HELPING AFGHANS MEET CRITICAL MEDICAL

The U.S.-led coalition is helping to feed the people of Afghanistan as they begin to recover from the al-Qaeda and Taliban terrorist regime. But the Afghan people need more than food.

The Afghan people face critical medical needs and the U.S., its coalition allies, and other organizations are helping the Afghan people recover by:

- ☑ Delivering vital medicine & health care supplies to the Afghan people (Since October 1 enough medical supplies have been delivered to support 100,000 Afghans for three months.)
- ☑ Vaccinating at least 9 million children
- ☑ Providing emergency medical care
- ☑ Educating Afghans on how to rebuild their health care system.

THE PROBLEM

- There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN.
- Afghanistan ranks second worldwide in maternal mortality.
- There is currently one physician for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan.
- Mass population movement, potential overcrowding in camps over the border and insufficient health services make the Afghan people highly vulnerable to communicable diseases.
- Today, one in four Afghan children do not live to see their fifth birthday.
- A large percentage of Afghans living in remote, mountainous areas have no access to health care.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S COMMITMENT TO HELP

Examples of health care assistance include...

Delivering Medicines & Vital Health Care Supplies to the Afghan People. Since October 1, 2001, the U.S. government has airlifted 10 large medical supply shipments into Afghanistan – enough medical equipment, supplies and medicine to support 100,000 people for three months. These shipments provide standard manuals offering guidance in diagnosis and treatment, antibiotics to treat pneumonia and other conditions, anti-malarial drugs, pain medication and anesthetics. Medical supplies such as syringes, sutures, bandages, soap, examination gloves and various instruments enable health workers to provide needed care to the vulnerable population.

Protecting Afghans from Disease. There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN. To protect children against measles -- a disease which kills an average of 35,000 Afghan children each year -- UNICEF and the World Health Organization (WHO) have begun a 3-month measles vaccination program across Afghanistan. The goal of the program is to reach at least 9 million Afghan children. In fact, WHO plans to reach 850,000 children in the first seven days of the program.

Building Better Health Through Education. USAID and others are working across Afghanistan to help the Afghan people improve the country's basic health care services. For example, USAID and others are educating Afghans -- especially women -- on basic health, nutrition, childcare, hygiene and maternal health.

The medical situation in Afghanistan is frightening. For example, there is only 1 doctor for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan. This 1-pager outlines a few examples of U.S.-led efforts to help the people of Afghanistan meet their critical medical needs.

HELPING AFGHANS MEET CRITICAL MEDICAL

The U.S.-led coalition is helping to feed the people of Afghanistan as they begin to recover from the al-Qaeda and Taliban terrorist regime. But the Afghan people need more than food.

The Afghan people face critical medical needs and the U.S., its coalition allies, and other organizations are helping the Afghan people recover by:

- ☑ Delivering vital medicine & health care supplies to the Afghan people (Since October 1 enough medical supplies have been delivered to support 100,000 Afghans for three months.)
- ☑ Vaccinating at least 9 million children
- ☑ Providing emergency medical care
- ☑ Educating Afghans on how to rebuild their health care system.

THE PROBLEM

- There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN.
- Afghanistan ranks second worldwide in maternal mortality.
- There is currently one physician for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan.
- Mass population movement, potential overcrowding in camps over the border and insufficient health services make the Afghan people highly vulnerable to communicable diseases.
- Today, one in four Afghan children do not live to see their fifth birthday.
- A large percentage of Afghans living in remote, mountainous areas have no access to health care.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S COMMITMENT TO HELP

Examples of health care assistance include...

Delivering Medicines & Vital Health Care Supplies to the Afghan People. Since October 1, 2001, the U.S. government has airlifted 10 large medical supply shipments into Afghanistan – enough medical equipment, supplies and medicine to support 100,000 people for three months. These shipments provide standard manuals offering guidance in diagnosis and treatment, antibiotics to treat pneumonia and other conditions, anti-malarial drugs, pain medication and anesthetics. Medical supplies such as syringes, sutures, bandages, soap, examination gloves and various instruments enable health workers to provide needed care to the vulnerable population.

Protecting Afghans from Disease. There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN. To protect children against measles -- a disease which kills an average of 35,000 Afghan children each year -- UNICEF and the World Health Organization (WHO) have begun a 3-month measles vaccination program across Afghanistan. The goal of the program is to reach at least 9 million Afghan children. In fact, WHO plans to reach 850,000 children in the first seven days of the program.

Building Better Health Through Education. USAID and others are working across Afghanistan to help the Afghan people improve the country's basic health care services. For example, USAID and others are educating Afghans -- especially women -- on basic health, nutrition, childcare, hygiene and maternal health.

The medical situation in Afghanistan is frightening. For example, there is only 1 doctor for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan. This 1-pager outlines a few examples of U.S.-led efforts to help the people of Afghanistan meet their critical medical needs.

HELPING AFGHANS MEET CRITICAL MEDICAL

The U.S.-led coalition is helping to feed the people of Afghanistan as they begin to recover from the al-Qaeda and Taliban terrorist regime. But the Afghan people need more than food.

The Afghan people face critical medical needs and the U.S., its coalition allies, and other organizations are helping the Afghan people recover by:

- ☑ Delivering vital medicine & health care supplies to the Afghan people (Since October 1 enough medical supplies have been delivered to support 100,000 Afghans for three months.)
- ☑ Vaccinating at least 9 million children
- ☑ Providing emergency medical care
- ☑ Educating Afghans on how to rebuild their health care system.

THE PROBLEM

- There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN.
- Afghanistan ranks second worldwide in maternal mortality.
- There is currently one physician for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan.
- Mass population movement, potential overcrowding in camps over the border and insufficient health services make the Afghan people highly vulnerable to communicable diseases.
- Today, one in four Afghan children do not live to see their fifth birthday.
- A large percentage of Afghans living in remote, mountainous areas have no access to health care.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S COMMITMENT TO HELP

Examples of health care assistance include...

Delivering Medicines & Vital Health Care Supplies to the Afghan People. Since October 1, 2001, the U.S. government has airlifted 10 large medical supply shipments into Afghanistan – enough medical equipment, supplies and medicine to support 100,000 people for three months. These shipments provide standard manuals offering guidance in diagnosis and treatment, antibiotics to treat pneumonia and other conditions, anti-malarial drugs, pain medication and anesthetics. Medical supplies such as syringes, sutures, bandages, soap, examination gloves and various instruments enable health workers to provide needed care to the vulnerable population.

Protecting Afghans from Disease. There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN. To protect children against measles -- a disease which kills an average of 35,000 Afghan children each year -- UNICEF and the World Health Organization (WHO) have begun a 3-month measles vaccination program across Afghanistan. The goal of the program is to reach at least 9 million Afghan children. In fact, WHO plans to reach 850,000 children in the first seven days of the program.

Building Better Health Through Education. USAID and others are working across Afghanistan to help the Afghan people improve the country's basic health care services. For example, USAID and others are educating Afghans -- especially women -- on basic health, nutrition, childcare, hygiene and maternal health.

President Bush Urges Action – Not Rhetoric - On Economy

This Weekend's Presidential Action:

- This weekend, President Bush travels to California and Oregon to meet with workers hit hard by the recession and to conduct a townhall forum on the economy. The President will again call on the Senate Democratic leadership to pass the bipartisan economic security package that will create jobs and provide assistance to the unemployed, without raising taxes.

The President Welcomes Signs of Movement in the Senate:

- Spending time at home for the holidays appears to have been good for Senator Daschle. He's now knows what President Bush and the American people have known all along – that we need to take steps to ensure our economic security and get the economy growing.
- While many of the details of Senator Daschle's plans won't meet his stated goals, the Administration welcomes the Senator's newfound interest in the President's economic agenda. Unfortunately, many of the issues Senator Daschle expressed support for – economic stimulus, comprehensive energy legislation, opening new markets to America's products – are all stalled in the Senate he leads.
- Nearly one million people have lost their jobs since President Bush first outlined an economic growth package while waiting for the Senate Democratic leadership to act. Senator Daschle appears to have finally reacted to what the American people and the President have long called for – real help to create jobs and to help those who have already lost their jobs.
- Senator Daschle's recipe for "fiscal discipline" is off-base. Surpluses don't create growth. Economic growth creates surpluses. That's why the President has presented an economic security plan designed to promote economic growth. It's troubling that Senator Daschle is suggesting tax increases to pay for billions in new spending that won't help our economy grow.
- While Senator Daschle blames the tax relief legislation enacted with bipartisan majorities in the House and Senate for the decline in the FY 2002 budget surplus, the facts tell a different story. The surplus has declined because our economy has been in recession since March and because we have responded to the attacks of September 11th. In fact, 72 percent of the tax cut's effects take place after 2005.
- In January, CBO forecasted surplus for FY 2002 of $313 billion. Since then, the recession has reduced this figure by $167 billion and new spending has reduced it by $60 billion. Last May's tax cut will reduce 2002 revenue by only $38 billion. The impact of the recession is four times greater than the impact of the tax cuts.
- The American people deserve action on an economic security and job creation agenda – not more partisan posturing – from the Senate leadership.

