COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES

NCRIC, Inc., Plaintiff, by counsel, sues Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. as follows:

1. NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") is a corporation in the business of providing liability insurance and doing business in the District of Columbia. It is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company.

2. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital") is a medical hospital with its principal place of business in the District of Columbia.

3. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to D.C. Code § 11-921.

4. NCRIC and Hospital are parties to Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance (the "Agreement") by which NCRIC provided medical doctors at the Hospital with certain insurance against liability resulting from described events, including professional negligence in consideration for which Hospital agreed to pay certain premiums. A copy of the Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

5. Pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, Hospital owed NCRIC payment of additional insurance premiums based on the Agreement.

6. NCRIC performed all its obligations pursuant to the Agreement by providing the agreed insurance coverage.

7. Hospital breached the Agreement by failing to pay NCRIC the additional premiums due under the Agreement.

8. Hospital owes NCRIC the sum of $1,286,525.00.

9. Despite written demand for payment therefore, and compliance with all its other obligations under the Agreement, Hospital has failed and refused to pay NCRIC the amount owed.

WHEREFORE, NCRIC demands judgment against Hospital in the amount of One Million Two Hundred Eighty-six Thousand Five Hundred twenty-five Dollars ($1, 286,525), interest, and costs incurred herein.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants listed on Exhibit D, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation, or termination of participation, in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 4

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit E and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NCRIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

If to NCRIC:

Mr. David K. Little
President
National Capital Underwriters, Inc.
Attorney-in-fact for National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company

If to Medical Center:

Mr. G. Patrick Kane, FACHE
President & Chief Executive Officer
Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center
2425 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

The date of service of any such notice shall be the date that such notice is deposited with the U.S. Postal Service or the date of personal delivery, as applicable.

17. Medical Center hereby warrants and represents that it has made, and agrees to provide NCRIC with its auditor's or actuary's annual statement reflecting, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no modifications, amendments or additions thereto shall be binding unless in writing and executed by all the parties hereto.

19. This Agreement shall not be assignable without the prior written consent of the parties hereto.

20. The agreements, terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns, if any.

21. This Agreement is made and executed in the District of Columbia, and shall be governed by the law of the District of Columbia.

EXHIBIT A

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation -	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation -	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation -	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation -	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation -	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

INITIAL ORDER

Pursuant to D.C. Code §11-906 and District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure ("SCR Civ") 40-I, it is hereby ORDERED as follows.

(1) Effective this date, this case is assigned to the individual calendar designated below. All future filings in this case shall bear the calendar number and judge's name beneath the case number in the caption. On filing any motion or paper related thereto, one copy (for the judge) must be delivered to the Clerk along with the original.

(2) Within 60 days of the filing of the complaint, plaintiff must file proof of serving on each defendant: copies of the Summons, the Complaint, and this Initial Order, and any General Order issued by the judge to whom the case is assigned. As to any defendant for whom such proof of service has not been filed, the Complaint will be dismissed without prejudice for want of prosecution unless the time for serving the defendant has been extended as provided in SCR Civ 4(m).

(3) Within 20 days of service as described above, except as otherwise noted in SCR Civ 12, each defendant must respond to the Complaint by filing an Answer or other responsive pleading. As to any defendant who has failed to so respond, a default and judgement will be entered unless the time to respond has been extended as provided in SCR Civ 55(a).

(4) At the time and place noted below, all counsel and unrepresented parties shall appear before the assigned judge at an Initial Scheduling and Settlement Conference to discuss the possibilities of settlement and to establish a schedule for the completion of all proceedings, including, normally, either mediation, case evaluation, or arbitration. Counsel shall discuss with their clients prior to the Conference whether the clients are agreeable to binding or non-binding arbitration. This order is the only notice that parties and counsel will receive concerning this Conference.

(5) Upon advice that the date noted below is inconvenient for any party or counsel, the Civil Assignment Office (202) 879-1750 may continue the Conference once, with the consent of all parties, to either of the two succeeding Fridays. Requests must be made not less than five business days before the scheduling conference date. No other continuance of the Conference will be granted except upon motion for good cause shown.

COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES

NCRIC, Inc., Plaintiff, by counsel, sues Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. as follows:

1. NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") is a corporation in the business of providing liability insurance and doing business in the District of Columbia. It is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company.

2. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital") is a medical hospital with its principal place of business in the District of Columbia.

3. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to D.C. Code § 11-921.

4. NCRIC and Hospital are parties to Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance (the "Agreement") by which NCRIC provided medical doctors at the Hospital with certain insurance against liability resulting from described events, including professional negligence in consideration for which Hospital agreed to pay certain premiums. A copy of the Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

5. Pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, Hospital owed NCRIC payment of additional insurance premiums based on the Agreement.

6. NCRIC performed all its obligations pursuant to the Agreement by providing the agreed insurance coverage.

7. Hospital breached the Agreement by failing to pay NCRIC the additional premiums due under the Agreement.

8. Hospital owes NCRIC the sum of $1,286,525.00.

9. Despite written demand for payment therefore, and compliance with all its other obligations under the Agreement, Hospital has failed and refused to pay NCRIC the amount owed.

WHEREFORE, NCRIC demands judgment against Hospital in the amount of One Million Two Hundred Eighty-six Thousand Five Hundred twenty-five Dollars ($1, 286,525), interest, and costs incurred herein.

Attorney for NCRIC

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants

PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT A
16d-000049
PENGAD-Bayonne, N.J.

listed on Exhibit D, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation, or termination of participation, in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit E and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NCRIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

If to NCRIC:

Mr. David K. Little
President
National Capital Underwriters, Inc.
Attorney-in-fact for National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company
2170 Wisconsin Avenue
Washington, D.C. 20007

If to Medical Center:

Mr. G. Patrick Kane, FACHE
President & Chief Executive Officer
Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center
2425 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

The date of service of any such notice shall be the date that such notice is deposited with the U.S. Postal Service or the date of personal delivery, as applicable.

17. Medical Center hereby warrants and represents that it has made, and agrees to provide NCRIC with its auditor's or actuary's annual statement reflecting, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no modifications, amendments or additions thereto shall be binding unless in writing and executed by all the parties hereto.

19. This Agreement shall not be assignable without the prior written consent of the parties hereto.

20. The agreements, terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns, if any.

21. This Agreement is made and executed in the District of Columbia, and shall be governed by the law of the District of Columbia.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have caused their corporate names to be subscribed hereto by their duly authorized officers or attorneys-in-fact, and their corporate seal to be hereunto affixed effective the day and year first above written.

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES

NCRIC, Inc., Plaintiff, by counsel, sues Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. as follows:

1. NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") is a corporation in the business of providing liability insurance and doing business in the District of Columbia. It is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company.

2. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital") is a medical hospital with its principal place of business in the District of Columbia.

3. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to D.C. Code § 11-921.

4. NCRIC and Hospital are parties to Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance (the "Agreement") by which NCRIC provided medical doctors at the Hospital with certain insurance against liability resulting from described events, including professional negligence in consideration for which Hospital agreed to pay certain premiums. A copy of the Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

5. Pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, Hospital owed NCRIC payment of additional insurance premiums based on the Agreement.

6. NCRIC performed all its obligations pursuant to the Agreement by providing the agreed insurance coverage.

7. Hospital breached the Agreement by failing to pay NCRIC the additional premiums due under the Agreement.

8. Hospital owes NCRIC the sum of $1,286,525.00.

9. Despite written demand for payment therefore, and compliance with all its other obligations under the Agreement, Hospital has failed and refused to pay NCRIC the amount owed.

WHEREFORE, NCRIC demands judgment against Hospital in the amount of One Million Two Hundred Eighty-six Thousand Five Hundred twenty-five Dollars ($1, 286,525), interest, and costs incurred herein.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants listed on Exhibit D, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation, or termination of participation, in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit E and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NCRIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

If to NCRIC:

Mr. David K. Little
President
National Capital Underwriters, Inc.
Attorney-in-fact for National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company
2170 Wisconsin Avenue
Washington, D.C. 20007

If to Medical Center:

Mr. G. Patrick Kane, FACHE
President & Chief Executive Officer
Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center
2425 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

The date of service of any such notice shall be the date that such notice is deposited with the U.S. Postal Service or the date of personal delivery, as applicable.

17. Medical Center hereby warrants and represents that it has made, and agrees to provide NCRIC with its auditor's or actuary's annual statement reflecting, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no modifications, amendments or additions thereto shall be binding unless in writing and executed by all the parties hereto.

19. This Agreement shall not be assignable without the prior written consent of the parties hereto.

20. The agreements, terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns, if any.

21. This Agreement is made and executed in the District of Columbia, and shall be governed by the law of the District of Columbia.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have caused their corporate names to be subscribed hereto by their duly authorized officers or attorneys-in-fact, and their corporate seal to be hereunto affixed effective the day and year first above written.

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation -	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation -	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation -	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation -	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation -	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

NCRIC, Inc. vs Columbia Hospital for Women C.A. No. 00ca007308

INITIAL ORDER

Pursuant to D.C. Code §11-906 and District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure ("SCR Civ") 40-I, it is hereby ORDERED as follows.

(1) Effective this date, this case is assigned to the individual calendar designated below. All future filings in this case shall bear the calendar number and judge's name beneath the case number in the caption. On filing any motion or paper related thereto, one copy (for the judge) must be delivered to the Clerk along with the original.

(2) Within 60 days of the filing of the complaint, plaintiff must file proof of serving on each defendant: copies of the Summons, the Complaint, and this Initial Order, and any General Order issued by the judge to whom the case is assigned. As to any defendant for whom such proof of service has not been filed, the Complaint will be dismissed without prejudice for want of prosecution unless the time for serving the defendant has been extended as provided in SCR Civ 4(m).

(3) Within 20 days of service as described above, except as otherwise noted in SCR Civ 12, each defendant must respond to the Complaint by filing an Answer or other responsive pleading. As to any defendant who has failed to so respond, a default and judgement will be entered unless the time to respond has been extended as provided in SCR Civ 55(a).

(4) At the time and place noted below, all counsel and unrepresented parties shall appear before the assigned judge at an Initial Scheduling and Settlement Conference to discuss the possibilities of settlement and to establish a schedule for the completion of all proceedings, including, normally, either mediation, case evaluation, or arbitration. Counsel shall discuss with their clients prior to the Conference whether the clients are agreeable to binding or non-binding arbitration. This order is the only notice that parties and counsel will receive concerning this Conference.

(5) Upon advice that the date noted below is inconvenient for any party or counsel, the Civil Assignment Office (202) 879-1750 may continue the Conference once, with the consent of all parties, to either of the two succeeding Fridays. Requests must be made not less than five business days before the scheduling conference date. No other continuance of the Conference will be granted except upon motion for good cause shown.

NCRIC, INC., Plaintiff, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Defendant.	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar 8 -- Judge Diaz Next Court Event: Initial Conf., Jan. 1. 2001

CONSENT MOTION FOR ENLARGEMENT OF TIME TO ANSWER AND FILE COUNTERCLAIMS

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., by and through its attorney, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., pursuant to District of Columbia Rule of Civil Procedure 6(b), moves this Court for an enlargement of time of ten (10) days following the prescribed date for filing to answer and file counterclaims in response to Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc.'s Complaint. As grounds therefore, Defendant states as follows:

1. On October 24, 2000, counsel for Plaintiff, Roy I. Neidermayer, agreed to an extension until and including November 6, 2000, for Defendant to file an answer and counterclaims.

2. No prejudice will inure to Plaintiff upon the grant of the requested relief.

3. Civil Rule 6(b) permits an enlargement of time "for cause shown." Defendant's counsel requests additional time, in part (1) to develop the counterclaims Defendant desires to assert in this action and (2) to accommodate counsel for Defendant, which office is moving locations at the present time.

WHEREFORE, cause having been shown, Defendant moves that the Motion for Enlargement of Time to Answer and File Counterclaims be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC.'S ANSWER AND COUNTERCLAIMS

COMES NOW Defendant, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Medical Center"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esquire, Steven F. Benz, Esquire, Joseph K. Leahy, Esquire, and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., and respectfully answers the Complaint in the above-captioned matter as follows:

FIRST DEFENSE

The Complaint fails to state a cause of action upon which relief may be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE

Answering specifically the numbered paragraphs of the Complaint, Medical Center states as follows:

Parties and Jurisdiction

1. To the extent that the allegations in Paragraph 1 constitute legal conclusions, no response is required. Medical Center presently lacks sufficient information to admit or deny the remaining allegations set forth in Paragraph 1.

2. Medical Center admits that it is a health care facility located at 2425 L Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037. The remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 2 call for a legal conclusion to which no response is required.

3. The allegations set forth in Paragraph 3 call for a legal conclusion to which no response is required.

4. To the extent that the allegations in Paragraph 4 call for a legal conclusion, no response is required. Medical Center admits that it entered into an agreement with the National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, which, upon information and belief, became NCRIC (referred to hereafter collectively as "NCRIC") in July 1999; however, Medical Center denies that the allegations in Sentence 1 of Paragraph 4 accurately describe the scope of that agreement. Medical Center admits that the pages attached to the Complaint as Exhibit A are a copy of a portion of an agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC, but denies that Exhibit A constitutes the entire agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC.

5. The allegations set forth in Paragraph 5 constitute legal conclusions to which no responsive pleading is required, and accordingly Medical Center denies these allegations.

6. To the extent that the allegations set forth in Paragraph 6 constitute a legal conclusion, no response is necessary, and Medical Center denies these allegations. Medical Center lacks sufficient information to admit or deny the allegation in Paragraph 6 that NCRIC provided insurance coverage, the effect of which is to deny said allegation and demand strict proof thereof.

7. Medical Center denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph 7.

8. Medical Center denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph 8.

9. Medical Center admits that NCRIC demanded payment from Medical Center in the amount stated in Paragraph 8, and denies the remaining allegations set forth in Paragraph 9. Medical Center admits that NCRIC demands judgment against Medical Center in the amount of $1, 286, 525.00, plus interest and costs, but denies that NCRIC is entitled to any such relief.

THIRD DEFENSE

Medical Center denies all allegations in the Complaint not specifically admitted, and demands strict proof thereof.

FOURTH DEFENSE

Medical Center fully performed all of its duties and obligations under the alleged agreement between it and NCRIC.

FIFTH DEFENSE

NCRIC's claim is barred as a result of NCRIC's failure to satisfy conditions precedent, including, but not limited to, failing to perform reconciliations properly, and failing to calculate and inform Medical Center of the correct amount of premium due.

SIXTH DEFENSE

NCRIC's claim is barred by the doctrines of estoppel, waiver and/or unclean hands.

SEVENTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is unenforceable, in whole or in part, due to NCRIC's material breach of the express and/or implied terms thereof.

EIGHTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is unenforceable, in whole or in part, due to modification, novation, and/or accord and satisfaction.

NINTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is void, in whole or in part, because Medical Center renewed and/or amended it while under duress caused by NCRIC.

TENTH DEFENSE

Medical Center reserves the right to assert any affirmative defenses that may be revealed during the course of discovery.

MEDICAL CENTER'S COUNTERCLAIMS AGAINST NCRIC

Comes now Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Medical Center, by counsel, and respectfully states and alleges as follows for its counterclaims against Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC:

10. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 9, as though set forth here in full.

Parties and Jurisdiction

11. Medical Center, a preeminent health care facility with internationally renowned specialties in obstetrics, gynecology, and neonatology, is a registered District of Columbia not-for-profit corporation that has been providing health care services in the District of Columbia for about 134 years.

12. NCRIC is, upon information and belief, a corporation that provides malpractice insurance to physicians in the District of Columbia. Upon information and belief, NCRIC is the successor in interest to National Capital National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company (referred to collectively herein as "NCRIC").

13. This court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to § 11-921 of the District of Columbia Code.

16d-000087

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS IN SUPPORT OF COUNTERCLAIMS

Background to the Plan

14. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter prior to September 2000, NCRIC provided medical malpractice liability insurance ("MMLI") to nearly all of the physicians associated with Medical Center. Most of these physicians were OB/GYN practitioners.

15. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, most of the physicians associated with Medical Center (otherwise known as "Attending Faculty") were independent contractors who had patient admitting privileges at several hospitals, including hospitals in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Medical Center relied on these independent physicians for patient referrals. As a result, Medical Center competed, and still competes, with other hospitals throughout the District of Columbia metropolitan area for physicians as well as for patient admissions.

16. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, the average MMLI premium for OB/GYN physicians in the District of Columbia was about two or three times as high as the average MMLI premium for such physicians in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

17. In about 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, at least one competitor hospital in the District of Columbia had in place an agreement with NCRIC, under which it provided a discount on MMLI premiums for that hospital's physicians.

18. Without a program to discount the cost of MMLI premiums for its Attending Faculty, Medical Center faced the prospect of losing associated physicians to hospitals in the District of Columbia that had such discount programs, as well as to hospitals in Maryland and Virginia, where MMLI premiums were lower.

19. For Medical Center, the loss of physicians necessarily would mean the loss of referrals and its key source of income: paying patients. In order to remain economically viable, Medical Center needed to maintain its volume of paying patients.

NCRIC's Proposal and Representations to Medical Center

20. In about 1993, NCRIC proposed to Medical Center a plan to reduce MMLI premiums for its Attending Faculty. NCRIC pressured Medical Center to accept this proposal. The proposal helped NCRIC, which dominated the District of Columbia MMLI market, keep its customers away from Virginia and Maryland, where it faced competition from other providers.

21. At about this time, Medical Center informed NCRIC that it required a discount program in order to retain its Attending Faculty. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew that losing physicians to other hospitals in the District of Columbia metropolitan area would leave Medical Center, which already was in poor financial condition, in grave fiscal distress.

22. Under the proposed discount plan, each member of the Attending Faculty would receive what amounted to a 15% discount on the premium of the standard MMLI policy.

23. In exchange for this discount, Medical Center would agree to pay, with certain limitations, the difference between (1) the total amount of discounted premium paid by the Attending Faculty for a specified amount of MMLI coverage and (2) NCRIC's cost (including administrative costs and a profit for NCRIC) of providing that coverage. Under this proposal, Medical Center also would receive a refund of any premium paid by the Attending Faculty for the specified amount of MMLI coverage that exceeded NCRIC's cost of providing that coverage.

24. In order to induce Medical Center to agree to the proposed discount program, NCRIC, upon information and belief, represented to Medical Center that this proposal would cost

Medical Center almost nothing, because the Deposit Premium would cover most, if not all, of actual cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty. NCRIC, however, refused to provide Medical Center with sufficient data to perform an adequate analysis of the actual cost of the proposed discount program.

25. The proposed discount program allowed NCRIC to charge Medical Center for predicted expenditures ("incurred losses"), not just actual payments ("actual losses"), on MMLI claims. Medical Center objected to this aspect of the proposal. NCRIC, however, refused to offer a discount program under which it would charge solely for actual losses.

26. In about October 1993, Medical Center agreed to the discount program, and entered into an agreement with NCRIC entitled "Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement" (the "Plan"), which NCRIC drafted. A copy of the Plan is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

Premium Calculations Under the Plan

27. Under the Plan, if NCRIC's incurred cost of providing MMLI to the Attending Faculty (known as the "Retro Premium") exceeded the total amount of discounted premium paid by the Attending Faculty to NCRIC (known as the "Deposit Premium") for a specified amount of MMLI coverage, then Medical Center was liable to NCRIC for the difference between the Retro Premium and the Deposit Premium (known as the "Additional Premium"), as limited by a set Maximum Premium. However, if the Retro Premium was less than the total Deposit Premium, the Plan entitled Medical Center to the difference between the two (known as the "Return Premium"), as limited by a set Minimum Premium.

28. Under the Plan, the Retro Premium was calculated by applying a complicated, backward-looking formula ("retro formula") that was devised by NCRIC, and for which NCRIC provided all the data. NCRIC refused to allow Medical Center to audit this data, including the total amount of reserve funds ("Loss Reserves") that NCRIC claimed to maintain in order to pay medical malpractice claims and related litigation expenses under the Plan. The Retro Premium turned in large part on information that Medical Center could not independently verify.

29. Upon information and belief, NCRIC represented, as an inducement for Medical Center to enter into the Plan, that: (1) all premium amounts, including the Retro Premium, would be calculated exactly as set forth in the Plan; (2) the Retro Premium would fairly represent the incurred cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty, including the cost of maintaining Loss Reserves therefor; (3) the Loss Reserves would be calculated in accordance with generally-accepted standards in the insurance industry; and (4) the incurred cost of the Plan, as embodied by the Retro Premium, would closely approximate the actual cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty.

30. Medical Center entered into the Plan in reliance upon the foregoing representations by NCRIC, communicated its reliance to NCRIC, and has been damaged by such reliance.

NCRIC's Obligations Under the Plan

31. Under the Plan, NCRIC was responsible for all bookkeeping under the Plan, for administration of the Plan on behalf of Medical Center, and for all reconciliations of the Plan.

32. Reconciliations required NCRIC to: (1) apply the retro formula properly to the Plan years being reconciled, by using the proper multipliers and definitions, and accurate data; (2) calculate the accurate Deposit, Retro, and Additional or Return Premium; and (3) apply the Minimum or Maximum Premium, if applicable, as stated in the Plan.

33. The Plan required NCRIC to perform a reconciliation, effective on a specified date (the "Reconciliation Date"), after the third year of the Plan, and each year thereafter. For the first reconciliation, only the first year of the Plan was to be reconciled; in each subsequent reconciliation, all of the previous unclosed years of the Plan, plus one additional year, were reconciled. Reconciliations were to continue, even after the Plan ended, until all medical malpractice claims covered by the Plan were closed as defined under the Plan.

34. The Plan required NCRIC to notify Medical Center in writing, within 60 days of each Reconciliation Date, of the amount of Additional or Return Premium due, and pay any Return Premium, and the investment return thereon, due within 30 days of this notice.

35. The Plan required NCRIC to set its Loss Reserves according to the insurance industry standard; to provide Medical Center with verification by an independent actuary that Loss Reserves were maintained as such; and to provide Medical Center with certain data regarding the accrued Loss Reserves on a specified, regular basis. Further, the Plan allowed only a certain percentage of the Loss Reserves be considered when calculating the Retro Premium.

36. As a result of the foregoing, Medical Center reasonably and in good faith trusted NCRIC to administer the Plan on its behalf; to properly and honestly perform all reconciliations; and to accurately calculate all premiums, including Additional and/or Return Premium. Upon information and belief, Medical Center communicated this trust and reliance to NCRIC.

NCRIC's Negligent and Improper Administration of the Plan

37. Upon information and belief, NCRIC did not provide Medical Center with reports and actuary certifications concerning the Loss Reserves as required by the Plan. Although

Medical Center repeatedly requested such reports and certifications, NCRIC at first refused to provide them, and later, upon information and belief, provided them irregularly if at all.

38. Upon information and belief, NCRIC also failed to maintain Loss Reserves for the Plan in accordance with the industry standard. Upon information and belief, beginning in about 1997, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care failed to adequately adjust its loss reserves downward in response to Medical Center's positive loss experience under the Plan. As a result, NCRIC maintained higher Loss Reserves than were reasonably necessary to cover malpractice claims under the Plan, and improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

39. Further, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care considered a greater percentage of its Loss Reserves when calculating the Retro Premium that it was allowed to consider under the Plan. As a result, NCRIC improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

40. Moreover, upon information and belief, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care (a) added extra years of the Plan to its reconciliations, thereby reconciling too many years of the Plan; and/or (b) treated unclosed years as closed, thereby reconciling too few years of the Plan. In each instance, NCRIC improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

41. In addition, for each Reconciliation Date, NCRIC performed the reconciliation incorrectly, in part as set forth in Paragraphs 49, 50, 53 and 54, below. As a result, the amount of Additional or Return Premium calculated by NCRIC in each reconciliation was incorrect.

42. Because Medical Center trusted and relied on NCRIC to administer the Plan, to perform reconciliations properly and honestly, and to accurately calculate all premiums, Medical Center was unaware that, for each reconciliation NCRIC performed, the amount of Additional or Return Premium calculated by NCRIC was incorrect. As a result, after each reconciliation

NCRIC performed, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

43. Upon information and belief, at all times relevant to this action, NCRIC knew of Medical Center's financial situation and reasonably should have known that Medical Center would have demanded payment of any Return Premium due under the Plan.

Amendments to and Renewals of the Plan

1996 Amendments and Renewal

44. In January 1996, Medical Center faced a severe financial crisis. At this time, if Medical Center lost Attending Faculty or patients, it risked becoming insolvent.

45. At about this time, some members of the Attending Faculty moved their practices to nearby Virginia or Maryland, where MMLI premiums were lower; other Attending Faculty threatened to move unless the discount on MMLI premiums increased. Increasing the discount on MMLI premiums for Attending Faculty was crucial to retaining its associated physicians.

46. In January 1996, Medical Center and NCRIC agreed in correspondence, attached hereto as Exhibit 2, to amend to the Plan. This amendment increased the discount for Attending Faculty to what amounted to 30% off of the standard MMLI premium. This amendment was included in all future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC; one such version is shown at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4, attached hereto. The amendment went into effect in January 1996. It applied only prospectively, to Discount Premium paid after that date. It did not apply to Deposit Premium already collected by NCRIC.

47. This new 30% discount for the Attending Faculty meant that, beginning in January 1996, NCRIC would receive less Deposit Premium. The Plan was subsequently amended to reflect this reduction in Discount Premium. The amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 3, was drafted by NCRIC and went into effect in January 1996. Like the 30% discount, this amendment applied only prospectively, to the years of the Plan where NCRIC received less Deposit Premium due to the new, larger discount. The amendment did not apply to past years, for which NCRIC had received more Deposit Premium, due to the old, smaller discount.

48. It later was determined that the amendment described in the previous Paragraph did not accurately reflect the reduction in Deposit Premium resulting from the 30% discount. The amendment was corrected to accurately reflect the Deposit Premium resulting from the new discount. All future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC, listed this corrected Deposit Premium; one such version appears at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4.

49. Although NCRIC agreed to correct the amended Deposit Premium, it knew that Medical Center trusted and relied on it as described above, and therefore, it knew that Medical Center would not be aware if the corrected Deposit Premium was not applied. NCRIC did not apply the corrected Deposit Premium in any reconciliations of the Plan.

50. As a result of NCRIC's refusal to apply the corrected Deposit Premium, each time it performed a reconciliation and notified Medical Center that Additional or Return Premium was due, that amount was incorrect. Further, after each reconciliation, due to Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC as described above, Medical Center was unaware of NCRIC's misrepresentation and/or miscalculation. Accordingly, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

51. The Plan was initially set to expire in September 1996, at which time NCRIC had not performed any reconciliations under the Plan.

52. In 1996, the parties agreed to amend the Plan to reduce the Minimum Premium for all years of the Plan. Since no reconciliations had been performed yet, the new Minimum Premium was in effect for all reconciliations under the Plan. This amendment was included in all future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC; one such version is shown at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4, attached hereto.

53. Although NCRIC agreed to lower the Minimum Premium, NCRIC knew that Medical Center trusted and relied on NCRIC's representations as stated above, and would not be aware if the new Minimum Premium was not applied. NCRIC did not apply the new Minimum Premium to all years of the Plan in any reconciliations of the Plan.

54. As a result of NCRIC's refusal to apply the new Minimum Premium, each time it performed a reconciliation and notified Medical Center that Additional or Return Premium was due, that amount was incorrect. Further, after each reconciliation, due to Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC as described above, Medical Center was unaware of NCRIC's misrepresentation and/or miscalculation. Accordingly, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

55. On information and belief, the Plan as amended was renewed by the parties through September 1, 1997.

January 1998 Renewal

56. By late 1997, Medical Center was in the midst of a financial crisis. It was engaged in litigation with the Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, Ltd. over the letter of credit upon which Medical Center relied for operating funds. At this time, Medical Center was in desperate need of such funds, and needed to renew the Plan to ensure that it did not lose Attending Faculty, the patients they referred, and the resulting income.

57. NCRIC was aware of Medical Center's financial crisis. After the fall 1997 reconciliation NCRIC presented Medical Center with a bill for $1.7 million in Additional Premium, along with an ultimatum: pay up immediately or the Plan would not be renewed. This bill was miscalculated to grossly overstate the amount of Additional Premium due.

58. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew or should have known that this bill was incorrect, and that due to its trust and reliance on NCRIC, Medical Center would not discover that it had been billed in error. Upon information and belief, NCRIC intended to take advantage of Medical Center's trust and reliance, and its difficult financial situation, in violation of the Plan, in order to obtain security for future Additional Premium that might become due.

59. Medical Center had no reasonable alternative but to pay NCRIC because there was no time to find other, discounted MMLI for the Attending Faculty before the Plan's renewal date. If Medical Center did not agree to pay immediately, the Plan would end and the Attending Faculty's MMLI premiums would skyrocket. Termination of the Plan would cause a large percentage of Medical Center's Attending Faculty to transfer to competing hospitals. As a result of having fewer Attending Faculty and patients, Medical Center would lose significant revenue.

60. Medical Center could not afford to pay $1.7 million, but agreed to pay $1 million. Medical Center made these payments in four installments between January and March of 1998.

61. In January 1998, the Plan was renewed again for one year, effective September 1997. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 4, was drafted by NCRIC.

62. Prior to NCRIC's wrongful demand for payment of $1.7 million, Medical Center had just enough cash on hand to cover its operating expenses. As a direct result of overpaying NCRIC, in early 1998 Medical Center exhausted its cash on hand and became insolvent.

63. In February 1998, Medical Center filed for bankruptcy, and remained in bankruptcy until early 1999. During this time, Medical Center incurred additional expenses as a result of its bankruptcy, including several hundred thousand dollars per month in legal fees.

September 1998 Renewal

64. In the summer of 1998, as a result of NCRIC's wrongful demand for payment, Medical Center determined that it could no longer afford to participate in the Plan. Medical Center began to search for low-cost MMLI for the Attending Faculty. Medical Center expected that, by finding lower-cost MMLI, it could retain its current Attending Faculty and attract new physicians, thereby increasing its revenues and improving its financial situation.

65. In about August 1998, Medical Center received a proposal from Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX"), a highly-rated national insurance company, to provide MMLI for the Attending Faculty. The premium for MIIX's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy was lower than the premium for NCRIC's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy as discounted by the Plan.

66. The MIIX proposal was a better deal than the Plan for members of the Attending Faculty because, unlike NCRIC, MIIX guaranteed that it would not raise its premiums for two years. The MIIX proposal also was better for Medical Center because MIIX did not require that Medical Center accept liability for any additional premium.

67. In about August 1998, Medical Center notified the Attending Faculty of the MIIX proposal. Soon thereafter, NCRIC became aware of the MIIX proposal.

68. Upon hearing of the MIIX proposal, NCRIC initiated a disinformation campaign to kill the proposal by making untrue statements about Medical Center, its Board of Directors, MIIX, and the MIIX proposal.

69. In late August of 1998, NCRIC called a meeting of the Attending Faculty. At this meeting, representatives of NCRIC made false and malicious statements, including but not limited to the following: (1) that MIIX would not remain in the District of Columbia insurance market; (2) that MIIX would not stand by its guarantee not to raise premiums for two years; (3) that MIIX was an unreliable insurance company; (4) that MIIX planned to raise premiums once it cornered the District of Columbia MMLI market; (5) that the MIIX proposal was cronyism which would benefit members of the Medical Center Board of Directors rather than the Attending Faculty; (6) that Medical Center had lied to the Attending Faculty by stating that it could not afford to continue the Plan; and (7) that lawyers with whom NCRIC contracted to defend physicians against medical malpractice claims would not work with MIIX.

70. At this meeting, NCRIC's representatives also urged members of the Attending Faculty to disassociate themselves from Medical Center if the Plan was not renewed.

71. In a direct and foreseeable response to NCRIC's campaign to kill the MIIX deal, including the statements set forth in Paragraphs 69 and 70, approximately 20-30% of Attending Faculty members informed Medical Center that they would not purchase MMLI from MIIX. Many members of the Attending Faculty also threatened to cease their association with Medical Center if the Plan was not renewed. Among those who threatened to leave were several groups of physicians which admitted a large volume of patients to Medical Center.

72. At about this time, upon information and belief, NCRIC also presented Medical Center with a bill, demanding immediate payment for approximately $1 million in Additional Premium for the fall 1998 reconciliation. This bill grossly miscalculated and overstated the amount of Additional Premium due under the Plan.

73. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew or should have known that this bill was incorrect, and that due to its trust and reliance, Medical Center would not discover that it had been billed in error. Upon information and belief, NCRIC overbilled Medical Center for Additional Premium, in violation of the Plan, in a wrongful attempt to gain leverage over Medical Center and force it to renew the Plan.

74. As a direct and foreseeable result of the foregoing, Medical Center had no reasonable alternative but to reject the MIIX offer and renew the NCRIC Plan. Medical Center was forced to accept liability for potential Additional Premium for the period beginning September 1, 1998, which it would not otherwise have accepted.

75. In about October 1998, the Plan was renewed for one year, through September 1999. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 5, was drafted by NCRIC. Shortly thereafter, upon information and belief, NCRIC, its goal accomplished, dropped its demand that Medical Center pay an additional $1 million.

Medical Entity Policy

76. During late 1998, Medical Center decided to purchase a MMLI policy for the Columbia Physicians Group ("CPG"), physicians who practiced in Medical Center's ambulatory clinic. Although most CPG physicians were covered by their own individual MMLI policies at all times, Medical Center offered them additional MMLI when they worked in the clinic.

77. Medical Center purchased the CPG Policy from NCRIC (the "Policy"). This one-year policy, effective December 1, 1998, was renewed on December 1, 1999.

78. Medical Center complied with all of its obligations under the Policy.

1999 Renewals

79. In 1999, Medical Center searched for, but did not locate, lower-cost MMLI for its Attending Faculty. Accordingly, the Plan was renewed for one year, effective September 1999. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 6, was drafted by NCRIC.

Failed 2000 Renewal Negotiations and NCRIC's Cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy

80. After the 2000 renewal, Medical Center formed a committee of the Attending Faculty to search for lower-cost MMLI. The committee was composed of unbiased and well-respected members of the Attending Faculty, including at least one member of NCRIC's Board of Directors. The committee notified NCRIC of its goal.

81. This committee obtained a proposal from The Medical Protective Company ("MedPro"), a well-respected national insurance company. The premium for MedPro's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy was below the discounted price of NCRIC's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy. Morever, under the MedPro proposal Medical Center would not be required to accept liability for any additional premium.

82. The committee informed Medical Center's Board of Directors that it had found an acceptable substitute MMLI policy for the Attending Faculty.

83. At about this time, Medical Center requested that NCRIC propose a discount program based on actual rather than incurred losses. NCRIC refused to make such a proposal unless Medical Center first settled the existing Plan.

84. Negotiations to settle the Plan commenced and continued throughout the summer of 2000, until the parties reached an agreement to settle. The settlement was contingent on Medical Center's Board of Directors approving the Plan.

85. On June 27, 2000, Medical Center's Board of Directors decline to approve the settlement plan. Medical Center informed NCRIC of this development immediately.

86. On June 30, 2000 in retaliation for the Board's refusal to agree to the settlement, NCRIC, without justification, canceled the Policy. After initially providing Medical Center with insufficient notice in violation of District of Columbia insurance regulations, NCRIC notified Medical Center that cancellation of the Policy was effective on September 1, 2000. NCRIC also informed Medical Center that the Plan would be terminated on that date.

87. Despite the foregoing, throughout the summer Medical Center continued to negotiate in good faith towards a settlement of the existing Plan that would meet the approval of its Board of Directors. The parties reached another settlement in August 2000.

88. NCRIC, however, reneged on the settlement in late August 2000.

89. In further retaliation against Medical Center, on or about the effective date of the Policy's cancellation, representatives of NCRIC made untrue and malicious statements regarding Medical Center and the ambulatory clinic to members of the Attending Faculty and CPG. These statements included but were not limited to: (1) that the Policy had expired; (2) that CPG physicians who also were members of the Attending Faculty were not covered by NCRIC's MMLI policy while practicing at the clinic; (3) that Medical Center's self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure the CPG; (4) that Medical Center's ambulatory clinic was a dangerous place to work.

90. These statements caused a panic amount CPG physicians. As a result, some CPG physicians did not show up for work; others quit the clinic altogether. Shifts went uncovered, and the few physicians who were willing to work at the clinic worked extra shifts. Due to the lack of doctors, some clinic patients who required care were turned away.

91. As a result of the foregoing, Medical Center's reputation in the community, and among its patients, staff and associated physicians, was harmed. Staff members began to circulate rumors that Medical Center, which recently had improved its fiscal position, would close. Physicians ceased their association with Medical Center and/or CPG; staff members quit.

92. In further retaliation against Medical Center, NCRIC, without justification, informed CPG physicians who held individual NCRIC MMLI policies that they were not covered by these policies when practicing at Medical Center's ambulatory clinic. Upon information and belief, there was no proper underwriting justification for this exclusion.

93. Due to NCRIC's wrongful refusal to provide MMLI coverage for individual physicians practicing at Medical Center's ambulatory clinic, many physicians quit the clinic. As a result, Medical Center has had, and continues to have, difficulty staffing the clinic.

94. As a result of the termination of the Plan, upon information and belief, NCRIC and its representatives urged members of the Attending Faculty to move their practices from Medical Center to the competitor hospitals that had in place discount programs with NCRIC.

95. As a result of the termination of the Plan, the Attending Faculty were required to decide, on short notice, whether to: (1) remain with NCRIC and move their practices to a competitor hospital with a discount program, as NCRIC urged; (2) switch to Med Pro, the new MMLI provider for Medical Center; or (3) remain at Medical Center and pay the undiscounted

NCRIC MMLI premium. But for Attending Faculty for whom NCRIC was presently defending MMLI claims, this was no choice at all: for all practical purposes, they could not leave NCRIC.

96. Of those faculty who could choose to leave, about 12-17 physicians -- at least one-fourth of the active membership of the Attending Faculty -- left Medical Center. Among those leaving were some physicians who admitted a large volume of patients to Medical Center.

97. The departure of these Attending Faculty had an immediate effect on Medical Center's bottom line. The hospital, which was about to break even for the first time in years, lost revenue and remained unprofitable.

98. The hospital's poor financial condition had an adverse effect on morale at Medical Center. Rumors circulated among the staff that Medical Center would close. More physicians ceased their association with Medical Center; more staff members and nurses quit. Members of the administration, including senior executives, left their posts. Many of the remaining physicians spoke openly about leaving, thereby causing morale to deteriorate further.

99. Word of Medical Center's poor financial condition, and rumors of its imminent demise, reached the greater community. Local media repeatedly contacted members of the Medical Center's Board of Directors to ask when Medical Center would close its doors.

100. As a result of Medical Center's difficult fiscal situation, which continues, and the public rumors that it will close, Medical Center has had and continues to have difficulty recruiting the new physicians and staff it needs to improve its financial situation.

101. On September 1, 2000, NCRIC informed Medical Center that the current amount of Additional Premium due was as a result of the fall 2000 reconciliation was $1,285,525.00.

This reconciliation was, upon information and belief, knowingly grossly miscalculated and overstated by NCRIC in retaliation for Medical Center's refusal to settle the Plan.

102. In fact, no Additional Premium was due under the Plan, and Medical Center was due Return Premium. Medical Center was not immediately aware of NCRIC's deception, and did not immediately contest the amount of Additional Premium stated by NCRIC, or demand payment of the amount of Return Premium that actually was due.

103. On October 1, 2000, NCRIC presented Medical Center with a bill for $1,285,525.00. Upon information and belief, this amount knowingly stated that Additional Premium was due when in fact Return Premium was due.

COUNT ONE

Breach of Contract

104. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 103, as if set forth fully herein.

105. The amended and renewed Plan, as described above, constitutes a valid and binding contract between Medical Center and NCRIC.

106. Medical Center has performed each obligation and condition of the Plan, except those which it was prevented from performing or those which it was excused from performing or those which were waived by NCRIC's misconduct.

107. Under the terms of the Plan, NCRIC was required to perform certain obligations, including those obligations set forth in Paragraphs 31 through 36, above.

108. NCRIC materially breached the Plan by failing to perform its obligations under the Plan, including those breaches described in Paragraphs 37 through 42, above.

16d-000105

109. As a result of NCRIC's failure to perform its obligations under the Plan, NCRIC caused Medical Center damages including the overpayment of Additional Premium, thereby causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

110. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has injured in its business and property.

COUNT TWO

Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

111. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 110, as if set forth fully herein.

112. The amended and renewed Plan, as described above, constitutes a valid and binding contract between Medical Center and NCRIC.

113. Medical Center has performed each obligation and condition of the Plan, except those which it was prevented from performing or those which it was excused from performing or those which were waived by NCRIC's misconduct.

114. By law, the Plan includes an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing.

115. NCRIC has breach the Plan by acting unfairly and in bad faith, including acting as described in Paragraphs 37 through 42, 49, 50, 53, 54, 57, 58, 72 through 74, 101, 102, and 104 above.

116. As a result of NCRIC's failure to perform its obligations under the Plan, NCRIC caused Medical Center damages including the overpayment of Additional Premium, thereby causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

117. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has injured in its business and property.

COUNT THREE

Breach of Fiduciary Duty

118. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 117, as if set forth fully herein.

119. At all times mentioned herein, a fiduciary relationship existed between NCRIC and Medical Center by virtue of (a) NCRIC's responsibility, stated in the Plan, to perform all bookkeeping on behalf of Medical Center under the Plan; (b) Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC to administer the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware; (c) Medical Center's reliance on NCRIC to properly and honestly perform reconciliations and accurately calculate Additional or Return Premium, of which NCRIC was fully aware; and (d) Medical Center's dependence on NCRIC for certain information necessary to perform retro calculations under the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware.

120. NCRIC has, by its actions alleged above, including those actions set forth in Paragraphs 37 through 42, 49, 50, 53, 54, 57, 58, 72 through 74, 101, 102 and 104, breached its fiduciary duties to Medical Center.

121. NCRIC breached its fiduciary duties to Medical Center, upon information and belief, with the intent to defraud and/or deceive Medical Center.

122. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

16d-000107

COUNT FOUR

Tortious Interference with Business Relations

123. Medical Center incorporates the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 122 as if fully set forth herein.

124. During the period up to and including August 2000, Medical Center had valid business relationships with certain physicians who were associated with Medical Center and an expectancy that such physicians would refer patients to Medical Center.

125. NCRIC knew about these valid business relationships and expectancy.

126. NCRIC intentionally and maliciously interfered with these relationships and expectancy (a) by or through its agents, making wrongful and/or untrue, unprivileged statements, including those statements set forth in Paragraphs 69, 70 and 89, regarding Medical Center, its Board of Directors, and MIIX; and (b) by urging said physicians, wrongfully and without privilege, to move their practices from Medical Center to its competitor.

127. As a direct and proximate result of NCRIC's wrongful interference, a number of its physicians terminated their association with at Medical Center, and ceased referring patients to Medical Center.

128. NCRIC has been and is being injured by NCRIC's malfeasance due to loss of revenue resulting from loss of patient referrals.

COUNT FIVE

Tortious Interference with Prospective Business Advantage

129. Medical Center incorporates the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 128 as if fully set forth herein.

16d-000108

130. Medical Center had a reasonable business expectancy in the patients referred by its associated physicians, and reasonably expected to continue the association with its physicians and the resulting patient referrals.

131. NCRIC was aware of this business expectancy, as described above.

132. Despite its knowledge, NCRIC deliberately and intentionally or recklessly acted to interfere with and prevent Medical Center from realizing the aforementioned business expectancies by engaging in the tortious and wrongful conduct described above.

133. NCRIC's foregoing actions constitute an intentional and tortious interference with Medical Center's reasonable business expectancies.

134. As a result of their foregoing actions, NCRIC has proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of substantial economic loss, including loss of revenue resulting from loss of Attending Faculty and patient referrals.

COUNT SIX

Negligence

135. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 134, as if fully set forth herein.

136. At all times relevant to this Complaint, NCRIC had a duty of care in relation to Medical Center, by virtue of its contract with Medical Center and its relationship with Medical Center, including its position as bookkeeper for and administrator of the Plan.

137. NCRIC breached its duty of care and was negligent by miscalculating the amounts of Additional or Return Premium due, as described above.

138. NCRIC 's negligence proximately caused Medical Center damage by causing it to overpay Additional Premium and fail to demand Return Premium it was due, and further, by causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT SEVEN

Actual and/or Constructive Fraud

139. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 138, as though fully set forth herein.

140. As set forth above, NCRIC was in a fiduciary and/or confidential position with regard to Medical Center, due to NCRIC's role as administrator of the Plan and its duty to perform all bookkeeping and reconciliations under the Plan.

141. Due to this fiduciary and/or confidential relationship between NCRIC and Medical Center, as set forth above, Medical Center trusted NCRIC's administration of the Plan and relied on NCRIC to correctly and honestly perform each reconciliation and accurately calculate any Additional or Return Premium due.

142. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) that after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. NCRIC also concealed from plaintiffs material facts which amounted to a misrepresentation by refusing to provide information concerning Loss Reserves as provided for by the Plan, among other things.

143. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

144. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

145. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

146. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's false representations and concealments by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT EIGHT

Negligent Misrepresentation

147. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 146, as though fully set forth herein.

148. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that: (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. Moreover, as set forth above in Paragraphs 37 and 38, NCRIC concealed from plaintiffs material facts that amounted to a misrepresentation.

149. NCRIC negligently made these false representations because it failed to ensure that it maintain Loss Reserves in accord with the industry standard, among other things.

150. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

151. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

152. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

153. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's negligent actions by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT NINE

Defamation and Libel

154. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 153, as if fully set forth herein.

155. NCRIC and its agents made numerous false and defamatory statements including those statements set forth in Paragraphs 69 and 89.

156. The foregoing false and defamatory statements were published to physicians who were associated with Medical Center.

157. NCRIC's foregoing false and defamatory statements about Medical Center were made upon information and belief with knowledge of their falsity or reckless indifference or negligence as to their truth or falsity.

158. As a result of its foregoing false and defamatory statements, NCRIC has directly and proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of harm to its reputation and substantial economic loss.

COUNT TEN

Trade Libel/Commercial Disparagement/Injurious Falsehood

159. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 158, as if fully set forth herein.

160. NCRIC made and false and misleading representations of fact which disparaged Medical Center's performance as a hospital. These statements included those statements set forth in Paragraphs 70 and 90.

161. NCRIC made the foregoing false representations for the purpose of disparaging the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility.

162. NCRIC made the foregoing false representations intentionally and with full knowledge that these statements would case doubt upon the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility.

163. As a result of the foregoing false representations, NCRIC has proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of substantial economic loss.

164. NCRIC's false representations of fact regarding the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility violate the common law of commercial disparagement and trade libel and injurious falsehood.

COUNT ELEVEN

Conversion

165. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 164, as if fully set forth herein.

166. Medical Center made payments to NCRIC, described above in Paragraph 60.

167. If and to the extent that such payments were for Additional Premium actually owed by Medical Center, NCRIC interfered with Medical Center's property to the exclusion and in defiance of Medical Center's rights to the property by not returning Medical Center's payments when and to the extent that NCRIC subsequently owed Medical Center Return Premium.

168. As a result of the conversion of its property by NCRIC, Medical Center has been injured in an amount to be proved at trial.

Relief Requested

WHEREFORE, Medical Center asks that the Court award Medical Center its actual damages; punitive damages, as a result of NCRIC's malfeasance, fraud and bad faith; costs, including reasonable attorney's fees; and such further relief as the Court may deem just and equitable.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants listed on Exhibit D, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation, or termination of participation, in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

   a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

16d-000119

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NCRIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

If to NCRIC:

Mr. David K. Little
President
National Capital Underwriters, Inc.

If to Medical Center:

Mr. G. Patrick Kane, FACHE
President & Chief Executive Officer
Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center
2425 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

The date of service of any such notice shall be the date that such notice is deposited with the U.S. Postal Service or the date of personal delivery, as applicable.

17. Medical Center hereby warrants and represents that it has made, and agrees to provide NCRIC with its auditor's or actuary's annual statement reflecting, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no modifications, amendments or additions thereto shall be binding unless in writing and executed by all the parties hereto.

19. This Agreement shall not be assignable without the prior written consent of the parties hereto.

20. The agreements, terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns, if any.

21. This Agreement is made and executed in the District of Columbia, and shall be governed by the law of the District of Columbia.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have caused their corporate names to be subscribed hereto by their duly authorized officers or attorneys-in-fact, and their corporate seal to be hereunto affixed effective the day and year first above written.

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN
PREMIUM ADJUSTMENT ENDORSEMENT

Policy Number:

Effective Date:

This endorsement forms a part of the Policy issued by the National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company (the "Company") and takes effect as of the effective hour and date of said policy unless another effective date is stated herein.

Nothing herein contained shall be held to vary, waive, alter or extend any of the terms, conditions, agreements or declarations of the policy, other than as herein stated.

1. The premium for Coverage A stated in the declarations is a provisional premium and is contingent upon participation by the named insured in a retrospective rating plan. Upon the Company's receipt of notice of the termination of the participation of the named insured in the retrospective rating plan the premium for Coverage A will be adjusted to 100% of the Company's otherwise applicable premium then in effect.

2. All other premiums listed in the declarations and any additional premiums resulting from any policy endorsements are not affected as a result of the named insured's participation in a retrospective rating plan.

This endorsement shall not be binding unless countersigned by a duly authorized Company representative; provided, however, that if this endorsement takes effect as of the effective date of the policy and, at issue of said policy, forms a part thereof, countersignature on the declarations of said policy by a duly authorized Company representative shall constitute valid countersignature of this endorsement.

Dear Steve,

This letter will confirm that Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center is obligating itself to an increase from 15 to 30 percent for participating members of the Faculty of Columbia Hospital for Women.

As we discussed, this enhanced plan will require carefully monitoring. Dr. Nabil Asterbadi is presenting his plan for monitoring to the Performance Improvement Committee of the Board of Directors on Thursday, January 18. I will forward that plan to you as soon as it is improved. Also, individual members of the faculty will have to sign new agreements reflecting their willingness to adhere to the protocols. As agreements are signed, I will forward names to you. Also as we discussed, the timing of this could present a problem with the due date of the premium notices. Please let me know as soon as possible whether the one-month delay which we discussed is feasible.

This plan will be in effect from January through September 1996, at which time we will review performance with you.

Thanks, Steve. Have a good day.

Sincerely,

Susan M. Hansen

AMENDMENT A.

PURPOSE

This amendment adjusts the credit as described in Exhibit A. 7. Definitions, "Deposit Premium" in the Agreement between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") and Medical Center.

By signature, the Agreement is changed to read as follows:

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-two percent (62%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the remaining term of this Agreement from said forth date of January 1, 1996 and does not adjust the Agreement prior to this date.

ADDENDUM TO
RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Addendum amends the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") and Exhibit A, attached, made and entered into effective the first day of September 1,1993 by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

This Addendum extends the Agreement and Exhibit A from September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1998. For purposes of Modifications, only language amended in the Agreement is noted below and for purposes of Plan calculations in the Agreement, a full Exhibit A, with modifications is included.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make financial security to NCRIC, in accordance with permitted statutory accounting practices as prescribed under the D.C. Insurance Code, or otherwise as acceptable by the D.C. Insurance Administration, for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

Page 3, Item 10:

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet semi-annually to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

b. Annually, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with financial security in that is in accordance with permitted statutory accounting practices as prescribed under the D.C. Insurance Code, or otherwise that is acceptable by the D.C. Insurance Administration, for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement. This amount will be adjusted accordingly to the outstanding retrospective premium due.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension, reporting endorsement or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants by NCRIC during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, reporting endorsements or new issuances. All renewals, extension, reporting endorsements or new issuances represent coverage contracts solely between NCRIC and physicians.

FIVE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center first entered into on September 1, 1993 and added to by this plan through September 1, 1998 (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be five years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1998. The Plan shall consist of five separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 a.m. on	and Ending 12:01 a.m. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 33% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage for the last three periods ending 1996, 1997 and 1998 respectively. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) = {[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor}+Basic Premium.

16d-000139

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedules:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1995 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998
September 1, 1997 to September 1, 1998	September 1, 1999

Reconciliation calculations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall be not deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the end of an Experience Period, reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Five (5) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$1,539,000 - $2,565,999	20.7%
$2,566,000 - $3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-seven (67%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan, unless both parties agree to a change and amend this Agreement hereunder.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and all reconciliations applicable thereto, unless NCRIC claims trending, as actuarially noted, indicates otherwise development at which time applicable development factors of NCRIC will apply.

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	55.0%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	65.0%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	80.0%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means the factor currently used by NCRIC at the time of the reconciliation. At the time of this Agreement 86.33% will apply.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the prorated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (I) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (133%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (60%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insured were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall not exceed 85%, nor be less than 70% of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/ $3 million aggregate.

EXHIBIT 5

ADDENDUM B TO
RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Addendum amends the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") and Exhibit A, attached, made and entered into effective the first day of September 1, 1993 and Addendum amending Agreement January 1, 1997, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("CHWMC").

This Addendum extends the Agreement, Addendum and Exhibit A from September 1, 1998 to September 1, 1999. For purposes of Modifications, only language amended in the Agreement is noted below and for purposes of Plan calculations in the Agreement, a full Exhibit A, with modifications is included.

10. NCRIC, a Medical Center representative and a Physicians Claims Committee representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

A. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide the following:

(I) for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participating or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

(II) a loss run detailing the following information:

Date of Loss
Date Claim Made
Claimant's Name
Location of Claim (hospital, office)"
Brief Description of Claim
Status (Claim/Suit)
Total Indemnity Reserve (in the aggregate only)
Total Expense Reserve (in the aggregate only)

(III) a review of Medical Center risk management activities and risk management issues presented by the claims.

18. This Agreement shall not be assignable under any circumstances, whether in connection with the bankruptcy cases in which CHWMC are currently debtors or otherwise, by any party hereto without the express written consent of other parties, provided that the obligations of NCRIC hereunder shall be assigned to any admitted insurer which is a successor to NCRIC by reason of conversion, reorganization or merger approved by the District of Columbia Commissioner of Insurance. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CHWMC will assume and assign to the reorganized merged entity under its plan of reorganization, this Agreement. This agreement shall terminate (i) upon the conversion of the CHWMC case to Chapter 7 case, or (ii) if greater than 50% of Plan Participants resign their affiliation with CHWMC.

SIX YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the CHWMC's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center first entered into on September 1, 1993 and subsequently amended January 1, 1997, and added to by this plan through September 1, 1999 (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be six years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1999. The Plan shall consist of six separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 a.m. on	and Ending 12:01 a.m. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998
September 1, 1998	September 1, 1999

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19%of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage in the first two years of the Plan and 33% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage in the remaining years of the Plan. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return (if any), shall be solely that of CHWMC.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) = {[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor}+Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedules:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1995 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998
September 1, 1997 to September 1, 1998	September 1, 1999
September 1, 1998 to September 1, 1999	September 1, 2000

Reconciliation calculations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall be not deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the end of an Experience Period, reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") CHWMC under the terms of the Plan will be presented to CHWMC. Any amounts due either to or from CHWMC shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Six (6) Year "Subject" Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$1,539,000 - $2,565,999	20.7%
$2,566,000 - $3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-seven (67%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the one year term of the Plan, unless both parties agree to a change and amend this Agreement hereunder.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and all reconciliations applicable thereto, unless NCRIC claims trending, as actuarially noted, indicates otherwise development at which time applicable development factors of NCRIC will apply.

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	55.0%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	65.0%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	80.0%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means the factor currently used by NCRIC at the time of the reconciliation. At the time of this Agreement 86.33% will apply.

16d-000149

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the prorated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (I) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and thirty three percent (133%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to sixty percent (60%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

16d-000150

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insured were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall not exceed 85%, nor be less than 70% of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/ $3 million aggregate.

MOTION FOR MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT OF ALLEGATIONS OF FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION AND MOTION TO STRIKE INSUFFICIENT DEFENSE

NCRIC, INC., plaintiff, by counsel, moves this Court pursuant to SCR 12 (e) and SCR 9 (b) for an order requiring the defendant to provide plaintiff with a more definite statement of the following so that plaintiff may answer the complaint fully: the amounts of compensatory and punitive damages claimed by defendants for each Count of the complaint in order that plaintiff may answer or move to dismiss punitive damages where such relief is not permitted by law.

Plaintiff also moves this Court pursuant to SCR 12 (f) to strike defendant's Tenth Defense as legally insufficient.

The specific grounds of the Motion are set forth in the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities.

Roy Niedermayer, Esq. DC. Bar #180380
7475 Wisconsin Avenue, Suite 500
Bethesda, MD 20814
Telephone: (301) 951-4456

Attorney for Plaintiff

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

1. MOTION FOR MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT.

a. The Prayer for Relief Is Ambiguous and Does Not Permit Plaintiff to Frame a Response.

Defendant attaches a single prayer for relief addressing and seeking relief under each of its alleged Counts and legal theories for relief. The relief sought is compensatory and punitive monetary damages, although no amount is stated. Moreover, the prayer is vague and indefinite as to whether the defendant is seeking punitive damages for each Count or only some of the legal theories pleaded in each Count. Plaintiff cannot file an appropriate response by motion or reply until it knows whether the claim is for punitive damages for every Count, or such damages are limited to specific Counts. Depending upon for which Counts the punitive damages are sought, plaintiff may file a motion to dismiss or a reply denying defendant's entitlement to such relief on the facts.

2. MOTION TO STRIKE .

a. Defendant's Tenth Defense is Not a Legally Sufficient Defense.

Defendant's denominated Tenth Defense is simply a statement "reserv[ing]" a "right" to supplement and amend its answer by adding affirmative defenses at a later date. There is no such procedural right in the Rules independent of the requirements of SCR 15 and defendant's statement cannot create one. Defendant has the opportunity and procedure provided by SCR 15 to address later supplementation and amendment of its answer by following the procedure of the Rule. But as stated, the Tenth Defense is neither a legal nor a factual defense to the complaint. As such it is legally insufficient and should be stricken.

Roy Niedermayer, Esq. DC. Bar #180380

PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS COUNTERCLAIMS

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This action arises between the parties because of a material breach of contract by Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital") for failure to pay over $1,000,000 in insurance premiums due NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") for professional liability insurance coverage already provided to physicians performing services at Hospital's facilities. NCRIC provided coverage for medical negligence and the Hospital owed the premiums in accordance with an October 1993 Retrospective Rating Policy Agreement, as amended, (the "RRR Agreement") which Hospital admits in paragraph 26 of its Counterclaims is the document governing the relationship between the parties. A close and accurate reading of Hospital's Counterclaim Counts 1-3, 7-8, and 11 reveal they are substantially grounded upon NCRIC's breaches of the RRR Agreement. The relief sought by Hospital is an accounting for monies claimed owed as a result of overpayments by Hospital or failures to obtain refunds from NCRIC, punitive damages, and attorneys' fees. The remaining Counterclaim Counts involved allegedly tortious conduct based on statements made by the NCRIC during the course of its contractual relationship with Hospital.

The heart of the dispute between the parties is centered on the RRR Agreement, a copy of which with amendments is attached by Hospital to its Counterclaims as Exhibits 1 and 3-6. The existence and terms of the RRR Agreement form the essential core of each one of Hospital's Counterclaim Counts. Thus, the RRR Agreement provides the focus from which analysis of the legal validity of the Counterclaims must begin.

ARGUMENT

I. COUNT 3 MUST BE DISMISSED FOR FAILURE TO STATE A CLAIM BECAUSE THERE IS NO FIDUCIARY RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE PARTIES.

In Count 3, Hospital claims the breach of fiduciary duty existing between itself and NCRIC of undefined origin. The basis for this fiduciary duty, however, cannot be any traditional relationship of trust and confidence giving rise to a fiduciary relationship such as attorney-client, Connelly v. Swick & Shapiro, P.C., 749 A.2d 1264 (D.C. 2000); conservator, executor, personal representative, trustee-beneficiary, In re Estate of Harris, 715 A.2d 116 (D.C. 1998; In re Estate of Cerreia, 719 A.2d 1234 (D.C. 1998); a partnership arrangement, Marmac Investment Co. v. Wolpe, 759 A.2d 620 (D.C. 2000); a doctor-patient relationship, Hoopes v. Hamargreen, 725 P.2d 238 (Nev. 1986); spousal relationship, Higgs v. Higgs, 472 A.2d 875 (D.C. 1984); parent-child or guardian-ward, corporate officer/director, majority stockholder-minority stockholder, Santa Fe Industries, Inc. v. Green, 430 U.S. 462 (1997), or any other identified legal relationship of trust and confidence where one party has a superior authoritative position or control over another because of incompetence, disability, or similar reason. The reason is that none of these are the relationship between the parties here.

Despite being couched as a breach of some fiduciary duty, the Hospital's claims are derived from the RRR Agreement between the parties and this fact cannot be disguised. E.g., Goodman v. Wood, 259 A.2d 594 (D.C. 1969). The entire relationship between the parties is based upon and arises out of the RRR Agreement between them. Hospital says so itself in its allegations by describing the specific source of this fiduciary duty (and other actions of NCRIC alleged in other Counterclaim Counts) as existing "by virtue of" NCRIC's contract duties under the RRR Agreement.[1/] See Counterclaim ¶ 119. Thus, NCRIC's obligations and the rights of Hospital, if any, come from and are controlled by the RRR Agreement.

Yet, the RRR Agreement language does not create a fiduciary relationship or even speak of one in this arm's length transaction between competent, sophisticated, and knowledgeable parties. Mutual obligations and duties do not themselves create a fiduciary duty between the NCRIC and Hospital, (or vice versa) nor does any special expertise in NCRIC as claimed by Hospital create that relationship. In this regard, Hospital's fiduciary duty claim is not based on applicable law, since in every contract there may be special skill or knowledge required for performance on the part of one of the parties. But this does not create a fiduciary relationship. The relationship remains simply contractual. For example, owners of land enter into development/construction contracts with general contractors who possess the requisite special expertise and experience in construction. This is the reason construction contracts are entered into with general contractors. This does not create a fiduciary relationship between the parties, nor make defective construction a breach of fiduciary duty. .

[1/] Actually, the fact that Hospital incorporates by reference each of the prior paragraphs into subsequent Counterclaim Counts underscores each claim is derived from the RRR Agreement. See Counterclaim ¶¶ 111, 118, 123, 129, 135, 139, 147, 154, 159, and 165.

The contractual nature here is underscored by the allegations of County 3 itself. Hospital incorporates by reference the allegations of its paragraphs 31-36 into this Counterclaim Count. These paragraphs are a recitation of NCRIC's contractual duties. Compare paragraphs 31-36 of the Counterclaims with (i) paragraphs 1, 7, 14, and Exhibit A ¶¶ 3-6 of Counterclaim Exhibit 1, (ii) Addendum Exhibit A ¶¶ 3-6 of Counterclaim Exhibit 4 and (iii) Addendum B Exhibit A ¶¶ 3-6 of Counterclaim Exhibit 5. The obligations regarding bookkeeping, calculation of premiums owed or to be refunded, accounting reconciliations, notices to the Hospital and similar items are the very RRR Agreement duties of NCRIC. The specific allegations in paragraph 120 as the basis for the violations of fiduciary duties are the reporting, calculation of premiums, additional premiums or refund premiums (paragraphs 38-41, 49-57, 72-102), and similar items. These are all clearly contractual not fiduciary duties.

Because a fiduciary duty cannot be manufactured out of a simple contractual relationship arising from an arm's-length contract between parties equal in competence and knowledge, Count 3 must be dismissed.

II. COUNTS 4 AND 5 FAIL TO STATE CLAIMS FOR INTERFERENCE BECAUSE THE ALLEGATIONS ARE LEGALLY DEFICIENT AND THE ALLEGED INTERFERENCE CANNOT BE BASED UPON STATEMENTS OF OPINION.

Hospital's Count 4 fails to allege an essential element of a cause of action for interference with contract: the existence of a contract between the Hospital and the doctors "associated with" the Hospital with which contract NCRIC could interfere[2/]. Paul v. Howard University, 754 A.2d 297 (D.C. 2000). Hospital does alleges a valid business "relationship" with certain (but apparently not all) doctors. But this inexact and amorphous concept does not rise to the required level of a contract and the necessary element for this legal theory. The Hospital's careful use of the language of "relationship" and "association" itself reveals the failure of this element. The Hospital describes the doctors as "associated" with the Hospital not as contract employees or independent contractors with specific agreements.

Further, the Hospital's pleading speaks in terms of "expectancy" rather than concrete contract obligation or right. A fair reading of the plain allegations and applying common sense and experience reveals the Hospital "hopes" (or has an "expectancy" as it characterizes it in Counterclaim Count 5) the doctors will refer patients to the Hospital. The use of the term "expectancy" is important in context for what it does not say or denote – a contract right in the Hospital and a contract duty of the doctors. The hope the doctors will refer patients is not a contractual duty or agreement to do so. Indeed, such an agreement to steer patients might even violate other ethical or legal requirements fo the doctors.

[2/] Although Hospital describes Count 4 as interference with "business relations", this has been deemed to mean interference with contract. This seems to be what Hospital intends as shown by a comparison with Count 5 which alleges interference with prospective business relations. Apparently, these two counts are intended to allege different legal theories of recovery. Bennett Enters. v. Domino's Pizza, Inc., 45 F.3d 493 (D.D.C. 1995).

Likewise, NCRIC's knowledge of a relationship (assuming it had such knowledge as to specific doctors) not constituting a contract is insufficient to meet the second element of the cause of action for interference with contract.

In addition, Count 4 fails on the fourth element of the cause of action: intent. Id. The Hospital does allege intentional conduct to interfere generally but enumerates the specific acts exhibiting the intent in ¶ 69, 70 and 89. To allege a cause of action, the intentional conduct necessary must be egregious involving libel, slander, physical coercion, fraud, misrepresentation or disparagement. Genetic Sys. Corp. v. Abbott Labs, 691 F.Supp. 407 (D.D.C. 1988). There is no allegation of physical coercion in the Counterclaims. The intentional acts are solely oral statements made by NCRIC which are not actionable as libel because they are not alleged to be written nor actionable as slander, fraud, misrepresentation or disparagement.

In ¶ 69, statements (1)-(4) and (7) are only about a third company MIIX, not the Hospital. Statement (5) addresses actions of members of the Board of Directors acting seemingly on a personal basis for personal reasons ("cronyism") in their individual capacities, not the Hospital itself. Only statement (6) deals with the Hospital and could conceivably effect the "relationship" of the Hospital and doctors in a direct way. But that statement is privileged. NCRIC provides insurance coverage to the associated physicians. The physicians are NCRIC's insureds. Communications between an insurer and insured on a topic of common concern to both, such as continuation of insurance coverage under the RRR Agreement and possible loss of coverage, have a qualified privilege. Turner v.

Welliver, 411 N.W.2d 298 (1987); see also, Annot., 85 A.L.R. 3d 1161 (1978). In fact, NCRIC may have had a duty to make this communications for the protection of its then insured and this would provide a privilege to it. Columbia First Bank v. Ferguson, 664 A.2d 650 (1995).

Similarly, the implied statements in ¶ 70 do not constitute the wrongful conduct necessary to sustain an interference claim. Aside from the lack of any contract or the privileged nature of the statements, a reasonable reading of the allegations are that NCRIC was telling its doctors-insureds not to practice where they lacked professional liability coverage, again a matter of common interest to both NCRIC and the doctors.

The statements in ¶ 89 are not defamatory either so as to qualify them as the intentional conduct. Statement numbers (1) and (2) are statements of law, e.g., the current legal status of the Plan and cannot be either defamatory or constitute fraud or misrepresentations. Hembry v. Parreco, 81 A.2d 77 (D.C. Mun. App. 1951). NCRIC's statements in (3) and (4) are opinions which cannot be slanderous or form the basis for fraud, misrepresentation, or disparagement. Dicken v. Shepherd, 22 Md. 399 (1864)(Inability to pay is not slanderous). Indeed, the Hospital's own recitation of its financial condition and difficulties at ¶¶ 56-57 and 60 support the truth some of the statements in ¶ 89.

For all these reasons, Based on this, Count 4 must fail legally and be dismissed.

III. COUNT 6 MUST BE DISMISSED BECAUSE THE ALLEGED DUTY OF CARE ARISES FROM CONTRACT, NOT TORT.

In Count VI, Hospital alleges in paragraph 136 that "the duty owed by NCRIC arises by virtue of its contract with [Hospital]". (Emphasis added). The gravamen of the breaches and negligence in Counterclaim Count 6 is the miscalculation in the amount of premium due to NCRIC or to be refunded to Hospital. These are clearly contractual duties. See (i) paragraphs 1, 7, 14, and Exhibit A ¶¶ 3-6 of Counterclaim Exhibit 1, (ii) Addendum Exhibit A ¶¶ 3-6 of Counterclaim Exhibit 4 and (iii) Addendum B Exhibit A ¶¶ 3-6 of Counterclaim Exhibit 5. There is no allegation of an independent duty or identification of a source of an independent duty owed by NCRIC to Hospital outside the RRR Agreement. Therefore, there is no tort claim in negligence alleged since the existence of a separate duty imposed by law and derived from a source other than the RRR Agreement is a necessary element of a claim for negligence. Hospital has failed to allege or identify the source or nature of the duty owed to Hospital independent of the RRR Agreement as a necessary element and its Counterclaim Count 6 must be dismissed..

IV. COUNTS 7 AND 8 MUST BE DISMISSED FOR FAILURE TO STATE A CLAIM BECAUSE CONTRACTUAL PROMISES CANNOT BE THE BASIS FOR A CLAIM OF FRAUD OR NEGLIGENT MISREPRESENTATION.

The simple fact is that the allegations of Counterclaim Counts 7 and 8 are based wholly upon the existence of a breach of the contractual promises of NCRIC in the RRR Agreement related to calculation of additional or return premiums due Hospital. See Counterclaim paragraph 40. These contractual promises are, as all contract promises are when made, wholly prospective in nature since they address what NCRIC will or must do in the future under the RRR Agreement. The promises are not facts, material or otherwise. Failure to perform future speaking contractual promises, customarily called breach of contract, does not constitute fraud. Baker v. Baker, 54 App.D.C. 214, 296 F. 961 (1924); Ortel v. Upper Ashburton Realty Co., Inc., 171 Md. 678, 190 A. 239, 242 (1937); 12 Williston on Contracts, §1496, Fraud and Misrepresentation at 370 (19). On this basis, Counts 7 and 8 must be dismissed.

V. COUNTS 8, 9 AND 10 MUST BE DISMISSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART AS BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

In Counts 8, 9 and 10, Hospital relies in whole or part on the statements described in paragraphs 69 and 70 of the Counterclaims as well as other statements made before November 6, 1999 during the course of NCRIC's performance of the RRR Agreement since its inception in October 1993.[3/]

In Counterclaim Count 9, Hospital asserts these statements as actionable defamatory slander made by NCRIC. This Counterclaim Count specifies that the statements in paragraphs 69-70 were made in August 1998. The applicable statute of limitations in the District of Columbia for defamation actions is one (1) year. D.C. Code § 12-301(4) (1995). That statutory period expired at the latest on September 30, 1999. Hospital's claim based on August 1998 statements is therefore barred by the one-year statute. Similarly, any claim for libel or slander based on an oral or written statement made before November 6, 1999, the date the statute was tolled by Hospital's filing of it

[3/] Such statements are alleged to involve matters of Loss Reserves, reconciliations, and amounts of premium due to and from Hospital. See Counterclaim paragraph 148. Under the RRR Agreement, these matters were addressed annually during the RRR Agreement term including after the close of particular annual accounting periods. See, e.g., ¶ 5 of Exhibit A to Counterclaim Exhibit 1. By implication, Hospital must therefore be asserting that at least some of the statements about these topics were made prior to November 6, 1999.

Counterclaims, is similarly time-barred by the one-year statute. On the face of Hospital's own allegations in Counterclaim Count 9 based on pre-November 6, 1999 statements, these claims are also time-barred and must be dismissed.

Similarly, Hospital asserts claims denominated Trade Libel/Commercial Disparagement/Injurious Falsehood in Counterclaim Count 10. Because the factual bases for these causes of action are of the same nature as the defamation claim of Counterclaim Count 9, and are dependent on the same facts, Thomas v. New World Communications, 681 F.Supp 55, 72-72 (D.D.C. 1988); are intertwined factually with the Count 9 statements (and are in fact incorporated by reference into Counterclaim Count 10), Rendall-Speranza v. Nassim, 942 F. Supp. 621 (D.D.C. 1996), rev'd on other grounds, 107 F.3d 913 (D.C. Cir. 1997)(affirming statute of limitations) ; and rely on the nature of the same underlying statements in paragraphs 69-70 and pre-November 6, 1999 statements, de la Croix de Lafayette v. de la Croix de Lafayette, 117 WLR 2133 (Sup. Ct. 1989), the one-year statute of limitation also applies to this Count. Thus, claims based on paragraphs 69-70 and pre-November 6, 1999 statements are time-barred and must be dismissed.

Finally, the one-year statute of limitations also applies to Hospital's Counterclaim Count 8 claim in Negligent Misrepresentation because then underlying facts and nature of this claim is essentially the same as the defamation claims. See Foretich v. Glamour, 741 F.Supp. 247 (D.D.C. 1990). Under the same analysis as above, these claims must be dismissed to the extent they are based on paragraphs 69-70 and pre-November 6, 1999.

VI. COUNT 10 MUST BE DISMISSED AS BARRED BY NCRIC'S QUALIFIED PRIVILEGE.

Hospital bases its claims in Count 10 sounding in slander on the statements alleged in paragraph 89. Again, these statements involve opinions of NCRIC. See p. 7, supra. Not only can these statements not form the basis for a claim of defamation, the expiration of the policy or coverage items are matters involving opinions or statements of law. As such they cannot form the basis for defamation. Hembry v. Parreco, 81 A.2d 77 (D.C. Mun. App. 1951). Similarly, the opinion that the ambulatory clinic was a "dangerous place to work" is again no more than that: an opinion. In the context of statements to physicians, who are more medically knowledgeable and have a better opportunity to evaluate the medical danger of the clinic than does NCRIC, not actionable. Finally, the statement concerning the funding of the self-insurance trust is no more than an opinion of NCRIC which is, again, not defamatory. See, pp. 7, supra.

VII. CLAIMS FOR PUNITIVE DAMAGES IN COUNTS 1-3, 6, 8, AND 11 MUST BE DISMISSED AS NOT PERMITTED BY LAW OR LACKING ANY ALLEGATION OF MALICE.

In its prayer for relief, Hospital has made a general request for punitive damages. Since Hospital has not differentiated for which Counts it is or is not seeking punitive damages, NCRIC must assume Hospital is seeking exemplary damages for each of the claims alleged and the prayer is applicable to each of its Counterclaim Counts. Hospital, however, has failed to allege the legal element of malice necessary for recovery of punitive damages in any these Counts. Counts 1, 2, and 3 are claims based on the RRR Agreement, i.e., contract claims. Counts 6 (Negligence), 8 (Negligent Misrepresentation), and 11 (Conversion) arise from tort. There are no specific allegations of "fraud, recklessness, wantonness, oppressiveness, willful disregard of the [Hospital's] rights, or other circumstances tending to aggravate the injury," Dyer v. William S. Bergman & Assoc., Inc., 657 A.2d 1132, n.10 (D.C. 1995) or their equivalent in any of these Counterclaim Counts. Even though Count 11 alleges an intentional tort, there are no independent factual allegations separate from the tort itself which would entitle Hospital to punitive damages. Id.

Moreover, punitive damages are not recoverable in at least Counts 1 and 2, and probably Count 3, anyway to the extent based on contract, for the wholly separate reasons that exemplary damages are not permitted as a matter of law for breach of contract. Id..

IX. CLAIMS FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES MUST BE DISMISSED AS NOT PERMITTED BY LAW.

Hospital claims a recovery of attorney's fees incurred in this action as part of its prayer. Under the American Rule, Hospital is not entitled to any recovery of legal fees absent the applicability of special exceptions or a contractual agreement for payment. See, e.g., Concord Enterprises, Inc., v. Binder, 710 A.2d 219 (D.C. 1998). Exhibits 1 to the Counterclaims is the contract between the parties. It does not provide for the recovery of attorney's fees. There is no exception (e.g., derivative or representative action, common fund, class action, etc.) to the American Rule for the types of tort claims alleged by Hospital. Hospital's prayer for this type of relief must be dismissed.

MOTION FOR MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT OF ALLEGATIONS OF FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION AND MOTION TO STRIKE INSUFFICIENT DEFENSE

NCRIC, INC., plaintiff, by counsel, moves this Court pursuant to SCR 12 (e) and SCR 9 (b) for an order requiring the defendant to provide plaintiff with a more definite statement of the following so that plaintiff may answer the complaint fully: the amounts of compensatory and punitive damages claimed by defendants for each Count of the complaint in order that plaintiff may answer or move to dismiss punitive damages where such relief is not permitted by law.

Plaintiff also moves this Court pursuant to SCR 12 (f) to strike defendant's Tenth Defense as legally insufficient.

The specific grounds of the Motion are set forth in the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

1. MOTION FOR MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT.

a. The Prayer for Relief Is Ambiguous and Does Not Permit Plaintiff to Frame a Response.

Defendant attaches a single prayer for relief addressing and seeking relief under each of its alleged Counts and legal theories for relief. The relief sought is compensatory and punitive monetary damages, although no amount is stated. Moreover, the prayer is vague and indefinite as to whether the defendant is seeking punitive damages for each Count or only some of the legal theories pleaded in each Count. Plaintiff cannot file an appropriate response by motion or reply until it knows whether the claim is for punitive damages for every Count, or such damages are limited to specific Counts. Depending upon for which Counts the punitive damages are sought, plaintiff may file a motion to dismiss or a reply denying defendant's entitlement to such relief on the facts.

2. MOTION TO STRIKE .

a. Defendant's Tenth Defense is Not a Legally Sufficient Defense.

Defendant's denominated Tenth Defense is simply a statement "reserv[ing]" a "right" to supplement and amend its answer by adding affirmative defenses at a later date. There is no such procedural right in the Rules independent of the requirements of SCR 15 and defendant's statement cannot create one. Defendant has the opportunity and procedure provided by SCR 15 to address later supplementation and amendment of its answer by following the procedure of the Rule. But as stated, the Tenth Defense is neither a legal nor a factual defense to the complaint. As such it is legally insufficient and should be stricken.

REPLY OF PLAINTIFF TO COUNTERCLAIMS 1 AND 2 OF DEFENDANT

NCRIC, INC. ("NCRIC"), counterdefendant, by counsel, replies to the counterclaims of Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., counterplaintiff, as follows:

FIRST DEFENSE

The counterclaims fail to state claims against NCRIC upon which relief may be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE

For answers to the specific allegations of the counterclaims:

1. The allegations of paragraph 10 constitute the legal assertions of defendant to factual allegations of NCRIC's complaint and do not require a response.

2. NCRIC admits the factual allegation that defendant has been providing health care services in the District of Columbia, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 11.

3. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 12, except it states that it provides professional liability insurance to physicians in jurisdictions in addition to the District of Columbia.

4. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraphs 13, 26, 48, 55, 61, 77, 84-85, and 166.

5. NCRIC admits it provided professional liability insurance to certain physicians at defendant, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 14.

6. NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of paragraphs 15-16, 19, 44-45, 56, 63, 65-66, 74, 82, 87, 90-91, 96-100, 124, and 130.

7. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraphs 17-18, 20, 22-24, 30, 35-43, 49-51, 53-54, 58, 62, 64, 68, 70-73, 78, 83, 88-89, 92-95, 102-103, 106-110, 113-117, 119-122, 125-128, 131-134, 137-138, 140-146, 148-153, 155-158, 160-164, and 167-168.

8. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 21 insofar at it refers to physicians associated with the defendant, but NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 21.

9. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 25, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 25.

10. The allegations of paragraph 27 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response.

11. The allegations of paragraph 28 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response. To the extent any response is necessary, NCRIC refers to and relies on the terms of the written contract between the parties and denies the allegations to the extent they deviate or misstate those terms. NCRIC denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 28.

12. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 29, except it admits the factual allegations of subpart (1).

13. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations for "all reconciliations of the Plan," but denies each and every remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 31.

14. The allegations of paragraphs 32-33 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response. To the extent any response is necessary, NCRIC refers to and relies on the terms of the written contract between the parties and denies the allegations to the extent they deviate or misstate those terms.

15. NCRIC denies the material factual allegation "pay any return premium, and the investment return thereon," but admits the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 34 regarding time deadlines.

16. NCRIC admits each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 46, except it denies each and every material factual allegation of the fifth and sixth sentences of paragraph 46.

17. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 47, except it denies it was to receive "less deposit premium."

18. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first and third sentences of paragraph 52, except that it denies the minimum premium was to apply to all years of the Plan. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of the second sentence of paragraph 52.

19. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 57, except it is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 57.

20. NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of paragraph 59, except it denies each and every material factual allegation of the second sentence of paragraph 59.

21. NCRIC admits defendant paid $1 million in four (4) installments between January and March, 1998, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 60.

22. NCRIC admits it became aware of the MIIX Proposal about August 1998, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 67.

23. NCRIC admits attendance at a meeting in August, 1998, with physicians from defendant, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 69.

24. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first and second sentences of paragraph 75, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 75.

25. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 76. NCRIC it is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 76.

26. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 79. NCRIC admits the renewal in September, 1999, but denies the causal relationship between allegations of the first and second sentences of paragraph 79. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the last sentence of paragraph 79.

27. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of paragraph 80.

28. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 81, before the final adjective clause. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 81.

29. NCRIC admits it notified defendant of cancellation of the policy effective September 1, 2000, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 86.

30. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 101, except it admits it informed defendant on September 1, 2000 that an additional premium of $1,285,525 was due.

31. For its answer to paragraphs 104, 111, 118, 123, 129, 135, 139, 147, 154, 159 and 165, NCRIC incorporates herein by reference its replies to the specific paragraphs referred in each of the foregoing paragraphs mentioned in this sentence.

32. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraphs 105 and 112, except it denies that the contract between plaintiff and defendant is as characterized by defendant previously in the counterclaims.

33. NCRIC admits it had contractual duties to defendant, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 136.

THIRD DEFENSE

Defendant is estopped or, in the alternative, has waived its counterclaims by reason of its actions, including an accord and satisfaction, renegotiation of its contract, agreement to new and modified contract terms, and similar actions.

FOURTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reasons of its failure to mitigate its damages.

FIFTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reason of its unclean hands.

SIXTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reason of its own fraud and illegal conduct.

REPLY OF PLAINTIFF TO COUNTERCLAIMS 1 AND 2 OF DEFENDANT

NCRIC, INC. ("NCRIC"), counterdefendant, by counsel, replies to the counterclaims of Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., counterplaintiff, as follows:

FIRST DEFENSE

The counterclaims fail to state claims against NCRIC upon which relief may be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE

For answers to the specific allegations of the counterclaims:

1. The allegations of paragraph 10 constitute the legal assertions of defendant to factual allegations of NCRIC's complaint and do not require a response.

2. NCRIC admits the factual allegation that defendant has been providing health care services in the District of Columbia, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 11.

3. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 12, except it states that it provides professional liability insurance to physicians in jurisdictions in addition to the District of Columbia.

4. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraphs 13, 26, 48, 55, 61, 77, 84-85, and 166.

5. NCRIC admits it provided professional liability insurance to certain physicians at defendant, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 14.

6. NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of paragraphs 15-16, 19, 44-45, 56, 63, 65-66, 74, 82, 87, 90-91, 96-100, 124, and 130.

7. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraphs 17-18, 20, 22-24, 30, 35-43, 49-51, 53-54, 58, 62, 64, 68, 70-73, 78, 83, 88-89, 92-95, 102-103, 106-110, 113-117, 119-122, 125-128, 131-134, 137-138, 140-146, 148-153, 155-158, 160-164, and 167-168.

8. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 21 insofar at it refers to physicians associated with the defendant, but NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 21.

9. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 25, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 25.

10. The allegations of paragraph 27 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response.

11. The allegations of paragraph 28 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response. To the extent any response is necessary, NCRIC refers to and relies on the terms of the written contract between the parties and denies the allegations to the extent they deviate or misstate those terms. NCRIC denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 28.

12. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 29, except it admits the factual allegations of subpart (1).

13. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations for "all reconciliations of the Plan," but denies each and every remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 31.

14. The allegations of paragraphs 32-33 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response. To the extent any response is necessary, NCRIC refers to and relies on the terms of the written contract between the parties and denies the allegations to the extent they deviate or misstate those terms.

15. NCRIC denies the material factual allegation "pay any return premium, and the investment return thereon," but admits the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 34 regarding time deadlines.

16. NCRIC admits each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 46, except it denies each and every material factual allegation of the fifth and sixth sentences of paragraph 46.

17. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 47, except it denies it was to receive "less deposit premium."

18. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first and third sentences of paragraph 52, except that it denies the minimum premium was to apply to all years of the Plan. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of the second sentence of paragraph 52.

19. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 57, except it is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 57.

20. NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of paragraph 59, except it denies each and every material factual allegation of the second sentence of paragraph 59.

21. NCRIC admits defendant paid $1 million in four (4) installments between January and March, 1998, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 60.

22. NCRIC admits it became aware of the MIIX Proposal about August 1998, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 67.

23. NCRIC admits attendance at a meeting in August, 1998, with physicians from defendant, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 69.

24. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first and second sentences of paragraph 75, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 75.

25. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 76. NCRIC it is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 76.

26. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 79. NCRIC admits the renewal in September, 1999, but denies the causal relationship between allegations of the first and second sentences of paragraph 79. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the last sentence of paragraph 79.

27. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of paragraph 80.

28. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 81, before the final adjective clause. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 81.

29. NCRIC admits it notified defendant of cancellation of the policy effective September 1, 2000, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 86.

30. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 101, except it admits it informed defendant on September 1, 2000 that an additional premium of $1,285,525 was due.

31. For its answer to paragraphs 104, 111, 118, 123, 129, 135, 139, 147, 154, 159 and 165, NCRIC incorporates herein by reference its replies to the specific paragraphs referred in each of the foregoing paragraphs mentioned in this sentence.

32. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraphs 105 and 112, except it denies that the contract between plaintiff and defendant is as characterized by defendant previously in the counterclaims.

33. NCRIC admits it had contractual duties to defendant, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 136.

THIRD DEFENSE

Defendant is estopped or, in the alternative, has waived its counterclaims by reason of its actions, including an accord and satisfaction, renegotiation of its contract, agreement to new and modified contract terms, and similar actions.

FOURTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reasons of its failure to mitigate its damages.

CONSENT MOTION FOR ENLARGEMENT OF TIME TO RESPOND TO COUNTER-DEFENDANT'S MOTIONS

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Medical Center"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esq., Steven F, Benz, Esq., Joseph K. Leahy, Esq., and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., pursuant to District of Columbia Rules of Civil Procedure 12-I(e) and 6(b), moves this Court for an enlargement of time of ten (10) days to file points and authorities in opposition to Plaintiff/ Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc.'s ("NCRIC") Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims, Motion for a More Definite Statement of Allegations of Fraud and Misrepresentation and Motion to Strike Insufficient Defense. Since these motions were served on counsel for Medical Center, by first class mail, on December 11, 2000, the prescribed date for Medical Center to file its opposition is December 29, 2000. See D.C.R. Civ. Pro. 12-I (e) (providing ten days, or a period of time set by the court, for filing and serving opposing points and authorities); D.C.R. Civ. Pro. 6(a) (providing that, for prescribed time periods of less than eleven days, weekends and holidays are excluded from computation of time); D.C.R. Civ. Pro. 6(e) (providing three days, in addition to the prescribed period, to respond to papers served by mail). Hence, the requested enlargement would extend the date for filing Medical Center's opposition to January 8, 2001.

As grounds for this enlargement, Medical Center states as follows:

1. On December 14, 2000, counsel for NCRIC, Roy I. Neidermayer, agreed to the requested extension of ten (10) days, up to and including January 8, 2001.

2. No prejudice will inure to NCRIC upon the grant of the requested relief.

3. Civil Rule 6(b) permits an enlargement of time "for cause shown." Medical Center submits, as cause for the requested enlargement of time, that: (a) NCRIC has filed three motions simultaneously, including a dispositive motion; (b) counsel for Medical Center, Joseph K. Leahy, will be out of the office during part of the prescribed period to respond to NCRIC's motions, due to the Christmas holiday; and (c) counsel for Medical Center also must spend part of his time during the prescribed period responding to a dispositive motion filed in another case.

WHEREFORE, cause having been shown, Medical Center moves that the Consent Motion for Enlargement of Time to Respond to Defendant's Motions be granted.

AMENDED COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES

NCRIC, Inc., Plaintiff, by counsel, sues Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. as follows:

1. NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") is a corporation in the business of providing liability insurance and doing business in the District of Columbia. It is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company.

2. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital") is a medical hospital with its principal place of business in the District of Columbia.

3. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to D.C. Code § 11-921.

4. NCRIC and Hospital are parties to Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance (the "Agreement") by which NCRIC provided medical doctors at the Hospital with certain insurance against liability resulting from described events, including professional negligence in consideration for which Hospital agreed to pay certain premiums. A copy of the Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

5. Pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, Hospital owed NCRIC payment of additional insurance premiums based on the Agreement.

6. NCRIC performed all its obligations pursuant to the Agreement by providing the agreed insurance coverage.

7. Hospital breached the Agreement by failing to pay NCRIC the additional premiums due under the Agreement.

8. Hospital owes NCRIC the sum of $1,943,530 or such amount as is currently due from defendant to plaintiff after calendar quarterly recalculations of premium pursuant to the contract between the parties.

9. Despite written demand for payment therefore, and compliance with all its other obligations under the Agreement, Hospital has failed and refused to pay NCRIC the amount owed.

WHEREFORE, NCRIC demands judgment against Hospital in the amount One Million Nine Hundred Forty-three Thousand Five Hundred Thirty Dollars ($1,943,530) or such amount as is currently due from defendant to plaintiff after calendar quarterly recalculations of premium pursuant to the contract between the parties, interest, and costs incurred herein.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants listed on Exhibit D, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation, or termination of participation, in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit E and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NCRIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

If to NCRIC:

2425 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037

The date of service of any such notice shall be the date that such notice is deposited with the U.S. Postal Service or the date of personal delivery, as applicable.

17. Medical Center hereby warrants and represents that it has made, and agrees to provide NCRIC with its auditor's or actuary's annual statement reflecting, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no modifications, amendments or additions thereto shall be binding unless in writing and executed by all the parties hereto.

19. This Agreement shall not be assignable without the prior written consent of the parties hereto.

20. The agreements, terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns, if any.

21. This Agreement is made and executed in the District of Columbia, and shall be governed by the law of the District of Columbia.

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

EXHIBIT A

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC.'S AMENDED ANSWER AND COUNTERCLAIMS

COMES NOW Defendant, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Medical Center"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esquire, Steven F. Benz, Esquire, Joseph K. Leahy, Esquire, and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., and respectfully answers the Amended Complaint in the above-captioned matter as follows:

FIRST DEFENSE

The Complaint fails to state a cause of action upon which relief may be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE

Answering specifically the numbered paragraphs of the Amended Complaint, Medical Center states as follows:

Parties and Jurisdiction

1. To the extent that the allegations in Paragraph 1 constitute legal conclusions, no response is required. Medical Center presently lacks sufficient information to admit or deny the remaining allegations set forth in Paragraph 1.

2. Medical Center admits that it is a health care facility located at 2425 L Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037. The remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 2 call for a legal conclusion to which no response is required.

3. The allegations set forth in Paragraph 3 call for a legal conclusion to which no response is required.

4. To the extent that the allegations in Paragraph 4 call for a legal conclusion, no response is required. Medical Center admits that it entered into an agreement with the National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, which, upon information and belief, became NCRIC (referred to hereafter collectively as "NCRIC") in July 1999; however, Medical Center denies that the allegations in Sentence 1 of Paragraph 4 accurately describe the scope of that agreement. Medical Center admits that the pages attached to the Amended Complaint as Exhibit A are a copy of a portion of an agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC, but denies that Exhibit A constitutes the entire agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC.

5. The allegations set forth in Paragraph 5 constitute legal conclusions to which no responsive pleading is required, and accordingly Medical Center denies these allegations.

6. To the extent that the allegations set forth in Paragraph 6 constitute a legal conclusion, no response is necessary, and Medical Center denies these allegations. Medical Center lacks sufficient information to admit or deny the allegation in Paragraph 6 that NCRIC provided insurance coverage, the effect of which is to deny said allegation and demand strict proof thereof.

7. Medical Center denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph 7.

8. Medical Center denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph 8.

16d-000220

9. Medical Center admits that NCRIC demanded payment from Medical Center in the amount stated in Paragraph 8, and denies the remaining allegations set forth in Paragraph 9. Medical Center admits that NCRIC demands judgment against Medical Center in the prayer for relief in the Amended Complaint, but denies that NCRIC is entitled to any such relief.

THIRD DEFENSE

Medical Center denies all allegations in the Amended Complaint not specifically admitted, and demands strict proof thereof.

FOURTH DEFENSE

Medical Center fully performed all of its duties and obligations under the alleged agreement between it and NCRIC.

FIFTH DEFENSE

NCRIC's claim is barred as a result of NCRIC's failure to satisfy conditions precedent, including, but not limited to, failing to perform reconciliations properly, and failing to calculate and inform Medical Center of the correct amount of premium due.

SIXTH DEFENSE

NCRIC's claim is barred by the doctrines of estoppel, waiver and/or unclean hands.

SEVENTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is unenforceable, in whole or in part, due to NCRIC's material breach of the express and/or implied terms thereof.

EIGHTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is unenforceable, in whole or in part, due to modification, novation, and/or accord and satisfaction.

NINTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is void, in whole or in part, because Medical Center renewed and/or amended it while under duress caused by NCRIC.

TENTH DEFENSE

Medical Center reserves the right to assert any affirmative defenses that may be revealed during the course of discovery.

MEDICAL CENTER'S COUNTERCLAIMS AGAINST NCRIC

Comes now Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Medical Center, by counsel, and respectfully states and alleges as follows for its counterclaims against Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC:

10. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 9, as though set forth here in full.

Parties and Jurisdiction

11. Medical Center, a preeminent health care facility with internationally renowned specialties in obstetrics, gynecology, and neonatology, is a registered District of Columbia not-for-profit corporation that has been providing health care services in the District of Columbia for about 134 years.

12. NCRIC is, upon information and belief, a corporation that provides malpractice insurance to physicians in the District of Columbia. Upon information and belief, NCRIC is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company (referred to collectively herein as "NCRIC").

13. This court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to § 11-921 of the District of Columbia Code.

16d-000222

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS IN SUPPORT OF COUNTERCLAIMS

Background to the Plan

14. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter prior to September 2000, NCRIC provided medical malpractice liability insurance ("MMLI") to nearly all of the physicians associated with Medical Center. Most of these physicians were OB/GYN practitioners.

15. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, most of the physicians associated with Medical Center (otherwise known as "Attending Faculty") were independent contractors who had patient admitting privileges at several hospitals, including hospitals in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Medical Center relied on these independent physicians for patient referrals. As a result, Medical Center competed, and still competes, with other hospitals throughout the District of Columbia metropolitan area for physicians as well as for patient admissions.

16. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, the average MMLI premium for OB/GYN physicians in the District of Columbia was about two or three times as high as the average MMLI premium for such physicians in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

17. In about 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, at least one competitor hospital in the District of Columbia had in place an agreement with NCRIC, under which it provided a discount on MMLI premiums for that hospital's physicians.

18. Without a program to discount the cost of MMLI premiums for its Attending Faculty, Medical Center faced the prospect of losing associated physicians to hospitals in the District of Columbia that had such discount programs, as well as to hospitals in Maryland and Virginia, where MMLI premiums were lower.

16d-000223

19. For Medical Center, the loss of physicians necessarily would mean the loss of referrals and its key source of income: paying patients. In order to remain economically viable, Medical Center needed to maintain its volume of paying patients.

NCRIC's Proposal and Representations to Medical Center

20. In about 1993, NCRIC proposed to Medical Center a plan to reduce MMLI premiums for its Attending Faculty. NCRIC pressured Medical Center to accept this proposal. The proposal helped NCRIC, which dominated the District of Columbia MMLI market, keep its customers away from Virginia and Maryland, where it faced competition from other providers.

21. At about this time, Medical Center informed NCRIC that it required a discount program in order to retain its Attending Faculty. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew that losing physicians to other hospitals in the District of Columbia metropolitan area would leave Medical Center, which already was in poor financial condition, in grave fiscal distress.

22. Under the proposed discount plan, each member of the Attending Faculty would receive what amounted to a 15% discount on the premium of the standard MMLI policy.

23. In exchange for this discount, Medical Center would agree to pay, with certain limitations, the difference between (1) the total amount of discounted premium paid by the Attending Faculty for a specified amount of MMLI coverage and (2) NCRIC's cost (including administrative costs and a profit for NCRIC) of providing that coverage. Under this proposal, Medical Center also would receive a refund of any premium paid by the Attending Faculty for the specified amount of MMLI coverage that exceeded NCRIC's cost of providing that coverage.

24. In order to induce Medical Center to agree to the proposed discount program, NCRIC, upon information and belief, represented to Medical Center that this proposal would cost

16d-000224

Medical Center almost nothing, because the Deposit Premium would cover most, if not all, of actual cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty. NCRIC, however, refused to provide Medical Center with sufficient data to perform an adequate analysis of the actual cost of the proposed discount program.

25. The proposed discount program allowed NCRIC to charge Medical Center for predicted expenditures ("incurred losses"), not just actual payments ("actual losses"), on MMLI claims. Medical Center objected to this aspect of the proposal. NCRIC, however, refused to offer a discount program under which it would charge solely for actual losses.

26. In about October 1993, Medical Center agreed to the discount program, and entered into an agreement with NCRIC entitled "Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement" (the "Plan"), which NCRIC drafted. A copy of the Plan is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

Premium Calculations Under the Plan

27. Under the Plan, if NCRIC's incurred cost of providing MMLI to the Attending Faculty (known as the "Retro Premium") exceeded the total amount of discounted premium paid by the Attending Faculty to NCRIC (known as the "Deposit Premium") for a specified amount of MMLI coverage, then Medical Center was liable to NCRIC for the difference between the Retro Premium and the Deposit Premium (known as the "Additional Premium"), as limited by a set Maximum Premium. However, if the Retro Premium was less than the total Deposit Premium, the Plan entitled Medical Center to the difference between the two (known as the "Return Premium"), as limited by a set Minimum Premium.

28. Under the Plan, the Retro Premium was calculated by applying a complicated, backward-looking formula ("retro formula") that was devised by NCRIC, and for which NCRIC provided all the data. NCRIC refused to allow Medical Center to audit this data, including the total amount of reserve funds ("Loss Reserves") that NCRIC claimed to maintain in order to pay medical malpractice claims and related litigation expenses under the Plan. The Retro Premium turned in large part on information that Medical Center could not independently verify.

29. Upon information and belief, NCRIC represented, as an inducement for Medical Center to enter into the Plan, that: (1) all premium amounts, including the Retro Premium, would be calculated exactly as set forth in the Plan; (2) the Retro Premium would fairly represent the incurred cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty, including the cost of maintaining Loss Reserves therefor; (3) the Loss Reserves would be calculated in accordance with generally-accepted standards in the insurance industry; and (4) the incurred cost of the Plan, as embodied by the Retro Premium, would closely approximate the actual cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty.

30. Medical Center entered into the Plan in reliance upon the foregoing representations by NCRIC, communicated its reliance to NCRIC, and has been damaged by such reliance.

NCRIC's Obligations Under the Plan

31. Under the Plan, NCRIC was responsible for all bookkeeping under the Plan, for administration of the Plan on behalf of Medical Center, and for all reconciliations of the Plan.

32. Reconciliations required NCRIC to: (1) apply the retro formula properly to the Plan years being reconciled, by using the proper multipliers and definitions, and accurate data; (2) calculate the accurate Deposit, Retro, and Additional or Return Premium; and (3) apply the Minimum or Maximum Premium, if applicable, as stated in the Plan.

33. The Plan required NCRIC to perform a reconciliation, effective on a specified date (the "Reconciliation Date"), after the third year of the Plan, and each year thereafter. For the first reconciliation, only the first year of the Plan was to be reconciled; in each subsequent reconciliation, all of the previous unclosed years of the Plan, plus one additional year, were reconciled. Reconciliations were to continue, even after the Plan ended, until all medical malpractice claims covered by the Plan were closed as defined under the Plan.

34. The Plan required NCRIC to notify Medical Center in writing, within 60 days of each Reconciliation Date, of the amount of Additional or Return Premium due, and pay any Return Premium, and the investment return thereon, due within 30 days of this notice.

35. The Plan required NCRIC to set its Loss Reserves according to the insurance industry standard; to provide Medical Center with verification by an independent actuary that Loss Reserves were maintained as such; and to provide Medical Center with certain data regarding the accrued Loss Reserves on a specified, regular basis. Further, the Plan allowed only a certain percentage of the Loss Reserves be considered when calculating the Retro Premium.

36. As a result of the foregoing, Medical Center reasonably and in good faith trusted NCRIC to administer the Plan on its behalf; to properly and honestly perform all reconciliations; and to accurately calculate all premiums, including Additional and/or Return Premium. Upon information and belief, Medical Center communicated this trust and reliance to NCRIC.

NCRIC's Negligent and Improper Administration of the Plan

37. Upon information and belief, NCRIC did not provide Medical Center with reports and actuary certifications concerning the Loss Reserves as required by the Plan. Although

16d-000227

Medical Center repeatedly requested such reports and certifications, NCRIC at first refused to provide them, and later, upon information and belief, provided them irregularly if at all.

38. Upon information and belief, NCRIC also failed to maintain Loss Reserves for the Plan in accordance with the industry standard. Upon information and belief, beginning in about 1997, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care failed to adequately adjust its loss reserves downward in response to Medical Center's positive loss experience under the Plan. As a result, NCRIC maintained higher Loss Reserves than were reasonably necessary to cover malpractice claims under the Plan, and improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

39. Further, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care considered a greater percentage of its Loss Reserves when calculating the Retro Premium that it was allowed to consider under the Plan. As a result, NCRIC improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

40. Moreover, upon information and belief, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care (a) added extra years of the Plan to its reconciliations, thereby reconciling too many years of the Plan; and/or (b) treated unclosed years as closed, thereby reconciling too few years of the Plan. In each instance, NCRIC improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

41. In addition, for each Reconciliation Date, NCRIC performed the reconciliation incorrectly, in part as set forth in Paragraphs 49, 50, 53 and 54, below. As a result, the amount of Additional or Return Premium calculated by NCRIC in each reconciliation was incorrect.

42. Because Medical Center trusted and relied on NCRIC to administer the Plan, to perform reconciliations properly and honestly, and to accurately calculate all premiums, Medical Center was unaware that, for each reconciliation NCRIC performed, the amount of Additional or Return Premium calculated by NCRIC was incorrect. As a result, after each reconciliation

NCRIC performed, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

43. Upon information and belief, at all times relevant to this action, NCRIC knew of Medical Center's financial situation and reasonably should have known that Medical Center would have demanded payment of any Return Premium due under the Plan.

Amendments to and Renewals of the Plan

1996 Amendments and Renewal

44. In January 1996, Medical Center faced a severe financial crisis. At this time, if Medical Center lost Attending Faculty or patients, it risked becoming insolvent.

45. At about this time, some members of the Attending Faculty moved their practices to nearby Virginia or Maryland, where MMLI premiums were lower; other Attending Faculty threatened to move unless the discount on MMLI premiums increased. Increasing the discount on MMLI premiums for Attending Faculty was crucial to retaining its associated physicians.

46. In January 1996, Medical Center and NCRIC agreed in correspondence, attached hereto as Exhibit 2, to amend to the Plan. This amendment increased the discount for Attending Faculty to what amounted to 30% off of the standard MMLI premium. This amendment was included in all future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC; one such version is shown at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4, attached hereto. The amendment went into effect in January 1996. It applied only prospectively, to Discount Premium paid after that date. It did not apply to Deposit Premium already collected by NCRIC.

47. This new 30% discount for the Attending Faculty meant that, beginning in January 1996, NCRIC would receive less Deposit Premium. The Plan was subsequently amended to reflect this reduction in Discount Premium. The amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 3, was drafted by NCRIC and went into effect in January 1996. Like the 30% discount, this amendment applied only prospectively, to the years of the Plan where NCRIC received less Deposit Premium due to the new, larger discount. The amendment did not apply to past years, for which NCRIC had received more Deposit Premium, due to the old, smaller discount.

48. It later was determined that the amendment described in the previous Paragraph did not accurately reflect the reduction in Deposit Premium resulting from the 30% discount. The amendment was corrected to accurately reflect the Deposit Premium resulting from the new discount. All future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC, listed this corrected Deposit Premium; one such version appears at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4.

49. Although NCRIC agreed to correct the amended Deposit Premium, it knew that Medical Center trusted and relied on it as described above, and therefore, it knew that Medical Center would not be aware if the corrected Deposit Premium was not applied. NCRIC did not apply the corrected Deposit Premium in any reconciliations of the Plan.

50. As a result of NCRIC's refusal to apply the corrected Deposit Premium, each time it performed a reconciliation and notified Medical Center that Additional or Return Premium was due, that amount was incorrect. Further, after each reconciliation, due to Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC as described above, Medical Center was unaware of NCRIC's misrepresentation and/or miscalculation. Accordingly, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

51. The Plan was initially set to expire in September 1996, at which time NCRIC had not performed any reconciliations under the Plan.

52. In 1996, the parties agreed to amend the Plan to reduce the Minimum Premium for all years of the Plan. Since no reconciliations had been performed yet, the new Minimum Premium was in effect for all reconciliations under the Plan. This amendment was included in all future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC; one such version is shown at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4, attached hereto.

53. Although NCRIC agreed to lower the Minimum Premium, NCRIC knew that Medical Center trusted and relied on NCRIC's representations as stated above, and would not be aware if the new Minimum Premium was not applied. NCRIC did not apply the new Minimum Premium to all years of the Plan in any reconciliations of the Plan.

54. As a result of NCRIC's refusal to apply the new Minimum Premium, each time it performed a reconciliation and notified Medical Center that Additional or Return Premium was due, that amount was incorrect. Further, after each reconciliation, due to Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC as described above, Medical Center was unaware of NCRIC's misrepresentation and/or miscalculation. Accordingly, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

55. On information and belief, the Plan as amended was renewed by the parties through September 1, 1997.

January 1998 Renewal

56. By late 1997, Medical Center was in the midst of a financial crisis. It was engaged in litigation with the Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, Ltd. over the letter of credit upon which Medical Center relied for operating funds. At this time, Medical Center was in desperate need of such funds, and needed to renew the Plan to ensure that it did not lose Attending Faculty, the patients they referred, and the resulting income.

57. NCRIC was aware of Medical Center's financial crisis. After the fall 1997 reconciliation NCRIC presented Medical Center with a bill for $1.7 million in Additional Premium, along with an ultimatum: pay up immediately or the Plan would not be renewed. This bill was miscalculated to grossly overstate the amount of Additional Premium due.

58. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew or should have known that this bill was incorrect, and that due to its trust and reliance on NCRIC, Medical Center would not discover that it had been billed in error. Upon information and belief, NCRIC intended to take advantage of Medical Center's trust and reliance, and its difficult financial situation, in violation of the Plan, in order to obtain security for future Additional Premium that might become due.

59. Medical Center had no reasonable alternative but to pay NCRIC because there was no time to find other, discounted MMLI for the Attending Faculty before the Plan's renewal date. If Medical Center did not agree to pay immediately, the Plan would end and the Attending Faculty's MMLI premiums would skyrocket. Termination of the Plan would cause a large percentage of Medical Center's Attending Faculty to transfer to competing hospitals. As a result of having fewer Attending Faculty and patients, Medical Center would lose significant revenue.

60. Medical Center could not afford to pay $1.7 million, but agreed to pay $1 million. Medical Center made these payments in four installments between January and March of 1998.

61. In January 1998, the Plan was renewed again for one year, effective September 1997. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 4, was drafted by NCRIC.

62. Prior to NCRIC's wrongful demand for payment of $1.7 million, Medical Center had just enough cash on hand to cover its operating expenses. As a direct result of overpaying NCRIC, in early 1998 Medical Center exhausted its cash on hand and became insolvent.

63. In February 1998, Medical Center filed for bankruptcy, and remained in bankruptcy until early 1999. During this time, Medical Center incurred additional expenses as a result of its bankruptcy, including several hundred thousand dollars per month in legal fees.

September 1998 Renewal

64. In the summer of 1998, as a result of NCRIC's wrongful demand for payment, Medical Center determined that it could no longer afford to participate in the Plan. Medical Center began to search for low-cost MMLI for the Attending Faculty. Medical Center expected that, by finding lower-cost MMLI, it could retain its current Attending Faculty and attract new physicians, thereby increasing its revenues and improving its financial situation.

65. In about August 1998, Medical Center received a proposal from Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX"), a highly-rated national insurance company, to provide MMLI for the Attending Faculty. The premium for MIIX's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy was lower than the premium for NCRIC's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy as discounted by the Plan.

66. The MIIX proposal was a better deal than the Plan for members of the Attending Faculty because, unlike NCRIC, MIIX guaranteed that it would not raise its premiums for two years. The MIIX proposal also was better for Medical Center because MIIX did not require that Medical Center accept liability for any additional premium.

67. In about August 1998, Medical Center notified the Attending Faculty of the MIIX proposal. Soon thereafter, NCRIC became aware of the MIIX proposal.

68. Upon hearing of the MIIX proposal, NCRIC initiated a disinformation campaign to kill the proposal by making untrue statements about Medical Center, its Board of Directors, MIIX, and the MIIX proposal.

69. In late August of 1998, NCRIC called a meeting of the Attending Faculty. At this meeting, representatives of NCRIC made false and malicious statements, including but not limited to the following: (1) that MIIX would not remain in the District of Columbia insurance market; (2) that MIIX would not stand by its guarantee not to raise premiums for two years; (3) that MIIX was an unreliable insurance company; (4) that MIIX planned to raise premiums once it cornered the District of Columbia MMLI market; (5) that the MIIX proposal was cronyism which would benefit members of the Medical Center Board of Directors rather than the Attending Faculty; (6) that Medical Center had lied to the Attending Faculty by stating that it could not afford to continue the Plan; and (7) that lawyers with whom NCRIC contracted to defend physicians against medical malpractice claims would not work with MIIX.

70. At this meeting, NCRIC's representatives also urged members of the Attending Faculty to disassociate themselves from Medical Center if the Plan was not renewed.

71. In a direct and foreseeable response to NCRIC's campaign to kill the MIIX deal, including the statements set forth in Paragraphs 69 and 70, approximately 20-30% of Attending Faculty members informed Medical Center that they would not purchase MMLI from MIIX. Many members of the Attending Faculty also threatened to cease their association with Medical Center if the Plan was not renewed. Among those who threatened to leave were several groups of physicians which admitted a large volume of patients to Medical Center.

72. At about this time, upon information and belief, NCRIC also presented Medical Center with a bill, demanding immediate payment for approximately $1 million in Additional Premium for the fall 1998 reconciliation. This bill grossly miscalculated and overstated the amount of Additional Premium due under the Plan.

73. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew or should have known that this bill was incorrect, and that due to its trust and reliance, Medical Center would not discover that it had been billed in error. Upon information and belief, NCRIC overbilled Medical Center for Additional Premium, in violation of the Plan, in a wrongful attempt to gain leverage over Medical Center and force it to renew the Plan.

74. As a direct and foreseeable result of the foregoing, Medical Center had no reasonable alternative but to reject the MIIX offer and renew the NCRIC Plan. Medical Center was forced to accept liability for potential Additional Premium for the period beginning September 1, 1998, which it would not otherwise have accepted.

75. In about October 1998, the Plan was renewed for one year, through September 1999. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 5, was drafted by NCRIC. Shortly thereafter, upon information and belief, NCRIC, its goal accomplished, dropped its demand that Medical Center pay an additional $1 million.

Medical Entity Policy

76. During late 1998, Medical Center decided to purchase a MMLI policy for the Columbia Physicians Group ("CPG"), physicians who practiced in Medical Center's ambulatory clinic. Although most CPG physicians were covered by their own individual MMLI policies at all times, Medical Center offered them additional MMLI when they worked in the clinic.

16d-000235

77. Medical Center purchased the CPG Policy from NCRIC (the "Policy"). This one-year policy, effective December 1, 1998, was renewed on December 1, 1999.

78. Medical Center complied with all of its obligations under the Policy.

1999 Renewals

79. In 1999, Medical Center searched for, but did not locate, lower-cost MMLI for its Attending Faculty. Accordingly, the Plan was renewed for one year, effective September 1999. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 6, was drafted by NCRIC.

Failed 2000 Renewal Negotiations and NCRIC's Cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy

80. After the 2000 renewal, Medical Center formed a committee of the Attending Faculty to search for lower-cost MMLI. The committee was composed of unbiased and well-respected members of the Attending Faculty, including at least one member of NCRIC's Board of Directors. The committee notified NCRIC of its goal.

81. This committee obtained a proposal from The Medical Protective Company ("MedPro"), a well-respected national insurance company. The premium for MedPro's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy was below the discounted price of NCRIC's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy. Morever, under the MedPro proposal Medical Center would not be required to accept liability for any additional premium.

82. The committee informed Medical Center's Board of Directors that it had found an acceptable substitute MMLI policy for the Attending Faculty.

83. At about this time, Medical Center requested that NCRIC propose a discount program based on actual rather than incurred losses. NCRIC refused to make such a proposal unless Medical Center first settled the existing Plan.

16d-000236

84. Negotiations to settle the Plan commenced and continued throughout the summer of 2000, until the parties reached an agreement to settle. The settlement was contingent on Medical Center's Board of Directors approving the Plan.

85. On June 27, 2000, Medical Center's Board of Directors decline to approve the settlement plan. Medical Center informed NCRIC of this development immediately.

86. On June 30, 2000 in retaliation for the Board's refusal to agree to the settlement, NCRIC, without justification, canceled the Policy. After initially providing Medical Center with insufficient notice in violation of District of Columbia insurance regulations, NCRIC notified Medical Center that cancellation of the Policy was effective on September 1, 2000. NCRIC also informed Medical Center that the Plan would be terminated on that date.

87. Despite the foregoing, throughout the summer Medical Center continued to negotiate in good faith towards a settlement of the existing Plan that would meet the approval of its Board of Directors. The parties reached another settlement in August 2000.

88. NCRIC, however, reneged on the settlement in late August 2000.

89. In further retaliation against Medical Center, on or about the effective date of the Policy's cancellation, representatives of NCRIC made untrue and malicious statements regarding Medical Center and the ambulatory clinic to members of the Attending Faculty and CPG. These statements included but were not limited to: (1) that the Policy had expired; (2) that CPG physicians who also were members of the Attending Faculty were not covered by NCRIC's MMLI policy while practicing at the clinic; (3) that Medical Center's self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure the CPG; (4) that Medical Center's ambulatory clinic was a dangerous place to work.

90. These statements caused a panic among CPG physicians. As a result, some CPG physicians did not show up for work; others quit the clinic altogether. Shifts went uncovered, and the few physicians who were willing to work at the clinic worked extra shifts. Due to the lack of doctors, some clinic patients who required care were turned away.

91. As a result of the foregoing, Medical Center's reputation in the community, and among its patients, staff and associated physicians, was harmed. Staff members began to circulate rumors that Medical Center, which recently had improved its fiscal position, would close. Physicians ceased their association with Medical Center and/or CPG; staff members quit.

92. In further retaliation against Medical Center, NCRIC, without justification, informed CPG physicians who held individual NCRIC MMLI policies that they were not covered by these policies when practicing at Medical Center's ambulatory clinic. Upon information and belief, there was no proper underwriting justification for this exclusion.

93. Due to NCRIC's wrongful refusal to provide MMLI coverage for individual physicians practicing at Medical Center's ambulatory clinic, many physicians quit the clinic. As a result, Medical Center has had, and continues to have, difficulty staffing the clinic.

94. As a result of the termination of the Plan, upon information and belief, NCRIC and its representatives urged members of the Attending Faculty to move their practices from Medical Center to the competitor hospitals that had in place discount programs with NCRIC.

95. As a result of the termination of the Plan, the Attending Faculty were required to decide, on short notice, whether to: (1) remain with NCRIC and move their practices to a competitor hospital with a discount program, as NCRIC urged; (2) switch to Med Pro, the new MMLI provider for Medical Center; or (3) remain at Medical Center and pay the undiscounted

NCRIC MMLI premium. But for Attending Faculty for whom NCRIC was presently defending MMLI claims, this was no choice at all: for all practical purposes, they could not leave NCRIC.

96. Of those faculty who could choose to leave, about 12-17 physicians -- at least one-fourth of the active membership of the Attending Faculty -- left Medical Center. Among those leaving were some physicians who admitted a large volume of patients to Medical Center.

97. The departure of these Attending Faculty had an immediate effect on Medical Center's bottom line. The hospital, which was about to break even for the first time in years, lost revenue and remained unprofitable.

98. The hospital's poor financial condition had an adverse effect on morale at Medical Center. Rumors circulated among the staff that Medical Center would close. More physicians ceased their association with Medical Center; more staff members and nurses quit. Members of the administration, including senior executives, left their posts. Many of the remaining physicians spoke openly about leaving, thereby causing morale to deteriorate further.

99. Word of Medical Center's poor financial condition, and rumors of its imminent demise, reached the greater community. Local media repeatedly contacted members of the Medical Center's Board of Directors to ask when Medical Center would close its doors.

100. As a result of Medical Center's difficult fiscal situation, which continues, and the public rumors that it will close, Medical Center has had and continues to have difficulty recruiting the new physicians and staff it needs to improve its financial situation.

101. On September 1, 2000, NCRIC informed Medical Center that the current amount of Additional Premium due as a result of the fall 2000 reconciliation was $1,285,525.00. This reconciliation was, upon information and belief, knowingly grossly miscalculated and overstated by NCRIC in retaliation for Medical Center's refusal to settle the Plan.

102. In fact, no Additional Premium was due under the Plan, and Medical Center was due Return Premium. Medical Center was not immediately aware of NCRIC's deception, and did not immediately contest the amount of Additional Premium stated by NCRIC, or demand payment of the amount of Return Premium that actually was due.

103. On October 1, 2000, NCRIC presented Medical Center with a bill for $1,285,525.00. Upon information and belief, this amount knowingly stated that Additional Premium was due when in fact Return Premium was due.

COUNT ONE

Breach of Contract

104. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 103, as if set forth fully herein.

105. The amended and renewed Plan, as described above, constitutes a valid and binding contract between Medical Center and NCRIC.

106. Medical Center has performed each obligation and condition of the Plan, except those which it was prevented from performing or those which it was excused from performing or those which were waived by NCRIC's misconduct.

107. Under the terms of the Plan, NCRIC was required to perform certain obligations, including those obligations set forth in Paragraphs 31 through 36, above.

108. NCRIC materially breached the Plan by failing to perform its obligations under the Plan, including those breaches described in Paragraphs 37 through 42, above.

16d-000240

109. As a result of NCRIC's failure to perform its obligations under the Plan, NCRIC caused Medical Center damages including the overpayment of Additional Premium, thereby causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

110. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

COUNT TWO

Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

111. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 110, as if set forth fully herein.

112. The amended and renewed Plan, as described above, constitutes a valid and binding contract between Medical Center and NCRIC.

113. Medical Center has performed each obligation and condition of the Plan, except those which it was prevented from performing or those which it was excused from performing or those which were waived by NCRIC's misconduct.

114. By law, the Plan includes an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing.

115. NCRIC has breach the Plan by acting unfairly and in bad faith, including acting as described in Paragraphs 37 through 42, 49, 50, 53, 54, 57, 58, 72 through 74, 101, 102, and 104 above.

116. As a result of NCRIC's failure to perform its obligations under the Plan, NCRIC caused Medical Center damages including the overpayment of Additional Premium, thereby causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

117. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

COUNT THREE

Breach of Fiduciary Duty

118. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 117, as if set forth fully herein.

119. At all times mentioned herein, a fiduciary relationship existed between NCRIC and Medical Center by virtue of (a) NCRIC's responsibility, stated in the Plan, to perform all bookkeeping on behalf of Medical Center under the Plan; (b) Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC to administer the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware; (c) Medical Center's reliance on NCRIC to properly and honestly perform reconciliations and accurately calculate Additional or Return Premium, of which NCRIC was fully aware; and (d) Medical Center's dependence on NCRIC for certain information necessary to perform retro calculations under the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware.

120. NCRIC has, by its actions alleged above, including those actions set forth in Paragraphs 37 through 42, 49, 50, 53, 54, 57, 58, 72 through 74, 101, 102 and 104, breached its fiduciary duties to Medical Center.

121. NCRIC breached its fiduciary duties to Medical Center, upon information and belief, with the intent to defraud and/or deceive Medical Center.

122. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

COUNT FOUR

Tortious Interference with Business Relations

123. Medical Center incorporates the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 122 as if fully set forth herein.

124. During the period up to and including August 2000, Medical Center had valid business relationships with certain physicians who were associated with Medical Center and an expectancy that such physicians would refer patients to Medical Center.

125. NCRIC knew about these valid business relationships and expectancy.

126. NCRIC intentionally and maliciously interfered with these relationships and expectancy (a) by or through its agents, making wrongful and/or untrue, unprivileged statements, including those statements set forth in Paragraphs 69, 70 and 89, regarding Medical Center, its Board of Directors, and MIIX; and (b) by urging said physicians, wrongfully and without privilege, to move their practices from Medical Center to its competitor.

