16. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

Since earning my Ph.D. in criminal justice from the School of Criminal Justice at the State University of New York at Albany in 1980, I have had extensive experience teaching and doing research on crime and criminal justice. During my career, I have amassed a record of achievement. I have written or edited 11 books/monographs; published 55 journal articles; published 30 book chapters/lectures; published 11 book reviews/review essays; wrote 16 research reports; and made 138 presentations to various audiences around the world. I have had an academic career in the field of criminology and criminal justice spanning almost 30 years and I have received several awards and honors for my contributions to research, scholarly work, and teaching, including the Edwin H. Sutherland Award (established in 1960) by the American Society of Criminology. This award is the highest honor designated by the ASC and is given in recognition of one's outstanding contributions to "theory or research in criminology on the etiology of criminal and deviant behavior, the criminal justice system, corrections, law, or justice."

I have conducted extensive research examining crime, human development, and the life course. Since 1987, I have been involved in a long-term research project examining continuity and change in criminal behavior over the life course. With my colleague, Robert Sampson, Department of Sociology at Harvard University, I have been working with the archival data from Sheldon and Eleanor Glueck's classic study, Unraveling Juvenile Delinquency (1950), and subsequent follow-ups that we conducted of these subjects up to age 70. This study represents the longest longitudinal study of crime in the world. To date, this project has produced two award winning books, Crime in the Making: Pathways and Turning Points Through Life (Harvard University Press, 1993) and Shared Beginnings, Divergent Lives: Delinquent Boys to Age 70 (Harvard University Press, 2003), 28 journal articles, 18 book chapters, and more than 90 presentations. Our research has spurred the development of what Sampson and I call "life-course criminology" -- the study of both continuity and change in criminal behavior over the life course. My contribution to criminology of which I am most proud has come from developing (with co-author Robert Sampson) an age-graded theory of informal social control to account for stability and change in criminality over the life course. This life-course perspective has helped reshape the discipline of criminology and criminal justice.

I have not undertaken any lobbying activities.

17. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I began my teaching career in August of 1977 when I was a graduate student at the School of Criminal Justice at the State University of New York at Albany. I taught for one academic year (1977-1978) an undergraduate course entitled, "Juvenile Delinquency and Juvenile Justice." After receiving my Ph.D. in May 1980, I joined the faculty in the College of Criminal Justice at Northeastern University in January 1981. There I taught a wide range of undergraduate and graduate courses including criminology, juvenile delinquency, juvenile justice, victimology, and critical issues in criminology and criminal justice. I taught at Northeastern from January 1980 to June 1998. In August 1998, I joined the faculty in the Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice at the University of Maryland where I teach now. At the University of Maryland, I teach a range of undergraduate and graduate courses including crime and the life course, criminology, juvenile delinquency, and a university honors seminar that I developed on the idea of crime. I have provided four (4) copies of the syllabus for each of the courses I taught at the University of Maryland since my arrival in August 1998. I do not have the syllabi from the courses I taught at Northeastern University and the State University of New York at Albany.

18. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

If confirmed, I will take an unpaid leave of absence from my position as a tenured faculty member at the University of Maryland. I will retain my interest in the University of Maryland Retirement Plan, a defined contribution plan, with no further contributions made by myself or the University of Maryland during my unpaid leave of absence. I will receive royalties from Harvard University Press for previous published works.

19. Outside Commitments During Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service? If so, explain.

None.

20. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

A copy of the financial disclosure report required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 is attached.

21. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached document, Laub Income Net Worth.

22. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, affiliations, pending and categories of litigation, financial arrangements or other factors that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

In connection with the nomination process, I have consulted with the Office of Government Ethics and the Department of Justice's designated agency ethics official to identify potential conflicts of interest. Any potential conflicts of interest will be resolved in accordance with the terms of an ethics agreement that I have entered into with the Department's designated agency ethics official. See also the attached Ethics Agreement.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

In connection with the nomination process, I have consulted with the Office of Government Ethics and the Department of Justice's designated agency ethics official to identify potential conflicts of interest. Any potential conflicts of interest will be resolved in accordance with the terms of an ethics agreement that I have entered into with the Department's designated agency ethics official. See also the attached Ethics Agreement.

23. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each. If you are not an attorney, please use this opportunity to report significant charitable and volunteer work you may have done.

I am not an attorney; therefore, I do not provide pro bono legal services. However, on an annual basis, I make contributions to several charitable organizations in the District of Columbia and Boston, Massachusetts that provide food banks, assistance to victims of domestic violence, and shelter and assistance to the homeless.

In the early 1980s, when I was an assistant professor in the College of Criminal Justice at Northeastern University, I developed new courses on victims of crime at both the undergraduate and graduate levels and I assisted the Victim Witness Service Bureau in Middlesex County, Massachusetts in expanding services to victims of crime by developing opportunities for students to work as interns in the various victim witness bureaus in the District Courts. I also volunteered to work on Governor Michael Dukakis's Task Force on Crime Victims and the Massachusetts Victim Rights Week Conference.
