose of carrying out this title--

(A) hold such hearings and sit and act at such times and places, take such testimony, receive such evidence, and administer such oaths; and

(B) subject to paragraph (2)(A), require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents, as the Commission or such designated subcommittee or designated member may determine advisable.

(2) SUBPOENAS.--

(A) ISSUANCE.--

(i) IN GENERAL.--A subpoena may be issued under this subsection only--

(I) by the agreement of the chairman and the vice chairman; or

(II) by the affirmative vote of 6 members of the Commission.

(ii) SIGNATURE.--Subject to clause (i), subpoenas issued under this subsection may be issued under the signature of the chairman or any member designated by a majority of the Commission, and may be served by any person designated by the chairman or by a member designated by a majority of the Commission.

(B) ENFORCEMENT.--

(i) IN GENERAL.--In the case of contumacy or failure to obey a subpoena issued under subparagraph (A), the United States district court for the judicial district in which the subpoenaed person resides, is served, or may be found, or where the subpoena is returnable, may issue an order requiring such person to appear at any designated place to testify or to produce documentary or other evidence. Any failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt of that court.

(ii) ADDITIONAL ENFORCEMENT.--In the case of any failure of any witness to comply with any subpoena or to testify when summoned under authority of this section, the Commission may, by majority vote, certify a statement of fact constituting such failure to the appropriate United States attorney, who may bring the matter before the grand jury for its action, under the same statutory authority and procedures as if the United States attorney had received a certification under sections 102 through 104 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (2 U.S.C. 192 through 194).

(b) Contracting.--The Commission may, to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts to enable the Commission to discharge its duties under this title.

(c) Information and Materials From Federal Agencies.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--

(A) COOPERATION OF AGENCIES.--The Commission shall receive the full and timely cooperation of any department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States Government, and of any officer or employee thereof, whose assistance is necessary for the fulfillment of the duties of the Commission under this title.

(B) FURNISHING OF MATERIALS.--The Commission is authorized to secure directly from any department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States Government information, materials (including classified materials), suggestions, estimates, and statistics for the purposes of this title. Each such department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality shall, to the maximum extent authorized by law, furnish all such information, materials, suggestions, estimates, and statistics directly to the Commission, promptly upon a request made by the chairman, the chairman of any subcommittee created by a majority of the Commission, or any member designated by a majority of the Commission, but in no case later than 14 days after such a request.

(2) RECEIPT, HANDLING, STORAGE, AND DISSEMINATION.--Information and materials shall be received, handled, stored, and disseminated by members of the Commission and its staff consistent with all applicable statutes, regulations, and Executive orders. The Commission shall maintain all classified information and materials provided to the Commission under this title in a secure location in the offices of the Commission or as designated by the Commission.

(3) ACCESS TO INFORMATION AND MATERIALS.--No department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States may withhold information or materials, including classified materials, from the Commission on the grounds that providing the information or materials would constitute the unauthorized disclosure of classified information, pre-decisional materials, or information relating to intelligence sources or methods.

(d) Assistance From Particular Federal Agencies.--

(1) GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION.--The Administrator of General Services shall provide to the Commission on a reimbursable basis administrative support and other services for the performance of the Commission's functions.

(2) OTHER DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES.--In addition to the assistance prescribed in paragraph (1), departments, agencies, and other elements of the United States Government may provide to the Commission such services, funds, facilities, staff, and other support services as they may determine advisable and as may be authorized by law.

(e) Postal Services.--The Commission may use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as departments and agencies of the United States Government.

SEC. 1507. COMPENSATION AND TRAVEL EXPENSES.

(a) Compensation.--Each member of the Commission shall be compensated at not to exceed the daily equivalent of the annual rate of basic pay in effect for a position at level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, for each day during which that member is engaged in the actual performance of the duties of the Commission.

(b) Travel Expenses.--While away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Commission, members of the Commission shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in the same manner as persons employed intermittently in the Government service are allowed expenses under section 5703(b) of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 1508. STAFF OF COMMISSION.

(a) In General.--

(1) APPOINTMENT AND COMPENSATION.--The chairman, in consultation with the vice chairman and in accordance with rules agreed upon by the Commission, may appoint and fix the compensation of a staff director and such other personnel as may be necessary to enable the Commission to carry out its functions, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title relating to classification and General Schedule pay rates, except that no rate of pay fixed under this subsection may exceed the equivalent of that payable for a position at level V of the Executive Schedule under section 5316 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) PERSONNEL AS FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.--

(A) TREATMENT.--The staff director and any personnel of the Commission who are employees of the Commission shall be treated as employees of the Federal Government under section 2105 of title 5, United States Code, for purposes of chapters 63, 81, 83, 84, 85, 87, 89, and 90 of that title.

SEC. 1509. SECURITY CLEARANCES FOR COMMISSION MEMBERS AND STAFF.

The departments, agencies, and elements of the United States Government shall cooperate with the Commission in expeditiously providing to the Commission members and staff appropriate security clearances to the extent possible pursuant to existing procedures and requirements. No person shall be provided with access to classified information under this title without the appropriate security clearances.

SEC. 1510. NONAPPLICABILITY OF FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT.

(a) In General.--The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall not apply to the Commission.

(b) Public Meetings and Release of Public Versions of Reports.--The Commission shall--

(1) hold public hearings and meetings to the extent appropriate; and

(2) release public versions of the reports required under section 1511.

(c) Public Hearings.--Any public hearings of the Commission shall be conducted in a manner consistent with the protection of information provided to or developed for or by the Commission as required by any applicable statute, regulation, or Executive order.

SEC. 1511. REPORTS OF COMMISSION; TERMINATION.

(a) Interim Reports.--The Commission may submit to the President and Congress interim reports containing such findings, conclusions and recommendations as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(b) Final Report.--Not later than 12 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to the President and Congress a final report containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(c) Termination.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--The Commission, and all the authorities of this title, shall terminate 60 days after the date on which the final report is submitted under subsection (b).

(2) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIVITIES BEFORE TERMINATION.--The Commission may use the 60-day period referred to in paragraph (1) for the purpose of concluding its activities, including providing testimony to committees of Congress concerning its reports, disseminating the final report.

SEC. 1512. FUNDING.

(a) Authorization of Appropriations.--There are authorized to be appropriated to the Commission to carry out this section $2,500,000.

(b) Duration of Availability.--Amounts made available to the Commission under subsection (a) shall remain available until the termination of the Commission.

SA 1505

Mr. GRAHAM (for himself, Mr. WARNER, and Mr. MCCAIN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. AUTHORITY TO UTILIZE COMBATANT STATUS REVIEW TRIBUNALS AND ANNUAL REVIEW BOARD TO DETERMINE STATUS OF DETAINEES AT GUANTANAMO BAY, CUBA.

(a) Authority.--The President is authorized to utilize the Combatant Status Review Tribunals and a noticed Annual Review Board, and the procedures thereof as specified in subsection (b), currently in operation at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in order to determine the status of the detainees held at Guantanamo Bay, including whether any such detainee is a lawful enemy combatant or an unlawful enemy combatant.

(b) Procedures.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--Except as provided in paragraph (2), the procedures specified in this subsection are as follows:

(A) For the Combatant Status Review Tribunals, the memorandum of the Secretary of the Navy of July 29, 2004, regarding the implementation of Combatant Status Review Tribunal procedures for Enemy Combatants detained at Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, Cuba.

(B) For the Annual Review Board, the Department of Defense Designated Civilian Official Memorandum dated September 14, 2004, regarding the Implementation of Administrative Review Procedures for Enemy Combatants Detained at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

(2) EXCEPTION.--The exceptions provided in this paragraph for the procedures specified in paragraph (1) are as follows:

(A) To the extent practicable, the Combatant Status Review Tribunal shall determine, by a preponderance of the evidence, whether statements derived from persons held in foreign custody were obtained without under coercion.

(B) A detainee shall be provided a military judge advocate for purposes of the Annual Review Board.

(C) The Designated Civilian Official shall be an officer of the United States Government whose appointment to office was made by the President, by and with the advise and consent of the Senate.

(3) MODIFICATION OF PROCEDURES.--The President may modify the procedures and requirements set forth under paragraphs (1) and (2). Any modification of such procedures or requirements may not go into effect until 30 days after the date on which the President notifies the congressional defense committees of the modification.

(c) Definitions.--In this section:

(1) The term ``lawful enemy combatant'' means person engaging in war or other armed conflict against the United States or its allies on behalf of a state party to the Geneva Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, dated August 12, 1949, who meets the criteria of a prisoner of war under Article 4 of that Convention.

(2) The term ``unlawful enemy combatant'', with respect to noncitizens of the United States, means a person (other than a person described in paragraph (1)) engaging in war, other armed conflict, or hostile acts against the United States or its allies, or knowingly supporting others so engaged, regardless of location.

SA 1556

Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GRAHAM, and Ms. COLLINS) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. PROHIBITION ON CRUEL, INHUMAN, OR DEGRADING TREATMENT OR PUNISHMENT OF PERSONS UNDER CUSTODY OR CONTROL OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

(a) In General.--No individual in the custody or under the physical control of the United States Government, regardless of nationality or physical location, shall be subject to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment.

(b) Construction.--Nothing in this section shall be construed to impose any geographical limitation on the applicability of the prohibition against cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment under this section.

(c) Limitation on Supersedure.--The provisions of this section shall not be superseded, except by a provision of law enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act which specifically repeals, modifies, or supersedes the provisions of this section.

(d) Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Defined.--In this section, the term ``cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment'' means the cruel, unusual, and inhumane treatment or punishment prohibited by the Fifth, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, as defined in the United States Reservations, Declarations and Understandings to the United Nations Convention Against Torture and Other Forms of Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment done at New York, December 10, 1984.

Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GRAHAM, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. UNIFORM STANDARDS FOR THE INTERROGATION OF PERSONS UNDER THE DETENTION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) LIMITATION ON INTERROGATION TECHNIQUES.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--No person in the custody or under the effective control of the Department of Defense or under detention in a Department of Defense facility shall be subject to any treatment or technique of interrogation not authorized by and listed in the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation.

(2) APPLICABILITY.--Paragraph (1) shall not apply to with respect to any person in the custody or under the effective control of the Department of Defense pursuant to a criminal law or immigration law of the United States.

(3) CONSTRUCTION.--Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to affect the rights under the United States Constitution of any person in the custody or under the physical jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) PROHIBITION ON INCLUSION OF CERTAIN INTERROGATION TECHNIQUES IN ARMY FIELD MANUAL.--No interrogation technique may be included as an authorized interrogation technique within the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation if such technique constitutes torture or cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.

(c) NOTICE TO CONGRESS OF REVISION OF ARMY FIELD MANUAL.--Not later than 30 days before issuing any revision to the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation, including an authorization of additional interrogation techniques, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on such revision.

(d) REGISTRATION WITH INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS.--Each individual described in subsection (a) who is a national of a foreign country shall be registered with the International Committee of the Red Cross.

SA 1566. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. UNIFORM STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES FOR TREATMENT OF PERSONS UNDER DETENTION BY THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) Uniform Standards and Procedures Required.--The Secretary of Defense shall establish uniform standards and procedures for the detention and interrogation of persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense.

(b) Consistency With Law and Treaty Obligations.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall be consistent with United States law and international treaty obligations.

(c) Applicability.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall apply to all detention and interrogation activities involving persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense, and to such activities conducted within facilities controlled by the Department of Defense, regardless of whether such activities are conducted by Department of Defense personnel, Department of Defense contractor personnel, or personnel or contractor personnel of any other department, agency, or element of the United States Government.

(2) EXCEPTION.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to any person in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense pursuant to a criminal law or immigration law of the United States.

(d) Construction.--Nothing in this section shall affect such rights, if any, under the Constitution of the United States of any person in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense.

(e) Notice to Congress of Revision.--Not later than 60 days before issuing any revision to the standards and procedures established under subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall notify, in writing, the congressional defense committees of such revision.

(f) Deadline.--The standards and procedures required by subsection (a) shall be established not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Could you please have someone in your office get me electronic copies of these as soon as possible? The AG wants us to conduct a careful, internal evaluation of what is out there. My thought is, once we have electronic copies, to forward them to OLC, OLP, CIV, and others for views. Thanks, NMG

Could you please have someone in your office get me electronic copies of these as soon as possible? The AG wants us to conduct a careful, internal evaluation of what is out there. My thought is, once we have electronic copies, to forward them to OLC, OLP, CIV, and others for views. Thanks, NMG

109th CONGRESS
1st Session
H. R. 3038

To affirm the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, to enable a person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

June 22, 2005

Mr. SCHIFF (for himself, Mr. UDALL of Colorado, and Mr. OWENS) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

---

A BILL

To affirm the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, to enable a person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the `Guantanamo Detainees Procedures Act of 2005'.

SEC. 2. AUTHORITY OF EXECUTIVE BRANCH TO DETAIN PERSONS COVERED BY THIS ACT AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANTS.

(a) Finding- Congress finds that the executive branch has authority to detain persons covered by this Act as unlawful combatants.
(b) Persons Covered by This Act- In this Act, the term `person covered by this Act' means an individual who--
(1) is accused of knowingly--
(A) planning, authorizing, committing, aiding, or abetting one or more terrorist acts against the United States; or

(B) being part of or supporting forces engaged in armed conflict against the United States;

(2) is not a United States person or lawful permanent resident; and

(3) is not a prisoner of war within the meaning of the Geneva Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, done on August 12, 1949.

SEC. 3. RIGHT OF PERSON DETAINED AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANT OR ON SIMILAR BASIS TO CHALLENGE THAT BASIS.

(a) In General- Whenever the United States detains a person covered by this Act on the basis of a determination that the person can be detained as an unlawful combatant or can be detained on any similar basis, the person is entitled to a hearing under this section as expeditiously as practicable but not later than 6 months after the date on which the United States first made the determination.

(b) Requirements for Hearing- A hearing required by subsection (a) must meet the following requirements:

(1) The hearing officer is an active member of one of the Courts of Criminal Appeals of the Armed Forces.

(2) The hearing officer has authority to decide de novo whether the basis of a determination under subsection (a) is valid and to grant appropriate relief if the hearing officer decides that the basis is invalid.

(3) The hearing officer is impartial in fact, and is in a position independent from--

(A) the individuals who first determined that the person can be detained; and

(B) the individuals on whose orders the person is being detained.

(4) The person is provided with access to the evidence that tends to support the determination that the person can be detained.

(5) The person is provided with an opportunity to address the hearing officer, and is provided with an interpreter for that purpose.

(c) Administrative Review- The Secretary of Defense shall conduct administrative review of the activities of a hearing officer under this section.

SEC. 4. RIGHT OF PERSON DETAINED TO DISPOSITION WITHIN 2 YEARS.

(a) In General- Whenever the United States detains a person covered by this Act on the basis of a determination that the person can be detained as an unlawful combatant or can be detained on any similar basis, the person is entitled to a disposition under this section not later than 2 years after the date on which the United States first made the determination.

(b) Requirements for Disposition- A disposition under this section is any one of the following:

(1) Repatriation to the governing authority in the area in which the person was first detained or the person's country of origin, except where there are substantial grounds to believe that the person would be in danger of being subjected to torture.

(2) The commencement, by formal charges, of prosecution in an appropriate court, which may include an extraordinary tribunal under section 5 of this Act, an international criminal tribunal, or a district court of the United States.

(c) Extension-

(1) CERTIFICATION- The period required by subsection (a) for the repatriation of the person or the commencement of formal charges may be extended if the Secretary of Defense certifies, in writing, with respect to the person that the Secretary of Defense has determined that the person is a continuing threat to the national security of the United States due to a likelihood that the person will undertake terrorist or belligerent acts against the United States based on the person's past conduct, level of authority within the group or organization, statement and actions during confinement, age and health, psychological profile, and other pertinent factors, and the repatriation of the person or the commencement of formal charges will compromise the national security of the United States by curtailing intelligence gathering from the person, jeopardize intelligence sources necessary to prosecute the person, or other extraordinary circumstances justify the extension.

(2) DETAILED BASIS- A certification under this subsection must include a detailed account of the factual basis for that determination.

(3) ACCESS TO CERTIFICATION- A person covered by a certification under this subsection is entitled to an unclassified copy of the certification.

(4) DURATION OF CERTIFICATION- A certification under this subsection is effective for not more than 1 year. The Secretary may make successive certifications with respect to a person so long as each additional certification is made while an imminent threat to national security continues to be posed by the group or organization in which the person is a member or by other persons associated with, or acting on behalf of, the group, organization, or person.

(5) JUDICIAL REVIEW- The United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces shall provide judicial review with respect to any issue under this subsection, including whether the determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) is justified by the factual basis under paragraph (2).

SEC. 5. EXTRAORDINARY TRIBUNALS.

(a) Authority- The President is hereby authorized to establish tribunals for the trial of persons covered by this Act.

(b) Jurisdiction- Tribunals established under subsection (a) may adjudicate violations of the law of war, international laws of armed conflict, and crimes against humanity targeted against United States persons or residents.

(c) Authority to Establish Procedural Rules- The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General, shall prescribe and publish in the Federal Register, and report to the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the rules of evidence and procedure that are to apply to tribunals established under subsection (a).

SEC. 6. PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General- The rules prescribed for a tribunal under section 5(c) shall be designed to ensure a full and fair hearing of the charges against the accused. The rules shall require the following:

(1) That the tribunal be independent and impartial.

(2) That the accused be notified of the particulars of the offense charged or alleged without delay.

(3) That the proceedings be made simultaneously intelligible for participants not conversant in the English language by translation or interpretation.

(4) That the evidence supporting each alleged offense be given to the accused, except as provided in subsection (d).

(5) That the accused have the opportunity to be present at trial.

(6) That the accused have a right to be represented by counsel.

(7) That the accused have the opportunity--

(A) to respond to the evidence supporting each alleged offense;

(B) to obtain exculpatory evidence from the prosecution; and

(C) to present exculpatory evidence.

(8) That the accused have the opportunity to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses and to offer witnesses.

(9) That the proceeding and disposition be expeditious.

(10) That the tribunal apply reasonable rules of evidence designed to ensure admission only of reliable information or material with probative value.

(11) That the accused be afforded all necessary means of defense before and after the trial.

(12) That conviction of an alleged offense not be based upon an act, offense, or omission that was not an offense under law when it was committed.

(13) That the penalty for an offense not be greater than it was when the offense was committed.

(14) That the accused--

(A) be presumed innocent until proven guilty, and

(B) not be found guilty except upon proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

(15) That the accused not be compelled to confess guilt or testify against himself.

(16) That, subject to subsections (c) and (d), the trial be open and public and include public availability of the transcripts of the trial and the pronouncement of judgment.

(17) That a convicted person be informed of remedies and appeals and the time limits for the exercise of the person's rights to the remedies and appeals under the rules.

(18) That a preliminary proceeding be held within 30 days of detention to determine whether there is jurisdiction under section 4 over the person and the offenses charged. The preliminary proceeding may be continued for an additional 30 days for good cause shown.

(19) That the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus under title 28, United States Code, or under any other provision of law not be infringed.

(20) That the tribunal be comprised of a military judge and not less than five members.

(b) Imposition of the Death Penalty- The requirements of the Uniform Code of Military Justice for the imposition of the death penalty shall apply in any case in which a tribunal established under section 5 is requested to adjudge the death penalty.

(c) Public Proceedings- Any proceedings conducted by a tribunal established under section 5, and the proceedings on any appeal of an action of the tribunal, shall be accessible to the public consistent with any demonstrable necessity to secure the safety of observers, witnesses, tribunal judges, counsel, or other persons.

(d) Confidentiality of Evidence- Evidence available from an agency of the Federal Government that is offered in a trial by a tribunal established under section 5 may be kept secret from the public only when the head of the agency personally certifies in writing that disclosure will cause--

(1) identifiable harm to the prosecution of military objectives;

(2) significant, identifiable harm to intelligence sources or methods; or

(3) substantial risk that such evidence could be used for planning future terrorist attacks.

(e) Review-

(1) PROCEDURES REQUIRED- The Secretary of Defense shall provide for prompt review of convictions by tribunals established under section 5 to ensure that the procedural requirements of a full and fair hearing have been met and that the evidence reasonably supports the convictions.

(2) UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES- The procedures established under paragraph (1) shall, at a minimum, allow for review of the proceedings of the tribunals, and the convictions and sentences of such tribunals, by the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces established under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

(3) SUPREME COURT- The decisions of the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces regarding proceedings of tribunals established under section 5 shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari.

SEC. 7. ANNUAL REPORT ON PERSONS COVERED BY THIS ACT WHO ARE DETAINED AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANTS BY THE UNITED STATES.

(a) Report Required- The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress an annual report on persons covered by this Act who are detained as unlawful combatants by the United States.

(b) Current Detainees- The report shall include, for each person currently so detained, the following:

(1) The name and nationality of the person.

(2) The period during which the person has been so detained.

(3) A description of the specific process afforded to the person under sections 3 and 4 of this Act and the outcome of those processes.

(c) Former Detainees- The report shall include, for each person formerly so detained, the following:

(1) The name and nationality of the person.

(2) The terms of the conditional release agreement with respect to the person.

(3) A statement of the basis for the determination of the United States Government that release was warranted.

(4) The period during which the person was so detained, including the release date of the person.

(d) Classification- The report required by this section shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

Mr. LEVIN (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, and Mr. REED) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of division A, add the following:

TITLE XV--NATIONAL COMMISSION ON POLICIES AND PRACTICES ON TREATMENT OF DETAINEES SINCE SEPTEMBER 11, 2001

SEC. 1501. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The vast majority of the members of the Armed Forces have served honorably and upheld the highest standards of professionalism and morality.

(2) While there have been numerous reviews, inspections, and investigations by the Department of Defense and others regarding aspects of the treatment of individuals detained in the course of Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, or United States activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001, none has provided a comprehensive, objective, and independent investigation of United States policies and practices relating to the treatment of such detainees.

(3) The reports of the various reviews, inspections, and investigations conducted by the Department of Defense and others have left numerous omissions and reached conflicting conclusions regarding institutional and personal responsibility for United States policies and practices on the treatment of the detainees described in paragraph (2) that may have caused or contributed to the mistreatment of such detainees.

(4) Omissions in the reports produced to date also include omissions relating to--

(A) the authorities of the intelligence community for activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001, including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries, and whether such authorities differed from the authorities of the military for the detention and interrogation of detainees;

(B) the role of intelligence personnel in the detention and interrogation of detainees;

(C) the role of special operations forces in the detention and interrogation of detainees; and

(D) the role of contract employees in the detention and interrogation of detainees.

SEC. 1502. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION.

There is established the National Commission on United States Policies and Practices Relating to the Treatment of Detainees Since September 11, 2001 (in this title referred to as the ``Commission'').

SEC. 1503. COMPOSITION OF THE COMMISSION.

(a) Members.--The Commission shall be composed of 10 members, of whom--

(1) 1 member shall be appointed by the President, who shall serve as chairman of the Commission;

(2) 1 member shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the Senate of the Democratic Party, in consultation with the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Democratic Party, who shall serve as vice chairman of the Commission;

(3) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the Senate leadership of the Republican Party;

(4) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the Senate leadership of the Democratic Party;

(5) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Republican Party; and

(6) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Democratic Party.

(b) Qualifications; Initial Meeting.--

(1) POLITICAL PARTY AFFILIATION.--Not more than 5 members of the Commission shall be from the same political party.

(2) NONGOVERNMENTAL APPOINTEES.--An individual appointed to the Commission may not be an officer or employee of the Federal Government or any State or local government.

(3) OTHER QUALIFICATIONS.--It is the sense of Congress that individuals appointed to the Commission should be prominent United States citizens, with national recognition and significant depth of experience in such professions as governmental service, the Armed Forces, intelligence gathering or analysis, law, public administration, law enforcement, and foreign affairs.

(4) DEADLINE FOR APPOINTMENT.--All members of the Commission shall be appointed not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) Meetings; Quorum; Vacancies.--

(1) INITIAL MEETING.--The Commission shall meet and begin the operations as soon as practicable after all members have been appointed under subsection (b).

(2) MEETINGS.--After its initial meeting under paragraph (1), the Commission shall meet upon the call of the chairman or a majority of its members.

