PROJECT LASER

Pricing Mechanism Overview

Transaction pricing assumes the following steps:

- I. Assumed CAMPER Holding Company debt balance of $500,000,000 is offset by a portion of the existing Holding Company stock position in CAMPER at an assumed $26.00 per CAMPER share valuation. The economic cancellation of the existing CAMPER Holding Company debt reduces the CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER stock ownership position by 19,230,769 shares ($$500,000,000/$26.00=19,230,769$ shares)
- II. Each remaining CAMPER share owned by CAMPER Holding Company ($44,067,520^1-19,230,769=24,836,751$ shares) as well as all CAMPER shares held by public shareholders (10,708,480¹ shares) are valued at 0.7450 LASER Common Shares, at an approximate implied value of $28.68 per CAMPER share as of February 19, 1998. MAFCO Affiliates to receive 18,503,379 LASER Common Shares ($24,836,751*0.7450=18,503,379$). Public shareholders to receive 7,977,818 LASER Common Shares ($10,708,480^1*0.7450=7,977,818$)
- III. MAFCO Affiliates have the right, 30 days prior to closing, to elect to take $300,000,000 (at a $27.50 per CAMPER share exchange ratio) or 10,909,091 CAMPER Shares ($$300,000,000/$27.50=10,909,091$ shares) equivalent of the net consideration for CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER shares in the form of LASER Convertible Preferred Shares. In this case, the remaining 13,927,660 CAMPER shares ($24,836,751-10,909,091=13,927,660$ shares) held by CAMPER Holding Company will be exchanged for 10,376,107 LASER Common Shares at the .7450 exchange ratio

You agree that the Company is free (i) to conduct any process relating to a possible Transaction as it, in its sole discretion, determines (including, without limitation, by negotiating with any prospective buyer and entering into a preliminary or definitive agreement without prior notice to you or any other person) and (ii) in its sole discretion, to change the procedures relating to its consideration of a Transaction at any time without prior notice to you or to any other person, to reject any and all proposals made by you or any of your Representatives with regard to a Transaction, and to terminate discussions and negotiations with you or your Representatives at any time and for any reason.

Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, the Company hereby agrees that for a period of 30 days from the date hereof, the Company shall negotiate solely and exclusively with you, and during such 30 day period (the "Exclusively Period"), the Company shall not negotiate, discuss or entertain any offers from any party other than you with regard to a Transaction nor shall the Company take any action with a view towards consummating a Transaction with any party other than you.

Promptly upon request from the Company, you will either redeliver to the Company or destroy all (including that maintained in any computer memory, storage media or similar form) Evaluation Material and any other material containing, prepared on the basis of, or reflecting any information in the Evaluation Material (whether prepared by you or your Representatives, the Company or its Representatives or otherwise) and will not retain any copies, extracts or other reproductions in whole or in part of such material. You agree that you and your Representatives will direct all questions and requests for information, as well as all bids and proposals, to Jerry W. Levin or persons expressly designated by him and will not contact any other Representative or employee of the Company.

This Agreement will inure to the benefit of any successor in interest to the Company as well as any person that may acquire after the date hereof the Business or any subsidiary or division of the Company operating the Business with respect to Evaluation Material concerning the business or affairs of such subsidiary or division.

Gentlemen:

You have expressed an interest in exploring a possible transaction (the "Transaction") with Sunbeam Corporation (together with its subsidiaries, collectively, the "Company") and have requested that the Company furnish you with certain information concerning the Company and its businesses (the Business"). The term "you" is, for all purposes of this Agreement, deemed to include all of your affiliates that are involved in the possible Transaction.

As used herein, "Evaluation Material" means all information, whether in oral, written, electronic or other form, which the Company or any agents, representatives (including attorneys, accountants, bankers and financial advisors), directors, officers or employees (collectively, "Representatives") of the Company furnishes to you or your Representatives with respect to the Business, whether before or after the date hereof. The term "Evaluation Material" also includes all analyses, compilations, studies or other documents prepared by you or your Representatives containing or based in whole or in part on any information furnished by the Company or its Representatives or otherwise reflecting your review of, or interest in, the Business. The term "Evaluation Material" does not include information which (i) is or becomes generally available to the public other than as a result of a disclosure by you or your Representatives, (ii) was available to you on a non-confidential basis prior to its disclosure to you by the Company or its Representatives or (iii) becomes available to you on a non-confidential basis from a source other than the Company or its Representatives provided, however, that such source, insofar as is known to you after due inquiry, is not prohibited from transmitting the information to you or your Representatives by a contractual, legal, fiduciary or other obligation.

You agree that the Evaluation Material will not be used by you in any way detrimental to the Company, will be kept confidential by you and your Representatives, and will not, except as hereinafter provided, without the prior written consent of the Company be disclosed by you or your Representatives or used by you other than for the purpose of evaluating the Transaction. Moreover, you agree to transmit Evaluation Material only to those of your Representatives who need to know such information for the purpose of evaluating the Transaction and who will be advised by you of this Agreement and agree to be bound by the provisions hereof. You will be responsible for any breach of this Agreement by your Representatives.

Without the prior written consent of the Company, you will not, and will direct your Representatives who are given access to the Evaluation Material not to, disclose to any person (other than a person authorized hereunder) the fact that the Evaluation Material has been made available to you, that this Agreement exists or the terms hereof, that discussions or negotiations between you and your Representatives and the Company and its Representatives are taking place or any of the terms, conditions or other facts with respect to the possible Transaction, including the status thereof, unless such disclosure is required under applicable provisions of the securities laws of the United States, in which event, you agree to so notify and consult with the Company and its counsel prior to making any such disclosure. It is expressly agreed by the parties that the mere disclosure of the fact that discussions between you and your Representatives and the Company are taking place is likely to be detrimental to the Company. The term "person" as used in this Agreement will be broadly interpreted to include, without limitation, any corporation, company, partnership, individual or other entity.

You acknowledge that the operation of the Business involves the utilization of highly confidential and proprietary information not protected by patent, copyright or other statutory rights of the Company, including unpatented process and manufacturing technology and know-how (collectively, "Know-How") and information regarding customers' orders and brokers, agents and representatives involved in the Business, disclosure or misappropriation of which by you or your Representatives would irreparably damage the Company. Accordingly, without limitation to any other provision of this Agreement, to protect the Company's interests in such information and all other Evaluation Material, you agree that except as expressly approved by the Company in advance, unless and until the consummation by you of a Transaction, you will not without the prior written consent of the Company (i) communicate regarding the Business or its operations, prospects or finances with any employee of the Company or with any person identified by you in the course of your evaluation as being a customer, supplier, customer's or supplier's representative, or other person involved in the conduct of the Business, or (ii) directly or indirectly solicit for employment any employee, nor solicit, employ, retain or enter into business relations with any senior management or key employee of the Company who became known to you through the Evaluation Material or with whom you have had contact in the process contemplated by this Agreement. Solicitation through advertisements in periodicals of general circulation not specifically directed at employees of the Company shall be deemed not to be solicitation hereunder.

In the event that you, your Representatives or any person to whom you or your Representatives supply the Evaluation Material or disclose the existence of this Agreement or that discussions or negotiations are taking place concerning a possible Transaction, are requested or required (by oral questions, interrogatories, requests for information or documents, subpoena, civil investigative demand, any informal or formal investigation by any government or governmental agency or authority or otherwise) to disclose any Evaluation Material or any information relating to a possible Transaction or such person's opinion, judgment, view or recommendation concerning the Business as developed from the Evaluation Material, you agree (i) to notify the Company immediately of the existence, terms and circumstances surrounding such request, (ii) to consult with the Company on the advisability of taking legally available steps to resist or narrow such request and (iii) if disclosure of such information is required, to furnish only that portion of the Evaluation Material which, in the opinion of your counsel, you are legally compelled to disclose and to cooperate with any action by the Company to obtain an appropriate protective order or other reliable assurance that confidential treatment will be accorded the Evaluation Material. You agree to use your best efforts to limit the disclosure of any Evaluation Material.

You agree that the Company is free (i) to conduct any process relating to a possible Transaction as it, in its sole discretion, determines (including, without limitation, by negotiating with any prospective buyer and entering into a preliminary or definitive agreement without prior notice to you or any other person) and (ii) in its sole discretion, to change the procedures relating to its

Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, the Company hereby agrees that for a period of 30 days from the date hereof, the Company shall negotiate solely and exclusively with you regarding an acquisition transaction, and during such 30 day period (the "Exclusively Period"), the Company shall not negotiate, discuss or entertain any offers from any party other than you with regard to an acquisition transaction nor shall the Company take any action with a view towards consummating any acquisition transaction with any party other than you.

Promptly upon request from the Company, you will either redeliver to the Company or destroy all (including that maintained in any computer memory, storage media or similar form) Evaluation Material and any other material containing, prepared on the basis of, or reflecting any information in the Evaluation Material (whether prepared by you or your Representatives, the Company or its Representatives or otherwise) and will not retain any copies, extracts or other reproductions in whole or in part of such material. Any such destruction will be confirmed in writing to the Company by you or an authorized Representative supervising the same.

You understand that, except as may otherwise be agreed in writing, neither the Company nor its Representatives make any representation or warranty as to the accuracy or completeness of the Evaluation Material. You agree that neither the Company nor its Representatives will have any liability to you or any of your Representatives resulting from the use of the Evaluation Material by you or your Representatives. You agree that, except as provided in this Agreement or any definitive written agreement, unless and until a definitive written agreement between the Company and you with respect to a Transaction has been executed and delivered, neither the Company nor you will be under any legal obligation of any kind whatsoever with respect to the Evaluation Material or a possible Transaction.

This Agreement will inure to the benefit of any successor in interest to the Company as well as any person that may acquire after the date hereof the Business or any subsidiary or division of the Company operating the Business with respect to Evaluation Material concerning the business or affairs of such subsidiary or division.

It is understood and agreed that no failure or delay in exercising any right, power or privilege hereunder will operate as a waiver thereof, nor will any single or partial exercise thereof preclude any other further exercise thereof or the exercise of any right, power or privilege hereunder.

You acknowledge and agree that in the event of any breach of this Agreement, the Company would be irreparably and immediately harmed and may not be made whole by monetary damages. Sunbeam (SOC-45) - BUY

4 1/2 Point Drop Unwarranted; Buy Reaffirmed; One Year Target
Remains $60
1998 EPS Lowered to $1.80 to Include Shares Issued in Transaction
No Change to 1999 Estimate of $3.00

Price Drop Unwarranted: We think that yesterday's price drop of over 4 points was an over reaction and we reiterate our buy rating on the shares. Our one year target remains $60 as Sunbeam integrates the acquisitions it has announced and 1999 earnings approach $3.00. At 15x 1999 estimates, the shares are valued at a 30% discount to the market.

1998 EPS Lowered to $1.80 from $2.05: We are lowering our 1998 Sunbeam estimates to $1.80 from $2.05 on the assumption that the three transactions announced at the beginning of the month
(the acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, with total sales of about $1.6 billion) close in the near future.
As we wrote in our note of March 2, the acquisitions could dilute
EPS by $0.05-$0.07 in 1998. In addition, Sunbeam will issue 19.4 million shares to Coleman shareholders bringing the 1999 share base to 108 million shares (which includes the options tied to Mr. Dunlap's new employment agreement at the current stock price); assuming a mid-year close, the 1998 share base would increase to about 98 million. The combination of the new shares and modest dilution create the estimate reduction; on our new forecast EPS should increase about 30% over the $1.41 recorded in 1997. (Reported EPS will also include the restructuring which is expected to be announced after the transactions close.)

Press Release Spooks the Stock: In conjunction with the pricing of a convertible offering, Sunbeam yesterday issued a press release that said that first quarter sales may be lower than analysts estimates of $285-$295 million. The notice sent the stock price into a tailspin with the suggestion that the tone of business might be weakening. We do not think this is the case. Rather, Sunbeam's order book at this point does not fully cover the growth expectations (12%-15%) that are implied by the estimated sales range. This is not unusual, even at this late stage in the quarter. March is the most important month of the quarter in terms of sales, and orders routinely come in with an expected turnaround time of as little as 72 hours. Sunbeam will continue to get orders and ship through the rest of the quarter and sales should be near the expected range. Nonetheless, we think the timing of the pricing of the convertible deal so close to the end of the quarter, coupled with orders now on the books prompted the company's press release.

Current Tone of Business is Healthy: The press release prompted us to review the current tone of business, and it seems to be in good shape. So far, sales appear to be pretty close to budget. Last year, production did not meet demand in clippers, blenders, blankets and grills. The capacity issues have been solved, and Sunbeam believes that it is able to meet demand with improving levels of service. Grills are an important component of first quarter sales, and we think they were close to budget until the beginning of March when the weather turned abruptly cooler in many parts of the country. Sunbeam expects healthy grill sales during the last two weeks of March, but it is possible that some sales would slip into April. The cold snap has had a silver lining: electric blankets sold well at retail and there have been no significant returns. The new air and water filters started to ship in volume in March, a bit later than management had expected, and they should pick up steam in the June quarter. To accommodate all the moving pieces, we have lowered our Q1 total sales growth forecast to 12% ($284 million) from 15% ($295 million); our EPS estimate is $0.31, a 29% increase.

Investment Highlights:

- o We continue to recommend Sunbeam. SOC showed strong growth in Q4, hitting our estimate: sales were up 31% ex-divestitures; operating margins hit 20%.
- o But, the stock tumbled 9% yesterday because mgmt. broke a cardinal rule: Q4 EPS of $0.47 missed consensus expectations by $0.03.
- o Given that the Street's range of estimates for 1998 is still rather wide, we could envision further price volatility until estimates tighten.
- o Fundamentally, business is solid. For our 1998 est. of $1.80, we assume 17% sales growth and a 19% op. margin, strong growth in our mind, but lower than consensus. Mgmt. is "not uncomfortable" with $2.00.
- o At 20.9x our 1998 est., the stock is trading in line with its peers. i.e. there is almost no Dunlap premium.
- o We continue to think Mr. Dunlap will buy or merge with another company and create add'l shareholder value by restructuring the new entity. Although the cost to buy other companies has risen (see recent restructurings at RBD, BDK, TUP), we still think an accretive deal is doable this year. Mr. Dunlap indicated an eagerness to close one in H198.

Oops!

Al Dunlap has made a lot of money outwitting Wall St. In this case, however, expectations got ahead of reality, and the stock took a hard 9% tumble yesterday. This is because consensus expectations for the fourth quarter were $0.03 higher than what was reported.

Lost in the turmoil is that business is pretty good. Fourth quarter sales jumped 31%, excluding divestitures, from last year's numbers. Sales growth has, in fact, accelerated all year. Fourth quarter results were broad-based with all businesses, except for blankets, showing healthy gains. Operating margins hit an unprecedented 20%. EPS were $0.47 vs. $(0.03). The results hit our estimate. We were satisfied.

But we also recognize that our numbers were lower than consensus, and understand the market's reaction. Given that the range of expectations for

020832

CONFIDENTIAL

CP 02324

1998 is still rather wide, we could envision further stock price pressure until estimates tighten.

For 1998, we assume 17% sales growth and a 19% operating margin. This solid performance would result in a 28% EPS gain to $1.80. Not shabby. However, management indicated yesterday that it is "not uncomfortable" with the consensus of $2.00. To get there, you have to assume sales grow about 20% and a 20% operating margin. As Sunbeam has beaten our sales targets all last year, we would not rule out $2.00.

Indeed, Sunbeam should benefit from a full year of benefits put in place in 1997, including the improved Neosho grill plant, distribution gains, and improved customer service levels. If the new air and water filtration products are half the successes management says they will be (mgmt. says they could be $150 million in sales in 1998), a 20% sales gain doesn't seem out of the question.

We have chosen to be conservative because 1) much of the sales growth in the fourth quarter appears to be driven by grills. We assume that this represents distribution gains as Sunbeam has extended the selling season. This could make for tougher comparisons next year. 2) Management expects to grow international to a $400 million business in 1998. Although doable, given the economic turmoil in Asia, we have chosen to be more conservative.

We have stuck with the stock because we are banking on Mr. Dunlap's reputation. He has a solid history of always being able to squeeze every ounce of shareholder value out of a company. We expect him to do the same with Sunbeam.

Interestingly, trading at 20.9x our 1998 estimate, the stock is trading virtually in line with its peers. That is to say the stock has virtually no Dunlap premium.

It is hard for us to believe Mr. Dunlap will sit still. We continue to believe an outright sale will be tough to accomplish. Perhaps, he could sell some of the pieces i.e. the grill business. More likely, we envision an acquisition of a company (or two) that could benefit from an Al Dunlap haircut. Indeed, the industry appears ripe for consolidation, given the large number of players and low profitability. Certainly, many of the likely candidates have been scrambling to determine their own destiny (see recent restructurings at Black & Decker, Rubbermaid, Tupperware), which has probably raised the price of acquisition. By our calculations, however, it is still possible to do an accretive acquisition this year. Management indicated an eagerness to close a deal in the first half of 1998. Stay tuned.

* Continue to recommend purchase of SOC. 1998E reduced to $2.00 fm $2.05. 1999E of $3.00 unchanged. Spoke with company. By our model, potential Q1 revenue shortfall could place Q1 EPS in $0.25 to $0.30 range. New est is $0.28ps v. $0.24, down from previous $0.32 est. We continue to believe the long-term consolidation strategy should create significant value not reflected in SOC shares today. Price target on $3.00 estimate in 1999 is unchanged at $60-$65. We believe short-term issues are far outweighed by the longer-term benefits.

* Q1:98 revenue estimates were in a range of $285-$295 million, about a 15% increase from Q1:97. Our new revenue target is 10% growth to $275-$280 million. The company stated that Q1 revenue 'MAY fall below Wall Street estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but should exceed year ago sales of $253.4 million.' Reasons for the shortfall 'IF ANY, would be retail order patterns and inventory management', not point of sale related. March is the most significant contributor to first quarter sales and profits. As such, these last two weeks of the month will be crucial to determining Q1 results.

* Our rating on Sunbeam has been and remains a U.S. Recommended List rating. Within that rating we have, in the last year and a half, taken long and short-term postures at different points in time. Current events place our rating emphasis on the twelve-month view. We expect near-term volatility around these fundamental issues until Sunbeam reports earnings in late April.

4Q Comes Up Short; Reducing Ests.; But Maintain Strong Buy

Investment Conclusion

Sunbeam reported 4Q97 EPS of $0.47 vs. a loss of $0.03 a year ago. This was $0.05 short of our estimate and $0.03 lower than the Street average. Sales increased 26%. We had estimated a 34% increase. This variance was due to (1) poor electric blanket sales, which were adversely impacted by favorable winter weather and a mid-quarter distribution glitch (now fixed) and (2) cannibalization of non-new product sales by new products. The former restrained gross margin expansion. While the company offset some of this shortfall at the SG&A line, in part, by reducing blanket advertising when the weakness emerged, it was not enough to make up the total $0.05 EPS shortfall, all of which was at the operating income line. Clearly, management's optimism that it could pull out the quarter late in December was excessive.

We are, however, maintaining our Strong Buy rating. The "bottom line" to this quarter is best put this way. We can live with blanket shortfall: management appears to have its arms around the issue. The only real issue we had with the quarter was that older products sales declined. This tells us that, at some retailers, shelf space for these products was reduced in favor of Sunbeam's new products. One of our thesis points on this stock has been that Sunbeam would gain share via new products (it is) and that even products that are not new would incrementally gain share as competitor products were eliminated in favor of the Sunbeam new products and as customer service improved. The latter did not occur this quarter.

But as Sunbeam displays more of a new product and service track record with retailers, we believe these gains will be realized in 1998. We are reducing our revenue EPS estimates by $0.12 to $2.10 in 1998 and by $0.10 to $2.65 in 1999, and our target price by $7 to $53. But while the story may not be moving at the velocity we thought it was, Sunbeam's fundamentals are still very positive: it was, overall, a good quarter and the balance sheet improved. Sunbeam has good earnings momentum heading into 1998. In light of this, the chairman's indication that a corporate transaction could occur in 1998 and the 20%+ pullback in this stock from its high, we believe our highest rating is still appropriate.

Quarter Fell Short of Our Estimate;
Reducing Estimates

Sales increased 26%, below our 34% forecast. The variance was due to poor electric blanket sales, which were a consequence of favorable winter weather and a mid-quarter distribution glitch. This glitch has been remedied. It was also due to some cannibalization of sales by new products of products which are not new. Gross margin increased 1000 bps to 29.4%. Yet, this too was below our forecast of 31.4% due to the negative mix associated with the weak blanket sales, which carry a high gross margin. The SG&A rate of 9.7% was over 1000bps lower than the year ago quarter and below our 11.2% forecast. The company reduced blanket advertising when the sales weakness emerged and also used more cable TV advertising (less expensive) than network TV advertising in the quarter. But this was not enough to offset the sales and gross income shortfall at the operating income line; this was $0.05 below our forecast. Interest was a little higher than we expected and the tax rate lower.

Based on the foregoing, we are lowering our EPS estimates by $0.12 to $2.10 in 1998 and by $0.10 to $2.65 in 1999.

Key Points of the Quarter

We believe the quarter and conference call provided the following positives: Domestic sales increase 28%. This represents the fourth consecutive quarter the sales growth accelerated vs. the previous quarter. Sales to international markets increased 42%, a portion of which was to Japan and China. In our opinion, the Asian crisis has not had an impact on Sunbeam's plans. The balance sheet improved in the quarter. Inventories and receivable both declined from 3Q97 despite a sequential sales. Inventory and receivables increased faster than sales did for the full year, but the company (1) came into 1997 with inventory that was too low to support its customers and (2) there was a large sales concentration of sales in December. As we have noted previously, Sunbeam's balance sheet is a plus not a minus to this story. The company will shift more of its production overseas in 1998. Its target to manufacture 50% internal/50% external.

Sunbeam recently signed an agreement with La Quinta Inns to provide their irons and hair dryers. It is about to sign an agreement with NuSkin to help them distribute its FreshSource water product in Asia. Project Fulltime, an internal program designed to increase its on-time, full-order delivery quotient, is fully on track. We believe this will be a market share driver in 1998. Even without this in 1997, the company increased its market share in all of its key product lines. Capacity utilization was 76% this year and should rise into the 80% in 1998.

On the negative side:

Sales to its top 10 customers were up 15%. This was a lower pace of growth than the last two quarters (+30%, +20%) and was indicative of the non-new product points we made in our investment conclusion.

The company indicated that it may not run at a 20% operating margin level for full year 1998. Rather, it may pour new dollars into advertising its new products.

The company gave no indication as to when it will be net debt free, a previously stated goal for year end 1997. However, the reason behind this change in direction was a good one: it elected to build working capital levels to support its customers. This is not new news.

We have discounted all of the above into our lower estimates.

A Transaction is Close

Dunlap indicated that the acquisition/merger list is now short and expects to announce a transaction(s) in 1Q98. To this end, he did indicate that it could be one or more transactions. While we do not rule out a sale of Sunbeam, we are inclined to believe an acquisition/merger is the likely course. In our opinion, whatever the company does, it will only look to drive new value into the stock.

Valuation:

Very Attractive

Based on our revised estimates, we still believe the stock will reach $53 over the next year. This is based on applying a market multiple to our 1999 estimate and adding an estimated $4-$5 in 1999 EOY estimate cash.

Sunbeam

Did Al show his hand too soon?

Buy

- Sunbeam closed out its dramatic 1997 turnaround with EPS of $0.47 in the fourth quarter, finishing with $1.41 in 1997 versus a $0.10 loss in 1996.
- The market rewarded Sunbeam for this turnaround by driving SOC shares up over 65% in 1997.
- With shares down over 12% in 1998, the market is skeptical about whether an encore performance is possible.
- We see solid fundamental momentum through the first half of 1998, but the stock may lag until confidence in 40% EPS growth in 1998 is strengthened. We believe Sunbeam has strategies in place to restore this confidence in the near term. We reiterate our buy (1) rating.

Investment opinion

We continue to closely monitor Sunbeam's aggressive balance sheet management as well as the attainability of the company's international goals. While Sunbeam dismisses its high inventory and receivables levels as necessary "evils" to support its aggressive growth goals, we note that its strategy leaves little margin for error in an industry that oftentimes faces errors outside of its control (weather, economic cycles). On the international front, we have always modeled for slower growth than Sunbeam has internally modeled for, but we no longer believe there is much, if any, upside to our more conservative stance. We are also bothered by the departure of Dixon Thayer, VP of Sunbeam's International business, only one year into the international ramp-up. Thayer's as well as some other departures at the VP level have been attributed to the company's ongoing refinement. We find the timing to be a little suspect. While some "warning signs" persist and some others have cropped up, we believe this has already been reflected in Sunbeam's stock price, down nearly 25% since it reported its third quarter 1997 earnings in late October. At present, Sunbeam needs some new, positive news to stop its steady decline. This could come in the form of an acquisition announcement, as Chairman Al Dunlap has made it clear he intends to close an acquisition in the first half of 1998. At 19.0x our 1998 estimate of $1.95, we believe there is limited downside in Sunbeam shares at this point and the consummation of an accretive transaction could give the shares a much-needed boost.

Fourth quarter EPS hits low end of range

Sunbeam reported fourth quarter EPS results of $0.47, in line with the low end of Street estimates ($0.47-0.55) and $0.01 short of our estimate. The company estimates that a $15 million shortfall in electric blankets cost $0.04 in the quarter and the Neosho grill facility re-alignment another $0.01. We believe that $0.47 represents a strong close to a very strong year, but caution investors that going forward, the low end of the range may be a more relevant number to focus on when assessing Sunbeam's value. As the last couple of quarters have indicated, Sunbeam's goals are very aggressive, even at the low end of the range. Given the slight downside surprise in the latest quarter, we have trimmed our 1998 EPS estimate to $1.95-2.00 from $2.00-2.05, reflecting management's guidance that 40% EPS growth in 1998 is within reason. While we believe estimates beyond 1998 are less relevant as Sunbeam management stated it seeks to "close" a major acquisition in the first half of 1998, for now, we have shaved a dime off our 1999 range, to $2.50-2.60. At 19.0x the low end of our 1998 range, we continue to believe Sunbeam is a good buy in the high-$30s, provided it carries out its Phase III plans. Sticking with our revised "low-end" outlook, our 12- to 18-month price target is $50, representing 20x the low end of our 1999 estimate.

Sales strong, led by grills

Sales in the quarter were up 25.7% on a reported basis, to $338.1 million. This was about $6 million short of our estimate, due to the previously mentioned blanket softness. As expected, the grill sales led the way in the quarter, but this growth was substantially ahead of our expectations. We are not bothered by the "grill blip" in the fourth quarter as long as the company hasn't stolen some first quarter 1998 upside to stretch to meet fourth quarter 1997 expectations. We will not really know this until we are further into the first quarter, but must note that we believe the receivable and inventory position is still a bit "heavy." The stakes are high as Sunbeam enters the peak grill season, as the company has already begun to seed the channel in the fourth quarter, grill inventory is high (according to strategy), and its product line-up is brand new. If it works, Sunbeam will likely gain substantial market share and have a blow-out first half in grills against an easy first half 1997 comparison. We are modeling for first half 1998 grill sales of around $270 million, up 15-20% from the roughly $230 million in last year's first half. We also expect grill margins to be around 5-6 points higher in 1998 than in 1997, but still below the company average. We believe that Sunbeam management understands the importance of the grill turnaround and have no reason to doubt their execution capabilities. Regarding this matter, all the shorts can do is pray for rain.

20% operating margin—almost there

Sequential margin improvement continued, as the company registered a 19.7% operating margin in the quarter. Gross margin declined sequentially in the quarter, to 29.4% from 30.7% due to the higher grill mix (19% of sales in the fourth quarter versus 11% in the third), but the difference was more than made up for in operating margin as SG&A expenditures came in at only 9.7% of sales. We expect SG&A expenses to pick up again to around 13-14% of sales in the first half of 1998 as spending behind the enhanced grill line-up and the air & water products begins.

What about Phase III?

As we have stated previously, we believe Sunbeam will have a difficult time achieving second half 1998 growth targets without an accretive acquisition. We remain comfortable with our $1.95-2.00 EPS estimate in 1998 without an acquisition, but we would certainly breathe a little easier if Sunbeam could actually consummate an accretive transaction. Sunbeam Chairman Al Dunlap expressed his desire to have a transaction closed in the first half. We continue to believe that time is the company's enemy and the sooner it can strike a deal, the better. We are also increasingly of the belief that Sunbeam doesn't need a multi-billion dollar acquisition to drive its stock price higher. Given its cost-cutting prowess, superior margin structure and relatively small sales base ($1.2 billion), we believe a smaller acquisition might be enough to provide upside on the $2.00 estimate in 1998 and return the stock to its old highs in the low $50s. Furthermore, it may be easier to consummate a smaller transaction with cash/debt and save the stock for the "big one," when Sunbeam's multiple improves. Whether we see the "quantum leap" or not in the first half, we think one thing is clear: Al Dunlap is not likely to sit idle and watch his stock under-perform the market as well as the stocks of his perennial laggard competitors. We believe the consummation of some type of M&A deal in the first half is highly likely. The market is simply waiting to see at what cost this transaction will come. While Sunbeam certainly is well positioned to become the leading consolidator in an industry desperately in need of consolidation, we just do not believe Al Dunlap took this job a year and a half ago to pioneer this consolidation.

We repeat our Sunbeam investment thesis (with some modest revisions)

- Solid momentum through the first half fueled by a new grill line-up and enhanced grill facility as well as its "Air & Water" offerings from the "secret room."
- Comparisons to get tougher in the second half, but likely to be clouded by Phase III (or perhaps smaller acquisition).
- Real potential for another round of meteoric stock price appreciation comes if Sunbeam can make a strategic acquisition, using Sunbeam stock as currency, at a modest premium that doesn't already factor in all of the cost-cutting potential. (A smaller cash/debt deal could also drive some less meteoric appreciation.)
- Patient Sunbeam investors may get two (or more) "Chainsaw" turnarounds for the price of one.

Valuation

As Table 3 illustrates, at its current depressed levels, Sunbeam's P/E valuation relative to some other leading consumer non-durable players is beginning to look quite reasonable.

Table 3
Consumer non-durable companies' valuations

			Mean	20.5x	17.1x
Sunbeam	$37	$1.95	$2.50	19.0x	14.8x

*First Call mean estimate, except for Sunbeam which is based on low-end of PaineWebber range.

We believe that over the next 12-18 months, as Sunbeam management takes the appropriate steps to restore confidence in the attainability of aggressive 1998/1999 estimates, the stock can approach 20x our 1999 EPS estimate, or $50, representing 33% upside from current levels. Until such steps are taken, we believe the stock may languish in its current $37-40 trading range.

We should note that investor skepticism is nothing new for Sunbeam. Exactly one year ago, Sunbeam's stock closed at $27 1/8, 19.2x what many viewed as a very aggressive $1.40 estimate for 1997. A year later, the earnings have been delivered and Sunbeam stock is up nearly 40%. If Sunbeam management executes according to plan (40% EPS growth in 1998), January's skepticism may translate into an encore performance for investors in 1998.

Risks

Sunbeam has been and continues to be a very risky story. The company's EPS growth target of 40% in 1998 is very aggressive and comes in the face of a difficult economic climate in Asia and very solid growth in second half 1997. We also believe the company is employing a risky strategy to capture a larger share of the grill market. Execution is key to the company providing an encore to its stellar 1997 performance.

Phase III Update - Did Al Show his hand too soon?

Sunbeam Chairman Al Dunlap stated publicly on April 4, 1997 that Sunbeam was looking to hire an advisor to explore takeovers or a sale of the company. Dunlap claimed that Sunbeam could "easily spend $5 billion on a buyout" and that he would "prefer making a hostile takeover of a poorly managed company to a friendly buyout." Nearly 10 months later, Sunbeam has made no such acquisition, but some potential targets have made some pre-emptive moves.

KEY POINTS

1. Q4 EPS HITS LOW-END OF RANGE: Sunbeam (SOC) reported Q4 EPS results of $0.47, in-line with the low-end of Street estimates ($0.47-$0.55) and $0.01 short of our estimate. The company estimates that a $15 million shortfall in electric blankets cost them $0.04 in the quarter and the Neosho grill facility re-alignment another $0.01. We believe that $0.47 represents a strong close to a very strong year, but caution investors that going forward, the low-end of the range may be a more relevant number to focus on when assessing Sunbeam's value. As the last couple of quarters have indicated, Sunbeam's goals are very aggressive, even at the low end of the range. Given the slight downside surprise in the latest quarter, we are trimming our 1998 estimate to $1.95-$2.00 from $2.00-$2.05, reflecting management's guidance that 40% EPS growth in 1998 is within reason. While we believe estimates beyond 1998 are less relevant as Sunbeam management stated they seek to "close" a major acquisition in the first half of 1998, for now, we are shaving a dime off our 1999 range to $2.50-$2.60. At 19.3 times the low-end of our 1998 range, we continue to believe Sunbeam is a good buy in the high-$30s, provided it carries out its Phase III plans. Sticking with our revised "low-end" outlook, our 12-18 month price target is $50, representing 20x the low-end of our 1999 estimate.

2. SALES STRONG LED BY GRILLS: Sales in the quarter were up 25.7% on a reported basis to $338.1 million. This was about $6 million short of our estimate, due to the above mentioned blanket softness. As expected the grill sales led the way in the quarter, but this growth was substantially ahead of our expectations. We are not bothered by the "grill blip" in the fourth quarter as long as the company hasn't stolen some Q198 upside to stretch to meet Q497 expectations. We will not really know this until we are further into Q1, but must note that we believe the receivable and inventory position is still a bit "heavy." The stakes are high as Sunbeam enters the peak grill season, as the company has already begun to seed the channel in Q4, grill inventory is high (according to strategy) and it's product line-up is brand new. If it works, Sunbeam will likely gain substantial market share and have a blow-out 1H98 in grills against an easy 1H97 comparison. We are modeling for 1H98 grill sales of around $270 million, up 15-20% from the roughly $230 million in 1H97. We also expect grill margins to be around 5-6 points higher in 1998 than in 1997, but still below the company average. We believe that Sunbeam management understands the importance of the grill turnaround and have no reason to doubt their execution capabilities. Regarding this matter, all the shorts can do is pray for rain.

3. 20% OPERATING MARGIN - ALMOST THERE: Sequential margin improvement continued, as the company registered a 19.7% operating margin in the quarter. Gross margin declined sequentially in the quarter, 29.4% from 30.7% due to the higher grill mix (19% of sales in Q4 versus 11% in Q3), but the difference was more than made up for in operating margin as SG&A expenditures came in at only 9.7% of sales. We expect SG&A expenses to pick up again to around 13-14% of sales in the first half of 1998 as ending behind the enhanced grill line-up and the air & water products begins.

4. WHAT ABOUT PHASE III: As we have stated previously, we believe Sunbeam will have a difficult time achieving 2H98 growth targets without an accretive acquisition. We remain comfortable with our $1.95-2.00 estimate in 1998 without an acquisition, but we would certainly breathe a little easier if Sunbeam could actually consummate an accretive transaction. Sunbeam Chairman, Al Dunlap, expressed his desire to have a transaction CLOSED in 1H98. We continue to believe that time is the company's enemy and the sooner it can strike a deal, the better. We are also increasingly of the belief that Sunbeam doesn't need a multi-billion dollar acquisition to drive its stock price higher. Given its cost-cutting prowess, superior margin structure and relatively small sales base ($1.2 billion), we believe a smaller acquisition might be enough to provide upside on the $2.00 estimate in 1998 and return the stock to its old highs in the low $50s. Furthermore, it may be easier to consummate a smaller transaction with cash/debt and save the stock for the "big one," when Sunbeam's multiple improves. Whether we see the "quantum leap" or not in 1H98, we think one thing is certain, Al Dunlap is not going to sit idle and watch his stock underperform the market as well as the stocks of his perennial laggard competitors. We believe the consummation of some type of M&A deal in 1H98 is highly likely. The market is simply waiting to see at what cost this transaction will come. While Sunbeam certainly is well positioned to become the leading consolidator in an industry desperately in need of consolidation, we must do not believe Al Dunlap took this job a year and a half ago to pioneer this consolidation.

5. WE REPEAT OUR SUNBEAM INVESTMENT THESIS: (with some modest revisions)

020856

CONFIDENTIAL

CPH 1393145

16div-026595

-- Solid momentum through 1H98 fueled by a new grill line-up and enhanced grill facility as well as its "Air & Water" offerings from the "secret room."

-- Comparisons to get tougher in 2H98, but likely to be clouded by Phase III (or perhaps smaller acquisition).

-- Real potential for another round of meteoric stock price appreciation comes if Sunbeam can make a strategic acquisition, using Sunbeam stock as currency, at a modest premium that doesn't already factor in all of the cost-cutting potential. (a smaller cash/debt deal could also drive some less meteoric appreciation).

-- Patient Sunbeam investors may get two (or more) "Chainsaw" turnarounds for the price of one.

6. VALUATION: As the table below illustrates, at its current depressed levels, Sunbeam's P/E valuation relative to some other leading consumer non-durable players is beginning to look quite reasonable.

COMPANY	1/28 CLOSE	1998E*	1999E*	1998 P/E	1999 P/E
Black & Decker	$48 9/16	$2.65	$3.27	18.3x	14.9x
Fortune Brands	$38 11/16	$1.70	$1.98	22.8x	19.5x

Rubbermaid	$25 3/4	$1.18	$1.49	21.8x	17.3x
			Mean	20.6x	17.3x
Sunbeam	$37 5/8	$1.95	$2.50	19.3x	15.1x

* First Call mean estimate, except for Sunbeam which is based on low-end of PaineWebber range.

We believe that over the next 12-18 months, as Sunbeam management takes the appropriate steps to restore confidence in the attainability of aggressive 1998/1999 estimates the stock can approach 20 times our 1999 estimate, or $50, representing 33% upside from current levels. Until such steps are taken, we believe the stock may languish in its current $37-40 trading range.

We should note that investor skepticism is nothing new for Sunbeam. Exactly one year ago, Sunbeam's stock closed at $27 1/8, 19.2x what many viewed as a very aggressive $1.40 estimate for 1997. A year later, the earnings have been delivered and Sunbeam stock is up nearly 40%. If Sunbeam management executes according to plan (40% EPS growth in 1998), January's skepticism may translate into an encore performance for investors in 1998.

RISKS

Sunbeam has been and continues to be a very risky story. The company's EPS growth target of 40% in 1998 is very aggressive and comes in the face of a difficult economic climate in Asia and very solid growth in 2H97. We also believe the company is employing a risky strategy to capture a larger share of the grill market. Execution is key to the company providing an encore to its stellar 1997 performance.

3 A. I've never given -- no, I've never
4 given a deposition before.
5 Q. Okay. Mr. Clare has probably
6 explained the process to you a little bit,
7 but let me just point out a few ground rules
8 that might guide us through the day.
9 First, if you don't understand one
10 of my questions, let me know; I'll try and 11 rephrase it. If you need to take a break at 12 any time, just let me know, and we'll try to 13 accommodate that. And you need to give your 14 answers audibly so that the court reporter,
15 the stenographer in particular, can write
16 down your answers. Nodding our head or 17 shrugging your shoulders don't show up on the 18 transcript.
19 A. Okay.
20 Q. What did you do to prepare for your 21 deposition today?
22 A. I met with Mr. Clare for an hour or 23 two Wednesday afternoon.
24 Q. Anything else?
25 A. Nope.

2 Q. Did you look at any documents?
3 A. I looked at a couple of documents
4 to refresh my memory from the time frame, the 5 time period.
6 Q. And which documents did you look at 7 to refresh your memory?
8 A. I looked at a capital markets

10 to me by someone who worked with me at the 11 time, to refresh just the time frame.
12 Q. Is that Jim Dormer?
13 A. That is correct, that is correct.
14 And I looked at probably couple of 15 other capital markets in the process of 16 trying to be a part of the selling of the 17 convertible bond.
18 Q. Anything else you can remember?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Do you know who has given testimony

22 A. I do not know who has given

24 Q. Have you spoken with anyone other
25 than Mr. Clare or a family member about this

2 deposition?
3 A. My wife.
4 Q. Okay. A family member wouldn't
5 count there.
6 A. Tom and my wife.
7 Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley
8 contact you about this deposition?
9 A. Oh, and also our internal legal
10 department at CSFB is also of aware of today
11 also.
12 Q. Anyone else, anyone at Morgan
13 Stanley --
14 A. No.
15 Q. -- in particular?
16 A. No.
17 Q. So how did you first learn that a
18 deposition was requested of you in this case?
19 A. Tom called me in my office I'm 20 thinking late winter, early spring.
21 Q. Okay. Were you aware of the 22 lawsuit between McAndrews & Forbes and
23 Coleman (Parent) Holdings and Morgan Stanley
24 when you received the call?
25 A. No.

Page 9

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Okay. Could you sketch out for us
3 for us your educational background from 4 graduating high school through the present?
5 A. Sure. I graduated Staples High
6 School in Westport, Connecticut, public high
7 school. Got a bachelor of science in finance
8 Lehigh University in Pennsylvania. Graduated
9 1987. Received an MBA from Emory Business
10 School in Atlanta in 1992.
11 Q. Can you tell me then what your 12 Lehigh major was?
13 A. Bachelor of science in finance.
14 Went to the College of Business and 15 Economics.
16 Q. And did you have any specialty or 17 specialization with respect to your MBA at 18 Emory?
19 A. I would probably say no, no
20 specific specialization, but concentration
21 probably in international marketing, finance,
22 security analysis.
23 Q. Okay. Do you hold any profession
24 licenses or designations?
25 A. Other than the Series 7 and 63

2 required of being a security analyst, and --
3 and the needed regulatory requirements, and 4 testing by the NASD, no.
5 Q. And if you could also take us
6 through briefly your employment experience
7 from your Lehigh degree to the present.
8 A. Sure. Graduated Lehigh. I went to 9 work for Drexel Burnham here in New York City
10 as a -- in their controller's division. I
11 spent about three to four years there, and as 12 the firm went bankrupt I had already applied
13 to business school, so moved down to Atlanta.
14 While I lived in Atlanta, worked for Coca
15 Cola as an intern on special projects, kind
16 of during business school. Upon graduation
17 from business school in '92 I was offered a
18 position with Salomon Brothers as a research
19 analyst covering the beverage industry. I
20 left Salomon Brothers in January of 1996 for 21 Morgan Stanley, covering beverages, and I
22 left Morgan Stanley in July-August of '01 for 23 Credit Suisse First Boston to cover beverages
24 as well.
25 Q. Okay, and you're at Credit Suisse

Page 11

1 Confidential - Conway
2 today?
3 A. I'm at Credit Suisse today,
4 correct.
5 And I cover beverages and tobacco.
6 Q. Any plans to leave CSFB any time
7 soon?
8 A. None that I know of. I love the 9 firm, so --
10 Q. Okay. When you joined Morgan
11 Stanley in '96 I think you said --
12 A. Yeah.
13 Q. -- what title did you have?
14 A. I had the title of Principal.
15 Q. And did you hold any other titles
16 at Morgan Stanley?
17 A. I did. I was elected a managing
18 director in December of 1998.
19 Q. And you were Managing Director when 20 you left.
21 A. That is correct.
22 Q. Okay.
23 A. And I'm a managing director at 24 CSFB.
25 Q. You came in to CSFB as Managing

Page 12

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Director.
3 A. Correct.
4 Q. You said already today on the
5 record that you are an analyst covering
6 beverages and now tobacco?
7 A. Um-hm.
8 Q. Can you tell us in simple terms
9 what you do on a daily basis --
10 A. Sure.
11 Q. -- in connection with those?
12 A. My job is to write research on 13 tobacco and beverage companies, to make 14 investment opinions on whether to -- whether 15 the -- the public companies will outperform,
16 meet, or underperform their sectors in the 17 S&P 500.
18 Q. Okay. So it's detailed analysis of 19 public companies.
20 A. It is a job that requires, yeah,
21 financial modeling, interaction with money
22 managers, and interaction with company
23 representatives.
24 Q. Okay. Do you have any kind of 25 termination or similar agreements with Morgan

Page 13

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Stanley that would be in effect today?
3 A. I'm not sure what that means.
4 Q. Okay. When you left Morgan Stanley
5 did you sign any contracts with them
6 governing your conduct towards them in any 7 way after you left the company?
8 A. Other than a simple employee code
9 of conduct that I would have signed as a 10 normal employee, I don't think there was 11 anything.
12 Q. Are you aware of any contract or 13 other agreement that would prevent you from 14 disparaging Morgan Stanley in any way?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Why did you leave Morgan Stanley?
17 A. I left Morgan Stanley for two 18 reasons primarily. Number one, I felt I
19 wasn't getting the mentorship and support
20 that I need as an analyst in research, that I
21 -- I wasn't sure that Management felt that I 22 was someone who could continue to succeed in 23 their organization and take on wider
24 responsibilities over time, and despite 25 attempts to reach out to my bosses and 020863

Page 14

1 Confidential - Conway
2 colleagues -- you know, you always want to
3 know what your bosses think about you, so I
4 think the biggest reason or the reason I was 5 recruited to leave was I didn't know where I
6 stood.
7 Q. Did you feel any kind of pressure
8 to expand the industries that you were 9 covering?
10 A. No.
11 Q. Now, is it fair to say that you are 12 viewed as one of the leading analysts on Wall
13 Street?
14 A. I don't know. I would say that in 15 -- in the -- in the beverage area I would say
16 I would be among the leading analysts on Wall
17 Street.
18 Q. As a more general matter, you don't 19 have an opinion as to whether you're regarded 20 as a leading analyst?
21 A. I don't.
22 Q. And you were viewed as a leading 23 analyst in the beverage industry in 1998 as 24 well.
25 A. Correct. Yes.

Page 15

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Is there any kind of ranking of 3 analysts by any kind of third parties, The 4 Journal, for example? Or Greenwich I think
5 is one I've seen.
6 A. Yes, there are a couple of rankings
7 whose importance I think has waned as of 8 late, but there is The Grant Survey, which is 9 a relatively small sample size. There is --
10 And you're talking about public
11 rankings.
12 Q. Correct.
13 A. There is your Wall Street Journal
14 ranks. Also stock picking. There's also 15 Institutional Investor, which probably -- the 16 magazine probably has gotten the most
17 recognition, which also ranks specialists
18 based on money managers' feedback.
19 Q. And you've been highly ranked since 20 prior to joining Morgan Stanley I assume.
21 A. That's correct.
22 Q. I wonder if you to tell us a little
23 bit on a large scale where the analyst fits
24 in a larger investment bank like Morgan
25 Stanley.

Page 16

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Well, the analyst's responsibility
3 is to accurately and strategically decipher
4 company's prospects, rate of revenue growth,
5 rate of earnings growth, rate of cash flow,
6 quality of Management, and our job is to be 7 as accurate as we can for our clients who
8 have a responsibility to make investments.
9 Q. So the analyst client is typically 10 an institutional investor?
11 A. That's correct. An analyst's
12 client is a mutual fund, a pension fund, a
13 state fund, anyone invested -- anyone
14 invested in the market, in my particular
15 case, who would have holdings in beverages.
16 It could be an Anheuser Busch. It could be a
17 Coca-Cola. It could be a Brown Forman.
18 Q. But the issuers themselves don't 19 pay you to cover the company; is that
20 correct.
21 A. That is correct.
22 Q. Is there any interaction between 23 analysts and investment bankers who, for 24 example, are involved in M&A work? And let's
25 say in the late 90s.

Page 17

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Are you asking me in like a
3 generalization --
4 Q. Yes?
5 A. -- or are you asking for my
6 specific experience?
7 Q. Let's start generally first.
8 A. Okay. I -- I would -- I would say
9 that I'm sure there have been instances where 10 a merger and acquisition transaction, based 11 upon reading the Wall Street Journal, of 12 analysts that have a pretty high profile,
13 that they have been involved in giving advice
14 to their own investment bankers on M&A 15 experience or strategic action. The most 16 prominent that comes to light is in the 17 telecom industry, you know, Jack Rudnick, et 18 cetera.
19 Q. Right, right.
20 In your own experience, though,
21 you've never felt pressure from the M&A side
22 of the investment bank to help garner, say,
23 IPO business?
24 A. No.
25 Nor -- nor have I ever given

020864

Page 18

1 Confidential - Conway
2 specific M&A advice to any investment banker.
3 Q. You say you've never given specific
4 -- did you say M&A advice to any investment
5 banker?
6 A. That's right.
7 Q. Okay. So getting even more
8 specific in connection with the Sunbeam
9 transaction --
10 A. Um-hm.
11 Q. -- which brings us here today --
12 A. Um-hm.
13 Q. -- you don't recall having any
14 conversations with any of the M&A team about 15 whether the deal was a good one?
16 MR. CLARE: I object to the form
17 of the question.
18 And, Clark, it's your deposition,
19 but you talked about "the Sunbeam
20 transaction" and "the deal." There
21 are, obviously, a number of financial 22 transactions, and I would suggest maybe
23 just make sure we're all talking about 24 the same thing, clarify what we're 25 talking about.

Page 19

1 Confidential - Conway
2 MR. JOHNSON: That's a good
3 objection.
4 Q. Did you at any point have any
5 conversations with anyone on the Morgan
6 Stanley M&A team concerning whether Sunbeam's
7 acquisition of Coleman, First Alert and Mr.
8 Coffee was a good transaction?
9 A. No.
10 Q. No one ever asked your opinion on 11 that?
12 A. No.
13 Q. Did you have an opinion on that?
14 A. No.
15 Q. Did you receive any criticisms for 16 your involvement in the Sunbeam difficulties,
17 so to speak, in 1998?
18 A. Thankfully, no.
19 Q. When you say "Thankfully, no," are 20 you saying it wouldn't be a surprise had you
21 received criticisms?
22 A. No. I say thankfully in a way that
23 my role was -- my role was -- I didn't 24 actually cover the company, so -- and -- and 25 reputation to an analyst is important, and we

Page 20

1 Confidential - Conway
2 pride ourselves in doing the best job and
3 being very rigorous. So when I say
4 thankfully, I mean that we work hard for our 5 reputation, and -- and it's important to keep 6 a reputation intact, and I believe my 7 reputation remained intact.
8 Q. So even within Morgan Stanley there
9 was no fallout, from your perspective, on 10 your career as a result of your involvement
11 with Sunbeam.
12 A. That's correct.
13 Q. Now, in '98 you were still a
14 beverage analyst.
15 A. Um-hm.
16 Q. How is it that you got involved
17 with Sunbeam?
18 A. My boss, Dennis Shea, came into my
19 office and asked me to play a role in selling
20 a convertible deal. As the kind of senior
21 consumer analyst, we did not have a household
22 product or personal care analyst at the time,
23 and so playing the role, if you will, of a 24 team player, was asked to play a role in the 25 process of selling the convertible

Page 21

1 Confidential - Conway
2 transaction to money managers.
3 Q. Okay. When you say play a "role in 4 selling" the subordinated debt, what do you
5 mean by that?
6 A. The -- the -- the -- there was a
7 convertible --
8 Q. Right.
9 A. -- bond deal.
10 Q. That's the one I'm referring to.
11 A. And the role -- the role that I
12 would traditionally play, as an analyst would 13 play in a new issue or an IPO would be if 14 there were any questions from potential
15 investors on the company, my role would be 16 there to answer those questions.
17 Q. In order to answer those questions
18 did you need to educate yourself about the 19 company?
20 A. Yes, I did.
21 Q. In that process did you form any
22 opinions about Sunbeam as a company either
23 pre or post acquisitions?
24 A. As part of that process I requested
25 some time with Sunbeam management to discuss

020865

Page 22

1 Confidential - Conway
2 their earnings growth prospects, company
3 fundamentals, cost structure, any -- the 4 responsibility of an analyst is to know the 5 business, and because this company was not
6 within the realm of my industry specialty, I
7 had to spend extra time with -- with company
8 management to develop and understand strategy
9 and -- and -- and growth targets.
10 Q. We'll probably come back to this in 11 a little bit more detail --
12 A. Sure.
13 Q. -- but I want to ask you right now,
14 do you remember which members of Sunbeam
15 management you met with?
16 A. I didn't meet with. I had
17 telephone conversations with. So never met
18 live with them in person. But yes, I had at 19 least one or two tele -- telephone meetings
20 with Russ Kersh, and I believe Mr. Fannin was 21 present for one of both of those, and the 22 sessions probably were, you know, an hour or 23 two.
24 Q. And do you remember when these 25 occurred?

Page 23

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. I don't remember specifically.
3 Clark, I think, you know, they clearly would 4 have occurred before -- during or before the 5 trans -- the presentation to the Equity, or 6 the Debt Capital Committee on the
7 transaction.
8 Q. Right, right.
9 A. It was in early March of that year,
10 based upon getting refreshed on a time line.
11 Q. Any other Sunbeam management
12 besides Kersh and Fannin?
13 A. No.
14 Q. What -- did you review any
15 documents, a 10-K, anything like that?
16 A. I'm sure as part of my developing a 17 model quarterly I reviewed all financial 18 documents that were available to me.
19 Q. Okay. So that would include the 20 audited '97 financials?
21 A. It would have included a '97 10-K
22 or a '97 annual report.
23 Q. Okay. And when you reviewed that
24 '97 annual report or 10-K did anything jump
25 out as an obvious problem with the company?

Page 24

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. No.
3 Q. So the revenue growth the company
4 was posting didn't strike you as unusual?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Okay. And the company's cash flow
7 didn't bother you?
8 A. No.
9 Q. Anything about accounts receivable
10 bother you?
11 A. No.
12 Q. Okay.
13 A. None that I can recall.
14 Q. Okay. Do you remember hearing in 15 the March -- February-March '98 time frame
16 that Sunbeam engaged in bill and hold
17 transactions?
18 A. No.
19 Q. Do you know what that term is?
20 A. No, not -- not -- not today.
21 Q. Okay. So today there's nothing
22 about that term that gives you any anxiety
23 or --
24 A. If -- if -- if -- if bill and hold
25 refers to, you know, booking revenues ahead

Page 25

1 Confidential - Conway
2 of shipping product, that -- that -- that
3 certainly is something that one would take
4 notice on, but I don't recall that discussion
5 or that issue coming up in my analysis.
6 Q. Is that something you would take
7 notice of?
8 A. I would query Management about.
9 Q. Okay. Okay, because of accounting
10 concerns or because of, you know, business
11 model concerns, or both?
12 A. Well, I would say just -- just -- 13 just more about trying to understand the -- 14 how the business functions from a working 15 capital on from a client relation, just to 16 understand is that the model the industry
17 traditionally works in, or is that an 18 exception.
19 Q. Okay. And would it impact future
20 results.
21 A. Sure. I mean absolutely.
22 Q. I apologize we're jumping around a
23 little bit here.
24 A. No, that's fine.
25 Q. I think you started out by saying

020866

Page 26

1 Confidential - Conway
2 that Dennis Shea introduced you to the idea
3 of getting involved in selling the 4 convertible debt.
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. Okay. What's the next thing that
7 happened, that you can recall, after Dennis
8 Shea asked you to do this?
9 Did you say okay?
10 Did you think about it?
11 A. I probably thought about it. And 12 as -- as -- as Morgan Stanley is -- is -- you
13 know, always stresses culturally the 14 importance of -- of being a team player, I
15 made a decision to -- to play a role.
16 Q. And did you ask any of your
17 subordinates within the company to help you
18 out with the job?
19 Did Jim Dormer?
20 A. Jim Dormer, who would have been --
21 who would have worked with me, my associate
22 at the time, and is -- yes.
23 Q. Anyone besides Jim Dormer work on 24 something?
25 A. Not -- not that I know of, because

Page 27

1 Confidential - Conway
2 I believe he was the only one that worked
3 with me at the time, I believe, so I -- I
4 don't -- I don't recall anybody else.
5 Q. Were you aware, well, when you got
6 involved, that Sunbeam's CEO was a flamboyant
7 character?
8 MR. CLARE: I object to the form
9 of the question.
10 You can answer it.
11 MR. JOHNSON: Well, let me --
12 A. I -- I -- I -- I.
13 MR. CLARE: -- your objection, but 14 I'll withdraw the question.
15 MR. CLARE: I'm two for two today.
16 MR. JOHNSON: Not to encourage
17 you.
18 (Laughter).
19 MR. CLARE: I only make 20 meritorious objections.
21 MR. JOHNSON: "Laughter," please.
22 (Laughter.)
23 MR. JOHNSON: Sorry about that.
24 Q. You were aware that the CEO of 25 Sunbeam was Al Dunlap?

Page 28

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Yes, I was.
3 Q. Okay. And did you have any
4 understanding of his reputation?
5 A. I had a perception of his
6 reputation.
7 Q. And what was that?
8 A. That was that he -- I had recalled
9 reading about his successes with Scott Paper.
10 I think he was known as a successful cost
11 restructuring, pruner of businesses, making
12 them more nimble and more competitive.
13 Q. And do you have any understanding
14 of Mr. Dunlap's reputation today?
15 A. I -- I know that his reputation
16 today, you know, wasn't what it was several 17 years ago.
18 Q. Okay. It's much worse now.
19 A. I would -- yes. Particularly 20 after, you know, the events at Sunbeam.
21 Q. Right.
22 Did you do anything other than talk
23 to Mr. Kersh or Mr. Fannin to get a sense of 24 the business culture at Sunbeam in the first
25 quarter of 1998?

Page 29

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. No.
3 Q. Is that something that as a general
4 matter is of importance to you and companies
5 that you're studying?
6 A. It is.
7 And culture on companies, just like
8 our sources within companies, are acquired
9 over time.
10 Q. Okay. So the only reason you
11 didn't get a sense of the culture at Sunbeam
12 is you had just gotten involved with the 13 company?
14 A. Right.
15 I think that culture, you know,
16 occurs, as an analyst, in visiting corporate
17 headquarters, spending time with Management,
18 with institutional investors and -- and --
19 and -- beyond Mr. Dunlap's reputation. So
20 culture is not something you -- you get as a 21 snapshot in a day or -- or -- it's something
22 that evolves over time.
23 Q. And given how events unfolded, you
24 never visited Sunbeam's headquarters?
25 A. That's correct.

020867

Page 30

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Did you perform any due diligence
3 on either Sunbeam or the targets that Sunbeam
4 was acquiring?
5 A. None beyond my conversations with
6 Russ Kersh and my industry reading, general
7 articles, information, 10-Q, 10-K.
8 Q. When you say "industry reading,"
9 were you reading about other household
10 products companies to get a sense of the 11 industry as a general matter?
12 A. Probably getting a sense to 13 whether, you know, targets are achievable,
14 margins are achievable.
15 But -- but -- but, again, a strong
16 part of that really comes from my 17 interaction, you know, with -- with senior 18 management.
19 Q. Sure.
20 But it would be customary to 21 review, say, the 10-Ks of Sunbeam's
22 competitors.
23 A. I would say yes, it -- it is.
24 Although, you know, there may not have been a
25 direct comparable, but I'm sure over time,

Page 31

1 Confidential - Conway
2 sure.
3 Q. Okay. Do you recall how the market
4 reacted to Sunbeam's announcement of the
5 acquisitions?
6 A. I do not.
7 Q. Okay. You don't recall any market
8 reaction suggesting that Coleman -- excuse
9 me, that Sunbeam was paying too much for the 10 companies it was acquiring?
11 A. No.
12 Q. I'm following the path of a drunken
13 sailor here. I'm jumping around.
14 A. No, that's fine. That's fine.
15 Q. Getting back to due diligence for a 16 second --
17 A. Sure.
18 Q. -- I want to show you a document,
19 see if it looks familiar to you. This has
20 been marked previously as Exhibit 128.
21 A. Okay. Okay.
22 Q. Mr. Conway, Exhibit 128 appears to
23 be a Morgan Stanley memo --
24 A. Um-hm.
25 Q. -- dated March 9, 1998 --

Page 32

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Um-hm.
3 Q. -- from John Tyree and Shani
4 Boone --
5 A. Um-hm.
6 Q. -- and you're one of the recipients
7 or listed recipients.
8 A. Correct.
9 Q. Do you recall receiving this memo?
10 A. I do not recall receiving this 11 memo, but I -- this is a document I saw with 12 Tom on Wednesday briefly.
13 Q. Okay. And who is Mr. Tyree, John
14 Tyree?
15 A. I believe John Tyree was one of the 16 investment bankers.
17 Q. Did you ever have any conversations
18 with Mr. Tyree?
19 A. I know I had conversations with one 20 or two bankers. I can't remember what their 21 name was.
22 Q. And Exhibit 128 doesn't refresh
23 your memory about maybe participating in due
24 diligence calls on First Alert or Signature
25 Brands (inaudible) --

Page 33

1 Confidential - Conway
2 (Discussion off the record.)
3 Q. -- which is Mr. Coffee?
4 A. Right. I would have certainly been
5 notified by the investment bankers that there
6 was a conference call going on. What I don't
7 remember, whether I was on this call or not,
8 or whether Jim Dormer was on this call or 9 not, the reason being I may have been 10 traveling during the time of this call.
11 Q. Okay.
12 A. So I would have received this, but
13 I don't remember -- don't remember it nor do
14 I remember playing a role on the conference
15 call.
16 Q. Did you look at your calendars from 17 '98 at all to get ready for the deposition?
18 A. We did -- we did on Wednesday.
19 And -- and I wasn't -- I know I was 20 in California, I believe, during this time.
21 I think.
22 Q. Okay.
23 A. The week of the first announcement
24 that came out about -- the public
25 announcement that Sunbeam had made I think on 020868

2 sales forecasts --
3 Q. Right.
4 A. -- I think that was this week. I
5 was on the West Coast visiting institutional
6 clients --
7 Q. Okay.
8 A. -- on beverages.
9 Q. Okay.
10 A. So if it was that -- that week, I
11 -- if I was -- I was out of town.
12 Q. But as you sit here today, the only 13 things that you would describe as potentially 14 due diligence would be your calls with 15 Kersh --
16 A. Right.
17 Q. -- and reviewing the company's
18 public financial statements and/or reports
19 and industry materials.
20 A. That's right.
21 And -- and I would also include to 22 that if -- if I participated in any due
23 diligence calls that the firm would have --
24 would have held as well. I just don't recall
25 me playing a role in those.

2 Q. Okay. I'm going to give you the
3 names of a few of the investment bankers on 4 this transaction.
5 A. Sure.
6 Q. And what I'm getting at is whether 7 you spoke with any of them relating to the 8 Sunbeam transaction --
9 A. Okay.
10 Q. -- the acquisition or financing of 11 the acquisitions.
12 A. Okay.
13 Q. Bill Strong?
14 A. Did not speak to Bill Strong.
15 Q. Do you know who Bill Strong is?
16 A. I do know who Bill Strong is.
17 Q. Okay. Have you worked with him in 18 any other deals?
19 A. I have worked with him on another
20 at the time, going back a couple of years
21 before this, potential beverage company
22 issue.
23 Q. Okay.
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. How about Jim Stynes, did you deal

Page 36

1 Confidential - Conway
2 with him at all in connection with Sunbeam?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Bob Kitts?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Alex Fuchs?
7 A. No.
8 Although there are two bankers, and
9 I -- I -- Clark, I don't know whether it's 10 Fuchs or whether it's Tyree. I'm presuming
11 they were more junior, the ones I
12 communicated with. I just don't recall --
13 Q. Okay.
14 A. -- which one it was. So it could
15 have been Fuchs and it could have been Tyree.
16 I just can't picture them.
17 Q. Okay, let me just give you a few
18 more names.
19 A. Sure.
20 Q. Tyrone Chang?
21 A. No.
22 Q. Andy Savarie?
23 A. No.
24 Q. Lily Rafii?
25 A. No.

Page 37

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Shani Boone?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Johannes Groeller?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Bram Smith?
7 A. If Shani worked with John, and he
8 was one of the junior bankers, it's possible
9 I spoke with her. I just don't remember.
10 Q. That's fine.
11 A. Sorry.
12 Q. That's fine.
13 Bram Smith?
14 A. No.
15 Q. Michael Hart?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Brooks Harris?
18 A. Maybe, because I know Brooks was a
19 convertible banker, so it's possible I had 20 communication with Brooks. I don't recall
21 it, but it's possible. I know -- I know
22 Brooks, which is why.
23 Q. Mitch Petrick?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Have you worked with Mr. Petrick

020869

Page 38

1 Confidential - Conway
2 before?
3 A. No, not that I know of.
4 Q. Did you keep Mr. Shea posted on
5 your progress on Sunbeam?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. And did you end up talking to any 8 institutional clients concerning the 9 convertible debt offering?
10 A. I spoke to I would say a small
11 handful, Clark, maybe two or three. It -- it
12 -- my role was -- I think the transaction
13 sold very well, and this wasn't a transaction
14 that needed a great deal of my time in the 15 selling process. So I would say it was 16 probably a handful -- it could have been two,
17 three, four investors -- that I probably 18 would have talked to.
19 Q. And who would those investors be?
20 A. I -- I don't recall specifically.
21 I saw in the one document that I
22 saw with Tom Clare on the Jim Dormer fax that 23 there was a client that had called and got a 24 fax to return the phone call, so that would 25 have been an example of a client.

Page 39

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. And that's Franklin?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. Okay. Franklin was already a large
5 owner of Sunbeam at the time?
6 A. I -- I discovered that this past
7 Wednesday.
8 Q. You didn't know that previously.
9 A. I don't remember if -- I don't
10 remember.
11 Q. Michael Price is one of the 12 principals of Franklin?
13 A. Michael Price is one of the 14 principals.
15 Q. Is that correct?
16 A. I -- I -- I don't know.
17 Q. Okay.
18 A. I know he's a well-regarded
19 investor. I don't know --
20 Q. Whether he's associated in Franklin
21 in any way.
22 A. That's right.
23 Q. After the events at Sunbeam
24 unfolded did you have any conversations with 25 institutional investors about Sunbeam?

Page 40

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. No, I did not.
3 I -- I had one conversation with an
4 investor on my trip out to California, with 5 an institutional investor, and who I believe
6 happened to be an owner, knew I was involved
7 in the convertible deal, and asked me, you
8 know, in a way maybe about the company
9 prospects or growth, but beyond -- that was 10 during the -- never any contact after the 11 transaction, so it was relatively -- he's the 12 only one I can recall.
13 Q. Okay. And what else do you recall
14 of that conversation?
15 A. He asked me why I was going to 16 cover the company, or why the beverage
17 analyst was playing a role, and I mentioned
18 to him that we don't have a household product
19 analysts, and my boss asked me to take on the 20 role, being a team player.
21 Q. And you didn't have any misgivings
22 at the time at all about the convertible
23 offering.
24 A. No.
25 Q. Did you have any sense that

Page 41

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Sunbeam's stock price was inflated in March
3 of '98?
4 A. No.
5 Q. You thought it was fairly valued
6 based on your work at that point?
7 A. I had not come to a conclusion yet
8 on the equity market valuation of Sunbeam,
9 because all that was asked of us was to put
10 together models, cash flow, balance sheet
11 adjustments, forecast earnings, and then 12 describe those to our investors, but not make 13 a valuation opinion. That would have come in 14 an initiation or an equity report.
15 Q. Okay. With the benefit of
16 hindsight, do you feel like you kind of stuck
17 your chin out on this transaction at all?
18 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
19 the question.
20 You can answer if you understand
21 it.
22 A. I'm not sure I do understand it.
23 Q. Okay, let me try and rephrase it.
24 Well, let me put it differently.
25 Did anyone ever say you shouldn't 020870

Page 42

1 Confidential - Conway
2 have stuck your chin out on Sunbeam?
3 A. No.
4 MR. CLARE: Same objection.
5 Q. You've already testified that an
6 analyst's reputation is of critical
7 importance, correct?
8 A. Um-hm.
9 Q. Okay, with the benefit of 10 hindsight, you wish your name hadn't been 11 associated in any way with the convertible
12 offering?
13 A. No, but -- but -- but with the 14 benefit of hindsight, you know, if -- if I
15 felt there was any impropriety or any issue
16 in the numbers, the cash flow, the story, you
17 know, as an equity analyst and a senior one,
18 had I had an inkling that, you know, what was 19 told to me by Sunbeam's management was, you
20 know, an outright falsehood, I would have 21 stopped the process right there.
22 Q. Sure.
23 A. That I could tell you. So that --
24 that's -- you know so from a reputation
25 standpoint if -- if I had discovered, you

Page 43

1 Confidential - Conway
2 know, that I was outright lied to, the 3 process would have stopped right there.
4 Q. So you're saying Mr. Kersh or Mr.
5 Fannin lied to you outright during your calls
6 with them.
7 A. Well, the -- the -- the postmortem
8 is that the revenues and the growth story did
9 not materialize.
10 Q. Right. So that's the basis of your 11 belief that you were lied to.
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. Okay. You said a few minutes ago
14 that the convertible sold very well, so you 15 as a result didn't need to talk to a lot of 16 institutional investors to try and help sell
17 the convertibles; is that correct?
18 A. That is correct.
19 Q. Okay. Do you recall the size of 20 the convertible offering initially or -- or 21 as it closed?
22 A. I don't.
23 Q. Okay. I'll represent that it was 24 initially $500 million and then closed at 25 $750 million. Does that refresh your memory

Page 44

1 Confidential - Conway
2 at all?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Now, you were involved in analyzing 5 synergies that might be attained from 6 Sunbeam's acquisition of the three targets;
7 is that correct?
8 A. That is correct.
9 Q. Okay. Tell me how you went about
10 doing that.
11 A. I think the majority or a hundred
12 percent of our feedback on synergies came
13 from our conversations with Russ Kersh.
14 Q. When you say "a hundred percent of 15 the feedback came from" --
16 A. Well, the -- the knowledge of the 17 capability to get the synergies --
18 Q. Okay.
19 A. -- either in any of the businesses
20 came from Russ Kersh articulating which 21 businesses, what part they were coming from,
22 a long history of Sunbeam's management
23 experiences at extracting synergies from 24 companies, and -- and where there were, you
25 know, perhaps even greater synergies going

Page 45

1 Confidential - Conway
2 forward.
3 Q. So the synergies analysis that you
4 or your staff performed were based entirely
5 on Mr. Kersh's thoughts about synergies that 6 might be attained?
7 A. Correct.
8 Q. And Mr. Kersh's ideas were based on 9 his knowledge of Sunbeam's operations and 10 past performance?
11 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for
12 speculation.
13 A. I -- I -- I presume so.
14 Q. Okay.
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. By the way, did you sign a
17 protective order in this case?
18 MR. CLARE: Do you remember?
19 A. I don't -- I don't know.
20 Q. You don't recall doing that.
21 A. I don't recall doing that, no.
22 Q. Okay. And did you look at any of 23 your evaluations for Morgan Stanley?
24 A. My evaluations.
25 Q. Correct.

020871

Page 46

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Which? Which type of evaluations?
3 Q. Well, I guess let's -- let me ask
4 it more specifically.
5 Do you recall how the evaluation
6 process worked at Morgan Stanley?
7 A. The evaluation for my
8 performance --
9 Q. Correct.
10 A. -- or the evaluation for this deal?
11 Q. For your performance.
12 A. I -- I would have -- I would have 13 been evaluated at the end of every year on my 14 performance.
15 Q. Did you fill out a self-evaluation?
16 A. I certainly did.
17 Q. Do you remember referring to 18 Sunbeam in any way in connection with your 19 1998 self-evaluation?
20 A. I don't remember.
21 Q. Do you think you would have done
22 that, given your work on the deal?
23 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
24 A. I -- I know that the events
25 personally were upsetting, and because -- I

Page 47

1 Confidential - Conway
2 can tell you I communicated to my boss Dennis
3 Shea as the process was unfolding, you know,
4 my -- you know, my -- my view of here's an
5 analyst taking a role, and first announcement
6 goes out, sales a little bit less. But I --
7 it wouldn't surprise me whether I said
8 something in my 360. I just -- I don't know
9 if I did or if I didn't.
10 Q. When you say "360" you mean --
11 A. I mean self-evaluation. That --
12 that's part of the whole process --
13 Q. (Speaking simultaneously.)
14 A. Firm wide, exactly.
15 Q. Okay.
16 A. Exactly.
17 (Discussion off the record.)
18 MR. JOHNSON: I apologize.
19 Let me see what the record looks
20 like. (Reviewing real-time.)
21 Q. Mr. Conway, when you say "360," you
22 mean a firm-wide evaluation?
23 A. Correct.
24 Q. Do you know whether as part of the 25 firm wide evaluation anyone referenced your

Page 48

1 Confidential - Conway
2 work on Sunbeam?
3 A. I don't recall.
4 Q. And you didn't see your evaluation
5 forms in meetings with Mr. Clare?
6 A. No, I did not.
7 Q. You just mentioned that you were 8 upset as the process unfolded, and you had 9 conversations with Mr. Shea about that; is
10 that --
11 A. That's -- that's correct.
12 Q. Okay.
13 A. I mean my conversations with Mr.
14 Shea was informing him of the events.
15 Q. Okay.
16 A. Because he had approached me and 17 asked me to take a leadership role with it.
18 And to your point earlier about 19 reputation is important, and -- and -- and in 20 this process I didn't want, you know, my 21 hard-earned, you know, analytical rigor
22 reputation to be hurt by this event.
23 Q. Sure.
24 Did you say in words or substance
25 to Mr. Shea that analysts should keep focused

Page 49

1 Confidential - Conway
2 on their own industries?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Okay.
5 A. I don't believe I did.
6 Q. Did Mr. Shea have any reaction to 7 your communication of the events that
8 unfolded at Sunbeam?
9 A. I think his reaction was, you know,
10 let me look into it, and let me -- let me --
11 and let me, you know, get back to you.
12 Q. Okay. Did he do so?
13 A. I don't know that there was a, you
14 know, detailed postmortem where he and I sat
15 down together, but as events unfolded it
16 became clear and clearer through the, you
17 know, months ahead that, you know, the role
18 -- the role of myself and Sunbeam was -- you
19 know, was coming to -- wasn't going to be -- 20 was coming to an end. And it's common
21 procedure in any transaction for an analyst
22 to let his bosses know if there are, you
23 know, events that -- that may affect the 24 offering, or events personally that, you
25 know, occur where an analyst just wants to 020872

Page 50

1 Confidential - Conway
2 make sure the boss knows.
3 Q. What events in particular do you --
4 did you provide to Mr. Shea?
5 A. Well, I remember the first event
6 was -- because believe I was on the West
7 Coast when in March the first public
8 statement from Sunbeam that sales forecasts
9 in -- in -- in the quarter were going to be a 10 little less than expectation, so that was -- 11 that would have been -- you know, I got that 12 news, and I would have put in a voice mail or 13 a phone call to Dennis Shea about that.
14 Q. Did that press release give you any 15 anxiety, for lack of a better term?
16 A. I don't -- I don't think it gave me
17 anxiety, no.
18 Q. Did you do anything to learn what 19 the actual sales and earnings numbers were 20 for Sunbeam at that point, in the first
21 quarter of '98?
22 A. Did I -- did I in terms of 23 forecast, or did I -- I'm not sure I
24 understand the question.
25 Q. Okay, sorry.

Page 51

1 Confidential - Conway
2 The press release you're referring 3 to --
4 A. Okay.
5 Q. -- I'll represent came out on March
6 19th.
7 A. Um-hm.
8 Q. Okay, my question is whether in
9 connection with that press release you did
10 anything to determine what Sunbeam's actual 11 sales for the quarter were, as of the date of 12 the press release.
13 A. I -- I probably after that point --
14 You mean whether I would have 15 changed my forecast or adjusted numbers or -- 16 Q. I guess slightly -- we'll get to
17 that --
18 A. Okay.
19 Q. -- but slightly differently.
20 Did you do anything to find out
21 what the actual results were as of, say, mid
22 March?
23 A. No. No. I had no information
24 beyond what a public investor would have.
25 Q. Okay. Same question for earnings.

Page 52

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Did you do anything to find out where Sunbeam
3 was with its earnings as of mid March --
4 A. No.
5 Q. -- of the first quarter of '98?
6 A. No. The only thing I may have done
7 after that first announcement was request
8 another conversation with Mr. Kersh.
9 Q. Okay.
10 A. But no.
11 Q. But as you sit here you can't 12 recall actually doing that. You said it's 13 something you may have done.
14 A. Right.
15 Q. Okay. Do you recall how the market
16 reacted to the first press release, the March
17 19th press release?
18 A. I don't recall the exact, although 19 I know Sunbeam's shares dropped. I don't 20 know the amount. I can't remember that.
21 Q. Did you read what other analysts
22 were saying about Sunbeam?
23 A. No.
24 Q. Okay. That was a fairly emphatic
25 no.

Page 53

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Is that a practice, you don't watch
3 what other analysts are saying?
4 A. That's right. I think we -- we as
5 analysts have a -- have a -- have a -- well,
6 I can't speak for other analysts, but I think
7 that rarely a new coverage or -- or -- or new 8 companies do we read, you know, what other
9 analysts write, just for fear of, I think,
10 being prejudiced or -- or -- you know, the 11 only time I would ever read what other 12 analysts wrote would be if a client would 13 e-mail to me or would ask me, say, you know,
14 analyst X believes this, what do you think,
15 and that did not happen in this process.
16 Q. Okay. So as you sit here today you
17 don't know what other analysts said in the 18 wake of the March 19th press release?
19 A. That's correct.
20 Q. Okay. You mentioned the first 21 communication you had with Mr. Shea was the 22 March 19th, press release.
23 A. Um-hm.
24 Q. What was the next communication?
25 A. I believe the next communication --

020873

Page 54

1 Confidential - Conway
2 and there may have been -- you know, he was
3 my boss, so we -- we talked pretty freely,
4 but I think the next communication was after 5 the next press release, which was a little
6 more -- I'm getting refreshed by Tom -- I
7 think descriptive about how the quarter would 8 move.
9 Q. And that's -- that's I'll represent
10 an April 3 press release.
11 A. Okay.
12 Q. Okay. And that was after the close
13 of the first quarter.
14 A. Okay.
15 Q. What do you recall about that press
16 release, your reaction to it, your
17 communication with Mr. Shea concerning it?
18 A. My communication with Mr. Shea
19 would have been describing the press release
20 and -- and -- and -- and the events within 21 the press release, and please advise, you
22 know, how I should handle my communication
23 with -- with investors now, or with -- with 24 -- with the bond deal. That would have been 25 more of a communication -- and he's my

Page 55

1 Confidential - Conway
2 boss -- how -- you know, what are next steps.
3 Q. That press release showed that the
4 for the first time Sunbeam would have a loss
5 for the first quarter of '98?
6 A. Yeah. It was a -- you know, as an
7 analyst involved, it was a stunning, you
8 know, press release.
9 Q. And you recall the stock took a
10 major hit as a result of that press release?
11 A. I remember it dropped. I don't
12 remember what percentage it dropped, nor do I
13 remember where I was.
14 Q. Meaning where physically you
15 were --
16 A. Right.
17 Q. -- in the country?
18 A. Right.
19 Because I remember the week before
20 I was in California. That I remember. But I
21 don't remember this week where I was.
22 Q. Okay.
23 A. I could have been in the office. I
24 just don't recall.
25 Q. Okay. Okay, so we've got the March

Page 56

1 Confidential - Conway
2 19th press release, the April 3 press
3 release.
4 A. Um-hm.
5 Q. What other events did you
6 communicate to Mr. Shea as the situation at 7 Sunbeam deteriorated?
8 A. I think -- I think that was pretty
9 much it, Clark. I think --
10 Q. Did you follow Sunbeam's stock
11 price through April and May?
12 A. I don't recall that I did, but I
13 remember that my activities regarding Sunbeam
14 were almost nonexistent beyond that point.
15 Q. Did you follow any of the Sunbeam
16 related litigation that followed the April 3
17 press release?
18 A. No.
19 Q. And you learned that Mr. Dunlap was 20 terminated at some point, I assume. Is that
21 correct?
22 A. I -- I guess that's correct, yes.
23 Q. Okay. Was the March 19th press
24 release the first inkling that you had of any 25 negative information concerning Sunbeam?

Page 57

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. And did you know the press release
4 was going to issue before it came out?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Did you have any conversations with
7 anyone other than Mr. Shea at Morgan Stanley
8 concerning the press release?
9 A. No.
10 Q. As you sit here today do you know
11 what Sunbeam's sales in fact were through the 12 first two months of 1998?
13 A. I don't recall today --
14 Q. Okay.
15 A. -- what they were other than they
16 were lower than what was perceived to be.
17 Q. So Mr. Clare didn't show you any 18 comfort letters issued in connection with the 19 convertible offering?
20 A. I don't recall.
21 MR. CLARE: Whatever you remember.
22 Q. He's not allowed to testify --
23 A. Yeah, no, I -- I -- I --
24 Q. -- otherwise I would ask him.
25 A. I -- I -- I -- I -- I didn't know

020874

Page 58

1 Confidential - Conway
2 the term -- you know, I'm not familiar with
3 the term comfort letter without looking a
4 time line that Tom presented to me Wednesday,
5 so I can tell you that I don't recall ever
6 seeing anything.
7 Q. Okay. The time line that Tom
8 presented to you, that's something that you
9 used to refresh your memory of the events?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Okay. Was that a single-page time
12 line or --
13 A. It was -- it was a couple of pages,
14 almost in one of these -- you know, like the 15 size of that framed picture, kind of just --
16 I'm not sure what you call them, but, you
17 know, you take the paper and you pull it over 18 when you're giving a presentation. You write
19 in marker pen.
20 Q. Right.
21 A. It was three -- three -- three 22 pages starting from I guess earlier in the 23 year all the way through, and trying to find 24 out where, you know, where --
25 Q. Where you fit --

Page 59

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Where my role fit in, exactly.
3 Q. We're going to come back to 4 synergies for a minute I guess.
5 A. Sure.
6 Q. I'm going to give you what's been
7 marked previously as Exhibit 129.
8 A. Okay, okay.
9 MR. CLARE: The drunken sailor
10 continues his walk.
11 MR. JOHNSON: That's an
12 Easterbrook reference.
13 MR. CLARE: I know the reference.
14 A. (Perusing document) Okay.
15 Q. Mr. Conway, I've given you
16 Exhibit 129, which I recognize is a 31-page
17 document.
18 A. Um-hm, um-hm.
19 Q. And I'm just going to call your 20 attention to a few sections of it.
21 A. Okay.
22 Q. But feel free to read any of it
23 that you'd like to.
24 A. Okay.
25 Q. Do you recognize Exhibit 129?

Page 60

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. I recognize it because I may have
3 seen part of it on Wednesday with Tom, but I
4 -- I am realizing it's to Equity Commitment
5 Committee. I guess it's I guess a fairly
6 standard memorandum before a transaction.
7 Q. So you've seen memos like this on 8 many occasions.
9 A. I've seen -- I've seen memos like
10 this in my career over time. I would say not 11 on many occasions, because the beverage
12 industry, unlike telecom or communications,
13 is not an industry that's heavily banked.
14 Q. And by "heavily banked" you mean --
15 A. Heavily transaction oriented.
16 Q. Right.
17 Do you have a sense of the purpose
18 of Exhibit 129?
19 A. I believe the purpose -- yes. I
20 believe the purpose is to present to the 21 committee the potential transaction, and to 22 review it.
23 Q. And that in this instance is a
24 convertible offering.
25 A. Yes.

Page 61

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. I'm going to call your attention
3 first to page 13, which has the Bates stamp
4 MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 0000525.
5 A. Okay.
6 Q. Under the third major dash --
7 A. Um-hm.
8 Q. -- there's a provision that reads
9 "Realizable synergies of $150 million from 10 combination."
11 A. Um-hm.
12 Q. And the first sub-bullet there is 13 "$100 million from combination with Coleman."
14 A. Um-hm.
15 Q. Do you know what the basis for 16 those numbers is?
17 A. I believe these are -- well, I
18 recall that whatever synergy information I
19 had received came from Russ Kersh, and 20 perhaps this was the -- you know, the 21 breakout of that.
22 Q. Okay. And is this your work, or is 23 this work done independently by somebody else
24 at Morgan Stanley?
25 A. I don't -- I don't recall -- I

020875

Page 62

1 Confidential - Conway
2 don't remember whether I had indicated the 3 breakout to the banker or the banker had put
4 these in. I don't recall which came first.
5 I do recall that -- that the amounts are
6 pretty similar to what I believe Mr. Kersh
7 communicated.
8 Q. Okay. O as you sit here and with 9 the benefit of Exhibit 129 in front of you--
10 A. Yeah.
11 Q. -- it's your understanding that
12 Morgan Stanley, the Equity Commitment
13 Committee of Morgan Stanley was anticipating 14 a hundred million dollars in synergies from 15 Coleman?
16 MR. CLARE: I'm sorry, could you
17 read that question back for me?
18 (Record read.)
19 MR. CLARE: Okay, I object. Calls
20 for speculation about the Equity
21 Committee's views. And lack of
22 foundation.
23 You can answer it if you can.
24 A. The only thing I would say is that 25 I believe a hundred and fifty million of

Page 63

1 Confidential - Conway
2 synergies was part of the expectation, you
3 know, in the forecast for earnings purposes.
4 Q. All right. And a hundred and fifty
5 million, was that from Coleman or from all
6 three acquisitions?
7 A. I believe it was from all three
8 acquisitions.
9 Q. Okay. Wonder if you could flip to 10 page 17 for me.
11 A. Um-hm.
12 Q. Which for the Bates -- for the 13 record, has the Bates stamp 529.
14 A. Okay.
15 Q. There's a question number five.
16 A. Okay.
17 Q. If you could just read that to 18 yourself.
19 A. Sure.
20 Q. I have a few questions about it.
21 A. (Reading) Okay. Okay.
22 Q. The -- the material under point
23 five --
24 A. Um-hm.
25 Q. -- refers to Coopers & Lybrand --

Page 64

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Um-hm.
3 Q. -- the special acquisition
4 consultants to Sunbeam?
5 A. Um-hm.
6 Q. Did you have any interaction with 7 Coopers & Lybrand?
8 A. No.
9 Q. Do you know what Coopers & Lybrand
10 was doing with Sunbeam?
11 A. No.
12 Q. Did you know that Coopers & Lybrand
13 was involved in assessing synergies?
14 A. No, not unless I probably read
15 point five here.
16 Q. Okay. The response here --
17 And, by the way, these questions or 18 concerns here, these are provided as answers
19 to potential investor concerns; is that
20 correct?
21 A. That is correct.
22 Q. The response notes that "Morgan
23 Stanley and Coopers & Lybrand had extensive 24 conversations with the management of 25 Coleman." Were you involved in any of those

Page 65

1 Confidential - Conway
2 discussions?
3 A. No.
4 Q. At any time did you speak with any
5 member of management of Coleman?
6 A. No.
7 Q. How about McAndrews & Forbes? Have 8 you ever spoken with anyone from McAndrews &
9 Forbes?
10 A. No.
11 Q. Can you identify any officer or 12 employee of McAndrews & Forbes?
13 A. The only one I know of is Mr.
14 Perelman.
15 Q. Have you ever met or had any
16 conversation with Mr. Perelman?
17 A. No.
18 Q. How about Coleman management, can 19 you identify any person who was a member of 20 Coleman management in March 1998?
21 A. No.
22 Q. So is it fair to say, then, that --
23 MR. JOHNSON: Strike that.
24 Q. The first sentence of the response
25 of question five doesn't relate to you --

020876

Page 66

1 Confidential - Conway
2 MR. JOHNSON: Strike that.
3 Q. The first sentence of the response
4 of question five doesn't refer to any
5 conversations or discussions that you had.
6 A. Correct.
7 Q. Okay. And do you know who at 8 Morgan Stanley had had any extensive
9 discussions with the management of Coleman?
10 A. No.
11 Q. Okay. Do you know that Morgan
12 Stanley in fact had had extensive discussions
13 with the management of Coleman?
14 A. No.
15 Q. The last sentence of the response
16 of question five --
17 A. Um-hm.
18 Q. -- says "They," and that refers, I
19 believe, to Sunbeam management, "informed the 20 Sunbeam Board of Directors that the synergies
21 are likely to be in the 225 to 275
22 million-dollar pre-tax range." Did you have 23 any reaction to that information?
24 A. I didn't, Clark.
25 I -- I recall in my conversations

Page 67

1 Confidential - Conway
2 with Mr. Kersh that he felt that the synergy
3 number that he had articulated initially, I
4 guess around 150 million, was very, very
5 conservative.
6 Q. Okay.
7 A. And -- you know, and -- and that it
8 would be easily beatable. And that -- and 9 given their prior success at reducing cost
10 structure, it was probably left at that.
11 Q. Okay. Do you know how long Mr.
12 Kersh had been at Sunbeam as of March of '98?
13 A. No, I don't recall. I may have
14 known then, but I don't recall today.
15 Q. Okay. By the way, did you ever
16 talk to any of Sunbeam's customers in March
17 of 1998?
18 A. I did not.
19 Q. Do you know whether anyone from 20 Morgan Stanley had any conversations with any 21 of Sunbeam's major customers?
22 A. I -- no, I don't.
23 Q. Would you expect that to happen in 24 connection with due diligence on the 25 convertible offering?

Page 68

1 Confidential - Conway
2 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
3 Incomplete hypothetical.
4 You could answer it.
5 A. I -- I don't know how common the 6 procedure would have been from an investment
7 banking perspective.
8 Q. Looks like another document here.
9 This one's already been marked as well, as --
10 A. Okay.
11 Q. -- Exhibit 183.
12 A. Okay. Exhibit 183? Okay.
13 (Perusing document) Okay.
14 Q. Mr. Conway, can you identify
15 Exhibit 183 for the record?
16 A. Sure.
17 What would you like me to --
18 Q. Just tell us what the document
19 appears to be.
20 A. The document appears to be a
21 selling memorandum of the convertible
22 subordinated debt offering for Sunbeam.
23 Q. And there's a fax cover sheet from 24 Shani Boone to you, dated March 12, 1998?
25 A. Correct.

Page 69

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Do you have any recollection of 3 receiving this fax?
4 A. I -- I do not have any recollection
5 of receiving this fax, but it shows that
6 Shani Boone must have been one of the juniors
7 or one of the people working in -- in -- in 8 faxing us information.
9 Q. And can you tell us what a selling
10 memorandum is?
11 A. A selling memorandum is a document
12 meant to assist the analyst and -- and -- and 13 his or her potential sales force in aiding 14 the potential client or investor in the 15 particulars about the company, financial 16 forecasts, prior financial results, of that 17 -- of that ilk.
18 Q. Okay. So this would be used in 19 tandem with an offering memorandum for the 20 convertible.
21 A. I believe so, yes.
22 When was the date of the -- when
23 was the actual deal consummated?
24 Q. Well, the date of the offering
25 memorandum, I'll represent, is March 19th.

020877

Page 70

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Is that when the investors -- is
3 that when the deal was completed and sold to 4 investors, the 19th?
5 Q. Well, unfortunately, I can't
6 answer. I'm the one who asks questions.
7 A. Okay. I'm sorry. I'm just trying
8 to place the time line here.
9 Q. No, I appreciate that.
10 A. Sorry.
11 Q. That's quite all right.
12 A. I'm just trying to figure out how 13 much -- how -- how far in advance. If it's 14 the 19th, it's the week before. I'm just 15 curious.
16 Q. Now, if you would look for me at --
17 We'll have to use the Bates stamp I
18 think on this.
19 A. Okay.
20 Q. -- MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL
21 0063302 --
22 A. 302.
23 Q. -- and 303, this is in the key
24 selling points section?
25 A. Yes. Okay.

Page 71

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Again, there's a listing of
3 realizable synergies of $150 million?
4 A. Um-hm.
5 Q. And a hundred million dollars from 6 combination with Coleman?
7 A. Um-hm.
8 Q. Do you see that?
9 A. I do at the bottom of the page.
10 Q. Right.
11 And you're anticipating my next
12 question already I can see.
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. That's consistent with the 15 information you just looked at in Exhibit --
16 MR. CLARE: 129.
17 Q. -- 129?
18 MR. JOHNSON: Thanks.
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. If you'd now be kind enough to flip
21 to page 63309.
22 A. 63309, okay. Okay.
23 Q. There's a bullet that states
24 "Uncertainty of attaining synergies"?
25 A. Um-hm.

Page 72

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. The last sentence on that page
3 indicates -- I'll read it -- quote, "In 4 addition, while Andrew Conway has modeled
5 $150 in synergies in 1998, he feels that
6 there could be upside to this figure." Do
7 you see that?
8 A. Yes, I do.
9 Q. Okay. You had in fact modeled
10 synergies of $150 million in 1998?
11 A. That's correct.
12 Q. So this is a truthful statement.
13 A. That is correct.
14 Q. And you felt at that time that 15 there could be upside to that number.
16 A. I felt based upon the attitude or 17 excitement of -- of my conversations with -- 18 with Mr. Kersh that his -- his view was that 19 given the track record of the Sunbeam
20 management and given their prior successes
21 that that number would prove to be very
22 conservative.
23 Q. And it was solely information
24 provided by Mr. Kersh that led you to the 150
25 million-dollar synergies in your model?

Page 73

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Correct.
3 And Mr. Kersh would have detailed
4 it, you know, clearly to me at the time,
5 where he thought they would come from, a
6 range, a dollar amount, whereas his initial 7 conservative expectations would be where he
8 thought he could actually reach.
9 Q. Okay, so he didn't say, Andrew,
10 we're going to have a hundred fifty million
11 dollars in synergies, period. He would break
12 it out item by item. Where the number came 13 from.
14 A. He would -- he would range it out,
15 absolutely.
16 Q. Okay. And I assume you would
17 review his breakout for reasonableness?
18 A. That's correct.
19 Q. And you did that.
20 A. I did that.
21 And he would have certainly, you
22 know, himself made comparisons to what they 23 were able to do with prior companies as well.
24 Q. Sure.
25 Do you know what companies Sunbeam

020878

Page 74

1 Confidential - Conway
2 had acquired in, say, the preceding three 3 years?
4 A. I don't recollect today.
5 Q. Okay. If you could flip back to 6 Exhibit 129 for me --
7 A. Okay.
8 Q. -- the page we were looking at --
9 A. Okay.
10 Q. -- which has the Bates stamp 529.
11 A. Okay.
12 Q. I note that Exhibit 129, which 13 stated --
14 MR. JOHNSON: Strike that.
15 Q. The last sentence that we looked at 16 under paragraph five in Exhibit 529 (sic) --
17 A. Um-hm.
18 Q. -- which was Sunbeam's management's
19 statement to the board, Sunbeam board --
20 A. Um-hm.
21 Q. -- that doesn't appear in
22 Exhibit 183. Do you know why that is?
23 A. Exhibit -- I see. I do not know
24 why that is.
25 Q. Okay. Did you have any role in

Page 75

1 Confidential - Conway
2 drafting or revising either Exhibit 129 or
3 Exhibit 183?
4 A. I don't recall, but it would have
5 been normal operating procedure for me to 6 review, I'm pretty sure, Exhibit 183, but I
7 don't recall, you know, a major edit or a
8 major review today. I can't recollect it.
9 Q. And you say it would have been --
10 you expect that you would have reviewed
11 Exhibit 183. That's because your name is 12 being used in it?
13 A. That's correct. That's because I'm
14 getting a fax from the Client Services Group,
15 and maybe this was a final edition. I -- I
16 -- I don't recall. But it wouldn't be 17 uncommon to review the selling memorandum.
18 Q. And your name was being used in 19 connection with the synergies analysis
20 because of your reputation and, say, cache
21 for investors?
22 MR. CLARE: Objection to form. It
23 calls for speculation.
24 A. I think my -- I think that the 25 analysis of synergies, you know, synergies

Page 76

1 Confidential - Conway
2 are traditionally used in an M&A transaction
3 to show -- there's two ways an acquisition
4 can be positive from an investor standpoint.
5 You know, does it accelerate your revenue
6 growth, or can you maintain revenue and/or 7 and get more costs out of the business. So
8 in this instance I think it was they were 9 acquiring a business, but -- but this was 10 very much a part of kind of integrating 11 company sales force, headquarters, field
12 expense, if you will, and letting that drop
13 to the bottom line to provide a higher level
14 of earning space. So it would have been -- a
15 normal question from a potential investor
16 would have been, okay, Andrew, are there
17 synergies in this transaction, what are they,
18 what's reasonable.
19 Q. Okay. But the use of the name
20 Andrew Conway as opposed to Morgan Stanley is 21 meant to convey credibility to the number,
22 isn't it?
23 MR. CLARE: Same objections.
24 You can answer.
25 A. I -- I -- I -- I -- yes, I believe

Page 77

1 Confidential - Conway
2 that -- that I was asked to take on this
3 assignment because of my track record as a
4 consumer analyst.
5 Q. By the way, do you recall any
6 revisions to the synergies estimates that Mr.
7 Kersh was presenting to you?
8 A. No.
9 Q. Can you tell me with any more
10 specificity what Mr. Kersh told you about
11 synergies?
12 A. I can't beyond the telephone
13 conversation kind of earmarking where they 14 thought they would be able to achieve on a 15 conservative base level analysis, and that 16 they hoped to do, you know, much greater, and 17 then probably the descriptor of the different
18 areas of where they expect to get synergies, 19 but beyond that, no, there was --
20 Q. Okay. Was it here are 12 areas
21 where we're going to get synergies, here's -- 22 or was it three or a hundred, or do you have 23 any sense of the range of areas?
24 A. There were several. There were 25 several areas.

020879

Page 78

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. And did he assign a dollar value to
3 each of the areas?
4 A. I believe he probably assigned a
5 range --
6 Q. Okay.
7 A. -- to the areas, and I'm sure I
8 incorporated that in -- in my -- in my -- in 9 my models.
10 Q. Okay, and you accepted the range
11 that he provided as reasonable?
12 A. I did.
13 Q. Do you believe that Mr. Kersh
14 provided false information to you concerning
15 the synergies that could be achieved?
16 A. I -- I -- I don't know the answer
17 to that. I -- because I mean we know the 18 business plan fell short of expectations,
19 number one, and it certainly seems as though
20 exceeding the hundred and fifty million would 21 have proved to be more of a challenge than I
22 thought at the time, but, you know, Mr. Kersh
23 and Sunbeam had a track record of executing
24 synergies at prior businesses and sometimes
25 even higher levels as a percentage of sales,

Page 79

1 Confidential - Conway
2 so there wasn't any reason to doubt his
3 communication to me.
4 Q. I've got one more of these drafts
5 also previously marked. This one is --
6 A. Sure.
7 Q. -- Exhibit 100.
8 A. Okay. Thank you. Okay.
9 Q. Mr. Conway, Exhibit 100 appears to 10 be another version of the selling memorandum, 11 doesn't it?
12 A. It -- it does.
13 Q. Okay. And as you might imagine, I
14 want to compare that version to the version
15 that we were just looking at, which was
16 Exhibit 183.
17 A. Okay.
18 Q. And in particular, if you could be 19 good enough to flip to page 16 of
20 Exhibit 100.
21 A. 16 of 100, okay.
22 Q. Which has the Bates stamp 62876.
23 A. Okay.
24 Q. And if you would at the same time
25 lay that side by side with the Bates stamp

Page 80

1 Confidential - Conway
2 63303 of Exhibit 183.
3 A. Okay.
4 Q. And I'm going to ask a few
5 questions about the differences between the 6 last bullet point on each of those pages,
7 both of which concern synergies. Do you see
8 those?
9 A. Yes, I do.
10 Q. Okay. You'll note in Exhibit 100
11 the synergies are not broken out, as they are 12 in Exhibit 183 --
13 A. Correct.
14 Q. -- on a per target basis. Do you
15 see that?
16 A. Yes, I do.
17 Q. Why is that?
18 A. I don't know. Someone must have 19 made a decision to -- between 6:55 a.m. that 20 day and 3:19 p.m. that day to edit the sign
21 point.
22 Q. Okay. And you weren't involved in 23 that process at all.
24 A. I do not believe I was involved in 25 changing the bullet point here. No, I can't

Page 81

1 Confidential - Conway
2 recall.
3 Q. Another difference you'll note is 4 that the major bullet on page -- on
5 Exhibit 100 states "Conservatively estimated
6 synergies of a hundred and fifty million
7 dollars --
8 A. Sure.
9 Q. -- whereas the major bullet on 183
10 states "Realizable synergies of a hundred and 11 fifty million dollars.
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. What's the basis for that revision?
14 A. I don't know, except as a key
15 selling point to potential investors I think
16 making selling points a little more robust, a
17 little more accurate in the selling thesis,
18 and in informing potential investors of -- of 19 what's realistic, there's usually a fine
20 tuning process, and it looks as though from 21 realizable synergies that perhaps they can 22 get to one fifty versus what was described as 23 conservatively estimated at one fifty, which 24 -- which potentially made it look as though
25 there was more profitability to -- to 020880

Page 82

1 Confidential - Conway
2 extract, was pretty similar to what Mr. Kersh
3 had echoed to me.
4 Q. Okay.
5 A. So that, to me, would be a fairly
6 common, you know, selling point.
7 Q. Okay. So you believe that the 8 statement in Exhibit 100 is more accurate at 9 the time than the statement in Exhibit 183.
10 A. But -- but based upon, you know, my 11 analysis and the conversations I had with Mr.
12 Kersh, at the margin, yeah.
13 Q. You said the desire is to make the 14 selling memorandum robust and accurate I
15 think are the two words that you used to 16 describe the goals with respect to the 17 selling point.
18 When you mean robust (sic), do you
19 mean to make the investment more attractive?
20 A. No. I mean to -- to make it
21 clearer for investors.
22 Q. Okay. Well --
23 A. As an example, you have an example
24 here of -- of more areas for which some of 25 the functional redundancies are available.

Page 83

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Actually, I think, if you flip over
3 to the next page of Exhibit 183, you'll see
4 the remainder of those functional --
5 A. Oh, okay.
6 Q. -- redundancies, so there's more
7 robust information there.
8 A. Oh, okay.
9 Q. And it seems that Exhibit 100 is 10 less robust with respect to specificity on 11 synergies, and I guess my question is, which 12 was already covered to some extent, whether 13 you have any idea why that is.
14 MR. CLARE: I object to the form
15 of the question.
16 MO Move to strike counsel's
17 characterization of the document.
18 You can answer.
19 A. I -- I think it's --
20 MR. CLARE: If you know.
21 A. (Continuing) I -- I -- I don't know
22 -- if the question is, you know, why were the 23 breakout of Coleman, First Alert and
24 Signature, as labeled here, removed in favor
25 of -- just -- just -- just removed, and then

Page 84

1 Confidential - Conway
2 the words changed, I don't know the answer to
3 that.
4 Q. Okay. Now we're going to flip
5 pages, if we could --
6 A. Sure.
7 Q. -- to page 22 of Exhibit 100 --
8 A. 22.
9 Q. -- which has the Bates stamp 62882.
10 A. Um-hm.
11 Q. And then the page 63309 of
12 Exhibit 183.
13 A. 63309, okay. Okay.
14 Q. Exhibit 100 refers to the "Ability
15 to attain synergies"; do you see that?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. And there's a -- in Exhibit 183 the 18 bullet is "Uncertainty of attaining
19 synergies."
20 Were you involved in any way in 21 making that revision?
22 A. None that -- not that I could
23 recall, no.
24 Q. Okay.
25 A. That -- that would -- you know,

Page 85

1 Confidential - Conway
2 again, probably been altered by the bankers
3 in light of my conversations with Mr. Kersh.
4 Q. Okay. But at some point you could
5 have conveyed your conversations with Mr.
6 Kersh to the bankers?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. And we kind of covered this
9 already, but maybe having spent a little more
10 time on these documents your memory will be 11 better.
12 Do you remember which banker or 13 bankers you conveyed your conversations with 14 Mr. Kersh to?
15 A. I don't. However, given that this
16 was emanating out of the Client Services
17 Group --
18 Q. Right.
19 A. -- it would seem -- and this looks
20 like they took responsibility for the selling
21 memorandum -- it -- probably they were
22 certainly one of the -- or the banker, you
23 know, involved in putting the document
24 together.
25 Q. So it probably --

020881

Page 86

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. But I don't recall who it was
3 specifically.
4 Q. Okay. But your assumption is that
5 someone in Client Services Group.
6 A. That would have been my assumption.
7 If -- if it was faxed to me, Clark, you know,
8 before 7:00 a.m., it's pretty early to start
9 the day to probably review and -- and -- and,
10 you know, read through it. I -- I -- I would 11 say that the selling points were more a
12 function of perhaps, you know, my due
13 diligence in talking to Management, and my 14 verbalizing the synergy revenue targets, and 15 my sense is the private -- you know, the 16 client bankers would take the information I
17 would verbalize and try to better encapsulate
18 them in the selling points.
19 Q. Okay. One other slight difference
20 between Exhibit 100 and Exhibit 183 is that 21 Exhibit 100 has added in a clause around the 22 middle of the paragraph -- response paragraph 23 that notes that "Management's confidence is,"
24 quote, "due to ten years' experience," close
25 quote. Do you see that?

Page 87

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Yeah.
3 Q. Okay. And the references to "ten 4 years' experience" doesn't appear in
5 Exhibit 183.
6 Do you have any recollection as to
7 why that revision was made?
8 A. Nope.
9 Q. Okay.
10 A. No, I don't.
11 Let me just see where this fits in 12 here. So -- (perusing document) "degree of 13 confidence" -- (reading). Oh, I see. So
14 that sentence -- okay, so they added yeah,
15 "due to ten years of experience."
16 Q. Is that information that you would
17 have conveyed to the Client Services Group?
18 Or do you know where that came
19 from?
20 A. I don't think that would have been 21 conveyed, because I think that would have 22 been more -- you know, the experience level
23 was known before I came onto the scene.
24 Q. Okay. Do you know whether, in 25 fact, somebody in Management did have ten

Page 88

1 Confidential - Conway
2 years' experience?
3 A. I don't recall, but I think, Clark,
4 by definition, you know, the upsizing of the 5 deal from 500 million and above, you know,
6 you know, had a lot to do with the reputation
7 or perceived reputation of Management's
8 ability to basically extract the synergies
9 and -- and provide the growth. So the 10 credibility factor, I think, if -- if -- if 11 there were investor questions -- and I don't 12 recall any -- about achieving ability, this 13 would certainly, again, underlie the fact
14 that they've been there, done that.
15 Q. Okay. And in Exhibit 100, like
16 some of the other drafts we saw, includes a
17 sentence that you, Andrew Conway, have
18 modeled a hundred and fifty million
19 dollars in synergies in 1998, and feels that 20 there could be an upside to this figure.
21 Did Mr. Kersh, when he gave you the 22 hundred and 50 million dollar figure, tell
23 you that he was relying on Coleman
24 management's ideas of synergies?
25 A. I don't recall that he gave any

Page 89

1 Confidential - Conway
2 specificity to documents, or who he was 3 relying on.
4 Q. So as you sit here today you don't
5 know with any specificity what information
6 Mr. Kersh was relying on in conveying to you
7 Management's perception that a hundred fifty
8 million dollars in synergies was realizable.
9 A. Correct.
10 Q. And you relied on Mr. Kersh's
11 estimates because he was particularly well
12 placed to determine what synergies could be 13 achieved?
14 A. That's correct. He -- he was the 15 chief financial officer of the company.
16 Q. And the company that would continue
17 going forward.
18 A. Correct.
19 MR. CLARE: Clark, are we at a
20 stopping point for five minutes, where 21 we could take a short break?
22 MR. JOHNSON: We could do that.
23 Let's see. Yeah, why don't we do that.
24 MR. CLARE: It's up to you.
25 MR. JOHNSON: That's fine. We 020882

Page 90

1 Confidential - Conway
2 have been on for almost two hours.
3 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
4 10:43 a.m. We're going off the record.
5 The time is 10:43 on June 4, 2004.
6 This is the end of tape number four of 7 the videotaped deposition of Mr. Andrew
8 Conway.
9 (Recess taken.)
10 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11 10:54 a.m. on June 4, 2002. This is 12 tape number two of the videotaped
13 deposition of Mr. Andrew Conway.
14 Q. All right, Mr. Conway, before the 15 break we were talking about synergies and 16 looking at some documents that referred to 17 synergies to be achieved from Sunbeam's
18 acquisitions.
19 Did anyone other than you at Morgan
20 Stanley model synergies to be attained from 21 the transactions?
22 A. No, not that I know of.
23 Q. So you didn't have any
24 conversations with any of the investment
25 bankers concerning modeling that they had

Page 91

1 Confidential - Conway
2 done on synergies.
3 A. That is correct. Not -- not that I
4 can recall.
5 Q. And did you understand that in
6 addition to the convertible offering, Morgan
7 Stanley was going to be leading a bank
8 syndicate to finance the acquisitions?
9 A. I don't recall whether I knew about
10 that at the time, because I was pretty 11 focused on the convertible deal when asked to 12 talk to clients, so I -- so I don't recall
13 the other financing roles that the Morgan
14 Stanley played.
15 Q. And so you didn't have any role in,
16 say, finding other lenders to participate.
17 A. No.
18 Q. Okay.
19 A. No.
20 Q. I give you what was marked
21 previously as Exhibit 145.
22 A. Okay. Okay, thanks. Okay.
23 Q. Mr. Conway, Exhibit 145 is a cover
24 memo from Bram Smith to the Leveraged Finance
25 Commitment Committee, and it encloses a memo

Page 92

1 Confidential - Conway
2 from a number of individuals, including you,
3 to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee
4 dated March 20, 1998. Do you see that?
5 A. I've never seen this.
6 Q. You've never seen the cover page?
7 A. That's -- I don't recall ever
8 seeing the cover page.
9 Q. Okay. How about what follows the 10 cover page?
11 A. Um -- (perusing document) I don't
12 recall.
13 Q. So you don't recall getting any 14 drafts of this, or providing any comments on 15 it?
16 A. I don't recall, no.
17 Q. And you certainly didn't draft it
18 yourself?
19 A. That's correct.
20 But it looks like it was similar to 21 the other (inaudible), no?
22 (Discussion off the record.)
23 A. (Continuing) It looks like it was 24 similar to what prior --
25 Q. Maybe you said the selling

Page 93

1 Confidential - Conway
2 memorandum?
3 A. Yeah, the selling memorandum.
4 But no, I can't recall ever seeing
5 this document.
6 Q. Okay. As you sit here today do you
7 have any idea what information the Morgan
8 Stanley Leveraged Finance Commitment
9 Committee relied on in deciding to extend
10 secured financing to somebody?
11 A. No, I'm unsure as to what 12 information they relied upon.
13 Q. And you didn't have any
14 conversations with anyone on that Leveraged
15 Finance Commitment Committee concerning
16 whether or not Morgan Stanley should lend
17 money to somebody.
18 A. Correct.
19 Q. Do you know what synergies Morgan
20 Stanley Senior Funding was expecting Sunbeam
21 to achieve in connection with the 22 acquisition?
23 A. No.
24 I'm not sure what you mean by 25 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding.

020883

Page 94

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Have you heard of Morgan Stanley
3 Senior Funding?
4 A. No.
5 Q. You've never heard that term
6 before.
7 A. No.
8 Q. Did you understand that Morgan
9 Stanley had a business unit or affiliate that 10 provided secured financing in connection with 11 M&A deals that Morgan Stanley investment
12 bankers had put together?
13 A. I -- I may have been aware that we 14 -- we make loans to corporations.
15 Q. But you didn't know which Morgan
16 Stanley entity made loans to corporations.
17 A. That's correct.
18 Q. Okay. Did you perform any modeling
19 of the acquisitions that assumed that no
20 synergies would be attained from the
21 acquisitions?
22 A. I don't believe I did, no.
23 Q. Did you perform any modeling with 24 synergies assumed to be any number other than 25 one hundred and fifty for the three

Page 95

1 Confidential - Conway
2 acquisitions?
3 A. I don't believe I did, no.
4 As an analyst, I would have done
5 sensitivities had they exceeded that, you
6 know, in terms of what that could have meant
7 potentially to earnings per share been proven
8 (sic).
9 Q. And as you sit here do you have any 10 sense of how the $150 million in synergies is 11 apportioned among the three targets?
12 A. Other than reading the prior 13 selling memorandum in terms of how it was 14 split up among the three, I would not have 15 recalled other than being refreshed.
16 Q. Okay. And that was the document
17 that listed Coleman at $100 million.
18 A. Correct.
19 Q. Have you ever had any dealings with 20 the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee of 21 Sunbeam --
22 A. No.
23 Q. -- excuse me, of Morgan Stanley?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Okay. So you don't know what their

Page 96

1 Confidential - Conway
2 decision-making process is.
3 A. Correct.
4 Q. At any of the other investment
5 banks where you've worked have you been
6 involved in leveraged finance decision-
7 making?
8 A. No.
9 MR. JOHNSON: I think this is
10 previously marked, but unfortunately I
11 don't have a marked copy or know the 12 exhibit number, so I'm just going to 13 re-mark it. This will be CPH -- what 14 did I say, 217? Right.
15 (CPH Exhibit 217, memo describing 16 potential loan, marked for 17 identification, as of this date.)
18 (Handing.)
19 THE WITNESS: Oh, thank you.
20 Q. I'll start with an easy question.
21 Have you ever seen Exhibit 217
22 before?
23 A. I don't believe so. No.
24 Q. Can you determine what the purpose
25 of Exhibit 217 is?

Page 97

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. I can't determine what it is, no.
3 It looks like a memorandum describing a
4 potential loan.
5 Q. I wonder if you would be kind
6 enough to look at the page marked 45692.
7 A. Okay.
8 Q. At the bottom of the page there's a
9 box entitled "Coleman Summary of Potential
10 Operating Deficiencies"; do you see that?
11 A. Um-hm, um-hm.
12 Q. Do you know where any of that 13 information came from?
14 A. Nope.
15 Q. Do you know one way or the other
16 whether any of this information is accurate?
17 A. (Reading) Well, it looks like on 18 the operational synergies some of that, you
19 know, we've seen before in a prior 20 memorandum, selling document. Some of the 21 revenue synergies could have been covered,
22 you know, in conversations I had with Mr.
23 Kersh. I don't recall. They're pretty
24 common. There's nothing -- they're pretty
25 broad. They're common.

020884

Page 98

1 Confidential - Conway
2 I don't recall these, though.
3 Q. Okay. And you don't recall
4 conveying to anyone on the leveraged financed
5 (sic) team any synergy information.
6 A. Absolutely.
7 Q. Absolutely not.
8 A. Absolutely not. I've never
9 communicated with anyone, that I can recall,
10 on the leveraged finance team at all.
11 Q. If you'd also then flip to page
12 45697.
13 A. Okay. Okay.
14 Q. In the middle of the page you see a
15 bullet, "Ability to Attain Synergies."
16 A. Um-hm.
17 Q. And this is similar to some of the 18 provisions we've looked at in other exhibits
19 today?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. Did you have any knowledge that 22 your name was being used in connection with 23 seeking participants in the leveraged
24 financing?
25 A. No.

Page 99

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. No one consulted you --
3 A. No.
4 Q. -- prior to circulating this, to
5 your knowledge.
6 A. Correct.
7 Q. All right, I'm going to show you a
8 series of documents, Mr. Conway, and we might 9 pick up the pace here. Let's see. This has 10 been marked Exhibit 205 previously.
11 A. Okay.
12 Q. Have you ever seen Exhibit 205?
13 A. No.
14 Q. Okay. You'll note a fax header on 15 the first page, "Coopers & Lybrand," and it's 16 dated February 27, '98?
17 A. Yeah, I just noticed that.
18 Q. Okay. And I think you've already
19 testified to this. You had no interaction
20 whatsoever with Coopers & Lybrand?
21 A. Correct.
22 Q. Did anyone ever share with you the 23 synergies estimates that Coopers & Lybrand
24 put together?
25 A. No.

Page 100

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Unless it was Mr. Kersh indirectly?
3 A. Correct.
4 Q. Okay. And I take it, then, that 5 you have no idea what information Coopers &
6 Lybrand relied on in its synergies analysis.
7 A. That's correct.
8 Q. Okay. Okay, this one's been marked
9 previously as Exhibit 97.
10 A. Exhibit 97? Okay.
11 MR. JOHNSON: If anyone has 12 highlighting on his copy, let me know.
13 THE WITNESS: Okay.
14 MR. CLARE: I do not.
15 MR. JOHNSON: Okay.
16 THE WITNESS: I do not either.
17 Q. Okay. Have you ever seen what's 18 been marked previously as Exhibit 97?
19 A. No.
20 Q. You know that Project Laser refers
21 to Sunbeam's M&A project with Morgan Stanley?
22 A. Okay. Do I know that?
23 Q. Yeah.
24 A. I don't believe I had, no.
25 Q. If you look at the three center

Page 101

1 Confidential - Conway
2 columns, there's headings, "Original," "Rev,"
3 period, that's "December '97," and "Rev,"
4 period, "January '98"?
5 A. I'm sorry, I lost you.
6 Q. Sure. I'm looking at the three
7 center columns.
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. And the three headings --
10 A. Um-hm.
11 Q. -- on those columns --
12 A. Um-hm.
13 Q. -- and then the grand totals
14 associated with those three columns, those 15 appear to show a downward revision of 16 synergies; do they not?
17 A. Um-hm. They do.
18 Q. You had no discussions with anyone
19 at Morgan Stanley as to revising down the 20 synergies to seventy -- excuse me, $67
21 million?
22 A. I did not.
23 Q. And no one at Morgan Stanley ever
24 told you that your 100 million-dollar synergy
25 figure for Coleman was inappropriate.

020885

Page 102

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Correct.
3 Q. Do you know the source of any of 4 the synergy information that appears in
5 Exhibit 97?
6 A. No, I don't.
7 Q. Let me show you what's been marked
8 previously as Exhibit 160.
9 Have you ever seen Exhibit 160
10 before?
11 A. No, I have not.
12 Q. Okay. So it's fair to say that you
13 didn't rely on Exhibit 160 in performing your 14 synergies analysis?
15 A. That's correct.
16 Q. Do you recognize any of the
17 handwriting on Exhibit 160?
18 A. I do not recognize any of the
19 handwriting on Exhibit 160.
20 Q. I'm going to show you a fax that I
21 think we already mentioned today.
22 A. Okay.
23 MR. JOHNSON: We'll mark this as
24 Exhibit 218.
25 (CPH Exhibit 218, Mr. Dormer fax

Page 103

1 Confidential - Conway
2 to Mr. Conway, with attachments, marked
3 for identification, as of this date.)
4 (Handing.)
5 THE WITNESS: Okay, thank you.
6 Q. Mr. Conway, is this the fax you
7 were referring to earlier today?
8 A. Yes.
9 The cover page is.
10 Q. Okay.
11 Were the attachments different than 12 the ones that you looked at with Mr. Clare?
13 A. Did not see the attachments with
14 Mr. Clare.
15 Q. Okay. This is a fax to you from 16 Jim Dormer?
17 A. Um-hm.
18 Q. And it's faxed to a San
19 Francisco --
20 A. Um-hm.
21 Q. -- area code.
22 Do you know hat number that is?
23 A. It's probably my hotel number where 24 I was staying, visiting clients on the West
25 Coast.

Page 104

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. And that was the Ritz Carlton?
3 A. It could have been the Carlton or
4 the Mandarin Oriental. It was -- unless it
5 says here. I don't recall exactly where I
6 was staying.
7 Q. I'll represent I called the number
8 yesterday, and they answered -- (speaking
9 simultaneously).
10 A. The Ritz Carlton, okay. Very good.
11 Okay, I was staying at the Ritz Carlton.
12 Q. What were you doing in San
13 Francisco?
14 A. I was visiting my clients, my 15 institutional investor clients, who were 16 getting some color on the beverage industry.
17 Q. Did you talk about Sunbeam with 18 those clients?
19 A. I did not talk about Sunbeam with 20 those clients in San Francisco.
21 Q. Did you talk about Sunbeam with
22 those clients anywhere else?
23 A. I had a brief discussion with a
24 client in Portland who asked me much like we 25 talked about, you know, why I was taking lead

Page 105

1 Confidential - Conway
2 coverage of Sunbeam. And then I probably 3 returned the phone call here stated on the 4 fax, from a client who was looking at I guess
5 the convertible deal, and our forecasts.
6 Q. Okay.
7 A. Pretty standard, you know, client
8 question.
9 Q. Okay. There's a number in 10 handwriting on the cover page of Exhibit 218.
11 A. Um-hm.
12 Q. Do you recognize that number?
13 A. I -- I don't recognize that number.
14 Q. I think 650 is a Silicon Valley
15 area code. Does that help you remember?
16 A. It does not look like my writing.
17 Q. Okay.
18 A. Interestingly.
19 Nor does the writing on the next
20 page. It doesn't look like my penmanship.
21 Q. Was anyone traveling with you when 22 you were in San Francisco?
23 A. No. I was traveling alone.
24 But I generally meet my -- we have 25 a branch office in San Francisco, and I was 020886

Page 106

1 Confidential - Conway
2 probably meeting my institutional sales
3 representatives, and visiting different
4 client accounts.
5 Q. Okay, was Mr. Strong in San
6 Francisco at the same time as you?
7 A. No, I don't believe so.
8 Q. So you didn't -- to your knowledge,
9 you didn't have any conversations with him
10 while you were in San Francisco?
11 A. I don't recall.
12 Q. Do you know what Mr. Strong's role
13 was on the Sunbeam transaction?
14 A. Not specifically, no.
15 Q. Do you have a general sense of his 16 involvement?
17 A. I have a general sense of he's --
18 was a very -- a very well-known relationship
19 investment banker in Morgan Stanley. Beyond
20 that, I don't know who his contacts or points
21 of contact were with Sunbeam.
22 Q. Okay. When you say he's a
23 well-known relationship investment banker,
24 that means he generates a lot of business for 25 Morgan Stanley?

Page 107

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. I believe so, yes.
3 Q. Now, the message box on the cover
4 page here is a message from Jim Dormer to
5 you?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. And it refers to Mitch Cone at 8 Franklin.
9 Can you tell us again who Mitch
10 Cone is at Franklin?
11 A. I don't remember Mitch Cone.
12 Q. Okay.
13 A. He was not a core beverage client
14 of mine, but -- but either an equity holder
15 in something or someone interested in playing
16 a role in placing an order to eventually buy
17 the convertible deal.
18 Q. The message box notes that Mr. Cone
19 would like a call concerning the top line
20 growth forecast for Sunbeam.
21 A. Um-hm.
22 Q. That's essentially Sunbeam revenue
23 forecast?
24 A. Um-hm. Yeah.
25 Q. Did you talk to Mr. Cone about that

Page 108

1 Confidential - Conway
2 topic?
3 A. I -- I don't recall.
4 Maybe the number on here is
5 Franklin's telephone number.
6 I don't recall speaking to Mitch,
7 but being an analyst involved in the deal,
8 the likelihood that I certainly returned the 9 call to touch base on the business is 10 probably a good one.
11 Q. During that call, do you remember
12 anyone, either you or Mr. Cone or anyone
13 else, voicing any skepticism about the growth
14 forecast?
15 A. No, because I don't remember
16 actually making the call or speaking to him.
17 But I'm sure that as an analyst, part of my 18 responsibility was to return the call.
19 Q. Is part of your responsibility to 20 stand by the growth forecasts that the 21 investment bankers are including in any of 22 their documents?
23 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
24 A. I -- I would say that part of the 25 responsibility would be to guide him through

Page 109

1 Confidential - Conway
2 the revenue and earnings outlook based upon
3 the due diligence that I had done.
4 MR. CLARE: I think there may be
5 some miscommunication.
6 Are you still referring to Mr.
7 Cone in your answer?
8 THE WITNESS: Yes.
9 MR. CLARE: Okay. I'm not sure
10 the question called for your
11 conversation with Mr. Cone. I believe
12 Mr. Johnson was asking you a question,
13 and I'll let him ask his question as he
14 wants to, but I think he was asking a
15 question about Morgan Stanley
16 investment bankers.
17 THE WITNESS: Oh, OK.
18 MR. CLARE: I just want to make
19 sure there's no --
20 Q. I -- I missed the disconnect that
21 he seems to perceive, so I'm not sure --
22 A. I thought you were asking me in 23 response to backing up, or in my conversation
24 with Mr. Cone.
25 Q. Well, let's talk about more

020887

Page 110

1 Confidential - Conway
2 generally.
3 A. Okay.
4 Q. In your role to help sell the 5 convertible offering --
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. -- did you view it as your
8 responsibility to stand by the information
9 that your fellow investment bankers were 10 conveying to the market?
11 A. I don't know what my fellow
12 investment bankers were conveying to the 13 market.
14 Q. Okay.
15 A. I know I was standing by my view of 16 the revenue and outlook estimates as I was 17 able to ascertain through my own
18 communication with Mr. Kersh.
19 Q. Okay, so you --
20 A. If my -- I'm -- I wasn't privy to 21 other conversations with other potential
22 investors or what the sales force was maybe
23 communicating to investors.
24 Q. Okay. And no one at Morgan Stanley
25 conveyed to you the results of any due

Page 111

1 Confidential - Conway
2 diligence that they had performed.
3 A. That's correct.
4 Q. And you don't know what due
5 diligence anyone else at Morgan Stanley
6 performed.
7 A. That is correct.
8 Q. Can you identify the attachments to 9 Mr. Dormer's fax to you?
10 A. In looking at them here, I don't 11 remember receiving the attachments, much like 12 I don't remember the event of receiving the 13 fax, but I certainly recognize the 14 attachments were probably sent in response to 15 answering the questions the client may have.
16 Now, the -- page two looks like historical 17 financials. Page three looks like a, you
18 know, warrant and the effect on EPS of adding 19 more shares on the convertible deal. Pretty 20 standard. Next page, again historical
21 earnings, more detailed, more easily
22 readable. And the next page would have been
23 also the actual reported accounting results
24 of -- looks like Sunbeam, Coleman, First 25 Alert and Signature.

Page 112

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Page two of the fax, which has the
3 Bates stamp MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 4725,
4 the pro forma income statement?
5 A. Okay. Oh, page two, okay.
6 Q. You've got it.
7 Do you know who prepared that pro
8 forma income statement?
9 A. I do not know who prepared that.
10 It -- it -- I don't know.
11 Q. And the subheading notes, "Camper 12 synergies of $100 million"; do you see that?
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. Do you know what that refers to?
15 A. I'm assuming it refers to Coleman
16 synergies of a hundred million dollars.
17 Q. And do you know whether that is 18 based on your synergy analysis?
19 A. I don't know whether it's based on 20 my synergy analysis, but it's consistent with 21 my synergy analysis.
22 Q. Right.
23 Now, you didn't end up initiating
24 equity research coverage on Sunbeam; is that 25 correct?

Page 113

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. That is correct.
3 Q. And why is that?
4 A. Well, I don't -- I'm not -- I don't
5 know the answer to that except to say that my
6 contact with either, you know, investment
7 bankers or my boss Dennis Shea kind of on the 8 issue of Sunbeam ceased to exist I believe
9 after the larger earnings announcement. I
10 can't also recall my boss ever mentioning to 11 me, you know, that I would initiate on 12 Sunbeam, but clearly I saw it in -- in the 13 documents. And that may be standard, you
14 know, follow-up on -- on an equity, covering
15 a company from an equity investment role.
16 But I can tell you that shortly
17 after the -- I guess the bigger earnings
18 announcement, I don't know that Sunbeam came 19 into contact with me ever again other than 20 what I probably read in the papers.
21 Q. Okay. So prior to having --
22 A. And I don't know where the share
23 price went either.
24 Q. Okay.
25 A. Or the market cap.

020888

Page 114

1 Confidential - Conway
2 That would have been a determinant,
3 too.
4 Q. So it if went below a certain
5 market cap, you wouldn't cover it?
6 A. I think there's a point at which --
7 you know, institutional investors have a
8 certain threshold for market caps, and, you
9 know, if it falls below that, it's -- from a 10 time effort and efficiency standpoint, you
11 know, is it worthwhile.
12 Q. Is there also a share price,
13 putting aside market cap?
14 A. I -- maybe.
15 But I think that the job of -- of 16 -- of -- if -- if it's -- if it's not within 17 your core coverage, the job of basically
18 writing on the company usually is a request,
19 as it was at this point, to take a role in 20 the convertible deal from Dennis Shea.
21 And all I -- I don't remember,
22 beyond the second earnings announcement
23 disappointment, that I was broached again to 24 ever, you know -- to continue the process of 25 initiating on Sunbeam. I don't recall ever

Page 115

1 Confidential - Conway
2 -- my role almost ceased to exist.
3 Q. Okay. Does it make sense from your
4 perspective to initiate coverage on a company
5 that is experiencing severe difficulties?
6 A. Well, sometimes I don't think
7 there's a clear qualm. I think our plan was 8 that perhaps Jim Dormer would have taken a
9 larger role covering the household product
10 space. As I said, a lead analyst and someone 11 who had a reputation, the -- the -- the -- my 12 sense is the way it -- I believe it would
13 have gone is I would have initiated coverage
14 and then probably been the lead analyst but 15 begun to hand it to an analyst, an analyst
16 that had a wider role in that type of space.
17 Q. I guess my question is slightly
18 different.
19 A. Okay.
20 Q. Could you imagine initiating
21 research on a company when you didn't 22 anticipate saying anything positive about the 23 company?
24 A. Yes.
25 MR. CLARE: Objection.

Page 116

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Go ahead. Sorry. I was going to
3 object to the form of the question.
4 THE WITNESS: Okay.
5 Q. And the answer yes?
6 A. Oh, yeah! Of course!
7 And -- and -- and -- and, you know,
8 the analysis outperformed neutral
9 underperformance as a function of your 10 strategic view, Management view, and
11 valuation of the cash flows of the business.
12 Q. So the only reason that equity
13 research was not initiated on Sunbeam, to 14 your knowledge, is that it fell below a
15 certain market cap?
16 A. No, that's not correct.
17 Q. Okay.
18 A. I don't know, I don't have a
19 recollection as to the answer as to why --
20 why I was not asked to initiate coverage on
21 Sunbeam.
22 What I do know is that after that
23 second earnings period my role with Sunbeam
24 ceased.
25 Q. Okay. And you don't know why that

Page 117

1 Confidential - Conway
2 is.
3 A. I don't know why that is.
4 Q. Okay.
5 A. I mean I -- I -- I have an idea
6 when things got tough, but I -- I don't --
7 there -- there was -- the fact that I wasn't
8 spending a lot of time and energy initiating
9 and building a model and, you know, trying to 10 get a hold of Mr. Kersh and the team, it
11 wasn't noticed -- in fact, I wasn't 12 disappointing my Management team. They 13 weren't saying, Andrew, we still need you to 14 stay on track. It just petered out.
15 Which is why when I saw the 16 leveraged finance documents I think July that 17 year I was literally -- by that April I --
18 that was -- that was the last time I played a 19 role.
20 Q. When you say you have an idea as to 21 why coverage -- well, you said you had an 22 idea as to why your role petered out, and I
23 guess I want to know what it is.
24 A. Well, to your point, I don't -- it
25 -- it either -- it wasn't important for my 020889

Page 118

1 Confidential - Conway
2 franchise to cover Sunbeam, because I was a
3 beverage analyst, and it may not have been 4 the most efficient use of my time at that 5 juncture.
6 Q. Okay. And as far as what other
7 people would decide as to how to use your
8 time --
9 A. Um-hm.
10 Q. -- you don't know why, other than 11 general inefficient use of time, why they 12 didn't ask you to keep with Sunbeam.
13 A. Correct. You'd have to ask my boss
14 that.
15 You know, beyond, again, the points
16 of maybe the market cap or the size of the 17 business or -- or the timing wasn't right to 18 initiate for various, you know, difficulties
19 in their view. My view was that, all I know
20 is I continued to -- to perform my job as 21 best I could, and there was no effort made by 22 my superiors to continue to initiate on
23 Sunbeam.
24 Q. Well, I mean as a practical matter,
25 it would be difficult to release a report

Page 119

1 Confidential - Conway
2 severely criticizing Sunbeam within weeks of 3 underwriting a debt offering for Sunbeam,
4 wouldn't it?
5 MR. CLARE: Objection, incomplete
6 hypothetical.
7 A. Not necessarily, no. I -- I -- no.
8 I think, you know, analysts are objective,
9 and they -- they will, you know, mod -- you
10 know, as an analyst I was -- as I said, I
11 knew just my role with the convertible deal.
12 Q. I'm going to show you what we have
13 marked previously as Exhibit 17.
14 A. Okay.
15 MR. CLARE: Clark, reviewing this,
16 my copy has some handwriting on page
17 MS 0379. I don't know if that's part 18 of the original exhibit. Or this is 19 your markings?
20 MR. JOHNSON: Let me see the 21 handwriting.
22 Q. Why don't you stop looking at that.
23 A. I have it, too.
24 Q. Okay, let me have that back. I
25 think that's not intended to be on the

Page 120

1 Confidential - Conway
2 exhibit.
3 MR. JOHNSON: Do you have a clean
4 one? Great.
5 Do we have any extra copies?
6 MR. CLARE: For the record, beyond
7 seeing the handwriting, I did not read
8 the handwriting that was on it other
9 than recognizing it and passing it back
10 to counsel without having reviewed it.
11 MR. JOHNSON: Yeah, it's -- it's 12 not a problem. I'll note that the 13 handwriting does say "Through first 2
14 months running at half," and we'll get 15 to the significance of that in a 16 minute.
17 THE WITNESS: Okay.
18 MR. JOHNSON: So you can take that 19 back.
20 THE WITNESS: Okay.
21 MR. JOHNSON: Tom, I know you've
22 seen this document before, but you
23 can --
24 MR. CLARE: Do you have a clean
25 one for me?