This Weekend's Presidential Action:

- This weekend, President Bush travels to California and Oregon to meet with workers hit hard by the recession and to conduct a townhall forum on the economy. The President will again call on the Senate Democratic leadership to pass the bipartisan economic security package that will create jobs and provide assistance to the unemployed, without raising taxes.

The President Welcomes Signs of Movement in the Senate:

- Spending time at home for the holidays appears to have been good for Senator Daschle. He's now knows what President Bush and the American people have known all along – that we need to take steps to ensure our economic security and get the economy growing.
- While many of the details of Senator Daschle's plans won't meet his stated goals, the Administration welcomes the Senator's newfound interest in the President's economic agenda. Unfortunately, many of the issues Senator Daschle expressed support for – economic stimulus, comprehensive energy legislation, opening new markets to America's products – are all stalled in the Senate he leads.
- Nearly one million people have lost their jobs since President Bush first outlined an economic growth package while waiting for the Senate Democratic leadership to act. Senator Daschle appears to have finally reacted to what the American people and the President have long called for – real help to create jobs and to help those who have already lost their jobs.
- Senator Daschle's recipe for "fiscal discipline" is off-base. Surpluses don't create growth. Economic growth creates surpluses. That's why the President has presented an economic security plan designed to promote economic growth. It's troubling that Senator Daschle is suggesting tax increases to pay for billions in new spending that won't help our economy grow.
- While Senator Daschle blames the tax relief legislation enacted with bipartisan majorities in the House and Senate for the decline in the FY 2002 budget surplus, the facts tell a different story. The surplus has declined because our economy has been in recession since March and because we have responded to the attacks of September 11th. In fact, 72 percent of the tax cut's effects take place after 2005.
- In January, CBO forecasted surplus for FY 2002 of $313 billion. Since then, the recession has reduced this figure by $167 billion and new spending has reduced it by $60 billion. Last May's tax cut will reduce 2002 revenue by only $38 billion. The impact of the recession is four times greater than the impact of the tax cuts.
- The American people deserve action on an economic security and job creation agenda – not more partisan posturing – from the Senate leadership.

This Weekend's Presidential Action:

- This weekend, President Bush travels to California and Oregon to meet with workers hit hard by the recession and to conduct a townhall forum on the economy. The President will again call on the Senate Democratic leadership to pass the bipartisan economic security package that will create jobs and provide assistance to the unemployed, without raising taxes.

The President Welcomes Signs of Movement in the Senate:

- Spending time at home for the holidays appears to have been good for Senator Daschle. He's now knows what President Bush and the American people have known all along – that we need to take steps to ensure our economic security and get the economy growing.
- While many of the details of Senator Daschle's plans won't meet his stated goals, the Administration welcomes the Senator's newfound interest in the President's economic agenda. Unfortunately, many of the issues Senator Daschle expressed support for – economic stimulus, comprehensive energy legislation, opening new markets to America's products – are all stalled in the Senate he leads.
- Nearly one million people have lost their jobs since President Bush first outlined an economic growth package while waiting for the Senate Democratic leadership to act. Senator Daschle appears to have finally reacted to what the American people and the President have long called for – real help to create jobs and to help those who have already lost their jobs.
- Senator Daschle's recipe for "fiscal discipline" is off-base. Surpluses don't create growth. Economic growth creates surpluses. That's why the President has presented an economic security plan designed to promote economic growth. It's troubling that Senator Daschle is suggesting tax increases to pay for billions in new spending that won't help our economy grow.
- While Senator Daschle blames the tax relief legislation enacted with bipartisan majorities in the House and Senate for the decline in the FY 2002 budget surplus, the facts tell a different story. The surplus has declined because our economy has been in recession since March and because we have responded to the attacks of September 11th. In fact, 72 percent of the tax cut's effects take place after 2005.
- In January, CBO forecasted surplus for FY 2002 of $313 billion. Since then, the recession has reduced this figure by $167 billion and new spending has reduced it by $60 billion. Last May's tax cut will reduce 2002 revenue by only $38 billion. The impact of the recession is four times greater than the impact of the tax cuts.
- The American people deserve action on an economic security and job creation agenda – not more partisan posturing – from the Senate leadership.

This Weekend's Presidential Action:

- This weekend, President Bush travels to California and Oregon to meet with workers hit hard by the recession and to conduct a townhall forum on the economy. The President will again call on the Senate Democratic leadership to pass the bipartisan economic security package that will create jobs and provide assistance to the unemployed, without raising taxes.

The President Welcomes Signs of Movement in the Senate:

- Spending time at home for the holidays appears to have been good for Senator Daschle. He's now knows what President Bush and the American people have known all along – that we need to take steps to ensure our economic security and get the economy growing.
- While many of the details of Senator Daschle's plans won't meet his stated goals, the Administration welcomes the Senator's newfound interest in the President's economic agenda. Unfortunately, many of the issues Senator Daschle expressed support for – economic stimulus, comprehensive energy legislation, opening new markets to America's products – are all stalled in the Senate he leads.
- Nearly one million people have lost their jobs since President Bush first outlined an economic growth package while waiting for the Senate Democratic leadership to act. Senator Daschle appears to have finally reacted to what the American people and the President have long called for – real help to create jobs and to help those who have already lost their jobs.
- Senator Daschle's recipe for "fiscal discipline" is off-base. Surpluses don't create growth. Economic growth creates surpluses. That's why the President has presented an economic security plan designed to promote economic growth. It's troubling that Senator Daschle is suggesting tax increases to pay for billions in new spending that won't help our economy grow.
- While Senator Daschle blames the tax relief legislation enacted with bipartisan majorities in the House and Senate for the decline in the FY 2002 budget surplus, the facts tell a different story. The surplus has declined because our economy has been in recession since March and because we have responded to the attacks of September 11th. In fact, 72 percent of the tax cut's effects take place after 2005.
- In January, CBO forecasted surplus for FY 2002 of $313 billion. Since then, the recession has reduced this figure by $167 billion and new spending has reduced it by $60 billion. Last May's tax cut will reduce 2002 revenue by only $38 billion. The impact of the recession is four times greater than the impact of the tax cuts.
- The American people deserve action on an economic security and job creation agenda – not more partisan posturing – from the Senate leadership.

This Weekend's Presidential Action:

- This weekend, President Bush travels to California and Oregon to meet with workers hit hard by the recession and to conduct a townhall forum on the economy. The President will again call on the Senate Democratic leadership to pass the bipartisan economic security package that will create jobs and provide assistance to the unemployed, without raising taxes.

The President Welcomes Signs of Movement in the Senate:

- Spending time at home for the holidays appears to have been good for Senator Daschle. He's now knows what President Bush and the American people have known all along – that we need to take steps to ensure our economic security and get the economy growing.
- While many of the details of Senator Daschle's plans won't meet his stated goals, the Administration welcomes the Senator's newfound interest in the President's economic agenda. Unfortunately, many of the issues Senator Daschle expressed support for – economic stimulus, comprehensive energy legislation, opening new markets to America's products – are all stalled in the Senate he leads.
- Nearly one million people have lost their jobs since President Bush first outlined an economic growth package while waiting for the Senate Democratic leadership to act. Senator Daschle appears to have finally reacted to what the American people and the President have long called for – real help to create jobs and to help those who have already lost their jobs.
- Senator Daschle's recipe for "fiscal discipline" is off-base. Surpluses don't create growth. Economic growth creates surpluses. That's why the President has presented an economic security plan designed to promote economic growth. It's troubling that Senator Daschle is suggesting tax increases to pay for billions in new spending that won't help our economy grow.
- While Senator Daschle blames the tax relief legislation enacted with bipartisan majorities in the House and Senate for the decline in the FY 2002 budget surplus, the facts tell a different story. The surplus has declined because our economy has been in recession since March and because we have responded to the attacks of September 11th. In fact, 72 percent of the tax cut's effects take place after 2005.
- In January, CBO forecasted surplus for FY 2002 of $313 billion. Since then, the recession has reduced this figure by $167 billion and new spending has reduced it by $60 billion. Last May's tax cut will reduce 2002 revenue by only $38 billion. The impact of the recession is four times greater than the impact of the tax cuts.
- The American people deserve action on an economic security and job creation agenda – not more partisan posturing – from the Senate leadership.

This Weekend's Presidential Action:

- This weekend, President Bush travels to California and Oregon to meet with workers hit hard by the recession and to conduct a townhall forum on the economy. The President will again call on the Senate Democratic leadership to pass the bipartisan economic security package that will create jobs and provide assistance to the unemployed, without raising taxes.

