IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,

Plaintiff,

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,

Defendant.

Material Redacted Without Prior Determination of Protectability by Court

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS FOR DISCOVERY ABUSES

Court-ordered discovery in recent weeks has revealed that Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") has intentionally withheld from production highly relevant and damaging documents. These documents ("Valuation Documents") undermine CPH's $680 million damage claim, are contrary to sworn testimony by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.'s ("MAFCO's") Chief Executive Officer and sole shareholder Ronald O. Perelman, CPH's designated corporate representative — Laurence Winoker — who was deposed on November 18, 2004, and the testimony of CPH's damage expert and others concerning the value of CPH's Sunbeam stock and warrant. The facts warrant severe sanctions.

Morgan Stanley requested Valuation Documents in July 2003 and throughout 2004.¹ There is no innocent reason why the Valuation Documents have only been produced on the eve of trial and after motion practice. As this Court has stated, the documents "obviously" were requested at the earliest stages of this litigation — and CPH's deliberate "failure to disclose [this material] is serious.” (Mar. 8, 2005 Hr’g at 2398-99.) In sum, CPH has possessed — and known that it had — documents in its most secret files that contradict its damages claim against Morgan Stanley. Only now — after two orders compelling production from this Court and an Order imposing sanctions, days before trial, and well after Morgan Stanley could fairly challenge CPH’s fact and expert witnesses — has CPH begun to produce those documents.

- For over a year, CPH’s counsel repeatedly assured Morgan Stanley that CPH had provided all of its documents relating to damages. On March 1, 2005, a week after finally producing key unredacted Valuation Documents, CPH’s counsel Mr. Solovy promised this Court: “I can assure the Court there are no other documents, we produced everything we got.” (Mar. 1, 2005 Hr’g at 1798 (emphasis added).)
- Just days later, however, CPH produced 72 pages of documents relating to damages. (MS 811 (Ex. 1).) In addition, well after the close of discovery and only after being compelled by this Court, CPH produced a MAFCO document (MS 822 (Ex. 2)) that document, and others like it, also valued Sunbeam’s warrant at same valuation was used a year later, as well.

That
The

MAFCO’s valuation of flatly contradicts CPH’s damages theory as well as Mr. Perelman’s sworn testimony that CPH’s Sunbeam stock and warrant were worthless.

- On March 8, 2005, MAFCO’s controller, treasurer and custodian of its financial records, Laurence Winoker, admitted

— again, well after discovery had closed and nearly two years after Morgan Stanley first requested such information.

- The Court has found Morgan Stanley’s discovery requests regarding CPH’s internal valuation documents to be “obviously clear.” (Mar. 8, 2005 Hr’g 2398-99.) The information requested goes directly to an indisputable element of CPH’s claims.

037225

- Mr. Perelman, as the sole ultimate shareholder of CPH, has an obvious motive in this case to understate the value of Sunbeam stock and the Sunbeam warrant at the time of the transaction. And Morgan Stanley now knows that while Mr. Perelman testified in this case that the relevant figure was _____, during the relevant time period he was providing to _____ documents that reflected a valuation of the same stock at _____

Laurence Winoker, CPH's designated witness pursuant to rule 1.310(b)(6), falsely testified on November 18, 2004, that the Sunbeam warrant was valued by CPH at _____ when in fact, Mr. Winoker and Mr. Perelman agreed the estimated fair value was _____

- Like Morgan Stanley, Dr. Nye, CPH's own damage expert witness, was not provided with the newly-discovered Valuation Documents — even though that information directly contradicts his expert report. For example, Nye erroneously concludes in his expert report that the equity-based value of CPH's stake in Sunbeam in December 1999 was worth, at most, _____

CPH's discovery abuses thus not only improperly prevented Morgan Stanley from questioning Nye about that irreconcilable conflict; it also renders Nye's opinion — and the fundamentally erroneous assumptions he bases it on — patently unreliable.

- As Morgan Stanley discussed in its Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, filed March 9, 2005, CPH was actively destroying e-mail and electronic documents at the very same time that it was threatening litigation against Sunbeam.

Perhaps the most striking evidence of CPH's conduct in this regard is that, even though it has been threatening or engaged in litigation about this transaction since at least July 1998 (if not earlier), it has produced only 60 pages of e-mail in this litigation. (See Mar. 8, 2004 Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference at 5.)

Morgan Stanley requests that the Court enter appropriate sanctions against CPH, including striking CPH's damage expert's report and excluding all evidence concerning damages. This sanction is severe, but it is commensurate with the offense. The following table demonstrates the magnitude of the plaintiff's dissembling and legerdemain on damages:

To assist the Court in navigating the extensive record, the following chronology sets forth the events relevant to this motion with citation to the underlying evidence and relevant material.

I. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. CPH Is Demanding A Verdict Of In Compensatory Damages.

CPH argues entitlement to its benefit-of-the-bargain even though CPH had no bargain with Morgan Stanley and even though CPH never received any warranty of certain value from Sunbeam: CPH negotiated to receive (from Sunbeam) a fixed number of shares of unregistered, restricted, and highly volatile stock. (MS 93 (Ex. 4).)

2. Under Florida law, benefit-of-the-bargain damages are measured by taking the value expected under an agreement and subtracting the actual value received. Totale, Inc. v. Smith, 877 So. 2d 813, 815 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004). Here, CPH asserts that, at the time of the Coleman-Sunbeam merger, the total expected value of the 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock that CPH received in the transaction was (See Nye Report ¶ 72.) And CPH asserts that the actual value it received was $0, as a result of Sunbeam's bankruptcy almost three years later.

3. In the event CPH ever could prove liability and entitlement to damages, Morgan Stanley would be entitled to certain offsets, including an offset for the value of the 23 million

Sunbeam warrant that CPH received in its settlement with Sunbeam. (MS 96 (Ex. 5).) CPH maintained through much of this litigation that the Sunbeam warrant were worthless, until revealing last November, for the first time, that it had valued the warrant at, at least,

4. In short, given the astronomical damages figures CPH is suggesting, Morgan Stanley should have been entitled to broad access to all financial documents relating to any valuation of CPH's Sunbeam securities. But CPH withheld such information and misrepresented the existence and contents of such information, thereby severely hampering Morgan Stanley's ability to prepare its defense.

B. CPH Failed To Collect And Preserve Critical Valuation Documents From MAFCO's Finance Department.

5. On March 8, 2005, at a deposition pursuant to this Court's February 24, 2005 Order compelling further discovery regarding CPH's Sunbeam valuation, Morgan Stanley discovered the magnitude of CPH's bad faith in producing documents relevant to its damage claim. Lawrence Winoker, the "custodian" of documents for MAFCO's accounting department, testified that,

6. He was designated as a corporate representative on the issue of the Sunbeam warrant valuation back on November 18, 2004 (Nov. 18, 2004 Winoker Dep. at 11:15-24), where he gave demonstrably false testimony. See infra. He was directly responsible for creating many of the critical financial documents that have been produced in the last couple of weeks. See infra. And many of the key documents produced only in the last few days — as a result of

Morgan Stanley's continued prodding following the Court's Orders of February 17 and 24, 2005 — came directly from Mr. Winoker's files. See infra.

7. What is more, as is further detailed in Morgan Stanley's Motion for Adverse Inference filed March 8, 2005, CPH systematically destroyed its e-mails even as it threatened and commenced litigation against Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen and even after it filed the instant lawsuit. (See Mar. 8, 2005 Morgan Stanley's Mot. for Adverse Inference.) In a document-intensive case such as this, with millions of pages of produced documents, CPH has produced a paltry 60 e-mails, most of which came from sources other than CPH. (Id.)

10. Morgan Stanley made repeated requests for these Valuation Documents, and CPH, asserting no specific objections, repeatedly claimed that its production was complete. (See, e.g., Jan. 29, 2004 Brody Letter to DeBord (Ex. 13); see generally Feb. 15, 2005 Morgan Stanley's Mot. to Compel; Feb. 22, 2005 Morgan Stanley's Mot. for Sanctions.) In late-February 2005, after the close of discovery, CPH finally produced Mr. Slotkin's documents — but only after the Court issued two orders compelling production and an order imposing sanctions. (See Feb. 17, 2005 Order on MS & Co.'s Mot. to Compel Prod. of Docs.; Feb. 24, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Mot. for Add. Disc. re MAFCO's Internal Valuation of Sunbeam Stock and Mot. for Sanctions and Additional Disc. Re Plf.'s Improper Concealment of the Value of the Sunbeam Warrant.)

² By the date of the fair value estimate, CPH had settled its claims against Sunbeam, entered into a consulting and management agreement with MAFCO, put in MAFCO insiders as the key officers, and had two seats on Sunbeam's board. (See MS 96 at section 3, providing that CPH will provide management services to Sunbeam.)

E. CPH Provided False Testimony At Its Rule 1.310(b)(6) Deposition Regarding The Sunbeam Warrant Valuation.

14. Mr. Winoker's testimony as a corporate representative back in November 2004 has been shown to be demonstrably false and misleading. Back then, in response to no less than a dozen questions about CPH's valuation of the Sunbeam warrant at the time of the settlement, Mr. Winoker testified repeatedly that

15. In truth, CPH's parent used a [REDACTED] for the Sunbeam warrant, as revealed during a production in response to the Court's February 17, 2005 Order. This became clear when CPH produced three batches of heavily redacted documents. (Feb. 22, 2005 Mot. for Sanctions Exs. 11-13.) While redacting these documents, CPH initially concealed

F. Ronald O. Perelman Testified Falsely In His November 18, 2004 Deposition.

A. Yes.

Q. What did you value the warrant at?

And CPH wanted to prevent Morgan Stanley from adequately cross-examining Dr. Nye with CPH's internal valuations.

I. CPH Misrepresented The Existence Of Tax Valuations For The Sunbeam Stock.

24. On March 2, 2005, following inquiries by Morgan Stanley's counsel, CPH's counsel stated, "We have confirmed that CPH did not create valuations of the Sunbeam stock for tax purposes." (Mar. 2, 2005 Brody Letter to Clare (Ex. 17).)

25. Indeed, there were several documents calculating the deferred tax liability relating to the Sunbeam shares. (See, e.g., MS 813 at CPH2012204-05, CPH2012209, CPH2012211-13.)

J. CPH Repeatedly Made False Representations That Its Document Production Was Complete.

26. As set forth in Morgan Stanley's Motion to Compel Production of Documents filed February 15, 2005, and in its Motion for Sanctions filed February 22, 2005, CPH engaged in a misleading pattern of telling Morgan Stanley that it would produce documents without objections, all the while withholding critical documents. And when it appeared that key documents were still missing from CPH's production, CPH again and again represented that everything had been produced, acting "puzzled" by Morgan Stanley's requests.

27. For example, back on January 29, 2004, CPH stated that it was "puzzled" by Morgan Stanley's claim that CPH had failed to produce documents responsive to requests related to the Sunbeam warrant and stated that it will "continue to search for responsive documents, and will produce any additional, non-privileged documents that we locate." (Jan. 29, 2004 Brody Letter to DeBord.) As set forth above, CPH's representations that they would locate and produce documents were empty promises.

28. On February 28, 2005, CPH's counsel represented that "CPH is not aware that any of its discovery responses were not complete when made." (Feb. 28, 2005 First Brody Letter to Bemis (Ex. 18).) And CPH's counsel also incorrectly stated that "CPH does not have any additional responsive documents concerning the $450 million" figure. (Feb. 28, 2005 Second Brody Letter to Bemis (Ex. 19).) As recently as March 8, 2005, CPH has continued to produce new documents regarding this valuation.

29. In the first letter posted on February 28, 2005, CPH's counsel added that CPH did not review the estimated fair value calculations "until February 17, 2005, after the Court granted Morgan Stanley's motion to compel." (Feb. 28, 2005 First Brody Letter to Bemis.) That representation turned out to be false in light of Mr. Slotkin's testimony that

30. At the March 1, 2005 hearing, Mr. Solovy stated, with regard to MAFCO's estimated fair value calculations, "I can assure the Court there are no other documents, we produced everything we got." (Mar. 1, 2005 Hr'g at 1798:21-23.) Since that hearing, CPH has produced an additional 72 pages of documents, many of which deal directly with MAFCO's fair value calculations, including transmittals to the government.

31.

K. The Withheld Valuation Documents Show That CPH Was Attempting To Inflate Its Damages By Hundreds Of Millions Of Dollars.

32. The previously-undisclosed documents show that CPH has been inflating its "expected" value by over $60 million dollars.

33. The previously-undisclosed documents show that CPH has been inflating its actual value received by as much as

34. The previously-undisclosed documents show that CPH attempted to conceal approximately

35. A half a billion dollars is a meaningful amount, particularly when CPH is also requesting punitive damages and interest.

II. ARGUMENT

A. This Manifest Pattern Of Discovery Abuse Warrants Sanctions Under Rule 1.380.

The remedy of sanctions — including the sanctions sought here — should be commensurate with the offense sought to be remedied. See, e.g., Kelley v. Schmidt, 613 So. 2d 918, 920 (Fla. 5th DCA 1993). Some forms of extraordinary relief, however, are generally appropriate only if the moving party has suffered prejudice. See, e.g., Ham v. Dunmire, 891 So. 2d 492, 496 (Fla. 2004). Morgan Stanley respectfully submits that the Court has full discretion to enter whatever remedy it deems appropriate to rectify the abuses outlined above.

B. Morgan Stanley Has Suffered Prejudice That Cannot Be Cured At This Late Stage In The Litigation.

Indeed, there is no serious question that Morgan Stanley has suffered prejudice on account of CPH's withholding and secreting of relevant evidence. To begin with, as this Court has already recognized, extensive and costly fact and expert discovery has been taken and cannot be redone. If Morgan Stanley had had the Valuation Documents at the outset of deposition discovery, at least the following witnesses would have been questioned about the documents:

Ajzenman, Lenny
Bilodennn, Janet
Connolly, Breda
Dickes, Glen
Engelman, Irwin
Fasman, Steven
Gintsling, Norman
Gittis, Howard
Kessler, Gery
Maher, Jerry
Nye, Blaine
Perelman, Ronald Schwartz, Barry
Wilson, Mark

The evidence at issue here goes to the heart of CPH's case on both liability — because a plaintiff's harm is an essential element of any fraud-based claim — and damages. Consequently, the withholding of relevant evidence and the destruction of critical e-mails that are contemporaneous with the facts in dispute severely prejudices Morgan Stanley's ability to present a defense. As this Court has stated: “[T]he only way to test the potentially self-serving testimony [of a party's] personnel is with the written record of events.” (Mar. 1, 2005 Adverse Inference Order at 11.)

Additionally, there is no way at this late stage of the litigation to remedy this prejudice on damages. CPH elected to pursue benefit-of-the-bargain damages but concealed and did not produce documents directly relevant to CPH's benefit-of-the-bargain. CPH also concealed from its damages expert its own contemporaneous fair value estimates of Sunbeam stock, which to whom MAFCO and Mr. Perelman provided those valuations — valuations squarely at odds with the sworn testimony of CPH's own witnesses, including Mr. Perelman.

Accordingly, there is no question this Court has the authority pursuant to rule 1.380 to impose whatever sanction it deems appropriate. The pattern of abuse demonstrates intentional misconduct on the part of CPH and the incurable prejudice to Morgan Stanley — which in eleven days must defend a claim that seeks $2.7 billion. Simply put, thanks entirely to CPH's false testimony and intentional non-production of relevant evidence, Morgan Stanley has never had a chance to prepare a fair defense or hone a trial strategy that suits the evidence now at issue. This prejudice cannot be cured by a few depositions in the jury room before trial.

C. The Most Appropriate Sanction Includes Striking Expert Testimony And Excluding All Evidence on Damages.

Morgan Stanley requests that the Court sanction CPH for its pattern of discovery abuse by striking all testimony of expert witness Blaine Nye and excluding all other evidence related to damages. These sanctions are appropriate because it is simply impossible — on account of CPH's misconduct — to proceed with fairness and due process on the fundamental issue of damages. Indeed, the non-disclosures outlined above are unquestionably relevant and flatly contradict the allegations upon which CPH has (for the entirety of this litigation) based its theory of damages. In the face of such late-breaking disclosure of critical evidence, it would be fundamentally unfair to present this issue to a jury.

Exclusion of an expert witness as a sanction for discovery abuses is proper — and perhaps even required — under Florida law. The facts here are similar to Dolan v. Springlite Bottled Water Corp., 656 So. 2d 211, 212 (Fla. 3d DCA 1995), which held that it is proper to exclude an “expert witness where the expert repeatedly failed to comply with the court’s discovery orders requiring him to provide materials and information supporting his opinions.” If anything, the case for exclusion is even greater here, because CPH did not simply fail to provide evidence that supported Nye’s opinion; instead, CPH deliberately concealed information from its own expert — evidence that flatly contradicts Nye’s opinion and analysis and points to a damages figure that is hundreds of millions of dollars less than what CPH intends to seek at trial in eleven days. See also Acquisition Corp. of Am. v. American Cast Iron Pipe Co., 543 So. 2d 878, 881 (Fla. 4th DCA 1989) (proper to exclude expert witness due to violation of pretrial order, especially considering that expert did not become aware of key facts until the day before trial); Capital Bank v. G & J Inv., 468 So. 2d 534, 535 (Fla. 3d DCA 1985) (holding trial court abused its discretion in refusing to exclude expert witness when party “was unprepared to cross examine the witness” due to opposing party’s violation of the pretrial order).

The prejudice Morgan Stanley has suffered can be cured — if at all — only by excluding Nye’s testimony. Additional discovery or depositions, while perhaps appropriate, would only reward CPH for its discovery abuses. Morgan Stanley has been asking for this information since July 2003, and since that time Morgan Stanley has conducted numerous depositions (including those of Perelman, Slotkin, Gittis, Nye, and others) in which this information was crucial. Trial is scheduled to begin in days. Simply ordering CPH to tender its employees and other witnesses for re-deposition would unfairly penalize Morgan Stanley as it prepares for trial, and would not cure the deliberate fraud CPH has perpetrated. See Department of Health & Rehabilitative Servs. v. J.B. ex rel. Spivak, 675 So. 2d 241, 243-44 (Fla. 4th DCA 1996) (holding “the trial court abused its discretion in permitting testimony” from expert on newly-formed opinions; opportunity to re-depose expert did not cure prejudice to defendant).

Equally troubling, as detailed above and in Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction which was filed on March 8, CPH systematically destroyed e-mails and other electronic documents concerning the Sunbeam acquisition at the very same time it was threatening litigation against Sunbeam and its advisors. As a result, simply ordering CPH to produce the documents it has intentionally withheld would be futile. And, in any event, such an order is really no sanction at all, because CPH is still under an obligation to produce the documents that it did not destroy.

At bottom, the only way to "level the playing field" after CPH's intentional concealment of documents that go to the heart of Nye's opinion — and CPH's damages theory — is to preclude Nye from testifying. If CPH has its way, Nye is going to take the stand and offer damage theories that are factually unsupported and appear now to be hopelessly undermined by evidence that CPH has consciously withheld for almost two years. And because Morgan Stanley has not had (and now can never have) the opportunity fully to expose the deficiencies in Nye's damage opinion, allowing his testimony to go forward at this point would infect this case with such taint that no other form of sanction could possibly cure it.

Accordingly, the Court should strike all testimony from Mr. Nye and strongly consider, additionally, whether CPH should be permitted to present a damage case at all. There is simply no basis on which to present reliable and discovery-tested evidence to a jury beginning next week. And any damages award based on such evidence would be fundamentally unfair to Morgan Stanley, which from the beginning of this litigation has been precluded from preparing a meaningful defense on this fundamental issue.

D. As an Alternative Sanction This Court Should Read An Adverse Inference or Order Other Appropriate Relief.

This Court recognized in its Adverse Inference Order against Morgan Stanley that it has ample discretion to fashion a remedy that cures alleged discovery abuses. (See Mar. 1, 2005 Adverse Inference Order.) Morgan Stanley respectfully submits the following remedies as appropriate on the record now before the Court.

1. This Court Should Read An Adverse Inference Against CPH Or Return The Burden Of Proof To CPH.

At the very least, this Court should level the playing field by reading to the jury an adverse inference instruction on damages. Morgan Stanley will promptly submit a proposed adverse inference instruction if the Court so advises. Additionally, there is no sound basis for permitting CPH to retain an adverse inference instruction on liability, without leveling the field to account for CPH's own misconduct in this matter.

2. This Court Should Allow Morgan Stanley to File an Amended Expert Report on Behalf of Professor Grinblatt.

Because the Valuation Documents are at the core of CPH's damage claims, Morgan Stanley should be allowed to file an amended expert report. This is the most minimal relief the Court could order here.

3. This Court Should Require A Certificate of Full Compliance By CPH

This Court should admonish CPH that is obliged to comply immediately and fully with this Court's discovery orders. In addition, CPH should be required to certify full compliance with those orders, stating that all documents related to valuation of Sunbeam stock and warrant — by CPH or MAFCO or any other related entity, and any agent or representative of CPH, MAFCO or any other related entity — have been produced. Such an order will ensure additional sanctions in the event that more midnight disclosures are made on the eve or during the trial on the merits.

WHEREFORE, CPH has willfully engaged in a pattern of discovery abuse that has prejudiced

Morgan Stanley's ability to defend meaningfully this lawsuit. Morgan Stanley respectfully requests the following relief:

1. The Court should strike Mr. Nye's report and exclude evidence concerning CPH's damage claims;
2. The Court should return the burden of proof to CPH;
3. Morgan Stanley should be allowed to file an Amended Expert Report;
4. The Court should read a statement to the jury setting forth all relevant facts concerning CPH's course of conduct regarding the production of documents concerning damage issues;
5. The Court should order CPH to produce forthwith all documents relating to damage issues, including but not limited to, documents concerning the valuation of Sunbeam stock and warrant provided to any third party, financial institution, or governmental agency;
6. The Court should order CPH to provide a certificate of full compliance that it has produced all documents relating to damages; and all documents relating to CPH's, MAFCO's or any related entity's valuation of Sunbeam stock, warrant or other value received in connection with CPH's sale of Coleman stock to Sunbeam; and
7. The Court should order all other relief deemed necessary and appropriate in light of CPH's course of conduct regarding discovery.

AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER

AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER (this "Agreement"), dated as of February 27, 1998, among Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation ("Laser"), Laser Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Laser ("Laser Merger Sub"), Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Parent Holdings"), and CLN Holdings Inc. ("Holdings"), a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings.

WHEREAS, the Boards of Directors of Laser, Laser Merger Sub, Parent Holdings and Holdings deem it advisable and in the best interests of their respective stockholders that Laser Merger Sub merge with and into Holdings (the "Holdings Merger"), and such Boards of Directors have approved the Holdings Merger upon the terms and conditions set forth herein;

WHEREAS, Parent Holdings, as the sole stockholder of Holdings, and Laser, as the sole stockholder of Laser Merger Sub, have approved this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby;

WHEREAS, at the Closing (as hereinafter defined), Laser and Parent Holdings shall enter into a registration rights agreement (the "Registration Rights Agreement") relating to the registration of the Laser Shares (as hereinafter defined) issuable to Parent Holdings in the Holdings Merger, in the form of Exhibit A hereto;

WHEREAS, for United States federal income tax purposes, it is intended that the Holdings Merger provided for herein shall qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), and that this Agreement shall constitute a plan of reorganization; and

WHEREAS, Laser, Laser Merger Sub and Holdings desire to make certain representations, warranties, covenants and agreements in connection with the Holdings Merger and also to prescribe certain conditions to the Holdings Merger.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the foregoing and the respective representations, warranties, covenants and agreements set forth herein, the parties hereto agree as follows:

ARTICLE I

DEFINITIONS AND TERMS

Section 1.1. Certain Definitions. As used in this Agreement, the following terms shall have the meanings set forth or as referenced below:

"1998 Notes" shall have the meaning set forth in Section 4.4(a) hereof.

"Affiliate" shall mean, as to any Person (as hereinafter defined), any other Person which, directly or indirectly, is in control of, is controlled by, or is under common control with, such Person. The term "control" (including, with correlative meanings, the terms "controlled by" and "under common control with"), as applied to any Person, means the possession, direct or indirect, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of such Person, whether through the ownership of voting securities or other ownership interest, by contract or otherwise.

"Affiliate Agreements" shall have the meaning set forth in Section 4.10 hereof.

"Agreement" shall mean this Agreement, as the same may be amended or supplemented from time to time in accordance with the terms hereof.

"Worldwide Shares" shall have the meaning set forth in Section 4.2(b).

Section 1.2. Other Terms. Other terms may be defined elsewhere in the text of this Agreement and, unless otherwise indicated, shall have such meaning throughout this Agreement.

ARTICLE II

THE HOLDINGS MERGER

Section 2.1. The Holdings Merger. Upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth herein, and in accordance with the DGCL, at the Holdings Effective Time (as defined in Section 2.3 hereof), Laser Merger Sub shall be merged with and into Holdings. Following the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings shall continue as the surviving corporation (the "Surviving Corporation"), and the separate corporate existence of Laser Merger Sub shall cease. The Holdings Merger shall have the effects set forth in Section 259 of the DGCL.

Section 2.2. Closing. The closing of the Holdings Merger (the "Closing") will take place at 10:00 a.m. on a date to be specified by the parties (the "Closing Date"), which (subject to satisfaction or waiver of the conditions set forth in Article VIII) shall be no later than the third NYSE trading day after satisfaction or waiver of the conditions set forth in Section 8.1, at the offices of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP, 919 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022, unless another time, date or place is agreed to in writing by the parties hereto.

Section 2.3. Effective Time of the Holdings Merger. The Holdings Merger shall become effective on the date and at the time at which a properly executed certificate of merger (the "Certificate of Merger") is duly filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware. The Certificate of Merger shall be filed as soon as practicable on or after the Closing Date. When used in this Agreement, the term "Holdings Effective Time" shall mean the date and time on which the Certificate of Merger is so filed.

Section 2.4. Certificate of Incorporation. From and after the Holdings Effective Time, the certificate of incorporation of Holdings as in effect at the Holdings Effective Time (the "Certificate of Incorporation") shall be the certificate of incorporation of the Surviving Corporation until amended as provided by the DGCL and the Certificate of Incorporation.

Section 2.5. By-Laws. From and after the Holdings Effective Time, the by-laws of Laser Merger Sub as in effect at the Holdings Effective Time shall be the by-laws of the Surviving Corporation until amended as provided by the DGCL, the Certificate of Incorporation of the Surviving Corporation and the terms thereof.

Section 2.6. Directors. The directors of Laser Merger Sub at the Holdings Effective Time shall be the initial directors of the Surviving Corporation and shall hold office from the Holdings Effective Time until their respective successors are duly elected or appointed and qualify in the manner provided in the Certificate of Incorporation and by-laws of the Surviving Corporation or as otherwise provided by Law.

Section 2.7. Officers. The officers of Laser Merger Sub at the Holdings Effective Time shall be the initial officers of the Surviving Corporation and shall hold office from the Holdings Effective Time until their respective successors are duly elected or appointed and qualify in the manner provided in the Certificate of Incorporation and by-laws of the Surviving Corporation, or as otherwise provided by Law.

Section 2.8. Holdings Merger Election. Notwithstanding the foregoing, at any time prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings may elect, in its sole discretion, upon notice to Laser, to effectuate the Holdings Merger such that Holdings will be merged with and into Laser Merger Sub, with Laser Merger Sub as the "Surviving Corporation" for all purposes hereunder. In such event, the parties hereto shall execute an appropriate amendment to this Agreement to reflect the foregoing.

ARTICLE III

CONVERSION OF SHARES

Section 3.1. Effect on Capital Stock. At the Holdings Effective Time, by virtue of the Holdings Merger and without any action on the part of any holder thereof:

(a) Conversion of Holdings Common Stock.

(i) The Holdings Shares shall be converted into the right to receive an aggregate of (A) 14,099,749 fully paid and nonassessable shares of Laser Common Stock (the "Laser Shares") and (B) $159,956,756 in cash, without interest thereon (the "Cash Payment") and, together with the Laser Shares, the "Merger Consideration").

(ii) If, prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Laser shall (A) pay a dividend in, subdivide, combine into a smaller number of shares or issue by reclassification of its shares, any shares of Laser Common Stock, the number of Laser Shares to be issued pursuant to Section 3.1(a)(i) hereof shall be adjusted appropriately or (B) pay an extraordinary dividend (other than regular quarterly dividend payments, consistent with past practice), whether in cash or property, the amount of the Cash Payment shall be adjusted appropriately, such that the aggregate amount of cash, or if a dividend shall have been paid in other property, cash and other property, shall be equal to that which would have been received had the dividend been paid following the Holdings Effective Time at a time when the Laser Shares were already issued to and the Cash Payment made to Parent Holdings.

(iii) The shares of Holdings Common Stock converted in accordance with paragraph (i) of this Section 3.1(a) shall no longer be outstanding and shall automatically be cancelled and retired and shall cease to exist, and Parent Holdings, as the holder thereof, shall cease to have any rights with respect thereto, except the right to receive the Merger Consideration.

(b) Conversion of Laser Merger Sub Common Stock. Each share of Laser Merger Sub Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the Holdings Effective Time shall be converted into and become one fully paid and nonassessable share of common stock, par value $1.00 per share, of the Surviving Corporation.

(i) Exchange of Certificates. At the Closing, Parent Holdings shall surrender certificates representing the Holdings Shares, and Laser shall deliver or cause to be delivered to Parent Holdings a duly executed stock certificate or stock certificates representing the Laser Shares; and the Cash Payment, in immediately available funds by wire transfer to an account specified in writing by Parent Holdings at least one day prior to the Closing Date. In connection with the delivery by Laser of the Laser Shares, Laser shall utilize all shares of Laser Common Stock held by Laser as treasury shares before issuing any authorized but unissued shares of Laser Common Stock.

ARTICLE IV

REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES OF HOLDINGS AND PARENT HOLDINGS

Holdings and Parent Holdings hereby represent and warrant to Laser as follows:

Section 4.1. Organization and Qualification.

(a) Each of Holdings and Worldwide is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of the State of Delaware and has the corporate power to carry on its business as it is now being conducted.

Section 4.2. Capitalization.

(a) The authorized capital stock of Holdings consists of 1,000 shares of Holdings Common Stock (the "Holdings Shares"), all of which are issued and outstanding and beneficially owned by Parent Holdings. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Holdings Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. Except as set forth above, there are no other shares of capital stock of Holdings issued or outstanding nor any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Holdings to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

(b) The authorized capital stock of Worldwide consists of 1,000 shares of Worldwide Common Stock (the "Worldwide Shares"), all of which are issued and outstanding and beneficially owned by Holdings, free and clear of all Liens, other than the pledge in connection with the Notes. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Worldwide Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. Except as set forth above, there are no other shares of capital stock of Worldwide issued or outstanding nor any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Worldwide to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

Section 4.3. Authority Relative to this Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement. Each of Holdings and Parent Holdings has the requisite corporate power and authority to execute and deliver this Agreement and, if a party thereto, the Registration Rights Agreement, to perform its obligations hereunder and, if a party thereto, thereunder and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby and, if a party thereto, thereby. The execution, delivery and performance of this Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement, and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby, have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action on the part of Holdings and Parent Holdings, and no other corporate action on the part of Holdings or Parent Holdings (including on the part of their respective stockholders) is required to authorize the execution, delivery and performance hereof and thereof and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby. This Agreement has been duly executed and delivered by each of Parent Holdings and Holdings and, assuming that it constitutes a valid and binding agreement of Laser and Laser Sub, constitutes the valid and binding obligation of Parent Holdings and Holdings enforceable against Parent Holdings and Holdings in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or other laws now or hereafter in effect relating to or limiting creditors' rights generally and the remedy of specific performance and injunctive and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and to the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought. Prior to the Holdings Effective Time, the Registration Rights Agreement will have been duly executed and delivered by Parent Holdings and, assuming that it constitutes the valid and binding agreement of Laser, will constitute the valid and binding obligation of Parent Holdings enforceable against Parent Holdings in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or other laws now or hereafter in effect relating to or limiting creditors' rights generally and the remedy of specific performance and injunctive and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and to the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought.

Section 4.4. No Business Activities of Holdings and Worldwide.

(a) Since its formation, Holdings has engaged in no business activities or operations, other than in connection with holding the Worldwide Shares and the stock of its predecessor corporation and in connection with the Senior Secured Discount Notes due 1998 of Holdings and the Series B Senior Secured Discount Notes due 1998 of Holdings (collectively, the "1998 Notes") and the Notes. Holdings has no material assets other than Worldwide Common Stock, and has no liabilities other than under the Notes and other de minimis liabilities. Worldwide is the beneficial owner of 44,067,520 shares of Company Common Stock, free and clear of all Liens, other than the pledge pursuant to the LYONs and the Notes.

(b) Since its formation, Worldwide has engaged in no business activities or operations, other than in connection with holding shares of Company Common Stock and in connection with the 1998 Notes, the Notes and the LYONs. Worldwide has no material assets other than the Company Common Stock (other than, as of the date hereof, the Mafo Demand Note and the LYONs Escrow Fund), and has no liabilities other than under the LYONs, the Notes and other de minimis liabilities.

Section 4.5. Consents and Approvals; No Violations. Except for applicable requirements of the HSR Act, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, Competition Laws and state securities or blue sky Laws, no filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any Governmental Entity is necessary for the consummation by Parent Holdings or Holdings of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, except for such filings, permits, authorizations, consents or approvals the failure of which to be made or obtained would not individually or in the aggregate (i) have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Except as set forth on Section 4.5 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule, neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Parent Holdings or Holdings, nor the consummation by Parent Holdings or Holdings of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Parent Holdings or Holdings with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Parent Holdings, Holdings or Worldwide; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any Contract or of any license, franchise, permit, concession, certificate of authority, order, approval, application or registration of, from or with any Governmental Entity to which Parent Holdings, Holdings or Worldwide is a party or by which any of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Holdings, Parent Holdings or Worldwide or any of their properties or assets, except in the case of clauses (b) and (c) for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.6. No Litigation. As of the date hereof, there is no suit, action, proceeding or investigation pending against or affecting Holdings or Worldwide.

Section 4.7. SEC Reports.

(a) Holdings has filed all reports, forms, registrations, schedules, statements and other documents required to be filed by it with the SEC since January 1, 1997 (the "Holdings SEC Reports"). As of their respective dates, the Holdings SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Except to the extent that information contained in any Filed Holdings SEC Report has been revised, amended or superseded by a later Filed Holdings SEC Report, none of the Filed Holdings SEC Reports, when filed, contained any untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, except that no representation or warranty is made herein with respect to any information relating to the Company and its subsidiaries. For purposes of this Agreement, the Holdings SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement (as revised, amended or superseded by the Holdings SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement) are hereinafter referred to as the "Filed Holdings SEC Reports."

(b) Worldwide has filed all reports, forms, registrations, schedules, statements and other documents required to be filed by it with the SEC since January 1, 1997 (the "Worldwide SEC Reports"). As of their respective dates, the Worldwide SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Except to the extent that information contained in any Filed Worldwide SEC Report has been revised, amended or superseded by a later Filed Worldwide SEC Report, none of the Filed Worldwide SEC Reports, when filed, contained any untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, except that no representation or warranty is made herein with respect to any information relating to the Company and its subsidiaries. For purposes of this Agreement, the Worldwide SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement (as amended, revised or superseded by the Worldwide SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement) are hereinafter referred to as the "Filed Worldwide SEC Reports."

Section 4.8. Acquisition of Shares for Investment. Parent Holdings is not acquiring the Laser Shares with any present intention of distributing or selling any of such Laser Shares in violation of federal or state securities laws.

Section 4.9. Taxes.

(a) Except as would not have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or as set forth on Section 4.9 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule:

(i) Each of Holdings and Worldwide (A) has filed (or there has been filed on its behalf) with the appropriate Governmental Entities all Tax Returns required to be filed by it, and all such Tax Returns are true, correct and complete and (B) has paid all Taxes due by it;

(ii) There are no outstanding waivers in writing or comparable consents regarding the application of any statute of limitations in respect of Taxes of Holdings or Worldwide;

(iii) There is no action, suit, investigation, audit, claim or assessment pending or proposed in writing or threatened in writing with respect to Taxes of Holdings or Worldwide and to the best of Holdings' knowledge, no basis exists therefor;

(iv) There are no Liens for Taxes upon the assets of Holdings or Worldwide except Liens relating to current Taxes not yet due;

(v) All Taxes which Holdings or Worldwide are required by law to withhold or to collect for payment have been duly withheld and collected, and have been paid or accrued, reserved against and entered on the books of Holdings in accordance with GAAP; and

(vi) No power of attorney which is currently in force has been granted by or with respect to Holdings or Worldwide with respect to any matter relating to Taxes.

(b) Except as would not have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect, Holdings and its subsidiaries have previously delivered or made available to Laser (and its representatives) complete and accurate copies of:

(i) all audit reports, letter rulings, technical advice memoranda relating to United States federal, state, local and foreign Taxes due from or with respect to Holdings or its subsidiaries;

(ii) United States federal Tax Returns (to the extent that such Tax Returns relate to Holdings and its subsidiaries), and those state, local or foreign Tax Returns filed by (or on behalf of) Holdings or any of its subsidiaries (to the extent that such Tax Returns relate to Holdings and its subsidiaries) (including, in each case, workpapers related to such Tax Returns);

(iii) any closing agreements entered into by Holdings or any of its subsidiaries with any taxing authority, in each case existing on the date hereof; and

(iv) any Tax Sharing Arrangements and Tax indemnity arrangements to which Holdings or any of its subsidiaries was a party at any time prior to the Closing Date. Holdings and its subsidiaries will deliver or make available to Laser (and its representatives) all similar materials for all matters arising after the date hereof.

Section 4.10. Affiliate Agreements. Section 4.10 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule sets forth a true and complete list of all agreements, Contracts, arrangements, payables, obligations and understandings between Holdings or any of its subsidiaries, on the one hand, and Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates (other than Holdings or its subsidiaries), on the other hand (the "Affiliate Agreements").

Section 4.11. Brokers. No broker, investment banker or other person, other than Credit Suisse First Boston, the Company's financial advisor, the fees and expenses of which will be paid by the Company (as reflected in an agreement between Credit Suisse First Boston and the Company, a copy of which has been furnished to Laser), is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of the Company or any of its Affiliates.

Section 4.12. LYONs Escrow Fund. The LYONs Escrow Fund is sufficient to fund the redemption, exchange or other retirement in full of the LYONs and related expenses.

ARTICLE V

REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES OF LASER

Laser hereby makes the same representations and warranties to Parent Holdings and Holdings as the representations and warranties made by Laser to the Company in the Company Merger Agreement, and also represents and warrants to Parent Holdings and Holdings as follows:

Section 5.1. Laser Merger Sub. Laser Merger Sub is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the Laws of the State of Delaware. Laser Merger Sub is a newly incorporated company formed solely for purposes of consummating the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and has engaged in no activity other than as provided in, or contemplated by, this Agreement. The authorized capital stock of Laser Merger Sub consists of 1,000 shares of Laser Merger Sub Common Stock, all of which are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights and are owned by Laser. Except as set forth above there are no shares of capital stock of Laser Merger Sub issued or outstanding or any options, warrants, subscription, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Laser Merger Sub to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

Section 5.2. Authority Relative to this Agreement. Each of Laser and Laser Merger Sub has the corporate power and authority to execute and deliver this Agreement and, if a party thereto, the Registration Rights Agreement, to perform its obligations hereunder and, if a party thereto, thereunder and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby and, if a party thereto, thereby. The execution, delivery and performance of this Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement, and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby, thereby and by the Company Merger Agreement, have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action on the part of Laser and Laser Merger Sub and no other corporate action on the part of Laser or Laser Merger Sub (including on the part of their respective stockholders) is required to authorize the execution, delivery and performance hereof or thereof and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby. This Agreement has been duly executed and delivered by Laser and Laser Merger Sub and constitutes the valid and binding obligation of Laser and Laser Merger Sub, assuming it is the valid and binding obligation of Parent Holdings and Holdings, enforceable against Laser and Laser Merger Sub in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or similar laws now or hereafter in effect relating to creditors' rights generally and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefore may be brought. Prior to the Holdings Effective Time, the Registration Rights Agreement will have been duly executed and delivered by Laser and, assuming that it constitutes the valid and binding agreement of Parent Holdings, will constitute the valid and binding obligation of Laser enforceable against Laser in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or other laws now or hereafter in effect relating to or limiting creditors' rights generally and the remedy of specific performance and injunctive and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and to the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought.

Section 5.3. Consents and Approvals; No Violations. Except for applicable requirements of the HSR Act, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, Competition Laws and state securities or blue sky Laws, no filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any governmental or regulatory authority is necessary for the consummation by Laser and Laser Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, except for such filings, permits, authorizations, consents or approvals the failure of which to be made or obtained would not (i) individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Laser and Laser Merger Sub nor the consummation by Laser and Laser Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Laser and Laser Merger Sub with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Laser or Laser Merger Sub; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any Contract or of any license, franchise, permit, concession, certificate of authority, order, approval, application or registration of, from or with any Governmental Entity to which Laser or Laser Merger Sub is a party or by which either of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Laser, Laser Merger Sub or any of their properties or assets, except, in the case of clauses (b) and (c), for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

Section 5.4. Acquisition of Shares for Investment. Laser is acquiring the Holdings Shares for its own account for investment purposes only and not with a view toward or for a sale in connection with any distribution thereof, or with any present intention of distributing or selling any of such in violation of federal or state securities laws.

ARTICLE VI

COVENANTS

Section 6.1. Conduct of Business. Except as expressly permitted by this Agreement or with the prior written consent of Laser, during the period from the date of this Agreement to the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings shall and shall cause Worldwide to conduct its business only in the ordinary course consistent with past practice, except that Holdings and Worldwide shall be permitted (but not required) to (i) effect the merger of Worldwide with

Holdings, and (ii) take all action necessary in connection with the redemption or exchange of the LYONs and payment of any amounts thereunder and distribution to Parent Holdings from the LYONs Escrow Fund of any excess thereof. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, and except as otherwise expressly permitted by this Agreement, during the period from the date of this Agreement through the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings shall not and shall cause Worldwide not to, without the prior written consent of Laser:

- (a) declare, set aside or pay any dividend or other distribution (whether in cash, securities or property or any combination thereof) in respect of any class or series of its capital stock, other than in respect of the LYONs Escrow Fund or the Mafco Demand Note;
- (b) settle or compromise any Tax liability or agree to any adjustment of any Tax attribute or make any election with respect to its Taxes other than in the ordinary course of business;
- (c) amend its certificate of incorporation or by-laws;
- (d) acquire by merging or consolidating with, or by purchasing a substantial portion of the assets or securities of, or by any other manner, any corporation, partnership or other entity;
- (e) create, incur, assume or guarantee any Indebtedness;
- (f) except as otherwise required by Law or GAAP, change any of the accounting or Tax principles, practices or methods used by Holdings or Worldwide or fail to maintain the accounts, books and records of Holdings or Worldwide in the usual, regular and ordinary manner on a basis consistently applied;
- (g) make any payments, loans, advances or other distributions to, or enter into any transaction, agreement or arrangement with, any of its Affiliates, officers, directors, or stockholders or it or its Affiliates or any associates or family members of any of the foregoing, or make any changes in or modify any of the Affiliate Agreements, other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as required by the Affiliate Agreements, other than in respect of the LYONs Escrow Fund or the Mafco Demand Note;
- (h) adjust, split, combine, subdivide or reclassify any shares of its capital stock;
- (i) issue, sell, deliver, transfer, repurchase, redeem, acquire or pledge or authorize or propose the issuance, sale, delivery, transfer, repurchase, redemption, acquisition or pledge of shares of capital stock of any class or series, or any securities (other than the LYONs) convertible into capital stock of any class or series, or grant or enter into any rights, warrants, options, agreements or commitments with respect to the issuance of such capital stock or convertible securities;

(j) take any action that would make any representation or warranty of Parent Holdings or Holdings contained in this Agreement untrue or incorrect in any material respect and which could reasonably be expected to prevent the satisfaction of any condition to closing set forth in Article VIII hereof or otherwise prevent or materially delay the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement; or

(k) enter into any agreement or commitment to take any of the foregoing actions.

Section 6.2. Reasonable Best Efforts.

(a) Upon the terms and subject to the conditions of this Agreement, each of the parties hereto agrees to, and Holdings agrees to cause Worldwide and the Company and its subsidiaries to use reasonable best efforts to take, or cause to be taken, all actions, and to do, or cause to be done, all things necessary, proper or advisable under applicable Laws to consummate and make effective the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement, as applicable, as promptly as practicable (including satisfaction, but not waiver, of the conditions set forth in Article VIII hereof and Article VIII of the Company Merger Agreement).

(b) Laser shall perform all of its obligations under the Company Merger Agreement in accordance with their terms.

Section 6.3. Consents.

(a) Without limiting the generality of Section 6.2(a) hereof, each of the parties hereto shall, and Holdings shall and shall cause Worldwide and the Company and its subsidiaries to, use reasonable best efforts to obtain all Consents of all Governmental Entities and, to the extent that the failure to obtain such Consents would have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or a Laser Material Adverse Effect, as applicable, all third parties necessary in connection with the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement prior to the Holdings Effective Time. Notwithstanding the foregoing, none of the parties hereto nor Worldwide nor the Company or any of its subsidiaries shall have any obligation to pay any fee to any third party (other than filing or similar fees payable to Governmental Entities) for the purpose of obtaining any Consent or any costs and expenses of any third party resulting from the process of obtaining such Consents. Each of the parties hereto shall make or cause to be made all filings and submissions under laws and regulations applicable to it as may be required for the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement.

(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to require any party hereto to enter into any agreement with any Governmental Entity which requires, or to consent to any order, decree or judgment which requires, such party to hold, separate or divest, or to restrict the dominion or control of such party or any of its Affiliates over, any of the assets, properties or businesses of such party or its Affiliates in existence on the date hereof.

Section 6.4. HSR Notification. As soon as reasonably practicable, Laser and Parent Holdings shall make, or cause to be made, all filings and submissions under the HSR Act and any other applicable Competition Laws as may be reasonably required to be made in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. Subject to Section 6.7 hereof, Parent Holdings will furnish to Laser and Laser will furnish to Parent Holdings, such information and assistance as the other may reasonably request in connection with the preparation of any such filings or submissions. Subject to Section 6.7 hereof, Parent Holdings will provide Laser, and Laser will provide Parent Holdings, with copies of all correspondence, filings or communications (or memoranda setting forth the substance thereof) between such party or any of its representatives, on the one hand, and any Governmental Entity or authority or members of their respective staffs, on the other hand, with respect to this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. Parent Holdings and Laser shall consult with one another with respect to any such correspondence, filings or communications and shall engage in any discussions with any Governmental Entity on a joint basis.

Section 6.5. LYONs Refund. Promptly following redemption, exchange or other retirement in full of the LYONs, Laser shall cause to be paid to Parent Holdings all amounts remaining in the LYONs Escrow Fund by wire transfer of immediately available funds to an account(s) designated in writing by Parent Holdings. Until the making of such payment, Laser shall cause Holdings and Worldwide to comply with all of their obligations under the Indenture relating to the LYONs, the Indenture and the related Escrow Agreement, shall not take any action to amend such indenture or agreement in any manner adverse to Parent Holdings and shall use reasonable best efforts to take action to cause the redemption or retirement in full of the LYONs as promptly as practicable. Promptly following the Holdings Effective Time, at the request of Parent Holdings, Laser shall cause Holdings and Worldwide to give the escrow agent under such Escrow Agreement irrevocable written notice of the assignment of all right, title and interest in and to any such amounts to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings, on which notice Parent Holdings may rely. Following the redemption or retirement in full of the LYONs, the Mafco Demand Note shall be canceled automatically without the further action of any Person, and shall be of no further force or effect whatsoever, and, until the time of such cancellation, no demand or request for payment of any kind shall be made with respect to the Mafco Demand Note.

Section 6.6. Listing Application. Laser shall prepare and submit to the NYSE a listing application covering the Laser Shares to be issued in connection with the Holdings Merger, and shall use its reasonable best efforts to obtain as promptly as practicable approval for the listing of such Laser Shares, subject to official notice of issuance.

Section 6.7. Access to Information; Confidentiality. Holdings and Laser shall each afford, and Holdings shall cause Worldwide, the Company and each of its subsidiaries to afford, to the other and to the other's financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants consultants and other representatives full access at all reasonable times throughout the period prior to the Holdings Effective Time to all of its books, records, properties, plants and personnel (provided that all such access shall be on reasonable advance notice and shall not disrupt normal business operations) and, during such period, each shall furnish promptly to the other (a) a copy of each report, schedule and other document filed or received by it pursuant to the requirements of federal or state securities laws, and (b) all other information as such other party may reasonably request, provided that no investigation pursuant to this Section 6.7 shall affect any representations or warranties made herein or the conditions to the obligations of the respective parties to consummate the Holdings Merger. Each party and their respective affiliates, representatives and agents shall hold in confidence all nonpublic information in accordance with the terms of the Confidentiality Agreements between Laser and the Company dated February 4, 1998 and February 23, 1998 (the "Confidentiality Agreements").

Section 6.8. Advice of Changes. Upon obtaining knowledge of any such occurrence, Holdings or Laser shall promptly advise the other party orally and in writing of (i) any representation or warranty made by it contained in this Agreement that is qualified as to materiality becoming untrue or inaccurate in any respect or any such representation or warranty that is not so qualified becoming untrue or inaccurate in any material respect, (ii) the failure by it to comply with or satisfy in any material respect any covenant, condition or agreement to be complied with or satisfied by it under this Agreement or (iii) any change or event (x) having, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would have, in the case of Laser, a Laser Material Adverse Effect and, in the case of Holdings, a Holdings Material Adverse Effect, (y) having, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would have, the effect set forth in clause (i) above or (z) which has resulted, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would result, in any of the conditions set forth in Article VIII not being satisfied; provided, however, that no such notification shall affect the representations, warranties, covenants or agreements of the parties or the conditions to the obligations of the parties under this Agreement.

Section 6.9. Affiliate Agreements; Intercompany Accounts. Parent Holdings and Holdings shall cause all intercompany accounts to be settled, and all Affiliate Agreements to be treated, as set forth in Section 4.10 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule.

Section 6.10. Registration Rights Agreement. Immediately prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Parent Holdings and Laser shall execute and deliver the Registration Rights Agreement.

ARTICLE VII

ADDITIONAL AGREEMENTS

Section 7.1. Sales of Laser Shares. Parent Holdings agrees not to, directly or indirectly, sell, transfer, pledge, assign or otherwise dispose of or otherwise transfer (other than, in any such case, in connection with a pledge to secure bona fide indebtedness or other obligations) (collectively, "Transfer"), any Laser Shares received pursuant to the terms hereof as consideration for the Holdings Merger, other than to one of its Affiliates who agrees in writing to be bound by the terms of this Section 7.1, for a period of nine (9) months from and after the Holdings Effective Time, except that Parent Holdings may Transfer (A) from and after the date that is three (3) months following the Holdings Effective Time, twenty-five percent (25%) of the total number of the Laser Shares, and (B) from and after the date that is six (6) months following the Holdings Effective Time, an additional twenty-five percent (25%) of the total number of the Laser Shares (such that a total of fifty percent (50%) of the total number of the Laser Shares shall be Transferable from and after the date that is six (6) months following the Holdings Effective Time).

Section 7.2. Restrictive Legend. Pursuant to Section 7.1 hereof, each certificate representing the Laser Shares received by Parent Holdings shall be stamped or otherwise imprinted with the following legend:

THE SECURITIES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE ARE SUBJECT TO THE RESTRICTIONS ON TRANSFER CONTAINED IN THE AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER DATED AS OF FEBRUARY 27, 1998 AMONG SUNBEAM CORPORATION, LASER ACQUISITION CORP., CLN HOLDINGS INC. AND COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC. AND MAY NOT BE OFFERED, SOLD, TRANSFERRED, PLEDGED, ASSIGNED, OR OTHERWISE DISPOSED OF OR TRANSFERRED (OTHER THAN, IN ANY SUCH CASE, IN CONNECTION WITH A PLEDGE TO SECURE BOVA FIDE INDEBTEDNESS OR OTHER OBLIGATIONS) ("TRANSFERRED") EXCEPT AS PERMITTED BY THE TERMS THEREOF. THE SECURITIES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED (THE "ACT"), OR THE SECURITIES LAWS OF ANY STATE. THE SHARES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE MAY NOT BE TRANSFERRED, AND THE COMPANY WILL NOT REGISTER THE TRANSFER OF SUCH SECURITIES, EXCEPT (A) PURSUANT TO AN EFFECTIVE REGISTRATION STATEMENT UNDER THE ACT, (B) PURSUANT TO RULE 144 UNDER THE ACT, OR (C) UPON RECEIPT BY THE COMPANY OF AN OPINION OF COUNSEL, REASONABLY SATISFACTORY TO THE COMPANY, THAT SUCH TRANSFER IS EXEMPT FROM REGISTRATION UNDER THE ACT.

Upon request of Parent Holdings, Laser shall cause to be issued certificates representing such Laser Shares as to which the restrictions set forth herein are no longer applicable without such legend.

ARTICLE VIII

CONDITIONS TO CONSUMMATION OF THE HOLDINGS MERGER

Section 8.1. Conditions to Each Party's Obligation to Effect the Holdings Merger. The respective obligations of each party to effect the Holdings Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction or waiver, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time of the following conditions:

(a) Any waiting period applicable to the consummation of the Holdings Merger under the HSR Act shall have expired or been terminated.

(b) All of the Laser Shares shall have been previously approved for listing on the NYSE, subject only to official notice of issuance, if required.

(c) No preliminary or permanent injunction or other order by any federal or state court in the United States of competent jurisdiction which prohibits the consummation of this Agreement or the Holdings Merger shall have been issued and remain in effect.

(d) All authorizations, consents, orders, declarations or approvals of, or filings with, or terminations or expirations of waiting periods imposed by, any Governmental Entity, which the failure to obtain, make or occur would have the effect of making this Agreement or the Holdings Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated hereby illegal.

Section 8.2. Conditions to Obligation of Holdings to Effect the Holdings Merger. The obligation of Holdings to effect the Holdings Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction by Laser or waiver by Holdings or Parent Holdings, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time of the following additional conditions:

(a) The representations and warranties of Laser in this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement that are qualified as to materiality shall be true and correct, and the representations and warranties of Laser in this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement that are not so qualified shall be true and correct in all material respects, in each case as of the date hereof, and, except to the extent such representations and warranties refer to a specific date, as of the Closing Date as though made on the Closing Date; provided, however, that this condition shall be deemed satisfied unless the failure or failures of such representations and warranties to be so true and correct (disregarding for this purpose all qualifications in such representations and warranties relating to materiality or knowledge), in the aggregate, would have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

(b) Laser shall have performed in all material respects all obligations required to be performed by it under this Agreement or under the Company Merger Agreement at or prior to the Closing Date.

(c) Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, since the date of the most recent audited financial statements included in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, there shall not have been any event, change or development which individually or in the aggregate has had or reasonably would be expected to have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or would impair the ability of Laser to consummate the transactions contemplated by this Agreement or to satisfy its obligations hereunder.

(d) The Registration Rights Agreement shall have been duly executed and delivered by each of the parties thereto.

Section 8.3. Conditions to Obligation of Laser to Effect the Holdings Merger.
The obligation of Laser to effect the Holdings Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction by Holdings and Parent Holdings or waiver by Laser, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time of the following additional conditions, unless:

(a) The representations and warranties of Holdings and Parent Holdings in this Agreement and the representations of the Company in the Company Merger Agreement that are qualified as to materiality shall be true and correct, and the representations and warranties of Holdings and Parent Holdings in this Agreement and the representations of the Company in the Company Merger Agreement shall be true and correct in all material respects, in each case as of the date hereof, and, except to the extent such representations and warranties refer to a specific date, as of the Closing Date as though made at and as of the Closing Date; provided, however, that this condition shall be deemed satisfied unless the failure or failures of such representations and warranties to be so true and correct (disregarding for this purpose all qualifications in such representations and warranties relating to materiality or knowledge), in the aggregate, would have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or Company Material Adverse Effect (as defined in the Company Merger Agreement), as the case may be.

(b) Parent Holdings and Holdings shall have performed in all material respects all obligations required to be performed by them under this Agreement at or prior to the Closing Date.

(c) The Company shall have performed in all material respects those obligations required to be performed by it under the Company Merger Agreement on or prior to the Closing Date.

(d) Up to six (6) individuals designated by Laser (the "Laser Designees") shall have been duly elected members of the Board of Directors of the Company and all other members of such Board shall have resigned, all effective as of the later of (i) the Closing and (ii) the eleventh (11th) day following the date on which the Section 14(f) Notice (as defined in the Company Merger Agreement) shall have been filed with the SEC and mailed to all stockholders of record of the Company in accordance with the Company Merger Agreement.

ARTICLE IX

TAX MATTERS

Section 9.1. Taxes.

(a) Parent Holdings shall indemnify and hold Laser and Laser's subsidiaries and Affiliates harmless from and against the following:

(i) any liability for Taxes of any member of the "affiliated group" (within the meaning of Section 1504(a) of the Code) (except for the Company and its subsidiaries) of which Mafco Holdings Inc. (or any predecessor or successor) is the common parent that arises under the provisions of Treasury Regulation Section 1.1502-6(a) (or any successor provision) or comparable provisions of foreign, state or local law; and

(ii) except to the extent provided in Section 9.1(b)(iii), any liability for Taxes (other than Taxes that arise under the provisions of Treasury Regulatory Section 1.1502-6(a) (or any successor provision) or comparable provisions of foreign, state or local law) imposed on Holdings or Worldwide or for which Holdings or Worldwide may otherwise be liable for any Pre-Closing Period (including, without limitation, any Taxes resulting from Holdings or Worldwide ceasing to be a member of the "affiliated group" of which Masco Holdings Inc. (or any successor) is the common parent, any income Taxes that arise in the Holdings Merger, and any Taxes imposed on Holdings or Worldwide as a result of any transaction effected between (and including) the date hereof and the Closing Date).

(b) Laser shall indemnify and hold Parent Holdings and its Affiliates harmless from and against the following:

(i) Taxes imposed on Holdings or Worldwide for any Post-Closing Period;

(ii) except to the extent provided in Section 9.1(a)(i), any liability for Taxes of the Company and any of its subsidiaries; and

(iii) any liability for Taxes resulting from transactions or actions taken by Holdings or Worldwide on the Closing Date but after the Holdings Effective Time, except for transactions or actions undertaken in the ordinary course of business.

(c) To the extent permitted by law or administrative practice, (i) the taxable year of Holdings or Worldwide which includes the Closing Date shall be treated as closing on (and including) the Closing Date and (ii) all transactions not in the ordinary course of business occurring after the Holdings Effective Time shall be reported on Laser's consolidated United States federal income Tax Return to the extent permitted by Treasury Regulation Section 1.1502-76(b)(1)(ii)(B) and shall be similarly reported on other Tax Returns of Laser or its Affiliates to the extent permitted by Law. For purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b)(i), where it is necessary to apportion between Parent Holdings and Laser the Tax liability of an entity for a Straddle Period (which is not treated under the immediately preceding sentence as closing on the Closing Date), such liability shall be apportioned between the period deemed to end at the close of the Closing Date and the period deemed to begin at the beginning of the day following the Closing Date on the basis of an interim closing of the books, except that Taxes (such as real property Taxes) imposed on a periodic basis shall be allocated on a daily basis.

(d) For purposes of Sections 9.1(a) and (b), whenever it is necessary to allocate an item of income, gain, deduction, loss or credit to either a taxable year or period that is not part of a Straddle Period and that ends on or before the Closing Date or a taxable year or period that is not part of a Straddle Period and that begins after the Closing Date, such allocation shall be made consistent with the Law.

(e) Any real property transfer or gains Tax, sales Tax, use Tax, stamp Tax, stock transfer Tax, or other similar Tax imposed on Holdings or any of its subsidiaries arising out of or in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement shall be borne by the party primarily obligated for such Tax under applicable Law, and each party shall indemnify the other party for any such Tax for which it is so liable.

(f) (i) Except as set forth in Section 9.1(f)(iii), Laser shall be entitled to any refund of Taxes or the benefit of the utilization of any Tax attribute (including, without limitation, any net operating loss, investment Tax credit, foreign Tax credit, or other credit or deduction) of (x) the Company or any of its subsidiaries and (y) for a Post-Closing Period, Holdings or Worldwide. If Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates or subsidiaries receives any refund of Tax to which Laser is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(i) or utilizes any Tax attribute to which Laser is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(i), Parent Holdings shall promptly notify Laser and shall pay the amount of such refund or the benefit realized from such utilization within five (5) days of the receipt of such refund or the realization of such benefit.

(ii) Except as set forth in Section 9.1(f)(iii), Parent Holdings shall be entitled to any refund of Taxes or the benefit of the utilization of any Tax attribute of Holdings or Worldwide for a Pre-Closing Period. If Laser or any of its Affiliates or subsidiaries receives any refund of Tax to which Parent Holdings is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(ii) or utilizes any Tax attribute to which Parent Holdings is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(ii), Laser shall promptly notify Parent Holdings and shall pay the amount of such refund or the benefit realized from such utilization within five (5) days of the receipt of such refund or the realization of such benefit.

(iii) No payment shall be made in respect of a Tax deduction, Tax credit or other Tax benefit pursuant to this Section 9.1(f) in duplication of payments previously made in respect of the same Tax deduction, Tax credit or other Tax benefit.

(g) Any indemnity payment required under this Article IX as a result of an adjustment shall be paid seven (7) days after a "determination" within the meaning of Section 1313(a) of the Code. Any payment required to be made under this Article IX by one party to the other party that is not made on or before the date specified in this Article IX shall bear interest after such date at the rate specified in Code Section 6621(a)(2) for underpayments.

Section 9.2. Tax Returns. (a) Parent Holdings shall file or cause to be filed when due (i) all Tax Returns that are required to be filed on or before the Closing Date by or with respect to Holdings or any of its subsidiaries and (ii) all consolidated, combined or unitary Tax Returns that are required to be filed by or with respect to Parent Holdings or any entity that will be its Affiliate after the Holdings Merger, on the one hand, and Holdings or any of its subsidiaries, on the other hand, for taxable years or periods that include or precede the Closing Date. Parent Holdings shall remit (or cause to be remitted) any Taxes shown as due on such Tax Returns. In the case of Tax Returns described in clause (ii) above, Laser shall pay Parent Holdings no later than five (5) days prior to the due date (including extensions) of any such Tax Return the Tax in connection with such Tax Return for which Laser is liable pursuant to this Article IX (or Parent Holdings shall pay Laser on such date the excess, if any, of any estimated Tax payments by the Company or any of its subsidiaries, relating to the period covered by such Tax Return, over the Tax in connection with such Tax Return for which Laser is liable pursuant to this Article IX). Parent Holdings and its subsidiaries shall cooperate in the preparation of any Tax Returns for which Parent Holdings has filing responsibility hereunder. Such cooperation shall include, but not be limited to, furnishing in a timely manner return preparation packages in the form and of the quality provided prior to the Holdings Merger. Such packages shall be prepared in good faith in a manner consistent with past practice.

(b) Laser shall file or cause to be filed when due all other Tax Returns that are required to be filed by or with respect to Holdings or any of its subsidiaries. Laser shall remit (or cause to be remitted) any Taxes shown as due on such Tax Returns. Parent Holdings shall pay Laser no later than five (5) days prior to the due date (including extensions) of any such Tax Return the Tax in connection with such Tax Return for which Parent Holdings is liable pursuant to this Article IX.

(c) The party with filing responsibility under this Section 9.2 for a Tax Return shall, 20 days prior to the due date (including extensions) of such Tax Return, present to the other party (the "Indemnifying Party") for the approval (which approval shall not be unreasonably withheld) of the Indemnifying Party the portion, if any, of the Tax Return reflecting solely the items and positions for which the Indemnifying Party is liable pursuant to this Article IX.

(d) From and after the date hereof, Parent Holdings and each of its Affiliates shall not amend any Tax Return with respect to Taxes for which Laser or any of its Affiliates is liable pursuant to this Agreement, without the written consent of Laser, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(e) From and after the date hereof, any payment (including any estimated payment) in respect of Taxes pursuant to a Tax Sharing Arrangement that includes Holdings or any of its subsidiaries shall be reduced by any payment that would be owed by the other party pursuant to a Tax Sharing Arrangement.

Section 9.3. Tax Claims.

(a) In the case of any Tax audit, examination or judicial or administrative proceeding (a "Tax Proceeding") relating to a combined, consolidated or unitary Tax Return that includes Mafco Holdings Inc. (or any predecessor or successor thereto), Laser shall be entitled to control the portion of the Tax Proceeding, if any, relating solely to items for which Laser is liable pursuant to this Agreement, and Parent Holdings shall be entitled to control every other portion of the Tax Proceeding; provided, however, that neither Parent Holdings nor any of its Affiliates shall settle or otherwise dispose of any issue in any such Tax Proceeding that could materially affect the Tax liability hereunder of Laser, without the prior written consent of Laser, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld. Parent Holdings shall be entitled to control the Pre-Closing Period portion of a Tax Proceeding relating to a Straddle Period Tax Return, or a Tax Return for a Pre-Closing Period ending before the Closing Date, of Holdings or Worldwide; provided, however, that neither Parent Holdings nor any of its Affiliates shall settle or otherwise dispose of any issue in any such Tax Proceeding that could materially affect the Tax liability hereunder of Laser, without the prior written consent of Laser, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(b) Parent Holdings or Laser, as the case may be, shall promptly notify the other party in writing of any tax claim that could result in liability of the other party under this Agreement (a "Tax Claim"). With respect to any Tax Claim, the party controlling the Tax Proceeding with respect thereto shall (i) not make any submission to any taxing authority without offering the other party the opportunity to review it, (ii) keep the other party informed as to the progress of such Tax Claim, (iii) provide the other party with any information that it receives in connection with the Tax Proceeding, (iv) permit the other party to participate (at its own expense) in all conferences, meetings or proceedings with any taxing authority in which the indemnified Tax Claim is or may be a subject, and (v) permit the other party to participate (at its own expense) in all court appearances in which the indemnified Tax Claim is or may be a subject. With respect to any Tax Claim, the party not controlling the Tax Proceeding with respect thereto shall not take any action or make any representations in connection with such Tax Claim with respect to issues affecting the other party's indemnity hereunder. With respect to any Tax Claim relating to a Pre-Closing Period for which Laser is or may be liable pursuant to this Agreement, Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates shall either file (or cause to be filed) submissions at Laser's direction or appoint (or cause to be appointed) Laser or its authorized representatives as additional authorized representatives entitled to communicate fully with the Internal Revenue Service or the appropriate state, local or foreign taxing authority with respect to such Tax Claim.

(c) Nothing contained in this Section 9.3 shall be construed as limiting any party's right to indemnification under Section 9.1.

Section 9.4. Assistance and Cooperation. After the Closing Date, each of Parent Holdings and Laser shall (and shall cause their respective Affiliates to):

- (a) timely sign and deliver such certificates or forms as may be necessary or appropriate to establish an exemption from (or otherwise reduce), or file Tax Returns or other reports with respect to, Taxes described in Section 9.1(e) (relating to sales, transfer and similar Taxes);
- (b) assist the other party in preparing any Tax Returns which such other party is responsible for preparing and filing in accordance with Section 9.2;
- (c) cooperate fully in preparing for any audits of, or disputes with taxing authorities regarding, any Tax Returns of Holdings and each of its subsidiaries;
- (d) make available to the other and to any taxing authority as reasonably requested in connection with any Tax Return described in Section 9.4(b) or any proceeding described in Section 9.4(c), all information relating to any Taxes or any Tax Returns of Holdings and each of its subsidiaries, including, without limitation, records, returns, schedules, documents, work papers or other relevant materials;

(e) provide timely notice to the other in writing of any Tax audits or assessments of Holdings and each of its subsidiaries that are pending or proposed in writing for taxable periods for which the other may have a liability under this Article IX; and

(f) furnish the other with copies of all correspondence received from any taxing authority in connection with any Tax audit or information request with respect to any such taxable period.

Section 9.5. Adjustment to Merger Consideration. For all Tax purposes, any payment by Laser or Parent Holdings under this Agreement will be an adjustment to the Merger Consideration.

Section 9.6. Survival of Obligations. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Agreement, and notwithstanding Article X of this Agreement, the obligations of the parties set forth in this Article IX shall be unconditional and absolute and shall remain in effect until 90 days after the expiration of the applicable statute of limitations.

Section 9.7. Reorganization. Laser shall not, and shall not permit any of its subsidiaries or Affiliates to, take any action that could prevent the Holdings Merger from qualifying as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code. Laser and Parent Holdings shall treat, and shall cause their respective Affiliates to treat, the Holdings Merger as a reorganization for all Tax and reporting purposes.

Section 9.8. Tax Sharing Agreements. All rights and obligations of Parent Holdings (and the entities that will be its Affiliates after the Holdings Effective Time) pursuant to any of the Tax Sharing Arrangements or any Tax indemnity arrangements involving Holdings or any of its subsidiaries will terminate on the Closing Date.

Section 9.9. Information. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement or the Company Merger Agreement, neither Laser nor any of its Affiliates nor any other Person shall have any right to receive or obtain any information relating to Taxes of Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates other than information relating solely to Holdings or any of its subsidiaries.

ARTICLE X

INDEMNIFICATION: SURVIVAL

Section 10.1. Parent Holdings' Agreement to Indemnify.

(a) Subject to the terms and conditions of this Article X, from and after the Closing Date, Parent Holdings shall indemnify, defend and hold harmless Laser and its subsidiaries (including after the Closing Date, the Company and its subsidiaries) and each of their respective successors and permitted assigns, directors, officers, employees, representatives, agents, Affiliates and associates (collectively, the "Laser Group") from and against any and all losses, liabilities, expenses (including reasonable attorneys' fees), claims and damages (collectively, "Damages") asserted against, resulting to, imposed upon or suffered by the Laser Group, or any one of them: arising out of or related to any liability or obligation of Holdings or Worldwide existing on or prior to the Closing Date other than any such liability or obligation (i) arising in connection with the Notes, the LYONs and the 1998 Notes, (ii) which is also a liability or obligation of the Company or its subsidiaries (on a joint basis or otherwise), or (iii) which relates to the conduct, operations or activities of the Company or its subsidiaries.

(b) If there are any conflicts between the provisions of this Section 10.1 and Section 9.3 with respect to Tax Claims, the provisions of Section 9.3 shall control.

(c) Any payment by Parent Holdings under Article IX or this Section 10.1 will be an adjustment to the Merger Consideration.

(d) Anything in this Agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, the liability of Parent Holdings to indemnify the Laser Group pursuant to this Section 10.1 against any Damages sustained by reason of any Laser Claim shall be limited to Laser Claims as to which the Laser Group has given Parent Holdings written notice, setting forth in reasonable detail the basis for such Laser Claim, on or prior to the fourth (4th) anniversary of the Closing Date.

Section 10.2. Conditions of Indemnification With Respect to Third-Party Claims. The obligations and liabilities of Parent Holdings with respect to Laser Claims for Damages which arise or result from claims made by third parties ("Third-Party Claims") shall be subject to the following conditions:

(a) The Laser Group shall give Parent Holdings prompt notice of any such Third-Party Claim, and Parent Holdings shall have the right to undertake the defense thereof by representatives chosen by it; provided, however, that failure to provide prompt notice shall not affect Parent Holdings' obligations hereunder except to the extent that Parent Holdings is actually prejudiced by such failure;

(b) If Parent Holdings undertakes the defense of any such Third-Party Claim, the Laser Group shall, to the best of its ability, assist Parent Holdings, at the expense of Parent Holdings, in the defense of such Third-Party Claim; and shall promptly send to Parent Holdings, at the expense of Parent Holdings, copies of any documents received by the Laser Group which relate to such Third-Party Claim;

(c) If Parent Holdings, within a reasonable time after notice of any such Third-Party Claim, fails to defend the member(s) of the Laser Group against which such Third-Party Claim has been asserted, the Laser Group shall (upon further notice to Seller) have the right to undertake the defense, compromise or settlement of such Third-Party Claim on behalf of and for the account and risk of Parent Holdings, subject to the right of Parent Holdings to assume the defense of such Third-Party Claim at any time prior to settlement, compromise or final determination thereof; and

(d) Anything in this Article X to the contrary notwithstanding, (i) if there is a reasonable probability that a Third-Party Claim may materially and adversely affect the Laser Group other than as a result of money damages or other money payments, the Laser Group shall have the right, at its own cost and expense, to defend, compromise or settle such Third-Party Claim, and shall by doing so release Parent Holdings from any liability to provide indemnification with respect to such Third-Party Claim; and (ii) Parent Holdings shall not, without the written consent of the Laser Group, settle or compromise any Third-Party Claim or consent to the entry of any judgment which does not include as an unconditional term thereof the giving by the claimant or the plaintiff to the Laser Group a release from all liability with respect to such Third-Party Claim.

Section 10.3. Survival of Representations; Covenants. The representations and warranties in this Agreement shall terminate upon and not survive the Closing Date. This Section 10.3 shall not limit any covenant or agreement of the parties contained herein which by its terms contemplates performance after the Holdings Effective Time.

ARTICLE XI

TERMINATION

Section 11.1. Termination. This Agreement may be terminated at any time prior to the Holdings Effective Time:

(a) by mutual written agreement of Laser and Holdings;

(b) by either Laser or Holdings if the Holdings Merger shall not have been consummated on or before August 31, 1998 (the "Termination Date"); provided, however, that the right to terminate this Agreement under this Section 11.1(b) shall not be available to any party whose failure to fulfill any obligation under this Agreement has been the cause of, or resulted in, the failure of the Closing to occur on or before the Termination Date;

(c) by either Laser or Holdings if a court of competent jurisdiction or governmental, regulatory or administrative agency or commission shall have issued an order, decree or ruling or taken any other action (which order, decree or ruling the parties shall use their reasonable best efforts to lift), in each case permanently restraining, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, and such order, decree, ruling or other action shall have become final and nonappealable;

(d) by either Laser or Holdings in the event of a breach by the other party or any of its subsidiaries (including, in the case of Holdings, the Company and its subsidiaries) of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in this Agreement or the Company Merger Agreement, as applicable, which would give rise to the failure of a condition set forth in Section 8.2(a) or Section 8.3(a) hereof or Section 8.1 thereof, as applicable, and is not capable of being cured (provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in this Agreement).

Section 11.2. Effect of Termination. In the event of termination of this Agreement as provided in Section 11.1 hereof, this Agreement shall forthwith become void, provided that the last sentence of Section 6.7 and Article XII shall continue, and there shall be no liability on the part of any of the parties, nothing herein shall relieve any party from liability for any willful breach hereof.

ARTICLE XII

MISCELLANEOUS

Section 12.1. Notices. All notices or other communications hereunder shall be deemed to have been duly given and made if in writing and if served by personal delivery upon the party for whom it is intended, if delivered by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, or by a national courier service, or if sent by telecopier, provided that the telecopy is promptly confirmed by telephone confirmation thereof, to the person at the address set forth below, or such other address as may be designated in writing hereafter, in the same manner, by such person:

Any such notification shall be deemed delivered (i) upon receipt, if delivered personally, (ii) on the next business day, if sent by national courier service for next business day delivery or (iii) the business day received, if sent by telecopier.

Section 12.2. Amendment. This Agreement may be amended by the parties pursuant to a writing adopted by action taken by all of the parties at any time before the Closing Date. This Agreement may not be amended except by an instrument in writing signed by the Parties.

Section 12.3. Extension; Waiver. At any time before the Closing Date, any party hereto may (a) extend the time for the performance of any of the obligations or other acts of the other parties, (b) waive any inaccuracies in the representations and warranties contained herein or in any document delivered pursuant hereto and (c) waive compliance with any of the agreements or conditions contained herein. Any agreement on the part of a party to any such extension or waiver shall be valid only as against such party and only if set forth in an instrument in writing signed by such party. The failure of any party to this Agreement to assert any of its rights under this Agreement or otherwise shall not constitute a waiver of such rights.

Section 12.4. Assignment. No party to this Agreement may assign any of its rights or obligations under this Agreement without the prior written consent of the other party hereto.

Section 12.5. Entire Agreement. This Agreement (including all Schedules and Exhibits hereto) contains the entire agreement among the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral or written, with respect to such matters, except for the Confidentiality Agreements which will remain in full force and effect for the term provided for therein.

Section 12.6. Parties in Interest. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of and be binding upon the parties hereto and their respective successors and permitted assigns. Nothing in this Agreement, express or implied, is intended to confer upon any Person other than Laser, Holdings, Worldwide, their respective subsidiaries or their successors or permitted assigns, any rights or remedies under or by reason of this Agreement.

Section 12.7. Expenses. Whether or not the transactions contemplated by this Agreement are consummated, all costs and expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby shall be borne by the party incurring such expenses.

Section 12.8. Governing Law. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of Delaware, its rules of conflict of laws notwithstanding.

Section 12.9. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in one or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original, and all of which shall constitute one and the same agreement.

Section 12.10. Headings. The heading references herein and in the table of contents hereto are for convenience purposes only, do not constitute a part of this Agreement and shall not be deemed to limit or affect any of the provisions hereof.

Section 12.11. Further Assurances. From time to time after the Closing Date, at the request of the other party hereto and at the expense of the party so requesting, Holdings and Laser shall execute and deliver to such requesting party such documents and take such other action as such requesting party may reasonably request in order to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby.

Section 12.12. Specific Performance. Each party hereto acknowledges that money damages would be both incalculable and an insufficient remedy for any breach of this Agreement by such party and that any such breach would cause the other party hereto irreparable harm. Accordingly, each party hereto also agrees that, in the event of any breach or threatened breach of the provisions of this Agreement by such party, the other party hereto shall be entitled to equitable relief without the requirement of posting a bond or other security, including in the form of injunctions and orders for specific performance.

Section 12.13. Certain Terms. As used herein: (i) the term "material adverse effect" (including as used in any definition) with respect to any Person, shall exclude any change, event, effect or circumstance (a) arising in connection with the announcement or performance of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement and (b) affecting in the United States economy generally or such Person's industries generally; and (ii) "to the knowledge of Holdings" shall mean to the actual knowledge of Paul E. Shapiro, Jerry W. Levin and Steven R. Isko.

Section 12.14. Interpretation. When a reference is made to this Agreement to an Article or Section, such reference shall be to an Article or Section of this Agreement unless otherwise indicated. Whenever the words "include", "includes" or "including" are used in this Agreement, they shall be deemed to be followed by the words "without limitation". The words "hereof", "herein" and "hereunder" and words of similar import when used in this Agreement shall refer to this Agreement as a whole and not to any particular provision of this Agreement. The phrase "made available" in this Agreement shall mean that the information referred to has been made available if requested by the party to whom such information is to be made available. All terms defined in this Agreement shall have the defined meanings used in any certificate or other document made or delivered pursuant hereto unless otherwise defined herein. The definitions contained in this Agreement are applicable to the singular as well as the plural forms of such terms and to the masculine as well as to the feminine and neuter genders of such term. Any agreement, instrument or statute defined or referred to herein or in any agreement or instrument that is referred to herein means such agreement, instrument or statute as from time to time amended, modified or supplemented, including (in the case of agreements or instruments) by waiver or consent and (in the case of statutes) by succession of comparable successor statutes and references to all attachments thereto and instruments incorporated therein. References to a person are also to its permitted successors and assigns and, in the case of an individual, to his heirs and estate, as applicable.

REGISTRATION RIGHTS AGREEMENT

REGISTRATION RIGHTS AGREEMENT, dated as of _____, 1998 (the "Agreement"), among SUNBEAM CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation ("Laser"), and COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC., a Delaware corporation ("Parent Holdings").

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Holdings Merger Agreement"), by and among Laser, LASER ACQUISITION CORP., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Laser ("Laser Merger Sub"), CLN HOLDINGS INC., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings ("Holdings"), and Parent Holdings, Laser Merger Sub will be merged immediately after the execution of this Agreement with the surviving corporation becoming an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Laser, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Holdings Merger Agreement (the "Holdings Merger"); and

WHEREAS, upon consummation of the Holdings Merger, the shares of Holdings Common Stock (as defined herein) issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Holdings Merger shall be converted into the right to receive an aggregate of (A) 14,099,749 fully paid and nonassessable shares of Laser Common Stock (as defined herein) and (B) $159,956,756 in cash, without interest hereon; and

WHEREAS, it is a condition to the obligations of Holdings to consummate the Holdings Merger that this Agreement be duly executed and delivered by each of the parties hereto; and

WHEREAS, in order to induce Holdings to enter into the Holdings Merger Agreement, Laser has agreed to provide registration rights with respect to the shares of Laser Common Stock to be issued to Parent Holdings upon consummation of the Holdings Merger.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements set forth herein and for good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties agree as follows:

ARTICLE I

CERTAIN DEFINITIONS

Section 1.1 Definitions.

As used in this Agreement, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

The term "Affiliate" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in Rule 12b-2 of the General Rules and Regulations under the Exchange Act.

The term "Agreement" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in the first paragraph of the Preamble.

The term "Camper" shall mean The Coleman Company, Inc., a Delaware corporation.

The term "Effective Date" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in Section 2.2.

The term "Exchange Act" shall mean the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, and the rules and regulations of the SEC promulgated thereunder.

The term "Holdings" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in the second paragraph of the Preamble.

The term "Holdings Common Stock" shall mean common stock, par value $1.00 per share, of Holdings.

The term "Holdings Merger" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in the second paragraph of the Preamble.

The term "Holdings Merger Agreement" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in the second paragraph of the Preamble.

The term "Shelf Registration Statement" shall have the meaning ascribed to it in Section 2.1(a).

The term "Transfer" shall mean any attempt to, directly or indirectly, sell, transfer, pledge, assign or otherwise dispose of or otherwise transfer any of the Registrable Securities.

REQUIRED REGISTRATION

Section 2.1 Required Registration.

(a) Form S-3. Laser shall prepare and file with the SEC a registration statement (the "Shelf Registration Statement") on Form S-3 or another appropriate form permitting registration of the Registrable Securities so as to permit the resale of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings pursuant to an offering on a delayed or continuous basis pursuant to Rule 415 (or any successor rule) under the Securities Act (a "Rule 415 Offering") and shall use reasonable best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to be declared effective by the SEC on or before the date on which any of the Registrable Securities may be transferred by Parent Holdings pursuant to Article VII of the Holdings Merger Agreement. Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to permit the Shelf Registration Statement to be used by Affiliates of Camper for resales of shares of Laser Common Stock issued to such Affiliates in the merger of a wholly owned subsidiary of Laser with Camper; provided, however, that any such Affiliate using the Shelf Registration Statement shall agree in writing to be bound by all of the restrictions, limitations and obligations of Parent Holdings contained in this Agreement.

(b) Effectiveness. Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to keep the Shelf Registration Statement continuously effective under the Securities Act until the date that is the earliest to occur of (i) the date by which all Registrable Securities covered by the Shelf Registration Statement have been sold and (ii) the second anniversary of the consummation of the Holdings Merger.

(c) Amendments/Supplements. Laser shall amend and supplement the Shelf Registration Statement and the prospectus contained therein if required by the rules, regulations or instructions applicable to the registration form used by Laser for such Shelf Registration Statement, if required by the Securities Act.

(d) Offerings. At any time from and after the date on which the Shelf Registration Statement is declared effective by the SEC (the "Effective Date"), Parent Holdings, subject to the restrictions and conditions contained herein and in the Merger Agreement, and subject further to compliance with all applicable state and federal securities laws, shall have the right to dispose of all or any portion of the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.2 Holdback Agreement.

From and after the Effective Date, upon the request of Laser, Parent Holdings shall not effect any public sale or distribution (including sales pursuant to Rule 144) of Registrable Securities that are equity securities of Laser, or any securities convertible into or exchangeable or exercisable for such securities (other than any such sale or distribution of such securities pursuant to registration of such securities on Form S-8 or any successor form) during the period commencing on the date on which Laser commences a Laser Offering through the sixty (60)-day period immediately following the closing date of such Laser Offering; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not be obligated to comply with this Section 2.2 on more than two (2) occasions in any twelve (12)-month period; and provided, further, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section 2.2 or Section 2.3, in no event shall Parent Holdings be disabled from effecting offers or sales of Registrable Securities for more than one-hundred-and-fifteen (115) days during any twelve (12)-month period.

Section 2.3 Blackout Provisions.

In the event that, at any time while the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective, Laser determines in its reasonable judgment and in good faith that the sale of Registrable Securities would require disclosure of material information which Laser has a bona fide business purpose for preserving as confidential, Parent Holdings shall, upon receiving written notice from Laser of such good faith determination, suspend sales of the Registrable Securities for a period beginning on the date of receipt of such notice and expiring on the earlier of (i) the date upon which such material information is disclosed to the public or ceases to be material or (ii) forty-five (45) days after the receipt of such notice from Laser; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not be obligated to comply with this Section 2.3 on more than two (2) occasions in any twelve (12) month period; and provided, further, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section 2.3 or Section 2.2, in no event shall Parent Holdings be disabled from effecting offers or sales of Registrable Securities for more than one-hundred-and-fifteen (115) days during any twelve (12)-month period.

Section 2.4 Registration Procedures.

(a) Procedures. In connection with the registration of the Registrable Securities pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to effect the registration and sale of the Registrable Securities in accordance with Parent Holdings' intended method of disposition thereof and, in connection therewith, Laser shall:

(1) prepare and file with the SEC the Shelf Registration Statement and use reasonable best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become and remain effective in accordance with Sections 2.1(a) and (b) above;

(2) prepare and file with the SEC amendments and supplements to the Shelf Registration Statement and the prospectuses used in connection therewith in accordance with Section 2.1(c) above;

(3) before filing with the SEC the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto, Laser shall furnish to one (1) counsel selected by Parent Holdings and one (1) counsel for the underwriter or sales or placement agent, if any, in connection therewith, drafts of all such documents proposed to be filed and provide such counsel with a reasonable opportunity for review thereof and comment thereon, such review to be conducted and such comments to be delivered with reasonable promptness;

(4) promptly (i) notify Parent Holdings of each of (w) the filing and effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement and each prospectus and any amendments or supplements thereto, (x) the receipt of any comments from the SEC or any state securities law authorities or any other governmental authorities with respect to any such Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto, (y) any oral or written stop order with respect to such registration, any suspension of the registration or qualification of the sale of the Registrable Securities in any jurisdiction or any initiation or threatening of any proceedings with respect to any of the foregoing, and (z) of the happening of any event that requires the making of any changes in such Shelf Registration Statement, prospectus or documents incorporated or deemed to be incorporated therein by reference so that they will not contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading and (ii) use reasonable best efforts to obtain the withdrawal of any order suspending the registration or qualification (or the effectiveness thereof) or suspending or preventing the use of any related prospectus in any jurisdiction with respect thereto;

(5) furnish to Parent Holdings, the underwriters or the sales or placement agent, if any, and one (1) counsel for each of the foregoing, a conformed copy of the Shelf Registration Statement and each amendment and supplement thereto (in each case, including all exhibits thereto) and such additional number of copies of such Shelf Registration Statement, each amendment and supplement thereto (in such case, without such exhibits), the prospectus (including each preliminary prospectus) included in such Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus supplements and all exhibits thereto and such other documents as Parent Holdings, its underwriters, agent or such counsel may reasonably request in order to facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings;

(6) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, if requested by Parent Holdings or the managing underwriter or underwriters of a Rule 415 Offering, subject to approval of counsel to Laser in its reasonable judgment, promptly incorporate in a prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment to the Shelf Registration Statement such information concerning underwriters and the plan of distribution of the Registrable Securities as such managing underwriter or underwriters or Parent Holdings reasonably shall furnish to Laser in writing and such request to be included therein, including, without limitation, information with respect to the number of Registrable Securities being sold by Parent Holdings to such underwriter or underwriters, the purchase price being paid therefor by such underwriter or underwriters and with respect to any other terms of the underwritten offering of the Registrable Securities to be sold in such offering; and make all required filings of such prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment as soon as reasonably practicable after being notified of the matters to be incorporated in such prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment;

(7) use reasonable best efforts to register or qualify the Registrable Securities for offer and sale under such securities or "blue sky" laws of such jurisdictions as Parent Holdings reasonably requests and do any and all other acts and things which may be reasonably necessary or advisable to enable Parent Holdings to consummate the disposition in such jurisdictions in which the Registrable Securities are to be sold and keep such registration or qualification in effect for as long as the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective under the Securities Act (provided that Laser shall not be required to (i) qualify generally to do business in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be required to qualify but for this paragraph, (ii) subject itself to taxation in any such jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to taxation but for this paragraph or (iii) consent to the general service of process in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to general service of process but for this paragraph);

(8) notify Parent Holdings, at any time when a prospectus relating to the Shelf Registration Statement is required to be delivered under the Securities Act, upon the discovery that, or of the happening of any event as a result of which, the Shelf Registration Statement, as then in effect, contains an untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state any material fact required to be stated therein or any fact necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, and promptly prepare and furnish to Parent Holdings a supplement or amendment to the prospectus contained in the Shelf Registration Statement so that the Shelf Registration Statement shall not, and such prospectus as thereafter delivered to the purchasers of such Registrable Securities shall not, contain an untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading;

(9) cause all of the Registrable Securities to be listed on each national securities exchange and included in each established over-the-counter market on which or through which the Laser Common Stock is then listed or traded;

(10) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, make available for inspection by Parent Holdings, any underwriter participating in any disposition pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement, and any attorney, accountant or other agent retained by Parent Holdings or its underwriter, all financial and other records, pertinent corporate documents and properties of Laser as shall be reasonably necessary to enable either of them to exercise their due diligence responsibility, and cause Laser's officers, directors, employees, attorneys and independent accountants to supply all information reasonably requested by Parent Holdings, its underwriters, attorneys, accountants or agents in connection with the Shelf Registration Statement; information which Laser determines, in good faith, to be confidential shall not be disclosed by such persons unless (i) the disclosure of such information is required by applicable federal securities laws or is necessary to avoid or correct a misstatement or omission in such Shelf Registration Statement or (ii) the release of such information is ordered pursuant to a subpoena or other order from a court of competent jurisdiction; Parent Holdings agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that the information obtained by any of them as a result of such inspections shall be deemed confidential unless and until such is made generally available to the public; Parent Holdings further agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that Parent Holdings will, upon learning that disclosure of such information is sought in a court of competent jurisdiction, give notice to Laser and allow Laser, at Parent Holdings' expense, to undertake appropriate action to prevent disclosure of the information deemed confidential; nothing contained herein shall require Laser to waive any attorney-client privilege or disclose attorney work product;

(11) use reasonable best efforts to comply with all applicable laws related to the Shelf Registration Statement and offering and sale of securities and all applicable rules and regulations of governmental authorities in connection therewith (including, without limitation, the Securities Act and the Exchange Act, and the rules and regulations promulgated by the SEC) and make generally available to its security holders as soon as practicable (but in any event not later than fifteen (15) months after the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement) an earnings statement of Laser and its subsidiaries complying with Section 11(a) of the Securities Act;

(12) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, use reasonable best efforts to furnish to Parent Holdings a signed counterpart of (x) an opinion of counsel for Laser (including a "Rule 10b-5" opinion) and (y) a "comfort" letter signed by the independent public accountants who have certified Laser's financial statements included or incorporated by reference in such registration statement, covering such matters with respect to such registration statement and, in the case of the accountants' comfort letter, with respect to events subsequent to the date of such financial statements as are customarily covered in opinions of issuer's counsel and in accountants' comfort letters delivered to the underwriters in underwritten public offerings of securities for the account of, or on behalf of, an issuer of common stock, such opinion and comfort letters to be dated the date that such opinion and comfort letters are customarily dated in such transactions; and

(13) take other actions as Parent Holdings or the underwriters, if any, reasonably request in order to expedite or facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities.

(b) Further Agreements. Without limiting any of the foregoing, in the event that the sale of Registrable Securities is to be made by or through an underwriter, Laser shall enter into an underwriting agreement with a managing underwriter or underwriters selected by Parent Holdings containing representations, warranties, indemnities and agreements customarily included (but not inconsistent with the agreements contained herein) by an issuer of common stock in underwriting agreements with respect to offerings of common stock for the account of, or on behalf of, such issuers; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not utilize the Shelf Registration Statement for more than two (2) underwritten offerings during the term of this Agreement. In connection with the sale of Registrable Securities hereunder, Parent Holdings may, at its option, require that any and all representations and warranties by, and the other agreements of, Laser to or for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be made to or for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriter if such sale of Registrable Securities were pursuant to a customary underwritten offering) be made to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings and that any or all of the conditions precedent to the obligations of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be so for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters under a customary underwriting agreement) be conditions precedent to the obligations of Parent Holdings in connection with the disposition of Parent Holdings' securities pursuant to the terms hereof. In connection with any offering of Registrable Securities registered pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall, upon receipt of duly endorsed certificates representing the Registrable Securities, (i) furnish to the underwriter, if any (or, if no underwriter, Parent Holdings), unlegended certificates representing ownership of Registrable Securities being sold, in such denominations as requested, and (ii) instruct any transfer agent and registrar of the Registrable Securities to release any stop-transfer order with respect thereto.

Parent Holdings agrees that upon receipt of any notice from Laser of the happening of any event of the kind described in paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a), Parent Holdings shall forthwith discontinue its disposition of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus relating thereto until Parent Holdings' receipt of the copies of the supplemented or amended prospectus contemplated by paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a) and, if so directed by Laser, deliver to Laser all copies, other than permanent file copies, then in Parent Holdings' possession of the prospectus current at the time of receipt of such notice relating to the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.5 Registration Expenses.

All expenses incidental to Laser's performance of, or compliance with, its obligations under this Agreement including, without limitation, all registration and filing fees, all fees and expenses of compliance with securities and "blue sky" laws (including, without limitation, the fees and expenses of counsel for underwriters or placement or sales agents in connection therewith), all printing and copying expenses, all messenger and delivery expenses, all fees and expenses of underwriters and sales and placement agents in connection therewith (excluding underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor), all fees and expenses of Laser's independent certified public accountants and counsel (including, without limitation, with respect to "comfort" letters and opinions) and other Persons retained by Laser in connection therewith (collectively, the "Registration Expenses"), shall be borne by Laser. Laser shall not be responsible for and shall not pay underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor and fees and expenses of legal counsel, accountants, agents or experts retained by Parent Holdings in connection with the sale of the Registrable Securities. Laser will pay its internal expenses (including, without limitation, all salaries and expenses of its officers and employees performing legal or accounting duties, the expense of any annual audit and the expense of any liability insurance) and the expenses and fees for listing the Registrable Securities on the New York Stock Exchange or, if the Laser Common Stock is then not so listed, included in an established over-the-counter market.

Section 2.6 Indemnification.

(a) By Laser. Laser agrees to indemnify Parent Holdings and Parent Holdings' directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person to the fullest extent lawful, against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, judgments, and reasonable costs (including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses) (collectively, the "Losses") as incurred, caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, except insofar as the same are based upon any information furnished in writing to Laser by Parent Holdings or its underwriter or other agent expressly for use therein or by Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or its underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Laser's other obligations under this Agreement, Laser shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Parent Holdings.

(b) By Parent Holdings. In connection with the Shelf Registration Statement, Parent Holdings shall furnish to Laser in writing information regarding Parent Holdings' ownership of Registrable Securities and Parent Holdings' intended method of distribution thereof and shall indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (i) is caused by, arises out of, results from or relates to, or is alleged to be omitted from, such information so furnished in writing by Parent Holdings or (ii) arises out of or results from Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or Parent Holdings' underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Parent Holdings' other obligations under this Agreement, (i) Parent Holdings shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Laser and (ii) Parent Holdings shall cause each underwriter of an underwritten offering to indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such indemnified Person, on terms and subject to conditions customary for such indemnification by nationally known investment banking firms, against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (x) is caused by, arises out of or results from information furnished in writing by such underwriter specifically for inclusion in the Shelf Registration Statement or (y) arises out of or results from such underwriter's failure to deliver a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished such underwriter with the requested number of copies of the same.

(c) Notice. Any Person entitled to indemnification hereunder shall give prompt written notice to the indemnifying party of any claim with respect to which it seeks indemnification; provided, however, the failure to give such notice shall not release the indemnifying party from its obligation, except to the extent that the indemnifying party has been prejudiced by such failure to provide such notice.

(d) Defense of Actions. In any case in which any such action is brought against any indemnified party, and it notifies an indemnifying party of the commencement thereof, the indemnifying party shall be entitled to participate therein, and, to the extent that it may wish, jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified, to assume the defense thereof, with counsel reasonably satisfactory to such indemnified party, and after notice from the indemnifying party to such indemnified party of its election so to assume the defense thereof, the indemnifying party shall not (so long as it shall continue to have the right to defend, contest, litigate and settle the matter in question in accordance with this paragraph) be liable to such indemnified party hereunder for any legal or other expense subsequently incurred by such indemnified party in connection with the defense thereof other than reasonable costs of investigation, supervision and monitoring (unless such indemnified party reasonably objects to such assumption on the grounds that there may be defenses available to it which are different from or in addition to the defenses available to such indemnifying party, in which event the indemnified party shall be reimbursed by the indemnifying party for the reasonable expenses incurred in connection with retaining one separate legal counsel). An indemnifying party shall not be liable for any settlement of an action or claim effected without its consent. The indemnifying party shall lose its right to defend, contest, litigate and settle a matter if it shall fail to diligently contest such matter (except to the extent settled in accordance with the next following sentence). No matter shall be settled by an indemnifying party without the consent of the indemnified party unless such settlement contains a full and unconditional release of the indemnified party.

(e) Survival. The indemnification provided for under this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any investigation made by or on behalf of the indemnified Person and will survive the transfer of the Registrable Securities.

(f) Contribution. If recovery is not available under the foregoing indemnification provisions for any reason or reasons other than as specified therein, any Person who otherwise would be entitled to indemnification by the terms thereof shall nevertheless be entitled to contribution with respect to any Losses with respect to which such Person would be entitled to such indemnification but for such reason or reasons. In determining the amount of contribution to which the respective Persons are entitled, there shall be considered the Persons' relative knowledge and access to information concerning the matter with respect to which the claim was asserted, the opportunity to correct and prevent any statement or omission, and other equitable considerations appropriate under the circumstances. It is hereby agreed that it would not necessarily be equitable if the amount of such contribution were determined by pro rata or per capita allocation. No person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation (within the meaning of Section 11(f) of the Securities Act) shall be entitled to contribution from any Person who was not found guilty of such fraudulent misrepresentation.

TRANSFERS OF REGISTRABLE SECURITIES

Section 3.1 Transferability of Registrable Securities

Parent Holdings may not Transfer the Registrable Securities except in accordance with Article VII of the Holdings Merger Agreement and under the following circumstances:

- (a) pursuant to Rule 144;
- (b) pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement; or
- (c) upon receipt by Laser of an opinion of counsel, reasonably satisfactory to Laser, that such Transfer is exempt from registration under the Securities Act.

Section 3.2 Restrictive Legends.

Parent Holdings hereby acknowledges and agrees that, during the term of this Agreement, each of the certificates representing Registrable Securities shall be subject to stop transfer instructions and shall include the legend set forth in Section 7.2 of the Holdings Merger Agreement.

MISCELLANEOUS

Section 4.1 Effectiveness of Agreement.

The provisions of this Agreement shall be effective as of the date hereof.

Section 4.2 Recapitalization.

In the event that any capital stock or other securities are issued as a dividend or distribution on, in respect of, in exchange for, or in substitution of, any Registrable Securities, such securities shall be deemed to be Registrable Securities for all purposes under this Agreement.

Section 4.3 Notices.

All notices, requests, demands, waivers and other communications required or permitted to be given under this Agreement shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been duly given if delivered personally, by mail (certified or registered mail, return receipt requested), by reputable overnight courier or by facsimile transmission (receipt of which is confirmed):

or to such other person or address as any party shall specify by notice in writing, given in accordance with this Section 4.3, to the other parties hereto. All such notices, requests, demands, waivers and communications shall be deemed to have been given on the date on which so hand-delivered, on the third business day following the date on which so mailed, on the next business day following the date on which delivered to such overnight courier and on the date of such facsimile transmission and confirmation, except for a notice of change of person or address, which shall be effective only upon receipt thereof.

Section 4.4 Entire Agreement.

This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof. This Agreement supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral and written, with respect to its subject matter.

Section 4.5 Binding Effect; Assignment.

This Agreement and all of the provisions hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, executors, successors and permitted assigns, but, except as expressly contemplated herein, neither this Agreement nor any of the rights, interests or obligations hereunder shall be assigned, directly or indirectly, by Laser or Parent Holdings without the prior written consent of the other; provided, that in connection with a bona fide pledge of any Registrable Securities to secure indebtedness or other obligations, Parent Holdings may assign its rights, interests and obligations hereunder to the beneficiary of such pledge. Upon any permitted assignment (other than in connection with any such bona fide pledge), this Agreement shall be amended to substitute the assignee as a party hereto in a writing reasonably acceptable to the other party.

Section 4.6 Amendment, Modification and Waiver.

This Agreement may be amended, modified or supplemented at any time by written agreement of the parties hereto. Any failure by Parent Holdings, on the one hand, or Laser, on the other hand, to comply with any term or provision of this Agreement may be waived by Laser or Parent Holdings, respectively, at any time by an instrument in writing signed by or on behalf of Laser and Parent Holdings, but such waiver or failure to insist upon strict compliance with such term or provision shall not operate as a waiver of, or estoppel with respect to, any subsequent or other failure to comply.

Section 4.7 Third-Party Beneficiaries.

Except with respect to Affiliates which have agreed to be bound in accordance with Section 2.1(a), this Agreement is not intended, and shall not be deemed, to confer upon or give any person except the parties hereto and their respective successors and permitted assigns, any remedy, claim, liability, reimbursement, cause of action or other right under or by reason of this Agreement.

Section 4.8 Counterparts.

This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original, but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

Section 4.9 Interpretation.

The article and section headings contained in this Agreement are solely for the purpose of reference, are not part of the agreement of the parties and shall not in any way affect the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

Section 4.10 Governing Law.

This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New York, without regard to the principles of conflicts of law thereof.

Section 4.11 Termination; Restrictive Legend.

Subject to the provisions of Section 2.1(b) hereof, this Agreement shall terminate on the second anniversary of consummation of the Merger, provided, however, that the provisions of Section 2.6 hereof shall survive termination of this Agreement. It is understood and agreed that any restrictive legends set forth on any Registrable Securities shall be removed by delivery of substitute certificates without such legends and such Registrable Securities shall no longer be subject to the terms of this Agreement, upon the resale of such Registrable Securities in accordance with the terms of this Agreement or, if not theretofore removed, on the third anniversary of the date hereof.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, dated as of August 12, 1998, by and between Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company"), and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Coleman Parent").

For the purposes of this Agreement, Sunbeam, together with each direct or indirect parent, subsidiary, division, or affiliated corporation or entity, and each employee, agent, attorney, representative, administrator, executor, receiver, officer, director, or stockholder of any such corporation or entity, and any other person, firm, corporation or entity now or hereafter affiliated in any manner with any of them or claiming through or in the right of any of them and all of their respective predecessors, successors, assigns, heirs, executors and administrators (but excluding for all purposes under this Agreement, Mr. Albert J. Dunlap, former Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam, Mr. Russell A. Kersh, former Executive Vice President of Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen LLP, Sunbeam's independent auditors, PriceWaterhouseCoopers, consultants to Sunbeam, and any financial advisor to Sunbeam, and each employee, agent, attorney, representative, administrator, executor, receiver, officer, director, or stockholder of any such corporation or entity, and any other person, firm, corporation or entity now or hereafter affiliated in any manner with any of them or claiming through or in the right of any of them and all of their respective predecessors, successors, assigns, heirs, executors and administrators), are collectively hereinafter referred to as the "Sunbeam Group"; and Coleman Parent, together with each direct or indirect parent, subsidiary, division, or affiliated corporation or entity, and each employee, agent, attorney, representative, administrator, executor, receiver, officer, director, or stockholder of any such corporation or entity, and any other person, firm, corporation or entity now or hereafter affiliated in any manner with any of them or claiming through or in the right of any of them and all of their respective predecessors, successors, assigns, heirs, executors and administrators, are collectively hereinafter referred to as the "Coleman Group".