Page 121

1 Confidential - Conway
2 MR. JOHNSON: No. It's not a
3 clean one. I don't mind if you have 4 it. You probably can't read my
5 handwriting anyway.
6 MR. CLARE: I don't want to read
7 your handwriting.
8 A. There's some check here toward the 9 end.
10 Q. That's fine. I think those are 11 auditors' marks.
12 You've never seen what's been 13 marked as Exhibit 17 prior to today; is that 14 correct?
15 A. Correct.
16 Q. Mr. Clare didn't show this to you?
17 A. Mr. Clare may have -- may have
18 showed me something like this on Wednesday.
19 I -- I can't remember if this is the exact
20 document.
21 Q. Okay. But you saw something from 22 Arthur Andersen?
23 A. I think I did.
24 Q. By the way, did you ever talk to 25 anyone from Arthur Andersen in connection

020890

Page 122

1 Confidential - Conway
2 with Sunbeam?
3 A. No. Never.
4 Q. If you could look at page four of
5 the letter, which has the Bates stamp 378.
6 A. Okay.
7 Q. Actually, let's back up to 377, if 8 I could.
9 A. 377? Okay.
10 Q. Did you learn at any point during 11 the first quarter of 1998 that Sunbeam had 12 the sales and earnings information that's set
13 forth on page three of Exhibit 17?
14 A. Say that again?
15 Was I aware of this information?
16 Q. Correct.
17 A. No.
18 Q. Okay.
19 A. I've never seen this document.
20 Q. Were you aware of Sunbeam's sales
21 and earnings numbers through January in the 22 first quarter of 1998?
23 A. No.
24 I was not aware of any information
25 on earnings trends until the first public

Page 123

1 Confidential - Conway
2 announcement came, you know, in the 3 marketplace.
4 Q. Okay.
5 And I'll note for the record this 6 letter, Exhibit 17, is dated the same day as 7 the press release, the first public
8 announcement?
9 A. Okay.
10 Q. Does that information help you
11 remember in any way whether you requested
12 what Sunbeam's actual figures were during the 13 first quarter of 1998?
14 A. I don't believe I did. And it's
15 unusual for an analyst to request, you know,
16 -- unless this would be in the public
17 domain --
18 Q. Okay.
19 A. -- it's unusual for an analyst to 20 get information like this. But -- so --
21 Q. So the answer's no?
22 A. No. The answer's no.
23 Q. Okay. If you look at page 378 now.
24 That's page four of the letter.
25 A. Okay.

Page 124

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Paragraph 6(b) explains that "Sales
3 have decreased as a result of an early buy
4 program," quote, "which accelerated outdoor 5 grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 6 1997."
7 A. Um-hm.
8 Q. Were you aware that Sunbeam had 9 accelerated sales into the fourth quarter of 10 1997?
11 A. No, I was not.
12 Q. Was that information that you would 13 have deemed significant?
14 A. Yes, it would have been important
15 to know. You know, that -- that has a 16 bearing on seasonality. It has a bearing on 17 whether it's momentary, channel issue or a
18 more secular or more problematic issue.
19 Q. And by that you mean it would 20 inform the quality of the revenue the company
21 was receiving.
22 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
23 A. Well, it -- it would -- it would -- 24 it would -- depending upon -- it would -- the 25 -- the -- the -- the question is whether this

Page 125

1 Confidential - Conway
2 was more of a one-time inventory adjustment
3 or whether there was a more permanent
4 take-down of inventory levels.
5 Q. Okay.
6 A. Either way, those are important
7 pieces of information for an analyst.
8 Q. Okay. Now, if you'd flip to page
9 379, which is page five of the letter.
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. There is a subparagraph (c) which 12 contains sales information through the first 13 two months of the first quarter of 1998.
14 A. Um-hm.
15 Q. And that shows sales in 1998
16 running at approximately half of sales for 17 the prior year period; do you see that?
18 A. I do.
19 Q. That, I assume, is information that 20 would be important to an analyst?
21 A. Yes.
22 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
23 Go ahead.
24 MR. JOHNSON: He answered.
25 MR. CLARE: Yeah.

020891

Page 126

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. (Continuing) The answer is yes.
3 Q. Okay. And you were -- you were not
4 aware of the sales situation at Sunbeam as of
5 March 19, 1998.
6 A. That -- that's correct.
7 Nor did my conversations with Mr.
8 Kersh ever, you know, talk about this
9 scenario.
10 Q. He conveyed positive, everything on 11 track type information during your calls?
12 A. Correct.
13 Q. Okay. Are you surprised to see
14 these numbers as you sit here today?
15 A. Very.
16 Q. I'm going to give you what's been
17 marked as Exhibit 112 previously.
18 A. (Perusing document) The first sheet
19 is just --
20 Q. I'll tell you for the record, the 21 first is an auditor's work sheet, cover
22 sheet.
23 A. Okay. (Perusing document.)
24 Q. Mr. Conway, have you ever seen the 25 document we've marked as Exhibit 112?

Page 127

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. No, I haven't.
3 Q. Putting aside the cover sheet, you
4 haven't seen the accompanying letter; is that
5 correct?
6 A. Correct.
7 Q. And no one at Morgan Stanley
8 conveyed the information in this letter to 9 you; is that correct?
10 A. That is correct.
11 Q. If you look at the last page of
12 Exhibit 112.
13 A. What is 112?
14 Q. The last page of Exhibit 112.
15 A. Oh, okay. Last page of exhibit,
16 okay.
17 Q. Yeah. This shows a loss for the 18 two months, first two months of 1998 of $41
19 million as compared to a profit for the first 20 two months of 1997 of $9.7 millin; do you see
21 that?
22 A. I do.
23 Q. Did you have any of that
24 information at any point during the first
25 quarter of 1998?

Page 128

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. No.
3 Q. Okay. And does that information
4 surprise you as you sit here today?
5 A. Yes, it does.
6 Q. That's information that would be
7 significant to any investor?
8 MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for
9 speculation with regard to investors.
10 You can answer it.
11 A. Yes, it would be important for 12 investors to know the underlying business
13 trends.
14 Q. Okay. And given your experiences
15 as an analyst, it's safe to say, isn't it,
16 that the market would have a significant
17 reaction to that information?
18 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
19 A. Yes, it would.
20 And it eventually did in some
21 manner.
22 Q. And when you say "it eventually 23 did," that's when the April press release
24 came out showing the loss?
25 A. Well, there were two press

Page 129

1 Confidential - Conway
2 releases. There was -- as I recall in
3 reviewing the time line, there was a March
4 press release and an April press release, so
5 I think in both instances the share price
6 traded off. I don't know the amounts, but --
7 Q. Right.
8 The March press release --
9 MR. JOHNSON: Let me strike that.
10 Q. Do you recall any of the substance
11 of the March press release?
12 A. I just recall a announcement that
13 sales were, in reviewing the time line, a
14 little lighter than Management thought.
15 Q. Okay. It didn't say sales were 16 half of the prior year period.
17 A. I don't recall, but I don't sense
18 that I remember that.
19 Q. And then the April press release
20 we've already mentioned, you remember the 21 substance of that is that Sunbeam would have 22 a loss for the quarter?
23 A. I just remember it was more 24 specific and more material in terms of 25 information.

020892

Page 130

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. Okay. I'm going to show you what's
3 been marked previously as Exhibit 197.
4 A. Okay. Okay. (Perusing document).
5 Q. Have you ever seen Exhibit 197
6 before?
7 A. Never. No, I haven't.
8 Q. Okay. Did you have any
9 understanding that Morgan Stanley Senior
10 Funding has filed a lawsuit against McAndrews
11 & Forbes or Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
12 MR. CLARE: It's a yes or no
13 question.
14 A. Yes.
15 Q. Okay. And other than what you've 16 learned from counsel, do you have any 17 understanding about the nature of that 18 lawsuit?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Okay. Did you ever have the 21 opinion that Morgan Stanley was defrauded by 22 McAndrews & Forbes or Coleman (Parent)
23 Holdings?
24 MR. CLARE: Objection, lack of
25 foundation.

Page 131

1 Confidential - Conway
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. Okay. And who from McAndrews &
4 Forbes or Coleman (Parent) Holdings defrauded
5 anyone from Morgan Stanley?
6 A. I'm going to rephrase the question
7 I felt as an analyst -- okay? -- you know, in 8 terms of the -- the -- the projections and 9 the due diligence, that, you know, I was, you
10 know, completely, you know, lied to, so from 11 an assessment of -- of where the business is 12 versus where it should be, you know. Now,
13 whether that's -- I can't determine fraud or 14 not fraud, so I wasn't sure, but, you know,
15 given the events of how they transpired.
16 Q. Okay. And you mentioned Mr. Kersh
17 as someone who you thought gave you false
18 information; is that correct?
19 A. That is correct.
20 Q. Okay, anybody else?
21 A. Not that I know of. My only two
22 company contacts were Mr. Kersh and Mr.
23 Fannin.
24 Q. Okay.
25 A. I can't remember what information

Page 132

1 Confidential - Conway
2 specifically, you know, Mr. Fannin gave me.
3 Q. Right.
4 Now, you understand that Mr. Kersh
5 and Mr. Fannin were employees of Sunbeam, not 6 McAndrews & Forbes and Coleman (Parent)
7 Holdings.
8 A. I may have misjudged the question
9 then.
10 Q. I think that's maybe what may have 11 happened.
12 A. I may have, so if you could repeat
13 your questions.
14 Q. Let's -- yeah. Let's start with a
15 clean record.
16 Your testimony about being misled
17 concerned Sunbeam misleading Morgan Stanley;
18 is that correct?
19 A. Correct.
20 Q. Do you have any basis to believe
21 that anyone from McAndrews & Forbes or 22 Coleman misled anyone from Morgan Stanley?
23 A. No, I have no basis for that.
24 Q. I feel better now.
25 A. Okay. I'm sorry.

Page 133

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. No, it's okay.
3 MR. CLARE: I object and move to 4 strike.
5 (Laughter.)
6 Q. No, that's fine. A
7 misunderstanding.
8 A. Yeah, I --
9 Q. I understand.
10 McAndrews & Forbes later became a
11 substantial owner of Sunbeam, didn't it?
12 MR. CLARE: Did you know that?
13 A. I didn't know that.
14 Q. Okay. I thought maybe that was the 15 basis for the confusion, but anyway.
16 If you'd look at the first page of
17 Exhibit 197.
18 A. Um-hm.
19 Q. In the middle of the paragraph 20 number one there's a sentence that states "In 21 the course of these transactions Defendants"
22 -- and that's McAndrews & Forbes and Coleman
23 (Parent) Holdings -- "provided Sunbeam and 24 its lenders with a series of false
25 information about the," quote, "synergies,"

020893

Page 134

1 Confidential - Conway
2 close quote, "that Sunbeam could expect to 3 achieve in the combination of Sunbeam and 4 Coleman." Do you know any facts supporting
5 that allegation?
6 A. No, I don't.
7 Q. Were you involved in any way in the 8 Sunbeam bankruptcy?
9 A. No.
10 Q. Okay. Do you have any idea what 11 Morgan Stanley recovered from the Sunbeam
12 bankruptcy?
13 A. No, I don't.
14 Q. If you'd look at page seven of the 15 document we've marked as Exhibit 197.
16 A. Okay.
17 Q. Paragraph number 21.
18 A. Okay.
19 Q. And that -- that paragraph 21
20 carries over onto page eight. If you would 21 read that for me.
22 A. (Reading) Okay.
23 Q. Do you know of any facts to support
24 the allegations contained in paragraph 21?
25 A. No.

Page 135

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Q. If you would look at paragraph 30,
3 which is on page 11, and the first sentence
4 states "Sunbeam and MS & Co. relied on 5 Defendants" -- and that's again McAndrews &
6 Forbes and Coleman (Parent) Holdings --
7 Defendants' fraudulent $150 million synergy
8 figure to assess Coleman's fair acquisition
9 value." Do you know of any facts to support
10 that allegation?
11 A. No, I don't. (Reading.)
12 Q. If you look at --
13 Did you have something else to add
14 to your answer?
15 A. No. Just finishing the paragraph.
16 Q. Okay, if you could look at 17 paragraph 36, which is on page 13 of
18 Exhibit 197.
19 A. (Reading.)
20 Q. I want to focus in particular on a 21 sentence about midway through the --
22 A. Okay.
23 Q. -- paragraph. The sentence states
24 "While Sunbeam and MSSF" -- and that's Morgan
25 Stanley Senior Funding -- "discounted

Page 136

1 Confidential - Conway
2 Defendants" -- and again, that's McAndrews &
3 Forbes and Coleman (Parent) Holdings --
4 "Defendants' synergy figures by as much as a
5 third, they continued to believe based on the 6 strength of Defendants" -- and again that's 7 not Sunbeam, it's McAndrews & Forbes and
8 Coleman (Parent) Holdings -- "representations
9 that there was an upside to their own synergy
10 estimates, and that Sunbeam was likely to 11 achieve even greater synergies than those 12 included on their own conservative models."
13 And the question is, Mr. Conway,
14 whether you can identify any representations
15 by McAndrews & Forbes or Coleman (Parent)
16 Holdings that informed Morgan Stanley Senior

18 MR. CLARE: Objection, lack of 19 foundation based on prior testimony.
20 You can answer.
21 A. No, I -- I knew of nothing, no
22 conversation or no communication.
23 Q. The beginning of paragraph 36 says
24 "MSSF relied upon Defendants' false synergy

7 A. (Continuing) I don't know.
8 Q. Okay. Do you know whether Morgan
9 Stanley relied on your synergy estimates in 10 deciding to proceed with the bank facility?
11 MR. CLARE: Same objection.
12 A. I don't know.
13 Q. Would you be surprised if anyone at 14 Morgan Stanley relied on your synergy
15 estimates?
16 MR. CLARE: Same objection, and to 17 form.
18 A. I -- I think it's -- I don't know.
19 It's -- it's -- it's a hypothetical. Because 20 my role kind of, you know, finished up in 21 early April. I have no way of knowing whose 22 synergy representations were -- were -- were 23 used.
24 Q. Okay. We saw documents today where
25 others within Morgan Stanley were touting --

2 touting your synergy model. Do you recall
3 seeing that, sir?
4 MR. CLARE: Objection to the form,
5 and mischaracterization of the
6 document.
7 A. I -- I recall that the selling
8 memorandum depicted upside to synergy beyond,
9 you know, the hundred and fifty million,
10 which -- which -- which was the 11 characterization of my due diligence in my 12 conversations with Sunbeam management.
13 Q. Okay. But those materials noted
14 that "Andrew Conway has modeled synergies at 15 $150 million," correct?
16 A. Correct.
17 Q. And that's information that was 18 provided to third parties, correct?
19 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for
20 speculation.
21 A. I don't know what third parties
22 received information.
23 Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to 24 believe that Morgan Stanley or anyone within 25 Morgan Stanley had discredited the 150

3 developed?
4 A. No, I don't know.
5 MR. JOHNSON: Okay. If you want

Allergysmart Air Cleaner with Allergen Detector

HOW IT WORKS

1. A small fan draws air into the sensor chamber.
2. A laser beam in the detector measures the level of allergen-sized particles (3 microns and larger) every 30 seconds and sends a signal to the air cleaner.
3. Sensitivity setting - allows running the air cleaner based on your own perceived sensitivity level. Choosing a setting (average, extra, super), the sensor automatically activates the air cleaner when the level of particles is too high. The unit shuts off only when the level is reduced.
4. Air quality indicator - when the detector is on, lights on the control panel constantly indicate the level of allergen-sized particles in the room.

FEATURES

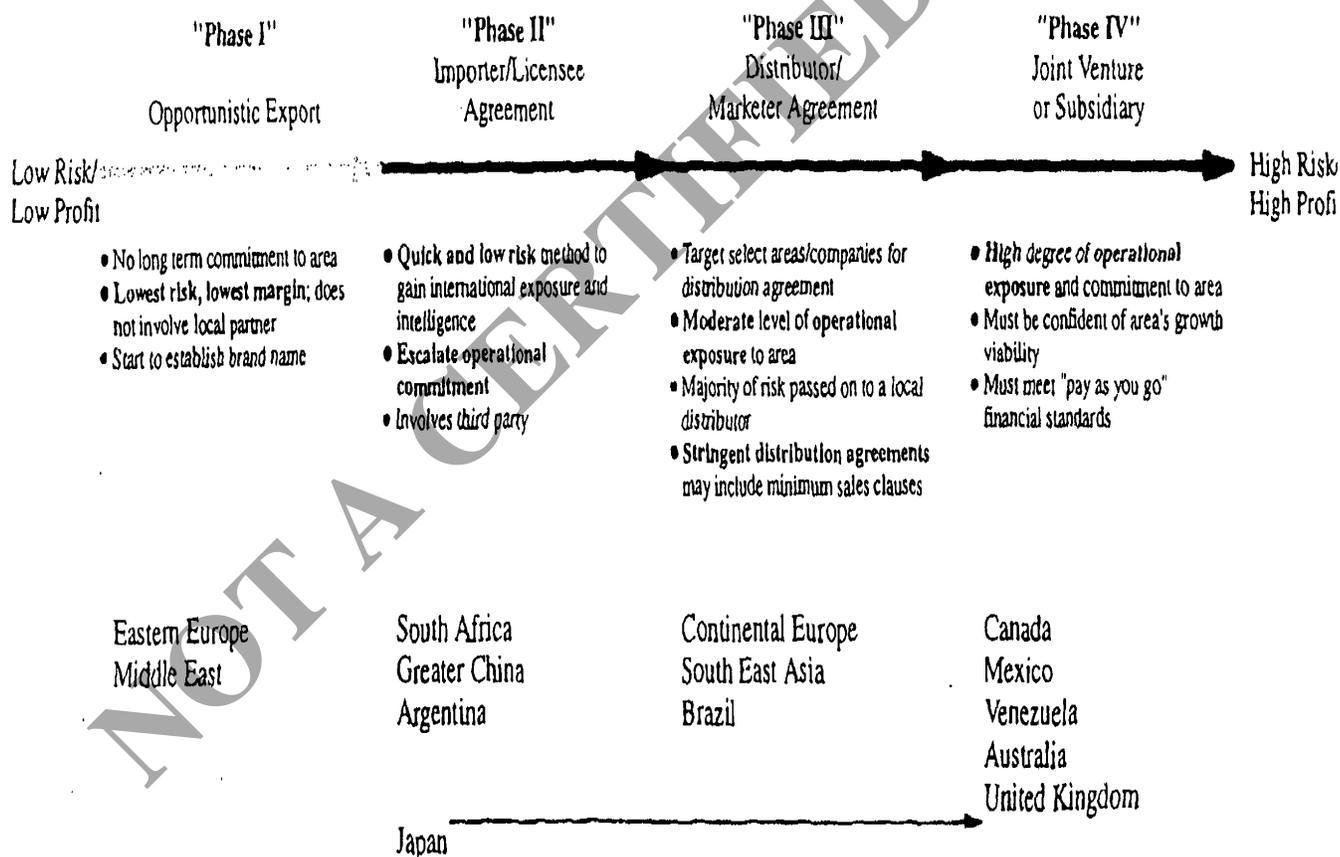

- A. Charcoal pre-filter
- B. HEPA filter
- C. Ionizer - added level of filtration
- D. Filter check light - for filter replacement
- E. Four speed fan control
- F. Sensitivity setting control
- G. Air quality indicator

SUNBEAM CORPORATION

Summary of Recent Analyst Commentary

International Opportunities:

- "[Sunbeam] is about to sign an agreement with NuSkin to help them distribute its FreshSource water product in Asia" (CIBC Oppenheimer - 1/28/98)
- "Sunbeam has 20 signed distribution and licensing agreements so far in 1997. By expanding into new SKUs in Latin America (toasters, mixers, etc.) the Company can leverage the Oster brand into new revenue streams through these new distributors and licensees. In Asia, the Company has identified an opportunity in the electric blanket market." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "Key agreements committed to in the second quarter include an arrangement for the sale of grills in Europe and the U.K., a clipper agreement in Paraguay and Brazil and a joint marketing agreement in Venezuela. The Company remains committed to tripling international sales to $600 million by 1999." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

New Channels/Distribution:

- "New distribution is being created by opening outlet stores. The Company currently has 11 stores open, and is on track to have 20 in operation by year end. It will open 20 per annum. Another business with strong new distribution potential is Away from Home." (Oppenheimer - 1/28/98)
- "The Company continues to roll out more Sunbeam Outlet stores, although they are not a crucial part of the Sunbeam growth plan." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

Advertising:

- "[Sunbeam] will double its consumer advertising in 1998, enabling it to spend more to generate customer demand for its innovative products that the rest of the housewares industry will spend collectively." (Prudential Securities - 1/29/98)
- "We expect Sunbeam to significantly out-spend its competitors over the next several years. In an industry fraught with co-op advertising, we believe advertising is long overdue in this category and will be effective." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)

SUNBEAM CORPORATION

Summary of Recent Analyst Commentary

New Product Introductions:

- "Sunbeam enters 1998 with a potent combination: (1) two exciting and innovative new products, FreshSource and AllergySmart, which even if they are not absolute home runs will provide completely incremental sales at better than corporate average operating margins and (2) an enhanced grill line-up against a weak grill showing in 1H97." (PaineWebber - 10/23/97)
- "We, like SOC management, believe that both of Sunbeam's new products have "home run" potential. The products are timely, innovative and margin enhancing, a perfect complement to the new Sunbeam portfolio." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "In our view, its entries in the water and air purification markets lend significant credibility to Sunbeam's new product strategy, offer demonstrable value-added for consumers, and increase our confidence in estimated 20% plus sales growth and management's targeted 20% operating margin through 1999." (Goldman Sachs - 10/9/97)
- "The Allergysmart is a unique launch, introducing proprietary laser technology." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "This is the most important growth strategy. Driving it's fat pipeline is its enhanced new product development capability. By consolidating R&D into one location and reducing the number of facilities used to make a given product, Sunbeam has reduced new product to market time from 2.5 years to 6 months. It is also open to buying technologies and using outside experts to develop products and processes, and is doing more consumer research than ever before." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "Finally, we believe several new products from its infamous Secret Room will be retail hits and the Company will begin developing new products in its Health at Home business." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "After accounting for roughly 20% cannibalization, new products should contribute around $100 million incrementally to 1997 sales with about 80% domestic and 20% international." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

"Project Full Time":

- "Project Full Time...is fully on track. We believe that this will be a market share driver in 1998." (CIBC Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "We expect customer service to play an increasingly important role in the company's growth ... Its 'Project Full Time' focuses on achieving 100% delivery rate among its top 35 customers and top 400 SKUs. This encompasses over 50% of its sales ... The opportunity for Sunbeam here is to improve its own delivery-efficiency and become two-thirds of the retailers order equation and thus gain share." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "The move to higher service levels should generate significant gains in market share. Even though share data in the small electrics industry is not tracked to the same degree as in packaged goods, there is some initial evidence that higher service levels generate higher sales." (Bear Stearns - 8/14/97)
- "Management noted that it filled 98% of the orders placed by the top ten accounts in the second quarter of 1997, up substantially from the disappointing 66% order-fill rate to these accounts in the first quarter of 1997." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

Analyst Reaction to New Air and Water Products

- "We, like SOC management, believe that both of Sunbeam's new products have "home run" potential. The products are timely, innovative and margin enhancing, a perfect complement to the new Sunbeam portfolio...These products should help to deliver the 20% top-line growth we are modeling for in 1998." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "In our view, [Sunbeam's] entries in the water and air purification markets lend significant credibility to Sunbeam's new product strategy, offer demonstrable value-added for consumers, and increase our confidence in estimated 20% plus sales growth and management's targeted 20% operating margin through 1999." (Goldman Sachs - 10/9/97)
- "Sunbeam has added visibility to its new product sales goals with [the new product] launches. It is tapping into consumers' desires for clean water and air in their homes. Each product introduces new technology into the small electric market and Freshsource effectively creates a new category...Our estimates seem destined to increase again." (Oppenheimer - 10/8/97)
- "Consumer response is very strong for [AllergySmart's] feature/benefit/value proposition. These products are positioned to grow the market as well as to establish a leading position for Sunbeam." (Goldman Sachs - 10/9/97)
- "Both products have global applications, high long term growth potential, and fit well within Sunbeam's Health at Home business." (Bear Stearns - 10/9/97)
- "The AllergySmart is a unique launch, introducing proprietary laser technology." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "While other water purification products are on the market today, there is no product that purifies water with FreshSource's effectiveness and speed." (Oppenheimer - 10/8/97)

Board Meeting Minutes

Mr. Emmerich reviewed with the Board the transaction structure, utilizing a chart which was distributed to the Board (a copy of which is attached to these minutes), and the consideration to be received by the public stockholders of the Company and by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("M&F") for the sale of CLN Holdings Inc. ("CLN Holdings"), a parent company of the Company and by the Company's public stockholders.

Mr. Emmerich then reviewed the terms of the principal documents for the transaction, utilizing a summary of such documents delivered to the Board (a copy of which is attached to these minutes). Mr. Emmerich reviewed with the Board the conditions to the first step, the merger of CLN Holdings, and the conditions to the second step, the merger of the Company and the exchange of its common stock held by the public. Mr. Emmerich reviewed again with the Board their duties under Delaware law. Mr. Emmerich then responded to questions from the directors.

Mr. Levin then introduced Mr. Gordon Rich of Credit Suisse First Boston ("First Boston"). Mr. Rich reviewed the financial terms of the proposed transaction, noting the differences from the terms that existed on Wednesday, in particular the increase in the cash component of the consideration to $6.44 per Company share and the decrease in the exchange ratio of Sunbeam shares per Company share to .5677. Mr. Rich reviewed with the Board revised pages to the First Boston presentation delivered on Wednesday (a copy of such pages are attached to these minutes). Mr. Rich stated that the revised financial terms, based on Wednesday's closing price per Sunbeam share, has $0.31 less value per Company share than the previous financial terms, but that based on yesterday's closing price for Sunbeam's common stock the value to the stockholders of the cash and stock to be received in the merger was approximately the same as on Wednesday. Mr. Rich then responded to question from the directors.

Mr. Rich then stated that it was First Boston's opinion that the consideration to be received by the public stockholders of the Company is fair from a financial point of view.

A discussion then ensued about Sunbeam's pending acquisitions, and Mr. Maher reviewed for the Board Sunbeam's contemplated acquisitions of Signature Brands (which owns the Mr. Coffee brand of coffee makers) and First Alert.

Mr. Levin reviewed with the Board the terms of the proposed transaction that relate to employee severance and benefits. Mr. Levin described for the Board the principal terms of the Executive Severance Policy to be adopted by the Board, the severance policy to be offered to employees that are not participants in the Executive Severance Policy, and the acceleration of stock options upon the closing of the acquisition of CLN Holdings.

- As you know several weeks ago we embarked upon the acquisition of three publicly held companies.

- The Coleman transaction has an aggregate value of $2.2 billion of which approximately $815 million in stock and the remainder in cash and assumed debt. Coleman is the leader in outdoor camping & recreation, with great brand names such as Coleman, Powermate, Eastpak in the U.S. and Japan and Camping Gaz throughout Europe.
- With this transaction, Ron Perelman becomes our second largest shareholder behind Michael Price. Both men are brilliant investors and they see the potential to make a lot of money with Sunbeam.
- The Signature brands transaction is all cash and has an aggregate value of approximately $253 million. They have two great brands, Mr. Coffee and Health o meter and are dominant in North America
- The First Alert transaction is also all cash with an aggregate value of approximately $178 million. First Alert is the leader in home fire and carbon monoxide detectors in the U.S. and the U.K.
- With the acquisition of these three companies we essentially triple our annual revenues and take Sunbeam's market capitalization from about a billion, when I arrived, to almost $7 billion.

Sunbeam Vision Statement

"BECOME THE GLOBAL LEADER IN DURABLE CONSUMER PRODUCTS
THROUGH THE CONSOLIDATION OF LEADING CONSUMER BRANDS"

- Back in October of 1997 we engaged Morgan Stanley to advise us on how we could create the greatest amount of shareholder value for our investors. We concluded, jointly, that the best way to create additional value at Sunbeam was to take the leadership position in the consolidation of the industries in which we compete.
- Our strategy is to become the global leader in durable consumer products. In my view we will become the P&G of our industry.
- The announcement of these three acquisitions represents merely the initiation of our new strategy.

Dunlap Value Creation Model

- I have always had the philosophy that there are 3 fundamental phases to creating shareholder value.
- The first phase, the restructuring, is when you change the management team, cut the costs, divest non-core businesses and develop a strategy for growth. I believe that if a restructuring is to be successful it needs to be completed in 12 months. People will give you a chance to make things better and are willing to change if they can see and share in the results. At Sunbeam we made all of our employees shareholders and we completed the restructuring in July of 1997 - just 12 months from when I started with the company.
- The second phase, the refinement and growth phase, begins when the restructuring initiatives are completed. It is important to continually refine the organization to ensure that you have the most competitive cost structure and that you are properly leveraging the strengths of the organization. In Sunbeam's case for example, we went from 26 factories to 8 during the restructuring, but that didn't mean that our 8 remaining factories were in world class shape. So we went back in and made the necessary investments to relay out and fix our plants.
- The third phase is the quantum leap. When you merge, acquire or sell a company you unleash an enormous amount of hidden value. I believe we did that with these three acquisitions. We'll now start the process over as we restructure and consolidate these companies into Sunbeam.

Factories	26

- When I arrived the company was losing market share in just about every one of their major product lines (grills, blenders, mixers and scales). The top line, excluding acquisitions, was actually declining during the previous three years. And, more importantly to note was that this revenue decline came during a period where the company invested over $300 million in new capital.
- I firmly believe that this company had 9-12 months left before it went bust!
- There was tremendous excess capacity along with underutilized assets and factories. They had too many SKU's, had no budgetary control and had too many people.
- Additionally, margins were essentially non existent and worse of all there was no strategy to fix the company!
- That's why the Board hired me. They knew I would make the necessary difficult decisions to fix the company and restore its profitability.

- As I mentioned earlier there are four key elements of the restructuring and repositioning of a company. While it is important that all four occur simultaneously, the ability to identify and implement a cost reduction and profit improvement program is critical.
- At Sunbeam we identified $225 million of profit enhancement opportunities. About 60% of the savings was realized in the first year and the balance will be achieved in 1998.
- As you can see the scope of the cost cutting and profit improvement is quite broad.
 - We consolidated the supplier base and used that leverage to obtain lower pricing and improve the overall supply chain
 - We consolidated and rationalized our factories, creating focus factories, which yielded the largest dollar savings
 - We consolidated 6 headquarters into one, reduced redundant functions and outsourced non-core responsibilities (payroll, collections, information systems, etc.)
 - And we enhanced margins by eliminating low margin SKU's and improved pricing by reducing unnecessary give-aways (volume rebates, co-op advertising, allowances, etc.) and in select cases we actually raised prices.
- As you can see it was quite a comprehensive plan to improve our cost structure. And it was all implemented within the first 12 months.

Note: (1) Excludes non U.S. and International product operations.

- The second phase, the refinement and growth, is the fun phase. Once all the massive moves and changes were completed, we were able to focus on refining the remaining operations.
- As you can see by both the top and bottom line percentage improvements, we were successful at accelerating the growth and improvement throughout the year. Both on a year over year basis and on a sequential basis. (Our top line was up 13%, 17%, 28% and 31%, respectively during 1997). Most importantly, in the 4th quarter we proved to ourselves that we could achieve a 20% operating margin (this was our three year goal!)
- In addition to the cost savings associated with the restructuring, the addition of 89 new products and 25 new international distribution agreements helped drive double digit sales increases and they favorably enriched the margins as a percentage of sales.
- Once we felt comfortable that the underlying business was fixed and able to support further growth, we engaged Morgan Stanley and began our quest for the third phase - the quantum leap.

- I learned working for Sir James Goldsmith that tremendous shareholder value is typically locked-up within companies because they fail to pursue strategic acquisitions or mergers. I have seen countless times that when companies merge or acquire they are able, through synergies, to unlock tremendous shareholder value.

- We'll continue to unlock shareholder value when we restructure, reposition, refine and grow these companies.

- Look at the chart, this is just a short list of the product lines which we are now number one in the industry. The leadership positions in these categories, both in the U.S. and abroad will enable us to leverage numerous synergies that will accelerate our top and bottom line growth rates.

- Not only do we plan to consolidate these three companies into Sunbeam, we will also take advantage of the geographic synergies. We will use Sunbeam's strength in Latin America to sell Coleman, First Alert, Mr. Coffee and Health o meter products. And we'll use Coleman's strength in Europe and Japan to sell Sunbeam, First Alert, Health o meter and Mr. Coffee products.

Sunbeam Today - A Powerful Mix of Brands

- I truly believe Sunbeam is quickly becoming the P&G of the durable consumer products industry. We have a tremendous brand name that is accepted across many different products throughout the house.
- The acquisition of Coleman enables us to add a second leg to the company. We believe the Coleman name is widely accepted outside the home and can be used to brand many different product lines.
- First Alert, Mr. Coffee, Health o meter, Powermate, Eastpak, Oster, Grillmaster and Sunbeam are very strong brands on their own, but the opportunity to cross brand increases the amount of leverage we have within our existing distribution channels.
- For example: we will now be able to put the Sunbeam and Health o meter name on smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors, we'll be able to put Oster, Sunbeam or Mr. Coffee names on Coffee makers around the world and we'll be able to put Grillmaster, Camping Gaz and Coleman on gas grills. This will provide us with a tremendous opportunity to better manage the retail channels of distribution.
- As you can see, Sunbeam has become a powerful house of brands virtually overnight!

Note: (1) Represents pro forma Sunbeam for the sale of the equity and non-restructuring.

- When we looked at these companies we quickly determined that there was enormous opportunity to reduce costs through the consolidation of the three companies into Sunbeam. The opportunity to eliminate duplicate SG&A functions is the easy upside to create meaningful EPS accretion in 1999.
- The previous management at Coleman said they completed a restructuring. What they did doesn't begin to approach what I consider a restructuring. In fact I believe that Coleman is very similar to the old Sunbeam. Too many factories, too many SKU's and underperforming product lines and very weak management. Rest assured we'll fix all of that very quickly!
- First Alert and Signature Brands will be rapidly assimilated into Sunbeam as new product lines. We'll be able to quickly eliminate a large portion of their SG&A expenses.
- We have identified approximately $150 million of synergies. During our due diligence we visited many of the facilities, talked with existing management and we feel good about the $150 million in savings. There may be upside potential. Remember what we did at Sunbeam (we identified $225 million on a $1.2 billion business - and these three companies are about $1.5 billion).

Potential Upside

- Cost:
 - Factory(ies) Rationalization
 - Procurement Savings
 - Distribution/Logistics
 - SG&A
- Revenue:
 - Cross Branding/Gain Shelf space
 - International leverage
 - Sunbeam's Latin America for Coleman, Signature Brands, and First Alert
 - Coleman's Japanese for Sunbeam, First Alert
 - Camping Gaz Europe for Sunbeam, First Alert

- Since the announcement two weeks ago, we have already established teams which have been in the field to look at the factories and we are comfortable that we'll identify additional opportunities which will create upside to our initial estimates for synergies.
- We'll conduct an in depth study of all the potential synergies, including the consolidation of factories along with procurement and distribution savings.
- Additionally, we'll assess the potential revenue and margin benefits such as cross branding and expanded international sales using the strength of each individual company we acquired.
- I expect that we'll be in a better position to communicate these opportunities, and their impact on earnings, within a few months after we close these transactions.

Substantial Consolidation Opportunity

- Competition/Acquisition Candidates
 - Strong Brands
 - Poor Management
 - Poor Cost Structure
 - Synergistic with Sunbeam
- Customers Want Consolidation
 - Cost Effective to Deal With Fewer Suppliers
 - Benefit Dealing with Financially Stronger Suppliers
 - Benefit From Outsourcing Category Management

- These three acquisitions mark the beginning of our strategy to grow through acquisitions and consolidate these fragmented industries along the way.
- Our criteria for evaluating acquisition targets is the following: companies with strong brand names, but weak management and poor cost structures, and companies which are synergistic with one or more of our core businesses.
- We can fix the cost structure of any company we acquire, thereby improving margins and generating re-investable returns. We'll then be able to invest in new products and strengthen the brand.
- As we continue to do this, we'll become stronger and stronger and our competition will become weaker. Many of our competitors are smaller and under capitalized and several of our competitors are divisions of larger companies. In either case they will be unable to attract the right resources, financial or human, to effectively compete with us. Interesting to note is that since we made the announcement of these three acquisitions, we have received numerous calls from smaller companies asking us to buy them.
- Our customers have applauded our decision to take the lead in consolidating the industry. When we talked with the President of WalMart he said, "I love what you guys did, I'm glad you guys finally listened to me".
- Our customers want to deal with fewer suppliers. They want suppliers to be financially capable of investing in the business; such as brand building and strengthening their infrastructure (EDI, information technology, just in time, etc.). And most importantly they want suppliers to help them manage their categories and improve their profitability.
- We are extremely well positioned to take the leadership role in this consolidation.

The Right Team Is In Place

- New 3-Year Contracts for Senior Executives
- Sunbeam Management has Turnaround Experience
- Some good Managers at recently acquired Companies
- Will go outside for Special Talent

- And finally, what makes this all work is having the right management team.
- I am fortunate at Sunbeam to have a very supportive Board. Michael Price plays a very active role in the Company through his representative on our Board. Michael was the catalyst in renegotiating new three year contract for myself, Russ and David. Michael and I both agreed that the only way we would launch on an acquisition strategy was if the Board and I were both committed to see it all the way through.
- Not only does the existing management team have experience in turning around Sunbeam, but there are about 20-25 people in the company that have worked for me in the past, at Scott or in other companies over the past 15 years.
- We will also find some good people in these newly acquired companies once we remove all the bureaucracy. And we'll go to the outside hire special talent such as marketing or product development people, where necessary.
- I view a management team like a sports team. Let me put the best athletes on the field and I'll win the game. I believe we have a winning team in place at Sunbeam.
- Let me now turn the presentation over to Russ Kersh. Russ has been with me the better part of 14 years and he is my most trusted business advisor.

- Let me take a few minutes to review with you the pro forma financials.
- As you can see in this slide, we are adding a good amount of debt to finance the transactions. We are very confident that we'll quickly grow EBITDA and have the capability to pay down the debt.
- As Al said earlier, we expect to raise the performance of these companies up to the Sunbeam standard. This will provide us with a lot of flexibility to pay down debt and still have enough cash to invest in the business.
- At closing of the companies, the debt to cap will be around 61% and we believe we can get that to approximately 50% within the first 12 months. And we are comfortable that we'll still have the necessary resources to continue our acquisition strategy.

- We will pay down and refinance the debt that we are assuming from these three companies. This will enable us to take advantage of lower interest rates that are at historically low levels.
- In addition we will have a $500 million revolver that can be used to make further acquisitions.

- We believe the ability to increase operating margins to our levels is readily achievable.

KEY SELLING POINTS

Problems

- Successful Restructuring; Creation of a Growth Company
 - During 1997, Sunbeam completed its restructuring program and initiated a growth strategy which resulted in double-digit sales growth with operating margins reaching 30% in 4Q 97, up from 22% before the turnaround
 - The Company exited all of its non-core businesses; closed 10 factories, 43 warehouses and 1 headquarters, and reduced employment by 30%
 - The Company exited 13 international distribution/licensing agreements which added $130M in revenues, introduced 83 new products (13 U.S., 54 international) which added $150M in revenues
 - Sunbeam gained market share in every product category in 1997
- Experienced and Committed Management Team
 - Al Dunlap has brought to an experienced management team with a history in similar turnarounds of Sunbeam
 - Market has strongly endorsed the turnaround and acquisitions through strong stock price appreciation, which is expected to continue as the market competition is interrupted
- Realizable Synergies of $150M From Combinations
 - $100M from combination with Coleman
 - $25M from combination with West Alert
 - $25M from combination with Signature Brands

The Coleman Acquisition

- Strong, Established Brand Equity Value
 - Has 40% market share in industry, market competitor for only 10%
 - Unmatched strength in the Coleman brand name accounting for strong over distribution channels
- Opportunity to Leverage Operations and Utilize Expertise in Cost Cutting
 - Current operations are operating efficiently, however, operational rationalization will result in the potential to realize substantial synergies
 - Coleman has proven highly synergistic acquisition without operational operations rationalization, bringing significant opportunity for further re-engineering

The Signature Brands Acquisition

- Accelerated Growth in Revenue and Earnings
 - This product line acquisition will be easily assimilated into the Sunbeam system, allowing for immediate recognition of significant synergies
 - Strong brand names will complement existing brands and provide major competition in certain areas (Health & Hair)
- Complement to New Strategic Plan
 - The transaction provides the synergies by Sunbeam to make field in acquisitions
 - Will lead to additional strategic acquisition opportunities

The West Alert Acquisition

- Enhance Existing Portfolio of Home Division Products
 - Diversify the home division device segment by capitalizing on complementary distribution channels
 - Strong brand recognition and 81 market share in water alarms and carbon monoxide alarms
- Significant Growth Potential of Home Safety Market
 - Strong momentum in alarm replacement with $150M un tapped retail market for replacing existing 10-year old alarms
- Opportunity for Business Re-engineering and Cost Cutting
 - Sunbeam's experience in assimilating operations opens up significant re-engineering and cost cutting opportunities
 - Redundancies in business model create the opportunity to realize significant potential synergies
 - Better purchasing power to improve margins

POTENTIAL INVESTOR CONCERNS

- Significant Dependence on Management Team Particularly Al Dunlap
 - Al Dunlap and his senior management team recently signed new three year employment contracts. These agreements are primarily stock and option based, and incorporate a vesting feature which encourages management teams. In addition, Dunlap has publicly stated his commitment to Sunbeam.
- Fourth Quarter Earnings Below Street Expectations
 - Last in the history of this earnings announcement was the first that business has shown significant improvement from the recent restructuring very quickly. Fourth quarter sales jumped 31%, including diversions, from last year's numbers. Sales growth had, in fact, accelerated all year. Operating margins hit an unprecedented 30%. EPS was $2.47 vs. $2.00 in 4Q97.
- Growth Highly Dependent on Its Ability to Expand Internationally
 - International sales grew 17% from 3Q97 to 4Q97, representing a 42% increase from 4Q96. The growth resulted from Sunbeam's superior technology (R&D) technology in electric shavers in Japan, "laser" razors, etc., as well as a focused effort to strengthen the Oster brand name through direct response print advertising, in-store and trade demonstrations, etc.
- Integration of Recent Acquisitions and Future Acquisitions
 - Sunbeam management plans to integrate these acquisitions with immediate focus on cost synergies and brand development. Their acquisition strategy essentially involves acquiring undervalued, unmarketed brand names, and bringing this established brand equity while combining administration, marketing, finance and other corporate functions more efficiently.
- Uncertainty of A Changing Strategy
 - Sunbeam management has expressed a high degree of confidence in their ability to achieve the stated synergies of approximately $150M by the end of 1999. They, in fact, have stated that it is not unlikely that they could achieve even greater synergies in a shorter period of time.
- Dependence on One Major Customer, Wal-Mart
 - Wal-Mart is widely recognized as the largest retailer in mass retailing. In addition, Wal-Mart offers all of the types of products manufactured by all five of Sunbeam's primary product lines, and Wal-Mart (like Sunbeam) is aggressively expanding overseas. These characteristics make Wal-Mart an excellent partner for the Company. However, Sunbeam is also aggressively expanding its distribution channels with other key retailers such as K-Mart, Target, Costco and Home Depot, and the Company now advertises on QVC.

VALUATION ISSUES

- As of February 27, 1998, Sunbeam shares were trading at $41.73 per share and were valued at the low end of the comparable range
 - 26.9x 1998 median (P/E) estimate of $2.60 (versus 27.4x for comparables)
 - 11.2x 1997 median (P/E) estimate of $2.73 (versus 19.2x for comparables)
 - The low valuation was driven in part by the announcement of 4Q97 earnings 30% below street expectations
- After the restructuring announcement, Sunbeam's share price has experienced an increase of $9.73, rising from $41.73 to $49.37, or 19% increase.
- The Company's current trading levels (60 percent upside potential) give the level of expected synergies ($150M, pre-tax) and increases confidence in Sunbeam's management team and proven ability to turn around companies and to bring under-valued brand names.

Restructuring

In the fall of 1996, after several years of disappointing results, Sunbeam announced a major restructuring and growth plan under newly appointed chairman Albert Dunlap. The restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed with only the final "refinement" stage remaining. It included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products, divestiture of non-core businesses, hiring a new management team, closing of warehouses and consolidation of headquarters, elimination of production facilities, and a large reduction in unprofitable products. The actions led to a reduction of approximately half the work force (about 6,000 jobs). Cost reductions are expected to result in annual savings of $225MM, most of which were already realized in 1997.

The restructuring resulted in double-digit sequential sales growth throughout 1997 with annual sales growth of 18.7% and an operating margin improvement from 0.2% in 1996 to 17.1% in 1997, and with operating margins reaching 20% by the fourth quarter of 1997. Sunbeam's share price increased from the $15 range before the appointment of Al Dunlap to $41.75 before the announcement of the recent acquisitions.

Pre-Acquisition Strategy/Goals

Prior to the acquisition announcements, Sunbeam management outlined the following goals for growth in 1998:

- 25% top line and 40% EPS growth based on new innovative products, successful roll out of air and water filtration products, higher advertising levels and increased penetration of international markets
- Expansion of global distribution by adding 30 new global products as well as international distribution/licensing agreements
- Project Full Time: Strategic initiative to improve customer service levels and therefore enhance growth (initiated 2Q 1997)
- Merger or acquisitions: Management will continue to examine strategic alternatives to strengthen the business and create shareholder value

Following the acquisition, the Company is going to pursue a strategy focused on the consolidation of the consumer non-durables sector. With the significant number of underperforming companies in this, the Company believes it will have a significant opportunity to make additional future acquisitions.

Potential Investor Concerns

021049

SUNBEAM, CORP.

Potential Investor Concerns

POTENTIAL INVESTOR CONCERNS

- Significant Dependence on Management Team; Particularly Al Dunlap

Sunbeam's recent turnaround performance appears to be due more to the capability of its management team in cost-cutting than to the innate strength of the Company's core business or growing demand for Sunbeam's products. What if the CEO and his team do not stay to fully implement Phase III of the Company's strategic plan?

Response: Al Dunlap and his senior management team recently signed new, three year employment contracts. These agreements are primarily stock and option based, and incorporate a vesting feature which encourages management tenure. In addition, Al Dunlap has publicly stated (on several occasions) that he is committed to Sunbeam and "this new employment agreement will put to rest any rumors that I [he] would leave the Company." Finally, the Company has already begun to search for other managers from within the industry who would add further depth and operational expertise to this team.

- Fourth Quarter Earnings Below Street Expectations

The Company recently reported fourth quarter earnings that were $0.03 below consensus expectations, resulting in a 9% share price decline on the day of the announcement. Is this indicative of a slowdown in the double digit growth that Al Dunlap has declared is his ongoing goal?

Response: Lost in the turmoil of this earnings announcement was the fact that business has shown significant improvement from the recent restructuring very quickly. Fourth quarter sales jumped 31%, excluding divestitures, from last year's numbers. Sales growth had, in fact, accelerated all year. Fourth quarter results were broad-based with all businesses, except for blankets, showing healthy gains. Operating margins hit an unprecedented 20%. EPS were $0.47 vs. $(0.03) in 4Q97. In short, the Sunbeam management team sets extremely high goals and, even when they fall slightly short, it is still a significant achievement.

- Growth Highly Dependent on its Ability to Expand Internationally

Pre-acquisition, Sunbeam is forecasting 25-35% growth in the international business. Given the recent departure of Dixon Thayer, VP of Sunbeam's international business, and potential currency/business deterioration in Asia, aren't these growth projections a bit high?

Response: International sales grew 17% from 3Q98 to 4Q98, representing a 42% increase from 4Q97. The growth resulted from Sunbeam's superior technology (EMF technology in electric blankets in Japan, "smart" toasters, etc.), as well as a focused effort to strengthen the brand equity of the Oster brand name through direct response print advertising, in-store and trade demonstrations, etc. In addition, the recent currency turmoil in Asia is not expected to have a significant impact as Sunbeam has nearly all of its distribution agreements denominated in U.S. dollars with a relatively small portion of pro-forma sales from non-Japan Asia.

SUNBEAM, CORP.

Potential Investor Concerns

- Integration of Recent Acquisitions and Future Acquisitions

The Company is facing a significant challenge in integrating three separate companies concurrently. In addition, given the Company's new strategy of adopting the role of industry consolidator, it is likely that the Company will make additional acquisitions in the future. How can the Company be sure this integration effort will be successful?

Response: Sunbeam management plans to integrate these acquisitions with immediate focus on cost synergies and brand development. Their acquisition strategy essentially involves acquiring undervalued, unmarketed brand names, and leveraging this established brand equity while combining administration, marketing, finance and other corporate functions more efficiently. This is a strategy that Al Dunlap and his team have successfully utilized at a number of companies before Sunbeam, including Scott Paper. In addition, revenue synergies derived from increasing geographical breadth, greater penetration of product offerings to major customers (i.e. WalMart) and the potential for dual branding will also generate substantial benefits through the combination.

- Uncertainty of Attaining Synergies

The synergies anticipated from these combinations are sizable (over $150MM in the first full year). How attainable are these synergies? What will be the cost of achieving these synergies?

Response: Morgan Stanley and Coopers & Lybrand (special acquisition consultants to Sunbeam) have had extensive discussions with the management of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, as well as the Sunbeam management regarding the potential synergies. Following these discussions and the subsequent due diligence performed prior to the announcement of these transactions, the Sunbeam management has expressed a high degree of confidence in their ability to achieve the stated synergies of approximately $150MM by the end of 1999. They, in fact, have stated that it is not unlikely that they could achieve even greater synergies in a shorter period of time. In addition, while Andrew Conway has modeled $150MM in synergies in 1998, he feels that there could be upside to this figure.

021051

SUNBEAM, CORP.

Potential Investor Concerns

- Dependence on One Major Customer, WalMart

The Company presently attributes over 20% of its total revenues to WalMart. Following the acquisition, this concentration will increase to approximately 25%. Isn't this dependence on one major customer dangerous for the Company?

Response: WalMart is widely recognized as the industry leader in mass retailing. In addition, WalMart offers all of the types of products manufactured by all five of Sunbeam's primary product lines, and WalMart (like Sunbeam) is aggressively expanding overseas. These characteristics make WalMart an excellent partner for the Company. However, Sunbeam is also aggressively expanding its distribution channels with other key retailers such as KMart, Target, Costco and Home Depot, and the Company now advertises on QVC. Sunbeam also has 22 factory outlet stores which are designed to sell surplus or discontinued merchandise. Moreover, these acquisitions also seem to make Sunbeam an increasingly important supplier to all the major retailers.

SUNBEAM, CORP.

Valuation Considerations

VALUATION CONSIDERATIONS

- As of February 27, 1998, Sunbeam shares were trading at $41.75 per share and were valued at the low end of its comparable range.
 - 20.9x 1998 median 1/B/E/S estimate of $2.00 (versus 22.4x for comparables)
 - 15.2x 1999 median 1/B/E/S estimate of $2.75 (versus 19.2x for comparables)
 - The low valuation was driven in part by the announcement of 4Q97 earnings $0.03 below street expectations
- After the transaction announcement, Sunbeam's share price has experienced an increase of $9.75, rising from $41.75 to $49.38, an 18% increase.
- The Company's current trading levels are warranted given the level of expected synergies ($150MM, pre-tax) and investors' confidence in Sunbeam's management team and proven ability to turn around companies and leverage undervalued brand names.
- Investors also view there to be other, significant acquisition opportunities for Sunbeam to capitalize on in its new role as an industry consolidator.
- Investors focus on the 1999 P/E multiple (the first full year of ownership and full cost savings), and currently price Sunbeam at a discount reflecting execution risk for the integration.

REQUIRED REGISTRATION

Section 2.1 Required Registration.

(a) Form S-3. Laser shall prepare and file with the SEC a registration statement (the "Shelf Registration Statement") on Form S-3 or another appropriate form permitting registration of the Registrable Securities so as to permit the resale of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings pursuant to an offering on a delayed or continuous basis pursuant to Rule 415 (or any successor rule) under the Securities Act (a "Rule 415 Offering") and shall use reasonable best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to be declared effective by the SEC on or before the date on which any of the Registrable Securities may be transferred by Parent Holdings pursuant to Article VII of the Holdings Merger Agreement. Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to permit the Shelf Registration Statement to be used by Affiliates of Camper for resales of shares of Laser Common Stock issued to such Affiliates in the merger of a wholly owned subsidiary of Laser with Camper; provided, however, that any such Affiliate using the Shelf Registration Statement shall agree in writing to be bound by all of the restrictions, limitations and obligations of Parent Holdings contained in this Agreement.

(b) Effectiveness. Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to keep the Shelf Registration Statement continuously effective under the Securities Act until the date that is the earliest to occur of (i) the date by which all Registrable Securities covered by the Shelf Registration Statement have been sold and (ii) the second anniversary of the consummation of the Holdings Merger.

(c) Amendments/Supplements. Laser shall amend and supplement the Shelf Registration Statement and the prospectus contained therein if required by the rules, regulations or instructions applicable to the registration form used by Laser for such Shelf Registration Statement, if required by the Securities Act.

(d) Offerings. At any time from and after the date on which the Shelf Registration Statement is declared effective by the SEC (the "Effective Date"). Parent Holdings, subject to the restrictions and conditions contained herein and in the Merger Agreement, and subject further to compliance with all applicable state and federal securities laws, shall have the right to dispose of all or any portion of the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.2 Holdback Agreement.

From and after the Effective Date, upon the request of Laser, Parent Holdings shall not effect any public sale or distribution (including sales pursuant to Rule 144) of Registrable Securities that are equity securities of Laser, or any securities convertible into or exchangeable or exercisable for such securities (other than any such sale or distribution of such securities pursuant to registration of such securities on Form S-8 or any successor form) during the period commencing on the date on which Laser commences a Laser Offering through the sixty (60)-day period immediately following the closing date of such Laser Offering; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not be obligated to comply with this Section 2.2 on more than two (2) occasions in any twelve (12)-month period; and provided, further, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section 2.2 or Section 2.3, in no event shall Parent Holdings be disabled from effecting offers or sales of Registrable Securities for more than one-hundred-and-fifteen (115) days during any twelve (12)-month period.

Section 2.3 Blackout Provisions.

In the event that, at any time while the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective, Laser determines in its reasonable judgment and in good faith that the sale of Registrable Securities would require disclosure of material information which Laser has a bona vide business purpose for preserving as confidential. Parent Holdings shall, upon receiving written notice from Laser of such good faith determination, suspend sales of the Registrable Securities for a period beginning on the date of receipt of such notice and expiring on the earlier of (i) the date upon which such material information is disclosed to the public or ceases to be material or (ii) forty-five (45) days after the receipt of such notice from Laser: provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not be obligated to comply with this Section 2.3 on more than two (2) occasions in any twelve (12) month period; and provided, further, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section 2.3 or Section 2.2, in no event shall Parent Holdings be disabled from effecting offers or sales of Registrable Securities for more than one-hundred-and-fifteen (115) days during any twelve (12)-month period.

Section 2.4 Registration Procedures.

(a) Procedures. In connection with the registration of the Registrable Securities pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to effect the registration and sale of the Registrable Securities in accordance with Parent Holdings' intended method of disposition thereof and, in connection therewith, Laser shall:

(1) prepare and file with the SEC the Shelf Registration Statement and use reasonable best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become and remain effective in accordance with Sections 2.1(a) and (b) above;

(2) prepare and file with the SEC amendments and supplements to the Shelf Registration Statement and the prospectuses used in connection therewith in accordance with Section 2.1(c) above;

(3) before filing with the SEC the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto, Laser shall furnish to one (1) counsel selected by Parent Holdings and one (1) counsel for the underwriter or sales or placement agent, if any, in connection therewith, drafts of all such documents proposed to be filed and provide such counsel with a reasonable opportunity for review thereof and comment thereon, such review to be conducted and such comments to be delivered with reasonable promptness;

(4) promptly (i) notify Parent Holdings of each of (w) the filing and effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement and each prospectus and any amendments or supplements thereto, (x) the receipt of any comments from the SEC or any state securities law authorities or any other governmental authorities with respect to any such Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto, (y) any oral or written stop order with respect to such registration, any suspension of the registration or qualification of the sale of the Registrable Securities in any jurisdiction or any initiation or threatening of any proceedings with respect to any of the foregoing, and (z) of the happening of any event that requires the making of any changes in such Shelf Registration Statement, prospectus or documents incorporated or deemed to be incorporated therein by reference so that they will not contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading and (ii) use reasonable best efforts to obtain the withdrawal of any order suspending the registration or qualification (or the effectiveness thereof) or suspending or preventing the use of any related prospectus in any jurisdiction with respect thereto:

(5) furnish to Parent Holdings, the underwriters or the sales or placement agent, if any, and one (1) counsel for each of the foregoing, a conformed copy of the Shelf Registration Statement and each amendment and supplement thereto (in each case, including all exhibits thereto) and such additional number of copies of such Shelf Registration Statement, each amendment and supplement thereto (in such case, without such exhibits), the prospectus (including each preliminary prospectus) included in such Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus supplements and all exhibits thereto and such other documents as Parent Holdings, its underwriters, agent or such counsel may reasonably request in order to facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings;

(6) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, if requested by Parent Holdings or the managing underwriter or underwriters of a Rule 415 Offering, subject to approval of counsel to Laser in its reasonable judgment, promptly incorporate in a prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment to the Shelf Registration Statement such information concerning underwriters and the plan of distribution of the Registrable Securities as such managing underwriter or underwriters or Parent Holdings reasonably shall furnish to Laser in writing and such request to be included therein, including, without limitation, information with respect to the number of Registrable Securities being sold by Parent Holdings to such underwriter or underwriters, the purchase price being paid therefor by such underwriter or underwriters and with respect to any other terms of the underwritten offering of the Registrable Securities to be sold in such offering; and make all required filings of such prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment as soon as reasonably practicable after being notified of the matters to be incorporated in such prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment;

(7) use reasonable best efforts to register or qualify the Registrable Securities for offer and sale under such securities or "blue sky" laws of such jurisdictions as Parent Holdings reasonably requests and do any and all other acts and things which may be reasonably necessary or advisable to enable Parent Holdings to consummate the disposition in such jurisdictions in which the Registrable Securities are to be sold and keep such registration or qualification in effect for as long as the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective under the Securities Act (provided that Laser shall not be required to (i) qualify generally to do business in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be required to qualify but for this paragraph. (ii) subject itself to taxation in any such jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to taxation but for this paragraph or (iii) consent to the general service of process in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to general service of process but for this paragraph);

(8) notify Parent Holdings, at any time when a prospectus relating to the Shelf Registration Statement is required to be delivered under the Securities Act, upon the discovery that, or of the happening of any event as a result of which, the Shelf Registration Statement, as then in effect, contains an untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state any material fact required to be stated therein or any fact necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, and promptly prepare and furnish to Parent Holdings a supplement or amendment to the prospectus contained in the Shelf Registration Statement so that the Shelf Registration Statement shall not, and such prospectus as thereafter delivered to the purchasers of such Registrable Securities shall not, contain an untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading;

(9) cause all of the Registrable Securities to be listed on each national securities exchange and included in each established over-the-counter market on which or through which the Laser Common Stock is then listed or traded;

(10) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, make available for inspection by Parent Holdings, any underwriter participating in any disposition pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement, and any attorney, accountant or other agent retained by Parent Holdings or its underwriter, all financial and other records, pertinent corporate documents and properties of Laser as shall be reasonably necessary to enable either of them to exercise their due diligence responsibility, and cause Laser's officers, directors, employees, attorneys and independent accountants to supply all information reasonably requested by Parent Holdings, its underwriters, attorneys, accountants or agents in connection with the Shelf Registration Statement; information which Laser determines, in good faith, to be confidential shall not be disclosed by such persons unless (i) the disclosure of such information is required by applicable federal securities laws or is necessary to avoid or correct a misstatement or omission in such Shelf Registration Statement or (ii) the release of such information is ordered pursuant to a subpoena or other order from a court of competent jurisdiction; Parent Holdings agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that the information obtained by any of them as a result of such inspections shall be deemed confidential unless and until such is made generally available to the public; Parent Holdings further agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that Parent Holdings will, upon learning that disclosure of such information is sought in a court of competent jurisdiction, give notice to Laser and allow Laser, at Parent Holdings' expense, to undertake appropriate action to prevent disclosure of the information deemed confidential; nothing contained herein shall require Laser to waive any attorney-client privilege or disclose attorney work product.

(11) use reasonable best efforts to comply with all applicable laws related to the Shelf Registration Statement and offering and sale of securities and all applicable rules and regulations of governmental authorities in connection therewith (including, without limitation, the Securities Act and the Exchange Act, and the rules and regulations promulgated by the SEC) and make generally available to its security holders as soon as practicable (but in any event not later than fifteen (15) months after the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement) an earnings statement of Laser and its subsidiaries complying with Section 11(a) of the Securities Act;

(12) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, use reasonable best efforts to furnish to Parent Holdings a signed counterpart of (x) an opinion of counsel for Laser (including a "Rule 10b-5" opinion) and (y) a "comfort" letter signed by the independent public accountants who have certified Laser's financial statements included or incorporated by reference in such registration statement, covering such matters with respect to such registration statement and, in the case of the accountants' comfort letter, with respect to events subsequent to the date of such financial statements as are customarily covered in opinions of issuer's counsel and in accountants' comfort letters delivered to the underwriters in underwritten public offerings of securities for the account of, or on behalf of, an issuer of common stock, such opinion and comfort letters to be dated the date that such opinion and comfort letters are customarily dated in such transactions; and

(13) take other actions as Parent Holdings or the underwriters, if any, reasonably request in order to expedite or facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities.

(b) Further Agreements. Without limiting any of the foregoing, in the event that the sale of Registrable Securities is to be made by or through an underwriter, Laser shall enter into an underwriting agreement with a managing underwriter or underwriters selected by Parent Holdings containing representations, warranties, indemnities and agreements customarily included (but not inconsistent with the agreements contained herein) by an issuer of common stock in underwriting agreements with respect to offerings of common stock for the account of, or on behalf of, such issuers: provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not utilize the Shelf Registration Statement for more than two (2) underwritten offerings during the term of this Agreement. In connection with the sale of Registrable Securities hereunder, Parent Holdings may, at its option, require that any and all representations and warranties by, and the other agreements of, Laser to or for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be made to or for the benefit of such an underwriter or underwriter if such sale of Registrable Securities were pursuant to a customary underwritten offering) be made to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings and that any or all of the conditions precedent to the obligations of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be so for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters under a customary underwriting agreement) be conditions precedent to the obligations of Parent Holdings in connection with the disposition of Parent Holdings' securities pursuant to the terms hereof. In connection with any offering of Registrable Securities registered pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall, upon receipt of duly endorsed certificates representing the Registrable Securities, (i) furnish to the underwriter, if any (or, if no underwriter, Parent Holdings), unlegended certificates representing ownership of Registrable Securities being sold, in such denominations as requested, and (ii) instruct any transfer agent and registrar of the Registrable Securities to release any stop transfer order with respect thereto.

Parent Holdings agrees that upon receipt of any notice from Laser of the happening of any event of the kind described in paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a), Parent Holdings shall forthwith discontinue its disposition of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus relating thereto until Parent Holdings' receipt of the copies of the supplemented or amended prospectus contemplated by paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a) and, if so directed by Laser, deliver to Laser all copies, other than permanent file copies, then in Parent Holdings' possession of the prospectus current at the time of receipt of such notice relating to the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.5 Registration Expenses.

All expenses incidental to Laser's performance of, or compliance with, its obligations under this Agreement including, without limitation, all registration and filing fees, all fees and expenses of compliance with securities and "blue sky" laws (including, without limitation, the fees and expenses of counsel for underwriters or placement or sales agents in connection therewith), all printing and copying expenses, all messenger and delivery expenses, all fees and expenses of underwriters and sales and placement agents in connection therewith (excluding underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor), all fees and expenses of Laser's independent certified public accountants and counsel (including, without limitation, with respect to "comfort" letters and opinions) and other Persons retained by Laser in connection therewith (collectively, the "Registration Expenses"), shall be borne by Laser. Laser shall not be responsible for and shall not pay underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor and fees and expenses of legal counsel, accountants, agents or experts retained by Parent Holdings in connection with the sale of the Registrable Securities. Laser will pay its internal expenses (including, without limitation, all salaries and expenses of its officers and employees performing legal or accounting duties, the expense of any annual audit and the expense of any liability insurance) and the expenses and fees for listing the Registrable Securities on the New York Stock Exchange or, if the Laser Common Stock is then not so listed, included in an established over-the-counter market.

Section 2.6 Indemnification.

(a) By Laser. Laser agrees to indemnify Parent Holdings and Parent Holdings' directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person to the fullest extent lawful, against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, judgments, and reasonable costs (including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses) (collectively, the "Losses") as incurred, caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, except insofar as the same are based upon any information furnished in writing to Laser by Parent Holdings or its underwriter or other agent expressly for use therein or by Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or its underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Laser's other obligations under this Agreement, Laser shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Parent Holdings.

(b) By Parent Holdings. In connection with the Shelf Registration Statement, Parent Holdings shall furnish to Laser in writing information regarding Parent Holdings' ownership of Registrable Securities and Parent Holdings' intended method of distribution thereof and shall indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (i) is caused by, arises out of, results from or relates to, or is alleged to be omitted from, such information so furnished in writing by Parent Holdings or (ii) arises out of or results from Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or Parent Holdings' underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Parent Holdings' other obligations under this Agreement, (i) Parent Holdings shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Laser and (ii) Parent Holdings shall cause each underwriter of an underwritten offering to indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such indemnified Person, on terms and subject to conditions customary for such indemnification by nationally known investment banking firms, against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (x) is caused by, arises out of or results from information furnished in writing by such underwriter specifically for inclusion in the Shelf Registration Statement or (y) arises out of or results from such underwriter's failure to deliver a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished such underwriter with the requested number of copies of the same.

(c) Notice. Any Person entitled to indemnification hereunder shall give prompt written notice to the indemnifying party of any claim with respect to which it seeks indemnification; provided, however, the failure to give such notice shall not release the indemnifying party from its obligation, except to the extent that the indemnifying party has been prejudiced by such failure to provide such notice.

(d) Defense of Actions. In any case in which any such action is brought against any indemnified party, and it notifies an indemnifying party of the commencement thereof, the indemnifying party shall be entitled to participate therein, and, to the extent that it may wish, jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified, to assume the defense thereof, with counsel reasonably satisfactory to such indemnified party, and after notice from the indemnifying party to such indemnified party of its election so to assume the defense thereof. the indemnifying party shall not (so long as it shall continue to have the right to defend, contest, litigate and settle the matter in question in accordance with this paragraph) be liable to such indemnified party hereunder for any legal or other expense subsequently incurred by such indemnified party in connection with the defense thereof other than reasonable costs of investigation, supervision and monitoring (unless such indemnified party reasonably objects to such assumption on the grounds that there may be defenses available to it which are different from or in addition to the defenses available to such indemnifying party, in which event the indemnified party shall be reimbursed by the indemnifying party for the reasonable expenses incurred in connection with retaining one separate legal counsel). An indemnifying party shall not be liable for any settlement of an action or claim effected without its consent. The indemnifying party shall lose its right to defend, contest, litigate and settle a matter if it shall fail to diligently contest such matter (except to the extent settled in accordance with the next following sentence). No matter shall be settled by an indemnifying party without the consent of the indemnified party unless such settlement contains a full and unconditional release of the indemnified party.

(e) Survival. The indemnification provided for under this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any investigation made by or on behalf of the indemnified Person and will survive the transfer of the Registrable Securities.

(f) Contribution. If recovery is not available under the foregoing indemnification provisions for any reason or reasons other than as specified therein, any Person who otherwise would be entitled to indemnification by the terms thereof shall nevertheless be entitled to contribution with respect to any Losses with respect to which such Person would be entitled to such indemnification but for such reason or reasons. In determining the amount of contribution to which the respective Persons are entitled, there shall be considered the Persons' relative knowledge and access to information concerning the matter with respect to which the claim was asserted, the opportunity to correct and prevent any statement or omission, and other equitable considerations appropriate under the circumstances. It is hereby agreed that it would not necessarily be equitable if the amount of such contribution were determined by pro rata or per capita allocation. No person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation (within the meaning of Section 11(f) of the Securities Act) shall be entitled to contribution from any Person who was not found guilty of such fraudulent misrepresentation.

or to such other person or address as any party shall specify by notice in writing, given in accordance with this Section 4.3, to the other parties hereto. All such notices, requests, demands, waivers and communications shall be deemed to have been given on the date on which so hand-delivered, on the third business day following the date on which so mailed, on the next business day following the date on which delivered to such overnight courier and on the date of such facsimile transmission and confirmation, except for a notice of change of person or address, which shall be effective only upon receipt thereof.

Section 4.4 Entire Agreement.

This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof. This Agreement supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral and written, with respect to its subject matter.

Section 4.5 Binding Effect; Assignment.

This Agreement and all of the provisions hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, executors, successors and permitted assigns, but, except as expressly contemplated herein, neither this Agreement nor any of the rights, interests or obligations hereunder shall be assigned, directly or indirectly, by Laser or Parent Holdings without the prior written consent of the other; provided, that in connection with a bona fide pledge of any Registrable Securities to secure indebtedness or other obligations. Parent Holdings may assign its rights, interests and obligations hereunder to the beneficiary of such pledge. Upon any permitted assignment (other than in connection with any such bona fide pledge), this Agreement shall be amended to substitute the assignee as a party hereto in a writing reasonably acceptable to the other party.

Section 4.6 Amendment, Modification and Waiver.

This Agreement may be amended, modified or supplemented at any time by written agreement of the parties hereto. Any failure by Parent Holdings, on the one hand, or Laser, on the other hand, to comply with any term or provision of this Agreement may be waived by Laser or Parent Holdings, respectively, at any time by an instrument in writing signed by or on behalf of Laser and Parent Holdings, but such waiver or failure to insist upon strict compliance with such term or provision shall not operate as a waiver of, or estoppel with respect to, any subsequent or other failure to comply.

Section 4.7 Third-Party Beneficiaries.

Except with respect to Affiliates which have agreed to be bound in accordance with Section 2.1(a), this Agreement is not intended, and shall not be deemed, to confer upon or give any person except the parties hereto and their respective successors and permitted assigns, any remedy, claim, liability, reimbursement, cause of action or other right under or by reason of this Agreement.

Section 4.8 Counterparts.

This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original, but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

Section 4.9 Interpretation.

The article and section headings contained in this Agreement are solely for the purpose of reference, are not part of the agreement of the parties and shall not in any way affect the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

Section 4.10 Governing Law.

This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New York, without regard to the principles of conflicts of law thereof.

Section 4.11 Termination; Restrictive Legend.

Subject to the provisions of Section 2.1(b) hereof, this Agreement shall terminate on the second anniversary of consummation of the Merger; provided, however, that the provisions of Section 2.6 hereof shall survive termination of this Agreement. It is understood and agreed that any restrictive legends set forth on any Registrable Securities shall be removed by delivery of substitute certificates without such legends and such Registrable Securities shall no longer be subject to the terms of this Agreement, upon the resale of such Registrable Securities in accordance with the terms of this Agreement or, if not theretofore removed, on the third anniversary of the date hereof.

1 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Will counsel

 3 MR. JOHNSON: Yes. Clark Johnson and

 6 Holdings and MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings,
 7 Inc.
 8 Larissa Paule-Carres of Kirkland &

 11 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Will the Court
 12 Reporter please swear in the witness.
 13 THOMAS F. BURCHILL, having been 14 duly sworn by the Notary Public, was 15 examined and testified as follows:
 16 EXAMINATION BY
 17 MR. JOHNSON:
 18 Q. Good morning.
 19 A. Good morning.
 20 Q. Would you please state your full name
 21 for the record.
 22 A. Thomas Francis Burchill, IV.
 23 Q. And where do you reside today?
 24 A. New Canaan, Connecticut.
 25 Q. Have you ever given a deposition

Page 6

1 before?
 2 A. I have not.
 3 Q. Have you testified in court or any
 4 kind of proceeding?
 5 A. Never.
 6 Q. Well, let me cover a few background
 7 rules for you --
 8 A. Okay.
 9 Q. -- so we can maybe have an expedited
 10 process today. I'm going to ask you a series of 11 questions. And if at any point you don't 12 understand one of my questions or need me to 13 rephrase it for some reason, just let me know
 14 that, and I'll try to accommodate it. You need
 15 to give your responses orally. Our Court
 16 Reporter here cannot take down nods of the head
 17 or shrugs of the shoulder. And "uh-hums" and 18 "uh-huhs" are kind of unclear on the written 19 record. So if you would be kind enough to do
 20 that.
 21 If you need to take a break at some
 22 point, let me know, and we can try to accommodate 23 that as well.
 24 Have you ever been named as a party
 25 in any litigation?

Page 7

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Why don't you walk me through your
 3 educational background from graduating from high
 4 school up to the present.
 5 A. Sure. I graduated Garden City High
 6 School in Garden City, Long Island, in 1983;
 7 graduated from Holy Cross College in Wooster,
 8 Massachusetts, in 1987 and graduated from 9 Northwestern University's Kellogg Graduate School
 10 of Management in 1994.
 11 Q. What was your area of -- it was an 12 M.B.A. from Kellogg?
 13 A. Yes, it was an M.B.A.
 14 Q. And what was your area of 15 concentration in business school?
 16 A. Finance and general management
 17 strategy.
 18 Q. And did you receive any honors at 19 Kellogg?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. And what was your major at Holy 22 Cross?
 23 A. Political science.
 24 Q. Same exercise for your employment
 25 history between Holy Cross and Kellogg.

Page 8

1 A. Between Holy Cross and Kellogg, my
 2 first job out of school was as a legal assistant
 3 at Skadden, Arps. Then I went over to the Hong 4 Kong and Shanghai Bank. And that was here in 5 Manhattan. Stayed in Manhattan with the Hong 6 Kong and Shanghai Bank a year later. So that was 7 -- let's see. Started that in June of '89. So
 8 it was about a year and a half. And then started
 9 an M&A advisory firm called Connecticut Capital
 10 Advisers in late '89, early 1990, in Stamford,
 11 Connecticut; then went to business school.
 12 Q. And you were at the New York office
 13 of Skadden, Arps?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And what was your title at Hong Kong,
 16 Shanghai Bank?
 17 A. I was an associate.
 18 Q. And could you just generally sketch
 19 your responsibilities as an associate there.
 20 A. I worked in both the mergers and 21 acquisitions department and in the leverage
 22 lending group. And, as an associate, I supported 23 any transaction that a senior banker wanted to 24 conduct.
 25 Q. And in Connecticut Capital Advisers

021094

Page 9

1 -- was that the title?
 2 A. Yes. Exactly.
 3 Q. You indicated you started that
 4 entity?
 5 A. I was the most junior of three senior
 6 guys, the spreadsheet jockey, if you will, but I
 7 was one of the founding members.
 8 Q. What was the business function of 9 that entity?
 10 A. To advise middle market companies
 11 primarily in the sale of those companies,
 12 represent them in the sale.
 13 Q. Okay. And then on to Kellogg in '93,
 14 maybe?
 15 A. Started in '92.
 16 Q. Okay.
 17 A. Graduated in '94.
 18 Q. Did you summer at any firm while in 19 business school?
 20 A. At Chemical Venture Partners, which 21 is part of Chemical Banking Corporation at the 22 time.
 23 Q. Okay. Let's trace out your 24 employment from graduating from Kellogg to the 25 present.

Page 10

1 A. Sure. Started -- got an offer to go
 2 back to Chemical and worked again with Chemical
 3 Venture Partners for a part of the time and then
 4 another part of the time as a rotating associate
 5 in their leverage lending group. They call it
 6 the acquisitions finance group. Spent two years
 7 there, then went to Morgan Stanley summer of 2004
 8 -- I'm sorry -- summer of 1996, where I was an
 9 associate in the high yield group.
 10 After being at Morgan Stanley New 11 York and then London, I left Morgan Stanley in 12 the summer of 2000 to go to First Boston to be in 13 the high yield group as a director. Left very 14 quickly after DLJ was purchased. And they made
 15 massive layoffs due to the merger. I went over 16 to Bank of America Securities. I was there a
 17 year and a half before I left to start my own
 18 firm.
 19 Q. And what is the name of your firm?
 20 A. It's the Silvermine Group.
 21 Silvermine, one word.
 22 Q. And what titles did you hold in the 23 approximately four years you were at Morgan
 24 Stanley?
 25 A. Senior associate and then vice

Page 11

1 president.
 2 Q. And you were based in New York and in 3 London?
 4 A. Correct. First, New York from '96
 5 until I started working in London in September of 6 1997. And I was essentially commuting back and 7 forth and then permanently moved to London in 8 March of 1998 with my family.
 9 Q. And when did you return from London?
 10 A. In July of 2000.
 11 Q. And that was in connection with 12 joining Credit Suisse?
 13 A. No. Actually, Morgan Stanley wanted
 14 me to come back, and I did.
 15 Q. Why did you leave Morgan Stanley?
 16 A. I got a great offer from First
 17 Boston.
 18 Q. Okay. I take that to mean more
 19 money, more responsibility?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. Okay. Do you serve as a director of 22 any company today?
 23 A. I do.
 24 Q. What companies do you serve as a
 25 director?

Page 12

1 A. Just one now: Epals Classroom
 2 Exchange, Incorporated.
 3 Q. How long have you been a director of 4 Epals?
 5 A. Two-and-a-half years.
 6 Q. Are you affiliated with any entity
 7 that's provided lending to Epals?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. What other companies have you served
 10 as a director for?
 11 A. Verticore Technologies, Incorporated.
 12 And that's it.
 13 Q. When did you cease serving as a
 14 director of Verticore?
 15 A. May 2004.
 16 Q. Did anything cause you to resign that 17 directorship?
 18 A. The company went bankrupt. I'm in 19 the venture capital business. So it's just -- 20 the investment was over.
 21 Q. Par for the course?
 22 A. Exactly.
 23 Q. So Verticore is in Chapter 7
 24 bankruptcy now?
 25 A. They're still working on a plan. I

021095

Page 13

1 don't recall if it's 11 or 7.
 2 Q. Okay. Do you have any connection
 3 with an entity called 24/7 Media?
 4 A. No longer.
 5 Q. I take that to mean that at some
 6 point you did have a connection to that entity --
 7 A. As a shareholder.
 8 Q. And how about Viridian Capital
 9 Partners? Do you have any connection to that
 10 entity?
 11 A. No longer. We tried to raise a fund,
 12 but it didn't work.
 13 Q. When you say you tried to raise a
 14 fund, you were attempting to put together a --
 15 A. A venture fund.
 16 Q. And tell me about your current
 17 business.
 18 A. I seek out venture investment
 19 opportunities for a Seattle-based investor. And 20 when we make investments, we sit on the board of 21 the company. And we're just beginning that 22 operation right now.
 23 Q. When you say "make investments," does
 24 that include both equity and debt?
 25 A. Equity.

Page 14

1 Q. Equity only?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. When did you first learn that your
 4 deposition was requested in this case?
 5 A. A few months ago. I can't recall the 6 exact date, but I would say it was June or July.
 7 Q. You received a phone call?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. From? From whom?
 10 A. From Tom Claire. Actually, I take
 11 that back. I first received a -- I got a voice
 12 message from someone in Morgan Stanley's legal 13 department telling me that Tom Claire would be 14 calling me.
 15 Q. And at that point, were you aware
 16 that there was litigation between Morgan Stanley
 17 and MacAndrews & Forbes?
 18 A. No.
 19 Q. That's the first you had heard about 20 this lawsuit?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. And have you spoken with anyone other
 23 than family members and Kirkland & Ellis lawyers
 24 about your deposition?
 25 A. No.

Page 15

1 Q. Have you kept in contact with any of
 2 your colleagues from Morgan Stanley?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Have you spoken with any of them
 5 about this deposition?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. When was the last time you spoke to
 8 Bram Smith?
 9 A. It was November 2002.
 10 Q. That's a fairly precise answer. Can 11 you attach that to an event?
 12 A. It was my wife's funeral.
 13 Q. Oh. I'm sorry to hear that.
 14 How about Michael Hart?
 15 A. What about Michael Hart?
 16 Q. I'm sorry. When was the last time
 17 that you spoke with Michael Hart?
 18 A. It was when I left Morgan Stanley.
 19 So summer of 2000.
 20 Q. When was the last time you spoke with 21 Ishaan Seth?
 22 A. Briefly on the phone in -- just this
 23 past June 2004.
 24 Q. And did you talk about depositions or 25 this lawsuit in any way?

Page 16

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Did you talk about Sunbeam at all?
 3 A. No. And before that I had not spoken
 4 with him since I left Morgan Stanley. So...
 5 Q. Did you talk to him in connection
 6 with some business you are working with him on 7 now?
 8 A. No. He called to say hi. I ran into
 9 a friend that said he was in New York City. I
 10 didn't know that. So we were pretty close at 11 Morgan Stanley. He worked for me -- directly for 12 me. So...
 13 Q. How about Simon Rankin? When was the 14 last time you spoke with him?
 15 A. Summer of 2000, when I left Morgan
 16 Stanley.
 17 Q. Do you think that anyone misled
 18 Morgan Stanley in connection with Morgan
 19 Stanley's work for Sunbeam?
 20 A. I don't know.
 21 Q. You don't have an opinion one way or 22 the other on that?
 23 A. I really don't.
 24 Q. You understand that Sunbeam went
 25 through Chapter 11 bankruptcy?

021096

Page 17

1 A. I read about it in the newspaper.
 2 Q. Did you read about the termination of 3 Mr. Dunlap and the SEC investigations that 4 followed?
 5 A. I read about it in the newspapers,
 6 yeah.
 7 Q. So you were aware that it happened?
 8 A. Yes. At the time, I was in London
 9 working on business over there.
 10 Q. As you sit here today, you can't 11 think of any false statement that was given to 12 you in connection with your work on the financing
 13 for Sunbeam?
 14 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection;
 15 foundation.
 16 A. My role was very limited in the 17 transaction. I had started working in London in 18 September of 1997, was asked to attend a single 19 meeting down in Florida, and did so at Bram
 20 Smith's request. And, to my knowledge, that was 21 the limit of my involvement. So it's virtually 22 impossible for me to have an opinion one way or 23 another whether someone tried to mislead or not.
 24 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 25 Q. You mentioned that you were at Morgan

Page 18

1 Stanley for about four years?
 2 A. Uh-huh.
 3 Q. Which Morgan Stanley entity was your
 4 employer?
 5 A. Morgan Stanley & Company.
 6 Q. Did you have any titles or positions
 7 with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
 8 A. I can't recall exactly, but I think I
 9 might have been an officer of Morgan Stanley
 10 Senior Funding.
 11 Q. The entire time you were at Morgan
 12 Stanley?
 13 A. To the best of my knowledge, I was.
 14 Q. Do you know who the president of 15 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was at any time?
 16 A. No.
 17 Q. Do you know who any of the other
 18 officers of the company were?
 19 A. I know that Michael McLoughlin and 20 Mike Hart were. And I don't know about any 21 others.
 22 Q. Do you know who any -- or can you
 23 name any of the directors of Morgan Stanley
 24 Senior Funding?
 25 A. I can't.

Page 19

1 Q. Did you have an understanding of the
 2 business purpose of Morgan Stanley Senior
 3 Funding?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And what was the purpose?
 6 A. To make loans to companies, to use
 7 the firm's capital to make loans to companies.
 8 Q. And was it directed primarily to 9 leveraged finance?
 10 A. It was virtually any lending
 11 opportunity that Morgan Stanley had where Morgan
 12 Stanley would be using its own capital. And 13 there are many times where capital was used for 14 leveraged lending and many instances where the 15 capital is used for investment grade lending
 16 purposes as well.
 17 Q. Did you have any understanding of 18 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding being positioned to 19 help the firm be a one-stop-shop, so to speak?
 20 A. Prior --
 21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection. Vague
 22 as to what a one-stop-shop is.
 23 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 24 Q. Are you familiar with that term?
 25 A. The term is used a lot and in many

Page 20

1 different ways.
 2 Q. Did you have a sense of Morgan
 3 Stanley Senior Funding presenting cross-selling
 4 opportunities within Morgan Stanley?
 5 A. My understanding of the purpose of 6 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was that the firm,
 7 prior to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, did not
 8 have a lending business or function and simply 9 would be losing business if it did not fill that 10 hole in its product suite.
 11 Q. And that's -- you say they would be 12 losing money if they didn't offer that product.
 13 That's because Morgan Stanley's M&A clients would 14 go elsewhere for financing?
 15 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection to the
 16 extent it mischaracterizes testimony.
 17 A. It's hard to say. I mean, it's hard 18 to say. I wasn't involved in setting strategy at 19 the firm. It was simply my understanding that 20 this was a function that the bank, prior to 21 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, did not have and 22 wanted to have it.
 23 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 24 Q. Obviously -- well, let me not say
 25 obviously. Not so obviously perhaps. The term

021097

Page 21

1 "senior" in Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
 2 signifies a status of the loans that Senior
 3 Funding would be providing; is that correct?
 4 A. I was not involved in the naming of 5 the organization. And I know that the naming of 6 -- or the entity, rather, was a subject to great
 7 debate. So what it actually implied I don't 8 know.
 9 Q. When you say the naming was subject
 10 to great debate, what do you mean by that?
 11 A. We -- well, for the reason that you
 12 just hit upon: One can take great creativity in 13 structuring a debt financing. And it was not 14 clear whether or not the name implied that one
 15 element to the structure was always going to be 16 the same, in other words, a senior debt
 17 instrument, or could it be not senior. So there
 18 were those who felt that having the word "senior"
 19 there limited the creativity of the structuring
 20 that could be done. So it just was subject to 21 debate that way.
 22 Q. Did you consider yourself while at 23 Morgan Stanley part of both the bond business and 24 the loan business?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 22

1 Q. Did you work on the convertible
 2 offering for Morgan Stanley?
 3 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; vague.
 4 MR. JOHNSON: Good objection.
 5 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 6 Q. Did you work on the convertible
 7 offering that Morgan Stanley underwrote for 8 Sunbeam?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Other than Sunbeam, can you recall
 11 any entities where you helped Morgan Stanley
 12 establish a secured financing arrangement?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. Can you name some of those entities
 15 for me?
 16 A. Doubletree Hotels when they purchased
 17 Red Lion Inns; Telex Company, which was a
 18 leverage buyout financing. I mean, there were a 19 lot of them.
 20 Q. Can you focus on the 1998 time frame
 21 and think of some of the clients in that time
 22 frame?
 23 A. They were all in Europe.
 24 Q. Okay.
 25 A. Because I had started segueing to the

Page 23

1 London office in September and then physically
 2 was on the ground there as of September -- March
 3 21st on a full-time basis.
 4 Q. Do you recall Regal Cinemas in the 5 1998 time frame? Did you work on that?
 6 A. I provided minimal assistance on that 7 one, again because I was in London.
 8 Q. How about Omniquip?
 9 A. I worked on that transaction.
 10 Q. Would you characterize your 11 involvement as minimal, or was that --
 12 A. No. Very extensive.
 13 Q. How about United Artists?
 14 A. I was very involved in that one.
 15 Q. Those were all leverage finance
 16 situations?
 17 A. Those both were leverage finance
 18 situations, yes.
 19 Q. You talked about the idea of 20 creativity in structuring a financing package.
 21 A. Uh-huh.
 22 Q. Can you tell me -- let me strike
 23 that. Let me say this differently.
 24 What's, as a general manner, an 25 economic rationale for having different kinds of

Page 24

1 debt in a financing package?
 2 A. Boy, there are lots of
 3 considerations. Among them are probability of 4 repayment, first and foremost; the timing of a
 5 company's ability to generate cash flows; the 6 market's appetite for certain types of debt
 7 structures; and Morgan Stanley's risk tolerance
 8 for certain types of debt structures.
 9 Q. How about -- would the value of 10 collateral and availability of collateral be 11 another consideration?
 12 A. Uh-huh. Absolutely.
 13 Q. Do you recall, in general terms, the 14 structure of Sunbeam's financing for its 15 acquisitions in March of '98?
 16 A. I don't recall.
 17 Q. Okay. I'll represent to you that
 18 there was a convertible debt offering that closed
 19 at $750 million and then a secured loan as well
 20 led by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding.
 21 What's the purpose of having both a
 22 convertible debt and a conventional senior loan?
 23 A. I don't know why they structured it
 24 that way for Sunbeam. I was not involved in the 25 structuring.

021098

Page 25

1 Q. You weren't involved at all in that
 2 decision-making process?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Is it fair to say that the
 5 convertible debt is junior to the senior secured
 6 debt?
 7 A. In most cases, it is.
 8 Q. In the context of the Sunbeam
 9 transaction, you just don't recall --
 10 A. Yeah, I just wasn't that involved. I
 11 was very focused on the business in London,
 12 trying to find schools for the kids in London,
 13 finding an exorbitantly priced house in London,
 14 that sort of stuff, and then hitting the ground
 15 running there in March.
 16 Q. Did you have any discussions with 17 anyone at Morgan Stanley concerning why Sunbeam's 18 financing was structured the way it was?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Do you have any sense of the interest
 21 expense to Sunbeam in structuring the financing
 22 with a convertible offering and a secured loan?
 23 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Can you have that
 24 read back.
 25 (Record read.)

Page 26

1 A. I don't know why they wanted it that
 2 way, if that's your question.
 3 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 4 Q. Let me put it slightly differently.
 5 Do you know whether the interest
 6 expense would be cheaper with that structure as 7 opposed to a straight secured financing?
 8 A. Again, as a structuring matter, there
 9 are many considerations that go into how the debt
 10 -- how debt typically in a leveraged transaction
 11 is spliced up. Among them, as you mentioned, are 12 collateral. So I'm sure that was a
 13 consideration. And this is conjecture on my part
 14 at this point. The ability to pay cash interest
 15 versus noncash interest; the ability to pay
 16 amortizing debt versus nonamortizing debt; the 17 desire of the company to hedge -- floating versus 18 fixed rate instruments. All of that -- all of 19 those are considerations in structuring. And 20 also market appetite to purchase the securities.
 21 Q. Can you think of any occasion where 22 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding declined to provide 23 financing for one of Morgan Stanley's M&A
 24 clients?
 25 A. Yes. Many times.

Page 27

1 Q. Can you give me some examples of
 2 that.
 3 THE WITNESS: Is that -- I mean, is 4 that public information that --
 5 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 6 Q. We have a protective order in the 7 case. So...
 8 A. Okay. I mean -- yeah. I mean, I can
 9 think of an instance where Morgan Stanley Senior 10 Funding declined a financing for a company that 11 Morgan Stanley Capital Partners, the private 12 equity group, had a major stake in the Italian
 13 American Pasta Company. One of the senior guys
 14 over at Morgan Stanley Capital Partners requested
 15 that we make a loan to the company. And that 16 loan was declined. And when another bank stepped 17 up under a much more conservative structure, we 18 committed a tiny token piece to it, with the 19 other bank still leading the transaction.
 20 Whew, going back in time -- yes.
 21 There were several utility transactions at the 22 time which we declined to fund which were 23 actively engaged Morgan Stanley M&A clients. I
 24 can't recall actual names, but there were a lot
 25 of big utility deals being done at the time.

Page 28

1 Another transaction that I can recall
 2 is the duty-free stores. Chuck Feeney and that
 3 organization wanted to do a leverage transaction
 4 of that entity. And Morgan Stanley's M&A
 5 department was engaged to assess opportunities
 6 and, for various appetite of risk reasons,
 7 declined the financing.
 8 There are others I just -- it's a
 9 while back at this point.
 10 Q. At any point did you hear any 11 complaints within Morgan Stanley concerning the 12 quality of the entities to which Senior Funding
 13 was lending money?
 14 A. That's an issue we assessed with 15 every lending opportunity.
 16 Q. I guess my question is a little
 17 different.
 18 Did anyone complain that the quality
 19 of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's debtors was 20 too low?
 21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; vague.
 22 A. Yeah. I just don't understand the
 23 question.
 24 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 25 Q. Did you ever hear any general

021099

Page 33

1 cushion. I've heard equity cushion. But I want
 2 to make sure I understand what the question is.
 3 Q. When you hear the term "equity
 4 cushion," what do you understand that to mean?
 5 A. What -- if you want to define it for
 6 me, I can tell you --
 7 Q. Sure. The amount of market
 8 capitalization represented by the equity in the 9 company.
 10 A. Okay. I wasn't aware of the numbers
 11 at the time.
 12 Q. When did you first get involved with 13 the Sunbeam financing?
 14 A. Well, again, I was commuting back and 15 forth beginning to London -- between London and 16 New York beginning in September. And Bram Smith
 17 asked me to attend a meeting with him because 18 Mike Hart could not, the meeting being a meeting
 19 down in Florida. And I think -- he just -- there 20 were other banks being represented at that 21 meeting: Bank of America and First Union. I
 22 think he didn't want to be the only one there
 23 from Morgan Stanley, the firm leading the 24 transaction. So he asked me to come with him.
 25 And when that was -- it was February or March

Page 34

1 time frame before I left permanently.
 2 Q. Was it after the acquisitions had
 3 been announced that you were asked to do this?
 4 A. I really don't know.
 5 Q. Before you went down to Florida, did
 6 you do any background or anything on Sunbeam?
 7 A. I can't recall at the time.
 8 Q. Would you expect that you would do a
 9 little homework before attending a meeting?
 10 A. It would always depend. Again, my 11 understanding -- Bram asked me to attend this 12 meeting. He knew I was leaving. And Mike Hart
 13 was on the case. And as a newly appointed vice 14 president, I knew that Mike and I couldn't be on 15 the same transaction. We just didn't staff two 16 vice presidents on the same transaction. So if I
 17 thought it was going to be a long-standing
 18 engagement, I probably would have. I knew it was 19 going to be short, and I didn't know how short.
 20 So -- how much homework, I really don't remember
 21 doing much of any.
 22 Q. Did you talk to anyone from the M&A
 23 side of Morgan Stanley about the company to 24 prepare for this meeting?
 25 A. No.

Page 35

1 Q. At any point, did you talk with
 2 anyone from the M&A side about Sunbeam?
 3 A. Can you refresh my memory as to who
 4 in the M&A department worked on this --
 5 Q. Sure. How about Bob Kitt?
 6 A. Did not talk to him.
 7 Q. Jim Steins?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. Alex Fuchs?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Bill Strong?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. Andy Savarie?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. Shani --
 16 A. I talked to him --
 17 Q. I'm sorry?
 18 A. No. Not before that meeting, no.
 19 Q. Shani Boone?
 20 A. No. I don't even remember who that
 21 is.
 22 Q. Johann Groeller (phonetic)?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Ben Derito?
 25 A. No.

Page 36

1 Q. Let me ask this. Maybe this will
 2 save us a lot of time.
 3 Did you talk to any of those
 4 individuals at any point during your work on the 5 Sunbeam financing?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. And, again, maybe this will be a time
 8 saver. Tell me who besides Bram Smith you dealt 9 with at Morgan Stanley in connection with the 10 financing.
 11 MS. PAULE-CARRES: The Sunbeam
 12 financing?
 13 MR. JOHNSON: Yes.
 14 A. I think I went to that one meeting,
 15 and I was gone. And Mike -- I don't remember the 16 reason why Mike could not make that meeting, but 17 he was -- as the engaged vice president on it, I
 18 just let him go with it.
 19 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 20 Q. Did you have any interaction at all
 21 with Ishaan Seth on this financing?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. Simon Rankin?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Did you deal with any of the client

021101

Page 37

1 services group personnel in connection with this
 2 financing?
 3 A. Can you remind me who's --
 4 Q. Sure. John Tyree?
 5 A. He was at the meeting in Florida.
 6 Q. Other than attending a meeting where 7 John Tyree was present, did you have any other
 8 dealings with him?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. How about Bill Wright? Any dealings
 11 with him on Sunbeam?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. I'm going to show you a few documents
 14 and see if they look at all familiar to you.
 15 A. Sure.
 16 Q. This has been marked previously as
 17 CPH Exhibit 187 (handing). And off the record,
 18 it's -- the first page states "Sunbeam Long Range
 19 Strategic Plan."
 20 Mr. Burchill, do you recall ever
 21 seeing this document?
 22 A. No, I don't recall ever seeing this
 23 document.
 24 Q. Do you have any idea who prepared it?
 25 A. I don't know who prepared it.

Page 38

1 Q. Did you receive any financial
 2 projections from anyone concerning Sunbeam as
 3 part of your work on this transaction?
 4 A. Again, I attended that one meeting.
 5 I don't recall seeing projections at that
 6 meeting. So, no.
 7 Q. Let's try another one.
 8 A. Okay. Do you want this back?
 9 Q. You can set it in front of you.
 10 Thank you.
 11 This has been marked previously as
 12 CPH Exhibit 9. It's a fairly lengthy document.
 13 If you want to take a minute to flip through it.
 14 For the record, this is entitled Sunbeam
 15 Preparation Discussion Materials February 1998.
 16 Does CPH Exhibit 9 look familiar to 17 you at all?
 18 A. I have not seen it before.
 19 Q. Do you have any idea who prepared
 20 this document?
 21 A. I don't.
 22 Q. Does it appear to be --
 23 A. I mean, it says "Morgan Stanley."
 24 It's on the first page. So...
 25 Q. Does the format look familiar to

Page 39

1 you --
 2 A. Yes. It's definitely Morgan Stanley,
 3 yeah.
 4 Q. Did you -- but you don't know who, if 5 anyone, within Morgan Stanley actually put this
 6 together?
 7 A. I don't know.
 8 Q. Do you have any idea whether anyone
 9 did anything to confirm the accuracy of the 10 information in this document?
 11 A. Yeah, I would have no idea.
 12 Q. Would you have any expectation as to 13 the accuracy of the information in the document?
 14 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection.
 15 A. Yeah. I -- can you repeat the 16 question again.
 17 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 18 Q. Sure. Let me back up and give you a
 19 slightly different one.
 20 A. Yeah. Thanks.
 21 Q. I believe you testified this appears
 22 to be a Morgan Stanley document?
 23 A. Uh-huh.
 24 Q. Do you have any expectation, given
 25 your experience at Morgan Stanley, as to whether

Page 40

1 the information contained in this document would
 2 be accurate?
 3 A. Yeah. I don't know who prepared it,
 4 you know. I -- there were some folks at Morgan
 5 Stanley who were really good, some who were not
 6 as good. And so I would always -- I mean, Morgan
 7 Stanley as a firm is a good firm. But even 8 within Morgan Stanley, you've got to be aware of 9 who is giving you what and under what 10 circumstances. Yeah. And, you know, it would 11 take me a while to go through the contents to 12 assess it.
 13 Q. But as a general rule, you said
 14 Morgan Stanley is a good firm?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. So based on your experience, you
 17 think the reputation of Morgan Stanley would give 18 you some comfort as to the accuracy of the 19 information?
 20 A. Again, it just depends --
 21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection.
 22 A. Yeah. It just depends on the 23 circumstance. It depends on what stage a
 24 transaction is in and whether it's adequately
 25 staffed, how high profile versus not -- there are

021102

Page 41

1 just a lot of circumstances that would never lead
 2 me to simply take a piece of paper and assume
 3 that I could have a high confidence in it. My
 4 hope is there are a lot of other people at Morgan
 5 Stanley with a similar view. And that's one of 6 the things that makes it a good firm.
 7 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 8 Q. Had you ever worked with Bill Strong
 9 -- strike that.
 10 Did you ever work with Bill Strong at 11 all in connection with your employment at Morgan
 12 Stanley?
 13 A. Never directly. Whether he was the 14 relationship manager for a company or two, it
 15 might have been the case, but I wouldn't know him
 16 if I bumped into him. Put it that way.
 17 Q. You never had any direct
 18 communications with Bill Strong?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Did you ever learn anything about his
 21 reputation?
 22 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; vague.
 23 A. No.
 24 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 25 Q. I show you another document.

Page 42

1 MR. JOHNSON: We'll mark this one as
 2 CPH Exhibit 266.
 3 (CPH Exhibit 266, memo dated 3/3/98
 4 from Mr. Burchill to Mr. Derito, marked for
 5 identification, as of this date.)
 6 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 7 Q. Mr. Burchill, I've given you a
 8 document we've marked as CPH 266. And for the 9 record, it has the Bates stamp CPH 1349253
 10 through '82. And I'll give you a few moments to 11 flip through it.
 12 Mr. Burchill, is Exhibit 266 a cover
 13 letter from you to several individuals enclosing
 14 Sunbeam information?
 15 A. Yes. Yeah, it is.
 16 Q. And who are the recipients of that 17 memo?
 18 A. I'm trying to figure that out. I
 19 don't know. I don't recall who.
 20 Q. Do you recall who the other agents on 21 the secured lending were?
 22 A. First Union and Bank of America.
 23 Q. Do any of those names ring a bell
 24 based on the names of those agents?
 25 A. I don't recall who they are.

Page 43

1 Q. Who is Ben Derito, your coauthor?
 2 A. He was an analyst at the time, but he
 3 was not in our group. He was in the M&A group, I
 4 believe, at the time. He worked -- he worked in 5 our group very briefly. But he was in other
 6 groups. And I don't recall whether he was in our
 7 group at the time or with the M&A group --
 8 Q. Can you please -- one of the rules I
 9 forgot to tell you, if I accidentally interrupt
 10 you, let me know you are not finished with your 11 answer --
 12 A. Sure.
 13 Q. Have you ever seen this Exhibit 266
 14 before?
 15 A. I'm trying to recall it.
 16 MS. PAULE-CARRES: In the form, which 17 it's -- in Exhibit 266 (indicating).
 18 MR. JOHNSON: Correct. Obviously
 19 without the fax header.
 20 A. Well, I'm assuming if my name is on 21 it, I must have seen it before.
 22 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 23 Q. Counsel didn't show it to you to get
 24 ready for the deposition?
 25 A. No.

Page 44

1 Q. Did you meet with counsel to get
 2 ready for the deposition?
 3 A. Yes. I met with Larissa yesterday
 4 afternoon.
 5 Q. And did she show you any documents as 6 part of the prep session?
 7 A. A few.
 8 Q. Did any of those bring back your
 9 memory on any of these events?
 10 A. Some did, yes.
 11 Q. Which ones helped you recall some of 12 the events?
 13 MS. PAULE-CARRES: If you can recall.
 14 Only provide answers to those that refreshed
 15 your recollection.
 16 THE WITNESS: Right. I'm trying to 17 recall which documents you showed me
 18 yesterday.
 19 A. Each of the documents sort of brought 20 back the memory of the transaction on the whole,
 21 but there wasn't any one thing that Larissa
 22 showed me that made me --
 23 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 24 Q. Did she show you any emails?
 25 A. No.

Page 45

1 Q. Did you have email at Morgan Stanley?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. And if you had it, I assume you used
 4 it?
 5 A. I did, yes, even back then.
 6 Q. And even in '98?
 7 A. Yeah.
 8 MS. PAULE-CARRES: He used email in 9 1998?
 10 MR. JOHNSON: Yes.
 11 A. Yeah.
 12 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 13 Q. Do you -- can you place Exhibit 266
 14 in time? Was this before you went to Florida or 15 after you went to Florida?
 16 A. Do you know the date of the meeting
 17 in Florida?
 18 Q. I do. But I'm --
 19 A. Okay.
 20 Q. -- I'm trying to see if you can
 21 recall.
 22 A. I don't recall.
 23 Q. We're going to get to the Florida
 24 meeting in just a minute.
 25 A. Yeah. Okay.

Page 46

1 Q. If you could --
 2 A. If I had to guess, this was before
 3 (indicating).
 4 Q. Why do you say that?
 5 A. Because I can't imagine not -- Bram
 6 wanting to have a meeting without other banks
 7 having some basic information like this.
 8 Q. If you could look at the third page
 9 of this document.
 10 A. Page 7?
 11 Q. That's correct. Which -- so that we 12 have a Bates number, it's CPH 1349295.
 13 MS. PAULE-CARRES: It's '55, point of 14 clarification.
 15 MR. JOHNSON: I'm sorry. Thank you.
 16 1349255 and continuing on to '256.
 17 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 18 Q. Can you tell me who selected the key
 19 dates set forth on those two pages?
 20 A. No. I don't know.
 21 Q. Does that schedule seem particularly 22 accelerated?
 23 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection.
 24 A. Yeah. I don't -- given my limited
 25 involvement, I wouldn't be in a position to

Page 47

1 comment on that.
 2 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 3 Q. The entry for March 5 provides
 4 initial business due diligence.
 5 Do you see that?
 6 A. I do.
 7 Q. And that applies both to the zero
 8 offering and the senior credit facilities.
 9 Do you see that?
 10 A. Yes. As indicated by the lines
 11 (indicating) --
 12 Q. That's what --
 13 A. -- crossing both columns?
 14 Q. Yes.
 15 Were you involved in that business
 16 due diligence?
 17 A. I went to the meeting in Florida. Is 18 that the date of the meeting in Florida?
 19 Q. Well, I'll tell you, it's the day
 20 after.
 21 A. March 5th is the day after?
 22 Q. Yeah. The Florida trip was --
 23 appears to be the 4th and the 5th.
 24 A. 4th and 5th, okay. I don't recall
 25 staying overnight. But yeah.

Page 48

1 Q. But -- let me see if we can cut
 2 through this.
 3 A. Yeah.
 4 Q. Other than your trip to Florida, did
 5 you conduct any other business due diligence on
 6 Sunbeam?
 7 A. I did not, given my role in the
 8 transaction.
 9 Q. Do you know who did conduct business
 10 due diligence on Sunbeam?
 11 A. There were many people working on the 12 transaction from different departments at Morgan
 13 Stanley. So I don't know.
 14 Q. You assume they did do due diligence?
 15 A. Yeah. I just don't know how it was 16 conducted and when it was conducted and who was 17 conducting it.
 18 Q. And what it involved?
 19 A. And what it involved.
 20 Q. Did you ever speak to Sunbeam's
 21 auditors?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. When you were at Morgan Stanley and 24 more intensively involved in a financing, would 25 you typically speak to a borrower's auditors?

021106

Page 49

1 A. It depended upon the situation. And
 2 I had in the past in certain circumstances.
 3 Q. And what circumstance would dictate a
 4 call with the auditors?
 5 A. When we as a group deemed it
 6 necessary to have the auditors' blessing on the 7 numbers.
 8 Q. I guess what I'm getting at, when
 9 would you deem that appropriate?
 10 A. Oh, I'm sorry. Well, I would say in 11 most circumstances that would be deemed 12 appropriate for financings of these size and this 13 kind of complexity.
 14 Q. Did you have any understanding as to 15 whether Morgan Stanley intended to syndicate the 16 secured credit facility?
 17 A. Our basic business framework was such 18 that we intended to syndicate most every 19 financing that we underwrote.
 20 Q. And why is that?
 21 A. Well, it was deemed important that in 22 order to show a proper return on the capital that 23 we deploy, and recognizing that we would always 24 have to keep in this particular -- with this sort 25 of financing a piece of the financing on the

Page 50

1 books as Morgan Stanley's original capital, it
 2 was just the way the market worked to have others
 3 come in and take pieces of it.
 4 Q. And reduce exposure --
 5 A. And reduce Morgan Stanley's and the 6 other agent's exposure.
 7 Q. Does this syndication typically occur
 8 before or after the closing?
 9 A. It really -- it depends on the 10 circumstance. There are examples of before and 11 after.
 12 Q. The preference, I assume, would be to 13 syndicate before closing?
 14 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection to the 15 --
 16 A. It really depended upon the -- on the 17 situation. Many instances it's just not an 18 option simply because of timing.
 19 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 20 Q. Did you ever gain an understanding as 21 to when Morgan Stanley intended to syndicate the 22 Sunbeam credit facility?
 23 A. I wasn't a part of those 24 discussions. In the weekly meetings that I was 25 part of, you know, I heard that at a certain

Page 51

1 point the intention was to syndicate, as with
 2 most financing.
 3 Q. Did you understand the syndication to 4 be delayed?
 5 A. Yeah. I don't know. Because I don't
 6 know what the original syndication plan was.
 7 Q. But the weekly meetings, you didn't
 8 hear anyone discuss problems in completing the 9 syndication?
 10 A. I honestly don't recall.
 11 Q. If you could flip to the page which 12 has the -- it's Page 15 of 30 in the fax header
 13 and has the Bates page CPH 1349267. And the 14 title is "Project Laser" "Laser Stand-alone
 15 Income Statements."
 16 A. Page 15 of 30 in the --
 17 Q. In the fax --
 18 A. -- top right-hand corner?
 19 Q. Yeah. Maybe 16. Let's go with the 20 Bates stamp.
 21 A. Sorry.
 22 Q. 1349267.
 23 A. Sorry. Yeah. Okay. Got it.
 24 Q. Do you know who prepared this income
 25 statement?

Page 52

1 A. I do not.
 2 Q. Do you know whether anyone at Morgan
 3 Stanley tested the reasonableness of the 4 projections set forth on this income statement?
 5 A. I don't know. I mean, the entire
 6 contents of this package were prepared and -- I'm 7 assuming that Bram simply asked me to get
 8 something out to these guys before the meeting.
 9 So I did not have the time or the 10 inclination to, within that time period,
 11 establish how reasonable or not they were.
 12 Q. And you don't know whether anyone at 13 Morgan Stanley did that?
 14 A. Again, it was a large team. I just 15 don't know.
 16 Q. But you couldn't tell me -- you
 17 couldn't name an individual who tested the 18 reasonableness of the projections?
 19 A. I can't --
 20 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; asked
 21 and answered.
 22 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 23 Q. Let's flip a few more pages into this 24 document with the CPH Bates stamp ending in 25 '271. This is proforma income statements.

Page 53

1 A. Uh-huh.
 2 Q. You'll see under the heading a series
 3 of base case synergy numbers.
 4 Do you see those, including Kemper
 5 base case synergies of a hundred million dollars?
 6 A. On the second line of the subtitle?
 7 Q. Exactly.
 8 A. Okay.
 9 Q. Do you have any idea where those 10 synergy numbers came from?
 11 A. I don't know.
 12 Q. Did you perform any synergies
 13 analysis in connection with this transaction?
 14 A. I did not.
 15 Q. Do you know who at Morgan Stanley was 16 responsible for analyzing synergies?
 17 A. Again, it was a large team. And I
 18 know that a lot happened on this transaction
 19 prior to my involvement. So I just don't know.
 20 Q. When you say you know a lot happened
 21 prior to your involvement, how did you know that?
 22 A. Because there was -- by the time I
 23 was asked to attend this meeting there were -- it
 24 was just volumes of data.
 25 Q. That Morgan Stanley had collected?

Page 54

1 A. Had collected or had. And just to
 2 have a model just implies a lot of work had gone
 3 into it.
 4 Q. What was the purpose of Morgan
 5 Stanley's trip to Florida where you were one of 6 the participants?
 7 A. Well, as I've been refreshed through
 8 my meeting yesterday and -- yeah.
 9 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection to the 10 point -- to the extent it calls for 11 privileged information.
 12 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 13 Q. Well, hold on a second. I just asked 14 what the purpose of your meeting -- of going to 15 Florida was.
 16 A. It was to have the other banks meet
 17 with management, was my understanding.
 18 MS. PAULE-CARRES: If we're going
 19 into a new area, can we take a quick break?
 20 MR. JOHNSON: Sure.
 21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Thanks.
 22 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going off
 23 the record.
 24 (Recess taken.)
 25 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on

Page 55

1 record. The time is 11:18.
 2 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 3 Q. Before the break, Mr. Burchill, we
 4 were talking about your one trip to Florida on 5 this financing.
 6 Do you recall which members of 7 Sunbeam management were present during your trip
 8 to Florida?
 9 A. I don't recall.
 10 Q. Did you ever meet Al Dunlap?
 11 A. Did not.
 12 Q. Russ Kersh?
 13 A. Did not.
 14 Q. Do you remember the position or title
 15 of any of Sunbeam management who participated in 16 your meetings in Florida?
 17 A. I don't recall positions or titles.
 18 Q. Any names?
 19 A. Certainly not names.
 20 Q. How many members of management do you
 21 think you spoke with during your visit?
 22 A. There were two or three managers
 23 there.
 24 Q. And from Morgan Stanley, it was just 25 you and Bram Smith?

Page 56

1 A. I believe that's correct.
 2 Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any counsel
 3 present?
 4 A. I can't recall.
 5 Q. Do you know who Morgan Stanley's
 6 counsel was on the financing?
 7 A. I don't know.
 8 Q. Did Morgan Stanley have a particular
 9 counsel typically -- a counsel it typically used
 10 on financing?
 11 A. We had a couple of firms that we 12 worked with.
 13 Q. And Davis, Polk was one of them?
 14 A. Davis, Polk was certainly one of 15 them.
 16 Q. But you don't recall Davis, Polk
 17 being at your Florida meeting?
 18 A. I don't recall if they were on the 19 transaction or not or whether or not they were at 20 the meeting.
 21 Q. And this meeting was part of business
 22 due diligence?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. And the purpose of the due diligence
 25 from the financing perspective was to get a

021108

Page 57

1 better understanding of the company and its
 2 prospects?
 3 A. That's correct. And to -- and to
 4 understand what diligence had been conducted up
 5 to that point.
 6 Q. Because you didn't need to do that
 7 diligence over again?
 8 A. Correct. And the banks wanted to 9 know what had been done up to that point to 10 therefore determine what remained to be done.
 11 Q. What had been done up to that point?
 12 A. I really don't recall.
 13 Q. Did you have any discussions, either
 14 at that meeting or otherwise, concerning how 15 Sunbeam was doing in the first quarter of 1998?
 16 A. I don't know.
 17 Q. Would you expect that that would be a
 18 topic of discussion as part of the business due
 19 diligence?
 20 A. Typically, that would be a topic of 21 discussion.
 22 Q. How is the quarter looking?
 23 A. Typically, the current quarter would 24 be a topic of discussion.
 25 Q. You just don't recall whether it was

Page 58

1 in this case or not?
 2 A. Yes, I just don't recall.
 3 Q. Do you recall hearing any information
 4 that was negative or unsettling as part of your
 5 work on Sunbeam?
 6 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; vague.
 7 A. No. I don't recall any unsettling
 8 aspect of it.
 9 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 10 Q. Have you ever worked on a public
 11 offering of securities?
 12 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Could you repeat
 13 the question.
 14 (Record read.)
 15 A. Of high-yield bonds.
 16 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 17 Q. Have you been involved in 18 underwriters due diligence for such an offering?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. How does that due diligence differ
 21 from due diligence performed by the financing
 22 side of a transaction?
 23 A. I don't understand the question.
 24 Q. Well, let me back up. Maybe --
 25 that's a bad question.

Page 59

1 Did the due diligence performed by
 2 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding have a different
 3 focus than the due diligence performed by the 4 Morgan Stanley entities involved in the
 5 convertible offering?
 6 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection;
 7 foundation.
 8 A. I had never worked -- that was a
 9 different group that would do the convertible
 10 offering. So I just don't know.
 11 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 12 Q. And you don't have a sense as a 13 general matter as to whether there would be 14 different focuses?
 15 A. I just don't know.
 16 Q. Do you have any sense as to whether 17 or not Morgan Stanley has an obligation to 18 reasonably fact check information given to it by 19 management before that information is conveyed to 20 third parties?
 21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection. Vague
 22 as to what is reasonable and to the extent
 23 it calls for speculation.
 24 A. Can you repeat the question again.
 25 BY MR. JOHNSON:

Page 60

1 Q. Sure. We can have the Reporter read
 2 it.
 3 (Record read.)
 4 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Same objection.
 5 A. With Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
 6 and the high-yield group, our job was to try to 7 issue into the markets securities that were well
 8 underwritten and therefore had an adequate amount 9 of diligence behind -- and analysis behind the 10 underwriting.
 11 A lot of factors would play into
 12 this, such as whether a company was a public
 13 company or a nonpublic company. Obviously,
 14 there's a lot more information with public
 15 companies than nonpublic companies. So the level
 16 of work that was done would be dictated by the 17 complexity of the transaction, again public or 18 nonpublic. There are just so many factors that 19 would determine the level of diligence that would 20 be done.
 21 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 22 Q. It's transaction specific?
 23 A. Agreed, yes.
 24 Q. Would you agree that when an 25 underwriter comes across anomalous information,

021109

Page 61

1 that would inform additional diligence that might
 2 be appropriate?
 3 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection.
 4 A. By "anomalous," what do you mean?
 5 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 6 Q. Something inconsistent with
 7 management's representations.
 8 A. But what question are you asking me?
 9 Q. Does -- strike that.
 10 If an underwriter comes across
 11 information inconsistent with management
 12 representations, would that inform what
 13 additional diligence might be appropriate?
 14 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection to the
 15 extent that the question is hypothetical,
 16 and Mr. Burchill is being served as --
 17 offered as a fact witness.
 18 A. Generally, yes.
 19 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 20 Q. Do you know whether anyone at Morgan
 21 Stanley spoke with Sunbeam's customers as part of 22 Morgan Stanley's work on the financing
 23 transactions?
 24 A. Again, it was such a large team
 25 working at many different levels. And given my

Page 62

1 level of involvement, I just don't know.
 2 Q. Do you have any expectation as to
 3 whether someone from Morgan Stanley spoke with 4 major customers of Sunbeam?
 5 A. I don't have any expectation.
 6 Q. Do you know the phrase "highly 7 confident letter"?
 8 A. Yes, I've heard that phrase.
 9 Q. Did you have an understanding that
 10 Morgan Stanley issued a highly confident letter
 11 to Sunbeam in connection with this financing?
 12 A. I wasn't aware of it until we saw the 13 letter yesterday afternoon.
 14 Q. You weren't aware of it even at the 15 time --
 16 A. I wasn't aware of it at the time.
 17 Q. You just learned about it?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any
 20 procedures in place governing the circumstances
 21 in which it would issue a highly confident
 22 letter?
 23 A. There were certainly an understanding
 24 at the time. Whether or not there were written 25 policy and procedures, I'm not aware.

Page 63

1 Q. What was the understanding at the
 2 time?
 3 A. And it's been so long, I really don't 4 recall the key elements of decision-making that
 5 went behind the issuing of a highly confident
 6 letter or the weight of this kind of a letter. I
 7 just don't recall what the weight was and when we
 8 got to the point of issuing them.
 9 Q. When you say the "wait," is that
 10 W-A-I-T or W-E-I-G-H-T --
 11 A. E-I-G-H-T.
 12 Q. What do you mean by that?
 13 A. I just don't recall the substance of 14 the letter. There is a term called "highly 15 confident letter." I just don't recall the 16 implication of issuing a highly confident letter.
 17 Q. Let me show you an example. This has 18 been marked previously as 74.
 19 I take it prior to yesterday, if
 20 ever, you had never seen this document before?
 21 A. Correct.
 22 Q. Have you seen highly confident
 23 letters on other transactions at Morgan Stanley?
 24 A. I have.
 25 Q. Does this appear to be consistent

Page 64

1 with that format?
 2 A. It does.
 3 Q. And I think you testified you can't
 4 recall the details of the protocols for getting
 5 one of these issues.
 6 Was there a certain level of
 7 authority that needed to be obtained before
 8 issuing such a letter?
 9 A. I can't recall.
 10 Q. Can any managing director of the 11 company issue such a letter?
 12 A. I don't know.
 13 Q. And what's the purpose of issuing a
 14 highly confident letter?
 15 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection;
 16 foundation.
 17 A. In general terms, the purpose would 18 be to give the company comfort that given certain 19 conditions being completed, that a financing was 20 possible.
 21 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 22 Q. And doesn't it as well secure Morgan
 23 Stanley's position as arranger and underwriter
 24 for the financing?
 25 A. In general terms, sometimes it did

021110

Page 65

1 and sometimes it did not.
 2 Q. In the context of the Sunbeam
 3 transaction, though, it did. So if you look at 4 the second page of the letter --
 5 A. Yeah. I mean, as I'm reading it, I
 6 looks like this gave Morgan Stanley a role in the 7 transaction.
 8 Q. Had Morgan Stanley substantially
 9 completed its due diligence at the time this 10 highly confident letter was issued?
 11 A. I don't know.
 12 Q. Would you have any expectation on
 13 that?
 14 A. Well, again, just from reading it, it
 15 looks like diligence had not been done
 16 completely. At the top of Page 2 -- if diligence
 17 had been completed, I'm sure that the company
 18 would have negotiated that out.
 19 Q. By "the company," you mean Sunbeam?
 20 A. I'm sorry. Sunbeam.
 21 Q. Do you know anything about the 22 negotiation of this letter?
 23 A. I do not.
 24 Q. And I take it you have no idea who 25 Bram Smith talked to prior to signing this

Page 66

1 letter?
 2 A. I don't.
 3 Q. And no idea who he typically would
 4 talk to before signing a highly confident letter
 5 in 1998?
 6 A. I don't recall, no.
 7 Q. Mr. Burchill, this has been marked
 8 previously as Exhibit 217. And, again, I
 9 recognize this is a lengthy document. I'll pose
 10 a question and then give you an opportunity to 11 flip through the document.
 12 The question is whether you had any
 13 role in preparing this document.
 14 A. I did not.
 15 Q. Do you know who prepared the
 16 document?
 17 A. I don't know exactly, but my guess is 18 that it would be a large group of people over a
 19 number of departments of Morgan Stanley.
 20 Q. So preparation of a document like
 21 this --
 22 A. Some of whom are listed here, some of 23 whom aren't listed here.
 24 Q. So it would be a team effort to 25 prepare a document like this?

Page 67

1 A. Correct. Yes.
 2 Q. Is the same true of the offering
 3 memorandum for the convertible offering? Would 4 that be a team effort?
 5 A. I don't know what it was in this
 6 case. But, typically, a memorandum of that kind
 7 would be a team effort, yes.
 8 Q. I take it from your answer that you
 9 personally had no involvement whatsoever with the 10 preparation of the offering memorandum?
 11 A. That's correct.
 12 Q. Do you have an understanding that the 13 amount of the credit facilities was reduced from 14 two billion to one point seven billion?
 15 A. I learned about that on one of these 16 weekly calls when I was in London.
 17 Q. What was the reason for the reduction
 18 in the amount of the facilities?
 19 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection;
 20 foundation.
 21 A. I don't recall.
 22 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 23 Q. Was the reason discussed, or was it
 24 just mentioned that there was a reduction?
 25 A. I think it was -- all I can recall is

Page 68

1 that it was mentioned it was reduced. Again, it
 2 was a very summary call covering a number of 3 companies.
 4 Q. Did you have any view as to whether
 5 that was a good development from Morgan Stanley's
 6 perspective?
 7 A. I didn't have a view on it.
 8 Q. Did anyone at any time discuss
 9 whether the reduction in the amount of the 10 facilities was a beneficial development for 11 Morgan Stanley?
 12 A. I don't recall.
 13 Q. Did you understand the size of the 14 convertible offering increased from five hundred
 15 million to seven-fifty?
 16 A. I didn't know. That the convertible
 17 was never a topic -- it was never a part of our 18 group's discussion, to my recollection.
 19 Q. Have you seen confidential -- let me
 20 strike this.
 21 Have you ever seen Exhibit 217 prior
 22 to today?
 23 A. I believe it was one of the documents
 24 I saw yesterday, but prior to yesterday, no.
 25 Q. I take it, though, you've seen

Page 69

1 similar confidential information memoranda; is
 2 that correct?
 3 A. On other transactions, yes.
 4 Q. What is the purpose of a document of 5 this nature?
 6 A. To inform potential lenders to the 7 transaction about the transaction.
 8 Q. And from your perspective, does
 9 Morgan Stanley have any obligation of any sort to 10 satisfy itself that the information contained in 11 such a document is accurate?
 12 A. My recollection is that management
 13 would have to sign off on the document as its 14 information. And my recollection is that there
 15 is language in the beginning of documents like 16 these indicating that.
 17 Q. Disclaimers?
 18 A. Disclaimers.
 19 Q. Right. So I take your answer to mean
 20 that you did not view Morgan Stanley as having 21 any obligation to satisfy itself that the 22 information is accurate?
 23 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection to the
 24 extent it mischaracterizes testimony.
 25 A. Again, our view, as I recall it, was

Page 70

1 that we had two clients. It was the borrower and
 2 also the lenders who would be partaking in the 3 transaction. And we did what we thought was 4 necessary to make sure that the information was 5 as accurate as possible and that management
 6 represented it as such.
 7 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 8 Q. When you say you had two clients, the 9 borrower here, Sunbeam, and the lender, that 10 would be people involved in the syndication?
 11 A. Uh-huh.
 12 Q. Okay.
 13 A. As a general matter, yeah.
 14 Q. And I take it from your testimony --
 15 A. Oh. And also given the fact that we 16 were a principal in the transaction that we were 17 satisfied that the capital risk we were taking 18 was a good one.
 19 Q. Sure. I take it from your testimony
 20 today, though, that you can't tell me specific 21 acts that Morgan Stanley undertook to satisfy
 22 itself that the information contained in the 23 information memorandum was accurate?
 24 A. Again, based upon my level of 25 involvement, I can't comment on that.

Page 71

1 Q. And as a general matter, the steps
 2 that Morgan Stanley would undertake would vary
 3 depending on the circumstances of the 4 transaction?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. Do you know who Andrew Conway is?
 7 A. I don't know.
 8 Q. Did you know anything about
 9 Mr. Dunlap's reputation when you got involved
 10 with the Sunbeam financing?
 11 A. Very little.
 12 Q. Did you understand he had been at 13 Scott Paper prior to Sunbeam?
 14 A. I believe I knew that at the time,
 15 yeah.
 16 Q. I'm going to point you to a few
 17 portions of this information memorandum. And I'm 18 afraid I'm going to be a little redundant on some 19 of our questions today. But I just want to 20 confirm your understanding on a few of these 21 facts.
 22 If you could look at the Bates stamp
 23 Morgan Stanley confidential 0045681.
 24 A. Uh-huh. I'm there.
 25 Q. There's a section towards the bottom

Page 72

1 entitled "Restructuring and Growth Plan"?
 2 A. I see it.
 3 Q. This refers to the turnaround that
 4 Mr. Dunlap spearheaded at Sunbeam.
 5 To your knowledge, did anyone at 6 Morgan Stanley attempt to verify the authenticity
 7 of the turnaround?
 8 A. I don't know.
 9 Q. Did you have any opinion as to how
 10 the market valued Sunbeam?
 11 A. I didn't -- I don't know.
 12 Q. Was it viewed as a growth company?
 13 A. I don't know.
 14 Q. If you'd look at Page '45697. The 15 subtitle of this section is called "Investment
 16 Considerations." There is a bullet "ability to 17 obtain synergies."
 18 A. I see it.
 19 Q. And the last sentence of that section
 20 refers to Andrew Conway, who I mentioned
 21 previously.
 22 Did you have any understanding as to
 23 who at Morgan Stanley had been involved in 24 modeling synergies?
 25 A. I wasn't aware of who was doing this.

021112

Page 73

1 Q. And you don't know whether Andrew
 2 Conway was affiliated with Morgan Stanley at that
 3 time or not?
 4 A. This is a completely new name to me.
 5 Q. And I take it, the dollar volume of 6 synergies set forth here is information that you
 7 were not involved with analyzing?
 8 A. Correct.
 9 Q. And you personally didn't put any
 10 reliance on any synergies figures in connection
 11 with this financing?
 12 A. I did not.
 13 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Could you please
 14 repeat the last question and answer.
 15 (Record read.)
 16 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 17 Q. Almost done with this document. On 18 Page 45735 -- '735 in the last digits, there's a 19 series of bullets under the title "Preacquisition
 20 Strategies/Goals."
 21 I take it from your testimony today
 22 that you personally had no involvement in 23 analyzing the reasonableness or attainability of 24 these goals?
 25 A. Given my limited involvement, I did

Page 74

1 not.
 2 Q. Would you expect someone at Morgan
 3 Stanley to, in fact, analyze these strategies or 4 goals?
 5 A. You know, it was a large deal team on 6 a complex deal. I didn't have expectations or 7 views on that.
 8 Q. Would these goals or strategies be an 9 important consideration from the senior secured
 10 lending perspective?
 11 A. I'm not aware of these goals. So I
 12 don't know the extent to which they would be or 13 not.
 14 Q. And then last, on Page 45756 -- '756 --
 15 A. Oh sorry.
 16 Q. -- there is a text box that states
 17 "Coleman Synergies Rationale $118 million."
 18 Do you have any idea where that 19 number came from?
 20 A. I do not.
 21 Q. Do you know whether there were any
 22 accounting or financial advisory firms involved
 23 in quantifying synergies from the Coleman
 24 acquisition?
 25 A. I wasn't aware of those sorts of

Page 75

1 activities.
 2 Q. Before you moved to London -- I think
 3 you said that was March 21?
 4 A. That was the day that I -- we passed
 5 through Heathrow as a family to permanently be
 6 there.
 7 Q. Prior to the passing through
 8 Heathrow, had you heard any information
 9 concerning Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 financial
 10 performance?
 11 A. Not prior to that. For a week to ten
 12 days prior to that, I was out of the office on 13 vacation with the family making the transition.
 14 Q. So prior to March 21, you had heard
 15 nothing to the effect that Sunbeam was performing 16 in a manner inconsistent with analysts'
 17 expectations for the quarter?
 18 A. I had not.
 19 Q. Had you heard that Sunbeam's sales
 20 for the first two months of the quarter were 21 running at half of the sales for the prior year
 22 period?
 23 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; asked
 24 and answered.
 25 A. I wasn't aware of that.