127. As a direct and proximate result of NCRIC's wrongful interference, a number of its physicians terminated their association with Medical Center, and ceased referring patients to Medical Center.

128. NCRIC has been and is being injured by NCRIC's malfeasance due to loss of revenue resulting from loss of patient referrals.

COUNT FIVE

Tortious Interference with Prospective Business Advantage

129. Medical Center incorporates the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 128 as if fully set forth herein.

16d-000243

130. Medical Center had a reasonable business expectancy in the patients referred by its associated physicians, and reasonably expected to continue the association with its physicians and the resulting patient referrals.

131. NCRIC was aware of this business expectancy, as described above.

132. Despite its knowledge, NCRIC deliberately and intentionally or recklessly acted to interfere with and prevent Medical Center from realizing the aforementioned business expectancies by engaging in the tortious and wrongful conduct described above.

133. NCRIC's foregoing actions constitute an intentional and tortious interference with Medical Center's reasonable business expectancies.

134. As a result of their foregoing actions, NCRIC has proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of substantial economic loss, including loss of revenue resulting from loss of Attending Faculty and patient referrals.

COUNT SIX

Negligence

135. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 134, as if fully set forth herein.

136. At all times relevant to this claim, NCRIC had a duty of care in relation to Medical Center, by virtue of its contract with Medical Center and its relationship with Medical Center, including its position as bookkeeper for and administrator of the Plan.

137. NCRIC breached its duty of care and was negligent by miscalculating the amounts of Additional or Return Premium due, as described above.

16d-000244

138. NCRIC 's negligence proximately caused Medical Center damage by causing it to overpay Additional Premium and fail to demand Return Premium it was due, and further, by causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT SEVEN

Actual and/or Constructive Fraud

139. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 138, as though fully set forth herein.

140. As set forth above, NCRIC was in a fiduciary and/or confidential position with regard to Medical Center, due to NCRIC's role as administrator of the Plan and its duty to perform all bookkeeping and reconciliations under the Plan.

141. Due to this fiduciary and/or confidential relationship between NCRIC and Medical Center, as set forth above, Medical Center trusted NCRIC's administration of the Plan and relied on NCRIC to correctly and honestly perform each reconciliation and accurately calculate any Additional or Return Premium due.

142. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan were maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) that after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. NCRIC also concealed from plaintiffs material facts which amounted to a misrepresentation by refusing to provide information concerning Loss Reserves as provided for by the Plan, among other things.

143. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

144. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

145. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

146. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's false representations and concealments by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT EIGHT

Negligent Misrepresentation

147. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 146, as though fully set forth herein.

148. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that: (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan were maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. Moreover, as set forth above in Paragraphs 37 and 38, NCRIC concealed from plaintiffs material facts that amounted to a misrepresentation.

149. NCRIC negligently made these false representations because it failed to ensure that it maintain Loss Reserves in accord with the industry standard, among other things.

150. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

151. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

152. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

153. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's negligent actions by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT NINE

Defamation and Libel

154. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 153, as if fully set forth herein.

155. NCRIC and its agents made numerous false and defamatory statements including those statements set forth in Paragraphs 69 and 89.

16d-000247

156. The foregoing false and defamatory statements were published to physicians who were associated with Medical Center.

157. NCRIC's foregoing false and defamatory statements about Medical Center were made upon information and belief with knowledge of their falsity or reckless indifference or negligence as to their truth or falsity.

158. As a result of its foregoing false and defamatory statements, NCRIC has directly and proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of harm to its reputation and substantial economic loss.

COUNT TEN

Trade Libel/Commercial Disparagement/Injurious Falsehood

159. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 158, as if fully set forth herein.

160. NCRIC made and false and misleading representations of fact which disparaged Medical Center's performance as a hospital. These statements included those statements set forth in Paragraphs 70 and 90.

161. NCRIC made the foregoing false representations for the purpose of disparaging the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility.

162. NCRIC made the foregoing false representations intentionally and with full knowledge that these statements would cast doubt upon the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility.

163. As a result of the foregoing false representations, NCRIC has proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of substantial economic loss.

16d-000248

164. NCRIC's false representations of fact regarding the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility violate the common law of commercial disparagement and trade libel and injurious falsehood.

COUNT ELEVEN

Conversion

165. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 164, as if fully set forth herein.

166. Medical Center made payments to NCRIC, described above in Paragraph 60.

167. If and to the extent that such payments were for Additional Premium actually owed by Medical Center, NCRIC interfered with Medical Center's property to the exclusion and in defiance of Medical Center's rights to the property by not returning Medical Center's payments when and to the extent that NCRIC subsequently owed Medical Center Return Premium.

168. As a result of the conversion of its property by NCRIC, Medical Center has been injured in an amount to be proved at trial.

Relief Requested

WHEREFORE, Medical Center asks that the Court award Medical Center its actual damages; punitive damages, as a result of NCRIC's malfeasance, fraud and bad faith; costs, including reasonable attorney's fees; and such further relief as the Court may deem just and equitable.

16d-000249

Demand for Jury Trial

AMENDED COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES

NCRIC, Inc., Plaintiff, by counsel, sues Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. as follows:

1. NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") is a corporation in the business of providing liability insurance and doing business in the District of Columbia. It is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company.

2. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital") is a medical hospital with its principal place of business in the District of Columbia.

3. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to D.C. Code § 11-921.

4. NCRIC and Hospital are parties to Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance (the "Agreement") by which NCRIC provided medical doctors at the Hospital with certain insurance against liability resulting from described events, including professional negligence in consideration for which Hospital agreed to pay certain premiums. A copy of the Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

5. Pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, Hospital owed NCRIC payment of additional insurance premiums based on the Agreement.

6. NCRIC performed all its obligations pursuant to the Agreement by providing the agreed insurance coverage.

7. Hospital breached the Agreement by failing to pay NCRIC the additional premiums due under the Agreement.

8. Hospital owes NCRIC the sum of $1,943,530 or such amount as is currently due from defendant to plaintiff after calendar quarterly recalculations of premium pursuant to the contract between the parties.

9. Despite written demand for payment therefore, and compliance with all its other obligations under the Agreement, Hospital has failed and refused to pay NCRIC the amount owed.

WHEREFORE, NCRIC demands judgment against Hospital in the amount One Million Nine Hundred Forty-three Thousand Five Hundred Thirty Dollars ($1,943,530) or such amount as is currently due from defendant to plaintiff after calendar quarterly recalculations of premium pursuant to the contract between the parties, interest, and costs incurred herein.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants

listed on Exhibit D, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation, or termination of participation, in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

16d-000255

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit E and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NCRIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

17. Medical Center hereby warrants and represents that it has made, and agrees to provide NCRIC with its auditor's or actuary's annual statement reflecting, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no modifications, amendments or additions thereto shall be binding unless in writing and executed by all the parties hereto.

19. This Agreement shall not be assignable without the prior written consent of the parties hereto.

20. The agreements, terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns, if any.

21. This Agreement is made and executed in the District of Columbia, and shall be governed by the law of the District of Columbia.

EXHIBIT A

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

EXHIBIT A

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC.'S AMENDED ANSWER AND COUNTERCLAIMS

COMES NOW Defendant, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Medical Center"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esquire, Steven F. Benz, Esquire, Joseph K. Leahy, Esquire, and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., and respectfully answers the Amended Complaint in the above-captioned matter as follows:

FIRST DEFENSE

The Complaint fails to state a cause of action upon which relief may be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE

Answering specifically the numbered paragraphs of the Amended Complaint, Medical Center states as follows:

Parties and Jurisdiction

1. To the extent that the allegations in Paragraph 1 constitute legal conclusions, no response is required. Medical Center presently lacks sufficient information to admit or deny the remaining allegations set forth in Paragraph 1.

2. Medical Center admits that it is a health care facility located at 2425 L Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037. The remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 2 call for a legal conclusion to which no response is required.

3. The allegations set forth in Paragraph 3 call for a legal conclusion to which no response is required.

4. To the extent that the allegations in Paragraph 4 call for a legal conclusion, no response is required. Medical Center admits that it entered into an agreement with the National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, which, upon information and belief, became NCRIC (referred to hereafter collectively as "NCRIC") in July 1999; however, Medical Center denies that the allegations in Sentence 1 of Paragraph 4 accurately describe the scope of that agreement. Medical Center admits that the pages attached to the Amended Complaint as Exhibit A are a copy of a portion of an agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC, but denies that Exhibit A constitutes the entire agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC.

5. The allegations set forth in Paragraph 5 constitute legal conclusions to which no responsive pleading is required, and accordingly Medical Center denies these allegations.

6. To the extent that the allegations set forth in Paragraph 6 constitute a legal conclusion, no response is necessary, and Medical Center denies these allegations. Medical Center lacks sufficient information to admit or deny the allegation in Paragraph 6 that NCRIC provided insurance coverage, the effect of which is to deny said allegation and demand strict proof thereof.

7. Medical Center denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph 7.

8. Medical Center denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph 8.

16d-000267

9. Medical Center admits that NCRIC demanded payment from Medical Center in the amount stated in Paragraph 8, and denies the remaining allegations set forth in Paragraph 9. Medical Center admits that NCRIC demands judgment against Medical Center in the prayer for relief in the Amended Complaint, but denies that NCRIC is entitled to any such relief.

THIRD DEFENSE

Medical Center denies all allegations in the Amended Complaint not specifically admitted, and demands strict proof thereof.

FOURTH DEFENSE

Medical Center fully performed all of its duties and obligations under the alleged agreement between it and NCRIC.

FIFTH DEFENSE

NCRIC's claim is barred as a result of NCRIC's failure to satisfy conditions precedent, including, but not limited to, failing to perform reconciliations properly, and failing to calculate and inform Medical Center of the correct amount of premium due.

SIXTH DEFENSE

NCRIC's claim is barred by the doctrines of estoppel, waiver and/or unclean hands.

SEVENTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is unenforceable, in whole or in part, due to NCRIC's material breach of the express and/or implied terms thereof.

EIGHTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is unenforceable, in whole or in part, due to modification, novation, and/or accord and satisfaction.

NINTH DEFENSE

The alleged agreement between Medical Center and NCRIC is void, in whole or in part, because Medical Center renewed and/or amended it while under duress caused by NCRIC.

TENTH DEFENSE

Medical Center reserves the right to assert any affirmative defenses that may be revealed during the course of discovery.

MEDICAL CENTER'S COUNTERCLAIMS AGAINST NCRIC

Comes now Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Medical Center, by counsel, and respectfully states and alleges as follows for its counterclaims against Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC:

10. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 9, as though set forth here in full.

Parties and Jurisdiction

11. Medical Center, a preeminent health care facility with internationally renowned specialties in obstetrics, gynecology, and neonatology, is a registered District of Columbia not-for-profit corporation that has been providing health care services in the District of Columbia for about 134 years.

12. NCRIC is, upon information and belief, a corporation that provides malpractice insurance to physicians in the District of Columbia. Upon information and belief, NCRIC is the successor in interest to National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company (referred to collectively herein as "NCRIC").

13. This court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to § 11-921 of the District of Columbia Code.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS IN SUPPORT OF COUNTERCLAIMS

Background to the Plan

14. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter prior to September 2000, NCRIC provided medical malpractice liability insurance ("MMLI") to nearly all of the physicians associated with Medical Center. Most of these physicians were OB/GYN practitioners.

15. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, most of the physicians associated with Medical Center (otherwise known as "Attending Faculty") were independent contractors who had patient admitting privileges at several hospitals, including hospitals in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Medical Center relied on these independent physicians for patient referrals. As a result, Medical Center competed, and still competes, with other hospitals throughout the District of Columbia metropolitan area for physicians as well as for patient admissions.

16. In 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, the average MMLI premium for OB/GYN physicians in the District of Columbia was about two or three times as high as the average MMLI premium for such physicians in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

17. In about 1993, and at all relevant times thereafter, at least one competitor hospital in the District of Columbia had in place an agreement with NCRIC, under which it provided a discount on MMLI premiums for that hospital's physicians.

18. Without a program to discount the cost of MMLI premiums for its Attending Faculty, Medical Center faced the prospect of losing associated physicians to hospitals in the District of Columbia that had such discount programs, as well as to hospitals in Maryland and Virginia, where MMLI premiums were lower.

16d-000270

19. For Medical Center, the loss of physicians necessarily would mean the loss of referrals and its key source of income: paying patients. In order to remain economically viable, Medical Center needed to maintain its volume of paying patients.

NCRIC's Proposal and Representations to Medical Center

20. In about 1993, NCRIC proposed to Medical Center a plan to reduce MMLI premiums for its Attending Faculty. NCRIC pressured Medical Center to accept this proposal. The proposal helped NCRIC, which dominated the District of Columbia MMLI market, keep its customers away from Virginia and Maryland, where it faced competition from other providers.

21. At about this time, Medical Center informed NCRIC that it required a discount program in order to retain its Attending Faculty. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew that losing physicians to other hospitals in the District of Columbia metropolitan area would leave Medical Center, which already was in poor financial condition, in grave fiscal distress.

22. Under the proposed discount plan, each member of the Attending Faculty would receive what amounted to a 15% discount on the premium of the standard MMLI policy.

23. In exchange for this discount, Medical Center would agree to pay, with certain limitations, the difference between (1) the total amount of discounted premium paid by the Attending Faculty for a specified amount of MMLI coverage and (2) NCRIC's cost (including administrative costs and a profit for NCRIC) of providing that coverage. Under this proposal, Medical Center also would receive a refund of any premium paid by the Attending Faculty for the specified amount of MMLI coverage that exceeded NCRIC's cost of providing that coverage.

24. In order to induce Medical Center to agree to the proposed discount program, NCRIC, upon information and belief, represented to Medical Center that this proposal would cost

Medical Center almost nothing, because the Deposit Premium would cover most, if not all, of actual cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty. NCRIC, however, refused to provide Medical Center with sufficient data to perform an adequate analysis of the actual cost of the proposed discount program.

25. The proposed discount program allowed NCRIC to charge Medical Center for predicted expenditures ("incurred losses"), not just actual payments ("actual losses"), on MMLI claims. Medical Center objected to this aspect of the proposal. NCRIC, however, refused to offer a discount program under which it would charge solely for actual losses.

26. In about October 1993, Medical Center agreed to the discount program, and entered into an agreement with NCRIC entitled "Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement" (the "Plan"), which NCRIC drafted. A copy of the Plan is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

Premium Calculations Under the Plan

27. Under the Plan, if NCRIC's incurred cost of providing MMLI to the Attending Faculty (known as the "Retro Premium") exceeded the total amount of discounted premium paid by the Attending Faculty to NCRIC (known as the "Deposit Premium") for a specified amount of MMLI coverage, then Medical Center was liable to NCRIC for the difference between the Retro Premium and the Deposit Premium (known as the "Additional Premium"), as limited by a set Maximum Premium. However, if the Retro Premium was less than the total Deposit Premium, the Plan entitled Medical Center to the difference between the two (known as the "Return Premium"), as limited by a set Minimum Premium.

28. Under the Plan, the Retro Premium was calculated by applying a complicated, backward-looking formula ("retro formula") that was devised by NCRIC, and for which NCRIC provided all the data. NCRIC refused to allow Medical Center to audit this data, including the total amount of reserve funds ("Loss Reserves") that NCRIC claimed to maintain in order to pay medical malpractice claims and related litigation expenses under the Plan. The Retro Premium turned in large part on information that Medical Center could not independently verify.

29. Upon information and belief, NCRIC represented, as an inducement for Medical Center to enter into the Plan, that: (1) all premium amounts, including the Retro Premium, would be calculated exactly as set forth in the Plan; (2) the Retro Premium would fairly represent the incurred cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty, including the cost of maintaining Loss Reserves therefor; (3) the Loss Reserves would be calculated in accordance with generally-accepted standards in the insurance industry; and (4) the incurred cost of the Plan, as embodied by the Retro Premium, would closely approximate the actual cost of providing the specified amount of MMLI coverage to the Attending Faculty.

30. Medical Center entered into the Plan in reliance upon the foregoing representations by NCRIC, communicated its reliance to NCRIC, and has been damaged by such reliance.

NCRIC's Obligations Under the Plan

31. Under the Plan, NCRIC was responsible for all bookkeeping under the Plan, for administration of the Plan on behalf of Medical Center, and for all reconciliations of the Plan.

32. Reconciliations required NCRIC to: (1) apply the retro formula properly to the Plan years being reconciled, by using the proper multipliers and definitions, and accurate data; (2) calculate the accurate Deposit, Retro, and Additional or Return Premium; and (3) apply the Minimum or Maximum Premium, if applicable, as stated in the Plan.

33. The Plan required NCRIC to perform a reconciliation, effective on a specified date (the "Reconciliation Date"), after the third year of the Plan, and each year thereafter. For the first reconciliation, only the first year of the Plan was to be reconciled; in each subsequent reconciliation, all of the previous unclosed years of the Plan, plus one additional year, were reconciled. Reconciliations were to continue, even after the Plan ended, until all medical malpractice claims covered by the Plan were closed as defined under the Plan.

34. The Plan required NCRIC to notify Medical Center in writing, within 60 days of each Reconciliation Date, of the amount of Additional or Return Premium due, and pay any Return Premium, and the investment return thereon, due within 30 days of this notice.

35. The Plan required NCRIC to set its Loss Reserves according to the insurance industry standard; to provide Medical Center with verification by an independent actuary that Loss Reserves were maintained as such; and to provide Medical Center with certain data regarding the accrued Loss Reserves on a specified, regular basis. Further, the Plan allowed only a certain percentage of the Loss Reserves be considered when calculating the Retro Premium.

36. As a result of the foregoing, Medical Center reasonably and in good faith trusted NCRIC to administer the Plan on its behalf; to properly and honestly perform all reconciliations; and to accurately calculate all premiums, including Additional and/or Return Premium. Upon information and belief, Medical Center communicated this trust and reliance to NCRIC.

NCRIC's Negligent and Improper Administration of the Plan

37. Upon information and belief, NCRIC did not provide Medical Center with reports and actuary certifications concerning the Loss Reserves as required by the Plan. Although

16d-000274

Medical Center repeatedly requested such reports and certifications, NCRIC at first refused to provide them, and later, upon information and belief, provided them irregularly if at all.

38. Upon information and belief, NCRIC also failed to maintain Loss Reserves for the Plan in accordance with the industry standard. Upon information and belief, beginning in about 1997, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care failed to adequately adjust its loss reserves downward in response to Medical Center's positive loss experience under the Plan. As a result, NCRIC maintained higher Loss Reserves than were reasonably necessary to cover malpractice claims under the Plan, and improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

39. Further, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care considered a greater percentage of its Loss Reserves when calculating the Retro Premium that it was allowed to consider under the Plan. As a result, NCRIC improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

40. Moreover, upon information and belief, NCRIC either knowingly or due to lack of reasonable care (a) added extra years of the Plan to its reconciliations, thereby reconciling too many years of the Plan; and/or (b) treated unclosed years as closed, thereby reconciling too few years of the Plan. In each instance, NCRIC improperly raised the incurred cost of the Plan.

41. In addition, for each Reconciliation Date, NCRIC performed the reconciliation incorrectly, in part as set forth in Paragraphs 49, 50, 53 and 54, below. As a result, the amount of Additional or Return Premium calculated by NCRIC in each reconciliation was incorrect.

42. Because Medical Center trusted and relied on NCRIC to administer the Plan, to perform reconciliations properly and honestly, and to accurately calculate all premiums, Medical Center was unaware that, for each reconciliation NCRIC performed, the amount of Additional or Return Premium calculated by NCRIC was incorrect. As a result, after each reconciliation

NCRIC performed, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

43. Upon information and belief, at all times relevant to this action, NCRIC knew of Medical Center's financial situation and reasonably should have known that Medical Center would have demanded payment of any Return Premium due under the Plan.

Amendments to and Renewals of the Plan

1996 Amendments and Renewal

44. In January 1996, Medical Center faced a severe financial crisis. At this time, if Medical Center lost Attending Faculty or patients, it risked becoming insolvent.

45. At about this time, some members of the Attending Faculty moved their practices to nearby Virginia or Maryland, where MMLI premiums were lower; other Attending Faculty threatened to move unless the discount on MMLI premiums increased. Increasing the discount on MMLI premiums for Attending Faculty was crucial to retaining its associated physicians.

46. In January 1996, Medical Center and NCRIC agreed in correspondence, attached hereto as Exhibit 2, to amend to the Plan. This amendment increased the discount for Attending Faculty to what amounted to 30% off of the standard MMLI premium. This amendment was included in all future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC; one such version is shown at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4, attached hereto. The amendment went into effect in January 1996. It applied only prospectively, to Discount Premium paid after that date. It did not apply to Deposit Premium already collected by NCRIC.

47. This new 30% discount for the Attending Faculty meant that, beginning in January 1996, NCRIC would receive less Deposit Premium. The Plan was subsequently amended to reflect this reduction in Discount Premium. The amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 3, was drafted by NCRIC and went into effect in January 1996. Like the 30% discount, this amendment applied only prospectively, to the years of the Plan where NCRIC received less Deposit Premium due to the new, larger discount. The amendment did not apply to past years, for which NCRIC had received more Deposit Premium, due to the old, smaller discount.

48. It later was determined that the amendment described in the previous Paragraph did not accurately reflect the reduction in Deposit Premium resulting from the 30% discount. The amendment was corrected to accurately reflect the Deposit Premium resulting from the new discount. All future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC, listed this corrected Deposit Premium; one such version appears at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4.

49. Although NCRIC agreed to correct the amended Deposit Premium, it knew that Medical Center trusted and relied on it as described above, and therefore, it knew that Medical Center would not be aware if the corrected Deposit Premium was not applied. NCRIC did not apply the corrected Deposit Premium in any reconciliations of the Plan.

50. As a result of NCRIC's refusal to apply the corrected Deposit Premium, each time it performed a reconciliation and notified Medical Center that Additional or Return Premium was due, that amount was incorrect. Further, after each reconciliation, due to Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC as described above, Medical Center was unaware of NCRIC's misrepresentation and/or miscalculation. Accordingly, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

51. The Plan was initially set to expire in September 1996, at which time NCRIC had not performed any reconciliations under the Plan.

52. In 1996, the parties agreed to amend the Plan to reduce the Minimum Premium for all years of the Plan. Since no reconciliations had been performed yet, the new Minimum Premium was in effect for all reconciliations under the Plan. This amendment was included in all future versions of the retro formula, which were drafted by NCRIC; one such version is shown at pages 3 through 6 of Exhibit 4, attached hereto.

53. Although NCRIC agreed to lower the Minimum Premium, NCRIC knew that Medical Center trusted and relied on NCRIC's representations as stated above, and would not be aware if the new Minimum Premium was not applied. NCRIC did not apply the new Minimum Premium to all years of the Plan in any reconciliations of the Plan.

54. As a result of NCRIC's refusal to apply the new Minimum Premium, each time it performed a reconciliation and notified Medical Center that Additional or Return Premium was due, that amount was incorrect. Further, after each reconciliation, due to Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC as described above, Medical Center was unaware of NCRIC's misrepresentation and/or miscalculation. Accordingly, Medical Center was unable to demand the correct amount it was owed by, or pay the correct amount it owed to, NCRIC.

55. On information and belief, the Plan as amended was renewed by the parties through September 1, 1997.

January 1998 Renewal

56. By late 1997, Medical Center was in the midst of a financial crisis. It was engaged in litigation with the Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, Ltd. over the letter of credit upon which Medical Center relied for operating funds. At this time, Medical Center was in desperate need of such funds, and needed to renew the Plan to ensure that it did not lose Attending Faculty, the patients they referred, and the resulting income.

57. NCRIC was aware of Medical Center's financial crisis. After the fall 1997 reconciliation NCRIC presented Medical Center with a bill for $1.7 million in Additional Premium, along with an ultimatum: pay up immediately or the Plan would not be renewed. This bill was miscalculated to grossly overstate the amount of Additional Premium due.

58. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew or should have known that this bill was incorrect, and that due to its trust and reliance on NCRIC, Medical Center would not discover that it had been billed in error. Upon information and belief, NCRIC intended to take advantage of Medical Center's trust and reliance, and its difficult financial situation, in violation of the Plan, in order to obtain security for future Additional Premium that might become due.

59. Medical Center had no reasonable alternative but to pay NCRIC because there was no time to find other, discounted MMLI for the Attending Faculty before the Plan's renewal date. If Medical Center did not agree to pay immediately, the Plan would end and the Attending Faculty's MMLI premiums would skyrocket. Termination of the Plan would cause a large percentage of Medical Center's Attending Faculty to transfer to competing hospitals. As a result of having fewer Attending Faculty and patients, Medical Center would lose significant revenue.

60. Medical Center could not afford to pay $1.7 million, but agreed to pay $1 million. Medical Center made these payments in four installments between January and March of 1998.

61. In January 1998, the Plan was renewed again for one year, effective September 1997. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 4, was drafted by NCRIC.

62. Prior to NCRIC's wrongful demand for payment of $1.7 million, Medical Center had just enough cash on hand to cover its operating expenses. As a direct result of overpaying NCRIC, in early 1998 Medical Center exhausted its cash on hand and became insolvent.

63. In February 1998, Medical Center filed for bankruptcy, and remained in bankruptcy until early 1999. During this time, Medical Center incurred additional expenses as a result of its bankruptcy, including several hundred thousand dollars per month in legal fees.

September 1998 Renewal

64. In the summer of 1998, as a result of NCRIC's wrongful demand for payment, Medical Center determined that it could no longer afford to participate in the Plan. Medical Center began to search for low-cost MMLI for the Attending Faculty. Medical Center expected that, by finding lower-cost MMLI, it could retain its current Attending Faculty and attract new physicians, thereby increasing its revenues and improving its financial situation.

65. In about August 1998, Medical Center received a proposal from Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX"), a highly-rated national insurance company, to provide MMLI for the Attending Faculty. The premium for MIIX's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy was lower than the premium for NCRIC's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy as discounted by the Plan.

66. The MIIX proposal was a better deal than the Plan for members of the Attending Faculty because, unlike NCRIC, MIIX guaranteed that it would not raise its premiums for two years. The MIIX proposal also was better for Medical Center because MIIX did not require that Medical Center accept liability for any additional premium.

67. In about August 1998, Medical Center notified the Attending Faculty of the MIIX proposal. Soon thereafter, NCRIC became aware of the MIIX proposal.

68. Upon hearing of the MIIX proposal, NCRIC initiated a disinformation campaign to kill the proposal by making untrue statements about Medical Center, its Board of Directors, MIIX, and the MIIX proposal.

69. In late August of 1998, NCRIC called a meeting of the Attending Faculty. At this meeting, representatives of NCRIC made false and malicious statements, including but not limited to the following: (1) that MIIX would not remain in the District of Columbia insurance market; (2) that MIIX would not stand by its guarantee not to raise premiums for two years; (3) that MIIX was an unreliable insurance company; (4) that MIIX planned to raise premiums once it cornered the District of Columbia MMLI market; (5) that the MIIX proposal was cronyism which would benefit members of the Medical Center Board of Directors rather than the Attending Faculty; (6) that Medical Center had lied to the Attending Faculty by stating that it could not afford to continue the Plan; and (7) that lawyers with whom NCRIC contracted to defend physicians against medical malpractice claims would not work with MIIX.

70. At this meeting, NCRIC's representatives also urged members of the Attending Faculty to disassociate themselves from Medical Center if the Plan was not renewed.

71. In a direct and foreseeable response to NCRIC's campaign to kill the MIIX deal, including the statements set forth in Paragraphs 69 and 70, approximately 20-30% of Attending Faculty members informed Medical Center that they would not purchase MMLI from MIIX. Many members of the Attending Faculty also threatened to cease their association with Medical Center if the Plan was not renewed. Among those who threatened to leave were several groups of physicians which admitted a large volume of patients to Medical Center.

72. At about this time, upon information and belief, NCRIC also presented Medical Center with a bill, demanding immediate payment for approximately $1 million in Additional Premium for the fall 1998 reconciliation. This bill grossly miscalculated and overstated the amount of Additional Premium due under the Plan.

73. Upon information and belief, NCRIC knew or should have known that this bill was incorrect, and that due to its trust and reliance, Medical Center would not discover that it had been billed in error. Upon information and belief, NCRIC overbilled Medical Center for Additional Premium, in violation of the Plan, in a wrongful attempt to gain leverage over Medical Center and force it to renew the Plan.

74. As a direct and foreseeable result of the foregoing, Medical Center had no reasonable alternative but to reject the MIIX offer and renew the NCRIC Plan. Medical Center was forced to accept liability for potential Additional Premium for the period beginning September 1, 1998, which it would not otherwise have accepted.

75. In about October 1998, the Plan was renewed for one year, through September 1999. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 5, was drafted by NCRIC. Shortly thereafter, upon information and belief, NCRIC, its goal accomplished, dropped its demand that Medical Center pay an additional $1 million.

Medical Entity Policy

76. During late 1998, Medical Center decided to purchase a MMLI policy for the Columbia Physicians Group ("CPG"), physicians who practiced in Medical Center's ambulatory clinic. Although most CPG physicians were covered by their own individual MMLI policies at all times, Medical Center offered them additional MMLI when they worked in the clinic.

16d-000282

77. Medical Center purchased the CPG Policy from NCRIC (the "Policy"). This one-year policy, effective December 1, 1998, was renewed on December 1, 1999.

78. Medical Center complied with all of its obligations under the Policy.

1999 Renewals

79. In 1999, Medical Center searched for, but did not locate, lower-cost MMLI for its Attending Faculty. Accordingly, the Plan was renewed for one year, effective September 1999. This amendment, attached hereto as Exhibit 6, was drafted by NCRIC.

Failed 2000 Renewal Negotiations and NCRIC's Cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy

80. After the 2000 renewal, Medical Center formed a committee of the Attending Faculty to search for lower-cost MMLI. The committee was composed of unbiased and well-respected members of the Attending Faculty, including at least one member of NCRIC's Board of Directors. The committee notified NCRIC of its goal.

81. This committee obtained a proposal from The Medical Protective Company ("MedPro"), a well-respected national insurance company. The premium for MedPro's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy was below the discounted price of NCRIC's standard OB/GYN MMLI policy. Morever, under the MedPro proposal Medical Center would not be required to accept liability for any additional premium.

82. The committee informed Medical Center's Board of Directors that it had found an acceptable substitute MMLI policy for the Attending Faculty.

83. At about this time, Medical Center requested that NCRIC propose a discount program based on actual rather than incurred losses. NCRIC refused to make such a proposal unless Medical Center first settled the existing Plan.

16d-000283

84. Negotiations to settle the Plan commenced and continued throughout the summer of 2000, until the parties reached an agreement to settle. The settlement was contingent on Medical Center's Board of Directors approving the Plan.

85. On June 27, 2000, Medical Center's Board of Directors decline to approve the settlement plan. Medical Center informed NCRIC of this development immediately.

86. On June 30, 2000 in retaliation for the Board's refusal to agree to the settlement, NCRIC, without justification, canceled the Policy. After initially providing Medical Center with insufficient notice in violation of District of Columbia insurance regulations, NCRIC notified Medical Center that cancellation of the Policy was effective on September 1, 2000. NCRIC also informed Medical Center that the Plan would be terminated on that date.

87. Despite the foregoing, throughout the summer Medical Center continued to negotiate in good faith towards a settlement of the existing Plan that would meet the approval of its Board of Directors. The parties reached another settlement in August 2000.

88. NCRIC, however, reneged on the settlement in late August 2000.

89. In further retaliation against Medical Center, on or about the effective date of the Policy's cancellation, representatives of NCRIC made untrue and malicious statements regarding Medical Center and the ambulatory clinic to members of the Attending Faculty and CPG. These statements included but were not limited to: (1) that the Policy had expired; (2) that CPG physicians who also were members of the Attending Faculty were not covered by NCRIC's MMLI policy while practicing at the clinic; (3) that Medical Center's self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure the CPG; (4) that Medical Center's ambulatory clinic was a dangerous place to work.

90. These statements caused a panic among CPG physicians. As a result, some CPG physicians did not show up for work; others quit the clinic altogether. Shifts went uncovered, and the few physicians who were willing to work at the clinic worked extra shifts. Due to the lack of doctors, some clinic patients who required care were turned away.

91. As a result of the foregoing, Medical Center's reputation in the community, and among its patients, staff and associated physicians, was harmed. Staff members began to circulate rumors that Medical Center, which recently had improved its fiscal position, would close. Physicians ceased their association with Medical Center and/or CPG; staff members quit.

92. In further retaliation against Medical Center, NCRIC, without justification, informed CPG physicians who held individual NCRIC MMLI policies that they were not covered by these policies when practicing at Medical Center's ambulatory clinic. Upon information and belief, there was no proper underwriting justification for this exclusion.

93. Due to NCRIC's wrongful refusal to provide MMLI coverage for individual physicians practicing at Medical Center's ambulatory clinic, many physicians quit the clinic. As a result, Medical Center has had, and continues to have, difficulty staffing the clinic.

94. As a result of the termination of the Plan, upon information and belief, NCRIC and its representatives urged members of the Attending Faculty to move their practices from Medical Center to the competitor hospitals that had in place discount programs with NCRIC.

95. As a result of the termination of the Plan, the Attending Faculty were required to decide, on short notice, whether to: (1) remain with NCRIC and move their practices to a competitor hospital with a discount program, as NCRIC urged; (2) switch to Med Pro, the new MMLI provider for Medical Center; or (3) remain at Medical Center and pay the undiscounted

NCRIC MMLI premium. But for Attending Faculty for whom NCRIC was presently defending MMLI claims, this was no choice at all: for all practical purposes, they could not leave NCRIC.

96. Of those faculty who could choose to leave, about 12-17 physicians -- at least one-fourth of the active membership of the Attending Faculty -- left Medical Center. Among those leaving were some physicians who admitted a large volume of patients to Medical Center.

97. The departure of these Attending Faculty had an immediate effect on Medical Center's bottom line. The hospital, which was about to break even for the first time in years, lost revenue and remained unprofitable.

98. The hospital's poor financial condition had an adverse effect on morale at Medical Center. Rumors circulated among the staff that Medical Center would close. More physicians ceased their association with Medical Center; more staff members and nurses quit. Members of the administration, including senior executives, left their posts. Many of the remaining physicians spoke openly about leaving, thereby causing morale to deteriorate further.

99. Word of Medical Center's poor financial condition, and rumors of its imminent demise, reached the greater community. Local media repeatedly contacted members of the Medical Center's Board of Directors to ask when Medical Center would close its doors.

100. As a result of Medical Center's difficult fiscal situation, which continues, and the public rumors that it will close, Medical Center has had and continues to have difficulty recruiting the new physicians and staff it needs to improve its financial situation.

101. On September 1, 2000, NCRIC informed Medical Center that the current amount of Additional Premium due as a result of the fall 2000 reconciliation was $1,285,525.00. This reconciliation was, upon information and belief, knowingly grossly miscalculated and overstated by NCRIC in retaliation for Medical Center's refusal to settle the Plan.

102. In fact, no Additional Premium was due under the Plan, and Medical Center was due Return Premium. Medical Center was not immediately aware of NCRIC's deception, and did not immediately contest the amount of Additional Premium stated by NCRIC, or demand payment of the amount of Return Premium that actually was due.

103. On October 1, 2000, NCRIC presented Medical Center with a bill for $1,285,525.00. Upon information and belief, this amount knowingly stated that Additional Premium was due when in fact Return Premium was due.

COUNT ONE

Breach of Contract

104. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 103, as if set forth fully herein.

105. The amended and renewed Plan, as described above, constitutes a valid and binding contract between Medical Center and NCRIC.

106. Medical Center has performed each obligation and condition of the Plan, except those which it was prevented from performing or those which it was excused from performing or those which were waived by NCRIC's misconduct.

107. Under the terms of the Plan, NCRIC was required to perform certain obligations, including those obligations set forth in Paragraphs 31 through 36, above.

108. NCRIC materially breached the Plan by failing to perform its obligations under the Plan, including those breaches described in Paragraphs 37 through 42, above.

16d-000287

109. As a result of NCRIC's failure to perform its obligations under the Plan, NCRIC caused Medical Center damages including the overpayment of Additional Premium, thereby causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

110. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

COUNT TWO

Breach of Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

111. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 110, as if set forth fully herein.

112. The amended and renewed Plan, as described above, constitutes a valid and binding contract between Medical Center and NCRIC.

113. Medical Center has performed each obligation and condition of the Plan, except those which it was prevented from performing or those which it was excused from performing or those which were waived by NCRIC's misconduct.

114. By law, the Plan includes an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing.

115. NCRIC has breach the Plan by acting unfairly and in bad faith, including acting as described in Paragraphs 37 through 42, 49, 50, 53, 54, 57, 58, 72 through 74, 101, 102, and 104 above.

116. As a result of NCRIC's failure to perform its obligations under the Plan, NCRIC caused Medical Center damages including the overpayment of Additional Premium, thereby causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

16d-000288

117. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

COUNT THREE

Breach of Fiduciary Duty

118. Medical Center incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 117, as if set forth fully herein.

119. At all times mentioned herein, a fiduciary relationship existed between NCRIC and Medical Center by virtue of (a) NCRIC's responsibility, stated in the Plan, to perform all bookkeeping on behalf of Medical Center under the Plan; (b) Medical Center's trust and reliance on NCRIC to administer the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware; (c) Medical Center's reliance on NCRIC to properly and honestly perform reconciliations and accurately calculate Additional or Return Premium, of which NCRIC was fully aware; and (d) Medical Center's dependence on NCRIC for certain information necessary to perform retro calculations under the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware.

120. NCRIC has, by its actions alleged above, including those actions set forth in Paragraphs 37 through 42, 49, 50, 53, 54, 57, 58, 72 through 74, 101, 102 and 104, breached its fiduciary duties to Medical Center.

121. NCRIC breached its fiduciary duties to Medical Center, upon information and belief, with the intent to defraud and/or deceive Medical Center.

122. As a direct and proximate result of the foregoing, Medical Center has been injured in its business and property.

COUNT FOUR

Tortious Interference with Business Relations

123. Medical Center incorporates the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 122 as if fully set forth herein.

124. During the period up to and including August 2000, Medical Center had valid business relationships with certain physicians who were associated with Medical Center and an expectancy that such physicians would refer patients to Medical Center.

125. NCRIC knew about these valid business relationships and expectancy.

126. NCRIC intentionally and maliciously interfered with these relationships and expectancy (a) by or through its agents, making wrongful and/or untrue, unprivileged statements, including those statements set forth in Paragraphs 69, 70 and 89, regarding Medical Center, its Board of Directors, and MIIX; and (b) by urging said physicians, wrongfully and without privilege, to move their practices from Medical Center to its competitor.

127. As a direct and proximate result of NCRIC's wrongful interference, a number of its physicians terminated their association with Medical Center, and ceased referring patients to Medical Center.

128. NCRIC has been and is being injured by NCRIC's malfeasance due to loss of revenue resulting from loss of patient referrals.

COUNT FIVE

Tortious Interference with Prospective Business Advantage

129. Medical Center incorporates the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 128 as if fully set forth herein.

16d-000290

130. Medical Center had a reasonable business expectancy in the patients referred by its associated physicians, and reasonably expected to continue the association with its physicians and the resulting patient referrals.

131. NCRIC was aware of this business expectancy, as described above.

132. Despite its knowledge, NCRIC deliberately and intentionally or recklessly acted to interfere with and prevent Medical Center from realizing the aforementioned business expectancies by engaging in the tortious and wrongful conduct described above.

133. NCRIC's foregoing actions constitute an intentional and tortious interference with Medical Center's reasonable business expectancies.

134. As a result of their foregoing actions, NCRIC has proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of substantial economic loss, including loss of revenue resulting from loss of Attending Faculty and patient referrals.

COUNT SIX

Negligence

135. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 134, as if fully set forth herein.

136. At all times relevant to this claim, NCRIC had a duty of care in relation to Medical Center, by virtue of its contract with Medical Center and its relationship with Medical Center, including its position as bookkeeper for and administrator of the Plan.

137. NCRIC breached its duty of care and was negligent by miscalculating the amounts of Additional or Return Premium due, as described above.

16d-000291

138. NCRIC 's negligence proximately caused Medical Center damage by causing it to overpay Additional Premium and fail to demand Return Premium it was due, and further, by causing Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT SEVEN

Actual and/or Constructive Fraud

139. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 138, as though fully set forth herein.

140. As set forth above, NCRIC was in a fiduciary and/or confidential position with regard to Medical Center, due to NCRIC's role as administrator of the Plan and its duty to perform all bookkeeping and reconciliations under the Plan.

141. Due to this fiduciary and/or confidential relationship between NCRIC and Medical Center, as set forth above, Medical Center trusted NCRIC's administration of the Plan and relied on NCRIC to correctly and honestly perform each reconciliation and accurately calculate any Additional or Return Premium due.

142. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan were maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) that after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. NCRIC also concealed from plaintiffs material facts which amounted to a misrepresentation by refusing to provide information concerning Loss Reserves as provided for by the Plan, among other things.

143. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

144. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

145. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

146. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's false representations and concealments by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT EIGHT

Negligent Misrepresentation

147. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 146, as though fully set forth herein.

148. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that: (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan were maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. Moreover, as set forth above in Paragraphs 37 and 38, NCRIC concealed from plaintiffs material facts that amounted to a misrepresentation.

149. NCRIC negligently made these false representations because it failed to ensure that it maintain Loss Reserves in accord with the industry standard, among other things.

150. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

151. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

152. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

153. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's negligent actions by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

COUNT NINE

Defamation and Libel

154. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 153, as if fully set forth herein.

155. NCRIC and its agents made numerous false and defamatory statements including those statements set forth in Paragraphs 69 and 89.

156. The foregoing false and defamatory statements were published to physicians who were associated with Medical Center.

157. NCRIC's foregoing false and defamatory statements about Medical Center were made upon information and belief with knowledge of their falsity or reckless indifference or negligence as to their truth or falsity.

158. As a result of its foregoing false and defamatory statements, NCRIC has directly and proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of harm to its reputation and substantial economic loss.

COUNT TEN

Trade Libel/Commercial Disparagement/Injurious Falsehood

159. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 158, as if fully set forth herein.

160. NCRIC made and false and misleading representations of fact which disparaged Medical Center's performance as a hospital. These statements included those statements set forth in Paragraphs 70 and 90.

161. NCRIC made the foregoing false representations for the purpose of disparaging the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility.

162. NCRIC made the foregoing false representations intentionally and with full knowledge that these statements would cast doubt upon the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility.

163. As a result of the foregoing false representations, NCRIC has proximately caused Medical Center damages in the form of substantial economic loss.

16d-000295

164. NCRIC's false representations of fact regarding the quality of Medical Center's services as a health care facility violate the common law of commercial disparagement and trade libel and injurious falsehood.

COUNT ELEVEN

Conversion

165. Medical Center adopts and incorporates by reference the allegations made in paragraphs 1 through 164, as if fully set forth herein.

166. Medical Center made payments to NCRIC, described above in Paragraph 60.

167. If and to the extent that such payments were for Additional Premium actually owed by Medical Center, NCRIC interfered with Medical Center's property to the exclusion and in defiance of Medical Center's rights to the property by not returning Medical Center's payments when and to the extent that NCRIC subsequently owed Medical Center Return Premium.

168. As a result of the conversion of its property by NCRIC, Medical Center has been injured in an amount to be proved at trial.

Relief Requested

WHEREFORE, Medical Center asks that the Court award Medical Center its actual damages; punitive damages, as a result of NCRIC's malfeasance, fraud and bad faith; costs, including reasonable attorney's fees; and such further relief as the Court may deem just and equitable.

Demand for Jury Trial

Medical Center requests a trial by jury.

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into effective the first day of September, 1993, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

WHEREAS, NCRIC offers medical professional liability insurance to physicians duly licensed as such by the District of Columbia Government ("physicians") on a claims-made basis, for which an annual premium is assessed and paid; and

WHEREAS, Medical Center operates and conducts a not-for-profit hospital in the District of Columbia which has on its medical staff duly licensed physicians who are insured with NCRIC; and

WHEREAS, certain of these physicians desire to secure a reduction or discount on their insurance premiums on a preferred risk basis through the establishment of and participation in an Attending Faculty Program ("AFP"), which shall be designed to reduce the risks involved in the delivery of medical care to patients as set forth in the Attending Faculty Program Agreement entered into between the physicians and Medical Center; and

WHEREAS, NCRIC is willing to provide such a reduction or discount on said insurance premiums to those physicians who agree to participate in the AFP on condition that Medical Center agrees to be financially responsible for certain premium amounts as hereinafter provided; and

WHEREAS, as a mechanism for reducing its own exposure for professional liability, Medical Center is willing to assume such responsibility;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. NCRIC has established a three-year Retrospective Rating Plan, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Plan") and incorporated herein by reference. NCRIC makes available the benefits of the Plan to its physician insureds who are parties to the AFP Agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference, and who are issued a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C. With the exception of the Plan Participants listed on Exhibit B, attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, the effective date of any Plan Participant's participation or termination of participation in the Plan shall be the date on which NCRIC receives notice thereof from Medical Center.

2. NCRIC agrees to issue Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who otherwise qualify in accordance with the standard underwriting practices of NCRIC and who are members of the AFP.

3. As an inducement to NCRIC to cause it to issue the Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsements to its physician insureds who are members of the AFP, Medical Center agrees to be solely responsible for, and to pay, any Additional Premium due in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

4. Medical Center shall correspondingly be entitled to receive Return Premium, if any, and investment return thereon, if any, in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

5. Notice of any Additional Premium due from Medical Center, or any Return Premium due to Medical Center, shall be provided to Medical Center within 60 days following the close of the Reconciliation Period, and payment due, whether to Medical Center or from Medical Center, shall be due and payable within 30 days of receipt of said notice.

6. Medical Center's obligations hereunder are primary, and not secondary, and NCRIC shall have no right to seek recourse or payment of any Additional Premium due pursuant to the Plan from any Plan Participant. In the event Medical Center fails to make any payment for which it is responsible hereunder when due, the Company shall have the right to recover reasonable attorneys fees incurred in recovering such payment from Medical Center.

7. NCRIC hereby represents and warrants that any claims made against Plan Participants will be processed, including the setting of loss reserves, in the normal and ordinary course of the Company's business, without consideration of the insured's status as a Plan Participant.

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make, adequate provision for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

9. Medical Center will provide NCRIC with the following:

a. a list of all Plan Participants, and any additions or deletions thereto;

16d-000300

b. copies of Medical Center's Agreement between Medical Center and Participants in the Attending Faculty Program who are Insured with NCRIC, and amendments, if any, as made from time to time, with each Plan Participant, which contract shall include an authorization by the Plan Participant in form and substance satisfactory to NCRIC to release to Medical Center the information set forth in Paragraph 10(a)(iii) below;

c. copies of, and any amendments to, the AFP Agreement; and

d. a review and summary of risk management activities undertaken pursuant to the Attending Faculty Program Agreement.

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

a. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide Medical Center with the following:

i. for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participation or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

ii. the aggregate amount of losses reserved under the Plan, and the verification thereof by NCRIC's consulting actuary;

iii. with respect to any medical incident or professional liability claim reported to NCRIC by a Plan Participant under the Plan (hereinafter, "incident"), and subject to a Plan Participant's authorization to release same to Medical Center, the name of the physician, the date of the incident, the date said incident was reported to NCRIC, any complaint or suit filed in a court of law with respect to such claim; and any payments made on behalf of said Plan Participant by NCRIC; and

iv. a review of Medical Center risk management activities.

b. Annually, at such meeting taking place in the first quarter of each year, Medical Center will provide NORIC with the statement of Medical Center's consulting actuary that adequate reserves have been made for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, or new issuances.

12. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until all claims applicable to the final Experience Period of the Plan are finally closed or upon payment of maximum premium amount required by paragraph 3 hereof applicable to the final Experience Period, whichever occurs first. For purposes of this Paragraph 12, any claim "closed" without payment made to, and a release having been signed by, the claimant shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the retrospective adjustment according to the Plan.

13. For purposes of clarification, and not to vary, alter or amend the terms hereof or of the Plan, attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein by reference is an example of the operation of the Plan.

14. All bookkeeping and record keeping shall be handled by NORIC.

15. Upon ninety (90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period, to be effective after the last day of such Experience Period, the Plan may be discontinued by either party for cause, provided that such discontinuance shall not affect any obligation or liability accrued prior to the date of such discontinuance. For purposes of this Paragraph 15, "cause" shall mean any material breach of the terms of this Agreement, or any change in any applicable federal, state or local law which would render any of the terms of this Agreement unlawful.

16. If notice is required to be given by either party to the other, it may be given by registered or certified mail return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or personal delivery to the other party addressed as follows:

EXHIBIT A

THREE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center dated September 1, 1993, (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be three years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1996. The Plan shall consist of three separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 A.M. on	and Ending 12:01 A.M. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return premium (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =

{[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedule:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1998

Additional reconciliations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall not be deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the Reconciliation Date, Reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Three(3) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$ 1,539,000 - $ 2,565,999	20.7%
$ 2,566,000 - $ 3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan and all reconciliations applicable thereto:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means a factor of 86.33%. This factor shall remain unchanged for the three-year term of the plan.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the pro-rated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

'Loss Reserves' means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

'Maximum Premium' means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (115%) of the Subject Premium amount.

'Minimum Premium' means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of the Subject Premium amount.

'Paid Losses' means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid Losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

'Plan Participants' means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the APP.

'Subject Premium' means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insureds were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall be determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary, but shall not exceed 83%, nor be less than 77%, of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/$3 million aggregate.

PREMIUM ADJUSTMENT ENDORSEMENT

Policy Number:

Effective Date:

This endorsement forms a part of the Policy issued by the National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company (the "Company") and takes effect as of the effective hour and date of said policy unless another effective date is stated herein.

Nothing herein contained shall be held to vary, waive, alter or extend any of the terms, conditions, agreements or declarations of the policy, other than as herein stated.

1. The premium for Coverage A stated in the declarations is a provisional premium and is contingent upon participation by the named insured in a retrospective rating plan. Upon the Company's receipt of notice of the termination of the participation of the named insured in the retrospective rating plan the premium for Coverage A will be adjusted to 100% of the Company's otherwise applicable premium then in effect.

2. All other premiums listed in the declarations and any additional premiums resulting from any policy endorsements are not affected as a result of the named insured's participation in a retrospective rating plan.

This endorsement shall not be binding unless countersigned by a duly authorized Company representative; provided, however, that if this endorsement takes effect as of the effective date of the policy and, at issue of said policy, forms a part thereof, countersignature on the declarations of said policy by a duly authorized Company representative shall constitute valid countersignature of this endorsement.

Dear Steve,

This letter will confirm that Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center is obligating itself to an increase from 15 to 30 percent for participating members of the Faculty of Columbia Hospital for Women.

As we discussed, this enhanced plan will require carefully monitoring. Dr. Nabil Asterbadi is presenting his plan for monitoring to the Performance Improvement Committee of the Board of Directors on Thursday, January 18. I will forward that plan to you as soon as it is improved. Also, individual members of the faculty will have to sign new agreements reflecting their willingness to adhere to the protocols. As agreements are signed, I will forward names to you. Also as we discussed, the timing of this could present a problem with the due date of the premium notices. Please let me know as soon as possible whether the one-month delay which we discussed is feasible.

This plan will be in effect from January through September 1996, at which time we will review performance with you.

Thanks, Steve. Have a good day.

Sincerely,

Susan M. Hansen
President and CEO

RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN
AMENDMENT A.

PURPOSE

This amendment adjusts the credit as described in Exhibit A. 7. Definitions. "Deposit Premium" in the Agreement between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") and Medical Center.

By signature, the Agreement is changed to read as follows:

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-two percent (62%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the remaining term of this Agreement from said forth date of January 1, 1996 and does not adjust the Agreement prior to this date.

ADDENDUM TO
RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Addendum amends the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") and Exhibit A, attached, made and entered into effective the first day of September 1,1993 by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("Medical Center").

This Addendum extends the Agreement and Exhibit A from September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1998. For purposes of Modifications, only language amended in the Agreement is noted below and for purposes of Plan calculations in the Agreement, a full Exhibit A, with modifications is included.

Modifications to the Agreement are amended as follows:

8. Medical Center hereby represents and warrants that it has made, and will continue to make financial security to NCRIC, in accordance with permitted statutory accounting practices as prescribed under the D.C. Insurance Code, or otherwise as acceptable by the D.C. Insurance Administration, for the contingent liabilities it has assumed hereunder.

Page 3, Item 10:

10. NCRIC and a Medical Center representative will meet semi-annually to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

b. Annually, Medical Center will provide NCRIC with financial security in that is in accordance with permitted statutory accounting practices as prescribed under the D.C. Insurance Code, or otherwise that is acceptable by the D.C. Insurance Administration, for the contingent liabilities Medical Center has assumed under this Agreement. This amount will be adjusted accordingly to the outstanding retrospective premium due.

11. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to any renewal, extension, reporting endorsement or new issuance of Insurance Policies with Plan Endorsements issued to Plan Participants by NCRIC during any Experience Period, and Medical Center waives notice of any and all such renewals, extension, reporting endorsements or new issuances. All renewals, extension, reporting endorsements or new issuances represent coverage contracts solely between NCRIC and physicians.

FIVE YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the Medical Center's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center first entered into on September 1, 1993 and added to by this plan through September 1, 1998 (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be five years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1998. The Plan shall consist of five separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 a.m. on	and Ending 12:01 a.m. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 33% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage for the last three periods ending 1996, 1997 and 1998 respectively. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return (if any), shall be solely that of Medical Center.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) =
{[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor}+Basic Premium.

16d-000320

Note. The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedules:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1995 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998
September 1, 1997 to September 1, 1998	September 1, 1999

Reconciliation calculations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall be not deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the end of an Experience Period, reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") Medical Center under the terms of the Plan will be presented to Medical Center. Any amounts due either to or from Medical Center shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated.

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Five (5) Year Subject Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$1,539,000 - $2,565,999	20.7%
$2,566,000 - $3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-seven (67%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the three year term of the Plan, unless both parties agree to a change and amend this Agreement hereunder.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and all reconciliations applicable thereto, unless NCRIC claims trending, as actuarially noted, indicates otherwise development at which time applicable development factors of NCRIC will apply.

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	55.0%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	65.0%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	80.0%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means the factor currently used by NCRIC at the time of the reconciliation. At the time of this Agreement 86.33% will apply.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the prorated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

16d-000322

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (i) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and fifteen percent (133%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (60%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insured were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall not exceed 85%, nor be less than 70% of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/ $3 million aggregate.

ADDENDUM B TO
RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This Addendum amends the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") and Exhibit A, attached, made and entered into effective the first day of September 1, 1993 and Addendum amending Agreement January 1, 1997, by and between National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company, 2170 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007 ("NCRIC" or the "Company"), and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037 ("CHWMC").

This Addendum extends the Agreement, Addendum and Exhibit A from September 1, 1998 to September 1, 1999. For purposes of Modifications, only language amended in the Agreement is noted below and for purposes of Plan calculations in the Agreement, a full Exhibit A, with modifications is included.

10. NCRIC, a Medical Center representative and a Physicians Claims Committee representative will meet quarterly to review the status of the operation of the Retrospective Rating Plan.

A. At such meetings, NCRIC will provide the following:

(I) for purposes of cross-reference and confirmation of participating or termination of participation in the Plan, a list of all Plan Participants participating in the Plan, together with their effective date of participation and termination date, as applicable;

(II) a loss run detailing the following information:

Date of Loss
Date Claim Made
Claimant's Name
Location of Claim (hospital, office)"
Brief Description of Claim
Status (Claim/Suit)
Total Indemnity Reserve (in the aggregate only)
Total Expense Reserve (in the aggregate only)

(III) a review of Medical Center risk management activities and risk management issues presented by the claims.

18. This Agreement shall not be assignable under any circumstances, whether in connection with the bankruptcy cases in which CHWMC are currently debtors or otherwise, by any party hereto without the express written consent of other parties, provided that the obligations of NCRIC hereunder shall be assigned to any admitted insurer which is a successor to NCRIC by reason of conversion, reorganization or merger approved by the District of Columbia Commissioner of Insurance. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CHWMC will assume and assign to the reorganized merged entity under its plan of reorganization, this Agreement. This agreement shall terminate (i) upon the conversion of the CHWMC case to Chapter 7 case, or (ii) if greater than 50% of Plan Participants resign their affiliation with CHWMC.

SIX YEAR RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN

The National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company Retrospective Rating Plan, hereinafter referred to as the "Plan," is available only to physicians insured by National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company ("NCRIC") who are participants in the CHWMC's Attending Faculty Program ("AFP") referenced in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between NCRIC and Medical Center first entered into on September 1, 1993 and subsequently amended January 1, 1997, and added to by this plan through September 1, 1999 (the "Agreement") and who have been issued a retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement by NCRIC. The AFP has been established for the primary purpose of implementing practice protocols relating to delivery of patient health care. Individual medical professional liability policies issued to Plan Participants are subject to retrospective rating in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Plan Term. The term of the Plan shall be six years, beginning on September 1, 1993 and ending on September 1, 1999. The Plan shall consist of six separate and distinct Experience Periods of:

Beginning 12:01 a.m. on	and Ending 12:01 a.m. on
September 1, 1993	September 1, 1994
September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998
September 1, 1998	September 1, 1999

2. Premiums Charged to Plan Participants. The premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim for Coverage A, "Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability" shall be discounted by 19%of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage in the first two years of the Plan and 33% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage in the remaining years of the Plan. Although that premium is subject to retrospective adjustment as set forth below, no Plan Participant shall be responsible for, or entitled to, any additional or return premium. The obligation to pay additional premium (if any), and the right to receive return (if any), shall be solely that of CHWMC.

3. Retrospective Rating Premium Formula. The retrospective premium for any Reconciliation will be calculated as follows:

Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premiums) = {[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor}+Basic Premium.

Note: The amount of Losses included in the calculation of the retrospective premium is subject to the Loss Limitation as hereinafter defined.

4. Combination of Experience Periods. Each Experience Period shall be reconciled individually utilizing applicable premium amounts, plan factors and the retrospective rating premium formula. As reconciliations become due for each Experience Period, the completed, individually reconciled retrospective premiums for applicable Experience Periods shall be combined to determine the total Retrospective Premium.

5. Reconciliations. Reconciliations to determine additional or return premium amounts which may be due will be performed according to the following schedules:

Experience Period	First Reconciliation Date
September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994	September 1, 1995
September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995	September 1, 1996
September 1, 1995 to September 1, 1996	September 1, 1997
September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1997	September 1, 1998
September 1, 1997 to September 1, 1998	September 1, 1999
September 1, 1998 to September 1, 1999	September 1, 2000

Reconciliation calculations will continue to be conducted at subsequent twelve month intervals until all losses reported during the applicable Experience Period are finally closed. A reported loss shall not be deemed finally closed until the earlier of payment to the claimant and execution of a release by the claimant, or the expiration of the statute of limitations for the claim. Any claim closed without payment shall be not deemed finally closed; any claim closed without payment shall be subject to reopening, and any payments made on behalf of such reopened claims shall be subject to, and part of, the reconciliation process.

Within sixty (60) days of the end of an Experience Period, reconciliations will be performed by NCRIC and a report containing the Plan calculations and a statement reflecting amounts which are due to ("return premium") or due from ("additional premium") CHWMC under the terms of the Plan will be presented to CHWMC. Any amounts due either to or from CHWMC shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement for same.

6. Determination of Additional or Return Premiums Due. The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the retrospective premium from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s).

7. Definitions. As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated:

"Basic Premium" means the combined amount of the administrative expense charge and the insurance charge due to NCRIC. The administrative expense charge shall be 14.04% of the Subject Premium; the insurance charge shall be calculated by multiplying the Subject Premium by the insurance charge factor set forth below:

Six (6) Year "Subject" Premium	Insurance Charge Factor
$1,539,000 - $2,565,999	20.7%
$2,566,000 - $3,591,999	13.2%
$ 3,592,000 - $ 4,617,999	8.4%
$ 4,618,000 - $ 5,643,999	6.9%
$ 5,644,000 - $ 6,669,999	5.7%
$ 6,670,000 - $ 7,696,999	5.0%
$ 7,697,000 - $ 8,722,999	4.3%
$ 8,723,000 - $ 9,748,999	3.9%
$ 9,749,000 - $10,774,999	3.5%
$10,775,000 - $11,800,999	3.1%
$11,801,000 - and over	2.8%

"Deposit Premium" means the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-seven (67%). This percentage shall remain unchanged for the one year term of the Plan, unless both parties agree to a change and amend this Agreement hereunder.

"Development Factor" means the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes of determining developed losses. These factors shall apply as follows and all reconciliations applicable thereto, unless NCRIC claims trending, as actuarially noted, indicates otherwise development at which time applicable development factors of NCRIC will apply.

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	55.0%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	65.0%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	80.0%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

"Discount Factor" means the factor currently used by NCRIC at the time of the reconciliation. At the time of this Agreement 86.33% will apply.

"Experience Period" shall mean the initial twelve (12) month period commencing September 1, 1993 and each subsequent twelve (12) month period during which the Plan is in effect. Should the Plan be terminated prior to the end of any Experience Period, the prorated period involved shall be deemed to be an Experience Period.

"Insurance Policy" means the Company's Physicians and Surgeons Modified Claims-Made Medical Professional Liability Coverage Policy, Revised January 1, 1993, or any replacement policy subsequently issued, and any endorsements thereto.

"Losses" means the obligations assumed by the Company on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in and applicable to Coverage A of Section I of the Insurance Policy.

"Loss Limitation" - for the purpose of application of the retrospective rating premium formula, losses shall be limited to Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses plus the lower of (I) $500,000 in indemnity, or (ii) the actual amount of the loss. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, for claim amounts in excess of $500,000, the amount Allocated Loss Adjustment Expenses shall be limited to a pro-rated amount equal to the ratio of $500,000 to the total indemnity amount applicable.

"Loss Reserves" means allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid.

"Maximum Premium" means the maximum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Maximum Premium shall be equal to one hundred and thirty three percent (133%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Minimum Premium" means the minimum retrospective premium which shall be due under the Plan. The Minimum Premium shall be equal to sixty percent (60%) of the Subject Premium amount.

"Paid Losses" means loss amounts paid by NCRIC on behalf of Plan Participants in accordance with Coverage A - Physicians and Surgeons Individual Professional Liability - Section I, Subsection 2 (Coverage Agreements) and Subsection 6 (Supplementary Payments) of the Insurance Policy. Paid losses are subject to Loss Limitation, defined above.

"Plan Participants" means those physicians insured by NCRIC pursuant to Insurance Policies endorsed with the retrospective rating plan premium adjustment endorsement and who are members of the AFP.

"Subject Premium" means the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician-insureds for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim under Section I, Subsection 2, Coverage A, of the Insurance Policy if said physician-insured were not Plan Participants. For the second and third Experience Periods, the Subject Premium shall not exceed 85%, nor be less than 70% of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million each claim/ $3 million aggregate.

ADDENDUM B-1999 TO
RETROSPECTIVE RATING PLAN AGREEMENT

This addendum amends the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Agreement") and Exhibit A, made and entered into effective the first day of September 1, 1993 and Addendums of January 1, 1997 and September 1, 1998, by and between NCRIC, Inc. (formerly National Capital Reciprocal Insurance Company), 1115 30th Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20007 and Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, 2425 L Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

This Addendum extends the Agreement, and Exhibit A, made and entered into effective the first day of September 1, 1993, and Addendums of January 1, 1997 and of September 1, 1998 for the period of September 1, 1999 to September 1, 2000. For purposes of modifications a full Exhibit A noting the addition of this new year to paragraphs 2 (Plan Term) and paragraph 5, (Reconciliations) is attached and by signature below such amended changes are accepted.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO COUNTER-DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS COUNTERCLAIMS, MOTION FOR A MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT, AND MOTION TO STRIKE

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Medical Center"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esq., Steven F, Benz, Esq., Joseph K. Leahy, Esq., and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes Plaintiff /Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc.'s ("NCRIC") Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims, Motion for a More Definite Statement of Allegations of Fraud and Misrepresentation and Motion to Strike Insufficient Defense. Medical Center asks this Court to deny NCRIC's motion as moot.

Factual Background

NCRIC filed a civil complaint on October 3, 2000. Medical Center answered and filed counterclaims on November 7, 2000. NCRIC filed three motions on December 11, 2000. By a consent motion, the time for Medical Center to file its opposition was extended to January 8, 2001. On January 3, 2001, by consent of the parties, NCRIC filed an Amended Complaint and Medical Center filed an Amended Answer and Counterclaims.[1] On a January 8, 2001, counsel for Medical Center informed counsel for NCRIC that pending motions directed to the pleadings had been mooted by the amended pleadings. In response, counsel for NCRIC stated that its three pending motions would be renewed and directed to the amended Answer and Counterclaims.

Argument

Amended pleadings supercede the original pleadings and render them of no legal effect. El-Hadad v. Embassy of United Arab Emirates, 69 F. Supp.2d 69, 72 n.1 (D.D.C. 1999), rev'd in part on other grounds, 216 F.3d 29, 342 U.S. App. D.C. 138 (D.C.Cir. 2000); Dortch v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Auth., 45 F. Supp 2d 5, 7 n.1 (D.D. C. 1999); accord Austin v. Ford Models, Inc., 149 F.3d 148, 155 (2d Cir. 1998); Duda v. Board of Educ., 133 F.3d 1054, 1057 (7th Cir. 1998); Murray v. Archambo, 132 F.3d 609, 612 (10th Cir. 1998); King v. Dogan, 31 F.3d 344, 346 (5th Cir. 1994); see also 61A Am. Jur. 2d Pleading § 754 (1999); 61B Am. Jur. 2d Pleading § 838 (1999). Ordinarily, any pending motion to dismiss the original pleading will be denied as moot. See, e.g., O'Hayre v. Board of Educ., 109 F. Supp.2d 1284, 1287 (D. Colo. 2000); Garcia v. Akwesasne Housing Auth., 105 F.Supp.2d 12, 14 (N.D.N.Y. 2000); Rosenblatt v. Ernst & Young Intern., Ltd., 87 F.Supp.2d 1048, 1055 (S.D. Cal. 2000); Short v. Ultramar Diamond Shamrock, 46 F. Supp.2d 1199, 1199 (D. Kan. 1999). This rule applies to an amended answer and counterclaims, as to any other pleading. See, e.g., Riad v. 520 South Michigan Ave. Assocs. Ltd., 78 F. Supp.2d 748, 754 n.1 (N.D.Ill. 1999); Central Ill. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Industrial Oil Tank & Line Cleaning Serv., 730 F. Supp. 1498, 1502 (W.D. Mo. 1990).

[1] The amended pleadings were initially filed together with a joint Praecipe on January 3, 2001. Each amended pleading was filed again on January 5, 2001, in order that the $20.00 feel for filing counterclaims could be paid. The exact effective filing date of the amended pleadings is irrelevant for the purposes of NCRIC's motion.

Conclusion

Medical Center therefore requests that NCRIC's motions be denied as moot.

REPLY OF PLAINTIFF TO AMENDED COUNTERCLAIMS 1 AND 2 OF DEFENDANT

NCRIC, INC. ("NCRIC"), counterdefendant, by counsel, replies to the counterclaims of Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., counterplaintiff, as follows:

FIRST DEFENSE

The counterclaims fail to state claims against NCRIC upon which relief may be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE

For answers to the specific allegations of the counterclaims:

1. The allegations of paragraph 10 constitute the legal assertions of defendant to factual allegations of NCRIC's complaint and do not require a response.

2. NCRIC admits the factual allegation that defendant has been providing health care services in the District of Columbia, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 11.

3. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 12, except it states that it provides professional liability insurance to physicians in jurisdictions in addition to the District of Columbia.

4. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraphs 13, 26, 55, 77, 84-85, and 166.

5. NCRIC admits it provided professional liability insurance to certain physicians at defendant, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 14.

6. NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of paragraphs 15-16, 19, 44-45, 56, 63, 65-66, 74, 82, 87, 90-91, 96-100, 124, and 130.

7. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraphs 17-18, 20, 22-24, 30, 35-43, 48-51, 53-54, 58, 62, 64, 68, 70-73, 78, 83, 88-89, 92-95, 102-103, 106-110, 113-117, 119-122, 125-128, 131-134, 137-138, 140-146, 148-153, 155-158, 160-164, and 167-168.

8. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 21 insofar at it refers to physicians associated with the defendant, but NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining factual allegations of paragraph 21.

9. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 25, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 25.

10. The allegations of paragraph 27 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response.

11. The allegations of paragraph 28 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response. To the extent any response is necessary, NCRIC refers to and relies on the terms of the written contract between the parties and denies the allegations to the extent they deviate or misstate those terms. NCRIC denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 28.

12. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 29, except it admits the factual allegations of subpart (1).

13. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations for "all reconciliations of the Plan," but denies each and every remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 31.

14. The allegations of paragraphs 32-33 constitute the defendant's characterization of the terms and obligations of the contract between the parties and are therefore legal conclusions which do not require a response. To the extent any response is necessary, NCRIC refers to and relies on the terms of the written contract between the parties and denies the allegations to the extent they deviate or misstate those terms.

15. NCRIC denies the material factual allegation "pay any return premium, and the investment return thereon," but admits the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 34 regarding time deadlines.

16. NCRIC admits each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 46, except it denies each and every material factual allegation of the fifth and sixth sentences of paragraph 46.

17. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 47, except it denies it was to receive "less deposit premium."

18. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first and third sentences of paragraph 52, except that it denies the minimum premium was to apply to all years of the Plan. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of the second sentence of paragraph 52.

19. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 57, except it is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 57.

20. NCRIC is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of paragraph 59, except it denies each and every material factual allegation of the second sentence of paragraph 59.

21. NCRIC admits defendant paid $1 million in four (4) installments between January and March, 1998, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 60.

22. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraph 61 except it denies the attached exhibit accurately reflects the agreement of the parties.

23. NCRIC admits it became aware of the MIIX Proposal about August 1998, but is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining material factual allegations of paragraph 67.

24. NCRIC admits attendance at a meeting in August, 1998, with physicians from defendant, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 69.

25. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first and second sentences of paragraph 75, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 75 and denies the attached exhibit accurately reflects the agreement of the parties.

26. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 76. NCRIC it is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 76.

27. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 79. NCRIC admits the renewal in September, 1999, but denies the causal relationship between allegations of the first and second sentences of paragraph 79. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the last sentence of paragraph 79.

28. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the factual allegations of paragraph 80.

29. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of the first sentence of paragraph 81, before the final adjective clause. NCRIC is without information or knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material factual allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 81.

30. NCRIC admits it notified defendant of cancellation of the policy effective September 1, 2000, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 86.

31. NCRIC denies each and every material factual allegation of paragraph 101, except it admits it informed defendant on September 1, 2000 that an additional premium of $1,285,525 was due.

32. For its answer to paragraphs 104, 111, 118, 123, 129, 135, 139, 147, 154, 159 and 165, NCRIC incorporates herein by reference its replies to the specific paragraphs referred in each of the foregoing paragraphs mentioned in this sentence.

33. NCRIC admits the material factual allegations of paragraphs 105 and 112, except it denies that the contract between plaintiff and defendant is as characterized by defendant previously in the counterclaims.

34. NCRIC admits it had contractual duties to defendant, but denies each and every remaining material factual allegation of paragraph 136.

THIRD DEFENSE

Defendant is estopped or, in the alternative, has waived its counterclaims by reason of its actions, including an accord and satisfaction, renegotiation of its contract, agreement to new and modified contract terms, and similar actions.

FOURTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reasons of its failure to mitigate its damages.

FIFTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reason of its unclean hands.

SIXTH DEFENSE

Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reason of its own fraud and illegal conduct.

SUPPLEMENTAL MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS COUNTERCLAIM COUNTS 4 AND 5

In addition to any other legal deficiencies, Counts 4 and 5 are repetitive and duplicative of each other if Count 4 does not allege a interference with contract theory. Defendant apparently attempts a metaphysical differentiation between interference with "current"business relationships and "future "business relationships. But each of these falls within the concept of expectancies because the damage allegedly incurred is for patients which Hospital has not yet had referred to it by doctors, but which it "expects" to have referred. The gravamen of the cause of action is not current or past patients, but future ones. Therefore, there is no difference between so-called interference with current versus future non-contractual relationships. Indeed, defendant itself alleges them to be expectancies, relationships and damages derived from future events which have not yet occurred or been suffered. Expectancies are, by definition, all in the future and relate to future contracts. Consequently, if Counts 4 and 5 refer to current and future expectancies, they allege the same cause of action and one or the other must be dismissed.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO NCRIC'S MOTION FOR MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT AND MOTION TO STRIKE

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Hospital"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esq., Steven F. Benz, Esq., Joseph K. Leahy, Esq., and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc.'s ("NCRIC") Motion for More Definite Statement of Allegations of Fraud and Misrepresentations and Motion to Strike Insufficient Defense ["Motion"] and sets forth the following points and authorities.

ARGUMENT

I. NCRIC Cannot Meet the High Standard for Obtaining a More Definite Statement

NCRIC demands a more definite statement of Columbia's counterclaims, pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules 12(e) and 9(b). This type of motion is highly disfavored. See 5A Charles A. Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1377, at 510-11 (Supp. 2000); see, e.g., Blizzard v. Dalton, 876 F. Supp. 95, 100 (E.D. Va. 1995). "Motions for a more definite statement should only be granted if the [opposing party] cannot frame a response to the [pleading]." Blizzard, 876 F. Supp. at 100.

In the present case, no more definite statement is required. Columbia's pleading has far surpassed the requirement of the rules, a short and plain statement showing it is entitled to relief. See D.C. Sup. Ct. R. 8. Indeed, Columbia offers a careful, detailed presentation of NCRIC's wrongdoing, and carefully delineates each claim being stated.

NCRIC has two complaints about the specificity of Columbia's pleading. First, it notes that Columbia failed to not state an amount of compensatory or punitive damages. Motion at 1. However, NCRIC offers no legal authority, neither case law nor rules, in support of its position. Plus, as Columbia alleged in its pleading, much of the factual information regarding compensatory damages still remains in NCRIC's possession and will be learned only through discovery.

Second, NCRIC complains that it "cannot file an appropriate response [to Columbia's pleading] . . . until it knows whether the claim is for punitive damages for every Count." Id. Here, NCRIC's argument is flatly contradicted by its own actions. In separate papers, NCRIC recently moved to dismiss Columbia's prayer for punitive damages, assuming that Columbia had pleaded punitive damages with regard to each and every complaint. Apparently, NCRIC either found Columbia's pleading to be adequate or was able to remedy any perceived confusion by making said assumption. Accordingly, this motion must be denied. See Blizzard, 876 F. Supp. at 95 (concluding, when the movant filed a separate motion in response to the pleading, that the pleading met the specificity requirement set by the rules).

Finally, Columbia notes that its request for punitive damages is not unclear. The pleading requests "punitive damages as a result of NCRIC's malfeasance, fraud and bad faith." Here, Columbia has requested punitive damages for each and every count (but only for each such count) that is based, at least in part, on allegations to the effect of "malfeasance, fraud and bad faith."

II. NCRIC Has Not Shown Any Prejudice That Requires That the Defense Be Struck

NCRIC also moves to strike Columbia's Tenth Defense. "Motions to strike a defense as insufficient are not favored by the courts because of their dilatory character. Thus, even when technically appropriate and well-founded, they often are not granted in the absence of a showing of prejudice to the moving party." 5A Wright & Miller, supra, § 1381, at 1. A showing of prejudice, among other things, is required for a motion to strike to be successful.

Here, NCRIC offers no support for its claim that Columbia has stated an insufficient defense. Here, Columbia has simply stated its rights, pursuant Superior Court Rule 15. Further, any defenses may be pleaded in a responsive pleading, not simply affirmative ones.

Moreover, NCRIC has made no showing of prejudice. Indeed, NCRIC essentially admits that it will suffer no prejudice from the existence of this defense, even if the defense is insufficient, because Columbia has simply stated its rights under the Rules. See Motion at 2 (explaining that Columbia has available a "procedure provided by SCR 15 to address later supplementation and amendment of its answer by following the procedure of the Rule").

CONCLUSION

Accordingly, Columbia respectfully requests that this Court deny both NCRIC's motion to strike and its motion for a more definite statement, each in its entirety.

SUPPLEMENTAL MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO DISMISS COUNTERCLAIMS

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esq., Steven F. Benz, Esq., Joseph K. Leahy, Esq., and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc.'s ("NCRIC") Motion To Dismiss Counterclaims. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Factual Background

At the center of this case is a long-term relationship between NCRIC, an insurance company, and Columbia, a non-profit hospital for women. The parties entered into an agreement ("Retro Plan") for the benefit of third parties, Columbia's physicians ("Attending Faculty"). Pursuant to the Retro Plan, NCRIC and Columbia were supposed to split up the risk of lowering the physicians' malpractice insurance premiums. NCRIC, the party with superior knowledge and skill regarding all things insurance, wrote the Retro Plan and agreed to serve as its bookkeeper and administrator. Due to NCRIC's superior knowledge and skill, and because NCRIC refused to allow Columbia to audit its books, Columbia placed its trust in NCRIC to administer the Retro Plan in Columbia's best interest. NCRIC purported to act in accordance with that trust, but proceeded to the advantage Columbia's trust by incorrectly calculating the money that Columbia owed it. Eventually Columbia determined that the Retro Plan was too expensive, and opted out; NCRIC retaliated by encouraging the Attending Faculty to leave Columbia. NCRIC then sued Columbia, in bad faith, for amounts that it knew were not due under the Retro Plan. Columbia countersued, and NCRIC moved to dismiss with the present motion.

Preliminary Statement

This is not simply a suit for breach of contract, as NCRIC would have the Court believe. While NCRIC's claim is contractual, Columbia's counterclaims are based in tort and contract. In addition to pleading NCRIC's failure comply with the terms of the contract, Columbia alleges that NCRIC's perfidious self-dealing and misconduct in administering the plan, independent of its breach of contract, resulted in harm to Columbia, which had placed trust and reliance in NCRIC.

As a result of NCRIC's independent duties to administer the Retro Plan on behalf of Columbia, NCRIC had a fiduciary to Columbia. Accordingly, NCRIC's motion to dismiss Count Three (Breach of Fiduciary Duty) for lack of such an obligation should be denied. (Point I, infra). NCRIC's motion to dismiss Count Six (Negligence) should also be denied. Columbia has properly pled a claim for negligence, in light of NCRIC's negligence in administering the Retro Plan. (Point III, infra).

Columbia has also properly pled Count Seven (Fraud) based on intentionally false statements by NCRIC to Columbia related to performance of its duties under the Retro Plan.

(Point IV, infra). NCRIC's statements of fact to the Attending Faculty, made with wrongful intent, harmed Columbia's reputation and meet the elements for a claim for defamation. (Point II.B, infra). These false statements were neither privileged nor opinions. (Point VI, infra).

NCRIC's motion to dismiss Columbia's remaining counts is similarly defective. NCRIC erroneously characterizes Columbia's claims for tortious interference with business relations as claims for interference with contract. (Point II.A, infra). NCRIC's arguments that Count Eight (Misrepresentation) and Ten (Injurious Falsehood) are barred by the statute of limitations are meritless because the former is not factually intertwined with the defamation claim, and because the interest protected by both torts is sufficiently different from the interest protected by defamation that a different limitations period must apply. (Point V.B &A, infra).

Finally, Columbia has properly asked for punitive damages in its prayer for relief (Point VII, infra) and for attorneys' fees (Point VIII, infra), based upon NCRIC's perfidious and contumacious conduct. For the foregoing reasons, the Court should deny NCRIC's motion.

ARGUMENT

Standard of Review

NCRIC moves to dismiss the counterclaims for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Such motions are "generally viewed with disfavor and rarely granted." Stewart v. District of Columbia Armory Bd., 863 F.2d 1013, 1017 (D.C. Cir. 1988) (quoting Doe v. United States, 753 F.2d 1092, 1102 (D.C. Cir. 1985)). A motion to dismiss may be granted "only if it is clear that no relief could be granted under any set of facts that could be proved consistent with the allegations." Hishon v. King & Spalding, 467 U.S. 69, 73 (1984) (emphasis added).

On a motion to dismiss, the Court must operate "within the factual universe described by" the pleader. Al-Ibrahim v. Edde, 897 F. Supp. 620, 622 (D.D.C. 1995). The allegations "must be taken as true and construed in the light most favorable to the [pleader] and, if these allegations are sufficient, the case must not be dismissed even if the court doubts that the [pleader] will ultimately prevail." Fingerhut v. Children's Nat'l. Med. Ctr., 738 A.2d 799, 803 (D.C. 1999).

I. Count Three States a Claim for Breach of Fiduciary Duty Due to NCRIC's Superior Skill and Knowledge, and Columbia's Long-standing Trust in NCRIC

A claim for breach of fiduciary duty has two elements: (1) existence of a fiduciary duty and (2) breach of that duty.[1] See Shapiro, Lifschitz & Schram, P.C. v. Hazard, 24 F. Supp. 2d 66, 75 (D.D.C. 1998). NCRIC does not dispute that Columbia has satisfied the second element.[2] NCRIC argues simply "there is no fiduciary relationship between the parties." Motion at 3. This argument, for which NCRIC offers no authority on point, is without merit.

Contrary to NCRIC's assertion, the fiduciary duty NCRIC owed to Columbia was not "of undefined origin," id. at 3. Rather, Columbia has pleaded a general fiduciary duty under the common law. A fiduciary relationship exists whenever "there is a confidence reposed on one side and the resulting superiority and influence on the other." Cafritz v. Corporation Audit Co., 60 F. Supp. 627, 631 (D.D.C. 1945) aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 156 F.2d 839 (D.C. Cir. 1946); accord Greenspan v. Allstate Ins. Co., 937 F. Supp. 288, 294-95 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) ("A fiduciary relationship arises when one has reposed trust or confidence in the integrity or fidelity of another

[1] Two additional elements, (3) proximate cause and (4) actual loss or damage must be proved in some cases where compensatory damages are sought. See Shapiro, Lifschitz, 24 F. Supp. 2d at 75. Columbia has alleged facts which satisfy these two elements. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 42, 50, 54, 72, 74.

[2] Columbia has alleged numerous instances of misconduct, malfeasance or bad faith by NCRIC, see, e.g., Counterclaims ¶¶ 41, 53, 58, 69, 70, each of which would constitute a breach of fiduciary duty.

16d-000362

who thereby gains influence or assumes control and responsibility."). Accordingly, a fiduciary is one who "is under a duty to act for . . . the benefit of another upon matters within the scope of the relation." Church of Scientology, Int'l. v. Eli Lilly & Co., 848 F. Supp. 1018, 1028 (D.D.C. 1994) (quoting Restatement of Torts (Second) § 874 cmt. a (1977)) .

Here, Columbia pleaded the existence of a fiduciary duty as follows:

> a fiduciary relationship existed between NCRIC and [Columbia] by virtue of (a) NCRIC's responsibility, stated in the Plan, to perform all bookkeeping on behalf of [Columbia] under the Plan; (b) [Columbia's] trust and reliance on NCRIC to administer the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware; (c) [Columbia's] reliance on NCRIC to properly and honestly perform reconciliations and accurately calculate Additional or Return Premium, of which NCRIC was fully aware; and (d) [Columbia's] dependence on NCRIC for certain information necessary to perform retro calculations under the Plan, of which NCRIC was fully aware.

Counterclaims ¶ 119. Columbia also alleged that NCRIC accepted and benefitted from Columbia's trust, and purported to act in accord with it. See, e.g., ¶¶ 42, 43, 49, 50, 53, 54, 119; ¶ 118 (incorporating all other factual allegations into claim). Hence, Columbia has alleged that confidence was "reposed [by Columbia] and the resulting superiority and influence [of NCRIC]," thereby establishing a fiduciary relationship. See Cafritz, 60 F. Supp. at 631; Church of Scientology, 848 F. Supp. at 1028.

Despite Columbia's careful pleading, NCRIC argues, without any support, that Columbia failed to plead a fiduciary duty. First, NCRIC suggests that Columbia was required to allege a "traditional . . . fiduciary relationship" or some "other identified legal relationship of trust." Motion at 3-4. NCRIC offers no support for this claim, nor does the law offer any.[3]

---

[3] The cases NCRIC cites as examples of "traditional . . . fiduciary duties," while colorful, offer no suggestion that the only fiduciary duties are those NCRIC lists. Moreover, there is no requirement that the fiduciary have gained its "superior authoritative position" because of the incompetence or disability of one party. Motion at 4. All that is required is for one party to have superior knowledge or skill compared to the other.

The law does not recognize solely "traditional" fiduciary duties. To the contrary, courts historically have "refrained from defining . . . fiduciary relations in such a manner that other and perhaps new instances might be excluded," in order to allow the fiduciary concept to extend "to every possible case in which a fiduciary relation exists as a fact." Cafritz, 60 F. Supp. at 631; see also Church of Scientology, 848 F. Supp. at 1028 (a fiduciary relationship exists "in all cases in which influence has been acquired and betrayed," including both "technical fiduciary relations" and "informal relations" (internal quotations omitted)). Fiduciary duties are not limited to those previously "identified" by other cases, either. See, e.g., Church of Scientology, 848 F. Supp. at 1028 (holding that fiduciary duty may exist where the court knew of no case that had recognized fiduciary duty in that situation). Rather, whether a fiduciary duty exists depends entirely on the facts of the particular case. See id. (explaining that the existence of a fiduciary duty "is a fact-intensive question, involving a searching inquiry into the nature of the relationship, the promises made, the type of services or advice given and the legitimate expectations of the parties").

Yet, the fiduciary duty here is not exotic or even unusual. Columbia has alleged that NCRIC undertook to provide a yearly accounting (a "reconciliation") of the monies owed under the plan for Columbia's benefit; that Columbia did not have access to the data necessary to check NCRIC's accounting; that Columbia trusted NCRIC's accounting over a period of about 7 years; and that as a result of NCRIC's miscalculations, NCRIC held funds that belonged to Columbia. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 31-43, 49-50. On these facts, the situation at hand is similar to one "traditional" fiduciary relationship that NCRIC fails to mention: accountant/client. See, e.g., Cafritz, 60 F. Supp. at 631 (holding that an accountant owed its client a fiduciary duty).

NCRIC insists, however, that Columbia's claims were merely "couched" as a breach of fiduciary duty. Motion at 4. NCRIC argues that the parties' relationship was governed by the Retro Plan, and that all its duties flowed from the Plan, and therefore, Columbia's only claim is for breach of the Plan. Here, NCRIC takes liberties with the facts[4] and misapprehends the law.

First, there is no requirement, as NCRIC asserts, that a fiduciary duty must be entirely separable from a contractual duty. Rather, it is well established that a fiduciary duty can arise out a contract; that a breach of the contract alone can constitute a breach of the fiduciary duty; and that the contractual and fiduciary duties may be overlapping. See, e.g., GLM Corp. v. Klein, 665 F. Supp. 283, 286 (S.D.N.Y. 1987). Simply put, so long as a relationship of trust and confidence has been established, a breach of a contractual term may amount to a breach of fiduciary duty. See, e.g., Lavin v. Kaufman, Greenhut, Lebowitz & Forman, 640 N.Y.S.2d 57, 58 (N.Y. App. Div. 1996); Mandelblatt v. Devon Stores, 132 A.D.2d 162, 167-68 (N.Y. App. Div. 1987).[5]

Moreover, the facts show that the duty NCRIC owed Columbia was separate from NCRIC's contractual duties. For instance, in addition to NCRIC's contractual bookkeeping duty,

[4] NCRIC skews the facts by stating that the Retro Plan was arms-length transaction between equals. See Motion at 4, 5. The counterclaims offer no support for this proposition. In fact, since all favorable inferences must be drawn on behalf of Columbia, the proper inference is that the parties were far from equals. Cf., e.g., Counterclaims ¶¶ 14-28 (NCRIC proposed and drafted the Retro Plan, which employed a complicated formula devised by NCRIC; NCRIC pressured Columbia to accept the Plan; NCRIC provided all the data for the Plan; Columbia had no access to the data; NCRIC performed all the bookkeeping; NCRIC was a insurance company, while Columbia was a struggling hospital).

[5] NCRIC cites exactly one case, and it is not on point. See Motion at 4 (citing Goodman v. Woods, 259 A.2d 594 (D.C. 1969)). In Goodman, defendant, a broker, represented one party to a real estate transaction and explicitly disclaimed liability or agency to plaintiff, the other party. Also, there was no long-term relationship of trust between the broker and the plaintiff. For these reasons, the Goodman court held that there was no fiduciary duty between the broker, which could only represent one party to a transaction, and the plaintiff. See 259 A.2d at 596. Here, the facts are starkly different: NCRIC and Columbia were jointly engaged in a contract to benefit the Attending Faculty, and NCRIC did not explicitly exclaim any duty to Columbia. Further, NCRIC undertook to perform a service that required special skills and information, and NCRIC knew that Columbia trusted it to perform that job accurately and in good faith.

NCRIC represented that it would perform reconciliations correctly. See Counterclaims ¶ 29. This duty is not explicitly mentioned in the Retro Plan, which does not explicitly govern the substance of NCRIC's bookkeeping duty (other than the normal obligation of good faith). In addition, the counterclaims allude to NCRIC's duties to keep Columbia informed and to act in Columbia's best interest. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 31, 34-35. These duties, too, do not arise from the Retro Plan text, but rather, from the combination of (1) the duties NCRIC assumed under the plan and (2) the trust and confidence that Columbia placed in NCRIC and NCRIC acted upon.[6]

By pleading a long-term relationship of trust, and NCRIC's superior knowledge and skill, Columbia alleged a fiduciary relationship. Thus, NCRIC owed Columbia a separate duty.

II. Counts Four and Five State Two Independent Theories of Recovery for Tortious Interference With Business Relations, and Have Adequately Alleged the Wrongful Intent Element Necessary to Prove Tortious Interference

The elements of the tort of interference with business relations[7] are:

> (1) the existence of a valid business relationship or expectancy, (2) knowledge of the relationship or expectancy on the part of the interferer, (3) intentional interference inducing or causing a breach or termination of the relationship or expectancy, and (4) resultant damage.

Bennett Enters. v. Domino's Pizza Inc., 45 F.3d 493, 499 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (emphasis added) (citing, inter alia, Alfred A. Altimont, Inc. v. Chatelain, Samperton & Nolan, 374 A.2d 284 (D.C.

[6] In this respect, NCRIC's bookkeeping duty is like the obligations that a professional (e.g., accountant), owes his clients. Though a contract may govern the relationship, duties exist beyond those stated in the contract. Of course, the contract itself need not say that the relationship is of a fiduciary nature.

[7] This tort is known by a variety of names, including: "interference with economic advantage" and "interference with prospective advantage," "interference with prospective business relations."

1977)).[8] Columbia pleaded all of these elements, see Counterclaims at 25-26 (tortious interference counts), and they are well-supported by the underlying allegations, see, e.g., id. ¶¶ 65, 67, 69-71. NCRIC challenges Columbia's claim(s) on two grounds.[9]

A. Neither Count Four nor Five Pleads Interference with Contract; No Contract Need Exist for Interference with Business Relations

NCRIC argues that count four "fails to allege an essential element of . . . interference with contract: existence of a contract between [Columbia] and the [Attending Faculty]." Motion at 6. The problem with this argument is that Columbia did not plead "interference with contract."

Counterclaims four and five were styled and pleaded as tortious interference with business relations, not interference with contract. See Counterclaims at 25 ("COUNT FOUR Tortious Interference with Business Relations"); id. at 26 ("COUNT FIVE Tortious Interference with Prospective Business Relations"). These are two separate torts in the District of Columbia, with different elements. See, e.g., Paul v. Howard Univ., 754 A.2d 297, 308-09 (D.C. 2000); Bennett, 45 F.3d at 499; Kaempfer v. Brown, 109 B.R. 527, 530, 532 (D.D.C. 1990). A key difference between these two interference torts is that the former does not require proof of an existing contract. All that is required for interference with business relations (however identified) is the "existence of a valid business relationship or expectancy." Bennett, 45 F.3d at 499; Sheppard, 59 F. Supp. 2d at 33-34; Transamerica Leasing, Inc., 21 F. Supp. 2d at 55; Bell, 966 F. Supp. at 31;

[8] The elements of this claim are well settled. See, e.g., Okusami v. Psychiatric Inst. of Washington, Inc., 959 F.2d 1062, 1066 (D.C. Cir. 1992); Sheppard v. Dickstein, Shapiro, Morin & Oshinsky, 59 F. Supp. 2d 27, 33-34 (D.D.C. 1999); Bell v. Ivory, 966 F. Supp. 23, 31 (D.D.C. 1997); aff'd, No. 97-7116, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 10626 (D.C. Cir. May 13, 1998)); Canady v. Providence Hosp., 942 F. Supp. 11, 18 (D.D.C. 1996).

[9] It is not clear whether NCRIC moves to dismiss both counterclaims four and five. The heading to NCRIC's argument appears to challenge both counterclaims. However, NCRIC's later argues that "one count or the other should be dismissed." Supplemental Memorandum in Support of Motion to Dismiss Counterclaim Counts 4 and 5 ["Supplemental Memorandum"] at 2; see also Motion, at 6 n.2.

Canady, 942 F. Supp. at 18; Genetic Sys. Corp. v. Abbott Labs., 691 F. Supp. 407, 422-23 (D.D.C. 1988); accord Kaempfer, 109 B.R. at 532. This is the black-letter law. See Restatement (Second) of Torts § 766B (1977); see, e.g., Democratic State Comm. v. Bebchick, 706 A.2d 569, 573 (D.C. 1998); Carr v. Brown, 395 A.2d 79, 84 (D.C. 1978); International City Mgmt. Assoc. Ret. Corp. v. Watkins, 726 F. Supp. 1, 6 (D.D.C. 1989). Indeed, NCRIC, see Motion at 6, and the only cases it cites, see Paul, 754 A.2d at 308-09; Bennett, 45 F.3d at 499, all recognize the existence of two separate torts.[10]

Despite the clear intent of Columbia's pleading, NCRIC argues that Columbia did not mean what it plead. Here, NCRIC argues that either counterclaim four or five must be dismissed, because one or the other must be an inadequate claim for interference with contract, or else the claims would be redundant. See Supplemental Memorandum at 2. NCRIC offers no legal support for this claim, and there is none. Columbia's counterclaims four and five allege two different theories -- interference with existing "business relations" and with future "reasonable business expectanc[ies]" -- for recovery under the same tort. There is nothing improper about this when the elements of the tort explicitly offer alternative theories of relief, as tortious interference with business relations does, see Bennett, 45 F.3d at 499 (requiring existence of "valid business relationship" or "expectancy").

B. Counts Four and Five Plead the Necessary Level of Intent for Interference

[10] NCRIC's assertion that interference with "business relations" has been deemed to mean interference with "contract," Motion at 6 n.2, should be rejected, as it is entirely unsupported in NCRIC's memoranda. Further, the cases seem to suggest the opposite. See, e.g., Mercer Mgmt. Consulting, Inc. v. Wilde, 920 F. Supp. 219, ___ (D.D.C. 1996) (describing elements of interference with "business relationship," not including contract); Alfred A. Altimont, Inc. v. Chatelain, Samperton & Nolan, 374 A.2d 284, 289 (D.C. 1977) (equating interference with business expectancies and business relations). Even if another name were more common, Columbia's clear intent to plead two, non-contractual interference torts is sufficiently clear to withstand NCRIC's challenge.

Next, NCRIC argues that Columbia has not pleaded the appropriate level of intent required to establish tortious interference. See Motion at 7. This argument ignores the facts pleaded in the complaint and fails to allow Columbia all permissible inferences.

NCRIC argues that the intent required for interference "must be egregious involving libel, slander, physical coercion, fraud, misrepresentation or disparagement." Motion at 7 (citing Genetic Systems, 691 F. Supp at 422 (explaining that the must "egregious, for example, it must involve libel, slander, physical coercion, fraud, misrepresentation, or disparagement") (emphasis added). Here, by selective deletion, NCRIC mischaracterizes the law to suggest that only six categories of conduct satisfy the intent for tortious interference. NCRIC then argues that none of these categories apply in this case. NCRIC is wrong about the law: any type of malicious intent or egregious behavior will do. See Sheppard, 59 F. Supp. 2d at 34 (explaining that, under Genetic Systems, the requisite intent for tortious interference is met by "egregious conduct, such as libel, slander, physical coercion, and fraud") (emphasis added). NCRIC also is wrong on the facts, because Columbia pleaded malicious intent and egregious conduct by NCRIC.

When Columbia is given all permissible inferences, its pleadings alleges that: NCRIC acted with malicious intent when it was responsible for false statements about Columbia, its board of directors, and its business with another insurer, see Counterclaims ¶¶ 69-70; and when NCRIC was responsible for false statements about Columbia's ambulatory clinic. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 86-92. NCRIC's conduct was egregious when it retaliated against Columbia, first by canceling the Medical Entity insurance policy and then by refusing to cover CPG physicians at the ambulatory clinic under their individual policies. NCRIC also acted egregiously by fraudulently performing reconciliations, then bringing a lawsuit against Columbia in bad faith -- knowing

Columbia was destitute and owed nothing. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 101-03. Thus, NCRIC's analysis regarding whether certain statements were defamatory is irrelevant.[11]

III. Count Six States a Claim for Negligence by Alleging the Existence of an Independent Duty of Care, Separate and Apart From Performance of the Contract

The existence of a contract does not preclude the existence of concurrent, independent duties based upon and interwoven with those flowing from the contract. Negligent performance of a contract may give rise to a claim sounding in tort as well as one for breach of contract. See William Prosser, The Law of Torts, § 92 (4th ed. 1971); Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 323, 324A (1965); Ajax Hardware Mfg. Corp. v. Industrial Plants Corp., 569 F.2d 181, 185 (2d Cir. 1977). "Where a person contracts to do certain work, he is charged with the common law duty of exercising reasonable care and skill in the performance of the work required to be done by the contract. It is the breach of the duty imposed by law and not of the contract obligation which constitutes the tort." William Wrigley Jr. Co. v. Waters, 890 F.2d 594, 602 (2nd Cir. 1989). Such duties, if breached, give rise to claims that are concurrent to, and independent of, any contract claim, even if the same conduct constituted a breach of both duties. See, e.g., Ramsey Air Meds, L.L.C. v. Cutter Aviation, Inc., 6 P.3d, 315, 319-20 (Ariz. Ct. App. 2000).

Like any other entity that contracts to perform services, NCRIC had a duty of due care in performing as Columbia's bookkeeper, and as administrator of the Retro Plan on Columbia's behalf. NCRIC breached this duty to Columbia by failing to show due care when calculating loss

[11] NCRIC's analysis of these statements is unconvincing: it interprets the statements in its own favor, rather than giving all permissible inferences to Columbia. Yet, for example, statements about Columbia's board could reflect on Columbia. Morever, NCRIC apparently assumes that the statements must defame Columbia to be actionable as tortious interference. But, for example, NCRIC's slanderous statements about the MIIX could have interfered with Columbia's business relationship with MIIX or with the Attending Faculty. Finally, NCRIC's statements are not opinions or privileged. See also infra Point VI.

reserves, by performing reconciliations improperly, and by miscalculating premiums. Each of these failures damaged Columbia. See Counterclaims at 26; see also ¶¶ 38-42. Accordingly, Columbia pleaded all the necessary elements of a negligence claim.

NCRIC disagrees. It argues that the "gravamen" of Columbia's negligence claim "is the miscalculation in the amount of premium due to NCRIC," which "clearly" lies in contract. Further, NCRIC posits, there "is no allegation of an independent duty . . . outside of" the Retro Plan. Motion at 9. NCRIC offers no authority whatsoever for this proposition.

That the duty to be performed is listed in the contract is not an indication that the duty is solely contractual. To the contrary, where, as here, see Counterclaims Exhibit A ¶ 14 (NCRIC is to perform "all bookkeeping") the duty is described generally and the breach claimed is not a breach of an explicit contract provision, the duty arises in tort. One way to determine whether the claim lies in tort or contract is to look at its "fundamental nature" and ask whether the duty would exist "under the circumstances even in the absence of a contract." Ramsey Air Meds, 6 P.3d at 320-21. Here, regardless of whether NCRIC and Columbia were parties to a contract -- indeed, if Columbia and a third party had entered the contract, and NCRIC was solely its bookkeeper -- NCRIC would owe Columbia a duty of due care in its bookkeeping.

In fact, the gravamen of Claim Six is not breach of contract. It alleges a different theory of the wrong. Unlike the contract claim, Claim Six does not request the benefit of the bargain -- the money NCRIC owed Columbia under the Retro Plan. Rather, Claim Six requests damages for NCRIC's failure to properly calculate the money NCRIC owed it under the Retro Plan.

IV. Counts Seven and Eight State Claims for Fraud and Misrepresentation By Alleging That NCRIC Engaged in Misrepresentations of Fact Concerning Its Performance of Its Duties Under the Contract and What It Owed Under the Contract

NCRIC contends that Columbia failed to plead misrepresentation because it alleged that NCRIC made only "contractual promises." See Motion at 9-10. This statement is plain wrong.

According to NCRIC, "all of the allegations of" counts seven and eight "are based wholly upon the existence of a breach of the contractual promises of NCRIC" in the Retro Plan. Motion at 9. This argument misreads the pleadings. Columbia incorporated all of its allegations into the fraud and misrepresentation claims, see Counterclaims ¶¶ 139, 147. Any of the allegations that constitute a misrepresentation of fact will support the elements alleged in counts seven and eight. Among these allegations is that NCRIC, as bookkeeper under the Retro Plan, knowingly misrepresented the amount of the loss reserves and the amount that was due to it from Columbia. In fact, these allegations are explicitly alluded to in counts seven and eight. See id. ¶¶ 142, 146 (NCRIC misrepresented how loss reserves were maintained, the amounts of premium due).

Simply put, NCRIC's misleading contractual promises, though troubling, are not the bases for Columbia's fraud and misrepresentation claims. Rather, these are premised on actions and misrepresentations after the parties entered into the Retro Plan. In short, while the gravamen of Columbia's contract claim is that NCRIC's failed to pay Columbia the amounts that it was due under the Retro Plan, the gravamen of Columbia's fraud and misrepresentation claim is that NCRIC misrepresented (or concealed) the amounts that it had failed to pay Columbia.

V. Counts Eight and Ten Are Not Barred By the Statute of Limitations

NCRIC urges that, in the District of Columbia, the one-year statute of limitations for libel bars counterclaims eight, nine and ten. For counts eight and ten, this is completely incorrect.[12]

A. Count Ten for Injurious Falsehood Is Not Barred Because the Applicable Limitations Period is the Limitations Period for Tortious Interference

NCRIC argues that the Trade Libel/Commercial Disparagements/Injurious Falsehood ("Injurious Falsehood") claim is "intertwined" with the defamation claim. See Motion at 11 (citing, inter alia, Foretich v. Glamour, 741 F. Supp. 247, 251 (D.D.C. 1990)). Thus, NCRIC urges, the Injurious Falsehood claim is barred by the statute of limitations for defamation. Motion at 11. This rule may make sense in the cases that NCRIC cites, which all involved torts like intentional infliction of emotional distress or false light, -- i.e., torts that base recovery on harm to a person's reputation. Those torts are closely related to defamation and libel.

The injurious falsehood tort is entirely different: it protects disparagement of commercial, rather than personal, reputations. See Truck Ins. Exchange v. Bennett, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497, 503 (Cal. Ct. App. 1997); accord Kollenberg v. Ramirez, 339 N.W.2d 176, 178 (Mich. Ct. App. 1983) (citing Prosser & Keeton, Torts (4th ed.) § 128, at 915 (19__)). Accordingly, many jurisdictions apply the statute for tortious interference or injury to property, rather than the statute of limitations for defamation, claims for injurious falsehood. See, e.g., Pro Golf Mfg., Inc. v. Tribune Review Newspaper Co., 2000 PA Super 273 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2000); Guess, Inc. v. Jeff Hamilton, Inc., 176 Cal. App.3d 473 (Cal. Ct. App. 1986); Kollenberg, 339 N.W.2d 176; Shelby

[12] Moreover, claim nine, which is based in part on statements made in August and September 2000, see Counterclaims ¶ 155 (citing ¶ 89), is not barred, at least "to the extent" it is "based on paragraphs 69-70 and pre-November 6, 1999." Motion at 11.

v. Taylor, 290 S.E.2d 767 (N.C. Ct. App. 1982); Vaccaro Constr. Co. v. A.J. DePace, Inc., 349 A.2d 570 (N.J. Super. Ct. Law Div. 1975). This court should follow these jurisdictions because the interests protected by injurious falsehood are similar to those protected by interference torts.

B. Count Eight, the Negligent Misrepresentation Claim, Is Not Barred Because It Is Not Even Remotely "Intertwined" With Counts Nine and/or Ten

In the District of Columbia, the statute of limitations applicable to fraud and negligent misrepresentation claims is three years from the time the fraud is or should be discovered. See Clouser v. Temporaries, Inc., 730 F. Supp. 1127, 1131 (D.D.C. 1989) (citing D.C. Code § 12-301(8) (1981)); Filloramo v. Johnston, Lemon & Co., 700 F. Supp. 572, 574 (D.D.C. 1988) (same). In this case, NCRIC claims that the one-year statute of limitations for defamation applies to the negligent misrepresentation claim. This argument is completely meritless.

According to NCRIC, "the underlying facts and nature" of Columbia's negligent misrepresentation claim "is essentially the same as the defamation claim." Motion at 11 (citing, inter alia, Foretich, 741 F. Supp. at 251). This assertion baldly misrepresents the allegations.

Columbia's negligent misrepresentation counterclaim states, in full:

> 147. Medical Center incorporates by reference paragraphs 1 through 146, as though set forth fully herein..
>
> 148. As set forth above, NCRIC and/or its agents made false representations to Medical Center, including that: (1) the Loss Reserves under the Plan were maintained in accordance with the industry standard and (2) after the performance of each reconciliation, a certain amount of Additional or Return Premium was due. Moreover, as set forth above in Paragraphs 37 and 38, NCRIC concealed from plaintiffs material facts that amounted to a misrepresentation.
> 149. NCRIC negligently made these false representations because it failed to ensure that it maintain Loss Reserves in accord with the industry standard, among other things.

150. The false representations and/or concealments set forth above were material with regard to the amount of Additional or Return Premium due under the Plan. If not for such false representations and/or concealments, Medical Center would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium.

151. NCRIC intended that Medical Center rely upon its false representations and/or concealments, and pay NCRIC for amounts that it was not properly owed under the Plan.

152. As set forth above, Medical Center reasonably relied upon the false representations and/or concealments made by NCRIC, including by paying incorrect amounts of premium. As set forth above, Medical Center's reliance was reasonable, and known to NCRIC, because NCRIC was required to perform all bookkeeping under the Plan and because NCRIC refused to provide Medical Center access to data necessary to independently verify NCRIC's bookkeeping.

153. Medical Center has been directly and proximately damaged by NCRIC's negligent actions by, among other things, overpaying premium, which in turn proximately and directly led Medical Center to become insolvent.

There is no suggestion whatsoever in this passage that the negligent misrepresentation claim is based on anything even remotely similar to the underlying facts of the defamation claims. The defamation and trade libel claims are based on false statements that were first made at a meeting in August 1998. These statements all impugned either Columbia, its board of directors, its financial health, or a potential insurer. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 69-70, 154-164. None of these statements related in any way to promises NCRIC made during the formation of the Retro Plan, to NCRIC's calculation of loss reserves, to NCRIC's calculations of premium under the plan, or to the premium owed by one party to another. These concepts form the entire basis for the negligent misrepresentation claim. See id. ¶¶ 38, 38, 147-153.[13] Moreover, the negligent misrepresentation claim plainly involves statements made by NCRIC to Columbia, see id. ¶ 147-153, whereas the defamation claims deal only with statements of NCRIC to physicians, see id. ¶ 156.[14]

Since counterclaim eight is not in any way related to the defamation claims, NCRIC's meritless argument must be rejected. Accord Motion at 11 (stating that counterclaim eight should be dismissed "to the extent" it is "based on paragraphs 69-70 and pre-November 6, 1999").

VI. Counts Four, Five and Ten Properly Plead Defamation Because NCRIC Enjoys No Qualified Privilege with Its Insureds Under the Circumstances of this Case

A. None of NCRIC's Statements Are Protected by a Qualified Privilege

NCRIC argues that several of the defamatory, false, injurious statements it was responsible for uttering are protected by a "qualified privilege" between insurers and insureds. Specifically, NCRIC alleges that the sixth statement in paragraph 69 of the counterclaims is privileged and cannot be the subject of a defamation claim. See Motion at 7 (Columbia "lied to the Attending Faculty by stating that it could not afford to continue" the Retro Plan). Apparently, NCRIC also argues that all of the statements alleged in paragraph 89 of the counterclaims are [13] NCRIC's statement that the defamatory statement Columbia alleges "involve matters of Loss Reserves, reconciliations, and amounts of premium due to and from" Columbia, see Motion at 10 n.3 is unintelligible. It is possible that NCRIC construes paragraph 148 of the Counterclaims to incorporate every false statement made in paragraphs 1-147. This reading of the Counterclaims is neither plausible nor reasonable. As stated above, the Counterclaims clarify which false statements form the basis for each claim by describing to whom the statements for each were made (i.e., either to Columbia or to its physicians), and by listing or referencing the key statements.

[14] The only connections between the two claims are (1) they mention "false statements"; (2) they relate to the Retro Plan; and (3) they incorporate all of the prior counts by reference. However, the false statements to which each claim refers are so distinctive that they cannot reasonably be mistaken for each other. And, neither of the latter "connections" are sufficient to render the "underlying facts" of the two claims "similar." If they were, every claim brought with a defamation claim would be subject to the 1-year limitations period.

privileged. See Motion at 12 (various statements concerning Columbia's ambulatory clinic). Here, NCRIC misunderstands the legal principal it attempts to employ.

A qualified privilege does attach "to particular communications between and insured and insured." 560 Am. Jur. 2d Libel and Slander § 325 (1995). A qualified privilege must be based at least on a common interest between the insurer and insured, if not a duty to speak. Even assuming that a qualified privilege exists in the District of Columbia and protects communications between NCRIC and its insureds in some instances, it does not exist on the facts of this case.

A qualified privilege must be made in good faith, on a topic of mutual interest between the parties, limited in its scope to this purpose, on a proper occasion and made and published in a proper manner to proper parties only. See Hahn v. Kotten, 331 N.E.2d 713, 718-19 (Ohio 1975). Since the privilege is qualified, it vanishes if abused. See id. Unprotected statements include those made in bad faith, see International Adm'rs., Inc. v. Life Ins. Co., 753 F.2d 1373, 1380-81 (7th Cir. 1985), those made to harm another rather than benefit the parties to the privilege, see, e.g., Nasr v. Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co., 632 F. Supp. 1024, 1027-28 (N.D. Ill. 1986), or those made with falsity and malice, see Hahn, 331 N.E.2d at 718.

Due to the aforementioned qualifications, the privilege affords no protection to NCRIC. Columbia has alleged that all of NCRIC's statements were known to be false when made, i.e., in bad faith. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 69, 121 126, 155-57, 160-62. Moreover, NCRIC made the statements to retaliate against Columbia. See id. ¶¶ 69-71, 89, 92. The privilege does not protect such statements, even if they are on a topic of mutual interest to the insurer and insured. But moreover, when all permissible inferences are granted to Columbia, NCRIC's statements were not on a topic of mutual interest to the insured. Rather, the statements were attacks on Columbia, for the purpose of retaining the Attending Faculty as insureds and causing them to leave Columbia -- not for the Attending Faculty's benefit. NCRIC had no good reason to attempt to steer its insureds away from Columbia to another hospital, except to benefit itself and harm Columbia.

B. None of NCRIC's Statements Are Non-actionable Statements of Opinion

1. NCRIC's "Opinions" Concerning Facts are Actionable

NCRIC argues that two of false, injurious statements it uttered are not actionable because they are statements of "opinion." Specifically, NCRIC alleges that the third and fourth statements in paragraph 89 of the counterclaims are opinions. See Motion at 7 (Columbia's "self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure" the clinic, and the clinic "was a dangerous place to work"). Even if they are opinions, neither warrants protection from liability.

On a motion to dismiss in a defamation action, the court must determine whether a statement is capable of bearing a defamatory meaning. See Guilford Transp. Indus. Inc. v. Wilner, 760 A.2d 580, 594 (D.C. 2000) (citing Restatement (Second) of Torts § 614 (1)(1977)). In reaching its conclusion, the court must construe the words "as the average or common mind would naturally understand [them]." Id. at 594 (citing 8 S. Speiser, C. Krause & A. Gans, The American Law of Torts § 29:37 (1991)) (alteration in original). Columbia has alleged that the statements attributable to NCRIC defamed Columbia. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 69, 89, 155-58.

NCRIC offers no support for its claim that statements of opinion are not actionable defamation. Indeed, the law is quite the contrary: "statements of opinion can be actionable if they imply a provably false fact, or rely upon stated facts that are provably false." Moldea v. New York Times Co., 22 F.3d 310, 313, 306 U.S. App. D.C. 1, 10 (D.C. Cir 1994); accord Washington v. Smith, 80 F.3d 555, 556, 317 U.S. App. D.C. 79, 80 (D.C. Cir. 1996) (a statement of opinion is actionable "if it has an explicit or implicit factual foundation and is therefore objectively verifiable"); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 566 (1977) (an opinion is actionable if it "implies the allegation of undisclosed defamatory facts as the basis for the opinion"). Another, way of stating this distinction is that statements of opinion which purport to convey information, i.e., "deductive opinions," are actionable, whereas purely "evaluative opinions" expressing a value judgment, are not. See Ollman v. Evans, 750 F.2d 970, 978-79 n.14 (D.C. Cir. 1984); 50 Am. Jur. 2d Libel and Slander § 162 (1995) (If a statement can reasonably be understood by the ordinary person as implying undisclosed defamatory facts, the question of whether it is a statement of fact or an opinion will be submitted to the jury). Federal courts in this jurisdiction have employed four factors to ascertain whether, under the "totality of circumstances," a statement is an non-actionable opinion. These factors are: (1) "the specific language used"; (2) "whether the statement is verifiable"; (3) "the general context of the statement"; and (4) "the broader context in which the statement appeared." Ollman, at 97_. Finally, even an evaluative opinion may be actionable if the publisher "was misstating [its] own state of mind or if a reasonable and fair-minded person could not have entertained the derogatory opinion on the basis of the opinion upon which [the publisher] relied." McConnell v. Howard Univ., 621 F. Supp. 327, 332 (D.D.C. 1985) (citing Prosser & Keaton, Torts § 113A, at 814 (5th ed. 1984)).

Here, when Medical Center is granted all permissible inferences, NCRIC's statements were, in fact, defamatory. First, the statement that a hospital clinic is a dangerous place to work, in the context of a warning from a malpractice insurer to its insureds, is a very serious charge. The statement alleged is not specific, but it clearly suggests that NCRIC possessed underlying knowledge of facts which would be damaging to Columbia. Further, the physicians had reason to believe that NCRIC had such information, because NCRIC had records for all claims against its physicians who practiced at the clinic. Yet, as Columbia has alleged, the statement was false.

The second statement, that Columbia had insufficient funds to cover the clinic's liabilities, made by an insurer with whom Columbia had agreed to share liabilities to insureds, is advisory, not evaluative. Here, NCRIC implied that it knew, perhaps from an official accounting as part of the Retro Plan, that the trust fund was insolvent.[15] NCRIC attempts to argue these statements actually might be true -- but of course, NCRIC cannot contradict the counterclaims, nor can it deny Columbia the inference that each statement is false.

2. NCRIC's Misrepresentations Did Not Constitute Legal Opinions

NCRIC argues that it cannot be held liable for the statements in paragraph 89 of the counterclaims (assuming, as it must, that the statements are false) because "misrepresentations as to matters of law do not ordinarily support an action for damages."[16] Yet, the statements NCRIC made were not about "matters of law." They were statements of fact: that an insurance policy had expired, that certain doctors were not covered by the policy, and that the trust fund had sufficient funds. These statements related to a contract, but not every statement about a contract

[15] NCRIC cites an ancient case, Dicken v. Shepherd, 22 Md. 399 (Md. 1864), for the proposition that the latter statement was not defamatory. But this case is inapposite, see id. at __ (holding that malice was not present upon a finding of the truth of the statement); see id. at __ (holding that a statement that plaintiff would never pay off a bill was an allegation of insolvency). A charge of insolvency is slander per se.

[16] The case NCRIC cites for this rule shows that this principal applies to actions for fraud and misrepresentation, see Hembry v. Parreco, 81 A.2d 77, 79 (D.C. 1951); NCRIC cites no case applying this rule to defamation. Moreover, Columbia would fall within a long-established exception to this rule "[w]here one has, or professes to have, a superior knowledge of the law, and particularly if there is a relationship of confidence between the parties, a misrepresentation of law may be actionable." See Dixon v. Dodd, 80 A.2d 282, 284 (D.C. 1951). Here, without a doubt, NCRIC's agents were purporting to offer expertise about the policy it wrote.

is a statement of law. Here, NCRIC was reporting on events that flowed from the contract, rather than interpreting the contract using legal principals, and thus, NCRIC's statement were facts.

VII. The Prayer for Punitive Damages ShouldNot Be Dismissed Because Columbia Pleaded Bad Faith for All the Claims For Which It Requested Punitive Damages

NCRIC moves to dismiss Counts One, Two, Three, Six, Eight and Eleven insofar as Columbia seeks punitive damages therefore.[17] Columbia has only requested punitive damages for those claims which are founded upon a claim of bad faith, all of which warrant punitive damages.

NCRIC argues that "malice" is a prerequisite to the recovery of punitive damages, and further, that Columbia has failed to allege malice. Both statements are inaccurate. Although malice can support the recovery of punitive damages, numerous other types of misconduct also will suffice. See Jemison v. National Baptist Convention, USA, Inc., 720 A.2d 275, 286 n.10 (D.C. 1998) (enumerating "fraud, ill will, recklessness, wantonness, oppressiveness, willful disregard of the [other party's] rights, or other circumstances tending to aggravate the injury" as factors that support punitive damages); Wagman v. Lee, 457 A.2d 401, 405 (D.C. 1983) (same).

Here, Columbia alleged that NCRIC entered into a fiduciary relationship with Columbia, but acted with malfeasance, fraud and bad faith throughout the latter part of the relationship. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 69, 111-22, 126, 155-57, 160-62. Further, after the relationship terminated, NCRIC engaged in retaliation against Columbia. Id. ¶¶ 69-71, 89, 92. When Columbia is granted all permissible inferences, these allegations are more than adequate to satisfy the standard for punitive damages, however it is stated. See, e.g., Purcell v. Automatic Gas Distribs., 673 P.2d

[17] In a separate motion for a more definite statement, NCRIC requests that Columbia clarify for what counts it requests punitive damages. NCRIC's argument here flatly contradicts its argument in that motion, that it cannot frame a motion to dismiss without clarification.

1246, 1250 (Mont. 1983) (holding that abuse of trust by a fiduciary who performed accounting for the beneficiary supported a finding of constructive fraud and the award of punitive damages). Here, NCRIC's bad faith was particularly egregious, when coupled with its refusal to allow Columbia to audit its calculations under the Retro Plan, thereby eliminating any chance that Columbia could discover the harm. See Counterclaims at 27-30.

NCRIC's second argument is that punitive damages are not available for the claims "based on contract." A breach of contract will support an award of punitive damages if the contractual breach "'merges with and assumes the character of a willful tort.'" Sere v. Group Hosp., 443 A.2d 33, 37 (D.C. 1982) (quoting Brown v. Coates, 102 U.S.App.D.C. 300, 303, 253 F.2d 36, 39 (1970)). This is especially true when a fiduciary breaches a contract with its beneficiary, due to the public policy in favor of protecting those who place their trust in others. See Brown, 102 U.S.App.D.C. 300, 253 F.2d 36, 40 (holding that breach of contract by a fiduciary "warrant[ed] the imposition of punitive damages"). Indeed, according to Brown and its progeny, breaching a contract in the context of a fiduciary relationship is sufficiently tort-like that it warrants recovery of punitive damages independently of any actual tort. See, e.g., Wagman v. Lee, 457 A.2d 401, 404 (D.C. 1983) (applying rule to escrow/depositor relationship).

NCRIC also is wrong to suggest that counts two and three cannot support exemplary damages. Count two sounds in contract but has a tort-like claim as its gravamen: bad faith. Of course, count three lies in tort, not contract. See Washington Med. Center v. Holle, 573 A.2d 1269, 1284 n. 24 (D.C. 1990) (explaining that a fiduciary duty "claim sounds in tort regardless of its contractual underpinnings" (internal quotations omitted)). It is without doubt that punitive damages may be warranted for a breach of fiduciary duty. See Wagman, 457 A.2d at 405.

Finally, it is well-recognized that punitive damages are available for conversion, see, e.g., Siegman v. Equitable Trust Co., 297 A.2d 758, 761 (Md. 1972), when the underlying claim involves the appropriate level of intent, e.g., fraud or willful disregard for the other party's rights.

XIII. Columbia's Request for Attorneys' Fees Is Proper, Due to NCRIC's Bad Faith Filing of This Lawsuit

Finally, NCRIC posits that Columbia's request for attorneys' fees should be dismissed. Here, NCRIC correctly states the rule, but misses an obvious exception.