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS, CLN Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation ("CLN Holdings"), was the indirect beneficial owner of approximately 82% of the outstanding common stock, par value $.01 per share (the "Coleman Common Stock"), of The Coleman Company, Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Coleman"); and

WHEREAS, pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Holdings Merger Agreement"), by and among Sunbeam, Laser Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and, as of such date, a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Laser Acquisition"), CLN Holdings, as of such date, a wholly owned subsidiary of Coleman Parent, and Coleman Parent, CLN Holdings was merged with and into Laser Acquisition (the "Holdings Merger"), with the surviving corporation becoming an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, and pursuant to which Coleman Parent received certain shares of common stock, par value $.01 per share, of Sunbeam ("Sunbeam Common Stock"); and

WHEREAS, pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Coleman Merger Agreement"), by and among Sunbeam, Camper Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Camper Acquisition"), and Coleman, Camper Acquisition is to be merged with and into Coleman (the "Coleman Merger"), with the surviving corporation becoming an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam; and

WHEREAS, as a result of the Holdings Merger, Sunbeam acquired an indirect approximately 82% interest in Coleman (the "Coleman Acquisition"); and

WHEREAS, Sunbeam and Coleman Parent are parties to a Registration Rights Agreement, dated as of March 29, 1998 (the "Registration Rights Agreement"), pursuant to which Sunbeam agreed to provide certain registration rights to Coleman Parent; and

WHEREAS, following the dismissal by Sunbeam of certain of its executive officers in mid-June 1998, Coleman Parent has made available to Sunbeam certain senior officers employed by members of the Coleman Group to serve as senior executive officers of Sunbeam (the "Senior Executives") and has provided certain other management support to Sunbeam, and Sunbeam desires to continue the service of the Senior Executives and such management support; and

WHEREAS, Coleman Parent and Sunbeam believe it is desirable that Sunbeam put in place as promptly as possible a permanent management team to prevent jeopardizing the ongoing operations and financial viability of Sunbeam; and

WHEREAS, Coleman Parent believes that it possesses legal and equitable claims against Sunbeam arising out of the Coleman Acquisition and out of what it contends were certain breaches of contract and fraudulent and negligent or other misrepresentations and omissions made to Coleman Parent and its representatives in connection therewith (the "Claims"), and Sunbeam disputes such Claims; and

WHEREAS, there are also now pending or may be filed putative class actions in which Sunbeam is named as a defendant and in which Coleman Parent is a class member (the "Class Actions"), and Sunbeam denies liability with respect to and intends to contest the claims that have been asserted in the Class Actions; and

WHEREAS, the accountants who audited Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, assisted by another firm of accountants, are in the process of reviewing those financial statements, and believe, as has been publicly announced, that it will be necessary to restate those financial statements by reflecting a variety of adjustments the magnitude of which has not yet been determined; and

WHEREAS, Sunbeam and Coleman Parent desire to terminate the disputes between them, and desire to assure one another that Coleman Parent will not prosecute the Claims or any related or potential claims arising out of or relating to the Coleman Acquisition, directly or indirectly in any capacity, against the Sunbeam Group, so as to avoid the substantial burdens and expense of litigation and the interference with the business and operations of Sunbeam and with the work of its management and employees and to obtain the continued services of certain executives and employees of the Coleman Group, and in accordance with the terms and provisions hereof, that Coleman Parent and Sunbeam each forever release, waive and discharge any and all manner of actions, causes of action, proceedings, suits, claims, demands, liens, debts, accounts, obligations, rights, costs, contracts, agreements, promises, controversies, judgments, expenses, demands, damages and liabilities, of any nature whatsoever, in law or in equity, whether or not now or hereafter seen, known, suspected, matured, accrued or claimed, and whether or not asserted in litigation, including court costs and attorneys' fees (each an "Action and Liability" and collectively, "Actions and Liabilities"), which any member of the Coleman Group controlling, controlled by or under common control with Coleman Parent (such persons, together with Coleman Parent, the "Coleman Controlled Group") may have against any member of the Sunbeam Group and which any member of the Sunbeam Group controlled by Sunbeam (such persons, together with Sunbeam, the "Sunbeam Controlled Group") may have against any member of the Coleman Group as of the effective date hereof or prior thereto in any manner arising out of or relating to the Coleman Acquisition, irrespective of any present lack of knowledge on the part of either of them of any such possible Action and Liability, but excluding any claim for breach of this Agreement or the agreements and documents entered into or delivered pursuant hereto;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the respective covenants, agreements and conditions hereinafter set forth and for other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, and intending to be bound hereby, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Issuance of Warrants; Closing.

(a) On the basis of the representations, warranties, covenants and agreements and subject to the satisfaction or waiver (to the extent permitted) of the applicable conditions expressly set forth herein, at the closing of the transactions contemplated by this Section 1 (the "Closing"):

(i) Sunbeam shall issue to Coleman Parent certain warrants to purchase shares of Sunbeam Common Stock (the "Warrants") by duly executing and delivering to Coleman Parent a Warrant Agreement in the form attached as Exhibit A hereto (the "Warrant Agreement");

(ii) Sunbeam and Coleman Parent shall enter into an amendment to the Registration Rights Agreement, in the form attached as Exhibit B hereto (as so amended, the "Amended Registration Rights Agreement");

(iii) Sunbeam and Coleman Parent agree to be bound by the releases and covenants set forth in Section 2 of this Agreement;

(iv) Coleman Parent agrees to supply management services of the Senior Executives, and to the covenants and provisions of Section 3 of this Agreement; and

(v) Sunbeam and Coleman Parent agree to be bound by the provisions regarding the restrictions on transfer of the shares of Sunbeam Common Stock received by Coleman Parent in the Holdings Merger and the Warrants set forth in Section 4 of this Agreement.

(b) The Closing shall take place on the first day when all conditions thereto set forth herein shall be satisfied or waived or such other date as Sunbeam and Coleman Parent may agree in writing (the "Closing Date"), but in no event sooner than the tenth day following the mailing of the letter to Sunbeam shareholders contemplated by Section 7. The Closing shall take place on the Closing Date at 10:00 a.m., New York City time, at the offices of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, 51 West 52nd Street, New York, New York and shall be deemed effective as of the opening of business on the Closing Date.

(c) At the Closing, Sunbeam shall deliver or cause to be delivered to Coleman Parent, in addition to the Warrant Agreement, such other instruments or documents as Coleman Parent may reasonably request.

2. Granting of Releases and Indemnification.

(a) At the Closing, simultaneously with receipt by Coleman Parent of the Warrants, and without any further action by any of the parties hereto, each of the following shall be fully and legally effective:

(i) Coleman Parent shall, on behalf of itself and on behalf of each other member of the Coleman Controlled Group, remise, release and forever discharge the Sunbeam Group of and from all debts, demands, actions, causes of action, suits, accounts, covenants, contracts, agreements, damages, and any and all claims, demands and liabilities whatsoever of every name and nature, both in law and in equity, against any of the Sunbeam Group or any of their predecessors, successors or assigns, which Coleman Parent or any other member of the Coleman Controlled Group has or ever had from the beginning of the world to the Closing with respect to or arising out of the Coleman Acquisition or any alleged misrepresentations and omissions and/or breach of contract by any member of the Sunbeam Group and parties acting on behalf of any member of the Sunbeam Group in connection with the Coleman Acquisition, including with respect to the Actions and Liabilities; provided that neither the foregoing release nor the dismissals or withdrawals described in this Section 2(a) shall apply to the rights of Coleman Parent and any other member of the Coleman Controlled Group under Article IX of the Holdings Merger Agreement, any breach or failure to comply with this Agreement, the Warrant, the Amended Registration Rights Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby or thereby, the transactions contemplated by the Coleman Merger Agreement (including the Coleman Merger), which shall not be terminated or amended in any respect hereby, or shall otherwise affect Coleman Parent's right to enforce this Agreement, the Warrant or the Amended Registration Rights Agreement in accordance with its or their terms.

(ii) In the event any member of the Coleman Controlled Group pursues a claim against any person(s) not released hereby involving the matters that are the subject of the release set forth in Section 2(a)(i) and it is finally judicially determined that such person(s) are entitled directly or indirectly to indemnification or contribution from any member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group for any amounts they are required to pay to any member of the Coleman Controlled Group in connection with such claims, or to reimbursement of litigation expenses solely attributable to such claims of any member of the Coleman Controlled Group (each a "Sunbeam Group Indemnification Obligation"), Coleman Parent will indemnify and hold harmless each member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group against such Sunbeam Group Indemnification Obligation. No member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group will enter into any settlement of a Sunbeam Group Indemnification Obligation without the prior written consent of Coleman Parent, which shall not be unreasonably withheld. Any amounts so paid by a member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group in a settlement so consented to by Coleman Parent shall be treated for purposes hereof as a Sunbeam Group Indemnification Obligation.

(iii) Sunbeam, on behalf of itself and on behalf of each other member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group, shall remise, release and forever discharge the Coleman Group of and from all debts, demands, actions, causes of action, suits, accounts, covenants, contracts, agreements, damages, and any and all claims, demands and liabilities whatsoever of every name and nature, both in law and in equity, against any of the Coleman Group or any of their predecessors, successors or assigns, which Sunbeam or any member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group has or ever had from the beginning of the world to the Closing with respect to or arising out of the Coleman Acquisition or any alleged misrepresentations and omissions and/or breach of contract by any member of the Coleman Group and parties acting on behalf of any member of the Coleman Group in connection with the Coleman Acquisition, including with respect to the Actions and Liabilities; provided that neither the foregoing release nor the dismissals or withdrawals described in this Section 2(a) shall apply to the rights of Sunbeam and any other member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group under Article IX of the Holdings Merger Agreement, any breach or failure to comply with this Agreement, the Warrant, the Amended Registration Rights Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby or thereby, the transactions contemplated by the Coleman Merger Agreement (including the Coleman Merger), which shall not be terminated or amended in any respect hereby, or shall otherwise affect Sunbeam's right to enforce this Agreement, the Warrant or the Amended Registration Rights Agreement in accordance with its or their terms.

(iv) In the event any member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group pursues a claim against any person(s) not released hereby involving the matters that are the subject of the release set forth in Section 2(a)(iii) and it is finally judicially determined that such person(s) are entitled directly or indirectly to indemnifica-tion or contribution from any member of the Coleman Controlled Group for any amounts they are required to pay to any member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group in connection with such claims, or to reimbursement of litigation expenses solely attributable to such claims of any member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group, (each, a "Coleman Group Indemnification Obligation"), Sunbeam will indemnify and hold harmless each member of the Coleman Controlled Group against such Coleman Group Indemnification Obligation. No member of the Coleman Controlled Group will enter into any settlement of a Coleman Group Indemnification Obligation without the prior written consent of Sunbeam, which shall not be unreasonably withheld. Any amounts so paid by a member of the Coleman Controlled Group in a settlement so consented to by Sunbeam shall be treated for purposes hereof as a Coleman Group Indemnification Obligation.

(v) Sunbeam, on behalf of itself, and on behalf of each other member of the Sunbeam Controlled Group, and Coleman Parent, on behalf of itself and on behalf of each other member of the Coleman Controlled Group, agree to indemnify and hold harmless one another from and against any and all Actions and Liabilities arising from, or in connection with, any action or proceeding, brought by, or prosecuted by, or on the initiative of, either of them, or by any of their predecessors, successors or assigns, contrary to the provisions of this Agreement. It is further agreed that this agreement of indemnity shall be deemed breached and a cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued thereon immediately upon the commencement of any action contrary to this Agreement, and that in any such action this Agreement may be pleaded by either of them as a defense, or either of them may assert this Agreement by way of counterclaim or cross-claim in any such action.

(vi) This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of and shall be binding upon Sunbeam and Coleman Parent, and to the benefit of and shall be binding upon each person or entity in the Sunbeam Group and the Coleman Group.

(b) Coleman Parent agrees that it shall opt out, as to and only as to any claims against any member of the Sunbeam Group, of any class that may be certified in any of the Class Actions or in any other action that may be certified as a class action with respect to or arising out of any other matter released hereby.

3. Provision of Management Services.

(a) The parties hereto acknowledge that Coleman Parent has caused other members of the Coleman Group to make available to Sunbeam the services of certain employees and Senior Executives and has encouraged such persons to continue to provide services to Sunbeam as employees of Sunbeam.

(b) Coleman Parent agrees that it shall, and it shall use its reasonable efforts to cause the other members of the Coleman Group to, continue to, for a minimum period of 36 months from the date hereof, make available to Sunbeam the services of Coleman

Group's employees who are Senior Executives, or who become Senior Executives, for so long as they remain employees of a member of the Coleman Group and otherwise to continue to provide advice and assistance to Sunbeam in connection with the business and operations of Sunbeam consistent with that provided to date; provided, however, that, other than pursuant to the employment arrangements currently in place between such employees and members of the Coleman Group, no member of the Coleman Group shall be required bear any incremental expense with respect to any Senior Executive in order to comply with the foregoing.

(c) Sunbeam agrees to pay the compensation of any such persons who become employees of Sunbeam in accordance with the terms of the employment arrangements entered into by Sunbeam with such persons. This Agreement shall not prevent any of the Senior Executives from continuing to perform services for members of the Coleman Group to the extent that the provision of such services does not materially interfere with the performance of services by the Senior Executive for Sunbeam under his employment arrangements with Sunbeam.

(d) Coleman Parent agrees to use its reasonable efforts to cause the other members of the Coleman Group to continue, for a period of 36 months from the date hereof, to provide assistance and support to Sunbeam on a basis consistent with the manner in which such assistance and support are generally provided to other companies in which members of the Coleman Group have a substantial interest (and without the payment of additional consideration by Sunbeam to Coleman Parent, other than with respect to the reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses paid to third parties) and of a similar nature to those which have been so provided to Sunbeam from time to time from mid-June 1998 through the date hereof, including as to the following matters:

- (i) financings, and dealings with financing sources and the capital markets;
 - (ii) investor and public relations;
 - (iii) acquisitions, divestitures and other extraordinary transactions;
 - (iv) executive benefits and compensation and other personnel matters;
- and
- (v) compliance, litigation, insurance, regulatory and other legal matters.

4. Restrictions on Transfer of Securities. Coleman Parent hereby agrees not to, directly or indirectly, for a period of three (3) years from the date hereof, Transfer (as such term is defined in Section 7.1 of the Holdings Merger Agreement) (A) any shares of Sunbeam Common Stock received pursuant to the terms of the Holdings Merger Agreement or (B) any of the Warrants or the Warrant Shares (as defined in the Warrant Agreement), in either case in whole or in part, other than to one of its Affiliates (as such term is defined in the Holdings Merger Agreement) who agrees in writing to be bound by the terms of this Section 4, except that (A) the holder or holders of such shares of Sunbeam Common Stock may at any time or from time to time Transfer so many of such shares of Sunbeam Common Stock as represent in the aggregate seventy-five percent (75%) of such shares of Sunbeam Common Stock, and (B) the holder or holders of the Warrants or the Warrant Shares may at any time or from time to time Transfer so many of the Warrants or the Warrant Shares as represent in the aggregate fifty (50%) of the Warrant Shares Amount (as defined in the Warrant Agreement). The provisions of this Section 4 shall not be applicable, and Coleman Parent shall be free to Transfer any and all shares of Sunbeam Common Stock, Warrants and Warrant Shares, (i) following any change of control of Sunbeam or (ii) in connection with any transaction in which the holders of all of the outstanding shares of Sunbeam Common Stock have the opportunity to Transfer at least 50% of their shares of Sunbeam Common Stock on the same terms. The provisions of this Section 4 shall supersede any and all other restrictions on Transfer that Coleman Parent or any of its Affiliates may have agreed to with Sunbeam or any of its Affiliates.

5. Representations and Warranties of Sunbeam. Sunbeam hereby represents and warrants to Coleman Parent as follows:

(a) Due Authorization. This Agreement has been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action on the part of Sunbeam, and no other corporate actions or proceedings on the part of Sunbeam (including any action on the part of its stockholders) are necessary to authorize this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby. This Agreement has been duly executed by a duly authorized officer of Sunbeam and constitutes a valid and binding agreement of Sunbeam enforceable against it in accordance with its terms. The Audit Committee of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam (the "Audit Committee") has expressly approved the transactions contemplated hereby as contemplated by Paragraph 312 ("Paragraph 312") of the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE") Listed Company Manual and has determined that delay in securing shareholder approval of the transactions contemplated hereby would seriously jeopardize the financial viability of the Company. Upon application duly made by Sunbeam, the NYSE has advised that it has accepted Sunbeam's reliance on the exception to the shareholder approval policy of Paragraph 312 as contained therein in connection with the transactions contemplated hereby (the "Exception").

(b) Due Organization. Sunbeam is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of the State of Delaware and has the requisite corporate power to enter into and perform this Agreement and to carry on its business as it is now being conducted.

(c) No Conflicts. No filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any governmental or regulatory authority is necessary for the consummation by Sunbeam of the transactions contemplated hereby, other than as may be required under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act with respect to the exercise of the Warrants. Neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Sunbeam nor the consummation by Sunbeam of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Sunbeam with any of the provisions hereof, will (i) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Sunbeam; (ii) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any material contract or of any material license, franchise, permit, concession, certificate of authority, order, approval, application or registration of, from or with any governmental authority to which Sunbeam is a party or by which it or any of its properties or assets may be bound; or (iii) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Sunbeam or any of its properties or assets.

(d) Validity of Warrants and Underlying Shares. At the Closing, the issuance of the Warrants will have been duly authorized and, upon their issuance pursuant to the terms of this Agreement, the Warrants will be validly issued and will not be subject to any preemptive or similar right other than the rights and obligations under the Warrant Agreement. All shares of Sunbeam Common Stock to be issued upon the exercise of the Warrants, when issued, will be duly authorized and validly issued, fully paid and non-assessable and will not be subject to any preemptive or similar right.

(e) Capitalization. The authorized capital stock of Sunbeam consists of 500,000,000 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock, and 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $.01 per share, of Sunbeam. As of the date hereof, (i) 100,860,129 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock were issued and outstanding (excluding any shares of Sunbeam Common Stock issued upon the exercise of Sunbeam Stock Options (as defined below) since August 6, 1998); (ii) 7,199,452 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock were issuable upon the consummation of the Coleman Merger Agreement; (iii) 13,242,050 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock were issuable in accordance with the terms of the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 of the Company; and (iv) no shares of Sunbeam preferred stock were issued and outstanding. As of the date hereof, not more than 9,000,000 shares of Sunbeam Common Stock were issuable upon exercise of vested and unvested employee and non-employee stock options (the "Sunbeam Stock Options") outstanding under all stock option plans of Sunbeam or granted pursuant to employment agreements (although Sunbeam is contesting the validity of certain of such Sunbeam Stock Options). As of the date hereof, no shares of Sunbeam Common Stock were held as treasury shares. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Sunbeam Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. As of the date hereof, except as set forth above, there are no shares of capital stock of Sunbeam issued or outstanding or, except as set forth above, any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Sunbeam to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities, or the capital stock or securities of Sunbeam. There are no notes, bonds, debentures or other indebtedness of Sunbeam having the right to vote (or convertible into or exchangeable for securities having the right to vote) on any matters upon which stockholders of Sunbeam may vote.

(f) Brokers. Other than Blackstone Financial Group, which has acted as financial advisor to the Special Committee of the Sunbeam Board, no broker, investment banker or other person is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of Sunbeam or any member of the Sunbeam Group.

6. Representations and Warranties of Coleman Parent. Coleman Parent hereby represents and warrants to Sunbeam as follows:

(a) Due Authorization. This Agreement has been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action on the part of Coleman Parent, and no other corporate actions or proceedings on the part of the Coleman Parent (including any action on the part of its stockholders) are necessary to authorize this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby. This Agreement has been duly executed by a duly authorized officer of Coleman Parent and constitutes a valid and binding agreement of Coleman Parent enforceable against it in accordance with its terms.

(b) Due Organization. Coleman Parent is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of State of Delaware and has the requisite corporate power to enter into and perform this Agreement.

(c) No Conflicts. No filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any governmental or regulatory authority is necessary for the consummation by Coleman Parent of the transactions contemplated hereby, other than as may be required under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act with respect to the exercise of the Warrants. Neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Coleman Parent nor the consummation by Coleman Parent of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Coleman Parent with any of the provisions hereof, will (i) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Coleman Parent; (ii) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any material contract or of any material license, franchise, permit, concession, certificate of authority, order, approval, application or registration of, from or with any governmental authority to which Coleman Parent is a party or by which it or any of its properties or assets may be bound; or (iii) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Coleman Parent or any of its properties or assets.

(d) Acquisition of Warrants for Investment. Coleman Parent is acquiring the Warrants (and will acquire any Warrant Shares upon exercise of the Warrants) for its own account for investment purposes only and not with a view toward or for a sale in connection with, any distribution thereof, or with any present intention of distributing or selling any of such in violation of federal or state securities laws.

(e) Brokers. No broker, investment banker or other person is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of Coleman Parent or any member of the Coleman Group.

7. Covenants.

(a) Within one day following the date hereof, Sunbeam shall cause to be mailed to all shareholders of Sunbeam a letter informing them of the transactions contemplated hereby as contemplated and required by Paragraph 312 of the NYSE Listed Company Manual and indicating that the Audit Committee has expressly approved the Exception in light of the Audit Committee's determination that delay in securing shareholder approval of the transactions contemplated hereby would seriously jeopardize the financial viability of the Company and that the NYSE has accepted the Company's reliance on the Exception .

(b) The anti-dilution provisions of the Warrant shall be given retroactive effect to the date hereof.

8. Specific Performance. The parties acknowledge that money damages are an inadequate remedy for breach of this Agreement. Therefore, the parties agree that each of them has the right, in addition to (and not in lieu of) any other right they may have under this Agreement or otherwise, to specific performance of this Agreement in the event of any breach hereof by any other party.

9. Conditions to the Obligations of both Parties. The obligations of each of Sunbeam and Coleman Parent to effect the transactions contemplated hereby shall be conditioned on the non-existence of any order, decree or injunction of a court of competent jurisdiction which restrains the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement.

10. Termination. This Agreement may be terminated at any time prior to the Closing:

(a) by mutual agreement of the Boards of Directors of Coleman Parent and Sunbeam; or

(b) by Coleman Parent if the Warrants to be issued to Coleman Parent pursuant hereto have not been issued or will not be issued at the Closing or if there has been a material violation or breach by Sunbeam of any agreement, representation or warranty contained in this Agreement which has rendered the satisfaction of any condition to the obligations of Coleman Parent impossible and such violation or breach has not been waived by Coleman Parent; or

(c) by Sunbeam if there has been a material violation or breach by Coleman Parent of any agreement, representation or warranty contained in this Agreement which has rendered the satisfaction of any condition to the obligations of Sunbeam impossible and such violation or breach has not been waived by Sunbeam.

In the event of termination and abandonment of this Agreement by Coleman Parent or Sunbeam or both of them pursuant to the terms of this Section 10, written notice thereof shall forthwith be given to the other party and this Agreement shall terminate and the transactions contemplated hereby shall be abandoned, without further action by any of the parties hereto.

11. Expenses. All costs and expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby will be paid by the party incurring such costs and expenses.

12. Tax Matters. Coleman Parent shall in good faith provide to Sunbeam information concerning the tax treatment under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), of the transactions contemplated hereby. Sunbeam shall report such transactions for all tax purposes consistent with such information and take no position with any taxing authority inconsistent therewith. Coleman Parent and Sunbeam shall report the Holdings Merger as a reorganization within the meaning of Code Section 368(a) for all tax purposes.

13. Best Efforts. Each of the parties hereto agrees to use its best efforts to take, or cause to be taken, all action, and to do, or cause to be done, all things necessary, proper or advisable under applicable laws and regulations to consummate and make effective the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. In case at any time after the Closing any further action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this Agreement, the proper officers and directors of each corporation which is a party to this Agreement shall take all such necessary action.

14. Parties in Interest; Assignments. This Agreement is binding upon and is solely for the benefit of the parties hereto, the Sunbeam Group and the Coleman Group and their respective successors and legal representatives.

15. Entire Agreement. This Agreement and the agreements to be entered into and delivered pursuant hereto constitutes the entire agreement between Sunbeam and Coleman Parent with respect to the subject matter hereof, and it is expressly understood and agreed that this Agreement may not be altered, amended, modified, or otherwise changed in any respect or particular whatsoever, except by a writing duly executed by authorized representatives of both Sunbeam and Coleman Parent. No party to this Agreement has relied upon any representation or warranty, written or oral, except as expressly included herein.

16. Amendments. This Agreement may not be modified, amended, altered or supplemented except upon the execution and delivery of a written agreement executed by the parties hereto.

17. Notices. All notices, requests, claims, demands and other communications hereunder shall be in writing and shall be given (and shall be deemed to have been duly given upon receipt) by delivery in person, by telecopy or other standard form of telecommunication, or by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, addressed as follows:

18. Governing Law, Forum.

(a) This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware without regard to its conflict of law rules.

(b) The parties hereto irrevocably and unconditionally consent to submit to the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of the State of Delaware and/or of the United States of America located in the State of Delaware for any actions, suits or proceedings out of or relating to this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby.

19. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed to be an original but all of which together shall constitute but one agreement.

20. Effect of Headings. The descriptive headings contained herein are for convenience only and shall not affect in any way the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

21. Interpretation. When a reference is made in this Agreement to an Article or Section, such reference shall be to an Article or Section of this Agreement unless otherwise indicated. Whenever the words "include", "includes" or "including" are used in this Agreement, they shall be deemed to be followed by the words "without limitation". The words "hereof", "therein" and "hereunder" and words of similar import when used in this Agreement shall refer to this Agreement as a whole and not to any particular provision of this Agreement. The definitions contained in this Agreement are applicable to the singular as well as the plural forms of such terms and to the masculine as well as to the feminine and neuter genders of such term. References to a person are also to its permitted successors and assigns and, in the case of an individual, to his heirs and estate, as applicable.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION

WARRANT FOR THE PURCHASE OF SHARES OF COMMON STOCK OF SUNBEAM CORPORATION

ISSUE DATE: August __, 1998

Warrant No. W-1

23,000,000 Warrant Shares

THIS WARRANT AND THE SHARES OF COMMON STOCK PURCHASEABLE HEREUNDER HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED, OR UNDER THE SECURITIES LAWS OF ANY STATE OR OTHER JURISDICTION AND MAY NOT BE SOLD OR OTHERWISE TRANSFERRED OR DISPOSED OF UNLESS REGISTERED OR QUALIFIED UNDER SAID ACT AND APPLICABLE STATE SECURITIES LAWS OR UNLESS SUCH REGISTRATION, QUALIFICATION OR OTHER SUCH ACTIONS ARE NOT REQUIRED UNDER ANY SUCH LAWS.

FOR VALUE RECEIVED, SUNBEAM CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation (the "Company"), hereby certifies that Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., its successor or permit-tee assigns (the "Holder"), is entitled, subject to the provisions of this Warrant, to purchase from the Company, at the times specified herein, a number of the fully paid and non-assessable shares of Common Stock of the Company, par value $.01 per share (the "Common Stock"), equal to the Warrant Share Amount (as hereinafter defined) at a purchase price per share equal to the Exercise Price (as hereinafter defined).

SECTION 1. DEFINITIONS. (a) The following terms, as used herein, have the following meanings:

"Affiliate" shall have the meaning given to such term in Rule 12b-2 promulgated under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

"Business Day" means any day except a Saturday, Sunday or other day on which commercial banks in The City of New York are authorized by law to close.

"Certificate of Incorporation" means the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the Company.

CONFIDENTIAL

"Closing Price" on any day means (1) if the shares of Common Stock then are listed and traded on the New York Stock Exchange, Inc. ("NYSE"), the Closing Price on such day as reported on the NYSE Composite Transactions Tape; (2) if shares of Common Stock then are not listed and traded on the NYSE, the Closing Price on such day as reported by the principal national securities exchange on which the shares of Common Stock are listed and traded; (3) if the shares of Common Stock then are not listed and traded on any such securities exchange, the last reported sale price on such day on the National Market of The National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. Automated Quotation System ("NASDAQ"); or (4) if the shares of Common Stock then are not traded on the NASDAQ National Market, the average of the highest reported bid and the lowest reported asked price on such day as reported by NASDAQ.

"Common Share Equivalent" means, with respect to any security of the Company and as of a given date, a number which is, (i) in the case of a share of Common Stock, one, (ii) in the case of all or a portion of any right, warrant or other security which may be exercised for a share or shares of Common Stock, the number of shares of Common Stock receivable upon exercise of such security (or such portion of such security), and (iii) in the case of any security convertible or exchangeable into a share or shares of Common Stock, the number of shares of Common Stock that would be received if such security were converted or exchanged on such date.

"Common Stock" shall have the meaning set forth in the first paragraph hereof.

"Company" shall have the meaning set forth in the first paragraph hereof.

"Convertible Securities" shall have the meaning set forth in Section 7(d).

"Determination Date" shall have the meaning set forth in Section 7(f).

"Exercise Price" means a price per Warrant Share equal to $7.00.

"Expiration Date" means 5:00 p.m. New York City time on August __, 2003 [the fifth anniversary of the date of this Warrant].

"Fair Market Value" as at any date of determination means, as to shares of the Common Stock, if the Common Stock is publicly traded at such time, the average of the daily Closing Prices of a share of Common Stock for the ten (10) consecutive trading days ending on the most recent trading day prior to the date of determination. If the shares of Common Stock are not publicly traded at such time, and as to all things other than the Common Stock, Fair Market Value shall be determined in good faith by an independent nationally recognized investment banking firm selected by the Company and acceptable to a majority of the Holders and which shall have no other substantial relationship with the Company.

"Holder" shall have the meaning set forth in the first paragraph hereof.

"Options" shall have the meaning set forth in Section 7(d).

"Person" means an individual, partnership, corporation, limited liability company, trust, joint stock company, association, joint venture, or any other entity or organization, including a government or political subdivision or an agency or instrumentality thereof.

"Securities Act" means the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

"Subsidiary" means, with respect to any Person, any corporation or other entity of which a majority of the capital stock or other ownership interests having ordinary voting power to elect a majority of the board of directors or other persons performing similar functions are at the time directly or indirectly owned by such Person.

"Warrant Share Amount" means 23,000,000 (Twenty Three Million) shares of Common Stock as such number may be adjusted pursuant to Sections 7 and 8.

"Warrant Shares" means the shares of Common Stock deliverable upon exercise of this Warrant, as adjusted from time to time.

SECTION 2. EXERCISE OF WARRANT. (a) The Holder is entitled to exercise this Warrant in whole or in part at any time, or from time to time, until the Expiration Date or, if such day is not a Business Day, then on the next succeeding day that shall be a Business Day. To exercise this Warrant, the Holder shall deliver to the Company this Warrant, including the Warrant Exercise Subscription Form forming a part hereof duly executed by the Holder, together with payment of the applicable Exercise Price. Upon such delivery and payment, the Holder shall be deemed to be the holder of record of the number of Warrant Shares equal to the Warrant Share Amount (or, in the case of a partial exercise of this Warrant, a ratable number of such shares), notwithstanding that the stock transfer books of the Company shall then be closed or that certificates representing such shares shall not then be actually delivered to the Holder.

(b) At the option of the Holder, the Exercise Price may be paid in cash (including by wire transfer of immediately available funds) or by certified or official bank check or bank cashier's check payable to the order of the Company or by any combination of such cash or check. At the option of the Holder, the Exercise Price may in the alternative be paid in whole or in part by reducing the number of shares of Common Stock issuable to the Holder by a number of shares of Common Stock that have a Fair Market Value equal to the Exercise Price which otherwise would have been paid (so that the net number of shares of Common Stock issued in respect of such exercise shall equal the number of shares of Common Stock that would have been issuable had the Exercise Price been paid entirely in cash, less a number of shares of Common Stock with a Fair Market Value equal to the portion of the Exercise Price paid in kind); provided that this option shall be available only with respect to the exercise of this Warrant with respect to not more than one-half of the total number of Warrant Shares. The Company shall pay any and all documentary, or similar issue or transfer taxes payable in respect of the issue or delivery of the Warrant Shares. The Company shall not, however, be required to pay any transfer tax which may be payable in respect of any transfer involved in the issue or delivery of Warrants or Warrant Shares (or other securities or assets) in a name other than that in which the Warrants so exercised were registered, and no such issue or delivery shall be made unless and until the person requesting such issue has paid to the Company the amount of such transfer tax or has established, to the satisfaction of the Company, that such transfer tax has been paid.

(c) If the Holder exercises this Warrant in part, this Warrant shall be surrendered by the Holder to the Company and a new Warrant of the same tenor and for the unexercised number of Warrant Shares shall be executed by the Company. The Company shall register the new Warrant in the name of the Holder or in such name or names of its transferee pursuant to Section 6 as may be directed in writing by the Holder and deliver the new Warrant to the Person or Persons entitled to receive the same.

(d) Upon surrender of this Warrant in conformity with the foregoing provisions, the Company shall, subject to the expiration of any applicable waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act, transfer to the Holder of this Warrant appropriate evidence of ownership of the shares of Common Stock or other securities or property (including any money) to which the Holder is entitled, registered or otherwise placed in, or payable to the order of, the name or names of the Holder or such transferee as may be directed in writing by the Holder, and shall deliver such evidence of ownership and any other securities or property (including any money) to the Person or Persons entitled to receive the same, together with an amount in cash in lieu of any fraction of a share as provided in Section 5, subject to any required withholding.

SECTION 3. RESTRICTIVE LEGEND. Each certificate representing shares of Common Stock issued pursuant to this Warrant, unless at the time of exercise such shares are registered under the Securities Act, shall bear a legend substantially in the form of the legend set forth on the first page of this Warrant.

SECTION 4. RESERVATION OF SHARES. The Company hereby agrees that at all times there shall be reserved for issuance and delivery upon exercise of this Warrant such number of its authorized but unissued shares of Common Stock or other securities of the Company from time to time issuable upon exercise of this Warrant as will be sufficient to permit the exercise in full of this Warrant. The Company hereby represents and agrees that all such shares shall be duly authorized and, when issued upon such exercise, shall be validly issued, fully paid and non-assessable, free and clear of all liens, security interests, charges and other encumbrances or restrictions on sale and free and clear of all preemptive or similar rights, except to the extent imposed by or as a result of the status, act or omission of, the Holder.

SECTION 5. FRACTIONAL SHARES. No fractional shares or scrip representing fractional shares shall be issued upon the exercise of this Warrant and in lieu of delivery of any such fractional share upon any exercise hereof, the Company shall pay to the Holder an amount in cash equal to such fraction multiplied by the Fair Market Value thereof; provided, however, that, in the event that the Company combines or reclassifies the outstanding shares of its Common Stock into a smaller number of shares, it shall be required to issue fractional shares to the Holder if the Holder exercises all or any part of its Warrants, unless the Holder has consented in writing to such reduction and provided the Company with a written waiver of its right to receive fractional shares in accordance with this Section 5.

SECTION 6. TRANSFER, EXCHANGE OR ASSIGNMENT OF WARRANT. (a) Each taker and holder of this Warrant by taking or holding the same, consents and agrees that the registered holder hereof may be treated by the Company and all other persons dealing with this Warrant as the absolute owner hereof for any purpose and as the person entitled to exercise the rights represented hereby.

(b) Subject to the requirements of state and federal securities laws, the Holder of this Warrant shall be entitled, without obtaining the consent of the Company to assign and transfer this Warrant, at any time in whole or from time to time in part, to any Person or Persons. Subject to the preceding sentence, upon surrender of this Warrant to the Company, together with the attached Warrant Assignment Form duly executed, the Company shall, without charge, execute and deliver a new Warrant in the name of the assignee or assignees named in such instrument of assignment and, if the Holder's entire interest is not being assigned, in the name of the Holder and this Warrant shall promptly be canceled.

(c) Upon receipt by the Company of evidence satisfactory to it (in the exercise of its reasonable discretion) of the loss, theft, destruction or mutilation of this Warrant, and (in the case of loss, theft or destruction) of indemnification or security reasonably required by the Company, and upon surrender and cancellation of this Warrant, if mutilated, the Company shall execute and deliver a new Warrant of like tenor and date.

(d) The Company shall pay all expenses, taxes (other than transfer taxes) and other charges payable in connection with the preparation, issuance and delivery of Warrants hereunder.

SECTION 7. ANTI-DILUTION PROVISIONS. So long as any Warrants are outstanding, the Warrant Share Amount shall be subject to change or adjustment as follows:

(a) Common Stock Dividends, Subdivisions, Combinations. In case the Company shall (i) pay or make a dividend or other distribution to all holders of its Common Stock in shares of Common Stock, (ii) subdivide or split the outstanding shares of its Common Stock into a larger number of shares, or (iii) combine the outstanding shares of its Common Stock into a smaller number of shares (which shall not in any event be done without the express written approval of Holders of a majority of the outstanding Warrants), then in each such case the Warrant Share Amount shall be adjusted to equal the number of such shares to which the holder of this Warrant would have been entitled upon the occurrence of such event had this Warrant been exercised immediately prior to the happening of such event or, in the case of a stock dividend or other distribution, prior to the record date for determination of shareholders entitled thereto. An adjustment made pursuant to this Section 7(a) shall become effective immediately after the effective date of such event retroactive to the record date, if any, for such event.

(b) Reorganization or Reclassification. In case of any capital reorganization or any reclassification of the capital stock of the Company (whether pursuant to a merger or consolidation or otherwise), or in the event of any similar transaction, this Warrant shall thereafter be exercisable for the number of shares of stock or other securities or property receivable upon such capital reorganization or reclassification of capital stock or other transaction, as the case may be, by a holder of the number of shares of Common Stock into which this Warrant was exercisable immediately prior to such capital reorganization or reclassification of capital stock; and, in any case appropriate adjustment (as determined in good faith by the Board of Directors of the Company) shall be made for the application of the provisions herein set forth with respect to the rights and interests thereafter of the Holder of this Warrant to the end that the provisions set forth herein shall thereafter be applicable, as nearly as reasonably practicable, in relation to any shares of stock or other securities or property thereafter deliverable upon the exercise of this Warrant. An adjustment made pursuant to this Section 7(b) shall become effective immediately after the effective date of such event retroactive to the record date, if any, for such event.

(c) Distributions of Assets or Securities Other than Common Stock. In case the Company shall, by dividend or otherwise, distribute to all holders of its Common Stock shares of any class of its capital stock (other than Common Stock), or other debt or equity securities or evidences of indebtedness of the Company, or options, rights or warrants to purchase any of such securities, cash or other assets, then in each such case the Warrant Share Amount shall be adjusted by multiplying the Warrant Share Amount immediately prior to the date of such dividend or distribution by a fraction, of which the numerator shall be the Fair Market Value per share of Common Stock at the record date for determining shareholders entitled to such dividend or distribution, and of which the denominator shall be such Fair Market Value per share less the Fair Market Value of the portion of the securities, cash, other assets or evidences of indebtedness so distributed applicable to one share of Common Stock. An adjustment made pursuant to this Section 7(c) shall become effective immediately after the effective date of such event retroactive to the record date, if any, for such event.

(d) Below Market Issuances of Common Stock and Convertible Securities. In case the Company shall issue Common Stock (or options, rights or warrants to purchase shares of Common Stock (collectively, "Options") or other securities convertible into or exchangeable or exercisable for shares of Common Stock (such other securities, collectively, "Convertible Securities")) at a price per share (or having an effective exercise, exchange or conversion price per share together with the purchase price thereof) less than the Fair Market Value per share of Common Stock on the date such Common Stock (or Options or Convertible Securities), is sold or issued (provided that no sale of securities pursuant to an underwritten public offering shall be deemed to be for less than Fair Market Value), then in each such case the Warrant Share Amount shall thereafter be adjusted by multiplying the Warrant Share Amount immediately prior to the date of issuance of such Common Stock (or Options or Convertible Securities) by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be (x) the sum of (i) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such issuance and (ii) the number of additional Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities so issued multiplied by (y) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to the date of such issuance, and the denominator of which shall be (x) the product of (A) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to the date of such issuance and (B) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such issuance plus (y) the aggregate consideration received by the Company for the total number of securities so issued plus, (z) in the case of Options or Convertible Securities, the additional consideration required to be received by the Company upon the exercise, exchange or conversion of such securities; provided that no adjustment shall be required in respect of issuances of Common Stock (or options to purchase Common Stock) pursuant to stock option or other employee benefit plans in effect on the date hereof, or approved by the Board of Directors of the Company after the date hereof. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, (1) no further adjustment to the Warrant Share Amount shall be made upon the issuance or sale of Common Stock pursuant to (x) the exercise of any Options or (y) the conversion or exchange of any Convertible Securities, if in each case the adjustment in the Warrant Share Amount was made as required hereby upon the issuance or sale of such Options or Convertible Securities or no adjustment was required hereby at the time such Option or Convertible Security was issued, and (2) no adjustment to the Warrant Share Amount shall be made upon the issuance or sale of Common Stock upon the exercise of any Options existing on the original issue date hereof, without regard to the exercise price thereof. Notwithstanding the foregoing, no adjustment to the Warrant Share Amount shall be made pursuant to this paragraph upon the issuance or sale of Common Stock, Options, or Convertible Securities in a bona fide arm's-length transaction to any Person or group that, at the time of such issuance or sale, is not an Affiliate of the Company (including any possible issuance of Common Stock, Options, or Convertible Securities to the public stockholders of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") in connection with the acquisition of their shares of Coleman common stock pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Coleman Merger Agreement"), by and among Sunbeam, Camper Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, and Coleman, or otherwise). An adjustment made pursuant to this Section 7(d) shall become effective immediately after such Common Stock, Options or Convertible Securities are sold.

(e) Below Market Distributions or Issuances of Preferred Stock or Other Securities. In case the Company shall issue non-convertible and non-exchangeable preferred stock (or other debt or equity securities or evidences of indebtedness of the Company (other than Common Stock or Options or Convertible Securities) or options, rights or warrants to purchase any of such securities) at a price per share (or other similar unit) less than the Fair Market Value per share (or other similar unit) of such preferred stock (or other security) on the date such preferred stock (or other security) is sold (provided that no sale of preferred stock or other security pursuant to an underwritten public offering shall be deemed to be for less than its fair market value), then in each such case the Warrant Share Amount shall thereafter be adjusted by multiplying the Warrant Share Amount immediately prior to the date of issuance of such preferred stock (or other security) by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be the product of (i) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such issuance and (ii) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to the date of such issuance, and the denominator of which shall be (x) the product of (A) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such issuance and (B) the Fair Market Value of a share of the Common Stock immediately prior to the date of such issuance minus (y) the difference between (1) the aggregate Fair Market Value of such preferred stock (or other security) and (2) the aggregate consideration received by the Company for such preferred stock (or other security). Notwithstanding the foregoing, no adjustment to the Warrant Share Amount shall be made pursuant to this paragraph upon the issuance or sale of preferred stock (or other securities of the Company other than common Stock or Options or Convertible Securities) in a bona fide arm's-length transaction to any Person or group that, at the time of such issuance or sale, is not an Affiliate of the Company (including any possible issuance of preferred stock (or other securities of the Company other than common Stock or Options or Convertible Securities) to the public stockholders of Coleman in connection with the acquisition of their shares of Coleman common stock pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, or otherwise). An adjustment made pursuant to this Section 7(e) shall become effective immediately after such preferred stock (or other security) is sold.

(f) Above Market Repurchases of Common Stock. If at any time or from time to time the Company or any Subsidiary thereof shall repurchase, by self-tender offer or otherwise, any shares of Common Stock of the Company (or any Options or Convertible Securities) at a purchase price in excess of the Fair Market Value thereof, on the Business Day immediately prior to the earliest of (i) the date of such repurchase, (ii) the commencement of an offer to repurchase, or (iii) the public announcement of either (such date being referred to as the "Determination Date"), the Warrant Share Amount shall be determined by multiplying the Warrant Share Amount immediately prior to such Determination Date by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be the product of (1) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such Determination Date minus the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by the securities repurchased or to be purchased by the Company or any Subsidiary thereof in such repurchase and (2) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to such Determination Date, and the denominator of which shall be (x) the product of (A) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to the Determination Date and (B) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to such Determination Date minus (y) the sum of (1) the aggregate consideration paid by the Company in connection with such repurchase and (2) in the case of Options or Convertible Securities, the additional consideration required to be received by the Company upon the exercise, exchange or conversion of such securities. Notwithstanding the foregoing, no adjustment to the Warrant Share Amount shall be made pursuant to this paragraph upon the repurchase, by self-tender offer or otherwise, of Common Stock (or any Options or Convertible Security) in a bona fide arm's-length transaction from any Person or group that, at the time of such repurchase, is not an Affiliate of the Company.

(g) Above Market Repurchases of Preferred Stock or Other Securities. If at any time or from time to time the Company or any Subsidiary thereof shall repurchase, by self-tender offer or otherwise, any shares of non-convertible and non-exchangeable preferred stock (or other debt or equity securities or evidences of indebtedness of the Company (other than Common Stock or Options or Convertible Securities) or options, rights or warrants to purchase any of such securities), at a purchase price in excess of the Fair Market Value thereof, on the Business Day immediately prior to the Determination Date, the Warrant Share Amount shall be determined by multiplying the Warrant Share Amount immediately prior to the Determination Date by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be the product of (i) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such Determination Date and (ii) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to such Determination Date, and the denominator of which shall be (x) the product of (A) the number of Common Share Equivalents represented by all securities outstanding immediately prior to such Determination Date and (B) the Fair Market Value of a share of Common Stock immediately prior to such Determination Date minus (y) the difference between (1) the aggregate consideration paid by the Company in connection with such repurchase and (2) the aggregate Fair Market Value of such preferred stock (or other security). Notwithstanding the foregoing, no adjustment to the Warrant Share Amount shall be made pursuant to this paragraph upon the repurchase, by self-tender offer or otherwise, of non-convertible and non-exchangeable preferred stock (or other securities of the Company other than Common Stock or Options or Convertible Securities) in a bona fide arm's-length transaction from any Person or group that, at the time of such repurchase, is not an Affiliate of the Company.

(h) Readjustment of Warrant Share Amount. If (i) the purchase price provided for in any Option or the additional consideration, if any, payable upon the conversion or exchange of any Convertible Securities or the rate at which any Convertible Securities, in each case as referred to in paragraphs (b) and (f) above, are convertible into or exchangeable for Common Stock shall change at any time (other than under or by reason of provisions designed to protect against dilution upon an event which results in a related adjustment pursuant to this Section 7), or (ii) any of such Options or Convertible Securities shall have irrevocably terminated, lapsed or expired, the Warrant Share Amount then in effect shall forthwith be readjusted (effective only with respect to an exercise of this Warrant after such readjustment) to the Warrant Share Amount which would then be in effect had the adjustment made upon the issuance, sale, distribution or grant of such Options or Convertible Securities been made based upon such changed purchase price, additional consideration or conversion rate, as the case may be (in the case of any event referred to in clause (i) of this paragraph (h)) or had such adjustment not been made (in the case of any event referred to in clause (ii) of this paragraph (h)).

(i) Exercise Price Adjustment. Upon each adjustment of the Warrant Share Amount pursuant to this Section 7, the Exercise Price of each Warrant outstanding immediately prior to such adjustment shall thereafter be equal to an adjusted Exercise Price per Share determined (to the nearest cent) by multiplying the Exercise Price for the Warrant immediately prior to such adjustment by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be the Warrant Share Amount in effect immediately prior to such adjustment and the denominator of which shall be the Warrant Share Amount in effect immediately after such adjustment.

(j) Consideration. If any shares of Common Stock, Options or Convertible Securities shall be issued, sold or distributed for cash, the consideration received in respect thereof shall be deemed to be the amount received by the Company therefor, before deduction therefrom of any reasonable, customary and adequately documented expenses incurred in connection therewith. If any shares of Common Stock, Options or Convertible Securities shall be issued, sold or distributed for a consideration other than cash, the amount of the consideration other than cash received by the Company shall be deemed to be the Fair Market Value of such consideration, before deduction of any reasonable, customary and adequately documented expenses incurred in connection therewith. If any shares of Common Stock, Options or Convertible Securities shall be issued in connection with any merger in which the Company is the surviving corporation, the amount of consideration therefor shall be deemed to be the Fair Market Value of such portion of the assets and business of the non-surviving corporation as shall be attributable to such Common Stock, Options or Convertible Securities, as the case may be. If any Options shall be issued in connection with the issuance and sale of other securities of the Company, together comprising one integral transaction in which no specific consideration is allocated to such Options by the parties thereto, such Options shall be deemed to have been issued without consideration.

(k) No Impairment. The Company will not, by amendment of its Certificate of Incorporation or through any reorganization, transfer of assets, consolidation, merger, dissolution, issue or sale of securities or any other voluntary action, avoid or seek to avoid the observance or performance of any of the terms to be observed or performed hereunder by the Company, but will at all times in good faith assist in the carrying out of all the provisions of this Section 7 and in the taking of all such action as may be necessary or appropriate in order to protect the conversion rights of the Holder against impairment. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the Company will not increase the par value of any shares of Common Stock receivable on the exercise of the Warrants above the amount payable therefor on such exercise.

(l) Certificate as to Adjustments. Upon the occurrence of each adjustment or readjustment of the Warrant Share Amount pursuant to this Section 7, the Company at its expense shall promptly compute such adjustment or readjustment in accordance with the terms hereof and furnish to the Holder a certificate setting forth such adjustment or readjustment and showing in detail the facts upon which such adjustment or readjustment is based. The Company shall, upon the written request at any time of the Holder, furnish or cause to be furnished to Holder a like certificate setting forth (1) such adjustments and readjustments and (2) the number of shares of Common Stock and the amount, if any, of other property which at the time would be received upon the exercise of this Warrant.

(m) Proceedings Prior to Any Action Requiring Adjustment. As a condition precedent to the taking of any action which would require an adjustment pursuant to this Section 7, the Company shall take any action which may be necessary, including obtaining regulatory approvals or exemptions, in order that the Company may thereafter validly and legally issue as fully paid and non-assessable all shares of Common Stock which the Holders are entitled to receive upon exercise thereof.

(n) Notice of Adjustment. Upon the record date or effective date, as the case may be, of any action which requires or might require an adjustment or readjustment pursuant to this Section 7, the Company shall forthwith file in the custody of its Secretary or an Assistant Secretary at its principal executive office and with its stock transfer agent or its warrant agent, if any, an officers' certificate showing the adjusted number of Warrant Shares determined as herein provided, setting forth in reasonable detail the facts requiring such adjustment and the manner of computing such adjustment. Each such officers' certificate shall be signed by the chairman, president or chief financial officer of the Company and by the secretary or any assistant secretary of the Company. Each such officers' certificate shall be made available at all reasonable times for inspection by the Holder or any Holder of a Warrant executed and delivered pursuant to Section 6(b) and the Company shall, forthwith after each such adjustment, mail a copy, by first-class mail, of such certificate to the Holder or any such holder.

(o) Payments in Lieu of Adjustment. The Holder shall, at its option, be entitled to receive, in lieu of the adjustment pursuant to Section 7(c) otherwise required thereof, on (but not price) the date of exercise of the Warrants, the evidences of indebtedness, other securities, cash, property or other assets which such Holder would have been entitled to receive if it had exercised its Warrants for shares of Common Stock immediately prior to the record date with respect to such distribution. The Holder may exercise its option under this Section 7(o) by delivering to the Company a written notice of such exercise simultaneously with its notice of exercise of this Warrant.

SECTION 8. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER OR SALE OF ASSETS. In case of any consolidation of the Company with, or merger of the Company into, any other Person, any merger of another Person into the Company (other than a merger which does not result in any reclassification, conversion, exchange or cancellation of outstanding shares of Common Stock) or any sale or transfer of all or substantially all of the assets of the Company to the Person formed by such consolidation or resulting from such merger or which acquires such assets, as the case may be, the Holder shall have the right thereafter to exercise this Warrant for the kind and amount of securities, cash and other property receivable upon such consolidation, merger, sale or transfer by a holder of the number of shares of Common Stock for which this Warrant may have been exercised immediately prior to such consolidation, merger, sale or transfer. Adjustments for events subsequent to the effective date of such a consolidation, merger, sale or transfer of assets shall be as nearly equivalent as may be practicable to the adjustments provided for in this Warrant. In any such event, effective provisions shall be made in the certificate or articles of incorporation of the resulting or surviving corporation, in any contract of sale, merger, conveyance, lease, transfer or otherwise so that the provisions set forth herein for the protection of the rights of the Holder shall thereafter continue to be applicable; and any such resulting or surviving corporation shall expressly assume the obligation to deliver, upon exercise, such shares of stock, other securities, cash and property. The provisions of this Section 8 shall similarly apply to successive consolidations, mergers, sales, leases or transfers.

SECTION 9. WARRANT AGENT. At the written request of the Holders of a majority of the outstanding Warrants, the Company shall as soon as is reasonably practicable:

- (i) appoint a warrant agent to act as agent for the Company in connection with the issuance, transfer and exchange of the Warrants and shall enter into an agreement with such warrant agent reflecting the terms and conditions of such appointment, which terms and conditions shall be customary for such appointments, and such other matters as are customarily included in such agreements so as to facilitate the transfer and registration of the Warrants; and
- (ii) use its reasonable best efforts to cause the Warrants to be eligible to be publicly traded, including, without limitation, amending this Warrant to provide terms and conditions necessary and appropriate for the Warrants to be publicly traded.

SECTION 10. NOTICES. Any notice, demand or delivery authorized by this Warrant shall be in writing and shall be given to the Holder or to the Company, as the case may be, at its address (or facsimile number) set forth below, or such other address (or facsimile number) as shall have been furnished to the party giving or making such notice, demand or delivery:

Each such notice, demand or delivery shall be effective (i) if given by telecopy, when such telecopy is transmitted to the telecopy number specified herein and the intended recipient confirms the receipt of such telecopy, or (ii) if given by any other means, when received at the address specified herein.

SECTION 11. RIGHTS OF THE HOLDER. Prior to the exercise of any Warrant, the Holder shall not, by virtue hereof, be entitled to any rights of a shareholder of the Company, including, without limitation, the right to vote, to receive dividends or other distributions, to exercise any preemptive right or to receive any notice of meetings of shareholders or any notice of any proceedings of the Company except as may be specifically provided for herein.

SECTION 12. GOVERNING LAW. THIS WARRANT AND ALL RIGHTS ARISING HEREUNDER SHALL BE CONSTRUED AND DETERMINED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE INTERNAL LAWS OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE,

AND THE PERFORMANCE THEREOF SHALL BE GOVERNED AND ENFORCED IN ACCORDANCE WITH SUCH LAWS.

SECTION 13. AMENDMENTS; WAIVERS. Any provision of this Warrant may be amended or waived if, and only if, such amendment or waiver is in writing and signed, in the case of an amendment, by the Holder and the Company, or in the case of a waiver, by the party against whom the waiver is to be effective. No failure or delay by either party in exercising any right, power or privilege hereunder shall operate as a waiver thereof nor shall any single or partial exercise thereof preclude any other or further exercise thereof or the exercise of any other right, power or privilege. The rights and remedies herein provided shall be cumulative and not exclusive of any rights or remedies provided by law.

SECTION 14. Interpretation. When a reference is made in this Warrant to a Section such reference shall be to a Section of this Warrant unless otherwise indicated. Whenever the words "include", "includes" or "including" are used in this Warrant, they shall be deemed to be followed by the words "without limitation". The words "hereof", "herein" and "hereunder" and words of similar import when used in this Warrant shall refer to this Warrant as a whole and not to any particular provision of this Warrant. The definitions contained in this Warrant are applicable to the singular as well as the plural forms of such terms and to the masculine as well as to the feminine and neuter genders of such term. References to a person are also to its permitted successors and assigns and, in the case of an individual, to his heirs and estate, as applicable.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.

Dear Kathryn:

I write in response to your January 23, 2004 letter regarding CPH's production of documents relating to the settlement agreement between CPH and Sunbeam (Request No. 39 of Morgan Stanley's First Request for Production), and documents relating to the warrants received from Sunbeam pursuant to that settlement (Request No. 2 of Morgan Stanley's Third Request for Production).

We are puzzled by your claim that "no documents have been produced that relate to the negotiations of the Sunbeam Settlement Agreement." CPH has produced numerous documents relating to those negotiations, the warrants, and the ultimate settlement. See, e.g., CPH 1409305-1409344, CPH 1394092-1394107, CPH 1410558-1410566, CPH 1410567-1410599, and CPH 1409401-1409427. In addition, CPH's privilege log identifies several responsive documents that are privileged. See, e.g., Privileged Documents 113, 241, 265, 268, 335, and 341.

It is our understanding that we have produced non-privileged documents that are responsive to Request Nos. 39 and 2. That said, however, we will continue to search for responsive documents, and will produce any additional, non-privileged responsive documents that we locate.

Very truly yours,

Michael T. Brody

Dear Tom:

I write in response to your March 2, 2005 letter concerning tomorrow's Rule 1.310 deposition.

1. Mr. Slotkin will be CPH's corporate representative. Subject to the objections set forth in CPH's objections and the guidance provided by the Court on March 1, 2005, Mr. Slotkin will address the topics identified in the Amended Notice of Deposition.
2. We have confirmed that CPH did not create valuations of the Sunbeam stock for tax purposes.
3. We believe the deposition can be completed on Thursday; but we will take under advisement your request to have the witness available on Friday.

Very truly yours,

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.

Dear Larry:

I write to respond to your February 24, 2005 letter concerning the Sunbeam warrants. We strongly dispute the characterization set forth in your letter. In response to your specific questions:

1. CPH did not review documents bearing Bates numbers CPH 2012110-11 and CPH 2012130-31 until February 17, 2005, after the Court granted Morgan Stanley's motion to compel. CPH had begun to collect other documents, such as those that bear the date-stamp of 2/9/05, earlier.
2. Florida has specific rules that govern the obligation to produce documents and supplement discovery requests. So long as a discovery response was complete when made, there is no obligation to supplement a discovery response. Rule 1.280(e). This question has nothing to do with the date on which discovery closes.
3. Aside from this instance, which CPH already has acknowledged, CPH is not aware that any of its discovery responses were not complete when made.
4. The last sentence of your letter is not consistent with the Court's ruling with respect to redactions. The Court ruled that CPH was not entitled to redact irrelevant portions of documents that otherwise were responsive to proper discovery requests. The Court did not revisit any of its prior relevancy rulings. Thus, apart from producing unredacted versions of documents that the Court ordered CPH to produce, there is no obligation for CPH now to produce documents, information, and testimony that address matters the Court previously deemed irrelevant.

Very truly yours,

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.

Dear Larry:

I write in response to your February 24, 2005 letter concerning CPH's production of documents in response to the Court's February 17, 2005 Order.

1. You request that CPH produce electronic copies of documents produced in response to the Court's February 17, 2005 Order. We will follow the direction provided by the Court this morning and produce a hard copy displaying the formulas.
2. You requested the documents underlying the $450 million potential realizable value of CPH's Sunbeam investment. CPH does not have any additional responsive documents concerning the $450 million potential realizable value of CPH's Sunbeam investment.
3. You seek documents concerning MAFCO's and CPH's deferred tax liability, book value, and goodwill. CPH's deferred tax liability is not relevant, as the Court previously has determined. To the extent that tax information is contained in documents responsive to the Court's February 17, 2005 Order, CPH has produced it. CPH, however, will not produce other documents concerning tax issues. Book value and goodwill calculations are reflected in the documents previously produced.
4. You asked whether all documents associated with certain accounts have been produced. CPH has produced all responsive documents associated with those accounts.
5. You request documents reflecting CPH's tax basis in Sunbeam. To the extent that information is contained in documents responsive to the Court's February 17, 2005 Order, CPH has produced it. However, CPH will not produce additional otherwise non-responsive documents on tax issues because the Court previously has ruled that CPH's profit or loss is not relevant.

6. You have requested that we provide you with the dates of the general ledger entries. We have extracted that information from the accounting system and produce it with this letter.

7. You asked for the "original valuation as of issuance date" for the warrants. That notation refers to Sunbeam's valuation of the warrants, which was disclosed publicly in Sunbeam's financial statements.

IN THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,
FLORIDA

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,
Plaintiff,

vs.

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,
Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY'S SUPPLEMENTAL MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. seeks to hold Morgan Stanley to an adverse inference instruction because of discovery delays, even though Coleman (Parent) Holdings and its affiliates (collectively "CPH") repeatedly and flagrantly breached their own duties by destroying e-mails and electronic documents relating to the Sunbeam transaction. Because CPH's own privilege log shows that it recognized the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation starting in the spring of 1998 -- thereby triggering its obligation to preserve evidence -- and because CPH proceeded to destroy evidence anyway throughout 1998, 1999, and 2000, Morgan Stanley respectfully submits this supplemental memorandum in support of its Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Although Morgan Stanley incorporates the Statement of Facts in its Motion, the following additional facts bear emphasis and further support an adverse inference against CPH:

First, CPH was fully aware of the potential for Sunbeam litigation, starting in 1998:

- On April 14 and 16, 1998, Skadden Arps drafted legal documents for CPH relating to the Sunbeam matter. CPH's privilege log admits that the April 14 and 16, 1998

drafts were prepared "in anticipation of litigation." (July 15, 2004 CPH Privilege Log at Doc. Nos. 458, 460, 533 (Ex. 1).)

- On May 25, 1998, Adam Emmerich of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz prepared a legal memorandum for Barry Schwartz and Howard Gittis of CPH, regarding the Sunbeam matter. CPH's privilege log admits that the May 25 memorandum was prepared in connection with "anticipated litigation." (Id. at Doc. Nos. 413, 415.)
- On June 19, 1998, Mr. Emmerich sent a document relating to the Sunbeam matter to Richard Easton of Skadden Arps. CPH's privilege log admits that the June 19 document was prepared in light of "anticipated litigation." (Id. at Doc. No. 489.)
- On June 23, 1998, Todd Freed of Skadden Arps sent a draft document relating to the Sunbeam matter to Mr. Emmerich. CPH's privilege log admits that the June 23 draft was prepared for "anticipated litigation." (Id. at Doc. No. 488.)
- On July 5 and 6, 1998, Wachtell Lipton drafted letters for CPH relating to the Sunbeam matter. CPH's privilege log admits that the July 5 and 6 drafts relate to "potential claims" in litigation. (Id. at Doc. Nos. 569, 570.)
- On July 20, 1998, Wachtell Lipton prepared a "[d]raft complaint re potential claims arising out of [the] Sunbeam acquisition." (Id. at Doc. No. 136.)
- On July 31, 1998, Blaine Fogg of Skadden Arps drafted letters for CPH to the New York Stock Exchange concerning the Sunbeam matter. CPH's privilege log admits that the July 31 drafts were prepared "in connection with [the] "Sunbeam/Coleman (Parent) settlement" of litigation. (Id. at Doc. No. 532.)
- On August 14, 1998, Skadden Arps drafted letters for review by Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Emmerich, and others. CPH's privilege log admits that the August 14 drafts were prepared in connection with "pending litigation." (Id. at Doc. No. 550.)

As these and other entries confirm, CPH expressly recognized the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation in the spring of 1998 -- even before the June 6, 1998 Barron's article detailing accounting and other problems at Sunbeam, and even before CPH entered into a settlement with Sunbeam that specifically reserved its right to bring future claims against "any financial advisor to Sunbeam." (Mar. 8, 2005 Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction at 2-3.)

Second, although CPH was fully aware of the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation, it deliberately and systematically destroyed e-mails in 1998, 1999, and 2000 -- stopping only in 2001, long after the events giving rise to this case. As Steven Fasman, an in-house lawyer whom CPH designated as its corporate representative on document retention issues, admitted during his January 21, 2004 deposition:

- CPH had a policy and practice of destroying e-mails after only 30 days and overwriting e-mail backup tapes after only 60 days (Jan. 21, 2004 Fasman Dep. at 37:5-8; 79:16-18 (Ex. 2)); see also (Apr. 21, 1997 Corporate E-Mail Policy at 3 (MS 62) (Ex. 3));
- CPH continued to purge e-mails from its servers from 1998 until 2001 (id. at 132:6-8 (“There was a progressive process which did involve in part the purging of old and unneeded e-mails, yes.”));
- CPH failed to preserve any e-mail back-up tapes relating to the Sunbeam acquisition (id. at 132:19-21 (“There are no e-mail back-up tapes relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman.”)); and
- CPH did not begin preserving e-mails and electronic documents until 2001, but “[b]ecause relevant events were in 1998,” “everything was long gone by then” except to the extent that an employee might have archived a document by happenstance (id. at 156:19-25 (emphasis added)).

Under these circumstances, CPH’s deliberate and systematic destruction of evidence warrants an adverse inference instruction against it that is at least as strong, if not stronger, than the one presently contemplated against Morgan Stanley. At the very least, we respectfully submit that CPH’s spoliation of the evidence warrants lifting the adverse inference against Morgan Stanley and restoring the burden of proof in order to level the playing field.

ARGUMENT

MORGAN STANLEY IS ENTITLED TO AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION

I. CPH’s DELIBERATE AND SYSTEMATIC DESTRUCTION OF EVIDENCE CONSTITUTES SPOILIATION UNDER NEW YORK AND FLORIDA LAW.

As these additional facts make crystal clear, CPH recognized as early as the spring of 1998 that Sunbeam litigation was likely, but proceeded to destroy e-mails and electronic documents anyway until it became involved in a lawsuit with Arthur Andersen in 2001. It goes without saying that the evidence which CPH destroyed must have included substantial information relating to the Sunbeam transaction, particularly given that CPH consisted of only fifteen or so individuals -- all of whom worked on the transaction -- and yet it has produced less than 60 pages of e-mails in this complex case, the overwhelming majority of which comes from the files of third parties, not CPH. This is not just a question of delays in locating and processing tapes; it is about CPH's admitted destruction of evidence that neither Morgan Stanley, nor the Court, nor the jury will ever have a chance to consider.

Although this Court is well versed in Florida law authorizing spoliation sanctions for this kind of misconduct, Exotic Botanicals, Inc. v. EI DuPont de Nemours & Co., No. 99-12597 CA 23, 2000 WL 34016277, at *6 (Fla. 11th Jud. Dist. Jan. 21, 2000), it bears emphasis that New York law also compels the same result against CPH as a New York entity. "Under New York law, spoliation sanctions are appropriate where a litigant, intentionally or negligently, disposes of crucial items of evidence ... before the adversary has an opportunity to inspect them." Standard Fire Ins. Co. v. Federal Pac. Elec. Co., 786 N.Y.S.2d 41, 46 (App. 1st Div 2004). New York courts have adopted the "principle that negligent as well as intentional spoliation of a key piece of evidence may warrant dismissal." Id. at 45 (citing Kirkland v. New York City Hous. Auth., 666 N.Y.S.2d 609, 611 (App. Div. 1997)); see also DiDomenico v. C & S Aeromatik Supplies, Inc., 682 N.Y.S.2d 452, 459 (App. Div. 1998) ("This sanction has been applied even if the destruction occurred through negligence rather than willfulness..."). As the court observed in Squitieri v. City of New York, spoliation sanctions "are not limited to cases where the evidence was destroyed willfully or in bad faith, since a party's negligent loss of evidence can be just as fatal to the other party's ability to present a defense." 669 N.Y.S.2d 589, 590 (App. Div. 1998).

Of key significance here, courts in New York have long recognized that “the obligation to preserve evidence even arises prior to the filing of a complaint where a party is on notice that litigation is likely to be commenced.” Turner v. Hudson Transit Lines, Inc., 142 F.R.D. 68, 73 (S.D.N.Y. 1991), cited with approval in Fada Indus., Inc. v. Falchi Bldg. Co., 730 N.Y.S.2d 827, 842 (Sup. Ct. 2001). For this reason, the “sanction of striking a pleading has been applied even in instances where the destruction took place before litigation, provided the spoliator was on notice the evidence might be needed for future litigation.” Standard Fire Ins. Co., 786 N.Y.S.2d at 46. As the court observed in DiDomenico, striking a pleading may be warranted “even if the evidence was destroyed before the spoliator became a party, provided it was on notice that the evidence might be needed for future litigation.” 682 N.Y.S.2d at 459; see also Baglio v. St. John’s Queens Hosp., 755 N.Y.S. 2d 427, 428 (App. Div. 2003) (quoting DiDomenico).

It is no answer for Coleman (Parent) Holdings to say that the evidence was under the control of MAFCO or some other affiliate. As an initial matter, all of those various entities are part of Ronald Perelman’s financial empire, and Coleman (Parent) Holdings has readily been able to find documents from those other entities when beneficial to its case. In any event, New York courts have made clear that spoliation can occur even if the party did not own the evidence in question. See Standard Fire Ins. Co., 786 N.Y.S.2d at 46 (“The sanction of dismissal is warranted even though Standard was not the owner of the missing evidence.”); Amaris v. Sharp Elecs. Co., 758 N.Y.S.2d 637, 638 (App. Div. 2003) (granting spoliation sanction for plaintiff’s negligent failure to preserve television as evidence, “notwithstanding the fact that the television set was owned by plaintiff’s employer, a nonparty”).

In sum, CPH’s deliberate and systematic destruction of e-mails and electronic documents, long after it expressly recognized that Sunbeam litigation was likely, constitutes spoliation of the evidence regardless of whether Florida or New York law applies. In contrast, Morgan Stanley has made a considerable investment to create a more accessible and searchable Archive out of hundreds of millions of unique e-mails from tens of thousands cumbersome and unwieldy magnetic tapes. Those efforts have enabled Morgan Stanley, in this case, to search an Archive containing e-mails from tens of thousands of back-up tapes, rather than just the thirty-six tapes required by the Agreed Order. CPH cannot begin to defend its own discovery practices, when it expressly recognized the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation but then carried out a systematic campaign to “purge” its files of e-mails and electronic documents until “everything was long gone....” (Jan. 21, 2004 Fasman Dep. at 156:19-25.)

II. AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION IS THE MILDEST OF SANCTIONS FOR CPH’S SPOILIATION OF THE EVIDENCE.

Because CPH has destroyed e-mails and electronic documents, it goes without saying that granting a continuance to allow more discovery, or barring the plaintiff from introducing the materials, are remedies that have no application here. Nothing can cure the prejudice caused to Morgan Stanley by its inability to test whether these materials contained information helpful to its case. Under these circumstances, the Court would be well within its discretion to dismiss CPH’s complaint as a discovery sanction, which makes Morgan Stanley’s request for an adverse inference instruction the mildest of possible sanctions.

CPH’s actions are particularly egregious because it is not a large organization for which electronic discovery would be particularly burdensome. CPH employed only fifteen or so individuals at the time, all of whom worked on the Sunbeam transaction out of the same townhouse in Manhattan. Some of the senior-most officers of CPH, including Messrs. Gittis, Schwartz, and Fasman, are lawyers, which means that they were expected to understand the duty to preserve documents relevant to likely litigation. And all of them assuredly knew that

Sunbeam litigation was likely, particularly given that CPH, not Morgan Stanley, chose to bring this case in the first place. Under these circumstances, CPH's complaints about Morgan Stanley's delays in processing millions of e-mails from scores of different locations pale in comparison to CPH's destruction of evidence.

The upshot here is that far from representing an extraordinary remedy, the grant of an adverse inference is both necessary and proper given CPH's deliberate and systematic destruction of its e-mails and electronic documents over a three-year time frame -- especially when its own privilege log confirms that it recognized the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation in the spring of 1998.¹ See, e.g., Amlan, Inc. v. Detroit Diesel Corp., 651 So. 2d 701, 703 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995) (emphasizing that when a party destroys evidence that it reasonably should know to be relevant to a pending or potential case, "an instruction may be given concerning the inference that the withheld or missing evidence would be unfavorable to the party failing to produce"). To issue an adverse inference instruction against Morgan Stanley for its tardy productions, while sparing CPH from the consequences of destroying evidence, would be unprecedented.

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, Morgan Stanley requests an adverse inference instruction based on CPH's blatant and intentional spoliation of evidence. A proposed Order is attached.

¹ Indeed, it is particularly remarkable that CPH's corporate representative on this topic, Steven Fasman, is a licensed attorney who was aware of CPH's document destruction policy, but failed to take any steps to stop CPH from "purging" e-mails and electronic documents in 1998, 1999, or 2000. See New York Attorney Disciplinary Rule DR 7-102 (stating a lawyer shall not "[c]ounsel or assist the client in conduct that the lawyer knows to be illegal or fraudulent," or "[c]onceal or knowingly fail to disclose that which the lawyer is required by law to reveal").

17 It's label Bates number CPH 1433326 and it
18 should go through 1433329. Do you
19 recognize this document?

20 A. Other than the document control
21 labels, it appears to be an adequate but 22 hardly perfect copy of the company's e-mail

24 the policy was initially issued.

5 Q. And Wednesday will be overwritten

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. And Thursday the following
9 Thursday?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. That's just for the daily
12 back-ups though; correct?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. After a month, explain to me the 15 monthly back-up procedure.

16 A. There are two monthly back-up
17 tapes. So that a monthly back-up tape will 18 be overwritten every second month.

19 Q. If the saved folder is on this 20 Proliant server, how does it remain exempt
21 from these back-ups and overwriting?

22 A. It doesn't.

23 Q. Than how is it that the saved
24 folder could possibly still be in 25 existence, an e-mail could be there six

9 Q. My question was did you from 1998
10 until the inception of the Andersen
11 litigation on a monthly basis, I'm ignoring 12 the daily stuff now, on a monthly basis
13 overwrite e-mail back-up tapes?

14 A. I think it was every other month.

15 Q. From 1998 until the inception of 16 the Andersen litigation, did MAFCO save any 17 e-mail back-up tapes that related to the 18 Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?

19 A. There are no e-mail back-up tapes
20 relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of 21 Coleman.

22 Q. Did they save any back-up tapes
23 which contained data which related to the 2 August and September of 2001; correct?

3 A. August or September.

4 Q. Assuming that Shallal was filed
5 at some point in April of 2000 for the time
6 being, those tapes from August and 7 September of 2001 would not have the 8 content that tapes from April of 2000 would 9 have on them; is that correct?

10 MR. BRODY: Objection to the 11 form.

12 A. Relevant to Sunbeam?

13 Q. Um-hmm.

14 A. I have no reason to think they 15 wouldn't or, stated affirmatively, I have 16 every reason to believe they would.

17 Q. Wouldn't the Sunbeam materials
18 have been purged?

19 A. Correct. So that the tapes from 20 2000 would be identical to the tapes of 21 2001, that is neither would have anything.
22 Because relevant events were in 1998 and 23 everything was long gone by then unless 24 somebody had saved it in which case it
25 would still be there.

IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,
FLORIDA

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,
Plaintiff,

vs.

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,
Defendant.

Material Redacted Without Prior Determination of Protectability by Court

PROPOSED ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION

THIS CAUSE came before the Court on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction against Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. Based on the briefs from both parties and the evidence introduced, the Court finds:

1. Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. has sued Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley"), for fraud in connection with the sale of stock in The Coleman Company, Inc., to Sunbeam Corporation in return for Sunbeam stock, Sunbeam warrants, and other consideration. CPH's valuation of the Sunbeam stock and warrants, particularly as CPH may have valued those items in 1998 and 1999, are central to the damages issues in this case.

2. Morgan Stanley has sought access to the internal files, including e-mails and electronic documents, of Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and its affiliates (collectively "CPH") throughout the discovery process in this case. Even so, CPH has produced only a handful of e-mails to date.

3. CPH recognized in the spring of 1998, if not earlier, that litigation concerning the Sunbeam transaction was likely.

4. On April 14 and 16, 1998, one of CPH's law firms, Skadden Arps, drafted legal documents that related to the Sunbeam matter and that were prepared "in anticipation of litigation." (July 15, 2004 CPH Privilege Log at Doc. Nos. 458, 460, 533.)

5. On May 25, 1998, Adam Emmerich of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz ("Wachtell Lipton") -- another one of CPH's law firms -- prepared a legal memorandum regarding the Sunbeam matter for Barry Schwartz and Howard Gittis of CPH. The document again was prepared in connection with "anticipated litigation." (Id. at Doc. Nos. 413, 415.)

6. On June 19, 1998, Mr. Emmerich sent a document relating to the Sunbeam matter to Richard Easton, another lawyer at Skadden Arps. The June 19 document was prepared in light of "anticipated litigation." (Id. at Doc. No. 489.)

7. On June 23, 1998, Todd Freed, another lawyer at Skadden Arps, sent a draft document relating to the Sunbeam matter to Mr. Emmerich. The June 23 draft was prepared for "anticipated litigation." (Id. at Doc. No. 488.)

8. On July 5 and 6, 1998, Wachtell Lipton drafted letters for CPH relating to the Sunbeam matter. The July 5 and 6 drafts were prepared in connection with "potential claims" in litigation. (Id. at Doc. Nos. 569, 570.)

9. On July 20, 1998, Wachtell Lipton prepared a draft complaint for CPH addressing "potential claims arising out of [the] Sunbeam acquisition." (Id. at Doc. No. 136.)

10. On July 31, 1998, Blaine Fogg, another lawyer at Skadden Arps, drafted letters for CPH to the New York Stock Exchange concerning the Sunbeam matter. The July 31 drafts were prepared "in connection with [the] "Sunbeam/Coleman (Parent) settlement" of litigation. (Id. at Doc. No. 532.)

11. On August 14, 1998, Skadden Arps drafted letters for review by Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Emmerich, and others. The August 14 drafts were prepared in connection with "pending litigation." (Id. at Doc. No. 550.)

12. CPH was therefore fully aware of the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation, beginning in the spring of 1998. Other evidence also confirm CPH's notice of potential Sunbeam litigation.

13. On June 6, 1998, Barron's, a reputable and widely-read financial newspaper, published an in-depth article detailing accounting and other problems at Sunbeam, including "gimmickry," "shenanigans," "puffery," and "wizardry." (Jonathan R. Laing, Dangerous Games: Did 'Chainsaw Al' Dunlap Manufacture Sunbeam's Earnings Last Year?, Barron's via Dow Jones, June 6, 1998 (CPH Tr. Ex. 321).)

14. By June 30, 1998, the problems at Sunbeam -- and the likelihood of litigation -- were even more clear to CPH. On that date, Sunbeam publicly acknowledged that its financial statements, and the report of Arthur Andersen regarding those statements, "should not be relied upon." (Press Release, Sunbeam Audit Committee to Conduct Review of Company's 1997 Financial Statements (June 30, 1998) (MS 511).) One week later, CPH's Vice Chairman, Howard Gittis, sent a letter to Sunbeam

15. On August 12, 1998, CPH entered into a settlement agreement with Sunbeam that confirmed CPH's awareness of other likely litigation, by stating that the settlement did not cover future claims against "any financial advisor to Sunbeam" -- which would include Morgan Stanley. (Aug. 12, 1998 Settlement Agreement between Sunbeam and CPH at 1 (MS 96).)

16. Although CPH reasonably should have anticipated -- and did anticipate -- the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation shortly after the March 30, 1998 closing, CPH made no effort to preserve e-mails and electronic documents relating to the transaction.

17. Instead of taking steps to preserve and produce e-mails and electronic documents relevant to the Sunbeam transaction, CPH instead deliberately and systematically destroyed those documents

19. CPH continued to purge e-mails and overwrite backup tapes in 1998, 1999, and 2000 -- stopping only in 2001, when CPH became involved in a lawsuit with Arthur Andersen. As Mr. Fasman testified, CPH intentionally engaged in "the purging of old and unneeded e-mails" (id. at 132:6-8), and now "[t]here are no e-mail back-up tapes relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman" (id. at 132:19-21).

20. CPH did not begin preserving e-mails or electronic documents until 2001. By that point, electronic files relating to the Sunbeam transaction largely would have been destroyed because the relevant events took place in 1998 and 1999. As Mr. Fasman put it, "everything was long gone by then" except for sporadic documents that an individual might have archived by happenstance. (Id. at 156:19-25.)

21. Indeed, even though Mr. Fasman is a licensed New York attorney who works in-house for CPH, the record does not reflect any steps he took to prevent CPH from destroying e-mails and electronic evidence in 1998, 1999, or 2000.

22. It goes without saying that the evidence which CPH destroyed must have included substantial information relating to the Sunbeam transaction, particularly given that CPH consisted of only fifteen or so individuals -- all of whom worked on the transaction -- and yet it has produced only a handful of e-mails from its own files. CPH's destruction of e-mails and electronic documents therefore has deprived Morgan Stanley of the opportunity to review materials potentially relevant to CPH's claims or Morgan Stanley's defenses.

23. CPH's destruction of e-mails and electronic documents in 1998, 1999, and 2000, when it knew or reasonably should have known that Sunbeam litigation was likely, violated an affirmative duty to preserve and produce those materials. CPH's actions were deliberate and systematic, and at a minimum amount to gross negligence.

24. CPH's actions are particularly egregious because it is not a large organization for which electronic discovery would be particularly burdensome. All of its fifteen or so employees worked on the Sunbeam transaction out of a townhouse in Manhattan. Some of the senior-most officers of CPH, including Messrs. Gittis, Schwartz, and Fasman, are lawyers, which means that they should be expected to understand the duty to preserve documents relevant to likely litigation.

25. As this Court has previously observed, electronic data are the modern-day equivalent of the paper trail. Indeed, because of the informalities of e-mail, correspondents may be less guarded than with paper correspondence. In this case, the paper trail is critical to Morgan Stanley's ability to defend its case. For this reason, CPH's actions have severely hindered Morgan Stanley's ability to proceed. The only way to test the potentially self-serving testimony of CPH personnel is with the written record of these events.

26. By failing to preserve -- and instead destroying -- e-mails and electronic evidence from the relevant time period in this case, CPH has spoiled evidence, justifying sanctions. "A party has a duty to preserve evidence they know or reasonably should know to be relevant to a pending or potential case." See Exotic Botanicals, Inc. v. EI DuPont de Nemours & Co., No. 99-12597 CA 23, 2000 WL 34016277, at *5 (Fla. 11th Jud. Dist. Jan. 21, 2000); see also Standard Fire Ins. Co. v. Federal Pacific Elec. Co., 786 N.Y.S.2d 41, 46 (App. Div. 2004) ("Under New York law, spoliation sanctions are appropriate where a litigant, intentionally or negligently, disposes of crucial items of evidence ... before the adversary has an opportunity to inspect them.").

27. Sanctions in this context are not meant to be punitive. They are intended, however, to level the playing field. A reasonable juror could conclude that CPH destroyed its e-mails and electronic documents because they would have been damaging to CPH's claims in this case. In addition, Morgan Stanley should not be penalized by being forced to divert the jurors' attention away from the merits of its defenses, to focus on highly technical facts going to CPH's discovery failures here -- facts which cannot be reasonably disputed.

28. Indeed, it can be said that this Order is not a "sanction" at all, but merely a statement of unrefuted facts that the jury may find relevant. And, although the Court previously intended to shift the burden of proof on certain issues from CPH to Morgan Stanley because of Morgan Stanley's discovery delays, CPH's destruction of the evidence is far more serious and accordingly warrants restoring the traditional burden of proof.

29. In light of CPH's deliberate and systematic destruction of e-mails and electronic documents, the sanctions chosen are the most conservative available to the Court. Because the evidence has been destroyed, simply allowing more discovery or precluding CPH from relying on the materials are not available remedies that would make Morgan Stanley whole.

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that:

1. Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction is GRANTED.
2. The Court shall read to the jury the statement attached as Exhibit A during whatever phase of Morgan Stanley's case that it requests. The findings of fact in this statement shall be conclusive. See Rule 1.380(b)(2)(A). No other evidence concerning the production of e-mails, or lack thereof, shall be presented absent further Court order.
3. Morgan Stanley shall be allowed to argue that CPH's destruction of e-mails and electronic documents is evidence of CPH's consciousness of the weaknesses in its case, and that those materials would have been unfavorable to CPH's position.
4. The Court's March 1, 2005 Order, as amended, is further amended to strike Numbered Paragraph 5 on Page 14. The traditional burden of proof shall be restored, and CPH shall have that burden as the plaintiff in this case.
5. CPH shall compensate Morgan Stanley for costs and fees associated with this Motion. The amount shall be determined at an evidentiary hearing to be held after the completion of the trial.

EXHIBIT A

A party must preserve e-mails and electronic documents that may be relevant to a lawsuit, even before a lawsuit is filed, as soon as it becomes aware that litigation is likely.

Coleman recognized in the spring of 1998, if not earlier, that litigation concerning the Sunbeam transaction was likely. On April 14 and 16, 1998, one of Coleman's law firms, Skadden Arps, drafted legal documents that related to the Sunbeam matter and that were prepared "in anticipation of litigation." On May 25, 1998, Adam Emmerich of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz -- another one of Coleman's law firms -- prepared a legal memorandum regarding the Sunbeam matter for Barry Schwartz and Howard Gittis of Coleman. The document again was prepared in connection with "anticipated litigation."

On June 19, 1998, Mr. Emmerich sent a document relating to the Sunbeam matter to Richard Easton, another lawyer at Skadden Arps. The June 19 document was prepared in light of "anticipated litigation." On June 23, 1998, Todd Freed, another lawyer at Skadden Arps, sent a draft document relating to the Sunbeam matter to Mr. Emmerich. The June 23 draft was prepared for "anticipated litigation."

On July 5 and 6, 1998, Wachtell Lipton drafted letters for Coleman relating to the Sunbeam matter. The July 5 and 6 drafts were prepared in connection with "potential claims" in litigation. On July 20, 1998, Wachtell Lipton prepared a draft complaint outlining "potential claims arising out of [the] Sunbeam acquisition."

On July 31, 1998, Blaine Fogg, another lawyer at Skadden Arps, drafted letters for Coleman to the New York Stock Exchange concerning the Sunbeam matter -- drafts prepared in connection with the settlement of litigation between Sunbeam and Coleman. Finally, on August 14, 1998, Skadden Arps drafted letters for review by Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Emmerich, and others. The August 14 drafts were prepared in connection with "pending litigation."

CPH was therefore aware in the spring of 1998 and afterwards, that litigation concerning the Sunbeam transaction was likely. Other evidence confirm CPH's notice of potential Sunbeam litigation. On June 6, 1998, Barron's, a reputable and widely-read financial newspaper, published an in-depth article detailing accounting and other problems at Sunbeam, including "gimmickry," "shenanigans," "puffery," and "wizardry." On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam publicly acknowledged that its financial statements, and the report of Arthur Andersen regarding those statements, "should not be relied upon." One week later, CPH's Vice Chairman, Howard Gittis, sent a letter to Sunbeam

Finally, on August 12, 1998, CPH entered into a settlement agreement with Sunbeam that confirmed CPH's awareness of other likely litigation, by stating that the settlement did not cover future claims against "any financial advisor to Sunbeam" -- which would include Morgan Stanley.

Although CPH reasonably should have anticipated -- and did anticipate -- the likelihood of Sunbeam litigation shortly after the March 30, 1998 closing of the transaction, CPH made no effort to preserve e-mails and electronic documents relating to the matter.

Instead of taking steps to preserve and produce e-mails and electronic documents relevant to the Sunbeam transaction, CPH instead deliberately and systematically destroyed those documents

CPH continued to purge e-mails and overwrite backup tapes in 1998, 1999, and 2000 -- stopping only in 2001, when CPH became involved in a lawsuit with Arthur Andersen. As

Steven Fasman, one of CPH's attorneys, testified, CPH intentionally engaged in "the purging of old and unneeded e-mails," and now "[t]here are no e-mail back-up tapes relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman."

CPH did not begin preserving e-mails or electronic documents until 2001. By that point, electronic files relating to the Sunbeam transaction largely would have been destroyed because the relevant events took place in 1998 and 1999. As Mr. Fasman put it, "everything was long gone by then" except for sporadic documents that an individual might have archived by happenstance. Even though Mr. Fasman is a licensed New York attorney who works in-house for CPH, the record does not reflect any steps he took to prevent CPH from destroying e-mails and electronic evidence in 1998, 1999, or 2000.

The evidence which CPH destroyed likely would have included substantial information relating to the Sunbeam transaction. CPH employed only fifteen or so employees at the time -- all of whom worked on the transaction -- and yet it has produced only a handful of e-mails from its own files in this case. CPH is not a large organization that might be expected to have difficulty gathering e-mails and electronic files: its fifteen or so employees all worked out of a single townhouse in Manhattan, and some of its senior-most officers are lawyers.

CPH's destruction of e-mails and electronic documents in 1998, 1999, and 2000, when it knew or reasonably should have known that Sunbeam litigation was likely, violated an affirmative duty to preserve and produce those materials. CPH's actions were deliberate and systematic, and at a minimum amount to gross negligence.

On this basis, you may conclude that CPH destroyed e-mails and electronic documents relating to the Sunbeam transaction because those e-mails and electronic documents would have been damaging to CPH's claims in this case.

THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,
FLORIDA

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,

CASE NO. 2003CA 005045 AI

Plaintiff,

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY'S
MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION

In a transparent response to the sanctions that have been imposed on Morgan Stanley for its willful destruction of e-mails and systematic misconduct in response to Court Orders, Morgan Stanley is seeking an adverse inference instruction stemming from CPH's internal policy of deleting e-mails and electronic documents after 30 days and overwriting backup tapes after 60 days. Morgan Stanley's motion is baseless and has long since been waived.

First, Morgan Stanley has known about CPH's internal e-mail policy since January 2004, but Morgan Stanley expressed no interest in recovering CPH's e-mails from backup tapes until now. Indeed, Morgan Stanley refused repeated efforts by CPH to reach a global resolution of the e-mail restoration issue.

On October 29, 2003, CPH filed a motion to compel concerning Morgan Stanley's e-mails. See 10/24/03 Mot. to Compel. Morgan Stanley opposed that motion, arguing that the relief CPH was requesting would be unduly burdensome and faulting CPH for failing to produce its own e-mails. See Ex. S, MS 11/5/03 Response. CPH's motion was resolved by an agreement, whereby the parties agreed to reciprocal corporate representative depositions on the e-mail issue. See Ex. A at 3. Pursuant to that agreement, Morgan Stanley deposited CPH's corporate representative on January 21, 2004, and CPH deposited Morgan Stanley's corporate representative on February 10, 2004. At the January 21, 2004 deposition of CPH's corporate representative, Morgan Stanley inquired about CPH's e-mail policy. In fact, it is that testimony Morgan Stanley cites in its Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction. See MS Mot. at 3 and Ex. 7 thereto. The whole point of the corporate representative depositions was to permit both sides to assess further the issue of obtaining e-mails and other electronic documents.

CPH thereafter attempted to secure Morgan Stanley's agreement to reach a protocol for the mutual restoration of e-mails — but Morgan Stanley repeatedly rejected CPH's efforts at compromise. See, e.g., Ex. B (3/9/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare); Ex. C (3/11/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody); Ex. D (3/15/04 Letter from M. Brody to Clare); Ex. E (3/16/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody); Ex. F (3/17/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare).

Because CPH's efforts to reach agreement on the e-mail issue were going nowhere, on March 12, 2004, CPH filed a motion for permission to have a third party retrieve e-mails. See Ex. G. In that motion, CPH proposed that a third-party vendor be given access to both parties' e-mails, restore Morgan Stanley's e-mails at Morgan Stanley's expense, and restore CPH's e-mails at CPH's expense. See id. And at the hearing on CPH's motion, CPH's counsel attempted to address any concerns about the cost disparity between restoring CPH's e-mails and Morgan Stanley's e-mails by offering to split the cost down the middle. See Ex. H at 19-20. Morgan Stanley opposed all of CPH's proposals, and because the Court did not think it appropriate to impose such an arrangement on the parties without their consent, the Court denied CPH's motion. See id. at 18-26. As CPH has shown during the evidentiary hearings this week, Morgan Stanley opposed CPH's efforts to involve a third party because Morgan Stanley knew that a third party would uncover at least some of Morgan Stanley's misrepresentations concerning its e-mails.

CPH thereafter continued its efforts to obtain e-mails, subpoenaing Bloomberg, Inc., Morgan Stanley's e-mail vendor, for relevant e-mails. See Ex. L. Bloomberg responded that it could not turn over Morgan Stanley e-mails without Morgan Stanley's permission. See Ex. M, (3/11/04 Letter from T. Golden to J. Scarola). When permission was sought, Morgan Stanley placed inappropriate limitations and date restrictions on the production. See Ex. N (3/17/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare); Ex. O (4/1/04 Letter from T. Clare to T. Golden); Ex. P. (4/2/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare); Ex. Q (4/7/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody).

As a result of Morgan Stanley's continued stonewalling, on April 9, 2004, CPH filed additional e-mail-related motions to compel. See Exs. I, J. In response to those motions, this Court entered the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order concerning e-mail retrieval. See Ex. K. As CPH also has shown during the evidentiary hearings this week, Morgan Stanley's representations about the possibility of and difficulty involved with retrieving e-mails — representations on which this Court and CPH relied in attempting to resolve the e-mail controversy — were false.

In short, Morgan Stanley has known about CPH's e-mail policy since at least January 2004, when Morgan Stanley took the deposition of CPH's corporate representative on the topic, but Morgan Stanley did not file a motion seeking the restoration of CPH's e-mails, and as indicated above, Morgan Stanley opposed CPH's e-mail restoration proposal. Moreover, tellingly, the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order concerning e-mails addresses only the restoration of Morgan Stanley's e-mails. Morgan Stanley has shown no interest in CPH's e-mails — until Morgan Stanley was sanctioned for its misconduct regarding its own e-mails.

Second, in Morgan Stanley's Supplemental Memorandum in Support of Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, Morgan Stanley makes much of the fact that CPH's privilege log contains entries from April 14, 1998 through August 14, 1998, where CPH has stated that the documents were prepared "in anticipation of litigation." See MS Suppl. Mem. at 1-2. CPH first served the privilege log containing those entries on October 6, 2003. See Ex. R. CPH's privilege log contained entries asserting work product, and the log specifically included each of the twelve documents Morgan Stanley identifies on Page 2 of its Supplemental Memorandum. Thus, Morgan has known about the work product assertions on CPH's privilege log since October 6, 2003.

Indeed, not only has Morgan Stanley known about the privilege log assertions since October 2003, Morgan Stanley also made almost the same argument based on them in Morgan Stanley's November 4, 2003 opposition to CPH's first motion to compel relating to e-mails. See Ex. S. In its November 4, 2003 opposition, Morgan Stanley cited documents listed on the October 6 privilege log, arguing that "CPH was working with its outside counsel to evaluate its options for filing lawsuits against various parties, presumably including MS & Co., as early as July 1998" but did not retain any emails. See id. at 14. Nonetheless, as described above, Morgan expressed no interest in obtaining CPH's e-mails and rebuffed CPH's attempts to reach a mutual agreement on the restoration of e-mails.

Third, CPH is a private entity with no statutory obligation to preserve e-mails. In contrast, as the Court is aware, Morgan Stanley is subject to ongoing e-mail retention obligations under federal law. Thus, in attempting to equate CPH's circumstances with its own, Morgan Stanley equates apples with oranges.

Fourth, none of the adverse inference instruction cases cited by Morgan Stanley (at 8) remotely supports a sanction against CPH. See Amalan, Inc. v. Detroit Diesel Corp., 651 So. 2d 701, 703 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995) (sanctions are appropriate when “a party has engaged in a pattern designed to thwart discovery evincing a ‘continuous pattern of willful, contemptuous and contumacious disregard of lawful court orders concerning its obligation to comply with reasonable discovery requests.’”); Martino v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 835 So. 2d 1251, 1257 (Fla. 4th DCA 2003) (plaintiff was entitled to an adverse inference as a result of Wal-Mart’s disposal of a defective shopping cart that injured the plaintiff, notwithstanding the fact that there was evidence that the plaintiff had identified the defective cart for an assistant manager after the accident and requested the assistant manager to preserve the shopping cart and a surveillance videotape that also was destroyed); Nationwide Lift Trucks, Inc. v. Smith, 832 So. 2d 824, 826 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002) (striking of the defenses in a case involving a forklift accident where the forklift mechanism that caused the accident was not preserved notwithstanding requests by plaintiffs two months after the accident).

Conclusion

Morgan Stanley's motion is nothing more than an attempt to distract attention from its own misconduct and to blunt the effects of this Court's March 1 sanctions Order. The motion should be denied.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al.

Dear Tom:

I write to propose a compromise to address Morgan Stanley's pending motion for production of electronic documents in electronic form, and CPH's need to retrieve responsive email and electronic documents from Morgan Stanley's computer backup.

In response to CPH's previous request that Morgan Stanley review backup for emails and other responsive information, Morgan Stanley has refused to do so, citing the purported burden that would be involved in that process. You contend that because of the burden involved, we are not entitled to obtain any of those materials, even if they exist and otherwise should be produced.

In sharp contrast, Morgan Stanley has insisted that CPH go back and retrieve duplicate copies of previously produced documents in electronic form. When we advised you that it would involve a significant burden to locate those documents in electronic form, you moved to compel and took the position that we should bear that burden on the chance that we would produce metadata for documents you already have in paper form.

To address both sides' concerns over burden, and at the same time accommodate our need to obtain information that we believe is discoverable, we propose that a third-party vendor, Kroll Ontrack, be allowed access to both of our systems to search for the materials that each of us has demanded. Having Kroll, a third-party vendor, conduct the search would prevent disputes concerning the thoroughness of the searches, the costs associated with them, and their timelines.

The protocol that we suggest is as follows:

- (1) Kroll would agree in writing to be bound by the protective order in this case;

16div-029731

040073

Thomas A. Clare, Esq.
Page 2

- (2) Kroll would search Mafco's backup tapes for the electronic versions of email and documents at Mafco's expense, and Kroll would search Morgan Stanley's backup tapes for electronic versions of email and documents at Morgan Stanley's expense;
- (3) Kroll would tender the results of its search of a party's files to that party;
- (4) Each party would review the tendered materials for privilege and responsiveness to prior discovery requests;
- (5) Responsive and nonprivileged materials would be produced to the other side; and
- (6) Any materials withheld on privilege grounds would be listed on a supplemental privilege log and the log would be served on the other side.

Please consider my proposal and let me know whether it is acceptable to you by the close of business on Thursday, March 11, 2004.

Very truly yours,

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding v. MacAndrews & Forbes et al.

Dear Mike:

I write in response to your March 9, 2004 letter regarding (1) Morgan Stanley's pending motion for the production of electronic documents in electronic form; and (2) CPH's apparent desire to force a wasteful and costly restoration of Morgan Stanley's e-mail backup tapes. I will address each of these two issues in turn.

Electronic Documents

Morgan Stanley has consistently produced its electronic documents "in electronic form" in accordance with the parties' written agreement. We are not aware of any electronic server or backup media that might contain additional electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests. Accordingly, at least as it applies to Morgan Stanley, your suggestion that the parties hire an outside vendor to search backup tapes for additional electronic documents would only result in additional and unnecessary costs.

As for CPH's documents that exist "in electronic form," we have examined the electronic documents that CPH produced in hard-copy form and have reviewed Mr. Fasman's deposition testimony on this point. All of the available evidence squarely rejects the notion that it would impose a "significant burden" on CPH to produce such documents "in electronic form" in accordance with the parties agreement. Specifically:

- We cannot square your "burden" argument with the time- and date-stamp information that appears on the documents. Virtually all of the electronic documents in CPH's latest production appear to have time- and date-stamps in the header or footer that show the date and time that they were printed for production. These time- and date-stamps show that these document were located and printed over the course of a few hours in the two days immediately prior to production. Thus, the burden cannot be as great as you claim.

Chicago

London

Los Angeles

New York

040076

KIRKLAND & ELLIS LLP

Michael Brody, Esq.

- Similarly, many of those same hard-copy documents have unique electronic filenames identified in the header or footer of the document. With the assistance of these filenames, it should be relatively easy for CPH to locate and produce documents in electronic form.
- We cannot square your "burden" argument with your prior demands of Morgan Stanley. As you will recall, Morgan Stanley undertook — at your insistence — an even greater burden when, after producing several boxes of documents in hard-copy form, CPH made an identical demand that Morgan Stanley "go back and retrieve duplicate copies of previously produced documents in electronic form." Morgan Stanley did just that, and subsequently produced four CDs of electronic documents that had previously been produced in hard-copy form, representing 723 files and 117.5 MB of electronic data.
- We cannot square your "burden" argument with the parties' written agreement. The parties agreed — in a countersigned written agreement that your firm drafted — to produce electronic documents "in electronic form." To the extent there is an additional "burden" associated with re-producing electronic documents in electronic form, that "burden" is solely the result of CPH's failure to comply with the parties' agreement in the first instance. CPH cannot use its failure to comply with the parties' agreement (by producing documents in hard-copy form only) to manufacture an argument that it is now too burdensome to comply.

In short, the requirement that electronic documents be produced "in electronic form" is well-established by the prior course of discovery in this case, and separately is covered by a countersigned written agreement between the parties. Morgan Stanley is entitled to full compliance with the parties' agreement on this issue, and to the same form of production that CPH has previously demanded from Morgan Stanley.

E-Mail Backups

With regard to the restoration and search of e-mail backup tapes, your proposal to use a third-party vendor does not address — in any meaningful way — many of Morgan Stanley's legitimate objections to the wholesale restoration of e-mail backup tapes. Whether the restoration of e-mail backup tapes is performed by Morgan Stanley IT staff or an outside vendor, the burden on Morgan Stanley from such a wholesale restoration, both in terms of dollars and manpower, would be enormous. Regardless of who performs the initial restoration, it would require hundreds (perhaps thousands) of attorney-hours to review millions of irrelevant and non-responsive e-mails, all for the theoretical possibility that an e-mail drafted years after the underlying financial transactions would be discovered and responsive to CPH's requests. Your proposal to hire a third-party vendor does not address

040077

KIRKLAND & ELLIS LLP

Michael Brody, Esq.

that issue, and instead seeks to shift the financial costs for such a search to Morgan Stanley instead of CPH, the party insisting on such a fishing expedition.

As we have explained repeatedly in correspondence, depositions, and court filings, Morgan Stanley only has the ability to restore e-mail from backup tapes from January 2000 or later, which (even using the earliest point) is more than a year-and-a-half after the events that allegedly gave rise to CPH's claims and, in many cases, years after the Morgan Stanley employees who worked on Sunbeam-related engagements left the Company. Under these circumstances, there simply is no reason to believe that a wholesale restoration of e-mail backup tapes is reasonably likely to yield relevant and responsive e-mails — or that the theoretical possibility of finding relevant and responsive e-mails from several years after the fact would justify the enormous burden and cost of restoring, reviewing, and producing these backup tapes.

Any workable proposal regarding the restoration of e-mail backup tapes must (1) be narrowly tailored to include only those tapes that are most likely to contain potentially responsive documents; and (2) allocate the costs of the search in a manner that recognizes the enormous burden of the search compared to the theoretical possibility of finding potentially responsive documents. We offer the following proposal:

- (1) Morgan Stanley will identify up to five (5) current or former MAFCO / CPH employees to be included in the e-mail backup search. MAFCO / CPH will search their backup tapes for electronic versions of e-mails from those five (5) individuals for the time period from December 1997 through June 1998. In addition, MAFCO / CPH will search for electronic versions of e-mails on the oldest e-mail backup tape that exists for each of those five (5) individuals (i.e. the backup tape that is closest in time to the December 1997 – June 1998 time period).
- (2) CPH will identify up to five (5) current or former Morgan Stanley employees to be included in the e-mail backup search. Morgan Stanley will search its backup tapes for electronic versions of e-mail from those five (5) individuals for the time period from December 1997 through June 1998. In addition, Morgan Stanley will search for electronic versions of e-mails on the oldest monthly e-mail backup tape that exists for each of those five individuals (i.e. the January 2000 monthly backup tape).
- (3) The parties will agree upon a reasonable set of search terms that will be used to narrow the universe of e-mails.
- (4) Each party will review the resulting e-mails and produce responsive, non-privileged e-mails to the other side.