Page 76

1 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 2 Q. Had you heard through the first two
 3 months of the quarter Sunbeam was showing a loss
 4 as opposed to a profit?
 5 A. I wasn't aware of that.
 6 Q. Had you heard prior to, again, March
 7 21 that Sunbeam had accelerated sales from the 8 first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 9 1997?
 10 A. Isn't that decelerating sales?
 11 Q. Accelerated from first quarter of 12 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997?
 13 A. Is that accelerating sales?
 14 Q. Well, let's -- so we're on the same
 15 page --
 16 A. Oh, yeah.
 17 Q. Sunbeam -- let me then ask a full
 18 question here.
 19 A. Sure.
 20 Q. Had you heard prior to March 21,
 21 1998, that Sunbeam had recognized as income in 22 the fourth quarter of 1997 sales that otherwise
 23 would have been recognized in the first quarter
 24 of 1998?
 25 A. I see. I can't recall. I wasn't 021113

Page 77

1 aware of it.

2 Q. Would that be information that would

3 have been significant to you had you continued

4 your involvement on the financing?

5 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; calls

6 for speculation.

7 A. It's hard to say. Again, with my

8 limited involvement, I would have needed a

9 context to put that in. I just don't have that 10 context.

11 BY MR. JOHNSON:

12 Q. Would the fact that Sunbeam's sales

13 had been running to the first two months of the 14 quarter at half the prior year period be

15 information that you would want to dig down on,

16 so to speak, if you were still involved at the 17 financing at that point?

18 A. I just don't have the context to make

19 that sort of judgment.

20 Q. Maybe, maybe not?

21 A. Maybe, maybe not.

22 Q. When was the first time that you did

23 hear about a problem with Sunbeam's first quarter

24 1998 performance?

25 A. I don't recall that I ever knew there

Page 78

1 was a problem. I was in London focused on other

2 things.

3 Q. Did you understand that Sunbeam

4 issued a press release on March 19, 1998,

5 concerning its first quarter performance?

6 A. I wasn't aware of that.

7 Q. I take it, then, you had no

8 discussions with anyone as to whether a press

9 release would be appropriate?

10 A. I had no such discussions.

11 Q. Or what a press release might say?

12 A. Or what a press release might say.

13 Q. Prior to yesterday, had you ever seen

14 any comfort letters issued by Arthur Andersen in 15 connection with the convertible offering for

16 Sunbeam?

17 A. I had not.

18 Q. You saved yourself many hours of 19 deposition by those answers.

20 Let me just confirm a few things.

21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Can we take a

22 short break while you are confirming?

23 MR. JOHNSON: Sure.

24 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going off

25 the record. The time is 11:55.

Page 79

1 (Recess taken.)

2 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the

3 record. This begins tape number two.

4 BY MR. JOHNSON:

5 Q. Mr. Burchill, we were discussing

6 whether you had any information concerning the 7 sale shortfall, first quarter of 1998. I want to 8 finish up on that topic, if we could.

9 I'll show you what's been marked

10 previously as CPH Exhibit 16. Prior to 11 yesterday, have you ever seen this document?

12 A. I have not.

13 Q. Did you have any discussions

14 concerning a schedule by Sunbeam directed to 15 magnifying sales level in the first quarter of 16 1998?

17 A. No.

18 Q. Do you know who Alan Dean is?

19 A. I don't.

20 Q. Ruth Porat?

21 A. I know she used to be at Morgan

22 Stanley. She may still be there.

23 Q. Did you have any interaction with her

24 whatsoever on the Sunbeam financing?

25 A. Did not.

Page 80

1 Q. Did you attend any of the road shows

2 on the convertible offering?

3 A. I did not.

4 Q. Did you ever have any discussions

5 with anyone concerning what happened at the road

6 shows?

7 A. I did not.

8 Q. Did the lender presentations occur

9 separate from the road shows?

10 A. As a general matter, they do.

11 Q. Did you attend any of the lender

12 presentations for this financing?

13 A. I did not.

14 Q. Do you know who did?

15 A. I don't know.

16 Q. Do you know -- do you have any idea

17 who from Sunbeam attended those presentations?

18 A. I do not.

19 Q. Do you have any understanding as to 20 what happened at any of those presentations?

21 A. No.

22 Q. Have you ever had any dealings of any

23 sort with anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes

24 Holdings?

25 MS. PAULE-CARRES: In general or in 021114

Page 81

1 conjunction with Sunbeam?
 2 MR. JOHNSON: Ever.
 3 A. I can't recall ever having any
 4 dealings with anyone there.
 5 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 6 Q. Do you know who James Maher is?
 7 A. Do not know.
 8 Q. How about Will Nesbitt?
 9 A. Is that the same person as Chip
 10 Nesbitt?
 11 Q. I don't know the answer to that.
 12 A. I know a Chip Nesbitt who worked at 13 Morgan Stanley in the real estate department.
 14 Q. But Will Nesbitt doesn't ring a bell?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. How about Howard Gittis?
 17 A. I know the name, but I have not met
 18 him.
 19 Q. How about Ronald Perelman?
 20 A. I know of him.
 21 Q. But no dealings with him?
 22 A. No dealings with any of them.
 23 Q. Were you involved in presenting the 24 proposed Sunbeam financing to the leverage
 25 finance commitment committee?

Page 82

1 A. I was not.
 2 Q. You didn't attend any meeting or
 3 telephone conference where the financing was laid
 4 out for the committee?
 5 A. I don't recall ever being part of a
 6 committee meeting, no.
 7 Q. Have you on other transactions been
 8 involved with presentations to the leverage
 9 finance commitment committee?
 10 A. I have.
 11 Q. Do you know who presented the 12 proposed Sunbeam financing to the committee?
 13 A. I don't know.
 14 Q. I'm going to show you what's been
 15 marked previously as Exhibit 76.
 16 Mr. Burchill, I've given you Exhibit
 17 CPH Exhibit 76, which I recognize is a lengthy 18 document.
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Prior to today, had you ever seen
 21 this document with or without the marginalia?
 22 A. I can't recall. I don't think I ever
 23 got a copy of it, because I was gone over in 24 London at that point.
 25 Q. Putting aside the cover page --

Page 83

1 A. Uh-huh.
 2 Q. -- starting on the second page, there
 3 is a memo listing you as one of a number of 4 authors.
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. Did you ever see any drafts of this
 7 document?
 8 A. I don't recall seeing any drafts of
 9 this document.
 10 Q. Do you have any idea who had primary
 11 responsibility for putting this document
 12 together?
 13 A. I don't know who that was.
 14 Q. Do you have a sense of which 15 department within Morgan Stanley would be 16 responsible for putting together this memo?
 17 A. It would be a combination of 18 responsibilities among folks who are listed as 19 authors in those groups.
 20 Q. Would any one of those groups in 21 particular have responsibility for finalizing the 22 document and getting it out?
 23 A. It was a collaborative effort when,
 24 in general, a document like this was put 25 together.

Page 84

1 Q. So you have no idea who actually
 2 maintained a final version on his or her computer
 3 and made the last edits?
 4 A. I don't know.
 5 Q. And you don't have a sense even which 6 department that person would reside in?
 7 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; calls
 8 for speculation.
 9 A. I don't know.
 10 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 11 Q. Did you ever speak with anyone
 12 concerning what was discussed at the leverage
 13 finance commitment committee meeting?
 14 A. Regarding Sunbeam, no.
 15 Q. You have no idea whether Sunbeam's
 16 first quarter sales situation was discussed at 17 the meeting?
 18 A. No. I don't know.
 19 Q. Do you know who Don Uzzi is?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. If you look at Page 4 of this
 22 document for me.
 23 A. Marked Page 4?
 24 Q. Yes. Actually, before I get to 25 that: Do you have any idea whose handwriting

021115

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

021116

Page 85

1 appears on this document?
 2 MS. PAULE-CARRES: On the first
 3 page?
 4 MR. JOHNSON: Let's start there.
 5 Sure.
 6 A. No.
 7 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 8 Q. Okay. On marked Page 4 there is a
 9 Roman numeral IV "Due Diligence." The last 10 sentence, the first paragraph states, "In that 11 regard, the M&A group has gained an extremely 12 sound knowledge of the company."
 13 Do you see that sentence?
 14 A. I do.
 15 Q. Do you have any reason to disbelieve
 16 that sentence?
 17 A. I would have no reason to disbelieve
 18 it.
 19 Q. How about reasons to believe it? Do
 20 you have any reasons to believe that sentence?
 21 A. I don't have any reasons to believe
 22 it. I didn't have any prior knowledge.
 23 Q. I believe you told me already today
 24 that you were not -- you were not aware that 25 Sunbeam issued a press release on March 19th

Page 86

1 concerning its sales situation?
 2 A. Correct.
 3 Q. Do you recall an April 3rd press
 4 release at the close of the quarter indicating 5 what Sunbeam's first quarter results were?
 6 A. I was not aware of the press release.
 7 Q. Do you remember what Sunbeam's first
 8 quarter results were or learning of that 9 information shortly after the close of the 10 quarter?
 11 A. No. At that point I no longer
 12 considered Sunbeam my transaction.
 13 Q. I guess that was getting to my next
 14 question.
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. Upon permanently moving to London on 17 March 21st, you essentially cut the cord with the 18 Sunbeam financing?
 19 A. Even before that. I would say after 20 that meeting, that one meeting in -- I had not 21 even considered myself a part of the team until I
 22 was requested to go to Florida with Bram Smith.
 23 And quickly after that, my understanding was my 24 part was going to be working on transactions.
 25 Q. So your perspective other than

Page 87

1 substituting for Mike Hart at one meeting this
 2 was not your project?
 3 A. It was not my project.
 4 Q. Other than the weekly meetings,
 5 telephone meetings that we've talked about after 6 March 21st, did you have any discussions with 7 anyone concerning Sunbeam?
 8 A. Not to my knowledge.
 9 Q. Can you identify anything that Morgan
 10 Stanley should have done differently in 11 connection with the Sunbeam financing?
 12 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; calls
 13 for speculation.
 14 A. I didn't know enough about the 15 transaction to pass that kind of judgment.
 16 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 17 Q. With the benefit of hindsight, do you
 18 have an opinion as to whether Morgan Stanley
 19 should have done something differently than it
 20 did?
 21 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection to the
 22 extent it's a hypothetical.
 23 A. I'm still not fully aware of all of 24 the circumstances. So I just don't have 25 knowledge to pass that kind of judgment.

Page 88

1 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 2 Q. So you would also be unable to
 3 identify any lessons that Morgan Stanley learned
 4 from the engagement?
 5 A. My role was simply too small and for
 6 a limited period of time.
 7 Q. Have you ever heard anyone voice any
 8 regret over the engagement?
 9 A. I don't recall anyone -- any such
 10 conversation.
 11 MR. JOHNSON: Why don't you give me
 12 two minutes. I may be finished.
 13 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going off
 14 the record. It's 12:15.
 15 (Recess taken.)
 16 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the
 17 record. The time is 12:20.
 18 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 19 Q. Mr. Burchill, at any point during the 20 work on Sunbeam financing did anyone discuss the 21 possibility of delaying the closing of the 22 financing?
 23 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection;
 24 foundation.
 25 A. Yeah, I wasn't aware of any such 021117

Page 89

1 discussions.
 2 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 3 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley discuss,
 4 to your knowledge, monitoring Sunbeam's sales on 5 a daily basis in the last two weeks of March of 6 1998?
 7 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Same objection;
 8 foundation.
 9 A. I wasn't aware of this.
 10 MR. JOHNSON: No further questions.
 11 MS. PAULE-CARRES: I have one short
 12 question.
 13 EXAMINATION BY
 14 MS. PAULE-CARRES:
 15 Q. Mr. Burchill, during your testimony
 16 today you reviewed several documents and were 17 asked several questions about fact checking the 18 figures in those documents.
 19 Do you recall that?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. In general, do you believe it's 22 Morgan Stanley's responsibility to fact check the 23 figures of companies that you are dealing with?
 24 MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form;
 25 leading.

Page 90

1 Go ahead.
 2 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Let me rephrase
 3 the question.
 4 BY MS. PAULE-CARRES:
 5 Q. Are you familiar with the role of an
 6 independent auditor?
 7 A. I am.
 8 Q. Can you please explain what that is.
 9 A. The role of an independent auditor is 10 as an audit -- as an auditing firm to fact check
 11 the financial statements and results of a
 12 company.
 13 Q. Was Morgan Stanley an independent
 14 auditor?
 15 A. No, it was not.
 16 Q. Is due diligence the same as 17 performing an audit of the financial numbers?
 18 A. It is not.
 19 Q. Do you know whether publicly traded
 20 companies -- do you know whether Sunbeam had an 21 independent auditor reviewing its financials?
 22 A. I wasn't aware with respect to the 23 Sunbeam transaction whether or not an independent
 24 auditor had been hired. It was my assumption
 25 that Sunbeam had an auditor, as all public

Page 91

1 companies do -- I believe are required to have.
 2 Q. And do you recall providing testimony
 3 regarding the syndication of the loan -- of the 4 loan to Sunbeam?
 5 A. Only that I didn't recall the 6 syndication, yes.
 7 Q. In general, in your experience at 8 Morgan Stanley, does Morgan Stanley syndicate 100
 9 percent of a loan?
 10 A. In my experience, Morgan Stanley
 11 never syndicated 100 percent of a syndicated
 12 loan, primarily for the reason that no lending
 13 institution would partake in a loan that was 14 fully syndicated out. As a general matter,
 15 participating lenders want to know that the lead
 16 underwriter has a holding portion of the loan and 17 --
 18 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Thank you. I have 19 no further questions.
 20 A. -- that was our practice.
 21 MR. JOHNSON: Okay. Naturally, that 22 leads to one more follow-up for me. At 23 least one more.
 24 FURTHER EXAMINATION BY
 25 MR. JOHNSON:

Page 92

1 Q. Do you have an understanding as to
 2 the role of auditors in assessing financial
 3 projections of a company?
 4 A. It depends on the circumstances.
 5 Q. Let me ask it slightly differently.
 6 You understand the auditing process
 7 to concern past financial results. Is that fair
 8 to say?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. And so audited financials are 11 different from financial projections, correct?
 12 A. That's correct.
 13 Q. And did you understand the auditors
 14 of Sunbeam to have any role in assessing the 15 reasonableness or attainability of Sunbeam's
 16 financial projections?
 17 A. I wasn't aware of what the auditors'
 18 roles in general were with Sunbeam, because I
 19 just wasn't that involved.
 20 Q. Would you, as a general matter, think
 21 it appropriate to ask auditors their perspective
 22 on the reasonableness or attainability of the -- 23 a company's future financial projections?
 24 A. What would be reasonable would be to 25 request auditors to review and fact check issues

021118

Page 93

1 such as synergies or proforma adjustments to
 2 financial statements.
 3 Q. Do you have any idea whether that was
 4 done in the context of the Sunbeam financing?
 5 A. I just don't know.
 6 Q. Would you be interested in the 7 auditors' perspective on attainability of
 8 financial projections?
 9 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; calls
 10 for speculation.
 11 A. I myself never asked auditors to 12 review future forecasts based upon management.
 13 So I just don't have the context within which to 14 answer that question.
 15 BY MR. JOHNSON:
 16 Q. And you yourself haven't asked
 17 auditors to comment on projections, because 18 auditors look historically?
 19 A. I've asked auditors on other
 20 transactions to look at adjustments that would be 21 made to financial results regarding future events
 22 that would then be applied to adjustments to 23 historical financial statements.
 24 Q. Other than with respect to specific 25 adjustments, though, you haven't yourself asked

Page 94

1 auditors to comment on the attainability of
 2 projections?
 3 A. To the extent that synergies,
 4 "synergies" as an original term, would be part
 5 of projections, we would ask them their view on 6 that as a general matter.
 7 Q. Do you understand auditors to have
 8 different expertise than investment bankers?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. And how would you contrast those 11 areas of expertise?
 12 A. Auditors check facts and investment
 13 bankers in general assess markets.
 14 Q. When you say "assess markets," what 15 do you mean by that?
 16 A. The appetite of certain investors to 17 invest in certain securities.
 18 Q. And so that involves a read of the 19 current situation and an assessment of the future
 20 likely situation.
 21 Is that fair to say?
 22 A. Repeat the question.
 23 Q. Sure. It was a bad question. Let me
 24 strike it and give you another one.
 25 What I'm trying to understand is your

Page 95

1 view of the difference in roles of the auditor
 2 and the investment banker. And I believe you
 3 testified that investment bankers are concerned
 4 with the market. And we were exploring what that
 5 meant. I think that's a fair summary of our line
 6 of questioning. Tell me if you disagree.
 7 A. I think that's fair.
 8 Q. What I'm getting at is what you are
 9 attempting to convey by saying that investment
 10 bankers are experts in the market. And let me
 11 back up and ask this as an open-ended question.
 12 What do you mean by saying that
 13 investment bankers are experts in the market?
 14 A. Well, there are different markets,
 15 obviously, for different securities of different
 16 types of firms and markets for the firms
 17 themselves. And it's my understanding that 18 investment bankers are expected to understand the 19 prices of those securities, their value and the 20 level of liquidity and appetite in those markets
 21 in general.
 22 Q. Do investment bankers in connection
 23 with that work need a skill set that enables them
 24 to understand the value of a company that they 25 are working for?

Page 96

1 MS. PAULE-CARRES: Objection; vague.
 2 A. It's my understanding that investment
 3 bankers are not fact checkers but take facts and 4 try to assess value based on that, yes.
 5 MR. JOHNSON: I have no further
 6 questions.
 7 THE WITNESS: Okay.
 8 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
 9 12:30. This completes the videotaped
 10 deposition of Mr. Thomas Burchill.

THE COLEMAN COMPANY, INC.
NOTICE OF MERGER
AND APPRAISAL RIGHTS AND INFORMATION STATEMENT

SUNBEAM CORPORATION
PROSPECTUS

On or about January 6, 2000, Coleman plans to merge with a subsidiary of Sunbeam Corporation. Under the February 1998 agreement relating to the merger, you will receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed. In addition, under a court-approved litigation settlement, you will receive warrants each entitling you to purchase one Sunbeam share at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003. You will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed (assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding Coleman shares).

As a result of the merger, Coleman will become a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam. A copy of the merger agreement is attached as Annex I at the back of this document. You are urged to read the merger agreement carefully as it is the legal document that governs the merger.

The merger was approved by Coleman's board of directors and majority stockholder, a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., on February 27, 1998. As a result, no further action by you or any other stockholder of Coleman is required to complete the merger.

At the same time that Coleman's board and majority stockholder approved the merger, Sunbeam agreed to acquire indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock from the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary. That transaction was completed on March 30, 1998, and Sunbeam now owns indirectly about 79% of the outstanding Coleman common stock. As a result of a purchase by Sunbeam of shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock in July 1999, Sunbeam now has the right to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock.

Instead of receiving cash, Sunbeam stock and warrants upon completion of the merger, you have the right to dissent from the merger and have the fair value of your Coleman shares appraised by a court and paid to you in cash. These appraisal rights are granted to you by Delaware law and were not affected by the litigation settlement. In order to pursue your appraisal rights, you must submit a written demand to Coleman on or before December 27, 1999 and satisfy the other requirements outlined in the attached document.

Sunbeam common stock trades on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "SOC." Coleman common stock trades on the New York Stock Exchange, the Pacific Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange under the symbol "CLN."

This document contains important information about the merger, Coleman, Sunbeam, your Delaware law appraisal rights and the litigation settlement, including the terms of the warrants you will receive. This document is the prospectus of Sunbeam for the common stock to be issued in the merger and the common stock to be issued when the warrants are exercised. As required by Delaware law, this document also is Coleman's notice to you of your appraisal rights.

You should read this entire document carefully, including the Annexes which are found at the back of the document and the documents referred to under the caption "WHERE YOU CAN FIND MORE INFORMATION" beginning on page 155 which tells you where you can find additional information about Coleman and Sunbeam.

Q: What will I receive in the merger?

A: Under the February 1998 agreement relating to the merger, you will receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed. In addition, under a court-approved litigation settlement, you will receive warrants each entitling you to purchase one Sunbeam share at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003. You will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed (assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding Coleman shares). For further information regarding the terms of the settlement, including the terms of the warrants, see "LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS" beginning on page 60.

You will not receive fractional shares of Sunbeam common stock in the merger. Instead, you will receive a check in payment for any fractional share based on the closing share price of Sunbeam common stock on the day the merger is completed. Nor will you receive any fractional warrants under the litigation settlement. Any fractional warrant will be rounded up or down to the nearest whole number.

Q: What choice do I have?

A: Your basic choice is whether to receive the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give you when the merger is completed, or to take action to pursue your Delaware law appraisal rights to have a court determine the value of your Coleman shares and to receive that value as determined by the court entirely in cash.

Q: What risks should I consider?

A: First, you should understand that you are receiving a fixed number of Sunbeam shares in the merger (0.5677 of a share for each Coleman share you own) and no more than a fixed number of Sunbeam warrants in the settlement (0.381 of a warrant for each Coleman share you own). Since the merger was approved, negative developments affecting Sunbeam have caused the market price of the Sunbeam shares to decline sharply (from $41.75 per share on February 27, 1998 to $4.75 per share on December 3, 1999). The market price per Sunbeam share may further decrease before or after the merger.

Second, please understand that the financial advisor which advised the then Coleman board on February 27, 1998 that the merger was fair to you has since indicated that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. Moreover, no other financial advisor has been asked to provide a fairness opinion with respect to the consideration you will receive in the merger. As a result, you do not have the benefit of an independent evaluation of the fairness of the merger consideration in deciding whether to accept the merger consideration or pursue your Delaware law appraisal rights. In addition, Sunbeam's financial advisor has advised Sunbeam that its opinion regarding the fairness to Sunbeam of the consideration payable to you under the merger agreement, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon.

You also should realize that Sunbeam faces the following risks that could negatively affect the value of the shares and warrants you receive:

- Sunbeam is highly leveraged which impairs its ability to obtain financing and limits cash flow available for Sunbeam's operations and may limit its competitiveness in the market place,
- Sunbeam's bank credit facility contains covenants which Sunbeam may not be able to satisfy and default provisions it may not be able to avoid, and if Sunbeam cannot, the banks could demand immediate repayment of Sunbeam's bank debt,
- Sunbeam's bank debt could become due on April 10, 2000, if Sunbeam does not get another waiver from the banks or refinance its bank debt by then, and there can be no assurance that Sunbeam would be able to repay the bank debt on that date,
- Sunbeam may not be able to service its large debt burden, which may force it to restructure or refinance its debt,
- Sunbeam's outside auditors determined that Sunbeam's 1997 internal controls were inadequate and Sunbeam cannot assure you that the corrective measures it has adopted or will adopt to address these inadequacies will be effective,
- Sunbeam had significant losses and its operations consumed significant amounts of cash in the first nine months of 1999 and in fiscal year 1998 and Sunbeam cannot assure you that it will be able to generate profits or positive cash flow from operations in the future,
- Major lawsuits have been brought against Sunbeam, including lawsuits under federal and state securities laws, and the SEC is conducting a formal investigation of Sunbeam; Sunbeam cannot predict the outcome of these lawsuits or the SEC investigation, but if Sunbeam were to lose the lawsuits, the resulting judgments would likely have a negative effect on its financial position, results of operations and cash flow,
- Sunbeam's 1998 acquisitions have increased the size of the operations Sunbeam has to manage and Sunbeam's failure to manage its operations effectively would likely cause Sunbeam to have poor operating results,
- Sunbeam's international operations expose Sunbeam to uncertainties and risks from abroad, which could negatively affect its operations and sales,
- The nature of Sunbeam's businesses requires Sunbeam to successfully develop new and innovative products on a consistent basis in order to regain profitability and increase revenues and Sunbeam may not be able to do so,
- Sunbeam's businesses are very sensitive to the strength of the U.S. retail market and any weakness in this market could adversely affect Sunbeam's financial results,
- Sunbeam operates in a highly competitive market and Sunbeam's inability to compete effectively could cause it to lose market share and could adversely affect its financial results,
- Sunbeam's sales are highly dependent on purchases from several large customers and any significant decline in these purchases or pressure from these customers to reduce prices could have a negative effect on Sunbeam's future financial performance; Sunbeam has no long-term supply contracts with any of its customers,
- Raw materials and components are critical inputs for Sunbeam's products and price hikes or problems with their supply could adversely affect Sunbeam,
- Sunbeam's operations are dependent upon third-party suppliers and service providers whose failure to perform adequately could disrupt Sunbeam's business operations,
- Sunbeam is subject to several production-related risks which could jeopardize its ability to realize anticipated sales and profits,

- The effects of Sunbeam's prior management's outsourcing of critical operating tasks and sales policies may continue to cause Sunbeam substantial difficulty,
- Weather conditions can hurt sales of some of Sunbeam's products,
- Sunbeam remains vulnerable to Year 2000 compliance problems in its systems and those of its suppliers and customers which could potentially disrupt Sunbeam's operations and may require greater than anticipated remedial expenses,
- Sunbeam's debt covenants currently do not allow Sunbeam to pay cash dividends on Sunbeam common stock.
- Negative developments since March 1998 have caused Sunbeam's common stock price to drop significantly, and the risks described in the "RISK FACTORS" section of this document may cause further declines in the price of Sunbeam common stock,
- Because many members of Sunbeam's current management and board of directors recently joined Sunbeam and do not have a long history of managing Sunbeam, there can be no assurance that Sunbeam's current management and board of directors will be able to successfully manage Sunbeam, and
- Sunbeam relies on its key personnel and the loss of one or more of those personnel could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's business, financial condition and results of operations.

For more detail about these and other risks, please carefully read "RISK FACTORS" beginning on page 18 and "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM" beginning on page 26.

Q: When do you expect the merger to be completed?

A: We plan to complete the merger on or about January 6, 2000, which is the twenty-first business day following the date on which this document was first mailed to you.

Q: What are the tax consequences of the merger to Coleman stockholders?

A: Your receipt of cash, Sunbeam common stock and warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock in exchange for the shares of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed is expected to be a taxable transaction for United States Federal income tax purposes and may also be a taxable transaction under applicable state, local, foreign and other tax laws. However, the tax consequences of the merger are subject to a number of qualifications, as discussed below under the caption "UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS" beginning on page 60.

The tax consequences to you of the merger will depend on your own situation. You should consult your own tax advisor for a full understanding of these tax consequences.

Q: Am I being asked to vote on the merger?

A: No. The merger agreement was approved on February 27, 1998 by Coleman's former board of directors and majority stockholder, a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary. As a result, no further action by you or any other Coleman stockholder is required to complete the merger.

Q: What if I want to accept the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give me? Should I send in my Coleman common stock certificates now?

A: If you wish to accept the cash, stock and warrants described above in exchange for the shares of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed, you need not take any action now. After the merger is completed, you will receive written instructions on how to surrender your Coleman common stock certificates in exchange for the merger consideration.

Q: What if I do not wish to accept the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give me?

A: If you object to the merger and do not wish to accept the cash, stock and warrants described above in exchange for the shares of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed, you have the right to dissent from the merger and have the fair value of your Coleman shares appraised by a court and the amount determined by the court will be paid to you in cash by Coleman. If you wish to exercise this right, you must submit a written demand to Coleman on or before December 27, 1999. You must also satisfy the other requirements outlined under "APPRAISAL RIGHTS" beginning on page 62. Failure to take any of the required steps on a timely basis may result in the loss of your appraisal rights.

Q: Where should I send my written demand for appraisal?

A: You should send your written demand for appraisal to the following address:

The Coleman Company, Inc.
2111 East 37th Street North
P.O. Box 2931
Wichita, Kansas 67201
Attention: Corporate Secretary
Phone number: (316) 832-2700

Q: Does Sunbeam currently pay dividends?

A: No. Sunbeam stopped paying dividends after the first quarter of 1998 and has no present intention to pay any dividends for the foreseeable future. In addition, Sunbeam's bank credit agreement prohibits Sunbeam from paying cash dividends.

Q: Who can help answer further questions?

A: If you would like additional copies of this document, or if you have questions about the merger, you should contact either Sunbeam or Coleman at the following addresses:

Recent Developments Affecting Sunbeam

Sunbeam has experienced significant changes and events since January 1, 1998, including:

- acquisition of control of Coleman and acquisitions of Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc.,
- substantial borrowings resulting in a large debt burden and high leverage,
- major changes in Sunbeam's management and board of directors,
- restatement of Sunbeam's 1996, 1997 and first quarter 1998 financial results,
- large losses and negative cash flow in 1998 and the first nine months of 1999,
- a change in Sunbeam's auditors,
- amendments and waivers relating to Sunbeam's bank credit facility,
- filing of several lawsuits against Sunbeam, including lawsuits brought under federal and state securities laws, and commencement of a formal SEC investigation of Sunbeam,
- a review of Sunbeam's continued eligibility for listing on the New York Stock Exchange,
- acquisition of shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock to enable Sunbeam and Coleman to file consolidated income tax returns prior to the completion of the merger, and
- announcement of plans to sell Coleman's Eastpak business and certain non-essential assets for expected net proceeds of approximately $200 million.

We urge you to carefully read "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM" beginning on page 26 and "RISK FACTORS" beginning on page 18.

Recent Developments Affecting Coleman

In addition to Sunbeam's acquisition of control of Coleman, Coleman has experienced significant changes and events since January 1, 1998, including:

- a review of Coleman's continued eligibility for listing on the New York Stock Exchange,
- revisions to Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam and the pledge of Coleman's assets to secure the note, and
- issuance to Sunbeam of shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock to enable Sunbeam and Coleman to file consolidated income tax returns prior to the completion of the merger.

We urge you to carefully read "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING COLEMAN" beginning on page 35 and "RISK FACTORS" beginning on page 18.

The Merger

The merger agreement is attached as Annex I at the back of this document. We encourage you to read the merger agreement carefully as it is the legal document that governs the merger.

Merger Consideration. Under the February 1998 agreement relating to the merger, you will receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed. In addition, under a court-approved litigation settlement, you will receive warrants each entitling you to purchase one Sunbeam share at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003. You will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed (assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding Coleman shares). On March 30, 1998, in connection with the acquisition by Sunbeam of about 81% of the then outstanding shares of Coleman common stock from a subsidiary of MacAndrew & Forbes, all outstanding Coleman employee stock options vested and became exercisable. Accordingly, holders of Coleman employee stock options now have the choice of exercising their options prior to the merger or having their options cashed out in the merger at a price equal to $27.50 minus the per share exercise price of the option. Under the terms of the settlement, the pool of warrants available to Coleman minority stockholders will be distributed pro rata based on the number of Coleman shares held by Coleman minority stockholders at the time of the merger. The number of warrants available for distribution will not be increased in the event that additional Coleman shares are issued to Coleman minority stockholders prior to the completion of the merger. Therefore, if Coleman employee stock option holders were to exercise their options prior to the merger, the outstanding number of Coleman shares would increase and the fraction of a warrant you would receive in the merger for each of your Coleman shares would be reduced. Sunbeam and Coleman do not anticipate that Coleman employee stock option holders will exercise their options prior to the merger, however, because the exercise prices of these options are substantially above the current market price of Coleman common stock. For further information regarding the terms of the settlement, including the terms of the warrants, see "LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS" beginning on page 60.

You will not receive fractional shares of Sunbeam common stock in the merger. Instead, you will receive a check in payment for any fractional share based on the closing share price of Sunbeam common stock on the day the merger is completed. Nor will you receive any fractional warrants under the terms of the litigation settlement. Any fractional warrant will be rounded up or down to the nearest whole number.

Instead of receiving the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give you, you may exercise your Delaware law appraisal rights if you follow the procedures and satisfy the other requirements outlined below under the caption "APPRAISAL RIGHTS" beginning on page 62.

Ownership of Sunbeam After the Merger. In the merger, Sunbeam will issue about 6,676,135 shares of Sunbeam common stock, assuming all currently outstanding options to acquire Coleman common stock are cashed out in the merger and no Coleman stockholders exercise their Delaware law appraisal rights. See "THE MERGER—Ownership Interest of Coleman Stockholders in Sunbeam After the Merger" beginning on page 58. These 6,676,135 shares of Sunbeam common stock will constitute about 6.2% of the outstanding Sunbeam shares after the merger.

On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam issued 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock to a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in the transaction in which Sunbeam acquired indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock (the "M&F Transaction"). These 14,099,749 shares will constitute about 13.1% of the outstanding Sunbeam shares after the merger.

In addition, under a court-approved litigation settlement, Sunbeam will issue warrants expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase about 4.98 million Sunbeam shares at a cash price of $7 per share when the merger is completed, assuming no Coleman stockholders exercise their Delaware law appraisal rights. Sunbeam has already issued a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase 23 million Sunbeam shares at a cash price of $7 per share to a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in settlement of claims relating to the M&F Transaction. The warrants to be issued to you will have the same terms as the warrant issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary except that the warrants issued to you, unlike the warrants issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, will be freely tradeable upon issuance. See "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction” beginning on page 32 and “LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS” beginning on page 60. If all these warrants were exercised promptly after the merger, the shares owned by the former Coleman minority stockholders would represent about 8.6% of the then outstanding Sunbeam shares, and the shares owned by the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary would represent about 27.4% of the then outstanding Sunbeam shares.

The current stockholders of Sunbeam, other than the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, will own about 81% of the outstanding Sunbeam shares after the merger, or about 64% if all the warrants are exercised promptly after the merger.

Conditions. The completion of the merger was originally subject to the following conditions contained in the merger agreement:

- this document had to be declared effective by the SEC;
- the shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued in the merger had to be listed for trading on the NYSE; and
- the M&F Transaction had to be completed.

All of these conditions have already been satisfied. Therefore, assuming no court order is entered which prevents the merger from being completed, we expect that the merger will be completed on or about January 6, 2000, which is the twenty-first business day following the date on which this document was first mailed to you.

Accounting Treatment. The merger will be accounted for under the “purchase” method in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Therefore, the aggregate consideration paid by Sunbeam to Coleman stockholders in the merger and in the M&F Transaction will be allocated to Coleman’s assets and liabilities based upon their fair market value with any excess being treated as goodwill.

Coleman’s Financial Advisor. Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation acted as Coleman’s financial advisor in connection with the merger. On February 27, 1998, when the merger agreement was approved by Coleman’s former board of directors, Credit Suisse First Boston delivered to Coleman’s former board an oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to the matters described in the opinion, the cash and stock consideration you will receive under the merger agreement was fair to you from a financial point of view. Because Sunbeam did not plan to issue the warrants at the time the merger agreement was signed, Credit Suisse First Boston did not take the warrants into account when evaluating the fairness of the merger agreement consideration.

Since the date of the Credit Suisse First Boston opinion, numerous events have occurred that significantly adversely affected the price of Sunbeam common stock. When Credit Suisse First Boston was engaged by Coleman, they were not asked to render an updated opinion as of the date of this document and neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has requested that they do so. Moreover, Credit Suisse First Boston has advised Sunbeam that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. See “RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM” beginning on page 26.

For its services to Coleman, Credit Suisse First Boston has received fees of about $4 million. See “SPECIAL FACTORS—Financial Advisors’ Opinions” beginning on page 42.

Sunbeam’s Financial Advisor. Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated acted as Sunbeam’s financial advisor in connection with its acquisition of Coleman. On February 27, 1998, when the merger agreement was approved by Sunbeam’s board of directors, Morgan Stanley rendered to Sunbeam’s board of directors an oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to certain matters described in the opinion, the cash and stock consideration payable in the M&F Transaction and under the merger agreement was fair to Sunbeam from a financial point of view. Because Sunbeam did not plan to issue the warrants at the time the merger agreement was signed, Morgan Stanley did not take the warrants into account when evaluating the fairness to Sunbeam of the consideration payable in the M&F Transaction and under the merger agreement.

Since the date of the Morgan Stanley opinion, a number of negative developments have occurred affecting Sunbeam and the price of Sunbeam common stock. When Morgan Stanley was engaged by Sunbeam, they were not asked to render an updated opinion as of the date of this document and neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has requested that they do so. Moreover, Morgan Stanley has advised Sunbeam that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of the subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. See "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM" beginning on page 26.

For its services to Sunbeam in connection with the Coleman acquisition, Morgan Stanley has received fees from Sunbeam totaling about $9.6 million. The amended engagement letter between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley provides for the payment to Morgan Stanley of an additional transaction fee of $680,000 when the merger is completed, based on the average market price of Sunbeam common stock on the last trading day prior to the date of this document. Sunbeam's obligation to pay this additional transaction fee to Morgan Stanley will not be affected by the fact that Sunbeam is no longer entitled to rely on Morgan Stanley's fairness opinion. See "SPECIAL FACTORS—Financial Advisors' Opinions" beginning on page 42.

Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger. You should be aware that a number of persons, including current directors and executive officers of Sunbeam and former directors and executive officers of Coleman, some of whom have subsequently rejoined Coleman, have interests in the merger that are different from or in addition to yours. See "THE MERGER—Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger" beginning on page 50. These interests include:

- the accelerated vesting, as a result of the M&F Transaction, of options to purchase Coleman common stock held by Coleman employees, officers and directors, including options exercised as a result of such accelerated vesting by two current executive officers of Sunbeam and Coleman, one of whom is a current director of Sunbeam and Coleman and a former director and executive officer of Coleman, as described below,
- the right under the merger agreement of holders of Coleman employee stock options—including one former director of Coleman and three current executive officers of Sunbeam and Coleman, as described below—to have their options to purchase shares of Coleman common stock cashed out in the merger at a price equal to $27.50 per share minus the per share exercise price of the options,
- the right of Coleman's current and former officers, directors, employees and consultants to continued indemnification,
- the right of Coleman's officers, directors, employees and consultants—including two current executive officers of Sunbeam and Coleman and one former executive officer of Coleman, as described below—to receive severance payments as a result of the M&F Transaction, and
- the right of the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary from which Sunbeam acquired a controlling interest in Coleman in the M&F Transaction and former directors and executive officers of Coleman to require the registration under the federal and state securities laws of the shares of Sunbeam common stock held by them and the warrants held by the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary and the shares issuable upon exercise of that warrant.

Immediately after the completion of the M&F Transaction, two current executive officers of Sunbeam and Coleman exercised options which vested as a result of the M&F Transaction. Jerry W. Levin, the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Coleman and the current Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, exercised 500,000 Coleman stock options at per share exercise prices ranging from $12.25 to $14.00 and Mr. Levin received net proceeds upon the sale of such shares of about $9.94 million. Bobby G. Jenkins, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sunbeam and Executive Vice President of Coleman, exercised 20,000 Coleman stock options at per share exercise prices ranging from $16.125 to $16.434 and Mr. Jenkins received net proceeds upon the sale of such shares of about $288,360.

Ronald O. Perelman, the sole stockholder of MacAndrews & Forbes and a member of the Coleman board at the time the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction and the merger agreement were executed, holds 500,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $14.00 per share. Paul E. Shapiro, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, holds 62,500 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $17.062 per share and 15,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $16.125 per share. Karen K. Clark, the current Senior Vice President, Finance of Sunbeam and Senior Vice President, Finance of Coleman, holds 10,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $17.062 per share and 15,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $16.125 per share. Steven R. Isko, the current Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Sunbeam and Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Coleman, holds 10,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $17.062 per share, 7,500 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $16.125 per share and 2,500 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $12.937 per share. Upon completion of the merger, in settlement of their Coleman stock options, Messrs. Perelman, Shapiro and Isko and Ms. Clark will receive cash payments of $6,750,000, $823,000, $226,009 and $275,005, respectively.

In connection with the change in control resulting from the completion of the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam has paid, or has caused Coleman to pay or recognize as payable, a total of $7,903,765 in severance compensation and related benefits for approximately 117 former Coleman employees. Of that amount, $7,597,936 was in respect of base salary and related benefits, and $305,829 was in respect of extra pension credits. In addition, Coleman paid $454,277 for management incentive bonuses to 37 former Coleman employees. The only principal executive officer of Coleman to receive severance compensation from Coleman as a result of the change in control was Joseph Page, the former Chief Financial Officer of Coleman, who received severance payments totaling $280,000. Bobby G. Jenkins, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sunbeam and Executive Vice President of Coleman, received severance payments totaling $18,583 as a result of his resignation from Coleman following the M&F Transaction, and prior to his being rehired by both Sunbeam and Coleman in the capacities mentioned above. Steven R. Isko, the current Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Sunbeam and Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Coleman, received severance payments totaling $185,634 as a result of his resignation from Coleman following the M&F Transaction, and prior to his being rehired by both Sunbeam and Coleman in the capacities mentioned above.

Governmental and Regulatory Approvals. Under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended, Sunbeam and Coleman were required to make filings with the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice about the merger and observe a waiting period before completing the merger. These filings were made and the waiting period was terminated in March 1998.

United States Federal Income Tax Considerations

Your receipt of cash, Sunbeam common stock and warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock in exchange for the shares of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed is expected to be a taxable transaction for United States Federal income tax purposes and may also be a taxable transaction under applicable state, local, foreign and other tax laws. In general, for United States Federal income tax purposes, you will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between:

- the sum of the cash and the fair market value of the Sunbeam common stock and warrants you receive, and
- your adjusted tax basis in the shares of Coleman common stock you exchange in the merger.

This gain or loss will be capital gain or loss if you hold the shares of Coleman common stock as a capital asset and will be long-term capital gain or loss if you have held the shares for more than twelve months.

However, the tax consequences of the merger are subject to a number of qualifications, discussed below under the caption "UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS" beginning on page 60.

The tax consequences to you of the merger will depend on your own situation. You should consult your own tax advisor for a full understanding of all of these tax consequences.

Litigation Settlement and Warrants

On October 21, 1998, Sunbeam announced that it had entered into a memorandum of understanding to settle class action and derivative lawsuits brought by minority stockholders of Coleman challenging the merger. A stipulation of settlement was executed on August 6, 1999. The Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware held a hearing on September 29, 1999 to consider approving the settlement. The court approved the settlement on November 12, 1999.

Under the terms of the settlement, unless you have demanded your Delaware law appraisal rights, you will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed (assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding Coleman shares). Each warrant will entitle you to purchase one share of Sunbeam common stock at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003. The total number of warrants you receive will be based on the number of shares of Coleman common stock outstanding and the number of shares you own at the time of the merger and will be equal to the product of (A) 4,979,663, less the 497,966 warrants awarded by the court to counsel for the Coleman minority stockholders in the litigation as their fee multiplied by (B) a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of shares of Coleman common stock you hold when the merger is completed (other than any shares with respect to which Delaware law appraisal rights have been demanded) and the denominator of which is the total number of shares of Coleman common stock outstanding and owned by Coleman stockholders other than Sunbeam and its subsidiaries at the time of the merger (approximately 11,759,970 shares, assuming no further exercises of Coleman employee stock options). Sunbeam does not anticipate any further exercises of Coleman employee stock options. The warrants will be subject to anti-dilution adjustments. No fractional warrants will be issued. Instead, the number of warrants to which you are entitled will be rounded up or down to the closest whole number. Thus, for example, if there are no further exercises of Coleman options and no anti-dilution adjustments, a Coleman stockholder who holds 100 shares of Coleman common stock at the time of the merger and does not demand Delaware law appraisal rights would be entitled to receive 38 warrants, calculated as follows:

$$(4,979,663 - 497,966) \times (100 / 11,759,970) = 38.109$$

total # of warrants available	-	total # of warrants paid to plaintiffs' counsel	X	# of shares owned	/	total # of shares owned by the Coleman minority stockholders at the time the merger is completed	=	# of warrants to be received
-------------------------------------	---	---	---	-------------------------	---	---	---	---------------------------------

The result of this equation would then be rounded down from 38.109 to 38, the closest whole number. However, because of the possibility (although unlikely) that Coleman options will be exercised prior to the completion of the merger, you will not be able to determine the precise number of warrants you will be entitled to receive in the merger before December 27, 1999, the date by which you must submit to Coleman a written demand for your appraisal rights under Delaware law if you wish to exercise those rights. See "APPRAISAL RIGHTS" beginning on page 62. However, for a description of the warrants, see "LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS" beginning on page 60.

Material Contacts Between Coleman and Sunbeam and Its Affiliates

Financial Transactions Between Coleman and Sunbeam. In connection with the M&F Transaction, Coleman repaid substantially all of its outstanding indebtedness with the proceeds of borrowings from Sunbeam. Since then, Coleman has borrowed from, and repaid funds to, Sunbeam. Through April 15, 1999, Coleman's obligations to Sunbeam were evidenced by an unsecured subordinated demand note payable by

021147

Coleman to Sunbeam. This note was pledged by Sunbeam to its lenders as security for Sunbeam's obligations under its bank credit facility.

In connection with the April 15, 1999 amendment to Sunbeam's bank credit facility, the Coleman note was revised to, among other things:

- lower the interest rate,
- make the note payable on April 15, 2000 rather than on demand,
- add customary representations, warranties, covenants and events of default, and
- provide that an event of default under Sunbeam's bank credit facility would constitute an event of default under the Coleman note.

As security for the revised Coleman note, Coleman pledged:

- substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property,
- 66% of its ownership interests in its direct foreign subsidiaries and in its domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries (but not the assets of these subsidiaries), and
- all of its ownership interests in its other direct domestic subsidiaries (but not the assets of these subsidiaries).

The revised Coleman note had an unpaid principal balance of $303.2 million on September 30, 1999. Sunbeam pledged the revised Coleman note as security for Sunbeam's obligations to its lending banks under its bank credit facility and assigned to these lending banks the security pledged by Coleman for the revised Coleman note. Coleman also gave the lending banks a direct pledge of the assets securing the revised Coleman note to secure the obligations under Sunbeam's bank credit facility, subject to a cap equal to the balance due from time to time on the revised Coleman note. The revision of the Coleman note and the pledge of Coleman's assets were approved on behalf of Coleman by A. Whitman Marchand, Coleman's only disinterested director, acting as a duly authorized independent committee of the Coleman board of directors.

Under Sunbeam's bank credit facility, an event of default will occur if this document is not declared effective by the SEC on or before January 10, 2000, if the merger is not completed within 25 business days after the effectiveness of this document or if Sunbeam has to pay more than $87.5 million in cash (excluding expenses) to complete the merger (including any amounts paid with respect to appraisal rights). An event of default of this kind would also constitute an event of default under the Coleman note, and Sunbeam's lenders would be entitled to foreclose on the Coleman note and the Coleman assets pledged as security for the Coleman note. The Coleman note, by its terms, will not be affected by the merger and will remain outstanding. For more information concerning Sunbeam's bank credit facility, including the aggregate amount of borrowings outstanding thereunder, the amount available for future borrowings and the maturity date, see "SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION" beginning on page 64. See also "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Financial Transactions Between Coleman and Sunbeam" beginning on page 68.

M&F Transaction. In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock (reduced to about 79% as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options immediately following the M&F Transaction). As a result of a purchase by Sunbeam of shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock in July 1999, Sunbeam now has the right to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock.

In the M&F Transaction, a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock, which represent about 14% of the currently outstanding Sunbeam common stock, and about $160 million in cash. In addition, in connection with the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam assumed about $1,016 million in debt of Coleman and its parent corporations, including $497 million of indebtedness of Coleman.

Immediately following the M&F Transaction, all the directors of Coleman resigned, the number of directors constituting the Coleman board of directors was fixed at five, and five designees of Sunbeam were elected as directors of Coleman. In addition, Sunbeam designees were appointed to senior management positions at Coleman. Subsequently, as a result of changes in Sunbeam's management and board of directors, in June 1998, Jerry W. Levin, the current Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, was reelected to the Coleman board. In addition, Paul E. Shapiro, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, was elected to the Coleman board. The other members of the Coleman board resigned or were removed by Sunbeam. In April 1999, the size of the Coleman board was fixed at three members and A. Whitman Marchand, who is not otherwise affiliated with either Sunbeam or Coleman, was elected to the Coleman board. In July 1999, the size of the Coleman board was fixed at four and John H. Klein, an outside director of Sunbeam, was elected to the Coleman board. See "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Appointments of Former Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes Officers to Sunbeam's Management and Board," "—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction" and "—Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes" beginning on pages 71, 71 and 72, respectively.

Registration Rights Agreement. The shares of Sunbeam common stock issued to a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes in the M&F Transaction were not registered under federal or state securities laws. Accordingly, in connection with the issuance, Sunbeam entered into a registration rights agreement with the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary. Under the registration rights agreement, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary can require Sunbeam to register under federal and applicable state securities laws the shares of Sunbeam common stock it received in the M&F Transaction. The registration rights agreement was amended in August 1998 to provide that the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary can also require Sunbeam to register under federal and applicable state securities laws the warrant, and the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant, issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in settlement of legal claims related to the M&F Transaction.

Directors, officers and other affiliates of Coleman who receive shares of Sunbeam common stock in the merger can also require Sunbeam to register those shares under federal and applicable state securities laws. To exercise this right, these individuals must agree to be bound by the terms of the registration rights agreement.

Appointments of Former Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes Officers to Sunbeam's Management and Board. In June 1998, following the removal of Sunbeam's former Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, Sunbeam announced that Jerry W. Levin of MacAndrews & Forbes had been elected as Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Levin and other Sunbeam executives that were affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes later signed three-year employment agreements with Sunbeam. The other executives include Paul E. Shapiro, Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam, and Bobby G. Jenkins, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sunbeam. Mr. Levin and Howard Gittis of MacAndrews & Forbes also were elected to the Sunbeam board. For a description of the terms of the employment agreements entered into by Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins, see "MANAGEMENT—Executive Compensation—Employment Agreement with Mr. Levin"; "Employment Agreements with Executives Shapiro, Jenkins and Clark" beginning on pages 142 and 143, respectively. For a further discussion of the events leading up to the appointment of Mr. Levin as Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer and the appointment of Messrs. Levin and Gittis to the Sunbeam board, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Changes in Sunbeam's Management and Board" beginning on page 30.

Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction. On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam announced that, following investigation and negotiation by a special committee of the Sunbeam board consisting of four directors not affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes, Sunbeam had entered into a settlement agreement with a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary. The settlement:

- released Sunbeam from threatened claims of MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates arising from the M&F Transaction,
- enabled Sunbeam to retain the services of executive personnel affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes who had been managing Sunbeam since mid-June of 1998, including Jerry W. Levin, Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Paul E. Shapiro, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and

021149

Chief Administrative Officer, and Bobby G. Jenkins, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, and

- provided for the continuing management assistance and other support by MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates to Sunbeam described in "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes" beginning on page 72.

As part of the settlement, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary received from Sunbeam a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase 23 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. For a description of the settlement agreement and the terms of the warrant issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction" beginning on page 32.

Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes. Under Sunbeam's August 1998 settlement agreement with a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, in addition to the services of MacAndrews & Forbes' former executive personnel who have been managing Sunbeam since mid-June 1998, MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide management assistance and other support to Sunbeam at its request in a wide variety of areas. Sunbeam does not pay MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates for the services of their employees, but does reimburse them for out-of-pocket expenses. See "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes" beginning on page 72.

Acquisition of Coleman Preferred Stock. On July 12, 1999, one of Sunbeam's wholly owned subsidiaries acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock for an aggregate purchase price of approximately $31 million. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock already indirectly owned by Sunbeam, enable Sunbeam to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock as of July 12, 1999. This class of preferred stock was created by Coleman and acquired by Sunbeam in order to enable Sunbeam and Coleman to file consolidated federal income tax returns and, in certain jurisdictions, consolidated state income tax returns, prior to the completion of the merger. In connection with the acquisition of these shares, Sunbeam entered into a tax sharing agreement with Coleman pursuant to which Coleman will pay to Sunbeam amounts equal to the federal and state income taxes that would have been payable by Coleman had Coleman not been included in the consolidated income tax return of Sunbeam. The terms of the voting preferred stock, the per share issue price and the terms of the tax sharing agreement were approved on Coleman's behalf by Coleman's then sole independent director. The net proceeds from the sale of the preferred stock to Sunbeam were used by Coleman to make a partial repayment on Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam. For further information regarding the terms of the preferred stock issued to Sunbeam's subsidiary, see "DESCRIPTION OF COLEMAN CAPITAL STOCK—Coleman Preferred Stock beginning on page 154."

SUMMARY HISTORICAL AND PRO FORMA FINANCIAL INFORMATION

The following summary historical financial information is derived from Sunbeam's audited consolidated financial statements and unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements. The following summary pro forma financial information is derived from Sunbeam's unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements beginning on page 72. The summary unaudited pro forma financial information gives effect to the following "Pro Forma Transactions":

- the corporate acquisitions Sunbeam made in 1998, excluding the acquisition of First Alert, Inc., the effect of which is not significant;
- the proposed acquisition by Sunbeam of the Coleman common stock held by the Coleman minority stockholders upon completion of the merger for cash, shares of Sunbeam common stock and warrants;
- the initial borrowing of approximately $1,325 million under Sunbeam's bank credit facility;
- the original offering of an aggregate principal amount at maturity of $2,014 million of Sunbeam's Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 on March 25, 1998, for net proceeds of about $730 million; and

- the use of most of the net proceeds of the original bank borrowing and the original offering of the debentures to acquire Coleman and Signature Brands and to refinance indebtedness.

The summary unaudited pro forma financial information is not necessarily indicative of what Sunbeam's results would have been if the Pro Forma Transactions actually had occurred as of the dates indicated or of what Sunbeam's future operating results will be.

This summary historical and pro forma financial information should be read in conjunction with Sunbeam's audited consolidated financial statements beginning on page F-1, "MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS" beginning on page 86 and "UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS" beginning on page 72.

While reviewing the summary historical and pro forma financial information, please note the following:

- Sunbeam accounted for the March 30, 1998 acquisition of a controlling interest in Coleman and the April 6, 1998 acquisitions of First Alert and Signature Brands under the purchase method of accounting. Accordingly, Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements include the financial position and results of operations of each of the acquired companies from the respective dates of acquisition.
- For the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998, Sunbeam took an extraordinary charge of $122.4 million related to the early extinguishments of debt and took other charges of:
 - $70.0 million related to the issuance of warrants to a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary;
 - $62.5 million related to the write-off of goodwill;
 - $39.4 million related to fixed asset impairments;
 - $31 million related to compensation expense for the new employment agreements with Sunbeam's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other former senior officers; and
 - $95.8 million related to write-downs of inventory.

See Notes 2, 3 and 11 to Sunbeam's audited consolidated financial statements.

- For the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997, Sunbeam reversed $28.0 million of pre-tax liabilities no longer required and $13.3 million of tax liabilities no longer required.
- For the fiscal year ended December 29, 1996, Sunbeam took restructuring, asset impairment and other charges of $239.2 million before taxes. See Notes 12 and 13 to Sunbeam's audited consolidated financial statements.
- The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated balance sheet as of September 30, 1999 gives pro forma effect to the proposed acquisition of the shares of Coleman common stock held by the Coleman minority stockholders as if it had occurred on September 30, 1999. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998 and the nine months ended September 30, 1999 give effect to the Pro Forma Transactions, as if they had occurred on December 29, 1997, the beginning of Sunbeam's 1998 fiscal year. Also, pro forma net losses are from continuing operations and do not include extraordinary items.
- In computing the ratio of earnings to fixed charges:
 - earnings represent income (loss) from continuing operations before income taxes and fixed charges (exclusive of interest capitalized); and
 - fixed charges consist of interest expense, capitalized interest and the estimated interest portion of rental expense.

For the fiscal years ended December 29, 1996 and December 31, 1998, historical earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $262.2 million and $797.1 million, respectively. For the nine months ended September 30, 1998 and 1999, historical earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $476.7 million and $130.1 million, respectively. For the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998 and for the nine months ended September 30, 1999, on a pro forma basis, earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $834.9 million and $139.1 million, respectively.

021151

RISK FACTORS

In reviewing the information contained in this document and in deciding whether to accept the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give you, or to dissent from the merger and have the fair value of your shares appraised by a court and paid to you in cash, you should consider the following:

The number of Sunbeam shares and warrants you receive for each Coleman share has not been and will not be adjusted

Unless you pursue your appraisal rights, you will receive $6.44 in cash, 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock and 0.381 of a Sunbeam warrant (assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding Coleman shares), for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed. The number of Sunbeam shares and warrants you will receive has not been adjusted to reflect the decrease in the market price of Sunbeam common stock and will not be adjusted to reflect any future changes in the market price of either Sunbeam common stock or Coleman common stock. Since February 27, 1998, the market price of Sunbeam common stock reached a high of $53 on March 4, 1998 and a low of $4.125 on November 5 and 8, 1999. It was $4.75 on December 3, 1999, the last trading day prior to the date of this document, and may increase or decrease between the date of this document and the date on which the merger is completed. Variations in the price of Sunbeam common stock may be the result of changes in the business, operations or prospects of Sunbeam or Coleman, general market and economic conditions and other factors. See "—Negative developments since March 1998 have caused Sunbeam's common stock price to drop significantly, and the risks described in the "RISK FACTORS" section of this document may cause further declines in the price of Sunbeam common stock." Stockholders of Coleman are urged to obtain current market quotations for Sunbeam common stock and Coleman common stock. See "SUMMARY—Market Prices and Dividends."

Coleman's financial advisor has advised Coleman that its opinion as to the fairness of the consideration to be paid to you under the February 1998 merger agreement upon completion of the merger should no longer be relied upon and no other financial advisor has been asked to provide a fairness opinion. Therefore, you do not have the benefit of an independent evaluation of the fairness of the merger to you from a financial point of view in deciding whether to accept the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give you or pursue your Delaware law appraisal rights

As a result of the adverse developments affecting Sunbeam described in the section of this document captioned "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM" beginning on page 26, Coleman's financial advisor, Credit Suisse First Boston, has advised Coleman that its February 1998 opinion as to the fairness of the consideration payable to you under the merger agreement should no longer be relied upon. Therefore, you should no longer rely on the Credit Suisse First Boston opinion or on the February 1998 determination of the then Coleman board that the consideration payable under the merger agreement was fair to you from a financial point of view, since that determination was based, at least in part, on the Credit Suisse First Boston opinion. As a result, you do not have the benefit of an independent evaluation of the fairness of the merger to you from a financial point of view in deciding whether to accept the cash, stock and warrants Sunbeam proposes to give you or pursue your Delaware law appraisal rights.

Sunbeam is highly leveraged which impairs its ability to obtain financing and limits cash flow available for Sunbeam's operations and may limit its competitiveness in the market place

Sunbeam is highly leveraged, with indebtedness that is very large when compared to its stockholders' equity. Much of its indebtedness was incurred to finance three corporate acquisitions in 1998. At September 30, 1999, Sunbeam's consolidated indebtedness was approximately $2,322.7 million and its stockholders' equity was approximately $94.7 million, including approximately $1,809.9 million of goodwill and other intangible assets. If required, Sunbeam may incur additional indebtedness under the bank credit facility or, subject to restrictions in the bank credit facility, through other borrowings. The indenture governing Sunbeam's zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures does not limit Sunbeam's ability to incur additional indebtedness. You should carefully read Sunbeam's audited consolidated financial statements beginning on page F-1.

Sunbeam's high leverage has important consequences. For example:

- Sunbeam's ability to obtain additional financing for working capital, capital expenditures, acquisitions or general corporate purposes is and may continue to be impaired.
- all or a substantial portion of Sunbeam's cash flow from operations must be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on Sunbeam's indebtedness; therefore cash available for its operations and other purposes will be limited.
- Sunbeam may be substantially more leveraged than some of its competitors, which may place it at a competitive disadvantage.
- Sunbeam may be less able to adjust rapidly to changing market conditions, and
- Sunbeam's results of operations could be adversely affected, particularly in the event of a downturn in general economic conditions or Sunbeam's business.

Sunbeam's bank credit facility contains covenants which Sunbeam may not be able to satisfy and default provisions it may not be able to avoid, and, if Sunbeam cannot, the banks could demand immediate repayment of Sunbeam's bank debt

As of September 30, 1999, Sunbeam had incurred about $1,500 million in borrowings and had availability to borrow about $200 million under the bank credit facility. The bank credit facility contains covenants which require Sunbeam to meet financial tests and ratios relating to Sunbeam's future performance which it may not be able to satisfy. If Sunbeam cannot satisfy these tests and ratios it would be in default. The bank credit facility also provides that the occurrence of any of the following events, which Sunbeam may not be able to avoid, would be an event of default:

- if Sunbeam fails to have the SEC declare this document effective by January 10, 2000,
- if Sunbeam fails to complete the merger within 25 business days after this document is declared effective by the SEC, or
- if Sunbeam has to pay more than $87.5 million in cash to complete the merger, including any payments on account of the exercise of any appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses.

An event of default would give the banks the right to demand immediate repayment—a demand Sunbeam might not be able to meet.

Sunbeam's bank debt could become due on April 10, 2000, if Sunbeam does not get another waiver from the banks or refinance its bank debt by then, and there can be no assurance that Sunbeam would be able to repay the bank debt on that date

In 1998, Sunbeam was in violation of some of the covenants of the bank credit facility, but the banks waived these violations first until December 31, 1998, then until April 10, 1999, then until April 15, 1999 and now until April 10, 2000. However, if Sunbeam does not get another waiver or refinance the bank debt by April 10, 2000, the banks would have the right to demand immediate repayment—a demand which Sunbeam might not be able to meet.

Sunbeam may not be able to service its large debt burden, which may force it to restructure or refinance its debt

To meet its debt service requirements, Sunbeam must be able to successfully implement its business strategy and integrate into its operations the three companies Sunbeam acquired in 1998. In addition, Sunbeam's future financial and operating performance will affect its ability to repay or to refinance its indebtedness. Sunbeam's future financial and operating performance is subject to prevailing economic and competitive conditions and to financial, business and other factors which may be beyond Sunbeam's control.

Sunbeam cannot assure you that its operating cash flow and capital resources will be sufficient to meet its debt service requirements. For the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and the year ended December 31, 1998 Sunbeam's earnings were insufficient to cover its fixed charges by approximately $130.1 million and $797.1 million, respectively. If Sunbeam does not have enough cash flow and capital resources to meet its debt service obligations, Sunbeam may be forced to reduce or delay capital expenditures, sell assets, or seek to obtain additional equity capital. Sunbeam also might be forced to refinance or restructure its debt, including its zero coupon convertible subordinated debentures. Although Sunbeam does not have any firm plans or arrangements to restructure its debt, a restructuring, if Sunbeam decided to pursue one, could involve one or more exchange offers, tender offers or consent solicitations involving the debentures.

Sunbeam's outside auditors determined that Sunbeam's 1997 internal controls were inadequate and Sunbeam cannot assure you that the corrective measures it has adopted or will adopt to address these inadequacies will be effective

In October 1998, Sunbeam's auditors at the time, Arthur Andersen LLP, told Sunbeam that the design and effectiveness of its internal controls were inadequate to detect material misstatements in the preparation of Sunbeam's 1997 annual and quarterly financial statements. As described further in "CHANGES IN AND DISAGREEMENTS WITH ACCOUNTANTS ON ACCOUNTING AND FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE" beginning on page 118, Sunbeam has restated its financial results for a six-quarter period from the fourth quarter of 1996 through the first quarter of 1998. Sunbeam cannot assure you that any interim or final corrective measures Sunbeam has adopted or will adopt to address the inadequacies in its internal controls will be effective.

Sunbeam had significant losses and its operations consumed significant amounts of cash in the first nine months of 1999 and in fiscal year 1998 and Sunbeam cannot assure you that it will be able to generate profits or positive cash flow from operations in the future

For the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and the year ended December 31, 1998, Sunbeam had consolidated net losses of approximately $155.0 million and $897.9 million, respectively, and net cash used in operations of $73.2 million and $190.4 million, respectively. Sunbeam cannot assure you that it will be able to generate profits or positive cash flow from operations in the future. See "MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS" beginning on page 86 for a further discussion.

Major lawsuits have been brought against Sunbeam, including lawsuits under federal and state securities laws, and the SEC is conducting a formal investigation of Sunbeam; Sunbeam cannot predict the outcome of these lawsuits or the SEC investigation, but if Sunbeam were to lose the lawsuits, the resulting judgments would likely have a negative effect on its financial position, results of operations and cash flow

Litigation. Beginning in April 1998 many lawsuits alleging claims arising under Delaware law, Texas law and federal and state securities laws have been filed against Sunbeam and some of its former directors and officers, some of its current directors and its former auditor in various federal and state courts. Many of these lawsuits relate to Sunbeam's financial performance from the second quarter of 1997 through the second quarter of 1998. Many plaintiffs are claiming that Sunbeam's prior management misrepresented and omitted material information in its public filings and in their statements concerning its historical and expected future results of operations for the purpose of artificially inflating the market price of Sunbeam common stock. Currently Sunbeam cannot predict the outcome of these lawsuits, evaluate the likelihood of Sunbeam's success in any particular case, or evaluate the range of potential loss. If Sunbeam were to lose these lawsuits, judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

Sunbeam's insurers are attempting to have the directors' and officers' liability policies it has with them voided or canceled or have advised Sunbeam that they do not intend to provide coverage with respect to these lawsuits. Failure by Sunbeam to obtain insurance recoveries from its liability insurers following an adverse judgment against Sunbeam or any persons it is obligated to indemnify in any of the lawsuits discussed above could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flow.

SEC Investigation. In July 1998, the SEC commenced a formal investigation of Sunbeam after informing Sunbeam in the previous month of an informal investigation. Although Sunbeam believes that it has cooperated with the SEC and furnished the SEC with documents they requested, Sunbeam has, however, declined to provide the SEC with material that Sunbeam believes is subject to the attorney-client privilege and the work product immunity. Sunbeam cannot predict how long this investigation will last or its outcome. In addition, Sunbeam cannot at this time determine what actions, if any, the SEC might take against it or what effect any action might have on Sunbeam. For further information regarding the SEC investigation of Sunbeam, please see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—SEC Investigation" beginning on page 32.

Product-Related Liabilities. As a consumer goods manufacturer and distributor, Sunbeam faces the constant risks of product liability and related lawsuits involving claims for substantial money damages, product recall actions and higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. These claims could result in liabilities that could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position and results of operations. Some of the product lines Sunbeam acquired in the 1998 acquisitions have increased its exposure to product liability and related claims.

See "BUSINESS OF SUNBEAM—Litigation and Other Contingent Liabilities" beginning on page 126 for more information about lawsuits Sunbeam is involved in, the SEC investigation and other contingent liabilities.

Sunbeam's 1998 acquisitions have increased the size of the operations Sunbeam has to manage and Sunbeam's failure to manage its operations effectively would likely cause Sunbeam to have poor operating results

The 1998 acquisitions of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands have resulted in a substantial increase in the size of Sunbeam's operations. As a result, Sunbeam must effectively use its employees and management, operational, and financial resources to manage its expanded operations. A failure on Sunbeam's part to successfully integrate and effectively manage its expanded operations would likely cause Sunbeam to have poor operating results.

Sunbeam's international operations expose Sunbeam to uncertainties and risks from abroad which could negatively affect its operations and sales

Sunbeam currently has sales in countries where economic growth has slowed, primarily Japan and Korea; or where economies have been unstable or hyperinflationary in recent years, primarily Mexico and Venezuela. The economies of other foreign countries important to Sunbeam's operations, including other countries in Latin America and Asia, could also suffer slower economic growth or instability in the future.

The following are among the risks that could negatively affect Sunbeam's operations and sales in foreign markets:

- new restrictions on access to markets,
- currency devaluation,
- new tariffs,
- adverse changes in monetary and/or tax policies,
- inflation, and
- governmental instability.

Should any of these risks occur, it could impair Sunbeam's ability to export its products and result in a loss of sales from its international operations.

The nature of Sunbeam's businesses requires Sunbeam to successfully develop new and innovative products on a consistent basis in order to regain profitability and increase revenues and Sunbeam may not be able to do so

Sunbeam must develop new and innovative products to regain profitability and increase revenues. In the past Sunbeam has experienced difficulties in developing and introducing quality new products on a timely basis. Sunbeam may not be able to meet its schedules for future product development. Failure to develop and manufacture successful new products could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's future financial performance.

Sunbeam's businesses are very sensitive to the strength of the U.S. retail market and any weakness in this market could adversely affect Sunbeam's financial results

The strength of the retail economy in the United States has a significant impact on Sunbeam's performance. Weakness in consumer confidence and poor financial performance by retail outlets, including the financial weakness or bankruptcy of retail outlets, especially mass merchants, may adversely impact Sunbeam's future financial results.

Sunbeam operates in a highly competitive market and Sunbeam's inability to compete effectively could cause it to lose market share and could adversely affect its financial results

Sunbeam operates in a highly competitive environment. Sunbeam has numerous domestic and foreign competitors, and many of them are financially strong and capable of competing effectively with Sunbeam. Competitors may take actions to match Sunbeam's new product introductions and other initiatives. Some competitors may be willing to reduce prices and accept lower profit margins to compete with Sunbeam. As a result of this competition, Sunbeam could lose market share and sales and suffer losses, which could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's future financial performance.

Sunbeam's future success will significantly depend upon its ability to remain competitive in the areas of price, quality, marketing, product development, manufacturing, distribution, order processing and customer service. Sunbeam cannot assure you that it will be able to compete effectively in all these areas in the future.

Sunbeam's sales are highly dependent on purchases from several large customers and any significant decline in these purchases or pressure from these customers to reduce prices could have a negative effect on Sunbeam's future financial performance; Sunbeam has no long-term supply contracts with any of its customers

Due to the consolidation of the U.S. retail industry, Sunbeam's customer base has become relatively concentrated. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., Sunbeam's largest single customer, accounted for 18% of Sunbeam's net sales in 1998, and its five largest customers combined accounted for 38% of its 1998 net sales.

Sunbeam has no long-term supply contracts with any of its customers. As a result, Sunbeam must receive a continuous flow of new orders from its large, high-volume retailing customers. Sunbeam has responded to the challenges of its markets by pursuing strategic relationships with large, high-volume merchandisers. However, Sunbeam cannot assure you that it can continue to successfully meet the needs of Sunbeam's customers. In addition, failure to obtain anticipated orders or delays or cancellations of orders or significant pressure to reduce prices from key customers could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's future financial performance.

Raw materials and components are critical inputs for Sunbeam's products and price hikes or problems with their supply could adversely affect Sunbeam

Raw materials and components constitute a significant portion of the cost of Sunbeam's goods. Factors which are largely beyond Sunbeam's control, such as movements in commodity prices for the specific materials Sunbeam requires, may affect the future cost of such raw materials and components. In addition, any inability of Sunbeam's suppliers to timely deliver raw materials and components or any unanticipated change in Sunbeam's suppliers could be disruptive and costly to Sunbeam.

A significant failure by Sunbeam to contain raw material or component costs could have a material adverse effect on its future financial performance. In addition, delays or cancellations by suppliers could adversely affect results.

Sunbeam's operations are dependent upon third-party suppliers and service providers whose failure to perform adequately could disrupt Sunbeam's business operations

Sunbeam currently manufactures many of its products, but it sources many of its parts and products from third parties. Sunbeam's ability to select reliable vendors who provide timely deliveries of quality parts and products will impact its success in meeting customer demand for timely delivery of quality products. Any inability of Sunbeam's suppliers to timely deliver quality parts and products or any unanticipated change in suppliers or pricing of products could be disruptive and costly to Sunbeam.

Sunbeam has entered into various arrangements with third parties for the provision of back-office administrative services that it used to perform internally. Sunbeam now outsources accounts payable, collection of accounts receivable, customer service and some necessary computer systems servicing, among other things. If any of these third-party service providers failed to perform adequately, Sunbeam's normal business operations could be disrupted. Among other things, this could hurt Sunbeam's sales, collections, customer service, cash flow and profitability.

Sunbeam is subject to several production-related risks which could jeopardize its ability to realize anticipated sales and profits

To realize sales and operating profits at anticipated levels, Sunbeam must manufacture, source and deliver in a timely manner products of high quality. Among others, the following factors can have a negative effect on Sunbeam's ability to do these things:

- labor difficulties,
- scheduling and transportation difficulties,
- management dislocation,
- substandard product quality, which can result in higher warranty, product liability and product recall costs,
- delays in development of quality new products,
- changes in laws and regulations, including changes in tax rates, accounting standards, environmental laws and occupational health and safety laws, and
- changes in the availability and costs of labor.

The effects of Sunbeam's prior management's outsourcing of critical operating tasks and sales policies may continue to cause Sunbeam substantial difficulty

Sunbeam's prior management substantially reduced the number of its employees and hired third parties to perform many of its critical operating tasks, including handling of accounts payable, computer support, customer service and collection of accounts receivable. Sunbeam is currently evaluating the effectiveness of outsourcing these activities and are hiring personnel to perform some of these tasks in-house once again. Sunbeam may experience disruption in critical services and other difficulties while it implements necessary staff increases and changes in prior management's outsourcing policy.

Sunbeam's prior management increased sales of products in some prior periods by providing retailers with substantial price discounts or attractive payment terms to induce them to purchase more products than they needed at the time. Sunbeam believes this caused many of its customers to build up inventory in its products which reduced Sunbeam's sales and profitability through 1998. Although Sunbeam believes that the excess inventory maintained by retailers has been eliminated, Sunbeam may not have correctly evaluated the amount of or the impact of such inventory practices, which may continue to negatively impact its sales and profitability.

Weather conditions can hurt sales of some of Sunbeam's products

Weather conditions may negatively impact sales of some of Sunbeam's products. For instance, Sunbeam may not sell as many portable generators as anticipated if there are fewer natural disasters such as hurricanes and ice storms; mild winter weather may negatively impact sales of electric blankets, some health products and smoke detectors; and the late arrival of summer weather may negatively impact sales of outdoor camping equipment and grills.

Sunbeam remains vulnerable to year 2000 compliance problems in its systems and those of its suppliers and customers which could potentially disrupt Sunbeam's operations and may require greater than anticipated remedial expenses

Sunbeam is preparing for the impact of the Year 2000 on its operations. Year 2000 issues could include potential problems in Sunbeam's information technology and other systems that it use in its operations. Year 2000 system failures could affect routine but critical operations such as:

- forecasting,
- purchasing,
- production,
- order processing,
- inventory control,
- shipping, and
- billing and collections.

In addition, system failures could affect security, payroll operations and employee safety. Third parties who fail to adequately address their own Year 2000 issues could also expose Sunbeam to potential risks.

Systems and applications that Sunbeam had identified as not Year 2000 ready and which are critical to its operations include:

- financial software systems, which process:
 - order entry,
 - purchasing,
 - production management,
 - general ledger,
 - accounts receivable,
 - accounts payable functions, and
 - payroll applications, and
- critical applications in Sunbeam's manufacturing and distribution facilities, such as warehouse management applications.

Sunbeam has largely implemented the corrective work described above and expects to complete final testing and implementation of such systems in the fourth quarter of 1999.

Sunbeam's failure to timely complete its Year 2000 compliance work could have a material adverse impact on Sunbeam. In addition, the failure of its third-party suppliers and customers to become Year 2000 compliant could have a material adverse impact on Sunbeam.

At this time, Sunbeam believes that the most likely "worst-case" scenario relating to Year 2000 involves potential disruptions in areas in which its operations must rely on third parties, such as suppliers, whose systems may not work properly after January 1, 2000. While these system failures could significantly affect some of Sunbeam's important operations, currently it cannot estimate either the likelihood or the potential cost of such failures. If Sunbeam does not develop appropriate contingency plans before January 1, 2000, the impact on its operations could be material.

Sunbeam currently estimates that the total cost of addressing and remedying Year 2000 issues and enhancing its operating systems is about $64 million. Through the first nine months of 1999, including costs incurred in 1998, Sunbeam spent about $60 million to address Year 2000 issues, with approximately $41 million of these expenditures occurring in the first nine months of 1999. As Sunbeam completes its assessment of the Year 2000 issues, it may determine that the actual expenditures it must incur may be materially higher than its current estimates. The bank credit facility does not permit Sunbeam to spend more than $50 million on Year 2000 testing and remediation during 1999.

See "MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS—Year 2000 Readiness Disclosure" beginning on page 113 for more details of its Year 2000 assessment and compliance efforts.

Sunbeam's debt covenants currently do not allow Sunbeam to pay cash dividends on Sunbeam common stock

The bank credit facility prohibits Sunbeam from paying cash dividends on Sunbeam common stock. Accordingly, Sunbeam cannot assure you that Sunbeam will be able to pay dividends on Sunbeam common stock. In any event, Sunbeam currently does not intend to pay dividends on Sunbeam common stock. Sunbeam discontinued paying dividends beginning in the second quarter of 1998. See the "SUMMARY—Comparative Per Share Data" section beginning on page 15 for information concerning the history of Sunbeam's dividend payments.

Negative developments since March 1998 have caused Sunbeam's common stock price to drop significantly, and the risks described in the "RISK FACTORS" section of this document may cause further declines in the price of Sunbeam common stock

The price of Sunbeam common stock has dropped significantly since March 1998. Sunbeam believes this was the result of many of the negative developments described in the "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM" section beginning on page 26. On March 18, 1998, the last trading day prior to former management's announcement of lower than expected net sales for the first quarter of 1998, the last reported sale price of Sunbeam common stock was $50.625 per share. On December 3, 1999, the last reported sale price of Sunbeam common stock was $4.750 per share. Sunbeam cannot assure you that the market price of Sunbeam common stock will not experience further declines as a result of the risks described in this "RISK FACTORS" section or otherwise. See the "SUMMARY—Market Prices and Dividends" section beginning on page 16 for details of Sunbeam common stock's recent trading prices.

Because many members of Sunbeam's current management and board of directors recently joined Sunbeam and do not have a long history of managing Sunbeam, there can be no assurance that Sunbeam's current management and board of directors will be able to successfully manage Sunbeam

Sunbeam's board of directors replaced several members of Sunbeam's management in June of 1998, including Albert J. Dunlap, Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Since that time, six new directors have been appointed or elected to the Sunbeam board. Although Sunbeam's current management has significant experience in the consumer products industry, including working at Coleman, most of Sunbeam's current management and many members of its board of directors had no direct exposure to Sunbeam's operations prior to June 1998. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that Sunbeam's current management and board of directors will be able to successfully manage Sunbeam.

Sunbeam relies on its key personnel and the loss of one or more of those personnel could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Sunbeam's operations and prospects depend in large part on the performance of its senior management team. There can be no assurance that Sunbeam would be able to find qualified replacements for any of these individuals if their services were no longer available. The loss of the services of one or more members of Sunbeam's senior management team could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's business, financial condition and results of operations. For further information regarding Sunbeam's senior management team, see the discussion below under the caption "MANAGEMENT" beginning on page 133.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM

The 1998 Acquisitions

On March 2, 1998, in addition to announcing its agreement to acquire Coleman, Sunbeam announced that it had entered into separate agreements to acquire Signature Brands and First Alert, companies not affiliated with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes.

In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired about 81% of the then outstanding shares of Coleman common stock from Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes. This represented MacAndrews & Forbes' entire interest in Coleman. In exchange, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary received about 14% of the currently outstanding shares of Sunbeam common stock and about $160 million in cash. Sunbeam also assumed about $1,016 million of debt, including $497 million of indebtedness of Coleman. Immediately after the M&F Transaction, as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options, Sunbeam's ownership of Coleman decreased to about 79% of the outstanding shares of Coleman common stock.

At the same time Sunbeam agreed to acquire the Coleman shares from the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, Sunbeam also agreed to acquire the remaining shares of Coleman common stock in the merger and the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary voted its shares to approve the merger. Under the February 1998 merger agreement, you will receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed. In addition, unless you exercise and perfect your Delaware law appraisal rights, you will receive warrants each entitling you to purchase one Sunbeam share at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003, under a court-approved settlement of litigation relating to the merger. Under the terms of the settlement, you will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed, assuming the number of outstanding shares of Coleman common stock does not increase prior to the completion of the merger as a result of further exercises of Coleman employee stock options. In the aggregate, the Coleman minority stockholders will receive about 6.7 million shares of Sunbeam common stock, about $87 million in cash, including cash outs of Coleman's remaining employee stock options, and warrants to purchase about 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock (less the warrants awarded by the court to plaintiffs' counsel as their fee), assuming no Coleman stockholders exercise their Delaware law appraisal rights. See "Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction" for information regarding the settlement of legal claims of a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes relating to the M&F Transaction. See "LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS" for information regarding the settlement of legal claims of Coleman stockholders relating to the merger.

On April 3, 1998, Sunbeam acquired more than 90% of the stock of each of Signature Brands and First Alert in cash tender offers. On April 6, 1998, Sunbeam acquired the remaining shares of each of Signature Brands and First Alert in merger transactions. Signature Brands is a leading manufacturer of a comprehensive line of consumer and professional products, including coffee makers marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand name and consumer health products marketed under the Health-o-Meter®, Counselor® and Borg® brand names. Signature Brands had revenues of about $279 million in 1997. First Alert is the worldwide leader in residential fire safety equipment, including smoke and carbon monoxide detectors marketed under the First Alert® brand name. First Alert had revenues of about $187 million in 1997. Sunbeam paid about $255 million in cash, including the paying down of debt, to acquire Signature Brands. Sunbeam paid about $133 million in cash and assumed about $49 million in debt—a total consideration of about $182 million—to acquire First Alert.

On July 12, 1999, one of Sunbeam's wholly owned subsidiaries acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock for an aggregate purchase price of approximately $31 million. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock already indirectly owned by Sunbeam, enable Sunbeam to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock. Coleman created these shares and Sunbeam acquired them in order to enable Sunbeam and Coleman to file consolidated federal income tax returns and, in certain jurisdictions, consolidated state income tax returns, prior to the completion of the merger. In connection with the acquisition of these shares,

Sunbeam entered into a tax sharing agreement with Coleman pursuant to which Coleman will pay to Sunbeam amounts equal to the federal and state income taxes that would have been payable by Coleman had Coleman not been included in the consolidated income tax return of Sunbeam. The terms of the voting preferred stock, the per share issue price and the terms of the tax sharing agreement were approved on Coleman's behalf by Coleman's then sole independent director. The net proceeds from the sale of the preferred stock to Sunbeam were used by Coleman to make a partial repayment on Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam.

On November 9, 1999, Sunbeam announced its intention to divest Coleman's Eastpak business, as well as certain non-essential assets. Sunbeam anticipates that these asset sales will produce net proceeds of approximately $200 million, which will be used primarily to pay down its bank debt.

Issuance of Debentures and Bank Credit Facility

In order to finance the 1998 acquisitions and to refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of Sunbeam, Coleman and its parent corporations, CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide, First Alert and Signature Brands, Sunbeam completed an offering of an aggregate principal amount at maturity of $2,014 million of its Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures Due 2018 on March 25, 1998, for net proceeds of about $730 million, and borrowed about $1,325 million under a new bank credit facility.

The debentures are due March 25, 2018, are subject to earlier repurchase at the option of the holders on specified dates beginning in 2003 and are convertible into up to 13,242,050 shares of Sunbeam common stock, subject to adjustment in certain events.

The bank credit facility, as amended, allows Sunbeam to borrow up to $1,700 million under:

- a $400 million revolving credit facility maturing on March 30, 2005, of which $52.5 million may be used only to complete the merger,
- up to $800 million in term loans maturing on March 30, 2005, of which $35 million may be used only to complete the merger, and
- a $500 million term loan maturing on September 30, 2006, of which $5.0 million has already been repaid through September 30, 1999.

Unless Sunbeam further amends its bank credit facility or refinances its bank debt by April 10, 2000, Sunbeam's lenders will be able to accelerate the maturities listed above at any time after April 10, 2000.

Until March 31, 2000, Sunbeam has agreed to limit the total amount of revolving loans (other than those used to fund the merger) at the end of each month as follows:

Month	Amount
April, 1999	$290,400,000
May, 1999	$303,700,000
June, 1999	$279,100,000
July, 1999	$281,400,000
August, 1999	$264,200,000
September, 1999	$257,300,000
October, 1999	$277,000,000
November, 1999	$224,200,000
December, 1999	$185,200,000
January, 2000	$201,500,000
February, 2000	$217,800,000
March, 2000	$234,100,000

Borrowings under the bank credit facility are secured by, among other things, substantially all of Sunbeam's assets, including a pledge of Sunbeam's stock in Coleman, First Alert, Signature Brands and its other material subsidiaries. See "SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION—Security and Guarantees."

021164

CP 008137
CONFIDENTIAL

This credit facility accrues interest, at Sunbeam's option:

- at LIBOR, or
- at the base rate of the administrative agent which is generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%, in each case, plus an interest rate margin which varies depending on the occurrence of specified events. The interest rate margin is currently 4.00% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans, and is subject to potential decreases in the future, including a decrease to 3.00% for LIBOR loans and 1.75% for base rate loans upon consummation of the merger and the effectiveness of the pledge of substantially all of Coleman's and its domestic subsidiaries' assets to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility. See "Covenants Under Bank Credit Facility."

Under an April 15, 1999 amendment to the bank credit facility, Sunbeam agreed to pay the bank lenders a loan commitment fee of between 0.25% to 1.00% of the commitments under the bank credit facility as of April 15, 1999. The percentage used to calculate the fee will be determined by reference to the bank lenders' aggregate commitments and loan exposure under the bank credit facility as they may be reduced on or before September 30, 2000. The fee is payable on the earlier of September 30, 2000 and the date the commitments are terminated and the loans and other amounts payable under the bank credit facility are repaid.

At September 30, 1999, Sunbeam owed about $1,500 million under the bank credit facility (including $200 million of outstanding revolving credit facility borrowings) and had about $200 million available for borrowing. See "SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION."

Covenants Under Bank Credit Facility

Sunbeam's bank credit facility contains a number of covenants, including covenants requiring Sunbeam to meet various financial tests and ratios. As a result of Sunbeam's operating losses, among other things, at June 30, 1998 Sunbeam was not in compliance with these financial covenants of the bank credit facility. As of June 30, 1998, Sunbeam entered into an agreement with its bank lenders which waived Sunbeam's compliance with these covenants and terms through December 31, 1998. On October 19, 1998, Sunbeam's bank lenders agreed to extend this waiver through April 10, 1999, then until April 15, 1999. In April 1999, the waiver was extended to April 10, 2000, and the bank credit facility was amended to, among other things:

- require Sunbeam to meet new financial tests and ratios,
- decrease the interest rate margins to 3.75% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans,
- further reduce the interest rate margins to 3.25% for LIBOR loans and 2.00% for base rate loans as a result of Sunbeam's satisfaction on May 14, 1999 of the agreed upon conditions to this reduction. However, such margins increased to 3.50% for LIBOR loans and 2.25% for base rate loans on September 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date and increased to 4.00% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans on October 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date,
- defer until April 10, 2000 principal payments of $69.3 million otherwise due September 30, 1999 and principal payments of $69.3 million otherwise due March 31, 2000, as a result of Sunbeam's satisfaction on May 14, 1999 of the agreed upon conditions to this deferral,
- provide that the following events relating to the merger will be events of default under the bank credit facility:
 - if Sunbeam fails to have the SEC declare this document effective by October 30, 1999 (which was subsequently amended to January 10, 2000),
 - if Sunbeam fails to complete the merger within 25 business days after this document is declared effective by the SEC, or

- if Sunbeam has to pay more than $87.5 million in cash to complete the merger, including any payments on account of the exercise of appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses,
- require Sunbeam and Coleman to amend Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam and to have Coleman secure the note, which is pledged by Sunbeam to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility, with substantially all of Coleman's assets other than real property.
- impose restrictions on the total amount of revolving loans (other than those used to fund the merger) permitted to be outstanding at the end of each month under the bank credit facility,
- require Sunbeam to maintain a concentration cash management system and to repay to the banks (subject to reborrowing) revolving loans to the extent that cash on hand in Sunbeam's concentration accounts on any business day exceeds $15 million,
- require Sunbeam to prepay term loans under the bank credit facility on December 31, 1999 to the extent that cash on hand in Sunbeam's concentration accounts plus the total amount of unused revolving loan commitments on this date exceeds $125 million, but Sunbeam is not required to prepay more than $69.3 million in total as a result of this provision,
- require Sunbeam to reserve $52.5 million of availability under the revolving credit facility for use solely to pay the required cash portion of the merger consideration,
- limit the amount that Sunbeam may spend on Year 2000 testing and remediation to $50 million in total during the fiscal year ending December 31, 1999,
- require Sunbeam to obtain the bank lenders' consent to any litigation settlement concerning the restatement of Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 fiscal year and first quarter 1998 financial statements if such settlements require the payment of money, not paid by insurance carriers or other third parties, of more than $1 million in total,
- impose new informational reporting requirements, and
- provide Sunbeam with a $40 million foreign currency revolving loan subfacility.

See "SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION."

Delayed Filing of Registration Statement

On March 25, 1998, Sunbeam entered into a registration rights agreement with Morgan Stanley relating to the original issuance of the debentures. The registration rights agreement required Sunbeam to file a registration statement with the SEC by June 23, 1998 to register the debentures and the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon conversion of the debentures for resale by the holders. However, Sunbeam did not file that registration statement until February 4, 1999 and the SEC did not declare the registration statement effective until November 8, 1999. The delay resulted from Sunbeam's need to review and restate its historical financial statements following the refusal of its former independent auditors, Arthur Andersen, to consent to the inclusion in that registration statement of their opinion on Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements.

Sunbeam's failure to file that registration statement by June 23, 1998 did not constitute a default under the debentures. However, from June 23, 1998 until the day on which that registration statement was declared effective, cash liquidated damages payable to the holders of the debentures accrued:

- on a daily basis at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days, and
- on a daily basis at a rate per annum equal to 0.50% thereafter, multiplied, in each case, by the sum of the issue price of the debentures plus the accrued original issue discount on the debentures on each day for which damages are calculated. Sunbeam has made total payments for liquidated damages since June 23, 1998 of $4.5 million, of which $1.5 million related to damages for the period through December 31, 1998. A final payment of approximately $0.5 million, representing liquidated damages from September 26, 1999 until the registration statement was declared effective, will be payable on March 25, 2000.

Press Releases Relating to Sunbeam's First Quarter 1998 Results

On March 19, 1998, Sunbeam's prior management issued a press release stating that Sunbeam's net sales for the first quarter of 1998 might be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but that net sales for the quarter were expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. On April 3, 1998, Sunbeam's prior management issued a press release announcing that net sales for the first quarter of 1998 were expected to be about 5% lower than those achieved in the first quarter of 1997 and, due to the lower sales and significant one-time charges, a loss was expected for the quarter.

On May 11, 1998, Sunbeam's prior management announced 1998 first quarter results and made forecasts for the remainder of 1998 and beyond. They reported net sales of $244.3 million for the quarter, as compared to $253.4 million in the first quarter of 1997. Before one-time charges of $36.8 million for early retirement of debt and compensation expense relating to new employment agreements with three former Sunbeam executives, they reported a net loss from continuing operations of $7.8 million in the first quarter of 1998 versus net income from continuing operations of $20.6 million in the first quarter of 1997. After one-time charges of $0.43 per share, Sunbeam lost $0.52 per share in the 1998 quarter, compared with earnings per share of $0.08 in the comparable 1997 period. Sunbeam's prior management also stated that it expected earnings per share in the range of $1.00 for 1998 and $2.00 for 1999. On June 15, 1998, Sunbeam's new management announced that these previously announced forecasts should not be relied upon.

Following each of these press releases, the market price of Sunbeam common stock fell substantially. On October 20, 1998, Sunbeam issued a press release restating operating results for fiscal years 1996 and 1997, as well as the first quarter of fiscal 1998. See "—Restatement of Financial Results," "—Changes in Sunbeam's Management and Board" and "RISK FACTORS."

Changes in Sunbeam's Management and Board

On June 15, 1998, Sunbeam's board of directors removed Albert J. Dunlap as Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Three days later, Sunbeam's board of directors removed Russell A. Kersh as Sunbeam's Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer. The Sunbeam board took these steps because Sunbeam's outside directors had lost confidence in Mr. Dunlap's leadership. On June 15, 1998, the Sunbeam board elected Peter A. Langerman as non-executive Chairman of the board and Jerry W. Levin as Sunbeam's new Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Langerman, an outside director of Sunbeam since 1990, is President and Chief Executive Officer of Franklin Mutual Advisers, Inc., the investment adviser to Franklin Mutual Series Fund, which owns about 17% of Sunbeam's common stock. Mr. Levin is an Executive Vice President of MacAndrews & Forbes. A subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes owns about 14% of Sunbeam's common stock and a warrant which, if exercised in full, would increase its ownership to about 29% of Sunbeam's outstanding common stock. Mr. Levin was Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Coleman at the time of the M&F Transaction and previously was the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Revlon, Inc., an affiliate of MacAndrews & Forbes.

On June 16, 1998, Paul E. Shapiro was appointed as Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer. Mr. Shapiro also serves as a director and Executive Vice President of Coleman. Mr. Shapiro was the Executive Vice President and General Counsel of Coleman at the time of the M&F Transaction. Bobby G. Jenkins was appointed as Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer on June 15, 1998. Mr. Jenkins also serves as Executive Vice President of Coleman. On April 24, 1998, Karen K. Clark was appointed as Sunbeam's Vice President, Operations Finance. Since April 1999, Ms. Clark has served as Sunbeam's Senior Vice President, Finance. Ms. Clark also serves as Senior Vice President, Finance of Coleman. Jack D. Hall joined Sunbeam on October 1, 1998 as President, International. Steven R. Isko was appointed as Sunbeam's Senior Vice President and General Counsel on June 1, 1999. Mr. Isko also serves as Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Coleman.

In June 1998, Mr. Levin, Howard Gittis of MacAndrews & Forbes, and Lawrence Sondike of Franklin Mutual Advisers, Inc. were elected to the Sunbeam board. William T. Rutter resigned from the Sunbeam board effective July 8, 1998, and Faith Whittlesey was elected to fill the vacancy on the Sunbeam board of directors' audit committee resulting from Mr. Rutter's resignation. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh resigned from the Sunbeam board of directors effective August 5, 1998. In January 1999, Mr. Sondike resigned from the Sunbeam board of directors; in February 1999, John H. Klein, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Bi-Logix, Inc., was elected to the Sunbeam board of directors; and on June 29, 1999, Philip E. Beekman, President of Owl Hollow Enterprises, Inc., was elected to the Sunbeam board of directors at its annual stockholders meeting.

In March 1999, Mr. Levin became Chairman of the Sunbeam board of directors, succeeding Mr. Langerman, who remains a director of Sunbeam.

Restatement of Financial Results; Change of Auditors

On June 25, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its former independent auditors, Arthur Andersen, would not consent to the inclusion of their opinion on Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements in a registration statement Sunbeam was then planning to file with the SEC. On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the audit committee of its board of directors would review the accuracy of Sunbeam's prior financial statements and, therefore, those financial statements should not be relied upon. Sunbeam also announced that Deloitte & Touche LLP had been retained to assist the audit committee and Arthur Andersen in this review. On August 6, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the audit committee had determined that Sunbeam would be required to restate its financial statements for 1997, the first quarter of 1998, and possibly 1996, and that the adjustments, while not then quantified, would be material.

On October 20, 1998, Sunbeam announced the restatement of its financial results for a six-quarter period from the fourth quarter of 1996 through the first quarter of 1998. Sunbeam had to restate these financial results because its previously issued financial statements generally overstated losses for 1996, overstated profits for 1997 and understated losses for the first quarter of 1998. The audit committee concluded that Sunbeam had incorrectly recognized revenue during these periods from "bill and hold" and guaranteed sales transactions. The audit committee also concluded that some costs and allowances for sales returns, co-op advertising, customer deductions and reserves for product liability and warranty expense were not accrued or were incorrectly recorded. Finally, the audit committee concluded that various costs were incorrectly included in and charged to restructuring, asset impairment and other costs.

On November 20, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its audit committee had recommended, and its board of directors had approved, the appointment of Deloitte & Touche to replace Arthur Andersen as Sunbeam's independent auditors for fiscal year 1998. Arthur Andersen will continue to provide Sunbeam with limited professional services. For further information regarding Sunbeam's independent auditors, see "CHANGES IN AND DISAGREEMENTS WITH ACCOUNTANTS ON ACCOUNTING AND FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE."

Reporting of Results for First Nine Months of 1999 and Fiscal Year 1998

On November 9, 1999, Sunbeam reported that for the first nine months of 1999 Sunbeam had net sales of $1,786.4 million and a net loss of $155.0 million, or a loss per diluted share of $1.54. Results for the nine months ended September 30, 1998 include Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert from their respective acquisition dates. After adjusting 1998 sales to include sales of the acquired companies for the periods from the beginning of 1998 through the respective dates of acquisition, 1999 net sales increased approximately $162 million or approximately 10% over 1998 combined historical net sales of $1,624.0 million. Sunbeam also announced that net cash used in operations was $73.2 million for the first nine months of 1999 as compared to $224.7 million during the same period in the prior year.

On April 21, 1999, Sunbeam reported that, for the full year 1998, Sunbeam had net sales of $1,800 million and a net loss of $898 million, or a loss of $9.25 per diluted share. Excluding sales of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands, comparable sales declined 23% to $828 million in 1998 from about $1,100 million in 1997. Sunbeam also announced net cash provided by operations of about $30 million for the fourth quarter of 1998, compared with net cash used in operations of about $220 million during the first three quarters of 1998.

Litigation Involving Sunbeam

Since prior management's issuance of the April 3, 1998 press release concerning Sunbeam's 1998 first quarter results, many lawsuits alleging legal claims arising under federal and state securities and other laws have been filed against Sunbeam, some of Sunbeam's former directors and officers, some of Sunbeam's current directors and Arthur Andersen. Sunbeam is currently defending these lawsuits in a number of courts. Many of these suits relate to Sunbeam's financial performance from the second quarter of 1997 through the second quarter of 1998. Many plaintiffs are claiming that Sunbeam's prior management misrepresented and omitted material information in its public filings and in its statements concerning Sunbeam's historical and expected future results of operations. In many of these cases, the plaintiffs claim that the alleged actions were intended to artificially inflate the market price of Sunbeam's common stock. Sunbeam's insurers have also attempted to have Sunbeam's directors' and officers' liability policies voided or canceled or have advised Sunbeam that they do not intend to provide coverage with respect to these lawsuits. Sunbeam is unable to predict the outcome of these lawsuits or its potential exposure to damages. However, if Sunbeam were to lose these lawsuits, the judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial condition, results of operations and cash flow. For a more detailed description of these and other lawsuits, see "BUSINESS OF SUNBEAM—Litigation and Other Contingent Liabilities."

SEC Investigation

The staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised Sunbeam in a letter dated June 17, 1998 that it was conducting an informal inquiry into Sunbeam's accounting policies and procedures. On July 2, 1998, the SEC advised Sunbeam that it had issued a formal order of investigation. The order indicates that the SEC is investigating whether Sunbeam, certain of its current or former officers, directors, employees and certain other persons and entities violated the federal securities laws and regulations by:

- filing or causing to be filed inaccurate reports with the SEC,
- failing to maintain accurate books, records and accounts,
- failing to create or maintain adequate internal accounting controls, or circumventing such controls,
- knowingly or recklessly making false or misleading statements in reports filed with the SEC or in other public statements, or
- making false or misleading statements to an accountant in connection with audits or examinations of Sunbeam's financial statements or reports filed with the SEC.

At the time the formal order of investigation was issued, the SEC also subpoenaed various documents from Sunbeam. On November 4, 1998, Sunbeam received another SEC subpoena requiring the production of additional documents. Sunbeam has cooperated with the SEC and has furnished the SEC with documents they requested. Sunbeam has, however, declined to provide the SEC with material Sunbeam believes is subject to the attorney-client privilege and the work product immunity. Sunbeam cannot predict how long the SEC investigation will continue or its outcome.

Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction

On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam announced that it had entered into an agreement to settle threatened claims of the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary that sold Sunbeam a controlling interest in Coleman in the M&F Transaction in March 1998, in exchange for consideration which included about 14 million shares of Sunbeam common stock. These shares had a market value of about $580 million when the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary agreed to the M&F Transaction, but their market value was less than $100 million at the time of the settlement.

The claims of the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary were substantially the same as the claims made in a number of the stockholder lawsuits filed in the second and third quarters of 1998 alleging that Sunbeam, in 1997 and the first quarter of 1998 under its prior management, made material misstatements and omissions of fact that artificially inflated the market price of Sunbeam common stock. The MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary also alleged that Sunbeam had breached representations made in the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction. The settlement:

- released Sunbeam from threatened claims arising out of Sunbeam's acquisition of the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary's controlling interest in Coleman,
- enabled Sunbeam to retain the services of executive personnel affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes who had been managing Sunbeam since mid-June of 1998, including Jerry W. Levin, Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Paul E. Shapiro, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer, and Bobby G. Jenkins, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, and
- provided for continuing management assistance and other support by MacAndrews & Forbes to Sunbeam at its request.

In exchange, Sunbeam issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase 23 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Sunbeam has agreed that the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary can require Sunbeam to register under federal and applicable state securities laws the warrant and the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant. See "BUSINESS—Litigation and Other Contingent Liabilities."

The terms of the settlement and warrant were negotiated and approved on Sunbeam's behalf by a special committee of four of Sunbeam's outside directors, none of whom has any affiliation with MacAndrews & Forbes. The members of the special committee were Howard Kristol (Chairman), Charles Elson, Peter Langerman and Faith Whittlesey. They were assisted by independent financial advisors and legal counsel.

For their services as members of the special committee in connection with the settlement, Mr. Kristol received additional compensation of $50,000 and Messrs. Elson and Langerman and Mrs. Whittlesey each received additional compensation of $35,000. Sunbeam also agreed to indemnify each of the members of the special committee to the fullest extent allowed by applicable law and Sunbeam's certificate of incorporation and by-laws for any liabilities arising out of their services on the special committee.

The settlement normally would have required approval by Sunbeam's stockholders under the rules of the NYSE because of the issuance of the warrant as part of the settlement. However, Sunbeam's audit committee determined that the delay that would be necessary to secure stockholder approval prior to issuing the warrant would:

- be lengthy due to the SEC's ongoing investigation of Sunbeam's accounting practices and policies and the need to complete the restatement of Sunbeam's historical financial statements,
- inhibit Sunbeam's ability to reach a settlement with the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary and to retain and hire essential senior management personnel, and
- seriously jeopardize Sunbeam's financial viability.

Based on these determinations, Sunbeam's audit committee, relying on an exception provided in the applicable NYSE stockholder approval policy, expressly approved Sunbeam's omission to seek stockholder approval. The NYSE accepted Sunbeam's application of the exception.

In connection with the settlement agreement, Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins each signed three-year employment agreements with Sunbeam. See "MANAGEMENT."

Options Exchange

In August 1998, Sunbeam approved an exchange plan for outstanding options held by its employees to purchase shares of Sunbeam common stock. The exchange plan, which has been completed, provided for the outstanding options with exercise prices in excess of $10.00 per share to be valued by reference to the generally accepted Black-Scholes option pricing model, and permitted Sunbeam employees to exchange old options for new options with an exercise price of $7.00 per share having a value equivalent to the value of the old options. See Note 9 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements.

New York Stock Exchange Listing

In May 1998, the NYSE advised Sunbeam that it did not meet the NYSE's continuing listing standards because Sunbeam did not have tangible net assets of at least $12 million at December 31, 1997 and average annual net income of at least $600,000 for 1995, 1996 and 1997. Sunbeam representatives met with NYSE officials, and in March 1999, the NYSE informed Sunbeam that Sunbeam common stock would not be delisted at that time, although the NYSE would continue to monitor Sunbeam's financial condition and operating performance. On August 5, 1999, the NYSE advised Sunbeam that the NYSE had revised its continuing listing standards, and that Sunbeam is in compliance with the revised standards.

Matters Involving Former Management

In early August 1998, Sunbeam entered into a six-month agreement with Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh in which the parties agreed not to assert claims against each other and to exchange information relating to the pending stockholder lawsuits. Sunbeam also agreed to pay a portion of the accrued vacation and employment benefits of Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh.

After the agreement expired, by letters dated February 9, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh submitted demands for arbitration to the American Arbitration Association alleging that Sunbeam terminated their employment without cause. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh are seeking lump sum payments of about $5,250,000 and $2,296,875, respectively. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh also are seeking:

- amounts for accrued but unused vacation,
- amounts in respect of certain benefit plans,
- a ruling that their options to acquire shares of Sunbeam common stock are fully vested and that they will receive the economic equivalent of their participation in Sunbeam's program for repricing of options, and
- in the case of Mr. Kersh, more than $3 million, including tax gross-ups, with respect to his restricted stock.

Sunbeam is vigorously contesting the claims of Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. To date, Sunbeam has not made any severance payments to either of Messrs. Dunlap or Kersh.

On March 23, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed a complaint in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware seeking an order directing Sunbeam to advance attorneys' fees and other expenses incurred in connection with the defense of the stockholder lawsuits and the SEC investigation. A trial of this summary proceeding was held on June 15 and 16, 1999, and the court ordered Sunbeam to advance Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh about $1.4 million for their expenses incurred through the date of their complaint and to advance expenses reasonably incurred by them in the future. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh have agreed to repay to Sunbeam all amounts reimbursed or advanced if it is ultimately determined that they are not entitled to indemnification under Delaware law.

Acquisition of Coleman Preferred Stock

On July 12, 1999, one of Sunbeam's wholly owned subsidiaries acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock, for an aggregate purchase price of approximately $31 million. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock already indirectly owned by Sunbeam, enable Sunbeam to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock. Coleman created these shares and Sunbeam acquired them in order to enable Sunbeam and Coleman to file consolidated federal income tax returns and, in certain jurisdictions, consolidated state income tax returns, prior to the completion of the merger. In connection with the acquisition of these shares, Sunbeam entered into a tax sharing agreement with Coleman pursuant to which Coleman will pay to Sunbeam amounts equal to the federal and state income taxes that would have been payable by Coleman had

Coleman not been included in the consolidated income tax return of Sunbeam. The terms of the voting preferred stock, the per share issue price and the terms of the tax sharing agreement were approved on Coleman's behalf by Coleman's then sole independent director. The net proceeds from the sale of the preferred stock to Sunbeam were used by Coleman to make a partial repayment on Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam.

For information concerning the terms of the new preferred stock issued to Sunbeam, see "DESCRIPTION OF COLEMAN CAPITAL STOCK—Coleman Preferred Stock."

Proposed Sale of Coleman Eastpak Business

On November 9, 1999, Sunbeam announced its intention to divest Coleman's Eastpak business, as well as certain non-essential assets. Sunbeam anticipates that these asset sales will produce net proceeds of approximately $200 million, which will be used primarily to pay down its bank debt.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING COLEMAN

In April 1999, the NYSE advised Coleman that it did not meet the NYSE's continuing listing standards because Coleman did not have tangible net assets of at least $12 million at September 30, 1998 and average annual net income of at least $600,000 for fiscal years 1997, 1996 and 1995. At that time, Coleman requested the NYSE to continue to list the Coleman common stock until completion of the merger. The NYSE subsequently advised Coleman that Coleman also failed to satisfy certain non-financial continuing listing standards. On August 5, 1999, the NYSE advised Coleman that the NYSE had revised its continuing listing standards, and that Coleman is in compliance with the revised financial standards. Coleman and the NYSE have agreed upon a program whereby Coleman will correct the deficiencies in its non-financial continuing listing standards by the end of 1999. Coleman is currently complying with such program. If Coleman were to be delisted from the NYSE, it could adversely affect the market price of Coleman's common stock and Coleman's ability to sell its capital stock to third parties. However, Sunbeam's bank credit facility currently restricts Coleman from taking such action.

Following the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam caused Coleman to repay substantially all of its outstanding indebtedness (which had been assumed by Sunbeam in the M&F Transaction) with the proceeds of borrowings from Sunbeam. Since the completion of the M&F Transaction, Coleman has borrowed additional funds from Sunbeam. During 1998 and through April 15, 1999, these borrowings were evidenced by an unsecured subordinated demand note payable by Coleman to Sunbeam. This note was pledged by Sunbeam to its lenders as security for Sunbeam's obligations under its bank credit facility. In April 1999, Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam was revised and secured by a pledge of Coleman assets in favor of Sunbeam's lending banks. The revised Coleman note had an unpaid principal amount of $303.2 million on September 30, 1999. See "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Financial Transactions Between Coleman and Sunbeam."

As described above, on July 12, 1999, Coleman issued 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock to one of Sunbeam's wholly owned subsidiaries. See "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Acquisition of Coleman Preferred Stock."

SPECIAL FACTORS

Background of the Merger

In the spring of 1997, as part of a long-term strategic planning process, Sunbeam's prior management began exploring a possible sale of Sunbeam or the making of one or more major acquisitions. On April 22, 1997, representatives of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, Sunbeam's financial advisor, met with Albert J. Dunlap, Sunbeam's then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, and Russell A. Kersh, Sunbeam's then Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, to discuss, among other things, the retention of Morgan Stanley as Sunbeam's financial advisor in connection with a possible sale of Sunbeam or one or more major acquisitions by Sunbeam.

On September 11, 1997, Morgan Stanley was formally retained by Sunbeam to assist in connection with a possible sale of Sunbeam, one or more possible acquisitions by Sunbeam and the consideration of other strategic alternatives. Thereafter, representatives of Morgan Stanley contacted five companies in the branded consumer products business to determine whether any of these companies would be interested in exploring a possible acquisition of Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley contacted only those companies which it believed were large enough to finance an acquisition of Sunbeam and to successfully integrate Sunbeam's operations. In addition, Morgan Stanley selected only companies with product lines and operations which it believed were compatible with or complementary to those of Sunbeam. One of the companies contacted was MacAndrews & Forbes, which Morgan Stanley from time to time advises on a variety of business and financial matters. None of the companies contacted by Morgan Stanley expressed interest in acquiring Sunbeam at a price which would have constituted a premium over the then current market price of the Sunbeam common stock. Based on Morgan Stanley's initial contacts with potential acquirors of Sunbeam, Sunbeam's then senior management concluded that it was unlikely that any major consumer products company would be likely to pursue an acquisition of Sunbeam at a price or on terms that would be acceptable to Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley then explored the impact on Sunbeam of various other strategic alternatives, including a sale of one or more of Sunbeam's businesses, a spin-off of one or more of Sunbeam's subsidiaries or a recapitalization of Sunbeam. These strategic alternatives were rejected by Sunbeam's former management because of former management's stated belief that one or more acquisitions by Sunbeam would have a more positive impact on stockholder value. Former management then directed Morgan Stanley to shift its focus to one or more possible major acquisitions.

On December 12, 1997, Mr. Kersh, David C. Fannin, Sunbeam's then Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, and Peter A. Langerman, a director of Sunbeam, met with Jerry W. Levin, then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Coleman, Paul E. Shapiro, then Coleman's Executive Vice President and General Counsel, and Joseph P. Page, then Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Coleman, and discussed Coleman's businesses and the potential cost savings, efficiencies and other benefits that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. The December 12 meeting was initiated by Morgan Stanley on Sunbeam's behalf. Notwithstanding MacAndrews & Forbes' previous rejection of Sunbeam's overtures regarding an acquisition of Sunbeam by MacAndrews & Forbes, both Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam believed that the complementary nature of the product offerings of Sunbeam and Coleman, the asset base of Coleman, including its ownership of various brand names which enjoy substantial consumer recognition, the potential revenue and operational benefits associated with a Sunbeam/Coleman combination and the then current trading prices of Coleman's common stock all favored an acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam.

At that time, MacAndrews & Forbes indirectly owned about 81% of the Coleman common stock through various subsidiaries, including Coleman (Parent) Holdings. Other stockholders then owned about 19% of the outstanding Coleman common stock. For further information regarding the organizational structure of MacAndrews & Forbes and the structure of the M&F Transaction, see "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—M&F Transaction."

On December 18, 1997, Mr. Dunlap and Michael Price, the then President and Chief Executive Officer of Franklin Mutual Advisers, Inc., Sunbeam's largest stockholder, met with Ronald O. Perelman, MacAndrews & Forbes' Chairman, Chief Executive Officer and sole stockholder, and another senior executive of MacAndrews & Forbes. Mr. Dunlap suggested a possible transaction in which Sunbeam would acquire Coleman for consideration valued in the range of $18 to $22 per share of Coleman common stock. Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Dunlap that the price range was too low and indicated that he would not support a transaction in that price range.

On or about January 22, 1998, in an effort to revive a possible transaction, a representative of Morgan Stanley contacted a representative of MacAndrews & Forbes and indicated that Sunbeam might consider a possible transaction involving both cash and shares of Sunbeam common stock at a price higher than the price range suggested by Mr. Dunlap at the December 18 meeting. MacAndrews & Forbes' representative indicated his willingness to discuss a possible transaction on those terms. On January 23, 1998, representatives of Morgan Stanley met with representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes to begin discussions regarding a possible transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman. On January 29, 1998, representatives of Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley met with representatives of Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes, as well as representatives of Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation, Coleman's financial advisor. During the meeting, the parties discussed the potential cost savings, revenue and operational efficiencies and other benefits that might be associated with a business combination of Sunbeam and Coleman and a preliminary schedule for mutual due diligence. During the week of February 2, 1998, Morgan Stanley submitted to MacAndrews & Forbes an outline of a possible transaction structure which focused on Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman in a one-step merger of a wholly owned Sunbeam subsidiary with and into Coleman in which all outstanding shares of Coleman common stock, including the shares owned indirectly by MacAndrews & Forbes, would be exchanged for consideration consisting solely of Sunbeam common stock. The proposal was rejected because it did not contemplate the assumption by Sunbeam of the indebtedness of two subsidiaries of MacAndrews & Forbes which were corporate parents of Coleman holding MacAndrews & Forbes' interest in Coleman—CLN Holdings (the subsidiary of Coleman (Parent) Holdings) and Coleman Worldwide (the subsidiary of CLN Holdings)—or the payment of any cash consideration. At that time, Coleman Worldwide and CLN Holdings had aggregate outstanding indebtedness of about $518.7 million.

On February 6, 1998, representatives of Morgan Stanley met with representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes and Credit Suisse First Boston to again discuss a possible acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam. At this meeting, the possibility of Sunbeam's acquisition of MacAndrews & Forbes' interest in Coleman, including Sunbeam's assumption of the indebtedness of Coleman Worldwide and CLN Holdings, as the first step in an acquisition of Coleman was discussed. Although the parties had not yet reached agreement on price or the value of Coleman, the parties began to discuss this structure.

On February 13, 1998 and February 19, 1998, representatives of Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley participated in conference calls with a representative of MacAndrews & Forbes and discussed the terms of a possible transaction, including structure and price. The parties tentatively agreed that the transaction would be structured as a stock purchase in which Sunbeam would acquire all of the outstanding capital stock of CLN Holdings from Coleman (Parent) Holdings, an indirect subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes. Under this structure, Sunbeam in effect would assume the indebtedness of CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide. The consideration payable by Sunbeam was not, however, agreed upon. Due diligence meetings were held at various times on and after February 21, 1998 during which representatives of Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley, as well as Sunbeam's accountants and consultants, met with representatives of Coleman, MacAndrews & Forbes and Credit Suisse First Boston, as well as Coleman's accountants, to discuss Coleman's financial results for fiscal year 1997, strategic plans and financial projections for fiscal year 1998.

Due diligence meetings were also held on February 23 and 24, 1998 during which representatives of Sunbeam met with representatives of Coleman, along with representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes and Credit Suisse First Boston, to discuss Sunbeam's long-term strategic plan and financial projections for fiscal years 1998 through 2000.

On February 24, 1998, Messrs. Kersh and Fannin and representatives of Morgan Stanley participated in conference calls with representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes to finalize the transaction structure and negotiate the remaining terms of the transaction. During these conference calls, the parties reached agreement on the type of consideration payable by Sunbeam in the acquisition, although neither the amount of cash consideration nor the precise exchange ratio of Sunbeam common stock for Coleman common stock was agreed upon. On February 25 and 26, 1998, meetings and conference calls were held between representatives of Sunbeam and its legal advisors, representatives of Coleman and its legal advisors, and representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes and its legal advisors. During the February 26, 1998 meetings and conference calls, the parties agreed that the final transaction structure would consist of a merger of CLN Holdings and a wholly owned Sunbeam subsidiary, followed by a second-step merger of a wholly owned Sunbeam subsidiary with Coleman. At that time, the parties also reached final agreement on the consideration payable by Sunbeam in the acquisition, including the amount of cash consideration and the precise exchange ratio of Sunbeam common stock for Coleman common stock. The parties and their advisors then finalized definitive agreements reflecting the agreed upon transaction structure and consideration.

On February 25, 1998, Coleman's then board of directors met and received and considered the presentations of the management of Coleman, Credit Suisse First Boston and Coleman's legal counsel regarding the transactions. The presentation of Credit Suisse First Boston was addressed, primarily, to the fairness to the Coleman minority stockholders of the consideration payable under the merger agreement. As part of this presentation, representatives of Credit Suisse First Boston evaluated the following factors:

- the proposed structure of the transaction;
- the type and amount of consideration payable to the Coleman minority stockholders in the merger and to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, in the M&F Transaction, including the assumption by Sunbeam of the indebtedness of Coleman Worldwide, CLN Holdings and Coleman;
- the premium represented by the then value of the merger consideration when compared to:
 - historical trading prices of the Coleman common stock;
 - Coleman's EBITDA for fiscal years 1997 and 1998; and
 - Coleman's earnings per share for fiscal years 1997 and 1998; and
- the value of Coleman, as measured by:
 - an analysis of the then present value of Coleman's future unlevered cash flows generated by its then current assets;
 - the public market trading values of comparable companies; and
 - the prices paid in recent acquisitions of comparable companies.

On Friday, February 27, 1998, meetings of the boards of directors of Coleman and Sunbeam were held to consider and act upon the proposed transactions. At the meeting of the Coleman board Credit Suisse First Boston delivered its opinion to the Coleman board to the effect that, as of that date, the consideration of 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock and $6.44 in cash, without interest thereon, in exchange for each share of Coleman common stock, was fair, from a financial point of view, to the stockholders of Coleman, other than MacAndrews & Forbes and its subsidiaries.

At the meeting of the Sunbeam board, the directors of Sunbeam received and considered presentations of Morgan Stanley regarding the transactions. The presentation of Morgan Stanley was addressed to the fairness to Sunbeam of the consideration payable under the merger agreement. As part of this presentation, representatives of Morgan Stanley, among other things, discussed with the Sunbeam board the following factors:

- the strategic rationale for the transaction, including:
 - the strength of Coleman's brand names and the potential revenue benefits they presented to Sunbeam;
 - the benefits associated with an acquisition by Sunbeam in terms of market expectations, Sunbeam's ability to remain a market leader and the increased leverage over distribution channels associated with increased size; and
 - the potential for synergies and cost savings as a result of the merger;
- the proposed structure of the transaction;

- the financial condition of Coleman and Sunbeam;
- the nature of Coleman's and Sunbeam's business operations and their future prospects;
- estimates of the revenue and operational benefits expected to be realized as a result of the transaction as prepared by the management of Sunbeam;
- an analysis of the present value of Coleman's projected cash flows with a terminal value applied;
- the public market trading values of comparable companies with a projected control premium included; and
- prices paid in recent acquisitions of comparable companies.

In addition, at the February 27, 1998 Sunbeam board meeting, Morgan Stanley delivered its opinion to the Sunbeam board to the effect that, as of that date, the consideration payable in the merger and the M&F Transaction was fair, from a financial point of view, to Sunbeam.

Following the receipt of the respective fairness opinions, the boards of directors of Sunbeam and Coleman each approved the merger and the M&F Transaction. Definitive agreements were executed by the parties late that night and a press release announcing the transactions was issued before the opening of trading on the NYSE on Monday, March 2, 1998.

On February 27, 1998, Coleman Worldwide, as the owner of about 81% of the then outstanding shares of Coleman common stock, executed a written consent and voted its shares to approve the merger agreement and the merger. As a result, no further action on the part of any stockholder of Coleman is required to complete the merger.

As described above under the caption "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM," since the merger agreement was approved and signed in February 1998 and the M&F Transaction was completed in March 1998, adverse developments affecting Sunbeam have caused a substantial decrease in the market value of the Sunbeam common stock. As a result, the value of the consideration paid to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in the M&F Transaction and the value of the consideration to be paid to Coleman's other stockholders under the merger agreement have also declined substantially. Coleman and Sunbeam have not considered amending or terminating the merger agreement because the merger agreement, by its terms, cannot be amended or terminated. Instead, Coleman and Sunbeam determined to provide additional consideration to the Coleman minority stockholders in connection with the settlement of the Coleman minority stockholders' litigation claims.

Coleman's Reasons for the Merger and Approval of the Coleman Board

At its meetings on February 25 and 27, 1998, the then Coleman board received and considered the presentations of Coleman management, Credit Suisse First Boston and Coleman's legal counsel regarding the merger agreement and the merger. At its February 27 meeting, the then Coleman board unanimously approved and adopted the merger and approved the merger agreement and the transactions contemplated by the merger agreement. See "—Background of the Merger."

In reaching its determination to approve the merger, the then Coleman board considered a number of factors. Listed below are the material factors, both positive and negative, considered. In view of the number and variety of factors considered in connection with its evaluation of the merger, the then Coleman board did not consider it practicable to, nor did it attempt to, quantify or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors considered in reaching its determination. In addition, individual members of the then Coleman board may have given different weight to the different factors.

The then Coleman board identified and considered a variety of positive factors in its deliberations concerning the merger, including those set forth below.

Coleman's Business, Condition and Prospects. The Coleman board reviewed Coleman's business, its then current financial condition and results of operations and its future prospects, including Coleman's ability to maintain its position in the consumer products business at its present size, and the current and anticipated developments in Coleman's business. The Coleman board received and reviewed presentations from, and discussed the terms and conditions of the merger agreement with, executive officers of Coleman and Coleman's financial and legal advisors. The Coleman board considered the views of its management and financial advisor regarding recent trends in the industry in which Coleman operates, including recent acquisitions and business combinations. Based on its familiarity with the business, current financial condition and results of operations and future prospects of Coleman, and in light of the various presentations it received, the Coleman board concluded that a business combination of Coleman with Sunbeam would be in the best interests of Coleman and its stockholders.

Terms and Structure of the Transaction. The Coleman board of directors considered the fact that the merger agreement does not contain any provisions that either (1) limit the effect of changes in the market price of the Sunbeam common stock prior to the completion of the merger on the value of the consideration to be received by Coleman stockholders in the merger or (2) permit Coleman or Sunbeam to terminate the merger agreement based upon changes in stock price and that, accordingly, the value of the consideration could change based on the performance of the Sunbeam common stock between the execution of the merger agreement and the completion of the merger. While recognizing that the absence of these provisions exposed Coleman's stockholders to market risk, the Coleman board considered this risk to be mitigated to some extent by the trading history of Sunbeam common stock during the period from January 1, 1997 through February 24, 1998 and the fact that the Sunbeam common stock had outperformed both the Coleman common stock and the Standard and Poor's 500 Stock Index during that period.

The Coleman board reviewed the economic terms of the transaction based upon the closing prices of the Coleman common stock and the Sunbeam common stock on February 24, 1998 and February 26, 1998, the days prior to each of the meetings of the Coleman board. As reported on the NYSE Composite Transactions Tape, the closing prices of Sunbeam common stock and Coleman common stock were $40.625 and $20.688, respectively, on February 24, 1998, and $41.875 and $20.188, respectively, on February 26, 1998. The Coleman board considered that, in each case, the merger consideration implied a per share premium of about 44.2% when the market value of the merger consideration was compared to the then market price per share of Coleman common stock. The Coleman board also considered that the merger consideration was higher than the value implied by the historical stock market prices of the Coleman common stock and Sunbeam common stock.

The Coleman board also considered the fact that the transaction was structured as a two-step acquisition which, among other things, would enable Sunbeam to acquire control of Coleman as quickly as possible in order to reduce disruption to Coleman's business. The two-step structure would enable Sunbeam to acquire control of Coleman more quickly than in a one-step transaction, since Sunbeam could issue shares of its common stock to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary that owned the shares of Coleman common stock without having to register the Sunbeam shares under the federal securities laws, thereby avoiding the delay inherent in the registration process. The agreement relating to the M&F Transaction was signed on February 27, 1998 and the transaction was completed thirty days later on March 30, 1998. As described below under "—Purposes and Effects of the Merger," Sunbeam believed that it was in the best interests of its stockholders that Sunbeam acquire Coleman for consideration consisting, at least in part, of shares of its common stock. Accordingly, Sunbeam believed that a cash tender offer for all outstanding shares of Coleman common stock, which also would have avoided the registration process, was not an acceptable alternative.

Opinion of Credit Suisse First Boston. The Coleman board considered the oral opinion delivered by Credit Suisse First Boston at the meeting of the Coleman board on February 27, 1998, which was subsequently confirmed in writing, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to the matters described in the opinion, the cash and stock consideration payable in the merger was fair from a financial point of view to Coleman's minority stockholders. When Credit Suisse First Boston was engaged by Coleman, they were not asked to render an updated opinion as of the date of this document and neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has requested that they do so. Moreover, Credit Suisse First Boston has advised Sunbeam that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam.

Ability of Coleman's Stockholders to Obtain a Continuing Interest in Sunbeam. The Coleman board considered that, under the terms of the merger agreement, Coleman's stockholders will receive equity securities of Sunbeam, thus enabling Coleman's stockholders to participate in increases in the value of Sunbeam, including any value that may be generated through Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman's businesses. The Coleman board also noted that the price of the Sunbeam common stock had more than doubled since the time Mr. Dunlap had become Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam.

Ownership of Coleman Voting Stock. The Coleman board considered the fact that prior to the merger the Coleman minority stockholders were stockholders in a company controlled by MacAndrews & Forbes, but that following the merger they would be stockholders in a public company without any controlling stockholder and therefore the Coleman minority stockholders, as stockholders of Sunbeam, may be able to obtain a control premium with respect to their Sunbeam common stock in the future. The ability of Coleman's stockholders to receive dividends or other distributions declared and paid by Coleman was not considered material by the Coleman board because Coleman had not declared a dividend since its initial public offering in February 1992 and at the time of the approval of the merger, the then Coleman board had no plans to declare any dividends.

Availability of Appraisal Rights. The Coleman board considered the fact that the Coleman minority stockholders would have the right to pursue appraisal rights under Delaware law. Accordingly, any Coleman public stockholder who did not wish to accept the cash and stock consideration payable under the merger agreement would have the right to dissent from the merger and have the fair value of his Coleman shares determined by a court and paid to him in cash.

In addition, the then Coleman board identified and considered a variety of potentially negative factors, including those set forth below.

Failure to Realize Expected Benefits. The then Coleman board considered the possibility that the operational and revenue benefits expected to be realized as result of the transaction might not be fully realized. For example, some of the benefits of the transaction projected by the then Coleman board depended upon the ability of Sunbeam to cut costs, streamline operations and capitalize on the revenue and operational benefits derived from a combination of the two companies and the unrealized potential of Coleman's assets. Any such projected benefits are inherently subject to risks and uncertainties beyond the control of either Sunbeam or Coleman. The then Coleman board considered that any failure by Sunbeam to successfully implement its business strategies and cost-saving initiatives could have a material adverse effect on the market price of the Sunbeam common stock and thereby adversely affect former Coleman stockholders who receive Sunbeam shares in the merger.

Possible Failure to Complete the Transaction. The then Coleman board considered that the M&F Transaction was subject to customary closing conditions and, therefore, was subject to the risk that the M&F Transaction and the merger would not be completed. The then Coleman board considered that non-consummation of the two transactions could negatively affect the market price of the Coleman common stock and the financial community's perception of the stability and future prospects of Coleman. Moreover, a failure to complete the two transactions following their public announcement could negatively affect Coleman's sales and operating results, its ability to attract and retain key management and marketing personnel and its ability to successfully complete long-term strategic projects.

Substantial Charges Incurred in Connection with the Transaction. The then Coleman board considered that Coleman would be required to incur significant expenses in order to complete the M&F Transaction and the merger. These expenses include costs of integrating the businesses of Coleman and Sunbeam, fees of Coleman's legal and financial advisors and the expenditure of corporate resources in support of the transaction generally. The then Coleman board recognized that these expenses would be borne solely by Coleman in the event that the transaction was not completed.

Possible Loss of Key Personnel. The then Coleman board considered that, despite the efforts of the combined company, key management and marketing personnel might not remain employed by Coleman or Sunbeam. The loss of any such key personnel could have a material adverse effect on Coleman's financial position, results of operations and cash flow.

Tax Treatment. The Coleman board considered the fact that the merger is expected to be a taxable transaction for United States Federal income tax purposes and may be taxable under state, local or foreign laws as well. For a discussion of the tax consequences of the merger to Coleman minority stockholders, see "UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS."

The then Coleman board believed, however, that the foregoing negative factors were outweighed by the projected benefits of the transactions.

The terms of the merger were arrived at through arms'-length negotiations between two unaffiliated parties, MacAndrews & Forbes and Sunbeam. The then Coleman board believed that the interests of MacAndrews & Forbes, as the then indirect owner of about 81% of the outstanding Coleman common stock, were substantially aligned with the interests of Coleman's minority stockholders. The merger agreement also contains provisions designed to protect Coleman's minority stockholders. The merger agreement prevents Sunbeam from altering the consideration payable to Coleman's minority stockholders in the merger or otherwise amending or terminating the merger agreement after completion of the M&F Transaction. Furthermore, the merger is subject to very few conditions, consisting only of (1) this document had to be declared effective by the SEC, (2) the Sunbeam common stock to be issued in the merger had to be listed on the NYSE, (3) the M&F Transaction had to be completed and (4) there can be no preliminary or permanent injunction preventing the merger. In addition, the merger agreement was approved by a unanimous vote of the Coleman board, including by those members of the Coleman board who were not employees or affiliates of Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes. In light of the foregoing, the then Coleman board did not deem it necessary to institute additional procedural safeguards such as a requirement that the merger be approved by a majority of Coleman's minority stockholders or the formation of a special committee of Coleman's outside directors to negotiate the terms of the merger.

Financial Advisors' Opinions

Coleman's Financial Advisor. Credit Suisse First Boston acted as Coleman's financial advisor in connection with the merger at the time the merger agreement was signed. Credit Suisse First Boston was selected by Coleman based on Credit Suisse First Boston's experience, expertise and familiarity with Coleman and its business. Credit Suisse First Boston is an internationally recognized investment banking firm and is regularly engaged in the valuation of businesses and securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions, leveraged buyouts, negotiated underwritings, competitive biddings, secondary distributions of listed and unlisted securities, private placements and valuations for corporate and other purposes.

On February 27, 1998, Credit Suisse First Boston delivered to the Coleman board an oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to the matters described in the opinion, the cash and stock consideration payable under the merger agreement was fair from a financial point of view to Coleman's minority stockholders. However, since the date of Credit Suisse First Boston's opinion, numerous events have occurred that significantly affected the price of Sunbeam common stock. When Credit Suisse First Boston was engaged by Coleman, they were not asked to render an updated opinion as of the date of this document and neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has requested that they do so. Moreover, Credit Suisse First Boston has advised Sunbeam that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. Because Sunbeam did not plan to issue the warrants at the time the merger agreement was signed, Credit Suisse First Boston did not take the warrants into account when evaluating the fairness of the merger consideration.