(3) QUORUM.--Six members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum.

(4) VACANCIES.--Any vacancy in the Commission shall not affect its powers, but shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

SEC. 1504. PURPOSES.

(a) In General.--The purposes of the Commission are to--

(1) examine and report upon the policies and practices of the United States relating to the treatment of individuals detained in Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF), Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF), or United States activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001 (in this title referred to as ``detainees") , including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries;

(2) examine, evaluate, and report on the causes of and factors that may have contributed to the alleged mistreatment of detainees, including, but not limited to--

(A) laws and policies of the United States relating to the detention or interrogation of detainees, including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries;

(B) activities of special operations forces of the Armed Forces;

(C) activities of contract employees of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government, including for the rendition of detainees to foreign countries; and

(D) activities of employees of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, or any other element of the intelligence community;

(3) assess the responsibility of leaders, whether military or civilian, within and outside the Department of Defense for policies and actions, or failures to act, that may have contributed, directly or indirectly, to the mistreatment of detainees;

(4) ascertain, evaluate, and report on the effectiveness and propriety of interrogation techniques, policies, and practices for producing useful and reliable intelligence;

(5) ascertain, evaluate, and report on all planning for long-term detention, or procedures for prosecution by civilian courts or military tribunals or commission, of detainees in the custody of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government or who have been rendered to any foreign government or entity; and

(6) investigate and submit a report to the President and Congress on the Commission's findings, conclusions, and recommendations, including any modifications to existing treaties, laws, policies, or regulations, as appropriate.

(b) Utilization of Other Materials.--The Commission may build upon reports conducted by the Department of Defense or other entities by reviewing the source materials, findings, conclusions, and recommendations of those other reviews in order to--

(1) avoid unnecessary duplication; and

(2) identify any omissions in or conflicts between such reports which in the Commission's view merit further investigation.

SEC. 1505. FUNCTIONS OF COMMISSION.

The functions of the Commission are to--

(1) conduct an investigation that ascertains relevant facts and circumstances relating to--

(A) laws, policies, and practices of the United States relating to the treatment of detainees since September 11, 2001, including any relevant treaties, statutes, Executive orders, regulations, plans, policies, practices, or procedures;

(B) activities of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government relating to Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, and efforts to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001;

(C) the role of private contract employees in the treatment of detainees;

(D) the role of legal and medical personnel in the treatment of detainees, including the role of medical personnel in advising on plans for, and the conduct of, interrogations;

(E) dealings of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government with the International Committee of the Red Cross;

(F) the role of congressional oversight; and

(G) other areas of the public and private sectors determined relevant by the Commission for its inquiry;

(2) identify and review how policies regarding the detention, interrogation, and rendition of detainees were formulated and implemented, and evaluate such policies in light of lessons learned from activities in Iraq, Afghanistan, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and elsewhere; and

(3) submit to the President and Congress such reports as are required by this title containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as the Commission shall determine, including proposing any appropriate modifications in legislation, organization, coordination, planning, management, procedures, rules, and regulations.

SEC. 1506. POWERS OF COMMISSION.

(a) In General.--

(1) HEARINGS AND EVIDENCE.--The Commission or, on the authority of the Commission, any subcommittee or member thereof, may, for the purpose of carrying out this title--

(A) hold such hearings and sit and act at such times and places, take such testimony, receive such evidence, and administer such oaths; and

(B) subject to paragraph (2)(A), require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents, as the Commission or such designated subcommittee or designated member may determine advisable.

(2) SUBPOENAS.--

(A) ISSUANCE.--

(i) IN GENERAL.--A subpoena may be issued under this subsection only--

(I) by the agreement of the chairman and the vice chairman; or

(II) by the affirmative vote of 6 members of the Commission.

(ii) SIGNATURE.--Subject to clause (i), subpoenas issued under this subsection may be issued under the signature of the chairman or any member designated by a majority of the Commission, and may be served by any person designated by the chairman or by a member designated by a majority of the Commission.

(B) ENFORCEMENT.--

(i) IN GENERAL.--In the case of contumacy or failure to obey a subpoena issued under subparagraph (A), the United States district court for the judicial district in which the subpoenaed person resides, is served, or may be found, or where the subpoena is returnable, may issue an order requiring such person to appear at any designated place to testify or to produce documentary or other evidence. Any failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt of that court.

(ii) ADDITIONAL ENFORCEMENT.--In the case of any failure of any witness to comply with any subpoena or to testify when summoned under authority of this section, the Commission may, by majority vote, certify a statement of fact constituting such failure to the appropriate United States attorney, who may bring the matter before the grand jury for its action, under the same statutory authority and procedures as if the United States attorney had received a certification under sections 102 through 104 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (2 U.S.C. 192 through 194).

(b) Contracting.--The Commission may, to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts to enable the Commission to discharge its duties under this title.

(c) Information and Materials From Federal Agencies.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--

(A) COOPERATION OF AGENCIES.--The Commission shall receive the full and timely cooperation of any department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States Government, and of any officer or employee thereof, whose assistance is necessary for the fulfillment of the duties of the Commission under this title.

(B) FURNISHING OF MATERIALS.--The Commission is authorized to secure directly from any department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States Government information, materials (including classified materials), suggestions, estimates, and statistics for the purposes of this title. Each such department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality shall, to the maximum extent authorized by law, furnish all such information, materials, suggestions, estimates, and statistics directly to the Commission, promptly upon a request made by the chairman, the chairman of any subcommittee created by a majority of the Commission, or any member designated by a majority of the Commission, but in no case later than 14 days after such a request.

(2) RECEIPT, HANDLING, STORAGE, AND DISSEMINATION.--Information and materials shall be received, handled, stored, and disseminated by members of the Commission and its staff consistent with all applicable statutes, regulations, and Executive orders. The Commission shall maintain all classified information and materials provided to the Commission under this title in a secure location in the offices of the Commission or as designated by the Commission.

(3) ACCESS TO INFORMATION AND MATERIALS.--No department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States may withhold information or materials, including classified materials, from the Commission on the grounds that providing the information or materials would constitute the unauthorized disclosure of classified information, pre-decisional materials, or information relating to intelligence sources or methods.

(d) Assistance From Particular Federal Agencies.--

(1) GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION.--The Administrator of General Services shall provide to the Commission on a reimbursable basis administrative support and other services for the performance of the Commission's functions.

(2) OTHER DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES.--In addition to the assistance prescribed in paragraph (1), departments, agencies, and other elements of the United States Government may provide to the Commission such services, funds, facilities, staff, and other support services as they may determine advisable and as may be authorized by law.

(e) Postal Services.--The Commission may use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as departments and agencies of the United States Government.

SEC. 1507. COMPENSATION AND TRAVEL EXPENSES.

(a) Compensation.--Each member of the Commission shall be compensated at not to exceed the daily equivalent of the annual rate of basic pay in effect for a position at level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, for each day during which that member is engaged in the actual performance of the duties of the Commission.

(b) Travel Expenses.--While away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Commission, members of the Commission shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in the same manner as persons employed intermittently in the Government service are allowed expenses under section 5703(b) of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 1508. STAFF OF COMMISSION.

(a) In General.--

(1) APPOINTMENT AND COMPENSATION.--The chairman, in consultation with the vice chairman and in accordance with rules agreed upon by the Commission, may appoint and fix the compensation of a staff director and such other personnel as may be necessary to enable the Commission to carry out its functions, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title relating to classification and General Schedule pay rates, except that no rate of pay fixed under this subsection may exceed the equivalent of that payable for a position at level V of the Executive Schedule under section 5316 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) PERSONNEL AS FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.--

(A) TREATMENT.--The staff director and any personnel of the Commission who are employees of the Commission shall be treated as employees of the Federal Government under section 2105 of title 5, United States Code, for purposes of chapters 63, 81, 83, 84, 85, 87, 89, and 90 of that title.

SEC. 1509. SECURITY CLEARANCES FOR COMMISSION MEMBERS AND STAFF.

The departments, agencies, and elements of the United States Government shall cooperate with the Commission in expeditiously providing to the Commission members and staff appropriate security clearances to the extent possible pursuant to existing procedures and requirements. No person shall be provided with access to classified information under this title without the appropriate security clearances.

SEC. 1510. NONAPPLICABILITY OF FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT.

(a) In General.--The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall not apply to the Commission.

(b) Public Meetings and Release of Public Versions of Reports.--The Commission shall--

(1) hold public hearings and meetings to the extent appropriate; and

(2) release public versions of the reports required under section 1511.

(c) Public Hearings.--Any public hearings of the Commission shall be conducted in a manner consistent with the protection of information provided to or developed for or by the Commission as required by any applicable statute, regulation, or Executive order.

SEC. 1511. REPORTS OF COMMISSION; TERMINATION.

(a) Interim Reports.--The Commission may submit to the President and Congress interim reports containing such findings, conclusions and recommendations as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(b) Final Report.--Not later than 12 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to the President and Congress a final report containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(c) Termination.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--The Commission, and all the authorities of this title, shall terminate 60 days after the date on which the final report is submitted under subsection (b).

(2) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIVITIES BEFORE TERMINATION.--The Commission may use the 60-day period referred to in paragraph (1) for the purpose of concluding its activities, including providing testimony to committees of Congress concerning its reports, disseminating the final report.

SEC. 1512. FUNDING.

(a) Authorization of Appropriations.--There are authorized to be appropriated to the Commission to carry out this section $2,500,000.

(b) Duration of Availability.--Amounts made available to the Commission under subsection (a) shall remain available until the termination of the Commission.

SEC. 1073. AUTHORITY TO UTILIZE COMBATANT STATUS REVIEW TRIBUNALS AND ANNUAL REVIEW BOARD TO DETERMINE STATUS OF DETAINEES AT GUANTANAMO BAY, CUBA.

(a) Authority.--The President is authorized to utilize the Combatant Status Review Tribunals and a noticed Annual Review Board, and the procedures thereof as specified in subsection (b), currently in operation at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in order to determine the status of the detainees held at Guantanamo Bay, including whether any such detainee is a lawful enemy combatant or an unlawful enemy combatant.

(b) Procedures.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--Except as provided in paragraph (2), the procedures specified in this subsection are as follows:

(A) For the Combatant Status Review Tribunals, the memorandum of the Secretary of the Navy of July 29, 2004, regarding the implementation of Combatant Status Review Tribunal procedures for Enemy Combatants detained at Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, Cuba.

(B) For the Annual Review Board, the Department of Defense Designated Civilian Official Memorandum dated September 14, 2004, regarding the Implementation of Administrative Review Procedures for Enemy Combatants Detained at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

(2) EXCEPTION.--The exceptions provided in this paragraph for the procedures specified in paragraph (1) are as follows:

(A) To the extent practicable, the Combatant Status Review Tribunal shall determine, by a preponderance of the evidence, whether statements derived from persons held in foreign custody were obtained without under coercion.

(B) A detainee shall be provided a military judge advocate for purposes of the Annual Review Board.

(C) The Designated Civilian Official shall be an officer of the United States Government whose appointment to office was made by the President, by and with the advise and consent of the Senate.

(3) MODIFICATION OF PROCEDURES.--The President may modify the procedures and requirements set forth under paragraphs (1) and (2). Any modification of such procedures or requirements may not go into effect until 30 days after the date on which the President notifies the congressional defense committees of the modification.

(c) Definitions.--In this section:

(1) The term ``lawful enemy combatant'' means person engaging in war or other armed conflict against the United States or its allies on behalf of a state party to the Geneva Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, dated August 12, 1949, who meets the criteria of a prisoner of war under Article 4 of that Convention.

(2) The term ``unlawful enemy combatant'', with respect to noncitizens of the United States, means a person (other than a person described in paragraph (1)) engaging in war, other armed conflict, or hostile acts against the United States or its allies, or knowingly supporting others so engaged, regardless of location.

Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GRAHAM, and Ms. COLLINS) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. PROHIBITION ON CRUEL, INHUMAN, OR DEGRADING TREATMENT OR PUNISHMENT OF PERSONS UNDER CUSTODY OR CONTROL OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

(a) In General.--No individual in the custody or under the physical control of the United States Government, regardless of nationality or physical location, shall be subject to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment.

(b) Construction.--Nothing in this section shall be construed to impose any geographical limitation on the applicability of the prohibition against cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment under this section.

(c) Limitation on Supersedure.--The provisions of this section shall not be superseded, except by a provision of law enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act which specifically repeals, modifies, or supersedes the provisions of this section.

(d) Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Defined.--In this section, the term ``cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment'' means the cruel, unusual, and inhumane treatment or punishment prohibited by the Fifth, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, as defined in the United States Reservations, Declarations and Understandings to the United Nations Convention Against Torture and Other Forms of Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment done at New York, December 10, 1984.

Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GRAHAM, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. UNIFORM STANDARDS FOR THE INTERROGATION OF PERSONS UNDER THE DETENTION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) LIMITATION ON INTERROGATION TECHNIQUES.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--No person in the custody or under the effective control of the Department of Defense or under detention in a Department of Defense facility shall be subject to any treatment or technique of interrogation not authorized by and listed in the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation.

(2) APPLICABILITY.--Paragraph (1) shall not apply to with respect to any person in the custody or under the effective control of the Department of Defense pursuant to a criminal law or immigration law of the United States.

(3) CONSTRUCTION.--Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to affect the rights under the United States Constitution of any person in the custody or under the physical jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) PROHIBITION ON INCLUSION OF CERTAIN INTERROGATION TECHNIQUES IN ARMY FIELD MANUAL.--No interrogation technique may be included as an authorized interrogation technique within the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation if such technique constitutes torture or cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.

(c) NOTICE TO CONGRESS OF REVISION OF ARMY FIELD MANUAL.--Not later than 30 days before issuing any revision to the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation, including an authorization of additional interrogation techniques, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on such revision.

(d) REGISTRATION WITH INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS.--Each individual described in subsection (a) who is a national of a foreign country shall be registered with the International Committee of the Red Cross.

SA 1566. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. UNIFORM STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES FOR TREATMENT OF PERSONS UNDER DETENTION BY THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) Uniform Standards and Procedures Required.--The Secretary of Defense shall establish uniform standards and procedures for the detention and interrogation of persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense.

(b) Consistency With Law and Treaty Obligations.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall be consistent with United States law and international treaty obligations.

(c) Applicability.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall apply to all detention and interrogation activities involving persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense, and to such activities conducted within facilities controlled by the Department of Defense, regardless of whether such activities are conducted by Department of Defense personnel, Department of Defense contractor personnel, or personnel or contractor personnel of any other department, agency, or element of the United States Government.

(2) EXCEPTION.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to any person in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense pursuant to a criminal law or immigration law of the United States.

(d) Construction.--Nothing in this section shall affect such rights, if any, under the Constitution of the United States of any person in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense.

(e) Notice to Congress of Revision.--Not later than 60 days before issuing any revision to the standards and procedures established under subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall notify, in writing, the congressional defense committees of such revision.

(f) Deadline.--The standards and procedures required by subsection (a) shall be established not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Rebecca -

I've added another Graham bill I received from DoD to the list. There is also a draft Specter bill we're aware of.
I need your help with one matter, though. It looks like Graham and McCain have each introduced two bills. Can you tell me which of these Graham and McCain really intend to push? Also, if we had to rank which of all the Senate bills we think most likely to attract attention, what would that order look like?

HR 3038 IH

109th CONGRESS
1st Session
H. R. 3038

To affirm the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, to enable a person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

June 22, 2005

Mr. SCHIFF (for himself, Mr. UDALL of Colorado, and Mr. OWENS) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

---

A BILL

To affirm the authority of the executive branch to detain foreign nationals as unlawful combatants, to enable a person detained as an unlawful combatant to challenge the basis for that detention and to receive a disposition within 2 years, to provide for the President to establish military tribunals to try such persons, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the `Guantanamo Detainees Procedures Act of 2005'.

SEC. 2. AUTHORITY OF EXECUTIVE BRANCH TO DETAIN PERSONS COVERED BY THIS ACT AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANTS.

(a) Finding- Congress finds that the executive branch has authority to detain persons covered by this Act as unlawful combatants.
(b) Persons Covered by This Act- In this Act, the term `person covered by this Act' means an individual who--
(1) is accused of knowingly--
(A) planning, authorizing, committing, aiding, or abetting one or more terrorist acts against the United States; or

(B) being part of or supporting forces engaged in armed conflict against the United States;

(2) is not a United States person or lawful permanent resident; and

(3) is not a prisoner of war within the meaning of the Geneva Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, done on August 12, 1949.

SEC. 3. RIGHT OF PERSON DETAINED AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANT OR ON SIMILAR BASIS TO CHALLENGE THAT BASIS.

(a) In General- Whenever the United States detains a person covered by this Act on the basis of a determination that the person can be detained as an unlawful combatant or can be detained on any similar basis, the person is entitled to a hearing under this section as expeditiously as practicable but not later than 6 months after the date on which the United States first made the determination.

(b) Requirements for Hearing- A hearing required by subsection (a) must meet the following requirements:

(1) The hearing officer is an active member of one of the Courts of Criminal Appeals of the Armed Forces.

(2) The hearing officer has authority to decide de novo whether the basis of a determination under subsection (a) is valid and to grant appropriate relief if the hearing officer decides that the basis is invalid.

(3) The hearing officer is impartial in fact, and is in a position independent from--

(A) the individuals who first determined that the person can be detained; and

(B) the individuals on whose orders the person is being detained.

(4) The person is provided with access to the evidence that tends to support the determination that the person can be detained.

(5) The person is provided with an opportunity to address the hearing officer, and is provided with an interpreter for that purpose.

(c) Administrative Review- The Secretary of Defense shall conduct administrative review of the activities of a hearing officer under this section.

SEC. 4. RIGHT OF PERSON DETAINED TO DISPOSITION WITHIN 2 YEARS.

(a) In General- Whenever the United States detains a person covered by this Act on the basis of a determination that the person can be detained as an unlawful combatant or can be detained on any similar basis, the person is entitled to a disposition under this section not later than 2 years after the date on which the United States first made the determination.

(b) Requirements for Disposition- A disposition under this section is any one of the following:

(1) Repatriation to the governing authority in the area in which the person was first detained or the person's country of origin, except where there are substantial grounds to believe that the person would be in danger of being subjected to torture.

(2) The commencement, by formal charges, of prosecution in an appropriate court, which may include an extraordinary tribunal under section 5 of this Act, an international criminal tribunal, or a district court of the United States.

(c) Extension-

(1) CERTIFICATION- The period required by subsection (a) for the repatriation of the person or the commencement of formal charges may be extended if the Secretary of Defense certifies, in writing, with respect to the person that the Secretary of Defense has determined that the person is a continuing threat to the national security of the United States due to a likelihood that the person will undertake terrorist or belligerent acts against the United States based on the person's past conduct, level of authority within the group or organization, statement and actions during confinement, age and health, psychological profile, and other pertinent factors, and the repatriation of the person or the commencement of formal charges will compromise the national security of the United States by curtailing intelligence gathering from the person, jeopardize intelligence sources necessary to prosecute the person, or other extraordinary circumstances justify the extension.

(2) DETAILED BASIS- A certification under this subsection must include a detailed account of the factual basis for that determination.

(3) ACCESS TO CERTIFICATION- A person covered by a certification under this subsection is entitled to an unclassified copy of the certification.

(4) DURATION OF CERTIFICATION- A certification under this subsection is effective for not more than 1 year. The Secretary may make successive certifications with respect to a person so long as each additional certification is made while an imminent threat to national security continues to be posed by the group or organization in which the person is a member or by other persons associated with, or acting on behalf of, the group, organization, or person.

(5) JUDICIAL REVIEW- The United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces shall provide judicial review with respect to any issue under this subsection, including whether the determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) is justified by the factual basis under paragraph (2).

SEC. 5. EXTRAORDINARY TRIBUNALS.

(a) Authority- The President is hereby authorized to establish tribunals for the trial of persons covered by this Act.

(b) Jurisdiction- Tribunals established under subsection (a) may adjudicate violations of the law of war, international laws of armed conflict, and crimes against humanity targeted against United States persons or residents.

(c) Authority to Establish Procedural Rules- The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General, shall prescribe and publish in the Federal Register, and report to the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the rules of evidence and procedure that are to apply to tribunals established under subsection (a).

SEC. 6. PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General- The rules prescribed for a tribunal under section 5(c) shall be designed to ensure a full and fair hearing of the charges against the accused. The rules shall require the following:

(1) That the tribunal be independent and impartial.

(2) That the accused be notified of the particulars of the offense charged or alleged without delay.

(3) That the proceedings be made simultaneously intelligible for participants not conversant in the English language by translation or interpretation.

(4) That the evidence supporting each alleged offense be given to the accused, except as provided in subsection (d).

(5) That the accused have the opportunity to be present at trial.

(6) That the accused have a right to be represented by counsel.

(7) That the accused have the opportunity--

(A) to respond to the evidence supporting each alleged offense;

(B) to obtain exculpatory evidence from the prosecution; and

(C) to present exculpatory evidence.

(8) That the accused have the opportunity to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses and to offer witnesses.

(9) That the proceeding and disposition be expeditious.

(10) That the tribunal apply reasonable rules of evidence designed to ensure admission only of reliable information or material with probative value.

(11) That the accused be afforded all necessary means of defense before and after the trial.

(12) That conviction of an alleged offense not be based upon an act, offense, or omission that was not an offense under law when it was committed.

(13) That the penalty for an offense not be greater than it was when the offense was committed.

(14) That the accused--

(A) be presumed innocent until proven guilty, and

(B) not be found guilty except upon proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

(15) That the accused not be compelled to confess guilt or testify against himself.

(16) That, subject to subsections (c) and (d), the trial be open and public and include public availability of the transcripts of the trial and the pronouncement of judgment.

(17) That a convicted person be informed of remedies and appeals and the time limits for the exercise of the person's rights to the remedies and appeals under the rules.

(18) That a preliminary proceeding be held within 30 days of detention to determine whether there is jurisdiction under section 4 over the person and the offenses charged. The preliminary proceeding may be continued for an additional 30 days for good cause shown.

(19) That the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus under title 28, United States Code, or under any other provision of law not be infringed.

(20) That the tribunal be comprised of a military judge and not less than five members.

(b) Imposition of the Death Penalty- The requirements of the Uniform Code of Military Justice for the imposition of the death penalty shall apply in any case in which a tribunal established under section 5 is requested to adjudge the death penalty.

(c) Public Proceedings- Any proceedings conducted by a tribunal established under section 5, and the proceedings on any appeal of an action of the tribunal, shall be accessible to the public consistent with any demonstrable necessity to secure the safety of observers, witnesses, tribunal judges, counsel, or other persons.

(d) Confidentiality of Evidence- Evidence available from an agency of the Federal Government that is offered in a trial by a tribunal established under section 5 may be kept secret from the public only when the head of the agency personally certifies in writing that disclosure will cause--

(1) identifiable harm to the prosecution of military objectives;

(2) significant, identifiable harm to intelligence sources or methods; or

(3) substantial risk that such evidence could be used for planning future terrorist attacks.

(e) Review-

(1) PROCEDURES REQUIRED- The Secretary of Defense shall provide for prompt review of convictions by tribunals established under section 5 to ensure that the procedural requirements of a full and fair hearing have been met and that the evidence reasonably supports the convictions.

(2) UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES- The procedures established under paragraph (1) shall, at a minimum, allow for review of the proceedings of the tribunals, and the convictions and sentences of such tribunals, by the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces established under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

(3) SUPREME COURT- The decisions of the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces regarding proceedings of tribunals established under section 5 shall be subject to review by the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari.

SEC. 7. ANNUAL REPORT ON PERSONS COVERED BY THIS ACT WHO ARE DETAINED AS UNLAWFUL COMBATANTS BY THE UNITED STATES.

(a) Report Required- The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress an annual report on persons covered by this Act who are detained as unlawful combatants by the United States.

(b) Current Detainees- The report shall include, for each person currently so detained, the following:

(1) The name and nationality of the person.

(2) The period during which the person has been so detained.

(3) A description of the specific process afforded to the person under sections 3 and 4 of this Act and the outcome of those processes.

(c) Former Detainees- The report shall include, for each person formerly so detained, the following:

(1) The name and nationality of the person.

(2) The terms of the conditional release agreement with respect to the person.