- (5) Any materials withheld on privilege grounds would be listed on a supplemental privilege log to be served on the other side. Depending on the volume of privileged materials on either side, an extension of the typical 30-day time period may be warranted.
- (6) If either party wishes to identify additional employees (beyond the original five) whose e-mail backup tapes will be restored, searched, and produced in accordance with steps (1) - (5), the requesting party will thereafter bear all resulting fees and costs, including (without limitation) all fees and costs associated with restoring the e-mail backup tapes, all fees and costs associated with conducting the keyword search, all fees and costs associated with the privilege and responsiveness review (including reasonable attorneys fees), and all fees and costs associated with producing a privilege log (including reasonable attorneys fees).

I am prepared to discuss these issues at your convenience.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al.

Dear Tom:

This letter concerns our ongoing discussions about your request that we search for documents, which we previously produced to you in paper form, and produce them again in electronic form. In your letter of March 11, you set forth a number of arguments concerning why you believe that we are required to undertake this task, and why you think that task is not very burdensome. We do not agree with your arguments, for reasons we have previously stated, and I do not intend to repeat our contentions in this letter. Instead, the purpose of this letter is to reiterate our desire to reach a compromise, one that accommodates your desire for discovery and our concerns over undue burden.

In your letter of March 11, you identified certain documents with unique codes and certain documents with print dates, from the 320 pages of documents that we previously produced from an electronic backup tape. We have undertaken to locate the documents that you have identified in electronic form, and we will endeavor to produce those documents in that form to you as soon as complete. Our undertaking is consistent with our prior invitation to you to identify the specific documents that you have received in paper form that you also would like to receive in electronic form.

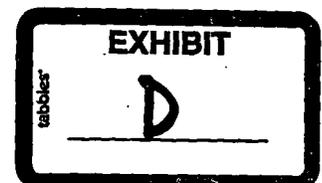

We continue to be willing to entertain reasonable requests to conduct such searches, and alternatively, we reiterate our proposal that both sides retain Kroll for the purposes identified in our pending motion. If you would like to discuss any of these matters further, and thereby avoid having to burden Judge Maass with the motions that each of us have filed relating to this issue, please feel to contact me.

Very truly yours,

Michael T. Brody

Dear Mike:

Thank you for your letter of March 15, 2004. We will consider your proposal.

Your letter does not address the proposal outlined in my March 11, 2004 letter for the mutual restoration and search of e-mails. What is your position on that issue?

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al.

Dear Tom:

As indicated in CPH's March 12, 2004 Motion for Permission to Have Third Party Retrieve Morgan Stanley E-mail, we do not accept your March 11 proposal that Morgan Stanley conduct searches for pre-January 2000 e-mail of five Morgan Stanley employees, with any additional searches to be conducted by Morgan Stanley at CPH's expense. Given the current circumstances, we believe your proposal invites further disputes as to the sufficiency of Morgan Stanley's searches and the reasonableness of any fees Morgan Stanley wishes to charge CPH. As indicated in the Motion and in our correspondence, having Kroll involved will be more efficient, and we will ask Judge Maass to order that procedure on Friday.

Your proposal requested that CPH search the e-mail archives of five of its employees. As Steven Fasman testified, CPH, unlike Morgan Stanley, already has searched its backup tapes for responsive e-mails.

Very truly yours,

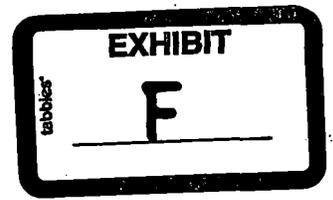

Michael T. Brody

RECEIVED FOR FILING

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION FOR PERMISSION TO HAVE THIRD PARTY RETRIEVE MORGAN STANLEY E-MAIL AND OTHER RESPONSIVE DOCUMENTS

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") respectfully requests that this Court direct Defendant Morgan Stanley and Company, Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") to provide Kroll Ontrack, Inc. ("Kroll"), a third party computer specialist, access to its computer backup tapes (or other storage media) so that Kroll can retrieve e-mail and other responsive documents at Morgan Stanley's expense. In support of this motion, CPH states as follows:

1. As this Court is aware, Morgan Stanley has disclosed that it failed to retain the e-mail that its personnel generated prior to January 1, 2000 — despite having a legal obligation to do so. Based on the depositions taken to date, however, CPH has learned that it is possible that many of these e-mails and other responsive documents could be retrieved from Morgan Stanley's computer backup files. Morgan Stanley, however, has refused to attempt to retrieve those documents on the ground that the retrieval process would be burdensome.

2. To accommodate CPH's need for discovery, as well as Morgan Stanley's concerns over burden, CPH has proposed that a third party conduct the search for e-mail and other responsive documents in Morgan Stanley's backup files. CPH has proposed that the search be conducted by Kroll, an independent firm with the expertise to conduct such a search. Specifically, CPH has proposed the following procedure: (a) Kroll first would agree in writing to be bound by the terms of the protective order entered in this case; (b) Kroll then would conduct a search of Morgan Stanley's backup files for e-mail and other responsive documents at Morgan Stanley's expense; (c) the e-mails retrieved by Kroll would be delivered to Morgan Stanley for review; (d) Morgan Stanley then would review the retrieved e-mails for privilege and responsiveness to CPH's prior document requests; (e) Morgan Stanley would produce all responsive and nonprivileged documents to CPH; and (f) Morgan Stanley would provide a supplemental log of the retrieved documents withheld on privilege grounds.

3. CPH's proposal addresses Morgan Stanley's concerns over burden while it accommodates CPH's need to discover e-mails and other documents that are responsive to CPH's document requests. The proposal also is fair and equitable because CPH has agreed to make it reciprocal. As shown in CPH's response to Morgan Stanley's motion to compel production of electronic documents in electronic form, CPH has proposed the same procedure for the materials sought by that motion: Kroll would be allowed access to CPH's files and would search them at CPH's expense for electronic documents in electronic form.

4. Despite the fairness of CPH's proposal and the obvious benefits of involving a third party — having a reputable third party conduct the search would prevent the disputes that inevitably would erupt about thoroughness, timeliness, and costs if the parties were to conduct their own searches and bill the other side — Morgan Stanley has rejected CPH's proposal for third-party participation. Instead, Morgan Stanley has responded that it would conduct limited searches for email from the files of five individuals — conditioned upon CPH agreeing to a number of undertakings — and would search in additional files only if CPH pays for the process. That is not sufficient. The initial search proposed by Morgan Stanley is far from adequate, given the involvement of dozens of Morgan Stanley employees in the underlying events. Moreover, having

Morgan Stanley instead of a third party conduct the searches would lead to inevitable disputes that could be avoided easily if an independent computer professional were involved. Because CPH's reciprocal proposal constitutes a reasonable accommodation of CPH's need for discovery, and Morgan Stanley's concerns over undue burden, the proposal should be adopted by the Court.

For the foregoing reasons, CPH respectfully requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley to provide Kroll Ontrack, Inc. access to Morgan Stanley's computer backup files in accordance with the terms discussed above, for the purpose of searching for e-mail and other documents generated prior to January 1, 2000 that are responsive to CPH's prior document requests.

1 THE COURT: I appreciate that. Thank you
2 very much.

3 MR. SCAROLA: The next is Coleman (Parent)
4 Holdings' motion for permission to have third
5 party retrieve Morgan Stanley e-mail --

6 THE COURT: Yes.

7 MR. SCAROLA: -- and other responsive
8 documents, which I had spilled over to begin
9 discussing with Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead.

11 MR. SCAROLA: And let me tell Your Honor what 12 the current proposal is that is on the table with 13 regard to these issues, because obviously, there
14 are going to be requests for electronic production
15 and there are going to be arguments about the 16 extent to which it is burdensome and how carefully
17 parties did or did not review the electronic data
18 available to them in order to make the production
19 requested.

20 What we have proposed is that a third party,
21 and we have identified one that we are familiar 22 with and in whom we have confidence, although we 23 are not wed to that particular third-party
24 forensic firm, computer forensic firm, we're open 25 to suggestions if there's somebody else, and 560040

0019

1 there's been some suggestion and discussion today
2 that there may be somebody else in whom the 3 defendants have greater confidence or who has 4 greater familiarity with the defendant's computer
5 systems, and as long as we're satisfied that 6 they're an independent third party, we really 7 don't care who it is.

8 Our suggestion is this. We both want and 9 need electronic discovery. We think that a third
10 party ought to be designated to conduct the review
11 of the electronic records of both firms.

12 One of the issues of contention was who is 13 going to bear the expense of having that third 14 party come in to conduct the review, and to the 15 extent that there is a disparity between the costs
16 involved in conducting the electronic review of 17 plaintiffs as compared to conducting the 18 electronic review of defendants, the issue was 19 will we bear our own burden initially or will we 20 bear the burden of opposing parties initially.

21 What we suggest to the Court to resolve those 22 concerns is that the third party perform the tasks
23 for both parties, both plaintiff and defendants, a 24 total bill will be presented for all of the work
25 performed, the bill gets divided in the middle,

1 the cost of electronic discovery is divided
2 without regard to how much was spent reviewing our 3 records and how much was spent reviewing their 4 records, and quite frankly, we have every reason
5 to believe it's going to be far less costly to 6 examine ours than to examine theirs.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Let me stop you, because I
8 want to again make sure I understand where we are 9 procedurally.

10 What you're talking about is sort of a global 11 suggestion to deal with retrieval of electronic 12 documents in this case.

13 MR. SCAROLA: That's correct.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. SCAROLA: And there are outstanding
16 requests.

17 THE COURT: That was what I was going to back 18 into.

19 MR. SCAROLA: Yes.

20 THE COURT: Because to generate --

21 MR. SCAROLA: To place this in procedural 22 context --

23 THE COURT: I'm not aware of a procedure that 24 would allow me to force you guys into some sort of 25 an accommodation like this, so really, I have two

1 questions, I guess one for each of you, and don't
2 answer them quite yet.

3 First is, are defendants even amenable to 4 something like this or not? I mean, are you
5 amenable to a proposal and we're simply fighting
6 over its terms, or are you guys simply not 7 amenable to a proposal?

8 And then, Mr. Scarola, what I need to know
9 from you is sort of have I jumped -- am I really 10 looking at some sort of motion to compel them to 11 respond to a production request for e-mails
12 generated prior to 1997, or is there some specific 13 discovery request I'm now looking at they have 14 objected to, and you're saying, look, Judge, this 15 information is available, and we're willing to 16 bear the cost or at least a portion of it to 17 retrieve it?

18 MR. SCAROLA: I think the latter is correct, 19 Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. SCAROLA: There have been requests for 22 the production of e-mails, and we'll focus
23 specifically on them, because that's the primary 24 concern.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

860040

1 MR. SCAROLA: Electronic records of e-mails
2 that have been exchanged.

3 THE COURT: Do we agree that there has been 4 such a request outstanding?

5 MR. CLARE: There has been a request
6 outstanding.

7 THE COURT: And have you-all objected?

8 MR. CLARE: From the very beginning.

9 THE COURT: And what's the basis of the 10 objection?

11 MR. CLARE: We objected to the breadth of the 12 request that they're making. And to answer Your 13 Honor's question directly -- and the burden that 14 is associated with it -- that given the particular 15 e-mail back-up tapes that are in existence five,
16 six years after the fact of these transactions,
17 that the scope of the e-mail request that they are 18 seeking is improperly and unduly burdensome given
19 the enormous costs that would be required, given 20 the fact that the time period for which we have 21 back-up tapes postdates the events by several 22 years.

23 And so what Your Honor will remember --
24 To put the e-mail dispute in broader procedural 25 context, we've been arguing about this since

1 October. Mr. Scarola filed a motion to compel the
2 production of e-mails, all of the e-mail backups,
3 and we came in with an opposition that gave
4 substantial figures about the cost and the burden
5 to do this. There was an amended motion that was 6 filed where Coleman requested discovery on the 7 burden and the cost, and we had a round of 8 depositions on this point. So now this is the 9 third motion, and what I believe --

10 MR. SCAROLA: I don't mean to interrupt, but 11 I do mean to interrupt.

12 THE COURT: I was going to say, I think you
13 do, Mr. Scarola.

14 MR. SCAROLA: I do mean to interrupt, and the 15 reason I mean to interrupt is because this is my 16 motion, and I don't mind, obviously, Mr. Clare
17 responding to the Court's question, but he's gone 18 considerably beyond that and is now arguing his 19 position --

20 MR. CLARE: Well, I'm --

21 MR. SCAROLA: -- and I'd like the Court to 22 understand what ours is before we get the other
23 side's argument.

24 THE COURT: Let me ask you this. Has there
25 ever been a disposition of a motion to compel

001070

1 where we have made a determination whether either
2 the scope of the request is overbroad or 3 compliance is unduly burdensome?

4 MR. CLARE: No, Your Honor.

5 THE COURT: Then I guess my question to you,
6 Mr. Scarola, is, are we jumping ahead; do we first 7 need to dispose of that motion absent some sort of 8 agreement to them that, yeah, they're amenable to 9 this type of procedure?

10 MR. SCAROLA: I don't believe so, Your Honor, 11 for this reason. The procedural context is, we 12 filed the motion, they filed their objection, we 13 have made a proposal to meet that objection, and 14 what we're --

15 THE COURT: I don't think I can make a -- 16 I mean, essentially what you're trying to do is 17 force them to mediate the issues raised by the 18 motion, and I don't --

19 MR. SCAROLA: No. No. We've attempted -- 20 We've attempted to resolve those issues between 21 ourselves. We've been unsuccessful in doing that,
22 and this is by way of a motion to compel
23 compliance and a suggestion as to how compliance
24 ought to be compelled.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1010101

0025

1 MR. SCAROLA: That's really where we are.

2 THE COURT: I can tell you, I can't do it in 3 this context. I think what -- I'm not aware of 4 any procedure that would allow me to short-circuit
5 ruling on defendant's objections and require the 6 parties to engage in this sort of shared
7 enterprise.

8 I mean, at a bare minimum, this would have to 9 be piggybacked onto any hearing calling up the 10 objections, so this would be --

11 Oh, you gave me an order.

12 MR. SCAROLA: Yes, Your Honor, I did.

13 And I would --

14 THE COURT: Let me finish writing, and then 15 we'll talk.

16 MR. SCAROLA: Yes, surely.

17 THE COURT: Okay. All this says is it's 18 denied without prejudice for plaintiff's right to 19 argue the propriety of the proposal in support of 20 its motion to compel.

21 MR. SCAROLA: And the only thing I wanted to 22 point out to Your Honor is that regardless of how 23 this motion may be styled, it is clear from the 24 motion itself that what we are addressing is the 25 burdensome objection.

0026

1 THE COURT: I understand that, but again, I'm
2 not prepared for that today.

3 MR. SCAROLA: That's fine.

4 THE COURT: It's not like I've taken out your
5 discovery request, I looked at their objections,
6 I've reviewed the depositions you guys took on 7 this point, and we can now argue it intelligently.

8 MR. SCAROLA: We'll present it to Your Honor
9 in --

10 THE COURT: And please understand when I say 11 without prejudice to their right to argue the 12 propriety of the proposal, I'm not saying I think 13 the proposal is proper; I'm just saying it's 14 something I would really have to go back and think 15 about, and I can't even put it into context until 16 we do the other motion.

17 MR. CLARE: I understand your order to be 18 saying that is step two of what will be a two-step 19 process.

20 THE COURT: Right.

21 MR. SCAROLA: Although, I would hope that we 22 can schedule both at the same time; that is --

23 THE COURT: We can try if my little brain
24 will think that fast, Mr. Scarola.

25 MR. SCAROLA: Okay. Thank you.

IN THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH, COUNTY,
FLORIDA

CASE NO. CA 03-5045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

CASE NO. CA 03-5165 AI

MORGAN STANLEY SENIOR FUNDING, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MACANDREWS & FORBES HOLDINGS, INC.,
Defendant(s).

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION TO COMPEL CONCERNING E-MAILS AND OTHER ELECTRONIC DOCUMENTS

Pursuant to Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.380(a)(1), Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") respectfully requests that the Court direct Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") to: (1) search the information in their possession (including backup tapes and hard drives) for e-mail messages and other electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests for the period 1997-1998, and (2) produce within 14 days any e-mail and other electronic documents that are located. In support of this motion, CPH states as follows:

1. This motion is being brought because Morgan Stanley and MSSF refuse to retrieve and produce e-mail and other electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests. All of CPH's document requests have stated that Morgan Stanley's productions should include those materials. See, e.g., Definition No. 7 of CPH's First Document Request to Morgan Stanley (defining

"documents" to include "computer tapes, computer drives or memories, computer diskettes or disks, e-mail, CD-ROMs, or any other tangible thing on which any handwriting, typing, printing, photostatic, electronic, or other form of communication or information is recorded or reproduced." But in the tens of thousands of pages of documents that Morgan Stanley and MSSF have produced so far, there has been only a small handful of e-mail messages.

2. The apparent reason why Morgan Stanley has produced so few e-mail messages is because, until January 2001, Morgan Stanley had an internal policy of overwriting back-up tapes after one year thereby creating a substantial risk of deleting relevant e-mails. That internal policy was contrary to federal law, which requires regulated entities like Morgan Stanley to retain e-mail in a readily accessible fashion and for a longer period of time. As a result, the SEC, NASD, and the New York Stock Exchange launched an investigation into Morgan Stanley's e-mail non-retention policy and Morgan Stanley ended up paying a $1.65 million fine.

Morgan Stanley's Backup Tapes

3. Despite Morgan Stanley's pre-2001 policy of overwriting backup tapes after one year, we have learned that Morgan Stanley still has backup tapes that likely contain e-mail messages from 1997-1998, the period in which many of the events relevant to this litigation took place. The backup tapes that likely contain those relevant e-mails are the tapes generated in connection with the earliest full backup that Morgan Stanley has performed. We are not certain of the precise number of tapes involved, but based on what Morgan Stanley has told us, we estimate that 25-100 back-up tapes must be searched. Morgan Stanley, however, has refused to attempt to retrieve responsive e-mail and other electronic documents from the backup tapes, despite the likelihood that such materials still exist.

040106

4. In their interrogatory responses, Morgan Stanley and MSSF have identified 36 employees who worked on various aspects of the transaction whereby Sunbeam Inc. ("Sunbeam") acquired The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"). See Response Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 in Morgan Stanley's Responses to CPH's First Set of Interrogatories and Response Nos. 1, 4, 5, and 6 in MSSF's Responses to Defendants' First Set of Interrogatories. With respect to those 36 individuals, Morgan Stanley and MSSF should be required to search their backup tapes for e-mail and other electronic documents created during 1997-1998, the period when Morgan Stanley and MSSF were involved with Sunbeam and the Coleman transaction.

No Undue Burden Exists

5. Morgan Stanley has not disputed that our request for e-mail and other electronic documents seeks information that could lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. The only ground on which Morgan Stanley has objected to our request is undue burden. Specifically, Morgan Stanley has complained of the alleged burden involved both in retrieving e-mail and other electronic documents, and in reviewing the retrieved materials for responsiveness and privilege. Neither objection withstands scrutiny.

A. With respect to the alleged burden associated with retrieving e-mail, there is no indication that the burden would be undue or unfair. Based on our deposition of Morgan Stanley's Rule 1.310 representative, we know that Morgan Stanley backs up its e-mail several times a week and that, for the three-year period starting in January 2000, Morgan Stanley has about 40,000 backup tapes. We are not asking Morgan Stanley and MSSF to search all of those backup tapes. We are asking Morgan Stanley to search only the earliest full backup that they have — a search that will require a review of only a minuscule fraction of the tapes. Although CPH is not sure of the exact number of tapes involved, based on the total number of backups performed and the total number of tapes generated over a three-year period, we estimate that the number of tapes to be searched is probably in the range of 25-100.

The expense associated with that limited search cannot be great, and Morgan Stanley and MSSF should bear that cost entirely. Indeed, Morgan Stanley's Rule 1.310 witness acknowledged that the burden is limited: (a) if the date range of the backup to be searched is short, as is the case here, given that only the earliest full backup, which was performed on a single day or weekend, needs to be searched; and (b) if the number of employees' e-mail to be located is confined, as it is here, given that we are requesting e-mail for only 36 employees.

Nonetheless, if Morgan Stanley decides that it does not want to conduct the search itself at its own expense, then we propose that a mutually agreed-upon third party conduct the search, and split the cost evenly between Morgan Stanley/MSSF and CPH — with the understanding that the expense incurred by the prevailing party in connection with this discovery would be a taxable cost at the conclusion of this case. Given the choice we are proposing — Morgan Stanley can conduct the search itself at its own expense, or if Morgan Stanley so elects, a mutually agreed-upon third party can conduct the search and split the bill 50-50 — Morgan Stanley's objection to the burden associated with retrieving lost e-mail is not well-taken.

B. With respect to the alleged burden associated with reviewing the retrieved e-mail and other electronic documents, that is a baseless contention, because parties customarily bear their own costs when attorneys review materials for responsiveness and privilege. The review of retrieved e-mail and other electronic documents should not be dealt with any differently, especially given that Morgan Stanley has not shown that the review of the still-existing 1997-1998 e-mail and other electronic documents for the 36 employees involved would be unusual or onerous.

WHEREFORE, CPH requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley and MSSF to search the information in their possession (including backup tapes and hard drives) for e-mail messages and other electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests, for the period 1997-1998, for the 36 individuals listed in Morgan Stanley's and MSSF's interrogatory responses. At the election of Morgan Stanley and MSSF, the search may be conducted by them at their sole expense, or by a third party mutually agreed-upon by the parties, with the resulting bill to be split evenly between Morgan Stanley/MSSF and CPH. CPH further requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley and MSSF to produce within 14 days any e-mail and other electronic documents that are located.

vs.

MACANDREWS & FORBES HOLDINGS, INC.,
Defendant(s).

MOTION TO COMPEL MORGAN STANLEY'S CONSENT TO THIRD PARTY PRODUCTION OF RESPONSIVE E-MAILS

Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") respectfully requests the Court to direct Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. (collectively, "Morgan Stanley") to consent to the production of e-mail documents responsive to a subpoena CPH served on Bloomberg, Inc. ("Bloomberg"). Bloomberg has in its possession e-mails sent or received by various Morgan Stanley employees who worked on the Sunbeam transaction and who used Bloomberg e-mail accounts. Bloomberg has advised CPH that Bloomberg will not produce the documents without Morgan Stanley's consent. Morgan Stanley, however, has limited its consent to preclude Bloomberg from producing all documents responsive to the subpoena. In further support of this motion, CPH states as follows:

040113

Morgan Stanley Has Refused To Permit Bloomberg
To Produce All Documents Responsive To CPH's Subpoena

1. Throughout discovery in this case, CPH has attempted to discover e-mails sent or received by Morgan Stanley employees concerning the events at issue. In a deposition of Morgan Stanley taken pursuant to Florida Rule 1.310, Morgan Stanley disclosed that certain of its employees used e-mail services provided by Bloomberg, an independent company.

2. CPH thereafter subpoenaed Bloomberg to obtain copies of e-mails sent or received by the 36 individuals Morgan Stanley identified by name in response to interrogatories in this case as having worked on various aspects of the Sunbeam transaction. Of the 36 employees Morgan Stanley identified, 18 maintained Bloomberg e-mail accounts. Ten had accounts before January 1, 2000; the remainder opened their Bloomberg accounts after that date.

3. In response to CPH's subpoena, Bloomberg took the position that under federal law, Bloomberg was unable to produce responsive e-mail without the consent of Morgan Stanley. Specifically, Bloomberg contended that the Federal Electronic Communications Privacy Act prevented Bloomberg from disclosing the e-mails without Morgan Stanley's permission.

4. In response to the position taken by Bloomberg, CPH requested Morgan Stanley to consent to the disclosure of the e-mails.

5. In two material respects, Morgan Stanley has declined to consent to the disclosure of its employees' e-mails:

- First, Morgan Stanley has refused to consent to the disclosure of any e-mails sent or received after January 1, 2000;

040114

- Second, Morgan Stanley has refused to consent to the disclosure of any e-mails concerning the employees that Bloomberg does not believe maintained Bloomberg e-mail accounts.

As shown herein, Morgan Stanley's refusal to consent to the disclosure of responsive e-mails by Bloomberg is unjustified.

Morgan Stanley's Refusal To Consent Is Unjustified

6. First, Morgan Stanley's refusal to consent to the production of e-mails sent or received after January 1, 2000 is unjustified. E-mails created after January 1, 2000 that refer to issues in this case, or which summarize or describe events concerning Sunbeam that took place at an earlier time, are plainly responsive. There is no basis for Morgan Stanley to prevent Bloomberg from producing those responsive documents.

7. An obvious example illustrates this point. To resolve a recent motion to compel, Morgan Stanley agreed to produce documents created after Sunbeam filed for bankruptcy in February 2001. Nonetheless, in refusing to grant consent for Bloomberg to produce e-mail that was created after January 1, 2000, Morgan Stanley has prevented Bloomberg from producing e-mails that Morgan Stanley itself has agreed to produce if those documents were in Morgan Stanley's files.

8. Morgan Stanley has attempted to justify its refusal to consent on the ground that the production CPH seeks would be burdensome. That claim is wholly unsubstantiated. Because the e-mails at issue are in the possession of Bloomberg, Morgan Stanley cannot describe, divine, or complain about any supposed burden involved in their production.

9. Moreover, the subpoena calls for Bloomberg to produce responsive documents. The only "burden" is of Morgan Stanley's own making. Morgan Stanley wants Bloomberg to produce responsive documents to Morgan Stanley, so that Morgan Stanley can review them before they are produced to CPH. We have no objection to Morgan Stanley undertaking a privilege review, if Morgan Stanley chooses to do so, but that is not a reason for Morgan Stanley to withhold its consent. Indeed, Morgan Stanley has gone further, asserting that it plans to conduct a review for responsiveness. There is no legitimate reason for Morgan Stanley to insert itself into the Bloomberg production for any such screening process.

10. Second, Morgan Stanley's refusal to consent to the production of any e-mails from 18 of its employees is unjustified. Morgan Stanley has refused to consent to the production of any e-mails from those 18 employees based on a representation from Bloomberg's counsel to Morgan Stanley that those individuals did not have Bloomberg accounts. If Bloomberg has no responsive documents concerning an individual named in the subpoena, Bloomberg will have no such documents to produce, regardless of Morgan Stanley's consent. That consent is relevant only if Bloomberg has responsive documents. By refusing to consent to the disclosure of documents, Morgan Stanley's action will stand in the way of Bloomberg producing documents responsive to CPH's subpoena, should they be found. CPH is entitled to know that Bloomberg has produced the documents it has, not simply the documents Morgan Stanley consents to having produced.

For the foregoing reasons, CPH respectfully requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley to consent to the production -- without limitation -- to CPH of e-mail responsive to the subpoena CPH served upon Bloomberg.

3. "Morgan Stanley" means Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. and any of its predecessors, successors, affiliates, subsidiaries, and present and former officers, directors, partners, employees, representatives, and agents.

4. "MSSF" means Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. and any of its predecessors, successors, affiliates, subsidiaries, and present and former officers, directors, partners, employees, representatives, and agents.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Documents shall be produced as they are kept in the usual course of business, or organized and labeled to correspond to the categories in this Request. Documents attached to each other should not be separated. Documents consisting of items previously produced in the Litigations with Bates numbering shall be produced in Bates number order. Documents stored in an electronic format should be produced in a readable electronic format accessible by a standard database program such as concordance.

2. All documents shall be produced in the file folder, envelope or other container in which the documents are kept or maintained by you. If, for any reason, the container cannot be produced, produce copies of all labels or other identifying marks.

3. The relevant period, unless otherwise indicated, shall be from January 1, 1997 through the date of this subpoena, and shall include all documents and information which relate in whole or in part to such period, or to events or circumstances during such period, even though dated, prepared, generated or received prior or subsequent to that period. Please supplement or correct your responses to these requests if, at any time, you become aware that your responses are incomplete or incorrect in any respect.

4. If you claim the attorney-client privilege, or any other privilege or work-product protection for all or any portion of a document, you shall provide a privilege log that describes the withheld material sufficiently to allow CPH to test the privilege or protection asserted.

5. The following rules of construction apply:

- A. The connectives "and" and "or" shall be construed either disjunctively or conjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of the discovery requests all responses that might otherwise be outside of their scope;
- B. The term "including" shall be construed to mean "without limitation"; and
- C. The use of the singular form of any word includes the plural and vice versa.

Dear Mr. Scarola:

This firm represents Bloomberg Inc. ("Bloomberg"). I am writing with regard to your March 4, 2004 subpoena (the "Subpoena") directed to Bloomberg in connection with the referenced matter.

Please note that the Electronic Communications Privacy Act, 18 U.S.C. §2701, et seq., prohibits Bloomberg from producing to you the emails you seek (even in response to your Subpoena) without the consent of Morgan Stanley. So that Bloomberg is able to determine the steps it needs to take, I would appreciate your providing me, by Friday, March 19, 2004, with Morgan Stanley's consent or, if such consent is not forthcoming, with an indication of whether you will withdraw the Subpoena. Of course, you should feel free to call me if you wish to discuss this matter further.

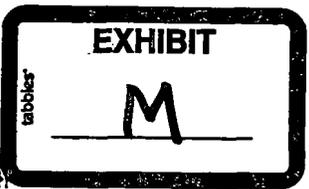

Please note that Bloomberg does not waive any other objections to the Subpoena, all of which are expressly reserved.

Very truly yours,

Thomas H. Golden

Dear Tom:

In response to our subpoena, Bloomberg Inc. has asserted that the Electronic Communications Privacy Act, 18 U.S.C. § 2701 et seq., prohibits Bloomberg from producing Morgan Stanley email unless Bloomberg receives permission from Morgan Stanley. See attached letter from Thomas H. Golden to Jack Scarola, dated March 11, 2004.

Please provide Morgan Stanley's consent to Bloomberg's counsel, Thomas H. Golden, Willkie Farr & Gallagher LLP, 787 Seventh Ave., New York, NY 10019-6099, by March 19, 2004, so that Bloomberg may produce documents responsive to CPH's subpoena. Please copy us on your letter to Mr. Golden.

| Tarek Abdel-Maguid | Ralph Pellecchio | Lily Rafii |
| William J. Sanders | Andrew B. Savarie | Ishaan Seth |
| Mariam A. Short | Bram Smith | James Stynes |
| Chris Whelan | Gene K. Yoo | |

Morgan Stanley does not consent to the production of any e-mails or information regarding these individuals.

Individuals With Bloomberg Accounts After January 1, 2000

You informed me that — according to Bloomberg's records — the following individuals listed on Attachment A of the Subpoena did not have Bloomberg e-mail accounts any time prior to January 1, 2000:

Andrew Conway	Joel P. Feldmann	Michael Hart
William Kourakos	Stephan F. Newhouse	Ruth Porat
William Strong	John Tyree

Morgan Stanley does not consent to the production of any e-mails or information regarding these individuals.

Individuals With Bloomberg E-mail Accounts Before January 1, 2000

You informed me that — according to Bloomberg's records — the following individuals listed on Attachment A of the Subpoena had Bloomberg e-mail accounts for some period of time prior to January 1, 2000:

Shani Boone	05/99 to 05/00
Thomas Burchill	05/98 to 06/00
Benjamin D. Derito	11/97 to 08/02
Karen Eltrich	11/97 to present
Alex Fuchs	07/98 to 08/98
Jake Foley	10/98 to 04/99
Stephen R. Munger	10/99 to 05/04
Michael Rankowitz	01/97 to 03/01
Dwight Sippelle	08/99 to 11/00
William H. Wright	09/99 to 12/99

With respect to these individuals, Morgan Stanley consents to the following procedure:

- (1) Bloomberg shall locate the requested e-mail for these employees for the time period up to and including December 1999.
- (2) Bloomberg shall provide the e-mail for this time period to Morgan Stanley's attorneys for responsiveness and privilege review.
- (3) Morgan Stanley shall produce the e-mails directly to Coleman (Parent) Holdings.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al.

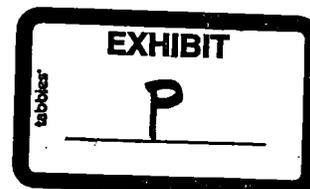

Dear Tom:

I write concerning your letter of April 1, 2004, in which you attempt to redefine the scope of the subpoena we served upon Bloomberg for the production of emails.

You have attempted to limit discovery in two ways. First, you have refused to consent to the production of any emails or information regarding 17 individuals whom you state did not have Bloomberg email accounts at any time during the relevant time period defined in the subpoena. (As you know, the relevant time period in the subpoena is from January 1, 1997 to the date of the subpoena.) Based on my consultation with counsel for Bloomberg, it appears that Bloomberg does not have emails or other responsive information pertaining to these individuals. Thus, to avoid an issue where there is none, I request that you consent to the production sought in the subpoena, and Bloomberg will produce no responsive documents as to those 17 individuals. If, notwithstanding the fact that these individuals did not themselves have Bloomberg email accounts, Bloomberg has responsive documents, your refusal to consent is unjustified.

Second, you have unilaterally imposed a date restriction and have refused to consent to the production of any emails after January 1, 2000. Your restriction has no basis, as the subpoena defines as relevant the entire time period between January 1, 1997 and the date of the subpoena. Nor is your restriction appropriate on the facts of this case. Information contained in emails after January 1, 2000 may be critically relevant. For example, emails sent in 2000 that describe Morgan Stanley's earlier work on the Sunbeam transaction would be responsive and should be produced. Your limitation also is inconsistent with Morgan Stanley's own document production in this case. Morgan Stanley has produced documents generated in or after 2000. In response to our recent motion to compel, you agreed to produce documents created after the Sunbeam bankruptcy in 2001. Thus, your refusal to consent to the production of emails after January 1, 2000 is wholly unjustified.

Thomas A. Clare, Esq.

By copy of this letter, I am requesting Bloomberg to produce to you all documents responsive to our subpoena. This production would include emails from or concerning individuals who themselves did not have Bloomberg email accounts, emails from or concerning individuals who did not have Bloomberg accounts until after January 1, 2000, and emails created or sent after January 1, 2000 for those individuals who had Bloomberg accounts prior to January 1, 2000, as well as the limited quantity of documents referenced in your letter. I acknowledge that Bloomberg has expressed the concern that it may not produce these documents to CPH without consent. I have requested Bloomberg to produce the documents to you. In the event that you persist in your position and refuse to produce documents to us other than as set forth in your letter of April 1, 2004, we can raise the matter before Judge Maass.

Finally, your letter presents two other issues. In discussing the limited universe of documents that you agree Bloomberg may provide, you state that Morgan Stanley's attorneys will review the documents for responsiveness and privilege. What standards does Morgan Stanley intend to apply? Certainly, all of the documents Bloomberg will provide to you are responsive to our subpoena. Also, your letter omits any mention of Joshua Webber, who is listed in the subpoena. Was this omission intentional?

Please respond to this letter on or before April 5, 2004, or the parties will be at an impasse as to this issue.

Very truly yours,

Michael T. Brody

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding v. MacAndrews & Forbes et al.

Dear Mike:

I write in response to your April 2, 2004 letter regarding CPH's subpoena to Bloomberg. I will address each of the issues raised in your letter in turn:

First, we both agree that Bloomberg does not have any e-mails or other responsive information pertaining to the 17 individuals who did not have Bloomberg e-mail accounts during the time period defined by the subpoena. Morgan Stanley's consent (or refusal to consent) is therefore irrelevant.

Second, with regard to e-mails after January 1, 2000, we have explained repeatedly why it is wasteful and burdensome to require Morgan Stanley to undertake a costly review of e-mails from a time period that does not even begin until more than a year-and-a-half after the financial transactions at issue in these cases. I refer you to my March 11, 2004 letter for a detailed explanation of our position in this regard. The instances identified in your letter where Morgan Stanley has agreed to produce certain categories of documents after January 1, 2004 present a different situation. The documents in those categories are expected to be relatively few in number -- and can be obtained from a small number of sources within Morgan Stanley. Those limited categories of documents stand in sharp contrast to CPH's extremely broad subpoena to Bloomberg, which -- on its face -- asks for every e-mail (without limitation and regardless of subject matter) from more than thirty-five individuals over a seven year period. There simply is no reason to believe that CPH's "all-or-nothing" approach to the production of e-mails from after January 1, 2000 is reasonably likely to yield relevant and responsive e-mails -- or that the theoretical possibility of finding relevant and responsive e-mails from several years after the fact would justify the enormous burden and cost of reviewing and producing e-mails from this time period.

Third, you asked about the criteria that we intend to apply during our responsiveness review. As noted above, CPH's subpoena to Bloomberg does not contain any subject-matter limitation. CPH is not entitled to e-mails that have nothing to do with the transactions and issues in this case. Accordingly, we intend to produce to CPH only those Bloomberg documents that are responsive to CPH's outstanding document requests to Morgan Stanley -- subject to Morgan Stanley's outstanding objections to those requests and the Court's prior rulings on discovery issues.

Fourth, the omission of Joshua Webber from my letter was inadvertent. Mr. Webber should have been included in the list of individuals who did not have a Bloomberg account at any time during the time period defined by the subpoena.

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Clare

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH
COUNTY, FLORIDA

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant.

CONFIDENTIAL -
FILED UNDER SEAL

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S OPPOSITION TO COLEMAN
(PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.'S MOTION TO COMPEL CONCERNING EMAILS

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co."), by and through its undersigned attorneys, files this opposition to plaintiff's Motion to Compel Concerning Emails and states:

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holding, Inc. ("CPH") asks this Court to order a massive safari into the remote corners of MS & Co.'s email backup systems. The restoration efforts demanded by CPH would cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars and require several months to complete. CPH's true purpose in seeking this discovery – to harass and burden MS & Co. with unnecessary and costly discovery demands and to attempt to smear MS & Co. with out-of-context recitations from other proceedings – is clear from the face of its own motion. CPH concedes that MS & Co. is only able to restore email from backup tapes from January 2000 and later – more than a year and a half after the events that allegedly gave rise to CPH's claims – yet CPH offers no theory to explain the relevance of such documents. Moreover, CPH requests that MS & Co. complete the location, restoration, review, and production of such documents in 10 days – an impossible task.

CPH's motion is especially brazen since CPH comes to the Court with unclean hands. CPH waited more than five years to file this lawsuit – a lawsuit that neither the SEC nor any other class of allegedly aggrieved persons felt was justified. In the meantime, despite knowledge of actual litigation dating back to 1998,¹ CPH allowed its own email backup tapes to be recycled, making it impossible for CPH and its parent company, MacAndrews & Forbes ("MAFCO"), to provide reciprocal discovery. CPH should not be permitted to impose such a massive and unjustified burden on MS & Co. and benefit from its own malfeasance.

STATEMENT REGARDING APPROPRIATENESS OF THIS MOTION FOR UNIFORM MOTION CALENDAR

CPH's motion is not appropriate for disposition on the Court's Uniform Motion Calendar. The extraordinary relief that CPH seeks – the restoration and review of more than three years worth of email backup tapes – would impose an extreme burden on MS & Co. and cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars. CPH seeks this extreme result without regard to the near-zero likelihood of discovering relevant evidence. MS & Co. should not be required to incur that burden and expense unless and until the Court has had an opportunity – with the benefit of an evidentiary hearing – to understand fully the scope of CPH's demand.

In opposition to CPH's motion, MS & Co. intends to present evidence – including live testimony from personnel in MS & Co.'s Information Technology department – regarding the technological feasibility of CPH's demands regarding backup media, as well as the enormous burden and costs that would be imposed on MS & Co. if the motion were granted. Accordingly, unless the Court is prepared to deny CPH's motion in its entirety, MS & Co. requests that the Court set the motion for a special evidentiary hearing.

¹ "[B]y the year end 1998 there was litigation of which I was aware." (Sept. 15, 2003 Fasman Dep. at 66 (Ex.1).)

MS & CO.'S EMAIL BACKUP AND RESTORATION SYSTEMS

Since the evolution of email applications for business use, MS & Co. has deployed email and backup systems throughout its network of over 50,000 employees in over 28 countries, consistently updating and improving its systems as technology evolved along the way. MS & Co. has operated systems for backing up its various email and electronic databases on its mainframe computers, both for business-continuity purposes and for regulatory compliance, ever since it first deployed email throughout the company. Before 2000, MS & Co. relied principally on a commercial product known as "Legato Networker" to backup onto magnetic tapes all data on MS & Co.'s Unix servers, including email. The magnetic tapes were retained for one year, then overwritten and recycled in the normal course of business. Unfortunately, the Legato Networker system encountered technical and operational difficulties that made it difficult for MS & Co. to backup email messages reliably in all circumstances.

In late 2000, MS & Co. migrated to a new email backup system that was more reliable and robust – Veritas Net Backup. The Veritas Net Backup system stores archived email and other documents on magnetic tape without any sort of detailed index. The net result is that, given the operational and technical difficulties experienced with the discontinued Legato Networker system, and because MS & Co., in the normal course of business, recycled its magnetic backup tapes after one year, MS & Co. can only reliably restore electronic documents on back up tapes created after January 2000.²

Even for those documents that can be restored, the restoration of backups from magnetic tape is a very long, expensive process. As an initial matter, the sheer volume of MS & Co.'s backup tapes is staggering. For instance, the email backups for the period from January 2000 to May 2001 are stored on over 24,000 Legato magnetic tapes. These 24,000 tapes also contain a considerably greater amount of non-email data, which increases the time required to search for requested materials.

Given the tens of thousands of backup tapes that hold historical data, simply locating the appropriate tapes to restore is a time- and resource-intensive process. First, a list of relevant employees must be identified and agreed upon. Then, MS & Co. IT staff must spend time working with a forensic investigations staff to determine which mail server and partition stores those users' data. But this review only reveals information regarding a user's current storage location. If a user has switched servers or partitions during their time at MS & Co. (an extremely common occurrence that typically happens to every employee who has been with MS & Co. for any length of time), then additional searches must be conducted in order to determine each previous server and partition location for the employee.

Once a user's mail server and partition location are determined, this information is given to the distributed systems IT personnel who must search a database to determine where the respective tapes are located. Typically, tapes are stored offsite by a vendor, and even after they are located, they must be recalled before any restoration can begin. Because of the sheer volume settlement – which involved not only MS & Co. but also four other major securities firms (Goldman Sachs, Deutsche Bank, Saloman Smith Barney and U.S. Bancorp Piper Jaffray) – reflected the negotiated resolution of a long-standing dispute between the industry and the SEC over the proper interpretation and application of the SEC's regulatory records retention requirements to evolving email technologies. The settlement did not involve any allegation that the firms had intentionally destroyed records to hinder regulatory oversight or otherwise avoid any liability. Moreover, the email at issue in the regulatory settlement related to 1999 and 2000 – i.e., periods well after the relevant time period at issue here.

in tapes, and the incidence of human error on the part of storage facility personnel, it is not uncommon for this stage to be subject to additional delays. On average, it takes 1 - 2 weeks per user simply to locate and retrieve appropriate backup tapes.

After the required tapes are located and recalled from storage, they must be restored. Due to the limitations of the hardware and software involved and the incredible demands upon MS & Co.'s IT resources, MS & Co. is only able to restore, at most, 3 to 5 backup tapes per day. Indeed, this volume of restoration would only be possible if MS & Co. retained an outside vendor to assist in the restoration process – an undertaking that, given the breadth of CPH's request, would take months and cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars. Even then, the restoration is uncertain to yield useful results due to problems that may have been encountered during the backup or to the deterioration of the tapes.

Beyond locating and restoring the backup tapes, MS & Co. also would have to review the restored data for responsiveness, confidentiality and privilege, another time consuming and costly task likely to result, in this case, in the production of only a few responsive documents, if any at all. Backup tapes save information indiscriminately – without regard to source or topic – and they must be restored in the same manner. This means that the vast majority of data that would be restored would be completely unrelated to the transaction at issue. MS & Co. would have to enter into a contract with an outside vendor, solely to assist in MS & Co.'s ability to process these restored emails as efficiently and effectively as possible. This contract would likely cost an additional hundreds of thousands of dollars. The outside vendor would remove exact duplicates through a process known as de-duping and then prepare and format the restored emails for electronic review. The vendor would then send the de-duped data to outside counsel, where technical staff would load it into a database and search it for the necessary terms. Emails containing those terms are then loaded into review folders for attorney review. The time required for attorney review varies considerably according to the number of documents involved, the complexity of the search criteria, and the medium being reviewed.

Even with such Herculean efforts, MS & Co. can only reliably restore backup tapes created after January 2000 – several years after the events that gave rise to the claims CPH seeks to assert in this case. Even for this irrelevant time period, the backup and restoration of email from magnetic tape is at best an uncertain process that will cost well over hundreds of thousands of dollars, take months to complete, and likely yield nothing more than the production of a handful of responsive documents, if any at all.

ARGUMENT

I. CPH CANNOT JUSTIFY THE ENORMOUS BURDEN THAT IT SEEKS TO IMPOSE TO OBTAIN IRRELEVANT DOCUMENTS.

A. CPH Seeks To Impose Extreme Burden And Expense On MS & Co.

The sort of harassing fishing expedition that CPH proposes in its motion is neither justified nor permitted by law. Numerous courts have recognized the enormous burden of restoring magnetic backup tapes. See, e.g., Murphy Oil USA, Inc. v. Fluor Daniel, Inc., No. Civ. A. 99-3564, 2002 WL 246439, at *2 (E.D. La. Feb. 19, 2002) (recognizing that it would take at least 6 months and cost an estimated $6 million to comply with request to restore backup tapes). Balancing the huge burden of such restoration against the potential benefit, courts routinely refuse a party's attempt to force such an undertaking or shift the cost to the requesting party. See, e.g., Wright v. AmSouth Bancorporation, 320 F.3d 1198, 1205 (11th Cir. 2003) (affirming district court order denying motion to compel discovery of all computer tape copies of word processing files created by 5 employees over a two and one-half year period); McPeck v. Ashcroft, 212 F.R.D. 33, 36 (D.D.C. 2003) (declining to order searches of certain backup tapes where the burden on defendant would be great and it was unlikely that a search would produce relevant documents because the time period covered by the tapes was not contemporaneous with the events at issue); Concord Boat Corp. v. Brunswick Corp., No. LRC-95-781, 1997 WL 33352759, at *9 (E.D. Ark. Aug. 29, 1997) (“Fourteen days worth of e-mail, which might contain a few deleted e-mail, seems to hardly justify the expense necessary to obtain it. Similarly, even if earlier backup tapes containing ‘snapshots’ of the system were in existence, the potential limited gains from a search of such tapes would be outweighed by the substantial burden and expense of conducting the search. Accordingly, the Court finds that Defendant will not be required to restore and search any available backup tapes which might contain deleted Fischer e-mail.”).

The process for retrieving, restoring, searching, and producing backup emails is widely recognized as an enormously burdensome task. As an initial matter, magnetic backup tapes “can retain staggering amounts of data.” Martin H. Redish, Electronic Discovery and the Litigation Matrix, 51 Duke L.J. 561, 590 (Nov. 2001). For example, “one eight-millimeter backup tape can hold as much information as 1500 boxes of paper.” Id. Moreover, even within this vast mass of undifferentiated data, it is extremely time consuming and burdensome to locate any particular piece of information. See, e.g., McPeck, 212 F.R.D. at 35 (noting that “the frustration of electronic discovery as it relates to backup tapes is that backup tapes collect information indiscriminately, regardless of topic” and, as a result, one typically “cannot reasonably predict that information is likely to be on a particular tape”).

MS & Co.’s electronic backup system, as described above, is complex and extensive. As a result, the process for retrieving, restoring, searching and producing emails from MS & Co.’s electronic backup system is unreasonably costly and time consuming, and would require countless man-hours by outside vendors and attorneys, in addition to MS & Co. employees. To put CPH's request in context, it is important to recognize that simply to search the 24,000 Legato Networker magnetic tapes from the January 2000-May 2001 time period would be the equivalent of searching tens of millions of pages of paper – a truly staggering amount.

As MS & Co. intends to show during a evidentiary hearing on this issue, MS & Co.'s Information Technology Department estimates that compliance with CPH's extraordinary request would not only be completely impossible to achieve within 10 days – as CPH demands – but would ultimately cripple the progress of this case altogether.

The process of restoring electronic backup tapes proceeds in four distinct stages: retrieval, restoration, processing, and review. On average, during the first stage, it takes 1-2 weeks per specified user just to identify, locate, and retrieve the electronic backup tapes that correspond to a particular server and user. This means that, if MS & Co. were to be forced just to track down and retrieve the electronic backup tapes for each of the 55 employees CPH has indicated that it believes is relevant in this case, see Sept. 2, 2003 CPH's Responses and Objections to MS & Co.'s First Set of Interrogatories at 6-7 (Ex. 2), and did so seriatim, it would take approximately 27 months to complete just that task. While MS & Co. may be able to complete this task more quickly, it could only do so by applying more resources, at greater cost.

Second, once the pertinent tapes were identified and retrieved, MS & Co. would need to hire an outside forensics vendor – at significant cost and delay – to assist it in the actual restoration process. MS & Co. estimates that the actual restoration phase of this process could take another several months at additional significant cost. See Stephen J. Snyder and Abigail E. Crouse, Applying Rule 1 in the Information Age, 4 Sedona Conf. J. 165, 168 (Fall 2003) (noting that it could take an electronic discovery vendor 100 hours just to restore only one month's worth of a company's deleted email).

Next, once the restoration was complete, MS & Co. would likely need to retain yet another outside vendor – at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars – to assist in the process of removing exact duplicates and preparing and formatting the restored emails for electronic review. The turnaround time on such a large electronic document processing project could take several months.

Finally, after the processing phase was finished, a phalanx of attorneys would need to be deployed in order to review the mass of restored emails for responsiveness, confidentiality, and privilege.

In total, MS & Co. estimates that it could take over a year and could cost several hundred thousand dollars to comply with CPH's extraordinary demand. The reasonableness of this estimate is confirmed by other cases that have recognized the burden imposed by such requests. See, e.g., Murphy Oil USA, 2002 WL 246439, at *2 (recognizing that it would take at least 6 months and cost an estimated $6 million to comply with request to restore backup tapes); Rowe Entertainment, Inc. v. William Morris Agency, Inc., 205 F.R.D. 421, 425 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (noting that the estimated cost of producing email off of all of defendant's backup tapes could mushroom to $9.75 million).

B. CPH Does Not Offer Even A Minimal Theory Of Relevancy To Justify Its Extraordinary Request.

CPH offers no justification whatsoever for its request that the Court order MS & Co. to undertake a costly restoration of email backup tapes created two years after the acquisition and financing transactions that form the basis of CPH's Complaint. CPH's Complaint focuses exclusively on the time period leading up to Sunbeam's acquisition of The Coleman Company in March 1998. In particular, CPH focuses its allegations on a narrow two-week time frame between March 17-18, 1998, and March 30, 1998, in which CPH alleges that MS & Co. somehow learned of the fraud at Sunbeam prior to the acquisition. (See May 8, 2003 Compl. ¶¶ 53-77.) Both parties have therefore focused their discovery efforts on documents created in or around these two weeks in March of 1998. (See May 9, 2003 Plf's 1st Req. for Prod. of Docs.)

CPH's present motion, however, seeks to restore electronic documents saved during a wholly different time period. MS & Co., as noted above and acknowledged in CPH's Motion, can only reliably restore electronic documents archived during or after January 2000 from its electronic backup tape systems. But CPH's motion does not even attempt to explain how backup tapes from almost two years after the events at issue could contain documents that are even remotely relevant to this case – or responsive to its requests. See McPeck, 212 F.R.D. at 35 (“The likelihood of finding relevant data has to be a function of the application of the common sense principle that people generate data referring to an event, whether e-mail or word processing documents, contemporaneous with that event. . . . Conversely, it is unlikely that people, working in an office, generate data about an event that is not contemporaneous unless they have been charged with the responsibility to investigate that event or to create some form of history about it.”).

Indeed, CPH does not even suggest that relevant documents responsive to its document requests are likely to exist in these backup tapes³, because it is obvious that they would not. Nonetheless, consistent with CPH's scorched-earth discovery tactics designed to burden and harass MS & Co. into an undeserved settlement,⁴ CPH asks this Court to sanction an enormously burdensome recovery process that would cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars and significantly delay this case without even a minimal showing of relevance. The burden CPH seeks to impose simply cannot be justified given the fact that CPH has not attempted to make even a threshold showing of relevance. See Wright, 320 F.3d at 1205 (affirming district court order denying motion to compel discovery of all computer tape copies of word processing files created by 5 employees over a two-and-one-half year period where plaintiff failed to proffer a theory of relevance). At a minimum, MS & Co. should not be forced to incur such extraordinary costs until a decision is made on its pending motion to dismiss.

C. The Court's Prior Discovery Rulings Confirm The Irrelevancy Of Documents Created After January 2000.

It is undisputed that MS & Co. is only able (albeit with considerable burden and expense) to restore backup tapes archived since January 2000. But the Court has already determined the irrelevancy of documents created after January 2000. Just last week, the Court limited CPH's far less burdensome request for "all documents concerning Scott Paper" to documents created between January 1, 1997 and January 1, 2000. (See Oct. 27, 2003 Order on Coleman (Parent) Holding's Motion to Compel Production of Documents Relating to Scott Paper (Ex. 3).) Counsel for CPH agreed with the Court's time limitation. The Court's prior ruling on this issue and counsel's agreement confirms that documents created after January 2000 are irrelevant to CPH's claims. As with the "Scott Paper" document requests, MS & Co. should not be required to undertake the burden and expense of searching email backup tapes from later time periods.

The acquisition and financing transactions that form the basis of CPH's purported claims closed in March 1998. That is the latest possible date that CPH could even argue that MS & Co.'s documents are relevant to this lawsuit. The Court's prior discovery ruling confirms that documents created years after the fact are not relevant to CPH's claims. The ruling applies with even greater force to CPH's current request, which would impose exponentially greater burdens and expenses on MS & Co.

II. ALTERNATIVELY, IF CPH'S MOTION IS GRANTED, CPH SHOULD BE ORDERED TO ABSORB THE EXTRAORDINARY COSTS OF THE ELECTRONIC RECOVERY PROCESS.

The recovery of email from emergency electronic disaster-recovery backup tapes is, as outlined above, an extraordinarily burdensome, costly, and time-consuming process. In recognition of this fact, those few courts that have ordered production of even a limited set of backup tapes have forced the requesting party to incur the costs associated with such an extraordinary request if they chose to insist upon it. See, e.g., Murphy Oil USA, 2002 WL 246439, at *6 (shifting the estimated $6 million cost of restoring backup tapes to requesting party); Rowe, 205 F.R.D. at 433; Byers v. Illinois State Police, No. 99 C 8105, 2002 WL 1264004, at *11-12 (N.D. Ill. June 3, 2002); Kormendi v. Computer Assocs. Int'l, Inc., No. 02 Civ. 2996, 2002 WL 31385832, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 21, 2002); Anti-Monopoly, Inc. v. Hasbro, No. 94-Civ. 2120 LMMAJP, 1996 WL 22976, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 23, 1996); In re Air Crash

Disaster at Detroit Metropolitan Airport on Aug. 16, 1987, 130 F.R.D. 634, 636 (E.D. Mich. 1989).

Such cost-shifting has been endorsed by both the American Bar Association and the Sedona Conference Working Group on Best Practices for Electronic Document Retention & Production. See, e.g., Jonathan M. Redgrave, The Sedona Principles: Best Practices Recommendations & Principles for Addressing Electronic Document Production, 4 Sedona Conf. J. 197, 230 (Fall 2003) (“Absent special circumstances, costs of electronic discovery involving extraordinary effort or resources (including deleted data, disaster recovery backup tapes, residual data and legacy systems and tapes) should be allocated to the requesting party.”); id. (“The discovering party generally should bear any special expenses incurred by the responding party in producing requested electronic information.”) (quoting ABA Discovery Standard 29(b)(iiii)). Therefore, should this Court be inclined to grant CPH’s motion, MS & Co. respectfully requests that CPH be ordered to incur the costs associated with the backup recovery process.

III. CPH’S MOTION SHOULD BE DENIED FOR THE ADDITIONAL REASON THAT CPH APPROACHES THIS COURT WITH UNCLEAN HANDS.

In the state of Florida and elsewhere, it is axiomatic that a party that comes to court seeking relief that lies within the sound discretion of the district court must do so with clean hands. See Ashwood v. Patterson, 49 So. 2d 848, 850 (Fla. 1951) (invoking a “fundamental equitable principle that ‘no one shall be permitted to profit by his own fraud, or take advantage of his own wrong, or found any claim upon his own iniquity, or profit by his own crime’”). In this case, however, CPH has utterly failed to do so.

Unlike MS & Co., CPH was almost immediately involved in litigation after Sunbeam’s acquisition of Coleman in 1998 – and was under an immediate legal duty to preserve all documents relating to its claims. Indeed, CPH was working with its outside counsel to evaluate its options for filing lawsuits against various parties, presumably including MS & Co., as early as July 1998.⁵

Yet CPH waited five years – until the eve of the running of the statute of limitations – to institute suit against MS & Co. In that five-year period, despite a legal obligation to preserve documents in anticipation of its successive lawsuits against Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen, and MS & Co., CPH – a company that shuns a formal document retention policy⁶ – admittedly failed to retain a significant amount of documents relating to the events at issue. For instance, CPH never halted the recycling of its email backup tapes.⁷ Indeed, CPH did not even begin to collect documents related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman until sometime around 2000,⁸ and even then, it refused to search for and collect any electronic documents.⁹ As a result, since CPH's electronic backup systems are recycled on approximately a monthly basis, not a single email or other electronic document originating from CPH has apparently been retained.

⁶ (See Fasman Dep. at 31-32 (“Q: So has Coleman (Parent) ever had a document retention policy? A: No. Q: Has Coleman (Parent) ever had any policy related to the use of electronic documents, including e-mails? A: No. Q: Is it true that MacAndrews & Forbes has no document retention policy? A: Correct. Q: Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever had a document retention policy? A: No.”).)

⁸ (See Fasman Dep. at 84 (“Q: When is the first time that anyone collected CPH or MAFCO documents related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman? A: Collected documents in connection with a request to produce documents? Q: For any purpose. A: 2000. Or 99, 2000, that period.”).)

⁹ (See Fasman Dep. at 99, 108 (“Q: In Mr. Golden's collection of documents for the securities litigation [in 2000] did he collect from anyone electronic documents? A: No. . . . Q: Did Mr. Golden undertake any search of the servers in response to the document production or collection in 1999 or 2000 for the securities litigation? A: No.”).)

Nonetheless, after it ensured that all of its own electronic documents were destroyed, CPH filed a lawsuit against MS & Co seeking to recover hundreds of millions of dollars.

Undaunted by its own deficiencies, and unwilling to accept efforts at compromise proposed by MS & Co., CPH now asks this Court to order MS & Co. to do what it cannot: restore email off of backup systems. And it asks this Court to order such extraordinarily costly and burdensome discovery before a pending motion to dismiss in this case is decided, which could potentially obviate the need to incur hundreds of thousands of dollars in recovery costs altogether. If CPH's motion is granted, it would result in patent unfairness to MS & Co. In essence, CPH could actually benefit from its own destruction of documents. Such a one-sided result should not be sanctioned by this Court. Those with unclean hands should not be heard to complain.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, MS & Co. respectfully requests that this Court deny CPH's motion to compel concerning emails. If the motion is granted, however, MS & Co. respectfully requests that CPH be required to pay for the costs of the recovery.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY'S
MOTION FOR SANCTIONS FOR ALLEGED DISCOVERY ABUSES

In a further attempt to distract attention from its repeated violations of the Court's Orders, Morgan Stanley has filed another motion for sanctions based on so-called discovery "abuses" associated with CPH's recent production of MAFCO Holdings Inc. ("MAFCO") financial information. Morgan Stanley's motion, which addresses discovery disputes that this Court already disposed of in its February 17 and 24, 2005 Orders (see Exs. 1-2), centers on two purported valuation numbers: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]. As is demonstrated more fully below, Morgan Stanley's motion is without merit and should be denied.

First, with respect to the [REDACTED], CPH produced documents containing that number by noon on February 18, in accordance with this Court's February 17, 2005 Order. Moreover, despite Morgan Stanley's attempt to portray the [REDACTED]

Second, with respect to the [REDACTED] that CPH produced on February 20, that is hardly news. Morgan Stanley has known for years that Sunbeam [REDACTED] and Morgan Stanley has examined witnesses about that number. [REDACTED]

Thus, as is demonstrated more fully below, Morgan Stanley's attempt to obtain additional sanctions is unfounded. Unlike Morgan Stanley, which has fought CPH's legitimate discovery efforts and this Court's Orders every inch of the way, CPH has complied properly and in good faith with this Court's Orders and has not prejudiced Morgan Stanley.

Background

A brief timeline of relevant events would be helpful to place Morgan Stanley's assertions in context:

November 18-19, 2004. In its February 15, 2005 motion to compel, Morgan Stanley concedes that it learned of the existence of the financial documents at issue when it deposed Lawrence Winoker and Howard Gittis. See Ex. 3, 2/15/05 Mot. ¶ 3. Morgan Stanley, however, did not file a motion to compel before the November 23 discovery cut-off — instead waiting until February 15, 2005 to file one. At the February 17 hearing on Morgan Stanley's motion, the Court found that the delay from the time CPH responded to Morgan Stanley's original document request through November 18, 2004 was chargeable to CPH, but the delay in the production of documents from November 18, 2004 through February 17, 2005 was Morgan Stanley's fault. See Ex. 4, 2/17/05 Tr. 989-90.

February 15-17, 2005. Morgan Stanley filed its motion to compel, and two days later, CPH responded. That same day, February 17, the Court granted Morgan Stanley's motion, directing that (Ex. 1):

CPH shall produce for inspection and copying by 12 noon February 18, 2005 all documents within the care, custody, or control of it or any related entity reflected in the accounting value, book value, balance sheet value, or internal valuation of the Sunbeam stock received by CPH in the transaction, produced during and/or reflecting a value at any time between the date the transaction closed and the date Sunbeam first sought bankruptcy protection. By 12 noon February 23, 2005, any party may serve motions for discovery directly related to newly produced items, which must be responded to by 12 noon February 25, 2005.

February 18, 2005. By noon on Friday, February 18, CPH produced redacted financial information in response to the Court's February 15 Order. The documents that were produced

Also on February 18, because CPH redacted information from the materials produced by Morgan Stanley and had no time to seek guidance from the Court as to the propriety of doing so before the weekend, CPH served a motion to determine whether the information it had provided was in full compliance with this Court's February 17 Order. See Ex. 6. CPH represented in its motion that it was bringing unredacted copies of all of the documents to Court on the next court day and CPH in fact did so. The Court overruled CPH's redactions (Ex. 7, 2/24/05 Tr. 1554-55), and CPH promptly provided unredacted copies of the documents to Morgan Stanley.

before receiving the documents on February 20, 2005, but in fact, CPH produced a document reflecting that [REDACTED] during CPH's first document production. That document containing [REDACTED] — which was marked by Morgan Stanley as MS Deposition Exhibit 97 (Ex. 9) — was used at multiple depositions by Morgan Stanley to question witnesses [REDACTED]. See, e.g., Ex. 10, Ginstling Dep. at 266-68; Ex. 24, Winoker 11/18/04 Dep. at 49-50; Ex. 12, Clark Dep. at 152; Ex. 13, Emmerich Dep. at 229; Ex. 14, Engelman Dep. at 108; Ex. 15, Nesbitt Dep. at 476-77. In addition, Su [REDACTED] in a public SEC filing in 1998, which Morgan Stanley also marked as a deposition exhibit in this case. See Ex. 29 at 10.

March 3, 4, 8, 10, and 11, 2005. Morgan Stanley took the depositions of Todd Slotkin as the CPH corporate representative, Lawrence Winoker, Ronald Perelman, and CPH's damages expert Blaine Nye on the issues raised by CPH's recent document production. CPH produced all of those witnesses in West Palm Beach.

Argument

Morgan Stanley contends [REDACTED]

As shown below, those assertions are all false and misleading.

1. Morgan Stanley Wrongly Asserts That CPH Failed To Collect And Preserve Valuation Documents From MAFCO's Finance Department.

Morgan Stanley begins by [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] (§ 5, emphasis in original, exclamation point omitted); [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] id. ¶ 6); and (3) [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

id. ¶ 7). Those assertions are baseless.

First, with regard to the search of MAFCO's accounting department for responsive documents before mid-February 2005, Morgan Stanley fails to advise this Court of a key fact: Mr. Winoker was not even employed by MAFCO at the time that documents were searched and gathered for production in the middle of 2003. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

039919

[REDACTED]

See Ex. 11, Winoker 3/8/05 Dep. at 7.

Mr. Winoker obviously cannot be faulted for failing to search for documents of a company that did not employ him, but, inexplicably, Morgan Stanley omits this important fact of which it is well aware.

Morgan Stanley also fails to disclose that the documents of MAFCO's finance department were in fact searched for relevant documents and those documents were produced to Morgan Stanley.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] (Ex. 16, Fasman 9/15/03 Dep. at 140-41):

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] See Exs. 17-21.

Second, as for [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Mr. Winoker in fact obtained from other individuals the documents recently produced and the numbers highlighted by Morgan Stanley. For example, Mr. Winoker [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] See Ex. 22 at CPH 2012216; Ex. 11, Winoker 3/08/05 Dep at 37-40.¹

In sum, Morgan Stanley's assertion that [REDACTED] constitutes an attempt to mislead this Court about CPH's discovery compliance efforts. Mr. Winoker was not even employed by MAFCO at the time documents were searched and gathered for production in this litigation during 2003, so, obviously, he was in no position to perform that function. That function was in fact performed by individuals who then were employed in the MAFCO financial department, in concert with attorneys in MAFCO's General Counsel's office, as Morgan Stanley is well aware.

2. Morgan Stanley's Assertion That Key Financial Documents Were Withheld From Production Is A Refresh Of The Issues Addressed In Morgan Stanley's February 15, 2005 Motion to Compel.

Morgan Stanley next accuses (¶¶ 6-10) CPH of withholding key MAFCO financial documents, but this charge is just a repeat of the charges made in Morgan Stanley's February 15, 2005 motion to compel, which this Court already has addressed fully in its February 17 and 24 Orders.

¹ As for Morgan Stanley's recycled assertions that [REDACTED]

CPH's response establishes that: (1) Morgan Stanley never filed a motion to obtain CPH's e-mails and, indeed, successfully opposed a motion filed by CPH offering to have a third party attempt to restore both CPH's e-mails and Morgan Stanley's e-mails; (2) Morgan Stanley's argument about CPH's privilege log is a rehash of an argument Morgan Stanley made in a November 4, 2003 opposition to CPH's motion to compel production of Morgan Stanley's e-mails and then abandoned; (3) CPH, unlike Morgan Stanley, had no statutory obligation to preserve e-mails; and (4) the applicable law does not support any sanction against CPH.

4. CPH Did Not Provide Deliberately Incorrect Testimony At The Corporate Representative Deposition Concerning [REDACTED]

Morgan Stanley tries (¶¶ 14-17) [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] r. Winoker, testified that the Sunbeam warrants were carried on the books for accounting purposes at $41.7 million but he [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] At his November 18, 2004 deposition, in response to a question whether he was aware of any other valuation of the warrants that was reflected in any other document besides its financial statements, Mr. Winoker answered “[n]ot that I’m aware of.” See Ex. 24, Winoker 11/18/04 Dep. at 60-61. CPH acknowledges [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] as CPH’s corporate representative, Mr. Winoker should have been aware of it. But there is no basis for concluding that Mr. Winoker’s testimony was deliberately misleading or given in bad faith.

Although Morgan Stanley intends [REDACTED]

[REDACTED], Morgan Stanley is well aware that it has its facts wrong. Mr. Winoker did not “create” [REDACTED] Mr. Winoker generated the chart containing [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] See Ex. 23, Slotkin 3/3/05 Dep. at 102-03.

In sum, Morgan Stanley is attempting to fault Mr. Winoker for failing to [REDACTED]

Mr. Winoker's failure to recall the number is regrettable, but it has been remedied fully by this Court's prior Orders, and it does not indicate any deliberate or bad-faith attempt to mislead Morgan Stanley on the part of CPH.

5. Mr. Perelman Testified Truthfully At His November 18, 2004 Deposition About How He Valued The Warrants.

Morgan Stanley accuses (PP 18-19) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Morgan Stanley's charge is baseless: MAFCO in fact believed then and believes now that the warrants were valueless.

First, the testimony given by Mr. Winoker in November 2004 on the very same day as Mr. Perelman's deposition confirms that MAFCO considered the value of the warrants to be zero. Mr. Winoker testified, as Morgan Stanley observes in its motion, that the warrants were carried on MAFCO's books at $41.7 million. But Mr. Winoker also testified that this figure was based on accounting rules and used for accounting purposes only, and that MAFCO management actually considered the warrants to be worthless. See Ex. 24, Winoker 11/18/04 Dep. at 79-81.

Morgan Stanley ignores that testimony.

9. CPH Did Not Make False Representations Concerning The Completion Of Its Document Production.

Morgan Stanley contends (¶¶ 26-31) [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] the facts, however, do not bear out this accusation.

First, with respect to the time period prior to this Court's February 17, 2005 Order, the facts concerning the circumstances surrounding the deficiency in CPH's document production have been discussed above. No inference of bad faith can be drawn from CPH's positions and conduct.

Second, with respect to Morgan Stanley's contention that CPH asserted on February 28, and March 1, 2005 that there were no further documents with fair value calculations but that CPH produced some documents later, the belated discovery of the additional pages is regrettable, but Morgan Stanley omits to mention that there is no new material information in any of the documents. The additional documents [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] In any event, Morgan Stanley had the ability to question CPH about them, mitigating any prejudice.

Third, with respect to Morgan Stanley's complaint that the stock valuation documents produced on February 18 were in the General Counsel's office, as indicated above, those matters were addressed and remedied fully by the Court's February 17 and 24 Orders. Moreover, also as indicated above, the cited document (MS 857) was found in the accounting department files of Gerry Kessel. That document was not discovered until the discovery dispute leading to the February 17 Order arose.

Fourth, with respect to Morgan Stanley's assertions that Mr. Winoker did not search an offsite archive for documents, that is misleading and irrelevant because the archive in fact was searched before Mr. Winoker began his current position in connection with prior document productions and again by others very recently.

10. Morgan Stanley's Assertion That CPH Was Withholding Documents In An Attempt To Inflate Its Damages Calculations Is Baseless.

Morgan Stanley lastly accuses (¶¶ 32-35) [REDACTED]

Conclusion

As the foregoing point-by-point refutation of Morgan Stanley's charges shows, CPH has acted in good faith at all times. This Court has already fully addressed this matter. No further sanction therefore is necessary or appropriate.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

vs.

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley"), by and through its attorneys, respectfully requests that the Court enter an order, pursuant to Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.350(b), compelling Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") to produce MAFCO's non-financial statements and general ledger entries reflecting the "accounting value" or "book value" that MAFCO placed on its Sunbeam investment. Morgan Stanley has only recently learned of the existence of such documents, which are highly relevant to CPH's estimate of its damages in this case and have been subject to an outstanding discovery request for over a year and a half. CPH, has steadfastly refused to produce the documents. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley respectfully requests that the Court enter an order compelling production.

In support of its motion, Morgan Stanley states as follows:

STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. On July 14, 2003, a little over two months after the Complaint was first filed, Morgan Stanley served its first set of discovery requests upon CPH. (See July 14, 2003 Morgan Stanley's 1st Req. for Prod. of Docs. to Plf. (Ex. 1).) Amongst these initial requests, Morgan Stanley specifically requested "[a]ll documents reflecting, referring, or relating to the value of Sunbeam securities." (Id. at Req. 9)

039942

EXHIBIT

tabbies

2. Initially, CPH attempted to “interpret” this request so as to narrowly focus on “the market valuation of Sunbeam securities.” (See Aug. 15, 2003 CPH’s Resp. to Morgan Stanley’s 1st Req. for Prod. of Docs. (Ex. 2).) Morgan Stanley objected, noting that this limitation would of course “exclude ... other valuations of Sunbeam’s securities, such as CPH’s internal valuations.” (See Aug. 27, 2003 Letter from K. DeBord to M. Brody at 2 (Ex. 3) (emphasis added).) Morgan Stanley asked CPH to reconsider the objection and inquired as to whether CPH had withheld any documents based on it. (Id.) In response, CPH represented that it was investigating its production regarding this request, and over a month later, agreed to produce documents responsive to the request without regard to the previous objection. (See Sept. 12, 2003 M. Brody Letter to K. DeBord (Ex. 4); Oct. 8, 2003 M. Brody Letter to K. DeBord (Ex. 5).)

3. Subsequently, over a year later, Morgan Stanley learned that MAFCO maintained non-public financial statements with general ledger entries for Sunbeam investments that reflected MAFCO’s estimation of the “accounting value” or “book value” of those investments, which had been audited by Coleman’s auditors at Ernst & Young. For example, at the deposition of Lawrence Winoker, Morgan Stanley learned that CPH had recorded a $41.7 million accounting value on its non-public financial statements for the Sunbeam settlement warrants as part of a December 1998 audit even though a MAFCO executive had previously testified under oath that such shares were worthless. (Nov. 18, 2004 Winoker Dep. at 51 (Ex. 6).) Mr. Gittis confirmed this fact and explained that the financial recognition of Sunbeam investments would “always go[] up to the parent” and be reflected in MAFCO’s non-public financial statements. (Nov. 19, 2004 Gittis Dep. at 188-90 (Ex. 7).)

4. Soon thereafter, Morgan Stanley’s counsel requested that CPH immediately remedy its failure to produce these documents in response to its longstanding requests. (See

Nov. 22, 2004 K. DeBord Letter to M. Brody (Ex. 8).) CPH provided a general ledger entry specifying the value that MAFCO had recognized for the Sunbeam settlement warrants, but refused to produce the non-public financial statements and failed to provide any general ledger entries for the Sunbeam shares it had originally received. (See Nov. 24, 2004 CPH's Resps. & Objs. to Morgan Stanley's 8th Req. for Prod. of Docs. (Ex. 9).)

5. After it became apparent that CPH's experts would offer opinion testimony as to the value of the Sunbeam shares and that CPH also likely had general ledger entries for those shares (as it did with the warrants), Morgan Stanley requested that CPH remedy its ongoing discovery failure and produce the requested documents immediately. (See Feb. 3, 2005 L. Bemis Letter to M. Brody (Ex. 10).) Without challenging the existence or obvious relevance of such documents, CPH refused to produce any additional responsive documents. (See Feb. 11, 2005 M. Brody Letter to L. Bemis.

ARGUMENT

6. MAFCO's non-financial statements and general ledger entries reflecting the "accounting value" or "book value" that MAFCO placed on its Sunbeam investment during the relevant time period are properly discoverable and highly relevant to CPH's claim for billions of dollars of damages as a result of the Sunbeam fraud. Indeed, the value of the 14.1 million Sunbeam shares that CPH received as part of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman is one of the most significant damages issues in this case. "In cases involving a fraudulent sale of stock," under either an out-of-pocket or "benefit-of-the-bargain" measure of damages, CPH "must prove the actual value" of the Sunbeam shares it received. Totale, Inc. v. Smith, 877 So. 2d 813, 815 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004) (internal quotations & citation omitted). Moreover, if the "benefit-of-the-bargain" measure of damages applies, CPH must establish the expected value of the Sunbeam shares at the time of the acquisition. Accordingly, the value that MAFCO placed on its Sunbeam shares at the time of the transaction, after the Sunbeam fraud was revealed, and up to and through the bankruptcy is directly relevant to damages issues in this case.

7. Moreover, the expeditious production of the requested documents would impose little to no burden upon CPH. From the general ledger entries for the Sunbeam settlement warrants previously produced, it appears that CPH was able to simply run a report with specified parameters in its financial database to generate a printout of the requested information. The report was run at 4:00 p.m. on November 23, 2004, and CPH was able to produce it to Morgan Stanley less than 24 hours later. There is no reason that CPH could not simply generate another report for the value of the Sunbeam shares it received and produce the results within a similar amount of time.

CONCLUSION

Morgan Stanley respectfully requests that the Court enter an order, pursuant to Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.350(b), compelling Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. to produce MAFCO's non-financial statements and general ledger entries reflecting the "accounting value" or "book value" that MAFCO placed on its Sunbeam investment during the relevant time period. Moreover, as a result of CPH's failure to produce these documents for over a year and a half, Morgan Stanley should be awarded its attorney fees and costs, pursuant to Rules 1.350(b); 1.380(a)(1), (4), incurred in presenting this motion.

1 any ambiguity about that, the April 9
2 response follows the October 8, 2003
3 letter.

4 THE COURT: But the April 9th
5 response -- I'm sorry -- is a response to 6 the second request.

7 MR. SCAROLA: The April 9, 2004
8 response is the response to the second
9 request.

10 THE COURT: I'll be real honest with 11 you. I think these documents were 12 included within the scope of the first 13 request for production. And I think that 14 October 8th letter, a reasonable
15 interpretation to that is we're
16 withdrawing our objection; we'll give you
17 what we have.

18 MR. SCAROLA: Assuming that to be true,
19 although we disagree, and I understand the 20 court's position in that regard, that 21 brings us to the point that clearly and 22 unequivocally because there has been an 23 acknowledgment of that, as of 24 November 17th and 18th, the dates of the 25 deposition of Mr. Winoker and Mr. Gittis, 039950

1 the defendant has acknowledged that they
2 at that point knew the documents that they
3 had -- they contend that they requested
4 and that they contend they thought had 5 been produced had not been produced.

6 Although I suggest to Your Honor that 7 the date was clearly much earlier, because 8 as Your Honor has herself reasoned, they 9 had to know these documents existed. But 10 in spite of that, they are now told
11 clearly and unequivocally three months ago
12 and prior to the close of discovery that 13 the documents existed. They then wait
14 until after discovery closes. They wait
15 until the eve of trial three months after 16 having been placed on notice that the 17 documents exist to move to compel the 18 production of these documents, which we 19 still contend are not relevant or material
20 because they don't relate to the issue
21 that will be before the jury, and that 22 issue is the fair market value of these 23 securities, not the value of which they 24 were booked internally for some purpose.
25 And there is no record evidence that there

039951

1 is some credit application or financial
2 statements produced to third parties upon
3 which they were relying on a
4 representation that we made with respect
5 to value. There's no record evidence with 6 regard to that. That's sheer speculation
7 on counsel's part.

8 The bottom line is that this evidence,
9 if it were produced, would relate to an
10 entirely collateral and extraneous matter.
11 We don't believe that it would be 12 admissible because it would be nothing but 13 confusing to the jury to have to 14 distinguish between internal valuation for 15 purposes unrelated to the fair market
16 value of the stock and the issue that is 17 before the jury, the fair market value.

18 And, finally, what happens is we do
19 need to reopen discovery and add
20 additional witnesses. We're going to here
21 from some expert on the defense part, I 22 would assume, because they can't just put 23 these documents before the jury without 24 any explanation. Someone is going to have 25 to express an opinion as to what the 039952

1 significance of these numbers are from the
2 defense perspective. And that is going to 3 require us to produce a witness or 4 witnesses to rebut the contention this has 5 some relevance or materiality with regard
6 to fair market value. All of which, if it
7 ever was to be raised, could have been 8 raised prior to the close of fact
9 discovery pursuant to an agreed order and 10 all of which could have been resolved in 11 ample time not to have imposed an eve of 12 trial discovery burden and reopening of 13 discovery.

14 THE COURT: Okay. As I said, it -- I
15 have no trouble determining that that 16 first request for production included
17 these documents and that the, whatever it
18 was --

19 MR. SCAROLA: October 8.

20 THE COURT: -- October 8 letter, a
21 reasonable interpretation of that letter,
22 I believe, is we're withdrawing our 23 objections and we'll give you what we 24 have. So I think sort of the cost of the 25 delay through those November depositions

039953

1 is properly laid at plaintiff's feet. I
2 think after the November depositions when 3 it became apparent these documents were 4 there and for whatever reason we didn't 5 come in on this motion for some period of 6 time, I think sort of the cost of that
7 delay is placed at defendant's feet. Then
8 the question is how do we reconcile this,
9 because I think you do get the documents.
10 I think potentially there probably is some 11 additional discovery that is generated
12 because of them.

13 How do we want do handle that?

14 MR. BEMIS: May I address that, Your 15 Honor?

16 THE COURT: Sure.

17 MR. BEMIS: First of all, I think the 18 production we're likely to get is simply 19 one or two pages of documents.

20 THE COURT: I assume we're talking
21 about --

22 MR. BEMIS: That's all we got on the 23 warrants.

24 THE COURT: Then I think we have a
25 little fact discovery and probably some

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,

Plaintiff,

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,
FLORIDA

CASE NO: 2003 CA 005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION TO DETERMINE THE APPROPRIATE SCOPE OF DISCOVERY

Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys, respectfully requests that this Court determine the appropriate scope of discovery called for by this Court's February 17, 2005 Order granting Morgan Stanley's motion to compel production of documents. In support of this motion, CPH states as follows:

1. This Court's Order on Morgan Stanley's motion to compel required production, by 12:00 p.m. on February 18, of all documents within the care, custody, and control of CPH or any related entity reflecting the accounting value, book value, balance sheet value, or internal valuation of the 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock received by CPH in the transaction produced during or reflecting a value at any point in time between the date the transaction closed and the date Sunbeam first sought bankruptcy protection. Before noon on February 18, CPH complied with this Court's Order by producing responsive documents, which have been redacted to exclude financial information that this Court has ruled to be undiscoverable or irrelevant in prior discovery and in limine orders.

2. Out of an abundance of caution, CPH is filing this motion and will be prepared to submit to this Court, should the Court wish to review them, unredacted copies of the documents produced to Morgan Stanley as well as certain documents withheld from the production so that this Court can determine whether any further disclosure is required. CPH will present these documents to the Court at the beginning of the hearing on Tuesday, February 22.

1 clearly understood that compliance with that
2 aspect of the court order with regard to these
3 documents is of special concern to those of us
4 on this side of the case, and particularly 5 Mr. Perelman.

6 THE COURT: Let's talk about a couple of 7 things then I'll let you respond.

8 You sort of raised two points. First is 9 that it's Plaintiff's position that sort of the 10 ability to redact information is larger when 11 I've already made certain evidentiary rulings
12 that would suggest certain of the information is 13 not relevant. And what you're suggesting I do 14 is an in camera inspection to go through the 15 documents, compare it to my prior orders on the 16 motions in limine, and approve redactions that I
17 think fall within matters I've excluded under 18 the order on the motions in limine.

19 In response to that, I think what I would 20 tell you is: We have significant motions this 21 afternoon. I have three significant orders
22 sitting in draft on my desk. I've not done the 23 in camera inspection for Mr. Strong, which I 24 know is critical. I'm not inclined to do an in 25 camera inspection on things that are not truly

039964

1 subject to a privilege because Mr. Perelman
2 asked me to, which I think, in all honesty, I
3 think what you're asking.

4 MR. SCAROLA: I understand.

5 THE COURT: I would agree, however, that I
6 would expect them to be subject to the 7 confidentiality order in place. And I would 8 strictly construe it.

9 MR. BEMIS: Understood.

10 MR. SOLOVY: Let me just ask you this, Your 11 Honor, just like you did with some of the 12 privilege when we weren't present, I think we 13 could walk you through these redactions in about 14 ten minutes, and you would either say yea or 15 nay.

16 THE COURT: In all honesty, it's not an 17 accommodation I would afford any other litigant,
18 and it's not an accommodation I would afford
19 here.

20 MR. SOLOVY: Well, I think we just --

21 THE COURT: You go back and tell
22 Mr. Perelman you tried real hard, but I wasn't 23 willing to do it.

24 MR. SOLOVY: Normally, Your Honor -- and 25 this is no aspersion on counsel -- but, A, I

1 A The name is familiar, but I can't place her.
2 Q Was she an employee of Sunbeam or an employee
3 of Deloitte & Touche?
4 A Well, given those choices, I would choose the 5 latter because it wasn't the former.
6 Q What was Deloitte & Touche's role as of 7 April 2, 1999 with regard to the Warrant Accounting and 8 Valuation, as this document is headed on page 2?
9 A I can't recall what their role was at that 10 point in time, whether they were an auditor or not. I
11 don't remember the timing.
12 Q Did there come a point in time when Deloitte &
13 Touche did become the auditors of Sunbeam?
14 A I believe so, correct.
15 Q Did they replace Arthur Andersen?
16 A Yes.
17 Q And did -- you were still employed by Sunbeam,
18 as you told us, at year end 1999; correct?
19 A Correct.
20 Q And was Deloitte -- strike that.
21 For the jury's benefit, could you tell us was 22 Deloitte & Touche the auditor for Sunbeam at -- for the 23 year ending December 31, 1999?
24 A I believe that's the case.
25 Q Now, according to the memorandum from Deloitte

Page 151

1 & Touche, if you turn to, I think it is page 4 of the 2 memorandum under Valuation of Warrants, you will see
3 some figures for the valuation. Tell me when you are 4 there.
5 A I am there.
6 Q Ms. Tripp writes that Sunbeam engaged the 7 Blackstone Group, initial capitals, to --
8 A Where are you reading from? I'm sorry.
9 Q Directly under Valuation of Warrants.
11 of the exhibit, page 3 of the attachment. That's okay.
12 We are there now.
13 THE WITNESS: Okay, I am there now.
14 BY MR. BEMIS:
15 Q So for the record, we are on Bates No. Page CPH
16 1308868; right?
17 A Correct.
18 Q Good. Under the heading Valuation of Warrants,
19 Ms. Tripp writes, "Sunbeam engaged the Blackstone Group
20 to assist them with the valuation of the warrants."
21 Period.
22 Do you see that?
23 A Yes, I do.
24 Q Based on your position at Sunbeam, that's a 25 correct statement; right?

Page 152

1 A I believe that's a correct statement.
2 Q Okay. The next sentence reads, "The Blackstone
3 report estimated a value of the warrants to range from 4 30 million to 107 million with a midpoint of
5 70 million."
6 Do you see that?
7 A Yes.
8 Q Is that consistent with your recollection of 9 the report issued by the Blackstone Group?
10 MR. BRODY: I'll object there. This has been 11 litigated in another case. I know, Mr. Bemis, your 12 client was not a party to it and the court has found the 13 Blackstone report itself to be a privileged document.
14 So I think asking her in this kind of roundabout way to 15 disclose the contents of the Blackstone report violates 16 Sunbeam's privilege, and I instruct her not to answer.
17 I think you could ask some foundational
18 questions to see if there is recollection here, but I 19 think the question, as phrased, would violate the 20 privileges already found by the court.
21 BY MR. BEMIS:
22 Q Did you -- are you going to follow those 23 instructions, and let's close this out.
24 A I will follow his instructions.
25 Q All right. The report continues over onto the

2 1308869. Are you there?
3 A Yes.
4 Q And there is, in paragraph numbered 3, a
5 paragraph below a table identified as Blackstone's,
6 apostrophe S, warrant sensitivity analysis.
7 Do you see that?
8 A Yes.
9 Q It reads as follows, quote, "The boxed range of 10 30 to $107 million is the range recommended by 11 Blackstone. The company recorded the warrants," plural,
12 "at 70 million, the midpoint of the range."
13 Do you see that -- those two sentences?
14 A I think you missed one word in reading it, but 15 it is there.
16 Q Now, based on reading this, does this refresh
17 your recollection as to what Sunbeam, during your 18 tenure, recorded the warrants that were issued to 19 Coleman Parent Holdings pursuant to the settlement
20 agreement which, I think, was Morgan Stanley Exhibit 96?
21 A That's what Mr. Pass, in her memo, I would 22 guess that she's accurate again. If I really wanted a 23 definitive answer, I would go back to the financials.
24 Q Did you -- Deloitte & Touche concludes on the 25 very last page of the report as follows, quote, "Based

1 Coleman transaction where there is this
2 dispute and the warrants are issued for 3 Sunbeam later after the transaction, how are 4 they accounted for on the books -- would they
5 be accounted for on the books of MacAndrews &
6 Forbes or its affiliates?
7 MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
8 A. It's an unusual transaction, and I
9 don't know the right answer to that question.
10 It might be acquired just as you put a value
11 on them and add that to whatever value you
12 had, but since there was a misstatement of the 13 value of Sunbeam at the time we received the 14 original shares, you would have to write those 15 down, write down the value of those shares to 16 reflect the fact that you at the date that you
17 received the shares, shares were overvalued.
18 So it would require some research on my part,
19 and I just don't recall -- I may have known 20 all of it at that time, but I don't recall the 21 whole thought process on what the right value
22 was.
23 Q. Is it fair to say that at some point
24 MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its affiliates, 25 perhaps the party that was actually issued the

Page 107

1 warrants, which I think it's CLN Holdings got 2 the warrants, would have to make some entry on 3 its books for the receipt of the warrants?
4 A. Right.
5 Q. I misspoke. According to the
6 Exhibit A to Exhibit MS 96, the actual warrant
7 holder is Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., or 8 its successor or permitted assigns is the 9 holder of the warrant. Did you ever see any 10 valuations of the warrants by any source?
11 A. No.
12 Q. Did you ever see a valuation of the 13 warrants under what's known as the 14 Black-Sholes, I think it is, model?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Let me show you what has been marked
17 as MS 97. I've handed you what the court
18 reporter previously marked as Morgan Stanley
19 97, which is a document from a Susan C. Tripp, 20 with two p's, dated April 2nd, 1990, to the 21 Sunbeam audit files on the subject of M&F
22 Warrants Accounting and Evaluation. Take a
23 look at that and tell me when you're done. I
24 just have a couple --
25 A. Do you know who Susan Tripp is?

Page 108

1 Q. She is with Deloitte & Touche, as I
2 recall, and she is on their audit staff. What
3 exactly her title was, I can't tell you off
4 the top of my head. We'll look while you're 5 looking and see if we can fill that in for 6 you.
7 A. No. I just wanted to know what
8 organization she was with. Go ahead.
9 Q. Have you reviewed MS 97?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. There is a reference in MS 97 to a 12 report by Blackstone Group, and that is on 13 page numbered -- well, it's Page 4 of the 14 document in front of you right at the bottom
15 below the heading "Valuation of Warrants."
16 A. I don't see the page number, but I'm 17 on the same page as you.
18 Q. I don't see the page numbers either.
19 I'm not sure where they are. In any event,
20 there is a reference to "Sunbeam engaged the 21 Blackstone Group to assist them with the 22 valuation of the warrants." Do you see that 23 sentence?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Have you heard of Blackstone Group?

Page 109

1 A. Yes. I worked for them for a while.
2 Q. Who are they?
3 A. They're an investment bank.
4 Q. How long did you work for them
5 again?
6 A. Year and a half.
7 Q. And are you familiar with the 8 Black-Sholes model?
9 A. Somewhat.
10 Q. Have you ever used it in your
11 professional work?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. And what have you used it for?
14 A. Evaluating options.
15 Q. Have you used it ever to value
16 warrants such as was done as suggested in 17 MS 97?
18 A. I think warrants sometimes is 19 another name for options. In this case I
20 think it represented an option.
21 Q. Is the Black Sholes model for 22 valuing options, or in this case warrants,

1 to Sunbeam's audit files dated April 2, 1999,
2 subject: M and F warrants, accounting and
3 valuation.
4 Do you have MS 97 in front of you?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. Excuse me. Let me trade you documents
7 real quick. May I have MS 96 as well? Thank 8 you. There you go.
9 Do you know who Susan Tripp is?
10 A. I don't know Susan Tripp.
11 Q. Do you recognize this memo as 12 describing the settlement agreement between 13 Coleman and Sunbeam and the accounting and 14 valuation treatment of that settlement
15 agreement?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. On the bottom right-hand corner there
18 are Bates numbers to the document. I would like
19 you to turn to CPH 1308868, and this page has a 20 header entitled "warrant accounting evaluation."
21 Do you see that?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. There's a reference to report by the 24 Blackstone Group all the way at the bottom, the 25 last paragraph.

Page 47

1 A. I see that.
2 Q. Which reads: "Sunbeam engaged the
3 Blackstone Group to assist them with the
4 evaluation of the warrants."
5 Have you heard of the Blackstone
6 Group?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. Who are they?
9 A. I know them to be an investment
10 advisory firm.
11 Q. Have you ever used that group in your 12 professional work?
13 A. No.
14 Q. Are you familiar with the 15 Black-Scholes model?
16 A. I know of the Black-Scholes model.
17 Q. What is it?
18 A. A way to value derivatives. My 19 experience has been in valuing stock options.
20 Q. Can you describe the Black-Scholes
21 model in any more detail?
22 A. Nope.
23 Q. That's fine. I hear it's a
24 complicated valuation model; is that correct?
25 A. Well, the way I have used it is is

1 just to use it as -- using variables to plug
2 into the model to come up with a value.
3 Q. When you do this, when you use
4 variables to plug into the Black-Scholes model,
5 do you have a database or some sort of computer
6 program that you can do this with?
7 A. No, the formula's -- it's a formula.
8 It's very easily obtained. You can get it off
9 the Internet. And it's just anybody -- you
10 don't have to have any understanding of the 11 model, the Black-Scholes model how it's 12 developed to employ it. It just says insert
13 variable X, Y and Z and it comes up with a 14 value.
15 Q. Got it. OK. Have you ever had any
16 discussion with the Blackstone Group as it
17 related to their valuation of the warrants
18 received by McAndrews & Forbes?
19 A. I don't know anybody at the Blackstone
20 Group.
21 Q. Take a look at MS 97. Are you aware 22 on MS 97 or did you review from, based on your 23 review from yesterday, that the Blackstone Group
24 provided McAndrews & Forbes an estimate? Strike
25 that.

1 Are you aware based on your review of
2 this document from yesterday that the Blackstone
3 Group estimated the value of the warrants that 4 McAndrews & Forbes received as consideration for 5 the settlement agreement between 30 million and
6 107 million?
7 MR. BRODY: Object to form.
8 A. Could you rephrase that?
9 Q. Sure. Take a look at CPH 138869.
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Halfway down the page it refers to a 12 valuation performed by the Blackstone Group on 13 the warrants that McAndrews & Forbes received.
14 A. Looking here at this box, the table?
15 Q. Correct.
16 A. Yes, I see the table, yes.
17 Q. And Blackstone estimated the value of 18 the warrants between 30 and 107 million; is that 19 right?
20 A. I see that, yes.
21 Q. With a midpoint range of 70 million.
22 Do you see that?
23 A. Yes, I read that from this. Yes, I
24 see that.
25 Q. And then if you look at the paragraph

1 below, it refers to a valuation done by Deloitte
2 & Touche. Do you see that?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. And their estimated range was 54 to 5 118?
6 A. I see that.
7 Q. On the very last page, in the very
8 last sentence, it reads, I'm going to summarize,
9 that Deloitte & Touche found $70 million to be 10 reasonable.
11 A. I see that.
12 Q. When were the warrants received by 13 McAndrews & Forbes?
14 A. I believe to the best of my knowledge
15 based on discussions yesterday with, um, in 16 preparation it was in August of '98.
17 Q. Do you know what date?
18 A. No.
19 Q. And the effective date of the warrant
20 is the date of receipt?
21 A. I don't know.
22 Q. Was the valuation of the warrants
23 recorded in 1998 when the warrants were received
24 by McAndrews & Forbes?
25 A. The value of the warrants. What do

Page 51

1 you mean by the value?
2 Q. OK, as a consequence of the issuance
3 of the warrants did McAndrews & Forbes make any 4 entries in its accounting records for the 5 receipt of the warrants?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. What was that entry?
8 A. In connection with the audit of the 9 financial statements of McAndrews & Forbes in 10 December of '98, for the December '98 financial 11 statements, there was a value, an accounting
12 value recorded of 41.7 million. I believe that 13 was the figure.
14 Q. Was this the first time that the value
15 of the warrants was recorded in any of McAndrews
16 & Forbes' accounting records?
17 A. Yes.
18 MR. BRODY: Object to the form. Go
19 ahead.
20 A. That was the first time it was 21 recorded in McAndrews & Forbes' accounting
22 records.
23 Q. So the warrants were not recorded when 24 they were received in August of 1998?
25 A. We didn't record anything in August of

Page 52

1 '98. We don't prepare financial statements on a
2 monthly basis. So there was for us no reason
3 to -- no compelling reason to make an entry at 4 that time.
5 Q. OK. Setting aside McAndrews & Forbes'
6 accounting records and financial statements, was 7 there any internal valuation of the warrants
8 performed by McAndrews & Forbes as of August of 9 1998?
10 MR. BRODY: Object to the form. Do
11 you mean, by way of clarification, do you
12 mean analysis, a mathematical computation
13 kind of thing?
14 MS. DeBORD: Correct.
15 Q. Did McAndrews & Forbes perform any 16 mathematical analysis or valuation of the 17 warrants when they were received in August of 18 1998?
19 A. I didn't. I'm not aware if anybody
20 did.
21 Q. In your capacity as representative
22 from McAndrews & Forbes on this subject, you
23 don't know the answer to that question?
24 A. If anybody prepared anything I don't 25 know.

1 Q. Do you know who would know that?
2 A. No, I don't.
3 Again, I'm thinking about in an
4 accounting context, if that's what we're talking
5 about. Maybe it needs some clarification. In 6 an accounting context.
7 I don't know -- or any context do I
8 know if anybody prepared, did any analysis.
9 Q. If anybody did do an analysis of the 10 value of the warrants when they were received in 11 August of 1998, where would that analysis be?
12 MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
13 MS. DeBORD: Let me withdraw that and 14 try again.
15 Q. Based on your experience at McAndrews & Forbes
16 & Forbes and as controller and treasurer, when 17 these warrants came in in August of 1998, if 18 somebody, let's say it's Todd Slotkin directed
19 somebody to say -- withdraw that again.
20 Based on your experience at McAndrews
21 & Forbes in your capacity as controller and 22 treasurer, if somebody were to do an analysis or 23 valuation of these warrants when they were 24 received in August of 1998 how would that 25 valuation be done?

Page 58

1 closed in March, but I could be wrong. I'm not
2 that knowledgeable about it.
3 Q. I asked you some questions about this,
4 but do you know from any source how McAndrews &
5 Forbes arrived at the $41.7 million figure for 6 valuing the warrants?
7 A. As I said earlier, I don't have 8 specific recollection of what we discussed, if 9 we had a discussion, and the discussion I'm 10 referring to is a discussion with Ernst & Young.
11 But as I said, our normal practice
12 would be, as is typical, I think most firms,
13 issues of financial statements are discussed
14 with their outside accountants, matters
15 reflected in their financial statements. So -- 16 Q. Who would be involved in those 17 discussions?
18 A. From?
19 Q. From the McAndrews & Forbes side.
20 A. I would.
21 Q. Who else?
22 A. Nobody else necessarily would be
23 involved.
24 Q. Do you have any documents that reflect
25 the discussions that took place in late 1998

1 regarding the valuation of the warrants received
2 by McAndrews & Forbes?
3 A. I don't have any documents, no.
4 Q. Is there anyone else that would recall
5 these discussions or be able to testify as to 6 the discussions between McAndrews & Forbes and 7 Ernst & Young regarding the valuation of the 8 warrants?
9 A. I'm not sure what discussions, what
10 discussions, if any, took place. So therefore I
11 can't, I wouldn't know who else might know.
12 Q. Is there anyone who would know if the 13 discussions took place at all?
14 A. I don't know. I mean, this is six
15 years ago. That's why I still don't recall.
16 Six years ago. It wasn't something that we look 17 at these warrants in connection with these 18 financial statements to be prepared every month.
19 We only prepared this once per year. So I'm 20 trying to recall possibly a single meeting that 21 took place once six years ago. I just -- I just 22 don't recall if we had such a meeting.
23 Q. And you did not personally do any 24 evaluation of the warrants that were received by 25 McAndrews & Forbes, correct?

Page 60

1 A. Correct.
2 Q. Does McAndrews & Forbes have any
3 capability of determining the value of the 4 warrants it received pursuant to MS 96 at any 5 given time by for example plugging numbers into 6 a computer database?
7 A. I'm not aware that we have such a
8 computer database. I don't believe we do.
9 Q. Does it have any capability of 10 determining the value of these warrants?
11 A. I don't know. It's not a public
12 security, you know, marketable security readily
13 tradable, so I don't know.
14 Q. Is there anybody who would know?
15 A. If McAndrews had the capability?
16 Q. Yes.
17 MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
18 A. I don't know.
19 Q. OK. So as of December 1998 McAndrews
20 & Forbes had valued the warrants that it
21 received from Sunbeam at $41.7 million, correct?
22 A. In their financial statements, yes.
23 Q. Was there any other valuation of the 24 warrants that was reflected in any other
25 document besides the financial statements?

Page 61

1 A. Not that I'm aware of.
2 Q. After December of 1998 were the 3 warrants marked down at any time by McAndrews &
4 Forbes?
5 A. I believe in the financial statements
6 for the period ended December of 2000 the 7 warrants were written down.
8 Q. Can you describe briefly what it means
9 to, what written down means?
10 A. OK, it -- in this case an asset that's 11 reflected on the company's balance sheet at a 12 value was, um, the value was reduced in its 13 balance sheet.
14 Q. And how much was the value reduced on 15 the balance sheet?
16 A. I think by the full 41.7. Reduced to 17 zero.
18 Q. Did McAndrews & Forbes at any other 19 time reduce the value of the warrants between 20 December of 1998 and December 2002?
21 A. No. You said December of 2000, right?
22 Somehow I heard December 2002. Did you say
23 December 2000?
24 Q. You know, I might have heard you
25 wrong. I thought that you said in December

1 was not employed by the company in 2000.
2 But, you know, in discussions with 3 counsel I learned, I was reminded that the 4 company filed for bankruptcy, Sunbeam, and that
5 led to McAndrews writing those warrants to zero
6 for financial reporting purposes.
7 Q. Who, if you recall, was your contact
8 at Ernst & Young that you typically dealt with 9 in the discussions that you described?
10 A. There are several people that I might 11 have discussed, who were involved in the account
12 that I may have discussed matters related to the 13 company's financial statements at that time.
14 Q. Who were they?
15 A. Gerry Cohen, Anastasia Economos. She
16 was the partner. Mitch Rosendorf, manager.
17 Those were the senior people who -- one of 18 those, if I had that discussion, I would have 19 discussed with one of them.
20 Q. OK.
21 A. One or all of them.
22 MS. DeBORD: Can I have a few minutes?
23 MR. BRODY: Sure.
24 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:41
25 p.m. and we're going off the record.

Page 79

1 (A recess was taken.)
2 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:45
3 p.m. and we're back on the record.
4 MS. DeBORD: Mr. Winoker, at this time
5 I have completed my questioning.
6 MR. BRODY: I have just a few
7 follow-up questions to the representative
8 deposition only.
9 EXAMINATION BY
10 MR. BRODY:
11 Q. Mr. Winoker, you have answered a
12 number of questions in which you've described 13 the accounting value or the value on the 14 accounting records of the warrants.
15 What do you mean by accounting value
16 or accounting number?
17 A. The value that would be reflected in 18 the company's books as well as in its financial 19 statements.
20 Q. What principles are applied in 21 determining what that accounting number should 22 be?
23 A. They're governed by Generally Accepted
24 Accounting Principles.
25 Q. In addition to the accounting number

Page 80

1 placed on the books, I believe you testified
2 that you were aware that people in the company
3 and the company's management were of the view
4 the values were actually of no value.
5 What do you understand to be the --
6 what did you mean by that?
7 A. That the warrants that were received
8 in the settlement were worthless.
9 Q. Are you aware if McAndrews & Forbes
10 was ever able to derive any value from the 11 warrants either by selling them or transferring
12 them to someone else?
13 A. I'm not aware.
14 MR. BRODY: I have nothing further.
15 BY MS. DeBORD:
16 Q. I have a couple of more questions.
17 Mr. Winoker, when you referred to accounting
18 value you were referring to a term of art,
19 correct?
20 A. A term of art.
21 Q. Well, by term of art I mean you're 22 talking about the GAAP accounting of the value
23 of the warrants.
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Is there any other type of value that

Page 81

1 McAndrews & Forbes would attribute to the
2 warrants that it received from Sunbeam at any 3 given time?
4 A. I don't know. I just -- I don't know.
5 Q. And you're here today to testify to 6 the value of the warrants that were received by 7 McAndrews & Forbes regardless of whether it's 8 accounting value or any other type of value,
9 right?
10 A. I believe that was, yes.
11 Q. You just answered a couple of 12 questions with Mr. Brody regarding management's
13 views of the value of the warrant being zero.
14 At what time period are you referring 15 to?
16 A. At the time they were issued, in 17 August of '98.
18 Q. Are you aware in your capacity as a
19 representative of McAndrews & Forbes why
20 McAndrews & Forbes would have agreed to a 21 settlement agreement that was worthless?
22 A. No.
23 MS. DeBORD: I don't have any further
24 questions. Hold on, I'm sorry.
25 Q. Mr. Winoker, despite the fact that

(UNAUDITED)

1. OPERATIONS AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION

ORGANIZATION

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Sunbeam/registered trademark/ and Oster/registered trademark/ brands have been household names for generations, and the Company is a market share leader in many of its product categories.