Terms of Credit Suisse First Boston's Engagement. Under the letter agreement dated December 10, 1997 between Coleman and Credit Suisse First Boston, Coleman agreed to pay Credit Suisse First Boston for services rendered in connection with the merger a fee of about $4 million. Coleman also agreed to reimburse Credit Suisse First Boston for all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses, including the reasonable fees and expenses of its legal counsel and any other advisor retained by Credit Suisse First Boston, resulting from or arising out of the engagement. Coleman further agreed to indemnify Credit Suisse First Boston and related persons and entities for losses, claims, damages or liabilities (including related actions or proceedings) related to or arising out of, among other things, its engagement as Coleman's financial advisor.

In the past, Credit Suisse First Boston has performed investment banking services for Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes and their affiliates and has received customary fees for these services. In the ordinary course of its business, Credit Suisse First Boston and its affiliates may actively trade the debt and equity securities of Coleman, MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates and Sunbeam for their own accounts and for the accounts of customers and, accordingly, may at any time hold a long or short position in those securities.

Sunbeam's Financial Advisor. Morgan Stanley was retained by Sunbeam to assist in connection with a possible sale of Sunbeam, one or more possible acquisitions by Sunbeam and/or other strategic alternatives. As part of that engagement, Morgan Stanley acted as Sunbeam's financial advisor in connection with its acquisition of Coleman. Sunbeam retained Morgan Stanley based on its qualifications, expertise and reputation, as well as upon its prior investment banking relationships with Sunbeam and its familiarity with Sunbeam and its business.

On February 27, 1998, Morgan Stanley rendered to the Sunbeam board an oral opinion, which was later confirmed in writing, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to the matters described in the opinion, the cash and stock consideration payable in the M&F Transaction and under the merger agreement was fair from a financial point of view to Sunbeam. When Morgan Stanley was engaged by Sunbeam, they were not asked to render an updated opinion as of the date of this document and neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has requested that they do so. Moreover, Morgan Stanley has advised Sunbeam that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. Because Sunbeam did not plan to issue the warrants at the time the merger agreement was signed, Morgan Stanley did not take the warrants into account when evaluating the fairness to Sunbeam of the consideration payable in the merger. On the basis of Morgan Stanley's advice, the Sunbeam board has determined not to rely on the opinion of Morgan Stanley as a basis for its plans to complete the merger.

Terms of Morgan Stanley's Engagement. Under an amended engagement letter between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam agreed to pay Morgan Stanley (1) an exposure fee equal to 25% of the estimated transaction fee referred to below, payable upon execution of the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction and the merger agreement, and (2) a transaction fee equal to a percentage of the aggregate value of the consideration payable by Sunbeam in the M&F Transaction and the merger (including the amount of any debt assumed or repaid by Sunbeam), payable, as to the M&F Transaction, upon its completion and, as to the merger, upon its completion. For purposes of calculating the transaction fee, the value of the Sunbeam common stock issued in the M&F Transaction and the merger will be the average of the closing sale prices for the Sunbeam common stock for the ten trading days prior to the completion of the M&F Transaction and the merger, respectively. For its services to Sunbeam in connection with the Coleman acquisition, Morgan Stanley has received fees from Sunbeam totaling about $9.6 million. The amended engagement letter between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley provides for the payment to Morgan Stanley of an additional transaction fee of $680,000 when the merger is completed, based on the average market price of Sunbeam common stock on the last trading day prior to the date of this document. Sunbeam's obligation to pay this additional transaction fee to Morgan Stanley will not be affected by the fact that Sunbeam is no longer entitled to rely on Morgan Stanley's fairness opinion. Sunbeam has also agreed to reimburse Morgan Stanley for its expenses, including fees and expenses of its counsel, and to indemnify Morgan Stanley and related parties against various liabilities and expenses, which may include liabilities under the federal securities laws, arising out of its engagement. Morgan Stanley also acted as an initial purchaser for the private placement of the Sunbeam debentures and an affiliate of Morgan Stanley is a lender under Sunbeam's bank credit facility. Morgan Stanley also advised Sunbeam in connection with its acquisitions of Signature Brands and First Alert.

Sunbeam's Reasons for Acquiring Coleman and Approval of the Sunbeam Board

Sunbeam's Reasons for Acquiring Coleman. While Sunbeam's current management does not know all the reasons why prior management agreed to acquire Coleman, Sunbeam's current management believes that the following reasons were provided by prior management to the then Sunbeam board.

As part of its 1997 review of strategic alternatives, Sunbeam's then management team concluded that it was unlikely that Sunbeam could be sold at a price or on terms that would be acceptable to Sunbeam. Sunbeam shifted its strategic focus to identify underperforming companies with strong brand names that Sunbeam could acquire. Sunbeam's former management intended to capitalize on its perceived capability in cost containment and operational improvement by acquiring one or more of these companies and their premier brand names, thereby broadening the Sunbeam product offering spectrum and presenting opportunities to eliminate redundant or inefficient operations.

Sunbeam acquired its current interest in Coleman and agreed to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman primarily due to Coleman's strong and established brand names, the potential opportunity to streamline operations, the diversification these brand names provide to Sunbeam's product base and the potential for revenue and operational benefits associated with a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. In addition, Sunbeam believed that its existing international geographic marketing and distribution strengths and those of Coleman would significantly complement each other. Sunbeam's former management believed that the acquisition of Coleman would give Sunbeam a platform from which to capitalize on the fragmentation and potential consolidation of the durable household consumer products sector.

Approval of the Sunbeam Board. In February 1998, the then Sunbeam board approved the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction and the merger agreement and determined that the terms of the agreements were fair to Sunbeam's stockholders. The then Sunbeam board identified and considered a variety of positive factors in its deliberations concerning the merger, including, but not limited to, the following:

- the opinion of Sunbeam's financial advisor, Morgan Stanley, to the effect that the consideration to be paid by Sunbeam for Coleman was fair to Sunbeam from a financial point of view; Morgan Stanley has since advised Sunbeam that its opinion, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam;
- the terms of the agreements, including the fact that the exchange ratio of Sunbeam common stock for Coleman common stock would not change even in the event of a decrease in the market price of the Sunbeam common stock;
- the then Sunbeam board's belief that the then per share premium of about 44.2% implied by the then current value of the consideration compared to the then market price per share of Coleman common stock was reasonable in light of other comparable transactions involving companies in the consumer products and sporting goods industries;
- the belief of Sunbeam's prior management that Coleman presented unrealized potential which could be exploited once Coleman's operations were added to those of Sunbeam;
- the anticipated operational efficiencies and revenue benefits associated with the acquisition of Coleman's product lines; and
- the belief of Sunbeam's prior management that Coleman's operations could be streamlined to enhance efficiency.

In addition, the Sunbeam board identified and considered a variety of potentially negative factors, including the following:

- the possibility that the operational and revenue benefits expected to be realized as result of the transaction might not be fully realized;
- the difficulties associated with integrating Coleman's operations with those of Sunbeam and managing the combined enterprise;
- the fact that the M&F Transaction was subject to customary closing conditions and, therefore, was subject to the risk that the M&F Transaction and the merger would not be completed; the Sunbeam board considered that non-consummation could negatively affect the market price of the Sunbeam common stock and the financial community's perception of the stability and future prospects of Sunbeam;
- the significant expenses Sunbeam would be required to incur in order to complete the M&F Transaction and the merger, including costs of integrating the businesses of Coleman and Sunbeam, fees of Sunbeam's legal and financial advisors and the expenditure of corporate resources in support of the transaction generally;
- the risks associated with managing a highly leveraged business; and

- the risks associated with managing operations at different locations.

The Sunbeam board believed, however, that the foregoing negative factors were outweighed by the projected benefits of the transactions.

Purposes and Effects of the Merger

The purpose of the merger is to enable Sunbeam to acquire the entire equity interest in Coleman. In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding shares of Coleman common stock. Sunbeam's ownership interest in Coleman was immediately thereafter reduced to about 79% as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options immediately following the M&F Transaction. As a result of the merger, Sunbeam will acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman, and Coleman will become an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam.

In addition, under the April 15, 1999 amendment to Sunbeam's bank credit facility, it is an event of default under the bank credit facility:

- if Sunbeam fails to have the SEC declare this document effective by October 30, 1999 (which was subsequently amended to January 10, 2000)
- if Sunbeam fails to complete the merger within 25 business days after this document is declared effective by the SEC, or
- if Sunbeam has to pay more than $87.5 million in cash to complete the merger including any amounts paid with respect to appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses.

If an event of default were to occur, a default would also occur under the Coleman note payable to Sunbeam and, among other things, the lenders under Sunbeam's credit agreement would be entitled to foreclose on the Coleman note and the Coleman assets pledged under the Coleman note. The Coleman note, by its terms, will not be affected by the merger and will remain outstanding. See "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN SUNBEAM AND COLEMAN AND ITS AFFILIATES—Financial Transactions Between Coleman and Sunbeam."

The interest rate margins on Sunbeam's bank credit facility increased to 3.50% for LIBOR loans and 2.25% for base rate loans on September 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date and increased to 4.00% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans on October 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date. The interest rate margins will be decreased to 3.00% for LIBOR loans and 1.75% for base rate loans upon consummation of the merger and the effectiveness of the pledge of substantially all of Coleman's and its domestic subsidiaries' assets to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility.

Coleman and Sunbeam adopted a two-step acquisition structure for several reasons, including to enable Sunbeam to acquire control of Coleman as quickly as possible. Alternative transaction structures were considered by Sunbeam and Coleman, including a one-step merger without first completing the M&F Transaction and a direct purchase by Sunbeam of Coleman Worldwide's equity interest in Coleman prior to completion of the merger. MacAndrews & Forbes rejected these transaction structures. The parties agreed that the final transaction would be structured as a merger of CLN Holdings and a wholly owned Sunbeam subsidiary, followed by a second-step merger of another wholly owned Sunbeam subsidiary with Coleman. See "—Background of the Merger."

Sunbeam also considered paying alternative types of consideration to Coleman stockholders. Sunbeam initially proposed consideration consisting exclusively of Sunbeam common stock. Sunbeam's prior management believed that the use of Sunbeam common stock as consideration would enhance stockholder value by allowing Sunbeam to capitalize on the then recent rise in Sunbeam's stock price. This consideration, however, was rejected by MacAndrews & Forbes. Other types of consideration were also briefly discussed, including the use of Sunbeam preferred stock instead of the cash portion of the merger consideration. This type of consideration was not seriously considered by the parties.

As a result of the merger, the minority stockholders of Coleman:

- will cease to hold any direct equity interest in Coleman,
- will no longer directly share in the profits and losses of Coleman, but will indirectly share in such profits and losses as stockholders of Sunbeam,
- will not be entitled to receive dividends or other distributions, if any, declared and paid by Coleman, and
- will not be entitled to vote or otherwise participate in the corporate governance of Coleman, except through their ability to vote and participate in the corporate governance of Sunbeam through their ownership of Sunbeam common stock.

As a result of the M&F Transaction and the merger, Sunbeam will have the entire indirect interest in the net book value and net earnings of Coleman. Sunbeam will also be entitled to all benefits resulting from that interest, including all income generated by Coleman's operations, any future increase in Coleman's value and the right to elect all members of the Coleman board of directors. Similarly, Sunbeam will bear the entire risk of losses generated by Coleman's operations and any decrease in the value of Coleman after the merger. The minority stockholders of Coleman will have only an indirect interest in the net book value and net earnings of Coleman and future increases, if any, in the value of Coleman through their holdings of Sunbeam common stock to be received in the merger and upon any exercise of the warrants.

Upon completion of the merger, there will no longer be any publicly held shares of Coleman common stock and the Coleman common stock will be delisted from the NYSE, the Pacific Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange and deregistered under the Exchange Act.

The tax consequences of the merger are subject to a number of qualifications, as discussed below under the caption "UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS."

Sunbeam's Plans and Proposals for Coleman

On May 11, 1998, Sunbeam's former management announced its plans to commence a restructuring intended to integrate Sunbeam's operations with those of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands. The planned restructuring was also intended to centralize the operations of the four companies, close or divest some of Sunbeam's plants and reduce Sunbeam's workforce. Following the changes in Sunbeam's management that were announced in June 1998, plans for the proposed restructuring were postponed pending further review of Sunbeam's organizational structure. On August 24, 1998, Sunbeam's new management announced a revised organizational structure which provided for some plant closings and reductions in workforce, but eliminated the previously announced centralization of Sunbeam's operations.

Upon completion of the M&F Transaction, which occurred on March 30, 1998, all of the members of the Coleman board resigned, the number of directors constituting the Coleman board of directors was fixed at five, and five designees of Sunbeam were elected as directors of Coleman. In addition, Sunbeam designees were appointed to senior management positions at Coleman. Subsequently, as a result of changes in Sunbeam's management and board of directors, Jerry W. Levin, the current Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, was reelected to the Coleman board. In addition, Paul E. Shapiro, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, was elected to the Coleman board of directors. The other members of the Coleman board of directors resigned or were removed by Sunbeam. In April 1999, the size of the Coleman board of directors was fixed at three members and A. Whitman Marchand, who is not affiliated with either Sunbeam or Coleman, was elected to the Coleman board of directors. In July 1999, the size of the Coleman board was fixed at four and John H. Klein, an outside director of Sunbeam, was elected to the Coleman board. See "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Changes in Sunbeam's Management and Board" and "—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction" and "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Appointments of Former Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes Officers to Sunbeam's Management and Board" and "—Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes."

Following the completion of the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam prepaid substantially all of the $1,016 million aggregate outstanding indebtedness of Coleman, Coleman Worldwide, CLN Holdings and certain of Coleman's subsidiaries with a portion of the net proceeds from the offering of the debentures and borrowings under Sunbeam's bank credit facility. See "SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION."

Position of Sunbeam and Coleman on the Fairness of the Merger and the Settlement

Sunbeam's interest is to complete the merger as soon as possible on terms beneficial to Sunbeam, and Coleman is controlled by Sunbeam. Therefore, the Coleman minority stockholders should not necessarily rely on any views of Sunbeam or Coleman regarding the fairness of the merger.

The original February 1998 merger agreement, which provided for consideration of $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock, was negotiated at arms'-length between parties that were unaffiliated at the time; was unanimously approved by the then Coleman board; and was approved by written consent of Coleman's then majority stockholder. These approvals constituted all the approvals required by Delaware law in connection with the merger. Following these approvals and the completion of the M&F Transaction, the merger agreement by its terms could not be amended or terminated, and the only unfulfilled condition to the merger was the effectiveness with the SEC of this document.

Thereafter, major adverse developments affecting Sunbeam caused a substantial decrease in the market value of Sunbeam's stock and, therefore, the value of the consideration to be paid to the Coleman minority stockholders under the merger agreement. The Coleman minority stockholders instituted litigation in the Delaware Court of Chancery claiming that the consideration payable to them under the merger agreement was inadequate. In October 1998, the litigation claims of the Coleman minority stockholders were settled in arms'-length negotiations between counsel to plaintiffs and counsel to Sunbeam. The settlement, which was approved by the Court on November 12, 1999, effectively increased the consideration payable to the Coleman minority stockholders in connection with the merger by providing them with warrants, each entitling them to purchase one Sunbeam share at $7 per share, at the rate of 0.381 of a warrant for each Coleman share (after deducting the warrants to be issued to counsel for the Coleman minority stockholders as their legal fees), in addition to their receiving $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a Sunbeam share for each Coleman share, upon completion of the merger.

Sunbeam and Coleman believe that the transaction consisting of the merger and the settlement is substantively fair to the Coleman minority stockholders, and that the process which arrived at the transaction was procedurally fair to them. This belief is based solely on the following considerations:

- (1) The merger agreement was negotiated at arms'-length between parties that were unaffiliated at the time—Sunbeam, on the one hand, and, on the other hand, Coleman and its then 81% stockholder, MacAndrews & Forbes.
- (2) The merger agreement provides that it cannot be amended (whether to change the merger consideration, to add conditions to the merger or otherwise) or terminated.
- (3) The settlement of the litigation claims of the Coleman minority stockholders was negotiated at arms'-length between parties that were and are unaffiliated—counsel to Sunbeam and counsel to the Coleman minority stockholders.
- (4) The settlement was approved by the Delaware Court of Chancery on November 12, 1999 as being fair, reasonable and in the best interests of the Coleman minority stockholders after a hearing on September 29, 1999 at which all Coleman minority stockholders had an opportunity to be heard and only one stockholder objected to the settlement.
- (5) Notwithstanding the settlement, any Coleman minority stockholder who objects to the terms of the merger agreement and settlement can pursue his Delaware law appraisal rights and seek payment in cash of the judicially determined fair value of his Coleman shares.

In transactions such as the merger, the SEC has stated that certain factors normally are considered to be important when reaching a determination regarding the fairness of the proposed transaction to unaffiliated security holders. However, for the reasons set forth below, Sunbeam and Coleman believe that none of these factors is relevant to an evaluation of the fairness of the consideration payable to Coleman minority stockholders under the merger agreement and in the settlement:

- Current Market Prices. The trading price of Coleman common stock has been linked to the trading price of Sunbeam common stock since the execution of the merger agreement and the announcement of the merger in February 1998. Therefore, the Coleman common stock has no market value independent of its relationship to the Sunbeam common stock and the value of the consideration payable under the merger agreement and in the settlement;
- Historical Market Prices. The trading price of Coleman common stock has been linked to the trading price of Sunbeam common stock since the execution of the merger agreement and the announcement of the merger in February 1998. Sunbeam and Coleman do not believe that market prices prior to February 1998—more than 20 months ago—provide any indication of the current value of Sunbeam or Coleman;
- Net Book Value. Sunbeam and Coleman believe that net book value is not a true indication of the value of Sunbeam or the value of Coleman on a stand-alone basis;
- Prior Coleman Common Stock Repurchases. Coleman has not repurchased any of its common stock since March 1996 and Sunbeam and Coleman do not believe that the prices paid in connection with any such transactions more than three and one half years ago provide any indication of the current value of Coleman;
- Going Concern Value; Liquidation Value. Any current estimate of the going concern value or liquidation value of Sunbeam or Coleman would require a detailed financial analysis by an appraiser, financial advisor or other outside party. No such analysis was requested or obtained and it was considered impractical to request or obtain such an analysis;
- Reports, Opinions or Appraisals. Coleman's financial advisor, Credit Suisse First Boston, has advised Sunbeam that its February 1998 opinion regarding the fairness to the Coleman minority stockholders from a financial point of view of the consideration payable under the merger agreement, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. Moreover, Sunbeam's financial advisor, Morgan Stanley, has advised Sunbeam that its February 1998 opinion regarding the fairness to Sunbeam from a financial point of view of the consideration payable under the merger agreement, although correct when given, should no longer be relied upon because of subsequent negative developments affecting Sunbeam. No other report, opinion or appraisal was requested or obtained by Sunbeam or Coleman in connection with the merger or the settlement and it was considered impractical to request or obtain any such report, opinion or appraisal; and
- Offers or Proposals by Unaffiliated Persons. During the past 18 months, neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has received any offer or proposal from an unaffiliated person regarding a merger or consolidation involving, or the acquisition of all or any substantial part of the assets of, or the acquisition of securities conferring control of, Sunbeam or Coleman.

Sunbeam and Coleman have not performed, and (as stated above) have not requested or obtained from any financial advisor or other outside expert, any current valuation of Coleman or the minority stockholders' interest in Coleman based on any of the analyses typically employed in such a valuation (such as a comparable company or comparable transaction analysis or an analysis of the discounted present value of projected future cash flows and terminal values). Nor have they performed, or requested or obtained, any current valuation of the warrants which are part of the consideration to be paid to the Coleman minority stockholders upon completion of the merger.

The Delaware Court of Chancery, in its November 12, 1999 opinion approving the settlement, accepted a September 1999 valuation of the warrants by plaintiffs' expert based on the Black-Scholes option-pricing model of $2.475 per warrant. Based on such valuation (which may no longer be applicable because it assumed a $6.00 per share Sunbeam stock price), and assuming a market price of $4.75 per Sunbeam share (the NYSE closing price on December 3, 1999), the consideration to be received by the Coleman minority stockholders upon completion of the merger would have a value of approximately $10.08 per Coleman share ($6.44 in cash, $2.70 in Sunbeam stock and $0.94 in Sunbeam warrants). However, Sunbeam and Coleman cannot and will not try to predict the prices at which the Sunbeam shares and warrants will trade upon completion of the merger, or whether an active trading market for the warrants will develop.

Because the merger agreement was approved by all action of the Coleman board and stockholders required under Delaware law and by its terms cannot be amended, Sunbeam and Coleman have not considered amending the merger agreement to add procedural safeguards as conditions to the merger, such as a condition that the merger be approved by a majority of Coleman's minority stockholders or by independent Coleman directors or a condition requiring a favorable opinion of a financial advisor on the fairness of the consideration to be received by stockholders upon completion of the merger. Instead, Sunbeam and Coleman decided to settle the claims of the Coleman minority stockholders challenging the fairness of the consideration provided under the merger agreement through arms'-length negotiations with their litigation counsel on terms that the Delaware Court of Chancery would approve as being fair to the Coleman minority stockholders. Notwithstanding the absence of the procedural safeguards discussed in the first sentence of this paragraph, based solely on the factors listed under items (1) through (5) above, Sunbeam and Coleman believe that the transaction consisting of the merger and the settlement is procedurally fair to the Coleman minority stockholders.

Camper Acquisition Corp. is a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam which was formed solely for the purpose of acting as an acquisition vehicle in connection with the merger. Camper Acquisition Corp expressly adopts the foregoing statements of Sunbeam.

THE MERGER

The description of the merger and the merger agreement contained in this document does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the merger agreement, a copy of which is attached as Annex I at the back of this document and is incorporated in this document by reference.

General

The merger will become effective when a certificate of merger is filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware. It is currently anticipated that the certificate of merger will be filed, and the merger will become effective, on or about January 6, 2000, which is the twenty-first business day following the date on which this document was first mailed to you.

Prior to the completion of the merger, the outstanding capital stock of Camper Acquisition Corp., all of which is currently owned directly by Sunbeam, will be contributed to Coleman Worldwide Corporation. In the merger, Camper Acquisition Corp., which will then be directly owned by Coleman Worldwide Corporation, will be merged into Coleman, which is currently 80.01% directly owned by Coleman Worldwide Corporation.

Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger

In considering the approval of the merger by the former Coleman board of directors, you should be aware that a number of persons, including current and former directors and executive officers of Coleman, have interests in the merger that are different from or in addition to yours, as described below.

Coleman Options. Under the merger agreement, after the completion of the M&F Transaction, which occurred on March 30, 1998, all of the then outstanding options to purchase shares of Coleman common stock under Coleman's stock option plans became fully vested and exercisable. During the period between the completion of the M&F Transaction and the completion of the merger, Sunbeam is obligated, under the merger agreement, to cause Coleman to maintain a broker-dealer cashless exercise procedure for the exercise of the Coleman stock options. Upon the completion of the merger, each outstanding Coleman stock option that has not been exercised will be cancelled and each holder of an unexercised Coleman stock option will be paid an amount in cash equal to the product of (1) the total number of shares of Coleman common stock subject to the Coleman stock option, multiplied by (2) the excess of $27.50 over the exercise price per share of Coleman common stock subject to the Coleman stock option, less any applicable withholding taxes.

Immediately after the completion of the M&F Transaction, two current executive officers of Sunbeam and Coleman exercised options that vested as a result of the M&F Transaction. Jerry W. Levin, the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Coleman and the current Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, exercised 500,000 Coleman stock options at per share exercise prices ranging from $12.25 to $14.00 and Mr. Levin received net proceeds upon the sale of such shares of about $9.94 million. Bobby G. Jenkins, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sunbeam and Executive Vice President of Coleman, exercised 20,000 Coleman stock options at per share exercise prices ranging from $16.125 to $16.434 and Mr. Jenkins received net proceeds upon the sale of such shares of about $288,360.

Ronald O. Perelman, the sole stockholder of MacAndrews & Forbes and a member of the Coleman board at the time the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction and the merger agreement were executed, holds 500,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $14.00 per share. Paul E. Shapiro, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman and a director of Coleman, holds 62,500 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $17.062 per share and 15,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $16.125 per share. Karen K. Clark, the current Senior Vice President, Finance of Sunbeam and Senior Vice President, Finance of Coleman, holds 10,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $17.062 per share and 15,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $16.125 per share. Steven R. Isko, the current Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Sunbeam and Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Coleman, holds 10,000 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $17.062 per share, 7,500 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $16.125 and 2,500 Coleman stock options with an exercise price of $12.937 per share. Upon completion of the merger, in settlement of their Coleman stock options, Messrs. Perelman, Shapiro and Isko and Ms. Clark will receive cash payments of $6,750,000, $823,000, $226,009 and $275,005 respectively.

Severance Arrangements. The M&F Transaction constituted a "change in control" of Coleman under the terms of some Coleman employee benefit plans and various employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which Coleman was a party. As a result, at the effective time of the M&F Transaction, Coleman became obligated to pay all amounts provided under those plans and agreements as a result of the change in control. Under the merger agreement, Sunbeam agreed that after completion of the M&F Transaction it would honor, and cause Coleman to honor, all employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which Coleman was a party on that date. Accordingly, all rights and obligations of Coleman under these agreements have become rights and obligations of Sunbeam and except as noted below with respect to the former employment agreements between Coleman and Messrs. Levin and Shapiro, Sunbeam has agreed to cause Coleman to pay all amounts provided under these employee benefit plans and agreements as a result of the change in control of Coleman in accordance with their respective terms and to honor, and to cause Coleman to honor, all rights, privileges and modifications to or with respect to any such employee benefit plans of Coleman or agreements which become effective as a result of the change in control. However, neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has any responsibility for Coleman's obligations under the former employment agreements between Coleman and Jerry W. Levin, Coleman's then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, and Paul E. Shapiro, Coleman's then Executive Vice President and General Counsel, except, in the case of Mr. Levin, for an incentive payment in the amount of $1.5 million due from Coleman (and subsequently paid) related to the sale of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc. to an unrelated third party, which transaction was pending at the time the merger agreement was signed. The former employment agreements with Messrs. Levin and Shapiro were terminated upon completion of the M&F Transaction.

In connection with the change in control resulting from the completion of the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam has paid, or has caused Coleman to pay or recognize as payable, a total of $7,903,765 in severance compensation and related benefits for approximately 117 former Coleman employees. Of that amount, $7,597,936 was in respect of base salary and related benefits, and $305,829 was in respect of extra pension credits. In addition, Coleman paid $454,277 for management incentive bonuses to 37 former Coleman employees. The only principal executive officer of Coleman to receive severance compensation from Coleman as a result of the change in control was Joseph Page, the former Chief Financial Officer of Coleman, who received severance payments totaling $280,000. Bobby G. Jenkins, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sunbeam and Executive Vice President of Coleman, received severance payments totaling $18,583 as a result of his resignation from Coleman following the M&F Transaction, and prior to his being rehired by both Sunbeam and Coleman in the capacities mentioned above. Steven R. Isko, the current Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Sunbeam and Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Coleman, received severance payments totaling $185,634 as a result of his resignation from Coleman following the M&F Transaction, and prior to his being rehired by both Sunbeam and Coleman in the capacities mentioned above.

Indemnification. The merger agreement provides that all rights to indemnification existing in favor of any director or officer of Coleman in office at or prior to the completion of the merger, as provided in Coleman's Certificate of Incorporation, Coleman's By-laws, as amended, or indemnification agreements in effect as of February 27, 1998, will survive the merger and continue in full force and effect for a period of six years after the effective time of the merger (and during the period from the completion of the M&F Transaction to the completion of the merger), to the extent these rights are consistent with Delaware law. In addition, Sunbeam agreed that, from and after the completion of the M&F Transaction and for a period of six years following the completion of the merger, Sunbeam or Coleman, as the surviving corporation in the merger, will cause to be maintained a liability insurance policy for the benefit of Coleman's former directors and officers providing coverage substantially similar to the policies in effect as of February 27, 1998. Neither Sunbeam nor Coleman will be required to pay an annual premium for such insurance in excess of 200% of the last annual premium paid by Coleman prior to the date of the merger agreement, but in such case will purchase as much coverage as possible for such amount. See "THE MERGER—Continuation of Existing Indemnification Rights."

Registration Rights Agreement. The shares of Sunbeam common stock issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary from which Sunbeam acquired indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock in the M&F Transaction were not registered under federal or state securities laws. Accordingly, in connection with the completion of the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam entered into a registration rights agreement with the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, permitting the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary and other affiliates of Coleman to require Sunbeam to register their shares of Sunbeam common stock under federal and applicable state securities laws. The registration rights agreement was subsequently amended in August 1998 to provide that the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary can also require Sunbeam to register the warrant and the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in connection with the settlement of legal claims related to the M&F Transaction. See "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Registration Rights Agreement."

Conversion of Coleman Common Stock

Upon completion of the merger, each outstanding share of Coleman common stock—other than shares held indirectly by Sunbeam and shares, if any, with respect to which Delaware appraisal rights are sought and perfected—will no longer be outstanding and will automatically be cancelled. After completion of the merger, you will no longer have any rights under the certificate representing your shares of Coleman common stock, except the right to receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed, a cash payment equal to the value of any fractional shares of Sunbeam common stock you would otherwise be entitled to receive upon surrender of the certificate, and warrants entitling you to purchase one share of Sunbeam common stock at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003 to be issued under the recent settlement of litigation relating to the merger. Under the terms of the settlement, you will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed, assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding shares of Coleman common stock prior to the completion of the merger as a result of further exercises of Coleman employee stock options. The number of warrants you will receive will be rounded up or down to the nearest whole number to avoid the issuance of fractional warrants. See "LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS."

Upon completion of the merger, all shares of Coleman common stock held indirectly by Sunbeam through Coleman Worldwide will remain outstanding and unchanged as a result of the merger. Each share of Coleman common stock, if any, held in the treasury of Coleman, by any subsidiary of Coleman, by Sunbeam or by any subsidiary of Sunbeam (other than Coleman Worldwide) immediately prior to the completion of the merger will be automatically cancelled. In addition, upon completion of the merger, each outstanding share of common stock of Camper Acquisition Corp., the wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam that will be merged with Coleman in the merger, will be automatically cancelled.

Exchange of Coleman Common Stock

The exchange of the shares of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed will occur as follows:

- upon completion of the merger, Sunbeam will deposit, with an exchange agent selected by Sunbeam, (1) certificates for the shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued to you in the merger; (2) cash sufficient to pay the cash portion of the merger consideration and any fractional share payments you are entitled to receive; and (3) warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock at a cash price of $7 per share to which you are entitled under the court-approved settlement of litigation relating to the merger;
- as soon as reasonably practicable after the completion of the merger, Sunbeam will cause the exchange agent to mail a letter of transmittal and exchange instructions to you;

- upon surrender of your Coleman common stock certificate(s) for cancellation to the exchange agent, together with a properly completed and duly executed letter of transmittal, you will receive, in exchange for your Coleman certificate(s), (1) a certificate for the shares of Sunbeam common stock you are entitled to receive in the merger, (2) a cash payment in respect of the cash portion of the merger consideration, after giving effect to any required withholding tax, and any fractional share payment you are entitled to receive, and (3) warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock at a cash price of $7 per share to which you are entitled under the court-approved litigation settlement relating to the merger based on the number of shares of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed; your certificate(s) will then be cancelled;
- until you surrender your Coleman stock certificates, you will not be entitled to vote the shares of Sunbeam common stock you are entitled to receive in the merger or receive any dividends or distributions with a record date after the completion of the merger with respect to such Sunbeam common stock, although any such dividends or distributions will accrue and be payable to you, without interest, upon surrender of your certificate(s); it should be noted, however, that Sunbeam does not pay, and is prohibited from paying under the bank credit facility, cash dividends;
- any merger consideration and warrants that remain undistributed for six months after the completion of the merger will be delivered to Sunbeam, upon demand, and any holders of unsurrendered Coleman common stock certificates may thereafter look only to Sunbeam, as general creditors, for payment of the merger consideration and warrants. In no event will Sunbeam, Coleman or the exchange agent be liable to any holder of unsurrendered certificates for any merger consideration or warrants that are delivered to a public official under applicable escheat laws; and
- upon completion of the merger, the stock transfer books of Coleman will be closed and no further transfer of shares of Coleman common stock will be made; if, after the completion of the merger, Coleman common stock certificates are presented to Coleman, they will be cancelled and exchanged for the merger consideration and warrants.

You should not forward your certificates to the exchange agent until you receive a letter of transmittal and exchange instructions.

No Fractional Shares or Warrants

No fractional shares of Sunbeam common stock or warrants will be issued to you, and no dividend, stock split or other change in the capital structure of Sunbeam will relate to any fractional shares. Any Coleman stockholder who would otherwise be entitled to fractional shares will not be entitled to vote or to exercise any rights of a security holder with respect to such fractional shares.

Instead of any fractional shares of Sunbeam common stock, each Coleman stockholder who would otherwise be entitled to a fraction of a share of Sunbeam common stock will be paid cash, without interest, in an amount equal to the fraction of a share of Sunbeam common stock to which such stockholder would otherwise be entitled, multiplied by the closing sale price of one share of Sunbeam common stock on the NYSE Composite Transactions Tape on the day of the completion of the merger, or, if shares of Sunbeam common stock are not so traded on that day, the closing sale price on the next preceding day on which the shares were traded on the NYSE. Shares of Coleman common stock of any holder represented by two or more certificates will be aggregated, and in no event will any holder of Coleman common stock be paid an amount of cash for fractional shares in respect of one or more than one share of Sunbeam common stock.

Instead of any fractional warrants, each Coleman stockholder who would otherwise be entitled to a fraction of a warrant will receive a number of whole warrants determined by rounding up or down to the nearest whole number.

Conditions

Under the terms of the merger agreement, the completion of the merger was subject to the following conditions: (1) this document had to be declared effective by the SEC, (2) the shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued by Sunbeam in the merger had to be listed for trading on the NYSE, and (3) the M&F

Transaction had to be completed. All of these conditions have already been satisfied. Therefore, assuming that no court order is entered which prevents the merger from being completed, the merger will be completed on or about January 6, 2000, which is the twenty-first business day following the date on which this document was first mailed to you.

Governmental And Regulatory Approvals

Completion of the M&F Transaction was conditioned on the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended. On March 4, 1998, Sunbeam and Ronald O. Perelman, as the then ultimate parent of Coleman, filed notifications and report forms under the HSR Act with the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice relating to the M&F Transaction and the merger. The applicable waiting period under the HSR Act was terminated on March 27, 1998. However, notwithstanding the termination of the waiting period under the HSR Act, the FTC, the Antitrust Division, a state or a private person or entity could seek under federal or state antitrust laws, among other things, to enjoin or rescind the M&F Transaction or the merger. Although Sunbeam and Coleman believe that the M&F Transaction and the merger do not violate United States antitrust laws, there can be no assurance that if such a challenge is made, it would not be successful.

In addition to the filings under the HSR Act, Sunbeam and Coleman filed a pre-merger notification form with the German Federal Cartel Office relating to the M&F Transaction and the merger, which was approved by the Federal Cartel Office on March 20, 1998. Neither Sunbeam nor Coleman is aware of any other material approval or other action by any governmental, administrative or regulatory agency or authority, domestic or foreign, that would be required in order to complete the merger.

Employee Matters

Sunbeam agreed that, from and after the completion of the M&F Transaction, it would honor, and cause Coleman to honor, all employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which Coleman was a party on that date. Accordingly, all rights and obligations of Coleman under these agreements became rights and obligations of Sunbeam. However, neither Sunbeam nor Coleman has any responsibility for Coleman's obligations under the former employment agreements between Coleman and Jerry W. Levin, Coleman's then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, and Paul E. Shapiro, Coleman's then Executive Vice President and General Counsel, except in the case of Mr. Levin for an incentive payment in the amount of $1.5 million due from Coleman (and subsequently paid) related to the sale of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc. to an unrelated third party, which transaction was pending at the time the merger agreement was signed. The former employment agreements with Messrs. Levin and Shapiro were terminated upon completion of the M&F Transaction. Sunbeam agreed to cause Coleman to allow Coleman employees to participate in Sunbeam employee benefit plans; from and after the completion of the M&F Transaction, on substantially the same basis as similarly situated Sunbeam employees. With respect to welfare benefit plans, Sunbeam also agreed to waive any pre-existing condition limitations and give effect, in determining any deductible and maximum out-of-pocket limitations, to claims incurred and amounts paid by, and reimbursed to, those employees with respect to similar plans maintained by Coleman. Sunbeam has, or has caused Coleman to, give Coleman employees full credit for purposes of eligibility and vesting of benefits and benefit accrual for service with Coleman and its affiliates prior to the completion of the M&F Transaction under each employee benefit plan, so long as such crediting of service did not result in duplication of benefits. See "—Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger."

The M&F Transaction constituted a "change in control" of Coleman under some Coleman employee benefit plans and employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements. Except as noted above with respect to the employment agreements of Messrs. Levin and Shapiro, Sunbeam agreed to cause Coleman to pay all amounts provided under these employee benefit plans and agreements as a result of the change in control of Coleman in accordance with their respective terms and to honor, and to cause Coleman to honor, all rights, privileges and modifications to or with respect to any such employee benefit plans of Coleman or agreements which became effective as a result of the change in control. See "—Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger."

Sunbeam caused Coleman to continue Coleman's Annual Incentive Plan for Management Employees for the remainder of 1998, and participants in the Management Incentive Plan were not eligible to participate in Sunbeam's incentive plan in respect of 1998. Under the terms of the Management Incentive Plan, participants were eligible for cash bonuses payable upon the attainment of certain performance goals, which performance goals were determined by reference to (1) earnings before interest, taxes and amortization, (2) operating working capital per sales dollar and (3) other quantitative goals as approved from time to time. Cash bonuses paid were equal to a percentage of a participant's base salary, depending on the percentage of the target attained by Coleman. Coleman paid a total of about $2.9 million to participants in the Management Incentive Plan with respect to 1998. Eligible participants include select employees of Coleman and its subsidiaries who are (1) designated to participate by the Chief Executive Officer of Coleman, (2) are employed prior to the start of the last fiscal quarter in the plan year and (3) are not participants in another short-term incentive program of Coleman.

Sunbeam will honor, and will cause Coleman to honor, Coleman's Executive Severance Policy without any amendments adverse to participants. The Coleman Executive Severance Policy applies to certain terminations of employment of employees of Coleman and its subsidiaries who are participants in Coleman's Management Incentive Plan or who are in the position of country general manager/president and above. Participation in the Executive Severance Policy is limited to those participants in the Management Incentive Plan described above. Benefits are payable to a participant in the event of a termination of the participant's employment by Coleman within three years following the M&F Transaction other than for Cause (as defined in the Executive Severance Policy) or by the participant with Good Reason (as defined in the Executive Severance Policy). The benefits payable under the Executive Severance Policy generally include the following:

- salary continuation for twelve, nine or six months, depending on the participant's level of participation in the Management Incentive Plan;
- medical and/or dental coverage under COBRA until the end of the severance period at the same contribution level in effect for active participants, with Coleman paying the portion of the premiums it was paying for such participant prior to the M&F Transaction;
- in the event of a termination prior to December 31, 1998, a pro rata payment under the Management Incentive Plan through the date of such termination;
- a lump sum cash payment in an amount equal to the aggregate benefit that the participant would have accrued had he or she remained employed during the severance period under Coleman's qualified defined benefit retirement plans and its excess or supplemental defined benefit retirement plans, less any actual vested benefit of the participant under such plans;
- a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the value of the participant's accrued vacation, determined in accordance with Coleman's vacation policy; and
- an additional payment to hold the participant harmless from the excise taxes imposed by sections 280G and 4999 of the tax code, if the severance payments and benefits payable under the Executive Severance Policy exceed certain minimum thresholds.

In addition, any participant who was a party to an employment contract or other written agreement with Coleman was entitled to choose between the severance benefits, if any, payable under such contract and the severance benefits payable under the Executive Severance Policy.

Since the ninety-first day following completion of the M&F Transaction, some of the participants in the Executive Severance Policy have been entitled to voluntarily terminate their employment with Coleman and to have such termination deemed to be for Good Reason under the Executive Severance Policy, as a result of the completion of the M&F Transaction.

Since the date of the M&F Transaction, Coleman has paid or become obligated to pay about $4.2 million to participants under the Executive Severance Policy.

For the benefit of those employees of Coleman who were not participants in the Executive Severance Policy and who did not have employment agreements with Coleman, Sunbeam provided severance benefits under Sunbeam's Severance Pay Plan on substantially the same basis as similarly situated Sunbeam employees. To date, Sunbeam has made aggregate payments of about $470,000 to former Coleman employees under the Sunbeam Severance Pay Plan. Under the terms of the Severance Pay Plan, a participant who is a Coleman employee and whose employment is terminated as the direct result of the closure of a facility or the elimination of the participant's position will be entitled to receive the following severance benefits:

- a lump sum cash payment in an amount equal to (1) six months', three months' or six weeks' base pay, depending on the number of years of service, in the case of an exempt employee or (2) one week of base pay for each completed year of service, in the case of a non-exempt employee; and
- health coverage under COBRA until the end of the severance pay period at the same contribution level in effect for active participants, with Sunbeam paying the same portion of the premiums that it would pay for active participants.

Continuation of Existing Indemnification Rights

For a period of six years after the completion of the merger, and during the period between the completion of the M&F Transaction and the completion of the merger, Sunbeam agreed to indemnify directors and officers of Coleman in office at or prior to the completion of the merger in connection with any threatened or actual legal proceeding to the fullest extent allowed by Delaware law, the Coleman Certificate of Incorporation, the Coleman By-laws and any indemnification agreement in effect at the date of the merger agreement, including any provisions relating to advancement of expenses. This indemnification does not, however, extend to any legal proceeding initiated against Coleman by an indemnified person unless the proceeding was (1) authorized by the Coleman board of directors or (2) brought by an indemnified person to enforce his or her right to indemnification under the merger agreement. In addition, the right to indemnification under the merger agreement extends only to legal proceedings arising from:

- the fact that the indemnified person was a director or officer of Coleman or was serving at the request of Coleman as a director, officer, employee or agent of another entity, or
- the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction, the merger agreement or any of the transactions contemplated by those agreements.

Moreover, the right to indemnification provided by the merger agreement extends only to claims which pertain to matters arising, existing or occurring prior to or at the completion of the merger. To give rise to an indemnification right, however, the claim need not have been asserted prior to the completion of the merger. If any claim is asserted against an indemnified person within the period during which indemnification is provided, all rights to indemnification under the merger agreement continue until disposition of the claim. In the event any indemnified person becomes involved in a legal proceeding after the completion of the merger, Sunbeam will, or will cause Coleman to, periodically advance legal and other expenses to the indemnified person, including the cost of any investigation and preparation incurred in connection with the legal proceeding. However, as a condition to advancement of expenses, the indemnified person must provide Sunbeam with an undertaking to reimburse all amounts so advanced in the event that the indemnified person is determined not to be entitled to indemnification.

Sunbeam and Coleman also agreed that all rights to indemnification, and all limitations with respect to indemnification, existing in favor of any indemnified person, as provided in the Coleman Certificate of Incorporation, the Coleman By-Laws or any indemnification agreement in effect at the date of the merger agreement, will survive the merger and will, to the extent permitted by Delaware law, continue in full force and effect, without any amendment, for a period of six years after the completion of the merger and during the period from the completion of the M&F Transaction to the completion of the merger. If any claim is asserted against any indemnified person within that period, all rights to indemnification will continue until final disposition of the legal proceeding. Any determination required to be made with respect to whether an indemnified person's conduct complies with the standards set forth under Delaware law, the Coleman certificate of incorporation, the Coleman by-laws or any agreement, as the case may be, will be made by independent legal counsel selected by the indemnified person and reasonably acceptable to Sunbeam.

Sunbeam also agreed that, from and after the completion of the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam or Coleman will maintain, for a period of not less than six years after the completion of the merger, a liability insurance policy for the benefit of Coleman's former directors and officers providing coverage substantially similar to the policies in place prior to the completion of the M&F Transaction. However, neither Sunbeam nor Coleman will be required to pay an annual premium for this insurance which exceeds 200% of the last annual premium paid by Coleman prior to the date of the merger agreement. In the event that the premium does exceed that amount, Sunbeam or Coleman will purchase as much coverage as possible for such amount.

Accounting Treatment

The merger will be accounted for under the "purchase" method of accounting in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Therefore, the aggregate consideration paid by Sunbeam in the merger and in the M&F Transaction will be allocated to Coleman's assets and liabilities based upon their fair market value with any excess being treated as excess of investment over net assets acquired or "goodwill". The assets and liabilities and results of operations of Coleman have been consolidated for financial accounting (but not tax) purposes with the assets and liabilities and results of operations of Sunbeam since the completion of the M&F Transaction.

Stock Exchange Listing

The NYSE has approved for listing on the NYSE the shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued to Coleman stockholders in the merger, subject to official notice of issuance. Sunbeam intends to file an application with the NYSE to list the shares of Sunbeam common stock that will be issued when the warrants are exercised. For a description of matters relating to the continued listing of Sunbeam common stock on the NYSE, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—New York Stock Exchange Listing."

Delisting and Deregistration of Coleman Common Stock

Upon completion of the merger, there will no longer be any publicly held shares of Coleman common stock and the Coleman common stock will be delisted from the NYSE, the Pacific Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange and deregistered under the Exchange Act. For a description of matters relating to the continued listing of Coleman common stock on the NYSE, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING COLEMAN."

Ownership of Coleman Common Stock

At the close of business on December 3, 1999, there were outstanding 55,827,490 shares of Coleman common stock held by about 548 holders of record. In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam became the indirect beneficial owner of 44,067,520 shares of Coleman common stock, representing about 81% of the then outstanding shares of Coleman common stock. As a result of option exercises by employees and former employees of Coleman immediately following the completion of the M&F Transaction, these shares represent about 79% of the currently outstanding shares of Coleman common stock. On July 12, 1999, Sunbeam acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock acquired by Sunbeam in the M&F Transaction, enable Sunbeam to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock.

The table below shows the number of shares of Coleman common stock owned by each of the current directors and officers of Coleman and the percentage of the outstanding Coleman common stock which these shares represent.

At its February 27, 1998 meeting, the then Coleman board of directors unanimously approved the merger agreement. See "—Coleman's Reasons for the Merger and Approval of the Coleman Board." Since the completion of the M&F Transaction, however, the composition of Coleman's management and board of directors has changed significantly. See "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—M&F Transaction." Mr. Levin voted on February 27, 1998 as a member of the Coleman board of directors to approve the merger agreement. However, neither Mr. Levin nor any other director or officer of Coleman is currently making any recommendation to Coleman stockholders regarding the merger.

Since January 1, 1996, Coleman has completed one purchase of Coleman common stock. On March 1, 1996, Coleman purchased 50,000 shares of Coleman common stock (or 100,000 shares, adjusted for the two-for-one stock split of Coleman common stock on June 28, 1996) in the open market at a purchase price of $46.54 per share ($23.26 per share, as adjusted), or an aggregate of $2.33 million. On May 23, 1997, Coleman Worldwide commenced an offer to accept for exchange its Liquid Yield Option™ Notes due 2013 ("LYONs") for cash at a price equal to their redemption price of $343.61 per $1,000 principal amount at maturity. The LYONs were exchangeable for shares of Coleman common stock at the rate of 15.706 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of LYONs. The holders of $545,053,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity of LYONs out of the $561,553,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity then outstanding accepted Coleman Worldwide's offer, which expired on June 20, 1997. On April 20, 1998, Coleman Worldwide gave notice of its intention to redeem all LYONs remaining outstanding on May 27, 1998 for cash at their redemption price of $343.61 per $1,000 principal amount at maturity, unless, prior to that date, the holders of the LYONs elected to exchange their LYONs for shares of Coleman common stock. All of the LYONs that remained outstanding on May 27, 1998 were redeemed by Coleman Worldwide.

Ownership Interest of Coleman Stockholders in Sunbeam After the Merger

Based on the number of shares of Sunbeam common stock and Coleman common stock outstanding on December 3, 1999 and assuming no Coleman stockholders exercise their Delaware law appraisal rights, upon completion of the merger there will be about 107,578,527 shares of Sunbeam common stock outstanding, of which the former stockholders of Coleman, including a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes, will own about 19.3%. The former holders of Coleman common stock will own about 36% of the outstanding Sunbeam common stock after the merger, assuming the exercise of (1) the warrant issued to a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in settlement of threatened legal claims related to the M&F Transaction and (2) the warrants to be issued to the Coleman minority stockholders upon completion of the merger under the recent settlement of litigation related to the merger.

Expenses

All costs and expenses incurred in connection with the M&F Transaction and the merger will be paid by the party incurring such expenses.

Sunbeam and Coleman have incurred, and will incur, fees and expenses in connection with the M&F Transaction and the merger, including filing fees in connection with the registration of the shares to be issued in connection with the merger and upon exercise of the warrants and other required filings, fees of counsel, accountants' fees and printing costs. These expenses are estimated to be as follows:

Financial advisory fees	$13,600,000
Legal fees and expenses	2,000,000
Accounting fees and expenses	700,000
Filing fees	67,669
Printing and mailing	350,000
Miscellaneous	20,000
TOTAL	$16,737,669

UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS

The following discussion is a summary of the anticipated material United States Federal income tax consequences of the merger to a holder of Coleman common stock (a "holder"). The discussion is based on laws, regulations, rulings and decisions in effect on the date of mailing of this document, all of which are subject to change, possibly with retroactive effect. This discussion deals only with holders who hold their shares of Coleman common stock as capital assets and does not address all aspects of United States Federal taxation that may be relevant to particular holders in light of their personal circumstances or to holders (1) who are not citizens or residents of the United States, (2) who may be subject to special tax rules, such as rules relating to financial institutions and banks, tax-exempt organizations, insurance companies, dealers in securities, and persons who hold Coleman common stock as part of a hedge, conversion or constructive sale transaction, straddle or other risk reduction transaction (3) who perfect their appraisal rights under Delaware law, or (4) who acquired their shares of Coleman common stock pursuant to the exercise of employee stock options or other compensation arrangements with Coleman. In addition, the discussion does not address the tax consequences of the merger arising under the laws of any state, local or foreign jurisdiction.

Each holder of Coleman common stock is urged to consult its own tax advisor with respect to the particular tax consequences of the merger to such holder.

The receipt of the cash, Sunbeam common stock and warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock upon completion of the merger is expected to be a taxable transaction for United States Federal income tax purposes and may also be a taxable transaction under applicable state, local, foreign and other tax laws. In general, for United States Federal income tax purposes, a holder will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between (1) the sum of cash, the fair market value of the Sunbeam common stock received in exchange for such holder's shares of Coleman common stock, and the fair market value of the warrants to purchase additional shares of Sunbeam common stock and (2) the adjusted tax basis of such shares of Coleman common stock. This gain or loss will be capital gain or loss and will be long-term capital gain or loss if the shares have been held for more than twelve months.

LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS

Beginning on June 25, 1998, several class action lawsuits were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware by minority stockholders of Coleman against Coleman, Sunbeam and several of Coleman's former officers and directors. These actions were later consolidated into a single class action lawsuit. The class action alleged, among other things, that the consideration to be paid to the minority stockholders of Coleman under the February 1998 merger agreement was no longer fair as a result of the decline in the market price of Sunbeam's common stock. See "BUSINESS OF SUNBEAM—Litigation and Other Contingent Liabilities."

On October 21, 1998, Sunbeam announced that it had entered into a memorandum of understanding to settle the class action, subject to court approval. On August 6, 1999, a stipulation of settlement was executed and on August 25, 1999, notice of the settlement and of a September 29, 1999 hearing in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware to consider approval of the settlement was mailed to the members of the class (consisting of all Coleman stockholders owning shares at any time from February 27, 1998 until the date of the merger other than Coleman Worldwide). The Court held a hearing on September 29, 1999 and approved the settlement on November 12, 1999.

Under the terms of the settlement, Sunbeam will issue to the Coleman minority stockholders and their litigation counsel warrants expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase about 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Each Coleman minority stockholder will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock owned by such stockholder when the merger is completed, assuming the number of outstanding shares of Coleman common stock does not increase prior to the completion of the merger as a result of further exercises of Coleman employee stock options. Warrants will be issued when the merger is completed to all Coleman stockholders of record as of the completion of the merger, other than Coleman Worldwide and those stockholders who choose to dissent from the merger and have the fair value of their shares appraised by a court, and to counsel for the Coleman minority stockholders in the litigation as their court-awarded fee.

The warrants will be freely transferrable and are exempt from registration under the Securities Act. The shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued upon exercise of the warrants will be freely transferrable and will be registered under the Securities Act. Sunbeam intends to file an application with the NYSE to list the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrants. In the settlement, all members of the class released Coleman, Sunbeam, MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates and the former and present directors of Coleman from all claims arising out of or relating to the merger, other than their Delaware law appraisal rights.

The number of warrants that each Coleman minority stockholder will receive will be based on the number of shares of Coleman common stock owned by the stockholder at the time of the merger and will be equal to the product of (A) 4,979,663, less the 497,966 warrants awarded by the court to counsel for the Coleman minority stockholders in the litigation as their fee and (B) a fraction, the numerator of which is equal to the number of shares of Coleman common stock held by such stockholder immediately prior to the merger (other than any shares with respect to which Delaware law appraisal rights have been exercised) and the denominator of which is equal to the total number of shares of Coleman common stock outstanding and owned by Coleman minority stockholders at the time of the merger (approximately 11,759,970 shares assuming no further exercises of Coleman options).

The warrants to be issued under the settlement will have the same terms as the warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes, in August 1998 in the settlement of its claims against Sunbeam. The number of warrants to be issued in the settlement (4,979,663) was determined by multiplying the number of shares issuable upon exercise of the warrant received by Coleman (Parent) Holdings (23,000,000) by a fraction of which the numerator is the number of Coleman shares owned by its minority stockholders on February 27, 1998 (9,540,930) and the denominator is the number of Coleman shares then owned by Coleman (Parent) Holdings (44,067,520). Since February 27, 1998, the number of Coleman shares held by the Coleman stockholders entitled to receive warrants in the settlement has increased to 11,759,970 through exercises of previously granted Coleman employee stock options, but the settlement did not provide for any increase in the number of warrants to be issued thereunder as a result of the issuance of Coleman shares after February 27, 1998.

No fractional warrants will be issued in the merger. A Coleman public stockholder who would otherwise be entitled to receive fractional warrants will receive a number of warrants determined by rounding up or down to the nearest whole number of warrants.

General. The warrants to be issued in the merger will be issued under a Warrant Agreement to be entered into prior to the completion of the merger by Sunbeam and The Bank of New York, as Warrant Agent. The description of the Warrant Agreement contained in this document does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the form of Warrant Agreement, a copy of which, including the form of warrant certificate, is included as an exhibit to the registration statement of which this document forms a part.

Each warrant issued in the merger will be evidenced by a warrant certificate which will entitle the warrant holder, at any time prior to August 24, 2003, to purchase one share of Sunbeam common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share. Warrants that are not exercised prior to that date will expire and become void.

Exercise of Warrants. In order to exercise any or all of your warrants, you will be required to surrender to The Bank of New York, as Warrant Agent: (1) the warrant certificate, (2) a duly executed copy of the exercise subscription form set forth in the warrant certificate and (3) payment in full of the exercise price for each share of Sunbeam common stock as to which the warrants are exercised. Payment may be made in cash (including wire transfer of immediately available funds) or by certified or official bank check or bank cashier's check payable to the order of Sunbeam Corporation.

Upon the exercise of any warrants in accordance with the Warrant Agreement, Sunbeam will transfer the appropriate number of shares of Sunbeam common stock to the warrant holder or to a designee specified by the warrant holder. All shares of Sunbeam common stock issued upon the exercise of warrants will be validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable.

Antidilution Provisions. The number of shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of each warrant is subject to adjustments in the event that Sunbeam, among other things: (1) pays a dividend or makes any other distribution in shares of Sunbeam common stock, (2) subdivides the Sunbeam common stock, (3) combines the Sunbeam common stock into a smaller number of shares, (4) issues any shares of Sunbeam common stock in a reclassification (including any reclassification in connection with a merger, consolidation or other business combination in which Sunbeam is the continuing corporation), (5) distributes, by dividend or otherwise, options, rights or warrants to purchase any such securities, cash or other assets, (6) issues non-convertible and non-exchangeable preferred stock (or other debt or equity securities or evidences of indebtedness of Sunbeam or options, rights or warrants to purchase any of such securities) at a price per share that is lower (at the record date for the issuance) than the fair market value of the shares or other securities issued, (7) repurchases, by self-tender offer or otherwise, any shares of Sunbeam common stock (or options, rights or warrants to purchase shares of Sunbeam common stock or any securities convertible into or exchangeable for Sunbeam common stock) at a price per share that is higher (at the record date for the issuance) than the then current market value per share of Sunbeam common stock or (8) repurchases, by self-tender offer or otherwise, any non-convertible and non-exchangeable preferred stock (or other debt or equity securities or evidences of indebtedness of Sunbeam or options, rights or warrants to purchase any of such securities) at a price per share that is higher (at the record date for the issuance) than the fair market value of the shares or other securities repurchased.

No fractional shares will be issued upon exercise of warrants. In the event of any transaction in which Sunbeam stockholders receive stock, securities, cash or other assets in exchange for their Sunbeam common stock, each warrant holder will, upon exercise of the warrant at any time after the transaction, have the right to the stock, securities, cash or other assets the warrant holder would have been entitled to receive if the warrant had been exercised immediately prior to the transaction.

No Stock Rights. Prior to the exercise of his or her warrants, no warrant holder will be entitled to vote or be deemed the holder of the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrants and will have no rights of a stockholder of Sunbeam.

APPRAISAL RIGHTS

Under Delaware law, Coleman stockholders have appraisal rights in connection with the merger. Any stockholder who is eligible to exercise appraisal rights and properly does so will be paid in cash the "fair value" (exclusive of any element of value arising from the accomplishment or expectation of the merger) for his or her shares of Coleman common stock as determined by the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware. Any shares of Coleman common stock for which a written demand for appraisal is properly filed and not withdrawn in accordance with the procedures set forth under Delaware law, except any shares as to which the holder effectively withdraws or loses the right to appraisal and payment for such shares prior to the effective time of the merger, are referred to in this document as "Dissenting Shares."

Any holder of Dissenting Shares will be paid the "fair value" of the shares, as described below, and will not receive, upon completion of the merger, cash, shares of Sunbeam common stock and warrants payable in the merger, as described in "THE MERGER—Conversion of Coleman Common Stock."

Only holders of record of Coleman common stock who are eligible for appraisal rights and comply with the applicable statutory procedures summarized in this document will be entitled to appraisal rights under Delaware law. A person having a beneficial interest in shares of Coleman common stock held of record in the name of another person, such as a broker or nominee, must act promptly to cause the record holder to follow the steps summarized below properly and in a timely manner to perfect appraisal rights.

The following discussion is not a complete statement of the law pertaining to appraisal rights under Delaware law and is qualified in its entirety by the full text of Section 262 of the general Corporation Law of the State of Delaware which is reprinted in its entirety as Annex II at the back of this document. All references in Section 262 and in this summary to a "stockholder" or "holder" are to the record holders of Dissenting Shares.

Under Delaware law, when a merger is approved by written consent in lieu of a stockholders meeting under Section 228 of Delaware law, as the merger was, each constituent corporation, either before the effective date of the merger or within ten days after that date, must notify each holder of any class or series of stock of the constituent corporation that is entitled to appraisal rights of the approval of the merger and the availability of appraisal rights for any or all shares of that class or series of stock, and must include in the notice a copy of Section 262 of Delaware law.

This document constitutes the required notice to the stockholders of Coleman and the applicable statutory provisions of Delaware law are attached as Annex II at the back of this document. Any stockholder who wishes to exercise his or her appraisal rights or who wishes to preserve his or her right to do so should review the following discussion and Annex II carefully, because failure to timely and properly comply with the procedures specified will result in the loss of appraisal rights under Delaware law.

A Coleman stockholder wishing to exercise appraisal rights must deliver to Coleman, within twenty days after the date of mailing of this document, or by December 27, 1999, a written demand for appraisal of such holder's shares of Coleman common stock. Written demands received after that date will be disregarded. This demand must reasonably inform Coleman of the identity of the stockholder and of the stockholder's intent to demand appraisal of his or her shares of Coleman common stock. A holder of Coleman common stock wishing to exercise his or her appraisal rights must be the holder of record of the Coleman common stock on the date the written demand for appraisal is made and must continue to hold the Coleman common stock until the completion of the merger. Accordingly, a Coleman stockholder who is the holder of record of Coleman common stock on the date the written demand for appraisal is made, but who subsequently transfers the Coleman common stock prior to completion of the merger, will lose any right to appraisal of such holder's shares of Coleman common stock. Similarly, any person who acquires Coleman common stock after December 27, 1999 will not be entitled to appraisal rights.

Only a stockholder of record is entitled to assert appraisal rights for the Coleman common stock registered in that holder's name. A demand for appraisal should be executed by or on behalf of the holder of record, fully and correctly, as the holder's name appears on the holder's stock certificates. If the Coleman common stock is held of record in a fiduciary capacity, such as by a trustee, guardian or custodian, execution of the demand should be made in that capacity. If the Coleman common stock is held of record by more than one owner, as in a joint tenancy or tenancy in common, the demand should be executed by or on behalf of all joint owners. An authorized agent, including one or more joint owners, may execute a demand for appraisal on behalf of a holder of record. However, the agent must identify the holder of record and expressly disclose the fact that, in executing the demand, the agent is agent for the holder. A holder of record, such as a broker who holds Coleman common stock as nominee for several beneficial owners, may exercise appraisal rights with respect to the Coleman common stock held for one or more beneficial owners while not exercising appraisal rights with respect to the Coleman common stock held for other beneficial owners. In that case, the written demand should set forth the number of shares of Coleman common stock as to which appraisal is sought. When no number of shares of Coleman common stock is expressly mentioned, the demand will be presumed to cover all shares of Coleman common stock in brokerage accounts or other nominee forms. Those stockholders whose shares of Coleman common stock are held in brokerage accounts or other nominee forms who wish to exercise appraisal rights under Delaware law are urged to consult with their brokers or nominees to determine the appropriate procedures for the making of a demand for appraisal.

All written demands for appraisal should be sent or delivered to The Coleman Company, Inc., 2111 E. 37th Street North P.O. Box 2931, Wichita, Kansas 67201, Attention: Corporate Secretary.

Within 120 days after the completion of the merger, but not after that date, the surviving corporation in the merger, or any stockholder who has complied with the statutory requirements summarized above, may file a petition in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware demanding a determination of the fair value of the Dissenting Shares. Coleman, as the surviving corporation in the merger, is under no obligation, and Coleman has no present intention, to file a petition for the appraisal of the fair value of the Dissenting

Shares. Accordingly, it is the obligation of stockholders wishing to assert appraisal rights to initiate all necessary action to perfect their appraisal rights within the time prescribed in Section 262 of Delaware law.

Within 120 days after the completion of the merger, any stockholder who has complied with the requirements for exercise of appraisal rights will be entitled, upon written request, to receive from Coleman a statement setting forth the aggregate number of Dissenting Shares as to which demands for appraisal have been received and the aggregate number of holders of those Dissenting Shares. Such statements must be mailed within ten days after a written request therefor has been received by Coleman.

If a petition for an appraisal is timely filed, after a hearing on the petition, the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware will determine the stockholders entitled to appraisal rights and will appraise the "fair value" of their Dissenting Shares, exclusive of any element of value arising from the accomplishment or expectation of the merger, together with a fair rate of interest, if any, to be paid upon the amount determined to be the fair value. Stockholders considering seeking appraisal should be aware that the fair value of their Dissenting Shares as determined under Section 262 of Delaware law could be more than, the same as or less than the value of the merger consideration they are entitled to receive under the merger agreement if they do not seek appraisal of their shares of Coleman common stock and that investment banking opinions as to fairness from a financial point of view are not necessarily opinions as to fair value under Section 262 of Delaware law. The Supreme Court of the State of Delaware has stated that "proof of value by any techniques or methods which are generally considered acceptable in the financial community and otherwise admissible in court" should be considered in the appraisal proceedings.

The Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware will determine the amount of interest, if any, to be paid upon the amounts to be received by stockholders whose Dissenting Shares have been appraised. The costs of the action may be determined by the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware and imposed upon the parties as the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware deems equitable. The Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware may also order that all or a portion of the expenses incurred by any stockholder in connection with an appraisal, including reasonable attorneys' fees and the fees and expenses of experts utilized in the appraisal proceeding, be charged pro rata against the value of all of the Dissenting Shares entitled to appraisal.

Any holder of Coleman common stock who has duly demanded an appraisal in compliance with Section 262 of Delaware law will not, after the completion of the merger, be entitled to vote the Dissenting Shares for any purpose or be entitled to the payment of dividends or other distributions on those Dissenting Shares.

If any stockholder who properly demands appraisal of Coleman common stock under Section 262 of Delaware law fails to perfect, or effectively withdraws or loses, the right to appraisal, as provided in Section 262 of Delaware law, the shares of Coleman common stock owned by such stockholder upon completion of the merger will be converted into the right to receive the cash, stock and warrants referred to above. A stockholder will fail to perfect, or effectively lose or withdraw, the right to appraisal if, among other things, no petition for appraisal is filed within 120 days after the completion of the merger, or if the stockholder delivers to Coleman a written withdrawal of the demand for appraisal. Any attempt to withdraw an appraisal demand more than sixty days after the completion of the merger will require the written approval of Coleman.

SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION

General. The total amount of funds and other consideration required by Sunbeam to complete the merger and to pay related expenses is about $103,737,669 in cash, 6,676,135 shares of Sunbeam common stock and warrants to purchase about 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock, assuming all outstanding Coleman stock options are cashed out in the merger and no Coleman stockholders exercise their Delaware law appraisal rights.

Bank Credit Facility. Sunbeam expects to obtain the cash portion of the merger consideration and amounts necessary to pay related expenses from cash on hand and additional borrowings under its bank credit facility. Sunbeam's bank credit facility, as amended, provides for aggregate borrowings of up to $1,700 million under: (1) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million, maturing on March 30, 2005, of which $52.5 million may be used only to complete the merger; (2) up to $800 million in Tranche A term loans maturing on March 30, 2005, of which $35 million may be used only to complete the merger; and (3) a Tranche B $500 million term loan maturing on September 30, 2006, of which $5.0 million has already been repaid through September 30, 1999. Absent a further extension by Sunbeam's bank lenders of the April 15, 1999 waiver or a refinancing of the bank credit facility, the foregoing maturities could be accelerated by Sunbeam's bank lenders at any time after April 10, 2000.

Under the bank credit facility, interest accrues, at Sunbeam's option: (1) at LIBOR; or (2) at the base rate of the administrative agent, which is generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%, in each case, plus, an interest rate margin which varies depending upon the occurrence of specified events. These events relate to:

- the execution and delivery by Coleman and its domestic subsidiaries of guarantees and related security documents which will become effective upon the completion of the merger;
- the filing with the SEC of this document;
- the completion of the merger; and
- the reduction of the bank lenders' commitment and loan exposure under the bank credit facility.

The interest rate margin is currently 4.00% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans and is subject to potential decreases in the future, including a decrease to 3.00% for LIBOR loans and 1.75% for base rate loans upon consummation of the merger and the effectiveness of the pledge of substantially all of Coleman's and its domestic subsidiaries' assets to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility.

Security and Guarantees. Borrowings under the bank credit facility are secured by a pledge of the stock of Sunbeam's material subsidiaries, including Coleman and by a security interest in substantially all of the assets of Sunbeam and its material domestic subsidiaries, other than Coleman and its subsidiaries except as described below. Currently, Coleman's inventory and related assets are pledged to secure its obligations for letters of credit issued for its account under the bank credit facility. Additionally, as security for Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam, Coleman pledged substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property, including 66% of its ownership interests in Coleman's direct foreign subsidiaries and domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries and all of its ownership interests in other direct domestic subsidiaries (but not the assets of any of these subsidiaries). The pledge runs in favor of Sunbeam's lending banks, to which the Coleman note has been pledged as security for Sunbeam's obligations to them. The Coleman note, by its terms, will not be affected by the completion of the merger. Upon completion of the merger, substantially all of Coleman's assets and the assets of Coleman's domestic subsidiaries will be pledged to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility.

Borrowings under the bank credit facility are guaranteed by a number of Sunbeam's wholly owned material domestic subsidiaries and these subsidiary guarantees are secured as described above. Upon completion of the merger, Coleman and each of its domestic subsidiaries will become guarantors of the obligations under the bank credit facility. To the extent extensions of credit are made by any subsidiaries of Sunbeam, the obligations of these subsidiaries are guaranteed by Sunbeam.

Repayment and Refinancing. Sunbeam has made no decision with respect to the repayment or refinancing of indebtedness incurred or to be incurred under the bank credit facility and may repay this indebtedness out of its internally generated funds or from proceeds of a subsequent financing. Any decisions with respect to such repayment or refinancing will be made based on a review from time to time of the advisability of particular transactions, as well as on prevailing interest rates and financial and economic conditions.

Covenants. The bank credit facility contains covenants customary for credit facilities of a similar nature, including limitations on the ability of Sunbeam and its subsidiaries, including Coleman, to, among other things:

- declare dividends or repurchase stock;
- prepay, redeem or repurchase debt, incur liens and engage in sale-leaseback transactions;

021202

- make loans and investments;
- incur additional debt, including revolving loans under the bank credit facility;
- amend or otherwise alter material agreements or enter into restrictive agreements;
- make capital and Year 2000 compliance expenditures;
- engage in mergers, acquisitions and asset sales;
- engage in certain transactions with affiliates;
- alter its fiscal year or accounting policies;
- enter into hedging agreements;
- settle certain litigation;
- alter its cash management system; and
- alter the businesses they conduct.

Sunbeam is also required to comply with specified financial covenants and ratios. As a result of Sunbeam's operating losses, among other things, at June 30, 1998 Sunbeam was not in compliance with these financial covenants and other terms of its bank credit facility. As of June 30, 1998, Sunbeam entered into an agreement with its bank lenders which waived Sunbeam's compliance through December 31, 1998. On October 19, 1998, Sunbeam's bank lenders agreed to extend this waiver through April 10, 1999. In April 1999, the waiver was extended to April 10, 2000, and the bank credit facility was amended to, among other things:

- require Sunbeam to meet new financial tests and ratios;
- decrease the interest rate margins to 3.75% for LIBOR loans and 2.5% for base rate loans;
- further reduce the interest rate margins to 3.25% for LIBOR loans and 2.00% for base rate loans as a result of Sunbeam's satisfaction on May 14, 1999 of the agreed upon conditions to this reduction. However, such margins increased to 3.50% for LIBOR loans and 2.25% for base rate loans on September 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date and increased to 4.00% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans on October 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date;
- defer until April 10, 2000 principal payments of $69.3 million otherwise due September 30, 1999 and principal payments of $69.3 million otherwise due March 31, 2000, as a result of the satisfaction by Sunbeam on May 14, 1999 of the agreed upon conditions to this deferral;
- provide that the following events relating to the merger will be events of default under the bank credit facility:
 - if Sunbeam fails to have the SEC declare this document effective by October 30, 1999 (which was subsequently amended to January 10, 2000);
 - if Sunbeam fails to complete the merger within 25 business days after this document is declared effective by the SEC; or
 - if Sunbeam has to pay more than $87.5 million in cash to complete the merger, including any payments on account of the exercise of any appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses;
- require Sunbeam and Coleman to amend Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam and to have Coleman secure the note, which is pledged by Sunbeam to secure the obligations under Sunbeam's bank credit facility, with substantially all of Coleman's domestic assets other than real property including 66% of its ownership interests in Coleman's direct foreign subsidiaries and domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries, and all of its ownership interests in other direct domestic subsidiaries;

- impose restrictions on the aggregate revolving loan (other than loans used to fund the merger) principal balance permitted to be outstanding at the end of each month under the bank credit facility;
- require Sunbeam to maintain a concentration cash management system and to repay revolving loans, which may be reborrowed subject to satisfaction of the bank credit facility's borrowing conditions, to the extent that cash on hand in the concentration accounts on any business day exceeds $15 million;
- require Sunbeam to prepay term loans under the bank credit facility on December 31, 1999 to the extent that cash on hand in Sunbeam's concentration accounts plus the aggregate amount of unused revolving loan commitments on this date exceeds $125 million, but Sunbeam is not required to prepay more than $69.3 million in the aggregate as a result of this provision;
- require Sunbeam to reserve $52.5 million of availability under the revolving credit facility for use solely to pay required cash portion of the merger consideration;
- limit the amount that Sunbeam and its subsidiaries may spend on Year 2000 compatibility testing and remediation to $50 million in the aggregate during the fiscal year ending December 31, 1999;
- require Sunbeam to obtain the bank lenders' consent to any litigation settlement concerning the restatement of Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 fiscal year and first quarter 1998 financial statements if such settlements require the payment of money, not paid by insurance carriers or other third parties, of more than $1 million in total;
- impose new informational reporting requirements; and
- provide Sunbeam with a $40 million foreign currency revolving loan subfacility.

At September 30, 1999, approximately $1,500 million was outstanding and approximately $200 million was available for borrowing under the credit facility. Of the approximately $1,500 million outstanding under the new credit facility, $1,300 million was outstanding under the Tranche A and Tranche B term loans and $200 million was outstanding under the revolving credit facility.

Defaults. The bank credit facility provides for events of default customary for transactions of this type, including nonpayment, misrepresentation, breach of covenant, cross-defaults, bankruptcy, material adverse change arising from compliance with ERISA, material adverse judgments, entering into guarantees and change of ownership and control. It is also an event of default under the bank credit facility if this document is not declared effective by the SEC on or before January 10, 2000 or if the merger does not occur within 25 business days of the effectiveness of this document or if the cash consideration—including any payments on account of the exercise of any appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses—to consummate the merger exceeds $87.5 million. Although there can be no assurance, Sunbeam anticipates that it will satisfy these conditions.

Issuance of Sunbeam Common Stock in the Merger and upon Exercise of the Warrants. The stock portion of the merger consideration and the shares of stock to be issued upon exercise of the warrants will consist of newly issued shares of Sunbeam common stock. The issuance of the shares of Sunbeam common stock in the merger and upon exercise of the warrants is being registered under the registration statement of which this document forms a part.

MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES

Financial Transactions Between Coleman and Sunbeam

In connection with the M&F Transaction, Coleman repaid substantially all of its outstanding indebtedness with the proceeds of borrowings from Sunbeam. These borrowings, together with loans made by Sunbeam to Coleman after March 30, 1998, were evidenced by an unsecured subordinated demand note payable by Coleman to Sunbeam. The note bore interest at a floating rate equivalent to the weighted average interest rate incurred by Sunbeam on borrowings under its bank credit facility and on its debentures (about 5.9% per annum during the first half of 1999). The note was pledged by Sunbeam as security for its obligations under its bank credit facility.

In connection with the April 15, 1999 amendment to Sunbeam's bank credit facility, the Coleman note payable to Sunbeam was revised to, among other things:

- lower the interest rate to 4% if the three-month LIBOR quoted on the telerate system is less than 6%, or 5% if the three-month LIBOR quoted on the telerate system is 6% or higher,
- make the note payable on April 15, 2000 rather than on demand,
- add customary representations, warranties, covenants and events of default, and
- provide that an event of default under Sunbeam's bank credit facility would constitute an event of default under the Coleman note.

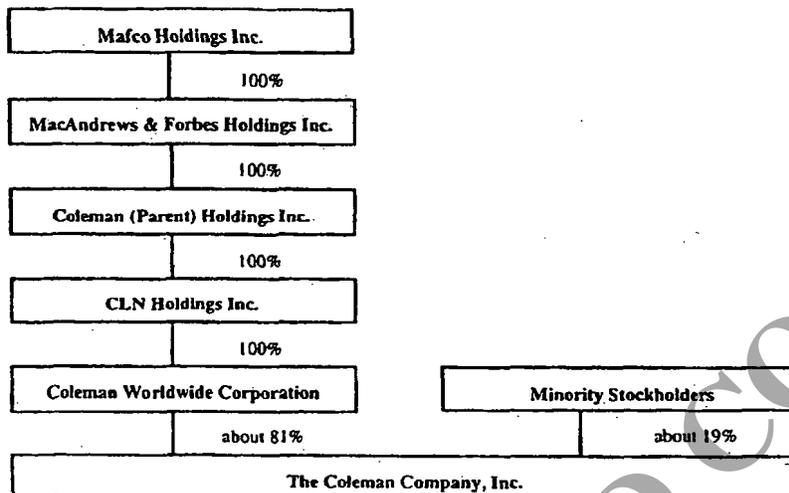

The revised Coleman note had an unpaid principal amount of $303.2 million on September 30, 1999. As security for the revised Coleman note, Coleman pledged substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property, including 66% of its ownership interests in its direct foreign subsidiaries and in its domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries, and all of its ownership interests in its other direct domestic subsidiaries, but Coleman's subsidiaries have not pledged their assets or the stock of their subsidiaries. Sunbeam pledged the revised Coleman note as security for Sunbeam's obligations to its lending banks and Sunbeam assigned to these lending banks the security pledged by Coleman for the revised Coleman note. Coleman also gave the lending banks a direct pledge of the assets securing the revised Coleman note to secure the obligations under Sunbeam's bank credit facility, subject to a cap equal to the balance due from time to time on the revised Coleman note. The Coleman note, by its terms, will not be affected by the completion of the merger. The revision of the Coleman note and the pledge of Coleman assets were approved on behalf of Coleman by A. Whitman Marchand, Coleman's then only disinterested director, acting as a duly authorized independent committee of the Coleman board of directors. Coleman paid Mr. Marchand $25,000 for his services as an independent director and agreed to indemnify him to the fullest extent permitted by Delaware law.

Since the Sunbeam bank credit facility provides that Sunbeam will not contribute capital to Coleman or, with some exceptions, permit Coleman to borrow money from any source other than Sunbeam, Coleman's ability to meet its cash operating requirements, including working capital requirements, capital expenditures and other obligations, is dependent upon its cash flow from operations and loans from Sunbeam. Sunbeam intends, and believes it will have the ability, to fund any Coleman requirements for borrowed funds through April 10, 2000. All loans from Sunbeam to Coleman will be added to the Coleman note payable to Sunbeam.

M&F Transaction

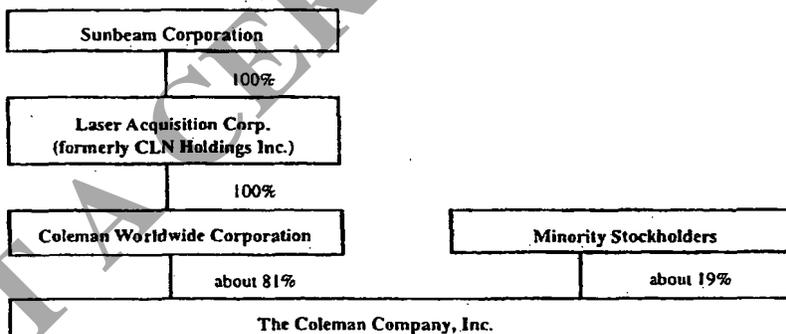

Prior to the M&F Transaction, MacAndrews & Forbes indirectly owned about 81% of the issued and outstanding Coleman common stock through various subsidiaries, including Coleman (Parent) Holdings, CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide.

Ownership Structure Before the M&F Transaction

In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, CLN Holdings merged with Laser Acquisition Corp., a subsidiary of Sunbeam, and Sunbeam, through its then indirect ownership of Coleman Worldwide, became the owner of MacAndrews & Forbes' shares of Coleman common stock. In exchange for the Coleman shares, Coleman (Parent) Holdings received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock and $159,956,756 in cash. In addition, in the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam assumed about $1.016 billion in debt of Coleman and its parent corporations, including $497 million of indebtedness of Coleman.

Ownership Structure After the M&F Transaction

Sunbeam's ownership interest in Coleman was reduced to about 79% as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options immediately following the M&F Transaction. On July 12, 1999, Sunbeam acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock acquired by Sunbeam in the M&F Transaction, enable Sunbeam to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock. Following the completion of the M&F Transaction, Coleman (Parent) Holdings remained a wholly owned subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes.

021206

As a result of the M&F Transaction, MacAndrews & Forbes, as the indirect parent corporation of Coleman (Parent) Holdings, became Sunbeam's second largest stockholder with shares representing about 14% of the currently outstanding Sunbeam common stock. As part of the August 1998 settlement with MacAndrews & Forbes of threatened claims related to the M&F Transaction, Coleman (Parent) Holdings received from Sunbeam a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase an additional 23 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Accordingly, MacAndrews & Forbes may now be deemed to be the beneficial owner of 29.9% of the total number of shares of Sunbeam common stock that would be outstanding following the exercise of the warrant. See "—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction."

Under the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction, upon completion of the M&F Transaction, all the directors of Coleman resigned, the number of directors constituting the board of directors of Coleman was fixed at five, and five designees of Sunbeam were elected as directors of Coleman. In addition, Sunbeam designees were appointed to senior management positions at Coleman. Subsequently, as a result of changes in Sunbeam's management and board of directors, Jerry W. Levin, the current Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, was reelected to the Coleman board. In addition, Paul E. Shapiro, the current Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam and Coleman, was elected to the Coleman board. The other members of the Coleman board resigned or were removed by Sunbeam. In April 1999, the size of the Coleman board was fixed at three members and A. Whitman Marchand, who is not affiliated with either Sunbeam or Coleman, was elected to the Coleman board. In July 1999, the size of the Coleman board was fixed at four and John H. Klein, an outside director of Sunbeam, was elected to the Coleman board. See "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Changes in Sunbeam's Management and Board," "—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction" and "—Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes."

Under the agreement relating to the M&F Transaction, Coleman (Parent) Holdings agreed not to transfer the shares of Sunbeam common stock it received in the M&F Transaction (other than to specified affiliates) for a period of nine months from and after the completion of the M&F Transaction, subject to certain exceptions. This nine-month period expired on November 30, 1998. Notwithstanding the lapse of these restrictions, to date Coleman (Parent) Holdings has not transferred any such shares.

The agreement relating to the M&F Transaction has been filed as an exhibit to the Registration Statement of which this document forms a part and is incorporated in this document by reference.

Registration Rights Agreement

The shares of Sunbeam common stock issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings in the M&F Transaction were not registered under federal or state securities laws. Accordingly, in connection with the issuance, Sunbeam entered into a Registration Rights Agreement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings. Under the Registration Rights Agreement, Coleman (Parent) Holdings can require Sunbeam to register under federal and applicable state securities laws the shares of Sunbeam common stock it received in the M&F Transaction. The Registration Rights Agreement was amended in August 1998 to provide that Coleman (Parent) Holdings can also require Sunbeam to register under federal and applicable state securities laws the warrant, and the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant, issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings in connection with a settlement of legal claims related to the M&F Transaction.

Sunbeam has also agreed to use its reasonable best efforts to permit any registration statement filed by Sunbeam in connection with the Registration Rights Agreement to be used by former affiliates of Coleman for resales of Sunbeam common stock received by those affiliates in the merger. Any affiliate seeking to register shares of Sunbeam common stock for resale must agree in writing to be bound by the terms of the Registration Rights Agreement.

The Registration Rights Agreement, and the August 1998 amendment thereto, have been filed as exhibits to the Registration Statement of which this document forms a part and are incorporated in this document by reference.

Appointments of Former Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes Officers to Sunbeam's Management and Board

In June 1998, concurrently with the removal of Sunbeam's former Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, Sunbeam announced that Jerry W. Levin of MacAndrews & Forbes had been elected as Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Levin and other Sunbeam executives who were affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes later signed three-year employment agreements with Sunbeam. The other executives include Paul E. Shapiro, Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of Sunbeam, and Bobby G. Jenkins, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Sunbeam. Mr. Levin and Howard Gittis of MacAndrews & Forbes also were elected to the Sunbeam board of directors. For a description of the terms of the employment agreements entered into by Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins, see "MANAGEMENT—Executive Compensation." For a further discussion of the events leading up to the appointment of Mr. Levin as Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer and the election of Messrs. Levin and Gittis to the Sunbeam board of directors, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Changes in Sunbeam's Management and Board."

Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction

On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam announced that, following investigation and negotiation by a special committee of the Sunbeam board, Sunbeam had entered into a settlement agreement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary from which Sunbeam acquired a controlling interest in Coleman in the M&F Transaction. The settlement:

- released Sunbeam from threatened claims of MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates arising from the M&F Transaction,
- enabled Sunbeam to retain the services of executive personnel affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes who had been managing Sunbeam since mid-June 1998, including Jerry W. Levin, Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Paul E. Shapiro, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer, and Bobby G. Jenkins, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, each of which signed a three-year employment agreement with Sunbeam in connection with the settlement, and
- provided for continuing management assistance and other support by MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates to Sunbeam, at its request, as described below.

As part of the settlement, Coleman (Parent) Holdings received from Sunbeam a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase 23 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Accordingly, MacAndrews & Forbes may now be deemed to be the beneficial owner of 29.9% of the total number of shares of Sunbeam common stock that would be outstanding following the exercise of the warrant. In connection with the settlement agreement, Sunbeam and Coleman (Parent) Holdings entered into an amendment to the Registration Rights Agreement executed in connection with the M&F Transaction. Under this amendment, Coleman (Parent) Holdings can require Sunbeam to register under federal and applicable state securities laws the warrant received by Coleman (Parent) Holdings in the settlement and the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant. For a description of the settlement agreement and the terms of the warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction."

The special committee that negotiated and approved the terms of the settlement agreement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings, including the terms of the warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, consisted of four outside directors, none of whom has any affiliation with MacAndrews & Forbes. The members of the special committee were Howard Kristol (Chairman), Charles Elson, Peter Langerman and Faith Whittlesey. They were assisted by independent financial advisors and independent legal counsel. The special committee considered the services of Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins and MacAndrews & Forbes' commitment to provide assistance and support to Sunbeam to be essential and of substantial (although incalculable) value to Sunbeam.

In connection with the settlement agreement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins each signed three-year employment agreements with Sunbeam. See "MANAGEMENT."

Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes

Under Sunbeam's August 1998 settlement agreement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings, in addition to the services of MacAndrews & Forbes' former executive personnel who have been managing Sunbeam since mid-June 1998, MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide management assistance and other support to Sunbeam at its request in a wide variety of areas. Although the nature and extent of this assistance and support had not been determined at the time of the settlement, Sunbeam has significantly benefited from this assistance and support in connection with the following areas:

- negotiations with Sunbeam's lending banks;
- the defense of the many lawsuits brought against Sunbeam and certain of its present and former directors and officers;
- the prosecution of claims against Sunbeam's liability insurance providers;
- the defense of claims against Sunbeam by its former Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer;
- the restatement of certain of Sunbeam's historical financial statements;
- the preparation of various SEC filings by Sunbeam and Coleman; and
- various other insurance, regulatory, litigation and executive compensation matters.

MacAndrews & Forbes employees provide this assistance and support to Sunbeam. Sunbeam does not pay MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates for the services of its employees, but does reimburse them for out-of-pocket expenses. Execution of the settlement agreement was a condition to Sunbeam's continued employment of Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins as officers of Sunbeam.

UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements were prepared to give effect to the following "Pro Forma Transactions":

- Sunbeam's acquisition on March 30, 1998 of about 81% of the then outstanding shares of Coleman common stock in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash. Immediately thereafter, as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options, Sunbeam's beneficial ownership of Coleman decreased to approximately 79% of the total number of outstanding shares of Coleman common stock;
- Sunbeam's acquisition on April 6, 1998 of all of the outstanding stock of Signature Brands in exchange for approximately $255 million in cash;
- Sunbeam's proposed acquisition of the shares of Coleman common stock held by the Coleman minority stockholders, in exchange for about 6.7 million shares of Sunbeam common stock, about $87 million in cash, including cash-outs of Coleman options and warrants to purchase up to approximately 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at $7 per share;
- the initial borrowing of approximately $1,325 million under Sunbeam's bank credit facility;
- the original offering of the debentures producing net proceeds of approximately $730 million; and
- the use of most of the net proceeds from the original bank borrowing and offering of the debentures.

The bank credit facility, as amended, consists of:

- a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million maturing March 30, 2005, of which $52.5 million may only be used to complete the merger;
- up to $800 million in term loans maturing on March 30, 2005, of which $35.0 million may only be used to complete the merger; and
- a $500 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006, of which $5.0 million has already been repaid through September 30, 1999.

Interest accrues, at the Company's option:

- at LIBOR, or
- at the base rate of the administrative agent which is generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%;

in each case, plus an interest margin which is currently 4.00% for LIBOR borrowings and 2.50% for base rate borrowings and is subject to potential decreases in the future, including a decrease to 3.00% for LIBOR borrowings and 1.75% for base rate borrowings upon consummation of the merger and the effectiveness of the pledge of substantially all of Coleman's and its domestic subsidiaries' assets to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility. Past defaults have been waived through April 10, 2000.

The original offering in March 1998 of $2,014 million aggregate principal amount of the debentures at a yield to maturity of 5.0% resulted in net proceeds of approximately $730 million. The debentures are exchangeable for shares of Sunbeam common stock at an initial conversion rate of 6.575 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the debentures, subject to adjustment upon occurrence of certain events. The debentures are subordinated in right of payment to all of our existing and future senior indebtedness. The debentures are not redeemable by Sunbeam prior to March 25, 2003.

Proceeds from the initial bank borrowing and the original offering of debentures of $1,176 million, $255 million and $182 million were used to acquire and repay the debt of Coleman and its parent corporations, CLH Holdings and Coleman Worldwide, Signature Brands and First Alert, respectively. Also, approximately $300 million of Sunbeam's outstanding indebtedness was repaid from such proceeds. In addition, the financing provided funds to pay the $106.9 million of redemption premiums associated with debt extinguishments and also provided working capital and funds for general corporate purposes.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated balance sheet as of September 30, 1999 gives pro forma effect to Sunbeam's proposed acquisition of the shares of Coleman common stock held by the Coleman minority stockholders as if it had occurred on September 30, 1999. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations for the year ended December 31, 1998 and the nine months ended September 30, 1999 give effect to the Pro Forma Transactions as if they had occurred on December 29, 1997, the beginning of Sunbeam's 1998 fiscal year.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements do not include pro forma adjustments relating to the acquisition of First Alert because the effects of that acquisition are not significant.

Sunbeam's consolidated historical results of operations for the year ended December 31, 1998 includes Coleman and Signature Brands from the respective acquisition dates and has been derived from the audited financial statements of Sunbeam as of and for the year ended December 31, 1998. The results of operations of the acquired entities from the beginning of the period through the respective acquisition dates have been derived from the unaudited statements of operations of the acquired entities for the three months ended March 31, 1998. The acquisitions have been accounted for under the purchase method of accounting.

Reclassifications were made to the net sales, cost of goods sold and selling, general and administrative expense as reported in the historical financial statements of Coleman and Signature Brands. These reclassifications were made to conform to the classifications of Sunbeam and consist of promotional allowances and cooperative advertising expenses. Sunbeam classifies these amounts as a deduction to arrive at net sales.

Included in the historical statement of operations of Coleman for the three months ended March 31, 1998, are certain pretax charges for costs relating to the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam in the amount of $7.1 million, a $3.6 million write-off of capitalized costs associated with the installation of a company-wide computer software system which was abandoned following its acquisition by Sunbeam and $2.2 million to cancel a licensing agreement with an affiliate. Additionally, the expense of the early extinguishment of debt of $1.2 million shown as an extraordinary charge on Coleman's historical statement of operations for the three months ended March 31, 1998, has been excluded from the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the year ended December 31, 1998.

The pro forma adjustments are based upon available information and certain assumptions that Sunbeam believes are reasonable under the circumstances.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements should be read in conjunction with "MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS" and the financial statements of Sunbeam and the notes thereto, and the other financial information included elsewhere in this document. These unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are provided for informational purposes only and do not purport to be indicative of the financial position or results of operations which would have been obtained had the Pro Forma Transactions been completed as of the dates indicated above or the results of operations for any future period.

NOTES TO UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

As of September 30, 1999 and for the Year Ended December 31, 1998 and the Nine Months Ended September 30, 1999
(in thousands, except percentages, share data and as noted)

- (a) Represents the historical statements of operations of Coleman and Signature Brands for the three months ended March 31, 1998.
- (b) Represents the reclassifications made to net sales, cost of goods sold and selling, general and administrative expense as reported in the historical financial statements of Coleman and Signature Brands for the three months ended March 31, 1998. These reclassifications were made to conform to the classifications of Sunbeam and consist of promotional allowances and cooperative advertising. Sunbeam classifies these amounts as a deduction to arrive at net sales, as follows:

	Decrease in
	Net Sales	Cost of Goods Sold	Selling, General and Administrative Expense
Coleman	$(17,115)	$(10,954)	$ (6,161)
Signature Brands	(6,231)		(6,231)
	$(23,346)	$(10,954)	$(12,392)

- (c) Represents the elimination of Coleman's net sales, cost of goods sold and selling, general and administrative expense for the two days ended March 31, 1998. These amounts are included in the Coleman historical statement of operations for the three months ended March 31, 1998 and are also reflected in the Sunbeam historical statement of operations since March 30, 1998.
- (d) Represents the increase in depreciation and amortization to reflect the pro forma effect of the acquisitions occurring at the beginning of the period. In each acquisition, the purchase price paid has been allocated to the fair value, as determined by independent appraisals, of tangible and identified intangible assets acquired and liabilities assumed as follows (in millions):

	Coleman	Signature Brands
Value of common stock issued	$ 607
Cash paid including expenses and mandatory redemption of debt, net of cash acquired	160	$255
Cash received from sale of Coleman Spas, Inc.	(17)
Cash received from stock option proceeds	(9)
Net cash paid and equity issued	741	255
Fair value of total liabilities assumed, including debt	1,455	83
	2,196	338
Fair value of assets acquired	1,113	191
Excess of purchase price over fair value of net assets acquired	$1,083	$147

The value of approximately $44 per share for the Sunbeam common stock issued at the date of the M&F Transaction was derived by using the average closing stock price for the day before and day of the public announcement of the M&F Transaction. Subsequent to the M&F Transaction, Coleman Spas, Inc. was sold for $17 million and the related proceeds are therefore presented above as a deduction to arrive at the net cash paid and equity issued for the businesses retained. The $17 million is similarly excluded from the amount of $1,113 million described as "fair value of assets acquired." Immediately after the M&F Transaction, employee stock options were exercised generating proceeds of $9 million.

021215

This amount is presented above as a reduction to arrive at the net cash paid for the M&F Transaction and a proportionate corresponding increase is included in the minority interest liability assumed.

The pro forma amounts are derived as follows:

	Coleman	Signature Brands	Average Life	Quarterly Depreciation/Amortization
Increase in property, plant and equipment to reflect fair value	$50,560	$3,871	7.9 years	$1,727
Amount attributable to:
Cost of goods sold				$1,554
Selling, general and administrative expense				$ 173

The pro forma purchase price allocation to the acquired property, plant and equipment of Coleman and Signature Brands represents the aggregate amount recorded for financial statement purposes as detailed by an independent appraisal. The remaining economic useful lives for the acquired property, plant and equipment range from 17 to 34 years for buildings, 6 to 12 years for machinery and equipment and 1 to 5 years for tooling and other depreciable assets. The average life of 7.9 years represents the weighted average of the depreciable lives used for financial reporting purposes.

Amortization of goodwill and identifiable intangibles:

	Coleman	Signature Brands	Life	Quarterly Depreciation/Amortization
Goodwill	$1,083,259	$147,151	40 years	$7,690
Trademarks	279,920	53,900	40 years	2,086
Assembled workforce	12,880	3,000	8 years	496
Patents	5,600	1,800	8 years	231
				10,503
Less: historical amortization				(3,966)
				$6,537

- (e) Represents the net increase in interest expense to reflect the pro forma effect of acquisition and refinancing borrowings as if such transactions occurred at the beginning of the period. Amounts are derived as follows:

Acquisition	Acquisition and Refinancing Borrowings	Effective Rate	Quarterly Interest on Acquisition and Refinancing Borrowings	Less: Quarterly Interest on Pre-Acquisition Borrowings	Increase in Interest Expense
Coleman	$1,176,000	7.47%	$21,962	$9,044	$12,918
Signature Brands	254,600	7.47%	4,755	4,654	101
					$13,019

The assumed effective interest rate was derived using the 1998 effective rates, including amortization of deferred financing costs, of 9.05% for the term loan borrowings, which represent approximately 59% of Sunbeam's acquisition and refinancing borrowings, and 5.20% for the debentures, which represent approximately 41% of Sunbeam's acquisition and refinancing borrowings. The effect on operations of a 1/8% variance in interest rates on the acquisition and refinancing borrowings would be approximately $1.1 million per year and $0.3 million per quarter.

- (f) Represents the net increase in interest expense to reflect the pro forma effect of higher interest rates on the new financing compared with historical financing. The amount is derived as follows:

	Average Pre-Refinancing Borrowings	Effective Rate	Quarterly Interest at Refinancing Borrowings Rate	Quarterly Interest at Pre-Refinancing Borrowings Rate	Increase in Interest Expense
Historical Sunbeam	$242,500	7.47%	$4,529	$3,828	$701

- (g) Represents the domestic income tax provision accrued by Coleman of $4.4 million for the three months ended March 31, 1998. On a pro forma basis this accrual would not have been required as a consequence of the net operating losses generated by Sunbeam for the year ended December 31, 1998. No adjustment is required to the Signature Brands tax benefit since the Signature Brands loss in the first quarter of 1998 was available for carryback. No tax benefit is provided on the pro forma adjustments since the adjustments for depreciation and amortization are not deductible for income tax purposes and the deferred tax asset resulting from the remaining pro forma adjustments results in an additional valuation allowance since it is more likely than not that such deferred tax assets will not be realized from future taxable income.
- (h) Represents approximately 21% of the loss from continuing operations before extraordinary charge of Coleman for the three months ended March 31, 1998.
- (i) Represents the pro forma effects associated with completing the merger and acquiring the remaining Coleman shares outstanding. The total consideration is derived as follows:

Cash	$ 87,000
Sunbeam common stock	45,225
Sunbeam warrants	15,139
	$147,364

The portion of the consideration consisting of approximately 6.7 million shares of Sunbeam common stock is valued at $6.75 per share, the closing price of Sunbeam's common stock on October 21, 1998, the date the Company announced the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding. The warrants to purchase approximately 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at $7 per share are valued at $3.04 per warrant, the same value ascribed to the warrant issued to a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes in August 1998 based on a valuation performed by an independent consultant. The pro forma allocation of the consideration is based on independent appraisals prepared in connection with the M & F transaction. Allocation of the total consideration and its effect on the pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements is as follows:

	Life	Allocation	Year Ended December 31, 1998 Pro Forma Effect on:
			Cost of Goods Sold	Amortization of Goodwill and Identifiable Intangibles	Selling, General and Administrative Expense
Inventories	—	$ 4,280
Property, plant and equipment	7.9 years	12,640	$1,440		$160
Trademarks	40 years	69,980		$1,750
Assembled workforce	8 years	3,220		403
Patents	8 years	1,400		175
Minority interest	—	65,195
Deferred income taxes	—	(36,600)
Goodwill	40 years	27,249		681
		$147,364	$1,440	$3,009	$160
Pro forma effect on Nine Months Ended September 30, 1999			$1,080	$2,257	$120

The pro forma adjustment for the nine months ended September 30, 1999, assumes that the depreciation and amortization are charged to operations ratably over the year.

In deriving the above pro forma adjustments, Sunbeam assumed that the fair values used in connection with the acquisition of the initial 79% interest in Coleman were reasonable approximations of the appropriate fair values to be used in connection with the second half of this step acquisition. Accordingly, the purchase price amounts allocated above to inventories, property, plant and equipment, trademarks, assembled workforce and patents reflect 21% of the fair values used in the acquisition of the initial 79% interest of Coleman.

The pro forma adjustment to deferred income taxes represents the recording in purchase accounting of the deferred income tax effects of the temporary differences which result from the allocation of $91.5 million of the consideration to tangible and identifiable intangible assets. The deferred income taxes have been established based on an estimated federal, state and foreign income tax rate of approximately 40%.

The pro forma adjustments also reflect:

- additional interest expense of $7.439 million and $5.579 million for the year ended December 31, 1998 and nine months ended September 30, 1999, respectively, on the $87 million portion of the consideration which is expected to be funded from Sunbeam's revolving credit facility at an interest rate of 8.55% (the rate in effect at December 31, 1998). The effect on operations of a 1/8% variance in interest rates on these borrowings would be approximately $109,000 per year and $27,000 per quarter.
 - the elimination of the minority interest in the loss on Coleman in the pro forma statement of operations.
- (j) Represents the increase in the weighted average shares of Sunbeam common stock outstanding as of December 31, 1998, adjusted for the 14,099,749 shares issued in connection with the acquisition of Coleman as if it had occurred at the beginning of the period and the approximately 6.7 million shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued in connection with the acquisition of the remaining Coleman shares outstanding. Since the Coleman acquisition occurred at the end of the first quarter of 1998, the weighted average shares outstanding would have increased on a pro forma basis by one quarter of the 14,099,749 shares issued, or 3,524,937 shares. The shares of common stock issuable upon conversion of the debentures, the MacAndrews & Forbes warrants, and the warrants to be issued in connection with the merger have not been included, as they would be anti-dilutive.
- (k) Represents the increase in the weighted average shares of Sunbeam common stock outstanding as of September 30, 1999, adjusted for the approximately 6.7 million shares of Sunbeam common stock to be issued in connection with the acquisition of the remaining Coleman shares outstanding. The shares of common stock issuable upon conversion of the debentures, the MacAndrews & Forbes warrants, and the warrants to be issued in connection with the merger have not been included, as they would be anti-dilutive.
- (l) In computing the ratio of earnings to fixed charges: (a) earnings represents income (loss) from continuing operations before income taxes and fixed charges, exclusive of capitalized interest; and (b) fixed charges consist of interest expense, capitalized interest and the estimated interest portion of rental expense. For the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998 and the nine months ended September 30, 1999, historical earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $797.1 million and $130.1 million, respectively. For the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998 and the nine months ended September 30, 1999, on a pro forma basis, earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $834.9 million and $139.1 million, respectively.

SELECTED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL INFORMATION OF SUNBEAM

The following selected historical financial information has been derived from the consolidated financial statements and the condensed consolidated financial statements of Sunbeam. This information should be read in conjunction with Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and related notes, which are included elsewhere in this prospectus.

While reviewing the following selected historical financial information, please note the following:

- All amounts in the table are expressed in millions, except per share and ratio data.
- On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired approximately 81% of the then outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman, which immediately thereafter was reduced to about 79% through exercises of Coleman employee stock options. On April 6, 1998, Sunbeam completed the cash acquisitions of First Alert and Signature Brands. The acquisitions were accounted for under the purchase method of accounting and, accordingly, the financial position and results of operations of each acquired entity are included in the Consolidated Financial Statements from the respective dates of acquisition.
 - For the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998, Sunbeam took an extraordinary charge of $122.4 million related to the early extinguishments of debt and took other charges of:
 - $70.0 million related to the issuance of warrants;
 - $62.5 million related to the write-off of goodwill;
 - $39.4 million related to fixed asset impairments;
 - $31 million related to compensation expense for the new employment agreements with Sunbeam's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other former senior officers; and
 - $95.8 million related to write-downs of inventory.

See Notes 2, 3 and 11 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements.

- For the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997, Sunbeam reversed $28.0 million of pre-tax liabilities no longer required and $13.3 million of tax liabilities no longer required.
- For the fiscal year ended December 29, 1996, Sunbeam took restructuring, asset impairment and other charges of $239.2 million before taxes. See Notes 12 and 13 to Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements included in this prospectus.
- The "earnings (loss) from discontinued operations, net of taxes" and "loss on sale of discontinued operations, net of taxes" represent results from Sunbeam's furniture business, net of taxes and the estimated loss on disposal. See Note 13 to Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements included in this prospectus.
- In computing the ratio of earnings to fixed charges:
 - earnings represent income (loss) from continuing operations before income taxes and fixed charges (exclusive of capitalized interest); and
 - fixed charges consist of interest expense, capitalized interest and the estimated interest portion of rental expense.

For the fiscal year ended December 29, 1996 and the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998, historical earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $262.2 million and $797.1 million, respectively. For the nine months ended September 30, 1998 and 1999, historical earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $476.7 million and $130.1 million, respectively. For the fiscal year ended December 31, 1998 and for the nine months ended September 30, 1999, on a pro forma basis, earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $834.9 million and $139.1 million, respectively.

- At September 30, 1999, total assets include goodwill and other intangible assets of $1,809.9 million.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The following discussion should be read in conjunction with the accompanying Consolidated and Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements (and related notes), Selected Consolidated Financial Information of Sunbeam and Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements appearing elsewhere in this document.

On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam, through a wholly owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman from a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash. In addition, Sunbeam assumed approximately $1,016 million in debt. Immediately afterwards, as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options, Sunbeam's indirect beneficial ownership of Coleman decreased to approximately 79%. Sunbeam's agreement for the acquisition of the remaining publicly held Coleman shares in a merger transaction provides that the remaining Coleman shareholders will receive:

- approximately 6.7 million shares of Sunbeam common stock—0.5677 of a share for each outstanding Coleman share; and
- approximately $87 million in cash—$6.44 for each outstanding Coleman share and cash outs of unexercised Coleman employee stock options equal to the difference between $27.50 per share and the exercise price of the options.

Sunbeam expects to complete the merger in the fourth quarter of 1999 or early in the first quarter of 2000, although there can be no assurance that the merger will occur during that time. See Notes 2 and 15 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements and "LITIGATION SETTLEMENT AND WARRANTS" for information regarding the settlement of claims relating to the Coleman acquisition, the terms of which provide for the issuance at the time of the merger of warrants to purchase up to approximately 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam's common stock at $7 per share.

On April 6, 1998, Sunbeam completed the cash acquisitions of First Alert, a leading manufacturer of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, and Signature Brands, a leading manufacturer of consumer and professional products. The First Alert and the Signature Brands acquisitions were valued at approximately $182 million, including $133 million of cash and $49 million of assumed debt, and $255 million, reflecting cash paid, including the required retirement or defeasance of debt, respectively.

The acquisitions were recorded under the purchase method of accounting and accordingly, the financial position and results of operations of each acquired entity are included in the Consolidated Financial Statements from the respective dates of acquisition. The purchase prices of the acquired entities have been allocated to individual assets acquired and liabilities assumed based on estimates of fair values determined by independent appraisals at the dates of acquisition.

Fiscal Year

To standardize the fiscal period ends of Sunbeam and the acquired entities, effective with its 1998 fiscal year, Sunbeam has changed its fiscal year end from the Sunday nearest December 31 to a calendar year. See Note 1 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements.

Asset Impairment and Other Charges

Goodwill

When changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying value of goodwill may not be recoverable, Sunbeam estimates future cash flows using the recoverability method—undiscounted future cash flows and including related interest charges—as a basis for recording any impairment loss. An impairment loss is then recorded to adjust the carrying value of goodwill to the recoverable amount. The impairment loss taken is no greater than the amount by which the carrying value of the net assets of the business exceeds its fair value. Due to First Alert's financial performance in 1998 and its prospects for 1999 and beyond, Sunbeam determined that the goodwill relating to this acquisition was impaired. Accordingly, based on its determination of fair value, Sunbeam has written off the net carrying value of goodwill of $62.5 million in the fourth quarter of 1998.

021223

Fixed Asset Impairment and Excess and Obsolete Inventory Reserves

In the second quarter of 1998, Sunbeam decided to outsource or discontinue a substantial number of products—principally breadmakers, toasters and certain other appliances, air and water filtration products, and the elimination of certain stock keeping units ("SKUs") within existing product lines, primarily relating to appliances, grills and grill accessories—previously made by Sunbeam, resulting in some facilities and equipment that will either no longer be used or will be utilized in a significantly different manner. Accordingly, a charge of $29.6 million was recorded in Cost of Goods Sold to write some of these assets down to their estimated fair market value. Approximately 80% of this charge related to machinery, equipment and tooling at Sunbeam's Mexico City and Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing plants, the estimated fair value for which was derived through an auction process. The remainder of this charge related to tooling and equipment at various other facilities, which either had a nominal value or the fair market value of which was derived through an auction process. These assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down and consequently were not depreciated further after the write-down. The net carrying value of these assets after the write-down approximated $2.2 million and these assets are expected to be disposed of by September 30, 1999. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $2.6 million in 1998, $4.2 million in 1997 and $3.5 million in 1996.

Personnel at the Mexico City facility were notified in the second quarter of 1998 that the plant was scheduled for closure at year-end 1998; accordingly, at that time a liability of $1.8 million was recorded in Cost of Goods Sold primarily for employee severance. The employee severance was related to approximately 1,200 positions of which approximately 1,100 were terminated, and $1.4 million paid in severance, as of December 31, 1998. Substantially all of the remaining positions were eliminated and severance payments were paid by July 31, 1999. In the third quarter of 1998, Sunbeam recorded in Cost of Goods Sold an additional provision for impairment of fixed assets of $3.1 million in an acquired entity relating to assets taken out of service for which there was no remaining value. The asset impairment resulted from management's decision, during the third quarter, to discontinue certain SKU's within product lines, principally generators, compressors and propane cylinders. These fixed assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down and consequently were not depreciated further after the write-down. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $0.8 million in 1998. In the fourth quarter of 1998, Sunbeam recorded a $7.1 million charge as a result of management's decision, during the fourth quarter, to outsource the production of some appliances (principally irons). This charge to Cost of Goods Sold primarily consists of a provision for certain tooling and equipment ($6.7 million) and severance and related benefits ($0.4 million). This tooling and equipment, which had no remaining value, was written off and depreciation of this equipment was discontinued at the time of the write-down. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $2.4 million in 1998, $2.3 million in 1997 and $0.9 million in 1996. The severance costs related to approximately 45 production employees, none of whom was terminated as of December 31, 1998. It is anticipated that these employees' positions will be eliminated and the severance obligation paid by December 31, 1999.

During 1997 and the first half of 1998, Sunbeam built inventories in anticipation of 1998 sales volumes which did not materialize. As a result, it has been and will continue to be necessary to dispose of some portions of excess inventories at amounts less than cost. Accordingly, during 1998, when it became evident that the anticipated sales volumes would not materialize, Sunbeam recorded $58.2 million in charges (of which $46.4 million, $2.2 million and $9.6 million, were recorded during the second, third and fourth quarters, respectively) to properly state this inventory at the lower-of-cost-or-market. This inventory primarily related to some appliances, grills and grill accessories. Sunbeam also recorded a charge of $11.0 million during the second quarter for excess inventories for raw materials and work in process which will not be used due to outsourcing the production of breadmakers, toasters and some other appliances. In addition, during 1998, Sunbeam made the decision to exit some product lines, primarily air and water filtration products, and to eliminate some SKUs within existing product lines, primarily relating to appliances, grills and grill accessories. As a result of this decision, a $26.6 million charge was recorded during the second quarter to properly state this inventory at the lower-of-cost-or-market. Total charges for excess inventories recorded at the lower-of-cost-or-market based upon management's best estimate of net realizable value, amounted to approximately $95.8 million at December 31, 1998. See Note 12 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements for asset impairment and other charges recorded in conjunction with a 1996 restructuring plan.

Restatements

On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the audit committee of its board of directors was initiating a review into the accuracy of Sunbeam's prior financial statements. The audit committee's review has since been completed and, as a result of its findings, Sunbeam has restated its previously issued consolidated financial statements for 1996 and 1997 and the first quarter of 1998. Based upon the review, it was determined that some revenue had been inappropriately recognized, some costs and allowances had not been accrued or were improperly recorded, and some costs were inappropriately included in, and subsequently charged to, restructuring, asset impairment and other costs within the Consolidated Statement of Operations for the years ended December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997 and the three months ended March 31, 1998. The financial statements for the years ended December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996 were restated, audited and filed on Form 10-K/A with the SEC on November 9, 1998. The accompanying 1996 and 1997 Consolidated Financial Statements and 1998 Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements of Sunbeam present the restated results.

In connection with the restatements referred to above, Arthur Andersen advised Sunbeam that it believed there were material weaknesses in Sunbeam's internal controls. In order to address these material weaknesses, Sunbeam has increased the number of senior financial personnel and has implemented comprehensive review procedures of operating and financial information. Additionally, as explained in more detail under "Year 2000 Readiness Disclosure" below, Sunbeam is in the process of significantly enhancing its operating systems. Sunbeam anticipates that its systems enhancements will be completed in 1999. See "CHANGES IN AND DISAGREEMENTS WITH ACCOUNTANTS ON ACCOUNTING AND FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE."

Nine Months Ended September 30, 1999 Compared to Nine Months Ended September 30, 1998

Net sales for the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and 1998 were $1,786.4 million and $1,322.1 million respectively, an increase of $464.3 million. Results for the nine months ended September 30, 1998 include Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert from their respective acquisition dates. After adjusting 1998 sales to include sales of the acquired companies for the periods from the beginning of 1998 through the respective dates of acquisition, combined historical net sales would be $1,624.0 million. 1999 net sales increased approximately $162 million or approximately 10% over 1998 combined historical net sales. Information that adjusts for the results of the acquisitions prior to the actual acquisition dates (the "combined historical" information) is provided for informational purposes only and is to enhance comparability of the period presented. This information is not necessarily indicative of what the combined results would have been had these acquisitions occurred at the beginning of the periods presented or the results for any future period. The increase in net sales is driven by the Outdoor Leisure group which had an increase of approximately $123 million in 1999 as compared to the combined historical net sales in the same period in the prior year. This increase over combined historical net sales was largely due to sales of outdoor recreation products and Powermate® generators. The higher level of sales of these products is believed to be partially attributable to heightened consumer sensitivity to the need for emergency preparedness. Sunbeam believes that this heightened sensitivity is reflective of a combination of factors, including weather conditions and Year 2000 considerations. Household net sales in 1999 increased approximately $11 million compared to 1998 combined historical net sales. Sunbeam believes that the decrease in shipments in the prior year in order to allow trade inventories to return to a normal level is primarily responsible for this increase. This factor affects the year to year comparisons for each of the operating groups. Excluding the effect on 1998 of loading, Sunbeam believes that Household net sales in 1999 were approximately the same as in the prior year. Within the Household segment, net sales of personal care products increased as a result of a strengthening retail environment largely offset by decreases in sales of appliances. International net sales in 1999 increased $30.3 million over 1998 combined historical net sales. Higher sales in Canada, Europe and Japan resulted predominantly from strong retail demand of Powermate® and outdoor recreation products. This increase was partially offset by the impact of weak economic conditions in Latin America.

Gross margin for the first nine months of 1999 was $452.3 million or $403.6 million higher than the comparable period in 1998. During 1998, Sunbeam recorded a number of largely non-recurring charges which affect the comparability of gross margin in the first nine months of 1999 over the same period in the prior year. These charges are summarized below:

- In the second and third quarters of 1998, Sunbeam recorded charges totaling $86.2 million relating to fixed asset impairments and provisions for excess and obsolete inventory totaling $32.7 million. These charges, which were recorded in Cost of Goods Sold, are discussed above in the section "Fixed Asset and Excess Obsolete Inventory Reserves."

In addition to the charge taken in 1998, the excess and obsolete inventory referenced above has impacted Sunbeam's operating results in several ways, with two primary effects. First, gross margins have been impacted by sales, at below normal prices, of obsolete inventory into non-traditional channels and excess inventory into traditional channels. In addition, due to the high levels of excess inventory at the end of 1998, Sunbeam's usage of its manufacturing facilities has been lower than normal, resulting in lower fixed cost absorption, which in turn, reduced gross margins in 1999.

- Cost of Goods Sold for the first nine months of 1998 also reflects the non-recurring impact ($28.1 million) of Sunbeam recording the 1998 acquisitions using the purchase method of accounting. In accordance with this accounting method, inventory pertaining to acquisitions was recorded at fair value. The fair value of the inventory exceeded the book value reflected on the balance sheets of the acquired companies as of the respective acquisition dates. The excess of the fair value of inventory over its pre-acquisition book value was recorded in cost of sales as the inventory was sold.

Adjusting for the combined results of the acquired companies and excluding the effects of 1998 non-recurring items, which are summarized above, gross margin for the first nine months of 1999 increased approximately $182 million over the 1998 combined historical gross margin. As a percentage of net sales, gross margin improved to approximately 25% in the first nine months of 1999 as compared to approximately 4% in the 1998 period. The gross margin percentage for the 1998 period adjusted for the non-recurring charges and for the effect of the acquired companies was approximately 17% of combined historical net sales. The Household group contributed approximately 30% of the 1999 gross margin improvement over the 1998 combined historical gross margin. The improvement in the Household group's gross margin resulted primarily from lower sales deduction rates, improved manufacturing processes and controls, additional sales volume, and improved product mix. The Outdoor Leisure group contributed approximately 50% of the 1999 gross margin improvement over the 1998 combined historical gross margin. Approximately 80% of the improvement in the Outdoor Leisure group's gross margin resulted from additional volume and related improved manufacturing overhead absorption, as well as improvements in manufacturing. The balance of the increase resulted from improved product mix. The International group contributed approximately 20% of the 1999 gross margin improvement over 1998 combined historical gross margin. Approximately 40% of the improvement in the International group's gross margin resulted from the shut down of the Mexico City manufacturing facility which had experienced high material usage costs and employee benefit costs in the prior year. The remaining improvement resulted from increased sales volume, a lower level of product returns and improved product mix.

SG&A expense for the first nine months of 1999 was $449.3 million, an increase of $8.9 million or 2.0% over the same period in the prior year. After adjusting 1998 SG&A expense to include the acquired companies' SG&A expense for the period from the beginning of 1998 through the respective dates of acquisition ($100.9 million), combined historical SG&A expense was $541.3 million. Since the combined historical 1998 SG&A expenses were derived by adding the acquired companies' pre-acquisition period costs to the reported nine months' results of Sunbeam, the combined historical SG&A expenses include $30.4 million of amortization of intangibles expense representing both pre- and post-acquisition periods, as well as approximately $12 million of transaction costs incurred by the acquired companies relating to them being purchased by Sunbeam. Excluding these costs and the effects of the following, adjusted 1998 SG&A expenses were approximately $378 million.

- $70.0 million recorded in the third quarter of 1998 related to the issuance of a warrant to a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes, as discussed below,
- approximately $31 million of 1998 compensation expense recorded in connection with the new February 1998 employment agreement with Sunbeam's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of Sunbeam and approximately $3.8 million of severance for former employees. The new employment agreements provided for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the forfeiture of unvested restricted stock that had been granted under the executives' prior employment agreements, new restricted stock grants and options to purchase common shares. In addition, the new employment agreements provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock. (See Note 8 to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements);
- $10.8 million, $4.0 million, and $2.1 million of costs recorded in 1998 related to expenses associated with the restatement efforts (principally representing legal, accounting and auditing costs of $6.1 million and $4.7 million, respectively), a corporate office relocation and Year 2000 compliance efforts, respectively.

Excluding amortization of intangibles expense of $38.4 million for the first nine months of 1999 and $18.7 million of costs related to Year 2000 compliance efforts, adjusted 1999 SG&A costs were $392.2 million, an increase of approximately $14 million over adjusted 1998 SG&A expense. As previously discussed, this increase is primarily attributable to higher levels of selling and administrative costs driven by increased net sales, headcount increases to support future growth and costs associated with certain redundant operations resulting from Sunbeam's 1998 acquisitions which operations Sunbeam is integrating and the decision to bring in-house certain functions that had previously been outsourced. Sunbeam is in the process of fully integrating certain of these functions and expects that when this process has been completed consolidated SG&A expense for these functions will be reduced. Partially offsetting these increases in SG&A expense are certain 1998 expenses which did not reoccur in 1999. These 1998 expenses include increases associated with restructuring reserve at Coleman (approximately $7 million) and higher bad debt expense (approximately $5 million).

On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a Special Committee of the Board of Directors consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with M&F, Sunbeam had entered into a settlement agreement with a subsidiary of M&F pursuant to which Sunbeam was released from certain threatened claims of M&F and its subsidiaries arising from the Coleman acquisition and M&F agreed to provide certain management personnel and assistance to Sunbeam in exchange for the issuance to the M&F subsidiary of a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase up to 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at a cash exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Sunbeam concluded that the agreement to issue this warrant did not result in a new measurement date for the purposes of determining the purchase price for Coleman and accounted for the issuance of this warrant in the third quarter of 1998 as a cost of settling a potential claim. Accordingly, a $70.0 million non-cash SG&A expense was recorded in the third quarter of 1998, based upon a valuation performed as of August 1998 using facts existing at that time. The valuation was conducted by an independent consultant engaged by the special committee of the board of directors.

Operating results for the first nine months of 1999 and 1998, were a profit of $3.0 million in 1999 and a loss of $391.7 million in 1998. Adjusted for the historical results of the acquired companies and excluding non-recurring charges, as previously described, operating results for the 1999 and 1998 periods were a profit of $21.7 million and a loss of $149.2 million, respectively. This change resulted from the factors discussed above.

Interest expense increased from $88.5 million in 1998 to $136.6 million in 1999. Approximately 75% of the change related to higher borrowing levels in 1999 resulting primarily from borrowings for the acquisitions that were outstanding for the entire 1999 nine-month period as compared to only a portion of the 1998 period. The balance of this increase was primarily driven by the amortization of the loan commitment fee (approximately $2 million) Sunbeam is obligated to pay under the terms of Sunbeam's bank credit facility and the expense related to liquidated damages payable to debenture holders (approximately $3 million).

Other income, net of $4.6 million in 1999 included a gain of approximately $4 million relating to the sale of the Mexico City facility. This gain was partially offset by losses from other miscellaneous asset sales of approximately $0.3 million. The remaining other income, net in 1999 resulted from favorable foreign exchange rates, primarily from Sunbeam's operations in Japan. Other income, net of $4.1 million in 1998 included $8.0 million from the settlement of a lawsuit partially offset by net foreign exchange losses, primarily from Mexico.

The minority interest reported in 1999 and 1998 relates to the minority interest held in Coleman by public shareholders.

Approximately $6 million of the $12.7 million income tax expense recorded in 1999 related to U.S. tax liability generated by Coleman as a separate U.S. tax filing entity. As previously discussed, in July 1999, Sunbeam acquired a sufficient ownership interest in Coleman to permit it to file consolidated U.S. tax returns with Coleman for all future periods. The remaining tax expense recorded in 1999 related to taxes on foreign income and was partially offset by the favorable resolution of an income tax audit. Tax expense recorded in 1998 was nearly all related to foreign taxes. No net tax benefit was recorded on Sunbeam's losses in either year as it is management's assessment that Sunbeam cannot demonstrate that it is more likely than not that deferred tax assets resulting from these losses would be realized through future taxable income.

On July 12, 1999, Sunbeam acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock for an aggregate purchase price of approximately $31 million. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock Sunbeam owns, enable Sunbeam to exercise 80.01% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock as of July 12, 1999. This class of preferred stock was created by Coleman and acquired by Sunbeam in order to enable Coleman and Sunbeam to file consolidated federal income tax returns, and in certain jurisdictions, consolidated state income tax returns, prior to the consummation of the Coleman merger. In connection with the issuance of the shares of preferred stock, Sunbeam entered into a tax sharing agreement with Coleman, pursuant to which Coleman will pay to Sunbeam amounts equal to the federal and state income taxes that would have been payable by Coleman had Coleman not been included in the consolidated income tax return of Sunbeam. The net proceeds from the issuance of the shares by Coleman of its voting preferred stock to Sunbeam were used by Coleman to make a partial repayment of loans outstanding from Sunbeam under Coleman's intercompany note. (See Note 8 to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.)

In March 1998, Sunbeam prepaid a $75.0 million 7.85% industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility originally due in 2009. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, Sunbeam recognized an extraordinary charge in the first quarter of 1998. As a result of repayment of certain indebtedness assumed in the Coleman acquisition, Sunbeam also recognized an extraordinary charge in the second quarter of 1998. The debt assumed in connection with the Coleman acquisition was repaid as a result of the requirements under the terms of Sunbeam's bank credit facility. These extraordinary charges consisted of redemption premiums ($106.9 million), unamortized debt discount ($13.8 million) and unamortized deferred financing costs ($1.7 million) and were net of income taxes ($10.7 million).

On November 9, 1999, Sunbeam announced a plan to divest Eastpak and also plans to divest certain non-essential assets. Proceeds from these assets sales are estimated to be $200 million and will be primarily used to pay down debt.

Year Ended December 31, 1998 Compared to Year Ended December 28, 1997

Results of operations for the year ended December 31, 1998 include the results of Coleman from March 30, 1998 and of Signature Brands and First Alert from April 6, 1998, the respective dates of the acquisitions. The acquired companies generated net sales of $1,009.0 million from the acquisition dates noted above through December 31, 1998, with corresponding gross margin of $205.1 million, or 20% of sales.

SG&A costs recorded by the acquired companies were $329.9 million in the period, yielding an operating loss of $124.8 million.

For the acquired companies, net sales from the dates of the acquisitions through fiscal year-end were approximately $152 million lower than the same period in the prior year. This decline was caused by lower net sales at Coleman ($81.5 million), Signature Brands ($31.2 million) and First Alert ($39.2 million). Excluding the effects of Coleman's sale of its safety and security business in March 1998 and the discontinuation of its pressure washer business during 1997, Coleman's 1998 sales would have been approximately $4 million lower than in 1997. Sunbeam believes that Signature Brands' decline, primarily in its coffee and tea products, resulted largely from lost distribution and insufficient attention to the business during part of 1998. Sunbeam believes that all of the acquired businesses were, to some extent, impacted by the disruption that arose from the integration with Sunbeam and the related management changes, both at the acquired companies and at Sunbeam. First Alert's sales decline related predominantly to increased inventory positions in the domestic channel in 1997 as compared to 1998 with the remaining decrease primarily related to more favorable weather conditions in the fourth quarter of 1997 as compared to the same period in 1998 which affected consumer shopping patterns. Excluding the effects from purchase accounting and the write-off of First Alert's goodwill, as discussed in Note 2 to the Consolidated Financial Statements, operating profit for these three companies declined by approximately $45 million since the acquisitions in 1998 as compared to the same period in the prior year, resulting primarily from lower net sales. Although there can be no assurance, management anticipates that results from the acquired companies will significantly improve during 1999 due to, among other things, the absence of the factors causing disruption and insufficient focus at these three companies during 1998.

Consolidated net sales for the year ended December 31, 1998 were $1,836.9 million, an increase of $763.8 million versus the year ended December 28, 1997. After excluding:

- $1,009.0 million of sales generated by the acquired companies;
- $5.5 million of sales in 1998 resulting from the change in fiscal year end, as described in Note 1 to the Consolidated Financial Statements;
- $12.7 million in 1998 and $31.3 million in 1997 from sales of excess or discontinued inventory for which the inventory carrying value was substantially equivalent to the sales value;
- $4.2 million from 1997 sales relating to divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations - time and temperature products and Counselor and Borg branded scales; and
- a $5.4 million benefit in 1997 from the reduction of cooperative advertising accruals no longer required (cooperative advertising costs are recorded as deductions in determining net sales);

net sales on an adjusted basis ("Adjusted Sales") of $809.7 million in 1998 decreased approximately 22% from Adjusted Sales of $1,032.2 million in 1997. Product sales were adversely impacted by a number of factors, with the largest being changes in retail inventory levels from channel loading which took place in 1997. Sunbeam believes the year-to-year effect of these inventory reductions amounted to over $100 million. Additionally, losses in distribution of outdoor cooking products estimated at approximately $60 million, the estimated effect of price discounting on appliance and grill products of approximately $14 million, and estimated higher provisions for customer returns and allowances of approximately $30 million contributed to the lower sales in 1998. The increase in customer returns and allowances resulted from:

- increased returns of approximately $16 million principally resulting from channel loading and other aggressive sales practices (estimated at approximately $9 million) which began in the fourth quarter of 1997 and continued in the first quarter of 1998, a blanket recall ($3.0 million) and the discontinuance of certain product lines (approximately $4 million) principally air and water products; and
- additional customer allowances of approximately $14 million primarily to induce sales during the first quarter of 1998.

The remaining sales decline was due in part to exiting some product SKUs.

Domestic Adjusted Sales declined approximately 21% or $170 million from 1997. Sunbeam believes more than half of the sales decline was due to increased retail inventory levels in 1997 versus decreased inventory positions at customers in 1998. Excluding this effect, sales were still lower than the prior year throughout the business, with the most significant decline occurring in outdoor cooking products sales. During 1997, Sunbeam lost a significant portion of its outdoor cooking products distribution, including the majority of its grill parts and accessories products distribution. The outdoor cooking products sales decline was attributable predominantly to this lost distribution and to price discounting. The majority of the remaining sales decline was due to higher provisions for customer returns and allowances.

International Adjusted Sales, which represented 22% of Adjusted Sales for 1998, decreased approximately 24% compared with the International Adjusted Sales for the same period a year ago. Sunbeam believes this sales decline was primarily attributable to decreasing customer inventory levels as compared with the prior year. Sales were also adversely impacted by a decision to stop selling to some export distributors in Latin America and by poor economic conditions in that region. In addition, lost distribution in Canada contributed to the sales decline from the prior year.

Excluding the effects of:

- the gross margin generated from the inclusion of the acquired companies' operations in the period of $205.1 million;
- $0.8 million from the impact of the change in fiscal year-end;
- $128.4 million in 1998 in charges recorded in the second and fourth quarters related to excess inventory and fixed assets impairments;
- $15.8 million from the benefit in 1997 from the reversal of reserves no longer required, including $5.4 million of cooperative advertising accruals; and
- a $2.8 million benefit recorded in the second quarter of 1997 resulting from capitalizing some manufacturing supplies inventories which were previously expensed;

there was a negative gross margin of $29.4 million for 1998 versus a gross margin of $223.5 million for 1997. This reduction in gross margin was principally attributable to the following:

- approximately $145 million related to lower sales volume and unfavorable manufacturing efficiencies resulting from lower production levels associated with the lower sales volumes and high inventory levels in 1998;
- approximately $65 million related to lower price realization, higher costs of customer returns and allowances, and adverse sales mix in 1998;
- approximately $12 million related to higher costs in 1998 associated with warranty, of which $3.0 million related to a blanket recall, with the remaining increase attributable to increased provisions in response to higher overall warranty expense experiences; and
- approximately $20 million related to unfavorable inventory adjustments, of which the most significant single factor was physical inventory adjustments in the domestic business.

Adverse product sales mix was due to the loss of a majority of the grill accessory products distribution as accessories generate significantly better margins than the average margins on sales of most of Sunbeam's other products.