(3) A statement of the basis for the determination of the United States Government that release was warranted.

(4) The period during which the person was so detained, including the release date of the person.

(d) Classification- The report required by this section shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

Mr. LEVIN (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, and Mr. REED) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of division A, add the following:

TITLE XV--NATIONAL COMMISSION ON POLICIES AND PRACTICES ON TREATMENT OF DETAINEES SINCE SEPTEMBER 11, 2001

SEC. 1501. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The vast majority of the members of the Armed Forces have served honorably and upheld the highest standards of professionalism and morality.

(2) While there have been numerous reviews, inspections, and investigations by the Department of Defense and others regarding aspects of the treatment of individuals detained in the course of Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, or United States activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001, none has provided a comprehensive, objective, and independent investigation of United States policies and practices relating to the treatment of such detainees.

(3) The reports of the various reviews, inspections, and investigations conducted by the Department of Defense and others have left numerous omissions and reached conflicting conclusions regarding institutional and personal responsibility for United States policies and practices on the treatment of the detainees described in paragraph (2) that may have caused or contributed to the mistreatment of such detainees.

(4) Omissions in the reports produced to date also include omissions relating to--

(A) the authorities of the intelligence community for activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001, including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries, and whether such authorities differed from the authorities of the military for the detention and interrogation of detainees;

(B) the role of intelligence personnel in the detention and interrogation of detainees;

(C) the role of special operations forces in the detention and interrogation of detainees; and

(D) the role of contract employees in the detention and interrogation of detainees.

SEC. 1502. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION.

There is established the National Commission on United States Policies and Practices Relating to the Treatment of Detainees Since September 11, 2001 (in this title referred to as the ``Commission'').

SEC. 1503. COMPOSITION OF THE COMMISSION.

(a) Members.--The Commission shall be composed of 10 members, of whom--

(1) 1 member shall be appointed by the President, who shall serve as chairman of the Commission;

(2) 1 member shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the Senate of the Democratic Party, in consultation with the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Democratic Party, who shall serve as vice chairman of the Commission;

(3) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the Senate leadership of the Republican Party;

(4) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the Senate leadership of the Democratic Party;

(5) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Republican Party; and

(6) 2 members shall be appointed by the senior member of the leadership of the House of Representatives of the Democratic Party.

(b) Qualifications; Initial Meeting.--

(1) POLITICAL PARTY AFFILIATION.--Not more than 5 members of the Commission shall be from the same political party.

(2) NONGOVERNMENTAL APPOINTEES.--An individual appointed to the Commission may not be an officer or employee of the Federal Government or any State or local government.

(3) OTHER QUALIFICATIONS.--It is the sense of Congress that individuals appointed to the Commission should be prominent United States citizens, with national recognition and significant depth of experience in such professions as governmental service, the Armed Forces, intelligence gathering or analysis, law, public administration, law enforcement, and foreign affairs.

(4) DEADLINE FOR APPOINTMENT.--All members of the Commission shall be appointed not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) Meetings; Quorum; Vacancies.--

(1) INITIAL MEETING.--The Commission shall meet and begin the operations as soon as practicable after all members have been appointed under subsection (b).

(2) MEETINGS.--After its initial meeting under paragraph (1), the Commission shall meet upon the call of the chairman or a majority of its members.

(3) QUORUM.--Six members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum.

(4) VACANCIES.--Any vacancy in the Commission shall not affect its powers, but shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

SEC. 1504. PURPOSES.

(a) In General.--The purposes of the Commission are to--

(1) examine and report upon the policies and practices of the United States relating to the treatment of individuals detained in Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF), Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF), or United States activities to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001 (in this title referred to as ``detainees") , including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries;

(2) examine, evaluate, and report on the causes of and factors that may have contributed to the alleged mistreatment of detainees, including, but not limited to--

(A) laws and policies of the United States relating to the detention or interrogation of detainees, including the rendition of detainees to foreign countries;

(B) activities of special operations forces of the Armed Forces;

(C) activities of contract employees of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government, including for the rendition of detainees to foreign countries; and

(D) activities of employees of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, or any other element of the intelligence community;

(3) assess the responsibility of leaders, whether military or civilian, within and outside the Department of Defense for policies and actions, or failures to act, that may have contributed, directly or indirectly, to the mistreatment of detainees;

(4) ascertain, evaluate, and report on the effectiveness and propriety of interrogation techniques, policies, and practices for producing useful and reliable intelligence;

(5) ascertain, evaluate, and report on all planning for long-term detention, or procedures for prosecution by civilian courts or military tribunals or commission, of detainees in the custody of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government or who have been rendered to any foreign government or entity; and

(6) investigate and submit a report to the President and Congress on the Commission's findings, conclusions, and recommendations, including any modifications to existing treaties, laws, policies, or regulations, as appropriate.

(b) Utilization of Other Materials.--The Commission may build upon reports conducted by the Department of Defense or other entities by reviewing the source materials, findings, conclusions, and recommendations of those other reviews in order to--

(1) avoid unnecessary duplication; and

(2) identify any omissions in or conflicts between such reports which in the Commission's view merit further investigation.

SEC. 1505. FUNCTIONS OF COMMISSION.

The functions of the Commission are to--

(1) conduct an investigation that ascertains relevant facts and circumstances relating to--

(A) laws, policies, and practices of the United States relating to the treatment of detainees since September 11, 2001, including any relevant treaties, statutes, Executive orders, regulations, plans, policies, practices, or procedures;

(B) activities of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government relating to Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, and efforts to counter international terrorism since September 11, 2001;

(C) the role of private contract employees in the treatment of detainees;

(D) the role of legal and medical personnel in the treatment of detainees, including the role of medical personnel in advising on plans for, and the conduct of, interrogations;

(E) dealings of any department, agency, or other entity of the United States Government with the International Committee of the Red Cross;

(F) the role of congressional oversight; and

(G) other areas of the public and private sectors determined relevant by the Commission for its inquiry;

(2) identify and review how policies regarding the detention, interrogation, and rendition of detainees were formulated and implemented, and evaluate such policies in light of lessons learned from activities in Iraq, Afghanistan, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and elsewhere; and

(3) submit to the President and Congress such reports as are required by this title containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as the Commission shall determine, including proposing any appropriate modifications in legislation, organization, coordination, planning, management, procedures, rules, and regulations.

SEC. 1506. POWERS OF COMMISSION.

(a) In General.--

(1) HEARINGS AND EVIDENCE.--The Commission or, on the authority of the Commission, any subcommittee or member thereof, may, for the purpose of carrying out this title--

(A) hold such hearings and sit and act at such times and places, take such testimony, receive such evidence, and administer such oaths; and

(B) subject to paragraph (2)(A), require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents, as the Commission or such designated subcommittee or designated member may determine advisable.

(2) SUBPOENAS.--

(A) ISSUANCE.--

(i) IN GENERAL.--A subpoena may be issued under this subsection only--

(I) by the agreement of the chairman and the vice chairman; or

(II) by the affirmative vote of 6 members of the Commission.

(ii) SIGNATURE.--Subject to clause (i), subpoenas issued under this subsection may be issued under the signature of the chairman or any member designated by a majority of the Commission, and may be served by any person designated by the chairman or by a member designated by a majority of the Commission.

(B) ENFORCEMENT.--

(i) IN GENERAL.--In the case of contumacy or failure to obey a subpoena issued under subparagraph (A), the United States district court for the judicial district in which the subpoenaed person resides, is served, or may be found, or where the subpoena is returnable, may issue an order requiring such person to appear at any designated place to testify or to produce documentary or other evidence. Any failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt of that court.

(ii) ADDITIONAL ENFORCEMENT.--In the case of any failure of any witness to comply with any subpoena or to testify when summoned under authority of this section, the Commission may, by majority vote, certify a statement of fact constituting such failure to the appropriate United States attorney, who may bring the matter before the grand jury for its action, under the same statutory authority and procedures as if the United States attorney had received a certification under sections 102 through 104 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (2 U.S.C. 192 through 194).

(b) Contracting.--The Commission may, to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts to enable the Commission to discharge its duties under this title.

(c) Information and Materials From Federal Agencies.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--

(A) COOPERATION OF AGENCIES.--The Commission shall receive the full and timely cooperation of any department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States Government, and of any officer or employee thereof, whose assistance is necessary for the fulfillment of the duties of the Commission under this title.

(B) FURNISHING OF MATERIALS.--The Commission is authorized to secure directly from any department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States Government information, materials (including classified materials), suggestions, estimates, and statistics for the purposes of this title. Each such department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality shall, to the maximum extent authorized by law, furnish all such information, materials, suggestions, estimates, and statistics directly to the Commission, promptly upon a request made by the chairman, the chairman of any subcommittee created by a majority of the Commission, or any member designated by a majority of the Commission, but in no case later than 14 days after such a request.

(2) RECEIPT, HANDLING, STORAGE, AND DISSEMINATION.--Information and materials shall be received, handled, stored, and disseminated by members of the Commission and its staff consistent with all applicable statutes, regulations, and Executive orders. The Commission shall maintain all classified information and materials provided to the Commission under this title in a secure location in the offices of the Commission or as designated by the Commission.

(3) ACCESS TO INFORMATION AND MATERIALS.--No department, agency, element, bureau, board, commission, independent establishment, or other instrumentality of the United States may withhold information or materials, including classified materials, from the Commission on the grounds that providing the information or materials would constitute the unauthorized disclosure of classified information, pre-decisional materials, or information relating to intelligence sources or methods.

(d) Assistance From Particular Federal Agencies.--

(1) GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION.--The Administrator of General Services shall provide to the Commission on a reimbursable basis administrative support and other services for the performance of the Commission's functions.

(2) OTHER DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES.--In addition to the assistance prescribed in paragraph (1), departments, agencies, and other elements of the United States Government may provide to the Commission such services, funds, facilities, staff, and other support services as they may determine advisable and as may be authorized by law.

(e) Postal Services.--The Commission may use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as departments and agencies of the United States Government.

SEC. 1507. COMPENSATION AND TRAVEL EXPENSES.

(a) Compensation.--Each member of the Commission shall be compensated at not to exceed the daily equivalent of the annual rate of basic pay in effect for a position at level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, for each day during which that member is engaged in the actual performance of the duties of the Commission.

(b) Travel Expenses.--While away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Commission, members of the Commission shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in the same manner as persons employed intermittently in the Government service are allowed expenses under section 5703(b) of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 1508. STAFF OF COMMISSION.

(a) In General.--

(1) APPOINTMENT AND COMPENSATION.--The chairman, in consultation with the vice chairman and in accordance with rules agreed upon by the Commission, may appoint and fix the compensation of a staff director and such other personnel as may be necessary to enable the Commission to carry out its functions, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title relating to classification and General Schedule pay rates, except that no rate of pay fixed under this subsection may exceed the equivalent of that payable for a position at level V of the Executive Schedule under section 5316 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) PERSONNEL AS FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.--

(A) TREATMENT.--The staff director and any personnel of the Commission who are employees of the Commission shall be treated as employees of the Federal Government under section 2105 of title 5, United States Code, for purposes of chapters 63, 81, 83, 84, 85, 87, 89, and 90 of that title.

SEC. 1509. SECURITY CLEARANCES FOR COMMISSION MEMBERS AND STAFF.

The departments, agencies, and elements of the United States Government shall cooperate with the Commission in expeditiously providing to the Commission members and staff appropriate security clearances to the extent possible pursuant to existing procedures and requirements. No person shall be provided with access to classified information under this title without the appropriate security clearances.

SEC. 1510. NONAPPLICABILITY OF FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT.

(a) In General.--The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall not apply to the Commission.

(b) Public Meetings and Release of Public Versions of Reports.--The Commission shall--

(1) hold public hearings and meetings to the extent appropriate; and

(2) release public versions of the reports required under section 1511.

(c) Public Hearings.--Any public hearings of the Commission shall be conducted in a manner consistent with the protection of information provided to or developed for or by the Commission as required by any applicable statute, regulation, or Executive order.

SEC. 1511. REPORTS OF COMMISSION; TERMINATION.

(a) Interim Reports.--The Commission may submit to the President and Congress interim reports containing such findings, conclusions and recommendations as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(b) Final Report.--Not later than 12 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to the President and Congress a final report containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(c) Termination.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--The Commission, and all the authorities of this title, shall terminate 60 days after the date on which the final report is submitted under subsection (b).

(2) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIVITIES BEFORE TERMINATION.--The Commission may use the 60-day period referred to in paragraph (1) for the purpose of concluding its activities, including providing testimony to committees of Congress concerning its reports, disseminating the final report.

SEC. 1512. FUNDING.

(a) Authorization of Appropriations.--There are authorized to be appropriated to the Commission to carry out this section $2,500,000.

(b) Duration of Availability.--Amounts made available to the Commission under subsection (a) shall remain available until the termination of the Commission.

SA 1505

Mr. GRAHAM (for himself, Mr. WARNER, and Mr. MCCAIN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. AUTHORITY TO UTILIZE COMBATANT STATUS REVIEW TRIBUNALS AND ANNUAL REVIEW BOARD TO DETERMINE STATUS OF DETAINEES AT GUANTANAMO BAY, CUBA.

(a) Authority.--The President is authorized to utilize the Combatant Status Review Tribunals and a noticed Annual Review Board, and the procedures thereof as specified in subsection (b), currently in operation at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in order to determine the status of the detainees held at Guantanamo Bay, including whether any such detainee is a lawful enemy combatant or an unlawful enemy combatant.

(b) Procedures.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--Except as provided in paragraph (2), the procedures specified in this subsection are as follows:

(A) For the Combatant Status Review Tribunals, the memorandum of the Secretary of the Navy of July 29, 2004, regarding the implementation of Combatant Status Review Tribunal procedures for Enemy Combatants detained at Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, Cuba.

(B) For the Annual Review Board, the Department of Defense Designated Civilian Official Memorandum dated September 14, 2004, regarding the Implementation of Administrative Review Procedures for Enemy Combatants Detained at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

(2) EXCEPTION.--The exceptions provided in this paragraph for the procedures specified in paragraph (1) are as follows:

(A) To the extent practicable, the Combatant Status Review Tribunal shall determine, by a preponderance of the evidence, whether statements derived from persons held in foreign custody were obtained without under coercion.

(B) A detainee shall be provided a military judge advocate for purposes of the Annual Review Board.

(C) The Designated Civilian Official shall be an officer of the United States Government whose appointment to office was made by the President, by and with the advise and consent of the Senate.

(3) MODIFICATION OF PROCEDURES.--The President may modify the procedures and requirements set forth under paragraphs (1) and (2). Any modification of such procedures or requirements may not go into effect until 30 days after the date on which the President notifies the congressional defense committees of the modification.

(c) Definitions.--In this section:

(1) The term ``lawful enemy combatant'' means person engaging in war or other armed conflict against the United States or its allies on behalf of a state party to the Geneva Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, dated August 12, 1949, who meets the criteria of a prisoner of war under Article 4 of that Convention.

(2) The term ``unlawful enemy combatant'', with respect to noncitizens of the United States, means a person (other than a person described in paragraph (1)) engaging in war, other armed conflict, or hostile acts against the United States or its allies, or knowingly supporting others so engaged, regardless of location.

SA 1556

Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GRAHAM, and Ms. COLLINS) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. PROHIBITION ON CRUEL, INHUMAN, OR DEGRADING TREATMENT OR PUNISHMENT OF PERSONS UNDER CUSTODY OR CONTROL OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

(a) In General.--No individual in the custody or under the physical control of the United States Government, regardless of nationality or physical location, shall be subject to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment.

(b) Construction.--Nothing in this section shall be construed to impose any geographical limitation on the applicability of the prohibition against cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment under this section.

(c) Limitation on Supersedure.--The provisions of this section shall not be superseded, except by a provision of law enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act which specifically repeals, modifies, or supersedes the provisions of this section.

(d) Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Defined.--In this section, the term ``cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment'' means the cruel, unusual, and inhumane treatment or punishment prohibited by the Fifth, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, as defined in the United States Reservations, Declarations and Understandings to the United Nations Convention Against Torture and Other Forms of Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment done at New York, December 10, 1984.

SA 1557

Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GRAHAM, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. UNIFORM STANDARDS FOR THE INTERROGATION OF PERSONS UNDER THE DETENTION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) LIMITATION ON INTERROGATION TECHNIQUES.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--No person in the custody or under the effective control of the Department of Defense or under detention in a Department of Defense facility shall be subject to any treatment or technique of interrogation not authorized by and listed in the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation.

(2) APPLICABILITY.--Paragraph (1) shall not apply to with respect to any person in the custody or under the effective control of the Department of Defense pursuant to a criminal law or immigration law of the United States.

(3) CONSTRUCTION.--Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to affect the rights under the United States Constitution of any person in the custody or under the physical jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) PROHIBITION ON INCLUSION OF CERTAIN INTERROGATION TECHNIQUES IN ARMY FIELD MANUAL.--No interrogation technique may be included as an authorized interrogation technique within the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation if such technique constitutes torture or cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.

(c) NOTICE TO CONGRESS OF REVISION OF ARMY FIELD MANUAL.--Not later than 30 days before issuing any revision to the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation, including an authorization of additional interrogation techniques, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on such revision.

(d) REGISTRATION WITH INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS.--Each individual described in subsection (a) who is a national of a foreign country shall be registered with the International Committee of the Red Cross.

SA 1566. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1073. UNIFORM STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES FOR TREATMENT OF PERSONS UNDER DETENTION BY THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) Uniform Standards and Procedures Required.--The Secretary of Defense shall establish uniform standards and procedures for the detention and interrogation of persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense.

(b) Consistency With Law and Treaty Obligations.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall be consistent with United States law and international treaty obligations.

(c) Applicability.--

(1) IN GENERAL.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall apply to all detention and interrogation activities involving persons in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense, and to such activities conducted within facilities controlled by the Department of Defense, regardless of whether such activities are conducted by Department of Defense personnel, Department of Defense contractor personnel, or personnel or contractor personnel of any other department, agency, or element of the United States Government.

(2) EXCEPTION.--The standards and procedures established under subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to any person in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense pursuant to a criminal law or immigration law of the United States.

(d) Construction.--Nothing in this section shall affect such rights, if any, under the Constitution of the United States of any person in the custody or under the control of the Department of Defense.

(e) Notice to Congress of Revision.--Not later than 60 days before issuing any revision to the standards and procedures established under subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall notify, in writing, the congressional defense committees of such revision.

(f) Deadline.--The standards and procedures required by subsection (a) shall be established not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

AMENDMENT NO. Calendar No.

Purpose: To limit the review of the detention of enemy combatants.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES—109th Cong., 1st Sess.

S. 1042

To authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

Referred to the Committee on and ordered to be printed

Ordered to lie on the table and to be printed

AMENDMENT intended to be proposed by Mr. GRAHAM to the amendment (No.) proposed by Viz:

At the end, add the following:

SEC. 1074. REVIEW OF DETENTION OF ENEMY COMBATANTS.

(a) DETENTION OF ENEMY COMBATANTS.—Section 2241 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(e) No court, justice, or judge shall have jurisdiction to consider—

"(1) an application for a writ of habeas corpus filed on behalf of an alien who is detained as an enemy combatant by the United States Government; or

"(2) any other action challenging any aspect of the detention of an alien who is detained by the Secretary of Defense as an enemy combatant, if the alien has been afforded an opportunity to challenge his detention pursuant to the procedures specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 1073(b) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006, to the extent modified by the President pursuant to the authority in paragraph (3) of such section.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to any application or other action pending on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

I suggest having the materials sent to OVW in care of the contractor. Also, we MUST get to the point where it is a completely automated system--that includes peer review. That is one of the principles behind grants.gov.

Tracy:

It is necessary to get a hard copy due to application requirements such as MOUs and certifications. We need to have signed originals of these documents. It is better to send the copies to the contractor because they need to be able to make copies for peer review.

Thanks!

Diane Stuart asked that I send you a copy of our solicitation template, in case you (or someone on your staff) would like to review it. The template will be used as the basis for all of our grant solicitations, so that they have common language as much as possible. There will be some changes to this language made later, due to the conversion from the OJP Grants Management System to Grants.gov, but the changes will not be substantive. We are working with OJP to determine the necessary changes as soon as possible.

<< File: Fiscal Year 2006 template.doc >>

I would greatly appreciate your comments, if any, by September 16, because the individual solicitations are already under development and in need of this template language. Also, please let me know if you would like to review copies of the individual grant program solicitations.

Thank you very much!

Neil --

In the small world department, [redacted] asked that I call you about this. When is a good time? Tonight? Tomorrow morning. I think we could clarify the drafting somewhat (as by providing this is to take place automatically before discovery), but clearly different from what takes place now, where plaintiff has a virtual right to conduct discovery for 6 months to a year with all the attendant expense before a motion for summary judgment can be filed. See F.R.Civ.P. 56(f). Plus this would happen automatically, without the expense of investigating and filing a motion for summary judgment. Essentially the equivalent of requiring a verified complaint or "Lone Pine" order in the state practice.

P.S. I am at my office at Yale [redacted] and at my house [redacted] later tonight and in the morning [redacted].

[redacted] -- Do you still want to talk tonight? If not, I am about to leave my office at Yale for home. If you do, I'll stay here so you can reach me. I certainly don't agree with DOJ's position as I understand it, and would be glad to write something showing how this differs from existing law. Practically, one typically has to go through about a year of discovery before a judge will rule on a motion for summary judgment, with all the attendant costs. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(f). It is typically regarded as an abuse of discretion not to allow plaintiffs to conduct discovery to try to develop facts to support their case. The bill would reverse that -- saying the plaintiff has to have facts in hand sufficient to service a motion for summary judgment BEFORE filing a case.

I don't agree at all. What are they talking about? There is no requirement under present law to attach an affidavit. That is a verified complaint under some state practices, but not required under federal practice. Can allege and then conduct discovery to find facts to support.

Neil and Tevi,

Sherry Freeman is a terrific political appointee at DOJ where she heads up the Community Relations Service which has historically been THE major outreach effort by DOJ. The more I read about this, the more I hear about it from our African-American constituency, the more I am convinced that the President or Claude Allen must take Sherry [redacted] and her folks down there to help file down the hard political edges. She is in a perfect position and our team doesn't use her enough.

In the small world department, [redacted] asked that I call you about this. When is a good time? Tonight? Tomorrow morning. I think we could clarify the drafting somewhat (as by providing this is to take place automatically before discovery), but clearly different from what takes place now, where plaintiff has a virtual right to conduct discovery for 6 months to a year with all the attendant expense before a motion for summary judgment can be filed. See F.R.Civ.P. 56(f). Plus this would happen automatically, without the expense of investigating and filing a motion for summary judgment. Essentially the equivalent of requiring a verified complaint or "Lone Pine" order in the state practice.

P.S. I am at my office at Yale [redacted] and at my house i[redacted] later tonight and in the morning [redacted].

[redacted] -- Do you still want to talk tonight? If not, I am about to leave my office at Yale for home. If you do, I'll stay here so you can reach me. I certainly don't agree with DOJ's position as I understand it, and would be glad to write something showing how this differs from existing law. Practically, one typically has to go through about a year of discovery before a judge will rule on a motion for summary judgment, with all the attendant costs. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(f). It is typically regarded as an abuse of discretion not to allow plaintiffs to conduct discovery to try to develop facts to support their case. The bill would reverse that -- saying the plaintiff has to have facts in hand sufficient to service a motion for summary judgment BEFORE filing a case. -----Original Message----- From: redacted [mailto:[redacted]@judiciary-rep.senate.gov]

I don't agree at all. What are they talking about? There is no requirement under present law to attach an affidavit. That is a verified complaint under some state practices, but not required under federal practice. Can allege and then conduct discovery to find facts to support. -----Original Message-----

GLAXOSMITHKLINE PAYS $150 MILLION TO SETTLE DRUG PRICING FRAUD CASE

WASHINGTON, D.C. - GlaxoSmithKline has paid over $150 million to resolve allegations that the company violated the False Claims Act through fraudulent drug pricing and marketing of two anti-emetic drugs, Zofran and Kytril, used primarily in conjunction with oncology and radiation treatment, the Justice Department announced today.