As NCRIC explains, pursuant to the "American Rule," attorneys' fees generally are not recoverable by the prevailing party to litigation, absent a recognized exception. Motion at 13. However, NCRIC fails to mention one such exception: bad faith in bringing or maintaining a lawsuit. See Goffe v. Pickard, 588 A.2d 265, 271 (D.C. 1991); accord David O. Dalo and D-Developers, Inc. v. Kivitz, 596 A.2d 35, 37 (D.C. 1991); Auxier v. Kraisel, 466 A.2d 416, 420-21 (D.C. 1983); General Fed'n. of Women's Clubs v. Iron Gate Inn, Inc., 537 A.2d 1123, 1128-29 (D.C. 1988); Cahn v. Antioch Univ., 482 A.2d 120, 133 (D.C. 1984); Trilon Plaza Co. v. Allstate Leasing Corp., 399 A.2d 34, 36 (D.C. 1979). The benchmark for bad faith in the District of Columbia is whether the conduct in bringing the lawsuit was "in bad faith, [vexatious], [wanton], or . . . oppressive." Trilon Plaza Co., 399 A.2d at 37 (quoting 6 Moore's Federal Practice & Procedure § 54, 77(2), at 1709 (2d ed. 1976)) (alterations in original); accord Goffe, 588 A.2d at 271 (defendant was liable for attorney's fees when conduct was vexatious and designed to avoid responsibility to the plaintiffs in bad faith) .

NCRIC's conduct clearly qualifies for the bad faith exception. NCRIC billed Columbia for premiums under the Retro Plan, and then brought a lawsuit to collect those premiums, while knowing that the premiums resulted from an improper calculations under the Retro Plan. See ¶¶ 56-58. This conduct constitutes bad faith. Thus, Columbia's prayer for attorney's fees is a proper and should not be dismissed (or struck).

MOTION TO STRIKE DEFENSE AND SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esquire, Steven F. Benz, Esquire, Joseph K. Leahy, Esquire, and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., moves this Court, pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules 8(c), 9(b), and 12(f), to strike the Sixth Defense in Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC Inc.'s ("NCRIC") Reply of Plaintiff to Amended Counterclaims 1 and 2 of Defendant ["Reply"], and sets forth the following points and authorities in support of said motion.

ARGUMENT

I. NCRIC Failed to Plead Its Affirmative Defense of Fraud with Particularity

In all pleadings filed with this court, including answers, averments of fraud or misrepresentation must assert "the circumstances constituting fraud . . .with particularity." D.C. Sup. Ct. R. 9(b); see 5 Charles A. Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice & Procedure § 1274, at 455-56 & n.6 (1990) (Rule 9(b) applies to affirmative defenses). Pursuant to this rule, the circumstances of fraud that must be pleaded include, at a minimum, the "who, what, where and when of the alleged fraud." NAL II, Ltd. v. Tonkin, 705 F. Supp. 522, 526 (D. Kan. 1989) (internal quotation marks omitted); accord In re Northern Telecom Ltd. Secs. Litig., 42 F. Supp. 2d 234, 240 (S.D.N.Y. 1998); 5 Charles A. Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1297, at 590. Further, under Rule 8(c), "[a]n affirmative defense must sufficiently apprise the opposing party of the nature of the defense, providing the opposing party with adequate notice of the relevant elements of the defense." D.S. America (East), Inc. v. Chromagrafx Imaging Sys., Inc., 873 F. Supp. 786, 797 (E.D.N.Y. 1995); see, e.g., Shechter v. Comptroller of New York, 79 F.3d 265 (2d Cir. 1996) (rejecting defenses that were stated without any specificity). Simply put, "[p]leading fraud without more as an affirmative defense does not meet the particularity requirements of Rule 9(b)," Telectronics Proprietary, Ltd. v. Medtronic, Inc., 687 F. Supp. 832, 841 (S.D.N.Y. 1988) -- or even under the less stringent requirements of Rule 8(c), see D.S. America (East), 873 F. Supp. at 797.

In its Reply, NCRIC pleads, as its Sixth Defense, that "Defendant's counterclaims are barred by reason of its own fraud and illegal conduct." Here, at a minimum, NCRIC failed to meet the minimum requirement of Rule 9(b) that it "must specify what was said, by whom, when and where it was said, and why it was untrue." In re Northern Telecom, 42 F. Supp. 2d at 240; see also Telectronics Proprietary, 687 F. Supp. at 841 ("By itself, the word 'fraud' provides neither the Court nor the opposing party with sufficient notice of the claim raised by this defense."). Further, this defense is insufficient under Rule 8(c) because it "provide[s] no information other than the name of the legal theory on which [it] is based." Servpro Indus., Inc. v. Schmidt, 905 F. Supp. 475, 482, 483 (N.D. Ill. 1995). Since NCRIC merely stated the legal theory of its defense, rather than stating the circumstances of how the purported fraud was carried out, and therefore failed to meet the requirements of Rule 9(b) and Rule 8(c), this Court should strike the defense. See, e.g., Lafayette Corp. v. Bank of Boston Int'l South, 723 F. Supp. 1461, 1467 (S.D. Fla. 1989) (striking defense where the circumstances of misrepresentation were pleaded "without any particulars"); Telectronics Proprietary, 687 F. Supp. at 841, 847 (striking defense of fraud under Rule 9(b)); Intel Corp. v. Hyundai Elecs. of America, Inc., 692 F. Supp. 1113, 1117 (N.D. Cal. 1987) (striking defense of fraud under Rule 9(b)); D.S. America (East), 873 F. Supp. at 797 (striking defenses for lack of particularity under Rule 8(c)); Servpro Indus., 905 F. Supp. at 483 (striking defenses under Rules 8(c) and 9(b)).

II. Columbia Will Be Prejudiced Due To NCRIC's Lack of Particularity

Rule 9(b) requires that fraud be pleaded with particularity for several reasons: in order to give the defending party notice of specific allegations of fraud, so that it may refute them; to protect the defending party's reputation; and to discourage baseless fraud claims made with the hope of using discovery as a fishing expedition. See Kula v. J.K. Schofield & Co., 668 F. Supp. 1126, 1134 (N.D. Ill. 1987); see also Servpro Indus., 905 F. Supp. at 483. Here, all three reasons are implicated. Because NCRIC's Amended Reply offers no basis whatsoever for its defense of fraud, Columbia is unable to respond, protect its reputation, or prevent burdensome fishing expeditions under the guise of discovery. Because NCRIC failed to give Columbia "fair notice" of the fraud alleged, its Sixth Defense must be stricken. Servpro Indus., 905 F. Supp. at 483.

Courts applying Rule 9(b) typically have not required that the moving party make a showing of prejudice, as Rule 12(f) requires before a court will strike an insufficient defense. See, e.g., id. (striking defenses based on lack of "fair notice"). However, Columbia has met Rule 12(f)'s standard for striking an insufficient defense, in any event. Columbia will be prejudiced in this action if NCRIC's defense is allowed because, due to Columbia's lack of knowledge about the alleged basis for the fraud, it will have difficulty obtaining discovery relating to and refuting the allegation. As a result, if NCRIC attempts to prove the defense at trial, Columbia will be unable to rebut NCRIC's proof. Second, as a non-profit community hospital that depends upon its good reputation to recruit and retain physicians, Columbia will be prejudiced by a continuing allegation of some unspecified fraud that it cannot refute due to the lack of specifics.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Columbia respectfully asks this Court to strike the Sixth Defense in NCRIC's Reply of Plaintiff to Amended Counterclaims 1 and 2 of Defendant, pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules 8 (c), 9(b) and 12(f).

I, Joseph K. Leahy, hereby certify that I attempted to contact counsel for Plaintiff/ Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") by telephone on Feburary 1, 2001 in an effort to determine whether NCRIC would consent to Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center Inc.'s Motion to Strike Defense and Supporting Memorandum of Points and Authorities ["Motion to Strike"]; however, I was unable to reach counsel. I further certify that I left a message requesting that counsel contact me today if NCRIC would consent to the relief Columbia sought. Having not heard back from counsel, I have concluded that NCRIC will not consent to the Motion to Strike.

REPLY MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS

NCRIC, Inc., plaintiff, by Roy Niedermayer, its attorney, replies to defendant's Opposition to the Motion to Dismiss with the following summary observations:

1. Sufficiency of Allegations. Plaintiff's Motion challenges whether defendant's counterclaims make sufficient allegations under its legal theories as pleaded, not whether such legal theories exist theoretically.

2. Breach of Fiduciary Duty Claims. Defendant's fiduciary duty and negligence theories convert every service contract into a fiduciary relationship where there is an allegation the other party was engaged because of his skills or expertise – the very reason the parties no doubt entered into the contract, i.e., obtaining the knowledge and skills of the other party. If there were no "trust and confidence" in plaintiff's knowledge, there would have been no contract to begin with. All breaches of contract are not, therefore, breaches of fiduciary duty.

3. One Year Statute of Limitations for Defamation. Defendant never addresses the bar of the one year statute of limitations precluding the defamation claims for

RECEIVED
FEB 0 [illegible] 2001

statements made in August 1998. See counterclaim paragraph 69.

4. Punitive Damages. Defendant has laid out its claims for breach of fiduciary duties separately from its count for breaches of contract. Compare Counts 1-2 with 3. Therefore, punitive damages are not proper in the contract counts. Yet, defendant then uses the claims of breach of fiduciary duty not contained in the separate contract counts as the basis for punitive damages in the contract claims of Counts 1 and 2. Even if defendant has properly pleaded for punitive damages for breaches of fiduciary duty, it should not be allowed to use the same actions as the basis for punitive damages for breach of contract and it is not proper to do so.

5. Attorneys' Fees Claim. An award of attorneys' fees is not properly pleaded in the pending counterclaims. Defendant's claim is for attorneys' fees incurred because of plaintiff's filing of this lawsuit. If the theory for recovery is SCR 11, then this is not compensatory damages which can be pleaded in the counterclaim, but relief to be granted after the case concludes. If the theory for recovery is like a claim for abuse of process or malicious prosecution, then the attorneys' fees claim is premature because it cannot be brought in the same action complained of as the tort, but must be brought in an action subsequent to the resolution of first action, not contemporaneously. See, e.g., Morowitz

v. Marvel, 423 A.2d 196 (1980)(Termination of prior action in defendant's favor is necessary element of cause of action for recovery of damages in malicious prosecution/abuse of process cases).

DEFENDANT'S INITIAL RULE 26(B)(4) STATEMENT AS A PROPONENT OF A CLAIM

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, hereby states, pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure 16(b)(3) and 26(b)(4), that it currently expects that it may call one or more of the following persons as expert witnesses at trial on its behalf:

1. Elizabeth Wright, Independent Consultant; and

2. Mary Harriman, Director of Risk Management, Mercy Health Services.

Each of the foregoing experts is expected to testify, if retained and called as a witness, with regard to the following subjects:

1. methods, formulas and criteria for setting loss reserves by hospitals and/or insurers for medical malpractice liability claims in the District of Columbia and/or surrounding metropolitan area;

2. the reasonableness and propriety, in light of the industry standards for setting loss reserves for medical malpractice liability claims in the District of Columbia and/or surrounding metropolitan area, and in light of other loss reserves of the same nature set by NCRIC in the same region, of the loss reserves set by NCRIC under the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between the parties.

Columbia makes the forgoing statements subject to the following qualifications:

1. Columbia has not yet retained either of the foregoing witnesses to testify at trial, but rather, has contacted and/or is negotiating with such witnesses; if Columbia retains either of the foregoing expert witnesses to testify at trial, Columbia will supplement this Rule 26(b)(4) statement with information concerning the witness's address and qualifications, at that time;

2. due to its current financial situation, Columbia may be unable to retain either of the foregoing expert witnesses, in which case Dr. Henry Chukwueizi, Risk Manager, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., or any other suitable person later discovered by Columbia, may testify as an expert to the foregoing subjects;

3. Columbia reserves its right to supplement the designations of expert witnesses and subjects of testimony set forth above at any time during the course of ongoing discovery;

4. Columbia reserves its right to designate any of the foregoing, or others, as rebuttal expert witnesses at the appropriate time; and

5. Columbia has yet not received from NCRIC the documents and information concerning its loss reserves that is necessary for the forgoing expert witnesses to render their opinions concerning the subjects set forth above, and therefore, these experts have not rendered any opinions or written any reports. Accordingly, Columbia is unable at this time to set forth the substance of the facts and opinions to which the experts are expected to testify, and a summary and grounds for each opinion. However, within a reasonable time after receiving all of the necessary documents and information concerning loss reserves from NCRIC, any experts retained by Columbia will render their opinions, and Columbia will supplement this Rule 26(b)(4) Statement with the required information.

6. Columbia reserves the right to modify this Statement in the event that its currently pending motion to amend the Court's January 12, 2001 scheduling order is granted.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITRIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO AMEND SCHEDULING ORDER

Preliminary Statement

This is a complex commercial case which should be on Track 4, not Track 2. An amendment to the scheduling order is warranted because, despite diligent efforts by counsel, the complexity and enormity of factual and expert discovery make it impossible to comply with the constraints of the Track 2 scheduling order. While failure to modify the scheduling order will substantially prejudice Defendant's ability to pursue its counterclaims, Plaintiff will suffer no prejudice whatsoever from a modification. Accordingly, Defendant respectfully requests that this case be transferred to Track 4, with the schedule proposed below (or any substantially similar schedule ordered by the Court).

Factual Background

The Pleadings and the Allegations

The Amended Complaint, filed by Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") on or about January 3, 2001, seeks damages of nearly $2 million for an alleged breach of contract. The contract at issue, the Retrospective Rating Plan ("the Plan") (attached as Exhibit A) is a complicated agreement under which NCRIC provided a discount on the malpractice insurance premiums of physicians practicing at Columbia, in return for which Columbia agreed to pay NCRIC "additional premium" if losses exceeded expectations, and NCRIC agreed to pay "return premium" to Columbia if losses were less than expected. The centerpiece of the Plan is a complex, backwards-looking "retrospective rating" formula ("formula") used to perform "reconciliations" – i.e., to calculate whether additional premium or return premium is owed – of the Plan each year. Application of the formula (which takes up four pages of text in the Plan) requires use of many variables and multiple multipliers. Further, each amount in the formula is itself a sum of underlying raw data (e.g., the indemnities paid by NCRIC in lawsuits or loss reserves set aside by NCRIC for claims against physicians). In order to calculate the exact amount of additional or return premium owed under the Plan, the formula must be properly applied and all of the underlying data must be analyzed.

Columbia's Amended Answer and Counterclaims, filed on or about January 3, 2001, seeks an unspecified amount of damages for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, fraud/constructive fraud, tortious interference with business relations, tortious interference with prospective advantage, negligent misrepresentation, defamation and conversion by NCRIC. Accordingly, this action is not just a simple contract dispute. Rather, it involves allegations of tortious conduct by NCRIC throughout the parties' seven-year business relationship.

Entry of the Scheduling Order

On January 12, 2001, this Court held a scheduling conference. Prior to the scheduling conference, counsel for Columbia had diligently attempted to determine the timeframe for each track or to ascertain any guideline for the type of cases that belong on each track. However, despite reviewing the District of Columbia Rules of Procedure and the Court's website, and contacting the Clerk of Court, counsel could find no such information. At the scheduling conference, counsel for NCRIC requested that the case be assigned to Track 2. At that time counsel for Columbia did not object, having no basis to Track 2 per se. However, counsel for Columbia expected an opportunity to object to individual dates listed in the scheduling order. This opportunity never arose, as the conference ended and the parties received a copy of the scheduling order from the clerk afterwards. Upon reviewing the scheduling order, counsel for Columbia determined that the timetable set forth in the order might be inappropriate for this complex case, but decided to attempt in good faith to comply with the order with the option of later moving to amend should the Track 2 schedule prove unworkable.

Motion Practice

Currently pending before the Court is NCRIC's motion to dismiss all but two of Columbia's counterclaims and Columbia's pleas for punitive damages and attorney's fees. Also currently pending are NCRIC's motion for a more definite statement and motion to strike a defense as insufficient. The parties completed briefing of these motions on February 7, 2000. (Columbia also filed a motion to strike NCRIC's insufficient defense of fraud; this motion was withdrawn by mutual consent when NCRIC agreed to withdraw the defense.)

Discovery to Date

NCRIC has served interrogatories, a request for admissions, and two sets of document requests. Columbia has responded to the interrogatories and requests for admission; has provided written responses and made three productions of documents (totaling one full banker's box) in response to the requests for documents; has provided written responses to NCRIC's second requests for documents; and is engaged in rolling production of documents in response to the second requests for documents. Recently, Columbia drafted, and the parties are still negotiating, a protective order to facilitate production of confidential information.

Columbia has served interrogatories, requests for admission and two sets of document requests on NCRIC. The responses to these requests are not yet due. Counsel for Columbia was unable to serve its discovery requests until recently because it was: (1) investigating and filing its counterclaims; (2) answering NCRIC's Complaint; (3) responding to NCRIC's multiple motions (including a dispositive motion); (4) filing motions before the required deadlines; and (5) responding to NCRIC's discovery requests.[1]

Impending Discovery Deadlines

The current deadline for designation of witnesses for trial, including expert witnesses, is March 12, 2001. However, Columbia has not completed its investigation of the events and circumstances underlying this lawsuit. Columbia is still interviewing witnesses and is searching its archives for relevant documents. For example, despite repeated attempts, Columbia has been unable to contact some important out-of-state witnesses, including a former executive who negotiated crucial amendments to the contract. Yet, in an attempt to comply with the scheduling order, Columbia has notified NCRIC of all the persons that it currently expects it may call at trial (including some witnesses it has not yet contacted). Columbia would be prejudiced, however, if it were unable to call any additional witnesses that come to light during further discovery.

[1] Columbia understands that NCRIC plans to file a motion to compel production of certain documents from Columbia. At issue in the motion is, inter alia, whether Columbia must produce documents relating to its attorneys fees before the outcome of the litigation is determined.

16d-000417

March 12 also is the deadline for each proponent's Rule 26(b) statement.[2] Columbia expects to offer expert testimony regarding NCRIC's loss reserves in support of some counterclaims (e.g., negligence). However, Columbia's experts cannot analyze any of NCRIC's loss reserve data until it is received from NCRIC, in response to Columbia's discovery requests (the deadline for which are not yet due). For these reasons, in addition to the financial difficulties discussed infra, Columbia has not yet retained any experts. However, in an attempt to comply with the scheduling order, Columbia has provided NCRIC with (1) the names of several experts with whom Columbia is currently negotiating about testifying and (2) the subject matter on which each such expert would testify if retained. In addition, to facilitate the prompt completion of its expert reports, Columbia has requested that NCRIC provide all information regarding loss reserves as soon as possible.

Columbia's Financial Situation

To date, Columbia's progress in investigating the underlying events of this lawsuit, in naming witnesses and experts, and engaging in discovery, has been hampered by a lack of resources. Columbia emerged from bankruptcy last year, and remains in a difficult financial position. At the outset of this case, Columbia no longer had risk management personnel in its employ to assist with the investigation or help search for documents. Accordingly, investigating this matter fell to counsel, who was not intimately familiar with the filing system. Columbia's administrative are mainly new arrivals who have limited institutional knowledge. Columbia, has however, added a highly skilled risk manager, and has contacted former personnel to assist with [2] Columbia has not received any Rule 26(b) statements from NCRIC. Counsel for NCRIC, which opposed modifying the scheduling order, has indicated that NCRIC will serve and file any Rule 26(b) statements by the deadline if decides to offer expert testimony in its case in chief.

searching old files. As such, Columbia expects to improve its ability to engage in discovery, and to complete its factual investigation, despite its financial situation.

Columbia's financial resources continue to hamper its negotiations with expert witnesses. Columbia has made inquires of, and is currently negotiating with, several experts. However, it cannot ascertain whether it will be able to afford any experts.

Proposed Scheduling Order Modification

Columbia recently proposed to NCRIC that this case be reassigned to Track 4, with following proposed modifications to the deadlines set forth in the scheduling order:

Deadline	Current	Proposed
Deadline for discovery requests	3/12/01	5/14/01
Exchange witness lists:	3/12/01	5/14/01
Proponent's rule 26(b):	3/12/01	5/28/01
Opponent's rule 26(b):	4/12/01	6/29/01
Discovery closes:	5/12/01	8/31/01
Deadline for filing motions:	5/27/01	9/17/01
Dispositive motions decided:	6/27/01	10/17/01
ADR:	7/12/01 - 8/12/01	11/7/01 - 12/7/01
Pretrial:	60 days	60 days

On February 22, 2001, and in several times thereafter, counsel for Columbia and counsel for NCRIC communicated regarding whether NCRIC would consent to a motion to amend the existing scheduling order. On March 3, 2001, NCRIC stated that it would not consent to any extension of the Scheduling Order beyond the current timetable.

When asked for NCRIC's basis for the refusal, counsel for NCRIC informed counsel for Columbia that a longer timetable would delay the receipt by NCRIC of any damages from Columbia that NCRIC may win on its breach-of-contract claim. At no time has NCRIC indicated to Columbia that it will suffer any other prejudice as a result of a longer timetable.

Argument

This Court's Scheduling Order, dated January 12, 2001, may be modified "by leave of court upon a showing of good cause." D.C. Sup. Ct. R. Civ. P. 16(b). Columbia has shown good cause for modification of the existing scheduling order for three independent reasons: (1) this is a complex, commercial case that belongs on Track 4 rather than on Track 2; (2) counsel have been unable to meet the tight deadlines of Track 2, despite diligent efforts; and (3) Columbia will be unable to properly prosecute its counterclaims if the scheduling order is not modified, yet NCRIC will not be prejudiced by any modification.

This Complex Case Belongs on Track 4

This is a complex, commercial case with nearly two million dollars at stake. Calculating the amount of premium owed under the contract requires application of an extremely complicated, multiple-page, retrospective rating formula, with many terms, multipliers and variables. Reading the contract itself requires analysis of multiple attachments, amendments and renewals. Further, in order for either side to make its case, it must analyze the raw data (e.g., reserves for individual claims against Columbia's physicians) that underlies NCRIC's calculations of return premium or additional premium, which may be a massive undertaking. This is not a simple contract case. Columbia's wide-ranging tort claims may require testimony concerning events throughout the seven-year term of the contract. Complex, commercial cases like this, with more than a million dollars at stake, belong on the track for complex cases, Track 4.[3] Cf. Hon. Thomas P. Smith, What Happened?! Or How to Get from Here to There . . ., [An

[3] As explained supra, case is on Track 2 at the request of counsel for NCRIC, and through no fault of counsel for Columbia. It was not unreasonable for counsel for Columbia to attempt, diligently and in good faith, to comply with the current scheduling order for two months, rather than moving to amend the scheduling order immediately after the scheduling conference.

Informational Brochure Concerning Procedures for the Circuit Court of Prince George's County, Maryland] (explaining that, the top track, Track 5 is reserved for "Complex Litigation (Business, Complicated . . . Malpractice and other Tort cases)," while Track 2 is reserved for "Cases (tort/contract) having values [at stake] greater that $25,000 but not complex litigation."). A complex case like this requires more time to prepare for trial than an average case.

Cases like this also require a longer timetable than run-of-the-mill disputes because discovery is more extensive. Here, for example, NCRIC must produce all its loss reserve data, including all the information used in calculating its loss reserves. Undoubtedly, this will mean production of numerous boxes of documents that Columbia must review for use in depositions (which, under the current schedule, must be completed by May 12, 2001). If Columbia decides to use any of these documents at trial, both parties will be spared expense if Columbia is allowed to request admissions regarding the documents (the current deadline for which is March 12, 2001). In addition, for its tort claims, Columbia may need to depose or interview many witnesses who have left the employ of NCRIC and Columbia, some of whom have not yet been located.[4]

Additionally, this case may involve testimony of experts (e.g., actuaries, risk management specialists) for both sides. Under Columbia's interpretation of the contract, NCRIC must show that it calculated its loss reserves reasonably, in good faith, and in accordance with the applicable industry standards. Further, Columbia expects that it may proffer expert testimony that NCRIC's calculation of its loss reserves was incorrect, inappropriate or unreasonable. Track 4, unlike [4] A longer timetable also builds in time for discovery disputes, which are more likely to occur in cases with extensive discovery and confidential materials. Here, many documents, including confidential materials, have been requested by both sides. The parties have negotiated over discovery in good faith, and have negotiated a protective order for confidential documents – yet, there already is a discovery dispute, and NCRIC is expected to file a motion to compel.

16d-000421

Track 2, builds in adequate time for Columbia (which does yet not have possession of NCRIC's loss reserve documents) to retain experts, and for those experts to review NCRIC's (assumedly extensive) loss reserve data, draw conclusions and write reports.

A Modification is Warranted by Columbia's Diligence

Even if this case were not inherently complex, a modification of the existing scheduling order would be justified because Columbia has been unable to meet certain deadlines, despite its diligence. Diligence of the party requesting the modification is the touchstone for modifying a scheduling order under Rule 16(b). If the party is unable to meet a deadline despite diligent attempts, a modification is appropriate. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 16, Advisory Cmte's Note, subdivision (b) (1983 Amendment) (explaining that "good cause" means that the schedule "cannot reasonably be met despite the diligence of the party seeking the extension"). Here, Columbia has prosecuted its claims diligently, and has endeavored to comply with the existing scheduling order in good faith. Columbia has not stood idle since the scheduling order was entered. In less than two months, Columbia has responded to multiple motions by NCRIC, including a dispositive motion; filed a motion of its own; responded to NCRIC's discovery requests; and served its own discovery requests – all while continuing its investigation of the underlying facts and circumstances of this case.[5] Yet, due to the fast Track 2 schedule, Columbia has not been able to fully designate its witnesses and experts.

To date, Columbia has provided NCRIC with as much information as possible regarding its witnesses and experts. However, Columbia has not completed its investigation or retained experts, due in part to its financial situation. Further, even if Columbia had retained experts, those experts could not perform any analysis of NCRIC's loss reserves until NCRIC produces documents relating to its calculation of the loss reserves. Moreover, although Columbia was unable to serve discovery until recently (because it was actively engaged in responding to motions and discovery requests by NCRIC), Track 2, not a lack of diligence by Columbia, is the reason Columbia's expert reports have not been completed. Even if Columbia had served discovery requests on NCRIC the day the scheduling order was entered, Columbia's experts would have had less than a month to analyze NCRIC's data and complete their reports – assuming that NCRIC provided all of its loss reserve data 30 days of receiving the request.

Accordingly, while Columbia can designate additional witnesses as soon as it knows of them, and can designate experts when it comes to terms with them, its experts cannot complete their reports until a reasonable time after they receive loss reserve data from NCRIC. As such, a modification of all deadlines for witnesses and expert witnesses is justified. Further, due to these modifications, and the additional issues that may arise after discovery closes, Columbia should be allowed additional time for discovery and discovery requests, as well.

Columbia Will Be Prejudiced if the Scheduling Order Is Not Modified; NCRIC Will Suffer No Prejudice if the Scheduling Order Is Modified

As stated supra, Columbia has not obtained the information that its experts will need to analyze in order to prepare their reports regarding loss reserves. Accordingly, if the scheduling order is not amended as proposed, Columbia could be denied the chance to introduce expert

[5] Columbia's diligence should be judged in light of its difficult financial situation. See CSX Transp., Inc. v. Lone Star Indus., No. 93-1505, 1994 WL 118475, at *11 (4th Cir. April 7, 1994). Columbia, the defendant, recently emerged from bankruptcy and is in no position to engage in a costly legal battle. Despite a limited resources and personnel, Columbia has actively pursued its counterclaims and diligently engaged in discovery.

testimony at trial. This would prejudice Columbia's ability to prosecute its counterclaims (e.g., the negligence claims). This potential prejudice, in light of Columbia's good faith and diligence, is in itself a sufficient showing of good cause to extend the deadline for expert designation. See Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. Electric Motor Supply, Inc., 190 F.R.D. 372, 375 (D. Md. 1999).

In addition, Columbia has not deposed the witnesses it may need to depose regarding the seven-year history of the Plan. Yet, NCRIC's responses to Columbia's discovery requests are not due for several weeks. As a result, by the time Columbia completes its investigation and receives documents from NCRIC, it may have about one month (from early April to May 12, 2001) to complete all depositions. During that time, Columbia also will continue to provide NCRIC with documents on a rolling basis. Due to Columbia's limited resources, it will be difficult for Columbia to engage in extensive offensive and defensive discovery at the same time. Hence, unless Columbia receives additional time for discovery and discovery requests, it may be unable to depose all the important witnesses who have knowledge about its claims under the Plan. This will prejudice Columbia's ability to proceed with its claims, simply due to lack of time.

On the other hand, NCRIC will suffer no actual prejudice from any change in the existing timetable. In discussions between counsel, NCRIC has offered no reason whatsoever as a basis to claim prejudice. The only harm that NCRIC has claimed it will suffer (which assumes it will win this lawsuit), is a loss of the time value of any purported damages it believes it will obtain from Columbia. Yet, NCIRIC has identified no prejudice it will suffer, no matter how long this lawsuit is pressed back.

Moreover, because this case belonged on Track 4 in the first place, even NCRIC's claim that it is losing the time value of money is without merit. If counsel for Columbia had moved to amend the scheduling order immediately after reading the scheduling order, NCRIC would have suffered no prejudice whatsoever in prosecution of this action. Less than two months later, NCRIC is in nearly the same position. This case is still in its infancy, and NCRIC cannot rightly complain that modifying the scheduling order will prejudice its trial strategy, or its ability to engage in discovery. [6] Indeed, extending discovery until after the pending motion to dismiss is decided may allow both parties to save time and money in discovery. If the motion is granted, the issues in the case will be narrowed and the parties will be able to limit the scope of their discovery. Hence, placing this case on Track 4 would not cause any prejudice to NCRIC.

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, Columbia requests that this case be reassigned to Track 4, with deadlines requested above (or substantially similar deadlines as the Court sees fit). For the reasons set forth above, Track 4 is the appropriate track for this complex, commercial case.

[6] It is important to note that Columbia is not simply asking for a modification of its own deadlines. The proposed modification of the scheduling order is an entirely different timetable for this case. As such, the proposal will allow both parties more time to investigate their claims, engage in discovery, analyze documents, file motions, etc.

I, Joseph K. Leahy, hereby certify that I contacted counsel for Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") by telephone and by electronic mail on February 22, 2001, and then again on February 28, 2001, in an effort to determine whether NCRIC would consent to Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center Inc.'s ("Columbia") proposal to amend the Scheduling Order. On March 1, 2001 counsel for NCRIC informed me by way of electronic mail that NCRIC would not consent to the modification of the Scheduling Order requested by Columbia, and counsel further clarified, on March 3, 2001, that NCRIC would not consent to any extension of the Scheduling Order beyond the current timetable.

MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY
BY PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS FROM DEFENDANT

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer, its attorney moves this Court pursuant to SCR Rule 37 and the procedures of the General Order for Civil II cases, for any order compelling defendant to produce documents it has agreed to produce but failed to produce as yet and to produce documents which it has refused to produce without legal justification under the Rules.

Nature of the Case. This is a case involving collection of insurance premiums unpaid by defendant for a program of medical malpractice insurance provided by plaintiff to defendant. Defendant defends and counterclaims primarily on the basis of plaintiff's failure to calculate the premiums correctly in accordance with the formulas of the contract. Defendant has sought to elevate these claimed contract breaches to breaches of a fiduciary duty as well as throwing in claims of defamation, commercial disparagement, and negligence.

In discovery, plaintiff has been attempting since October 2000 to obtain the documents which defendant has related to these claims and defendant's damages.

Procedural and Discovery Context for Plaintiff's Seeking to Compel Production.

Aside from defendant's simple failure vel non to produce documents and provide answers to interrogatories, there is a large discovery abuse being perpetrated by defendant in this case. Defendant is engaging in a pattern and process of discovery responses designed to preclude plaintiff from having enough time to obtain, evaluate, and conduct follow-up discovery and delay this case. Plaintiff began written discovery in this case in October 2000 with requests for admission, documents, and interrogatories. It received responses in November 2000 which were large objections and evasive based on claims of lack of understanding of what was being requested or that the discovery was premature. A fair reading of these responses suggests that defendant is feigning ignorance, lack of understanding, and misapprehension about the subject matters and claims of this suit in order to delay its discovery responses. After consultations and plaintiff's efforts to "clarify" what discovery is being requested through the filing of a 56 request second set of document requests in mid-January 2001, plaintiff still has no more than about a box and file of documents. Counsel for defendant has repeatedly stated that the documents are being produced on a "rolling" basis, meaning at defendant's own pace and pleasure.

The result is that despite beginning discovery early in this case, plaintiff still does not have all of defendant's responsive documents and has not been able to schedule or conduct depositions. This is consistent with defendant's strategy in this case which has been coupled with repeated requests for additional time and modifications of the Scheduling Order agreed to by it in January 2001. Defendant now seeks to further extend the discovery period because it has not initiated discovery until March 2001 and to blunt the effect of plaintiff's diligence in beginning early discovery by dragging its feet in production of documents to plaintiff which it agrees to produce while refusing to produce other basic documents and failing to supplement other discovery requests it has already acknowledged are proper. For example, plaintiff has requested documents and asked in interrogatories for the defendant's calculation of damages and correct calculation of premiums owed plaintiff. Not only has defendant responded that it cannot make these calculations because it lacks the data (which is in the hands of plaintiff and must be procured from plaintiff in discovery), but it has not initiated discovery until March 2001 to obtain the very data it claims it needs. The upshot is that plaintiff is prevented from obtaining discovery and must wait until defendant decides to put itself in a position to obtain the information before plaintiff can learn about defendant's damages. In this manner, and by this pattern of discovery abuse, defendant can effectively prevent plaintiff from learning about the substance of defendant's claims and control the pace of discovery. Thus, defendant's discovery abuse goes beyond simple failure to provide discovery but is de facto designed to delay this case as is the interest of a defendant (in poor financial condition by its own admission) who is claimed to owe money.

It is in this context and with this background, that the Court must approach the resolution of the below discovery disputes. The following are the discovery requests, responses and reasons for compelling the response

PLAINTIFF'S FIRST REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS

REQUEST NO. 3: Documents concerning or relating to any counterclaim, setoff, or recoupment you assert against plaintiff.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 3: See General Objections.[1/] Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. 3 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center further objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. Due to the lack of clarity of this request, Medical Center declines to produce documents in response to this Request as it is written, but will attempt to confer with counsel for Plaintiff to see if the Request can be clarified so as to enable Medical Center

The following General Objections apply to each and every document request and form an integral part of Medical Center's response to each document request:

1. Medical Center objects to Plaintiffs Requests insofar as they seek disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client privilege, the work-product privilege, the peer review privilege, the party-communication privilege or the investigative privilege. Medical Center also objects to Plaintiffs Requests insofar as they seek disclosure of information protected under the District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable law. Medical Center does not intend by its responses or objections, or by the inadvertent production of any privileged documents, to waive any protection to which it is entitled.

2. Medical Center objects to Plaintiff s Requests insofar as they are vague, ambiguous, overly broad, unduly burdensome, harassing, or not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence in this action.

3 . Medical Center objects to Plaintiff s Requests insofar as they seek the production of documents already in NCRIC's possession, custody or control.

4. Medical Center objects to Plaintiffs Requests insofar as they seek production of documents not in Medical Center's possession, custody, or control.

5. It should not be inferred from the form or substance of any objection or response contained herein that documents responsive to any particular request exist.

6. At this early stage of the litigation, Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to the litigation and anticipates that as the litigation proceeds, further information may be discovered. Thus, Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its objections and responses based on such pertinent information as it may subsequently discover.

to produce responsive documents.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: The defendant's response is evasive and incomplete. The privilege objections interposed are frivolous. The request seeks documents related to defendant's counterclaim or any credit by way of setoff or recoupment that defendant claims. Presumably, before filing its counterclaim in good faith, defendant conducted factual investigation including review of applicable documents. In addition, defendant knows the scope, extent and nature of its counterclaim better than plaintiff, which is now seeking to learn about them through discovery. Plaintiff seeks those documents which defendant knows or believes exist in its files which support the allegations of defendant's counterclaims. Assuming defendant understands what its own counterclaim is about, the request is not vague or ambiguous. Defendant's answer is merely an evasion of production of documents within its control.

Moreover, counsel consulted with each other as defendant stated it desired to do and defendant was informed that the documents being sought were those related to, concerning, or supporting the counterclaim of any type or description that defendant had in its possession.

The request for production was propounded about October 26, 2000. Defendant responded about November 27, 2000 without the production of any documents. Counsel consulted with each other on December 12 and 14, 2000 on the definition and scope of the request. To date, defendant has produced one box of documents on or about December 21, 2000 and one file of gathered documents on March 5, 2001. The documents as produced were not cross-referenced to correspond to the applicable categories as required by SCR 34(b) or in the files and manner kept in the usual course of business despite the plaintiff's request that this be done.

Defendant's production is untimely and evasive by its slowness and limited response. Defendant has failed to produce additional documents although its counsel has advised plaintiff that it is continuously in the process of review. Defendant's process of production is to review the documents on its own schedule and then produce as and when it accommodates defendant. Discovery is set to close on May 12, 2001. Plaintiff needs early production of documents in order to take depositions and prepare for dispositive motions and trial. Defendant's dilatory actual production of documents for inspection prejudices plaintiff's ability to prepare its case-in-defense to the counterclaim.

Defendant's raising of General Objections and particularly the objection of privilege is disingenuous because the instructions for plaintiff's document requests do not require the production of privileged documents, only the preparation of a privilege list as is required by Court rule and caselaw.

REQUEST NO. 4: Documents sent to or received [sic] anyone concerning or related to the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiff s claims, and (iii) your counterclaims in this action.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 4: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. 4 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center further objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. Moreover, the wording of the request, including without limitation the language "sent to or received anyone," renders the Request unintelligible. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will produce responsive, non-privileged documents concerning (i) NCRIC's claim, (ii) Medical Center's counterclaims, and/or (iii) Medical Center's defenses to NCRIC's claim, to the extent that such documents exist and are in Medical Center's possession, custody or control.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4. Defendant is deliberately evasive and disingenuous. It feigns lack of understanding. The requests are limited to the subject matters and claims of this action. Presumably, defendant understands the nature and scope of its defenses and counterclaim. The request does not ask for irrelevant documents about every topic. It requests documents about this case "sent to or received [from] anyone limited to materials that are in defendant's possession. Defendant is manufacturing excuses not to produce the documents which it must produce. It must be ordered to do so.

Even as to the documents it agrees to produce, defendant has not made a full production. Plaintiff requires a more rapid and timely production and requests the Court set a deadline for production consistent with the May 12, 2001 discovery completion deadline.

REQUEST NO. 5: Documents recording, evidencing, and related to oral communications with any person concerning the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiffs claims, and (iii) your counterclaims.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 5: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. 5 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center further objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will produce responsive, non-privileged documents concerning (i) NCRIC's claim, (ii) Medical Center's counterclaims, and/or (iii) Medical Center's defenses to NCRIC's claim, to the extent that such documents exist and are in Medical Center's possession, custody or control.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4 and 5. Plaintiff is entitled to have these documents in preparation for depositions during which the content may be inquired into.

REQUEST NO. 6: Documents identified in, related to, concerning or supporting any of your answers to the interrogatories propounded to you by defendant.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 6: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. 6 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center further objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will produce responsive, non-privileged documents, to the extent such documents exist and are within its possession, custody or

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4 and 5.

REQUEST NO. 7: Documents consulted in preparing any of your answers to the interrogatories of defendant to you.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 7: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. 7 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center further objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will produce responsive, non-privileged documents, to the extent such documents exist and are within its possession, custody or control.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4 and 5.

REQUEST NO. 9: Calendars, day timers, appointment books, and similar items, whether kept in written or electronic format concerning or relating to the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiff s claims, and (ill) your counterclaims in this action, and any allegations or statements in any pleading or paper filed in this case.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 9: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. 9 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous, and further, insofar as it seeks production of documents not in Medical Center's possession, custody, or control. Additionally, Medical Center objects to this Request, and will not respond thereto insofar as it is overly broad and seeks documents that have no conceivable relation to NCRIC's claim Medical Center's defenses thereto, or its counterclaims, and insofar as responding thereto would place an unreasonable burden on Medical Center. For example, as written this Request appears to seek production of any calendar which contains a statement that Medical Center is a non-profit health care facility. Due to overbreadth of this Request, Medical Center declines to produce documents in response to this Request as it is written, but will attempt to confer with counsel for Plaintiff to see if the Request can be limited so as to enable Medical Center to produce responsive documents.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4 and 5. Defendant is being deliberately evasive by interposing ridiculous arguments designed to evade timely production and feigning ignorance about the issues. For example, the request is directed at the issues and claims in this case. Yet defendant offers an makeweight example about calendars containing uncontested issues. What defendant is required to do is produce all the calendars in its possession which have entries about matters in this case.

After conferring with counsel no documents falling within this category have been produced, although the discovery and production is not difficult or particularly burdensome.

REQUEST NO. 10: Documents concerning or related to any affirmative defenses you assert in this action.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 10: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. IO and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous, and further, insofar as it seeks production of documents not in Medical Center's possession, custody, or control. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will produce responsive, non-privileged documents, to the extent such documents exist and are within its possession, custody or control.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4 and 5.

REQUEST NO. 11: Documents sent to or received from Michael Feldman of Riggs, Councilman, Michaels, & Downes.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 11: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Request No. I I and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client and/or the work product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Request insofar as it is vague and ambiguous, and further, insofar as it seeks production of documents not in Medical Center's possession, custody, or control. Additionally, Medical Center objects to this Request insofar as it seeks production of documents that have no conceivable relation to NCRIC's claim, Medical Center's defenses thereto, or its counterclaims, and insofar as responding thereto would place an unreasonable burden on Medical Center. For example, as written, this Request appears to seek production of all documents sent by anyone to Michael Feldman relating any insurance policies held by any client for which Mr. Feldman served as the broker. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will produce responsive, non-privileged documents concerning NCRIC's claim, Medical Center's defenses thereto, or its counterclaims that were sent to or received from Mr. Feldman, to the extent that such documents exist and are within its possession, custody or control.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 4 and 5.

PLAINTIFF'S SECOND REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS.[2/]

GROUP 1.

3. REQUEST: Financial statements, including profit and loss statements, cash

---

[2/] Defendant's responses to the document requests were repetitive in their content. Rather than repeat each separate answer, plaintiff has grouped all requests with the same answer together and provided the reasons for compelling a response in one place.

flow, balance sheets, and/or reports made to any bankruptcy court for or by defendant for the years 1995-2000.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No 3 insofar as it requests easily accessible public records and/or documents not in Columbia's possession. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff propounded the request on January 12, 2001. Defendant provided its response about February 14, 2001. It stated it would produce the documents. It simply has not. Plaintiff has not received any documents or been permitted to inspect any documents as yet. Defendant has not provided any date or timetable for inspection, other than it is reviewing the documents and they will be produced in a "rolling" fashion as defendant on its own schedule reviews them.

GROUP 2.

5. REQUEST: Federal income tax returns for the years 1995-2000.

6. REQUEST: Reports to any federal or state agency regarding income and expenses of defendant for the years 1995-2000.

9. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or related to the allegations of the second sentence of paragraph 20 about plaintiff's domination of the D.C. MMLI market and keeping customers away from Virginia and Maryland.

12. REQUEST: Documents evidencing the communication to plaintiff of defendant's reliance as alleged in paragraph 30.

15. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or evidencing defendant's requests for actuarial certifications or verifications received by defendant from plaintiff as alleged in paragraphs 35 and 37.

19. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or evidencing plaintiff's awareness of defendant's financial condition and the ultimatum as alleged in paragraph 57.

20. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or evidencing defendant's efforts to obtain or discover alternative sources of MMLI insurance during the period of Fall 1997 through the end of 1998.

21. REQUEST: Documents sent to or received from Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange during 1997-1999.

25. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing plaintiff's efforts to gain leverage over defendant as alleged in paragraph 73.

26. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing the composition, actions, and communications of the committee described in paragraph 80.

30. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or about the allege that cancellation of the Policy as alleged in paragraph 86.

34. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing local media communications with defendant's personnel, doctors, staff, nurses, and executives in 1999-2000 concerning defendant's financial condition, loss of doctors and patients, closing of defendant's operations, and similar topics.

35. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing efforts to recruit physicians and staff during 1999-2000.

39. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing sources of income, expenses, creditors, accounts receivable, accounts payable, for the period 1998-2000.

40. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing the substantial economic loss sustained by defendant as alleged in paragraphs 158 and 163.

41. REQUEST: Documents on which you base your allegations in paragraphs 128 and 134 you lost revenues or suffered economic loss.

47. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing any false representations and concealment by plaintiff as alleged in paragraph 142.

48. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing any reliance by defendant on representations of plaintiff described in the counterclaims.

53. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing defendant's loss of reputation in the medical or general community.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

GROUP 3.

7. REQUEST: Documents sent or provided by defendant to any financial institution or other source of credit, loans, or financing for the years 1995-2000.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia also objects to this request insofar as it is overly burdensome. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

GROUP 4.

10. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or related to the allegations of paragraph 24 about representation of plaintiff.

11. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or related to the allegations of paragraph 29 numbered (1) through (4).

29. REQUEST: Minutes of the board of directors of defendant during the period 1993 to date concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing any fact or allegation , defendant's financial condition, defendant's search for MMLI insurance, negotiations with plaintiff about MMLI insurance or changes to an existing policy.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No; 10 insofar as it calls for documents dated or created prior to October 1, 1993 that are irrelevant and not calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 3 In Group 1.

GROUP 5.

18. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, or evidencing plaintiff's failure and errors as alleged in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence).

RESPONSE: See Genera]. Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No.18 and will not respond thereto insofar as calls for documents in NCRIC's possession that are not in Columbia's possession and/or that Columbia has already produced. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

GROUP 6.

28. REQUEST: Documents sent to or received from defendant's board of directors or executive officers by the committee described in paragraph 80.

38. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing defendant's claim or calculation of Return Premium due it from plaintiff from 1993 to date.

42. REQUEST: Documents sent to or received from any federal, D.C., or state regulatory or administrative agency concerning or related to defendant's financial condition, MMLI insurance, Attending Faculty or other physicians, and plaintiff.

43. REQUEST: Documents supporting, concerning, or containing references to or descriptions of reconciliations of premium whether sent to or received from plaintiff or others, or prepared by or for defendant.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No. 28 insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-clientwork product or peer-review privileges. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Plaintiff incorporates herein its reasons set forth with regard to Request No. 3 In Group 1.

GROUP 7.

44. REQUEST: Documents supporting, concerning, or containing references to or descriptions of any discounts requested or given by plaintiff to defendant, including documents regarding or concerning the January 1, 1996 amendment, subsequent addenda dealing with discounts applied to the Deposit Premium, and corrections of the Deposit discount or percentage factor.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No. 44 to the extent it is ambiguous and rests on a false premise (i.e. no discounts were "requested or given by plaintiff to defendant"). Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

GROUP 8.

45. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing the financial and cash position of defendant before and after paying plaintiff in early 1998.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No.45 insofar as it calls for information that exists only as raw data and has not been compiled by Columbia, to the extent that production thereof would be overly burdensome and not calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents.

GROUP 9.

49. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing and audit by any accountant, government agency or otherwise of defendant during 1995-2000.

50. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing requests for data and back-up information from, or audits of plaintiff made by defendant.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No. 49 insofar as it is ambiguous. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will produce responsive, non-privileged documents

GROUP 10.

51. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing special damages suffered by defendant as a result of any defamatory act or statement by plaintiff.

52. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing special damages suffered by defendant as a result of any negligent act or statement by plaintiff.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to this request and will not respond thereto insofar as it requires a legal conclusion.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: This request seeks documents supporting or related to the damages that defendant claims to have suffered by the acts of plaintiff. In particular, the discovery sought goes to the counterclaims of defendant on defamation and negligent misrepresentation in Counterclaim Counts 9 and 10: Defamation and Libel; Negligent Misrepresentation. In addition to any general damages due to loss of reputation in the community, plaintiff seeks to discovery any special or identifiable damages that defendant will claim as a proximate result of the acts complained of.

Defendants answer is deliberately and calculatedly evasive. Defendant knows that what plaintiff seeks is an itemization of specific damages attributable to the wrongful acts. Defendant is just avoiding the provision of this information because it does not have it or hopes to fish it up through discovery from plaintiff. The evidence sought is directly relevant to the issues in the case and plaintiff's defense to the counterclaims. The apparent "legal conclusion" required is the meaning of "special damages." Even if plaintiff had not told defendant what it was seeking, this objection is not well taken since defendant knows it must prove special damages in its case-in-chief on the counterclaim.

54. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing any analysis, evaluation, critique, or assessment of defendant's performance, delivery and quality of medical services during 1993-2000.

RESPONSE: See General Objections. Columbia specifically objects to Request No.54 and will not respond thereto insofar as it calls for documents that are irrelevant and not calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence in this action.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Defendant has claimed injury to its reputation through defamation and disparagement by plaintiff. Documents critiquing and assessing defendant's performance, delivery and quality of medical services during 1993-2000 is directly relevant to its reputation and supports the defense of truth and accuracy to any statements plaintiff may have made. Such documents include reports made to or evaluations conducted by federal and District of Columbia regulatory agencies as part of routine assessments for participation in government reimbursement programs. Similarly, there may be other evaluations performed by defendant itself or other persons at defendant's request.

56. REQUEST: Documents concerning, supporting, identifying, or evidencing fee arrangements with attorneys which form the basis of any claim for attorneys' fees in this case, including payments already made.

RESPONSE: Sec General Objections Columbia specifically objects to Request No 56 and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks production of documents protected in whole or in part by the attorney-client or work product privileges. Columbia also objects to this request and will not respond thereto insofar as it calls for documents that are not relevant at this juncture and not calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

BASIS FOR COMPELLING RESPONSE: Defendant's have demanded attorneys' fees as a part of their judgment and award against plaintiff. Defendant suggests the claim for attorneys' fees may be presented on two separate bases: compensatory damages for breach of fiduciary duty in miscalculation of the insurance premiums or under SCR 11. See defendant's Supplemental Memorandum in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims at 25. As a part of its damage claim, defendant must present this element of damages as part of its case-in-chief on the counterclaim. Plaintiff is entitled to discover and must be permitted to discovery the basis and facts underlying the claim so that it may defend against them by challenging the facts: time spent, necessity of work done, etc. In addition, an element of the proof is the fairness and reasonableness of the fee arrangements. For this plaintiff is entitled to learn in discovery the basis for the fee arrangements with the defendant and on which defendant is basing this element of its damage claim. Moreover, this information is also needed so that defendant will not be able to claim one basis for recovery of attorneys' fees as damages while actually incurring less fees on a different basis. Defendant raised the issue and insists on its legal validity. It must produce these relevant documents or surrender the claim.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays that this Court enter an order compelling defendant to produce the documents in response to the above requests and that defendant pay plaintiff its reasonable attorneys' fees caused by having to file this motion and obtain an order compelling discovery.

CERTIFICATION OF GOOD FAITH EFFORTS TO SECURE DISCOVERY AND RESOLVE DISCOVERY DISPUTES WITH DEFENDANT

The undersigned counsel hereby certifies that he made good faith efforts to secure the defendant's production of documents and to resolve the discovery disputes with defendant through the following actions:

1. Plaintiff received defendant's responses to plaintiff's First Set of Requests for Production of Documents after November 27, 2000. See attached Exhibit A. On December 12 and 14, 2000, counsel for plaintiff telephoned counsel for defendant to discuss the failure of response to the documents requests and when documents would actually be produced for inspection.

2. Defendant produced copies of documents about December 21, 2000 (notice of which was received by plaintiff's counsel on December 27, 2000) and advised plaintiff it would produce additional documents within "the next few weeks." See attached

Exhibit B. On December 22, 2000, counsel for plaintiff again telephoned counsel for defendant to inquire when the remainder of documents would be produced and what those documents would be. Defendant maintained it did not understand the substance of the requests per it objections and requested plaintiff to submit more detailed descriptions of the documents requested.

3. In an effort to avoid further delay in discovery and a further discovery dispute, plaintiff filed a Second Request for Production of Documents with 56 itemized descriptions of documents with cross-references to paragraphs of the counterclaim.

4. About January 12, 2001, defendant made a second installment production of 105 pages of documents. See attached Exhibit C.

5. On January 17, 2001, counsel for plaintiff wrote defendant requesting that the production comply with SCR 34 in the documents be produced as kept in the course of business or produce them organized and labeled to correspond to the numbers of the requests. See attached Exhibit D. In a telephone conversation with counsel for defendant, plaintiff advised that the Second Document Request did not supersede the First Set Defendant acknowledged this and promised a forthcoming additional production of documents. See attached Exhibit E.

6. On February 7 and 12, 2001, counsel for plaintiff again requested production of documents and a date for the production in telephone calls.

7. Defendant filed its responses to the Second Request for Production of Documents on February 14, 2001. No documents accompanied the filing and no date or timetable was provided when the production or inspection would take place.

8. Counsel for plaintiff telephoned defendant's attorney on February 22, 2001 to discuss production in response to the Second Request and to raise the issues of a motion to compel plaintiff intended to file. During this telephone call, plaintiff and defendant set the date of March 6, 2001 at 9:00 a.m. as the date and time of the face-to-face meeting in compliance with SCR 37. Counsel for plaintiff agreed to meet at counsel for defendant's office in order to facilitate the meeting and compliance with the Court's rules and orders.

9. On March 5, 2001, counsel for defendant advised plaintiff that resolution of dispute issues at the schedule March 6 meeting was unlikely. Defendant then cancelled the meeting. The parties then exchanged letters regarding a meeting. See attached Exhibits F-H. No meeting was ultimately held.

10. Defendant did not attend the previously scheduled face-to-face meeting on March 6 arranged by plaintiff as a required predicate to the filing of its motion to compel. Counsel for plaintiff had cleared his calendar for March 6 and was not available for a subsequent meeting as proposed by defendant after its actions had made the scheduled meeting impossible.

11. Counsel for plaintiff has made good faith efforts to comply with the Court's Rules and General Orders regarding a face-to-face meeting to promote resolution of discover matters as a precondition to filing a motion to compel. Defendant's responses have negated those efforts and will result in an additional delay for rescheduling while the discovery closure deadline is impending.

12. Plaintiff by the foregoing has extended itself to comply with spirit of the discovery rules, but has been thwarted by defendant. Plaintiff's actions meet the spirit of SCR 37 and the Court's Track II General Order.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. hereby produces to Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. documents bearing Bates numbers CHWMC 000001 through CHWMC 000889 in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories. As per your request, the documents are being produced to David Osborn. Forthcoming are (1) a list of the non-responsive documents that were pulled from this Bates range; and (2) a chart reflecting the documents that were withheld on grounds of privilege.

I anticipate that Medical Center will produce additional documents the next few weeks. Further, Medical Center reserves its right to supplement its document productions at any time.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call me at (202) 326-7924.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Please find enclosed the following:

1. a list of the Bates Numbers of non-responsive documents that were pulled from Medical Center's first (12/21/00) document production to NCRIC;

2. Medical Center's second production of documents (bearing Bates Numbers from CHWMC 000890 to CHWMC 000985) in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories; and

3. a number of pages that were inadvertently withheld from, and a page that was mistakenly redacted in, Medical Center's first document production to NCRIC (all such pages bear Bates Numbers between CHWMC 000001 to CHWMC 000889).

A log describing the documents that were withheld from the first and second productions on grounds of privilege is forthcoming.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc.: Format of production of documents

Dear Joe:

I am writing you to request that defendant's production of documents comply with SCR 34 in the manner of production. Rule 34 offers you the option to produce documents as they are kept in the usual course of business. Since you are reviewing and selecting documents for production, it is clear that this method is not being elected.

The other option is to "organize and label them [the documents produced] to correspond with the categories in the requests. You have not been designating for which categories the documents are being produced. I am requesting that you do so for the documents already produced and follow this procedure for all future productions.

Sincerely yours,

Roy I. Niedermayer

Dear Roy:

Please find enclosed Defendant's Supplemental Responses to Plaintiff's First Set of Interrogatories.

I also write to confirm that, as per your request, Columbia Hospital will not treat NCRIC's Second Requests for Production of Documents as a superceding the First Requests for Production of Documents. Pursuant to the instructions of the Second Request, Columbia will provide a written response, as required by the Superior Court Rules, within 30 days of service.

Finally, in response to your letter dated January 17, 2001, please find enclosed a listing of the location and custodian for each document Columbia produced in its first document production (12/20/00). Forthcoming is a list with regard to the second production. In all other respects, these documents were produced in the order in which they were kept in the ordinary course of business. See D.C. Sup. Ct. Rule 34(c).

Dear Roy:

I write to inform you that, upon further consideration, in response to document requests 51 and 52 of NCRIC's Second Request of Plaintiff to Defendant for Production of Documents, Columbia will produce any responsive, non-privileged documents relating to its damages that it has in its possession, custody or control. However, Columbia will not specify at this time which documents, if any, relate to special damages for negligence and defamation.

In addition, as we discussed this afternoon, Columbia agrees to waive, solely in this instance, Judge Davis's requirement of a face-to-face conference regarding discovery disputes. We have discussed Columbia's responses to NCRIC's document requests fully on the telephone, twice, and I am convinced that a meeting we scheduled tomorrow morning is unlikely to result in any resolution of our dispute regarding these document requests. Based on our conversation this morning, I understand that you agree. Therefore, the meeting is canceled by mutual consent.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc.: Meeting of Counsel pursuant to Court procedures to resolve discovery issues

Dear Joe:

I am in receipt of you faxed letter of March 5, 2001 received by my office at 3:30 a.m. on March 6, 2001. This is a follow up to my telephone call to you of this morning.

I must respectfully disagree with the characterization of our discussion as reflected in your last sentence as incorrect or a misunderstanding on your part.

You informed me that defendant was not substantially changing its position on the discovery issues raised by me and that a face-to-face meeting as required by SCR 37 and the Court's General Order would not result in any further resolution. I reminded you that the Court required such a meeting in order for me to proceed with filing a Motion to Compel and that I was prepared to attend the meeting in fulfillment of the Court's requirements. I did not consent to the cancellation of the meeting; I acknowledged your communication to me that conducting the meeting, except to meet the requirements of the rule, would be a futile and nugatory exercise for which you did not want to spend the time even though I had agreed to come to your office. Having been informed of this, I agreed that, with your expression of the lack of any value of meeting, there was nothing to be accomplished by meeting face-to-face and that I would proceed to file my motion forthwith.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

I am perplexed by your letter and telephone call today.

I did not insist that our meeting scheduled for this morning be canceled, nor did I cancel the meeting for my convenience. I simply offered, as a courtesy to you, to waive the requirement of a face-to-face meeting. As I explained, I do not believe such a meeting would be fruitful in this instance. When we spoke, I thought that you agreed with me that a face-to-face meeting would be pointless, and further, I thought you appreciated my attempt to save you a trip downtown.

Apparently, however, you are concerned that Columbia's waiver of the face-to-face meeting requirement will be ineffective. If so, by all means, we can meet regarding our discovery dispute. I am available tomorrow morning at 10 a.m., if necessary. In any event, if you decide to file your motion to compel without meeting, Columbia will not oppose the motion on the grounds that counsel did not meet in person to discuss the matter.

Sincerely,

Joseph K. Leahy

PLAINTIFF'S RULE 26 (b) (4) STATEMENT

Pursuant to the Court's Scheduling Order dated January 12, 2001, plaintiff submits its Rule 26 (b) (4) Statement and designates the following persons as its experts for trial:

1. James McGuire, Esq.
   750 Seventh Avenue
   New York, New York 10019-6829

   A copy of Mr. McGuire's C.V. is attached.

Subject Matter of Testimony: Mr. McGuire may testify about (1) methods, bases, formulas, and other criteria for setting loss reserves by plaintiff and insurers for medical professional liability claims in the District of Columbia; (2) the validity and correctness of the loss reserves set by plaintiff generally and in accordance with its contract with defendant; (3) national, regional and District of Columbia industry standards for setting loss reserves for medical malpractice insurance claims; and (4) the validity and correctness of the loss reserves set by plaintiff in accordance with its contract with defendant in light of national, regional and District of Columbia industry standards for setting loss reserves for medical malpractice insurance.

Substance of Facts and Opinions: The loss reserves set by plaintiff under the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance with defendant were adequate, proper and correct in their amount and calculation based upon the insurance industry methods, bases, formulas, and other criteria for setting loss reserves under national criteria and conditions prevailing in the District of Columbia market. Mr. McGuire may also testify that the loss reserves set for each individual claim covered by defendant's Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement for insurance were conservative, but adequate and correct under the terms of the agreement between the parties and national, regional, and District of Columbia loss reserve criteria and standards and could reasonably have been raised for the cases involving the defendant.

Summary of Basis for Opinions: Mr. McGuire's opinions are based on his education and experience as a professional practicing in this area and engaged to review loss reserves for insurance and reinsurance companies. As part of his professional services he regularly analyzes and assesses the amounts and necessity for loss reserves for insurance claims under policies insuring against medical negligence. In addition, Mr. McGuire has reviewed the calculation and level of 10 years of loss reserves of plaintiff. He has specifically reviewed and analyzed the specific individual claims made against doctors practicing at Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center and covered by the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement with NCRIC in light of applicable legal standards, insurance industry criteria/formulas, and actuarial requirements.

2. James D. Hurley
Tillinghast-Towers Perrin
One Atlanta Plaza
950 East Paces Ferry Road
Atlanta, GA 30326-1119

A copy of Mr. Hurley's C.V. is attached.

Subject Matter of Testimony: Mr. Hurley may testify about the same subject matter as Mr. Hurley. In addition, Mr. Hurley will testify about the proper calculation of the premiums under the formula in the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement including the mathematical and actuarial computation of the deposit factors to be applied under the formula in accordance with the premium discount negotiated and agreed to between the parties.

Substance of Facts and Opinions: Mr. Hurley concurs in the opinions expressed by Mr. McGuire. In addition, Mr. Hurley has verified a mathematical and actuarial analysis to arrive at the proper deposit factor to be used in the calculation of premiums. He may testify that several deposit factors described in the contract may be mathematically and actuarially inaccurate to reflect the agreed percentage discount negotiated between the parties.

Summary of Basis for Opinions: Mr. Hurley's opinions are based on his education and experience as an independent actuary providing services to insurance companies setting premium and discount rates, and setting or adjusting loss reserves. In addition, Mr. Hurley has audited and reviewed the loss reserves of plaintiff for several years and specifically reviewed and analyzed the specific individual claims made under the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement against applicable legal standards, insurance industry criteria/formulas, and actuarial requirements. Mr. Hurley has calculated the proper level of premium and development factors applicable to the calculation of the retro premium under the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement.

Mr. Hurley's consulting experience includes standard pricing and reserving assignments, special risk modeling and new product development and pricing. He has assisted state insurance departments in review of ratemaking methods and company reserving levels. Other consulting assignments, with specialization in the professional liability area, include captive insurer feasibility studies, financial modeling, self-insurance funding, development of experience and retrospective rating plans and valuation of insurance company economic worth.

Prior work experience includes activities in both corporate and pricing areas at varying levels of responsibility with several companies, including large multiple line property-casualty insurers as well as an insurer specializing in professional liability coverage. Areas of responsibility included preparation of financial statements, corporate planning, pro forma financial projections, analysis and development of reinsurance programs, interaction with state regulators on corporate and pricing matters and supervision and direction of accounting and data processing functions.

In earning his B.S. in actuarial science, Mr. Hurley participated in a five-year work-study program sponsored by a large, multiple line property-casualty insurer. During this period, he spent approximate six month assignments at increasing levels of responsibilities in the following areas: rating, statistical reporting, accounting (premium and expense), data processing, corporate research, market research, as well as in the actuarial area.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITRIES IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO COMPEL

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes the Motion to Compel Discovery by Production of Documents from Defendant ("Motion to Compel") of Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), and states as follows.

Preliminary Statement

NCRIC's Motion to Compel must be denied in its entirety due to NCRIC's blatant disregard for the procedure for filing such motions. Prior to filing the motion, counsel for NCRIC never raised with opposing counsel – much less made a good faith effort to meet and confer about – virtually all of the 60-plus discovery requests raised in the motion. Under this Court's rules, the sanction for this failure is clear: the motion must be summarily denied.

Yet, even if this court were to address the merits of NCRIC's Motion to Compel (which it should not, lest NCRIC believe it may violate this Court's rules without sanction), the motion should be denied because NCRIC's contentions lack merit. Most of NCRIC's first discovery requests are improper, and Columbia is reasonably complying with the rest of NCRIC's requests.

Factual Background

NCRIC's First Document Requests

The basic facts of this is a complex commercial case are set forth in Columbia's Amended Answer and Counterclaims (filed January 3, 2001). The general procedural history of the case is set forth in Columbia's pending Motion to Amend Scheduling Order (filed March 12, 2001). The case centers around an incredibly complicated agreement between the parties that lowered the cost of medical malpractice insurance to Columbia's physicians (it did not involve provision of insurance to Columbia, as NCRIC's Motion to Compel states), and the fiduciary relationship that evolved out of the agreement. This relationship lasted for seven years.[1]

NCRIC filed its initial complaint on October 3, 2000, and served three discovery requests on Columbia, including its First Requests for Production of Documents ("First Document Requests") on October 26, 2000 – prior to receiving Columbia's initial Answer and Counterclaims on November 7, 2000.[2] Columbia provided written responses to all of NCRIC's discovery requests in a timely fashion, on November 27, 2000.

Thereafter, as indicated the Certification of Good Faith Efforts to Secure Discovery and Resolve Discovery Disputes with Defendant ("Certification") attached to NCRIC's motion, counsel for the parties discussed NCRIC's First Document Requests and Columbia's responses thereto on the telephone. In particular, counsel discussed requests number 3, 4 and 9, which were so vague and ambiguous that Columbia had been unable to respond thereto. In these conversations, counsel for Columbia maintained that NCRIC's requests lacked reasonable particularity. Counsel for Columbia agreed that some documents (e.g., correspondence between [1] Due to the long duration of the agreement, and the financial crises Columbia faced in the intervening years (e.g., bankruptcy, changes in administration, loss of many staff), Columbia's investigation of the facts is continuing.

the parties) clearly were responsive to the document requests, but explained that NCRIC's failure to request specific types of documents left Columbia uncertain what other documents were responsive. Nonetheless, counsel for Columbia agreed to endeavor to locate and produce documents responsive to all the requests, in order to avoid discovery disputes.

At no time during the conversations regarding First Document Requests did counsel for NCRIC indicate that a motion to compel was imminent. To the contrary, each time counsel discussed when Columbia would produce documents, counsel for Columbia stated "as soon as possible" and counsel for NCRIC indicated that NCRIC would "wait and see" whether it was satisfied with the production, and act accordingly. Counsel for NCRIC never indicated that it was dissatisfied with the timing of Columbia's document productions. Counsel for Columbia was given absolutely no forewarning that counsel for NCRIC would move to compel.

As stated in the Certification, counsel for the parties conferred telephonically on February 22, 2001. However, counsel for NCRIC never mentioned any concerns about the First Document Requests in that conversation. Nor did counsel for NCRIC – on February 22 or any other date -- propose to meet regarding any specific requests among the First Document Requests. In the only part of the conversation that conceivably related to the First Document Requests (which counsel for Columbia understood to pertain solely to the Second Document Requests), counsel for NCRIC asked if Columbia would produce documents "on a date certain," and counsel for Columbia stated that Columbia planned to continue producing documents on a rolling schedule. Counsel for NCRIC did not object to a rolling production, or state that a more rapid or certain schedule was required. Counsel for NCRIC also never – on February 22 or any other date – proposed a different schedule to Columbia, or suggested that the parties meet to [2] Columbia's time to file an Answer and Counterclaims was extended to November 7, 2000, by an order of this Court upon a consent motion. NCRIC requested, and received, consent for an extension of time to file its reply.

16d-000472

develop a schedule, or indicated that NCRIC would ask the court to order a more rapid schedule. Accordingly, when NCRIC moved to compel production of documents requested in its First Document Requests, counsel for Columbia was taken completely by surprise.

NCRIC's Second Document Requests

On January 12, 2001, NCRIC served on Columbia its Second Requests for Production of Documents ("Second Document Requests"). Columbia provided written responses thereto in a timely fashion, on February 14, 2001. Since most of the Second Document Requests were not lacking in reasonable particularity, Columbia objected to few of these requests on those grounds.

On February 22, 2001, counsel for the parties discussed NCRIC's Second Document Requests and Columbia's responses over the telephone, as indicated the Certification. However, the Certification fails to explain that, in this conversation, counsel only discussed 9 of the 56 specific requests in the Second Document Requests. See infra. NCRIC never raised any disputes regarding any of the other requests. Further, for all but four of the requests, counsel for NCRIC never proposed – on February 22 or on or any other date -- that the parties meet and confer in an attempt to resolve their disputes.

Moreover, as explained supra, when counsel for Columbia stated that Columbia would continue a rolling document production, counsel for NCRIC made no objection whatsoever. Counsel for NCRIC never indicated that a certain, or more rapid, schedule was required. Nor did counsel for NCRIC ever, on any date, propose a different schedule, or suggest that the parties meet to develop a schedule, or indicate that NCRIC would move to compel a more rapid or definite production. Accordingly, when NCRIC moved to compel with regard to almost all of the documents requested in the Second Document Requests, counsel for Columbia was taken completely by surprise. As explained infra, counsel for Columbia understood that NCRIC would move to compel solely with respect to four, specific document requests.

Disputes in the Second Document Requests

On February 22, 2001, the parties discussed document requests 2, 4, 37, 47, 49, 51, 52, 54 and 56 of NCRIC's Second Document Requests. Counsel to NCRIC requested clarification regarding some requests; for others, NCRIC provided clarification to counsel for Columbia. Counsels came to an agreement, and Columbia agreed to produce documents in response to, all of these document requests except requests 51, 52, 54 and 56, which Columbia maintained were improper. Subsequently, in the spirit of compromise, counsel for Columbia agreed to produce documents in response to requests 51 and 52. See Letter from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I. Niedermayer, dated March 5, 2001 (attached to NCRIC's Motion to Compel as Exhibit F). Accordingly, the only remaining disputes between the parties involved requests 54 and 56.

As set forth in the Certification, counsels agreed to meet about the remaining two discovery disputes on March 6, 2000. On March 5, 2001, counsel for Columbia informed counsel for NCRIC – and later confirmed in a letter (attached to NCRIC's Motion to Compel as Exhibit F) – that, as a professional courtesy, Columbia would waive the meeting regarding the remaining two discovery disputes, because they had been discussed at length and no resolution seemed possible.[3] In a subsequent letter, counsel for NCRIC mischaracterized this effort as a refusal to meet and confer. See Letter from Roy I. Niedermayer to Joseph K. Leahy, March 6, 2001 (attached to NCRIC's Motion to Compel as Exhibit G). Counsel for Columbia then offered, repeatedly, to reschedule the meeting. See Letter from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I.

[3] Columbia's offer to waive the requirement of a face-to-face discovery meeting required by the Rules implicitly related only to the two remaining items disputed items discussed on the between the parties on February 22, 2001. Had counsel for Columbia known that NCRIC would move to compel with regard to all of its discovery requests, rather that the two remaining discovery disputes, counsel for Columbia would have insisted on a meeting.

Niedermayer, March 6, 2001 (attached to NCRIC's Motion to Compel as Exhibit H); Letter from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I. Niedermayer, dated March 7, 2001 (attached hereto as Exhibit A). In a March 9, 2001 telephone call, counsel for NCRIC stated there was no need to meet, because the situation would be addressed in the Certification. However, counsel for NCRIC failed to mention in the Certification that opposing counsels never discussed, on February 22, 2001 or any other date, the vast majority of discovery requests on which NCRIC now moves to compel.

Document Productions

Columbia has produced documents in good faith in response to both of NCRIC's requests. Columbia has made three productions of documents in response to NCRIC's requests – on December 22, 2000, on January 12, 2000, and on March 14, 2000.[4] Columbia plans to make another production of documents in the first week of April. Columbia has produced, and expects to continue to produce, documents on a rolling schedule, i.e., as quickly as possible in light of its difficult financial situation. However, Columbia is willing to agree to set a reasonable schedule, and would have attempted to do so in good faith if NCRIC had attempted to meet and confer.

Argument

NCRIC's Motion Must Be Dismissed For Failure to Meet and Confer

This Court's rule is crystal clear: if a party fails to make a good faith effort to meet and confer regarding the issues to be raised in a motion to compel, the motion will be "summarily denied." See General Order for Civil II Cases on All Calendars, at 2; see also D.C. Sup. Ct. R. of Civ. P. 37(a). This rule promotes judicial economy by encouraging parties to work out problems between themselves, rather than waste this Court's time with every minor dispute.

[4] Between the second and third productions counsel for Columbia was occupied by responding to NCRIC's multiple motions, including a dispositive motion, and by preparing Columbia's discovery requests.

Here, counsel for NCRIC made no attempt to meet and confer regarding the vast majority of the issues it raises in its motion to compel. Although counsel for Columbia agreed to forego a meeting regarding two outstanding discovery disputes, by no stretch of the imagination did Columbia' courtesy give NCRIC license to move with regard to nearly all of its document requests, including many requests the parties never discussed. Rather, NCRIC was required, like every other litigant, to attempt in good faith to meet and confer before moving to compel.

Due to NCRIC's blatant failure to meet and confer, this court should summarily deny NCRIC's Motion to Compel. Counsel for NCRIC knew full well of the obligation to meet and confer, as evidence by the parties' initial agreement to meet and confer regarding the outstanding four (now two) discovery disputes. However, counsel made no attempt whatsoever to meet and confer regarding Columbia's schedule for producing documents. Indeed, counsel for NCRIC never informed counsel for Columbia that NCRIC required a faster production schedule, or that NCRIC would move to compel a faster schedule under any circumstances. Rather, NCRIC has taken advantage of Columbia's courtesy, by attempting to move to compel virtually all of its requests for production, when the parties discussed only a few of those requests.

Had counsel for NCRIC attempted to met and confer with counsel for Columbia, or propose a reasonable production schedule to counsel for Columbia (or at least, inform counsel for Columbia that it planned to move to compel a more rapid schedule), the parties might have met to agree to a definite, yet reasonable, production schedule – and this matter never would have come before the Court. In the interest of judicial economy, NCRIC must be required to make an effort to resolve all discovery issues it plans to raise before it moves to compel.[5]

NCRIC's Motion Must Be Dismissed Because All of Its Arguments Are Meritless

Many of the First Document Requests Are Invalid
Because They Are Not Reasonably Particular

All requests for documents must be reasonable. Amount other things, document requests must be reasonably particular.[6] See D.C. Sup. Ct. R. Civ. Pro. 34(b) ("The request shall set forth, either by individual item or by category, the items to be [produced], and describe each item and category with reasonable particularity.") Simply put, this means that the requesting party must provide enough specifics in its document requests so that the responding party can locate and produce responsive documents with a reasonable amount of effort. See Kidwiler v. Progressive Paloverde Ins. Co., 192 F.R.D. 193, 202 (N.D. W. Va. 2000) (explaining that the "test for reasonable particularity is whether the request places the party on reasonable notice of what is called for and what is not. . . . the party requesting the production of documents must provide sufficient information to enable the party to whom the request is directed to identify responsive documents" (internal quotation marks omitted)). Of course, NCRIC is not required to ask by every document specifically. However, it was required to describe categories of documents with sufficient particularity so they could be identified and produced by Columbia.

[5] A failure to comply with the meet and confer requirement is not a mere technical violation, which can be cured while the motion is pending. Rather, it is well established that the proper procedure is to dismiss the motions (without prejudice) and required that the motion be refiled after the movant complies with the rule. See, e.g., Alexander v. FBI, 186 F.R.D. 99, 101 (D.D.C. 1998) ("motion must be denied without prejudice to renewal after compliance with meet and confer rule); Alexander v. FBI, 186 F.R.D. 185, 187 (D.D.C. 1999) (denying motion to compel for failure to comply with meet and confer rule). If not, the rule would be rendered toothless.

[6] In its responses to NCRIC's first and second document requests, Columbia also objected to those document requests on numerous other grounds. Columbia hereby incorporates those objections by reference into this motion. Columbia reserves the right to present to this Court any of its other objections to NCRIC's requests for documents.

Here, requests 3, 4, 5, 6 and 10 of NCRIC's First Document Requests are improper because they because they fail to describe with reasonably particularity the categories of documents requested. Indeed, several of these requests are classic examples of requests that lack any particularity whatsoever. For example, Request 3 asks for all "[d]ocuments concerning or relating to any counterclaim, setoff, or recoupment" asserted against NCRIC. See First Document Requests, at 2. Such broad requests are "regularly stricken as too ambiguous." Parsons v. Jefferson-Pilot Corp., 141 F.R.D. 408, 411 (M.D. N.C. 1992). Other requests ask, for example, for correspondence or communications "concerning or related to the subject matter of (i) this action, [Columbia's] defenses to [NCRIC's] claims, and (iii) [Columbia's] counterclaims in this action." See First Document Requests, at 2. Such requests are too lacking in detail to be reasonably particular. See St. Paul Reinsurance Co. v. Commercial Fin. Corp., 198 F.R.D. 508, 514 (N.D. Iowa 2000); Kidwiler, 192 F.R.D. at 202; Fishel v. BASF Group, 175 F.R.D. 525, 531 (S.D. Iowa 1997); Robbins v. Camden City Bd. of Educ., 105 F.R.D. 49, 60 (D.N.J. 1985).[7] Accordingly, NCRIC's motion to compel production of documents in response to these requests should be denied.[8] Moreover, these documents should be stricken.

[7] It is no wonder that NCRIC failed to provide sufficient particularity in its First Document Requests: NCRIC served these requests before it received Columbia's Answer and Counterclaims. As a result, NCRIC's First Document Requests stand in stark contrast to its Second Document Requests, which it served after receiving Columbia's counterclaims. Most of the second requests are reasonably particular because the request a specific category of documents, see, e.g., Request 6 ("Federal income tax returns for the years 1995-2000"), or relate to a specific set of circumstances or events, see, e.g., Request 7 ("Documents sent or provided by [Columbia] to any financial institution or other source of credit, loans or financing for the years 1995-2000.").

[8] Columbia has struggled to identify documents in response to these ambiguous requests. Once anecdote is telling: several legal assistants – all of whom were trained as lawyers – attempted to locate responsive documents at Columbia after receiving a copy of the document requests and detailed instructions from counsel for Columbia. The assistants returned to counsel's office with six boxes of documents. Some time later, after the documents were copied, counsel for Columbia reviewed the documents. Upon careful review, counsel for Columbia determined that the great bulk of the documents obtained by the assistants (e.g., a NCRIC annual report) were not responsive. Only about one sixth of those documents were responsive. The assistants' trouble was not due a lack of training or instruction (both were adequate), but rather, NCRIC's failure to describe documents with reasonable particularity.

In addition, NCRIC's requests 54 and 56, the only requests to which Columbia currently objects and refuses to produce documents, are invalid. In request 54, NCRIC requests documents concerning any analysis of Columbia's delivery of services. However, these documents are entirely irrelevant because Columbia's allegations relate solely to rumors regarding its quality of its services, not the actual quality of its services; further NCRIC has not raised as an affirmative defense the truth of any of these rumors. In addition, any documents in Columbia's files are no proof or evidence of rumors, since they are strictly internal.

NCRIC's requests 56 is invalid because it misapprehends Columbia's request for legal fees and baldly misconstrues its own request. Columbia's request for legal fees – which could have been raised in a motion, post-trial – is not part of its case-in-chief. There is no reason for Columbia to produce evidence of its attorneys' fees (most of which are privileged and will require redaction), until Columbia is victorious in this case. Further, it is entirely misleading for NCRIC to state that Request 56 is an attempt to find out what legal fees Columbia wishes to assert as actual damages. Request 56 asks for documents related to "fee arrangements with attorneys which form the basis for any claim of attorney's fees in this case" (emphasis added). The only attorneys fees that Columbia might claim as damages are fees from its bankruptcy, not fees from this case; fees from this case are to be determined in a post-trial proceeding. Columbia has already agreed to produce nonprivileged documents related to its damages.

Columbia Has Complied with, or Is Reasonably Complying with All of Other Document Requests

As described in its Motion to Amend Scheduling Order, Columbia has been hampered in its production of documents by NCRIC due to its limited staff and financial resources. Yet, Columbia has made, and continues to make, a good faith effort to comply with NCRIC's requests for documents. NCRIC has not offered any evidence to the contrary, other than mere

16d-000479

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Columbia respectfully requests that NCRIC's Motion to Compel be denied in its entirety.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Yesterday prior to our scheduled meeting, exactly as you requested in our telephone call the day before, I faxed you a letter reflecting my offer, as a professional courtesy, to waive the face-to-face meeting requirement. Now, you have left me a voicemail message stating that the meeting must be held, and it must take place in your office. That is a strange turn of events.

I am willing to meet at my office, where our meeting was first scheduled. I did not cancel our first meeting unilaterally, and you may not reschedule the place of our meeting unilaterally. My schedule is very full this week, as I have two motions to write in the next two days; however, I would be willing to meet with you briefly on Thursday after 3 p.m. or Friday after 2 p.m..

In addition, if you refuse to meet at my office, I am willing, as a professional courtesy, to meet at your office in this instance. However, I will be unable to travel to your office until next Tuesday. Please call me to schedule a time for a meeting next Tuesday, if you wish.

Finally, if you prefer, I still am willing to waive the face-to-face meeting requirement.

Sincerely,

Joseph K. Leahy

OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO AMEND SCHEDULING ORDER

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by counsel, opposes the Motion of defendant to amend the current Scheduling Order of the Court for the reasons presented herein.

STATEMENT OF THE REAL ISSUE BEFORE THE COURT.

This is a case where the defendant has caused its own problems through lack of diligence and now seeks to avoid its self-inflicted difficulties by asking the Court to amend the Court's Scheduling Order. The simple fact is that the defendant has neither been diligent in its investigation, discovery, or defense of this case, nor in the prosecution of its own counterclaims. It has squandered the more than adequate time provided in the Scheduling Order and now asks the Court to rescue it from its self-created problems. The Court should not do this under the specific facts of this case if it is to preserve the integrity of the scheduling process and the validity of its Scheduling Orders.

ARGUMENT.

I. The Defendant Has Not Been Diligent In Its Conduct of This Case.

The primary basis defendant raises for the amendment of the Scheduling

By

Order is that it has been diligent, proactive, and hard-working in its dealing with this case, but that for a variety of reasons, it simply could not complete those discovery and factual investigative tasks required in the time allowed by the Scheduling Order. Nothing could be farther from the facts and a more disingenuous argument as demonstrated by the events.

This case was filed on October 3, 2000. At that time, the initial Scheduling Conference was set for January 12, 2001. Plaintiff immediately began its discovery by sending defendant interrogatories, requests for production of documents, and requests for admission on October 26, 2000. Defendant file its answer and counterclaims about November 6, 2000. The counterclaims were very detailed and amounted to about 27 pages and 168 paragraphs, highly suggesting a full factual investigation and detailed knowledge of the facts. Plaintiff filed its second requests for discovery on January 12, 2001 after receiving inadequate responses from defendant. Plaintiff has also (1) filed a motion to compel discovery from defendant, (2) notices the 30(b)(6) deposition of defendant, and (3) sought consent to take the depositions of defendant's experts without filing a motion. Between October 3, 2000 and March 3, 2001, i.e., for 5 months, defendant literally did nothing by way of discovery. It did not file one discovery request. It simply sat on its hands and did nothing to obtain any discovery from plaintiff or to discover the facts it now claims it needs. That if finds itself pressed by the discovery cut-off deadline is not surprising, but due entirely to its own fault. The Court should not allow the defendant to use its own misfeasance as the basis for an amendment of the Scheduling Order where plaintiff has been diligent in complying with the Court's order.

II. The Defendant's Arguments for Amendment Are Without Merit.

A. "The complexity and enormity of factual and expert discovery make it impossible to comply with the constraints of the Track 2 scheduling order."

This case is just not that factually complex. Defendant would simply like to portray it as such to justify and excuse its lack of diligence. Plaintiff seeks recovery of insurance premiums due it under a program involving a retrospective contract formula. Defendant disputes the calculation of the premiums under the formula. What was required of defendant was to commence discovery early on and uncover the facts supporting each element of the calculation of the formula by plaintiff. Plaintiff even supplied a spreadsheet (attached to the requests for admission) showing each element of the formula and the numbers calculated by plaintiff. All defendant needed to do was ask for the explanation of how the calculations were made and the documents supporting the calculations. This is just what it has done with its latest March 2001 discovery requests. It could and should have done this earlier. It has simply done this so late, that it is now running afoul of the discovery deadline.

Any complexity or increase in scope of the case was introduced, if at all, by defendant through its counterclaims. But it should have done its own factual investigation of these claims (and by the detail of allegation may have done so) and known the underlying facts when it filed the counterclaims. So, there should be no unknown complexity on its part, unless if filed the counterclaims without real investigation and in the hope of fleshing out the theories through a fishing expedition in plaintiff's files and through discovery from plaintiff which it did not commence until a few days ago.

Moreover, the claims of problems with expert discovery and preparation are matters created by defendant for itself. From the outset of this case, defendant denied the accuracy of the calculation and recognized the possibility of the need for expert testimony. It now says it cannot obtain expert opinions in time to meet the discovery cut off because these opinions must be based on information and documents from plaintiff. But it did not even make any effort to obtain this information from plaintiff until 10 days (March 2, 2001) before the designation of witnesses and experts was required to be filed with the Court on March 12, 2001!

The impossibility of complying with the discovery closure deadline is not due to the complexity of this case. It is due to defendant's failure to act timely and diligently within the adequate time period from the filing of the case through the schedule of the Court's order. No one told defendant it had to wait until the Initial Scheduling Conference and the entry of a scheduling order to begin discovery or factual investigation. It made this decision itself and it should have to live with it now.

Finally, plaintiff is not complaining about the amount of time needed or the burden of producing its documents within the time required by the Rules or the Scheduling Order. If defendant has a time problem with review, then it should have started earlier or reduced the amount of material it wants to see.

B. Defendant Did Not Understand the Track System and the Meaning of the Election of Tracks.

Plaintiff cannot address the lack of knowledge of defendant about the Court's tracking system, except to say that it has been in use for a long, long time. Moreover, defendant neither made any effort to discuss the track with plaintiff prior to the conference and raised no objections at the Initial Scheduling Conference about the selection of Track

2. It could have done so if it was unsure. Further, the defendant waited about 2 months before it even moved to amend the scheduling order. Defendant has not been attentive, engaged, or diligent. Surely, it did not take 2 months to realize that the deadlines were restricting or difficult to meet. Again, defendant cannot claim to be diligent and yet have no real reason for its delay in acting.

This case does not require Track 4. Defendant simply wishes to create that impression by its own bootstrapping actions. Moreover, the "wide-ranging tort claims" primarily arise out of the claimed miscalculation of the premium formula and defamation. If plaintiff is satisfied with the time to complete discovery on the claims sounding in defamation, then there should be no reason for defendant to require more time. It brought the claims and presumably knows and knew more about the facts when it filed the claims.

C. There are Motions Pending Before the Court.

Plaintiff's motions to dismiss and for a more definite statement can only reduce the complexity of the case, not increase it by the elimination of legal theories.

D. Defendant Was Unable to Commence Discovery Until Just Recently and Cannot Meet the Scheduling Order Deadlines.

Defendant contends it was not able to commence discovery because of a variety of reasons including its own investigation and filing of counterclaims, answering the complaint, responding to plaintiff's motion, and responding to plaintiff's discovery requests. In other words, defendant was not able to conduct discovery because the defense of the case interfered. Actually, defendant's counterclaims and answer were filed about November 6, 2000. Defendant's opposition to plaintiff's motions to dismiss and for more definite statement were filed January 26, 2001, after defendant proceeded to raise technical objections to the motions having preceded an amendment to the complaint. Interestingly, plaintiff had to prepare the motions, file responses to defendant's motions and opposition, and answer defendant's counterclaims – but still had time to initiate discovery. Parenthetically, plaintiff also notes it is represented by counsel who is a sole practitioner, not a lawyer in an over 20 lawyer firm. Defendant's arguments just don't hold water.

Finally, defendant has already met every deadline in the scheduling order, including the recent March 12, 2001filing of Witness Lists and its Rule 26(b)(4) expert designations from which it asks for relief and which it claims it cannot meet.

E. Defendant's Financial Condition and Lack of Resources Has Hampered Its Defense and Factual Investigation.

This reason is truly meritless and irrelevant. Moreover, it does not suggest that the underlying financial problems and defendant's ability to comply with an amended scheduling order will be cured by any increase of time to complete discovery and trial preparation tasks.

F. Plaintiff Has Refused to Consent to the Amended Scheduling Order.

The plaintiff's desire for a resolution of this case on the agreed schedule ordered by the Court is understandable. Defendant's desire to stretch out the time until resolution is equally understandable. But plaintiff's refusal to consent to the amendment for this reason is irrelevant to the merits of whether the amendment should be granted.

G. Defendant Seeks Modification of Deadlines That Have Already Passed.

Defendant's proposed amendment seeks to extend deadlines that have already passed and with which plaintiff and defendant have already complied. It would be unfair to redo to completed deadlines where plaintiff made the effort to comply but now defendant wants more time. This is especially true with respect the designation of experts.

CONCLUSION.

Defendant has caused its own problems through its own lack of diligence. In fact, delay has largely been the hallmark of the defendant's conduct in all aspects of this case. It has created the situation in which it finds itself as a consequence of its own strategy to drag matters out. It has regularly requested and received additional time to file and to respond to pleadings. It has not even remotely responded in any substantial manner to plaintiff's discovery, despite its protestations that it has. Its failure to provide any real discovery response to plaintiff's requests for documents made in October 2000 and January 2001, except for 2-3 boxes which according to defendant are only the tip of the iceberg of documents that need to be reviewed, has forced plaintiff to file a motion to compel.

The main basis for defendant's motion is not there: good faith diligence in defense and prosecution of its counterclaims. A fair reading of defendant's motion reveals that all the investigation and discovery that it says it will need and cannot obtain was caused by its own failure to proceed in an expeditious manner with discovery, a failure dictated by a deliberately elected strategy of delay and footdragging coupled with a decision to avoid incurring the costs associated with its defense and counterclaims due to financial constraints. Based on the history of this case, there is no reason to believe an extension of time will cure the issues raised by defendant as the reasons for needing more time.

Defendant is not unlike the child who murders his parents and then asks the mercy of the Court because he is an orphan. Defendant should not be allowed to make its own inequitable and dilatory actions the basis for delaying this case. This will simply encourage it to do so again. Its motion should be denied or, at a minimum, the dates already past allowed to stand as completed.

MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER REGARDING CONFIDENTIALITY OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MATERIALS

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by counsel, moves this Court pursuant to SCR 26(c) for a protective order to protect the confidential commercial information, trade secrets and processes, client/insured information and financial information requested to be produced in discovery by defendant. The bases and grounds for this Motion are as follows:

1. In discovery by interrogatories and requests for production of documents, defendant has demanded production of the following types of information from plaintiff which constitutes its confidential commercial information, trade secrets and processes, client/insured information and financial information:

a. Information related to the assessment and setting of loss reserves under the insurance contract between the parties in this case;

b. Files of recently closed and pending medical negligence/malpractice cases related to the insurance contract between the parties in this case;

c. Nonpublicly disclosed financial information of plaintiff;

d. Identities of persons insured by plaintiff.

RECEIVED
APR 0 2 2001

By

2. The information described in ¶ 1(a) is proprietary to plaintiff. It encompasses risk and loss assessment in individual cases for which plaintiff is providing a defense in accordance with its insurance contracts. Disclosure of the information would prejudice not only plaintiff, but the plaintiff's insured doctor in the defense or settlement of the case in that revelation of the plaintiff's assessment of the risk and amount of loss may make settlement impossible.

3. In addition to attorney-client communications and assessments of the individual cases, these files contain nonpublic information about the insured doctor and his case. Disclosure of this information would be prejudicial to the doctor.

4. The information described in ¶ 1(a) is also confidential commercial information of plaintiff revealing its methods, practices, and techniques of operation which, if disclosed, would provide an unfair advantage to its competitors in the insurance market in the District of Columbia.

5. Counsel for the parties have been unable to agree on the terms of a protective order, although there is agreement of the necessity for such an order.

6. Attached to this Motion is a proposed form of protective order.

WHEREFORE, the plaintiff prays this Court to enter a protective order that the discovery of the information described in the protective order not be had except under the terms and conditions of the order.

CERTIFICATION OF GOOD FAITH EFFORTS TO SECURE CONSENT AND RESOLVE DISCOVERY DISPUTES WITH DEFENDANT

The undersigned counsel hereby certifies that he made good faith efforts to secure the defendant's consent to a protective order:

1. On March 15, 20, and 21, counsel held telephone conferences to discuss the entry of and the terms of a protective order to be entered by the Court prior to production of plaintiff's confidential commercial information and trade secrets.

2. On March 8, 10, 12-16, 18-19, and 21-22, counsel for the parties exchanged over a half dozen e-mail correspondence with copies of proposed protective orders in process of negotiation and agreeing on the terms of a proposed protective order.

3. After these good faith efforts, the parties were not able to agree on the terms of the protective order.

PROTECTIVE ORDER REGARDING CONFIDENTIALITY
OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MATERIALS

Upon the Motion of plaintiff for a protective order pursuant to SCR 26(c), it is this _____ day of _____, 2001

ORDERED that:

1. All Classified Information produced or exchanged in the course of this litigation shall be used solely for the purpose of preparation and trial of this litigation and for no other purpose whatsoever, and shall not be disclosed to any person except in accordance with the terms hereof.

2. "Classified Information" as used herein, means any information of any type, kind or character which is designated as "Confidential" or For Counsel Only" by any of the supplying or receiving parties, whether it be a document, information contained in a document, information revealed during a deposition, information revealed in an interrogatory answer, or otherwise. In designating information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only, a party will make such designation only as to that information that it in good faith believes contains confidential information. Information or material which is available to the public, including catalogues, advertising materials, and the like shall not be classified.

3. "Qualified Persons" as used herein, means

(a) Attorneys of record for the parties in this litigation and employees of such attorneys to whom it is necessary that the material be shown for purposes of this litigation (so long as such attorneys and their employees are not direct employees of any party).

(b) Actual or potential independent technical experts or consultants who have signed the declaration form attached at Exhibit A hereto, but such declaration need not be served on opposing counsel for consulting experts or other consultants who will not be called as witnesses at trial. This order shall apply to consulting experts and consultants not called as witnesses in all other respects except disclosure to the other party. Such experts or consultants may not be employees of any party.

(c) In-house corporate officer(s) or employee(s) of a corporate party who has signed the declaration form attached at Exhibit A hereto with such declaration promptly served on opposing counsel by the counsel representing the corporate party.

(d) Any other person may be designated as a Qualified Person by a parties; or by order of this Court after notice and hearing to all parties. The designation of a persons designated by a party as a Qualified Person may be challenged by motion before the Court.

(e) The Judge, law clerks, and other personnel working in chambers.

4. Documents produced in this action may be designated by any party or parties as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by marking every page (or, at a minimum, the first page) of the document(s) so designated with a stamp stating "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only."

In lieu of marking the original of a document, if the original is not produced, the designating party may mark the copies that are produced or exchanged. Originals shall be preserved for inspection.

5. Information disclosed at (a) the deposition of a party or one of its present or former officers, directors, employees, agents, or independent experts retained by counsel for the purpose of this litigation, or (b) the deposition of a third party (which information pertains to a party) may be designated by any party as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by indicating on the record at the deposition that the testimony is "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" and is subject to the provisions of this order.

Any party may also designate information disclosed at such deposition as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" by notifying all of the parties in writing within 30 days of receipt of the transcript, of the specific pages and lines of the transcript which should be treated as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" thereafter. Each party shall attach a copy of such written notice or notices to the face of the transcript and each copy thereof in his possession, custody, or control. All deposition transcripts shall be treated as "For Counsel Only" for a period of 30 days after the receipt of the transcript.

To the extent practical, the court reporter shall segregate into separate transcripts information designated as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only", with blank, consecutively numbered pages being provided in a nondesignated main transcript. The separate transcript containing "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information shall have page numbers that correspond to the blank pages in the main transcript.

6.(a) "Confidential" information shall not be disclosed or made available by the receiving party to persons other than Qualified Persons. Information designated as "For Counsel Only" shall be restricted in circulation to Qualified Persons described in Paragraphs 3(a), (b) and (e) above.

(b) Information designated as "For Counsel Only" provided to a receiving party shall be maintained in the offices of the following outside counsel: for Plaintiff, Roy I. Niedermayer, Esquire; and for Defendant, Kellogg, Huber, Hanson, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C.

Any documents produced in this litigation, regardless of classification, which are provided to Qualified Persons of Paragraph 3(b) above, shall be maintained only at the office of such Qualified Persons and only working copies shall be made of any such documents. Copies of documents produced under this Protective Order may be made, or exhibits prepared by independent copy services, printers, or illustrators for the purpose of this litigation.

(c) Each party's counsel shall maintain a log (either by description or Bates number) of all copies of "For Counsel Only" documents which documents received from another party that are delivered to any one or more Qualified Persons of listed in Paragraph 3(b) above.

7. Documents previously produced shall be retroactively designated by notice in writing of the designated class of each document by Bates number (or by other means by which the document can reasonably be identified) within 20 days of the entry of this order (but no later than three days prior to any scheduled hearing wherein the transcript might be used or relied upon). Documents unintentionally produced without designation as "Confidential" may be retroactively designated in the same manner and shall be treated appropriately from the date written notice of the designation is provided to the receiving party.

Documents to be inspected shall be treated as "For Counsel Only" during inspection. At the time of copying for the receiving parties, such inspected documents shall be stamped prominently "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" by the producing party.

8. Nothing herein shall prevent disclosure beyond the terms of this order if each party designating the information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" consents to such disclosure or, if the court, after notice to all affected parties, orders such disclosures. Nor shall anything herein prevent any counsel of record from utilizing "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information in the examination or cross-examination of any person who is indicated on the document as being an author, source, or recipient of the "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information, irrespective of which party produced such information.

9. A party shall not be obligated to challenge the propriety of a designation as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" at the time made, and a failure to do so shall not preclude a subsequent challenge thereto. In the event that any party to this litigation disagrees at any stage of these proceedings with the designation by the designating party of any information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only", or the designation of any person as a Qualified Person, the parties shall first try to resolve such dispute in good faith on an informal basis, such as production of redacted copies. If the dispute cannot be resolved, the objecting party may invoke this Protective Order by objecting in writing to the party who has designated the document or information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only".. The designating party shall be required to move the Court for an order preserving the designated status of such information within 14 days of receipt of the written objection, and failure to do so shall constitute a termination of the restricted status of such item.

The parties may, by stipulation, provide for exceptions to this order, and any party may seek an order of this Court modifying this Protective Order.

10. It is the intention of the parties that the definition of Classified documents be consistent with that contained in SCR 26(c). Nothing shall be designated as "For Counsel Only" information except information of the most sensitive nature, which if disclosed to persons of expertise in the area would reveal significant technical or business advantages of the producing or designating party, and which includes as a major portion subject matter which is believed to be unknown to the opposing party or parties, or any of the employees of the corporate parties. Nothing shall be regarded as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information if it is information that either:

(a) is in the public domain at the time of disclosure, as evidenced by a written document or equivalent;

(b) becomes part of the public domain through no fault of the other party, as evidenced by a written document or equivalent;

(c) the receiving party can show by written document that the information was in its rightful and lawful possession at the time of disclosure or equivalent; or

(d) the receiving party lawfully receives such information at a later date from a third party without restriction as to disclosure, provided such third party has the right to make the disclosure to the receiving party.

11. In the event a party wishes to use any "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information in any affidavits, briefs, memoranda of law, or other papers filed in Court in this litigation, such "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information used therein shall be filed under seal with the Court. The documents shall be maintained under seal by the Court, in an envelope provided by the party filing the documents, which bears a legend stating the following (or a substantially similar) legend: This envelope contains documents that are subject to a Protective Order entered by the Court in this action governing the use of "Confidential" and "For Counsel Only" information. These materials so filed shall be maintained by the Clerk of the Court.

12. The Clerk of the Court is directed to maintain under seal all documents and transcripts of deposition testimony and answers to interrogatories, admissions, and other pleadings filed under seal with the Court in this litigation which has been designated, in whole or in part, as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by a party to this action. Such information shall not be opened or unsealed except as directed by the Court.

13. Unless otherwise agreed to in writing by the parties or ordered by the Court, all proceedings involving or relating to documents or any other information shall be subject to the provisions of this order.

14. Within 120 days after conclusion of this litigation and any final appeal thereof, any documents and all reproductions of documents produced by a party, in the possession of any of the persons qualified under Paragraphs 3(a) through (e) shall be returned to the producing party (or, at the Clerk's discretion, the documents may be destroyed), except as this Court may otherwise order or to the extent such information was used as evidence at the trial. As far as the provisions of any Protective Orders entered in this action restrict the communication and use of the documents produced thereunder, such orders shall continue to be binding after the conclusion of this litigation, except (a)

that there shall be no restriction on documents that are used as exhibits in Court unless such exhibits were filed under seal, and (b) that a party may seek the written permission of the producing party or order of the Court with respect to dissolution or modification of such Protective Orders.

15. This order shall not bar any attorney herein in the course of rendering advice to his client with respect to this litigation from conveying to any party client his evaluation in a general way of "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information produced or exchanged herein; provided, however, that in rendering such advice and otherwise communicating with his client, the attorney shall not disclose the specific contents of any "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information produced by another party herein, which disclosure would be contrary to the terms of this Protective Order.

16. Any party designating any person as a Qualified Person shall have the duty to reasonably assure that such person observes the terms of this Protective Order and shall be responsible upon breach of such duty for the failure of any such person to observe the terms of this Protective Order.

17. If any person, entity, court or any administrative agency subpoenas or orders the production or designation of confidential documents that a party has obtained under the terms of this Order, such party shall promptly notify the subpoenaing third party that the documents are subject to a Protective Order, and shall notify the party or person who designated the materials as confidential of the pendency of such subpoena or order.

18. Nothing in this order shall prevent any party or other person from seeking modification of this Order or from objecting to discovery that it believes to be otherwise improper.

DEFENDANT'S OBJECTIONS TO PLAINTIFF'S NOTICE OF DEPOSITION PURSUANT TO SUPERIOR COURT RULE 30(b)(6)

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby objects as follows to the Notice of Rule 30(b)(6) Deposition of Defendant ("Notice") served by Plaintiff/ Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), for a deposition noticed for April 10, 2001.

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

These General Objections apply to each and every one of the deposition subjects listed in NCRIC's Notice ("deposition subjects") and form an integral part of Columbia's Objections:

1. Columbia objects to the deposition subjects to the extent they seek information protected by the attorney-client privilege, work product privilege, or any other applicable privilege that would make the information sought immune from discovery in whole or in part. "Privilege" as hereinafter used shall include all the above-named privileges and any other rule of law, privilege, or confidentiality provided by law. By designating a witness to testify on a given topic, it is not intended to be, or in any way may it be deemed, a waiver of any such available privilege to which Columbia is entitled.

2. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they seek to impose obligations upon Columbia beyond those permitted by, or different from those required by, the District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they are vague, overly broad, unduly burdensome, or seek information that is not relevant to any claim or defense of a party or is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

4. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to information that is already, or solely, in NCRIC's possession.

5. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to information not in Columbia's possession.

6. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to Columbia attorneys' fees in this action.

7. It should not be inferred from the form or substance of any objections contained herein that information responsive to any particular subject exists.

8. By designating a witness to testify on any subject, Columbia does not concede the relevance or admissibility of the information sought.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS

Subject No. 1: The facts and reasons forming the basis for defendant's claims that any of the calculations or numbers in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) are incorrect or fail to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 1: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that the Subject requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession and/or to the extent that the Subject requests information already provided to NCRIC in Columbia's responses to NCRIC's interrogatories. Columbia also objects this Subject to the extent it seeks testimony that is properly in the realm of expert testimony, and as such, constitutes an improper attempt to elicit Columbia's testimony expert without permission of the Court, in violation of District of Columbia Superior Court Rule 26(b)(4). Columbia objects further to this Subject to the extent that relates to pure matters of law, including interpretation of the agreement between the parties, and therefore, is not properly the subject of a deposition of a lay witness.

Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. In effect, this Subject requires counsel for Columbia to marshal all of its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the subject, provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. For this reason, Columbia objects that this Subject is not properly the subject of a 30(b)(6) deposition. Instead, this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory (the deadline for service of which passed on March 12, 2001, prior to service of NCRIC's 30(b)(6) deposition notice).

Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 1.

Subject No. 2: The correct amounts that should be used or inserted in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; and facts and reasons why these numbers are the proper amounts and calculations to be used in calculating the amount of premium due plaintiff under the contract.

Objections to Subject No. 2: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 2.

Subject No. 3: The amounts of premium that should have been charged to defendant in each year of the contract and the amount, year, and method of calculation of any refund of premium defendant claims was due it.

Objections to Subject No. 3: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 3.

Subject No. 4: The identity, terms, and facts concerning any contract, business relationship, or business expectancy between defendant and each of the doctors identified in paragraph 14-18 and 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 4: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 5: The specific actions and acts of plaintiff constituting the interference with the contracts between defendant and the doctors identified in paragraph 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 5: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. In effect, this Subject requires counsel for Columbia to marshal all of its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the subject, provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. For this reason, Columbia objects that this Subject is not properly the subject of a 30(b)(6) deposition. Instead, this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory (the deadline for service of which passed on March 12, 2001, prior to service of NCRIC's 30(b)(6) deposition notice).

Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 5.

Subject No. 6: Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting malice toward defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 6: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 6.

Subject No. 7: Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting any wanton or reckless disregard of the rights of defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 7: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 7.

16d-000513

Subject No. 8: Source, substance, nature, duties and responsibilities of NCRIC as fiduciary for defendant and actions constituting breach of any fiduciary duty.

Objections to Subject No. 8: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 8.

Subject No. 9: Identify, description, and calculation of damages suffered by acts alleged in each amended counterclaim count.

Objections to Subject No. 9: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to Subject No. 9 in that its investigation is continuing, and to the extent that its damage calculations are not completed at this time. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 9 at this time.

Subject No. 10: Defamatory actions or statements by plaintiff about defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 10: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 10.

Subject No. 11: The matters concerning calculation of loss reserves, adjustments of loss reserves, positive loss experiences of defendant under the Plan, use of additional years in calculating premiums, and each element of the formula or requirements for reconciliation of premiums due under the Plan.

Objections to Subject No. 11: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 11.

Subject No. 12: Allegations of errors by plaintiff made in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence) of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 12: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 12.

Subject No. 13: The bases for the allegations of plaintiff's knowledge about defendant's financial situation as alleged in paragraph 43 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 13: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 13.

Subject No. 14: The specific errors, miscalculations and overstatements in the bill from plaintiff alleged in paragraphs 72 and 101 including the reasons and bases for the errors, and corrections required to make the bill accurate.

Objections to Subject No. 14: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 14.

Subject No. 15: The facts supporting or related to the allegations of paragraph 73 that plaintiff attempted to gain leverage over defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 15: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 15 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

16d-000515

Subject No. 16: The search for new or replacement MMLI insurance with companies other than plaintiff during the period 1993 to date.

Objections to Subject No. 16: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 16 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 17: The negotiations and events between plaintiff and defendant alleged in paragraphs 83-88 including the factual bases for defendant's allegations of cancellation without justification, retaliation, and reneging.

Objections to Subject No. 17: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 17 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 18: The events and statements described in paragraph 89 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 18: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that the subject requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. Moreover, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requires counsel for Columbia to marshal its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the Subject and provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. To this extent, Columbia objects that this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory, not a 30(b)(6) deposition.

Subject No. 19: The substance, nature, and scope of any harm caused to the defendant's reputation in the community caused by the action of plaintiff including the nature, bases, and calculation of any monetary damages sustained as a result of the harm.

Objections to Subject No. 19: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents. Columbia also objects to this Subject in that its investigation is continuing, and to the extent that its damage calculations are not completed at this time. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 19 at this time.

Subject No. 20: The content of the rumors alleged in paragraphs 91 and 98 of the Amended counterclaims as well as the identities of the staff members originating and circulating the rumors.

Objections to Subject No. 20: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to the extent that the Subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 21: Defendant's reputation in the medical community and community at large.

Objections to Subject No. 21: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein.

Subject No. 22: The facts and events described in paragraph 92 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 22: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 18, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein.

Subject No. 23: Identities of the physicians, staff, nurses, and executives described in paragraphs 91, 93, 96, and 98 of the amended counterclaims and the reasons for the actions of these persons described in those paragraphs.

Objections to Subject No. 23: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 24: Local media communications with defendant's personnel, doctors, staff, nurses, and executives in 1999-2000 concerning defendant's financial condition, loss of doctors and patients, closing of defendant's operations, and similar topics.

Objections to Subject No. 24: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 25: Recruitment of physicians and staff during 1990-2000.

16d-000518

Objections to Subject No. 25: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein.

Subject No. 26: Damages and injury to defendant's business and property as alleged in paragraphs 109-110, 116-117, 122, 128, 134, 138, 146, 153, 158, 163, and 168 of the amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 26: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 19, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 26 at this time.

Subject No. 27: Loss of revenue due to loss of patient referrals, including the numbers of patients and source of patients lost, the amount of revenue lost, the services, materials, supplies that would have been charges the lost patients, the gross and net profit on each item of service, material or supply which would have been provided to the lost patients.

Objections to Subject No. 27: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 19, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 27 at this time.

Subject No. 28: The amount and calculation of defendant's claim of Return Premium due it from plaintiff from 1993 to date.

Objections to Subject No. 28: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 28.

Subject No. 29: Causes of defendant's current insolvency and financial problems.

MOTION IN LIMINE TO EXCLUDE EXPERTS OF DEFENDANT OR, IN THE ALTERNATIVE, TO COMPEL DEFENDANT TO PROVIDE THE ANSWER TO INTERROGATORY OR SUPPLEMENT ITS RULE 26(B) 4) STATEMENT AND FOR LEAVE TO TAKE DEPOSITIONS OF DEFENDANT'S EXPERTS

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by counsel, moves this Court pursuant to SCR Rule 37, the procedures of the General Order for Civil II cases, and SCR 26(b)(4)(A)(ii) for an order:

a. precluding defendant from offering any testimony from expert witnesses at trial for failure to provide (i) the subject matter on which defendant's experts are expected to testify; (ii) the substance of the facts and opinions to which defendant's expert is expected to testify; and (iii) a summary of the grounds for each opinion; or

b. alternatively, compelling defendant to provide the information required by plaintiff's interrogatory and SCR 26(b)(4)(A)(i) as required by the Court's Scheduling Order; and

c. granting plaintiff leave to take the depositions of defendant's experts if the alternative relief is granted.

The bases and grounds for this Motion are as follows:

1. On October 26, 2000, plaintiff propounded its standard interrogatory no. 4 to defendant tracking the language of SCR 26(b)(4)(A)(i) and by which plaintiff sought to discovery defendant's experts, their opinions, and the factual basis for their opinions:

> 4. State the name and address of each and every expert whom you expect to call as an expert witness at trial, and as to each state:
>
> (a) the subject matter on which the expert is expected to testify;
>
> (b) the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify; and
>
> (c) a summary of the grounds for each opinion.

2. Defendant provided the following answer about November 27, 2000:

> RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 4:
>
> Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds as follows: Medical Center has not presently identified which experts, if any, it expects to call as witnesses at trial. The informati0n sought by this Interrogatory will be provided at the time and in the form compliant with [SCR 16].

3. About March 12, 2001, defendant filed its SCR 24 (b)(4) statement in accordance with the Scheduling Order. In the statement, defendant identified its experts but provided only the following description of the opinions and factual bases for the opinions:

> 5. . . . these experts have not rendered any opinions or written reports. Accordingly, Columbia is unable at this time to set forth the substance of the facts and opinions to which the experts are expected to testify, and a summary and grounds for each opinion.

4. Defendant has utterly failed to provide any of the information required by the plaintiff's interrogatory and the Court's Scheduling Order on experts, much less in a timely manner.

5. The deadline for completion of discovery is May 12, 2001.

6. Plaintiff has been and will continue to be prejudiced in the completion of discovery and preparation for trial by defendant's failure to provide the information on experts required of it.

7. Defendant's failure to provide the expert information is due to its own lack of diligence and lack of good faith efforts to conduct and complete discovery. For a more detailed description of defendant's failures, plaintiff incorporates herein the matter set for in its Opposition to Motion to Amend Scheduling Order.

8. Defendant's failure to comply with the Rules and this Court's order entitles plaintiff to a order precluding or preventing defendant from offering any expert testimony at trial.

9. Alternatively, plaintiff is entitled to obtain the information on experts designated by defendant, and this Court must compel defendant to produce that information.

10. In the event the Court denies plaintiff's motion to preclude expert testimony by defendant, the information provided by defendant is so inadequate that plaintiff needs to depose the experts to obtain their opinions and grounds for their opinions. Under the circumstances requiring plaintiff to depose the experts, the Court should order that defendant will bear the costs of these experts since defendant made it necessary to take these depositions.

11. Any depositions to be taken of defendant's experts must occur before May 12, 2001, the discovery cut-off deadline.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays this Court enter an order:

a. precluding defendant from offering any testimony from expert witnesses at trial for failure to provide the subject matter on which defendant's experts are expected to testify; the substance of the facts and opinions to which defendant's expert is expected to testify; and a summary of the grounds for each opinion; or

b. alternatively, compelling defendant to provide the information required by plaintiff's interrogatory and SCR 26(b)(4)(A)(i) as required by the Court's Scheduling Order by April 15, 2001 or granting the relief of excluding such expert testimony at trial; and

c. granting plaintiff leave to take the depositions of defendant's experts if the alternative relief is granted, but with defendant to bear to the costs of fees and expenses of these experts.

d. awarding plaintiff it costs incurred in having to file this motion and obtain this relief.

CERTIFICATION OF GOOD FAITH EFFORTS TO SECURE CONSENT AND RESOLVE DISCOVERY DISPUTES WITH DEFENDANT

The undersigned counsel hereby certifies that he made good faith efforts to secure the discovery which is the subject of this Motion:

1. Prior to March 16, 2001, counsel for plaintiff telephoned defendant's counsel and requested that the expert information be provided. Defendant responded with the substance of what is contained in its Rule 26(b)(4) statement at ¶ 5.

2. On March 16, 2001, counsel for plaintiff wrote defendant's counsel and requested consent to take the depositions of defendant's experts. A copy of defendant's response is attached.

3. Further efforts to obtain the information and consent would be nugatory given the response of defendant.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

I write in response to your letter, which I received on Friday, March 16, 2001.

I am open to the possibility of consenting to expert depositions pursuant to Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(4)(A)(ii). However, I am currently unable to inform you, one way or another, regarding whether I will consent to such depositions.

As you know, Columbia is currently in the process of attempting to obtain experts. If and when Columbia retains any expert(s), I will notify you promptly. Once Columba receives documents from NCRIC, and once Columbia's experts have a reasonable opportunity to review the relevant documents and develop their opinions, I will be in a position to advise you regarding whether I will consent to the proposed depositions. If NCRIC provides documents to Columbia in a timely manner, I expect that I may be able to inform you whether Columbia will consent to the depositions you propose in time for you to prepare for the dates you propose, May 8-9, 2001.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Superior Court of the District of Columbia

PROTECTIVE ORDER REGARDING CONFIDENTIALITY OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MATERIALS

Upon the Consent Motion of the parties for a protective order pursuant to Rule 26(c) of the District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure,

It is hereby ORDERED that:

1. All Classified Information produced or exchanged in the course of this litigation shall be used solely for the purpose of preparation and trial of this litigation and for no other purpose whatsoever, and shall not be disclosed to any person except in accordance with the terms hereof.

2. "Classified Information," as used herein, means any information of any type, kind or character which is designated as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" (i.e., "Attorneys' Eyes Only") by any of the supplying or receiving parties, whether it be a document, information contained in a document, information revealed during a deposition, information revealed in an interrogatory answer, or otherwise. In designating information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only," a party will make such designation only as to that information that it in good faith believes contains confidential information. Information or material which is available to the public, including catalogues, advertising materials, and the like shall not be classified.

3. "Qualified Persons," as used herein, means

(a) Attorneys of record for the parties in this litigation and employees of such attorneys to whom it is necessary that the material be shown for purposes of this litigation (so long as such attorneys and their employees are not employees of any party).

(b) Actual or potential independent technical experts or consultants who have signed the declaration form attached at Exhibit A hereto (such declaration must be served promptly on opposing counsel by the attorney retaining such experts or consultants). Such experts or consultants may not be employees of any party.

(c) "In-house" corporate officer or employee of a corporate party who has signed the declaration form attached at Exhibit A hereto (such declaration must be promptly served on opposing counsel by the counsel representing the corporate party).

(d) Any other person may be designated as a Qualified Person by agreement of the parties; or by order of this Court after notice and hearing to all parties.

(e) The Judge, law clerks, and other personnel working in chambers.

4. Documents produced in this action may be designated by any party or parties as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by marking every page (or, at a minimum, the first page) of the document(s) so designated with a stamp stating "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only."

In lieu of marking the original of a document, if the original is not produced, the designating party may mark the copies that are produced or exchanged. Originals shall be preserved for inspection.

5. Information disclosed at (a) the deposition of a party or one of its present or former officers, directors, employees, agents, or independent experts retained by counsel for the purpose of this litigation, or (b) the deposition of a third party (which information pertains to a party) may be designated by any party as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by indicating on the record at the deposition that the testimony is "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" and is subject to the provisions of this order.

Any party may also designate information disclosed at such deposition as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" by notifying all of the parties in writing within 30 days of receipt of the transcript, of the specific pages and lines of the transcript which should be treated as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" thereafter. Each party shall attach a copy of such written notice or notices to the face of the transcript and each copy thereof in his possession, custody, or control. All deposition transcripts shall be treated as "For Counsel Only" for a period of 30 days after the receipt of the transcript.

To the extent possible, the court reporter shall segregate into separate transcripts information designated as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only", with blank, consecutively numbered pages being provided in a nondesignated main transcript. The separate transcript containing "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" (or "For Counsel Only" information shall have page numbers that correspond to the blank pages in the main transcript.

6. (a) "Confidential" information shall not be disclosed or made available by the receiving party to persons other than Qualified Persons. Information designated as "For Counsel Only" shall be restricted in circulation to Qualified Persons described in Paragraphs 3(a), (b) and (e) above.

(b) Information designated as "For Counsel Only" provided to a receiving party shall be maintained in the offices of the following outside counsel: for Plaintiff, Roy I. Niedermayer, Esquire; and for Defendant, Kellogg, Huber, Hanson, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C. Any documents produced in this litigation, regardless of classification, which are provided to Qualified Persons of Paragraph 3(b) above, shall be maintained only at the office of such Qualified Persons and only working copies shall be made of any such documents. Copies of documents produced under this Protective Order may be made, or exhibits prepared by independent copy services, printers, or illustrators for the purpose of this litigation.

(c) Counsel listed in Paragraph 6(b) shall maintain a log (either by description or Bates number) of all copies of "For Counsel Only" documents received from another party that are delivered to any one or more Qualified Persons listed in Paragraph 3(b) above.

7. Documents previously produced shall be retroactively designated by notice in writing of the designated class of each document by Bates number (or by other means by which the document can reasonably be identified) within 20 days of the entry of this order (but no later than three days prior to any scheduled hearing wherein the transcript might be used or relied upon). Documents unintentionally produced without designation as "Confidential" may be retroactively designated in the same manner and shall be treated appropriately from the date written notice of the designation is provided to the receiving party.

Documents to be inspected shall be treated as "For Counsel Only" during inspection. At the time of copying for the receiving parties, such inspected documents shall be stamped prominently "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" by the producing party.

8. Nothing herein shall prevent disclosure beyond the terms of this order if each party designating the information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" consents to such disclosure or, if the court, after notice to all affected parties, orders such disclosures. Nor shall anything herein prevent any counsel of record from utilizing "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information in the examination or cross-examination of any person who is indicated on the document as being an author, source, or recipient of the "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information, irrespective of which party produced such information.

9. A party shall not be obligated to challenge the propriety of a designation as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" at the time made, and a failure to do so shall not preclude a subsequent challenge thereto. In the event that any party to this litigation disagrees at any stage of these proceedings with the designation by the designating party of any information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only", or the designation of any person as a Qualified Person, the parties shall first try to resolve such dispute in good faith on an informal basis, such as production of redacted copies. If the dispute cannot be resolved, the objecting party may invoke this protective order by objecting in writing to the party who has designated the document or information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only". The designating party shall be required to move the Court for an order preserving the designated status of such information within 14 days of receipt of the written objection, and failure to do so shall constitute a termination of the restricted status of such item.

The parties may, by stipulation, provide for exceptions to this order, and any party may seek an order of this Court modifying this Protective Order.

10. It is the intention of the parties that the definition of Classified documents be consistent with that contained in SCR 26(c). Nothing shall be designated as "For Counsel Only" information except information of the most sensitive nature, which if disclosed to persons of expertise in the area would reveal significant technical or business advantages of the producing or designating party, and which includes as a major portion subject matter which is believed to be unknown to the opposing party or parties, or any of the employees of the corporate parties. Nothing shall be regarded as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information if it is information that either:

(a) is in the public domain at the time of disclosure, as evidenced by a written document or equivalent;

(b) becomes part of the public domain through no fault of the other party, as evidenced by a written document or equivalent;

(c) the receiving party can show by written document that the information was in its rightful and lawful possession at the time of disclosure or equivalent; or

(d) the receiving party lawfully receives such information at a later date from a third party without restriction as to disclosure, provided such third party has the right to make the disclosure to the receiving party.

11. In the event a party wishes to use any "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information in any affidavits, briefs, memoranda of law, or other papers filed in Court in this litigation, such "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information used therein shall be filed under seal with the Court. The documents shall be maintained under seal by the court, in an envelope provided by the party filing the documents, which bears a legend stating the following (or a substantially similar) legend: "This envelope contains documents that are subject to a protective order entered by the Court in this action governing the use of Confidential and For Counsel Only information. These materials so filed shall be maintained by the Clerk of the Court."