Excluding the effects of the following, SG&A expenses were approximately $254 million in 1998, approximately $105 million, or 70% higher than in 1997:

- $329.9 million of SG&A charges in the acquired companies, including the $62.5 million goodwill write-off related to First Alert;
- $70.0 million recorded in the third quarter of 1998 related to the issuance of a warrant to a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes, as discussed below;

- $2.3 million of SG&A expense in 1998 from the change in the fiscal period;
- a $3.0 million benefit in 1998 and a $12.1 million benefit in 1997 from the reversal of reserves no longer required. The 1998 benefit consists of a $3.0 million reversal in the first quarter of 1998 of environmental reserves which are no longer required as a result of a favorable development at a remediation site. The 1997 benefit consists primarily of a $8.1 million reversal of litigation reserves, established in 1996, which were no longer required in the fourth quarter of 1997 due to a favorable settlement during 1997. The remaining $4.0 million 1997 benefit consists of reversals of other accruals primarily relating to consulting fees, health insurance and advertising. For further information see Note 17 to the Consolidated Financial Statements;
- approximately $31 million of 1998 compensation expense recorded in connection with new February 1998 employment agreements with Sunbeam's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other former senior officers and approximately $3 million of severance in 1998 for some former employees. The new employment agreements provided for Sunbeam to pay these former employees amounts which reimbursed them for their personal tax liabilities resulting from shares issued in connection with the accelerated vesting of restricted stock granted under their July 1996 agreements ($6.9 million), as well as on the new unrestricted stock grants under the February 1998 agreements ($9.8 million). The charge also includes the value, at approximately $39 per share, of 300,000 restricted shares and 45,000 restricted shares which vested in February 1998 for Sunbeam's then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other then senior officers, respectively ($13.6 million). In addition, $0.4 million was expensed during 1998 relating to the amortization of the 1996 restricted stock awards. See Note 8 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements for information regarding the terms of these employment agreements;
- $20.4 million, $6.1 million and $4.0 million of costs recorded in 1998 related to costs associated with the restatement efforts, principally representing legal, accounting and auditing, and consulting costs of $14.1 million, $5.7 million and $0.6 million, respectively, Year 2000 compliance efforts and a corporate office relocation, respectively; and
- $15.8 million of restructuring related charges recorded in 1997, charged to operations as incurred, represent employee relocation and recruiting ($6.2 million), equipment relocation and installation ($5.6 million) and package redesign costs ($4.0 million).

The increase of approximately $105 million in SG&A expense in 1998 over 1997 is principally due to several factors:

- Corporate administrative costs increased by approximately $47 million, reflecting additional personnel and related relocation, travel and other costs, as well as increased outside provider fees, telecommunications expense and insurance.
- Higher allowances for accounts receivable in 1998, accounting for approximately $20 million of the increase, related primarily to collection issues with customers in the United States and in Latin America, including several major customers who have filed and/or threatened bankruptcy.
- Advertising, marketing and selling expenses increased by approximately $13 million, reflecting a national television campaign for grills and increased activity in market research, package design and sales efforts. Higher inventory levels in 1998 and costs associated with outsourcing small parts fulfillment led to higher distribution and warehousing costs of approximately $12 million.
- Increased environmental reserves for divested and closed facilities added approximately $5 million. Approximately half of the environmental reserve increase reflected revisions to estimates of costs to remediate existing sites. These revisions were based on obtaining additional information in the fourth quarter of 1998 about costs of planned remediation actions and costs associated with additional remediation actions. The remaining amount was to provide for revisions to reserves for estimated losses for damages related to environmental sites. These revisions were based on obtaining additional information in the fourth quarter of 1998 regarding the level of damages sought and the costs and probability of defending Sunbeam's position in these actions.

- Settlement of a patent infringement action resulted in additional expense of approximately $4 million. Remaining legal expenses recorded in the year of approximately $1 million for investigation, defense and settlement of both new and previously existing issues were nearly equal to amounts incurred for similar items in 1997. Additionally, as described above, SG&A includes $14.1 million of legal costs recorded in 1998 associated with the restatement efforts. Amounts accrued for litigation matters represent the anticipated costs (damages and/or settlement amounts) in connection with pending litigation and claims and related anticipated legal fees. The costs are accrued when it is both probable that an asset has been impaired or a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated. The accruals are based upon Sunbeam's assessment, after consultation with counsel, of probable loss based on the facts and circumstances of each case, the legal issues involved, the nature of the claim made, the nature of the damages sought and any relevant information about the plaintiff, and other significant factors which vary by case. When it is not possible to estimate a specific expected amount of loss to be incurred, Sunbeam evaluates the range of possible losses and records the minimum end of the range. As of December 31, 1998 and December 28, 1997, Sunbeam had established accruals for litigation matters of $31.2 million (representing $17.5 million and $13.7 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively) and $9.9 million (representing $3.0 million and $6.9 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively), respectively. It is anticipated that the $31.2 million accrual will be paid as follows: $22.4 million in 1999, $7.5 million in 2000 and $1.3 million in 2001. Sunbeam believes, based on information known to it on December 31, 1998, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters existing as of December 31, 1998 have been adequately reserved to the extent determinable.

During 1997, Sunbeam determined that the amounts accrued at December 29, 1996 for Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges recorded in fiscal 1996 exceeded amounts ultimately required. Accordingly, the 1997 Consolidated Statement of Operations reflects the reversal of accruals no longer required, resulting in a Restructuring and Asset Impairment Benefit of $14.6 million. This reversal was reflected in the third ($5.8 million) and fourth ($8.8 million) quarters of 1997 when it became evident that such accruals were no longer required.

On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a special committee of the board of directors consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes, Sunbeam had entered into a settlement agreement with a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes, pursuant to which Sunbeam was released from certain threatened claims of MacAndrews & Forbes and its affiliates arising from the Coleman acquisition and MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide certain management personnel and assistance to Sunbeam in exchange for the issuance to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase up to 23 million shares of Sunbeam's common stock at a cash exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to antidilution adjustments. Sunbeam concluded that the agreement to issue this warrant did not result in a new measurement date for the purposes of determining the purchase price for Coleman and has accounted for the issuance of this warrant as a cost of settling a potential claim. Accordingly, a $70.0 million non-cash SG&A expense was recorded in the third quarter of 1998, based on a valuation performed as of August 1998 using facts existing at that time. The valuation was conducted by an independent consultant engaged by the special committee of the board of directors.

Operating results for 1998 and 1997, on an adjusted basis as described above, were a loss of approximately $283 million in 1998 and a profit of approximately $74 million in 1997. This change resulted from the factors discussed above.

Interest expense increased from $11.4 million for the twelve months of 1997 to $131.1 million for the same period in 1998. Approximately 70% of the change related to higher borrowing levels in 1998 for the acquisitions, with the remainder due to increased borrowings to fund working capital, capital expenditures and the operating losses.

Other income, net increased in 1998 by $4.8 million due to approximately $8 million from the settlement of a lawsuit, and approximately $4 million of increased net gains from foreign exchange in the period. The foreign exchange net gains were primarily from Mexico. Increased losses on sales of fixed assets of approximately $5 million and increased expenses related to the bank credit facility partially offset the above mentioned income. The increased credit facility expenses largely related to unused facility fees.

The minority interest reported in 1998 relates to the minority interest held in Coleman by minority stockholders.

During 1998, the current tax provision arose largely from taxes on the earnings of foreign subsidiaries as well as franchise taxes. Deferred tax benefits were recognized in 1998 principally due to net operating losses incurred subsequent to the acquisitions. These benefits were realized through the use of deferred tax credits that were established in connection with the acquisitions to the extent that such credits are expected to be realized in the loss carryforward period. Throughout 1998, Sunbeam increased the income tax valuation allowance on deferred tax assets to $290.5 million. This increase reflects management's assessment that it is more likely than not that these deferred tax assets will not be realized through future taxable income. This assessment, which was initially made in the fourth quarter of 1997, resulted from the significant leverage undertaken by Sunbeam in connection with its acquisitions and the continuing decline in Sunbeam's net sales and earnings, as well as the operating losses incurred throughout the 1998 year. The 1997 effective tax rate was higher than the federal statutory income tax rate primarily due to state taxes, the effects of foreign earnings and dividends taxed at other rates and the impact of providing a valuation allowance on deferred tax assets.

In 1998, Sunbeam prepaid debt assumed in the acquisitions and prepaid an industrial revenue bond related to its Hartiesburg facility. The debt assumed in connection with the Coleman acquisition was repaid as a result of the requirements under the terms of Sunbeam's new credit facility. In connection with these early extinguishments of debt, Sunbeam recognized an extraordinary charge of $122.4 million, consisting of redemption premiums ($106.9 million), unamortized debt discount ($13.8 million) and unamortized deferred financing costs ($1.7 million).

Sunbeam's discontinued furniture business, which was sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and nominal earnings for that period. As a result of the sale of Sunbeam's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), Sunbeam received $69.0 million in cash, retained approximately $50 million in accounts receivable and retained some liabilities. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the sale agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, Sunbeam recorded an additional loss on disposal of $14.0 million net of applicable income tax benefits of $8.5 million.

1996 Restructuring Plan and Other Charges and Benefits

In November 1996, Sunbeam announced the details of a restructuring plan. The plan included:

- the consolidation of administrative functions;
- the reduction of manufacturing and warehouse facilities;
- the centralization of Sunbeam's procurement function;
- the reduction of Sunbeam's product offerings and SKUs; and
- the elimination of some businesses and product lines.

As part of the restructuring plan, Sunbeam consolidated six divisional and regional headquarters functions into a single worldwide corporate headquarters and outsourced some back office activities resulting in a reduction in total back-office/administrative headcount. Overall, the restructuring plan called for a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and the elimination of over 6,000 positions from Sunbeam's workforce, including 3,300 from the disposition of some business operations and the elimination of approximately 2,800 other positions, some of which were outsourced. Sunbeam completed the major phases of the restructuring plan by July 1997.

The 1996 restructuring plan was unable to improve earnings over the long term for a number of reasons, including, but not limited to, its failure to realize some of the anticipated costs savings and the negative impact that implementation of the restructuring plan had on sales, product quality, customer service, research and development and the introduction of new products. Sunbeam's current strategy is to create innovative new products that anticipate consumer needs, develop effective marketing and advertising programs, build relationships, create the right culture and choose the right people.

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring plan, Sunbeam recorded a pre-tax charge of $239.2 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is recorded as follows in the Consolidated Statements of Operations:

- $110.1 million recorded in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges, as further described below;
- $60.8 million in Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs to net realizable value as a result of a reduction in SKUs and costs of inventory liquidation programs;
- $10.1 million in SG&A expense, for period costs, which were charged to operations as incurred, principally relating to employee relocation and recruiting, equipment relocation and installation ($3.2 million), transitional fees relating to outsourcing arrangements ($4.9 million) and package redesign costs ($2.0 million); and
- $58.2 million ($39.1 million net of taxes) in Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations related to the divestiture of its furniture business.

In 1997, upon completion of the sale of the furniture business, Sunbeam recorded an additional pre-tax loss of $22.5 million from discontinued operations ($14.0 million net of taxes) due primarily to lower than anticipated sales proceeds relating to the post closing adjustment that was part of the sale agreement.

Amounts included in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges in 1996 in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations included anticipated cash charges such as severance and other employee costs of $24.7 million, lease obligations of $12.6 million and other exit costs associated with facility closures and related to the implementation of the restructuring plan of $4.1 million, principally representing costs related to clean-up and restoration of owned and leased facilities for either sale or return to the landlord.

Included in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges of $110.1 million in 1996 was $68.7 million of non-cash charges principally consisting of:

- asset write-downs to net realizable value of $22.5 million for disposals of excess facilities and equipment and product lines;
- write-offs of redundant computer systems of $12.3 million from the administrative back-office consolidations and outsourcing initiatives;
- write-off of intangibles of $10.1 million relating to discontinued product lines;
- write-off of capitalized product and package design costs and other expenses of $9.0 million related to exited product lines and SKU reductions. Prior to 1996, Sunbeam had capitalized certain costs related to international product development and package design, which were amortized over the period of related benefit. The product development costs ($1.9 million) related to international operations and represented the costs necessary to modify products for introduction to the international markets. As the restructuring plan included the closure of the International Group office and elimination of a number of products to which these costs pertained, the related capitalized costs were written off. Additionally, in connection with the restructuring plan, as a result of the elimination of many products and SKUs, Sunbeam updated its package designs. Accordingly, the unamortized balance of the capitalized package design costs which had been capitalized prior to 1996 ($5.0 million) was written off. Sunbeam discontinued incurring costs of a significant nature relating to these items and consequently has discontinued capitalizing such costs subsequent to 1995; and
- asset write-downs of $14.8 million related to the divestiture of some non-core products and businesses.

The asset write-downs of $22.5 million and write-offs of $12.3 million discussed above included equipment taken out of service in 1996 (either abandoned in 1996 or sold in 1997) and, accordingly, depreciation was not recorded subsequent to the date of the impairment charge. The asset write-downs of $14.8 million related to the divestiture of non-core products and businesses resulted from divesting the time and temperature business in March 1997 and Counselor and Borg scale product lines in May 1997 and the sale of the textile mill in Biddeford, Maine in May 1997. These charges primarily represented the estimated non-cash losses resulting from the sale or abandonment of facilities and equipment, based on the estimated net proceeds from the sale of these assets compared to their recorded net book value, related to exiting these product lines.

The $24.7 million for severance and other employee costs, including COBRA and other fringe benefits, related to approximately 3,700 positions that were planned to be eliminated as a result of the restructuring plan, excluding approximately 2,400 employees terminated from the furniture business for which severance was included in Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations. See Note 13 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements. The furniture business was sold in 1997. In 1996 and 1997, approximately 1,200 employees and 1,800 employees, respectively, were terminated from continuing operations. Due largely to attrition, the remaining planned terminations were not required. In 1997, Sunbeam determined that its severance and employee benefit costs were less than originally accrued principally due to lower than expected COBRA and workers compensation costs and, accordingly, reversed accruals of $7.9 million in the third ($2.1 million) and fourth ($5.8 million) quarters. At December 31, 1997, the balance accrued of $1.2 million represented the remaining severance and employee benefit costs for some employees terminated during 1997. During 1998, all amounts were expended.

The amounts accrued at December 29, 1996 for Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges recorded in fiscal 1996, exceeded amounts ultimately required principally due to reductions in anticipated severance and employee benefit costs of $7.9 million, as discussed above, and reductions in estimated lease payments of $6.7 million ($3.7 million and $3.0 million recognized in the third and fourth quarters, respectively) resulting from better than anticipated rentals received under sub-leases and favorable negotiation of lease terminations. Accordingly, the fiscal 1997 Consolidated Statement of Operations included $14.6 million of benefit ($5.8 million in the third quarter and $8.8 million in the fourth quarter of 1997) related to the reversal of accruals no longer required, which were recorded as these reduced obligations became known.

In 1996, in conjunction with the initiation of the restructuring plan, Sunbeam recorded additional charges totaling $129.1 million, reflected in Cost of Goods Sold, SG&A expense, and Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations. The charge included in Cost of Goods Sold of $60.8 million principally represented inventory write-downs to net realizable value and anticipated losses on the disposition of the inventory as a result of the significant reduction in SKUs provided for in the restructuring plan. The write-down to net realizable value, based upon management's best estimates, included $26.9 million related to raw materials, work-in process and finished goods for discontinued outdoor cooking products, principally grills and grill accessories and the balance related to raw materials, work-in process and finished goods for other discontinued products including appliances ($27.8 million), clippers ($1.0 million) and blankets ($5.1 million). For inventory which management determined was saleable, the estimated write-down was based upon the difference between the expected net sales proceeds of the inventory, depending upon distribution channel, and the recorded value of the inventory. In the case of abandoned inventory, the write-down was equal to the recorded value of the inventory. The resulting difference between carrying value and estimated net realizable value represented the $60.8 million write-down necessary to record the inventory at its net realizable value. SG&A expense included period costs, charged to operations as incurred, in 1997 and 1996 of $15.8 million and $10.1 million, respectively, relating to employee relocation and recruiting and equipment installation and relocation ($11.8 million in 1997 and $3.2 million in 1996) transitional fees relating to outsourcing arrangements ($4.9 million in 1996), and package redesign costs ($4.0 million in 1997 and $2.0 million in 1996) expended as a result of the implementation of the restructuring plan. The 1996 Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations related to the divestiture of Sunbeam's furniture business. In 1996, Sunbeam decided to divest its furniture operations and recorded an estimated pre-tax loss of $58.2 million related to the sale of assets, primarily fixed assets and inventory. In 1997, Sunbeam recorded an additional pre-tax loss of $22.5 million due primarily to lower than anticipated sales proceeds resulting from the post closing adjustment as provided for in the sale agreement. See Notes 12 and 13 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements.

At December 28, 1997, Sunbeam had $5.2 million in liabilities accrued related to the 1996 restructuring plan, including $1.2 million of severance related costs and $4.0 million related to facility closures, which principally represented future lease payments, net of sub-leases, on exited facilities. During 1998, this liability was reduced by $4.0 million as a result of cash expenditures. At December 28, 1997, Sunbeam had $3.0 million of warranty liabilities related to the discontinued furniture operations. During 1998, $2.5 million of this liability was liquidated.

The charges and benefit described above are included in the following categories in the 1997 and 1996 Consolidated Statements of Operations (in millions):

At December 29, 1996, the net realizable value of the remaining inventory written-down as part of the restructuring and asset impairment charges was approximately $37.3 million. During 1997, this inventory, a portion of which was product of discontinued operations, was sold for amounts substantially equivalent to its net carrying value.

As further discussed in Note 15 to the Consolidated Financial Statements, during the fourth quarter of 1996, Sunbeam charged SG&A for increases of $9.0 million in environmental reserves and $12.0 million in litigation reserves. In the fourth quarter of 1996, Sunbeam performed a comprehensive review of all environmental exposures in an attempt by the then new senior management team to accelerate the resolution and settlement of environmental claims. As a result, upon the conclusion of the review, Sunbeam recorded additional environmental reserves of $9.0 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. The litigation charge of $12.0 million was recorded due to an unfavorable court ruling in January 1997, which held that Sunbeam was liable for environmental remediation costs related to the operations of a successor company. As a result of this ruling, Sunbeam provided for this liability in the fourth quarter of 1996. In the fourth quarter of 1997, this case was settled and, as a result, $8.1 million of the charge was reversed into income, primarily in the fourth quarter of 1997.

As described in Note 8 to the Consolidated Financial Statements, Sunbeam also charged $7.7 million to SG&A expenses in 1996 for compensation costs associated with restricted stock awards and other costs related to the employment of the then new senior management team.

During the first, second, third and fourth quarters of 1997, approximately $0.5 million, $4.5 million, $1.5 million and $21.5 million, respectively, of pre-tax liabilities provided in prior years and determined to be no longer required were reversed and taken into income. These amounts were primarily related to:

- the litigation reserve of $8.1 million discussed above, resulting in a reduction in SG&A expenses;
- inventory valuation allowances of $7.0 million, resulting in a reduction in Costs of Goods Sold;
- cooperative advertising allowances of $5.4 million, resulting in an increase in net sales;
- liabilities for exiting of facilities and plant consolidations provided for prior to 1996 of $3.5 million, resulting in a decrease in Cost of Goods Sold; and
- consulting fee accruals of $1.3 million, which resulted in a decrease in SG&A expenses.

These liabilities were provided for by Sunbeam, principally in 1996, based upon its best available estimate at the time of the probable liabilities. When information became available that the amounts provided were in excess of what was required, Sunbeam reduced the applicable reserves and recorded increases in Net Sales of $5.4 million, reductions in Cost of Goods Sold of $10.5 million and reductions in SG&A expenses of $12.1 million.

Additionally, effective in the second quarter of fiscal 1997, Sunbeam changed its method of accounting to capitalize manufacturing supplies inventories, whereas, previously these inventories were charged to operations when purchased. This change reduced Cost of Goods Sold in fiscal 1997 by $2.8 million.

Results of Operations for 1997 Compared to 1996

Net sales for 1997 were $1,073.1 million, an increase of $88.9 million or 9% over 1996. After excluding the following, Adjusted Sales increased 8% over the prior year to $1,032.2 million from $953.4 million in 1996:

- $4.2 million and $30.8 million in 1997 and 1996, respectively, related to divested product lines which were not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products, decorative bedding and Counselor and Borg branded scales);
- $31.3 million of sales in 1997 of discontinued inventory which resulted primarily from the reduction of SKUs as part of the 1996 restructuring plan and for which the inventory carrying value was substantially equivalent to the sales value; and
- a $5.4 million benefit from the reduction of cooperative advertising accruals no longer required in 1997.

Adjusted Sales, on a worldwide basis, increased during 1997 primarily from new product introductions, expanded distribution, particularly with Sunbeam's top ten customers, international geographic expansion and increased inventory positions at some customers. Adjusted Sales growth was approximately 19% for appliances and approximately 12% in outdoor cooking. Adjusted Sales for health products increased approximately 5% while Adjusted Sales of personal care products and blankets decreased approximately 13% during 1997.

Sales increases in appliances of approximately $69 million were driven by new products, such as redesigned blenders and mixers, coffeemakers, irons, deep fryers and toasters, and by increased distribution with large national mass retailers, combined with higher inventory levels at some customers. Sales of outdoor cooking products increased approximately $30 million in 1997 attributed to increased merchandising and advertising programs, new distribution and higher inventory levels at some customers. During 1997, Sunbeam lost a significant portion of its outdoor cooking products distribution, including the majority of its grill accessory products distribution. Accessories, which accounted for just over 10% of the outdoor cooking sales volume in 1997, generate significantly better margins than the average margins on sales of grills. These distribution changes are expected to adversely impact outdoor cooking sales and margins in the future, until such time as the distribution is regained.

Sales of personal care products and blankets suffered during the fourth quarter of 1997 as a result of lower than expected retail sell through of electric blankets in key northern markets in late 1997 coupled with the inability to service demand for king and queen sized blankets due to shortages of blanket shells. Sunbeam shifted to a more level production for blankets in 1998 in order to more adequately service the seasonal demand for bedding products. Sales of health products as well as personal care and bedding products were impacted by increased inventory positions at customers in 1997.

International sales, which represented 21% of total revenues in 1997, grew 25% during the year. This sales growth was driven primarily by 54 new 220 volt product introductions and a general improvement in demand in export operations and in Mexico. Net sales growth of approximately 35% was achieved in the Latin American export sales organization. Most of this growth came from increased business with three exporters. In Mexico and Venezuela, sales grew 30% and 24%, respectively. Canada accounted for the majority of the remaining international sales growth.

Excluding the effects of:

- charges of $60.8 million to Cost of Goods Sold related to the restructuring plan in 1996;
- the $15.9 million benefit of reducing reserves no longer required in 1997; and
- the $2.8 million benefit in 1997 of capitalizing manufacturing supplies inventories;

gross margin as a percent of Adjusted Sales would have been approximately 22% in 1997, an improvement of approximately 6 percentage points from 16% in 1996. This increase reflects the results of lower overhead spending, improved factory utilization and labor cost benefits resulting from Sunbeam's restructuring plan, coupled with reductions in materials costs. The lower overhead spending resulted from a reduction in the number of facilities operated by Sunbeam. With fewer facilities used for production purposes, the capacity of the remaining plants was more fully utilized. The labor cost benefits were realized principally from shifting production to Mexico. In addition, a broad based program to obtain lower costs for materials contributed to the 1997 margin improvement.

Excluding the impact of:

- the restructuring and asset impairment period costs to SG&A expense of $15.8 million in 1997 and $10.1 million in 1996;
- the 1996 charges for the environmental accrual of $9.0 million, litigation accrual of $12.0 million and restricted stock grant compensation of $7.7 million; and
- the 1997 benefit from the reversal of reserves no longer required of $12.1 million;

SG&A improved to 14% of Adjusted Sales in 1997, down 5 percentage points from 19% in 1996. This improvement was partially the result of benefits from the consolidation of six divisional and regional headquarters into one corporate headquarters and one administrative operations center, reduced staffing levels, a reduction in the number of warehouses, and Company-wide cost control initiatives. Higher expenditures in 1996 for market research, new packaging and other discretionary charges and higher bad debt expenses associated with some of Sunbeam's customers also contributed to the decrease in SG&A expense from 1996 to 1997. The expense for doubtful accounts and cash discounts was $17.3 million in 1997 as compared to $27.1 million in 1996. The principal factor in the decrease in bad debt expenses during this period was the acceleration of the consolidation of the U.S. retail industry and the related competitive environment, which resulted in a number of troubled retailers and related bankruptcies during 1996. This resulted in the significant amount of bad debt write-offs—$19.9 million—in 1996.

The restructuring accrual, which existed at January 1, 1996 ($13.8 million), was initially established as part of a "rightsizing program" during fiscal 1992. During 1996, approximately $3 million of this accrual was utilized and the remaining $10.8 million became part of the reserve requirements of the 1996 restructuring plan. In effect, in 1996, Sunbeam reversed the $10.8 million prior year accrual determined to be no longer required and provided a corresponding amount in connection with the 1996 restructuring charge.

Operating results for 1997 and 1996, on a comparable basis as described above, were earnings of $74.5 million in 1997 and a loss of $34.8 million in 1996. On the same basis, operating margin increased 11 percentage points to 7% of Adjusted Sales in 1997 versus a loss of 4% in 1996. This improvement resulted from the factors discussed above.

Interest expense decreased from $13.6 million in 1996 to $11.4 million in 1997 primarily as a result of lower average borrowing levels in 1997.

The 1997 effective income tax rate for continuing operations was higher than the federal statutory income tax rate primarily due to state taxes plus the effect of foreign earnings and dividends taxed at other rates and the increase to the valuation reserve for deferred tax assets, offset in part by the reversal of tax liabilities no longer required. During the fourth quarter of 1997, approximately $13.3 million of tax liabilities related to the 1993 and 1994 tax years were determined to be no longer required and were reversed and taken into income. These accruals were no longer required because during the fourth quarter of 1997 Sunbeam reached a resolution with the Internal Revenue Service on its audits of the 1993 and 1994 tax years. Additionally, in the fourth quarter of 1997, Sunbeam increased the valuation allowance by $23.2 million reflecting management's assessment that it was more likely than not that the deferred tax asset will not be realized through future taxable income. Of this amount, $18.9 million related to deferred tax assets, the majority of which was recognized as a benefit in the first three quarters of 1997. The remainder related to minimum pension liabilities and was therefore recorded as an adjustment to shareholders' equity. This assessment was made as a result of the significant leverage incurred by Sunbeam to finance the acquisitions and the significant decline in net sales and earnings from anticipated levels during the fourth quarter of 1997 and the first quarter of 1998. For 1996, the effective income tax rate for continuing operations equaled the federal statutory income tax rate.

Sunbeam's diluted earnings per share from continuing operations was $0.60 per share in 1997 versus a loss per share from continuing operations in 1996 of $2.05. Sunbeam's share base utilized in the diluted earnings per share calculation increased approximately 6% during 1997 as a result of an increase in the number of shares of common stock outstanding due to the exercise of stock options in 1997 and the inclusion of common stock equivalents in the 1997 calculation.

Sunbeam's discontinued furniture business, which was sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and nominal earnings. In 1996, the discontinued furniture business had net income of $0.8 million on revenues of $227.5 million and an estimated loss on disposal of the business of $39.1 million, net of applicable income tax benefits. The sale of Sunbeam's furniture business assets—primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment—was completed in March 1997. Sunbeam received $69.0 million in cash, retained approximately $50.0 million in accounts receivable and retained some liabilities related to the furniture business. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment under the terms of the sale agreement, and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, Sunbeam recorded an additional pre-tax loss on disposal of $22.5 million. Although the discontinued furniture business was profitable, net income had declined from $21.7 million in 1994 to $0.8 million in 1996. This decline, along with Sunbeam's announcement that it intended to divest this line of business contributed to the loss on the sale. See discussion of restructuring and asset impairment (benefit) charges in Note 12 and discontinued operations in Note 13 to the Consolidated Financial Statements for further information regarding sale of the furniture business.

After consideration of the adjustments above, 1998 and 1996 results from continuing operations reflect losses and 1997 continuing operations are marginally profitable. Due to a variety of factors, including increased inventory positions at some customers and manufacturing and sourcing activities during 1997 and the first half of 1998 which increased Sunbeam's inventory position, the results for each of 1998 and 1997 are not indicative of future results. Results for 1999 are expected to be impacted by the continuing effects of Sunbeam's excess inventory position, as well as costs related to Year 2000 compliance efforts.

Foreign Operations

Approximately 75% of Sunbeam's business is conducted in U.S. dollars, including domestic sales, U.S. dollar denominated export sales, primarily to Latin American markets; Asian sales and the majority of European sales. Sunbeam's non-U.S. dollar denominated sales are made principally by subsidiaries in Europe, Canada, Japan, Latin America and Mexico. Mexico reverted to a hyperinflationary status for accounting purposes in 1997; therefore, translation adjustments related to Mexican net monetary assets are included as a component of net (loss) earnings. Mexico is no longer considered hyperinflationary as of January 1, 1999. This change in Mexico's hyperinflationary status is not expected to have a material effect on Sunbeam's financial results. Translation adjustments resulting from Sunbeam's non-U.S. denominated subsidiaries have not had a material impact on Sunbeam's financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

While revenues generated in Asia have traditionally not been significant, economic instability in this region is expected to have a negative effect on earnings. Economic instability and the political environment in Latin America have also affected sales in that region. It is anticipated that sales in and exports to these regions will continue to decline so long as the economic environments in those regions remain unsettled.

On a limited basis, Sunbeam selectively uses derivatives—foreign exchange option and forward contracts—to manage foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivative contracts are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. The use of derivatives has not had a material impact on Sunbeam's financial results. See Note 4 to the Consolidated Financial Statements.

Exposure to Market Risk

Qualitative Information

Sunbeam uses a variety of derivative financial instruments to manage its foreign currency and interest rate exposures. Sunbeam does not speculate on interest rates or foreign currency rates. Instead, it uses derivatives when implementing its risk management strategies to reduce the possible effects of these exposures.

With respect to foreign currency exposures, Sunbeam is most vulnerable to changes in rates between the United States dollar/Japanese yen, Canadian dollar, German deutschemark, Mexican peso and Venezuelan bolivar exchange rates. Sunbeam principally uses forward and option contracts to reduce risks arising from firm commitments, intercompany sales transactions and intercompany receivable and payable balances. Sunbeam generally uses interest rate swaps to fix some of its variable rate debt. Sunbeam manages credit risk related to these derivative contracts through credit approvals, exposure limits and threshold amounts and other monitoring procedures.

Quantitative Information

Below are tables of information related to Sunbeam's investments in market risk sensitive instruments. All of the instruments in the following tables have been entered into by Sunbeam for purposes other than trading purposes.

Interest Rate Sensitivity. The table below provides information about Sunbeam's derivative financial instruments and other financial instruments that are sensitive to changes in interest rates, including interest rate swaps and debt obligations.

For debt obligations, the table presents principal cash flows by expected maturity date and related (weighted) December 31, 1998 average interest rates. Included in the debt position are the debentures, which carry no intervening cash flows but mature in 2018. For interest rate swaps, the table presents notional amounts and weighted average interest rates for the contracts at the current time. Notional amounts are used to calculate the contractual payments to be exchanged under the contracts.

- (1) The fair value of fixed rate debt is estimated using either reported transaction values or discounted cash flow analysis. The carrying value of variable rate debt is assumed to approximate market value based on the periodic adjustments of the interest rates to the current market rates in accordance with the terms of the agreements. The fair value of the interest rate swaps is based on estimates of the cost of terminating the swaps.
- (2) The total amount of debentures maturing in future periods exceeds the balance as of December 31, 1998 due to the accretion of the debentures. See Note 3 to Sunbeam's Consolidated Financial Statements.

Exchange Rate Sensitivity. The table below provides information about Sunbeam's derivative financial instruments, other financial instruments and forward exchange agreements by functional currency and presents such information in U.S. dollar equivalents. The table summarizes information on instruments and transactions that are sensitive to foreign currency exchange rates, including foreign currency variable rate credit lines, foreign currency forward exchange agreements and foreign currency purchased put option contracts. For debt obligations, the table presents principal cash flows and related weighted average interest rates by expected maturity dates. For foreign currency forward exchange agreements and foreign currency put option contracts, the table presents the notional amounts and weighted average exchange rates by expected (contractual) maturity dates. These notional amounts generally are used to calculate the contractual payments to be exchanged under the contract. None of the instruments listed in the table have maturity dates beyond 1999.

Euro Conversion

On January 1, 1999, certain member countries of the European Union established fixed conversion rates between their existing currencies and the European Union's common currency (the "Euro"). The transition period for the introduction of the Euro is between January 1, 1999 and January 1, 2002. Sunbeam has been preparing for the introduction of the Euro and continues to evaluate and address the many issues involved, including the conversion of information technology systems, recalculating currency risk, strategies concerning continuity of contracts, and impacts on the processes for preparing taxation and accounting records. Based on the work to date, Sunbeam believes the Euro conversion will not have a material impact on its results of operations.

Seasonality

Sunbeam's consolidated sales are not expected to exhibit substantial seasonality; however, sales are expected to be strongest during the second quarter of the calendar year. Furthermore, sales of a number of products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers, grills, First Alert products, camping and generator products may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

Debt Instruments

In order to finance the acquisition of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands and to refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of Sunbeam and the three acquired companies, Sunbeam consummated an offering of debentures at a yield to maturity of 5%—approximately $2,014 million principal amount at maturity—in March 1998, which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds and borrowed about $1,325 million under its new bank credit facility.

The debentures are exchangeable for shares of Sunbeam's common stock at an initial conversion rate of 6.575 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the debentures, subject to adjustments upon occurrence of specified events. The debentures are subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future senior indebtedness of Sunbeam. The debentures are not redeemable by Sunbeam prior to March 25, 2003. On or after such date, the debentures are redeemable for cash with at least 30 days notice, at the option of Sunbeam. Sunbeam is required to purchase debentures at the option of the holder as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013, at purchase prices equal to the issue price plus accrued original discount to such dates. Sunbeam may, at its option, elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or common stock or any combination thereof. However, the bank credit facility prohibits Sunbeam from redeeming or repurchasing debentures for cash. Sunbeam was required to file a registration statement with the SEC to register the debentures by June 23, 1998. This registration statement was filed on February 4, 1999 and, as amended, was declared effective on November 8, 1999. Sunbeam's failure to file the registration statement by June 23, 1998 did not constitute default under the terms of the debentures. From June 23, 1998 until the registration statement was declared effective, Sunbeam was required to pay to the debenture holders cash liquidated damages accruing, for each day during such period, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days and 0.50% thereafter multiplied by the total of the issue price of the debentures plus the original issue discount thereon on such day. Sunbeam has made total payments for liquidated damages since June 23, 1998 of $4.5 million, of which $1.5 million related to damages for the period through December 31, 1998. A final payment of approximately $0.5 million, representing liquidated damages from September 26, 1999 until the registration statement was declared effective, will be payable on March 25, 2000.

Concurrent with the acquisitions, Sunbeam replaced its $250 million syndicated unsecured five-year revolving credit facility with the bank credit facility. The bank credit facility provided for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion and in addition to other customary covenants, required Sunbeam to maintain specified consolidated leverage, interest coverage and fixed charge coverage ratios as of the end of each fiscal quarter occurring after March 31, 1998 and on or prior to the latest stated maturity date for any of the borrowings under the bank credit facility.

As a result of, among other things, its operating losses incurred during the first half of 1998, Sunbeam did not achieve the specified financial ratios for June 30, 1998 and it appeared unlikely that Sunbeam would achieve the specified financial ratios for September 30, 1998. Consequently, Sunbeam and its lenders entered into an agreement dated as of June 30, 1998 that waived through December 31, 1998 all defaults arising from the failure of Sunbeam to satisfy the specified financial ratios for June 30, 1998 and September 30, 1998. Pursuant to an agreement with Sunbeam dated as of October 19, 1998, Sunbeam's lenders extended all of the waivers under the June 30 agreement through April 10, 1999 and also waived through such date all defaults arising from any failure by Sunbeam to satisfy the specified financial ratios for December 31, 1998. As part of the October 19, 1998 agreement, Sunbeam agreed to a minimum monthly earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA") covenant for each of February, March and April of 1999, which covenant Sunbeam was able to satisfy.

On April 10, 1999, among other things, the lenders extended all of the waivers set forth in the October 19, 1998 agreement through April 15, 1999. On April 15, 1999, Sunbeam and its lenders entered into a comprehensive amendment to the bank credit facility that, among other things, extended all of the waivers under the April 10, 1999 agreement until April 10, 2000 and waived until such date all defaults arising from any failure by Sunbeam to satisfy the specified financial ratios for any fiscal quarter end occurring during 1999 and for March 31, 2000. As part of the April 15, 1999 amendment, Sunbeam agreed to a minimum cumulative EBITDA covenant that is based on post-December 31, 1998 consolidated EBITDA and is tested at the end of each month occurring on or prior to March 31, 2000, as well as a covenant limiting the amount of revolving loans (other than those used to fund the merger) that may be outstanding under the bank credit facility as of the end of each such month. The minimum cumulative EBITDA was initially $6.3 million for the period January 1, 1999 through April 30, 1999 and generally grows on a monthly basis until it reaches $121 million for the period from January 1, 1999 through March 31, 2000. The following description of the bank credit facility reflects the terms of the bank credit facility as amended to date.

The bank credit facility provides for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion through:

- a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400.0 million maturing March 30, 2005, $52.5 million of which may be used only to complete the merger;
- up to $800.0 million in term loans maturing on March 30, 2005, of which $35.0 million may be used only to complete the merger; and
- a $500.0 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006 (of which $5.0 million has already been repaid through June 30, 1999).

As of September 30, 1999, approximately $1.5 billion was outstanding and approximately $0.2 billion was available for borrowing under the bank credit facility.

Under the bank credit facility, interest accrues, at Sunbeam's option:

- at LIBOR; or
- at the base rate of the administrative agent which is generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%;

in each case plus an interest margin which is currently 4.00% for LIBOR borrowings and 2.50% for base rate borrowings. The current interest rates reflect an increase of 0.25% for LIBOR loans and base rate loans which occurred on September 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date and an increase of 0.50% for LIBOR and 0.25% for base rate loans which occurred on October 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date. The applicable interest margin is subject to downward adjustment upon the occurrence of specified events, including a decrease to 3.00% for LIBOR borrowings and 1.75% for base rate borrowings upon completion of the merger and the effectiveness of the pledge of substantially all of Coleman's and its domestic subsidiaries' assets to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility.

Under an April 15, 1999 amendment to the bank credit facility, Sunbeam agreed to pay the bank lenders a loan commitment fee of between 0.25% to 1.00% of the commitments under the bank credit facility as of April 15, 1999. The percentage used to calculate the fee will be determined by reference to the bank lenders' aggregate commitments and loan exposure under the bank credit facility as they may be reduced on or before September 30, 2000. The fee is payable on the earlier of September 30, 2000 and the date the commitments are terminated and the loans and other amounts payable under the bank credit facility are repaid. See Note 15 to the Consolidated Financial Statements.

Borrowings under the bank credit facility are secured by a pledge of the stock of Sunbeam's material subsidiaries, including Coleman, and by a security interest in substantially all of the assets of Sunbeam and its material domestic subsidiaries, other than Coleman and its material subsidiaries except as described below. Currently, Coleman's inventory and related assets are pledged to secure its obligations for letters of credit issued for its account under the bank credit facility. Additionally, as security for Coleman's note payable to Sunbeam, Coleman pledged substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property, including 66% of the stock of its direct foreign subsidiaries and domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries and all of the stock of its other direct domestic subsidiaries but not the assets of Coleman's subsidiaries. The pledge runs in favor of Sunbeam's lending banks, to which the Coleman note has been pledged as security for Sunbeam's obligations to them. Upon completion of the merger, substantially all of Coleman's assets and the assets of Coleman's domestic subsidiaries will be pledged to secure the obligations under the bank credit facility.

In addition, borrowings under the bank credit facility are guaranteed by a number of Sunbeam's wholly owned material domestic subsidiaries and these subsidiary guarantees are secured as described above. Upon completion of the merger, Coleman and each of its United States subsidiaries will become guarantors of the obligations under the bank credit facility. To the extent extensions of credit are made to any subsidiaries of Sunbeam, the obligations of such subsidiaries are guaranteed by Sunbeam.

In addition to the above described financial ratios and tests, the bank credit facility contains covenants customary for credit facilities of a similar nature, including limitations on the ability of Sunbeam and its subsidiaries, including Coleman, to, among other things:

- declare dividends or repurchase stock;
- prepay, redeem or repurchase debt, incur liens and engage in sale-leaseback transactions;
- make loans and investments;
- incur additional debt, including revolving loans under the bank credit facility;
- amend or otherwise alter material agreements or enter into restrictive agreements;
- make capital and Year 2000 compliance expenditures;
- engage in mergers, acquisitions and asset sales;
- engage in certain transactions with affiliates;
- settle certain litigation;
- alter its cash management system; and
- alter the businesses they conduct.

Sunbeam is also required to comply with specified financial covenants and ratios.

The bank credit facility provides for events of default customary for transactions of this type, including nonpayment, misrepresentation, breach of covenant, cross-defaults, bankruptcy, material adverse change arising from compliance with ERISA, material adverse judgments, entering into guarantees and change of ownership and control. It is also an event of default under the bank credit facility, as amended November 16, 1999, if Sunbeam's registration statement in connection with the merger is not declared effective by the SEC on or before January 10, 2000 or if the merger does not occur within 25 business days of the effectiveness of the registration statement or if the cash consideration—including any payments on account of the exercise of any appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses—to consummate the merger exceeds $87.5 million. Although there can be no assurance, Sunbeam anticipates that it will satisfy these conditions. Furthermore, the bank credit facility requires Sunbeam to prepay term loans under the bank credit facility on December 31, 1999 to the extent that cash on hand in Sunbeam's concentration accounts plus the aggregate amount of unused revolving loan commitments on this date exceeds $125 million, but Sunbeam is not required to prepay more than $69.3 million in the aggregate as a result of the provision.

Unless waived by the bank lenders, the failure of Sunbeam to satisfy any of the financial ratios and tests contained in the bank credit facility or the occurrence of any other event of default under the bank credit facility would entitle the bank lenders to (a) receive a 2.00% increase in the interest rate applicable to outstanding loans and increase the trade letter of credit fees to 1.00% and (b) accelerate the maturity of the outstanding borrowings under the bank credit facility and exercise all or any of their other rights and remedies. Any such acceleration or other exercise of rights and remedies would likely have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam.

The bank credit facility also includes provisions for the deferral of the September 30, 1999 and March 31, 2000 scheduled term loan payments of $69.3 million due on each such date until April 10, 2000 as a result of the satisfaction by Sunbeam on May 14, 1999 of the agreed upon conditions to the deferral. See Note 3 to the Consolidated and Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.

Cash Flows

As of September 30, 1999, Sunbeam had cash and cash equivalents of $29.1 million and total debt of $2.3 billion. Because the waivers granted by Sunbeam's lenders expire on April 10, 2000, the borrowings under the bank credit facility, as well as other debt containing cross-default provisions, are classified as current in the September 30, 1999 Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet. Cash used in operating activities during the first nine months of 1999 was $73.2 million compared to $224.7 million in the first nine months of 1998. This change is primarily attributable to improved operating results after giving effect to non-cash items, partially offset by increased working capital needs during the 1999 period. The increase in cash used for working capital during the 1999 period was primarily driven by accounts receivable, which increased $159.4 million as compared to the 1998 period, primarily attributable to Sunbeam's Outdoor Leisure division which experienced stronger second and third quarters sales in 1999 than in 1998. Additionally, working capital for the 1998 period was positively affected by the timing of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, which was at the peak of its inventory build for the 1998 selling season. Cash used for this acquired inventory is not reflected in working capital for the 1998 period. As a result of the effect of Company's management of inventory levels in 1999, cash flow improved approximately $81 million as compared to 1998 despite the favorable impact of the inventory acquired in connection with the 1998 acquisitions. Increases in accounts payable of approximately $30 million in the first nine months of 1999 positively impacted cash flow whereas payables used approximately $76 million of cash in the same period of 1998, resulting in an improvement in cash flow period-to-period of approximately $106 million. The increase in payables in the current period resulted from payable balances having been reduced to a low level by year-end 1998. This reduction in payables, which included an effort to reduce delinquent payables, began in the second quarter of 1998. Decreases in other liabilities, primarily accrued interest, account for the majority of the balance of the cash used for working capital in 1999. Sunbeam participates in an accounts receivable securitization program to finance a portion of its accounts receivable. See Note 4 to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.

In the first nine months of 1999, cash used in investing activities was driven by capital expenditures of $63.2 million, primarily for information systems, including expenditures for Year 2000 readiness and equipment and tooling for new products. Capital spending in the comparable 1998 period was $32.8 million and was primarily for several manufacturing efficiency initiatives, equipment and tooling for new products and management information systems and software licenses. The new product capital spending in the 1998 period principally related to the appliance category and included costs related to water and air filtration products which were discontinued in the second quarter, blenders, standmixers and irons. Cash used in investing activities in the first nine months of 1998 also reflects $379.2 million for the acquisitions of the shares of Coleman from a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes, as well as the acquisitions of Signature Brands and First Alert. Sunbeam anticipates 1999 capital spending to be less than 5% of net sales. Capital expenditures in the current year are expected to primarily relate to information systems and related support, including expenditures for Year 2000 readiness, new product introductions and capacity additions.

Cash provided by financing activities totaled $99.2 million in the first nine months of 1999 and reflected net borrowings under Sunbeam's bank credit facility. Cash provided by financing activities in the first nine months of 1998 was $636.1 million and reflected net proceeds from the debentures of $729.6 million, the cancellation and repayment of all outstanding balances under Sunbeam's $250 million September 1996 revolving credit facility, the repayment of certain debt assumed in connection with the Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert acquisitions, and the early extinguishment of the $75.0 million Hattiesburg industrial revenue bond. In addition, cash provided by financing activities in 1998 is net of $26.2 million of financing fees related to Sunbeam's $1.7 billion bank credit facility and $19.6 million of proceeds from the exercise of stock options. See Note 3 to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.

As of December 31, 1998, Sunbeam had cash and cash equivalents of $61.4 million, working capital excluding cash and cash equivalents of $427.1 million and total debt of $2,261 million. Cash used in operating activities during 1998 was $190.4 million compared to $6.0 million used in operating activities in 1997. This change is primarily attributable to lower earnings after giving effect to non-cash charges partially offset by improvements in working capital. During 1998, $184.2 million in cash was generated by reducing receivables, including through the revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program described below, and reducing inventories, which was partially offset by a $68.2 million reduction in accounts payable levels. In the fourth quarter of 1998, cash provided by operating activities totaled $34.3 million, principally due to cash generated by reducing receivables and inventories of $181.9 million. The decrease in cash provided by operations from 1996 to 1997 is primarily attributable to increased inventory levels in 1997 and spending in 1997 related to the restructuring initiatives accrued for in 1996, largely offset by an increase in cash generated by earnings in 1997 and an income tax refund (net of payments) in 1997. Cash used in operating activities reflects proceeds of $200.0 million in 1998 and $58.9 million in 1997 from Sunbeam's revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program, described below.

Cash used in investing activities in 1998 reflects $522.4 million for the acquisitions. In 1997, cash provided by investing activities reflected $91.0 million in proceeds from the sales of divested operations and other assets. Capital spending totaled $53.7 million in 1998 and was primarily for manufacturing efficiency initiatives, equipment and tooling for new products, and management information systems hardware and software licenses. The new product capital spending principally related to the air and water filtration products which were discontinued in the second quarter of 1998, electric blankets, grills, clippers and appliances. Capital spending in 1997 was $60.5 million and was primarily attributable to manufacturing capacity expansion, cost reduction initiatives and equipment to manufacture new products. The new product capital spending in 1997 principally related to appliances and included costs related to blenders, toasters, stand mixers, slow cookers and a soft serve ice cream product. Capital spending in 1996 was $75.3 million, including $14.5 million related to the discontinued furniture business, and was primarily attributable to equipment for new product development and cost reduction initiatives. As discussed above, Sunbeam's capital and Year 2000 compliance expenditures are limited under the terms of the bank credit facility.

Cash provided by financing activities totaled $766.2 million in 1998 and reflects:

- the net proceeds from the sale of debentures of $729.6 million;
- the cancellation and repayment of all outstanding balances under Sunbeam's $250 million September 1996 revolving credit facility;
- the repayment of debt in connection with the acquisitions;
- the early extinguishment of the $75.0 million Hattiesburg industrial revenue bond; and
- net borrowings under the bank credit facility.

In addition, cash provided by financing activities during 1998 includes $19.6 million of proceeds from the exercise of stock options.

During 1997, cash provided by financing activities of $16.4 million reflected:

- net borrowings of $5.0 million under Sunbeam's September 1996 revolving credit facility;
- $12.2 million of debt repayments related to the divested furniture business and other assets sold; and

- $26.6 million in cash proceeds from the exercise of stock options.

During 1996, cash provided by financing activities of $45.3 million primarily reflected:

- revolving credit facility borrowings of $30.0 million to support working capital and capital spending requirements;
- $11.5 million in new issuances of long-term debt; and
- $4.6 million in proceeds from the sale of treasury shares to certain executives of Sunbeam.

In December 1997, Sunbeam entered into a revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program, which as amended expires in March 2000, to sell without recourse, through a wholly owned subsidiary, up to a maximum of $70 million in trade accounts receivable. Sunbeam, as agent for the purchaser of the receivables, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables. For the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and for the year ended December 31, 1998, Sunbeam sold approximately $228.4 million and $200 million of accounts receivable, respectively, under this program. At September 30, 1999 and December 31, 1998, Sunbeam had reduced accounts receivable by $36.9 million and $20.0 million, respectively, for receivables sold under this program. Sunbeam expects to continue to utilize the securitization program to finance a portion of its accounts receivable. See Note 4 to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements and Note 5 to the Consolidated Financial Statements.

At September 30, 1999, standby and commercial letters of credit aggregated $68.9 million and were predominantly for insurance, pension, environmental, workers' compensation, and international trade activities. In addition, as of September 30, 1999, surety bonds with a contract value of $67.5 million were outstanding largely for Sunbeam's pension plans and as a result of litigation judgments that are currently under appeal.

For additional information relating to the debentures, the bank credit facility and the repayment of debt, see Note 3 to the Consolidated and Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.

Sunbeam expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman in a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority stockholders will receive 0.5677 share of Sunbeam's common stock and $6.44 in cash for each share of Coleman common stock outstanding. In addition, under a court-approved litigation settlement, Coleman minority stockholders (other than those who exercise and perfect their Delaware law appraisal rights) will receive for each share of Coleman common stock 0.381 of a warrant, entitling them to purchase one Sunbeam share at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003 (assuming no further increases in the number of outstanding shares of Coleman common stock). Furthermore, unexercised options under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to $27.50 minus the per share exercise price of such options. Sunbeam expects to issue approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and expend approximately $87 million in cash, including cash paid to option holders, to complete the Coleman transaction. See Note 2 to the Unaudited Condensed Consolidated and Consolidated Financial Statements. Also, see Note 15 to the Consolidated Financial Statements. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated that the merger will occur late in the fourth quarter of 1999 or early in the first quarter of 2000.

Sunbeam believes its borrowing capacity under the bank credit facility, cash flow from the combined operations of Sunbeam and its acquired companies, existing cash and cash equivalent balances, and its receivable securitization program will be sufficient to support working capital needs, capital expenditure and Year 2000 compliance spending, and debt service through April 10, 2000. Sunbeam intends to negotiate with its lenders on an amendment to the bank credit facility, negotiate with its lenders on further waiver of such covenants and other terms or refinance the bank credit facility. Any decisions with respect to such amendment, waiver, or refinancing will be made based on a review from time to time of the advisability of particular transactions. There can be no assurance that an amendment, further waiver of existing covenants and other terms, or refinancing will be entered into by April 10, 2000. The failure to obtain such an amendment, further waiver or debt refinancing would likely result in violation of existing covenants and non-compliance with other terms, which would permit the bank lenders to accelerate the maturity of all outstanding borrowings under the bank credit facility, and could otherwise have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam. Accordingly, debt related to the bank credit facility and all debt containing cross-default provisions is classified as current in the Unaudited Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet at September 30, 1999.

In May 1998, the NYSE advised Sunbeam that it did not meet the NYSE's continuing listing standards because Sunbeam did not have tangible net assets of $12.0 million at December 31, 1997 and average annual net income of at least $0.6 million for fiscal years 1997, 1996 and 1995. Sunbeam representatives met with NYSE officials, and in March 1999, the NYSE informed Sunbeam that Sunbeam common stock would not be delisted at that time, although the NYSE would, however, continue to monitor Sunbeam's financial condition and operations. On August 5, 1999, the NYSE advised Sunbeam that the NYSE had revised its continuing listing standards, and that Sunbeam is in compliance with the revised standards.

In April 1999, the NYSE advised Coleman that it did not meet the NYSE's continuing listing standards because Coleman did not have tangible net assets of at least $12.0 million at September 30, 1998 and average annual net income of at least $0.6 million for fiscal years 1997, 1996 and 1995. At that time, Coleman requested the NYSE to continue to list the Coleman common stock until completion of the merger. The NYSE subsequently advised Coleman that Coleman also failed to satisfy certain non-financial continuing listing standards. On August 5, 1999, the NYSE advised Coleman that the NYSE had revised its continuing listing standards, and that Coleman is in compliance with the revised financial standards. Coleman and the NYSE have agreed upon a program whereby Coleman will correct the deficiencies in its non-financial continuing listing standards by the end of 1999. Coleman is currently complying with such program. If Coleman were to be delisted from the NYSE, it could adversely affect the market price of Coleman's common stock and Coleman's ability to sell its capital stock to third parties. However, Sunbeam's bank credit facility currently restricts Coleman from taking such actions.

By letter dated June 17, 1998, the staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised Sunbeam that it was conducting an informal inquiry into Sunbeam's accounting policies and procedures and requested that Sunbeam produce documents. On July 2, 1998, the SEC issued a Formal Order of Private Investigation, designating officers to take testimony and pursuant to which a subpoena was served on Sunbeam requiring the production of documents. On November 4, 1998, Sunbeam received another SEC subpoena requiring the production of additional documents. Sunbeam has provided numerous documents to the SEC staff and continues to cooperate with the SEC staff. Sunbeam has, however, declined to provide the SEC with material that Sunbeam believes is subject to the attorney-client privilege and the work product immunity. Sunbeam cannot predict the term of such investigation or its potential outcome.

Sunbeam is involved in significant litigation, including class and derivative actions, relating to events which led to the restatement of its consolidated financial statements, the issuance of the MacAndrews & Forbes warrant, the sale of the debentures and the employment agreements, of Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. Sunbeam intends to vigorously defend each of the actions, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of Sunbeam's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if Sunbeam were to lose these suits, judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flows. Additionally, Sunbeam's insurance carriers have filed various suits requesting a declaratory judgment that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policies for excess coverage was invalid and/or had been properly canceled by the carriers or have advised Sunbeam of their intent to deny coverage under such policies. Sunbeam intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against Sunbeam or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions and to recover attorneys' fees covered under those policies. Sunbeam's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgment against Sunbeam on any of the foregoing actions could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

Amounts accrued for litigation matters represent the anticipated costs (damages and/or settlement amounts) in connection with pending litigation and claims and related anticipated legal fees. The costs are accrued when it is both probable that an asset has been impaired or a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated. The accruals are based upon Sunbeam's assessment, after consultation with counsel, of probable loss based on the facts and circumstances of each case, the legal issues involved, the nature of the claim made, the nature of the damages sought and any relevant information about the plaintiffs, and other significant factors which vary by case. When it is not possible to estimate a specific expected cost to be incurred, Sunbeam evaluates the range of probable loss and records the minimum end of the range. As of September 30, 1999, Sunbeam had established accruals for litigation matters of $22.6 million (representing $11.3 million and $11.3 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively). As of December 31, 1998, Sunbeam had established accruals for litigation matters of $31.2 million (representing $17.5 million and $13.7 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively) and $9.9 million as of December 28, 1997, (representing $3.0 million and $6.9 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively). It is anticipated that the $22.6 million accrual will be paid as follows: $5.2 million in 1999, $14.9 million in 2000, and $2.5 million in 2001. Sunbeam believes, based on information known to Sunbeam on September 30, 1999, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters existing as of September 30, 1999 have been adequately reserved to the extent determinable.

As a consumer goods manufacturer and distributor, Sunbeam faces the constant risks of product liability and related lawsuits involving claims for substantial money damages, product recall actions and higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. These claims could result in liabilities that could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flows. Some of the product lines Sunbeam acquired in the 1998 acquisitions have increased its exposure to product liability and related claims.

Sunbeam and its subsidiaries are also involved in various lawsuits from time to time that Sunbeam considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of Sunbeam, the resolution of these routine matters, and of matters relating to prior operations, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect on the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of Sunbeam.

For additional information relating to litigation, see "BUSINESS OF SUNBEAM—Litigation and Other Contingent Liabilities."

New Accounting Standards

In March 1998, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants ("AICPA") issued Statement of Position 98-1, Accounting for the Costs of Computer Software Developed or Obtained for Internal Use ("SOP 98-1"). SOP 98-1 requires computer software costs associated with internal use software to be expensed as incurred until certain capitalization criteria are met. Sunbeam adopted SOP 98-1 effective January 1, 1999. Adoption of this statement did not have a material impact on Sunbeam's consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows. Actual charges incurred due to systems projects may be material.

In April 1998, the AICPA issued Statement of Position 98-5, Reporting on the Cost of Start-up Activities ("SOP 98-5"). SOP 98-5 requires all costs associated with pre-opening, pre-operating and organization activities to be expensed as incurred. Sunbeam adopted SOP 98-5 beginning January 1, 1999. Adoption of this statement did not have a material impact on Sunbeam's consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows.

In June 1998, the FASB issued SFAS No. 133, Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities, which is effective for fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2000. SFAS No. 133 requires the recognition of all derivatives in the Consolidated Balance Sheets as either assets or liabilities measured at fair value. Sunbeam has not yet determined the impact SFAS No. 133 will have on its consolidated financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

Year 2000 Readiness Disclosure

Sunbeam is preparing for the impact of the Year 2000 on its operations. Year 2000 issues could include potential problems in the information technology ("IT") and non-IT systems that Sunbeam uses in its operations and problems in Sunbeam's products. Year 2000 system failures could affect routine but critical operations such as forecasting, purchasing, production, order processing, inventory control, shipping, billing and collection. In addition, system failures could affect Sunbeam's security, payroll operations, or employee safety. Sunbeam may also be exposed to potential risks from third parties with whom Sunbeam interacts who fail to adequately address their own Year 2000 issues.

Sunbeam's Approach to Year 2000 Issues

While Sunbeam's Year 2000 readiness planning has been underway for over one year, during the third quarter of 1998 Sunbeam established a cross-functional project team consisting of senior managers, assisted by three external consulting firms which were retained to provide consulting services and to assist Sunbeam in implementing its Year 2000 strategy. This team is headed by Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer who reports directly to Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer on this issue. The audit committee of the board of directors is advised periodically on the status of Sunbeam's Year 2000 readiness program.

The Year 2000 project team has developed a phased approach to identify and resolve Year 2000 issues with many of these activities conducted in parallel. Sunbeam's approach and the anticipated timing of each phase are described below.

Phase 1—Inventory and Assessment. During the first phase of Sunbeam's Year 2000 readiness program, Sunbeam established a Year 2000 program management office to centralize the management of all of Sunbeam's Year 2000 projects. Through this office, Sunbeam developed a corporate-wide, uniform strategy for assessing and addressing the Year 2000 issues.

Sunbeam has completed an inventory of its hardware and software systems, manufacturing equipment, electronic data interchange, telecommunications and other technical assets potentially subject to Year 2000 problems, such as security systems and controls for lighting, air conditioning, ventilation and facility access. This inventory was then entered into Sunbeam's Year 2000 database along with a determination of the item's level of criticality to operations. For those inventory items anticipated to have a significant effect on the business if not corrected, Sunbeam's Year 2000 program envisions repair or replacement and testing of such items. All information relative to each item is being tracked in Sunbeam's Year 2000 database. Sunbeam completed most of this phase during the third and fourth quarters of 1998. Sunbeam has completed a review of the readiness of embedded microprocessors in its products and determined that none of Sunbeam's products have Year 2000 date sensitive systems.

Phase 2—Correction and Testing. The second phase of Sunbeam's Year 2000 readiness program is structured to replace, upgrade or remediate, as necessary, those items identified during Phase 1 as requiring corrective action.

Sunbeam relies on its IT functions to perform many tasks that are critical to its operations. Significant transactions that could be impacted by not being ready for any Year 2000 issues include, among others:

- purchases of materials;
- production management;
- order entry and fulfillment;
- payroll processing; and
- billing and collections.

Systems and applications that have been identified by Sunbeam to date as not currently Year 2000 ready and which are critical to Sunbeam's operations include:

- financial software systems, which process:
 - order entry;
 - purchasing;
 - production management;
 - general ledger;
 - accounts receivable; and

- accounts payable functions;
- payroll applications; and
- critical applications in Sunbeam's manufacturing and distribution facilities, such as warehouse management applications.

Recognizing how dependent the entire company is on IT, Sunbeam decided in 1997 to replace its primary business applications with a uniform international business and accounting information system to address the systems or applications listed above as well as to improve internal reporting processes. Based upon representations from the manufacturer that the current version of this uniform information system is Year 2000 ready, Sunbeam upgraded its business sites that currently utilize this uniform system to the Year 2000 ready version. In addition to the pre-acquisition Sunbeam locations which had already utilized an earlier non-Year 2000 ready version of this uniform business and accounting information system, Eastpak, Mr. Coffee, Health-o-Meter, and Sunbeam Latin America replaced their current non-Year 2000 ready systems with this new uniform system. In addition, Coleman Europe also has replaced key business components with this new system.

Sunbeam is also actively replacing and/or upgrading a number of business systems that are not Year 2000 ready, including those that use localized business system packages which were not candidates to be replaced by the uniform business and accounting information system. For example, at Coleman approximately 2,000 mainframe software programs that are used in lieu of Sunbeam's uniform business and accounting information system have been remediated and tested to be Year 2000 ready. With respect to Sunbeam's non-IT systems, including time and attendance, security, and in-line manufacturing hardware, Sunbeam has analyzed these items to assess any Year 2000 issues, and is testing and correcting such items, if necessary.

Phase 3—Customers, Suppliers and Business Partners. The third phase of Sunbeam's Year 2000 readiness program which was initiated during the third and fourth quarters of 1998 is designed to assess and interact with Sunbeam's customers, suppliers, and business partners. As part of this effort, Sunbeam surveyed 1,100 vendors and suppliers, a portion of which did not provide an initial response. During the first half of 1999, "high risk" vendors were contacted directly and the number of non-respondents has since decreased substantially. In fact, currently only 7% of Sunbeam's vendors who were surveyed are categorized as "high risk," which includes non-respondents. Based on the most recent responses to the survey and continued evaluation, Sunbeam believes that there is only a low to a medium risk of Year 2000 issues for the remaining vendors. Sunbeam will continue to monitor the Year 2000 progress of the "high risk" vendors and has resurveyed these companies to determine the appropriate course of action. Furthermore, Sunbeam has contacted alternate vendors who are Year 2000 ready to replace critical vendors deemed "high risk" in the event that these vendors are not found to be Year 2000 ready. Sunbeam is in the process of completing a verification of the Year 2000 survey responses for the most critical vendors to Sunbeam.

Sunbeam has responded to numerous customer inquiries about Sunbeam's Year 2000 readiness. Sunbeam has verified that all of Sunbeam's major customers have planned programs to deal with Year 2000 issues and is currently completing the process of contacting its major customers to confirm they are implementing their planned programs to address Year 2000 issues. In order to improve Sunbeam's communication with its customers, suppliers and business partners, Sunbeam has set up a Sunbeam Year 2000 telephone number and is providing Year 2000 information on a Company web site.

Phase 4—Contingency Planning. This phase involves contingency planning for unresolved Year 2000 issues, particularly any issues arising with third party suppliers. Sunbeam has designed and documented its Year 2000 contingency plan and is in the process of implementing it. The development of the contingency plan included a process whereby Sunbeam's critical IT and non-IT systems were evaluated for Year 2000 readiness. As a result of this evaluation, Sunbeam does not expect to require additional operational equipment or significant process contingency measures. Although Sunbeam does not currently believe there is significant risk associated with its third party suppliers, the contingency plan includes the continuing evaluation of the readiness of Sunbeam's suppliers and minor increases in Sunbeam's inventory requirements to protect against supply disruption.

The Risks of Sunbeam's Year 2000 Approach

The independent consultants assisting Sunbeam in its Year 2000 readiness program have reviewed and concurred with Sunbeam's approach, have assisted in developing cost estimates and have monitored costs for the largest single component (upgrade or installation of Sunbeam's uniform system) of Sunbeam's Year 2000 program. Since Sunbeam's Year 2000 program was developed and is monitored with the help of independent consultants, Sunbeam did not engage another independent third party to verify the program's overall approach or total cost; based on this, Sunbeam believes that Sunbeam's exposure in this regard is mitigated. In addition, through the use of external third-party diagnostic software packages that are designed to analyze the Year 2000 readiness of business software programs, Sunbeam was able to identify potential Year 2000 issues at Coleman. Given this, Sunbeam believes that it has also mitigated its risk by validating and verifying key program components.

Management believes that, although there are significant systems that are being modified or replaced, including the uniform business and accounting information system, Sunbeam's information systems environment will be made Year 2000 ready prior to January 1, 2000. Sunbeam's failure to timely complete such corrective work could have a material adverse impact on Sunbeam.

With respect to customers, suppliers and business partners, the failure of some of these third parties to become Year 2000 ready could also have a material adverse impact on Sunbeam. For example, the failure of some of Sunbeam's principal suppliers to have Year 2000 ready internal systems could impact Sunbeam's ability to manufacture and/or ship its products or to maintain adequate inventory levels for production.

At this time, Sunbeam believes that the most likely "worst-case" scenario relating to Year 2000 involves potential disruptions in areas in which Sunbeam's operations must rely on third parties, such as suppliers, whose systems may not work properly after January 1, 2000. While such system failures could either directly or indirectly affect important operations of Sunbeam and its subsidiaries in a significant manner, Sunbeam cannot at present estimate either the likelihood or the potential cost of such failures. Subject to the nature of the goods or services provided to Sunbeam by third parties whose operations are not made ready for Year 2000 issues, the impact on Sunbeam's operations could be material. However, Sunbeam believes that it has mitigated such risks through the development and implementation of the contingency plans discussed above.

The nature and focus of Sunbeam's efforts to address the Year 2000 problem may be revised periodically as interim goals are achieved or new issues are identified. In addition, it is important to note that the description of Sunbeam's efforts and assessments necessarily involves estimates and projections with respect to activities required in the future. These estimates and projections are subject to change as work continues, and such changes may be substantial.

The Costs to Address Sunbeam's Year 2000 Issues

Through the first nine months of 1999, including costs incurred in 1998, Sunbeam had expended approximately $60 million to address Year 2000 issues of which approximately 50% was recorded as capital expenditures and the remainder as SG&A expense. Sunbeam's current assessment of the total costs to address and remedy Year 2000 issues and enhance its operating systems, including costs for the acquired companies, is approximately $64 million.

This estimate includes the following categories:

• uniform international business and accounting system	$44 million
• localized business system software upgrades and remediation	$9 million
• Year 2000 readiness assessment and tracking	$6 million
• upgrade of personal computers and related software	$5 million

The amount to be incurred for Year 2000 issues during 1999 of approximately $44 million represents over 50% of Sunbeam's total 1999 budget for information systems and related support, including Year 2000 costs. A large majority of these costs are expected to be incremental expenditures that will not recur in the Year 2000 or thereafter. Fees and expenses related to third party consultants, who are involved in the program management office as well as the modification and replacement of software, represent approximately 75% of the total estimated cost. The balance of the total estimated cost relates primarily to software license fees and new hardware, but excludes the costs associated with company employees. Sunbeam expects these expenditures to be financed through operating cash flows or borrowings, as applicable. A significant portion of these expenditures will enhance Sunbeam's operating systems in addition to resolving the Year 2000 issues. As Sunbeam completes its assessment of the Year 2000 issues, the actual expenditures incurred or to be incurred may differ materially from the amounts shown above. The bank credit facility does not permit Sunbeam to spend more than $50 million on Year 2000 testing and remediation during 1999.

Because Year 2000 readiness is critical to the business, Sunbeam has redeployed some resources from non-critical system enhancements to address Year 2000 issues. In addition, due to the importance of IT systems to Sunbeam's business, management has deferred non-critical systems enhancements as much as possible. Sunbeam does not expect these redeployments and deferrals to have a material impact on Sunbeam's financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Effects of Inflation

For each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1998, and in the nine-month period ended September 30, 1999, Sunbeam's cost of raw materials and other product remained relatively stable. To the extent possible, Sunbeam's objective is to offset the impact of inflation through productivity enhancements, cost reductions and price increases.

CHANGES IN AND DISAGREEMENTS WITH ACCOUNTANTS ON ACCOUNTING AND FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE

On November 20, 1998, the audit committee recommended and Sunbeam's board approved the appointment of Deloitte & Touche as its independent auditors for 1998, to replace Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's former auditor. Arthur Andersen is continuing to provide certain professional services to Sunbeam.

On June 25, 1998, Sunbeam announced that Arthur Andersen would not consent to the inclusion of its opinion on Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements in a registration statement Sunbeam was planning to file with the SEC. On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the audit committee of its board of directors would conduct a review of Sunbeam's prior financial statements and that, therefore, those financial statements should not be relied upon. Sunbeam also announced that Deloitte & Touche had been retained to assist the audit committee and Arthur Andersen in their review of Sunbeam's prior financial statements. On August 6, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the audit committee had determined that Sunbeam would be required to restate its financial statements for 1997, the first quarter of 1998 and possibly 1996, and that the adjustments, while not then quantified, would be material. On October 20, 1998 Sunbeam announced the restatement of its financial results for a six-quarter period from the fourth quarter of 1996 through the first quarter of 1998. On November 12, 1998, Sunbeam filed a Form 10-K/A for the year ended December 28, 1997, which contains an unqualified opinion by Arthur Andersen on Sunbeam's restated consolidated financial statements as of December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997 and for each of the three years in the period ended December 28, 1997.

Arthur Andersen's report on Sunbeam's financial statements for the two fiscal years of Sunbeam ended December 28, 1997 contained no adverse opinion or disclaimer of opinion and was not qualified or modified as to uncertainty, audit scope or accounting principles. In connection with its audits for those periods and through November 20, 1998, there were no disagreements with Arthur Andersen on any matter of accounting principles or practices, financial statement disclosure, or auditing scope or procedure, which disagreements if not resolved to the satisfaction of Arthur Andersen would have caused Arthur Andersen to make reference thereto in their report on the financial statements for such years. Sunbeam has not consulted with Deloitte & Touche on any matter that was either the subject of a disagreement or a reportable event between Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen.

In connection with the restatements referred to above, in a letter dated October 16, 1998, Arthur Andersen advised Sunbeam that there existed the following conditions that Arthur Andersen believed to be material weaknesses in Sunbeam's internal controls:

"In our opinion, [Sunbeam's] design and effectiveness of its internal control were inadequate to detect material misstatements in the preparation of [Sunbeam's] 1997 annual (before audit) and quarterly financial statements."

As part of its audit of Sunbeam's 1997 consolidated financial statements that led to the restatement of these financial statements, Arthur Andersen was required to consider Sunbeam's internal controls in determining the scope of its audit procedures. Arthur Andersen has advised management of its concerns regarding Sunbeam's internal controls. Management is addressing these concerns and although Sunbeam has not yet fully implemented all additional planned controls, management believes that the interim measures Sunbeam has adopted to prevent material misstatements in its financial statements will be effective until the remainder of the additional controls can be implemented.

International

Sunbeam markets a variety of products outside the United States. While Sunbeam sells many of the same products domestically and internationally, it also sells products designed specifically to appeal to foreign markets. Sunbeam, through its foreign subsidiaries, has manufacturing facilities in France, Indonesia, Italy, Mexico, and Venezuela, and sales administration offices, warehouse and distribution facilities in Canada, Europe, the Mideast, Asia and Latin America. Sunbeam also sells its products directly to international customers in certain other markets through Sunbeam sales managers, independent distributors and commissioned sales representatives. The products sold by the international group are sourced from Sunbeam's manufacturing operations or from vendors primarily located in Asia. International sales accounted for approximately 23%, 21% and 19% of Sunbeam's consolidated net sales in 1998, 1997 and 1996, respectively. Sunbeam's international operations are managed through the following geographic areas:

Europe. Sunbeam's European operations are managed from Lyon, France and the sales are dominated by the product lines acquired by Sunbeam as part of the Coleman acquisition, including the Campingaz product lines and Eastpak products. Sunbeam's European office also manages the sale and distribution of Sunbeam products throughout Africa and the Middle East.

Japan. Sunbeam's sales in Japan are almost exclusively sales of camping equipment such as tents, stoves, lanterns, sleeping bags and accessories.

Latin America. The activities of Sunbeam outside the United States were primarily focused in Mexico and Latin America prior to the 1998 acquisition of Coleman. Sunbeam enjoys a strong market position in a number of product lines in Latin America. The Oster brand has the leading market share in small appliances in a number of Latin American countries. Sunbeam's sales in Latin America are derived primarily from household appliances, particularly the Oster blender and the recently introduced Oster arepa maker.

Canada. Sunbeam sells substantially all of its products in Canada through a distribution sales office located in Toronto.

East Asia. During 1998, Sunbeam's sales in East Asia were hampered by the economic downturn particularly in South Korea where Sunbeam had developed a strong market for Eastpak bags, and in Indonesia where Sunbeam sells Campingaz products. Sunbeam has established a sales office in Australia, from which it sells primarily clippers and appliances, and distributes First Alert products in Australia and New Zealand. Sales offices have also been established in Manila and Hong Kong.

Sunbeam has sales and facilities in countries where economic growth has slowed, primarily Japan, Korea and Latin America. The economies of other foreign countries important to Sunbeam's operations could also suffer instability in the future. The following are among the factors that could negatively affect Sunbeam's operations in foreign markets: (1) access to markets; (2) currency devaluation; (3) new tariffs; (4) changes in monetary and/or tax policies; (5) inflation; and (6) governmental instability. See "MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS—Foreign Operations."

Corporate

Retail. Sunbeam sells many of its products through its retail outlet stores which are operated under the Sunbeam, Oster and Camp Coleman® names. In addition, Sunbeam currently has 37 retail outlet stores in the United States and Canada which primarily carry discontinued, overstock and refurbished products for retail sale to consumers. Net sales from retail stores were not significant in any of the last three fiscal years.

Licensing. Sunbeam licenses the Sunbeam name and the Coleman name and logo under two types of licensing arrangements: general merchandise licenses and licenses to purchasers of businesses divested by Sunbeam. Sunbeam's general merchandise licensing activities involve licensing the Sunbeam and/or Coleman name and logo, for a royalty fee, to certain companies that manufacture and sell products that complement Sunbeam's product lines. Revenue from licensing activities in 1998 in the amount of $4 million was generated primarily from the license of the Coleman name. In addition, Sunbeam licenses trade names from third parties for use in connection with Sunbeam's products. Revenue from licensing activities was not significant in 1997 and 1996.

Competition

The markets in which Sunbeam operates are generally highly competitive, based primarily on product quality, product innovation, price and customer service and support, although the degree and nature of such competition vary by location and product line. Sunbeam believes that no other company produces and markets the breadth of household appliance, camping and outdoor recreation products marketed by Sunbeam.

Sunbeam competes with various manufacturers and distributors with respect to its household appliances. Primary competitors in the kitchen appliance area have been Black & Decker (which recently sold its appliance division to Windmere), Hamilton Beach/Procter Silex, West Bend, Melita, Salton-Maxim, Cuisinart, Regal, Krups, Kitchen Aid, Braun and Rival. Sunbeam's primary competitor in the consumer scale market is Metro Corporation. Sunbeam's health care products compete with those of numerous small manufacturers and distributors, none of which dominates the home health care market. Sunbeam has limited domestic competition for its electric blankets and heated throws and enjoys a market share in excess of 90% for these products. Sunbeam's primary competitors for retail clippers and trimmers are Wahl and Conair; the primary competitors in the professional products lines are Wahl and Andis. Sunbeam enjoys a leading market share with respect to its smoke and carbon monoxide detectors where Ranco, American Sensor, Nighthawk and Siebe are the primary competitors. Sunbeam competes with Micro General with respect to its Pelouze scales.

Sunbeam's Outdoor Leisure products compete with numerous products sold by other manufacturers. Lanterns and stoves compete with, among others, products offered by Century Primus, American Camper and Dayton Hudson Corporation, while Desa & Schau and Mr. Heater are the primary competitors for heaters. The primary competitors for Sunbeam's portable furniture are a variety of import companies. Sunbeam's insulated cooler and jug products compete with products offered by Rubbermaid Incorporated, Igloo Products Corp. and The Thermos Company. Sunbeam's sleeping bags compete with, among others, American Recreation, Slumberjack, Academy Broadway Corp. and MZH Inc., as well as certain private label manufacturers. In the tent market, Sunbeam competes with, among others, Wenzel, Eureka and Mountain Safety Research, as well as certain private label manufacturers. Sunbeam competes with W.C. Bradley, Meco, Fiesta, Ducane, Weber and Keanall for sales of outdoor grills and accessories. Sunbeam's backpack products compete with, among others, American Camper, JanSport, Nike, Outdoor Products, The North Face, and Kelty, as well as certain private label manufacturers. Sunbeam's competition in the electric light business includes, among others, Eveready and Rayovac Corporation. Sunbeam's camping accessories compete primarily with Coughlan's. Sunbeam's primary competitors in the generator business are Generac Corporation, Honda Motor Co., Ltd., Kawasaki and Yamaha. Primary competitors in the air compressor business include DeVilbiss and Campbell Hausfield. In addition, Sunbeam competes with various other entities in international markets.

Customers

Sunbeam markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Sunbeam-owned outlet stores, television shopping channels, hardware stores, home improvement centers, office products centers, drug and grocery stores, and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange outlets. In 1998, Sunbeam sold products to virtually all of the top 100 U.S. retailers, including Wal-Mart/Sam's Club, Kmart, Price Costco, Target Stores and Home Depot. Sunbeam's largest customer, Wal-Mart, accounted for approximately 18%, 20% and 19% of consolidated net sales in 1998, 1997 and 1996, respectively. Sunbeam has the majority of its U.S. customer sales on electronic data interchange (EDI) systems.

Backlog

The amount of backlog orders at any point in time is not a significant factor in Sunbeam's business.

Patents and Trademarks

Sunbeam believes that an integral part of its strength is its ability to capitalize on the Sunbeam®, Coleman®, Oster®, Eastpak®, Mr. Coffee®, Health-o-Meter®, First Alert® and Campingaz®, trademarks which are registered in the United States and in numerous foreign countries. Widely recognized throughout North America, Latin America and Europe, these registered trademarks, along with Powermate®, Pelouze®, Peak One®, Osterizer®, Mixmaster®, Toast Logic®, Steammaster®, Oskar®, Grillmaster® and "Blanket with a Brain®" brands are important to the success of Sunbeam's products. Other important trademarks within Sunbeam include Oster Designer®, Cuddle-Up® and A5®. The loss of any single trademark would not have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's business; however, the Sunbeam, Coleman and Mr. Coffee trademarks are integral to certain of Sunbeam's continuing operations and Sunbeam aggressively monitors and protects these and other brands.

Sunbeam holds numerous design and utility patents covering a wide variety of products, the loss of any one of which would not have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's business taken as a whole.

Research and Development

New products and improvements to existing products are developed based upon the perceived needs and demands of consumers. Research and development expenditures are expensed as incurred. The amounts charged to operations for the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and 1998 and for the fiscal years ended 1998, 1997 and 1996 were $18.8 million, $13.2 million, $18.7 million, $5.7 million and $6.5 million, respectively.

Employees

As of September 30, 1999, Sunbeam had approximately 13,700 full-time and part-time employees of which approximately 8,700 are employed domestically. Sunbeam is a party to collective bargaining agreements with its hourly employees located at the Aurora, Illinois, Glenwillow, Ohio and Bridgeview, Illinois plants. Sunbeam's Canadian warehouse employees are represented by a union, as are all of the production employees at Sunbeam's operations in France and Italy. Sunbeam has had no material labor-related work stoppages and, in the opinion of management, relations with its employees are generally good.

Seasonality

Sunbeam's consolidated sales are not expected to exhibit substantial seasonality; however, sales are expected to be strongest during the second quarter of the calendar year. Furthermore, sales of a number of products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers, grills, First Alert products, camping and generator products, may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions.

Raw Materials/Suppliers

The raw materials used in the manufacture of Sunbeam's products are available from numerous suppliers in quantities sufficient to meet normal requirements. Sunbeam's primary raw materials include aluminum, steel, plastic resin, copper, electrical components, various textiles or fabrics and corrugated cardboard for cartons. Sunbeam also purchases a substantial number of finished products. Sunbeam is not dependent upon any single supplier for a material amount of such sourced products.

Sunbeam's operations, and believes that Sunbeam's facilities provide sufficient capacity for its production requirements.

Litigation and Other Contingent Liabilities

On April 23, 1998, two class action lawsuits were filed on behalf of purchasers of Sunbeam common stock in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against Sunbeam and some of its present and former directors and former officers alleging violations of the federal securities laws as discussed below. After that date, approximately fifteen similar class actions were filed in the same Court. One of the lawsuits also named as defendant Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's independent accountants for the period covered by the lawsuit.

On June 16, 1998, the court entered an order consolidating all these suits and all similar class actions subsequently filed (collectively, the "Consolidated Federal Actions") and providing time periods for the filing of a consolidated amended complaint and defendants' response thereto. On June 22, 1998, two groups of plaintiffs made motions to be appointed lead plaintiffs and to have their selection of counsel approved as lead counsel. On July 20, 1998, the court entered an order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel. This order also stated that it shall apply to all subsequently filed actions that are consolidated with the other actions. On August 28, 1998, plaintiffs in one of the subsequently filed actions filed an objection to having their action consolidated pursuant to the June 16, 1998 order, arguing that the class period in their action differs from the class periods in the originally filed consolidated actions. On December 9, 1998, the court entered an order overruling plaintiffs' objections and affirming its prior order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel.

On January 6, 1999, plaintiffs filed a consolidated amended class action complaint against Sunbeam, some of its present and former directors and former officers, and Arthur Andersen. The consolidated amended class action complaint alleges that, in violation of section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and SEC Rule 10b-5, defendants made material misrepresentations and omissions regarding Sunbeam's business operations, future prospects and anticipated earnings per share, in an effort to artificially inflate the price of Sunbeam common stock and call options, and that, in violation of section 20(a) of the Exchange Act, the individual defendants exercised influence and control over Sunbeam, causing Sunbeam to make material misrepresentations and omissions. The consolidated amended complaint seeks an unspecified award of money damages. On February 5, 1999, plaintiffs moved for an order certifying a class consisting of all persons and entities who purchased Sunbeam common stock or who purchased call options or sold put options with respect to Sunbeam common stock during the period April 23, 1997 through June 30, 1998, excluding the defendants, their affiliates, and employees of Sunbeam. Defendants' response to the motion for class certification was filed on May 6, 1999. On March 8, 1999, all defendants who had been served with the consolidated amended class action complaint moved to dismiss it. Under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, all discovery in the consolidated action is stayed pending resolution of the motions to dismiss.

On April 7, 1998, a purported derivative action was filed in the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida against Sunbeam and some of its present and former directors and former officers. The action alleged that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties and wasted corporate assets when Sunbeam granted stock options on or about February 2, 1998 at an exercise price of $36.85 to three of its officers and directors who were subsequently terminated by Sunbeam. On June 25, 1998, all defendants filed a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to make a pre-suit demand on Sunbeam's board of directors. On October 22, 1998, the plaintiff amended the complaint against all but one of the defendants named in the original complaint. On February 19, 1999, plaintiffs filed a second amended derivative complaint nominally on behalf of Sunbeam against some of its present and former directors and former officers and Arthur Andersen. The second amended complaint alleges, among other things, that Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh, Sunbeam's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and former Chief Financial Officer, respectively, caused Sunbeam to employ fraudulent accounting procedures in order to enable them to secure new employment contracts, and seeks a declaration that the individual defendants have violated fiduciary duties, an injunction against the payment of compensation to Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh or the imposition of a constructive trust on such payments, and unspecified money damages. The defendants have each moved to dismiss the second amended complaint in whole or in part.

On June 25, 1998, four purported class actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County by minority stockholders of Coleman against Coleman, Sunbeam and certain of Sunbeam's and Coleman's present and former officers and directors. An additional class action was filed on August 10, 1998, against the same parties. The complaints in these class actions alleged, in essence, that the existing exchange ratio for the proposed merger is no longer fair to Coleman minority stockholders as a result of the decline in the market value of Sunbeam common stock. On October 21, 1998, Sunbeam announced that it had entered into a memorandum of understanding to settle, subject to court approval, the class actions. The court approved the settlement on November 12, 1999. Under the terms of the settlement, Sunbeam will issue to Coleman minority stockholders and plaintiffs' counsel in this action warrants to purchase up to approximately 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Coleman minority stockholders who elect an appraisal under Delaware law will not receive warrants. These warrants will generally have the same terms as the warrant issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary and will be issued when the merger is consummated, which is now expected to occur during the fourth quarter of 1999 or early in the first quarter of 2000.

During the months of August and October 1998, purported class action and derivative lawsuits were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County and in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by stockholders of Sunbeam against Sunbeam, MacAndrews & Forbes and some of Sunbeam's present and former directors. These complaints allege that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties when Sunbeam entered into a settlement agreement with the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary that sold Sunbeam a controlling interest in Coleman. In the settlement agreement the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary released Sunbeam from threatened claims arising out of Sunbeam's acquisition of its interest in Coleman, and MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide management support to Sunbeam. Under the settlement agreement, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary was granted a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase up to an additional 23 million shares of Sunbeam's common stock at an exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution provisions. The plaintiffs have requested an injunction against the issuance of stock to MacAndrews & Forbes upon the exercise of its warrant and unspecified money damages. These complaints also allege that the rights of the minority stockholders have been compromised, as the settlement would normally require stockholder approval under the rules and regulations of the NYSE. The audit committee of Sunbeam's board of directors determined that obtaining such stockholder approval would have seriously jeopardized the financial viability of Sunbeam which is an allowable exception to the NYSE stockholder approval requirements. By order of the Delaware Court of Chancery dated January 7, 1999, the derivative actions filed in that court were consolidated, and Sunbeam and other defendants have moved to dismiss these actions. The action filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida has been dismissed.

On September 16, 1998, an action was filed in the 56th Judicial District Court of Galveston County, Texas alleging various claims in violation of the Texas Securities Act and Texas Business and Commercial Code as well as common law fraud as a result of Sunbeam's alleged misstatements and omissions regarding Sunbeam's financial condition and prospects during a period beginning May 1, 1998 and ending June 16, 1998, in which the U.S. National Bank of Galveston, Kempner Capital Management, Inc. and Legacy Trust Company engaged in transactions in Sunbeam common stock on their own behalf and on behalf of their respective clients. Sunbeam is the only named defendant in this action. The complaint requests recovery of compensatory damages, punitive damages and expenses in an unspecified amount. This action was removed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas and subsequently transferred to the Southern District of Florida and consolidated with the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiffs in this action have objected to the consolidation and have sought reconsideration by the Southern District of Florida of the order of the Southern District of Texas denying plaintiffs' motion to remand the case to state court and transferring it to Florida. A similar suit was brought by the same group of plaintiffs in the above action against Arthur Andersen. In that action, the plaintiffs allege that Arthur Andersen violated the Texas Securities Act, committed statutory and common law fraud and was negligent in its audits of Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. On September 29, 1999, Arthur Andersen had filed a motion for leave to join Sunbeam and certain of its former officers as responsible third parties and contribution defendants. Their motion was denied.

On October 30, 1998, a class action lawsuit was filed on behalf of certain purchasers of the debentures in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against Sunbeam and some of Sunbeam's former officers and directors, alleging violations of the federal securities laws and common law fraud. The complaint alleges that Sunbeam's offering memorandum used for the marketing of the debentures contained false and misleading information regarding Sunbeam's financial position and that the defendants engaged in a plan to inflate Sunbeam's earnings for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs and others. The plaintiffs seek a declaration that defendants violated federal securities laws and either unspecified monetary damages or rescission of their purchase of the debentures. The parties have negotiated a proposed coordination plan in order to coordinate proceedings in this action with those in the Consolidated Federal Actions.

Sunbeam has been named as a defendant in an action filed in the District Court of Tarrant County, Texas, 48th Judicial District, on November 20, 1998. Sunbeam was served in this action through the Secretary of State of Texas on January 15, 1999. The plaintiffs in this action are purchasers of the debentures. The plaintiffs allege that Sunbeam violated the Texas Securities Act and the Texas Business & Commercial Code and committed state common law fraud by materially misstating the financial position of Sunbeam in connection with the offering and sale of the debentures. The complaint seeks rescission, as well as compensatory and exemplary damages in an unspecified amount. Sunbeam specially appeared to assert an objection to the Texas court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over Sunbeam, and a hearing on this objection took place on April 15, 1999. On April 23, 1999, the court entered an order granting Sunbeam's special appearance and dismissing the case without prejudice. The plaintiffs moved for reconsideration of the court order, which motion the court denied on May 24, 1999. The plaintiffs have appealed the order dismissing the case to the Texas Court of Appeals, and the appeal is pending.

On April 12, 1999, a class action lawsuit was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida. The lawsuit was filed on behalf of persons who purchased debentures during the period of March 20, 1998 through June 30, 1998, inclusive, but after the initial offering of such debentures. The complaint asserts that Sunbeam made material omissions and misrepresentations that had the effect of inflating the market price of the debentures. The complaint names as defendants Sunbeam, its former auditor, Arthur Andersen, and two former Sunbeam officers, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. The plaintiff is an institution which allegedly acquired in excess of $150,000,000 face amount of the debentures and now seeks unspecified money damages. Sunbeam was served on April 16, 1999 in connection with this pending lawsuit. Sunbeam has requested that this action be coordinated with the Consolidated Federal Actions.

On February 9, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed with the American Arbitration Association demands for arbitration of claims under their respective employment agreements with Sunbeam. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh are requesting a finding by the arbitrator that Sunbeam terminated their employment without cause and that they should be awarded certain benefits based upon their respective employment agreements. On March 12, 1999, Sunbeam asked the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida to issue an injunction prohibiting Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh from pursuing their arbitration proceedings against Sunbeam on the grounds, among others, that the simultaneous litigation of the action filed in that court on April 7, 1998, described above, and the arbitration proceedings would subject Sunbeam to the threat of inconsistent adjudications with respect to certain rights to compensation asserted by Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh and would cause irreparable harm to Sunbeam and its stockholders. On March 19, 1999, the plaintiff in the April 7, 1998 action discussed above moved for an injunction on similar grounds. On May 11, 1999, the court denied the motions for a preliminary injunction filed by Sunbeam and the plaintiff. Sunbeam has answered the arbitration demands of Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh and has filed counterclaims seeking, among other things, the return of all consideration paid, or to be paid, under the February 1998 Employment Agreements between Sunbeam and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. An answer was filed by Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh generally denying Sunbeam's counterclaim. Discovery is pending.

On May 24, 1999, an action naming Sunbeam as defendant was filed in the Circuit Court for Ozaukee County, Wisconsin. Prior to service of the complaint, the plaintiff dismissed its claims, voluntarily, without prejudice. The plaintiff in this action was a purchaser of the debentures. The plaintiff alleged that Sunbeam violated the Wisconsin Uniform Securities Act and committed acts of false advertising and misrepresentation in connection with the offering and sale of the debentures. The plaintiff sought rescission, as well as compensatory and exemplary damages in an unspecified amount.

On September 13, 1999, an action naming Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen as defendants was filed in the Circuit Court for Montgomery County, Alabama. The plaintiffs in this action are purchasers of Sunbeam common stock during the period March 19, 1998 through May 6, 1998. The plaintiffs allege, among other things, that the defendants violated the Alabama Security Laws and SEC Rule 10b-5. The plaintiffs seek compensatory and punitive damages in an unspecified amount. Sunbeam has removed this case to the U.S. District Court for the District of Alabama. In addition, Arthur Andersen has filed a cross claim against Sunbeam for contribution and indemnity. Sunbeam has filed a motion with the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation to consolidate this action with the Consolidated Federal Actions.

Sunbeam intends to vigorously defend each of the foregoing lawsuits other than those as to which a memorandum of understanding to settle has been reached, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of Sunbeam's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if Sunbeam were to lose these lawsuits, judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's consolidated financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

On March 23, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed a complaint in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware seeking an order directing Sunbeam to advance attorneys' fees and other expenses incurred in connection with various state and federal class and derivative actions and an investigation instituted by the SEC. The complaint alleges that such advancements are required by Sunbeam's by-laws and by a forbearance agreement entered into between Sunbeam and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh in August, 1998. A trial of this summary proceeding was held on June 15 and 16, 1999. On June 23, 1999, the court issued a memorandum opinion directing Sunbeam to pay about $1.4 million on account of expenses incurred to date and to advance the reasonable future expenses in those actions and investigations. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh have agreed to repay all amounts advanced to them if it is ultimately determined that they are not entitled to indemnification under Delaware law.

On July 2, 1998, the American Alliance Insurance Company filed suit against Sunbeam in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York requesting a declaratory judgment of the court that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for excess coverage issued by American Alliance was invalid and/or had been properly canceled by American Alliance. American Alliance has filed a motion for summary judgment on the ground that coverage was never bound. Sunbeam has opposed that motion. As a result of a motion made by Sunbeam, this case has been transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida for coordination and consolidation of pre-trial proceedings with the various actions pending in that court. On October 20, 1998, an action was filed by Federal Insurance Company in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American in the previously filed action as to additional coverage levels under Sunbeam's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. This action has been transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida and is currently in discovery. Sunbeam is seeking a stay of discovery to coordinate discovery in this action with any discovery that may occur in the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiff has moved to compel production of various documents. On December 22, 1998, an action was filed by Executive Risk Indemnity, Inc. in the Circuit Court of the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit in and for Broward County, Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American and Federal in their previously filed actions as to additional coverage levels under Sunbeam's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. On April 15, 1999, Sunbeam filed an action in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, PA, Gulf Insurance Company and St. Paul Mercury Insurance Company requesting, among other things, a declaratory judgment that National Union is not entitled to rescind its directors' and officers' liability insurance policies to Sunbeam and a declaratory judgment that Sunbeam is entitled to coverage from these insurance companies for the various lawsuits described herein under directors' and officers' liability insurance policies issued by each of the defendants. In response to Sunbeam's complaint, defendants St. Paul and Gulf have answered and asserted counterclaims seeking rescission and declaratory relief that no coverage is available to Sunbeam. Sunbeam has denied the allegations of Gulf's and St. Paul's counterclaims. Defendant National Union has filed a motion to dismiss or stay the claims filed by Sunbeam against National Union on the basis, among others, that Sunbeam must submit the dispute to arbitration or mediation. Sunbeam has filed a response opposing that motion. Sunbeam intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against Sunbeam or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions and to recover attorneys' fees covered under those policies. Sunbeam's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgment in any of the actions described above could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

By letter dated June 17, 1998, the staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised Sunbeam that it was conducting an informal inquiry into Sunbeam's accounting policies and procedures and requested that Sunbeam produce certain documents. On July 2, 1998, the SEC issued a Formal Order of Private Investigation, designating SEC officers to take testimony and pursuant to which a subpoena was served on Sunbeam requiring the production of certain documents. On November 4, 1998, another SEC subpoena requiring the production of additional documents was received by Sunbeam. Sunbeam has provided numerous documents to the SEC staff and continues to cooperate with the SEC staff. Sunbeam has, however, declined to provide the SEC with material that Sunbeam believes is subject to the attorney-client privilege and the work product immunity.

The SEC has not commenced any civil or administrative proceedings as a result of its investigation, and Sunbeam cannot predict at this time whether the SEC will seek to impose any monetary or other penalties against Sunbeam. Under these circumstances, Sunbeam cannot estimate the duration of the investigation or its outcome.

Sunbeam and its subsidiaries are also involved in various other lawsuits arising from time to time which Sunbeam considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of Sunbeam, the resolution of these routine matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of Sunbeam.

Amounts accrued for litigation matters represent the anticipated costs (damages and/or settlement amounts) in connection with pending litigation and claims and related anticipated legal fees for defending such actions. The costs are accrued when it is both probable that an asset has been impaired or a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated. The accruals are based upon Sunbeam's assessment, after consultation with counsel, of probable loss based on the facts and circumstances of each case, the legal issues involved, the nature of the claim made, the nature of the damages sought and any relevant information about the plaintiffs and other significant factors which vary by case. When it is not possible to estimate a specific expected cost to be incurred, Sunbeam evaluates the range of probable loss and records the minimum end of the range. As of September 30, 1999, Sunbeam had established accruals for litigation matters of $22.6 million (representing $11.3 million and $11.3 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively.) As of December 31, 1998 Sunbeam had established accruals for litigation matters of $31.2 million (representing $17.5 million and $13.7 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively) and $9.9 million as of December 28, 1997 (representing $3.0 million and $6.9 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively). It is anticipated that the $22.6 million accrual will be paid as follows: $5.2 million in 1999, $14.9 million in 2000, and $2.5 million in 2001. Sunbeam believes, based on information known to Sunbeam on September 30, 1999, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters existing as of September 30, 1999 have been adequately reserved to the extent determinable.

Products Liability

As a consumer goods manufacturer and distributor, Sunbeam faces the constant risks of product liability and related lawsuits involving claims for substantial money damages, product recall actions and higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. These claims could result in liabilities that could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's consolidated financial position, results of operations or cash flows. Some of the product lines Sunbeam acquired in the 1998 acquisitions have increased its exposure to product liability and related claims.

BRK Brands, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, is a defendant in an ongoing products liability case in which the plaintiff alleged, among other things, that the plaintiff's smoke detector (which had been manufactured by a predecessor company to BRK Brands, Inc.) did not alarm quickly enough. In July 1999, the jury in the case awarded $20 million in compensatory damages and $30 million in punitive damages. This case has been settled and BRK Brands, Inc.'s obligation under the settlement is limited to payment of the balance of its self-insured retention.

Sunbeam is party to various personal injury and property damage lawsuits relating to its products and incidental to its business. Annually, Sunbeam sets its product liability insurance program based on Sunbeam's current and historical claims experience and the availability and cost of insurance. Sunbeam's program for 1999 was comprised of a self-insurance retention of $3.5 million per occurrence, and was limited to $28.0 million in the aggregate.

Cumulative amounts estimated to be payable by Sunbeam with respect to pending and potential claims for all years in which Sunbeam is liable under its self-insurance retention have been accrued as liabilities. Such accrued liabilities are necessarily based on estimates (which include actuarial determinations made by independent actuarial consultants as to liability exposure, taking into account prior experience, numbers of claims and other relevant factors); thus, Sunbeam's ultimate liability may exceed or be less than the amounts accrued. The methods of making such estimates and establishing the resulting liability are reviewed continually and any adjustments resulting therefrom are reflected in current operating results.

Historically, product liability awards have rarely exceeded Sunbeam's individual per occurrence self-insured retention. There can be no assurance, however, that Sunbeam's future product liability experience will be consistent with its past experience. Based on existing information, Sunbeam believes that the ultimate conclusion of the various pending product liability claims and lawsuits of Sunbeam, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect on the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of Sunbeam.

Environmental Matters

Sunbeam's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sales of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials. Sunbeam believes it is in substantial compliance with all environmental laws and regulations which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with environmental laws and regulations involves certain continuing costs; however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in Sunbeam's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, Sunbeam also is actively engaged in environmental remediation activities many of which related to divested operations. As of December 31, 1998, Sunbeam has been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") or a state environmental agency as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven sites subject to the federal Superfund Act and five sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which Sunbeam has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant.

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order the PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Act is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, Sunbeam recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever Sunbeam has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize Sunbeam's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, Sunbeam has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. Sunbeam currently is engaged in active remediation activities at 11 sites, six of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law. The remediation efforts in which Sunbeam is involved include facility investigations, including soil and groundwater investigations, corrective measure studies, including feasibility studies, groundwater monitoring, extraction and treatment, soil sampling, excavation and treatment relating to environmental clean-ups. In certain instances, Sunbeam has entered into agreements with governmental authorities to undertake additional investigatory activities and in other instances has agreed to implement appropriate remedial actions. Sunbeam has also established reserve amounts for certain non-compliance matters including those involving air emissions.

Sunbeam has established reserves to cover the anticipated probable costs of investigation and remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which Sunbeam has, or may have remediation responsibility. Sunbeam accrues environmental investigation and remediation costs when it is both probable that a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated and Sunbeam's responsibility is established. Generally, the timing of these accruals coincides with the earlier of formal commitment to an investigation plan, completion of a feasibility study or Sunbeam's commitment to a formal plan of action. As of September 30, 1999, December 31, 1998 and 1997, Sunbeam's environmental reserves were $23.3 million (representing $21.6 million for the estimated costs of facility investigations, corrective measure studies, or known remedial measures, and $1.7 million for estimated legal costs), $25.0 million (representing $22.9 million for the estimated costs of facility investigations, corrective measure studies, or known remedial measures, and $2.1 million for estimated legal costs) and $24.0 million (representing $21.8 million for the estimated costs of facility investigations, corrective measure studies, or known remedial measures, and $2.2 million for estimated legal costs), respectively. It is anticipated that the $23.3 million accrual at September 30, 1999 will be paid as follows: $5.2 million in 1999, $3.9 million in 2000, $1.8 million in 2001, $2.0 million in 2002, $0.6 million in 2003 and $9.8 million thereafter. Sunbeam has accrued its best estimate of investigation and remediation costs based upon facts known to Sunbeam at such dates and because of the inherent difficulties in estimating the ultimate amount of environmental costs, which are further described below, these estimates may materially change in the future as a result of the uncertainties described below. Estimated costs, which are based upon experience with similar sites and technical evaluations, are judgmental in nature and are recorded at undiscounted amounts without considering the impact of inflation and are adjusted periodically to reflect changes in applicable laws or regulations, changes in available technologies and receipt by Sunbeam of new information. It is difficult to estimate the ultimate level of future environmental expenditures due to a number of uncertainties surrounding environmental liabilities. These uncertainties include the applicability of laws and regulations, changes in environmental remediation requirements, the enactment of additional regulations, uncertainties surrounding remediation procedures including the development of new technology, the identification of new sites for which Sunbeam could be a PRP, information relating to the exact nature and extent of the contamination at each site and the extent of required cleanup efforts; the uncertainties with respect to the ultimate outcome of issues which may be actively contested and the varying costs of alternative remediation strategies. Sunbeam continues to pursue the recovery of some environmental remediation costs from certain of its liability insurance carriers; however, such potential recoveries have not been offset against potential liabilities and have not been considered in determining Sunbeam's environmental reserves.

Due to uncertainty over remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in environmental laws and regulations and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, Sunbeam's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of September 30, 1999.

Sunbeam believes, based on existing information for sites where costs are estimable, that the costs of completing environmental remediation of all sites for which Sunbeam has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon Sunbeam's financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Regulatory Matters

Sunbeam is subject to various laws and regulations in connection with its business operations, including but not limited to laws related to relations with employees, maintenance of safe manufacturing facilities, truth in packaging and advertising, regulation of medical products and safety of consumer products. Sunbeam does not anticipate that its business or operations will be materially adversely affected by compliance with any of these provisions.

- (8) Grant date values were calculated using the Black-Scholes options pricing model which has been adjusted to take dividends into account for the period prior to announced discontinuance of dividends. Use of this model should not be viewed in any way as a forecast of the future performance of the common stock. The estimated present value of each stock option as set forth above is based on the following inputs:

Valuation Dates	2/01/98	2/19/98	5/12/98	5/19/98	8/12/98	8/31/98	12/16/98
Risk Free Interest Rate	5.51%	5.57%	5.79%	5.72%	5.37%	4.95%	4.60%
Stock Price Volatility	36.10%	36.00%	40.30%	40.30%	49.60%	49.80%	52.80%
Dividend Yield	0.10%	0.10%	0.20%	0.20%	0.00%	0.00%	0.00%

The model assumes: (a) an expected option term of six years; (b) a risk-free interest rate based on closing six-year U.S. Treasury strip yield on the date of valuation; and (c) no forfeitures. Stock price volatility is calculated using weekly stock prices for a period of five years ended as of the valuation date and believed to reflect volatility in the absence of unusual corporate transactions. Notwithstanding the fact that these options are, with limited exceptions, non-transferable, no discount for lack of marketability was taken.

Aggregated Option Exercises in Last Fiscal Year and Fiscal Year-End Option Values

The following table sets forth information with respect to option exercises occurring during 1998 and the number of options held by the Named Executives at Sunbeam's fiscal year end. The option grants to Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins were approved by Sunbeam's stockholders at Sunbeam's 1999 annual meeting of stockholders held on June 29, 1999. Sunbeam and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh are disputing the amounts and benefits paid and payable to each of them under their respective employment agreements, and Sunbeam is contesting the validity of options granted to them. The following table includes the entire amount of the options granted by Sunbeam which Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh assert are vested. See "—Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap—Dispute with Mr. Dunlap" and "—Employment Agreement with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin—Dispute with Mr. Kersh" for information concerning disputes between Sunbeam and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh over equity grants and other matters.

Employment Agreement with Mr. Levin

On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam entered into an employment agreement with Mr. Levin (the "Levin Agreement") in which Sunbeam has agreed to employ Mr. Levin as Chief Executive Officer, and Mr. Levin has agreed to serve in such capacity, for an initial period ending June 14, 2001.

Compensation

Under the Levin Agreement, Mr. Levin will be paid a base salary at an annual rate of not less than $1,000,000. Effective April 1, 1999, Mr. Levin's base compensation was increased to $1,150,000. Additionally, Mr. Levin was paid a guaranteed bonus for 1998 of $541,667 and, thereafter, is eligible to receive a performance-based target annual bonus of 100% of his base salary and, if specified performance objectives are met, up to a bonus of 200% of his base salary under Sunbeam's incentive plan subject to a maximum award of $2,000,000. Mr. Levin participates in the other benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of Sunbeam. Sunbeam also reimburses Mr. Levin for the cost of membership in a country club.

Equity Grants

Mr. Levin received grants effective as of August 12, 1998 of options to purchase 1,750,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock at a price of $7.00 per share; 500,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock at a price of $14.00 per share; and 500,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock at a price of $10.50 per share (the "Levin Options"). The term of each of the Levin Options is ten years, and they will vest and become exercisable in full on June 14, 2001 if Mr. Levin remains employed by Sunbeam as of such date. In addition, effective March 29, 1999, Mr. Levin received grants of options under the Option Plan to purchase 250,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock at $5.57 per share. These options will vest equally on the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date. Upon the occurrence of a "Change in Control" of Sunbeam as defined in the Option Plan, all of the options granted to Mr. Levin will vest in full.

Termination and Change in Control Provisions

Sunbeam may terminate Mr. Levin's employment under the Levin Agreement due to his disability, or for Cause. As defined in the Levin Agreement, "Cause" means (1) gross neglect of his duties, (2) his conviction for a felony or any lesser crime or offense involving the property of Sunbeam, (3) willful misconduct in connection with the performance of any material portion of his duties, (4) willful breach of any material provision of the Levin Agreement, or (5) any conduct on Mr. Levin's part which would make his continued employment materially prejudicial to the best interests of Sunbeam. In addition, he may terminate his employment following a Company Breach upon 60 days' written notice to Sunbeam. As defined in the Levin Agreement, "Company Breach" means (1) any material breach of the Levin Agreement by Sunbeam, including the failure to obtain stockholder approval of the grant of the Levin Options, or (2) a "Change in Control" of Sunbeam, as defined in the Levin Agreement.

The Levin Agreement provides that, if Sunbeam terminates Mr. Levin's employment for Cause or if he voluntarily terminates his employment, all obligations, other than accrued obligations, of Sunbeam will cease and all unvested Levin Options will be immediately forfeited. If a Company Breach occurs, and Mr. Levin terminates the Levin Agreement, Sunbeam is obligated to continue to pay Mr. Levin's base salary and target bonus for the balance of the term and continue his benefits until his reemployment. In addition, all of the Levin Options vest and remain exercisable for three years.

The Levin Agreement provides that, if Mr. Levin's employment is terminated due to his death or his continued disability for six months, his legal representatives or designated beneficiary, or Mr. Levin, will receive continued payments in an amount equal to 60% of base salary until the longer of 12 months or the end of the term in effect at the time of his death or termination due to disability. The Levin Options will become vested and remain exercisable for three years thereafter.

Employment Agreements with Executives Shapiro, Jenkins and Clark

Sunbeam entered into employment agreements with Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins and Ms. Clark in August 1998. Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins and Ms. Clark are referred to as the "Executives." The agreements with Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins are for an initial period of approximately three years ending on June 14, 2001; and the agreement with Ms. Clark has a term ending on June 14, 2000. The Executives' agreements are referred to individually as an "Executive Agreement" and collectively as the "Executive Agreements."

Compensation

Under the Executive Agreements, Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins and Ms. Clark will be paid a base salary at annual rates not less than $600,000, $365,000 and $270,000, respectively. Effective April 1, 1999, the annual base salary for each of Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins was increased to $750,000 and $425,000, respectively. Effective June 1, 1999, the annual base salary of Ms. Clark was increased to $297,000. Additionally, under the Executive Agreements, Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins and Ms. Clark were paid a guaranteed bonus for 1998 equal to $243,750, $118,625 and $73,125, respectively, and, thereafter, are eligible to receive a performance-based annual target bonus equal to 75%, 60% and 50% of their respective annual salaries. The Executives also participate in the other benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of Sunbeam.

Equity Grants

Under the Executive Agreements, Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins and Ms. Clark also received grants effective as of June 15, 1998, June 15, 1998 and August 31, 1998, respectively, of options to purchase 600,000 shares, 450,000 shares and 50,000 shares, respectively, of Sunbeam common stock at a price of $7.00 per share (the "Executive Options"). The term of each of the Executive Options is ten years, and they will vest and become exercisable in full on June 14, 2001, June 14, 2001 and June 14, 2000, respectively, if the Executive remains employed as of such date. Mr. Jenkins was also granted an option, effective March 29, 1999, to acquire 100,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock at a purchase price of $5.57 per share. This option will vest in equal increments on the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date. Upon the occurrence of a "Change in Control" of Sunbeam, as defined in the Option Plan, the Executive Options will vest in full. In addition, under her employment agreement, Ms. Clark exchanged 75,000 options she had previously received upon joining Sunbeam for 50,000 options with an exercise price of $7.00 per share, as part of Sunbeam's option exchange program.

Termination and Change in Control Provisions

Sunbeam may terminate an Executive's employment under his or her Executive Agreement due to disability, or for Cause. As defined in the Executive Agreements, "Cause" means (1) gross neglect of duties, (2) conviction for a felony or any lesser crime or offense involving the property of Sunbeam, (3) willful misconduct in connection with the performance of any material portion of the Executive's duties, (4) willful breach of any material provision of the agreement by Executive, or (5) any conduct on the Executive's part which would make continued employment materially prejudicial to the best interests of Sunbeam. The Executive may terminate his or her employment under the Executive Agreement at any time. In addition, he or she may terminate his or her employment for Company Breach upon 60 days' written notice to Sunbeam. As defined in the Executive Agreements, "Company Breach" means any material breach of the Executive Agreement by Sunbeam. In the case of the agreements with Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins, a material breach includes the failure to obtain stockholder approval of the grants of the Executive Options to Messrs. Shapiro and Jenkins and a "Change of Control" of Sunbeam, as defined in their respective Executive Agreements.

The Executive Agreements provide that, if Sunbeam terminates an Executive's employment for Cause or if the Executive voluntarily terminates his or her employment, all obligations, other than accrued obligations of Sunbeam will cease and all unvested Executive Options shall be immediately forfeited. If a Company Breach occurs, and an Executive terminates his or her Executive Agreement, Sunbeam is obligated to continue to pay the Executive's base salary and target bonus for the balance of the term and continue the Executive's benefits until his reemployment. In addition, all of the Executive Options will vest and remain exercisable for three years.

The Executive Agreements provide that, if an Executive's employment is terminated due to death, his or her legal representatives or designated beneficiary will receive continued payments in an amount equal to 60% of base salary until the longer of 12 months or the end of the term in effect at the time of death. Upon an Executive's death, the Executive Options will be vested upon such death and will remain exercisable for three years thereafter.

Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap

As of February 1, 1998, Sunbeam entered into an employment agreement with Mr. Dunlap (the "Dunlap Agreement") in which Sunbeam agreed to continue to employ Mr. Dunlap as Chairman of the board of directors and Chief Executive Officer, and Mr. Dunlap agreed to serve in such capacities, for a period of three years ending January 31, 2001, and for successive one-year renewal periods unless advance notice of termination was given by either party by no later than August 1 of the immediately preceding year. The Dunlap Agreement was not renewable beyond January 31, 2003. The Dunlap Agreement replaced and superseded Mr. Dunlap's prior employment agreement.

Dispute with Mr. Dunlap. On June 13, 1998, the Sunbeam board of directors removed Mr. Dunlap as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. The Sunbeam board took this step because Sunbeam's outside directors had lost confidence in Mr. Dunlap's leadership. Mr. Dunlap has asserted that Sunbeam terminated his employment without cause in breach of the Dunlap Agreement, and Sunbeam is vigorously contesting these claims, including claims regarding the validity of grants of Sunbeam common stock and stock options to him. Nothing in this prospectus should be construed to support his claims or to limit or otherwise affect Sunbeam's claims against Mr. Dunlap, including claims with respect to his entitlement to equity grants.

Compensation. Under the Dunlap Agreement, Mr. Dunlap was to be paid a base salary at an annual rate of $2,000,000. Sunbeam could increase Mr. Dunlap's base salary, but could not reduce it after any such increase. Mr. Dunlap was eligible to participate in the other benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of Sunbeam. However, he was not eligible to participate in any incentive plan of Sunbeam. Sunbeam also provided Mr. Dunlap with various perquisites on a grossed-up basis. Upon Mr. Dunlap's termination, he did not receive any compensation from Sunbeam. Sunbeam subsequently agreed to pay $52,000 of the accrued vacation and employment benefits of Mr. Dunlap as part of a six-month agreement with Mr. Dunlap in which the parties agreed not to assert claims against each other and to exchange information relating to the pending stockholder lawsuits.

Equity Grants. The Dunlap Agreement provided that all of Mr. Dunlap's then outstanding options to purchase shares of Sunbeam common stock, which were granted under Mr. Dunlap's prior employment agreement, vested as of February 20, 1998; 40% of Mr. Dunlap's shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock were canceled as of such date; and all of Mr. Dunlap's remaining shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock vested as of such date. The Dunlap Agreement also provided that Sunbeam reimburse Mr. Dunlap on a grossed-up basis with respect to any income tax assessed in connection with the vesting of such shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock.

Mr. Dunlap received a grant as of February 1, 1998 of 300,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock. Mr. Dunlap also received a grant effective as of February 1, 1998 of options to purchase 3,750,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock at a price of $36.85 per share (the "Dunlap Options"), which grant was approved by Sunbeam's stockholders at the 1998 annual meeting. The Dunlap Options provided for a term of ten years, and for vesting with respect to one-third of the shares subject thereto on the grant date and for an additional one-third to vest on each of the first and second anniversaries of the grant date if Mr. Dunlap had remained employed by Sunbeam. The Dunlap Agreement provided that upon the occurrence of a "Change in Control" of Sunbeam, as defined in the Option Plan, the Dunlap Options would have vested in full.

Termination and Change in Control Provisions. The Dunlap Agreement provided that Sunbeam could terminate Mr. Dunlap's employment at any time, or due to his disability, or for Cause. The Dunlap Agreement defined "Cause" to mean (1) willful failure substantially to perform Mr. Dunlap's duties under the Dunlap Agreement, except if such failure results from disability, or (2) his conviction for a felony or a plea of guilty or no contest thereto.

The Dunlap Agreement provided that, if Sunbeam terminated Mr. Dunlap's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminated his employment for a "Good Reason," as defined in the Dunlap Agreement:

- (1) he would receive as liquidated damages a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the base salary that would have been payable through the period ending January 31, 2001, or any then applicable renewal period;

(2) the Dunlap Options would become fully vested, and he would be entitled to exercise the Dunlap Options as well as previously granted options for the balance of their original ten-year term; and

(3) he would be entitled to continue participating in the employee benefit plans in which he had been entitled to participate before termination, for three years after termination, or to receive substantially equivalent benefits.

The Dunlap Agreement provided that, if Sunbeam terminated Mr. Dunlap's employment for Cause or if he terminated his employment other than for Good Reason, all obligations, other than accrued obligations, of Sunbeam would cease, except that Mr. Dunlap would be able to exercise the Dunlap Options as well as previously granted options which were exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days, if the termination were for Cause, and within one year, if it were by Mr. Dunlap without Good Reason.

In addition, the Dunlap Agreement provided that Mr. Dunlap would be entitled to receive a gross-up with respect to any excise tax applicable under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, to "excess parachute payments."

Employment Agreements with Messrs. Kersh And Fannin

Sunbeam entered into employment agreements with each of Messrs. Kersh and Fannin as of February 1, 1998. Messrs. Kersh and Fannin are referred to herein as the "Prior Executives." The employment agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin had terms ending on January 31, 2001. The employment agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin (referred to individually as a "Prior Executive Agreement" and collectively as the "Prior Executive Agreements") replaced and superseded their respective previous employment agreements with Sunbeam.

Dispute with Mr. Kersh. On June 16, 1998, the Sunbeam board of directors terminated Mr. Kersh as Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer. Mr. Kersh has asserted that Sunbeam terminated his employment without cause in breach of his Prior Executive Agreement, and Sunbeam is vigorously contesting these claims, including claims regarding the validity of grants of restricted Sunbeam common stock and options to him. Nothing in this prospectus should be construed to support his claims or to limit or otherwise affect Sunbeam's claims against Mr. Kersh, including claims with respect to his entitlement to equity grants.

Compensation. Under their respective Prior Executive Agreements, Messrs. Kersh and Fannin were each to be paid a base salary at annual rates of $875,000 and $595,000, respectively. The Prior Executives were also eligible to participate in those benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of Sunbeam. However, the Prior Executives were not eligible to participate in any cash incentive plan of Sunbeam. Upon Mr. Kersh's termination, he did not receive any compensation from Sunbeam. Sunbeam subsequently agreed to pay $68,000 of the accrued vacation and employment benefits of Mr. Kersh as part of a six-month agreement with Mr. Kersh in which the parties agreed not to assert claims against each other and to exchange information relating to the pending stockholder lawsuits.

Equity Grants. The Prior Executive Agreements provided that all of Mr. Kersh's then outstanding options to acquire shares of Sunbeam common stock, which were granted under Mr. Kersh's previous employment agreement, and all of Mr. Fannin's then outstanding options to acquire shares of Sunbeam common stock vested as of February 20, 1998; 40% of each of Mr. Kersh's and Mr. Fannin's shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock were canceled as of such date; and all of Mr. Kersh's and Mr. Fannin's remaining shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock vested as of such date. The Prior Executive Agreements provided that Sunbeam was to reimburse Messrs. Kersh and Fannin on a grossed-up basis with respect to any income tax assessed in connection with the vesting of such shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock.

As of February 1, 1998, Messrs. Kersh and Fannin each received a grant of 150,000 and 30,000 shares of restricted Sunbeam common stock (the "Prior Executive Restricted Shares"), respectively. These Prior Executive Restricted Shares provided for vesting in four equal installments on each of February 1, 1998 and the first, second and third anniversaries of February 1, 1998. Messrs. Kersh and Fannin also received grants, effective as of February 1, 1998, of options to purchase 1,125,000 and 750,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock, respectively, at a price of $36.85 per share which were approved by Sunbeam's stockholders at the 1998 annual meeting (the "Prior Executive Options"). These Prior Executive Options provided for vesting in four equal installments on the grant date of February 1, 1998 and the first, second and third anniversaries of February 1, 1998.

Termination and Change in Control Provisions. The Prior Executive Agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin provided that Sunbeam may terminate either Prior Executive's employment at any time, or due to the Prior Executive's disability, or for "Cause," as defined in the Prior Executive Agreement.

Each Prior Executive Agreement provided that, if Sunbeam terminated the Prior Executive's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if the Prior Executive terminated his employment for "Good Reason," as defined in the Prior Executive Agreements, or following a "Change in Control," as defined in the Prior Executive Agreements:

- (1) such Prior Executive would receive as liquidated damages a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the base salary that would have been payable to him through the end of the employment term;
- (2) the Options and Executive Restricted Shares granted to such Prior Executive would become fully vested, and the Prior Executive will be entitled to exercise his Prior Executive Options and previously granted options for the balance of their original ten-year term; and
- (3) the Prior Executive would be entitled to continue participating in the employee benefit plans in which he had been entitled to participate before termination, through the end of the employment term, or to receive substantially equivalent benefits.

Each Prior Executive Agreement provided that if Sunbeam terminated the Prior Executive's employment for Cause or if the Prior Executive terminated his employment other than for Good Reason or following a Change in Control, all obligations, other than accrued obligations, of Sunbeam would cease, except that such Prior Executive would be able to exercise Prior Executive Options and previously granted options granted to him which were exercisable on the date of termination or within 90 days thereof, if the termination were for Cause, and within one year thereof, if the termination were by the Executive other than for Good Reason or following a Change in Control.

In addition, each Prior Executive Agreement provided that the Prior Executive would be entitled to receive a gross-up with respect to any excise tax applicable under the Internal Revenue Code to "excess parachute payments."

Employment Agreement with Ms. Kelley

Sunbeam entered into an employment agreement with Ms. Kelley in December 1998. The agreement had an initial term extending until December 31, 2000, but expired upon her resignation from employment effective May 31, 1999. In 1999, while this agreement was in effect, Ms. Kelley's annual base salary rate was $275,000. In addition, Ms. Kelley was paid a guaranteed bonus of $112,500 for 1998. Under the agreement, Ms. Kelley received a grant effective as of December 16, 1998 of options to purchase 60,000 shares of common stock at a price of $7.00 per share.

Ms. Kelley's agreement provided that if Sunbeam terminated her employment for Cause (as defined in Ms. Kelley's agreement) or if she voluntarily terminated her employment, all obligations of Sunbeam, other than accrued obligations, would cease and all unvested stock options would be immediately forfeited. If a Company Breach (as defined in Ms. Kelley's agreement) occurred, and Ms. Kelley terminated her employment, under the agreement, Sunbeam was obligated to pay Ms. Kelley's base salary and target bonus for the balance of the term and continue her benefits until her reemployment. In addition, all of Ms. Kelley's options would have vested and remained exercisable for three years.

In connection with her resignation, the options to purchase 60,000 shares of common stock at $7.00 per share were made fully exercisable on June 13, 1999 in exchange for the forfeiture by Ms. Kelley of 68,583 exercisable options having exercise prices ranging from $20.30 per share to $38.34 per share.

Subsequent Arrangements with Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh and Fannin

In early August 1998, Sunbeam entered into a six-month agreement with Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh in which all parties agreed not to assert claims against each other and to exchange information relating to the various lawsuits in which Sunbeam and Messrs. Dunlap Kersh are named as defendants. Sunbeam also agreed to pay, and has paid, to Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh amounts related to accrued vacation and employment benefits and to advance litigation defense costs subject to the receipt of an undertaking from each of them, which Sunbeam has received, to repay all amounts so advanced if it is determined that they did not meet the applicable standard of conduct for indemnification under Delaware law. This agreement has expired and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh have commenced an arbitration action against Sunbeam claiming recovery of amounts they allege are payable to them under their agreements. Sunbeam is vigorously contesting these claims and is seeking the return of all amounts they received under their February 1998 employment agreements. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh have obtained an order from the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware requiring Sunbeam to advance reasonable litigation defense costs to each of them.

In connection with the termination of Mr. Fannin's employment by mutual agreement, Sunbeam entered into an agreement with him providing that, under the terms of his employment agreement and in consideration of the execution of the agreement, including a release and covenant not to sue contained therein, he would receive the following payments, all subject to applicable withholding taxes:

(a) $825,000 in severance payments, of which $575,001 was paid in 1998 and the balance of which is payable in monthly installments of $16,667;

(b) consulting payments of $250,000 of which $41,667 was paid in 1998 and the balance of which is payable in monthly installments of $13,889; and

(c) $50,000 payable for the three year extension of Mr. Fannin's non-compete agreement, of which $8,334 was paid in 1998 and the balance of which is payable in equal monthly installments of $2,778.

In addition, Mr. Fannin received the value of his accrued vacation for 1996, 1997 and 1998, continuation of health, dental and life insurance coverage, on the same basis as prior to termination of employment for an additional 18 months or until his earlier employment providing such benefits. The termination agreement with Mr. Fannin also provided for a three-year term for his outstanding vested stock options, confirmed the amount of his unrestricted Sunbeam common stock grants and provided for the mutually agreed cancellation of all other equity awards.

Other Transactions

Settlement of Claims; Issuance of Warrant

On August 12, 1998, Sunbeam announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a special committee of the Sunbeam board of directors, consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes, Sunbeam had entered into the settlement agreement with the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary from which Sunbeam had acquired a controlling interest in Coleman in March 1998. Under the settlement agreement, Sunbeam was released from threatened claims arising from that acquisition, and MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide management personnel and assistance to Sunbeam, in exchange for the issuance to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary of a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase 23 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at an exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution provisions.

Services Provided by MacAndrews & Forbes

Under the settlement agreement referred to in the previous paragraph, in addition to making the services of Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins available to Sunbeam, MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide management assistance to Sunbeam with respect to specified matters. Sunbeam does not reimburse MacAndrews & Forbes for these services or for expenses incurred in providing these services to Sunbeam, other than reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses paid to third parties. Execution of the settlement agreement was a condition to Sunbeam's continued employment of Messrs. Levin, Shapiro and Jenkins as officers of Sunbeam.

Registration Rights

Sunbeam and the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary which sold Sunbeam its controlling interest in Coleman have entered into a registration rights agreement. Under the registration rights agreement, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary can require Sunbeam to register under the federal and applicable state securities laws the shares of Sunbeam common stock the subsidiary received when it sold its controlling interest in Coleman to Sunbeam. Sunbeam has also agreed to permit former affiliates of Coleman that received Sunbeam common stock in the March 1988 acquisition to join the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary in any registration of the subsidiary's shares of Sunbeam common stock.

The registration rights agreement was amended in August 1998 to permit the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary to require Sunbeam to also register (1) the warrant issued to it by Sunbeam under its settlement agreement with Sunbeam and (2) the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant.

Settlement of Coleman Options

Under Sunbeam's agreement providing for the merger, the unexercised options under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of the options. Ronald O. Perelman, the sole stockholder of MacAndrews & Forbes, holds 500,000 options for which he will receive a net payment of $6,750,000 upon completion of the merger. Messrs. Shapiro and Isko and Ms. Clark, executive officers of Sunbeam, hold 77,500, 20,000 and 25,000 options, respectively, for which they will receive net payments of $823,000, $226,099 and $275,005, respectively.

Arrangements with Coleman

Coleman and a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes are parties to a cross-indemnification agreement in which Coleman has agreed to indemnify the subsidiary, its officers, directors, employees, control persons, agents and representatives against all past, present and future liabilities, including product liability and environmental matters, related to the initial assets of Coleman, which Coleman acquired from such affiliate in December 1991. In addition, under this cross-indemnification agreement, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary has agreed to indemnify Coleman and its officers, directors, employees, agents and representatives against all other liabilities of this MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary or any of its subsidiaries, including liabilities relating to the assets it did not transfer to Coleman in December 1991. This cross-indemnification agreement will survive the merger.

Coleman previously was included in the consolidated tax group for the MacAndrews & Forbes companies and was a party to a tax sharing agreement with a MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary, under which Coleman paid to this subsidiary the amount of taxes which would have been paid by Coleman if it were required to file separate Federal, state or local income tax returns. The obligations of MacAndrews & Forbes under the tax sharing agreement were terminated when Sunbeam bought a controlling interest in Coleman in March 1998. As described under the section titled "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Acquisition of Coleman Preferred Stock," one of Sunbeam's wholly owned subsidiaries recently acquired shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock. These shares were created and purchased in order to enable Sunbeam and Coleman to file consolidated federal income tax returns prior to the completion of the merger. In connection with the acquisition of these shares, Sunbeam entered into a tax sharing agreement with Coleman pursuant to which Coleman will pay to Sunbeam amounts equal to the federal and state income taxes that would have been payable by Coleman had Coleman not been included in the consolidated income tax return of Sunbeam.

Office Space

During 1998, Sunbeam sublet office space in New York City from an affiliate of MacAndrews & Forbes. The expense for such rent during 1998 was approximately $130,000. The lease was terminated in 1999.

Employment of Law Firms

Sunbeam employed the law firms of Reboul, MacMurray, Hewitt, Maynard and Kristol, of which Mr. Kristol is a partner, and Holland & Knight, of which Mr. Elson is Of Counsel, to perform some legal services for Sunbeam during 1998. The total fees paid to these firms during 1998 were less than $20,000. Neither Mr. Kristol nor Mr. Elson was involved in the provision of legal services to Sunbeam.

DESCRIPTION OF SUNBEAM CAPITAL STOCK

The following statements are summaries of provisions of Sunbeam's capital stock.

Sunbeam Common Stock

Sunbeam's authorized capital stock currently consists of 500,000,000 shares of Sunbeam common stock, par value $.01 per share, and 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $.01 per share. As of December 3, 1999, there were 100,902,392 shares of Sunbeam common stock outstanding. Each share of Sunbeam common stock entitles its holder to one vote on all matters upon which Sunbeam stockholders are entitled or permitted to vote, including the election of directors. There are no cumulative voting rights. Shares of Sunbeam common stock would participate ratably in any distribution of assets in a liquidation, dissolution or winding up of Sunbeam, subject to prior distribution rights of any shares of preferred stock then outstanding. The Sunbeam common stock has no preemptive rights or conversion rights nor are there any redemption or sinking fund provisions applicable to the Sunbeam common stock. Holders of Sunbeam common stock are entitled to participate in dividends as and when declared by the Sunbeam board out of funds legally available therefor. Sunbeam's ability to pay cash dividends is subject to restrictions under Delaware law. In addition, Sunbeam's bank credit facility prohibits Sunbeam from paying cash dividends.

The transfer agent and registrar for the Sunbeam common stock is The Bank of New York.

Sunbeam Preferred Stock

There are no shares of Sunbeam preferred stock currently outstanding. Sunbeam's Certificate of Incorporation provides that the Sunbeam board of directors may authorize the issuance of one or more series of preferred stock having such rights, including voting, conversion and redemption rights, and such preferences, including dividend and liquidation preferences, as the Sunbeam board may determine without any further action by the stockholders of Sunbeam.

Warrants

Sunbeam currently has outstanding one warrant which entitles the holder to purchase up to 23 million shares of Sunbeam common stock. This warrant was issued on August 24, 1998 under the terms of the Settlement Agreement, dated August 12, 1998, by and between Sunbeam and Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary from which Sunbeam acquired about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock in the M&F Transaction. In the merger, Sunbeam will issue warrants which will entitle their holders to purchase up to 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock. These warrants will be issued under a Warrant Agreement to be entered into by Sunbeam and The Bank of New York, as Warrant Agent, prior to the completion of the merger.