The United States alleged in settlement documents that GlaxoSmithKline-one of the world's largest pharmaceutical manufacturers-engaged in a scheme to set and maintain fraudulent and inflated prices for Zofran and Kytril knowing that federal healthcare programs established reimbursement rates based on those prices. The difference between the reimbursement rate of the federal health care programs and the actual price paid by healthcare providers for a drug is commonly known as the "spread." The larger the spread on a drug, the larger the profit or return on investment for the provider. GlaxoSmithKline allegedly used the spread to market, promote, and sell the drugs to existing and potential customers. Because reimbursement from federal programs was based on the fraudulent, inflated prices, the United States contended that GlaxoSmithKline caused false and fraudulent claims to be submitted to federal healthcare programs.

"This agreement marks another in a series of cases in which a pharmaceutical manufacturer has settled claims that its fraudulent drug pricing cost federal healthcare programs and taxpayers millions of dollars," said Assistant Attorney General Peter D. Keisler of the Justice Department's Civil Division. "The Justice Department will continue to pursue these types of fraud schemes vigorously to make clear that we will not tolerate fraudulent pricing practices designed to reap profits for drug companies and doctors at the expense of healthcare programs for the poor and the elderly."

The United States also alleged that, with respect to Kytril, the drug company engaged in a "double dipping" billing scheme by encouraging customers to pool leftover vials of Kytril to create an extra dose, which then would be administered to a patient and re-billed to Medicare and other federal healthcare programs.

DOJ_NMG_ 0148085

"Fraudulent pricing of prescription drugs can cost American taxpayers millions of dollars and undermine the financial integrity of the healthcare system," said U.S. Attorney Michael J. Sullivan of the District of Massachusetts. "To safeguard our nation's healthcare programs we will continue to aggressively investigate and prosecute healthcare fraud violations whether by pharmaceutical companies or individual practitioners."

"As our nation struggles to contain healthcare costs, we must ensure that drug manufacturers do not take advantage of the poor, the elderly or the sick by illegally inflating the price of prescription drugs. That a manufacturer would fraudulently inflate the cost of a drug used primarily to reduce the side effects of cancer treatments is unconscionable," said U.S. Attorney R. Alexander Acosta of the Southern District of Florida.

The investigation commenced after the filing of a civil False Claims Act suit by a small, home-infusion company, Ven-A-Care of the Florida Keys, Inc., and its principals. The civil False Claims Act allows for private persons to file whistleblower suits to provide the government information about wrongdoing. Where persons submit or cause others to submit false or fraudulent claims to the United States, the government is entitled to recover treble damages and $5,500 to $11,000 for each false or fraudulent claim. In cases in which the government is successful in resolving or litigating its claims, the whistleblower may receive a share of the recovery by receiving from 15-25% of the amount recovered. As part of this settlement, the Ven-A-Care whistleblowers will receive a share of approximately $26 million.

As part of a condition for doing business in the future with providers who do business with the Medicare and Medicaid programs, GlaxoSmithKline has agreed to enter into an addendum to its existing Corporate Integrity Agreement with the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services that, among other things, will require the company to report accurate average sales prices and average manufacturer's prices for its drugs covered by Medicare and other federal healthcare programs.

"Any pharmaceutical company that intentionally inflates the cost of prescription drugs with elaborate pricing schemes robs states and beneficiaries nationwide of millions of Medicare and Medicaid dollars. We will not tolerate any company abusing programs intended to benefit our most vulnerable citizens," said Daniel R. Levinson, HHS Inspector General.

"CMS has a strong commitment to protect the integrity of the federal healthcare programs, ensuring that the financial burdens are not shifted to the programs, beneficiaries or taxpayers. This agreement reinforces that commitment," said Mark B. McClellan, M.D., Ph.D., Administrator for the Centers of Medicare and Medicaid Services.

Of the $150 million settlement, the federal recovery is approximately $140 million and the states' recovery for their share of Medicaid is $10 million.

The investigation was conducted by the Civil Division of the Department of Justice, the United States Attorney's Offices for the Districts of Massachusetts and the Southern District of Florida, the Office of Inspector General for the Department of Health and Human Services, the Office of Program Integrity of TRICARE Management Activity, and the National Association of Medicaid Fraud Control Units.

MOTIVA ENTERPRISES SETTLES FEDERAL–STATE LAWSUIT RESULTING FROM EXPLOSION AT DELAWARE CITY REFINERY

Settlement Worth Combined Total of Nearly $23.7 Million in Civil Penalties, Environmental Projects, Injunctive Relief, and Response Costs

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Motiva Enterprises LLC (Motiva) has agreed to pay $12 million to settle a joint federal–state civil lawsuit arising from a catastrophic explosion in 2001 at the company's former Delaware City refinery that killed one employee, injured several others, and caused a massive discharge of spent sulfuric acid from a ruptured tank, the Justice Department, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the state of Delaware announced today.

In addition to the $12 million civil penalty, Motiva will finance a series of environmental projects valued at more than $4 million and reimburse the United States and Delaware for over $170,000 in response costs. The settlement resolves claims against Motiva under the federal Clean Water Act (CWA), Clean Air Act, CERCLA (the Superfund statute), and numerous state environmental statutes. In 2004, Motiva sold the Delaware City refinery to the Premcor Refining Group Inc. (Premcor), which has agreed to join the settlement and to institute a series of controls valued at approximately $7.5 million, to improve safety at the refinery. The combined total of nearly $23.7 million in civil penalties, environmental projects, injunctive relief, and response costs is one of the largest settlements secured in an enforcement action involving violations of environmental laws at one facility. The civil penalty is the largest ever collected in Delaware for environmental violations.

"Companies that fail to adhere to environmental laws not only put our natural resources and wildlife at risk; they risk the lives and the safety of workers," said Acting Assistant Attorney General Kelly A. Johnson, of the Justice Department's Environment and Natural Resources Division. "Today's civil settlement reinforces our commitment to seeing that violators will be met with firm and decisive action, so that others will be deterred from breaking our laws and future catastrophes will be averted."

DOJ_NMG_ 0148093

On July 17, 2001, a 415,000-gallon tank at the Delaware City Refinery—then owned by Motiva—exploded while containing spent sulfuric acid, a mixture of sulfuric acid, water and hydrocarbons. The explosion killed one worker and injured several others. More than one million gallons of sulfuric acid were released from the tank farm and approximately 100,000 gallons spilled into the Delaware River, killing an estimated 2,400 fish and 240 crabs.

"This is the largest Clean Water Act settlement in the history of Delaware," said Donald S. Welsh, EPA regional administrator for the mid-Atlantic region. "In addition to Motiva paying a substantial penalty, today's settlement requires Premcor, the current owner of the refinery, to take immediate concrete steps to ensure compliance with environmental and safety regulations so that the tragic events of July 2001 will never be repeated."

In January 2002, OSHA issued a Citation & Notification of Penalty to Motiva citing willful violations which Motiva later settled for a total of $132,000. In July 2003, Motiva pleaded no contest to criminally negligent homicide and assault charges brought by the state attorney general. As a result, the presiding state judge ordered the company to pay $296,000 in penalties. In September 2003, Motiva agreed to pay $36.4 million to the widow and family of the worker who died. The amounts of settlements Motiva reached with other injured employees have not been made public. Most recently, in March 2004, as part of a criminal plea agreement with the United States Department of Justice in which Motiva pleaded guilty to negligently endangering its workers at the refinery and felony violations of the CWA, Motiva was ordered to pay a $10 million fine and to serve a three-year term of probation.

"This settlement closes a tragic chapter in the history of the Delaware City refinery," said Delaware Governor Ruth Ann Minner. "While nothing can erase the human and environmental impacts resulting from this event, we have made a number of changes on a state level as a result, including the enactment of Delaware's Above Ground Storage Tank Act and our enforcement action requiring enhancements to the refinery's mechanical integrity programs. Those, in addition to the improvements that will come from this settlement, will help ensure that this facility operates more safely. It also shows that negligent behavior can have dire consequences and will not be tolerated in Delaware."

The tank explosion also led to the passage of Delaware's Jeffrey Davis Above Ground Storage Tank Act and a state enforcement action requiring an audit of and improvements to the refinery's mechanical integrity programs. Jeffrey Davis was the worker killed in the explosion.

"Motiva's conduct was inexcusable," said Delaware Attorney General Jane Brady. "Nothing we do can undo the harm to the workers and their families but I trust all companies will take a lesson from this civil matter and our criminal prosecution and realize that we will not tolerate this type of behavior in Delaware."

"This accident would likely have been averted by a stringent tank inspection and repair program. Although Motiva saved thousands of dollars in putting off the inspection of Tank 393, it has now paid more than $58 million as a consequence of its actions," said Rudolph Contreras, Civil Chief, U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Delaware. "This fact alone should be a clear message to other companies that cutting corners on safety and the environment makes no economic sense."

As part of the agreement announced today, Motiva will undertake a number of environmental projects in Delaware. Among these projects, Motiva will purchase and maintain three hybrid transit buses for DART, construct native-species shellfish beds in the Delaware River, fund the installation and operation of a water quality monitoring station in the Delaware River, purchase approximately $165,000 of emergency equipment for the Delaware City Fire Company, and construct a meteorologic station for DNREC near the refinery to help assess wind and weather conditions if there are future accidents.

DOJ_NMG_ 0148094

In addition, Premcor will grant a conservation easement over 285 acres of ecologically significant land near the refinery that will end the land's current agricultural use and restrict further use of the area in perpetuity. Motiva will spend at least $447,500 on restoration activities, such as the planting of trees and the suppression of weeds and non-native species, that are designed to allow the area to grow back to its natural state. The lands surround Dragon Run—an important natural area and tributary of the Delaware River—and will provide a protective buffer for the waterway and its associated wetlands.

Premcor will also undertake a number of measures at the refinery designed to address issues raised by the investigations into the causes of the July 2001 incident, including improved hot–work–permitting procedures.

The proposed consent decree is subject to a 30-day public comment period and final court approval.

A copy of the consent decree lodged today will be available by the close of business today on the Department of Justice website at http://www.usdoj.gov/enrd/open.html.

One comment--If I didn't know she and her team were down there doing what they do then I bet no one else does either. There ought to be a press conference down there showcasing what CRS does and what the are specifically doing there. THe Dems ALWAYS use CRS against us--we can turn the tables here. CRS should be front and ceneter in terms of publicity--also because the folks down there need to know that CRS is available to them.

Neil and Tevi,

Sherry Freeman is a terrific political appointee at DOJ where she heads up the Community Relations Service which has historically been THE major outreach effort by DOJ. The more I read about this, the more I hear about it from our African-American constituency, the more I am convinced that the President or Claude Allen must take Sherry [redacted]nd her folks down there to help file down the hard political edges. She is in a perfect position and our team doesn't use her enough.

Federal Contractors Seek Liability Shields Trade Group Drafting Bill to Protect Storm Cleanup Workers From Lawsuits

Contractors working on Hurricane Katrina relief efforts for the federal government want Congress to limit their liability from lawsuits and are drafting legislation to seek such protection, industry officials said yesterday.

The Army Corps of Engineers and the Federal Emergency Management Agency have relied on contractors, including several who started work without a contract, to fix the levees in New Orleans and pump water out of the city. But the companies have become concerned about the liability issue because of lawsuits filed against construction firms that helped clean up the World Trade Center after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

"We're asking for some reasonable limits for going into the Gulf Coast and dealing with unknowns," Michael E. Kennedy, general counsel for the Associated General Contractors of America, said after a meeting of the trade group in Washington. "A contractor goes into an unknown situation to remove debris or fix a utility line, and three years from now someone decides they did it improperly."

The Corps has already contracted with more than a dozen companies for work worth $2.8 billion during the next year. Those companies will be joined by dozens more as reconstruction of the region begins.

The bill that the trade group is drafting would limit contractors' liabilities but still hold them responsible for following government regulations, Kennedy said. It would be similar to regulations the Homeland Security Department unveiled last year that protect companies selling security technology from lawsuits triggered by a terrorist act.

Legislation was introduced in the House last week to shield volunteer contractors from liability. The general contractors' bill would extend the coverage to companies working under the government.

"You can consider these contractors as an extension of the government; they are performing a lot of public" duties, Kennedy said.

Robert S. Boh, president of Boh Bros. Construction Co. of New Orleans, said yesterday that he favors such a bill. His firm moved its New Orleans offices to Baton Rouge, La., after the hurricane hit but was soon hired by the Corps to fix the levees and pump water out of the city.

"We're simply showing up and responding to verbal direction," Boh said.
"We're not adequately able to assess the request for risks."

Also yesterday, the Homeland Security Department's inspector general appointed a National Weather Service official who once served as acting chief financial officer of FEMA to lead the office's work overseeing Katrina spending.

Matthew A. Jadacki, who worked at FEMA from 1991 to 2004, will "be responsible for overseeing the management and expenditures of all contracts, grants and governmental operations related to Hurricane Katrina relief efforts," according to a Homeland Security Department statement.

Jadacki's appointment comes as members of Congress continue to debate other ideas for how the government will monitor the flow of money for Gulf Coast reconstruction. The proposals include establishing a special inspector general's office, expanding the duties of the special inspector general for Iraq reconstruction or establishing a chief financial officer.

Some in Congress are concerned that Homeland Security's inspector general's office will not have the resources to monitor the department's regular work, as well as the tens of billions of dollars flowing into the Gulf Coast. Homeland Security Department officials, however, have said the department's IG office is up to the task.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

THROUGH: THE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL

THROUGH: THE ASSOCIATE ATTORNEY GENERAL

FROM: Kelly A. Johnson
Acting Assistant Attorney General
Environment and Natural Resources Division

NEXT WEEK

- Post-Trial Briefing in Largest Coal-Fired Power Plant Enforcement Action
  On September 29, Division lawyers will file proposed findings of fact/conclusions of law in the Clean Air Act enforcement action against American Electric Power. Trial was held in July in this case, which involves allegations that the defendant failed to comply with the Act's New Source Review permitting standards at various power plants in Ohio, West Virginia, and Pennslyvania.

THIS WEEK

- Submission of United States Proposal for Columbia River Dam Proceedings
  On September 20 we will submit our proposal for structuring further proceedings regarding the effects of Columbia River dams on certain threatened salmon species. Last July the Ninth Circuit affirmed the District of Oregon's injunction requiring the Federal Columbia River Power System to provide more summer water spill over specified dams rather than through turbines for power generation, in order to avoid irreparable harm to the salmon species. However, the circuit court directed the district court to consider whether the injunction should be more narrowly tailored.

- Lodging of Consent Decree Arising from Fatal Explosion at Oil Refinery
  On September 20 the United States and the State of Delaware will lodge a consent decree resolving the two governments' remaining claims stemming from a 2001 explosion at the Motiva oil refinery in Delaware City, Delaware, which killed one worker and injured five others. The value of this settlement of the two governments' Clean Air and Clean Water Act claims is over $23 million, including a $12 million fine, $3.96 million in supplemental environmental projects, and approximately $7.5 million in injunctive relief consisting of the implementation of enhanced refinery safety procedures. In addition, an easement will be recorded prohibiting development of 285 acres of riparian forest adjoining the refinery.

- Argument in Nationwide Permit Appeal Affecting Mountaintop Removal Mining
  On September 19 the Fourth Circuit will hear argument on whether a district court erred in holding that a nationwide permit authorizing discharges associated with surface coal mining, including valley fills from mountaintop removal mining, violates Section 404(e) of the Clean Water Act.

LAST WEEK

- Criminal Trial Against Iron Foundry Begins
  On September 12 Atlantic States Cast Iron Pipe Company, a division of McWane, Inc., and five of its current and former managers and supervisors went on trial in the District of New Jersey. The charges include conspiracy to violate the Clean Water Act and Clean Air Act, substantive violations of those and other environmental statutes, and making false statements to EPA and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in connection with unlawful practices at a New Jersey iron foundry. The trial is expected to last four to six months.

- Fish and Wildlife Service Enjoined from Issuing Permits to Take Wolves
  On September 13 the District Court for the District of Columbia enjoined the Fish and Wildlife Service from issuing Endangered Species Act permits authorizing Wisconsin and Michigan to take wolves. The court ruled that the agency had failed to comply with the notice and comment requirements at Section 10 of the Act prior to issuing the permits.

NEXT WEEK

- Post-Trial Briefing in Largest Coal-Fired Power Plant Enforcement Action
  On September 29, Division lawyers will file proposed findings of fact/conclusions of law in the Clean Air Act enforcement action against American Electric Power. Trial was held in July in this case, which involves allegations that the defendant failed to comply with the Act's New Source Review permitting standards at various power plants in Ohio, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania.

THIS WEEK

- Submission of United States Proposal for Columbia River Dam Proceedings
  On September 20 we will submit our proposal for structuring further proceedings regarding the effects of Columbia River dams on certain threatened salmon species. Last July the Ninth Circuit affirmed the District of Oregon's injunction requiring the Federal Columbia River Power System to provide more summer water spill over specified dams rather than through turbines for power generation, in order to avoid irreparable harm to the salmon species. However, the circuit court directed the district court to consider whether the injunction should be more narrowly tailored.

- Lodging of Consent Decree Arising from Fatal Explosion at Oil Refinery
  On September 20 the United States and the State of Delaware will lodge a consent decree resolving the two governments' remaining claims stemming from a 2001 explosion at the Motiva oil refinery in Delaware City, Delaware, which killed one worker and injured five others. The value of this settlement of the two governments' Clean Air and Clean Water Act claims is over $23 million, including a $12 million fine, $3.96 million in supplemental environmental projects, and approximately $7.5 million in injunctive relief consisting of the implementation of enhanced refinery safety procedures. In addition, an easement will be recorded prohibiting development of 285 acres of riparian forest adjoining the refinery.

- Argument in Nationwide Permit Appeal Affecting Mountaintop Removal Mining
  On September 19 the Fourth Circuit heard argument on whether a district court erred in holding that a nationwide permit authorizing discharges associated with surface coal mining, including valley fills from mountaintop removal mining, violates Section 404(e) of the Clean Water Act.

LAST WEEK

- Criminal Trial Against Iron Foundry Begins
  On September 12 Atlantic States Cast Iron Pipe Company, a division of McWane, Inc., and five of its current and former managers and supervisors went on trial in the District of New Jersey. The charges include conspiracy to violate the Clean Water Act and Clean Air Act, substantive violations of those and other environmental statutes, and making false statements to EPA and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in connection with unlawful practices at a New Jersey iron foundry. The trial is expected to last four to six months.

- Fish and Wildlife Service Enjoined from Issuing Permits to Take Wolves
  On September 13 the District Court for the District of Columbia enjoined the Fish and Wildlife Service from issuing Endangered Species Act permits authorizing Wisconsin and Michigan to take (i.e. kill or trap) wolves. The court ruled that the agency had failed to comply with the notice and comment requirements at Section 10 of the Act prior to issuing the permits.

Subject: PREPARED REMARKS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL ALBERTO R. GONZALES AT THE JUDICIAL CONFERENCE

Prepared Remarks of Attorney General Alberto R. Gonzales at the Judicial Conference Washington, D.C. September 20, 2005-9:30 am

Good morning.

Thank you, Justice Stevens.

Yesterday I had the pleasure of meeting with your Executive Committee. The agenda reflected that good progress has been made on issues of importance to the judiciary, but clearly work remains in the areas of sentencing, immigration appeals, and judicial security. I have enjoyed working with Judge Carolyn King, and I look forward to working closely with her successor, Judge Hogan.

It would be customary for me in addressing the conference to comment on substantive issues affecting the judiciary and the Department of Justice. But, as we all know, this is not a normal time, and so I wanted to add my voice to the choir of supporters and admirers of Chief Justice William Rehniquist.

There is a lot I might say about the Chief - he was one of the most distinguished Chief Justices in the history of the Court, and led a colorful and full life outside of work. But being verbose in a tribute to the Chief, whose opinions sometimes seemed shorter than the syllabuses that summarized them, would be like citing foreign law in a tribute to Justice Scalia. So I will keep this short, because that is what he would want me to do.

As a father, I care very much about the influences on my 13 and 10 year old sons, Graham and Gabriel. Role models are so important at this age. The poignant words of eulogy offered by the Chief Justice's family at the memorial service painted a remarkably clear picture of a good man beloved by his family. They obviously learned a lot about life and priorities from their father and grandfather, as did a large cadre of former clerks. I did not have the privilege of knowing the personal side of the Chief Justice as well as some of you, but what I do know makes me a little sad that my sons will not know the man and they will not learn from him the lessons that he taught so many others.

Of course, most of us here knew the Chief Justice as a dedicated public servant-dedicated to the Court and to the rule of law.

As the Attorney General, I'd like to spend a few minutes commenting on the Chief Justice's jurisprudence in law-enforcement cases. Not everyone in this room may agree with Chief Justice Rehnquist's approach to the law in this area, but no one can deny the effect that he had.

In considering law enforcement cases, Chief Justice Rehnquist often advocated legal standards based on objective criteria, and he counseled against post-hoc inquiries into the subjective motivations of police officers and prosecutors. He worked to make legal rules clear and comprehensible for officers serving on the frontlines. He believed that bright-line rules would better protect both citizens and law enforcement.

Chief Justice Rehnquist tried to understand the challenges - often life-threatening challenges - faced by law enforcement. He often cautioned against second guessing the split-second decisions made each day by law-enforcement officers on the street-decisions that he knew were often made in the dangerous context of an arrest or at the scene of a crime.

Perhaps the Chief Justice was particularly attuned to the concerns of law enforcement because of his tenure in the Department of Justice - as Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legal Counsel. I think it more likely that it was due to his mid-western humility, his pragmatism, and his commitment to the separation of powers.

He vigorously defended the independence of the judiciary, but he also respected the enumerated powers and the specific roles afforded by our Constitution to the executive and the legislative branches.

The confirmation hearings of Judge Roberts last week remind us and the public of importance of judges and the Judiciary in our democratic and constitutional systems. The Chief Justice understood the role of the Judiciary in America's great story of freedom, and his life's work reflected it.

As one of his clerks recently wrote, the Chief Justice "regarded himself as the bearer of a great trust and of a heavy obligation of stewardship." As judges, you bear that same trust and obligation.

I appreciate every opportunity to meet with the Judicial Conference to ensure that the Department of Justice does all it can to assist the Conference in the fulfillment of that trust and obligation.

And this year especially, I appreciate the service and the example of Chief Justice Rehnquist. He reminded us that, as public servants, the lives we touch everyday are as important as the legacy we leave in the law.

Thank you.

- CRS Continues to Provide Assistance in Hurricane Katrina Relief Efforts
  Since the week of September 5, 2005, CRS continues to provide assistance to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina by facilitating and promoting cooperative interactions between disaster relief entities and minority communities. Pursuant to FEMA's request, CRS continues to conduct its ongoing cultural competency training program at FEMA's Regional Personnel Processing Center in Atlanta, Georgia to assist in preparing firefighters, park rangers, and other community relations personnel who are being deployed to disaster areas. In addition, Director Freeman and her team of eighteen CRS conciliators have been deployed to both Louisiana and Mississippi and have traveled to Biloxi, Gulfport, and Hattiesburg, Mississippi, as well as to New Orleans and Baton Rouge, Louisiana to meet with joint FEMA Equal Rights and Community Relations counterparts to conduct onsite assessments of resources and services, and to attend and facilitate meetings with respective stakeholders in minority communities. CRS also continues to conduct onsite assessments and provide conflict resolution services in an effort to defuse immediate racial tensions discovered at Red Cross sites throughout Mississippi and Louisiana.

- CRS Responded to Community Concerns in the Aftermath of Hurricane Katrina in Anniston, AL
  On September 19, 2005, at the urgent request of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), CRS was onsite in Anniston, AL to meet with state officials responsible for ownership and operation of the McClellan Military Base, community leaders, and other disaster relief entities to discuss shelter operational concerns and related protests at the McClellan Military Base. The Base is being used to house Hurricane Katrina evacuees. It is reported that the predominately African American evacuees are protesting the living conditions of the shelter, alleging inadequate and lack of accessible facilities, as required by the American Disability Act (ADA).

C. Last Week

- CRS Conducted Arab, Muslim, and Sikh Cultural Awareness Training in Decatur, GA
  On September 14, 2005, Director Freeman and CRS staff were onsite in Decatur, GA to conduct an Arab, Muslim, and Sikh Cultural Awareness Protocol Training for local law enforcement officials, Transportation Security Administration (TSA) officials, the Director of Training for Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), representatives from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the United States Attorney for the Northern District of Georgia, and members of local Arab, Muslim, and Sikh communities.