12. The Clerk of the Court is directed to maintain under seal all documents and transcripts of deposition testimony and answers to interrogatories, admissions, and other pleadings filed under seal with the Court in this litigation which has been designated, in whole or in part, as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by a party to this action.

13. Unless otherwise agreed to in writing by the parties or ordered by the Court, all proceedings involving or relating to documents or any other information shall be subject to the provisions of this order.

14. Within 120 days after conclusion of this litigation and any appeal thereof, any documents and all reproductions of documents produced by a party, in the possession of any of the persons qualified under Paragraphs 3(a) through (e) shall be returned to the producing party (or, at the Clerk's discretion, the documents may be destroyed), except as this Court may otherwise order or to the extent such information was used as evidence at the trial. As far as the provisions of any protective orders entered in this action restrict the communication and use of the documents produced thereunder, such orders shall continue to be binding after the conclusion of this litigation, except (a) that there shall be no restriction on documents that are used as exhibits in Court unless such exhibits were filed under seal, and (b) that a party may seek the written permission of the producing party or order of the Court with respect to dissolution or modification of such protective orders.

15. This order shall not bar any attorney herein in the course of rendering advice to his client with respect to this litigation from conveying to any party client his evaluation in a general way of "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information produced or exchanged herein; provided, however, that in rendering such advice and otherwise communicating with his client, the attorney shall not disclose the specific contents of any "Confidential" or "For Counsel

MEMORANDUM IN PARTIAL OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER REGARDING CONFIDENTIALITY OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MATERIALS

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes, in part, the Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials ("Motion for Protective Order") of Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), and in support of said opposition, states as follows:

1. Counsel for both sides have agreed to the necessity of a protective order to preserve the confidentiality of documents and other discovery materials in this case.

2. The parties have negotiated at length over the language of the proposed protective order, and have agreed to substantially all of the language submitted by NCRIC.

3. The only remaining disagreement regarding the language of the proposed protective order relates to the following two issues:

(a) whether the order must require that copies of the declaration signed by persons viewing confidential information be served on opposing counsel before the documents are viewed by such persons, and;

(b) whether the order should state that persons not listed on it or not falling under its existing categories may view confidential information by agreement of the parties, rather than by unilateral designation of one party.

For the reasons set forth in paragraphs 5 and 6 below, Columbia urges that the answer to each question is affirmative. NCRIC's proposed order answers both questions in the negative.

4. Columbia therefore requests that the Court enter Columbia's proposed order, or alternatively, make the following modifications to NCRIC's proposed Protective Order:

(a) In paragraph (3)(b) of the Order, insert the language "(such declaration must be served promptly on opposing counsel by the attorney retaining such experts or consultants)." after the words "Exhibit A hereto" (and delete the comma). Additionally, delete the language "but such declaration need not be served on opposing counsel for consulting experts . . . the other party."

(b) In paragraph (3)(d) of the Order, insert the language "by agreement of the parties" after the words "Qualified Person" (and before the period). Additionally, delete the language "The designation of a persons . . . before the Court."

Columbia's proposed Protective Order that is essentially the same as the NCRIC's proposed Protective Order, except that it incorporates the changes described above.

5. With regard to the issues set forth in paragraph 3(a) above, and in support of the changes set forth in paragraph 4(a) above, Columbia states as follows: The intent of the Protective Order is to control access to confidential information. As such, only certain persons are authorized to view confidential information. In order to assure that its confidential information is viewed only by authorized persons, each party must know who is viewing its confidential information, and be able to stop unauthorized persons from viewing such information. If a party does not know who is viewing its confidential information, it cannot stop unauthorized persons from viewing its confidential information. Rather, the party is left subject to the whims of the other party, who might have a different understanding of who is an authorized person under the Protective Order. Accordingly, a party must receive a copy of the declaration for each person viewing its confidential information, regardless of whether that person is an non-testifying expert.

6. With regard to the issues set forth in paragraph 3(b) above, and in support of the changes set forth in paragraph 4(b) above, Columbia states as follows: In order to control access to confidential information, the Protective Order defines certain categories of persons who are authorized to view confidential information. If one party can unilaterally authorize additional persons to view confidential information, that party can authorize anyone to view confidential information. As such, the categories of the Protective Order are rendered entirely superfluous. Indeed, if a party can authorize any person to view confidential information, each party is left subject to the whims of the opposing party and the value of the Protective Order is rendered a nullity. Therefore, the parties should be allowed to authorize additional Qualified Persons only by mutual agreement.

7. For the foregoing reasons, Columbia urges this Court to enter its proposed Protective Order, rather than NCRIC's proposed Protective Order.

WHEREFORE, Columbia respectfully requests that the Court enter its proposed protective order, or alternatively, enter NCRIC's proposed order with the foregoing changes.

SUR-REPLY OF DEFENDANT

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, hereby replies to the Reply Memorandum In Support of Motion to Compel ("Reply") of Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), in order to address several factual misrepresentations set forth by NCRIC, and new legal arguments raised by NCRIC, in the Reply.

Factual Misrepresentations

In its Reply, NCRIC makes four factual misrepresentations concerning its failure to meet and confer prior to filing its motion to compel production of documents by Columbia:

First, NCRIC states that a face-to-face meeting was scheduled for March 6, 2001 "to resolve all discovery disputes." Reply at 2. This is completely false. Counsel for the parties scheduled the March 6 meeting on February 22, 2001 for the sole purpose of dealing with four issues that were discussed, but not resolved, on February 22. NCRIC never indicated that issues that were not discussed on February 22 would be discussed at the March 6 meeting.

Second, NCRIC states that "Columbia "waived or avoided the [March 6] meeting as nugatory and a waste of time." Id. This, too, is utterly false. Counsel for Columbia informed counsel for NCRIC by telephone on March 5, 2001 that Columbia would waive the face-to-face meeting requirement, because it was unlikely that the parties would come to an agreement on the two remaining issues for the March 6 meeting. However, had the March 6 meeting been intended to deal with every discovery issue ever discussed by the parties, counsel for Columbia would never have suggested that the meeting be cancelled. Rather, counsel for Columbia would have insisted on attending the March 6 meeting to set a schedule for its production of documents.

Third, NCRIC accuses Columbia of engaging in a "strategy of delay" by requesting that NCRIC refile its motion to dismiss due to a "technicality." This accusation contradicts a statement made by Columbia's counsel in open court and has no basis in fact. As counsel for Columbia explained at the initial scheduling conference on January 12, 2001, he understood that refiling the motion to dismiss simply was the proper procedure; no bad faith delay was intended by asking NCRIC to follow that procedure. Further, when Columbia's counsel first raised the issue of refiling prior to the scheduling conference, NCRIC's counsel did not suggest that refiling was a mere "technical" requirement; to the contrary, NCRIC's counsel agreed to refile the motion. As a result, Columbia's counsel was taken completely by surprise when NCRIC's counsel argued, and this Court decided, that refiling was not required. Counsel for Columbia then asked for additional time to prepare its papers, so that Columbia would not be prejudiced by NCRIC's technical non-compliance. At no point did Columbia's counsel attempt any delay, or suggest that NCRIC should suffer any sanction, due to NCRIC's technical non-compliance.[1] statements are conclusively presumed to be false). Evidence of truth therefore is entirely irrelevant to a defamation claim, unless and until the affirmative defense is raised.

[1] Moreover, Columbia has overlooked NCRIC's technical non-compliance in the past. For example, Columbia choose not to move for default judgement when NCRIC technically defaulted on its Reply. In November 2001, at NCRIC's request, Columbia agreed to extend NCRIC's time for filing a Reply to Columbia's counterclaims. NCRIC decided to attempt to obtain the extension by filing a stipulation rather than a consent motion. This, of course, was improper: the Court's General Order states that stipulations between counsel are ineffective to extend deadlines. Accordingly, when the deadline for filing NCRIC's Reply passed, by rights, Columbia could have moved for default judgement. Yet, rather than move for default, Columbia decided to overlook NCRIC's technical non-compliance.

Here, NCRIC chose to move to dismiss Columbia's defamation claim rather than to answer it. As such, at this time, NCRIC has not pleaded truth as an affirmative defense to the defamation claim. Therefore, the truth of NCRIC's statements is not yet an issue. The truth of the statements will be relevant if, and only if, the issue of truth is raised in a reply by NCRIC.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITRIES IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO EXCLUDE OR COMPEL/DEPOSE

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes the Motion in Limine to Exclude Experts of Defendant Or, in the Alternative, to Compel Defendant to Provide the Answer to Interrogatory or Supplement Its Rule 26(b)(4) Statement and for Leave to Take Depositions of Defendant's Experts ("Motion to Exclude or Compel/Depose") of Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), and states as follows.

Preliminary Statement

The sole basis for NCRIC's Motion to Exclude or Compel/Depose is that Columbia has not completed its expert discovery. However, NCRIC's own failure to produce documents has rendered Columbia unable to complete its expert discovery. As NCRIC is well aware, Columbia's experts are unable perform their analyses of NCRIC's loss reserve documents until NCRIC first produces those documents. Yet, to date, NCRIC has refused to produce any loss reserve documents. NCRIC should not benefit from its failure to produce important documents.

Rather, NCRIC's attempt to exclude expert testimony should be denied as an cynical effort to deny Columbia access to expert testimony (Point I, infra). In addition, NCRIC's failure, once again, to meet and confer before moving to compel warrants summary dismissal of that aspect of the motion – and sanctions (Point II, infra). Further, NCRIC's request to depose Columbia's experts must be denied as baseless and premature (Point III, infra).

Factual Background[1]

NCRIC's Failure to Produce Documents

NCRIC has failed to produce a single document in this case. See Reply Memorandum in Support of Motion to Amend Scheduling Order ["Reply"] at 4 (May 1, 2001). Among the documents that NCRIC has failed to produce are those related to its loss reserves under the Retro Plan. See id. at 5. These documents are directly relevant to, inter alia, Columbia's allegation that NCRIC fraudulently or negligently failed to calculate loss reserves properly under the Plan. See Amended Answer and Counterclaims at ¶¶ 38, 139-152 (January 3, 2001). In order to prove this allegation, Columbia expects to engage experts to analyze NCRIC's loss reserve data. See Defendant's Initial Rule 26(B)(4) Statement As Proponent of a Claim at 1 (March 12, 2001). However, Columbia's experts cannot perform their analyses, and render their opinions, without NCRIC's loss reserve documents. See id. at 2. Although Columbia has repeatedly asked for these documents, NCRIC has refused to produce them until a protective order is entered. See Reply at 5. Hence, NCRIC's failure to produce documents – not a lack of diligence by Columbia – is the reason Columbia is unable to complete expert discovery at this time. Id. at 5-6 & n.5.

NCRIC's Failure to Meet and Confer

[1] For purpose of this memorandum, Columbia assumes that the court is familiar with the procedural history of and substantive legal issues raised by this case. For background, see generally Columbia's Amended Answer and Counterclaims (January 3, 2001); its pending Motion to Amend Scheduling Order (March 12, 2001); and its Reply Memorandum in Support of Motion to Amend Scheduling Order (April 30, 2001).

16d-000556

NCRIC did not meet and confer with Columbia prior to filing its motion to compel. Nor did NCRIC make any good faith effort to meet and confer. Indeed, NCRIC made no pretense about its failure to meet and confer. Rather, NCRIC contended that any effort to obtain Columbia's consent to its motion "would be nugatory," under the circumstances. See Certification of Good Faith Efforts to Secure Consent and Resolve Discovery Disputes with Defendant ["Certification"] (April 12, 2001) (attached to Motion to Compel or Exclude/Depose).

Argument

I. NCRIC's Motion in Limine to Exclude Testimony Must Be Denied Due to NCRIC's Refusal to Produce Documents That It Knows Columbia's Experts Need

NCRIC, the book- and record-keeper for the Retro Plan, knows what documents Columbia's experts need in order to evaluate the Retro Plan loss reserves. NCRIC also must have known that it would not produce these documents without a protective order in place. Further, NCRIC could have drafted its own protective order, or agreed to Columbia's protective order. NCRIC's failure to move for a protective order until March 31, 2001 has delayed its production of documents. See Reply at 5-6. As a result, Columbia has yet to receive any loss reserve documents; its experts have been unable to analyze NCRIC's loss reserve data and render opinions; and Columbia has been unable to summarize any expert opinions for NCRIC.

Accordingly, NCRIC is at least partially – if not entirely – responsible for Columbia's inability to complete its expert discovery by this time. Although Columbia was unable to produce summaries of its experts' opinions before the deadline for Rule 26(B)(4) statements,[2]

[2] Columbia filed its Rule 26(B)(4) statement before the March 12, 2001 discovery deadline. See Certificate of Discovery (March 12, 2001). However, due to financial difficulties and NCRIC's improper offensive discovery, Columbia had been unable to request NCRIC's loss reserve documents until March 2, 2001. See Reply at 2; see generally Motion to Amend Scheduling Order. Hence, Columbia's Rule 26(B)(4) Statement did not include any summaries of expert testimony. Columbia will supplement its Rule 26(B)(4) Statement as soon as practicable.

Columbia might have been able to produce such summaries by now, if only NCRIC had produced its loss reserve documents in a timely fashion. But NCRIC has not done so.

Instead, NCRIC (1) waited as long as possible to file its motion for a protective order; (2) refused to produce loss reserve documents needed by Columbia's experts in a timely fashion, claiming lack of a protective order; and (3) moved to exclude the testimony of those experts, who cannot render opinions without access to NCRIC's loss reserve documents, for failure to render opinions. This appears to be a cynical ploy to deny Columbia access to expert testimony, and this Court should not countenance it.[3] NCRIC's motion in limine should be denied.

II. NCRIC's Motion to Compel Must Be Summarily Denied – and Sanctions Should Be Imposed – Due to NCRIC's Failure to Meet and Confer Before Filing the Motion

Once again, NCRIC has failed to make a good faith effort to meet and confer regarding the issues to be raised in a motion to compel. See generally Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to Compel (March 29, 2001) (NCRIC failed to meet and confer before filing its motion to compel production of documents). Yet, this time, NCRIC's failure to meet and confer cannot plausibly have occurred due to a misunderstanding, since NCRIC makes no pretense that it made any effort to meet and confer with Columbia. See Certification (explaining that further efforts to obtain Columbia's consent would be "nugatory").

Moreover, a mere contention that attempting to obtain Columbia's consent "would be nugatory" is not a proper basis for failing to meet and confer. See D.C. Sup. Ct. R. Civ. P. 37(a) (detailing exceptions to the meet and confer requirement, none of which are invoked by NCRIC here); 26(i) (same). Due to NCRIC's blatant failure to meet and confer, this Court should summarily deny NCRIC's motion to compel. See General Order for Calendar II Cases at 2.

[3] Moreover, any prejudice to NCRIC that has resulted from Columbia's inability to complete expert discovery by this time will be averted if this Court granted Columbia's pending motion to amend the scheduling order.

16d-000558

Since NCRIC's motion to compel was neither procedurally or substantively justified, NCRIC should be sanctioned for its repeated failure to follow this Court's meet-and-confer rules. See D.C. Sup. Ct. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(4) (authorizing sanctions when motion to compel is not "substantially justified"). An appropriate sanction would be the payment of Columbia's attorneys' fees and court costs in responding to this motion and any other related motions. Id.

III. NCRIC's Motion for Leave to Depose Columbia's Experts Must Be Denied Because NCRIC Offers No Basis for Such Depositions and Because the Motion Is Premature

The sole basis that NCRIC offers for its request for leave to depose Columbia's experts is that Columbia's expert discovery has been "inadequate." See Motion to Exclude or Compel/Depose at 3. Yet, NCRIC itself is responsible for Columbia's inability to produce expert discovery, since Columbia cannot produce summaries of expert testimony until its experts render opinions, and the experts cannot render opinions until they have NCRIC's loss reserve documents. NCRIC's failure to produce documents in a timely manner is not a proper basis for allowing it to depose Columbia's experts.

Moreover, NCRIC's request for leave to depose Columbia's experts is premature. Columbia will complete its expert discovery when its experts receive and review NCRIC's loss reserve documents. Until Columbia completes its expert discovery, this Court cannot determine whether that discovery is adequate. Fairness demands that NCRIC wait to receive Columbia's expert discovery before moving to supplement that discovery with expert depositions.

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Columbia respectfully requests that NCRIC's Motion to Exclude or Compel/Depose be denied in its entirety.

("NCRIC"), for the purpose of correcting NCRIC's mischaracterizations and to bring important new factual information to the Court's attention.

NCRIC's Mischaracterizations

NCRIC does not claim it will be prejudiced by an amendment to the scheduling order. NCRIC offers no factual support for its assertion that this case is not complex.[1] NCRIC provides no legal basis for the claim that Columbia's financial condition is irrelevant when gauging its diligence in discovery. NCRIC's only argument is that Columbia's situation is "self-created." Opposition Memorandum at 1. According to NCRIC, Columbia has not been "diligent in its investigation, discovery or defense of this case, nor in the prosecution of its own counterclaims." Id. This is a mischaracterization of the facts of this case and the relevant law, for several reasons.

[1] Indeed, a mere glance at the spreadsheet (attached hereto as Exhibit A) that lists NCRIC's retro formula calculations (but not, as NCRIC asserts, every element of the formula), shows that this case is extremely complex.

First, NCRIC is wrong to state that Columbia "literally did nothing by way of discovery" until March 3, 2001, while NCRIC diligently filed discovery requests at the outset of the case. In fact, Columbia engaged in both offensive and defensive discovery prior to that date.[2]

But more to the point, NCRIC's statement cynically ignores that its hastily-served discovery requests are an important reason that Columbia requires more time for discovery. NCRIC sued Columbia, then served discovery requests while Columbia was investigating and drafting its answer and counterclaims. (Soon thereafter, NCRIC filed a dispositive motion). Hence, from the outset, Columbia has been occupied with responding to NCRIC's discovery requests (and motions), rather than serving discovery requests. In addition, NCRIC's initial document requests were improper because they lacked reasonable particularity. See Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to Compel at 8-9 (March 29, 2001). This lack of particularity (which NCRIC could have avoided if it had drafted its document requests after reviewing Columbia's answer and counterclaims) hindered Columbia's ability to identify responsive documents, and slowed its document production. See id. at nn. 7 & 8. Despite this difficulty, Columbia endeavored to identify and produce responsive documents. This time-consuming effort left Columbia with insufficient time to prepare its own discovery requests until early March 2001. Columbia's good-faith effort to engage in defensive discovery should be commended, not sanctioned. Hence, Columbia warrants an amendment to the scheduling order – not denial of an opportunity to engage in its own offensive discovery.

Second, NCRIC's claim that Columbia should have "commenced discovery early on" relies upon a false premise. A defendant is not required to commence formal discovery prior to [2]Columbia served documents requests on March 2, 2001. It served timely responses NCRIC's requests for documents, admissions and interrogatories in November 2000, and has made several productions of documents. Columbia's diligence in defensive discovery stands in stark contrast to the actions of NCRIC. See infra.

the scheduling conference, or immediately thereafter. Rather, the defendant – which does not have the luxury of performing an investigation before the lawsuit is filed – is entitled to investigate its counterclaims fully, by whatever means necessary. For example, defendant may first investigate its claims by searching its own files and speaking with its employees, and then use any information it has gained to help formulate its discovery requests – as Columbia did here. So long as the defendant is reasonably diligent in investigating its claims, the scheduling order should be modified if more time is required for formal discovery.

Third, NCRIC's point that Columbia must "live with" the consequences of not starting discovery immediately by "reduc[ing] the amount of material it wants to see" is at odds with the "good cause" standard. Certainly, the scheduling order helps a case proceed expeditiously to a just resolution. However, the scheduling order is simply a means of reaching that just resolution, not an end in itself. If the scheduling order interferes with the just resolution of the case (by, for example, failing to provide the parties with sufficient time for investigation and discovery), the order may be modified for good cause. Here, NCRIC offers no reason for denying Columbia an opportunity for full discovery, other than strict compliance with the scheduling order itself.

Fourth, NCRIC is incorrect to contend that Columbia – which filed a lengthy initial answer and counterclaims – should have "known the underlying facts" about its counterclaims before filing the pleading. The standard for pleading is simple notice. Although Columbia easily met this burden, its careful investigation prior to filing its initial pleading was far from exhaustive; the initial pleading was lengthy simply because this case involves many events over the course of many years. Moreover, even though Columbia understood the basic facts of the case when it filed its pleading, further investigation was necessary to understand the details of the counterclaims and develop admissible evidence in support those claims. Hence, quite the failure is an additional basis for granting Columbia's motion to amend the scheduling order.

Columbia served its first requests for production of documents on March 2, 2001. See Certificate of Discovery (March 2, 2001) (Columbia served document requests). Due to the impending discovery deadlines, Columbia requested that NCRIC produce documents that Columbia's experts needed to analyze as soon as possible. NCRIC indicated to Columbia that it expected to produce documents in a timely fashion. See Correspondence Between Joseph K. Leahy and Roy I. Niedermayer (March 9, 2001) (attached hereto as Exhibit C).

NCRIC, however, failed to respond to Columbia's first requests within the prescribed time period. See Certificate of Service of Discovery (April 12, 2001) (written responses to Columbia's document requests). Further, when NCRIC responded in writing to Columbia's first requests – nearly ten days late – NCRIC indicated that it would not produce documents Columbia's experts needed until this Court entered a protective order. See, e.g., Responses of Plaintiff to Defendant's First Requests for Production of Documents at 6-7 (documents relating to loss reserves) (attached hereto as Exhibit D). To date, nearly one month after NCRIC's document responses were due, NCRIC has not produced a single document to Columbia, or provided Columbia with a reasonable opportunity to inspect any documents. As a result, Columbia remains unable to complete its expert discovery.[5] Moreover, Columbia cannot depose NCRIC or its employees because Columbia has not been able to analyze NCRIC's documents.

Due to NCRIC's refusal to produce documents until the entry of a protective order, NCRIC's argument that Columbia's situation is "self-created" is completely meritless. Even if Columbia had requested documents immediately upon entry of the scheduling order (or at the outset of the case), NCRIC would not have completed its discovery obligations by now, due to the lack of a protective order. Moreover, the failure to obtain a protective order before now is the fault of NCRIC – which did not move this Court for a protective order until March 31, 2001. Had NCRIC drafted its own protective order, rather than waiting for Columbia to draft one; and had NCRIC consented to Columbia's draft protective order, rather than haggling over the language for weeks and then refusing to consent – a protective order might be in place right now.

[5] Even assuming that NCRIC's delay would have been only one month if Columbia had served discovery requests on NCRIC immediately following the January 12, 2001 scheduling conference, Columbia's experts still would not have received any documents to examine until after the March 12, 2001 deadline for serving expert discovery.

Conclusion

Accordingly, Columbia's motion to modify the scheduling order should be granted.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

NCRIC's failure to respond to any of Columbia's interrogatories is improper. Even if Columbia served more than 40 interrogatories and subparts, there is no basis in the D.C. Superior Court Civil Rules for NCRIC to refuse to respond to any of Columbia's interrogatories. If NCRIC believes that Columbia exceeded its limit, NCRIC should instead object and answer those interrogatories that, by its own count, constitute the first 40 interrogatories and subparts. I therefore request that you fax to me an answer to all of Columbia's interrogatories — or alternatively, what you consider to be the first 40 of Columbia's interrogatories and subparts — prior to our meeting to resolve discovery issues, on April 26, 2001.

NCRIC's failure to respond to any of Columbia's interrogatories is at odds with its discovery obligations. Please be advised that if NCRIC refuses to respond to Columbia's interrogatories, Columbia will bring NCRIC's failure to the Court's attention and request appropriate sanctions under Rule 37.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Re: Meeting of Counsel: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc.

Dear Joe:

I received your fax of Friday evening after business hours this morning has I left for a trial. I will respond substantively later.

It would assist me in responding if you would cite me the rule or case which suggests or requires the procedure you demand for answering interrogatories propounded in violation of SCR 33 by exceeding 40 in number so that I may consider the validity of your request and the nature of a response.

Sincerely yours,

Roy I. Niedermayer

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

I write in regard to your letters of April 20 and 23, 2001.

First, even if NCRIC has counted Columbia's interrogatories correctly, NCRIC has a valid objection only to interrogatories 41 and above (by NCRIC's count). Hence, NCRIC must, at a minimum, answer Columbia's first 40 interrogatories (by NCRIC's count). If you contend otherwise, please provide me with the legal authority upon which you rely for your position.

Second, I did not, as you suggest, copy Columbia's documents due solely to my preference and contrary to your overtures. Rather, as I indicated when we first spoke about document production, I had already made a copy set of Columbia's documents and replaced the originals in Columbia's files; therefore, an inspection of Columbia's originals by you was not feasible. Thus, as I indicated to you at the time, I understood that each side would, as a matter of professional courtesy and efficiency, produce copies of documents for the other party. If you misunderstood my position, and expected that Columbia would bill NCRIC for copies of documents it produced, please let me know; I will gladly send NCRIC a bill for these documents.

Third, your fifth agenda item is insufficiently specific. I asked you to set a specific agenda to avoid any further disputes regarding what subjects are discussed in discovery conferences. Please do so.

Attached please find a written agenda for our meeting tomorrow, as promised.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Dear Roy:

I write to memorialize our conversation this afternoon with regard to discovery deadlines.

You informed me that, if you decide to designate any expert as a proponent of an issue (e.g., loss reserves), see D.C. Rs. Civ. P. 16(b)(3), 26(d)(4), you will do so in compliance with the existing deadlines set in the scheduling order, March 12, 2001. You also informed me that you will not consent to a two-week extension of this deadline as allowed under Rule 16(b).

In addition, you informed me that you expect to produce all documents in response to Columbia's recent discovery requests at least by the time your response is due under the Rules. As we discussed, I would appreciate if you could produce any documents relating to loss reserves as soon as possible. As I explained, Columbia expects to retain experts to analyze, and possibly testify about, these documents. The sooner you provide us with these documents, the sooner our experts will be able to complete their reports and provide them to you. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Joseph K. Leahy

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc.: Meeting of Counsel pursuant to Court procedures to resolve discovery issues

Dear Joe:

I am in receipt of you faxed letter of March 9, 2001 received by my office at 4:19 a.m. on March 9, 2001. Since you wish to memorialize our conversation of today, I am responding to clarify and correct certain aspects of your letter.

First, I told you that plaintiff will be designating its experts on March 12, 2001, the current deadline set by the Court in its scheduling order and that I expected defendant to comply with that order also as the order governing discovery.

Second, I advised you that I anticipate, but did not promise, that plaintiff's production of documents would occur by the deadline for a response to the requests as provided by the Rules. Defendant will have plaintiff's response within the time limits of the Rules. Actual production may not take place on the precise day the response is filed but will occur when the documents requested have been assembled.

Sincerely yours,

Roy I. Niedermayer

NCRIC, INC. Plaintiff, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC. Defendant.	Civil Action No. 0007308-00 Calendar #8 Judge Linda Kay Davis Next Event: Discovery close 5/12/01

RESPONSES OF PLAINTIFF TO DEFENDANT'S FIRST REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS FROM DEFENDANTS

Defendants respond to the specific Requests for Production of Documents from plaintiff as follows:

Responses to First Requests for Production of Documents

1. All documents relating to Attending Faculty or the Retro Plan, including the negotiation and terms of the Plan, the performance thereof and the termination thereof.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

2. All documents relating to CPG or the Entity Policy, including the negotiation and terms of the Entity Policy, the performance thereof and the cancellation thereof.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

3. Any document relating to any communication between NCRIC and Columbia regarding the Attending Faculty or Retro Plan.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

4. Any document relating to any communication between NCRIC and Columbia regarding CPG or the Entity Policy.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

5. Any document relating to any communication between NCRIC and any person other than Columbia (including any news media, Sibley and any government agency, including the District of Columbia Department of Insurance and Securities Regulation), regarding Columbia, Attending Faculty, the Retro Plan, CPG or the Entity Policy.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as relating to "Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing and the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

6. Any document relating to the provision of MMLI to Attending Faculty, including all documents relating to the cost to NCRIC of providing MMLI to Attending Faculty.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

7. Any document relating to any discount on premium provided or offered by NCRIC to Attending Faculty, including any document reflecting the amount of any such discount (whether expressed in absolute terms or as a percentage) and any reason or rationale of NCRIC or others for providing or offering such discounts.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

8. Any document relating to any discount on premium provided or offered by NCRIC to physicians in the District of Columbia metropolitan area other than Attending Faculty (including physicians with privileges at Sibley or George Washington University Medical Center), including any document reflecting the amount of any such discount (whether expressed in absolute terms or as a percentage) and any reason or rationale of NCRIC or others for providing or offering such discounts.

RESPONSE: Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refused to produce the requested documents on the grounds that the documents sought are not related to or relevant to the issues and subject matter of this case, nor reasonably designed to lead to the discovery of admissible or relevant evidence.

9. All documents relating to Reconciliations, including all documents consulted, referred to, or relied upon in performing such reconciliations.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

10. Any documents relating to Multipliers, including any documents relating to NCRIC's use of Multipliers in performing Reconciliations.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

11. All documents relating to the number of Experience Periods (as defined in the Retro Plan) included in any Reconciliation, including documents relating to any decision of NCRIC regarding which Experience Periods to include when performing Reconciliations.

Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

12. All documents relating to calculations of Retro Plan Premiums, including any analyses, tables, reports or opinions prepared by accountants, actuaries, auditors, risk managers or attorneys.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

13. Any documents reflecting errors or miscalculations, whether intentional or otherwise, by NCRIC in performing Reconciliations or calculating of Retro Plan Premiums.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

14. All documents relating to the calculation of Retro Plan Loss Reserves, including: documents created or consulted by actuaries, accountants, risk managers and attorneys involved in calculating such loss reserves; documents reflecting names of persons involved in calculating such loss reserves; and documents relating to internal NCRIC rules, guidelines, standards or procedures for calculating loss reserves.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

15. Any documents relating to certifications or reports of actuaries provided or required to be provided by NCRIC to Columbia under the Retro Plan.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

16. All documents relating to rules, regulations, guidelines, standards or procedures governing the calculation of loss reserves by insurance companies and NCRIC's compliance therewith, including any audit, analysis or review by NCRIC of its Retro Plan Loss Reserves.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

19. Any document relating to or reflecting a comparison of the initial loss reserves for lawsuits, claims or incidents involving Attending Faculty and the amount of losses actually paid by NCRIC in relation to such lawsuits, claims or incidents.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as relating to "Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing and the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

20. All documents relating the "retro formula" described in paragraphs 28 of the Answer and Counterclaims, including any documents relating to NCRIC's interpretation or application of Exhibit A to the Retro Plan.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

21. All documents relating to investment earnings by NCRIC on Loss Reserves or on any money paid to NCRIC by Columbia pursuant to the Plan.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff has no documents in this category within its custody, possession, and control.

22. All documents relating to renewals or amendments to the Retro Plan, including any memoranda or electronic mail regarding such renewals or amendments, and any communications regarding the reasons for or terms of such renewals or amendments.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

23. All documents relating to payments made or owed under the Retro Plan.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

24. Any documents relating to communications regarding payments made or owed under the Plan, including all documents relating to demands for payment by NCRIC, negotiations regarding the amount to be paid by Columbia and any communication by NCRIC with Columbia or any government agency regarding the status or classification of payments.

Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

25. Any documents relating NCRIC's understanding of the terms of the Retro Plan.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

26. All documents from January 1, 1993 to present relating to representations by NCRIC about the terms the Retro Plan, including communications relating to the cost of the Plan to Columbia, the calculation of Loss Reserves, and the performance of Reconciliations.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

27. All documents from January 1, 1993 to present relating to Columbia's finances or financial situation, including any documents relating to NCRIC's knowledge or understanding of Columbia's financial situation and any documents relating to rumors about Columbia.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

28. Any documents relating to any proposed accounting settlement the Retro Plan, including any documents relating to negotiations regarding the possibility of such a settlement.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

29. All documents relating to the termination of the Retro Plan, including memoranda, emails or board meeting minutes relating to any decision not to renew the Plan.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

30. All documents relating to the cancellation of the Entity Policy, including memoranda, emails or board meeting minutes reflecting NCRIC's reasons for the cancellation.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

31. All documents relating to communication by NCRIC (including communications to Attending Faculty or CPG) regarding cancellation of the Entity Policy.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as relating to "Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing and the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

32. All documents relating to communication by NCRIC (including communications to Attending Faculty or CPG) regarding termination of the Retro Plan.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

33. Any document relating to the provision or proposed provision of MMLI to Attending Faculty by MIIX, MedPro or any company other than NCRIC.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

34. Any document relating to any communication by NCRIC (including communications to Attending Faculty or CPG) regarding MIIX's provision or potential of MMLI to Attending Faculty or CPG, including any documents relating to statements materially similar to those alleged in paragraphs 68-71 of the Answer and Counterclaims.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

35. Any documents (including handwritten notes) relating to MIIX that were referred to or possessed by NCRIC at any meeting attended by NCRIC and Attending Faculty, including the meeting that NCIRC admits it attended in August 1998 (see Reply ¶ 24).

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

36. Any document (including leaflets or memoranda) relating to MIIX created or disseminated by NCRIC, including any documents disseminated to any meeting attended by Attending Faculty in August 1998.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

37. Any document (including documents relating to communications by NCRIC to Attending Faculty or CPG) relating to Columbia's financial health.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

38. Any document (including documents relating to communications by NCRIC to Attending Faculty or CPG) relating to the quality of care at Columbia.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

39. Any document (including documents relating to communications by NCRIC to Attending Faculty or CPG) relating to Columbia's reputation in the community.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

40. Any document relating to any communication by NCRIC (including communications to Attending Faculty or CPG) regarding the Clinic, including any documents relating to statements materially similar to those alleged in paragraphs 89-90 of the Answer and Counterclaims.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant. Subject to the foregoing and the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

41. Any document relating to Attending Faculty's ceasing to practice at Columbia or threats or plans to move practices from Columbia to other hospitals, including all documents relating to application by Attending Faculty for privileges at Sibley.

RESPONSE: Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refused to produce the requested documents on the grounds that the documents sought are not related to or relevant to the issues and subject matter of this case, nor reasonably designed to lead to the discovery of admissible or relevant evidence. Moreover, even if the request were not objectionalbe, plaintiff is unable to produce for inspection and copying documents described as "relating to Attending Faculty" based on defendant's definition because plaintiff is without knowledge as the who are the current or former members of the faculty at defendant.

42. Any document relating to NCRIC's provision or non-provision of MMLI coverage to members of CPG for their work at the Clinic.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refuses to produce documents to or from attorneys as within the attorney-client or work product privileges.

43. Any document relating to physicians leaving CPG or ceasing to practice at the Ambulatory Clinic, and any document relating to any nurses or other staff leaving Columbia.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff. Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and RESPONSE: For its response, plaintiff incorporates herein and adopts the Response of Defendant to plaintiff's Request No. 3 for Production of Documents, substituting the words "plaintiff" for "Medical Center."

50. All documents referred to, relied upon, or consulted in the preparation of your responses to any interrogatories or requests for admission propounded to you by Columbia, and any documents that you believe provide support for such responses.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

51. All documents referred to, relied upon, or consulted in the preparation of the Complaint or Reply, and any documents that you believe provide support for the statements set forth of facts alleged therein.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

52. Any document relating to the allegations set forth in paragraph 16 of the Answer and Counterclaims, including documents relating to any difference between or comparisons of (1) MMLI premiums paid by physicians in the District of Columbia and (2) MMLI premiums paid by physicians in Maryland or Virginia during the period from January 1, 1993 to present.

RESPONSE: Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refused to produce the requested documents on the grounds that the documents sought are not related to or relevant to the issues and subject matter of this case, nor reasonably designed to lead to the discovery of admissible or relevant evidence.

53. Any document relating to any difference between or comparisons of the MMLI premiums paid by (1) obstetricians or gynecologists and (2) other physicians in the District of Columbia metropolitan area during the period from January 1, 1993 to present.

RESPONSE: Upon advice of counsel, plaintiff objects and refused to produce the requested documents on the grounds that the documents sought are not related to or relevant to the issues and subject matter of this case, nor reasonably designed to lead to the discovery of admissible or relevant evidence.

54. Documents relating to the benefits or drawbacks to any party entering into an agreement to calculate premiums retrospectively, including any document relating to comparative benefits of "incurred loss" and "actual loss" retrospective rating programs.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

55. Any document relating to any proposals or communications regarding any proposed or possible "actual loss" retrospective rating program between NCRIC and Columbia, including all documents relating to NCRIC's decision to propose and design the Retro Plan on an "incurred loss" basis rather than an "actual loss" basis.

RESPONSE: Subject to the entry of the protective order for which plaintiff has requested the Court to enter in its pending Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, plaintiff shall permit the inspection and copying of whatever nonprivileged and designated documents plaintiff has within its custody, possession, and control at plaintiff's expense at plaintiff' offices or the offices of plaintiff's counsel during usual business hours on a date and time agreed to between the parties. Alternatively, at the election of defendant, plaintiff may cause photocopies of the documents to be made and provided to defendant upon the agreement of defendant to reimburse or pay the reasonable costs of such duplication. Plaintiff shall produce those documents requested in the manner in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business by plaintiff.

ORDER

Pending before the Court are:

1) Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims, filed December 11, 2000, and the defendant's Opposition thereto, filed January 26, 2001;
2) Plaintiff's Motion for a More Definite Statement of Allegations of Fraud and Misrepresentation and Motion to Strike Insufficient Defense, filed December 11, 2000, and the defendant's Opposition thereto, filed January 27, 2001;
3) Defendant's Motion to Amend Scheduling Order, filed March 17, 2001, and the plaintiff's Opposition thereto, filed April 3, 2001;
4) Plaintiff's Motion to Compel Discovery by Production of Documents from Defendant, filed March 12, 2001, defendant's Opposition thereto, filed March 30, 2001, plaintiff's Reply, filed April 9, 2001, and defendant's Sub-Reply, filed April 23, 2001;
5) Plaintiff's Motion for Protective Order Regarding Confidentiality of Documents and Other Materials, filed April 3, 2001, and defendant's Opposition thereto, filed April 12, 2001; and
6) Plaintiff's Motion in Limine to Exclude Experts of Defendant, or in the Alternative, to Compel Defendant to Provide the Answer to Interrogatory or Supplement its Rule 26(B)(4) Statement and for Leave to Take Depositions of Defendant's Experts, filed April 16, 2001, and defendant's Opposition thereto, filed May 1, 2001.

The Court is aware that several of these motions have not been decided in a timely manner. However, a contributing factor to at least the two oldest pending motions being decided late is the fact that there were not chamber's copies provided for the Oppositions to either of them. In the future, the parties shall provide copies directly to chambers of all pleadings filed.

In its Motion for More Definite Statement and to Strike Insufficient Defense, the plaintiff argues that because the defendant does not specify the amount of damages it is claiming, and because it is too vague as to which of its claims it seeks punitive damages, the plaintiff is unable to file a response. The plaintiff therefore wants the Court to order the defendant to provide a more definite statement. The defendant argues that plaintiff provides no legal support for its argument that the defendant must specify the amount in damages it is seeking. The defendant also argues that its request for punitive damages is clear, and that its pleading meets the requirement of SCR-Civil R. 8(a)(1). The Court agrees with the defendant, and it will not require the defendant to provide a more definite statement.

The plaintiff also argues that the defendant's tenth defense, in which defendant reserves the right to supplement and amend its answers at a later date, is legally insufficient, as this sort of reservation is not provided for in the D.C. Superior Court's Civil Procedure rules. The defendant argues that the plaintiff is not prejudiced by the existence of this defense. The Court agrees with the plaintiff, and the defendant's Tenth defense shall be struck. If the defendant wishes to amend or supplement its answer to the plaintiff's complaint at a later date, it may do so under the procedures set forth in SCR-Civil 15(a).

Both the plaintiff's Motion for Protective Order and the defendant's Opposition thereto have been considered by the Court. The Court's approved version of the Protective Order is being issued contemporaneously with the instant Order. Regarding the plaintiff's Motion in Limine to Exclude the Experts of Defendant, the Court believes that a contributing factor to the plaintiff's lack of information regarding the defendant's expert is the pending Motion for a Protective Order. Therefore, because the terms of the Protective Order have now been resolved, the Court is, at this time, denying the plaintiff's Motion in Limine.

After reviewing all of the pleadings surrounding the plaintiff's Motion to Compel, it appears to the Court that the disagreement is not so much over the content of what is to be turned over, but as to the time frame in which it is due to the other side. In any event, the Court will address both the Motion to Compel and the Motion to Amend the Scheduling Order at a hearing on May 16, 2001, in courtroom 210 at 2:30 p.m.

Still pending before the Court is the plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Counter-Claims. This motion will be decided in a separate Order to be issued in the near future. Therefore, it is, this 11th day of May, 2001 hereby

ORDERED that the plaintiff's Motion for More Definite Statement of Allegations of Fraud and Misrepresentation and Motion to Strike Insufficient Defense is DENIED IN PART and GRANTED IN PART. It is

FURTHER ORDERED that the plaintiff's Motion for Protective Order is GRANTED, and the Protective Order as amended by the Court is attached hereto. It is

FURTHER ORDERED that the plaintiff's Motion in Limine to Exclude Experts of Defendant, or in the alternative, to Compel Defendant to Provide the Answer to

PROTECTIVE ORDER REGARDING CONFIDENTIALITY
OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MATERIALS

Upon the Motion of plaintiff for a protective order pursuant to SCR 26(c), it is this 11th day of May, 2001

ORDERED that:

1. All Classified Information produced or exchanged in the course of this litigation shall be used solely for the purpose of preparation and trial of this litigation and for no other purpose whatsoever, and shall not be disclosed to any person except in accordance with the terms hereof.

2. "Classified Information" as used herein, means any information of any type, kind or character which is designated as "Confidential" or For Counsel Only" by any of the supplying or receiving parties, whether it be a document, information contained in a document, information revealed during a deposition, information revealed in an interrogatory answer, or otherwise. In designating information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only, a party will make such designation only as to that information that it in good faith believes contains confidential information. Information or material which is available to the public, including catalogues, advertising materials, and the like shall not be classified.

3. "Qualified Persons" as used herein, means

(a) Attorneys of record for the parties in this litigation and employees of such attorneys to whom it is necessary that the material be shown for purposes of this litigation (so long as such attorneys and their employees are not direct employees of any party).

(b) Actual or potential independent technical experts or consultants who have signed the declaration form attached at Exhibit A hereto, but such declaration need not be served on opposing counsel for consulting experts or other consultants who will not be called as witnesses at trial. This order shall apply to consulting experts and consultants not called as witnesses in all other respects except disclosure to the other party. Such experts or consultants may not be employees of any party.

(c) In-house corporate officer(s) or employee(s) of a corporate party who has signed the declaration form attached at Exhibit A hereto with such declaration promptly served on opposing counsel by the counsel representing the corporate party.

(d) Any other person may be designated as a Qualified Person by agreement of the parties; or by order of this Court after notice and hearing to all parties. ~~The designation of a persons designated by a party as a Qualified Person may be challenged by motion before the Court.~~

(e) The Judge, law clerks, and other personnel working in chambers.

4. Documents produced in this action may be designated by any party or parties as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information by marking every page (or, at a

6.(a) "Confidential" information shall not be disclosed or made available by the receiving party to persons other than Qualified Persons. Information designated as "For Counsel Only" shall be restricted in circulation to Qualified Persons described in Paragraphs 3(a), (b) and (e) above.

(b) Information designated as "For Counsel Only" provided to a receiving party shall be maintained in the offices of the following outside counsel: for Plaintiff, Roy I. Niedermayer, Esquire; and for Defendant, Kellogg, Huber, Hanson, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C.

Any documents produced in this litigation, regardless of classification, which are provided to Qualified Persons of Paragraph 3(b) above, shall be maintained only at the office of such Qualified Persons and only working copies shall be made of any such documents. Copies of documents produced under this Protective Order may be made, or exhibits prepared by independent copy services, printers, or illustrators for the purpose of this litigation.

(c) Each party's counsel shall maintain a log (either by description or Bates number) of all copies of "For Counsel Only" documents which documents received from another party that are delivered to any one or more Qualified Persons of listed in Paragraph 3(b) above.

7. Documents previously produced shall be retroactively designated by notice in writing of the designated class of each document by Bates number (or by other means by which the document can reasonably be identified) within 20 days of the entry of this order (but no later than three days prior to any scheduled hearing wherein the transcript might be used or relied upon). Documents unintentionally produced without designation as "Confidential" may be retroactively designated in the same manner and shall be treated appropriately from the date written notice of the designation is provided to the receiving party.

Documents to be inspected shall be treated as "For Counsel Only" during inspection. At the time of copying for the receiving parties, such inspected documents shall be stamped prominently "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" by the producing party.

8. Nothing herein shall prevent disclosure beyond the terms of this order if each party designating the information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" consents to such disclosure or, if the court, after notice to all affected parties, orders such disclosures. Nor shall anything herein prevent any counsel of record from utilizing "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information in the examination or cross-examination of any person who is indicated on the document as being an author, source, or recipient of the "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information, irrespective of which party produced such information.

9. A party shall not be obligated to challenge the propriety of a designation as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" at the time made, and a failure to do so shall not preclude a subsequent challenge thereto. In the event that any party to this litigation disagrees at any stage of these proceedings with the designation by the designating party of any information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only", or the designation of any person as a Qualified Person, the parties shall first try to resolve such dispute in good faith on an informal basis, such as production of redacted copies. If the dispute cannot be resolved, the objecting party may invoke this Protective Order by objecting in writing to the party who has designated the document or information as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only".. The designating party shall be required to move the Court for an order preserving the designated status of such information within 14 days of receipt of the written objection, and failure to do so shall constitute a termination of the restricted status of such item.

The parties may, by stipulation, provide for exceptions to this order, and any party may seek an order of this Court modifying this Protective Order.

10. It is the intention of the parties that the definition of Classified documents be consistent with that contained in SCR 26(c). Nothing shall be designated as "For Counsel Only" information except information of the most sensitive nature, which if disclosed to persons of expertise in the area would reveal significant technical or business advantages of the producing or designating party, and which includes as a major portion subject matter which is believed to be unknown to the opposing party or parties, or any of the employees of the corporate parties. Nothing shall be regarded as "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information if it is information that either:

(a) is in the public domain at the time of disclosure, as evidenced by a written document or equivalent;

(b) becomes part of the public domain through no fault of the other party, as evidenced by a written document or equivalent;

(c) the receiving party can show by written document that the information was in its rightful and lawful possession at the time of disclosure or equivalent; or

(d) the receiving party lawfully receives such information at a later date from a third party without restriction as to disclosure, provided such third party has the right to make the disclosure to the receiving party.

11. In the event a party wishes to use any "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information in any affidavits, briefs, memoranda of law, or other papers filed in Court in this that there shall be no restriction on documents that are used as exhibits in Court unless such exhibits were filed under seal, and (b) that a party may seek the written permission of the producing party or order of the Court with respect to dissolution or modification of such Protective Orders.

15. This order shall not bar any attorney herein in the course of rendering advice to his client with respect to this litigation from conveying to any party client his evaluation in a general way of "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information produced or exchanged herein; provided, however, that in rendering such advice and otherwise communicating with his client, the attorney shall not disclose the specific contents of any "Confidential" or "For Counsel Only" information produced by another party herein, which disclosure would be contrary to the terms of this Protective Order.

16. Any party designating any person as a Qualified Person shall have the duty to reasonably assure that such person observes the terms of this Protective Order and shall be responsible upon breach of such duty for the failure of any such person to observe the terms of this Protective Order.

17. If any person, entity, court or any administrative agency subpoenas or orders the production or designation of confidential documents that a party has obtained under the terms of this Order, such party shall promptly notify the subpoenaing third party that the documents are subject to a Protective Order, and shall notify the party or person who designated the materials as confidential of the pendency of such subpoena or order.

ORDER

This matter comes before the Court upon plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims, filed December 11, 2000. Defendant filed an Opposition on January 26, 2001, and plaintiff filed a Reply on February 7, 2001. In its motion, plaintiff seeks to dismiss several of defendant's Counterclaims. The Court is granting plaintiff's motion in part, and denying it in part for the reasons stated herein.

Plaintiff's Motion is brought under SCR-Civil R. 12(b)(6), failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Granting a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted is impermissible unless it appears beyond doubt that a party can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief. See Owens v. Tiber Island Condominium Ass'n, 373 A.2d 890 (1977); Atkins v. Industrial Telecommunications Ass'n, 660 A.2d 885 (1995). For purposes of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, the complaint must be construed in the light most favorable to the party against whom the motion is made. See McBryde v. Amoco Oil Co., 404 A.2d 200 (1979); Cauman v. George Washington Univ., 630 A.2d 1104 (1993). For purposes of the motion to dismiss, the allegations in the complaint are assumed to be true. See Vincent v. Anderson, 621 A.2d 367 (1993); Fred Ezra Co. v. Pedas, 682 A.2d 173 (1996).

Plaintiff argues that Count 3 of defendant's Counterclaim, breach of fiduciary duty, should be dismissed for two reasons. First, Plaintiff argues that it and defendant did not share a fiduciary relationship, and, as a result, it would be impossible for plaintiff to have breached any fiduciary duty. Plaintiff explains that there was no fiduciary relationship because the relationship that existed between plaintiff and defendant did not fit within the "traditional" notions of a fiduciary relationship, such as that of attorney-client, or doctor-patient. Plaintiff's second argument is that the relationship between the two parties was entirely contractual in nature, and that any duty or obligation owed between them arose solely out of the RRR agreement.

Defendant argues that the parties did in fact share a fiduciary relationship, due to the fact that defendant was relying on plaintiff, who defendant feels was in a position of superior knowledge and influence. Defendant further argues that plaintiff offers no legal support for its argument that the relationship between them must fall into one of the "traditional" categories in order for the defendant's breach of fiduciary duty Counterclaim to lie.

The Court agrees with defendant. Although the relationship between plaintiff and defendant may not fit into the "traditional" mold of one of the types of relationships for which claims of breach of fiduciary duty are typically filed, the Court sees no reason why defendant cannot bring its claim. The Court agrees with defendant that whether or not a claim for breach of fiduciary duty lies depends on the facts of each individual case. See Church of Scientology, Int'l. v. Eli Lilly & Co., 848 F. Supp. 1018 (D.D.C. 1994).

Moreover, the Court also finds that plaintiff's argument that defendant's breach of fiduciary duty claim is not factually distinct from its breach of contract claim, and that it therefore cannot be brought, has no merit. The Court agrees with defendant that claims for breach of fiduciary duty and claims for breach of contract can be overlapping. In any event, the Court finds that defendant has alleged, at least in part, differences between the two claims. Therefore, construing all facts in the light most favorable to defendant, the Court finds that defendant may go forward with Count 3 of its Counterclaim, breach of fiduciary duty and the plaintiff's motion to dismiss Count 3 is denied.

Plaintiff next argues that defendant's Count 4, tortious interference with business relations, and defendant's Count 5, tortious interference with prospective business advantage, should be dismissed. Plaintiff argues that Count 4 should be dismissed because there is no contract between the doctors and the hospital, and therefore defendant cannot bring a claim for interference with contract. Plaintiff does not explain why it feels Count 5 should be dismissed. Defendant argues that tortious interference with business relations and tortious interference with prospective business advantage are two separate tort claims in the District, and that there is no requirement that defendant must prove the existence of a contract in order to bring a claim for tortious interference with business relations. See Bennett Enters. V. Domino's Pizza, Inc., 45 F.3d 493 (D.C.C. 1995).

Plaintiff also argues that Count 4 should be dismissed because defendant has failed to plead the requisite level of intent to prove the claim. The Court agrees with defendant's argument that it only need plead some form of "egregious" behavior, and it has so plead. See Genetic Sys. Corp. v. Abbott Labs, 691 F. Supp. 407, 422 (D.D.C. 1988). Therefore, because there is no requirement in the District that a contract must exist for a claim of tortious interference with business relations to lie, and because defendant has plead egregious behavior in relation to the claim, the Court finds that defendant may bring Counts 4 and 5 of its Counterclaim. In addition, as will be discussed at pp. 7-8, infra, the Court finds that NCRIC'statements as alleged in Counts 4 and 5 are not privileged. The plaintiff's motion to dismiss Counts 4 and 5 is accordingly denied.

Plaintiff next argues that defendant's Count 6, negligence, must be dismissed because it arises entirely out of the contract between the two parties, and it is therefore no different than defendant's Count 1, breach of contract. To bring both claims, plaintiff argues, would be redundant. Defendant argues that plaintiff had a duty of care when performing as defendant's bookkeeper in addition to plaintiff's simple contractual obligation to perform as bookkeeper. In this instance, the Court agrees with plaintiff. The Court fails to see any meaningful distinction between defendant's Count 1, breach of contract, and defendant's Count 6, negligence. Therefore, the plaintiff's motion to dismiss Count 6 of defendant's Counterclaim is granted.

Plaintiff also argues that defendant's Count 7, actual and/or constructive fraud, and Count 8, negligent misrepresentation, should be dismissed because they are entirely based upon the existence of the breach of contract between the parties. Defendant argues that Counts 7 and 8 are based on actions that took place after the parties entered into the contract, and are separate from plaintiff's obligations under the contract. Defendant explains that while its breach of contract claim alleges that plaintiff failed to pay defendant amounts owed under the contract, defendant's fraud and misrepresentation claims allege that plaintiff misrepresented the actual amount it failed to pay plaintiff. The Court finds that there is a distinction between the breach of contract claim, and the fraud and misrepresentation claims. Therefore, defendant can go forward with Counts 7 and 8 and plaintiff's motion to dismiss these claims is denied.

Plaintiff next argues that defendant is barred from bringing Count 8, fraud, Count 9, defamation and libel, and Count 10, trade libel/commercial disparagement/injurious falsehood, because the statute of limitations for each claim has expired. Beginning with Count 9, the statute of limitations for defamation or libel is one year. D.C. Code 12-301(4) (1999). Some of the statements alleged as a basis for defendant's Count 9 were made in August of 1998. Defendant's Counterclaim was filed in December of 2000, clearly beyond the one-year statute of limitations. The rest of the statements asserted as libelous in Count 9 of defendant's Counterclaim were made in July and August of 2000. The Counterclaim was filed within the one-year statute of limitations for these statements. Therefore, regarding Count 9, the Court finds that defendant may not proceed on the basis of the 1998 statements, but defendant may go forward on this Count with respect to the July and August 2000 statements.

In terms of Count 8, fraud, plaintiff argues that because it arises out of the 1998 statements, it should be dismissed as well. Defendant argues, and the Court agrees, that defendant's fraud claim does not arise out of the 1998 statements. The Court finds that Count 8 of defendant's Counterclaim is not barred by the statute of limitations and the plaintiff's motion to dismiss Count 8 is denied.

Plaintiff argues that the facts giving rise to defendant's Count 10, injurious falsehood, arise from the same 1998 statements barred by the statute of limitations in Count 9. Defendant argues that rather than applying the one-year statute of limitations for defamation, which protects personal reputation, the Court should apply the three-year statute of limitations for tortious interference with business relations, defendant's Count 4, to its injurious falsehood claim, as both tortious interference with business relations and injurious falsehood protect business or economic interests. The Court has reviewed the cases cited by defendant, and has decided that it agrees. See Pro Golf Manufacturing, Inc. v. Tribune Review Newspaper Company, 761 A.2d 553 (Penn. 2000); Guess v. The Superior Court of Los Angeles County, 176 Cal. App. 3d 473 (1986).

In Guess, the real parties in interest sued petitioner for trade libel, among other claims. Petitioner filed a motion for summary judgment with the trial court, arguing that the case should be dismissed because the statute of limitations for libel was one year, and had expired. The trial court denied defendant's motion, applying the statute of limitations for actions "upon a contract, obligation, or liability not founded upon an instrument of writing...." instead which in California is two years, Id., at 476. Petitioner filed a writ of mandamus, arguing that the one-year statute of limitations should apply. The appellate court denied the petition, finding that although various courts around the country are split on the issue, the better finding is that the statute of limitations for trade libel or injurious falsehood is two years, rather than the one-year statute of limitations for libel or defamation. Id., at 479. The court based its opinion on the fact that the one year statute of limitations applies to "all alleged infringement of personal rights," while the two year statute of limitations applies to "only alleged infringements of property rights." Id, at 478 (Quoting Richardson v. Allstate Ins. Co., 117 Cal. App. 3d 8, 12 (1981). The court also cited to Prosser and Keaton, and the fact that they recognized an important distinction between defamation and injurious falsehood. Id.

Similarly, in Pro Golf, the Pennsylvania court compared the elements of "classic" defamation to the elements of injurious falsehood. In making its decision on whether to apply the statute of limitations for defamation or the statute of limitations for most other torts, the court found it significant that in proving injurious falsehood, the party bringing the claim must show actual pecuniary loss. Id., at 555. While a party bringing a defamation claim must also show harm, it is a different type of harm, one involving "impairment of reputation and standing in the community ..." Id. Therefore, the court found that while sometimes overlapping, the two claims were entirely distinct. Because of the economic harm that must be shown in injurious falsehood claims, the court found that the correct statute of limitations to be applied is the one for tortious interference with property, rather than the statute of limitations for defamation. Id, at 557.

This Court agrees with the reasoning of the California and Pennsylvania courts. Defendant's claim for injurious falsehood seeks damages for an economic harm alleged to have been done to it by plaintiff. As such, the Court finds that the statute of limitations that should be applied is the same as that for claims of injury to property, which is three years. D.C. Code § 12-301(3) (1999).

Plaintiff argues that defendant's Count 10 also should be dismissed because the statements that the clinic "was a dangerous place to work," and that defendants "self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure" the clinic are simply opinions of plaintiff about facts. Plaintiff further argues that the statements are not actionable because they are legal opinions. Finally, plaintiff argues that the statements are protected by an "insurer-insured" privilege. Defendant argues that the statements are not privileged because they were known to be false when made, that while the statements may have been opinions about facts, they are still actionable, and that the statements were not legal opinions because they were statements of fact, not statements about "matters of law." The Court agrees with defendant.

First, because defendant alleges in his Counterclaim that the statements made were known to be false at the time they were made, the Court finds that defendant has alleged that they were made in "bad faith." Thus, the statements are not subject to qualified privilege at this time. See Hahn v. Kotten, 331 N.E.2d 713 (Ohio 1975); International Adm'rs., Inc. v. Life Ins. Co., 753 F.2d 1373 (7th Cir. 1985); Nasr v. Connecticut Gen. Life Insurance Co., 632 F. Supp. 1024 (N.D. Ill. 1986). Next, the Court finds the statement relating to the safety of the clinic's working environment and the statement regarding the sufficiency of the self-insurance trust are capable of bearing a defamatory meaning. See Guilford Transp. Indus. Inc. v. Wilner, 760 A.2d 580, 594 (D.C. 2000). Finally, the Court finds that the statements giving rise to defendant's Count 10 were not statements of legal opinion. Therefore, because Count 10 is not barred by the statute of limitations, and because the statements do not appear to the Court to be privileged, non-actionable statements of fact, nor legal opinions, defendant may go forward with its claim of injurious falsehood. Plaintiff's motion to dismiss Count 10 is denied.

Plaintiff next argues that defendant's claims for punitive damages in Count 1, breach of contract, Count 2, breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, Count 3, breach of fiduciary duty, Count 8, fraud, and Count 11, conversion[1], are not

[1] Plaintiff also argues that defendant's claim for punitive damages in Count 6, Negligence, is not permitted by law as well. However, because the Court is dismissing this claim for other reasons, there is no need to address plaintiff's argument regarding Count 6. See supra, at 4.

permitted by law. Plaintiff argues that Counts 1, 2, and 3 are based on contract claims for which punitive damages are not permitted. Plaintiff argues that defendant has not alleged the requisite "malice" to be able to recover punitive damages for Counts 8 and 11. Defendant argues that it has alleged bad faith, fraud, and malfeasance in relation to all of the claims for which it has claimed punitive damages. Defendant also argues that while punitive damages are generally not permitted for breach of contract claims, there is an established exception in cases where the parties also shared a fiduciary relationship.

Defendant argues that punitive damages are allowed in contract claims when the breach of contract "merges with and assumes the character of a willful tort." Brown v. Coates, 253 F.2d 36, 38 (D.C. Cir. 1958). Defendant claims that this is particularly true when the willful tort the breach of contract claim merges with is breach of fiduciary duty. Wagman v. Lee, 457 A.2d 401(D.C. 1983). Of course, the general rule regarding punitive damages for contract damages is that "where the basis of a complaint is [for] breach of contract...punitive damages will not lie, even if it is proved that the breach was willful, wanton, or malicious." See Sere v. Group Hospitalization, Inc. 443, A.2d 33 (D.C. 1980) (citations omitted). Punitive damages are generally disfavored in the law. See Id., at 37. While the Court agrees that defendant has accurately described the court's conclusion in Brown, the opinion in that case also stressed that whether punitive damages for breach of contract could be brought was to be assessed entirely on a case-by-case basis. See Brown, supra 253 F.2d, at 40. Defendant alleges, and the Court has found, that defendant's breach of fiduciary duty claim is separate from its breach of contract claim. See supra, at 3. In order for punitive damages to lie in a breach of contract claim, "the breach must merge with and assume the character of a willful tort." See Sere, at 37. The Court finds that this is not the case here, and therefore, defendant cannot claim punitive damages for Counts 1 and 2.

Factors that can support a claim for punitive damages for claims based in tort include "fraud, ill will, recklessness, wantonness, oppressiveness, willful disregard of the [other party's] rights, or other circumstances tending to aggravate the injury." Jemison v. National Baptist Convention, USA, Inc., 720 A.2d 275, 286 n.10 (D.C. 1998); Wagman, at 405 (D.C. 1983). The Court has reviewed the entirety of defendant's Counterclaim, and finds that for Counts 8 and 11, defendant has not sufficiently alleged the kind of egregious behavior necessary to succeed on a claim for punitive damages.

Defendant has brought a claim for negligent misrepresentation, not a claim for fraudulent misrepresentation. By its very nature, negligent misrepresentation does not rise to the level of wrongful conduct necessary for a finding of punitive damages. To succeed on a claim of negligent misrepresentation, the party bringing the claim must show 1) that the opposing side made a false statement or omitted a fact that it had a duty to disclose, 2) that it involved a material issue, and 3) that the party bringing the claim reasonably relied upon the false statement or omission to his determent for the period of time at issue in this case. See Hall v. Ford Enter., Ltd, 445 A.2d 610, 612 (D.C. 1982); Redmond v. State Farm Insurance Comp., 728 A.2d 1202, 1207 (D.C. 1999).

To succeed on a claim of fraudulent misrepresentation, on the other hand, the moving party must show 1) that the defendant made a false representation of material fact; 2) that the defendant either made the representation knowing that the representation was false, or made the representation recklessly without knowing it was true; 3) that the defendant made the representation with the intent to deceive the plaintiff; 4) that the plaintiff justifiably relied on the representation, and 5) that the plaintiff suffered damages as a result of his or her reliance on the representation. See Herculed & co. v. Shauna Restaurant Corp., 613 A.2d 916, 923 (D.C. 1992); Pyne v. Jamaica Nutrition Holdings Ltd., 497 A.2d 118, 131 (D.C. 1985).

Defendant's claim is styled as one of negligent misrepresentation. Upon reviewing the facts alleged in defendant's Count 8, the Court finds that while defendant may have alleged more than just ordinary negligence on the part of plaintiff, it still does not rise to the level necessary for a claim of punitive damages. Punitive damages are generally disfavored, and not every finding of fraud warrants a finding of punitive damages. See Feltman v. Sarbov, 366 A.2d 137, 140 (D.C. 1976). An award of punitive damages is proper "only when the tort is aggravated by evil motive, actual malice, deliberate violence or oppression." Id. Defendant has not alleged this sort of egregious conduct. Therefore, the Court finds that defendant may not bring a claim for punitive damages for Count 8 of its Counterclaim.

Likewise, defendant's conversion claim, Count 11, makes no allegation of conduct necessary for a claim of punitive damages. Defendant's claim states that:

> NCRIC interfered with Medical Center's property to the exclusion and in defiance of Medical Center's rights to the property by not returning Medical Center's payments when and to the extent that NCRIC subsequently owed Medical Center Return Premium.

Defendant makes no allegation of malice, evil motive, or even wilfullness. The Court finds that the allegations in Count 11 are not enough to support a claim of punitive damages.

Defendant may go forward with its claim for punitive damages for Count 3, breach of fiduciary duty. The law is clear that punitive damages are recoverable for claims of breach of fiduciary duty. See Wagman v. Lee, 457 A.2d 401 (D.C. 1983). Accordingly, the Court finds that as to the claims for punitive damages challenged by plaintiff in its motion to dismiss, defendant may only claim punitive damages for Count 3, its breach of fiduciary duty claim. Plaintiff's motion to dismiss defendant's punitive damages claims is granted as to Counts 1, 2, 8, and 11; and denied as to Count 3.

Plaintiff finally argues that defendant's claim for attorney's fees is not permitted by law. See Concord Enterprises, Inc. v. Binder, 710 A.2d 219 (D.C. 1998). Defendant argues that because it is alleges that plaintiff has brought this suit in bad faith, it can bring a claim for attorney's fees. See Goffe v. Pickard, 588 A.2d 265, 271 (D.C. 1991). The Court agrees with plaintiff. If defendant wishes to bring a claim for attorney's fees based on bad faith in filing suit, it must do so after this case has concluded. See SCR-Civil R. 11(c)(1); see Morowitz v. Marvel, 423 A.2d 196 (D.C. 1980). Therefore, defendant's claim for attorney's fees is dismissed.

Accordingly, it is, this 3rd day of July, 2001, hereby ORDERED that plaintiff's motion is GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART, as set forth with particularity above.

SO ORDERED.

DEFENDANT'S OBJECTIONS TO THREE NOTICES OF RULE 30(b)(6) DEPOSITION OF DEFENDANT

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby objects as follows to the three Notice[s] of Rule 30(b)(6) Deposition of Defendant (collectively, "Notices"), served by Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") on June 26, 26 and 28, 2001, respectively.

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

These General Objections apply to each and every one of the deposition subjects listed in NCRIC's Notices ("deposition subjects") and form an integral part of Columbia's Objections to each such notice:

1. All general objections set forth in Defendant's Objections to Plaintiff's Notice of Deposition Pursuant to Superior Court Rule 30(b)(6) ["Defendant's Objections"] (April 4, 2001) are incorporated by reference as if fully stated herein, and are applicable to each topic unless specified otherwise.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS

The specific objections to Subjects 1 through 57 (inclusive) set forth in Defendant's Objections are incorporated by reference as if fully stated herein, and are applicable to the corresponding Subjects listed in each Notice (i.e., the specific objections to Subject 1 of Defendant's Objections are incorporated herein and applicable to Subject 1 of each Notice; the specific objections to Subject 2 of Defendant's Objections are incorporated herein and applicable to Subject 2 of each Notice, etc.).

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia has designated or will designate witnesses for subjects 4, 9, 15-27, 29, 31-50, 53 and 54.

Subject No. 58: Negotiations and discussions resulting in the Addenda and amendment of the contract between the parties in 1996, 1998, 1999 and 2000.

Objections to Subject No. 58: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession and/or to the extent that the Subject requests information already provided to NCRIC in Columbia's responses to NCRIC's interrogatories. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by any privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Columbia will designate a witness with regard to Subject No. 58.

OPPOSITION TO DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO EXTEND DEADLINE FOR PROPONENT'S RULE 26 (b)(4) STATEMENT and
PLAINTIFF'S RENEWED MOTION IN LIMINE TO PRECLUDE DEFENDANT'S EXPERT TESTIMONY

PLAINTIFF'S ALTERNATIVE MOTION FOR ADDITIONAL TIME TO FILE OPPONENT'S RULE 26 (b)(4) STATEMENT

PLAINTIFF'S ALTERNATIVE MOTION FOR LEAVE TO COMPLETE DISCOVERY ON DAMAGES AFTER THE DISCOVERY DEADLINE

PLAINTIFF'S ALTERNATIVE MOTION FOR LEAVE TO DEPOSE DEFENDANT'S EXPERTS

NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), by counsel, opposes the defendant's Motion to Extend Deadline for Proponent's Rule 26 (b)(4) Statement for the reasons stated in this Opposition and, in conjunction with this Opposition, moves this Court pursuant to SCR 37, the procedures of the General Order for Civil II cases, and SCR 26(b)(4)(A)(ii) for an order precluding defendant from offering expert testimony at trial on the grounds that: (a) defendant failed to timely file its Rule 26(b)(4) statement as required by the Court ordered

June 26, 2001 deadline and (b) defendant failed to provide the substance of the facts and opinions to which its experts are expected to testify along with and a summary of the grounds for each opinion.

In addition, and alternatively in the event the Court grants defendant's Motion to Extend and denies NCRIC's Motion in limine to Preclude Defendant's Expert Testimony, NCRIC moves the Court pursuant to the procedures of the General Order for Civil II cases, SCR 16, and SCR 26 as follows:

1. For an order granting NCRIC an extension of time from July 26, 2001 to August 9, 2001 within which to file its Opponent's Rule 26 (b)(4) Statement;

2. For an order granting NCRIC leave to complete discovery by deposition and otherwise on defendant's damages and calculation of damages to be testified to by defendant's experts after the current August 12, 2001 discovery completion deadline set in the Court's amended Scheduling Order dated May 11, 2001; and

3. For an order granting NCRIC leave to take the depositions on oral examination of defendant's experts.

I. Actual and Total Scope of the Breach by Defendant's Calculated Failure to File a Timely and Complete Proponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement

For the second time,[1] defendant Columbia Hospital for Women, Inc. ("Columbia") has failed to comply with the applicable Scheduling Order for the Court-ordered timely submission of its Rule 26(b)(4) Statement on experts by June 26, 2001 and has not even provided the minimally required information about the experts' opinions mandated for its 26(b)(4) statement. Defendant blames NCRIC entirely for its own failures, claiming NCRIC's delayed production of documents needed for defendant's experts,[2] rather than its own lack of early diligence, its own failure to commit sufficient time and personnel to completion of document review in the face of the impending June 26, 2001 deadline, and repeated changing of experts (both the specific persons designated as well as the fields in which expertise is offered).[3] Because of the impending close of

[1] This action was filed in October 2000. Defendant filed its initial counterclaims about November 6, 2000. The Initial Conference was held on January 12, 2001 and set a March 12, 2001 date for the filing of the Proponent's Rule 26(b)(4) statement on experts. For 5 months after suit was commenced and for 3 months after the Scheduling Order was entered and with a set date for Proponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement, defendant did nothing to obtain any of the data from NCRIC it then claimed and now claims it needed for prospective experts it "might" call to testify. When it finally realized its dilatory commencement of discovery prevented obtaining the loss reserve documents it wanted for any experts by the March 12, 2001 deadline (defendant only filed its first request for documents about March 3, 2001), defendant finessed the 26(b)(4) statement by listing two experts it had not yet "retained" but with whom it was negotiating and might retain, so that no 26(b)(4) Statement information on the substance of actual opinions was provided. Instead, defendant sought to amend the Scheduling Order. NCRIC opposed this and made a Motion in limine. The same sequence has essentially repeated itself this time.

[2] Defendant faults NCRIC for its own failures, going so far as to disingenuously claim that the reason for its prior Motion to Amend Scheduling Order was due to NCRIC's failure to produce the same documents at issue here. In fact, Columbia knew at the time it filed its first Motion to Amend Scheduling Order those documents were not yet even due to be produced.

[3] In its first 26(b)(4) statement, defendant named two potential experts, Ms. Wright and Ms. Harriman with Dr. Chukwueizi as an alternative. In response to NCRIC's 30(b)(6) notice of deposition, defendant designated the president of the defendant (Larry discovery and Columbia's neglect in failing to designate its experts by even the new deadline granted by the Court, Defendant's repeat attempt to circumvent the Court's Scheduling Order should be denied.

What is critical now is that the Court comprehend the full magnitude and scope of Columbia's avoidance of the deadline and why the present situation is not merely Columbia's need for added time because of its lack of information from NCRIC, even were the latter matter true in the degree selectively presented by Columbia in its motion. Columbia avoids addressing the substantive change in latest 26(b)(4) Statement by focusing the Court's entire attention on the issue of delayed production of documents by NCRIC dealing with loss reserves. Defendant would have the Court believe that its entire failure to comply with the Scheduling Order and supply its experts' opinions was attributable to its experts' lack of materials about loss reserves in NCRIC's possession and necessary for both of Columbia's experts' opinions. The facts will show this is simply not true.

The magnitude of, and the reasons for, defendant's failures in designating experts are far more egregious than are set forth in its Motion to Extend. What must be understood is defendant's counterclaims seek essentially two entirely different types of

---

Wilson) as the person to address damage calculations. Compare NCRIC's Notice of 30(b)(6) Deposition subject matter number 9, Exhibit 1, with defendant's designation of Mr. Wilson (Exhibit 2). At the June 26 Wilson deposition, defendant informed NCRIC that Mr. Wilson would not testify as to the calculation of damages. Exhibit 11. At the same time on June 26, defendant changed experts again and named two different experts, Mr. Ezra and Ms. Brill (Defendant's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement), one of whom was to render opinions in an area not previously identified. So defendant not only changed its experts, but took advantage of the opportunity to name a type of expert in a new area not heretofore identified and then seeking to preclude NCRIC from adequate response and discovery time by pushing back the date for its Rule 26(b)(4) Statement to July 12, 2001.

damages which are calculated differently and which are based on wholly different underlying facts. To simplify terminology issues, plaintiff will refer to the different categories as follows:

1. Tort Damages. Generally, these are damages which Columbia claims result from such tortious acts of NCRIC[4/] as interfering with Columbia's business relationships with the physicians who refer patients to Columbia (Counterclaim Counts 4-5, 8-10) or damaging defendant's reputation with a consequent loss of revenue, financing, profit opportunities, and other economic losses. See Counterclaim Counts 4-5 and 8-10.

2. Contract Formula Damages. These are damages resulting from NCRIC's claimed failure to perform correct calculations of Additional Premium or Return Premium[5/] under the Retro Plan formula. The result of this failure is that NCRIC claims it is owed Additional Premium while Columbia contends it is owed Return Premium (or lower Additional Premium). The calculation of damages is based on a contract formula ("Formula") contained in the Retro Plan contract between NCRIC and Columbia. The Formula requires the multiplication and addition of 5 different factors in order to come up with the Additional or Return Premium.[6/] The amount used as Loss Reserves affects the [4/] E.g., interference with business relations and prospective business advantage, defamation and disparagement, and negligent misrepresentation.

[5/] Pursuant to the agreement, Columbia paid periodic premiums for each year of the Retro Plan, and any over payment ("Return Premium") was to be returned to Columbia with under payments ("Additional Premium") paid to NCRIC.

[6/] In its simplest explanation, the formula is: Loss Reserves multiplied by a Development Factor. The resulting mathematical product is added to Paid Losses for the period and then the new sum is multiplied by a Development Factor from the contract. The defined applicable Basic Premium is then added to this final product to determine the Return or Additional Premium. For purposes of this discussion, the exact operation of the magnitude of and whether there is Additional or Return Premium. These damages are claimed in Counterclaim Counts 1-3, 6-7, and 11.

Columbia recognizes the differences in these types of damages and the different expert testimony needed for its proof of each type. Defendant has named two experts in its incomplete Rule 26(b)(4) Statement filed June 26, 2001: Peter Ben Ezra and Julia M. Brill. Mr Ezra is expected to testify about the damages to Columbia caused by the torts asserted in Counterclaim Counts 4-5 and 8-10. Ms. Brill's testimony and opinions deal with loss reserves and the Loss Reserve factor in the Formula. See Exhibit 3.

The failure of Columbia to file a timely and complete Rule 26(b)(4) must be judged separately with regard to each of these areas of damages and as to each expert. THIS IS A CRITICAL DISTINCTION WHICH COLUMBIA AVOIDS IN ITS ARGUMENTS BY LUMPING THE TWO EXPERTS TOGETHER AND ATTRIBUTING ITS FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH THE RULE 26(b)(4) STATEMENT REQUIREMENTS TO NCRIC'S ALLEGED FAILURES.

Plaintiff will discuss each category of expert individually below.

II. Columbia Failed to Comply with the Deadline for Filing and Providing the Content of its Proponent's Rule 26(b)(6) Statement As to the Tort Damages and the Deadline Should Not Be Extended Because any Necessary Information for Expert Review was in the Sole and Exclusive Possession of Columbia Well Prior to the Rule 26(b)(4) Deadline.

A. The failure to designate Mr. Ezra was unrelated to any alleged document production delay by NCRIC Formula is not important, merely that the Loss Reserves are an element of the calculation.

Columbia's failed designation of Mr. Ezra as an expert on the tort damages has absolutely nothing to do with any alleged delay in the production of documents about loss reserves. Mr. Ezra does not need any of those documents in order to form his opinions on tort damages, and Columbia has not made any showing of any connection between the loss reserves and tort damages. No expert needs any of these loss reserve documents to form opinions about loss of revenues because the documents are irrelevant to such an analysis and opinions.

Indeed, the documents which are needed under Columbia's tort theories are financial statements of Columbia for the applicable periods, income and expense data, doctor referral of patient data, gross and net profit margin data, and similar materials.[7/] All of these materials are, and have always been, in the sole possession of Columbia since the moment it filed its Counterclaims. NCRIC has none of these documents in its possession to produce and, tellingly, Columbia has not asked NCRIC to produce them in any of Columbia's requests for production of documents. Presumably, the determination

[7/] In fact, NCRIC has been trying to discover these very materials since almost the inception of the case. See interrogatory nos. 6, 7, and 12 of NCRIC's First Set of Interrogatories to Columbia (dated October 26, 2000) attached hereto as Exhibit 4; requests nos. 2 and 6 of NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents to Columbia (dated October 26, 2000) attached hereto as Exhibit 5; requests nos. 2, 4, 7, 13, 36, and 37 of NCRIC's Second Requests for Production of Documents to Columbia (dated January 12, 2001) attached hereto as Exhibit 6; subject matter nos. 9, 19-20, 26-27, 30-32, 34, 37, 39, 47, and 53 of NCRIC's Notice of 30(b)(6) Deposition (dated March 14, 2001) attached hereto as Exhibit 1; all of which were objected to and no deponent produced by Columbia [See Columbia Objections to NCRIC Notice of 30(b)(6) Deposition filed April 5, 2001 and refusal to testify attached hereto as Exhibit 7]; and NCRIC's latest series of Notice of 30(b)(6) Deposition attached hereto as Exhibit 8. To date, NCRIC has been unable to obtain any calculation of these damages despite its repeated efforts through discovery to do so because of the manner of Columbia's opposition and its nonresponsive discovery.

of these damages was part of the ongoing, thorough investigation of facts and documents by Columbia which was used by defendant as a justification for its Motion for Amended Scheduling Order last time. See, e.g., Columbia's Motion to Amend Scheduling Order at 4.

Thus, Columbia could and should have made the designation of an expert on this particular subject matter at the March 12, 2001 Rule 26(b)(4) deadline. There was no reason at all which prevented it from doing so, since no discovery was needed from NCRIC and Columbia had already had two months within which to come up with the expert and perform the analysis.

Interestingly, Columbia in its initial incomplete Rule 26(b)(4) Statement which it did file did not name or even suggest any expert to testify on the subject matter of the tort damages that Mr. Ezra will now attempt to testify about. Both "unretained" and potential experts named by Columbia were to testify solely about loss reserves. Only now has Columbia decided to have an expert on the tort damages. It certainly could have made this decision and started its analysis process earlier, enabling it to meet the June 26, 2001 deadline for an expert on these subject matters. It is irrelevant whether these actions exhibit Columbia's lack of diligence or conscious decisions designed for some dilatory or tactical reason.

Further, there can be no justification for Columbia's lack of diligence in failing to file a Rule 26(b)(4) Statement about Mr. Ezra in particular and about providing the substance of his opinions by either March 12, 2001 or June 26, 2001. Mr. Ezra is a CPA with financial expertise known to, and employed by, Columbia for a long time as a consultant in its "long period of receivership and . . . bankruptcy" who has "intimate knowledge of Columbia's financial affairs. . . ." Surely it would have been easy to "discover" him and his opinions more rapidly since he was already familiar with Columbia's financial situation.

Nothing NCRIC did or could have done affected Columbia's ability or obligation to provide a timely Rule 26(b)(4) statement with respect to an expert such as Mr. Ezra or Mr. Ezra himself by June 26, 2001.

B. NCRIC will be severely prejudiced if Mr. Ezra is permitted to testify

Columbia's delay and failure to designate Mr. Ezra significantly prejudices NCRIC's ability to obtain opponent experts and have them complete their analysis and opinions in time for NCRIC's current July 26, 2001 deadline or even the close of discovery. NCRIC could not have known from Columbia's earlier March 12, 2001 Rule 26(b)(4) statement that there would be any experts on the tort damages. It has been surprised by this recent discovery. In none of the discovery responses to date has Columbia provided any calculation of such damages or made any suggestion of an expert on these damages despite outstanding discovery from NCRIC since October 2000 addressing these very issues. NCRIC still does not know any element critical of the calculation or Mr. Ezra's analysis. Does NCRIC need a CPA or a hospital administration consultant or an economist or simply a person familiar with the medical market and doctor referral – or all of these? NCRIC still has no inkling of what it will be required to rebut.

NCRIC cannot begin gathering the necessary information through discovery because it cannot be sure what information will be needed, and may not be able to obtain sufficient information from Columbia in time anyway. [8/] To the contrary, NCRIC's attempts at discovery throughout this proceeding have been thwarted by Columbia's failure to provide even the most basic information about its damages.

NCRIC also cannot initiate the analytical process without knowing what it is that it must address. It does not know what defendant's calculations show, what is the methodology for calculation, or what are the assumptions and factual bases for the analysis and opinions because Columbia has not provided any of this information and does not want to provide it until July 12. Knowing the subject matter of Mr. Ezra's opinions is insufficient. If Columbia is simply allowed to present this information on July 12, then NCRIC will not have sufficient time to retain its own expert and file its own timely Rule 26(b)(4) Statement.

With regard to this area of expert testimony, Columbia has manipulated the process by its late decisions on experts, repeated change of the types of expert testimony and the identity of particular experts, and late or incomplete filings coupled with Motions to Amend the Scheduling Order. This will effectively deprive NCRIC of adequate time to [8/] While Columbia repeatedly complains about NCRIC's delays in production of documents, the Court should note that NCRIC sent Columbia detailed requests for production of documents in January 2001. Columbia did not exert reasonable or diligent efforts to produce the documents in a timely manner, but instead produced documents on: December 21, 2000; January 12, February 6, March 5, March 14, April 13, April 19, May 30, June 8, 12, and 18, and July 5, 2001. In fact, the financial information which NCRIC surmised might be useful to challenge Columbia's damages in this area (see footnote 7) has only recently been produced. NCRIC obtained a CD computer disk with patient referral data on it only about June 18, 2001 – and the production was only a document containing lists of numbers without any explanation. It was only after NCRIC noticed the deposition of a Columbia agent who could explain the seemingly random and meaningless numbers on the page that Columbia provided a key to the columns on July 6, 2001. See Exhibit 10. Based on these experiences, NCRIC does not reasonably expect Columbia to be more forthcoming on the critical area of expert testimony.

obtain its own experts for trial. Simply giving NCRIC more time and extending discovery is not an appropriate solution where Columbia has ignored the Scheduling Order and SCR 16 and SCR 26 twice in this particular expert area for no justifiable reason or valid reason. If the Court's Scheduling Order deadlines are to have any meaning, Columbia must be barred from introducing an expert in the tort damages area where it had exclusive control over its expert designation unfettered by the need of data from NCRIC. It's no different than if NCRIC claimed it needed extra time on loss reserves because Columbia failed to produce documents on loss of patient revenues or damages to reputation. Defendant's lax attitude toward discovery and expert designation should not be rewarded. Sanctions for failure to comply with the deadlines in the Rules and Order of this Court should not be avoided simply by giving the opposing party a similar extension.

C. Conclusion

As to Mr. Ezra, both because of the lack of any prior notice that expert testimony in this area would be presented and because of the untimely and insufficient Rule 26(b)(4) information provided by June 26, 2001 without justification, the Court should grant the Motion in limine and prevent expert testimony from Columbia in this area.

III. Columbia Failed to Comply with the Deadline for Filing and the Content of its Proponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement As to the Loss Reserves Due to Its Own Lack of Diligence, and the Deadline Should not be Extended.

A. The failure to designate Ms. Brill was caused by defendant's own lack of diligence Columbia's argument for indulgence in the area of its loss reserve expert testimony is also without merit. The argument is based solely on a justification that NCRIC's document production was delayed. Columbia's description of the events and exchanges between the parties about these matters is selective of the events. NCRIC asks the Court to consider:

1. Columbia started its discovery 3 months after the Initial Conference and the Scheduling Order set the discovery and expert designation deadlines, so it was pressed for time once it began discovery.

2. Columbia requested all of NCRIC's underwriting and claims files from 1993 to date, many of which were stored offsite and took time to be retrieved. The volume and quantity of the approximately 150 requested claims files alone was about 40 to 50 boxes. Even a more limited production at Columbia's request involved 10 boxes.[9/]

3. NCRIC produced extensive documents and files beginning May 22, 2001 including claims files. It assembled documents in its conference rooms on the second and third floors. Once the initial arrangements for production were made, counsel for Columbia was instructed he "may continue to review the documents from day-to-day until you have exhausted the documents provided. This means that you are welcome to return on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and thereafter from day-to-day." See E-mail of Roy Niedermayer dated May 21, 2001 included in Columbia Exhibit E to the Motion to Extend. Only one reviewer for Columbia viewed documents on May 22, and for only [9/] Columbia initially designated only 33 specific claims files to be produced. After these documents were produced, Columbia expanded its request to include several times the files first asked for. These documents, too, are being provided.

about 3 hours. No one for Columbia came on May 23, 24, 25 or 30.[10/] Some claims files were available on those days in a second floor conference room.

5. Columbia caused delay and confusion by requesting specific files be produced for its own convenience rather than reviewing all the files that were produced. See Columbia Exhibits E.

6. The claims files were available for review no later than May 31, 2001.[11/] Between May 31 and June 12, when Columbia finally ceased any further inspection, only one person for Columbia reviewed claims files for the number of hours as follows:

Date	Hours spent on review
June 1	2.3 hours;
June 6	4.2 hours;
June 7	5.8 hours;
June 8	6.8 hours;
June 11	4.2 hours; and
June 12	5.7 hours.

[10/] NCRIC maintains sign in sheets for all visitors, so it has a record of the days and hours spent by Columbia in review of documents on which these dates and hours are based. A copy of the log sheet is attached hereto as Exhibit 9.

[11/] Mr. Leahy, counsel for Columbia, acknowledges on June 4, 2001 that he (along with a colleague) had reviewed the claims files. The last day before June 4, 2001 that Mr. Leahy had reviewed any files was May 31, 2001. Thus, the documents were available on that date, and perhaps before.

No inspections took place on June 4-5. In the face of a June 26 deadline, Columbia did not provide adequate personnel to review all the documents and did not exhibit any urgency by a continuous inspection as permitted by plaintiff.

Columbia knew it was under a deadline to complete the selection of documents for its experts so they could reach opinions and file the Rule 26(b)(4) Statement by June 26. Columbia spent a total of 9 days reviewing the documents at NCRIC. If Columbia had come continuously as instructed, the review could have been completed by June 1. If Columbia had one person spend a full 7 hour business day reviewing documents, the review would have been done in 6 days or by May 28 or June 7 (if May 31 was the first day claims files were available). If two persons had spent full 7 hour business days reviewing files, the review would have been done in 3 days or by May 25 or June 4 (if May 31 was the first day claims files were available). If done by June 4 or June 7, Columbia would have had 3 weeks to compile the expert opinions. This is about the amount of additional time it wants now (3 weeks) based on it claim of receipt of the documents on June 20 and an extension to July 12. Columbia was just not diligent in pursuing review when it knew it had an impending deadline. It did not have enough personnel assigned or have them come continuously. The cause of failure to file the Rule 26(b)(4) statement on time as to the loss reserve expert lies with Columbia. It should not be permitted to bootstrap its lack of diligence into more time and prejudice NCRIC through the loss of adequate time to conduct discovery and prepare a rebuttal to Columbia's experts testimony.

B. NCRIC will be prejudiced if Columbia is permitted to designate Ms. Brill at this late date

Defendant's failure to designate an expert with respect to the loss reserves until this late date will prejudice plaintiff in its attempts to offer rebuttal witnesses. Again, defendant should not be permitted to avoid sanctions for its callous disregard of this Court's Rules and Orders by simply allowing plaintiff a similar extension of time.[12/]

III. In the Event the Court Grants Columbia's Motion to Extend, the Court Should Grant NCRIC's Plaintiff's Alternative Motion for Additional Time To File Opponent's Rule 26 (b)(4) Statement, Plaintiff's Alternative Motion for Leave to Complete Discovery on Damages after the Discovery Deadline, and Plaintiff's Alternative Motion for Leave to Depose Defendant's Experts.

If the Court grants Columbia's Motion to Extend and denies NCRIC's Motion in limine, then NCRIC should be entitled to additional time to file its Opponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement. This will require additional discovery from Columbia to obtain the documents and materials used by Columbia's experts in preparation of their opinions, a process which could be assisted by a Court order that Columbia turn over those materials forthwith in a form understandable and useable by NCRIC's experts. There simply is not enough time to accomplish this if NCRIC must file its Opponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement by July 26, 2001.

Further, NCRIC does not have any information from Columbia's experts or from other Columbia witnesses on the calculation of the damages, despite repeated attempts in accord with traditional discovery methods. Columbia's repeated lack of [12/] Plaintiff notes that defendant has thus far not even agreed to this proposition, arguing instead that two weeks will be sufficient time for plaintiff to designate its rebuttal experts despite the fact that defendant has taken several months to designate its own experts.

compliance with the Rules and Orders of this Court casts significant doubt on the issue of whether future filings will give NCRIC sufficient information to consult and retain its own experts. NCRIC clearly needs to understand this information and can accomplish this most effectively by deposition. If the Court denies NCRIC's request, then there is a substantial likelihood that additional motions, oppositions, and responses will have to be prepared and heard to determine the adequacy of Columbia's expert designations. This will serve only to further delay these proceedings. There is no reason which has been or which can be offered by Columbia to oppose such a request except to hide the information.

WHEREFORE, NCRIC respectfully requests

1. That defendant's Motion to Extend Deadline for Proponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement be denied; and

2. That plaintiff's Motion in limine to Preclude Defendant's Expert Testimony be granted; or, in the alternative,

3. That plaintiff's Alternative Motion for Additional Time to File Opponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement be granted; and

4. That plaintiff's Alternative Motion for Leave to Complete Discovery on Damages After the Discovery Deadline be granted; and

5. That plaintiff's Alternative Motion for Leave to Depose Defendant's Experts be granted; and

6. Whatever other and further relief may be required in the interests of justice.

CERTIFICATION OF GOOD FAITH EFFORTS TO SECURE CONSENT AND RESOLVE DISCOVERY DISPUTES WITH DEFENDANT

The undersigned counsel hereby certifies that he made good faith efforts to secure the defendant's consent to a protective order:

1. On July 7, 2001, counsel for plaintiff faxed, mailed and e-mailed counsel for defendant a letter requesting consent to the motions described above.

2. On July 10, 2001, counsel for defendant advised plaintiff that it would not consent unless certain other conditions were agreed to by plaintiff. Plaintiff was not able to agree to these changes.

3. After these good faith efforts, plaintiff was not able to obtain defendant's consent to the motions.

4. In light of the nature of defendant's Motion to Extend and plaintiff's Motion in limine, further efforts to obtain consent would be nugatory.

NOTICE OF RULE 30(b)(6) DEPOSITION OF DEFENDANT

Please take notice that NICRIC, Inc., plaintiff, by Roy Niedermayer, its attorney, hereby notices the deposition upon oral examination of an officer(s) or managing agent(s) of defendant pursuant to SCR 30(b)(6) at the offices of NCRIC, Inc., 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20007 beginning at 9:30 a.m. on April 10, 2001 and continuing from day to day thereafter until completed.

The designated persons shall be prepared to testify on the following subjects:

1. The facts and reasons forming the basis for defendant's claims that any of the calculations or numbers in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) are incorrect or fail to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant.

2. The correct amounts that should be used or inserted in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; and facts and reasons why these numbers are the proper amounts and calculations to be used in calculating the amount of premium due plaintiff under the contract.

3. The amounts of premium that should have been charged to defendant in each year of the contract and the amount, year, and method of calculation of any refund of premium defendant claims was due it.

4. The identity, terms, and facts concerning any contract, business relationship, or business expectancy between defendant and each of the doctors identified in paragraph 14-18 and 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

5. The specific actions and acts of plaintiff constituting the interference with the contracts between defendant and the doctors identified in paragraph 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

6. Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting malice toward defendant.

7. Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting any wanton or reckless disregard of the rights of defendant.

8. Source, substance, nature, duties and responsibilities of NICRIC as fiduciary for defendant and actions constituting breach of any fiduciary duty.

9. Identify, description, and calculation of damages suffered by acts alleged in each amended counterclaim count.

10. Defamatory actions or statements by plaintiff about defendant.

11. The matters concerning calculation of loss reserves, adjustments of loss reserves, positive loss experiences of defendant under the Plan, use of additional years in calculating premiums, and each element of the formula or requirements for reconciliation of premiums due under the Plan.

12. Allegations of errors by plaintiff made in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence) of the Amended counterclaims.

13. The bases for the allegations of plaintiff's knowledge about defendant's financial situation as alleged in paragraph 43 of the Amended counterclaims.

14. The specific errors, miscalculations and overstatements in the bill from plaintiff alleged in paragraphs 72 and 101 including the reasons and bases for the errors, and corrections required to make the bill accurate.

15. The facts supporting or related to the allegations of paragraph 73 that plaintiff attempted to gain leverage over defendant.

16. The search for new or replacement MMLI insurance with companies other than plaintiff during the period 1993 to date.

17. The negotiations and events between plaintiff and defendant alleged in paragraphs 83-88 including the factual bases for defendant's allegations of cancellation without justification, retaliation, and reneging.

18. The events and statements described in paragraph 89 of the Amended counterclaims.

19. The substance, nature, and scope of any harm caused to the defendant's reputation in the community caused by the action of plaintiff including the nature, bases, and calculation of any monetary damages sustained as a result of the harm.

20. The content of the rumors alleged in paragraphs 91 and 98 of the Amended counterclaims as well as the identities of the staff members originating and circulating the rumors.

21. Defendant's reputation in the medical community and community at large.

22. The facts and events described in paragraph 92 of the Amended counterclaims.

23. Identities of the physicians, staff, nurses, and executives described in paragraphs 91, 93, 96, and 98 of the amended counterclaims and the reasons for the actions of these persons described in those paragraphs.

24. Local media communications with defendant's personnel, doctors, staff, nurses, and executives in 1999-2000 concerning defendant's financial condition, loss of doctors and patients, closing of defendant's operations, and similar topics.

25. Recruitment of physicians and staff during 1990-2000.

26. Damages and injury to defendant's business and property as alleged in paragraph 109-110, 116-117, 122, 128, 134, 138, 146, 153, 158, 163, and 168 of the amended counterclaims.

27. Loss of revenue due to loss of patient referrals, including the numbers of patients and source of patients lost, the amount of revenue lost, the services, materials, supplies that would have been charges the lost patients, the gross and net profit on each item of service, material or supply which would have been provided to the lost patients.

28. The amount and calculation of defendant's claim of Return Premium due it from plaintiff from 1993 to date.

29. Causes of defendant's current insolvency and financial problems.

30. The relationship between the actions of plaintiff and any damages claimed to have been sustained by defendant.

31. Losses or damages proximately caused by harm to defendant's reputation.

32. Loss of revenues from the departure of Attending Faculty described in paragraph 97.

33. Identities of Attending Faculty of defendant for 1993 to date.

34. Physicians who0 had privileges at defendant but who have ceased referring patients to defendant or who have given up, abandoned, or relinquished their privileges from 1990 to date.

35. Identity of and reason for loss of physicians and staff from defendant from 1990 to date, including who, when, and why physicians and staff left or disassociated with defendant.

36. MMLI rates for OB/GYN physicians in D.C., Maryland, and Virginia from 1993 to date.

37. Actual patient referrals to defendant from 1993 to date identified by referring physician.

38. Expected numbers of patients referred by physicians and anticipated revenues from such patients for 1993 to date, including any studies, projections, or estimates made.

39. Actual revenues from patients described in subject matter paragraphs 37-38.

40. Basis for allegations of MMLI market domination by plaintiff in 1993 and thereafter.

41. Communications between defendant and plaintiff described in paragraphs 21 and 36 of the amended counterclaims.

42. Representations of plaintiff described in paragraphs 24, 29, 126, 142, 148, and 155 of the amended counterclaims including substance of representation, means of communication, author/speaker, recipient, and circumstances of communication.

43. Basis for allegations of plaintiff's knowledge described in paragraphs 21, 43, 125, and 131 of the amended counterclaims.

44. Audit requests by defendant to plaintiff and refusals by plaintiff to permit audits or provide information including substance of representation, means of communication, author/speaker, recipient, and circumstances of communication.

45. Actions exhibiting defendant's reliance on plaintiff as alleged in paragraphs 30, 36, and 42 of the amended counterclaims.

46. Factual basis for allegations in paragraphs 92 of the amended counterclaims regarding underwriting justifications.

47. Hiring and loss of staff from 1990 to date including facts and reasons for loss of each physician and staff member, including facts of difficulty in hiring and maintaining staff.

48. Morale of physicians and staff from 1993 to date.

49. Identities of senior executives leaving defendant from 1993 to date and the reasons/cause for the departures.

50. Communications between defendant and print, radio, television, or other electronic media and defendant, including officers, employees, and directors from 1993 to date.

51. Performances under the Plan prevented, excused or waived by plaintiff.

52. Facts concerning plaintiff's intent or intentional conduct as alleged in paragraphs 121, 126, 132, 151, and 161 of the amended counterclaims.

53. Nature, scope, and duration of defendant's business expectancies or advantages alleged in paragraph 130 of the amended counterclaims.

54. Actions of defendant to audit, verify, or check the accuracy of plaintiff's accountings or reconciliations.

55. Industry standards for Loss Reserves.

56. Concealment of facts by plaintiff from defendant including the identity and substance of the facts concealed, method/means/acts or concealment, persons concealing, and reasons for concealment.

57. Attorneys' fees claimed, expended, and incurred in the action, including the terms of all legal or other fee agreements, amounts billed, amounts paid, and amounts accrued or accounts payable by defendant.

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Enclosed please find a list of the designees who will testify on Columbia's behalf with regard to certain topics listed in NCRIC's Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice, on the dates that we discussed. Columbia will name designees to testify regarding other topics in a separate letter.

Please confirm the deposition dates for these designees, and let me know the time (I suggest 9:30 a.m.) and location for each deposition, at your earliest convenience.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Joseph K. Leahy

Designees to Testify on Behalf of Columbia Hospital for Women, Inc.

DEFENDANT'S INITIAL RULE 26(B)(4) STATEMENT AS A PROPONENT OF A CLAIM

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, hereby states, pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure 16(b)(3) and 26(b)(4), that it currently expects that it may call one or more of the following persons as expert witnesses at trial on its behalf:

1. Elizabeth Wright, Independent Consultant; and

2. Mary Harriman, Director of Risk Management, Mercy Health Services.

Each of the foregoing experts is expected to testify, if retained and called as a witness, with regard to the following subjects:

1. methods, formulas and criteria for setting loss reserves by hospitals and/or insurers for medical malpractice liability claims in the District of Columbia and/or surrounding metropolitan area;

2. the reasonableness and propriety, in light of the industry standards for setting loss reserves for medical malpractice liability claims in the District of Columbia and/or surrounding metropolitan area, and in light of other loss reserves of the same nature set by NCRIC in the same region, of the loss reserves set by NCRIC under the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement between the parties.

Columbia makes the forgoing statements subject to the following qualifications:

1. Columbia has not yet retained either of the foregoing witnesses to testify at trial, but rather, has contacted and/or is negotiating with such witnesses; if Columbia retains either of the foregoing expert witnesses to testify at trial, Columbia will supplement this Rule 26(b)(4) statement with information concerning the witness's address and qualifications, at that time;

2. due to its current financial situation, Columbia may be unable to retain either of the foregoing expert witnesses, in which case Dr. Henry Chukwueizi, Risk Manager, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., or any other suitable person later discovered by Columbia, may testify as an expert to the foregoing subjects;

3. Columbia reserves its right to supplement the designations of expert witnesses and subjects of testimony set forth above at any time during the course of ongoing discovery;

4. Columbia reserves its right to designate any of the foregoing, or others, as rebuttal expert witnesses at the appropriate time; and

5. Columbia has yet not received from NCRIC the documents and information concerning its loss reserves that is necessary for the forgoing expert witnesses to render their opinions concerning the subjects set forth above, and therefore, these experts have not rendered any opinions or written any reports. Accordingly, Columbia is unable at this time to set forth the substance of the facts and opinions to which the experts are expected to testify, and a summary and grounds for each opinion. However, within a reasonable time after receiving all of the necessary documents and information concerning loss reserves from NCRIC, any experts retained by Columbia will render their opinions, and Columbia will supplement this Rule 26(b)(4) Statement with the required information.

6. Columbia reserves the right to modify this Statement in the event that its currently pending motion to amend the Court's January 12, 2001 scheduling order is granted.

DEFENDANT'S OBJECTIONS TO PLAINTIFF'S NOTICE OF DEPOSITION PURSUANT TO SUPERIOR COURT RULE 30(b)(6)

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby objects as follows to the Notice of Rule 30(b)(6) Deposition of Defendant ("Notice") served by Plaintiff/ Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), for a deposition noticed for April 10, 2001.

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

These General Objections apply to each and every one of the deposition subjects listed in NCRIC's Notice ("deposition subjects") and form an integral part of Columbia's Objections:

1. Columbia objects to the deposition subjects to the extent they seek information protected by the attorney-client privilege, work product privilege, or any other applicable privilege that would make the information sought immune from discovery in whole or in part. "Privilege" as hereinafter used shall include all the above-named privileges and any other rule of law, privilege, or confidentiality provided by law. By designating a witness to testify on a given topic, it is not intended to be, or in any way may it be deemed, a waiver of any such available privilege to which Columbia is entitled.

2. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they seek to impose obligations upon Columbia beyond those permitted by, or different from those required by, the District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they are vague, overly broad, unduly burdensome, or seek information that is not relevant to any claim or defense of a party or is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

4. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to information that is already, or solely, in NCRIC's possession.

5. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to information not in Columbia's possession.

6. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to Columbia attorneys' fees in this action.

7. It should not be inferred from the form or substance of any objections contained herein that information responsive to any particular subject exists.

8. By designating a witness to testify on any subject, Columbia does not concede the relevance or admissibility of the information sought.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS

Subject No. 1: The facts and reasons forming the basis for defendant's claims that any of the calculations or numbers in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) are incorrect or fail to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 1: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that the Subject requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession and/or to the extent that the Subject requests information already provided to NCRIC in Columbia's responses to NCRIC's interrogatories. Columbia also objects this Subject to the extent it seeks testimony that is properly in the realm of expert testimony, and as such, constitutes an improper attempt to elicit Columbia's testimony expert without permission of the Court, in violation of District of Columbia Superior Court Rule 26(b)(4). Columbia objects further to this Subject to the extent that relates to pure matters of law, including interpretation of the agreement between the parties, and therefore, is not properly the subject of a deposition of a lay witness.

Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. In effect, this Subject requires counsel for Columbia to marshal all of its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the subject, provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. For this reason, Columbia objects that this Subject is not properly the subject of a 30(b)(6) deposition. Instead, this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory (the deadline for service of which passed on March 12, 2001, prior to service of NCRIC's 30(b)(6) deposition notice).

Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 1.

Subject No. 2: The correct amounts that should be used or inserted in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; and facts and reasons why these numbers are the proper amounts and calculations to be used in calculating the amount of premium due plaintiff under the contract.

Objections to Subject No. 2: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 2.

Subject No. 3: The amounts of premium that should have been charged to defendant in each year of the contract and the amount, year, and method of calculation of any refund of premium defendant claims was due it.

Objections to Subject No. 3: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 3.

Subject No. 4: The identity, terms, and facts concerning any contract, business relationship, or business expectancy between defendant and each of the doctors identified in paragraph 14-18 and 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 4: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 5: The specific actions and acts of plaintiff constituting the interference with the contracts between defendant and the doctors identified in paragraph 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 5: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. In effect, this Subject requires counsel for Columbia to marshal all of its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the subject, provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. For this reason, Columbia objects that this Subject is not properly the subject of a 30(b)(6) deposition. Instead, this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory (the deadline for service of which passed on March 12, 2001, prior to service of NCRIC's 30(b)(6) deposition notice).

Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 5.

Subject No. 6: Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting malice toward defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 6: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 6.

Subject No. 7: Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting any wanton or reckless disregard of the rights of defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 7: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 7.

Subject No. 8: Source, substance, nature, duties and responsibilities of NCRIC as fiduciary for defendant and actions constituting breach of any fiduciary duty.

Objections to Subject No. 8: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 8.

Subject No. 9: Identify, description, and calculation of damages suffered by acts alleged in each amended counterclaim count.

Objections to Subject No. 9: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to Subject No. 9 in that its investigation is continuing, and to the extent that its damage calculations are not completed at this time. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 9 at this time.

Subject No. 10: Defamatory actions or statements by plaintiff about defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 10: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 10.

Subject No. 11: The matters concerning calculation of loss reserves, adjustments of loss reserves, positive loss experiences of defendant under the Plan, use of additional years in calculating premiums, and each element of the formula or requirements for reconciliation of premiums due under the Plan.

Objections to Subject No. 11: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 11.

Subject No. 12: Allegations of errors by plaintiff made in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence) of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 12: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 12.

Subject No. 13: The bases for the allegations of plaintiff's knowledge about defendant's financial situation as alleged in paragraph 43 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 13: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 13.

Subject No. 14: The specific errors, miscalculations and overstatements in the bill from plaintiff alleged in paragraphs 72 and 101 including the reasons and bases for the errors, and corrections required to make the bill accurate.

Objections to Subject No. 14: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 14.

Subject No. 15: The facts supporting or related to the allegations of paragraph 73 that plaintiff attempted to gain leverage over defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 15: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 15 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 16: The search for new or replacement MMLI insurance with companies other than plaintiff during the period 1993 to date.

Objections to Subject No. 16: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 16 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 17: The negotiations and events between plaintiff and defendant alleged in paragraphs 83-88 including the factual bases for defendant's allegations of cancellation without justification, retaliation, and reneging.

Objections to Subject No. 17: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 17 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 18: The events and statements described in paragraph 89 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 18: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that the subject requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. Moreover, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requires counsel for Columbia to marshal its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the Subject and provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. To this extent, Columbia objects that this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory, not a 30(b)(6) deposition.

16d-000685

Subject No. 19: The substance, nature, and scope of any harm caused to the defendant's reputation in the community caused by the action of plaintiff including the nature, bases, and calculation of any monetary damages sustained as a result of the harm.

Objections to Subject No. 19: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents. Columbia also objects to this Subject in that its investigation is continuing, and to the extent that its damage calculations are not completed at this time. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 19 at this time.

Subject No. 20: The content of the rumors alleged in paragraphs 91 and 98 of the Amended counterclaims as well as the identities of the staff members originating and circulating the rumors.

Objections to Subject No. 20: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to the extent that the Subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 21: Defendant's reputation in the medical community and community at large.

Objections to Subject No. 21: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein.

Subject No. 22: The facts and events described in paragraph 92 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 22: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 18, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein.

Subject No. 23: Identities of the physicians, staff, nurses, and executives described in paragraphs 91, 93, 96, and 98 of the amended counterclaims and the reasons for the actions of these persons described in those paragraphs.

Objections to Subject No. 23: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 24: Local media communications with defendant's personnel, doctors, staff, nurses, and executives in 1999-2000 concerning defendant's financial condition, loss of doctors and patients, closing of defendant's operations, and similar topics.

Objections to Subject No. 24: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 25: Recruitment of physicians and staff during 1990-2000.

16d-000687

Objections to Subject No. 25: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein.

NOTICE OF RULE 30(b)(6) DEPOSITION OF DEFENDANT

Please take notice that NICRIC, Inc., plaintiff, by Roy Niedermayer, its attorney, hereby notices the deposition upon oral examination of the defendant by the following officer(s) or managing agent(s) of defendant pursuant to SCR 30(b)(6) at the offices of NCRIC, Inc., 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20007 beginning at 9:30 a.m. on the dates designated and continuing from day to day thereafter until completed:

Dwayne Gasser, July 9, 2001

Nabil Asterbadi, M.D., July 11, 2001

The deponents shall be prepared to testify from among the following subjects as designated by defendant:

1. The facts and reasons forming the basis for defendant's claims that any of the calculations or numbers in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) are incorrect or fail to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant.

2. The correct amounts that should be used or inserted in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; and facts and reasons why these numbers are the proper amounts and calculations to be used in calculating the amount of premium due plaintiff under the contract.

3. The amounts of premium that should have been charged to defendant in each year of the contract and the amount, year, and method of calculation of any refund of premium defendant claims was due it.

4. The identity, terms, and facts concerning any contract, business relationship, or business expectancy between defendant and each of the doctors identified in paragraph 14-18 and 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

5. The specific actions and acts of plaintiff constituting the interference with the contracts between defendant and the doctors identified in paragraph 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

6. Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting malice toward defendant.

7. Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting any wanton or reckless disregard of the rights of defendant.

8. Source, substance, nature, duties and responsibilities of NICRIC as fiduciary for defendant and actions constituting breach of any fiduciary duty.

9. Identify, description, and calculation of damages suffered by acts alleged in each amended counterclaim count.

10. Defamatory actions or statements by plaintiff about defendant.

11. The matters concerning calculation of loss reserves, adjustments of loss reserves, positive loss experiences of defendant under the Plan, use of additional years in calculating premiums, and each element of the formula or requirements for reconciliation of premiums due under the Plan.

12. Allegations of errors by plaintiff made in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence) of the Amended counterclaims.

13. The bases for the allegations of plaintiff's knowledge about defendant's financial situation as alleged in paragraph 43 of the Amended counterclaims.

14. The specific errors, miscalculations and overstatements in the bill from plaintiff alleged in paragraphs 72 and 101 including the reasons and bases for the errors, and corrections required to make the bill accurate.

individual doctor's policy. We only assume part of the risk in exchange for a discount. So to the extent that there are special provisions in a doctor's policy, I don't know.

Q. Do you contend that NCRIC offers insurance programs at other hospitals that it doesn't offer at Columbia Hospital for Women?

A. That's what it appears to me.

Q. Why does it appear that way to you?

A. Because I have not heard of any other hospital with a clinic that excluded, where the physicians were excluded.

Q. Do you contend that NCRIC offers a Retro program at other hospitals but won't offer one to Columbia?

A. Not on the terms and conditions that I wanted or the hospital wanted. I mean you can get anything for a price. In my opinion, the Retro plan as constituted with NCRIC was a bad business deal for the hospital. I think NCRIC agreed to that.

Page 160

Q. My question was, let me make it more pointed, do you think that NCRIC offers an insurance program at Sibley Hospital that's not available to be implemented at Columbia Hospital?

A. I don't know what the plan is at Sibley.

Q. Do you contend that NCRIC offers an insurance plan at George Washington Hospital that's not available to be implemented to Columbia Hospital for Women?

A. I don't know the specifics of that plan. I have heard that the plans at Sibley and George Washington are subsidized plans.

Q. Isn't it true that the plan that is currently in effect at Columbia Hospital is less expensive than the plan offered by NCRIC?

MR. LEAHY: Object to the form. It assumes a fact not in the record.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: What fact?

MR. LEAHY: That there is a plan in effect.

Page 161

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Mr. Wilson, is there a plan in effect at Columbia Hospital for Women for physicians?

A. No. We don't have an attending faculty plan.

Q. Do you have insurance coverage for physicians at Columbia Hospital?

A. The hospital does not have coverage for attending faculty.

Q. Does it have a plan whereby it offers a discount to physicians at Columbia Hospital through some plan with an insurance company?

A. It does not offer a discount, not for the plan. We offer a discount for risk management incentives.

Q. Do you know whether the premiums being paid by doctors who practice at Columbia Hospital are the same or less than doctors practicing at Sibley or George Washington Hospital?

Page 162

A. I think the premiums at Columbia are less.

Q. Let's see if we can go back –

A. That's how we made our comparisons and the rates that were quoted by NCRIC were certainly higher than the ones we had at the time.

Q. Let's go back to Count One. Can you describe for me each type of damage that you claim under Count One has been incurred by the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and instruct you not to answer to the extent that you got knowledge from work product of your attorney, that it's not Columbia's knowledge. If you have information that's Columbia Hospital's, give it.

THE WITNESS: As you know, this has been discussed with attorneys. So maybe I should not answer that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: This witness has been proffered as being able to answer these questions. Are you telling me he can't answer any of these questions?

MR. LEAHY: He's not our expert. To the extent the party has knowledge, the party can answer. To the extent the knowledge is the party's lawyer's knowledge or the expert witness' knowledge, you'll have to depose those people. To the extent the party has information, go ahead and answer. I'm sure the party has some information. But don't answer about what your lawyer knows.
THE WITNESS: Yeah. We contend there were damages as a result. Damage to reputation, damage to lost opportunities, damage to loss of volume.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Those aren't breach of contract, but tell me how much is the damages for loss of reputation.
A. We haven't been able to quantify that. Considerable.
Q. Who is going to quantify it?

Page 164

A. Our damage expert.
Q. When will that be done?
MR. LEAHY: You can answer to the extent you know.
THE WITNESS: We're working on it now.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. What's the basis on which he's quantifying it?
A. The best information we have available, whatever that is.
Q. Did you provide any information to that expert?
A. We've provided some information.
Q. What information have you provided?
A. We had discussions about inflammatory remarks that were made that caused damage to the hospital. We are trying to quantify or will quantify the loss of opportunities as a result of physicians not coming to, physicians leaving the clinic that day; damages to the extent that we may have exposure through future lawsuits because of inadequate coverage in the clinic that day, as an example.

Q. What are the inflammatory comments that you referred to in your testimony?
A. Inflammatory remarks like the clinic is an unsafe place to work.
Q. You contend that someone at NCRIC said that?
A. It was reported to me that someone at -- let me see. It was third-hand, but I heard something to that effect. I don't recall exactly.
Q. Who at NCRIC said that?
A. The comment was not made to me directly, I can say that.
Q. Who was it made to?
A. That was anecdotal comments I heard all along.
Q. Are they from the people other than Dr. Cook and Dr. Glassman?

Page 166

A. Not from NCRIC. I can't tell you I heard anyone from NCRIC make that statement.
Q. So if I understand your testimony, you cannot identify any person at NCRIC that made the statement that had been attributed to NCRIC.
A. Not firsthand, no, I cannot.
Q. Do you know of anyone other than Drs. Cook and Glassman who have firsthand knowledge that NCRIC made any inflammatory statements about the hospital?
A. No.
MR. LEAHY: What was that answer?
(Record read by the reporter.)
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Can you tell me what facts you have provided to your experts for their calculation of damages to the reputation of the hospital?
A. We provided facts to substantiate that our foundation board did in fact cancel a gala that we had planned; provided the fact to

NCRIC, INC., Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff.	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar 8 -- Judge Davis Next Event: Opponent's Rule 26(b)(4) Statement Due: July 12, 2001

RULE 26(B)(4) STATEMENT AS AN OPPONENT OF A CLAIM AND SUPPLEMENTAL RULE 26(B)(4) STATEMENT AS A PROPONENT OF A CLAIM

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, hereby states, pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure 16(b)(3) and 26(b)(4), that it expects to call at trial, as an expert witness on its behalf:

3. Susan M. Darrell-Smith, 3615-D Chain Bridge Road, Fairfax, VA 22030.

Ms. Darrell-Smith (whose curriculum vitae is attached hereto as Exhibit A), or any similarly-qualified expert who may assist her, is expected to testify with regard to the same subjects as Julia Brill and NCRIC's experts, James McGuire and James Hurley.

Due to NCRIC, Inc.'s untimely production of documents (which is still ongoing), Ms. Darrell-Smith has not had an opportunity to review and analyze all of the documents necessary for her to evaluate the reasonableness and propriety of NCRIC's loss reserves. As such, Ms. Darrell-Smith has not yet fully developed her factual and opinion testimony. However, Columbia expects that, once Ms. Darrell-Smith completes her review of the relevant NCRIC claim files, she may testify that, for some or all of the Retro Plan claims: NCRIC's loss reserves are unreasonable, in light of the accepted industry standards; that lower reserves would have been adequate and fiscally prudent for an insurance company in NCRIC's position; that the reserves appear to have been set by a risk manager without adequate experience or who failed to perform sufficient research regarding the claim before setting the reserve; that the reserves were boilerplate, set without regard to proper considerations; that the reserves were not sufficiently adjusted downward over time as new information became available; that reserves for one or more co-defendants in a multi-defendant case were unjustified, in light of differential liability between defendants. Once Ms. Darrell-Smith completes her review of the relevant documents, Columbia will supplement this statement, if necessary, to reflect any other conclusions.

The factual basis for Ms. Darrell-Smith's opinions, should she complete her review of NCRIC's claim files and fully develop her testimony, will be a detailed understanding of each claim for which NCRIC set a loss reserve, developed through a careful review of the files. Ms. Darrell-Smith's opinions will be based, it is expected, on her long-time experience as a risk manager, claims auditor, and consultant in the medical malpractice claims field.

4. Consulting Actuary, Casualty Actuarial Society.

In addition, Columbia is currently in the process of attempting to retain an actuarial expert. To date, Columbia has been unable to do so, in part because the local actuaries it has contacted have been conflicted out of testifying or have been occupied with other engagements. In addition, Columbia has yet to determine whether it can afford an actuarial expert from outside of the metropolitan area, in light of Columbia's current financial position. If Columbia is able to retain an actuarial expert, it will supplement this statement at the appropriate time.

* * *

Columbia makes the forgoing statements regarding the experts it expects to call at trial subject to the following qualifications: (1) Columbia reserves the right to call any witness listed in Defendant's Initial Rule 26(B)(4) Statement as a Proponent of a Claim (March 12, 2001), or any other suitable person later discovered by Columbia, if it is unable to retain Ms. Darrell-Smith as an expert; (2) Columbia reserves its right to supplement or change this statement, including its expert witness designations, at any time during the course of discovery; (3) Columbia reserves its right to designate any of the foregoing, or others, as rebuttal expert witnesses.

MOTION TO COMPEL DEFENDANT'S DESIGNATED WITNESSES TO ANSWER QUESTIONS PROPERLY POSED AT DEPOSITION

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer its attorney, moves this Court pursuant to SCR Rule 37 for an order compelling defendant to produce for deposition designated witnesses to supply information that was requested at previous depositions, but to which answer was refused on counsel's instruction. The basis for this motion is that counsel inappropriately instructed corporate designees not to answer, or to only partially answer, questions, incorrectly asserting a non-applicable attorney work product privilege. Additional facts and argument are provided in the accompanying memorandum of grounds and authorities.

Respectfully submitted,

MEMORANDUM OF GROUNDS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO COMPEL DEFENDANT'S DESIGNATED WITNESSES TO ANSWER QUESTIONS PROPERLY POSED AT DEPOSITION

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiff filed this case on October 3, 2000, and defendant counterclaimed on November 6, 2000 alleging, among other things, defamation and disparagement on the part of plaintiff. Before defendant had even filed its counterclaim, plaintiff, on October 26, 2000, propounded interrogatories seeking "the names and addresses of any individuals who you know or believe have any information or knowledge of any matters concerning the subject matter of . . . (iii) your counterclaims." Interrogatory number 1. Defendant produced a list of witnesses but none was indicated as having knowledge of defendant's claims for defamation and disparagement.

Plaintiff also sought "the method of calculation and factual bases for any monetary damages you claim against defendant by way of counterclaim, setoff, recoupment or otherwise." Interrogatory 6. Defendant answered by objecting and claiming that it did not have the necessary information to answer at that time.

Plaintiff, requiring the information that had been refused in the answers to interrogatories, responded by noting the deposition on March 14, 2001 of defendant's corporate designees, setting forth with particularity 58 subject areas of testimony. Defendant designated, among others, Safa Rifka, M.D. and Larry Wilson.[1/] The depositions were set for June 21, 2001 and June 27, 2001, respectively. By agreement of counsel, Mr. Wilson's deposition was suspended and reconvened. At the depositions, plaintiff's counsel asked questions seeking factual information directly related to defendant's counterclaims.

Defense counsel objected to questions and instructed Dr. Rifka not to answer, or to give only a partial answer, on no less than ten occasions, including to questions calling for straightforward factual answers such as to whom allegedly defamatory statements were made. Deposition transcript at p. 115. On each of the ten occasions, defense counsel claimed attorney work product privilege as the basis for instructing the witness not to answer. Defense counsel instructed Mr. Wilson to either not answer, or to only partially answer, questions on no less than five occasions.

The questions the witnesses refused to answer sought factual information that goes to the very essence of defendant's claims and defenses. The impressions of counsel were not sought. Again, Dr. Rifka refused to provide the identities of persons who had allegedly made defamatory statements about defendant. This information is central to defendant's counterclaims for plaintiff's alleged tortious activity. Not only will it alert plaintiff to the actual people claimed to be involved, but it will give plaintiff sufficient information to conduct additional formal and informal discovery. Dr. Rifka refused to provide any information that his attorneys had discovered as to identities. Defendant's failure to provide this information severely prejudices plaintiff's ability to defend itself.