The warrant to be issued in the merger will be substantially similar to the warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings.

The warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings and each of the warrants to be issued in the merger will be exercisable at a cash exercise price of $7 per share and will expire on August 24, 2003. In addition, the warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings and each of the warrants to be issued in the merger is subject to anti-dilution adjustments in the event that Sunbeam completes one or more transactions having a dilutive effect on its existing stockholders. Under the settlement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Sunbeam has agreed that Coleman (Parent) Holdings can require Sunbeam to register under the federal and applicable state securities laws the shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrant. The shares of Sunbeam common stock issuable upon exercise of the warrants to be issued in the merger are being registered under the registration statement of which this document forms a part.

For further information regarding the warrant issued to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, see "RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AFFECTING SUNBEAM—Settlement of Claims Relating to the M&F Transaction." For further information regarding the terms of the warrants to be issued in the merger, see "SETTLEMENT OF LITIGATION AND WARRANTS."

DESCRIPTION OF COLEMAN CAPITAL STOCK

The following statements are summaries of provisions of Coleman's capital stock.

Coleman Common Stock

The authorized capital stock of Coleman consists of 100,000,000 shares of capital stock, 80,000,000 of which are common stock, par value $.01 per share, and 20,000,000 of which are preferred stock, par value $.01 per share. Of these authorized shares, as of December 3, 1999, 55,827,490 shares of Coleman common stock were issued and outstanding and 923,670 shares of Coleman common stock were issuable upon exercise of Coleman stock options outstanding under Coleman's employee stock option plans (all of which options are currently exercisable).

Subject to the rights of holders of any Coleman preferred stock then outstanding, holders of Coleman common stock are entitled to receive dividends as may from time to time be declared by the Coleman board subject to certain limitations under Delaware law. The merger agreement prohibits Coleman from paying dividends and Sunbeam's credit facility only permits Coleman to pay dividends in additional shares of its capital stock until the merger is completed. Holders of Coleman common stock are entitled to one vote per share on all matters on which the holders of Coleman common stock are entitled to vote. Because holders of Coleman common stock do not have cumulative voting rights, the holders of a majority of the shares of Coleman common stock represented at a meeting can elect all of the directors. In the event of liquidation, dissolution or winding up of Coleman, holders of Coleman common stock would be entitled to share ratably in assets of Coleman available for distribution to the holders of Coleman common stock.

Holders of Coleman common stock are not liable for any liabilities of Coleman. There are no preemptive rights for the Coleman common stock. The outstanding shares of Coleman common stock are fully paid and nonassessable.

American Stock Transfer & Trust Co. acts as transfer agent and registrar for the Coleman common stock.

Coleman Preferred Stock

As of December 3, 1999, there were 3,000,000 shares of Coleman preferred stock issued and outstanding. Coleman's Certificate of Incorporation authorizes the Coleman board of directors to provide for the issuance, from time to time, of shares of preferred stock in series, to establish from time to time the number of shares to be included in any such series and to fix the designation, powers, preferences and rights of the shares of each such series and any qualifications, limitations or restrictions thereof.

On July 12, 1999, Coleman issued to Coleman Worldwide Corporation 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of voting preferred stock, par value $.01 per share, denominated as "Series A Participating Preferred Stock." Each share of Series A Participating Preferred Stock entitles the holder thereof to one vote on all matters submitted to a vote of the stockholders of Coleman. Except as required by law, the holders of the Series A Participating Preferred Stock vote together as a single class with the holders of Coleman common stock on all matters submitted to a vote of the Coleman stockholders. The Series A Participating Preferred Stock is entitled to an annual dividend. Dividends on the Series A Participating Preferred Stock will accrue and be payable at the earlier of (1) the time any liquidating distribution is made to the holders of the Series A Participating Preferred Stock and (2) the time the shares of Series A Participating Preferred Stock are exchanged or changed into other stock or securities, cash and/or any other property, in connection with a consolidation, merger, combination or other transaction involving Coleman (other than the merger of a wholly owned Sunbeam subsidiary with Coleman). However, Sunbeam's credit facility only permits Coleman to pay dividends in additional shares of its capital stock until the merger is completed. The holders of shares of Series A Participating Preferred Stock share ratably in all other dividends and distributions received by the holders of Coleman common stock. In addition, the holders of shares of Series A Participating Preferred Stock are entitled to a per share liquidation preference equal to the price the Series A Participating Preferred Stock was initially issued to Sunbeam and, once the holders of shares of Coleman common stock have received a like per share amount, the holders of shares of Series A Participating Preferred Stock will share ratably with the holders of shares of Coleman common stock in all remaining amounts available for distribution upon liquidation of Coleman.

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Board of Directors and Shareholders of
Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheet of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries (the "Company") as of December 31, 1998, and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity, and cash flows for the year then ended. Our audit also included the financial statement schedule as of and for the year ended December 31, 1998, listed in the Index to Financial Statements. These financial statements and financial statement schedule are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements and financial statement schedule based on our audit. We did not audit the consolidated financial statements of The Coleman Company, Inc. and subsidiaries (consolidated subsidiaries), which statements reflect total assets constituting 27% of consolidated total assets as of December 31, 1998, and total revenues constituting 40% of consolidated total revenues for the year then ended. Those consolidated financial statements were audited by other auditors whose report has been furnished to us, and our opinion, insofar as it relates to the amounts included for The Coleman Company, Inc. and subsidiaries, is based solely on the report of such other auditors.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit and the report of the other auditors provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, based on our audit and the report of the other auditors, such consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1998, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for the year then ended in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Also, in our opinion, based on our audit and (as to the amounts included for The Coleman Company, Inc. and subsidiaries) the report of other auditors, such financial statement schedule as of and for the year ended December 31, 1998, when considered in relation to the basic consolidated financial statements taken as a whole, presents fairly in all material respects the information set forth therein.

These financial statements are the responsibility of Sunbeam's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS

To the Board of Directors and Shareholders of Sunbeam Corporation:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheet of Sunbeam Corporation (a Delaware corporation) and subsidiaries as of December 28, 1997 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and cash flows for each of the two fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997. These consolidated financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 28, 1997, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the two fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

Our audits were made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements taken as a whole. Schedule II for each of the two years in the period ended December 28, 1997 is presented for the purpose of complying with the Securities and Exchange Commission's rules and is not part of the basic financial statements. This Schedule has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audits of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, fairly states in all material respects the financial data required to be set forth therein in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES
NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies

Organization

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacturing, marketing and distribution of durable household and outdoor leisure consumer products through mass market and other distribution channels in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to professional and commercial end users such as small businesses, health care providers, hotels and other institutions. The Company's principal products include household kitchen appliances; health monitoring and care products for home use; scales for consumer and professional use for weight management and business uses; electric blankets and throws; clippers and trimmers for consumer, professional and animal uses; smoke and carbon monoxide detectors; outdoor barbecue grills; camping equipment such as tents, lanterns, sleeping bags and stoves; coolers; backpacks and book bags; and portable generators and compressors.

In 1998 the Company acquired an indirect controlling interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") and all the outstanding common stock of Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands") and First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert").

Principles of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and all majority-owned subsidiaries that it controls. All material intercompany balances and transactions have been eliminated.

Presentation of Fiscal Periods

To standardize the fiscal period ends of the Company and its acquired entities, effective with its 1998 fiscal year, the Company has changed its fiscal year end from the Sunday nearest December 31 to a calendar year. The impact of this change in fiscal period on net sales for 1998 was to increase sales by approximately $5.5 million, and the impact on operating results for the period was to increase the net loss by approximately $1.5 million.

Fiscal years 1997 and 1996 ended on December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996, respectively, which encompassed 52-week periods.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the consolidated financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates. Significant accounting estimates include the establishment of the allowance for doubtful accounts, tax valuation allowances, reserves for sales returns and allowances, product warranty, product liability, excess and obsolete inventory, litigation and environmental exposures.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers highly liquid investments purchased with an original maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents.

Concentrations of Credit Risk

Substantially all of the Company's trade receivables are due from retailers and distributors located throughout the United States, Europe, Latin America, Canada, and Japan. Approximately 38% of the Company's sales in 1998 were to its five largest customers. The Company establishes its credit policies based on an ongoing evaluation of its customers' creditworthiness and competitive market conditions and establishes its allowance for doubtful accounts based on an assessment of exposures to credit losses at each balance sheet date. The Company believes its allowance for doubtful accounts is sufficient based on the credit exposures outstanding at December 31, 1998. However, certain retailers filed for bankruptcy protection in the last several years and it is possible that additional credit losses could be incurred if other retailers seek bankruptcy protection or if the trends of retail consolidation continue.

Inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower-of-cost-or-market with cost being determined principally by the first-in, first-out method.

In certain instances, the Company receives rebates from vendors based on the volume of merchandise purchased. Vendor rebates are recorded as reductions in the price of the purchased merchandise and are recognized in operations as the related inventories are sold.

Effective in fiscal 1997, as a consequence of the initial outsourcing of the supplies inventories management function, the Company began capitalizing the cost of manufacturing supplies, whereas previously the cost of these supplies was charged to operations when purchased. This change, which management believes is preferable in that it provides for a more appropriate matching of revenues and expenses, increased pre-tax operating earnings in fiscal 1997 by $2.8 million. Additional disclosures pursuant to Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Opinion No. 20, Accounting Changes, are not provided since supplies inventories were not monitored for financial reporting purposes prior to the initial outsourcing of the inventory management function and, consequently, the information is not available.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment are stated at cost. The Company provides for depreciation using primarily the straight-line method in amounts that allocate the cost of property, plant and equipment over the following useful lives:

Buildings and improvements	5 to 45 years
Machinery, equipment and tooling	3 to 15 years
Furniture and fixtures	3 to 10 years

Leasehold improvements are amortized on a straight-line basis over the shorter of its estimated useful life or the term of the lease.

Long-lived Assets

The Company accounts for long-lived assets pursuant to Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 121, Accounting for the Impairment of Long-Lived Assets and for Long-Lived Assets to be Disposed of. The Company periodically evaluates factors, events and circumstances which include, but are not limited to, the historical and projected operating performance of the business operations, specific industry trends and general economic conditions to assess whether the remaining estimated useful lives of long-lived assets may warrant revision or whether the remaining asset values are recoverable through future operations. When such factors, events or circumstances indicate that long-lived assets should be evaluated for possible impairment, the Company uses an estimate of cash flows (undiscounted and without interest charges) over the remaining lives of the assets to measure recoverability. If the estimated cash flows are less than the carrying value of the asset, the loss is measured as the amount by which the carrying value of the asset exceeds fair value.

With respect to enterprise level goodwill, the Company reviews impairment when changes in circumstances, similar to those described above for long-lived assets, indicate that the carrying value may not be recoverable. Under these circumstances, the Company estimates future cash flows using the recoverability method

I. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

(undiscounted and including related interest charges), as a basis for recording any impairment loss. An impairment loss is then recorded to adjust the carrying value of goodwill to the recoverable amount. The impairment loss taken is no greater than the amount by which the carrying value of the net assets of the business exceeds its fair value.

Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company enters into interest rate swap agreements and foreign exchange rate contracts as part of the management of its interest rate and foreign currency exchange rate exposures. The Company has no derivative financial instruments held for trading purposes and none of the instruments is leveraged. All financial instruments are put into place to hedge specific exposures. To qualify as a hedge, the item to be hedged must expose the Company to price, interest rate or foreign currency exchange rate risk and the hedging instrument must reduce that exposure. Any contracts held or issued that do not meet the requirements of a hedge are recorded at fair value in the Consolidated Balance Sheets and any changes in that fair value recognized in operations.

Interest rate swap agreements—Interest rate differentials to be paid or received as a result of interest rate swap agreements are accrued and recognized as an adjustment of interest expense related to the designated debt. Amounts receivable or payable under the agreements are included in receivables or other current liabilities in the Consolidated Balance Sheets. The fair value of the swap agreements and changes in the fair value as a result of changes in market interest rates are not recognized in the financial statements. Related premiums are amortized to interest expense ratably during the life of the swap agreement.

Gains and losses on termination of interest rate swap agreements are deferred and amortized as an adjustment to interest expense over the original period of interest exposure, provided the designated liability continues to exist. Realized and unrealized changes in the fair value of interest rate swaps designated with liabilities that no longer exist are recorded as a component of the gain or loss arising from the disposition of the designated liability.

Foreign currency options and forward contracts—Foreign currency contracts designated and effective as hedges are marked to market with realized and unrealized gains and losses deferred and recognized in operations when the designated transaction occurs. Foreign currency contracts not designated as hedges, failing to be hedges or failing to continue as effective hedges are included in operations as foreign exchange gains or losses.

Discounts or premiums on forward contracts designated and effective as hedges are accreted or amortized to expense using the straight-line method over the term of the related contract. Discounts or premiums on forward contracts not designated or effective as hedges are included in the mark to market adjustment and recognized in income as foreign exchange gains or losses. Initial premiums paid for purchased option contracts are amortized over the related option period.

Capitalized Interest

Interest costs for the construction of certain long-term assets are capitalized and amortized over the related assets' estimated useful lives. Total interest costs during 1998, 1997 and 1996 amounted to $131.9 million, $12.3 million and $14.0 million, respectively, of which $0.8 million, $0.9 million and $0.4 million, respectively, was capitalized as a cost of the related long-term assets.

I. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

Deferred Financing Costs

Costs incurred in connection with obtaining financing are deferred and amortized as a charge to interest expense over the terms of the related borrowings using the interest method.

Amortization Periods

Trademarks, tradenames and goodwill are being amortized on a straight-line basis over 20 to 40 years.

Revenue Recognition

The Company recognizes sales and related cost of goods sold from product sales at the latter of the time of shipment or when title passes to the customers. In some situations, the Company has shipped product with the right of return where the Company is unable to reasonably estimate the level of returns and/or the sale is contingent upon the resale of the product. In these situations, the Company does not recognize revenue upon product shipment, but rather when the buyer of the product informs the Company that the product has been sold. Net sales is comprised of gross sales less provisions for estimated customer returns, discounts, promotional allowances, cooperative advertising allowances and costs incurred by the Company to ship product to customers. Reserves for estimated returns are established by the Company concurrently with the recognition of revenue. Reserves are established based on a variety of factors, including historical return rates, estimates of customer inventory levels, the market for the product and projected economic conditions. The Company monitors these reserves and makes adjustments to them when management believes that actual returns or costs to be incurred differ from amounts recorded.

Warranty Costs

The Company provides for warranty costs in amounts it estimates will be needed to cover future warranty obligations for products sold during the year. Estimates of warranty costs are periodically reviewed and adjusted, when necessary, to consider actual experience.

Product Liability

The Company provides for product liability costs it estimates will be needed to cover future product liability costs for product sold during the year. Estimates of product liability costs are periodically reviewed and adjusted, when necessary, to consider actual experience, and other relevant factors.

Legal Costs

The Company records charges for the costs it anticipates incurring in connection with litigation and claims against the Company when management can reasonably estimate these costs.

Income Taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes under the liability method in accordance with SFAS No. 109, Accounting for Income Taxes. The provision for income taxes includes deferred income taxes resulting from items reported in different periods for income tax and financial statement purposes. Deferred tax assets and liabilities represent the expected future tax consequences of the differences between the financial statement carrying amounts of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases. The effects of changes in tax rates on deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized in the period that includes the enactment date.

Advertising Costs

Media advertising costs included in Selling, General and Administrative Expense ("SG&A") are expensed as incurred. Allowances provided to customers for cooperative advertising are charged to operations, as earned, based on revenues and are included as a deduction from gross sales in determining net sales. The amounts charged to operations for media and cooperative advertising during 1998, 1997 and 1996 were $124.5 million, $55.7 million and $78.7 million, respectively.

Research and Development

Research and development expenditures are expensed in the period incurred. The amounts charged against operations during 1998, 1997 and 1996 were $18.7 million, $5.7 million and $6.5 million, respectively.

Foreign Currency Translation

The assets and liabilities of subsidiaries, other than those operating in highly inflationary economies, are translated into U.S. dollars with resulting translation gains and losses accumulated in a separate component of shareholders' equity. Income and expense items are converted into U.S. dollars at average rates of exchange prevailing during the year.

For subsidiaries operating in highly inflationary economies (Venezuela and Mexico), inventories and property, plant and equipment are translated at the rate of exchange on the date the assets were acquired, while other assets and liabilities are translated at year-end exchange rates. Translation adjustments for those operations are included in Other (Income) Expense, Net in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations. Effective January 1, 1999, Mexico will no longer be considered highly inflationary.

Stock-Based Compensation Plans

SFAS No. 123, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation allows either adoption of a fair value method for accounting for stock-based compensation plans or continuation of accounting under APB Opinion No. 25, Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees, and related interpretations with supplemental disclosures.

The Company has chosen to account for its stock options using the intrinsic value based method prescribed in APB Opinion No. 25 and, accordingly, does not recognize compensation expense for stock option grants made at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant. Pro forma net income and earnings per share amounts as if the fair value method had been adopted are presented in Note 9. SFAS No. 123 does not impact the Company's results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

Basic and Diluted (Loss) Earnings Per Share of Common Stock

Basic (loss) earnings per common share calculations are determined by dividing (loss) earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock outstanding. Diluted (loss) earnings per share are determined by dividing (loss) earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive common stock equivalents outstanding (all related to outstanding stock options, restricted stock, warrants and the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures).

For the years ended December 31, 1998 and December 29, 1996, respectively, 1,902,177 and 1,552,684 shares related to stock options, were not included in diluted average common shares outstanding because their effect would be antidilutive. Diluted average common shares outstanding as of December 29, 1996 also excluded (78,654) shares related to restricted stock. Diluted average common shares outstanding as of December 31, 1998 also excluded 13,242,050 shares related to the conversion feature of the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures (see Note 3) and 23,000,000 shares issuable on the exercise of warrants, due to antidilution. For the year ended December 28, 1997, the dilutive effect of 2,718,649 equivalent shares related to stock options and (120,923) equivalent shares of restricted stock were used in determining the dilutive average shares outstanding.

New Accounting Standards

In March 1998, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants ("AICPA") issued Statement of Position 98-1, Accounting for the Costs of Computer Software Developed or Obtained for Internal Use ("SOP 98-1"). SOP 98-1 requires computer software costs associated with internal use software to be expensed as incurred until certain capitalization criteria are met. The Company will adopt SOP 98-1 on January 1, 1999. Adoption of this statement is not expected to have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows. Actual charges incurred due to systems projects may be material.

In April 1998, the AICPA issued Statement of Position 98-5, Reporting on the Cost of Start-Up Activities ("SOP 98-5"). SOP 98-5 requires all costs associated with pre-opening, pre-operating and organization activities to be expensed as incurred. The Company will adopt SOP 98-5 beginning January 1, 1999. Adoption of this statement is not expected to have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows.

In June 1998, the FASB issued SFAS No. 133, Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities, which is effective for fiscal years beginning after June 15, 1999. SFAS No. 133 requires the recognition of all derivatives in the Consolidated Balance Sheets as either assets or liabilities measured at fair value. The Company will adopt SFAS No. 133 for the 2000 fiscal year. The Company has not yet determined the impact SFAS No. 133 will have on its consolidated financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

Reclassification

Certain prior year amounts have been reclassified to conform with the 1998 presentation.

2. Acquisitions

On March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman from an affiliate of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("M&F"), in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of the Company's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash. In addition, the Company assumed approximately $1,016 million in debt. The value of the common stock issued at the date of acquisition was derived by using the average closing stock price as reported on the New York Stock Exchange Composite Tape for the day before and day of the public announcement of the acquisition. Immediately thereafter, as a result of the exercise of employee stock options, Sunbeam's indirect beneficial ownership of Coleman decreased to approximately 79% of the total number of the outstanding shares of Coleman common stock.

On August 12, 1998, the Company announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a Special Committee of the Board consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with M&F, the Company had entered into a settlement agreement with an affiliate of M&F pursuant to which the Company was released from certain threatened claims of M&F and its affiliates arising from the Coleman acquisition and M&F agreed to provide certain management personnel and assistance to the Company in exchange for the issuance to the M&F affiliate of a five year warrant to purchase up to 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at a cash exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to antidilution adjustments. The Company concluded that the agreement to issue this warrant did not result in a new measurement date for the purposes of determining the purchase price for Coleman and has accounted for the issuance of this warrant as a cost of settling a potential claim. Accordingly, a $70.0 million non-cash SG&A expense was recorded in the third quarter of 1998, based on a valuation performed as of August 1998 using facts existing at that time. The valuation was conducted by an independent consultant engaged by the Special Committee of the board of directors.

2. Acquisitions—(Continued)

The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive 0.5677 shares of the Company's common stock and $6.44 in cash for each share of Coleman common stock outstanding. In addition, unexercised options under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of such options. The Company expects to issue approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and expend approximately $87 million in cash to complete the Coleman acquisition. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the second half of 1999. The acquisition of the remaining outstanding shares of Coleman common stock will be accounted for under the purchase method of accounting on the date of consummation of the Coleman merger. (Also see Note 15 for information regarding the proposed issuance of warrants related to this transaction.)

On April 6, 1998, the Company completed the acquisitions of First Alert, valued at approximately $182 million (including $133 million of cash and $49 million of assumed debt) and Signature Brands valued at $255 million, (reflecting cash paid, including the required retirement or defeasance of debt).

All of these acquisitions were accounted for by the purchase method of accounting. Accordingly, the results of operations of the acquired entities are included in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations from their respective dates of acquisition.

In each acquisition, the purchase price paid has been allocated to the fair value (determined by independent appraisals) of tangible and identified intangible assets acquired and liabilities assumed as follows (in millions):

	Coleman	Signature Brands	First Alert	Total
Value of common stock issued	$ 607	$ —	$ —	$ 607
Cash paid including expenses and mandatory redemption of debt, net of cash acquired	160	255	133	548
Cash received from sale of Coleman Spas, Inc	(17)	—	—	(17)
Cash received from stock option proceeds	(9)	—	—	(9)
Net cash paid and equity issued	741	255	133	1,129
Fair value of total liabilities assumed, including debt	1,455	83	103	1,641
	2,196	338	236	2,770
Fair value of assets acquired	1,113	191	172	1,476
Excess of purchase price over fair value of net assets acquired	$1,083	$147	$64	$1,294

The excess of purchase price over the fair value of net assets acquired has been classified as goodwill. Goodwill related to the Coleman and Signature Brands acquisitions is being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years. During the fourth quarter of 1998, as a result of the significant loss incurred by First Alert, as well as its future prospects, the Company determined that the goodwill relating to this acquisition was impaired and, based on the determination of fair value, has written-off the net carrying value of goodwill approximating $62.5 million. This one-time charge is reflected in SG&A expense in the Consolidated Statements of Operations.

As of the date of the acquisition of Coleman, management of the Company determined approximately 117 employees of Coleman would need to be involuntarily terminated in order to eliminate duplicate activities and functions and fully integrate Coleman into Sunbeam's operations. The Company recognized a liability of approximately $8 million representing severance and benefit costs related to 117 employees pursuant to the termination plan. This liability was included in the allocation of purchase price. As of December 31, 1998, the

2. Acquisitions—(Continued)

Company had paid severance benefits of approximately $5 million and 8 employees remained to be terminated. Remaining termination costs are expected to be paid by December 31, 2000 and no additional charges are anticipated in future periods related to this issue.

The following unaudited pro forma financial information for the Company gives effect to the Coleman and Signature Brands acquisitions as if they had occurred at the beginning of the periods presented. No pro forma adjustments have been made for the First Alert acquisition as its effects are not significant. These pro forma results have been prepared for informational purposes only and do not purport to be indicative of the results of operations which actually would have occurred had the acquisitions been consummated on the dates indicated, or which may result in the future. The unaudited pro forma results follow (in millions, except per share data):

	Fiscal Years Ended
	December 31, 1998	December 28, 1997
Net sales	$2,098.7	$2,408.9
Net loss from continuing operations before extraordinary charge	(801.1)	(23.6)
Basic and diluted loss per share from continuing operations before extraordinary charge	(7.96)	(0.24)

3. Debt

Debt at the end of each fiscal year consists of the following (in thousands):

	1998	1997
Term loans, due in installments through 2006, average interest rate of 8.47% for 1998	$1,262,500	$ —
Revolving credit facility, average interest rate of 8.55% for 1998 and 5.99% for 1997	94,000	110,000
Zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures, net of unamortized discount of $1,234,845, due 2018	779,155	—

Other lines of credit, including foreign facilities	45,803	—
Other long-term borrowings, due through 2012, weighted average interest rate of 3.89% and 3.92%, at December 31, 1998 and December 28, 1997, respectively	10,007	10,248
	2,261,465	195,248
Less short-term debt and current portion of long-term debt	119,103	668
Long-term debt	$2,142,362	$194,580

Concurrent with the acquisitions, the Company replaced its $250 million syndicated unsecured five-year revolving credit facility with a revolving and term credit facility (the "New Credit Facility"). The New Credit Facility provided for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion and in addition to other customary covenants, required Sunbeam to maintain specified consolidated leverage, interest coverage and fixed charge coverage ratios as of the end of each fiscal quarter occurring after March 31, 1998 and on or prior to the latest stated maturity date for any of the borrowings under the New Credit Facility.

3. Debt—(Continued)

As a result of, among other things, its operating losses incurred during the first half of 1998, Sunbeam did not achieve the specified financial ratios for June 30, 1998 and it appeared unlikely that Sunbeam would achieve the specified financial ratios for September 30, 1998. Consequently, Sunbeam and its lenders entered into an agreement dated as of June 30, 1998 that waived through December 31, 1998 all defaults arising from the failure of Sunbeam to satisfy the specified financial ratios for June 30, 1998 and September 30, 1998. Pursuant to an agreement with Sunbeam dated as of October 19, 1998, Sunbeam's lenders extended all of the waivers under the June 30, 1998 agreement through April 10, 1999 and also waived through such date all defaults arising from any failure by Sunbeam to satisfy the specified financial ratios for December 31, 1998. As part of the October 19, 1998 agreement, Sunbeam agreed to a minimum monthly earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA") covenant for each of February, March and April of 1999, which covenant Sunbeam was able to satisfy.

On April 10, 1999, among other things, the lenders extended all of the waivers set forth in the October 19, 1998 agreement through April 15, 1999. On April 15, 1999, Sunbeam and its lenders entered into a comprehensive amendment to the New Credit Facility that, among other things, extended all of the waivers under the April 10, 1999 agreement until April 10, 2000 and waived until such date all defaults arising from any failure by Sunbeam to satisfy the specified financial ratios for any fiscal quarter end occurring during 1999 and for March 31, 2000. As part of the April 15, 1999 amendment, Sunbeam agreed to a minimum cumulative EBITDA covenant that is based on post-December 31, 1998 consolidated EBITDA and is tested at the end of each month occurring on or prior to March 31, 2000, as well as a covenant limiting the amount of revolving loans (other than those used to fund the Coleman merger) that may be outstanding under the New Credit Facility as of the end of each such month. The minimum cumulative EBITDA was initially $6.3 million for the period January 1, 1999 through April 30, 1999 and generally grows on a monthly basis until it reaches $121 million for the period from January 1, 1999 through March 31, 2000. The following description of the New Credit Facility reflects the terms of the New Credit Facility as amended.

The New Credit Facility provides for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion pursuant to: (i) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million maturing March 30, 2005 ($52.5 million of which may only be used to complete the Coleman merger); (ii) up to $800 million in term loans maturing on March 30, 2005 (of which $35.0 million may only be used to complete the Coleman merger) and (iii) a $500 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006 (of which $5.0 million has already been repaid through March 31, 1999). As of December 31, 1998, $1.4 billion was outstanding and $0.3 billion was available for borrowing under the New Credit Facility.

Pursuant to the New Credit Facility, interest accrues, at the Company's option: (i) at the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR"), or (ii) at the base rate of the administrative agent which is generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%, in each case plus an interest margin which is currently 3.75% for LIBOR borrowings and 2.50% for base rate borrowings. The applicable interest margin is subject to upward or downward adjustment upon the occurrence of certain events. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility are secured by a pledge of the stock of the Company's material subsidiaries, including Coleman, and by a security interest in substantially all of the assets of Sunbeam and its material domestic subsidiaries, other than Coleman and its material subsidiaries except as described below. Currently, Coleman's inventory and related assets are pledged to secure its obligations for letters of credit issued for its account under the New Credit Facility. Additionally, as security for Coleman's note payable to the Company, Coleman pledged substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property, including 66% of the stock of its direct foreign subsidiaries and domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries, and all of the stock of its other direct domestic subsidiaries (but not the assets of Coleman's subsidiaries). The pledge runs in favor of Sunbeam's lending banks, to which the Coleman note has been pledged as security for Sunbeam's obligations to them. Upon completion of the Coleman merger, substantially all of Coleman's assets and the assets of Coleman's domestic subsidiaries will be pledged to secure the obligations under the New Credit Facility. In addition, borrowings under the New Credit Facility are guaranteed by a number of the Company's wholly owned material domestic subsidiaries and these subsidiary guarantees are secured as described above. Upon completion of the Coleman merger, Coleman and each of its United States subsidiaries will become guarantors of the obligations under the New Credit Facility. To the extent extensions of credit are made to any subsidiaries of the Company, the obligations of such subsidiaries are guaranteed by the Company.

In addition to the above described ratios and tests, the New Credit Facility contains covenants customary for credit facilities of a similar nature, including limitations on the ability of Sunbeam and its subsidiaries, including Coleman, to, among other things, (i) declare dividends or repurchase stock, (ii) prepay, redeem or repurchase debt, incur liens and engage in sale-leaseback transactions, (iii) make loans and investments, (iv) incur additional debt, including revolving loans under the New Credit Facility, (v) amend or otherwise alter material agreements or enter into restrictive agreements, (vi) make capital and year 2000 compliance expenditures, (vii) engage in mergers, acquisitions and asset sales, (viii) engage in certain transactions with affiliates, (ix) settle certain litigation, (x) alter its cash management system and (xi) alter the businesses they conduct. Sunbeam is also required to comply with specified financial covenants and ratios. The New Credit Facility provides for events of default customary for transactions of this type, including nonpayment, misrepresentation, breach of covenant, cross-defaults, bankruptcy, material adverse change arising from compliance with ERISA, material adverse judgments, entering into guarantees and change of ownership and control. It is also an event of default under the New Credit Facility if Sunbeam's registration statement in connection with the Coleman merger is not declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") on or before October 30, 1999 or if the merger does not occur within 25 business days of the effectiveness of the registration statement or if the cash consideration (including any payments on account of the exercise of any appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses) to consummate the Coleman merger exceeds $87.5 million. Although there can be no assurance, the Company anticipates that it will satisfy these conditions. Unless waived by the bank lenders, the failure of Sunbeam to satisfy any of the financial ratios and tests contained in the New Credit Facility or the occurrence of any other event of default under the New Credit Facility would entitle the bank lenders to (a) receive a 2.00% increase in the interest rate applicable to outstanding loans and increase the trade letter of credit fees to 1.00% and (b) accelerate the maturity of the outstanding borrowings under the New Credit Facility and exercise all or any of their other rights and remedies. Any such acceleration or other exercise of rights and remedies would likely have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam. The New Credit Facility also includes provisions for the deferral of the 1999 scheduled term loan payments of $69.3 million, subject to delivery of certain collateral documents and the filing of an amendment to the Company's registration statement on Form S-4 relating to the Coleman merger. If these conditions are met, and there are no events of default, the scheduled loan payments will be extended until April 10, 2000. The Company anticipates that it will satisfy these conditions and, accordingly, has classified these amounts as long-term in the Consolidated Balance Sheet.

In March 1998, the Company completed an offering of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures") at a yield to maturity of 5.0% (approximately $2,014 million principal amount at maturity) which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds. The Debentures are exchangeable for shares of the Company's common stock at an initial conversion rate of 6.575 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the Debentures, subject to adjustment upon occurrence of certain events. The Debentures are subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future senior indebtedness of the Company. The Debentures are not redeemable by the Company prior to March 25, 2003. On or after such date, the Debentures are redeemable for cash with at least 30 days notice, at the option of the Company. The Company is required to purchase Debentures at the option of the holder as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013, at purchase prices equal to the issue price plus accrued original discount to such dates. The Company may, at its option, elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or common stock, or any combination thereof. The Company was required to file a registration statement with the SEC to register the Debentures by June 23, 1998. This registration statement was filed February 4, 1999 and the SEC has not declared the registration statement effective. Sunbeam's failure to file the registration statement by June 23, 1998 did not constitute a default under the terms of the Debentures. As part of the normal review process by the SEC, a number of comments have been made by the staff of the division of Corporation Finance relating to the registration statement and the restated 1996 and 1997 financial statements included therein. The Company expects to resolve these comments when it files an amendment to the registration statement. From June 23, 1998 until the registration statement is declared effective, the Company is required to pay to the Debenture holders cash liquidated damages accruing, for each day during such period, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days and 0.50% thereafter multiplied by the total of the issue price of the Debentures plus the original issue discount thereon on such day. The Company made its first payment of approximately $0.5 million to the Debenture holders on September 25, 1998. As of December 31, 1998 the Company had accrued additional payments totaling $1.0 million. The Company made a payment to Debenture holders in March 1999 of approximately $2.0 million. This amount included liquidated damages that accrued during the first quarter of 1999.

In connection with the acquisition of Signature Brands, the Company was required to defease $70.0 million of acquired debt. Cash was placed with a trustee to provide for the defeasance, including the related prepayment penalty. This cash was used to purchase Treasury Notes. Accordingly, $74.4 million of restricted investments held by the trustee for the August 1999 liquidation of this acquired debt are reflected as an asset and $70.0 million is reflected as short-term debt in the Consolidated Balance Sheet at December 31, 1998. The prepayment penalty is reflected as part of the acquisition price of Signature Brands.

In March 1998, the Company prepaid the $75.0 million 7.85% industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility originally due in 2009. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge of $7.5 million. As a result of repayment of certain indebtedness assumed in the Coleman acquisition, the Company also recognized an extraordinary charge of $114.9 million. The debt assumed in connection with the Coleman acquisition was repaid as a result of the requirements under the terms of the New Credit Facility Credit Agreement. These extraordinary charges consisted of redemption premiums ($106.9 million), unamortized debt discount ($13.8 million) and unamortized deferred financing costs ($1.7 million).

During 1997, the Company repaid $12.2 million of long-term borrowings related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold.

At December 31, 1998, the aggregate annual maturities on short-term and long-term debt in each of the years 1999-2003, and thereafter, were $119 million, $1,355 million, $1 million, $1 million, $1 million, and $5 million, respectively. In addition, the fully accreted Debenture amount of $2,014 million matures in 2018. The total of annual debt maturities for all years presented does not agree to the balance of debt outstanding at December 31, 1998 as a result of the accretion of discount on the Debentures. The outstanding balances relating to the New Credit Facility are included in the maturity schedule in 2000, consistent with the expiration of the covenant waiver. Sunbeam has made no decision with respect to the repayment or refinancing of indebtedness incurred or to be incurred under the New Credit Facility and may repay such indebtedness out of its internally generated funds or from proceeds of a subsequent financing. Any decisions with respect to such repayment or refinancing will be made based on a review from time to time of the advisability of particular transactions, as well as on prevailing interest rates and financial and economic conditions.

4. Financial Instruments

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The fair value of the Company's financial instruments as of December 31, 1998 and December 28, 1997 was estimated based upon the following methods and assumptions:

Cash and Cash Equivalents—The carrying amount of cash and cash equivalents is assumed to approximate fair value as cash equivalents include all highly liquid, short-term investments with original maturities of three months or less.

Short and Long Term Debt—The fair value of the Company's fixed rate debt is estimated using either reported transaction values or discounted cash flow analysis. The fair value of the Company's fixed rate debt was $319 million as of December 31, 1998 as compared to the carrying value of $859 million. The carrying value of the Company's variable rate debt is assumed to approximate market based upon periodic adjustments of the interest rate to the current market rate in accordance with the terms of the debt agreements. The carrying value of the Company's various debt outstanding as of December 28, 1997 approximated market.

Letters of Credit and Surety Bonds—The Company utilizes stand-by letters of credit to back certain financing instruments and insurance policies and commercial letters of credit guaranteeing various international trade activities. In addition, the Company also entered into surety bonds largely as a result of litigation judgements that are currently under appeal. The contract amounts of the letters of credit and surety bonds approximate their fair values. The contract value of letters of credit were $82.3 million and $29.0 million as of December 31, 1998 and December 28, 1997, respectively. Contract values for surety bonds as of December 31, 1998 were approximately $26.5 million and were not significant at December 28, 1997.

Derivative Financial Instruments—The Company utilizes interest rate swap agreements to reduce the impact on interest expense of fluctuating interest rates on its floating rate debt. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's operations in 1998, 1997 and 1996. At December 31, 1998, the Company held three floating to fixed interest rate swap agreements, one with a notional value of $25 million and two with notional amounts of $150 million each. The swap agreements are contracts to exchange floating rate for fixed interest payments periodically over the lives of the agreements without the exchange of the underlying notional principal amounts. The swaps expire in January 2003, June 2001 and June 2003, respectively. Under these agreements, the Company received an average floating rate of 5.64%, 5.59% and 5.59%, respectively, and paid an average fixed rate of 6.12%, 5.75% and 5.58%, respectively, during 1998. The fair value of the interest rate swaps at December 31, 1998 is estimated to be $7.3 million. This estimate is based upon quotes received from the Company's lending institutions and represents the cash requirement if the existing agreements had been terminated at the end of the year. Interest rate swaps are off-balance-sheet instruments and therefore have no carrying value. The Company had no swap agreements outstanding at December 28, 1997.

In order to mitigate the transaction exposures that may arise from changes in foreign exchange rates, the Company purchases foreign currency option and forward contracts to hedge specific transactions, principally the purchases of inventories. The option contracts typically expire within one year. The options are accounted for as hedges pursuant to SFAS No. 52, Foreign Currency Translation, accordingly gains and losses thereon are deferred and recorded in operations in the period in which the underlying transaction is recorded. At December 31, 1998, the Company held purchased option contracts with a notional value of $32.3 million and a fair value of $0.3 million and forward contracts with a notional value of $30.9 million and a fair value of $30.5 million. The Company did not hold any such contracts at December 28, 1997.

4. Financial Instruments—(Continued)

The table below summarizes by currency, the contractual amounts, carrying amounts and related unrealized gain (loss) of the Company's forward exchange and option contracts at December 31, 1998 (in millions):

December 31, 1998	Forward Contracts	Purchased Option Contracts	Total Contracts	Carrying Amount Asset (Liability)	Recognized Unrealized Gain (Loss)	Deferred Unrealized Gain (Loss)
Currency:
Deutschemark	$12.0	$18.4	$30.4	$ 0.3	$ 0.2	$—
Yen	$14.9	$12.4	$27.3	$(0.3)	$(0.7)	$—
Pound sterling	$ 4.0	$ 1.5	$ 5.5	$ 0.1	$ 0.1	$—
Total	$30.9	$32.3	$63.2	$ 0.1	$(0.4)	$—

The fair values of the Company's foreign currency contracts were based on quoted market prices of comparable contracts, adjusted through interpolation where necessary for maturity differences.

Exposure to market risk on interest rate and foreign currency financial instruments results from fluctuations in interest and currency rates, respectively, during the periods in which the contracts are outstanding. The counterparties to the Company's interest rate swap agreements and currency exchange contracts consist of a diversified group of major financial institutions, each of which is rated investment grade A or better. The Company is exposed to credit risk to the extent of potential nonperformance by counterparties on financial instruments. The Company believes the risk of incurred losses due to credit risk is remote.

5. Accounts Receivable Securitization

In December 1997, the Company entered into a receivable securitization program, that expires March 2000, to sell without recourse, through a wholly owned subsidiary, certain trade accounts receivable, up to a maximum of $70.0 million. During 1998, the Company has received approximately $200.0 million under this arrangement. At December 31, 1998, the Company had reduced accounts receivable by $20.0 million for receivables sold under this program. At December 28, 1997, the Company had received $58.9 million under this arrangement, of which $39.1 million related to sales recorded in fiscal 1997 and the balance related to sales to be recognized in the first quarter of 1998. During 1997, the Company sold $19.8 million of receivables related to bill and hold and consignment sales that had been initially recognized in its Consolidated Financial Statements and were subsequently reversed in the restatement process. The conditions for recognizing these sales were met in the first quarter of 1998. Accordingly, at December 28, 1997, the accompanying Consolidated Balance Sheet reflects a reduction in accounts receivable of $39.1 million and an increase in other current liabilities of $19.8 million. Proceeds from the sales of receivables were used to reduce borrowings under the Company's revolving credit facility or to provide cash flow for working capital purposes, thereby reducing the need to borrow under the credit facility. Costs of the program, which primarily consist of the purchaser's financing cost of issuing commercial paper backed by the receivables, totaled $2.3 million and $0.2 million during 1998 and 1997, respectively, and have been classified as interest expense in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations. The Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables. This agreement contains cross-default provisions that provide the purchaser of the receivables an option to cease purchasing receivables from the Company if the Company is in default under the New Credit Facility.

The Company establishes valuation allowances in accordance with the provisions of SFAS No. 109. The Company continually reviews the adequacy of the valuation allowances and recognizes tax benefits when it is more likely than not that the benefits will be realized. In the fourth quarter of 1997, the Company increased the valuation allowance by $23.2 million, reflecting management's assessment that it was more likely than not that the deferred tax assets would not be realized through future taxable income. Of this amount, approximately $18.9 million related to deferred tax assets, the majority of which was recognized as a benefit in the first three quarters of 1997. The remainder related to minimum pension liabilities and was therefore recorded as an adjustment in shareholders' equity. This assessment was made as a result of the significant leverage undertaken by the Company as part of the acquisitions (see Note 2) and the significant decline in net sales and earnings from anticipated levels during the fourth quarter of 1997 and the first quarter of 1998.

Throughout 1998, the Company increased the valuation allowance to $290.5 million, which increase reflects management's assessment that it is more likely than not that the deferred tax asset will not be realized through future taxable income. As described above, this assessment was made as a result of the significant leverage undertaken by the Company and the continuing decline in Sunbeam's net sales and earnings, as well as the operating losses incurred throughout the 1998 year. At December 31, 1998, the Company had net operating loss carryforwards ("NOL's") of approximately $725 million for domestic income tax purposes and $169 million for foreign income tax purposes. The domestic NOL's begin expiring in 2018. Of the foreign tax NOL's, $3 million, $4 million, $19 million, $18 million and $16 million expire in the years ending December 31, 1999 through 2003, respectively, and $91 million of such NOL's have an unlimited life.

The Company has not provided U.S. income taxes on undistributed foreign earnings of approximately $32 million at December 31, 1998, as the Company intends to permanently reinvest these earnings in the future growth of the business. Determination of the amount of unrecognized deferred U.S. income tax liability is not practicable because of the complexities associated with its hypothetical calculation.

7. Employee Benefit Plans

Pension and Other Postretirement Benefit Plans

The Company sponsors several defined benefit pension plans covering eligible U.S. salaried and hourly employees. Benefit accruals under such plans covering all U.S. salaried employees were frozen, effective December 31, 1990. Accordingly, no credit in the pension formula is given for service or compensation after that date. However, these employees continue to earn service toward vesting in their interest in the frozen plans as of December 31, 1990. The Company also provides health care and life insurance benefits to certain former employees who retired from the Company prior to March 31, 1991. The Company has consistently followed a policy of funding the cost of postretirement health care and life insurance benefits on a pay-as-you-go basis.

As a result of the Company's acquisitions of Coleman and First Alert (see Note 2), the liabilities for their respective defined benefit pension plans (the "Plans") were assumed and have been accounted for in accordance with Accounting Principles Board Opinion No. 16 ("APB 16"), Accounting for Business Combinations. Effective January 1, 1999, the Coleman and First Alert salaried pension plans were amended to change the pension benefit formula to a cash balance formula from the existing benefit calculation. The benefits accrued under these plans as of December 31, 1998 were frozen and converted to the new cash balance plan using a 7.0% interest rate assumption. The effect of the amendment of the Plans is reflected in the projected benefit obligation as of the date of acquisition as required by APB 16. Under the cash balance plan, the Company will credit certain participants' accounts annually. At the date of acquisition the pension benefit obligation and the fair value of the plan assets attributable to these Plans were $43.4 million and $27.7 million, respectively, and are reflected in the table below.

In addition, Coleman provided certain unfunded postretirement health and life insurance benefits for certain retired employees. At the date of acquisition the postretirement benefit obligation associated with this plan was $19.5 million as reflected in the table below, and has been accounted for in accordance with APB 16.

The Company funds all pension plans in amounts consistent with applicable laws and regulations. Pension plan assets include corporate and U.S. government bonds, corporate stocks, mutual funds, fixed income securities, and cash equivalents.

Employees of non-U.S. subsidiaries generally receive retirement benefits from Company sponsored plans or from statutory plans administered by governmental agencies in their countries. The assets, liabilities and pension costs of the Company's non-U.S. defined benefit retirement plans are not material to the consolidated financial statements.

On January 1, 1998, the Company adopted SFAS No. 132, Employers' Disclosures About Pensions and Other Postretirement Benefits ("SFAS No. 132"). This statement revises employers' disclosures about pension and other postretirement benefit plans. SFAS No. 132 does not change the method of accounting for such plans.

The expected increase in future compensation levels was 4.00% for Coleman for 1998.

The assumed health care cost trend rates used in measuring the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation were 7.0% to 8.0% for the plans for 1999 and were assumed to decrease gradually to 5.0% by 2003 and remain at that level thereafter.

The projected benefit obligation, accumulated benefit obligation and fair value of plan assets for the plans with accumulated benefit obligations in excess of plan assets were $186.4 million, $161.6 million and $125.5 million at December 31, 1998 and $127.2 million, $127.2 million and $116.5 million at December 28, 1997, respectively.

Defined Contribution Plans

As a result of the Company's acquisitions of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands, the Company amended its Savings & Investment and Profit Sharing Plan ("Savings Plan") to assume the assets of the respective savings plans at each of the acquired companies and establish parity with the benefits provided by Sunbeam. Effective January 1, 1999, all eligible employees could participate in the Savings Plan. Company contributions to these plans include employer matching contributions as well as discretionary contributions depending on the performance of the Company, in an amount up to 10% of eligible compensation. The Company provided $1.9 million in 1998, $1.8 million in 1997 and $1.7 million in 1996 for its defined contribution plans.

8. Shareholders' Equity

Common Stock

At December 31, 1998, the Company had 500,000,000 shares of $0.01 par value common stock authorized and there were 14,094,158 shares of common stock reserved for issuance upon the exercise of outstanding stock options.

Compensatory Stock Grants

In July 1996, the Company granted 1,100,000 shares of restricted stock in connection with the employment of a then new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. Compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock awards was amortized to expense beginning in 1996 over the periods in which the restrictions lapse (which in the case of 333,333 shares, was immediately upon the date of grant, in the case of 666,667 shares, was to be amortized equally over two years from the date of grant and in the case of the remaining 100,000 shares, was equally over three years from the date of grant). These restricted stock awards resulted in a $7.7 million charge to SG&A expense in 1996.

On February 20, 1998, the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other then senior officers of the Company. These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999.

The new employment agreement for the Company's then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer provided for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,334 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement, as further described in Note 9. In addition, the new employment agreement with the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment agreements with the two other then senior officers provided for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that were to vest in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreements, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreements. In addition, the new employment agreements provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related income tax gross-ups was recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups was amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 with amortization to continue over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total compensation expense recognized in 1998 related to these items was approximately $31 million.

On June 15, 1998, the Company's board of directors announced the removal of the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and subsequently announced the removal or resignation of other senior officers, including the Company's then Chief Financial Officer. In connection with the removal or resignation of the senior officers and the termination of their restricted stock grants, the unamortized portion of the deferred compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock grants was reversed. The Company and certain of its former officers are in disagreement as to the Company's obligations to these individuals under prior employment agreements and arising from their terminations. The accumulated other comprehensive loss associated with the minimum pension liability is net of deferred income taxes of approximately $5.0 million in 1998, 1997 and 1996.

9. Employee Stock Options and Awards

The Company has one stock-based compensation plan, the Amended and Restated Sunbeam Corporation Stock Option Plan (the "Plan"). Under the Plan, all employees are eligible for grants of options to purchase up to an aggregate of 16,300,000 shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock on the date of grant. The term of each option commences on the date of grant and expires on the tenth anniversary of the date of grant subject to earlier cancellation. Options generally become exercisable over a three to five year period.

The Plan also provides for the grant of restricted stock awards of up to 200,000 shares, in the aggregate, to employees and non-employee directors. The Plan provides that each non-employee director of the Company is automatically granted 1,500 shares of restricted common stock upon his or her initial election or appointment and upon each subsequent re-election to the Company's board of directors. In the event of an election or appointment to the Company's board of directors at any time other than at the annual meeting of stockholders, the director receives a prorated amount of restricted common shares. These restricted common shares vest immediately upon the non-employee director's acceptance of his or her election or appointment to the Company's board of directors. The Company granted 6,000, 6,000, and 7,818 shares of restricted stock to non-employee directors in 1998, 1997 and 1996, respectively, and recognized compensation expense related to these grants of $0.2 million in each of 1998, 1997 and 1996. See Note 8 for a discussion of restricted stock awards made outside the Plan.

In July 1996, options to purchase an aggregate of 3,000,000 shares (of which 2,750,000 options were outstanding at December 28, 1997) were granted outside of the Plan at exercise prices equal to the fair market value of the Company's common stock on the dates of grant in connection with the employment of a then new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. These outstanding options have terms of ten years and, with respect to options for 2,500,000 shares, were exercisable in three annual installments beginning July 17, 1996. Options for the remaining 250,000 shares still outstanding were exercisable in three annual installments beginning on the first anniversary of the July 22, 1996 grant date. On February 20, 1998 the vesting provisions of the options granted outside the Plan were accelerated. Additional stock option grants outside the Plan were made in February 1998, with a portion thereof subsequently terminated in connection with the removal of the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. The then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and another senior officer are disputing termination of their stock option grants. (See Notes 8 and 15.)

In the third and fourth quarters of 1998, options to purchase an aggregate of 4,200,000 shares were granted outside of the Plan in connection with the employment of the new Chief Executive Officer and certain members of the new senior management team. The options were granted to certain senior executives at exercise prices equal to or greater than the fair market value of the Company's common stock on the dates of the grant. The senior officers were granted options to purchase 3,200,000 shares of common stock at a price of $7.00 per share; 500,000 shares of common stock at a price of $10.50 per share and 500,000 shares at a price of $14.00 per share.

All of these outstanding options have terms of ten years and become fully exercisable at the end of two to three year periods if the executive remains employed by the Company as of such date. These grants are subject the shareholder approval at the 1999 Annual Meeting. A measurement date pursuant to APB Opinion No. 25 will be established for these grants upon shareholder approval. These options have been included in the following tables summarizing the Company's stock option activity for the year ended December 31, 1998.

In August 1998, the Company approved a plan to exchange outstanding common stock options held by the Company's employees. The exchange program, which has been completed, provided for outstanding options with exercise prices in excess of $10.00 per share to be exchanged for new options on a voluntary basis in an exchange ratio ranging from approximately two to three old options for one new option, (as determined by reference to a Black-Scholes option pricing model) with the exercise price of the new options set at $7.00 per share. These options were repriced at an exercise price approximating the market value of the Company's common stock at the date of the repricing and, consequently, there was no related compensation expense.

The Company applies APB Opinion No. 25 and related interpretations in accounting for its stock options. Accordingly, no compensation cost has been recognized for outstanding stock options. Had compensation cost for the Company's outstanding stock options been determined based on the fair value at the grant dates for those options consistent with SFAS No. 123, the Company's net (loss) earnings and basic and diluted (loss) earnings per share would have differed as reflected by the pro forma amounts indicated below (in thousands except per share amounts):

	1998	1997	1996
Net (loss) earnings:
As reported	$ (897,923)	$38,301	$(208,481)

Basic (loss) earnings per share:

Pro forma	(10.54)	0.17	(2.63)
Diluted (loss) earnings per share:
As reported	(9.25)	0.44	(2.51)
Pro forma	(10.54)	0.17	(2.63)

The Company's pro forma net loss for 1998 includes approximately $68 million of compensation cost relating to options issued to the former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer (3,750,000) and a former senior officer (1,125,000) in connection with their February 1998 employment agreements. These options are included in the outstanding and exercisable options issued outside the plan in the following table. The Company and these individuals are in dispute regarding the status of these options.

The fair value of each option grant is estimated on the date of grant using the Black-Scholes option-pricing model with the following weighted-average assumptions:

	1998	1997	1996

11. Asset Impairment and Other Charges

In the fourth quarter of 1998, the Company recorded a $62.5 million charge for the write-off of the carrying value of First Alert's goodwill (see Note 2).

In the second quarter of 1998, as a result of decisions to outsource or discontinue a substantial number of products previously made by the Company (principally breadmakers, toasters and certain other appliances, air and water filtration products and the elimination of certain stock keeping units ("SKU's") within existing product lines, primarily relating to appliances, grills and grill accessories), certain facilities and equipment will either no longer be used or will be utilized in a significantly different manner. Accordingly, a charge of $29.6 million was recorded in Cost of Goods Sold to write certain of these assets down to their estimated fair market value. Approximately 80% of this charge related to machinery, equipment and tooling at the Company's Mexico City and Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing plants, the estimated fair value for which was derived through an auction process. The remainder of this charge related to tooling and equipment at various other facilities, which either had a nominal value or the fair market value of which was derived through an auction process. These assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down and consequently were not depreciated further after the write-down. The net carrying value of these assets after the write-down approximated $2.2 million and these assets are expected to be disposed of by September 30, 1999. Depreciation

021326

expense associated with these assets approximated $2.6 million in 1998, $4.2 million in 1997 and $3.5 million in 1996.

Personnel at the Mexico City facility were notified in the second quarter of 1998 that the plant was scheduled for closure at year-end 1998, accordingly, at that time, a liability of $1.8 million was recorded in Cost of Goods Sold primarily for employee severance. The employee severance related to approximately 1,200 positions of which approximately 1,100 were terminated, and $1.4 million paid in severance, as of December 31, 1998. It is anticipated that the remaining 100 employees will be terminated and the balance of the severance obligation ($0.4 million) paid by July 31, 1999. In the third quarter of 1998, the Company recorded as Cost of Goods Sold, an additional provision for impairment of fixed assets of $3.1 million in an acquired entity, relating to assets taken out of service for which there was no remaining value. The asset impairment resulted from management's decision, during the third quarter, to discontinue certain SKU's within product lines (principally generators, compressors and propane cylinders) subsequent to the acquisition. These fixed assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down and consequently were not depreciated further after the write-down. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $0.8 million in 1998. In the fourth quarter of 1998, the Company recorded a $7.1 million charge as a result of management's decision, during the fourth quarter, to outsource the production of certain appliances (principally irons). This charge to Cost of Goods Sold primarily consists of a provision for certain tooling and equipment ($6.7 million) and severance and related benefits ($0.4 million). This tooling and equipment, which had no remaining value, was written off. These fixed assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down, and consequently depreciation was discontinued at the time of the write-down. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $2.4 million in 1998, $2.3 million in 1997 and $0.9 million in 1996. The severance costs related to approximately 45 production employees, none of whom were terminated, as of December 31, 1998. It is anticipated that these employees will be terminated and the severance obligation paid by September 30, 1999.

During 1997 and the first half of 1998, the Company built inventories in anticipation of 1998 sales volumes which did not materialize. As a result, it has been and will continue to be necessary to dispose of some portions of excess inventories at amounts less than cost. Accordingly, during 1998, when the facts and circumstances were known that such sales volume would not materialize, the Company recorded $58.2 million in charges (of which $46.4 million, $2.2 million and $9.6 million, were recorded during the second, third and fourth quarters, respectively) to properly state this inventory at the lower-of-cost-or-market. This inventory primarily related to certain appliances, grills and grill accessories. The Company also recorded a charge of $11.0 million during the second quarter for excess inventories for raw materials and work in process that will not be used due to outsourcing the production of breadmakers, toasters and certain other appliances. In addition, during 1998, the Company made the decision to exit certain product lines, primarily air and water filtration products and eliminate certain SKU's within existing product lines, primarily relating to appliances, grills and grill accessories. As a result of this decision, a $26.6 million charge was recorded during the second quarter to properly state this inventory at the lower-of-cost-or-market. Total charges for excess inventories recorded at the lower-of-cost-or-market, based on management's best estimate of net realizable value, amounted to approximately $95.8 million at December 31, 1998. (See Note 12 for asset impairment and other charges recorded in conjunction with a 1996 restructuring plan.)

12. Restructuring

In November 1996, the Company announced the details of a restructuring plan. The plan included the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the reduction of manufacturing and warehouse facilities, the centralization of the Company's procurement function, and reduction of the Company's product offerings and SKU's. The Company also announced plans to divest several lines of business (see Note 13).

As part of the restructuring plan, the Company consolidated six divisional and regional headquarter's functions into a single worldwide corporate headquarters and outsourced certain back office activities resulting in a reduction in total back-office/administrative headcount. Overall, the restructuring plan called for a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and the elimination of over 6,000 positions from the Company's workforce, including 3,300 from the disposition of certain business operations and the elimination of approximately 2,800 other positions, some of which were outsourced. The Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan by July 1997.

12. Restructuring—(Continued)

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax charge of $239.2 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is recorded as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations: $110.1 million in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges, as further described below; $60.8 million in Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs to net realizable value as a result of a reduction in SKU's and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $10.1 million in SG&A expense, for period costs which were charged to operations as incurred, principally relating to employee relocation and recruiting and equipment relocation and installation ($3.2 million), transitional fees relating to outsourcing arrangements ($4.9 million) and package redesign costs ($2.0 million), and $58.2 million ($39.1 million net of taxes) in Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations related to the divestiture of its furniture business. In 1997, upon completion of the sale of the furniture business, the Company recorded an additional pre-tax loss of $22.5 million from discontinued operations ($14.0 million net of taxes) due primarily to lower than anticipated sales proceeds relating to the post closing adjustment process that was part of the sale agreement.

Amounts included in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges in 1996 in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations included cash items such as severance and other employee costs of $24.7 million, lease obligations of $12.6 million and other exit costs associated with facility closures and related to the implementation of the restructuring plan of $4.1 million, principally representing costs related to clean-up and restoration of facilities owned and leased for either sale or return to the landlord.

Included in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges in 1996 was $68.7 million of non-cash charges (classified within the $110.1 million restructuring charge) principally consisting of: (a) asset write-downs to net realizable value for disposals of excess facilities and equipment and certain product lines ($22.5 million); (b) write-offs of redundant computer systems from the administrative back-office consolidations and outsourcing initiatives ($12.3 million); (c) write-off of intangibles relating to discontinued product lines ($10.1 million); (d) write-off of capitalized product and package design costs and other expenses related to exited product lines and SKU reductions ($9.0 million) (Prior to 1996, Sunbeam had capitalized certain costs related to international product development and package design, which were amortized over the period of related benefit. The product development costs ($1.9 million) related to international operations and represented the costs necessary to modify products for introduction to the international markets. As the restructuring plan included the closure of International Group office and elimination of a number of products to which these costs pertained, the related capitalized costs were written off. Additionally, in connection with the restructuring plan, as a result of the elimination of many products and SKU's, Sunbeam updated its package designs. Accordingly, the unamortized balance of the capitalized package design costs which had been capitalized prior to 1996, ($5.0 million) was written off. Sunbeam discontinued incurring costs of a significant nature relating to these items and consequently has discontinued capitalizing such costs subsequent to 1995 and (e) asset write-downs related to the divestiture of certain non-core products and businesses ($14.8 million). The asset write-downs of $34.8 million (representing (a) and (b) discussed above) included equipment taken out of service in 1996 (either abandoned in 1996 or sold in 1997) and accordingly, depreciation was not recorded subsequent to the date of the impairment charge. The asset write-downs of $14.8 million related to the divestiture of non-core products and businesses resulted from divesting of the time and temperature business (sold in March 1997) and Counselor® and Borg® scale product lines (sold in May 1997) and the sale of the textile mill in Biddeford, Maine in May 1997. These charges primarily represented the estimated non-cash losses resulting from the sale or abandonment of facilities and equipment related to exiting these product lines. The Company continued to record depreciation expense on these fixed assets, based on historical rates, until such time that the assets were disposed of. For these fixed assets, the impairment charges represented write-downs to net realizable values (based on the estimated net proceeds from the sale of these assets compared to their recorded net book value), less estimated depreciation expense at historical rates through the period of estimated use. The net carrying value of these assets at December 29, 1996 approximated $42.5 million.

The $24.7 million for severance and other employee costs, including COBRA and other fringe benefits, related to approximately 3,700 positions that were planned to be eliminated as a result of the restructuring plan, excluding approximately 2,400 employees terminated from the furniture business for which severance was included in Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations (see Note 13). The furniture business was sold in 1997. In 1996 and 1997, approximately 1,200 employees and 1,800 employees, respectively, were terminated from continuing operations. Due largely to attrition, the remaining planned terminations were not required. In 1997, the Company determined that its severance and employee benefit costs were less than originally accrued principally due to lower than expected COBRA and workers compensation costs, and accordingly reversed accruals of $7.9 million in the third quarter ($2.1 million) and fourth quarter ($5.8 million). At December 31, 1997, the balance accrued of $1.2 million represented the remaining severance and employee benefit costs for certain employees terminated during 1997. During 1998, all amounts were expended.

The amounts accrued at December 29, 1996, for Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges recorded in fiscal 1996, exceeded amounts ultimately required principally due to reductions in anticipated severance and employee benefit costs of $7.9 million, as discussed above, and reductions in estimated lease payments of $6.7 million ($3.7 million and $3.0 million recognized in the third and fourth quarters, respectively) resulting from better than anticipated rentals received under sub-leases and favorable negotiation of lease terminations. Accordingly, the fiscal 1997 Consolidated Statement of Operations included $14.6 million of benefit ($5.8 million in the third quarter and $8.8 million in the fourth quarter of 1997) related to the reversal of accruals no longer required, which were recorded as these reduced obligations became known.

In 1996, in conjunction with the initiation of the restructuring plan, the Company recorded additional charges totaling $129.1 million, reflected in Cost of Goods Sold; SG&A expense and Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations. The charge included in Cost of Goods Sold ($60.8 million) principally represented inventory write-downs to net realizable value, based upon management's best estimates, and anticipated losses on the disposition of the inventory as a result of the significant reduction in SKU's provided for in the restructuring plan. The write-down included $26.9 million related to raw materials, work-in process and finished goods for discontinued outdoor cooking products, principally grills and grills accessories and the balance related to raw materials, work-in-process and finished goods for other discontinued products including appliances ($27.8 million), clippers ($1.0 million) and blankets ($5.1 million). For inventory which management determined was salable, the estimated write-down was based upon the difference between the expected net sales proceeds of the inventory, depending on distribution channel, and the recorded value of the inventory. In the case of abandoned inventory, the write-down was equal to the recorded value of the inventory. The resulting difference between carrying value and estimated net realizable value represented the $60.8 million write-down necessary to record the inventory at its net realizable value. SG&A expense included period costs, charged to operations as incurred; in 1997 and 1996 of $15.8 million and $10.1 million, respectively, relating to employee relocation and recruiting and equipment relocation and installation ($11.8 million in 1997 and $3.2 million in 1996), transitional fees related to outsourcing arrangements ($4.9 million in 1996) and package redesign costs ($4.0 million in 1997 and $2.0 million in 1996) expended as a result of the implementation of the restructuring plan. The Loss on Sale of Discontinued Operations of $58.2 million is discussed further in Note 13.

At December 28, 1997, the Company had $5.2 million in liabilities accrued related to the 1996 restructuring plan, including $1.2 million of severance related costs and $4.0 million related to facility closures, which principally represented future lease payments (net of sub-leases) on exited facilities. During 1998, this liability was reduced by $4.0 million as a result of cash expenditures. At December 28, 1997, the Company had $3.0 million of warranty liabilities related to the discontinued furniture operations. During 1998, $2.5 million of this liability was liquidated.

The restructuring accrual, which existed at January 1, 1996 ($13.8 million), was initially established as part of a "rightsizing program" during fiscal 1992. During 1996 approximately $3 million of this accrual was utilized and the remaining $10.8 million became part of the reserve requirements of the 1996 restructuring plan. In effect, in 1996, the Company reversed the $10.8 million prior year accrual determined to be no longer required and provided a corresponding amount in connection with the 1996 restructuring charge.

13. Discontinued Operations

As part of the 1996 restructuring plan, the Company also announced the divestiture of the furniture business, by a sale of assets. In February 1997, the Company entered into an agreement to sell the business to U.S. Industries, Inc. in a transaction that was completed on March 17, 1997. In connection with the furniture divestiture, the Company recorded a provision for estimated losses to be incurred on the sale of $39.1 million in 1996, net of applicable income tax benefits of $19.9 million. Although the discontinued furniture operations were profitable, net income had declined from $21.7 million in 1994 to $0.8 million in 1996. This decline, along with the Company's announcement that it intended to divest this line of business contributed to the loss on sale. Revenues for the discontinued furniture business were $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997, $227.5 million in 1996 and $185.6 million in 1995. Results of operations were nominal in 1997 and 1996, down from $12.9 million (net of $7.9 million in taxes) in 1995. In connection with the sale of these assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69.0 million in cash. The Company retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50 million as of the closing date and retained certain liabilities. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the asset purchase agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss of $14.0 million, net of applicable income tax benefits of $8.5 million.

In addition to the furniture business divestiture, the Company also completed the sale of other product lines and assets in 1997 as part of its restructuring plan, including time and temperature products, Counselor® and Borg® scales and a textile facility. Losses incurred on the disposal of these assets, which consist primarily of write-downs of assets to net realizable value, are included in Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges in 1996 in the Consolidated Statements of Operations.

14. Segment, Customer and Geographic Data

Throughout 1998 Sunbeam's operations were managed through four reportable segments: Household, Outdoor Leisure, International and Corporate. Reportable segments are identified by the Company based upon the distinct products manufactured (Household and Outdoor Leisure) or based upon the geographic region in which its products are distributed (International). The Company's reportable segments are all separately managed.

The Household group consists of appliances (including mixers, blenders, food steamers, bread makers, rice cookers, coffee makers, toasters, irons and garment steamers), health products (including vaporizers, humidifiers, air cleaners, massagers, hot and cold packs and blood pressure monitors), scales, personal care products (including hair clippers and trimmers and related products for the professional beauty, barber and veterinarian trade and sales of products to commercial and institutional channels), blankets (including electric blankets, heated throws and mattress pads) and First Alert® products (smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, fire extinguishers and home safety equipment).

The Outdoor Leisure group includes outdoor recreation products (which encompass tents, sleeping bags, coolers, camping stoves, lanterns and outdoor heaters), outdoor cooking products (including gas and charcoal outdoor grills and grill parts and accessories), Powermate® products (including portable power generators and air compressors), and Eastpak® products (including backpacks and bags).

The International group is managed through five regional subdivisions: Europe, Latin America, Japan, Canada and East Asia. Europe includes the manufacture, sales and distribution of Campingaz® products and sales and distribution in Europe, Africa and the Middle East of other Company products. The Latin American region includes the manufacture, sales and distribution throughout Latin America of small appliances, and sales and distribution of personal care products, professional clippers and related products, camping products and Powermate products. Japan includes the sales and distribution of primarily outdoor recreation products. Canada includes sales of substantially all the Company's products and East Asia encompasses sales and distribution in all areas of East Asia other than Japan of substantially all the Company's products.

The Company's Corporate group provides certain management, accounting, legal, risk management, treasury, human resources, tax and management information services to all operating groups and also includes the operation of the Company's retail stores and the conduct of the Company's licensing activities.

The accounting policies of the operating segments are the same as those described in the summary of significant accounting policies (see Note 1) except that certain bad debt expense is recorded at a consolidated level and included in the Corporate group. Sunbeam evaluates performance and allocates resources based upon profit or loss from operations before amortization, income taxes, minority interest, interest expense, non-recurring gains and losses and foreign exchange gains and losses. Intersegment sales and transfers are primarily recorded at cost.

The following tables include selected financial information with respect to Sunbeam's four operating segments. Business segment information for prior years has been reclassified to conform to the current year presentation.

Revenue from one retail customer in the United States in Sunbeam's Household and Outdoor Leisure segments accounted for approximately 18%, 20% and 19% of consolidated net sales in 1998, 1997 and 1996, respectively. Receivables from this customer approximated $62.6 million and $51.9 million at December 31, 1998 and December 27, 1997, respectively. The Company establishes its credit policies based on an ongoing evaluation of its customers' creditworthiness and competitive market conditions and establishes its allowance for doubtful accounts based on an assessment of exposures to credit losses at each balance sheet date. The Company believes its allowance for doubtful accounts is sufficient based on the credit exposures outstanding.

SEC Investigation

By letter dated June 17, 1998, the staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised the Company that it was conducting an informal inquiry into the Company's accounting policies and procedures and requested that the Company produce certain documents. On July 2, 1998, the SEC issued a Formal Order of Private Investigation, designating officers to take testimony and pursuant to which a subpoena duces tecum was served on the Company requiring the production of certain documents. On November 4, 1998, the Company received another SEC subpoena duces tecum requiring the production of further documents. The Company has provided numerous documents to the SEC staff and continues to cooperate with the SEC staff. The Company has, however, declined to provide the SEC with material that the Company believes is subject to the attorney-client privilege and the work product immunity. The Company cannot predict the term of such investigation or its potential outcome.

Litigation

On April 23, 1998, two class action lawsuits were filed on behalf of purchasers of the Company's common stock in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the Company and some of its present and former directors and former officers alleging violations of the federal securities laws as discussed below.

021335

15. Commitments and Contingencies—(Continued)

After that date, approximately fifteen similar class actions were filed in the same Court. One of the lawsuits also named as defendant Arthur Andersen LLP, the Company's independent accountants for the period covered by the lawsuit.

On June 16, 1998, the Court entered an Order consolidating all these suits and all similar class actions subsequently filed (collectively, the "Consolidated Federal Actions") and providing time periods for the filing of a consolidated amended complaint and defendants' response thereto. On June 22, 1998, two groups of plaintiffs made motions to be appointed lead plaintiffs and to have their selection of counsel approved as lead counsel. On July 20, 1998, the Court entered an Order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel. This Order also stated that it "shall apply to all subsequently filed actions which are consolidated herewith." On August 28, 1998, plaintiffs in one of the subsequently filed actions filed an objection to having their action consolidated pursuant to the June 16, 1998 Order, arguing that the class period in their action differs from the class periods in the originally filed consolidated actions. On December 9, 1998, the Court entered an Order overruling plaintiffs' objections and affirming its prior Order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel.

On January 6, 1999, plaintiffs filed a consolidated amended class action complaint against the Company, some of its present and former directors and former officers, and Arthur Andersen LLP. The consolidated amended class action complaint alleges that, in violation of section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and SEC Rule 10b-5, defendants made material misrepresentations and omissions regarding the Company's business operations, future prospects and anticipated earnings per share, in an effort to artificially inflate the price of the common stock and call options, and that, in violation of section 20(a) of the Exchange Act, the individual defendants exercised influence and control over the Company, causing the Company to make material misrepresentations and omissions. The consolidated amended complaint seeks an unspecified award of money damages. On February 5, 1999, plaintiffs moved for an order certifying a class consisting of all persons and entities who purchased Sunbeam common stock or who purchased call options or sold put options with respect to Sunbeam common stock during the period April 23, 1997 through June 30, 1998, excluding the defendants, their affiliates, and employees of Sunbeam. Defendants have filed a response to the motion for class certification. On March 8, 1999, all defendants who had been served with the consolidated amended class action complaint moved to dismiss it. Under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, all discovery in the consolidated action is stayed pending resolution of the motions to dismiss.

On April 7, 1998, a purported derivative action was filed in the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida against the Company and some of its present and former directors and former officers. The action alleged that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties and wasted corporate assets when the Company granted stock options at an exercise price of $36.85 to three of its officers and directors (who were subsequently terminated) on or about February 2, 1998. On June 25, 1998, all defendants filed a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to make a presuit demand on Sunbeam's board of directors. On October 22, 1998, the plaintiff amended the complaint against all but one of the defendants named in the original complaint. On February 19, 1999, plaintiffs filed a second amended derivative complaint nominally on behalf of Sunbeam against some of its present and former directors and former officers and Arthur Andersen LLP. The second amended complaint alleges, among other things, that Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh (the Company's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, respectively) caused Sunbeam to employ fraudulent accounting procedures in order to enable them to secure new employment contracts, and seeks an award of damages and other declaratory and equitable relief. The plaintiff has agreed that defendants need not respond to the second amended complaint until May 14, 1999. As described below, the Company and the plaintiffs have moved the Court for injunctive relief against Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh with respect to the arbitration action brought by them.

On June 25, 1998, four purported class actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County by minority shareholders of Coleman against Coleman, the Company and some of the Company's and Coleman's present and former officers and directors. An additional class action was filed on

15. Commitments and Contingencies—(Continued)

August 10, 1998, against the same parties. The complaints in these class actions allege, in essence, that the existing exchange ratio for the proposed Coleman merger is no longer fair to Coleman's public shareholders as a result of the decline in the market value of the common stock. On October 21, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into a Memorandum of Understanding to settle, subject to court approval, the class actions. Under the terms of the proposed settlement, if approved by the court the Company will issue to the Coleman public shareholders, and plaintiff's counsel in this action, warrants to purchase up to approximately 4.98 million shares of the Company's common stock at a cash exercise price of $7 per share, subject to certain anti-dilution provisions. These warrants will generally have the same terms as the warrants issued to an affiliate of M&F (see Note 2) and will be issued when the Coleman merger is consummated, which is now expected to be during the second half of 1999. As a consequence of entering the Memorandum of Understanding and agreeing to issue additional consideration in the form of warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock, a new five year measurement date was established. The total consideration to be paid (cash, Sunbeam common stock, and Sunbeam warrants) to the Coleman shareholders will therefore be measured as of October 21, 1998. There can be no assurance that the Court will approve the settlement as proposed.

During the months of August and October 1998, purported class action and derivative lawsuits were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County and in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by shareholders of the Company against the Company, M&F and certain of the Company's present and former directors. These complaints allege that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties when the Company entered into a settlement agreement whereby M&F and its affiliates released the Company from certain claims they may have had arising out of the Company's acquisition of M&F's interest in Coleman, and M&F agreed to provide management support to the Company. Under the settlement agreement, M&F was granted a five year warrant to purchase up to an additional 23 million shares of Sunbeam's common stock at an exercise price of $7 per share, subject to certain anti-dilution provisions. The plaintiffs have requested an injunction against issuance of stock to M&F pursuant to exercise of the warrants and unspecified money damages. These complaints also allege that the rights of the public shareholders have been compromised, as the settlement would normally require shareholders' approval under the rules and regulations of the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"). The Audit Committee of the Company's board of directors determined that obtaining such shareholders' approval would have seriously jeopardized the financial viability of the Company, which is an allowable exception to the NYSE shareholders' approval requirements. By Order of the Court of Chancery dated January 7, 1999, the derivative actions filed in that Court were consolidated and the Company has moved to dismiss such action. The action filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida has been dismissed.

On September 16, 1998, an action was filed in the 56th Judicial District Court of Galveston County, Texas alleging various claims in violation of the Texas Securities Act and Texas Business & Commercial Code as well as common law fraud as a result of the Company's alleged misstatements and omissions regarding the Company's financial condition and prospects during a period beginning May 1, 1998 and ending June 16, 1998, in which the plaintiffs engaged in transactions in the Company's common stock. The Company is the only named defendant in this action. The complaint requests recovery of compensatory damages, punitive damages and expenses in an unspecified amount. This action was removed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas and subsequently has been transferred to the Southern District of Florida, the forum for the Consolidated Federal Actions.

On October 30, 1998, a class action lawsuit was filed on behalf of certain purchasers of the Debentures in the U.S. District Court of the Southern District of Florida against the Company and some of the Company's former officers and directors, alleging violations of the federal securities laws and common law fraud. The complaint alleges that the Company's offering memorandum used for the marketing of the Debentures contained false and misleading information regarding the Company's financial position and that the defendants engaged in a plan to inflate the Company's earnings for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs and others. This action has been transferred to the Southern District of Florida, the forum for the Consolidated Federal Actions, and the parties have negotiated a proposed coordination plan in order to coordinate proceedings in this action with those in the Consolidated Federal Actions.

The Company has been named as a defendant in an action filed in the District Court of Tarrant County, Texas, 48th Judicial District, on November 20, 1998, which was served on the Company through the Secretary of State of Texas on January 15, 1999. The plaintiffs in this action are purchasers of the Debentures. The plaintiffs allege that the Company violated the Texas Securities Act and the Texas Business & Commercial Code and committed state common law fraud by materially misstating the financial position of the Company in connection with the offering and sale of the Debentures. The complaint seeks rescission, as well as compensatory and exemplary damages in an unspecified amount. The Company specially appeared to assert an objection to the Texas Court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over the Company, and a hearing on this objection was held on April 15, 1999. The Court has issued a letter ruling advising the parties that it would grant the Company's special appearance and sustain the challenge to personal jurisdiction. The plaintiffs have moved for reconsideration of this decision. Plaintiffs had also moved for partial summary judgment on their Texas Securities Act claims, but, in light of the Court's decision on the special appearance, the hearing on the summary judgment motion has been cancelled.

On April 12, 1999, a class action lawsuit was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida. The lawsuit was filed on behalf of persons who purchased the Debentures during the period of March 20, 1998 through June 30, 1998, inclusive, but after the initial offering of such Debentures. The complaint asserts that Sunbeam made material omissions and misrepresentations that had the effect of inflating the market price of the Debentures. The complaint names as defendants the Company, its former auditor, Arthur Andersen LLP and two former Sunbeam officers, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. The plaintiff is an institution which allegedly acquired in excess of $150,000,000 face amount of the Debentures and now seeks unspecified money damages. The Company was served on April 16, 1999 in connection with this pending lawsuit. The Company will advise the Court of the pending Consolidated Federal Actions and request transfer of the action.

On February 9, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed with the American Arbitration Association demands for arbitration of claims under their respective employment agreements with Sunbeam. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh are requesting a finding by the arbitrator that they were terminated by the Company without cause and should be awarded the corresponding benefits set forth in their respective employment agreements. On March 12, 1999, Sunbeam asked the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida to issue an injunction prohibiting Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh from pursuing their arbitration proceedings against Sunbeam on the ground that the simultaneous litigation of the April 7, 1998 action and these arbitration proceedings would subject Sunbeam to the threat of inconsistent adjudications with respect to certain rights to compensation asserted by Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. On March 19, 1999, the plaintiff in the April 7, 1998 action discussed above moved for a similar injunction on the ground that the arbitration proceedings threatened irreparable harm to Sunbeam and its shareholders. On March 26, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed a response in opposition to the motions for injunctive relief. A hearing on the motions for injunctive relief has been held and, as a result of Sunbeam's motion for preliminary injunction, administration of the arbitrations has been suspended until May 10, 1999.

On March 23, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed a complaint in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware seeking an order directing Sunbeam to advance attorneys' fees and other expenses incurred in connection with various state and federal class and derivative actions and an investigation instituted by the SEC. The complaint alleges that such advancements are required by Sunbeam's by-laws and by a forbearance agreement entered into between Sunbeam and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh in August 1998. The Company has filed its answer to the complaint and the Court of Chancery has scheduled a trial of this summary proceeding to be held on June 15, 1999.

15. Commitments and Contingencies—(Continued)

The Company intends to vigorously defend each of the foregoing lawsuits other than those as to which a Memorandum of Understanding to settle has been reached, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of the Company's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if the foregoing actions were determined adversely to the Company, such judgements would likely have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

On July 2, 1998, the American Insurance Company ("American") filed suit against the Company in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York requesting a declaratory judgment of the Court that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for excess coverage issued by American was invalid and/or had been properly canceled by American. The Company's motion to transfer such action to the federal district court in which the Consolidated Federal Actions are currently pending was recently denied. The case is now in discovery. On October 20, 1998, an action was filed by Federal Insurance Company in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American in the previously filed action as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. This action has been transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida and is currently in discovery. On December 22, 1998, an action was filed by Executive Risk Indemnity, Inc. in the Circuit Court of the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit in and for Broward County, Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American and Federal in their previously filed actions as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. On April 15, 1999, the Company filed an action in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, PA, Gulf Insurance Company and St. Paul Mercury Insurance Company requesting, among other things, a declaratory judgment that National Union is not entitled to rescind its liability insurance policy to the Company and a declaratory judgment that the Company is entitled to coverage from these insurance companies for various lawsuits described herein under liability insurance policies issued by each of the defendants. The Company intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against the Company or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions. The Company's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgement in any of the foregoing actions could have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

The Company and its subsidiaries are also involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time that the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these routine matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position, results of operations, or cash flows of the Company.

In the fourth quarter of 1996, the Company recorded a $12.0 million charge related to a case for which an adverse development arose near year-end. In 1997, this case was favorably resolved and, as a result, $8.1 million of the charge established in 1996 was reversed into income primarily in the fourth quarter of 1997.

Amounts accrued for litigation matters represent the anticipated costs (damages and/or settlement amounts) in connection with pending litigation and claims and related anticipated legal fees. The costs are accrued when it is both probable that an asset has been impaired or a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated. The accruals are based upon the Company's assessment, after consultation with counsel, of probable loss based on the facts and circumstances of each case, the legal issues involved, the nature of the claim made, the nature of the damages sought and any relevant information about the plaintiffs, and other significant factors which vary by case. When it is not possible to estimate a specific expected cost to be incurred, the Company evaluates the range of probable loss and records the minimum end of the range. As of December 31, 1998 Sunbeam had established accruals for litigation matters of $31.2 million (representing $17.5 million and $13.7 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively) and $9.9 million as of December 28, 1997 (representing $3.0 million and $6.9 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively). It is anticipated that the $31.2 million accrual will be paid as follows: $22.4 million in 1999, $7.5 million in 2000, and $1.3 million in 2001. The Company believes, based on information known at December 31, 1998, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters existing as of December 31, 1998 have been adequately reserved to the extent determinable.

Environmental Matters

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sales of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials ("Environmental Laws"). The Company believes it is in substantial compliance with all Environmental Laws which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with Environmental Laws involves certain continuing costs; however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in the Company's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, the Company also is actively engaged in certain environmental remediation activities many of which relate to divested operations. As of December 31, 1998, the Company has been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") or a state environmental agency as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven sites subject to the federal Superfund Act and five sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant.

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order the PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Act is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at 12 sites, seven of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law. The remediation efforts in which the Company is involved include facility investigations, including soil and groundwater investigations, corrective measure studies, including feasibility studies, groundwater monitoring, extraction and treatment, soil sampling, excavation and treatment relating to environmental clean-ups. In certain instances, the Company has entered into agreements with governmental authorities to undertake additional investigatory activities and in other instances has agreed to implement appropriate remedial actions. The Company has also established reserve amounts for certain non-compliance matters including those involving air emissions.

The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, Accounting for Contingencies, to cover the anticipated probable costs of investigation and remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which the Company has, or may have remediation responsibility. The Company accrues environmental investigation and remediation costs when it is both probable that a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated and the Company's responsibility is established. Generally, the timing of these accruals coincides with the earlier of formal commitment to an investigation plan, completion of feasibility study or the Company's commitment to a formal plan of action. As of December 31, 1998 and 1997, the Company's environmental reserves were $25.0 million (representing $22.9 million for the estimated costs of facility investigations, corrective measure studies and known remedial measures and $2.1 million for estimated legal costs) and $24.0 million, (representing $21.8 million for the estimated cost of facility investigations, corrective measure studies and known remedial measures and $2.2 million for estimated legal costs), respectively. It is anticipated that the $25.0 million accrual at December 31, 1998 will be paid as follows: $5.3 million in 1999, $4.9 million in 2000, $3.2 million in 2001, $1.0 million in 2002, $1.0 million in 2003 and $9.6 million thereafter. The Company has accrued its best estimate of investigation and remediation costs (based upon a range of exposure of $13.0 million to $46.3 million) based upon facts known to the Company and because of the inherent difficulties in estimating the ultimate amount of environmental costs, which are further described below, these estimates may materially change in the future as a result of the uncertainties described below. Estimated costs, which are based upon experience with similar sites and technical evaluations, are judgmental in nature and are recorded at undiscounted amounts without considering the impact of inflation and are adjusted periodically to reflect changes in applicable laws or regulations, changes in available technologies and receipt by the Company of new information. It is difficult to estimate the ultimate level of future environmental expenditures due to a number of uncertainties surrounding environmental liabilities. These uncertainties include the applicability of laws and regulations, changes in environmental remediation requirements, the enactment of additional regulations, uncertainties surrounding remediation procedures including the development of new technology, the identification of new sites for which the Company could be a PRP, information relating to the exact nature and extent of the contamination at each site and the extent of required cleanup efforts, the uncertainties with respect to the ultimate outcome of issues which may be actively contested and the varying costs of alternative remediation strategies. The Company continues to pursue the recovery of some environmental remediation costs from certain of its liability insurance carriers; however, such potential recoveries have not been offset against potential liabilities and have not been considered in determining the Company's environmental reserves. Due to uncertainty over remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in Environmental Laws and regulations and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of December 31, 1998.

In the fourth quarter of 1996, the Company performed a comprehensive review of all environmental exposures in an attempt by the then new senior management team to accelerate the resolution and settlement of environmental claims. As a result, upon conclusion of the review, the Company recorded additional environmental reserves of approximately $9.0 million in the fourth quarter of 1996.

The Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Product Liability Matters

As a consumer goods manufacturer and distributor, the Company faces the constant risks of product liability and related lawsuits involving claims for substantial money damages, product recall actions and higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. These claims could result in liabilities that could have a material adverse effect on Sunbeam's financial position, results of operations and cash flows. Some of the product lines Sunbeam acquired in the 1998 acquisitions have increased its exposure to product liabilities and related claims.

The Company is party to various personal injury and property damage lawsuits relating to its products and incidental to its business. Annually, the Company sets its product liability insurance program based on the Company's current and historical claims experience and the availability and cost of insurance. The Company's program for 1998 was comprised of a self-insurance retention of $2.5 million per occurrence.

021341

15. Commitments and Contingencies—(Continued)

Cumulative amounts estimated to be payable by the Company with respect to pending and potential claims for all years in which the Company is liable under its self-insurance retention have been accrued as liabilities. Such accrued liabilities are necessarily based on estimates taking into account prior experience, numbers of claims and other relevant factors; thus, the Company's ultimate liability may exceed or be less than the amounts accrued. The methods of making such estimates and establishing the resulting liability are reviewed periodically and any adjustments resulting therefrom are reflected in current operating results.

Historically, product liability awards have rarely exceeded the Company's individual per occurrence self-insured retention. There can be no assurance, however, that the Company's future product liability experience will be consistent with its past experience. Based on existing information, the Company believes that the ultimate conclusion of the various pending product liability claims and lawsuits of the Company, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect on the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of the Company.

Commitment Fee

Under the terms of the April 15, 1999 amendment to the New Credit Facility, the Company is obligated to pay a loan commitment fee of between $4.2 million and $17.0 million. The ultimate amount of the fee is determined based on multiplying the sum of the outstanding borrowings and amounts available for borrowings as of April 15, 1999 by a factor that is determined at the earlier of September 30, 2000 or upon repayment of the New Credit Facility. This fee is payable at the earlier of September 30, 2000 or upon repayment of the New Credit Facility. At a minimum, the Company is obligated under these terms to pay $4.2 million. The ultimate amount due could be as high as $17.0 million if the sum of the outstanding borrowings and amounts available for borrowings at September 30, 2000 (the "aggregate availability") exceeds $1.2 billion. If the aggregate availability is between $1.0 billion and $1.2 billion, a fee of $8.4 million will be due. If the aggregate availability is $1.0 billion or less, the $4.2 million minimum will be due. Under any circumstances, the $4.2 million will be due; therefore, the Company will accrue the minimum liability and record an offsetting asset in the second quarter of 1999, which will be amortized and included in interest expense through April 10, 2000, the term of the current amendment extension period.

The Company will not accrue for amounts in excess of the $4.2 million as there are numerous uncertainties which may individually or in the aggregate impact the level of aggregate availability at September 30, 2000. These uncertainties include, but are not limited to: the ability to obtain an amendment or further waiver of existing covenants from the lenders under the New Credit Facility for the period beyond April 10, 2000; proceeds from the sales of assets or businesses, if any; changes in debt structure, including the effects of refinancing, if any; and cash flows generated or used by future operations. Given these uncertainties, the Company is currently not able to predict the probable level of aggregate availability at September 30, 2000. As events develop, the Company will periodically review the expected aggregate availability at September 30, 2000. If it becomes likely that an amount in excess of $4.2 million will be paid, the Company will recognize that change in estimate over the remaining period of the New Credit Facility Amendment.

Leases

The Company rents certain facilities, equipment and retail stores under operating leases. Rental expense for operating leases amounted to $28.1 million in 1998, $7.4 million for 1997 and $8.0 million for 1996. The minimum future rentals due under noncancelable operating leases as of December 31, 1998 aggregated to $167.6 million. The amounts payable in each of the years 1999-2003 and thereafter are $34.6 million, $33.7 million, $17.1 million, $13.5 million, $9.7 million and $59.0 million, respectively.

In connection with a warehouse expansion related to the electric blanket business, the Company entered into a $5 million capital lease obligation in 1996.

Certain Debt Obligations

Responsibility for servicing certain debt obligations of the Company's predecessor were assumed by third parties in connection with the acquisition of former businesses, although the Company's predecessor remained the primary obligor in accordance with the respective loan documents. Such obligations, which amounted to approximately $17.3 million at December 31, 1998, and the corresponding receivables from the third parties, are not included in the Consolidated Balance Sheets since these occurred prior to the issuance of SFAS No. 76, Extinguishment of Debt. Management believes that the third parties will continue to meet their obligations pursuant to the assumption agreements.

Purchase and other Commitments

In conjunction with the sale of the Biddeford, Maine textile mill in 1997, the Company entered into a five-year agreement to purchase blanket shells from the mill. The agreement provides for a minimum purchase commitment each year of the contract. As of December 31, 1998, the Company had remaining minimum commitments under the contract of approximately $104 million.

In connection with Coleman's 1995 purchase of substantially all of the assets of Active Technologies, Inc. ("ATI"), the Company may be required to make payments to the predecessor owner of ATI of up to $18.8 million based on the Company's sales of ATI related products and royalties received by the Company for licensing arrangements related to ATI patents. As of December 31, 1998, the amounts paid under the terms of this agreement have been immaterial.

16. Related Party Transactions

Services Provided by M&F

Pursuant to the settlement agreement with M&F, M&F agreed to make certain executive management personnel available to the Company and to provide certain management assistance to Sunbeam. The Company does not reimburse M&F for such services, other than reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses paid to third parties. (See Note 2.)

Liquidation of Options

The Company expects to acquire the remaining approximately 20% equity interest in Coleman in the second half of 1999. Upon the consummation of the merger transaction, the unexercised options under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 per share and the exercise price of such options. Ronald O. Perelman, the sole stockholder of M&F, holds 500,000 options for which he will receive a net payment of $6,750,000. Mr. Shapiro and Ms. Clark, executive officers of the Company, hold 77,500 and 25,000 options, respectively, for which they will receive net payments of $823,000 and $275,005, respectively.

Arrangements Between Coleman and M&F

Coleman and an affiliate of M&F are parties to a cross-indemnification agreement pursuant to which Coleman has agreed to indemnify such affiliate, its officers, directors, employees, control persons, agents and representatives against all past, present and future liabilities, including product liability and environmental matters, related to the initial assets of Coleman, which Coleman acquired from such affiliate in December 1991. In addition, pursuant to this cross-indemnification agreement, the M&F affiliate has agreed to indemnify Coleman and its officers, directors, employees, agents and representatives against all other liabilities of such M&F affiliate or any of its subsidiaries, including liabilities relating to the assets it did not transfer to Coleman in December 1991. This cross-indemnification agreement will survive the Coleman merger.

16. Related Party Transactions—(Continued)

Coleman previously was included in the consolidated tax group for the M&F companies and was a party to a tax sharing agreement with a M&F affiliate, pursuant to which Coleman paid to such affiliate the amount of taxes which would have been paid by Coleman if it were required to file separate federal, state or local income tax returns. The tax sharing agreement was terminated upon the acquisition of Coleman; however, the acquisition agreement provides for certain tax indemnities and tax sharing payments among the Company and the M&F affiliates relating to periods prior to the acquisition.

Lease of Office Space

During 1998, the Company sublet office space in New York City from an affiliate of M&F. The expense for such rent during 1998 was approximately $130,000. The lease was terminated in 1999.

Also, during the third and fourth quarters of fiscal 1997, approximately $5.8 million and $8.8 million, respectively, of restructuring reserves no longer required were reversed and taken into income, as discussed in Note 12. Additionally, during the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997, approximately $13.3 million of tax liabilities related to the 1993 and 1994 tax years were determined to be no longer required and were reversed and taken into income. These accruals were no longer required because during the fourth quarter of 1997 the Company reached a resolution with the Internal Revenue Service on its audits of the 1993 and 1994 tax years.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES
NOTES TO CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
(Unaudited)

1. Operations and Basis of Presentation

Organization

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacturing, marketing and distribution of durable household and outdoor leisure consumer products through mass market and other distribution channels in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to professional and commercial end users such as small businesses, health care providers, hotels and other institutions. The Company's principal products include household kitchen appliances; health monitoring and care products for home use; scales for consumer and professional use for weight management and business uses; electric blankets and throws; clippers and trimmers for consumer, professional and animal uses; smoke and carbon monoxide detectors; outdoor barbecue grills; camping equipment such as tents, lanterns, sleeping bags and stoves; coolers; backpacks and book bags; and portable generators and compressors.

In 1998 the Company acquired an indirect controlling interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") and all the outstanding common stock of Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands") and First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert").

Basis of Presentation

The Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet of the Company as of September 30, 1999 and the Condensed Consolidated Statements of Operations and Cash Flows for the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and 1998 are unaudited. The unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles for interim financial information and with the instructions of Form 10-Q and Rule 10-01 of Regulation S-X. The December 31, 1998 Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet was derived from the consolidated financial statements contained in the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K/A for the year ended December 31, 1998. The condensed consolidated financial statements contained herein should be read in conjunction with the consolidated financial statements and related notes contained in the Company's 1998 Annual Report on Form 10-K/A. In the opinion of management, the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements contained herein include all adjustments (consisting of only recurring adjustments) necessary for a fair presentation of the results of operations for the interim periods presented. These interim results of operations are not necessarily indicative of results for the entire year or future periods.

Basic and Diluted Loss per Share of Common Stock

Loss per common share calculations are determined by dividing loss attributable to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock outstanding. Loss per share for the nine months ended September 30, 1999 and 1998, is based only on the weighted average number of common shares outstanding, as potential common shares have been excluded as a result of the loss during the periods presented. Loss per share for the nine months ended September 30, 1999 excluded 78,562 shares related to stock options, as their effect would have been anti-dilutive. Stock options to purchase 19,420,292 common shares for the nine months ended September 30, 1999, were excluded from potential common shares as the option exercise prices were greater than the average market price of the Company's common stock during the period. The nine months ended September 30, 1998 loss per share excluded 3,017,516 shares related to stock options, as their effect would have been anti-dilutive. The nine month 1998 period also excluded 63,016 shares related to restricted stock. Stock options to purchase 9,609,033 common shares for the nine months ended September 30, 1998 were excluded from potential common shares as the option exercise prices were greater than the average market price of the Company's common stock during the period. Diluted average common shares outstanding for all periods presented excluded 13,242,050 shares issuable upon the conversion of the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures"). In addition, diluted average common shares outstanding for the period ended September 30, 1999 excluded 23,000,000 shares issuable on the exercise of warrants.

New Accounting Standards

Effective January 1, 1999, the Company adopted Statement of Position 98-1, Accounting for the Costs of Computer Software Developed or Obtained for Internal Use ("SOP 98-1"). SOP 98-1 requires computer software costs associated with internal use software to be expensed as incurred until certain capitalization criteria are met. Adoption of this statement did not have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows.

In June 1998, the Financial Accounting Standards Board issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 133 ("SFAS No. 133"), Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities, which, as amended, is effective for fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2000. SFAS No. 133 requires the recognition of all derivatives in the Consolidated Balance Sheets as either assets or liabilities measured at fair value. The Company has not yet determined the impact SFAS No. 133 will have on its consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows.

Reclassifications

Certain prior year amounts have been reclassified to conform with the 1999 presentation.

2. Acquisitions

On March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman from a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("M&F"), in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of the Company's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash. In addition, the Company assumed approximately $1,016 million in debt. The value of the common stock issued at the date of acquisition was derived by using the average closing stock price as reported on the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE") Composite Tape for the day before and day of the public announcement of the acquisition. Immediately thereafter, as a result of the exercise of employee stock options, Sunbeam's indirect beneficial ownership of Coleman decreased to approximately 79% of the total number of the outstanding shares of Coleman common stock. (See Note 10.)

On August 12, 1998, the Company announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a Special Committee of the Board consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with M&F, the Company had entered into a settlement agreement with a subsidiary of M&F pursuant to which the Company was released from certain threatened claims of M&F and its subsidiaries arising from the Coleman acquisition and M&F agreed to provide certain management personnel and assistance to the Company in exchange for the issuance to the M&F subsidiary of a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase up to 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at a cash exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. The Company concluded that the agreement to issue this warrant did not result in a new measurement date for the purposes of determining the purchase price for Coleman and has accounted for the issuance of this warrant in the third quarter of 1998 as a cost of settling a potential claim. Accordingly, a $70.0 million non-cash SG&A expense was recorded in the third quarter of 1998, based upon a valuation performed as of August 1998 using facts existing at that time. The valuation was conducted by an independent consultant engaged by the special committee of the board of directors.

The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive 0.5677 of a share of the Company's common stock and $6.44 in cash for each share of Coleman common stock outstanding. In addition, unexercised options

(Unaudited)

2. Acquisitions—(Continued)

under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of such options. The Company expects to issue approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and expend approximately $87 million in cash to complete the Coleman acquisition. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the fourth quarter of 1999 or early in the first quarter of 2000. The acquisition of the remaining outstanding shares of Coleman common stock will be accounted for under the purchase method of accounting from the date of consummation of the Coleman merger.

On October 21, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into a Memorandum of Understanding to settle class action claims made by minority shareholders of Coleman relating to the Coleman merger. Under the terms of the settlement, the Company will issue to the Coleman public shareholders, and plaintiff's counsel in this action, warrants to purchase up to 4.98 million shares of the Company's common stock at a cash exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to certain anti-dilution provisions. These warrants would generally have the same terms as the warrants issued to a subsidiary of M&F and will be issued when the Coleman merger is consummated. Issuance of these warrants will be accounted for as additional purchase consideration. As a consequence of entering into the Memorandum of Understanding and agreeing to issue additional consideration in the form of warrants to purchase Sunbeam common stock, a new measurement date was established for the remaining equity interest in Coleman. The total consideration to be paid (cash, Sunbeam common stock and Sunbeam warrants) to the Coleman shareholders will therefore be measured as of October 21, 1998.

On April 6, 1998, the Company completed the acquisitions of First Alert, valued at approximately $182 million (including $133 million of cash and $49 million of assumed debt) and Signature Brands, valued at approximately $255 million (reflecting cash paid, including the required retirement of defeasance of debt).

As of the date of the acquisition of Coleman, management of the Company determined approximately 117 employees of Coleman would need to be involuntarily terminated in order to eliminate duplicate activities and functions and fully integrate Coleman into Sunbeam's operations. The Company recognized a liability of approximately $8 million representing severance and benefit costs related to 117 employees pursuant to the termination plan. This liability was included in the allocation of purchase price. As of September 30, 1999, 113 employees were terminated and paid benefits of approximately $7 million. The four remaining employees are expected to be terminated by March 31, 2000. Remaining termination costs are expected to be paid by December 31, 2000 and no additional charges are anticipated in future periods related to this issue.

All of these acquisitions were accounted for by the purchase method of accounting. Accordingly, the results of operations of the acquired entities are included in the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statements of Operations from their respective dates of acquisition.

The following pro forma financial information for the Company gives effect to the Coleman and Signature Brands acquisitions as if they had occurred at the beginning of the period presented. No pro forma adjustments have been made for the First Alert acquisition as its effects are not significant. These pro forma results have been prepared for informational purposes only and do not purport to be indicative of the results of operations which actually would have occurred had the acquisitions been consummated on the date indicated, or which may result in the future. The pro forma results follow (in millions, except per share data):

3. Debt

In order to finance the acquisitions described in Note 2 and to refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and the acquired companies, the Company consummated an offering of the Debentures at a yield to maturity of 5.0% (approximately $2.014 million principal amount at maturity) in March 1998, which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds and entered into a revolving and term credit facility ("New Credit Facility").

The Debentures are exchangeable for shares of the Company's common stock at an initial conversion rate of 6.575 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the Debentures, subject to adjustment upon occurrence of specified events. The Debentures are subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future senior indebtedness of the Company. The Debentures are not redeemable by the Company prior to March 25, 2003. On or after such date, the Debentures are redeemable for cash with at least 30 days' notice, at the option of the Company. The Company is required to purchase Debentures at the option of the holder as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013, at purchase prices equal to the issue price plus accrued original discount to such dates. The Company may, at its option, elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or common stock, or any combination thereof. However, the New Credit Facility prohibits the Company from redeeming or repurchasing Debentures for cash. The Company was required to file a registration statement with the SEC to register the Debentures by June 23, 1998. This registration statement was filed on February 4, 1999 and, as amended, was declared effective on November 8, 1999. The Company's failure to file the registration statement by June 23, 1998 did not constitute default under the terms of the Debentures. From June 23, 1998 until the registration statement was declared effective, the Company was required to pay to the Debenture holders cash liquidated damages accruing, for each day during such period, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days and 0.50% thereafter multiplied by the total of the issue price of the Debentures plus the original issue discount thereon on such day. The Company has made total payments for liquidated damages since June 23, 1998 of $4.5 million, of which $1.5 million related to damages for the period through December 31, 1998. A final payment of approximately $0.5 million, representing liquidated damages from September 26, 1999 until the registration statement was declared effective, will be payable on March 25, 2000.

Concurrent with the acquisitions, the Company replaced its $250 million syndicated unsecured five-year revolving credit facility with the New Credit Facility. The New Credit Facility provided for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion and in addition to other customary covenants, required the Company to maintain specified consolidated leverage, interest coverage and fixed charge coverage ratios as of the end of each fiscal quarter occurring after March 31, 1998 and on or prior to the latest stated maturity date for any of the borrowings under the New Credit Facility.

As a result of, among other things, its operating losses incurred during the first half of 1998, the Company did not achieve the specified financial ratios for June 30, 1998 and it appeared unlikely that the Company would achieve the specified financial ratios for September 30, 1998. Consequently, the Company and its lenders entered into an agreement dated as of June 30, 1998 that waived through December 31, 1998 all defaults arising from the failure of the Company to satisfy the specified financial ratios for June 30, 1998 and September 30, 1998. Pursuant to an agreement with the Company dated as of October 19, 1998, the Company's lenders extended all of the waivers under the June 30, 1998 agreement through April 10, 1999 and also waived through such date all defaults arising from any failure by the Company to satisfy the specified financial ratios for December 31, 1998. As part of the October 19, 1998 agreement, the Company agreed to a minimum monthly earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA") covenant (as defined in the New Credit Facility) which covenant the Company has been able to satisfy.

On April 10, 1999, among other things, the lenders extended all of the waivers set forth in the October 19, 1998 agreement through April 15, 1999. On April 15, 1999, the Company and its lenders entered into a comprehensive amendment to the New Credit Facility that, among other things, extended all of the waivers under the April 10, 1999 agreement until April 10, 2000 and waived until such date all defaults arising from any failure by the Company to satisfy the specified financial ratios for any fiscal quarter end occurring during 1999 and for March 31, 2000. The Company intends to negotiate with its lenders an amendment to the New Credit Facility, or to negotiate further waiver of such covenants and other terms beyond April 10, 2000, or to refinance the New Credit Facility. There can be no assurance that an amendment, further waiver of existing covenants and other terms, or refinancing will be entered into by April 10, 2000. The failure to obtain such an amendment, further waiver or debt refinancing would likely result in violation of the existing covenants and compliance with other terms, which would permit the bank lenders to accelerate the maturity of all outstanding borrowings under the New Credit Facility and could otherwise have a material adverse effect on the Company. Accordingly, debt related to the New Credit Facility and all debt containing cross-default provisions is classified as current in the September 30, 1999 Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet.

As part of the April 15, 1999 New Credit Facility amendment, the Company agreed to a minimum cumulative EBITDA covenant that is based on post-December 31, 1998 consolidated EBITDA and is tested at the end of each month occurring on or prior to March 31, 2000, as well as a covenant limiting the amount of revolving loans (other than those used to fund the Coleman merger) that may be outstanding under the New Credit Facility as of the end of each such month. The minimum cumulative EBITDA was initially $6.3 million for the period January 1, 1999 through April 30, 1999 and generally grows on a monthly basis until it reaches $121.0 million for the period from January 1, 1999 through March 31, 2000.

The following description of the New Credit Facility reflects its significant terms as amended April 15, 1999.

The New Credit Facility provides for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion through: (i) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400.0 million maturing March 30, 2005 ($52.5 million of which may only be used to complete the Coleman merger); (ii) up to $800.0 million in term loans maturing on March 30, 2005 (of which $35.0 million may only be used to complete the Coleman merger); and (iii) a $500.0 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006 (of which $5.0 million has already been repaid through September 30, 1999). As of September 30, 1999, approximately $1.5 billion was outstanding and approximately $0.2 billion was available for borrowing under the New Credit Facility.

Under the New Credit Facility, interest accrues, at the Company's option: (i) at the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR"); or (ii) at the base rate of the administrative agent which is generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%; in each case plus an interest margin which is currently 4.00% for LIBOR loans and 2.50% for base rate loans. The current interest rates reflect an increase of 0.25% for LIBOR loans and base rate loans which occurred on September 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date and an increase of 0.50% for LIBOR loans and 0.25% for base rate loans which occurred on October 1, 1999 as a result of the merger not occurring by such date. The interest margin is subject to potential decreases in the future, including a decrease to 3.00% for LIBOR loans and 1.75% for base rate loans upon consummation of the Coleman merger and the effectiveness of the pledge of substantially all of Coleman's and its domestic subsidiaries' assets to secure the obligations under the New Credit Facility. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility are secured by a pledge of the stock of the Company's material subsidiaries, including Coleman, and by a security interest in substantially all of the assets of the Company and its material domestic subsidiaries, other than Coleman and its material subsidiaries except as described below. Currently, Coleman's inventory and related assets are pledged to secure its obligations for letters of credit issued for its account under the New Credit Facility. Additionally, as security for Coleman's note payable to the Company, Coleman pledged substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property, including 66% of the stock of its direct foreign subsidiaries and domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries, and all of the stock of its other direct domestic subsidiaries (but not the assets of Coleman's subsidiaries). The pledge runs in favor of the Company's lending banks, to which the Coleman note has been pledged as security for the Company's obligations to them. Upon completion of the Coleman merger, substantially all of Coleman's assets and the assets of Coleman's domestic subsidiaries will be pledged to secure the obligations under the New Credit Facility. In addition, borrowings under the New Credit Facility are guaranteed by a number of the Company's wholly-owned material domestic subsidiaries and these subsidiary guarantees are secured as described above. Upon completion of the Coleman merger, Coleman and each of its United States subsidiaries will become guarantors of the obligations under the New Credit Facility. To the extent extensions of credit are made to any subsidiaries of the Company, the obligations of such subsidiaries are guaranteed by the Company.

In addition to the above described ratios and tests, the New Credit Facility contains covenants customary for credit facilities of a similar nature, including limitations on the ability of the Company and its subsidiaries, including Coleman, to, among other things, (i) declare dividends or repurchase stock, (ii) prepay, redeem or repurchase debt, incur liens and engage in sale-leaseback transactions, (iii) make loans and investments, (iv) incur additional debt, including revolving loans under the New Credit Facility, (v) amend or otherwise alter material agreements or enter into restrictive agreements, (vi) make capital and year 2000 compliance expenditures, (vii) engage in mergers, acquisitions and asset sales, (viii) engage in certain transactions with affiliates, (ix) settle certain litigation, (x) alter its cash management system and (xi) alter the businesses they conduct. The Company is also required to comply with specified financial covenants and ratios. The New Credit Facility provides for events of default customary for transactions of this type, including nonpayment, misrepresentation, breach of covenant, cross-defaults, bankruptcy, material adverse change arising from compliance with ERISA, material adverse judgments, entering into guarantees and change of ownership and control. It is also an event of default under the New Credit Facility, as amended November 16, 1999, if the Company's registration statement in connection with the Coleman merger is not declared effective by the SEC on or before January 10, 2000, or if the merger does not occur within 25 business days of the effectiveness of the registration statement or if the cash consideration (including any payments on account of the exercise of any appraisal rights, but excluding related legal, accounting and other customary fees and expenses) to consummate the Coleman merger exceeds $87.5 million. Although there can be no assurance, the Company anticipates that it will satisfy these conditions. Furthermore, the New Credit Facility requires the Company to prepay term loans on December 31, 1999 to the extent that cash on hand in the Company's concentration accounts plus the aggregate amount of unused revolving loan commitments on this date exceeds $125 million, but the Company is not required to prepay more than $69.3 million as a result of the provision. Unless waived by the bank lenders, the failure to satisfy any of the financial ratios and tests contained in the New Credit Facility or the occurrence of any other event of default under the New Credit Facility would entitle the bank lenders to (a) receive a 2.00% increase in the interest rate applicable to outstanding loans and increase the trade letter of credit fees to 1.00% and (b) accelerate the maturity of the outstanding borrowings under the New Credit Facility and exercise all or any of their other rights and remedies. Any such acceleration or other exercise rights and remedies would likely have a material adverse effect on the Company. The New Credit Facility also includes provisions for the deferral of the September 30, 1999 and the March 31, 2000 scheduled term loan payments of $69.3 million each until April 10, 2000 as a result of the satisfaction by the Company of the agreed upon conditions to the deferral.

In March 1998, the Company prepaid a $75.0 million 7.85% industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility originally due in 2009. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge in the first quarter of 1998. As a result of repayment of certain indebtedness assumed in the Coleman acquisition, the Company also recognized an extraordinary charge in the second quarter of 1998. The debt assumed in connection with the Coleman acquisition was repaid as a result of the requirements under the terms of the New Credit Facility. These extraordinary charges consisted of redemption premiums ($106.9 million), unamortized debt discount ($13.8 million) and unamortized deferred financing costs ($1.7 million) and were net of an income tax benefit ($10.7 million).

In connection with the acquisition of Signature Brands, the Company was required to defease $70.0 million of acquired debt. Cash was placed with a trustee to provide for the defeasance, including the related prepayment penalty. This cash was used to purchase Treasury Notes. Accordingly, $74.4 million of restricted investments held by the trustee for the August 1999 liquidation of this acquired debt are reflected as an asset at December 31, 1998. The prepayment penalty is reflected as part of the acquisition price of Signature Brands. This debt was redeemed in August 1999 utilizing the proceeds from investments restricted for this purpose.

4. Accounts Receivable Securitization

The Company has entered into a receivables securitization program that expires in March 2000. The Company has received $228.4 million and $130.6 million in the first nine months of each 1999 and 1998, respectively, for the sale of trade accounts receivable. Trade accounts receivable at September 30, 1999 and 1998 reflect a reduction of $36.9 million and $10.5 million, respectively, for receivables sold under this program. Costs of the program, which primarily consist of the purchaser's financing cost of issuing commercial paper backed by the receivables, totaled $1.7 million and $1.9 million in the first nine months of 1999 and 1998, respectively, and have been classified as interest expense in the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statements of Operations. The Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables. This agreement contains cross-default provisions that provide the purchaser of the receivables an option to cease purchasing receivables from the Company if the Company is in default under the New Credit Facility.

7. Asset Impairment and Other Charges

In the second quarter of 1998, decisions were made to outsource or discontinue a substantial number of products previously made by the Company (principally breadmakers, toasters and certain other appliances, air and water filtration products and the elimination of certain stock keeping units ("SKU's") within existing product lines, primarily relating to appliances, grills and grill accessories). As a result, certain facilities and equipment would either no longer be used or would be utilized in a significantly different manner. Accordingly, a charge of $29.6 million was recorded in Cost of Goods Sold to write certain of these assets down to their estimated fair market value. Approximately 80% of this charge related to machinery, equipment and tooling at the Company's Mexico City, Mexico and Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing plants, the estimated fair value for which was derived through an auction process. The remainder of this charge related to tooling and equipment at various other facilities, which either had a nominal value or the fair market value of which was derived through an auction process. These assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down and consequently were not depreciated further after the write-down. The net carrying value of these assets after the write-down approximated $2.2 million and these assets are expected to be substantially disposed of by December 31, 1999. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $2.6 million in the first half of 1998.

Personnel at the Mexico City facility were notified in the second quarter of 1998 that the plant was scheduled for closure at year-end 1998, accordingly, at that time, a liability of $1.8 million was recorded in Cost of Goods Sold primarily for employee severance. The employee severance related to approximately 1,200 positions of which 100 employees, representing a $0.4 million severance obligation, remained to be terminated at December 31, 1998. Substantially all of these remaining positions had been eliminated and the severance payments had been made as of June 30, 1999. Subsequent to the decisions made in conjunction with the acquisitions, management decided to discontinue certain SKU's within product lines (principally generators, compressors and propane cylinders). As a result, in the third quarter of 1998, the Company recorded as Cost of Goods Sold, an additional provision for impairment of fixed assets of $3.1 million in an acquired entity, relating to assets taken out of service for which there was no remaining value. These fixed assets were taken out of service at the time of the write-down and consequently were not depreciated further after the write-down. Depreciation expense associated with these assets approximated $0.8 million in 1998.

During 1997 and the first half of 1998, the Company built inventories in anticipation of 1998 sales volumes which did not materialize. As a result, it has been and will continue to be necessary to dispose of some portions of excess inventories at amounts less than cost. Accordingly, during 1998, when the facts and circumstances were known that such sales volume would not materialize, the Company recorded $48.6 million in charges (of which $46.4 million and $2.2 million were recorded in the second and third quarters, respectively) to properly state this inventory at the lower-of-cost-or-market. This inventory primarily related to certain appliances, grills and grill accessories.

The Company also recorded a charge during the second quarter of 1998 of $11.0 million for excess inventories for raw material and work in process that will not be used due to outsourcing the production of breadmakers, toasters, and certain other appliances. In addition, during the second quarter of 1998, the Company made the decision to exit certain product lines, primarily air and water filtration products and eliminate certain SKU's within existing product lines, primarily relating to appliances, grills and grill accessories. As a result of this decision, a $26.6 million charge was recorded during the second quarter to properly state this inventory at the lower-of-cost-or-market. Total charges for excess inventory recorded at the lower-of-cost-or-market, based upon management's best estimate of net realizable value, amounted to $86.2 million through September 30, 1998.

In the fourth quarter of 1998, in connection with management's decision to outsource the production of certain appliances (principally irons) the Company recorded $0.4 million of severance costs related to the elimination of approximately 45 production positions. During the nine months ended September 30, 1999, 8 positions were eliminated and $0.1 million of the severance was paid. The remaining positions are expected to be eliminated by December 31, 1999.

At December 31, 1998, the Company had $1.7 million of restructuring accruals relating to its 1996 restructuring plan. This $1.7 million was comprised of $1.2 million relating to lease payments and termination fees and $0.5 million relating to discontinued operations. During the nine months ended September 30, 1999, the Company expended $0.2 million for lease payments and termination fees and $0.4 million relating to discontinued operations, respectively. It is anticipated that the remaining restructuring accrual of $1.1 million ($1.0 million relating to lease payments and termination fees and $0.1 million relating to discontinued operations) will be paid through 2006.

Compensatory Stock Grants

On February 20, 1998, the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company (the "February 1998 Employment Agreements"). These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999. The new employment agreements provided for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the forfeiture of unvested restricted stock that had been granted under the July 1996 agreement, new restricted stock grants and options to purchase the Company's common stock. In addition, the new employment agreements provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related income tax gross-ups was recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups was amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 with amortization to continue over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total compensation expense recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items was approximately $31 million.

On June 15, 1998, the Company's Board of Directors announced the removal of the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and subsequently announced the removal or resignation of other senior officers, including the Company's then Chief Financial Officer. The Company and certain of its former officers are in litigation as to the Company's obligations to these individuals under prior agreements and arising from their termination. (See Note 10).

Purchase of Coleman Preferred Stock

On July 12, 1999, the Company acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock for an aggregate purchase price of approximately $31 million. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock the Company owns, enable Sunbeam to exercise 80.01% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock as of July 12, 1999. This class of preferred stock was created by Coleman and acquired by the Company in order to enable Coleman and the Company to file consolidated federal income tax returns, and in certain jurisdictions, consolidated state income tax returns, prior to the consummation of the Coleman merger. The issue price per share of the voting preferred stock was equal to 110% of the average closing price per share of common stock of Coleman over the five trading days prior to the date of issuance of the voting preferred stock. Except as required by law, the holders of the voting preferred stock vote as a single class with the holders of the Coleman common stock on all matters submitted to a vote of the holders of Coleman common stock, with each share of voting preferred stock and each share of Coleman common stock having one vote. The voting preferred stock has an annual dividend equal to 7% of $10.35 per share, the issue price per share of the voting preferred stock, which accrues but will not be paid in cash unless a liquidation of Coleman occurs or certain transactions are consummated as described below. In addition, the voting preferred stock will participate ratably with the Coleman common stock in all other dividends and distributions (other than liquidating distributions) made by Coleman to the holders of its common stock. The voting preferred stock will participate with the Coleman common stock in any merger, consolidation, or any other transaction (other than a merger of a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company with Coleman, including the Coleman merger) and will receive on a per share basis the same type and amount of consideration as the Coleman common stock. On liquidations of Coleman: (1) the holders of the voting preferred stock would receive a preferential distribution equal to $10.35 per share, plus accrued and unpaid dividends, (2) next, the holders of the Coleman common stock would receive an amount equal to $10.35 per share of Coleman common stock and (3) any assets remaining after such distributions would be shared by the holders of voting preferred stock and the Coleman common stock on a share for share basis. In connection with the issuance of the shares of preferred stock, Coleman entered into a tax sharing agreement with the Company pursuant to which Coleman will pay to Sunbeam amounts equal to the federal and state income taxes that would have been payable by Coleman had Coleman not been included in the consolidated income tax return of the Company. The terms of the voting preferred stock, their issue price and the terms of the tax sharing agreement were approved on Coleman's behalf by Coleman's then sole independent director. The net proceeds from the issuance of the shares by Coleman of its voting preferred stock to the Company were used by Coleman to make a partial repayment of loans outstanding from Sunbeam under the Intercompany Note.

10. Commitments and Contingencies

Litigation

On April 23, 1998, two class action lawsuits were filed on behalf of purchasers of the Company's common stock in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the Company and some of its present and former directors and former officers alleging violations of the federal securities laws as discussed below. After that date, approximately fifteen similar class actions were filed in the same Court. One of the lawsuits also named as defendant Arthur Andersen, the Company's independent accountants for the period covered by the lawsuit.

On June 16, 1998, the court entered an order consolidating all these suits and all similar class actions subsequently filed (collectively, the "Consolidated Federal Actions") and providing time periods for the filing of a consolidated amended complaint and defendants' response thereto. On June 22, 1998, two groups of plaintiffs made motions to be appointed lead plaintiffs and to have their selection of counsel approved as lead counsel. On July 20, 1998, the court entered an order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel. This order also stated that it shall apply to all subsequently filed actions that are consolidated with the other actions. On August 28, 1998, plaintiffs in one of the subsequently filed actions filed an objection to having their action consolidated pursuant to the June 16, 1998 order, arguing that the class period in their action differs from the class periods in the originally filed consolidated actions. On December 9, 1998, the court entered an order overruling plaintiffs' objections and affirming its prior order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel.

On January 6, 1999, plaintiffs filed a consolidated amended class action complaint against the Company, some of its present and former directors and former officers, and Arthur Andersen. The consolidated amended class action complaint alleges that, in violation of section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and SEC Rule 10b-5, defendants made material misrepresentations and omissions regarding the Company's business operations, future prospects and anticipated earnings per share, in an effort to artificially inflate the price of the Company's common stock and call options, and that, in violation of section 20(a) of the Exchange Act, the individual defendants exercised influence and control over the Company, causing the Company to make material misrepresentations and omissions. The consolidated amended complaint seeks an unspecified award of money damages. On February 5, 1999, plaintiffs moved for an order certifying a class consisting of all persons and entities who purchased the Company's common stock or who purchased call options or sold put options with respect to the Company's common stock during the period April 23, 1997 through June 30, 1998, excluding the defendants, their affiliates, and employees of the Company. Defendants' response to the motion for class certification was filed on May 6, 1999. On March 8, 1999, all defendants who had been served with the consolidated amended class action complaint moved to dismiss it. Under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, all discovery in the consolidated action is stayed pending resolution of the motions to dismiss.

On April 7, 1998, a purported derivative action was filed in the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida against the Company and some of its present and former directors and former officers. The action alleged that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties and wasted corporate assets when the Company granted stock options on or about February 2, 1998 at an exercise price of $36.85 to three of its officers and directors who were subsequently terminated by the Company. On June 25, 1998, all defendants filed a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to make a pre-suit demand on the Company's board of directors. On October 22, 1998, the plaintiff amended the complaint against all but one of the defendants named in the original complaint. On February 19, 1999, plaintiffs filed a second amended derivative complaint nominally on behalf of the Company against some of its present and former directors and former officers and Arthur Andersen. The second amended complaint alleges, among other things, that Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh, the Company's former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and former Chief Financial Officer, respectively, caused the Company to employ fraudulent accounting procedures in order to enable them to secure new employment contracts, and seeks a declaration that the individual defendants have violated fiduciary duties, an injunction against the payment of compensation to Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh or the imposition of a constructive trust on such payments, and unspecified money damages. The defendants have each moved to dismiss the second amended complaint in whole or in part.

On June 25, 1998, four purported class actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County by minority shareholders of Coleman against Coleman, the Company and certain of the Company's and Coleman's present and former officers and directors. An additional class action was filed on August 10, 1998 against the same parties. The complaints in these class actions allege, in essence, that the existing exchange ratio for the proposed Coleman merger is no longer fair to Coleman minority shareholders as a result of the decline in the market value of the Company's common stock. On October 21, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into a memorandum of understanding to settle, subject to court approval, the class actions. The court approved the settlement on November 12, 1999. Under the terms of the settlement, the Company will issue to Coleman minority shareholders and plaintiffs' counsel in this action warrants to purchase up to approximately 4.98 million shares of the Company's common stock at $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution adjustments. Coleman minority shareholders who elect an appraisal under Delaware law will not receive warrants. These warrants will generally have the same terms as the warrant issued to the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary and will be issued when the Coleman merger is consummated, which is now expected to occur in the fourth quarter of 1999 or early in the first quarter of 2000. Issuance of the warrants will be accounted for as additional purchase consideration.

During the months of August and October 1998, purported class action and derivative lawsuits were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County and in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by shareholders of the Company against the Company, MacAndrews & Forbes and some of the Company's present and former directors. These complaints allege that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties when the Company entered into a settlement agreement with the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary that sold the Company a controlling interest in Coleman. In the settlement agreement the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary released the Company from threatened claims arising out of the Company's acquisition of its interest in Coleman, and MacAndrews & Forbes agreed to provide management support to the Company. Under the settlement agreement, the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary was granted a warrant expiring August 24, 2003 to purchase up to an additional 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price of $7 per share, subject to anti-dilution provisions. The plaintiffs have requested an injunction against the issuance of stock to MacAndrews & Forbes upon the exercise of its warrant and unspecified money damages. These complaints also allege that the rights of the minority shareholders have been compromised, as the settlement would normally require shareholder approval under the rules and regulations of the NYSE. The audit committee of the Company's board of directors determined that obtaining such shareholder approval would have seriously jeopardized the financial viability of the Company which is an allowable exception to the NYSE shareholder approval requirements. By order of the Delaware Court of Chancery dated January 7, 1999, the derivative actions filed in that court were consolidated, and the Company and the other defendants have moved to dismiss these actions. The action filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida has been dismissed.

On September 16, 1998, an action was filed in the 56th Judicial District Court of Galveston County, Texas alleging various claims in violation of the Texas Securities Act and Texas Business and Commercial Code as well as common law fraud as a result of the Company's alleged misstatements and omissions regarding the Company's financial condition and prospects during a period beginning May 1, 1998 and ending June 16, 1998, in which the U.S. National Bank of Galveston, Kempner Capital Management, Inc. and Legacy Trust Company engaged in transactions in the Company's common stock on their own behalf and on behalf of their respective clients. The Company is the only named defendant in this action. The complaint requests recovery of compensatory damages, punitive damages and expenses in an unspecified amount. This action was removed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas and subsequently transferred to the Southern District of Florida and consolidated with the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiffs in this action have objected to the consolidation and have sought reconsideration by the Southern District of Florida of the order of the Southern District of Texas denying plaintiffs' motion to remand the case to state court and transferring it to Florida. A similar suit was brought by the same group of plaintiffs in the above action against Arthur Andersen. In that action, the plaintiffs allege that Arthur Andersen violated the Texas Securities Act, committed statutory and common law fraud and was negligent in its audits of the Company's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. On September 29, 1999, Arthur Andersen filed a motion for leave to join the Company and certain of its former officers as responsible third parties and contribution defendants. Their motion was denied.

On October 30, 1998, a class action lawsuit was filed on behalf of certain purchasers of the Debentures in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the Company and some of the Company's former officers and directors, alleging violations of the federal securities laws and common law fraud. The complaint alleges that the Company's offering memorandum used for the marketing of the Debentures contained false and misleading information regarding the Company's financial position and that the defendants engaged in a plan to inflate the Company's earnings for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs and others. The plaintiffs seek a declaration that defendants violated federal securities laws and either unspecified monetary damages or rescission of their purchase of the Debentures. The parties have negotiated a proposed coordination plan in order to coordinate proceedings in this action with those in the Consolidated Federal Actions.

The Company has been named as a defendant in an action filed in the District Court of Tarrant County, Texas, 48th Judicial District, on November 20, 1998. The Company was served in this action through the Secretary of State of Texas on January 15, 1999. The plaintiffs in this action are purchasers of the Debentures. The plaintiffs allege that the Company violated the Texas Securities Act and the Texas Business & Commercial Code and committed state common law fraud by materially misstating the financial position of the Company in connection with the offering and sale of the Debentures. The complaint seeks rescission, as well as compensatory and exemplary damages in an unspecified amount. The Company specially appeared to assert an objection to the Texas court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over the Company, and a hearing on this objection took place on April 15, 1999. On April 23, 1999, the court entered an order granting the Company's special appearance and dismissing the case without prejudice. The plaintiffs moved for reconsideration of the court order, which motion the court denied on May 24, 1999. The plaintiffs have appealed to the Texas Court of Appeals the order dismissing the case and that appeal is pending.

On April 12, 1999, a class action lawsuit was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida. The lawsuit was filed on behalf of persons who purchased Debentures during the period of March 20, 1998 through June 30, 1998, inclusive, but after the initial offering of such Debentures. The complaint asserts that the Company made material omissions and misrepresentations that had the effect of inflating the market price of the Debentures. The complaint names as defendants the Company, its former auditor, Arthur Andersen, and two former Company officers, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. The plaintiff is an institution which allegedly acquired in excess of $150,000,000 face amount of the Debentures and now seeks unspecified money damages. The Company was served on April 16, 1999 in connection with this pending lawsuit. The Company has requested that this action be coordinated with the Consolidated Federal Actions.

On February 9, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed with the American Arbitration Association demands for arbitration of claims under their respective employment agreements with the Company. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh are requesting a finding by the arbitrators that the Company terminated their employment without cause and that they should be awarded certain benefits based upon their respective employment agreements. On March 12, 1999, the Company asked the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County,

Florida to issue an injunction prohibiting Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh from pursuing their arbitration proceedings against the Company on the grounds, among others, that the simultaneous litigation of the action filed in that court on April 7, 1998, described above, and the arbitration proceedings would subject the Company to the threat of inconsistent adjudications with respect to certain rights to compensation asserted by Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh and would cause irreparable harm to the Company and its shareholders. On March 19, 1999, the plaintiff in the April 7, 1998 action discussed above moved for an injunction on similar grounds. On May 11, 1999, the court denied the motions for a preliminary injunction filed by the Company and the plaintiff. The Company has answered the arbitration demands of Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh and has filed counterclaims seeking, among other things, the return of all consideration paid, or to be paid, under the February 1998 Employment Agreements between the Company and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh. An answer was filed by Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh generally denying the Company's counterclaims. Discovery is pending.

On May 24, 1999, an action naming the Company as defendant was filed in the Circuit Court for Ozaukee County, Wisconsin. Prior to service of the complaint, the plaintiff dismissed its claims, voluntarily, without prejudice. The plaintiff in this action was a purchaser of the Debentures. The plaintiff alleged that the Company violated the Wisconsin Uniform Securities Act and committed acts of false advertising and misrepresentation in connection with the offering and sale of the Debentures. The plaintiff sought rescission, as well as compensatory and exemplary damages in an unspecified amount.

On September 13, 1999, an action naming the Company and Arthur Andersen as defendants was filed in the Circuit Court for Montgomery County, Alabama. The plaintiffs in this action are purchasers of the Company's common stock during the period March 19, 1998 through May 6, 1998. The plaintiffs allege, among other things, that the defendants violated the Alabama Security Laws and SEC Rule 10b-5. The plaintiffs seek compensatory and punitive damages in an unspecified amount. The Company has removed this case to the U.S. District Court for the District of Alabama. In addition, Arthur Andersen has filed a cross claim against the Company for contribution and indemnity. The Company has filed a motion with the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation to consolidate this action with the Consolidated Federal Actions.

The Company intends to vigorously defend each of the foregoing lawsuits other than those as to which a memorandum of understanding to settle has been reached, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of the Company's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if the Company were to lose these lawsuits, judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on the Company's consolidated financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

On March 23, 1999, Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh filed a complaint in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware seeking an order directing the Company to advance attorneys' fees and other expenses incurred in connection with various state and federal class and derivative actions and an investigation instituted by the SEC. The complaint alleges that such advancements are required by the Company's by-laws and by a forbearance agreement entered into between the Company and Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh in August, 1998. A trial of this summary proceeding was held on June 15 and 16, 1999. On June 23, 1999, the court issued a memorandum opinion directing the Company to pay about $1.4 million on account of expenses incurred to date and to advance the reasonable future expenses in those actions and investigations. Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh have agreed to repay all amounts advanced to them if it is ultimately determined that they are not entitled to indemnification under Delaware law.