The President Welcomes Signs of Movement in the Senate:

- Spending time at home for the holidays appears to have been good for Senator Daschle. He's now knows what President Bush and the American people have known all along – that we need to take steps to ensure our economic security and get the economy growing.
- While many of the details of Senator Daschle's plans won't meet his stated goals, the Administration welcomes the Senator's newfound interest in the President's economic agenda. Unfortunately, many of the issues Senator Daschle expressed support for – economic stimulus, comprehensive energy legislation, opening new markets to America's products – are all stalled in the Senate he leads.
- Nearly one million people have lost their jobs since President Bush first outlined an economic growth package while waiting for the Senate Democratic leadership to act. Senator Daschle appears to have finally reacted to what the American people and the President have long called for – real help to create jobs and to help those who have already lost their jobs.
- Senator Daschle's recipe for "fiscal discipline" is off-base. Surpluses don't create growth. Economic growth creates surpluses. That's why the President has presented an economic security plan designed to promote economic growth. It's troubling that Senator Daschle is suggesting tax increases to pay for billions in new spending that won't help our economy grow.
- While Senator Daschle blames the tax relief legislation enacted with bipartisan majorities in the House and Senate for the decline in the FY 2002 budget surplus, the facts tell a different story. The surplus has declined because our economy has been in recession since March and because we have responded to the attacks of September 11th. In fact, 72 percent of the tax cut's effects take place after 2005.
- In January, CBO forecasted surplus for FY 2002 of $313 billion. Since then, the recession has reduced this figure by $167 billion and new spending has reduced it by $60 billion. Last May's tax cut will reduce 2002 revenue by only $38 billion. The impact of the recession is four times greater than the impact of the tax cuts.
- The American people deserve action on an economic security and job creation agenda – not more partisan posturing – from the Senate leadership.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women and children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. They are said to be prepared for a long stay underground. But they are in for a sudden change of plans – because one by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- The Wall Street Journal (12/31/01) reported that anti-Taliban forces in Afghanistan confiscated a computer containing, among other things, the elements of a "plan to develop a 'home-brew nerve gas,'" and the text of a letter saying that "hitting the Americans and Jews is a target of great value and has its rewards in this life and, God willing, the afterlife."
- "The first magazine for women in nearly 10 years has hit the shelves of the war-ravaged country. Seerat (Attitude) does not look like a standard glossy magazine. [It is] crudely churned out on an old-fashioned printing machine. Three women [journalists] are funding the weekly magazine out of their own pockets. 500 copies of Seerat, which costs 2,000 Afghanis (10 cents), are being distributed by its authors to colleges, bookshops and other institutions. All they have asked is that the ministry, which reads it for censorship, does not change any of the articles. 'We are a long way behind the technology that other newspapers have used for a long time. Please send us magazines. Any help and all ideas are welcome,' [say the journalists.]" (AFP, 12/26/01)

In Case You Missed It...

- "We've disrupted any number of training camps, and it does take training to become a polished, successful murderer or mass murderer. You just don't walk out of grade school with that kind of knowledge; you need to practice and be taught by experts." (Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, 1/3/02)

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million in fiscal year 2002 to help assist Afghani refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan.
- President Bush's call for American kids to send $1 to America's Fund for Afghan Children has helped raise nearly $2 million, which has been spent on hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items that have been shipped to Afghanistan.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women and children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. They are said to be prepared for a long stay underground. But they are in for a sudden change of plans – because one by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- The Wall Street Journal (12/31/01) reported that anti-Taliban forces in Afghanistan confiscated a computer containing, among other things, the elements of a "plan to develop a 'home-brew nerve gas,'" and the text of a letter saying that "hitting the Americans and Jews is a target of great value and has its rewards in this life and, God willing, the afterlife."
- "The first magazine for women in nearly 10 years has hit the shelves of the war-ravaged country. Seerat (Attitude) does not look like a standard glossy magazine. [It is] crudely churned out on an old-fashioned printing machine. Three women [journalists] are funding the weekly magazine out of their own pockets. 500 copies of Seerat, which costs 2,000 Afghanis (10 cents), are being distributed by its authors to colleges, bookshops and other institutions. All they have asked is that the ministry, which reads it for censorship, does not change any of the articles. 'We are a long way behind the technology that other newspapers have used for a long time. Please send us magazines. Any help and all ideas are welcome,' [say the journalists.]" (AFP, 12/26/01)

In Case You Missed It...

- "We've disrupted any number of training camps, and it does take training to become a polished, successful murderer or mass murderer. You just don't walk out of grade school with that kind of knowledge; you need to practice and be taught by experts." (Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, 1/3/02)

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million in fiscal year 2002 to help assist Afghani refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan.
- President Bush's call for American kids to send $1 to America's Fund for Afghan Children has helped raise nearly $2 million, which has been spent on hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items that have been shipped to Afghanistan.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- The Wall Street Journal (12/31/01) reported that anti-Taliban forces in Afghanistan confiscated a computer containing, among other things, the elements of a "plan to develop a 'home-brew nerve gas,'" and the text of a letter saying that "hitting the Americans and Jews is a target of great value and has its rewards in this life and, God willing, the afterlife."
- "The first magazine for women in nearly 10 years has hit the shelves of the war-ravaged country. Seerat (Attitude) does not look like a standard glossy magazine. [It is] crudely churned out on an old-fashioned printing machine. Three women [journalists] are funding the weekly magazine out of their own pockets. 500 copies of Seerat, which costs 2,000 Afghanis (10 cents), are being distributed by its authors to colleges, bookshops and other institutions. All they have asked is that the ministry, which reads it for censorship, does not change any of the articles. 'We are a long way behind the technology that other newspapers have used for a long time. Please send us magazines. Any help and all ideas are welcome,' [say the journalists.]" (AFP, 12/26/01)

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women and children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. They are said to be prepared for a long stay underground. But they are in for a sudden change of plans – because one by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

In Case You Missed It...

- "We've disrupted any number of training camps, and it does take training to become a polished, successful murderer or mass murderer. You just don't walk out of grade school with that kind of knowledge; you need to practice and be taught by experts." (Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, 1/3/02)

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million in fiscal year 2002 to help assist Afghani refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan.
- President Bush's call for American kids to send $1 to America's Fund for Afghan Children has helped raise nearly $2 million, which has been spent on hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items that have been shipped to Afghanistan.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women and children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. They are said to be prepared for a long stay underground. But they are in for a sudden change of plans – because one by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- The Wall Street Journal (12/31/01) reported that anti-Taliban forces in Afghanistan confiscated a computer containing, among other things, the elements of a "plan to develop a 'home-brew nerve gas,'" and the text of a letter saying that "hitting the Americans and Jews is a target of great value and has its rewards in this life and, God willing, the afterlife."
- "The first magazine for women in nearly 10 years has hit the shelves of the war-ravaged country. Seerat (Attitude) does not look like a standard glossy magazine. [It is] crudely churned out on an old-fashioned printing machine. Three women [journalists] are funding the weekly magazine out of their own pockets. 500 copies of Seerat, which costs 2,000 Afghanis (10 cents), are being distributed by its authors to colleges, bookshops and other institutions. All they have asked is that the ministry, which reads it for censorship, does not change any of the articles. 'We are a long way behind the technology that other newspapers have used for a long time. Please send us magazines. Any help and all ideas are welcome,' [say the journalists.]" (AFP, 12/26/01)

In Case You Missed It...

- "We've disrupted any number of training camps, and it does take training to become a polished, successful murderer or mass murderer. You just don't walk out of grade school with that kind of knowledge; you need to practice and be taught by experts." (Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, 1/3/02)

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million in fiscal year 2002 to help assist Afghani refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan.
- President Bush's call for American kids to send $1 to America's Fund for Afghan Children has helped raise nearly $2 million, which has been spent on hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items that have been shipped to Afghanistan.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women and children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. They are said to be prepared for a long stay underground. But they are in for a sudden change of plans – because one by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Recent Key Quotes & Developments

- The Wall Street Journal (12/31/01) reported that anti-Taliban forces in Afghanistan confiscated a computer containing, among other things, the elements of a "plan to develop a 'home-brew nerve gas,'" and the text of a letter saying that "hitting the Americans and Jews is a target of great value and has its rewards in this life and, God willing, the afterlife."
- "The first magazine for women in nearly 10 years has hit the shelves of the war-ravaged country. Seerat (Attitude) does not look like a standard glossy magazine. [It is] crudely churned out on an old-fashioned printing machine. Three women [journalists] are funding the weekly magazine out of their own pockets. 500 copies of Seerat, which costs 2,000 Afghanis (10 cents), are being distributed by its authors to colleges, bookshops and other institutions. All they have asked is that the ministry, which reads it for censorship, does not change any of the articles. 'We are a long way behind the technology that other newspapers have used for a long time. Please send us magazines. Any help and all ideas are welcome,' [say the journalists.]" (AFP, 12/26/01)

In Case You Missed It...

- "We've disrupted any number of training camps, and it does take training to become a polished, successful murderer or mass murderer. You just don't walk out of grade school with that kind of knowledge; you need to practice and be taught by experts." (Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, 1/3/02)

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million in fiscal year 2002 to help assist Afghani refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan.
- President Bush's call for American kids to send $1 to America's Fund for Afghan Children has helped raise nearly $2 million, which has been spent on hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items that have been shipped to Afghanistan.

The medical situation in Afghanistan is frightening. For example, there is only 1 doctor for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan. This 1-pager outlines a few examples of U.S.-led efforts to help the people of Afghanistan meet their critical medical needs.

HELPING AFGHANS MEET CRITICAL MEDICAL

The U.S.-led coalition is helping to feed the people of Afghanistan as they begin to recover from the al-Qaeda and Taliban terrorist regime. But the Afghan people need more than food.