[1/] Defendant designated witnesses to testify to only a small portion of the subjects set forth in the deposition notice. This failure is the subject of a separate Motion to Compel.

The only explanation for this behavior is that it is an attempt by defendant to "hide the ball" and either surprise plaintiff at trial or conceal the absence of any facts on which to base its claims for plaintiff's tortious behavior. If defendant intends to introduce these statements at trial, it would be unfair for plaintiff not to have the opportunity to conduct its own investigation about them. If defendant has no facts on which to support its claims for plaintiff's alleged tortious behavior, those claims should be dismissed.

II. ARGUMENT

A. Defense Counsel's Reliance on the Attorney Work-product Privilege of SCR 26(b)(3) Is Misplaced Because No Documents or Tangible Things Were Requested.

SCR 26(b)(3) only protects "documents and tangible things." Id. The subjects of defense counsel's instructions not to answer were unrelated to any requests for documents or other tangible things. See transcript excerpts, attached hereto as Exhibit "A." Thus, SCR 26(b)(3) does not operate as an appropriate basis in this case to instruct the witnesses not to answer. "Rule 26(b)(3) itself provides protection only for documents and tangible things and ... it does not bar discovery of facts a party may have learned from documents that are not themselves discoverable." CHARLES ALAN WRIGHT, ET AL Federal Practice and Procedure §2024 (1994); Resolution Trust Corp. v. Dabney, 73 F.3d 262 (10th Cir. 1995) (interpreting the substantively identical Federal counterpart to this Rule.)

B. Defense Counsel's Reliance on the Attorney Work-product Privilege of the Common Law Is Also Misplaced Because That Privilege Does Not Protect Facts.

The common law doctrine of attorney work-product privilege was set forth in Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495 (1947). One holding of that opinion is that "[i]nformation as to facts and witnesses' statements obtained by the adverse party's attorney are not within the common law privilege..." CHARLES ALAN WRIGHT, ET AL Federal Practice and Procedure §2022 (1994). Again, defense counsel's instructions not to answer were in response to questions calling for factual responses, such as the names of persons to whom defamatory statements were made.

C. Discovery of the Facts Should Be Permitted Even If Otherwise Protected by the Attorney Work Product Privilege Because Plaintiff Can Establish a Substantial Need for the Information and Cannot Obtain the Substantial Equivalent by Other Means.

Even if the information is protected by the work-product privilege, it is discoverable if plaintiff can show (a) a substantial need for the information; and (b) undue hardship in obtaining the substantial equivalent by other means. SCR 26(b)(3). Because plaintiff does have a substantial need for the information, and because there is no other way for plaintiff to learn the substantial equivalent, the witnesses should be compelled to answer the questions even if the court finds the information would otherwise have been protected by the work-product privilege.

(a) Plaintiff has been accused of defaming defendant and causing it serious damages, damages estimated in the area of ten million dollars by its corporate designee.[2/] It is essential that plaintiff discover the substance of the allegedly defamatory statements as well as the makers.

(b) There is no way for plaintiff to learn who defendant contends made the statements without being told by the defendant. The questions were properly asked. They should be answered.

D. Defendant's Actions Are Egregious, and the Court Should Award Sanctions

In the face of simple questions, defense counsel repeatedly and without justification instructed his client not to answer, or to only partially answer. The doctrine of attorney work product privilege is well established and has clear confines. The information sought to be protected is clearly not within those confines. Plaintiff's counsel advised defense counsel of his position that defendant could testify to these facts, but defense counsel refused to yield. Defendant, through its counsel, should not be permitted to flout discovery in this way.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiff's Motion to Compel Production of Facts Supporting Defendant's Counterclaims and Defenses should be granted.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff respectfully requests

(1) that it's Motion to Compel Production of Facts Supporting Defendant's Counterclaims and Defenses be granted;

[2/] Mr. Wilson was unable to explain how he calculated this figure or provide the bases therefor.

(2) whatever other and further relief may be required in the interests of justice;

(3) fees and costs associated with filing this motion.

Q. You are not aware of any.
A. I am not aware of any.
Q. Is the reputation of the hospital different among different segments of the community or is it uniform through all the segments of the community?
MR. LEAHY: Objection to the form. But you can answer if you understand.
THE WITNESS: I don't know what you mean by segments.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Okay. Does the medical community have a different perception of the reputation of the hospital than other parts of the community?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Does the staff at the hospital have a different view of the reputation of the hospital than other parts of the community?
A. Prior to August 2000 or --
Q. Yeah. Well, you said it was the same before and after.
A. Reputation is still -- no, they did not have the same good reputation.
Q. They did not have the same reputation?
A. No. They did not have a different opinion. They still had the same good reputation.
Q. That's what I thought you said.
A. Yes. Thank you for correcting me.
Q. What I'm trying to find out is does any particular group in the community, the medical community or the community at large, have a different opinion about the hospital than the one you reported to me as it being excellent?

A. I'm not aware of that.
Q. Could I ask you to look at Page 30 of Exhibit 2, which is the counterclaims. In Paragraph 158 it refers to "false and defamatory statements that caused damages and harm to the reputation of the hospital." Can you tell me what false and defamatory statements made by NCRIC caused harm to the reputation of the hospital?
 CERTIFICATION REQUESTED ***
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object here on the grounds of work product doctrine. You're seeking something that is not necessarily in Columbia's knowledge. Columbia may have some knowledge of it, but this document was obviously created by a lawyer. So to the extent that you can talk about information that is your own knowledge, Columbia's own knowledge, not something that is its lawyer's work product, you may speak to that. But I would direct you not to answer to the extent that it is something that the lawyer might have developed through interviews with other people, et. cetera. Just speak on Columbia's own knowledge.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm going to object to that. The knowledge of Columbia's lawyers is the knowledge of Columbia.
MR. LEAHY: It's protected by work product. We won't speak to it.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Just mark that one. We'll bring that up to the judge.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. You may answer to the extent that counsel has permitted you.
A. I think the economic loss somebody else would talk about.
Q. Let me interrupt you. I'm asking you what are the defamatory statements that NCRIC made that harmed the reputation of the hospital.
A. It's our belief that closure of the hospital is not good for its reputation. We believe that not covering physicians who work in PR and the vice president and some senior management of the hospital. For other specifics, I think Larry Wilson will be able to, the president of the hospital will be able to give you these details.

Q. Have you told me, though, all of the persons whom you know left as a result of the rumors?

A. All the persons that I can currently remember, actually.

Q. Okay. I had asked you to identify the false and defamatory statements that are described, alleged in Paragraph 158 of the counterclaim.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You told me that there were three statements that were made that you were aware of. The first was that the hospital was going to close; second was that NCRIC would not be covering physicians in the clinic; and the third was that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt. Are there any other statements that are included within those false and defamatory statements by NCRIC that caused harm to the reputation of the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection as before.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Go ahead, you may answer.

A. Can you repeat them, Mr. Niedermayer? I'm sorry.

Q. I believe you testified that there were three statements.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That the hospital was going to close, that physicians would not be covered by NCRIC insurance for activities in the clinic, and that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt. Are there any other statements made by NCRIC that harmed the reputation of the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of any.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Tell me who it is that made the statement from NCRIC that the hospital was going to close.

A. I can't identify the name.

Q. Can you tell me when it occurred?

A. Around towards the NCRIC contract that was not going through, about September 1st.

Q. To whom was it communicated or to whom was that statement made?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object here, same objection as before.

THE WITNESS: I'm not aware.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: What is your objection?

MR. LEAHY: My objection is the same objection I made before.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Well, what is it?

MR. LEAHY: The objection is based on work product, that I will allow him to answer only to the extent that he is talking on behalf of Columbia's knowledge. He is giving you Columbia's knowledge. He's not giving you Columbia's lawyers' knowledge which was gained in interviews with other people which was not imparted to Columbia which is part of the lawyers' work product. I.e., it was as if you were trying to get a hold of my interview memos. It's the same thing. He's answering only to the extent Columbia, the client, knows, which is what you have a right to, not to the extent that you are requesting work product from the attorney.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm entitled to know the identities of the persons. That is not work product.

MR. LEAHY: If Columbia knows.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: They know if their attorneys know.

MR. LEAHY: Well, that's --

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Work product only covers the content of the interview and only if I can show that I can't get it in another way. I can't get it in another way unless I know the identity of the persons. That is not work product. That is knowledge of the hospital. So therefore, would you please -- let's just be clear.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Dr. Rifka, do you know the identities of persons to whom the statements by NCRIC that were harmful to the reputation of the hospital were made?
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object. Are we talking about all the statements?
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Whatever my question asks, yes.
MR. LEAHY: Okay.
THE WITNESS: I have not personally in my ears heard a NCRIC official tell me that.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Are you aware of the identities of any persons known to any member of the hospital, including its attorneys, to whom NCRIC made the statement that the hospital would close?
A. I am not aware of a NCRIC official who said that in my presence.
Q. Do you know whether your attorneys know of any person to whom that statement was made by --

A. I think you can ask my attorney.
Q. No, I can only ask you. You can ask your attorney.
A. Okay. I will ask my --
MR. LEAHY: I would direct you not to answer to the extent if it would reveal any conversation that we have had.
THE WITNESS: I do not know what all my attorney knows.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. I'm going to ask you to inquire of your attorney whether the identities of such persons are known to the hospital including their attorneys.
MR. LEAHY: You can ask that, but I'm going to object. That's not a question that he can answer at a deposition.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. So the hospital has no knowledge of any person, any NCRIC officer who made the statement that the hospital will close.
A. To my recollection, that's correct.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'll give you fair warning that if the testimony of the hospital is it doesn't know anything, that the attorneys know it, that it won't be introduced at trial. I'll make a motion in limine about that.
MR. LEAHY: Okay. Go ahead.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Do you know which person at NCRIC said that the physicians working in the clinic would not be covered by NCRIC's insurance?
A. Lenny Glassman who is a physician at Columbia and on the Board of NCRIC.
Q. Do you know when he said that?
A. In the cafeteria in front of everybody.
Q. Do you know whether he was authorized to say that by NCRIC?
A. I have no knowledge of that.
Q. Did you assume when you heard he had said that that it was an official statement of NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Objection to the relevance.

THE WITNESS: I know that he is on the Board of NCRIC and when things are said I do not know in what authority did he say it.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. When did a representative of NCRIC say that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt?
A. I've heard that NCRIC was telling the physicians that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt and that's why NCRIC was doing what it was doing.
Q. From whom did the hospital hear that?
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object to this, the same continuing objection as before, that to the extent you are seeking work product this is impermissible.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. From whom did the hospital hear that?
A. Physicians who are on the hospital staff.
Q. Which physicians?
A. I think it was a collective knowledge brought about to the -- it was discussed in physician circles and in the executive committee and this about that the self-insurance trust has no money, bankrupt.

Q. Give me the names of some of the physicians who you, the hospital, knows said that NCRIC had said that.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. This is continuing.

THE WITNESS: I know of some physicians who might have directed the president of the hospital, actually, told me that he had conversations and correspondence from some physicians who says that straightforward. And I have had questions in executive committee meetings of the medical staff that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. My question is who or which physicians stated or told you that NCRIC had said that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt?

A. I think everybody who talked to NCRIC came up with that impression. And I cannot name who personally because that was a general discussion and a general point of discussion. I think that maybe Larry Wilson will identify these persons. But physicians in correspondence with the hospital and in oral conversation with the hospital have told the hospital that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt. And that's probably after having a conversation with NCRIC.

Q. Tell me which physicians then told the hospital that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt.

A. Everyone that I talked to who have --

Q. Name names. Don't tell me "everyone;" otherwise, I'll go get a list of every member of the hospital and we'll go through every one and you can say yes or no.

A. I'm trying to name. There was an insurance committee that was formed by the medical staff to look after this issue. One of them is Dr. Greenfield. One of them is Kathy Bis or Marty Roberts. One of them is -- I would have to look at the list, Mr. Niedermayer, and I don't have it with me. And these are the ones who came back from talking to NCRIC with the impression that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt.

Q. So everyone on the insurance committee are the physicians that you are aware of that reported that NCRIC said --

A. Yes, and some who are not on the insurance committee who have said that they would not accept the self-insurance trust covering them because it has no money. And that's Leonard Glassman who said that. And one of the physicians who comes to mind I think could be Heather Johnson. So Leonard Glassman said it. Heather Johnson I think could have wrote it.

Q. I'm only talking about the people who orally communicated it.

A. You asked for specific. I squeezed my memory to five names. I don't know unless if I see a list and I really did not -- this is the medical staff committee and I am on the Board and we are two separate structures. I purposely was not on the committee. We let the medical staff themselves decide without Board influence.

Q. Is it your testimony that Larry Wilson should know the names of these persons?

A. If there are any further names, he would know them, yes, sir, because they were talking to him about coverage of the clinic.

Q. Let me ask you, if you would, to look at Page 16, Paragraph 69 of the counterclaims. Did you attend the meeting in August of 1998 in which NCRIC made or is alleged to have made the statements in 69?

A. I think I did.

Q. Can you tell me specifically the words that were stated by a representative of NCRIC about the first item that's listed in there that's alleged to have been false?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to make the same objection here, continuing objection. Answer to the extent Columbia knows you're designated to answer. Well, to the extent this is part of your designation, to the extent it goes to reputation or whatever, the harms, you may answer on behalf of Columbia. You may not answer anything your attorney knows, if you know what your attorney knows.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: The witness said he attended and he was there, and I asked him what specifically the language was that was said with regard to MIIX, M-I-I-X, remaining in the D.C. Insurance market.

MR. LEAHY: To the extent he has his own memory and he has Columbia knowledge, you go ahead and you answer.

THE WITNESS: 1 of 69, yes, it was said that.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it said exactly in those words?

A. Yes.

Q. That's a quote then. Who said it?

A. I don't recall, but there were people at NCRIC attending it. I think there was Steve Fargis, I think there was Pate, I think there was Joheo, among others -- I don't know them very well -- with the physicians. And I think it was hosted either here or in a hotel. There were two meetings either in the hotel which is facing the hospital if it's not Bristol Hotel, or here.

Q. Did you attend both meetings?

A. I think I attended both meetings.

Q. Tell me what other physicians were present at the meetings that you recall.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: A lot of physicians. I cannot tell you exactly who wasn't there and who was there. But it was attended.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Can you remember the names of any physicians who were there in the meetings you attended?

A. There was one meeting here that I was not invited to.

Q. I'm not asking about the meetings you weren't invited to. I'm asking about the two meetings that you testified to that you did attend. Can you recall the names of any other physicians that were there?

A. Sure. I was saying there was a meeting here that I was not invited to but I attended anyhow. So there was a bouquet of physicians who were invited. And I am sure NCRIC records since they called the meeting would have who attended. I just went in to listen to what is being said so that I don't hear it secondhand.

And a second meeting I think was in August in a hotel to try to talk to physicians to drum support for NCRIC, both called by the NCRIC group to drum support for them. And the support, the arguments that were floated were the following: That NCRIC, that MIIX, the new company, is a fly-by-night operation. They remained a part of the Hartford company that decided not to underwrite at one year and left physicians hanging. Second, that MIIX does not guarantee the premiums for two years because at that time MIIX was giving less markedly decreased premiums than NCRIC.

NCRIC had to come up with an explanation how a competitor would come in and give a markedly decreased premium. And the defense was the MIIX is not here to stay, MIIX, there is no guarantee for it to look at the premiums, that MIIX was an unreliable insurance company.

Q. Was it explained what that meant?

A. It meant that it was explained that the physicians cannot rely on it for MIIX to keep insuring them and that MIIX's plan to raise premiums was entered in the District of Columbia, that we are being used as a stepstone for MIIX to go in and once they go in then they start jack up the prices. And their experience is not good, they cut loose and leave while NCRIC, although they charge much more, is here to stay. So the physicians can pay more and stay with a more reliable insurance company rather than pay less and risk their insurance. And that the MIIX was a proposal which would benefit members of the Medical Board of Directors, correct, that was said. It was said actually by some Board members of the NCRIC, too. And that the Medical Center had lied to it by citing that it could not afford to continue the plan, that is correct.

Q. That is correct that that statement was made.

A. Yes. And that the Medical Center can't afford going with the plan because the plan is the best, and that we are not making much money on the plan and, therefore, the Medical Center is not continuing the plan because financially it cannot do so because it elects not to do so. There was electivity rather than an obligatory thing that we had to face.

Q. Was the word "lied" used in the presentation?

A. "Did not say the truth," I think, or something of the sort. And that the lawyers with whom NCRIC contracted when making a claim would not work with MIIX, that's correct. They said that the lawyers that work with NCRIC, that physicians who are used to the NCRIC lawyers, these lawyers might not work, would not work for MIIX and, hence, MIIX would bring in with a new set of lawyers and you're used to these ones who are excellent, they are very responsive, they are here, who knows what MIIX will bring.

Q. Was there any visual presentation made at this August 1998 meeting you attended?

A. There was.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: There was slides.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Slides.

A. I think.

Q. Do you know what that's called, a PowerPoint show?

A. PowerPoint show, more or less, yes, dog and pony show, yes. Yes, it was a show.

Q. After the meeting was over, did you have any conversation directly with any of the representatives of NCRIC?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: I forgot. I can't recall.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Can you tell me any of the names of other physicians who attended the August 1998 meeting?

A. I think there was, I remember -- I think NCRIC would have a better recollection because they probably took attendance. I do not really with accuracy recall who was there.

MR. LEAHY: Can we go off the record for a minute?

MR. NIEDERMAYER: ES.

(Discussion off the record.)

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Dr. Rifka, you then do not recall the names of any physicians at the August 1998 meeting which we've been talking about.

MR. LEAHY: Same continuing objection.

THE WITNESS: Not with certainty.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Do you recall any with a lack of certainty?

A. Yes. With a lack of certainty, Robert

Greenfield --

MR. LEAHY: Objection.

THE WITNESS: -- Kathleen Bis, Norman Neches.

MR. LEAHY: You got my objection, ma'am, same objection.

THE WITNESS: Martin Dukes. With uncertainty, all of them.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Did you say Norman Neches?

A. N-e-c-h-e-s.

Q. Dr. Bis?

A. B-i-s.

Q. Did you understand from your attendance at the meeting that NCRIC was making a public relations presentation to convince doctors to stay with it?

MR. LEAHY: Objection to relevance. And same objection.

THE WITNESS: If you insist on that description only at the expense of Columbia Hospital.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. I don't insist on the description. I just want to know whether you agree or understood that it was an effort of NCRIC to market its product.
A. I don't know what was the intent of the meeting because NCRIC called for it. I know the content was an offensive against MIIX and against the hospital and a scare tactic to scare the physicians from going into another route.
Q. Are the statements that are numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, and 7 on Paragraph 69 --
A. 1 --
Q. 2, 3, 4 and 7, defamatory, do you claim, of the hospital?
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and tell the witness not to answer. That's a legal conclusion. There is absolutely no reason to ask a lay witness whether a statement is a defamatory statement.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: That's not what I asked. That's not the question I asked, whether it was defamatory. I asked whether he contended it was defamatory. And that's a perfectly proper question to ask the representative of the hospital who is dealing with harm to its reputation.

THE WITNESS: Yes, because the hospital Board had elected to go with MIIX, and that the reason the hospital Board elected to go with MIIX was because of a variety of financial advantages that we have and to escape from the $1 million deadline that NCRIC imposed on us to come up with while we were in bankruptcy.
So the Board of Directors hurried, spent a lot of time with the administration, got a group called MIIX that made the presentation for the physicians. And that reversing that decision, an attempt by NCRIC to have this campaign to reverse it would hurt the hospital because it will put us under the same bad plan. It would put us, we stand to pay NCRIC $1 million. We will not bust loose of the monopoly and give the physicians an option. And the reversing a Board decision by pressure, we were under Chapter 11, we thought that this was not something we want to see.

Q. Is it your testimony that while the hospital was in Chapter 11 proceedings that NCRIC made a demand on it to pay $1 million?
A. Yes, a deadline, or else the plan would be switched. Therefore, we hurried and got another insurer for the group. And administration will have the worksheet for that, too.
Q. Who at the hospital had the ultimate decision whether to accept a policy from MIIX or NCRIC?
A. The Board.
Q. Did the attending faculty have any role or authority in making that decision?
A. Through their representative who is the president of the medical staff, and through that they are the customers of the place. And if you end up displeasing your customers while you are in Chapter 11, your dreams of emerging from Chapter 11 will be shattered under these type of circumstances we were operating. And NCRIC was demanding things that we could not deliver.

Q. In this August '98 meeting you attended was the word "cronyism" used by any representative of NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Again, same objection, work product. Answer to the extent you or Columbia knows.
THE WITNESS: It was floated that the MIIX proposal is brought by some members on the Board who stand to gain financial gains from that contract.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Were those members identified?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Not to my knowledge.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Was it explained what the benefit would be to those members?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Not to my knowledge. It was made, though, the sentence was made that some might be bringing them here for their personal gain.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. At the meeting of August '98 did representatives of NCRIC ask members who attended to dissociate themselves from the Medical Center?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection on work product.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Who said that?

A. Upon asked what if the Retro plan is not renewed with Columbia, the NCRIC representative said other hospitals will have a similar plan.

Q. Did any representative of NCRIC say to the physicians, "We suggest, recommend that you move from Columbia to the other hospitals"?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. You're instructed to answer only to the extent Columbia has knowledge.

THE WITNESS: Not in my presence.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Were you there continuously throughout the whole meeting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I ask you to look on Page 19 at Paragraph 89 of the counterclaim. Are you familiar with NCRIC making the statements that are described in Paragraph 89 of the counterclaim?

MR. LEAHY: Again, same work product objection.

THE WITNESS: I have received a -- yes, I am aware that they have made that sentence and these accusations.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. How were you made aware of that?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Through the same, through the vice president of the hospital, Dwaine Gasser, and through the president of the hospital, Larry Wilson, that physicians have called NCRIC and they told them all of these things from 1 to 4.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. So it was reported to you by Mr. Gasser and Mr. Wilson that these have been said.

A. Yes, sir.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Did they report to you when these were said?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Probably -- definitely I recall towards the end of August, beginning of September. It was a Friday and I was made aware of it because the vice president have called me, the president was somewhere else, and that physicians have called NCRIC, they're not covered, they're not going to go to the clinic; and that if they are told that the self-insurance trust is covering them, that its bankrupt. And that's part of why NCRIC does not want to get involved with the hospital any more because there is no self-insurance trust there. And the reason they don't cover, the NCRIC policy does not cover the clinic is because the clinic is a dangerous place to work.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Dangerous for whom or to whom?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. You're answering only to the extent Columbia knows.

THE WITNESS: To the extent -- to that I would say that "dangerous" means that the quality of the patients are litigation material and, hence, working in the clinic will expose the physician to a lot of legal issues.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it reported to you that the danger associated with the ambulatory clinic related to working there without insurance coverage?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Dangerous includes to me that when physicians asked, "Since I have a NCRIC insurance policy, why am I covered in the operating room on my patient and I'm not covered in the basement looking after clinic patients?" The answer was that in the clinic it's more dangerous and, therefore, your NCRIC personal policy does not cover you in the clinic of Columbia Hospital. And that's where my sentence came to the vice president saying this is like Nationwide insuring you everywhere except the beltway means the beltway is dangerous place to drive.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it reported to you who made these statements in Paragraph 89?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: It was reported to me that the physicians who were supposed to cover the clinic on September 1st have made these representations to the vice president of the hospital and, hence, refused to go down to the clinic which produced a huge amount of anarchy there. And I think that the president later, I was told, has tried to call NCRIC to issue a statement that, no, they are covered. NCRIC never did that.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. My question was was it reported to you who as the representative of NCRIC made these statements?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: I was not aware of who.

MR. LEAHY: Roy, I am going to start objecting to further questioning because I think we're well beyond any of the topics in which he's been designated here. I just want to warn you I don't see a topic here. I'm going to start objecting and telling him not to answer at all unless you tell me where we are on the subject of the deposition. We have gotten far afield and into other subjects for which he is not designated. And I don't see this on any of our subjects.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'll tell you where it is, though I'm not obligated to do so. Count 9 is a count for defamation and libel, and refers to the fact that NCRIC made false and defamatory statements, including statements in Paragraph 69 and 89. And Paragraph 158 says "As a result of the foregoing false and defamatory statements, the Medical Center suffered harm to its reputation." Therefore, I am asking about the statements which caused the harm. It's well within the ambit which he is designated to testify about.

MR. LEAHY: No, he isn't. He's been asked about the subject, nature and scope of any harm. You have separate topics about what the statements are. You asked about the content of rumors, not defamatory statements. You asked about its reputation and the subject, nature and scope of the harm. The statements themselves are not the scope of the harm.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm not going to argue with you. Just instruct him not to answer. We'll go see the judge on it.

MR. LEAHY: All right.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: You know the rules

on instructing not to answer.

MR. LEAHY: Roy, he's not here on a notice of deposition on himself. So if it's outside the scope, I can certainly instruct him not to answer.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Off the record.

(Discussion off the record.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Counsel, I'm going to ask you not to object on the basis of anything other than instructing the witness not to answer privilege or those things that are permitted by the rules, not on relevancy or other matters which you know are improper under the rules to raise as objections, except you may object as to the form of the question.

MR. LEAHY: In a 30(b)(6) deposition I can object to relevance, especially when we have an agreement here that you're not going to ask about other topics. Rather than walk, I'm going to object to relevance. You are breaching our agreement.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Maybe you're available right now and we can go see the judge.

MR. LEAHY: Fine. You're breaching your agreement.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: When we're done we'll go see the judge and we'll ask about the question about whether it's a work product about the knowledge of the hospital.
MR. LEAHY: I think that's going to be a paper motion.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Dr. Rifka, could you tell me, referring to Paragraph 89, what is untrue about the first statement that the policy had expired?
MR. LEAHY: Same work product objection. You are instructed to answer only to the extent Columbia has knowledge.
THE WITNESS: Actually, the policy has been canceled by NCRIC.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. So on the effective date of the cancellation it had expired, hadn't it?
A. Yes.

Q. So that's a true statement?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. You may answer.
A. Yes, it was expired.
Q. So it's a true statement.
A. As far as I can tell.
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Okay.
MR. LEAHY: And legal conclusion objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Is it true that in August of 2000 that the Medical Center's self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure the CPG?
A. It is --
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: It is technically true, but funding of all malpractice legal costs and suits have been paid by the hospital, whether it's from the self-insurance trust or from operations.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. May I ask --
A. Just to explain to you further on the self-insurance trust, during the bankruptcy proceedings we were not allowed to put money there and, hence, up to June 2000 or July 2000 we had no power to go from the bankruptcy estate and put money in the self-insurance trust. Plus, before we went into bankruptcy NCRIC took $1 million out of it. So technically it had insufficient funds for variety of reasons, but the hospital continues to pay its liability from operations.
Q. Let me understand your statement.
A. Yes.
Q. NCRIC doesn't have any authority to remove money from the self-insurance trust, does it?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: NCRIC demanded before we went into a Chapter 11, way before, came and had a meeting with Jerry Beaulieu, who was then the president of the hospital, and said that "Although our agreement does not require you to pay money, your tenuous position financially requires that you give us some money which we will put in your name on our books, it will stay for you guys. But either get us a letter of credit or a CD or $1 million." At that time we had no option but to give them the $1 million. Anything less than that we would risk a war with them and, hence, a problem for the hospital.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Who was it that said those things on behalf of NCRIC?
A. If you name me names --
MR. LEAHY: Same work product objection.
THE WITNESS: If you would name me names, I will tell you. But I know Steve Fargis was there and another gentleman, I can see him by face. If you tell me names of NCRIC, I could help you.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it Mr. Pate?
A. I don't remember that.
Q. Was it Mr. Osborne?
A. Go ahead, next. Other than Osborne.
Q. Mr. Sohm?
A. Mr. who?
Q. Sohm?
A. No. Next?
Q. Let me ask you if you would look at Paragraph 92 of Exhibit 2. Are the statements that it's alleged that NCRIC made to physicians in Paragraph 92 part of the false and malicious statements that hurt the reputation of the hospital?
A. Yes.
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Who made those statements referred to in Paragraph 92, who made them on behalf of NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Physicians have called

NCRIC here and somebody in NCRIC talked to these physicians and told them about this, the clinic and the coverage there.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. You don't know who that was at NCRIC that said that.
A. No.
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Which physicians were there that called NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: I would know at least of one of them that called, or two. I think either Ed Cook and Heather Johnson, on that September 1st, on that Friday. This I have knowledge of. Others have, too. I'm sure NCRIC would be the best source of who that they received phone calls from.
Q. Do you have any knowledge about the last sentence of Paragraph 92 that there is no justification for the exclusion for the ambulatory clinic?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. To the extent Columbia has knowledge of that, you may answer. To the extent Columbia does not have knowledge, you may not.
THE WITNESS: We are bewildered as to why an insurance company will be charging twice to cover the same individual in the same place. And we are bewildered -- sorry.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. No, complete your answer, please.
A. We are bewildered why would the clinic be excluded from coverage under the NCRIC insurance. And we would wonder whether other hospitals are treated similarly or physicians who go to an emergency room and practice, whether NCRIC will cover them or not.
Q. Does the hospital have any information or knowledge about the underwriting justification for the exclusion of physicians practicing in the hospital's clinic?
A. I am not aware of why NCRIC has done

that.
Q. Let me ask you to look at Paragraph 94 of the counterclaim.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Are the statements in that Paragraph that NCRIC's alleged to have made part of the false and defamatory statements that harmed the reputation of the hospital?
MR. LEAHY: Same work product objection here.
THE WITNESS: Mr. Niedermayer, is this 94 you said?
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Yes.
MR. LEAHY: Take your time.
THE WITNESS: I think that two things have been done is I think NCRIC has established a new discounted plan with GW at that time that ours have expired and has informed physicians of the Sibley plan and, therefore, in an attempt to keep physicians within the NCRIC environment they have structured for them two places to practice, one in GW which is currently structured and I believe structured at the time when our contract switched off with them, and I believe that they told them of Sibley as another place.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. What information does the hospital have about this GW plan?

A. We understand that we do not have any direct plan from GW, but we know that GW which did not have a discounted plan now does.

Q. Let me see if I understand. You said you have no direct information about what the GW plan is.

A. The contract, I don't have the written document. It's our belief that the physicians who left Columbia and are still with the NCRIC plan have been diverted to Sibley and some to GW which now has an analogous plan which I don't have the document for.

Q. What's the basis of your understanding?

A. Because this is where our physicians went after our contract with NCRIC expired. They went, the majority, to Sibley and the minority to GW.

Q. So the fact that physicians left or went to each of these hospitals is the basis for your belief that the insurance plans offered by NCRIC at these hospitals were what? Better?

A. I don't know they were offered by NCRIC in GW. I know they are offered by NCRIC in Sibley. They are analogous. They offer the physician a 30 percent discount on her or his malpractice insurance.

Q. Without any direct copy of the document, what is the basis for your understanding about the terms of either the GW or the Sibley plan with NCRIC?

A. I want to ask you that question, what did NCRIC offer in the plans and how did they do it. But I understand from the physicians who left that they have a 30 percent discount on their malpractice wherever they went to.

Q. Who are the physicians that left and went to Sibley?

A. They are the Horowitz-Safran group, a group of five or six physicians. There is the women's group. There is the Roberts-Bis group, Martin Dukes. And there is another lady who is on the Board of NCRIC, I will remember her name. And I think that is all of the people that I know. And some go there a certain number of times just because the contract for them to have a 30 percent discount they have to do so many cases, so they have to go there to satisfy the cases.

Q. Do you know the reasons why the physicians or groups that you just identified who went to Sibley did so?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection with regard to work product. You may answer only to the extent that Columbia has knowledge other than its attorney's knowledge.

THE WITNESS: I think in the newspaper article it was cited as a malpractice insurance financial issue. And that's what they said. I think that they all left within 30 days, 30 to 60 days of the contract termination. To the extent that Sibley now I don't think accepts any new physicians.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Did any of these physicians or groups that you identified leave Columbia and go to Sibley because of facilities at Sibley?

MR. LEAHY: Same work product instruction and objection.

THE WITNESS: Actually, Sibley has no facilities for obstetrics-gynecology. It's a small hospital for OB-GYN. It's a huge hospital and fantastic for other disciplines of medicine. And there are no facilities. They had to apply for a certificate of need when they had this influx to build a new facility to accommodate the new commerce.

The new commerce did not go to a great facility. They went to a crowded facility to be expanded thereafter. And they went to a place, too, where women in labor below 30 weeks are not allowed or admitted because they do not have an 11-3 nursery. So they went really to a place which is more crowded, to a place that does not deliver the excellent and the complicated care that Columbia delivers and knows how to deliver. And there has to be a reason, which according to the newspaper article they said is for business opportunity or for the malpractice insurance.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. So you are not aware of any other reason that these physicians or groups left to go to Sibley other than the cost of the malpractice insurance?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: They have said that in public and in private, that if we don't go with NCRIC they're going to go and they're going to go to a place that gives them the same discount. And so they did. Whether they are going to address it to the public any way where it's nearer, no traffic, the air quality is better, that's something different. But the window of time was, all of this happened miraculously at the time when the contract expired.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. How about the doctors who went to GW, who were they?

A. GW offered another program like, I don't know with who. And these doctors have to deliver or have to do a certain number of cases there. And they are a group of them. One is Norman Neches, Cooper, James Powers and his group, Jim Powers and his group and Marcy Wilkerson and Art Becker, they're in the same group, and Amy Kesselman. Then you have Russ Bridges, Bruce Barnes, Allen Bernquist, Sarah Emershein. That's the extent of my knowledge. They left and they still come to Columbia, these guys, but they have to do a certain number of cases there to be eligible for the discounted plan.

Q. What is your knowledge about the reasons why they left to go to GW and participate in GW's program?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. You're instructed not to answer to the extent Columbia doesn't have knowledge.

THE WITNESS: Same reason, for the NCRIC issue.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Is that the cost of the insurance is the reason?

A. Yes, the financial cost.

Q. Isn't it true that Columbia Hospital now has an insurance program that costs the physicians less than the NCRIC program?

MR. LEAHY: Same answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, it is.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. If that's the case do you know why these physicians would have left if it was to achieve a lower financial cost?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: It is not less with the discount, okay? So if you take the discounted Sibley plan and the new plan that we offer through another insurance company, there is not much difference. So with the 30 percent discount implemented you stay with your own insurance company and the insurance company which gives you the same premium. So the money out-of-pocket is the same. For us, the hospital, we do not share in the risk, we do not shoulder and we do not put our assets on the line.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. With your current policy.

A. Yes.

Q. So it's better than NCRIC's.

A. For the hospital. For the physician it's about the same or a little bit more, because if we offer a 30 percent discount with the present policy then it would be much less compared with the 30 percent discount that is offered. But we do not offer a 30 percent discount. So our full policy is the same as the 30 percent discounted policy of NCRIC. And the premiums are blended premium with NCRIC.

For example, not everybody has the same rate. I used to pay with a 30 percent

Deposition of
LARRY WILSON, JR.
a witness, called for examination by counsel for the Plaintiff, pursuant to notice, held at the offices of NCRIC, 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., beginning at 11:34 a.m., before Lynell C.S. Abbott, a Notary Public, RMR.

Q. I will come back to that, but what I'm asking you is did NCRIC do anything that you know, you or the hospital know of, that prevented the hospital from performing anything it had to do under the Retro plan?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object to the extent that that calls for a legal conclusion. I'm going to instruct you not to answer if and to the extent that the hospital's knowledge would be knowledge gained from its attorney. That would be work product. If you have knowledge that is not knowledge gained through your discussions with your attorney, you may answer.

THE WITNESS: Maybe it's just after lunch. I need to go back. Let me put this in context again. State the question again.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. I'm sorry. Did you want me to state the question?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm asking you whether you know of anything that NCRIC did that stopped or prevented the hospital from doing what it was obligated to do under the Retro plan.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Under the Retro plan. Well, if I can, it is my belief that as a result of entering into a new plan, as a result of the termination of the old plan, that NCRIC had something to do with us losing our positions.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Let's come back to that later. But before we do, do you understand that NCRIC had no right to cancel the program?

MR. LEAHY: Again, objection to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion. And you are directed not to answer to the extent this would involve work product from your attorney, any type of discussion with your attorney.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Then I won't

the hospital that it didn't have to do something under the plan that it was obligated to do?

MR. LEAHY: Object to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: It does not because it is a report of another person to him saying "you don't have to do something you're obligated under the plan to do."

MR. LEAHY: It calls for him to make a judgment with regard to whether or not the plan calls for something and whether he was told not to. I'm going to object. It's just an objection. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Are you able to describe for me what damages that the hospital suffered that are being claimed under Count One of the counterclaims?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and instruct you not to answer to the extent any of your knowledge might come from your attorney and be otherwise solely your attorney's knowledge and not be knowledge of the hospital. I'm also going to object to the extent that any knowledge might come from the expert, because you're not designated as an expert. You may speak to the hospital's knowledge only.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Let's go off the record a second.

(Discussion off the record.)

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Mr. Wilson, may I have your answer, please?

A. State the question again.

Q. Are you able to describe for me the damages that the hospital is claiming under Count One, breach of contract, in its counterclaims?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to instruct you not to answer to the extent that there's knowledge that is from your attorney or that's expert knowledge. You may answer to the extent that Columbia knows what its damages are.

THE WITNESS: I can give you an example of damages.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Why don't you do that to start with.

A. Okay. Well, in my opinion we've suffered damages in the tens of millions of dollars to the extent that our reputation has been damaged, we've lost volume, we've lost face in the community, and I could go on just as an example of a few.

Q. Some of those have to do with reputation, they are in later counts. This says breach of contract. I just want to know what damages you claim the hospital claims have been suffered as a result of NCRIC's breach of contract. Can you tell me that?

A. Yes. The part of the reputation that goes back to that dim day in August when

A. I think the premiums at Columbia are less.

Q. Let's see if we can go back --

A. That's how we made our comparisons and the rates that were quoted by NCRIC were certainly higher than the ones we had at the time.

Q. Let's go back to Count One. Can you describe for me each type of damage that you claim under Count One has been incurred by the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and instruct you not to answer to the extent that you got knowledge from work product of your attorney, that it's not Columbia's knowledge. If you have information that's Columbia Hospital's, give it.

THE WITNESS: As you know, this has been discussed with attorneys. So maybe I should not answer that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: This witness has been proffered as being able to answer these questions. Are you telling me he can't answer any of these questions?

MR. LEAHY: He's not our expert. To the extent the party has knowledge, the party can answer. To the extent the knowledge is the party's lawyer's knowledge or the expert witness' knowledge, you'll have to depose those people. To the extent the party has information, go ahead and answer. I'm sure the party has some information. But don't answer about what your lawyer knows.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. We contend there were damages as a result. Damage to reputation, damage to lost opportunities, damage to loss of volume.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Those aren't breach of contract, but tell me how much is the damages for loss of reputation.

A. We haven't been able to quantify that. Considerable.

Q. Who is going to quantify it?

EXAMINATION BY MR. NIEDERMAYER

Q. Mr. Wilson, you understand you're still under oath as a continuation of your deposition.

A. Yes, I do.

Q. I just want to confirm with you you're not going to testify on behalf of the hospital as to the calculation of any damages arising out of the miscalculation of additional or return premium. Is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. That's going to be done by expert witnesses on behalf of the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: Actually with regard to the return premium, that's not going to be done by an expert witness.

Page 217

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Who are you going to designate to do that? Mr. Wilson?

MR. LEAHY: No. Is that a topic?

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Yes.

MR. LEAHY: That's a purely legal question. So I don't think we're going to have anyone designated for that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: So you're saying that the calculation of your damages for return premiums is a legal question?

MR. LEAHY: Except for the loss reserve. We'll have an expert for that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm entitled to know how you calculate your damages.

MR. LEAHY: You can depose our expert.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: You're expert, you just told me, is not going to testify about the return premium.

MR. LEAHY: Our expert is going to be the damages expert with regard to lost profits.

Page 218

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Mr. Wilson, has anyone made a computation on behalf of the hospital as to the proper amounts of return or additional premium that the hospital is claiming is correct for the years since the inception of the Retro plan?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to direct you not to answer that on the grounds it infringes on the work product privilege.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: The identity of the person who does it does not infringe on the work product.

MR. LEAHY: We don't have to give up the identity of any consulting experts.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: So you're representing that they're made by consulting experts.

MR. LEAHY: Can we go off the record?

MR. NIEDERMAYER: No, we're not going to go off the record.

NCRIC, INC. Plaintiff, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC. Defendant.	Civil Action No. 00-007308 Calendar #8 Judge Linda Kay Davis Next Event: Discovery close 8/12/01

MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY BY DESIGNATION UNDER SCR 30(b)(6) AND APPEARANCE AT DEPOSITION

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer its attorney, moves this Court pursuant to SCR Rule 37 for an order compelling defendant to designate persons to appear at deposition and answer questions about the subject matters described in plaintiff's Notice of 30(b)(6) Deposition and, in particular, subject matter topic numbers 1-14, 28-29, 51-52, and 56-57.

The grounds and bases for the Motion are as follows:

1. Plaintiff served defendant a Notice of 30(b)(6) Deposition first on March 14, 2001 and again on June 26, 2001. The notice described 58 subject matters on which plaintiff sought to depose the defendant with particularity. A copy of the Notice is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. Defendant refused to designate or provide persons to testify concerning subject matter numbered 1-4,[1/] 5-14, 28-29, 51-52, and 56-57, at times

[1/] Defendant produced persons to state where data concerning the subject matters could be found, but not persons who could provide substantive responses about the matters described, i.e., in what manner plaintiff's calculations on spreadsheets were incorrect.

contending that it was not required to produce a witness to testify to information that had been provided in previous written discovery. Defendant designated and provided representatives of defendant to respond to specific subject matters numbered 15-27, 30-50, 53-55, and 58.[2/]

3. The subject areas of the Notice of Deposition were tailored to request only information relevant to plaintiff's case in chief or in defense to defendant's counterclaims, as set forth below:

Areas	Description of requested testimony
1-2	Explanation of a chart summarizing certain aspects of defendant's alleged damages.
3	Information regarding what defendant contends should have been the appropriate premium charged its doctors under the plan. This is relevant to both liability and damages because defendant claims that its doctors were overcharged, causing them to leave the hospital.
4	Information regarding what defendant contends were the circumstances surrounding, and terms of, contracts with physicians who allegedly left CHW as a result of plaintiff's actions. This is important to show CHW's alleged damages and the causal connection between those damages and plaintiff's alleged tortious conduct.
5-8	Plaintiff is alleged to have interfered with contracts between defendant and its attending physicians tortiously, maliciously, and with wanton and reckless disregard. These subjects seek specifics as these claims. They further seek specifics as to defendant's claim that plaintiff breached some alleged fiduciary duty.

[2/] Defendant's witnesses did not testify to a significant portion of the information for which they were designated, claiming that the information sought was protected by the attorney work-product privilege. These failures are the basis of yet another Motion to Compel.

9	This subject seeks information concerning how defendant calculates its damages. Despite numerous attempts, plaintiff has simply been unable to discover sufficient information in this regard.[3/]
10	Plaintiff is alleged to have defamed defendant. This subject seeks information concerning those statements.
11-14, 28-29	Plaintiff is alleged to have miscalculated the amounts due and owing by defendant under the contract, with full knowledge of defendant's weak financial situation. These subject areas seek information concerning the bases for that claim, the magnitude of the error claimed, the causes of defendant's insolvency, and the bases for the assertion that plaintiff knew about defendant's financial condition.
51	In this subject area, plaintiff seeks information about alleged performances under the Plan that were prevented, excused, or waived by plaintiff.
52	This subject area seeks information about plaintiff's allegedly intentional acts.
56	Plaintiff is alleged to have concealed facts from defendant. This subject area seeks to determine which facts were allegedly concealed, how they were concealed, and which specific persons were involved in the concealment.
57	This area seeks information concerning defendant's claim for attorneys' fees.

5. On July 16, 2001, counsel for plaintiff wrote to counsel for defendant, again requesting "identification and production of 30(b)(6) designees for topics 1-3, 5-8, 10-14, 28-29, 51-52, and 56-57." See correspondence from Mr. Niedermayer to Mr. Leahy, attached hereto as Exhibit "B."

[3/] Defendant's failure to provide detailed information regarding its damages was the subject of plaintiff's recent Motion to Compel depositions of defendant's expert witnesses. This motion was granted.

6. Defendant has neither sought nor obtained a Protective Order pursuant to SCR 26(c) in this regard.[4/]

7. On July 16, 2001, counsel discussed the issue of proper designation, but defendant still refused to produce the witnesses as required by the rules of this Court.

8. Defendant has failed to appear for its deposition taken by its officers, directors, managing agents, or other persons on the topics which it has refused to designate or provide a witness.

9. This failure has severely prejudiced plaintiff's ability to prosecute its own case or to defend against the counterclaims that have been brought against it.

10. Sanctions are immediately available for defendant's failure to appear for its deposition as noted.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays that this Court enter an order compelling defendant to designate witnesses pursuant to SCR 30(b)(6) and to appear to be deposed as to the remaining subject matters and that defendant pay plaintiff its reasonable attorneys' fees caused by having to file this motion and obtain an order compelling discovery.

[4/] Defendant did file a list of "objections" to the subject areas noted in plaintiff's Notice of Deposition, but this procedure to forestall provision of designees is not provided for in and Court Rule.

Re: Meeting of Counsel on Outstanding Discovery Issues

Dear Joe:

While we are together for the depositions of Columbia, I would like to discuss resolution of the following discovery matters:

1. Production of the materials on the attached listing derived from my prior letters to you.

2. Duplication charges.

3. Identification and production of 30(b)(6) designees for topics 1-3, 5-8, 10-14, 28-29, 51-52, and 56-57.

4. Supplementation of Columbia's Rule 26(b)(4) Statements with the substantive opinions, grounds and bases for the opinions for Ezra, Darrell-Smith, Brill, and the actuary.

5. Further supplementation of discovery responses, e.g., from plaintiff's first set of interrogatories (nos. 4, 6, 8-9, and 14) and other from plaintiff's second request for production of documents.

6. A missing page from CHW 10234.

Sincerely yours,

Roy I. Niedermayer

RULE 26(b)(4) STATEMENT AS OPPONENT OF A CLAIM

Plaintiff, by and through its attorney Roy Niedermayer, hereby states in accordance with SCR 26(b)(4) that it expects to call the following expert witnesses at the trial of this matter:

1. W. McKay Henderson and Mary Woodford
   1900 K Street, NW Suite 900
   Washington DC, 20006

Mr. Henderson and Ms. Woodford, whose curriculum vitae are attached hereto as Exhibits A and B, are expected to testify with regard to analysis and rebuttal to the calculation of damages as alleged by the experts for Columbia Hospital for Women. While defendant has not provided a report or the detailed substance of calculations for the damages it alleges or the bases for any opinions which he will render, and the deposition of defendant's expert noticed for August 22, 2001 has not yet taken place, and defendant has informed plaintiff that its expert Mr. Peter Ben Ezra has not yet prepared his calculations or analysis, it is anticipated that Mr. Henderson and Ms. Woodford will be assessing the various damage elements that defendants have stated, including loss of revenue, damaged reputation in the community, and the loss of good will. Mr. Henderson and Ms. Woodford are expected to testify that the damages allegedly suffered by defendant are substantially if not wholly the result of factors other than those alleged by defendant. To the extent the damages are found to be related to any tortious activity by plaintiff, Mr. Henderson and Ms. Woodford are further expected to testify that the amount of damages caused by plaintiff's activities is less than as calculated by defendant's experts.

Upon receipt of damage information from defendant, Mr. Henderson and Ms. Woodford can provide the substance and facts to which they are expected to testify. It would be expected that the factual data Mr. Henderson and Ms. Woodford will consider in evaluating alleged damages may include analysis of Columbia's historical records and reports, operating statistics and financial results for the Hospital and specific doctors that were impacted and other relevant market data.

For his expected opinion testimony, Mr. Henderson, a Partner with PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, and a Certified Public Accountant, will draw upon his professional training, knowledge and experience in the fields of accounting and financial analysis, knowledge of the healthcare field and knowledge of methodologies for the calculation of economic damages. He has been qualified as an expert to testify on economic damages in other courts.

Ms. Woodford, a Director with PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, with a Masters in Business Administration, will draw upon her professional training, knowledge and experience in the fields of accounting and financial analysis, and knowledge of methodologies for the calculation of economic damages. She has been qualified as an expert to testify on economic damages in other courts.

2. Steve Moore
1900 K Street, NW Suite 900
Washington DC, 20006.

Mr. Moore, whose curriculum vitae is attached hereto as Exhibit C, is expected to testify with regard to analysis and rebuttal of damages as alleged by Columbia Hospital for Women. While defendant has not provided a report or the detail substance or calculations for the tens of millions of dollars in damages it alleges, it is anticipated that Mr. Moore will provide testimony involving a market analysis of the hospital and healthcare market in the District of Columbia Metro area, impact of certain financial and market factors such as admissions, reimbursement levels, demographics, staffing, revenue cycles, etc. on the financial stability of a hospital and the defendant. Mr. Moore is expected to testify that the damages allegedly suffered by defendant are the result of factors other than those alleged by defendant. To the extent the damages are found to be related to any tortious activity by plaintiff, Mr. Moore is further expected to testify that the amount of damages caused by plaintiff's activities is less than as calculated by defendant's experts.

Upon receipt of damage information from the plaintiffs Mr. Moore can provide the substance and facts to which he is expected to testify. It is expected that the factual data Mr. Moore will consider in evaluating alleged damages may include analysis of Columbia's historical records and reports, financial statements, operating statistics and financial results for the Hospital.

For his expected opinion testimony, Mr. Moore, a Partner with PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, and a Certified Public Accountant, will draw upon his professional training, knowledge and experience in the fields of accounting and financial analysis, knowledge of the healthcare operations, and knowledge of financial and market factors effecting hospitals in the District of Columbia Metro area.

3. Martin Cohen
1900 K Street, NW Suite 900
Washington DC, 20006.

Mr. Cohen, whose curriculum vitae is attached hereto as Exhibit D, is expected to testify with regard to analysis and rebuttal of damages as alleged by Columbia Hospital for Women. While defendant has not provided a report or the detail substance or calculations for the tens of millions of damages it alleges, it is anticipated that Mr. Cohen will provide testimony on the impact from a financial, competitive market, and staffing position that bankruptcy filings have on a hospital and various related issues that arise in negotiations and relationships with physicians. Mr. Cohen is expected to testify that the damages allegedly suffered by defendant are the result of factors other than those alleged by defendant. To the extent the damages are found to be related to any tortious activity by plaintiff, Mr. Cohen is further expected to testify that the amount of damages caused by plaintiff's activities is less than as calculated by defendant's experts.

Upon receipt of damage information from the plaintiffs, Mr. Cohen can provide the substance and facts to which he is expected to testify. It is expected that the factual data Mr. Moore will consider in evaluating alleged damages might include analysis of Columbia's historical financial records and reports, bankruptcy filings, financial statements, and operating statistics.

For his expected opinion testimony, Mr. Cohen, a Partner with PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, will draw upon his professional training, knowledge and experience in the fields of finance and financial analysis, knowledge of the healthcare operations, and knowledge of the bankruptcy process as related to healthcare entities.

Respectfully submitted,

MOTION TO COMPEL DEFENDANT TO PRODUCE PRIVILEGE LOG

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer its attorney, moves this Court for an order compelling defendant to produce a privilege log with respect to documents withheld and documents produced in redacted form, and for cause states:

1. Plaintiff propounded its first Request for Production of Documents on October 26, 2001; its second Request for Production of Documents on January 12, 2001; and its third Request on June 12, 2001.

2. In response to these requests, defendant has produced documents in 13 installments, beginning with its first production on December 21, 2000 and continuing through its most recent production on July 23, 2001.

3. The pages that have been produced are numbered sequentially, and it is clear that not all page numbers have been provided. For example, no documents numbered between CHW00014 and CHW00150 have been produced, but some documents with numbers lower than CHW00014 or higher than CHW00151 have been produced. Defendant has admitted that it has withheld some documents on the basis of privilege.

4. Some of the documents that have been produced have redacted portions.

5. Defendant has repeatedly promised to produce a privilege log explaining which documents have been withheld on the basis of an asserted privilege. Copies of correspondence from defendant's counsel dated December 21, 2000; January 12, 2001; April 13, 2001 and July 5, 2001 in which he promises to produce such a log are attached hereto as Exhibit A.

6. Despite promises to the contrary, no appropriate privilege log has been produced.

7. Plaintiff is concerned that defendant may be asserting a privilege as to documents or portions of documents that the Court may determine are not privileged. This concern has been raised in the past, most recently in a Motion to Compel Answers to Deposition Questions, filed August 6, 2001, in which plaintiff argues that defendant has incorrectly asserted attorney work product privilege as a basis for instructing defendant's corporate designees to refuse to answer certain questions at deposition.

8. Plaintiff is entitled to know which documents defendant is refusing to produce and why. Plaintiff is prejudiced by defendant's failure to provide even this minimal information in that it may be determined that certain documents must be produced despite defendant's contention to the contrary.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff respectfully requests:

1. That the Court issue an Order compelling defendant to produce a privilege log as to documents withheld and documents produced in redacted form; and

2. Whatever other and further relief may be required in the interests of justice.

Respectfully submitted,

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. hereby produces to Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. documents bearing Bates numbers CHWMC 000001 through CHWMC 000889 in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories. As per your request, the documents are being produced to David Osborn. Forthcoming are (1) a list of the non-responsive documents that were pulled from this Bates range; and (2) a chart reflecting the documents that were withheld on grounds of privilege.

I anticipate that Medical Center will produce additional documents the next few weeks. Further, Medical Center reserves its right to supplement its document productions at any time.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call me at (202) 326-7924.

Dear Roy:

Please find enclosed the following:

1. a list of the Bates Numbers of non-responsive documents that were pulled from Medical Center's first (12/21/00) document production to NCRIC;

2. Medical Center's second production of documents (bearing Bates Numbers from CHWMC 000890 to CHWMC 000985) in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories; and

3. a number of pages that were inadvertently withheld from, and a page that was mistakenly redacted in, Medical Center's first document production to NCRIC (all such pages bear Bates Numbers between CHWMC 000001 to CHWMC 000889).

A log describing the documents that were withheld from the first and second productions on grounds of privilege is forthcoming.

Sincerely,

Joseph K. Leahy

Dear Roy:

Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. hereby makes its fourth production of documents to NCRIC, Inc. This production includes documents bearing Bates numbers ranging from CHW 000151 to CHW 013029, produced in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents, Second Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories. In addition, please find enclosed documents bearing Bates numbers CHWMC 000012 - CHWMC 000015, and CHWMC 000969 - CHWMC 00970, which should have been included in Columbia's second and third productions, respectively. As per your request, the documents are being produced to Stephen Fargis of NCRIC.

Forthcoming are a privilege list for all of Columbia's productions to date, and a list reflecting the custodian and file of all documents in this production. The enclosed documents are organized in the order in which they were kept in the ordinary course of business.

Columbia reserves its right to supplement its document productions at any time.

MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER BARRING INQUIRY INTO SUBJECT MATTER AREAS FOR 30(b)(6) DEPOSITION OF PLAINTIFF

NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer, its attorney, moves this Court pursuant to SCR 26(c) for the entry of a protective order barring the defendant from deposing plaintiff's designees pursuant to a notice of 30(b)(6) deposition of defendant to plaintiff. The grounds for this motion are that the subject matter areas inquired into are neither relevant nor designed to lead to the discovery of relevant or admissible evidence, and are otherwise burdensome and beyond the scope of the issues in this case.

The specific subject matter areas objected to and for which a protective order is sought, along with the reasons the subject matter areas are objectionable, are set forth as follows:

1. Subject Matter 19. MMLI premiums for the Attending Faculty from 1993 to date, including the undiscounted premium for each Attending Faculty member, the discounted premium for each Attending Faculty member; the basis for each discount; the actual premium collected by NCRIC from each Attending Faculty member; the amount NCRIC billed to each Attending Faculty member after the Plan was terminated; and any refunds of premium from NCRIC to Attending Faculty members.

Basis for Protective Order: The information sought by testimony from plaintiff's designee is overly burdensome in production and designed simply for its oppressive nature. The information sought by defendant is contained within multiple voluminous underwriting files for each individual Attending Faculty member. Each file must be reviewed in a time consuming process. Moreover, the necessary underwriting files were produced to defendant in response to Defendant's Request for Production of Documents. The defendant inspected each of these files and copied those portions which it desired. Each of the matters of information which defendant now seeks by testimony was contained in those files and could be derived by defendant as easily as plaintiff.

Plaintiff has no previously prepared compilation of these materials from which its designees could testify. Plaintiff's designee would have to look at each individual file separately and testify directly from each file with the file before him in order to provide the information requested.

The information sought by defendant has previously been provided through the production of the documents. There is no reasonable basis for defendant to now seek this information by testimony, especially where no designee of plaintiff has this information within his memory but all such testimony would have to come from the primary files already produced to defendant. What defendant requests is that plaintiff's designee testify with each of these files in front of him, essentially reading aloud to counsel the identical information that counsel has already had opportunity to read himself. Plaintiff should be protected from having to produce such a designee pursuant to SCR 26(b)(1).

There is no legitimate reason for this designated subject matter area other than to oppress and harass the plaintiff's designee.

Subject Matter 21. Industry standards for application of development factors; application of development factors under other retrospective rating plans (or other agreements listed in 2, supra).

Basis for Protective Order: This subject matter area is improper for two reasons. First, the information sought is assumed to be within the knowledge of the plaintiff for which it could designate one of its agents or employees. Second, this information is the subject of expert testimony, not the testimony of plaintiff's designees. It is nugatory and improper for defendant to seek to elicit this information from plaintiff even should one of its agents have such information.

Subject Matter 24. Industry standards for calculating loss reserves; any rules, regulations, guidelines, standards or procedures governing the calculation of loss reserves by insurance companies in the District of Columbia, and NCRIC's compliance therewith.

Basis for Protective Order: Plaintiff incorporates herein its response to subject matter 21.

In addition, the information sought concerns legal issues and matters about which the plaintiff's designees are not competent to testify since they call for an interpretation of the District of Columbia statutes and the application of those statutes to hypothetical calculations of loss reserves by insurance companies in the District of Columbia. It is not proper to request that plaintiff designate an employee to provide this information even if it could provide it.

Subject Matter 31. Other hospitals, clinics, locations or procedures for which NCRIC has ever refused to provide Group MMLI coverage, cancelled Group MMLI coverage or issued endorsements excluding Ob-Gyns from coverage under their individual MMLI policies.

Basis for Protective Order: The information sought here is irrelevant to the issues raised by the defendant's counterclaims or its defense to plaintiff's claim. Plaintiff's business and insurance relationships with other hospitals or doctors are not and cannot be probative of any relationship it had with defendant nor probative of any reason why plaintiff took the actions it did with regard to defendant's Group MMLI plan. There is no claim in this case that plaintiff wrongfully discriminated between defendant and other Group MMLI plans or hospitals. The evidence sought through testimony is not relevant to any issue raised in the case and therefore it is sought only to harass and oppress.

Further, such information is among the confidential business communications, trade secrets and relationships plaintiff has or necessity for this information.

Subject Matter Area 33. Discounts on MMLI premiums provided by NCRIC to Attending Faculty from 1993 to present, including the discount of about 5% provided for participation in a risk management education program, the history of that discount, and Columbia's knowledge of that discount.

Basis for Protective Order: Plaintiff incorporates herein its response to subject matter 19 (regarding the undue burden of this subject area and defendant's ability to obtain the same information through other, less costly means). Further, the subject area includes a request for information regarding Columbia's knowledge of a discount. This is information solely within the purview of the defendant, and it should not be permitted to question plaintiff about same.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays that this Court enter an order protecting it from producing designees to respond to defendant's Notice of 30(b)(6) deposition as it relates to subject matters 19, 21, 24, 31, and 33.

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, hereby stipulate and agree that the following deadlines, set forth in the Scheduling Order dated May 16, 2001 and the Order dated July 20, 2001, shall be extended by 14 calendar days pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rule 16(b):

	Current Deadline	New Deadline
Deadline for filing motions:	August 27, 2001	September 10, 2001
Damages discovery closes:	September 7, 2001	September 21, 2001
Expert depositions completed:	September 21, 2001	October 5, 2001
Dispositive motions decided:	September 27, 2001	October 11, 2001

(The foregoing deadlines have not previously been extended pursuant to any stipulation.)

NCRIC and Columbia, by counsel, also hereby stipulate and agree that no motions, other than discovery motions, shall be filed or served by the parties prior to August 31, 2001.

NCRIC and Columbia, by counsel, also stipulate and agree that discovery motions may be filed and served up through and including August 21, 2001; that no discovery motions may be filed during the period from August 22, 2001 up through and including August 31, 2001; and that the date for filing and serving the opposition to any discovery motion filed between the date of this Praecipe and August 22, 2001 shall be September 14, 2001.

NCRIC and Columbia, by counsel, also hereby stipulate and agree that the following deadlines for serving and/or filing papers shall be extended by 14 calendar days:

	Current Date/Deadline	New Date/Deadline
Deadline for Serving Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Motion to Compel Discovery By Designation Under SCR 30(b)(6):	August 23, 2001	September 6, 2001
Deadline for Serving Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Motion to Compel Privilege Log:	August 30, 2001	September 13, 2001
Deadline for Serving Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Motion For Protective Order Barring Inquiry Into 30(b)(6) Subjects:	August 31, 2001	September 14, 2001

NCRIC and Columbia, by counsel, further stipulate and agree that all non-expert, non-party depositions that previously have been properly noticed but not completed shall be rescheduled to take place on dates to be agreed upon by the parties, but not before August 31, 2001 and not after September 14, 2001.

NCRIC and Columbia, by counsel, also stipulate and agree that depositions of additional Rule 30(b)(6) designees for each party, if any, shall be rescheduled to take place on dates to be agreed upon by the parties, but not before August 31, 2001 and not after September 14, 2001. For any witnesses whose designation is compelled by this Court, the deposition shall take place by September 14, 2001 or within 15 days of the entry of an order compelling designation of that witness, whichever is later.

16d-000828

Finally, NCRIC and Columbia, by counsel, hereby stipulate and agree that the expert deposition of Peter Ben Ezra shall be rescheduled for a date to be agreed upon by the parties, but not before August 31, 2001 and not later than October 5, 2001.

CONSENT MOTION TO AMEND SCHEDULING ORDER

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached, proposed Second Amended Scheduling Order, and as grounds for such Order state:

1. NCRIC's Amended Complaint and Columbia's Amended Answer and Counterclaims were filed on January 3, 2001.

2. On May 16, 2001, this Court entered a modified scheduling Order (attached hereto as Exhibit A) that transferred the case to Track 4.

3. On July 20, 2001, this Court entered an Order (attached hereto as Exhibit B) granting NCRIC additional time for certain expert-related discovery.

4. On August 17, 2001, the parties filed a Praecipe (attached hereto as Exhibit C) that stayed for 14 days the taking of depositions and the filing of motions; that extended by 14 days all deadlines for responding to pending motions; and that, pursuant to Superior Court Rule 16(b), extended by 14 days certain other deadlines set by the May 16, 2001 and July 20, 2001 Orders, so that the parties could focus their efforts on settlement negotiations.

5. The parties now anticipate that additional time may be necessary for the completion of their settlement negotiations; and further, that, if such negotiations fail, additional time will be necessary for the completion of discovery and the briefing of dispositive motions.

6. The parties desire to modify the current schedule for this lawsuit to allow additional time for settlement negotiations; to save the parties the time and expense of litigating this matter while the settlement negotiations are in progress; to save judicial resources, if the settlement negotiations are successful; and to allow the parties additional time for the completion of discovery and the briefing of dispositive motions, if the settlement negotiations fail.

7. The parties propose to modify the current schedule by amending the deadlines set by the May 16, 2001 and July 20, 2001 Orders, and the August 17, 2001 Praecipe, as follows:

Deadline	Current	Proposed
Non-expert, non-party depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	9/14/01	10/5/01
Rule 30(b)(6) depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	9/14/01	10/5/01
Damages discovery closes:	9/21/01	10/5/01
Expert depositions completed:	10/5/01	10/12/01
Dispositive motions filed:	9/10/01	10/19/01
Oppositions to dispositive motions filed:	10 days	11/16/01
Replies to oppositions to dispositive motions filed:	--	12/3/01
Dispositive motions decided:	10/11/01	1/7/02*
Confidential Settlement Statement due:	9/26/01	1/14/02*
ADR:	11/6/01	1/14/02 - 2/14/02*
Pretrial:	30 days	30-60 days*

* Or any other appropriate date set by this Court.

8. The foregoing constitutes good cause for modifying the scheduling Order under Superior Court Rule 16(b).

WHEREFORE, the parties request that the Court enter the proposed Second Amended Scheduling Order.

MOTION TO COMPEL DEFENDANT'S DESIGNATED WITNESSES TO ANSWER QUESTIONS PROPERLY POSED AT DEPOSITION

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer its attorney, moves this Court pursuant to SCR Rule 37 for an order compelling defendant to produce for deposition designated witnesses to supply information that was requested at previous depositions, but to which answer was refused on counsel's instruction. The basis for this motion is that counsel inappropriately instructed corporate designees not to answer, or to only partially answer, questions, incorrectly asserting a non-applicable attorney work product privilege. Additional facts and argument are provided in the accompanying memorandum of grounds and authorities.

Respectfully submitted,

CERTIFICATION OF GOOD FAITH EFFORTS TO SECURE DISCOVERY AND RESOLVE DISCOVERY DISPUTES WITH DEFENDANT

The undersigned counsel hereby certifies that he made good faith efforts to secure the defendant's answers and to resolve the discovery disputes with defendant by face to face meetings at depositions on June 21, 2001 and June 27, 2001. The meetings took place at plaintiff's offices on 30th Street NW, Washington, D.C.

MEMORANDUM OF GROUNDS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO COMPEL DEFENDANT'S DESIGNATED WITNESSES TO ANSWER QUESTIONS PROPERLY POSED AT DEPOSITION

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiff filed this case on October 3, 2000, and defendant counterclaimed on November 6, 2000 alleging, among other things, defamation and disparagement on the part of plaintiff. Before defendant had even filed its counterclaim, plaintiff, on October 26, 2000, propounded interrogatories seeking "the names and addresses of any individuals who you know or believe have any information or knowledge of any matters concerning the subject matter of . . . (iii) your counterclaims." Interrogatory number 1. Defendant produced a list of witnesses but none was indicated as having knowledge of defendant's claims for defamation and disparagement.

Plaintiff also sought "the method of calculation and factual bases for any monetary damages you claim against defendant by way of counterclaim, setoff, recoupment or otherwise." Interrogatory 6. Defendant answered by objecting and claiming that it did not have the necessary information to answer at that time.

Plaintiff, requiring the information that had been refused in the answers to interrogatories, responded by noting the deposition on March 14, 2001 of defendant's corporate designees, setting forth with particularity 58 subject areas of testimony. Defendant designated, among others, Safa Rifka, M.D. and Larry Wilson.[1/] The depositions were set for June 21, 2001 and June 27, 2001, respectively. By agreement of counsel, Mr. Wilson's deposition was suspended and reconvened. At the depositions, plaintiff's counsel asked questions seeking factual information directly related to defendant's counterclaims.

Defense counsel objected to questions and instructed Dr. Rifka not to answer, or to give only a partial answer, on no less than ten occasions, including to questions calling for straightforward factual answers such as to whom allegedly defamatory statements were made. Deposition transcript at p. 115. On each of the ten occasions, defense counsel claimed attorney work product privilege as the basis for instructing the witness not to answer. Defense counsel instructed Mr. Wilson to either not answer, or to only partially answer, questions on no less than five occasions.

The questions the witnesses refused to answer sought factual information that goes to the very essence of defendant's claims and defenses. The impressions of counsel were not sought. Again, Dr. Rifka refused to provide the identities of persons who had allegedly made defamatory statements about defendant. This information is central to defendant's counterclaims for plaintiff's alleged tortious activity. Not only will it alert plaintiff to the actual people claimed to be involved, but it will give plaintiff sufficient information to conduct additional formal and informal discovery. Dr. Rifka refused to provide any information that his attorneys had discovered as to identities. Defendant's failure to provide this information severely prejudices plaintiff's ability to defend itself.

[1/] Defendant designated witnesses to testify to only a small portion of the subjects set forth in the deposition notice. This failure is the subject of a separate Motion to Compel.

The only explanation for this behavior is that it is an attempt by defendant to "hide the ball" and either surprise plaintiff at trial or conceal the absence of any facts on which to base its claims for plaintiff's tortious behavior. If defendant intends to introduce these statements at trial, it would be unfair for plaintiff not to have the opportunity to conduct its own investigation about them. If defendant has no facts on which to support its claims for plaintiff's alleged tortious behavior, those claims should be dismissed.

II. ARGUMENT

A. Defense Counsel's Reliance on the Attorney Work-product Privilege of SCR 26(b)(3) Is Misplaced Because No Documents or Tangible Things Were Requested.

SCR 26(b)(3) only protects "documents and tangible things." Id. The subjects of defense counsel's instructions not to answer were unrelated to any requests for documents or other tangible things. See transcript excerpts, attached hereto as Exhibit "A." Thus, SCR 26(b)(3) does not operate as an appropriate basis in this case to instruct the witnesses not to answer. "Rule 26(b)(3) itself provides protection only for documents and tangible things and ... it does not bar discovery of facts a party may have learned from documents that are not themselves discoverable." CHARLES ALAN WRIGHT, ET AL Federal Practice and Procedure §2024 (1994); Resolution Trust Corp. v. Dabney, 73 F.3d 262 (10th Cir. 1995) (interpreting the substantively identical Federal counterpart to this Rule.)

B. Defense Counsel's Reliance on the Attorney Work-product Privilege of the Common Law Is Also Misplaced Because That Privilege Does Not Protect Facts.

The common law doctrine of attorney work-product privilege was set forth in Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495 (1947). One holding of that opinion is that "[i]nformation as to facts and witnesses' statements obtained by the adverse party's attorney are not within the common law privilege..." CHARLES ALAN WRIGHT, ET AL Federal Practice and Procedure §2022 (1994). Again, defense counsel's instructions not to answer were in response to questions calling for factual responses, such as the names of persons to whom defamatory statements were made.

C. Discovery of the Facts Should Be Permitted Even If Otherwise Protected by the Attorney Work Product Privilege Because Plaintiff Can Establish a Substantial Need for the Information and Cannot Obtain the Substantial Equivalent by Other Means.

Even if the information is protected by the work-product privilege, it is discoverable if plaintiff can show (a) a substantial need for the information; and (b) undue hardship in obtaining the substantial equivalent by other means. SCR 26(b)(3). Because plaintiff does have a substantial need for the information, and because there is no other way for plaintiff to learn the substantial equivalent, the witnesses should be compelled to answer the questions even if the court finds the information would otherwise have been protected by the work-product privilege.

(a) Plaintiff has been accused of defaming defendant and causing it serious damages, damages estimated in the area of ten million dollars by its corporate designee.[2/] It is essential that plaintiff discover the substance of the allegedly defamatory statements as well as the makers.

(b) There is no way for plaintiff to learn who defendant contends made the statements without being told by the defendant. The questions were properly asked. They should be answered.

D. Defendant's Actions Are Egregious, and the Court Should Award Sanctions

In the face of simple questions, defense counsel repeatedly and without justification instructed his client not to answer, or to only partially answer. The doctrine of attorney work product privilege is well established and has clear confines. The information sought to be protected is clearly not within those confines. Plaintiff's counsel advised defense counsel of his position that defendant could testify to these facts, but defense counsel refused to yield. Defendant, through its counsel, should not be permitted to flout discovery in this way.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiff's Motion to Compel Production of Facts Supporting Defendant's Counterclaims and Defenses should be granted.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff respectfully requests

(1) that it's Motion to Compel Production of Facts Supporting Defendant's Counterclaims and Defenses be granted;

[2/] Mr. Wilson was unable to explain how he calculated this figure or provide the bases therefor.

(2) whatever other and further relief may be required in the interests of justice;

(3) fees and costs associated with filing this motion.

Respectfully submitted,

Roy I. Niedermayer /D.S.K.

Cal. 8 - Judge Davis

COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC.,
Defendant.

****

Washington, D.C.
June 21, 2001

Deposition of:
COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Designated Representative
SAFA RIFKA, M.D.,
called for examination by counsel for the Plaintiff, pursuant to notice, held at the offices of NCRIC, 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., beginning at 9:50 a.m., before Lynell C.S. Abbott, a Notary Public, RMR.

Q. Prior to filing the Chapter 11, is there any information the hospital has about rumors or inquiries whether the hospital would be closing?
A. We are not aware of that.
Q. After the hospital filed its Chapter 11 proceedings and prior to August of 2000, were there inquiries or rumors about the hospital closing?
A. Not really.
Q. You didn't hear any.
A. I didn't hear.
Q. You are not aware of any.
A. I am not aware of any.
Q. Is the reputation of the hospital different among different segments of the community or is it uniform through all the segments of the community?
MR. LEAHY: Objection to the form. But you can answer if you understand.
THE WITNESS: I don't know what you mean by segments.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Okay. Does the medical community have a different perception of the reputation of the hospital than other parts of the community?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Does the staff at the hospital have a different view of the reputation of the hospital than other parts of the community?
A. Prior to August 2000 or --
Q. Yeah. Well, you said it was the same before and after.
A. Reputation is still -- no, they did not have the same good reputation.
Q. They did not have the same reputation?
A. No. They did not have a different opinion. They still had the same good reputation.
Q. That's what I thought you said.
A. Yes. Thank you for correcting me.
Q. What I'm trying to find out is does any particular group in the community, the medical community or the community at large, have a different opinion about the hospital than the one you reported to me as it being excellent?

A. I'm not aware of that.
Q. Could I ask you to look at Page 30 of Exhibit 2, which is the counterclaims. In Paragraph 158 it refers to "false and defamatory statements that caused damages and harm to the reputation of the hospital." Can you tell me what false and defamatory statements made by NCRIC caused harm to the reputation of the hospital?
 CERTIFICATION REQUESTED ***
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object here on the grounds of work product doctrine. You're seeking something that is not necessarily in Columbia's knowledge. Columbia may have some knowledge of it, but this document was obviously created by a lawyer. So to the extent that you can talk about information that is your own knowledge, Columbia's own knowledge, not something that is its lawyer's work product, you may speak to that. But I would direct you not to answer to the extent that it is something that the lawyer might have developed through interviews with other people, et. cetera. Just speak on Columbia's own knowledge.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm going to object to that. The knowledge of Columbia's lawyers is the knowledge of Columbia.
MR. LEAHY: It's protected by work product. We won't speak to it.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Just mark that one. We'll bring that up to the judge.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. You may answer to the extent that counsel has permitted you.
A. I think the economic loss somebody else would talk about.
Q. Let me interrupt you. I'm asking you what are the defamatory statements that NCRIC made that harmed the reputation of the hospital.
A. It's our belief that closure of the hospital is not good for its reputation. We believe that not covering physicians who work in PR and the vice president and some senior management of the hospital. For other specifics, I think Larry Wilson will be able to, the president of the hospital will be able to give you these details.

Q. Have you told me, though, all of the persons whom you know left as a result of the rumors?

A. All the persons that I can currently remember, actually.

Q. Okay. I had asked you to identify the false and defamatory statements that are described, alleged in Paragraph 158 of the counterclaim.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You told me that there were three statements that were made that you were aware of. The first was that the hospital was going to close; second was that NCRIC would not be covering physicians in the clinic; and the third was that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt. Are there any other statements that are included within those false and defamatory statements by NCRIC that caused harm to the reputation of the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection as before.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Go ahead, you may answer.

A. Can you repeat them, Mr. Niedermayer? I'm sorry.

Q. I believe you testified that there were three statements.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That the hospital was going to close, that physicians would not be covered by NCRIC insurance for activities in the clinic, and that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt. Are there any other statements made by NCRIC that harmed the reputation of the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of any.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Tell me who it is that made the statement from NCRIC that the hospital was going to close.

A. I can't identify the name.

Q. Can you tell me when it occurred?

A. Around towards the NCRIC contract that was not going through, about September 1st.

Q. To whom was it communicated or to whom was that statement made?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object here, same objection as before.

THE WITNESS: I'm not aware.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: What is your objection?

MR. LEAHY: My objection is the same objection I made before.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Well, what is it?

MR. LEAHY: The objection is based on work product, that I will allow him to answer only to the extent that he is talking on behalf of Columbia's knowledge. He is giving you Columbia's knowledge. He's not giving you Columbia's lawyers' knowledge which was gained in interviews with other people which was not imparted to Columbia which is part of the lawyers' work product. I.e., it was as if you were trying to get a hold of my interview memos. It's the same thing. He's answering only to the extent Columbia, the client, knows, which is what you have a right to, not to the extent that you are requesting work product from the attorney.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm entitled to know the identities of the persons. That is not work product.

MR. LEAHY: If Columbia knows.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: They know if their attorneys know.

MR. LEAHY: Well, that's --

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Work product only covers the content of the interview and only if I can show that I can't get it in another way. I can't get it in another way unless I know the identity of the persons. That is not work product. That is knowledge of the hospital. So therefore, would you please -- let's just be clear.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Dr. Rifka, do you know the identities of persons to whom the statements by NCRIC that were harmful to the reputation of the hospital were made?
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object. Are we talking about all the statements?
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Whatever my question asks, yes.
MR. LEAHY: Okay.
THE WITNESS: I have not personally in my ears heard a NCRIC official tell me that.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Are you aware of the identities of any persons known to any member of the hospital, including its attorneys, to whom NCRIC made the statement that the hospital would close?
A. I am not aware of a NCRIC official who said that in my presence.
Q. Do you know whether your attorneys know of any person to whom that statement was made by --

A. I think you can ask my attorney.
Q. No, I can only ask you. You can ask your attorney.
A. Okay. I will ask my --
MR. LEAHY: I would direct you not to answer to the extent if it would reveal any conversation that we have had.
THE WITNESS: I do not know what all my attorney knows.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. I'm going to ask you to inquire of your attorney whether the identities of such persons are known to the hospital including their attorneys.
MR. LEAHY: You can ask that, but I'm going to object. That's not a question that he can answer at a deposition.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. So the hospital has no knowledge of any person, any NCRIC officer who made the statement that the hospital will close.
A. To my recollection, that's correct.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'll give you fair warning that if the testimony of the hospital is it doesn't know anything, that the attorneys know it, that it won't be introduced at trial. I'll make a motion in limine about that.
MR. LEAHY: Okay. Go ahead.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Do you know which person at NCRIC said that the physicians working in the clinic would not be covered by NCRIC's insurance?
A. Lenny Glassman who is a physician at Columbia and on the Board of NCRIC.
Q. Do you know when he said that?
A. In the cafeteria in front of everybody.
Q. Do you know whether he was authorized to say that by NCRIC?
A. I have no knowledge of that.
Q. Did you assume when you heard he had said that that it was an official statement of NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Objection to the relevance.

THE WITNESS: I know that he is on the Board of NCRIC and when things are said I do not know in what authority did he say it.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. When did a representative of NCRIC say that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt?
A. I've heard that NCRIC was telling the physicians that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt and that's why NCRIC was doing what it was doing.
Q. From whom did the hospital hear that?
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object to this, the same continuing objection as before, that to the extent you are seeking work product this is impermissible.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. From whom did the hospital hear that?
A. Physicians who are on the hospital staff.
Q. Which physicians?
A. I think it was a collective knowledge brought about to the -- it was discussed in physician circles and in the executive committee and this about that the self-insurance trust has no money, bankrupt.

Q. Give me the names of some of the physicians who you, the hospital, knows said that NCRIC had said that.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. This is continuing.

THE WITNESS: I know of some physicians who might have directed the president of the hospital, actually, told me that he had conversations and correspondence from some physicians who says that straightforward. And I have had questions in executive committee meetings of the medical staff that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. My question is who or which physicians stated or told you that NCRIC had said that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt?

A. I think everybody who talked to NCRIC

came up with that impression. And I cannot name who personally because that was a general discussion and a general point of discussion. I think that maybe Larry Wilson will identify these persons. But physicians in correspondence with the hospital and in oral conversation with the hospital have told the hospital that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt. And that's probably after having a conversation with NCRIC.

Q. Tell me which physicians then told the hospital that the self-insurance trust was bankrupt.

A. Everyone that I talked to who have --

Q. Name names. Don't tell me "everyone;" otherwise, I'll go get a list of every member of the hospital and we'll go through every one and you can say yes or no.

A. I'm trying to name. There was an insurance committee that was formed by the medical staff to look after this issue. One of them is Dr. Greenfield. One of them is Kathy Bis or Marty Roberts. One of them is -- I would have to look at the list, Mr. Niedermayer, and I don't have it with me. And these are the ones who came back from talking to NCRIC with the impression that the self-insurance trust is bankrupt.

Q. So everyone on the insurance committee are the physicians that you are aware of that reported that NCRIC said --

A. Yes, and some who are not on the insurance committee who have said that they would not accept the self-insurance trust covering them because it has no money. And that's Leonard Glassman who said that. And one of the physicians who comes to mind I think could be Heather Johnson. So Leonard Glassman said it. Heather Johnson I think could have wrote it.

Q. I'm only talking about the people who orally communicated it.

A. You asked for specific. I squeezed my memory to five names. I don't know unless if I see a list and I really did not -- this is the medical staff committee and I am on the Board and we are two separate structures. I purposely was not on the committee. We let the medical staff themselves decide without Board influence.

Q. Is it your testimony that Larry Wilson should know the names of these persons?

A. If there are any further names, he would know them, yes, sir, because they were talking to him about coverage of the clinic.

Q. Let me ask you, if you would, to look at Page 16, Paragraph 69 of the counterclaims. Did you attend the meeting in August of 1998 in which NCRIC made or is alleged to have made the statements in 69?

A. I think I did.

Q. Can you tell me specifically the words that were stated by a representative of NCRIC about the first item that's listed in there that's alleged to have been false?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to make the same objection here, continuing objection. Answer to the extent Columbia knows you're designated to answer. Well, to the extent this is part of your designation, to the extent it goes to reputation or whatever, the harms, you may answer on behalf of Columbia. You may not answer anything your attorney knows, if you know what your attorney knows.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: The witness said he attended and he was there, and I asked him what specifically the language was that was said with regard to MIIX, M-I-I-X, remaining in the D.C. Insurance market.

MR. LEAHY: To the extent he has his own memory and he has Columbia knowledge, you go ahead and you answer.

THE WITNESS: 1 of 69, yes, it was said that.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it said exactly in those words?

A. Yes.

Q. That's a quote then. Who said it?

A. I don't recall, but there were people at NCRIC attending it. I think there was Steve Fargis, I think there was Pate, I think there was Joheo, among others -- I don't know them very well -- with the physicians. And I think it was hosted either here or in a hotel. There were two meetings either in the hotel which is facing the hospital if it's not Bristol Hotel, or here.

Q. Did you attend both meetings?

A. I think I attended both meetings.

Q. Tell me what other physicians were present at the meetings that you recall.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: A lot of physicians. I cannot tell you exactly who wasn't there and who was there. But it was attended.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Can you remember the names of any physicians who were there in the meetings you attended?

A. There was one meeting here that I was not invited to.

Q. I'm not asking about the meetings you weren't invited to. I'm asking about the two meetings that you testified to that you did attend. Can you recall the names of any other physicians that were there?

A. Sure. I was saying there was a meeting here that I was not invited to but I attended anyhow. So there was a bouquet of physicians who were invited. And I am sure NCRIC records since they called the meeting would have who attended. I just went in to listen to what is being said so that I don't hear it secondhand.

And a second meeting I think was in August in a hotel to try to talk to physicians to drum support for NCRIC, both called by the NCRIC group to drum support for them. And the support, the arguments that were floated were the following: That NCRIC, that MIIX, the new company, is a fly-by-night operation. They remained a part of the Hartford company that decided not to underwrite at one year and left physicians hanging. Second, that MIIX does not guarantee the premiums for two years because at that time MIIX was giving less markedly decreased premiums than NCRIC.

NCRIC had to come up with an explanation how a competitor would come in and give a markedly decreased premium. And the defense was the MIIX is not here to stay, MIIX, there is no guarantee for it to look at the premiums, that MIIX was an unreliable insurance company.

Q. Was it explained what that meant?

A. It meant that it was explained that the physicians cannot rely on it for MIIX to keep insuring them and that MIIX's plan to raise premiums was entered in the District of Columbia, that we are being used as a stepstone for MIIX to go in and once they go in then they start jack up the prices. And their experience is not good, they cut loose and leave while NCRIC, although they charge much more, is here to stay. So the physicians can pay more and stay with a more reliable insurance company rather than pay less and risk their insurance. And that the MIIX was a proposal which would benefit members of the Medical Board of Directors, correct, that was said. It was said actually by some Board members of the NCRIC, too. And that the Medical Center had lied to it by citing that it could not afford to continue the plan, that is correct.

Q. That is correct that that statement was made.

A. Yes. And that the Medical Center can't afford going with the plan because the plan is the best, and that we are not making much money on the plan and, therefore, the Medical Center is not continuing the plan because financially it cannot do so because it elects not to do so. There was electivity rather than an obligatory thing that we had to face.

Q. Was the word "lied" used in the presentation?

A. "Did not say the truth," I think, or something of the sort. And that the lawyers with whom NCRIC contracted when making a claim would not work with MIIX, that's correct. They said that the lawyers that work with NCRIC, that physicians who are used to the NCRIC lawyers, these lawyers might not work, would not work for MIIX and, hence, MIIX would bring in with a new set of lawyers and you're used to these ones who are excellent, they are very responsive, they are here, who knows what MIIX will bring.

Q. Was there any visual presentation made at this August 1998 meeting you attended?

A. There was.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: There was slides.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Slides.

A. I think.

Q. Do you know what that's called, a PowerPoint show?

A. PowerPoint show, more or less, yes, dog and pony show, yes. Yes, it was a show.

Q. After the meeting was over, did you have any conversation directly with any of the representatives of NCRIC?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: I forgot. I can't recall.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Can you tell me any of the names of other physicians who attended the August 1998 meeting?

A. I think there was, I remember -- I think NCRIC would have a better recollection because they probably took attendance. I do not really with accuracy recall who was there.

MR. LEAHY: Can we go off the record for a minute?

MR. NIEDERMAYER: ES.

(Discussion off the record.)

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Dr. Rifka, you then do not recall the names of any physicians at the August 1998 meeting which we've been talking about.

MR. LEAHY: Same continuing objection.

THE WITNESS: Not with certainty.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Do you recall any with a lack of certainty?

A. Yes. With a lack of certainty, Robert

Greenfield --

MR. LEAHY: Objection.

THE WITNESS: -- Kathleen Bis, Norman Neches.

MR. LEAHY: You got my objection, ma'am, same objection.

THE WITNESS: Martin Dukes. With uncertainty, all of them.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Did you say Norman Neches?

A. N-e-c-h-e-s.

Q. Dr. Bis?

A. B-i-s.

Q. Did you understand from your attendance at the meeting that NCRIC was making a public relations presentation to convince doctors to stay with it?

MR. LEAHY: Objection to relevance. And same objection.

THE WITNESS: If you insist on that description only at the expense of Columbia Hospital.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. I don't insist on the description. I just want to know whether you agree or understood that it was an effort of NCRIC to market its product.
A. I don't know what was the intent of the meeting because NCRIC called for it. I know the content was an offensive against MIIX and against the hospital and a scare tactic to scare the physicians from going into another route.
Q. Are the statements that are numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, and 7 on Paragraph 69 --
A. 1 --
Q. 2, 3, 4 and 7, defamatory, do you claim, of the hospital?
MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and tell the witness not to answer. That's a legal conclusion. There is absolutely no reason to ask a lay witness whether a statement is a defamatory statement.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: That's not what I asked. That's not the question I asked, whether it was defamatory. I asked whether he contended it was defamatory. And that's a perfectly proper question to ask the representative of the hospital who is dealing with harm to its reputation.

THE WITNESS: Yes, because the hospital Board had elected to go with MIIX, and that the reason the hospital Board elected to go with MIIX was because of a variety of financial advantages that we have and to escape from the $1 million deadline that NCRIC imposed on us to come up with while we were in bankruptcy.
So the Board of Directors hurried, spent a lot of time with the administration, got a group called MIIX that made the presentation for the physicians. And that reversing that decision, an attempt by NCRIC to have this campaign to reverse it would hurt the hospital because it will put us under the same bad plan. It would put us, we stand to pay NCRIC $1 million. We will not bust loose of the monopoly and give the physicians an option. And the reversing a Board decision by pressure, we were under Chapter 11, we thought that this was not something we want to see.

Q. Is it your testimony that while the hospital was in Chapter 11 proceedings that NCRIC made a demand on it to pay $1 million?
A. Yes, a deadline, or else the plan would be switched. Therefore, we hurried and got another insurer for the group. And administration will have the worksheet for that, too.
Q. Who at the hospital had the ultimate decision whether to accept a policy from MIIX or NCRIC?
A. The Board.
Q. Did the attending faculty have any role or authority in making that decision?
A. Through their representative who is the president of the medical staff, and through that they are the customers of the place. And if you end up displeasing your customers while you are in Chapter 11, your dreams of emerging from Chapter 11 will be shattered under these type of circumstances we were operating. And NCRIC was demanding things that we could not deliver.

Q. In this August '98 meeting you attended was the word "cronyism" used by any representative of NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Again, same objection, work product. Answer to the extent you or Columbia knows.
THE WITNESS: It was floated that the MIIX proposal is brought by some members on the Board who stand to gain financial gains from that contract.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Were those members identified?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Not to my knowledge.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Was it explained what the benefit would be to those members?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Not to my knowledge. It was made, though, the sentence was made that some might be bringing them here for their personal gain.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. At the meeting of August '98 did representatives of NCRIC ask members who attended to dissociate themselves from the Medical Center?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection on work product.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Who said that?

A. Upon asked what if the Retro plan is not renewed with Columbia, the NCRIC representative said other hospitals will have a similar plan.

Q. Did any representative of NCRIC say to the physicians, "We suggest, recommend that you move from Columbia to the other hospitals"?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. You're instructed to answer only to the extent Columbia has knowledge.

THE WITNESS: Not in my presence.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Were you there continuously throughout the whole meeting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I ask you to look on Page 19 at Paragraph 89 of the counterclaim. Are you familiar with NCRIC making the statements that are described in Paragraph 89 of the counterclaim?

MR. LEAHY: Again, same work product objection.

THE WITNESS: I have received a -- yes, I am aware that they have made that sentence and these accusations.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. How were you made aware of that?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Through the same, through the vice president of the hospital, Dwaine Gasser, and through the president of the hospital, Larry Wilson, that physicians have called NCRIC and they told them all of these things from 1 to 4.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. So it was reported to you by Mr. Gasser and Mr. Wilson that these have been said.

A. Yes, sir.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Did they report to you when these were said?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Probably -- definitely I recall towards the end of August, beginning of September. It was a Friday and I was made aware of it because the vice president have called me, the president was somewhere else, and that physicians have called NCRIC, they're not covered, they're not going to go to the clinic; and that if they are told that the self-insurance trust is covering them, that its bankrupt. And that's part of why NCRIC does not want to get involved with the hospital any more because there is no self-insurance trust there. And the reason they don't cover, the NCRIC policy does not cover the clinic is because the clinic is a dangerous place to work.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Dangerous for whom or to whom?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. You're answering only to the extent Columbia knows.

THE WITNESS: To the extent -- to that I would say that "dangerous" means that the quality of the patients are litigation material and, hence, working in the clinic will expose the physician to a lot of legal issues.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it reported to you that the danger associated with the ambulatory clinic related to working there without insurance coverage?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Dangerous includes to me that when physicians asked, "Since I have a NCRIC insurance policy, why am I covered in the operating room on my patient and I'm not covered in the basement looking after clinic patients?" The answer was that in the clinic it's more dangerous and, therefore, your NCRIC personal policy does not cover you in the clinic of Columbia Hospital. And that's where my sentence came to the vice president saying this is like Nationwide insuring you everywhere except the beltway means the beltway is dangerous place to drive.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it reported to you who made these statements in Paragraph 89?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: It was reported to me that the physicians who were supposed to cover the clinic on September 1st have made these representations to the vice president of the hospital and, hence, refused to go down to the clinic which produced a huge amount of anarchy there. And I think that the president later, I was told, has tried to call NCRIC to issue a statement that, no, they are covered. NCRIC never did that.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. My question was was it reported to you who as the representative of NCRIC made these statements?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: I was not aware of who.

MR. LEAHY: Roy, I am going to start objecting to further questioning because I think we're well beyond any of the topics in which he's been designated here. I just want to warn you I don't see a topic here. I'm going to start objecting and telling him not to answer at all unless you tell me where we are on the subject of the deposition. We have gotten far afield and into other subjects for which he is not designated. And I don't see this on any of our subjects.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'll tell you where it is, though I'm not obligated to do so. Count 9 is a count for defamation and libel, and refers to the fact that NCRIC made false and defamatory statements, including statements in Paragraph 69 and 89. And Paragraph 158 says "As a result of the foregoing false and defamatory statements, the Medical Center suffered harm to its reputation." Therefore, I am asking about the statements which caused the harm. It's well within the ambit which he is designated to testify about.

MR. LEAHY: No, he isn't. He's been asked about the subject, nature and scope of any harm. You have separate topics about what the statements are. You asked about the content of rumors, not defamatory statements. You asked about its reputation and the subject, nature and scope of the harm. The statements themselves are not the scope of the harm.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm not going to argue with you. Just instruct him not to answer. We'll go see the judge on it.

MR. LEAHY: All right.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: You know the rules

on instructing not to answer.

MR. LEAHY: Roy, he's not here on a notice of deposition on himself. So if it's outside the scope, I can certainly instruct him not to answer.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Off the record.

(Discussion off the record.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Counsel, I'm going to ask you not to object on the basis of anything other than instructing the witness not to answer privilege or those things that are permitted by the rules, not on relevancy or other matters which you know are improper under the rules to raise as objections, except you may object as to the form of the question.

MR. LEAHY: In a 30(b)(6) deposition I can object to relevance, especially when we have an agreement here that you're not going to ask about other topics. Rather than walk, I'm going to object to relevance. You are breaching our agreement.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Maybe you're

available right now and we can go see the judge.
MR. LEAHY: Fine. You're breaching your agreement.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: When we're done we'll go see the judge and we'll ask about the question about whether it's a work product about the knowledge of the hospital.
MR. LEAHY: I think that's going to be a paper motion.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Dr. Rifka, could you tell me, referring to Paragraph 89, what is untrue about the first statement that the policy had expired?
MR. LEAHY: Same work product objection. You are instructed to answer only to the extent Columbia has knowledge.
THE WITNESS: Actually, the policy has been canceled by NCRIC.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. So on the effective date of the cancellation it had expired, hadn't it?
A. Yes.

Q. So that's a true statement?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. You may answer.
A. Yes, it was expired.
Q. So it's a true statement.
A. As far as I can tell.
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Okay.
MR. LEAHY: And legal conclusion objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Is it true that in August of 2000 that the Medical Center's self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure the CPG?
A. It is --
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: It is technically true, but funding of all malpractice legal costs and suits have been paid by the hospital, whether it's from the self-insurance trust or from operations.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. May I ask --
A. Just to explain to you further on the self-insurance trust, during the bankruptcy proceedings we were not allowed to put money there and, hence, up to June 2000 or July 2000 we had no power to go from the bankruptcy estate and put money in the self-insurance trust. Plus, before we went into bankruptcy NCRIC took $1 million out of it. So technically it had insufficient funds for variety of reasons, but the hospital continues to pay its liability from operations.
Q. Let me understand your statement.
A. Yes.
Q. NCRIC doesn't have any authority to remove money from the self-insurance trust, does it?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: NCRIC demanded before we went into a Chapter 11, way before, came and had a meeting with Jerry Beaulieu, who was then the president of the hospital, and said that "Although our agreement does not require you to pay money, your tenuous position financially requires that you give us some money which we will put in your name on our books, it will stay for you guys. But either get us a letter of credit or a CD or $1 million." At that time we had no option but to give them the $1 million. Anything less than that we would risk a war with them and, hence, a problem for the hospital.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Who was it that said those things on behalf of NCRIC?
A. If you name me names --
MR. LEAHY: Same work product objection.
THE WITNESS: If you would name me names, I will tell you. But I know Steve Fargis was there and another gentleman, I can see him by face. If you tell me names of NCRIC, I could help you.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Was it Mr. Pate?
A. I don't remember that.
Q. Was it Mr. Osborne?
A. Go ahead, next. Other than Osborne.
Q. Mr. Sohm?
A. Mr. who?
Q. Sohm?
A. No. Next?
Q. Let me ask you if you would look at Paragraph 92 of Exhibit 2. Are the statements that it's alleged that NCRIC made to physicians in Paragraph 92 part of the false and malicious statements that hurt the reputation of the hospital?
A. Yes.
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Who made those statements referred to in Paragraph 92, who made them on behalf of NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Physicians have called

NCRIC here and somebody in NCRIC talked to these physicians and told them about this, the clinic and the coverage there.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. You don't know who that was at NCRIC that said that.
A. No.
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. Which physicians were there that called NCRIC?
MR. LEAHY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: I would know at least of one of them that called, or two. I think either Ed Cook and Heather Johnson, on that September 1st, on that Friday. This I have knowledge of. Others have, too. I'm sure NCRIC would be the best source of who that they received phone calls from.
Q. Do you have any knowledge about the last sentence of Paragraph 92 that there is no justification for the exclusion for the ambulatory clinic?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. To the extent Columbia has knowledge of that, you may answer. To the extent Columbia does not have knowledge, you may not.
THE WITNESS: We are bewildered as to why an insurance company will be charging twice to cover the same individual in the same place. And we are bewildered -- sorry.
BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:
Q. No, complete your answer, please.
A. We are bewildered why would the clinic be excluded from coverage under the NCRIC insurance. And we would wonder whether other hospitals are treated similarly or physicians who go to an emergency room and practice, whether NCRIC will cover them or not.
Q. Does the hospital have any information or knowledge about the underwriting justification for the exclusion of physicians practicing in the hospital's clinic?
A. I am not aware of why NCRIC has done

that.
Q. Let me ask you to look at Paragraph 94 of the counterclaim.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Are the statements in that Paragraph that NCRIC's alleged to have made part of the false and defamatory statements that harmed the reputation of the hospital?
MR. LEAHY: Same work product objection here.
THE WITNESS: Mr. Niedermayer, is this 94 you said?
MR. NIEDERMAYER: Yes.
MR. LEAHY: Take your time.
THE WITNESS: I think that two things have been done is I think NCRIC has established a new discounted plan with GW at that time that ours have expired and has informed physicians of the Sibley plan and, therefore, in an attempt to keep physicians within the NCRIC environment they have structured for them two places to practice, one in GW which is currently structured and I believe structured at the time when our contract switched off with them, and I believe that they told them of Sibley as another place.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. What information does the hospital have about this GW plan?

A. We understand that we do not have any direct plan from GW, but we know that GW which did not have a discounted plan now does.

Q. Let me see if I understand. You said you have no direct information about what the GW plan is.

A. The contract, I don't have the written document. It's our belief that the physicians who left Columbia and are still with the NCRIC plan have been diverted to Sibley and some to GW which now has an analogous plan which I don't have the document for.

Q. What's the basis of your understanding?

A. Because this is where our physicians went after our contract with NCRIC expired. They went, the majority, to Sibley and the minority to GW.

Q. So the fact that physicians left or went to each of these hospitals is the basis for your belief that the insurance plans offered by NCRIC at these hospitals were what? Better?

A. I don't know they were offered by NCRIC in GW. I know they are offered by NCRIC in Sibley. They are analogous. They offer the physician a 30 percent discount on her or his malpractice insurance.

Q. Without any direct copy of the document, what is the basis for your understanding about the terms of either the GW or the Sibley plan with NCRIC?

A. I want to ask you that question, what did NCRIC offer in the plans and how did they do it. But I understand from the physicians who left that they have a 30 percent discount on their malpractice wherever they went to.

Q. Who are the physicians that left and went to Sibley?

A. They are the Horowitz-Safran group, a group of five or six physicians. There is the women's group. There is the Roberts-Bis group, Martin Dukes. And there is another lady who is on the Board of NCRIC, I will remember her name. And I think that is all of the people that I know. And some go there a certain number of times just because the contract for them to have a 30 percent discount they have to do so many cases, so they have to go there to satisfy the cases.

Q. Do you know the reasons why the physicians or groups that you just identified who went to Sibley did so?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection with regard to work product. You may answer only to the extent that Columbia has knowledge other than its attorney's knowledge.

THE WITNESS: I think in the newspaper article it was cited as a malpractice insurance financial issue. And that's what they said. I think that they all left within 30 days, 30 to 60 days of the contract termination. To the extent that Sibley now I don't think accepts any new physicians.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Did any of these physicians or groups that you identified leave Columbia and go to Sibley because of facilities at Sibley?

MR. LEAHY: Same work product instruction and objection.

THE WITNESS: Actually, Sibley has no facilities for obstetrics-gynecology. It's a small hospital for OB-GYN. It's a huge hospital and fantastic for other disciplines of medicine. And there are no facilities. They had to apply for a certificate of need when they had this influx to build a new facility to accommodate the new commerce.

The new commerce did not go to a great facility. They went to a crowded facility to be expanded thereafter. And they went to a place, too, where women in labor below 30 weeks are not allowed or admitted because they do not have an 11-3 nursery. So they went really to a place which is more crowded, to a place that does not deliver the excellent and the complicated care that Columbia delivers and knows how to deliver. And there has to be a reason, which according to the newspaper article they said is for business opportunity or for the malpractice insurance.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. So you are not aware of any other reason that these physicians or groups left to go to Sibley other than the cost of the malpractice insurance?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: They have said that in public and in private, that if we don't go with NCRIC they're going to go and they're going to go to a place that gives them the same discount. And so they did. Whether they are going to address it to the public any way where it's nearer, no traffic, the air quality is better, that's something different. But the window of time was, all of this happened miraculously at the time when the contract expired.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. How about the doctors who went to GW, who were they?

A. GW offered another program like, I don't know with who. And these doctors have to deliver or have to do a certain number of cases there. And they are a group of them. One is Norman Neches, Cooper, James Powers and his group, Jim Powers and his group and Marcy Wilkerson and Art Becker, they're in the same group, and Amy Kesselman. Then you have Russ Bridges, Bruce Barnes, Allen Bernquist, Sarah Emershein. That's the extent of my knowledge. They left and they still come to Columbia, these guys, but they have to do a certain number of cases there to be eligible for the discounted plan.

Q. What is your knowledge about the reasons why they left to go to GW and participate in GW's program?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. You're instructed not to answer to the extent Columbia doesn't have knowledge.

THE WITNESS: Same reason, for the NCRIC issue.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Is that the cost of the insurance is the reason?

A. Yes, the financial cost.

Q. Isn't it true that Columbia Hospital now has an insurance program that costs the physicians less than the NCRIC program?

MR. LEAHY: Same answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, it is.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. If that's the case do you know why these physicians would have left if it was to achieve a lower financial cost?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: It is not less with the discount, okay? So if you take the discounted Sibley plan and the new plan that we offer through another insurance company, there is not much difference. So with the 30 percent discount implemented you stay with your own insurance company and the insurance company which gives you the same premium. So the money out-of-pocket is the same. For us, the hospital, we do not share in the risk, we do not shoulder and we do not put our assets on the line.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. With your current policy.

A. Yes.

Q. So it's better than NCRIC's.

A. For the hospital. For the physician it's about the same or a little bit more, because if we offer a 30 percent discount with the present policy then it would be much less compared with the 30 percent discount that is offered. But we do not offer a 30 percent discount. So our full policy is the same as the 30 percent discounted policy of NCRIC. And the premiums are blended premium with NCRIC.

For example, not everybody has the same rate. I used to pay with a 30 percent

Deposition of
LARRY WILSON, JR.
a witness, called for examination by counsel for the Plaintiff, pursuant to notice, held at the offices of NCRIC, 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., beginning at 11:34 a.m., before Lynell C.S. Abbott, a Notary Public, RMR.

Q. I will come back to that, but what I'm asking you is did NCRIC do anything that you know, you or the hospital know of, that prevented the hospital from performing anything it had to do under the Retro plan?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object to the extent that that calls for a legal conclusion. I'm going to instruct you not to answer if and to the extent that the hospital's knowledge would be knowledge gained from its attorney. That would be work product. If you have knowledge that is not knowledge gained through your discussions with your attorney, you may answer.

THE WITNESS: Maybe it's just after lunch. I need to go back. Let me put this in context again. State the question again.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. I'm sorry. Did you want me to state the question?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm asking you whether you know of anything that NCRIC did that stopped or prevented the hospital from doing what it was obligated to do under the Retro plan.

MR. LEAHY: Same objection.

THE WITNESS: Under the Retro plan. Well, if I can, it is my belief that as a result of entering into a new plan, as a result of the termination of the old plan, that NCRIC had something to do with us losing our positions.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Let's come back to that later. But before we do, do you understand that NCRIC had no right to cancel the program?

MR. LEAHY: Again, objection to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion. And you are directed not to answer to the extent this would involve work product from your attorney, any type of discussion with your attorney.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Then I won't

the hospital that it didn't have to do something under the plan that it was obligated to do?

MR. LEAHY: Object to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: It does not because it is a report of another person to him saying "you don't have to do something you're obligated under the plan to do."

MR. LEAHY: It calls for him to make a judgment with regard to whether or not the plan calls for something and whether he was told not to. I'm going to object. It's just an objection. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Are you able to describe for me what damages that the hospital suffered that are being claimed under Count One of the counterclaims?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and instruct you not to answer to the extent any of your knowledge might come from your attorney and be otherwise solely your attorney's knowledge and not be knowledge of the hospital. I'm also going to object to the extent that any knowledge might come from the expert, because you're not designated as an expert. You may speak to the hospital's knowledge only.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Let's go off the record a second.

(Discussion off the record.)

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Mr. Wilson, may I have your answer, please?

A. State the question again.

Q. Are you able to describe for me the damages that the hospital is claiming under Count One, breach of contract, in its counterclaims?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to instruct you not to answer to the extent that there's knowledge that is from your attorney or that's expert knowledge. You may answer to the extent that Columbia knows what its damages are.

THE WITNESS: I can give you an example of damages.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Why don't you do that to start with.

A. Okay. Well, in my opinion we've suffered damages in the tens of millions of dollars to the extent that our reputation has been damaged, we've lost volume, we've lost face in the community, and I could go on just as an example of a few.

Q. Some of those have to do with reputation, they are in later counts. This says breach of contract. I just want to know what damages you claim the hospital claims have been suffered as a result of NCRIC's breach of contract. Can you tell me that?

A. Yes. The part of the reputation that goes back to that dim day in August when

A. I think the premiums at Columbia are less.

Q. Let's see if we can go back --

A. That's how we made our comparisons and the rates that were quoted by NCRIC were certainly higher than the ones we had at the time.

Q. Let's go back to Count One. Can you describe for me each type of damage that you claim under Count One has been incurred by the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object and instruct you not to answer to the extent that you got knowledge from work product of your attorney, that it's not Columbia's knowledge. If you have information that's Columbia Hospital's, give it.

THE WITNESS: As you know, this has been discussed with attorneys. So maybe I should not answer that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: This witness has been proffered as being able to answer these questions. Are you telling me he can't answer any of these questions?

MR. LEAHY: He's not our expert. To the extent the party has knowledge, the party can answer. To the extent the knowledge is the party's lawyer's knowledge or the expert witness' knowledge, you'll have to depose those people. To the extent the party has information, go ahead and answer. I'm sure the party has some information. But don't answer about what your lawyer knows.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. We contend there were damages as a result. Damage to reputation, damage to lost opportunities, damage to loss of volume.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Those aren't breach of contract, but tell me how much is the damages for loss of reputation.

A. We haven't been able to quantify that. Considerable.

Q. Who is going to quantify it?

called for examination by counsel for the Plaintiff, pursuant to notice, held at the offices of NCRIC, 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., beginning at 10:00 a.m., before Lynell C.S. Abbott, a Notary Public, RMR.

MR. LEAHY: Right, because as I said, I don't think we have any information other than the data dumps themselves. However, if it turns out that there are questions that Larry believes there are other people who have that information, he will answer and say, "Oh, I think this person has that information," or that person. And so that we don't produce someone who doesn't know anything, we'll come back and designate someone else.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: He's also going to be designated on the topic of expenses associated with the delivery of the services and items charged to each patient on the spreadsheets contained on CHW-CD1 and CHW-CD2.

MR. LEAHY: Right, which is the hospital's raw data files.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Go off the record a second.

a witness, called for examination, having previously duly sworn (or affirmed), was examined and testified further as follows:

****

EXAMINATION BY MR. NIEDERMAYER

Q. Mr. Wilson, you understand you're still under oath as a continuation of your deposition.

A. Yes, I do.

Q. I just want to confirm with you you're not going to testify on behalf of the hospital as to the calculation of any damages arising out of the miscalculation of additional or return premium. Is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. That's going to be done by expert witnesses on behalf of the hospital?

MR. LEAHY: Actually with regard to the return premium, that's not going to be done by an expert witness.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Who are you going to designate to do that? Mr. Wilson?

MR. LEAHY: No. Is that a topic?

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Yes.

MR. LEAHY: That's a purely legal question. So I don't think we're going to have anyone designated for that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: So you're saying that the calculation of your damages for return premiums is a legal question?

MR. LEAHY: Except for the loss reserve. We'll have an expert for that.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm entitled to know how you calculate your damages.

MR. LEAHY: You can depose our expert.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: You're expert, you just told me, is not going to testify about the return premium.

MR. LEAHY: Our expert is going to be the damages expert with regard to lost profits.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Mr. Wilson, has anyone made a computation on behalf of the hospital as to the proper amounts of return or additional premium that the hospital is claiming is correct for the years since the inception of the Retro plan?

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to direct you not to answer that on the grounds it infringes on the work product privilege.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: The identity of the person who does it does not infringe on the work product.

MR. LEAHY: We don't have to give up the identity of any consulting experts.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: So you're representing that they're made by consulting experts.

MR. LEAHY: Can we go off the record?

MR. NIEDERMAYER: No, we're not going to go off the record.

MOTION TO COMPEL DEFENDANT TO PRODUCE PRIVILEGE LOG

Plaintiff, NCRIC, Inc., by Roy Niedermayer its attorney, moves this Court for an order compelling defendant to produce a privilege log with respect to documents withheld and documents produced in redacted form, and for cause states:

1. Plaintiff propounded its first Request for Production of Documents on October 26, 2001; its second Request for Production of Documents on January 12, 2001; and its third Request on June 12, 2001.

2. In response to these requests, defendant has produced documents in 13 installments, beginning with its first production on December 21, 2000 and continuing through its most recent production on July 23, 2001.

3. The pages that have been produced are numbered sequentially, and it is clear that not all page numbers have been provided. For example, no documents numbered between CHW00014 and CHW00150 have been produced, but some documents with numbers lower than CHW00014 or higher than CHW00151 have been produced. Defendant has admitted that it has withheld some documents on the basis of privilege.

4. Some of the documents that have been produced have redacted portions.

5. Defendant has repeatedly promised to produce a privilege log explaining which documents have been withheld on the basis of an asserted privilege. Copies of correspondence from defendant's counsel dated December 21, 2000; January 12, 2001; April 13, 2001 and July 5, 2001 in which he promises to produce such a log are attached hereto as Exhibit A.

6. Despite promises to the contrary, no appropriate privilege log has been produced.

7. Plaintiff is concerned that defendant may be asserting a privilege as to documents or portions of documents that the Court may determine are not privileged. This concern has been raised in the past, most recently in a Motion to Compel Answers to Deposition Questions, filed August 6, 2001, in which plaintiff argues that defendant has incorrectly asserted attorney work product privilege as a basis for instructing defendant's corporate designees to refuse to answer certain questions at deposition.

8. Plaintiff is entitled to know which documents defendant is refusing to produce and why. Plaintiff is prejudiced by defendant's failure to provide even this minimal information in that it may be determined that certain documents must be produced despite defendant's contention to the contrary.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff respectfully requests:

1. That the Court issue an Order compelling defendant to produce a privilege log as to documents withheld and documents produced in redacted form; and

2. Whatever other and further relief may be required in the interests of justice.

Respectfully submitted,

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. hereby produces to Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. documents bearing Bates numbers CHWMC 000001 through CHWMC 000889 in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories. As per your request, the documents are being produced to David Osborn. Forthcoming are (1) a list of the non-responsive documents that were pulled from this Bates range; and (2) a chart reflecting the documents that were withheld on grounds of privilege.

I anticipate that Medical Center will produce additional documents the next few weeks. Further, Medical Center reserves its right to supplement its document productions at any time.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call me at (202) 326-7924.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Please find enclosed the following:

1. a list of the Bates Numbers of non-responsive documents that were pulled from Medical Center's first (12/21/00) document production to NCRIC;

2. Medical Center's second production of documents (bearing Bates Numbers from CHWMC 000890 to CHWMC 000985) in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories; and

3. a number of pages that were inadvertently withheld from, and a page that was mistakenly redacted in, Medical Center's first document production to NCRIC (all such pages bear Bates Numbers between CHWMC 000001 to CHWMC 000889).

A log describing the documents that were withheld from the first and second productions on grounds of privilege is forthcoming.

Sincerely,

Joseph K. Leahy

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. hereby makes its fourth production of documents to NCRIC, Inc. This production includes documents bearing Bates numbers ranging from CHW 000151 to CHW 013029, produced in response to NCRIC's First Requests for Production of Documents, Second Requests for Production of Documents and First Set of Interrogatories. In addition, please find enclosed documents bearing Bates numbers CHWMC 000012 - CHWMC 000015, and CHWMC 000969 - CHWMC 00970, which should have been included in Columbia's second and third productions, respectively. As per your request, the documents are being produced to Stephen Fargis of NCRIC.

Forthcoming are a privilege list for all of Columbia's productions to date, and a list reflecting the custodian and file of all documents in this production. The enclosed documents are organized in the order in which they were kept in the ordinary course of business.

Columbia reserves its right to supplement its document productions at any time.

CONSENT MOTION TO EXTEND TIME FOR COLUMBIA TO OPPOSE NCRIC'S PENDING MOTIONS TO COMPEL

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached, proposed Order, and as grounds for such Order state:

1. In light of the current settlement negotiations, the parties desire to extend the time for briefing NCRIC's Motion to Compel Discovery By Designation Under SCR 30(b)(6) And Appearance at Deposition and Motion to Compel Defendant's Designated Witnesses to Answer Questions Properly Posed at Deposition (collectively, "NCRIC's pending motions to compel").

2. The proposed Order would extend, up through and including September 13, 2001, the time for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions to compel.

3. The aforementioned extension will save the parties the time and expense of briefing NCRIC's pending motions to compel while the settlement negotiations are in progress; and will save judicial resources if the settlement negotiations are successful.

4. The foregoing constitutes good cause for modifying the deadline for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions to compel.

WHEREFORE, the parties request that the Court grant the Consent Motion to Extend Time for Columbia to Oppose NCRIC's Pending Motions to Compel and enter the proposed Order.

CONSENT MOTION TO EXTEND TIME FOR COLUMBIA TO OPPOSE NCRIC'S PENDING MOTIONS TO COMPEL

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached proposed Order, and as grounds for such Order state:

1. The parties' settlement negotiations are continuing in good faith.

2. In light of the continued settlement negotiations, the parties desire to further extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's Motion to Compel Discovery By Designation Under SCR 30(b)(6) and Appearance at Deposition and Motion to Compel Defendant's Designated Witnesses to Answer Questions Properly Posed at Deposition (collectively, "NCRIC's pending motions to compel"). The proposed Order would extend, up through and including September 24, 2001, the time for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions to compel.

3. In light of the current settlement negotiations, the parties also desire to further extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's Motion for Protective Order Barring Inquiry into Subject Matter Areas for 30(b)(6) Deposition of Plaintiff ("NCRIC's pending motion for protective order"). The proposed Order would extend, up through and including September 25, 2001, the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motion for protective order.

4. The aforementioned extensions of time will save the parties the time and expense of briefing NCRIC's pending motions while the settlement negotiations are in progress; and further, will save judicial resources if the settlement negotiations are successful.

5. The parties have previously agreed to extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motions to compel on two occasions: (1) in a Praecipe (filed on August 17, 2001 and supplemented on August 22, 2001); and (2) in a Consent Motion to Extend Time for Columbia to Oppose NCRIC's Pending Motions to Compel (filed on September 6, 2001). The parties have previously agreed to extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motion for protective order once, in a Praecipe (filed on August 17, 2001).

6. The parties contemplate that aforementioned extensions of time are consistent with the current scheduling order. If more time is necessary for settlement negotiations, the parties expect to file a new motion to amend the scheduling order or a motion to stay this case.

7. The foregoing constitutes good cause for modifying the deadline for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions to compel.

WHEREFORE, the parties ask the Court to grant the Consent Motion to Extend Time for Columbia to Oppose NCRIC's Pending Motions to Compel and enter the proposed Order.

CONSENT MOTION TO EXTEND TIME FOR COLUMBIA TO OPPOSE NCRIC'S PENDING MOTIONS TO COMPEL

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached proposed Order, and as grounds for such Order state:

1. The parties' settlement negotiations are continuing in good faith.

2. In light of the continued settlement negotiations, the parties desire to further extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's Motion to Compel Discovery By Designation Under SCR 30(b)(6) and Appearance at Deposition and Motion to Compel Defendant's Designated Witnesses to Answer Questions Properly Posed at Deposition (collectively, "NCRIC's pending motions to compel"). The proposed Order would extend, up through and including September 24, 2001, the time for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions to compel.

3. In light of the current settlement negotiations, the parties also desire to further extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's Motion for Protective Order Barring Inquiry into Subject Matter Areas for 30(b)(6) Deposition of Plaintiff ("NCRIC's pending motion for protective order"). The proposed Order would extend, up through and including September 25, 2001, the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motion for protective order.

4. The aforementioned extensions of time will save the parties the time and expense of briefing NCRIC's pending motions while the settlement negotiations are in progress; and further, will save judicial resources if the settlement negotiations are successful.

5. The parties have previously agreed to extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motions to compel on two occasions: (1) in a Praecipe (filed on August 17, 2001 and supplemented on August 22, 2001); and (2) in a Consent Motion to Extend Time for Columbia to Oppose NCRIC's Pending Motions to Compel (filed on September 6, 2001). The parties have previously agreed to extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motion for protective order once, in a Praecipe (filed on August 17, 2001).

6. The parties contemplate that aforementioned extensions of time are consistent with the current scheduling order. If more time is necessary for settlement negotiations, the parties expect to file a new motion to amend the scheduling order or a motion to stay this case.

7. The foregoing constitutes good cause for modifying the deadline for Columbia to file and serve its oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions to compel.

WHEREFORE, the parties ask the Court to grant the Consent Motion to Extend Time for Columbia to Oppose NCRIC's Pending Motions to Compel and enter the proposed Order.

CONSENT MOTION TO TEMPORARILY STAY PROCEEDINGS AND AMEND SCHEDULING ORDER

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached proposed Order temporarily staying this action, and as grounds for such Order state:

1. The parties' settlement negotiations are continuing in good faith. Progress has been made, but additional time is necessary to complete the negotiations.

2. In light of the continued settlement negotiations (and in an effort to avoid continuing to extend deadlines a week or two at a time), the parties hereby agree that all discovery and other proceedings in this action (including but not limited to all deadlines for oppositions to NCRIC's pending motions) should be stayed for 45 days, from September 24, 2001 until and up through November 8, 2001.

3. The parties also agree that, to avoid delaying the litigation in the event that the discovery negotiations fail, the stay may be lifted without further order of the Court if, prior to November 1, 2001, either party files a Praecipe certifying that the settlement discussions are at an impasse. The parties further agree that, to provide the opposing party with sufficient advance notice, a stay being lifted in this manner shall end effective five business days after the Praecipe is served (with three days added, pursuant to S.C.R 6(a), if the Praecipe is served by mail).[1]

4. The parties further agree that, if the stay is lifted, to save litigation expenses and conserve judicial resources, all deadlines set forth in the Second Amended Scheduling Order (August 31, 2001) should be amended automatically to adjust for the passage of time during the stay, plus seventeen calendar days, and all deadlines set forth in the most recent Consent Order (September __, 2001) should be amended automatically to adjust for the passage of time during the stay, plus seven calendar days.

Accordingly, the he parties agree that:

a. if the stay ends as scheduled on November 8, 2001, the Second Amended Scheduling Order and the most recent Consent Order should be amended by extending deadlines stated therein by 62 days, as follows:

Deadline in Second Amended Scheduling Order	Current	As Amended
Non-expert, non-party depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	10/5/01	12/6/01
Rule 30(b)(6) depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	10/5/01	12/6/01
Damages discovery closes:	10/5/01	12/6/01
Expert depositions completed:	10/12/01	12/13/01
Dispositive motions filed:	10/19/01	12/20/01
Oppositions to dispositive motions filed:	11/16/01	1/17/02
Replies to oppositions to dispositive motions filed:	12/3/01	2/4/02
Dispositive motions decided:	1/25/02	3/28/02
Confidential Settlement Statement due:	2/1/02	4/8/02

[1] For example, if one party filed and served a Praecipe by mail on October 19, 2001, the stay would end effective on Monday, October 29, 2001 (eight days – three for mail service plus five under paragraph 3 – after October 19, is Saturday, October 27, so S.C.R. 6(a) is applied).