On July 2, 1998, the American Alliance Insurance Company filed suit against the Company in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York requesting a declaratory judgment of the court that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for excess coverage issued by American Alliance was invalid and/or had been properly canceled by American Alliance. American Alliance has filed a motion for summary judgment on the ground that coverage was never bound. The Company has opposed that motion. As a result of a motion made by the Company, this case has been transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida for coordination and consolidation of pre-trial proceedings with the various actions pending in that court. On October 20, 1998, an action was filed by Federal Insurance Company in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American Alliance in the previously filed action as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. This action has been transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida and is currently in discovery. The Company is seeking a stay of discovery to coordinate discovery in this action with any discovery that may occur in the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiff has moved to compel production of various documents. On December 22, 1998, an action was filed by Executive Risk Indemnity, Inc. in the Circuit Court of the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit in and for Broward County, Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American and Federal in their previously filed actions as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. On April 15, 1999, the Company filed an action in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, PA, Gulf Insurance Company and St. Paul Mercury Insurance Company requesting, among other things, a declaratory judgment that National Union is not entitled to rescind its directors' and officers' liability insurance policies to the Company and a declaratory judgment that the Company is entitled to coverage from these insurance companies for the various lawsuits described herein under directors' and officers' liability insurance policies issued by each of the defendants. In response to the Company's complaint, defendants St. Paul and Gulf have answered and asserted counterclaims seeking rescission and declaratory relief that no coverage is available to the Company. The Company has denied the allegations of Gulf's and St. Paul's counterclaims. Defendant National Union has filed a motion to dismiss or stay the claims filed by the Company against National Union on the basis, among others, that the Company must submit the dispute to arbitration or mediation. The Company has filed a response opposing that motion. The Company intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against the Company or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions and to recover attorneys' fees covered under those policies. The Company's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgment in any of the actions described above could have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

By letter dated June 17, 1998, the staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised the Company that it was conducting an informal inquiry into the Company's accounting policies and procedures and requested that the Company produce certain documents. On July 2, 1998, the SEC issued a Formal Order of Private Investigation, designating SEC officers to take testimony and pursuant to which a subpoena was served on the Company requiring the production of certain documents. On November 4, 1998, another SEC subpoena requiring the production of additional documents was received by the Company. The Company has provided numerous documents to the SEC staff and continues to cooperate with the SEC staff. The Company has, however, declined to provide the SEC with material that the Company believes is subject to the attorney-client privilege and the work product immunity.

The SEC has not commenced any civil or administrative proceedings as a result of its investigation, and the Company cannot predict at this time whether the SEC will seek to impose any monetary or other penalties against the Company. Under these circumstances, the Company cannot estimate the duration of the investigation or its outcome.

The Company and its subsidiaries are also involved in various other lawsuits arising from time to time which the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these routine matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of the Company.

Amounts accrued for litigation matters represent the anticipated costs (damages and/or settlement amounts) in connection with pending litigation and claims and related anticipated legal fees for defending such actions. The costs are accrued when it is both probable that an asset has been impaired or a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated. The accruals are based upon the Company's assessment, after consultation with counsel, of probable loss based on the facts and circumstances of each case, the legal issues involved, the nature of the claim made, the nature of the damages sought and any relevant information about the plaintiffs and other significant factors which vary by case. When it is not possible to estimate a specific expected cost to be incurred, the Company evaluates the range of probable loss and records the minimum end of the range. As of September 30, 1999, the Company had established accruals for litigation matters of $22.6 million (representing $11.3 million and $11.3 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively.) As of December 31, 1998, the Company had established accruals for litigation matters of $31.2 million (representing $17.5 million and $13.7 million for estimated damages or settlement amounts and legal fees, respectively). It is anticipated that the $22.6 million accrual will be paid as follows: $5.2 million in 1999, $14.9 million in 2000, and $2.5 million in 2001. The Company believes, based on information known to the Company on September 30, 1999, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters existing as of September 30, 1999 have been adequately reserved, to the extent determinable.

Products Liability

As a consumer goods manufacturer and distributor, the Company faces the constant risks of product liability and related lawsuits involving claims for substantial money damages, product recall actions and higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. These claims could result in liabilities that could have a material adverse effect on the Company's consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows. Some of the product lines the Company acquired in the 1998 acquisitions have increased its exposure to product liability and related claims.

BRK Brands, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company, was a defendant in the case Gordon v. BRK Brands, Inc., et al. in the Circuit Court for the City of St Louis. In Gordon, the plaintiff alleged, among other things, that the plaintiff's smoke detector (which had been manufactured by a predecessor of BRK Brands) did not alarm quickly enough. In July 1999, the jury in the Gordon case awarded $20 million in compensatory damages and $30 million in punitive damages. This case has been settled and BRK's obligation under the settlement is to pay the balance of its self-insured retention.

The Company is party to various personal injury and property damage lawsuits relating to its products and incidental to its business. Annually, the Company sets its product liability insurance program based on the Company's current and historical claims experience and the availability and cost of insurance. The Company's program for 1999 was comprised of a self-insurance retention of $3.5 million per occurrence, and was limited to $28.0 million in the aggregate.

Cumulative amounts estimated to be payable by the Company with respect to pending and potential claims for all years in which the Company is liable under its self-insurance retention have been accrued as liabilities. Such accrued liabilities are necessarily based on estimates (which include actuarial determinations made by independent actuarial consultants as to liability exposure, taking into account prior experience, numbers of claims and other relevant factors); thus, the Company's ultimate liability may exceed or be less than the amounts accrued. The methods of making such estimates and establishing the resulting liability are reviewed continually and any adjustments resulting therefrom are reflected in current operating results.

Products Liability—(Continued)

Historically, product liability awards have rarely exceeded the Company's individual per occurrence self-insured retention. There can be no assurance, however, that the Company's future product liability experience will be consistent with its past experience. Based on existing information, the Company believes that the ultimate conclusion of the various pending product liability claims and lawsuits of the Company, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect on the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of the Company.

Environmental Matters

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sales of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials. The Company believes it is in substantial compliance with all environmental laws and regulations which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with environmental laws and regulations involves certain continuing costs; however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in the Company's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, the Company also is actively engaged in environmental remediation activities many of which are related to divested operations. As of December 31, 1998, the Company has been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") or a state environmental agency as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven sites subject to the federal Superfund Act and five sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively, the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant.

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order the PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Act is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at 11 sites, six of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law. The remediation efforts in which the Company is involved include facility investigations, including soil and groundwater investigations, corrective measure studies, including feasibility studies, groundwater monitoring, extraction and treatment, soil sampling, excavation and treatment relating to environmental clean-ups. In certain instances, the Company has entered into agreements with governmental authorities to undertake additional investigatory activities and in other instances has agreed to implement appropriate remedial actions. The Company has also established reserve amounts for certain non-compliance matters including those involving air emissions.

The Company has established reserves to cover the anticipated probable costs of investigation and remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which the Company has, or may have, remediation responsibility. The Company accrues environmental investigation and remediation costs when it is both probable that a liability has been incurred and the amount can be reasonably estimated and the Company's responsibility is established. Generally, the timing of these accruals coincides with the earlier of formal commitment to an investigation plan, completion of a feasibility study or the Company's commitment to a formal plan of action. As of September 30, 1999 and December 31, 1998, the Company's environmental reserves were $23.3 million (representing $21.6 million for the estimated costs of facility investigations, corrective measure studies or known remedial measures, and $1.7 million for estimated legal costs) and $25.0 million (representing $22.9 million for the estimated costs of facility investigations, corrective measure studies or known remedial measures, and $2.1 million for estimated legal costs), respectively. It is anticipated that the $23.3 million accrual at September 30, 1999 will be paid as follows: $5.2 million in 1999, $3.9 million in 2000, $1.8 million in 2001, $2.0 million in 2002, $0.6 million in 2003 and $9.8 million, thereafter. The Company has accrued its best estimate of investigation and remediation costs based upon facts known to the Company at such dates and because of the inherent difficulties in estimating the ultimate amount of environmental costs, which are further described below, these estimates may materially change in the future as a result of the uncertainties described below. Estimated costs, which are based upon experience with similar sites and technical evaluations, are judgmental in nature and are recorded at undiscounted amounts without considering the impact of inflation and are adjusted periodically to reflect changes in applicable laws or regulations, changes in available technologies and receipt by the Company of new information. It is difficult to estimate the ultimate level of future environmental expenditures due to a number of uncertainties surrounding environmental liabilities. These uncertainties include the applicability of laws and regulations, changes in environmental remediation requirements, the enactment of additional regulations, uncertainties surrounding remediation procedures including the development of new technology, the identification of new sites for which the Company could be a PRP, information relating to the exact nature and extent of the contamination at each site and the extent of required cleanup efforts; the uncertainties with respect to the ultimate outcome of issues which may be actively contested and the varying costs of alternative remediation strategies. The Company continues to pursue the recovery of some environmental remediation costs from certain of its liability insurance carriers; however, such potential recoveries have not been offset against potential liabilities and have not been considered in determining the Company's environmental reserves.

Due to uncertainty over remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in environmental laws and regulations and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of September 30, 1999.

The Company believes, based on existing information for sites where costs are estimable, that the costs of completing environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Commitment Fee

Under the terms of the April 15, 1999 amendment to the New Credit Facility, the Company is obligated to pay a loan commitment fee of between $4.2 million and $17.0 million. The ultimate amount of the fee is determined based on multiplying the sum of the outstanding borrowings and amounts available for borrowings as of April 15, 1999 by a factor that is determined at the earlier of September 30, 2000 or upon repayment of the New Credit Facility. This fee is payable at the earlier of September 30, 2000 or upon repayment of the New Credit Facility. At a minimum, the Company is obligated under these terms to pay $4.2 million. The ultimate amount due could be as high as $17.0 million if the sum of the outstanding borrowings and amounts available for borrowings at September 30, 2000 (the "aggregate availability") exceeds $1.2 billion. If the aggregate

021368

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES

(Unaudited)

availability is between $1.0 billion and $1.2 billion, a fee of $8.4 million will be due. If the aggregate availability is $1.0 billion or less, the $4.2 million minimum will be due. Under any circumstances, the $4.2 million will be due; therefore, the Company has accrued the minimum liability and an offsetting asset which is being amortized and included in interest expense through April 10, 2000, the term of the current amendment extension period.

The Company has not accrued for amounts in excess of the $4.2 million, as there are numerous uncertainties which may individually or in the aggregate impact the level of aggregate availability at September 30, 2000. These uncertainties include, but are not limited to: the ability to obtain an amendment or further waiver of existing covenants from the lenders under the New Credit Facility for the period beyond April 10, 2000; proceeds from the sales of assets or businesses, if any; changes in debt structure, including the effects of refinancing, if any; and cash flows generated or used by future operations. Given these uncertainties, the Company is currently not able to predict the probable level of aggregate availability at September 30, 2000. As events develop, the Company will periodically review the expected aggregate availability at September 30, 2000. If it becomes likely that an amount in excess of $4.2 million will be paid, the Company will recognize that change in estimate over the remaining period of the New Credit Facility Amendment.

11. Subsequent Event

On November 9, 1999, the Company announced a plan to divest Eastpak and certain non-essential assets. Net proceeds from these assets sales are estimated to be $200 million and will be primarily used to pay down debt.

AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER

AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER (this "Agreement"), dated as of February 27, 1986, between SUNBEAM CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation ("Laser"), CAMPER ACQUISITION CORP. (Merger Sub"), a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Laser, and THE COLEMAN COMPANY INC., a Delaware corporation (the "Company").

WHEREAS, the Boards of Directors of Laser, Merger Sub and the Company deem it advisable and in the best interests of their respective stockholders that Merger Sub merge with and into the Company (the "Company Merger"), and such Boards of Directors have approved the Company Merger, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth herein; and

WHEREAS, as a condition to the Company Merger, a newly formed, wholly owned subsidiary of Laser will merge with and into CLN Holdings Inc. referred to in this Section 3.1(a) being sometimes referred to herein as the "Per Share Merger Consideration").

(ii) If, prior to the Company Effective Time, Laser shall (A) pay a dividend in, subdivide, combine into a smaller number of shares or issue by reclassification of its shares, any shares of Laser Common Stock, the Conversion Number shall be adjusted appropriately or (B) pay a dividend (other than regular quarterly dividend payments, consistent with past practice), whether in cash or property, the amount of the cash portion of the Per Share Merger Consideration shall be appropriately adjusted such that the amount of cash to be received with respect to each share of Company Common Stock, or if a dividend shall have been paid in other property, cash and other property to be received with respect to each share of Company Common Stock, shall be equal to that which would have been received in the aggregate with respect to each share of Company Common Stock (on a per share equivalent basis) had the dividend been paid following the Company Effective Time at a time when the Laser Shares to be issued pursuant hereto had been issued to the holders of the shares of Company Common Stock.

(iii) Each of the shares of Company Common Stock converted in accordance with paragraph (i) of this Section 3.1(a) shall no longer be outstanding and shall automatically be cancelled and retired and shall cease to exist, and each holder of a certificate representing any such shares of Company Common Stock shall cease to have any rights with respect thereto, except the right to receive the Per Share Merger Consideration and cash in lieu of any fractional share of Laser Common Stock (determined in accordance with Section 3.4 hereof), to be issued or paid in consideration therefor upon the surrender of such certificate in accordance with Section 3.2 hereof, without interest.

No interest will be paid or accrued on the cash portion of the Exchange Fund. In the event of any transfer of ownership of shares of Company Common Stock which has not been registered in the transfer records of the Company, certificates representing the proper number of shares of Laser Common Stock, if any, and a check in an amount equal to the proper amount of the cash component, if any, of the Exchange Fund, will be issued to the transferee of the certificate representing the transferred shares of Company Common Stock, only upon presentation to the Exchange Agent of a certificate or certificates representing such shares of Company Common Stock, accompanied by all documents required to evidence and effect the prior transfer thereof and to evidence that any applicable stock transfer Taxes associated with such transfer were paid.

Section 3.3 Dividends; Transfer Taxes. No dividends that are declared on Laser Common Stock will be paid to persons entitled to receive certificates representing shares of Laser Common Stock until such persons surrender their certificates representing shares of Company Common Stock. Upon such surrender, there shall be paid to the person in whose name the certificates representing such shares of Laser Common Stock shall be issued, any dividends which shall have become payable with respect to such shares of Laser Common Stock between the Company Effective Time and the time of such surrender. In no event shall the person entitled to receive such dividends be entitled to receive interest on such dividends. If any certificates for any shares of Laser Common Stock are to be issued in a name other than that in which the certificate representing shares of Company Common Stock surrendered in exchange therefor is registered, it shall be a condition of such exchange that the person requesting such exchange shall pay to the Exchange Agent any transfer or other Taxes required by reason of the issuance of certificates for such shares of Laser Common Stock in a name other than that of the registered holder of the certificate surrendered or shall establish to the satisfaction of the Exchange Agent that such Tax has been paid or is not applicable. Notwithstanding the foregoing, (i) neither the Exchange Agent nor any party hereto shall be liable to a holder of shares of Company Common Stock for any shares of Laser Common Stock or dividends thereon, any cash payments to be made pursuant to Section 3.1(a)(i)(B) hereof or, in accordance with Section 3.4 hereof, any cash in lieu of fractional share interests, in each case, delivered to a public official pursuant to applicable escheat Laws and (ii) any shares of Laser Common Stock held by the Exchange Agent prior to surrender of certificates representing shares of Company Common Stock shall not be deemed issued.

Section 3.4 No Fractional Shares. No certificates or scrip representing fractional shares of Laser Common Stock shall be issued upon the surrender for exchange of certificates representing shares of Company Common Stock pursuant to this Article III, and no dividend, stock split or other change in the capital structure of Laser shall relate to any fractional security, and such fractional interests shall not entitle the owner thereof to vote or to any rights of a security holder. In lieu of any such fractional shares of Laser Common Stock, each holder of shares of Company Common Stock who would otherwise have been entitled to a fraction of a share of Laser Common Stock upon surrender of stock certificates for exchange pursuant to this Article III will be paid cash upon such surrender in an amount equal to the product of such fraction multiplied by the closing sale price of one share of Laser Common Stock on the NYSE on the day of the Company Effective Time, or, if shares of Laser Common Stock are not so traded on such day, the closing sale price of one such share on the next preceding day on which such share was traded on the NYSE. For purposes of this Section 3.4, shares of Company Common Stock of any holder represented by two or more certificates shall be aggregated, and in no event shall any holder be paid an amount of cash pursuant to this Section 3.4 in respect of more than one share of Laser Common Stock.

Section 3.5 Termination of Exchange Fund. Any portion of the Exchange Fund which remains undistributed to the holders of the Company Common Stock for six (6) months after the Company Effective Time shall be delivered to Laser, upon demand, and any holders of the Company Common Stock who have not theretofore complied with this Article III shall thereafter look only to Laser for payment of their claim for the shares of Laser Common Stock and cash and dividends or other distributions, if any, pursuant to this Article III.

Section 3.6 Investment of Exchange Fund. Without prejudice to the rights of any holder of Company Common Stock to receive the Per Share Merger Consideration, the Exchange Agent shall invest any cash included in the Exchange Fund, as directed by Laser, on a daily basis. Any interest and other income resulting from such investments shall be paid to Laser.

Section 3.7 Closing of Company Transfer Books. At the Company Effective Time, the stock transfer books of the Company shall be closed and no transfer of shares of Company Common Stock shall thereafter be made. If, after the Company Effective Time, certificates representing shares of Company Common Stock are presented to the Surviving Corporation, they shall be cancelled and exchanged for the Per Share Merger Consideration applicable thereto.

Each outstanding share of Company Common Stock as to which a written demand for appraisal is filed in accordance with Section 262 of the DGCL and not withdrawn, and with respect to which a consent is not given in favor of the Company Merger shall not be converted into or represent a right to receive the Per Share Merger Consideration unless and until the holder thereof shall have failed to perfect, or shall have effectively withdrawn or lost, the right to appraisal of and payment for each such share of Company Common Stock under Section 262, at which time each such share shall be converted into the right to receive the Per Share Merger Consideration. All such shares of Company Common Stock as to which such a written demand for appraisal is so filed and not withdrawn and with respect to which a consent is not given in favor of the Company Merger, except any such shares of Company Common Stock the holder of which, prior to the Company Effective Time, shall have effectively withdrawn or lost such right to appraisal and payment for such shares of Company Common Stock under Section 262, are herein referred to as "Dissenting Shares." The Company shall give Laser prompt notice upon receipt by the Company of any written demands for appraisal rights, withdrawal of such demands, and any other written communications delivered to the Company pursuant to Section 262, and the Company shall give Laser the opportunity, to the extent permitted by Law, to participate in all negotiations and proceedings with respect to such demands. Except with the prior written consent of Laser, the Company shall not voluntarily make any payment with respect to any demands for appraisal rights and shall not settle or offer to settle any such demands. Each holder of Dissenting Shares who becomes entitled, pursuant to the provisions of Section 262, to payment for such shares of Dissenting Shares under the provisions of Section 262 shall receive payment therefor from the Surviving Corporation and such shares of Company Common Stock shall be cancelled thereafter.

Each of the Company's subsidiaries that is a corporation is duly qualified as a foreign corporation to do business, and is in good standing, in each jurisdiction where the character of its properties owned or held under lease or the nature of its activities makes such qualification necessary, except where the failure to be so qualified would not individually or in the aggregate have a Company Material Adverse Effect. Each of the Company's subsidiaries that is a partnership is duly qualified as a foreign partnership authorized to do business, and is in good standing, in each jurisdiction where the character of its properties owned or held under lease or the nature of its activities makes such qualification necessary, except where the failure to be so qualified would not individually or in the aggregate have a Company Material Adverse Effect. Except as set forth in Section 4.5 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by the Company, nor the consummation by the Company of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by the Company with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of the Company or the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of any of the Company's subsidiaries; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or

As of their respective dates, the Company SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Except to the extent that information contained in any Company SEC Report has been amended, revised or superseded by a later Company SEC Report filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement (as amended, revised or superseded by a later Company SEC Report filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement, the "Filed Company SEC Reports"), none of the Filed Company SEC Reports, when filed, contained any untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.

(b) The consolidated financial statements of the Company included in the Filed Company SEC Reports complied as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements and the published rules and regulations of the SEC with respect thereto have been prepared in accordance with GAAP (except, in the case of the unaudited statements, as permitted by Form 10-Q of the SEC) applied on a consistent basis during the periods involved (except as may be indicated therein or in the notes thereto) and fairly present the consolidated financial position of the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries as of the dates thereof and the consolidated results of their operations and their consolidated cash flows for the periods then ended (subject, in the case of the unaudited statements, to normal year-end audit adjustments and to any other adjustments described therein).

(c) Except as set forth in the Filed Company SEC Reports and except for liabilities and obligations incurred in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice since the date of the most recent consolidated balance sheet included in the Filed Company SEC Reports (the "Company Balance Sheet Date"), neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has any material liabilities or obligations of any nature (whether accrued, absolute, contingent or otherwise) required by GAAP to be recognized or disclosed on a consolidated balance sheet of the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries or in the notes thereto.

Section 4.7 Absence of Certain Changes or Events. Except as set forth in the Filed Company SEC Reports, since the Company Balance Sheet Date, the business of the Company and its subsidiaries has been conducted only in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice, and there has not been any event, change or development which individually or in the aggregate has had or would reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect or would impair or delay the ability of the Company to consummate the transactions contemplated by, or to satisfy its obligations under, this Agreement. Except as set forth in Section 4.7 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, during the period from the Company Balance Sheet Date through the date of this Agreement, neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has:

(i) declared, set aside or paid any distributions (whether in cash, stock or property) with respect to its capital stock or (y) split, combined, or reclassified any of its capital stock or issued or authorized the issuance of any other securities in respect of, in lieu of or in substitution for shares of its capital stock (other than dividends or stock issuances by a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company to the Company or another wholly owned subsidiary of the Company);

(ii) issued, delivered, sold, pledged or otherwise encumbered any shares of its capital stock, any other voting securities or any securities convertible into, or any options, warrants or rights to acquire, any such shares, voting securities or convertible securities (other than the issuance of Company

Common Stock upon the exercise of Employee Stock Options in accordance with their terms and issuances by a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company to the Company or another wholly owned subsidiary of the Company);

(iii) in the case of the Company, amended its certificate of incorporation or by-laws;

(iv) acquired or agreed to acquire by merging or consolidating with, or in purchasing a substantial portion of the assets of, or in any other manner, any business or any corporation, limited liability company, partnership, association or other business organization or division thereof material to the Company;

(v) other than in the ordinary course of business, (x) incurred any indebtedness or (y) made any loans, advances or capital contributions to, or investments in, any other person (other than the Company or a subsidiary of the Company), in any case in an amount material to the Company;

(vi) other than in the ordinary course of business or consistent with the Company's capital budgets heretofore disclosed to Laser, made or agreed to make any capital expenditure or capital expenditures;

(vii) other than in the ordinary course of business, made any Tax election or settled or compromised any material income Tax liability;

(viii) except in the ordinary course of business or except as would not reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect, entered into any Contracts or amended or terminated any material Contract or agreement to which the Company or any of its subsidiaries is a party or waived, released or assigned any material rights or claims thereunder;

(ix) except as required by Law or contractual obligation or in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice, (a) increased the compensation of any of its employees, (b) entered into any Contract with any of its employees regarding his or her employment, compensation or benefits, or (c) adopted any plan, arrangement or policy which would become a Company Plan or amended any Company Plan to the extent such adoption or amendment would create or increase any material liability or obligation on the part of the Company or its subsidiaries;

(x) entered into any transaction or Contract with, or (except pursuant to the Affiliate Agreements) made any payment to, any Affiliate of the Company (other than to the Company's subsidiaries or its or their officers or directors in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice); or

(xi) agreed to do any of the foregoing.

Section 4.8 Litigation. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports and as set forth in Section 4.8 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, as of the date hereof, to the Company's knowledge there is no suit, action, proceeding or investigation pending or, to the knowledge of the Company, threatened against or affecting the Company or any of its subsidiaries that individually or in the aggregate would reasonably be expected to (i) have a Company Material Adverse Effect (taking into account any reserve therefor as of the Company Balance Sheet Date), or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, nor is there any judgment, order, decree, statute, Law, ordinance, rule or regulation of any Governmental Entity or arbitrator outstanding against the Company or any of its subsidiaries having, or which would reasonably be expected to have, any effect referred to in clause (i) or (ii) above.

Section 4.9 Information in Disclosure Documents and Registration Statement. None of the information to be supplied by the Company for inclusion or incorporation by reference in the information statement to be distributed in connection with the Company Merger (as amended or supplemented, the "Information Statement") or the related filing on Schedule 13E-3 (as amended or supplemented, the "Schedule 13E-3") or the notice to be provided to the Company's stockholders pursuant to Section 14(f) of the Exchange Act (as amended or supplemented, the "Section 14(f) Notice") or the registration statement on Form S-4 under the Securities Act for the purpose of registering the shares of Laser Common Stock to be issued in the Company Merger (as amended or supplemented, the "Registration Statement") will, in the case of the Registration Statement, at the time it becomes effective and at the Company Effective Time, contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, or, in the case of the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3, the Section 14(f) Notice, at the time of the mailing thereof and, in the case of the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 at the Company Effective Time, contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary in order to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading. The Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice will comply as to form in all material respects with the provisions of the Exchange Act, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder.

Section 4.10 Taxes. Except as would not have a Company Material Adverse Effect or as set forth in Section 4.10 of the Company Disclosure Schedule:

(a) Each of the Company and each of its subsidiaries has (i) filed (or there has been filed on its behalf) with the appropriate Governmental Entities all Tax Returns required to be filed by it, and all such Tax Returns are true, correct and complete and (ii) has paid all Taxes due by it;

(b) there is no action, suit, investigation, audit, claim or assessment pending or proposed in writing or threatened in writing with respect to Taxes of the Company or any of its subsidiaries and, to the best of the Company's knowledge, no basis exists therefor;

(c) there are no Liens for Taxes upon the assets of the Company or any of its subsidiaries except Liens relating to current Taxes not yet due;

(d) the United States federal income Tax Returns which include the Company and the Company's subsidiaries have been examined, and such examinations have been completed, by the Internal Revenue Service (or the applicable statutes of limitation for the assessment of federal income Taxes for such periods have expired) for all periods through and including 1985.

Section 4.11 Compliance with Applicable Law. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and its subsidiaries have received such certificates, permits, licenses, franchises, consents, approvals, orders, authorizations and clearances from appropriate Governmental Entities (the "Company Licenses") as are necessary to own or lease and operate their respective properties and to conduct their respective businesses substantially in the manner described in the Company SEC Reports and as currently owned or leased and conducted, and all such Company Licenses are valid and in full force and effect, except for any such certificates, permits, licenses, franchises, consents, approvals, orders, authorizations and clearances which the failure to have or to be in full force and effect would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a Company Material Adverse Effect. Except as disclosed in Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and the Company's subsidiaries are in compliance with their respective obligations under the Company Licenses, with only such exceptions as, individually or in the aggregate, would not reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and its subsidiaries are in compliance with all judgments, orders, decrees, statutes, Laws, ordinances, rules and regulations of any Governmental Entity applicable to them, except for such noncompliance which individually or in the aggregate would not have a Company Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.12 Labor Matters. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, neither the Company nor any of the Company's subsidiaries has any labor contracts, collective bargaining agreements or material employment or consulting agreements with any persons employed by or otherwise performing services primarily for the Company or any of the Company's subsidiaries (the "Company Business Personnel") or any representative of any Company Business Personnel. Except as set forth in the Filed Company SEC Reports, neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has engaged in any unfair labor practice with respect to Company Business Personnel, and there is no unfair labor practice complaint pending against the Company or any of its subsidiaries with respect to Company Business Personnel which, in either such case, would reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a Company Material Adverse Effect. Except as set forth in the Filed Company SEC Reports, there is no material labor strike, dispute, slowdown or stoppage pending or, to the knowledge of the Company, threatened against the Company or any of its subsidiaries, and neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has experienced any material primary work stoppage or other material labor difficulty involving its employees during the last three (3) years.

Section 4.13 ERISA Compliance.

(a) The Company has delivered to Laser or will deliver to Laser prior to the Company Effective Time each "employee pension benefit plan" (as defined in Section 3(2) of ERISA) (a "Pension Plan"), each "employee welfare benefit plan" (as defined in Section 3(1) of ERISA) (a "Welfare Plan"), each material bonus, stock option, stock purchase, stock ownership, stock bonus, restricted stock, deferred compensation plan or arrangement and each other material employee fringe benefit plan or arrangement maintained, contributed to or required to be maintained or contributed to by the Company or any of its subsidiaries or any other person or entity that, together with the Company, is or was treated as a single employer under Section 414(b), (c), (m) or (o) of the Code (each, a "Commonly Controlled Entity") which is currently in effect for the benefit of any current or former directors, officers, employees or independent contractors of the Company or any of its subsidiaries (collectively, the "Company Plans"). The Company has delivered to Laser or will deliver to Laser prior to the Company Effective Time true, complete and correct copies of (x) the two most recent annual reports on Form 5500 filed with the Internal Revenue Service with respect to each Company Plan (if any such report was required), (y) the most recent summary plan description for each Company Plan for which such summary plan description is required and (z) each currently effective trust agreement, insurance or group annuity contract and each other material funding or financing arrangement relating to any Company Plan.

(b) No Commonly Controlled Entity has incurred any liability under Title IV of ERISA, other than for contributions not yet due to a defined benefit pension plan subject to Title IV of ERISA and other than for the payment of premiums to the PBGC not yet due, and no condition exists that presents a material risk of incurring any such liability, which liability, to the extent currently due, has not been fully paid as of the date hereof and would individually or in the aggregate be reasonably likely to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(c) Except as set forth in Company SEC reports or in Section 4.13 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has any obligation to provide any welfare benefits to employees or former employees following termination of employment except (i) for benefits the cost of which is borne entirely by the employee or former employee, (ii) as required under Section 4980 of the Code or other applicable law or (iii) obligations to provide such benefits to Company employees employed in non-U.S. jurisdictions.

(d) No Commonly Controlled Entity has engaged in a transaction described in Section 4069 of ERISA that could subject the Company or any of its subsidiaries or Laser to liability at any time after the date hereof, which liability would be reasonably likely to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(e) No Commonly Controlled Entity has withdrawn from any multiemployer plan where such withdrawal has resulted in any actual or potential "withdrawal liability" (as defined in Section 4201 of ERISA) that has not been fully paid, which liability would be reasonably likely to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(f) Except as set forth in Section 4.13 of the Company Disclosure Schedule or as specifically provided in this Agreement, the transactions contemplated by this Agreement will not, either alone or in connection with another event, cause there to be paid or become payable any additional benefits or any acceleration of the time of payment or vesting of any benefits under any Company Plan or under any employment, severance, termination or compensation agreement to which the Company is a party as of the Company Effective Time.

Section 4.14 Environmental Matters.

(a) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and its subsidiaries are in compliance with all applicable Environmental Laws, which compliance includes the possession of permits and governmental authorizations required under applicable Environmental Laws ("Environmental Permits') and compliance with the terms and conditions thereof, except where such non-compliance would not result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(b) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, there are no Environmental Claims pending or, to the knowledge of the Company, threatened against the Company or any of its subsidiaries that would reasonably be expected to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(c) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the properties presently or to the knowledge of the Company formerly owned, leased or operated by the Company or its subsidiaries (including groundwater under the properties) (the "Properties") do not contain any Hazardous Substance other than as permitted under applicable Environmental Law; provided, however, that with respect to Properties formerly owned, leased or operated by the Company or its subsidiaries, such representation is limited to the period prior to the disposition of such Properties by the Company or its subsidiaries.

(d) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, to the knowledge of the Company, no Hazardous Substance has been disposed of or transported from any of the Properties during the time any such Property was owned, leased or operated by the Company or any of its subsidiaries, other than as permitted under applicable Environmental Law and in effect at the time of such disposal or transportation.

(e) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, to the knowledge of the Company, the Company and its subsidiaries have not become obligated, whether by operation of Law or through contractual agreement, to indemnify any other person or otherwise to assume liability for any claim brought pursuant to any Environmental Law which could reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.15 Intellectual Property. The Company has previously delivered to Laser a list, which, to the knowledge of the Company, is true and correct as of the date hereof in all material respects, of all material issued patents and registered trademarks of the Company. Except as set forth in Section 4.15 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, the Company and its subsidiaries own or have sufficient rights to use all material Intellectual Property used in connection with the business of the Company and its subsidiaries as currently conducted. As used in this Section 4.15, the term "material," when applied to Intellectual Property, means that such Intellectual Property is used in a significant manner to conduct the business of the Company and its subsidiaries as it is currently conducted.

Section 4.16 Contracts. Except as set forth in Section 4.16 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries is a party to or bound by any material Contract, other than (i) the Affiliate Agreements listed in Section 4.10 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule, (ii) any Contract filed or incorporated by reference as an exhibit to any Filed Company SEC Report or (iii) any Contract (other than the Affiliate Agreements listed in Section 4.10 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule) entered into in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice.

Section 4.17 Opinion of Financial Advisor. The Board of Directors of the Company has received the opinion of Credit Suisse First Boston, dated the date hereof to the effect that the Per Share Merger Consideration is fair to the holders of shares of Company Common Stock (other than Worldwide) from a financial point of view.

Section 4.18 Takeover Statute. The Board of Directors of the Company has approved the Holdings Merger solely for the purpose of rendering inapplicable, and such approval is sufficient to render inapplicable, to the Company Merger and the other transactions contemplated by this Agreement the provisions of Section 203 of the DGCL. To the best of the Company's knowledge, no other state takeover statute or similar statute or regulation applies or purports to apply to the Company Merger, this Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated hereby, and no provision of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of the Company or certificates of incorporation or by-laws (or comparable organizational documents) of any subsidiary of the Company would, directly or indirectly, restrict or impair the ability of Laser to vote, or otherwise to exercise the rights of a stockholder with respect to, shares of capital stock of the Company or any of its subsidiaries that may be acquired or controlled by Laser.

Section 4.19 Brokers. No broker, investment banker or other person, other than Credit Suisse First Boston, the fees and expenses of which will be paid by the Company (as reflected in an agreement between Credit Suisse First Boston and the Company, a copy of which has been furnished to Laser), is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of the Company.

ARTICLE V
REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES OF LASER
AND MERGER SUB

Laser and Merger Sub represent and warrant to the Company as follows:

Section 5.1 Organization. Laser is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the Laws of the State of Delaware and has the corporate power to carry on its business as it is now being conducted. Laser is duly qualified as a foreign corporation to do business, and is in good standing, in each jurisdiction where the character of its properties owned or held under lease or the nature of its activities makes such qualification necessary, except where the failure to be so qualified would not individually or in the aggregate have a material adverse effect on the business, results of operations or financial condition of Laser and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole (a "Laser Material Adverse Effect").

Section 5.2 Capitalization. The authorized capital stock of Laser consists of 200,000,000 shares of Laser Common Stock, and 2,000,000 shares of Laser Preferred Stock. As of February 23, 1998, (i) 85,988,627 shares of Laser Common Stock were issued and outstanding; (ii) 16,129,197 shares of Laser Common Stock were issuable upon exercise of employee and non-employee stock options (the "Laser Stock Options") outstanding under all stock option plans of Laser (the "Laser Stock Option Plans") or granted pursuant to employment agreements; and (iii) no shares of Laser Preferred Stock were issued and outstanding. As of such date, 4,568,959 shares of Laser Common Stock were held as treasury shares. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Laser Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. All of the shares of Laser Common Stock issuable as consideration in the Company Merger at the Company Effective Time in accordance with this Agreement will be, when so issued, duly authorized, validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. As of such date, except as set forth above, there are no shares of capital stock of Laser issued or outstanding or, as of such date or as of the date hereof, except as set forth above, any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Laser to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities, or the capital stock or securities of Laser. There are no notes, bonds, debentures or other indebtedness of Laser having the right to vote (or convertible into or exchangeable for securities having the right to vote) on any matters upon which stockholders of Laser may vote.

Section 5.3 Merger Sub. Merger Sub is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the Laws of the State of Delaware. Merger Sub is a newly incorporated company formed solely for purposes of consummating the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and has engaged in no activity other than as provided in, or contemplated by, this Agreement. The authorized capital stock of Merger Sub consists of 1,000 shares of Merger Sub Common Stock, all of which are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and are owned by Laser. Except as set forth above there are no shares of capital stock of Merger Sub issued or outstanding or any options, warrants, subscription, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Merger Sub to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

Section 5.4 Authority Relative to this Agreement. Each of Laser and Merger Sub has the corporate power and authority to enter into this Agreement and to perform its obligations hereunder and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby. The execution and delivery of this Agreement by Laser and Merger Sub and the consummation by Laser and Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated hereby have been duly authorized by the Boards of Directors of Laser and Merger Sub, and no other corporate action or proceedings on the part of Laser or Merger Sub (including any action on the part of its stockholders) is necessary to authorize this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby. This Agreement has been duly executed and delivered by Laser and Merger Sub and, assuming it is a valid and binding obligation of the Company, constitutes a valid and binding agreement of Laser and Merger Sub, enforceable against Laser and Merger Sub in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or similar Laws now or hereafter in effect relating to creditors' rights generally and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought.

Section 5.5 Consents and Approvals; No Violations. Except for applicable requirements of the HSR Act, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, Competition Laws, and state securities or blue sky Laws, and the filing of the Certificate of Merger in such form as required by, and executed in accordance with the relevant provisions of, the DGCL, no filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any governmental or regulatory authority is necessary for the consummation by Laser or Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, except for such filings, permits, authorizations, consents or approvals the failure of which to be made or obtained would not (i) individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Laser or Merger Sub nor the consummation by Laser or Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Laser with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Laser or Merger Sub; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any material (as defined for purposes of Form 10-K) Contract to which Laser, Merger Sub or any of their subsidiaries is a party or by which any of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Laser, Merger Sub, any of their subsidiaries or any of their properties or assets, except, in the case of clauses (b) and (c), for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

Section 5.6 Reports and Financial Statements

(a) Laser has filed all reports, forms, registrations, schedules, statements and other documents required to be filed by it with the SEC since January 1, 1997 (the "Laser SEC Reports"). As of their respective dates, the Laser SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Except to the extent that information contained in any Laser SEC Report has been amended, revised or superseded by a later Laser SEC Report filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement (as amended, revised or superseded by a later filed Laser SEC Report to the date of this Agreement, the "Filed Laser SEC Reports"), none of the Filed Laser SEC Reports, when filed, contained any untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.

(b) The consolidated financial statements of Laser included in the Filed Laser SEC Reports complied as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements and the published rules and regulations of the SEC with respect thereto, have been prepared in accordance with GAAP (except, in the case of the unaudited statements, as permitted by Form 10-Q of the SEC) applied on a consistent basis during the periods involved (except as may be indicated therein or in the notes thereto) and fairly present the consolidated financial position of Laser and its consolidated subsidiaries as of the dates thereof and the consolidated results of their operations and their consolidated cash flows for the periods then ended (subject, in the case of the unaudited statements, to normal year-end audit adjustments and to any other adjustments described therein).

(c) Except as set forth in the Filed Laser SEC Reports and except for liabilities and obligations incurred in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice since the date of the most recent consolidated balance sheet included in the Filed Laser SEC Reports (the "Laser Balance Sheet Date"), neither Laser nor any of the Laser subsidiaries has any material liabilities or obligations of any nature (whether accrued, absolute, contingent or otherwise) required by GAAP to be recognized or disclosed on a consolidated balance sheet of Laser and its consolidated subsidiaries or in the notes thereto.

Section 5.7 Absence of Certain Changes or Events. Except as set forth in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, since the Laser Balance Sheet Date, the business of Laser and its subsidiaries has been conducted only in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice, and there has not been any event, change or development which individually or in the aggregate has had or would reasonably be expected to have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or would impair or delay the ability of Laser to consummate the transactions contemplated by, or to satisfy its obligations under, this Agreement.

Section 5.8 Litigation. Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, there is no suit, action, proceeding or investigation pending or, to the knowledge of Laser, threatened against or affecting Laser or any of its subsidiaries that individually or in the aggregate would reasonably be expected to (i) have a Laser Material Adverse Effect (taking into account any reserve therefor as of the most recent balance sheet included in the Filed Laser SEC Reports) or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, nor is there any judgment, order, decree, statute, Law, ordinance, rule or regulation of any Governmental Entity or arbitrator outstanding against Laser or any of its subsidiaries having, or which would reasonably be expected to have, any effect referred to in clause (i) or (ii) above.

Section 5.9 Information in Disclosure Documents and Registration Statement. None of the information to be supplied by Laser for inclusion or incorporation by reference in (a) the Registration Statement or (b) the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 or the Section 14(f) Notice will, in the case of the Registration Statement, at the time it becomes effective and at the Company Effective Time contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, or, in the case of the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice, at the time of the mailing thereof and, in the case of the Information Statement and the Schedule 13E-3, at the Company Effective Time, contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary in order to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading. The Registration Statement will comply as to form in all material respects with the provisions of the Securities Act and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. The Schedule 13E-3 will comply as to form in all material respects with the provisions of the Exchange Act and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder.

Section 5.10 Taxes.

(a) Laser and its subsidiaries have filed (or there have been filed on their behalf) with the appropriate governmental authorities all material Tax Returns required to be filed by them and such Tax Returns are true, correct and complete in all material respects and disclose all Taxes required to be paid by them for the periods covered thereby; and

(b) all material Taxes (whether or not shown on any Tax Return) owed by Laser and its subsidiaries and required to be paid on or before the Closing Date have been (or will be) timely paid or, in the case of Taxes which Laser or any of its subsidiaries is presently contesting in good faith, an adequate reserve has been established for such Taxes in accordance with GAAP.

Section 5.11 Compliance with Applicable Law. Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, Laser and its subsidiaries have received such certificates, permits, licenses, franchises, consents, approvals, orders, authorizations and clearances from appropriate Governmental Entities (the "Laser Licenses") as are necessary to own or lease and operate their respective properties and to conduct their respective businesses substantially in the manner described in the Laser SEC Reports and as currently owned or leased and conducted, and all such Laser Licenses are valid and in full force and effect, except for any such certificates, permits, licenses, franchises, consents, approvals, orders, authorizations and clearances which the failure to have or to be in full force and effect would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a Laser Material Adverse Effect. Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, Laser and its subsidiaries are in compliance in all material respects with their respective obligations under the Laser Licenses, with only such exceptions as, individually or in the aggregate, would not reasonably be expected to have a Laser Material Adverse Effect. Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, Laser and its subsidiaries are in compliance with all judgments, orders, decrees, statutes, Laws, ordinances, rules and regulations of any Governmental Entity applicable to them, except for such noncompliance which individually or in the aggregate would not have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

Section 5.12 Brokers. No broker, investment banker or other person, other than Morgan Stanley, the fees and expenses of which will be paid by Laser (as reflected in an agreement between Morgan Stanley and Laser) is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of Laser.

ARTICLE VI

COVENANTS RELATING TO CONDUCT OF BUSINESS

Section 6.1 Conduct of Business by the Company. During the period from the date of this Agreement to the Holdings Effective Time, except as expressly permitted by this Agreement or with the prior written consent of Laser or as set forth in Section 6.1 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, the Company shall, and shall cause its subsidiaries to, carry on the business of the Company and its subsidiaries in the usual, regular and ordinary course in substantially the same manner as heretofore conducted and in compliance in all material respects with all applicable Laws and regulations and, to the extent consistent therewith, use all reasonable efforts to preserve intact the current business organizations of the Company and its subsidiaries, and to preserve its relationships with those persons having business dealings with the Company and its subsidiaries to the end that the goodwill and ongoing businesses of the Company and its subsidiaries shall be unimpaired at the Holdings Effective Time. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, during the period from the date of this Agreement to the Holdings Effective Time, the Company agrees as to itself and its subsidiaries that, except as expressly permitted by this Agreement or with the prior written consent of Laser or as set forth in Section 6.1 of the Company Disclosure Schedule:

(i) Neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries shall (x) declare, set aside or pay any distributions (whether in cash, stock or property) with respect to its capital stock or (y) split, combine, or reclassify any of its capital stock or issue or authorize the issuance of any other securities in respect of, in lieu of or in substitution for shares of its capital stock (other than dividends or stock issuances by a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company to the Company or another wholly owned subsidiary of the Company);

(ii) Neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries shall issue, deliver, sell, pledge or otherwise encumber any shares of its capital stock, any other voting securities or any securities convertible into, or any options, warrants or rights to acquire, any such shares, voting securities or convertible securities (other than the issuance of Company Common Stock upon the exercise of Employee Stock Options in accordance with their terms and issuances by a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company to the Company or another wholly owned subsidiary of the Company);

(iii) The Company shall not amend its certificate of incorporation or by-laws;

(iv) Other than as would not be material to the Company, the Company and its subsidiaries shall not acquire or agree to acquire (x) by merging or consolidating with, or by purchasing a substantial portion of the assets of, or in any other manner, any business or any corporation, limited liability company, partnership, joint venture, association or other business organization or division thereof or (y) any assets that individually or in the aggregate are material to the Company and its subsidiaries;

(v) Other than as would not be material to the Company, the Company and its subsidiaries shall not sell, lease, license or otherwise encumber or subject to any Lien or otherwise dispose of any of the properties or assets of the Company and its subsidiaries, other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or pursuant to existing contractual obligations, if any, set forth in Section 6.1 of the Company Disclosure Schedule;

(vi) Other than in the ordinary course of business or as would not be material to the Company, the Company and its subsidiaries shall not (x) incur any indebtedness or (y) make any loans, advances or capital contributions to, or investments in, any other person (other than the Company or a subsidiary of the Company), other than to officers and employees of the Company and its subsidiaries for travel, business or relocation expenses in the ordinary course of business;

(vii) Other than in the ordinary course of business or consistent with the Company's 1998 capital budget;

(viii) Other than in the ordinary course of business, the Company and its subsidiaries shall not make any material Tax election or settle or compromise any material income Tax liability;

(ix) Except in the ordinary course of business or except as would not reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect, the Company and its subsidiaries (i) shall not enter into any Contracts and (ii) shall not modify, amend or terminate any material Contract or agreement to which the Company or any of its subsidiaries is, or as of the Company Effective Time will be, a party or waive, release or assign any material rights or claims thereunder;

(x) Except as required by Law or previously existing contractual arrangements, in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as disclosed or otherwise provided in this Agreement, the Company will not, nor will it permit any of its subsidiaries to, (a) increase the compensation of any of its employees, (b) enter into any Contract with any of its employees regarding his or her employment, compensation or benefits, or (c) adopt any plan, arrangement or policy which would become a Company Plan or amend any Company Plan to the extent such adoption or amendment would create or materially increase any material liability or obligation on the part of the Company or its subsidiaries;

(xi) The Company and its subsidiaries shall not make any change to their accounting methods, principles or practices, except as may be required by GAAP or Regulation S-X promulgated by the SEC or by Law;

(xii) The Company shall not, and shall not permit any of its subsidiaries to, create, incur, suffer to exist or assume any material Lien on any of their assets, except as would not have a Company Material Adverse Effect or materially impair the Company's conduct of the business and operations of the Company and its subsidiaries, as presently conducted;

(xiii) The Company shall not, and shall not permit any of its subsidiaries to enter into any transaction or contract with, or (except pursuant to the Affiliate Agreements) make any payment to, any Affiliate of the Company (other than the Company's subsidiaries or its or their officers or directors in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice); and

(xiv) The Company and its subsidiaries shall not authorize, or commit or agree to take, any of the foregoing actions.

Section 6.2 Other Actions. During the period from the date hereof to the Holdings Effective Time, the Company and Laser shall not, and shall not permit any of their respective subsidiaries to, take any action that would, or that could reasonably be expected to, result in (i) any of the representations and warranties of such party set forth in this Agreement that are qualified as to materiality becoming untrue, (ii) any of such representations and warranties that are not so qualified becoming untrue in any material respect or (iii) any of the conditions to the Company Merger set forth in Article VIII hereof not being satisfied.

Section 6.3 Advice of Changes. Upon obtaining knowledge of any such occurrence, the Company and Laser shall promptly advise the other party orally and in writing of (i) any representation or warranty made by it contained in this Agreement that is qualified as to materiality becoming untrue or inaccurate in any respect or any such representation or warranty that is not so qualified becoming untrue or inaccurate in any material respect, (ii) the failure by it to comply with or satisfy in any material respect any covenant, condition or agreement to be complied with or satisfied by it under this Agreement or (iii) any change or event (x) having, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would have, in the case of Laser, a Laser Material Adverse Effect and, in the case of the Company, a Company Material Adverse Effect, (y) having, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would have, the effect set forth in clause (i) above or (z) which has resulted, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would result, in any of the conditions set forth in Article VIII hereof not being satisfied; provided, however, that no such notification shall affect the representations, warranties, covenants or agreements of the parties or the conditions to the obligations of the parties under this Agreement.

Section 6.4 Conduct of Business of Merger Sub. From the date hereof to the Company Effective Time, Merger Sub shall not (i) engage in any activities of any nature, (ii) acquire any assets, or (iii) incur any indebtedness or assume any liabilities or obligations, in each case, except as provided in or contemplated by this Agreement.

Section 6.5 Section 14(f) Notice. Promptly after the date hereof, Laser shall provide to the Company in writing the information with respect to the Laser Designees (as defined in the Holdings Merger Agreement) required by Section 14(f) of the Exchange Act and Rule 14f-1 of the SEC. Promptly after its receipt of such information, the Company shall file with the SEC and mail to all stockholders of record of the Company the Section 14(f) Notice.

ARTICLE VII

ADDITIONAL AGREEMENTS

Section 7.1 Preparation of the Registration Statement, the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice. As soon as reasonably practicable following the date of this Agreement, Laser and the Company shall prepare and file with the SEC the Information Statement and Laser shall prepare and file with the SEC the Registration Statement, in which the Information Statement will be included as a prospectus (including the financial statements and pro forma financial information required to be set forth therein), and the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice. Laser shall use all reasonable best efforts to have the Registration Statement declared effective under the Securities Act and the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice cleared by the SEC and mailed as promptly as practicable after such filing. The Company will use all reasonable best efforts to cause the Information Statement and the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice to be mailed to the Company's stockholders as promptly as practicable after it has been cleared by the SEC. Each of Laser and the Company shall also take any action (other than qualifying to do business in any jurisdiction in which it is not now so qualified or to file a general consent to service of process) required to be taken under any applicable state securities Laws in connection with the issuance of Laser Common Stock in connection with the Company Merger and the Holdings Merger. The Company shall furnish all information concerning the Company, its subsidiaries and the holders of the Company Common Stock and Laser shall furnish all information concerning Laser and its subsidiaries, in each case, as may be reasonably requested in connection with any such action.

Section 7.2 Access and Information; Confidentiality. The Company and Laser shall each afford to the other and to the other's financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants, consultants and other representatives full access at all reasonable times throughout the period prior to the Company Effective Time to all of its books, records, properties, plants and personnel (provided that all such access shall be on reasonable advance notice and shall not disrupt normal business operations) and, during such period, each shall furnish promptly to the other (a) a copy of each report, schedule and other document filed or received by it pursuant to the requirements of federal or state securities Laws, and (b) all other information as such other party may reasonably request, provided that no investigation pursuant to this Section 7.2 shall affect any representations or warranties made herein or the conditions to the obligations of the respective parties to consummate the Company Merger. Each party and their respective affiliates, representatives and agents shall hold in confidence all nonpublic information in accordance with the terms of the Confidentiality Agreements between Laser and the Company dated February 4, 1998 and February 23, 1998.

Section 7.3 Comfort Letters.

(a) The Company shall use its reasonable best efforts to cause to be delivered to Laser "comfort" letters of Ernst & Young, LLP, the Company's independent public accountants, dated the date on which the Registration Statement shall become effective and as of the date on which the Information Statement is mailed to the Company's stockholders, and addressed to Laser and the Company, in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to Laser and as is reasonably customary in scope and substance for letters delivered by independent public accountants in connection with transactions such as those contemplated by this Agreement.

(b) Laser shall use its reasonable best efforts to cause to be delivered to the Company "comfort" letters of Arthur Andersen, LLP, Laser's independent public accountants, dated the date on which the Registration Statement shall become effective and as of the date on which the Information Statement is mailed to the Company's stockholders, and addressed to the Company and Laser, in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to the Company and as is reasonably customary in scope and substance for letters delivered by independent public accountants in connection with transactions such as those contemplated by this Agreement.

Section 7.4 Listing Application. Laser shall prepare and submit to the NYSE a listing application covering the Laser Shares to be issued in connection with the Company Merger, and shall use its reasonable best efforts to obtain, prior to the Company Effective Time, approval for the listing of such Laser Shares, subject to official notice of issuance.

Section 7.5 Affiliates. Prior to the Company Effective Time, the Company shall cause to be prepared and delivered to Laser a list (reasonably satisfactory to counsel for Laser) identifying each person who, at the time the Information Statement is mailed to the Company's stockholders, may be deemed to be an "affiliate" of the Company, as such term is used in paragraphs (c) and (d) of Rule 145 under the Securities Act (the "Company Rule 145 Affiliates"). The Company shall use its reasonable best efforts to cause such person who is identified as a Company Rule 145 Affiliate in such list to deliver to Laser on or prior to the Company Effective Time a written agreement, in customary form, that such Company Rule 145 Affiliate will not (i) sell, pledge, transfer or otherwise dispose of, or in any other way reduce such Company Rule 145 Affiliate's risk relative to, any Laser Shares issued to such Company Rule 145 Affiliate in connection with the Company Merger, except pursuant to an effective registration statement or in compliance with such Rule 145 or another exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act or (ii) sell or in any other way reduce such Rule 145 Affiliate's risk relative to any Laser Shares received in the Company Merger (within the meaning of Section 201.01 of the SEC's Financial Reporting Release No. 1) during the period commencing thirty (30) days prior to the Company Effective Time and ending at such time as the financial results (including combined sales and net income) covering at least thirty (30) days of post-Merger operations have been published, except as permitted by Staff Accounting Bulletin No. 76 issued by the SEC.

Section 7.6 HSR Act; Competition Laws. As soon as reasonably practicable, the Company, Laser and Merger Sub shall make or cause to be made all filings and submissions under the HSR Act (if applicable) and any other applicable Competition Laws as may be reasonably required to be made in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. Subject to Section 7.2 hereof, the Company will furnish to Laser and Laser will furnish to the Company, such information and assistance as the other may reasonably request in connection with the preparation of any such filings or submissions. Subject to Section 7.2 hereof, the Company will provide Laser, and Laser will provide the Company, with copies of all correspondence, filings or communications (or memoranda setting forth the substance thereof) between such party or any of its representatives, on the one hand, and any governmental agency or authority or members of their respective staffs, on the other hand, with respect to this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. The Company and Laser shall consult with one another with respect to any such correspondence, filings or communications and shall engage in discussions with any Governmental Entity on a joint basis.

Section 7.7 Employee Matters.

(a) From and after the Holdings Effective Time, Laser shall honor, and shall cause the Company to honor, all employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which the Company is a party as of the Holdings Effective Time; provided, however, that (i) neither Laser nor the Company shall have any responsibility for the Company's obligations under that certain employment agreement entered into as of October 1, 1997, between the Company and Jerry W. Levin (except for the incentive payment provided for in section 3.2(b) thereof (relating to the divestiture of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc.), which shall be the responsibility of the Company and paid in accordance with the terms of section 3.2(b) thereof), and (ii) neither Laser nor the Company shall have any responsibility for the Company's obligations under that certain employment agreement entered into as of July 1, 1997, between the Company and Paul E. Shapiro. Except as provided in the first sentence of Section 7.7(b) or the proviso to this sentence, from and after the Holdings Effective Time, Laser will cause the Company to allow Company employees to participate in Laser employee benefit plans on substantially the same basis as similarly situated Laser employees; provided, however, that Laser will cause the Company to continue the Company Plans for at least six (6) months following the Holdings Effective Time. Laser will or will cause the Company to give Company employees full credit for purposes of eligibility and vesting of benefits and benefit accrual for service with the Company and its affiliates prior to the Holdings Effective Time under each Laser employee benefit plan; provided, however, that no such crediting of service results in duplication of benefits. With respect to any welfare benefit plans maintained for the benefit of Company employees from and after the Holdings Effective Time, Laser shall (i) cause there to be waived any pre-existing condition limitations and (ii) give effect, in determining any deductible and maximum out-of-pocket limitations, to claims incurred and amounts paid by, and amounts reimbursed to, such employees with respect to similar plans maintained by the Company for such employee's benefit immediately prior to the Holdings Effective Time. Laser acknowledges that, for the purposes of certain of such Company Plans and certain of such other employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which the Company is currently a party, the consummation of the Holdings Merger will constitute a "change in control" of the Company (as such term is defined in such plans and agreements). Laser agrees to cause the Company, after the Holdings Effective Time, to pay all amounts provided under such Company Plans and agreements as a result of a change in control of the Company in accordance with their respective terms and to honor, and to cause the Company to honor, all rights, privileges and modifications to or with respect to any such Company Plans or agreements which become effective as a result of such change in control.

(b) Laser shall cause the Company to continue the Company's Executive Annual Incentive Policy for the remainder of 1998, and participants therein shall not be eligible for participation in an analogous Laser incentive plan in respect of 1998. Laser shall honor, and shall cause the Company to honor, the Company's Executive Severance Policy without any amendment adverse to participants. Laser shall provide severance benefits for employees of the Company, who are not participants in Company's Executive Severance Policy and who do not have employment agreements with the Company, under the Laser severance policy on the same basis as similarly situated Laser employees provided that severance benefits shall be no less than those set forth on Schedule 7.7(b).

(c) Effective as of the ninety-first (91st) day following the Holdings Effective Time, the participants in the Executive Severance Policy set forth on Schedule 7.7(c) may voluntarily terminate their employment, which termination will be deemed to be for "Good Reason" under the Executive Severance Policy as a result of the consummation of the Holdings Merger.

(d) Laser and the Company agree to take all necessary action to provide that, effective as of the Holdings Effective Time, all outstanding Employee Stock Options shall be vested and exercisable as of the Holdings Effective Time, and between the Holdings Effective Time and the Company Effective Time, Laser shall cause the Company to maintain a broker-dealer cashless exercise procedure for the exercise of Employee Stock Options. Laser and the Company agree to take all other actions necessary to provide for the cancellation, effective at the Company Effective Time, of each outstanding Employee Stock Option and, in settlement therefor, a payment to the holder of the Employee Stock Option in cash by Laser or the Company at the Company Effective Time equal to the product of (i) the total number of shares of Company Common Stock subject to such Employee Stock Option, and (ii) the excess of $27.50 over the exercise price per share of Company Common Stock subject to such Employee Stock Option, less any applicable withholding taxes.

(e) Laser agrees that, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings may cause the Company to (i) assume sponsorship of the pension, retirement, savings, retiree health care and life insurance and other plans maintained by New Coleman Holdings, Inc. that are reflected in footnotes 7 and 12 to the 1996 financial statements included in the Company's 1996 Annual Report on SEC Form 10-K (as such plans may have been changed in the ordinary course of business since December 31, 1996) (the "Plans"), and (ii) assume the liabilities and obligations of New Coleman Holdings, Inc. under the Plans to the extent reflected in such footnotes (as such liabilities and obligations may have changed in the ordinary course of business since December 31, 1996). The documents used to effect such assumption shall be in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to Parent Holdings and Laser.

Section 7.8 Continuance of Existing Indemnification Rights.

(a) For six (6) years after the Company Effective Time (and during the period following the Holdings Effective Time but prior to the Company Effective Time), Laser shall, or shall cause the Surviving Corporation to, indemnify, defend and hold harmless any person who is now, or has been at any time prior to the date hereof, or who becomes prior to the Company Effective Time, a director or officer of the Company (an "Indemnified Person") against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, costs and expenses (including attorneys' fees and expenses), judgments, fines, losses and amounts paid in settlement in connection with any actual or threatened action, suit, claim, proceeding or investigation (each, a "Claim") to the extent that any such Claim is based on, or arises out of: (i) the fact that such Indemnified Person is or was a director or officer of the Company or is or was serving at the request of the Company as a director, officer, employee or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise; or (ii) this Agreement or the Holdings Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated hereby or thereby, in each case to the extent that any such Claim pertains to any matter or fact arising, existing or occurring prior to or at the Company Effective Time, regardless of whether such Claim is asserted or claimed prior to, at or after the Company Effective Time, to the full extent permitted under the DGCL, the Company's certificate of incorporation or by-laws or any indemnification agreement in effect at the date hereof, including provisions relating to advancement of expenses incurred in the defense of any such Claim; provided, however, that neither Laser nor the Surviving Corporation shall be required to indemnify any Indemnified Person in connection with any proceeding (or portion thereof) involving any Claim initiated by such Indemnified Person against the Company unless the initiation of such proceeding (or portion thereof) was authorized by the Board of Directors of the Company or unless such proceeding is brought by an Indemnified Person to enforce rights under this Section 7.8; and provided further that in the event any Claim is asserted or made within such period, all such rights, liabilities and limitations in respect of any such Claim shall continue until disposition thereof. Without limiting the generality of the preceding sentence, in the event any Indemnified Person becomes involved in any Claim after the Company Effective Time, Laser shall, or shall cause the Surviving Corporation to, periodically advance to such Indemnified Person its legal and other expenses (including the cost of any investigation and preparation incurred in connection therewith), subject to the providing by such Indemnified Person of an undertaking to reimburse all amounts so advanced in the event of a final non-appealable determination by a court of competent jurisdiction that such Indemnified Person is not entitled thereto.

(b) Laser and the Company agree that all rights to indemnification, and all limitations with respect thereto, existing in favor of any Indemnified Person, as provided in the Company's certificate of incorporation or by-laws and any indemnification agreement in effect at the date hereof, shall survive the Holdings Merger and the Company Merger and shall continue in full force and effect, without any amendment thereto, for a period of six (6) years from the Company Effective Time (and during the period following the Holdings Effective Time but prior to the Company Effective Time) to the extent such rights and limitations are consistent with the DGCL; provided, however, that in the event any Claim is asserted or made within such period, all such rights, liabilities and limitations in respect of any such Claim shall continue until disposition thereof; provided further that any determination required to be made with respect to whether an Indemnified Person's conduct complies with the standards set forth under the DGCL, the Company's certificate of incorporation or by-laws or any such agreement, as the case may be, shall be made by independent legal counsel selected by such Indemnified Person and reasonably acceptable to Laser; and provided further that nothing in this Section 7.8 shall impair any rights or obligations of any current or former director or officer of the Company.

(c) Laser or the Surviving Corporation shall use reasonable best efforts to obtain a liability insurance policy ("D&O Insurance") for the benefit of the Company's existing and former directors and officers commencing at the Holdings Effective Time and for a period of not less than six (6) years after the Company Effective Time providing substantially similar coverage in amounts and on terms no less advantageous than that currently provided to such existing and former directors and officers; provided further that neither Laser nor the Surviving Corporation shall be required to pay an annual premium for D&O Insurance in excess of 200% of the last annual premium paid prior to the date hereof, but in such case shall purchase as much coverage as possible for such amount.

(d) The provisions of this Section 7.8 are intended to be for the benefit of, and shall be enforceable by, each Indemnified Person, his or her heirs and his or her personal representatives.

Section 7.9 Expenses. Whether or not the Company Merger is consummated, all costs and expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby shall be paid by the party incurring such expenses.

Section 7.10 Public Announcements. Laser and the Company shall consult with each other before issuing their respective initial press releases to be issued with respect to the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Holdings Merger.

Section 7.11 Reasonable Best Efforts. Upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in this Agreement, each of the parties hereto agrees to use its reasonable best efforts to take, or cause to be taken, all actions, and to do, or cause to be done, and to assist and cooperate with the other parties in doing, all things necessary, proper or advisable, to consummate and make effective, in the most expeditious manner practicable, the Company Merger and the other transactions contemplated by this Agreement, including, but not limited to: (i) the obtaining of all necessary actions or nonactions, waivers, consents and approvals from all Governmental Entities and the making of all necessary registrations and filings with, and the taking of all other reasonable steps as may be necessary to obtain an approval or waiver from, or to avoid an action or proceeding by, any Governmental Entity (including those in connection with the HSR Act, if applicable); (ii) the obtaining of all necessary consents, approvals or waivers from persons other than Governmental Entities; (iii) the defending of any lawsuits or other legal proceedings, whether judicial or administrative, challenging this Agreement or the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby, including seeking to have any stay or temporary restraining order entered by any court or other Governmental Entity vacated or reversed; and (iv) the execution and delivery of any additional instruments necessary to consummate the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to require any party hereto to enter into any agreement with any Governmental Entity or to consent to any order, decree or judgment requiring such party to hold, separate or divest, or to restrict the dominion or control of such party or any of its Affiliates over, any of the assets, properties or businesses of such party or its Affiliates in existence on the date hereof.

ARTICLE VIII

CONDITIONS TO CONSUMMATION OF THE MERGER

Section 8.1 Conditions to Each Party's Obligation to Effect the Company Merger. The respective obligations of each party to effect the Company Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction or waiver, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Company Effective Time of the following conditions:

(a) The Registration Statement shall have become effective in accordance with the provisions of the Securities Act and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Registration Statement shall be in effect and no proceeding for such purpose shall be pending before or threatened by the SEC; and all applicable time periods required under the Securities Act and the Exchange Act following the mailing of the Information Statement to the Company's stockholders shall have lapsed.

(b) The Laser Shares shall have been approved for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance.

(c) No preliminary or permanent injunction or other order by any federal or state court in the United States of competent jurisdiction which prohibits the consummation of the Company Merger shall have been issued and remain in effect.

(d) The Holdings Merger shall have been consummated in accordance with its terms and the applicable provisions of the DGCL.

ARTICLE IX

TERMINATION, AMENDMENT AND WAIVER

Section 9.1 Termination. This Agreement shall terminate automatically upon the termination of the Holdings Merger Agreement in accordance with its terms.

Section 9.2 Effect of Termination. In the event of termination of this Agreement as provided in Section 9.1 hereof, this Agreement shall forthwith become void and there shall be no liability on the part of any of the parties; provided that the provisions of Sections 7.2 and 7.9 and of this Article IX shall continue and that nothing herein shall relieve any party from liability for any willful breach hereof.

Section 9.3 Amendment. This Agreement may be amended by the parties pursuant to a writing adopted by action taken by all of the parties at any time prior to (but not following) the consummation of the Holdings Merger. This Agreement may not be amended except by an instrument in writing signed by all the parties hereto.

Section 9.4 Extension; Waiver. At any time prior to (but not following) the consummation of the Holdings Merger any party hereto may (a) extend the time for the performance of any of the obligations or other acts of the other parties, (b) waive any inaccuracies in the representations and warranties contained herein or in any document delivered pursuant hereto and (c) waive compliance with any of the agreements or conditions contained herein. Any agreement on the part of a party to any such extension or waiver shall be valid only as against such party and only if set forth in an instrument in writing signed by such party. The failure of any party to this Agreement to assert any of its rights under this Agreement or otherwise shall not constitute a waiver of such rights.

ARTICLE X
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 10.4 Entire Agreement; No Third-Party Beneficiary. This Agreement (including the Exhibits, Disclosure Schedules and other documents and instruments referred to herein) (a) constitutes the entire agreement and supersedes all other prior agreements and understandings, both written and oral, among the parties or any of them, with respect to the subject matter hereof; (b) except for the provisions of Sections 7.7(c) and 7.8 hereof, is not intended to confer upon any other person any rights or remedies hereunder.

Section 10.5 Interpretation. When a reference is made in this Agreement to an Article, Section or Annex, such reference shall be to an Article or Section of, or an Annex to, this Agreement unless otherwise indicated.

Whenever the words "include", "includes" or "including" are used in this Agreement, they shall be deemed to be followed by the words "without limitation". The words "hereof", "herein" and "hereunder" and words of similar import when used in this Agreement shall refer to this Agreement as a whole and not to any particular provision of this Agreement. The phrase "made available" in this Agreement shall mean that the information referred to has been made available if requested by the party to whom such information is to be made available. All terms defined in this Agreement shall have the defined meanings used in any certificate or other document made or delivered pursuant hereto unless otherwise defined therein. The definitions contained in this Agreement are applicable to the singular as well as the plural forms of such terms and to the masculine as well as to the feminine and neuter genders of such term. Any agreement, instrument or statute defined or referred to herein or in any agreement or instrument that is referred to herein means such agreement, instrument or statute as from time to time amended, modified or supplemented, including (in the case of agreements or instruments) by waiver or consent and (in the case of statutes) by succession of comparable successor statutes and references to all attachments thereto and instruments incorporated therein. References to a person are also to its permitted successors and assigns and, in the case of an individual, to his heirs and estate, as applicable.

Section 10.6 Severability. If any provision of this Agreement or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, void or unenforceable, the remaining provisions hereof, or the application of such provision to persons or circumstances other than those as to which it has been held invalid or unenforceable, shall remain in full force and effect and shall in no way be affected, impaired or invalidated thereby. Upon any such determination, the parties shall negotiate in good faith in an effort to agree upon a suitable and equitable substitute provision to effect original intent of the parties.

Section 10.7 Assignment. Neither this Agreement nor any of the rights, interests or obligations under this Agreement shall be assigned, in whole or in part, by operation of Law or otherwise by any of the parties without the prior written consent of the other parties. Any assignment in violation of the preceding sentence shall be void. Subject to the preceding sentence, this Agreement will be binding upon, inure to the benefit of, and be enforceable by, the parties and their respective successors and assigns.

Section 10.8 Disclosure Schedules. Matters reflected on the Company Disclosure Schedule are not necessarily limited to matters required by this Agreement to be reflected therein and the inclusion of such matters shall not be deemed an admission that such matters were required to be reflected on the Company Disclosure Schedule. Such additional matters are set forth for informational purposes only and do not necessarily include other matters of a similar nature. Capitalized terms used in the Company Disclosure Schedule but not otherwise defined therein shall have the respective meanings assigned to such terms in this Agreement.

Section 10.9 Governing Law. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the Laws of the State of Delaware without giving effect to the provisions thereof relating to conflicts of Law.

Section 10.10 Specific Performance. The parties hereto agree that irreparable damage would occur in the event any of the provisions of this Agreement were not performed in accordance with the terms hereof and that the parties shall be entitled to specific performance of the terms hereof, in addition to any other remedy at Law or equity.

Section 10.11 Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed to be an original but all of which shall constitute one and the same agreement.

ANNEX II

262 APPRAISAL RIGHTS. (a) Any stockholder of a corporation of this State who holds shares of stock on the date of the making of a demand pursuant to subsection (d) of this section with respect to such shares, who continuously holds such shares through the effective date of the merger or consolidation, who has otherwise complied with subsection (d) of this section and who has neither voted in favor of the merger or consolidation nor consented thereto in writing pursuant to Section 228 of this title shall be entitled to an appraisal by the Court of Chancery of the fair value of the stockholder's shares of stock under the circumstances described in subsections (b) and (c) of this section. As used in this section, the word "stockholder" means a holder of record of stock in a stock corporation and also a member of record of a nonstock corporation; the words "stock" and "share" mean and include what is ordinarily meant by those words and also membership or membership interest of a member of a nonstock corporation; and the words "depository receipt" mean a receipt or other instrument issued by a depository representing an interest in one or more shares, or fractions thereof, solely of stock of a corporation, which stock is deposited with the depository.

(b) Appraisal rights shall be available for the shares of any class or series of stock of a constituent corporation in a merger or consolidation to be effected pursuant to section 251 (other than a merger effected pursuant to section 251(g) of this title), section 252, section 254, section 257, section 258, section 263, or section 264 of this title:

(1) Provided, however, that no appraisal rights under this section shall be available for the shares of any class or series of stock, which stock, or depository receipts in respect thereof, at the record date fixed to determine the stockholders entitled to receive notice of and to vote at the meeting of stockholders to act upon the agreement of merger or consolidation, were either (i) listed on a national securities exchange or designated as a national market system security on an interdealer quotation system by the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. or (ii) held of record by more than 2,000 holders; and further provided that no appraisal rights shall be available for any shares of stock of the constituent corporation surviving a merger if the merger did not require for its approval the vote of the stockholders of the surviving corporation as provided in subsection (f) of section 251 of this title.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1) of this subsection, appraisal rights under this section shall be available for the shares of any class or series of stock of a constituent corporation if the holders thereof are required by the terms of an agreement of merger or consolidation pursuant to sections 251, 252, 254, 257, 258, 263 and 264 of this title to accept for such stock anything except:

a. Shares of stock of the corporation surviving or resulting from such merger or consolidation, or depository receipts in respect thereof;

b. Shares of stock of any other corporation, or depository receipts in respect thereof, which shares of stock or depository receipts at the effective date of the merger or consolidation will be either listed on a national securities exchange or designated as a national market system security on an interdealer quotation system by the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. or held of record by more than 2,000 holders;

c. Cash in lieu of fractional shares or fractional depository receipts described in the foregoing subparagraphs a. and b. of this paragraph; or

d. Any combination of the shares of stock, depository receipts and cash in lieu of fractional shares or fractional depository receipts described in the foregoing subparagraphs a., b. and c. of this paragraph.

(3) In the event all of the stock of a subsidiary Delaware corporation party to a merger effected under section 253 of this title is not owned by the parent corporation immediately prior to the merger, appraisal rights shall be available for the shares of the subsidiary Delaware corporation.

(c) Any corporation may provide in its certificate of incorporation that appraisal rights under this section shall be available for the shares of any class or series of its stock as a result of an amendment to its certificate of incorporation, any merger or consolidation in which the corporation is a constituent corporation or the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the corporation. If the certificate of incorporation contains such a provision, the procedures of this section, including those set forth in subsections (d) and (e) of this section, shall apply as nearly as is practicable.

(d) Appraisal rights shall be perfected as follows:

(1) If a proposed merger or consolidation for which appraisal rights are provided under this section is to be submitted for approval at a meeting of stockholders, the corporation, not less than 20 days prior to the meeting, shall notify each of its stockholders who was such on the record date for such meeting with respect to shares for which appraisal rights are available pursuant to subsections (b) or (c) hereof that appraisal rights are available for any or all of the shares of the constituent corporations, and shall include in such notice a copy of this section. Each stockholder electing to demand the appraisal of his shares shall deliver to the corporation, before the taking of the vote on the merger or consolidation, a written demand for appraisal of his shares. Such demand will be sufficient if it reasonably informs the corporation of the identity of the stockholder and that the stockholder intends thereby to demand the appraisal of his shares. A proxy or vote against the merger or consolidation shall not constitute such a demand. A stockholder electing to take such action must do so by a separate written demand as herein provided. Within 10 days after the effective date of such merger or consolidation, the surviving or resulting corporation shall notify each stockholder of each constituent corporation who has complied with this subsection and has not voted in favor of or consented to the merger or consolidation of the date that the merger or consolidation has become effective; or

(2) If the merger or consolidation was approved pursuant to Section 228 or Section 253 of this title, each constituent corporation, either before the effective date of the merger or consolidation or within ten days thereafter, shall notify each of the holders of any class or series of stock of such constituent corporation who are entitled to appraisal rights of the approval of the merger or consolidation and that appraisal rights are available for any or all shares of such class or series of stock of such constituent corporation, and shall include in such notice a copy of this section; provided that, if the notice is given on or after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, such notice shall be given by the surviving or resulting corporation to all such holders of any class or series of stock of a constituent corporation that are entitled to appraisal rights. Such notice may, and, if given on or after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, shall, also notify such stockholders of the effective date of the merger or consolidation. Any stockholder entitled to appraisal rights may, within 20 days after the date of mailing of such notice, demand in writing from the surviving or resulting corporation the appraisal of such holder's shares. Such demand will be sufficient if it reasonably informs the corporation of the identity of the stockholder and that the stockholder intends thereby to demand the appraisal of such holder's shares. If such notice did not notify stockholders of the effective date of the merger or consolidation, either (i) each such constituent corporation shall send a second notice before the effective date of the merger or consolidation notifying each of the holders of any class or series of stock of such constituent corporation that are entitled to appraisal rights of the effective date of the merger or consolidation or (ii) the surviving or resulting corporation shall send such a second notice to all such holders on or within 10 days after such effective date; provided, however, that if such second notice is sent more than 20 days following the sending of the first notice, such second notice need only be sent to each stockholder who is entitled to appraisal rights and who has demanded appraisal of such holder's shares in accordance with this subsection. An affidavit of the secretary or assistant secretary or of the transfer agent of the corporation that is required to give either notice that such notice has been given shall, in the absence of fraud, be prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein. For purposes of determining the stockholders entitled to receive either notice, each constituent corporation may fix, in advance, a record date that shall be not more than 10 days prior to the date the notice is given, provided, that if the notice is given on or after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, the record date shall be such effective date. If no record date is fixed and the notice is given prior to the effective date, the record date shall be the close of business on the day next preceding the day on which the notice is given.

(e) Within 120 days after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, the surviving or resulting corporation or any stockholder who has complied with subsections (a) and (d) hereof and who is otherwise entitled to appraisal rights, may file a petition in the Court of Chancery demanding a determination of the value of the stock of all such stockholders. Notwithstanding the foregoing, at any time within 60 days after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, any stockholder shall have the right to withdraw his demand for appraisal and to accept the terms offered upon the merger or consolidation. Within 120 days after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, any stockholder who has complied with the requirements of subsections (a) and (d) hereof, upon written request, shall be entitled to receive from the corporation surviving the merger or resulting from the consolidation a statement setting forth the aggregate number of shares not voted in favor of the merger or consolidation and with respect to which demands for appraisal have been received and the aggregate number of holders of such shares. Such written statement shall be mailed to the stockholder within 10 days after his written request for such a statement is received by the surviving or resulting corporation or within 10 days after expiration of the period for delivery of demands for appraisal under subsection (d) hereof, whichever is later.

(f) Upon the filing of any such petition by a stockholder, service of a copy thereof shall be made upon the surviving or resulting corporation, which shall within 20 days after such service file in the office of the Register in Chancery in which the petition was filed a duly verified list containing the names and addresses of all stockholders who have demanded payment for their shares and with whom agreements as to the value of their shares have not been reached by the surviving or resulting corporation. If the petition shall be filed by the surviving or resulting corporation, the petition shall be accompanied by such a duly verified list. The Register in Chancery, if so ordered by the Court, shall give notice of the time and place fixed for the hearing of such petition by registered or certified mail to the surviving or resulting corporation and to the stockholders shown on the list at the addresses therein stated. Such notice shall also be given by 1 or more publications at least 1 week before the day of the hearing, in a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Wilmington, Delaware or such publication as the Court deems advisable. The forms of the notices by mail and by publication shall be approved by the Court, and the costs thereof shall be borne by the surviving or resulting corporation.

(g) At the hearing on such petition, the Court shall determine the stockholders who have complied with this section and who have become entitled to appraisal rights. The Court may require the stockholders who have demanded an appraisal for their shares and who hold stock represented by certificates to submit their certificates of stock to the Register in Chancery for notation thereon of the pendency of the appraisal proceedings; and if any stockholder fails to comply with such direction, the Court may dismiss the proceedings as to such stockholder.

(h) After determining the stockholders entitled to an appraisal, the Court shall appraise the shares, determining their fair value exclusive of any element of value arising from the accomplishment or expectation of the merger or consolidation, together with a fair rate of interest, if any, to be paid upon the amount determined to be the fair value. In determining such fair value, the Court shall take into account all relevant factors. In determining the fair rate of interest, the Court may consider all relevant factors, including the rate of interest which the surviving or resulting corporation would have had to pay to borrow money during the pendency of the proceeding. Upon application by the surviving or resulting corporation or by any stockholder entitled to participate in the appraisal proceeding, the Court may, in its discretion, permit discovery or other pretrial proceedings and may proceed to trial upon the appraisal prior to the final determination of the stockholder entitled to an appraisal. Any stockholder whose name appears on the list filed by the surviving or resulting corporation pursuant to subsection (f) of this section and who has submitted his certificates of stock to the Register in Chancery, if such is required, may participate fully in all proceedings until it is finally determined that he is not entitled to appraisal rights under this section.

(i) The Court shall direct the payment of the fair value of the shares, together with interest, if any, by the surviving or resulting corporation to the stockholders entitled thereto. Interest may be simple or compound, as the Court may direct. Payment shall be so made to each such stockholder, in the case of holders of uncertificated stock forthwith, and the case of holders of shares represented by certificates upon the surrender to the corporation of the certificates representing such stock. The Court's decree may be enforced as other decrees in the Court of Chancery may be enforced, whether such surviving or resulting corporation be a corporation of this State or of any state.

(j) The costs of the proceeding may be determined by the Court and taxed upon the parties as the Court deems equitable in the circumstances. Upon application of a stockholder, the Court may order all or a portion of the expenses incurred by any stockholder in connection with the appraisal proceeding, including, without limitation, reasonable attorney's fees and the fees and expenses of experts, to be charged pro rata against the value of all the shares entitled to an appraisal.

(k) From and after the effective date of the merger or consolidation, no stockholder who has demanded his appraisal rights as provided in subsection (d) of this section shall be entitled to vote such stock for any purpose or to receive payment of dividends or other distributions on the stock (except dividends or other distributions payable to stockholders of record at a date which is prior to the effective date of the merger or consolidation); provided, however, that if no petition for an appraisal shall be filed within the time provided in subsection (e) of this section, or if such stockholder shall deliver to the surviving or resulting corporation a written withdrawal of his demand for an appraisal and an acceptance of the merger or consolidation, either within 60 days after the effective date of the merger or consolidation as provided in subsection (e) of this section or thereafter with the written approval of the corporation, then the right of such stockholder to an appraisal shall cease. Notwithstanding the foregoing, no appraisal proceeding in the Court of Chancery shall be dismissed as to any stockholder without the approval of the Court, and such approval may be conditioned upon such terms as the Court deems just.

(l) The shares of the surviving or resulting corporation to which the shares of such objecting stockholders would have been converted had they assented to the merger or consolidation shall have the status of authorized and unissued shares of the surviving or resulting corporation.

NOTES TO CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
(In thousands, except share data)
(Unaudited)

1. BACKGROUND

The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company") is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for outdoor recreation and home hardware use on a global basis.

Coleman is a subsidiary of Coleman Worldwide Corporation ("Coleman Worldwide"). Coleman Worldwide is a subsidiary of Laser Acquisition Corp. ("Laser"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Coleman Worldwide owns 44,067,520 shares of the common stock of Coleman which represent approximately 80% of the outstanding Coleman common stock as of March 31, 1998.

On February 27, 1998, CLN Holdings Inc. ("CLN Holdings") and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("Parent Holdings"), the parent company of CLN Holdings, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (as amended, the "Holdings Merger Agreement") with Sunbeam and Laser. On March 30, 1998, pursuant to the Holdings Merger Agreement, CLN Holdings was merged with and into Laser, with Laser continuing as the surviving corporation and as a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam (the "Holdings Merger"). In the Holdings Merger, Parent Holdings received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock and $159,957 in cash in exchange for all of the outstanding shares of CLN Holdings. As a result of the Holdings Merger, Sunbeam became the indirect owner of the 44,067,520 shares of Coleman common stock held by Coleman Worldwide (the "Sunbeam Acquisition").

Coincident with the execution of the Holdings Merger Agreement, the Company, Sunbeam and Camper Acquisition Corp. ("CAC"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Coleman Merger Agreement" and with the Holdings Merger Agreement, collectively, the "Merger Agreements"), providing that, among other things, CAC will be merged with and into Coleman, with Coleman continuing as the surviving corporation (the "Coleman Merger"). Pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, each share of the Company's common stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Coleman Merger (other than shares held indirectly by Sunbeam and dissenting shares, if any) will be converted into the right to receive (a) 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock, with cash paid in lieu of fractional shares, and (b) $6.44 in cash, without interest.

Upon consummation of the Coleman Merger, Coleman will become an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam. Per the terms of the Merger Agreements, certain arrangements with Parent Holdings and its affiliates have been or may be altered or terminated. In addition, outstanding, unvested stock options of Coleman immediately vested upon consummation of the Holdings Merger and will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of such option.

The accompanying unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements of Coleman include the accounts of the Company and its subsidiaries after elimination of all material intercompany accounts and transactions, and have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles for interim financial information and with the instructions to Form 10-Q and Article 10 of Regulation S-X. Accordingly, they do not include all of the information and footnotes required by generally accepted accounting principles for complete financial statements. In the opinion of management, all adjustments (consisting of normal recurring accruals and one-time adjustments related to the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam) considered necessary for a fair presentation have been included. Operating results for the three months ended March 31, 1998 are not necessarily indicative of the results that may be expected for the year ended December 31, 1998. The balance sheet at December 31, 1997 has been derived from the audited financial statements for that date but does not include all of the information and footnotes required by generally accepted accounting principles for complete financial statements. For further information, refer to the consolidated financial statements and footnotes thereto included in the Company's annual report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 1997.

4. LONG-TERM DEBT

AA165506 Confidential

Arthur Andersen LLP

In March 1998, as a result of the Sunbeam Acquisition, the Company repaid all outstanding indebtedness under the Company's credit agreement and the credit agreement was terminated. In connection with the termination of this agreement, the Company recorded an extraordinary loss of $2,038 ($1,232 after tax, or $0.02 per share) which represents a write-off of the related unamortized financing costs associated with the credit agreement.

In addition, the Company's various senior notes, aggregating $360,000 at March 31, 1998, were redeemed on April 21, 1998 at a cost of $383,395. The $23,395 of redemption costs in excess of carrying value will be reflected as additional extraordinary loss on early extinguishment of debt in the second quarter of 1998 along with the write-off of the related unamortized financing costs associated with these senior note issuances in the amount of $2,694.

The Company relies upon loans from Sunbeam for the Company's liquidity needs. Amounts advanced from Sunbeam are due on demand and bear interest at the rate of 6% per annum as of March 31, 1998 and are reflected as affiliate debt in the condensed consolidated balance sheet.

5. SALE OF BUSINESS

On March 24, 1998, the Company sold Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc. ("CSS"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company which manufactured and sold safety and security products, to Ranco Incorporated of Delaware ("Ranco") and Siebe plc, the parent of Ranco, for approximately $97,937, net of fees and expenses. In connection with the sale of CSS, the Company recorded a pre-tax gain of $26,137. The net proceeds from the sale of CSS are subject to post-closing adjustments and could result in an adjustment to the gain.

6. OTHER CHARGES

During the three months ended March 31, 1998, the Company recorded certain pre-tax charges totaling $12,931 which included (i) $7,128 of costs associated with the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, (ii) the write-off of $3,578 of capitalized costs associated with the installation of a company-wide enterprise resource computer software system which was abandoned following the Sunbeam Acquisition, and (iii) $2,225 of costs to terminate a licensing services agreement with an affiliate of Parent Holdings. During the three months ended March 31, 1997, the Company recorded certain other pre-tax charges totaling $3,928, primarily related to severance costs associated with certain executive changes.

7. COMPREHENSIVE INCOME

As of January 1, 1998, the Company adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 130, "Reporting Comprehensive Income." SFAS No. 130 establishes new rules for the reporting and display of comprehensive income and its components; however, the adoption of this Statement had no impact on the Company's net income or shareholders' equity. SFAS No. 130 requires foreign currency translation adjustments and minimum pension liability adjustments, which prior to adoption were reported separately in shareholders' equity, to be included in other comprehensive income. The Company's comprehensive loss was $5,232 and $5,773 for the three months ended March 31, 1998 and 1997, respectively.

8. BASIC AND DILUTED EARNINGS (LOSS) PER COMMON SHARE

AA165507 Confidential
Treatment Requested by
Arthur Andersen LLP

In February 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued SFAS No. 128, "Earnings Per Share," which establishes new standards for computing and presenting basic and diluted earnings per share. As required by SFAS No. 128, the Company adopted the provisions of the new standard with retroactive effect beginning in 1997. Accordingly, all net earnings (loss) per common share amounts for all prior periods have been restated to comply with SFAS No. 128.

The basic earnings (loss) per common share has been computed based upon the weighted average shares of outstanding common stock. Diluted earnings (loss) per common share has been computed based upon the sum of the weighted average shares of outstanding common stock and the weighted average incremental shares

021414

1997 1998 have been outstanding assuming dilutive potential common stock had been issued. The Company's outstanding common stock options represent the only dilutive potential common stock. The amounts of earnings (loss) used in the calculations of basic and diluted earnings (loss) per common share were the same for all periods presented. The number of shares used in the calculation of diluted earnings per common share included 52,399 incremental shares for the three month period ended March 31, 1997 to recognize the effect of dilutive stock options. The number of shares used in the calculation of diluted loss per common share for the three month period ended March 31, 1998 does not include any incremental shares that would have been outstanding assuming the exercise of any stock options because the effect of these shares would have been antidilutive.

9. RECENTLY ISSUED ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

In June 1997, the FASB issued SFAS No. 131, "Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information". SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for reporting information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. The Company will apply the provisions of SFAS No. 131 beginning January 1, 1998; however, financial statement disclosures for interim periods in 1998 are not required to be presented in interim financial statements issued in 1998.

10. SUBSEQUENT EVENT

On May 11, 1998, Sunbeam announced a comprehensive growth and restructuring plan that includes certain initiatives involving Coleman's operations. The restructuring initiatives related to Coleman include, among other things, (i) combining the Company's headquarters with Sunbeam's headquarters in Florida, (ii) the consolidation of factories, warehouses, and sales offices, and (iii) the divestiture of the Eastpak related businesses and the compressor and spa businesses.

ITEM 2. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

On February 27, 1998, CLN Holdings Inc. ("CLN Holdings") and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("Parent Holdings"), the parent company of CLN Holdings, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (as amended, the "Holdings Merger Agreement") with Sunbeam and Laser. On March 30, 1998, pursuant to the Holdings Merger Agreement, CLN Holdings was merged with and into Laser, with Laser continuing as the surviving corporation and as a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam (the "Holdings Merger"). In the Holdings Merger, Parent Holdings received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock and $160.0 million in cash in exchange for all of the outstanding shares of CLN Holdings. As a result of the Holdings Merger, Sunbeam became the indirect owner of the 44,067,520 shares of Coleman common stock held by Coleman Worldwide (the "Sunbeam Acquisition").

Coincident with the execution of the Holdings Merger Agreement, the Company, Sunbeam and Camper Acquisition Corp. ("CAC"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Coleman Merger Agreement" and with the Holdings Merger Agreement, collectively, the "Merger Agreements"), providing that, among other things, CAC will be merged with and into Coleman, with Coleman continuing as the surviving corporation (the "Coleman Merger"). Pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, each share of the Company's common stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Coleman Merger (other than shares held indirectly by Sunbeam and dissenting shares, if any) will be converted into the right to receive (a) 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock, with cash paid in lieu of fractional shares, and (b) $6.44 in cash, without interest.

Upon consummation of the Coleman Merger, Coleman will become an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam. Per the terms of the Merger Agreements, certain arrangements with Parent Holdings and its affiliates have been or may be altered or terminated. In addition, outstanding, unvested stock options of Coleman immediately vested upon consummation of the Holdings Merger and will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of such option.

Three months ended March 31, 1998 compared with the three months ended March 31, 1997

Net revenues of $244.5 million in 1998 were $51.0 million or 17.2% less than in 1997 with outdoor recreation products decreasing $40.0 million or 18.4% and hardware products decreasing $11.0 million or 14.1%. Geographically, United States and Canadian revenues decreased 14.9% while international revenues decreased 21.3%.

Outdoor recreation products revenues decreased $40.0 million or 18.4%. The sales decrease occurred in nearly all product categories, primarily reflecting the effects of the SKU reduction program in 1997, softness in demand resulting from the domestic retail channel's efforts to lower inventory levels, and adverse economic conditions in Japan and Southeast Asia. The hardware products revenues decrease of $11.0 million reflects an increase in generator revenues as a result of winter storms which were more than offset by a decline in compressor revenues due to general softness in the industry and the loss of pressure washer revenues due to exiting this business in 1997.

Gross margins increased as a percent of sales by 0.7 percentage points to 28.1% in 1998. The increase is driven by an improvement in the mix of products sold, in part, due to the SKU reduction program which removed low or no-margin SKUs, and greater licensing revenues in 1998.

Selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") expenses were $74.9 million in 1998 compared to $65.9 million in 1997, an increase of $9.0 million. SG&A expenses in 1998 include (i) $7.1 million of costs associated with the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, (ii) the write-off of $3.6 million of capitalized costs associated with the installation of a company-wide enterprise resource computer software system which was abandoned following the Sunbeam Acquisition, and (iii) $2.2 million of costs to terminate a licensing services agreement with an affiliate of Parent Holdings.

Interest expense was $9.0 million in 1998 compared with $10.7 million in 1997, a decrease of $1.7 million. This decrease was primarily the result of lower borrowings resulting from improvements in managing working capital.

021416

On March 24, 1998, the Company sold Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc. ("CSS"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company which manufactured and sold safety and security products, to Ranco Incorporated of Delaware ("Ranco") and Siebe plc, the parent of Ranco, for approximately $98.0 million, net of fees and expenses. In connection with the sale of CSS, the Company recorded a pre-tax gain of $26.1 million. The net proceeds from the sale of CSS are subject to post-closing adjustments and could result in an adjustment to the gain.

Minority interest represents the interest of minority shareholders in certain subsidiary operations of Camping Gaz.

The Company recorded a provision for income tax expense of $7.5 million in 1998 compared to a provision for income tax expense of $0.5 million in 1997. The 1998 income tax provision reflects, among other things, (i) the write-off of approximately $1.7 million deferred tax assets that became unrealizable as a result of the change of control in the Company at the time of the Sunbeam Acquisition, (ii) $0.4 million of tax expense due to the impact of decreased foreign tax rates on deferred tax assets, and (iii) the impact of $7.1 million non-deductible costs associated with the Sunbeam Acquisition. Excluding these items, the 1998 effective income tax rate would have been approximately 40.8%.

In March 1998, as a result of the Holdings Merger, the Company repaid all outstanding indebtedness under the Company's credit agreement and the credit agreement was terminated. In connection with the termination of this agreement, the Company recorded an extraordinary loss of $2.0 million ($1.2 million after tax, or $0.02 per share) which represents a write-off of the related unamortized financing costs associated with the credit agreement.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

The Company's operating activities used $83.6 million and $41.0 million of cash during the three months ended March 31, 1998 and 1997, respectively. During the 1998 period, receivables increased $34.5 million as a result of the seasonality of the Company's sales. Inventories increased approximately $31.0 million primarily as a result of unanticipated softness in the first quarter's demand for the Company's products. The Company's capital expenditures were $9.7 million in the three months ended March 31, 1998. During the three months ended March 31, 1998, the $31.8 million of proceeds from stock option exercises along with $90.7 million of borrowings from Sunbeam and the proceeds from the sale of the Company's safety and security business and sales of fixed assets of $98.3 million of cash were used to, among other things, repay the $116.0 million outstanding indebtedness under the Company's credit agreement and fund the Company's operating activities and capital expenditures.

The Company's various senior notes, aggregating $360.0 million at March 31, 1998, were redeemed on April 21, 1998 at a cost of $383.4 million. The $23.4 million of redemption costs in excess of carrying value will be reflected as additional extraordinary loss on early extinguishment of debt in the second quarter of 1998 along with the write-off of the related unamortized financing costs associated with these senior note issuances in the amount of $2.7 million.

During 1997 and 1996, the Company undertook several restructuring initiatives to strengthen its business operations, including (i) exiting various low-margin products, including pressure washers, (ii) closing and relocating certain administrative and sales offices, and (iii) closing several manufacturing facilities. In connection with those initiatives, Coleman recorded a total of $110.6 million pre-tax restructuring and other charges during the years ended December 31, 1996 and 1997. During the first quarter of 1998, the Company revised its estimate of costs to complete the previously announced restructuring initiatives and recorded an additional $0.7 million of charges. An analysis of the reserves for restructuring and other charges is outlined in the following table (dollars in millions):

In connection with the Sunbeam Acquisition, the Company expects to incur additional restructuring charges as the operations of Coleman are integrated into Sunbeam's existing business structure. On May 11, 1998, Sunbeam announced a comprehensive growth and restructuring plan that includes certain initiatives involving Coleman's operations. The restructuring initiatives related to Coleman include, among other things, (i) combining the Company's headquarters with Sunbeam's headquarters in Florida, (ii) the consolidation of factories, warehouses, and sales offices, and (iii) the divestiture of the Eastpak related businesses and the compressor and spa businesses.

The Company's ability to meet its current cash operating requirements, including projected capital expenditures and other obligations is dependent upon a combination of cash flows from operations and capital contributions or loans to the Company from Sunbeam or its affiliates.

The Company periodically uses a variety of derivative financial instruments to manage its foreign currency and interest rate exposures. The Company does not speculate on interest rates or foreign currency rates. Instead it uses derivatives when implementing its risk management strategies to reduce the possible effects of these exposures.

With respect to foreign currency exposures, the Company principally uses forward and option contracts to reduce risks arising from firm commitments, anticipated intercompany sales transactions and intercompany receivable and payable balances. The Company generally uses interest rate swaps and interest rate caps to fix certain of its variable rate debt. The Company manages credit risk related to these derivative contracts through credit approvals, exposure limits and other monitoring procedures.

SEASONALITY

The Company's sales generally are highest in the second quarter of the year and lowest in the fourth quarter. As a result of this seasonality, the Company has generally incurred a loss in the fourth quarter. The Company's sales may be affected by weather conditions, especially during the second and third quarters of the year. The Company's annual results are generally dependent on its results during the second quarter. The acquisition of a majority ownership of the Company by Sunbeam occurred on March 30, 1998, immediately

<PAGE>

THE COLEMAN COMPANY, INC. AND SUBSIDIARIES

preceding the beginning of the Company's second quarter. As a result, the Company is being integrated with Sunbeam's operations. There can be no assurance as to the success of this integration or assurance that the Integration or integration-related activities will not be adverse to future results.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 provides a "safe harbor" for certain forward-looking statements. The forward-looking statements contained in this Form 10-Q are subject to certain risks and uncertainties. Actual results could differ materially from current expectations. The factors that could affect the Company's actual results and could cause results to differ materially from those contained in the forward-looking statements include, but are not limited to (i) unanticipated costs or delays in developing new products, (ii) a decrease in the public's interest in camping and related activities, (iii) economic softness in Japan, Korea, and other Asian countries, (iv) weather conditions which are adverse to the specific businesses of the Company, (v) significant adverse market or economic conditions which negatively affect demand for the Company's products, (vi) disruptions or delays resulting from the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreements with Sunbeam for the acquisition of CLN Holdings and the Company, and (vii) changes in operating philosophy following the consummation of the Holdings Merger and the Company Merger. Other factors could also cause actual results to vary materially from the future results covered in such forward-looking statements.

IMPACT OF YEAR 2000

Some of the Company's older computer programs were written using two digits rather than four to represent the applicable year. As a result, those computer programs recognize a date represented by "00" as the year 1900 rather than the year 2000. This situation, known as the "Year 2000" issue, could cause a system failure or miscalculations causing disruptions of operations, including, among other things, a temporary inability to process transactions, send invoices, or engage in similar normal business activities.

Based on ongoing assessments of the Company's operations, the Company has determined it will be required to modify or replace portions of its computer software so the computer systems will function properly with respect to dates in the year 2000 and thereafter. The Company believes that, in most instances, with minor modifications to existing software, the Year 2000 issue will not pose significant operational problems for its computer systems. The Company has identified one location with significant Year 2000 software issues. Failure to complete a timely conversion of this location to a Year 2000 compliant system could have a material impact on the operations of the Company. The Company is unable to estimate the costs of becoming Year 2000 compliant.

The Company has initiated formal communications with some of its significant suppliers and large customers to determine the extent to which the Company's interface systems are vulnerable to those third parties' failure to remediate their own Year 2000 issues. There can be no guarantee that the systems of other companies on which the Company's systems rely will be timely converted and would not have an adverse effect on the Company's systems.

In 1996, the Company began a project to select and install a Company-wide enterprise resource computer software system designed to improve operational efficiency. In March 1998, as a result of decisions made following the Holdings Merger, this project was terminated and previously capitalized costs of $3.6 million were written off. Sunbeam is completing preliminary plans for the integration of the Company's systems into its own, and, likewise, is assessing the Year 2000 computer issues. The timing and cost of this integration process are not yet determined.

SUNBEAM DELAYS SEC FILING RELATING TO DEBENTURES Company in Talks With Lenders on Covenant Waivers

Delray Beach, FL, June 25, 1998 – Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) announced that it is delaying filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission a registration statement for its previously issued Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 for resale by the holders thereof. The delay is necessary to enable the Company to continue its review of certain issues regarding Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. Arthur Andersen LLP, the Company's auditor, notified the Company yesterday that it will not provide its consent to the inclusion in the registration statement of its opinion on the 1997 financial statements, pending completion of the review.

Sunbeam confirmed news reports that the SEC has informed the Company of an informal inquiry into Sunbeam's accounting policies and practices and has requested various documents. Sunbeam intends to cooperate with the SEC.

Delay in filing the registration statement covering the Debentures will not constitute a default. The Company will be required to pay a small charge to the Debenture holders for each day the filing is delayed past June 23, 1998.

Sunbeam also said that it is continuing talks with bank lenders concerning a waiver of certain financial covenant measurements in its bank credit agreement. The covenants would normally require Sunbeam to meet certain financial tests at the end of each quarter. The Company will not meet these tests as of June 30, 1998 because of its anticipated loss for the second quarter. Sunbeam is seeking the waiver to give its new management time to complete a full review of Sunbeam's businesses and develop a new operating plan.

Overview

- (1) On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired Coleman for cash, stock, and the assumption of debt.¹ Under the terms of the Merger Agreement, Plaintiff gave up the Coleman stock it owned, as well as its obligations to repay the debt of its subsidiary CLN Holdings (collectively, the "CLNH equity") in exchange for cash and shares of Sunbeam stock. After the consummation of the merger, Sunbeam's price declined substantially. In its Complaint, filed May 8, 2003, CPH alleges that no later than March 18, 1998, Morgan Stanley possessed detailed and specific information about Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales and earnings up to that point, and that it assisted Sunbeam in concealing that information. Plaintiff alleges that it suffered damages as a consequence of the concealment of this information.
- (2) This report provides my opinions on the damages suffered by CPH, assuming that Morgan Stanley is found liable for concealing material information about 1998 first quarter sales and earnings. I express no opinion about such liability. For the purpose of calculating damages, I assume that Morgan Stanley is liable for concealing this information. I accept Plaintiff's position that it would have cancelled the merger had Morgan Stanley's information been disclosed.
- (3) Given that in the "but-for" world CPH would have cancelled the merger, I measure out-of-pocket damages as the difference between the value of the CLNH equity that CPH gave up in the merger and the value of cash and Sunbeam stock that it received in exchange. My analysis of the consolidated balance sheet of CLNH and its subsidiaries indicates that the damages suffered by CPH are determined by the values (defined later) of four items exchanged in the merger:
 - a. The shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") received by Sunbeam in the merger;

¹ This consummated the February 27, 1998 Merger Agreement between the Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"), Laser Acquisition Corporation, CLN Holdings, Inc. ("CLNH"), and Coleman (Parent) Holdings ("CPH" or "Plaintiff"), an event referred to as the merger.

021432

- b. The zero-coupon debt of CLNH (“CLN Holdings Notes” or “Holdings Notes”) that Sunbeam assumed in the merger;
 - c. The shares of Sunbeam stock received by CPH in the merger; and
 - d. The cash consideration received by CPH in the merger.
- (4) As a practical matter, CPH gave up its shares of Coleman (item 3a above) in exchange for cash, stock, and the assumption of a subsidiary’s debt (items 3b-d above). My opinion regarding damages is that the cash, Sunbeam stock, and assumption of debt have a net aggregate true value to CPH that far exceeds the true value of the Coleman stock, even after accounting for the impact of Morgan Stanley’s alleged fraud. Hence, CPH did not suffer any damages as a consequence of consummating the merger.
- (5) My opinion that there are no damages in this matter is robust to my modeling assumptions. The methodology in the initial portion of my report focuses on a set of assumptions, each of which is chosen to maximize damages to the Plaintiff without being so biased in favor of the Plaintiff that they are clearly implausible. However, the terms of the Merger Agreement are so favorable to the Plaintiff that even damage-maximizing assumptions cannot generate a single dollar of damages. The reasons are straightforward.
- a. The CLNH equity had a relatively low true value because it was encumbered by the CLN Holdings Notes. The amount of debt, more than $732 million in promised payments, was so high in comparison to the value of its collateral, CLNH’s equity stake in Coleman, that the Holdings Notes qualified for junk status. Junk status indicates a high risk of default. Were default on the Holdings Notes to occur, CLNH equity, which is the only asset the Plaintiff gave up in the merger, would be worthless.
 - b. The CLNH equity was not worthless but the Holdings Notes severely diminished its value. Hence, even low true values for the Sunbeam stock received by CPH, along with the cash consideration received, more than compensate CPH for the CLNH equity that it gave up in the merger.

- (6) Assumptions that are fair to both sides in this matter indicate that the true value of the property given up by the Plaintiff in the merger was at least $200 million to over $300 million less than the true value of what the Plaintiff received.
- (7) My report also comments on the opinions of Plaintiffs experts Nye, Kursh and Wagner, as expressed in their reports dated December 7, 2004. These reports contradict one another as to the theory of damages, the proper methods for valuation and the actual valuations they propose. A summary of the specific issues in each report is as follows:
- a. Dr. Nye's report advances a damage estimate of over $600 million.
 - i. His analysis is seriously flawed because it is based on an "expectations theory of damages," and I understand that this theory of damages is not applicable in this case. Rather, an out-of-pocket standard should be applied. The out-of-pocket standard also makes more sense to me as an economist.
 - ii. Dr. Nye also implements his flawed damage methodology by cherry-picking parameters to maximize damages.
 - iii. Finally, Dr. Nye erroneously values Sunbeam at the date when it entered bankruptcy, and falsely assumes that trading restrictions make it impossible to estimate Sunbeam's true value at March 30, 1998.
 - b. Dr. Kursh's report advances an out-of-pocket methodology that is appropriate, albeit inconsistent with Dr. Nye's methodology. Dr. Kursh does not, however, implement his methodology to derive a damage estimate. Rather, Dr. Kursh's report only purports to analyze the true value of a share of Coleman. His report advances the hypothesis that actual transactions are the best way to measure true value. I concur with this.
 - i. However, two of his three transaction-based approaches are really fraud-based approaches, as they rely on Sunbeam's fraud, not legitimate market prices, to value Coleman. Hence, they are not valid measures of Coleman's value.

021434

- ii. Dr. Kursh's third transaction-based approach is not subject to this criticism and shares many similarities with my approach for obtaining the true value of a share of Coleman. Here, Dr. Kursh starts with the stock market's assessment of Coleman's value on February 27, 1998. He claims that February 27, 1998 is relevant because after this date, Coleman's stock price is influenced (and therefore inflated) by the Merger Agreement. I share his belief that Coleman's stock price on a date before the Merger Agreement was announced is the best starting point for a true value estimate of Coleman. My disagreement with Dr. Kursh on this third approach will require the Court to weigh the evidence that he and I present in support of my arguments. I believe that the stock price of Coleman on February 27, 1998 was already inflated by merger rumors.
 - iii. Moreover, I believe that the so-called "control premium" Dr. Kursh uses has no economic justification given the facts in this case.
- c. Mr. Wagner neither espouses a theory of damages nor provides an estimate of damages. Rather, he attempts to estimate the value of Coleman as of March 30, 1998. In doing so, Mr. Wagner uses methodologies that, if used correctly, are only capable of estimating a wide range of values with any scientific validity. They are not capable of estimating a single best value for Coleman. As such his report provides no reliable estimate of the value of Coleman. Among the specific flaws in Mr. Wagner's analysis are:
- i. He cherry-picks years for deriving Coleman's estimated future costs;
 - ii. The weights he assigns to his widely varying estimates of Coleman's value are arbitrary; and
 - iii. He improperly and inconsistently applies what he calls a "control premium" and compounds this error by factoring in "synergies" on top of it.
- (8) The report, contained below, discusses these opinions in more detail and provides the bases for them.

II.1. Factual Background

- (10) On March 30, 1998, Plaintiff CPH sold its 100% equity interest in CLNH for consideration that included cash, stock of Sunbeam, and Sunbeam's assumption of debt owed by a CPH subsidiary.² Shares of Sunbeam stock subsequently dropped in price after a series of negative news events about the company, including missed financial targets and restatements of financial filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). Sunbeam eventually entered bankruptcy in February 2001, ultimately eliminating all remaining value in the Sunbeam equity component of the consideration CPH received in the merger.³ Sunbeam was reorganized and emerged from bankruptcy as American Household, Inc. late in 2002.⁴ Affiliates of the Plaintiff effectively controlled and managed Sunbeam from June 15, 1998 until the company entered bankruptcy more than two and a half years later.
- (11) Defendant Morgan Stanley, an investment banking and financial services firm, provided financial advisory services to Sunbeam from April 1997 through the consummation of the merger on March 30, 1998.⁵ Plaintiff alleges that Morgan Stanley had information in its possession prior to March 30, 1998 that it withheld from the financial markets. This information allegedly showed that Sunbeam's financial health was significantly poorer than was implied by the information actually disseminated to the Plaintiff and to the financial markets prior to the merger. Plaintiff accuses Defendant of fraudulent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, conspiracy and negligent misrepresentation and Plaintiff further alleges that it suffered economic damages that the release of the information allegedly known by the Defendant would have prevented.⁶ Morgan Stanley denies all wrongdoing.⁷

- (12) Before the merger, CPH was a holding company. Its activities were limited to owning 100% of the capital stock of its subsidiary, CLNH. CLNH was another holding company, with no operations of its own, and one significant liability: two series of zero-coupon notes that were coming due in May 2001, at which time CLNH equity owners would owe the noteholders over $732 million. CLNH also owned one asset: 100% of the capital stock of its subsidiary, Coleman Worldwide Corporation ("Coleman Worldwide"). Coleman Worldwide was yet another holding company with no operations of its own, but with one significant set of assets: it owned over 80% of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), a well-known, publicly-traded company in the outdoor recreation industry. The remaining Coleman shares were publicly traded.⁸
- (13) CPH was itself the subsidiary of two holding companies, the "topmost" of which was owned by a single individual: the well-known financier, Ronald O. Perelman. Exhibit 1 depicts the chain of holding companies as of March 30, 1998.

⁸ Mar. 24, 1998 CLN Holdings Inc. 1997 Form 10-K405 ("CLN Holdings 1997 10-K"), p. 3.

Thus, a single individual, Mr. Perelman, controlled over 80% of Coleman shares, and had the power to select the company's Board, its officers and directors, and to direct key decisions for the company, such as whether to merge with another corporation, and if so, on what terms.

- (14) Sunbeam, the beneficial counterparty to the Merger Agreement with CPH, was a well-known company in such industries as small appliances, outdoor cooking, and electric blankets. It had no corporate parents or controlling shareholders. Its CEO was a colorful and prominent member of the business community, Albert Dunlap. Mr. Dunlap had achieved fame as the architect of a number of turnarounds of troubled businesses, including Scott Paper, Lily-Tulip, Diamond International and Crown-Zellerbach, often through drastic cost-cutting and workforce reduction, which resulted in his acquiring the nickname "Chainsaw Al.”⁹ Mr. Dunlap arrived at Sunbeam on July 18, 1996, when the company was trading at $12.50 per share, and immediately engaged in an aggressive restructuring program. As of December, 1997, Sunbeam common stock was trading at over $40.00 per share.¹⁰ Coleman, which had undergone a restructuring of its own in 1996–1997, was then trading around $13–16 per share.¹¹

021447

- (15) Part of Mr. Dunlap’s strategy for increasing shareholder value at Sunbeam was to grow the company through combinations with another firm. During much of 1997, Sunbeam worked with Morgan Stanley on identifying potential acquirers for Sunbeam, or targets that might be suitable for acquisition. Morgan Stanley identified Coleman, among other companies, as a potential acquisition target.¹²
- (16) In late 1997 Sunbeam management spoke with Coleman about a possible acquisition. After initial meetings and negotiations in mid-December, talks broke off, but were revived again in late January 1998.¹³ Discussions continued through February 1998, culminating on February 27, 1998, when the parties signed an Agreement and Plan of Merger (“Merger Agreement”),¹⁴ and obtained the approval of their respective Boards of Directors to complete the transaction.¹⁵
- (17) The terms of the Merger Agreement were first announced to the public before the financial markets opened on the morning of Monday, March 2, 1998, three days after it was formally ratified by the boards of the companies that were parties to the transaction.¹⁶ By the terms of the agreement with CPH, Sunbeam paid CPH approximately $160 million in cash and approximately 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock. In exchange, Sunbeam acquired 100% of the stock of CLNH, which effectively gave it 44 million shares of Coleman common stock, along with liabilities consisting of the two tranches of CLN Holdings Notes. Sunbeam, under the terms of the Merger Agreement, thus assumed responsibility for paying off a substantial amount of debt.¹⁷

- (18) As depicted in Exhibit 2, at then-prevailing equity market prices CPH received some $749 million for assets and liabilities with a net value of only $403 million. This represents a premium of $346 million, or 86%, over the value of the property CPH gave up in the merger. In other words, the deal was so favorable to CPH that the value of the Sunbeam shares CPH received in the merger could decline by hundreds of millions dollars and CPH would suffer no out-of-pocket damages—in fact, it would still benefit from the deal.

- (19) When the Merger Agreement was announced, shares of Sunbeam jumped from $41.75 to $45.63 and traded as high as $52 (on March 4, 1998). Sunbeam shares generally traded around $50 per share until March 19, 1998, the day Sunbeam issued a press release warning that its first quarter 1998 sales might be lower than analysts' expectations.¹⁸ Morgan Stanley is alleged to have possessed information from which it knew or should have known that Sunbeam's actual financial results were likely to be much worse than the press release suggested and of having improperly allowed Sunbeam to issue the press release. In response to the March 19th press release, Sunbeam's stock price dropped almost 10%.

- (20) On March 30, 1998, the day that Sunbeam completed the merger, Sunbeam stock closed at $43.94 per share. Sunbeam traded in the $44-$45 range until April 3, 1998, the day an influential research analyst named Andrew Shore downgraded the stock.¹⁹ On the same day, Sunbeam issued another negative press release announcing a senior executive departure, poor first quarter 1998 sales, and an expected loss for the quarter.²⁰ Official first quarter 1998 financial results were announced on May 11, 1998, at an analyst meeting during which Sunbeam also announced detailed restructuring plans.²¹ These results were then reported in Sunbeam's Form 10-Q, filed with the SEC on May 15, 1998.
- (21) As more negative information about Sunbeam reached the market, its stock continued its downward slide. A June 8, 1998 Barron's article accused Sunbeam of a wide range of questionable accounting and management practices, and cast doubt on many dimensions of Dunlap's highly-touted turnaround of the company.²² The article precipitated inquiries by Sunbeam's own Board of Directors that led to the termination of Dunlap and Chief Financial Officer Russell Kersh, to the employment of former Coleman CEO Jerry Levin as Sunbeam's new chief, and to a re-examination of Sunbeam's previously filed financial statements. On June 30, 1998 Sunbeam announced that it was reviewing the 1997 financial

II.2. Scope of Testimony

- (23) I have been asked to offer my opinion about the magnitude of the economic damages suffered by CPH and attributable to Morgan Stanley. For purposes of rendering this opinion, I assume that Morgan Stanley is liable but have no knowledge or opinion about such legal liability. I further assume that Morgan Stanley had a duty to disclose, or cause others to disclose, more accurate information about Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 financial performance prior to the March 30, 1998 merger date. I will refer to this disclosure as the Defendant's "curative action." By definition, what I am assuming to be the curative action would have absolved Morgan Stanley of liability had it occurred.
- (24) Plaintiff's position is that it would not have executed the merger had Defendant undertaken the curative action.²⁴ I estimate damages due to Morgan Stanley's alleged failure to take the curative action assuming that, had it done so, Plaintiff would not have consummated the merger.
- (25) After reviewing my assumptions and methodology in Section III, I present two sets of analyses.
- a. The first set of analyses, in Section IV, makes assumptions that maximize Plaintiff's estimated damages. The key assumptions in this section are biased in Plaintiff's favor and lie on the boundary of being unreasonably biased in Plaintiff's favor.
 - b. The second set of analyses, in Section V, provides damage estimates based on more reasonable assumptions. Since Section IV's damage estimate (using damage-maximizing assumptions) is zero, the reductions to the damages estimate in Section V are largely a superfluous exercise. These reductions are relevant only if the Court finds that the assumptions, methodology, or calculations in my first set of analyses (in Section IV) underestimate damages for reasons that I have not considered in this report.

- (26) I have also been asked by counsel for the Defendant to review the December 7, 2004 reports of Plaintiff's experts Nye, Kursh and Wagner. My analysis of these reports, their methodologies, and conclusions are found in Section VI.
- (27) In arriving at these opinions, I rely upon the materials listed in Appendix B. My opinions also rely on my detailed knowledge of finance from my recollections and readings of textbooks, the research literature, and expertise about the application of finance in a variety of practical settings, and research and analysis I performed in conjunction with this litigation, as outlined in this report. I was assisted in some of this research by staff at Bates White, LLC, who worked at my sole direction.
- (28) I reserve the right to revise my opinions if additional information becomes available. My work is ongoing and I have had only ten days to consider three expert reports, which total several hundred pages (including exhibits and appendices). I may consider additional information produced through the date of trial to determine whether such information impacts my opinions. In addition, I will consider criticisms of my opinions or bases for my opinions brought to my attention at my deposition or offered by experts retained by Plaintiff. Any of this additional information or work may cause me to revise or supplement my opinions.

Major Assumptions,
Methodology, and Conclusions

III.1. Methodology and Assumptions

- (29) This section describes my methodology and assumptions, and explains why they are appropriate for this matter based on economic theory, the facts of the case, and the applicable law.
- (30) I have been asked to calculate the portion of Plaintiff's out-of-pocket damages attributable to Morgan Stanley and to assume that Defendant is not responsible for damages due to third parties. Specifically, any declines in Sunbeam stock price due to allegations of accounting fraud, which were not known to Defendant, do not count towards damages.
- (31) I measure damages on an out-of-pocket basis because my objective is to determine the damages that will compensate Plaintiff for its actual losses. Because Plaintiff claims it would not have completed the merger in the absence of the alleged fraud, I estimate the amount needed to put the Plaintiff in the position it would have been in had it, in fact, walked away from the transaction. Stated differently, I determine the position Plaintiff would have been in "but for" the alleged fraud, and compare that with the economic position that Plaintiff was actually in as a result of doing the transaction. To the extent that Plaintiff's actual position was worse than its "but-for" position, that difference is a measure of damages.
- (32) I value each of these positions on an "ex-ante," or forward-looking basis, as of the date of the merger—March 30, 1998. I use only information that actually was, or should have been (in the absence of Defendant's misconduct) available to the parties (or to the stock market, as the case may be, when valuing securities).
- (33) Ex-ante valuation makes far more sense economically than a hindsight-based "ex-post" approach, because my task is to value securities. The assumption of risk—but not fraud—is inherent to any securities transaction. To own a security is, by definition, to bear its risk. Security prices incorporate the market's assessment of that risk.
- (34) Therefore, to value a security as of March 30, 1998, I evaluate its risks as they looked to the market on that date. Valuing the security based on hindsight—by the price it came to be traded at later—would, in the context of this damages assessment, make each party (since each exchanged stock with the other) assume the risks intended to be borne by the other. Each would, in effect, be treated as the other's insurer. Since the parties did not intend such an arrangement when they entered into the transaction, it makes no sense to impose this relationship after the fact.

- (35) When performing an ex-ante valuation, information (such as market prices) arising after the valuation date can be used if it provides information about what market prices on the valuation date would have been but for the Defendant's alleged wrongful conduct. Using ex-post prices to infer ex-ante valuations does pose a challenge, however. This is because the impact of economic events that have nothing to do with Defendant's conduct has to be filtered out of post-transaction prices.
- (36) Filtering out fraud—but not risk - from securities prices leaves one with what courts and financial experts refer to as "true" or "intrinsic" value.²⁵ To arrive at true value securities should be valued as if the Defendant had not acted unlawfully. This standard prevents either party from benefiting from the fraud and is, I understand, frequently used in securities litigation to calculate damages.
- (37) Therefore, I find that if the Plaintiff would not have completed the merger but for Defendant's wrongful conduct, then its out-of-pocket, "but-for" damages are the true value of the property it gave up in the merger less the true value of the property (including cash) it received in exchange, all calculated as of the date of the merger.

$$\text{Plaintiff's damages} = \text{True value of property given up} - \text{True value of property received}$$

- (38) My analysis of the consolidated balance sheet of CLNH and its subsidiaries indicates that the property Plaintiff gave up in the merger ultimately consisted of 44,067,520 shares of Coleman stock, and a liability to pay off the Holdings Notes, that Plaintiff's wholly owned subsidiary, CLNH, would otherwise have had to repay no later than 2001.²⁶ What Plaintiff received in exchange was $159,956,756 in cash, and 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam stock.²⁷

²⁵ Academic and legal literature use both terms, but for simplicity I use the term "true value" exclusively in this report.

²⁶ CLN Holdings 1997 10-K. As noted in Exhibit 2, there was also a small amount of debt at the Coleman

021457

What CPH gave up

 Cash

- (39) I compute the true value of all of these items as of March 30, 1998. The true values for Coleman stock and Holding Notes are computed as if the merger were cancelled prior to March 30, 1998. The true value for the Sunbeam stock is computed by removing from its market price the artificial inflation due to Morgan Stanley (i.e. as if Morgan Stanley has made a curative disclosure).
- (40) My valuations all assume that capital markets, particularly the New York Stock Exchange (“NYSE”) on which both Sunbeam and Coleman were traded, are “efficient.” This means that securities markets—and market prices—respond almost instantly to all publicly available information about securities. “Information” is defined broadly: it includes hard facts, rumors, and even speculation about future events.
- (41) Because markets are efficient, and because information can be false, a security’s market price can differ from its true value. In the absence of fraud or misinformation, efficiency causes a security’s market price and true value to be the same. In other words, the market price of a security is generally the best measure of its true value. (The former Chairman and CEO of Coleman at the time of the merger agrees with this principle.)²⁸ I therefore use market prices as the basis for my own estimates of true value whenever this historical information is not contaminated by fraud or misinformation arising from the Defendant’s actions or failure to act. In some cases, such as modeling hypothetical “but-for” situations, it is impossible to use actual market prices. In such cases I use well-established techniques, often employing market prices from other dates as inputs, to estimate the market price that would have

Worldwide Corp. level, but because there was an equal amount of cash set aside in an escrow fund to repay that debt, I exclude it from my analysis.

²⁷ Merger Agreement, supra note 14.

²⁸ Mr. Levin testified that in his view, in 1998 the approximate value per share of Coleman stock was “[w]hatever it said in the Wall Street Journal every morning. . . . 021458 prevailed under those hypothetical, "but-for" conditions. I use these techniques in my valuations of both Coleman and Sunbeam.

- (42) First, I use these techniques to value Coleman's stock. The true value of the Coleman stock that CPH gave up is a hypothetical value. It is derived from the price at which Coleman stock would have traded on March 30, 1998 if CPH had cancelled the merger in response to a curative action, and retained its Coleman shares. I start with the actual market price for Coleman stock on a date before the market had any information about a merger with Sunbeam (a date when Coleman's market price and true value were the same). I then adjust this price to reflect all the factors that could have affected Coleman's stock price between that date and March 30, 1988, including information specific to Coleman (such as changes in Coleman's fundamental business outlook and CPH's hypothetical decision to proceed with, but then cancel, the merger) and movements in the stock market as a whole.
- (43) Next, I use these techniques to value Sunbeam's stock. Here, I estimate the price that Sunbeam would have traded at on March 30, 1998 if Morgan Stanley had disclosed the information it allegedly suppressed. Presumably, that price will be lower than the market price observed on that date, when Morgan Stanley's alleged misconduct was causing the Sunbeam stock price to be "artificially inflated"—i.e., priced above its true value.
- (44) As I did for Coleman, I start my analysis on a date when Sunbeam's observed share price and true value were the same for that date. In this case, I start on a date in May 1998 when the market price of Sunbeam's shares did, in fact, reflect the information that Morgan Stanley is alleged to have concealed. I then adjust that price to estimate what Sunbeam's market price would have been on March 30, 1998 if the information available to the financial markets on that date in May 1998 had actually been released before March 30, 1998. This adjustment includes a market adjustment and an adjustment for any changes in Sunbeam's fundamental prospects between the two dates that are not tied to the alleged malfeasance of the Defendant.
- (45) The damages owed by Morgan Stanley should not be based on artificial inflation that is unrelated to Morgan Stanley's conduct. My true value calculation is consistent with this principle. My true value for Sunbeam's stock price could contain inflation from the misdeeds of others, but it contains no inflation from the actions of Morgan Stanley, as outlined in Exhibit 4.

Exhibit 4: Sources of inflation in Sunbeam's stock price²⁹

- (46) My analysis assumes that Morgan Stanley would not have known of falsehoods in Sunbeam's audited financial statements, or the underlying accounting misconduct that required the company's financial results for the fourth quarter of 1996, all of 1997 and the first quarter of 1998 to be restated. If such falsehoods or misconduct by other parties artificially inflated Sunbeam's market price, Morgan Stanley has no liability for such inflation.
- (47) I assume that Morgan Stanley's misconduct consists of its failure to have the market learn no later than March 30, 1998:
- a. That Sunbeam was forecasted to post a loss (negative net earnings) for the first quarter of 1998.
 - b. That Sunbeam's first quarter loss would be approximately $0.09 per share, excluding approximately $0.36 per share in extraordinary charges for executive compensation contracts.
 - c. That Sunbeam's first quarter sales would be approximately $224.5 million.
- (48) The specific sales and earnings figures that I assume for the curative action outlined above are those which were disclosed no later than May 15, 1998, when Sunbeam's Form 10-Q for the first quarter of 1998 was filed with the SEC.^{30, 31}

²⁹ This exhibit is intended only to illustrate a concept; the boxes are not drawn to scale.

- (49) I have also assumed that the market's reaction to the negative information in Defendant's hypothetical curative action would have been identical to the reaction that the market actually had to the release of the same information in May 1998. Damages would be lower if I accounted for the likelihood that the market's reaction to a pessimistic forecast is not as severe as its reaction to an actual negative earnings report.
- (50) There are other valuation methods—discounted cash flow (DCF), comparable company analysis, and comparable transaction analysis—which I shall call “practitioner methods.” These practitioner methods should be distinguished from a pure efficient markets approach. Practitioner methods rely indirectly on the efficient market approach. Instead of using the actual market price of the stock they wish to value, they use the market prices of dozens of other securities to infer a range of possible values for it. Practitioner methods are commonly employed in situations where a market price does not exist (e.g., for a private company, or to value expected synergies) or where the desired output is a wide range of possible values as opposed to a single best estimate. Investment banks commonly use these methods in fairness opinions. CSFB and Morgan Stanley used them in this case to estimate a range of per-share values for Coleman as a stand-alone entity. CSFB's valuations ranged from $13.27 to $29.62, and Morgan Stanley's ranged from $13.99 to $39.05 respectively.
- (51) There are two main reasons why these methods are not appropriate for estimating the value of Coleman in this case.³² First, practitioner methods inevitably generate a range of values, which by itself is not a problem. The problem arises because there is no objective set of criteria for selecting any particular point in that range. This is not a problem in fairness opinions where a range of acceptable values is the desired output, but it is a fatal flaw for ³⁰ Sunbeam reported first quarter sales of $244.3 million. However, Sunbeam extended its fiscal quarter by two days (so as to end on Tuesday, March 31 rather than Sunday, March 29), which allowed it to report both $5 million in additional Sunbeam sales, and $14.8 million in Coleman sales. I subtract both of these from Sunbeam's reported sales to arrive at a disclosure based on Sunbeam's non-extended quarter.

³¹ Sunbeam's first quarter sales and earnings were actually first disclosed on May 11, 1998, in a press release (see supra, note 21) and at a presentation to equity analysts (see supra, note 21), but I work from May 15 (when Sunbeam filed its 10-Q), and the Sunbeam stock price on that date, which increases estimated damages.

³² Plaintiff's experts Kursh and Wagner rely on these methods extensively, which is a flaw in their analysis that I discuss in Section VI.

021461

use in matters where a single best estimate is the desired output and where relevant market-based prices are available. Second, the range of values estimated by practitioner methods depends critically on multiple assumptions, each of which is a matter of subjective judgment.³³

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

³³ A number of practitioner textbooks share my sentiments. For example, New York University professor Aswath Damodaran writes: "Valuation is neither the science that some of its proponents make it out to be nor the objective search for true value that idealists would like it to become. The models that we use in valuation may be quantitative, but the inputs leave plenty of room for subjective judgments. Thus, the final value that we obtain from these models is colored by the bias that we bring into the process. In fact, in many valuations, the price gets set first and the valuation follows." See Damodaran, Aswath, "Investment Valuation: Tools and Techniques for Determining the Value of Any Asset," John Wiley & Sons, Inc. (2002), p. 2.

021462

III.2. Summary of Conclusions

- (52) In my opinion, the net true value of the property and cash actually received by Plaintiff in the merger far exceeds the true value of the property Plaintiff gave up in the merger. Thus there are no damages in this case.
- (53) The best estimate of damages, based on the most reasonable set of assumptions, is actually negative. Since the best damage number is negative, I considered whether there were any other assumptions that were not too unreasonable, that might generate a positive damage number. I considered other assumptions, all of which were less likely than the assumptions yielding the best estimate, and all of which were designed to maximize damages. The highest damage number that I could come up with was still negative.
- (54) The different sets of assumptions that I considered in an attempt to see if there was any way that damages might be positive, led to 24 different damage estimates. The highest, lowest, and median estimates across all 24 calculations are provided in Exhibit 5 below. The figures are in millions. All of the figures are highly negative, as indicated by the parentheses.

Exhibit 5: High, median and low damage estimates, in millions of dollars

Damage Scenario	Estimate
High	($110)
Median	($290)
Low	($376)

- (55) I also made minor assumptions for each of these 24 damage calculations that bias the damages in favor of the Plaintiff (and in this case, make the estimates in Exhibit 5 less negative). Alternative assumptions that are less biased in favor of exaggerating damages reduce each of these damage estimates (make them more negative) by tens of millions of dollars.

III.3. Report Structure

- (56) The rest of the report discusses my opinions and provides the data and analysis upon which they are based. It is organized as follows:
- (57) My analysis proceeds in three main stages:
 - a. Section IV explores the consequences of assumptions that, at each turn, are selected to maximize damages, and lie on the boundary of being implausibly biased in favor of the Plaintiff.
 - b. Section V discusses more realistic valuations for what CPH gave up and received in the transaction.
 - c. Section VI discusses the reports of Plaintiff's experts Nye, Kursh and Wagner.

(58) This section provides my damage-maximizing valuation of the assets and liabilities that CPH gave up and received in the merger. Their values are netted against one another to arrive at a maximum damage figure.

- a. The maximum net true value for the property that CPH gave up in the merger (CLNH equity) is $382 million, which is the difference between the maximum true value of the Coleman common stock and the minimum true value of the CLN Holdings Notes.
- b. The minimum net true value of the property that CPH received in the transaction, which is the minimum true value of the Sunbeam stock received plus the cash consideration, is $491 million.
- c. The maximum damages owed to the Plaintiff are zero because the minimum true value of the property received in the merger exceeds the maximum true value of the property and cash CPH gave up in the merger by $110 million³⁴.