The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogs, television shopping channels, Company-owned outlet stores, hardware stores, home centers, drug and grocery stores, pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and the military. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions.

As further described in Note 2, on March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"). Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically under the Coleman/registered trademark/ brand name since the 1920's.

As further described in Note 2, on April 6, 1998, the Company completed the cash acquisitions of First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert"), a leading manufacturer of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, and Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands"), a leading manufacturer of consumer and professional products.

PRESENTATION OF FISCAL PERIODS

To standardize the fiscal period ends of the Company and its acquired entities, effective with its 1998 fiscal year, the Company has changed its fiscal year end from the Sunday nearest December 31 to a calendar year. Accordingly, quarterly reporting will follow the calendar quarters. The impact of this change in fiscal periods on net sales for the first quarter and third quarters of 1998 was to increase sales by approximately $4 million and $2 million, respectively, and the impact on operating results for the periods was to increase the net loss by approximately $0.2 million in the first quarter and by $1.3 million in the third quarter.

BASIS OF PRESENTATION

The Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet of the Company as of September 30, 1998 and the Condensed Consolidated Statements of Operations for the three and nine months ended September 30, 1998 and September 28, 1997, and the Condensed Consolidated Statements of Cash Flows for the nine months ended September 30, 1998 and September 28, 1997 are unaudited. The unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles for interim financial information and with the instructions of Form 10-Q and Rule 10-01 of Regulation S-X. The December 28, 1997 Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet was derived from the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K/A for the year ended December 28, 1997. The condensed consolidated financial statements contained herein should be read in conjunction with the consolidated financial statements and related notes contained in the Company's 1997 Annual Report on Form 10-K/A. In the opinion of management, the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements furnished herein include all adjustments (consisting of only recurring adjustments) necessary for a fair presentation of the results of operations for the interim periods presented. These interim results of operations are not necessarily indicative of results for the entire year.

RESTATEMENT

On June 30, 1998, the Company announced that the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors was initiating a review into the accuracy of prior financial statements. The Audit Committee's review has since been completed and, as a result of its findings, the Company has restated its previously issued financial statements for 1996, 1997 and the first quarter of 1998. (See Note 8).

1. OPERATIONS AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION - (CONTINUED)

BASIC AND DILUTED LOSS PER COMMON SHARE

In 1997, the Company adopted SFAS No. 128, EARNINGS PER SHARE. Basic earnings per common share calculations are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock outstanding. Diluted earnings per share are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive common stock equivalents outstanding (all related to outstanding stock options, restricted stock and the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures).

For the third quarter and first nine months of 1998, respectively, 39,090 and 3,017,516 shares related to stock options, 12,717 and 63,016 shares related to restricted stock and 13,150,000 shares in each period related to the conversion feature of the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures were not included in the diluted average common shares outstanding, as the effect would have been antidilutive. For the third quarter and first nine months of 1997, respectively, the dilutive effect of 2,886,577 and 2,602,749 equivalent shares related to stock options and (94,224) and (148,360) equivalent shares related to restricted stock were used in determining the dilutive average shares outstanding. SFAS No. 128 requires the use of dilutive potential common shares in the determination of diluted earnings per share if an entity reports earnings from continuing operations. The use of dilutive potential common shares in the determination of the diluted per share loss from discontinued operations is antidilutive. (See Note 9.)

NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

In June 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 131, DISCLOSURES ABOUT SEGMENTS OF AN ENTERPRISE AND RELATED INFORMATION. SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for the way that public business enterprises report information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires that those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports issued to shareholders. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. SFAS No. 131 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997 and will be presented in the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 1998. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated. The Company is in the process of evaluating the disclosure requirements. The adoption of SFAS No. 131 will have no impact on consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flow.

In March 1998, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants ("AICPA") issued Statement of Position 98-1, ACCOUNTING FOR THE COSTS OF COMPUTER SOFTWARE DEVELOPED OR OBTAINED FOR INTERNAL USE ("SOP 98-1"). SOP 98-1 requires computer software costs associated with internal use software to be expensed as incurred until certain capitalization criteria are met. The Company will adopt SOP 98-1 on January 1, 1999. Adoption of this Statement is not expected to have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position or results of operations, although actual charges incurred may be material due to Year 2000 issues.

In April 1998, the AICPA issued Statement of Position 98-5, REPORTING ON THE COSTS OF START-UP ACTIVITIES ("SOP 98-5"). SOP 98-5 requires all costs associated with pre-opening, pre-operating and organization activities to be expensed as incurred. The Company will adopt SOP 98-5 beginning January 1, 1999. Adoption of the Statement is not expected to have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position or results of operations.

In June 1998, the FASB issued SFAS No. 133, ACCOUNTING FOR DERIVATIVE INSTRUMENTS AND HEDGING ACTIVITIES for fiscal years beginning after June 15, 1999. SFAS No. 133 requires the recognition of all derivatives in the Consolidated Balance Sheet as either assets or liabilities measured at fair value. The Company will adopt SFAS No. 133 effective for the 2000 calendar year end. The Company has not yet determined the impact SFAS No. 133 will have on its consolidated financial position or results of operations when such statement is adopted.

2. ACQUISITIONS

On March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman from a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("M&F"), in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of the Company's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash as well as the assumption of $1,016 million in debt. The value of the common stock issued at the date of acquisition ($524 million) was derived by using the average ending stock price as reported by the New York Stock Exchange Composite Tape for the day before and day of the public announcement of the acquisition, discounted by 15% due to the restrictive nature of the securities.

On August 12, 1998, the Company announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a Special Committee of the Board consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with M&F, the Company had entered into a settlement agreement with a subsidiary of M&F pursuant to which the Company was released from certain threatened claims of M&F and its affiliates arising from the Coleman acquisition and M&F agreed to provide certain management personnel and assistance to the Company in exchange for the issuance to the M&F subsidiary of five-year warrants to purchase up to 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to anti-dilution provisions. Accordingly, a $70 million non-cash Selling, General and Administrative ("SG&A") expense was recorded in the third quarter of 1998, based on a valuation performed as of August 1998 using facts existing at that time. The valuation was conducted by an independent consultant engaged by the Special Committee of the Board of Directors. (See Note 10.)

The Coleman acquisition was accounted for under the purchase method of accounting; accordingly, the results of operations of Coleman are included in the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statement of Operations from the date of acquisition. The purchase price of Coleman has been allocated to individual assets acquired and liabilities assumed based on preliminary estimates of fair market value at the date of acquisition. The preliminary fair value of tangible assets acquired was approximately $747 million (of which $27 million was cash) and approximately $1,331 million of liabilities were assumed. The excess of purchase price over net tangible assets acquired of $1,270 million has been classified as goodwill and is being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years. The allocation of purchase price for the acquisition of Coleman will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation period based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial change in goodwill and other intangible assets.

The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive .5677 shares of the Company's common stock and $6.44 in cash for each share of Coleman common stock outstanding. In addition, unexercised options under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of such options. The Company expects to issue approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and expend approximately $87 million in cash to complete the Coleman acquisition. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the first half of fiscal 1999. The acquisition of the remaining outstanding shares of Coleman will be accounted for under the purchase method of accounting on the date of consummation. (See Note 10.)

On April 6, 1998, the Company completed the cash acquisitions of First Alert and Signature Brands, valued at approximately $178 million and $253 million, respectively, including the assumption of debt. These acquisitions were accounted for by the purchase method of accounting and the results of operations of the acquired entities were included in the Company's Consolidated Statements of Operations from the date of the acquisitions. The preliminary fair value of tangible assets acquired in the First Alert acquisition was approximately $127 million (of which $4 million was cash) and approximately $79 million of liabilities were assumed, resulting in an excess of purchase price over net tangible assets of $89 million. For the Signature Brands acquisition, the preliminary fair value of tangible assets acquired was approximately $117 million (of which $8 million was cash) and approximately $229 million of liabilities were assumed, resulting in an excess of purchase price over net tangible assets of $205 million. The excess of purchase price over net tangible assets acquired has been classified as goodwill and is being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years. The allocation of purchase price for the acquisitions will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation period based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial change in goodwill and other intangible assets.

2. ACQUISITIONS - (CONTINUED)

The following unaudited pro forma financial information for the Company gives effect to the three acquisitions as if they had occurred at the beginning of the periods presented. These pro forma results have been prepared for informational purposes only and do not purport to be indicative of the results of operations which actually would have occurred had the acquisitions been consummated on the dates indicated, or which may result in the future. The unaudited pro forma results follow (in millions, except per share data):

<TABLE>
 <CAPTION>

	Nine Months ----- September 30, 1998 -----
<S>	<C>
Net sales.....	$1,630.6
Loss from continuing operations before extraordinary charge (a), (b).....	(505.8)
Basic and diluted loss per share from continuing operations before extraordinary items.....	(5.03)

(a) Coleman's loss before extraordinary items have been adjusted to exclude the following one time after tax benefits and charges: (i) a $15.8 million gain from the sale of Coleman Safety and Security Products, Inc., (ii) $7.1 million of costs incurred by Coleman associated with the Company's acquisition of Coleman, (iii) the write off of $2.1 million of capitalized costs associated with the installation of new software which will be abandoned as a result of the acquisition by the Company, (iv) $1.3 million of costs to terminate a license agreement with a former affiliate of Coleman, and (v) the write off of $1.7 million of unrealized deferred tax assets as a result of the change of control of Coleman.

(b) In 1998 and 1997, respectively, after tax interest expense was increased $15.6 million and $42.2 million, and goodwill amortization, after tax, was increased $6.3 million in 1998 and $19.9 million in 1997 to reflect the pro forma effect of the acquisition occurring at the beginning of the period. In addition, the minority shareholder percentage was adjusted to reflect the change in the portion of Coleman held by minority shareholders following the transaction. The minority interest in Coleman's losses from continuing operations was adjusted by $1.2 million in 1998 and $4.2 million in 1997 to reflect both the change in the proportion of the ownership of Coleman held by minority shareholders and the effects of the pro forma adjustments.

3. CREDIT FACILITIES, LONG-TERM DEBT AND FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

In order to finance the acquisitions described in Note 2 and refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and its acquired entities, the Company consummated: (i) an offering (the "Offering") of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures") at a yield to maturity of 5% (approximately $2,014 million principal amount at maturity) in March 1998, which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds and, (ii) entered into a revolving and term credit facility ("New Credit Facility").

The Debentures are exchangeable for shares of the Company's common stock at an initial conversion rate of 6.575 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the Debentures, subject to adjustment upon occurrence of certain events. The Company was required to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission to register the Debentures by June 23, 1998, which registration statement has not been filed. From June 23, 1998 until the registration statement is filed and declared effective, the Company is required to pay to the Debenture holders cash liquidated damages accruing, for each day during such period, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days and 0.50% thereafter multiplied by the total of the issue price of the Debentures plus the original issue discount thereon on such day. The Company made its first payment of approximately $525,000 to the Debenture holders on September 25, 1998. (See Note 10.)

(UNAUDITED)

3. CREDIT FACILITIES, LONG-TERM DEBT AND FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS - (CONTINUED)

The New Credit Facility provided for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion pursuant to: (i) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million, maturing March 31, 2005; (ii) an $800 million term loan maturing on March 31, 2005, and (iii) a $500 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006. Interest accrues at a rate selected at the Company's option of: (i) the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items or, (ii) the base rate of the administrative agent (generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 1/2 of 1%), plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items. The New Credit Facility contains certain covenants, including limitations on the ability of the Company and its subsidiaries to engage in certain transactions and the requirement to maintain certain financial covenants and ratios.

At June 30, 1998, the Company was not in compliance with the financial covenants and ratios required under the New Credit Facility. The Company and its lenders entered into an agreement dated June 30, 1998, which provided that compliance with the covenants would be waived through December 31, 1998. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility are secured by the Company's assets, including its stock interest in Coleman. Pursuant to an amendment dated October 19, 1998, the Company is not required to comply with the original financial covenants and ratios under the New Credit Facility until April 10, 1999, but will be required to comply with an earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization covenant, the amounts of which are to be determined, beginning February 1999. Concurrent with each of these amendments, interest margin was increased. The margin continues to increase monthly through March 1999 to a maximum of 400 basis points over LIBOR. At the end of November 1998, following the scheduled repayment of a portion of the term loan, the New Credit Facility was reduced to $1,698 million in total, of which approximately $1,421 million was outstanding and approximately $277 million was available. In addition, at the same time, the Company's cash balance available for debt repayment was approximately $22 million.

The Company is working closely with its bank lenders in an effort to reach agreement on a further amendment to the New Credit Facility containing mutually acceptable revised financial covenants. There can be no assurance that such an amendment, or a further waiver of the existing financial covenants, will be entered into with the bank lenders by April 10, 1999. The failure to obtain such an amendment or further waiver would result in violation of the existing covenants, which would permit the bank lenders to accelerate the maturity of all outstanding borrowing under the New Credit Facility. Accordingly, the debt related to the New Credit Facility and all debt containing cross-default provisions is classified as current in the Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet as of September 30, 1998.

The Company selectively uses derivatives to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivatives are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. Foreign exchange option and forward contracts are used to hedge a portion of the Company's underlying exposures denominated in foreign currency. Although the market value of derivative contracts at any single point in time will vary with changes in interest and/or foreign exchange rates, the differences between the carrying value and fair value of such contracts at September 30, 1998 and September 28, 1997 were not considered to be material, either individually or in the aggregate. The Company enters into derivative contracts with counterparties that it believes to be creditworthy. The Company does not enter into any leveraged derivative transactions. At September 30, 1998, the Company held three interest rate swap agreements, one with a notional value of $25 million and two in a notional amount of $150 million each. The swap agreements are contracts to exchange floating rate for fixed interest payments periodically over the life of the agreements without the exchange of the underlying notional principal amounts. The swaps expire in January 2003, June 2001 and June 2003 and have strike rates of 6.115%, 5.75% and 5.58%, respectively. The notional amounts of the agreements do not represent the amount of exposure to credit loss.

In March 1998, the Company prepaid a $75.0 million 7.85% industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility originally due in 2009. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge of $8.6 million in the first quarter of 1998. As a result of repayment of certain indebtedness assumed in the Coleman acquisition, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge of $103.1 million, net of income taxes of $10.7 million, in the second quarter of 1998. In connection with the acquisition of Signature Brands, the Company was required to defease $70.0 million of acquired debt. Cash was placed with a trustee to provide for the defeasance, including $5.6 million for the related prepayment penalty. This cash was used to purchase Treasury notes. Accordingly, $83.7 million of restricted investments held by the trustee for the August 1999 liquidation of acquired debt are reflected as an asset in the balance sheet at September 30, 1998.

3. CREDIT FACILITIES, LONG-TERM DEBT AND FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS - (CONTINUED)

In December 1997, the Company entered into a receivables securitization program under which the Company has received approximately $130.6 million from the sale of trade accounts receivable through the third quarter of 1998. Costs of the program, which primarily consist of the purchaser's financing cost of issuing commercial paper backed by the receivables, totaled $0.4 million during the third quarter of 1998 and $1.9 million for the year-to-date. The Company, as agent for the purchaser of the receivables, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables. This agreement contains cross-default provisions which provide the purchaser of the receivables an option to cease purchasing receivables from the Company if the Company is in default under the New Credit Facility.

4. COMPREHENSIVE INCOME

The Company adopted SFAS No. 130, REPORTING COMPREHENSIVE INCOME, effective January 1, 1998. SFAS No. 130 establishes standards for reporting and display of comprehensive income and its components in financial statements. The components of the Company's comprehensive (loss) income are as follows (in thousands):

6. RESTRUCTURING AND ASSET IMPAIRMENT, INVENTORY PROVISION AND RELATED LIABILITIES

In 1997 and the first half of 1998, the Company built inventories in anticipation of 1998 sales volumes which have not materialized. As a result, it has been and will continue to be necessary to dispose of some portions of this excess inventory at amounts less than cost. Accordingly, in the second quarter of 1998, the Company recorded $46.4 million in charges to properly state this inventory at lower-of-cost-or-market. Of this charge, a nominal amount related to an acquired entity. The Company also recorded a charge of $11.0 million for excess inventories for raw materials and work in process which will not be used due to outsourcing the production of the related products. Additionally, the Company decided to discontinue certain product lines in the second quarter of 1998 and, accordingly, recorded a charge of $26.6 million to properly state this inventory at lower-of-cost-or-market. In the third quarter, the Company recorded an additional charge of $2.2 million in an acquired entity.

In the second quarter of 1998, as a result of decisions to outsource or discontinue a substantial number of products previously made by the Company, certain facilities and equipment will either no longer be used or will be used in a significantly different manner. Accordingly, a charge of $29.6 million was recorded to write certain of these assets down to reflect the fair market value of items held for disposition. Approximately 80% of this charge related to machinery, equipment and tooling at the Company's Mexico City and Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing plants. Personnel at the Mexico City facility were notified in the second quarter of 1998 that the plant is scheduled for closure at year-end 1998, accordingly, a liability of $1.8 million was recorded in cost of goods sold primarily for employee severance and other facility closure costs. In the third quarter, the Company recorded an additional provision for fixed assets of $3.1 million in an acquired entity. The Company is in the process of assessing the impairment of certain other assets to be retained by the Company which will be used in a significantly different manner as a result of the decisions to outsource or discontinue certain products. Additionally, the Company is in the process of assessing the expected future performance of its business operations. These assessments are expected to be completed in the fourth quarter and are expected to result in material adjustments to the valuation of assets used in the business.

At December 28, 1997, the Company, before consideration of the Coleman acquisition, had $5.2 million in liabilities accrued related to a 1996 restructuring plan. The majority of these liabilities related to facility closures and related exit costs. During the first three quarters of 1998 this liability was reduced by $0.7 million as a result of cash expenditures.

The restated restructuring reserve details and activity as of and for the nine months ended September 28, 1997 are as follows (in millions):

7. DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS

The Company's discontinued furniture business, which was sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and nominal earnings in that period. As a result of the sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69.0 million in cash, retained approximately $50.0 million in accounts receivable and retained certain liabilities. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss on disposal of $22.5 million pre-tax.

8. RESTATEMENT

Subsequent to the issuance of the Company's condensed consolidated financial statements for the three months ended March 31, 1998, it was determined that for the years ended December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997 and the three months ended March 31, 1998, certain revenue was improperly recognized (principally "bill and hold" and guaranteed sales transactions), certain costs and allowances were not accrued or were improperly recorded (principally allowances for returns, cooperative advertising, and customer charge-backs as well as deductions and reserves for product liability and warranty expense) and certain costs were inappropriately included in, and subsequently charged to, restructuring, asset impairment and other costs within the Consolidated Statements of Operations. As a result, the consolidated financial statements as of December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996 and for the years then ended were restated and a Form 10-K/A was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") on November 12, 1998. The condensed consolidated financial statements as of March 31, 1998 and March 30, 1997 and for the three months then ended were restated and a Form 10-Q/A was filed with the SEC on November 25, 1998.

A summary of the effects of the restatement as of and for the three and nine months ended September 28, 1997 follows (in thousands, except per share data):

9. NEW EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENTS

On February 20, 1998 the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999.

The new employment agreement for the Company's then Chairman provided for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,333 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement. In addition, the new employment agreement with the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment agreements with the two other then senior officers provided for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that vest in four equal annual installments beginning the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreements, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreements. In addition, the new employment agreements provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related income tax gross-ups was recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups was amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 with amortization to continue over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total compensation expense recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items was approximately $31 million.

On June 15, 1998, the Company's Board of Directors announced the removal of the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and subsequently announced the removal or resignation of other senior officers, including the Company's then Chief Financial Officer. In connection with the removal or resignation of the senior officers and the termination of their restricted stock grants, the unamortized portion of the deferred compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock grants was reversed. Of the approximately $0.9 million compensation expense recognized in the first quarter of 1998 for unvested restricted stock grants, $0.8 million was reversed into income in the second quarter of 1998 and the remainder was reversed into income in the third quarter. The Company and certain of its former officers are in disagreement as to the Company's obligations to these individuals under prior employment agreements and arising from their terminations. The Board of Directors has installed a new Chief Executive Officer and senior management team.

10. COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

SEC INVESTIGATION

By letter dated June 17, 1998, the staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised the Company that it was conducting an informal inquiry into the Company's accounting policies and procedures and requested that the Company produce certain documents. On July 2, 1998, the SEC issued a Formal Order of Private Investigation, designating officers to take testimony and pursuant to which a subpoena duces tecum was served on the Company requiring the production of certain documents. On November 4, 1998, another SEC subpoena duces tecum requiring the production of further documents was received by the Company. The Company has provided numerous documents to the SEC staff and continues to cooperate fully with the SEC staff. The Company cannot predict the term of such investigation or its potential outcome.

LITIGATION

On April 23, 1998, two class action lawsuits were filed on behalf of purchasers of the Company's common stock in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the Company and certain of its present and former officers and directors alleging violations of the federal securities laws as discussed below (the "Consolidated Federal Actions"). Since that date, approximately fifteen similar class actions have been filed in the same Court. One of the lawsuits also names as defendant Arthur Andersen LLP, the Company's independent accountants for the period covered by the lawsuit.

The complaints in the Consolidated Federal Actions allege to varying degrees that the defendants (i) failed to disclose that the Company pre-sold approximately $50 million of products pursuant to its "early buy" marketing program in an effort to boost its 1997 sales and net income figures and (ii) made material misrepresentations regarding the Company's business operations, future prospects and anticipated earnings per share, in an effort to artificially inflate the price of the Company stock long enough for the Company to complete a $2 billion debt financing (supported with stock incentives) necessary to complete the acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, and for the individual defendants to enter into lucrative long-term employment agreements with the Company. Each complaint alleges two counts of securities fraud; one count against all defendants and one count against the individual defendants.

On June 16, 1998, the Court entered an Order consolidating all such filed and all such subsequently filed class actions and providing time periods for the filing of a Consolidated Amended Complaint and defendants' response thereto. On June 22, 1998, two groups of plaintiffs made motions to be appointed lead plaintiffs and to have their selection of counsel approved as lead counsel. On July 20, 1998, the Court entered an Order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel (the "Smith Plaintiffs' Group"). This Order also stated that it "shall apply to all subsequently filed actions which are consolidated herewith". On August 28, 1998, plaintiffs in one of the subsequently filed actions filed an objection to having their action consolidated pursuant to the June 16, 1998 Order, arguing that the class period in their action differs from the class periods in the originally filed consolidated actions. On September 29, 1998, the Smith Plaintiffs' Group filed its memorandum in opposition to this objection. On December 9, 1998, the Court entered an Order overruling plaintiff's objections and affirming its prior Order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel.

On April 7, 1998, a purported derivative action was filed in the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida against the Company and certain of its present and former officers and directors. The action alleged that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties and wasted corporate assets when the Company granted stock options to three of its officers and directors on or about February 2, 1998 at an exercise price of $36.85. On June 25, 1998, all defendants filed a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to make a presuit demand on the board of directors of the Company. On October 22, 1998, the plaintiff amended the complaint against all but one of the defendants named in the original complaint. The amended complaint no longer challenges the stock options, but instead alleges that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties by failing to have in place adequate accounting and sales controls, which failure caused the inaccurate reporting of financial information to the public, thereby causing an artificial inflation of the Company's financial statements and stock price.

On June 25, 1998, four purported class actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County by minority shareholders of Coleman against the Company and certain of the Company's present and former officers and directors. An additional class action was filed on August 10, 1998, against the same parties. All of the plaintiffs are represented by the same Delaware counsel and have agreed to consolidate the class actions. These actions allege, in essence, that the existing exchange ratio for the proposed merger between the Company and Coleman is no longer fair to Coleman shareholders as a result of the recent decline in the market value of the Company stock. On October 21, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into a Memorandum of Understanding to settle, subject to court approval, certain class actions brought by shareholders of Coleman challenging the proposed Coleman Merger. Under the terms of the proposed settlement, the Company will issue to the Coleman public shareholders five-year warrants to purchase 4.98 million shares of the Company's common stock at $7.00 per share. These warrants will generally have the same terms as the warrants previously issued to a subsidiary of M&F and will be issued when the Coleman Merger is consummated, which is now expected to be in the first half of 1999. Issuance of these warrants will be accounted for as additional purchase consideration. There can be no assurance that the Court will approve the settlement as proposed.

During the months of August and October 1998, purported class and derivative actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County and in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by shareholders of the Company against the Company, M&F and certain of the Company's present and former directors. These complaints allege that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties when the Company entered into a settlement agreement with M&F whereby M&F released the Company from any claims it may have had arising out of the Company's acquisition of its interest in Coleman and agreed to provide management support to the Company (the "Settlement Agreement"). Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, M&F was granted five-year warrants to purchase an additional 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price of $7.00 per share. These complaints also allege that the rights of the public shareholders have been compromised, as the settlement would normally require shareholder approval under the rules and regulations of the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"). The Audit Committee of the Company's board determined that obtaining such shareholder approval would have seriously jeopardized the financial viability of the Company which is an allowable exception to the NYSE shareholder approval requirements. The Company has moved to dismiss each of the complaints to which it is a party.

On September 16, 1998, an action was filed in the 56th Judicial District Court of Galveston County, Texas alleging various claims in violation of the Texas Securities Act and Texas Business and Commercial Code as well as common law fraud as a result of the Company's alleged misstatements and omissions regarding the Company's financial condition and prospects during a period beginning May 1, 1998 and ending June 16, 1998, in which the plaintiffs engaged in transactions in the Company's stock. The Company is the only named defendant in this action. The complaint requests recovery of compensatory damages, punitive damages and expenses in an unspecified amount. This action has been removed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas and the Company has filed a motion to transfer this case to the Southern District of Florida, the forum for the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiffs have moved to remand the case to Texas state court.

On October 30, 1998, a class action lawsuit was filed on behalf of certain purchasers of the Company's Debentures in the U.S. District Court of the Southern District of Florida against the Company and its prior Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, alleging violations of the federal securities laws and common law fraud. The complaint alleges that the Company's offering memorandum used for the marketing of the Debentures contained false and misleading information regarding the Company's financial position and that the defendants engaged in a plan to inflate the Company's earnings for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs and others. The Company is seeking to consolidate this lawsuit with the other Consolidated Federal Actions.

The Company has been named as a defendant in an action filed by HBK Investments, L.P., et al. in the District Court of Tarrant County, Texas, 48th Judicial District, on November 20, 1998. The plaintiffs in this action are purchasers of the Debentures. The plaintiffs allege that the Company violated the Texas Securities Act and the Texas Business & Commercial Code and committed state common law fraud by materially misstating the financial position of the Company in connection with the offering and sale of the Debentures. The complaint seeks rescission, as well as compensatory and exemplary damages in an unspecified amount.

The Company intends to vigorously defend each of the foregoing lawsuits, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of the Company's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if the foregoing actions were determined adversely to the Company, such judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

On July 2, 1998, the American Insurance Company ("American") filed suit against the Company in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York requesting a declaratory judgment of the court that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for excess coverage issued by American was invalid and/or had been properly cancelled by American. The Company has moved to transfer such action to the federal district court in which the Consolidated Federal Actions are currently pending; American is opposing such motion. On October 20, 1998, an action was filed by Federal Insurance Company in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American in the previously filed action as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. The Company intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against the Company or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions. The Company's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgement against the Company in any of the foregoing actions could have a material adverse impact on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

The Company and its subsidiaries are also involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time which the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these routine matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations of the Predecessor, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position, results of operations or cash flows of the Company.

ITEM 2. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The following discussion should be read in conjunction with the accompanying condensed consolidated financial statements as of and for the three and nine months ended September 30, 1998 and September 28, 1997.

ACQUISITIONS

On March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of the Company's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash as well as the assumption of $1,016 million in debt. The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and approximately $87 million in cash. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the first half of fiscal 1999. (See Note 2 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.) Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically under the Coleman /registered trademark/ brand name since the 1920's.

On April 6, 1998, the Company completed the cash acquisitions of First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert"), a leading manufacturer of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, and Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands"), a leading manufacturer of consumer and professional products. The First Alert and the Signature Brands acquisitions were valued at approximately $178 million and $253 million, respectively, including the assumption of debt.

The acquisitions were recorded under the purchase method of accounting; and accordingly, the results of operations of each acquired entity are included in the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statements of Operations from the respective dates of acquisition. The purchase prices of the acquired entities have been allocated to individual assets acquired and liabilities assumed based on preliminary estimates of fair market values at the dates of acquisition. The purchase price allocations for the acquisitions will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation periods based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial change in goodwill and other intangible assets.

To standardize the fiscal period ends of the Company and the acquired entities, effective with its 1998 fiscal year, the Company has changed its fiscal year end from the Sunday nearest December 31 to a calendar year. (See Note 1 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

THREE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 30, 1998 COMPARED TO THREE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 28, 1997

Results of operations for the three months ended September 30, 1998 include the results of the acquired entities for the entire period. The acquired entities generated net sales of $326.1 million in the quarter with corresponding gross margin of $75.2 million, or 23% of sales. SG&A costs recorded by the acquired entities were $84.3 million in the period, yielding an operating loss of $9.1 million. Included in cost of sales of the acquired entities for the quarter was approximately $10 million of expense related to purchase accounting adjustments which require adjusting the values of acquired inventories to fair market value at the date of acquisition. Accordingly, as these inventories are sold, the purchase accounting adjustments related to these inventories (in this case, increases in inventory values) are reflected in cost of sales. A year ago, for the full quarter, these businesses generated sales approximately $18 million higher than occurred in the third quarter of 1998. The majority of this decrease occurred at Coleman where sales were impacted by fewer product lines resulting from the sale of a portion of the business and exiting the pressure washer business during 1997. First Alert sales were adversely impacted by higher returns, as compared with the same period a year ago. Additionally, each acquired business experienced a general disruption due to the acquisitions and management changes. Excluding the impact of the purchase accounting adjustments described above, gross margins in the acquired entities were $19 million lower in 1998 as compared with their results in the prior year. Lower sales in the acquired entities accounted for approximately 30% of this change. Coleman recorded $5.3 million in third quarter charges for excess and obsolete inventory and a provision for fixed assets, as described in Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements. In addition, an adverse sales mix at Signature Brands and recent developments on existing environmental remediation at Coleman which resulted in an increase in the environmental provision accounted for the majority of the remaining decrease in margins as compared with those reported by the acquired entities a year ago.

Net sales as reported by Sunbeam is comprised of gross sales less provisions for estimated customer returns, discounts, promotional allowances, cooperative advertising allowances and costs incurred by the Company to ship product to customers. Net sales for the three months ended September 30, 1998 were $496.0 million, an increase of $209.2 million versus the three months ended September 28, 1997. After excluding: (i) $326.1 million from 1998 sales generated by the acquired entities, as discussed above; (ii) approximately $2 million from 1998 sales related to the change in fiscal period, as discussed in Note 1 to the condensed consolidated financial statements, and (iii) $5.4 million from 1998 and $7.6 million from 1997 sales of excess or discontinued inventory for which the inventory carrying value was substantially equivalent to the sales value, net sales on an adjusted basis ("Adjusted Sales") were $162.6 million in 1998, a 42% decrease from $279.2 million in the third quarter of 1997. Overall, Adjusted Sales for the third quarter of 1998 as compared with the prior year were adversely impacted by increasing retail inventory positions in 1997 as compared with decreasing retail inventory positions in 1998, distribution losses and sales timing issues. In addition, the historical Sunbeam operations were adversely impacted by disruption from acquisition activities and management changes in the period.

Domestic Adjusted Sales declined approximately $89 million from the third quarter of 1997. The Company believes approximately half of the decline in sales between years was attributable to the changes in retail inventory positions. Excluding the impact of the change in retail inventories between periods, the decline in sales was attributable to lower sales levels throughout the business. The single largest component of this decrease in sales was attributable to timing issues related to sales of Personal Care and Comfort products. This decrease as compared with a year ago is expected to be largely recovered in the fourth quarter. Appliance product sales were adversely impacted by significant price reductions for breadmakers. Distribution losses for grills, appliances and Health at Home products accounted for the majority of the remaining sales decrease as compared with last year's third quarter.

International sales, which represented 19% of Adjusted Sales in the third quarter of 1998, were just over half the level achieved in the third quarter of 1997's Adjusted Sales. The Company believes this sales decline was due to three key reasons: decreasing customer inventory levels as compared with the prior year; a decision to stop selling to certain Latin American export distributors, and poor economic conditions in Latin America.

Excluding: (i) the gross margin generated from the inclusion of the acquired entities' operations in the quarter, as discussed above, and (ii) the impact in 1998 of the change in the fiscal period, as discussed in Note 1 to the condensed consolidated financial statements, gross margin declined to a loss of $8.0 million for the third quarter of 1998 versus a profit of $76.5 million for the same period a year ago. The decrease in sales volume between periods, coupled with adverse manufacturing variances and increases in estimated warranty reserves accounted for the majority of the decrease in margins. The adverse manufacturing variances as compared with the third quarter of 1997 arose from lower manufacturing activities in the current year resulting from the high levels of inventory on hand and a less robust demand forecast than existed a year ago. Operating results will be adversely impacted due to higher inventory carrying costs and unabsorbed fixed factory overhead during the remainder of the year.

Excluding the effect of: (i) $84.3 million of SG&A charges from the acquired entities; (ii) $70 million related to warrants issued in the period, as discussed in Note 2 to the condensed consolidated financial statements; (iii) approximately $1.5 million of costs due to the change in fiscal periods; (iii) $16.9 million of costs incurred in 1998 related to the restatement efforts and related litigation, Year 2000 remediation and costs of relocating the corporate office; (iv) $4.0 million in 1998 for severance and other costs resulting from the change in management, net of the reversal of certain compensation costs recorded in the first quarter as discussed in Note 9 to the condensed consolidated financial statements; (v) $7.3 million of benefit in the third quarter of 1997 from the reversal of reserves no longer required, including the restructuring reserve reversal, as shown in Note 6 to the condensed consolidated financial statements; and (vi) $2.5 million of restructuring related charges recorded in 1997, SG&A expenses were $51.7 million in 1998, approximately 43% higher than the same period in 1997. Higher freight and warehousing costs resulting from the higher inventory levels in 1998 along with higher costs related to customer service resulted in nearly $4 million of the increase in costs between years. Increases in required legal and environmental reserves led to approximately $4 million higher costs between years. Travel and relocation, higher outside service costs and other general SG&A cost increases between years account for the remaining change.

Operating results for the third quarters of 1998 and 1997, on an adjusted basis as described above, were a loss of $59.7 million in 1998 and a profit of $40.3 million in 1997. This change resulted from the factors discussed above.

Interest expense increased from $2.9 million in the third quarter of 1997 to $42.7 million in the third quarter of 1998 primarily related to higher borrowing levels in 1998 for the acquisitions. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

Other income, net in 1998 of $11.0 million included approximately $8 million from the settlement of a lawsuit. The remaining other income, net in 1998 and the $1.3 million recognized in 1997 were from favorable foreign exchange, primarily from Mexico.

The minority interest reported for the third quarter of 1998 relates to the minority interest held in Coleman by public shareholders.

Income taxes in the third quarter of 1998 reflect taxes benefits on earnings of foreign operations. A valuation allowance has been provided in 1998 for deferred tax assets generated by Sunbeam's operations. The 1997 rate was higher than the federal statutory income tax rate primarily due to state and local taxes plus the effect of foreign earnings taxed at other rates.

Due to increased inventory positions at certain customers which resulted from sales in 1997 and the first quarter of 1998, as well as increased inventory positions at the Company, sales and operating income will be affected in the fourth quarter of 1998 and into 1999. Future results are also expected to be impacted materially by charges related to, among other items, changes in business operations resulting in part from acquisitions in 1998, interest costs associated with higher debt levels, asset impairment costs, as well as costs related to Year 2000 issues. (See "Liquidity and Capital Resources", below, and Notes 2, 3, 6, and 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 30, 1998 COMPARED TO NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 28, 1997

Results of operations for the nine months ended September 30, 1998 include the results of Coleman for March 30 and 31, 1998 and the entire second and third quarters and of Signature Brands and First Alert from April 6, 1998. The acquired entities generated net sales of $717.2 million in the period since the acquisitions with corresponding gross margin of $158.3 million, or 22% of sales. SG&A costs recorded by the acquired entities were $163.9 million in the period, yielding an operating loss of $5.6 million. Included in cost of sales of the acquired entities was approximately $30 million of expense related to purchase accounting adjustments which require adjusting the values of acquired inventories to fair market value at the date of acquisition. Accordingly, as these inventories are sold, the purchase accounting adjustments related to these inventories (in this case, increases in inventory values) are reflected in cost of sales. A year ago, on a year-to-date basis, sales of the acquired entities were approximately $140 million higher than in the comparable nine months of 1998 due to: a decrease in product lines at Coleman resulting from the sale of a portion of the business, a program to reduce SKU's and exiting the pressure washer business in 1997; softness in demand resulting from the domestic retail channel's efforts to lower inventory levels; adverse economic conditions in Japan and Southeast Asia; product availability issues at Signature Brands; higher sales returns at First Alert, and general disruption in the acquired entities due to the acquisitions and management changes. Excluding the impact of the purchase accounting adjustments described above, gross margins generated by the acquired entities were $65 million lower in 1998 than for the prior year-to-date period. Approximately 60% of the change resulted from the lower sales in 1998. An adverse sales mix at Signature Brands and charges at Coleman and Signature Brands in 1998 related to inventory reserves, provisions for fixed assets and environmental remediation accounted for the majority of the remaining decline in margins as compared with operations in the acquired entities for the first nine months of 1997.

Net sales for the nine months ended September 30, 1998 were $1,322.1 million, an increase of $511.4 million versus the nine months ended September 28, 1997. After excluding: (i) $717.2 million of sales generated by the acquired entities, as discussed above; (ii) approximately $6 million of higher sales in 1998 resulting from the change in fiscal year end, as described in Note 1 to the condensed consolidated financial statements; (iii) $5.4 million in 1998 and $25.7 million from 1997 sales of excess or discontinued inventory for which the inventory carrying value was substantially equivalent to the sales value; (iv) $4.2 million from 1997 sales relating to divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products and Counselor / registered trademark/ and Borg /registered trademark/ branded scales), and (v) a $4.0 million benefit from the reduction of cooperative advertising accruals no longer required in 1997, net sales on an adjusted basis ("Adjusted Sales") of $594.0 million decreased approximately 24% from $776.8 million in the first nine months of 1997. Overall, product sales were adversely impacted by changes in retail inventory levels, price discounting and higher provisions for estimated returns, costs to ship products to customers, rebates and other customer allowances.

Domestic Adjusted Sales declined approximately 25% or $149 million from the first three quarters of 1997. The Company believes more than half of the sales decline was due to increasing retail inventory levels in 1997 versus decreasing inventory positions at customers in 1998. Excluding this effect, sales were still lower than the prior year throughout the business, with the most significant decline occurring in Outdoor Cooking products sales. During 1997, the Company lost a significant portion of its Outdoor Cooking products distribution, including the majority of its grill parts and accessories products distribution. The Outdoor Cooking products sales decline was attributable to this lost distribution, to price discounting and higher customer allowances. Appliance Adjusted Sales declined between years as a result of higher provisions for returns, freight and co-operative advertising allowances in 1998, lost distribution and price erosion on breadmakers. The sales decline in Personal Care and Comfort products arose principally in the third quarter and was primarily due to sales timing issues which are generally expected to be recovered in the fourth quarter.

International sales, which represented 23% of Adjusted Sales for the first three quarters of 1998, decreased approximately 20% compared with the Adjusted Sales for the same period a year ago. The Company believes this sales decline was primarily attributable to decreasing customer inventory levels as compared with the prior year. Sales were also adversely impacted by a decision to stop selling to certain export distributors in Latin America and by poor economic conditions in that region. In addition, lost distribution in Canada contributed to the sales decline from the prior year.

Excluding: (i) the gross margin generated from the inclusion of the acquired entities' operations in the period, as discussed above; (ii) the impact of the change in fiscal year-end as discussed in Note 1 to the condensed consolidated financial statements; (iii) $109.8 million in charges recorded in the second quarter of 1998 related to excess inventory and fixed assets; (iii) $4.0 million from the benefit in 1997 of reducing the cooperative advertising accrual no longer required, and (iv) a $2.8 million benefit recorded in the second quarter of 1997 resulting from capitalizing certain manufacturing supplies inventories which were previously expensed, gross margin declined to a loss of $0.6 million for the first nine months of 1998 versus $183.2 million for the same period a year ago. Lower sales volume and unfavorable manufacturing efficiencies from lower production levels associated with the lower sales volumes and high inventory levels in 1998 accounted for approximately 50% of the change between years. Approximately 30% of the decrease is attributable to lower price realization and higher costs of customer allowances, rebates and similar incentives in 1998, higher product return reserves and an adverse product sales mix in 1998. The adverse product sales mix was due in part to the loss of a majority of the grill accessory products distribution. Accessories generate significantly better margins than the average margins on sales of grills. During the first half of each year, grill and grill accessory sales are traditionally a higher portion of overall sales in the period than during other quarters of the year. Costs associated with a blanket recall, higher warranty reserves and certain adjustments related to physical inventories drove the remaining increases in cost of goods sold.

Excluding the effect of: (i) $163.9 million of SG&A charges in the acquired entities; (ii) $70 million recorded in the second quarter of 1998 related to the issuance of warrants; (iii) approximately $2.3 million of SG&A expense in 1998 from the change in the fiscal period; (iv) a $5.9 million benefit in the first nine months of 1998 and an $8.2 million benefit in the same period in 1997 from the reversal of reserves no longer required; (v) $34.4 million of charges recorded in 1998 related to compensation and severance for certain former employees; (vi) $16.9 million of costs incurred in 1998 related to the restatement efforts, Year 2000 remediation and the corporate office relocation, and (vii) $11.9 million of restructuring related charges recorded in 1997, SG&A expenses were $158.8 million in 1998, 48% higher than the same period in 1997. This increase is due in part to approximately $8 million in higher advertising and marketing costs between years due to a national television advertising campaign for grills, package redesign costs and market research. Higher inventory levels in 1998 and costs associated with outsourcing small parts fulfillment led to higher distribution and warehousing costs which were $10 million greater than a year ago. Corporate administrative costs were approximately $28 million higher between years, resulting primarily from increases in outside service provider fees, including telephone charges, travel and relocation fees, higher legal and environmental reserves and other general administrative costs. Higher bad debt charges in 1998 accounted for the majority of the remaining increase in SG&A costs between years. These bad debt charges resulted nearly equally from collection issues with certain customers in the U.S. and in Latin America.

Operating results for the first three quarters of 1998 and 1997, on an adjusted basis as described above, were a loss of $159.4 million in 1998 and a profit of $75.8 million in 1997. This change resulted from the factors discussed above.

Interest expense increased from $7.8 million in the first nine months of 1997 to $90.1 million for the same period in 1998. Approximately 80% of the change related to higher borrowing levels in 1998 for the acquisitions, with the remainder due to increased borrowings to fund working capital and the operating losses. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

Other income, in 1998 net of $5.7 million included approximately $8 million from the settlement of a lawsuit. Excluding this amount, there was approximately $2.3 million of net losses from foreign exchange in the period. In 1998, net foreign exchange gains accounted for the majority of the $0.9 million other income. The foreign exchange gains and losses in each year are primarily from results in Mexico.

The minority interest reported in 1998 relates to the minority interest held in Coleman by public shareholders.

Income taxes in 1998 reflect taxes on earnings of foreign subsidiaries and franchise taxes. A valuation allowance has been provided in 1998 for deferred tax assets generated by Sunbeam's operations. The 1997 rate was higher than the federal statutory income tax rate primarily due to state and local taxes plus the effect of foreign earnings taxed at other rates.

In 1998, the Company prepaid certain debt assumed in the acquisitions and prepaid an industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge of $111.7 million ($1.16 per share).

The Company's discontinued furniture business, which was sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and nominal earnings for that period. As a result of the sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69.0 million in cash, retained approximately $50.0 million in accounts receivable and retained certain liabilities. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss on disposal of $22.5 million pre-tax.

20

FOREIGN OPERATIONS

Approximately 80% of the Company's business is conducted in U.S. dollars (including both domestic sales, U.S. dollar denominated export sales, primarily to certain Latin American markets, Asian sales and the majority of European sales). The Company's non-U.S. dollar denominated sales are made principally by subsidiaries in Europe, Japan and Mexico. Mexico reverted to a hyperinflationary status for accounting purposes in 1997; therefore, translation adjustments related to Mexican net monetary assets are included as a component of net earnings. Mexico is not expected to be considered hyperinflationary as of January 1, 1999.

While Sunbeam's revenues generated in Asia have traditionally not been significant, economic instability in this region is expected to have a negative effect on Coleman's earnings. Economic instability and the political environment in Latin America have also affected sales in that region. It is anticipated that sales in and exports to these regions will continue to decline so long as the economic environments in those regions remain unsettled.

On a limited basis, the Company selectively uses derivatives (foreign exchange option and forward contracts) to manage foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivative contracts are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's financial results in 1998 and 1997. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

SEASONALITY

On a consolidated basis, the Company's sales have not traditionally exhibited substantial seasonality; however, sales have been strongest during the fourth quarter of the calendar year. Additionally, sales of Outdoor Cooking products are strongest in the first half of the year, while sales of Appliances and Personal Care and Comfort products are strongest in the second half of the year. Furthermore, sales of a number of the Company's traditional products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers and grills may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions. After considering the seasonality of the acquired entities, the Company's consolidated sales are not expected to exhibit substantial seasonality; however, sales are expected to be strongest during the second quarter of the calendar year. Additionally, sales of many products sold by the Company may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

In order to finance the acquisition of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands and to refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and the acquired entities, the Company consummated: (i) an offering (the "Offering") of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures") at a yield to maturity of 5% (approximately $2,014 million principal amount at maturity) in March 1998, which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds and, (ii) entered into a revolving and term credit facility ("New Credit Facility").

The Company was required to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission to register the Debentures by June 23, 1998, which registration statement has not been filed. From June 23, 1998 until the day on which the registration statement is filed and declared effective, the Company is required to pay to the Debenture holders cash liquidated damages accruing, for each day during such period, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days and 0.50% thereafter multiplied by the total of the issue price of the Debentures plus the original issue discount thereon on such day. The Company made its first payment of approximately $525,000 to the Debenture holders on September 25, 1998. (See Note 3.)

The New Credit Facility provided for aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion pursuant to: (i) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million, maturing March 31, 2005; (ii) an $800 million term loan maturing on March 31, 2005, and (iii) a $500 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006. Interest accrues at a rate selected at the Company's option of: (i) the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items or, (ii) the base rate of the administrative agent (generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 1/2 of 1%), plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items. The New Credit Facility contains certain covenants, including limitations on the ability of the Company and its subsidiaries to engage in certain transactions and the requirement to maintain certain financial covenants and ratios.

At June 30, 1998, the Company was not in compliance with the financial covenants and ratios required under the New Credit Facility. The Company and its lenders entered into an agreement dated June 30, 1998, which provided that compliance with the covenants would be waived through December 31, 1998. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility are secured by the Company's assets, including its stock interest in Coleman. Pursuant to an amendment dated October 19, 1998, the Company is not required to comply with the original financial covenants and ratios under the New Credit Facility until April 10, 1999, but will be required to comply with an earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization covenant, the amounts of which are to be determined, beginning February 1999. Concurrent with each of these amendments, interest margin was increased. The margin continues to increase monthly through March 1999 to a maximum of 400 basis points over LIBOR. At the end of November 1998, following the scheduled repayment of a portion of the term loan, the New Credit Facility was reduced to $1,698 million in total, of which approximately $1,421 million was outstanding and approximately $277 million was available. In addition, at the same time, the Company's cash balance available for debt repayment was approximately $22 million.

The Company is working closely with its bank lenders in an effort to reach agreement on a further amendment to the New Credit Facility containing mutually acceptable revised financial covenants. There can be no assurance that such an amendment, or a further waiver of the existing financial covenants, will be entered into with the bank lenders by April 10, 1999. The failure to obtain such an amendment or further waiver would result in violation of the existing covenants, which would permit the bank lenders to accelerate the maturity of all outstanding borrowings under the New Credit Facility. Accordingly, the debt related to the New Credit Facility and all debt containing cross-default provisions is classified as current in the Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet as of September 30, 1998.

At September 30, 1998, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $52.1 million. Cash used in operating activities during the first three quarters of 1998 was $224.7 million compared to $59.9 million for the same period in 1997. This increase is attributable to lower earnings before non-cash charges. Year-to-date 1998, $75.7 million in cash was generated by reducing receivables and a similar amount was used as inventories increased. The majority of this cash generation was from Coleman as that operation reduced receivables balances generated in its peak second quarter period. The remaining cash usage for working capital resulted primarily from reducing accounts payable levels.

Cash used in investing activities in the first nine months of 1998 reflects $379.2 million for the acquisitions. In the first three quarters of 1997, cash provided by investing activities reflected $90.9 million in proceeds from the sales of divested operations and other assets. Capital spending totaled $32.8 million in 1998 and was primarily for manufacturing efficiency initiatives, equipment and tooling for new products, and management information systems hardware and software licenses. The new product capital spending principally related to the air and water filtration products which were discontinued in the second quarter, electric blankets, grills, clippers and appliances. As the Company completes its assessment of expected future performance of its business operations, valuation adjustments may be required for certain of the assets acquired in 1998. Capital spending in 1997 was $41.0 million and was primarily attributable to manufacturing capacity expansion, cost reduction initiatives and equipment to manufacture new products. The Company anticipates 1998 capital spending to be approximately 5% of sales, primarily related to new product introductions, capacity additions and certain facility rationalization initiatives.

Cash provided by financing activities totaled $636.1 million in the first nine months of 1998 and reflects net proceeds from the Debentures of $729.6 million, the cancellation and repayment of all outstanding balances under the Company's $250 million September 1996 revolving credit facility, the repayment of certain debt acquired with the acquisitions and the early extinguishment of the $75.0 million Hattiesburg industrial revenue bond. In addition, cash provided by financing activities includes $19.6 million of proceeds from the exercise of stock options. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and approximately $87 million in cash. In addition, as a result of litigation related to the merger consideration, the Company has entered into a memorandum of understanding (subject to court approval) pursuant to which the holders of the remaining equity interest in Coleman will also receive five-year warrants to purchase 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at $7.00 per share. There can be no assurance that the court will approve the settlement as proposed. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the first half of fiscal 1999. (See Note 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

The Company believes its borrowing capacity under the New Credit Agreement, cash flow from the combined operations of the Company and its acquired companies, existing cash and cash equivalent balances, and its receivable securitization program will be sufficient to support working capital needs, capital spending, and debt service for the foreseeable future. However, if the Company is unable to satisfactorily amend the financial covenants and ratio requirements of the New Credit Facility or obtain a further waiver of the existing covenants and ratio requirements prior to April 10, 1999, the Company expects it would, at that time, be in default of the requirements under the New Credit Facility and, as noted above, the lenders could then require the repayment of all amounts then outstanding under the New Credit Facility.

NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

See Note 1 to the Company's condensed consolidated financial statements for a discussion of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 131, DISCLOSURES ABOUT SEGMENTS OF AN ENTERPRISE AND RELATED INFORMATION, SFAS No. 133, ACCOUNTING FOR DERIVATIVE INSTRUMENTS AND HEDGING ACTIVITIES, Statement of Position ("SOP") 98-1, ACCOUNTING FOR THE COSTS OF COMPUTER SOFTWARE DEVELOPED OR OBTAINED FOR INTERNAL USE and SOP 98-5, REPORTING ON THE COSTS OF START-UP ACTIVITIES, which are required to be adopted for periods beginning after December 15, 1997. The adoption of these standards is not expected to have a material effect on the Company's consolidated results of operations, financial position, or cash flows, although actual charges incurred may be material due to Year 2000 issues, as discussed below.

YEAR 2000 READINESS DISCLOSURE AND OPERATING SYSTEM ENHANCEMENTS

The Company is in the process of assessing the impact of the Year 2000 on its operations, including the Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands companies which were acquired by the Company in the spring of 1998. The Company established a Year 2000 Program Management Office in the third quarter of 1998 to conduct such assessment with assistance from three consulting firms. The Company's assessment encompasses the Company's information technology functions along with the impact of the effects of noncompliance by its vendors, service providers, customers, and financial institutions. The assessment of the Company's information technology functions is substantially complete. Additionally, the Company is assessing the impact of noncompliance of embedded microprocessors in its products as well as equipment, such as manufacturing equipment, security and telephone systems and controls for lighting, heating/ventilation, and facility access.

The Company relies on its information technology functions to perform many tasks that are critical to its operations. Significant transactions that could be impacted by Year 2000 noncompliance include, among others, purchases of materials, production management, order entry and fulfillment, and payroll processing. Systems and applications that have been identified by the Company to date as not currently Year 2000 compliant and which are critical to the Company's operations include its financial software systems, which process the order entry, purchasing, production management, general ledger, accounts receivable, and accounts payable functions, and critical applications in the Company's manufacturing and distribution facilities, such as the warehouse management application. The Company plans to complete corrective work with respect to the Company's systems by the second quarter of 1999 with final testing and implementation of such systems occurring in the second and third quarters of 1999. Management believes that, although there are significant systems that will need to be modified or replaced, the Company's information systems environment will be made Year 2000 compliant prior to January 1, 2000. The Company's failure to timely complete such corrective work could have a material adverse impact on the Company. The Company is not able to estimate possible lost profits arising from such failure.

The Company is in the process of contacting its vendors and suppliers of products and services to determine their Year 2000 readiness and plans. This review includes third party providers to whom the Company has outsourced the processing of its cash receipt and cash disbursement transactions. The Company plans to complete this review during the first quarter of 1999. The failure of certain of these third party suppliers to become Year 2000 compliant could have a material adverse impact on the Company.

The Company's preliminary assessment of the total costs to address and remedy Year 2000 issues and enhance its operating systems, including costs for the acquired companies, is $50 million. This estimate includes the costs of software and hardware modifications and replacements and fees to third party consultants, but excludes internal resources. The Company expects these expenditures to be financed through operating cash flows or borrowings, as applicable. Through September 30, 1998, the Company had expended approximately $10 million related to new systems and remediation to address Year 2000 issues of which approximately half was recorded as capital expenditures. Of the total costs, it is anticipated that approximately 25% to 30% will be incurred by year-end 1998, with the remainder in 1999. A significant portion of these expenditures will enhance the Company's operating systems in addition to resolving the Year 2000 issues. As the Company completes its assessment of the Year 2000 issues, the actual expenditures incurred or to be incurred may differ materially from the amounts shown above.

After completing the assessment of the Year 2000 on its operations, the Company plans to establish a contingency plan for addressing any effects of the Year 2000 on its operations, whether due to noncompliance of the Company's systems or those of third parties. The Company expects to complete such contingency plan by September 30, 1999; such contingency plan will address alternative processes, such as manual procedures to replace those processed by noncompliant systems, potential alternative service providers, and plans to address compliance issues as they arise. Subject to the nature of the systems and applications which are not made Year 2000 compliant, the impact of such non-compliance on the Company's operations could be material if appropriate contingency plans cannot be developed prior to January 1, 2000.

RESTATEMENT OF RESULTS OF OPERATIONS FOR THE THREE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 28, 1997 COMPARED TO THE THREE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 29, 1996

The results of operations previously reported for the three months ended September 28, 1997 as compared with the three months ended September 29, 1996 generally understated the level of expenses incurred in that year. Gross margin was previously reported to have improved 18.3 percentage points from the level achieved in the third quarter of 1996. After restatement, the gross margin improvement was 14.3 percentage points. Operating income was previously reported to have improved $75.6 million to 19.0% of sales, up 27.9 percentage points from 1996's third quarter. After reflecting the results of the restatement, operating earnings were $45.1 million for the third quarter of 1997, an improvement of $65.8 million. Operating earnings were 15.7% of sales in 1997, after restatement, up 24.6 percentage points from the prior year. On November 12, 1998, the Company filed a Form 10-K/A setting forth the restated financial statements for December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996, and the fiscal years then ended. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations for the fiscal years 1997 and 1996 as well as 1996 and 1995 are contained therein. (See Note 8 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

RESTATEMENT OF RESULTS OF OPERATIONS FOR THE NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 28, 1997 COMPARED TO THE NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 29, 1996

The results of operations previously reported for the nine months ended September 28, 1997 as compared with the nine months ended September 29, 1996 generally overstated sales in 1997 and understated the level of expenses incurred in 1997. Gross margin was previously reported to have improved 10.5 percentage points from the level achieved in 1996. After restatement, the gross margin improvement was 6.1 percentage points. Operating income for the first nine months of 1997 was previously reported to have improved $128.6 million to 16.0% of sales, up 15.5 percentage points from 1996's first nine months' results. After reflecting the results of the restatement, operating earnings were $79.0 million for the first three quarters of 1997, an improvement of $75.0 million from the prior year. As a percent of sales, operating earnings, after restatement, were 9.7%, an improvement of 10.2 percentage points versus the first nine months of 1996.

CAUTIONARY STATEMENTS

Certain statements in this Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q may constitute "forward-looking" statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, as the same may be amended from time to time (herein the "Act") and in releases made by the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") from time to time. Such forward-looking statements involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors which may cause the actual results, performance, or achievements of the Company to be materially different from any future results, performance, or achievements expressed or implied by such forward-looking statements. When used in this Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q, the words "estimate," "project," "intend," "expect" and similar expressions, when used in connection with the Company, including its management, are intended to identify forward-looking statements. These forward-looking statements were based on various factors and were derived utilizing numerous important assumptions and other important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements. These Cautionary Statements are being made pursuant to the Act, with the intention of obtaining the benefits of the "Safe Harbor" provisions of the Act. The Company cautions investors that any forward-looking statements made by the Company are not guarantees of future performance. Important assumptions and other important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements with respect to the Company include, but are not limited to risks associated with (i) high leverage, (ii) Sunbeam's ability to enter into an amendment to its credit agreement containing financial covenants which it and its bank lenders find mutually acceptable, or to continue to obtain waivers from its bank lenders with respect to its compliance with the existing covenants contained in such agreement, and to continue to have access to its revolving credit facility, (iii) Sunbeam's ability to integrate the recently acquired Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert companies and expenses associated with such integration, (iv) Sunbeam's sourcing of products from

CASE NO. CA 03-5045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

CIRCUIT CIVIL 9
COLEMAN

ORDER ON CPH'S RENEWED MOTION FOR ENTRY OF DEFAULT JUDGMENT

THIS CAUSE came before the Court March 14 and 15, 2005, on CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment, with both parties well represented by counsel.

Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"), has sued Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS & Co."), for aiding and abetting and conspiring with Sunbeam to perpetrate a fraud. Early in the case, CPH was concerned that MS & Co. was not thoroughly looking for emails responsive to its discovery requests. On April 16, 2004, the Court entered an Agreed Order ("Agreed Order") that required MS & Co. to search its oldest full backup tapes for emails subject to certain parameters and certify compliance. MS & Co. certified compliance with the Agreed Order on June 23, 2004. On November 17, 2004, CPH learned that MS & Co. had found some backup tapes that had not been searched. On January 26, 2005 it served its Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order ("Adverse Inference Motion"), claiming that MS & Co.'s violation of the Agreed Order, coupled with its systemic overwriting of emails after 12 months, justified an adverse inference against it. The Court ordered certain limited discovery. Responses to that discovery prompted CPH to orally amend its Adverse Inference Motion to seek more severe sanctions.

The Court held an evidentiary hearing on the Adverse Inference Motion on February

14, 2005. On March 1, 2005 it issued its Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order ("Adverse Inference Order"). In its current Motion, CPH argues that it has since learned that the discovery abuses addressed in the Adverse Inference Motion and Order represent only a sampling of discovery abuses perpetrated by MS & Co. and that the abuses have continued, unabated. It claims that these abuses, when taken as a whole, infect the entire case. To understand CPH's argument, it is necessary to go back to the beginning.

This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which CPH sold its 82% interest in the Coleman Company, Inc., to Sunbeam Corporation. MS & Co. served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000.00 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the cash portion of the deal.

CPH's Complaint¹ alleged claims against MS & Co. arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy, and sought damages of at least $485 million.

On May 12, 2003, MS & Co. was served with the Complaint and CPH's First Request for Production of Documents ("Request"). The Request sought, in essence, all documents connected with the Sunbeam deal. "Documents" was broadly defined, and specifically included items electronically stored. Concerned that, out of more than 8,000 pages of documents produced, it had received only a handful of emails, CPH on October 29, 2003, served its Motion to Compel Concerning E-Mails. That motion sought an order requiring MS & Co. to make a full investigation for email messages, including a search of magnetic tapes and hard drives; produce within 10 days all emails located; and produce a Rule 1.310 witness.

within 20 days "to describe the search that was conducted, identify any gaps in Morgan Stanley's production, and explain the reasons for any gaps."

In its Opposition to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion to Compel served November 4, 2003, MS & Co. argued that CPH wanted "this Court to order a massive safari into the remote corners of MS & Co.'s email backup systems" and represented that "(t)he restoration efforts demanded by CPH would cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars and require several months to complete (emphasis in original). MS & Co. argued that CPH's "true" motive was to "harass and burden MS & Co. with unnecessary and costly discovery demands and attempt to smear MS & Co. with out-of-context recitations from other proceedings" because "CPH concedes that MS & Co. is only able to restore email from backup tapes from January 2000 and later - more than a year and a half after the events that allegedly gave rise to CPH's claims," (emphasis in original).

CPH's "concession" was based on representations like the kind made to it by MS & Co.'s counsel in a March 11, 2004 letter that suggested "(t)he burden on Morgan Stanley from . . . a wholesale restoration [of email back up tapes], both in terms of dollars and manpower would be enormous. Regardless of who performs the initial restoration, it would require hundreds (perhaps thousands) of attorney-hours to review millions of irrelevant and non-responsive e-mails . . ." ²

In response to CPH's Motion to Compel, the parties agreed to reciprocal corporate

²Complaints about MS & Co.'s tactics are not new. See Ex. 196 [February 26, 2004, letter from EEOC to Hon. Ronald L. Ellis in EEOC/Schieffelin v. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., et al., 01-CV-8421 (RMB) (RLE) (S.D.N.Y.): ("(w)hen EEOC received [Morgan Stanley's] January 27, 2004 Responses to EEOC's Fifth Requests for Production of Documents which did not contain any e-mails, the parties communicated further. At that time, Morgan Stanley took the position that searching for e-mails would be burdensome both in regards to expense and the time it would take to respond. While the parties were in the process of attempting to work out these disputes, EEOC for the first time learned that [Morgan Stanley has] an easy, systematic ability to search for relevant documents. In a February 16, 2004, conversation with an IT representative of [Morgan Stanley], EEOC learned that [Morgan Stanley has] an e-mail system, which, while not yet fully comprehensive, was easily searchable on February 18, 2004, the close of discovery . . . which is certain to produce discoverable information highly relevant to EEOC's and Plaintiff-Intervenor's claims . . . After disclosing their state-of-the-art system to EEOC, [Morgan Stanley] dropped [its] assertion that the process was too expensive, but maintained that they refuse to search for e-mails because it is burdensome for attorneys to review large numbers of documents prior to production.")

depositions on the email issue. CPH deposed Robert Saunders on February 10, 2004.³ After completion of the corporate representative depositions, and unable to obtain MS & Co.'s agreement to a mutual email restoration protocol, CPH served its Motion for Permission to have Third Party Retrieve Morgan Stanley E-Mail and Other Responsive Documents, proposing that a third party vendor be given access to both parties' email systems for restoration at each party's expense. At the hearing on that Motion, CPH offered to split the expenses evenly. MS & Co. refused.

MS & Co.'s continued assertions that the email searches could be conducted only at enormous cost and would be fruitless because there were not backup tapes with email from 1997 and 1998 were confirmed to the Court by MS & Co.'s counsel, Thomas Clare of Kirkland & Ellis, at a hearing held March 19, 2004:

Mr. Scarola: Electronic records of e-mails that have been exchanged.

The Court: Do we agree that there has been such a request outstanding?

Mr. Clare: There has been a request outstanding.

The Court: And have you all objected?

Mr. Clare: From the beginning.

The Court: And what's the basis of the objection?

Mr. Clare: We objected to the breadth of the request that they're making. And to answer Your Honor's question directly – and the burden that is associated with it – that given the particular e-mail back-up tapes that are in existence five, six years after the fact of these transactions, that the scope of the e-mail request that they are seeking is improperly and unduly burdensome given the enormous costs that would be required, given the fact that the time period for which we have back-up tapes post dates the events by several years.

Unable to resolve the email issue, on April 9, 2004, CPH served its Motion to Compete ³Saunders provided misleading information in his deposition. See footnote 12, infra.

Concerning E-Mails and Other Electronic Documents. On the eve of the hearing on CPH's Motion to Compel, the parties reached an accommodation, and on April 16, 2004 the Court entered the Agreed Order. Under the Agreed Order, MS & Co. was required to (1) search the oldest full backup tape for each of 36 MS & Co. employees involved in the Sunbeam transaction; (2) review emails dated from February 15, 1998, through April 15, 1998, and emails containing any of 29 specified search terms such as "Sunbeam" and "Coleman" regardless of their date; (3) produce by May 14, 2004, all nonprivileged emails responsive to CPH's document requests; (4) give CPH a privilege log; and (5) certify its full compliance with the Agreed Order.

As required by the Agreed Order, MS & Co. produced about 1,300 pages of emails on May 14, 2004. It did not, however, certify compliance with the Agreed Order. After prompting by CPH, on June 23, 2004, MS & Co. served a certificate of compliance signed by Arthur Riel, an Executive Director and manager of its Law/Compliance IT Group.⁴

CPH got its first indication that the Agreed Order may have been violated in the late fall of 2004.

On November 17, 2004, Clare wrote Michael Brody of Jenner & Block, CPH's outside counsel, that MS & Co. had "discovered additional e-mail backup tapes . . ."; that "(t)he data on some of [the] newly discovered tapes has been restored;" that "we have re-run the searches described in [the Agreed Order]"; that "some responsive e-mails have been located as a result of that process"; and that "(w)e will produce the responsive documents to you as soon as the production is finalized."

On December 14, 2004, Brody wrote Clare back:

in [your November 17, 2004 letter], you state that Morgan Stanley located additional email backup tapes, and that you

⁴Though CPH would not learn for months that the certificate was false, and even then the magnitude of MS & Co.'s misrepresentations would not be admitted, MS & Co. personnel, including in-house counsel, knew the certification of compliance was false when made.

041493

would be producing documents soon. Within two days of that letter, you produced some emails to us. In your November 17, 2004 letter, however, you also indicated that "some of the backup tapes are still being restored." Have those backup tapes been restored? Have you found additional responsive emails? If so, when will Morgan Stanley produce those emails? How is it that the tapes were only recently located?

On December 17, 2004, Clare wrote back, telling Brody "(n)o additional responsive e-mails have been located since our November production."⁵

Brody wrote back to Clare December 30, 2004, noting the deficiencies in Clare's correspondence:

You do not inform us whether the review of the recently-located backup tapes still is ongoing. Please confirm that all email backup tapes from the relevant time period have been reviewed and all responsive emails have been produced. If the review still is proceeding, please let us know when the review will be completed.

Clare wrote back on January 11, 2005, telling Brody that the "restoration of e-mail backup tapes is ongoing. Restoration of the next set of backup tapes is estimated to be completed at the end of January. We intend to re-run the searches described in the agreed order at that time."

Concerned about Clare's lack of candor, on January 19, 2005 Brody wrote again:

I write in response to your January 11, 2005 letter concerning e-mails back-up tapes. Unfortunately, your letter raises more questions than it answers. As I requested in my December 14, 2004 letter, please explain the circumstances under which Morgan Stanley located these backup tapes and advise us of the date on which the tapes were located.

⁵Not only does this letter fail to answer Brody's legitimate questions, it implies that MS &Co. was still processing and reviewing emails from the newly found tapes. As we now know, though, no additional information was migrated to the archives between approximately August 18, 2004 and January 15, 2005. Of course "no additional responsive e-mails [would have been] located."

041494

Further, please explain your statement that "the next set of backup tapes" is scheduled to be restored "at the end of January." How many tapes will be restored by the end of January? When exactly in January will Morgan Stanley complete the process of restoring and searching these tapes for responsive documents? Are there other backup tapes that are not yet in the process of being restored? If so, please advise us of (a) the number of tapes that are not yet in the process of being restored; (b) the time period of the data contained on those tapes; and (c) Morgan Stanley's timetable for restoring and searching those tapes. In addition, please explain why those tapes are not yet in the process of being restored. Please also explain why Morgan Stanley cannot complete the restoration and searching of all remaining backup tapes before "the end of January." As you know, our trial is scheduled to begin on February 22, 2005.

We look forward your complete response to these questions no later than January 21, 2005 so that we can bring this matter to the Court's attention, if necessary.

Conforming to what was by now his usual stonewall tactic, Clare responded by letter dated January 21, 2005:

I write in response to your January 19, 2005 letter regarding Morgan Stanley's production of e-mails restored from backup tapes.

Morgan Stanley completed its initial production of restored e-mail messages on May 14, 2005. The May 2004 production was conducted in accordance with the agreed-upon order governing, and the searches that resulted in that production encompassed data from all of the backup tapes known to exist at the time. Subsequent to the May 2004 production, additional tapes were found in various locations at Morgan Stanley. The discovered tapes were not clearly labeled as to their contents, were not found in locations where e-mail backup tapes customarily were stored, and many of the tapes were in a different format than other e-mail backup tapes. In November 2004, once it was determined at least some of the discovered tapes contained recoverable e-mail data, Morgan Stanley re-ran the searches described in the agreed-upon order. Those searches resulted in Morgan Stanley's November 2004 production.

Morgan Stanley's efforts to restore the backup tapes discovered after the May 2004 production are ongoing. It is a time-consuming and painstaking process and, given the absence of clear labels or other index information for the backup tapes, there is no way for Morgan Stanley to know or accurately predict the type or time period of data that might be recovered from tapes that have yet to be restored. While Morgan Stanley cannot accurately estimate when all of the tapes will be restored or whether any recoverable data will be found on the remaining tapes, we understand from Morgan Stanley that, when the agreed-upon searches are run again at the end of January, those searches will include approximately one terabyte of additional data restored since the prior production.

On January 26, 2005, CPH served its Adverse Inference Motion, seeking sanctions based on MS & Co.'s disclosure of the newly found tapes. Hearing was scheduled for February 14, 2005. In preparation for that hearing, on February 3, 2005 the Court ordered MS & Co. to produce by noon on February 8, 2005 "(i) all documents to be referred to or relied on by any of the witnesses in his or her testimony; and (ii) all documents within MS & Co.'s care, custody, or control, addressing or related to the additional email backup tapes, including matters relating to the time or manner in which they were discovered; by whom they were discovered; who else learned of their discovery and when; and the manner and timetable by which they were to be restored and made searchable, including any correspondence to or from outside or prospective outside vendors."

later than May of 2004; the undisclosed discovery of the 738 8-millimeter backup tapes in 2002; the presence of unsearched data in the staging area; the discovery of 169 DLT tapes in January 2005; the discovery of more than 200 additional tapes on February 11 and 12, 2005; the discovery of a script error that had prevented MS & Co. from locating responsive email attachments; and discovery of another script error that had infected the ability to gather emails from Lotus Notes platform users.

In response to these deficiencies, the Court issued the Adverse Inference Order. That Order reversed the burden of proof on the aiding and abetting and conspiracy elements and included a statement of evidence of MS & Co.'s efforts to hide its emails to be read to the jury, as relevant to both its consciousness of guilt and the appropriateness of punitive damages. It specifically provided that "MS & Co. shall continue to use its best efforts to comply with the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order and . . . February 4, 2005 Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ore tenus Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Back Up Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search."⁶

It is now clear why MS & Co. was so unwilling to provide CPH with basic information about how and when the tapes were found or when production would be complete. First, candor would have required MS & Co. to admit that it had not done a good faith search for the oldest full backup tapes, and that Riel's certificate of compliance was false. Some unsearched tapes had been found by 2002; others had been found no later than May, 2004. Together, over 2,000 tapes had been found which were not searched prior to the May production. It is untrue that the tapes were "not in locations where e-mail backup tapes customarily were stored."

⁶Concerned that MS & Co. had been less than candid with both CPH and the Court, on February 4, 2004, the Court entered its Order on Coleman (Parent) Holding's ore tenus Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Backup Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search, ordering MS & Co. to pay for a third party vendor to check its compliance with the Agreed Order. The Court previously found that the two scripts errors testified to by Allison Gorman at the February 14, 2005, hearing would not have been discovered or revealed without the threat that the third-party vendor would discover the errors. Given Ms. Gorman's testimony at the March 14, 2005, hearing, though, it now appears MS & Co. knew about the errors before the appointment of the third-party vendor. Consequently, the errors were only revealed, but not discovered, in response to the February 4, 2004, Order.

Second, MS & Co. desperately wanted to hide an active SEC inquiry into its email retention practices.^{7 8 9 10} Finally, MS & Co. did not want to admit the existence of the historical email archive, which would expose the false representations it had made to the Court and used to induce CPH to agree to entry of the Agreed Order.^{11 12}

⁷On December 17, 2003, CPH served its Third Request for Production seeking "(a)ll materials and documents submitted to the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), received from the SEC, or reflecting communications with the SEC in connection with any investigation, inquiry, or examination concerning or relating to Morgan Stanley's policies and/or procedures with regard to the retention, storage, deletion, and/or back-up of electronic mail (emails) . . ." On October 12, 2004, CPH served its Request for Supplemental Documents seeking to bring MS & Co.'s document production current, requesting "(a)ll documents not previously provided by MS & Co. that are responsive to any Request for Production of Documents that CPH previously has served upon MS & Co. in the litigation, including documents obtained by MS & Co. or its counsel after the date of MS & Co.'s prior productions." No SEC documents were produced in response to either request; no privilege log was generated. On other privilege logs generated in response to court orders, MS & Co. did not show the SEC on the distribution portion of the log. See March 9, 2005 Order Following in Camera Inspection (Riel/SEC Documents) footnotes 1, 2. See, also, footnote 15, infra. Kirland & Ellis, outside counsel for MS & Co. in this litigation, represents MS & Co. in the SEC's inquiry into its email retention practices.

⁸MS & Co. manipulated the unhinging of the SEC's email investigation from the IPO litigation in January, 2005, to conceal the email issues as long as possible.

⁹It is now apparent that MS & Co. chose deliberately to keep its affidavits concerning the informal SEC inquiry submitted to support its privilege claims vague, despite two requests from the Court seeking specific information. See February 28, 2005 Order (Release of Exhibits).

¹⁰See February 25, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Objections to Coleman (Parent) Holding Inc.'s Notice to Produce at Hearing and Motion for Protective Order and March 4, 2005 Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production.

¹¹While MS & Co. contends that its representations to the Court that it would cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" to search the backup tapes and that there was no pre-2000 backup tapes were not false, they were deliberately misleading: MS & Co. never had an intention to search the back up tapes to respond to the requests and some of the year 2000 backup tapes backed up email back to 1997.

In 2001, MS & Co. decided to create the email archive. By June, 2003, it had decided that the archive should have two components. First, MS & Co. wanted to create an archive that captured and stored email as it was generated. Second, MS & Co. wanted to add historical data to the archive. That task involved searching for all email backup tapes containing historical emails; sending those tapes to an outside processor; loading the processed tapes into a staging area; and migrating the stored data from the staging area onto the archive. As we now know, archive searches are quick and inexpensive. They do not cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" or "take several months." The restrictions imposed by the Agreed Order were not needed.

¹²On February 10, 2004, Robert Saunders, an executive director of IT for MS & Co., was deposed. He testified that in January, 2003, MS & Co. had put into effect the email archive system. When specifically asked whether the new email archive system would include prior backups or only going forward backups, he testified that "(t)he way it was built was for going forward backup." He was next asked whether "(w)ith respect to backup dated January 2001 and previously, does Morgan Stanley have any new capabilities to restore and search e-mail?" After counsel interposed a vagueness objection, he answered "(t)here are no new capabilities to search that e-mail." That testimony was so misleading as to be false. As Saunders well knew, since he was on the team responsible, the "live" email capture portion of the archive was already operational. The migration of the historical data to the archive was expected to be completed by April of 2004, just two months after his deposition.

MS & Co.'s wrongful conduct has continued unabated.¹³ Since the February 14, 2005, hearing, it has come to light that:

- Only two whole and four partial tapes from the Brooklyn tapes had been migrated to the archive and were thus searched for the November, 2004, production. MS & Co. sought to hide this information to create the impression that all the produced documents came from the Brooklyn tapes, rather than reveal that the production came from material that had migrated from the staging area to the archive since the May, 2004, production or some other, as yet undisclosed, source.¹⁴
- Contrary to MS & Co.'s counsel's November 17, 2004, letter to CPH, none of the November, 2004 production came from the "newly found" tapes. MS & Co. carefully crafted its responses to inquiries about the November, 2004, production to avoid both disclosure of the existence of the archive and outright lying.
- The scripts MS & Co. used to process emails into its archive caused the bodies of some messages to be truncated. MS & Co. discovered this problem on February 13, 2005, but did not tell the Court about it until March 14, 2005.
- A migration issue caused about 5% of email harvested by NDCI from the backup tapes not to be captured in the archive, based on testing of a representative sample of tapes. MS & Co. told the SEC about this problem on February 24, 2005, but failed to tell CPH or the Court.
- As of June 7, 2004, only 120 out of 143 SDLT tapes had been processed into the archive.
- An analysis requested by the SEC showed that, based on a representative sample, 10% of backup tapes were overwritten after January, 2001.

¹³MS & Co. sought to use the entry of the Adverse Inference Order as a shield against further inquiry into its email abuses, arguing that the matter was closed by the Adverse Inference Order. It previously used this tactic with the SEC, arguing that the December 3, 2003 Cease and Desist Order shielded it from other sanctions for email retention failures. See Ex. 14 [February 10, 2005 letter from outside counsel for MS & Co. to SEC]

¹⁴MS & Co. argued at the March 14 and 15, 2005 hearing that there were only 13 unique, new emails contained in the November 2004 production when compared to the May 2004 production. Nine of those emails, however, were originally given to MS& Co.'s lawyers for responsiveness review by the IT staff for the May 2004 production. No explanation of why they were not produced in May was offered. This is particularly concerning given the large number of documents Ms. Gorman testified the search parameters found compared with the relatively small number found responsive and produced after review by counsel.

- A software error caused blind carbon copies not to be captured in the archive process. MS & Co. told the SEC about this problem on February 24, 2005. MS & Co. did not tell CPH or the Court.
- A software error caused the searches to be hyper case-sensitive, resulting in a failure to capture all emails. MS & Co. knew of the problem as of December, 2004, but did not tell CPH or the Court. The problem was not purportedly fixed until March, 2005.
- A script error caused the archive to have problems pulling group email in Lotus Notes.
- MS & Co. provided sworn testimony at the February 14, 2005, hearing that it had located 600 gigabytes of data, while contemporaneously telling the SEC it had located a terabyte of data. A gigabyte represents 20,000 to 100,000 pages. Incredibly, MS & Co.'s witness on this point, Allison Gorman, testified on March 14, 2005, that it was simply a "terminology" issue that she did not choose to correct because it could cause "confusion."
- CPH requested MS & Co. to produce responses it had made to third-parties in civil, criminal, or administrative proceedings describing limitations on MS & Co.'s ability to produce emails and all notices in such proceedings that MS & Co. had newly discovered backup tapes containing email. MS & Co. objected, arguing that there were over 300 separate proceedings, involving over 70 outside law firms, and that the cost of compliance would be too great. On March 2, 2005, the Court ordered the production, after shortening the time period involved, and required production within 12 hours after counsel's review of each item for responsiveness but, in any event, within 10 days. At the time MS & Co. objected to CPH's request as unduly burdensome, it knew of its Wells submission to the SEC made on February 10, 2005. Kirkland and Ellis, co-counsel here, was co-counsel for MS & Co. in that SEC proceeding. Consequently, it appears MS & Co.'s real concern was not that expressed to the Court, but was based on its realization that compliance would reveal the existence of the SEC inquiry into its email retention policy and MS & Co.'s efforts to keep the existence of that investigation secret. MS & Co. violated the Court's March 2, 2005, Order on Morgan Stanley's Responses and Objections to Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Notice to Produce at the Hearing requiring it to disclose items responsive to CPH's Request for Production within 12 hours of review for responsiveness by waiting days, not hours, to produce the Wells submission.

- MS & Co.'s failure to produce or log the SEC documents violated the Court's February 3, 2005, Order.¹⁵
- James Doyle's, the Executive Director of MS & Co.'s Law Division, declaration that he did not learn of additional unsearched backup tapes until the end of October, 2004, was intended to mislead CPH and the Court. Obviously, MS & Co. sought to create the implication in the declaration that no one in the Law Division knew of the backup tapes before then. Instead, both Soo-Mi Lee, Doyle's associate, and James Cusick, Doyle's superior, knew of the tapes no later than June 7, 2004.
- In-house counsel for MS & Co. knew as of June 7, 2004, that nearly a third of the restored backup tapes did not contain email, implying they may have been recycled in violation of the December 3, 2002 Cease and Desist Order. They did not tell CPH or the Court.
- MS & Co.'s searches looked for only two types of emails. There are other types of emails that were not included in the searches. CPH did not learn of this deficiency until March 13, 2005.
- MS & Co. improperly failed to produce 125 documents required to be produced by the Court's February 3, 2005, Order Specially Setting Hearing which required limited discovery be made in connection with the February 14, 2005, hearing on the Adverse Inference Motion.
- MS & Co. improperly withheld 13 documents required to be produced by the Court's March 4, 2005, Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production.
- An additional 282 tapes were found on February 23 and 25, 2005; CPH was not told of the discovery until March 13, 2005.
- An additional 3,536 tapes were discovered on February 23, 2005, in a security room.
- An additional 2,718 tapes were found at Recall, MS & Co.'s third party off-site storage vendor, on March 3, 2005.
- An additional 389 tapes were found March 2 through March 5, 2005. CPH was not told ¹⁵The Court previously rejected MS & Co.'s argument that the January 14, 2005, email exchange between its outside and in-house counsel was not required to be produced under the February 3, 2005, Order Specially Setting Hearing because it referred to the "documents issue" and not specifically to the backup tapes. See March 16, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion to Disqualify Plaintiff's Counsel Searcy, Denney, Scarola, Barnhart & Shipley, P.A. and Jenner & Block, LLC. MS & Co.'s insistence on a narrow interpretation of the February 3, 2005, Order is not particularly sympathetic, when the only reason that Order confined production to the backup tape issue was because MS & Co. had failed to notify the Court of the other deficiencies in its certificate of compliance.

until March 13, 2005.

- On March 4, 2005, the Court entered its Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production, which ordered MS & Co. to produce by 3:00 p.m. on March 7, 2005, all items within its care, custody, or control dealing with the Riel/SEC investigation, other than documents representing communications between or among MS & Co. inside and outside counsel that were not copied to anyone other than counsel. MS & Co. sought to discredit Riel and thus distance itself from the false June 23, 2004 certificate of compliance; in doing so, it sought to hide Riel's whistle blower status and the existence of an SEC investigation into whether MS & Co. employees sought kick backs from third party vendors; whether MS & Co. employees were improperly pressured into dealing with third-party vendors who may provide business to MS & Co.; and whether MS & Co. continued to overwrite backup tapes contrary to the SEC's December 3, 2002, Cease and Desist Order.
- A script error prevented the insertion of some emails into the archive. MS & Co. produced over 4,600 pages of emails on March 21, 2005, some of which it suggested may have been located on correction of the error; alternatively, it suggested the emails may have been located by NDCI as part of its efforts to verify MS & Co.'s searches.

MS & Co.'s discovery abuses have not been confined to its email production.

William Strong is a MS & Co. managing director and was one of the principal players for it in the Sunbeam deal. He took credit for the fees generated. On May 9, 2003, CPH requested a copy of "(a)ll documents concerning employment contracts, performance evaluations, and/or personnel files (including without limitation any documents that describe or discuss [his] training, experience, competence, and accomplishments) . . ." MS & Co. asserted that the requested documents were not relevant and that production "would unnecessarily infringe on the privacy interests of [Strong]." On March 15, 2004, the Court ordered MS & Co. to produce "(a)ll references (positive or negative) to [Strong's] truthfulness, veracity, or moral turpitude." Some portions of Strong's evaluations were produced in response to that order. Those evaluations noted Strong's colleagues' reservations about his candor and ethics. Two of his evaluators, Joseph Perella and Tarek Abdel-Meguid, were deposed, when some relatively vague testimony about the bases for those conclusions was offered. It now appears Strong was facing criminal prosecution in Italy for complicity in bribery while he was working on the Sunbeam transaction, which his evaluators knew, and that MS & Co. purposely

withheld that information from CPH and the Court.¹⁶

Even once CPH independently discovered evidence of Strong's indictment in Italy, MS & Co. sought to shield its files from discovery. It claimed that virtually all of the documents it had were privileged under joint defense agreements in place between it, Strong, and Saloman Brothers, Strong's employer at the time of the incident. As the Court's March 10, 2005 Order Following In Camera Inspection (Strong) details, the documents MS & Co. relied on to support that position, and sought to prevent CPH from obtaining, reflect no such agreement.

The other discovery abuses and misrepresentations by MS & Co. other than those involving its email production practices are outlined in CPH's Chronology of Discovery Abuses by Defendant served March 1, 2005, and would take a volume to recite. They include:

- failing to provide the information retained by MS & Co.'s internal document management system pertaining to MS & Co.'s work for Sunbeam; falsely representing to the Court that no useful information was contained in that information; and producing a Rule 1.310 representative who had made an insufficient inquiry into authenticity, business record status, and authorship of documents; see February 28, 2005 Order on CPH's Motion to Deem Certain Documents Admissible and for Sanctions due to Morgan Stanley's Disregard of Court Order;
- when faced with contempt proceedings for violating the Stipulated Confidentiality Order by providing a copy of a settlement agreement between CPH and Arthur Andersen to other counsel, representing to the Court that the law firm of Kellogg, Huber was retained to handle the "Andersen aspects" of this litigation because of a conflict between Andersen and Kirkland & Ellis; Mark Hansen, a partner at Kellogg, Huber, testified that his firm was hired as co-counsel for all aspects of the case;
- providing answers to interrogatories signed by a corporate representative who performed insufficient verification of the responses;

¹⁶MS & Co. originally argued that documents concerning the Italian proceedings were not in Strong's "personnel file" and so were not required to be produced in response to CPH's initial request. MS & Co.'s practice of filing damaging information about an employee other than in his personnel file and then claiming it was not included in the request is about as convincing as its argument that, since it has a corporate directive not to keep drafts of documents once they are in final form, document drafts cannot be business records exempt from hearsay because they are not "kept in the course of a regularly conducted business activity." See Fla. Stat. §90.803 (6) (a). In any event, there was no excuse for not producing its records of the Italian proceedings once the Court's March 15, 2004 Order was entered.

- routinely asserting unfounded privilege claims;¹⁷ and
- failing to timely comply with the Court's orders; for example, MS & Co. did not produce Strong's 1994 Performance Evaluation until the afternoon of March 15, 2005, though it was obviously included in the Court's March 15, 2004 Order. The failure cannot be excused as oversight since, when CPH specifically asked for the 1994 evaluation in the spring of 2004, MS & Co.'s counsel said it was withheld as non-responsive; see, also, Ex. 197, 198.

In sum, MS & Co. has deliberately and contumaciously violated numerous discovery orders, including the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order; February 3, 2005 Order Specially Setting Hearing; and the March 4, 2005 Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production. At the February 14, 2005, hearing on CPH's Adverse Inference Motion, it chose to hide information about its violations and coach witnesses to avoid any mention of additional, undisclosed problems with its compliance with the Agreed Order. Implicit in the requirement that MS & Co. certify compliance with the Agreed Order was the requirement to disclose impediments to its ability to so certify. As outlined in this Order, MS & Co. employees, and not just counsel, have participated in the discovery abuses. The prejudice to CPH from these failings cannot be cured. Even if all the script errors have been located and corrected, and MS & Co. has failed to show they have, and even if all of the email backup tapes have now been located, and MS & Co. has failed to show they have, the searches cannot be completed in time. The other discovery abuses outlined call into doubt all of MS & Co.'s discovery responses. The judicial system cannot function this way. Based on the foregoing and on the Court's March 1, 2005 Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment is Granted, in part. See Robinson v. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 887 So. 2d 328 (Fla. 2004); Mercer v. Raine, 443 So. 2d 944 (Fla. 1983); Precision Tune Auto Care, Inc. v.

¹⁷For example, MS & Co. produced over 260 documents dealing with the Strong investigation over which it had previously claimed privilege once the Court announced its intention to conduct an in camera review; the Court found another 200 documents were not privileged after conducting its review, by its March 10, 2005 Order.

A copy of a redacted Amended Complaint is attached as Exhibit A. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the Court shall read to the jury a Statement similar to that attached as Exhibit A to the Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.’s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley’s Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley’s Noncompliance with the Court’s April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, but incorporating the relevant additional findings of this Order, and the jury will be instructed that it may consider those facts in determining whether MS & Co. sought to conceal its offensive conduct when determining whether an award of punitive damages is appropriate. See General Motors Corp. v. McGee, 837 So. 2d 1010 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002), rev. den. 851 So. 2d 728 (Fla. 2003). Counsel are each invited to submit proposed Statements. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that CPH shall be entitled to an award of reasonable fees and costs incurred as a result of the Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment and the violations of Court orders recited herein. The amount shall be determined at an evidentiary hearing following trial. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that MS & Co. is relieved of any future obligation to comply with the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order and the February 4, 2005 Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Back-Up Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the pro hac vice admission of Thomas Clare is revoked. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the portions of CPH's Motion for Correction and Clarification of Order on CPH's Motion for Adverse Inference that seek to amend the body of that Order to correct clerical and spelling errors, as agreed to by counsel, is Granted, and the corrections deemed made to the body of the Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, by interlineation. In all other respects the remainder of the Motion for Correction and Clarification is declared moot.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

In April 1997, Morgan Stanley began serving as Sunbeam's investment banker. Morgan Stanley originally attempted to find someone to buy Sunbeam. When Morgan Stanley was unable to find a buyer, Morgan Stanley developed a strategy for Sunbeam to use its fraudulently-inflated stock to acquire a large company that Sunbeam would own and operate. Then, trading on Morgan Stanley's relationships with CPH's senior officers, Morgan Stanley found

Coleman for Sunbeam. At the time of the sale to Sunbeam, Coleman was a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market, with annual revenues in excess of $1 billion.

million shares

After Sunbeam announced plans to acquire Coleman, Morgan Stanley agreed to underwrite a $750 million debenture offering for Sunbeam. Sunbeam needed the proceeds of that debenture offering to complete the acquisition of Coleman. As Sunbeam's investment banker and as the sole underwriter for the $750 million debenture offering, Morgan Stanley received detailed and specific information concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and performance. Morgan Stanley received information that directly contradicted Sunbeam's and Morgan Stanley's assertions to CPH that Sunbeam had undergone a successful turnaround and that its financial performance had dramatically improved. By no later than March 18, 1998, Morgan Stanley knew that Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales were only 50% of January and February 1997 sales, and Morgan Stanley also knew that the shortfall was caused by Sunbeam's practice of accelerating sales which otherwise would have occurred in 1998 in order to boost Sunbeam's income in 1997. Although Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam previously had advised CPH that Sunbeam's sales were running ahead of analysts' expectations for the first quarter, Morgan Stanley decided not to correct those material misrepresentations. Instead, in March 1998, Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in concealing the problems with Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") directly or indirectly owned 44,067,520 shares — or approximately 82% — of Coleman prior to the transactions at issue. On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired CPH's interest in Coleman. Sunbeam paid for the Coleman shares with 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock and other consideration.

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") is a highly sophisticated investment banking firm that provides a wide range of financial and securities services. Among other things, Morgan Stanley provides advice on mergers and acquisitions and raises capital in the equity and debt markets. Morgan Stanley served as Sunbeam's investment banker and as the underwriter of securities issued by Sunbeam in connection with the events at issue herein.

041510

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") was a publicly-traded company headquartered in Delray Beach, Florida. Sunbeam designed and manufactured small household appliances and outdoor consumer products, which it marketed under the Sunbeam and Oster brand names. Sunbeam filed a bankruptcy petition under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in February 2001.

Albert Dunlap ("Dunlap") was the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam from July 1996 until June 1998 when he was terminated by Sunbeam's Board of Directors.

Russell Kersh ("Kersh") was the Executive Vice President of Sunbeam from July 1996 until June 1998 when he was terminated by Sunbeam's Board of Directors.

Arthur Andersen LLP ("Andersen") provided outside accounting services to Sunbeam through its West Palm Beach, Florida office. Andersen auditors provided information concerning Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales and earnings to Morgan Stanley.

041511

Sunbeam designed and manufactured outdoor and household consumer products, which it marketed under the Sunbeam and Oster brand names. Sunbeam's products included small kitchen appliances, humidifiers, electric blankets, and grills. Many of the country's leading retail stores, including Wal-Mart, Target, and Home Depot, were among Sunbeam's major customers.

Despite Sunbeam's well-known brands and strong customer base, its financial performance was disappointing. In 1994, Sunbeam earned $1.30 per share. In 1995, Sunbeam's earnings declined to $0.61 per share. In 1996, Sunbeam's earnings continued to suffer. On March 22, 1996, Sunbeam issued an early warning that its first quarter earnings would be well under analysts' expectations and down from first quarter 1995. Shortly after issuing the March 22 earnings warning, Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer and two of Sunbeam's directors announced their resignations. Less than a week later, Sunbeam announced that its first quarter 1996 earnings had plunged 42% from first quarter 1995 levels. Sunbeam also announced that its second quarter 1996 earnings would be lower than its second quarter 1995 earnings.

Sunbeam's disappointing earnings caused its stock price to plummet. During 1995, the price at which Sunbeam's stock traded fell 40%, from a high of $25-1/2. In 1996, Sunbeam's stock price continued to decline until it reached a low of $12-1/4 in July.

On July 18, 1996, Sunbeam's board of directors hired Albert Dunlap as Sunbeam's new Chief Executive Officer. Based upon brief terms as Chief Executive Officer of other publicly traded companies, including Scott Paper Company ("Scott Paper"), Dunlap was viewed as a "turnaround specialist" — that is, someone who could take a poorly performing company and significantly increase its value by "turning around" its financial performance. Because Dunlap touted the benefits from firing large numbers of employees and closing large numbers of plants, Dunlap became widely known as "Chainsaw Al." Dunlap lived in Boca Raton, Florida, and one of his first tasks at Sunbeam was to consolidate the company's six headquarters into one located in Delray Beach, Florida.

Immediately after joining Sunbeam, Dunlap hired Kersh as Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer. Kersh had teamed with Dunlap for over 15 years, serving as a senior executive with Dunlap at other companies, including Scott Paper. Dunlap also brought in several other hand-picked executives to make up his senior management team.

Dunlap and his senior management team entered into employment agreements with Sunbeam. Under those agreements, Dunlap and his senior management team stood to make tens of millions of dollars if they were able to boost Sunbeam's apparent value and then sell Sunbeam to another company at a premium.

In order to convince other companies that they should want to purchase Sunbeam, Dunlap needed to improve Sunbeam's reported financial performance quickly and dramatically. It was, of course, no small task to transform Sunbeam from a poorly performing company, with weak sales and declining profits, into a strong company with growing sales and soaring profits. In fact, as the world later learned, Dunlap did not achieve that change in Sunbeam's fortunes. Instead, Dunlap created the illusion of a dramatic turnaround at Sunbeam by engaging in what SEC officials subsequently described as a "case study" in financial fraud.

Dunlap had a three-step plan at Sunbeam. In the first step, Dunlap overstated Sunbeam's financial problems so that Sunbeam appeared to be in worse shape than it really was. After making Sunbeam look worse, Dunlap moved to step two, where he made Sunbeam look more valuable than it really was by inflating Sunbeam's sales and engaging in other earnings manipulations. In step three, Dunlap planned to sell Sunbeam to another company before it became apparent that the "improved" results were fictional. By doing so, Dunlap would make tens of millions of dollars and would be free to blame his successor for any subsequent problems.

Dunlap began implementing his strategy soon after his arrival at Sunbeam in 1996. Claiming to be engaged in a clean-up of Sunbeam's financial problems, Dunlap recorded artificially high reserves and booked expenses that should not have been recorded until later periods. Both of those actions made Sunbeam's financial condition appear worse than it really was, thus lowering the benchmark for measuring Sunbeam's performance in future years.

The overstated reserves also provided Dunlap a means by which he could inflate Sunbeam's future results during the second step of his plan. Dunlap later could "re-evaluate" and release millions of dollars from the overstated reserves to boost income in later periods. The income from released reserves contributed to the illusion of a rapid turnaround in Sunbeam's performance. Using inflated reserves to enhance income in future periods is a fraudulent practice and overstated reserves are commonly called "cookie jar" reserves.

After making Sunbeam look worse than it really was in 1996, Dunlap manipulated Sunbeam's sales and expenses in 1997 to create the false appearance of quarter after quarter improvement in financial performance. For example, Dunlap caused Sunbeam to inflate its sales by engaging in phony "bill and hold" sales. Under this practice, Sunbeam recognized revenues from "sales," even though customers did not actually pay for or even take delivery of the products, which continued to sit in Sunbeam's own warehouses. Although Sunbeam recorded the "bill and hold" sales as if they were current sales, they were, in reality, simply sales stolen from future quarters. In 1997, phony "bill and hold" sales added approximately $29 million in sales and $4.5 million in income.

Throughout 1997, Sunbeam also engaged in a sales practice known as "channel stuffing" — accelerating sales that otherwise would occur in a later period, sometimes by offering steep discounts or other extraordinary customer inducements. On the grand scale employed by Sunbeam, channel stuffing inevitably leads to major sales shortfalls in later periods when "stuffed" customers simply stop buying. Sunbeam's senior sales officer referred to Sunbeam's unsustainable practice of inflating performance through accelerated sales as the "doom loop."

Dunlap further "enhanced" Sunbeam's income in 1997 by causing Sunbeam to record a "profit" of $10 million from a sham sale of its warranty and spare parts business. Dunlap also made Sunbeam appear to be more successful than it really was by reaching into the "cookie jar," reversing inflated reserves, and recording $35 million as income. Sunbeam's 1997 profit margins also looked better than they really were because Dunlap already had recorded millions of dollars of 1997 expenses in 1996.

In October 1997, Dunlap announced that Sunbeam's "turnaround" was complete. Compared to the third quarter of 1996, Sunbeam's third quarter 1997 performance was remarkable. In the third quarter of 1996, Sunbeam had reported a loss of $18.1 million. In the third quarter of 1997, however, Sunbeam reported earnings of $34.5 million — an extraordinary turnaround from substantial losses to hefty profits. Sunbeam's combined results for the first three quarters showed dramatic improvement as well. Sunbeam reported that its profits for the first nine months were up tenfold over the same period the year before — from $6.5 million in 1996 to $67.7 million in 1997. Sunbeam's reversal of fortune caused a spectacular increase in the price of its stock. In July 1996, when Dunlap was hired, Sunbeam's shares traded at $12-1/4. By October 1997, Sunbeam's shares had risen to $49-13/16.

With steps one and two successfully completed, Dunlap was more than eager to complete the final step of his scheme: to sell Sunbeam to another company and collect tens of millions of dollars for himself before the outside world could learn the truth about Sunbeam's phony "turnaround." To accomplish that third and final step, Dunlap needed an investment banking firm

When Dunlap announced in early 1997 that he would begin interviewing investment bankers, Morgan Stanley immediately began pursuing the job. Although Morgan Stanley had no previous relationship with Sunbeam, one of Morgan Stanley's senior executives, William Strong, had worked closely with Dunlap on other large transactions between 1986 and 1993, when Strong was employed by Salomon Brothers.

Morgan Stanley knew that it was competing with other investment bankers, including Mark Davis, for Dunlap's business. Davis was the head of the mergers and acquisitions department at Chase Securities and had worked previously with Strong at Salomon Brothers. Davis had a very strong relationship with Dunlap, and Davis had served as Dunlap's investment advisor on numerous transactions, including Dunlap's sale of Scott Paper. Shortly after arriving at Sunbeam, Dunlap hired Davis to handle the sale of Sunbeam's furniture business.

Morgan Stanley put together a team headed by its Vice Chairman, Bruce Fiedorek, and Strong. Beginning in April 1997, Morgan Stanley's personnel traveled to Sunbeam's offices in Delray Beach, Florida to study Sunbeam and woo Dunlap. After months of uncompensated work, in September 1997, Morgan Stanley finally persuaded Dunlap to name Morgan Stanley as Sunbeam's exclusive investment banker. Dunlap instructed Morgan Stanley to find a buyer for Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley knew that if it failed to deliver a major transaction, Morgan Stanley would not be compensated for the extensive work it had performed for Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley also knew that Davis and Chase Securities were standing by — ready and willing to reclaim their position as Dunlap's investment banker of choice.

Throughout the fall of 1997, Morgan Stanley aggressively searched for a buyer for Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley put together extensive and detailed materials to use in marketing Sunbeam to potential buyers. Morgan Stanley pitched the transaction to more than 10 companies — including Gillette, Colgate, Sara Lee, Rubbermaid, Whirlpool, and Black & Decker — that Morgan Stanley hoped might have an interest in acquiring Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley, however, was not able to find a buyer.

As 1998 approached, the pressure on Dunlap increased. Dunlap was aware that Sunbeam would be unable to sustain the appearance of a successful turnaround in 1998 because Sunbeam had stolen sales from 1998 to boost 1997's numbers and the "cookie jar" reserves had been depleted. Dunlap needed a way to conceal Sunbeam's phony turnaround until a buyer could be found. Morgan Stanley provided the solution to Dunlap's problem.

Morgan Stanley knew that its failure to find a buyer for Sunbeam could prove fatal to the relationship it had worked so hard to establish with Dunlap. As the pressure on Dunlap increased, the pressure on Morgan Stanley increased as well. Although Morgan Stanley was not able to find a buyer for Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley responded with a plan that would allow Dunlap to conceal his fraud. Morgan Stanley recommended that Sunbeam acquire other companies, using Sunbeam's stock, which was fraudulently inflated, as the "currency" that would be used to pay for the acquisitions.

Morgan Stanley's strategy was doubly deceptive. First, Morgan Stanley's acquisition strategy would allow Dunlap to consolidate Sunbeam's results with those of the newly-acquired companies. That would help Dunlap camouflage Sunbeam's results and make it difficult to detect any shortfall in Sunbeam's performance. Dunlap simply could label any problems that were detected as attributable to the poor performance of the acquired companies or as a temporary "blip" caused by the distraction of integrating the acquired companies with Sunbeam. Second, Morgan Stanley's strategy would allow Dunlap to take new massive restructuring charges (purportedly relating to the acquisitions) and thus create more "cookie jar" reserves that could be tapped to bolster the future earnings of the combined companies.

Morgan Stanley identified Coleman as one of the key potential acquisition targets. CPH owned 82% of Coleman's stock. Morgan Stanley searched the ranks of its investment bankers to locate those with the best access to CPH. Drawing on relationships between some of Morgan Stanley's investment bankers and senior CPH officers, Morgan Stanley set about trying to persuade CPH to sell its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam — and, most importantly, to accept Sunbeam stock as consideration.