ADR:	T.B.D.[2]	T.B.D.
Pretrial:	T.B.D.	T.B.D.

b. and, if the stay ends as scheduled on November 8, 2001, the most recent Consent Order should be amended by extending deadlines stated therein by 52 days, as follows:

Deadline in Most Recent Consent Order	Current	As Amended
Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Pending Motions To Compel Rule 30(b)(6) Witnesses & Designations	9/24/01	11/15/01
Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Pending Motion For Protective Order From Rule 30(b)(6) Subjects	9/25/01	11/16/01

c. The parties also agree that, if the stay does not last until November 8, 2001, but rather is lifted as described in paragraph 3, the Second Amended Scheduling Order shall be amended by extending all deadlines set forth therein by the number of calendar days from (and including) September 24, 2001 to (and including) the effective date on which the stay was lifted (including the five-day notice period and any time added for service by mail), plus seventeen calendar days.

d. The parties also agree that, if the stay does not last until November 8, 2001, but rather is lifted as described in paragraph 3, the most recent Consent Order shall be amended by extending all deadlines set forth therein by the number of calendar days from (and including) September 24, 2001 to (and including) the effective date on which the stay was lifted (including the five-day notice period and any time added for service by mail), plus seven calendar days.[3]

[2] To be determined by the Assignment Office.

[3] For example, if a party filed and served a Praecipe by mail on October 19, 2001, the deadlines in the Second Amended Scheduling Order would be automatically extended, pursuant to paragraph 4c, by 52 days (the number of calendar days from September 24, 2001 to October 29, 2001, see supra n.1, plus seventeen calendar days), and the deadlines in the most recent Consent Order would be automatically extended, pursuant to paragraph 4d, by 42 days (the number of calendar days from September 24, 2001 to October 29, 2001, plus seven calendar days).

e. The parties also agree that, if the stay is lifted by the filing of a Praecipe, a consent Praecipe setting forth all the deadlines, as automatically amended, should be filed seven days after the effective date on which the stay ends.

5. The requested temporary stay will save the parties the time and expense of litigating this matter while the settlement negotiations continue; further, the requested automatic amendments to the Second Amended Scheduling Order and the August 31 Consent Order will save judicial resources.

6. The parties have previously agreed to extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motions to compel on two occasions, see Praecipe (August 17, 2001); Consent Motion to Extend Time for Columbia to Oppose NCRIC's Pending Motions to Compel ["Consent Motion to Extend"] (September 13, 2001); the parties have previously agreed to extend the time for Columbia to file and serve its opposition to NCRIC's pending motion for protective order twice, see Praecipe (August 25, 2001); Consent Motion to Extend; and the parties have previously agreed to extend the scheduling order in this case twice, see Amended Scheduling Order (May 16, 2001); and Consent Motion to Extend Scheduling Order (August 28, 2001).

7. The foregoing constitutes good cause for temporarily staying discovery and all other proceedings in this action, as described above, and for automatically amending the scheduling order and other deadlines stated in the most recent Consent Order.

WHEREFORE, the parties ask the Court to grant the Consent Motion to Temporarily Stay Proceedings and Amend Scheduling Order and enter the proposed Order.

FURTHER, the stay shall be lifted without further order of the Court if, prior to November 1, 2001, either party certifies in a Praecipe, filed with the Court, that the settlement discussions are at an impasse; and

FURTHER, if the stay is lifted by the filing of a Praecipe with the Court, the stay shall end effective five business days after said Praecipe is served on the opposing party; and

FURTHER, if the stay ends as scheduled on November 8, 2001, the most recent Consent Order shall be amended by extending the deadlines stated therein by 52 days as follows:

Deadline in Most Recent Consent Order	Current	As Amended
Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Pending Motions To Compel Rule 30(b)(6) Witnesses & Designations	9/24/01	11/15/01
Columbia's Opposition to NCRIC's Pending Motion For Protective Order From Rule 30(b)(6) Subjects	9/25/01	11/16/01

And, FURTHER, if the stay ends as scheduled on November 8, 2001, the current Scheduling Order shall be amended by extending all deadlines stated therein by 62 days as follows:

Deadline in Second Amended Scheduling Order	Current	As Amended
Non-expert, non-party depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	10/5/01	12/6/01
Rule 30(b)(6) depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	10/5/01	12/6/01
Damages discovery closes:	10/5/01	12/6/01
Expert depositions completed:	10/12/01	12/13/01

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTIONS TO COMPEL

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby opposes Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc.'s ("NCRIC") Motion to Compel Discovery By Designation Under SCR 30(b)(6) and Appearance at Deposition ("Motion to Compel Designation") and Motion to Compel Defendant's Designated Witnesses to Answer Questions Properly Posed at Deposition ("Motion to Compel Answers"), in support such opposition states as follows:

Preliminary Statement

In its Motion to Compel Designation, NCRIC argues that Columbia must name corporate designees to testify on twenty different topics. Of these topics, four are moot (Point I.A, infra) and nine call for legal conclusions (Point I.B, infra). The remaining seven topics constitute an illegitimate attempt to circumvent the work-product privilege and take a de facto deposition of Columbia's trial counsel (Point I.C, infra). In its Motion to Compel Answers, NCRIC insists that two of Columbia's corporate designees were improperly instructed not to answer, and did not answer, questions posed at their depositions. In fact, the designees answered the questions fully, so there is nothing to compel and the motion is moot (Point II.A, infra). Further, since the witnesses were instructed to hold back only privileged information that they had learned from counsel, the instructions were proper (Point II.B, infra). Hence, both motions should be denied.

Factual Background

This lawsuit arose out of an extremely complicated contract (the "Retro Plan"), and the fiduciary relationship that resulted from it. The central issue in the case is how to interpret the Plan's complex retrospective rating formula, which determines how much premium is owed by whom. NCRIC, which sued Columbia for allegedly breaching the Plan, interprets the formula one way, and Columbia, which countersued on contract and tort theories, interprets it another.[1]

NCRIC propounded a massive Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice, listing 57 broad topics. Columbia designated witnesses for most of the topics, see Letter from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I. Niedermayer, at 3 (Jun. 13, 2001) ("Designee Letter") (attached as part of Exhibit A hereto)[2], but objected to others, see Defendant's Objections to Plaintiff's Notice of Deposition Pursuant to Superior Court Rule 30(b)(6) (Apr. 5, 2001) ("Objections") (attached as Exhibit B hereto). In particular, Columbia objected that topics requiring its designees to summarize its contentions were improper because, inter alia, they violated the work product privilege. See, e.g., id. at 1-2.

Before the Rule 30(b)(6) deposition commenced, opposing counsels met and conferred regarding whether NCRIC would refrain from asking about topics to which Columbia objected. NCRIC's counsel refused. In order to avoid litigating the issue and move forward with the depositions, Columbia initially designated witnesses for topics to which it did not object, and [2] See also Letter from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I. Niedermayer, at 1 (July 12, 2001); Electronic Mail from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I. Niedermayer, at 1 (Jun. 20, 2001) (both part of Exhibit A).

16d-000943

NCRIC's counsel promised not to ask about topics for which they were not designated. See, e.g., Electronic Mail from Roy I. Niedermayer to Joseph K. Leahy, at 1 (June 20, 2001) (promising not to ask about topics for which witness was not designated) (attached as Exhibit C hereto).[3] In reliance on this promise, Columbia did not seek a protective order.

Soon after the deposition began, NCRIC's counsel violated his promise not to ask about topics for which witnesses were designated. See Transcript of Deposition of Safa Rifka, M.D. ("Rifka Dep.") at 142-45 (June 21, 2001) (attached to Motion to Compel Answers); see also Transcript of Deposition of Larry Wilson, Jr. ("Wilson Dep."), at 305-06 (June 27, 2001) (attached hereto as Exhibit D). Rather than stop the deposition, Columbia's counsel instructed the witnesses not to answer the improper questions only to the extent that their knowledge derived from Columbia's counsel – i.e., to the extent that their answers might reflect work product. See Rifka Dep. at 95-96, 142-45 (attached to Motion to Compel Answers, along with other examples); Wilson Dep. at 133-34, 139-41 (same). So instructed, the designees answered the questions. See, e.g., Rifka Dep. at 95-96, 142-45; Wilson Dep. at 133, 139-41. Indeed, since Columbia's counsel had not provided the witnesses with any information that was responsive to the questions he instructed them not to answer, see Affidavit of Joseph K. Leahy, Esq. ("Leahy Aff."), at 1 (attached hereto as Exhibit E), both witnesses answered those questions fully.

Due to scheduling conflicts, Columbia's Rule 30(b)(6) deposition was repeatedly continued by agreements between opposing counsel in June and July of 2001. In rescheduling, NCRIC served superceding Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notices (one of which is attached as Exhibit

[3] Although NCRIC's counsel made this promise in writing only with respect to designee Safa Rifka, M.D., counsel also repeated the promise orally and Columbia's counsel reasonably understood that the promise extended to all of Columbia's 30(b)(6) witnesses.

16d-000944

F hereto) for some, but not all, of the rescheduled dates.[4] Columbia's designees continued to appear as scheduled throughout the summer.[5] Columbia never failed to designate a witness for, or attend, any of the scheduled deposition dates – much less a properly-noticed one.

In mid-July 2001, opposing counsels repeatedly discussed designation of additional Rule 30(b)(6) witnesses by Columbia. In these negotiations, Columbia's counsel never refused to designate more witnesses. To the contrary, Columbia's counsel agreed, at a meeting on July 16, 2001, to designate witnesses on additional topics.[6] After the Court granted NCRIC's motion to depose Columbia's experts on July 20, 2001, Columbia also agreed to designate its damages expert on damage-related topics. Yet, again due to scheduling conflicts, the deposition of the additional designees was continued. See Letter from Roy I. Niedermayer to Joseph K. Leahy, at 2 (July 19, 2001) (attached hereto as Exhibit G). Further, depositions by Columbia consumed the rest of the discovery period. As such, no new deposition dates were agreed upon, no new deposition notices were served – and Columbia had no cause to designate further witnesses.

In August 2001, the parties agreed that depositions noticed before the (then) discovery cutoff of August 14, 2001 could be held afterwards, if necessary. Yet, despite knowing that more depositions would occur, and despite that no unadjourned deposition notice was

[4] The new notices added topic 58; Columbia served written objections to each new notice.

[5] Larry Wilson, Jr. was deposed on June 27, 2001 and July 16, 2001; Safa Rifka, M.D. was deposed on June 21, 2001; Charles D. Gasser was deposed on July 9, 2001; Nabil Asterbadi, M.D. was deposed on July 11, 2001; and Gerald Beaulieu was deposed on July 18, 2001. Pursuant to a supplemental Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice (which requested additional detail regarding, inter alia, topic 4), Elnora Johnson was deposed on July 18, 2001.

[6] For example, Columbia informed NCRIC that it would designate witnesses for topics 41, 42, 43, & 45. Subsequently, however, Columbia determined that it could not, despite diligent efforts, locate any current or former managing agents to designate for these topics. See Letter from Joseph K. Leahy to Roy I. Niedermayer, at 3 (July 20, 2001) (attached as Exhibit H hereto).

outstanding, NCRIC moved to compel Columbia to designate additional witnesses. NCRIC also moved to compel Dr. Rifka and Mr. Wilson to answer some questions for a second time.

This case was stayed for settlement negotiations from August 17, 2001 to November 8, 2001. After the stay ended, Columbia offered to designate witnesses on some remaining topics in the Rule 30(b)(6) notice to the extent that Columbia, not its counsel, had information about those topics. Columbia also offered to provide NCRIC with names of persons who Columbia, including counsel, believed had knowledge about the defamation claims. NCRIC accepted neither offer. NCRIC has not, to date, re-noticed the Rule 30(b)(6) deposition.

Argument

I. The Twenty Topics in NCRIC's 30(b)6) Deposition Notice Are Improper

A. Four Topics Are Moot or Irrelevant

NCRIC moves to compel Columbia to name designees to testify on topics 1-14, 28-29, 51-52, and 56-57 in the Rule 30(b)(6) notice. See Motion to Compel Designation at 1. However, Columbia already designated witnesses on topics 4, 9, and 29, see Designee Letter at 3, so to that extent the motion is moot. Further, the "information concerning [Columbia's prayer for] attorneys' fees" sought by topic 57, Motion to Compel Designation at 1, is no longer relevant because the prayer for attorneys fees was dismissed. See NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hosp. for Women Med. Ctr., Inc., No. 00-007308, Mem. Op. at 12 (July 3, 2001). NCRIC's motion therefore must be denied with respect to these four topics.

B. Nine Topics Improperly Call For Legal Conclusions

Of the remaining topics, nine – 1-3, 8, 11-12, 14, 28 and 51– are improper because they seek legal opinions. Seven of these nine – 1-3, 11, 12, 14 and 28 – concern the calculation of premium under the Retro Plan.[7] This calculation is governed entirely by a formula set forth in the Plan,[8] see Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc.'s Amended Answer and Counterclaims ¶¶ 27-36 & Exh. 1 at 8-11 ("Counterclaims") (Retrospective Rating Formula), and applying the formula is interpreting the Plan. Such contract interpretation is a pure matter of law for the Court to decide. See Brown v. Union Station Venture Corp., 727 A.2d 878, 881 (D.C. 1999) (citing 1901 Wyo. Ave. Coop. Ass'n v. Lee, 345 A.2d 456, 461 n.8 (D.C. 1975) (interpretation of an unambiguous, integrated contract is to be determined "as a matter of law")). Therefore, it is an inappropriate subject for deposition questions. See Nickens v. Labor Agency of Metro. Wash., 600 A.2d 813, 819 (D.C. 1991) ("Matters of law are to be determined by the court; consequently, a question calling for a conclusion of law is improper."); Serv. Parking Corp. v. Trans-Lux Radio City Corp., 47 A.2d 400, 403 (D.C. App. 1946) (holding that question regarding interpretation of a lease, which called for a legal conclusion, was improper).

16d-000946

Two other deposition topics call for legal analysis, rather than factual information: topic 8, which requires Columbia's designee to discuss the law of fiduciary relationships,[9] and topic

[7] See Exh. F at 1 (topic 1) (requesting the basis for Columbia's claim that NCRIC's calculation of the amount of premium Columbia owed to it "fail[ed] to comply with the terms, provisions or formulas of the contract"); id. (topic 2) (requesting the "correct amounts . . . to comply with the terms, provisions or formulas of the contract" and "reasons why these . . . are the proper amounts . . . to be used . . . under the contract"); id. (topic 3) (requesting the "amounts of premium that should have been charged in each of the contract"); id. at 2 (topic 11) (requesting information concerning "calculation of loss reserves . . . and each element of the formula . . . for [calculating premium due] under the Plan"); id. (topic 12) (requesting an explanation of NCRIC's errors in applying the formula set forth in the Plan); id. (topic 14) (same); id. at 3 (topic 28) (requesting the amount of premium due under the formula set forth in the Plan).

[8] All factual data used in the formula is in NCRIC's sole possession. See Counterclaims ¶ 28.

[9] See Exh. F at 2 (topic 8) (requesting an explanation of the "source, substantive, nature, duties and responsibilities of NCRIC as fiduciary and actions constituting breach of the duty").

16d-000947

51, which asks about Columbia's affirmative defenses to NCRIC's contract claim.[10] Both subjects are therefore improper. See Nickens, 600 A.2d at 819.[11]

C. Seven Topics Constitute an Illegitimate Attempt Shift NCRIC's Discovery Burden onto Columbia and Circumvent the Work Product Doctrine by Taking a De Facto Deposition of Columbia's Trial Counsel.

The seven remaining topics – 5-7, 10, 13, 52 and 56 – all relate to events where Columbia was not present and to facts it was in no position to know. This information "is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia . . . , but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses." Objections at 2;. As such, these topics request Columbia's contentions, not its evidence – and, they would require Columbia's counsel to "marshal all of its factual proof" and provide it to the 30(b)(6) designee. United States v. Dist. Council, No. 90 Civ. 5722, 1992 WL 208284, at *15 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 18, 1992). This is improper, for three related reasons.

First, in a complex case, stating contentions involves more than just testifying to objective facts; it requires careful analysis of the legal consequences of the facts.[12] A lay witness simply is not qualified for this task. See Kent Sinclair & Roger P. Fendrich, Discovering Corporate Knowledge and Contentions: Rethinking Rule 30(b)(6) and Alternative Mechanisms, 50 Ala. L. Rev. 651, 709 (1999). The proper way to inquire about contentions in a complex case like this one is by propounding written interrogatories, which are drafted by counsel. See, e.g., Lance, Inc. v. Ginsburg, 32 F.R.D. 51, 53 (E.D. Pa. 1962) (holding that contentions were

---

[10] See Exh. F at 5 (topic 51) (requesting an information regarding "[p]erformances under the Plan prevented, excused or waived by" NCRIC).

[11] Further, to the extent that these topics request contentions, they are improper. See infra § I.C.

[12] See, e.g., Rifka Dep. at 171-72 (asking for Columbia's contention regarding whether NCRIC had properly canceled contract) (attached hereto as Exhibit I); id. at 133-34 (asking what specific statements by NCRIC Columbia contended were defamatory).

properly requested in interrogatories, not depositions); Morelli, 143 F.R.D. at 47 (same); Rifkind v. Superior Ct., 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822, 825 (Cal. Ct. App. 1994) (same); Davis v. Lower Bucks Hosp., 56 F.R.D. 21, 22 (E.D. Pa. 1972) (same);[13] compare also Sup. Ct. R. 33(c) (explicitly permitting contention interrogatories) with Sup. Ct. R. 26, 30 (making no mention whatsoever of contention-style questions at depositions).

Second, contention-style depositions are especially problematic under Rule 30(b)(6), which requires that a witness who is not knowledgeable about his designated topic be briefed on it. With contentions, trial counsel's knowledge necessarily must be used to brief to the designee, especially when the events were witnessed by third parties. In such case, the 30(b)(6) deposition is effectively an indirect deposition of counsel. Since deposing counsel directly is rarely permitted, Nguyen v. Excel Corp., 197 F.3d 200, 207-08 (5th Cir. 1999); Am. Cas. Co. v. Krieger, 160 F.R.D. 582, 585 (S.D. Cal. 1995), deposing counsel indirectly by way of a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition is similarly disfavored, see, e.g., EEOC v. HBE Corp., 157 F.R.D. 465, 466-67 (E.D. Mo. 1994) (Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice was an improper attempt to depose counsel, who was the only corporate representative with relevant information).

[13] Contention-style depositions are particularly inappropriate when the information sought is available from other sources. See Dist. Council, 1992 WL 208284, at *15. Here, NCRIC has not deposed any third-party witnesses to its defamatory statements, despite that Columbia provided it with the names of third-party witnesses who may have relevant information. See Defendant's Objections and Responses to Plaintiff's First Set of Interrogatories, at 3-7 (Nov. 27, 2000) (naming witnesses with knowledge about section of Counterclaims entitled "Failed 2000 Renewal Negotiations and NCRIC's Cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy," which contained defamation allegations, see Counterclaims at 89, 80-103) (attached as Exhibit J hereto); Rifka. Dep. at 119, 122-24 (naming some witnesses to NCRIC's defamatory statements). NCRIC's claim that Columbia failed to provide it with such information is simply false.

Indeed, if questions about contentions were allowed in Rule 30(b)(6) depositions, the adversary process as we know it would be threatened. See Sinclair & Fendrich, supra, at 699-728. If counsel were required to provide all his evidence to the 30(b)(6) designee, he undoubtedly would forgo traditional (and expensive) evidence gathering techniques, and rely on opposing counsel to build the case. See id. at 727 (asking, rhetorically, why counsel would take ever take more than a single deposition if contention interrogatories were allowed in 30(b)(6) depositions); Dist. Council, 1992 WL 208284, at *16 (to same effect). This is not the purpose of the Rule, see Sinclair & Fendrich, supra, at 708, 717-18, and therefore, contention-style 30(b)(6) deposition topics are inappropriate, see, e.g., In re Indep. Serv. Orgs. Antitrust Litig., 168 F.R.D. 651, 654 (D. Kan. 1996) (quashing Rule 30(b)(6) deposition designed as verbal contention interrogatories); McCormick-Morgan, Inc. v. Teledyne Indus., Inc., 134 F.R.D. 275, 286-87 (N.D. Cal.) (holding that the proper method for learning contentions was interrogatories, not a 30(b)(6) deposition), rev'd on other grounds, 765 F. Supp. 611 (N.D. Cal. 1991).

Third, Rule 30(b)(6) "contention depositions" undermine the work-product privilege. Preparing a witness to state contentions necessarily requires counsel to review written work product, summarize the material facts for each claim, and provide his legal analysis to the designee. Requiring trial counsel to orally summarize work-product in this way would render the privilege meaningless. See SEC v. Morelli, 143 F.R.D. 42, 47-48 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (30(b)(6) deposition notice requesting contentions was an impermissible attempt to depose counsel to ascertain mental processes and strategies); Am. Nat'l Red Cross v. Travelers Indem. Co., 896 F. Supp. 8, 13-14 (D.D.C. 1995) (upholding witness's refusal to answer contention-style 30(b)(6) questions on work product grounds); see also infra § II.B.

16d-000950

II. NCRIC's Motion To Compel Answers Is Moot And Non-meritorious

A. NCRIC's Motion Is Moot Because Columbia Held Back No Information

NCRIC states that Columbia designees Dr. Safa Rifka and Larry Wilson, Jr. did not answer certain questions put to them by NCRIC's counsel. In fact, both witnesses answered the questions to the full extent of their knowledge. See Leahy Aff., at 1 (explaining that Columbia's counsel did not provide the witnesses with factual information regarding the questions that they were instructed, in part, not to answer). Since the designees held back no information, NCRIC could obtain no additional information by calling them back to testify, and the motion is moot.

B. Columbia's Counsel's Instructions Not To Answer Were Proper Because NCRIC's Counsel's Questions Requested Privileged Work Product.

Yet, even if Columbia's designees had held back information, they would have been justified in doing so. Columbia's counsel instructed Dr. Rifka and Mr. Wilson not to answer only to the extent that their knowledge derived from counsel. This instruction was appropriate in response to contention-style questions, because any information the witnesses obtained from counsel that was responsive to such questions necessarily revealed counsel's mental impressions (e.g., his evaluation of what facts were material to each claim). See HBE Corp., 157 F.R.D. at 466 (rejecting contention-style deposition questions because the "selection and compilation of the relevant facts is 'at the heart of the work product doctrine'"); American Nat. Red Cross, 896 F. Supp. at 13 (same); Morelli, 143 F.R.D. at 47 (to same effect).

Further, NCRIC's argument that privileged work product somehow loses its protected status when summarized verbally is simply wrong. See Nesse v. Pittman, 202 F.R.D. 344, 355 (D.D.C. 2001) ("The work product privilege protects intangible work product."); 8 C. Wright & R. Marcus, Federal Practice & Procedure § 2024 (1994) (Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495, 511 (1947), protects "work product . . . that is not embodied in tangible form"); see e.g., Hickman, 329 U.S. at 512-13 (affording work-product protection to witness statements in the form of "mental impressions or memoranda"); American Nat. Red Cross, 896 F. Supp. at 14 (deposition testimony constituted protected work product); Morelli, 143 F.R.D. at 47 (same).

Moreover, even to the extent (if any) that NCRIC counsel's questions requested purely factual information, that information was privileged because it was not known to Columbia at the outset of the litigation and gathered by Columbia's counsel from third parties.[14] See Sup. Ct. Rule 26(b)(3) (covering factual materials developed in anticipation of litigation). Nor is Hickman, which NCRIC argues denied work-product protection to "underlying facts," to the contrary. The question in Hickman was whether a party overcame the privilege due to a substantial need for those facts, not whether the privilege applied in the first place. See Hickman, 329 U.S. at 394 (reasoning that facts are not protected if they lie "hidden" in counsel's file, and facts may be produced when "witnesses are no longer available"; holding that witness statements were not discoverable because opposing counsel made "no showing of necessity").

Here, NCRIC's purported "need" for Columbia's facts is decidedly not a showing of "substantial need" and "undue hardship," as required by Hickman and Superior Court Rule 26(b)(3). Compare Motion to Compel Answers at 4-5 (explaining that facts Columbia's designees purportedly withheld are relevant to NCRIC's defense, and it could not obtain its contentions from anyone other than Columbia) with Wright & Miller, supra § 2025 & n.17 (explaining that "substantial need" means "more than mere relevance" and showing of "undue hardship" means more than mere inconvenience or the expense from taking depositions).

---

[14] There is no question here that NCRIC sought factual information from Columbia's attorney. See Motion to Compel Answers at 3 (arguing that it was improper for Dr. Rifka to "refuse to provide any information that his attorneys had discovered"); id. (arguing further that Dr. Rifka should have provided NCRIC with any "statements" from witnesses he did not identify).

16d-000952

NCRIC's failure to take any depositions of the third parties that Columbia indicated may have relevant knowledge, see supra, note 13, is fatal to its claim of substantial need/undue hardship. See Hickman, 329 U.S. at 512-13 ("naked, general demand" was not sufficient to show substantial need); see, e.g, Hendrick v. Avis Rent-A-Car Sys., 916 F. Supp. 256, 260-61 (W.D.N.Y. 1996) (party failed to show substantial need because it failed to undertake any effort to obtain "needed" item). Moreover, NCRIC could have obtained Columbia's contentions in contention interrogatories, either at the outset of the lawsuit or just recently, but failed to do so.

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, for the reasons set forth above, Columbia respectfully requests that NCRIC's Motion to Compel Designation and Motion to Compel Answers be denied.

DEFENDANT'S OBJECTIONS TO PLAINTIFF'S NOTICE OF DEPOSITION PURSUANT TO SUPERIOR COURT RULE 30(b)(6)

Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby objects as follows to the Notice of Rule 30(b)(6) Deposition of Defendant ("Notice") served by Plaintiff/ Counter-Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), for a deposition noticed for April 10, 2001.

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

These General Objections apply to each and every one of the deposition subjects listed in NCRIC's Notice ("deposition subjects") and form an integral part of Columbia's Objections:

1. Columbia objects to the deposition subjects to the extent they seek information protected by the attorney-client privilege, work product privilege, or any other applicable privilege that would make the information sought immune from discovery in whole or in part. "Privilege" as hereinafter used shall include all the above-named privileges and any other rule of law, privilege, or confidentiality provided by law. By designating a witness to testify on a given topic, it is not intended to be, or in any way may it be deemed, a waiver of any such available privilege to which Columbia is entitled.

2. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they seek to impose obligations upon Columbia beyond those permitted by, or different from those required by, the District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they are vague, overly broad, unduly burdensome, or seek information that is not relevant to any claim or defense of a party or is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

4. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to information that is already, or solely, in NCRIC's possession.

5. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to information not in Columbia's possession.

6. Columbia objects to NCRIC's deposition subjects to the extent that they relate to Columbia attorneys' fees in this action.

7. It should not be inferred from the form or substance of any objections contained herein that information responsive to any particular subject exists.

8. By designating a witness to testify on any subject, Columbia does not concede the relevance or admissibility of the information sought.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS

Subject No. 1: The facts and reasons forming the basis for defendant's claims that any of the calculations or numbers in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) are incorrect or fail to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 1: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that the Subject requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession and/or to the extent that the Subject requests information already provided to NCRIC in Columbia's responses to NCRIC's interrogatories. Columbia also objects this Subject to the extent it seeks testimony that is properly in the realm of expert testimony, and as such, constitutes an improper attempt to elicit Columbia's testimony expert without permission of the Court, in violation of District of Columbia Superior Court Rule 26(b)(4). Columbia objects further to this Subject to the extent that relates to pure matters of law, including interpretation of the agreement between the parties, and therefore, is not properly the subject of a deposition of a lay witness.

Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. In effect, this Subject requires counsel for Columbia to marshal all of its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the subject, provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. For this reason, Columbia objects that this Subject is not properly the subject of a 30(b)(6) deposition. Instead, this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory (the deadline for service of which passed on March 12, 2001, prior to service of NCRIC's 30(b)(6) deposition notice).

Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 1.

Subject No. 2: The correct amounts that should be used or inserted in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; and facts and reasons why these numbers are the proper amounts and calculations to be used in calculating the amount of premium due plaintiff under the contract.

Objections to Subject No. 2: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 2.

Subject No. 3: The amounts of premium that should have been charged to defendant in each year of the contract and the amount, year, and method of calculation of any refund of premium defendant claims was due it.

Objections to Subject No. 3: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 3.

Subject No. 4: The identity, terms, and facts concerning any contract, business relationship, or business expectancy between defendant and each of the doctors identified in paragraph 14-18 and 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 4: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 5: The specific actions and acts of plaintiff constituting the interference with the contracts between defendant and the doctors identified in paragraph 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 5: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that it requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. In effect, this Subject requires counsel for Columbia to marshal all of its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the subject, provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. For this reason, Columbia objects that this Subject is not properly the subject of a 30(b)(6) deposition. Instead, this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory (the deadline for service of which passed on March 12, 2001, prior to service of NCRIC's 30(b)(6) deposition notice).

Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 5.

Subject No. 6: Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting malice toward defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 6: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 6.

Subject No. 7: Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting any wanton or reckless disregard of the rights of defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 7: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 7.

Subject No. 8: Source, substance, nature, duties and responsibilities of NCRIC as fiduciary for defendant and actions constituting breach of any fiduciary duty.

Objections to Subject No. 8: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 8.

Subject No. 9: Identify, description, and calculation of damages suffered by acts alleged in each amended counterclaim count.

Objections to Subject No. 9: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to Subject No. 9 in that its investigation is continuing, and to the extent that its damage calculations are not completed at this time. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 9 at this time.

Subject No. 10: Defamatory actions or statements by plaintiff about defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 10: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 10.

Subject No. 11: The matters concerning calculation of loss reserves, adjustments of loss reserves, positive loss experiences of defendant under the Plan, use of additional years in calculating premiums, and each element of the formula or requirements for reconciliation of premiums due under the Plan.

Objections to Subject No. 11: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 11.

Subject No. 12: Allegations of errors by plaintiff made in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence) of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 12: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 12.

Subject No. 13: The bases for the allegations of plaintiff's knowledge about defendant's financial situation as alleged in paragraph 43 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 13: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 5, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 13.

Subject No. 14: The specific errors, miscalculations and overstatements in the bill from plaintiff alleged in paragraphs 72 and 101 including the reasons and bases for the errors, and corrections required to make the bill accurate.

Objections to Subject No. 14: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. See Objections to Subject No. 1, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 14.

Subject No. 15: The facts supporting or related to the allegations of paragraph 73 that plaintiff attempted to gain leverage over defendant.

Objections to Subject No. 15: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 15 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 16: The search for new or replacement MMLI insurance with companies other than plaintiff during the period 1993 to date.

Objections to Subject No. 16: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 16 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 17: The negotiations and events between plaintiff and defendant alleged in paragraphs 83-88 including the factual bases for defendant's allegations of cancellation without justification, retaliation, and reneging.

Objections to Subject No. 17: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege and the attorney-client privilege. Further, Columbia objects to Subject No. 17 to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents.

Subject No. 18: The events and statements described in paragraph 89 of the Amended counterclaims.

Objections to Subject No. 18: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for the disclosure of information protected by Privilege, including but not limited to the work-product privilege. Columbia also objects to this Subject to the extent that the subject requests information that is solely in NCRIC's possession. Further, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it calls for information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents, but rather, is in the possession of counsel for Columbia and/or non-party witnesses. Moreover, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that it requires counsel for Columbia to marshal its factual proof and legal analysis regarding the Subject and provide it to Columbia's 30(b)(6) designee, and then provide it to NCRIC. To this extent, Columbia objects that this Subject is properly the subject of a contention interrogatory, not a 30(b)(6) deposition.

Subject No. 19: The substance, nature, and scope of any harm caused to the defendant's reputation in the community caused by the action of plaintiff including the nature, bases, and calculation of any monetary damages sustained as a result of the harm.

Objections to Subject No. 19: See General Objections, which are incorporated by reference in this Objection as if stated fully herein. In addition, Columbia objects to this Subject to the extent that the subject requests information that is not currently in the possession of or reasonably obtainable by Columbia or any of its managing agents. Columbia also objects to this Subject in that its investigation is continuing, and to the extent that its damage calculations are not completed at this time. Based on the foregoing objections, Columbia will not designate a witness to testify on Subject No. 19 at this time.

Subject No. 20: The content of the rumors alleged in paragraphs 91 and 98 of the Amended counterclaims as well as the identities of the staff members originating and circulating the rumors.

MR. LEAHY: I'm going to object. He's not designated on this topic.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. You may answer.

A. Yes. One physician said to me that a representative, I can't remember exactly who it was at the moment, said to me that a representative from NCRIC had stated that the self-insurance trust was not adequately funded and there was no coverage.

Q. In August or September of 2000 was the self-insurance trust underfunded for its contingent liabilities?

MR. LEAHY: Objection; asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: It was underfunded.

MR. NIEDERMAYER: Off the record.

(Recessed from 11:36 a.m. to 11:57 a.m.)

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Mr. Wilson, do you know whether or do you have any evidence that NCRIC knew that the statements in Paragraph 69 were not true when it made them?

MR. LEAHY: Object to the scope.

THE WITNESS: No, I don't have any evidence one way or the other. I just don't.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Paragraph 70 talks about urging members of attending faculty to disassociate themselves from the Medical Center. Do you have any knowledge of which attending faculty members were urged to disassociate themselves by NCRIC?

MR. LEAHY: Same objection. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: I do not personally.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Does anyone at Columbia Hospital know?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Do you contend that the statements that were made in August of 1998 to physicians to disassociate themselves caused damage to

NOTICE OF RULE 30(b)(6) DEPOSITION OF DEFENDANT

Please take notice that NICRIC, Inc., plaintiff, by Roy Niedermayer, its attorney, hereby notices the deposition upon oral examination of an officer(s) or managing agent(s) of defendant pursuant to SCR 30(b)(6) at the offices of NCRIC, Inc., 1115 30th Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20007 beginning at 9:30 a.m. on July 16, 2001 and continuing from day to day thereafter until completed.

The designated persons shall be prepared to testify on the following subjects:

1. The facts and reasons forming the basis for defendant's claims that any of the calculations or numbers in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) are incorrect or fail to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant.

2. The correct amounts that should be used or inserted in Columns A-E, lines 1-20 of the Exhibit A (attached to defendant's Answer to Interrogatories and Responses to Requests for Admissions) to comply with the terms, provisions, or formulas of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; and facts and reasons why these numbers are the proper amounts and calculations to be used in calculating the amount of premium due plaintiff under the contract.

3. The amounts of premium that should have been charged to defendant in each year of the contract and the amount, year, and method of calculation of any refund of premium defendant claims was due it.

4. The identity, terms, and facts concerning any contract, business relationship, or business expectancy between defendant and each of the doctors identified in paragraph 14-18 and 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

5. The specific actions and acts of plaintiff constituting the interference with the contracts between defendant and the doctors identified in paragraph 124 of defendant's amended counterclaims.

6. Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting malice toward defendant.

7. Acts or statements of plaintiff exhibiting any wanton or reckless disregard of the rights of defendant.

8. Source, substance, nature, duties and responsibilities of NICRIC as fiduciary for defendant and actions constituting breach of any fiduciary duty.

9. Identify, description, and calculation of damages suffered by acts alleged in each amended counterclaim count.

10. Defamatory actions or statements by plaintiff about defendant.

11. The matters concerning calculation of loss reserves, adjustments of loss reserves, positive loss experiences of defendant under the Plan, use of additional years in calculating premiums, and each element of the formula or requirements for reconciliation of premiums due under the Plan.

12. Allegations of errors by plaintiff made in paragraphs 38-41, 49 (second sentence), and 53 (second sentence) of the Amended counterclaims.

13. The bases for the allegations of plaintiff's knowledge about defendant's financial situation as alleged in paragraph 43 of the Amended counterclaims.

14. The specific errors, miscalculations and overstatements in the bill from plaintiff alleged in paragraphs 72 and 101 including the reasons and bases for the errors, and corrections required to make the bill accurate.

15. The facts supporting or related to the allegations of paragraph 73 that plaintiff attempted to gain leverage over defendant.

16. The search for new or replacement MMLI insurance with companies other than plaintiff during the period 1993 to date.

17. The negotiations and events between plaintiff and defendant alleged in paragraphs 83-88 including the factual bases for defendant's allegations of cancellation without justification, retaliation, and reneging.

18. The events and statements described in paragraph 89 of the Amended counterclaims.

19. The substance, nature, and scope of any harm caused to the defendant's reputation in the community caused by the action of plaintiff including the nature, bases, and calculation of any monetary damages sustained as a result of the harm.

20. The content of the rumors alleged in paragraphs 91 and 98 of the Amended counterclaims as well as the identities of the staff members originating and circulating the rumors.

21. Defendant's reputation in the medical community and community at large.

22. The facts and events described in paragraph 92 of the Amended counterclaims.

23. Identities of the physicians, staff, nurses, and executives described in paragraphs 91, 93, 96, and 98 of the amended counterclaims and the reasons for the actions of these persons described in those paragraphs.

24. Local media communications with defendant's personnel, doctors, staff, nurses, and executives in 1999-2000 concerning defendant's financial condition, loss of doctors and patients, closing of defendant's operations, and similar topics.

25. Recruitment of physicians and staff during 1990-2000.

26. Damages and injury to defendant's business and property as alleged in paragraph 109-110, 116-117, 122, 128, 134, 138, 146, 153, 158, 163, and 168 of the amended counterclaims.

27. Loss of revenue due to loss of patient referrals, including the numbers of patients and source of patients lost, the amount of revenue lost, the services, materials, supplies that would have been charges the lost patients, the gross and net profit on each item of service, material or supply which would have been provided to the lost patients.

28. The amount and calculation of defendant's claim of Return Premium due it from plaintiff from 1993 to date.

29. Causes of defendant's current insolvency and financial problems.

30. The relationship between the actions of plaintiff and any damages claimed to have been sustained by defendant.

31. Losses or damages proximately caused by harm to defendant's reputation.

32. Loss of revenues from the departure of Attending Faculty described in paragraph 97.

33. Identities of Attending Faculty of defendant for 1993 to date.

34. Physicians who0 had privileges at defendant but who have ceased referring patients to defendant or who have given up, abandoned, or relinquished their privileges from 1990 to date.

35. Identity of and reason for loss of physicians and staff from defendant from 1990 to date, including who, when, and why physicians and staff left or disassociated with defendant.

36. MMLI rates for OB/GYN physicians in D.C., Maryland, and Virginia from 1993 to date.

37. Actual patient referrals to defendant from 1993 to date identified by referring physician.

38. Expected numbers of patients referred by physicians and anticipated revenues from such patients for 1993 to date, including any studies, projections, or estimates made.

39. Actual revenues from patients described in subject matter paragraphs 37-38.

40. Basis for allegations of MMLI market domination by plaintiff in 1993 and thereafter.

41. Communications between defendant and plaintiff described in paragraphs 21 and 36 of the amended counterclaims.

42. Representations of plaintiff described in paragraphs 24, 29, 126, 142, 148, and 155 of the amended counterclaims including substance of representation, means of communication, author/speaker, recipient, and circumstances of communication.

43. Basis for allegations of plaintiff's knowledge described in paragraphs 21, 43, 125, and 131 of the amended counterclaims.

44. Audit requests by defendant to plaintiff and refusals by plaintiff to permit audits or provide information including substance of representation, means of communication, author/speaker, recipient, and circumstances of communication.

45. Actions exhibiting defendant's reliance on plaintiff as alleged in paragraphs 30, 36, and 42 of the amended counterclaims.

46. Factual basis for allegations in paragraphs 92 of the amended counterclaims regarding underwriting justifications.

47. Hiring and loss of staff from 1990 to date including facts and reasons for loss of each physician and staff member, including facts of difficulty in hiring and maintaining staff.

48. Morale of physicians and staff from 1993 to date.

49. Identities of senior executives leaving defendant from 1993 to date and the reasons/cause for the departures.

50. Communications between defendant and print, radio, television, or other electronic media and defendant, including officers, employees, and directors from 1993 to date.

51. Performances under the Plan prevented, excused or waived by plaintiff.

52. Facts concerning plaintiff's intent or intentional conduct as alleged in paragraphs 121, 126, 132, 151, and 161 of the amended counterclaims.

53. Nature, scope, and duration of defendant's business expectancies or advantages alleged in paragraph 130 of the amended counterclaims.

54. Actions of defendant to audit, verify, or check the accuracy of plaintiff's accountings or reconciliations.

55. Industry standards for Loss Reserves.

56. Concealment of facts by plaintiff from defendant including the identity and substance of the facts concealed, method/means/acts or concealment, persons concealing, and reasons for concealment.

57. Attorneys' fees claimed, expended, and incurred in the action, including the terms of all legal or other fee agreements, amounts billed, amounts paid, and amounts accrued or accounts payable by defendant.

58. Negotiations and discussions resulting in the Addenda and amendment of the contract between the parties in 1996, 1998, 1999, and 2000.

Re: Depositions: CHW designees

Dear Joe:

As you were leaving the deposition of Beaulieu, you mentioned something about further depositions of CHW designees on Friday. I am now about the leave the office for the day at 2:30 p.m. and will not be in Washington this evening. Therefore, since I have not heard from you about these depositions, they can no longer take place since I will not have time to prepare exhibits, etc.

If you have further designees, then we will have to take them on other days, including nights and weekends, if necessary.

Sincerely yours,

Roy I. Niedermayer

Re: NCRIC, Inc. v. Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc., Civil Action No. 0007308-00

Dear Roy:

I write in regard to your letter dated July 19, 2001. I regret that we were unable to schedule any of Columbia's designees before you left the office yesterday afternoon. I am willing to schedule any additional designees for another day, but not for nights or weekends.

At present, there are several additional topics on NCRIC's Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice – topics 41, 42, 43, & 45 – to which Columbia would not object to producing a witness. However, Columbia has no managing agents who are knowledgeable about the events to which these topics relate. As such, the information available to Columbia regarding these topics is contained solely in documents in its files. Further, Columbia has produced to NCRIC documents relating to topics 41, 42, 43, & 45, dating back to the date of the Retro Plan. As a result, any witness that Columbia may designate will have no more information other than can be gleaned – or surmised – from documents that Columbia already has produced to NCRIC.

Accordingly, I see no reason for Columbia to designate a witness to testify on these topics. If you wish, however, for Columbia to designate a witness to testify that, in fact, it does not currently have any knowledge about the documents it has produced to NCRIC, please let me know by close of business on July 23, so that I may prepare a witness to testify as such.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph K. Leahy

Q. -- does the hospital contend that NCRIC did not have the right to cancel the policy?

MR. LEAHY: Again, this is a legal conclusion. We've made an allegation in the complaint. I don't know why you are asking this. I'm going to -- I'm sorry. I take it back, take the objection back. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: I think Columbia has been, the policy on the clinic has been an insurance company dream. And if you cancel your dream you have to be doing it for retaliation. I think, yes, we think this has been done unfairly, unjustified, unmotivated other than as a retaliation for us not renewing the Retro plan or for succumbing to NCRIC's demand to help settle the Retro plan.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. Am I to understand your answer to the question is then that NCRIC didn't have a right to do that?

MR. LEAHY: Objection to the extent that that is a legal question.

16d-001001

MR. NIEDERMAYER: I'm only asking what his contention is. I asked what his contention was whether NCRIC had a right to do that. I'm asking whether his answer was meant to convey to me that NCRIC did not have a right to cancel the policy.

THE WITNESS: I do not think they have the right. When they are the major insurer company in Washington and they have chased all insurance companies out of the market, they cannot suddenly drop a hospital that is not-for-profit that serves the community from any insurance coverage while they have suffered no claims.

BY MR. NIEDERMAYER:

Q. So it's a moral obligation?

MR. LEAHY: Objection, relevance.

THE WITNESS: I think it's an obligation. In medicine obligations are obligations, whether they are moral or otherwise.

DEFENDANT'S OBJECTIONS AND RESPONSES TO PLAINTIFF'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES

COMES NOW Defendant, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Medical Center"), by and through its attorneys, Mark C. Hansen, Esquire, Steven F. Benz, Esquire, Joseph K. Leahy, Esquire, and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., and in response to Plaintiff's First Set of Interrogatories ("Plaintiff's Interrogatories"), propounded by Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), states as follows:

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

The following General Objections apply to each and every interrogatory and form an integral part of Medical Center's response to each interrogatory:

1. Defendant Medical Center objects to Plaintiff's Interrogatories insofar as they seek disclosure of information protected by the peer review privilege, the attorney-client privilege, the work-product privilege, the party-communication privilege or the investigative privilege. Medical Center further objects to Plaintiff's Interrogatories insofar as they call for information otherwise protected under the District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable law. Medical Center does not intend by these responses or objections, or by the inadvertent production of any privileged documents, to waive any protection to which it is entitled.

2. Medical Center objects to the numbering of Plaintiff's Interrogatories insofar as some of the interrogatories have "subparts" that constitute more than one interrogatory as defined by District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure 33(a).

3. Medical Center objects to Plaintiff's Interrogatories insofar as the information sought by such interrogatories is more appropriate for disclosure in deposition and can be more efficiently and less burdensomely obtained thereby.

4. Medical Center objects to Plaintiff's Interrogatories to the extent that they are vague, ambiguous, overly broad, burdensome, harassing, and/or not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence in this action.

5. Medical Center objects to Plaintiff's Interrogatories insofar as they seek information that is already in NCRIC's possession.

6. Medical Center objects to Plaintiff's Interrogatories insofar as they seek information not in Medical Center's possession.

7. Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to the litigation and anticipates that as the litigation proceeds, further information may be discovered. Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its objections and responses based on such pertinent information as it may subsequently discover.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS AND RESPONSES

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: State the names and addresses of any individuals who you know or believe have any information or knowledge of any matters concerning the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiff's claims, and (iii) your counterclaims, including as to each individual: what that information is (or you believe it to be), and whether the individual was an eye-witness or claims to have been eye-witnesses to the event(s) which is the subject of this litigation.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 1: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 1, and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client privilege and/or the work-product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. This interrogatory is vague and ambiguous because, among other reasons, it is not clear what event or events this Interrogatory refers to as "the subject of this litigation."

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds that it knows or believes that the following people possess knowledge or information concerning NCRIC's claim, Medical Center's defenses thereto, and/or Medical Center's counterclaims:

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Identify any individuals you intend to call at the trial of this matter and state the subject matter and information known as to each.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 2: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 2 insofar as it is premature at this early stage of the litigation. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds as follows: Medical Center has not presently identified any of the witnesses it expects to call at trial. The information sought by this Interrogatory will be provided at the time and in the form compliant with District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure 16.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3: Provide the name, address, title and phone number of all persons who investigated for you the matters concerning the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiff's claims, and (iii) your counterclaims, the dates of the investigation and describe what each person did. In the event that you claim any privilege exempts these from production, provide the information requested in Instruction 3.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 3: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 3, and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client privilege and/or the work-product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it is vague and ambiguous.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds as follows: The investigation on behalf of Medical Center was performed by counsel.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4: State the name and address of each and every expert whom you expect to call as an expert witness at trial, and as to each state:

(a) the subject matter on which the expert is expected to testify;
(b) the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify; and
(c) a summary of the grounds for each opinion.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 4: See General Objections. Medical Center objects to Interrogatory No. 4 insofar as it is premature at this stage of the litigation.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds as follows: Medical Center has not presently identified which experts, if any, it expects to call as witnesses at trial. The information sought by this Interrogatory will be provided at the time and in the form compliant with District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure 16.

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: Describe all of your oral communications with plaintiff and its agents or representatives concerning the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiff's claims, and (iii) your counterclaims.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 5: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 5 insofar as it seeks information that is more appropriately disclosed in a deposition and can be more efficiently and less burdensomely obtained thereby. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it seeks information in NCRIC's possession, and insofar as it seeks information not in Medical Center's possession.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will respond by producing selected non-privileged, business records pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 33(d).

INTERROGATORY NO. 6: State the method of calculation and factual bases for any monetary damages you claim against defendant by way of counterclaim, setoff, recoupment or otherwise.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 6: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 6, and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client privilege and/or the work-product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it seeks information in NCRIC's possession, and insofar as it seeks information not in Medical Center's possession.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds as follows: At this early point in the litigation, Medical Center has not yet completed the process of assessing and calculating its damages. At present, Medical Center is unable to accurately assess and calculate its damages because, among other reasons, it does not possess the data necessary to determine the exact amount NCRIC owes Medical Center pursuant to the alleged agreement between the parties ("the Plan"). Upon information and b1elief, this data is solely in NCRIC's possession. After Medical Center obtains this data, it will assess and calculate its damages, and supplement its response to this Interrogatory.

INTERROGATORY NO. 7: Identify by reference to interrogatory number they support, all documents which support your answers.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 7: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 7, and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client privilege and/or the work-product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar it is vague, ambiguous, overly broad and unduly burdensome. This Interrogatory is unclear because, without limitation: (1) it is not clear to what "answers" the Interrogatory refers and (2) the language "documents which support your answers" is unintelligible.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will respond by producing non-privileged documents that Medical Center or its representatives consulted or reviewed in the process of preparing these Interrogatories.

INTERROGATORY NO. 8: Identify each amount shown on the attached Exhibit A by reference to row/line and column which you contend is incorrect, overstated, or not accurate or the true amounts in any way (collectively defined as "incorrect").

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 8: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it is unduly burdensome, and insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. The Interrogatory is vague and ambiguous because, without limitation: it is not clear whether the Interrogatory seeks verification that the amounts shown on Exhibit A correctly reflect (1) the amounts that NCRIC represented to Medical Center were determined by the Plan and/or (2) the actual amounts set by the Plan. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it requests information not in Medical Center's possession, but rather, in NCRIC's possession. For example, upon information and belief, the data necessary to calculate most of the amounts shown on Exhibit A is in NCRIC's sole possession.

Medical Center also objects insofar as this Interrogatory is premature at this early stage in the litigation. Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to this litigation, and has not yet received any discovery from NCRIC. Accordingly, Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its response to this Interrogatory at any time, based on pertinent information it may subsequently discover in its continuing investigation.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds as follows: Attached hereto as Exhibit 1 is a photocopy of Exhibit A, overlaid by a grid to set off each column and row. The columns are labeled 1 through 20; the rows are labeled A through F. Each column except F corresponds to a one-year period that the Plan was in operation (e.g., Column A, which is labeled "Y94-95," corresponds to the period between September 1, 1994 to and August 31, 1995); Column F corresponds to the five-year period from September 1, 1994 to August 31, 1999. Each row corresponds to a specific term defined in the Plan or concept contemplated by the Plan (e.g., Row 2 corresponds to the term "Deposit Premium," as defined in the Plan; Row 5 corresponds to the concept of indemnity reserves contemplated by the Plan).

Medical Center contends that, for Columns B through F of Row 2; for Columns C through E in Row 12 ("Development Factor"); for each Column in Rows 13 ("Retrospective Premium"), 14 ("Return Premium" or "Additional Premium" due), and 16 (total "Return Premium" or "Additional Premium" less funds deposited by Medical Center); and for Column A of Rows 17

("Maximum Premium"), 18 ("Minimum Premium"), 19 (Maximum Premium multiplier) and 20 (Minimum Premium multiplier), the amount shown on Exhibit 1 is not the correct amount set by the Plan, for the term or concept corresponding to that row and the period corresponding to that column. Further, upon information and belief, for each column of Rows 5, 6 (corresponding to the concept of ALAE reserves), 7 (corresponding to the term "Loss Reserves") and 11 (Paid Losses plus Loss Reserves), the amount shown on Exhibit 1 is not the correct amount, for the term or concept corresponding to that row and the period corresponding to that column.

INTERROGATORY NO. 9: For each amount identified in your answer to Interrogatory No. 8, state:

a. The factual bases for your contention;
b. How or in what manner the amount is incorrect;
c. The correct amount for the amount you claim is incorrect; and
d. The method of calculation of the amount you claim is correct.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 9: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it is vague and ambiguous. Medical Center objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it requests information not in Medical Center's possession, but rather, in NCRIC's possession. Upon information and belief, the data necessary to calculate most of the amounts shown on Exhibit A is in NCRIC's sole possession.

Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it is premature at this early stage in the litigation. Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to this litigation, and has not yet received any discovery from NCRIC. Accordingly, Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its response to this Interrogatory at any time, based on pertinent information it may subsequently discover in its continuing investigation.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds, based on the facts presently known to it, as follows:

(1) For Medical Center's factual bases for contending, in its response to Interrogatory No. 8, that certain amounts shown on Exhibit 1 are incorrect, see Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims, including inter alia paragraphs 27 through 43 and 46 through 54 thereof.

(2) For each column of Rows 1, 2, 4, 5 through 11, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of Exhibit 1, Medical Center does not possess the data necessary to calculate the correct amount, set by the Plan, for the term or concept corresponding to the row and the period corresponding to the column. Upon information and belief, such data is in NCRIC's sole possession. Until Medical Center obtains this data, it cannot determine how and in what manner the amounts referred to in its response to Interrogatory No. 8 are incorrect.

(3) The correct amount, set by the Plan, for the term corresponding to Row 12 of Exhibit 1 is: "80%" for the period corresponding to Column C; "65%" for the period corresponding to Column D; and "55%" for the period corresponding to Column E. Under the Plan, the correct amount for the term corresponding to Row 19, for the period corresponding to Column A, is "1.33"; for that same period, the correct amount for the term corresponding to Row 20 is ".60". For each column of Rows 1, 2, 4, 5 through 11, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of Exhibit 1, Medical Center does not possess the data necessary to calculate the correct amount, set by the Plan, for the term or concept corresponding to the row and the period corresponding to the column.

(4) Despite lacking the data necessary to calculate many amounts set by the Plan, Medical Center determined that NCRIC's miscalculations of some amounts shown on Exhibit 1 resulted in part from its improper application of the retro formula under the Plan. See Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims, including inter alia paragraphs 39 through 41, and 45 through 54.

NCRIC's miscalculations of the retro formula include, without limitation:

(a) The Plan dictates that the amount for the term corresponding to Row 2 must be calculated by applying a multiplier. The proper multiplier is .67 for the periods corresponding to Columns C through F, and ((.81 * 1/3) +(.67 * 2/3)) for the period corresponding to Column B. NCRIC applied an incorrect multiplier, approximately .62, when calculating all the amounts in Columns B through F of Row 2, thereby miscalculating each corresponding amount in Row 2. As a result, NCRIC also improperly calculated the amounts in Column F of Rows 14 and 16, which are all based in part on the miscalculated amounts in Columns B through F of Row 2.

(b) The Plan dictates that the amount for the term corresponding to Rows 13 and 14 must be calculated by applying a multiplier corresponding to Row 12. As set forth above, the multiplier shown in Columns C through E of Row 12 is incorrect. NCRIC applied this incorrect multiplier in calculating each amount in Columns C through E of Rows 13 and 14, thereby miscalculating each such amount. As a result, NCRIC also improperly calculated the amount in Column F of Rows 13, 14 and 16, which are all based in part on the miscalculated amounts in Rows 13 and 14.

(c) The Plan dictates that the amounts for the term corresponding to Row 17 must be calculated by applying a multiplier corresponding to Row 19, and that the amounts for the term corresponding to Row 18 must be calculated by applying a multiplier corresponding to Row 20. As set forth above, the multiplier shown in Column A of Rows 19 and 20 is incorrect. NCRIC applied this incorrect multiplier in calculating each amount in Column A of Rows 17 and 18, and thereby miscalculated each such amount. As a result, NCRIC also improperly calculated the amounts in Column F of Row 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18, all of which are based in part on the amounts in Column A of Rows 17 and 18.

(d) The Plan dictates that the amount for the term corresponding to Column F of Row 16 must be calculated based in part on data from the period between September 1, 1993 and August 31, 1994. NCRIC did not include such data (which is not shown on Exhibit 1) in its calculations of Column F of Row 16. As a result, NCRIC miscalculated that amount.

INTERROGATORY NO. 10: State the factual bases supporting any denial by you of any allegation of the complaint and identify any documents on which you rely to support your denial.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 10: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 10, and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client privilege and/or the work-product privilege. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar it is vague, ambiguous, overly broad and unduly burdensome.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds by referring NCRIC to the detailed allegations set forth in Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims, including but not limited to the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 20 through 55. Medical Center also will respond by producing non-privileged documents that Medical Center or its representatives consulted or referred to in preparing its Answer and Counterclaims.

INTERROGATORY NO. 11: State the factual bases supporting and related to any affirmative defense you raise in your answer to the complaint.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 11: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 11 insofar it is vague, ambiguous, overly broad and unduly burdensome. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it requests information that is not in Medical Center's possession, and insofar as it requests information that is in NCRIC's possession.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds by referring NCRIC to the detailed allegations set forth in Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims, including but not limited to the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 20 through 63.

INTERROGATORY NO. 12: State the factual bases for each allegation made by you, and identify all documents supporting, concerning or related to, any counterclaim, setoff, or recoupment you assert or allege against plaintiff.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 12: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 12 insofar it is vague, ambiguous, overly broad and unduly burdensome.

Medical Center also objects insofar as this Interrogatory is premature at this early stage in the litigation. Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to this litigation, and has not yet received any discovery from NCRIC. Accordingly, Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its response to this Interrogatory at any time, based on pertinent information it may subsequently discover in its continuing investigation.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds by referring NCRIC to the detailed allegations in Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims. Medical Center also will respond by producing selected non-privileged, business records pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 33(d).

INTERROGATORY NO. 13: If you contend that you do not owe the amount of money claimed by plaintiff in the complaint, describe each and every factual or legal basis for your contention.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 13: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 13 insofar it is vague, ambiguous, overly broad and unduly burdensome. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it requests information not in Medical Center's possession, but rather, in NCRIC's possession.

Medical Center also objects insofar as this Interrogatory is premature at this early stage in the litigation. Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to this litigation, and has not yet received any discovery from NCRIC. Accordingly, Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its response to this Interrogatory at any time, based on pertinent information it may subsequently discover in its continuing investigation.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds by referring NCRIC to the detailed allegations in Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims.

INTERROGATORY NO. 14: Describe each and every factual basis for your denial of any admission requested of you by plaintiff.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 14: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 14 insofar it is vague, ambiguous, overly broad and unduly burdensome. Medical Center also objects to this Interrogatory insofar as it requests information not in Medical Center's possession, but rather, in NCRIC's possession.

Medical Center also objects insofar as this Interrogatory is premature at this early stage in the litigation. Medical Center has not yet completed its investigation relating to this litigation, and has not yet received any discovery from NCRIC. Accordingly, Medical Center reserves the right to modify or supplement its response to this Interrogatory at any time, based on pertinent information it may subsequently discover in its continuing investigation.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center responds by referring NCRIC to the detailed allegations set forth in Medical Center's Answer and Counterclaims and to its Objections and Response to Plaintiff's First Request for Admissions.

INTERROGATORY NO. 15: Describe all of your oral communications with persons other than plaintiff and its agents or representatives, including Michael Feldman, concerning the subject matter of (i) this action, (ii) your defenses to plaintiff's claims, and (iii) your counterclaims.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 15: See General Objections. Medical Center specifically objects to Interrogatory No. 15, and will not respond thereto insofar as it seeks disclosure of information protected by the attorney-client and/or the work-product privileges.

Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Medical Center will respond by producing selected non-privileged, business records pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 33(d).

CONSENT MOTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS TO FINALIZE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached proposed Order temporarily staying this action, and as grounds for such Order state:

1. The parties have made great strides towards settling the above-captioned action. The parties are in the process of drafting a Settlement Agreement, and expect that they will need one week from the date of this motion to finalize the Settlement Agreement.

2. In light of the parties' strides towards settlement, they hereby agree that all discovery and other proceedings in this action should be stayed for one week, effective immediately, so that they may focus their efforts on reaching a settlement.

3. The parties also agree that, once the stay expires, each date listed in the current scheduling Order (September 28, 2001) that relates to discovery (i.e., all dates up through and including December 13, 2001) should be amended automatically by adding one week; and that, once the stay expires, every other date listed in the current scheduling Order (i.e., all dates on or after December 20, 2001) should be amended automatically by adding two weeks.

4. The requested temporary stay will save the parties the time and expense of litigating this matter while the settlement agreement is drafted; and will save judicial resources.

5. The foregoing constitutes good cause for temporarily staying discovery and all other proceedings in this action, as described above, and for amending the current scheduling Order as described above.

WHEREFORE, the parties ask the Court to grant the Consent Motion to Stay Proceedings To Finalize Settlement Agreement and enter the proposed Order.

CONSENT MOTION TO AMEND SCHEDULING ORDER

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") and Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by their undersigned counsel, hereby jointly move for the entry of the attached proposed Third Amended Scheduling Order, and as grounds for such order state:

1. The parties have not been able to finalize a settlement agreement at this time. The parties continue to work towards finalizing a settlement, but agree that the above-captioned action must move forward in case a settlement cannot be reached.

2. The parties agree that, due to their ongoing settlement negotiations (which continued in earnest beyond the period set by the most recent stay), the current scheduling order does not provide sufficient time to complete all currently-scheduled depositions and related discovery. As such, the parties agree that the current scheduling order should be amended.

3. The parties agree that the following schedule will provide sufficient time for all currently-scheduled depositions and related discovery, and for continued settlement negotiations:

Deadline	Current	As Amended
Non-expert, non-party depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	12/13/01	1/17/02
Rule 30(b)(6) depositions first noticed prior to 8/13/01 discovery deadline shall be completed:	12/13/01	1/17/02
Expert depositions completed:	12/20/01	1/17/02

Deadline	Current	As Amended
All discovery closes:	12/20/02	1/24/02
Dispositive motions filed:	1/3/02	1/31/02
Oppositions to dispositive motions filed:	1/31/02	2/28/02
Replies to oppositions to dispositive motions filed:	2/18/02	3/18/02
Dispositive motions decided:	4/11/02	5/9/02
Confidential Settlement Statement due:	4/22/02	5/19/02
ADR:	T.B.D.[1]	T.B.D.
Pretrial:	T.B.D.	T.B.D.

4. The foregoing constitutes good cause for amending the current scheduling order.

WHEREFORE, the parties ask the Court to grant the Consent Motion to Amend Scheduling Order and enter the proposed Order.

NCRIC, INC., Plaintiff, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Defendant.	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar # 8 – Judge Davis Next Event: Certain Depositions Completed 1/17/01

NCRIC'S REPLY IN SUPPORT OF ITS MOTION FOR A PROTECTIVE ORDER

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") submits this Reply Brief in Support of its Motion for a Protective Order. NCRIC seeks a Protective Order barring Defendant, Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), from deposing NCRIC's corporate designees with regard to certain subject matters identified in Columbia's Rule 30(b)(6) notice of deposition. Notwithstanding Columbia's protestations, the subject matters at issue are inappropriate, irrelevant, and unduly burdensome. Specifically, NCRIC responds to Columbia's Opposition with respect to each subject matter at issue as follows:

I. Subject Matter 19 -- Seeking Premiums for Each individual Attending Faculty Member

Subject Matter 19 is duplicative of prior discovery and requires an unduly burdensome amount of preparation for NCRIC to provide a designee to testify regarding the premiums and discounts for each individual Attending Faculty physician for the past nine years -- from 1993 to the present. NCRIC has already produced numerous underwriting files for each Attending Faculty member, thus providing Columbia with all the information requested in this subject matter. In addition, as Columbia admits, NCRIC has produced a compilation spreadsheet calculating the Subject Premium. See Columbia's Opp. at 2. Any testimony by a designee on this topic would be repetitive and basically consist of a word-for-word recitation of the contents of the documents already produced to Columbia. It is just not physically possible to prepare a NCRIC corporate designee to be capable to intelligently discuss the individual premiums and discounts for each physician for the past nine years -- particularly when documents containing this information have already been produced.

In its Opposition, Columbia contends that subject matter 19 is not unduly burdensome because it seeks merely an explanation of the files previously produced and an inquiry into whether any other compilations of individual premiums exist. Id. First, the plain language of the Rule 30(b)(6) notice does not request an explanation of the individual underwriting files, but testimony specifically regarding the amount of the premiums, discounts, and amounts billed to each individual Attending Faculty member. If Columbia seeks a designee who can testify as to how the information in the underwriting files is compiled and maintained, it should specifically designate such a topic so that NCRIC may make the appropriate designation, and objections if needed.

Finally, as illustrated in the deposition testimony of Mr. Fargis attached to the Opposition as Exhibit B, Columbia has already inquired into the existence of other documents which compile individual premium information, and requested production of any such documents which exist on NCRIC's computer system. See Fargis Dep. at 516-17. This line of questioning is duplicative not only of written discovery produced to Columbia, but also deposition testimony by Mr. Fargis, in which Columbia had an opportunity to explore this subject. Therefore, there remains no legitimate basis for this subject matter as a deposition topic.

II. Subject Matters 21 and 24 -- Seeking Industry Standards for the Application of Development Factors and Calculation of Loss Reserves

Columbia's arguments do not negate NCRIC's grounds for a protective order with respect to subject matter 21. Columbia's Opposition states that "if NCRIC possess information related to topic 21...that information is discoverable." See Columbia Opp. at 3. Columbia may indeed be technically correct, but the point for purposes of this motion, is that this information regarding industry standards for the application of development factors under other retrospective rating plans is simply not within the knowledge of NCRIC for which it could designate a witness to testify. As explained in NCRIC's motion, this information will be the subject of an expert witness which Columbia may choose to depose. It is improper and impractical to require NCRIC to designate a corporate representative to testify as to an area which he or she is not necessarily competent.

Subject matter 24 also seeks information about industry standards, this time regarding the calculation of loss reserves. However, this subject matter goes a step further and seeks information regarding "rules, regulations, guidelines, standards or procedures governing the calculation of loss reserves by insurance companies in the District of Columbia." In addition to the objections above with regard to subject matter 21 which also apply here, this request clearly seeks testimony of a legal nature.

NCRIC's compliance with D.C. law regarding the calculation of loss reserves is a question of law, not a topic appropriate for a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition. This topic effectively requires NCRIC to designate a legal officer to testify as to his or her professional legal opinion on these matters. Even if such a designation could be made, and NCRIC doubts it could effectively do so, any effort to attempt to educate such a designee would compromise the attorney-client privilege, such that any such knowledge would be protected from disclosure to Columbia.

Columbia argues in its Opposition that NCRIC would not have to provide legal analysis in response to this subject matter and suggests that, for example, NCRIC could testify only as to its own corporate understanding of what laws govern such calculations. See Columbia Opp. at 3. Yet, a legal analysis is required to reach an understanding of what laws govern NCRIC's calculation of loss reserves. Moreover, Columbia's obligation to provide specific topics for NCRIC to designate appropriate individuals for testimony requires more notice than simply an example of what testimony could be required. In order for NCRIC to designate a witness and properly object where needed, Columbia must more specifically explain what testimony it seeks. Subject matter 24 is inappropriate as it seeks legal analysis and opinion.

III. Subject Matter 31 -- Seeking Information Regarding Other Locations For Which NCRIC has Refused to Provide or Canceled Insurance Coverage

Subject matter 31 seeks information wholly outside the scope of NCRIC's relationship with Columbia and requests testimony regarding NCRIC's confidential relationships with other business partners. Columbia's Opposition contends that such information is relevant to show that NCRIC discriminated against physicians practicing at Columbia's clinic. See Columbia's Opp. at 3-4. Notably, however, there is no discrimination claim at issue in this case. Columbia's link to its breach of fiduciary duty claim is too attenuated to outweigh the interests in protecting confidential business information and trade secrets of non-parties in this action. NCRIC's duties to maintain the confidentiality of the information negotiated with these third party business partners warrants a protective order on subject 31.

IV. Subject Matter 33 -- Seeking Information Regarding Discounts on Premiums Provided to Attending Faculty Members

Subject matter 33 overlaps with subject matter 19 to the extent both seek testimony regarding individual discounts on premiums for Attending Faculty members. NCRIC's arguments regarding the repetitive and burdensome nature of subject matter 19 apply equally here. Columbia puts forward that information regarding the five-percent discount is relevant to an alleged motive for NCRIC to misapply the Deposit Premium factor. See Columbia's Opp. at 4. However, NCRIC has not sought a protective order on the grounds that this topic is irrelevant. NCRIC's motion is warranted based upon the undue burden of attempting to prepare a corporate designee to testify concerning a subject area and the fact that this information has previously been provided to Columbia. Moreover, Columbia's designation seeking information regarding "Columbia's knowledge of that discount" makes no sense, as NCRIC cannot be expected to designate a witness to testify to Columbia's knowledge.

For the foregoing reasons, this Court should grant NCRIC's Motion for a Protective Order and prevent NCRIC from being required to put forward designees on Columbia's subject matters 19, 21, 24, 31 and 33.

NCRIC'S REPLY IN SUPPORT OF ITS MOTIONS TO COMPEL DESIGNATIONS AND DEPOSITION TESTIMONY

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") submits this Reply in Support of its Motions to Compel Rule 30(b)(6) Designations and Deposition Testimony. The opposition filed by Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia") fails to provide a legally sufficient reason why it should be excused from designating witnesses to testify about discoverable issues raised in its own counterclaim and why work-product protection should shield factual issues from NCRIC that are absolutely discoverable during a deposition. NCRIC responds to Columbia's Opposition to both motions jointly in this Reply Brief.

I. NCRIC's Motion to Compel Discovery by Designation under SCR 30(b)(6) and Appearance at Deposition.

A. Topics Designated for Testimony are not Impermissible "Contention" Questions.

Columbia's Opposition argues it is relieved from designating witnesses for topics 5-7, 10, 13, 52 and 56 contained in NCRIC's Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice because NCRIC seeks "Columbia's contentions, not its evidence," which impermissibly treads upon the work product privilege. See Columbia's Opp. at 7 (emphasis in original). Despite Columbia's attempt to fashion a rule barring such inquiries during a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition, there is no governing law in D.C. which precludes such questioning. Moreover, the particular topics at issue in this case seek no more than underlying facts which are not protected by the work product privilege. These topics are proper for a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition for which Columbia must designate a witness or witnesses competent to testify.

Columbia argues that these topics are "contention-style" inquiries which necessarily require testimony about the legal consequences of facts, and therefore these inquiries have been held inappropriate for Rule 30(b)(6) depositions. See Columbia's Opp. at 7-9. This argument fails for many reasons. D.C. courts have never created a rule which bars the use of contention-style questions in depositions. Columbia relies on flawed logic when it infers such a prohibition because Rule 33 explicitly permits contention interrogatories, while Rule 26 and 30 are silent on the issue of "contention-style" questions in depositions. See Columbia's Opp. at 8. The only D.C. case cited by Columbia, American National Red Cross v. Travelers Indemnity Company, 896 F. Supp. 8 (D.D.C. 1995), involved the deposition of an attorney where the court held general questions requesting the attorney to identify "all facts and documents" which supported defendant's defenses were properly objectionable on the basis of the work product privilege. Id. at 8. Nowhere in this case does the court rely upon, or even mention, a per se rule against "contention-style" depositions in D.C. Thus, Columbia's argument that these questions are per se prohibited fails.

Even if this Court were to look upon the cases cited by Columbia as persuasive authority from other jurisdictions, these cases themselves do not apply a blanket prohibition against "contention-style" questioning at Rule 30(b)(6) depositions. Instead, these courts evaluated the specific facts and circumstances of their cases to determine whether a particular line of questioning regarding a party's allegations was more properly presented through interrogatories as opposed to Rule 30(b)(6) deposition testimony. See, e.g., Exxon Research and Engineering Co. v. U.S., 44 Fed. Cl. 597, 601 (Fed. Cl. 1999) ("Whether a 30(b)(6) deposition or contention interrogatories are more appropriate is decided on the facts of each case."). The cases cited by Columbia held that, in those cases, contention interrogatories were more appropriate than "contention-style" deposition questioning - not that such deposition questions were per se improper. Many of these cases involved the deposition of counsel for the party involved where privilege and work product concerns must be balanced against the availability of the information through other means. See, e.g., SEC v. Morelli, 143 F.R.D. 42, 47 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (refusing to allow deposition of SEC attorney); EEOC v. HBE Corp., 157 F.R.D. 465, 466 (E.D. Mo. 1994) (refusing to allow 30(b)(6) deposition of EEOC attorneys); U.S. v. District Council of New York City, No. 90 CIV 5722, 1992 WL 208284, *12 (S.D.N.Y. August 18, 1992) (refusing to compel testimony of FBI agent under 30(b)(6) notice to U.S. Attorney's Office). NCRIC does not seek to depose Columbia's counsel, nor are there other unique circumstances in this case which would dictate the use of contention interrogatories in place of deposition questioning.

Moreover, topics 5-7, 10, 13, 52 and 56 seek specific facts from the corporate deponent, not open-ended, all encompassing, questions such as those at issue as "contention-style" inquiries in the cases cite by Columbia. See, e.g., McCormick-Morgan, Inc. v. Teledyne Industries, 134 F.R.D. 275, 286 (N.D. Cal. 1991) (refusal to answer 30(b)(6) designation which would require one witness to testify to all evidence that tended to support party's case). For example, NCRIC is entitled to ask a fact witness about the alleged specific acts which interfered with the relationship between Columbia and its doctors (topic 5), alleged malicious acts taken by

NCRIC (topic 6), alleged defamatory statements made by NCRIC as well as acts taken by NCRIC (topic 10), and what facts were allegedly concealed from Columbia (topic 56). These questions do not seek the legal analysis and legal theory which Columbia's counsel might use to show these facts constitute a legal wrong, just simply the underlying occurrences which give rise to the dispute between the parties. See Protective Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Commonwealth Ins. Co., 137 F.R.D. 267, 281-83 (D. Neb. 1989) (granting motion to compel 30(b)(6) witness to testify as to what facts supported particular allegations in an answer and counterclaim and refusing to require contention interrogatories instead). As explained below in Section II, such underlying facts are not protected by the work product privilege and are the proper subject of deposition questioning for fact witnesses. In this case, there is no danger of impinging upon that privilege as was present in the cases cited by Columbia in its Opposition.

NCRIC has an absolute right to obtain in discovery the facts which support Columbia's counterclaims in order to prepare a meaningful defense. Columbia has not provided such information in its interrogatories, as the response to an interrogatory requesting the factual basis for the counterclaims simply referred NCRIC to the allegations in Columbia's Answer and Counterclaim.[1/] See Defendant's Objections and Responses to Plaintiff's Interrogatories at 15, Interrogatory No. 12 (attached to Columbia's Opp. as Exhibit J). Columbia's argument against "contention-style" questioning is just another deliberate attempt to avoid testifying as to their own counterclaims. Columbia wields allegations of malice, breach of fiduciary duty and bad faith, but thwarts NCRIC's attempts to discover the factual basis for these claims. These questions are proper for a 30(b)(6) witness to testify about, and such testimony should be compelled.

[1/]Columbia's interrogatories failed to adequately provide NCRIC with the identities of third party witnesses who had information regarding the allegedly defamatory statements. The general phrase "Failed 2000 Renewal Negotiations and NCRIC's Cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy" does not notify NCRIC that any such individuals have knowledge of the allegedly defamatory statements. If Columbia is now stating that individuals so designated do have such information, NCRIC will proceed with noticing their depositions.

B. The Remaining Topics in the Motion to Compel are Proper

Columbia argues that the remaining topics listed in NCRIC's Motion to Compel are either moot or seek legal conclusions and are therefore improper. Columbia is mistaken.[2/]

With regard to topics 1-3, 8, 11-12, 14, 28 and 51, these topics seek merely the basis for Columbia's claims for damages in the counterclaim, not legal conclusions or opinions. For example, NCRIC has a right to ask for an explanation of a chart provided by Columbia in response to an interrogatory (topics 1-2), and ask follow up factual questions regarding other interrogatory responses which state that NCRIC committed errors in calculations of bills and premiums (topics 11-12, 14). Moreover, topics 8 and 51 do not seek legal analysis or contractual interpretation, but merely testimony as to the parties' understanding of the terms of the contracts. Such is a clearly permissible area of inquiry for a corporate fact witnesses who can testify to negotiations and discussions surrounding the understandings of the terms of the contract between the parties.

II. NCRIC's Motion to Compel Columbia's Designated Witnesses to Answer Questions Properly Posed at Deposition

A. NCRIC's Motion to Compel Testimony is Not Moot

As a threshold matter, Columbia argues in its Opposition that NCRIC's motion is moot because, despite the work product objections and instructions issued by counsel at the depositions, the witnesses have in fact testified fully. See Columbia's Opp. at 10. The alleged basis of Columbia's work product objections and instructions at the depositions was that any information the witnesses might have obtained from counsel was protected by the work product privilege. See Columbia's Opp. at 10. However, Columbia's counsel's affidavit states that he, as the investigating attorney and the attorney who prepared the 30(b)(6) witnesses for deposition, never provided the witnesses with any information or facts on the questions objected to during the opposition. See Leahy Aff. at 1 (attached to Columbia's Opp. as Exhibit E). Such a statement suggests that the objections made during the deposition were not made in good faith and that no grounds for asserting the work product privilege exist. If this is the case, then NCRIC's motion should be granted, as any concerns about work product privilege are alleviated per counsel's affidavit.

[2/] NCRIC acknowledges that Columbia's claim for attorneys' fees was dismissed by this Court; thus it agrees that the Motion to Compel a designee on topic 57 is moot.

Additionally, the motion is not moot, as NCRIC has a right to ask the deponents these questions and receive an answer without objection and instructions by counsel. If the deponents answer that they have no knowledge of the facts inquired about, then that is the sworn answer that NCRIC will accept as move for summary judgment on that basis. Columbia cannot hide behind these apparently groundless objections raised in previous depositions to avoid questions which go directly to its own claims.

B. Work Product Privilege Does Not Protect Underlying Facts.

If NCRIC's motion is not granted on the basis of Columbia's counsel's effective admission that the work product privilege objections during the depositions were baseless, the law of work product clearly states that the types of questions objected to in this case are not protected by the privilege and must be answered in deposition. Courts have repeatedly interpreted Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495 (1947), as not supporting a work product objection to inquiries regarding facts underlying a party's allegations. See, e.g., Lance v. Ginsburg, 32 F.R.D. 51, 52 (E.D. Pa. 1962) ("It is no answer to say that the facts constituting the basis for the conclusionary [sic] allegations are within the knowledge of counsel."); U.S. v. District Council of New York City, No. 90 CIV 5722, 1992 WL 208284, *11 (S.D.N.Y. August 18, 1992) (holding "facts relevant to the claims which are known by a party and the identity of persons and documents with information relevant to the issues" are not protected by the work product doctrine). Columbia cannot refuse to answer on the basis that the underlying facts are protected by the work product protection if the attorney communicates those facts to a witness during preparation for a deposition. See O'Donnell v. Breuninger, 9 F.R.D. 245, 246 (D.D.C. 1949) ("no immunity exists which enables a plaintiff to refuse to answer a material and relevant question of fact put by opposing counsel, merely on the ground that his information came from or through his attorney."); Protective Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Commonwealth Ins. Co, 137 F.R.D. 267, 280 (D. Neb. 1989) ("there is simply nothing wrong with asking for facts from a deponent even though those facts may have been communicated to the deponent by deponent's counsel.").[3/]

As illustrated by the deposition testimony excerpts attached to NCRIC's motion, the questions to which Columbia's counsel asserted work product privilege did not seek any insight into counsel's mental impressions or strategy in the case. These questions asked the witness to identify the substance of what statements were made by NCRIC (e.g. Rifka Dep. at 95), to whom such statements were made (e.g. Rifka Dep. at 115), the content of statements made by NCRIC at a meeting to which the deponent personally attended (e.g. Rifka Dep. at 124),

[3/] Again, Columbia asserts that such a work product privilege objection is appropriate in the face of "contention-style" deposition questions. However, as discussed in Section I above, these questions are acceptable and do not impinge upon any privilege.

16d-001069

the names of physicians attending a particular meeting (e.g. Rifka Dep. at 131), a description of damages suffered by Columbia (e.g. Wilson Dep. at 140), and other such basic factual questions. These are facts which Columbia must present and prove at trial with non-privileged testimony in order to succeed on its counterclaims. NCRIC is entitled to pursue this information in discovery in order to present an adequate defense at trial. Columbia's work product objection is without merit and the deponents should be compelled to testify.

NCRIC must be allowed to prosecute its case and defend against the myriad of counterclaims alleged by Columbia by deposing Columbia's witnesses regarding the facts which form the basis for their claims and the alleged damages at issue. There is no work product privilege concern which precludes Columbia's answering of these questions. The Motions to Compel should be granted.

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Comes now Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), and moves this Court for summary judgment with respect to Count I (Breach of Contract), the sole count of the Amended Complaint for Damages filed by Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"). In particular, Columbia moves this court to:

1. Enter judgment as a matter of law for Columbia on NCRIC's sole claim, Count I (Breach of Contract) of the Amended Complaint for Damages;

2. Grant summary judgment with respect to Count I (Breach of Contract) of Defendant's Amended Answer and Counterclaims; and set this case for trial on damages; and

3. Grant partial summary judgment on Count I of the Amended Complaint and Count I of the Amended Answer, with respect to the calculation of the Minimum Premium factor, the Deposit Premium factors, and the application of the Development Factors.

A Memorandum in support of this Motion and a proposed Order are attached hereto.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby states as follows in support of Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment:

Preliminary Statement

Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc, a wealthy insurance company that recently steered a large group of doctors away from Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), has filed a multi-million dollar breach of contract lawsuit against Columbia, in an apparent effort to drive the struggling not-for-profit hospital out of business. But NCRIC's claim is belied by the unambiguous language of the contract at issue, the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Retro Plan" or "Plan"), as well as by NCRIC's own conduct.

Columbia does not owe NCRIC any money under the Retro Plan because, as NCRIC freely admits, the parties subsequently agreed that neither party would owe premium except for "closed" years – and, the only closed years are those for which NCRIC owes premium. As such, NCRIC owes money to Columbia (Point I, infra). Even in the absence of that agreement, Columbia would not be required to pay any money because NCRIC, the Plan's bookkeeper, failed to notify Columbia of the amount of premium due, as required by the Plan (Point II, infra). Finally, NCRIC's demand is overstated because NCRIC misapplied several terms defined in the Plan (Point III, infra). Hence, this Court should enter an order granting summary judgment for Columbia, both on its contract claim and on NCRIC's contract claim. Alternatively, this Court should enter an order limiting how NCRIC may calculate any premium owed by Columbia.

Factual Background

A. Retro Plan

Columbia, a non-profit hospital specializing in care for women, and NCRIC, a provider of malpractice liability insurance to physicians in the District of Columbia, entered into the Retro Plan on or about October 23, 1993. See Defendant's Statement of Material Facts Not In Dispute ("SMF") ¶¶ 1-3. As originally drafted by NCRIC, see id. ¶ 4, the Plan ran for three years, from September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1996. See id. ¶ 5. According to NCRIC, three addenda to the Plan – with effective dates of September 1, 1996, September 1, 1998 and September 1, 1999, respectively – extended the Plan through September 1, 2000. See id. ¶ 8.

The Retro Plan allows Columbia and NCRIC to share the risk of sponsoring a discount on medical malpractice liability insurance for physicians who practice at Columbia ("Attending Faculty"). Under the Plan, Attending Faculty members receive a substantial discount, each year, on their premiums for $500,000 in NCRIC medical malpractice liability coverage. See id. ¶ 10. NCRIC, the Plan's bookkeeper, then calculates the total cost of providing the relevant level of malpractice insurance coverage (i.e., including administrative costs, defending malpractice claims, payment for judgments or settlements, and setting aside reserves to pay future claims) to the Attending Faculty. This calculation is retrospective because, each year, NCRIC recalculates the cost for every preceding year (except the most recent), and compares that cost to the amount of premium NCRIC received from the Attending Faculty. If the cost of providing the malpractice insurance to the Attending Faculty exceeds the total amount of premium NCRIC received, Columbia must pay the difference, up to a set maximum. If the Attending Faculty paid NCRIC more than it cost to provide them with the malpractice coverage, NCRIC must pay Columbia a refund, as limited by a set minimum. See generally SMF Exh. 1, at Exh. A.

B. Reconciliations

The Retro Plan requires NCRIC to perform its retrospective calculation – known as a Reconciliation – once each year, as of the Reconciliation Date, September 1. Reconciliations are to occur annually from September 1, 1996 until all claims for all years of the Plan are closed. See SMF ¶ 17. For the purposes of a Reconciliation, each year of the Plan is assessed separately to determine whether, for that year, Columbia owes NCRIC money or vice versa. See id. ¶ 18. The amount due for each individual year is listed on a spreadsheet, and all of the years are tallied to reach a cumulative total. See id. NCRIC is to notify Columbia in writing, within 60 days of each Reconciliation Date, of any amount that Columbia owes. See id. This amount is due and payable 30 days from the date that Columbia receives such notice. See id.

C. Terms

To perform each Reconciliation, NCRIC must apply a number of terms defined in the Plan, including those explained below. Three terms – Minimum Premium, Deposit Premium and Development Factors – are the focus of the contractual dispute between Columbia and NCRIC.[1] [1] Columbia also contests NCRIC's calculation of several other terms, including Subject Premium and Loss Reserves. These terms are expected to be an issue at trial.

16d-001086

Subject Premium is "the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician[s] for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim . . . if the physician[s] were not Plan Participants." SMF ¶ 20. For reasons unimportant to this discussion, all premiums under the Retro Plan are calculated by applying multipliers to the Subject Premium.

Attending Faculty discount is the percent discount on the premium for $500,000 in medical malpractice liability coverage (i.e., the Subject Premium). At the outset of the Plan, the discount was 19% of the Subject Premium. See id. ¶ 11. The discount was later increased to 33% of the Subject Premium, effective September 1, 1995. See id. ¶ 12.[2] (The increase was explicitly not retroactive, see id. ¶ 13 – meaning, Attending Faculty members did not obtain a refund from NCRIC for premium they had paid during the previous two years.)

Deposit Premium is currently is "the Subject Premium multiplied by sixty-seven (67%)." See id. ¶ 24. In a Reconciliation, the Deposit Premium for each Experience Period represents the total amount that the Attending Faculty "deposit" with NCRIC under the Plan. This means that the multiplier used to calculate the Deposit Premium is necessarily the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount. In the original version of the Plan, the Attending Faculty discount was 19% of the Subject Premium, so the Deposit Premium was 81% of the Subject Premium. See id. ¶ 25. Later, when the Retro Plan was amended, effective September 1, 1995, to increase the Attending Faculty discount to 33%, the Deposit Premium was changed to 67%.[3] See id. ¶ 24.

[2] A later amendment, effective September 1, 1998, confirmed that the new discount was 33%, and further, that the change did not apply to "to the first two years of the Plan." SMF ¶ 13.

[3] The Deposit Premium actually changed in January 1996. However, the change was applied in a way that its effect was the same as if it had occurred in September 1995. See SMF ¶¶ 25-28.

Retrospective Premium ("Retro Premium") represents, for each Experience Period, the total cost of providing $500,000 in malpractice insurance coverage to all the Attending Faculty. As such, the Retro Premium is subtracted from the Deposit Premium to determine how much is owed (and by whom) for each year. Each year, the Retro Premium for each Experience Period is recalculated, as of each Reconciliation Date, by applying the Retrospective Rating Premium Formula ("Retro Formula"), set forth in the Plan. This formula involves application of multipliers (e.g., the Deposit Premium factor, the Minimum Premium factor, and the Development Factors), to numbers based on hard data (e.g., Loss Reserves). See id. ¶ 31 (stating Retro Formula).

Minimum Premium is the minimum Retro Premium for a particular Experience Period, currently, "sixty percent (60%) of the Subject Premium." See id. ¶ 32. In the original Plan, the Minimum Premium was 75% of the Subject Premium. See id. ¶ 33. It was changed to 60% effective September 1, 1996. See id. ¶ 34. The language of the Plan does not limit the applicability of the Minimum Premium to any particular Experience Period(s). See id. ¶ 32.

Maximum Premium is the maximum Retro Premium for a particular Experience Period, currently "one hundred and thirty-three percent (133%) of the Subject Premium." See id. ¶ 33. In the original Plan, the Maximum Premium was 115% of the Subject Premium, but was changed to 133% effective September 1, 1996. See id. The Plan's language does not limit the applicability of the Maximum Premium to any particular Experience Period(s). See id.

Additional Premium is any positive balance (i.e., in NCRIC's favor), either for an individual Experience Period or cumulative for the entire Plan. Additional Premium exists when the Retro Premium (as limited by the Minimum Premium and Maximum Premium) is greater than the Deposit Premium. See id. ¶ 36.

16d-001088

Return Premium is any negative balance (i.e., in Columbia's favor), either for an individual Experience Period or cumulative for the entire Plan. Return Premium exists when the Retro Premium (as limited by the Minimum Premium and Maximum Premium) is less than the Deposit Premium. See id. ¶ 37.

Experience Period. Each year of the Plan, beginning on September 1, 1993, is a separate Experience Period. See id. ¶ 38. The total Retro Premium and Deposit Premium for each Experience Period is recalculated every year until all claims for that year are closed. See id. ¶¶ 19, 39. The original Plan called for three Experience Periods, from 1993-94 through 1995-96; NCRIC claims that four were added by amendment, through 1999-2000. See id. ¶¶ 15-16. Experience Periods have not been added since September 1, 2000. However, NCRIC has performed Reconciliations since that date. See id. ¶¶ 36, 22 and Exh. 10 (September 1, 2000 Reconciliation spreadsheet created by NCRIC).

Loss Reserves are the money that NCRIC sets aside to pay medical malpractice claims against the Attending Faculty, as well as to pay any expenses for defending those claims.[4] See id. ¶ 40.

Development Factors are "the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes" of calculating the Retro Premium. See id. ¶ 41. Essentially, the Development Factors are a schedule of multipliers that increase as Experience Periods progress, and as a claim matures, to reflect NCRIC's growing level of certainty regarding the accuracy of its Loss Reserves. The effect of the steady increase in Development Factors over time is that, even in the [4] In its Reconciliations, NCRIC lists both Indemnity Reserves and Expense Reserves ("ALAE Reserves"). These two categories are tallied to obtain the total Loss Reserves. See SMF ¶ 40.

16d-001089

(unlikely) event that total Loss Reserves for a particular Experience Period remain exactly the same over the course of several Reconciliations, the developed losses will steadily increase.

Over time, the Plan has been amended to change the value of – but not the procedure for applying – the Development Factors. See id. ¶¶ 42-45. Originally, the Development Factors were:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

Id. ¶ 39. Effective September 1, 1996, the Development Factors were lowered:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	55.0%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	65.0%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	80.0%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

Id. ¶ 40. In 1999, the parties added interim Development Factors:

Months	Factor
12	0.55 (unchanged)
. . . .	. . . .
24	0.65 (unchanged)
. . . .	. . . .
36	0.81 (unchanged)
. . . .	. . . .
48+	1.05 (unchanged)

Id. ¶ 44. The interim Development Factors were solely for informational purposes, to be used in NCRIC's quarterly updates. Introduction of the interim factors did not change the amount of the existing yearly Development Factors in any way. Nor did it have any effect on the manner in which the Development Factors were applied by NCRIC. See id. ¶ 45.

Exhibit E to the Plan, an "Example of Operation of the Plan," indicates that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of an Experience Period. See id. ¶¶ 46-48. To apply the current Development Factors in this way, the 12-month Factor (55%), not the 24-months Factor (65%), is applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. See id. ¶ 46.

No language in the Plan limits the use of the new Development Factors to Experience Periods beginning in or after 1996. See id. ¶ 49. Yet, NCRIC applies the new Development Factors to all Experience Periods currently being reconciled. See, e.g., id. Exh. 10.

B. NCRIC's Reconciliations

In performing Reconciliations, NCRIC applies certain terms in ways that find no support in the Plan. First, NCRIC uses a Deposit Premium multiplier of 62% for Experience Periods from 1995-96 to the present. See id. ¶¶ 50-51. It is undisputed, however, that the Plan, as amended, currently states that the applicable Deposit Premium factor is 67%. See id. ¶ 30.

Second, NCRIC applies the current, 60% Minimum Premium multiplier only for Experience Periods beginning after September 1, 1995. For the first two Experience Periods (one of which it treats as closed) NCRIC uses the old 75% Minimum Premium multiplier. See id. ¶ 53. NCRIC admits, however, that the amended definition of Minimum Premium does not limit application of the 60% multiplier to any particular Experience Period(s). See id. ¶ 34.

Third, NCRIC applies each Development Factor the relevant number of months after an Experience Period begins, not the relevant number of months after an Experience Period ends. This contradicts the clear guidance of Exhibit E to the Plan. See id. ¶ 54.

NCRIC last performed a yearly Reconciliation of the lawsuit on September 1, 2000. NCRIC did not provide Columbia with a September 1, 2001 Reconciliation – if it even performed one. See id. ¶¶ 55-57.

C. Oral Agreement

Although the written language of the Plan envisioned an exchange of the cumulative Additional Premium or Return Premium for all reconciled Experience Periods, every year, the Plan was never operated that way. In November 1996, NCRIC and Columbia mutually agreed that neither party would pay premium for any Experience Period until it was "closed" (i.e., all the claims for that Period were closed as defined in the Plan). See id. ¶¶ 59-63. When the agreement was made, NCRIC represented to Columbia, and Columbia understood, that the arrangement was to remain in effect until all Experience Periods were closed. See id. ¶¶ 60-61. NCRIC never indicated that the arrangement would end if the Plan were discontinued. See id. ¶ 62.

As a result of their oral agreement, the parties only exchanged premium once in four years: In November 1998, NCRIC paid Columbia $172,815 in Return Premium for the 1993-94 Experience Period, which NCRIC deemed closed.[5] See id. ¶¶ 72-73. As a result of the parties' oral agreement, NCRIC did not pay Columbia after either the September 1, 1996 and September 1, 1998 Reconciliations, despite that in both cases the relevant Reconciliation spreadsheet showed a cumulative balance of Return Premium was due. See id. ¶¶ 64, 70-71. Further, NCRIC did not demand any premium from Columbia after the September 1, 1999 Reconciliation, although the Reconciliation showed that cumulative Additional Premium was due. See id. ¶ 74. As of the September 1, 2000 Experience Period, one additional Experience Period – 1994-95 – was deemed closed by NCRIC. See id. ¶ 77. As NCRIC admits, this Experience Period showed a balance of Return Premium due – yet, NCRIC did not pay Columbia. See id. ¶ 77.

[5] Soon after the September 1, 1997 Reconciliation, NCRIC demanded, as a condition for adding the 1997-98 Experience Period to the Plan, a payment of $1 million from Columbia to secure contingent future liabilities under the Plan. See SMF ¶¶ 65-67. Columbia paid this amount in early 1998 in four installments of $250,000 each. See id. ¶ 68. This $1 million payment, NCRIC admits, was an exception to the parties' oral agreement. See id. As such, at the September 1, 1998 Reconciliation – which showed a $670,000 balance in Columbia's favor – NCRIC continued to hold Columbia's $1 million on deposit instead of paying Return Premium. See id. ¶¶ 70-71.

Argument

Standard of Review

Summary judgment is proper where "there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and . . . the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law." Super. Ct. R. Civ. P. 56(c).

"Whether a contract is ambiguous is a question of law for the court to determine." Dodek v. CF 16 Corp., 537 A.2d 1086, 1093 (D.C. 1988) (internal citations omitted). If a contract is unambiguous, summary judgment is appropriate "since, absent such ambiguity, a written contract duly signed and executed speaks for itself and binds the parties without the necessity of extrinsic evidence." Id. at 1092. Further, interpretation of a contract is a matter of law if, "only one view is reasonable – notwithstanding [any] facial ambiguity." See Urban Masonry Corp. v. N & N Contractors, Inc., 676 A.2d 26, 32 (D.C. 1996) (internal citations omitted).

I. Columbia Does Not Owe NCRIC Any Money At This Time

A. No Experience Periods For Which Columbia Owes Premium Are Closed

Columbia does not owe NCRIC any premium at this time due to the parties' November 1996 oral agreement that neither party would pay any premium for any Experience Period until it was "closed." See supra, p 9. NCRIC freely admits that this agreement occurred. See SMF

¶¶ 62, 58-60. Further, the parties' actions throughout the term of the Plan confirm that the agreement remained in effect after each renewal and amendment. First, the parties did not, in response to either the 1996, 1997 or 1998 Reconciliations, exchange the cumulative total amount of Additional Premium or Return Premium that was due. See supra, p 9. Second, after the 1998 Reconciliation, NCRIC paid Columbia Return Premium for just the closed, 1993-94 Experience Period (about $172,815), instead of paying the cumulative Return Premium (about $670,000).[6] Id.

Due to the parties' oral agreement, NCRIC cannot demand payment at this time. Currently, according to NCRIC's own calculations, only the first (1993-94) and second (1994-95) Experience Periods are closed; every other Experience Period has open claims. See id. ¶ 80. Further, Columbia does not owe NCRIC Return Premium for 1993-94 or for 1994-95. See id. ¶ 72, 77. Accordingly, although NCRIC's Reconciliation(s) indicate that a cumulative balance of Additional Premium is due, Columbia does not owe NCRIC any money.

B. NCRIC Owes Columbia Return Premium for the Closed 1994-95 Experience Period

In fact, due to the parties' oral agreement, NCRIC owes Columbia Return Premium. According to NCRIC's own calculations, NCRIC owes Columbia Return Premium for the two Experience Periods that are closed. NCRIC has paid Columbia $172,815 for the first Experience Period, see id. ¶¶ 72-73, but it has paid Columbia nothing for the second Experience Period, see id. ¶ 77. Accordingly, even under NCRIC's own interpretation of the terms in the Retro Plan, NCRIC currently owes Columbia $177,806.

---

[6] NCRIC also continued to hold Columbia's $1 million on deposit at this time.

16d-001094

But even that amount understates NCRIC's liability to Columbia. As explained below, in its Reconciliations, NCRIC employs the wrong Minimum Premium factor for the 1993-94 and 1994-95 Experience Periods. See infra, Part III.A. When the correct Minimum Premium factor is applied (assuming all of NCRIC's other calculations are correct), NCRIC owes Columbia $587,569 (less $172,815 it already paid) for the 1993-94 Experience Period and $350,594 for the 1994-95 Experience Period, for a total of $765,346.

II. Columbia Owes No Additional Premium At This Time Because NCRIC Failed To Provide the September 2001 Reconciliation to Columbia

Even absent the parties' oral agreement, Columbia does not owe NCRIC the amount of Additional Premium that NCRIC demands at this time, because NCRIC failed to perform its duties under the Plan. Under the Plan, NCRIC must provide to Columbia, "within 60 days" of a Reconciliation Date, notice of any Additional Premium that is due. See id. ¶ 21. Yet, NCRIC never provided Columbia with notice of the amount of Additional Premium due following the September 1, 2001 Reconciliation. See id. ¶ 56. This failure to provide Columbia with the contractually-required notice constitutes a failure to perform a condition precedent of Columbia's payment – which is "due and payable within thirty (30) days" after it receives NCRIC's notice. See id. ¶ 22. As a result, Columbia's 2001 payment is not yet due. See Steele v. Isikoff, 130 F. Supp. 2d 23, 32 (D.D.C. 2000) (applying D.C. law) ("'[I]t is a condition of each party's remaining duties to render performances . . . that there be no uncured material failure by the other party to render any such performance due at an earlier time'"; "'an absence of performance, operates as the non- occurrence of a condition [which] discharg[es] the [other party's corresponding] duty when the condition can no longer occur.'") (quoting Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 237 & cmt. a (1981); Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 225 (1979) (performance of a duty subject to an express condition "cannot become due unless the condition occurs").

III. In Performing Its Reconciliations, NCRIC Misapplies the Minimum Premium Factor, the Deposit Premium Factor, and the Development Factors

A. The 60% Minimum Premium Multiplier Applies to All Experience Periods

As explained above, the Minimum Premium factor for the Plan originally was 75%, but it was amended to be 60% effective September 1, 1996. See supra, p. 5. Yet, NCRIC refuses to apply the new, 60% Minimum Premium multiplier to calculate the minimum Retro Premium due for every Experience Period. Instead, for two Experience Periods, 1993-94 (which NCRIC treats as closed) and 1994-95, NCRIC still applies the old, 75% Minimum Premium multiplier.

There is simply no basis for employing two different Minimum Premium factors in each Reconciliation. Rather, the language of the Plan is clear: there is only one Minimum Premium factor. See id. ¶ 32 (Minimum Premium "shall be equal to sixty percent (60%) of the Subject Premium"). Indeed, NCRIC even admits that no language in the Plan limits the application of the new, 60% Minimum Premium multiplier to certain Experience Periods. See id. ¶ 33.

NCRIC's application of the 60% Minimum Premium factor to certain Experience Periods but not others is inconsistent with its application of other terms in the Plan. In performing yearly Reconciliations, if a term is not restricted in its application to particular Experience Periods, NCIRC applies that term to all Experience Periods. For example, NCRIC applies the terms Basic Premium and Discount Factor, neither of which have any restrictions upon their use, to all Experience Periods. See id. ¶¶ 44-45. This also is the logical approach, as it involves using the current terms of the Plan, not former terms of the Plan, to perform the current Reconciliation.

Additionally, if NCRIC – which drafted the amendment that changed the Minimum Premium factor, and the amendment the confirmed that change – had intended to use the old 75% Minimum Premium factor for the first two Experience Periods, it could have added restrictive language in either of those two amendments to effectuate its purpose. NCRIC definitely knew how to do this, since in the latter amendment, NCRIC used restrictive language to clarify that the Attending Faculty discount was to be applied only to certain Experience Periods. See SMF ¶¶ 13.

By using the wrong Minimum Premium multiplier for the first two Experience Periods, NCRIC substantially affects the bottom line: since the Retro Premium for the 1993-94 and 1994-95 Experience Periods falls well below the 75% Minimum Premium multiplier NCRIC uses for those Periods, Columbia is owed far more money for those Periods that for which it is given credit. When the proper Minimum Premium is applied to the first two Experience Periods, the Return Premium for those periods increases drastically: from $172,815 to $587,569 for 1993-94, and from $177,806 to $350,594 for 1994-95. See id. Exh. 11. As such, when the proper Minimum Premium is applied to any of NCRIC's Reconciliations, the cumulative amount of Additional Premium that Columbia owes is substantially decreased. See id. For example, when the Minimum Premium factor in NCRIC's September 1, 2000 Reconciliation is changed to 60%, the cumulative amount due plunges from $1,286,524 to $698,983. See id.

B. The Correct Deposit Premium Multiplier is 67%, Not 62%

As described above, in performing Reconciliations, NCRIC uses a Deposit Premium multiplier of approximately 62% for all Experience Periods beginning after 1995-96.[7] See supra, p. 4. There is simply no basis in the current version of the Plan for this 62% factor. Indeed, NCRIC admits that the Plan states that the Deposit Premium factor is 67%. See SMF ¶ 29.

[7] Neither party disputes that NCRIC used the proper Deposit Premium multiplier, 81%, for the first two Experience Periods. See SMF ¶ 28.

16d-001097

NCRIC's basis for using 62% as the Deposit Premium factor is unclear, particularly since NCRIC drafted the amendment to the Plan that changed the Deposit Premium multiplier to 67%, and also drafted the subsequent amendment that reaffirmed the new multiplier. See id. ¶ 8.

By employing the wrong Deposit Premium factor NCRIC credits Columbia with 5% less Deposit Premium than it should for each of the five most recent Experience Periods. As a result, when the Deposit Premium is subtracted from the Retro Premium for each Experience Period, Columbia is billed substantially more than required by the Plan. For example, when the correct Deposit Premium factor is applied in NCRIC's September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (leaving all other terms the same), the cumulative amount due drops from $1,286,524 to $627,304. See id Exh. 12.

C. NCRIC Improperly Applies Each Development Factor the Relevant Number of Months After an Experience Period Begins, Rather Than After It Ends.

As explained above, NCRIC applies the first Development Factor (55%) at the Reconciliation 12 months after an Experience Period begins. See supra, p. 8. Using this method, NCRIC always applies the second Development Factor (65%) at the Reconciliation 24 months after the next oldest Experience Period begins, the third Development Factor (80%) at the Reconciliation 36 months after the next oldest Experience Period begins, and the fourth Development Factor (105%) at the Reconciliation 48 months (and more) after the next oldest Experience Period begins. This is the wrong way to apply the Development Factors.

In fact, the 55% Development Factor should be applied at the Reconciliation 12 months after an Experience Period ends; the 65% Development Factor should be applied at the Reconciliation 24 months after an Experience Period ends, the 80% Development Factor should be applied at the Reconciliation 36 months after an Experience Period ends, and the 105% Development Factor should be applied at the Reconciliation 48 months (and more) after an Experience Period ends. On this point, the Plan is clear: Development Factors must be applied the relevant number of months after an Experience Period ends. To do otherwise conflicts with Exhibit E to the Plan, "Example of Operation of the Plan," – which shows Development Factors being applied twelve months after the end of an Experience Period. See SMF ¶ 46. Since the clear intent of Exhibit E was to serve as a guide for applying the Retro Formula, see id., NCRIC's current method of applying the Development Factors must be rejected.

16d-001098

NCRIC's application of the Development Factors also is inconsistent with well-established canons of construction. First, NCRIC's application of the 55% Development Factor 12 months after an Experience Period begins, means that Factor will never have any effect on the amount of Additional Premium Columbia owes – because Experience Periods are not added to Reconciliations until 12 months after they end, see SMF ¶ 39; see, e.g., id. Exh. 8 (September 1, 1999 Reconciliation) (applying 55% Development Factor to latest Experience Period, which would not be properly added to the Reconciliation under the Plan as written); id. Exh. 9 (September 1, 1998 Reconciliation) (same).[8] By contrast, if the 55% Development Factor is applied 12 months after an Experience Period ends, it will always factor into the cumulative Additional Premium. Since NCRIC's interpretation renders the 55% Development Factor superfluous, it is disfavored. See, e.g., Intercounty Constr. Corp. v. District of Columbia, 443 A.2d 29, 32 (D.C. 1982); accord Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 203, cmt. b (1979).

Second, NCRIC's interpretation increases the percentage of Loss Reserves that are considered part of the Retro Premium and increases the Additional Premium due – thereby [8] NCRIC's inclusion of these Experience Periods on these yearly Reconciliation spreadsheets, although inconsistent with the Plan as written, was consistent with the parties' oral agreement. Since under the oral agreement Columbia owed Additional Premium only for closed Experience Periods, the cumulative total was provided to Columbia simply for informational purposes. It was "not an invoice," see SMF ¶ 74 – which it would have been under the Plan as written.

favoring it over Columbia. Since NCRIC drafted the Plan, the opposite should be true. See, e.g., Affordable Elegance Travel, Inc. v. Worldspan, L.P., 774 A.2d 320, 328 (D.C. 2001). As such, Columbia's interpretation should govern.

When the Development Factors are applied properly, they reduce the amount of money Columbia owes. For example, when the correct factors are applied to NCRIC's September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (leaving all other terms the same), the cumulative Additional Premium drops drastically, from $1,286,524 to $686,961. See SMF Exh. 13.

Finally, when the correct Minimum Premium and Deposit Premium are applied, and the Development Factors are applied properly, to NCRIC's September 1, 2000 Reconciliation, the cumulative amount of Additional Premium due becomes Return Premium: $1,286,524 becomes $559,798. See id. Exh. 14. In short, when all three terms are applied properly, NCRIC owes Columbia money, not vice versa.

Conclusion

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Columbia's Motion for Summary Judgment should be granted in its entirety.

ORDER

WHEREFORE, upon consideration of the points and authorities submitted by the parties, and any oral argument presented by the parties, Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment is hereby GRANTED, and it is hereby ORDERED that:

1. As to Count I (Breach of Contract), the sole count of Plaintiff NCRIC's Amended Complaint for Damages, judgment is hereby entered in favor of Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia").

2. And FURTHER, in any future Reconciliations of the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement, the following terms have been adjudicated to have the following meanings:

   a. the Deposit Premium multiplier shall be 67% for all Experience Periods;

   b. the Minimum Premium multiplier shall be 60% for all Experience Periods;

   c. each Development Factor shall be applied to an Experience Period the relevant number of months after the Experience Period ends.

3. And FURTHER, as to Count I (Breach of Contract) of Defendant's Amended Answer and Counterclaims, judgment is entered in favor of Columbia as to liability alone. Damages will be determined at the close of this case.

SO ORDERED.

AFFIDAVIT OF DR. SAFA RIFKA IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANT' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Dr. Safa Rifka, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. I am Chairman of the Board of Columbia Hospital for Women Foundation, Inc., the corporate parent of Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"). I make this affidavit in support of Columbia's Motion for Summary Judgment.

I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein and, if called as a witness, I could testify competently thereto.

2. I attended several Board meetings in November and December of 1996 where representatives of NCRIC, including Steve Fargis and Bill Burgess, made presentations concerning the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Retro Plan").

3. At one of these meetings, a November 7, 1996 meeting of the Finance Committee, NCRIC's representatives, including Mr. Fargis, informed Columbia that NCRIC currently owed Columbia approximately $150,000 for the first year of the Retro Plan. However, based on NCRIC's current calculations, Columbia would likely owe NCRIC money for the next year. As

I understood it, as the Plan was written, its status was to be evaluated, and payments were to be made, every year, until all claims were closed for all years of the Plan.

4. At the November 7, 1996 meeting, NCRIC's representatives, including Mr. Fargis, proposed that NCRIC not pay Columbia the $150,000 at this time. Instead of NCRIC paying Columbia this year, and Columbia paying NCRIC next year, it was proposed that the parties would wait to exchange money, for any year of the Plan, until all claims for that year of the Plan were closed. As it was presented to me, the result would be a single settlement for each year of the Plan.

5. At this meeting, representatives of Columbia, including myself, agreed to the NCRIC proposal that the parties would wait to exchange money, for any year of the Plan, until all claims for that year of the Plan were closed. Further, since the parties were in negotiations concerning possibly renewing or extending the Retro Plan, we agreed with NCRIC that the agreement not to exchange money for any year of the Plan, until all claims for that year of the Plan were closed, also would extend to any future renewals or extensions of the Plan.

6. As I recall, this agreement was discussed at other meetings in November and December of 1996. Each time it was discussed, NCRIC's representatives, including Mr. Fargis, indicated, and Columbia's representatives, including myself, understood that the parties would wait to exchange money for any year of the Plan, until all claims for that year of the Plan were closed. At no point did any NCRIC representative, including Mr. Fargis, suggest that, under any circumstances, the parties would exchange money for any year of the Plan, until all claims for that year of the Plan were closed.

7. It is my understanding that the parties were still operating under the above-mentioned oral agreement as of September 1, 2000. As Chairman of the Board, I would have been known if the agreement had changed or ended.

I swear that the foregoing is true and accurate to the best of my knowledge and belief.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

CERTIFICATION REQUIRED BY D.C. SUPERIOR COURT RULE 12-I(A)

Counsel for NCRIC and Columbia have discussed the instant motion for summary judgment at various times in person and over the telephone during the past two months. Given the dispositive nature of summary judgment, neither side would consent to the entry of summary judgment. In addition to our conversations, I sent counsel for Columbia a letter last week further inviting him to discuss the instant summary judgment motion.

IV. NCRIC HAS NOT HARMED COLUMBIA'S BUSINESS REPUTATION OR ITS BUSINESS RELATIONSHIPS 12

A. Columbia's Claims For Defamation and Injurious Falsehood Fail as a Matter of Law (Counts Nine & Ten) 12

1. Columbia's Defamation and Injurious Falsehood Claims are Based on Unsupported Allegations 13

16d-001114

2. Alleged Statements in August 1998 that do not Concern Columbia Cannot Disparage Columbia 15

3. Columbia Cannot Prove Defamation or Injurious Falsehood Based on True Statements 16

4. Columbia Cannot Establish that NCRIC Acted with Actual Malice 18

B. Columbia's Tortious Interference Claims Fail As A Matter Of Law (Counts Four & Five) 20

1. Columbia Cannot Prove NCRIC Caused any Physicians to Terminate their Relationship with the Hospital 21

2. Columbia Cannot Prove NCRIC had the Requisite Intent to Establish a Tortious Interference Claim 22

3. NCRIC Cannot Tortiously Interfere with Speculative Business Relationships (Count V) 24

V. COLUMBIA'S RETRO PLAN BASED CLAIMS FAIL AS A MATTER OF LAW 26

A. Columbia Has No Credible Evidence That NCRIC Breached The Retro Plan or That Columbia Has Suffered Compensable Damages (Count One) 26

1. NCRIC was not Required to Maintain Loss Reserves According to any "Insurance Industry Standard" 26

2. NCRIC Properly Calculated the Retro Premium 27

3. NCRIC Properly Reported Loss Reserves 28

4. Columbia has not Suffered any Damages Based on NCRIC's Conduct 29

B. NCRIC Did Not Breach The Implied Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing in its Administration of The Retro Plan (Count Two) 29

C. Columbia's Fiduciary Duty Claim Fails as The Parties are Sophisticated Business Entities Whose Relationship is Governed by The Terms of The Retro Plan (Count Three) 31

16d-001115

D. Columbia Has Failed To Prove Any Fraudulent Or Negligent Misrepresentations By NCRIC (Counts Seven & Eight) 33

1. NCRIC's Representations to Columbia were True 34

a. Loss Reserve Statements 35

b. Calculations of Retro Premium 35

2. NCRIC had no Intent to Deceive Columbia 36

3. There is no Confidential Relationship Between NCRIC and Columbia to Support a Constructive Fraud Claim 37

4. NCRIC's Representations Were Not Negligent 39

E. Columbia's Claim For Conversion Fails Because It Is No More Than a Demand For Payment Under The Retro Plan (Count Eleven) 39

VI. ALL OF COLUMBIA'S CLAIM FAILS AS A MATTER OF LAW AS ITS DAMAGES ARE SPECULATIVE 41

VII. NCRIC IS ENTITLED TO SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE AMENDED COMPLAINT 44

A. Summary Judgment is Appropriate for Insurance Contract Cases in Which The Contract Language is Clear and Unambiguous 44

B. Summary Judgment in Favor Of NCRIC on Liability is Proper 45

NCRIC, INC., Plaintiff, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Defendant.	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar #8 Judge Blackburne-Rigsby Next Event: Motions Deadline -- February 7, 2002

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF THE MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT FILED BY PLAINTIFF NCRIC, INC.

Pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rules of Civil Procedure 12-I(e) and 56, plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") submits this memorandum of law in support of its motion for summary judgment against defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia") in the above-captioned case.

I. INTRODUCTION

In October 2000, NCRIC filed a two page complaint against Columbia to recover amounts owed under a professional medical liability insurance program that Columbia and NCRIC had established in 1993 for physicians practicing medicine at Columbia. This program, the Retrospective Rating Plan ("the Retro Plan"), governs the relationship between the parties. Columbia responded with an eleven count counterclaim, seeking to hold NCRIC responsible for seemingly all of the financial problems at the hospital over the past few years. Columbia proffers nothing but speculation and conjecture to support its claim that NCRIC is responsible for any physician deciding to admit patients elsewhere or that NCRIC is otherwise responsible for Columbia's related claims. Summary judgment for NCRIC is proper.

Columbia's participation in the community as a provider of medical services (primarily for women and children) over the past 130 years is well documented. Columbia cannot, however, be permitted to trade on its legacy to avoid its responsibility to NCRIC under the terms of the Retro Plan and to shift responsibility for its highly publicized financial problems to NCRIC.

In drafting its claims and in opposing NCRIC's motion to dismiss, Columbia used an abundance of florid language in an effort to cast itself as the unwitting victim in this case. When pressed for facts to support these claims during discovery, Columbia was forced to retreat. In fact, discovery revealed that Columbia's counterclaims are nothing more than its contract claim repackaged and restated.

Columbia also failed to provide any evidence concerning all but one category of damages, or to produce any evidence to contradict NCRIC's Retro Plan reconciliation calculations. Columbia even withdrew its designated expert on the issue of setting of loss reserves for medical malpractice claims in the District of Columbia. In short, even if Columbia could prove liability with respect to its counterclaims, Columbia still cannot prove damages. NCRIC is entitled to summary judgment on its Amended Complaint as well.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. BACKGROUND AND A PRIMER ON THE RETRO PLAN

In approximately 1993, Columbia requested that NCRIC work with it to create a malpractice insurance program for the physicians at the hospital to help reduce the cost to physicians through a sharing of malpractice risk between the hospital and physicians. See Fargis Declaration, attached as Exhibit 2 ¶ 5. Columbia hoped this program would make physicians loyal to its facility and result in increased patient admissions. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 6.

NCRIC has not previously required, nor does it today require, a physician to admit patients at a particular hospital. That choice is strictly the decision of each physician. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 6.

The original three-year Retro Plan was administered and insured by NCRIC. See Exhibit 4. The Retro Plan provided a 19% (later increased to 30%) discount to physicians on their malpractice premiums. Columbia agreed to pay the amount of such discount should losses from claims under the Retro Plan reach a certain level. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 7.

A retrospective rating plan requires a "reconciliation" that looks back over the term of each year to compare the premiums to the claims to determine: (1) if additional premium amounts are due to the insurance company, because losses under the plan exceeded the physician premiums by a predetermined calculated amount ("Additional Premium"); or (2) if a return of premium is due the hospital, should losses have been less than the predetermined calculated amount ("Return Premium"). See Fargis Decl. ¶ 8.

Thus, the Retro Plan is driven by two key financial factors: (1) the premiums paid by the physicians; and (2) the claimed losses incurred by the physicians. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 13.[1]

The reconciliation includes setting a "reserve" amount for claims that represents the potential liability and the associated expenses of handling the claims, such as attorneys' fees and costs. NCRIC and Columbia agreed to defer making actual payments to one another until all claims arising in a certain year reached final resolution, i.e., until all of the pending claims were closed. This was largely because the parties expressly recognized that reserve amounts could change, which would cause fluctuations in the reconciliation that could result in payments being made simultaneously between the parties at the time of a reconciliation. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 10.

Every three months, a reconciliation is made for each year of the Retro Plan to determine the amount of the Additional Premium or Return Premium. This is called the Retro Premium. Those calculations are, in part, based on open claims, and are correct to the best of NCRIC's knowledge. See Burgess Declaration, attached as Exhibit 1 ¶ 15. If an error is discovered during a subsequent calculation, that error would be corrected. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 20. To the extent an error is uncovered during a quarterly reconciliation of the Retro Plan, such an error would not impact Columbia because NCRIC and Columbia agreed not to pay any Additional Premium or Return Premium until the claims were closed. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 21.

To determine if the appropriate amount of premium was collected to pay losses under the Retro Plan, the Retro Premium (as calculated based on a preset formula and described further in the Fargis declaration as referenced in footnote 1) is then compared to the "Deposit Premium." If the Retro Premium is less than the Deposit Premium, Return Premium is due to Columbia. If the Retro Premium is more than the Deposit Premium, Columbia owes NCRIC Additional Premium to pay against the losses.[2] See Fargis Decl. ¶ 17.

B. CALCULATIONS UNDER THE RETRO PLAN

The Retro Plan originated as a three-year plan, beginning September 1, 1993. At that time, the plan provided that NCRIC would provide a 19% discount on malpractice insurance

[2] A "floor" and a "ceiling" are set to financially protect both Columbia and NCRIC from large swings in risk. To illustrate, if total losses were exorbitant (130% of total), then this would cap Columbia's risk. If losses were extremely favorable (60% of total), then NCRIC is protected. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 17(c).

premiums to physicians at Columbia. In December 1995, at the end of the second year of the Retro Plan, the reconciliation revealed it was expected that Columbia was due to be paid some Return Premium for the first year (1993-94) of the program. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 9.

C. THE RETRO PLAN IS AMENDED AND RENEWED IN 1996

In late 1995, Columbia requested that the Retro Plan be amended to increase the physicians' premium discount to 30%. See Ex. 5. NCRIC and Columbia negotiated the accompanying changes to the Deposit Premium, from 81% to 62%, to accommodate the increased discount. See Ex. 5. The parties amended the Retro Plan to reflect the revised discount and Deposit Premium in effect beginning January 1, 1996. See Ex. 6. The parties also agreed to renew the Retro Plan for one year effective September 1, 1996. See Fargis Deposition dated July 31, 2001, attached as Exhibit 45 ("Fargis II") at 416-17, 450.

D. THE RECONCILIATION PROCESS

In November 1996, NCRIC representatives met twice with Columbia's Finance Committee to present and explain the first reconciliation under the Retro Plan and to explain the 1996 revisions to the discount and premium calculations. See Ex. 7; Fargis Deposition dated July 30, 2001, attached as Exhibit 44 ("Fargis I") at 210-17. During these meetings, the NCRIC representatives explained that a Return Premium of approximately $159,000 was due to Columbia for the first year (1993-94), but Additional Premiums of approximately $417,000 were due to NCRIC for the next two years (1994-95 and 1995-96). See Ex. 7.

Because claims from these periods were still pending, these years were not yet "closed-out" and the calculations were subject to change with each subsequent reconciliation. See Fargis Dep. I at 211-12. NCRIC and Columbia recognized that if payments were exchanged at the time of each reconciliation as described in the Retro Plan, NCRIC and Columbia would continuously exchange checks as the calculations changed up to the time that the year "closed-out." Id. The parties agreed to avoid such interim payments by exchanging money only when a year was "closed-out" under the plan. See Ex. 7; Fargis Dep. I at 214-15. Therefore, neither NCRIC nor Columbia made any payments under the Retro Plan as a result of the fall 1996 reconciliation.

E. COLUMBIA'S WELL KNOWN AND WELL PUBLICIZED FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES

It cannot be reasonably disputed that the late 1990s were tough years for Columbia. In 1997, the hospital faced a crisis when its Board of Directors "imploded" in the midst of a conflict of interest and financial kickback scandal and the hospital was put into receivership. See Ben Ezra Deposition, attached as Exhibit 42, at 34-36. Columbia was also fighting a lawsuit by one of its largest creditors, The Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, regarding Columbia's line of credit. See id. at 39. In early 1998, Columbia filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code, in large part to stem a seizure of assets by the Bank of Tokyo. See id. at 38-39.