Federal Contractors Seek Liability Shields Trade Group Drafting Bill to Protect Storm Cleanup Workers From Lawsuits

Contractors working on Hurricane Katrina relief efforts for the federal government want Congress to limit their liability from lawsuits and are drafting legislation to seek such protection, industry officials said yesterday.

The Army Corps of Engineers and the Federal Emergency Management Agency have relied on contractors, including several who started work without a contract, to fix the levees in New Orleans and pump water out of the city. But the companies have become concerned about the liability issue because of lawsuits filed against construction firms that helped clean up the World Trade Center after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

"We're asking for some reasonable limits for going into the Gulf Coast and dealing with unknowns," Michael E. Kennedy, general counsel for the Associated General Contractors of America, said after a meeting of the trade group in Washington. "A contractor goes into an unknown situation to remove debris or fix a utility line, and three years from now someone decides they did it improperly."

The Corps has already contracted with more than a dozen companies for work worth $2.8 billion during the next year. Those companies will be joined by dozens more as reconstruction of the region begins.

The bill that the trade group is drafting would limit contractors' liabilities but still hold them responsible for following government regulations, Kennedy said. It would be similar to regulations the Homeland Security Department unveiled last year that protect companies selling security technology from lawsuits triggered by a terrorist act.

Legislation was introduced in the House last week to shield volunteer contractors from liability. The general contractors' bill would extend the coverage to companies working under the government.

"You can consider these contractors as an extension of the government; they are performing a lot of public" duties, Kennedy said.

Robert S. Boh, president of Boh Bros. Construction Co. of New Orleans, said yesterday that he favors such a bill. His firm moved its New Orleans offices to Baton Rouge, La., after the hurricane hit but was soon hired by the Corps to fix the levees and pump water out of the city.

"We're simply showing up and responding to verbal direction," Boh said.
"We're not adequately able to assess the request for risks."

Also yesterday, the Homeland Security Department's inspector general appointed a National Weather Service official who once served as acting chief financial officer of FEMA to lead the office's work overseeing Katrina spending.

Matthew A. Jadacki, who worked at FEMA from 1991 to 2004, will "be responsible for overseeing the management and expenditures of all contracts, grants and governmental operations related to Hurricane Katrina relief efforts," according to a Homeland Security Department statement.

Jadacki's appointment comes as members of Congress continue to debate other ideas for how the government will monitor the flow of money for Gulf Coast reconstruction. The proposals include establishing a special inspector general's office, expanding the duties of the special inspector general for Iraq reconstruction or establishing a chief financial officer.

Some in Congress are concerned that Homeland Security's inspector general's office will not have the resources to monitor the department's regular work, as well as the tens of billions of dollars flowing into the Gulf Coast. Homeland Security Department officials, however, have said the department's IG office is up to the task.

SUBJECT: Weekly Report for the Week of September 18 - 24, 2005

NEXT WEEK

· Victims

On September 29 - October 1, Office for Victims of Crime staff will attend the MADD National Conference. On September 30, MADD will hold its 25th Anniversary Victim/Survivor Tribute and Candlelight Ceremony.

On September 29 in Norman, OK, Office for Victims of Crime Director Gillis will give keynote remarks at the annual Oklahoma Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect and Healthy Families, sponsored by the U.S. Attorneys' Offices for the District of Kansas and Northern, Western, and Eastern Districts of Oklahoma. The conference also is sponsored by the Oklahoma Center on Child Abuse and Neglect and the Oklahoma State Department of Health. OVC provides funding scholarships that allow victim service providers in Indian Country to receive quality training on child abuse and neglect issues.

On September 26 in Newark, DE, Office for Victims of Crime Deputy Director Greenhouse will speak at the opening session of the Criminal Justice Council's Annual Statewide Crime Victim Service Conference, which will be attended by direct service provider representatives from Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Maryland.

· Crime Prevention

On September 30 in Miami, FL at the Citizens' Crime Watch of Miami-Dade 30th Annual Awards Ceremony, Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) Director Herraiz will give keynote remarks on OJP and BJA initiatives. About 700 members of Citizens' Crime

DOJ_NMG_ 0148132

Watch of Miami-Dade will attend the ceremony that will celebrate 30 years of crime watch service to the residents of Miami-Dade County and recognize crime watchers and law enforcement officers who have helped make a difference in their communities.

· Research
On September 29 in Washington, DC, National Institute of Justice Acting Director Morgan will participate in the Homeland Security Strategy Forum.

· Faith-Based/Juvenile Justice
On September 28 in San Diego, CA at the National Network of Youth Ministries meeting on "Mentor Recruitment in America's Faith-Based Communities," Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Administrator Flores will give remarks emphasizing the need to provide mentors from faith-based communities for at-risk youth to help prevent violence and encourage positive youth development.

THIS WEEK

· *Missing Persons
On September 19 in Tampa, FL, Assistant Attorney General Schofield and National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Acting Director Morgan gave opening remarks at the NIJ Regional Missing Persons Training Conference. Bureau of Justice Assistance staff also participated in the conference, which was the first of two planned events to convene medical examiners and/or coroners, law enforcement personnel, including state and local police officers who work on missing person's cases, managers of state missing children's clearinghouses, family members of long-term missing adults or their advocates, forensic scientists, and key state policymakers. Hosted by the National Forensic Science Technology Center (NFSTC), a member of the NIJ-sponsored Forensic Network, attendees were informed of the resources available to assist jurisdictions with the identification of missing persons and unidentified human remains. While in Tampa, Ms. Schofield toured the NFSTC, hosted a focus group on DNA technology, and held a news conference, along with Paul Perez, U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Florida, to announce the 2005 President's DNA Initiative grants.

· Law Enforcement
On September 23 at the Major Cities Chiefs meeting, Deputy Assistant Attorney General Daley, Bureau of Justice Assistance Director Herraiz, and Acting National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Director Morgan will address the group regarding body armor.

On September 23-28 in Miami Beach, FL, several OJP officials and staff will participate in the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) annual conference. Assistant Attorney General Schofield will join Attorney General Gonzales on the dais at the First General Assembly and will address the National Association of Women Law Enforcement Executives. On September 25, Deputy Assistant Attorney General Daley will address a meeting of the International Association of Directors of Law Enforcement Standards and Training, as well as the Division of State Associations of Chiefs of Police.

DOJ_NMG_ 0148133

Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention staff will facilitate a focus group and several workshop sessions. Office for Victims of Crime Director Gillis will participate in a workshop on enhancing police response to victims, which will highlight a draft national strategy developed by IACP to create systemic change among law enforcement agencies in their response to victims of crime. The strategy represents the culmination of the first phase of a multi-year effort, the implementation of which will take place over the next few years. On September 27, Deputy Assistant Attorney General Daley, Acting NIJ Director Morgan, and BJA staff will conduct a workshop on body armor. Throughout the conference, Bureau of Justice Assistance Director Herraiz and staff will conduct several workshops on various topics including trafficking, information sharing and technology, gangs, police leadership development, and engaging youth.

· Drug Courts
On September 22-23 in Washington, DC, the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA), the National Drug Court Institute, and ONDCP will host a meeting of the state drug court coordinators. This will be the first time that all state-level coordinators have met since the former OJP Drug Court Program Office merged with BJA. BJA Director Herraiz will provide welcoming remarks.

· Statistics
On September 22 in Washington, DC, Bureau of Justice Statistics Director Greenfeld and staff along with the National Center for State Courts' International Division will meet with the information technology delegation of Egypt. Director Greenfeld will give an overview of BJS and its role in compiling statistical data for the federal court system.

· Research
On September 21 in Arlington, VA, Assistant Attorney General Schofield will give opening remarks at the National Institute of Justice Biometrics Consortium Conference.

· Tribal
On September 19-21 in Hinckley, MN, the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) will co-sponsor and participate in the Native American Law Enforcement Summit: Improving Communities Through Multi-Jurisdictional Relationships, which will focus on building collaborative efforts between tribal and nontribal jurisdictions. The summit is modeled after Wisconsin's successful program, which BJA helped to develop, and co-sponsored by the Minnesota Native American Law Enforcement Summit Committee, the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Minnesota, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, and the Minneapolis and St. Paul Police Departments.

· Victims
On September 20 in Greensboro, NC, Office for Victims of Crime Director Gillis will give keynote remarks at the U.S. Attorneys' Statewide Training Conference, sponsored by the U.S. Attorneys' Office for the Eastern, Western, and Middle Districts of North Carolina and the Governor's Crime Commission. The conference will focus on domestic violence and victims of violent crimes.

- Prescription Drugs
On September 19-20 in Boston, MA, Bureau of Justice Assistance staff will attend the Prescription Drug Monitoring Program (PDMP) Northeast Regional Planning Meeting. Representatives of the PDMPs and the DEA will attend the meeting, which will be facilitated by the National Alliance for Model State Drug Laws. Topics to be discussed include information sharing, treatment referrals, performance measures, and issues specific to the participating states.

LAST WEEK

- *Hurricane Katrina
On September 2, the Bureau of Justice Assistance issued 33 supplemental Byrne Justice Assistance Grants (JAG) to state and local agencies in Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi to support immediate law enforcement needs resulting from Hurricane Katrina. BJA also took additional steps to ensure that grantee access to grant funds was not disrupted. Specifically, BJA issued 6-month, no-cost extensions for all grants in Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi, actively worked to resolve all conditional budget clearances on the recently issued FY 2005 grant awards, and removed all programmatic "withholding of funds" special conditions from the FY 2005 JAG awards.

The National Institute of Justice (NIJ) is reprinting 30,000 copies of the booklet Identifying Victims Using DNA: A Guide for Families booklet. In the ten working days after Hurricane Katrina hit the Gulf Coast, NIJ received about 13,000 requests for this publication from Texas and Louisiana officials and charitable organizations. Referring these requests to the Web version was obviously impossible given the amount of damage and lack of access to computers. NIJ anticipates additional requests for print copies.

- *Law Enforcement
On September 13 in Washington, DC, Assistant Attorney General Schofield gave welcoming remarks at the 2005 Summit: Overcoming Language Barriers in Law Enforcement.

On September 13 in Atlanta, GA, Bureau of Justice Assistance Director Herraiz provided opening remarks at the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) National Workshop on Engaging State Law Enforcement and Citizen Corps Leaders: Partnerships, Preparedness, and Prevention. The conference, sponsored by IACP's Volunteers in Police Service Program, provided a forum for law enforcement leaders to engage Citizen Corps partners and to learn about growing trends in crime prevention and community preparedness. Several Citizen Corps and law enforcement representatives from those states directly affected by Hurricane Katrina attended.

- Identity Theft
On September 15-16 in Pittsburgh, PA at the Pennsylvania Crime Prevention Association

DOJ_NMG_ 0148135

Annual Conference, Bureau of Justice Assistance staff conducted a workshop on identity theft. The workshop was presented in conjunction with the National White Collar Crime Center and included an overview of the National Sex Offender Public Registry.

- Victims
  On September 14 in Charleston, WV, Office for Victims of Crime Director Gillis gave keynote remarks at the Victim Assistance Symposium, sponsored by the U.S. Attorneys' Offices for the Southern and Northern Districts of West Virginia, the West Virginia Division of Criminal Justice Services, the West Virginia Regional Community Policing Institute, and the Governor's Committee on Crime Delinquency and Correction.

- Substance Abuse/Reentry
  On September 14 in Cleveland, OH at the annual Treatment Alternatives for Safer Communities Conference, Bureau of Justice Assistance staff gave a presentation on reentry and substance abuse treatment issues.

- Juvenile Justice
  On September 14 in Bethesda, MD at the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration's National Policy Academy on Improving Services for Youth with Mental Health and Co-Occurring Substance Use Disorders Involved with the Juvenile Justice System, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention staff moderated a panel on Diversion and Early Intervention: Promising National Models.

  On September 13 in Philadelphia, PA at the Hamilton Fish Institute on School and Community Violence national conference, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Administrator Flores gave remarks emphasizing the need to coordinate services for at-risk youth to help prevent violence and encourage positive youth development.

  On September 13, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) released Alternatives to the Secure Detention and Confinement of Juvenile Offenders. The latest in OJJDP's online Juvenile Justice Practices Series, the bulletin recommends expanding the range of alternatives to ensure that evidence-based programs are available.

- Information Sharing
  On September 13 in Seattle, WA at the National Center for State Courts' National Court Technology Conference, Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) staff presented on BJA's information sharing initiatives. The conference addressed topics including the Global Justice eXtensible Markup Language Data Model's role in court technology, caseload management, and the Ohio Court Network, the Ohio Supreme Court's information sharing initiative for connecting all Ohio courts to a central information repository and the Internet.

DOJ_NMG_ 0148136

- Prosecution
  On September 12 in Washington, DC, the Bureau of Justice Assistance and the American Prosecutors Research Institute convened the second and final meeting of the Prosecutors Capital Litigation Improvement Initiative curriculum development advisory group. The purpose of the meeting was to finalize the national curriculum, faculty, and materials for the October 24-27 national training and to identify ways to adapt the national training for a state-level audience. Arkansas and Florida have been chosen to pilot the curriculum at the state level.

- Research
  On September 12 in St. Petersburg, FL, National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Acting Director Morgan gave opening remarks at NIJ's National Conference on the Science, Technology, and the Law. Bureau of Justice Assistance staff also participated in the conference, which was sponsored by the National Clearinghouse for Science, Technology, and the Law at Stetson University College of Law. The purpose of the conference was to improve the understanding of the interaction of science, technology, and law among scientists, law enforcement, attorneys, and judges, and to facilitate further discussion of emerging legal and scientific issues and trends in the use of scientific evidence in the courtroom.

LONG-RANGE EVENTS

- In late September 2005, the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) will announce the estimates for criminal victimization in the United States during 2004. These annual estimates, which BJS has produced since 1973, provide the national measure of the public's exposure to crime and its consequences.

- In late September, the Bureau of Justice Statistics will announce almost $24 million in funding to the states, DC, and territories for cooperative agreements to provide support for improvements in criminal history records nationwide. This grant program, begun in 1995 following passage of the Brady Act, is designed to assist states in building the infrastructure to support nationwide background checks for firearms purchases and for other purposes, such as employment or volunteering with children, where a background check is required.

- On October 1-7 in London, England, National Institute of Justice staff will meet with officials from the Home Office and the Forensics Science Service regarding various aspects of England's National DNA Forensics Program. They also will meet with members of the London Metropolitan Police Force to discuss operational aspects of the program.

- On October 5 in Fairfax, VA, National Institute of Justice Acting Director Morgan will participate in a meeting on less lethal technologies sponsored by the Commission on Accreditation of Law Enforcement Agencies. This is one in an ongoing series of meetings involving the Bureau of Justice Assistance, the National Institute of Justice, the COPS Office, and the major law enforcement professional organizations to develop best practices with regard to deployment and employment of less lethal technologies.

- On October 8-11 in Washington, DC, the Bureau of Justice Assistance, the National Crime Prevention Council, and the Crime Prevention Coalition of America will sponsor the National Conference on Preventing Crime to celebrate 25 years of nationwide crime prevention successes, identify current crime issues and ways to address them, and renew commitments to prevention as a priority in reducing crime in the future.

- On October 27 in Charlotte, NC, Office for Victims of Crime Director Gillis will give remarks at the U.S. Attorney's Annual Training Conference, sponsored by the Eastern District of North Carolina.

- In October 2005, the Bureau of Justice Statistics will release Prisoners in 2004, an annual report published by the federal government since 1926. This report provides the counts of prisoners under the jurisdiction of federal and state corrections authorities, as well as data on capacity of state and federal prisons.

- In October 2005, the Bureau of Justice Statistics will release Census of Tribal Justice Agencies in Indian Country, 2002, which provides the first complete listing of all tribal justice agencies in Indian country, including law enforcement, juvenile justice, courts and prosecution, and corrections services and describes agency resources and workloads.

- On November 7 in Austin, TX, Office for Victims of Crime Director Gillis will give remarks at the Office of the Texas Attorney General's Conference.

- On November 16 in North Star, AK at the Alaska Youth Court Conference, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Administrator Flores will give remarks commending the attendees and members of the United Youth Courts of Alaska for the support they provide the state's 19 youth courts, and emphasizing how this alternative promotes positive development for youth who have committed nonviolent offenses.

- On November 16 in Albany, NY at the Town of Colonie Youth Court graduation ceremony, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Administrator Flores will give remarks commending the graduates for their willingness to volunteer, under adult supervision, as jurists, clerk/bailiffs, prosecutors, defenders, and judges, and emphasizing the importance of their role in the decision-making process for holding first-time juvenile offenders accountable for their actions through peer-operated sentencing.

- In November 2005, the Bureau of Justice Statistics, together with the National Center for Education Statistics in DoEd, will release the annual Indicators of School Crime and Safety, which provides national estimates of student and teacher victimization at school.

- During fall 2005, the Bureau of Justice Statistics will conduct for the first time the Census of Medical Examiners and Coroners Offices, which will focus on the medico-legal investigation of deaths and obtain information on agency personnel, expenditures, functions, workload, and needs. This census also will collect data on the number of unidentified remains held by medical examiner/coroner offices and their related policies and procedures for handling such remains.

- This fall, the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) will host its annual regional conferences on "Demonstrating the Value of America's Justice Initiatives." BJA Director Herraiz and staff will attend these conferences to meet with representatives of State Administering Agencies and criminal justice practitioners throughout the country. The goal is to share information about BJA initiatives and promising practices. The conferences will be held on October 31-November 2 in Charlotte, NC (BJA Southeast Region), November 7-9 in Minneapolis, MN (BJA Midwest Region), November 28-30 in Anaheim, CA (BJA West Region), and December 12-14 in Newport, RI (BJS Northeast Region).

- By year-end 2005, the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) will conduct a study of recidivism of domestic violence defendants charged in state courts in 2002. This recidivism study will track defendants following their arrest for a domestic violence offense in 2002, to evaluate how many were rearrested, convicted, and sentenced to incarceration during the follow-up period. With the cooperation of participating local prosecutor offices, the study will assess the percentage of defendants rearrested for repeated domestic violence against the same victim. The study also will examine the impact of alternative sentencing programs, such as anger management and batterer's intervention on subsequent offending.

- On January 9-13 in Washington, DC, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) Administrator Flores will give opening and closing remarks at OJJDP's National Conference on Building on Success: Providing Today's Youth with Opportunities for a Better Tomorrow, co-sponsored by the Coordinating Council on Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

- In January 2006, the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), in collaboration with DHS, will initiate the Computer Security Survey of U.S. businesses, a survey of 36,000 businesses nationwide on the impact of computer crime, theft, and fraud. BJS also will examine e-mail stalking and harassment in the workplace.

Federal Contractors Seek Liability Shields Trade Group Drafting Bill to Protect Storm Cleanup Workers From Lawsuits

By [redacted]
Washington Post Staff Writer
Tuesday, September 20, 2005; A07

Contractors working on Hurricane Katrina relief efforts for the federal government want Congress to limit their liability from lawsuits and are drafting legislation to seek such protection, industry officials said yesterday.

The Army Corps of Engineers and the Federal Emergency Management Agency have relied on contractors, including several who started work without a contract, to fix the levees in New Orleans and pump water out of the city. But the companies have become concerned about the liability issue because of lawsuits filed against construction firms that helped clean up the World Trade Center after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

"We're asking for some reasonable limits for going into the Gulf Coast and dealing with unknowns," Michael E. Kennedy, general counsel for the Associated General Contractors of America, said after a meeting of the trade group in Washington. "A contractor goes into an unknown situation to remove debris or fix a utility line, and three years from now someone decides they did it improperly."

The Corps has already contracted with more than a dozen companies for work worth $2.8 billion during the next year. Those companies will be joined by dozens more as reconstruction of the region begins.

The bill that the trade group is drafting would limit contractors' liabilities but still hold them responsible for following government regulations, Kennedy said. It would be similar to regulations the Homeland Security Department unveiled last year that protect companies selling security technology from lawsuits triggered by a terrorist act.

Legislation was introduced in the House last week to shield volunteer contractors from liability. The general contractors' bill would extend the coverage to companies working under the government.

"You can consider these contractors as an extension of the government; they are performing a lot of public" duties, Kennedy said.

Robert S. Boh, president of Boh Bros. Construction Co. of New Orleans, said yesterday that he favors such a bill. His firm moved its New Orleans offices to Baton Rouge, La., after the hurricane hit but was soon hired by the Corps to fix the levees and pump water out of the city.

"We're simply showing up and responding to verbal direction," Boh said.
"We're not adequately able to assess the request for risks."

Also yesterday, the Homeland Security Department's inspector general appointed a National Weather Service official who once served as acting chief financial officer of FEMA to lead the office's work overseeing Katrina spending.

Matthew A. Jadacki, who worked at FEMA from 1991 to 2004, will "be responsible for overseeing the management and expenditures of all contracts, grants and governmental operations related to Hurricane Katrina relief efforts," according to a Homeland Security Department statement.

Jadacki's appointment comes as members of Congress continue to debate other ideas for how the government will monitor the flow of money for Gulf Coast reconstruction. The proposals include establishing a special inspector general's office, expanding the duties of the special inspector general for Iraq reconstruction or establishing a chief financial officer.

Some in Congress are concerned that Homeland Security's inspector general's office will not have the resources to monitor the department's regular work, as well as the tens of billions of dollars flowing into the Gulf Coast. Homeland Security Department officials, however, have said the department's IG office is up to the task.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

THROUGH: THE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL

THROUGH: THE ASSOCIATE ATTORNEY GENERAL

FROM: Eileen J. O'Connor
Assistant Attorney General

SUBJECT: Weekly Report

A. NEXT WEEK

- Nothing to report.

B. THIS WEEK

- Second Circuit to Hear Argument in "Lease-Strip" Tax Shelter Case. On September 22, 2005, the Second Circuit will hear oral argument in the Long-Term Capital case. Long-Term Capital, a defunct hedge fund, appealed from a decision of the district court that it improperly deducted $106 million in losses it claimed to have incurred in connection with its participation in a "lease-strip" abusive tax shelter. Nationwide, the IRS estimates that $1 billion is at stake in lease-stripping tax shelters, including over $100 million in other lease-strip cases the Tax Division is presently handling. [Long-Term Capital et al. v. United States (United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit)].

C. LAST WEEK

- IRS Timely Assessed Taxes in Son of Boss Cases. On September 16, the Court of Federal Claims held, in a "Son of Boss" abusive tax shelter case, that the IRS's issuance of a notice against a partnership (known as a Final Partnership Administrative Adjustment, or "FPAA") suspends the statute of limitations for the assessment of taxes against all partners. Approximately one-half of the plaintiffs involved in Son of Boss cases handled by the Tax Division have asserted that the issuance of an FPAA did not suspend the statute, and that the IRS had therefore not timely assessed the taxes at issue in their cases. The IRS estimates that Son of Boss transactions may have cost the Federal Treasury more than $6 billion in tax, not including interest and penalties. [AD Global Fund, LLC v. United States (Court of Federal Claims)]

DOJ_NMG_ 0148196

- Two Accountants in International Tax-Fraud Scheme Sentenced and One Scheme Client Convicted. On September 16, a federal judge in the Western District of Washington sentenced two certified public accountants, Tara Lagrand and Lynden Bridges, to prison for 24 months and 18 months respectively. The two previously pled guilty to aiding and assisting the filing of false tax returns in connection with their promotion and sale of an international tax fraud scheme. They performed accounting services for Anderson's Ark and Associates (AAA), a Hoodsport, Washington-based organization with offices in Costa Rica, that sold fraudulent tax shelters over the Internet to more than 1,500 clients and funneled money through bank accounts in Costa Rica, Canada, Austria, and Latvia. [United States v. Keith Anderson, et al. (W.D. Wash.)]. On September 13, a Milwaukee, Wisconsin, jury convicted the first AAA client to be prosecuted, Glen J. Murphy, of seven counts of filing false tax returns and three counts of willfully failing to file income tax returns. Using the AAA schemes, Murphy created fictitious losses or expenses to reduce or eliminate his tax obligations for seven years and failed to file individual income tax returns for three years. [United States v. Glen Murphy (United States District Court for the Eastern District of Wisconsin)].