(59) The rest of this section provides the bases for this opinion. It is organized as follows:

- a. Section IV.1 estimates the damage-maximizing true value per share of Coleman stock on March 30, 1998. This estimate of the true value of Coleman's share price borders on being implausibly high.
- b. Section IV.2 estimates the damage-maximizing valuation of the CLN Holdings Notes on March 30, 1998. As this is an obligation to make payments, the damage-maximizing valuation is the lowest true value of the Holdings Notes. This estimate borders on being implausibly low.
- c. Section IV.3 estimates the true value of Sunbeam stock on March 30, 1998 under damage-maximizing assumptions. This estimate of Sunbeam's share price borders on being implausibly low.

³⁴ Arithmetic difference is due to rounding. All of my calculations are performed at full precision, however for presentation purposes throughout this report I often show dollar figures rounded to the nearest million.

- d. Section IV.4 does the arithmetic. It derives the maximum estimate of damages by netting these separate estimates against one another and against the approximately $160 million cash consideration.

IV.1. The Damage-Maximizing True Value of the Coleman Stock Given Up in the Merger

- (60) This section of the report analyzes the damage-maximizing true value of the 44,067,520 shares of Coleman common stock that CPH would have retained if it had called off the merger. The March 30, 1998 valuation is based on careful study of Coleman's stock price and trading history prior to the merger, in conjunction with well-established techniques for adjusting stock prices to reflect market movements, and from an academic study of cancelled mergers whose findings are applied to this analysis. My estimate of true value is designed to maximize damages: When faced with a range of assumptions or choices, I choose the one most favorable to the Plaintiff, even if it is clearly less reasonable than other choices.
- (61) I use two steps to estimate the true value of Coleman stock on March 30, 1998 in the "but-for" world in which CPH cancels the merger:
- a. First, I compute the "stand-alone value" of Coleman stock: This is the value that the Coleman stock would have had on March 30, 1998 if there had never been a merger proposal by Sunbeam.
 - b. Then, I adjust the stand-alone value for the impact on Coleman's stock price that announcing, but thereafter terminating, the Merger Agreement would have had. This adjustment can be positive or negative depending on the change in the market's perception of the likelihood that another company will acquire Coleman.
- (62) I estimate the March 30, 1998 stand-alone value from Coleman's stock prices several weeks prior to March 30 because the actual closing price of Coleman on March 30, 1998 reflects the fact that the merger actually occurred, and because Coleman's price before that date was affected by merger expectations. To estimate what Coleman's stand-alone value would have been on March 30, 1998, I proceed as follows:
- a. First, I identify the latest date on which the market was arguably valuing Coleman on a stand-alone basis; that is, the date beyond which the market price of Coleman appears to be inflated by news or rumor of its impending merger. This is depicted as "Step 1" in Exhibit 6, which illustrates my procedure.

- i. In this section of the report (IV), I use the damage maximizing (i.e. highest) choice of start dates—which is February 23, 1998.
 - ii. In later sections, I review the evidence indicating that the most likely start date is much earlier, when the price of Coleman was much lower, and I provide damage estimates based on that alternative start date.
- b. Next, I adjust Coleman's price on the start date to reflect any non-merger related information pertinent to Coleman's March 30, 1998 true value that appeared between the start date and March 30, 1998. This adjustment generates Coleman's March 30, 1998 "stand-alone value," which is depicted in Exhibit 6 as "Step 2." (The details of the adjustment are in Appendix E.)
- i. This section (IV) of the report calculates these adjustments under damage-maximizing assumptions about the starting date.
 - ii. Section V discusses estimates made under more reasonable assumptions about the starting date.

Exhibit 6: Methodology for deriving Coleman's true value

(63) I then adjust the estimate of Coleman's March 30, 1998 stand-alone value for pertinent merger-related information that could affect Coleman's true value in the "but-for" scenario. This accounts for the price impact of the prior announcement of the Merger Agreement with Sunbeam, and the announcement by CPH that the merger was terminated. This adjustment, which I term the "merger-related premium," yields an estimate of Coleman's true value on March 30, 1998 and is depicted in Exhibit 6 as Step 3. The merger-related premium reflects the market's typical reaction to an announcement and subsequent termination of a merger.³⁵

³⁵ As stated earlier in this report, I am assuming that the curative action takes place after the March 2, 1998 merger announcement. The Step 3 adjustment would not be appropriate if the curative action took place prior to the announcement of the merger on February 27, 1998 and resulted in a "but-for" scenario where there simply was no announcement of a merger between Coleman and Sunbeam. Coleman's true value is lower if this is the case.

021470

- a. This section (IV) of the report uses a damage-maximizing premium of 5.79%.³⁶ This is the largest applicable value that I could find in the academic literature on terminated mergers.
- b. Section V discusses the evidence in favor of a lower premium and provides damage estimates based on it.

IV.1.1. Step 1: Selection of Initial Date

IV.1.1.1. The Contaminating Impact of Merger Rumors on Coleman's Stock Price Justifies a Start Date Sufficiently Prior to the Date of the Merger Announcement

- (64) Step 1 of my analysis of the true value of Coleman requires selection of an appropriate starting date from which the March 30, 1998 stand-alone value is generated. The best starting date is the date before the date at which Coleman's stock price first became inflated by rumors or "leaked" news of a suspected merger. Plaintiff's expert Kursh applies a similar logic to his analyses.³⁷ In many instances, one can ascertain a date by which we know with certainty that a stock's price is inflated by merger rumors. For the purposes of damage-maximization, that date suffices as the first date of inflation. However, we cannot say that such rumors did not cause inflation sooner. Often, one can infer from the weight of the evidence that the first date was sooner with high probability.
- (65) Market efficiency indicates that rumors of a merger are a form of information that one would expect to have an impact on a stock's price. Academic research on mergers finds that the target firm's price increases prior to a merger announcement. These run-ups can be attributed to leakage of information.³⁸ This research also finds that the run-up in a company's stock price from such merger-related inflation starts anywhere from days to weeks before the official merger announcement. Recent analyses of mergers in the U.S. conclude that for the average firm, otherwise unexplained price increases prior to the actual merger announcement are significant and in the range of 11 to 14 percent, with the variation accounted for by different studies and different pre-announcement periods over which the run-up is calculated.³⁹ On a firm-by-firm basis, the stock price run-up prior to the merger can vary far more than this. In Coleman's case, the stock price increased by nearly 60% in the month prior to the merger announcement, throughout which merger talks took place.⁴⁰ This is highly unusual when the average return for most stocks in a given month is on the order of 1%.⁴¹

³⁶ Sullivan, Michael J., Marlin R.H. Jensen, and Carl D. Hudson. "The Role of Medium of Exchange in Merger Offers: Examination of Terminated Merger Proposals." Financial Management 23.3 (1994) ("Sullivan et al., Terminated Merger Proposals"): 51-62.

³⁷ Kursh acknowledges that Morgan Stanley's "control premium analysis," which compared merger prices with market prices 28 days before announcement, "may eliminate any market impact that might be attributed to information leakage prior to formal merger announcement." 021471

- (66) My own research, performed in conjunction with this litigation, also confirms the findings of prior academic research studies. I analyzed 627 announced mergers occurring around the time of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger and found that, on average, the target company's price rose 8.3% in the four weeks leading up to the formal merger announcement.⁴² This is a statistically significant increase. My study shows not only that news of mergers often leaks out prior to their formal announcement, but that such leakage can occur weeks in advance.

³⁸ The academic literature suggests two channels through which information leaks into the market: insider trading and investor anticipation of the merger. For a summary, see Sanders, Ralph W., Jr. and John S. Zdanowicz. 021472

Such leakage generated artificial inflation in the price of Coleman that needs to be eliminated when constructing an economically valid damage calculation.

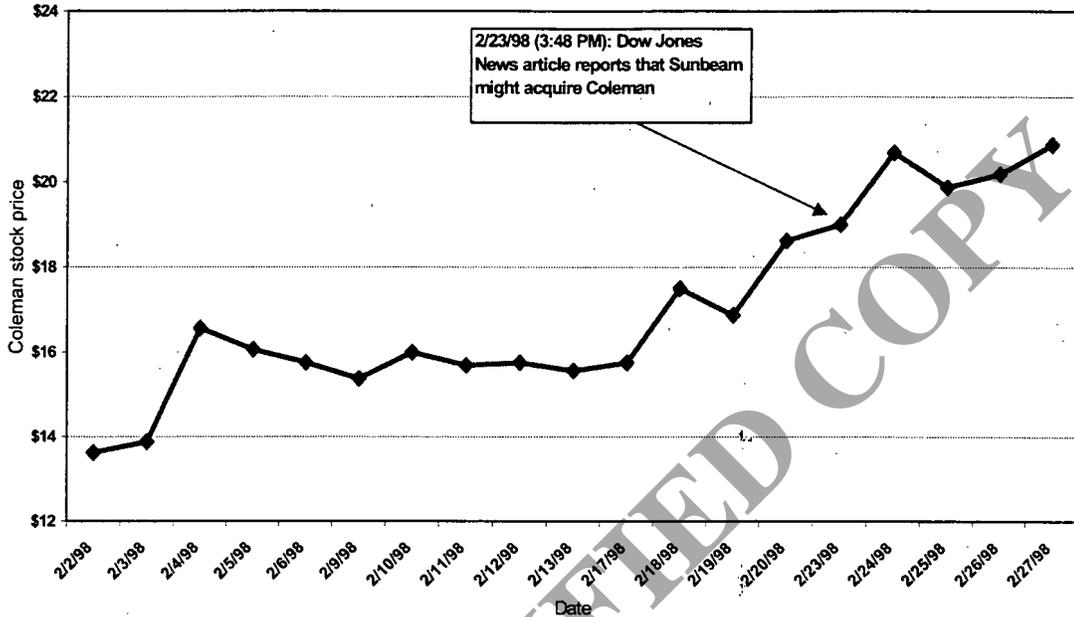

IV.1.1.2. February 23, 1998, About 10 Minutes Before the Closing Bell, Is the Damage-Maximizing Starting Point

- (67) I conducted research to determine when the market first suspected that Coleman was the target of an acquisition. I analyzed Coleman's stock price and trading activity in the weeks leading up to the merger announcement and reviewed all available news stories about Coleman during this period. I concluded that there were alternative start dates. In this section (IV) of the report, I use the one that maximizes damages—February 23, 1998. However, as discussed in more detail in Section V, there is a more likely starting date which generates significantly lower damages than February 23.
- (68) As can readily be seen in Exhibit 7, the price of Coleman rose fairly consistently over the month before the merger announcement. Thus, the later the date I use for my starting point, the higher my estimate of damages tends to be, and the more likely it is that what I call a stand-alone value for Coleman is, in fact, a value that is affected by merger expectations.

Exhibit 7: Coleman's daily stock price during February 1998

- (69) On February 23, 1998, approximately ten minutes before the close of trading, the Dow Jones News Service reported that “takeover speculation” related to an acquisition by Sunbeam was “still following Coleman,” (emphasis added) and mentioned that the “implied volatilities” of options on Coleman stock had started increasing the previous week, “ostensibly in advance of a sale.”⁴³ Thus, certainly by the time of the February 23, 1998 Dow Jones news announcement, if not much earlier, Coleman was rumored to be in talks with Sunbeam. The rumors were sufficiently widespread to be discussed (and further disseminated) by Dow Jones.
- (70) While there may be a basis for believing that Coleman’s price was affected by merger speculation before February 23 (the article’s own words suggest as much), there is no basis at all for believing that Coleman’s price was untainted by merger speculation after that date.

⁴³ “Coleman’s Volatilities Attracts Traders,” Dow Jones News Service, February 23, 1998, 3:48 PM.

021474

February 23 is the latest, and given Coleman's price increase during February most damage-maximizing, date on which to begin Step 1 of my analysis. It is the last date (and therefore highest price) on which Coleman's price was arguably untainted by news or rumors of the impending merger. The price of Coleman stock on February 23, 1998, just before the Dow Jones story of the merger was released, was $18.94 per share.⁴⁴

IV.1.2. Step 2: The March 30, 1998 Valuation of Coleman as a Stand-Alone Entity Is Obtained by Analyzing the Price Impact of Interim Non-Merger Information

- (71) Next, I convert the actual market price of Coleman on the start date (in this case, February 23, 1998) into a hypothetical stand-alone value at March 30, 1998. This is my computation of Coleman's market price under the assumption that Coleman has never been the target of a merger with Sunbeam. I researched whether there had been any events having a significant impact on Coleman's share price during that period, and found none (other than news and speculation concerning the merger itself, as I discuss in more detail in Section V.1).
- (72) This does not mean that the price of Coleman would have stayed the same between February 23 and March 30. The same forces that affected the general stock market between those dates would also have affected Coleman. I therefore arrive at Coleman's stand-alone value on March 30, 1998 by making a "market adjustment." A market adjustment is a widely accepted method in financial modeling to account for changes in the stock market as a whole and the historical relationship between such changes and those of a specific company. The "market model" I use for this purpose is described in Appendix E. My application of this model increased the February 23 price by $0.69, to arrive at a March 30, 1998 stand-alone value of $19.63 per share for Coleman. I note that this $19.63 price is within the ranges estimated for Coleman by both CSFB and Morgan Stanley.⁴⁵

IV.1.3. Step 3: Adjustment of Stand-Alone Value to Reflect Merger Announcement and Merger Cancellation

- (73) Assuming that Coleman would have called off the merger as a result of Morgan Stanley's curative action, Coleman's price on March 30, 1998 would likely have differed from its stand-alone value on that day. To account for the effect of the merger announcement and subsequent cancellation, I adjust Coleman's stand-alone value by adding a merger-related premium. This section (IV.1.3) assumes a damage-maximizing premium of 5.79%, which yields an estimate of Coleman's true value on March 30, 1998 of $20.76 per share. This is the maximum possible true value of Coleman on March 30, 1998, incorporating the maximum starting price, the market adjustment, and the maximum merger-related premium.
- (74) The merger-related premium quantifies the combined effect of a merger announcement and subsequent cancellation on the target's stock price. Sullivan et al. (1994) calculated this premium as 5.79% by comparing the stock prices of merger targets prior to their merger announcements with their stock prices after the termination of their mergers for a sample of 84 terminated mergers.⁴⁶ The sample includes New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange-listed target firms involved in terminated merger proposals between 1980 and 1988. The Sullivan study found a statistically significant increase in the stock returns of these targets from 10 trading days prior to the announcement of the merger proposal to 10 trading days after the announcement of the merger termination.
- (75) Of all of the papers with comparable merger samples, the 5.79% premium in the Sullivan paper is the largest, and thus most damage-maximizing adjustment I could make for the impact of merger-related news in the "but-for" scenario.⁴⁷ Because this study uses data from the 1980s, I also carried out my own study of merger-related premia, using a time period that is a better match for the purpose at hand than the time period in the Sullivan study. My study, performed for this report, suggests that the premium is modestly lower than the premium found by Sullivan. I discuss damage estimates using this more appropriate premium in Section V.

IV.1.4. Translating the Market Price of Coleman on February 23 to the True Value of What CPH Gave Up in the Merger

(76) Exhibit 8 summarizes the steps used to arrive at the damage-maximizing true value of Coleman on a per share basis. Starting with Coleman's value of $18.94 on February 23, 1998 (step 1), I applied a market adjustment to arrive at a stand-alone value of $19.63 on March 30 (step 2), and then applied a merger-related premium to arrive at Coleman's true value of $20.76 per share on March 30, 1998 (step 3).

Exhibit 8: Calculation of true value of Coleman at March 30, 1998

(77) Thus, the total damage-maximizing true value of Plaintiff's 44,067,520 shares of Coleman given up in the merger was $915,049,864.

021477

IV.2. Valuing the CLN Holdings Notes

- (78) In the merger, Sunbeam assumed responsibility for paying off the owners of the CLN Holdings Notes (the "Noteholders"). Had CPH cancelled the merger, it would have continued to own Coleman stock via its subsidiaries, but it also would have continued to owe money to the Noteholders. Therefore, the true value of the Holdings Notes must be subtracted from the true value of CPH's Coleman stock to arrive at the net true value of the property CPH would have retained in the "but-for" world. As with Coleman stock, the "but-for" value of the Holdings Notes should be calculated as of March 30, 1998 under the assumption that the curative action has taken place and that the merger has been called off. The curative action and merger cancellation would have lowered the true value of the Holdings Notes relative to the price at which they traded historically at the time of the merger. Because the Holdings Notes are a liability to CPH, every $1 reduction in my estimate of the true value of the Holdings Notes represents a $1 increase in my estimate of Plaintiff's damages.

IV.2.1. Background

- (79) On May 20, 1997, CLNH issued $732 million in principal amount of Senior Secured Discount Notes (the "Holdings Notes") due 2001. These were zero coupon notes, meaning that the issuer was not obligated to make any payments prior to the maturity date of the notes. The entire principal amount, $732 million, was to be paid all at once upon maturity. In return, on the date the Holdings Notes were issued, CLNH received a heavily discounted amount of net proceeds totaling $455 million.⁴⁸ The proceeds of the Holdings Notes were used to retire (1) approximately $187 million of debt previously issued by its subsidiary Coleman Worldwide, and (2) approximately $262 million of debt previously issued by CLNH.⁴⁹ The Holdings Notes consisted of two series, or "tranches," of notes whose key characteristics are described in Exhibit 9 below:

⁴⁸ Gross proceeds, before fees, were $470 million.

⁴⁹ The remaining $6 million was held in escrow to fund the completion of the Coleman Worldwide LYONs

Total	$732,035,000	100%

IV.2.2. Holdings Notes Valuation Methodology

- (80) The value of corporate debt depends on the amount and timing of payments, and the risk associated with those payments (the likelihood that the note issuer will actually pay them). The higher the risk, the larger the discount rate one uses in calculating their present value, and the lower the value of the notes. If two notes have the same payments due on the same dates, the less risky note will have a higher market price than the more risky note.⁵¹ In the case of the CLN Holdings Notes, the Second Priority notes are riskier because they have a less senior claim to the collateral with which the Holdings Notes are secured, and thus have a lower value per dollar of principal owed than the First Priority notes.
- (81) Nevertheless, both tranches of Holdings Notes have substantial default risk according to the ratings assigned to them by Moody's, a bond rating agency. The default risk is primarily tied to the value of their collateral, which is the Coleman stock ultimately owned by CLNH. The more valuable the Coleman stock, the more valuable the collateral, and the lower the risk of default, which ultimately leads to a higher value of the Holdings Notes.
- (82) The actual prices at which CLN Holdings Notes traded generally confirm this theoretical relationship between the value of Coleman stock and the value of the Notes. Leakage of news of the Merger Agreement caused both a run-up in the stock price of Coleman, and a retirement in May 1998. Any remaining escrow funds were earmarked as a dividend to MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. Form S-1 Amended, filed by Coleman Escrow Corp. on October 6, 1997, p. 14. general increase in the price of the First Priority Notes, with a corresponding decrease in their yield to maturity (“YTM” or “yield”). The effect is most noticeable on March 2, 1998, when announcement of the Merger Agreement caused a dramatic rise in the value of the notes: the sharp increase in the value of the collateral made the notes less risky and therefore more valuable. Prices and yields for the First Priority Notes on dates for which data were available are shown in Exhibit 10. Observe that prices and yields move inversely to one another in the exhibit. The yield is the discount rate that makes the discounted promised future cash flows of the note equal to its market price.

IV.2.3. Valuation Mechanics

- (83) I value the Holdings Notes as of March 30, 1998, under the assumption that CPH would have cancelled the merger. Although I have information on the market prices of the First Priority Holdings Notes for various dates in late February and early March of 1998, I do not have Holdings Notes market prices for late March for a hypothetical scenario in which the merger is cancelled. Thus, I must estimate what these prices would have been.
- (84) My damage-maximizing estimate of the true value of the First Priority Holdings Notes proceeds as follows.

⁵² The Wall Street Journal reported the price of the CLN Holdings Notes only on select days when it was one of the “key gainers” among high yield corporate bonds, and only reported the First Priority values. The dates shown are the only ones for which I have been able to locate prices for the notes. Coleman stock price data: ©200410 CRSP®, Center for Research in Security Prices. 021480

- a. I value the First Priority Holdings Notes using their yield to maturity on February 26, 1998. This is the latest day for which I have data prior to the merger announcement. On that date, Coleman was trading at $20.19 and the First Priority Holdings Notes had a yield to maturity of 10.08%.⁵³ The market price of Coleman on February 26 was lower than the $20.76 true value of Coleman that I estimated as of March 30, 1998 so my use of a lower stock price here generates a higher damage estimate: the lower the stock price, the less valuable the Holdings Notes, and the greater Plaintiff's damages.
- b. I assume that the yield to maturity of the First Priority Holdings Notes did not change between late February and late March 1998. This assumption maximizes damages because there is strong reason to believe that the yields on most high yield bonds would have declined in the month of March 1998 in the "but-for" world due to overall market conditions, as explained in Section V.
- c. At March 30, 1998, I discount the promised future payments of the CLN Holdings Notes (First Priority) at the same (pre merger announcement) yield to maturity that they had on February 26, 1998. At this discount rate, 10.08%, the First Priority Holdings Notes have a March 30, 1998 true value of $442 million.⁵⁴

(85) I have no market data with which to price the Second Priority Holdings Notes. However, modern bond valuation methodologies tell us that their yield to maturity is highly correlated with the yield to maturity of the first tranche.⁵⁵ It is my opinion, using my knowledge of

⁵⁴ Calculated by discounting back the principal amount using the 10.08% YTM, assuming semi-annual accrual date and geometric compounding using a 360 day (30 day per month) year.

⁵⁵ A zero coupon bond can be viewed as an option on the firm's assets. See Fischer Black and Myron Scholes, "The Pricing of Options and Corporate Liabilities," Journal of Political Economy 81, no. 2 (May-June 1973) ("Black and Scholes"), pp. 637-654. In this particular case, the Holdings Notes can be valued as call option with different strike prices on Coleman stock. Black and Scholes prove that these are perfectly how to apply this valuation methodology, that the yield to maturity of the Second Priority Notes in the "but-for" world would be no larger than 11.83%. The reasons for this follow:

- a. 11.83% is 1.045% below the 12.875% yield these notes had at issue. This decline in yield to maturity is the same as the assumed decline in the yield to maturity of the First Priority notes from issue to March 30, 1998. It is also a yield that maintains the same spread between the yields to maturity of the First and Second Priority Holdings Notes.
- b. Modern junk bond valuation techniques, derived from the Black-Scholes option pricing model,⁵⁶ tell us that that the decline in the yield on the second-tranche notes would be larger, and the spread in yields between the two tranches should narrow, if the yields on the bonds decline because of credit quality improvements arising from an increase in the value of the underlying collateral (here, Coleman stock).
- c. The yield to maturity of 11.83%, being higher than modern bond valuation techniques suggest it should be, generates a lower value for the Second Priority notes and greater damages than an unbiased estimate of their true value.

(86) A discount rate of 11.83%, applied (as of March 30, 1998) to the promised future payments of the Second Priority Holdings Notes, generates a March 30, 1998 true value of $92 million for the Second Priority Notes in the "but-for" world. The aggregate true value of both tranches of Holdings Notes is therefore $533 million.⁵⁷ correlated.

⁵⁶ Black and Scholes, supra note 55. My analysis about the change in the yield to maturity is based on my knowledge of the effect of bond duration, coupled with the partial derivative of the logarithm of the value of a call option with respect to a change in the stock price as a function of the strike price. Building blocks for the partial derivative calculation are found, for example, in Dan Galai and Ronald W. Masulis, "The Option Pricing Model and the Risk Factor of Stock," Journal of Financial Economics Volume 3 (1976), pp. 53-81.

⁵⁷ The cost to Sunbeam of assuming this debt was much higher than its true value. After the merger closed, during the second quarter of 1998 Sunbeam retired the Holdings Notes, paying the Noteholders approximately $625 million: $524 million in accreted value as of May 15, 1998, plus an approximately $100

021482

IV.3. The Damage-Maximizing Estimate of the True Value of Sunbeam Stock Received by CPH in the Merger

- (87) This section of the report estimates the true value of the Sunbeam stock received by CPH in the merger. The true value of Sunbeam stock is the market price for Sunbeam common shares that would have prevailed on March 30, 1998 if Morgan Stanley's information had been released to the market (the curative action), and the merger had been completed.⁵⁸ It is equal to the value at which Sunbeam would have traded on March 30, 1998 after all of the artificial inflation attributed to Morgan Stanley's conduct was removed. As in prior sections, whenever there is an element of uncertainty in the appropriate choice of options, I choose the option that minimizes Sunbeam's value and therefore maximizes damages for the Plaintiff, even if other more reasonable choices exist.
- (88) To estimate the true value of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998, I first identify the date closest to March 30 on which Sunbeam's stock price was not artificially inflated due to Morgan Stanley's conduct. The damage maximizing choice here is May 26, 1998. I then adjust the stock price on May 26 back to March 30.
- a. In this section (IV), I adopt a methodology for this adjustment that maximizes damages by attributing all of the fall in Sunbeam stock price between March 30 and May 26 to Morgan Stanley.

million prepayment penalty. Indenture, Coleman Escrow Corp., May 20, 1997, p. 2; Sunbeam Corp. Form 10-Q for Q2 1998, filed December 22, 1998.

⁵⁸ I am ignoring any discount due to the lock-up provisions of the Merger Agreement or the fact that the Sunbeam shares were unregistered. Accounting for these issues fairly would decrease damages. First, modern utility theory suggests that the discount that should be applied to CPH's holdings of Sunbeam should be close to zero. Second, restrictions on unregistered stock only delay sale to the public. An active Rule 144A market exists for such shares among qualified investors. Third, CPH's overall liquidity increased in the merger transaction. Its ownership percentage of Coleman (over 80%) was much larger than its holdings in Sunbeam (14%) and, given its controlling status, would have been more difficult to sell at market prices, even accounting for the relative difference in legal restriction on sales. Fourth, any sale of the Coleman shares would have been encumbered by the debt covenants of the Holdings Notes. Fifth, a major part of the consideration received in the merger was cash and the assumption of the Holdings Notes, which clearly enhanced the liquidity of CPH's position. As such, applying the liquidity discount to every aspect of the transaction where it is a legitimate consideration would substantially reduce damage estimates for the Plaintiff.

021483

- b. Section V.3 discusses a more proper apportionment of the March 30 to May 26 fall in Sunbeam's stock price between the release of the information allegedly concealed by Morgan Stanley and the revelation of other adverse information that should not contribute to Morgan Stanley's damages.

(89) The rest of this subsection proceeds as follows. In Section IV.3.1 I discuss the concepts of "true value" and "artificial inflation" as the terms are applied to Sunbeam and how artificial inflation attributable to Morgan Stanley's alleged concealment of material information can be distinguished from artificial inflation attributable to other sources. In section IV.3.2, I provide my estimate of the true value of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998 and indicate why this estimate is biased in the direction of increasing damages for the Plaintiff.

IV.3.1. True Value and Artificial Inflation When Multiple Parties Have Liability for Damages

(90) Sunbeam traded in an efficient market, which means that, as discussed in Section III.1, the market price of Sunbeam always reflected the information available to the public about the company, including potentially false or incomplete information. False or incomplete information can artificially inflate a stock's market price. I have been asked to calculate damages attributable to Morgan Stanley and not to third parties. For purposes of this analysis I have been asked to assume that Defendant is only responsible for inflation-related damages arising from the Defendant's failure to take the curative action. Therefore, the true value of Sunbeam, for the purpose of calculating damages, is defined to be what its market price would have been in the absence of artificial inflation caused only by the Defendant's alleged malfeasance.

- (91) There were at least two sources of artificial inflation in Sunbeam's stock price on March 30:
- a. One source is Morgan Stanley's alleged failure to undertake the curative action and cause more accurate information about Sunbeam's first quarter sales and earnings to prevail in the market for Sunbeam stock.
 - b. The other source is a large number of allegedly fraudulent accounting and auditing practices perpetrated by Sunbeam's management and Arthur Andersen, including those that ultimately required Sunbeam to restate its financial results for the fourth quarter of 1996, all of 1997, and the first quarter of 1998.⁵⁹

021484

(92) Plaintiff's Complaint argues that these two sources of malfeasance are inseparable and that Morgan Stanley could have prevented the stock of Sunbeam from being artificially inflated by the accounting and auditing fraud alluded to above.

- a. I have come across no evidence in my analysis that would suggest that Morgan Stanley could have achieved this. Moreover, I have been asked by Defendant's counsel to assume that Morgan Stanley, having no knowledge of accounting or auditing fraud, cannot be held legally responsible for the consequences of the accounting and auditing fraud allegedly perpetrated on the Defendant.
- b. It is also my expert opinion that the curative action I assume in my report would not have led to the elimination of artificial inflation in the March 30, 1998 stock price of Sunbeam arising from the accounting and auditing fraud alleged by the Plaintiff.

IV.3.2. The Damage-Maximizing Estimate of Sunbeam's True Value

IV.3.2.1. The Starting Point for Estimating Sunbeam's True Value

(93) My overall objective is to estimate the price at which Sunbeam stock would have traded on March 30 in the absence of Morgan Stanley's misconduct. As with Coleman's true value estimate, I start by looking for the first date on or after March 30 when there is no longer inflation in Sunbeam's stock price from the Defendant's alleged malfeasance. In this case, I was able to identify a date by which the information that should have been included in the curative action was known to the market. This date meets my damage-maximization objectives for two reasons. First, shortly after the merger, the stock price of Sunbeam suffered a general decline en route to that date; thus, while the choice of an earlier date might have been justified, my selection maximizes damages. Second, I make no adjustments to the stock price on that date to remove the impact of adverse information for which the Defendant is not liable. Had I chosen an earlier date, or adjusted the stock price to reflect "bad news" unrelated to Defendant's conduct, my estimated damages would be lower, as discussed in Section V.

⁵⁹ Sunbeam Amended 1997 10-K, filed November 12, 1998 (restating results for the fourth quarter of 1996 and all of 1997), and Amended first quarter 1998 10-Q, filed November 25, 1998, p. 5.

- (94) I assume, as I did for Coleman's true-value analysis, that Morgan Stanley's wrongdoing consists of its failure to release a more accurate forecast of Sunbeam's sales and earnings performance for the first quarter of 1998. First quarter sales and earnings information was first released on May 11, 1998. On that date, Sunbeam reported first quarter 1998 results in a press release before the markets opened,⁶⁰ and later hosted a 9:00 AM live conference with some 200 "major investors and Wall Street analysts"⁶¹ in which it discussed the results at great length.
- (95) On May 15, 1998 Sunbeam filed its first quarter 1998 Form 10-Q with the SEC. This report included, among other financial information, detailed first quarter 1998 sales and earnings figures consistent with those announced on May 11, but with much more supporting information and detail.⁶²
- (96) Thus, all material non-public information that Morgan Stanley is alleged to have withheld from the market in March 1998 would have been fully in the public domain as a result of Sunbeam's own disclosures no later than May 15, 1998.⁶³

⁶⁰ Sunbeam Press Release, supra note 21.

⁶¹ "How Al Dunlap Self-Destructed," Business Week, July 6, 1998 at 58.

⁶² May 15, 1998 Sunbeam Form 10-Q.

⁶³ Arguably, my analysis should begin on May 11, since the most salient information was released on that date. My choice of May 15, however, is more conservative: Sunbeam closed at $25.75 on May 11, 1998, but had declined to $25.00 by May 15, 1998.

021486

IV.3.2.2. Extending the Window

- (97) The release of new information about a company can have a cascading effect, causing additional inquiry and investigation by investors and analysts, resulting in more information being disclosed. I have valued Coleman as if the market had 11 days between March 19, 1998 (when Morgan Stanley received a letter from Arthur Andersen which, allegedly, should have prompted Morgan Stanley to undertake a curative action) and March 30, 1998 (the date on which the merger was executed) to generate additional information. My damage-maximizing estimation procedure therefore adds an additional 11 calendar days to May 15, 1998, the date of the SEC 10-Q filing, to allow time for additional information to come out about Sunbeam's first quarter earnings and sales. This yields May 26, 1998 as the starting point.
- (98) Sunbeam was under heightened scrutiny after the events of April 3, 1998, making it very likely that the pace of additional information discovery would have been much greater in May than it was in March. It is also likely that after the merger, far fewer than 11 days would have generated the information collection and price reaction that would have been observed in the 11 days following a curative action in March. Because Sunbeam declined between May 15 and May 26, this section's employment of an 11-day window extension, as opposed to a justifiable shorter window extension, results in a lower true value and greater damages for the Plaintiff.

IV.3.2.3. Adjusting Sunbeam's May 26 Price Back to March 30

- (99) Just as I did for Coleman, I apply a market adjustment to the price of Sunbeam on my starting date to account for movements in the market as a whole between that date and March 30. The technique was essentially the same, although applied in a different direction: backwards from May 26, rather than forwards from February 23. I detail the logic in Appendix C and show its application in Exhibit 11 below. In essence, it involves dividing Sunbeam's price on May 26 by the value that a dollar, invested in the market on March 30, would have grown to by May 26. The market had a slight positive return over this time period (from March 30 through May 26). Because I am working backwards in time, applying the market adjustment to Sunbeam stock reduces its estimated value (though only by a small amount) and increases overall damages somewhat. This is consistent with my goal in this section (IV) of maximizing Plaintiff's estimated damages.

Exhibit 11: Market adjustment to Sunbeam's stock price on May 26, 1998

Sunbeam stock price on May 26, 1998	Market movement between March 30, 1998 and May 26, 1998	Market-adjusted Sunbeam price on March 30, 1998
(A)	(B)	$= A / (1 + B)$
$23.50	0.04%	$23.49

- (100) As shown in Exhibit 11, my damage-maximizing estimate for the true value of a share of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998 is $23.49, which is the price that Sunbeam traded at on May 26, 1998, market adjusted back to March 30, 1998. It is my opinion that lower estimates of Sunbeam's true value are implausible and that there is no scientific basis for a larger damage estimate from any lower value of Sunbeam's true value per share.
- (101) My damage maximizing estimate attributes to Morgan Stanley the entire decline in Sunbeam's stock price between March 30 and May 26. However, as discussed in Section V.3, the information released in April and May about Sunbeam was overwhelmingly negative. It included many negative (and no substantially positive) news stories unrelated to the matters that Morgan Stanley should have disclosed. Thus, this estimate is likely to attribute to Morgan Stanley not only all of the artificial inflation it is alleged to have caused, but also some of the artificial inflation from other sources. Therefore, the true value estimate for Sunbeam derived in this section is likely to overestimate damages. As a matter of principle, the true value of Sunbeam should be adjusted for all Sunbeam's stock price movements between March 30 and May 26 that are not due to the revelation of information allegedly concealed by Morgan Stanley. Section V addresses this issue.

021488

IV.4. Damages: Netting the True Values of Property (Including Cash) Exchanged in the Merger

(102) I estimate the maximum amount of damages by taking my damage-maximizing estimates for each of the three major items exchanged in the transaction—the largest true value of Coleman stock, the smallest true values of the Holdings Notes and Sunbeam stock, and netting them against each other and against the $160 million in cash given to CPH by Sunbeam. Exhibit 12 summarizes my estimate of maximum damages.

(103) The estimates presented in this section (IV) are intended to test the boundaries of maximum damages with assumptions that that are all likely to be biased in the direction of overestimating damages. In the following section (V), I provide less biased and more reasonable estimates for each of these components of damages, and for overall damages.

(104) Section IV concluded that the minimum true value of what CPH received in the merger far exceeded the maximum true value of what it gave up. Thus, my damage maximizing estimate is zero damages for the Plaintiff. This section (V) provides my opinions on more reasonable true values of what CPH gave up and received in the merger. These true values employ more reasonable, balanced, and scientifically-justified assumptions. Section V also provides additional explanations as to why the assumptions in Section IV were biased in favor of the Plaintiff and why the assumptions used to compute damages in this section (V) are more justified. The outline of this section follows:

- a. Section V.1 discusses more reasonable true values of the Coleman stock that CPH gave up in the transaction.
- b. Section V.2 discusses more reasonable true values for the burden of paying off the CLN Holdings Notes that Sunbeam assumed in the merger.
- c. Section V.3 discusses more reasonable true values for the Sunbeam stock that CPH received in the transaction.
- d. Section V.4 presents more reasonable damage estimates based upon these alternative true values for the property and cash exchanged in the merger.

V.1. More Reasonable Estimates of the True Value of Coleman

(105) Section IV.1 provided my damage-maximizing estimate of the true value of the Coleman stock that CPH gave up in the transaction. This section of the report discusses more reasonable estimates and explains why they offer a more appropriate basis for a damage calculation. I proceed as follows:

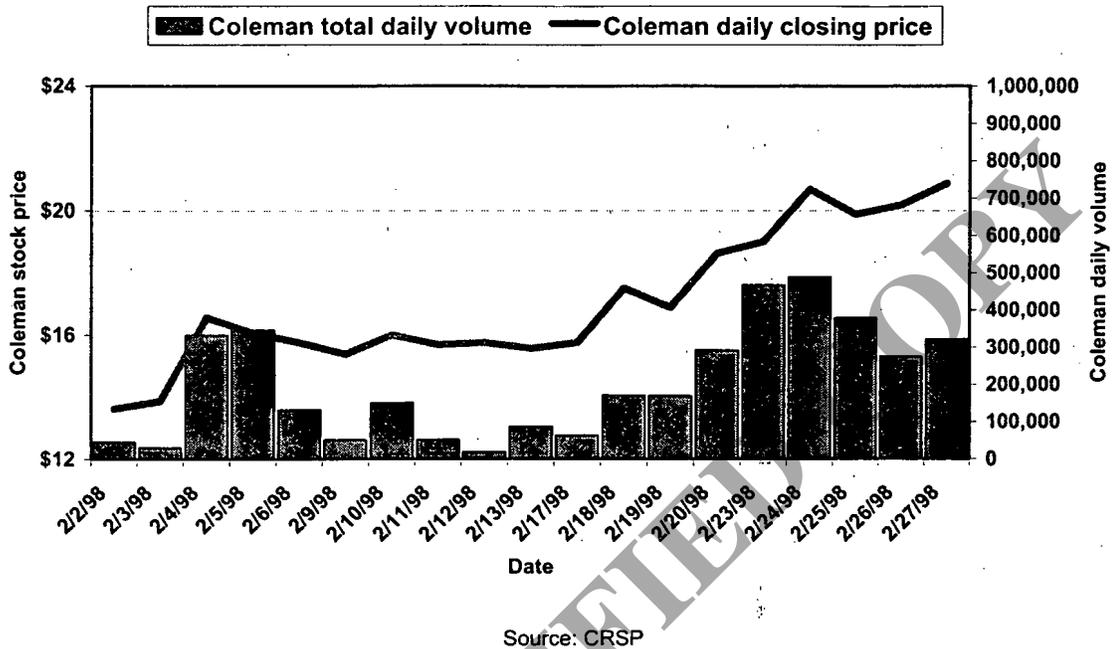

- a. Section V.1.1 discusses a more reasonable starting date, February 3, 1998, for step 1 in the estimation of the true value of Coleman stock at the merger.
- b. Section V.1.2 discusses two more reasonable adjustments for the impact of interim non-merger related information that comes out between the alternative start date of February 3, 1998 and March 30, 1998 (i.e. step 2).
- c. Section V.1.3 discusses a more reasonable estimate for the merger-related premium.
- d. Section V.1.4 combines these estimates to produce more reasonable estimates of the true value of the Coleman stock that CPH gave up in the transaction.

V.1.1. Alternative Start Date of February 3, 1998 for Step 1 of Coleman's True Value Computation

(106) In February 1998, as seen in Exhibit 13, Coleman experienced a run-up in its stock price and a surge in the volume of shares traded. The price run-up was literally unprecedented in the company's five-year history.

021493

Exhibit 13: The run-up in Coleman's price and volume before announcement of the merger

(107) Section IV entirely attributed the approximately 37% run-up in Coleman's stock price between its close on February 3, 1998 (when it traded for $13.88 per share) and the February 23, 1998 price of $18.94 at 3:47PM (used for the maximum damage calculation) to an increase in Coleman's stand-alone value. Because further adjustments that transform the starting point value to the true value on March 30, 1998 are multiplicative, Coleman's estimated true value is approximately 37% greater if one uses February 23 as the starting point, rather than February 3.⁶⁴ However, if leakage of news about merger discussions was the cause of the run-up, assigning this 37% increase to Coleman's true value greatly exaggerates damages.

(108) I believe that leakage of news of the merger is the most likely explanation for the approximately 37% increase in Coleman's stock price that started on February 4 and continued to February 23 and beyond. The evidence for my conclusion that the 37%

⁶⁴ It is only approximate because the market adjustment is different. Moreover, it may also be affected by news about Coleman's fundamental prospects between February 3 and 23.

021494

increase in Coleman's stock price between February 3 and February 23, 1998 was due to leakage of merger-related information, and that the February 3 closing price should be used in Step 1 of Coleman's true value calculation, comes from four analyses that I performed:

- a. I studied all of the available news announcements about Coleman in the month of February 1998 and found that none could explain Coleman's February price run-up. See Section V.1.1.1 for details.
- b. I studied the price run-up of Coleman after February 3 and compared it to previous price run-ups. I found that the February price run-up was unprecedented in Coleman's entire five-year trading history, and could not be explained by changes in the economic fundamentals of Coleman that were unrelated to merger information. See Section V.1.1.2 for details.
- c. I compared the magnitude of Coleman's daily returns, trading volumes, and number of trades in February 1998, to the rest of its trading history. I found that the trading patterns in February were unprecedented and consistent with leakage of news of the merger. See Section V.1.1.3 for details.
- d. I studied the correlations between the hour-by-hour returns of Coleman and Sunbeam stock both before and after February 3. The differences suggested to me that news of the merger leaked to the markets in February 1998. See Section V.1.1.4 for details.

I will review each of these in turn.

V.1.1.1. The Nature of the News in February Supports an Earlier Start Date for Step 1 of the True Value Calculation for Coleman

- (109) There were events beginning February 2, 1998 that could have initiated merger-related price reactions in Coleman stock in early February 1998. On February 2, 1998, Morgan Stanley had a conference call with Sunbeam officials to discuss tactics, numbers, and status of the 021495

Coleman acquisition.⁶⁵ On February 3, 1998, Arthur Andersen⁶⁶ met with Sunbeam officials to discuss the financial impact on Sunbeam of a potential acquisition of Coleman.⁶⁷ Following this meeting, on February 4, Sunbeam and Coleman entered into a confidentiality agreement about the merger.⁶⁸ On February 5, 1998, there was another conference call between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam to discuss the Coleman transaction.⁶⁹ These "insider events" do not have to cross the news wires to affect stock prices.

- (110) On February 4, 1998, Coleman experienced the largest one-day price increase in its entire pre-merger-announcement history. This increase was 19.4% (from $13.88 on February 3 at the closing bell to $16.56 on February 4).⁷⁰ There is no dispute that this price increase took place amidst the backdrop of merger-related meetings and the knowledge of many individuals that Coleman and Sunbeam were in merger discussions at this point. The size of the Coleman price increases in February, coupled with the absence of any other news explaining the Coleman run-up in February (as discussed below), strongly suggests that the increase beginning on February 4 and continuing throughout the month is likely to be related to information about the merger circulating among some market participants.
- (111) The minute-by-minute chart of Coleman's stock price between February 3 and 5 shows just how suddenly, and dramatically, price and volume increased within the first two hours of trading on February 4:

(112) I have reviewed all readily available news related to Coleman during the month of February 1998 and there does not appear to be an explanation for the 37% stock price run-up between February 3, 1998 and February 23, 1998, other than leakage of the merger news. A comprehensive overview of all the stories I found is presented in Appendix H. The highlights of those news items, discussed below, demonstrate that none of the non-merger-related stories is a likely explanation for any significant portion of the unprecedented increase in Coleman's stock price during the month of February 1998.

- a. February 2: On this date, a Barron's article reported that JP Morgan's high-yield bond research department had picked Coleman as one of its favorites for 1998 the previous week.⁷¹ Since markets are efficient, this news cannot account for the price jump on February 4 because the market had two full trading days (February 2 and 3) to incorporate the information from the report into Coleman's stock price.

⁷¹ "Bruno's bonds take a beating on rumors it may shelve payment plans," Barron's, February 2, 1998.

021497

- b. February 4: Coleman CEO Jerry Levin made a presentation at a Morgan Stanley high yield conference. An article about the event acknowledged that Levin's presentation was not "substantial company news" in the light of the largest ever (to date) increase in the price of Coleman stock.⁷² This article was released at 3:16 PM, many hours after the nearly 20% (February 4) surge in Coleman's stock price had ended.
- c. February 4 (just after the close of trading): Dow Jones News Service reported that traders believed that "something could be in the works" for Coleman.⁷³ This Dow Jones news release, titled "Options Report: Rumorstrage Heavy In The Market," (a reference to merger arbitrage based on rumors), refers to companies about which "the day's action appears to be founded on takeover rumors. Coleman is one of four companies mentioned, all of which experienced recent large stock price increases.
- d. February 4 (after the close of trading): Some analysts attributed the day's rise in Coleman to speculation that Coleman might be selling its Safety & Security Products unit.^{74,75} However, this cannot be the case for two reasons. First, Safety and Security Products was a relatively small, non-core asset of Coleman, accounting for 10% and 5% of Coleman's sales and earnings, respectively.⁷⁶ Secondly, it was sold on February 18, 1998 for $105 million,⁷⁷ and there is no evidence that this amount was a surprise to the market. Substituting a unit worth approximately $105 million for the same amount of cash could not have made Coleman 20% more valuable (about $150 million) in one day and certainly not nearly 40% more valuable (about $300 million) over approximately the next three weeks. Analysts later came to the conclusion, which I share, that the February 4 run-up could not have been due to the anticipated sale of Safety and Securities Product Unit.⁷⁸

- e. February 18: Dow Jones News Service reported that Coleman “continues to trade on rumors . . . though no new information is out” and that “implied volatilities are higher than average.”⁷⁹ This is further evidence that the market did not think the run-up in Coleman’s price was explained by any official news.
- f. February 18 (after the close of trading): The sale of Coleman’s Safety and Security Products unit, already expected for two weeks, was announced.⁸⁰
- g. February 19 (after the close of trading): Coleman reported a negative earnings surprise, lower sales, some positive news about its operating performance, and made optimistic assertions about its future.⁸¹ I find it very unlikely that Coleman’s stock price increased due to this news and will present evidence in support of this conclusion in Section V.1.2.2.
- h. February 20 (before the market opened): Investment bank CSFB issued an equity research note discussing Coleman’s fourth quarter and full year results for 1997.⁸² Despite optimism regarding Coleman’s future prospects, the analyst reduced Coleman’s 1998 earnings estimate from $1.10 per share to $0.95 per share. I do not believe this report increased Coleman’s stock price substantially. Please see Section V.1.2.2 for a fuller discussion.
- i. February 23 (before the market opened): An ABN AMRO analyst discussed Coleman’s fourth quarter and 1997 results. His 1998 estimates for Coleman remained unchanged.⁸³ As there was little new information in this note, I conclude that this note had a neutral effect on Coleman's stock price.

- j. February 23: CSFB issued a research note on Coleman.⁸⁴ It contained the same information as the CSFB research note of February 20, not new information. The information itself, as I noted above, consisted of both positive and negative elements, which would have had no significant impact on Coleman.
- k. February 23: Dow Jones News Service reported that "takeover speculation is still following Coleman ... Stock traders are reportedly speculating that Sunbeam ... could buy Coleman."⁸⁵ For the first time, Sunbeam is specifically identified as a potential acquirer of Coleman in a public press release. Thus, after the release of this news, it is impossible to ignore the impact of merger news and rumors on Coleman's stock price, but there is good reason to believe that such news was inflating the stock price of Coleman for several weeks.
- l. February 23: A CIBC Analyst Report on Coleman claimed that the company "recently completed the last significant part of its restructuring program"⁸⁶ and reduced its Coleman 1998 earnings estimate. The positive restructuring news might have offset the negative earnings revision and I conclude that this report likely had a neutral effect on Coleman's stock price.
- m. February 24: McMillan Analysis Corp. reports about Coleman takeover rumors.⁸⁷ This likely fueled further speculation that Coleman could be an acquisition target.

(113) My attribution of the February run-up in Coleman's stock to merger rumors, and my characterization of the news about Coleman as negative, are both substantiated by the deposition testimony of analyst Andrew Shore. In his July 9, 2001 deposition, he responds to a question about the reason for Coleman's February run-up: "Because there was speculation in the marketplace that Coleman was a takeover candidate." Later, in response to questions about Coleman's financial condition in March 1998, he notes, "I was aware that Coleman's fundamentals had started to deteriorate." He explained, "You know, the business had started to slow, sales, margins, balance sheet, started getting uglier."⁸⁸ Thus, a widely followed analyst appears to have viewed Coleman as a company in decline. He apparently would dispute the notion that the increase in Coleman's stock price in February 1998 was a consequence of its improved business outlook.

V.1.1.2. A Cumulative Returns Analysis Points to Inflation in Coleman's Stock Price from Merger Speculation in the Period after February 3

(114) In the 13 trading days from February 3 through February 23 (the trading day used for damage-maximization), Coleman's price rose about 37%. No other period of similar length in Coleman's history saw such a dramatic surge in its stock price. The next three largest "spikes" in Coleman's price over a 13-day trading window were all substantially smaller than the February 3–23 spike, as seen here in Exhibit 15. The exhibit shows the cumulative increase in Coleman's stock price between its closing price on the beginning date of the period, and the closing price on the last date of the period.

- (115) The 37% increase between February 3 and 23 is significantly larger than the increase in any other similar-sized period. In the absence of any news events (other than news of the merger) that could explain it, this increase is strong evidence that news of the merger was leaking out to financial market participants during the 13 trading day period.

V.1.1.3. The Size of the Returns and Volume in February Requires an Extraordinary Explanation and Supports a February 3 Start Date for Step 1 of the True Value Calculation for Coleman

- (116) Coleman's 19.4% price increase on February 4 was the highest single-day increase in its entire five-year history (prior to the merger announcement). Moreover, four of Coleman's all-time ten highest daily returns before the official merger announcement occurred after February 3, 1998. I have little doubt, given the magnitude of the price movement in February and the absence of news, that the approximately 37% increase in Coleman's stock price between February 3 and February 23, 1998 was driven by the leakage of private information about the merger to some market participants.
- (117) A formal analysis of daily returns and trading provides additional evidence of this. I analyzed three important trading statistics over Coleman's entire five year history:
- a. Trading volume (number of shares traded on a given day);
 - b. Daily stock returns; and,
 - c. Number of individual stock trades.

I found anomalies that cannot be explained by any non-merger-related information that was publicly released. These anomalies are consistent with the market anticipating a merger.

- (118) My analysis is presented in Exhibit 16:

(119) The left half of Exhibit 16, labeled "Coleman trading data," shows the February 1998 portion of the data that I analyzed (my complete dataset includes 1,303 trading days, going back to January, 1993). It shows the day's trading volume, the daily return, and the number of separate trades executed on that day. The right half of Exhibit 16 ranks each data point relative to all 1,303 trading days and highlights (in red) all ranks that are in the top 5%, a standard threshold for statistical significance.

(120) The right panel not only shows that the daily returns on February 4 ranked number one in the entire sample, but that many other days had highly ranked returns as well. Another interesting pattern, seen in the right panel, is the remarkable number of days with high ranks for the sheer number of trades. A large number of trades can be indicative of insider trading. Placing a large number of trades, each involving a small numbers of shares, is a common trading strategy for disguising stock accumulation, and anyone trading on insider information would want to conceal their activities. Trading on insider information is one mechanism through which market prices may come to reflect the knowledge that a major event, such as a merger, is imminent.

- (121) The sheer number of red values is extremely unusual. Exhibit 16 displays only 17 days out of five years of trading history, yet many of the highest values for absolute trading volumes, daily returns, and number of trades are concentrated in this period. Of the 51 data points in this sample (3 variables measured \times 17 days), 24 of the values are high enough to be in the highest 5% of all 3,909 data points in all years. Outside of February 1998, the greatest number of such extreme values in a 17-day period is 16.
- (122) Such a high concentration of abnormal price movements and trades in a month in the absence of other significant news is highly unusual. It certainly is not due to random variation. These patterns strongly suggest that merger-related information started to leak just after February 3, 1998.

V.1.1.4. Correlation Analysis: Before and After February 3, 1998

- (123) I also performed a test to compare the correlation between the returns of Sunbeam and Coleman before and after February 4. During the first period, over the 13 months from January 1, 1997 to February 3, 1998, the hourly returns of the two stocks show a mildly positive correlation (that is, they tend to move in the same direction at the same time). This is to be expected from any two independent, unrelated companies affected by the same general economic trends and market forces, and participating in the same or similar industries.
- (124) One expects the correlation between the stock returns of two such companies to decline once a small number of market participants suspect that a merger of the two companies is "in the works." Knowing that it is customary for the acquirer to pay a premium for the target, and for the deal to be better for the target than the acquirer, stock traders known as

“merger arbitrageurs” typically buy shares in the target company (anticipating that their shares will be purchased at a premium), and sell (or “short”) the stock of the acquirer. This kind of behavior can generate negative correlations in hourly returns.⁸⁹

- (125) When I examined the correlation for the second period, from February 4, 1998 to February 27, 1998, I found this pattern - the correlations between the hourly returns of the two stocks were negative. The two correlations, separated by the date of February 3, 1998 are documented in Exhibit 17:

Exhibit 17: Correlation of Sunbeam and Coleman hourly returns

Period	Correlation	Sample Size
Jan 1, 1997–Feb 3, 1998	8.3%	1,845
Feb 4, 1998–Feb 27, 1998	(18.3%)	118
Difference	26.6%

- (126) This pattern is consistent with merger expectations originating right after February 3, 1998. The difference in correlations of 26.6% is significant at the 1% level, meaning that there is less than a 1% chance that this difference is due to random chance. Usually, differences are considered statistically significant if there is less than a 5% chance that they are due to random chance, so this result is very strong.

V.1.1.5. Conclusions–Choice of Starting Date

- (127) For all of these reasons, I conclude that February 3 is most likely to be the last day before Coleman’s price was inflated by merger rumors. While Section IV’s damage estimate excludes ⁸⁹ To understand this, recognize that purchases of Coleman at its ask price and a simultaneous short sale of Sunbeam at its bid price would tend to make the product of hourly returns of the two companies negative. Moreover, if this type of trade were occurring in a given hour, the analogous product over the immediately prior and subsequent hours would also be negative if there were no merger-related trades of this type in the prior or subsequent hour. Over a short time interval, like an hour, the average cross-product of the returns of the acquirer and target is going to approximate the correlation to a high degree. Since the former is negative around the hours during which merger-related arbitrage is present, firms for which merger rumors exist experience trading action that tends to reduce the typical positive correlation between the hourly returns of two companies. If this trading action is particularly strong, one will observe a negative correlation between the hourly returns of the two companies that are rumored to be in merger talks.

the price run up between February 24, 1998 and March 2, 1998 as being merger-related inflation in the price of Coleman, it does not treat the period between February 3, 1998 and February 23, 1998 the same way. It is neither plausible, nor fair to the Defendant, to allow these striking February 1998 price movements to contribute to the damages Defendant owes.

V.1.2. Alternative Step 2 Adjustments to Estimate Coleman's Stand-Alone Value on March 30, 1998 Based on the February 3 Market Price

(128) Section IV.1.2 estimated the stand-alone true value for Coleman by adjusting Coleman's price on February 23, 1998 to March 30, 1998 using a market adjustment. This section makes a similar adjustment for the more reasonable starting date of February 3, 1998. I provide two stand-alone price estimates.

- a. The first makes only market adjustments to obtain Coleman's stand-alone value on March 30, 1998 as Step 2 of the computation of Coleman's true value. I discuss this in Section V.1.2.1.
- b. The second accounts for the unlikely possibility that a Coleman press release on February 19, 1998 caused a 10% increase in Coleman's stand-alone value, which, if true, would increase damages. I discuss these adjustments and the merit of increasing damages because of Coleman's February 20 stock price increase in Section V.1.2.2.

V.1.2.1. Step 2: The March 30 Valuation of Coleman as a Stand-Alone Entity Using February 3 as the Step 1 Starting Date, and Assuming that Coleman's February 20 Price Increase Is Related to Merger Rumors

(129) The stand-alone value for Coleman's shares on March 30, 1998 based on the February 3, 1998 starting price requires that I adjust the February 3, 1998 starting price only for the overall trend in the stock market between February 3 and March 30. There is no other interim news besides the increase in the overall level of the stock market that warrants an increase in the estimate of Coleman's stand-alone value on March 30, 1998.

021506

- (130) The "market model" I use for this purpose is described in Appendix E and, except for the change in the start date, is identical to the adjustment used in Section IV.1.2. My application of this model increased the February 3 price of $13.88 by $0.81, to arrive at a March 30, 1998 stand-alone value of $14.69 per share for Coleman. I note that this price is within the ranges estimated for Coleman by both CSFB and Morgan Stanley.⁹⁰

V.1.2.2. Accounting for the Impact of the News on February 19 in the Step 2 Adjustment for Stand-Alone Value

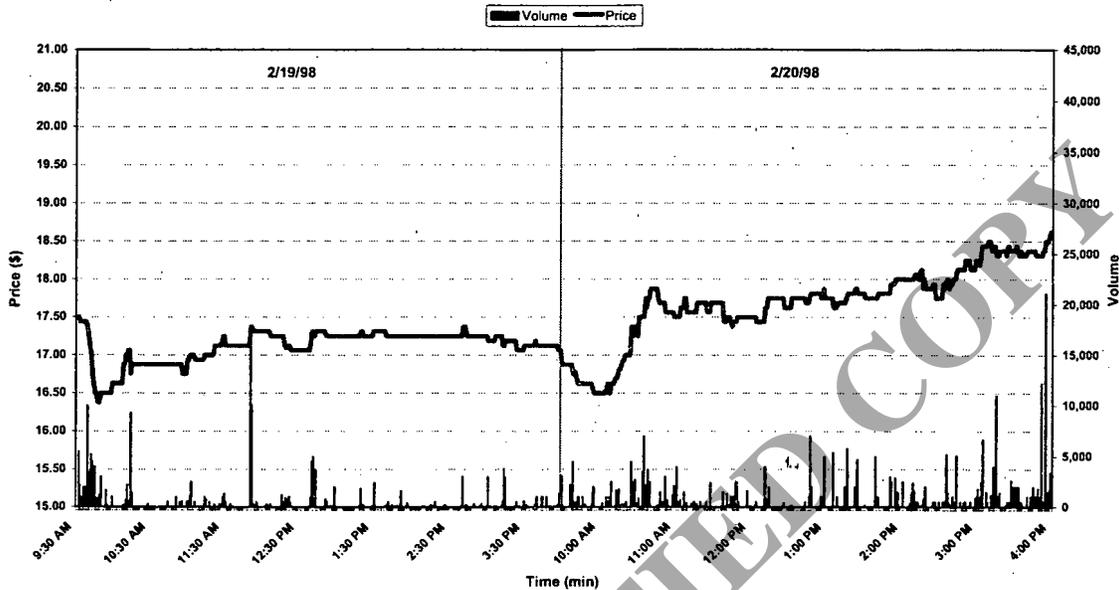

- (131) Below, I provide an alternative estimate of Coleman's stand-alone value, assuming that a February 19, 1998 press release by Coleman⁹¹ warrants an approximately 10% increase in Coleman's stand-alone value. However, I believe that this adjustment is most likely unwarranted, for reasons discussed below.
- a. First, the market's reaction to the press release was negative. The press release was issued after the close of trading on February 19. As shown in Exhibit 18, when markets opened on the morning of February 20 (after the market had 17 hours to digest the news), Coleman's price was unchanged. Then, in the first 30 minutes of trading, the price of Coleman declined by over 2%, hitting a low of $16.50 at 9:54AM, and staying at that level for more than ten minutes. Although Coleman ultimately closed at $18.63 on February 20, for a gain of 10%, the gain cannot be attributed to the press release. To make that connection, I would need to ignore the concept of market efficiency, and disregard the clear evidence of the market's actual reaction to the news when the market opened.

Exhibit 18: Coleman stock price and volume, February 19 and 20, 1998

b. Second, the content of the press release does not appear to warrant a 10% stock price increase. The press release reported a greater-than-expected loss for the fourth quarter of 1997 on sales that were slightly lower than the fourth quarter of 1996, and presented various other measures of the company's financial performance for the quarter and the full year. The release also stated some positive facts. It claimed that Coleman's restructuring was virtually complete, and that the company's operating performance had improved. Coleman said that it expected to continue to benefit in 1998 from the cost saving measures it had already taken, and its CEO asserted that "all of Coleman's remaining businesses have a very sharp strategic focus and are well positioned to support our goal of growth through innovation and globalization." The press release went on to discuss some of Coleman's new products. Overall, the press release was a mix of positive and negative information.

c. The reaction of stock analysts, summarized in Exhibit 19, supports my conclusion of how to balance the various positive and negative elements of Coleman's February 19 press release. Though many analysts purported to express optimism about Coleman, of the five analysts who issued reports about Coleman shortly after this press release, none were optimistic enough to raise their ratings. Four of the five actually lowered their earnings per share ("EPS") estimates for Coleman in 1998, and none increased their estimates. In addition, one lowered its 1999 earnings estimate but, oddly, raised its price target. News organizations did not view the press release information as predominantly positive either. On February 19, Dow Jones News Service reported that Coleman missed the consensus earnings estimate.⁹² On February 20, before the market opened, The Wall Street Journal declared "Loss Posted for 4th Period as Sales in Asia Weaken," and reported that Coleman posted a "wider fourth-quarter loss than Wall Street expected."⁹³

(132) The alternative stand-alone value, based on the assumption that the gain on February 20 was reflective of Coleman's stand-alone value is computed as follows: I take Coleman's February 3 starting price of $13.88 and apply the market model, except for the February 20 adjustment, where I apply Coleman's 10.4% gain on that day to arrive at Coleman's alternative stand-alone price on March 30. This yields $16.15 as an alternative measure of Coleman's stand-alone value on March 30, 1998. I note that this price is within the ranges estimated for Coleman by both CSFB and Morgan Stanley.⁹⁴

V.1.3. Alternative Merger-Related Premium Applied to Coleman's Stand-Alone Value for Step 3 of Coleman's True Value Calculation

- (133) Section IV.1.3 calculated damages using a merger-related premium of 5.79%, which was from a published academic study of terminated mergers. That study used data on terminated mergers from 1980 to 1988. Since mergers in the late 1990s could exhibit different characteristics than those in the 1980s, I undertook an independent study of terminated mergers from the 1990s.
- (134) This subsection provides an alternative estimate of the merger-related premium based on my independent study. This estimate is more reasonable to apply to Coleman since it is based on contemporaneous terminated mergers. When applied to Coleman's stand-alone value, this alternative yields a more reasonable true value per share for Coleman than the true value presented in Section IV.1.
- (135) I estimated the Step 3 adjustment to the stand-alone value from an analysis of 106 terminated mergers occurring between 1996 and 2000. These 106 terminated mergers represent all terminated mergers with broadly similar characteristics to the Sunbeam-Coleman merger from this time period. Please see Appendix F for details of my sample selection criteria and data sources.
- (136) I calculated the merger-related premium by comparing the prices of merger targets prior to their merger announcements with their prices after their mergers were terminated, using an event-study methodology described in Appendices D and G. The percentage adjustment I calculated was 5.55%.

V.1.4. Alternative Estimates of the True Value of the Coleman Stock CPH Gave Up in the Merger

- (138) Given the alternative starting dates, merger-related premia, and different interpretations of the February 20 price increase, there are six possible values for the Coleman stock given up by CPH, as seen here in Exhibit 21:

V.2. Alternative True Value for the CLN Holdings Notes

- (139) Section IV.2 described my damage-maximizing methodology for obtaining the value of the CLN Holdings Notes.
- a. I used the actual quoted yield to maturity of the First Priority Notes immediately before the merger was announced.
 - b. Then, I valued the First Priority Holdings Notes as of March 30, 1998, the day the merger closed, by discounting (to March 30, 1998) the promised cash flows of the First Priority Notes at the yield to maturity prevailing on February 26, 1998.
 - c. I applied the same yield spread that existed at the issue date of the two tranches of Holding Notes to obtain a February 26, 1998 yield to maturity for the Second Priority Holdings Notes. I then discounted (to March 30, 1998) the promised cash flows of the Notes at their inferred February 26, 1998 yield to maturity.
 - d. I then added the two discounted values. This gave me a true value of $533 million for the Holdings Notes, an amount which benefited CPH in the merger.
- (140) However, for a variety of reasons, this $533 million true value for the Holdings Notes is too low, thus overstating damages. There is strong reason to believe that the yields on these two classes of Holdings Notes would have declined in the month of March, 1998 in the “but-for” world due to overall market conditions.
- a. The Citigroup High-Yield Market Index had a return for the month of March of 1.08%.⁹⁵ The returns on this index are negatively related to changes in the yields of most high yield bonds that are not in default.

⁹⁵ See Edward I. Altman with Rohit Kumar, “The Investment Performance and Market Size of Defaulted Bond and Bank Loans in 2003: Outlook for 2004/2005,” NYU Salomon Center Special Report, February 2004, Appendix A.

Because this index rose in March 1998, there is reason to believe that the yields to maturity of the Holdings Notes declined.

- b. The Standard and Poor's 500 index, whose returns are inversely related to changes in the credit spread embedded in the yields to maturity of high yield bonds, rose 5.12%⁹⁶ in March 1998. The yield to maturity on Treasury notes, the benchmark against which this credit spread is computed, did not change over this period.⁹⁷ These two factors together support the conclusion that bonds with high yields should have seen their yields decline in March, 1998.

(141) At the time of the issuance of the Holding Notes, Moody's rated their two tranches as B3 and Caa1. The substantial rise in Coleman's stock price in February 1998 and a sustained value around or above the late February price would justify credit ratings at these levels or higher. Exhibit 22 reports the prevailing (end-of) March 30, 1998 yields to maturity for 7-year debt, classified by credit quality. At the B3 and Caa1 yields to maturity of 9.57% (for the First Priority tranche) and 11.20% (for the Second Priority tranche), the Holdings Notes have a March 30, 1998 true value of $542 million.

⁹⁷ The 3-year Treasury Note yields changed only 1 basis point, from 5.57% on March 1, 1998 to 5.58% on April 1, 1998. I looked at 3-year Treasury Notes because CLN Holdings Notes matured in 2001, meaning that in 1998 they had just over 3 years of maturity left.

021513

Exhibit 22: Yields for corporate notes of various debt ratings in March 1998

Bond Rating	Yield	Bond Rating	Yield
Aaa	6.26%	Baa3	6.85%
Aa1	6.42%	Ba1	7.30%
Aa2	6.48%	Ba2	7.75%
Aa3	6.33%	Ba3	8.17%
A1	6.42%	B1	8.65%
A2	6.43%	B2	9.12%
A3	6.47%	B3	9.57%
Baa1	6.66%	Caa	11.20%
Baa2	6.69%

Source: Moody's Investors Service, 7-year maturity median corporate bond yields.⁹⁸

- (142) Exhibit 22's 9.57% yield to maturity for the B3 bonds is fairly consistent with the more than 1% increase in the Citigroup High Yield Market Index and the 10.08% yield to maturity for the First Priority Holdings Notes on February 26, 1998. Hence, I consider discounting with the B3 and Caa yields to maturity from Exhibit 22 to be as valid or more valid than discounting with the rates used in Section IV.
- (143) The discount rates from Exhibit 22 used here in Section V may still be too large, thereby exaggerating damages, for a variety of reasons.
- a. The rates are derived from 7-year maturity high-yield bonds which will have larger yields-to-maturity than high yield bonds that match the lower effective maturity of the Holding Notes. This is both because Treasury notes of lower maturity tended to have lower yields to maturity in March 1998 and because the credit spreads embedded in the yields of shorter term high yield bonds almost always tend to be lower than those of comparable longer maturity high yield bonds.

⁹⁸ I was not able to obtain corresponding quotes for debt with a 3-year maturities. However, I note that on April 1, 1998 3-year Treasury Notes had a yield of 5.58% while 7-year Treasury Notes had a yield of 5.70%. This means that the yields I use for my calculations should be approximately 12 basis points lower than those quoted in this exhibit, apart from any drop due to a decline in the credit spread that took place in March, 1998.

b. The discount rates are not appropriate discount rates for a potential acquirer of Coleman. The impact of potential acquirers on Coleman's true value substantially raised the damages for CPH. Therefore, it is reasonable to think about how potential acquirers might affect the value of the Holdings Notes. For example, Sunbeam paid approximately $625 million in the second quarter of 1998 to pay down the Holdings Notes.⁹⁹ The excess of approximately $90 million over the true value per share, paid to liquidate the Holdings Notes, effectively raised the price Sunbeam paid for the Coleman stock by about $2 per share above the publicly quoted premium. Moreover, the announcement of the merger raised the market price of the Holdings Notes, overnight, by an amount that is approximately equivalent to paying an extra $1 per share for the Coleman stock. Were I to charge CLNH for the likely effect of the Holding Notes on both the likelihood and size of a merger-related premium, the discount rates of the Holdings Notes would have to be lower than those given in Exhibit 22.

(144) I have attributed a 5%–6% merger-related premium to Coleman arising from the Sunbeam merger announcement and merger termination. To the extent that the prepayment penalty on the Holdings Notes deters alternative bids or generates lower bids than would otherwise have occurred around the time of the merger termination, one must account for this as a burden to CPH for canceling the merger. I have not accounted for this, but the premium from an alternative bidder should be at least $1 lower per Coleman share acquired from CLNH as a consequence of the prepayment penalties of the Holdings Notes and enhancement of the credit of the Notes by an acquirer. This fact suggests that the $542 million alternative true value gained by CPH from transferring the Notes to Sunbeam may still be too low.

⁹⁹ The Notes Indenture establishes the book value of the Holdings Notes at $524 million as of May 15, 1998 and the Sunbeam 10-Q for Q2 1998 shows a prepayment penalty of $100 million.

V.3. An Alternative Approach to Valuing Sunbeam

- (145) Section IV.3 computed Sunbeam's damage-maximizing true value based on Sunbeam's May 26, 1998 closing share price. Section IV's damage calculation thereby attributes the entire Sunbeam share price decline between March 30 and May 26, 1998 to the disclosure of information that Morgan Stanley concealed. However, as discussed below, the news in April and May was overwhelmingly negative for Sunbeam. The negative news included information about many negative events that are not attributable to Morgan Stanley. Thus, my estimate of Sunbeam's true value in Section IV.3 is biased downwards and, accordingly, my damage estimate in that section of the report is biased upwards.
- (146) This subsection presents a more reasonable and less biased estimate for Sunbeam's true value. It is organized in the following manner:
- a. Section V.3.1 discusses the Sunbeam-related news events in April and May 1998. It shows that many negative news events did not reflect the disclosure of information allegedly concealed by the Defendant.
 - b. Section V.3.2 describes my application of the event study methodology to Sunbeam.
 - c. Section V.3.3 shows the results of my event study.

V.3.1. The News About Sunbeam in April and May 1998 was Overwhelmingly Negative, but not Always due to Defendant's Alleged Malfeasance

- (147) Section IV's damage estimate attributed all price drops in the event window from March 30, 1998 to May 26, 1998 to Morgan Stanley's malfeasance. Sunbeam's stock price drop over this period includes the effect of the following negative information for which Morgan Stanley is wholly or largely not responsible:¹⁰⁰

¹⁰⁰ Appendix J lists all significant, publicly known events during April and May, as well as other key events in

021516

- a. On the morning of April 3, 1998, Andrew Shore, a widely followed Sunbeam analyst, had a morning call with the sales staff at the investment-banking house of PaineWebber in which he said that he was downgrading Sunbeam. This news was quickly and widely disseminated over news wires. Many of the details of the morning call, which led to a substantial decline in the value of Sunbeam, are not related to the Defendant's alleged concealment of earnings and sales information. In his July 7, 2001 deposition, Mr. Shore describes what he said in that morning call: "...I think I said something like, it smells bad, really bad. And here are the four things that are happening and here is the latest thing. Don Uzzi is gone. Rich Goudis is gone. Dixon Thayer is gone. The balance sheet is terrible ... They had to go out and make these acquisitions. A new restructuring reserve. Unbelievably liberal account—a million things."¹⁰¹ The departures of the executive chiefly responsible for the day-to-day activities of Sunbeam and the executive chiefly responsible for its public relations are no small matter. My analysis of the intraday prices of Sunbeam stock on April 3, 1998 suggests (i) that these departures had a shattering effect on the confidence of the investment community in Sunbeam and (ii) their effect on Sunbeam's share price was separate from the effect of disappointing earnings and sales news that came out later in the day in a press release that contained official confirmation of one of the two key executive departures from Sunbeam. Yet Morgan Stanley has no damage liability arising from stock price declines owing to executive departures.
- b. Between March 30 and May 26, 1998 Sunbeam was targeted in eight investor-class-action lawsuits for which the class period started well before March 19, 1998, the first date on which Morgan Stanley arguably possessed information indicating that its client's representations about first quarter performance

Sunbeam's history, in chronological order.

¹⁰¹ Shore Dep. at 186.

021517

were false and should be corrected.¹⁰² Seven lawsuits had class periods from October 22, 1997 to April 3, 1998 and one ran from January 28, 1998 to April 3, 1998. These complaints against Sunbeam each allege that the company made false and misleading statements regarding its fourth quarter 1997 operating results. These lawsuits are important for two reasons: First, they provided the market with new negative information about Sunbeam's operations and accounting practices that was unrelated to Morgan Stanley's conduct. This information would have depressed Sunbeam's share price, but the resulting decline in Sunbeam's share price from information of this type should not increase the damages of Morgan Stanley. Second, the lawsuits were themselves a form of new negative information: Sunbeam's potential liability and litigation costs would have further depressed the company's stock price. Thus, Section IV's computation of Sunbeam's true value from a minor adjustment of Sunbeam's May 26, 1998 share price allows the cumulative impact of these lawsuits to overstate the damages owed to the Plaintiff by Morgan Stanley.

- c. On April 8, 1998 a Sunbeam shareholder sued CEO Al Dunlap and other officers and directors of the company, claiming that the defendants wasted company assets by granting or accepting stock options as part of new employment contracts for Dunlap and two other officers. Morgan Stanley was not involved in the lawsuit or the underlying conduct.¹⁰³
- d. On April 16, 1998, it was reported that Coleman CEO Jerry Levin had sold a large block of stock in his company in March of 1998. The sale was valued at approximately $13 million and is listed as one of the 15 largest insider transactions during that time period. Sales by insiders often signify negative information about the company being sold.¹⁰⁴ Since at this point Coleman

¹⁰² Two other lawsuits define the class period as March 19 through April 3, which therefore overlaps with the period when Morgan Stanley allegedly withheld information. All of the lawsuits are listed in Appendix J.

was part of Sunbeam, this sale effectively communicated negative information about Sunbeam. Mr. Levin is not accused of possessing any of the negative information that Morgan Stanley is accused of failing to disclose, so his sale of Coleman stock was unrelated to anything for which Morgan Stanley is plausibly responsible.¹⁰⁵

- e. On May 11, 1998 Sunbeam CEO Dunlap had a physical altercation with PaineWebber analyst Andrew Shore at an analysts' meeting. The incident was reported in the public press in July 1998. However, it is likely to have been known to the market much earlier, given the large number of attendees at the event. While I know of no formal study on this topic, common sense dictates that erratic behavior by a CEO in a public forum can generate a decline in a company's share price. Again, Morgan Stanley has no responsibility for this action.¹⁰⁶
- f. On May 15, 1998 Sunbeam warned that its barbecue-grill sales were not expected to revive in the second quarter from a slump that caused the household-products company to report a first-quarter loss; it said that it might curtail production earlier than planned at a factory that produces barbecue grills, which could lead to higher overhead and inventory costs. Morgan Stanley could not have had any knowledge of second quarter sales prior to March 30, 1998 as the second quarter had not yet started.¹⁰⁷

'I saw this wild man coming forward,' recalls Shore. 'He grabbed me by my left shoulder, put his hand over his mouth and near my left ear and said: "You son of a bitch. If you want to come after me, I'll come after you twice as hard."' One Sunbeam adviser corroborates Shore's account." - (148) The only positive news about Sunbeam that circulated in April or May related to the information that Morgan Stanley had an alleged duty to disclose. There was some positive speculation anticipating the outcome of the May 11, 1998 analysts meeting.¹⁰⁸ It was at this meeting that Sunbeam disclosed the information that Morgan Stanley is accused of withholding. Thus, there are no positive news events between March 30, 1998 and May 26, 1998 that would suggest that Sunbeam's May 26, 1998 price is an overestimate of true value per share on March 30, 1998, beyond the general rise in the stock market that took place over that period. I adjust for that market movement. Hence, using a market-adjusted May 26, 1998 price for Sunbeam's true value estimate not only maximizes damages, but exaggerates them because it includes the impact of post-merger news, which is not a liability of the Defendant.
- (149) Next, I provide an overview of an alternative methodology, based on the commonly used technique known as "event study analysis" and summarize my key results. A detailed description of how event studies are conducted appears at Appendix D, and my application of it to Sunbeam is further discussed in Appendix I.

V.3.2. Using an Event Study to Estimate the True Value of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998

- (150) In order to correct the bias in Section IV's approach for obtaining the true value of Sunbeam stock received by the Plaintiff, I performed an alternate estimation using event study methodology. Event studies are a widely accepted econometric tool, often used to remove artificial inflation from the price of a stock.¹⁰⁹ They are appropriate for stocks that trade in an efficient market, which is the case with Sunbeam.

¹⁰⁸ "Sunbeam up 6.5% In Hope of Good News From Mon. Meeting," Dow Jones News Service, May 5, 1998.

¹⁰⁹ Tabak, David I., and Frederick C. Dunbar, "Materiality and Magnitude: Event Studies in the Courtroom," Litigation Services Handbook The Role of the Financial Expert, Third Edition, 2001, (Ed. Roman L. Weil, Michael J. Wagner and Peter B. Frank) ("Tabak and Dunbar"), Chapter 19.

See also: Cornell, Bradford and R. Gregory Morgan, "Using Finance Theory to Measure Damages in Fraud on the Market Cases," UCLA Law Review, June 1990 ("Cornell and Morgan").

- (151) In this context, the event study functions by identifying drops in Sunbeam's price due to the release of the information that I assume Morgan Stanley withheld. As discussed in paragraph (97), this information was released to the market no later than May 26, 1998. The sum of the price drops identified by the event study between March 30, 1998 and May 26, 1998 equals the amount of artificial inflation in Sunbeam's price due to Morgan Stanley as of March 30, 1998. I calculate the true value of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998 by subtracting this artificial inflation from the actual price of Sunbeam on that day.
- (152) My assumption about which price drops to regard as Morgan Stanley-related in this event study is likely to bias my damage estimate upwards. The more price drops I assign to Morgan Stanley, the larger the artificial inflation I calculate, and the larger the damages. Generally, in securities fraud litigation, price drops are only considered as part of the artificial inflation if they meet two criteria:
- a. They are statistically significant—that is, they are unlikely to be due to mere chance; and
 - b. They are materially associated with events or releases of information linked to the artificial inflation generated by the Defendant's malfeasance.
- (153) I counted all of the statistically significant price drops between March 30 and May 26, 1998 as part of the artificial inflation. I did not require that those price drops be plausibly linked to the release of information related to Morgan Stanley's conduct. In fact, I have reason to believe that significant portions of the price drops I attribute to Morgan Stanley are actually due to other causes. Thus, my estimate of artificial inflation and damages in this section will still be biased upwards in favor of the Plaintiff, but not to the same extent as in Section IV.
- (154) Later in this document, I discuss in greater detail the concepts of the market model (Appendix C), the event study (Appendix D), and its application to Sunbeam (Appendix I).

V.3.3. Event Study—Summary of Results

- (155) Exhibit 23 lists, in column 2, the closing prices for Sunbeam on every trading day from the close of the transaction, March 30, 1998, to the date on which I am certain there was no artificial inflation due to Morgan Stanley in Sunbeam's stock price, May 26, 1998. Column 3 calculates the percentage change in price from the previous day, called the return. When a return was statistically significant and negative, I have highlighted the row in yellow. These highlighted days are the days on which the event study methodology attributes the price drop to Morgan Stanley.

- (156) Column 4 shows each day's "constructed return" for Sunbeam shares. The constructed return is the Sunbeam return one would expect on a day between March 30 and May 26, 1998 if it had never been artificially inflated to begin with. It is equal to the actual return of Sunbeam stock on that day, except for days with price drops attributed to Morgan Stanley. On the latter days, the ones highlighted in yellow, the constructed return is equal to the return that one would expect based on the movement of the overall market on that day. (That is, they are based on the market model, discussed in more detail in Appendix I.)
- (157) The true value of Sunbeam on each day is given in column 5. It is calculated starting from the last day of the event window, May 26, 1998, which has a Sunbeam share price equal to its true value for that May 26 date. I obtain true values for each date by working backwards in time. Starting with May 26, I sequentially discount that day's true value using the constructed return in column 4 for that date. This generates the prior day's true value. This process continues sequentially until I arrive at the March 30, 1998 true value.
- (158) Artificial inflation is calculated in Column 6 as the difference between the actual price (2) and the true value (5). Note that artificial inflation goes down over time as information is released. The percentage of Sunbeam's price on each day that is due to artificial inflation attributable to Morgan Stanley's conduct is listed in column 7, which is simply the ratio of column 6 to column 2.
- (159) These results are graphically represented in Exhibit 24 below:

(160) The top blue line represents the closing prices for Sunbeam during the event window.¹¹⁰ The bottom red line is the “true value line” constructed from column (5) above. Days on which the price drop is attributed to Morgan Stanley-related artificial inflation are highlighted in green in the price line, and yellow in the true value line. Notice that the price drops (green) are much larger than the true value movements on those days (yellow). Over time, this causes the price line to move closer to the true value line, until eventually the two meet. The true value of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998 is given by the height of the true value line on that day. All of the difference between the true value line and the price line on March 30, 1998 is considered artificial inflation due to Morgan Stanley and contributes to my estimate of damages.

- (161) In Section IV.3, I estimated the March 30, 1998 true value of Sunbeam to be $23.49 using the damage-maximizing assumption that all changes in Sunbeam's price from March 30, 1998 until May 26, 1998, except those due to market movements, were due to the Defendant's malfeasance. Using event study methodology, which I consider to be more scientific, I estimate the true value of Sunbeam at March 30 to be $25.39. This estimate still exaggerates the damages owed to the Plaintiff because of my assumption about which price drops I assign to Morgan Stanley.

V.4. Conclusions and Discussion

(162) The various alternative assumptions for the starting date of the Coleman valuation, the appropriate merger-related premium, the Holdings Notes, and Sunbeam valuation can be combined to form 24 distinct estimates of Plaintiff's damages. These are in Exhibit 25 below.

Exhibit 25: Damage estimates

			Sunbeam March 30, 1998 true value per share*
			$ 25.39	$ 23.49

(163) Under the most reasonable set of assumptions, the true value of the cash and property received by the Plaintiff in the merger exceeds the value of the property it gave up by over $300 million. Under every combination of assumptions, the value Plaintiff received exceeded the value it surrendered by over $100 million.

(164) It is quite obvious from this exhibit that the terms of the merger were so favorable to CPH that even a major fraud does not generate out-of-pocket damages. It is also quite obvious that unless my estimates for true value are grossly miscalculated, or my methodology unfounded, there can be no damages in this matter.

VI. Analysis of Reports by Plaintiff's Experts

021528

- (165) This section presents my opinions of the expert reports submitted by Plaintiff's experts Nye, Kursh, and Wagner. Here, I summarize these opinions and discuss concerns that apply to the reports collectively. The subsections that follow present my comments on each report individually.
- (166) Plaintiff's experts present contradictory opinions, use flawed methodology, and appear to have mutually exclusive theories of damages. Dr. Nye estimates damages from an expectations theory of damages, analyzing the Sunbeam stock consideration alone. Dr. Kursh espouses an out-of-pocket-loss theory of damages, but presents no damage estimate, and estimates the value of Coleman alone. Mr. Wagner neither espouses a theory of damages nor presents a damage estimate, but does estimate the value of Coleman. However, Mr. Wagner's methodology is substantially different than Dr. Kursh's methodology and he estimates a substantially different value for Coleman than does Dr. Kursh.
- (167) Dr. Nye claims that the Sunbeam shares Plaintiff received in the merger were worth nothing. However, upon completion of the merger, Sunbeam became the owner of Coleman. If the analyses of Dr. Kursh and Mr. Wagner are to be believed, Coleman was then worth well over $1.15 billion (though they disagree on the amount). Even if Sunbeam were worth zero prior to the merger, it would have been worth a substantial amount afterwards, if one accepts either Dr. Kursh's or Mr. Wagner's valuation of Coleman. Thus, not only are Dr. Nye's methods contrary to those of Plaintiff's other experts, his conclusions are likewise irreconcilable with theirs.
- (168) Plaintiff, putting forth the collective opinions of these three experts, appears to argue that Sunbeam's stock price was improperly inflated; yet it wants to recover damages as if Coleman's high stock price—which was entirely dependant on Sunbeam's inflation—was legitimate. Thus, Plaintiff argues on the one hand that Sunbeam's stock's price was "fraudulently inflated," and that Sunbeam's strategy was to use its inflated stock price as "currency" to buy Coleman in furtherance of a scheme to delay discovery of its fraud.¹¹¹

¹¹¹ Complaint, ¶¶ 34–35.

Yet, on the other hand, Plaintiff wants to recover damages as if Coleman were really worth what Sunbeam was willing to "pay" (with phony money) to disguise its misconduct.

- (169) The rest of this section offers my opinions on the reports of Dr. Nye, Mr. Wagner, and Dr. Kursh in turn.

VI.1. Dr. Nye's Expert Report

VI.1.1. Dr. Nye Incorrectly Uses Expectation Damages

- (170) Dr. Nye estimates total damages at $680 million before the application of prejudgment interest, mitigation or offsets. His damage calculation is the difference between what Dr. Nye estimates as the Plaintiff's "reasonable expectation" of the value of Sunbeam and what Dr. Nye estimates Sunbeam was worth. He makes no attempt to value the Coleman stock of CLN Holdings debt.
- (171) Dr. Nye's estimate of Sunbeam's expected value is based on market prices for Sunbeam during March 1998. "Plaintiff could reasonably expect that the total value of the shares it would receive in the Exchange was approximately $680 million." This figure is the number of Sunbeam shares Plaintiff received multiplied by $48.26, Sunbeam's average closing price in the weeks before March 30, 1998. Dr. Nye claims all of this as Plaintiff's "losses" because "such shares were cancelled or became worthless when Sunbeam declared bankruptcy on February 5, 2001."¹¹²
- (172) Dr. Nye's expectation measure of damages is inappropriate in a case alleging fraud and similar torts. I am aware that the usual measure of damages in such cases is out-of-pocket loss. This would appear to be consistent with Plaintiff's position that in the absence of fraud, it would have terminated the transaction.
- (173) Plaintiff and Plaintiff's other damage experts also appear to invoke an out-of-pocket loss theory of damages. Plaintiff's response to Defendant's second interrogatory question 6 invokes an out-of-pocket loss standard by asserting that the value of the Coleman shares surrendered in the transaction is an element of its losses.¹¹³ Further, Plaintiff's experts Kursh and Wagner both provide estimates of the value of the Coleman shares surrendered in the transaction.¹¹⁴ But under an expectations theory of damages, the value of the

Coleman shares is not relevant. Plaintiff's expert Dr. Kursh acknowledges that the out-of-pocket measure is correct, and that he is valuing the Coleman stock because it is an element of out-of-pocket loss. He asserts "Specifically, I have been asked to determine the value of the Coleman shares as of the transaction closing date, March 30, 1998. Holdings' out-of-pocket loss is equal to the value of the consideration provided to Sunbeam less the consideration received from Sunbeam."¹¹⁵

- (174) Expectation damages have no economic validity when expectations are based on fraudulently inflated values. Consider the following hypothetical example. Imagine that Bob and Alice contract to exchange Bob's diamond, which Bob represents as being worth $1 million, for Alice's candy bar. Alice takes Bob at his word and gives Bob the candy bar. In exchange, Bob hands Alice his diamond, which, as Bob knows, is fake. Bob clearly defrauded Alice but it would be hard to convince even a child that Alice had lost $1 million rather than just a candy bar. Moreover, if the goal of damages is to put Alice in the position she would have been in had there been no fraud, an award of $1 million will grossly overcompensate her, regardless of her "expectations" or how "reasonable" they were.
- (175) Suppose further that third parties knew about Bob's offer to Alice. They might be willing to bid up to $1 million for the candy bar, thinking that they could buy it from Alice and then sell it to Bob for his diamond, which they think is worth $1 million. So there might be a "market" for the candy bar, with bid and ask prices near $1 million. The market price is then said to be artificially inflated by the fraud. This price clearly bears no relationship to the actual value of the candy bar, as it is entirely based on Bob's intended fraud. Typically, an expert in a securities fraud case estimates the true value of a security by removing its artificial inflation; he does not value the security as if the false information were true.
- (176) The expectations approach to damages is particularly egregious in this circumstance. It takes a transaction that (based on the evidence that I have presented) appears to be highly favorable to the Plaintiff, even with Morgan Stanley's alleged fraud properly factored in. It then manages to generate a damage estimate that would enrich Plaintiff by another billion dollars or more. Clearly, something is amiss.

¹¹⁵ Kursh Report, p. 3.

021532

- (177) In my hypothetical example above, imagine that Bob had agreed to pay $100,000 in cash and deliver his diamond, which he represented as being worth $900,000 in exchange for the candy bar. Suppose that he gave Alice $100,000 in cash and the fake diamond. According to the expectations approach to damages, Alice, having just pocketed $100,000 in real money, is now entitled to $900,000 in additional compensation.

VI.1.2. Dr. Nye “Cherry Picks” High Values for Sunbeam’s Market Value

- (178) I disagree not only with Dr. Nye’s theory of damages, but with his application of it. Dr. Nye invokes the efficient market hypothesis to explain why it is reasonable for Plaintiff to have expected Sunbeam to be worth $680 million, but violates that hypothesis in valuing Sunbeam.
- (179) Dr. Nye correctly observes that market prices are relevant to Sunbeam’s worth. I agree that stocks listed on the NYSE trade in an efficient market and that, in the absence of fraud, the correct measure of an efficiently traded stock’s value is its market price. However, Dr. Nye disregards the notion of market efficiency entirely when he sets the Plaintiff’s “reasonable expectation” at the average of the Sunbeam closing prices in the weeks before March 30, a figure he calculates at $48.26. If markets are efficient, then one need only look to a single day’s price to get reasonable expectations for a stock’s value measured at that day.
- a. If Dr. Nye calibrates expectations on February 27, 1998, when the parties signed the agreement, he cannot use later market prices to estimate expectations, since the parties could not have known what those closing prices would be.
 - b. If Dr. Nye sets expectations on March 30, 1998, then prices prior to that date are irrelevant.

In no case is taking an average consistent with the efficient market hypothesis that Dr. Nye espouses.

021533

- (180) On February 27, 1998, Sunbeam closed at $41.75,¹¹⁶ which is what Plaintiff may have expected the stock to be worth on that date, assuming Plaintiff was unaware of the accounting fraud and other problems at Sunbeam. Alternatively, if one sets expectations on March 30, 1998, then one would use the closing price on March 30, 1998 of $43.94. Both estimates, $41.75 and $43.94, are substantially below Dr. Nye's estimate of $48.26. Thus, even assuming that expectation damages are an acceptable standard, and that expectations based on a fraudulently inflated price can ever be "reasonable," Dr Nye's method of averaging is unjustified and produces a substantially higher value than is justified by any principle of finance.

VI.1.3. There Is No Basis for Dr. Nye's Position that Sunbeam's True Value Should be Set at Zero

- (181) The date at which the consideration for the merger must be valued is the transaction date itself, March 30, 1998. Again, Dr. Kursh recognizes this,¹¹⁷ but Dr. Nye does not. Dr. Nye values CPH's Sunbeam's shares at February 5, 2001, when they became worthless due to Sunbeam's bankruptcy.¹¹⁸ But Sunbeam's ultimate demise, occurring after two and a half years of control by Plaintiff's owner, Mr. Perelman, was not known, predicted, or predictable at March 30, 1998. Dr. Nye applies an ex-post standard, which counsel advises me is not applicable here. Indeed, the Delaware Court of Chancery explicitly rejected hindsight-based valuation in litigation concerning this very merger, and concluded that Sunbeam's bankruptcy was not foreseeable as late as January 6, 2000 (let alone on March 30, 1998).¹¹⁹ Damages must be measured as of the time of the transaction.¹²⁰
- (182) Dr. Nye's position that we must wait until February 5, 2001 to learn of Sunbeam's true value is also inconsistent with his espoused principle of market efficiency. I have presented evidence suggesting that all of Morgan Stanley's information (and more) about the first quarter earnings and sales was released no later than May 26, 1998. Under the principle of market efficiency, and Dr. Nye's own flawed theory of damages, he should not have computed damages greater than those based on the difference between the March 30, 1998 price of Sunbeam and the May 26, 1998 price of Sunbeam. These damages, under Nye's flawed theory amount to $288 million. Moreover, if the damages are measured from expectations on February 27, 1998, at which Sunbeam's price was $41.75, they can be no larger than $257 million under Dr. Nye's theory of damages.

¹¹⁶ Nye Report, Exhibit 6B, p. 6.

¹¹⁷ Kursh Report, p. 3.

- (183) Dr. Nye's discussion of the impact of the sales restrictions and audit delays on Sunbeam's true value contradicts the principle of market efficiency. One need not look years down the road to establish a true value for Sunbeam stock just because it cannot be sold today. An efficient market price factors expectations about the future into today's stock price. Restricted stock may force the owner of the stock to assume some additional risks, which can be priced into the stock's value at the time. The stock's price, and hence its value, is obviously not the future outcome that can be known only with hindsight.
- (184) Dr. Nye's treatment of the sales restriction improperly alters the allocation of risk between the parties. The buyer of a restricted security, not the seller, bears the risk for price fluctuations over the restricted period. Yet, Dr. Nye's approach to damage computation makes the seller of the security bear all risk over the restricted period. If the security declines in value over the restricted period, damages are greater; if it appreciates, damages are less. When a seller of a security continues to bear the risk of all economic events beyond the date of sale, as Dr. Nye's damage calculation implies, the seller is in the economic position of continuing to own the security. The sale has in effect been negated. Restricted securities exist because the buyer is willing to bear the risk of future economic events. They are priced and traded with this transfer of risk in mind. Clearly, the buyer can be damaged by fraud, but the compensatory damages for that fraud in an efficient market would not vary with the length of the restricted sales period. Nor would such damages include compensation for the risks, not associated with fraud, that are willingly born.
- (185) Dr. Nye's discussion of the impact of the sales restrictions and audit delays on Sunbeam's true value contradicts his own estimate of Plaintiff's expectation of Sunbeam's value on March 30, 1998. If the restrictions could have caused Plaintiff to suffer a greater loss than unrestricted shares, the Plaintiff's expectations about the value of the shares it owned should have been less than the market value of unrestricted shares. Dr. Nye implicitly assumes that these restrictions have no effect on valuation, since he employs no liquidity discount in estimating Plaintiff's expectations about the value of their restricted shares.

- (186) Dr. Nye's report also misleads the Court in suggesting that there was no way for the Plaintiff to capture all or part of the value of Sunbeam stock in cash before the February 5, 2001 bankruptcy. Financial institutions, such as investment banks and insurance companies, routinely enter into financial agreements (e.g., total return swaps, insurance policies, or options) to relieve customers of some of the risk of holding restricted stock. Hence, the date at which the restrictions were lifted, or the auditor certified the financial statements, is not relevant to the damage calculation.
- (187) Moreover, even if these restrictions prevented sales, Dr. Nye's calculations of the impact of the restriction on damages are inconsistent with modern asset pricing theory.

VI.2. Mr. Wagner's Expert Report

- (188) Mr. Wagner provides no estimate of damages and provides no theory upon which such damages might be based. He states that his opinions are limited to "the fair value of Coleman on March 30, 1998" and "the investment value of Coleman on March 30, 1998."¹²¹
- (189) Mr. Wagner's analysis as described in his expert report is based on a methodology that is not appropriate for this case, and as such provides no reliable estimate of the value of Coleman on March 30, 1998. Mr. Wagner fails to use Coleman's actual market prices to value Coleman and, instead, inappropriately relies on practitioner methods. The limited circumstances under which it is proper to use practitioner methods are discussed in Section III.1 of my report. Mr. Wagner's methodology relies on the market prices of other securities to estimate the value of Coleman. This reliance is unnecessary and illogical since market prices for Coleman exist. Mr. Wagner provides no justification for relying on the market prices of other securities while completely ignoring market prices for Coleman itself.
- (190) In addition to its theoretical shortcomings, Mr. Wagner's methodology is in conflict with that of Dr. Kursh. First, Dr. Kursh relies, in part, on Coleman's actual market prices to value Coleman. Second, Mr. Wagner's estimates are substantially different from Dr. Kursh's, even though both are ostensibly estimating the same thing—Coleman's value on March 30, 1998. Mr. Wagner estimates Coleman's "fair value" on March 30, 1998 as $26.18 per share¹²² and Dr. Kursh estimates "fair market value at control" as $29.50 per share.¹²³
- (191) Leaving aside Mr. Wagner's inappropriate use of practitioner methods, he commits a variety of other mistakes. These include cherry-picking years for deriving Coleman's estimated future costs and assigning arbitrary weights to his widely varying estimates of Coleman's value. In addition he improperly and inconsistently applies what he calls a "control premium" and compounds this error by factoring in "synergies" on top of it.

VI.3. Dr. Kursh's Expert Report

- (192) My rebuttal opinions in this section focus on Dr. Kursh's use of market prices, as he understands them, to value Coleman. Mr. Kursh also discusses and critiques the fairness opinions of Morgan Stanley and Credit Suisse. I have given my opinions about the use of these methods for damage estimation in this case in my discussion of Mr. Wagner's report and I do not repeat them here.
- (193) I also point to the significance of Dr. Kursh's statement, "Holdings' out-of-pocket loss is equal to the value of the consideration provided to Sunbeam less the consideration received from Sunbeam."¹²⁴ The statement, which I agree with, is the only reference in Dr. Kursh's report to a methodology for damage calculation. It suggests that he and I share a common approach to scientific damage estimation in this case. It is distinct from the approach taken by Plaintiff's expert Dr. Nye. Moreover, I agree with Dr. Kursh that the value of Coleman's shares should be determined as of the merger's closing date, March 30, 1998.¹²⁵ Finally, I endorse Dr. Kursh's use of Coleman-related market prices to estimate the true value of Coleman, and his assertion that alternative valuation approaches that do not focus on subject company transactions are inferior. Our agreement here also stands in sharp contrast to the approach taken by Plaintiff's expert Mr. Wagner. Mr. Wagner employs a variety of methods to estimate Coleman's "fair value," but none of them are directly based on market transactions in Coleman.
- (194) Although I agree with Dr. Kursh's preference for using Coleman's market price to value Coleman, I disagree with Dr. Kursh's estimate of Coleman's "fair market value at control" from his transaction-based estimates. My disagreements are founded in Dr. Kursh's implementation of his methodology. In several critical aspects, his implementation betrays his own stated principles, and ignores some of the pitfalls he warns about. Sometimes, the errors in his implementation bias Coleman's value downward, but on balance, these errors grossly overstate Coleman's true value. These errors include the following:

¹²⁴ Kursh Report, p. 3.

¹²⁵ Kursh Report, p. 3.

021538

CONFIDENTIAL

- a. Dr. Kursh relies heavily on the price at which Coleman executives “cashed out” their stock options, at a time when Coleman’s market price was largely a function of Sunbeam’s. I discuss this in Section VI.3.1.
- b. Dr. Kursh makes much of the fact that the parties to the merger agreed to treat Sunbeam’s assumption of the Holdings Notes as equivalent in value to 19.2 million Coleman shares, despite the fact that the value “given” to the debt by the parties is meaningless out of context. I discuss this in Section VI.3.2.
- c. Dr. Kursh asserts that the stock option cash-outs and “implied” value of the Holdings Notes provide independent verification of the validity of his true value assessment. In actuality, they are different parts of a single transaction, and thus do not provide independent estimates of the true market price of Coleman. I discuss this in Section VI.3.3.
- d. When Dr. Kursh does use actual market prices to value Coleman, he selects a starting date at which the price of Coleman was inflated by news of the merger. This is inconsistent with his acknowledgment that leakage of news of a merger can occur weeks before a merger announcement. It is also inconsistent with his argument that inflation from such leakage should invalidate a subject company transaction as a basis for true value. I discuss this in Section VI.3.4.
- e. Dr. Kursh fails to adjust the Coleman February 27 market price he selects for the impact of news events and changes in overall market prices between that date and the date of the transaction. I discuss this in Section VI.3.5.
- f. Dr. Kursh incorrectly applies a control premium to obtain the true value of a share of Coleman stock from a pre-merger transaction price. I see no economic argument that would support the use of a control premium. I discuss this in Section VI.3.6.
- g. Dr. Kursh misinterprets the effect of the merger announcement on Sunbeam’s stock price.

021539

- (195) I explain each error in turn below.

VI.3.1. Dr. Kursh Inappropriately Cites the Option Cash-Out Opportunities of Coleman Executives as the Basis for a Market Valuation of Coleman

- (196) Dr. Kursh notes that in exchange for paying an option exercise price, some Coleman executives chose to receive a $27.50 cash payment as part of the merger agreement. Others exercised their stock options and received Coleman stock. He then states that if these executives sold the stock received from exercising their options in March 1998, they would have earned the Coleman stock price prevailing in the stock market on the date they sold, which was above $27.50 during this period.
- (197) The $27.50 cash-out price set in the merger agreement is not a “market indicator of value” for two reasons. First, $27.50 is not a transaction price in the traditional sense of a competitive market. Rather, it is one component of a larger transaction, which must be considered in its entirety. I discuss this point further in the next subsection. Second, Sunbeam’s willingness to exchange inflated Sunbeam stock for Coleman stock renders meaningless the terms of the merger as indicators of Coleman’s true value. Drawing on an earlier analogy in my rebuttal of Dr. Nye’s report, Bob’s stated willingness to pay Alice $1 million in diamonds for a piece of candy with the intention of paying $1 million in fake diamonds does not imply that the candy has a true value of $1 million.
- (198) The fact that some executives sold Coleman stock acquired through option exercise in March 1998 provides no information at all about the true value of Coleman. Dr. Kursh himself states: “Coleman’s stock price following the announcement of the Sunbeam Acquisition became a proxy of Sunbeam’s stock price with some arbitrage component ... After February 27, 1998, therefore, Coleman’s publicly traded price is not a reliable indicator of the Company’s stand-alone minority value but includes the effect of the merger.”¹²⁶ I agree. For the reasons stated clearly by Dr. Kursh himself, his estimate of Coleman's value based on these transactions, all of which occurred after February 27, 1998, is "not reliable."

¹²⁶ Kursh Report, p. 11. Once the terms of the merger were announced, the market price of a Coleman share was almost entirely a function of the cash and Sunbeam stock into which it could be converted, rather than a reflection of Coleman’s value on a stand-alone basis.

021540

VI.3.2. Dr. Kursh's Use of Credit Suisse's Characterization of the Exchange of Debt for Stock Is Irrelevant to Coleman's True Value

- (199) Dr. Kursh makes similarly egregious errors in his discussion of the Holdings Notes as an indicator of Coleman's true value. His argument is based entirely on a single document prepared by Plaintiff's financial advisors, Credit Suisse First Boston, which characterizes this element of the transaction as Sunbeam's "[a]ssumption of $525 million of zero coupon debt for 19.2 million CLN shares."¹²⁷ Dividing $525 by 19.2, Dr. Kursh concludes that he has evidence that Coleman shares were worth $27.34.
- (200) Dr. Kursh's reasoning is unsound. The assumption of the Holdings Notes was one piece of a total transaction, meaningless when taken out of context. The various components of the exchange—the assumption of debt, cash, and Sunbeam stock—were negotiated as a whole and can only be valued as a whole. The Merger Agreement itself treats the elements of the exchange in this way. It assigns no particular value to the CLN Holdings Notes, and does not equate their value to any particular number of Coleman shares.
- (201) Consider the example of buying a new car while trading in an old one. The car dealer may (a) offer to sell the new car for $25,000 while offering to buy the trade-in for $5,000 or (b) offer to sell the new car for $30,000 while buying the trade-in for $10,000. Since both the trade-in and new car price were negotiated simultaneously, neither has any real economic meaning alone—only the net transfer ($20,000 + old car for new car) matters. Similarly, the individual components of the entire merger transaction are irrelevant, since they too were all negotiated together. As in the car example, one cannot use any individual part of the transaction as evidence as to what either party to the larger transaction thought the individual part was worth, let alone a third party's opinion of the same. And in this particular case, as in my car example, the parties themselves appear to have described the ¹²⁷ Kursh Report, p. 14, citing CSFBC 0001550. The characterization is questionable.

021541

Holdings Notes in a way that is different from the Credit Suisse document: a Morgan Stanley document shows the same debt being exchanged for the same shares, this time valued at $500 million, for a share price of about $26.00.¹²⁸

VI.3.3. Dr. Kursh Incorrectly Cites Two Components of This Single Transaction As If Each Was an Independent “Market Indicator of Value”

- (202) Dr. Kursh erroneously cites the option cash-out¹²⁹ and the assumption of debt¹³⁰ as two independent methods for ascertaining a “market indicator of value” for Coleman shares.¹³¹ But for reasons alluded to in the previous discussion, they are not independent. Both were aspects of the larger merger that were all negotiated together. It is no more valid to consider the option cash-out and the assumption of debt as two independent examples of a “market indicator of value” than it would be to consider the purchase of the Coleman shares as being 44 million independent examples of a “market indicator of value.”

VI.3.4. Dr. Kursh Selects an Inflated Market Price for Coleman

- (203) Dr. Kursh appears to agree with me that in selecting a market price for Coleman as the basis for valuation, one must be careful to select a price that is not affected by news of the merger.¹³² Dr. Kursh selects February 27, 1998 as the starting price for one of his estimations of the value of Coleman and states, “After February 27, 1998, therefore, Coleman’s publicly traded price is not a reliable indicator of the Company’s stand-alone minority value but includes the expected effect of the merger.”¹³³

¹³³ Kursh Report, p. 11.

021542

- (204) While I agree that this statement is true, it is not sufficient. As I explain in Sections IV and V, Coleman's price was inflated by rumors prior to February 27, probably as early as February 4, 1998. Thus, the price on February 27, 1998 is not an appropriate starting point for Dr. Kursh's analysis since it includes the very effects he is seeking to avoid. The correct choice of a starting point to value Coleman, according to Dr. Kursh's methodology, would be the price on February 4, 1998.
- (205) What is most surprising about Dr. Kursh's use of the February 27, 1998 price is that he is aware that merger leakage often occurs. He cites a Morgan Stanley study that explicitly accounts for the possibility of leakage of merger news. Dr. Kursh writes, "Morgan Stanley's control premium analysis was based on price comparisons between merger price and market price 28 days prior to merger announcement. This method may eliminate any market price impact that might be attributed to information leakage prior to formal merger announcement."¹³⁴

VI.3.5. Dr. Kursh Fails to Apply a Market Adjustment

- (206) In addition to selecting the wrong date on which to use the market price for Coleman as a basis for valuing the Coleman stock, Dr. Kursh fails to adjust this price to a value for Coleman as a stand-alone entity as of March 30, 1998. In this case, Dr. Kursh's error leads him to underestimate the true value of Coleman on March 30, 1998 because the stock market appreciated approximately 5% in March 1998.

VI.3.6. Dr. Kursh Incorrectly Applies a Control Premium to Value Coleman Stock

- (207) Dr. Kursh argues that the February 27, 1998 market price of Coleman—which he calls the "actual stock price at minority"—must be adjusted upwards by a 30-35% "control premium," (which, in his view, still "understates" its value).¹³⁵ I did not see justification for ¹³⁴ Kursh Report, p. 8.

¹³⁵ Kursh Report, p. 15.

021543

this rather hefty adjustment in Dr. Kursh's report, which was notably lacking in citations and economic reasoning. My concept of true value derives from a standard that has been at the core of basic economic theory for the last 150 years. This standard, found in every general economics and microeconomics textbook, is the concept of opportunity cost.

(208) It is difficult for a trained economist like myself to understand the justification for a 30–35% control premium as an opportunity cost. I would employ a premium of this magnitude if the Plaintiff could show that such a control premium was lost on March 30, 1998 by entering into the merger with Sunbeam. Since Sunbeam, in committing the fraud alleged by the Plaintiff, was not really offering a 30–35% premium to minority value, it is incumbent on the Plaintiff to show how this premium could be realized on March 30, 1998 from some other source. I believe that there can only be one source for this, which is an alternative acquirer. Neither Drs. Kursh and Nye, nor Mr. Wagner, present any evidence that such an acquirer was waiting in the wings or would be willing to pay the same price that Sunbeam appeared to offer.

(209) When a merger offer is made, it is unusual but not entirely uncommon to see a premium of 30–35% being paid by the acquirer. However, this is not a justification for a control premium of this magnitude unless the 30–35% premium represents a 30–35% lost opportunity that would have occurred with certainty. That is, a control premium of this size is not warranted unless there would have been a change of control in the but-for scenario. The willingness of an alternative acquirer to pay this premium has to derive from (i) the benefit of better management of Coleman, or (ii) synergies with Coleman.

(210) Thus, what Dr. Kursh labels a “control premium” is more appropriately called an “acquisition premium” that must be paid to split the spoils of the synergies or the improvements in the efficiency of the target as part of a bilateral negotiation. Other authorities concur. Dr. Kursh cites Shannon Pratt as a business valuation authority in footnotes 14 and 15 on page 10 of his report.¹³⁶ According to Pratt:

¹³⁶ Kursh Report, p. 10.

021544

- a. "It is now well recognized that many 'control premiums' are actually 'acquisition premiums' reflecting synergistic values that may not be part of fair market value (for tax purposes) or stand-alone value (for dissent and dissolution purposes)." ¹³⁷
- b. "Appraisers can no longer blindly apply control premiums to public market value indicators to derive control value." ¹³⁸
- c. "For example, the unfortunately named 'control premium' (better would be 'acquisition premium') is not a measure of the value of control simply because people began calling it a control premium instead of an acquisition premium." ¹³⁹
- d. "It is also the reason why I stated that the term 'control premium' was an unfortunate, and misleading, choice of words." ¹⁴⁰

(211) The Delaware Court of Chancery, also cited by Dr. Kursh as supportive of his Coleman appraisal, stated that its own statutory mandate was to "appraise the shares, determining their fair value exclusive of any element of value arising from the accomplishment or expectation of the merger..." (emphasis added).¹⁴¹ The statutory requirement that valuation exclude synergies specific to a particular buyer makes good economic sense. Unless Dr. Kursh can show that his "control premium" is not—as I contend—simply Sunbeam-specific synergies in disguise, it has no place in the valuation of Coleman.

(212) I, too, apply a premium in my analysis of Coleman's true value in Section IV and V of my report. However, no other acquisition involving Coleman was imminent or even rumored around the time of the merger.¹⁴² Therefore, an acquisition premium of the magnitude applied by Dr. Kursh, which is attached to the certainty of an alternative merger involving Coleman around March 30, 1998, would be inappropriate. The correct premium to apply, as I explain in Section IV.1.3 is a “merger-related premium” which incorporates the market’s assessment of the likelihood of an acquisition, the terms it might offer, when it would be offered, and the discount factor that should be applied to value it. Using results on this market inference from peer-reviewed finance publications and my own independent research, I identified a merger-related premium of about 5–6% that should be applied to the March 30, 1998 stand-alone value of Coleman.¹⁴³ This 5–6% premium represents the market’s wise and fair assessment of the increased likelihood of an alternative merger for Coleman given that it had an acquisition attempt (by Sunbeam) in its past.

VI.3.7. Dr. Kursh Misinterprets the Effect of the Merger Announcement on Sunbeam’s Stock Price

- (213) Dr. Kursh states “[t]he upward revision of Sunbeam’s stock price following the merger announcement suggests that the market believed that the merger consideration was advantageous to Sunbeam; in other words, that the value of Coleman exceeded the value of the merger consideration.”¹⁴⁴ This interpretation is the most favorable to the Plaintiff in generating a high estimate for the value of Coleman. It also makes no sense. It contradicts the efficient market hypothesis and hence Dr. Nye’s report, not to mention most of modern financial theory. It also renders nonsensical Dr. Kursh’s previously discussed use of market prices for estimating the value of Coleman.
- (214) The market price for Coleman is the market’s appraisal of the value of Coleman. If the market thought Coleman were worth more, it would bid up the price until the price equaled Coleman’s supposed value. There are other interpretations that do not conflict with the efficient market hypothesis. First, the market could have expected larger synergies than the deal price represented. Synergies are not part of the value of Coleman, but are specific to was “highly unlikely” that anyone else would have bid for it. Likewise, he was unaware of any bidders for Coleman in 1998. Nov. 17, 2004 Perelman Dep. at 291–296.

Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman. Second, the market could have thought that Al Dunlap might manage Coleman better than Perelman's team was managing Coleman, and, since Coleman was going to be part of Sunbeam, that Sunbeam was worth more. Third, the market could also have revised its opinions about Sunbeam upon learning of the terms of the merger. It could have believed that Sunbeam was healthier than previously thought since it could offer so much in cash and assume so much debt. And finally, it may have been a reaction to Sunbeam's acquisitions of First Alert and Signature Brands, announced simultaneously with the Coleman acquisition. None of these explanations imply that the market thought that Coleman by itself was worth more than its price, and none require us to pretend that financial markets are grossly inefficient.

VII.3. Appendix C: Market Model—General Description

- (215) This appendix introduces the concept of market models and explains how they are estimated. The market model estimation framework presented here and employed in this expert report is well established in the academic finance literature.¹⁴⁵ I also have seen this methodology employed by experts in securities litigation and have employed the methodology myself, both in prior expert testimony and in my research.
- (216) Movements in stock prices of individual companies are partly driven by market-wide trends. Market models characterize “normal returns,” which are the returns of the company attributable only to market-wide trends. We expect a company’s stock price to be largely driven by the returns of the overall stock market in the absence of important firm-specific events such as merger bids, dividend initiations, bankruptcy announcements, major management changes, and earnings announcements.
- (217) Market model estimates for a given company use data on the company’s stock returns and the market’s returns during a chosen time period. This time period is often called the “estimation window.” Typically, daily returns are used. Daily returns on a company’s stock are defined as the percentage change in the closing price of the stock from one trading day to the next. Similarly, daily returns on the market are defined as the percentage change in the closing value of a market index from one trading day to the next. The market index I use is the S&P 500 Index, which is widely used as a proxy for the stock market as a whole.
- (218) The market model is estimated using a statistical technique called ordinary least squares. Returns for a company (the dependent variable) are regressed on the corresponding market return (the independent variable) over the estimation window. The coefficients generated by these regressions are generally called the “alpha” and the “beta,” where the alpha is the regression intercept and the beta is the regression slope coefficient. With the ordinary least squares technique, these estimates are selected to best fit the data within the estimation window.

¹⁴⁵ Campbell, John Y., Andrew W. Lo, and A. Craig MacKinlay, “Event-Study Analysis,” The Econometrics of Financial Markets, 1997.

- (219) One interprets a beta of one as suggesting that when the general level of the stock market goes up by one percent, the stock tends to gain one percent more than if the market return were zero on that day. If the market declined by two percent, the stock of a company with a beta of one is expected to have a return that is two percent less what it would be expected to earn if the market return was zero, etc. If the beta is two, returns on the stock (both negative and positive returns) vary about twice as much as the market returns on the average. Betas between zero and one imply that the company's stock price responds (sluggishly) to market movements. Negative beta companies, which are rare, have stock returns that vary inversely with the market.
- (220) Once the market model has been estimated, predicted normal returns on the stock can be generated. The estimation window can overlap with, entirely contain, or be entirely separate from the period in which one applies the market model to obtain predicted normal returns. The choice of estimation window depends on the particular issue being analyzed, but is not arbitrary, and requires a careful assessment by the researcher of how the window influences several competing statistical objectives. For any given day, the stock return predicted by the market model is obtained by multiplying the estimated market model beta and the actual market return on that day and adding the estimated alpha to the product. These predicted normal returns are useful for analyzing the effect of major events on a company's stock price. For example, the market model can be used to predict how the stock price would have behaved in the absence of such events, but adjusted for normal movement in the overall market.
- (221) Market-adjusted returns are the difference between the actual return of the stock on a given day and the predicted normal return obtained from the market model.

VII.4. Appendix D: Event Study—General Description

- (222) Since their introduction almost 40 years ago, event studies have gained immense popularity and wide-spread acceptance in the academic finance community. Event studies are used to identify and measure the impact of events such as mergers or to remove artificial inflation from the price of a stock.¹⁴⁶
- (223) The first step of an event study is defining the event of interest and an event window. The event window covers the period of time during which the event takes place. For example, if we want to examine the combined effect of merger announcements and their subsequent terminations on stock prices, the event window for each company should cover both the merger proposal announcement and the merger termination announcement. The event window may cover different periods of calendar time for different companies if several companies are included in the event study and if they experience the event at different times.
- (224) Once the event and the event window have been identified, the researcher has to choose a model of normal returns, the “normal model,” which describes the behavior of stock returns in the absence of the event. In other words, the normal model predicts expected stock returns if there is no event. Probably the most popular normal return model is the market model, which is explained in Appendix C.
- (225) Because the normal models describe the behavior of stock returns in the absence of important events, the difference between actual returns and predicted returns from the normal model reflects the effect of the event on stock returns. This difference is called the abnormal return. If abnormal returns are approximately zero during the event, the event study suggests that the event has a negligible effect on stock prices. On the other hand, if the event causes large abnormal returns, that is, large deviations from the predicted normal returns, the event study suggests that the event has a large effect on stock prices. This is how an event study can identify and quantify the effect of events on stock prices.

¹⁴⁶ Campbell, John Y., Andrew W. Lo, and A. Craig MacKinlay, “Event-Study Analysis,” The Econometrics of Financial Markets, 1997. See also, Tabak and Dunbar, Cornell and Morgan, supra note 109.

- (226) My report uses the event study methodology to measure and remove artificial inflation from Sunbeam's stock price and to evaluate the combined effect of merger announcements and their subsequent terminations on stock prices.

VII.5. Appendix E: The Market Model Adjustment Used to Obtain Coleman's March 30, 1998 Stand-Alone Value

- (227) To arrive at Coleman's stand-alone value on March 30, 1998, I make a market adjustment to account for the change in the general level of stock prices between the Coleman start date (step 1) and March 30, 1998. When the start date is February 3, 1998, (see Section V) there is the possibility of another adjustment for the February 20 Coleman price increase. Having described this adjustment in some detail in Section V.1.2 the discussion below omits reference to this second adjustment.
- (228) The market adjustment uses the market model described in Appendix C, and the historical relationship between market changes and changes in Coleman's stock price. Beginning with the start date (February 3 or 23), the next day's "market adjusted price" is the product of the start date price, (e.g., $18.94 when February 23 is the start date) and the "market adjustment factor" for that day. More generally, day t 's market-adjusted price is the product of the prior day's market-adjusted price and the market adjustment factor for day t . The "market adjustment factor" is defined as follows:

$$\text{Market adjustment factor} = 1 + \alpha + \beta \times (\text{market return for day } t)$$

I sequentially apply this adjustment procedure for all trading days from the start date through March 30, 1998 to arrive at the stand-alone price per share on March 30, 1998.

- (229) I estimated Coleman's alpha and beta in two ways. First, I estimated both from historical stock return data, using the ordinary least squares regression technique. This generated a slightly negative alpha. Alternatively, I set the alpha to zero and used the beta estimated in the previously discussed regression. The second alternative has the effect of increasing damages, but very negligibly. I explored this "zero alpha" alternative because alpha estimates tend to have more estimation error than beta estimates and one theory, the Capital Asset Pricing Model ("CAPM"),¹⁴⁷ implies that unless the company has a beta above one, the alpha ¹⁴⁷ The CAPM is the standard and most basic asset pricing model in use today. It is described in every major finance textbook and was the reason William Sharpe, one of the inventors of the CAPM, shared the first Nobel Prize awarded for finance research.

021582

should not be negative. If one does not rely on historical data to estimate alpha, the alternative is to use the alpha of the average company, which is zero.

- (230) Exhibit 26 shows Coleman's alpha and beta parameter values for the market adjustment factor formula, as generated by the two alpha alternatives, and the results they produce based on the February 23, 1998 starting price. My report uses alternative 2, which sets the alpha to zero, because it maximizes damages.

Alternative 2: Alpha set to zero, Beta estimated	0.0000	0.6858	$19.63

- (231) To apply the market model to Coleman, I made the following assumptions.
- a. The estimation window was February 1, 1997–January 31, 1998;
 - b. I used daily returns on Coleman and on the market; and
 - c. My market index was the S&P 500.

VII.6. Appendix F: Terminated Mergers Analysis—Data Sources and Sample Selection

- (232) This appendix outlines the data sources and sample selection criteria used in the calculation of the merger-related premium.
- (233) Data sources:
- a. Sample of Terminated Mergers: Thomson Financial, SDC Mergers & Acquisitions Database (“SDC database”)
 - b. Stock price series for targets of terminated mergers and S&P 500 Index: CRSP.
- (234) I first identified mergers and acquisitions meeting the following criteria in the SDC database:
- a. Merger proposal announced between January 1, 1996 and December 31, 2000
 - b. Deal status of “Withdrawn” (Terminated)
 - c. Both acquirer and target were U.S. public companies
 - d. Target market capitalization between $250 million and $10 billion (four weeks prior to proposal of merger)
 - e. Deal types of the following values:
 - i. Disclosed Value M&A
 - ii. Undisclosed Value M&A
 - iii. Tender Offers
- (235) This search resulted in a sample of 115 terminated mergers. For each of these transactions I downloaded detailed information from the SDC database.
- (236) Using this information along with my general knowledge of mergers, I excluded seven of the 115 terminated mergers from my final sample. I eliminated two terminated mergers due to simultaneous announcement of both the merger proposal and termination. Of the remaining 113 terminated mergers, another five were dropped because they were acquisitions of remaining interest or leveraged buyouts. These exclusions resulted in a final sample of 108 terminated mergers for my estimation of a merger-related premium.

- (237) Based on my general knowledge, I observed that the SDC database had mistakenly interchanged the acquirer and the target in the AirTran Holdings Inc/Trans World Airlines Inc merger. News articles confirmed my observation, and I corrected this mistake in my sample.¹⁴⁸
- (238) Additionally, I adjusted the announcement dates of the 108 terminated mergers in my sample to account for previously announced bids for the same target company. To do this, I used the SDC database to identify the forty-six terminated mergers that had other bids announced anytime between the announcement date of the terminated merger in my sample and one-year prior. In this search I included bids of all deal types and excluded bids that had an acquirer company name of "Seeking buyer." Of these forty-six terminated mergers with other bids, twenty-two terminated mergers had bids that were all terminated or completed more than sixty trading days before the original announcement. Four terminated mergers only had other bids where the acquirer and target were the same company. For each of the remaining twenty terminated mergers, I used the earliest announcement date of the other bids as the announcement date for the terminated merger in my sample.

VII.7. Appendix G: Terminated Mergers Analysis— Methodology and Results

- (239) This appendix discusses my terminated mergers analysis. Section VII.7.1 summarizes the methodology I used to calculate the merger-related premium for target companies in my sample of terminated mergers. Section VII.7.2 provides the detailed description of my procedure. Section VII.7.3 summarizes the results of the analysis.

VII.7.1. Summary of Methodology

- (240) The procedure I use to estimate the merger-related premium is consistent with procedures described in the academic literature.¹⁴⁹ In particular, I follow the literature on merger analysis that focuses on terminated mergers, of which Asquith (1983) and Sullivan et al. (1994) are typical examples.¹⁵⁰
- (241) The framework for my analysis is the event study methodology, described in Appendix D and widely used in financial analysis. I compared the stock price of merger targets prior to the announcement of the merger with the stock price after the termination of the merger and computed the cumulative effect of a merger announcement and subsequent cancellation on the target's stock price. I calculated the merger-related premium as the average cumulative effect across all targets. In calculating this effect, I controlled for changes in the target stock price due to changes in the overall market. Details of my procedure follow.

¹⁴⁹ Note that this literature does not use the terminology of a “merger-related premium” to discuss the combined effect of the merger announcement and termination. Instead, it discusses the effect in terms of the cumulative abnormal return and gains/losses for the target. The literature also uses the concept of target stock price revaluation based on information released to the market as a result of the merger announcement and termination. I capture the same concept with the merger-related premium and find this terminology simpler to use in this context.

¹⁵⁰ Asquith, Merger Bids, supra note 47, at 11, 51–83.

Sullivan et al., Terminated Merger Proposals, supra note 36, at 23(3), 51–62.

Both of these papers analyze the effect of two events—merger announcement and merger cancellation—on the stock prices of target companies involved in merger bids.

VII.7.2. Methodology in Detail

- (242) I denote trading days measured relative to the merger proposal announcement day by “P” and trading days measured relative to the merger termination announcement day by “T.” The merger proposal and termination announcement days are denoted by 0P and 0T, respectively. A time window from x days before the merger proposal announcement day to y days after the merger termination announcement day (including both the start and end days of the window) is denoted by [-xP, yT]. This time window is called the event window and it includes two events, the merger announcement and the merger termination for each target in my sample. I used several alternate event windows, that is, event windows with several alternate values of x and y in my analysis. The results for these alternate windows will be presented in the next section.
- (243) I used the earliest announcement date of any bid for each target to determine the event window. Appendix F describes in detail how I identified these other bids. If there was another such bid, I defined the announcement day 0P relative to the announcement day of this other bid rather than the announcement day of the merger bid in my sample. This definition accounts for target companies that were already in play when the merger bid in my sample was announced. The procedure is likely to increase the estimated value of the merger-related premium and bias the results in Plaintiff’s favor.
- (244) For each target company, I used daily closing stock prices to calculate daily stock returns. I used the S&P 500 Index as a proxy for the overall stock market and calculated daily market returns using the daily closing value of the Index. I estimated a market model¹⁵¹ separately for each target company. The market models were estimated using 120 trading days of stock returns from the time period immediately preceding the event window, if available.
- (245) Depending on the event window, two or three target companies did not have complete stock price data for the event window. I had to exclude these companies from my analysis. For my [-10P, 10T] event window, three companies had insufficient stock price data and the final sample size was 105. For all other event windows, two target companies had insufficient stock price data resulting in a final sample size of 106.

- (246) For each target company, I calculated predicted stock returns on every trading day within the chosen event window using the estimated market model and actual realized market returns. On every event window day, I calculated the daily abnormal return on the company in question by subtracting the predicted normal return from the actual return on the stock. For each company, I then computed the cumulative abnormal returns (“CARs”) by aggregating the daily abnormal returns over the event window. Finally, I calculated the merger-related premium as the mean cumulative abnormal return of the target companies.

VII.7.3. Results for Alternate Event Windows

- (247) The academic literature on terminated mergers suggests that the average merger-related premium is modestly positive for targets of terminated mergers (or slightly negative).¹⁵² My findings are consistent with the academic literature. Exhibit 27 below shows my estimates of the merger-related premium for five event windows. Sullivan et al. (1994), whose estimate is employed in Section IV, used the third event window: [-10P, 10T]. All other event windows end two trading days after merger termination (at 2T). If markets are efficient, target stock prices reflect all relevant information about the merger and its termination at that point.¹⁵³

Asquith, Merger Bids, supra note 47, at 51–83.

Dodd, Merger Proposals, supra note 47, at 105–137.

¹⁵³ Consistently with this statement, the merger-related premiums for the [-10P, 10T] and [-10P, 2T] event windows are very close to each other as shown in Exhibit 27.

	[-18P, 2T]	[-10P, 2T]	[-10P, 10T]	[-5P, 2T]	[-1P, 2T]
Merger-related premium	1.88%	5.55%	5.21%	4.34%	0.47%
The estimated premiums here are not statistically significant at the 5% level. Data source: Thomson Financial & CRSP.

- (248) The start days of the event windows other than -10P reflect the timeline of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger and account for possible run-ups in target stocks' prices prior to their merger announcements.¹⁵⁴ February 3 and 23 were 18 and 5 trading days, respectively, before the Sunbeam-Coleman merger announcement that took place on March 2, 1998. The last start day of the event windows (one day prior to merger announcement) corresponds to a case where there is no pre-merger run-up and the stand-alone value of the target company can be observed immediately before the merger announcement.
- (249) I chose the event window with the largest merger-related premium. In other words, my event window choice is [-10P, 2T] and my merger-related premium estimate is 5.55%. This choice maximizes the damages and biases the results in Plaintiff's favor.
- (250) Exhibit 28 graphs the average CARs for the chosen event window. The merger proposal and termination announcement dates are marked by the vertical lines. Because the time between merger announcement and termination is not the same for every terminated merger, the mean CARs are drawn up to 2P and then continued at -2T. The dashed line between these two days shows the average CAR in [2P, -2T].
- (251) The Exhibit shows that an average target company in a terminated merger earned a positive cumulative abnormal return around the proposal announcement date. However, by two trading days after merger termination (at the right end of the graph), the average target company lost most of the cumulative abnormal return earned around the proposal announcement date and retained a merger-related premium of 5.55%.

¹⁵⁴ I consider -10P and 10T as event window endpoints since they are the endpoints used by Sullivan, et. al., Terminated Merger Proposals, supra note 36.

VII.9. Appendix I: Sunbeam Event Study and Market Model

- (252) Section V.3 used the event study methodology to calculate the true value of Sunbeam on March 30, 1998. This section provides additional technical details of my procedure.
- (253) In the event study I make the following assumptions and definitions:
- a. All event windows were one trading day long (i.e. the time between successive market closes); and
 - b. The standard deviation of Sunbeam's daily returns used for determining which price drops were significant was calculated over the one-year period preceding the merger announcement (February 28, 1997 to February 27, 1998).¹⁵⁵
- (254) I used a market model (described previously in Appendix C) on daily data to predict Sunbeam's expected return between March 30, 1998 and May 26, 1998 where I set alpha to 0 and beta to 1. I did not use calculated parameter values for several reasons.
- a. First, Sunbeam was a fundamentally different company after its merger with Coleman, and it is likely that Sunbeam's alpha and beta changed after March 30, 1998. Therefore, using the alpha and beta from a prior period would not be appropriate.
 - b. Likewise, Sunbeam was a company in turmoil for much of this event window (March 30–May 26) and the alpha and beta calculated during this period were, predictably, not statistically significant.¹⁵⁶
- (255) Instead, I used an alpha of 0 and a beta of 1 in my model of normal returns between March 30 and May 26 because the average alpha and beta for all stocks must be 0 and 1 respectively.

¹⁵⁵ Sunbeam's pre-merger standard deviation was 2.51%.

¹⁵⁶ Aside from a small sample size, Sunbeam shares traded based on company-specific news and not on general market conditions.