Media coverage in 1998 and 1999 recounted the history of Columbia's financial difficulties throughout the decade. See Ex. 11. The hospital dealt with increased pressures from the rise of managed care and competition from suburban hospitals, which resulted in decreased revenues at Columbia. See Ex. 11; Beaulieu Deposition, attached as Exhibit 41, at 78-80; Gasser Deposition, attached as Exhibit 48, at 66-68. Such competition was only set to increase as other local hospitals planned to expand their facilities. See Ex. 11.

Columbia emerged from bankruptcy in 1999, but continues to have financial difficulties. See Ben Ezra Dep. at 75-77. As a result of Columbia's cost-saving measures, doctors at Columbia faced shortages of supplies and inadequate staffing. See Asterbadi Deposition, attached as Exhibit 40, at 133-35; Gasser Dep. at 120-21, 140; Ben Ezra Dep. at 176-77; Ex. 12. Columbia's admissions also continued to be lower than projected. See Ex. 21.

F. FOLLOWING COLUMBIA'S SOLICITATION OF OTHER INSURANCE COMPANIES, THE RETRO PLAN IS AMENDED AND RENEWED IN 1998

In 1997, Columbia and NCRIC began negotiations regarding the possible renewal of the Retro Plan. These negotiations were challenging due to Columbia's financial difficulties. Because of Columbia's impending bankruptcy, NCRIC and Columbia negotiated financial security for NCRIC of $1 million to cover part of Columbia's then-current liability under the Retro Plan. See Ex. 8; Ex. 9; Beaulieu Dep. at 45-47. Following approval by the D.C. Insurance Commission, NCRIC treated the $1 million payment as premium and credited Columbia with $1 million in paid premium on future Retro Plan calculations. See Ex. 33 & 37; Fargis Dep. I at 278.

Although the Retro Plan technically expired by its terms on September 1, 1997, NCRIC continued in good faith to provide physicians in the Retro Plan with the premium discount while NCRIC and Columbia negotiated renewal terms. The renewal was ultimately signed in January 1998. See Fargis Dep. II at 430-31. The 1996 changes also were reflected in this Addendum to the Retro Plan signed in January 1998 which extended the expiration of the Retro Plan to September 1, 1998. See Ex. 10. The modifications to the Retro Plan applied the revised 30% discount for claims in 1996, 1997 and 1998 and made appropriate mathematical changes to the Retro Premium calculations for those years. See id. at 5.

During 1998, while Columbia was in bankruptcy, Columbia's administration sought proposals from various insurance brokers regarding possible alternatives to a renewal of the Retro Plan. See Ex. 15. After reviewing the proposals, the Columbia Board of Directors approved an insurance plan supplied by Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX") in August 1998. See Ex. 13. This program was presented to Columbia's medical staff.

In response to the MIIX proposal, NCRIC requested the opportunity to explain the relative benefits of a renewal of the Retro Plan over the MIIX proposal. Similar to presentations made to Columbia personnel by MIIX, NCRIC made a series of presentations to the Medical Staff at Columbia and the Board of Directors in late September and early October 1998 regarding a continuation of the Retro Plan. See Beaulieu Dep. at 94-95. At these meetings, NCRIC explained the history and operation of the Retro Plan and compared the various costs and benefits between the MIIX proposal and a renewal of the Retro Plan. See Ex. 14.

The Columbia Board of Directors subsequently withdrew its endorsement of the MIIX proposal (Ex. 17), in part, because many physicians at the hospital contacted the Board and stated that they wanted the hospital to renew a plan with NCRIC. See Beaulieu Dep. at 19-20. Most doctors cited long-standing relationships with NCRIC and a hesitancy to switch to a new carrier. See Beaulieu Dep. at 34-35. Columbia and NCRIC signed an amendment in December 1998 which renewed the Retro Plan until September 1, 1999. See Ex. 20.

In August 1998, NCRIC performed a reconciliation calculation that resulted in a Return Premium due to Columbia after the closure of all the claims from the first year of the program (1993-94). Because this year was now "closed out," NCRIC paid Columbia a Return Premium of $172,815 for 1993-94. See Ex. 18.

G. NEGOTIATION OF THE MEDICAL ENTITY POLICY

In October 1998, Columbia asked NCRIC to provide a proposal for a separate insurance policy which would cover doctors working in the ambulatory clinic at Columbia (the "Clinic") who were then covered under Columbia's Self Insured Trust. See Ex. 16. Following negotiations, NCRIC issued the "Medical Entity Policy" effective December 1, 1998 to December 1, 1999. See Ex. 19. This policy was a standard group insurance policy which covered the physicians practicing medicine at Columbia's Clinic for professional liability in return for the payment of a set premium each year. See id.

H. 1999 RENEWALS OF THE RETRO PLAN AND MEDICAL ENTITY POLICY

In the fall of 1999, NCRIC and Columbia renewed both the Retro Plan and the Medical Entity Policy until September 1, 2000 and December 1, 2000, respectively. See Ex. 23; Sohm Deposition, attached as Exhibit 52, at 123.

I. ENDING OF THE RETRO PLAN IN 2000

During the spring of 2000, Columbia requested NCRIC propose a transitional plan to replace the Retro Plan with a new program which did not require retroactively calculated premiums. NCRIC proposed a method of "closing out" the Retro Plan and converting the program to a guaranteed cost contract which would discontinue the retroactive calculations from previous years of the Retro Plan. The parties negotiated the one-time cost that Columbia would have to pay to accomplish such a close out throughout the spring and summer of 2000. See Ex. 24. In July 2000, Columbia rejected NCRIC's condition of a close out payment of $750,000. See Ex. 25. Because negotiations appeared at an impasse, NCRIC informed Columbia that the Retro Plan would expire on its contractual end date of September 1, 2000. Id. Although both parties continued to negotiate a possible renewal of the Retro Plan in good faith, these discussions also failed to resolve the disagreements between the parties. See Ex. 29. NCRIC informed its insured physicians that the Retro Plan would expire on September 1, 2000. See Ex. 32.

As obligated under the Retro Plan, NCRIC performed a yearly reconciliation and sent the calculations with a request for payment of the Additional Premium due from Columbia on September 1, 2000. See Ex. 33. Since September 1, 2000, NCRIC has continued to provide Columbia with the proper quarterly and yearly calculation statements required by the Retro Plan, including a yearly reconciliation statement and request for Additional Premium due as of November 2001. See Ex. 37.

J. ENDING OF THE MEDICAL ENTITY POLICY

During the first half of 2000, NCRIC became aware that Columbia's Self-Insurance Trust Fund, which was responsible for paying Columbia's share of claims, was severely underfunded and could not support Columbia's financial obligations for these claims. See Wilson Deposition dated July 16, 2001, attached as Exhibit 54 ("Wilson II") at 305; Fargis Deposition dated January 10, 2002, attached as Exhibit 46 ("Fargis III") at 551, 830. As a result, on June 30, 2000, NCRIC notified Columbia that it would exercise its right to cancel the Medical Entity Policy effective August 15, 2000. See Ex. 26.

Columbia appealed the cancellation of the Policy to the D.C. Commissioner of Insurance. See Ex. 27. The D.C. Insurance Commission concluded that NCRIC legally canceled the policy. See Ex. 35. The Commission did provide an extension on the date of cancellation to September 15, 2000. See id.

Due to the underwriting and financial risks associated with Columbia's depleted Self-Insurance Trust Fund, on October 1, 2000, NCRIC issued an endorsement to the individual insurance policies of all doctors practicing at the Clinic. See Ex. 34. The endorsement excluded from coverage any activities in the Clinic after November 15, 2000. Id. Columbia again appealed to the D.C. Insurance Commission for reconsideration of its decision upholding the cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy and challenging the validity of the individual exclusionary endorsements issued. The D.C. Insurance Commission ruled that NCRIC provided a proper and valid cancellation of the policy and was within its regulatory authority to issue the exclusionary endorsement. See Ex. 36.

K. CURRENT STATUS OF THE PARTIES

Columbia has not paid NCRIC any of the Additional Premium owed to NCRIC under the terms of the Retro Plan since September 1, 2000. See Rifka Deposition dated January, 21, 2002, attached as Exhibit 51 ("Rifka II") at 255. Based on the most recent calculation, Columbia owes NCRIC approximately $2.1 million, after applying the $1 million premium payment made by Columbia to secure continuation of the program in 1998. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 18; Ex. 37. At the expiration of the Retro Plan, Columbia provided its physicians with an insurance plan from another company which provides lower premiums for each doctor than did the Retro Plan. See Ex. 31; Fargis Decl. ¶ 19.

III. LEGAL STANDARD FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Summary judgment is appropriate when the moving party demonstrates that there is no genuine issue of material fact as to an element essential to the non-movant's case, and further, that the law as applied to those facts by the Court will render judgment in favor of the movant. D.C. Superior Court Rule of Civil Procedure 56(e). A party may succeed on its motion for summary judgment where: (1) taking all reasonable inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party; (2) a reasonable juror, acting reasonably, could not find for the non-moving party; (3) under the appropriate burden of proof. Sherman v. Adoption Ctr. of Washington, Inc., 741 A.2d 1031, 1035 (D.C. 1999). The party against whom summary judgment is sought must then come forward with specific facts that demonstrate a genuine issue with respect to that party's case, and on which that party will bear the burden at trial. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986).

"The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the plaintiff's position will be insufficient." Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 252 (1986). The party opposing summary judgment may not rest upon mere allegations or conclusory statements, but must set forth specific facts showing there is a genuine issue for trial. Beard v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 587 A.2d 195, 198-99 (D.C. 1991). "It is not the office of Rule 56 to preserve speculative issues of fact for trial." Atlantic States Constr. Co. v. Robert E. Lee & Co., 406 F.2d 827, 829 (4th Cir. 1969).

IV. NCRIC HAS NOT HARMED COLUMBIA'S BUSINESS REPUTATION OR ITS BUSINESS RELATIONSHIPS

A. COLUMBIA'S CLAIMS FOR DEFAMATION AND INJURIOUS FALSEHOOD FAIL AS A MATTER OF LAW (COUNTS NINE & TEN)

There is not a single material disputed issue of fact that prevents the Court from entering summary judgment in favor of NCRIC on Columbia's claims for defamation and injurious falsehood.[3] See Counterclaims ¶¶ 154-64. Columbia's inability to conclusively identify any NCRIC representative alleged to have made the statements is fatal to its claims. Moreover, even if the statements could be attributed to NCRIC, summary judgment for NCRIC as a matter of law is still required because: (1) the statements do not even concern Columbia; (2)

3 Columbia titles Count Ten "Trade Libel/Commercial Disparagement/Injurious Falsehood." See Counterclaim ¶¶ 159-64. As these are simply different names for the same claim, see Art-Metal-U.S.A., Inc. v. United States, 753 F.2d 1151, 1156 (D.C. Cir. 1985), NCRIC references the claim as injurious falsehood for simplicity.

16d-001133

they are true; (3) they are constitutionally protected opinions; and (4) there is no clear and convincing evidence that NCRIC acted with actual malice.

1. Columbia's Defamation and Injurious Falsehood Claims are Based on Unsupported Allegations

Relying solely on conclusory assertions and speculation, Columbia claims that NCRIC defamed Columbia based on alleged statements made in September 2000.[4] See Counterclaims ¶¶ 89, 154-58. Columbia further asserts that these statements, as well as others made in August 1998, give rise to a claim for injurious falsehood. Id. ¶¶ 159-64. Columbia has not identify a single NCRIC representative who allegedly made these statements. See, e.g., Rifka Deposition dated June 21, 2001, attached as Exhibit 50 ("Rifka I") at 113-17, 148-50; Rifka Dep. II at 223-25; Wilson Deposition dated June 27, 2001 attached as Exhibit 53 ("Wilson I") at 165-66; Gasser Dep. at 110-13.[5] This failure is fatal at summary judgment. See Beard v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 587 A.2d 195, 198 (D.C. 1991) ("[c]onclusory allegations by the nonmoving party are insufficient to establish a genuine issue of material fact or to defeat the entry of summary judgment"); Ives v. Guilford Mills, Inc., 3 F. Supp. 2d 191, 199 (N.D.N.Y.

4 Columbia's defamation claim based on the alleged 1998 statements is barred under the statute of limitations. See Memorandum Opinion dated July 3, 2001 at 5.

5 Dr. Asterbadi testified that NCRIC's Ray Pate specifically told him that Columbia's Self-Insurance Trust was insufficiently funded. See Asterbadi Dep. at 102-04. Similarly, Columbia's Mr. Wilson testified that Mr. Pate told him that if the Retro Plan were not in effect, Columbia would lose all of its physicians. See Wilson Dep. I at 168-69. As discussed below, these alleged statements can neither defame nor disparage Columbia because the former was a true statement (as Dr. Asterbadi himself acknowledges), see Asterbadi Dep. at 102-04, and the latter is no more than an opinion which cannot constitute defamation or injurious falsehood. Additionally, even if Mr. Pate made these statements, as he allegedly did in the privacy of Dr. Asterbadi's and Mr. Wilson's office, there is no evidence either defamed or disparaged Columbia.

1998) (dismissing defamation claim for failure to identify who at defendant company made the alleged statements).[6]

Columbia also claims that "rumors" in September of 2000, regarding the possibility of Columbia closing, caused harm to its reputation, and accordingly give rise to a claim for defamation and injurious falsehood. Again, there is no evidence that these rumors regarding the possible closure of Columbia were initiated by any NCRIC representative. Significantly, Dr. Rifka, testifying as a corporate representative on behalf of Columbia, admitted that "we don't know who started the rumors." See Rifka Dep. I at 40-41, 45, 118; Rifka Dep. II at 197-99; Wilson Dep. I at 172-73; Wilson Dep. II at 332-33. "Plaintiffs' vague allegations that . . . rumors about them were circulated around town are insufficient to state a claim for defamation." Burns v. City of Minneapolis, No. 00-577 ADM/AJB, 2001 WL 1589619, at *3 (D. Minn. Dec. 11, 2001); see also Szot v. Allstate Ins. Co., 161 F. Supp. 2d 596, 608 (D. Md. 2001) ("Plaintiff's references to the "rumor mill" . . . without more, is insufficient to establish a claim of defamation.").[7] 6 Dr. Rifka identified Dr. Glassman, a Columbia physician and NCRIC Board member, as a NCRIC individual who stated that physicians working in the clinic were not covered by NCRIC's insurance and that Columbia was going to close. See Rifka Dep. I at 119-20; Rifka Dep. II at 199-203. Dr. Asterbadi further identifies Dr. Glassman as stating that Columbia was going to close. See Asterbadi Dep. at 109-12. Both Dr. Rifka and Dr. Asterbadi were unable to identify a single physician to whom these words were spoken; and accordingly, there was no "publication" to a third person. Id. Moreover, both individuals admitted that they did not know if Dr. Glassman was even speaking on behalf of NCRIC; and, in fact, there is no evidence to even support an inference that he was. See Rifka Dep. I at 119; Rifka Dep. II at 201; Asterbadi Dep. at 110-12. Rather, all reasonable inferences support a finding that Dr. Glassman was speaking in his role as a Columbia physician. Dr. Glassman is alleged to have made both of these statements in the hospital cafeteria, hallways and/or Columbia's X-Ray department. Indeed, all inferences suggest that Dr. Glassman was working in his capacity as a Columbia physician during an ordinary work day at the hospital. There are simply no facts to support he was speaking as a NCRIC representative. See Rifka Dep. II at 152-53, 200-01.

---

7 Dr. Rifka admits that Columbia's allegations that NCRIC started these rumors are pure speculation, based on the mere fact that the rumors simply happened to surface at the same time that the NCRIC policy expired. See Rifka Dep. I at 40-44, 49.

2. Alleged Statements in August 1998 that do not Concern Columbia Cannot Disparage Columbia

Even if the Court considers the substance of the alleged statements made in August 1998, Columbia's injurious falsehood claim still fails as a matter of law. Columbia must demonstrate that NCRIC published false statements concerning Columbia's property or product. See Q Int'l Courier, Inc. v. Seagraves, No. 95-1554 (RMU), 1999 WL 1027034, at *7 (D.D.C. Feb. 26, 1999). Columbia asserts that in August 1998, NCRIC told the Columbia physicians:

> (1) MIIX would not remain in the District of Columbia insurance market; (2) that MIIX would not stand by its guarantee not to raise premiums for two years; (3) that MIIX was an unreliable insurance company; (4) that MIIX planned to raise premiums once it cornered the District of Columbia MMLI market; (5) that the MIIX proposal was a cronyism which would benefit members of [Columbia Board as opposed to] Attending Faculty; (6) that [Columbia] had lied to the Attending Faculty by stating that it could not afford to continue the Plan; and (7) that the lawyers with whom NCRIC contracted to defend physicians against medical malpractice claims would not work with MIIX.

See Counterclaim ¶ 69. Statements 1, 2 , 3 , 4 , 5 and 7 (listed above) do not even concern Columbia, but rather, MIIX, an unrelated third party.[8] Accordingly, as a matter of law, these statements cannot disparage any aspect of Columbia's business because they do not concern Columbia's business reputation.[9] See Golden Palace, 386 F. Supp. at 108; see also Coles v.

8 Moreover, not one of the alleged statements concern a "product or service" that Columbia provides. For example, there is no allegation that NCRIC made disparaging statements regarding the quality of Columbia's patient care or the quality of the Columbia physicians. Columbia's attempt to put forth these alleged statements as a basis for its claim for injurious falsehood simply does not fit the claim and must be rejected. See, e.g., Golden Palace, Inc. v. NBC, 386 F. Supp. 107, 108 (D.D.C. 1974), aff'd, 174 U.S. App. D.C. 242, 530 F.2d 1094 (D.C. Cir. 1976) (characterizing tort of injurious falsehood as a disparagement of the "quality of property"); Art-Metal, 753 F.2d at 1155 n.6 (tort protects against false statements that disparage the plaintiff's interest in "land, chattels, or intangibles"); Pinto v. Internationale Set, Inc., 650 F. Supp. 306, 309 (D. Minn. 1986) ("Plaintiffs do not allege that defendant has libeled their products, but that it has defamed their reputations as business people. This is not trade libel, but slander.").

9 Additionally, NCRIC cannot be liable for injurious falsehood for the alleged statements regarding MIIX because the statements are subject to a conditional privilege of competitors. See Restatement (Second) of Torts § 649 (1977) ("A competitor is conditionally privileged to make an unduly favorable comparison of the quality of his own . . . things, with the quality of the competing . . . things of a rival competitor . . if the comparison does not contain false

Washington Free Weekly, Inc., 881 F. Supp. 26, 32 (D.D.C. 1995) (no defamation where statements do not describe plaintiff), aff'd, 1996 WL 303588, 319 U.S. App. D.C. 215, 88 F.3d 1278 (D.C. Cir. 1996) (text available in Westlaw).

The alleged statements to physicians that the MIIX proposal was a cronyism which would benefit members of Columbia's Board, and that Columbia lied about its ability to afford to continue the Plan, do not constitute injurious falsehood. The minimal evidence concerning these statements could only support a finding that, even if spoken, the statements were directed at Dr. Asterbadi and Dr. Rifka in their individual capacities. Dr. Rifka acknowledged that these alleged statements concerned Dr. Asterbadi, a Columbia board member, and the implication that Dr. Asterbadi would benefit individually from the MIIX proposal because of a familial connection. See Rifka Dep. II at 149-54; Asterbadi Dep. at 55, 61, 92-93. Applicable law requires more. "Defamation is personal . . . [and] [a]llegations of defamation by an organization or a group and its members are not interchangeable." Alexis v. District of Columbia, 77 F. Supp. 2d 35, 40 (D.D.C. 1999). The same is true for injurious falsehood. There can be no disparagement because the alleged statements were not even directed at Columbia. The August 1998 statements, taken individually or as a whole, do not support Columbia's injurious falsehood claim.

3. Columbia Cannot Prove Defamation or Injurious Falsehood Based on True Statements

The statements alleged to have been made in 2000 do not support a claim for defamation or injurious falsehood because, even if Columbia could prove they were published by assertions of specific unfavorable facts regarding the rival competitor's things."). NCRIC's presentations to the Columbia Medical Staff and Board of Directors simply compared the various costs and benefits between the it and its competitor, MIIX. The alleged statements are clearly privileged communications. constitute injurious falsehood.

a NCRIC representative, they are true -- a complete defense to Columbia's claims. See Farrington v. Bureau of Nat'l Affairs, Inc., 596 A.2d 58 (D.C. 1991) (defamation); Golden Palace, 386 F. Supp. at 108 (injurious falsehood). Columbia alleges that in September 2000, NCRIC made the following statements:

> (1) that the [Medical Entity] Policy had expired; (2) that CPG physicians ... were not covered by NCRIC's [individual insurance] policy while practicing at the [ambulatory clinic]; (3) that [Columbia's] self-insurance trust was insufficiently funded to insure the [physicians], and (4) that [Columbia's] ambulatory clinic was a dangerous place to work.

See Counterclaim ¶ 89. It is undisputed that the Medical Entity Policy was no longer in effect after September 15, 2000. See Counterclaim ¶¶ 86; see also Rifka Dep. I at 145-46; Wilson Dep. II at 310-11. In addition, all of the evidence in the record establishes that Columbia's Self-Insurance Trust was, in fact, insufficiently funded. See Ben Ezra Dep. at 126-27; Wilson Dep. II at 305; Rifka Dep. I at 146; see also Ex. 30 ("The depletion of the Reserve Fund did have a direct ominous [e]ffect on the medical staff."). Accordingly, these statements were truthful at the time they were allegedly made and do not give rise to a claim of defamation or injurious falsehood.

Additionally, despite perhaps the doubts and dissatisfaction of certain Columbia individuals, it is undisputed that individual NCRIC insurance policies did not cover the CPG physicians for care provided in the ambulatory clinic under the endorsements issued for these policies. See Rifka Dep. I at 47-48; Rifka Dep. II at 218-19; Hempelman Deposition, attached as Exhibit 49, at 36-37; Ex. 34. Again, apart from unsupported assertions, Columbia has not put forth any evidence to the contrary. See Wilson Dep. I at 153; Gasser Dep. at 95-97.

Finally, Columbia alleges that in September 2000, NCRIC told physicians that Columbia's ambulatory clinic was a "dangerous" place to work. See Counterclaim ¶ 89. It is undisputed that Columbia uses "dangerous" not to refer to whether the clinic was a "safe" place to work, but rather to the fact that Columbia physicians would be uninsured for providing care there. See Rifka Dep. I at 140-41. There is no evidence that any representative from NCRIC actually stated that the clinic was a dangerous place to work. See, e.g., Gasser Dep. at 110-111; Rifka Dep. I at 142; Rifka Dep. II at 225; Wilson Dep. I at 165-66; Wilson Dep. II at 309-10. Rather, Columbia infers that the statement was made, based upon its belief that NCRIC stated that the Self-Insurance Trust was insufficiently funded, plus the fact that the NCRIC policy did not cover the Columbia physicians for care provided in the Clinic. See Wilson Dep. II at 302-03. As discussed above, both of the underlying statements were true. Accordingly, even if an inference could be construed as a statement made by NCRIC, it still does not support a claim for defamation or injurious falsehood.[10]

16d-001138

4. Columbia Cannot Establish that NCRIC Acted with Actual Malice

Even if Columbia can overcome each and every hurdle discussed above, Columbia's defamation and injurious falsehood claims fail because there is no evidence that NCRIC acted with malice in making the alleged statements. See Braden v. News World Comm., Inc., No. C.A.-10689'89, 1991 WL 161497, at *10 (D.C. Super. Mar. 1, 1991) (malice is a question of law). It is well-established that where a plaintiff claiming either defamation or injurious falsehood is a public figure, it bears the burden of proving, by clear and convincing 10 Yet another basis for awarding summary judgment in favor of NCRIC on Columbia's defamation claim is that the alleged statements are simply opinions that do not contain or imply a provable false fact and are not capable of bearing a defamatory meaning. See Coles, 881 F. Supp. at 33 ("'[A]n alleged defamatory remark must be more than unpleasant or offensive; the language must make the plaintiff appear "odious, infamous, or ridiculous'") (citation omitted); Guilford Transp. Indus., Inc. v. Wilner, 760 A.2d 580 (D.C. 2000). Whether a challenged statement is capable of being proven true or false is a question of law for the Court. See Coles, 881 F. Supp. at 31 n.5 (citation omitted).

evidence, that the defendant made the statements with actual malice. Braden, 1991 WL 161497, at *10; Neurotron, Inc. v. American Ass'n of Electrodiagnostic Med., No. Civ. A. WMN-00-514, 2001 WL 1662089, at *5 (D. Md. Aug. 13, 2001) (injurious falsehood). Determination of whether the plaintiff is a public figure is also a question of law for the Court to decide. See Braden, 1991 WL 161497, at *8.

Columbia is a public figure. Dr. Rifka testified, as a corporate representative, that:

> [Columbia] attract[s] patients from everywhere, overseas, across the continents, across the beltway, point in fact, across the country. People from the Midwest come and do procedures with [Columbia] . . . [Columbia is only] one out of four remaining hospitals for women in the country.

See Rifka Dep. I at 65-68. Because Columbia's reputation reaches beyond its local community, and it is nationally recognized for the care it provides in such areas as high-risk pregnancy and infertility, id., it is a public figure. See Martin Marietta Corp. v. Evening Star Newspaper, Co., 417 F. Supp. 947, 955-56 (D.D.C. 1976) (it is not necessary to establish that the plaintiff corporation is a "household word" to be a public figure); see also Lakeshore Community Hosp., Inc. v. Perry, 538 N.W.2d 24, 28 (Mich. Ct. App. 1995) (hospital is "public figure" where it "assumed the role of being a prominent and critical component of the health care delivery system in the community").[11] 11 Even if the Court determines that Columbia is not a public figure, it cannot be disputed that Columbia is a "limited public figure" which similarly requires a showing, by clear and convincing evidence, that NCRIC acted with actual malice. See Joseph v. Xerox Corp., 594 F. Supp. 330 (D.D.C. 1984). In determining whether Columbia is a limited public figure, the Court must decide (1) whether a public controversy existed; (2) whether Columbia thrust itself into the forefront; and (3) whether the alleged defamation concerned Columbia's role in the controversy. See id. at 332; Martin Marietta, 417 F. Supp. at 955-57. The alleged defamatory statements certainly concern an issue of public controversy, i.e. whether Columbia physicians were covered by medical malpractice insurance, an issue which Columbia cannot dispute it was intimately and pervasively involved. See National Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips Publ'g, Inc., 793 F. Supp. 627 (D. Md. 1992) (holding insurance company to be limited public figure required to establish malice in defamation action).

Because Columbia is a public figure, it must establish, by clear and convincing evidence, that NCRIC acted with malice -- that it knew the statements were false when made or acted with reckless disregard of whether the statements was true or not. Braden, 1991 WL 161497, at *10 (actual malice required regardless of whether defendant is a media or non-media defendant).

Even if the Court determines that a disputed issue of material fact exists as to whether the alleged statements were false, there is no evidence that NCRIC knew this at the time they were allegedly published. See Wilson Dep. II at 305-06, 319; Rifka Dep. II at 213. Columbia has clearly not met its burden in demonstrating, by clear and convincing evidence, that NCRIC acted with actual malice at the time it made the alleged statements. See Ford Motor Credit Co. v. Holland, 367 A.2d 1311 (D.C. 1977) (recognizing that the burden is upon the plaintiff to prove malice whenever it is a necessary element in a defamation action). This is not a case of knowing falsity or reckless disregard for the truth. It is at best a case of harsh opinion on truth, and mere harsh opinion does not result in liability for defamation. Counts Nine and Ten must fail.

B. COLUMBIA'S TORTIOUS INTERFERENCE CLAIMS FAIL AS A MATTER OF LAW (COUNTS FOUR & FIVE)

Columbia asserts that NCRIC tortiously interfered with its business relationships with Columbia's attending faculty,[12] as well as Columbia's expectancy of relationships with 12 Columbia alleges that NCRIC interfered with the business relationships of "certain physicians" associated with Columbia. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 112-28. There can be no dispute that these alleged relationships include only those with attending faculty. While Mr. Wilson attempts to include non-attending faculty members in this category, see Wilson Dep. II at 244-45, there is absolutely no evidence that non-attending faculty ceased referring patients to the hospital as a result of anything NCRIC was alleged to have done. Indeed, the only damages Columbia claims are based on alleged interference with the relationships of attending faculty. See Expert Report of Peter Ben Ezra, attached as Exhibit 39.

---

16d-001141

"resulting patient referrals." See Counterclaim ¶¶ 123-28 ("Tortious Interference with Business Relations") and ¶¶ 129-34 ("Tortious Interference with Prospective Business Advantage"). Both of these claims are based on (1) the alleged defamatory statements disputed above; (2) conclusory assertions that NCRIC urged physicians to leave Columbia; and (3) the simple fact that NCRIC decided not to renew the Retro Plan. There is absolutely no evidence that NCRIC caused any member of Columbia's attending faculty (and consequently, any prospective patients of these faculty members) to terminate their business relationships with Columbia. Moreover, even if Columbia can establish a material issue of disputed fact as to causation, Columbia cannot prove that NCRIC acted with the requisite intent to interfere with these relationships. Finally, Columbia's claim for tortious interference with prospective business advantage should also be dismissed because the underlying expectancy is speculative. There are no material issues of disputed facts as to any of these issues and therefore, the Court should grant NCRIC judgment as a matter of law on both of Columbia's tortious interference claims.

1. Columbia Cannot Prove NCRIC Caused any Physicians to Terminate Their Relationship With the Hospital

In order to succeed on a claim for tortious interference with business relations or prospective business advantage, Columbia must prove:

> (1) the existence of a valid business relationship or expectancy; (2) knowledge of the relationship or expectancy on the part of [NCRIC]; (3) intentional interference inducing or causing a breach or termination of the relationship or expectancy; and (4) resultant damage.

See Genetic Sys. Corp. v. Abbott Labs., 691 F. Supp. 407, 422-23 (D.D.C. 1988). Columbia attempts to hold NCRIC responsible for any physician who may have left Columbia from September 2000 through September 2001 -- irrespective of the physician's motivation. There is not a single piece of evidence demonstrating that any physician terminated his or her relationship with Columbia because of the alleged defamatory statements discussed above. See Wilson Dep. I at 204-06; Wilson Dep. II at 273-75 (no knowledge as to whether physicians left Columbia based on alleged defamatory statements); Rifka Dep. I at 96-97 (speculating that physicians left Columbia based on alleged defamatory statements); Asterbadi Dep. at 165-66 (same). See also Granite Partners, L.P. v. Bear, Stearns & Co., 17 F. Supp. 2d 275, 293 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) (finding that conclusory allegation without any relevant supporting facts insufficient for tortious interference claim).

Additionally, contrary to Columbia's bare assertions, there is no evidence that Columbia physicians left because NCRIC representatives urged them to do so or because NCRIC decided not to renew the Retro Plan. Again, all the record reveals is repeated speculation. See Asterbadi Dep. at. 132-33; Gasser Dep. at 59, 155-56; Wilson Dep. I at 195-98; Rifka Dep. II at 238-45. Summary judgment in favor of NCRIC is warranted.

2. Columbia Cannot Prove NCRIC had the Requisite Intent to Establish a Tortious Interference Claim

Even if Columbia can establish a material issue of disputed fact regarding causation, Columbia's tortious interference claims fail because there is no evidence that NCRIC engaged in the type of "egregious" conduct required under the law. See Genetic Sys., 691 F. Supp. at 423. "'A general intent to interfere or knowledge that conduct will injure the plaintiff's business dealings is insufficient to impose liability.'" Bennett Enters., Inc. v. Domino's Pizza, Inc., 45 F.3d 493, 499 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (citation omitted). Rather, Columbia must prove that NCRIC's conduct was "more egregious, for example, it must involve libel, slander, physical coercion, fraud, misrepresentation, or disparagement." Genetic Sys., 691 F. Supp. at 423.

As a threshold, because Columbia's defamation and injurious falsehood claims fail as a matter of law, so too must its tortious interference claims to the extent they rely on those alleged statements. See pp. 12-20 above. Any statements that can be attributed to NCRIC (which, as discussed above, Columbia has clearly not established) would constitute truthful disclosures and statements in the regular course of business which do not serve as a basis for tortious interference. See M.J.& K Co. v. Matthew Bender & Co., 631 N.Y.S.2d 938, 940 (App. Div. 1995) ("mere contentions that third parties canceled contracts with them because of the alleged defamatory remarks made by [defendant's] representatives, offered with no factual basis to support the allegations," insufficient to state a claim for tortious interference).

As discussed above, Columbia further alleges that NCRIC tortiously interfered with the business relationships between Columbia and its physicians based on allegations that NCRIC urged members of Columbia's attending faculty to move their practices from Columbia to a competitor. Even if NCRIC did "urge" Columbia physicians to move to competitors, this is clearly not the type of "egregious conduct" that has been held sufficient for a tortious interference claim. The law requires more. See Genetic Sys., 691 F. Supp. at 423; accord United Educ. Distribs., LLC v. Educational Testing Serv., No. 3436, 2001 WL 1719324 (S.C. Ct. App. Jan. 22, 2002) (no intentional interference absent evidence to suggest any purpose or motive by the defendant other than the proper pursuit of its own contractual rights with third parties).

Even if urging physicians to leave Columbia was held to constitute the type of egregious conduct required, there is still not a shred of evidence demonstrating that NCRIC engaged in such behavior. See, e.g., Gasser Dep. at 117. Columbia fails to identify a single NCRIC representative who urged any physician to leave Columbia. See Asterbadi Dep. at 130. In fact, as discussed above, there is no evidence to demonstrate the precise reasons any physicians may have left Columbia. See Wilson Dep. II at 307-08, 320-21. "Nothing in the evidence supports more than the rankest speculation that [NCRIC] or anyone acting on its behalf harbored any ill motive or intent to disrupt [Columbia's] economic advantage." Bennett Enters., Inc., 45 F.3d at 499.

Finally, NCRIC's decision to let the Retro Plan end cannot serve as a basis for a tortious interference claim because it is not a tortious act, and certainly not an "egregious" act. It is undisputed that NCRIC was not legally obligated to renew the Retro Plan. See Wilson Dep. I at 199-201; Wilson Dep. II at 407. Failure to renew the Retro Plan was a perfectly appropriate and lawful act that does not, in any way, amount to the egregious type of conduct required for a tortious interference claim. Perhaps even more significant is the undisputed fact that, failure to renew the Retro Plan did nothing to prevent doctors from continuing to admit at Columbia. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 6. The decision not to renew the Retro Plan did not tortiously interfere with either Columbia's relationships with its physicians or the resulting referrals by those physicians.

3. NCRIC Cannot Tortiously Interfere with Speculative Business Relationships (Count Five)

Columbia also asserts that NCRIC tortiously interfered with the expectancy of business relations with patients who would be referred by Columbia physicians. These speculative business expectancies are not enough to establish a claim for tortious interference with prospective business advantage. Specifically, D.C. law requires Columbia establish to that the expectancies are "commercially reasonable to anticipate." Carr v. Brown, 395 A.2d 79, 84 (D.C. 1978) (holding that expectancies must be based upon "business experience on the basis of which it is possible to estimate with some fair amount of success both the value of what has been lost and the likelihood that plaintiff would have received it had the defendant not interfered") (citation omitted); see also Democratic State Comm. of the District of Columbia v. Bebchick, 706 A.2d 569 (D.C. 1998) (rejecting claim for interference with prospective business advantage where expectancies claimed were too remote).

To illustrate, in Sheppard v. Dickstein, Shapiro, Morin & Oshinsky, 59 F. Supp. 2d 27 (D.D.C. 1999), the Court rejected a claim for tortious interference with prospective business advantage where the plaintiff only proved "that defendants may have interfered with business expectations associated with his current employer relationship," but did not have evidence of "a specific, future relationship with Dickstein." Id. at 34; see also United Education, 2001 WL 1719324, at 3-4 (citing cases requiring plaintiff to identify future agreements or contracts that "must be a close certainty").

Similarly, Columbia cannot demonstrate that NCRIC interfered with a "specific, future relationship." Rather, as discussed above, Columbia cites to speculative future business expectancies with patients that certain physicians (who were not hospital employees) might refer to Columbia.[13] See CACI Int'l, Inc. v. Pentagon Techs. Int'l, Ltd., Nos. 94-2058, 94-2220, 1995 WL 679952, at *5 (4th Cir. Nov. 16, 1995) (finding no reasonable expectancy because the plaintiff failed to show "at best, speculative contractual expectations"); Citylink Group, Ltd. v. Hyatt Corp., 729 N.E.2d 869, 877 (Ill. App. Ct. 2000) (rejecting tortious interference claim, in part, based on, plaintiffs' failure to "allege that any other clearly identified group was 'contemplating prospective contractual arrangements' with plaintiffs") (citation omitted).

13 Moreover, because Columbia cannot cite to any specific future business expectancy, it cannot establish that NCRIC had knowledge of that expectancy, which is another element of Columbia's tortious interference claim. See pp. 25-26 above.

Columbia's claimed expectancy is too remote under the law, and NCRIC is entitled to judgment on Columbia's claim of tortious interference with prospective advantage.

V. COLUMBIA'S RETRO PLAN BASED CLAIMS FAIL AS A MATTER OF LAW

A. COLUMBIA HAS NO CREDIBLE EVIDENCE THAT NCRIC BREACHED THE RETRO PLAN OR THAT COLUMBIA HAS SUFFERED COMPENSABLE DAMAGES (COUNT ONE)

1. NCRIC was not Required to Maintain Loss Reserves According to any "Insurance Industry Standard"

Columbia's repeated assertion that NCRIC was required to set and maintain loss reserves "according to the insurance industry standard" is incorrect and, therefore, as a matter of law, this cannot form the basis of a breach of the Retro Plan. See Counterclaim ¶¶ 35, 38, 142, 148. The Retro Plan requires that NCRIC set loss reserves in the "normal and ordinary course of the Company's business," without consideration of the physician's status as a Retro Plan participant. See Ex. 4 ¶ 7. There is no language in the Retro Plan (or in any amendments) which requires NCRIC to abide by some amorphous and unstated "industry standard." Columbia does not allege that NCRIC treated Retro Plan physicians less favorably in setting loss reserves for claims than NCRIC treated claims under other insurance policies. See Gaffey Deposition dated August 7, 2001 attached as Exhibit 47, at 73-75. Columbia cannot base its breach of contract claim on NCRIC's alleged disregard of "industry standards" when such conduct is simply not required by the Retro Plan as negotiated by the parties. Indeed, Columbia admits that no individual at NCRIC told Columbia that "industry standards" would be used when calculating loss reserves. See Wilson Dep. II at 321-22.

However, even if the Court looks past the language of the Retro Plan and finds a disputed issue of material fact regarding whether NCRIC was to set loss reserves by the use of

16d-001147

"industry standards," Columbia's claim still fails because the undisputed evidence supports a finding that NCRIC did so. Indeed, the only credible evidence concerning this issue is the testimony and declaration of William Burgess, NCRIC's Senior Vice-President for Claims and Risk Management, who testified at length as to the process of setting loss reserves and the fact that NCRIC's loss reserves were set properly. See Burgess Deposition dated August 8, 2001 attached as Exhibit 43, at 57-61; Burgess Declaration, attached as Exhibit 1 ¶¶ 6-13. Because Columbia cannot set forth any specific facts to counter this evidence, and withdrew the expert witness designated to testify on this point, summary judgment in favor of NCRIC is proper.

2. NCRIC Properly Calculated the Retro Premium

Columbia also alleges NCRIC breached the Retro Plan based upon a series of alleged mistakes in the calculation of the Retro Premium in the quarterly reports and annual reconciliation. Columbia alleges that NCRIC used a "greater percentage of its Loss Reserves" than it was allowed to consider (Counterclaim ¶ 39), "added extra years" of the Plan and/or "reconcil[ed] too few years" in its calculations (Counterclaim ¶ 40), did not apply the corrected Deposit Premium (Counterclaim ¶¶ 41, 49), and did not apply the proper Minimum Premium (Counterclaim ¶¶ 41, 53).

NCRIC has demonstrated that each reconciliation was properly calculated.[14] See Fargis Decl. ¶¶ 20-21; Burgess Decl. ¶ 15. Columbia, however, lacks any evidence -- documents, lay testimony, or expert testimony-- to prove that NCRIC miscalculated any of these factors in breach of contract. While Columbia lists the problems it perceives with 14 As discussed above, mistakes in calculation which might have occurred would not rise to the level of a material breach of contract because they were corrected or compensated for in the course of the cumulative reporting of the Retro Plan before any money changed hands.

the calculations, there is simply no fact in the record to show how NCRIC improperly made the calculations, or facts to show how any miscalculation prejudiced or damaged Columbia. Mere unsupported assertions by Columbia witnesses that they think the numbers were wrong do not create a material issue of fact which precludes summary judgment. See Paul v. Howard Univ., 754 A.2d 297, 305 (D.C. 2000).

3. NCRIC Properly Reported Loss Reserves

Columbia further contends that NCRIC breached the Retro Plan by refusing to provide Columbia with reports concerning the loss reserves as required under the Plan. See Counterclaim ¶ 37. The undisputed facts demonstrate that NCRIC provided Columbia with quarterly reports reflecting the current status of claims under the Retro Plan.[15] See Ex. 22; Burgess Deposition, attached as Exhibit 43, at 74-76. These reports contained information on claims filed in each year including: (1) any actual amounts of indemnity or expenses paid; (2) total indemnity and expenses reserves; and (3) the status of each of those claims. See Ex. 22. Indeed, it was at Columbia's request that the parties did not always meet to discuss the quarterly reports which NCRIC provided.[16] See Burgess Dep. at 98-99.

15 Columbia also complains that NCRIC refused to provide reports of loss reserves for individual claims. See Wilson Dep. II at 399; Gaffey Dep. at 62, 66. The Retro Plan, however, only requires that NCRIC provide the "aggregate amount of losses reserved," not the reserves for each case. See Ex. 4 ¶ 10.

16 Even if Columbia could produce credible evidence that NCRIC failed to provide these reports was a breach of the Retro Plan, this Court should find, as a matter of law, that NCRIC's failure was not material. The Retro Premium was calculated on an interim basis using the aggregate loss reserves for each year. Information about individual loss reserves would simply allow Columbia to check NCRIC's addition, but would not materially affect the performance of contractual duties by either party or frustrate the purpose of the contract. See Keefe Co. v. Americable Int'l, Inc., 755 A.2d 469, 475 (D.C. 2000). Moreover, any final payment of Retro Premium was based upon actual losses, not loss reserves. See Burgess Decl. ¶ 16; Fargis Decl. ¶ 21.

16d-001149

4. Columbia has not Suffered any Damages Based on NCRIC's Conduct

Even assuming Columbia can put forth a material disputed fact as to whether NCRIC improperly set reserves, somehow violated industry standards, or made mistakes in the Retro Premium calculations, its breach of contract claim still fails as a matter of law because there is no dispute that Columbia cannot prove damages resulting from these alleged breaches. Columbia's assertion that it was forced to file bankruptcy based on an alleged overpayment of Additional Premium (Counterclaim ¶ 109), is contradicted by its own witnesses who testified that the reasons for the Chapter 11 filing were not based on any actions by NCRIC. See Ben Ezra Dep. at 38-39; Beaulieu Dep. at 74; Gasser Dep. at 73-74; Wilson Dep. II at 325-26. Moreover, loss reserves and interim miscalculations could not cause any damages to Columbia as the parties agreed to delay any payment until all claims were closed-out in the subject year. See pp. 3-4, footnote 16 above. No reasonable juror could find that NCRIC breached the contract, or, even if it did, that Columbia suffered damages as a result. Summary judgment in favor of NCRIC on Columbia's breach of contract claim is proper.

B. NCRIC DID NOT BREACH THE IMPLIED DUTY OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING IN ITS ADMINISTRATION OF THE RETRO PLAN (COUNT TWO)

Columbia alleges that NCRIC has acted "unfairly and in bad faith" in breach of its implied duty of good faith and fair dealing. See Counterclaim ¶ 114-15. Under D.C. law, a party to a contract breaches an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing in a contract only by "'evading the spirit of the contract, willfully rendering imperfect performance or interfering with the other party's performance.'" See Steele v. Isikoff, 130 F. Supp. 2d 23, 32 (D.D.C. 2000) (citation omitted); Paul v. Howard Univ., 754 A.2d 297, 310 (D.C. 2000). Columbia's claim fails as a matter of law because there is not a shred of evidence that NCRIC acted in such a manner.

NCRIC has presented the Court with credible evidence that it properly performed its obligations under the Retro Plan. As discussed above, NCRIC provided the required reports to Columbia, properly maintained all loss reserves, and properly calculated the Retro Premium. See pp. 27-29 above; Fargis Decl. ¶¶ 20-21; Burgess Decl. ¶ 15. Columbia has no evidence to support its assertions that NCRIC's calculations "grossly overstate[d]" the amount of Additional Premium projected when NCRIC asked for $1 million financial security before Columbia filed for bankruptcy in 1998. See Counterclaim ¶¶ 57, 58, 115. Indeed, Columbia's own testimony shows that the $1 million payment was negotiated between the parties. See Beaulieu Dep. at 44-49. Additionally, there is no evidence that NCRIC forced Columbia to renew the Retro Plan at any time. See id. at 26, 32-34. There is simply no proof that NCRIC willfully rendered imperfect performance in contempt of the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing.[17]

There is also no evidence that NCRIC failed to provide the negotiated discounted insurance premiums to Columbia physicians under the Retro Plan and, as such, Columbia cannot claim NCRIC "evaded the spirit of the contract." Indeed, NCRIC even extended the discount while renewal negotiations were pending as a show of good faith. See p. 7 above. NCRIC also accommodated Columbia's precarious financial situation by agreeing to wait until years were closed-out to charge Columbia with any Additional Premium under the Retro Plan. See pp. 5-6 17 To the extent that Columbia relies upon its allegations that the NCRIC's cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy and issuance of endorsements regarding coverage in the Columbia Clinic were "retaliatory" in support of its claims for breach of contract, breach of the implied duty of good faith, and/or breach of fiduciary duty, such reliance is misplaced. As stated above, the Medical Entity Policy was a wholly separate negotiated contractual arrangement between the parties which did not affect the Retro Plan. See p. 9 above. Moreover, the D.C. Insurance Commission has repeatedly upheld NCRIC's actions as valid and within NCRIC's legal rights. See pp. 10-11 above.

above. Such a modification of payment terms indeed reflected the spirit of the contract to limit Columbia's payments to actual losses for claims filed under the Retro Plan. There is no evidence to suggest otherwise.

Even if NCRIC's actions could be characterized as "heavy handed" as Columbia suggests, they did not rise to the level of the implied duty under D.C. law. See Wilson Dep. I at 135-39 (acknowledging that NCRIC did not interfere with Columbia's performance under the Retro Plan). Again without facts to support its allegations, Columbia's claim alleging a breach of the implied duty of good faith and fair dealing fails as a matter of law.

C. COLUMBIA'S FIDUCIARY DUTY CLAIM FAILS AS THE PARTIES ARE SOPHISTICATED BUSINESS ENTITIES WHOSE RELATIONSHIP IS GOVERNED BY THE TERMS OF THE RETRO PLAN (COUNT THREE)

Columbia alleges that NCRIC breached an alleged fiduciary duty to Columbia under the Retro Plan because: (1) NCRIC had responsibility for bookkeeping functions; (2) Columbia placed "trust and reliance" on NCRIC to administer the plan; (3) Columbia relied on NCRIC to perform reconciliations to accurately calculate Additional or Return Premium; and (4) Columbia depended on NCRIC for certain information necessary to perform calculations under the Plan. See Counterclaim ¶ 119.

These purported bases for a finding of fiduciary duty fail as a matter of law because they merely reflect contractual terms negotiated at arms length. D.C. law does not provide for the creation of a fiduciary duty in this context. "The mere existence of a contractual relationship is ordinarily insufficient to give rise to a fiduciary duty." Steele, 130 F. Supp. 2d at 36. All that exists in this case between NCRIC and Columbia is a contractual relationship -- no other duties or obligations have been undertaken, and it is inappropriate to impute a fiduciary relationship in this context.

Although some D.C. courts have noted that "the existence of a fiduciary or confidential relationship 'is a fact intensive question,'" Steele, 130 F. Supp. 2d at 37 (citation omitted), this Court "need not accept inferences drawn from [a party] if such inferences are not supported by the facts set out in the [counterclaim]." Id. This Court also "'need not accept legal conclusions cast in the form of factual allegations.'" Id. (citation omitted).

Any allegation that the Retro Plan is a contract that embodied a fiduciary responsibility due to the purported "trust" that Columbia had to place in NCRIC is similarly ill-based and merely a legal conclusion cast in the form of a factual allegation. All obligations between the parties were contained wholly within the contract. See Rifka Dep. II at 14-15. The text of the contract demonstrates that NCRIC and Columbia were provided the opportunity to meet quarterly to review the status of the Retro Plan and to share information concerning the status of claims, as well as any Additional Premium or Return Premium that might be owed by either party. See Ex. 4 ¶ 10. Far from creating a relationship of trust, the clear evidence reveals give and take reporting obligations for both sides. See id. ¶¶ 9-10. In fact, NCRIC's obligations specifically contemplate requiring NCRIC to provide information to Columbia "for purposes of cross reference and confirmation." Id. ¶ 10(a). Columbia did not have to merely trust this information: Columbia had every opportunity to verify and confirm NCRIC's information independently. The fact that it may have chosen not to (until now) cannot be used against NCRIC.

Similarly, a fiduciary relationship did not result from any alleged unequal bargaining position. It cannot be reasonably disputed that both NCRIC and Columbia are sophisticated corporate entities. Columbia even initiated the negotiation of the 1996 amendments to the Retro Plan. See Ex. 5. Moreover, Columbia had a choice among malpractice insurers. See Ex. 15. NCRIC is not (and was not) the exclusive insurer willing to underwrite professional malpractice insurance policies for physicians in the District of Columbia. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 19. As Columbia admits in its counterclaim, the hospital did, in fact, negotiate with other insurance companies, including Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX") (Counterclaim ¶ 65) and The Medical Protective Company ("MedPro") (Counterclaim ¶ 81), as well as others. See Ex. 17 (TVIR) and Ex. 31 (The Doctors Company). Therefore, any allegation of unequal bargaining power creating a fiduciary relationship has no merit. NCRIC is entitled to summary judgment on Count Three.

D. COLUMBIA HAS FAILED TO PROVE ANY FRAUDULENT OR NEGLIGENT MISREPRESENTATIONS BY NCRIC (COUNTS SEVEN & EIGHT)

Columbia alleges actual (or constructive) fraud and negligent misrepresentation regarding the loss reserves and the reconciliation calculations of Additional or Return Premium. See Counterclaim ¶¶ 139-53. Similar to Columbia's claims for breach of contract and bad faith in administering the Retro Plan discussed above, there is no evidence of any fraudulent, or even negligent, misrepresentations. Moreover, even if some statements by NCRIC could be construed as misrepresentations, summary judgment is still proper because Columbia has not established the required legal elements of actual fraud, constructive fraud, or negligent misrepresentation by clear and convincing evidence.

In order to establish fraud, Columbia must prove by clear and convincing evidence: (1) a false representation; (2) in reference to a material fact; (3) made with knowledge of its falsity; (4) with the intent to deceive; (5) reliance upon the representation; and (6) resulting provable damages. See Railan v. Katyal, 766 A.2d 998, 1009 (D.C. 2001). Columbia's fraud claim fails because the only evidence demonstrates that: (1) NCRIC's representations were true; (2) NCRIC had no intent to deceive; and (3) Columbia cannot prove that it relied on the representations resulting in damages.

In order to state a claim for constructive fraud, Columbia must also prove a "confidential relationship" between NCRIC and Columbia. See Witherspoon v. Phillip Morris, Inc., 964 F. Supp. 455, 461 (D.D.C. 1997). D.C. law defines such a relationship as "a relationship in which one party has gained the 'trust and confidence' of the other, enabling the first party to exercise extraordinary influence over the other." Id. Count Seven fails because, as discussed above with respect to alleged breach of fiduciary duty, no such relationship between the parties here exists.

Finally, a claim for negligent misrepresentation requires (1) the negligent communication of false information, (2) which defendant intended or should have recognized that plaintiff would take actions in reliance upon, and (3) reasonable detrimental reliance. See Hall v. Ford Enters., Ltd., 445 A.2d 610, 612 (D.C. 1982). Count Eight fails because NCRIC's representations were true and Columbia has no proof of detrimental reliance.

1. NCRIC's Representations to Columbia Were True

Columbia's claims of actual or constructive fraud and negligent misrepresentation all depend upon the falsity of the alleged NCRIC representations at issue. Drawing all reasonable inferences in Columbia's favor, at most the hospital alleges two false representations by NCRIC: (1) the loss reserves were maintained in accordance with "industry standards" and (2) the amount of Additional or Return Premium due after each Reconciliation were properly calculated. See Counterclaim ¶¶ 142, 148.

16d-001155

a. Loss Reserve Statements

Columbia's allegations regarding NCRIC's representations concerning loss reserves are identical to its claims in Counts One and Two. As discussed above, the Retro Plan did not require NCRIC to use "industry standards" in setting loss reserves. See Ex. 4 ¶ 7. Instead, NCRIC was only required to set loss reserves in the "normal and ordinary course" of its business. Id. Columbia cannot identify any NCRIC representative who stated that "industry standards" would be used. See p. 27 above. Thus, because there was no representation by NCRIC that industry standards would be used, Columbia cannot maintain the actions for fraudulent or negligent misrepresentation in Counts Seven and Eight on the basis of this alleged "statement."

Even assuming for purposes of summary judgment that NCRIC did make a representation that it would set loss reserves in accordance with "industry standards," again Columbia has no evidence that NCRIC did not do so. See Burgess Decl. ¶¶ 6-13; see also p. 27 above. Furthermore, Columbia withdrew its proposed witness who was to testify concerning industry standards for setting loss reserves. NCRIC's testimony on this point is not refuted.

b. Calculations of Retro Premium

Columbia's allegation that NCRIC falsely represented the Additional Premium due on each quarterly and annual reconciliation also fails as a matter of law. As discussed above, there can be no dispute that the quarterly calculations were only an estimate of Retro Premium and, therefore, any allegation that NCRIC misrepresented these numbers is disingenuous at best. See Fargis Decl. ¶¶ 10, 21; Burgess Decl. ¶ 16. Because these quarterly calculations were just estimates, and did not require money to change hands, it must be held that, as a matter of law, NCRIC would not have reasonably believed Columbia would rely on these calculations to its detriment. Moreover, Columbia cannot argue that the annual reconciliations were false as there is no evidence to refute NCRIC's testimony that the calculations were correct. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 20; Burgess Decl. ¶ 15.

2. NCRIC had no Intent to Deceive Columbia

Even assuming NCRIC's representations regarding the setting of loss reserves and the amount due from Columbia after reconciliation are construed as false, Columbia's fraud claim still fails because it cannot meet its burden of providing clear and convincing evidence of NCRIC's motive or intent to deceive. First, Columbia has no testimonial or documentary evidence illustrating an intent by NCRIC to deceive Columbia regarding the methodology of setting loss reserves. The Retro Plan expressly required NCRIC to calculate the reserves in the "normal and ordinary course of the Company's business." See Ex. 4 ¶ 7.

The only evidence is that NCRIC did set the Retro Plan loss reserves using its normal business methodology. Columbia argues that NCRIC's intent to deceive is evidenced by its refusal to provide Columbia individual loss reserves and actuarial verifications of the loss reserves. Again, there are no facts to support this allegation. In each quarterly report, NCRIC provided the aggregate loss reserves as required by the Retro Plan. See Ex. 4 ¶ 10(i). It is uncontested that the reason NCRIC did not provide Columbia with individual case loss reserves was because of the strategic and confidentiality implications surrounding the release of such information. As Columbia's risk manager Ann Gaffey testified, Columbia was often the co-defendant with the NCRIC insured physician in the malpractice claims. See Gaffey Dep. at 69-71; see also p. 27 note 16 above. Thus, this refusal does not provide clear and convincing evidence that NCRIC was intending to deceive Columbia by misrepresenting that the loss reserves were proper.

Nor does Columbia have any evidence that NCRIC intended to deceive Columbia with regard to the Retro Premium calculations. As discussed above, the calculations in the various quarterly reports were statements of what Columbia might owe when the year "closed-out" based upon present indicators. Estimates or predictions of events which are expected to occur in the future are not fraudulent representations unless "the promisor had knowledge that the events would not occur" and had the intent to mislead. Bennett v. Kiggins, 377 A.2d 57, 60-61 (D.C. 1977). NCRIC explained to the Columbia Finance Committee that any reconciliations performed for years which were not "closed-out" would not necessarily reflect the final amount due by either party as these numbers could change when claims closed. See Fargis Dep. I at 211-12.

NCRIC's calculations and requests for payments from Columbia starting with the fall 2000 reconciliation were made in good faith and did not preclude NCRIC later paying Return Premium to Columbia after future years closed. Columbia has no evidence that NCRIC will not remit such payments in the future if they are due to Columbia. Indeed, NCRIC did pay Return Premium to Columbia for the 1993-1994 year as soon as it closed out in 1998. See Ex. 18. Assertions of evil motive by Columbia's witnesses without factual basis are merely speculative inferences which do not equal clear and convincing evidence of intent to deceive; therefore, Count Seven fails as a matter of law. See Bennett, 377 A.2d at 60 (no viable fraud claim when "[f]raud could only be discerned, if at all, by means of impermissible speculation").

3. There Is No Confidential Relationship Between NCRIC And Columbia To Support A Constructive Fraud Claim

Columbia's alternative constructive fraud claim depends upon the proof of a "confidential relationship" between NCRIC and Columbia – a "difficult burden." See Witherspoon, 964 F. Supp. at 461; Goldman v. Bequai, 19 F.3d 666, 674 (D.C. Cir. 1994). D.C. cases analyzing constructive fraud claims usually involve individuals claiming to be defrauded by a defendant with superior knowledge or skill.[18] Columbia cannot prove such a confidential relationship.

As explained with respect to Columbia's breach of fiduciary duty claim above, the Retro Plan was negotiated between sophisticated parties at arms-length and it governs the relationship between Columbia and NCRIC. Columbia's sophistication is evidenced by its numerous boards and committees of professionals who were familiar with the insurance industry. There is no evidence that NCRIC wielded "extraordinary influence" over Columbia either at the time of the Retro Plan's creation or during its administration. Columbia repeatedly dictated terms to be changed in the various renewals and negotiated with other insurance providers for competing bids during both the 1998 and 2000 renewal periods. Columbia's witnesses have testified that NCRIC did not "force" or intimidate Columbia into renewing the Retro Plan. See Beaulieu Dep. at 32-34. NCRIC did not enjoy the "trust and confidence" of Columbia any more than that of a commercial vendor who either was, or was not, providing services which satisfied Columbia. There was no special "confidential relationship" between these two sophisticated business parties. Columbia's claim of constructive fraud must fail.

18 See Witherspoon, 964 F. Supp. at 461 (widower of smoker claiming constructive fraud against tobacco company); Goldman, 19 F.3d at 674 (widow claiming fraud against attorney handling financial assets after husband's death); Roberts-Douglas v. Meares, 624 A.2d 405 (D.C. 1992) (individuals claiming fraud against clergyman and church regarding donations to church), modified, 624 A.2d 431 (D.C. 1993).

4. NCRIC's Representations Were Not Negligent

Columbia claims that, even if NCRIC did not intend to make fraudulent representations with respect to loss reserves and Retro Premium, NCRIC is still liable for its negligence in making those representations. Even assuming that the representations regarding the loss reserves and premium calculations were false, Columbia's claim for negligent misrepresentation requires that NCRIC should have known the representations were false. See Sherman, 741 A.2d at 1037. However, Columbia has presented no evidence that NCRIC was negligent in its calculations of the Retro Plan. The only evidence in the record demonstrates that NCRIC used due care when calculating Retro Premiums and corrected any minor miscalculations immediately. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 20; Burgess Decl. ¶ 15. The law does not require NCRIC to be absolutely perfect in all calculations over eight years in order to avoid a finding of negligence. Columbia has no evidence that NCRIC disregarded standard procedures or in any way neglected to perform the calculations in good faith to the best of its ability such that NCRIC should have know the calculations presented to Columbia were false. Therefore, Count Eight for negligent misrepresentation fails.

E. COLUMBIA'S CLAIM FOR CONVERSION FAILS BECAUSE IT IS NO MORE THAN A DEMAND FOR PAYMENT UNDER THE RETRO PLAN (COUNT ELEVEN)

In 1997 Columbia agreed to pay $1 million on a balance of approximately $1.7 million due to NCRIC under the Retro Plan. See Exs. 8, 9, 28. Columbia now alleges that NCRIC's failure to return this money constitutes conversion to the extent it was owed Return Premium. See Counterclaims ¶¶ 57, 60, 165-68. Columbia is flat wrong. "[A] cause of action for conversion . . . may not be maintained to enforce a mere obligation to pay money." Curaflex Health Servs., Inc. v. Bruni, 877 F. Supp. 30, 32 (D.D.C. 1995); Van Dorn Retail Mgmt., Inc. v.

16d-001160

Sovran Bank/DC Nat'l, Inc., No. Civ. A. 90-2974, 1991 WL 222061, at *7 (D.D.C. Oct. 9, 1991). This is precisely what Columbia has alleged -- that NCRIC owes Columbia money based on a perceived overpayment under the Retro Plan.

There can be no dispute that the $1 million payment was intended as a premium applied against the total amount due under the Retro Plan. Indeed, following approval by the D.C. Insurance Commission, NCRIC treated the $1 million as paid premium and credited Columbia with the amount on all future Retro Plan calculations. See Fargis Dep. III at 638; Beaulieu Dep. at 38-39; Rifka Dep. II 104-05; Fargis Dep. I at 374-75; Ex. 28 (describing the $1 million payment as part of the "outstanding balance" of the Retro Plan). While the parties differ as to whether the $1 million payment was intended to be labeled a "deposit" or a "premium," the dispute does not concern a material fact and clearly does not preclude judgment in favor of NCRIC.

In Lawson v. Commonwealth Land Title Insurance Co., 518 A.2d 174 (Md. Ct. Spec. App. 1986), the Court held that where a plaintiff sent a check for more money [than] he owed defendant, and defendant cashed the check, and no longer had any identifiable proceeds from the check, the action was nothing more than a contract claim to recover a debt and not a cognizable claim for conversion. Id. at 177. This case is indistinguishable. Columbia has not, and cannot, point to a "specific," "identical" or "identifiable" set of proceeds. See Curaflex, 877 F. Supp. at 32. Columbia's assertion today, that it did not owe the $1 million payment, does not translate into a conversion claim. Count Eleven must be dismissed as a matter of law.[19]

---

19 Moreover, because NCRIC's initial possession of the funds allegedly converted was lawful, Columbia must make a demand for return in order to establish the adverse nature of the possession required for a conversion claim. See Furash & Co. v. McClave, 130 F. Supp. 2d 48, 58 (D.D.C. 2001). Columbia never made such a demand, and there is nothing in the record to suggest otherwise. See Wilson Dep. I at 126-29 (discussing that Columbia

VI. ALL OF COLUMBIA'S CLAIMS FAIL AS A MATTER OF LAW AS ITS DAMAGES ARE SPECULATIVE

Each of Columbia's claims require damages as an essential element. As such, it is incumbent upon Columbia to put forward evidence of damages which were proximately caused by NCRIC's conduct. Columbia has not, and cannot, do so. To phrase it another way, NCRIC is entitled to summary judgment if it can demonstrate Columbia's inability to prove any of the elements of its tort claims, including damages. See Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 322.

While it is true that "'damages are not required to be proven with mathematical certainty, there must be some reasonable basis on which to estimate damages.'" Executive Sandwich Shoppe, Inc. v. Carr Realty Corp., 749 A.2d 724, 737 (D.C. 2000) (citation omitted). Summary judgment is appropriate where a party fails to offer proof of more than speculative damages. Ibrahim v. University of the District of Columbia, 742 A.2d 879, 881 n. 2 (D.C. 1999). See, e.g. Fowler v. A&A Co., 262 A.2d 344, 349 (D.C. 1970) ("[T]rial court cannot award damages on speculation and properly denied recovery of this claim.").

In its Rule 26(b)(4) statement, Columbia informed NCRIC and this Court that its proposed expert damages witness would provide testimony:

> with regard to the calculation of damages proximately caused by NCRIC's torts, including (1) the economic effects, such as lost revenue from decreased patient volume, of certain practice groups moving their practices from Columbia to competing hospitals, and any reputational harms stemming from related events; (2) the lost revenue resulting from the non-occurrence of specific fundraising activities and events; and (3) the loss of specific sources of financing and partnership opportunities that otherwise would have been available to Columbia.
>
> The substance of the facts and opinions to which Mr. Ben Ezra is expected to testify is: that, as a proximate result of NCRIC's torts, Columbia has suffered and will suffer economic harm including loss of revenue, damaged reputation in the community, and loss of good will....

suggested the payment be credited towards a new Retro Plan and that there were "discussions" about remittance of the amount, not a demand).

16d-001162

See Columbia's Rule 26(b)(4) statement, attached as Exhibit 38.

Contrary to Columbia's representation, Peter Ben Ezra[20] did little analysis or calculating. Specifically, Mr. Ben Ezra admitted that he did no damage calculations and had no conclusions (and did no investigation) resulting from NCRIC's alleged torts concerning: (1) loss of good will (Ben Ezra Dep. at 10-11); (2) damaged reputation in the community (Ben Ezra Dep. at 11); (3) loss of specific sources of financing and partnership opportunities (Ben Ezra Dep. at 11); and (4) lost revenue from the non-occurrence fundraising activities and events (Ben Ezra Dep. at 10-14).

With respect to the single damage claim for which he attempted to establish a number (estimated lost cashflow), Mr. Ben Ezra: (a) simply accepted as true the representation of counsel with respect to the doctors who allegedly left Columbia (Ben Ezra Dep. at 140); (b) did no analysis or investigation why doctors left Columbia (Ben Ezra Dep. at 140); (c) did no analysis or research to determine causation (Ben Ezra Dep. at 133);[21] (d) presumed that each doctor would work until he or she turned age 65 without reviewing any studies or analysis concerning the retirement age of physicians (Ben Ezra Dep. at 154-55); and (e) assumed a 20 20 Mr. Ben Ezra is not the typical disinterested proposed expert witness. Mr. Ben Ezra is the Chairman of the Board of Columbia. See Ben Ezra Dep. at 23. Indeed, in the event any of Columbia's claims survive summary judgment, NCRIC will move to strike or exclude Mr. Ben Ezra's testimony as he simply accepted Columbia's counsel's representations concerning the doctors involved as true, presumed causation, performed no analysis or investigation related to the other factors which may have been involved in a doctor's decision to leave or reduce the number of patients he or she admitted to Columbia, and cannot be considered objective. See, e.g., Obelisk Corp. v. Riggs Nat'l Bank, 668 A.2d 847, 855 n.5 (D.C. 1995) ("We do agree with the trial judge, however, that the testimony of an independent expert might have made [the party's] lost future earnings claim less speculative.").

21 "Question: 'I just want to make clear, you don't have any information with respect to causation? You're not here for that purpose, are you?' Answer: 'No. I was just given a list and ran my analysis.' " (Ben Ezra Dep. at 133).

year damage projection without offering any facts as to why he selected that time period (Ben Ezra Dep. at 151-153).

As the declaration of Mary Woodford, a director at PriceWaterhouseCoopers confirms, Mr. Ben Ezra's damage calculations are so flawed as to be rank speculation unable to survive scrutiny of a summary judgment motion. Specifically, Mr. Ben Ezra's damage report rests on pure speculation in that: (1) it provides no analysis as to which physicians left, or reduced, their patient admissions to Columbia; (2) it makes long term projections based on only one year of data; (3) it relies on inaccurate data; (4) it assumes lost cash flow would accrue for a long period of time; (5) it assumes the marginal cost of providing hospital services is 30%; and (6) it lacks any independent inquiry. See Woodford Declaration, attached as Exhibit 3, ¶¶ 6-26.

It is well settled in the District of Columbia that "'expert testimony is required ... when the subject matter at issue is 'so distinctly related to some science, profession, business or occupation as to be beyond the ken of the average layman.'"" Columbus Props, Inc. v. O'Connell, 644 A.2d 444, 447 (D.C. 1994) (citations omitted). Indeed, "where the existence of substantial future economic loss becomes an issue, the use of expert testimony likely would be necessary since seldom will lay witnesses possess the requisite background to testify on a matter such as this one not likely to be within the common knowledge of the average layman. In sum, 'the complexities of economics, no less than those of medicine, merit the assistance of expert testimony, so important to an adequate assessment of plaintiff's damages.'" District of Columbia v. Barriteau, 399 A.2d 563, 568-69 (D.C. 1979) (citation omitted).[22]

22 Columbia recognized that damages concerning complex issues such as loss of income related to physicians changing hospitals, loss of goodwill, damage to reputation, and loss of other economic opportunities are beyond the testimony of lay witnesses when it filed its Rule 26(b)(4) report. Any subsequent effort by Columbia to use lay testimony in an effort to rehabilitate what it failed to do during discovery must be rejected as improper speculation.

16d-001164

In Lucas v. United States Army Corps of Engineers, 789 F. Supp. 14 (D.D.C. 1992), the plaintiff's alleged "loss of goodwill and diminution in their professional reputation" was based on the alleged wrongful acts of the defendant. In rejecting such damage claims at summary judgment, the court held that such concerns are "merely speculative" and even if the plaintiffs could show some actionable breach, "plaintiffs' theory that this alleged breach caused substantive damage is purely speculative." Id. at 18-19. As discussed above, Columbia has failed to provide any facts demonstrating that NCRIC caused any doctor to leave Columbia, and provided only raw speculation relating to only one category of alleged damages. Without proof of damages, Columbia's tort counterclaims in Counts Four, Five, Nine and Ten fail on summary judgment.

VII. NCRIC IS ENTITLED TO SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE AMENDED COMPLAINT

A. SUMMARY JUDGMENT IS APPROPRIATE FOR INSURANCE CONTRACT CASES IN WHICH THE CONTRACT LANGUAGE IS CLEAR AND UNAMBIGUOUS

District of Columbia law is clear that where contract language is not ambiguous, summary judgment is appropriate because "'a written contract duly signed and executed speaks for itself and binds the parties without the necessity of extrinsic evidence.'" Byrd v. Allstate Ins. Co., 622 A.2d 691, 693 (D.C. 1993) (citation omitted). See also Cameron v. USAA Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 733 A.2d 965, 968 (D.C. 1999) (affirming summary judgment in favor of an insurance company based on a dispute as to contract language). Indeed, a court need not deem a contract "ambiguous 'merely because the parties do not agree on the interpretation of the contract provisions in question.'" Id. at 968 (citation omitted). "[W]hether or not a contract is ambiguous is a question of law." Sacks v. Rothberg, 569 A.2d 150, 154 (D.C. 1990).

In reviewing a contract for ambiguity, the court is to make such a determination on the "'face of the language itself, giving that language its plain meaning, without reference to any rules of construction.'" Id. (citation omitted). When an insurance contract is clear and unambiguous, it will be enforced by the courts as written, so long as it does not violate a statute or public policy. Smalls v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 678 A.2d 32, 35 (D.C. 1996); Cameron, 733 A.2d at 968.

Summary judgment is appropriate here because the Retro Policy language is unambiguous, there is no evidence that NCRIC acted contrary to any language in the policy, and the unrebutted evidence is that NCRIC set loss reserves at an appropriate rate. See Burgess Decl. ¶¶ 6-14.

B. SUMMARY JUDGMENT IN FAVOR OF NCRIC ON LIABILITY IS PROPER

Even if this Court were to hold that the amount of damages suffered by NCRIC is reasonably contested, the fact that Columbia breached the Retro Plan is not. It is well established in D.C. that summary judgment on the issue of liability alone is proper, even if there is a genuine issue as to the amount of damages. See D.C. Sup. Ct. R. 56(c); see also Alger Corp. v. Wesley, 355 A.2d 794 (D.C. 1976). Because NCRIC fully performed all of its obligations under the Retro Plan, Columbia's failure to perform constitutes a breach.

This case is about Columbia's attempt to escape its obligation of payment under the Retro Plan. Columbia attempts to distract the Court's attention by raising a myriad of counterclaims, which as discussed above, are nothing but unsupported conclusions. The evidence in this case boils down to one simple fact -- that NCRIC fully and properly performed its obligations under the Retro Plan and Columbia did not. For example, as discussed above, there is no dispute that NCRIC performed the quarterly estimations and annual reconciliations required under the Retro Plan. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 9, 20; Ex. 37. Those calculations are based upon the predetermined formulas negotiated between the parties. If an error was discovered during a subsequent calculation, that error was corrected. See Fargis Decl. ¶ 20. Columbia's assertions that NCRIC failed to perform the reconciliations properly should be disregarded because they are not supported by any facts in the record.

NCRIC was obligated to notify Columbia of the Retro Premium calculations within 60 days of each reconciliation date. Columbia does not provide any evidence that NCRIC failed to provide the required notice. NCRIC also set the loss reserves in the ordinary course of its business, precisely what it was required to do under the Retro Plan. See Ex. 4 ¶ 7; Burgess Decl. ¶ 14. In short, NCRIC fully performed under the Retro Plan. As a matter of law, Columbia's failure to pay is a breach. NCRIC is entitled to summary judgment on liability.

VIII. CONCLUSION

For the reasons detailed in this memorandum and in the attached declarations and exhibits, summary judgment should be granted to NCRIC on all the remaining counts in Columbia's Amended Counterclaim and summary judgment should be granted to NCRIC on its Amended Complaint.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIVIL DIVISION

NCRIC, INC.,
Plaintiff,	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar #8
v.	Judge Blackburne-Rigsby
COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC.,	Next Event: Motions Deadline -- February 7, 2002
Defendant.

NCRIC'S STATEMENT OF MATERIAL FACTS

Pursuant to D.C. Superior Court Rule 12-I(k), Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC") submits this statement of material facts as to which there are no genuine issues in support of its motion for summary judgment against Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"):

1. In approximately 1993, Columbia requested that NCRIC work with them to create a malpractice insurance program for the physicians at the hospital to help reduce the cost to physicians through a sharing of malpractice risk between the hospital and physician. (Fargis Declaration ¶ 5, attached as Exhibit 1 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

2. Columbia hoped this program would make physicians loyal to its facility and that resulting patient admissions might increase. (Fargis Declaration ¶ 5).

3. NCRIC has not previously, nor does it today, restrict a physician to admitting patients at a particular hospital. That choice is strictly the decision of each physician. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 6).

4. The original three year Columbia Retro Plan ("Retro Plan") was administered and insured by NCRIC. (Exhibit 4 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

5. The Retro Plan provided a 19% discount to physicians on their malpractice premiums. (Exhibit 4 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

6. In exchange for the premium amount credited, Columbia agreed to pay the amount of credit should losses under the program reach a certain level. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 7).

7. A retrospective rating plan, such as the Retro Plan, requires a "reconciliation" that looks back over each year to compare the premium to the claims to determine: (1) if additional premium is due to the insurance company, should losses under the plan exceed the premium by a predetermined calculation; or (2) if a return of premium is due the hospital, should losses have been favorable based on a predetermined calculation. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 8).

8. The Retro Plan is driven by two key financial factors: (1) the premiums paid by the physicians; and (2) the claimed losses incurred by the physicians. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 13).

9. The reconciliation includes a "reserve" amount for claims that represent a potential liability and the associated expenses of handling the claim, such as attorneys' fees and costs. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 10).

10. NCRIC and Columbia agreed not to begin making actual payments to one another until all claims for a certain year reached final resolution, i.e., until all of the pending claims were closed. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 10).

11. The decision to defer making payments until the claims for each year were closed was made largely because of the recognition that reserve amounts could change, which would cause fluctuations in the reconciliation with payments possibly being made simultaneously between both parties at the time of a reconciliation. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 10).

12. Every three months a reconciliation is made for each year in the Retro Plan to determine the amount of Additional Premium owed to NCRIC or Return Premium due to Columbia. This is called the Retro Premium. (Exhibit 4 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

13. Those calculations are, in part, based on open claims, and are correct to the best of NCRIC's knowledge. If an error is discovered during a subsequent calculation, that error would be corrected. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 20).

14. To the extent an error is uncovered during a quarterly reconciliation of the Retro Plan, such an error would not impact Columbia because NCRIC and Columbia agreed not to pay any Additional Premium or Return Premium until the claims were closed. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 21).

15. To determine if the appropriate premium amounts were collected to pay losses under the Retro Plan, the Retro Premium (as calculated based on a preset formula and more further described in the Fargis Declaration) is then compared to the Deposit Premium. If the Retro Premium is less than the Deposit Premium, the premium is due to Columbia. If the Retro Premium is more than the Deposit Premium, Columbia owes NCRIC the additional premium to pay against the losses. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 17).

16. A "floor" and a "ceiling" are set to financially protect both Columbia and NCRIC from large swings in risk. To illustrate, if total losses were exorbitant (130% of total), then this would cap Columbia's risk. If losses were extremely favorable (60% of total), then NCRIC is protected. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 17(c)).

17. In December 1995, at the end of the second year of the Retro Plan, the reconciliation revealed that Columbia was due to be paid some Return Premium for year 1 of the program. (Fargis Decl. ¶ 9).

18. In late 1995, Columbia requested the Retro Plan be amended to increase the physicians' premium discount to 30%. (Exhibit 5 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

19. NCRIC and Columbia negotiated the accompanying changes to the Deposit Premium, from 81% to 62 %, to accommodate the increased discount. (Exhibit 5 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

20. The parties amended the Retro Plan with the revised discount and Deposit Premium in effect from January 1, 1996 forward. (Exhibit 6 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

21. The parties also agreed to renew the Retro Plan effective September 1, 1996. (Fargis Deposition dated July 31, 2001, attached as Exhibit 45 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Fargis II") at 450).

22. In November 1996, NCRIC representatives met twice with Columbia's Finance Committee to present and explain the first Reconciliation under the Retro Plan and proposed new revisions to the discount and premium calculations. (Exhibit 7 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Fargis Deposition dated July 30, 2001, attached as Exhibit 44 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Fargis I") at 210-17).

23. During these meetings, the NCRIC representatives explained that a Return Premium of approximately $159,000 was due to Columbia for the first year (1993-94), but Additional Premiums of approximately $417,000 were due to NCRIC for the next two years (1994-95 and 1995-96). (Exhibit 7 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

24. Because the claims from these periods were still pending, these prior years were not yet "closed-out" and these calculations were subject to change with each subsequent reconciliation. (Fargis I Dep. at 211-12).

25. NCRIC and the Finance Committee recognized that if payments were exchanged at the time of each reconciliation as described in the Retro Plan, then checks would be exchanged back and forth between Columbia and NCRIC as the numbers changed up to the time that the year "closed-out." (Fargis I Dep. at 211-12).

26. The parties agreed to avoid such interim payments and instead only exchange money when a year was "closed-out" under the plan. Therefore, neither NCRIC nor Columbia made any payments under the Retro Plan as a result of the fall 1996 Reconciliation Calculation. (Exhibit 7 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Fargis I Dep. at 214-15).

27. In 1997, the hospital faced a crisis when its Board of Directors "imploded" in the midst of a conflict of interest and financial kickback scandal and the hospital was put into receivership. (Ben Ezra Deposition, attached as Exhibit 42 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment, at 34-36).

28. Columbia was also fighting a lawsuit by one of its largest creditors, The Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, regarding Columbia's line of credit. (Ben Ezra Dep. at 38-39).

29. In early 1998, Columbia filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code, in large part to stem seizure of assets by the Bank of Tokyo. (Ben Ezra Dep. at 39).

30. Media coverage throughout 1998 and 1999 recounted the history of Columbia's financial difficulties throughout the decade, as the hospital dealt with increased pressures from the rise of managed care and competition from suburban hospitals, which resulted in decreased revenues at Columbia. (Exhibit 11 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Beaulieu Deposition, attached as Exhibit 41 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment, at 78-80); (Gasser Deposition, attached as Exhibit 48 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment at 66-68).

31. Columbia emerged from bankruptcy in 1999, but continued to have financial difficulties. (Ben Ezra Dep. at 75-77).

32. As a result of Columbia's cost-saving measures, doctors at Columbia were faced with shortages of supplies and inadequate staffing. (Asterbadi Deposition, attached as Exhibit 40 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment, at 133-35); (Gasser Dep. at 120-21, 140); (Ben Ezra Dep. at 176-77); (Exhibit 12 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

33. Columbia's admissions also continued to be lower than projected in 1999. (Exhibit 21 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

34. In 1997, Columbia and NCRIC began negotiations regarding the possible renewal of the Retro Plan. These negotiations were challenging because of Columbia's financial difficulties. (Fargis I Dep. at 348).

35. Because of Columbia's impending bankruptcy, NCRIC requested, and Columbia provided, financial security of $1 million to cover part of Columbia's then-current liability under the Retro Plan. (Exhibit 8 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Exhibit 9 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Beaulieu Dep. at 45-47).

36. Following approval by the D.C. Insurance Commission, NCRIC treated these installments as payments on premium and credited Columbia with $1 million in paid premium on all future Retro Plan calculations. (Exhibits 33 & 37 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Fargis I Dep. at 278).

37. The 1996 changes also were reflected in the Addendum signed in January 1998 to the Retro Plan which extended the Retro Plan to September 1, 1998. (Exhibit 10 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

38. The Modifications to the Retro Plan applied the new discount for claims in 1996, 1997 and 1998, and made appropriate mathematical changes to the Deposit Premium and the Development Factor for those periods. (Exhibit 10 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

39. During 1998, while Columbia was in bankruptcy, Columbia's administration sought proposals from various insurance brokers regarding possible alternatives to a renewal of the Retro Plan. (Exhibit 13 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

40. After reviewing the proposals, the Columbia Board of Directors approved the choice of an insurance plan supplied by the Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX") in August 1998 and presented this program to the medical staff. (Exhibit 13 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

41. Similar to presentations made to Columbia personnel by MIIX, NCRIC made a series of presentations to the Medical Staff at Columbia and the Board of Directors in late September and early October 1998 regarding the continuation of the Retro Plan. (Beaulieu Dep. at 94-95).

42. At these meetings, NCRIC explained the history of the Retro Plan and its operation and compared the various costs and benefits between the MIIX proposal and a renewal of the Retro Plan. (Exhibit 14 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

43. The Columbia Board of Directors subsequently withdrew its endorsement of the MIIX proposal, in part, because many physicians at the hospital contacted the Board and stated that they wanted the hospital to renew a plan with NCRIC. (Exhibit 17 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Beaulieu Dep. at 19-20).

44. Most doctors cited long-standing relationships with NCRIC and a hesitancy to switch to a new carrier. (Beaulieu Dep. at 34-35).

45. Columbia and NCRIC signed an amendment in December 1998 which renewed the Retro Plan until September 1, 1999. (Exhibit 20 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

46. In August 1998, NCRIC performed a reconciliation calculation that included the calculation of Return Premium due to Columbia after the closure of all the claims from the first year of the program (1993-94). Because this year was now "closed out," NCRIC paid Columbia a Return Premium of $172,815 for 1993-94. (Exhibit 18 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

47. In October 1998, Columbia asked NCRIC to provide a proposal for a separate insurance policy which would cover doctors working in the ambulatory clinic at Columbia (the "Clinic") who were then covered under Columbia's Self Insured Trust. (Exhibit 16 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

48. Following negotiations, NCRIC issued the "Medical Entity Policy" effective December 1, 1998 to December 1, 1999. (Exhibit 19 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

49. This policy was a standard group insurance policy which covered the physicians practicing medicine at Columbia's Clinic for professional liability in return for the payment of a set premium each year. (Exhibit 19 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

50. In the fall of 1999, NCRIC and Columbia renewed both the Retro Plan and the Medical Entity Policy until September 1, 2000 and December 1, 2000, respectively. (Exhibit 23 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment); (Sohm Deposition, attached as Exhibit 52 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment, at 123).

51. During the spring of 2000, Columbia requested NCRIC propose a transitional plan to replace the Retro Plan with a new program which did not require a retroactively calculated premium. (Exhibit 24 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

52. NCRIC proposed a method of "closing out" the Retro Plan and converting the program to a guaranteed cost contract which would discontinue the retroactive calculations from previous years of the Retro Plan. (Exhibit 24 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

53. The parties negotiated the one-time cost that Columbia would have to pay to accomplish such a close out throughout the spring and summer of 2000. (Exhibit 24 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

54. In July 2000, Columbia rejected NCRIC's condition of a close out payment of $750,000. (Exhibit 25 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

55. Because negotiations appeared at an impasse, NCRIC informed Columbia that the Retro Plan would expire on its contractual end date of September 1, 2000. (Exhibit 32 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

56. Although both parties continued to negotiate a possible renewal of the Retro Plan in good faith, these discussions also failed to resolve the disagreements between the parties. (Exhibit 29 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

57. As obligated under the Retro Plan, NCRIC performed a yearly reconciliation and sent the calculation with a request for payment of the Additional Premium due from Columbia on September 1, 2000. (Exhibit 33 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

58. Since September 1, 2000, NCRIC has continued to provide Columbia with the quarterly and yearly calculation statements required by the Retro Plan, including a yearly reconciliation statement and request for Additional Premium due for the 2000-2001 year. (Exhibit 37 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

59. During the first half of 2000, NCRIC became aware that Columbia's Self Insurance Trust Fund, which was responsible for paying Columbia's share of claims, was severely underfunded and could not support Columbia's financial obligations for these claims. (Wilson Deposition dated July 16, 2001, attached as Exhibit 53 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Wilson II") at 305); (Fargis Deposition dated January, 10, 2002, attached as Exhibit 46 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Fargis III") at 551, 830).

60. As a result, on June 30, 2000, NCRIC notified Columbia that it would exercise its right to cancel the Medical Entity Policy effective August 15, 2000. (Exhibit 26 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

61. Columbia appealed the cancellation of the Policy to the D.C. Commissioner of Insurance (Exhibit 27 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

62. The D.C. Commissioner of Insurance determined that NCRIC legally canceled the policy due to the increased risk to NCRIC caused by Columbia's depleted Self Insurance Trust Fund, but extended the date of cancellation to September 15, 2000. (Exhibit 35 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

63. Due to the underwriting and financial risks associated with Columbia's depleted Self Insurance Trust Fund, and to avoid double coverage, on October 1, 2000, NCRIC issued an endorsement to the individual insurance policies of all doctors practicing at the Clinic. (Exhibit 34 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

64. The endorsement excluded from coverage any activities in the Clinic after November 15, 2000. (Exhibit 34 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

65. Columbia again appealed to the D.C. Insurance Commission for reconsideration of its decision upholding the cancellation of the Medical Entity Policy and challenging the validity of the individual exclusionary endorsements issued. (Exhibit 36 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

66. The D.C. Insurance Commission ruled that NCRIC provided a proper and valid cancellation of the policy and was within its regulatory authority to issue the exclusionary endorsement. (Exhibit 36 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

67. Columbia has not paid NCRIC any Additional Premium charged by NCRIC under the terms of the Retro Plan since September 1, 2000. (Rifka Deposition dated January, 21, 2002, attached as Exhibit 51 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Rifka II") at 255).

68. Based on the most recent calculation, Columbia owes NCRIC approximately $2.1 million, after applying the $1 million premium payment made by Columbia to secure continuation of the program in 1998. (Exhibit 37 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment).

16d-001180

69. Since the expiration of the Retro Plan, Columbia has provided its physicians with an insurance plan from another company which provides lower premiums for each doctor than the Retro Plan. (Exhibit 31); (Fargis Decl. ¶ 19); (Rifka Deposition dated June 21, 2001, attached as Exhibit 50 to NCRIC's Memorandum of Law in Support of NCRIC's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Rifka I") at 161).

NCRIC, INC., Plaintiff/Counter-Defendant, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Defendant/Counter-Plaintiff.	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar 8 -- Judge Blackburn-Rigsby Next Event: Dispositive Motions Filed, February 7, 2002

DEFENDANT'S STATEMENT OF MATERIAL FACTS NOT IN DISPUTE

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., respectfully submits this Statement of Material Facts Not in Dispute pursuant to Superior Court Civil Rule of Procedure 12-I(k).

Parties

1. Columbia is a non-profit hospital specializing in care for women.

2. NCRIC provides malpractice liability insurance to physicians in, among other jurisdictions, the District of Columbia.

Retro Plan

3. On or about October 23, 1993, Columbia and NCRIC entered into the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Retro Plan" or "Plan") (Exhibit 1 hereto). See Reply of Plaintiff to Amended Counterclaims 1 and 2 of Defendant ("Amended Reply") ¶ 4.

4. The Plan was drafted by representatives of NCRIC, see Amended Reply ¶ 4, including David Little and/or David Bickerstaff, see Answers of Plaintiff to Interrogatories of Defendant ("Interrogatory Response No.") (Exhibit 22 hereto), Response No. 16.

5. The Plan was to be effective for three years, from September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1996. See Retro Plan, Exh. A at 1, ¶ 1.

6. The parties agreed to two, related amendments of the Plan in January 1996. See Letter from Susan M. Hansen to Stephen Fargis, dated January 17, 1996 ("Hansen Letter") (amending Attending Faculty discount) (Exhibit 2 hereto); Amended Reply ¶ 16; Retrospective Rating Plan Amendment A ("Amendment A") (amending Deposit Premium due to amendment in discount) (Exhibit 3 hereto); see Amended Reply ¶ 17; Letter from Stephen S. Fargis to Susan M. Hansen dated January 22, 1996 ("1/22/96 Fargis Letter") (attaching copy of Amendment A signed by Mr. Fargis) (Exhibit 16 hereto). Amendment A was drafted by Mr. Fargis. See Amended Reply ¶ 17.

7. The Plan initially expired on September 1, 1996. See Transcript of Stephen S. Fargis Deposition ("Fargis Dep.") (Exhibit 24 hereto), at 321-22, 343, 349. Soon thereafter, on November 7, November 20, and December 18, 1996, NCRIC representatives Steve Fargis and William Burgess met with Columbia's Board of Directors, and the Finance Committee of the Board. Id. at 309-27. Based on NCRIC's representations at that meeting about the cost of the Plan, Columbia agreed to renew the Plan, effective January 1, 1997, for one year. The parties engaged in extensive negotiations concerning new terms for the Plan, but did not agree on the terms of the amendment. See id. at 397-407, 423-25.

8. NCRIC admits that the Retro Plan subsequently was renewed by three separate addenda. First, on or about January 26, 1998, representatives of NCRIC and Columbia signed an addendum with an effective date of September 1, 1996. See Addendum to Retrospective Rating Plan ("Addendum") (Exhibit 4 hereto); Amended Reply ¶ 22. Second, on or about December 3, 1998, representatives of NCRIC and Columbia signed an addendum with an effective date of September 1, 1998. See Addendum B to Retrospective Rating Plan ("Addendum B") (Exhibit 5 hereto). Third, on or about August 23, 1999, representatives of NCRIC and Columbia signed an addendum with an effective date of September 1, 1999. See Addendum B-1999 to Retrospective Rating Plan ("Addendum B-1999") (Exhibit 6 hereto); Amended Reply ¶ 25. NCRIC drafted each of these amendments. See Amended Reply ¶¶ 16, 22, 25.

9. On June 28, 2000, NCRIC informed Columbia that the Retro Plan was "terminated" effective September 1, 2000. NCRIC's notice of "termination" failed to provide Columbia with "(90) days' written notice prior to the end of any Experience Period," as required by the Plan. See Retro Plan at 4, ¶ 15. Yet, even if the Plan was discontinued, it "remain[s] in full force and effect until . . . [all] Experience Period[s] . . . are finally closed." Id. ¶ 12.

Attending Faculty Discount

10. Columbia and NCRIC entered into the Plan in order to share the risk of sponsoring a discount on NCRIC medical malpractice liability insurance for a group of physicians practicing at Columbia, known as "Attending Faculty." Under the Plan, each Attending Faculty member was to receive a Retrospective Rating Plan Endorsement from NCRIC, which entitled the holder to a substantial discount off the premium for $500,000 of malpractice coverage by NCRIC. See Retro Plan at 2, ¶ 2 & Exh. A at 2, ¶ 2.

11. When the parties entered into the Retro Plan, the premium discount ("Attending Faculty discount") was 19% off the cost of $500,000 in malpractice coverage. See Retro Plan Exh. A at 1, ¶ 2 ("premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 . . . shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage"). The discount to physicians remained at that level through December 31, 1995.

12. The Attending Faculty discount increased to 33% effective September 1, 1995. See Addendum at 3, ¶ 2 ("premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants . . . shall be discounted by 33% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage").

13. This increase in the Attending Faculty discount was not retroactive. See id. (Attending Faculty discount changed to 67% only "for the last three periods [of the Retro Plan] ending 1996, 1997 and 1998 respectively"); accord Addendum B at 4, ¶ 2 ("premium charged to and paid by Plan Participants for coverage limits of $500,000 . . . shall be discounted by 19% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage in the first two years of the Plan and 33% of the otherwise applicable premium for such coverage in the remaining two years of the Plan"). That is, the discount did not cause NCRIC to refund premium to Attending Faculty.

14. Nor did the increase in the Attending Faculty discount, to 33%, actually occur on September 1, 1995. In fact, the discount changed on January 1, 1996. See Hansen Letter (increasing discount effective January 1, 1996). As such, a higher discount – 38%, see Amendment A at 1 – was used temporarily, to give effect to the 33% discount over the course of the September 1, 1995 to September 1, 1996 year. Using a 38% discount for three quarters after employing a 19% discount for one quarter resulted in a 33% discount for the year [i.e., (¼ * 19%) + (¾ * 38%) = approximately 33%)].

Operation of Retro Formula

15. The Plan was originally comprised of three one-year periods, called Experience Periods. See Retro Plan, Exh. A at 2. The first Experience Period ran from September 1, 1993 to September 1, 1994; the second Experience Period ran from September 1, 1994 to September 1, 1995; the third Experience Period ran from September 1, 1995 to September 1, 1996. See id.

16. Subsequent amendments, NCRIC admits, added the fourth and fifth Experience Periods, from September 1, 1996 to September 1, 1998; see Addendum at 4, ¶ 5; the sixth Experience Period, from on September 1, 1998 to September 1, 1999, see Addendum B at 5, ¶ 5; and the seventh Experience Period from September 1, 1999 to September 1, 2000, see Addendum B-1999 at 1, ¶ 5. No additional Experience Periods have been added since then.

17. The Retro Plan calls for NCRIC to perform retrospective calculations, or Reconciliations, each year, starting with September 1, 1996. See Addendum B at 5 (schedule listing "First Reconciliation Date" for each corresponding Experience Period); Addendum B-1999 at 1 (same); see also Retro Plan, Exh. A at 3 (same); Addendum at 4 (same).

18. Individual Experience Periods are reconciled separately to determine whether, for that such Period, Columbia owes NCRIC money or vice versa. Then, the amount for each Experience Period is added up to obtain a cumulative total. See Addendum B at 5, ¶ 4; see also Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 4; Addendum at 4, ¶ 4.

19. Typically, after each Reconciliation, NCRIC provides Columbia with a spreadsheet listing all the individual Experience Periods, with a cumulative total at the right side. See, e.g., Fargis Dep., at 653 & Exh. 67 ("Columbia Hospital for Women Retro-Program Years Sept 01, 1993 – August 31, 2000" (9/1/00)) ("September 1, 2000 Reconciliation") (Exhibit 10 hereto). NCRIC is required to provide this spreadsheet, or similar notice, within 60 days of the end of each Experience Period – after which time Columbia has 30 days to pay any premium due. See Addendum B ¶ 5; see also Retro Plan, ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5. Further, Reconciliations are performed anew, every year for every Experience Period. This repeated recalculation continues to occur until all claims for each Period are closed. See Addendum B ¶ 5; see also Retro Plan, ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5.

Terms of the Plan

20. Subject Premium is "the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician[s] for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim . . . if the physician[s] were not Plan Participants." Addendum B ¶ 7, at 8; see also Addendum ¶ 7, at 6.

21. All premiums under the Retro Plan are calculated by applying multipliers to the Subject Premium. As such, it is an extremely important number to be able to evaluate. However, the process by which NCRIC calculates the Subject Premium is opaque, since the Plan only provides a range, not an exact formula. See Addendum B ¶ 7, at 8 (explaining that the Subject Premium "shall not exceed 85%, nor be less than 70% of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million); Addendum ¶ 7, at 6 (same). Further, the Plan puts the actual determination of the amount of Subject Premium in the hands of NCRIC's consulting actuary. See Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 4 (Subject Premium is "determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary"). Columbia has not, to date, received from NCRIC the data necessary to perform a full audit the Subject Premium number. (Yet, even without performing even a detailed audit, Columbia has identified several errors in NCRIC's past Subject Premium calculations. See Fargis Dep., at 676-78.) Accordingly, Columbia assumes for the purposes of its motion, but does not concede, that NCRIC's Subject Premium numbers are correct.

22. The Reconciliation Date is September 1 of each year. NCRIC must complete its Reconciliation and notify Columbia of the details concerning the amount it owes, in writing, "[w]ithin (60) days" of each Reconciliation Date. See Addendum B ¶ 5; Retro Plan ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5. Columbia could not have been expected to make the complicated calculations (see infra ¶ 31) necessary to determine what was owed at each Reconciliation, particularly since it did not have access to much of the information necessary to make the calculations (e.g., information about Loss Reserves (see infra ¶ 40)). As such, NCRIC's notice is no mere formality. Indeed, the language of the Plan makes notice a condition precedent to Columbia's being liable for any amount due under the Plan. See Addendum B ¶ 5 ("Any amounts due either to or from [Columbia] shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days" after Columbia receives notice from NCRIC); accord Retro Plan ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5;

23. In the original Plan, the first Reconciliation of each Experience Period was two years after the Period ended. Since the Plan was (allegedly) amended effective September 1, 1996, Experience Periods are now reconciled for the first time just one year after they end. Compare Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 5 (schedule listing "First Reconciliation Date" for each Experience Period) with Addendum B ¶ 5 (same charts, with different dates).

24. Deposit Premium is "the Subject Premium multiplied sixty-seven (67%)." Addendum B ¶ 7, at 6; Addendum ¶ 7, at 5. The current Deposit Premium was first documented in the Addendum, which was signed in January 1998 and retroactive to September 1, 1996, see id. at 1 – yet, the actual effective date for the current Deposit Premium is September 1, 1995. As set forth in the Addendum, see id. ¶ 7, at 5, the 67% Deposit Premium was to be effective for the "three-year term of the Plan" – that is, for the most recent three Experience Periods only. This restriction was consistent with the explicit limitation on an earlier, temporary amendment to the Deposit Premium (see infra, ¶ 27), which "[did] not adjust the Agreement prior to [its effective] date" (January 1, 1996). Further, the restriction on the new Deposit Premium precisely matched the restriction on the Deposit Premium's mirror term (see infra, ¶¶ 26-28), Attending Faculty discount. See Addendum at 3, ¶ 2 (stating that the new Attending Faculty discount applies only to the last three periods of the Plan, "ending 1996, 1997 and 1998"). In short, the Addendum modified the Deposit Premium so that – as NCRIC concedes (see infra ¶¶ 26, 29) – the 67% number does not apply to the 1993-94 and 1994-95 Experience Periods, in any Reconciliation.

25. Originally, the Plan defined Deposit Premium as "the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%)," Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3 (emphasis added). By making Deposit Premium (1) the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount (which is the Subject Premium less a 19% discount, see supra, ¶ 26) and (2) a set-off against the Retrospective Premium (which is the actual cost of providing the insurance, see infra ¶ 26), the Plan carefully defined the role of Deposit Premium: it is the total amount on "deposit" with NCRIC as a result of the Attending Faculty premium payments for $500,000 each in medical malpractice coverage. In short, Deposit Premium is a credit to Columbia for the Attending Faculty's premium.

26. In order to retain its function as the Attending Faculty's "deposit," the Deposit Premium multiplier must remain the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount. If the Attending Faculty discount changes, the Deposit Premium must change. In fact, throughout the life of the Plan, the terms have moved together: originally, they were 81% and 19%; then, briefly, they were 62% and 38%; finally, they are 67% and 33%. (This connection is well-known to NCRIC, and particularly, Steve Fargis. See 1/22/96 Fargis Letter, at 1 (informing Columbia of the need to change the Deposit Premium to reflect the recent change in the Attending Faculty discount).)

27. Similarly, when the 67% Deposit Premium was amended effective September 1, 1995, the change occurred in exactly the same way as the change to the 33% Attending Faculty discount occurred (see supra, ¶ 14). First, the Deposit Premium actually changed on January 1, 1996, see Amendment A at 1, not on September 1, 1995. Second, a temporary Deposit Premium multiplier – here, 62% – was used to give effect to the new 67% Deposit Premium multiplier over the course of the full 1995-96 year. Third, the result was, effectively, a change on September 1, 1995 – because nine months of a 62% Deposit Premium, after three months of an 81% Deposit Premium, is the same as a 67% discount of over 12 months [i.e., (¼ * 81%) + (¾ * 62%) = approximately 67%)]. In sum, the change in the Deposit Premium to 62% occurred, on its face, simply to effectuate the new 67% Deposit Premium part-way through a Plan year.

28. Although the Plan does not make the connection between Deposit Premium and Attending Faculty discount explicit, the logic of the Plan makes the connection implicit. Indeed, NCRIC concedes that the connection exists by employing, in current Reconciliations, the 81% Deposit Premium for the Experience Periods where the Attending Faculty discount was 19%. See September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (1994-95 column). Indeed, NCRIC admits that 81% is the correct multiplier to apply for those years. See, e.g., Responses to Defendant's Requests for Admissions ("RFA Response No."), Responses No. 24-27 (Exhibit 21 hereto). As such, there is no doubt: the new Deposit Premium applies only to the last five Experience Periods.

29. In addition, there is no doubt that Deposit Premium factor stated in the Plan is 67%, not 62%. NCRIC's 30(b)(6) designee, Stephen Fargis, has repeatedly affirmed this. See, e.g., Fargis Dep. at 452, 747, 748-49, 757-58 & Exh. 78 (Letter from Stephen S. Fargis to Anne D. Gaffey, dated March 29, 2000) (Exhibit 19 hereto) ("the current contract reflects a deposit premium of 67%"). Since NCRIC drafted of the language changing the Deposit Premium – not once but twice – and also reviewed it, it knew that the Plan said 67%, not 62% from the outset.

30. Finally, the Plan's language places no limitations on the applicability of the Deposit Premium to any particular Experience Period. Yet, the term's role as the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount reflects the parties' intent to limit its applicability, as set forth above.

31. Retrospective Premium ("Retro Premium") represents, for each Experience Period, the total cost of providing $500,000 in malpractice insurance coverage to all the Attending Faculty. As such, the Retro Premium is subtracted from the Deposit Premium to determine how much is owed (and by whom) for each year. See Addendum B at 5, ¶ 6 ("The amount of additional or return premium due after each Reconciliation will be calculated by subtracting the [Retro Premium] from the applicable Deposit Premium for the subject Experience Period(s)."); see also Addendum at 4 ¶ 6 (same); Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 6 (same). Each year, the Retro Premium for each Experience Period is recalculated, see Addendum B at 5, ¶ 5; see also Addendum at 4 ¶ 5 (same); Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 5, as of each Reconciliation Date, by applying the Retrospective Rating Premium Formula ("Retro Formula"): "Retrospective Premium (Subject to established Minimum and Maximum Premium) = {[[(Loss Reserves) x (Development Factor)] + Paid Losses] x Discount Factor} + Basic Premium."

32. Minimum Premium is the minimum Retro Premium for a Experience Period, currently, "sixty percent (60%) of the Subject Premium." Addendum B ¶ 7. The language of the Plan places no limitations whatsoever on the application of the Minimum Premium to any particular Experience Period(s). See Fargis Dep. 454-55 (admitting that there is no basis in the definition of Minimum Premium for concluding that it was changed along with, or necessarily changes in concert with the Deposit Premium and/or Attending Faculty discount). Unlike with the Deposit Premium, there is no logical basis for imposing any implicit limitations on the application of the Minimum Premium to certain Experience Periods.

33. Maximum Premium is the maximum Retro Premium for a particular Experience Period, currently "one hundred and thirty-three percent (133%) of the Subject Premium." See Fargis Dep., at 453. As with the similar Minimum Premium, the Plan's definition does not limit the applicability of the Maximum Premium to any particular Experience Period(s).

34. In the original Plan, the Minimum Premium was 75% of the Subject Premium. See Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 4. The Minimum Premium was first changed in January 1998, effective September 1, 1996. See Addendum ¶ 7, at 6. (In the original Plan, the Maximum Premium was 115% of the Subject Premium; it changed to 133% effective September 1, 1996.)

35. An obvious typographical error in the first amended definition of Minimum Premium was corrected by the second amendment. (A similar error in the amended definition of Maximum Premium was similarly repaired.) Compare Addendum ¶ 7, at 6 (first amendment) ("Minimum Premium shall be equal to seventy-five percent (60%) of the Subject Premium") with Addendum B ¶ 7, at 7 (second amendment) ("Minimum Premium shall be equal to sixty percent (60%) of the Subject Premium"); accord Fargis Dep., at 152-53. NCRIC caught its prior error, and corrected it, while reviewing the first amendment and drafting the second. See id.

36. Additional Premium is indicated by a positive balance (i.e., in NCRIC's favor), either for an individual Experience Period or cumulative for the entire Plan, in a Reconciliation spreadsheet. See, e.g., September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (indicating cumulative Additional Premium of $1,286,525, and Additional Premium of $491,225 for 1995-96 Experience Period). Additional Premium exists when the Retro Premium (as limited by the Minimum Premium and Maximum Premium) is greater than the Deposit Premium. See Addendum B at 5, ¶¶ 5, 6.

37. Return Premium is indicated by a negative balance (i.e., in Columbia's favor), either for an individual Experience Period or cumulative for the entire Plan, in a Reconciliation spreadsheet. See, e.g., September 1, 1998 Reconciliation (indicating cumulative Return Premium of $669,403, and Return Premium of $177,806 for the 1994-95 Experience Period). Return Premium exists when the Retro Premium (as limited by the Minimum Premium and Maximum Premium) is less than the Deposit Premium. See Addendum B at 5, ¶¶ 5, 6.

38. Experience Period: each year of the Plan is a separate Experience Period.

39. For each Experience Period, the total Retro Premium and Deposit Premium are both recalculated, every year, until all claims for that year are closed.

40. Loss Reserves are "allocations to pay losses that have been incurred, or are likely to be incurred, and reported during the time the Plan is in effect, but that have not yet been paid." Addendum B ¶ 7, at 7; accord Addendum ¶ 7, at 6; Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 4. The reserves (which become Paid Losses if paid) fall into two categories, indemnity payments for medical malpractice claims against the Attending Faculty and expanses for defending those claims. In its Reconciliation spreadsheets, NCRIC lists Indemnity Reserves and Expense Reserves ("ALAE Reserves") separately. The two categories are tallied to obtain the total Loss Reserves.

41. Development Factors are "the factors by which Loss Reserves are multiplied for purposes" of calculating the Retro Premium. Addendum B ¶ 6. The Development Factors are a schedule of multipliers that increase as Experience Periods progress, and as a claim matures, to "develop" of NCRIC's Loss Reserves as its level of certainty about the accuracy of the Loss Reserves increases. Because of the Development Factors, Columbia was responsible (under the Plan as originally drafted) only for developed losses, not for all of NCRIC's Loss Reserves. The effect of Development Factors is that, even in the (unlikely) event that the total Loss Reserves for a particular Experience Period remain exactly the same over the course of several Reconciliations, the "developed" losses captured by the Plan will steadily increase.

42. Over time, the Plan has been amended to change the value of – but not the procedure for applying – the Development Factors. Originally, the Development Factors were:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	88.5%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	87.5%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	90.5%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	96.0%

16d-001196

Year 5 Reconciliation	-	100.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3.

43. Effective September 1, 1996, the Development Factors were lowered:

Year 1 Reconciliation	-	55.0%
Year 2 Reconciliation	-	65.0%
Year 3 Reconciliation	-	80.0%
Year 4 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
Year 5 Reconciliation	-	105.0%
All Subsequent Reconciliations	-	100.0%

Addendum, Exh. ¶ 7, at 5. This change in the amounts did not effect any substantive change in the manner in which the Development Factors were applied. See Fargis Dep., at 703-05.

44. In 1999, the parties added interim Development Factors:

Months	Factor
12	0.55 (unchanged)
15	0.58
18	0.60
21	0.63
24	0.65 (unchanged)
27	0.69
30	0.73
33	0.76
36	0.81 (unchanged)
39	0.86
42	0.93
45	0.99
48+	1.05 (unchanged)

Addendum B-1999, at 2. These interim Development Factors were solely for informational purposes, to be used in NCRIC's quarterly updates. See Fargis Dep., at 524. (In 1998, NCRIC start producing quarterly reports on a regular basis, as required by the Plan. The interim factors were merely an informational tool, use to smooth out the quarterly reconciliation updates.) Introduction of the interim factors was not intended to change, and did not in fact change, the manner in which the Development Factors were applied. See id. at 694-98, 702-03.

45. Exhibit E to the Retro Plan is explicitly an "Example of Operation of the Plan." See Retro Plan, Exh. E (header). It also is expressly incorporated into the Plan to be used "for clarification" of concepts like Development Factors. See id. at 4, ¶ 13.

46. By showing several cumulative Reconciliations, Exhibit E helps explain how they work over time. In particular, Exhibit E indicates that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of an Experience Period. For example, on Exhibit E, the first Development Factor – the "Year 1 Reconciliation," or 88.5% Development Factor (see Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3) – is always applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. To apply the current Development Factors in this way, the 12-month Factor (55%), not the 24-month Factor (65%), would be applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. Indeed, NCRIC admits that the 55% Factor was meant to replace the 88.5% Factor. See Fargis Dep., at 706-07.

47. Of course, Exhibit E, being older, is in a different format, and differs substantively from the NCRIC spreadsheets in some respects. (I.e., Exhibit E, which is part of the original Plan, was drafted to include Experience Periods two years after they were complete, like the original Plan. Moreover, Exhibit E is, as an example, based on a 1/1 Reconciliation Date rather than a 9/1 Reconciliation Date. Further, its format is something different than the NCRIC spreadsheets, in that the years move in the opposite direction.) Nonetheless, Exhibit E provides clear guidance that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of a Period.

48. NCRIC did not comport with Exhibit E in performing any of its recent Reconciliations. See Fargis Dep., at 716-18.

49. There is no dispute that the Development Factors apply to all Experience Periods.

NCRIC's Reconciliations

50. In performing Reconciliations, NCRIC uses a Deposit Premium multiplier of 62% for Experience Periods from 1995-96 to the present.. See RFAs Response Nos. 22 & 23.

51. NCRIC does not use 67% as the Deposit Premium multiplier for any Experience Period, for any Reconciliation.

52. NCRIC applies the 60% Minimum Premium multiplier only for Experience Periods beginning after September 1, 1995. See RFAs Response Nos. 87, 91, 95, 99 (referring to September 1, 2000 Reconciliation); see also September 1, 2000 Reconciliation ("Min. Factor" row at bottom of spreadsheet, four columns on right). For the first two Experience Periods (one of which it treats as closed) NCRIC uses the old 75% Minimum Premium multiplier. See RFAs Response No. 83, 105 (referring to September 1, 2000 Reconciliation); see also September 1, 2000 Reconciliation ("Min. Factor" row, column on far left).

53. NCRIC did not use the 60% Minimum Premium factor to calculate the $172,815 in Return Premium that it sent to Columbia on November 30, 1998. Rather, it used a 75% factor.

54. NCRIC applies each Development Factor the relevant number of months after an Experience Period begins, not the relevant number of months after an Experience Period ends. See e.g., September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (applying 65%, the 24-month factor, to the Experience Period beginning 24 months before the Reconciliation Date, on September 1, 1998, and ending 12 months before the Reconciliation Date, on September 1, 1999; applying 80%, the 36-month factor, to the Experience Period beginning 36 months before the Reconciliation Date, on September 1, 1997, and ending 24 months before the Reconciliation Date, on September 1, 1998; applying 105%, the 48-month-plus factor, to the Experience Period beginning 48 months before the Reconciliation Date, on September 1, 1996, and ending 36 months before the Reconciliation Date, on September 1, 1997); see also September 1, 1998 Reconciliation (same pattern); September 1, 1999 Reconciliation (same pattern).

September 1, 2001 Reconciliation

55. NCRIC did not provide Columbia with the September 1, 2001 Reconciliation. See Declaration of Joseph K. Leahy In Support of Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Leahy Decl.") (Exhibit 20 hereto) ¶ 2.

56. A spreadsheet that NCRIC sent to Columbia on September 5, 2001, which purported to be the September 1, 2001 Reconciliation of the Plan, was not, in fact, the September 1, 2001 Reconciliation. According to NCRIC (through its Rule 30(b)(6) representative Steve Fargis), the September 5 spreadsheet may have contained "certain assumptions to try to reach settlement," and therefore, it could not be counted on to reflect a proper Reconciliation. See Fargis Dep., at 655. Indeed, if the spreadsheet were the Reconciliation, it would have included a "letter requesting payment of an amount, " id. at 655-56 – which it did not, see Leahy Decl. ¶ 3.

57. Columbia never received from NCRIC any other spreadsheet purporting to be a September 1, 2001 Reconciliation spreadsheet, with or without a letter requesting a payment of an amount. Further, despite attempts to obtain the September 1, 2001 Reconciliation from NCRIC since the issue recently came to light, Columbia has not been able to obtain a September 1, 2001 Reconciliation. See Leahy Decl. ¶ 2-3. Accordingly, Columbia cannot determine the amount of Additional Premium, if any, that was due as of September 1, 2001.

Oral Agreement Chronology

58. NCRIC representatives, including Steve Fargis and Bill Burgess, presented NCRIC's Reconciliation of the first Experience Period of the Retro Plan at meetings with Columbia's Board of Directors and Finance Committee on or about November 20, 1996. See Fargis Dep., at 309 & Exh. 18, at 3 (spreadsheet entitled "Columbia Hospital for Women Retrospective Rating Program – Years 1993-1996") (Exhibit 15 hereto). At the meetings, NCRIC explained that it currently owed Columbia approximately $159,000 in Return Premium for the first Experience Period. Id. at 210-14; see also Affidavit of Dr. Safa Rifka In Support of Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment ("Rifka Aff.") (Exh. 17 hereto) ¶ 3.

59. In an effort to avoid paying the Return Premium that it owed to Columbia, NCRIC proposed the following modification of the Plan: neither party would pay Additional Premium or Return Premium for any Experience Period (regardless of whether, for that Experience Period, the Reconciliation indicated that Additional or Return Premium was due) until all claims for that Experience Period were closed. See Fargis Dep., at 210-15, 220-21; Interrogatory Response No. 5; Rifka Aff. ¶ 4.

60. Further, NCRIC's representatives, including Mr. Fargis, proposed that once all claims for an Experience Period were closed (i.e., once the Experience Period was "closed"), the Additional Premium or Return Premium for that Experience Period – and only that Period – would be paid. See Fargis Dep., at 318-21; Interrogatory Response No. 5; Rifka Aff. ¶¶ 4-5.

61. Importantly, as part of this proposal, NCRIC's representatives, including Mr. Fargis, indicated to Columbia that the parties' oral agreement would continue to operate until all Experience Periods were closed, regardless of whether the Plan remained in effect. At no point did any NCRIC representative suggest that, under any circumstances, the parties might exchange money for a year of the Plan before all claims for that year closed. See Rifka Aff. ¶ 5-6.

62. Columbia accepted NCRIC's proposed oral modification of the Retro Plan ("the parties' oral agreement to pay premium only for closed Experience Periods" or "the parties' oral agreement"). See Interrogatory Response No. 5 (admitting that "plaintiff and defendant agreed to this procedure" where "[a]mounts owed to plaintiff, or amounts owed to defendant . . . were not paid by one party to the other, but were 'rolled forward' until the close of [an Experience Period]"; "[p]laintiff and defendant agreed . . . [that] payments . . . would be paid once [an Experience Period] was closed"); see also Rifka Aff. ¶ 5; Fargis Dep., at 320-21, 720-21.

63. In consideration for the benefit it received under the parties' oral agreement, each party gave up the right to demand payment of Additional Premium or Return Premium for any Experience Period until that Period was closed. In particular, Columbia did not demand, and NCRIC did not pay, the Return Premium that NCRIC otherwise would have owed under the Plan, effective September 1, 1996. See Fargis Dep, at 318, 321; Rifka Aff., 5.

64. In the Fall of 1997, NCRIC provided Columbia with a Reconciliation effective September 1, 1997. That Reconciliation indicated that approximately $1.77 million in cumulative Additional Premium. See Fargis Dep., at 490-91 & Exh. 46 (spreadsheet entitled "Columbia Hospital for Women Retro-Program . . . as of September 1, 1997") (Exhibit 7 hereto)

65. None of the Plan's Experience Periods were closed at this time. Id. Exh. 46 (showing Loss Reserves for outstanding claims for each Experience Period being reconciled). Accordingly, due to the parties' oral agreement to pay premium only for closed years, Columbia did not owe NCRIC any Additional Premium at this time. See Fargis Dep., at 420.

66. Regardless, NCRIC demanded that, as a condition for adding an additional (1998-99) Experience Period to the Plan, Columbia must pay $1 million as "financial security" for "future liabilit[ies]" under the Plan. See id. at 582. This security would remain on deposit with NCRIC, even if Columbia was owed Return Premium by NCRIC under the parties' oral agreement. See id. at 375-76. NCRIC also repeatedly characterized the payment as a deposit in its dealings with Columbia. See, e.g., id. at 604, 629-31, 634, 638-39, 762.

67. Columbia paid the $1 million in installments of $250,000 each, between January and March 1998. As NCRIC admits, the $1 million deposit constituted a one-time exception to the parties' oral agreement. See Amended Reply ¶ 21.

68. Subsequently, the parties amended the Plan to reflect that Columbia would, henceforth, provide for its contingent liabilities under the Plan by providing security to NCRIC. See Addendum, at 1 (modifying paragraph 8 of Retro Plan to state that Columbia "has made, and will continue to make financial security to NCRIC . . . for the contingent liabilities"); id. (modifying paragraph 10 of Retro Plan to state that, annually Columbia "will provide NCRIC with financial security"). To date, NCRIC has not demanded additional financial security.

69. NCRIC presented Columbia with the September 1, 1998 Reconciliation on or about October 23, 1998. See Fargis Dep., at 624-25 & Exh. 65 (spreadsheet entitled "Columbia Hospital for Women Retro-Program . . . as of August 31, 1998" (October 23, 1998)).

70. In light of Columbia's $1 million payment, the September 1, 1998 Reconciliation showed a balance of $670,000 in cumulative Return Premium. Due to the parties' oral agreement, NCRIC did not pay this amount to Columbia. Indeed, NCRIC continued to hold Columbia's $1 million on deposit instead of paying Return Premium. See id. at 638, 651-52.

71. However, the 1993-94 Experience Period had recently closed. Further, NCRIC's Reconciliation showed a balance $172,815 in Return Premium due for this Experience Period. Under the parties' oral agreement, this meant NCRIC owed Columbia money. See id. at 652.

72. Sure enough, on about November 30, 1998, NCRIC paid Columbia $172,815 in Return Premium for the 1993-94 Experience Period. See Fargis Dep., at 217, 650-51 & Exh. 70 (Letter from Jeffrey Marsh to Gerald Beaulieu, dated November 30, 1998 (attaching check for $172, 815)) (Exhibit 18 hereto).

73. NCRIC presented Columbia with the September 1, 1999 Reconciliation on or about October 11, 1999. See Fargis Dep., at 646-48 & Exh. 66 (spreadsheet entitled "Columbia Hospital for Women Retro-Program Years 9/1/1993 – 8/31/1999" (October 11, 1999)). This Reconciliation indicated an amount of $903,814 in Additional Premium due from Columbia ($1,903,814 less Columbia's $1 million deposit), albeit including all of the years (the latest of which was not permitted to be reconciled at that time).

74. However, no additional Experience Periods had closed since the 1993-94 period. Accordingly, pursuant to the terms of the parties' oral agreement, NCRIC did not demand any money from Columbia at this time

75. NCRIC presented Columbia with the September 1, 2000 Reconciliation on or about September 1, 2000. See Fargis Dep., at 653-55 & Exh. 67 (September 1, 2000 Reconciliation). This Reconciliation indicated a cumulative amount of $1,286,525.00 in Additional Premium due. See September 1, 2000 Reconciliation.

76. As of the September 1, 2000 Experience Period, one additional Experience Period – 1994-95 – was deemed closed by NCRIC. See September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (indicating a negative balance $177, 806, and no Loss Reserves (i.e., no open claims) for the 1994-95 Experience Period). As NCRIC admits, this Experience Period showed a balance of Return Premium due in the amount of $177,806. NCRIC did not pay this amount to Columbia. See Fargis Dep., at 729-30.

77. Since there were no closed Experience Periods for which Additional Premium was due, Columbia owed NCRIC no money under the parties' oral agreement. Rather, NCRIC owed Columbia Return Premium, because the second (1994-95) Experience Period had recently closed, and Return Premium was due for that Period.