The proposals include establishing a special inspector general's office, expanding the duties of the special inspector general for Iraq reconstruction or establishing a chief financial officer.

Some in Congress are concerned that Homeland Security's inspector general's office will not have the resources to monitor the department's regular work, as well as the tens of billions of dollars flowing into the Gulf Coast. Homeland Security Department officials, however, have said the department's IG office is up to the task.

109TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. _____

To limit liability for volunteers and those providing goods and services for disaster relief, and for other purposes.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. CORNYN introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To limit liability for volunteers and those providing goods and services for disaster relief, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Good Samaritan Liability Improvement and Volunteer Encouragement Act of 2005'' or the ''GIVE Act of 2005''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) It is in the national interest to encourage individuals to volunteer, and particularly to assist victims of national disasters.

(2) The exposure of potential volunteers, their employers, and those who would use the services of volunteers under existing law to compensatory and punitive damages for negligent acts discourages the provision of these services.

(3) The availability of damages in these circumstances for actions that constitute gross negligence creates uncertainty concerning the actual conduct that might cause liability to be imposed on volunteers.

(4) Potential liability for acts of volunteers discourages the employers or business partners of potential volunteers from permitting those potential volunteers to provide disaster relief services.

(5) Potential liability for acts of volunteers discourages entities that might use the services provided by volunteers from doing so.

(6) Well-founded fear of liability under existing law for providing goods, equipment, access to facilities, and other in-kind contributions discourages those who would donate them from doing so.

(7) Well-founded fear of liability under existing law for providing goods discourages governmental and intergovernmental entities from providing needed disaster relief goods.

(8) Well-founded fear of liability for punitive damages under existing law discourages governmental and intergovernmental entities from providing needed disaster relief goods and discourages potential volunteers from providing volunteer services to disaster victims.

(9) Fear of compensatory and punitive damages for providing volunteer services deters potential volunteers from States located outside the national disaster area from providing volunteer services.

(10) Fear of compensatory and punitive damages for providing volunteer services deters potential foreign volunteers from providing disaster relief services.

(11) Any lessening of liability for volunteers providing disaster relief services, their employers and business partners, and entities utilizing their services should maintain adequate incentives for each of these classes of persons or entities to avoid causing harm.

(12) Unwillingness to provide volunteer services in the face of uncertain liability substantially affects, burdens, and deters interstate commerce and travel.

(13) Unwillingness of employers and business partners to allow their employees and business partners to provide volunteer and disaster relief services in the face of uncertain liability substantially affects, burdens, and deters interstate commerce and travel.

(14) Unwillingness of persons, entities, or organizations to accept volunteer and disaster relief services from volunteers in the face of uncertain liability substantially affects, burdens, and deters interstate commerce and travel.

(15) Unwillingness by foreigners to provide volunteer and disaster relief services in the face of uncertain liability substantially affects, burdens, and deters foreign commerce and travel.

(16) Unless Congress provides uniform standards to address disasters that could occur in any State or combination of States, potential volunteers and others will not be certain which laws would govern their providing disaster relief services, which would substantially affect, burden, and deter interstate and foreign commerce and travel in the event of a national disaster.

TITLE I—DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEER PROTECTION

SEC. 101. DEFINITIONS.

In this title—

(1) the term ''compensation''—

(A) means monetary or other compensation of any kind provided in exchange for an individual's services; and

(B) does not include—

(i) reasonable reimbursement or allowance for expenses actually incurred by such individual;

(ii) provision of reasonable supplies, lodging, or transportation to such an individual; or

(iii) the ordinary salary or compensation paid to such an individual by the employer of the individual while the individual is on leave from performing ordinary duties for the employer of the individual in order to provide disaster relief services;

(2) the term ''declared disaster'' means—

(A) a public health emergency declared by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under section 319 of the Public Health Services Act (42 U.S.C. 247d);

(B) a public health emergency, or a risk of such emergency, as determined by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with clause (i) or (ii) of section 2811(b)(3)(A) of the Public Health Services Act (42 U.S.C. 300hh-11(b)(3)(A)), as transferred by section 503(5) of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (6 U.S.C. 313(5)); or

(C) an emergency or major disaster declared by the President under section 401 or 501 of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5170, 5191);

(3) the term ''disaster relief goods'' means either—

(A) those goods provided in preparation for, response to, or recovery from a declared disaster and reasonably necessary to such preparation, response, or recovery; or

(B) those goods defined by a supplemental declaration under this title;

(4) the term ''disaster relief services'' means services or assistance provided in preparation for, response to, or recovery from a declared disaster, including but not limited to health, medical, firefighting, rescue, reconstruction, and any other services or assistance specified by a supplemental declaration under this title as necessary or desirable to prepare for, respond to, or recover from such declared disaster;

(5) the term ''disaster relief volunteer'' means an individual—

(A) who provides disaster relief services or assistance in connection with a declared disaster without expectation or receipt of compensation in exchange for providing such services or assistance; and

(B) who, to the extent required by the appropriate authorities of a State (even if such State is not the State in which the volunteer provides services or assistance) or, if, and to the extent, specified in a supplemental declaration under this title, a foreign country, is licensed, certified, or authorized to provide the relevant services or assistance;

(6) the term ''non-economic loss'' means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature;

(7) the term ''supplemental declaration'' means a declaration under section 108 regarding the scope of a declared disaster;

(8) the term ''State'' means each of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, and any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

SEC. 102. LIABILITY OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEERS.

A disaster relief volunteer shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of the volunteer that is within the scope of the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster if—

(1) the harm was not caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the State requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to—

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

SEC. 103. LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER OR PARTNER OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEER.

An employer or business partner of a disaster relief volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster.

SEC. 104. LIABILITY OF HOST OR ENABLING PERSON, ENTITY, OR ORGANIZATION.

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental or intergovernmental entity, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a disaster relief volunteer to enable the volunteer to render disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster shall not be liable for any act or omission of a disaster relief volunteer.

SEC. 105. LIABILITY OF GOVERNMENTAL AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL ENTITIES FOR DONATIONS OF DISASTER RELIEF GOODS .

A governmental or intergovernmental entity that donates disaster relief goods to an agency or instrumentality of the United States in connection with a declared disaster shall not be liable for harm caused by such donated goods if the harm was not caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by the governmental or intergovernmental entity.

SEC. 106. LIMITATION ON PUNITIVE AND NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES BASED ON ACTIONS OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEERS AND GOVERNMENTAL OR INTERGOVERNMENTAL DONORS.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—Punitive damages may not be awarded in any civil action against a disaster relief volunteer or governmental or intergovernmental entity unless a claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the damages to the claimant were proximately caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by either—

(1) a disaster relief volunteer in an action brought for harm caused by the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster; or

(2) a governmental or intergovernmental entity for harm caused by disaster relief goods donated by such governmental or intergovernmental entity in connection with a declared disaster.

(b) NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Liability for non-economic loss in any civil action brought against either a disaster relief volunteer for harm caused the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster, or a governmental or intergovernmental entity for harm caused by disaster relief goods donated by such governmental or intergovernmental entity in connection with a declared disaster, if permitted under section 102 or section 105, shall be determined in accordance with paragraph (2).

(2) AMOUNT OF LIABILITY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of damages for non-economic loss allocated to a disaster relief volunteer or governmental or intergovernmental entity defendant shall be in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant, determined in accordance with subparagraph (B), for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable.

(B) PERCENTAGE.—In a civil action described in paragraph (1), for purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of each defendant found liable for harm to the claimant.

(C) SEPARATE JUDGMENTS.—The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant for any non-economic loss.

SEC. 107. JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ALLEGATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—A claimant in a civil action for an act or omission outside of the limitations on liability under this title shall attach 1 or more sworn affidavits, or documents containing admissible evidence of facts, sufficient to withstand a motion for summary judgment, to the claimant's complaint.

(b) INITIAL REVIEW.—After a defendant files an answer in a civil action described in subsection (a), but before allowing discovery, the trial judge shall determine whether, as a matter of law, the allegations of a claimant, as recorded in the affidavit or documents attached to the complaint, raise a genuine issue of material fact.

SEC. 108. SUPPLEMENTAL DECLARATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the event of a declared disaster, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a supplemental declaration.

(b) TEMPORAL EFFECT.—A supplemental declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such declared disaster shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such declared disaster shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such declared disaster.

(c) GEOGRAPHIC AND OTHER CONDITIONS.—A supplemental declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such declared disaster shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the relevant Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest.

SEC. 109. CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this title shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in section 6(6) of the Volunteer Protection Act (42 U.S.C. 14505(6)), may be entitled to under that Act. Neither shall anything in this title be construed to confer any private right of action or to abrogate or limit any protection with respect to either liability or damages that any disaster relief volunteer or governmental or intergovernmental entity may be entitled to under any other provision of law.

TITLE II—VOLUNTEER PROTECTION IMPROVEMENTS

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS.

In this title—

(1) the term ''aircraft'' has the meaning given that term in section 40102(6) of title 49, United States Code;

(2) the term ''equipment'' includes mechanical equipment, electronic equipment, and office equipment;

(3) the term ''facility'' means any real property, including any building, improvement, or appurtenance;

(4) the term ''motor vehicle'' has the meaning given that term in section 30102(6) of title 49, United States Code;

(5) the term ''nonprofit organization'' means—

(A) any organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code; or

(B) any not-for-profit organization organized and conducted for public benefit and operated primarily for charitable, civic, educational, religious, welfare, or health purposes;

(6) the term ''person'' includes any governmental or other entity; and

(7) the term ''State'' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

SEC. 202. LIABILITY PROTECTION FOR ACTIONS OF VOLUNTEERS GENERALLY.

Section 4 of the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 (42 U.S.C. 14503) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(3), by striking ''willful or criminal misconduct, gross negligence, reckless misconduct'' and inserting the following: ''willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct'';

(2) by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

''(c) EFFECT ON LIABILITY OF NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—No nonprofit organization shall be liable for the acts or omissions of a volunteer with respect to harm caused to any person unless—

''(1) the acts or omissions of the volunteer are not subject to the limitations on liability under subsection (a); and

''(2) the nonprofit organization has willfully disregarded or been recklessly indifferent to the reasonable expectations or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer.''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(g) JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ALLEGATIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A claimant shall attach 1 or more sworn affidavits, or documents containing admissible evidence of facts sufficient to withstand a motion for summary judgment, to the claimant's complaint in any case where the claimant alleges that —

''(A) the acts or omissions of a volunteer are not within the limitations of liability under subsection (a);

''(B) a nonprofit organization is not covered by the limitations of liability under subsection (c); or

''(C) the acts or omissions of a volunteer are within the conduct described in subsections (e)(1) or (f)(1).

''(2) INITIAL REVIEW.—After a defendant files an answer in a case described in paragraph (1), the trial judge shall determine whether, as a matter of law, the allegations of a claimant, as recorded in the affidavit or documents attached to the complaint, raise a genuine issue of material fact.''.

SEC. 203. CHARITABLE DONATIONS LIABILITY REFORM FOR IN-KIND CONTRIBUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) LIABILITY FOR DONATIONS OF EQUIPMENT TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), a person shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death that results from the use of equipment donated by such person to a nonprofit organization.

(B) APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall apply with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law.

(2) LIABILITY FOR PROVIDING USE OF FACILITIES TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), a person shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death occurring at a facility owned or operated by the person in connection with a use of such facility by a nonprofit organization, if—

(i) the use occurs outside of the normal use of the facility by the person;

(ii) such injury or death occurs during a period that such facility is used by the nonprofit organization; and

(iii) the person authorized the use of such facility by the nonprofit organization.

(B) APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall apply—

(i) with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law; and

(ii) regardless of whether a nonprofit organization pays for the use of a facility.

(3) LIABILITY FOR PROVIDING USE OF A MOTOR VEHICLE OR AIRCRAFT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), a person shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death occurring as a result of the operation of an aircraft or a motor vehicle the person loaned to a nonprofit organization, if—

(i) the use occurs outside of the normal use of the aircraft or motor vehicle by the person;

(ii) such injury or death occurs during a period that such motor vehicle or aircraft is used by a nonprofit organization; and

(iii) the person authorized the use by the nonprofit organization of motor vehicle or aircraft that resulted in the injury or death.

(B) APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall apply—

(i) with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law; and

(ii) regardless of whether a nonprofit organization pays for the use of the aircraft or motor vehicle.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to an injury or death that results from an act or omission of a person that constitutes willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct.

(c) JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ALLEGATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A claimant in a civil action for an act or omission outside of the limitations on liability under this section shall attach 1 or more sworn affidavits, or documents containing admissible evidence of facts, sufficient to withstand a motion for summary judgment, to the claimant's complaint.

(2) INITIAL REVIEW.—After a defendant files an answer in a civil action described in paragraph (1), the trial judge shall determine whether, as a matter of law, the allegations of a claimant, as recorded in the affidavit or documents attached to the complaint, raise a genuine issue of material fact.

(d) SUPERSEDING PROVISION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2) and subsection (e), this section preempts the laws of any State to the extent that such laws are inconsistent with this section, except that this section shall not preempt any State law that provides additional protection for a person for an injury or death described in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subsection (a) with respect to which the conditions specified in such paragraph apply.

(2) LIMITATION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to supersede any Federal or State health or safety law.

(e) ELECTION OF STATE REGARDING NONAPPLICABILITY.—A provision of this section shall not apply to any civil action in a State court against a person in which all parties are citizens of the State if such State enacts a statute—

(1) citing the authority of this section;

(2) declaring the election of such State that such provision shall not apply to such civil action in the State; and

(3) containing no other provisions.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall apply to liability for injury or death caused by equipment donated, facilities used, or aircraft or motor vehicles loaned on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 102. LIABILITY OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEERS.

A disaster relief volunteer shall not be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of the volunteer that is within the scope of the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster if—

(1) the harm was not caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by the volunteer; and

(2) the harm was not caused by the volunteer operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the State requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to—

(A) possess an operator's license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

SEC. 103. LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER OR PARTNER OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEER.

An employer or business partner of a disaster relief volunteer shall not be liable for any act or omission of such volunteer within the scope of the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster.

SEC. 104. LIABILITY OF HOST OR ENABLING PERSON, ENTITY, OR ORGANIZATION.

A person, entity, or organization, including a governmental or intergovernmental entity, that works with, accepts services from, or opens its facilities to a disaster relief volunteer to enable the volunteer to render disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster shall not be liable for any act or omission of a disaster relief volunteer.

SEC. 105. LIABILITY OF GOVERNMENTAL AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL ENTITIES FOR DONATIONS OF DISASTER RELIEF GOODS .

A governmental or intergovernmental entity that donates disaster relief goods to an agency or instrumentality of the United States in connection with a declared disaster shall not be liable for harm caused by such donated goods if the harm was not caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by the governmental or intergovernmental entity.

SEC. 106. LIMITATION ON PUNITIVE AND NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES BASED ON ACTIONS OF DISASTER RELIEF VOLUNTEERS AND GOVERNMENTAL OR INTERGOVERNMENTAL DONORS.

(a) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—Punitive damages may not be awarded in any civil action against a disaster relief volunteer or governmental or intergovernmental entity unless a claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the damages to the claimant were proximately caused by willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct by either—

(1) a disaster relief volunteer in an action brought for harm caused by the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster; or

(2) a governmental or intergovernmental entity for harm caused by disaster relief goods donated by such governmental or intergovernmental entity in connection with a declared disaster.

(b) NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Liability for non-economic loss in any civil action brought against either a disaster relief volunteer for harm caused the activities of the volunteer to provide or facilitate the provision of disaster relief services in connection with a declared disaster, or a governmental or intergovernmental entity for harm caused by disaster relief goods donated by such governmental or intergovernmental entity in connection with a declared disaster, if permitted under section 102 or section 105, shall be determined in accordance with paragraph (2).

(2) AMOUNT OF LIABILITY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of damages for non-economic loss allocated to a disaster relief volunteer or governmental or intergovernmental entity defendant shall be in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant, determined in accordance with subparagraph (B), for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable.

(B) PERCENTAGE.—In a civil action described in paragraph (1), for purposes of determining the amount of non-economic loss, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of each defendant found liable for harm to the claimant.

(C) SEPARATE JUDGMENTS.—The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant for any non-economic loss.

SEC. 107. JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ALLEGATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—A claimant in a civil action for an act or omission outside of the limitations on liability under this title shall attach 1 or more sworn affidavits, or documents containing admissible evidence of facts, sufficient to withstand a motion for summary judgment, to the claimant's complaint.

(b) INITIAL REVIEW.—After a defendant files an answer in a civil action described in subsection (a), but before allowing discovery, the trial judge shall determine whether, as a matter of law, the allegations of a claimant, as recorded in the affidavit or documents attached to the complaint, raise a genuine issue of material fact.

SEC. 108. SUPPLEMENTAL DECLARATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the event of a declared disaster, the President, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, or the Secretary of Homeland Security may issue a supplemental declaration.

(b) TEMPORAL EFFECT.—A supplemental declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such declared disaster shall have such temporal effect as the President or the Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest, including providing that such declared disaster shall have an effective date earlier than the date of the declaration or determination of such declared disaster.

(c) GEOGRAPHIC AND OTHER CONDITIONS.—A supplemental declaration may provide that, for purposes of this section, such declared disaster shall have such geographic or other conditions as the President or the relevant Secretary may deem necessary or appropriate to further the public interest.

SEC. 109. CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this title shall be construed to abrogate or limit any protection that a volunteer, as defined in section 6(6) of the Volunteer Protection Act (42 U.S.C. 14505(6)), may be entitled to under that Act. Neither shall anything in this title be construed to confer any private right of action or to abrogate or limit any protection with respect to either liability or damages that any disaster relief volunteer or governmental or intergovernmental entity may be entitled to under any other provision of law.

TITLE II—VOLUNTEER PROTECTION IMPROVEMENTS

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS.

In this title—

(1) the term ''aircraft'' has the meaning given that term in section 40102(6) of title 49, United States Code;

(2) the term ''equipment'' includes mechanical equipment, electronic equipment, and office equipment;

(3) the term ''facility'' means any real property, including any building, improvement, or appurtenance;

(4) the term ''motor vehicle'' has the meaning given that term in section 30102(6) of title 49, United States Code;

(5) the term ''nonprofit organization'' means—

(A) any organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code; or

(B) any not-for-profit organization organized and conducted for public benefit and operated primarily for charitable, civic, educational, religious, welfare, or health purposes;

SEC. 202. LIABILITY PROTECTION FOR ACTIONS OF VOLUNTEERS GENERALLY.

Section 4 of the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 (42 U.S.C. 14503) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(3), by striking ''willful or criminal misconduct, gross negligence, reckless misconduct'' and inserting the following: ''willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct'';

(2) by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

''(c) EFFECT ON LIABILITY OF NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—No nonprofit organization shall be liable for the acts or omissions of a volunteer with respect to harm caused to any person unless—

''(1) the acts or omissions of the volunteer are not subject to the limitations on liability under subsection (a); and

''(2) the nonprofit organization has willfully disregarded or been recklessly indifferent to the reasonable expectations or safety of the individual harmed by the volunteer.''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(g) JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ALLEGATIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A claimant shall attach 1 or more sworn affidavits, or documents containing admissible evidence of facts sufficient to withstand a motion for summary judgment, to the claimant's complaint in any case where the claimant alleges that —

''(A) the acts or omissions of a volunteer are not within the limitations of liability under subsection (a);

''(B) a nonprofit organization is not covered by the limitations of liability under subsection (c); or

''(C) the acts or omissions of a volunteer are within the conduct described in subsections (e)(1) or (f)(1).

''(2) INITIAL REVIEW.—After a defendant files an answer in a case described in paragraph (1), the trial judge shall determine whether, as a matter of law, the allegations of a claimant, as recorded in the affidavit or documents attached to the complaint, raise a genuine issue of material fact.''.

SEC. 203. CHARITABLE DONATIONS LIABILITY REFORM FOR IN-KIND CONTRIBUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) LIABILITY FOR DONATIONS OF EQUIPMENT TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), a person shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death that results from the use of equipment donated by such person to a nonprofit organization.

(B) APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall apply with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law.

(2) LIABILITY FOR PROVIDING USE OF FACILITIES TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), a person shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death occurring at a facility owned or operated by the person in connection with a use of such facility by a nonprofit organization, if—

(i) the use occurs outside of the normal use of the facility by the person;

(ii) such injury or death occurs during a period that such facility is used by the nonprofit organization; and

(iii) the person authorized the use of such facility by the nonprofit organization.

(B) APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall apply—

(i) with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law; and

(ii) regardless of whether a nonprofit organization pays for the use of a facility.

(3) LIABILITY FOR PROVIDING USE OF A MOTOR VEHICLE OR AIRCRAFT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), a person shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death occurring as a result of the operation of an aircraft or a motor vehicle the person loaned to a nonprofit organization, if—

(i) the use occurs outside of the normal use of the aircraft or motor vehicle by the person;

(ii) such injury or death occurs during a period that such motor vehicle or aircraft is used by a nonprofit organization; and

(iii) the person authorized the use by the nonprofit organization of motor vehicle or aircraft that resulted in the injury or death.

(B) APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall apply—

(i) with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law; and

(ii) regardless of whether a nonprofit organization pays for the use of the aircraft or motor vehicle.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to an injury or death that results from an act or omission of a person that constitutes willful, knowing, or reckless misconduct.

(c) JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ALLEGATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A claimant in a civil action for an act or omission outside of the limitations on liability under this section shall attach 1 or more sworn affidavits, or documents containing admissible evidence of facts, sufficient to withstand a motion for summary judgment, to the claimant's complaint.

(2) INITIAL REVIEW.—After a defendant files an answer in a civil action described in paragraph (1), the trial judge shall determine whether, as a matter of law, the allegations of a claimant, as recorded in the affidavit or documents attached to the complaint, raise a genuine issue of material fact.

(d) SUPERSEDING PROVISION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2) and subsection (e), this section preempts the laws of any State to the extent that such laws are inconsistent with this section, except that this section shall not preempt any State law that provides additional protection for a person for an injury or death described in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subsection (a) with respect to which the conditions specified in such paragraph apply.

(2) LIMITATION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to supersede any Federal or State health or safety law.

(e) ELECTION OF STATE REGARDING NONAPPLICABILITY.—A provision of this section shall not apply to any civil action in a State court against a person in which all parties are citizens of the State if such State enacts a statute—

(1) citing the authority of this section;

(2) declaring the election of such State that such provision shall not apply to such civil action in the State; and

(3) containing no other provisions.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall apply to liability for injury or death caused by equipment donated, facilities used, or aircraft or motor vehicles loaned on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Since we have not met in a while, I think it would be a good idea if we plan to meet tomorrow to touch base. While there is not a great deal going on and several of our regulars are out, I would find it useful.

As Jim has a conflict at our usual time - and as he generally has the most to report - we will plan to meet at 2 pm tomorrow. If you can't make that time, please let me know if you have anything that you need me or the group to know. Thanks much. - Liz p.s. We'll still meet in our conference room (5710).

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

THROUGH: THE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL

THROUGH: THE ASSOCIATE ATTORNEY GENERAL

FROM: Bradley J. Schlozman
Acting Assistant Attorney General

SUBJECT: Weekly Report[1] for the Week ending September 16, 2005

NEXT WEEK

- Sentencing Scheduled in New York Involuntary Servitude Case:
On September 29th, sentencing is scheduled to occur in United States v. Zavala and Ibanez (Eastern District of New York). On November 5, 2004, defendants Mariluz Zavala and Jorge Ibanez pled guilty to conspiracy to commit forced labor and document servitude, conspiracy to recruit, harbor, transport and house undocumented workers, engaging in extortionate credit transaction and transferring false alien registration cards. Between June 1, 1999, and June 21, 2004, defendants Zavala and Ibanez orchestrated a scheme to illegally obtain visas for Peruvian aliens seeking to come into the United States. The defendants charged the aliens a smuggling fee ranging from $6,000 to $13,000. By confiscating their passports and threatening to turn them over to authorities, the defendants compelled the aliens to perform work for them and other employers. The defendants would keep most of their paychecks, leaving the aliens with approximately $50 or less per week on which to live and support their families.