The Afghan people face critical medical needs and the U.S., its coalition allies, and other organizations are helping the Afghan people recover by:

- ☑ Delivering vital medicine & health care supplies to the Afghan people (Since October 1 enough medical supplies have been delivered to support 100,000 Afghans for three months.)
- ☑ Vaccinating at least 9 million children
- ☑ Providing emergency medical care
- ☑ Educating Afghans on how to rebuild their health care system.

THE PROBLEM

- There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN.
- Afghanistan ranks second worldwide in maternal mortality.
- There is currently one physician for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan.
- Mass population movement, potential overcrowding in camps over the border and insufficient health services make the Afghan people highly vulnerable to communicable diseases.
- Today, one in four Afghan children do not live to see their fifth birthday.
- A large percentage of Afghans living in remote, mountainous areas have no access to health care.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S COMMITMENT TO HELP

Examples of health care assistance include...

Delivering Medicines & Vital Health Care Supplies to the Afghan People. Since October 1, 2001, the U.S. government has airlifted 10 large medical supply shipments into Afghanistan – enough medical equipment, supplies and medicine to support 100,000 people for three months. These shipments provide standard manuals offering guidance in diagnosis and treatment, antibiotics to treat pneumonia and other conditions, anti-malarial drugs, pain medication and anesthetics. Medical supplies such as syringes, sutures, bandages, soap, examination gloves and various instruments enable health workers to provide needed care to the vulnerable population.

Protecting Afghans from Disease. There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN. To protect children against measles -- a disease which kills an average of 35,000 Afghan children each year -- UNICEF and the World Health Organization (WHO) have begun a 3-month measles vaccination program across Afghanistan. The goal of the program is to reach at least 9 million Afghan children. In fact, WHO plans to reach 850,000 children in the first seven days of the program.

Building Better Health Through Education. USAID and others are working across Afghanistan to help the Afghan people improve the country's basic health care services. For example, USAID and others are educating Afghans -- especially women -- on basic health, nutrition, childcare, hygiene and maternal health.

The medical situation in Afghanistan is frightening. For example, there is only 1 doctor for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan. This 1-pager outlines a few examples of U.S.-led efforts to help the people of Afghanistan meet their critical medical needs.

HELPING AFGHANS MEET CRITICAL MEDICAL

The U.S.-led coalition is helping to feed the people of Afghanistan as they begin to recover from the al-Qaeda and Taliban terrorist regime. But the Afghan people need more than food.

The Afghan people face critical medical needs and the U.S., its coalition allies, and other organizations are helping the Afghan people recover by:

- ☑ Delivering vital medicine & health care supplies to the Afghan people (Since October 1 enough medical supplies have been delivered to support 100,000 Afghans for three months.)
- ☑ Vaccinating at least 9 million children
- ☑ Providing emergency medical care
- ☑ Educating Afghans on how to rebuild their health care system.

THE PROBLEM

- There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN.
- Afghanistan ranks second worldwide in maternal mortality.
- There is currently one physician for every 50,000 people in Afghanistan.
- Mass population movement, potential overcrowding in camps over the border and insufficient health services make the Afghan people highly vulnerable to communicable diseases.
- Today, one in four Afghan children do not live to see their fifth birthday.
- A large percentage of Afghans living in remote, mountainous areas have no access to health care.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S COMMITMENT TO HELP

Examples of health care assistance include...

Delivering Medicines & Vital Health Care Supplies to the Afghan People. Since October 1, 2001, the U.S. government has airlifted 10 large medical supply shipments into Afghanistan – enough medical equipment, supplies and medicine to support 100,000 people for three months. These shipments provide standard manuals offering guidance in diagnosis and treatment, antibiotics to treat pneumonia and other conditions, anti-malarial drugs, pain medication and anesthetics. Medical supplies such as syringes, sutures, bandages, soap, examination gloves and various instruments enable health workers to provide needed care to the vulnerable population.

Protecting Afghans from Disease. There are no programs of routine immunization in many parts of Afghanistan, according to the UN. To protect children against measles -- a disease which kills an average of 35,000 Afghan children each year -- UNICEF and the World Health Organization (WHO) have begun a 3-month measles vaccination program across Afghanistan. The goal of the program is to reach at least 9 million Afghan children. In fact, WHO plans to reach 850,000 children in the first seven days of the program.

Building Better Health Through Education. USAID and others are working across Afghanistan to help the Afghan people improve the country's basic health care services. For example, USAID and others are educating Afghans -- especially women -- on basic health, nutrition, childcare, hygiene and maternal health.

HOUSING AUTHORITY OF NEW ORLEANS

Background

The Housing Authority of New Orleans (HANO), with approximately 11,000 public housing units and 7,300 Section 8 Housing Choice vouchers, has historically been among the most troubled in the nation. Since 1996, HANO has operated under a joint agreement between HUD and the City of New Orleans, the Cooperative Endeavor Agreement (CEA). By this agreement which created subsidiary agreements as well as the position of Executive Monitor, the City was more directly inserted into the details of HANO operations. HUD continued to exercise some authority over the course of HANO's affairs by its delegation of an outside contractor to the position of Board of HANO. However, the authority of the Board was confused due to the layers of bureaucracy created by the original CEA. In December 2000, the CEA was extended for an additional three years.

Despite good intentions to ensure decent, safe and sanitary living conditions of HANO residents, progress toward this goal has been remarkably slow. The District Inspector General issued an Audit Report on May 11, 2001 which called for the termination of the CEA and cited numerous examples of questionable management practices, including:

- Since 1992 HANO has received $243 million and has expended only 57% or $139 million.
- Of the expended amount $69 million, or approximately 50%, was allocated to soft management costs rather than the hard construction costs which would substantially improve the physical conditions of HANO developments.
- HANO's Section 8 program has been termed "dysfunctional" by the District Inspector General with only 68% of available vouchers being used.
- Problems have continued to stall progress in the administration of the HOPE VI program.

Congressional hearings on the state of HANO followed soon after the issuance of the Audit Report, which only emphasized the continued poor living conditions of HANO residents.

The Current Political Climate in New Orleans

Activities relevant to HANO operations do take into account the political realities of New Orleans. Mayor Morial's attempt to remove term limits by referendum was defeated and as a result his term in office will expire in May. There are fifteen candidates for Mayor of whom the leading candidates are State Senator Paulette Irons, Police Superintendent Richard Pennington, and Vice President of the City Council Jim Singleton. The primary election will be held on February 2nd with a run-off scheduled for March. HUD believes that the new climate of change will positively affect proposed activities.

- Deputy Secretary Alphonso Jackson has taken the lead in ensuring dialogue with local tenant leaders. Resident organizations leader Ms. Cynthia Wiggins' strong and supportive relationship with the Deputy Secretary has gone a long way in ensuring a continued and positive conversation with the local community.
- Tenant leaders have indicated their openness to working with new leadership both locally and at HUD.
- Meetings have been scheduled with the leading Mayoral candidates to inform them of proposed actions.
- Leading candidates have expressed their intent to divorce themselves from past HANO actions and policies.

HUD Actions to Improve HANO

HUD's actions in New Orleans signal a new approach to public housing management. The leadership at HUD in line with the administration's effort to effect positive change is demanding greater accountability and results.

HUD believes that immediate and deliberate action is necessary to make substantial improvements at HANO. As a first step in a transformed but more effective governing structure, HUD has allowed the contract with the consultant serving as HANO Board to expire on December 31, 2001. In place of the consultant, an experienced and proven HUD professional has been delegated to serve as the new Board. Notices of this change have been issued to HANO staff.

Pending the outcome of Mayor Morial's current legal actions, HUD intends to terminate the CEA and put in place an administrative receiver who will be a housing expert and directly answerable to the HUD Board. The administrative receiver will have authority to make necessary changes to the Housing Authority. In addition, it will be the responsibility of the administrative receiver to oversee the day-to-day operations of HANO and to carry out the longer term strategies of the Board. In addition to the local support referenced above, HUD has received agreement from key members of the Louisiana House delegation, inclusive of Congressman Baker and Jefferson supporting HUD's actions.

In support of the new, streamlined structure at HANO, additional personnel will also be assigned to the HUD field office to offer added oversight and expertise to HANO operations. Finally, the field district inspector general's office has been invited to provide regular review of HUD's efforts in order to ensure continuing progress toward HANO's recovery.

Morial has filed for a temporary injunction in Federal Court to prevent HUD from instituting the enhanced administrative receivership and a hearing is set for Monday, January 14, 2002. We will send further updates following the Judge's ruling.

President Bush Pushes Economic Security Agenda to Create Jobs and Opportunity for America's Workers

Today's Presidential Action:

- As his first order of business upon returning to Washington, President Bush today met with his top economic advisors and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan to discuss the economy and ways to ensure the recovery happens sooner rather than later. The President also announced that he will include his economic security package in the 2003 budget.