16d-001204

78. On October 1, 2000, NCRIC presented Columbia with a bill for $1,285,525.00.

79. Subsequent to the October 1, 2000 bill, NCRIC has provided Columbia with several quarterly reconciliation updates. The most recent update, dated January 8, 2002, is the quarterly update effective November 30, 2001. This update indicates that the current amount of cumulative Additional Premium due is $2,144,978. See Columbia Hospital for Women Retro-Program Years: Sept 30, 1993 – Sept 30, 2000") (Nov. 30, 2001) (Exhibit 23 hereto). However, there is no way to tell from this spreadsheet what the amount due was, as of September 1, 2001. Since that time, the Loss Reserves could have increased; NCRIC undoubtedly has incurred more Paid Losses, if just for ALAE Expenses – and the Development Factors have changed due to the passage of time. Columbia therefore cannot discern what it owes from this spreadsheet.

80. Columbia does not, however, owe any more money under the parties oral agreement. As the most recent spreadsheet shows, no additional Experience Periods have closed since the September 1, 2000 Reconciliation. See id.

Terms of the Plan

20. Subject Premium is "the total of the undiscounted premiums that would be charged to physician[s] for coverage limits of $500,000 each claim . . . if the physician[s] were not Plan Participants." Addendum B ¶ 7, at 8; see also Addendum ¶ 7, at 6.

21. All premiums under the Retro Plan are calculated by applying multipliers to the Subject Premium. As such, it is an extremely important number to be able to evaluate. However, the process by which NCRIC calculates the Subject Premium is opaque, since the Plan only provides a range, not an exact formula. See Addendum B ¶ 7, at 8 (explaining that the Subject Premium "shall not exceed 85%, nor be less than 70% of the undiscounted premium charged for coverage limits of $1 million); Addendum ¶ 7, at 6 (same). Further, the Plan puts the actual determination of the amount of Subject Premium in the hands of NCRIC's consulting actuary. See Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 4 (Subject Premium is "determined by NCRIC's consulting actuary"). Columbia has not, to date, received from NCRIC the data necessary to perform a full audit the Subject Premium number. (Further, with without performing even a detailed audit, Columbia has identified several errors in NCRIC's past Subject Premium calculations. See Fargis Dep., at 676-78.) Accordingly, Columbia assumes for the purposes of its motion, but does not concede, that NCRIC's Subject Premium numbers are correct.

22. The Reconciliation Date is September 1 of each year. NCRIC must complete its Reconciliation and notify Columbia of the details concerning the amount it owes, in writing, "[w]ithin (60) days" of each Reconciliation Date. See Addendum B ¶ 5; Retro Plan ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5. Columbia could not be expected to make the complicated calculations (see infra ¶ 31) necessary to determine what it owes or is owed at each Reconciliation, particularly since it did not have access to much of the information necessary to make the calculations (e.g., information about Loss Reserves (see infra ¶ 40)). As such, NCRIC's notice is far more than a mere formality. Indeed, the language of the Plan makes NCRIC's notice a condition precedent to Columbia to become liable for any amount due under the Plan. See Addendum B ¶ 5 ("Any amounts due either to or from [Columbia] shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days" after Columbia receives notice from NCRIC); accord Retro Plan ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5;

23. In the original Plan, the first Reconciliation of each Experience Period was two years after the Period ended. Since the Plan was (allegedly) amended effective September 1, 1996, Experience Periods are now reconciled for the first time just one year after they end. Compare Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 5 (schedule listing "First Reconciliation Date" for each Experience Period) with Addendum B ¶ 5 (same charts, with different dates).

24. Deposit Premium is "the Subject Premium multiplied sixty-seven (67%)." Addendum B ¶ 7, at 6; Addendum ¶ 7, at 5. The current Deposit Premium was first documented in the Addendum, which was signed in January 1998 and retroactive to September 1, 1996, see id. at 1 – yet, the actual effective date for the current Deposit Premium is September 1, 1995. As set forth in the Addendum, see id. ¶ 7, at 5, the 67% Deposit Premium was to be effective for the "three-year term of the Plan" – that is, for the most recent three Experience Periods only. This restriction was consistent with the explicit limitation on an earlier, temporary amendment to the Deposit Premium (see infra, ¶ 27), which "[did] not adjust the Agreement prior to [its effective] date" (January 1, 1996). Further, the restriction on the new Deposit Premium precisely matched the restriction on the Deposit Premium's mirror term (see infra, ¶¶ 26-28), Attending Faculty discount. See Addendum at 3, ¶ 2 (stating that the new Attending Faculty discount applies only to the last three periods of the Plan, "ending 1996, 1997 and 1998"). In short, on its face, the 1996/1998 amendment to the Deposit Premium was to be limited consistent with its immediate predecessor and its mirror. In short, as NCRIC concedes (see infra ¶¶ 26, 29), the new Deposit Premium does not apply to the 1993-94 and 1994-95 Experience Periods, in any Reconciliation.

25. Originally, the Plan defined Deposit Premium as "the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%)," Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3 (emphasis added). By making the Deposit Premium (1) the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount (the Subject Premium received by NCRIC from Attending Faculty, less a 19% discount, see supra, ¶ 26) and (2) a set-off against the Retrospective Premium (the actual cost of providing the insurance, see infra ¶ 26), the Plan defined its role in the Plan: it is the total amount on "deposit" with NCRIC, as a result of the Attending Faculty's premium payments towards $500,000 each in medical malpractice liability coverage. In short, it is a credit to Columbia for the Attending Faculty's premium.

26. In order to retain its function as the Attending Faculty's "deposit," the Deposit Premium multiplier must remain the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount. If the Attending Faculty discount changes, the Deposit Premium must change. In fact, throughout the life of the Plan, the terms have moved together: originally, they were 81% and 19%; then, briefly, they were 62% and 38%; finally, they are 67% and 33%. (This connection is well-known to NCRIC, and particularly, Steve Fargis. See 1/22/96 Fargis Letter, at 1 (informing Columbia of the need to change the Deposit Premium to reflect the recent change in the Attending Faculty discount).)

27. Similarly, when the 67% Deposit Premium was amended effective September 1, 1995, the change just as it did with the 33% Attending Faculty discount (see supra, ¶ 14). First, the Deposit Premium actually changed on January 1, 1996, see Amendment A at 1, not on September 1, 1995. Second, a temporary Deposit Premium multiplier – here, 62% –was used to give effect to the new 67% Deposit Premium multiplier over the course of the full 1995-96 year. Third, the result was, effectively, a change on September 1, 1995, because nine months of a 62%

Deposit Premium, after three months of an 81% Deposit Premium, achieves a 67% discount of over 12 months [i.e., (¼ * 81%) + (¾ * 62%) = approximately 67%)]. In sum, the change in the Deposit Premium to 62% occurred, on its face, simply to effectuate the new 67% Deposit Premium part-way through a Plan year.

28. While the Plan does not make this explicit, its logic is undeniable. Further, NCRIC, at a minimum, concedes the connection between the Attending Faculty discount and the Deposit Premium by continuing to employ, in current Reconciliations, the 81% Deposit Premium for the Experience Periods where the Attending Faculty discount was 19%. Indeed, NCRIC admits that 81% is the correct multiplier to apply for those years. See, e.g., Responses to Defendant's Requests for Admissions ("RFA Response No."), Responses No. 24-27 (Exhibit 21 hereto). As such, there is no doubt: the new Deposit Premium applies only to the last five Experience Periods.

29. In addition, there is no doubt that Deposit Premium factor stated in the Plan is 67%, not 62%. NCRIC's voice, Stephen Fargis, has repeatedly affirmed this. See, e.g., Fargis Dep. at 452, 747, 748-49, 757-58 & Exh. 78 (Letter from Stephen S. Fargis to Anne D. Gaffey, dated March 29, 2000) (Exhibit 19 hereto) ("the current contract reflects a deposit premium of 67%"). Since NCRIC drafted of the language changing the Deposit Premium – not once but twice – and also reviewed it, it knew that the Plan said 67%, not 62% from the outset.

30. Finally, the Plan's plain language places no limitations on the applicability of the Deposit Premium to any particular Experience Period. Yet, the term's role as the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount reflects the parties' intent to limit its applicability, as set forth above.

31. Retrospective Premium ("Retro Premium") represents, for each Experience Period, the total cost of providing $500,000 in malpractice insurance coverage to all the

45. Exhibit E to the Retro Plan is explicitly an "Example of Operation of the Plan." See Retro Plan, Exh. E (header). It also is expressly incorporated into the Plan to be used "for clarification" of concepts like Development Factors. See id. at 4, ¶ 13.

46. By showing several cumulative Reconciliations, Exhibit E helps explain how they work over time. In particular, Exhibit E indicates that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of an Experience Period. For example, on Exhibit E, the first Development Factor – the "Year 1 Reconciliation," or 88.5% Development Factor (see Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3) – is always applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. To apply the current Development Factors in this way, the 12-month Factor (55%), not the 24-month Factor (65%), would be applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. Indeed, NCRIC admits that the 55% Factor was meant to replace the 88.5% Factor. See Fargis Dep., at 706-07.

47. Of course, Exhibit E, being older, in a different format, and differs substantively from the NCRIC spreadsheets in some respects. (I.e., Exhibit E, which is part of the original Plan, was drafted to include Experience Periods two years after they were complete, like the original Plan. Moreover, Exhibit E is, as an example, based on a 1/1 Reconciliation Date rather than a 9/1 Reconciliation Date. Further, its format is something different than the NCRIC spreadsheets, in that the years move in the opposite direction.) Nonetheless, Exhibit E provides clear guidance that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of a Period.

48. NCRIC did not comport with Exhibit E in performing any of its recent Reconciliations. See Fargis Dep., at 716-18; see also id. 7

49. There is no dispute that the Development Factors apply to all Experience Periods.

DECLARATION OF JOSEPH K. LEAHY IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

JOSEPH K. LEAHY, an attorney admitted to practice before this Court, affirms the following under penalty of perjury:

1. I am an associate with the firm of Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., which is counsel for Defendant in the above-captioned case. I submit this declaration in support of Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment.

September 1, 2001 Reconciliation

2. In January, at the deposition of Stephen Fargis, I learned that NCRIC, Inc. had not provided Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center ("Columbia") with a September 1, 2001 Reconciliation of the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Retro Plan"). Mr. Fargis testified that a September 5, 2001 spreadsheet it had provided to Columbia was, in all likelihood, not the Reconciliation.

3. I followed up with Columbia after that, in an attempt to locate the Reconciliation. The client was unable to locate any Reconciliation it received during the relevant time, except the September 5, 2001 document, which Mr. Fargis testified probably was not the Reconciliation.

4. In addition, I repeatedly contacted opposing counsel to determine whether we had received the Reconciliation, but to no avail. For example, I called counsel on January 31, 2002, and sent at least one follow-up email during this week, in an attempt to find out the status of the Reconciliation. I never heard back from opposing counsel about the matter, even though I had asked counsel to get back to me on an expedited basis – even if the answer was that the spreadsheet did not exist or had been produced. Due to my inability to obtain the Reconciliation from opposing counsel, I must assume that it does not exist.

Reconciliation Spreadsheets

5. In addition, attached as exhibits to Defendant's Motion for Summary are several spreadsheets that were created by my office, on behalf of Defendant, for the purpose of this motion. To the best of my knowledge, these spreadsheets are exactly what they purport to be: reproductions of NCRIC's Reconciliations, but with one or more multipliers changed.

6. I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

NCRIC, INC., Plaintiff, v. COLUMBIA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN MEDICAL CENTER, INC., Defendant.	Civil Action No. 00-0007308 Calendar #8 Judge Blackburne-Rigsby Next Event: Opposition to Summary Judgment Motions -- February 28, 2002

PLAINTIFF NCRIC'S SUPPLEMENTAL RULE 26(B)(4) STATEMENT AS OPPONENT OF A CLAIM

Pursuant to District of Columbia Superior Court Rule 26(b)(4) plaintiff NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC"), hereby supplements its prior statement filed August 9, 2001 regarding the following expert witnesses NCRIC expects to call at trial:

1. Mary Woodford
   PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP
   1900 K Street, NW Suite 900
   Washington DC 20006

As stated in NCRIC's prior Rule 26(b)(4) statement, Ms. Woodford will testify with regard to analysis and rebuttal of the calculation of damages presented by defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia") through defendant's designated damages witness, Peter Ben Ezra. On January 23, 2001, NCRIC received the damages calculations report by Mr. Ben Ezra, and NCRIC deposed Mr. Ben Ezra regarding his damages calculations on January 24, 2001. Mr. Ben Ezra's opinion relates to Columbia's claim for lost income as a result of alleged conduct by NCRIC as detailed in Columbia's Amended Counterclaim.

Upon review of the materials submitted by Columbia's expert, Ms. Woodford will testify regarding the reasonableness of Mr. Ben Ezra's damages calculations. Specifically, Ms. Woodford will testify that Mr. Ben Ezra's calculations have not been made to a reasonable degree of economic certainty due to his lack of independent inquiry and lack of reasonable and supportable bases for the assumptions underlying his conclusions. Ms. Woodford will testify that due to the significant defects in Mr. Ben Ezra's conclusions, Columbia's damages calculations are baseless and speculative.

Ms. Woodford will base her testimony on a review of the documents Columbia designated and produced as the data relied upon by Mr. Ben Ezra in his calculations and preparation of his report. Ms. Woodford will also analyze available documents produced by Columbia regarding Columbia's historical operating and financial statistics and relevant market data.

Ms. Woodford is a Director with PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, and has a Masters in Business Administration, as indicated on her curriculum vitae submitted with NCRIC's 26(b)(4) Statement filed August 9, 2001. Ms. Woodford has extensive professional training, knowledge and experience in the fields of accounting and financial analysis, and specific expertise in calculation of economic damages. Ms. Woodford has been qualified to testify as an expert on economic damages in other courts.

NCRIC respectfully reserves the right to supplement this disclosure should a more detailed review of Mr. Ben Ezra's report reveal that additional testimony is required. Finally, the other disclosures contained in NCRIC's initial Rule 26(b)(4) report remain valid.

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that a true and correct copy of the foregoing Supplemental Rule 26(b)(4) Statement as Opponent of Claim was served this 14th day of February 2002, via first class mail, postage prepaid, to:

PRAECIPE

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. hereby submits errata pages 6-9 and 14 to its Statement of Material Facts Not In Dispute. The attached errata pages, which are marked with an "-e" after each page number for identification, replace pages 6–E to 9-E and 14-E, which were attached to a Praecipe filed on February 11, 2001. Due to an oversight, the pages attached to the earlier Praecipe were not in fact the errata pages; rather, they were exact copies of the original pages 6-9 and 14 (except for the "-E" after each page number).

calculations (e.g., information about Loss Reserves (see infra ¶ 40)). As such, NCRIC's notice is no mere formality. Indeed, the language of the Plan makes notice a condition precedent to Columbia's being liable for any amount due under the Plan. See Addendum B ¶ 5 ("Any amounts due either to or from [Columbia] shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days" after Columbia receives notice from NCRIC); accord Retro Plan ¶ 5 & Exh. A ¶ 5; Addendum ¶ 5;

23. In the original Plan, the first Reconciliation of each Experience Period was two years after the Period ended. Since the Plan was (allegedly) amended effective September 1, 1996, Experience Periods are now reconciled for the first time just one year after they end. Compare Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 5 (schedule listing "First Reconciliation Date" for each Experience Period) with Addendum B ¶ 5 (same charts, with different dates).

24. Deposit Premium is "the Subject Premium multiplied sixty-seven (67%)." Addendum B ¶ 7, at 6; Addendum ¶ 7, at 5. The current Deposit Premium was first documented in the Addendum, which was signed in January 1998 and retroactive to September 1, 1996, see id. at 1 – yet, the actual effective date for the current Deposit Premium is September 1, 1995. As set forth in the Addendum, see id. ¶ 7, at 5, the 67% Deposit Premium was to be effective for the "three-year term of the Plan" – that is, for the most recent three Experience Periods only. This restriction was consistent with the explicit limitation on an earlier, temporary amendment to the Deposit Premium (see infra, ¶ 27), which "[did] not adjust the Agreement prior to [its effective] date" (January 1, 1996). Further, the restriction on the new Deposit Premium precisely matched the restriction on the Deposit Premium's mirror term (see infra, ¶¶ 26-28), Attending Faculty discount. See Addendum at 3, ¶ 2 (stating that the new Attending Faculty discount applies only to the last three periods of the Plan, "ending 1996, 1997 and 1998"). In short, the Addendum modified the Deposit Premium so that – as NCRIC concedes (see infra ¶¶ 26, 29) – the 67% number does not apply to the 1993-94 and 1994-95 Experience Periods, in any Reconciliation.

25. Originally, the Plan defined Deposit Premium as "the Subject Premium multiplied by eighty-one percent (81%)," Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3 (emphasis added). By making Deposit Premium (1) the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount (which is the Subject Premium less a 19% discount, see supra, ¶ 26) and (2) a set-off against the Retrospective Premium (which is the actual cost of providing the insurance, see infra ¶ 26), the Plan carefully defined the role of Deposit Premium: it is the total amount on "deposit" with NCRIC as a result of the Attending Faculty premium payments for $500,000 each in medical malpractice coverage. In short, Deposit Premium is a credit to Columbia for the Attending Faculty's premium.

26. In order to retain its function as the Attending Faculty's "deposit," the Deposit Premium multiplier must remain the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount. If the Attending Faculty discount changes, the Deposit Premium must change. In fact, throughout the life of the Plan, the terms have moved together: originally, they were 81% and 19%; then, briefly, they were 62% and 38%; finally, they are 67% and 33%. (This connection is well-known to NCRIC, and particularly, Steve Fargis. See 1/22/96 Fargis Letter, at 1 (informing Columbia of the need to change the Deposit Premium to reflect the recent change in the Attending Faculty discount).)

27. Similarly, when the 67% Deposit Premium was amended effective September 1, 1995, the change occurred in exactly the same way as the change to the 33% Attending Faculty discount occurred (see supra, ¶ 14). First, the Deposit Premium actually changed on January 1, 1996, see Amendment A at 1, not on September 1, 1995. Second, a temporary Deposit Premium multiplier – here, 62% – was used to give effect to the new 67% Deposit Premium multiplier over the course of the full 1995-96 year. Third, the result was, effectively, a change on September 1, 1995 – because nine months of a 62% Deposit Premium, after three months of an 81% Deposit Premium, is the same as a 67% discount of over 12 months [i.e., (¼ * 81%) + (¾ * 62%) = approximately 67%)]. In sum, the change in the Deposit Premium to 62% occurred, on its face, simply to effectuate the new 67% Deposit Premium part-way through a Plan year.

28. Although the Plan does not make the connection between Deposit Premium and Attending Faculty discount explicit, the logic of the Plan makes the connection implicit. Indeed, NCRIC concedes that the connection exists by employing, in current Reconciliations, the 81% Deposit Premium for the Experience Periods where the Attending Faculty discount was 19%. See September 1, 2000 Reconciliation (1994-95 column). Indeed, NCRIC admits that 81% is the correct multiplier to apply for those years. See, e.g., Responses to Defendant's Requests for Admissions ("RFA Response No."), Responses No. 24-27 (Exhibit 21 hereto). As such, there is no doubt: the new Deposit Premium applies only to the last five Experience Periods.

29. In addition, there is no doubt that Deposit Premium factor stated in the Plan is 67%, not 62%. NCRIC's 30(b)(6) designee, Stephen Fargis, has repeatedly affirmed this. See, e.g., Fargis Dep. at 452, 747, 748-49, 757-58 & Exh. 78 (Letter from Stephen S. Fargis to Anne D. Gaffey, dated March 29, 2000) (Exhibit 19 hereto) ("the current contract reflects a deposit premium of 67%"). Since NCRIC drafted of the language changing the Deposit Premium – not once but twice – and also reviewed it, it knew that the Plan said 67%, not 62% from the outset.

30. Finally, the Plan's language places no limitations on the applicability of the Deposit Premium to any particular Experience Period. Yet, the term's role as the inverse of the Attending Faculty discount reflects the parties' intent to limit its applicability, as set forth above.

31. Retrospective Premium ("Retro Premium") represents, for each Experience Period, the total cost of providing $500,000 in malpractice insurance coverage to all the

45. Exhibit E to the Retro Plan is explicitly an "Example of Operation of the Plan." See Retro Plan, Exh. E (header). It also is expressly incorporated into the Plan to be used "for clarification" of concepts like Development Factors. See id. at 4, ¶ 13.

46. By showing several cumulative Reconciliations, Exhibit E helps explain how they work over time. In particular, Exhibit E indicates that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of an Experience Period. For example, on Exhibit E, the first Development Factor – the "Year 1 Reconciliation," or 88.5% Development Factor (see Retro Plan, Exh. A ¶ 7, at 3) – is always applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. To apply the current Development Factors in this way, the 12-month Factor (55%), not the 24-month Factor (65%), would be applied to an Experience Period the first time it is reconciled. Indeed, NCRIC admits that the 55% Factor was meant to replace the 88.5% Factor. See Fargis Dep., at 706-07.

47. Of course, Exhibit E, being older, is in a different format, and differs substantively from the NCRIC spreadsheets in some respects. (I.e., Exhibit E, which is part of the original Plan, was drafted to include Experience Periods two years after they were complete, like the original Plan. Moreover, Exhibit E is, as an example, based on a 1/1 Reconciliation Date rather than a 9/1 Reconciliation Date. Further, its format is something different than the NCRIC spreadsheets, in that the years move in the opposite direction.) Nonetheless, Exhibit E provides clear guidance that Development Factors are to be applied the relevant number of months after the end of an Experience Period, not that number of months before the end of a Period.

48. NCRIC did not comport with Exhibit E in performing any of its recent Reconciliations. See Fargis Dep., at 716-18.

49. There is no dispute that the Development Factors apply to all Experience Periods.

DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO EXTEND TIME FOR FILING SUMMARY JUDGMENT PAPERS

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia") hereby moves for the entry of the attached proposed Order, and as grounds for such Order states:

1. The parties' oppositions to cross-motions for summary judgment are currently due on March 4, 2002, having previously been extended by two business days by a consent Praecipe.

2. The attached motion would extend by an additional three business days the time for filing both parties' cross-papers in opposition to summary judgment. It also would extend by three days the deadline for each party's reply, so that Plaintiff NCRIC, Inc, is not prejudiced.

3. The summary judgment motions currently before the court concern the "Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement," an extremely complex insurance-related contract, and the parties' resulting eight-year relationship. Columbia believes that the extension requested herein would materially aid the Court by permitting a more careful and comprehensive analysis of Agreement and the relevant factual issues raised in this matter, by allowing Columbia to prepare a more careful and considered response to the arguments raised by NCRIC.

4. Columbia urges that the requested extension is reasonable and fair in light of the fact that Columbia is responding to a 47-page summary judgment brief, which addresses thirteen claims, whereas its own summary judgment brief was only 18 pages long.

5. NCRIC takes no position with respect to the motion.

6. Columbia submits that the foregoing constitutes good cause for modifying the current scheduling order in effect.

WHEREFORE, Columbia asks the Court to grant Defendant's Motion to Extend Time for Filing Summary Judgment Papers and enter the proposed Order.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO NCRIC'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Defendant Columbia Hospital for Women Medical Center, Inc. ("Columbia"), by counsel, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, P.L.L.C., hereby states as follows in opposition to the Motion for Summary Judgment filed by Defendant NCRIC, Inc. ("NCRIC").

Preliminary Statement

Seven years after entering into the Retrospective Rating Plan Agreement ("Retro Plan" or "Plan") with Columbia in 1993, and just three years after extracting $1 million from it with threats and tricks, NCRIC now claims that Columbia owes $2.4 million more. Actually, quite the opposite is true. In fact, as Columbia explained it its motion for summary judgment, NCRIC owes Columbia several hundred thousand dollars, yet NCRIC refuses to pay, and therefore its contract claim should granted, not dismissed (Point I, infra). Further, due to the structure of the Plan, and due to NCRIC's superior knowledge and skill with regard to the Plan, the parties' working relationship has developed into a confidential relationship, which NCRIC breached (Point II, infra). With respect to the rest of the claims, the assertions in NCRIC's motion for summary judgment cannot be reconciled with the record in this case. NCRIC ignores relevant evidence, mischaracterizes other evidence, and denies Columbia the reasonable inferences to which it is entitled. In fact, every claim by Columbia – breach of duty of good faith (Point III, infra), intentional and negligent misrepresentation (Point IV, infra), tortious interference (Point V, infra), defamation and injurious falsehood (Point VI, infra), and conversion (Point VII infra) – is supported by enough evidence to not only create a triable issue of material fact, but to support a jury verdict in its favor. Moreover, Columbia's damages expert properly calculated its damages, and his report properly left causation to the jury (Point VIII, infra). Finally, NCRIC's contract claim must be rejected for the same reasons that Columbia's contract claim must be granted (Point IX, infra).

Factual Background

Attending Faculty

The Attending Faculty are a small sub-set of Columbia's medical staff who have admitted patients to Columbia for years. See SMF2 ¶ 193. The program provides a support network for physicians who refer most of their patients to Columbia. See id. ¶ 194. The Attending Faculty are therefore a self-selecting group: they intend to bring the bulk of their practice to the hospital, now and into the future. See id. Indeed, Attending Faculty with established practices tend to remain at Columbia continue their normal practice patterns until they retire, at age 65 or later. See id. ¶¶ 196-97. Accordingly, prior to October 2000, there had never been a mass departure of Attending Faculty. See id. ¶ 196.

Attending Faculty provide the bulk of Columbia's patient admissions, which in turn, provide most of its revenue. See id. ¶ 198.

16d-001248

Retro Plan and Reconciliations

The Retro Plan, as initially drafted, provided Attending Faculty with a 19 percent discount off of the premium for $500,000 in medical malpractice coverage, which approximated a 15 percent discount off the premium $1 million in coverage that most Attending Faculty held. See id. ¶ 5. In December 1995, NCRIC increased the Attending Faculty discount to 30% off of the premium for $1 million in malpractice coverage, which is approximately 33% off of the premium for $500,000 of coverage, retroactive to September 1, 1995. See id. 18, 20-21.

Under the Plan, a Reconciliation was to be performed each year, on September 1, to determine how much premium was owed to NCRIC or Columbia. See id. ¶ 12. However, the parties' orally agreed in November 1996 that payment for any Plan year ("Experience Period") will occur only once, after that year is "closed." See id. ¶ 11.

The Plan expired in September 1996, but the parties renewed it, effective January 1, 1997. See id. ¶ 21. The parties never agreed to the terms of the new Plan, so they renewed it on the same terms as the prior Plan. See id. ¶ 34. In January 1998, the parties renewed the Plan effective September 1, 1996. See id. ¶ 21. The new Plan contained many changes that the parties had previously negotiated but never implemented. See id. ¶ 45.

Fraud and/or Errors

In Fall 1996, NCRIC proposed, when it owed premium to Columbia, that the parties not exchange premium under the Plan. See id. ¶ 11. Columbia agreed, expecting it would avoid owing money in Fall 1997. Also in Fall 1996, NCRIC urged Columbia to renew the Plan, based on its calculations, which showed that the Plan was an economical program for Columbia. See id. ¶¶ 23, 104, 109-110. In reliance on that date, Columbia agreed to extend the Plan; however, as it turned out, NCRIC had grossly undercalculated the amount Columbia owed. See id. ¶ 104.

16d-001249

There is no dispute about the meaning of NCRIC's reconciliation spreadsheets: the parties agree on the meaning of every column and row. See id. ¶¶ 97-103. Yet, NCRIC regularly used the wrong values on the spreadsheet for terms defined in the Plan, or simply made mathematical "errors." See id. ¶ 13. For example, as NCRIC admits, it made a gross error in October 1997, which denied Columbia a $500,000 credit. See id. ¶¶ 14, 128-133. NCRIC also made other errors on that date. See id. ¶¶ 118-23, 124-27. In addition, NCRIC repeatedly used multipliers despite knowing that the multipliers stated in the Plan were different. See id. ¶ 91-96.

Financial Crisis and $1 Million Payment

Columbia provides high-quality medical care to women and newborns, as it has for over 130 years. However, Columbia is not a sophisticated financial entity. See id. ¶ 71.

Columbia hit on hard times in the early 1990s. It lost millions of dollars. See id. ¶ 115. Between late 1996 and early 1998, several important changes occurred: the old Board resigned and placed the hospital in receivership; a new Board including the medical staff was contacted; three CEOs departed in quick succession. Finally, Columbia became embroiled in a legal battle with its main creditor, over a crucial letter of credit. See id. ¶ 116, 117.

At the height of Columbia's financial distress, in October 1997, NCRIC provided Columbia with a Reconciliation and demanded $1.77 million that it claimed it was owed. See id. ¶¶ 35, 115. In fact, the bill was grossly overstated. See id. Nor was the amount due, in light of the parties' oral agreement – as NCRIC admits. As such, NCRIC stated that payment was a condition for the Retro Plan being renewed. That would have left the Attending Faculty without an insurance program, and possibly cause revenues to fall, which Columbia could not afford. Lacking insurance alternatives on short notice, it had no option but to pay. See id. ¶ 35. Columbia could not afford to pay the whole sum but agreed to pay $1 million in four installments. See id. ¶ 35. In early 1998, after making two payments, Columbia plunged into bankruptcy. See id. ¶ 34.

Even after bankruptcy, NCRIC held onto the $1 million. It described it as a deposit to Columbia, and even promised interest – but never delivered. See id. ¶ 36.

Fiduciary Relationship

NCRIC drafted the Retro Plan and took on the responsibility of administering it and bookkeeping for it. See id. ¶ 1, 4. In early 1998, Columbia's management had no experience with retrospective rating plans, and no in-house counsel. See id. ¶¶ 72-74. While they made reasonable efforts to become familiar with the Plan, they did not understand it. See id. ¶ 76.

From early 1998 through early 2000, Columbia and NCRIC generally met quarterly to discuss the Retro Plan. See id. ¶ 77. At these meetings, NCRIC provided Columbia with a basic summary of the current status of the Plan, and briefly reviewed the calculations. See id. ¶ 77, 83. Columbia had no opportunity to audit the calculations, see id. ¶ 78, particularly since NCRIC's spreadsheets did not contain any underlying data (e.g., individual loss reserves). See id. ¶ 86.

As a result of having drafted the Retro Plan and having wide knowledge and experience about insurance matters, NCRIC stood in a position of superior knowledge and skill relative to Columbia with regard to operation of the Plan. See id. ¶ 80. Further, NCRIC's personnel stood in a position of superior knowledge and skill relative to Columbia's personnel with regard to operation of the Plan. See id. ¶ 82. Columbia's personnel asked questions in an attempt to understand the Plan, and expressed that they did not understand it. See id. ¶ 85. They also made reasonable attempts to obtain underlying data that did not appear on the NCRIC spreadsheets, but NCRIC refused to provide it on the grounds it was client confidential and/or proprietary actuarial information. See id. ¶ 87.

16d-001251

Due to the structure of the Plan, where NCRIC was bookkeeper and kept much of the underlying data confidential, Columbia's personnel had no other option but to trust NCRIC to perform Reconciliation calculations correctly on Columbia's behalf. See id. ¶ 88. NCRIC personnel understood and encouraged this trust. See id. Indeed, Columbia's personnel viewed the Retro Plan as a joint undertaking, rather than a normal, arms-length contractual relationship. See id. ¶ 89, 90. NCRIC understood and accepted this trust. See id. ¶ 91.

False Statements

Summer/Fall 1998 Statements

In August 1998, Columbia determined that, due to its financial situation (it was in bankruptcy), it could not afford to continue the Retro Plan. See id. ¶ 134. Shortly thereafter, Columbia worked out a deal with Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange ("MIIX"), a highly-rated national insurance company, to provide a discounted insurance program for the Attending Faculty. See id. ¶ 135. MIIX guaranteed low premiums to the Attending Faculty, without any potential financial obligation by Columbia. See id. ¶¶ 40, 137-39.

Upon hearing about Columbia's new insurance program, NCRIC called a secret meeting of the Attending Faculty where it urged the physicians to leave Columbia if the Plan was not renewed. See id. ¶¶ 41, 42, 144-49. NCRIC made false, disparaging statements and employed scare tactics at the meetings, in an effort to induce the doctors to leave. See id. ¶¶ 42, 151-152.

NCRIC also contacted Columbia and informed it that it would continue to provide the Attending Faculty with insurance, at Columbia or elsewhere. See id. ¶ 141. NCRIC also made preparations to induce the doctors to leave Columbia. See id. ¶¶ 143-144. Many Attending Faculty contacted Columbia and demanded that the Retro Plan be renewed. The physicians were loyal to Columbia, but were cowed by NCRIC. See id. ¶¶ 44, 153-154. Columbia had no choice but to comply. See id. ¶¶ 43, 155.

In early March 2000, Columbia informed NCRIC that it had discovered that NCRIC was applying several terms improperly. See id. ¶¶ 240-241. Columbia subsequently demanded its $1 million back, but did not get it. See id. ¶ 242. NCRIC continued to apply the terms as it had.

In late June 2000, Columbia's Board decided, after negotiating with NCRIC to close out the Retro Plan, that could not afford NCRIC's proposal. The Board decided to continue negotiations with NCRIC, see id. ¶ 54, but NCRIC decided to "terminate" the Plan. See id. ¶ 55.

Retaliation

The Columbia Physicians Group ("CPG") are employed part-time by Columbia with its Ambulatory Care Clinic ("Clinic") for low-income persons. See id. ¶ 176. From 1998-2000, the Clinic was covered by a NCRIC group insurance policy ("Entity Policy").

In retaliation for Columbia's failure to agree to the buy-out proposal, two days after NCRIC purported to terminate the Plan, without any forewarning, it cancelled the Entity Policy. See id. ¶ 55. This caused an uproar at the Clinic, and several doctors who worked there quit immediately. See id. ¶¶ 171-183. Yet, some physicians continued to practice at the Clinic under their own, 24-hour individual medical malpractice insurance policies. See id. ¶¶ 184-185.

NCRIC, however, informed physicians they were not covered, see id. ¶ 184, and then took the unprecedented step of issuing an endorsement excluding them from coverage in the Clinic under their own policies, see id. ¶¶ 186-189. The rationales it offered for this endorsement, or for canceling the Entity Policy, did not stand up to scrutiny. See id. ¶¶ 59-62, 186-192. The D.C. Insurance Commissioner later ruled that NCRIC's termination was procedurally valid – but would not rule on Columbia's substantive retaliation claim, since it does not do fact-finding.

Summer/Fall 2000 Statements

In Summer/Fall 2000, NCRIC insiders among the Attending Faculty began circulating rumors that Columbia would close and that its Clinic was uninsured. See id. ¶¶ 170-172. Among these doctors was NCRIC's Chairman of the Board, Dr. Leonard Glassman, who made a number of false statements about the hospital in early Fall 2000. See id. ¶¶ 161-167. Members of NCRIC's Policyholder Services Department also spread this rumor. See id. ¶¶ 173-175.

Immediately following these statements, on the expiration date of the final Experience Period of the Retro Plan, nearly thirty Attending Faculty moved their practices to other hospitals, mostly Sibley Memorial Hospital ("Sibley") or George Washington University Medical Center "GW"). See id. ¶¶217-118. The rumors of Columbia's impending closure was a substantial factor in these physicians' decision to leave. See id. ¶ 219. Many of the Attending Faculty had been practicing at Columbia for 10 years, or even 20. See id. ¶¶ 225-230. The departure of these physicians caused admissions and revenues to drop dramatically. See id. ¶¶ 220, 225, 236.

Bad Faith Negotiations

In prior years, when the Retro Plan was renewed after its expiration (as it often was), see id. ¶ 206, NCRIC would wait to bill its insureds while the parties negotiated. See id. ¶ 206. In 2000, however, NCRIC billed Attending Faculty in for their full premium amounts, which was a shock to the doctors. Further, NCRIC surreptitiously contacted the Attending Faculty to urge them to move to other hospitals. See id. ¶ 209. It also began to plan its lawsuit against Columbia – all the while the negotiations to continue the deal were in progress. See id. ¶ 210.

16d-001254

Negotiations continued until late August, when Columbia believed a deal was finalized; at the last minute, NCRIC vetoed the deal and the parties parted ways. See id. ¶ 213. Due to its belief that the parties were negotiating in good faith, Columbia did not even develop other alternative insurance program proposals until it was too late, August 2000. See id. ¶ 215. With the rumors circulating that the hospital would close, some physicians made other plans. See id.

Damages

An accounting professor with vast experience applied a generally accepted "lost cash flow" model to calculated Columbia's damages from the departure of the Attending Faculty. However, Columbia also suffered damages, including the lost opportunity to hold a gala fundraiser, see id. ¶¶ 230-232, and to obtain a low-interest loan from the Department of Housing and Urban Development ("HUD"), see id. ¶¶ 232-236, to which a lay witness could testify.

Argument

Standard of Review

A party moving for summary judgment "bears the burden of clearly demonstrating the absence of a material factual dispute and entitlement to judgment as a matter of law." Sherman v. District of Columbia, 653 A.2d 866, 869 (D.C. 1995) (internal quotation marks omitted). In response, the nonmoving party need only show "that sufficient evidence supporting the claimed factual dispute . . . require[s] a jury . . . to resolve the parties' differing versions of the truth at trial." Hill v. White, 589 A.2d 918, 921 (D.C. 1991). Moreover, "if the moving party does not meet its initial burden, summary judgment must be denied even where the [non-moving party] comes forth with nothing." Sherman, 653 A.2d at 869.

Summary judgment is proper only where "the record shows there is no genuine issue of material fact . . . and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Big Builders,

16d-001255

Inc. v. Israel, 709 A.2d 74, 76 (D.C. 1998) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Any doubt as to the existence of such issues must be resolved in favor of the non-moving party." McBride v. Pizza Hut, Inc., 658 A.2d 205, 207 (D.C. 1995). In deciding the motion, the court must draw "all reasonable inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party" and deny summary judgment unless the moving party can show that no reasonable juror could find for the non-moving party. See Galloway v. Safeway Stores, Inc., 632 A.2d 736, 738 (D.C. 1993).

I. NCRIC Is Not Entitled to Judgment as a Matter of Law on Columbia's Contract Claim (Count One)

A. NCRIC Breached the Retro Plan By Failing To Pay Columbia Return Premium Effective September 2000

Neither party disputes that the parties entered into the Retro Plan effective in 1993, and further, that the Plan as initially drafted was a valid contract. For a discussion of the terms of the plan, S*ee* Columbia SJ Mem. at 2; SMF ¶¶ 1-3. Further, as NCRIC readily admits, the parties orally amended the Plan so that no money would be exchanged for any Experience Period until all malpractice claims for that Period were "closed" under the Plan. See NCRIC Mem. at 5-6, 8, 29, 37. Since the only Experience Period for which all claims are presently closed are 1993-94 and 1994-95 – Periods for which NCRIC owes Columbia Return Premium – NCRIC owes Columbia Return Premium under the Plan as amended. See Columbia SJ Mem. at 8-11.

Application of the correct terms of the Plan[1] indicates that the amount of Return Premium due is about $765,000. See id. at 11-12; see also id. 13-15 (NCRIC applies the wrong Deposit Premium and Minimum Premium). NCRIC's failure to notify Columbia of this amount as of the September 1, 2000 Reconciliation, and failure to pay Columbia this amount within 30 days of [1] NCRIC's improper application of Development Factors does not affect the amount Columbia owes under the oral agreement, because it does not owe NCRIC for any loss reserves under that agreement.

that Reconciliation, were breaches of the Retro Plan, as amended by the parties' oral agreement. See id. at 11-12.[2]

Even absent the oral agreement, NCRIC would owe Columbia Return Premium under the Retro Plan, because NCRIC failed to provide Columbia with a September 1, 2001 Reconciliation. By failing to perform the 2001 Reconciliation on time, NCRIC breached the Plan and missed an opportunity to bill Columbia through September 1, 2001. See id. at 12-13. As a result, the September 1, 2000 Reconciliation continues to govern the parties payment obligations. Under correct terms of the Plan as drafted as of the September 1, 2000 Reconciliation, NCRIC would owe Columbia approximately $560,000, absent the oral agreement. See id. at 17.

B. NCRIC Breached the Retro Plan By Performing Reconciliations Improperly

1. NCRIC Admits It Performed Reconciliations Inaccurately

Under the Plan, NCRIC is required to perform all bookkeeping, see SMF2 ¶ 4, to perform Reconciliations of the Plan pursuant to a particular formula, see id.; SMF ¶ 31; see also Columbia SJ Mem. at 4-8 (setting forth exact terms of the Retro Formula), and to provide all these calculations to Columbia, see id. ¶ 12. Yet, NCRIC readily admits that it repeatedly performed Reconciliations inaccurately.[3] See id. ¶¶ 13-14; see, e.g., id. ¶ 123 (miscalculations

---

[2] Because the 1993-94 Experience Period was closed as of the September 1, 1998 Reconciliation, NCRIC has owed Columbia the money for that period – $414,754 (i.e., the $587,569 it is owed less the $172,815 it was paid at the time) – since December 1998. See SMF ¶ 157.

[3] NCIRC argues, based on the declaration of Stephen S. Fargis, that it "has demonstrated that each reconciliation was properly calculated." NCRIC Mem. at 27 (citing Fargis Decl. ¶¶ 20-21). Mr. Fargis's declaration, in which he explains how reconciliations were performed, and asserts without any reference to the terms of the Plan that such reconciliations were performed in compliance with the Plan; and in which he makes the generalized assertion that any errors that occurred were later corrected, see Fargis Decl. ¶¶ 15, 20-21, is irrelevant to the question of contract interpretation before the Court. There is no factual dispute between the parties regarding what calculations Mr. Fargis made under the Retro Plan, or what his spreadsheets mean. The only issue with respect to the contract claim (except with respect to Subject Premium, for which Columbia has not been able to audit his underlying calculations, see infra, n.__) is whether Mr. Fargis's calculations conform to the Retro Plan. That is a pure question of law.

resulting in NCRIC crediting Columbia with $500,000 less Deposit Premium than required by the Plan). Since the whole point of Reconciliations was to inform Columbia of the amount it owed or was owed under the Plan, see id. ¶ 12, NCRIC's miscalculations were material breaches of the Plan. Further, due to the error of magnitude in NCRIC's miscalculations, they were anything but minor. As such, NCRIC's argument that Columbia is nitpicking, NCRIC Mem. at 29, is an opposite.

2. Columbia Has Evidence of Breaches and Damages

NCRIC repeatedly claims there is no "evidence" to prove it made miscalculations in the Reconciliations it performed under the Retro Plan. NCRIC Mem. at 27-28. Besides overlooking NCRIC's own admissions of error, see supra, pp. __, this argument ignores Columbia's theory on this claim that NCRIC's misapplication of the Retro Plan is a matter of contract interpretation. Questions of contract interpretation are questions of law for the court. Byrd v. Allstate Ins. Co., 622 A.2d 691, 693-94 (D.C. 1993). The only factual evidence necessary to prove that NCRIC made miscalculations in the Retro Plan are NCRIC's Reconciliation spreadsheets. And there is simply no dispute about the meaning of these spreadsheets, because the parties agree what term of the Plan corresponds to each entry on the spreadsheets, see SMF2 ¶ 97.

Nor did Columbia fail to prove damages for this contract claim, as NCRIC claims. See NCRIC Mem. at 29.[4] Rather, Columbia was damaged by the $1 million that it deposited with NCRIC in installments between January 1998 and March 1998. See SMF2 ¶ 29. Had NCRIC performed the 1997 Reconciliation correctly, the spreadsheet would have shown that (absent the oral agreement) Columbia was owed Return Premium – or, at most, that Columbia owed [4] Even if Columbia failed to prove damages (it did not), it would be entitled to nominal damages. See, e.g., Patel v. Howard Univ., 896 F. Supp. 199 (D.D.C. 1995).

approximately $1.2 million, not $1.8 million, in Additional Premium. See SMF2 ¶¶ 118-123.[5] As such, a reasonable juror could infer that Columbia, which agreed to pay $1.0 million when asked for $1.8 million, would have paid a much lower amount as a condition for renewing the Plan – if anything. See id. ¶¶ 132-133. Further, the $1 million payment was a contributing cause to Columbia's bankruptcy – which occurred in the middle of Columbia's four installment payments – and the resulting legal fees. See id. ¶ 29.[6]

II. Material Issues of Fact Exist as to the Breach of Fiduciary Duty Claim (Count Three)

A. The Evidence Is Sufficient To Establish a Fiduciary Relationship, Due to NCRIC's Superior Knowledge and Skill and Columbia's Repose of Trust

Columbia's breach of fiduciary duty claim requires that it prove the existence of a fiduciary duty and a breach thereof. See Shapiro, Lifschitz & Schram, P.C. v. R.E. Hazard, Jr. Ltd., 24 F. Supp. 2d 66, 75 (D.D.C. 1998).

The evidence shows that NCRIC owed Columbia a fiduciary duty. This duty arose from the structure of the Retro Plan, which placed NCRIC in a position of superior knowledge and required that Columbia trust NCRIC's calculations. Specifically, NCRIC was to perform all bookkeeping, including all Reconciliation calculations, for both parties, see SMF2 ¶¶ 4, 89; and Columbia was not given access to information necessary to audit NCRIC's calculations (e.g., undiscounted insurance premiums of individual Attending Faculty members and rate-factor multipliers used to calculate the Subject Premium, see id. ¶¶ 87-88, 95, and indemnity and

---

[5] As explained in detail in SMF2, NCRIC improperly miscalculated the September 1, 1997 Reconciliation by $1.8 million by adding an additional Experience Period to it, id. ¶¶ 124-127; or alternatively, it miscalculated the Reconciliation by about $500,000, by using the wrong Deposit Premium Factor and the wrong Maximum Premium, id. ¶¶ 118-123, 128-133. Each error increased the amount shown as Return Premium owed by Columbia.

[6] The testimony of various Columbia Board members does not, as NCRIC urges, contradict Columbia's claim that NCRIC was a contributing cause of the bankruptcy. These witnesses testified that Columbia's battle with the Bank of Tokyo caused the bankruptcy filing – not that it was the sole cause. That the bankruptcy had another cause does not preclude Columbia from holding NCRIC liable for the share of the damages that it caused.

expense reserves for individual malpractice claims that comprise the Loss Reserves, see id. ¶¶ 86, 87).

The fiduciary duty also arose out of the facts of the parties' relationship, apart from the Plan. NCRIC's Reconciliation calculations involved application of the Retro Formula – an extremely complicated formula developed by NCRIC and its actuaries. See id. ¶ 6. As such, from the very outset, NCRIC held a position of superior knowledge and skill regarding operation of the Plan. See id. ¶¶ 80, 82. Moreover, the parties relationship was not, from the start, entirely commercial: Columbia is not a typical market competitor, but rather, a non-financially sophisticated non-profit, community-benefit institution, focused on the well-being of mothers and newborns. See id. ¶¶ 70-71. As a result, its management and Board reasonably expected that they could look to NCRIC, a cooperative owned by doctors (including many who practiced at Columbia), which had a long-standing relationship with the hospital, for support during its difficult times. See id. ¶¶ 86-88.

Moreover, even if the Plan itself had not rendered the parties' relationship fiduciary in nature, the evolution of their relationship into a "joint undertaking" gave rise to such a duty. By late 1997, the differential between the parties' knowledge and understanding of the Plan increased, due to sea changes at Columbia including: the resignation of its entire Board of Directors, see id. ¶ 34; the departure of several CEO's in quick succession, see id.; the crisis with the Bank of Tokyo, see id. ¶ 115; and bankruptcy, see id. ¶ 34. See id. ¶¶ 27, 31, 34. As such, having essentially no prior knowledge or understanding of the Retro Plan, see id. ¶¶ 72, 74, 76, and being consumed by other crises, it was reasonable for Columbia's new management to have placed their trust in NCRIC to administer the Plan on Columbia's behalf – regardless of whether such trust and reliance was reasonable at the outset of the Plan. See Humana Health Plan, Inc. v.

Heritage Indiana Med. Group, P.C., No. 99:C 6276, 2001 WL 8878, at *2-*3 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 3, 2001) ("a contractual relationship may evolve into a fiduciary relationship").

Finally, the parties' fiduciary relationship was reinforced during the reconciliation process. At the quarterly meetings with NCRIC personnel, Columbia representatives sought to inform themselves about the operation of the Plan, by asking how the various terms were reflected on the spreadsheets; by asking NCRIC to run through the Retro Formula calculations; and by checking NCRIC's math to the extent they could. See SMF2 ¶¶ 83-88. However, Columbia's personnel were unable to audit NCRIC's numbers because, inter alia, the spreadsheets do not show all of the multipliers used in the Retro Formula, and Columbia had access to none of the underlying data (e.g., individual premiums or loss reserves). See id. ¶¶ 86-88. Columbia's personnel frequently expressed frustration with their inability to know all the calculations or see all the data. In response, NCRIC's representatives repeatedly stated that the calculations were accurate, that they corrected any errors they found, and that they were watching out for Columbia's interests when performing the Reconciliations. See id. ¶¶ 88-91. Finally, Columbia's personnel repeatedly expressed that they trusted NCRIC to perform the Reconciliations, and generally operate the Retro Plan, on Columbia's behalf, and NCRIC's personnel repeatedly reassured them that this trust was warranted. See id. ¶¶ 88-91. This trusting relationship continued from late Fall 1997 through at least Spring 2000. See id.

Due to the structure of the Retro Plan, NCRIC's inherent position of superior knowledge and skill, and NCRIC's claim that Columbia should trust its performance, a fiduciary relationship arose. See, e.g., Cafritz v. Corporation Audit Co., 60 F. Supp. 627, 631 (D.D.C. 1945) (holding that an accountant owed its client a fiduciary duty), aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, 156 F.2d 839, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 196 (D.C. Cir. 1946); see Church of Scientology, Int'l v. Eli Lilly & Co., 848 F. Supp. 1018, 1028 (D.D.C. 1994) (fiduciary relationship exists when "the parties, through the past history of the relationship and their conduct, had extended the relationship beyond the limits of the contractual obligations").

B. NCRIC's Assertion That No Fiduciary Duty Arose Ignores the Fact-Intensive Nature of Fiduciary Relationship and the Facts in the Record

In its brief, NCRIC glosses over the inherently "fact-intensive" nature of fiduciary relationships. Firestone v. Firestone, 76 F.3d 1205, 1211, 316 U.S. App. D.C. 152, 158 (D.C. Cir. 1996). In fact, whether a fiduciary relationship exists is a "searching inquiry" that considers "the nature of the relationship, the promises made, the type of services or advice given and the legitimate expectations of the parties." Id. (quoting Church of Scientology, 848 F. Supp. at 1028) (internal quotation marks omitted). This inquiry is best performed by a jury. As a result, where there are facts on both sides of the issue, "it may not be appropriate to resolve this issue on a motion for summary judgment." Firestone, 76 F.3d at 1211, 316 U.S. App. D.C. at 158. Here, though NCRIC ignores it, the record is replete with evidence that supports the parties' fiduciary relationship.[7]

1. The Parties' Relationship Was Not Arms-Length

NCRIC also argues that no fiduciary duty arises because the duties alleged are merely contractual and "negotiated at arms length." In fact, there is no competent evidence in the record that the parties negotiated at arms-length, because no witness in this case was involved in the [7] NCRIC attempts to argue that Columbia's allegations "fail as a matter of law" to give rise to a fiduciary duty. NCRIC Mem. at 31 (citing Counterclaims ¶ 119). But this Court has already rejected that argument. See Order at 3-4. As Columbia previously argued, the Retro Plan gave rise to a fiduciary relationship because confidence was "'reposed [by Columbia] and the resulting superiority and influence [of NCRIC].'" Columbia's Supplemental Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims at 5 (quoting Cafritz, 60 F. Supp. at 631, and citing Church of Scientology, 848 F. Supp. at 1028). Judge Davis's holding that Columbia's allegations were sufficient to allege a fiduciary duty must be respected as the law of the case. See, e.g., Ehrenhaft, 483 A.2d at 1196-97 (applying law of case to summary judgment motion after issue was determined in motion to dismiss). Since Columbia has adduced sufficient evidence to prove the facts it pleaded, a holding that Columbia failed to make out a claim for fiduciary duty on those facts would violate the law of the case.

initial negotiations of the Plan.[8] Further, the structure of the Plan itself was critical to the development, as a factual matter, of the parties' fiduciary relationship. It is well-accepted that such a duty may arise out a contract. See GLM Corp. v. Klein, 665 F. Supp. 283, 286 (S.D.N.Y. 1987) ("If a contract establishes a relationship of trust and confidence between the parties . . . , then a fiduciary duty arises from the contract which is independent of the contractual obligation."); see also Lavin v. Kaufman, Greenhut, Lebowitz & Forman, 640 N.Y.S.2d 57, 58 (App. Div. 1996); Mandelblatt v. Devon Stores, Inc., 521 N.Y.S.2d 672, 676 (App. Div. 1987).

Contrary to NCRIC's assertion, Columbia supports its allegations of trust in NCRIC with credible testimony by real people, not "legal conclusions." From late 1997 onward, Columbia did trust NCRIC to perform Reconciliations properly and for Columbia's benefit. See SMF2 ¶ 88 (citing Declarations of Ann Gaffey, Gerry Beaulieu, et al.; Wilson Decl. ¶¶ 3-4). Hence, regardless of what the parties' relationship was in 1993 (and there is no evidence either way), Columbia turned to NCRIC to operate the Plan on its behalf, and Columbia placed its trust in NCRIC's superior knowledge and skill, at least by late 1997. See supra, p. ____;[9] see, e.g., Humana Health Plan, 2001 WL 8878, at *2-*3 ("a contractual relationship may evolve into a fiduciary relationship . . . when one party reposes trust and confidence in another who thereby gains a resulting influence and superiority over the first") (internal quotation marks omitted).

2. The Quarterly Meetings Were Seminars, Not Audits

[8] Indeed, NCRIC (which has refused to designate any former employees) designated no Rule 30(b)(6) witnesses for questions pertaining to events that occurred before late 1995; Columbia was able to designate a few former employees, but none who participated in the initial negotiations was available.

[9] NCRIC's claim that "[a]ll obligations between the parties were contained wholly within" the Retro Plan Deposition of Safa Rifka, M.D., Jr. at 6-7 (Jan. 18, 2002) ("Rifka Dep. II") finds absolutely no support in the record. NCRIC cites a statement by Dr. Rifka (who never even read the Plan) from a personal deposition, expressing his understanding that the parties' relationship was contractual. See NCRIC Mem. (citing Rifka Dep.). Dr. Rifka never said that the relationship was "wholly" contractual, however. Nor did he even suggest that the parties' relationship was not fiduciary in nature. In fact, Dr. Rifka understands that Columbia placed its trust in NCRIC. See Rifka Decl. ¶ 5.

Moreover, the Retro Plan provision calling for quarterly reconciliations "for purposes of cross reference and confirmation," see SMF2 ¶ 77, does not, as NCRIC seems to suggest, preclude Columbia from proving that a fiduciary relationship existed. See NCRIC Mem. at 32. Whether a fiduciary duty exists is a "fact-intensive question," Firestone, 76 F.3d at 1211, 316 U.S. App. D.C. at 158. As such, that Columbia had the opportunity to meet with NCRIC about the Reconciliations is no basis for concluding that, as a matter of law, no fiduciary relationship existed between the parties.

In fact, contrary to NCRIC's assertion, the meetings provided Columbia no opportunity whatsoever to "verify and confirm NCRIC's information independently." NCRIC Mem. at 32. Due to the parties' trusting relationship and NCRIC's superior knowledge about the Plan, both parties treated the meetings as information sessions for NCRIC to impart to Columbia basic details about Reconciliations and a rudimentary explanation of the Plan's operation. See SMF2 ¶¶ 83-84. These meetings were not the place for Columbia to grill NCRIC about every term or to have independent accountants audit the spreadsheet. See id. ¶¶ 86-87. Moreover, NCRIC never provided Columbia with any individual loss reserve calculations, actuarial verifications of the total of the reserves, lists of individual insurance premiums, or multipliers used to calculate Subject Premium. See id. ¶ 85. Indeed, when Columbia requested such information, NCRIC demurred, saying that its loss reserves were confidential doctor information and that its methodology for calculating Subject Premium was proprietary. See id. ¶ 87.

3. The Parties' Bargaining Positions Were Not Equal

NCRIC's argument that the parties stood in equal bargaining position ignores contrary evidence in the record. As the evidence foregoing shows, Columbia's management and Board, particularly from late 1997 onward, while the hospital was suffering financial difficulties, placed their trust in NCRIC to administer the Retro Plan on Columbia's behalf.

16d-001264

NCRIC offers no basis for its assertion that Columbia was a sophisticated financial entity, and the evidence allows an inference to the contrary: after October 1997, Columbia had a new CEO with no prior experience with the Retro Plan; it had no in-house counsel; its Risk Manager had no legal or financial training, and little experience with insurance issues; and it was experiencing a financial crisis.[10] See id. 72-74, 115-17

NCRIC's suggestion that Columbia was sophisticated simply because it "initiated" the December 1995 "negotiations" to increase the discount also demands an inference against Columbia. Even so, Columbia's bargaining position drastically declined by late 1997 and early 1998, after it faced turmoil on the Board, receivership, resignation of the Board, several successive CEOs, and bankruptcy. See id. ¶ 34.

Nor does the existence of other malpractice alternatives for Columbia indicate that it held an equal bargaining position with NCRIC. To the contrary, the result of each of Columbia's forays into finding a new malpractice insurance program underlines Columbia's difficult position: In 1998, when Columbia looked for more cost-effective malpractice insurance programs, NCRIC's scare tactics with the Attending Faculty forced Columbia to reject the MIIX program that was objectively a better deal for the hospital. See id. ¶¶ 148-155. Further, in 1999, due to Attending Faculty reluctance, the attempt to look for a new insurer went nowhere. See id. ¶ 156. Finally, in 2000, when Columbia finally had no money to continue the Plan, NCRIC

[10] Even prior to 1997, Columbia had displayed less sophistication than NCRIC. Columbia's CEO, Susan Hansen, wrote NCRIC to ask about the "30% discount" – which was how NCRIC explained the new, 33% discount (i.e., 30% off the total $1 million premium that physicians paid equaled 33% off the $500,000 in premium) to persons not well-versed with the Plan's intricacies. See SMF2 ¶ 18. By contrast, in his response, NCRIC's Vice President displayed his sophistication: he explained that an array of multipliers in the Plan would likely change as a result of the new 33% discount. (The parties later agreed that most of these changes would not occur. See id. ¶ 22.)

flexed its muscles by "terminating" the Plan, retaliating against Columbia, and inducing the physicians to walk. See id. ¶ 209. If Columbia had any negotiating position, the Retro Plan would have been renewed at more favorable terms, and a third of its physicians would not be practicing elsewhere today.

In sum, NCRIC offers no basis for concluding that it did not have superior knowledge and skill, or that Columbia did not trust and rely upon it with NCRIC's knowledge. Therefore, particularly in light of the fact-intensive nature of this inquiry, summary judgment must be denied. See Church of Scientology, 848 F. Supp. at 1028.

III. Material Issues of Fact Exist As to the Breach of Implied Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Claim (Count Two)

Under District of Columbia law, a party to a contract breaches its implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by, inter alia, "evading the spirit of the contract" or "willfully rendering imperfect performance." Steel v. Isikoff, 130 F. Supp. 2d 23, 32 (D.D.C. 2000) (internal quotation marks omitted). NCRIC's willful misconduct in 1998 and 2000, see, e.g., supra, pp. ___, clearly constitutes a breach of that duty. NCRIC breached that duty in several ways.

A. NCRIC Evaded the Spirit of the Contract Because Its Ultimatum Denied Columbia the Benefit of the Oral Agreement

In October 1997, in the midst of a financial crisis for Columbia, NCRIC demanded that Columbia pay $1.7 million in cumulative Additional Premium. Otherwise NCRIC would not renew the Plan. See SMF2 ¶ 35. Not able to locate another insurance program for its Attending Faculty on such short notice, Columbia had no choice but to agree to pay what it could: $1.0 million. See id.

There is evidence that NCRIC's demand was made in bad faith: (1) the demand effectively thwarted the benefit of Columbia's bargain, from the oral agreement with NCRIC just the year before, that Columbia would not pay money in 1997, see id. ¶ 11; (2) NCRIC did not even mention the oral agreement to Columbia's new acting CEO (who did not know about the agreement), see id. ¶ 35; (3) and the Reconciliation included the 1995-96 Experience Period, even though at the time the existing contract showed that Experience Periods were to be reconciled two years after they were completed, see id. ¶ 17; SMF2 ¶¶ 124-127; (4) without including this Experience Period (for which the Loss Reserves were high), the plan would have shown a cumulative Return Premium due (i.e., a balance in Columbia's favor), see id. ¶ 127. A reasonable juror could infer that NCRIC took advantage of Columbia and denied it the benefit of its bargain by willfully manipulating the September 1, 1997 Reconciliation and Columbia's new acting CEO.

Further, NCRIC's $1 million "exception" to the oral agreement in 1997 stands in stark contrast to its strict compliance in the years of the Plan where it owed money: in 1996, NCRIC owed $159,000, but did not pay, due to the oral agreement; in 1998, rather than paying cumulative Return Premium of $670,000, it paid merely $172,000 – due to the oral agreement. See id. ¶¶ 26, 126, 157. By extracting the $1 million when Columbia was in a bad financial position, a reasonable juror could conclude, NCRIC purposely attempted to "evad[e] the spirit" of the parties' agreement not to exchange money and deny Columbia the benefit of its bargain.

NCRIC's argument that Columbia's $1 million payment was "negotiated," even if true, does not absolve its bad-faith conduct. Moreover, the evidence shows that, having no other alternative insurance program, Columbia had no choice but to make the payment. SMF2 ¶ 35.

In addition, NCRIC is wrong to argue that its assent to somewhat more favorable terms, in the Addendum signed in January 1998, indicates that it had not acted in bad faith by demanding the $1 million in October 1997. NCRIC cannot retroactively excuse its bad faith through generosity. Moreover, NCRIC did not follow through on these accommodations – which, in itself, is evidence of bad faith. For example, although the Addendum lowered the Minimum Premium, to allow Columbia to retroactively recoup Return Premium from the 1993-94 and 1994-95 Experience Periods (when NCRIC had reaped a huge windfall due to excellent claims history) NCRIC never followed through on the accommodation. Instead, it refused to apply the Minimum Premium as written in the Retro Plan, to Columbia's detriment. See Columbia's SJ Mem. at 13-14.

Nor did the parties' oral agreement "accommodat[e] Columbia." In fact, NCRIC used the oral agreement to escape paying money under the Plan when it was convenient (1996, 1998), see id. ¶ 11, and demanded money as an "exception" to the oral agreement at the height of Columbia's fiscal woes (1997), see id. ¶ 35. Columbia managed to avoid paying money it owed in only one of the six years of the oral agreement (1999). See id. ¶ 157. After that (2000, 2001), NCRIC decided not to "renew" the Plan – and demanded payment in full, in an apparent attempt unilaterally to terminate the oral agreement.

B. NCRIC Willfully Rendered Imperfect Performance by Performing Reconciliations Inaccurately

In early 2000, Columbia asked its insurance broker to review the Retro Plan. See SMF2 ¶ 94. As a result, Columbia learned that NCRIC had been applying the wrong Deposit Premium – 62% instead of 67% – and notified NCRIC. See id. Despite being notified of this error, Mr. Fargis, who drafted the amendment containing the 67% figure (and the prior amendment, which also contained that amount), and who had reviewed the language before it was signed, claimed to be "puzzled" as to how it got there – and insisted that such a "direct reading" of the contract did not reflect Columbia's intent. See id. Subsequently, NCRIC refused to use the Deposit Premium stated in the Plan in performing any reconciliations. See e.g., SMF2 ¶ 243. This is "willfully rendering imperfect performance."

NCRIC also failed to provide the Attending Faculty with the discount that the parties negotiated. Apparently, NCRIC gave the doctors a larger discount, and secretly passed the cost along to Columbia by reducing the Deposit Premium accordingly. See id. ¶¶ 86, 96. The contract says 33%, and NCRIC knew it – but it has been providing 37%, without informing Columbia. See id. Columbia SJ Mem. at 4.

In sum, Columbia marshaled substantial evidence to show that NCRIC's conduct was far worse than "heavy-handed." A reasonable juror could conclude that NCRIC acted in bad faith.

IV. Material Issues of Fact Exist as to the Intentional/Constructive and Negligent Misrepresentation Claims (Counts Seven and Eight)

A. Columbia Established All of the Essential Elements of Fraud

The essential elements of fraud are: (1) a false representation; (2) concerning a material fact; (3) made with knowledge of its falsity; (4) with the intent to deceive; (5) upon which reliance is placed. See Goldsmith v. Tapper, 748 A.2d 416, 419 (D.C. 2000).

1. NCRIC Made Material, False Representations to Columbia in the Reconciliations

NCRIC's agents falsely represented to Columbia, after the performance of each Reconciliation, that an amount of Additional or Return Premium for each closed Experience Periods, plus a cumulative amount of Additional or Return Premium, was due. See SMF2 ¶ 126.

NCRIC's false representations were material because they resulted in Columbia paying significantly more money to NCRIC (the $1 million deposit) or receiving no Return Premium when it was due (for example in 1998 and in 1999). See Defendant's Mem. at 12.[11] If not for [11] Further, even when no money was due between the parties, the amount NCRIC reported to Columbia significantly impacted Columbia's understanding of whether the Plan was economically viable, and its decisions whether to NCRIC's false representations, Columbia would have paid the correct amount of Additional Premium and/or would have demanded the correct amount of Return Premium. See id. ¶ 241.

NCRIC's claim that its Reconciliation calculations were always correct, see NCRIC Mem. at 27, 36, misstates the factual record. Not even Mr. Fargis, who performed the Reconciliations for NCRIC, see SMF2 ¶ 81, makes such a claim. To the contrary, Mr. Fargis admits that he performed inaccurate Reconciliation calculations, including a major "error" in the September 1, 1997 Reconciliation. See id. ¶¶ 123, 129-132 (admitting to a misapplication of the Deposit Premium for that calculation, which denied Columbia credit of $532,000); see also Further, in addition to the errors to which Mr. Fargis admits, he repeatedly failed to produce Reconciliations that complied with the terms of the Retro Plan, despite contrary representations to Columbia. See, e.g., id. ¶¶ 118-127.[12] For the same reasons that Columbia prevails on its claim that NCRIC breached the contract by wrongly calculating the Additional Premium due, see supra, pp.__; infra, pp. __, Columbia also must prevail on its claim that NCRIC misrepresented to Columbia the amount of Additional and/or Return Premium that was due.

2. There Is Clear and Convincing Evidence That NCRIC Made the Representations with Knowledge That They Were False

The evidence shows that NCRIC (1) drafted an the Addendum to the Plan establishing the 67% Deposit Premium factor, yet (2) repeatedly used the 62% factor after the amendment.

renew the Plan or look for alternatives. In particular, in 1996, Columbia decided to renew the Plan based on NCRIC's misrepresentation that it owed far less than called for by the Plan. See SMF2 ¶¶ 14, 111.

[12] For example, NCRIC improperly used 62% for the Deposit Premium factor, see Columbia SJ Mem. at 14-15; see SMF ¶¶ 24-30 – without Columbia knowing, because the multiplier does not appear on its spreadsheets, see SMF2 ¶ 95. This reduced Columbia's credit towards the Retro Premium. Because the correct multiplier was 67%, see Columbia SJ Mem. at 14-15, each Reconciliation falsely underrepresented the amount of Columbia's credit.

16d-001270

Further, it performed the 1996 and 1997 Reconciliations inaccurately, first causing Columbia to renew the Plan, then causing Columbia to pay $1 million that was not due. This is clear and convincing evidence of fraud.

NCRIC argues, incorrectly, that Columbia failed to establish its knowledge of falsity by "clear and convincing evidence." This standard is not onerous[13]: it simply requires Columbia to "produce in the mind of the trier of fact a firm belief . . . as to the [fraud]." District of Columbia v. Hudson, 404 A.2d 175, 179 n.7 (D.C. 1979) (en banc) (internal quotation marks omitted). With regard to fraudulent intent, the standard requires a showing that the false statements were "not equally consistent with either honesty or deceit." Bennett v. Kiggins, 377 A.2d 57, 59 (D.C. 1977). No direct evidence of deceit is necessary, however: "Generally, the fact of misrepresentation coupled with proof that the practitioner knew of the falsity warrants the inference that there was fraudulent intent." Lipman v. Lehman, Civ. A. No. 95-0774, 1996 WL 420869, at *8 (D.D.C. July 19, 1996), aff'd, 174 F.3d 1363 (Fed. Cir. 1999).

Further, with regard to the "errors" to which Mr. Fargis admits, Columbia met the clear and convincing evidence standard because the fact of the inaccurate calculation on the spreadsheet is "coupled" with evidence that Mr. Fargis simply entered the numbers into the computer. While Mr. Fargis claims that the errors were typographical, his credibility is a question for the jury.

The same is true with inaccurate calculations that Mr. Fargis admits he made knowingly, such as the use of the 62% Deposit Premium factor. His assertion that he "has no idea" why the Plan says 67% does not negate Columbia's inference that, as the drafter, he knew what the Plan said and simply misrepresented to Columbia that his calculations complied with the Plan.

[13] The standard has been described as "somewhere between a preponderance of evidence and evidence probative beyond a reasonable doubt." In re J.M.C., 741 A.2d 418, 423 (D.C. 1999) (internal quotation marks omitted).

NCRIC cannot simply "dispose of this fact-intensive count by arguing that [Columbia] has failed to adduce 'clear and convincing evidence'. . . . A jury, drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of [Columbia], could find on the basis of those facts that [Columbia] proved fraudulent misrepresentation by clear and convincing evidence." Cassidy & Pinkard, Inc. v. Jemal, 899 F. Supp. 5, 8-9 (D.D.C. 1995).

NCRIC is similarly misguided to argue that it could not act with the necessary intent for fraud, as a matter of law, because reconciliations were mere "estimates." See NCRIC Mem. at 35, 37. According to NCRIC, interim reconciliations were always estimates, and annual Reconciliations became estimates when the parties agreed not to exchange money except for closed Experience Periods. See id. Under the Retro Plan, however, reconciliations, annual and interim, were not "estimates" of future amounts. Instead, they were actual calculations of the current status of the Plan at the present time. Indeed, many of the terms of the Plan – Paid Losses, Subject Premium, Minimum Premium, Maximum Premium and Deposit Premium, to name just a few – involved no estimate or future prediction whatsoever. These terms reflected actual, current amounts already paid or received by NCRIC. Any miscalculation of these terms – or the multipliers used to interpret these terms, which were written in black and white in the Plan itself – was not a "mis-estimate."

Indeed, the only part of the Plan that arguably could be considered an "estimate" was the Loss Reserves – but neither the Plan nor NCRIC's claims department treats loss reserves as estimates. Reserves are current amounts, actually set aside to pay the indemnity or expenses for a claim. See Gaffey Decl. ¶ 9. This is reflected in the Plan, which does not speak of estimates, but current indemnity reserves (not estimated future indemnity payments) and current ALAE reserves (not estimated future expense payments) – which are multiplied by the *current*ly applicable Development Factors.

Further, whether the parties planned to exchange money as a result of a reconciliation is irrelevant. Under the Plan as drafted, interim reconciliations were to be performed by the same method as annual Reconciliations, see SMF2 ¶ 12, and the parties never agreed that NCRIC could perform any reconciliations less rigorously than called for under the Plan, see id. ¶ 12 [?]. Nor is there that there parties ever agreed that annual Reconciliations would be performed differently under the oral agreement than under the Plan as drafted.[14][8] Certainly, NCRIC never informed Columbia that, nor did Columbia's personnel understand that, the Reconciliations were anything other than actual calculations of the current status of the Plan. See id. ¶ 84.[15] To the contrary, NCRIC always represented to Columbia that it followed the Plan to the letter. See id.

Finally, as NCRIC admits, even "estimates" may be relied upon if the estimator knows about such reliance. Here, NCRIC did know that Columbia relied upon it. See infra, p. __.[16]

2. NCRIC Intended for Columbia To Rely, and It Did Reasonably Rely, on NCRIC's False Representations, to Its Detriment

NCRIC intended that Columbia rely upon its false representations, as it demanded money or did not pay money based upon its calculations. See SMF ¶¶ 71, 76; see also SMF2 ¶ 157. At least once, NCRIC also encouraged Columbia to renew the Retro Plan based upon its representations. See id. ¶¶ 14, 23. Moreover, due to NCRIC's position as bookkeeper for the [14] Indeed, NCRIC admits that the quarterly reconciliations are important for Columbia to be able to assess how Loss Reserves are developing over the course of the year, so that it is not surprised at the amount of premium that is owed at year-end. See id. ¶ 107. Accordingly, NCRIC had reasont o believe that Columbia relied on interim reconciliations when planning its budget for year-end Reconciliations.

[15] NCRIC also argues that Columbia's constructive fraud claim fails for lack of a fiduciary relationship. As Columbia has shown, the parties' relationship was fiduciary in nature at least after Fall 1997. See supra, pp. __.

[16] Additionally, even if Reconciliations were "estimates" of future premium due, for at least some errors, NCRIC knew that its "estimates" would never accurately reflect the true terms of the Plan (e.g., applying 62% instead of 67% would never yield the correct "estimated future" Deposit Premium factor).

Plan, Columbia's reliance on these false Reconciliations by paying or collecting the wrong amounts, was reasonable and known to NCRIC. See SMF ¶ 19 (payment was due within 60 days of reconciliation). Finally, Columbia was directly and proximately damaged by the false representations by overpaying or undercollecting premium. See id. ¶¶ 71, 76.[17] This was sufficient to prove fraud by clear and compelling evidence.

B. NCRIC's Arguments for Summary Judgment Misstate the Facts

At a minimum, this evidence shows that NCRIC's misrepresentations were negligent. Such negligence will give rise to a claim for misrepresentation. See Hall v. Ford Enters., Ltd., 445 A.2d 610, 612 (D.C. 1982) (elements of negligent misrepresentation are a material, false statement that was relied upon to the plaintiff's detriment, and negligence).

Here, NCRIC had the Retro Formula available to it, it created the Reconciliation spreadsheets on spreadsheet software (which performs all the calculations automatically), and it had 60 days to perform and review the calculations for correctness, see SMF ¶ 19 – yet it made "errors," consistently in its own favor, that cost Columbia hundreds of thousands of dollars, see SMF2 ¶¶ 128-132. NCRIC's failure to check its work or inability to use the spreadsheet software correctly thus gives rise to a claim for negligent misrepresentation if not misrepresentation itself.

NCRIC claims, however, without citation, that it performed Reconciliations with "due care" as a matter of law.[18] Yet NCRIC also admits that it made numerous large errors in its Reconciliations. See id. ¶¶ 108, 123. In light of NCRIC's knowledge and skill about the Retro

[17] Further, in 1996, Columbia renewed the Plan based on NCRIC's false September 1, 1996 Reconciliation, thereby incurring additional obligations for Additional Premium. See SMF2 ¶¶ 111-112.

[18] Even the self-serving testimony that NCRIC cites does not support its claim that calculations were performed with "due care." NCRIC Mem. at 39. At best, this testimony indicates that the calculations were "correct to the best of NCRIC's knowledge." Fargis Decl. ¶ 20; Burgess Decl. ¶ 15. That is not the same as performing calculations with due care: good faith is a subjective standard, which one calls an objective one. Moreover, there is no evidence that Plan, its past experience performing Reconciliations, its use of a spreadsheet to perform the calculations and the 60-day window it is allowed to prepare its calculations, a reasonable jury easily could conclude that NCRIC's failure to perform the calculations correctly was negligent.

V. Material Issues of Fact Exist as to Columbia's Defamation and Injurious Falsehood Claims (Counts Nine and Ten)

A. Columbia Satisfied Each Element of Defamation and Injurious Falsehood

The elements of defamation are: (1) a false, defamatory statement that the defendant made concerning the claimant; (2) publication without privilege to a third party; (3) publication resulting from defendant's negligence; and (4) damages resulting from publication. See Crowley v. North Am. Telecomms. Ass'n, 691 A.2d 1169, 1173 n.2 (D.C. 1997); Prins v. International Tel. and Tel. Corp., 757 F. Supp. 87, 90 (D.D.C. 1991). The elements of injurious falsehood (or "trade libel"[19]) are the same, except that the false statement must disparage the claimant's property, goods or services. See Golden Palace, Inc. v. National Broad. Co., 386 F. Supp. 107, 109 (D.D.C. 1974). Columbia has shown that NCRIC made defamatory and disparaging statements in Summer/Fall 2000, and disparaging statements in Fall 1998.

1. NCRIC Published False, Defamatory and/or Disparaging Statements in Summer/Fall 2000 That Concerned and Damaged Columbia

Dr. Leonard Glassman, Chairman of NCRIC's Board of Directors, published disparaging statements concerning Columbia to a wide variety of people:

- On September 1, 2000, Dr. Glassman announced in Columbia's cafeteria that (1) the Entity Policy covering CPG physicians and the Clinic had expired; (2) CPG physicians with NCRIC individual medical malpractice insurance policies were not covered under those policies when practicing at the Clinic; (3) Columbia's self-insurance trust fund was insufficiently funded to insure the Clinic; and (4) Columbia was planning to cease errors were corrected "immediately," as NCRIC says; some errors continued from year to year. See SMF2 ¶ 108.

[19] See also Procter & Gamble Co. v. Quality King Distribs., Inc., 974 F. Supp. 190, 197 (E.D.N.Y. 1997) (trade libel involves disparagement of a goods or services); ArtMetal-USA, Inc. v. United States, 753 F.2d 1151, 1156, 244 U.S. App. D.C. 1, 6 (D.C. Cir. 1985) ("injurious falsehood" and "trade libel" are same tort).

operations. See SMF2 ¶¶ 161-162. Many physicians overheard Dr. Glassman make these statements. Not surprisingly, rumors to these effects circulated throughout the hospital. See id. 162.

- Also in about September 2000, staff members in Columbia's Radiology Department, where Dr. Glassman worked, repeatedly overheard him telling patients to pick up their films and bring them to his office in the suburbs because Columbia was planning to close, and telling physicians employed by the Hospital to start looking for jobs elsewhere for the same reason. See id. ¶ 163. Dr. Glassman made these statements with his door open, so other radiology patients in the office also could hear these statements. See id. 164.

- At around the same time, Dr. Glassman told another physician, Dr. Gideon Kioko, to move his group to Sibley, because (he urged) Columbia was about to close. Other physicians who were eating in the cafeteria at the time heard these remarks. See id. ¶ 165.

- Later, Dr. Glassman told a physician in the hallway at Columbia that, because the hospital was closing, another physician, Dr. Evelyn Karson, was leaving. See id. ¶ 166.[20]

The foregoing statements by Dr. Glassman were false because (1) the Entity Policy was in effect through September 15, 2000; (2) the endorsement excluding CPG physicians from coverage under their individual NCRIC malpractice policies while practicing at the Clinic was issued on October 1, 2000 and did not go into effect until November 15, 2000; (3) Columbia had committed to fund its self-insurance trust on an as-needed basis to pay all claims against the Clinic and CPG physicians; and (4) Columbia's management had no plans to cease operations. See id. ¶ 167.

Further, these statements were defamatory because they called into question the hospital's insurability and future viability. See, e.g., John Langenbacher Co., Inc. v. Tolksdorf, 199 A.D.2d 64, 64-65 (2d Dep't 1993) (statement that company would suffer "financial problems . . . and would be unable to fulfill its commitments" was slanderous).[21] Additionally, the [20] NCRIC's Policyholder Services Department (including, e.g., Vice President David Osborn and Eric Hempleman), and Dr. Morton Roberts, a NCRIC "insider" who Columbia considered to be speaking on behalf of NCRIC published similar statements in September and July 2000, respectively. See id. ¶¶ 169-73.

[21] The statements that Columbia was going to close and that the self-insurance trust fund could not cover malpractice claims against the Clinic, were slander per se, and therefore, no proof of damages is necessary. See statements were injurious falsehoods because they disparaged the quality of the insurance program, first through the Entity Policy and then through the self-insurance trust, that Columbia provided to physicians working in the Clinic.[22]

Finally, Columbia was damaged in several ways by NCRIC's statements. First, several CPG physicians quit working in the Clinic due to insurance concerns, leaving it uncovered and causing an uproar among Attending Faculty. See SMF2 ¶¶ 142, 148, 217, 228, 236. Moreover, based in large part on their understanding that Columbia was closing it doors, about twenty-seven long-time Attending Faculty members moved their practices to other hospitals. See id. ¶ 217. In addition, due to the rumors about its pending closure, Columbia was forced to cancel a major fundraiser, see id. ¶ 231, and due to the departure of its physicians, it became ineligible for a loan that would have substantially reduced its interest rate, see id. ¶¶ 237-238.

2. NCRIC Published False, Disparaging Statements in Fall 1998 That Concerned and Damaged Columbia

NCRIC Vice President Stephen Fargis and CEO R. Ray Pate published the following statements about Columbia:

- In September and October 1998, at meetings NCRIC called with the Attending Faculty, Mr. Fargis and Mr. Pate said that: (1) MIIX would not remain in the District of Columbia insurance market; (2) MIIX would not stand by its guarantee not to raise premiums for two years; (3) MIIX was an unreliable insurance company; (4) MIIX planned to raise premiums once it cornered the District of Columbia medical malpractice market; (5) the MIIX proposal was the result of cronyism which would benefit members of the Columbia Board of Directors rather than the Attending Faculty; (6) Columbia had lied to the Attending Faculty by stating that it could not afford to continue the Plan; and (7) lawyers with whom Union, AFL-CIO, 241 F.3d 82, 90 n.7 (statements are defamatory "per se," if they "impute insolvency, financial embarrassment, unworthiness of credit, or failure in business to a plaintiff"; "[u]nder the common law rule damages are presumed . . . if the defamatory statement is "libelous per se").

[22] As a NCRIC Board member and long-time Attending Faculty member, see SMF2 ¶ 160, Dr. Glassman had access to both NCRIC's and Columbia's management, and a reasonable juror could conclude that he acted negligently by making such profoundly negative statements in public, before confirming their veracity.

16d-001278

NCRIC contracted to defend physicians against medical malpractice claims would not work with MIIX. See id. ¶ 149.

These statements were all false, see id. ¶¶ 151-152, and NCRIC does not argue otherwise. The statements disparaged the quality of the insurance program that Columbia provided to physicians working in the Clinic.

Columbia suffered damage as a result of these statements because several prominent Attending Faculty members (whose practice groups admitted nearly one third of the hospital's total patients) demanded that Columbia proceed with the MIIX program instead of renewing the Retro Plan. See id. ¶ 153. Some of these physicians even threatened to leave the hospital, despite their loyalty to it, as a result of the panic caused by NCRIC. See id. ¶ 154. As a result, Columbia had no choice but to continue the Retro Plan – which meant that it would potentially be obliged to pay Additional Premium (unlike with the MIIX program). See id. ¶¶ 155, 136.

B. NCRIC Demands Inferences That Properly Belong to Columbia

NCRIC argues that both the injurious falsehood claim and the defamation claim fail, with respect to statements made in Summer/Fall 2000, because (1) the statements were not made by a specific NCRIC representative; (2) the statements were true; and (3) there is no "clear and convincing evidence" that NCRIC made the statements with "actual malice."[23] NCRIC Memorandum of Law in Support of the Motion For Summary Judgment at 12-14, 16-20 ("NCRIC Mem."). NCRIC argues further that the injurious falsehood claim fails with respect to [23] NCRIC's argument that its Summer/Fall 2000 statements were "opinions . . . not capable of bearing a defamatory meaning," NCRIC Mem. at 13, 18 n.10, fails because Judge Davis already rejected it, see Order at 8 (May 11, 2000) (holding that the statements in question were "capable of bearing a defamatory meaning"). Judge Davis's decision is the "law of the case," and must not be disturbed. See Ehrenhaft v. Malcolm Price, Inc., 483 A.2d 1192, 1197 (D.C. 1984) ("Law of the case" doctrine bars trial court from reconsidering questions of law already submitted to and adjudicated by another court of coordinate jurisdiction); see also id. at 1196-98 (law of the case doctrine prevented issue decided on motion to dismiss from being relitigated on summary judgment). Judge Davis's decision was correct. See Supplemental Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims ("Columbia Opp.") at 20-22 (explaining that NCRIC's September 2000 statements are actionable because they imply provably false facts or rely upon stated facts that are provably false).

statements made in Fall 1998 because those statements "do not even concern Columbia." NCRIC Mem. at 12-13, 15-16.[24] All four arguments improperly require that favorable inferences be drawn in NCRIC's favor.

1. Whether Dr. Glassman Spoke on NCRIC's Behalf Is a Jury Question

NCRIC asks the Court to infer that Dr. Glassman did not speak on NCRIC's behalf, but rather, "in his capacity as a Columbia physician." NCRIC Mem. at 14 n.6. This inference in NCRIC's favor must be rejected. A reasonable juror could conclude that Dr. Glassman – NCRIC's Chairman of the Board, who often purported to speak on the company's behalf, and who was understood to be speaking on NCRIC's behalf, see SMF2 ¶ 160 – had authority to do so.[25] See, e.g., Columbia Hosp. for Women Found., Inc. v. Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, Ltd., 15 F. Supp. 2d 1, 8 (D.D.C. 1997) (chairman of board had apparent authority to act on behalf of corporation); see, also American Express Co. v. Lopez, 340 N.Y.S.2d 82, 83 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1973) (same); see also Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Texas Bank of Garland, 783 S.W.2d 604, 607 (Tex. App. 1989) (chairman had apparent authority per se).[26] At a minimum, whether a statement by a NCRIC Board member to NCRIC insureds about NCRIC insurance coverage was made with (at least) apparent authority is a jury question. See Sigal Constr. Corp. v. Stanbury, 586 A.2d 1204, 1219 (D.C. 1991) ("[c]ritical to apparent authority, therefore, is the third-party's perception of the agent's authority"; "issue of apparent authority presents a question of fact"); see

[24] Nowhere does NCRIC argue that its Fall 1998 statements were true.

[25] NCRIC is simply wrong to claim that no specific person heard Dr. Glassman make defamatory statements. His statements were overheard, first-hand, by Dr. Nabil Asterbadi, Dr. Jerome O'Connell, other unnamed physicians, members of the Radiology Department staff, and radiology patients. See SMF2 ¶¶ 160-167. Columbia is not required to identify every person who heard the statements in order to prove publication to a group.

[26] "Apparent authority arises when a principal places an agent in a position which causes a third person to reasonably believe the principal had consented to the exercise of authority the agent purports to hold." Feltman v. Sarbov, 366 A.2d 137, 139 (D.C.1976) (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, listeners at Columbia understood that, as Chairman of the Board, Dr. Glassman knew NCRIC's position about Columbia's financial health and was authorized to disseminate it. SMF2 ¶ 160.

also American Soc'y of Mech. Eng'r v. Hydro Level Corp., 456 U.S. 556, 566 (1982) ("if an agent is guilty of defamation, the principal is liable so long as the agent was apparently authorized to make the defamatory statement"); Restatement (Second) of Agency § 247 (1957); see, e.g., Michaelson v. Exxon Research & Eng'g Co., 629 F. Supp. 418, 422 (W.D. Pa. 1986) (principal is liable for defamation based on theory of apparent authority).

Further, NCRIC is not absolved from liability, as it argues, if Dr. Glassman did not initiate the rumor that Columbia was planning to close. See NCRIC Mem. at 14 n.6. Even those who merely repeat slanderous statements are liable for defamation. See Restatement (Second) Torts § 581A, cmt. e. (1957); see, e.g., Smith v. Vencare, Inc., 519 S.E.2d 735, 742 ("talebearers are as bad as talemakers") (Ga. App. 1999). Plus, Columbia alleges more than just a generalized "rumor mill": unlike the cases NCRIC cites, the evidence here shows that specific people actually made specific defamatory statements. Compare Burns v. City of Minneapolis, Minnesota, No. 00-577 ADM/AJB, 2001 WL 1589619, at *3-*4 (D. Minn. Dec 11, 2001) (dismissing "'vague allegations" of "rumors . . . circulated around town'" and other "such chatter," when no specific statements by specific people were alleged); Szot v. Allstate Ins. Co., 161 F. Supp. 2d 596, 608 (D. Md. 2001) (dismissing defamation claim based on "rumor mill" where there was no evidence that defendant made the statements in question); Ives v. Guilford Mills, Inc., 3 F. Supp. 2d 191, 199 (N.D.N.Y. 1998) (dismissing defamation claim due to lack of specifics, and because "plaintiff ha[d] no specific statements in mind") (internal quotation marks omitted).[27]

[27] Further, since there is no evidence that anyone made the statements before Dr. Glassman did (except Dr. Roberts, a NCRIC insider), a reasonable jury could conclude that NCRIC started the rumor that Columbia was closing.

16d-001281

2. NCRIC's Summer and Fall Statements Were False, or Arguably False

Nor did Columbia admit the truth of NCRIC's statements. To the contrary, it is undisputed that two statements were false when they were made. First, NCRIC admits that it terminated the Entity Policy (it did not "expire") effective September 15, 2000, see NCRIC Statement ¶ 62; SMF2 ¶ 55, so Dr. Glassman's statement that it had expired was false when he made it two weeks earlier.[28] Second, NCRIC admits that the CPG physicians were covered under their individual insurance policies until the endorsements (issued on October 1, 2000) went into effect on November 15, 2000, see NCRIC Statement ¶¶ 63-64; SMF2 ¶¶ 63, 184-188, so Dr. Glassman's statement that these physicians were not covered was false on September 1.

Moreover, a jury could reasonably conclude that the self-insurance trust was "sufficiently funded" to insure the CPG, thereby rendering false Dr. Glassman's statement to the contrary. Although Columbia could not, due to its difficult financial situation, fund the trust to the actuarially recommended level, the fund never failed to cover claims against physicians in the Clinic. See id. ¶ 63. Rather, Columbia committed to pay, and did pay, any claims out of its operating expenses, by placing sufficient funds in the trust to cover any shortfall. See id. ¶ 59. As a result, the trust was always funded precisely to the level necessary to pay claims. Thus, a reasonable jury could conclude that NCRIC's statement was, in light of its audience (physicians, not actuaries) false.

3. The Statements Regarding MIIX Insurance Concerned Columbia's Insurance Program for Attending Faculty

NCRIC's false statements concerning MIIX insurance did not, as NCRIC contends, concern "an unrelated third party." NCRIC Mem. at 15. The statements concerned MIIX malpractice insurance, which Columbia had arranged to provide at a group discount to the [28] As such, the Policy never expired – it was terminated by NCRIC before the expiration date.

16d-001282

Attending Faculty. By disparaging the brand of insurance that Columbia had proposed to provide in its insurance program with the Attending Faculty, NCRIC disparaged a service provided by Columbia.[29] A reasonable juror could conclude that NCRIC's statements about MIIX insurance were either explicitly "of and concerning" Columbia's insurance program, or were "reasonably capable of sustaining an [implicit] defamatory meaning" that tarnished the program,[30] see Saenz v. Playboy Enters., Inc., 841 F.2d 1309, 1316 (7th Cir. 1988) (implicit defamatory statement must be "of and concerning" plaintiff). Further, NCRIC's statement that the MIIX program was the result of cronyism was "of and concerning" the process Columbia used to develop its insurance program. As such, a reasonable juror could conclude that the statement disparaged a Columbia service provided to the Attending Faculty. See id. ¶¶ 149-152.

Further, because NCRIC's statements concerning Columbia's insurance program were false, any privilege that otherwise might have protected NCRIC as a competitor was inapplicable. See Restatement (Second) of Torts § 649, cmt. c. (conditional privilege shields a competitor only if comparison does not contain false assertions of specific fact about its products or services).

C. The Actual Malice Standard Does Not Apply

1. NCRIC's Statements Were Commercial Speech, and Therefore, Not Entitled to the Protections of the "Actual Malice" Standard

It is uncontested that both NCRIC's 1998 statements regarding the MIIX-Columbia insurance program, and its and 2000 statements regarding Columbia's viability as a hospital,

---

[29] This is analogous to, for example, falsely disparaging the brand of radiology equipment at Columbia. Disparaging the quality of the hospital's equipment, also disparages the hospital's services.

[30] Coles v. Washington Free Weekly, Inc., 881 F. Supp. 26, 33 (D.D.C. 1995), aff'd, 88 F.3d 1278 (D.C. Cir. 1996). As such, Coles, which concluded that defendant's statement "[did] not necessarily imply" any defamatory meaning about plaintiff, is distinguishable. Id.

were made for the purpose of keeping the Attending Faculty as premium-paying NCRIC insureds. Hence, they were "commercial speech." See Procter & Gamble Co. v. Amway Corp., 242 F.3d 539, 549 (5th Cir.) (commercial speech includes statements "related solely to the economic interests of the speaker and its audience" and speech for the purpose of proposing a commercial transaction) (internal quotation marks omitted), cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 329 (2001); see, e.g., id. at 566 (disparagement constituted commercial speech); World Wrestling Fed'n Entm't, Inc. v. Bozell, 142 F. Supp. 2d 514, 523-26 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (same). Commercial speech warrants less First Amendment protection than normal speech (and false commercial speech warrants none), see Procter & Gamble, 242 F.3d at 546 n.12, so commercial speech is not entitled to the "actual malice" burden of proof, see id. at 556-57; U.S. Healthcare, Inc. v. Blue Cross of Greater Philadelphia, 898 F.2d 914, 937 (3d Cir. 1990).

2. Columbia Is Not Any Sort of Public Figure

a. Despite Its Excellent and Far-Reaching Reputation, Columbia Is Not Sufficiently Famous To Be a General Public Figure

Moreover, Columbia is not, as NCRIC asserts, a "general purpose public figure"[31] – a public figure for "all purposes," due to its "'persuasive power and influence'" or "'general fame or notoriety in the community, and pervasive involvement in the affairs of society,'" Waldbaum, 627 F.2d at 1292 (quoting Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc., 418 U.S. 323, 345, 352 (1974)). General purpose public figures are "rare." Tavoulareas v. Piro, 817 F.2d 762, 772, 260 U.S. App. D.C. 39, 49 (D.C. Cir. 1987) (en banc). To qualify, one must be "so famous that they can 'transfer their recognition and influence from one field to another.'" Id. (quoting Waldbaum, at 627 F.2d at 1294 n.15). As such, even one who is "highly prominent" in particular circles is not a general public figure if its "celebrity in society at large does not approach that of a well-known athlete or entertainer." Id. "[F]ew persons attain the level of notoriety to be public figures in all contexts," id. – and Columbia is not one of them.

NCRIC argues that Columbia is a general purpose public figure based solely on the reach of its reputation. NCRIC Mem. at 18-20. This argument fails to consider the limited breadth of Columbia's reputation: Columbia is a boutique hospital, not a major corporation. See SMF2 ¶¶ 70-71. See, e.g., Q-Tone Broadcasting Co. v. MusicRadio of Maryland, Inc., C.A. No. 93C-09-021, 1995 Del. Super. LEXIS 598, *15 (Del. Super. Ct. Dec. 22, 1995) (to be a public figure, corporation's "general fame and notoriety must be established in the community as a whole and not simply within selected subsections.").[32] While Columbia enjoys an excellent reputation nationally for obstetrics and gynecology; and is highly regarded nationally (or even internationally) for its sub-specialty care, like infertility and high-risk neonatology, see id. ¶ 70, it is not "famous" to the average person, like General Motors or General Electric. As such, its widespread reputation in its specialty field does not render it a pubic figure. See Computer Aid, Inc. v. Hewlett-Packard Co., 56 F. Supp. 2d 526, 536 (E.D. Pa. 1999) (Hewlett-Packard is not a general public figure). In short, Columbia's reputation is wide in scope, but narrow in breadth:

[32] Blue Ridge Bank v. Veribanc, Inc., 866 F.2d 681, 687 (4th Cir. 1989) (despite "occup[ying] a position of . . . considerable influence" in the community, corporation did not "enjoy[] either the widespread power or pervasive influence necessary to affect the resolution of public issues in a manner which elevates it to a general purpose public figure") (internal quotation marks omitted); National Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips Publishing Inc., 793 F. Supp. 634, 635 (D. Md. 1992) (insurance company, its "fame and pervasive influence" being "confined . . . to the borders of the [state] on a variety of issues and to the borders of insurance related issues on a national level" had not "risked the spotlight of public comment on all aspects of its corporate life").

there is no evidence that nationally (or even locally) people who have never come into contact with Columbia in their daily lives have ever heard of it.

Nor do the cases that NCRIC cites support its argument. Both Martin Marietta Corp. v. Evening Star Newspaper Co., 417 F. Supp. 947 (D.D.C. 1976) and Lakeshore Community Hosp., Inc. v. Perry, 538 N.W.2d 24 (Mich. Ct. App. 1995) are limited purpose public figure cases. Columbia is not a limited purpose pubic figure. See infra, pp. ___. Further, Martin Marietta, where plaintiff was a national aerospace conglomerate, 417 F. Supp. at 95, is easily distinguished from the case of a small, specialty hospital.[33]

b. Columbia Is Not a Limited Public Figure Because There Was No Public Controversy

Columbia also is not a "limited-purpose public figure" here, despite its excellent and far-reaching reputation in specialty care.[34] As NCRIC admits, see NCRIC Mem. at 19 n.11, before a defamation plaintiff can be a limited public figure, there must be a "public controversy." Joseph v. Xerox Corp., 594 F. Supp. 330, 333 (D.D.C. 1984). To qualify, the "controversy must be public both in the sense that 'persons actually were discussing' it, and that 'persons beyond the immediate participants in the dispute [are likely] to feel the impact of its resolution.'" Tavourealas, 817 F.2d at 775, 260 U.S. App. D.C. at 42 (quoting Waldbaum, 627 F.2d at 1297). NCRIC has the burden to show that such a controversy exists, see Carr v. Forbes, Inc., 259 F.3d 273, 279 (4th Cir. 2001), and it has not done so.

In Fall 1998, the "controversy" over who would provide malpractice insurance for the Attending Faculty, NCRIC or MIIX, absolutely was not public. There is no evidence that people [33] If, however, Lakeshore Community Hospital is read to deem a local hospital a general-purpose public figure, that holding is unpersuasive and should be rejected. Such a holding would conflict with the widespread acceptance among courts that "general-purpose public figure" status is reserved for only the very, very famous.

16d-001286

other than the immediate participants (i.e., the physicians, and employees of Columbia and NCRIC), were discussing the issue or likely to feel its impact. Nor was there any press coverage of this issue. The "issue" had no more significance to ordinary District residents (including Columbia patients, who undoubtedly have no idea who insures their physicians), than any other normal business transaction.

Even if NCRIC created a public controversy in the Summer/Fall 2000 by inducing physicians to leave the hospital en masse (resulting in an article in the Washington Post, see SMF2 ¶ 227), by then NCRIC had already made the defamatory statements at issue. Moreover, even then, the "public controversy" (if any) was whether a historic non-profit hospital would close its doors; as before, the parties' private controversy, whether NCRIC would continue to provide Columbia's physicians with malpractice insurance,[35] remained of no interest whatsoever to ordinary individuals. No average citizen would have been affected by the issues raised in the parties' private controversy. NCRIC cannot obtain the protection of the First Amendment privilege by wrongfully creating a public controversy out of a private transaction. See Hutchinson v. Proxmire, 443 U.S. 111, 135 (1979) ("Clearly, those charged with defamation cannot, by their own conduct, create their own defense by making the claimant a public figure").

Three other factors also counsel against deeming this a public controversy. First, NCRIC is a non-media defendant. Even if such defendants are entitled to the same constitutional [34] Accord Nanavati v. Burdette Tomlin Mem. Hosp., 645 F. Supp. 1217, 1226 n.15 (D.N.J. 1986) (commenting favorably on lower court holding that hospital was not a limited-purpose public figure), aff'd, 857 F.2d 96 (3d Cir. 1988).

[35] NCRIC is wrong to characterize the parties' private controversy as "whether Columbia physicians were covered by malpractice insurance." NCRIC Mem. at 19 n.11. There was no controversy about that until NCRIC canceled the Entity Policy, refused to renew the Retro Plan and spread rumors that Columbia's self-insurance trust was unfunded. Moreover, even if this was a controversy, it was not a public controversy, because there is no evidence that ordinary folks were "actually . . . discussing" it. Tavourealas, 817 F.2d at 775, 260 U.S. App. D.C. at 42. At most, it was a matter of "general interest," which does not meet the public controversy requirement. Joseph, 594 F. Supp. at 333.

protection as media defendants,[36] the fact that the entire controversy between NCRIC and Columbia escaped media attention prior to the physicians' departure suggests that the controversy was not public. Second, NCRIC's defamatory statements were not typical high-value speech that is at the core of the First Amendment, such as petitioning activity. Rather, the statements were private comments that became public through the "rumor mill." That NCRIC never attempted to "go public" with the controversy in the first place weighs against deeming that controversy "public" now. Third, regardless of its fame, Columbia's financial situation made it difficult to tell its side of the story – it had no money for media consultants, public relations teams, or television advertisements. Since Columbia did not "ha[ve] access to channels of effective communication[]," it was not a public figure. National Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips Publishing, Inc., 793 F. Supp. 627, 635 (D. Md. 1992).

The cases that NCRIC cites also are easily distinguished. Martin Marietta involved a newspaper article about a major corporation dealing with an issue "of legitimate public concern, per se": possible violations of federal law by plaintiff. 417 F. Supp at 956. Phillips Publishing Co., involved a newspaper article about "the financial health of the insurance industry" – a topic that both parties "agreed" was a "public controversy." 793 F. Supp. at 634. Finally, Lakeshore Community Hospital involved a public battle over a hospital merger, and a defamation claim "premised in large part on defendant's [public] statements . . . statements threatening to file a lawsuit . . . solicitation of proxies" and a "letter to the editor" – core First Amendment speech. 538 N.W.2d at 27-28.

[36] But see, e.g., Beattie v. Fleet Nat'l Bank, 746 A.2d 717, 723 n.2 (R.I. 2000) (holding that they are not).

16d-001288

3. There Is Evidence That NCRIC Acted with Actual Malice

Even if the "actual malice" standard did apply, there is direct evidence that NCRIC "knew the statement[s were] false [when made] or acted in reckless disregard of [their] truth," Robertson v. McCloskey, 666 F. Supp. 241, 248 (D.D.C. 1987). NCRIC knew, when its representatives stated that its Entity Policy had expired on September 1, 2000, that the statement was false – because it had already extended the policy through September 15, 2000. See SMF2 ¶ 167. NCRIC knew, when its representatives stated that individual NCRIC insurance policies did not cover physicians working in the clinic, that the statement was false – because it had previously admitted that the physicians were covered at the outset of the Policy. See SMF2 ¶ 190.

Further, there is sufficient evidence in the record – "evidence of negligence, motive and intent" – from which a reasonable juror could infer knowledge of falsity, see Bose Corp. v. Consumers Union, 692 F.2d 189, 196 (1st Cir. 1982), aff'd, 466 U.S. 485 (1984). Foremost, NCRIC's retaliatory and heavy-handed conduct, see supra, pp. __, and misrepresentations, see infra, pp. __, supports an inference of knowledge, see Mark v. Shoen, 48 F.3d 412, 419 (9th Cir. 1995) (ill will is circumstantial evidence of actual malice). Moreover, in each case, NCRIC had a strong economic incentive to distort the truth: keeping its insureds. These factors, in addition to NCRIC's failure to investigate the truth of its statements, would support an actual malice finding. See Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc. v. Connaughton, 491 U.S. 657, 665 (1989); see, e.g., Arroyo v. Rosen, 648 A.2d 1074, 1080 (Md. App. 1994).

Plus, NCRIC's "failure to investigate" certain claims, coupled with its "high degree of awareness of . . . probable falsity," also satisfies the actual malice requirement. See Gertz, 418 U.S. at 332 (internal quotation marks omitted). For example, NCRIC's statement in 2000 that Columbia was planning to close its doors was reckless, because NCRIC knew Columbia was continuing to negotiate the Retro Plan in good faith and because there is no evidence that NCRIC made any effort to confirm with Columbia or check with regulators (to whom Columbia would have to announce its closure 90 days in advance, see D.C. Mun. Regs. tit. 22, § 4113.6 (2002)). Similarly, NCRIC obtained MIIX's rate filing prior to making the 1998 statements concerning the Columbia insurance program, see SMF2 ¶ 147, and therefore, NCRIC can be assumed to have known that MIIX was a highly rated (rather than "unreliable") insurance company.

VI. Material Issues of Fact Exist as to Columbia's Tortious Interference Claims (Counts Four and Five)

The elements of tortious interference with business relations and prospective business relations are: (1) a valid business relationship or expectancy; (2) knowledge of the relationship or expectancy by defendant; (3) defendant's intentional interference, inducing termination of the relationship or denial of the expectancy; and (4) resulting damages. See Bennett Enters., Inc. v. Domino's Pizza, Inc., 45 F.3d 493, 499, 310 U.S. App. D.C. 192, 198 (D.C. Cir. 1995); see generally, Alfred A. Altimont, Inc. v. Chatelain, Samperton & Nolan, 374 A.2d 284 (D.C. 1977).[37] Columbia offered more than enough evidence to reach a jury on each of these elements, and therefore, summary judgment should be denied.

A. Columbia Had a Reasonable Business Relationship with the Attending Faculty, and Its Expectation of Patient Referrals Was Not Speculative

Up through September 2000, Columbia had long-standing business relationships with approximately 60 physicians, the Attending Faculty, who referred most (if not all) of their [37] The claims for interference with business relations and interference with prospective business advantage are two different theories of recovery for the same tort: the former claim relates to interference with existing business relations while the latter claim relates to interference with reasonable expectancies of future business. See Defendant's Opp. at 10-11 (explaining two theories); Order at 3-4 (July 3, 2001) (upholding two theories).

16d-001290

patients to Columbia. See SMF2 ¶ 194. Columbia reasonably expected that Attending Faculty would continue to refer the bulk of their patients to it for the foreseeable future. See id. ¶ 200.[38]

Contrary to NCRIC's claim, Columbia's expectancy of prospective patient referrals was not "speculative." Columbia's claim is founded on the hospital's expectation that current Attending Faculty would have continued to refer patients to the hospital until they retired. This expectation was reasonable because, inter alia: Attending Faculty tend to remain at Columbia until retirement age or longer, see SMF2 ¶¶ 197 & 200; typically, established Attending Faculty do not tend to change their admitting patterns (i.e., the percentage of their patients they referred to Columbia), see id. ¶ 196; historically, the number of births at Columbia has remained stable over time, see id. ¶ 228; and the number of Attending Faculty historically has remained the same, because attrition occurs gradually and at the same pace as new Attending Faculty arrive through informal recruiting processes, see id.¶ 199. Columbia has not, as far back as memory stretches, seen an en masse departure of physicians as occurred Summer/Fall 2000, when about a third of its patient-referring Attending Faculty walked out the door, along with the patients they referred, in just two months. SMF2 ¶ 196. Columbia had every reason to believe that would never occur. See SMF2 ¶¶ 196-197.

The cases NCRIC cites are not to the contrary. None of these cases involved an expectation of future business relations anywhere near as certain as Columbia's expectation, where physicians (1) already referred the bulk of their patients to Columbia, see id. ¶¶ 194, 198, 200; (2) were loyal to the hospital and only considered leaving due to economic pressures, see id.

[38] There can be no doubt that NCRIC knew about Columbia's business relationship with the Attending Faculty, and its expectation of current and future patient referrals. See SMF2 ¶ 201.

¶ 154; and who, as a group, historically tended to stay at Columbia, and continue their existing practice patterns, until they retired, see id. ¶ 196.

For example, in Sheppard v. Dickestein, Shapiro Morin & Oshinsky, 59 F. Supp. 2d 27, 28 (D.D.C. 1999), plaintiff sued a third party for tortiously interfering with his at-will employment. The court dismissed plaintiff's claim for interference with his prospective employment because plaintiff (who had worked for his employer for four years) "offered no evidence of a future business relationship" with his employer. Id. at 34 (emphasis added). In stark contrast to Sheppard, Columbia offered sufficient evidence that it reasonably expected the Attending Faculty who left – some who had practiced at Columbia for 20 years – to remain at Columbia and continue their normal admission practices until they retired. See SMF ¶¶ 154, 196. Further, in Citylink Group, Ltd. v. Hyatt Corp., 729 N.E.2d 869, 877 (Ill. App. 2000), the court concluded (as one alternative ground for its holding) that plaintiff failed to identify a specific party with which it contemplated future business relations. Columbia, in contrast, identified nearly 30 specific physicians with whom it expected to have business relations.[39]

B. NCRIC Intentionally and Wrongfully Interfered with Columbia's Business Relationship with the Attending Faculty and Its Expectancy of Patient Referrals

NCRIC interfered with Columbia's business relationship with the Attending Faculty and expectancy of patient referrals by: (1) intentionally, recklessly and negligently making false and unsupported statements about Columbia's insurance program with MIIX (a malpractice insurer)

[39] CACI Int'l, Inc. v. Pentagen Techs. Int'l, Ltd., No. 94-2058, 1995 WL 679952, at *5 (4th Cir. Nov, 16, 1995) arose in a different context. In CACI Int'l, the appellate court upheld, as "not clearly erroneous," the lower court's finding at a bench trial that there was "insufficient evidence of actual damage"; the issue was not whether the damages were too speculative to reach a jury. Yet, CACI Int'l also is distinguishable: plaintiff failed to prove damages for its interference claim because its claim rested on its unconvincing proof that it would perform additional services in the future for a third party. Here, Columbia seeks no damages for additional services that the Attending Faculty might have performed; it only claims damages for the services the physicians actually had performed in 1999-2000.

16d-001292

in Fall 1998, see SMF2 ¶ 41; (2) propagating false and/or unsupported rumors about Columbia's viability in the Summer/Fall 2000, which spread panic among the Attending Faculty, see id. ¶¶ 221-228; (3) maliciously and without warning canceling the Entity Policy that insured the Clinic and the physicians who worked there, see id. ¶ 55; (4) engaging in bad-faith negotiations to renew the Retro Plan, thereby denying Columbia the ability to provide an alternative insurance program for Attending Faculty in a timely manner, see id. ¶ 215; and (5) urging the Attending Faculty to move their practices to Sibley and GW, see id. ¶¶ 142-143, 204, 212. As such, NCRIC's arguments that (1) its actions did not cause the departure of the Attending Faculty and (2) its conduct was not sufficiently wrongful to be actionable, lack merit.

1. NCRIC Ignores Testimony Regarding Why the Physicians Left and the Inferences Arising from the Timing of Their Departure

Contrary to NCRIC's claim that no evidence connects the movement of Attending Faculty to its defamatory statements, see NCRIC Mem. at 21-22, every single group of physicians who left Columbia in Summer/Fall 2000 informed a Columbia Board member that they were leaving due to the baseless rumor, spread by NCRIC's own Dr. Glassman, that Columbia was planning to close its doors. See SMF2 ¶ 219 (citing Asterbadi Dep. at 160-61).[40] Moreover, even absent the physicians' admissions, the timing of their departure from Columbia – immediately after NCRIC's campaign of disinformation and retaliation, and the Retro Plan's September 1, 2000 renewal date – is sufficient to allow a reasonable juror to infer that the physicians left due to NCRIC's misconduct. Lyon v. Campbell, 707 A.2d 850, 863 (Md. App.

[40] NCRIC cites statements by several Columbia Board members that they do not know why the physicians left Columbia. See NCRIC Mem. at 22 (citing depositions of Dr. Asterbadi, Dr. Rifka, et al.). This testimony simply shows that Columbia's Board members could not know for certain why the physicians left. Moreover, these Board Members understand, based on the physicians' statements and the timing of their departure, that the physicians left due to NCRIC's misconduct. See, e.g., SMF2 ¶ 219 (citing Asterbadi Dep. at 217).

1998) ("[c]ircumstantial evidence that supports a rational inference" is sufficient to prove causation) (internal quotation marks omitted).

NCRIC also is wrong to claim that there is no evidence that the Attending Faculty left at its urging, or that they left simply because it did "not . . . renew" the Retro Plan. NCRIC Mem. at 22. NCRIC admits that it developed insurance programs with other hospitals, see SMF2 ¶ 141, informed the Attending Faculty about the programs, see id. ¶¶ 143-146 (citing Fargis Dep.), urged them to join the programs, and facilitated their admission, see id. ¶¶ 143-146, 204, 212 – at precisely the time that the Retro Plan "ended." Then, like clockwork, several large groups of physicians abruptly moved to Sibley and GW. See SMF2 ¶¶ 217, 200, 223-226. This sequence gives rise to a reasonable inference that (1) NCRIC urged the physicians to move to other hospitals, and (2) they did move, for reasons related to the Retro Plan. SMF2 ¶¶ 211-212. Some physicians even admitted that their departure was related to the Plan ending. See id. ¶ 221.

2. Whether NCRIC's Malicious, Retaliatory Conduct Was Sufficiently "Egregious" or "Wrongful" Is, At a Minimum, a Jury Question

NCRIC's contention that Columbia "cannot prove" it acted wrongfully is unfounded. Since Dr. Glassman's statements (and the other NCRIC statements to the same effect, see SMF2 ¶¶ 168-175) were all defamatory, see supra, pp. ____, they are, NCRIC admits, see NCRIC Mem. at 22, sufficiently wrongful to give rise to liability for tortious interference. See Sheppard, 59 F. Supp. at 34 ("the requisite intent [for tortious interference] is met if behavior involves egregious conduct, such as libel, slander, physical coercion, and fraud").

Further, NCRIC did far more than just "urge" the Attending Faculty to move to Sibley and GW: it engaged in "scare tactics" and other misconduct to induce the physicians to leave

16d-001294

Columbia.[41] See SMF2 ¶¶ 42, 44, 148. In addition to its defamatory statements, see supra, pp. __, and its misrepresentations, see infra, pp. __, NCRIC:

- "terminated" the Retro Plan at the end of June, rather than continuing to negotiate, a close-out proposal, simply because Columbia could not afford the prior proposal, see SMF2 ¶¶ 54-55;
- cancelled the Entity Policy just two days later, without any prior warning and without offering any justification, in apparent retaliation for Columbia's failure to accept the close-out proposal, see id. ¶ 55;
- billed the Attending Faculty weeks early, in early July 2000, for their full premium amounts, despite purporting to negotiate with Columbia to extend the Retro Plan, see id. ¶ 207;
- secretly contacted the Attending Faculty in July and August 2000, to play on the fears about other insurance companies it had instilled in 1998, see id. ¶¶ 208-209;
- performed an interim reconciliation of the Retro Plan in July, which reflected an amount due that it knew did not reflect the terms listed in the Plan, see id. ¶ 243;
- in September, sent out an unprecedented exclusion, denying physicians practicing at the Clinic coverage under their own malpractice insurance policies, see id. ¶ 186; and
- offered the physicians murky, ominous reasons for the exclusion than the reason it offers now. Compare id. ¶¶ 1, 189 ("changes are occurring at Columbia" and the Clinic "is no longer a prudent underwriting risk") with ¶ 190 (purpose was to eliminate double coverage because physicians had group coverage, as well). By engaging in such tactics, NCRIC crossed the line from simple advocacy to unfair pressure. Id. ¶ 3.

Finally, Columbia is not, as NCRIC claims, attempting to hold it liable solely for its "decision to let the Retro Plan end." NCRIC Mem. at 24. NCRIC did not simply walk away from the Plan. Instead, knowing that the Attending Faculty were reluctant to leave Columbia, NCRIC caused a panic by canceling the Clinic's insurance, spreading rumors that the hospital was planning to close its doors, and urging physicians to look elsewhere before GW and Sibley

[41] Once again, NCRIC attempts to re-litigate issues already decided in this case. In moving to dismiss, NCRIC argued that Columbia's allegations were not, even if proved, sufficiently "egregious" to prove tortious interference. See NCRIC Motion at 7. In response, Columbia argued that NCRIC acted egregiously by making false statements in September 1998 and September 2000; by canceling the Entity policy in retaliation against Columbia for terminating the Plan; by excluding Clinic physicians from coverage under their own individual insurance policies; by performing Reconciliations falsely; and by bringing a lawsuit against Columbia, knowing it was destitute and owed nothing. Judge Davis agreed with Columbia that the foregoing allegations constituted "egregious" behavior. See Order at 3, 4. Since Columbia has produced evidence to support each of these allegations, Judge Davis's decision that this conduct satisfied the requisite intent for tortious interference governs as Law of the Case. See became overcrowded. See id. ¶¶ 60, 149, 161-162, 209, 211. This conduct crossed the line from advancing NCRIC's own interests to wrongful interference – or, at a minimum, a reasonable juror could so conclude.[42]

C. Columbia Suffered Damage As a Proximate Result of the Attending Faculty's Departure

In September through November of 2000, as a direct result of NCRIC's wrongful conduct, between 20 and 30 Attending Faculty members moved (the bulk of) their practices to Sibley and/or GW. See SMF2 ¶ 217. As a result, Columbia suffered heavy damages: it lost patient referrals, costing it millions of dollars in revenue each year for the foreseeable future, see id. ¶¶ 198-200, 220, 236; further, it was denied a loan, due to its abrupt decline in revenue, that would have substantially reduced the cost of its debt service, see id. ¶¶ 235-237; and it was forced to cancel a gala fundraiser that would have generated over a million dollars in donations, see id. ¶¶ 230-231.

NCRIC asserts, incorrectly, that Columbia's interference claims encompass "any physician" who left the hospital from "September 2000 through September 2001 – irrespective of the physician's motivation," NCRIC Mem. at 21. In fact, Columbia's tortious interference claims are carefully tailored to include only physicians who moved their practices to Sibley or GW during September through November 2000, see SMF2 ¶¶ 217, 226, immediately following NCRIC's campaign of malicious, retaliatory and defamatory conduct in July through September 2000, see id. ¶¶ 142-149, 208-209 – including its "termination" of the Retro Plan. The Retro Plan did not terminate, and still governs the parties. See SMF1 ¶ 9. Many of the physicians who left were members of large practice groups that moved immediately following the termination of the Retro Plan. See id. ¶¶ 221-226. These groups began planning to move to Sibley and GW in about July and August 2000, after they were secretly urged to do so by NCRIC, see id. ¶¶ 41, 143, 209, 211-212. Several of the physician groups announced their departure on or about September 1, 2000, see id. ¶¶ 217, 222-223, 226; and all of these groups left in mid-September through November 2000, see id. This abrupt departure corresponds with the steep drop in newborn deliveries that Columbia suffered in October and November 2000. See id. ¶¶ 220, 236 (41% decrease in births between September and November). Further, these physicians have not returned to Columbia: the hospital's admissions have remained at that level – about 40% below the average level of the previous five years. See id. ¶ 228. Finally, Columbia's damages expert excluded from consideration any physician who left the hospital for reasons other than NCRIC's inducement. See Ben Ezra Decl. ¶ 16.

VII. Material Issues of Fact Exist as to the Conversion Claim (Count Eleven)

A. Columbia's Makes Out Each Element of Conversion

Conversion is the unlawful exercise of ownership, dominion, or control over the personal property of another in denial or repudiation of that person's rights thereto. O'Callaghan v. District of Columbia, 741 F. Supp. 273, 279-80 (D.D.C.1990). Since the parties agreed in 1998 to treat the money as a deposit, see SMF2 ¶¶ 14, 36, 157; and since Columbia demanded in vain that its $1 million deposit be returned once it was realized that NCRIC was performing Reconciliations inaccurately, see id. ¶¶ 159, 242; and since Columbia was damaged by the loss of interest on that deposit, see id. ¶ 36, Columbia has satisfied all of the elements of its conversion claim. See O'Callaghan, 741 F.Supp. at 279-80.[43]

[43] Moreover, since the money was obtained by fraud, based on NCRIC's overcalculation of the amount of cumulative Additional Premium due for the September 1, 1997 Reconciliation, and its knowledge that the terms it used in the were not in the plan it drafted. See SMF2 ¶¶ 118-133. NCRIC is incorrect to argue that its possession was lawful in the first place. As such, regardless of whether the $1 million was an agreed-upon deposit, NCRIC's

NCRIC argues, incorrectly, that Columbia's conversion count is properly a claim for money owed under the Retro Plan. This is the essentially the same factual argument that the money was not a deposit, and fails for the same reason: Columbia has adduced sufficient evidence to show that it was a deposit, not a lawful payment. See SMF2 ¶¶ 14, 36, 101,157. Indeed, NCRIC treated the money as deposit throughout. See id. ¶ 101 ("Columbia Deposit – $1 million" listed on each Reconciliation spreadsheet).[44]

Despite its representations to Columbia that the $1 million was a deposit, NCRIC now claims that it was "premium applied against the total amount due under the Retro Plan."[45] NCRIC Mem. at 40. Yet NCRIC concedes that the parties agreed not to exchange premium under the Retro Plan for any Experience Periods until it was closed. See NCRIC Mem. at 5-6, 8, 29, 37. Since no Experience Periods were closed as of the September 1, 1997 Reconciliation, no premium was due at the time Columbia paid the $1 million. See SMF2 ¶ 127.

Because Columbia's payment was a deposit, not a payment of premium, Lawson v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co., 518 A.2d 174 (Md. Ct. Spec. App. 1986), is distinguishable. In Lawson, plaintiff owed defendant money and overpaid him – so, when defendant cashed the check and took some of the money for himself, plaintiff's funds were no longer identifiable. Id. at 177. Therefore, plaintiff's lawsuit was a claim for money owed, not a claim for conversion.

possession of it is unlawful. See, e.g., FDIC v. Smith, 144 F. Supp. 2d 507, 517 (money obtained by fraudulent means is unlawful possession sufficient to support claim for conversion).

[44] Even if NCRIC did not keep the $1 million deposit segregated from its own funds, this does not undermine Columbia's claim. Indeed, NCRIC's failure to keep the $1 million segregated after agreeing that it was a deposit was itself a conversion.