Morgan Stanley laid the groundwork for a meeting to take place in December 1997 in Palm Beach, Florida between Dunlap and Kersh and representatives of CPH. In advance of the Palm Beach meeting, Morgan Stanley provided materials to Sunbeam to prepare Sunbeam for the meeting. Morgan Stanley also met with Kersh and other Sunbeam personnel to prepare for the Palm Beach meeting. However, Dunlap nearly scuttled Morgan Stanley's carefully crafted plan at the outset. During the December 1997 Palm Beach meeting, when CPH rejected Dunlap's initial all-stock offer, Dunlap became so angry that he cursed and ranted at the CPH representatives and stormed out.

Dunlap's tantrum appeared to kill any chance that CPH would sell its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley, however, worked to revive the discussions. Drawing again on Morgan Stanley's relationships with CPH officers, Morgan Stanley was able to restart the discussions with CPH with the promise that Dunlap would be kept away from the negotiating table. Thereafter, Morgan Stanley, through Managing Directors Strong, James Stynes, and Robert Kitts, led the discussions with CPH on Sunbeam's behalf.

Morgan Stanley knew that it had to persuade CPH not only to sell Coleman, but also to accept Sunbeam stock — ultimately, 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock — as a major part of the purchase price. During the course of negotiations, Morgan Stanley prepared and provided CPH with false financial and business information about Sunbeam designed to create the appearance that Sunbeam was prospering and that Sunbeam's stock had great value. For example, Morgan Stanley provided CPH with false 1996 and 1997 sales and revenue figures, as well as false projections that Sunbeam could not expect to achieve. Together, in face-to-face discussions, Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam assured CPH that (a) Sunbeam would meet or exceed its first quarter 1998 earnings estimates; (b) analysts' 1998 earnings estimates for Sunbeam were correct; and (c) Sunbeam's plan to earn $2.20 per share in 1998 was easily achievable and probably low. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam also falsely assured CPH that Sunbeam's "early buy" sales program would not hurt Sunbeam's future revenues. However, the "early buy" program was one of Sunbeam's revenue acceleration programs — and the devastating effects of Sunbeam's revenue acceleration programs already had begun to materialize at Sunbeam. Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales were down drastically, although those results were not disclosed to CPH or the public. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam together specifically advised CPH that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "tracking fine" and running ahead of analysts' estimates.

On February 27, 1998, Sunbeam's Board of Directors met at Morgan Stanley's offices to consider the purchase of Coleman, as negotiated by Morgan Stanley.

At the February 27, 1998 meeting, Morgan Stanley made an extensive presentation to Sunbeam's Board concerning the proposed transaction. Numerous Morgan Stanley representatives, including Managing Directors Strong, Kitts, Stynes, Ruth Porat, and Vikram Pandit, attended the meeting.

Morgan Stanley presented Sunbeam's board with Morgan Stanley's opinion on the value of Coleman. Using a discounted cash flow analysis, which Morgan Stanley represented was the best gauge of stand-alone economic value and the best method of capturing the unique value of Coleman, Morgan Stanley valued CPH's Coleman stock at a range of $31.06 to $53.24 per Coleman share. CPH's 44,067,520 Coleman shares were worth, therefore, between $1.369 billion and $2.346 billion.

Following Morgan Stanley's presentation, Sunbeam's Board of Directors voted to acquire Coleman on the very favorable terms that Morgan Stanley had negotiated.

Morgan Stanley spent the following weekend developing Sunbeam's public relations strategy to announce the Coleman transaction. Morgan Stanley scripted the points for Dunlap to make in a conference call with analysts. Morgan Stanley also crafted a list of "key media messages" for Dunlap to use in his communications with the press. On Sunday, March 1, 1998, Morgan Stanley spoke with a reporter for the Wall Street Journal to inform him that Sunbeam would announce its acquisition of Coleman the following morning.

Sunbeam announced its acquisition of Coleman on Monday, March 2, 1998, prior to the opening of the financial markets. Consistent with Morgan Stanley's valuation, investors viewed Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman — and the price that Sunbeam had paid — very favorably. The day before the acquisition was announced, Sunbeam's stock closed at $41-3/4. In the days following Sunbeam's announcement of the transaction, Sunbeam's stock rose approximately 25%, to a high of $52.

Dunlap knew that Sunbeam needed to raise funds to pay the cash portion of the acquisition consideration. Dunlap also knew that Sunbeam needed cash to purchase two other smaller companies in addition to Coleman. Morgan Stanley recommended that Sunbeam raise funds through a $500 million offering of convertible subordinated debentures. To assure the offering's success, Morgan Stanley lent its name to the offering. Indeed, Morgan Stanley agreed to serve as the sole underwriter for the offering.

The money raised from the sale of the debentures was used by Sunbeam to complete the acquisition of Coleman.

Unbeknownst to CPH or the public, Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were a small fraction of the financial community's expectations for the quarter. If Dunlap could consolidate Sunbeam's sales with Coleman's sales, Dunlap knew that he could obscure Sunbeam's actual first quarter sales. As a result, Dunlap was especially anxious to complete the acquisition of Coleman before Sunbeam announced its first quarter 1998 sales. Indeed, the success of the scheme depended upon Sunbeam's ability to complete the Coleman acquisition before Sunbeam's first quarter results were announced. To satisfy Dunlap's objectives, Morgan Stanley moved up the launch date of the offering.

The debentures were marketed to investors at a series of "road show" meetings and conference calls arranged by Morgan Stanley. Morgan Stanley prepared and distributed a memorandum for its sales force to use in marketing the debentures to investors. Morgan Stanley also developed the script for Dunlap and Kersh to deliver during the road show. In those materials, Morgan Stanley misrepresented Sunbeam's financial performance and emphasized Dunlap's purported "turnaround" accomplishments.

Morgan Stanley launched the debenture offering with a research analyst presentation to the Morgan Stanley sales force. As part of Morgan Stanley's growing relationship with Sunbeam, one of Morgan Stanley's top-rated research analysts planned to initiate equity coverage of Sunbeam. That Morgan Stanley analyst had modeled values for Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman that were higher than even Sunbeam's management had predicted.

Although Morgan Stanley initially planned to sell $500 million worth of debentures, Morgan Stanley's efforts were so successful that the size of the offering was increased to $750 million on March 19, 1998 — the day of the last road show. The debentures were sold to investors nationwide, including investors based in Florida.

As Sunbeam's investment banker and the sole underwriter for the debenture offering, Morgan Stanley had a duty to investigate Sunbeam's finances and business operations.

Morgan Stanley, which had been working hand-in-hand with Sunbeam for almost a year and had traveled to Sunbeam's Florida offices, repeatedly asserted that it had satisfied that duty.

Strong, who was one of the senior Morgan Stanley investment bankers involved, has admitted in sworn testimony that he may have had more than 100 telephone conversations with Dunlap and Kersh (whose offices were in Sunbeam's Delray Beach headquarters) and that Strong was "sure" that he would have been apprised of Sunbeam's financial performance during the first two months of 1998.

With the $750 million debenture offering and the Coleman transaction set to close at the end of March 1998, Sunbeam's Florida-based outside auditors were shocked that Morgan Stanley had not asked them about Sunbeam's financial performance for first quarter 1998. Sunbeam's auditors were alarmed because Sunbeam's first quarter results were a disaster, but Dunlap, Kersh, and Morgan Stanley were telling CPH and the investing public, that Sunbeam's turnaround was a success, that Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 were ahead of the expectations of outside financial analysts, and that Sunbeam was poised for record sales.

On March 17, Sunbeam's auditors forced the issue. From their Florida offices, Sunbeam's auditors sent Morgan Stanley a letter reporting that Sunbeam's net sales through January 1998 were down 60% — $28 million in January 1998, as compared to $73 million in January 1997. The March 17 letter explained that the decline was "primarily due to the . . . new early buy program for grills which accelerated grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997."

The next day, Morgan Stanley was faxed a schedule from Sunbeam's Florida office that showed that Sunbeam's January and February 1998 net sales totaled $72 million, an amount that was 50% lower than Sunbeam's January and February 1997 net sales of $143.5 million.

Based on information that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley had disseminated, Wall Street analysts were anticipating that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 net sales would be in the range of $285 million to $295 million. Sales in that range would have been approximately 15% higher than first quarter 1997 sales. Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales, however, totaled barely 25% of $285 million. As Sunbeam's outside auditors advised Morgan Stanley in writing, the sales drop-off was caused by Sunbeam's sales acceleration program. The information put into Morgan Stanley's hands on March 17 and March 18 showed that Morgan Stanley's and Sunbeam's assertions to CPH and other investors were false. Contrary to what Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam had represented, Sunbeam had not undergone a successful turnaround, Sunbeam's financial performance had not dramatically improved, and Sunbeam's performance in 1998 was not better than Wall Street analysts' expectations. It was imperative, therefore, that the truth be kept from CPH until the Coleman transaction closed at the end of March 1998.

Morgan Stanley did not disclose Sunbeam's disastrous first quarter, Morgan Stanley did not insist that Sunbeam disclose its disastrous first quarter, Morgan Stanley did not correct any of the false and misleading statements it and Sunbeam had made to CPH about Sunbeam's business or performance, and Morgan Stanley did not suspend any of the critical transactions that were scheduled to close in the next two weeks. Instead, with Morgan Stanley's knowledge and assistance, Sunbeam prepared and issued a false press release on March 19, 1998 that affirmatively misstated and concealed Sunbeam's true condition.

The March 19, 1998 press release stated: "Sunbeam Corporation . . . said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of

Wall Street analysts' estimates for $285 million to $295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. . . . The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year."

As Morgan Stanley was fully aware, the March 19, 1998 press release was false, misleading, and failed to disclose material information. The March 19, 1998 press release failed to disclose Sunbeam's actual January and February 1998 sales or the true reasons for the poor results. Instead, the press release held out the false possibility that Sunbeam still could achieve sales of $285 million to $295 million and suggested that, if any shortfall occurred, that shortfall would be due to the fact that certain retailers had decided to defer first quarter purchases to the second quarter.

The press release also assured that Sunbeam at least would exceed first quarter 1997 net sales of $253.4 million.

Based on information that Morgan Stanley had in its hands on March 18, 1998, it was obvious that Sunbeam would not achieve sales of $285 million to $295 million and that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales would be below its first quarter 1997 numbers. To simply meet 1997 first quarter sales, Sunbeam needed sales of $123.3 million over the 12 remaining days of the quarter — an average of $10.28 million per day. Sales of $10.28 million per day would be 306% more than the average per day sales in March 1997, and 281% more than the average per day sales for the first 17 days of March 1998. Furthermore, Morgan Stanley knew that the shortfall from analysts' estimates was not caused by retailers' deciding to defer purchases from the first quarter of 1998 to the second quarter, as the press release indicated. Rather, as Sunbeam's outside auditors had advised Morgan Stanley in writing, the collapse in first quarter sales was caused by Sunbeam's acceleration of 1998 sales into the fourth quarter of 1997.

After Sunbeam's false press release was issued, Morgan Stanley stood arm-in-arm with Sunbeam while Dunlap and Kersh told CPH, analysts, and investors that the March 19, 1998 release was a purely cautionary statement because some first quarter 1998 sales might simply "spillover" into the second quarter and that Sunbeam still believed that it actually would meet analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million in first quarter 1998 sales.

Morgan Stanley knew that a full and truthful disclosure of Sunbeam's first quarter sales would doom the debenture offering, which was scheduled to close on March 25, 1998,

As Morgan Stanley was fully aware, the written contract between CPH and Sunbeam gave CPH the express legal right to refuse to close the sale if there was a material adverse change in Sunbeam's "business, results of operation or financial condition."

Furthermore, if the transactions did not close, Morgan Stanley would not be paid its $10.28 million fee for the Coleman acquisition or its $22.5 million fee for underwriting the subordinated debenture offering. Morgan Stanley also knew that Sunbeam would promptly replace Morgan Stanley with another investment banking firm – such as the Chase Securities team led by Mark Davis.

Sunbeam's outside auditors already had made it perfectly clear to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were a disaster,

One of Sunbeam's senior outside auditors, Lawrence Bornstein, has testified under oath that on March 19, 1998, he told Morgan Stanley's John Tyree that the statement in Sunbeam's March 19, 1998 press release — that Sunbeam would at least exceed first quarter 1997 sales of $253.4 million — was not credible: "Just do the math . . . they've done a million dollars in sales the first 70 days of the year and now they need to do $10 million worth of sales for the next . . . I think it was 11 days . . . I mean, something ridiculous." Bornstein also told Tyree: "I've been to every shipping dock domestically, I've been to Hattiesburg, I've been to Neosho, I've been to Mexico City, and I don't think these guys can physically ship this much stuff."

Morgan Stanley knew that the March 19 press release was false and misleading. Despite that knowledge and Bornstein's explicit statements, Morgan Stanley continued with its preparations to close the debenture offering on March 25, 1998 and the Coleman acquisition on March 30, 1998.

As part of those preparations, on March 24, 1998, Morgan Stanley's Tyree spoke by telephone with Sunbeam's Kersh, who was located in Sunbeam's Delray Beach offices, to obtain an updated report concerning Sunbeam's first quarter performance. By the time of that March 24, 1998 call, Sunbeam had fallen even further behind first quarter 1997 sales. As of March 18, 1998, Sunbeam needed to achieve average sales of $10.28 million per day, over 12 days, to reach first quarter 1997 sales. Sunbeam's sales between March 18 and March 24, 1998 had averaged only $6.81 million per day — well short of the $10.28 million per day that Sunbeam needed to achieve. Sunbeam's March 18 through March 24, 1998 sales were further proof that Sunbeam's March 19, 1998 press release was false and that Sunbeam would not achieve first quarter 1998 sales in excess of first quarter 1997 sales.

Morgan Stanley also knew no later than March 25, 1998, if not much earlier, that Sunbeam's earnings for the first quarter of 1998 were going to miss Wall Street analysts' earnings expectations, which were in the range of $0.28 to $0.31 per share (excluding one-time charges). Sunbeam's outside auditors advised Morgan Stanley on March 25 that Sunbeam had suffered a $41.19 million loss during the first two months of 1998, including a one-time charge of $30.2 million. Even excluding that one-time charge, Sunbeam's loss for the first two months was $0.13 per share. To achieve first quarter 1998 operating earnings of $0.28 per share, which were at the low end of analyst expectations, Sunbeam needed to realize a profit of $35.5 million during March 1998 alone. A net profit of $35.5 million in March was 500% more than Sunbeam's net profit for the entire first quarter of 1997. In fact, Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 earnings fell far short of Wall Street's expectations. Sunbeam's first quarter earnings were material,

Having directly participated in misleading CPH Morgan Stanley had a duty to disclose the true facts before the closing of the debenture offering and the Coleman acquisition. Morgan Stanley also could have required Sunbeam to postpone the closings of those transactions until the necessary disclosures were made. Morgan Stanley did neither. Instead, Morgan Stanley marched forward and closed the $750 million debenture offering on March 25, 1998, which was needed to close the Coleman transaction, and assisted Sunbeam in closing the acquisition of Coleman on March 30, 1998.

Morgan Stanley received $22.5 million for the subordinated debenture offering and $10.28 million for the Coleman acquisition. Morgan Stanley would have received nothing if the transactions had failed to close.

On April 3, 1998 — just four days after the Coleman transaction closed — Sunbeam announced that sales for the first quarter of 1998 would be approximately 5% below the $253.4 million in sales that Sunbeam reported in the first quarter of 1997. In other words, Sunbeam was expecting sales in the range of $240 million. That sales shortfall was shocking news, particularly in view of assurances provided by Sunbeam both in and after its March 19, 1998 press release that $285 million to $295 million of sales was still a real possibility. The April 3, 1998 press release also disclosed that Sunbeam expected to show a loss for the quarter, although the release did not disclose the magnitude of the loss or how much of the loss was attributable to operating earnings as opposed to one-time charges. Sunbeam's news stunned the market. On April 3rd, Sunbeam's stock price dropped 25% — from $45-9/16 to $34-3/8.

Sunbeam's actual first quarter 1998 performance was even worse than Sunbeam disclosed on April 3, 1998. The April 3, 1998 release indicated that Sunbeam's first quarter sales were in the range of $240 million. In fact, Sunbeam's first quarter sales were $224.5 million. Sunbeam obscured the true shortfall by extending its quarter from March 29 to March 31, 1998 — thereby adding two more days of Sunbeam sales. Sunbeam also failed to disclose that it had included two days of Coleman sales after the Coleman transaction closed on March 30. Further, Sunbeam inflated first quarter 1998 sales with $29 million of new phony “bill and hold” sales.

Just as Sunbeam’s first quarter 1998 sales had been a disaster, so, too, were Sunbeam’s first quarter 1998 earnings. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam had represented to CPH that Sunbeam would achieve or exceed analyst first quarter 1998 earnings estimates. At the time of that representation, the consensus among analysts was that Sunbeam would enjoy first quarter 1998 earnings of $0.33 per share. However, on May 9, 1998, Sunbeam disclosed that it would record a first quarter loss of $0.09 per share (excluding one-time charges) — more than $0.40 per share lower than CPH had been told to expect.

Within weeks, Dunlap’s fraudulent scheme began to unravel. In June 1998, after a number of news articles critical of Sunbeam’s practices, Sunbeam’s Board of Directors launched an internal investigation. That investigation led quickly to the firing of Dunlap and Kersh, and, subsequently, to a restatement of Sunbeam’s financial statements for 1996, 1997, and the first quarter of 1998.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley participated in a scheme to mislead CPH and others and cover up the massive fraud at Sunbeam until Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam could close the purchase of Coleman. Morgan Stanley provided CPH with false information concerning Sunbeam’s 1996 and 1997 financial performance, its business operations, and the value of Sunbeam’s stock. Morgan Stanley also actively assisted Sunbeam in concealing Sunbeam’s disastrous first quarter 1998 sales and earnings and the true reasons for Sunbeam's poor performance.

Morgan Stanley knew that its statements to CPH were materially false and misleading and omitted the true facts.

Morgan Stanley intended that CPH rely on Morgan Stanley's representations concerning Sunbeam.

As detailed above, Dunlap engaged in a fraudulent scheme to inflate the price of Sunbeam's stock by improperly manipulating Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 performance, by falsely asserting that Sunbeam had successfully "turned around," and by concealing the collapse of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales and earnings and the reasons for Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance.

86 As detailed above, Morgan Stanley knew of Dunlap's fraudulent scheme and helped to conceal it until after Sunbeam could close the purchase of Coleman.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley provided substantial assistance to Dunlap and Sunbeam, including: concealing Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse; assisting with the false March 19, 1998 press release; arranging road shows and meetings with prospective debenture purchasers at which Morgan Stanley, Dunlap, and others made false statements concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; preparing and disseminating the preliminary and final offering memoranda for the subordinated debenture offering, both of which contained false information concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; providing CPH with false financial and business information concerning Sunbeam; scripting Dunlap's false public statements concerning Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman; and underwriting the $750 million convertible debenture offering, proceeds from which were used to fund Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley conspired with Dunlap and other senior Sunbeam executives to conceal the truth about Sunbeam's financial performance and business operations.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley committed overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy, including: concealing Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse; assisting with the false March 19, 1998 press release; arranging road shows and meetings with prospective debenture purchasers at which Morgan Stanley, Dunlap, and others made false statements concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; preparing and disseminating the preliminary and final offering memoranda for the subordinated debenture offering, both of which contained false information concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; providing CPH with false financial and business information concerning Sunbeam; scripting Dunlap's false public statements concerning Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman;

ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE
INSTRUCTION

THIS CAUSE came before the Court March 21, 2005 on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, with both counsel present. Based on the proceedings before the Court, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction is Denied, without prejudice to MS & Co.'s right to present evidence about CPH's email retention practices and its failure to direct that emails related to the Sunbeam transaction be saved and CPH's right to present evidence of its offer to have a third-party vendor given access to retrieve emails from CPH's system, without reference to discovery requests or court orders, and for either counsel to argue in favor of whatever inferences that evidence may support. See Jordan v. Masters, 821 So. 2d 342 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002) cf.; Amlan, Inc. v. Detroit Diesel Corp., 651 So. 2d 701 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995). If either party intends to present evidence on the issue of CPH's email retention practices or third-party vendor offer it shall, within 5 business days, serve on opposing counsel (i) the name, address, and business title of any witness expected to testify, together with a fair summary of his or her expected testimony; (ii) a designation of any deposition testimony the designating party intends to offer on this issue; and (iii) copies of any documents to be referred to by a witness or offered into evidence on this issue.

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF THE COURT'S MARCH 23, 2005 ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION AND TO BAR THE EXPERT TESTIMONY OF JOHN F. ASHLEY

In light of the Court's March 31, 2005 ruling to redraw the bifurcation line and bar evidence of Morgan Stanley's litigation misconduct from Phase I of the trial (see Ex. A, 3/31/05 Tr. at 6274), Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") hereby moves this Court to reconsider its March 23, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction. It would be unfair to allow Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") to put on evidence during Phase I about CPH's alleged destruction of e-mails when CPH is prevented from telling the jury that Morgan Stanley "deliberately and contumaciously violated numerous discovery orders" involving e-mail and related issues (Ex. B, 3/23/05 Order, at 16). Accordingly, CPH asks this Court to bar Morgan Stanley from introducing any evidence related to CPH's e-mail retention policies or alleged destruction of e-mail. CPH also asks this Court to bar the expert testimony of John F. Ashley, the recent disclosure of which was inadequate and untimely.

I. Allowing Morgan Stanley To Present Evidence of CPH's Alleged Discovery Misconduct Would Be Unjust.

In its March 23, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, the Court directed the parties to make certain disclosures "[i]f either party intends to present evidence on the issue of CPH's e-mail retention practices or third-party vendor offer." Ex. C, 3/23/05 Order. Pursuant to that Order, Morgan Stanley disclosed its intent to call Steven L. Fasman, a senior vice president at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MAFCO") to testify about "the practices regarding preservation, deletion, purging, and destruction of email at MAFCO; . . . the failure to preserve, recover, restore, or save MAFCO email . . . ; the destruction, erasing, or overwriting of MAFCO email . . . ; and Plaintiff's production or failure to produce email in response to discovery requests." Ex. D, MS Not. of Compliance with Ct. Order, at 1-2. Morgan Stanley also disclosed that it intends to call John F. Ashley, an expert in computer forensics, to testify to "the email software and backup systems in use at MAFCO since 1997; the ability to recover email from overwritten backup tapes; the email backup and destruction policies at MAFCO; and the impact of those policies on the ability/inability to recover MAFCO email from 1997 and 1998 from the existing MAFCO backup tapes." Id.

Because the Court's March 31, 2005 Order moves all evidence of litigation misconduct into Phase II of the trial and leaves only the issues of reliance and compensatory damages in Phase I, it appears that Morgan Stanley intends to turn Phase I into a "blame the victim" sideshow. By shining the spotlight on CPH's e-mail policies and practices, Morgan Stanley hopes to distract the jury from Morgan Stanley's own misconduct and to imply that it was CPH, and not Morgan Stanley, that was the culprit here.

As Morgan Stanley has recently argued: “Under Florida law, evidence of discovery misconduct generally may not be presented to the jury.” Ex. E, MS 3/31/05 Mot. to Clarify, at 5. While evidence of Morgan Stanley’s discovery misconduct is relevant to CPH’s claim for punitive damages and thus will come in during Phase II of the trial, there is no basis for introducing evidence of CPH’s e-mail policy during either phase of the trial. The only evidence relevant in Phase I, according to Morgan Stanley itself, is “evidence directly bearing on reliance or damages.” Id. at 4. Any other evidence presenting “purely collateral issues which would serve only to confuse and mislead the jury is too remote and should be excluded” from Phase I. Donahue v. Albertson’s, Inc., 472 So. 2d 482, 483 (Fla. 4th DCA 1985). Evidence about CPH’s alleged destruction of e-mail would be doubly confusing and misleading for the jury because CPH presently is precluded from rebutting Morgan Stanley’s charges by showing that it was Morgan Stanley, and not CPH, that violated numerous Court orders, disregarded its discovery obligations, and concealed e-mail evidence.

As the Court is aware, Morgan Stanley raised the issue of CPH’s e-mail policy for the first time only after the Court’s March 1, 2005 Order imposed sanctions on Morgan Stanley for its own destruction and non-production of e-mails. In a transparent response to the Court’s sanctions, Morgan Stanley went on the attack against CPH’s e-mail policies, despite having known about those very same policies since at least November 5, 2003, when Morgan Stanley raised CPH’s e-mail policy in response to a motion to compel, and despite having refused CPH’s offer to have a third-party vendor restore its e-mails. On March 21, 2005, when Morgan Stanley attempted to equate CPH’s e-mail practices with Morgan Stanley’s deliberate, willful, and calculated discovery misconduct, the Court found that argument “offen[sive].” See Ex. F, 3/21/05 Tr. at 4540 (“[I]n all honesty, I’m offended that you would attempt to equate the two.”). It would be even more offensive now to allow Morgan Stanley to imply that CPH, and not Morgan Stanley, was the wrongdoer in destroying or hiding e-mails.

II. The Testimony of Expert John F. Ashley Should Be Barred.

Even if the Court determines that Morgan Stanley should be allowed to present evidence of CPH’s e-mail policies, Morgan Stanley should be prohibited from presenting expert testimony on these issues. Mr. Ashley’s testimony does not comply with the detailed stipulation reached by the parties regarding disclosure of expert testimony or with the schedule for expert discovery set forth in this Court’s Orders; it is not contemplated by the Court’s March 23, 2005 Order; and it is beyond the scope of his expertise.

First, the disclosure of an expert witness just days before trial is untimely and violates the parties’ agreed Stipulation, filed with this Court, as well as this Court’s Orders regarding the schedule for expert disclosures. In their September 16, 2004 Stipulation, the parties agreed that “their respective expert witnesses will prepare and produce expert reports.” Ex. G, 9/16/04 Stipulation. Mr. Ashley has prepared no such report. And on October 14, 2004, the Court entered an Order establishing deadlines for initial, responsive, and rebuttal expert reports, as well as expert depositions. Under the Order, “[e]xpert witnesses will not be permitted to testify as to opinions, or the bases therefore, unless the opinions or bases were disclosed with particularity in accordance with this Order.” See Ex. H, 10/14/04 Order (deadlines extended by Ex. I, 11/23/04 Agreed Order). Mr. Ashley’s opinions have not been disclosed in accordance with the Court’s Orders and the deadlines for expert discovery have long since passed. Morgan Stanley has known about CPH’s e-mail retention policy since at least November 2003. Its attempt to present an expert on that topic now comes much too late.

Quoting from an argument Morgan Stanley made when one of CPH's experts was unable (due to significant health problems) to complete his deposition during the agreed-upon timeframe for expert discovery: "[G]iven the highly compressed pretrial schedule, and the limited time remaining before trial to complete expert disclosures, expert depositions, and expert designations," the expert testimony should be excluded to alleviate "prejudice and procedural unfairness." Ex. J, MS Mot. in Limine No. 13, at 5. Because Morgan Stanley has disclosed its expert in the middle of jury selection and only days before opening statements are scheduled, because Morgan Stanley has not followed the agreed-upon protocol in the parties' stipulation and agreed order regarding expert disclosures, and, finally, because CPH has not had the opportunity to depose the witness, Mr. Ashley's testimony should be barred.

Second, the subjects on which Mr. Ashley intends to testify are beyond the scope of the Court's March 23, 2005 Order. The Court's Order contemplates testimony on only two subjects: (1) CPH's e-mail retention policies; and (2) CPH's offer to have a third-party vendor retrieve e-mails from its system. When the Court heard argument on this motion, the Court clarified that Morgan Stanley's position was that it wanted to "present evidence about [CPH's] e-mail retention policy and the failure to deviate from it in this case, and then argue to the jury that they should draw an adverse inference from that evidence." Ex. F, 3/21/05 Tr. at 4538. Morgan Stanley cannot now go beyond the scope of what the Court ordered and demand the right to put on evidence through an expert about additional topics such as "the ability/inability to recover MAFCO e-mail from 1997 and 1998 from the existing MAFCO backup tapes." Ex. D. This testimony would be particularly inappropriate since Morgan Stanley rejected CPH's offer to retrieve e-mails out-of-hand without even considering issues such as CPH's ability or inability to retrieve e-mails. See Ex. K, 3/11/04 Ltr. from T. Clare to M. Brody.

As is more fully set out in CPH's Response to Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, Morgan Stanley has long since waived its right to argue about these topics because Morgan Stanley opposed CPH's e-mail restoration proposal and failed to file a motion seeking the restoration of CPH's e-mails. See Ex. L, CPH Resp. to MS Mot., at 1-3. Morgan Stanley should not be allowed to circumvent its earlier discovery waivers by transforming the Court's Order into a license to put on previously undisclosed and inadequately detailed expert opinion testimony.

Third, Mr. Ashley is not qualified to opine on the subject of either CPH's e-mail retention policies or CPH's offer to have a third-party vendor retrieve e-mails from its system. Mr. Ashley has no background or experience related to either CPH or its policies, and Mr. Ashley was not the vendor that CPH offered to retrieve e-mails from CPH's system. Although Mr. Ashley may or may not be generally qualified as an expert in computer forensics, he certainly is not qualified as to the CPH-specific topics the Court has designated as proper subjects for testimony. See Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Inc. v. Ross, 660 So. 2d 1109, 1111 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995) (“[I]t is not enough that the witness be qualified to propound opinions on a general subject; rather [the witness] must be qualified as an expert on the discrete subject on which [the witness] is asked to opine.”). Mr. Ashley is not a proper expert witness as to CPH's policies, procedures, or offers.

III. In The Alternative, If Morgan Stanley Is Permitted To Raise CPH's E-Mail Policy During Phase I, Then In Fairness CPH Must Be Allowed To Raise Morgan Stanley's Litigation Misconduct And This Court's Associated Findings.

Alternatively, if Morgan Stanley is permitted to introduce evidence of CPH's retention e-mail policy, then in fairness the jury should be allowed to hear about the circumstances leading to the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, this Court should read its statement to the jury regarding Morgan Stanley's litigation abuses, and CPH should be permitted to put on evidence regarding those abuses. In particular, the jury should learn in Phase I that:

- Morgan Stanley misrepresented to CPH and the Court that it would cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars and require several months to search its e-mail from the relevant time period of the transaction all the while knowing that it could quickly and inexpensively search its e-mail archive;
- Morgan Stanley misrepresented to CPH and the Court that no e-mail data existed for any time period before January 2000 when it knew that some backup tapes contained e-mail dating back at least to 1997;
- A Morgan Stanley representative lied under oath about the capabilities of Morgan Stanley's e-mail archive, representing that it could not be used to search old e-mails;
- Morgan Stanley knowingly signed a false certificate of compliance representing that it had fully complied with the Court's Agreed Order to produce e-mails;
- Morgan Stanley continued to find thousands of additional tapes containing possibly relevant e-mail evidence and failed to timely notify CPH or the Court when the tapes were found and failed to timely search the tapes;
- Morgan Stanley ran flawed searches of its e-mail and failed to timely notify CPH or the Court of the problems with the searches and other technical issues;
- Morgan Stanley continued to erase back-up tapes after January 2001 in violation of an obligation to preserve e-mail on those tapes;
- Morgan Stanley failed to provide computer information about the extent of the work it performed in generating Sunbeam-related documents and then falsely represented that it had no such useful information;
- Morgan Stanley provided answers to interrogatories signed by a corporate representative who performed insufficient verification of the responses;
- Morgan Stanley routinely asserted unfounded privilege claims;
- Morgan Stanley failed to provide CPH with materials showing that an employee who played a major role in the Sunbeam transaction had been criminally indicted in Italy, despite the fact that such materials were clearly called for under the Court's Order.

If Morgan Stanley is allowed to present evidence of CPH's e-mail policy, and to attempt to cast CPH as having engaged in inappropriate activity, then CPH in fairness should be allowed to present evidence of the history of the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order and the myriad instances of litigation misconduct by Morgan Stanley.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, CPH respectfully requests that this Court reconsider its March 23, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction and issue an Order precluding Morgan Stanley from offering any evidence regarding CPH's e-mail policies or alleged destruction of e-mail. CPH further requests that the testimony of John F. Ashley be barred.

1 But this jury is not being told, as Your
2 Honor's statement presently stands, that Morgan
3 Stanley repeatedly violated court orders. That 4 is a fact. But nonetheless, Mr. Hansen has 5 chosen to say, as a consequence of not following
6 court orders, Morgan Stanley can't defend 7 itself.

8 Well, once he presents that issue to the 9 jury, in fairness to us, the jury is entitled to 10 know that the punishment indeed fits the crime
11 in both phases.

12 THE COURT: I don't need you to respond.
13 I can tell you, this is something I've 14 thought about. And I understand the parties may 15 have different opinions. My purpose here is to 16 have a fair trial. And the only way I think we 17 can protect Morgan Stanley against the 18 inappropriate reference to litigation
19 misconduct, that has nothing to do with 20 liability. And I've already found that on the 21 issues we have left is to segregate that and do
22 both entitlement and amount of punitive damages
23 as a phase two. What that means is I would not 24 read a statement about litigation misconduct to 25 the jury in phase one.

042398

1 That said, I'm also sensitive to Plaintiff's
2 position, because we spoke about that yesterday,
3 that -- and we spoke about it in conjunction of 4 having the statement of litigation misconduct
5 read in phase one -- that the litigation
6 misconduct that resulted in the order on the 7 renewed motion for default judgment is much
8 broader than the litigation misconduct that will 9 be read to the jury at some point.

10 And I understand Plaintiff's concern that if 11 jurors listen solely to the second statement
12 they might tell themselves, that doesn't seem so
13 bad, I think the Judge was unfair, and I'm going 14 to somehow compensate in the case for it.

15 What we need to do is assure our service
16 with both panels of jurors, that the jurors we 17 select are able to take the statements of fact 18 that I read them and not question them. And we 19 still have both panels with us, and I'm sure 20 we're able to do that.

21 And certainly, if I need to give some 22 further instruction when we get to the statement
23 of facts in phase one, we can certainly do it.

24 That said, Mr. Solovy, yes, sir?

IN THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,
FLORIDA

CASE NO. CA 03-5045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

ORDER ON CPH'S RENEWED MOTION FOR ENTRY OF DEFAULT JUDGMENT

THIS CAUSE came before the Court March 14 and 15, 2005, on CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment, with both parties well represented by counsel.

Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"), has sued Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS & Co."), for aiding and abetting and conspiring with Sunbeam to perpetrate a fraud. Early in the case, CPH was concerned that MS & Co. was not thoroughly looking for emails responsive to its discovery requests. On April 16, 2004, the Court entered an Agreed Order ("Agreed Order") that required MS & Co. to search its oldest full backup tapes for emails subject to certain parameters and certify compliance. MS & Co. certified compliance with the Agreed Order on June 23, 2004. On November 17, 2004, CPH learned that MS & Co. had found some backup tapes that had not been searched. On January 26, 2005 it served its Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order ("Adverse Inference Motion"), claiming that MS & Co.'s violation of the Agreed Order, coupled with its systemic overwriting of emails after 12 months, justified an adverse inference against it. The Court ordered certain limited discovery. Responses to that discovery prompted CPH to orally amend its Adverse Inference Motion to seek more severe sanctions.

14, 2005. On March 1, 2005 it issued its Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order ("Adverse Inference Order"). In its current Motion, CPH argues that it has since learned that the discovery abuses addressed in the Adverse Inference Motion and Order represent only a sampling of discovery abuses perpetrated by MS & Co. and that the abuses have continued, unabated. It claims that these abuses, when taken as a whole, infect the entire case. To understand CPH's argument, it is necessary to go back to the beginning.

This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which CPH sold its 82% interest in the Coleman Company, Inc., to Sunbeam Corporation. MS & Co. served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000.00 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the cash portion of the deal.

CPH's Complaint¹ alleged claims against MS & Co. arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy, and sought damages of at least $485 million.

On May 12, 2003, MS & Co. was served with the Complaint and CPH's First Request for Production of Documents ("Request"). The Request sought, in essence, all documents connected with the Sunbeam deal. "Documents" was broadly defined, and specifically included items electronically stored. Concerned that, out of more than 8,000 pages of documents produced, it had received only a handful of emails, CPH on October 29, 2003, served its Motion to Compel Concerning E-Mails. That motion sought an order requiring MS & Co. to make a full investigation for email messages, including a search of magnetic tapes and hard drives; produce within 10 days all emails located; and produce a Rule 1.310 witness within 20 days "to describe the search that was conducted, identify any gaps in Morgan Stanley's production, and explain the reasons for any gaps."

In its Opposition to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion to Compel served November 4, 2003, MS & Co. argued that CPH wanted "this Court to order a massive safari into the remote corners of MS & Co.'s email backup systems" and represented that "(t)he restoration efforts demanded by CPH would cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars and require several months to complete (emphasis in original). MS & Co. argued that CPH's "true" motive was to "harass and burden MS & Co. with unnecessary and costly discovery demands and attempt to smear MS & Co. with out-of-context recitations from other proceedings" because "CPH concedes that MS & Co. is only able to restore email from backup tapes from January 2000 and later - more than a year and a half after the events that allegedly gave rise to CPH's claims," (emphasis in original).

CPH's "concession" was based on representations like the kind made to it by MS & Co.'s counsel in a March 11, 2004 letter that suggested "(t)he burden on Morgan Stanley from . . . a wholesale restoration [of email back up tapes], both in terms of dollars and manpower would be enormous. Regardless of who performs the initial restoration, it would require hundreds (perhaps thousands) of attorney-hours to review millions of irrelevant and non-responsive e-mails . . ." ²

In response to CPH's Motion to Compel, the parties agreed to reciprocal corporate

²Complaints about MS & Co.'s tactics are not new. See Ex. 196 [February 26, 2004, letter from EEOC to Hon. Ronald L. Ellis in EEOC/Schieffelin v. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., et al., 01-CV-8421 (RMB) (RLE) (S.D.N.Y.): ("(w)hen EEOC received [Morgan Stanley's] January 27, 2004 Responses to EEOC's Fifth Requests for Production of Documents which did not contain any e-mails, the parties communicated further. At that time, Morgan Stanley took the position that searching for e-mails would be burdensome both in regards to expense and the time it would take to respond. While the parties were in the process of attempting to work out these disputes, EEOC for the first time learned that [Morgan Stanley has] an easy, systematic ability to search for relevant documents. In a February 16, 2004, conversation with an IT representative of [Morgan Stanley], EEOC learned that [Morgan Stanley has] an e-mail system, which, while not yet fully comprehensive, was easily searchable on February 18, 2004, the close of discovery . . . which is certain to produce discoverable information highly relevant to EEOC's and Plaintiff-Intervenor's claims . . . After disclosing their state-of-the-art system to EEOC, [Morgan Stanley] dropped [its] assertion that the process was too expensive, but maintained that they refuse to search for e-mails because it is burdensome for attorneys to review large numbers of documents prior to production.")

depositions on the email issue. CPH deposed Robert Saunders on February 10, 2004.³ After completion of the corporate representative depositions, and unable to obtain MS & Co.'s agreement to a mutual email restoration protocol, CPH served its Motion for Permission to have Third Party Retrieve Morgan Stanley E-Mail and Other Responsive Documents, proposing that a third party vendor be given access to both parties' email systems for restoration at each party's expense. At the hearing on that Motion, CPH offered to split the expenses evenly. MS & Co. refused.

MS & Co.'s continued assertions that the email searches could be conducted only at enormous cost and would be fruitless because there were not backup tapes with email from 1997 and 1998 were confirmed to the Court by MS & Co.'s counsel, Thomas Clare of Kirkland & Ellis, at a hearing held March 19, 2004:

Mr. Scarola: Electronic records of e-mails that have been exchanged.

The Court: Do we agree that there has been such a request outstanding?

Mr. Clare: There has been a request outstanding.

The Court: And have you all objected?

Mr. Clare: From the beginning.

The Court: And what's the basis of the objection?

Mr. Clare: We objected to the breadth of the request that they're making. And to answer Your Honor's question directly – and the burden that is associated with it – that given the particular e-mail back-up tapes that are in existence five, six years after the fact of these transactions, that the scope of the e-mail request that they are seeking is improperly and unduly burdensome given the enormous costs that would be required, given the fact that the time period for which we have back-up tapes post dates the events by several years.

Unable to resolve the email issue, on April 9, 2004, CPH served its Motion to Compel ³Saunders provided misleading information in his deposition. See footnote 12, infra.

Concerning E-Mails and Other Electronic Documents. On the eve of the hearing on CPH's Motion to Compel, the parties reached an accommodation, and on April 16, 2004 the Court entered the Agreed Order. Under the Agreed Order, MS & Co. was required to (1) search the oldest full backup tape for each of 36 MS & Co. employees involved in the Sunbeam transaction; (2) review emails dated from February 15, 1998, through April 15, 1998, and emails containing any of 29 specified search terms such as "Sunbeam" and "Coleman" regardless of their date; (3) produce by May 14, 2004, all nonprivileged emails responsive to CPH's document requests; (4) give CPH a privilege log; and (5) certify its full compliance with the Agreed Order.

As required by the Agreed Order, MS & Co. produced about 1,300 pages of emails on May 14, 2004. It did not, however, certify compliance with the Agreed Order. After prompting by CPH, on June 23, 2004, MS & Co. served a certificate of compliance signed by Arthur Riel, an Executive Director and manager of its Law/Compliance IT Group.⁴

CPH got its first indication that the Agreed Order may have been violated in the late fall of 2004.

On November 17, 2004, Clare wrote Michael Brody of Jenner & Block, CPH's outside counsel, that MS & Co. had "discovered additional e-mail backup tapes . . ."; that "(t)he data on some of [the] newly discovered tapes has been restored;" that "we have re-run the searches described in [the Agreed Order]"; that "some responsive e-mails have been located as a result of that process"; and that "(w)e will produce the responsive documents to you as soon as the production is finalized."

On December 14, 2004, Brody wrote Clare back:

in [your November 17, 2004 letter], you state that Morgan Stanley located additional email backup tapes, and that you would be producing documents soon. Within two days of that letter, you produced some emails to us. In your November 17, 2004 letter, however, you also indicated that "some of the backup tapes are still being restored." Have those backup tapes been restored? Have you found additional responsive emails? If so, when will Morgan Stanley produce those emails? How is it that the tapes were only recently located?

⁴Though CPH would not learn for months that the certificate was false, and even then the magnitude of MS & Co.'s misrepresentations would not be admitted, MS & Co. personnel, including in-house counsel, knew the certification of compliance was false when made.

On December 17, 2004, Clare wrote back, telling Brody "(n)o additional responsive e-mails have been located since our November production."⁵

Brody wrote back to Clare December 30, 2004, noting the deficiencies in Clare's correspondence:

You do not inform us whether the review of the recently-located backup tapes still is ongoing. Please confirm that all email backup tapes from the relevant time period have been reviewed and all responsive emails have been produced. If the review still is proceeding, please let us know when the review will be completed.

Clare wrote back on January 11, 2005, telling Brody that the "restoration of e-mail backup tapes is ongoing. Restoration of the next set of backup tapes is estimated to be completed at the end of January. We intend to re-run the searches described in the agreed order at that time."

Concerned about Clare's lack of candor, on January 19, 2005 Brody wrote again:

I write in response to your January 11, 2005 letter concerning e-mails back-up tapes. Unfortunately, your letter raises more questions than it answers. As I requested in my December 14, 2004 letter, please explain the circumstances under which Morgan Stanley located these backup tapes and advise us of the date on which the tapes were located.

⁵Not only does this letter fail to answer Brody's legitimate questions, it implies that MS &Co. was still processing and reviewing emails from the newly found tapes. As we now know, though, no additional information was migrated to the archives between approximately August 18, 2004 and January 15, 2005. Of course "no additional responsive e-mails [would have been] located."

Further, please explain your statement that "the next set of backup tapes" is scheduled to be restored "at the end of January." How many tapes will be restored by the end of January? When exactly in January will Morgan Stanley complete the process of restoring and searching these tapes for responsive documents? Are there other backup tapes that are not yet in the process of being restored? If so, please advise us of (a) the number of tapes that are not yet in the process of being restored; (b) the time period of the data contained on those tapes; and (c) Morgan Stanley's timetable for restoring and searching those tapes. In addition, please explain why those tapes are not yet in the process of being restored. Please also explain why Morgan Stanley cannot complete the restoration and searching of all remaining backup tapes before "the end of January." As you know, our trial is scheduled to begin on February 22, 2005.

We look forward your complete response to these questions no later than January 21, 2005 so that we can bring this matter to the Court's attention, if necessary.

Conforming to what was by now his usual stonewall tactic, Clare responded by letter dated January 21, 2005:

I write in response to your January 19, 2005 letter regarding Morgan Stanley's production of e-mails restored from backup tapes.

Morgan Stanley completed its initial production of restored e-mail messages on May 14, 2005. The May 2004 production was conducted in accordance with the agreed-upon order governing, and the searches that resulted in that production encompassed data from all of the backup tapes known to exist at the time. Subsequent to the May 2004 production, additional tapes were found in various locations at Morgan Stanley. The discovered tapes were not clearly labeled as to their contents, were not found in locations where e-mail backup tapes customarily were stored, and many of the tapes were in a different format than other e-mail backup tapes. In November 2004, once it was determined at least some of the discovered tapes contained recoverable e-mail data, Morgan Stanley re-ran the searches described in the agreed-upon order. Those searches resulted in Morgan Stanley's November 2004 production.

Morgan Stanley's efforts to restore the backup tapes discovered after the May 2004 production are ongoing. It is a time-consuming and painstaking process and, given the absence of clear labels or other index information for the backup tapes, there is no way for Morgan Stanley to know or accurately predict the type or time period of data that might be recovered from tapes that have yet to be restored. While Morgan Stanley cannot accurately estimate when all of the tapes will be restored or whether any recoverable data will be found on the remaining tapes, we understand from Morgan Stanley that, when the agreed-upon searches are run again at the end of January, those searches will include approximately one terabyte of additional data restored since the prior production.

On January 26, 2005, CPH served its Adverse Inference Motion, seeking sanctions based on MS & Co.'s disclosure of the newly found tapes. Hearing was scheduled for February 14, 2005. In preparation for that hearing, on February 3, 2005 the Court ordered MS & Co. to produce by noon on February 8, 2005 "(i) all documents to be referred to or relied on by any of the witnesses in his or her testimony; and (ii) all documents within MS & Co.'s care, custody, or control, addressing or related to the additional email backup tapes, including matters relating to the time or manner in which they were discovered; by whom they were discovered; who else learned of their discovery and when; and the manner and timetable by which they were be restored and made searchable, including any correspondence to or from outside or prospective outside vendors."

later than May of 2004; the undisclosed discovery of the 738 8-millimeter backup tapes in 2002; the presence of unsearched data in the staging area; the discovery of 169 DLT tapes in January 2005; the discovery of more than 200 additional tapes on February 11 and 12, 2005; the discovery of a script error that had prevented MS & Co. from locating responsive email attachments; and discovery of another script error that had infected the ability to gather emails from Lotus Notes platform users.

In response to these deficiencies, the Court issued the Adverse Inference Order. That Order reversed the burden of proof on the aiding and abetting and conspiracy elements and included a statement of evidence of MS & Co.'s efforts to hide its emails to be read to the jury, as relevant to both its consciousness of guilt and the appropriateness of punitive damages. It specifically provided that "MS & Co. shall continue to use its best efforts to comply with the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order and . . . February 4, 2005 Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ore tenus Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Back Up Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search."⁶

It is now clear why MS & Co. was so unwilling to provide CPH with basic information about how and when the tapes were found or when production would be complete. First, candor would have required MS & Co. to admit that it had not done a good faith search for the oldest full backup tapes, and that Riel's certificate of compliance was false. Some unsearched tapes had been found by 2002; others had been found no later than May, 2004. Together, over 2,000 tapes had been found which were not searched prior to the May production. It is untrue that the tapes were "not in locations where e-mail backup tapes customarily were stored."

⁶Concerned that MS & Co. had been less than candid with both CPH and the Court, on February 4, 2004, the Court entered its Order on Coleman (Parent) Holding's ore tenus Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Backup Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search, ordering MS & Co. to pay for a third party vendor to check its compliance with the Agreed Order. The Court previously found that the two scripts errors testified to by Allison Gorman at the February 14, 2005, hearing would not have been discovered or revealed without the threat that the third-party vendor would discover the errors. Given Ms. Gorman's testimony at the March 14, 2005, hearing, though, it now appears MS & Co. knew about the errors before the appointment of the third-party vendor. Consequently, the errors were only revealed, but not discovered, in response to the February 4, 2004, Order.

Second, MS & Co. desperately wanted to hide an active SEC inquiry into its email retention practices.^{7 8 9 10} Finally, MS & Co. did not want to admit the existence of the historical email archive, which would expose the false representations it had made to the Court and used to induce CPH to agree to entry of the Agreed Order.^{11 12}

⁷On December 17, 2003, CPH served its Third Request for Production seeking "(a)ll materials and documents submitted to the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), received from the SEC, or reflecting communications with the SEC in connection with any investigation, inquiry, or examination concerning or relating to Morgan Stanley's policies and/or procedures with regard to the retention, storage, deletion, and/or back-up of electronic mail (emails) . . ." On October 12, 2004, CPH served its Request for Supplemental Documents seeking to bring MS & Co.'s document production current, requesting "(a)ll documents not previously provided by MS & Co. that are responsive to any Request for Production of Documents that CPH previously has served upon MS & Co. in the litigation, including documents obtained by MS & Co. or its counsel after the date of MS & Co.'s prior productions." No SEC documents were produced in response to either request; no privilege log was generated. On other privilege logs generated in response to court orders, MS & Co. did not show the SEC on the distribution portion of the log. See March 9, 2005 Order Following in Camera Inspection (Riel/SEC Documents) footnotes 1, 2. See, also, footnote 15, infra. Kirland & Ellis, outside counsel for MS & Co. in this litigation, represents MS & Co. in the SEC's inquiry into its email retention practices.

⁸MS & Co. manipulated the unhooking of the SEC's email investigation from the IPO litigation in January, 2005, to conceal the email issues as long as possible.

⁹It is now apparent that MS & Co. chose deliberately to keep its affidavits concerning the informal SEC inquiry submitted to support its privilege claims vague, despite two requests from the Court seeking specific information. See February 28, 2005 Order (Release of Exhibits).

¹⁰See February 25, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Objections to Coleman (Parent) Holding Inc.'s Notice to Produce at Hearing and Motion for Protective Order and March 4, 2005 Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production.

¹¹While MS & Co. contends that its representations to the Court that it would cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" to search the backup tapes and that there was no pre-2000 backup tapes were not false, they were deliberately misleading: MS & Co. never had an intention to search the back up tapes to respond to the requests and some of the year 2000 backup tapes backed up email back to 1997.

In 2001, MS & Co. decided to create the email archive. By June, 2003, it had decided that the archive should have two components. First, MS & Co. wanted to create an archive that captured and stored email as it was generated. Second, MS & Co. wanted to add historical data to the archive. That task involved searching for all email backup tapes containing historical emails; sending those tapes to an outside processor; loading the processed tapes into a staging area; and migrating the stored data from the staging area onto the archive. As we now know, archive searches are quick and inexpensive. They do not cost "hundred of thousands of dollars" or "take several months." The restrictions imposed by the Agreed Order were not needed.

¹²On February 10, 2004, Robert Saunders, an executive director of IT for MS & Co., was deposed. He testified that in January, 2003, MS & Co. had put into effect the email archive system. When specifically asked whether the new email archive system would include prior backups or only going forward backups, he testified that "(t)he way it was built was for going forward backup." He was next asked whether "(w)ith respect to backup dated January 2001 and previously, does Morgan Stanley have any new capabilities to restore and search e-mail?" After counsel interposed a vagueness objection, he answered "(t)here are no new capabilities to search that e-mail." That testimony was so misleading as to be false. As Saunders well knew, since he was on the team responsible, the "live" email capture portion of the archive was already operational. The migration of the historical data to the archive was expected to be completed by April of 2004, just two months after his deposition.

MS & Co.'s wrongful conduct has continued unabated.¹³ Since the February 14, 2005, hearing, it has come to light that:

- Only two whole and four partial tapes from the Brooklyn tapes had been migrated to the archive and were thus searched for the November, 2004, production. MS & Co. sought to hide this information to create the impression that all the produced documents came from the Brooklyn tapes, rather than reveal that the production came from material that had migrated from the staging area to the archive since the May, 2004, production or some other, as yet undisclosed, source.¹⁴
- Contrary to MS & Co.'s counsel's November 17, 2004, letter to CPH, none of the November, 2004 production came from the "newly found" tapes. MS & Co. carefully crafted its responses to inquiries about the November, 2004, production to avoid both disclosure of the existence of the archive and outright lying.
- The scripts MS & Co. used to process emails into its archive caused the bodies of some messages to be truncated. MS & Co. discovered this problem on February 13, 2005, but did not tell the Court about it until March 14, 2005.
- A migration issue caused about 5% of email harvested by NDCI from the backup tapes not to be captured in the archive, based on testing of a representative sample of tapes. MS & Co. told the SEC about this problem on February 24, 2005, but failed to tell CPH or the Court.
- As of June 7, 2004, only 120 out of 143 SDLT tapes had been processed into the archive.
- An analysis requested by the SEC showed that, based on a representative sample, 10% of backup tapes were overwritten after January, 2001.

¹³MS & Co. sought to use the entry of the Adverse Inference Order as a shield against further inquiry into its email abuses, arguing that the matter was closed by the Adverse Inference Order. It previously used this tactic with the SEC, arguing that the December 3, 2003 Cease and Desist Order shielded it from other sanctions for email retention failures. See Ex. 14 [February 10, 2005 letter from outside counsel for MS & Co. to SEC]

¹⁴MS & Co. argued at the March 14 and 15, 2005 hearing that there were only 13 unique, new emails contained in the November 2004 production when compared to the May 2004 production. Nine of those emails, however, were originally given to MS & Co.'s lawyers for responsiveness review by the IT staff for the May 2004 production. No explanation of why they were not produced in May was offered. This is particularly concerning given the large number of documents Ms. Gorman testified the search parameters found compared with the relatively small number found responsive and produced after review by counsel.

- A software error caused blind carbon copies not to be captured in the archive process. MS & Co. told the SEC about this problem on February 24, 2005. MS & Co. did not tell CPH or the Court.
- A software error caused the searches to be hyper case-sensitive, resulting in a failure to capture all emails. MS & Co. knew of the problem as of December, 2004, but did not tell CPH or the Court. The problem was not purportedly fixed until March, 2005.
- A script error caused the archive to have problems pulling group email in Lotus Notes.
- MS & Co. provided sworn testimony at the February 14, 2005, hearing that it had located 600 gigabytes of data, while contemporaneously telling the SEC it had located a terabyte of data. A gigabyte represents 20,000 to 100,000 pages. Incredibly, MS & Co.'s witness on this point, Allison Gorman, testified on March 14, 2005, that it was simply a "terminology" issue that she did not choose to correct because it could cause "confusion."
- CPH requested MS & Co. to produce responses it had made to third-parties in civil, criminal, or administrative proceedings describing limitations on MS & Co.'s ability to produce emails and all notices in such proceedings that MS & Co. had newly discovered backup tapes containing email. MS & Co. objected, arguing that there were over 300 separate proceedings, involving over 70 outside law firms, and that the cost of compliance would be too great. On March 2, 2005, the Court ordered the production, after shortening the time period involved, and required production within 12 hours after counsel's review of each item for responsiveness but, in any event, within 10 days. At the time MS & Co. objected to CPH's request as unduly burdensome, it knew of its Wells submission to the SEC made on February 10, 2005. Kirkland and Ellis, co-counsel here, was co-counsel for MS & Co. in that SEC proceeding. Consequently, it appears MS & Co.'s real concern was not that expressed to the Court, but was based on its realization that compliance would reveal the existence of the SEC inquiry into its email retention policy and MS & Co.'s efforts to keep the existence of that investigation secret. MS & Co. violated the Court's March 2, 2005, Order on Morgan Stanley's Responses and Objections to Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Notice to Produce at Hearing requiring it to disclose items responsive to CPH's Request for Production within 12 hours of review for responsiveness by waiting days, not hours, to produce the Wells submission.

- MS & Co.'s failure to produce or log the SEC documents violated the Court's February 3, 2005, Order.¹⁵
- James Doyle's, the Executive Director of MS & Co.'s Law Division, declaration that he did not learn of additional unsearched backup tapes until the end of October, 2004, was intended to mislead CPH and the Court. Obviously, MS & Co. sought to create the implication in the declaration that no one in the Law Division knew of the backup tapes before then. Instead, both Soo-Mi Lee, Doyle's associate, and James Cusick, Doyle's superior, knew of the tapes no later than June 7, 2004.
- In-house counsel for MS & Co. knew as of June 7, 2004, that nearly a third of the restored backup tapes did not contain email, implying they may have been recycled in violation of the December 3, 2002 Cease and Desist Order. They did not tell CPH or the Court.
- MS & Co.'s searches looked for only two types of emails. There are other types of emails that were not included in the searches. CPH did not learn of this deficiency until March 13, 2005.
- MS & Co. improperly failed to produce 125 documents required to be produced by the Court's February 3, 2005, Order Specially Setting Hearing which required limited discovery be made in connection with the February 14, 2005, hearing on the Adverse Inference Motion.
- MS & Co. improperly withheld 13 documents required to be produced by the Court's March 4, 2005, Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production.
- An additional 282 tapes were found on February 23 and 25, 2005; CPH was not told of the discovery until March 13, 2005.
- An additional 3,536 tapes were discovered on February 23, 2005, in a security room.
- An additional 2,718 tapes were found at Recall, MS & Co.'s third party off-site storage vendor, on March 3, 2005.
- An additional 389 tapes were found March 2 through March 5, 2005. CPH was not told ¹⁵The Court previously rejected MS & Co.'s argument that the January 14, 2005, email exchange between its outside and in-house counsel was not required to be produced under the February 3, 2005, Order Specially Setting Hearing because it referred to the "documents issue" and not specifically to the backup tapes. See March 16, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion to Disqualify Plaintiff's Counsel Searcy, Denney, Scarola, Barnhart & Shipley, P.A. and Jenner & Block, LLC. MS & Co.'s insistence on a narrow interpretation of the February 3, 2005, Order is not particularly sympathetic, when the only reason that Order confined production to the backup tape issue was because MS & Co. had failed to notify the Court of the other deficiencies in its certificate of compliance.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE
INSTRUCTION

THIS CAUSE came before the Court March 21, 2005 on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, with both counsel present. Based on the proceedings before the Court, it is

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction is Denied, without prejudice to MS & Co.'s right to present evidence about CPH's email retention practices and its failure to direct that emails related to the Sunbeam transaction be saved and CPH's right to present evidence of its offer to have a third-party vendor given access to retrieve emails from CPH's system, without reference to discovery requests or court orders, and for either counsel to argue in favor of whatever inferences that evidence may support. See Jordan v. Masters, 821 So. 2d 342 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002) cf.; Amlan, Inc. v. Detroit Diesel Corp., 651 So. 2d 701 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995). If either party intends to present evidence on the issue of CPH's email retention practices or third-party vendor offer it shall, within 5 business days, serve on opposing counsel (i) the name, address, and business title of any witness expected to testify, together with a fair summary of his or her expected testimony; (ii) a designation of any deposition testimony the designating party intends to offer on this issue; and (iii) copies of any documents to be referred to by a witness or offered into evidence on this issue.

DONE AND ORDERED in West Palm Beach, Palm Beach County, Florida this 23rd day of March, 2005.

MORGAN STANLEY'S NOTICE OF COMPLAINE WITH COURT ORDER

DATED MARCH 23, 2005

Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley"), by and through its undersigned counsel, hereby gives notice of compliance with this Court's Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction dated March 23, 2005 and discloses the following witnesses and documents:

WITNESSES

Steven L. Fasman

Defendant will question Mr. Fasman about email policies at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. and its affiliated subsidiaries (collectively "MAFCO"); the practices regarding preservation, deletion, purging, and destruction of email at MAFCO; the history of MAFCO's knowledge of potential and actual litigation involving the subject matter of this case (collectively "Sunbeam litigation"); the failure to preserve, recover, restore, or save MAFCO email in response to notice of Sunbeam litigation; the destruction, erasing, or overwriting of MAFCO email after receiving notice of Sunbeam litigation; and Plaintiff's production or failure to produce email in response to discovery requests in this litigation.

John F. Ashley

Mr. Ashley is the Chief Technology Officer of CoreFacts, LLC, and an expert in computer forensics. His Curriculum Vitae is attached as Exhibit A to this Notice. Mr. Ashley will testify regarding the email software and backup systems in use at MAFCO since 1997; the ability to recover email from overwritten backup tapes; the email backup and destruction policies at MAFCO; and the impact of those policies on the ability/inability to recover MAFCO email from 1997 and 1998 from the existing MAFCO backup tapes.

IN THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY,
FLORIDA

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,
Plaintiff,

vs.

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,
Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION TO CLARIFY THE PROPER SCOPE OF THE LIABILITY AND PUNITIVE PHASES OF TRIAL

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") respectfully moves for an order clarifying the proper scope of the liability and punitive phases of trial in this case.¹ In light of the Court's March 23, 2005 Order (the "Default Order"), granting in part Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ("CPH") motion for an entry of default judgment, only two discrete issues remain to be tried in the liability phase of this trial: (1) CPH's justifiable reliance on Dunlap/Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley's allegedly fraudulent statements, and (2) the extent of the actual damages suffered by CPH as a result of its purported reliance. See Order On CPH's Renewed Motion For Entry Of Default Judgment at 16-17 (Mar. 23, 2005). Accordingly, this Court should admit only evidence relevant to these issues in the liability phase, instruct the jury that the other necessary elements of CPH's claims have been resolved in favor of CPH, and proceed to the punitive phase if and only if the jury finds that CPH has prevailed on all of the elements of its claims, including reliance and damages, by clear and convincing evidence.

¹ This Motion also responds, in part, to Plaintiff's Motion In Limine No. 28 To Clarify When Evidence Is Admissible To Show Plaintiff's Entitlement To And Amount Of Punitive Damages (filed Mar. 18, 2005) ("CPH MIL No. 28"). Morgan Stanley was unable to fully respond to CPH MIL No. 28 due to time constraints and will instead respond by oral argument this afternoon.

The Court in turn should not read Attachment A to the Default Order ("Attachment A") or its statement of findings regarding Morgan Stanley's discovery conduct ("Discovery Statement") to the jury in the liability phase. Reading these documents to the jury would constitute an impermissible double sanction against Morgan Stanley for its discovery conduct. If these documents are read to the jury at all, the Court should only admit them at the punitive phase, during which Morgan Stanley has the right to present on its behalf evidence relevant to the jury's determination of the amount of punitive damages to award, if any.²

ARGUMENT

I. BECAUSE OF THE COURT'S DEFAULT ORDER, THE SOLE ISSUES FOR THE JURY IN THE LIABILITY PHASE ARE JUSTIFIABLE RELIANCE AND ACTUAL DAMAGES.

A. A Finding In Favor Of CPH, Based On Clear And Convincing Evidence, On Either One Of Its Claims Is Both Necessary And Sufficient To Trigger The Punitive Phase.

CPH's two claims are for intentional torts. Under Florida law, proof of an intentional tort by clear and convincing evidence is sufficient to allow the jury to consider whether to award punitive damages. Thus, in the liability phase of the trial—where the only issues are Morgan Stanley's liability and CPH's entitlement to punitive damages—there is no need to introduce evidence other than that necessary to prove the essential elements of the claims. Evidence of ² Morgan Stanley vociferously objects to the sanctions imposed by the Court in its Default Order and its March 1, 2005 Order On Coleman (Parent) Holding, Inc.'s Motion For Adverse Inference Instruction Due To Morgan Stanley's Destructions Of E-Mails And Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance With The Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, And Motion For Additional Relief And Order On Plaintiff's Motion To Compel Further Discovery Regarding Morgan Stanley's Destruction And Non-Production Of E-Mails ("Adverse Inference Order"). This Motion is submitted solely for the purpose of proposing a structure for the severely limited trial that will take place if the Court declines to reconsider its earlier orders. Morgan Stanley preserves all rights to appeal the Default Order and the Adverse Inference Order.

"aggravation," relating to the "badness" of Morgan Stanley's conduct and the appropriate amount of any award should be left to the punitive phase.

CPH appears to concede that because this case involves claims of intentional tort, rather than negligence, the only factual issues for the jury to decide in the liability phase are those relating to the elements of the underlying tort claims. See Plaintiff's Motion In Limine No. 28 To Clarify When Evidence Is Admissible To Show Plaintiff's Entitlement To And Amount Of Punitive Damages at 4 (filed Mar. 18, 2005) ("CPH MIL No. 28") ("If CPH proves its case against Morgan Stanley, the question of whether Morgan Stanley should pay punitive damages automatically goes to the jury."). As CPH's cited authorities note, "[a] claim of fraud sufficient to support compensatory damages is sufficient to support a claim for punitive damages being presented to the jury." Lou Bachrodt Chevrolet, Inc. v. Savage, 570 So. 2d 306, 308 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990); see CPH MIL No. 28 at 4-5 (citing First Interstate Dev. Corp. v. Ablanado, 511 So. 2d 536, 539 (Fla. 1987); Ingram v. Pettit, 340 So. 2d 922, 924 (Fla. 1976)). Thus, only evidence directly relevant to the underlying elements of the claims may be admitted at the first phase of the trial; the Court may not admit any evidence that either party wishes to introduce relating to the factors bearing on the jury's determinations as to whether to award punitive damages and if so in what amount.

Moreover, this Court's Default Order purported to "establish[] for all purposes in this action" allegations putatively relevant to all essential elements of PHC's claims except two: (1) PHC's justifiable reliance on the alleged fraudulent statements of Dunlap/Sunbeam, and (2) the amount of actual damages suffered by CPH as a result of its purported reliance. Default Order at 16-17. Accordingly, these are the only issues with respect to Morgan Stanley's liability that remain to be tried in the liability phase of the trial in this case.

Florida law also expressly requires that the jury's findings on these issues be based on "clear and convincing evidence" to the extent they constitute the requisite finding of conduct that subjects a defendant to punitive damages. See Fla. Stat. § 768.72 ("A defendant may be held liable for punitive damages only if the trier of fact, based on clear and convincing evidence, finds that the defendant was personally guilty of intentional misconduct or gross negligence."). Accordingly, if the jury returns a liability verdict in favor of CPH, it should be required also to render a separate verdict stating whether its liability verdict was based on clear and convincing evidence. An answer in the affirmative would trigger the punitive phase; an answer in the negative would not.

B. Attachment A And The Discovery Statement Are Relevant—If At All—Only To The Jury's Punitive Phase Decision.

The liability phase in this case begins and ends with the two issues left untouched by this Court's Default Order: justifiable reliance and damages. In this regard, the Court should not read Attachment A to the jury in the liability phase. The Default Order plainly relieves CPH of its burden of proving all elements of its claims other than reliance and compensatory damages. Attachment A contains numerous inflammatory allegations that are completely irrelevant to what is left of the liability phase after the Default Order, and any conceivable probative value they might have is substantially outweighed by the unfair prejudice that will result. See Fla. Stat. § 90.403. Reading Exhibit A to the jury will prevent Morgan Stanley from obtaining a fair trial on the remaining elements of reliance and damages. For the same reasons, CPH should not be permitted to introduce any evidence in the liability phase except evidence directly bearing on reliance or damages.

The Discovery Statement also should not be admitted in the liability phase. The alleged discovery abuses have no bearing whatsoever on whether CPH justifiably relied on the purported until March 13, 2005.

- On March 4, 2005, the Court entered its Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production, which ordered MS & Co. to produce by 3:00 p.m. on March 7, 2005, all items within its care, custody, or control dealing with the Riel/SEC investigation, other than documents representing communications between or among MS & Co. inside and outside counsel that were not copied to anyone other than counsel. MS & Co. sought to discredit Riel and thus distance itself from the false June 23, 2004 certificate of compliance; in doing so, it sought to hide Riel's whistle blower status and the existence of an SEC investigation into whether MS & Co. employees sought kick backs from third party vendors; whether MS & Co. employees were improperly pressured into dealing with third-party vendors who may provide business to MS & Co.; and whether MS & Co. continued to overwrite backup tapes contrary to the SEC's December 3, 2002, Cease and Desist Order.
- A script error prevented the insertion of some emails into the archive. MS & Co. produced over 4,600 pages of emails on March 21, 2005, some of which it suggested may have been located on correction of the error; alternatively, it suggested the emails may have been located by NDCI as part of its efforts to verify MS & Co.'s searches.

MS & Co.'s discovery abuses have not been confined to its email production.

William Strong is a MS & Co. managing director and was one of the principal players for it in the Sunbeam deal. He took credit for the fees generated. On May 9, 2003, CPH requested a copy of "(a)ll documents concerning employment contracts, performance evaluations, and/or personnel files (including without limitation any documents that describe or discuss [his] training, experience, competence, and accomplishments) . . ." MS & Co. asserted that the requested documents were not relevant and that production "would unnecessarily infringe on the privacy interests of [Strong]." On March 15, 2004, the Court ordered MS & Co. to produce "(a)ll references (positive or negative) to [Strong's] truthfulness, veracity, or moral turpitude." Some portions of Strong's evaluations were produced in response to that order. Those evaluations noted Strong's colleagues' reservations about his candor and ethics. Two of his evaluators, Joseph Perella and Tarek Abdel-Meguid, were deposed, when some relatively vague testimony about the bases for those conclusions was offered. It now appears Strong was facing criminal prosecution in Italy for complicity in bribery while he was working on the Sunbeam transaction, which his evaluators knew, and that MS & Co. purposely

withheld that information from CPH and the Court.¹⁶

Even once CPH independently discovered evidence of Strong's indictment in Italy, MS & Co. sought to shield its files from discovery. It claimed that virtually all of the documents it had were privileged under joint defense agreements in place between it, Strong, and Saloman Brothers, Strong's employer at the time of the incident. As the Court's March 10, 2005 Order Following In Camera Inspection (Strong) details, the documents MS & Co. relied on to support that position, and sought to prevent CPH from obtaining, reflect no such agreement.

The other discovery abuses and misrepresentations by MS & Co. other than those involving its email production practices are outlined in CPH's Chronology of Discovery Abuses by Defendant served March 1, 2005, and would take a volume to recite. They include:

- failing to provide the information retained by MS & Co.'s internal document management system pertaining to MS & Co.'s work for Sunbeam; falsely representing to the Court that no useful information was contained in that information; and producing a Rule 1.310 representative who had made an insufficient inquiry into authenticity, business record status, and authorship of documents; see February 28, 2005 Order on CPH's Motion to Deem Certain Documents Admissible and for Sanctions due to Morgan Stanley's Disregard of Court Order;
- when faced with contempt proceedings for violating the Stipulated Confidentiality Order by providing a copy of a settlement agreement between CPH and Arthur Andersen to other counsel, representing to the Court that the law firm of Kellogg, Huber was retained to handle the "Andersen aspects" of this litigation because of a conflict between Andersen and Kirkland & Ellis; Mark Hansen, a partner at Kellogg, Huber, testified that his firm was hired as co-counsel for all aspects of the case;
- providing answers to interrogatories signed by a corporate representative who performed insufficient verification of the responses;

¹⁶MS & Co. originally argued that documents concerning the Italian proceedings were not in Strong's "personnel file" and so were not required to be produced in response to CPH's initial request. MS & Co.'s practice of filing damaging information about an employee other than in his personnel file and then claiming it was not included in the request is about as convincing as its argument that, since it has a corporate directive not to keep drafts of documents once they are in final form, document drafts cannot be business records exempt from hearsay because they are not "kept in the course of a regularly conducted business activity." See Fla. Stat. §90.803 (6) (a). In any event, there was no excuse for not producing its records of the Italian proceedings once the Court's March 15, 2004 Order was entered.

- routinely asserting unfounded privilege claims;¹⁷ and
- failing to timely comply with the Court's orders; for example, MS & Co. did not produce Strong's 1994 Performance Evaluation until the afternoon of March 15, 2005, though it was obviously included in the Court's March 15, 2004 Order. The failure cannot be excused as oversight since, when CPH specifically asked for the 1994 evaluation in the spring of 2004, MS & Co.'s counsel said it was withheld as non-responsive; see, also, Ex. 197, 198.

In sum, MS & Co. has deliberately and contumaciously violated numerous discovery orders, including the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order; February 3, 2005 Order Specially Setting Hearing; and the March 4, 2005 Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production. At the February 14, 2005, hearing on CPH's Adverse Inference Motion, it chose to hide information about its violations and coach witnesses to avoid any mention of additional, undisclosed problems with its compliance with the Agreed Order. Implicit in the requirement that MS & Co. certify compliance with the Agreed Order was the requirement to disclose impediments to its ability to so certify. As outlined in this Order, MS & Co. employees, and not just counsel, have participated in the discovery abuses. The prejudice to CPH from these failings cannot be cured. Even if all the script errors have been located and corrected, and MS & Co. has failed to show they have, and even if all of the email backup tapes have now been located, and MS & Co. has failed to show they have, the searches cannot be completed in time. The other discovery abuses outlined call into doubt all of MS & Co.'s discovery responses. The judicial system cannot function this way. Based on the foregoing and on the Court's March 1, 2005 Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment is Granted, in part. See Robinson v. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 887 So. 2d 328 (Fla. 2004); Mercer v. Raine, 443 So. 2d 944 (Fla. 1983); Precision Tune Auto Care, Inc. v.

¹⁷For example, MS & Co. produced over 260 documents dealing with the Strong investigation over which it had previously claimed privilege once the Court announced its intention to conduct an in camera review; the Court found another 200 documents were not privileged after conducting its review, by its March 10, 2005 Order.

A copy of a redacted Amended Complaint is attached as Exhibit A. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the Court shall read to the jury a Statement similar to that attached as Exhibit A to the Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.’s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley’s Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley’s Noncompliance with the Court’s April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, but incorporating the relevant additional findings of this Order, and the jury will be instructed that it may consider those facts in determining whether MS & Co. sought to conceal its offensive conduct when determining whether an award of punitive damages is appropriate. See General Motors Corp. v. McGee, 837 So. 2d 1010 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002), rev. den. 851 So. 2d 728 (Fla. 2003). Counsel are each invited to submit proposed Statements. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that CPH shall be entitled to an award of reasonable fees and costs incurred as a result of the Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment and the violations of Court orders recited herein. The amount shall be determined at an evidentiary hearing following trial. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the pro hac vice admission of Thomas Clare is revoked. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the portions of CPH's Motion for Correction and Clarification of Order on CPH's Motion for Adverse Inference that seek to amend the body of that Order to correct clerical and spelling errors, as agreed to by counsel, is Granted, and the corrections deemed made to the body of the Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, by interlineation. In all other respects the remainder of the Motion for Correction and Clarification is declared moot.

1 the jury the implications, the adverse
2 inference --

3 THE COURT: You're not asking for an
4 instruction? You're just saying you want to
5 present evidence about the e-mail retention
6 policy and the failure to deviate from it in
7 this case, and then argue to the jury that they
8 should draw an adverse inference from that
9 evidence?

10 MR. LANCASTER: Yes, with a caveat; that is,
11 we're not asking for an instruction. We believe
12 that, the way we read this law, that would be 13 viewed with close scrutiny, and it would be --
14 I'm not sure it would be viable.

15 But Your Honor has in its order, in the
16 initial order that dealt with our e-mail
17 destruction, indicated that the path that it
18 intended to follow, which was to read a
19 statement to the jury, that there would be no
20 further instruction given, and no other evidence
21 put out.

22 And we believe that if Your Honor is going
23 to read such a statement to the jury, then under 24 the facts of this case and the law, as Your 25 Honor is applying to this case, that we feel

042438

1 that Your Honor should read a similar statement
2 of facts.

3 And we are going to tender to Your Honor,
4 and we did a revised version of that that should
5 also be read. Because when it is the issue of
6 the loss of e-mails which Your Honor has already
7 indicated supplies the essential element, it's
8 critical, then the parties do stand in that
9 respect on the same footing.

10 In fact, Your Honor, in all due respect, I
11 would submit that we stand on better footing.
12 Because while we have -- and perhaps we have not 13 done a good job of it and perhaps there have 14 been foot faults -- we have restored some
15 quantum of e-mails.

16 And I know that this exasperates Your Honor,
17 but it is --

18 THE COURT: No, I guess it goes back, quite 19 honestly, to when one of Plaintiff's points in
20 the motion for the default judgment is Morgan
21 Stanley seems wholly unwilling to admit that 22 it's committed egregious violations of the 23 agreed order. And to me this is fundamentally
24 different.

25 The e-mail issues here between Coleman and 042439

1 Morgan Stanley are fundamentally different. And
2 I have no problem at all with Morgan Stanley's
3 arguing about how Coleman dealt with its e-mails
4 in this case and what evidentiary value that may
5 or may not have for the jury. But in all
6 honesty, I'm offended that you would attempt to
7 equate the two. Because I think they're totally
8 unrelated.

9 MR. LANCASTER: And I accept that from Your
10 Honor. And I'm not doing it from the standpoint
11 of, necessarily, conduct, but I'm attempting to 12 argue to Your Honor that if you're looking at 13 sort of body of evidence, what is available for 14 a jury to consider? There is e-mail as a result
15 of both, I guess, discovery and discovery orders
16 by this Court, and whatever else mix there is 17 that brought these e-mails to potentially the 18 jury.

19 But on the Coleman side, there is no e-mail
20 off those backup tapes, because they brazenly
21 walk into court and say, we just destroyed it
22 all.

23 So in that respect we believe that given the 24 Court's -- the way you're applying the law of 25 the case, statement of facts you're going to

STIPULATION REGARDING DRAFT EXPERT REPORTS

Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. (collectively "Morgan Stanley"), by and through their undersigned attorneys, and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. (collectively "CPH"), by and through their undersigned attorneys, stipulate as follows:

1. Both Morgan Stanley and CPH expect that their respective expert witnesses will prepare and produce expert reports in connection with this action.
2. Counsel for Morgan Stanley and CPH have conferred, and have agreed that the potential discovery of drafts of expert reports, and other documents and communications related to such reports, would add time and cost to the process of preparing such reports, and thus have determined that the parties have a mutual interest in ensuring that such drafts, related documents, or any communications between the parties, their respective counsel, and their respective consulting and/or testifying expert regarding any such draft, are not subject to discovery in this action.

3. Consequently, the parties stipulate that:
- a. The drafts of any report prepared in connection with this action, by any consulting and/or testifying expert retained by either party, or any employee or agent of any such expert, will not be discoverable or admissible in evidence in connection with this action. Such drafts will include any revisions to, or mark-ups of, any draft of any report prepared in connection with this action.
- b. Any communications between the parties, their respective counsel, and their respective consulting and/or testifying experts in this action, insofar as that communication relates to any draft of any expert report, as discussed above, also will not be discoverable or admissible in evidence in connection with this action.

January 2001 to present - CoreFacts LLC, Chief Technology Officer

Responsible for designing, equipping and supervising one of the largest corporate computer forensics laboratories on the East Coast. Forensic computer hardware configured to optimize leading forensic software.

Case Studies

- Representation of plaintiff corporation in a contractual dispute with federal government requiring the restoration of 40 back-up tapes held on three different types of magnetic media, containing the Emails and user created data of a staff of 160 persons. The data had been created over a 30-month period and total data size was 183 gigabytes. Three Email packages, MS Outlook, Netscape and ccMail were successfully investigated.
- Defense representation in a software trade secrets dispute requiring the capture of 14 terabytes of data within a 45-day period, without interrupting client's workflow. Data from 320 NT workstations, 90 NT laptops and 15 servers was forensically captured. In excess of 300 search terms were run across the encapsulated data, all relevant Email folders and electronic documents were hosted on secure web servers and reviewed by more than 50 attorneys throughout the US.

- Plaintiff representation in a breach of fiduciary duty, contract, trade secret and misappropriation of confidential information case requiring the capture of data from five NT laptops and the restoration of six months backup of Email data for five former employees.
- Plaintiff representation in a financial mismanagement case requiring the imaging and investigation of 71 laptop drives.

1998 to July 2000 - Greater Manchester Police, Computer Examination Unit, Unit Head

- Responsible for forensic data retrieval from all computers used in crime, covering a population of 3.5 million people.
- Managed workload increase from 153 cases in 1997 to 263 cases in 1999.
- Designed and installed Microsoft NT4 networks of investigation machines.
- Given additional responsibility for the forensic examination of all computers seized in North Wales and the Isle of Man.
- Wide experience of covert intrusion investigations involving imaging, monitoring and surveillance techniques.
- Employed on a consultative basis to manage the establishment of a number of computer forensics units for a variety of UK police forces.
- Provided vulnerability advice to various public bodies.
- Considerable fraud investigation experience involving the majority of accountancy software packages.
- Advised and assisted in technical interviews of computer skilled offenders on many occasions.

1996 to 1998 - GMP Computer Examination Unit, Senior Forensic Investigator

- Managed the accreditation of the Unit to the internationally accepted ISO 9002 standard.
- Designed and Installed a Novell network of investigation machines.
- Interviewed, appointed and trained forensic investigation detectives.

1989-1996 - GMP Obscene Publications Unit, Supervisor / Investigator

- The first police officer in the UK to investigate computer pornography.
- Responsible for data retrieval from pornographers' and pedophiles' computer systems.
- Investigated all forms of technical crime involving computers: hacking, cracking, virus writing, phreaking, mobile phone cloning and credit card duplication.
- Lead investigator in a number of international obscenity and pedophile cases.

042448

Expert Witness Testimony

- Expert witness in the investigation and prosecution of Dr. Harold Shipman for the murder of 15 patients. Testified in relation to 12 of the 15 victims regarding the forensic investigation of a complex computer network that revealed back dated and falsely inserted records leading to the identification of victims who were subsequently exhumed. Provided 500 exhibits and 120 witness statements relating to the suspicious deaths of patients. Shipman found guilty on all counts.
Filmed and interviewed in the UK, by Ed Bradley, for CBS's 60 Minutes regarding the computer forensics skills deployed in this case. The program was screened in January and June 2001.
Filmed and interviewed in the UK, by The Learning Channel regarding the computer forensics skills deployed in this case. The program was screened in the US in March 2001.
- Expert witness for the prosecution in a trial involving the large-scale theft of hard drives from Quantum. Performed a forensic financial analysis of the suspect's corporate server accounting packages. Investigation revealed a wide distribution network throughout Europe. Testified in Wolverhampton Crown Court over a five-day period. All five defendants found guilty.
- Expert witness for the prosecution in a trial involving the theft of corporate computers throughout the north of England. Conducted forensic analysis of residual data found on a large number of re-formatted stolen hard disk drives assisted in identifying the original owners of recovered computer equipment. Testified in Manchester Crown Court over a five-day period. Defendant found guilty.
- Expert witness for the prosecution in a trial involving the running of an electronic bulletin board system that was the UK gateway to an international network involved in the worldwide electronic distribution of obscene material. Testified in Maidstone Crown Court. Two defendants found guilty.
- Expert witness for the prosecution in a trial involving the blackmail of 17 individuals. Forensic examination of a word processing system revealed systematic threat letters held in hidden and limbo files. Testified at Manchester Crown Court. Two defendants found guilty.
- Expert witness for the prosecution in a trial involving international disk based distribution of obscene material. Testified at Swindon Crown Court. Defendant found guilty.
- Expert witness for the prosecution in a North Wales case involving distribution of pedophilic material via the Internet. Forensic examination of a computer hard drive refuted defense testimony that an unknown person had used Back Orifice 2000 and Netbus to gain control of the defendant's machine.

Notable Cases

- On behalf of the Securities and Futures Authority, assisted Guernsey Police and a team of forensic accountants, in the forensic on-site imaging and investigation of two computer networks comprising a total of 22 machines in relation to the Sumitomo Corporation $2.6 billion copper fraud.
- On behalf of the FBI, carried out UK Home Office authorized house searches relating to the recovery of computer related data from laptops and other storage media in the possession of two Libyan males suspected of involvement in the bombing of US Embassies in Africa.
- On behalf of the Isle of Man Police, investigated a laptop computer that had been surrendered by the user who had found that he was being anonymously blackmailed via Email. Forensic examination uncovered evidence that the user had gained employment within the IT section of a major offshore bank and had accessed customer's private identification information, which was then provided to a criminal group in Belgium. This group had subsequently blackmailed him via an Email service provider in Texas when he had refused to assist them further with their criminal activity.
- In conjunction with the US Customs and Postal Service, forensically investigated the electronic contents of 18 hard drives used in Denmark to run two pedophile electronic bulletin board systems. Recovered evidence led to the identification of individuals who had downloaded pedophilia in the US and the UK.
- Forensic examination of two encrypted hard drives found evidence that led to the simultaneous worldwide arrest of 120 pedophiles. Many of the individuals involved were exchanging digital images of their actual abuse of children via secure web servers, one of which was known as Wonderland and was located in Boston, Massachusetts.
- Forensic examination of a suspect's computer revealed 35 live viruses and plans to infect viruses in a number of UK corporations. Further analysis revealed the breach of a US based grocery company's customer credit card database, where customer credit card details had been posted on bulletin boards and used by group members for international communication. This led to the simultaneous arrest of five individuals who were collectively known as ArcV, a high profile virus-writing group.
- Forensic examination of a re-formatted hard drive revealed more than 100 fraudulent Internet credit card purchase transactions and the distribution network for the illegally purchased goods.
- On behalf of New Scotland Yard gained access to a number of electronic bulletin boards that were distributing pedophilia. Subsequently provided evidence and assistance to their technical experts and the Metropolitan Police Computer Crime Unit.

US Expert Deposition and Testimony

December 2000, selected as an independent computer forensics expert by the Court of Alexandria, Virginia, to assist in an intellectual property dispute that centered on verifying the electronic time and date stamp information of the plaintiff's software prototypes and supporting electronic presentations. Subsequently deposed at length by the plaintiff's attorney. Four days into trial, the case settled at the plaintiff's request, a day prior to my scheduled testimony.

Dr. Bradley S. Fordham v. OneSoft Corporation, et al.,
Civil Action No. 00-1078-A (Eastern District of Virginia)

June 2001, testified and cross-examined as the defendant's computer forensics expert, before the judicial court of Harris County, Texas, in support of a defendant corporation's motion to mirror image and investigate the plaintiff's electronic storage devices.
Motion granted.

Gyrodata Inc. v. Baker Hughes Inc. and Baker Hughes Inteq.,
Cause No. 2000-40391 (Harris County, Texas 127th Judicial District)

August 2001, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, deposed as the plaintiff's computer forensics expert in a multi defendant unsolicited bulk email litigation. I provided expert opinion based on my analysis of more than 125,000 member complaints.

AOL v. Netvision Audiotext, dba Cyber Entertainment Network, et al.,
Civil Action No. 99-1186-A (Eastern District of Virginia)

September 2001, testified and cross-examined as the defendant's computer forensics expert, before the judicial court of Harris County, Texas, in support of a defendant corporation's rebuttal of a motion alleging spoliation of electronic evidence.

Gyrodata Inc. v. Baker Hughes Inc. and Baker Hughes Inteq.,
Cause No. 2000-40391 (Harris County, Texas 127th Judicial District)

October 2001, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, deposed as the defendants' and counter-plaintiffs' computer forensics expert in a breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, theft of trade secrets and violation of the Electronic Communications Privacy Act litigation.

Beyond Technology Corp. v. WebMethods, Inc., and K. Alyssa Berg,
Civil Action No. 01-655-A (Eastern District of Virginia)

October 2001, 53rd District Court of Travis County, Texas, deposed as the plaintiff's computer forensics expert in an employee solicitation and theft of trade secrets case.

Advanced Fibre Communications v. Calix Networks, Inc. and Tony Roach Cause No. GN102712 (53rd District Court of Travis County, Texas)

042452

June 2002, United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Fort Myers Division, deposed as the defendants' and counter-plaintiffs' computer forensics expert in a defamation and tortious interference with business relationships litigation.
Gary Van Meer, and Palm Harbor Medical, Inc. v. Stryker Sales Corp.,
Civil Action No. 2:00-CV-454-FTM-29D (Middle District of Florida)

June 2002, testified and cross-examined as a computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Fort Myers Division, in support of defendants' and counter-plaintiffs' motion alleging spoliation of electronic evidence.
Gary Van Meer, and Palm Harbor Medical, Inc. v. Stryker Sales Corp.,
Civil Action No. 2:00-CV-454-FTM-29D (Middle District of Florida)

September 2002, testified and cross-examined as the plaintiff's computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, Miami Division, in support of plaintiff's motion for contempt alleging spoliation of electronic evidence and support of plaintiff's rebuttal of defendant's motion to dismiss preliminary injunction and temporary restraining order.
Plaintiff's motion for contempt upheld, with the defendant being ordered to pay all of the plaintiff's attorney's and expert's fees which were incurred during the investigation and presentation of the contempt motion.
Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts B.V., Four Seasons Hotels (Barbados) Limited, Four Seasons Hotels Limited, and Four Seasons Caracas, C.A. v. Consorcio Barr, S.A., and Carlos L. Barrera,
Case No. 01-4572 CIV-MOORE

October 2002, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, deposed as the plaintiff's computer forensics expert in a litigation concerning unsolicited bulk email. I provided expert opinion concerning the persons responsible for the transmission of tens of millions of unsolicited bulk commercial emails.
Verizon Internet Services, Inc. v. Alan Ralsky, et al.,
Civil Action No. 01-0432-A (Eastern District of Virginia)

October 2002, testified as the defendant's computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Fort Myers Division, in response to plaintiffs' motion alleging spoliation of electronic evidence.
Gary Van Meer, and Palm Harbor Medical, Inc. v. Stryker Sales Corp.,
Civil Action No. 2:00-CV-454-FTM-29D (Middle District of Florida)

November 2002, testified and cross-examined as the defendant's computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Fort Myers Division, in rebuttal of plaintiffs' computer forensics expert's evidence supporting a motion alleging spoliation of electronic evidence.
Gary Van Meer, and Palm Harbor Medical, Inc. v. Stryker Sales Corp.,
Civil Action No. 2:00-CV-454-FTM-29D (Middle District of Florida)

042453

January 2003, testified and cross-examined, at trial, as plaintiff's computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, Miami Division. Testimony encompassed Computer Fraud and Abuse, Electronic Communication Interception, and Trade Secret Theft.

Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts B.V., Four Seasons Hotels (Barbados) Limited, Four Seasons Hotels Limited, and Four Seasons Caracas, C.A. v. Consorcio Barr, S.A., and Carlos L. Barrera,
Case No. 01-4572 CIV-MOORE

January 2003, rebuttal testimony and cross-examination, at trial, as plaintiff's computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, Miami Division. Testimony encompassed Computer Fraud and Abuse, Electronic Communication Interception, and Trade Secret Theft.

Rebuttal testimony proved that one of the defendant's key electronic exhibits was not original, but had been fabricated in an attempt to deceive the court.

Final Judgement issued May 9, 2003 awarded plaintiffs $4,877,600.00 in damages.

Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts B.V., Four Seasons Hotels (Barbados) Limited, Four Seasons Hotels Limited, and Four Seasons Caracas, C.A. v. Consorcio Barr, S.A., and Carlos L. Barrera,
Case No. 01-4572 CIV-MOORE

May 2003, United States District Court for the District of Columbia, deposed as the defendant's computer forensics expert in a litigation alleging racial bias and discrimination.

Provided testimony in relation to the alteration, fabrication and authentication of email. The plaintiff withdrew his allegations a short time later and the case settled.

Timothy Dean and Michelle Dean v. Starwood Hotels & Resorts Worldwide Inc., d/b/a The St. Regis Washington by Starwood Hotels and Resorts
Civil Action No. 1:02CV00867

July 2003, testified and cross-examined, at trial, as plaintiff's computer forensics expert, before the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Alexandria Division. Testimony encompassed tortious interference with business relationships, breach of contract, civil conspiracy and spoliation of data.

Plaintiff's awarded in excess of $565,000 in damages.

CACI Dynamic Systems, Inc. v. Delphinus Engineering, Inc., and James R. Everitt, Jr., Civil Action No. 02-1454-A

January 2004, testified and cross-examined, in arbitration, as claimant's computer forensics expert, before an Arbitration Tribunal of the American Arbitration Association in Charleston, South Carolina. Testimony encompassed tortious interference with business relationships, breach of contract and spoliation of data. Arbitrator subsequently awarded claimant $10,567,478 and reimbursement of claimant's arbitration costs.

CACI Dynamic Systems, Inc. v. V. Allen Spicer
AAA Case No. 16 160 00725 02

042154

March 2004, United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, deposed as the defendant's computer forensics expert in a litigation alleging unfair dismissal. Provided testimony in relation to the creation and authentication of a document produced in paper form by the plaintiff.

Michelle Bell v. Davis & Partners, LLC and Wolf Management & Leasing, LLC,
Civil Action No. 03CV4175

November 2004, testified and cross-examined as plaintiff's computer forensics expert, at a Preliminary Injunction Hearing, before the United States District Court for the District of Maryland, Northern Division. Testimony encompassed the defendants' co-ordinated use of data destruction utilities to prevent the discovery of the plaintiff's stolen source code and proprietary information.

Bowe Bell + Howell Company v. Document Services Inc., and Albert M. Harris et al,
Civil Action No. 043418

November 2004, testified and cross-examined as plaintiff's computer forensics expert, in rebuttal to counter defendants' testimony and provide pattern analysis to show the extent of defendants' data destruction efforts, at a Preliminary Injunction Hearing, before the United States District Court for the District of Maryland, Northern Division.

The Judge granted the plaintiff broad injunctive relief and found that the defendants had intentionally destroyed relevant documents and indicated that an adverse inference instruction will likely be given to the jury as a sanction.

Bowe Bell + Howell Company v. Document Services Inc., and Albert M. Harris et al,
Civil Action No. 043418

March 2005, provided testimony, in arbitration, as respondent's computer forensics expert, before an Arbitration Tribunal of the American Arbitration Association in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Testimony encompassed the restoration of Lotus Notes e-mail and attachments from multiple back-up tapes.

Boston Power Group v. Alstom Power, Inc.
AAA Case No. 14-Y-110-01410-03

March 2005, testified and cross-examined as plaintiff's computer forensics expert, at a Preliminary Injunction Hearing, before the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division. Testimony encompassed the defendants' theft of trade secrets and proprietary information and the defendants' spoliation of evidence. The Judge granted the plaintiff broad injunctive relief and scheduled a spoliation hearing for April 2005.

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,

Defendant.

Material Redacted Without Prior Determination of Protectability by Court

MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION IN LIMINE NO. 13 TO STRIKE THE EXPERT OPINION
OF SAMUEL J. KURSH AS UNTIMELY AND CUMULATIVE

As part of its ongoing expert "shell game," Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") has designated three experts on damages, including two experts devoted solely to the valuation of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") as of March 1998: Samuel J. Kursh, D.B.A. and Michael J. Wagner. If the Court allows CPH to introduce both of these Coleman valuation experts, Morgan Stanley will be unduly prejudiced, most particularly by the delayed and incomplete disclosure of Mr. Kursh's opinions despite a trial that is only a few weeks away. Moreover, while CPH cumulatively offers two experts on the same, exact issue, the experts' methodologies are inconsistent and they arrive at wholly different per share values of Coleman. CPH should not be allowed to avoid disclosing the expert valuation on which it will rely at trial. It is time for CPH to show its cards.

To end these tactics, the Court should strike Mr. Kursh's opinions. Mr. Kursh has been unavailable to file a rebuttal report or sit for a deposition throughout most of December and January, thereby rendering it impossible for Morgan Stanley to depose Mr. Kursh, to begin the lengthy deposition designation process and to engage in extended briefing on the objectionable aspects of Mr. Kursh's expert opinion as of the date of this filing. Given the practical realities of Mr. Kursh's current health situation, the cumulative (but conflicting) nature of his testimony, the fact that CPH has another expert ready to testify on the same subject matter, and the rapidly approaching trial date, Morgan Stanley respectfully submits that Mr. Kursh's expert opinion should be stricken as a matter of law. See Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.200(b)(4) ("[T]he court itself may or shall on a timely motion of any party require ... the limitation of the number of expert witnesses ...").

In support of its motion, Morgan Stanley states the following:

STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. On October 14, 2004, the Court entered an Order establishing the pretrial schedule for this case, including provisions for expert disclosures, expert depositions, and expert designations (the "Pretrial Schedule"). The Pretrial Schedule was subsequently amended by the November 23, 2004 Agreed Order.

2. The current Pretrial Schedule required the parties to serve their initial expert disclosures on December 7, 2004. The parties then filed responsive and rebuttal expert disclosures due on December 17, 2004, and December 28, 2004, respectively.

3. The parties took expert depositions between December 28, 2004 and January 14, 2005. Expert deposition designations were due on January 14, 2005, with expert counter-designations and objections to expert counter-designations due on January 21, 2005, and January 28, 2005, respectively.

4. The trial is set to begin February 18, 2005, following the pretrial conference starting on February 14.

5. On December 7, 2004, CPH served initial disclosures for six different experts, including three experts on damages. The sheer volume of paper associated with these initial disclosures is staggering, with a total page count swelling to well over 1,000 pages. Under the Pretrial Schedule, Morgan Stanley had less than 10 days to respond.

6. CPH submitted two expert reports on the exact, same issue: the value of Coleman as of March 1998. See 12/7/04 Expert Report of S. Kursh at 3 (“Kursh Report”) (“

”) (Ex. 1); 12/7/04 Expert Report of M. Wagner at 1 (“Wagner Report”) (“

”) (Ex. 2).

7. The two expert reports are inconsistent with each other, employ differing methodologies, and arrive at different per share values of Coleman stock as of March 1998.

. Id. Thus, CPH’s proffered evidence regarding the value of Coleman as of March 1998 depends on which CPH expert you ask.

8. This disclosure problem has been compounded by Mr. Kursh’s inability to file a rebuttal report within a reasonable amount of time and his unavailability for deposition throughout December and January. Indeed, just two days after CPH's expert reports were served, CPH informed Morgan Stanley that Mr. Kursh was "expected to undergo heart surgery next week."¹ 12/9/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare (Ex. 3). Two weeks later, and with trial rapidly approaching, CPH requested an open-ended extension for Mr. Kursh's rebuttal report and deposition until some unspecified time in the future. 12/21/04 Letter from M. Brody to R. Beynon (Ex. 4).

9. In response, Morgan Stanley agreed to make reasonable accommodations and offered a reasonable extension — indeed, the same extension CPH offered for Morgan Stanley's expert George Fritz — that would not compromise Morgan Stanley's ability to prepare for trial. Morgan Stanley noted that it believed that "this proposal [was] especially reasonable since, if Mr. Kursh's recovery does not permit him to participate in the pretrial disclosures and trial, CPH has at least two other damages experts who address precisely the same subject matter." 12/22/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody (Ex. 5).

10. Another two weeks later, CPH counsel advised that "Mr. Kursh still is insufficiently recovered from his surgery to work" and again requested an open-ended extension because "it still is too early in his recovery for him to provide a firm date on which he will be able to submit his rebuttal report." 1/3/05 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare (Ex. 6). Given the highly compressed pretrial schedule, and the limited time available to complete the expert disclosures, expert depositions, and expert designations before the trial date, however, Morgan

¹ The timing of the disclosure is curious. Although CPH had initially contacted him in February 2004, Mr. Wagner testified that

Stanley advised CPH that it could not agree to any further extension without substantially prejudicing the preparation of its case. See 1/4/05 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody (Ex. 8). In addition, Morgan Stanley again noted that “CPH has at least two other experts who address precisely the same subject matter as Mr. Kursh.” Id.

11. CPH then filed a motion to extend the deadline for Mr. Kursh to file a rebuttal report until January 24, 2004, almost a full month after the initial report was due. On January 12, 2005, the Court granted the motion in part “without prejudice to Defendant’s right to seek to exclude all or part of Mr. Kursh’s testimony if it is unduly prejudiced by the delay.” The Court ordered that CPH file Mr. Kursh’s report by 5 p.m. on January 24, 2005.

12. CPH served by e-mail attachment two Kursh reports of 97 pages at 4:53 p.m. EST on January 25, 2005. Later CPH served the reports by facsimile after 5 p.m..

ARGUMENT

13. CPH has played a shell game with its expert disclosures, keeping its options open as long as possible and forcing Morgan Stanley to guess which of its three “damages” experts it will call at trial, and which of their damages methodologies it will actually use. Moreover, given the highly compressed pretrial schedule, and the limited time remaining before trial to complete expert disclosures, expert depositions, and expert designations, Mr. Kursh’s unavailability throughout December and January has exacerbated the prejudice and procedural unfairness created by CPH’s litigation tactics.

14. With trial rapidly approaching, Morgan Stanley still does not have a deposition date for Mr. Kursh or even know whether he or Mr. Wagner will ultimately be called to testify as this complex case — that CPH again contacted Mr. Wagner and asked him to prepare a damages analysis.

042469

to the value of Coleman as of March 1998. Accordingly, pursuant to Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.200(b)(4), Morgan Stanley asks the Court to establish a "limitation of the number of expert witnesses" to be called at trial in this case and to strike the expert opinion of Mr. Kursh in its entirety, thereby leaving Mr. Wagner to testify as to Coleman's valuation at trial.

15. First, Mr. Kursh's testimony should be stricken as untimely. Mr. Kursh's rebuttal report was due on December 28, 2004. Morgan Stanley did not receive it until 4:53 p.m. on January 24, 2005. Supra ¶ 10. Mr. Kursh was supposed to be made available for deposition before January 14, 2005. But Morgan Stanley still has not been able to obtain a deposition date. Designations of Mr. Kursh's depositions were due on January 14, 2005; counter-designations due on January 21, 2005; and objections to counter-designations due on January 28, 2005. Morgan Stanley cannot even begin the designation process until they get a deposition date, Mr. Kursh is deposed, and a transcript is received. All motions directed at experts were to have been filed on January 26, 2005, with oppositions due on February 4, 2005. Morgan Stanley should not be expected to file such a motion with less than two days to digest the 97-page rebuttal report and still no opportunity to depose Mr. Kursh.²

16. Indeed, the Court recognized that Morgan Stanley could be unduly prejudiced by CPH's delay in submitting Mr. Kursh's rebuttal report: "[T]he longer the time goes, the more likely it is that [Morgan Stanley] is going to be prejudiced, which means for whatever reason this evidence isn't going to come in." 1/12/05 Hr'g Tr. at 17:20-18:1. At this point, the Court is faced with a situation where all the dates laid out in the Pretrial Order have come and gone, and Mr. Kursh is almost a month behind a heavily compressed pretrial schedule with little room for error. With trial just a few weeks away, Morgan Stanley respectfully submits that there is simply no time left for Morgan Stanley to have its experts review Mr. Kursh's latest work, prepare for and depose Mr. Kursh, begin the designation process (on the assumption Mr. Kursh might not testify live), and engage in extended briefing on the objectionable aspects of Mr. Kursh's expert opinion.

17. Second, Mr. Kursh's testimony should be stricken in its entirety as a consequence of CPH's failure to comply with this Court's order compelling expert disclosures in this case. Indeed, despite the clear command of the pretrial order, CPH has failed not only to disclose which of its three damages experts it will call, but also which of its two damages experts on the value of Coleman as of March 1998 it will call and what CPH precisely contends is the specific per share value that CPH intends to assert at trial. In essence, CPH's "disclosure" on December 7, 2004 was no disclosure at all.

18. While Mr. Kursh and Mr. Wagner both opine on the same exact issue, they do not proffer the same conclusion. To the contrary, Mr. Kursh and Mr. Wagner utilize totally different methodologies to arrive at entirely different per share values of Coleman. The question then is: will CPH rely upon Mr. Kursh's methodology to assert that

? Or will CPH rely upon Mr. Wagner's methodology to assert that

? Both cannot be correct. But CPH has so far failed to disclose — as required by the spirit, if not the pure letter, of the Pretrial Order — which of these two conflicting expert opinions they intend to rely upon. Again, CPH is playing a "shell game," keeping its options open as long as possible on this key issue and forcing Morgan Stanley to guess at what it intends to assert at trial.