Economic Growth Is Needed Now To Help Workers:

- The Senate Should Pass An Economic Security Plan Immediately: Given the uncertain economic outlook, we need an economic security package to boost growth now and get people back to work. President Bush called on Congress to pass an economic security bill months ago. The House acted quickly but the Senate failed to act, despite support for a bipartisan compromise that a majority of Senators supported. In the meantime, more than 900,000 Americans have lost their jobs. And, without action by the Senate, more than 300,000 workers will not find work this year.
- Economic Growth and Job Creation Boost Surpluses -- Not Tax Increases: The federal government is not responsible for budget surpluses. America's workers are the engines of economic growth that create surpluses. A strong economy and more jobs – not tax increases – are the keys to improving the daily lives of working families and creating budget surpluses for years to come.

President Bush - Providing Critical Leadership On The Economy:

- The President's Tax Relief Plan Will Help End the Recession Quicker: The President's tax cut was exactly the right medicine at the right time. It became law in May and workers began receiving checks in late August -- pumping $40 billion back into the economy and supporting consumer spending at a critical time. Had it not been for the September 11th attack, many economists believe our economy would have already recovered.
- While Some Blame Tax Cuts for Recession, the Facts Tell a Different Story: The recession began in March, two months before the tax cut even became law, and at least seven months before workers started receiving rebate checks. Despite Senator Daschle's claims, it is impossible that tax cuts made the recession worse.
- Democrats and Republicans Came Together Because the Tax Cut Was Needed: Twelve Senate Democrats and 41 House Democrats voted for the tax cut bill. They knew that cutting taxes was the right thing to do for America's future economic prosperity.

The War and Recession Drained the Budget Surplus:

- While some in Washington have attempted to blame the tax cut for the declining budget surplus, the facts tell a different story:
  - The Recession Erased Two-Thirds of the Surplus: The recession and declining tax revenues drained roughly two-thirds of the budget surplus between April 2000 and today.
  - Homeland Security and War Spending Used 19% of the Surplus: Immediately following the terrorist attacks, President Bush and Congress rightly passed significant spending increases for the war against terrorism, homeland security, airline security, and emergency response. This necessary spending accounted for approximately 19% of the surplus.
  - The Tax Cut Only Used 15% of the Surplus: Despite the claims of some in Washington, the tax cut used less than 15% of the surplus.
- The events of September 11 weakened an already slowing economy:
  - Unemployment rose by almost 1% after September 11.
  - The airport and airline industry was entirely shut down, costing thousands of jobs.
  - The tourism industry was especially hard-hit, costing even more jobs.
  - Wall Street closed for a week, investment dried up, and the markets dropped.
  - Anthrax attacks shut down large portions of commercial mail and shipping industries.
- Despite the terrorist attacks and the slowing economy, the budget remains effectively in balance: The miniscule shortfall in the budget represents less than 1% of GDP, meaning that the budget is effectively in balance.
- While some in Washington use partisan politics as an excuse for inaction, President Bush will continue to work toward a real, effective economic security package for America's workers.

President Bush Pushes Economic Security Agenda to Create Jobs and Opportunity for America's Workers

Today's Presidential Action:

- As his first order of business upon returning to Washington, President Bush today met with his top economic advisors and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan to discuss the economy and ways to ensure the recovery happens sooner rather than later. The President also announced that he will include his economic security package in the 2003 budget.

Economic Growth Is Needed Now To Help Workers:

- The Senate Should Pass An Economic Security Plan Immediately: Given the uncertain economic outlook, we need an economic security package to boost growth now and get people back to work. President Bush called on Congress to pass an economic security bill months ago. The House acted quickly but the Senate failed to act, despite support for a bipartisan compromise that a majority of Senators supported. In the meantime, more than 900,000 Americans have lost their jobs. And, without action by the Senate, more than 300,000 workers will not find work this year.
- Economic Growth and Job Creation Boost Surpluses -- Not Tax Increases: The federal government is not responsible for budget surpluses. America's workers are the engines of economic growth that create surpluses. A strong economy and more jobs – not tax increases – are the keys to improving the daily lives of working families and creating budget surpluses for years to come.

President Bush - Providing Critical Leadership On The Economy:

- The President's Tax Relief Plan Will Help End the Recession Quicker: The President's tax cut was exactly the right medicine at the right time. It became law in May and workers began receiving checks in late August -- pumping $40 billion back into the economy and supporting consumer spending at a critical time. Had it not been for the September 11th attack, many economists believe our economy would have already recovered.
- While Some Blame Tax Cuts for Recession, the Facts Tell a Different Story: The recession began in March, two months before the tax cut even became law, and at least seven months before workers started receiving rebate checks. Despite Senator Daschle's claims, it is impossible that tax cuts made the recession worse.
- Democrats and Republicans Came Together Because the Tax Cut Was Needed: Twelve Senate Democrats and 41 House Democrats voted for the tax cut bill. They knew that cutting taxes was the right thing to do for America's future economic prosperity.

The War and Recession Drained the Budget Surplus:

- While some in Washington have attempted to blame the tax cut for the declining budget surplus, the facts tell a different story:
  - The Recession Erased Two-Thirds of the Surplus: The recession and declining tax revenues drained roughly two-thirds of the budget surplus between April 2000 and today.
  - Homeland Security and War Spending Used 19% of the Surplus: Immediately following the terrorist attacks, President Bush and Congress rightly passed significant spending increases for the war against terrorism, homeland security, airline security, and emergency response. This necessary spending accounted for approximately 19% of the surplus.
  - The Tax Cut Only Used 15% of the Surplus: Despite the claims of some in Washington, the tax cut used less than 15% of the surplus.
- The events of September 11 weakened an already slowing economy:
  - Unemployment rose by almost 1% after September 11.
  - The airport and airline industry was entirely shut down, costing thousands of jobs.
  - The tourism industry was especially hard-hit, costing even more jobs.
  - Wall Street closed for a week, investment dried up, and the markets dropped.
  - Anthrax attacks shut down large portions of commercial mail and shipping industries.
- Despite the terrorist attacks and the slowing economy, the budget remains effectively in balance: The miniscule shortfall in the budget represents less than 1% of GDP, meaning that the budget is effectively in balance.
- While some in Washington use partisan politics as an excuse for inaction, President Bush will continue to work toward a real, effective economic security package for America's workers.

President Bush Pushes Economic Security Agenda to Create Jobs and Opportunity for America's Workers

Today's Presidential Action:

- As his first order of business upon returning to Washington, President Bush today met with his top economic advisors and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan to discuss the economy and ways to ensure the recovery happens sooner rather than later. The President also announced that he will include his economic security package in the 2003 budget.

Economic Growth Is Needed Now To Help Workers:

- The Senate Should Pass An Economic Security Plan Immediately: Given the uncertain economic outlook, we need an economic security package to boost growth now and get people back to work. President Bush called on Congress to pass an economic security bill months ago. The House acted quickly but the Senate failed to act, despite support for a bipartisan compromise that a majority of Senators supported. In the meantime, more than 900,000 Americans have lost their jobs. And, without action by the Senate, more than 300,000 workers will not find work this year.
- Economic Growth and Job Creation Boost Surpluses -- Not Tax Increases: The federal government is not responsible for budget surpluses. America's workers are the engines of economic growth that create surpluses. A strong economy and more jobs – not tax increases – are the keys to improving the daily lives of working families and creating budget surpluses for years to come.

President Bush - Providing Critical Leadership On The Economy:

- The President's Tax Relief Plan Will Help End the Recession Quicker: The President's tax cut was exactly the right medicine at the right time. It became law in May and workers began receiving checks in late August -- pumping $40 billion back into the economy and supporting consumer spending at a critical time. Had it not been for the September 11th attack, many economists believe our economy would have already recovered.
- While Some Blame Tax Cuts for Recession, the Facts Tell a Different Story: The recession began in March, two months before the tax cut even became law, and at least seven months before workers started receiving rebate checks. Despite Senator Daschle's claims, it is impossible that tax cuts made the recession worse.
- Democrats and Republicans Came Together Because the Tax Cut Was Needed: Twelve Senate Democrats and 41 House Democrats voted for the tax cut bill. They knew that cutting taxes was the right thing to do for America's future economic prosperity.

