

Jodie Griffin is a Senior Staff Attorney at Public Knowledge, where she specializes in copyright and telecommunications law, advocating for the public on issues that range from online music licensing to the technological transition of our phone network. Jodie is also a Professorial Lecturer in Law at the George Washington University Law School. Prior to joining PK, Jodie worked in concert production and musicology research, worked for and helped launch the five-time Grammy-nominated independent label BMOP/sound, and was a freelance cellist and cello teacher.