19. This Court has repeatedly stated that it does not wish to preside over a trial by ambush. Indeed, it is precisely for this reason that the Pretrial Scheduling Order specified that neither side would be able to present expert testimony on a contested issue if it was not “disclosed with particularity in accordance with this Order.” See 10/14/04 Pretrial Scheduling Order. The Court subsequently warned of the consequences for incomplete and untimely expert disclosure: “We are talking about what is the spirit of the order and the spirit of the order is we need all of the cards on the table and you can’t be having somebody offering an expert opinion at trial that has not been disclosed.” 12/15/04 Hr’g Tr. at 6:3-6:8. But CPH, preferring gamesmanship to disclosure, has steadfastly refused to show its cards for over a month now. Accordingly, pursuant to well-established Florida law, Mr. Kursh’s expert opinion

See Binger v. King Pest Control, 401 So. 2d 1310, 1314 (Fla. 1981) (affirming trial court’s right to exclude expert testimony for failure to comply with pretrial order in order to help “eliminate surprise and avoid trial by ‘ambush.’”).

20. Finally, Mr. Kursh’s testimony should be stricken on the independent ground that it is redundant, duplicative, and cumulative. “[A] trial judge has the discretion to limit the number of witnesses who the parties may call to testify at trial” Gonzalez v. Martinez, No. 3D03-918, 2004 WL 17771, at *1 (Fla. 3d DCA, Jan. 3, 2005); see also Fogel v. Mirmelli, 413 So. 2d 1204, 1207 (Fla. 3d DCA 1982) (“Without question, the trial court has discretion to limit the number of witnesses which may be called by the parties.” (citation omitted)).

21. And Florida trial courts have not hesitated to limit the number of expert witnesses — even those properly disclosed — where, as here, a party seeks to present duplicative experts on precisely the same subject matter. See Dones v. Moss, 884 So.2d 230 (Fla. 2d DCA 2004) (affirming trial court’s decision to limit the number of expert witnesses who presented redundant testimony); Dade County v. Midic Realty, Inc., 549 So. 2d 1207 (Fla. 3d DCA 1989) (same); Stager v. Fla. E. Coast Ry. Co., 163 So. 2d 15, 17 (Fla. 3d DCA 1964) (same). See also Fla. Evid. Code. § 90.403 (“Relevant evidence is inadmissible if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of ... needless presentation of cumulative evidence.”). Mr. Kursh opines on the same subject matter as two other CPH experts and on precisely the same issue as Mr. Wagner. As such, the Court should exclude Mr. Kursh as an expert witness at trial.

misrepresentations or on whether CPH can establish damages. Under Florida law evidence of discovery misconduct generally may not be presented to the jury, and this case does not fit under the exception created by General Motors Corp. v. McGee, 837 So. 2d 1010, 1036 (Fla. 4th DCA 2003). The Court has sanctioned Morgan Stanley for the alleged discovery abuses by entering the partial default judgment; reading the Discovery Statement to the jury or allowing CPH to introduce evidence about the discovery issues would constitute a second, impermissible sanction. Indeed, in analogous circumstances it has been impermissible to sanction a party twice for discovery abuses. See Werbungs Und Commerz Union Austalt v. Collectors' Guild, Ltd., 930 F.2d 1021, 1027 (2d Cir. 1991) (finding trial court "abused its discretion and committed plain error when through its instruction it allowed the jury, in effect, to sanction [party] again for its late production of documents," where court had already sanctioned the party by excluded the belatedly-produced materials) (emphasis added).

Morgan Stanley continues vehemently to object to the Court's Adverse Inference Order; to its Default Order; and to the introduction of either Exhibit A or the Discovery Statement at either phase of the trial. However, if the Court declines to reconsider its Adverse Inference Order and its Default Order, Exhibit A and the Discovery Statement should be admitted, if at all, only in the punitive phase of the trial. During the liability phase, this Court simply should instruct the jury that the other necessary elements of CPH's claims have been resolved in favor of CPH and proceed to the punitive phase upon a jury finding that CPH has prevailed on these two issues by clear and convincing evidence.

II. MORGAN STANLEY IS ENTITLED TO PRESENT EVIDENCE ON ITS BEHALF RELEVANT TO THE JURY'S PUNITIVE PHASE DECISION.

It is well settled that a court may take away neither the jury's "discretion to decline to assess punitive damages or to award only a nominal amount," nor a defendant's right to introduce "mitigating evidence" that "would have the effect of 'reducing or softening the moral or social culpability attaching to [the defendant's] act.'" Humana Health Ins. Co. of Fla., Inc. v. Chipps, 802 So. 2d 492, 496 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001) (quoting McClelland v. Climax Hosiery Mills, 169 N.E. 605, 608 (N.Y. 1930) (alteration in original)). Accordingly, in the event the jury returns a verdict on liability in favor of CPH on the basis of clear and convincing evidence and therefore triggers a punitive phase, controlling Florida authority requires this Court to allow Morgan Stanley to present mitigating evidence relevant to the jury's decision as to the appropriate amount of punitive damages to award, if any. A contrary ruling would in effect direct a verdict against Morgan Stanley on punitive damages—a result the Court has repeatedly forsworn.

WHEREFORE Morgan Stanley respectfully requests that this Court: (1) admit only evidence relevant to the issues of justifiable reliance and damages in the liability phase; (2) instruct the jury only that the other necessary elements of CPH's claims have been resolved in favor of CPH; and (3) proceed to the punitive phase if and only if the jury finds that CPH has prevailed on all of the elements of its claims, including reliance and damages, by clear and convincing evidence. The Court, moreover, should read to the jury Attachment A and/or the Discovery Statement—if at all—only in the punitive phase, during which it should respect Morgan Stanley's right to present on its behalf evidence relevant to the jury's determination of the amount of punitive damages to award, if any.

Jenner & Block, LLC
One IBM Plaza
Chicago, IL 60611-7603Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding v. MacAndrews & Forbes et al.

Dear Mike:

I write in response to your March 9, 2004 letter regarding (1) Morgan Stanley's pending motion for the production of electronic documents in electronic form; and (2) CPH's apparent desire to force a wasteful and costly restoration of Morgan Stanley's e-mail backup tapes. I will address each of these two issues in turn.

Electronic Documents

Morgan Stanley has consistently produced its electronic documents "in electronic form" in accordance with the parties' written agreement. We are not aware of any electronic server or backup media that might contain additional electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests. Accordingly, at least as it applies to Morgan Stanley, your suggestion that the parties hire an outside vendor to search backup tapes for additional electronic documents would only result in additional and unnecessary costs.

As for CPH's documents that exist "in electronic form," we have examined the electronic documents that CPH produced in hard-copy form and have reviewed Mr. Fasman's deposition testimony on this point. All of the available evidence squarely rejects the notion that it would impose a "significant burden" on CPH to produce such documents "in electronic form" in accordance with the parties agreement. Specifically:

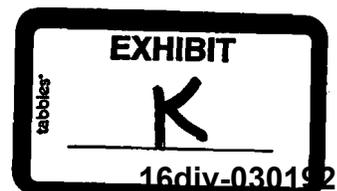

- We cannot square your "burden" argument with the time- and date-stamp information that appears on the documents. Virtually all of the electronic documents in CPH's latest production appear to have time- and date-stamps in the header or footer that show the date and time that they were printed for production. These time- and date-stamps show that these documents were located and printed over the course of a few hours in the two days immediately prior to production. Thus, the burden cannot be as great as you claim.

Chicago

Los Angeles

New York

- Similarly, many of those same hard-copy documents have unique electronic filenames identified in the header or footer of the document. With the assistance of these filenames, it should be relatively easy for CPH to locate and produce documents in electronic form.
- We cannot square your "burden" argument with your prior demands of Morgan Stanley. As you will recall, Morgan Stanley undertook — at your insistence — an even greater burden when, after producing several boxes of documents in hard-copy form, CPH made an identical demand that Morgan Stanley "go back and retrieve duplicate copies of previously produced documents in electronic form." Morgan Stanley did just that, and subsequently produced four CDs of electronic documents that had previously been produced in hard-copy form, representing 723 files and 117.5 MB of electronic data.
- We cannot square your "burden" argument with the parties' written agreement. The parties agreed — in a countersigned written agreement that your firm drafted — to produce electronic documents "in electronic form." To the extent there is an additional "burden" associated with re-producing electronic documents in electronic form, that "burden" is solely the result of CPH's failure to comply with the parties' agreement in the first instance. CPH cannot use its failure to comply with the parties' agreement (by producing documents in hard-copy form only) to manufacture an argument that it is now too burdensome to comply.

In short, the requirement that electronic documents be produced "in electronic form" is well-established by the prior course of discovery in this case, and separately is covered by a countersigned written agreement between the parties. Morgan Stanley is entitled to full compliance with the parties' agreement on this issue, and to the same form of production that CPH has previously demanded from Morgan Stanley.

E-Mail Backups

With regard to the restoration and search of e-mail backup tapes, your proposal to use a third-party vendor does not address — in any meaningful way — many of Morgan Stanley's legitimate objections to the wholesale restoration of e-mail backup tapes. Whether the restoration of e-mail backup tapes is performed by Morgan Stanley IT staff or an outside vendor, the burden on Morgan Stanley from such a wholesale restoration, both in terms of dollars and manpower, would be enormous. Regardless of who performs the initial restoration, it would require hundreds (perhaps thousands) of attorney-hours to review millions of irrelevant and non-responsive e-mails, all for the theoretical possibility that an e-mail drafted years after the underlying financial transactions would be discovered and responsive to CPH's requests. Your proposal to hire a third-party vendor does not address

042482

KIRKLAND & ELLIS LLP

Michael Brody, Esq.
March 11, 2004

that issue, and instead seeks to shift the financial costs for such a search to Morgan Stanley instead of CPH, the party insisting on such a fishing expedition.

As we have explained repeatedly in correspondence, depositions, and court filings, Morgan Stanley only has the ability to restore e-mail from backup tapes from January 2000 or later, which (even using the earliest point) is more than a year-and-a-half after the events that allegedly gave rise to CPH's claims and, in many cases, years after the Morgan Stanley employees who worked on Sunbeam-related engagements left the Company. Under these circumstances, there simply is no reason to believe that a wholesale restoration of e-mail backup tapes is reasonably likely to yield relevant and responsive e-mails — or that the theoretical possibility of finding relevant and responsive e-mails from several years after the fact would justify the enormous burden and cost of restoring, reviewing, and producing these backup tapes.

Any workable proposal regarding the restoration of e-mail backup tapes must (1) be narrowly tailored to include only those tapes that are most likely to contain potentially responsive documents; and (2) allocate the costs of the search in a manner that recognizes the enormous burden of the search compared to the theoretical possibility of finding potentially responsive documents. We offer the following proposal:

- (1) Morgan Stanley will identify up to five (5) current or former MAFCO / CPH employees to be included in the e-mail backup search. MAFCO / CPH will search their backup tapes for electronic versions of e-mails from those five (5) individuals for the time period from December 1997 through June 1998. In addition, MAFCO / CPH will search for electronic versions of e-mails on the oldest e-mail backup tape that exists for each of those five (5) individuals (i.e. the backup tape that is closest in time to the December 1997 – June 1998 time period).
- (2) CPH will identify up to five (5) current or former Morgan Stanley employees to be included in the e-mail backup search. Morgan Stanley will search its backup tapes for electronic versions of e-mail from those five (5) individuals for the time period from December 1997 through June 1998. In addition, Morgan Stanley will search for electronic versions of e-mails on the oldest monthly e-mail backup tape that exists for each of those five individuals (i.e. the January 2000 monthly backup tape).
- (3) The parties will agree upon a reasonable set of search terms that will be used to narrow the universe of e-mails.
- (4) Each party will review the resulting e-mails and produce responsive, non-privileged e-mails to the other side.

042483

KIRKLAND & ELLIS LLP

Michael Brody, Esq.
March 11, 2004

- (5) Any materials withheld on privilege grounds would be listed on a supplemental privilege log to be served on the other side. Depending on the volume of privileged materials on either side, an extension of the typical 30-day time period may be warranted.
- (6) If either party wishes to identify additional employees (beyond the original five) whose e-mail backup tapes will be restored, searched, and produced in accordance with steps (1) - (5), the requesting party will thereafter bear all resulting fees and costs, including (without limitation) all fees and costs associated with restoring the e-mail backup tapes, all fees and costs associated with conducting the keyword search, all fees and costs associated with the privilege and responsiveness review (including reasonable attorneys fees), and all fees and costs associated with producing a privilege log (including reasonable attorneys fees).

I am prepared to discuss these issues at your convenience.

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Clare

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY'S
MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION

In a transparent response to the sanctions that have been imposed on Morgan Stanley for its willful destruction of e-mails and systematic misconduct in response to Court Orders, Morgan Stanley is seeking an adverse inference instruction stemming from CPH's internal policy of deleting e-mails and electronic documents after 30 days and overwriting backup tapes after 60 days. Morgan Stanley's motion is baseless and has long since been waived.

First, Morgan Stanley has known about CPH's internal e-mail policy since January 2004, but Morgan Stanley expressed no interest in recovering CPH's e-mails from backup tapes until now. Indeed, Morgan Stanley refused repeated efforts by CPH to reach a global resolution of the e-mail restoration issue.

On October 29, 2003, CPH filed a motion to compel concerning Morgan Stanley's e-mails. See 10/24/03 Mot. to Compel. Morgan Stanley opposed that motion, arguing that the relief CPH was requesting would be unduly burdensome and faulting CPH for failing to produce its own e-mails. See Ex. S, MS 11/5/03 Response. CPH's motion was resolved by an agreement, whereby the parties agreed to reciprocal corporate representative depositions on the e-mail issue. See Ex. A at 3. Pursuant to that agreement, Morgan Stanley deposed CPH's corporate representative on January 21, 2004, and CPH deposed Morgan Stanley's corporate representative on February 10, 2004. At the January 21, 2004 deposition of CPH's corporate representative, Morgan Stanley inquired about CPH's e-mail policy. In fact, it is that testimony Morgan Stanley cites in its Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction. See MS Mot. at 3 and Ex. 7 thereto. The whole point of the corporate representative depositions was to permit both sides to assess further the issue of obtaining e-mails and other electronic documents.

CPH thereafter attempted to secure Morgan Stanley's agreement to reach a protocol for the mutual restoration of e-mails — but Morgan Stanley repeatedly rejected CPH's efforts at compromise. See, e.g., Ex. B (3/9/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare); Ex. C (3/11/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody); Ex. D (3/15/04 Letter from M. Brody to Clare); Ex. E (3/16/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody); Ex. F (3/17/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare).

Because CPH's efforts to reach agreement on the e-mail issue were going nowhere, on March 12, 2004, CPH filed a motion for permission to have a third party retrieve e-mails. See Ex. G. In that motion, CPH proposed that a third-party vendor be given access to both parties' e-mails, restore Morgan Stanley's e-mails at Morgan Stanley's expense, and restore CPH's e-mails at CPH's expense. See id. And at the hearing on CPH's motion, CPH's counsel attempted to address any concerns about the cost disparity between restoring CPH's e-mails and Morgan Stanley's e-mails by offering to split the cost down the middle. See Ex. H at 19-20. Morgan Stanley opposed all of CPH's proposals, and because the Court did not think it appropriate to impose such an arrangement on the parties without their consent, the Court denied CPH's motion. See id. at 18-26. As CPH has shown during the evidentiary hearings this week, Morgan Stanley opposed CPH's efforts to involve a third party because Morgan Stanley knew that a third party would uncover at least some of Morgan Stanley's misrepresentations concerning its e-mails.

CPH thereafter continued its efforts to obtain e-mails, subpoenaing Bloomberg, Inc., Morgan Stanley's e-mail vendor, for relevant e-mails. See Ex. L. Bloomberg responded that it could not turn over Morgan Stanley e-mails without Morgan Stanley's permission. See Ex. M, (3/11/04 Letter from T. Golden to J. Scarola). When permission was sought, Morgan Stanley placed inappropriate limitations and date restrictions on the production. See Ex. N (3/17/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare); Ex. O (4/1/04 Letter from T. Clare to T. Golden); Ex. P. (4/2/04 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare); Ex. Q (4/7/04 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody).

As a result of Morgan Stanley's continued stonewalling, on April 9, 2004, CPH filed additional e-mail-related motions to compel. See Exs. I, J. In response to those motions, this Court entered the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order concerning e-mail retrieval. See Ex. K. As CPH also has shown during the evidentiary hearings this week, Morgan Stanley's representations about the possibility of and difficulty involved with retrieving e-mails — representations on which this Court and CPH relied in attempting to resolve the e-mail controversy — were false.

In short, Morgan Stanley has known about CPH's e-mail policy since at least January 2004, when Morgan Stanley took the deposition of CPH's corporate representative on the topic, but Morgan Stanley did not file a motion seeking the restoration of CPH's e-mails, and as indicated above, Morgan Stanley opposed CPH's e-mail restoration proposal. Moreover, tellingly, the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order concerning e-mails addresses only the restoration of Morgan Stanley's e-mails. Morgan Stanley has shown no interest in CPH's e-mails — until Morgan Stanley was sanctioned for its misconduct regarding its own e-mails.

Second, in Morgan Stanley's Supplemental Memorandum in Support of Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction, Morgan Stanley makes much of the fact that CPH's privilege log contains entries from April 14, 1998 through August 14, 1998, where CPH has stated that the documents were prepared "in anticipation of litigation." See MS Suppl. Mem. at 1-2. CPH first served the privilege log containing those entries on October 6, 2003. See Ex. R. CPH's privilege log contained entries asserting work product, and the log specifically included each of the twelve documents Morgan Stanley identifies on Page 2 of its Supplemental Memorandum. Thus, Morgan has known about the work product assertions on CPH's privilege log since October 6, 2003.

Indeed, not only has Morgan Stanley known about the privilege log assertions since October 2003, Morgan Stanley also made almost the same argument based on them in Morgan Stanley's November 4, 2003 opposition to CPH's first motion to compel relating to e-mails. See Ex. S. In its November 4, 2003 opposition, Morgan Stanley cited documents listed on the October 6 privilege log, arguing that "CPH was working with its outside counsel to evaluate its options for filing lawsuits against various parties, presumably including MS & Co., as early as July 1998" but did not retain any emails. See id. at 14. Nonetheless, as described above, Morgan expressed no interest in obtaining CPH's e-mails and rebuffed CPH's attempts to reach a mutual agreement on the restoration of e-mails.

Third, CPH is a private entity with no statutory obligation to preserve e-mails. In contrast, as the Court is aware, Morgan Stanley is subject to ongoing e-mail retention obligations under federal law. Thus, in attempting to equate CPH's circumstances with its own, Morgan Stanley equates apples with oranges.

Fourth, none of the adverse inference instruction cases cited by Morgan Stanley (at 8) remotely supports a sanction against CPH. See Amalan, Inc. v. Detroit Diesel Corp., 651 So. 2d 701, 703 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995) (sanctions are appropriate when “a party has engaged in a pattern designed to thwart discovery evincing a ‘continuous pattern of willful, contemptuous and contumacious disregard of lawful court orders concerning its obligation to comply with reasonable discovery requests.’”); Martino v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 835 So. 2d 1251, 1257 (Fla. 4th DCA 2003) (plaintiff was entitled to an adverse inference as a result of Wal-Mart’s disposal of a defective shopping cart that injured the plaintiff, notwithstanding the fact that there was evidence that the plaintiff had identified the defective cart for an assistant manager after the accident and requested the assistant manager to preserve the shopping cart and a surveillance videotape that also was destroyed); Nationwide Lift Trucks, Inc. v. Smith, 832 So. 2d 824, 826 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002) (striking of the defenses in a case involving a forklift accident where the forklift mechanism that caused the accident was not preserved notwithstanding requests by plaintiffs two months after the accident).

Conclusion

Morgan Stanley's motion is nothing more than an attempt to distract attention from its own misconduct and to blunt the effects of this Court's March 1 sanctions Order. The motion should be denied.

MORGAN STANLEY'S OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF THE COURT'S MARCH 23, 2005 ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION FOR AN ADVERSE INFERENCE INSTRUCTION

Coleman (Parent) Holding Inc.'s ("CPH") Motion for Reconsideration of the Court's March 23, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction (the "Motion") should be denied because there exists no basis to reconsider this ruling. CPH has deliberately destroyed e-mails, and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") is entitled – as this Court has previously ruled – to bring that issue to the attention of the jury in connection with the reliance and damage issues to be tried in Phase I.

A. The Evidence of CPH's Email Destruction is Relevant to the Issues of CPH's Reliance and Damages.

To prevail against Morgan Stanley, CPH must show both reliance and damages. Their destruction of contemporaneous e-mails on these subjects — which undoubtedly existed at the time — has rendered their burden immeasurably easier. Morgan Stanley (despite the problems for which the Court has sanctioned Morgan Stanley) has produced at least 19,000 e-mails in this case. CPH has produced fewer than 100.

E-mails written by CPH as it considered whether to enter into the transaction are vital to Morgan Stanley's defense. These emails, if they still existed, could show that CPH did not rely on Morgan Stanley and that CPH was not damaged (this evidence could have included, among other things, evidence concerning CPH's belief as to the benefit of the bargain and how CPH valued Sunbeam stock.) Indeed, there is perhaps no better evidence of the rationale for CPH's consummation of the transaction than the e-mails written as the decision was made.

Unfortunately, when CPH destroyed these e-mails – at a time when it knew that litigation was likely – the ability to uncover that evidence was forever lost.

On March 8, 2005, Morgan Stanley filed a Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction (“MS Adverse Inference Motion”). The basis for this Motion was CPH's systematic and extensive failure to preserve e-mails, including its failure to preserve backup tapes. CPH had an “affirmative duty” to preserve its documents as of the date it knew litigation to be likely. (Feb 15, 2005 Hrg. at 613 (Ex. A).) The evidence adduced through discovery and presented in the MS Adverse Inference Motion clearly shows that CPH knew in April 1998 that litigation would likely arise as a result of the transaction, and had Skadden Arps prepare legal documents that CPH admitted on its privilege log were prepared “in anticipation of litigation.” (July 15, 2004 CPH Privilege Log at Doc. Nos. 458, 460, 533, (Ex. B)). For three years after CPH first anticipated litigation regarding the Sunbeam transaction, it continued to destroy e-mails after only 30 days and overwrite e-mail backup tapes after 60 days, as testified to by Steven L. Fasman, CPH's corporate representative. (Jan. 21, 2004 Fasman Dep. (Ex. C (“Q. From 1998 until the inception of the Andersen litigation, did MAFCO save any e-mail back-up tapes that related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman? A. There are no e-mail backup tapes relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman.”).) CPH's failure to preserve any backup tapes relating to the Sunbeam transaction insured that it was unable to produce any e-mails that could have been used by Morgan Stanley to rebut CPH's arguments on its reliance on Morgan Stanley and on damages. (Morgan Stanley's Supplemental Memorandum in Support of Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction at 3.) The Court's March 25, 2005 Order provides that

Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction is Denied, without prejudice to Morgan Stanley's right to present evidence about CPH's email retention practices and its failure to direct that emails related to the Sunbeam transaction be saved and CPH's right to present evidence of its offer to have a third-party vendor given access to retrieve emails from CPH's system. . .

(Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction dated March 25, 2005 at 1 ("MS Adverse Inference Order") (emphasis added).) During argument on the Motion, the Court stated: "You're just saying you want to present evidence about the e-mail retention policy and failure to deviate from it in this case, and then argue to the jury that they should draw an adverse inference from that evidence? . . . I have no problem at all with Morgan Stanley's arguing about how Coleman dealt with its e-mails in this case and what evidentiary value that may or may not have for the jury." (Mar. 21, 2005 Hrg. at 4538, 4540. (Ex. D).) Without offering any real basis – other than its belief that the March 25, 2005 order is "unjust" – CPH now seeks reconsideration of this Court's Order.

CPH's request for reconsideration is not supported by any law. CPH argues that, because it may not offer evidence of Morgan Stanley's discovery misconduct during Phase I of the trial, Morgan Stanley should be precluded from presenting evidence regarding "CPH's email retention practices and [CPH's] failure to direct that emails related to the Sunbeam transaction be saved." (Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction dated March 25, 2005 at 1.) This argument makes no sense, contorts this Court's previous rulings, and ignores the current posture of the case.

The Court has ruled that Morgan Stanley has engaged in discovery misconduct, and, in order to "level the playing field" as a result of this misconduct, entered the default judgment.

(CPH Adverse Inference Order at 11.) As a result of the default judgment, CPH must prove only reliance and damages to prevail during Phase I. Since Morgan Stanley's misconduct does not affect CPH's ability to present its case on reliance and damages, the Court has correctly ruled that CPH can make "no inappropriate reference to litigation misconduct" during Phase I. (See 3/31/05 Tr. at 6274, filed as Ex. A to CPH's Motion.) CPH's argument that it is precluded from mentioning the misconduct conveniently ignores that fact that all Phase I determinations that could have been affected by the misconduct have already been decided in CPH's favor.

CPH's discovery misconduct, on the other hand, goes to the very issues still to be decided during Phase I: reliance and discovery. CPH produced less than 100 pages of emails total relating to the Sunbeam transaction.¹ CPH's emails, had they not been deleted, might well have enabled Morgan Stanley to show that CPH did not rely on Morgan Stanley and that CPH was not damaged as claimed. By deliberately overwriting its emails, CPH has deprived Morgan Stanley of this vital evidence, and CPH should be held accountable. While Morgan Stanley believes that this Court should grant an adverse inference instruction based on CPH's willful e-mail destruction, at the very least Morgan Stanley is entitled "to present evidence about CPH's email retention practices and its failure to direct that emails related to the Sunbeam transaction be saved," as the Court ordered. (Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction dated March 25, 2005 at 1.)

B. John Ashley Should be Permitted to Testify Concerning E-mail Retention, Destruction and Retrieval

CPH, in its Motion, also argues that Morgan Stanley should be precluded from presenting evidence of CPH's e-mail retention and that expert witness John Ashley should not be permitted to testify. As detailed more fully in Morgan Stanley's Opposition To Plaintiff's Motion To Bar

¹ Morgan Stanley, in contrast, has produced over 19,000 pages of emails.

The Expert Testimony Of John F. Ashley, filed on April 4, 2005 and attached as Exhibit E, this argument lacks any legal support.

In response to Morgan Stanley's overwriting of backup tapes, the Court previously ruled that it would read a "conclusive" statement of facts, attached as Exhibit A to the Adverse Inference Order, to the jury. The Court found, in part, that "E-mails could no longer be retrieved once they were overwritten." (Emphasis added.) Since the Court determined conclusively that overwritten e-mails were irretrievable, there was no need for Morgan Stanley to produce a witness to testify to this point (indeed, such testimony would not have been permitted under the Court's Order.)

The Court's March 25 Order quoted above (permitting CPH "to present evidence of its offer to have a third-party vendor given access to retrieve emails from CPH's system") contradicts its Adverse Inference Order, by allowing CPH to show evidence that overwritten e-mail actually is recoverable. As a result of this apparent reversal, Morgan Stanley designated John Ashley, an expert on computer forensics, to (1) show that the Court's finding in Exhibit A that overwritten e-mails cannot be retrieved was correct, and (2) rebut CPH's argument concerning retrieving erased e-mail. Mr. Ashley is the Chief Technical Officer of Corefacts, LLC, and is an expert on e-mail preservation, retention, and destruction.

There is no legal or equitable basis for excluding Mr. Ashley's testimony. The determinations as to the addition of witnesses is based on the extent of the prejudice of the opposing party, as well as the ability to cure any prejudice, the calling party's bad faith, and any possible disruption to the proceedings. Binger v. King Pest Control, 401 So.2d 1310, 1313-14 (Fla. 1981). These factors all favor denying CPH's Motion. CPH has not been prejudiced by the date of Morgan Stanley's designation of Mr. Ashley and, indeed, will have the opportunity to depose Mr. Ashley. There was no bad faith on Morgan Stanley's part and there will be no disruption to the trial by the addition of Mr. Ashley to Morgan Stanley's witness list. Given the Court's determination to allow CPH to present testimony that contradicts the Court's earlier findings, Mr. Ashley's testimony is now relevant and should be permitted to testify.

WHEREFORE, Morgan Stanley respectfully requests an order denying CPH's motion for reconsideration and denying CPH's request to bar John Ashley's testimony.

1 the jury the implications, the adverse
2 inference --

3 THE COURT: You're not asking for an
4 instruction? You're just saying you want to
5 present evidence about the e-mail retention
6 policy and the failure to deviate from it in
7 this case, and then argue to the jury that they
8 should draw an adverse inference from that
9 evidence?

10 MR. LANCASTER: Yes, with a caveat; that is,
11 we're not asking for an instruction. We believe
12 that, the way we read this law, that would be 13 viewed with close scrutiny, and it would be --
14 I'm not sure it would be viable.

15 But Your Honor has in its order, in the
16 initial order that dealt with our e-mail
17 destruction, indicated that the path that it
18 intended to follow, which was to read a
19 statement to the jury, that there would be no
20 further instruction given, and no other evidence
21 put out.

22 And we believe that if Your Honor is going
23 to read such a statement to the jury, then under 24 the facts of this case and the law, as Your 25 Honor is applying to this case, that we feel

042652

1 that Your Honor should read a similar statement
2 of facts.

3 And we are going to tender to Your Honor,
4 and we did a revised version of that that should
5 also be read. Because when it is the issue of
6 the loss of e-mails which Your Honor has already
7 indicated supplies the essential element, it's
8 critical, then the parties do stand in that
9 respect on the same footing.

10 In fact, Your Honor, in all due respect, I
11 would submit that we stand on better footing.
12 Because while we have -- and perhaps we have not
13 done a good job of it and perhaps there have 14 been foot faults -- we have restored some
15 quantum of e-mails.

16 And I know that this exasperates Your Honor,
17 but it is --

18 THE COURT: No, I guess it goes back, quite
19 honestly, to when one of Plaintiff's points in
20 the motion for the default judgment is Morgan
21 Stanley seems wholly unwilling to admit that
22 it's committed egregious violations of the
23 agreed order. And to me this is fundamentally
24 different.

25 The e-mail issues here between Coleman and 042653

1 Morgan Stanley are fundamentally different. And
2 I have no problem at all with Morgan Stanley's
3 arguing about how Coleman dealt with its e-mails
4 in this case and what evidentiary value that may
5 or may not have for the jury. But in all
6 honesty, I'm offended that you would attempt to
7 equate the two. Because I think they're totally
8 unrelated.

9 MR. LANCASTER: And I accept that from Your
10 Honor. And I'm not doing it from the standpoint
11 of, necessarily, conduct, but I'm attempting to 12 argue to Your Honor that if you're looking at 13 sort of body of evidence, what is available for 14 a jury to consider? There is e-mail as a result
15 of both, I guess, discovery and discovery orders
16 by this Court, and whatever else mix there is 17 that brought these e-mails to potentially the 18 jury.

19 But on the Coleman side, there is no e-mail
20 off those backup tapes, because they brazenly
21 walk into court and say, we just destroyed it
22 all.

23 So in that respect we believe that given the 24 Court's -- the way you're applying the law of 25 the case, statement of facts you're going to

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,

vs.

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY'S OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO BAR THE EXPERT TESTIMONY OF JOHN F. ASHLEY

Coleman (Parent) Holding Inc.'s ("CPH") Motion to Exclude Expert Witness John Ashley (the "Motion") should be denied. Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") designation of Mr. Ashley has not prejudiced CPH in any way and was made in good faith. This Motion is nothing more than an attempt by CPH to present evidence that directly contradicts a holding by this Court without affording Morgan Stanley the chance for rebuttal. There is no basis in the law for such an exclusion and it should therefore be denied.

ARGUMENT

1. On March 1, 2005, this Court entered the Order on CPH's Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, and Motion for Additional Relief and Order on Plaintiff's Motion to Compel Further Discovery Regarding Morgan Stanley's Destruction and Non-Production of E-mails (the "Adverse Inference Order"). In that Order, the Court found, in part, that Morgan Stanley's actions in overwriting backup tapes containing e-mails "justif[ied] sanctions." (Adverse Inference Order at 11.)

042655

Ex. F

16div-030224

2. As a result of these and other actions, the Court ruled that it would read a statement of facts, attached as Exhibit A to the Adverse Inference Order, to the jury. The Court ruled that the findings in Exhibit A “shall be conclusive.” (Id. at 13.) Exhibit A details the Court’s findings concerning, among other things, Morgan Stanley’s practice of overwriting emails. Most notably, the Court found that “E-mails could no longer be retrieved once they were overwritten.” (Emphasis added.) Given the twin rulings that overwritten e-mails were irretrievable and that this fact was a conclusive finding by the Court, Morgan Stanley was precluded from presenting a witness on this issue at trial. Indeed, as overwritten emails are irretrievable, as the Court correctly found, there would have been no reason to have expert testimony on this matter even if that testimony would have been proper.

3. On March 8, 2005, Morgan Stanley filed a Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction. The basis for this Motion was CPH’s systematic and extensive failure to preserve e-mails, including its failure to preserve backup tapes. The evidence presented in this Motion clearly showed that for three years after CPH anticipated litigation regarding the Sunbeam transaction, it continued to destroy e-mails after only 30 days and overwrite e-mail backup tapes after 60 days. (Morgan Stanley’s Supplemental Memorandum in Support of Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction at 3.) The Court denied this Motion on March 25, 2005, ordering that

Morgan Stanley’s Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction is Denied, without prejudice to Morgan Stanley’s right to present evidence about CPH’s email retention practices and its failure to direct that emails related to the Sunbeam transaction be saved and CPH’s right to present evidence of its offer to have a third-party vendor given access to retrieve emails from CPH’s system. . . .

(Order on Morgan Stanley’s Motion for an Adverse Inference Instruction dated March 25, 2005 at 1.)

4. This Order directly contradicts the Court's earlier finding of fact, as embodied in Exhibit A to the Adverse Inference Order. In those findings, deemed "conclusive" by the Court, the Court found that once e-mails are overwritten, they cannot be recovered. (Adverse Inference Order, Exhibit A at 1.) Now, in direct contravention of its conclusive finding that overwritten e-mails cannot be restored, the Court has ruled that CPH may present evidence concerning CPH's offer to have the e-mails restored. There would be no need to call Mr. Ashley if the Court were to instruct the jury, as the Court was prepared to do previously, that e-mails cannot be retrieved once they are overwritten. Given the Court's surprising and unexpected about-face, however, Morgan Stanley should otherwise be entitled to present evidence, including an expert on computer forensics, to (1) show that the Court's finding in Exhibit A that overwritten e-mails cannot be retrieved was correct, and (2) rebut CPH's argument concerning retrieving erased e-mail. Morgan Stanley believes (and the expert testimony will prove) that the Court's conclusion regarding e-mail retrieval was correct and that CPH should not be able to offer evidence to attempt to show otherwise. However, if CPH is entitled to offer such evidence, Morgan Stanley should clearly be allowed to rebut such evidence.

5. The case law supports Morgan Stanley's argument. "We recognize that excluding the testimony of a witness is one of the most drastic of remedies which should be invoked only under the most compelling of circumstances." Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services v. J.B. By and Through Spivak, 675 So.2d 241, 244 (Fla. 4th DCA 1996). Here, there is no legal or equitable basis for such an exclusion. The Florida Supreme Court has ruled that determinations as to the addition of witnesses is up to the discretion of the trial court. This determination is to be based on the extent of the prejudice of the opposing party, as well as the ability to cure any prejudice, the calling party's bad faith, and any possible disruption to the proceedings. Binger v. King Pest Control, 401 So.2d 1310, 1313-14 (Fla. 1981); Berlin v. Roldan, 786 So.2d 649, 650 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001) (trial court erred in not allowing the testimony of an unlisted witness when doing so would “not be unfair to the objecting party”).

6. All of the Binger factors favor denying CPH’s Motion. CPH has not been prejudiced by the date of Morgan Stanley’s designation of Mr. Ashley as an expert witness. CPH will have the opportunity, if it wishes, to depose Mr. Ashley, and to plan its litigation strategy based on that testimony. There was no bad faith on Morgan Stanley’s part and there will be no disruption to the trial by the addition of Mr. Ashley to Morgan Stanley’s witness list. Given the Court’s March 1 Order, which correctly stated that overwritten e-mails are not recoverable, there was no reason to believe that Mr. Ashley’s testimony would be necessary (or even permitted). With the March 25 Order in which the Court said it would allow CPH to present testimony that contradicts the Court’s findings, Mr. Ashley’s testimony became relevant, and Morgan Stanley subsequently designated him as an expert witness. Thus, there is simply no reason under principles of fairness or Florida law to exclude Mr. Ashley’s testimony.

WHEREFORE, Morgan Stanley respectfully requests an order denying CPH’s motion to exclude expert witness John Ashley. Alternatively, Morgan Stanley respectfully requests that the Court instruct the jury that e-mails cannot be retrieved once they are overwritten, in which case Morgan Stanley will have no need to call Mr. Ashley.

FILED
05 APR -5 AM 11:02
PALM BEACH COUNTY, FL
CIRCUIT CIVIL 8

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF THE COURT'S SANCTION ORDERS AND MEMORANDUM OF LAW

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") moves the Court for reconsideration and modification of its Sanctions Orders. In support of this motion, Morgan Stanley states:

1. Evidence of Morgan Stanley's litigation misconduct should not be introduced in either the liability or the punitive damages phase of the trial. To do so will essentially authorize the jury to punish Morgan Stanley for violations of this Court's orders instead of the wrongful conduct alleged by the Plaintiff in the First Amended Complaint, and prejudice the jury in regard to the compensatory damages claim. Because the litigation misconduct described by the Court is not related to the material issues of the underlying tort claim, nor has it been shown to conceal any smoking gun evidence relevant to Plaintiff's underlying tort claims, introduction of such evidence would violate Morgan Stanley's due process rights under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution and Article I, Sections 2 and 9 of the Florida Constitution. See State Farm Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 1524 (2003) (the "reprehensibility guidepost [of BMW of N. Am. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559 (1996)] does not permit courts to expand the scope of the case so that a defendant may be punished for any malfeasance”); see also Atkinson v. Orkin Exterminating Co., 604 S.E.2d 385, 392 (S.C. 2004) (Placing Morgan Stanley’s litigation misconduct before the jury will permit CPH “to unfairly exaggerate the degree of reprehensibility” of Morgan Stanley’s conduct with regard to the underlying tort claims).

2. The de facto default on liability for both compensatory and punitive damages directly flowing from the Court’s orders is an unwarranted sanction and deprives Morgan Stanley of its statutory and constitutional rights to defend itself against CPH’s underlying tort claim and its punitive damage claim. The purpose of Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.380(b) is to ensure compliance with the discovery rules and any order compelling discovery, not to punish or penalize the party in violation. The Court did not find that Morgan Stanley’s litigation misconduct prevented CPH from prosecuting its claims for the underlying torts. Because punitive damages are by definition penal in nature, the Court’s award of attorneys’ fees and its virtual default constitutes double punishment against Morgan Stanley, see Smith v. Wade, 461 U.S. 30, 94 (1983) (O’Connor, J. dissenting) (“awards of compensatory damages and attorney’s fees already provide significant deterrence”), and further deprives Morgan Stanley of:

a) its right to a trial by jury on punitive damages, see Orkin Exterminating Co. of S. Fla. v. Truly Nolen, Inc., 117 So. 2d 419, 422 (Fla. 3d DCA 1960) (equity court is not permitted to award punitive damages because “any different holding would deprive the defendant of his constitutional right of a jury trial before punishment”);

b) due process and a fair trial before punishment in the form of punitive damages is imposed, including its right to confront witnesses in this quasi-criminal proceeding; see Campbell, 123 S. Ct. at 1520 (recognizing that punitive damages “serve the same purposes as criminal penalties”); Honda Motor Co. v. Oberg, 512 U.S. 415, 420 (1994) (“Our recent cases have recognized that the Constitution imposes a substantive limit on the size of punitive damages awards"); id. ("the Due Process Clause imposes a limit on punitive damages awards") U.S. Const. Ameds. V, VI, XIV; Fla. Const. Art. 1 §§ 2, 9;

c) the right to contest the degree and nature of its alleged misconduct and offer evidence and circumstances in mitigation, see Humana Health Ins. Co. of Fla. v. Chipps, 802 So. 2d 492, 496 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001) (trial court "improperly prevented Humana from introducing mitigating evidence to rebut testimony that Humana's managed care practices violated industry standards"); id. (in assessing punitive damages, the jury should have been permitted to consider "evidence which would have had the effect of 'reducing or softening the moral or social culpability attaching to [the defendant's] act..."); see also St. Regis Paper Co. v. Watson, 428 So. 2d 243, 246-47 (Fla. 1983) (in assessing punitive damages, a jury should consider "the nature, extent, and enormity of the wrong, the intent of the party committing it and all circumstances attending the particular incident, as well as any mitigating circumstances") (citation omitted); Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. v. Ballard, 749 So. 2d 483, 484-85 (Fla.1999);

d) Its due process right to present every available defense to this quasi-criminal proceeding. Lindsey v. Normet, 405 U.S. 56, 66 (1972) (Due Process requires that there be an opportunity to present every available defense), and US v. Armour, 402 U.S. 673, 682 (1971) (a defendant's "right to litigate the issues raised" is "a right guaranteed to him by the Due Process Clause");

e) its constitutional right to have a reviewing court determine the reprehensibility of its conduct, in that, unless Morgan Stanley is permitted to mount a meaningful defense to CPH's punitive damages claim, there is no way to assess how reprehensible Morgan Stanley actually was. See Gore, 517 U.S. at

575 (exemplary damages imposed on a defendant should reflect the enormity of his offense. This principle reflects the accepted view that some wrongs are more blameworthy than others); id. at 576 (“To be sure, infliction of economic injury, especially when done intentionally through affirmative acts of misconduct, ... or when the target is financially vulnerable, can warrant a substantial penalty. But this observation does not convert all acts that cause economic harm into torts that are sufficiently reprehensible to justify a significant sanction in addition to compensatory damages”);

f) the right to force CPH to prove entitlement by clear and convincing evidence, see § 768.725, Fla. Stat.; and

g) the right to contest corporate liability for punitive damages, see Schropp v. Crown Eurocars, 654 So. 2d 1158, 1161 (Fla. 1995); Mercury Motors Express v. Smith, 393 So. 2d 545 (Fla. 1981).

3. The constitutional and statutory problems presented by the Court’s Orders could be alleviated by the following corrective actions:

a) withdrawing the decision to read a statement to the jury concerning Morgan Stanley’s litigation misconduct; and

b) rescinding that part of the Court’s order which deems certain paragraphs of the First Amended Complaint “established”.

4. Without waiving any of the foregoing, Morgan Stanley submits that in the punitive damages phase of this trial it should be allowed to contest all of the underlying facts supporting the claims for aiding and abetting and conspiracy to commit fraud, as well as issues regarding the corporate liability for punitive damages and the findings regarding litigation misconduct, both as to entitlement and in mitigation of the amount of punitive damages.

5. By the same token, the jury may not consider any evidence of Morgan Stanley’s litigation misconduct to punish Morgan Stanley. See Jim Gash, Punitive Damages, Other Acts Evidence, and the Constitution, 2004 Utah L. Rev. 1191, 1263 (2004) ("the jury ... may not use extraterritorial other acts evidence to punish a defendant, ... the trial court must be similarly required to instruct the jury that it may not use even local other acts to punish a defendant. Whereas the former instruction is mandated by federalism principles, the latter is required by due process") (emphasis added).

6. Morgan Stanley further contests the factual findings and conclusions set forth in the Court's order regarding litigation misconduct and that the failures to comply cannot be cured. See Affidavit of Richard Anfang attached hereto as Exhibit A.

WHEREFORE, Morgan Stanley respectfully requests that this Court reconsider its March 1st and 23rd Orders.

In further support of this motion, Morgan Stanley submits the following memorandum of law to highlight particular issues raised in herein.

MEMORANDUM OF LAW

By imposing these drastic sanctions on Morgan Stanley, the Court exceeded its authority under Florida law and violated Morgan Stanley's constitutional rights. Moreover, the Court's Orders invest in the jury the authority to determine the amount in which Morgan Stanley should be punished for litigation misconduct – a power that the jury simply does not have under Florida law. This unprecedented shift of power from the bench (which has already punished Morgan Stanley with a virtual default) to the jury box (for a second punishment) violates Morgan Stanley's rights and precludes Morgan Stanley from obtaining a fair trial on Plaintiff's punitive damages claim. Stripped of its due process rights, Morgan Stanley will suffer irreparable harm if the trial proceeds on the uneven playing field set by the Sanctions Orders.

042665

ARGUMENT

I. EVIDENCE OF MORGAN STANLEY'S LITIGATION MISCONDUCT SHOULD NOT BE INTRODUCED INTO EVIDENCE IN EITHER THE LIABILITY OR THE PUNITIVE DAMAGES PHASE OF THE TRIAL

A. Florida Law is Clear that Evidence Related to Pretrial Litigation Misconduct Generally Should Not be Submitted to the Jury.

This Court's Sanctions Orders must be reconsidered because they improperly allow the Courts findings in respect to pretrial litigation misconduct by Morgan Stanley to be introduced to the jury. Florida law grants only courts, not juries, the authority to sanction litigants for litigation misconduct. See Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.380; Emerson Elec. Co. v. Garcia, 623 So. 2d 523, 525 (Fla. 3d DCA 1993) ("an appropriate sanction was a matter for the court and not for the jury."). For precisely that reason, Florida courts have long held that "[e]vidence relating to the history of pretrial discovery should normally not be a matter submitted for the jury's consideration on the issues of liability." Amlan, Inc. v. Detroit Diesel Corp., 651 So. 2d 701, 703 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995) (citing Garcia).

The Fourth District recognized a limited exception to the rule that juries should not hear evidence regarding discovery misconduct in General Motors Corp. v. McGee, 837 So. 2d 1010, 1036 (Fla. 4th DCA 2003). That case is factually distinguishable, however, and the court's reliance on McGee in issuing its Sanctions Orders was misplaced. In McGee, the Fourth District recognized that evidence of pretrial discovery conduct normally should not be submitted to the jury. Nevertheless, under the facts and circumstances of that case, the Fourth District held that evidence of discovery abuse was properly admitted when the defendant intentionally withheld a highly relevant document that effectively established an element of the plaintiff's claim; to wit: that General Motors knew about the dangers associated with its product but did nothing about it, and thus subordinated human life to corporate profit. Id. at 1035. Only in the face of all of this evidence about the substance of the withheld document did the Fourth District hold that it was proper to allow the jury to consider concealment of the document. See also Amlan, 651 So. 2d at 703 (distinguishing cases where “the misconduct alleged is the destruction or unexplained disappearance of crucial evidence” from the general rule that evidence of pretrial discovery conduct is not for the jury’s consideration).

McGee did not hold that it is permissible to allow a party to present the jury with evidence of litigation misconduct whenever a plaintiff seeks punitive damages, and it does not support the Court’s Sanctions Orders here – where there were no findings that Morgan Stanley intentionally withheld documents that it knew supported CPH’s claims. To the contrary, “for all we know, any evidence [that was not produced] might be legally irrelevant to the issues framed in the pleadings.” New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. Royal Ins. Co., 559 So. 2d 102, 103 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990). For this Court to allow CPH to ask the jury for punitive damages based on litigation misconduct, in the absence of a showing of a “concealment of offensive conduct,” is tantamount to allowing the jury to award punitive damages as a sanction for litigation misconduct. Such a ruling allows the jury to usurp the role of the Court, in contravention of Florida law.

Allowing the jury to consider litigation misconduct is not only inappropriate; it is unquestionably prejudicial because of the obvious tendency of this sort of evidence to distract the jury from the underlying issues and taint the jury’s perception of the litigants involved. See Emerson Electric Co. v. Garcia, 623 So. 2d 523, 525 (Fla. 3rd DCA 1993) (jury’s verdict was tainted because the plaintiff’s counsel was permitted to accuse the defendant's counsel of discovery abuse); see also Werbungs Und Commerz Union Anstalt v. Collectors' Guild, 930 F.2d 1021, 1027 (2d Cir. 1991) (reversing jury verdict because court "permitted the jury to penalize [the defendant] for discovery abuse"); id., at 1028 (Mahoney, J., concurring in part and dissenting in part) ("the instruction regarding discovery abuse by [the defendant] improperly delegated to the jury the authority to participate, in effect, in the imposition of discovery sanctions that are the proper province of the district court"); Jim Gash, Punitive Damages, Other Acts Evidence, and the Constitution, 2004 Utah L. Rev. 1191, 1212 (2004) (introduction of evidence of a defendant's misconduct separate and apart from the allegations of the complaint "creates a real danger that it will be used improperly to punish the party against whom it is being offered. Consequently, whether or not the other acts evidence is relevant, it is almost always highly prejudicial, even devastating, to the party against whom it is offered. This naturally creates powerful incentives for parties to seek to introduce such evidence against their adversaries.").

B. Evidence Supporting Punitive Damages Must Relate to the Conduct That Provides the Basis for CPH's Claims.

The Court's Sanctions Orders allow the jury to consider the Court's findings of litigation misconduct when determining the propriety of punitive damages, in violation of the Due Process Clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment. See State Farm Mutual Auto Insurance v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408 (2003). Campbell emphasizes the Supreme Court's concern that evidence used to justify punitive damage awards must be closely related to the conduct that gives rise to the plaintiff's claim for punitive damages. "A defendant's dissimilar acts, independent from the acts upon which liability was premised, may not serve as the basis for punitive damages. A defendant should be punished for the conduct that harmed the plaintiff, not for being an unsavory individual or business." Id. at 422-23.

Here, the approach employed by the Court expressly authorizes the jury to award punitive damages based on litigation conduct, rather than the conduct that gives rise to CPH's claims (i.e., Morgan Stanley's alleged participation in the Sunbeam fraud). Allowing the jury to consider litigation misconduct when deciding punitive damages creates the very real possibility that the jury will award punitive damages based on conduct wholly unrelated to CPH's claims. And, of course, once findings of litigation misconduct are submitted to the jury, it will be impossible for any reviewing court to determine the basis of any subsequent punitive damages award. See id. (rejecting argument that dissimilar evidence submitted to the jury did not form the basis of the punitive damages award.)

As such, it would violate Morgan Stanley's due process rights if the Court reads any statement concerning litigation misconduct to the jury, or if CPH is permitted to introduce any evidence of that litigation misconduct. Accordingly, the Court should reconsider and withdraw its decision to permit the jury to hear about and consider Morgan Stanley's litigation misconduct in any part of the trial.

II. THE COURT'S SANCTIONS ORDERS ARE IMPROPER, OVERBROAD, AND VIOLATE BOTH FLORIDA LAW AND MORGAN STANLEY'S CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS.

A. The Court's Sanctions Are Overly Harsh and Not Commensurate with the Litigation Misconduct Found.

It is well established that discovery sanctions must be commensurate with discovery misconduct. See Garden-Aire Vill. Sea Haven v. Decker, 433 So. 2d 676, 677 (Fla. 4th DCA 1983) (citing Hart v. Weaver, 364 So. 2d 524 (Fla. 2d DCA 1978)), and overturning entry of default judgment as a discovery sanction). There can be no question that the Court's Sanctions Orders impose drastic sanctions on Morgan Stanley. Indeed, the Court's sanctions deprive Morgan Stanley of any meaningful ability to defend against CPH's claims – including CPH's claim for punitive damages. By entering a de facto default on most of the elements of CPH's claims, the Court has so thoroughly stacked the deck that it would be impossible for Morgan Stanley to receive a fair and impartial trial. Put simply, the Court has imposed the harshest of sanctions.

The Court, however, never made any finding that Morgan Stanley's litigation misconduct actually affected CPH's ability to prosecute its claims for the underlying torts. It is axiomatic that Morgan Stanley's failure to produce documents could only have hindered CPH's prosecution if the documents that Morgan Stanley failed to produce were relevant to CPH's underlying tort claims.¹ For all anyone knows, the emails that have not been found – and that Morgan Stanley has requested additional time to retrieve and produce – may have nothing to do with any issue in this case and, for all anyone knows, might actually support Morgan Stanley's defense.

¹ The Sanctions Orders are also overbroad in that they purport to punish Morgan Stanley for the alleged violation of SEC regulations. See March 23 Order at 10 ("MS & Co. desperately wanted to hide an active SEC inquiry into its email retention practices."). Any discovery misconduct as it relates to the SEC, including Morgan Stanley's violation of SEC regulations, is inadmissible under the preemption doctrine established by Buckman Co. v. Plaintiffs' Legal Commission, 531 U.S. 341, 350 (2001). The Buckman Court held that allegations of fraud on federal agencies "inevitably conflict" with the federal policy of giving federal agencies broad discretion to balance their objectives in regulating disclosures made to them. Thus, the Supreme Court held that state law fraud-on-the-agency claims conflict with, and are therefore preempted by, federal law, finding that "[s]tate-law fraud-on-the-FDA claims inevitably conflict with the FDA's responsibility to police fraud consistently with the Administration's judgment and objectives." Id. at 350.

Thus, the Court has improperly issued "death penalty" sanctions without anything more than the possibility that the withheld documents could have been relevant. See generally New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. Royal Ins. Co., 559 So. 2d 102, 103 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990) (reversing judgment entered as discovery sanction because party requesting discovery failed to show prejudice). The Court erred in taking such a leap, and the consequences of the Court's error are dire – Morgan Stanley's rights under Florida law, the Florida and United States Constitutions have been violated.²

The purpose of Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.380(b) is to ensure compliance with the discovery rules and any court orders compelling discovery, not to punish or penalize the party in violation. See Garden-Aire Vill. Sea Haven v. Decker, 433 So. 2d 676, 677 (Fla. 4th DCA 1983) (citing Allstate Ins. Co. v. Biddy, 392 So. 2d 938 (Fla. 2d DCA 1980) ("The purpose of reposing in the trial court the authority to enter a default is to ensure compliance with its order, not to punish or penalize"); see also Carr v. Reese, 788 So. 2d 1067, 1072 (Fla. 2d DCA 2001) (reversing default judgment entered as discovery sanction); United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Strasser, 492 So. 2d 399, 402 (Fla. 4th DCA 1986) (same). Here, the Court issued sanctions that far exceed those required to ensure compliance with the Court's discovery orders and, by so doing, crossed the forbidden line into the realm of punishment.

² The Court's Sanctions Orders deprive Morgan Stanley of its day in court and thus are excessive. See Baker v. General Motors Corp., 86 F.3d 811, 817 (8th Cir. 1996) (internal citations omitted), rev'd on other grounds, 522 U.S. 222 (1998) ("As this court has stated previously, '[t]here is a strong policy favoring a trial on the merits and against depriving a party of his day in court.' ... The sanction in this case failed to achieve a balance between the policies of preventing discovery delays and deciding cases on the merits. Such a balance recognizes that the opportunity to be heard is a litigant's 'most precious right and should be sparingly denied.' ... GM was not given the right to be heard. Instead, the jury was asked, essentially, to place a monetary value on the loss of human life. Before issuing such a sanction, fairness required the court to consider whether a more 'just and effective' sanction was available. ... In this situation, other, less severe sanctions (including monetary fines against GM and continuances for the plaintiffs) were both available and appropriate. While we do not condone GM's failure to meet its discovery obligations, we find that the sanction chosen by the district court was simply too severe for the facts presented and should have been drawn more narrowly. ... By providing that the fuel pump was defective and continued to operate here, the sanction forced the jury to find for the plaintiffs. Although the case ostensibly proceeded to trial on the issue whether the defect 'directly caused or directly contributed to cause' Garner's death, in effect, the jury instructions had already decided the matter for the jury. Because the district court abused its discretion in entering such a broad sanction, we reverse for imposition of a lesser sanction and for a new trial.").

B. The Sanctions Orders Impermissibly Instruct the Jury to Award Punitive Damages and Preclude Morgan Stanley from Introduction Mitigating Evidence.

The law is clear that the Court cannot instruct the jury to award punitive damages. See Humana Health Ins. Co. of Fla. v. Chipps, 802 So. 2d 492 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001); see also FSJI PD 1 a.(2)(a) ("Punitive damages are warranted if you find by clear and convincing evidence ...") (emphasis added). And although the Court may not be proposing to give that exact instruction, the Court's proposed instructions are different only in form, not in substance.³ The Court has held that the jury will be instructed that it must take as true for all purposes the Court's findings that Morgan Stanley has engaged in the conduct alleged in the First Amended Complaint. In other words, the jury will effectively be instructed that the Court has all but found that punitive damages are ³ Although the Court has repeatedly stated that its orders were not defaults, the Court has on at least one occasion noted that its Order was effectively a default. Hrg. Tran. of March 31, 2005 at p 11 In any event, describing the effect of the Orders as anything other than a default clearly fails the "duck" test. See Florida Bar v. Neiman, 816 So. 2d 587, 599 (Fla. 2002) ("In common parlance, Neiman's activities fail the 'duck' test. That is, in common parlance, one would expect that if it looks like a duck, and walks, talks, and acts like a duck, one can usually safely assume it is a duck"); North Broward Hosp. Dist. v. Eldred, 466 So. 2d 1210, 1211 (Fla. 4th DCA 1985) ("we are convinced that if it looks, walks, quacks and swims like a duck, that is what it is").

appropriate⁴, thus denying Morgan Stanley of any of the constitutional protections accorded a defendant in this quasi-criminal proceeding. See Campbell, 123 S. Ct. at 1520 (recognizing that punitive damages “serve the same purposes as criminal penalties”); Oberg, 512 U.S. at 420 (recognizing that the Court has strongly emphasized the importance of the procedural component of the Due Process Clause in dealing with punitive damages issues).

In Humana, the trial court struck the defendant’s pleading as a sanction for discovery misconduct and entered a default judgment. 802 So. 2d at 494. At trial, the sole issue for the jury was damages. After the close of the evidence, the court instructed the jury “that all of the other factors in the standard jury instruction on punitive damages were established as a matter of law, and that [the plaintiff was] ‘entitled’ to recover both compensatory and punitive damages as a matter of law.” Id. at 495. The court further instructed the jury that “Humana’s conduct was ‘so gross and flagrant as to show a reckless disregard of human life or the safety of person exposed to the effects of its conduct’” and that “Humana’s conduct ‘showed such an entire lack of care that Humana must have wantonly and recklessly disregarded the safety and welfare of the public.’” Id. at 496. The court did not instruct the jury that it had the discretion not to award punitive damages. Id. Not surprisingly, the jury awarded approximately $1.1 million in compensatory damages and $78.5 million in punitive damages against Humana. Id.

⁴ In order for the case to proceed to the punitive phase, the jury will also be required to find the elements of reliance and damages by clear and convincing evidence. See Defendant’s Motion to Clarify the Proper Scope of the Liability and Punitive Phases of Trial.

On appeal, the Fourth District held that the trial court's instructions on punitive damages invaded the clear province of the jury by characterizing the conduct of Humana. Id. at 495-96 (court's instructions "interfered with the jury's fact-finding function by characterizing and summarizing the evidence"). In reaching this conclusion, the Fourth District emphasized that even though the trial court had entered a default judgment on the entitlement to punitive damages, "[t]he jury could have awarded no punitive damages if it had determined that Humana's conduct was not as egregious as the court's instruction made it out to be." Id. Thus, the court held that: "While there is overlap between the issues of entitlement to punitive damages and the amount of such damages to be awarded, care should have been taken to let the jury arrive at its own decision regarding the egregiousness of the defendant's conduct." Id. (citing Bankers Multiple Line Ins. Co. v. Farish, 464 So. 2d 530, 532 (Fla. 1985)).

The Fourth District further held that the trial court "improperly prevented Humana from introducing mitigating evidence to rebut testimony that Humana's managed care practices violated industry standards." Humana, 802 So. 2d at 496. Evidence of this sort was relevant to the egregiousness of Humana's conduct and could have impacted the punitive damages award. Id. Thus, the Fourth District held that the jury should have been permitted to consider "evidence which would have had the effect of 'reducing or softening the moral or social culpability attaching to [the defendant's] act...'" McClelland v. Climax Hosiery Mills, 252 N.Y. 347, 169 N.E. 605, 608 (1930) (Cardozo, C.J., concurring); see also St. Regis Paper Co. v. Watson, 428 So. 2d 243, 246-47 (Fla. 1983) (holding the jury, in assessing punitive damages should consider 'the nature, extent, and enormity of the wrong, the intent of the party committing it and all circumstances attending the particular incident, as well as any mitigating circumstances') (citation omitted)." Id.

In sum, therefore, the Fourth District held that: (i) a trial court may not interfere with the jury's fact finding role with respect to punitive damages by characterizing the defendant's conduct and summarizing the evidence that would support a punitive damages award; and (ii) a defendant defending a punitive damages claim must be allowed to present mitigating evidence regarding reprehensibility. The Court's Sanctions Orders violate both of these principles. At a minimum, Humana mandates that this Court instruct the jury that the jury has the discretion not to award punitive damages and that the Court allow Morgan Stanley to put on evidence to rebut CPH's claim that punitive damages are warranted in the first instance, and further to put on evidence to defend against the amount of punitive damages, even if that evidence conflicts with the Court's default findings.

C. The Sanctions Orders Violate Morgan Stanley's Constitutional Rights.

This Court's decision on how it intends to conduct the trial of this case necessarily deprives Morgan Stanley of its right to a fair trial on the issue of punitive damages. As the United States Supreme Court has recognized, punitive damages are imposed to redress the state's interest in punishing and deterring unlawful conduct and therefore serve the same purposes as criminal penalties. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. v Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 416 (2003). Unlike criminal defendants, however, civil defendants "have not been accorded the protections applicable in a criminal proceeding." Id. at 417-18. As a result, the Supreme Court has expressed grave concern "over the imprecise manner in which punitive damages systems are administered.” Id. There is also concern for the potential of juries to “use their verdicts to express biases against big businesses, particularly those without strong local presences.” Id. at 417 (quoting Honda Motor Co v. Oberg, 512 U.S. 415, (1994)). This danger is exacerbated by vague instructions and lack of appropriate guidance for juries in their duty of “assigning appropriate weight to evidence that is relevant and not evidence that is only tangential or only inflammatory.” Id.

In this case, reading the Court’s findings during trial and permitting Plaintiff to bolster those findings with (in accordance with the Court’s statements during hearings) un rebuttable evidence, the Court’s instructions will undoubtedly serve to inflame and unduly prejudice the jury in its consideration of whether to award punitive damages against Morgan Stanley. The Court has relieved CPH of any burden of proving serious misconduct and has indicated that it will instruct the jury that Morgan Stanley is guilty of numerous inflammatory charges made by CPH, including but not limited to the Court’s findings that:

- Morgan Stanley developed a strategy for Sunbeam to use its “fraudulently-inflated” stock in the acquisition of Coleman.
- Morgan Stanley decided not to correct “material misrepresentations.”
- Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in “concealing” problems.
- Morgan Stanley provided Sunbeam with a “plan that would allow [it] to conceal [the] fraud.”
- “Morgan Stanley’s strategy was doubly deceptive.”
- “Morgan Stanley prepared and provided CPH with false financial and business information.”
- “Morgan Stanley misrepresented Sunbeam’s financial performance.”

042676

- “Morgan Stanley did not correct any of the false and misleading statements it and Sunbeam had made.”
- “[W]ith Morgan Stanley’s knowledge and assistance, Sunbeam prepared and issued a false press release that affirmatively misstated and concealed Sunbeam’s true condition.”
- “As Morgan Stanley was fully aware, the March 19, 1998 press release was false, misleading, and failed to disclose material information.”
- Morgan Stanley knew that if the transactions did not close, it “would not be paid its $10.28 million fee for the Coleman acquisition or its $22.5 million fee for underwriting the subordinated debenture offering.”
- “Morgan Stanley received $22.5 million for the subordinated debenture offering and $10.28 million for the Coleman acquisition.”
- “Morgan Stanley participated in a scheme to mislead CPH and others and cover up the massive fraud at Sunbeam until Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam could close the purchase of Coleman.”
- “Morgan Stanley provided CPH with false information.”
- “Morgan Stanley also actively assisted Sunbeam in concealing Sunbeam’s disastrous first quarter ...”
- “Morgan Stanley knew that its statements to were materially false and misleading and omitted the true facts.”
- “Morgan Stanley intended that CPH rely on Morgan Stanley’s representations concerning Sunbeam.”
- “Morgan Stanley knew of Dunlap’s fraudulent scheme and helped to conceal it.”
- “Morgan Stanley “script[ed] Dunlap’s false public statements.”
- “Morgan Stanley conspired with Dunlap and other senior Sunbeam executives to conceal the truth about Sunbeam’s financial performance and business operations.”
- “Morgan Stanley committed overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy.”

042677

The Court has stated that it will instruct the jury that these unproven facts must be taken as true for all purposes and that the jury may consider these "facts" – as to which no witness will have testified and no documentary evidence submitted -- and other equally damning conclusions (such as the Court's findings of litigation misconduct) in assessing punitive damages. As if this were not enough, the Court stated that it will in effect tell the jury that Morgan Stanley has admitted these facts as true, when it most certainly has not. And further still, the Court has precluded Morgan Stanley from presenting any evidence or testimony to contradict the findings of the Court or the evidence adduced by CPH.

Thus, the Court has officially sanctioned a process in which CPH will be allowed to elicit additional testimony and evidence on these issues even though the jury will have already been instructed that the allegations are true. Again, the Court has forbidden Morgan Stanley to take issue with that evidence or challenge it in any way. In so doing, the Court has substituted its judgment for that of the jury on the essential elements of the case and has virtually preordained that the jury will have no choice but to render a verdict for the compensatory damages CPH seeks.⁵

⁵ Depriving Morgan Stanley of the right to put on evidence fails the three-part test established by the U.S. Supreme Court in Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 335 (1976), and refined in Connecticut v. Doehr, 501 U.S. 1 (1991), and thus, violates the Due Process Clause. Under that test, the Court must consider (1) the private interest affected by the challenged procedures; (2) the risk of an erroneous deprivation of that interest presented by those procedures and the probable value of additional safeguards; and (3) the interest of the opposing party, with due regard for any interest the State may have in utilizing the challenged procedure or forgoing the burden associated with providing additional safeguards. Doehr, 501 U.S. at 11. Here, Morgan Stanley's interest in defending against the quasi-criminal punitive damages claim is substantial. In contrast, the only possible justification for conducting a one-sided punitive damages trial is to punish the defendant for its failure to properly respond to discovery. But that objective has already been satisfied by the imposition of other sanctions such as awarding CPH its attorneys fees and costs. Moreover, allowing a fair fight would impose no undue burden on the State since that is the way civil (and criminal) litigation customarily is conducted.

Moreover, in adopting the First Amended Complaint's highly prejudicial and inflammatory language, the Court in effect makes those words its own. The bias and passion of these inflammatory words will indisputably and profoundly affect a jury sitting within the boundaries of the Court's state-sanctioned authority. At best, the jury will be confused by its role in returning a verdict for compensatory or punitive damages, and at worst, the jury will believe that the Court is mandating a verdict that will punish conduct the Court has already judicially decreed as being fraudulent, misleading, deceptive, and motivated by monetary gain. The process put into place by the Court's Sanctions Orders dispenses with any pretense of conducting a fair trial and ignores the constitutional constraints on the imposition of punitive damages against civil defendants.

Pursuant to BMW of North America, Inc. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559, 574-75 (1996), reviewing courts must assess punitive damages in light of three guideposts: (i) the degree of reprehensibility of the defendant's misconduct; (2) the disparity between the actual or potential harm suffered by the plaintiff and the punitive damages award; and (3) the difference between the punitive damages awarded by the jury and the civil penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases. Further, the failure to provide meaningful judicial review of the amount of punitive damage awards offends the due process right to be free of grossly excessive punitive damage awards. See Honda Motor Co., Ltd. v. Oberg, 512 U.S. 415 (1994) (striking down provision in Oregon Constitution that prohibited judicial review where the sole challenge was excessiveness); Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. v. Ballard, 749 So. 2d 483 (Fla. 1999). As the U.S. Supreme Court explained, "In the case before us today, we are not directly concerned with the character of the standard that will identify unconstitutionally excessive awards; rather we are confronted with the question of what procedures are necessary to ensure that punitive damages are not imposed in an arbitrary manner.” Oberg, 512 U.S. at 420. The Court ultimately held that judicial review must be available as a procedural safeguard to violation of a defendant’s due process rights.

If the Court follows the procedures outlined in its Sanctions Orders, it will be impossible to apply the Gore criteria post-verdict to any award of punitive damages. The Court has mandated that the jury determine whether punitive damages are appropriate without any defense by Morgan Stanley. And according to this Court’s March 23 Order, the jury will be instructed that it can consider Morgan Stanley’s actions, as enumerated by the Court, in “determining whether an award of punitive damages is appropriate.” Therefore, if the jury returns a verdict for punitive damages, this Court (and later appellate courts) will be charged with reviewing the jury’s verdict for reasonableness and in light of the Gore factors. The reviewing court will be severely hamstrung, however, because there will be no meaningful way to assess the Gore factors in the record when Morgan Stanley has been precluded from introducing evidence relevant to those factors.

Finally, the Court’s sanctions Orders violate Morgan Stanley’s due process rights to the extent that the Court has deemed admitted allegations of misconduct that may have been legal in the jurisdictions in which they took place. See State Farm Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 1522 (2003)(“A State cannot punish a defendant for conduct that may have been lawful where it occurred) (emphasis added); Id. at 1522-23 (“A jury must be instructed, furthermore, that it may not use evidence of out-of-state conduct to punish a defendant for action that was lawful in the jurisdiction where it occurred.”);

BMW of N. Am. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559, 672 (1996) ("[A] State may not impose economic sanctions on violators of its laws with the intent of changing the tortfeasors' lawful conduct in other states.")

The manner in which this Court has decreed that the trial of this case will be conducted thus violates the Fifth, Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments of the Constitution of the United States, as well Section 2 and 9 of Article 1 of the Florida Constitution. These constitutional infirmities require reconsideration of the Court's Sanctions Orders. At the very least, the Court should allow Morgan Stanley to cross-examine witnesses to establish their credibility, bias, and motive.

CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reason, Defendant Morgan Stanley respectfully requests that this Court reconsider its March 1st and 23rd Orders. Reconsideration of the Sanctions order, coupled with granting the previously requested continuance, would permit a fair trial on the merits and serve the interests of justice. The discovery problems could be addressed. (See Affidavit of Richard Anfang.) Both sides could fairly contest the issues on the merits. The cost to the CPH necessitated by the failures in discovery and any delay, and to the judicial system, would be borne by Morgan Stanley. That cost would be in addition to the monetary sanctions the Court has already imposed (and could additionally impose) on Morgan Stanley for violations of the Court's orders.

CIRCUIT IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY, FLORIDA

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,
Plaintiff,

vs.

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED,
Defendant.

Affidavit of Richard Anfang

I, Richard Anfang, being first duly sworn under oath, and under penalty of perjury, declare and state as follows:

1. I am a Managing Director of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, working in Morgan Stanley's Information Technology Division. My business address is 750 7th Avenue, New York, NY 10020. I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein unless otherwise indicated.

2. After the hearing held by the Court on February 14, 2005 in this matter, I became personally involved in overseeing Morgan Stanley's attempts to cure defects in its previous email productions to CPH and to provide as complete an email production as possible to CPH by no later than March 21, 2005.

3. In its March 23, 2005 Order on CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment (the "Order", attached hereto as Exhibit A), the Court identified a number of issues of concern relating to Morgan Stanley's email productions in this matter. Specifically, the Court cited:

042685

- The fact that the scripts Morgan Stanley used to process emails into the Archive caused the bodies of some messages to be truncated (see Order at 11);
- An error in the scripts used to migrate emails from SDLT onto the Archive, causing the loss of what was believed to be approximately 5% of the harvested emails, based on a sample (see id.);
- An analysis requested by the SEC showing that, of a sample of 199 (out of approximately 12,000) tapes, approximately 10% appear to have been overwritten after January 2001 (see id.);
- A software error that prevented the capture of blind carbon copies by the Archive (see id. at 12);
- Certain searches having been conducted using case-sensitive user names (see id.);
- For a time, email group membership for periods prior to early 2003 having been based on group membership as of early 2003, and therefore not reflecting changes to group membership prior to that time (see id.; see also Letter to the SEC, dated February 24, 2005 (“February 24 Letter”), attached hereto as Exhibit B);
- Notwithstanding Morgan Stanley’s understanding to the contrary, (see Transcript of 3/14/05 Hearing at 3646-49, attached hereto as Exhibit C), our third-party vendor National Data Conversion Institute (“NDCI”) not having searched all available tapes for emails from certain legacy mail systems that had been in use at Morgan Stanley prior to 2000, including CCMail (see Order at 13); and

- Between approximately February 23 and March 5, 2005, Morgan Stanley's discovery of tapes that we do not believe previously had been processed by NDCI as part of the process of migrating pre-2003 emails onto the Archive. Specifically found were: 282 tapes in communications rooms in Morgan Stanley IT spaces across North America; 3,536 tapes found in a secure IT storage area in Morgan Stanley's IT facility in Brooklyn, NY; 389 tapes found as a result of physical searches of the workspaces of IT personnel in North America; and 2,718 tapes found by Recall, Morgan Stanley's off-site storage vendor, after Morgan Stanley insisted that Recall conduct a physical search of its facilities, see id.

4. It is my understanding and belief that a significant number of these issues have already been resolved, such that they would not affect a search conducted today for emails responsive to the search terms set forth in the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order (the "Agreed Order").

5. As the Court recognized in the Order, Morgan Stanley has remedied the issue relating to case-sensitivity in inquiries. See id. at 12. I understand that this issue was resolved in advance of Morgan Stanley's productions to CPH earlier in March 2005, and would not be an issue if Morgan Stanley were permitted to re-run searches for responsive emails in the future.

6. Similarly, the issue of group email membership was largely resolved in advance of Morgan Stanley's productions to CPH earlier in March 2005, see February 24 Letter at 1-2, and the resolution would be equally effective for subsequent searches Morgan Stanley undertook in connection with this litigation.

7. The issue of blind carbon copies has not affected searches for emails responsive to the Agreed Order. As the February 24 Letter makes clear, that issue affects users of Microsoft Exchange, the use of which began at Morgan Stanley no earlier than August 2003. See id. at 3.

8. While the Court expressed concern that 10% of the tapes in a sample requested by the SEC appear to have been overwritten after January 2001, this does not mean that Morgan Stanley lost 10% of the unique emails on those tapes. There was significant redundancy in the email backup systems Morgan Stanley utilized in the relevant periods; the preservation of tapes was a prophylactic measure that could preserve multiple copies of any particular email. In fact, in light of the system of multiple backups, and the fact that each email would have been backed up off of the systems of the sender and recipient(s), Morgan Stanley believes that, of the tapes about which the SEC inquired, as a statistical matter, it is likely that only 1.2% of the unique email on those overwritten tapes would have been lost. See February 10, 2005 letter to the SEC (the "Wells Response"), attached hereto as Exhibit D, at 15-20. Of course, if only 1.2% of the unique emails on the overwritten tapes were likely lost, it stands to reason that this overwriting resulted in a loss of far less than 1% of the overall quantum of unique emails that had been preserved on backup tapes.

9. Morgan Stanley also continues to make diligent and significant efforts to remediate those problems the Court identified in the Order that remain unresolved.

10. With regard to the tapes that were found in February and March 2005 and had not been processed previously by NDCI,¹ many of these tapes (starting with the tapes we believe are most likely to contain email from earlier time periods) have been processed by NDCI in the last few weeks. Morgan Stanley already has uploaded approximately 7 million unique emails from these tapes onto the Archive. NDCI is processing the remaining tapes (other than the 318 tapes that Renew Data has not yet returned to Morgan Stanley) on an expedited basis, and I understand that they currently expect to have completed processing the production email on the tapes within two months.

11. In processing these tapes, NDCI has been directed to look for, extract, and process CCMail and other legacy mail systems that might have been in use at Morgan Stanley prior to 2000. It is my understanding that NDCI has been seeking, finding, and extracting limited amounts of such production mail.

12. We currently are considering how best to resolve the message truncation issue that occurred in the course of the migration process, as well as the problem of emails lost in the migration from SDLT onto the Archive. For purposes of this litigation, I believe these issues should have been solved by two of the searches we directed to be conducted in March 2005: the search of the SDLTs NDCI had, and the search of the DLTs that contained the earliest known full backup, if any, for each of the 36 users identified in the Agreed Order. My understanding is that both these searches were conducted, looking for emails responsive to the search terms of the Agreed Order, and that neither the truncated message nor migration loss issue would have affected these searches. Indeed, it is my understanding that these searches yielded additional emails, which were produced to CPH, that were not found on the Archive.

13. The search of SDLTs for emails responsive to the search terms of the Agreed Order could be run again once NDCI has completed processing the newly-found tapes, including extracting CCMail or other types of production email not previously extracted.

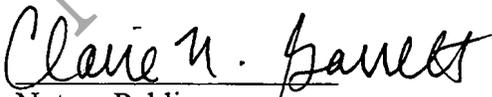

14. Based on my understanding that NDCI expects to complete processing the tapes within two months, I believe that a supplemental search of the SDLTs could likely be completed within three months from today. I further believe that this approach would yield responsive email, if any, found on the over 40,000 backup tapes, and over 8 billion emails, that NDCI will have processed by the time of such supplemental search.

I declare, under penalty of perjury, that the above statements are true and correct.

This 2nd day of April, 2005.

CASE NO. CA 03-5045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

ORDER ON CPH'S RENEWED MOTION FOR ENTRY OF DEFAULT JUDGMENT

THIS CAUSE came before the Court March 14 and 15, 2005, on CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment, with both parties well represented by counsel.

Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"), has sued Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS & Co."), for aiding and abetting and conspiring with Sunbeam to perpetrate a fraud. Early in the case, CPH was concerned that MS & Co. was not thoroughly looking for emails responsive to its discovery requests. On April 16, 2004, the Court entered an Agreed Order ("Agreed Order") that required MS & Co. to search its oldest full backup tapes for emails subject to certain parameters and certify compliance. MS & Co. certified compliance with the Agreed Order on June 23, 2004. On November 17, 2004, CPH learned that MS & Co. had found some backup tapes that had not been searched. On January 26, 2005 it served its Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order ("Adverse Inference Motion"), claiming that MS & Co.'s violation of the Agreed Order, coupled with its systemic overwriting of emails after 12 months, justified an adverse inference against it. The Court ordered certain limited discovery. Responses to that discovery prompted CPH to orally amend its Adverse Inference Motion to seek more severe sanctions.

The Court held an evidentiary hearing on the Adverse Inference Motion on February

14, 2005. On March 1, 2005 it issued its Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order ("Adverse Inference Order"). In its current Motion, CPH argues that it has since learned that the discovery abuses addressed in the Adverse Inference Motion and Order represent only a sampling of discovery abuses perpetrated by MS & Co. and that the abuses have continued, unabated. It claims that these abuses, when taken as a whole, infect the entire case. To understand CPH's argument, it is necessary to go back to the beginning.

This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which CPH sold its 82% interest in the Coleman Company, Inc., to Sunbeam Corporation. MS & Co. served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000.00 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the cash portion of the deal.

CPH's Complaint¹ alleged claims against MS & Co. arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy, and sought damages of at least $485 million.

On May 12, 2003, MS & Co. was served with the Complaint and CPH's First Request for Production of Documents ("Request"). The Request sought, in essence, all documents connected with the Sunbeam deal. "Documents" was broadly defined, and specifically included items electronically stored. Concerned that, out of more than 8,000 pages of documents produced, it had received only a handful of emails, CPH on October 29, 2003, served its Motion to Compel Concerning E-Mails. That motion sought an order requiring MS & Co. to make a full investigation for email messages, including a search of magnetic tapes and hard drives; produce within 10 days all emails located; and produce a Rule 1.310 witness within 20 days "to describe the search that was conducted, identify any gaps in Morgan Stanley's production, and explain the reasons for any gaps."

In its Opposition to Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion to Compel served November 4, 2003, MS & Co. argued that CPH wanted "this Court to order a massive safari into the remote corners of MS & Co.'s email backup systems" and represented that "(t)he restoration efforts demanded by CPH would cost at least hundreds of thousands of dollars and require several months to complete (emphasis in original). MS & Co. argued that CPH's "true" motive was to "harass and burden MS & Co. with unnecessary and costly discovery demands and attempt to smear MS & Co. with out-of-context recitations from other proceedings" because "CPH concedes that MS & Co. is only able to restore email from backup tapes from January 2000 and later - more than a year and a half after the events that allegedly gave rise to CPH's claims," (emphasis in original).

CPH's "concession" was based on representations like the kind made to it by MS & Co.'s counsel in a March 11, 2004 letter that suggested "(t)he burden on Morgan Stanley from . . . a wholesale restoration [of email back up tapes], both in terms of dollars and manpower would be enormous. Regardless of who performs the initial restoration, it would require hundreds (perhaps thousands) of attorney-hours to review millions of irrelevant and non-responsive e-mails . . ."²

In response to CPH's Motion to Compel, the parties agreed to reciprocal corporate

²Complaints about MS & Co.'s tactics are not new. See Ex. 196 [February 26, 2004, letter from EEOC to Hon. Ronald L. Ellis in EEOC/Schieffelin v. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., et al., 01-CV-8421 (RMB) (RLE) (S.D.N.Y.): "(w)hen EEOC received [Morgan Stanley's] January 27, 2004 Responses to EEOC's Fifth Requests for Production of Documents which did not contain any e-mails, the parties communicated further. At that time, Morgan Stanley took the position that searching for e-mails would be burdensome both in regards to expense and the time it would take to respond. While the parties were in the process of attempting to work out these disputes, EEOC for the first time learned that [Morgan Stanley has] an easy, systematic ability to search for relevant documents. In a February 16, 2004, conversation with an IT representative of [Morgan Stanley], EEOC learned that [Morgan Stanley has] an e-mail system, which, while not yet fully comprehensive, was easily searchable on February 18, 2004, the close of discovery . . . which is certain to produce discoverable information highly relevant to EEOC's and Plaintiff-Intervenor's claims . . . After disclosing their state-of-the-art system to EEOC, [Morgan Stanley] dropped [its] assertion that the process was too expensive, but maintained that they refuse to search for e-mails because it is burdensome for attorneys to review large numbers of documents prior to production.")

depositions on the email issue. CPH deposed Robert Saunders on February 10, 2004.³ After completion of the corporate representative depositions, and unable to obtain MS & Co.'s agreement to a mutual email restoration protocol, CPH served its Motion for Permission to have Third Party Retrieve Morgan Stanley E-Mail and Other Responsive Documents, proposing that a third party vendor be given access to both parties' email systems for restoration at each party's expense. At the hearing on that Motion, CPH offered to split the expenses evenly. MS & Co. refused.

MS & Co.'s continued assertions that the email searches could be conducted only at enormous cost and would be fruitless because there were not backup tapes with email from 1997 and 1998 were confirmed to the Court by MS & Co.'s counsel, Thomas Clare of Kirkland & Ellis, at a hearing held March 19, 2004:

Mr. Scarola: Electronic records of e-mails that have been exchanged.

The Court: Do we agree that there has been such a request outstanding?

Mr. Clare: There has been a request outstanding.

The Court: And have you all objected?

Mr. Clare: From the beginning.

The Court: And what's the basis of the objection?

Mr. Clare: We objected to the breadth of the request that they're making. And to answer Your Honor's question directly – and the burden that is associated with it – that given the particular e-mail back-up tapes that are in existence five, six years after the fact of these transactions, that the scope of the e-mail request that they are seeking is improperly and unduly burdensome given the enormous costs that would be required, given the fact that the time period for which we have back-up tapes post dates the events by several years.

Unable to resolve the email issue, on April 9, 2004, CPH served its Motion to Compel ³Saunders provided misleading information in his deposition. See footnote 12, infra.

Concerning E-Mails and Other Electronic Documents. On the eve of the hearing on CPH's Motion to Compel, the parties reached an accommodation, and on April 16, 2004 the Court entered the Agreed Order. Under the Agreed Order, MS & Co. was required to (1) search the oldest full backup tape for each of 36 MS & Co. employees involved in the Sunbeam transaction; (2) review emails dated from February 15, 1998, through April 15, 1998, and emails containing any of 29 specified search terms such as "Sunbeam" and "Coleman" regardless of their date; (3) produce by May 14, 2004, all nonprivileged emails responsive to CPH's document requests; (4) give CPH a privilege log; and (5) certify its full compliance with the Agreed Order.

As required by the Agreed Order, MS & Co. produced about 1,300 pages of emails on May 14, 2004. It did not, however, certify compliance with the Agreed Order. After prompting by CPH, on June 23, 2004, MS & Co. served a certificate of compliance signed by Arthur Riel, an Executive Director and manager of its Law/Compliance IT Group.⁴

CPH got its first indication that the Agreed Order may have been violated in the late fall of 2004.

On November 17, 2004, Clare wrote Michael Brody of Jenner & Block, CPH's outside counsel, that MS & Co. had "discovered additional e-mail backup tapes . . ."; that "(t)he data on some of [the] newly discovered tapes has been restored;" that "we have re-run the searches described in [the Agreed Order]"; that "some responsive e-mails have been located as a result of that process"; and that "(w)e will produce the responsive documents to you as soon as the production is finalized."

On December 14, 2004, Brody wrote Clare back:

in [your November 17, 2004 letter], you state that Morgan Stanley located additional email backup tapes, and that you would be producing documents soon. Within two days of that letter, you produced some emails to us. In your November 17, 2004 letter, however, you also indicated that "some of the backup tapes are still being restored." Have those backup tapes been restored? Have you found additional responsive emails? If so, when will Morgan Stanley produce those emails? How is it that the tapes were only recently located?

⁴Though CPH would not learn for months that the certificate was false, and even then the magnitude of MS & Co.'s misrepresentations would not be admitted, MS & Co. personnel, including in-house counsel, knew the certification of compliance was false when made.

On December 17, 2004, Clare wrote back, telling Brody "(n)o additional responsive e-mails have been located since our November production."⁵

Brody wrote back to Clare December 30, 2004, noting the deficiencies in Clare's correspondence:

You do not inform us whether the review of the recently-located backup tapes still is ongoing. Please confirm that all email backup tapes from the relevant time period have been reviewed and all responsive emails have been produced. If the review still is proceeding, please let us know when the review will be completed.

Clare wrote back on January 11, 2005, telling Brody that the "restoration of e-mail backup tapes is ongoing. Restoration of the next set of backup tapes is estimated to be completed at the end of January. We intend to re-run the searches described in the agreed order at that time."

Concerned about Clare's lack of candor, on January 19, 2005 Brody wrote again:

I write in response to your January 11, 2005 letter concerning e-mails back-up tapes. Unfortunately, your letter raises more questions than it answers. As I requested in my December 14, 2004 letter, please explain the circumstances under which Morgan Stanley located these backup tapes and advise us of the date on which the tapes were located.

⁵Not only does this letter fail to answer Brody's legitimate questions, it implies that MS &Co. was still processing and reviewing emails from the newly found tapes. As we now know, though, no additional information was migrated to the archives between approximately August 18, 2004 and January 15, 2005. Of course "no additional responsive e-mails [would have been] located."

Further, please explain your statement that "the next set of backup tapes" is scheduled to be restored "at the end of January." How many tapes will be restored by the end of January? When exactly in January will Morgan Stanley complete the process of restoring and searching these tapes for responsive documents? Are there other backup tapes that are not yet in the process of being restored? If so, please advise us of (a) the number of tapes that are not yet in the process of being restored; (b) the time period of the data contained on those tapes; and (c) Morgan Stanley's timetable for restoring and searching those tapes. In addition, please explain why those tapes are not yet in the process of being restored. Please also explain why Morgan Stanley cannot complete the restoration and searching of all remaining backup tapes before "the end of January." As you know, our trial is scheduled to begin on February 22, 2005.

We look forward your complete response to these questions no later than January 21, 2005 so that we can bring this matter to the Court's attention, if necessary.

Conforming to what was by now his usual stonewall tactic, Clare responded by letter dated January 21, 2005:

I write in response to your January 19, 2005 letter regarding Morgan Stanley's production of e-mails restored from backup tapes.

Morgan Stanley completed its initial production of restored e-mail messages on May 14, 2005. The May 2004 production was conducted in accordance with the agreed-upon order governing, and the searches that resulted in that production encompassed data from all of the backup tapes known to exist at the time. Subsequent to the May 2004 production, additional tapes were found in various locations at Morgan Stanley. The discovered tapes were not clearly labeled as to their contents, were not found in locations where e-mail backup tapes customarily were stored, and many of the tapes were in a different format than other e-mail backup tapes. In November 2004, once it was determined at least some of the discovered tapes contained recoverable e-mail data, Morgan Stanley re-ran the searches described in the agreed-upon order. Those searches resulted in Morgan Stanley's November 2004 production.

Morgan Stanley's efforts to restore the backup tapes discovered after the May 2004 production are ongoing. It is a time-consuming and painstaking process and, given the absence of clear labels or other index information for the backup tapes, there is no way for Morgan Stanley to know or accurately predict the type or time period of data that might be recovered from tapes that have yet to be restored. While Morgan Stanley cannot accurately estimate when all of the tapes will be restored or whether any recoverable data will be found on the remaining tapes, we understand from Morgan Stanley that, when the agreed-upon searches are run again at the end of January, those searches will include approximately one terabyte of additional data restored since the prior production.

On January 26, 2005, CPH served its Adverse Inference Motion, seeking sanctions based on MS & Co.'s disclosure of the newly found tapes. Hearing was scheduled for February 14, 2005. In preparation for that hearing, on February 3, 2005 the Court ordered MS & Co. to produce by noon on February 8, 2005 "(i) all documents to be referred to or relied on by any of the witnesses in his or her testimony; and (ii) all documents within MS & Co.'s care, custody, or control, addressing or related to the additional email backup tapes, including matters relating to the time or manner in which they were discovered; by whom they were discovered; who else learned of their discovery and when; and the manner and timetable by which they were to be restored and made searchable, including any correspondence to or from outside or prospective outside vendors."

later than May of 2004; the undisclosed discovery of the 738 8-millimeter backup tapes in 2002; the presence of unsearched data in the staging area; the discovery of 169 DLT tapes in January 2005; the discovery of more than 200 additional tapes on February 11 and 12, 2005; the discovery of a script error that had prevented MS & Co. from locating responsive email attachments; and discovery of another script error that had infected the ability to gather emails from Lotus Notes platform users.

In response to these deficiencies, the Court issued the Adverse Inference Order. That Order reversed the burden of proof on the aiding and abetting and conspiracy elements and included a statement of evidence of MS & Co.'s efforts to hide its emails to be read to the jury, as relevant to both its consciousness of guilt and the appropriateness of punitive damages. It specifically provided that "MS & Co. shall continue to use its best efforts to comply with the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order and . . . February 4, 2005 Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ore tenus Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Back Up Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search."⁶

It is now clear why MS & Co. was so unwilling to provide CPH with basic information about how and when the tapes were found or when production would be complete. First, candor would have required MS & Co. to admit that it had not done a good faith search for the oldest full backup tapes, and that Riel's certificate of compliance was false. Some unsearched tapes had been found by 2002; others had been found no later than May, 2004. Together, over 2,000 tapes had been found which were not searched prior to the May production. It is untrue that the tapes were "not in locations where e-mail backup tapes customarily were stored."

⁶Concerned that MS & Co. had been less than candid with both CPH and the Court, on February 4, 2004, the Court entered its Order on Coleman (Parent) Holding's ore tenus Motion to Participate in Search of Additional E-Mail Backup Tapes or Appoint Third Party to Conduct Search, ordering MS & Co. to pay for a third party vendor to check its compliance with the Agreed Order. The Court previously found that the two scripts errors testified to by Allison Gorman at the February 14, 2005, hearing would not have been discovered or revealed without the threat that the third-party vendor would discover the errors. Given Ms. Gorman's testimony at the March 14, 2005, hearing, though, it now appears MS & Co. knew about the errors before the appointment of the third-party vendor. Consequently, the errors were only revealed, but not discovered, in response to the February 4, 2004, Order.

Second, MS & Co. desperately wanted to hide an active SEC inquiry into its email retention practices.^{7 8 9 10} Finally, MS & Co. did not want to admit the existence of the historical email archive, which would expose the false representations it had made to the Court and used to induce CPH to agree to entry of the Agreed Order.^{11 12}

⁷On December 17, 2003, CPH served its Third Request for Production seeking "(a)ll materials and documents submitted to the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), received from the SEC, or reflecting communications with the SEC in connection with any investigation, inquiry, or examination concerning or relating to Morgan Stanley's policies and/or procedures with regard to the retention, storage, deletion, and/or back-up of electronic mail (emails) . . ." On October 12, 2004, CPH served its Request for Supplemental Documents seeking to bring MS & Co.'s document production current, requesting "(a)ll documents not previously provided by MS & Co. that are responsive to any Request for Production of Documents that CPH previously has served upon MS & Co. in the litigation, including documents obtained by MS & Co. or its counsel after the date of MS & Co.'s prior productions." No SEC documents were produced in response to either request; no privilege log was generated. On other privilege logs generated in response to court orders, MS & Co. did not show the SEC on the distribution portion of the log. See March 9, 2005 Order Following in Camera Inspection (Riel/SEC Documents) footnotes 1, 2. See, also, footnote 15, infra. Kirland & Ellis, outside counsel for MS & Co. in this litigation, represents MS & Co. in the SEC's inquiry into its email retention practices.

⁸MS & Co. manipulated the unhooking of the SEC's email investigation from the IPO litigation in January, 2005, to conceal the email issues as long as possible.

⁹It is now apparent that MS & Co. chose deliberately to keep its affidavits concerning the informal SEC inquiry submitted to support its privilege claims vague, despite two requests from the Court seeking specific information. See February 28, 2005 Order (Release of Exhibits).

¹⁰See February 25, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Objections to Coleman (Parent) Holding Inc.'s Notice to Produce at Hearing and Motion for Protective Order and March 4, 2005 Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production.

¹¹While MS & Co. contends that its representations to the Court that it would cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" to search the backup tapes and that there was no pre-2000 backup tapes were not false, they were deliberately misleading: MS & Co. never had an intention to search the back up tapes to respond to the requests and some of the year 2000 backup tapes backed up email back to 1997.

In 2001, MS & Co. decided to create the email archive. By June, 2003, it had decided that the archive should have two components. First, MS & Co. wanted to create an archive that captured and stored email as it was generated. Second, MS & Co. wanted to add historical data to the archive. That task involved searching for all email backup tapes containing historical emails; sending those tapes to an outside processor; loading the processed tapes into a staging area; and migrating the stored data from the staging area onto the archive. As we now know, archive searches are quick and inexpensive. They do not cost "hundred of thousands of dollars" or "take several months." The restrictions imposed by the Agreed Order were not needed.

¹²On February 10, 2004, Robert Saunders, an executive director of IT for MS & Co., was deposed. He testified that in January, 2003, MS & Co. had put into effect the email archive system. When specifically asked whether the new email archive system would include prior backups or only going forward backups, he testified that "(t)he way it was built was for going forward backup." He was next asked whether "(w)ith respect to backup dated January 2001 and previously, does Morgan Stanley have any new capabilities to restore and search e-mail?" After counsel interposed a vagueness objection, he answered "(t)here are no new capabilities to search that e-mail." That testimony was so misleading as to be false. As Saunders well knew, since he was on the team responsible, the "live" email capture portion of the archive was already operational. The migration of the historical data to the archive was expected to be completed by April of 2004, just two months after his deposition.

MS & Co.'s wrongful conduct has continued unabated.¹³ Since the February 14, 2005, hearing, it has come to light that:

- Only two whole and four partial tapes from the Brooklyn tapes had been migrated to the archive and were thus searched for the November, 2004, production. MS & Co. sought to hide this information to create the impression that all the produced documents came from the Brooklyn tapes, rather than reveal that the production came from material that had migrated from the staging area to the archive since the May, 2004, production or some other, as yet undisclosed, source.¹⁴
- Contrary to MS & Co.'s counsel's November 17, 2004, letter to CPH, none of the November, 2004 production came from the "newly found" tapes. MS & Co. carefully crafted its responses to inquiries about the November, 2004, production to avoid both disclosure of the existence of the archive and outright lying.
- The scripts MS & Co. used to process emails into its archive caused the bodies of some messages to be truncated. MS & Co. discovered this problem on February 13, 2005, but did not tell the Court about it until March 14, 2005.
- A migration issue caused about 5% of email harvested by NDCI from the backup tapes not to be captured in the archive, based on testing of a representative sample of tapes. MS & Co. told the SEC about this problem on February 24, 2005, but failed to tell CPH or the Court.
- As of June 7, 2004, only 120 out of 143 SDLT tapes had been processed into the archive.
- An analysis requested by the SEC showed that, based on a representative sample, 10% of backup tapes were overwritten after January, 2001.

¹³MS & Co. sought to use the entry of the Adverse Inference Order as a shield against further inquiry into its email abuses, arguing that the matter was closed by the Adverse Inference Order. It previously used this tactic with the SEC, arguing that the December 3, 2003 Cease and Desist Order shielded it from other sanctions for email retention failures. See Ex. 14 [February 10, 2005 letter from outside counsel for MS & Co. to SEC]

¹⁴MS & Co. argued at the March 14 and 15, 2005 hearing that there were only 13 unique, new emails contained in the November 2004 production when compared to the May 2004 production. Nine of those emails, however, were originally given to MS& Co.'s lawyers for responsiveness review by the IT staff for the May 2004 production. No explanation of why they were not produced in May was offered. This is particularly concerning given the large number of documents Ms. Gorman testified the search parameters found compared with the relatively small number found responsive and produced after review by counsel.

- A software error caused blind carbon copies not to be captured in the archive process. MS & Co. told the SEC about this problem on February 24, 2005. MS & Co. did not tell CPH or the Court.
- A software error caused the searches to be hyper case-sensitive, resulting in a failure to capture all emails. MS & Co. knew of the problem as of December, 2004, but did not tell CPH or the Court. The problem was not purportedly fixed until March, 2005.
- A script error caused the archive to have problems pulling group email in Lotus Notes.
- MS & Co. provided sworn testimony at the February 14, 2005, hearing that it had located 600 gigabytes of data, while contemporaneously telling the SEC it had located a terabyte of data. A gigabyte represents 20,000 to 100,000 pages. Incredibly, MS & Co.'s witness on this point, Allison Gorman, testified on March 14, 2005, that it was simply a "terminology" issue that she did not choose to correct because it could cause "confusion."
- CPH requested MS & Co. to produce responses it had made to third-parties in civil, criminal, or administrative proceedings describing limitations on MS & Co.'s ability to produce emails and all notices in such proceedings that MS & Co. had newly discovered backup tapes containing email. MS & Co. objected, arguing that there were over 300 separate proceedings, involving over 70 outside law firms, and that the cost of compliance would be too great. On March 2, 2005, the Court ordered the production, after shortening the time period involved, and required production within 12 hours after counsel's review of each item for responsiveness but, in any event, within 10 days. At the time MS & Co. objected to CPH's request as unduly burdensome, it knew of its Wells submission to the SEC made on February 10, 2005. Kirkland and Ellis, co-counsel here, was co-counsel for MS & Co. in that SEC proceeding. Consequently, it appears MS & Co.'s real concern was not that expressed to the Court, but was based on its realization that compliance would reveal the existence of the SEC inquiry into its email retention policy and MS & Co.'s efforts to keep the existence of that investigation secret. MS & Co. violated the Court's March 2, 2005, Order on Morgan Stanley's Responses and Objections to Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Notice to Produce at Hearing requiring it to disclose items responsive to CPH's Request for Production within 12 hours of review for responsiveness by waiting days, not hours, to produce the Wells submission.

- MS & Co.'s failure to produce or log the SEC documents violated the Court's February 3, 2005, Order.¹⁵
- James Doyle's, the Executive Director of MS & Co.'s Law Division, declaration that he did not learn of additional unsearched backup tapes until the end of October, 2004, was intended to mislead CPH and the Court. Obviously, MS & Co. sought to create the implication in the declaration that no one in the Law Division knew of the backup tapes before then. Instead, both Soo-Mi Lee, Doyle's associate, and James Cusick, Doyle's superior, knew of the tapes no later than June 7, 2004.
- In-house counsel for MS & Co. knew as of June 7, 2004, that nearly a third of the restored backup tapes did not contain email, implying they may have been recycled in violation of the December 3, 2002 Cease and Desist Order. They did not tell CPH or the Court.
- MS & Co.'s searches looked for only two types of emails. There are other types of emails that were not included in the searches. CPH did not learn of this deficiency until March 13, 2005.
- MS & Co. improperly failed to produce 125 documents required to be produced by the Court's February 3, 2005, Order Specially Setting Hearing which required limited discovery be made in connection with the February 14, 2005, hearing on the Adverse Inference Motion.
- MS & Co. improperly withheld 13 documents required to be produced by the Court's March 4, 2005, Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production.
- An additional 282 tapes were found on February 23 and 25, 2005; CPH was not told of the discovery until March 13, 2005.
- An additional 3,536 tapes were discovered on February 23, 2005, in a security room.
- An additional 2,718 tapes were found at Recall, MS & Co.'s third party off-site storage vendor, on March 3, 2005.
- An additional 389 tapes were found March 2 through March 5, 2005. CPH was not told ¹⁵The Court previously rejected MS & Co.'s argument that the January 14, 2005, email exchange between its outside and in-house counsel was not required to be produced under the February 3, 2005, Order Specially Setting Hearing because it referred to the "documents issue" and not specifically to the backup tapes. See March 16, 2005 Order on Morgan Stanley's Motion to Disqualify Plaintiff's Counsel Searcy, Denney, Scarola, Barnhart & Shipley, P.A. and Jenner & Block, LLC. MS & Co.'s insistence on a narrow interpretation of the February 3, 2005, Order is not particularly sympathetic, when the only reason that Order confined production to the backup tape issue was because MS & Co. had failed to notify the Court of the other deficiencies in its certificate of compliance.

until March 13, 2005.

- On March 4, 2005, the Court entered its Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production, which ordered MS & Co. to produce by 3:00 p.m. on March 7, 2005, all items within its care, custody, or control dealing with the Riel/SEC investigation, other than documents representing communications between or among MS & Co. inside and outside counsel that were not copied to anyone other than counsel. MS & Co. sought to discredit Riel and thus distance itself from the false June 23, 2004 certificate of compliance; in doing so, it sought to hide Riel's whistle blower status and the existence of an SEC investigation into whether MS & Co. employees sought kick backs from third party vendors; whether MS & Co. employees were improperly pressured into dealing with third-party vendors who may provide business to MS & Co.; and whether MS & Co. continued to overwrite backup tapes contrary to the SEC's December 3, 2002, Cease and Desist Order.
- A script error prevented the insertion of some emails into the archive. MS & Co. produced over 4,600 pages of emails on March 21, 2005, some of which it suggested may have been located on correction of the error; alternatively, it suggested the emails may have been located by NDCI as part of its efforts to verify MS & Co.'s searches.

MS & Co.'s discovery abuses have not been confined to its email production.

William Strong is a MS & Co. managing director and was one of the principal players for it in the Sunbeam deal. He took credit for the fees generated. On May 9, 2003, CPK requested a copy of "(a)ll documents concerning employment contracts, performance evaluations, and/or personnel files (including without limitation any documents that describe or discuss [his] training, experience, competence, and accomplishments) . . ." MS & Co. asserted that the requested documents were not relevant and that production "would unnecessarily infringe on the privacy interests of [Strong]." On March 15, 2004, the Court ordered MS & Co. to produce "(a)ll references (positive or negative) to [Strong's] truthfulness, veracity, or moral turpitude." Some portions of Strong's evaluations were produced in response to that order. Those evaluations noted Strong's colleagues' reservations about his candor and ethics. Two of his evaluators, Joseph Perella and Tarek Abdel-Meguid, were deposed, when some relatively vague testimony about the bases for those conclusions was offered. It now appears Strong was facing criminal prosecution in Italy for complicity in bribery while he was working on the Sunbeam transaction, which his evaluators knew, and that MS & Co. purposely

withheld that information from CPH and the Court.¹⁶

Even once CPH independently discovered evidence of Strong's indictment in Italy, MS & Co. sought to shield its files from discovery. It claimed that virtually all of the documents it had were privileged under joint defense agreements in place between it, Strong, and Saloman Brothers, Strong's employer at the time of the incident. As the Court's March 10, 2005 Order Following In Camera Inspection (Strong) details, the documents MS & Co. relied on to support that position, and sought to prevent CPH from obtaining, reflect no such agreement.