The War and Recession Drained the Budget Surplus:

- While some in Washington have attempted to blame the tax cut for the declining budget surplus, the facts tell a different story:
  - The Recession Erased Two-Thirds of the Surplus: The recession and declining tax revenues drained roughly two-thirds of the budget surplus between April 2000 and today.
  - Homeland Security and War Spending Used 19% of the Surplus: Immediately following the terrorist attacks, President Bush and Congress rightly passed significant spending increases for the war against terrorism, homeland security, airline security, and emergency response. This necessary spending accounted for approximately 19% of the surplus.
  - The Tax Cut Only Used 15% of the Surplus: Despite the claims of some in Washington, the tax cut used less than 15% of the surplus.
- The events of September 11 weakened an already slowing economy:
  - Unemployment rose by almost 1% after September 11.
  - The airport and airline industry was entirely shut down, costing thousands of jobs.
  - The tourism industry was especially hard-hit, costing even more jobs.
  - Wall Street closed for a week, investment dried up, and the markets dropped.
  - Anthrax attacks shut down large portions of commercial mail and shipping industries.
- Despite the terrorist attacks and the slowing economy, the budget remains effectively in balance: The miniscule shortfall in the budget represents less than 1% of GDP, meaning that the budget is effectively in balance.
- While some in Washington use partisan politics as an excuse for inaction, President Bush will continue to work toward a real, effective economic security package for America's workers.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women, children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. One by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government is keeping at least 16,000 Afghan families warm through the harsh winter months. USAID has contributed more than $1 million to provide 2,756 tons of cooking and heating charcoal to approximately 96,000 of Afghanistan's most vulnerable people for the next three months.
- USAID has contributed more than $7 million to address the water and sanitation needs to the Afghani people. This includes funding the drilling and rehabilitation of water sources, the construction of latrines, and education on hygiene and waste disposal.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women, children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. One by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government is keeping at least 16,000 Afghan families warm through the harsh winter months. USAID has contributed more than $1 million to provide 2,756 tons of cooking and heating charcoal to approximately 96,000 of Afghanistan's most vulnerable people for the next three months.
- USAID has contributed more than $7 million to address the water and sanitation needs to the Afghani people. This includes funding the drilling and rehabilitation of water sources, the construction of latrines, and education on hygiene and waste disposal.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women, children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. One by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government is keeping at least 16,000 Afghan families warm through the harsh winter months. USAID has contributed more than $1 million to provide 2,756 tons of cooking and heating charcoal to approximately 96,000 of Afghanistan's most vulnerable people for the next three months.
- USAID has contributed more than $7 million to address the water and sanitation needs to the Afghani people. This includes funding the drilling and rehabilitation of water sources, the construction of latrines, and education on hygiene and waste disposal.

Message

Osama bin Laden is a coward who murders innocents, including women, children and Muslims.

We are a long way from finished in Afghanistan. Much difficult and dangerous work is yet to come. Many terrorists are still hiding in heavily fortified bunkers in rugged territory. One by one, we are going to find them. Piece by piece, we will destroy their network of terror.

The U.S. is leading a global coalition that has made great progress in the war on terrorism:

- Began to destroy al-Qaeda's grip on Afghanistan by driving the Taliban from power.
- Disrupted al-Qaeda's global operations and terrorist financing networks.
- Helped the innocent people of Afghanistan recover from the Taliban's reign of terror.
- Helped Afghans put aside long-standing differences to form a new interim government that represents all Afghans – including women.

Facts of the Day

- The U.S. government is keeping at least 16,000 Afghan families warm through the harsh winter months. USAID has contributed more than $1 million to provide 2,756 tons of cooking and heating charcoal to approximately 96,000 of Afghanistan's most vulnerable people for the next three months.
- USAID has contributed more than $7 million to address the water and sanitation needs to the Afghani people. This includes funding the drilling and rehabilitation of water sources, the construction of latrines, and education on hygiene and waste disposal.

Rebuilding Afghanistan

The U.S. is providing historic amounts of food to the Afghan people to help them recover from terrorist rule. But Afghans need more than food. The terrorists have left the Afghan people without even the most basic infrastructure and health, education, and medical services. The U.S. is funding a comprehensive and compassionate program to bring a brighter future of freedom, hope and opportunity to the Afghan people. Since October 1, 2000, the U.S. has spent $384,599,456 to help Afghans in the following areas ) among many others:

ç Education. The U.N. Food-for-Education program ) with U.S. assistance ) is distributing food to schoolchildren in Afghanistan. Thousands of children and teachers in Afghan schools are currently receiving assistance through this program that increases school attendance, reduces dropout rates, and encourages families to send girls to school.

ç Agriculture. USAID is giving more than $9 million towards the rehabilitation of Afghanistan,s agricultural sector. Specific initiatives include distributing seeds to more than one million people as well as seedlings, fertilizer and agricultural tools. The U.S. is also rehabilitating irrigation systems, providing veterinary services, and educating Afghans in agricultural methods, animal husbandry, pest control and environmental improvements.

ç Water & Sanitation. The U.S. is providing $7 million to help address the water and sanitation needs of the Afghan people. This assistance will help foster the drilling of water wells, the rehabilitation of water sources, the installation of pipelines, the construction of latrines, and education on hygiene and waster disposal.

ç Health Care. The Afghan people face critical medical needs, and the U.S. is leading the world effort to help the Afghan people recover by delivering massive shipments of vital medicine & health care supplies (since October 1 enough medical supplies have been delivered to support 100,000 Afghans for three months), providing emergency medical care, and educating Afghans on how to rebuild their health care system. The U.N. Children,s Fund and the World Health Organization have launched a nationwide campaign to vaccinate 9 million children against measles. In the first two days of the campaign in Kabul, more than 142,000 children were vaccinated. This is three times the number of children vaccinated from January to October 2001 (in Afghanistan, an average of 35,000 children die each year from measles alone).

ç Critical Infrastructure. The U.S. is providing $3.8 million to repair roads, clinics, schools, local markets, homes and water supply facilities in hard-hit areas of Afghanistan.

ç Shelter. The U.S. is contributing $6.9 million to provide emergency shelter for more than 325,000 people and rebuild the damaged homes of approximately 62,000 Afghans.

ç Freedom of Information. The U.S. government has funded a radio program to provide humanitarian information to Afghans in their local languages. 30,000 radios are being funded by USAID to inform Afghans of information on immunizations for children, distribution points for food, health care, and security issues.

ç Funding the Interim Afghan Government. The coalition is committed to helping the people of Afghanistan rebuild their homeland. Operations of the Afghanistan Interim Authority are being funded through the $19.5 million it has received in pledges from international governments including Germany, Australia, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Russia, Sweden, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and the United States. Later this month a ministerial meeting of donor countries will be held in Tokyo to discuss the reconstruction of Afghanistan.

ç America,s Children Respond to Help Afghan Children. President Bush launched America,s Fund for Afghan Children, asking U.S. children to send $1 ) or whatever they could afford ) to help the children of Afghanistan who have suffered under the Taliban regime. The Fund has raised more than $2.1 million and shipments have already been sent to Afghan children ) including hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items.

ç Helping Afghan Refugees Who Fled the Taliban Return Home. The Taliban,s oppressive reign and war on women and children is ending. Many Afghan refugees who fled in fear now wish to return to their homes, and the U.S. is doing everything it can to help these refugees in Pakistan, Iran and other neighboring countries return home. In fact, the U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million this fiscal year (since October 1) to help refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan. The U.K. has given 26 million pounds sterling to Pakistan for their support of Afghan refugees.

ç Food Assistance. The U.S. government has led a world effort to provide record amounts of food to the Afghan people. In December alone, the U.N. World Food Program (WFP) delivered more food than ever before in one month. Millions of meals have been provided to the Afghan people so far. And while conditions are far from ideal, famine in Afghanistan has been averted this winter.

Other Key Needs. USAID is giving more that $7 million to supply approximately 600,000 Afghans with emergency supplies such as mattresses, blankets, stoves and cooking sets, winter clothes and fuel.

Operations of the Afghanistan Interim Authority are being funded through the $19.5 million it has received in pledges from international governments including Germany, Australia, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Russia, Sweden, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and the United States. Later this month a ministerial meeting of donor countries will be held in Tokyo to discuss the reconstruction of Afghanistan.
- ☑ America's Children Respond to Help Afghan Children. President Bush launched America's Fund for Afghan Children, asking U.S. children to send $1 – or whatever they could afford – to help the children of Afghanistan who have suffered under the Taliban regime. The Fund has raised more than $2.1 million and shipments have already been sent to Afghan children – including hats, socks, coats, tents, school supplies and other important humanitarian items.

- ☑ Helping Afghan Refugees Who Fled the Taliban Return Home. The Taliban's oppressive reign and war on women and children is ending. Many Afghan refugees who fled in fear now wish to return to their homes, and the U.S. is doing everything it can to help these refugees in Pakistan, Iran and other neighboring countries return home. In fact, the U.S. government has already spent more than $32 million this fiscal year (since October 1) to help refugees return to their homes in Afghanistan. The U.K. has given 26 million pounds sterling to Pakistan for their support of Afghan refugees.
- ☑ Food Assistance. The U.S. government has led a world effort to provide record amounts of food to the Afghan people. In December alone, the U.N. World Food Program (WFP) delivered more food than ever before in one month. Millions of meals have been provided to the Afghan people so far. And while conditions are far from ideal, famine in Afghanistan has been averted this winter.
- ☑ Other Key Needs. USAID is giving more than $7 million to supply approximately 600,000 Afghans with emergency supplies such as mattresses, blankets, stoves and cooking sets, winter clothes and fuel.

I understand that someone in Governor Ridge's staff is interested in looking at records created by the President's Commission on Critical Infrastructure Protection. These records are at the Bush Presidential Library.

To whom should the request be sent? White House Counsel's Office (you)? or Gary Stern/Nancy Smith at NARA?
I am aware that both parties need to be involved. I am not sure which one takes the lead.

CONGRESSIONAL HEARINGS

Letter to Ridge Is Latest Jab in Fight Over Balance of Powers

By ALISON MITCHELL

ASHINGTON, March 4 * Tensions over the balance of powers and executive branch consultations with Congress mounted today as White House officials said Tom Ridge, the director of homeland security, would refuse to testify before a Senate committee about President Bush's call for $38 billion in domestic security programs.