THIS WEEK

- Sentencing Scheduled in Hawaii Human Trafficking Case*:
On September 22nd, sentencing is scheduled to occur in United States v. Maka (District of Hawaii). On December 14, 2004, defendant Lueleni Fetongi Maka was convicted on charges of violating four counts of 18 U.S.C. § 1590 (human trafficking with respect to involuntary servitude and forced labor), four counts of 18 U.S.C. § 1584 (involuntary servitude), four counts of 18 U.S.C. § 1589 (forced labor), one count of 18 U.S.C. § 1592 (unlawful conduct with documents in furtherance of trafficking, involuntary servitude and forced labor), and nine counts of 8 U.S.C. § 1324 (alien harboring and smuggling). The defendant, a landscape maintenance contractor and rock wall builder transported Tongan males to Hawaii where they were forced to work in his businesses to repay the transporting expenses. The victims were housed in shacks on the subject's pig farm and were required to work in excess of 12 hours a day, six days a week for approximately $60 to $100 per week.

LAST WEEK

- 2005 Law Enforcement Limited English Proficiency (LEP) Summit Held:
On September 13th, the Coordination and Review Section (COR) hosted the Civil Rights Division's 2005 Law Enforcement Limited English Proficiency (LEP) Summit from 9:00 to 5:00 at the Office of Justice Programs auditorium. The 2005 Summit provided an opportunity for attendees to participate in small working group discussions, which allowed for an exchange of promising practices and strategies, sharing of learning experiences, and identification of useful technologies and tools for effectively communicating with LEP persons. The Acting Assistant Attorney General for the Civil Rights Division and the Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Justice Programs gave short presentations to open the day's events. More than 50 individuals from the law enforcement-related agencies and associations (including corrections associations and agencies) from the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area and from around the country attended.

  About half of the attendees completed COR's evaluation form, and 85 percent rated the 2005 Summit as "outstanding" or "excellent." Some of the comments on the evaluation forms included a request that COR develop a guide for facilitators to use with the LEP DVD as part of a training program; to develop a model Language Access Plan; to develop a roll-call video; to publish the article that was distributed at the 2005 Summit, "Lost in Translation - Not Just a Movie," in law enforcement and corrections periodicals; and to include more materials concerning probation, juvenile justice, and corrections.

- Indictment Returned in Iowa Human Trafficking Case:
On September 7th, a federal grand jury returned a one count indictment in United States v. Bowie (Northern District of Iowa), charging defendant Demont Bowie with violating 18 U.S.C. § 1201 (kidnapping). The defendant kidnaped a thirteen year old girl in Minneapolis and took her to Iowa for prostitution. The defendant allegedly threatened and beat the girl during the ordeal.

- Acquittal in New York Color of Law Case:
  On September 8th, trial in United States v. Rhodes (Western District of New York), resulted in the acquittal of defendant Robert Rhodes, an officer with the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection of the Department of Homeland Security, on charges of violating 18 U.S.C. § 242. On July 21st, defendant Rhodes allegedly assaulted a Chinese National tourist while at the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls.

- Guilty Plea in Michigan Human Trafficking Case*:
  On September 8th, in United States v. Maksimenko and Aronov (Eastern District of Michigan), defendant Michail Aronov pled guilty to conspiring with others to compel Eastern Europeans to serve as exotic dancers through forced labor, trafficking, document servitude, and obstruction (18 U.S.C. §§ 1589, 1590, 1592, and 1519). Aronov also pled guilty to conspiring to illegally recruit, transport, and harbor the women (8 U.S.C. § 1324) as well as to launder the proceeds of the compelled servitude and immigration crimes (18 U.S.C. §§ 1956 and 1957). Co-defendant Maksimenko remains charged with forced labor. On September 9th, in a separate but related case, defendants Evgeny Prokopenko and Alesander Bondarenko entered guilty pleas to visa fraud (18 U.S.C. § 1546). The federal grand jury heard additional testimony on September 13th. The defendants smuggled a Ukranian woman into the United States and then coerced her into working at bars dancing for customers in the Detroit area. The defendants sexually assaulted her as part of their scheme to intimidate her. The investigation is continuing.

- Sentencing in California Color of Law Case:
  On September 13th, in United States v. Jackson (Northern District of California), defendant Charles Jackson, a Special Agent with the Federal Protective Service, was sentenced to 24 months in prison to be followed by two years supervised release for his conviction on charges of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1519 for falsifying records. Previously, in a separate but related case, defendant Peter Taoy, a United States Federal Protective Service officer, was sentenced to 18 months in prison to be followed by 3 years supervised release for his guilty plea to violating one count of 18 U.S.C. § 241 (conspiracy) and one count of 18 U.S.C. § 1001 (false statements); and co-defendant John Haire, also a Federal Protective Service officer, was sentenced to six months home detention, three years probation and fined $3,000 for his guilty plea to violating one count of 18 U.S.C. § 242. Defendants Taoy and Haire entered guilty pleas for causing Petrie to be jailed for six days on false charges of assaulting a police officer. They invented a story about motorist Jeffrey Petri trying to run them down to explain why one of the officers shot at the Petri's car.

- Indictment Returned in Texas Color of Law Case:
  On September 14th, a federal grand jury returned a two count indictment in United States v. Sullivan (Southern District of Texas), charging defendant Scott Anthony Sullivan, a United States Border Patrol Agent, with violating two counts of 18 U.S.C. § 242. Defendant Sullivan was indicted for allegedly sexually assaulting a young woman who had been detained at a border checkpoint and for subjecting another minor female to multiple unreasonable searches.

- Grand Jury Returns Indictment in Texas Human Trafficking Case:
  On September 15th, a federal grand jury returned a one count indictment in United States v. Salazar, et al. (Southern District of Texas), charging defendants Gerardo Salazar, Salvador Fernando Molina Garcia, Angel Moreno Salazar and Jose Luis Moreno Salazar with conspiring to commit sex trafficking of young Mexican women and girls. The defendants allegedly lured young Mexican girls and women into the United States under false pretenses, then forced them into prostitution, using physical violence and threats to maintain strict control over them.

- Division Issued Findings in Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (CRIPA) Investigations
  On September 9th, the Division issued findings in its CRIPA investigations of three juvenile facilities, the Logansport Juvenile Intake/Diagnostic Facility, the Plainfield Juvenile Correctional Facility, and the South Bend Juvenile Correctional Facility. The Division found constitutionally inadequate mental health care at all three facilities and constitutionally inadequate protection from harm practices at the Plainfield and South Bend facilities. The Division also found that special education services at South Bend and Plainfield violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

- Acquittal in New York Color of Law Case:
  On September 8th, trial in United States v. Rhodes (Western District of New York), resulted in the acquittal of defendant Robert Rhodes, an officer with the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection of the Department of Homeland Security, on charges of violating 18 U.S.C. § 242. On July 21st, defendant Rhodes allegedly assaulted a Chinese National tourist while at the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls.

- Guilty Plea in Michigan Human Trafficking Case*:
  On September 8th, in United States v. Maksimenko and Aronov (Eastern District of Michigan), defendant Michail Aronov pled guilty to conspiring with others to compel Eastern Europeans to serve as exotic dancers through forced labor, trafficking, document servitude, and obstruction (18 U.S.C. §§ 1589, 1590, 1592, and 1519). Aronov also pled guilty to conspiring to illegally recruit, transport, and harbor the women (8 U.S.C. § 1324) as well as to launder the proceeds of the compelled servitude and immigration crimes (18 U.S.C. §§ 1956 and 1957). Co-defendant Maksimenko remains charged with forced labor. On September 9th, in a separate but related case, defendants Evgeny Prokopenko and Alesander Bondarenko entered guilty pleas to visa fraud (18 U.S.C. § 1546). The federal grand jury heard additional testimony on September 13th. The defendants smuggled a Ukranian woman into the United States and then coerced her into working at bars dancing for customers in the Detroit area. The defendants sexually assaulted her as part of their scheme to intimidate her. The investigation is continuing.

- Sentencing in California Color of Law Case:
  On September 13th, in United States v. Jackson (Northern District of California), defendant Charles Jackson, a Special Agent with the Federal Protective Service, was sentenced to 24 months in prison to be followed by two years supervised release for his conviction on charges of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1519 for falsifying records. Previously, in a separate but related case, defendant Peter Taoy, a United States Federal Protective Service officer, was sentenced to 18 months in prison to be followed by 3 years supervised release for his guilty plea to violating one count of 18 U.S.C. § 241 (conspiracy) and one count of 18 U.S.C. § 1001 (false statements); and co-defendant John Haire, also a Federal Protective Service officer, was sentenced to six months home detention, three years probation and fined $3,000 for his guilty plea to violating one count of 18 U.S.C. § 242. Defendants Taoy and Haire entered guilty pleas for causing Petrie to be jailed for six days on false charges of assaulting a police officer.

- Indictment Returned in Texas Color of Law Case:
  On September 14th, a federal grand jury returned a two count indictment in United States v. Sullivan (Southern District of Texas), charging defendant Scott Anthony Sullivan, a United States Border Patrol Agent, with violating two counts of 18 U.S.C. § 242. Defendant Sullivan was indicted for allegedly sexually assaulting a young woman who had been detained at a border checkpoint and for subjecting another minor female to multiple unreasonable searches.

- Grand Jury Returns Indictment in Texas Human Trafficking Case:
  On September 15th, a federal grand jury returned a one count indictment in United States v. Salazar, et al. (Southern District of Texas), charging defendants Gerardo Salazar, Salvador Fernando Molina Garcia, Angel Moreno Salazar and Jose Luis Moreno Salazar with conspiring to commit sex trafficking. The defendants allegedly lured young Mexican girls and women into the United States under false pretenses, then forced them into prostitution, using physical violence and threats to maintain strict control over them.

- Division Issued Findings in Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (CRIPA) Investigations
  On September 9th, the Division issued findings in its CRIPA investigations of three juvenile facilities, the Logansport Juvenile Intake/Diagnostic Facility, the Plainfield Juvenile Correctional Facility, and the South Bend Juvenile Correctional Facility. The Division found constitutionally inadequate mental health care at all three facilities and constitutionally inadequate protection from harm at the Plainfield and South Bend facilities. The Division also found that special education services at South Bend and Plainfield violate the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Scott, et al.:
Last time we spoke a few months ago, you guys mentioned an anticipated surplus for OASG that we may want to use for 1 time costs (like computers, blackberried, copiers, etc.). Can we get an assessment of this as it stands? If we do have a surplus, I take it we would have about 10 days to use those funds wisely?

Thanks.

LISA SYLVESTER, CNN CORRESPONDENT (voice-over): Thirty-six-year- old Julie Myers has worked for the Treasury Department investigating financial crimes, the Commerce Department enforcing expert control laws, as an associate of Kenneth Starr and served as an assistant U.S. attorney in New York.

But critics say she has virtually no experience on immigration issues and is not qualified to run the

But critics say she has virtually no experience on immigration issues and is not qualified to run the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, the country's second largest investigative agency.

SEN. DICK DURBIN (D), ILLINOIS: Ms. Myers appears to be an extraordinarily talented person, as a lawyer, but she is being asked to -- we're being asked to give her permission to head an agency with 20,000 employees and a $4 billion budget.

SYLVESTER: Rank and file immigration agents say morale is already low.

Perception is that Myers was nominated to the post in part because of her close political ties. Her uncle is General Richard Myers, chairman of the giant chiefs of staff.

Her nomination may have flown under the radar if it weren't for former FEMA director, Michael Brown, another Bush appointee, who was roundly criticized for handling Hurricane Katrina relief.

CHARLES SHOWALTER, NATIONAL HOMELAND SECURITY COUNCIL: Those are issues that have clearly demonstrated that people who do not have the concept of what needs to be done are put into a position and the job doesn't get done effectively.

CHARLES GREENBERGER, CENTER FOR HEALTH AND HOMELAND SECURITY: Look, she's going to be in charge of, for example, an office of intelligence, is within her shop. And the intelligence office is supposed to predict bad people who are going to come into the United States. We've already seen on 9/11 how bad people coming into the United States can be a disaster for us.

SYLVESTER: Myers is on her honeymoon, unreachable. But she does have her supporters.

CHUCK CANTERBURY, FRATERNAL ORDER OF POLICE: As an administrator, her job is to locate the people within the agency that have the expertises that she needs, the career individuals that have worked in those areas.
I think her management skills is what sets Julie aside and ahead of a lot of other candidates for that job.

SYLVESTER: Some senators say they were underwhelmed during her confirmation hearing.

SEN. FRANK LAUTENBERG (D), NEW JERSEY: Her answers didn't give us any confidence that she had either the experience or knowledge to take on this kind of an assignment.

(END VIDEOTAPE)

SYLVESTER: Senators have not scheduled a vote on her confirmation. A White House spokeswoman told CNN, "She's well-known and respected throughout the law enforcement community and she has a proven track record as an effective manager," end quote.

But Senator Lautenberg points out that while she ran a department with 170 people with a budget of $25 million, she is now being asked to run a department with 22,000 people and $4 billion budget -- Lou.

DOBBS: And one has to question how much experience she could have. How long was she in charge of any part of homeland security?

SYLVESTER: Well, what she has done is sort of jumped from job to job.

She worked at the Treasury Department, the Commerce Department. Now, there is a requirement that you have to have five years of law enforcement background. But as one source put it to me today, she essentially cobbled her position, taking 18 months from here, 15 months from here, to come up with that five years -- Lou.

DOBBS: Remarkable, particularly in the wake of all that we've learned from the Hurricane Katrina disaster and the importance of having exceptional leadership, experienced leadership at the top of agencies.

It looks like this is going to be a partisan battle. That seems to be unfortunate. Senator Voinovich, well-known Republican, questioned her credentials but has since apparently indicated he is going to be supportive. Is that correct?

SYLVESTER: That is correct. Over the weekend he said he had a chance to speak to her and that she was able to convince him and essentially win her vote. But I think you're dead right on this, that this is going to come down to Democrats versus Republicans on this one. She has a lot of friends in high places.

DOBBS: One would hope that on an important post such as this, that it would not have to be a partisan battle. But if that be the only way in which there can be oversight, so be it. Lisa Sylvester, thank you.

109TH CONGRESS

1ST SESSION

H. R. 3541

To affirm that the United States may not engage in torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JULY 28, 2005

Mr. CONYERS (for himself, Mr. SKELTON, Mr. SERRANO, Ms. ZOE LOFGREN of California, Mr. MEEHAN, and Ms. LINDA T. SáNCHEZ of California) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services, and in addition to the Committee on International Relations, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

---

A BILL

To affirm that the United States may not engage in torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Promoting Responsible Interrogation Standards Enforcement Act of 2005" or "PRISE Act of 2005".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS.

(a) Findings.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) After World War II, the United States and its allies created a new international legal order based on respect for human rights. One of its fundamental tenets was a universal prohibition on torture and ill treatment.

(2) On June 26, 2003, the International Day in Support of Victims of Torture, President George W. Bush stated, "The United States is committed to the world-wide elimination of torture and we are leading this fight by example. I call on all governments to join with the United States and the community of law-abiding nations in prohibiting, investigating, and prosecuting all acts of torture and in undertaking to prevent other cruel and unusual punishment.".

(3) The United States is a party to the Geneva Conventions, which prohibit torture, cruel treatment, or outrages upon personal dignity, in particular, humiliating and degrading treatment, during armed conflict.

(4) The United States is a party to 2 treaties that prohibit torture and cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, as follows:

(A) The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, done at New York on December 16, 1966.

(B) The Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, done at New York on December 10, 1984.

(5) The United States filed reservations to the treaties described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (4) stating that the United States considers itself bound to prevent "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment" to the extent that phrase means the cruel, unusual, and inhumane treatment or punishment prohibited by the 5th amendment, 8th amendment, or 14th amendment to the Constitution.

(6) Army Regulation 190-8 entitled "Enemy Prisoners of War, Retained Personnel, Civilian Internees and Other Detainees" provides that "Inhumane treatment is a serious and punishable violation under international law and the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ). . . . All prisoners will receive humane treatment without regard to race, nationality, religion, political opinion, sex, or other criteria. The following acts are prohibited: murder, torture, corporal punishment, mutilation, the taking of hostages, sensory deprivation, collective punishments, execution without trial by proper authority, and all cruel and degrading treatment. . . . All persons will be respected as human beings. They will be protected against all acts of violence to include rape, forced prostitution, assault and theft, insults, public curiosity, bodily injury, and reprisals of any kind. . . . This list is not exclusive.".

(7) The Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation of the Department of the Army states that "acts of violence or intimidation, including physical or mental torture, threats, insults, or exposure to inhumane treatment as a means of or an aid to interrogation" are "illegal". Such Manual defines "infliction of pain through . . . bondage (other than legitimate use of restraints to prevent escape)", "forcing an individual to stand, sit, or kneel in abnormal positions for prolonged periods of time", "food deprivation", and "any form of beating" as "physical torture", defines "abnormal sleep deprivation" as "mental torture", and prohibits the use of such tactics under any circumstances.

(8) The Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation of the Department of the Army states that "Use of torture and other illegal methods is a poor technique that yields unreliable results, may damage subsequent collection efforts, and can induce the source to say what he thinks the interrogator wants to hear. Revelation of use of torture by U.S. personnel will bring discredit upon the U.S. and its armed forces while undermining domestic and international support for the war effort. It may also place U.S. and allied personnel in enemy hands at a greater risk of abuse by their captors.".

(b) Sense of Congress.—It is the sense of Congress that the reservation filed by the United States to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment ("Convention") regarding the obligation under Article 16 of the Convention—

(1) should be interpreted as a substantive definition of the term "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment" under Article 16 of the Convention and not as a geographical limitation on the obligations of the United States under Article 16 of the Convention; and

(2) should reflect the original intent of the Senate and preserve the objectives and purposes of the Convention.

SEC. 3. HUMANE TREATMENT OF DETAINEES.

(a) Prohibition on Torture or Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.—(1) No person in the custody or under the physical control of the United States shall be subject to torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the status of any person under the Geneva Conventions or whether any person is entitled to the protections of the Geneva Conventions.

(b) Rules, Regulations, and Guidelines.—(1) Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall prescribe the rules, regulations, or guidelines necessary to ensure compliance with the prohibition in subsection (a)(1) by the members of the Armed Forces and by any person providing services to the Department of Defense on a contract basis.

(2) The Secretary shall submit to the congressional defense committees the rules, regulations, or guidelines prescribed under paragraph (1), and any modifications to such rules, regulations, or guidelines—

(A) not later than 30 days after the effective date of such rules, regulations, guidelines, or modifications; and

(B) in a manner and form that will protect the national security interests of the United States.

(c) Report to Congress.—(1) The Secretary of Defense shall submit, on a timely basis and not less than twice each year, a report to Congress on the circumstances surrounding any investigation of a possible violation of the prohibition in subsection

(a)(1) by a member of the Armed Forces or by a person providing services to the Department of Defense on a contract basis.

(2) A report required under paragraph (1) shall be submitted in a manner and form that—

(A) will protect the national security interests of the United States; and

(B) will not prejudice any prosecution of an individual involved in, or responsible for, a violation of the prohibition in subsection (a)(1).

(d) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) The term "cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment" means the cruel, unusual, and inhumane treatment or punishment prohibited by the 5th amendment, 8th amendment, or 14th amendment to the Constitution.

(2) The term "congressional defense committees" means the Committees on Armed Services and the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

(3) The term "Geneva Conventions" means—

(A) the Convention for the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded and Sick in Armed Forces in the Field, done at Geneva August 12, 1949 (6 UST 3114);

(B) the Convention for the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded, Sick, and Shipwrecked Members of Armed Forces at Sea, done at Geneva August 12, 1949 (6 UST 3217);

(C) the Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, done at Geneva August 12, 1949 (6 UST 3316); and

(D) the Convention Relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, done at Geneva August 12, 1949 (6 UST 3516).

(4) The term "torture" has the meaning given that term in section 2340 of title 18, United States Code.

SEC. 4. ADHERENCE BY UNITED STATES TO OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE CONVENTION AGAINST TORTURE AND OTHER CRUEL, INHUMAN OR DEGRADING TREATMENT OR PUNISHMENT.

(a) Limitation on Assistance With Respect to Obtaining Information From Individuals.—An officer or employee of the United States may not provide assistance to the government of a foreign country for the purpose of obtaining information from an individual held in custody by the foreign government if the officer or employee has reason to believe that torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment will be utilized to obtain the information.

(b) Limitation on Assistance With Respect to Transfer of Individuals.—An officer or employee of the United States may not encourage or otherwise assist the government of a foreign country to transfer, render, expel, return, or extradite an individual to another country if the officer or employee has reason to believe that the individual would be in danger of being subjected to torture in violation of Article 3 of the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term "assist" includes the provision of personnel, information, equipment, financial assistance, or any other form of assistance.

I did some checking after speaking with Neil. According to JCON the last blackberry upgrade was a courtesy of JCON. All blackberry upgrades now will be at the expense of the component. You have to make certain the blackberry selected is supported by JCON. The new blackberry that has been tested for the rollout is the 7250. I need to verify this information with the blackberry team then we can proceed. All other software and hardware upgrades are taken care of through JCON. We should also be able to upgrade and include the voice/phone feature on the blackberry.

We can also order 2 additional laptops for this office and possibly desktop scanners. I am willing as is I am sure Aloma & Deborah to have scanners hooked to their desktop. I cannot think of any other items that would be of a great expense to help with the surplus.

We can do a count and get the paperwork going on new blackberry's.

Rebecca and Jim, I sent to leg counsel the text we worked out on Monday.
Attached here is what should be the same text I sent leg counsel, with the only change from what we discussed being a correction in the citation of the Volunteer Protection Act which leg counsel tells me he spotted and corrected. Please have whomever appropriate look this over to make sure it conforms to what we agreed on on Monday (which was the text of what I sent last Friday, with the only change that references be made to "providing or FACILITATING THE PROVISION OF" instead of just "providing"). I'll do the same here, and if it looks in good shape from your end I'll forward it to the Full Committee folks over here.

Would you like to respond to this? I am around if needed, but don't particularly want to engage on items we don't support - except if they are interested in hearing our reasons for opposing.

CORNYN INTRODUCES BILL TO PROTECT DISASTER VOLUNTEERS

GIVE Act would protect volunteers from frivolous lawsuits

WASHINGTON-U.S. Sen. John Cornyn (R-Texas), a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, introduced legislation on Wednesday to protect volunteers from liability when working on disaster recovery efforts. The Good Samaritan Liability Improvement and Volunteer Encouragement Act of 2005, or GIVE Act, provides special protections for disaster relief volunteers and those who facilitate their efforts.

"This legislation ensures that as preparations for Hurricane Rita and recovery from Hurricane Katrina continue, the thousands of volunteers who respond won't be fearful of frivolous litigation when they want to help a neighbor in need," Cornyn said. "So I hope this bill will encourage further volunteer efforts in our nation, and facilitate the generosity of the American people to assist in disaster responses."

"The GIVE Act will ensure that one of our country's greatest assets - the willingness of the American people to give generously to their neighbors in need - is not inhibited by one of its greatest liabilities - a broken civil justice system," Cornyn said. "In the wake of Hurricane Katrina, we have seen this charitable spirit shine brighter than ever."

Cornyn noted that in the short time since Katrina hit the Gulf Coast, Americans have given more than $600 million to disaster relief efforts.
Millions of Americans have sent money, tools and equipment, clothing, food, and water, have volunteered medical or other services, and otherwise helped in whatever manner they could.

"Perhaps most heartwarming of all, thousands of Americans have opened their homes to those who lost everything. I am particularly proud of my home state of Texas - where more than 250,000 of our neighbors sought shelter - and where virtually all of them have been able to find it," Cornyn said. "But just as America enjoys a culture of giving and volunteering, she also faces a culture of litigation. And this 'sue first, ask questions later' culture has produced an environment of fear that often gives pause to those who would otherwise wish to lend a helping hand."

On a related note, Sen. Cornyn introduced the Respirator Access Assurance Act (S. 1406), or 'RAAA," in July, which will further support disaster recovery efforts by ensuring availability of necessary respiratory protective devices. It would prevent liability from any claim for defective design or warning if the respirator has received approval from the appropriate government regulatory body, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, or "NIOSH." The legislation would not in any way affect litigation relating to a device not manufactured in compliance with the NIOSH-approved design and labeling.