The other discovery abuses and misrepresentations by MS & Co. other than those involving its email production practices are outlined in CPH's Chronology of Discovery Abuses by Defendant served March 1, 2005, and would take a volume to recite. They include:

- failing to provide the information retained by MS & Co.'s internal document management system pertaining to MS & Co.'s work for Sunbeam; falsely representing to the Court that no useful information was contained in that information; and producing a Rule 1.310 representative who had made an insufficient inquiry into authenticity, business record status, and authorship of documents; see February 28, 2005 Order on CPH's Motion to Deem Certain Documents Admissible and for Sanctions due to Morgan Stanley's Disregard of Court Order;
- when faced with contempt proceedings for violating the Stipulated Confidentiality Order by providing a copy of a settlement agreement between CPH and Arthur Andersen to other counsel, representing to the Court that the law firm of Kellogg, Huber was retained to handle the "Andersen aspects" of this litigation because of a conflict between Andersen and Kirkland & Ellis; Mark Hansen, a partner at Kellogg, Huber, testified that his firm was hired as co-counsel for all aspects of the case;
- providing answers to interrogatories signed by a corporate representative who performed insufficient verification of the responses;

¹⁶MS & Co. originally argued that documents concerning the Italian proceedings were not in Strong's "personnel file" and so were not required to be produced in response to CPH's initial request. MS & Co.'s practice of filing damaging information about an employee other than in his personnel file and then claiming it was not included in the request is about as convincing as its argument that, since it has a corporate directive not to keep drafts of documents once they are in final form, document drafts cannot be business records exempt from hearsay because they are not "kept in the course of a regularly conducted business activity." See Fla. Stat. §90.803 (6) (a). In any event, there was no excuse for not producing its records of the Italian proceedings once the Court's March 15, 2004 Order was entered.

- routinely asserting unfounded privilege claims;¹⁷ and
- failing to timely comply with the Court's orders; for example, MS & Co. did not produce Strong's 1994 Performance Evaluation until the afternoon of March 15, 2005, though it was obviously included in the Court's March 15, 2004 Order. The failure cannot be excused as oversight since, when CPH specifically asked for the 1994 evaluation in the spring of 2004, MS & Co.'s counsel said it was withheld as non-responsive; see, also, Ex. 197, 198.

In sum, MS & Co. has deliberately and contumaciously violated numerous discovery orders, including the April 16, 2004 Agreed Order; February 3, 2005 Order Specially Setting Hearing; and the March 4, 2005 Order on Plaintiff's ore tenus Motion to Compel Additional Production. At the February 14, 2005, hearing on CPH's Adverse Inference Motion, it chose to hide information about its violations and coach witnesses to avoid any mention of additional, undisclosed problems with its compliance with the Agreed Order. Implicit in the requirement that MS & Co. certify compliance with the Agreed Order was the requirement to disclose impediments to its ability to so certify. As outlined in this Order, MS & Co. employees, and not just counsel, have participated in the discovery abuses. The prejudice to CPH from these failings cannot be cured. Even if all the script errors have been located and corrected, and MS & Co. has failed to show they have, and even if all of the email backup tapes have now been located, and MS & Co. has failed to show they have, the searches cannot be completed in time. The other discovery abuses outlined call into doubt all of MS & Co.'s discovery responses. The judicial system cannot function this way. Based on the foregoing and on the Court's March 1, 2005 Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that CPH's Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment is Granted, in part. See Robinson v. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 887 So. 2d 328 (Fla. 2004); Mercer v. Raine, 443 So. 2d 944 (Fla. 1983); Precision Tune Auto Care, Inc. v.

¹⁷For example, MS & Co. produced over 260 documents dealing with the Strong investigation over which it had previously claimed privilege once the Court announced its intention to conduct an in camera review; the Court found another 200 documents were not privileged after conducting its review, by its March 10, 2005 Order.

A copy of a redacted Amended Complaint is attached as Exhibit A. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the Court shall read to the jury a Statement similar to that attached as Exhibit A to the Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.’s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley’s Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley’s Noncompliance with the Court’s April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, but incorporating the relevant additional findings of this Order, and the jury will be instructed that it may consider those facts in determining whether MS & Co. sought to conceal its offensive conduct when determining whether an award of punitive damages is appropriate. See General Motors Corp. v. McGee, 837 So. 2d 1010 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002), rev. den. 851 So. 2d 728 (Fla. 2003). Counsel are each invited to submit proposed Statements. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that CPH shall be entitled to an award of reasonable fees and costs incurred as a result of the Renewed Motion for Entry of Default Judgment and the violations of Court orders recited herein. The amount shall be determined at an evidentiary hearing following trial. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the pro hac vice admission of Thomas Clare is revoked. It is further

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the portions of CPH's Motion for Correction and Clarification of Order on CPH's Motion for Adverse Inference that seek to amend the body of that Order to correct clerical and spelling errors, as agreed to by counsel, is Granted; and the corrections deemed made to the body of the Amended Order on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destructions of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, by interlineation. In all other respects the remainder of the Motion for Correction and Clarification is declared moot.

In April 1997, Morgan Stanley began serving as Sunbeam's investment banker. Morgan Stanley originally attempted to find someone to buy Sunbeam. When Morgan Stanley was unable to find a buyer, Morgan Stanley developed a strategy for Sunbeam to use its fraudulently-inflated stock to acquire a large company that Sunbeam would own and operate. Then, trading on Morgan Stanley's relationships with CPH's senior officers, Morgan Stanley found

- 1 - A

Coleman for Sunbeam. At the time of the sale to Sunbeam, Coleman was a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market, with annual revenues in excess of $1 billion.

Common shares

After Sunbeam announced plans to acquire Coleman, Morgan Stanley agreed to underwrite a $750 million debenture offering for Sunbeam. Sunbeam needed the proceeds of that debenture offering to complete the acquisition of Coleman. As Sunbeam's investment banker and as the sole underwriter for the $750 million debenture offering, Morgan Stanley received detailed and specific information concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and performance. Morgan Stanley received information that directly contradicted Sunbeam's and Morgan Stanley's assertions to CPH that Sunbeam had undergone a successful turnaround and that its financial performance had dramatically improved. By no later than March 18, 1998, Morgan Stanley knew that Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales were only 50% of January and February 1997 sales, and Morgan Stanley also knew that the shortfall was caused by Sunbeam's practice of accelerating sales which otherwise would have occurred in 1998 in order to boost Sunbeam's income in 1997. Although Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam previously had advised CPH that Sunbeam's sales were running ahead of analysts' expectations for the first quarter, Morgan Stanley decided not to correct those material misrepresentations. Instead, in March 1998, Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in concealing the problems with Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales

042712

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") directly or indirectly owned 44,067,520 shares — or approximately 82% — of Coleman prior to the transactions at issue. On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired CPH's interest in Coleman. Sunbeam paid for the Coleman shares with 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock and other consideration.

042713

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") is a highly sophisticated investment banking firm that provides a wide range of financial and securities services. Among other things, Morgan Stanley provides advice on mergers and acquisitions and raises capital in the equity and debt markets. Morgan Stanley served as Sunbeam's investment banker and as the underwriter of securities issued by Sunbeam in connection with the events at issue herein.

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") was a publicly-traded company headquartered in Delray Beach, Florida. Sunbeam designed and manufactured small household appliances and outdoor consumer products, which it marketed under the Sunbeam and Oster brand names. Sunbeam filed a bankruptcy petition under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in February 2001.

Albert Dunlap ("Dunlap") was the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam from July 1996 until June 1998 when he was terminated by Sunbeam's Board of Directors.

Russell Kersh ("Kersh") was the Executive Vice President of Sunbeam from July 1996 until June 1998 when he was terminated by Sunbeam's Board of Directors.

Arthur Andersen LLP ("Andersen") provided outside accounting services to Sunbeam through its West Palm Beach, Florida office. Andersen auditors provided information concerning Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales and earnings to Morgan Stanley.

042714

Sunbeam designed and manufactured outdoor and household consumer products, which it marketed under the Sunbeam and Oster brand names. Sunbeam's products included small kitchen appliances, humidifiers, electric blankets, and grills. Many of the country's leading retail stores, including Wal-Mart, Target, and Home Depot, were among Sunbeam's major customers.

Despite Sunbeam's well-known brands and strong customer base, its financial performance was disappointing. In 1994, Sunbeam earned $1.30 per share. In 1995, Sunbeam's earnings declined to $0.61 per share. In 1996, Sunbeam's earnings continued to suffer. On March 22, 1996, Sunbeam issued an early warning that its first quarter earnings would be well under analysts' expectations and down from first quarter 1995. Shortly after issuing the March 22 earnings warning, Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer and two of Sunbeam's directors announced their resignations. Less than a week later, Sunbeam announced that its first quarter 1996 earnings had plunged 42% from first quarter 1995 levels. Sunbeam also announced that its second quarter 1996 earnings would be lower than its second quarter 1995 earnings.

Sunbeam's disappointing earnings caused its stock price to plummet. During 1995, the price at which Sunbeam's stock traded fell 40%, from a high of $25-1/2. In 1996, Sunbeam's stock price continued to decline until it reached a low of $12-1/4 in July.

On July 18, 1996, Sunbeam's board of directors hired Albert Dunlap as Sunbeam's new Chief Executive Officer. Based upon brief terms as Chief Executive Officer of other publicly traded companies, including Scott Paper Company ("Scott Paper"), Dunlap was viewed as a "turnaround specialist" — that is, someone who could take a poorly performing company and significantly increase its value by "turning around" its financial performance. Because Dunlap touted the benefits from firing large numbers of employees and closing large numbers of plants, Dunlap became widely known as "Chainsaw Al." Dunlap lived in Boca Raton, Florida, and one of his first tasks at Sunbeam was to consolidate the company's six headquarters into one located in Delray Beach, Florida.

Immediately after joining Sunbeam, Dunlap hired Kersh as Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer. Kersh had teamed with Dunlap for over 15 years, serving as a senior executive with Dunlap at other companies, including Scott Paper. Dunlap also brought in several other hand-picked executives to make up his senior management team.

Dunlap and his senior management team entered into employment agreements with Sunbeam. Under those agreements, Dunlap and his senior management team stood to make tens of millions of dollars if they were able to boost Sunbeam's apparent value and then sell Sunbeam to another company at a premium.

In order to convince other companies that they should want to purchase Sunbeam, Dunlap needed to improve Sunbeam's reported financial performance quickly and dramatically. It was, of course, no small task to transform Sunbeam from a poorly performing company, with weak sales and declining profits, into a strong company with growing sales and soaring profits. In fact, as the world later learned, Dunlap did not achieve that change in Sunbeam's fortunes. Instead, Dunlap created the illusion of a dramatic turnaround at Sunbeam by engaging in what SEC officials subsequently described as a "case study" in financial fraud.

Dunlap had a three-step plan at Sunbeam. In the first step, Dunlap overstated Sunbeam's financial problems so that Sunbeam appeared to be in worse shape than it really was. After making Sunbeam look worse, Dunlap moved to step two, where he made Sunbeam look more valuable than it really was by inflating Sunbeam's sales and engaging in other earnings manipulations. In step three, Dunlap planned to sell Sunbeam to another company before it became apparent that the "improved" results were fictional. By doing so, Dunlap would make tens of millions of dollars and would be free to blame his successor for any subsequent problems.

Dunlap began implementing his strategy soon after his arrival at Sunbeam in 1996. Claiming to be engaged in a clean-up of Sunbeam's financial problems, Dunlap recorded artificially high reserves and booked expenses that should not have been recorded until later periods. Both of those actions made Sunbeam's financial condition appear worse than it really was, thus lowering the benchmark for measuring Sunbeam's performance in future years.

The overstated reserves also provided Dunlap a means by which he could inflate Sunbeam's future results during the second step of his plan. Dunlap later could "re-evaluate" and release millions of dollars from the overstated reserves to boost income in later periods. The income from released reserves contributed to the illusion of a rapid turnaround in Sunbeam's performance. Using inflated reserves to enhance income in future periods is a fraudulent practice and overstated reserves are commonly called "cookie jar" reserves.

After making Sunbeam look worse than it really was in 1996, Dunlap manipulated Sunbeam's sales and expenses in 1997 to create the false appearance of quarter after quarter improvement in financial performance. For example, Dunlap caused Sunbeam to inflate its sales by engaging in phony "bill and hold" sales. Under this practice, Sunbeam recognized revenues from "sales," even though customers did not actually pay for or even take delivery of the products, which continued to sit in Sunbeam's own warehouses. Although Sunbeam recorded the "bill and hold" sales as if they were current sales, they were, in reality, simply sales stolen from future quarters. In 1997, phony "bill and hold" sales added approximately $29 million in sales and $4.5 million in income.

Throughout 1997, Sunbeam also engaged in a sales practice known as "channel stuffing"—accelerating sales that otherwise would occur in a later period, sometimes by offering steep discounts or other extraordinary customer inducements. On the grand scale employed by Sunbeam, channel stuffing inevitably leads to major sales shortfalls in later periods when "stuffed" customers simply stop buying. Sunbeam's senior sales officer referred to Sunbeam's unsustainable practice of inflating performance through accelerated sales as the "doom loop."

Dunlap further "enhanced" Sunbeam's income in 1997 by causing Sunbeam to record a "profit" of $10 million from a sham sale of its warranty and spare parts business. Dunlap also made Sunbeam appear to be more successful than it really was by reaching into the "cookie jar," reversing inflated reserves, and recording $35 million as income. Sunbeam's 1997 profit margins also looked better than they really were because Dunlap already had recorded millions of dollars of 1997 expenses in 1996.

042718

In October 1997, Dunlap announced that Sunbeam's "turnaround" was complete. Compared to the third quarter of 1996, Sunbeam's third quarter 1997 performance was remarkable. In the third quarter of 1996, Sunbeam had reported a loss of $18.1 million. In the third quarter of 1997, however, Sunbeam reported earnings of $34.5 million — an extraordinary turnaround from substantial losses to hefty profits. Sunbeam's combined results for the first three quarters showed dramatic improvement as well. Sunbeam reported that its profits for the first nine months were up tenfold over the same period the year before — from $6.5 million in 1996 to $67.7 million in 1997. Sunbeam's reversal of fortune caused a spectacular increase in the price of its stock. In July 1996, when Dunlap was hired, Sunbeam's shares traded at $12-1/4. By October 1997, Sunbeam's shares had risen to $49-13/16.

With steps one and two successfully completed, Dunlap was more than eager to complete the final step of his scheme: to sell Sunbeam to another company and collect tens of millions of dollars for himself before the outside world could learn the truth about Sunbeam's phony "turnaround." To accomplish that third and final step, Dunlap needed an investment banking firm

When Dunlap announced in early 1997 that he would begin interviewing investment bankers, Morgan Stanley immediately began pursuing the job. Although Morgan Stanley had no previous relationship with Sunbeam, one of Morgan Stanley's senior executives, William Strong, had worked closely with Dunlap on other large transactions between 1986 and 1993, when Strong was employed by Salomon Brothers.

Morgan Stanley knew that it was competing with other investment bankers, including Mark Davis, for Dunlap's business. Davis was the head of the mergers and acquisitions department at Chase Securities and had worked previously with Strong at Salomon Brothers. Davis had a very strong relationship with Dunlap, and Davis had served as Dunlap's investment advisor on numerous transactions, including Dunlap's sale of Scott Paper. Shortly after arriving at Sunbeam, Dunlap hired Davis to handle the sale of Sunbeam's furniture business.

Morgan Stanley put together a team headed by its Vice Chairman, Bruce Fiedorek, and Strong. Beginning in April 1997, Morgan Stanley's personnel traveled to Sunbeam's offices in Delray Beach, Florida to study Sunbeam and woo Dunlap. After months of uncompensated work, in September 1997, Morgan Stanley finally persuaded Dunlap to name Morgan Stanley as Sunbeam's exclusive investment banker. Dunlap instructed Morgan Stanley to find a buyer for Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley knew that if it failed to deliver a major transaction, Morgan Stanley would not be compensated for the extensive work it had performed for Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley also knew that Davis and Chase Securities were standing by — ready and willing to reclaim their position as Dunlap's investment banker of choice.

Throughout the fall of 1997, Morgan Stanley aggressively searched for a buyer for Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley put together extensive and detailed materials to use in marketing Sunbeam to potential buyers. Morgan Stanley pitched the transaction to more than 10 companies — including Gillette, Colgate, Sara Lee, Rubbermaid, Whirlpool, and Black & Decker — that Morgan Stanley hoped might have an interest in acquiring Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley, however, was not able to find a buyer.

As 1998 approached, the pressure on Dunlap increased. Dunlap was aware that Sunbeam would be unable to sustain the appearance of a successful turnaround in 1998 because Sunbeam had stolen sales from 1998 to boost 1997's numbers and the "cookie jar" reserves had been depleted. Dunlap needed a way to conceal Sunbeam's phony turnaround until a buyer could be found. Morgan Stanley provided the solution to Dunlap's problem.

Morgan Stanley knew that its failure to find a buyer for Sunbeam could prove fatal to the relationship it had worked so hard to establish with Dunlap. As the pressure on Dunlap increased, the pressure on Morgan Stanley increased as well. Although Morgan Stanley was not able to find a buyer for Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley responded with a plan that would allow Dunlap to conceal his fraud. Morgan Stanley recommended that Sunbeam acquire other companies, using Sunbeam's stock, which was fraudulently inflated, as the "currency" that would be used to pay for the acquisitions.

Morgan Stanley's strategy was doubly deceptive. First, Morgan Stanley's acquisition strategy would allow Dunlap to consolidate Sunbeam's results with those of the newly-acquired companies. That would help Dunlap camouflage Sunbeam's results and make it difficult to detect any shortfall in Sunbeam's performance. Dunlap simply could label any problems that were detected as attributable to the poor performance of the acquired companies or as a temporary "blip" caused by the distraction of integrating the acquired companies with Sunbeam. Second, Morgan Stanley's strategy would allow Dunlap to take new massive restructuring charges (purportedly relating to the acquisitions) and thus create more "cookie jar" reserves that could be tapped to bolster the future earnings of the combined companies.

Morgan Stanley identified Coleman as one of the key potential acquisition targets. CPH owned 82% of Coleman's stock. Morgan Stanley searched the ranks of its investment bankers to locate those with the best access to CPH. Drawing on relationships between some of Morgan Stanley's investment bankers and senior CPH officers, Morgan Stanley set about trying to persuade CPH to sell its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam — and, most importantly, to accept Sunbeam stock as consideration.

Morgan Stanley laid the groundwork for a meeting to take place in December 1997 in Palm Beach, Florida between Dunlap and Kersh and representatives of CPH. In advance of the Palm Beach meeting, Morgan Stanley provided materials to Sunbeam to prepare Sunbeam for the meeting. Morgan Stanley also met with Kersh and other Sunbeam personnel to prepare for the Palm Beach meeting. However, Dunlap nearly scuttled Morgan Stanley's carefully crafted plan at the outset. During the December 1997 Palm Beach meeting, when CPH rejected Dunlap's initial all-stock offer, Dunlap became so angry that he cursed and ranted at the CPH representatives and stormed out.

Dunlap's tantrum appeared to kill any chance that CPH would sell its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam. Morgan Stanley, however, worked to revive the discussions. Drawing again on Morgan Stanley's relationships with CPH officers, Morgan Stanley was able to restart the discussions with CPH with the promise that Dunlap would be kept away from the negotiating table. Thereafter, Morgan Stanley, through Managing Directors Strong, James Stynes, and Robert Kitts, led the discussions with CPH on Sunbeam's behalf.

042722

Morgan Stanley knew that it had to persuade CPH not only to sell Coleman, but also to accept Sunbeam stock — ultimately, 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock — as a major part of the purchase price. During the course of negotiations, Morgan Stanley prepared and provided CPH with false financial and business information about Sunbeam designed to create the appearance that Sunbeam was prospering and that Sunbeam's stock had great value. For example, Morgan Stanley provided CPH with false 1996 and 1997 sales and revenue figures, as well as false projections that Sunbeam could not expect to achieve. Together, in face-to-face discussions, Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam assured CPH that (a) Sunbeam would meet or exceed its first quarter 1998 earnings estimates; (b) analysts' 1998 earnings estimates for Sunbeam were correct; and (c) Sunbeam's plan to earn $2.20 per share in 1998 was easily achievable and probably low. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam also falsely assured CPH that Sunbeam's "early buy" sales program would not hurt Sunbeam's future revenues. However, the "early buy" program was one of Sunbeam's revenue acceleration programs — and the devastating effects of Sunbeam's revenue acceleration programs already had begun to materialize at Sunbeam. Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales were down drastically, although those results were not disclosed to CPH or the public. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam together specifically advised CPH that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "tracking fine" and running ahead of analysts' estimates.

042723

On February 27, 1998, Sunbeam's Board of Directors met at Morgan Stanley's offices to consider the purchase of Coleman, as negotiated by Morgan Stanley.

At the February 27, 1998 meeting, Morgan Stanley made an extensive presentation to Sunbeam's Board concerning the proposed transaction. Numerous Morgan Stanley representatives, including Managing Directors Strong, Kitts, Stynes, Ruth Porat, and Vikram Pandit, attended the meeting.

Morgan Stanley presented Sunbeam's board with Morgan Stanley's opinion on the value of Coleman. Using a discounted cash flow analysis, which Morgan Stanley represented was the best gauge of stand-alone economic value and the best method of capturing the unique value of Coleman, Morgan Stanley valued CPH's Coleman stock at a range of $31.06 to $53.24 per Coleman share. CPH's 44,067,520 Coleman shares were worth, therefore, between $1.369 billion and $2.346 billion.

Following Morgan Stanley's presentation, Sunbeam's Board of Directors voted to acquire Coleman on the very favorable terms that Morgan Stanley had negotiated.

Morgan Stanley spent the following weekend developing Sunbeam's public relations strategy to announce the Coleman transaction. Morgan Stanley scripted the points for Dunlap to make in a conference call with analysts. Morgan Stanley also crafted a list of "key media messages" for Dunlap to use in his communications with the press. On Sunday, March 1, 1998, Morgan Stanley spoke with a reporter for the Wall Street Journal to inform him that Sunbeam would announce its acquisition of Coleman the following morning.

042724

Sunbeam announced its acquisition of Coleman on Monday, March 2, 1998, prior to the opening of the financial markets. Consistent with Morgan Stanley's valuation, investors viewed Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman — and the price that Sunbeam had paid — very favorably. The day before the acquisition was announced, Sunbeam's stock closed at $41-3/4. In the days following Sunbeam's announcement of the transaction, Sunbeam's stock rose approximately 25%, to a high of $52.

Dunlap knew that Sunbeam needed to raise funds to pay the cash portion of the acquisition consideration. Dunlap also knew that Sunbeam needed cash to purchase two other smaller companies in addition to Coleman. Morgan Stanley recommended that Sunbeam raise funds through a $500 million offering of convertible subordinated debentures. To assure the offering's success, Morgan Stanley lent its name to the offering. Indeed, Morgan Stanley agreed to serve as the sole underwriter for the offering.

The money raised from the sale of the debentures was used by Sunbeam to complete the acquisition of Coleman.

Unbeknownst to CPH or the public, Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were a small fraction of the financial community's expectations for the quarter. If Dunlap could consolidate Sunbeam's sales with Coleman's sales, Dunlap knew that he could obscure Sunbeam's actual first quarter sales. As a result, Dunlap was especially anxious to complete the acquisition of Coleman before Sunbeam announced its first quarter 1998 sales. Indeed, the success of the scheme depended upon Sunbeam's ability to complete the Coleman acquisition before Sunbeam's first quarter results were announced. To satisfy Dunlap's objectives, Morgan Stanley moved up the launch date of the offering.

The debentures were marketed to investors at a series of "road show" meetings and conference calls arranged by Morgan Stanley. Morgan Stanley prepared and distributed a memorandum for its sales force to use in marketing the debentures to investors. Morgan Stanley also developed the script for Dunlap and Kersh to deliver during the road show. In those materials, Morgan Stanley misrepresented Sunbeam's financial performance and emphasized Dunlap's purported "turnaround" accomplishments.

Morgan Stanley launched the debenture offering with a research analyst presentation to the Morgan Stanley sales force. As part of Morgan Stanley's growing relationship with Sunbeam, one of Morgan Stanley's top-rated research analysts planned to initiate equity coverage of Sunbeam. That Morgan Stanley analyst had modeled values for Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman that were higher than even Sunbeam's management had predicted.

Although Morgan Stanley initially planned to sell $500 million worth of debentures, Morgan Stanley's efforts were so successful that the size of the offering was increased to $750 million on March 19, 1998 — the day of the last road show. The debentures were sold to investors nationwide, including investors based in Florida.

042726

As Sunbeam's investment banker and the sole underwriter for the debenture offering, Morgan Stanley had a duty to investigate Sunbeam's finances and business operations.

Morgan Stanley, which had been working hand-in-hand with Sunbeam for almost a year and had traveled to Sunbeam's Florida offices, repeatedly asserted that it had satisfied that duty.

Strong, who was one of the senior Morgan Stanley investment bankers involved, has admitted in sworn testimony that he may have had more than 100 telephone conversations with Dunlap and Kersh (whose offices were in Sunbeam's Delray Beach headquarters) and that Strong was "sure" that he would have been apprised of Sunbeam's financial performance during the first two months of 1998.

With the $750 million debenture offering and the Coleman transaction set to close at the end of March 1998, Sunbeam's Florida-based outside auditors were shocked that Morgan Stanley had not asked them about Sunbeam's financial performance for first quarter 1998. Sunbeam's auditors were alarmed because Sunbeam's first quarter results were a disaster, but Dunlap, Kersh, and Morgan Stanley were telling CPH and the investing public, that Sunbeam's turnaround was a success, that Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 were ahead of the expectations of outside financial analysts, and that Sunbeam was poised for record sales.

On March 17, Sunbeam's auditors forced the issue. From their Florida offices, Sunbeam's auditors sent Morgan Stanley a letter reporting that Sunbeam's net sales through January 1998 were down 60% — $28 million in January 1998, as compared to $73 million in January 1997. The March 17 letter explained that the decline was "primarily due to the . . . new early buy program for grills which accelerated grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997."

The next day, Morgan Stanley was faxed a schedule from Sunbeam's Florida office that showed that Sunbeam's January and February 1998 net sales totaled $72 million, an amount that was 50% lower than Sunbeam's January and February 1997 net sales of $143.5 million.

Based on information that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley had disseminated, Wall Street analysts were anticipating that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 net sales would be in the range of $285 million to $295 million. Sales in that range would have been approximately 15% higher than first quarter 1997 sales. Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales, however, totaled barely 25% of $285 million. As Sunbeam's outside auditors advised Morgan Stanley in writing, the sales drop-off was caused by Sunbeam's sales acceleration program. The information put into Morgan Stanley's hands on March 17 and March 18 showed that Morgan Stanley's and Sunbeam's assertions to CPH and other investors were false. Contrary to what Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam had represented, Sunbeam had not undergone a successful turnaround, Sunbeam's financial performance had not dramatically improved, and Sunbeam's performance in 1998 was not better than Wall Street analysts' expectations. It was imperative, therefore, that the truth be kept from CPH until the Coleman transaction closed at the end of March 1998.

Morgan Stanley did not disclose Sunbeam's disastrous first quarter, Morgan Stanley did not insist that Sunbeam disclose its disastrous first quarter, Morgan Stanley did not correct any of the false and misleading statements it and Sunbeam had made to CPH about Sunbeam's business or performance, and Morgan Stanley did not suspend any of the critical transactions that were scheduled to close in the next two weeks. Instead, with Morgan Stanley's knowledge and assistance, Sunbeam prepared and issued a false press release on March 19, 1998 that affirmatively misstated and concealed Sunbeam's true condition.

The March 19, 1998 press release stated: "Sunbeam Corporation . . . said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates for $285 million to $295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. . . . The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year."

As Morgan Stanley was fully aware, the March 19, 1998 press release was false, misleading, and failed to disclose material information. The March 19, 1998 press release failed to disclose Sunbeam's actual January and February 1998 sales or the true reasons for the poor results. Instead, the press release held out the false possibility that Sunbeam still could achieve sales of $285 million to $295 million and suggested that, if any shortfall occurred, that shortfall would be due to the fact that certain retailers had decided to defer first quarter purchases to the second quarter. The press release also assured that Sunbeam at least would exceed first quarter 1997 net sales of $253.4 million. Based on information that Morgan Stanley had in its hands on March 18, 1998, it was obvious that Sunbeam would not achieve sales of $285 million to $295 million and that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales would be below its first quarter 1997 numbers. To simply meet 1997 first quarter sales, Sunbeam needed sales of $123.3 million over the 12 remaining days of the quarter — an average of $10.28 million per day. Sales of $10.28 million per day would be 306% more than the average per day sales in March 1997, and 281% more than the average per day sales for the first 17 days of March 1998. Furthermore, Morgan Stanley knew that the shortfall from analysts' estimates was not caused by retailers' deciding to defer purchases from the first quarter of 1998 to the second quarter, as the press release indicated. Rather, as Sunbeam's outside auditors had advised Morgan Stanley in writing, the collapse in first quarter sales was caused by Sunbeam's acceleration of 1998 sales into the fourth quarter of 1997.

After Sunbeam's false press release was issued, Morgan Stanley stood arm-in-arm with Sunbeam while Dunlap and Kersh told CPH, analysts, and investors that the March 19, 1998 release was a purely cautionary statement because some first quarter 1998 sales might simply "spillover" into the second quarter and that Sunbeam still believed that it actually would meet analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million in first quarter 1998 sales.

Morgan Stanley knew that a full and truthful disclosure of Sunbeam's first quarter sales would doom the debenture offering, which was scheduled to close on March 25, 1998,

As Morgan Stanley was fully aware, the written contract between CPH and Sunbeam gave CPH the express legal right to refuse to close the sale if there was a material adverse change in Sunbeam's "business, results of operation or financial condition."

Furthermore, if the transactions did not close, Morgan Stanley would not be paid its $10.28 million fee for the Coleman acquisition or its $22.5 million fee for underwriting the subordinated debenture offering. Morgan Stanley also knew that Sunbeam would promptly replace Morgan Stanley with another investment banking firm – such as the Chase Securities team led by Mark Davis.

Sunbeam's outside auditors already had made it perfectly clear to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were a disaster,

One of Sunbeam's senior outside auditors, Lawrence Bornstein, has testified under oath that on March 19, 1998, he told Morgan Stanley's John Tyree that the statement in Sunbeam's March 19, 1998 press release — that Sunbeam would at least exceed first quarter 1997 sales of $253.4 million — was not credible: "Just do the math . . . they've done a million dollars in sales the first 70 days of the year and now they need to do $10 million worth of sales for the next . . . I think it was 11 days . . . I mean, something ridiculous." Bornstein also told Tyree: "I've been to every shipping dock domestically, I've been to Hattiesburg, I've been to Neosho, I've been to Mexico City, and I don't think these guys can physically ship this much stuff."

Morgan Stanley knew that the March 19 press release was false and misleading. Despite that knowledge and Bornstein's explicit statements, Morgan Stanley continued with its preparations to close the debenture offering on March 25, 1998 and the Coleman acquisition on March 30, 1998.

As part of those preparations, on March 24, 1998, Morgan Stanley's Tyree spoke by telephone with Sunbeam's Kersh, who was located in Sunbeam's Delray Beach offices, to obtain an updated report concerning Sunbeam's first quarter performance. By the time of that March 24, 1998 call, Sunbeam had fallen even further behind first quarter 1997 sales. As of March 18, 1998, Sunbeam needed to achieve average sales of $10.28 million per day, over 12 days, to reach first quarter 1997 sales. Sunbeam's sales between March 18 and March 24, 1998 had averaged only $6.81 million per day — well short of the $10.28 million per day that Sunbeam needed to achieve. Sunbeam's March 18 through March 24, 1998 sales were further proof that Sunbeam's March 19, 1998 press release was false and that Sunbeam would not achieve first quarter 1998 sales in excess of first quarter 1997 sales.

Morgan Stanley also knew no later than March 25, 1998, if not much earlier, that Sunbeam's earnings for the first quarter of 1998 were going to miss Wall Street analysts' earnings expectations, which were in the range of $0.28 to $0.31 per share (excluding one-time charges). Sunbeam's outside auditors advised Morgan Stanley on March 25 that Sunbeam had suffered a $41.19 million loss during the first two months of 1998, including a one-time charge of $30.2 million. Even excluding that one-time charge, Sunbeam's loss for the first two months was $0.13 per share. To achieve first quarter 1998 operating earnings of $0.28 per share, which were at the low end of analyst expectations, Sunbeam needed to realize a profit of $35.5 million during March 1998 alone. A net profit of $35.5 million in March was 500% more than Sunbeam's net profit for the entire first quarter of 1997. In fact, Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 earnings fell far short of Wall Street's expectations. Sunbeam's first quarter earnings were material,

Having directly participated in misleading CPH Morgan Stanley had a duty to disclose the true facts before the closing of the debenture offering and the Coleman acquisition. Morgan Stanley also could have required Sunbeam to postpone the closings of those transactions until the necessary disclosures were made. Morgan Stanley did neither. Instead, Morgan Stanley marched forward and closed the $750 million debenture offering on March 25, 1998, which was needed to close the Coleman transaction, and assisted Sunbeam in closing the acquisition of Coleman on March 30, 1998.

Morgan Stanley received $22.5 million for the subordinated debenture offering and $10.28 million for the Coleman acquisition. Morgan Stanley would have received nothing if the transactions had failed to close.

On April 3, 1998 — just four days after the Coleman transaction closed — Sunbeam announced that sales for the first quarter of 1998 would be approximately 5% below the $253.4 million in sales that Sunbeam reported in the first quarter of 1997. In other words, Sunbeam was expecting sales in the range of $240 million. That sales shortfall was shocking news, particularly in view of assurances provided by Sunbeam both in and after its March 19, 1998 press release that $285 million to $295 million of sales was still a real possibility. The April 3, 1998 press release also disclosed that Sunbeam expected to show a loss for the quarter, although the release did not disclose the magnitude of the loss or how much of the loss was attributable to operating earnings as opposed to one-time charges. Sunbeam's news stunned the market. On April 3rd, Sunbeam's stock price dropped 25% — from $45-9/16 to $34-3/8.

Sunbeam's actual first quarter 1998 performance was even worse than Sunbeam disclosed on April 3, 1998. The April 3, 1998 release indicated that Sunbeam's first quarter sales were in the range of $240 million. In fact, Sunbeam's first quarter sales were $224.5

million. Sunbeam obscured the true shortfall by extending its quarter from March 29 to March 31, 1998 — thereby adding two more days of Sunbeam sales. Sunbeam also failed to disclose that it had included two days of Coleman sales after the Coleman transaction closed on March 30. Further, Sunbeam inflated first quarter 1998 sales with $29 million of new phony “bill and hold” sales.

Just as Sunbeam’s first quarter 1998 sales had been a disaster, so, too, were Sunbeam’s first quarter 1998 earnings. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam had represented to CPH that Sunbeam would achieve or exceed analyst first quarter 1998 earnings estimates. At the time of that representation, the consensus among analysts was that Sunbeam would enjoy first quarter 1998 earnings of $0.33 per share. However, on May 9, 1998, Sunbeam disclosed that it would record a first quarter loss of $0.09 per share (excluding one-time charges) — more than $0.40 per share lower than CPH had been told to expect.

Within weeks, Dunlap’s fraudulent scheme began to unravel. In June 1998, after a number of news articles critical of Sunbeam’s practices, Sunbeam’s Board of Directors launched an internal investigation. That investigation led quickly to the firing of Dunlap and Kersh, and, subsequently, to a restatement of Sunbeam’s financial statements for 1996, 1997, and the first quarter of 1998.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley participated in a scheme to mislead CPH and others and cover up the massive fraud at Sunbeam until Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam could close the purchase of Coleman. Morgan Stanley provided CPH with false information concerning Sunbeam’s 1996 and 1997 financial performance, its business operations, and the value of Sunbeam’s stock. Morgan Stanley also actively assisted Sunbeam in concealing Sunbeam’s disastrous first quarter 1998 sales and earnings and the true reasons for Sunbeam's poor performance.

Morgan Stanley knew that its statements to CPH were materially false and misleading and omitted the true facts.

Morgan Stanley intended that CPH rely on Morgan Stanley's representations concerning Sunbeam.

042735

As detailed above, Dunlap engaged in a fraudulent scheme to inflate the price of Sunbeam's stock by improperly manipulating Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 performance, by falsely asserting that Sunbeam had successfully "turned around," and by concealing the collapse of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales and earnings and the reasons for Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance.

86. As detailed above, Morgan Stanley knew of Dunlap's fraudulent scheme and helped to conceal it until after Sunbeam could close the purchase of Coleman.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley provided substantial assistance to Dunlap and Sunbeam, including: concealing Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse; assisting with the false March 19, 1998 press release; arranging road shows and meetings with prospective debenture purchasers at which Morgan Stanley, Dunlap, and others made false statements concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; preparing and disseminating the preliminary and final offering memoranda for the subordinated debenture offering, both of which contained false information concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; providing CPH with false financial and business information concerning Sunbeam; scripting Dunlap's false public statements concerning Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman; and underwriting the $750 million convertible debenture offering, proceeds from which were used to fund Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley conspired with Dunlap and other senior Sunbeam executives to conceal the truth about Sunbeam's financial performance and business operations.

As detailed above, Morgan Stanley committed overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy, including: concealing Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse; assisting with the false March 19, 1998 press release; arranging road shows and meetings with prospective debenture purchasers at which Morgan Stanley, Dunlap, and others made false statements concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; preparing and disseminating the preliminary and final offering memoranda for the subordinated debenture offering, both of which contained false information concerning Sunbeam's financial condition and business operations; providing CPH with false financial and business information concerning Sunbeam; scripting Dunlap's false public statements concerning Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman;

and underwriting the $750 million convertible debenture offering, proceeds from which were used to fund Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman.

1 respect to those, or did you continue to look for
2 e-mail?

3 A. No, the next step we did was try to 4 determine what kind of tapes they were. We knew what 5 kind of tapes they weren't. We try to determine what
6 tapes they were, so we took a sampling and discovered
7 they were Novell compressed backups.

8 Q. What does that mean?

9 A. That's just a different backup type than 10 what we were processing in the archive.

11 Q. Now, you've determined that they're Novell 12 backups. Did you receive any kind of instructions from 13 Morgan Stanley in terms of whether you should continue
14 to look for e-mail on those tapes?

15 A. Yes, I was to continue to look for e-mail.

16 Q. And did Morgan Stanley place any limitation
17 on your search for e-mails on these Novell tapes?

18 A. No.

19 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley ever give you 20 the impression that they were not interested in finding 21 e-mail on those tapes?

22 A. Oh, absolutely not.

23 Q. And you were looking for any e-mail,
24 including cc mail?

25 A. Correct.

042741

1 Q. What did you do to find e-mail on the Novell
2 backup tapes?

3 A. Well, I can't -- I believe I suggested, in 4 order to figure out what we were going to do next, to 5 list a couple of the tapes, a sample of the tapes and 6 see if we could see, A, if there were indeed any e-mail
7 on the tape, and B, if we did find e-mail, we would 8 figure out exactly what kind of processing we would 9 have to do with it.

10 Q. So one was listing, and did you do anything
11 else with respect to these tapes?

12 A. The first thing was to list, I believe it
13 was two or three tapes, I don't remember the exact 14 number.

15 Q. Did you do anything else?

16 A. I'm sorry?

17 Q. The listing is one thing that you did. Was 18 there anything else that you did?

19 A. Once the listing was produced, yes, we had 20 programs that go against the listing looking for 21 certain criteria to try to identify if there might be 22 e-mail storage places on the tape.

23 And we also had two mail server names from 24 Morgan Stanley that we searched that possibly could 25 have been Lotus Note backup servers. And we searched

0427762

1 the listings for those two mail servers. And I also
2 visually scanned through several of the listings.

3 Q. And did you report back to Morgan Stanley as 4 to the results of those efforts?

5 A. I reported back I did not find any user
6 e-mail.

7 Q. And did you receive any further instructions
8 from Morgan Stanley when you reported that back?

9 A. Yes, keep going.

10 Q. Keep looking for e-mail?

11 A. Yes.

12 Q. Did you ever report back to Morgan Stanley
13 after getting that instruction?

14 A. Yes, what I did next was I did a couple more 15 samples, listings, continued to try to find e-mail.
16 And at some point I reported back that I could not find 17 any e-mail.

18 Q. Are you now aware that there may, in fact,
19 be some e-mail on these Novell backup tapes?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. How do you explain that?

22 A. Because I didn't -- we didn't process all
23 those tapes. We only processed the samples that I'm 24 talking about.

25 Q. Did you ever tell Morgan Stanley that you

042743

1 did not process or list all of the tapes?

2 A. No.

3 Q. Did you ever send Morgan Stanley the 4 listings that you did process?

5 A. No.

6 Q. If there was a mistake in processing the 7 Novell backup tapes; whose mistake was that?

8 A. I messed up. There's no question about it.

9 Q. You've seen references in an April 29, 2004
10 minute meetings about 700 Legato tapes that were at 11 NDCI?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. And it says, I think, that they were 14 misplaced at NDCI and will be processed within two 15 weeks.

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Can you just explain to us what that's all
18 about?

19 A. Well, I would not have worded the minutes
20 that way. But what it was was we had, as you can 21 imagine, we have lots of tapes coming in and out all
22 the time. And we had control processes throughout 23 everyplace the tape goes, even what process it's in on 24 a machine. And I believe what I was doing was trying 25 to find out how many tapes we had left to process prior

RE: CPH v. Morgan Stanley
Case No. CA-005045 AI

Dear Judge Maass,

Enclosed are Unopposed Motions to Cancel the Supersedeas Bonds in this case and Agreed Orders on the Motions. I have spoken to Mr. Solovy who agreed to cancelling the bonds and Joel Eaton, CPH's appellate counsel in Miami has been provided with a copy of the Motions and Orders and has no objection to either the Motions or the Orders.

The premiums on the bonds are approximately $12,000 per day and therefore we would like to expedite their cancellation. If your Judicial Assistant could call Mr. Ianno at (561) 659-7070 upon the signing of the Orders, his office will collect them and secure the bonds from the Clerk.

If you have any questions regarding the Unopposed Motions and Orders we can arrange for a telephone conference call at your convenience with counsel for the parties.

Very truly yours,

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.,

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.'S UNOPPOSED
MOTION TO DISCHARGE CIVIL
SUPERSEDEAS BOND FILED JUNE 27, 2005

Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. ("Morgan Stanley"), moves to discharge the Civil Supersedeas Bond that Morgan Stanley filed on June 27, 2005. In support of this unopposed motion, Morgan Stanley states as follows:

1. On June 23, 2005, the Court entered a Final Judgment in favor of Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., which was recorded in the records of the Palm Beach County Circuit Court on June 23, 2005, Official Records Book 18800 at Page 0095-0096, in the principal sum of One Billion, Five Hundred Seventy-Seven Million, Six Hundred Ninety-Six Thousand, One Hundred Seventy-Five Dollars and 83/100 ($1,577,696,175.83), plus statutory interest accruing at the rate of seven percent (7%) per annum.

2. Morgan Stanley timely filed a Notice of Appeal of that Final Judgment on June 27, 2005.

3. On June 27, 2005, Morgan Stanley filed a Civil Supersedeas Bond (the "Bond"), in the principal sum of One Billion, Seven Hundred Ninety Eight Million, Five Hundred Seventy Three Thousand, Six Hundred Forty Dollars and 45/100 ($1,798,573,640.45). The Bond was filed pursuant to Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.310(b)(1), in order to obtain an automatic stay of the money judgment pending appeal. National Union Fire Insurance Company ("Surety") was the surety under the Bond.

4. On March 21, 2007, the Fourth District Court of Appeal reversed that Final Judgment, and remanded the case with instructions to enter judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley.

5. Thereafter, on April 20, 2007, Plaintiff filed motions for rehearing, rehearing en banc, clarification, and certification in the Fourth District. Those motions were denied on June 4, 2007.

6. Because the underlying Final Judgment has been reversed, a Civil Supersedeas Bond is no longer required. Until discharged, however, the substantial costs relating to the Bond continue to accrue.

7. Accordingly, the Bond should be discharged, cancelled, and returned to Morgan Stanley and the Surety, and both parties should be released from any and all liability thereunder. Morgan Stanley reserves its right to seek all costs and expenses, including costs and expenses relating to the Bond, and other damages from Plaintiff in this matter.

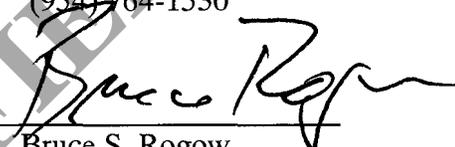

8. Undersigned counsel for Morgan Stanley has contacted Jerold Solovy and Joel Eaton, counsel for Plaintiff, regarding the relief sought in this Motion and has been authorized to state that the Plaintiff does not object to the relief sought in this Motion.

WHEREFORE, Morgan Stanley hereby requests that this Court enter an order discharging and canceling the Bond, releasing Morgan Stanley and the Surety from any and all liability arising from or under that Bond, directing the Clerk of the Court to return the original Bond to Morgan Stanley, reserving all claims for costs, expenses, and damages against Plaintiff, and awarding such other and further relief as is just and proper.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.'S UNOPPOSED
MOTION TO DISCHARGE CIVIL
SUPERSEDEAS BOND FILED DECEMBER 16, 2005

Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. ("Morgan Stanley"), moves to discharge the Civil Supersedeas Bond that Morgan Stanley filed on December 16, 2005. In support of this unopposed motion, Morgan Stanley states as follows:

1. On November 22, 2005, the Court entered a "Judgment on CPH's Motion to Tax Costs" in favor of Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., which was recorded in the records of the Palm Beach County Circuit Court at Official Records Book 19597 at Page 0950, in the principal sum of Nine Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars and 00/100 ($950,000.00).
2. Morgan Stanley timely filed a Notice of Appeal of that judgment on December 16, 2005.
3. On December 16, 2005, Morgan Stanley filed a Civil Supersedeas Bond (the "Bond"), in the principal sum of One Million Eighty-Three Thousand Dollars and 00/100 ($1,083,000.00). The Bond was filed pursuant to Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure

9.310(b)(1), in order to obtain an automatic stay of the money judgment pending appeal. Safeco Insurance Company of America (“Surety”) was the surety under the Bond.

4. On March 21, 2007, the Fourth District Court of Appeal reversed the underlying Final Judgment entered in this case, and remanded the case with instructions to enter judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley.

5. Thereafter, on April 20, 2007, Plaintiff filed motions for rehearing, rehearing en banc, clarification, and certification in the Fourth District. Those motions were denied on June 4, 2007.

6. The parties had previously agreed that in the event the underlying Final Judgment was reversed on appeal, the “Judgment on CPH’s Motion to Tax Costs” would have to be vacated as well because Plaintiff would no longer be the prevailing party. Since the underlying Final Judgment has been reversed, a Civil Supersedeas Bond securing the “Judgment on CPH’s Motion to Tax Costs” is no longer required and Plaintiff has consented to the discharge of the Bond at this time.

7. Accordingly, the Bond should be discharged, cancelled, and returned to Morgan Stanley and the Surety, and both parties should be released from any and all liability thereunder. Morgan Stanley reserves its right to seek all costs and expenses, including costs and expenses relating to the Bond, and other damages from Plaintiff in this matter.

8. Undersigned counsel for Morgan Stanley has contacted Jerold Solovy and Joel Eaton, counsel for Plaintiff, regarding the relief sought in this Motion and has been authorized to state that the Plaintiff does not object to the relief sought in this Motion.

WHEREFORE, Morgan Stanley hereby requests that this Court enter an order discharging and canceling the Bond, releasing Morgan Stanley and the Surety from any and all liability arising from or under that Bond, directing the Clerk of the Court to return the original Bond to Morgan Stanley, reserving all claims for costs, expenses, and damages against Plaintiff, and awarding such other and further relief as is just and proper.

v.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,
Appellee.

No. 4D05-2606

[March 21, 2007]

TAYLOR, J.

This appeal arises from a merger between The Coleman Company, Inc., a manufacturer of camping gear, and Sunbeam, Inc., a manufacturer of household products. Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. (CPH), which owned most of the Coleman stock before the merger, exchanged its stock for shares of Sunbeam stock. Later, as reports emerged that Sunbeam's sales were falling and that the company had artificially inflated the value of its stock, Sunbeam's stock price plunged. Sunbeam ultimately declared bankruptcy. CPH sued Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. (Morgan Stanley), Sunbeam's investment banker in the transaction, alleging that Morgan Stanley helped Sunbeam in carrying out its fraudulent scheme to inflate the price of its stock until after the merger. A jury returned a verdict against Morgan Stanley for conspiracy and aiding and abetting fraud. It awarded CPH compensatory damages of $604,334,000 and punitive damages of $850 million. Morgan Stanley appeals the $1.58 billion judgment entered on the jury verdict. We reverse.

Morgan Stanley raises several issues on appeal, including: (1) whether the trial court improperly entered a partial default against Morgan Stanley as a sanction for discovery misconduct; (2) whether the trial court properly applied Florida law rather than New York law on the issues of justifiable reliance and damages; (3) whether CPH failed to prove compensatory damages by not establishing the fraud-free value of the Sunbeam stock on the date of the merger transaction; (4) whether the trial court erred in denying Morgan Stanley a fair opportunity to contest and mitigate evidence of litigation misconduct presented during the punitive damages phase of trial; and, (5) whether the punitive damages awarded were excessive. Because our decision on the third issue regarding proof of damages is dispositive, we do not reach the other issues and confine our discussion to compensatory and punitive damages.

A. Compensatory Damages

Pursuant to the merger agreement, Sunbeam bought the Coleman stock and paid CPH approximately half of the purchase price with its own stock. CPH received 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock, with an estimated value over $600 million. The transaction closed on March 30, 1998.

The merger agreement contained a "lockup" restriction, which limited CPH's ability to sell its Sunbeam stock for a specified period. CPH could not sell more than 25% of the Sunbeam stock for 90 days, then could sell another 25% in another 90 days and the remaining 50% in 270 days. A "lockup" provision is customary in situations where, as here, a company is selling a substantial number of shares and wants them sold in an orderly fashion. The shares were unregistered, but Sunbeam had agreed to register them promptly.

On April 3, 1998, Sunbeam issued a press release announcing that first quarter sales would be 5% below 1997 sales and that the company would show a loss for the quarter. Sunbeam stock dropped 10%, to $34 a share, after this report.

In mid-June 1998, Sunbeam's CEO, Al Dunlap, was fired after an internal investigation revealed fraudulent bookkeeping. Jerry Levin, formerly Coleman's CEO, then took the reins as Sunbeam's CEO and brought several senior Coleman executives with him. By then, the stock price had dropped to $18. Shortly after Dunlap's firing, Arthur Andersen "pulled" its 1996 and 1997 audit certificates.

By the end of 1998, Levin and his team had been at Sunbeam for almost six months. The company had restated its financials for 1996 and 1997, reducing the loss in 1996 and moving it to 1997. Sunbeam still showed a profit for 1997, even after the restatement, and still had assets of $3.5 billion.

Originally, CPH had planned to sell the Sunbeam shares after the "lockup" period. However, several circumstances prevented it from doing so. First, because of the fraud and Arthur Andersen's restatement of Sunbeam's financials, registration of the Sunbeam shares could not be completed until late 1999. Registration of a security is required before it can be sold in the public markets. Second, according to CPH, if, at any time after June 1998, the market had learned that CPH was attempting to sell its Sunbeam stock, "the market would clearly have viewed that as CPH abandoning a sinking ship and would have destroyed any value for the CPH stock." Third, because senior executives previously affiliated with CPH had assumed positions on Sunbeam's board and gained access to information concerning Sunbeam's performance, CPH was concerned that selling any of its Sunbeam shares could subject it to liability for insider trading.

On February 6, 2001, nearly three years after the transaction closed, Sunbeam went bankrupt. Howard Gittis, the vice-chairman of CPH, testified that, in his opinion, Sunbeam went bankrupt because it was overleveraged, i.e., had too much debt. As a result of the bankruptcy, CPH's Sunbeam shares became worthless.

At trial, CPH sought benefit-of-the-bargain damages. To establish these, CPH presented the testimony of its expert, Dr. Blaine Nye, a financial economist. Dr. Nye testified that CPH suffered damages between $634 and $680 million. He used an expected value for the 14.1 million Sunbeam shares of $48.26 per share (based on the average share price from the time the deal was publicly disclosed until the day it closed), for a total expected value of more than $680 million. Dr. Nye stated his opinion that, because CPH never was able to realize any value from the shares, CPH effectively received "zero" value. As an alternative, he assumed that three-quarters of the shares were saleable in the first quarter of 2000, which would have yielded a share price of $4.35 per share (averaged over the quarter). By that method, CPH's loss amounted to $634 million.

Morgan Stanley objected to the admission of Dr. Nye's opinion on damages. It argued that Dr. Nye's testimony was incompetent, because he did not factor a valuation date into his analysis. Contrary to the requirements set by settled law on fraud damages, his opinion was not based upon the value of the stock on the March 30, 1998 date of the transaction. The court overruled the objection. During cross-examination of Dr. Nye, Morgan Stanley established that Dr. Nye did not calculate the actual value of Sunbeam shares at any point in time.

Departing from his practice in other securities cases, he did not determine the “fraud-free” price of Sunbeam stock on the date of closing. He simply assumed CPH could not have recovered any value, as he was instructed to do by CPH. He did not consider whether other factors affected the stock price, such as business decisions by the new management team or the stock market crash of 2000. He did not analyze whether Sunbeam’s acquisition of other small companies during this time created problems. He did not look at Sunbeam’s expenses while it was being operated by the new management.

After Dr. Nye’s examination, Morgan Stanley moved to strike Dr. Nye’s testimony and renewed its earlier motions in limine and motion to exclude. Morgan Stanley argued that Dr. Nye’s testimony was legally deficient, pointing out that the expert admitted at trial, as well as in deposition, that he “did not use the date of the deal at all” in his analysis and made no attempt to estimate the value of the loss as of March 30, 1998. The court denied the motions. It also denied Morgan Stanley’s motion to direct a verdict in its favor due to CPH’s failure to prove damages.

On May 16, 2005, the jury returned a verdict finding, by clear and convincing evidence, that CPH relied on the false statements made by Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam, and that it suffered damages as a result. The jury awarded CPH compensatory damages in the amount of $604,334,000. Two days later, after brief testimony regarding punitive damages, the jury returned a verdict for punitive damages in the amount of $850 million. Morgan Stanley appealed the entire judgment on these verdicts.

CPH sought benefit-of-the-bargain damages from Morgan Stanley. Under the “flexibility theory” of damages followed in Florida, a defrauded party is entitled to the measure of damages that will fully compensate him. Nordyne, Inc. v Fla. Mobile Home Supply, Inc., 625 So. 2d 1283, 1286 (Fla. 1st DCA 1993) (“The ‘flexibility theory’ permits the court to use either the ‘out-of-pocket’ or the ‘benefit-of-the-bargain’ rule, depending upon which is more likely fully to compensate the injured party.”). At CPH’s request, the trial court concluded that CPH was entitled to benefit-of-the-bargain damages. Damages under the benefit-of-the-bargain rule are measured by the difference between the value of the property as represented and the actual value of the property on the date of the transaction. Kind v. Gittman, 889 So. 2d 87, 90 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004); Totale, Inc. v. Smith, 877 So. 2d 813, 815 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004); Teca, Inc. v. WM-TAB, Inc., 726 So. 2d 828, 829 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999); Perlman v.

Ferman Corp., 611 So. 2d 1340, 1341 (Fla. 4th DCA 1993). Actual value of the property at the time of purchase is a “crucial element in the damage equation.” Teca, 726 So. 2d at 829. This is so whether a plaintiff seeks benefit-of-the-bargain damages or an out-of-pocket measure of damages. Kind, 889 So. 2d at 90; Totale, 877 So. 2d at 815. The same standard is applied in federal securities cases. See Miller v. Asencio & Co., 364 F.3d 223, 227 (4th Cir. 2004) (citing Affiliated Ute Citizens v. U. S., 406 U.S. 128, 155 (1972)) (stating that the measure of damages in 10(b) case was the difference between the fair value of what plaintiff received and the fair value of what they would have received had there been no fraudulent conduct at the time of sale); In Re Imperial Credit Indus., Inc. Sec. Litig., 252 F. Supp. 2d 1005, 1014 (C.D. Cal. 2003).¹

As a general rule, plaintiffs alleging securities fraud rely on expert proof to establish both the fact of damage and the appropriate method of calculation. Sowell v. Butcher & Singer, Inc., 926 F.2d 289, 301 (3d Cir. 1991). CPH’s expert testified as to the bargained-for value of the Sunbeam stock, but he did not testify as to the actual value of the Sunbeam stock at the time of purchase – a necessary element of proof. He testified that although he had done such calculations in other cases, in this case he did not isolate the fraud-free price and perform the standard securities analysis to determine what would have been the stock’s value on the date of transaction. Instead, he treated the stock as though it had no value when the transaction occurred in 1998.

CPH defends the evidence it presented at trial on damages. It argues that Morgan Stanley is liable for the full amount of its loss, because Morgan Stanley defrauded CPH into accepting shares that it could not resell. It contends that “in cases where misconduct induces a plaintiff to purchase stock and then hinders the plaintiff from reselling that stock, courts repeatedly have held that the wrongdoer is liable for losses until resale can occur.” CPH maintains that, because it could not sell its stock, it was not bound by the date-of-transaction rule, but could recover for stock price declines until such time as it could resell the stock. Consistent with CPH’s theory of damages, the trial court instructed the jury to value the stock on the date CPH could first resell it after December 1999, when the shares could be registered.

Morgan Stanley counters that CPH should not be allowed to recover for declines in Sunbeam's stock price during the period that CPH had agreed to a contractual "lockup". By agreeing to the "lockup", CPH bargained for at least part of the stock's illiquidity and accepted the risk of declines in stock price due to market conditions or other non-fraud related factors during the "lockup period". Thus, to allow CPH to recover for non-fraud related losses during the "lockup" period, when CPH had effectively agreed to absorb non-fraud related losses for that period, would amount to giving CPH more than what it bargained for. The record shows that Sunbeam lost approximately 90% of its value during the contractual "lockup" timeframe.

CPH maintains that it is entitled to recover for even non-fraud related stock price declines during this period, because it would not have entered the agreement, with its "lockup" clause, but for the fraud. However, CPH's "but for" causation argument disregards the proximate causation required for fraud damages and is at odds with the benefit-of-the-bargain recovery it elected. Benefit-of-the-bargain damages do not turn on what would have happened if CPH had known the representations were false. They measure what CPH would have received had the representations been true. By opting for benefit-of-the-bargain damages, CPH does not seek to rescind the transaction; it seeks to affirm the transaction and claim the benefit of the bargain. The bargain, in this case, included sale restrictions.

A plaintiff who seeks a benefit-of-the-bargain measure of damages is not entitled to a better bargain than the one it made. This is true even under Florida's "flexibility theory" of damages. The "flexibility theory" of damages, which allows a plaintiff to choose either benefit-of-the-bargain or out-of-pocket damages in fraud cases, is not so flexible as to allow a plaintiff to pick and choose which parts of the contract it wants to affirm and which parts it wants to disaffirm. Furthermore, applying CPH's "but for" rationale to proving damages would result in recovery of all non-fraud related losses in virtually every fraud case, because the defrauded party would need only assert that it would not have agreed to the contract had it known of the fraud.

To support its argument that it was entitled to all "pre-sale" losses, CPH relies primarily on Shearson Loeb Rhoades, Inc. v. Medlin, 468 So. 2d 272, 273 (Fla. 4th DCA 1985). However, Shearson hinders rather than helps CPH's claim. In that case, we held that the measure of damages for delay in delivery of stock certificates is the difference between the value when the certificates should have been delivered and the value when they were actually delivered. We barred damages for subsequent depreciation absent proof that the plaintiff "would have sold" earlier had the stock been properly delivered. Here, CPH introduced no such proof. To the contrary, it had actually agreed not to sell during the most critical period when Sunbeam lost 90 % of its value.

As to the date-of-transaction rule, CPH argues that the transaction date is not necessarily the operative valuation date in a case involving stock or other property that, due to fraud, could not be resold when the fraud was exposed. It contends that once it placed in evidence a stock price table showing the daily market price of Sunbeam shares from March 1998 until Sunbeam declared bankruptcy in February 2001, the jury could simply select a date when the effects of the fraud no longer existed and perform its own calculation in making an award. However, even if the jury had chosen a date, such as the date Arthur Andersen restated the Sunbeam financials, other factors existed that could have affected the stock price. As the Supreme Court explained in Dura Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Broudo, 544 U.S. 336, 342-43 (2005):

When a purchaser subsequently resells such shares, even at a lower price, that lower price may reflect, not the earlier misrepresentation, but changed economic circumstances, changed investor expectations, new industry-specific or firm-specific facts, conditions, or other events, which taken separately or together account for some or all of that lower price.

Thus, recovering in a securities case "require[s] elimination of that portion of the price decline that is the result of forces unrelated to the wrong." Miller, 364 F.3d at 232 (quoting In re Executive Telecard, Ltd. Sec. Litig., 979 F. Supp. 1021, 1025 (S.D.N.Y. 1997)).

Usually, a securities plaintiff proves the actual, or "fraud-free," value of the stock at the time of purchase by presenting an expert "event study" or "event analysis." In fact, an "event analysis" is often required to support an expert's damages calculation and "generally involves the computation of a statistical regression analysis or, at a minimum, the compilation of a detailed analysis of each particular event that might have influenced the stock price." Miller, 364 F.3d at 234. This is the kind of calculation that CPH's expert said he had done in other cases.

In Miller, the expert claimed to have done the “event analysis” in his head, never committing any portion of it to paper, other than his final conclusion. The court characterized this analysis as “markedly thin” and upheld a zero verdict, stating that the record was one from which the jury “cannot” have awarded damages. Id. at 235.

In In re Imperial Credit Industries, Inc. Securities Litigation, 252 F. Supp. 2d 1005 (C.D. Cal. 2003), at the summary judgment stage, the court excluded the defense expert’s damages report as junk science under Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceutical, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993), then entered summary judgment for the defendant, because the report contained no “event study” or similar analysis. In so doing, it noted:

11. Because of the need “to distinguish between the fraud-related and non-fraud related influences of the stock’s price behavior,” In re Oracle Sec. Litig., 829 F. Supp. 1176, 1181 (N.D. Cal. 1993), a number of courts have rejected or refused to admit into evidence damages reports or testimony by damages experts in securities cases which fail to include event studies or something similar. See, e.g., In re Northern Telecom Sec. Litig., 116 F. Supp.2d 446, 460 (S.D. N.Y.2000) (“Torkelson’s testimony is fatally deficient in that he did not perform an event study or similar analysis to remove the effects on stock price of market and industry information and he did not challenge the event study performed by defendants’ expert.”); Executive Telecard, 979 F. Supp. at 1024-26 (finding an expert’s methodology not reliable because he failed to conduct an event study or regression analysis to detect whether stock price declines were the result of forces other than the alleged fraud; applying Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharm., 509 U.S. 579, 113 S. Ct. 2786, 125 L. Ed. 2d 469 (1993) to exclude the expert damages report); Oracle, 829 F. Supp. at 1181 (“Use of an event study or similar analysis is necessary more accurately to isolate the influences of information specific to Oracle which defendant allegedly have distorted… As a result of his failure to employ such a study, the results reached by [plaintiffs’ expert] cannot be evaluated by standard measures of statistical significance.”)

12. The importance and centrality of the event study methodology in determining damages in securities cases-and the propriety of rejecting expert damages reports which do not use such a methodology has been conceded by plaintiffs in other securities fraud cases:

“[A]ccording to [plaintiffs], the methodology-‘event study methodology’-used to calculate shareholder damages during the class period ‘has been used by financial economists since 1969 as a tool to measure the effect on market prices from all types of new information relevant to a company’s equity valuation.’ It is so accepted, plaintiffs add, that courts now reject expert damage estimates which do not use event study methodology to evaluate the impact on the market of a company’s disclosures.”

In re Cendant Corp. Sec. Litig., 109 F. Supp. 2d 235, 253-54 (D.N.J. 2000).

Imperial Credit, 252 F. Supp. 2d at 1015.

CPH was not entitled to have the jury speculate as to the value of the stock on the date of sale. Rather, it was required to prove the stock’s value on that date. As we explained in Totale, “the crucial time for the measurement is the time of the fraudulent representation. Later appreciation or depreciation of the property that is subject of the false representation generally does not alter the fraud damage computation.” 877 So. 2d at 815. The federal cases cited above merely expand on Florida law that requires the plaintiff to prove the actual, “fraud-free” value of the stock at the time of purchase. Although CPH insisted in oral argument that the stock market was doing well and that there were no non-fraud related factors affecting the stock price during the “lockup” period, it failed to present any competent proof at trial establishing the absence of non-fraud related factors.

In sum, CPH failed to meet its burden of proving the actual, “fraud-free” value of the Sunbeam stock on the date of the transaction. Instead, it measured damages based on the stock’s value years after the transaction. Because there was no proof presented at trial on the correct measure of damages, the trial court should have granted Morgan Stanley’s motion for directed verdict. We therefore reverse the final judgment for compensatory damages and remand for entry of a judgment for Morgan Stanley. See Kind, 889 So. 2d at 90; Teca, 726 So. 2d at 830.

We reject CPH's argument that it should, at the least, be given a new trial to prove damages because the trial court erred in its pretrial rulings and jury instructions concerning the proper measure of damages. CPH cannot complain about rulings that it urged the court to make in accordance with its damages theory. Furthermore, as we held in Teca, a plaintiff is not entitled to a second "bite at the apple" when there has been no proof at trial concerning the correct measure of damages. Id. at 830.

B. Punitive Damages

The trial was bifurcated, with the jury deciding liability and compensatory damages in Phase I. In Phase II, the jury tried the issue of punitive damages and awarded CPH $850 million in punitive damages. Because we conclude that Morgan Stanley was entitled to a directed verdict and reversal of the compensatory damages award, we reverse the punitive damages award as well. The punitive damages award cannot stand where, as here, no legally cognizable damage was shown as a result of the alleged fraud. Had the trial court properly directed a verdict for Morgan Stanley, the case would have ended at that point and the punitive damages phase never would have been reached.

CPH argues that we should nevertheless uphold the award of punitive damages. It suggests that even after entering a directed verdict on compensatory damages, the trial court could have submitted the liability issue to the jury as a possible predicate for punitive damages. Relying on Ault v. Lohr, 538 So. 2d 454 (Fla. 1989), and Engle v. Liggett Group, Inc., 945 So. 2d 1246 (Fla. 2006), CPH argues that, where an intentional tort is proved, punitive damages are recoverable even in the absence of compensatory damages. We conclude that Ault is distinguishable and that Engle is not controlling in this case.

Ault was an assault and battery case. The jury in that case awarded the plaintiff punitive damages, but no compensatory damages. The Florida Supreme Court approved the punitive damages award because of the jury's express finding of liability. The court held that "a finding of liability alone will support an award of punitive damages 'even in the absence of financial loss for which compensatory damages would be appropriate.'" 538 So. 2d at 456. Assault and battery torts, however, are fundamentally different from fraud. Unlike in the case of fraud, actual injury or compensatory damages are not essential to stating a cause of action for assault and battery. See, e.g., Paul v. Holbrook, 696 So. 2d 1311, 1312 (Fla. 5th DCA 1997); Lay v. Kremer, 411 So. 2d 1347, 1349 (Fla. 1st DCA 1982).

It is fundamental that “[a]ctual damages and the measure thereof are essential as a matter of law in establishing a claim of fraud.” Nat’l Equip. Rental, Ltd. v. Little Italy Rest. & Delicatessen, Inc., 362 So. 2d 338, 339 (Fla. 4th DCA 1978). “Damage is of the very essence of an action for fraud or deceit.” Casey v. Welch, 50 So. 2d 124, 125 (Fla. 1951). Without proof of actual damage the fraud is not actionable. Id.; Stokes v. Victory Land Co., 128 So. 408 (1930); Pryor v. Oak Ridge Dev. Corp., 119 So. 326 (1928); Wheeler v. Baars, 15 So. 584 (1894); Nat’l Aircraft Servs., Inc. v. Aeroserv Int’l, Inc., 544 So. 2d 1063 (Fla. 3d DCA 1989); Nat’l Equip. Rental, 362 So. 2d at 339. Thus, to prevail in an action for fraud, a plaintiff must prove its actual loss or injury from acting in reliance on the false representation.²

Even if CPH established the fact of some unquantified damage (which theoretically could have supported a nominal damage award), this is not enough to justify a punitive damage award in a fraud case. Punitive damages for fraud cannot be based on nominal damages alone. Nat’l Aircraft Servs., 544 So. 2d at 1065. Although the Florida Supreme Court’s recent Engle opinion does state that “an award of compensatory damages is not a prerequisite to a finding of entitlement to punitive damages,” we read the opinion as addressing the order of proof in determining entitlement to punitive damages. 945 So. 2d at 1262 (“Therefore we conclude that the order of these determinations is not critical.”).³

² In his specially concurring opinion in Ault, Chief Justice Ehrlich observed that if actual damage is an essential element of a tort, then an award of compensatory damages is necessary for an award of punitive damages. Though we recognize that this concurring opinion is not binding precedent, we find it highly persuasive. The alternative view would, for example, permit virtually anyone who ever smoked a cigarette in the State of Florida to recover punitive damages in a fraud action against the tobacco companies, irrespective of a finding of any actual adverse health effects.

³ Even if we were to accept CPH’s argument that some amount of punitive damages would still be awardable after a directed verdict on compensatory damages, due process principles would not have permitted an $850 million punitive damage award to stand in a case where no compensatory damages were awarded. See BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559 (1996) (holding that punitive damages must bear a reasonable relationship to compensatory

Accordingly, we reverse both the compensatory and punitive damage awards and remand this cause with directions to enter judgment for Morgan Stanley.

I have a different perception.⁴ Mine sees differences in the case actually litigated in the trial court from the case on appeal. In sum, I see nothing wrong under Florida law with Coleman's theory of compensatory damages or proof and would affirm that part of the judgment. As for punitive damages, however, I would reverse and remand for a new trial on the issue of *entitlement*⁵ and, if necessary, the amount. I elaborate in the following paragraphs.

Compensatory Damages

Sunbeam sought to buy Coleman's stock to acquire control of the company. It agreed to pay part of the price with its own stock and part in cash. Coleman's reasons for accepting some of the price in the buyer's own securities were doubtlessly based on the tax laws, but there are other considerations as well. For example, one reason to hold the stock would be to receive future earnings from what was represented to be worth $640,000,000. And so the mere fact that part of the price was paid in securities hardly means that the seller intended to convert such damages). Under due process principles, only a small fraction of the $850 million award would conceivably have been recoverable in this situation.

⁴ I do agree with the majority's necessarily implicit affirmance of the trial court's application of Florida law instead of New York. Florida has a significant and undeniable interest in providing remedies for persons injured by false financial statements emanating from this state by companies who have decided to locate their headquarters here. I agree that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in the sanctions imposed on Morgan Stanley for substantial violations of court orders.

⁵ See § 768.725, Fla. Stat. (2005) ("In all civil actions, the plaintiff must establish at trial, by clear and convincing evidence, its entitlement to an award of punitive damages.").

securities into cash, or that buyer's damages should be based only on some hypothetical price the stock might have fetched if resold at some point.

The claim is intentional fraud, not breach of contract. Coleman claimed that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley deliberately falsified financial reports to induce Coleman to accept Sunbeam stock as part of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman. That means that the worth of the stock is critical to measuring Coleman's damages.

The value of stock is affected by an objective factor, which in turn may be enhanced by subjective factors. Objectively, it reflects the intrinsic worth of the corporation: the value of its assets in excess of its liabilities. Its worth might also be enhanced by intangible factors: for example, although heavily in debt, a pending transaction could inject considerable profits.

Theoretically, there are two ways in which the value of the Sunbeam stock could have been falsified by the misrepresentations of Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley. The first would be that the stock really had no objective value at all because the corporation was insolvent and lacked any prospects to rescue it.⁶ The alternative could be that the stock actually retained a value less than the corporate financial reports indicated. In other words, the distinction is the difference between zero and some positive whole number.

Florida law, therefore, understandably gave Coleman different ways to measure the injury it suffered from stock whose value had been deliberately misrepresented.

"Florida has adopted two standards for the measurement of damages in an action for fraudulent representation. Either may be used to do justice as the circumstances demand. The first standard is the 'benefit-of-the-bargain' rule.... The second standard is the 'out-of-pocket' rule...." [e.s.]

See Martin v. Brown, 566 So.2d 890, 891 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990); see also Strickland v. Muir, 198 So.2d 49, 51 (Fla. 4th DCA 1967), receded from on

⁶ Again, even if the stock lacked objective value because of the insolvency of the corporation, the owners of its stock might still avoid a liquidation if they could point to some prospective advantage to conceivably rescue the situation. But without that, the stock would have no value.

other grounds, TECA, Inc. v. WM-TAB, Inc., 726 So.2d 828 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999). Looking at the benefit-of-the-bargain rule, I see nothing wrong with the jurisprudence of allowing the deceived victim of fraud to hold a defendant to his lies for purposes of assessing damages. So if a defendant had represented the thing to be worth $10,000 when it was actually worth nothing, it is fit and appropriate to mulct him in money damages for the full $10,000. Let the defendant pay what he said the value was. Essentially that is what the benefit-of-the-bargain theory of damages does.

At trial Coleman measured its damages by the benefit of its bargain. It did not seek to prove that the stock had some reduced value above zero. To the contrary, it contended instead that the stock was worthless. As I understand its evidence at trial if believed by the jury, it could have been properly understood as showing that the stock it received from Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley never really had any real value because of the concealed insolvency of Sunbeam—as the later bankruptcy confirmed.

One important aspect of compensating someone for the intentional deceit of another is to make the damages fit the fraud and place the deceived person where he (it) would have been if the goods (stock) had been as represented. If Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley were guilty of deceiving Coleman into believing that the shares given in payment for the company were worth at least $640,000,000, even though the stock had no real value because of the corporation's concealed insolvency, then it seems only right to hold Sunbeam indebted to Coleman for the same $640,000,000 in money damages. Such compensation is just and fair because it vindicates the value (mis)represented.

I see no legal reason why the deceiver should be benefited in the measurement of damages by the mere fact that Coleman held on to the stock and refrained from selling it in the market when it might have done so. For one thing, by requiring a resale of inflated stock to an unsuspecting public, the court's reasoning would encourage aggrieved buyers unwittingly to make use of their seller's fraudulent representations concealing its real lack of value. The law of damages can hardly countenance such a perpetuation of fraudulent financial statements. If the tainted stock has no value, there is no reason for one in the position of Coleman to produce evidence of the selling price of the stock for any particular day after the sale and before the lawsuit so long as it instead proved that from the day of the sale it had no real value on account of the hidden financial failure of the company. Moreover, Coleman's failure to sell the stock at the first chance was obviously weighed by the jury. The verdict demonstrates that the jury apparently found that Coleman's failure to attempt resale was of no consequence.

At trial Morgan Stanley's damages defense was apparently meant to defeat Coleman's benefit-of-the-bargain theory by focusing on the second method of proving fraud damages. To reduce damages it sought to establish that even if the stock fell short of the entire value represented by the financial statements, it was nevertheless still worth some lesser value. Morgan Stanley certainly elicited evidence of a lesser value and so argued to the jury. The problem for Morgan Stanley on appeal is that its theory was substantially rejected by the jury. While there may have been contrary evidence, Coleman produced contrary evidence to support its theory of zero value. The jury relied on Coleman's theory instead of Morgan Stanley's, a reliance that should impel this court on appeal to reject the alternative theory of measuring damages as well.

The principal policy underlying compensation in fraud cases has been explained thus:

"In tort actions, the goal is to restore the injured party to the position it would have been in had the wrong not been committed. In most cases, the measure of damages which will accomplish this goal is that provided by the 'out-of-pocket rule.' However, in some cases, the measure of damages afforded by that rule will prove inadequate to achieve the desired goal. To address those latter cases in which the claim is for fraud, what has been described as the 'flexibility theory' has been developed. The 'flexibility theory' permits the court to use either the 'out-of-pocket' or the 'benefit-of-the-bargain' rule, depending upon which is more likely fully to compensate the injured party." [c.o., e.s.]

Nordyne, Inc. v. Fla. Mobile Home Supply, Inc., 625 So.2d 1283, 1286 (Fla. 1st DCA 1993). Coleman had strong authority under Florida law to rely on the benefit-of-the-bargain rule and succeeded in producing evidence that the stock it received was essentially worthless. While Morgan Stanley was free to hitch its star to the alternative out-of-pocket rule, it was the function of the jury to decide which of the two theories would fully compensate the deceived victim of this particular fraud. From the amount awarded, it is obvious that the jury largely used the benefit-of-the-bargain rule, reducing the amount claimed by Coleman to fit the jury's resolution of the evidence. I do not think the trial judge abused her discretion in allowing the evidence or by refusing to disturb the jury's compensation verdict.

Punitive Damages

In Ault v. Lohr, 538 So.2d 454 (Fla. 1989), the court held that a plaintiff can recover punitive damages when the fact finder has found a breach of duty but compensatory or actual damages have not been proven; nominal damages need not first be awarded before punitive damages are proper. Yet in spite of Ault, the majority peremptorily holds that no punitive damages are possible in this intentional fraud case because of its reversal of the jury's award of compensatory damages. Their reasoning is:

“Although the Florida Supreme Court's recent Engle opinion does state that ‘an award of compensatory damages is not a prerequisite to a finding of entitlement to punitive damages,’ we read the opinion as addressing the order of proof in determining entitlement to punitive damages, not as eliminating the need for proof of damages establishing the underlying case of fraud.”

(referring to Engle v. Liggett Group, Inc., 945 So.2d 1246, 1262 (Fla. 2006)). To understand why Engle does not hold what the majority said it did, I set out the Engle court's actual discussion on this subject in its entirety:

A. Phase I Finding on Entitlement to Punitive Damages

“The last question on the Phase I verdict form asked the jury to determine whether ‘[u]nder the circumstances of this case, ... the conduct of any Defendant rose to a level that would permit a potential award or entitlement to punitive damages.’ The jury answered ‘yes’ with respect to each of the defendants. In Phase II-B, the jury awarded a total of $145 billion in punitive damages to the class.

“The Third District ruled that the trial erred in awarding classwide punitive damages ‘without the necessary findings of liability and compensatory damages.’ Engle II, 853 So.2d at 450.⁷ A majority of the Court (Anstead, Pariente, Lewis and Quince) concludes that an award of compensatory damages is not a prerequisite to a finding of entitlement to punitive damages. Compensatory and punitive damages serve distinct purposes. As the United States Supreme Court has explained:

The former are intended to redress the concrete loss that the plaintiff has suffered by reason of the defendant's wrongful conduct. The latter, which have been described as 'quasi-criminal,' operate as 'private fines' intended to punish the defendant and to deter future wrongdoing. A jury's assessment of the extent of a plaintiff's injury is essentially a factual determination, whereas its imposition of punitive damages is an expression of its moral condemnation. Cooper Indus., Inc. v. Leatherman Tool Group, Inc., 532 U.S. 424, 432, 121 S.Ct. 1678, 149 L.Ed.2d 674 (2001) (citations omitted).'

"Because a finding of entitlement to punitive damages is not dependent on a finding that a plaintiff suffered a specific injury, an award of compensatory damages need not precede a determination of entitlement to punitive damages. Therefore, we conclude that the order of these determinations is not critical. See Jenkins v. Raymark Indus., Inc., 782 F.2d 468, 474 (5th Cir.1986).

"A different majority of the Court (Wells, Anstead, Pariente and Bell) concludes that under our decision in Ault v. Lohr, 538 So.2d 454, 456 (Fla.1989), a finding of liability is required before entitlement to punitive damages can be determined, and that liability is more than a breach of duty. A finding of liability necessarily precedes a determination of damages, but does not compel a compensatory award. For example, in Ault, the jury found that the defendant had committed an assault and battery but awarded $0 in compensatory damages and $5000 in punitive damages. See id. at 455. Thus, unlike the Phase I jury in this case, the jury in Ault found that the plaintiff had proved the underlying cause of action but did not suffer any compensable damage.

"Although we appeared to use 'breach of duty' and 'liability' interchangeably in Ault, the Court expressly adopted the principles set forth in dicta in Lassiter v. International Union of Operating Engineers, 349 So.2d 622 (Fla.1976). Specifically, we stated that [n]ominal damages are awarded to vindicate an invasion of one's legal rights where, although no physical or financial injury has been inflicted, the underlying cause of action has been proved to the satisfaction of a jury.

Accordingly, the establishment of liability for a breach of duty will support an otherwise valid punitive damage award even in the absence of financial loss for which compensatory damages would be appropriate. Ault, 538 So.2d at 455 (quoting Lassiter, 349 So.2d at 625-26).’

“In this case, the Phase I verdict did not constitute a ‘finding of liability’ under Ault. This is evidenced by the fact that had the jury found for Tobacco on the legal cause and reliance issues during Phase II, there would have been no opportunity for the jury to award the named plaintiffs damages of any type. In other words, Phase II findings for Tobacco on legal causation and reliance would have precluded the jury from awarding compensatory or punitive damages. It was error for the trial court to allow the jury to consider entitlement to punitive damages before the jury found that the plaintiffs had established causation and reliance.

“In Phase I, the jury decided issues related to Tobacco’s conduct but did not consider whether any class members relied on Tobacco’s misrepresentations or were injured by Tobacco’s conduct. As the Third District noted, the Phase I jury ‘did not determine whether the defendants were liable to anyone.’ Engle II, 853 So.2d at 450. It was therefore error for the Phase I jury to consider whether Tobacco was liable for punitive damages.” [e.s.]

945 So.2d at 1262-63. By no stretch of the imagination could this explanation be understood by me as merely fixing an “order of proof in determining entitlement to punitive damages.” Ault v. Lohr had already “eliminat[ed] the need for proof of damages establishing the underlying case of fraud,” and Engle explicitly proceeded to follow and apply Ault in the holding quoted above. Id. It is not reasonable to read the above quotation to mean anything other than that an award of some compensatory damages is unnecessary to find an entitlement to punitive damages.

Because the majority’s reading of Engle on the punitive damages issue is obviously at odds with the Supreme Court’s earlier holding in Ault, it is apparent that the majority thinks that Engle has impliedly overruled Ault. But the Supreme Court has repeatedly made clear that it does not impliedly overrule itself. See Puryear v. State, 810 So.2d 901, 905 (Fla. 2002) (“We take this opportunity to expressly state that this Court does not intentionally overrule itself sub silentio. Where a court encounters an express holding from this Court on a specific issue and a subsequent contrary dicta statement on the same specific issue, the court is to apply our express holding in the former decision until such time as this Court recedes from the express holding." [e.s.]); State v. Ruiz, 863 So.2d 1205, 1210 (Fla. 2003) ("Further, as we have made clear, 'this Court does not intentionally overrule itself sub silentio.'"); F.B. v. State, 852 So.2d 226, 228 (Fla. 2003) ("Thus, while the Second District's reliance ... is understandable, we again remind the courts that this Court does not intentionally overrule itself sub silentio."); City of Miami v. McGrath, 824 So.2d 143, 152 (Fla. 2002) ("there is no indication that the Court ... intended to recede from its prior approach to analyzing when a statute is an impermissible special law."). There is absolutely nothing in Engle suggesting that Ault was being explicitly overruled; indeed the court actually proceeded to apply Ault. See Engle, 945 So.2d at 1262-63 ("A finding of liability ... does not compel a compensatory award. For example, in Ault, the jury found that the defendant had committed an assault and battery but awarded $0 in compensatory damages and $5000 in punitive damages. Thus, unlike the Phase I jury in this case, the jury in Ault found that the plaintiff had proved the underlying cause of action but did not suffer any compensable damage.").

Ault's actual holding is that zero compensatory damages do not preclude punitive damages. In fact the court granted review specifically to answer that question. Ault, 538 So.2d at 456 ("The narrow question for resolution by this Court is whether a plaintiff can recover punitive damages where the factfinder has found a breach of duty but no compensatory or actual damages have been proven."). In holding that liability without at least some compensatory damages does not foreclose an award of punitive damages, Ault explained:

"We believe an express finding of a breach of duty should be the critical factor in an award of punitive damages. Accordingly, we hold that a finding of liability alone will support an award of punitive damages 'even in the absence of financial loss for which compensatory damages would be appropriate.' We reject Ault's contention that at least nominal damages must first be awarded before punitive damages are proper. We conclude that nominal damages are in effect zero damages and are defined as those damages flowing from the establishment of an invasion of a legal right where actual or compensatory damages have not been proven. In approving an award of punitive damages upon an express finding of liability by the factfinder, we accept the view that nominal damages will be presumed from an encroachment upon an established right." [e.s., f.o.]

Id. In a special concurring opinion, Justice Ehrlich contributed the following:

"The crucial element in determining whether punitive damages may be awarded absent an award of compensatory damages is proof of the underlying cause of action. Where actual damage is an essential element of the underlying cause of action, an award of compensatory damages must be a prerequisite to an award of punitive damages. This case involved the torts of assault and battery, which do not require proof of actual damage. Therefore, I agree that in this case, where the jury made an express finding of liability, punitive damages could properly be awarded even absent an award of compensatory damages."

538 So.2d at 457.

The majority has not disturbed the jury's finding of liability for fraud—for which plaintiff was required to present evidence of the fact (if not the amount) of some damage. Effectually the majority has resurrected this court's holding in Buonopane v. Fritz, 477 So.2d 1030 (Fla. 4th DCA 1985) ("The law in Florida is clear that one cannot recover for punitive damages if no compensatory damages are awarded."). But that holding that was expressly disapproved in Ault. 538 So.2d at 456 ("For the reasons expressed, we ... disapprove Buonopane v. Fritz, 477 So.2d 1030 (Fla. 4th DCA 1985)..."). There is a world of difference between the fact that one was damaged—i.e., harmed or injured—by a falsehood (fraud being merely one example of an actionable falsehood, defamation another) and the entirely separate issue of its quantification in money damages. Ault requires only the former and eschews the latter.

In setting aside the compensatory damages in this case, the majority's premise is that the stock may well have had some lesser value than Morgan Stanley represented but the evidence fails to establish that any precise lesser value on some relevant date. Clearly, however, the evidence supported the inference that Coleman was damaged by the fraud, even if it fails to support the precise amount awarded. In First Interstate Development Co. v. Ablanado, 511 So.2d 536 (Fla. 1987), the supreme court held that punitive damages are appropriate for any tortious conduct accomplished through fraud. See also Winn & Lovett

Grocery Co. v. Archer, 171 So. 214, 221, 222 (1936) (exemplary damages are given solely as a punishment where torts are committed with fraud; to recover exemplary or punitive damages, the declaration must allege some general facts and circumstances of fraud). If proof of intentional fraud is per se enough for punitive damages, then the failure to establish the precise monetary amount of the actual loss caused by the fraud does not affect the entitlement to punitive damages. It may have an effect on the amount of punitive damages but not entitlement.

In order for the jury in this case to have assessed any compensatory damages, it first had to decide that Coleman had established the fact of damage from Morgan Stanley's intentionally false financial statements. Accordingly, under Engle and Ault, if the majority could properly decide that Coleman failed to prove any amount of compensatory damages, it would be necessary to presume at least nominal damages for fraud. The result should then be to remand the case to the trial court for a new trial on punitive damages.

But apart from Engle, I think a new trial on punitive entitlement is required for an entirely different reason. My reasoning is this.

Liability on the fraud issue was partially established by the trial court's imposition of sanctions on Morgan Stanley and its consequent jury instruction that it must take as established the essential facts Coleman relied on to prove liability for fraud. Later when this bifurcated trial entered the punitive damages phase, Morgan Stanley tried to present evidence contrary to those facts deemed established by the jury instruction for purposes of deciding the liability phase. The trial judge barred Morgan Stanley from doing so. In my opinion, this was error.

In deciding whether to inflict civil punishment by punitive damages, the critical issue turns on "the degree of reprehensibility⁸ of the defendant's misconduct." State Farm Mutual Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 418 (2003); BMW of North America, Inc. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559, 575 (1996). While there are other lesser factors, it is manifest that any "moral outrage" of the jury must arise from conduct suitably blameworthy. See e.g. Cooper Indus., Inc. v. Leatherman Tool Group, Inc., 532 U.S. 424, 432 (2001) ("A jury's ... imposition of punitive damages is an expression of its moral condemnation."). The moral condemnation is the censure of a civil society expressed collectively by its representative members on a jury. It is not the individual reaction of a single judge—not even when the judge is imposing sanctions for discovery violations by directing the jury to take certain facts as proven. The facts creating an entitlement to punitive damages are not something that a trial judge can impose on a jury as a presumption. Unavoidably, it is the jury who must find and express that moral condemnation.

A jury cannot make this severe condemnation without admissible evidence confirming that the defendant's conduct was adequately blameworthy. Due process thus requires that defendant must necessarily have the right to offer admissible evidence that members of the community might logically and reasonably consider as mitigating its blameworthiness for such punishment. In this case the trial judge essentially denied Morgan Stanley that right. For that reason I would have a new trial as to both entitlement and (if necessary) any amount.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.'S
MOTION TO TAX APPELLATE COSTS
(Case No. 4D05-2606 – Main Appeal)

Pursuant to Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.400(a) and Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.525, Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. (“Morgan Stanley”) hereby moves for an order awarding its taxable appellate costs relating to Fourth District Court of Appeal case number 4D05-2606 against Plaintiff, Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. (“Coleman”). In support of this motion, Morgan Stanley states as follows:

1. On June 23, 2005, this Court entered a Final Judgment in favor of Plaintiff, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. Morgan Stanley timely filed a Notice of Appeal of that Final Judgment on June 27, 2005. On March 21, 2007, the Fourth District Court of Appeal reversed the Final Judgment, and remanded the case with instructions to enter judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley.

2. Thereafter, on April 20, 2007, Plaintiff filed motions for rehearing, rehearing en banc, clarification, and certification in the Fourth District. Those motions were denied on June 4, 2007.

3. On June 22, 2007, the Fourth District issued its mandate, returning jurisdiction in this case to this Court. A copy of the mandate is attached as Exhibit "A".

4. Under rule 9.400(a), taxable appellate costs are to be awarded by the trial court on motion of the prevailing party, to be served within 30 days after issuance of the mandate.

5. Accordingly, because Morgan Stanley prevailed on appeal, this Court should award taxable appellate costs against Coleman and in favor of Morgan Stanley.

6. Morgan Stanley reserves the right to supplement this motion with supporting documentation concerning the reasonable costs incurred and recoverable pursuant to Rule. 9.400.

WHEREFORE, Defendant, Morgan Stanley, respectfully requests this Court to grant its Motion to Tax Appellate Costs and grant such other relief as this Court deems just and proper.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S REQUEST FOR A STATUS CONFERENCE

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys, requests a status conference to establish the schedule for additional proceedings in this case. Such a conference is necessary to determine the schedules for briefing certain motions and for conducting discovery that will be necessary in conjunction with those motions.

In May 2005, the jury in this case found Morgan Stanley liable for a massive fraud, and it awarded CPH compensatory damages of $604 million and punitive damages of $850 million. The Fourth District Court of Appeal reversed that judgment, reasoning that CPH had not proven damages under a methodology set forth in the Fourth District's decision. On June 22, 2007, that Court's mandate issued, and on December 12, 2007, the Supreme Court denied CPH's petition for review of the Fourth District's decision. Pursuant to the Fourth District's mandate, judgment should now be entered in favor of Morgan Stanley.

A status conference is needed to determine what should happen next. Once judgment is entered, CPH intends to file a motion pursuant to Rule 1.540(b), seeking relief from that judgment inasmuch as it was obtained by fraud. A copy of CPH's motion is attached for the Court's convenience. A status conference will be useful to establish a schedule for discovery, briefing, and an evidentiary hearing on CPH's Rule 1.540(b) motion.

A status conference also will be useful to determine the schedule for any future proceedings on costs. Because Morgan Stanley's costs motions did not identify the costs they seek, and were not noticed, it is necessary to set a schedule for Morgan Stanley to disclose the costs that it seeks, for discovery into those costs to proceed, and for the parties to brief the requests.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, CPH's Request for a Status Conference should be GRANTED.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION TO VACATE THE JUDGMENT AND GRANT A NEW TRIAL ON DAMAGES

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys and pursuant to Rule 1.540(b) of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure, respectfully requests that this Court vacate the judgment of dismissal entered in favor of Morgan Stanley, enter a default as to all elements of CPH's claim, order a new trial on damages as more fully described herein, and provide such further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Prior to the jury trial in this case, CPH asked the Court to enter a default against Morgan Stanley based on Morgan Stanley's persistent litigation misconduct, which affected CPH's ability to litigate "[e]very single element" in the case, including damages. 3/15/05 Tr. at 3944. After conducting two remediation hearings, the Court found that remedial action was warranted against Morgan Stanley, but the Court imposed a less severe remedy than the default proposed by CPH. Indeed, as the Court expressly stated in its first remedial order, the remedy it sought to impose was one that was "the most conservative available." 3/2/05 Order at 12. The Court's purpose was not punitive, but simply to "level the playing field," as the Court noted in its Order. 3/23/05 Order at 17-18.

But at the time of the remediation hearings, and continuing to the present day, Morgan Stanley has actively evaded the sanction it deserved by concealing the true extent of its massive wrongdoing. During those hearings, and throughout the trial, Morgan Stanley insisted that any wrongdoing was the fault of its Information Technology (“IT”) department, and that Morgan Stanley’s in-house lawyers were blameless. Morgan Stanley emphatically and repeatedly drew a sharp distinction between its business people and its in-house lawyers. Repeatedly — in the briefing and argument on the remediation motions, in evidentiary proffers submitted to the Court, and in hearings about what CPH could argue to the jury with respect to punitive damages — Morgan Stanley was adamant: its in-house lawyers knew nothing about the misconduct. Morgan Stanley pressed that argument because Morgan Stanley correctly surmised that the Court and the jury would mete out a harsher punishment if they knew that the in-house lawyers responsible for Morgan Stanley’s compliance with the law actually were assisting Morgan Stanley’s business people in subverting the civil justice system.

We now know that Morgan Stanley’s in-house lawyers did know about the misconduct and were culpable participants in it. Our knowledge of those facts is the result of Morgan Stanley’s grudging and piecemeal acknowledgements — which were delivered over the course of almost a two-year period and are as dramatic for what they concede as they are shocking for what they still conceal. As we explain more fully below, there is now no doubt whatsoever that Morgan Stanley’s in-house counsel knew about the misconduct of which they repeatedly professed ignorance. When pressed by the Court at the November 3, 2005 hearing, Morgan Stanley’s outside counsel conceded that at least three senior Morgan Stanley in-house lawyers submitted false statements to the Court concerning the time when they and the Law Division — not just the IT department — knew about the existence of e-mail that Morgan Stanley had

Our knowledge of those facts is the result of Morgan Stanley’s grudging and piecemeal acknowledgements — which were delivered over the course of almost a two-year period and are as dramatic for what they concede as they are shocking for what they still conceal. As we explain more fully below, there is now no doubt whatsoever that Morgan Stanley’s in-house counsel knew about the misconduct of which they repeatedly professed ignorance. When pressed by the Court at the November 3, 2005 hearing, Morgan Stanley’s outside counsel conceded that at least three senior Morgan Stanley in-house lawyers submitted false statements to the Court concerning the time when they and the Law Division — not just the IT department — knew about the existence of e-mail that Morgan Stanley had affirmatively sworn did not exist. 11/3/05 Tr. at 35-36. We now know — not simply suspect, but know — that James P. Cusick (Morgan Stanley's Co-Head of Litigation), Soo-Mi Lee (Executive Director in the Law Division), and James F. Doyle (also an Executive Director in the Law Division, and the person who filed a false Declaration in January 2005) submitted false statements to the Court to the effect that none of them — nor anyone else in the Law Division — knew about the misconduct. In fact, each of them — Cusick, Lee, and Doyle — knew that the backup tapes existed; knew that the tapes contained e-mail; and knew that they, and others at Morgan Stanley, had sworn that no such e-mail tapes existed.¹

Notwithstanding the Court's decision to enter remedial orders less severe than those that CPH requested, and the practical limitations placed on CPH by virtue of Morgan Stanley's continued deception and withholding of evidence, CPH secured a jury verdict in its favor, upon which the Court entered a judgment. On appeal, the Fourth District did not question the remedial orders, but reversed the judgment on the ground that CPH had not properly proved its damages. Pursuant to the Fourth District mandate, this Court has now entered a judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley.

¹ Morgan Stanley has refused to disclose whether others in the Law Division also knew about the misconduct, or whether anyone in the Law Division reported the misconduct to the most senior executives of Morgan Stanley. To be clear, this outrageous conduct was ongoing at the time of the sanctions hearings and the trial. The information already known is sufficient to warrant imposition of the most severe sanctions available to the Court. There also is no doubt that Morgan Stanley has attempted to conceal, to this very day, key facts about when its in-house lawyers learned about Morgan Stanley's e-mail tapes. Morgan Stanley has played a cat-and-mouse game with CPH and the Court concerning the exact dates, the precise tapes, and the circumstances leading to the piecemeal revelations — all important facts that, as we show below in great detail, Morgan Stanley has misrepresented, obscured, or simply concealed. It is not only a fair, but the only plausible, inference that Morgan Stanley has declined to provide further information, because it knows such information would be even more damning.

Until now, CPH has had no reason to pursue Rule 1.540(b) relief because CPH had succeeded in obtaining relief against Morgan Stanley despite Morgan Stanley's continued withholding of the truth from CPH and the Court. That circumstance has now obviously changed with the mandated entry of judgment in Morgan Stanley's favor. However, that judgment is subject to the rules governing all judgments. If a prevailing party has committed fraud, as Morgan Stanley has in this case, its judgment is properly subject to a motion for relief from the judgment under Rule 1.540(b). In these circumstances, that relief should be granted. Indeed, Morgan Stanley's own post-verdict and post-judgment admissions that it defrauded the Court require that result.

In this motion, we show that Morgan Stanley defrauded the Court by concealing the extent of its wrongdoing, and that this concealment has continued to the present, notwithstanding the periodic, partial, and disingenuous disclosures that Morgan Stanley began to make once the trial had concluded. We also show that this concealment resulted in the imposition of a lesser sanction than would have been appropriate. We then show that Rule 1.540(b) requires the granting of discovery and an evidentiary hearing on this motion, and that the present record, together with additional facts to be developed, support the granting of a new trial on damages. Indeed, unless this Court grants this motion and imposes the sanction that Morgan Stanley has always deserved, Morgan Stanley will succeed in its fraud against the Court and will not be called to account, either for its complicity in an enormous fraud or for the egregious litigation misconduct with which it sought to conceal that complicity before, during, and after the trial.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

CPH brought suit against Morgan Stanley for aiding and abetting, and conspiring with, Sunbeam Corporation to perpetrate a massive fraud in connection with Sunbeam's purchase of CPH's interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. As part of the consideration for the sale of that interest, CPH received unregistered Sunbeam stock that had an expected value of $680 million but proved to be worthless. Morgan Stanley denied any complicity in the fraud and denied damages. 6/23/03 Answer of MS, at 1, 17-19. Accordingly, access to Morgan Stanley's documents relevant both to liability and amount of damages was critically important. On the damages issue, for example, as CPH explained to the Court during the remedial hearings, Morgan Stanley may well have had documents showing its own valuation of Sunbeam on the closing date of the transaction. 3/15/05 Tr. at 3944.

But Morgan Stanley lied to this Court, defied Court orders, concealed and destroyed documents and electronic data, and engaged in other misconduct to defeat the truth-seeking processes of discovery. CPH moved for sanctions against Morgan Stanley, including a total default. CPH's motion was based in part on Morgan Stanley's false certification on June 23, 2004 that it had produced all relevant e-mail messages — a certification Morgan Stanley made with full knowledge that relevant e-mail backup tapes had not even been searched. In response to CPH's remedial motion, Morgan Stanley argued that it should not be severely punished because its in-house counsel were not aware until months later, in October or November 2004, of the existence of potentially relevant e-mail messages on these backup tapes. In March 2005, this Court issued two remedial rulings, ultimately determining that Morgan Stanley's knowledge of the underlying fraud and collusion with Sunbeam should be deemed established.

Although those rulings took account of some portion of Morgan Stanley's misconduct, other misconduct continued during the remediation proceeding itself, after the remedial measures were imposed, and even after the jury proceedings on reliance, the fact of damage, and the amount of damages had been concluded. In December 2006, Morgan Stanley acknowledged that its in-house attorneys were indeed aware "prior to July 2004" of the existence of e-mail on the backup tapes, and that these e-mails dated to the time of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger. Notwithstanding Morgan Stanley's artfulness in using the phrase "prior to July 2004," the only fair reading of Morgan Stanley's statements is that Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers had this knowledge when Morgan Stanley falsely certified, on June 23, 2004, that it had produced all relevant e-mail messages. In addition, those statements show that Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers clearly knew that numerous statements made to the Court in 2004 and 2005, including those contained in sworn declarations, were utterly false.

A. Misconduct Leading to 2005 Remedial Rulings.

Morgan Stanley's disregard for the integrity of the judicial process and for its obligations to the plaintiff continued unabated throughout the period leading up to the 2005 remedial rulings, taking a variety of different — but consistently reprehensible — forms.

First, Morgan Stanley repeatedly lied to this Court. Morgan Stanley has not challenged this Court's ruling that at least 35 of Morgan Stanley's statements to the Court — including statements made under oath — were "false" or "misleading." See 3/23/05 Order at 8-16 (listing statements); 3/2/05 Order at 3-10 (same). Morgan Stanley also submitted false interrogatory answers signed by a corporate representative who had not read them, and falsely represented on numerous occasions that it was unable to retrieve electronic data concerning the authorship and drafting history of important documents. 3/23/05 Order at 15; 2/28/05 Order at 2.

Second, Morgan Stanley repeatedly defied Court orders. As this Court found, Morgan Stanley defied at least seven orders entered between December 2003 and March 2005. 3/23/05 Order at 9-16 & n.10. For example, Morgan Stanley withheld documents regarding the discovery and restoration of e-mail backup tapes, thus defying an April 2004 "Agreed Order" as to electronic discovery and a February 2005 order requiring Morgan Stanley to produce them. Id. Morgan Stanley also defied a March 2005 discovery order because, as this Court expressly found, Morgan Stanley “desperately wanted to hide an active SEC inquiry” into Morgan Stanley’s continued practice of overwriting backup tapes, in violation of an outstanding SEC cease-and-desist order. Id. at 10 & n.10, 12-14, 16. In addition, among other orders that Morgan Stanley violated were the following: (1) a February 2005 order requiring discovery on the authenticity, business-record status, and authorship of certain documents that showed Morgan Stanley’s involvement in misleading aspects of the underlying Sunbeam transaction, (2) a February 2005 order mandating e-mail production from certain backup tapes, and (3) a March 2004 order requiring production of certain performance evaluations of Morgan Stanley personnel involved in the transaction, which production would have revealed serious, repeated internal expressions of concern about the candor and ethics of William Strong, the senior Morgan Stanley banker in charge of the Sunbeam deal. Id. at 11-16. This Court concluded that those violations of court orders were “deliberate[] and contumacious[.]” Id. at 16.

Third, Morgan Stanley “routinely assert[ed] unfounded privilege claims.” Id. One example of this strategy involved William Strong. Id. at 14-16. Morgan Stanley did not reveal a relevant criminal prosecution against him, and then obstructed discovery by claiming privilege with respect to approximately 700 documents related to that prosecution, many under supposed joint defense agreements that the Court later found did not exist. Id. at 16 n.17. After this Court ordered Morgan Stanley to submit those documents for in camera review, Morgan Stanley withdrew its privilege claim with respect to more than 260 of the documents. Id. Following an in camera review, this Court found that 200 more documents were not privileged. Id.