The White House said that Mr. Ridge would not appear because he was an adviser to the president, not a cabinet officer. The response came just hours after Senator Robert C. Byrd, Democrat of West Virginia and chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and Senator Ted Stevens of Alaska, the ranking Republican on the committee, released a letter to Mr. Ridge asking him to testify before their panel in April.

"You are the single executive branch official with the responsibility to integrate the many complex functions of the various federal agencies in one formulation and the execution of homeland defense programs," the two wrote. "Your views and insights on the policies necessary to meet these objectives are critical to the committee and the nation."

The sparring over Mr. Ridge, whose position was created after the Sept. 11 attacks, came with the White House and Congress vying over issues dealing with the balance of power between the executive and legislative branches and the level of consultations on the war on terror.

Congress has filed suit against Vice President Dick Cheney over his refusal, on grounds of separation of powers, to divulge information about his dealings with energy industry executives while drawing up the administration's energy plan.

In addition, lawmakers have questioned whether Congress was adequately briefed on the administration's quiet deployment of government employees to two heavily fortified locations outside of Washington in case of nuclear attack. Democrats in recent days have also said they will not rubber-stamp the White House's military budget without a clear explanation of the administration's goals beyond Afghanistan.

While most of the discontent has been voiced by Democrats, today it started to spill over into Republican ranks. Senator Richard C. Shelby of Alabama, the ranking Republican on the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he believed that Mr. Ridge had an obligation to testify before the Appropriations Committee. "He is the homeland security czar," Senator Shelby said. "I agree with Senators Byrd and Stevens that he should appear."

Senator Chuck Hagel, Republican of Nebraska, who has become a prominent voice on foreign policy, said it was a mistake for the administration not to keep Congress thoroughly informed of such matters as the rotation of 75 to 100 government workers to fortified locations to ensure continuity of government.

"I don't think that is a wise way to do these things," Senator Hagel said. "The fact is we are a co-equal branch of government to the executive." Mr. Hagel added that too much secrecy "does not facilitate cooperation and the spirit of working together."

The dispute over whether Mr. Ridge will appear formally before Congress stems in part from Mr. Bush's decision to create a homeland security office inside the White House and not as a separate cabinet agency run by an official confirmed by Congress.

The president and Mr. Ridge have repeatedly said that because Mr. Ridge, former governor of Pennsylvania, is close to Mr. Bush, he will have enough power to be effective and does not need a separate agency or his own budget powers. That he is a White House adviser and not a cabinet official also means that he is subject to less Congressional oversight * a fact that is becoming an irritant between Congress and the administration.

Susan Neely, a spokeswoman for Mr. Ridge, said that while he had met and spoken informally to many members of Congress, he would not testify, because of his role inside the White House as an adviser to the president. "Ridge's job is to make recommendations to the president, and the president has spoken," Ms. Neely said.

Ari Fleischer, the White House press secretary, underscored the point in an interview, saying Mr. Ridge's office was being modeled on the National Security Council, which advises the president on foreign policy. He noted that Condoleezza Rice, Mr. Bush's national security adviser, did not testify before Congress.

"It works, and works well, for the national security adviser," Mr. Fleischer said. "We hope Congress will respect that."

Mr. Ridge did speak last week to the Republican and Democratic Senate caucuses at their closed-door lunches. Several Republicans said that in their session, Mr. Stevens urged Mr. Ridge to testify before the Appropriations Committee and warned him that Congress had subpoena power that it could use to compel testimony.

Tom Gavin, a spokesman for Mr. Byrd, said there was precedent for a presidential adviser to testify and that in the Clinton administration several advisers to the president had appeared before Congressional committees. He said the senator would await Mr. Ridge's formal response and hoped that he might yet decide to testify.

In another dispute, over the administration's activation of a cold-war-era contingency plan to keep government running in case of catastrophic attack, senior White House officials and Republican Congressional aides said that the administration had informed some in Congress but that the information had been closely held because it was sensitive.

Speaker J. Dennis Hastert, Republican of Illinois, is third in line of succession, after Mr. Bush and Mr. Cheney. A knowledgeable Republican aide said today that Mr. Hastert had been briefed about the contingency plan.

Senator Tom Daschle, Democrat of South Dakota, the majority leader, complained last week that he had not been told of the shadow government.

BK -- I have bolded the two points that I think are worth incorporating.
The first point would be that he "met with virtually the entire membership of the Appropriations Committee during a pair of lunches last week" and is prepared to do so again

The 2nd point maybe has already been made by the insert I just sketched out in your office??

Ed: Two immediate reactions. First, I think we should specifically remind them that Gov. Ridge meet with the entire Senate recently, at the Republican and Democrat Senators' lunches. Wendy stressed that in her conversation with me the other night, and it's a good point. More generally, don't we want more detail about contacts with Congress? Wendy and Julie had not finished pulling all the materials together, but together with what Marie should have assembled, it would make a very strong argument.

Second, we don't offer any particular accommodation, like an informal briefing. Whether to do so is a tactical judgment, and I don't know enough about the mood in the Committee to say whether we should come forward with a written offer now, hold back, or try to deal informally.
My sense from discussing it with Wendy was that the Hill, and maybe she and Julie, are thinking that we will make a proposal.

Robert

Daschle says subpoenaing domestic security chief to testify is an option

DAVID HO

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) _ Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle says he hopes it won't be necessary to subpoena domestic security chief Tom Ridge to testify about President Bush's anti-terrorism spending request, but it's an option.

The White House has opposed Ridge's appearance at a Senate hearing. A Bush spokesman expressed hope for a ``satisfactory resolution'' that would get lawmakers the necessary information, but White House officials said Monday that Ridge had no intention of testifying.

``We've got to find a way to break the impasse. (Ridge has) got to work with us. There is just too much at stake,'' Daschle, D-S.D., said Sunday. ``Coercion is not ever my first choice.''

``We want to look at all of the options at this point. But we're hoping it is not a necessary one. We are still hoping that they will have a change of heart,'' Daschle said on CBS' ``Face the Nation.''

Administration officials say Ridge has privately briefed lawmakers but his refusal to appear before a congressional committee follows the tradition that a member of a president's immediate staff does not testify formally to Congress.

The administration wants spending on domestic security to double next year to $38 billion.

``Hopefully we will come to a satisfactory resolution of this issue that allows Congress to receive information they need while allowing the president to receive confidential advice," White House spokesman Gordon Johndroe said.

Ridge has talked to lawmakers by telephone and in informal briefings on Capitol Hill. He will continue those practices, but will stop short of allowing himself to be compelled to testify because Bush considers it to be a separation-of-powers issue, aides said Monday.

Later, two lawmakers who met with Bush on a separate issue told reporters that Ridge should come before Congress.

"We shouldn't go to 'fist city' over something I think can be resolved merely by allowing him to come up and saying, 'This is an exception. This is not how it's going to be handled in the future but what he has to say is important,'" said Sen. John Breaux, D-La.

"I'm inclined to agree with that," said Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Ala. The senators met with Bush and veterans in support of White House plans to drill for oil in Alaska's wilderness.

"It is highly unusual to demand that a person who has no formal office other than as an adviser to the president has to come up and testify to Congress," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

"Once that starts, he will be up there spending all his time on Capitol Hill rather than doing his job," Hatch said on "Face the Nation."

But Daschle said Ridge acts with all the rights and privileges of a Cabinet officer and he should come before lawmakers.

Sen. Don Nickles of Oklahoma, the No. 2 Republican leader, accused Democrats of trying to pick a fight over having Ridge testify.

"He's already indicated he's willing to meet with senators," Nickles said on "Fox News Sunday." "But to have him go before each individual appropriation committee and so on, I think is ridiculous."

The two top senators on the Senate Appropriations Committee, Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and Republican Ted Stevens of Alaska, wrote Bush on Friday asking to meet to discuss Ridge's refusal to testify. They said Ridge has more power than the ordinary presidential adviser, coordinating spending by more than 80 federal agencies.

MS. BUCHAN: That was one of the things the President thought would improve the bill.

Q And yet we're out raising $2-and-a-half million today for two different candidates. If he believes in that, why not just stop going to these fund-raisers?

MS. BUCHAN: That was one of the things that the President had urged the Congress to do, that they did not. And on balance, the President thinks that the law will improve the system. He does think that there are concerns. But, in the meantime, he certainly is going to -- certainly believes that advancing the democratic process is important.

For my part at least, I'll need a little advance notice before I do these calls so that I can bone up on my facts and talkers, especially with respect to specific nominees of interest. Please try to give me a little advance warning if you can.

Also, FYI I'm out of the office all next week.

Brett, following up on the points you and Brad raised this morning, att'd FYI are Ari's comments yesterday on this subject:

Q Thank you, Ari. Director Ridge has made a -- what is being termed a compromise offer to meet with lawmakers and answer their questions about the budget. Already there are indications from Senate Democrats, including Senator Byrd, that his compromise offer is less than what they are looking for. Could you explain the administration's rationale behind the so-called compromise that he offered, and what do you make of the criticism of the compromise?