See below for a summary of the GIVE Act:

The GIVE Act

The Cornyn legislation offers a comprehensive solution to the fear of litigation that unnecessarily burdens volunteers and often prevents the provision of necessary goods and services to victims of national disasters and to all those in need.

It will provide protection for volunteers across the nation, particularly those working in response to National disasters such as 9/11 or Hurricane Katrina. Specifically, the GIVE Act will provide that:

* Disaster relief volunteers, generally, are not liable for harm caused in carrying out their volunteer activities in connection with disaster relief unless their act or omission constitutes willful, knowing or reckless misconduct; * Medical and other professionals can volunteer their services for disaster relief services based on being licensed in their home state regardless of where the declared disaster occurred; * A disaster relief volunteer is protected from liability even if the volunteer is not working for a specific non profit organization; * Disaster relief volunteers can offer their services without subjecting their business partners or employers to liability; * Disaster relief volunteers are protected from punitive damages if actions are not willful, knowing or reckless, and non-economic damages are apportioned according to percentage of fault; * Non-profit organizations are not liable for the acts or omissions of their volunteers unless the organization has willfully disregarded or is recklessly indifferent to the safety of the individual harmed.
* All donors of goods or equipment - whether businesses, non-profits, or individuals - are not liable for harm caused by donating those items unless they acted with willful, knowing or reckless misconduct; and * All litigation that proceeds despite any protections under this Act or under the Volunteer Protection Act requires a high level of specificity and documentation in the claim and a review by a judge that the claim raises - as a matter of law - a genuine issue of material fact.
* The provisions of the Act will not supercede existing provisions of state and federal law that may provide greater protections for volunteers and expressly allows states to opt-out from the provisions of this act.

Volunteerism Has Long Been Associated with America

"When an American asks for the cooperation of his fellow citizens, it is seldom refused; and I have often seen it afforded spontaneously, and with great good will." - Alexis de Tocqueville

* From its beginning, the United States has been a generous nation. As measured by financial contributions, giving by Americans is at an all-time high - totaling almost $250 Billion in 2004 - a 5 percent increase over the previous year. The chair of Giving USA notes that "about 70 to 80 percent of Americans contribute annually to at least one charity."
* Every year, millions of Americans volunteer their time and their own personal services to charity - in soup kitchens, in schools, at health clinics and wherever there is need.
* In the wake of the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina, we have seen America's charitable spirit shine more than ever before. In the short time since the Hurricane hit the Gulf Coast, Americans have given more than $600 million to disaster relief efforts, sent needed supplies and opened their doors to those who have lost everything.
* Millions of Americans wish to donate food, send badly needed tools and equipment, contribute clothing, volunteer medical or other services and otherwise help in whatever manner they can when their neighbors face a national disaster like Katrina or 9/11.

Despite Some Protections Volunteers Face Risk of Liability and Litigation

* Eight years ago, the late Sen. Paul Coverdell (R-Ga.) sponsored and successfully worked to enact the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 - legislation that protects Volunteers from many frivolous lawsuits. However, as helpful and well-intentioned as this legislation was, more needs to be done to sufficiently protect all those lending a hand to those in need.
* In response to Hurricane Katrina, the Red Cross and the Salvation Army have had difficulty coordinating efforts to set up emergency housing in private homes for evacuees, because of liability issues. - Quad City Times, September 20, 2005 * A jury in Milwaukee found the Catholic Archdiocese liable because a volunteer for a Catholic lay organization, driving her own car, ran a red light and caused an accident while delivering a statue of the Virgin Mary to an invalid person. Although the church does not direct the activities of this group, the jury decided the Archdiocese should pay $17 million to the victim. - Milwaukee Journal Sentinel, February 23, 2005 * In the midst of administering chest compressions to a dying woman several days after Hurricane Katrina struck, Dr. Mark N.
Perlmutter was ordered to stop by a federal official because he wasn't registered with the Federal Emergency Management Agency. "I begged him to let me continue," said Perlmutter, who left his home and practice as an orthopedic surgeon in Pennsylvania to come to Louisiana and volunteer to care for hurricane victims. "People were dying, and I was the only doctor on the tarmac where scores of non-responsive patients lay on stretchers. Two patients died in front of me... I asked him to let me stay until I was replaced by another doctor, but he refused. He said he was afraid of being sued."

Sen. Cornyn is a member of the following key Senate Committees: Armed Services; Judiciary; Budget; Small Business and Entrepreneurship; and Joint Economic. He is also the chairman of the subcommittees on Immigration, Border Security and Citizenship and Emerging Threats and Capabilities. He served previously as Texas Attorney General and Texas Supreme Court justice.

CORNYN INTRODUCES BILL TO PROTECT DISASTER VOLUNTEERS

GIVE Act would protect volunteers from frivolous lawsuits

WASHINGTON-U.S. Sen. The Good Samaritan Liability Improvement and Volunteer Encouragement Act of 2005, or GIVE Act, provides special protections for disaster relief volunteers and those who facilitate their efforts.

"This legislation ensures that as preparations for Hurricane Rita and recovery from Hurricane Katrina continue, the thousands of volunteers who respond won't be fearful of frivolous litigation when they want to help a neighbor in need," Cornyn said. "So I hope this bill will encourage further volunteer

CORNYN INTRODUCES BILL TO PROTECT DISASTER VOLUNTEERS

GIVE Act would protect volunteers from frivolous lawsuits

WASHINGTON—U.S. Sen. John Cornyn (R-Texas), a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, introduced legislation on Wednesday to protect volunteers from liability when working on disaster recovery efforts. The Good Samaritan Liability Improvement and Volunteer Encouragement Act of 2005, or GIVE Act, provides special protections for disaster relief volunteers and those who facilitate their efforts.

"This legislation ensures that as preparations for Hurricane Rita and recovery from Hurricane Katrina continue, the thousands of volunteers who respond won't be fearful of frivolous litigation when they want to help a neighbor in need," Cornyn said. "So I hope this bill will encourage further volunteer efforts in our nation, and facilitate the generosity of the American people to assist in disaster responses."

"The GIVE Act will ensure that one of our country's greatest assets – the willingness of the American people to give generously to their neighbors in need – is not inhibited by one of its greatest liabilities – a broken civil justice system," Cornyn said. "In the wake of Hurricane Katrina, we have seen this charitable spirit shine brighter than ever."

Cornyn noted that in the short time since Katrina hit the Gulf Coast, Americans have given more than $600 million to disaster relief efforts. Millions of Americans have sent money, tools and equipment, clothing, food, and water, have volunteered medical or other services, and otherwise helped in whatever manner they could.

"Perhaps most heartwarming of all, thousands of Americans have opened their homes to those who lost everything. I am particularly proud of my home state of Texas – where more than 250,000 of our neighbors sought shelter – and where virtually all of them have been able to find it," Cornyn said. "But just as America enjoys a culture of giving and volunteering, she also faces a culture of litigation. And this 'sue first, ask questions later' culture has produced an environment of fear that often gives pause to those who would otherwise wish to lend a helping hand."

On a related note, Sen. Cornyn introduced the Respirator Access Assurance Act (S. 1406), or 'RAAA," in July, which will further support disaster recovery efforts by ensuring availability of necessary respiratory protective devices. It would prevent liability from any claim for defective design or warning if the respirator has received approval from the appropriate government regulatory body, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, or "NIOSH." The legislation would not in any way affect litigation relating to a device not manufactured in compliance with the NIOSH-approved design and labeling.

See below for a summary of the GIVE Act:

The GIVE Act

The Cornyn legislation offers a comprehensive solution to the fear of litigation that unnecessarily burdens volunteers and often prevents the provision of necessary goods and services to victims of national disasters and to all those in need.

It will provide protection for volunteers across the nation, particularly those working in response to National disasters such as 9/11 or Hurricane Katrina. Specifically, the GIVE Act will provide that:

- Disaster relief volunteers, generally, are not liable for harm caused in carrying out their volunteer activities in connection with disaster relief unless their act or omission constitutes willful, knowing or reckless misconduct;
- Medical and other professionals can volunteer their services for disaster relief services based on being licensed in their home state regardless of where the declared disaster occurred;
- A disaster relief volunteer is protected from liability even if the volunteer is not working for a specific non profit organization;
- Disaster relief volunteers can offer their services without subjecting their business partners or employers to liability;
- Disaster relief volunteers are protected from punitive damages if actions are not willful, knowing or reckless, and non-economic damages are apportioned according to percentage of fault;
- Non-profit organizations are not liable for the acts or omissions of their volunteers unless the organization has willfully disregarded or is recklessly indifferent to the safety of the individual harmed.
- All donors of goods or equipment – whether businesses, non-profits, or individuals – are not liable for harm caused by donating those items unless they acted with willful, knowing or reckless misconduct; and
- All litigation that proceeds despite any protections under this Act or under the Volunteer Protection Act requires a high level of specificity and documentation in the claim and a review by a judge that the claim raises – as a matter of law – a genuine issue of material fact.
- The provisions of the Act will not supercede existing provisions of state and federal law that may provide greater protections for volunteers and expressly allows states to opt-out from the provisions of this act.

Volunteerism Has Long Been Associated with America

"When an American asks for the cooperation of his fellow citizens, it is seldom refused; and I have often seen it afforded spontaneously, and with great good will." - Alexis de Tocqueville

- From its beginning, the United States has been a generous nation. As measured by financial contributions, giving by Americans is at an all-time high – totaling almost $250 Billion in 2004 – a 5 percent increase over the previous year. The chair of Giving USA notes that "about 70 to 80 percent of Americans contribute annually to at least one charity."
- Every year, millions of Americans volunteer their time and their own personal services to charity - in soup kitchens, in schools, at health clinics and wherever there is need.
- In the wake of the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina, we have seen America's charitable spirit shine more than ever before. In the short time since the Hurricane hit the Gulf Coast, Americans have given more than $600 million to disaster relief efforts, sent needed supplies and opened their doors to those who have lost everything.
- Millions of Americans wish to donate food, send badly needed tools and equipment, contribute clothing, volunteer medical or other services and otherwise help in whatever manner they can when their neighbors face a national disaster like Katrina or 9/11.

Despite Some Protections Volunteers Face Risk of Liability and Litigation

- Eight years ago, the late Sen. Paul Coverdell (R-Ga.) sponsored and successfully worked to enact the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 – legislation that protects Volunteers from many frivolous lawsuits. However, as helpful and well-intentioned as this legislation was, more needs to be done to sufficiently protect all those lending a hand to those in need.

I did some checking after speaking with Neil. According to JCON the last blackberry upgrade was a courtesy of JCON. All blackberry upgrades now will be at the expense of the component. You have to make certain the blackberry selected is supported by JCON. The new blackberry that has been tested for the rollout is the 7250. I need to verify this information with the blackberry team then we can proceed. All other software and hardware upgrades are taken care of through JCON. We should also be able to upgrade and include the voice/phone feature on the blackberry.

We can also order 2 additional laptops for this office and possibly desktop scanners. I am willing as is I am sure Aloma & Deborah to have scanners hooked to their desktop. I cannot think of any other items that would be of a great expense to help with the surplus.

We can do a count and get the paperwork going on new blackberry's.

One thing that might be helpful is new blackberries. The ones we use now are about 2 generations older than those used by our colleagues in the litigating divisions (and that are in widespread use in private practice). Now, to be sure, new is not always better. But the new 'berries have some features that many like -- a built in phone that utilizes your contact address book so all of your contacts phone numbers are at hand and you don't need to carry a separate cell phone; one monthly bill for phone and berry usage (cheaper in the long run); they can be used abroad as well as domestically; they are smaller and more compact. Not everyone may want a new berry; some folks do prefer carrying separate cell and berries. But even if we all purchased new berries, the cost wouldn't be more than a few thousand dollars.

I did some checking after speaking with Neil. According to JCON the last blackberry upgrade was a courtesy of JCON. All blackberry upgrades now will be at the expense of the component. You have to make certain the blackberry selected is supported by JCON. The new blackberry that has been tested for the rollout is the 7250. I need to verify this information with the blackberry team then we can proceed. All other software and hardware upgrades are taken care of through JCON. We should also be able to upgrade and include the voice/phone feature on the blackberry.

We can also order 2 additional laptops for this office and possibly desktop scanners. I am willing as is I am sure Aloma & Deborah to have scanners hooked to their desktop. I cannot think of any other items that would be of a great expense to help with the surplus.

We can do a count and get the paperwork going on new blackberry's.

Briefs in CT and TN have been filed, and are attached. We received TRO/PI papers from IL, which I will forward, and the judge in that case has already set a TRO hearing for 10 a.m. Central Time tomorrow. We also have a TRO hearing in the TN case tomorrow at 9 a.m. Central Time. We had a status call with the court in MO this morning, and the judge asked that we try to file our PI opposition by COB tomorrow, and she may conduct a phone argument on Tuesday if she finds it necessary. One comment--If I didn't know she and her team were down there doing what they do then I bet no one else does either. There ought to be a press conference down there showcasing what CRS does and what the are specifically doing there. THe Dems ALWAYS use CRS against us--we can turn the tables here. CRS should be front and ceneter in terms of publicity--also because the folks down there need to know that CRS is available to them.

Subject: Talking points on detainee legislation
Attachments: McCain DOD Interrogation Bill - Talkers (9-02-05) (FINAL).doc; McCain CID Bill - Talkers (9-02-05) (FINAL).doc

Neil,

Attached are talking points that we previously prepared on Sen. McCain's detainee amendments (1556 and 1557) to S. 1042.

Regards,

Brian S. Prestes
Office of Legal Counsel
United States Department of Justice
(202) 305-8918

"PROHIBITION ON CRUEL, INHUMAN, OR DEGRADING TREATMENT OR PUNISHMENT OF PERSONS UNDER CUSTODY OR CONTROL OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT"
(AMENDMENT NO. 1556 OFFERED BY SEN. McCAIN TO S. 1042)

Talking Points:

- The Administration is committed to complying with all of its constitutional, statutory, and treaty obligations that apply to U.S. treatment of detainees.
    - The Convention Against Torture requires the U.S. to (a) ensure that torture is a crime under U.S. laws when committed anywhere by a U.S. national, and (b) undertake to prevent in any territory under its jurisdiction acts of "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment" as defined in the U.S. reservation.
    - Treatment of detainees is also subject to other treaties and statutes, which, depending on the circumstances, include the Geneva Conventions, the War Crimes Act, the Uniform Code of Military Justice, and various provisions of the federal criminal code, including the torture statute, as well as the general crimes of assault, maiming, murder, and manslaughter.
- The President has directed that, as a matter of policy, the U.S. Armed Forces shall continue to treat detainees humanely and, to the extent appropriate and consistent with military necessity, in a manner consistent with the principles of Geneva.
- The Administration is committed to investigating and punishing abuses of detainees. In Iraq and Afghanistan, courts-martial have delivered swift justice to service members who abused detainees.
- Within the limits of the law, the U.S. has adopted interrogation practices that have effectively detected and disrupted terrorist attacks against the U.S. and its allies.
- The amendment can only interfere with protecting the American people by restricting the President's ability to conduct war effectively under existing law.

Summary of Legislation:

- This amendment prohibits "cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment" of any individual, "regardless of nationality or physical location," under U.S. custody or control.
    - It defines "cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment" by reference to the U.S. reservation to the Convention Against Torture.
    - It provides that "[n]othing in this section shall not [sic] be construed to impose any geographical limitation on the applicability of the prohibition against cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment under this section."
- This amendment provides for waiver by the President upon notice to specified committees of Congress.

"UNIFORM STANDARDS FOR THE INTERROGATION OF PERSONS UNDER THE DETENTION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE"
(AMENDMENT NO. 1557 OFFERED BY SEN. McCAIN TO S. 1042)

Talking Points:

- The Administration is committed to complying with all of its constitutional, statutory, and treaty obligations that apply to U.S. interrogation practices.
    - The Convention Against Torture requires the U.S. to (a) ensure that torture is a crime under U.S. laws when committed anywhere by a U.S. national, and (b) undertake to prevent in any territory under its jurisdiction acts of "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment" as defined in the U.S. reservation.
    - DOD interrogation practices are also subject to numerous other treaties and statutes, which, depending on the circumstances, include the Geneva Conventions, the War Crimes Act, the Uniform Code of Military Justice, and various provisions of the federal criminal code, including the torture statute as well as the general crimes of assault, maiming, murder, and manslaughter.
- The President has directed that, as a matter of policy, the U.S. Armed Forces shall continue to treat detainees humanely and, to the extent appropriate and consistent with military necessity, in a manner consistent with the principles of Geneva.
- The Administration is committed to investigating and punishing interrogation abuses. In Iraq and Afghanistan, courts-martial have delivered swift justice to service members who abused detainees.
- Within the limits of the law, the U.S. has adopted interrogation practices that have effectively detected and disrupted terrorist attacks against the U.S. and its allies.
- By tying DOD interrogation techniques to those in the Army Field Manual, the amendment straightjackets our Armed Forces and precludes them from using humane interrogation techniques that would otherwise be plainly lawful.
- The amendment can only interfere with protecting the American people by restricting the President's ability to conduct war effectively under existing law.

Summary of Legislation:

- The amendment provides that no person under DOD custody shall be subject to "any treatment or technique of interrogation not authorized by and listed in the United States Army Field Manual on Intelligence Interrogation." It does not apply to those under DOD control pursuant to U.S. criminal or immigration law.

As some of you may know, Sen. Cornyn introduced our bill -- with several additional provisions that strengthen liability protection for volunteers -- and has attracted Sens. Landrieu, Vitter, Grassley, Thune, Hutchinson, and Lott as co-sponsors. It's bill no. S 1747. The House version is being carried by Cong. Sensenbrenner and is much closer to our draft.

Hey folks, I had started this email this morning and then got interrupted (big surprise). Are folks available around 3:30 to discuss with [redacted]? or perhaps we don't need to discuss if you all review and have a cohesive response for me to send him that would be great. See below from [redacted].

Jeff - to follow up on the call I had with you yesterday (Neil, this is what I called you about too) - [redacted] is still intent on having the House bill only focus on Disaster relief. [redacted] understands that our draft already protects organizations from vicarious liability, however, [redacted] thinks we need to have the same exception from that protection as they did in the VPA bill that passed by voice vote, for parrallell reference/ease of passage/better talking points. Please see below with [redacted]s discussion and [redacted] suggested edits and let me know your thoughts. Sorry I didn't send this earlier - is it possible for us to wrap up today? [redacted] needs to provide final draft to [redacted] higher ups before the weekend.

thanks for your help - sorry it is Friday!

Subject: FW: Disaster Relief Volunteer Protection Act

Rebecca, in order to maximize the chances that a more comprehensive disaster relief volunteer protection bill will pass the House with a strong majority, I think the language should be tweaked to do pretty much exactly what HR 3736 did (and remember we have the powerful precedent in that HR 3736 passed that House by VOICE VOTE), namely protect all volunteers (be they individuals, organizations, or other entities) from liability but only when the actions of such individuals, organizations, or other entities do not rise to the level of willful, wanton, or reckless misconduct.

Attached here is the text we all agreed on on Monday. It contains a "willful, wanton, and reckless" standard for volunteers themselves, and for governmental and intergovernmental entities. I think it best to simply amend the text we agreed on to apply that same standard as well to employers or partners of disaster relief volunteers (in subsection (b)) and also to host or enabling persons, entities, or organizations (in subsection (c)).
Why? First (again), because the concept of subjecting all entities to a willful, wanton, and reckless standard has already passed the House in HR 3736 by voice vote. Second, the base text attached here (without the amendments I propose below) subject us to the hostile argument that the bill as written gives employers and host organizations a complete free pass on liability EVEN IF SUCH EMPLOYERS AND HOST ORGANIZATIONS REQUIRE THEIR EMPLOYEES OR HOSTED VOLUNTEERS TO ACT UNDER POLICIES THAT CONSTITUTE WILLFUL, WANTON, AND RECKLESS MISCONDUCT. The "parade of horribles" opponents would come up with would be something along the lines of an imagined Red Cross policy that states "If a Red Cross worker sees a person who seems like they're about to die anyway, go ahead and kill them because they're just a distraction from saving other victims." I think you get the gist. Also, I would think that the protection of a "willful, wanton, and reckless misconduct" exception still gives employers and host organizations very significant protection from liability.

So, what do folks over at DOJ think of the following proposed amendments to the base text (which is attached to this email)?

At page 5, line 16, insert "injury (including personal injury, property damage or loss, and death) caused by an" after "any".

At page 5, line 18, insert "if the injury was not caused by willful, wanton, or reckless misconduct by such employer or business partner" after "services".

At page 5, line 24, insert "injury (including personal injury, property damage or loss, and death) caused by an" after "any".

At page 6, line 2, insert "if the injury was not caused by willful, wanton, or reckless misconduct by such person or entity" after "services".

ATTORNEY GENERAL ALBERTO R. GONZALES ANNOUNCES APPOINTMENT OF KYLE SAMPSON AS CHIEF OF STAFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Attorney General Alberto R. Gonzales today announced the appointment of D. Kyle Sampson to serve as Chief of Staff at the Department of Justice. Sampson will succeed Theodore W. Ullyot, who will step down from the position to return to the private sector.

"Kyle is an outstanding lawyer, a strong manager, and a trusted counselor," said Attorney General Gonzales. "His service to the President and to me has been exceptional. I appreciate his leadership and loyalty, and I am pleased that he has agreed to serve as the Justice Department's Chief of Staff."

Kyle Sampson has served as Deputy Chief of Staff and Counselor to Attorney General Alberto R. Gonzales since February 2005. He also serves as Chairman of the Justice Department's Task Force on Intellectual Property and as a Special Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Eastern District of Virginia. He was appointed Counselor to Attorney General John Ashcroft in 2003.

Prior to joining the Department, Sampson served in the White House as Associate Counsel to President George W. Bush. From 1999 to 2001, Sampson served as Counsel to Senator Orrin G. Hatch on the Senate Judiciary Committee. Before entering public service, Sampson practiced law at the Salt Lake City law firm of Parr Waddoups Brown Gee & Loveless and clerked for Judge Karen J. Williams of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. Sampson earned his law degree, with honors, from the University of Chicago Law School, where he served as Articles Editor of the University of Chicago Law Review. He earned his undergraduate degree from Brigham Young University.

Rebecca, could you please circulate the following to the group? It's my thought on how a new provision in the bill might apply to protect nonprofits. We can of course discuss other ideas from your end as well.

(d) LIABILITY OF NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.- A nonprofit organization shall not be liable for any injury (including personal injury, property damage or loss, and death) caused by an act or omission in connection with such nonprofit organization's providing or facilitating the provision of disaster relief services if the injury was not caused by willful, wanton, or reckless misconduct by the nonprofit organization.

Sorry. [redacted]s email of 9:29 am to you contains certain proposed edits (see bottom of that email) that would absolve employers and host organizations for SECONDARY liability if, but only if, they don't act willfully, wantonly, or recklessly. This new section 3(d) [redacted] proposes would also immunize nonprofits engaged in disaster relief from PRIMARY liability unless their conduct falls into one of those three categories. Taken together -- that is, [redacted]s proposed edits in the 9:29 am email PLUS this new section 3(d) -- would accomplish what [redacted] seems to want to accomplish. In fact, I think it's a little simpler than the language I just sent around.

what "other edits [redacted] sent us"? are you referring to?

If this new section ([redacted]) is added to exactly what we agreed to on Monday - the pdf [redacted] sent us, does that work?

None at all. If [redacted] wants to backtrack to absolve employeers and hosts from all secondary liability [redacted] should keep 3b and 3c as we wrote them. [redacted] new 3d will do the trick of protecting nonprofits from primary liability except for willful, wanton, and reckless misconduct.

[redacted] is backtracking to our language that says no vicarious ([redacted] is fine with that), and add [redacted] 3(d) which says non profits not liable for their own acts, unless fits those categories of willful/wanton.

so what [redacted] s going with is the pdf [redacted] sent this morning (which is our language) plus that new 3(d) [redacted] just proposed.

Any concerns?

Robert - Here are the three versions we discussed: (1) Your memo of last week (9-22); (2) My stab at re-including language from Karin Immergut's draft (9-26); and (3) Karin's draft. If you'd like, I'd be happy to take a stab at a transmittal email to OAG for your consideration. NMG