MR. FLEISCHER: Well, this is just one more example of how Governor Ridge and this administration have provided and will continue to provide a free flow of information to the Congress, to answer any and all questions they have about homeland security.

Q Why not do it through the committee structure then?

MR. FLEISCHER: That's an old issue that the President has dealt with directly. And the request by the Congress, even though they're already receiving the answers to their questions, to change the traditions which have worked very well between the Congress and the executive, on testimony by assistants to the President, is a request that cannot and will not be honored. The President has made that clear.

I think what's so unusual here is that Congress is receiving all this information. Governor Ridge has made another effort to provide information to the Congress. But the President hopes that the Congress' message back will not be, my way or the highway, we'll only do it our way. And this administration will continue to work closely with the Congress, to work with the leadership, to work with Senator Byrd, to work with Senator Stevens, and we're hopeful that a good accommodation can be reached.

Q Do you think that the Senate Democrats then are playing politics with the Homeland Security budget, and information relating thereto?

MR. FLEISCHER: No, I don't think so. I think this is really a classic executive legislative issue involving longstanding issues in our federal system between the branches of the government. But that's, again, another reason why the President thinks it's so important not to change something that has worked very well, involving who the Congress has the right to call down for testimony. That has not extended previously to advisors to the President. It applies to the operational officers of the government. It applies to the Cabinet Secretaries.

But the only instances, in modern times, of senior advisors to the President testifying are in either cases where there's been allegations of some type of official or personal wrongdoing. That's not the case here, or anything close to that. And so this is a dramatic break from the way Congress usually does its business. And the President is resisting that, and will continue to, for good reason.

Q What's the current offer?

MR. FLEISCHER: Governor Ridge has been talking with Senator Byrd and others, and has sent a letter up to the Hill, where he has made clear that he would be available to meet with any number of congressional leaders, congressional members, House and Senator, whatever numbers they decide, all of them, if that's what they sought, in a public forum. And so the questions could be -- the American people could watch and see it and hear it.

Q A single appearance with all 535 members of the Congress, or is this for a number of appearances -- has a good piece by Byron York summarizing where the Lieberman committee is and has been with respect to its Enron investigation. This may be useful background for those not already familiar with it in evaluating how we proceed if and when we receive a letter. To the best of my knowledge, the article is highly accurate.

MR. FLEISCHER: I'll get you a copy of the letter, Jim. I think it was made available yesterday.

I've received an inquiry from the travel office about the propriety of WH staff receiving frequent flyer miles for trips aboard the press charter (where the seats are paid for by the press). I know some of you have worked on travel-related and frequent flyer issues in the past. If this seems like something one of you would have a quick bead on, let me know and I'll refer it over. If not, I'll handle. Thanks.

There is no more fundamental issue than to making sure we have a judiciary of people that do not interpret the law from the bench; people who do not try to write law from the bench. (Applause.) People who interpret the law and not try to write it.

And I put up a good man from Mississippi the other day. And I don't remember the senior senator from Georgia defending this man's honor. And we're going to have more fights when it comes to the judiciary. And I'm going to put strict constructionists on the bench. And I expect people in the United States Senate from a great state like Georgia to do what Zell Miller did, and stood up and defended the honor and integrity of Judge Pickering. And that's what Saxby Chambliss is going to do. (Applause.)

No more than a page on target judges and key talking points.

Thanks.

i understand the point about the numbers going up if you count walk-ons and transfers -- fair enough. but i hope you didn't send this b/c you agreed with the nonsense about how not graduating is not a bad thing b/c just being at college "enriches" you, and the suggestion that we shouldn't really expect kids at state schools to graduate, unlike at private institutions..

There is no more fundamental issue than to making sure we have a judiciary of people that do not interpret the law from the bench; people who do not try to write law from the bench. (Applause.) People who interpret the law and not try to write it.

And I put up a good man from Mississippi the other day. And I don't remember the senior senator from Georgia defending this man's honor. And we're going to have more fights when it comes to the judiciary. And I'm going to put strict constructionists on the bench. And I expect people in the United States Senate from a great state like Georgia to do what Zell Miller did, and stood up and defended the honor and integrity of Judge Pickering. And that's what Saxby Chambliss is going to do. (Applause.)

There will be a meeting with Rich Hertling and Bill Outhier of Sen. Thompson's Gov't Affairs staff to discuss the Lieberman letter request to Andy Card at 11:15 a.m. in my office (167 OEOB). Agenda is to discuss committee dynamics and to get their views on possible responses. I don't know who the right person is for this in Leg, but whoever it is should feel free to attend.

. . . This is an important election for Texas. And it's an important election for the country. We've got to have a man like John Cornyn representing our state in Washington. And there are a lot of reasons why.

We need people like John Cornyn in the United States Senate, who will work with the White House to have a solid judiciary, to make sure that the judges do what they're supposed to do in the United States and not overstep their bounds. (Applause.) . . .

Subject: Judge Gonzales and Conference Call

Tim,

As you requested, this is an electronic note to remind you that Heritage would be eager to provide a forum for Judge Gonzales to give a speech on the judicial confirmation process. The idea would be to pick a time when C-Span and other significant media coverage is likely. We could also sponsor a lunch afterward to which we might invite some of the sympathetic press to attend. I have already mentioned this idea to Tim Flanigan and Brad Berenson, but we appreciate any other advice or follow up that you think is appropriate.

Please also respond with a time or two on April 5 that you think would be good for a conference call with legal leaders.

Thanks

Subject: President's comments on judges at Chambliss event

There is no more fundamental issue than to making sure we have a judiciary of people that do not interpret the law from the bench; people who do not try to write law from the bench. (Applause.) People who interpret the law and not try to write it.

And I put up a good man from Mississippi the other day. And I don't remember the senior senator from Georgia defending this man's honor. And we're going to have more fights when it comes to the judiciary. And I'm going to put strict constructionists on the bench. And I expect people in the United States Senate from a great state like Georgia to do what Zell Miller did, and stood up and defended the honor and integrity of Judge Pickering. And that's what Saxby Chambliss is going to do. (Applause.)

He indicated that he would be happy to help out on these if you wanted his help. Just let him know.

For some reason, there is a lot of confusion regarding these forms. I am still working on getting a complete WH employee list compiled, but being that it is Easter weekend, almost all of the admin. contacts were out Friday or today, and are pretty slow with getting me employee lists.

In addition, I am still getting calls/e-mails asking if everyone in the offices was supposed to fill them out, and I am having to re-send several forms. Is it possible to send out a new admin alert explaining that EVERYONE in the offices has to fill them out, turn them into me by tomorrow, and to call with any questions, instead of just assuming they don't have to fill them out? Please let me know what you want me to do. I think this would help us get the forms sooner.

Josh and I have a very dumb legal question.

Suppose a physician leaves a sponge in a patient's stomach. The patient sues for and recovers $100K claiming that the sponge caused him to incur certain medical expenses and to miss weeks of work. A few months later, but still w/in the SOL, the patient dies b/c of complications caused by the sponge that were unknown to the patient at the time of his first suit. Can his heirs bring a wrongful death suit for additional damages b/c he is now dead?

I say that res judicata bars the second suit. Can you confirm or refute?

Agreed. I would look to Wright & Miller, as my guess is that would provide the black letter law on res judicata.

George Wolfe at Treasury has inquired about the final memo (in addition to the summary/bullet points we handed out at the meeting), which in turn is waiting on our finalization of leave rules with DOJ guidance. But that one specific issue should not preclude a briefing on the general rules by Counsel; indeed, that is why we had the briefings we did. But let me know what else I need to know.

Subject: Political Activity briefing from Counsel

I need some guidance. As a follow-up to Mehlman's briefing at Treasury last month, we have been trying to schedule a briefing with WH Counsel/Treasury Counsel to give political appointees guidance as to what is and is not appropriate activity. My understanding is that we were waiting on some final changes to the guidance from WH Counsel. That process seems to have stalled endlessly. Any ideas about what's going on? Can you help to prod this out of its cocoon? We're coming up on the busy season and I want to make certain our people know the rules.

Please advise.

George Wolfe at Treasury has inquired about the final memo (in addition to the summary/bullet points we handed out at the meeting), which in turn is waiting on our finalization of leave rules with DOJ guidance. But that one specific issue should not preclude a briefing on the general rules by Counsel; indeed, that is why we had the briefings we did. But let me know what else I need to know.

Subject: Political Activity briefing from Counsel

I need some guidance. As a follow-up to Mehlman's briefing at Treasury last month, we have been trying to schedule a briefing with WH Counsel/Treasury Counsel to give political appointees guidance as to what is and is not appropriate activity. My understanding is that we were waiting on some final changes to the guidance from WH Counsel. That process seems to have stalled endlessly. Any ideas about what's going on? Can you help to prod this out of its cocoon? We're coming up on the busy season and I want to make certain our people know the rules.

Please advise.

Brett:

One of our law clerks, Amber Spencer, is getting ready to leave us. She mentioned that some time ago she checked out some books from the DOJ library for you or someone over there. Apparently, she just received a call that someone here at Justice needs the books. Do you know where they are or who we should contact to get them returned?

Thanks!

Wendy