Fourth, Morgan Stanley engaged in massive fraud with respect to e-mail production. Because the underlying transaction between Sunbeam and CPH was completed in 1998, documents from the 1990s were obviously critical. In response to a motion to compel, Morgan

Stanley told the Court in December 2003 that all of its pre-January 2000 e-mail backup tapes had been erased. 3/23/05 Order at 3-5; 12/17/03 Tr. at 20. A corporate representative likewise testified at deposition that Morgan Stanley's recently constructed e-mail archive did not contain e-mail from the 1990s, claiming that the archive captured e-mails only "going forward." 3/23/05 Order at 4-5 & n.3, 10-11 & n.12. Both of those representations were false. In fact, Morgan Stanley had e-mails from at least 9,000 backup tapes from the 1990s that it had not searched in response to CPH's discovery requests. 3/14/05 Tr. at 3462; 3/14/05 Hr'g Ex. 1, Tab 87. Moreover, Morgan Stanley was loading these tapes into its e-mail archive for its own internal purposes — and the person leading that effort was the very same corporate representative who committed perjury at the deposition. Id. at 8-10 & nn.7-12, 13. But based on Morgan Stanley's false representations, the Court entered an Agreed Order on April 16, 2004, requiring Morgan Stanley to search only the oldest full backup tape that it had for each of 36 individual employees, and then to certify compliance. Of course, the Agreed Order made no mention of the archive, because Morgan Stanley's corporate representative had falsely testified that the archive contained no pre-2003 e-mails. 3/23/05 Order at 4 n.3, 5 n.12.

Purporting to comply with that Agreed Order, Morgan Stanley provided CPH with a few additional e-mails on May 14, 2004, but did not submit the required certification of compliance until June 23, 2004, following CPH's repeated demands. 3/23/05 Order at 5-6. As CPH discovered in subsequent contempt proceedings, Morgan Stanley's legal staff inappropriately attempted to have this certificate signed by a college student who performed data-entry functions. 10/19/05 CPH Verified Motion for Leave to File a Supplemental Affidavit From Arthur Riel, Ex. 1 at 7. The certificate, as ultimately signed by Arthur Riel, Morgan Stanley's Executive Director of Technology, stated that Morgan Stanley had produced all the e-mail from the oldest full backup tapes as required, but in fact, as Mr. Riel knew, e-mails from thousands of existing tapes — including more than 1,400 e-mail backup tapes that Morgan Stanley found in a store room in Brooklyn (the “Brooklyn tapes”) and more than 700 8-millimeter e-mail backup tapes (the “8-mm tapes”) — had not been searched or produced. 3/23/05 Order at 9-10.

In November 2004 (after the SEC, unbeknownst to CPH and the Court, had uncovered the truth that Morgan Stanley was loading its archive with e-mails from the late 1990s), Morgan Stanley produced to CPH some additional e-mails, which it said were from “newly discovered” tapes. Id. at 5, 10 & nn.7-12; 3/2/05 Order at 5-6. That representation was false; Morgan Stanley had not then “newly discovered” any tapes. But Morgan Stanley continued its efforts to avoid any admission that massive quantities of 1990s e-mails were being uploaded to its archive, where they could be quickly and inexpensively searched. 3/23/05 Order at 10 & n.11. Morgan Stanley made the misrepresentation that the produced e-mails were from newly discovered tapes in five separate letters to CPH, and then in a sworn declaration, in-court testimony, and at least a dozen separate representations by counsel. E.g., 1/31/05 MS Opp. re Adv. Inference at 2-4; 3/23/05 Order at 5-11; 6/17/05 MS Notice at 1-2.

Subsequently, in the weeks preceding the scheduled trial date in early 2005, Morgan Stanley repeatedly made new announcements that it had just discovered hundreds or thousands of backup tapes, each containing massive numbers of potentially responsive e-mails, none of which had been processed or analyzed. 3/23/05 Order at 7-8, 10, 14; 3/2/05 Order at 7-10. All of those announcements were false.

B. This Court’s 2005 Remedial Rulings.

1. The March 1, 2005 Order. On January 26, 2005, CPH moved for an adverse-inference instruction on the ground that Morgan Stanley had failed to produce responsive e-mails and to comply with this Court’s April 2004 Agreed Order. 3/2/05 Order at 6;

2/4/05 Order re Add'l Search of E-Mail Tapes; 2/3/05 Order Setting Evid. Hr'g. One key issue was when Morgan Stanley's Law Division had learned that Morgan Stanley's June 23, 2004 certificate of compliance with the Agreed Order was false. Morgan Stanley argued that the certification was not false (or at least not knowingly false) because (1) Arthur Riel, the Morgan Stanley Executive Director of Technology who signed the certificate, did not learn until several days after it was filed that the unsearched tapes actually contained e-mails, and (2) Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers did not learn about the existence of e-mail on the tapes until months later, in October 2004. Morgan Stanley supported its response with a sworn declaration of James F. Doyle, who was a lawyer and an Executive Director in its Law Division. Doyle's declaration averred that "[a]t the end of October 2004, I learned that additional e-mail backup tapes had been located within Morgan Stanley, and that the data on those tapes had not been restored or searched prior to Morgan Stanley's May 14, 2004 e-mail production." 2/11/05 Declaration of J. Doyle, at 1. The pleading to which this declaration was attached likewise stated: "At the end of October 2004, James F. Doyle, the attorney at Morgan Stanley who directed Morgan Stanley's prior search for e-mail messages, learned that additional e-mail backup tapes had been located within Morgan Stanley, and that the data on those tapes had not been restored or searched prior to the May 14, 2004 e-mail production." Morgan Stanley's Opp'n to CPH's Mot. for Adverse Inference Instruction Due to Morgan Stanley's Destruction of E-Mails and Morgan Stanley's Noncompliance with the Court's April 16, 2004 Agreed Order, at 2 (filed Jan. 31, 2005). Lest there be any doubt about the significance of the Doyle declaration, two days later Morgan Stanley told the Court at a hearing: "The headline is that the first time that anyone — that anyone at Morgan Stanley knew that there was recoverable e-mail data that might fall within the Court's order was not until late October 2004 consistent with Mr. Doyle's declaration." 2/2/05 Tr. at 132.

Nine days later, Morgan Stanley filed a supplemental opposition to CPH's motion, again quoting verbatim from this key passage of the Doyle declaration. See Morgan Stanley's Supp. Opp'n to CPH's Mot. for Adverse Inference Instruction, at 2 (filed Feb. 11, 2005). Later that month, Morgan Stanley quoted from the Doyle declaration again, this time resorting to bold italics: "Morgan Stanley has consistently contended that no one in its Law Division knew of the existence of additional recoverable e-mail data on the tapes before October 2004." Morgan Stanley's Opp'n to CPH's Mot. for a Default Judgment, at 6 (filed Feb. 28, 2005) (emphasis in original).

At an evidentiary hearing on February 14, 2005, as the Court later found, Morgan Stanley continued "to hide . . . its violations and coach witnesses." 3/23/05 Order at 16. For example, one executive's sworn testimony directly contradicted sworn statements she had given the SEC only three days before. Id. at 12. Despite these evasions and lies, the hearing finally established that the e-mail archive, contrary to Morgan Stanley's representations, contained large amounts of 1990s e-mails that could be easily searched, but had not been produced. 2/14/05 Tr. at 26-130; 3/23/05 Order at 10 & n.11. CPH then amended its adverse-inference request by also seeking a default judgment. 3/9/05 CPH Renewed Mot. for Entry of Default Judgment.

On March 1, 2005, this Court ruled on CPH's motion. The Court concluded that Morgan Stanley had willfully violated court orders and had acted "knowingly, deliberately, and in bad faith" to "thwart discovery" and "conceal[] its role in the Sunbeam transaction." 3/2/05 Order at 10-11, 14. Calling its chosen sanction the "most conservative available," this Court shifted the burden of proof on the issues of Morgan Stanley's knowledge of the fraud and collusion with Sunbeam, but continued to require CPH to prove reliance, the fact of damage, and the amount of damages. Id. at 12-14. When that decision was rendered, this Court had no access to information that would have contradicted Morgan Stanley's claim that in-house counsel was not aware of the recoverable e-mail until October 2004. This Court's remedial order was therefore based on an assumption that the lawyers of the Morgan Stanley Law Division were not participants in Morgan Stanley's misconduct.

2. The March 23, 2005 Sanction. Despite the March 1 ruling, Morgan Stanley's misconduct continued unabated, and CPH moved for a total default on liability. 3/9/05 CPH Renewed Mot. for Entry of Default Judgment. Morgan Stanley again reiterated its story about the Law Division attorneys, once more resorting to bold italics: "When Mr. Riel signed his Certification of Compliance in June 2004, he did not know or suspect that there was any e-mail on the so-called 'Brooklyn tapes' Mr. Riel also testified that . . . he learned that some of the Brooklyn tapes contained some e-mail [but] he does not recall ever communicating that fact to anyone in the Law Division." Morgan Stanley's Opp'n to CPH's Mot. for a Default Judgment, at 11-12 (filed Mar. 14, 2005) (emphasis in original). Morgan Stanley made this point repeatedly throughout its opposition, also stating that, "[w]hile it is true that Mr. Riel and other members of the IT Staff knew in early July 2004 (after Mr. Riel signed his certification) that some of those tapes contained some e-mails going back to the late 1990s, neither Mr. Riel nor anyone else in the IT department informed Morgan Stanley's lawyers of that fact. . . . It was not until late October 2004, when Morgan Stanley's Law Division was working with Ms. Gorman (Mr. Riel's successor) on some issues regarding an unrelated regulatory production of e-mails, that the Law Division learned, for the first time, that some of the tapes contained e-mails." Id. at 20. Morgan Stanley insisted that this alleged state of affairs "accounts for Morgan Stanley's representation to this Court that late October 2004 marks the first time that the in-house legal staff was aware of this fact.” Id.

In addition, rather than relying solely on Mr. Doyle’s word, James P. Cusick, Morgan Stanley’s Co-Head of Litigation, was enlisted to oppose the sanctions motion. Morgan Stanley argued: “[W]hether the affidavit had come from Mr. Doyle, Mr. Cusick, or any other member of Morgan Stanley’s Law Division, the content would have been the same: the Law Division did not learn that some of the newly discovered tapes contained some e-mails until October 2004. While Morgan Stanley did not formally withdraw the May [sic] 2004 Certification of Compliance at that time, it did promptly alert outside counsel, which promptly alerted CPH that new e-mail tapes had been discovered and that they would be searched for responsive documents.” Id. at 31.

Three days later, Morgan Stanley told the Court that “[t]he delay between when the Law Division learned [that the found tapes contained e-mail] (late October 2004) and when [Morgan Stanley’s counsel] wrote CPH’s counsel (November 17, 2004) was minor and did not prejudice CPH.” Morgan Stanley’s Overnight Response to CPH’s Additional Submission in Support of its Motion for Default, at 6 (filed Mar. 15, 2006).

On March 23, 2005, after a further evidentiary hearing, this Court declined to grant the relief that CPH requested, but imposed a further, carefully calibrated remedial order, which was not intended to punish Morgan Stanley, but to “level the playing field.” 3/23/05 Order at 17-18. After stating that Morgan Stanley’s “discovery abuses and misrepresentations . . . would take a volume to recite,” the Court expressly found that Morgan Stanley, still hoping to conceal evidence, had violated two orders entered since March 1 and had coached witnesses to withhold critical information. Id. at 15-16. The Court identified 23 additional recent instances of misconduct. Id. at 11-14, 16. The Court also found that Morgan Stanley had failed to notify CPH and the Court in a timely manner concerning the falsehood of the June 2004 certificate of compliance, which averred that all relevant e-mails had been produced — even though, among other deficiencies, the “Brooklyn tapes” and the “8-mm tapes” had not even been searched.

While the Court found that in-house counsel knew at the time the June 2004 certificate of compliance was served that it was false because they knew about “additional unsearched backup tapes,” the Court did not find that these lawyers knew that the “additional unsearched backup tapes” contained e-mails. 3/23/05 Order at 5 n.4, 13. At that point, despite the extensive revelations of misconduct committed by Morgan Stanley, the Court did not have evidence that contradicted Morgan Stanley’s repeated assertions and sworn statements that its in-house counsel did not know until October 2004 about the e-mails contained in the unsearched tapes.

Accordingly, the Court declined to enter the total default that CPH had requested. Id. at 16-18. Instead, the Court found that Morgan Stanley’s “acts in depriving CPH of crucial documents and discovery to prove its claims require that certain facts be removed from dispute, in order to level the playing field.” 5/16/05 Order. It was necessary, in this Court’s view, to deem “established for all purposes” those elements as to which the Court previously had reversed the burden of proof. 3/23/05 Order at 17. The Court continued, however, to require CPH to prove reliance, as well as the fact and amount of damages. In addition, the Court relieved Morgan Stanley of any further obligation to produce e-mails.

3. Morgan Stanley’s Assertions in Conjunction with the Litigation-Misconduct Statement. The Court’s partial-default order also mandated that a statement describing Morgan Stanley’s e-mail misconduct would be read to the jury for its consideration in determining the propriety of punitive damages. 3/23/05 Order at 17. On May 12, 2005, when the Court was shaping the precise wording of the litigation-misconduct statement, Morgan Stanley filed a 235-page proffer that made a number of additional important misrepresentations to the Court. Morgan Stanley contended that its failure to comply with court orders relating to e-mail production was merely the result of a series of unfortunate “mistakes,” not a systematic effort to conceal fraud. And Morgan Stanley again claimed that its in-house counsel did not know that there was e-mail on the Brooklyn tapes and the 8-mm tapes until October 2004. 5/12/05 MS Addendum to Opposition to CPH Second Renewed Mot. for Correction. Three high-ranking in-house attorneys for Morgan Stanley — James P. Cusick (Morgan Stanley’s co-head of litigation), Soo-Mi Lee (executive director in Morgan Stanley’s Law Division), and James F. Doyle (the executive director in the Law Division who had filed the false declaration in January 2005) — submitted offers of proof asserting that they had first learned there was e-mail on the Brooklyn tapes in late October 2004 and on the 8-mm tapes in November 2004. Cusick and Lee both asserted that they knew of no one in Morgan Stanley’s Law Division who knew this information earlier. Def.’s Offer of Proof re James P. Cusick at ¶¶ 3-4; Def.’s Offer of Proof re Soo-Mi Lee at ¶¶ 3-4 (filed 5/12/05).

Morgan Stanley continued to press these false contentions at a hearing on May 16, 2005, when arguing about how the Court should instruct the jury with regard to punitive damages. Morgan Stanley asked the Court to tell the jury that “[t]here is no evidence that any lawyer in Morgan Stanley’s Law Division was aware prior to October 2004 that any of the tapes contained any e-mail.” 5/16/05 Tr. at 15266. The Court did not accept Morgan Stanley’s proposal verbatim. Id. at 15266, 15267. The Court told the jury that Morgan Stanley’s in-house lawyers knew about the existence of the backup tapes before October 2004. In fact, however, Morgan Stanley’s in-house lawyers also actually knew, long before October 2004, that the tapes contained e-mails — a fact which also should have been brought to the jury’s attention, as CPH requested. The Court did not do so, for the simple reason that the Court accepted Morgan Stanley’s assertions and sworn statements (later shown to be false) that the lawyers knew at that time that there were backup tapes, but not that they contained e-mail. 5/17/05 Tr. at 15459.

Two days later, on May 18, in vetting the PowerPoint presentation that CPH planned to use in its closing argument on punitive damages, Morgan Stanley repeated the same false story, again achieving Morgan Stanley’s desired results. Morgan Stanley told the Court that there was evidence “that people in Morgan Stanley’s Law Division” knew in October 2004 of “backup tapes but not that the backup tapes contained e-mail. And it’s undisputed that they learned that these contained e-mail in October 2004.” 5/18/05 Tr. at 15607. When the Court responded that “It turned out they did contain e-mail,” Morgan Stanley replied, “They didn’t know it, Your Honor.” Id. at 15607. The Court then turned to CPH’s counsel and asked: “Can you change it [to] ‘... did not know about unsearched backup tapes later found to contain e-mail’ or something?” Id. at 15607. When CPH balked at this suggestion, Morgan Stanley persisted: “Your Honor, it’s undisputed in the record that the lawyers at Morgan Stanley learned that e-mail was on these tapes in October 2004. There’s been no contrary evidence to this. . . . They knew about the tapes in June, but they didn’t know they contained e-mail.” Id. at 15608. The Court required CPH to redo its closing PowerPoint presentation, explaining: “We don’t know if [the Morgan Stanley in-house lawyers] knew [the backup tapes] contained e-mail.” Id. at 15608. Morgan Stanley had succeeded in convincing the Court that Morgan Stanley’s in-house lawyers, while aware of the tapes’ existence, had somehow remained unaware that the tapes contained e-mail until October 2004. Morgan Stanley’s arguments to that end, as we now know, were part of the fraud, but those arguments succeeded in ensuring that the arguments made to the jury were deliberately and improperly skewed in Morgan Stanley's favor.

The jury nonetheless found Morgan Stanley liable. The jury found that CPH had relied on Sunbeam's false statements, found that these false statements had damaged CPH, and awarded CPH $1.45 billion in compensatory and punitive damages.

C. Post-Trial Revelations of Further Morgan Stanley Misconduct.

1. The June 17, 2005 Notice. After the jury had rendered its verdicts, and only days after Morgan Stanley had again repeated its false assertions as to when Morgan Stanley's in-house counsel learned of e-mail on the Brooklyn and 8-mm tapes, Morgan Stanley filed a document which it styled a "Notice." The Notice, filed on June 17, 2005, expressly retracted 15 statements, including the entirety of the Doyle declaration filed in conjunction with Morgan Stanley's January 2005 opposition to sanctions and various parts of the May 12, 2005 proffer. Each of the retracted statements had asserted that Morgan Stanley's "Law Division was not aware that any of the Brooklyn Tapes contained e-mail until October 2004 and was not aware of certain 8-mm tapes until November 2004." Without elaboration, the Notice recited that in fact "the Law Division was aware in July 2004 that some of the Brooklyn Tapes contained e-mail and that certain 8-mm tapes existed." 6/17/05 MS Notice at 1-2 & n.1.

By acknowledging that the Law Division knew in July 2004 that the Brooklyn tapes contained e-mail, the June 17, 2005 Notice admitted that Morgan Stanley's repeated representations to the Court about when its Law Division knew of the existence of unsearched e-mail — which critically affected both the severity of the sanctions imposed and the evidence and argument provided to the jury — were false. The June 17 Notice further claimed, without any sworn basis and without even supplying the pertinent documents, that "Morgan Stanley . . . determined" that its prior statements were false "[a]s a result of a review of e-mails discovered by a new e-mail search.” Id. at 1. The Notice contained no explanation of how “Morgan Stanley” could be said to have previously lacked knowledge of facts that were known to its own in-house counsel, including those high-ranking in-house lawyers who made false statements to the Court. Nor did the Notice purport to explain the circumstances of this “new e-mail search” or when exactly it had occurred. Morgan Stanley chose not to identify what “new” information had come to light, how it came to light, when it came to light, or who within Morgan Stanley was aware of it.

2. The Criminal Contempt Proceedings. About one month after this Court entered the original final judgment and Morgan Stanley filed its notice of appeal, CPH filed a criminal contempt petition against Morgan Stanley, its general counsel, and three in-house lawyers who had offered false proffers in May 2005 as to when they learned that the Brooklyn tapes contained e-mails and when they learned of the existence of the 8-mm tapes. 7/27/05 CPH Petition re Criminal Contempt. In defense of the contempt proceedings, each of the three in-house lawyers claimed, in unsworn statements, that they realized the falsity of their proffers only after an e-mail search uncovered e-mails showing the state of their knowledge in July 2004. They did not explain why each of them had forgotten the date in so short a period (between July 2004 and the March 2005 date of Morgan Stanley’s assertions about the knowledge of in-house counsel), or why they all believed the same false fact (that they had only learned in October 2004 that the Brooklyn tapes contained e-mails and only learned in November 2004 that the 8-mm tapes existed). 11/3/05 Tr. at 33-36; 6/17/05 MS Notice at 1. It was also supposedly coincidental that they all remembered in June 2005, after the remedial decisions and the trial, that they in fact were aware by July 2004 that the Brooklyn tapes contained e-mails and that the 8-mm tapes existed. There has not yet been any discovery into the circumstances of the e-mail search that purportedly led to the June 17, 2005 Notice, or about what that search showed as to who at Morgan Stanley knew the key facts about the tapes.

After a hearing, but with the foregoing questions still unanswered, this Court issued an order on November 10, 2005 declining to rule on the criminal contempt petition pending disposition of Morgan Stanley's appeal. The Court concluded that the allegedly contemptuous conduct was sufficiently intertwined with the matters on appeal, including the propriety of the March 2005 sanctions rulings, to divest the Court of jurisdiction.

The Court also noted that, during the hearing on the petition, Morgan Stanley had refused repeated requests to take a clear stand on the meaning of the June 17, 2005 Notice — specifically, whether it should be read to state that Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers first became aware in July 2004, or no later than July 2004, that there was e-mail on some of the Brooklyn tapes and that the 8-mm tapes existed. 11/3/05 Tr. at 9-25; 3/23/05 Order at n.4. The distinction was important because Morgan Stanley certified on June 23, 2004, that all relevant e-mails had been produced — even though the Brooklyn and 8-mm tapes had not yet been searched. And Morgan Stanley had previously justified this false certification on the basis that its in-house attorneys were unaware at the time of the certification that the Brooklyn tapes contained e-mail or that the 8-mm tapes existed. If Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers were aware of e-mail on any of these various tapes prior to July 2004, this justification would simply evaporate.

3. The December 21, 2006 Notice. More than a year later, and some six months after the Fourth District had heard oral argument in Morgan Stanley's appeal of the judgment, Morgan Stanley filed a further "Notice" addressing (but not curing) its studied imprecision. The December 21, 2006 Notice stated for the first time that "Morgan Stanley's Law Division was aware of the existence of the referenced e-mail back-up tapes” — by which Morgan Stanley apparently meant both the Brooklyn tapes and the 8-mm tapes — “and the presence of e-mail on some of those tapes prior to July 2004.”

In filing this December 21, 2006 Notice, Morgan Stanley effectively demonstrated that the peculiar phrasing of its June 17, 2005 Notice — and all the equivocating that it triggered at the criminal contempt hearing — had been no accident. Before, during, and after trial, and, indeed, even now, Morgan Stanley refused to come clean about when its Law Division first learned that the Brooklyn and 8-mm tapes contained e-mail. Instead, Morgan Stanley’s December 21, 2006 Notice — when it finally came (on the eve of a holiday weekend) one year after the criminal contempt hearing — came with no sworn affidavit, no pertinent document, no explanation of any new information that triggered the Notice, and no explanation of how or when that information came to light. Moreover, it “clarified” only one portion of the prior submission, and it did that in a way that raised more questions than answers.

Morgan Stanley’s admission that its in-house counsel knew of unsearched e-mails prior to July 2004 shows the falsity of Morgan Stanley’s claims in its remediation proceedings briefs, in the Doyle declaration, and in its repeated statements in May and June 2005 — after this Court had issued its remedial orders — that in-house counsel were not aware of the falsity of the June 2004 certificate of compliance at, or soon after, the time Morgan Stanley filed it. In other words, this Court’s remedial orders were based on only a part of Morgan Stanley’s sanctionable conduct. Morgan Stanley committed additional sanctionable conduct after this Court entered its remedial orders and continues to conceal its misconduct even today.

There may well be much more sanctionable conduct that Morgan Stanley continues to conceal through the obviously intended imprecision of its “Notices.” We do not yet know, for example, how the decision to submit the false June 2004 certificate of compliance came about— something that potentially could be revealed by the e-mails Morgan Stanley now has in its possession but has not disclosed. We do not yet know whether Morgan Stanley was already aware, at the time of the June 2005 Notice and the November 2005 contempt hearing, that in-house counsel knew “prior to July 2004” that the tapes contained e-mails. We do not yet know whether the searches Morgan Stanley conducted revealed that even more people within the company were aware that Morgan Stanley was submitting a false certificate of compliance, presenting false facts to the Court, and arguing that these false facts were sufficient to make sanctions inappropriate. And we do not yet know whether Morgan Stanley is even now being truthful in explaining when it found the e-mails showing the knowledge of its in-house counsel. Morgan Stanley’s latest version of its evolving story states that in-house counsel knew “prior to July 2004.” Does that mean that Morgan Stanley had the e-mails demonstrating this knowledge at the time of the sanctions hearings in February and March 2005?

In any event, the post-trial disclosures that already have been made show that this Court was unaware of egregious misconduct by Morgan Stanley’s in-house legal staff at the time the Court entered its remedial orders, and even at the time of trial. Morgan Stanley’s misconduct was more widespread, more shocking, more needful of remediation, and more deserving of punishment than the Court knew. Further investigation into what Morgan Stanley knew, and when it knew it, will demonstrate even more conclusively the extent to which Morgan Stanley corrupted the judicial process, and, hence, the need for relief under Section 1.540(b).

D. Fourth District Court of Appeal’s Ruling.

On appeal, the Fourth District reversed the trial court’s judgment, on the sole ground that CPH had not adequately established its damages because it had not proven the value of the Sunbeam stock on the date of the transaction. The Fourth District did not disturb this Court’s remedial orders and did not address the misconduct by Morgan Stanley that came to light only long after those sanctions were imposed. Tellingly, on appeal, Morgan Stanley never challenged any of this Court's factual findings about its extensive and egregious litigation misconduct.

ARGUMENT

I. RULE 1.540 PROVIDES AN APPROPRIATE AVENUE FOR RELIEF, AND CPH'S 1.540(b) MOTION IS APPROPRIATE AT THIS TIME.

Florida law provides a means by which a party may reopen a judgment and obtain relief when the prevailing party has committed fraud or other serious misconduct, such as the fraud committed by Morgan Stanley in this case. Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.540(b) provides that:

On motion and upon such terms as are just, the court may relieve a party or a party's legal representative from a final judgment, decree, order, or proceeding for the following reasons: . . . (2) newly discovered evidence which by due diligence could not have been discovered in time to move for a new trial or rehearing; [or] (3) fraud (whether heretofore denominated intrinsic or extrinsic), misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party The motion shall be made within a reasonable time, and . . . not more than 1 year after the judgment, decree, order, or proceeding was entered or taken

As demonstrated more fully in Section II below, "fraud," "misrepresentation," and "other misconduct of an adverse party," the circumstances in which Rule 1.540(b) authorizes relief from a judgment, precisely describe the facts here. In this case, Morgan Stanley had withheld, and in some cases destroyed, massive amounts of e-mails that should have been produced in discovery.² While the Court was trying to decide on a sanction commensurate with the seriousness of the harm to CPH, and gravity of Morgan Stanley's misconduct, Morgan Stanley went to great lengths to convince the Court that Morgan Stanley was entitled to leniency because the wrongdoing did not involve Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers, who purportedly did not know about the presence of e-mails on unsearched backup tapes until "late October 2004." In fact, that representation, to which Morgan Stanley adhered consistently until after the jury had returned its verdict, was false. After the trial was over, Morgan Stanley, having safely avoided the severe sanction merited by the nature and consequences of its conduct, acknowledged for the first time one part of its lies — admitting that its in-house lawyers did in fact have knowledge of the presence of e-mail on unsearched backup tapes "in July 2004." Later, after the case had been argued and was awaiting decision in the Fourth District, Morgan Stanley admitted another part of its lies — that its in-house lawyers actually knew that the backup tapes contained e-mails sometime "prior to July 2004." Even then, Morgan Stanley did not tell the Court or CPH exactly when it was — in the days, months, or years "prior to July 2004" — that the in-house lawyers actually learned that the backup tapes contained e-mails. (Morgan Stanley's intentional vagueness as to the exact date on which its in-house lawyers learned this fact cries out for further investigation, given the June 23, 2004 date of the false certification.) The fraud that Morgan Stanley practiced on the Court when the Court was attempting to decide what sort and severity of sanction was appropriate — and continued to conceal until after the trial had been completed and the jury had rendered its verdict — is precisely the kind of fraud that is meant to be remediable under Rule 1.540(b).

² In its March 23, 2005 Order, this Court found that the SEC had discovered that Morgan Stanley had destroyed e-mails by overwriting backup tapes, notwithstanding a general regulatory requirement that they be maintained and an SEC order expressly requiring their preservation. 3/23/05 Order at 11, 14.

To prevail on a Rule 1.540(b) motion, a "moving party must establish . . . that the verdict was obtained through fraud . . . and that the conduct complained of prevented the losing party from fully and fairly presenting his case or defense." Wilson v. Charter Marketing Co., 443 So.

2d 160, 161 (Fla. 1st DCA 1983).³ Rule 1.540(b) follows Rule 60(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the Florida courts look to federal law in construing it. See Molinos Del S.A. v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Co., 947 So. 2d 521, 524 (Fla. 4th DCA 2006) (Florida courts will look to Rule 60(b) case law). The portion of Rule 60(b) that corresponds to the relevant portion of Rule 1.540(b) “is aimed at providing relief for judgments that were unfairly obtained, not those that are factually inaccurate. The rule is an ‘escape valve to protect the fairness and integrity of litigation in federal courts.’ Therefore, the moving party does not have to prove that he or she would prevail in a retrial in order to secure relief from judgment on the basis of fraud of an adverse party.” 12 J. Moore et al., MOORE’S FEDERAL PRACTICE, § 60.43[1][d] (Matthew Bender 3d ed. 2007) (footnotes omitted). Notably, “[t]he not-infrequent assertion that the moving party must have a ‘meritorious’ claim or defense . . . does not contradict . . . what has just been said that proof of a likely different result is not required. A ‘meritorious’ claim or defense, in this context, means only a claim or defense with some legal validity, one that, if the trier of fact believed the moving party, would entitle that party to judgment . . .” Id. (citations and footnotes omitted).

The fact that a case has been the subject of proceedings in an appellate court does not alter or diminish the authority of a trial court subsequently to entertain a motion for relief from judgment. See, e.g., Ohio Casualty Group v. Parrish, 350 So. 2d 466, 469 (Fla. 1977) (citing ³ The District Courts are split as to the proper statement of the burden of proof. In Wilson, the First District held that “clear and convincing” evidence was required, and the Third District adopted that standard in Santiesteban v. Santiesteban, 579 So. 2d 891, 892 (Fla. 3rd DCA 1991). The First District has since defined the movant’s burden as requiring only proof by a “preponderance or greater weight of the evidence.” Furney v. Furney, 659 So. 2d 364, 365 (Fla. 1st DCA 1995) (citing Wieczoreck v. H & H Builders, 475 So. 2d 227, 228 (Fla. 1985)). Whatever the burden, CPH has satisfied it through Morgan Stanley’s own words, including the June 2005 and November 2006 Notices.

Standard Oil Co. of California v. United States, 429 U.S. 17, 17-18 (1976)); Sellers v. General Motors Corp., 735 F.2d 68, 69 (3d Cir. 1984) (“Our affirmance on [the existing record] did not limit the power of the district court to consider Rule 60(b) relief.”); see also 11 C. Wright, A. Miller, and M. Kane, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2873, p. 439 (2d ed. 1995) (“Of course the district judge is not free to flout the decision of the appellate court so far as it goes, but he should be free to consider whether circumstances not previously known to either court compel a new trial.”).⁴

Rule 1.540(b) provides that a motion must be filed within a year of the judgment from which relief is sought. In a case like this one, where an earlier judgment has been reversed on appeal, the one-year period runs from the date of the new judgment entered pursuant to the appellate court’s mandate. That is because it is the new judgment, rather than the previous, now-reversed judgment, from which relief is being sought. See Molinos, 947 So. 2d at 524-25 (reversing denial of Rule 1.540(b) motion).

The situation here closely tracks Molinos. In that case, plaintiffs, whose trial court judgments had been overturned on appeal, filed Rule 1.540(b)(2) motions based on evidence of defendants’ discovery violations. Molinos, 947 So. 2d at 523-24. Because the Rule 1.540(b)(2) motions were filed more than a year after the original judgments had been entered, the Circuit Court denied the motions as untimely. Id. On appeal, the Fourth District reversed, expressly concluding that the judgments challenged by the plaintiffs' Rule 1.540(b) motions "were those entered after [the defendant's] successful appeals." Id. at 525; cf. Gegenheimer v. Galan, 920 F.2d 307, 310 (5th Cir. 1991) ("[i]f an appeal results in a substantive change [in the judgment], then the time [for filing a Rule 60(b)(1) motion] would run from the substantially modified order entered on mandate of the appellate court") (quoting Transit Cas. Co. v. Security Trust Co., 441 F.2d 788, 791 (5th Cir. 1971)).

⁴ The appellate mandate to enter the judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley was itself an outgrowth of Morgan Stanley’s successful concealment of the true magnitude and extent of its litigation misconduct. Had the full extent of that misconduct been known in 2005, this Court certainly could have imposed contempt sanctions, which, among other things, could have precluded Morgan Stanley from pursuing any appeal until it had purged itself of its contempt by complying fully with the Court’s orders. See, e.g., Davidson v. District Court of Appeal, Fourth Dist., 501 So. 2d 603, 604 (Fla. 1987); Gazil v. Gazil, 343 So. 2d 595, 597 (Fla. 1977); Pasin v. Pasin, 517 So. 2d 742, 742 (Fla. 4th DCA 1987).

As was the case in Molinos, there was no adverse judgment from which CPH could seek relief until this Court entered its new judgment pursuant to the Fourth District's mandate. Accordingly, this is the appropriate time to address the misconduct by Morgan Stanley that led to the newly entered judgment in its favor.

II. THE JUDGMENT IN THIS CASE SHOULD BE SET ASIDE UNDER RULE 1.540(b).

A. Morgan Stanley Repeatedly Made False Statements About The Knowledge Of Its Law Division.

It was beyond dispute that, on each of the occasions when this Court attempted to remediate Morgan Stanley's misconduct by "leveling the playing field," Morgan Stanley had committed sanctionable conduct. Indeed, Morgan Stanley did not appeal any of this Court's findings in that regard and challenged on appeal only the severity of the final pre-trial misconduct order, imposed on March 23, 2005 — which the Fourth District did not disturb. Among other things, Morgan Stanley contumaciously defied numerous Court orders and lied repeatedly to CPH and the Court, even in sworn statements, about the existence and availability of e-mails and other evidence (such as critical evidence concerning the veracity and trustworthiness of the lead Morgan Stanley banker on the Sunbeam deal).

In January 2005, CPH asked the Court to grant an adverse inference instruction. The Court granted that relief in part, shifting to Morgan Stanley the burden of persuading the jury that it lacked knowledge of the Sunbeam fraud and that it did not conspire with Sunbeam to defraud CPH. The Court reversed the burden on those two elements in order to “level the playing field.” The Court left with CPH the burden of proving reliance, the fact of damage, and the amount of compensable damages. When Morgan Stanley’s misconduct continued, CPH moved for a total default as to liability. The Court did not grant that relief, but ordered, as also permitted by Rule 1.380, that the elements on which the Court previously had reversed the burden of proof should be deemed to be established.

Morgan Stanley committed fraud on the Court in connection with the sanctions motions by, among other things, repeatedly telling the Court, in pleadings, arguments, and sworn statements, that its in-house lawyers were not aware of the existence of unsearched and unproduced e-mails (or of the improper destruction of e-mails) until “late October 2004” — four months after Morgan Stanley’s false June 2004 certification that its search and production were complete. After repeatedly using these false representations as a basis for arguing that its misconduct should be excused, Morgan Stanley first admitted, in June 2005 (one month after the return of the jury’s verdict), that the Morgan Stanley Law Division was actually aware in July 2004 that the unsearched Brooklyn tapes contained e-mail. Critically, this “admission” continued Morgan Stanley’s deceit that the in-house lawyers did not know that the Brooklyn tapes contained e-mail (or that the 8-mm tapes existed) until after the certification was made. In December 2006, however, Morgan Stanley finally added the admission that “Morgan Stanley’s Law Division was aware of the existence of the [Brooklyn and 8-mm] e-mail backup tapes and the presence of e-mail on some of those tapes prior to July 2004” (emphasis added). In light of both the short time between the date of the certification (June 23, 2004) and the beginning of July 2004, and the absence of any compelling reason to be more precise, the only reasonable inference from these facts is that the Law Division knew that the June 23, 2004, certification was false at the time it was made because the Law Division definitively knew of unsearched e-mails. Indeed, even with these two additional “Notices,” Morgan Stanley has refused to disclose precisely when its Law Division — supposedly charged by Morgan Stanley with complying with applicable law — actually learned for the first time about the existence of e-mail on the Brooklyn or 8-mm tapes. It is therefore fair to assume that the Law Division was aware of these facts from the very beginning of this litigation and lied from the date of its first, fraudulent response to CPH’s Notice to Produce Documents in June 2003.

B. Morgan Stanley’s Fraud With Respect To What Its Law Division Knew Was Critical To The Resolution Of The Remediation Motions, And, Hence, To The Outcome Of The Case.

At the time the Court made its remediation decisions, it was clearly established that Morgan Stanley had committed serious, sanctionable misconduct. The only question was how substantial the sanctions should be. For that reason, Morgan Stanley sorely needed to portray itself in as good a light as possible. That is why, in its March 13, 2005 opposition to CPH’s motion for default, Morgan Stanley drew a sharp distinction between what its IT staff knew and what its legal staff (allegedly) knew:

While it is true that Mr. Riel [the IT manager who signed the e-mail certification] and other members of the IT Staff knew in early July 2004 (after Mr. Riel signed his certification) that some of those tapes contained some e-mails going back to the late 1990s, neither Mr. Riel nor anyone else in the IT department informed Morgan Stanley’s lawyers of that fact. . . . It was not until late October 2004, when Morgan Stanley’s Law Division was working with Ms. Gorman (Mr. Riel’s successor) on some issues regarding an unrelated regulatory production of e-mails, that the Law Division learned, for the first time, that some of the tapes contained e-mails. That accounts for Morgan Stanley’s representation to this Court that late October 2004 marks the first time that the in-house legal staff was aware of this fact.

Opp. 20; see also id. at 20, 31 (“[W]hether the affidavit had come from Mr. Doyle, Mr. Cusick, or any other member of Morgan Stanley’s Law Division, the content would have been the same:

the Law Division did not learn that some of the newly discovered tapes contained some e-mails until October 2004.”).

That is also why Morgan Stanley repeated this contention to the Court both during and after the remediation proceedings. See, e.g., Morgan Stanley’s Opp’n to CPH’s Mot. for a Default Judgment, at 6 (filed Feb. 28, 2005) (“Morgan Stanley has consistently contended that no one in its Law Division knew of the existence of additional recoverable e-mail data on the tapes before October 2004.”); 5/12/05 MS Addendum to Opposition to CPH Mot. for Correction (May 12, 2005 proffer stating that in-house counsel did not know that there was e-mail on the Brooklyn tapes until October 2004 and did not know of the existence of 8-mm tapes containing e-mails until November 2004); 5/16/05 Tr. at 15266 (May 16, 2005 Morgan Stanley argument to Court that “[t]here is no evidence that any lawyer in Morgan Stanley’s Law Division was aware prior to October 2004 that any of the tapes contained any e-mail”); 5/18/05 Tr. at 15607 (May 18, 2005 Morgan Stanley argument that “it’s undisputed that [in-house counsel] learned that these [backup tapes] contained e-mail in October 2004”).

Of course, that was all a lie, as Morgan Stanley’s December 21, 2006 Notice makes clear. But the lie was critical to Morgan Stanley’s defense of the remedial motions. It was bad enough that Morgan Stanley’s employees were engaged in misconduct relating to the production of e-mails. But the function of in-house counsel, among other things, is to see that employees comply with the law. It would have been devastating to Morgan Stanley’s defense if the Court had known that the Law Division not only had failed to ensure compliance with the Court’s Orders, but had known about the noncompliance even as the Court was being assured that compliance had occurred. The facts would have been particularly devastating because it was not just one junior lawyer in the Law Division who lied to the Court; at least three senior lawyers (and perhaps others whose identities Morgan Stanley continues to conceal) lied to the Court. But Morgan Stanley went even further: Morgan Stanley traded on the Court's willingness to presume that in-house counsel would comply with the law (which they did not do) to argue that this Court, as a matter of fairness, should not impose the more severe measures that CPH had requested. That ploy worked.⁵

If CPH had known that these sworn statements and representations with respect to in-house counsel's knowledge were false in early 2005, when CPH moved for sanctions — indeed, if it had known how actively Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers, portrayed as enablers of the truth, had actually worked to conceal the truth from this Court — CPH would have urged sanctions more severe than those it requested. CPH not only would have asked the Court to enter a total default as to liability (which CPH unsuccessfully urged), but CPH also would have asked for a remedial order with respect to damages. Indeed, at oral argument on the remediation issue, CPH argued that the withholding of the truth about the e-mail went to every element of the claim, including the fact of damages. 3/15/05 Tr. at 3944. If CPH had known at the time of the remediation hearing that Morgan Stanley's in-house lawyers had known about the fraud, and had been active participants in it, Morgan Stanley could not have made its central argument for leniency based on its lawyers' lack of participation in any wrongdoing.

Based on the incomplete and deceptive picture presented by Morgan Stanley, the Court limited its orders to remediating some portion of the harm caused by Morgan Stanley's gross misconduct. Based on what it did know, the Court commented that Morgan Stanley's misconduct was so serious that “[t]he judicial system cannot function this way.” 3/23/05 Order at 16 (emphasis in original). But the Court and CPH were aware of only part of the story. If the Court had been aware of Morgan Stanley’s lies as to the lack of knowledge of its in-house legal department, and had known that Morgan Stanley’s lawyers had deliberately chosen to lie to the Court to secure a less severe sanction than otherwise would have been the case, the Court undoubtedly would have imposed more serious remedial measures than those the Court actually imposed. See, e.g., Webb v. District of Columbia, 189 F.R.D. 180, 191 (D.D.C. 1999) (party may be penalized for in-house counsel’s conduct because party “has an unusually broad influence [over in-house lawyers] because of the power to control litigation policies and the entirety of the lawyer’s resources. This consideration, together with the [client’s] own unlawful actions, make the imposition of a default judgment in part for the misconduct of counsel an entirely just and appropriate result.”).

⁵ Morgan Stanley understood the significance of its actions. Indeed, it called its misrepresentations the “headline” of the story about its conduct: “The headline is that the first time that anyone — that anyone at Morgan Stanley knew that there was recoverable e-mail data that might fall within the Court's order was not until late October 2004 consistent with Mr. Doyle's declaration.” 2/2/05 Tr. at 132.

In the circumstances, it would have been appropriate for the Court to have imposed a total default as to liability and to have altered the burden of proof as to damages. If the Court had imposed the more serious sanction that, we now know, Morgan Stanley has always merited, the outcome of this case would have been different, and the granting of relief under Rule 1.540(b) is warranted for that reason.⁶

⁶ The appellate mandate to enter the judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley was itself an outgrowth of Morgan Stanley’s successful concealment of the true magnitude and extent of its litigation misconduct. Had the full extent of that misconduct been known in 2005, the proceedings may well have unfolded in such a way that the question the appellate court decided would never even have been presented. For example, this Court certainly could have imposed contempt sanctions, which, among other things, could have precluded Morgan Stanley from pursuing any appeal until it had purged itself of its contempt by complying fully with the Court’s orders. See, e.g., Davidson v. District Court of Appeal, Fourth Dist., 501 So. 2d 603, 604 (Fla. 1987); Gazil v. Gazil, 343 So. 2d 595, 597 (Fla. 1977); Pasin v. Pasin, 517 So. 2d 742, 742 (Fla. 4th DCA 1987).

C. Morgan Stanley's Fraud On The Court Resulted In A Change in What The Jury Was Able To Consider In Its Deliberations.

There can be no doubt as to the importance of Morgan Stanley's fraud with respect to how the trial was conducted — Morgan Stanley used its misrepresentations to avoid the likelihood of a remedial measure more severe than the partial default the Court ordered. But Morgan Stanley did more: it used its misrepresentations to secure a change in the arguments presented to the jury.

On May 18, 2005, outside the presence of the jury, the Court heard arguments from the parties concerning the use of demonstrative aids in support of the parties' respective closing arguments in the punitive damages phase of the trial. Morgan Stanley asked the Court to order CPH to change its closing argument and the PowerPoint presentation that supported it. Morgan Stanley told the Court that "it's undisputed in the record that the lawyers at Morgan Stanley learned that e-mail was on these tapes in October 2004. There's been no contrary evidence to this They knew about the tapes in June, but they didn't know they contained e-mail." 5/18/05 Tr. at 15608. The Court, unaware of the truth at that time, required CPH to redo its presentation, explaining: "We don't know if [the Morgan Stanley in-house lawyers] knew [the backup tapes] contained e-mail." Id.

In other words, Morgan Stanley persuaded the Court to change what the jury was to hear, and it did so based on its misrepresentations that its in-house attorneys had somehow remained ignorant until October 2004 of the fact that the unsearched Brooklyn tapes contained e-mail (and remained unaware of the very existence of the 8-mm tapes until November 2004). That, of course, was false. As Morgan Stanley unequivocally admitted after jurisdiction of the case had been transferred to the Fourth District — and, indeed, the case had been argued and submitted in that court — the in-house lawyers were aware of the existence of e-mail on the unsearched

Brooklyn tapes prior to July 2004. In addition, it is now clear that sometime before July 2004 members of the Law Division were aware that the 8-mm tapes existed, and that they were aware that some of those tapes contained e-mails.

When the misconduct in question has actually changed what the jury was allowed to hear, there can be no doubt that relief is warranted under Rule 1.540(b).

III. THE COURT SHOULD ORDER DISCOVERY AND BRIEFING ON CPH'S RULE 1.540(b) MOTION, AND SET THE MATTER FOR AN EVIDENTIARY HEARING.

Where a Rule 1.540(b) motion presents a "colorable entitlement to relief," the Court must conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine whether the motion should be granted. See Schlege v. Stebelsky, 957 So. 2d 71, 73 (Fla. 4th DCA 2007) (evidentiary hearing required unless allegations and accompanying affidavits fail to show colorable entitlement to relief); Robinson v. Weiland, 936 So. 2d 777, 781 (Fla. 5th DCA 2006) (evidentiary hearing required where motion under Rule 1.540(b) "pleads fraud or misrepresentation with particularity, and shows how that fraud or misrepresentation affected the judgment").

Under Florida law, the presentation of a colorable entitlement to relief also requires that the movant be afforded permissible discovery prior to the hearing. See Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Welden, 483 So. 2d 487, 489 (Fla. 1st DCA 1986) (applying Rule 1.540(b)). Here, the need for discovery is obvious. Morgan Stanley has deceived and misled the Court and CPH since virtually the beginning of the litigation, starting with Morgan Stanley's response to CPH's first request to produce documents. Morgan Stanley affirmatively misrepresented the extent of its misconduct until long after the verdict; and even now, nearly three years after the trial, Morgan Stanley continues to conceal the full magnitude of its misconduct and that of its Law Division.

As shown above, Morgan Stanley argued forcefully that it should escape the most severe consequences of its actions because its Law Division did not knowingly participate in the discovery misconduct that Morgan Stanley argued was confined to certain personnel in its IT department. See supra pages 10 to 16. Although Morgan Stanley's argument succeeded, it was based upon facts that we now know to be false, and that Morgan Stanley knew to be false at the time the argument was made. But we do not yet know the full extent of the Law Division's complicity. Morgan Stanley's June 17, 2005 Notice, its presentation at the November 3, 2005 criminal-contempt hearing, and its December 21, 2006 Notice all reflect a consistent attempt to game the system by creating intentional ambiguities that mask the full extent of the misconduct by its in-house lawyers. Justice will not be done in this case until those responsible are required to answer questions under oath and have their testimony subjected to this Court's most rigorous scrutiny. The need for discovery could not be more acute.

Moreover, this Court should not allow Morgan Stanley to stymie discovery once again by improperly invoking the attorney-client privilege. There is now a resounding factual basis for applying the crime/fraud exception to the privilege. Under Florida law, the crime/fraud exception bars any party from claiming as privileged any communications with a lawyer when the lawyer's services "were sought or obtained to enable or aid anyone to commit or plan to commit what the client knew was a crime or fraud." Fla. Stat. § 90.502(4)(a); see also American Tobacco Co. v. State, 697 So. 2d 1249, 1252-56 (Fla. 4th DCA 1997). When a party engages in discovery misconduct and abuses the attorney-client privilege, Florida courts do not hesitate to reject the party's claims of privilege and require disclosure of information that the party otherwise would continue to cloak by having its lawyers participate in the wrongful conduct. See, e.g., General Motors Corp. v. McGee, 837 So. 2d 1010, 1032 (Fla. 4th DCA 2002). Here, CPH asked the Court to pierce the privilege based on the crime/fraud exception on February 21, 2005, when CPH sought to depose Morgan Stanley's in-house counsel about the withholding or destruction of e-mail evidence. 2/21/05 CPH Mot. to Compel Further Discovery. In its March 1, 2005 sanctions order the Court denied that request. 3/2/05 Order. But at that time, of course, Morgan Stanley had insisted that only its IT personnel and not the members of its Law Division were responsible for the misconduct, and the Court did not yet know about the Law Division's complicity. Had the Court known what we know now, it would have had a clear basis for finding that the privilege was defeated by the crime/fraud exception. Otherwise privileged communications involving Morgan Stanley's Law Division attorneys might well contain important admissions relating to all aspects of the case, including admissions that Morgan Stanley's and Sunbeam's fraudulent statements damaged CPH — an essential element of CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley and an element that Morgan Stanley contends CPH failed to prove at trial.

CPH believes that this Court will decide, after allowing for appropriate discovery and then conducting the evidentiary hearing required to resolve a Rule 1.540(b) motion, that the judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley should be vacated. Accordingly, CPH respectfully asks this Court to set a briefing schedule, with adequate time for discovery, to be followed by an evidentiary hearing.

IV. THE JUDGMENT IN FAVOR OF MORGAN STANLEY SHOULD BE VACATED AND ADDITIONAL, MORE SEVERE SANCTIONS AGAINST MORGAN STANLEY SHOULD BE IMPOSED.

Given the record of litigation abuse and deception in this case, CPH respectfully submits that this Court should vacate the judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley and then go on to impose additional, more severe sanctions against Morgan Stanley. Specifically, CPH respectfully requests that the Court (a) enter a complete default on all elements of liability, including reliance and the fact of damage; (b) shift the burden of proof on damages; (c) order a new trial on compensatory and punitive damages; and (d) provide such further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

A. Entering a Complete Default on All Elements of Liability.

The Court should enter a complete default order on all elements of liability (including the fact of damage), rather than only a partial default order on some (but not all) elements of liability.

In opposing both CPH's rehearing petition in the Fourth District and its jurisdictional brief in the Florida Supreme Court, Morgan Stanley repeatedly argued that a retrial on damages was unavailable because the jury's finding as to the fact of damage — not simply the amount — was tainted by the methodology CPH used for proving the amount of compensatory damages. See Resp.'s Notice Respecting Supp. Authority, at 1 (Nov. 20, 2007); Resp.'s Answer Br. in Opp'n to Jurisdiction, at 1, 5-8 (July 24, 2007); Resp. to Mot. for Reh'g En Banc, at 11 (May 7, 2007). Had Morgan Stanley received the sanction it deserved based upon all the information we now know, Morgan Stanley would not have been in a position to urge the grounds for reversal upon which the Fourth District decided the appeal. As even Morgan Stanley surely must concede, an undisturbed finding of liability must be followed by proceedings to determine the proper remedy.

There is no question that this Court has the power to enter a complete default judgment as to all elements of liability. The Florida Rules of Civil Procedure authorize trial courts to issue default judgments against parties that willfully and contumaciously disobey discovery orders. See Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.380(b)(2)(C). And courts throughout the State have long recognized that such a default judgment may extend to all elements of liability, including the fact of damage. See, e.g., Levine v. Del American Properties, Inc., 642 So. 2d 32, 32-34 (Fla. 5th DCA 1994)

(default judgment as to all elements of fraud, breach of contract, and conversion); Williams v. Direct Dispensing, Inc., 630 So. 2d 1195, 1196-97 (Fla. 3d DCA 1994) (default judgment as to all elements of negligent misrepresentation, breach of contract, and conspiracy to defraud); Far Out Music, Inc. v. Jordan, 502 So. 2d 523, 523-24 (Fla. 3d DCA 1987) (default judgment as to all elements of fraud and breach of contract). Such a remedy is clearly appropriate where, as here, the party's misconduct is extreme, and the party has used every means possible to conceal that misconduct.

B. Ordering a New Trial on Damages and Shifting the Burden of Proof.

Florida case law makes clear that sanctions for discovery misconduct may extend beyond the liability phase of the proceeding and into the damages phase. For example, the Florida Supreme Court has recognized that, in entering “a default against a defendant for violation of discovery orders in a negligence action,” a trial court must have the discretion to “preclude that defendant from reducing the amount of his liability by proof of the plaintiff's comparative negligence.” Harless v. Kuhn, 403 So. 2d 423, 424 (Fla. 1981) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Florida's appellate courts likewise have held that a defendant that commits discovery misconduct not only may be held liable, but also can be barred from introducing any evidence at the trial on damages. In Delta Information Services, Inc. v. Joseph R. Jannach M.D. & Associates, 569 So. 2d 1353 (Fla. 3d DCA 1990), litigation misconduct (including the violation of five discovery orders) led the trial court to find the disobedient party liable and then to prohibit that party from introducing any evidence during the damages trial that should have been disclosed to the other party through court-ordered discovery. Id. at 1354 n.4. The Third District affirmed unanimously. Id. at 1355.

Similarly, in Rose v. Clinton, 575 So. 2d 751 (Fla. 3d DCA 1991), the trial court imposed discovery sanctions that precluded defendants from presenting any evidence whatsoever to controvert plaintiff's proof of damages (though defendants were permitted to cross-examine plaintiff's witnesses and to make objections). See id. at 752. After conducting the damages trial, the court entered a final judgment in plaintiff's favor. Id. Although the Third District reversed that judgment, it did so solely because the trial judge had not entered written findings that defendants had willfully and deliberately disobeyed a court order to comply with discovery; such written findings are required by the Florida Supreme Court's decision in Commonwealth Federal Savings & Loan Association v. Tubero, 569 So. 2d 1271, 1272 (Fla. 1990). See Rose v. Clinton, 575 So. 2d at 752. Importantly, the Third District then held that if the trial court on remand conducted the required hearing and entered the required written findings, the trial court would be free to reinstate both its sanctions order and its final judgment awarding damages based on the procedure just described. Id. Thus, the Third District approved the trial court's decision to bar defendants from presenting their own damages evidence — and the appellate court expressly found that the trial court's "sanctions were commensurate with the [defendants'] discovery violations." Id. at 752 n.3 (citing Delta Info. Servs., supra); see also Joint Committee of the Trial Lawyers Section of the Florida Bar and the Conferences of Circuit and County Judges, Handbook on Discovery Practice 16 & n.64 (2007 ed.) (citing Rose v. Clinton for the proposition that Florida trial courts can allow the award of damages as part of a default sanction for discovery abuse), available at <http://www.flatls.org/Handbook/ Handbook.pdf>.

Here, rather than barring Morgan Stanley from introducing evidence at a new trial on damages, the Court could take a more limited step: requiring Morgan Stanley to show "negative causation" — that is, making Morgan Stanley bear the burden of proving that something other than fraud caused a decline in the value of CPH's 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock. See McMahan & Co. v. Warehouse Enter., Inc., 65 F.3d 1044, 1047-49 (2d Cir. 1995); Akerman v. Oryx Communications, Inc., 810 F.2d 336, 340-43 (2d Cir. 1987).⁷ This request comports with the Fourth District's decision focusing on "the actual, 'fraud-free' value of the Sunbeam stock on the date of the transaction." 955 So. 2d at 1131. The negative-causation defense proposed here and the loss-causation burden that the Fourth District imposed on CPH are mirror-image methods of establishing the actual, fraud-free value on the date of the transaction. "[I]n the former [method], the burden of proving negative causation is on the defendant, and in the latter, the burden of proving the existence of loss causation is on the plaintiff." In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 02 Civ. 3288, 2005 WL 375314, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 17, 2005). The new trial on damages will arrive at that fraud-free value. But at the new trial, Morgan Stanley will bear the burden of proving negative causation.

Given Morgan Stanley's repeated, willful, and contumacious disregard for this Court's orders and Morgan Stanley's destruction and nonproduction of evidence — potentially including contemporaneous evidence about the value that Morgan Stanley placed on the Sunbeam stock on the date of the transaction — this Court should place the burden on Morgan Stanley to attempt to prove what, if any, portion of the stock's collapse can be attributed to non-fraud-related causes.

⁷ Although CPH asks the Court, as a sanction, to require Morgan Stanley to prove negative causation here, that is how the burden of proof is allocated for claims under the Florida Securities and Investor Protection Act. See Fla. Stat. §§ 517.211(4), 517.301; see also E.F. Hutton & Co. v. Rousseff, 537 So. 2d 978, 978-81 (Fla. 1989) (plaintiff need not prove loss causation). The federal securities laws also impose upon the defendant the burden of proving negative causation in claims arising under Section 11 of the Securities Act of 1933. See 15 U.S.C. §§ 77k(e); see also 2 Thomas Lee Hazen, Treatise on the Law of Securities Regulation § 7.5[2][b], at 104 (5th ed. 2005) (under the doctrine of "negative causation," if the "value (or price) of the security [has declined] since the purchase, the defendant has the burden of proving that the plaintiff's loss was not attributable to the misrepresentations or omissions").

After the parties have presented their evidence under this evidentiary burden, after the jury has calculated the compensatory damages that Morgan Stanley owes CPH, and after the Court has added the appropriate amount of prejudgment interest to compensate CPH in current dollars, the jury then could determine whether punitive damages are warranted and, if so, what amount is to be assessed. In considering whether punitive damages are warranted, the jury should be instructed about Morgan Stanley's efforts to destroy and withhold evidence of its collusion with Sunbeam, including the role of Morgan Stanley's in-house counsel.

CONCLUSION

Plaintiff CPH respectfully requests that this Court vacate the judgment of dismissal, enter a default judgment as to all elements of liability, order a new trial on damages with Morgan Stanley bearing the burden of proving that something other than the fraud caused part of CPH's loss, and provide such further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

NOTICE REGARDING COURT'S INTENTION TO CONDUCT A STATUS CONFERENCE

We understand that the Court is considering holding a two hour status conference. We respectfully suggest that a much shorter conference would suffice to address the outstanding matters, the first of which will simply be the entry of a judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley per the mandate of the District Court of Appeal. Morgan Stanley's pending Motion for Fees and Costs will be the next order of ordinary business for the Court. Still extant will be Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s ("CPH") Motions for Orders to Show Cause, and CPH has now announced that it intends to file a Motion for Relief under Rule 1.540(b), seeking a new trial on damages based on newly discovered evidence of fraud.

That Motion contends that had CPH known of the information set forth in the June 2005 post-trial and the December 2006 appeal-pending Notices filed by Morgan Stanley, CPH would have successfully demanded harsher sanctions from this Court, i.e., a total default or burden shifting on damages. CPH's ingenuity is insufficient to overcome the DCA mandate which was issued after rejecting CPH's Consolidated Motion for Rehearing and Rehearing En Banc in which CPH argued, inter alia that the panel decision "exonerate[d] M/S altogether – to set it free with no accountability whatsoever for the massive fraud in which it participated, the enormous damages it causes, or the extensive litigation conduct in which it admittedly engaged." See Exhibit "A" p. 3 (emphasis added). Thus, the DCA's denial of CPH's entreaties, and the issuance of the mandate, put an end to this case, including any discovery sanction issues.

CPH's attempt to evade the mandate is devoid of merit because of, inter alia, (1) its failure to have cross-appealed for additional relief after the post-trial, pre-appeal June 2005 Notice and (2) its failure to seek any relief based on the December 2006 Notice which was filed by Morgan Stanley in this Court and the Fourth District while the appeal was pending in that Court. Unlike Molinos Del S.A. v. E.I. Dupont de Nemours, 947 So. 2d 521 (Fla. 4th DCA 2006), where the purported discovery misconduct had never been considered by the trial court, this Court had considered it, entered its level-the-playing field sanction and excused Morgan Stanley from further discovery obligations. CPH accepted those results by not cross-appealing and asking the DCA for a new trial on damages as a sanction. Even after the December 2006 Notice was filed both in the DCA and this Court, CPH took no action asking the DCA to relinquish jurisdiction for this Court to reconsider its sanctions. Compare Molinos, supra at 523 ("Dibs and Aquamar moved this court to relinquish jurisdiction to permit the trial court to 'determine whether sanctions (including striking DuPont's pleadings) should be imposed upon DuPont for discovery violations"). Simply put, the flaws in CPH's proposed Rule 1.540(b) motion are quickly apparent.

Thus, we respectfully suggest that the issues the Court will be considering do not need a two hour status conference. A briefer conference, which may be easier for the Court to arrange, will permit the Court to begin to move this case toward a final conclusion.

CONSOLIDATED MOTION FOR REHEARING AND MOTION FOR REHEARING EN BANC

INTRODUCTION

Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. (“CPH”) sued Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (“MS”) for conspiring with Sunbeam Corporation in a massive corporate fraud that caused CPH enormous damage and ultimately drove Sunbeam into bankruptcy. Before trial, Judge Elizabeth Maass found that MS had concealed and destroyed evidence and presented false testimony in an effort to evade accountability for its wrongdoing. The details of that egregious litigation misconduct have been conceded by MS on appeal. At trial, a jury found MS liable to CPH for $604 million in compensatory damages and $850 million in punitive damages.

In a 2-to-1 decision, with Judge Farmer dissenting, the Court reversed both the compensatory and punitive damages awards and directed entry of judgment for MS. The majority did not disturb Judge Maass’ findings concerning MS’s litigation misconduct, nor did it disturb the jury’s finding that MS had defrauded CPH. It also did not disturb the jury’s finding that CPH had been damaged in fact by the fraud. Instead, the majority’s reversal was based entirely upon its disagreement with Judge Maass concerning the proper methodology for calculating the amount of CPH's compensatory damages.

Before trial, MS had proposed that CPH's damages be cut off as of the date of the transaction, when CPH received the fraudulently inflated stock. CPH had proposed a methodology to permit recovery of additional damages that were directly caused by Morgan Stanley's fraud, including drops in stock value that CPH experienced because the fraud made sale of the stock impossible under federal securities regulations for nearly two years. After extensive briefing and argument on the two alternatives, Judge Maass entered a series of orders establishing CPH's methodology as the correct one. The panel majority, however, not only disagreed with Judge Maass' rulings, but also barred CPH from retrying the damages issue using the methodology articulated by the panel.

Had the shoe been on the other foot — that is, had the trial court adopted MS's methodology and had the panel determined that CPH's proposed methodology was the correct one — the only appropriate remedy would have been a new trial at which the amount of CPH's damages would be calculated under the methodology approved by this Court. But notwithstanding the need for evenhandedness in the treatment of litigants, the majority did not permit CPH to prove on remand the amount of its damages under the methodology the majority deemed proper. Instead, it concluded that CPH had failed to prove its damages in any amount and therefore could recover neither compensatory nor punitive damages from the party that defrauded CPH and caused it enormous harm. And then, in one conclusory paragraph (see Op. at 10), the majority held that there should be no retrial and that MS was entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

The effect of this disposition is to exonerate MS altogether — to set it free with no accountability whatsoever for the massive fraud in which it participated, the enormous damage it caused, or the extensive litigation misconduct in which it admittedly engaged. That, we respectfully submit, is an extraordinary result that contravenes both public policy and established precedent, and one that deserves careful and thoughtful reconsideration by the panel and the en banc Court before it is allowed to become final.

To that end, we respectfully move the panel for rehearing of its decision. If the panel is unpersuaded to grant rehearing, we respectfully move the Court for rehearing en banc. Because the arguments directed to the panel provide necessary background to the arguments directed to the en banc Court, and in the interests of efficiency, we have combined the two motions into a single document. In the arguments that follow, we will state with particularity the points of law and fact we believe the panel overlooked or misapprehended in reaching its decision. For the benefit of the en banc Court, we will demonstrate that the panel's decision creates several conflicts with prior decisions of this Court and presents questions of exceptional importance in the administration of justice in this District.

In summary, our arguments for a grant of rehearing or rehearing en banc are as follows:

1. We respectfully submit that it was inappropriate to reverse the punitive damages award solely because, in the panel majority's judgment, the amount of compensatory damages had not been properly computed. The reasons for granting rehearing or rehearing en banc on that issue are straightforward. As Judge Farmer's dissent pointed out, the forfeiture of punitive damages mandated by the panel majority, based solely on its reversal of the compensatory award, flatly contradicts the Florida Supreme Court's decisions in Ault v. Lohr, 538 So. 2d 454 (Fla. 1989), and Engle v. Liggett Group, Inc., 945 So. 2d 1246 (Fla. 2006) (per curiam). The panel opinion also is irreconcilable with this Court's prior decision in Russin v. Richard F. Greminger, P.A., 563 So. 2d 1089 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990) (per curiam). Those authorities hold that punitive damages are appropriate even if the plaintiff failed to prove a specific amount of compensatory damages. Departing from that rule was particularly unjustified here, where the evidence indisputably supported the jury finding that CPH had suffered a substantial injury as a direct consequence of MS's fraud.

2. Also warranting rehearing or rehearing en banc is the panel majority's decision to treat its disagreement with the trial court about damages methodology as a basis for ordering entry of judgment for MS rather than a new trial on damages. In denying a retrial, the panel majority misapplied Teca, Inc. v. WM-TAB, Inc., 726 So. 2d 828, 830 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999) (en banc), which forbids a “second bite at the apple” to a plaintiff whose evidence of damages omitted a necessary element. Here, unlike in Teca, CPH conformed its proof to a series of pretrial rulings that carefully analyzed the kinds of damages evidence that would be permissible. CPH believes those pretrial rulings were correct, but even if they were erroneous, neither law nor logic justifies denying CPH a “first bite” under the legal standards articulated by the panel majority, particularly since a defendant facing similar circumstances would receive a retrial.

3. Finally, the panel majority’s decision that CPH was not entitled to recover the full amount of the injuries directly caused by the fraud conflicts with important principles of Florida law embodied in the decisions of this and other Florida courts and presents a question of exceptional importance that the panel or the en banc Court should reconsider. The panel majority held that plaintiffs are confined to compensation for injuries inflicted on the date of the transaction, even if the facts show that the fraud caused additional losses after that date. That ruling is not supported by the governing case law, including decisions of this Court, and is inconsistent with Florida’s adoption of a “flexible” approach to calculating damages to assure full compensation.

I. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT REHEARING OR REHEARING EN BANC BECAUSE THE PANEL IMPROPERLY BARRED CPH FROM RECOVERING PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

The panel majority held that because CPH presented “no proof at trial concerning the correct measure of damages” and thus could not recover compensatory damages, CPH also could not recover punitive damages. Op. at 10 (emphasis added). That ruling misapprehends binding Supreme Court authorities and is contrary to other rulings of this Court.

A. The Panel’s Decision Cannot Be Squared with the Supreme Court’s Decisions in Ault and Engle.

The panel’s decision misapprehends the Supreme Court’s decisions in Ault v. Lohr, 538 So. 2d 454 (Fla. 1989), and Engle v. Liggett Group, Inc., 945 So. 2d 1246 (Fla. 2006). Both Ault and Engle squarely hold that an award of compensatory damages is not a prerequisite for punitive damages, and there is no exception to that categorical rule.

The Ault Court considered a certified question: “In Florida, must a compensatory damages award underlie a punitive damages award in a case in which the jury has made express findings against a defendant?” Ault, 538 So. 2d at 454-55 (citation omitted). The Supreme Court “answer[ed] the question in the negative, concluding that a jury finding of liability is the equivalent of finding nominal damages and, consequently, the jury may assess punitive damages.” Id. at 455. The Ault Court rejected the contention that compensatory damages must first be proved or that “at least nominal damages must first be awarded before punitive damages are proper.” Id. at 456.

Engle reaffirmed the rule in Ault and applied it in a case where plaintiffs claimed punitive damages for fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud. Engle, 945 So. 2d at 1262-63; see Liggett Group, Inc. v. Engle, 853 So. 2d 434, 441 (Fla. 3d DCA 2003), quashed in part per curiam, 945 So. 2d 1246 (Fla. 2006). Engle held that compensatory damages are not a prerequisite for punitive damages because “a finding of entitlement to punitive damages is not dependent on a finding that a plaintiff suffered a specific injury.” 945 So. 2d at 1262.

The panel majority nonetheless concluded that the rule established in Ault and Engle was inapplicable to fraud cases. But the rule announced in Ault is categorical, and Engle was a fraud case. The panel majority held that this fraud case is different from Ault, which was an assault and battery case, because, “to prevail in an action for fraud, a plaintiff must prove its actual loss or injury.” Id. at 11. But while a plaintiff must show actual injury to prove fraud, that does not require proving entitlement to a specific quantum of compensatory damages. As Judge Farmer’s dissent explained, Ault requires proof only of “the fact that [the plaintiff] was damaged — i.e., harmed or injured.” Op. at 20. Ault eschews “the entirely separate issue of [the injury’s] quantification in money damages.” Id.

Indeed, the Ault Court rejected as a matter of law the panel majority’s distinction between torts that do and do not include “actual injury” as an essential element of the cause of action. In Ault, a special concurrence representing only two Justices’ views proposed exactly that distinction. See 538 So. 2d at 457 (Ehrlich, C.J., specially concurring). But the other five Justices declined to join the concurring opinion. Ault thus rejected the distinction the panel majority drew here. Op. at 11 & n.2.

The panel majority also misapprehended Engle. Id. at 10-11. In Engle, the Supreme Court reviewed a Third District decision that had vacated punitive damages in a fraud case in part based on the same theory the panel majority adopted here — that the concurrence in Ault shows the Ault rule does not apply to torts requiring proof of “actual damage.” See Liggett Group, Inc. v. Engle, 853 So. 2d at 450-51. The Supreme Court held that “the Third District [had] misapplied Ault v. Lohr” and that punitive damages can be awarded for fraud even when the plaintiff suffers no “compensable damage.” Engle, 945 So. 2d at 1254, 1263.

The panel majority read Engle as addressing only “the order of proof in determining entitlement to punitive damages.” Op. at 11. But the Supreme Court reached its conclusion about the order of the proceedings based on its conclusion that neither an award of compensatory damages nor a finding that the plaintiff suffered a specific, quantified injury is a prerequisite for awarding punitive damages. Engle, 945 So. 2d at 1262.

In sum, Judge Farmer is correct that, under both Ault and Engle, “an award of some compensatory damages is unnecessary to find an entitlement to punitive damages.” Op. at 18 (dissenting opinion); see id. at 19 (“[Z]ero compensatory damages do not preclude punitive damages.”).

B. The Panel’s Decision Is Contrary to This Court’s Decision in Russin.

The panel’s decision also conflicts directly with this Court’s decision in Russin v. Richard F. Greminger, P.A., 563 So. 2d 1089 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990). Based “on the authority of Ault v. Lohr,” the Court affirmed a final judgment awarding the plaintiff “punitive damages in an action for tortious interference with a business relationship, but awarding no compensatory damages.” Id. at 1089. The Court applied Ault in a case where the cause of action (tortious interference with a business relationship) required proof of actual damage as an essential element of the tort. See id.; Ethan Allen, Inc. v. Georgetown Manor, Inc., 647 So. 2d 812, 814 (Fla. 1994) (listing “damage to the plaintiff” as one element of the tort). The Russin Court rejected the limitation on Ault that the panel majority drew here.

And in Horizon Leasing v. Leefmans, 568 So. 2d 73 (Fla. 4th DCA 1990), a case holding the defendant vicariously liable for fraud, Judge Polen’s opinion for the Court observed that “a plaintiff can recover punitive damages where the fact finder has found a breach of duty but no compensatory or actual damages have been proven.” Id. at 75. Again, the Court cited Ault. Id. (citing Ault, 538 So. 2d at 453). The decisions of other District Courts of Appeal are in accord. See Mortellite v. American Tower, L.P., 819 So. 2d 928, 932, 934-35 (Fla. 2d DCA 2002); Platte v. Whitney Realty Co., 538 So. 2d 1358, 1359-60 (Fla. 1st DCA 1989).

C. CPH Clearly Established that It Was Damaged by the Fraud.

The panel’s conclusion that no punitive damages were warranted here was based on the assumption that a plaintiff cannot show the fact of harm needed to establish liability for fraud without proving the precise quantum of compensatory damages. See Op. at 10-11. That misinterprets binding precedent, as we have just shown. Moreover, as a matter of fact, CPH did show harm.

At trial, the jury was instructed to determine “whether CPH sustained damage” caused by MS’s or Sunbeam’s false statements. R439 14606; see id. at 14608 (instructing the jury to decide “whether the fraud caused CPH to suffer loss”). The verdict form asked whether “the fraud was a legal cause of CPH’s damages.” R298 59450. As the panel majority recognized, “the jury returned a verdict finding, by clear and convincing evidence, that CPH relied on the false statements made by Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam, and that it suffered damages as a result.” Op. at 4. And as Judge Farmer correctly noted in his dissent, “[t]he majority has not disturbed the jury’s finding of liability for fraud — for which plaintiff was required to present evidence of the fact (if not the amount) of some damage.” Id. at 20; see also id. at 21.

The jury’s finding was well supported. Given the nature of the fraud itself — dramatically understating Sunbeam’s reported expenses, grossly exaggerating sales, and distorting profit reports to create the false impression of a favorable economic turnaround — CPH undeniably received an interest in a company worth far less than it had been made to appear.

Moreover, the evidence showed that in less than three months after the Sunbeam-Coleman merger closed, as the contours of the fraudulent scheme became public, Sunbeam’s share price plummeted by more than 76%, reducing the value of CPH’s Sunbeam holdings by nearly half a billion dollars when measured against the price of publicly traded shares. See PX 1296A. Most of that decline came on only six dates — April 3, April 23, May 11, June 8, June 15, and June 25, 1998. See id. Not coincidentally, on each of those six dates, Sunbeam made new public disclosures about the fraud. The losses to CPH on those six dates alone totaled roughly $300 million, based on Sunbeam’s per-share trading price. See R388 7548-49; PX 33A; PX 386; PX 471; PX 1257; PX 1296A; DX 74; see also R389 7702-06 (expert testimony from Professor Douglas Emery, chair of the Finance Department at the University of Miami’s School of Business, about inferring causation when the price of a company’s stock drops dramatically on the same day that the company announces bad news).

As Judge Farmer concluded, the evidence “[c]learly . . . supported the inference that [CPH] was damaged by the fraud, even if it fails to support the precise amount” that the jury awarded in compensatory damages. Op. at 20 (dissenting opinion).

D. The Panel’s Due-Process Concerns Are Misplaced.

The panel majority stated that, even if some punitive damages could be justified absent compensatory damages, the $850 million punitive award was unconstitutionally excessive. Op. at 11-12 n.3. That statement was based on a misreading of BMW of North America, Inc. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559 (1996), as “holding that punitive damages must bear a reasonable relationship to compensatory damages.” Op. at 11-12 n.3 (emphasis added). Under Gore and its progeny, the only relevant ratio is the ratio between punitive damages and the amount of harm or potential harm. Gore, 517 U.S. at 575, 581; see State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 418 (2003) (focusing on “the disparity between the actual or potential harm suffered by the plaintiff and the punitive damages award”).

Indeed, in Tronzo v. Biomet, Inc., 236 F.3d 1342 (Fed. Cir. 2001), the Federal Circuit, applying both Florida and federal standards, recognized that principle in comparable circumstances. The court affirmed the reduction of a compensatory damages award from $7 million to $520. Id. at 1344-46, 1352. It then held that the trial court had erred in reducing the punitive damages award from $20 million to $52,000 in response to the reduction of the compensatory award. Id. In thus approving a punitive-to-compensatory ratio of 38,000-to-1, the court pointed to the “strong suggestion in the record that the potential compensatory damages may have been much higher than what was actually awarded.” Id. at 1350 (emphasis added). Here, where there is no question that there were hundreds of millions of dollars in potential compensatory damages, the due-process concerns expressed by the panel majority are entirely misplaced.

II. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT REHEARING OR REHEARING EN BANC TO REVIEW THE PANEL’S DECISION TO REMAND FOR ENTRY OF JUDGMENT IN DEFENDANT’S FAVOR RATHER THAN REMAND FOR A NEW TRIAL.

As explained below in Part III, rehearing is warranted because the panel majority misapprehended the law in invalidating the methodology for calculating compensatory damages that Judge Maass approved prior to trial. But even if Judge Maass had erred in that regard, this case raises a procedural question of exceptional importance: whether the correct disposition is (1) to remand for a new trial on damages under the legal standards articulated by the panel majority, or (2) to deny CPH a new trial because of the trial court’s legal error. The panel majority interpreted Teca, Inc. v. WM-TAB, Inc., 726 So. 2d 828 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999) (en banc), as requiring the latter, manifestly unjust result. Op. at 9-10 (citing Teca, 726 So. 2d at 830, and Kind v. Gittman, 889 So. 2d 89, 90 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004), rev. denied, 907 So. 2d 1170 (Fla. 2005), which relies entirely on Teca). But Teca, unlike this case, was a bench trial and did not involve pretrial rulings that shaped the legal theory under which the case was tried. This Court should grant rehearing to reconsider the panel's decision to deny a retrial, which misapprehends Teca, violates the right to a jury trial, creates direct intra- and inter-District conflicts, and results in harmful systemic consequences.

A. Teca Does Not Apply Where, as Here, the Trial Court Entered Pretrial Orders Determining the Proper Method for Proving Damages and the Appellate Court Later Disagreed with the Trial Court.

Teca involved a business that was purchased in reliance on a false representation. 726 So. 2d at 829. There was no pretrial vetting of the damages methodology issues, and no trial-court ruling on which plaintiff relied in presenting its evidence of damages. To the contrary, it appears that the issue was first raised in a motion filed at the close of the plaintiff's case. See id. at 830.

Here, in contrast, the case presented an unusual question whether CPH had to prove injury as of the date of the transaction even though, as a direct effect of Securities & Exchange Commission ("SEC") regulations triggered by the fraud, CPH was forced to hold the stock as its value continued to decline. That question was analyzed by Judge Maass extensively prior to trial. See, e.g., R217 43378; R209 41770; R208 41487. After careful consideration, she excluded expert evidence basing damages on the value of CPH's stock when it could not have been sold, and ruled that CPH's compensatory damages should equal the difference between the bargained-for value of the Sunbeam stock and the value the stock retained (if any) when CPH was legally able to sell it. That ruling was then reflected in the jury instructions. See, e.g., R217 43378; R439 14609-10.

CPH properly relied on these rulings in presenting its evidence. It thus had no reason to present the specific damages evidence that the panel majority later ruled was necessary. A remand would not give CPH a "second 'bite at the apple,'" Op. at 10; it would give CPH a first bite under the panel majority's standard. This is therefore a very different case from Teca.

Notably, this is also not a case in which CPH could have protected itself by presenting alternative evidence in anticipation that an appellate court might disagree with the trial court. As a consequence of the trial court's ruling on the proper damages methodology, the court issued a series of orders excluding expert evidence (from either side) basing damages on the stock's value on dates when it could not have been sold — i.e., evidence that would speak directly to the standard now required by the panel majority. See, e.g., R217 43378; R209 41770. Given that exclusion, the argument that CPH should at least be granted a remand to retry the damages issue becomes all the more compelling.

The panel majority suggested that CPH is at fault because it urged Judge Maass to make the relevant rulings in the first place. See Op. at 10 (stating that “CPH cannot complain about rulings that it urged the court to make in accordance with its damages theory”). But this unexceptional fact does not somehow make Teca applicable, and the doctrine of invited error, to which the panel majority appears to be referring, is wholly inapposite. That doctrine applies where a party asks the trial court for a particular ruling and then claims on appeal that the ruling it requested was erroneous — in effect, creating its own reason for reversal. See, e.g., Gupton v. Village Key & Saw Shop, Inc., 656 So. 2d 475, 478 (Fla. 1995). CPH did no such thing. It maintained before this Court that the trial court was correct, and it lost. That should not deprive CPH of the right to a retrial.¹

¹ There is yet another way to demonstrate the error of the majority’s disposition of this case. The panel majority believed that it could direct entry of judgment for MS because it held that the trial court should have granted MS’s motion for directed verdict. The trial court’s directed-verdict ruling was not in error, however, because it was adequately supported by the court’s pretrial ruling. If the trial court committed error, that error lay in its pretrial ruling on the proper methodology and the evidence to be denied or permitted as a result. The proper appellate remedy for an erroneous pretrial ruling that permeates the trial, or an erroneous evidentiary ruling that is prejudicial, is a new trial. See, e.g., Linn v. Fossum, 946 So. 2d 1032, 1039-41 (Fla. 2006); Florida East Coast Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 197 So. 2d 293, 294 (Fla. 1967); Fino v. Nodine, 646 So. 2d 746, 751-52 (Fla. 4th DCA 1994); Botte v. Pomeroy, 497 So. 2d 1275, 1280-81 (Fla. 4th DCA 1986); Sea Cabin, Inc. v. Scott, Burk, Royce & Harris, P.A., 496 So. 2d 163, 164 (Fla. 4th DCA 1986). In short, if a reversal was required, the majority reversed the wrong ruling in this case. Had the pretrial ruling been reversed, then clearly the case would have been properly remanded for a new trial on damages.

Indeed, judgment for the defendant rather than a new trial is especially inequitable here given the evidence in the existing record making clear that CPH suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in injury as a direct result of the fraud. While the evidence CPH introduced at trial was directed to proving damages under the trial court's rulings, that evidence also shows there were enormous damages as of the date of the transaction. See supra pages 10-12.

B. The Panel Majority's Extension of Teca Presents an Issue of Exceptional Importance Because It Violates a Plaintiff's Constitutional Right to Have Disputed Issues of Fact Decided by a Jury.

The panel majority's extension of Teca's "second bite at the apple" rule to this case, involving a verdict rendered after a jury trial, presents an issue of exceptional importance because it violates the right to have disputed issues of fact tried to a jury — a right guaranteed by Article 1, Section 22 of the Florida Constitution.

The right to a jury trial, where properly invoked, includes the right to have the facts decided by a properly instructed jury. See, e.g., Brant v. Dollar Rent a Car Sys., Inc., 869 So. 2d 767, 768 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004) ("the trial court should have granted a new trial rather than itself determining the amount of unliquidated damages"); Broward County v. La Rosa, 484 So. 2d 1374, 1378 (Fla. 4th DCA 1986) (party has an "inalienable right to trial by jury" on the issue of damages), approved, 505 So. 2d 422 (Fla. 1987); see also Tharp v. Kitchell, 9 So. 2d 457, 460-61 (Fla. 1942) (“Litigants have a constitutional right to have their controversies decided by a jury under appropriate legal instructions”). But under the panel’s ruling, that will never occur here.

It follows that, where an error of law affects the jury’s deliberations, the constitutionally required procedure is to remand for a new jury trial under the correct legal standard. See Melendez v. Sheriff of Palm Beach County, 743 So. 2d 1145, 1149 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999); Gross v. Lyons, 721 So. 2d 304, 306-08 (Fla. 4th DCA 1998), approved, 763 So. 2d 276 (Fla. 2000). Any other result not only would contravene the plaintiff’s jury-trial right, but also would give rise to serious due-process concerns. See Bouie v. City of Columbia, 378 U.S. 347, 354 (1964); see also State v. Gates, 134 So. 2d 497, 500 (Fla. 1961).

C. Extending Teca Creates Direct Intra-District and Inter-District Conflicts.

This Court has not applied Teca when a plaintiff has relied on a trial court’s legal ruling in presenting its damages evidence, even where this Court ultimately concluded that, due to that reliance, some necessary proof had not been presented. For instance, in Boca Developers, Inc. v. Fine Decorators, Inc., 862 So. 2d 803 (Fla. 4th DCA 2003), the trial court awarded lost profits arising out of defendant’s breach of a contract, but this Court concluded that the trial court had erred “in allowing [the plaintiff] to calculate its lost profits without allocating fixed overhead costs.” Id. at 804. The defendant argued that the proper remedy for the plaintiff's failure of proof was a directed verdict. This Court expressly disagreed: "It appears from the record . . . that if the judge had correctly ruled that overhead had to be deducted, [the plaintiff] would have been able to establish the amount of that overhead. Although [the plaintiff] may not be able to prove that it would have made a profit under those circumstances, . . . [it] should be given the opportunity to do so." Id. at 805-06; see also, e.g., Safeguard Mgmt., Inc. v. Pinedo, 865 So. 2d 672, 674 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004).

The exceptional importance of the question presented here is highlighted by the fact that the panel's ruling directly conflicts with decisions of the First, Second, and Third District Courts of Appeal. All three of those courts have mandated retrial in cases where an evidentiary "insufficiency" results from an appellate reversal of a trial court's legal ruling on which the plaintiff relied in shaping its proof. For example, in Wolfe v. Gencorp, Inc., 529 So. 2d 1154 (Fla. 1st DCA 1988), the First District held that remand is required in such a circumstance because where "plaintiffs had presented all the evidence ruled necessary by the trial court . . . [they] were not required to take the next step and present further evidence at that time." Id. at 1156. The Second and Third Districts agree. See Rowland v. Whitehead, 375 So. 2d 607, 609-10 (Fla. 2d DCA 1979) ("[t]his is not a case in which the plaintiff has changed her position or in which she is seeking to introduce additional evidence which she should have put on in the first place," since “[a]t the trial there was no need for her to think in terms of reformation because the judge had concluded that her testimony was admissible”); Porter v. Vista Bldg. Maint. Servs., 630 So. 2d 205, 206 (Fla. 3d DCA 1993) (per curiam) (“[a] party cannot be penalized for his good-faith reliance on a trial court’s incorrect ruling”).²

D. Extending Teca Unfairly Penalizes Plaintiffs.

The panel majority’s reading of Teca not only directly conflicts with existing law, but also establishes a new procedural rule that promises to have highly damaging systemic consequences. Denying a new trial where the plaintiff designed its presentation based on erroneous pretrial rulings about the nature of the evidence that could satisfy its burden of proof requires the plaintiff to guess correctly, at its peril, about the law that ultimately will be applied. Such an approach is particularly unfair because it is so one-sided. If the defendant succeeds in persuading the trial court to adopt a rule that is erroneously pro-defendant, the worst that can happen, from the defendant's point of view, is a remand for a new trial, because the defendant cannot be accused of failing to carry its burden of proof. But the panel majority's rule would mean that every trial-court ruling that favors the plaintiff on a close question of evidentiary methodology carries with it the risk of immunizing a wrongdoer — even in cases, like this one, where the wrongdoing is established and egregious.

² See also, e.g., Chasteen v. Chasteen, 213 So. 2d 509, 511-12 (Fla. 1st DCA 1968) (finding erroneous “the trial judge’s conclusion that the proofs adduced . . . [were] sufficient” and remanding for a new trial); Cirou v. Naples Awning & Glass, Inc., 376 So. 2d 929, 930 (Fla. 2d DCA 1979); Srybnik v. Ice Tower, Inc., 162 So. 2d 294, 296 (Fla. 3d DCA 1964) (remanding for a new trial because trial court had erred in failing to require “proof of . . . the correct measure of damages”); Wagner v. Nottingham Assocs., 464 So. 2d 166, 170 (Fla. 3d DCA 1985) (“even were we to conclude that the case was tried below on the wrong theory, the remedy would have been a new trial, not the entry of judgment for the defendant”); Sostchin v. Doll Enters., Inc., 847 So. 2d 1123, 1129 (Fla. 3d DCA 2003).

An example drawn from the facts of this case illustrates the problem. Prior to trial, the court ruled on whether New York law or Florida law would govern this case. CPH had two different damages experts at the ready; one was prepared to apply the benefit-of-the-bargain approach permitted under Florida law, and the other was prepared to apply New York's damages measure, which allows fraud victims to recover only out-of-pocket losses. When the trial court ruled that Florida law governed, as CPH had urged, CPH called the former expert. If this Court had then ruled on appeal that New York law applied, a remand would have been necessary to allow the proper proof, and it would have made no sense to say that CPH had failed to carry its burden because it did not present evidence of out-of-pocket loss. See, e.g., Avis Rent-a-Car Sys., Inc. v. Abrahantes, 517 So. 2d 25, 27 (Fla. 3d DCA 1987). Yet that is the equivalent of what the panel majority did here, when it overruled the trial judge's determination on the proper damages measure but then failed to grant a new trial on this issue.³ At a minimum, CPH is entitled to a new trial on damages.

III. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT REHEARING OR REHEARING EN BANC BECAUSE THE PANEL'S ANALYSIS OF BENEFIT-OF-THE-BARGAIN DAMAGES IS CONTRARY TO THIS COURT'S PRIOR DECISIONS AND IS A MATTER OF EXCEPTIONAL IMPORTANCE.

The panel majority held that CPH's evidence of compensatory damages failed because CPH did not measure its damages exclusively as of the date of the transaction, on March 30, 1998. Op. at 7, 9. Rehearing is warranted because the panel decision is contrary to Florida law rejecting a "date of transaction" rule where that rule prevents victims from being fully compensated for injuries caused by tortious conduct. The majority's ruling also rests upon an analysis of a contractual lockup provision that conflicts with cases from this Court confirming that CPH was excused from the contractual lockup because of Sunbeam's material breach.

Prior to trial, Judge Maass ruled that CPH was entitled to recover damages for the full extent of its loss, including fraud-inflicted losses that CPH suffered after the transaction date. After a careful pretrial analysis of the relevant federal securities laws, Judge Maass ruled that, because of the fraud, “CPH could not have sold its Sunbeam stock prior to November 25, 1999, at which point it could sell no more than a million shares per quarter unless the shares were registered,” and that the fraud prevented the shares from being “registrable [until] December 6, 1999.” R439 14610-11; see R209 41770-71; R217 43369-70; R373 5390-460; R397 8654-707; R421 12026-66; Op. at 3. MS did not challenge Judge Maass’ rulings concerning when CPH could legally sell its Sunbeam shares. But MS did challenge the ruling that CPH could be compensated for fraud-inflicted injuries that CPH suffered after the transaction closed.

³ After MS initially failed to obtain expert proof under a benefit-of-the-bargain measure of damages, the trial court gave MS an opportunity before trial to submit a revised expert report in keeping with the court's legal ruling that a benefit-of-the-bargain measure of damages was appropriate. See R326 477-85; R368 4793-853; R208 41487. But the panel majority's ruling deprives CPH of a similar opportunity to present proof in conformity with the panel majority's view of the law.

At trial, CPH conformed its evidence to the precise rulings Judge Maass made. CPH’s damages expert, Dr. Blaine Nye, calculated what CPH would have obtained had it attempted to sell a million shares per quarter beginning in November 1999. R409 10372-83. CPH also introduced a chart showing the daily prices for Sunbeam stock on the relevant dates. PX 1296A. Taking that evidence into account, the jury awarded CPH compensatory damages of $604 million, which was $76 million less than the highest amount of damages that CPH’s expert had calculated. R409 10372-83.

A. Because MS's Fraud Caused Loss After the Date of the Transaction, the Trial Court Properly Rejected a Date-of-Transaction Test.

Judge Maass correctly ruled that CPH was entitled to recover for the entire loss it sustained because of defendant's fraud — both the loss that CPH suffered when it received the fraudulently inflated Sunbeam shares and the loss that it suffered because the fraud prevented CPH from selling those shares as their value continued to decline. A simple example illustrates why this is the case: A defendant engages in a fraud and sells a plaintiff an object that is supposed to have a market value of $45, but actually has a market value of $5 on the date of the transaction. In addition, plaintiff, because of defendant's fraud, cannot sell the object until its market value has declined to zero. Under benefit-of-the-bargain damages, the plaintiff should recover $45 because the defendant's fraud caused both the $40 difference in market value on the date of the transaction (the first result of the fraud) and the $5 difference in market value on the date that the plaintiff could sell the object (the second result of the fraud). Indeed, where the defendant's fraud causes both losses, any other outcome would violate Florida law by failing to compensate the victim for the entire injury actually suffered.

Although the panel majority concluded that Judge Maass erred by not limiting CPH to damages suffered exclusively on the date of the transaction (Op. at 9), the trial court's rulings in fact comport with Florida's public policy embraced in the “flexibility theory” of damages — that fraud victims should receive full compensation, especially where the particular fact pattern does not fit conventional models.⁴ Judge Maass’ damages rulings also comport with Florida decisions that in various contexts have not applied the date-of-transaction rule when necessary to provide full compensation to a plaintiff.⁵ And Judge Maass’ rulings are in accord with the holdings of numerous other courts that when the defendant’s misconduct interferes with the plaintiff’s ability to escape a challenged securities transaction, the plaintiff is entitled to recover for losses incurred after the transaction date.⁶

⁴ See, e.g., Gregg v. U.S. Indus., Inc., 887 F.2d 1462, 1466 (11th Cir. 1989) (permitting, under Florida law, different damages theories “as justice requires,” depending upon “whichever will more fully compensate the defrauded party”); see also Restatement (Second) of Torts § 549 cmt. h (1977); Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 344 cmt. a (1981).

⁵ See, e.g., Department of Agric. & Consumer Serv. v. Polk, 568 So. 2d 35, 42 (Fla. 1990) (where no market for property exists at time of its taking, value is properly measured when property can be sold); Batlemento v. Dove Fountain, Inc., 593 So. 2d 234, 241-42 (Fla. 5th DCA 1991) (upholding damage award that included three-year period when plaintiff tried to “make a go of the business” he was fraudulently induced to purchase).

⁶ See, e.g., Silverberg v. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc., 710 F.2d 678, 685-87 (11th Cir. 1983) (applying “flexibility theory” of damages under Florida law and holding that, where the defendant encouraged the plaintiff to retain the stock that the plaintiff had been defrauded into purchasing, “it was well within the trial court’s discretion to instruct the jury to calculate the [plaintiff’s] damages on the common law fraud claim based on the total decline in the value of the stock”); Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. v. Bork, 1991 WL 164465, at *6 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 21, 1991) (where investments did not contain a “high degree of liquidity” and plaintiff “had virtually no choice” but to retain the investments after closing his account, loss included diminution in value after account’s termination date); Alloys Unlimited, Inc. v. Raesler, 1976 WL 16605, at *4 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. June 22, 1976)

The panel majority's contrary view cannot be reconciled with any of those authorities.

B. The Trial Court's Rulings Conformed with Settled Principles of Causation Under Florida Tort Law.

Judge Maass' damages rulings also followed the principle that a tort plaintiff does not need to show that the defendant's conduct was the only cause of its loss; the defendant's conduct need only be a substantial cause of the loss for the plaintiff to recover. Indeed, the trial court's jury instruction on causation was taken almost verbatim from Fla. Std. Jury Instr. (Civ.) 5.1 (2004). See R439 14608 (instructing that the "fraud was the legal cause of CPH's losses if the fraud committed against CPH directly and in natural and continuous sequence produced or contributed substantially to producing such losses so that it can reasonably be said that but for the fraud the losses would not have occurred”). As the Comment to that standard instruction states, Florida law specifically recognizes that the defendant’s conduct may not be the only cause of a loss, yet the defendant remains liable. Fla. Std. Jury Instr. (Civ.) 5.1 cmt. (2004).

(where plaintiffs "were unable to sell their stock, pursuant to SEC Rule 133, which restricted such sale without first filing registration statements," the "market price of the stock in question at such time . . . is irrelevant."), aff'd, 391 N.Y.S.2d 371 (N.Y. App. Div. 1977); IDS Bond Fund, Inc. v. Gleacher NatWest Inc., 2002 WL 373455, at *9 (D. Minn. Mar. 6, 2002) (issue of material fact existed as to whether plaintiff's losses after date of stock purchase could be attributed to defendant's fraud where the securities were not publicly traded and no market existed once the fraud was uncovered); Pollen v. Aware, Inc., 762 N.E.2d 900, 905 (Mass. App. Ct. 2002) (affirming damages calculation based on date of initial public offering rather than date of breach where there was no public market for stock on date of breach and date of public offering was best indicator of stock's fair market value); Walden v. Affiliated Computer Servs., Inc., 97 S.W.3d 303, 328-29 (Tex. App.-Houston [14th Dist.] 2003) (damages for claim brought by stock option holders against corporation should have been calculated based on stock value on the first day after the corporation's breach on which option holders were entitled to receive and to resell their stock, rather than stock value on date of breach).

Based on those principles, the trial court held that it did not matter whether market forces may have caused some of the decline in stock value while CPH could not sell the shares, because the fraud also caused the loss since it left CPH exposed to that injury by preventing sale. At trial, CPH conformed its proof to that standard. CPH presented evidence showing that Sunbeam’s stock price plunged immediately following each new disclosure about the fraud. See supra pages 10-12. CPH also presented evidence showing that, upon learning of the fraud after the merger closed, CPH examined ways to escape the transaction, but the fraud prevented CPH from doing so. See, e.g., R415 11163-65; R414 11015-16. Significantly, in this regard, CPH proved that it tried to mitigate damages by rescinding the contract — taking back its Coleman stock in exchange for the purchase price, including the Sunbeam stock. But CPH was unable to rescind because of the fraud. R414 11015-16; R401 9159-60. And CPH introduced evidence showing the decline in the stock’s market value during the time when CPH involuntarily owned it. See Op. at 3. The jury concluded, based on proper Florida jury instructions, that the fraud prevented CPH from selling the stock, and thus the fraud was a “substantial” cause of CPH’s losses. In fact, answering a special interrogatory, the jury made that finding under a clear-and-convincing-evidence standard. R298 59450; Op. at 4.

The panel majority nevertheless imposed a new and different causation requirement for common-law fraud cases involving securities. The majority held that the plaintiff, as part of its own case, must hire an economist to conduct an “event study” in an effort to segregate supposed non-fraud factors from fraud factors affecting a stock price decline. Op. at 7-9. The economist then must retroactively estimate what the stock price would have been on the date of the transaction, absent the fraud. Id. To our knowledge, no court has ever applied the majority’s event-study requirement in a common-law fraud case.⁷

In short, Judge Maass’ damages rulings properly permitted the jury to determine the entire loss caused by MS’s fraud: both the loss suffered when CPH received the fraudulently inflated Sunbeam shares, and the additional loss that CPH suffered when the fraud prevented CPH from selling those shares. Florida’s test for causation — requiring plaintiff to prove that defendant’s wrongful conduct was a substantial cause of plaintiff’s loss — was the existing standard at the time of trial and should remain so.

⁷ The majority took that approach from statutory securities actions under the federal securities laws, rather than from any common-law precedents. But even in securities cases under federal statutes, event studies have been criticized, especially where (as here) evidence of fraud comes out slowly and leaks into the marketplace. See, e.g., Cornell & Morgan, Using Finance Theory to Measure Damages in Fraud on the Market Cases, 37 UCLA L. Rev. 883, 904-06 (1990).

C. MS's Fraud — Not the Contractual Lockup — Prevented CPH from Selling Its Stock.

The panel majority also held that CPH's prior agreement not to sell the Sunbeam shares for up to nine months (the "contractual lockup") eliminated CPH's right to compensation for all the money it lost when it could not sell its Sunbeam shares as a result of the fraud. The majority criticized the trial court's rulings as having improperly permitted CPH to "pick and choose which parts of the contract it wants to affirm and which parts it wants to disaffirm." Op. at 6. The panel majority correctly observed that if the plaintiff seeks benefit-of-the-bargain damages, the plaintiff is deemed to "affirm the transaction." Id. But the premise underlying the majority's position — that CPH consequently was bound to continue to perform the contract, including the contract's lockup provisions — is contrary to this Court's prior decisions. This Court follows the blackletter rule that a material breach by one party excuses the other party from further performance. In a recent opinion by Judge May, joined by Judges Klein and Hazouri, the Court stated: "It is axiomatic that the anticipatory breach of a contract by one party excuses contractual compliance by the other." Fabel v. Masterson, 32 Fla. Law Weekly D605, 2007 WL 601565, at *2 (Fla. 4th DCA Feb. 28, 2007); see Hustad v. Edwin K. Williams & Co.-East, 321 So. 2d 601, 603 (Fla. 4th DCA 1975); Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 237 (1981).

Here, Sunbeam materially breached the contract with CPH by, among other things, misrepresenting in the contract that Sunbeam's financial statements and filings with the SEC were true and free of material errors. Because of Sunbeam's material breach, CPH was excused from performing any of its remaining contractual obligations, including the contractual lockup. CPH was not engaged in any improper attempt to "pick and choose" parts of the contract (Op. at 6), but instead was acting in full accord with its contract rights.

The majority's opinion also conflicts with a related blackletter principle recognized by this Court: If a plaintiff responds to a material breach by terminating its future performance, the plaintiff retains its right to benefit-of-the-bargain damages. See, e.g., Knight Energy Servs., Inc. v. C.R. Int'l Enter., Inc., 616 So. 2d 1079, 1080 (Fla. 4th DCA 1993) (per curiam) (nonbreaching party that terminates performance is entitled to benefit-of-the-bargain damages for lost profits); Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 347 (1981).

In sum, it was not the contractual lockup that prevented CPH from selling the Sunbeam shares; it was MS's fraud.

D. As Judge Farmer Correctly Observed, the Panel's Ruling Encourages Defrauded Purchasers to Sell Fraudulently Inflated Stock to Unsuspecting Third Parties.

The majority's opinion rests upon another misapprehension: that CPH should have (somehow) sold its Sunbeam shares to someone else. As Judge Farmer explained in his dissent, “by requiring a sale of inflated stock to an unsuspecting public, the court’s reasoning would encourage aggrieved buyers unwittingly to make use of the seller’s fraudulent representations concealing its real lack of value.” Op. at 14. There is no sound public policy for adopting a rule of damages that simply distributes the losses across more victims, and certainly there is no virtue in excusing MS from bearing responsibility for the entire loss that its fraudulent conduct caused.

In sum, Judge Maass’ damages rulings were correct and reasonable. Under established law, CPH was entitled to pursue a damages theory designed to provide compensation for the full loss CPH suffered as a result of the massive fraud that MS helped perpetrate.

CONCLUSION

The case should be reheard by the panel or the en banc Court, and the judgment below should be affirmed.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.
Case No. 03 CA 005045 AH
Matter No. 230580

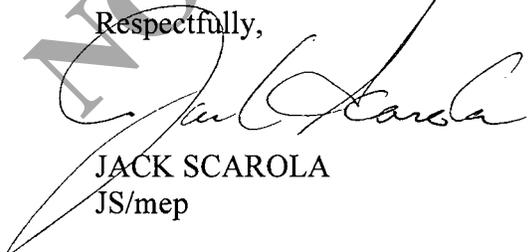

Dear Judge Fine:

Upon inquiry to your office today for availability for a 2 hour hearing in the above-styled matter for purposes of a status conference, scheduling conference and a hearing on pending motions, we were advised by your Judicial Assistant to place this request in writing to your Honor because the amount of time requested exceeds 30 minutes.

At the present time, defense counsel has unilaterally scheduled a hearing on your Honor's Uniform Motion Calendar for January 31, 2008 on Defendant's Motion for Entry of Final Judgment. Counsel for Plaintiff is currently in trial before Judge Garrison beginning at 8:30 a.m. Plaintiff's co-counsel from Chicago desire to attend and have been given insufficient notice.

We are seeking information on the availability of the longer hearing time in the hope that it will enable us to amicably resolve the conflict regarding the January 31 hearing.

Respectfully,

JACK SCAROLA

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated
Case No. CA 03-5045 AH

Dear Judge Fine:

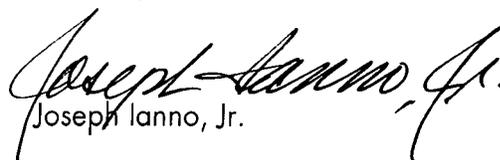

Our law firm, together with Bruce Rogow, P.A. and Quinn Emanuel, represent Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated in the above matter. Yesterday, we were provided with a copy of correspondence from Plaintiff's counsel concerning the Plaintiff's request for a status conference and pending motions. We write to clarify and explain the pending motions.

Currently, Morgan Stanley has scheduled a hearing for Uniform Motion Calendar on Thursday, January 31, 2008 to hear its Motion for Entry of Final Judgment after mandate. A copy of the Motion is enclosed for Your Honor's convenience. We believe that the hearing is appropriate for Uniform Motion Calendar because entry of the form final judgment after a mandate from the appellate court is a ministerial act. If counsel for Plaintiff is unavailable on that day, we would accommodate reasonable requests to reschedule the hearing.

With regard to Plaintiff's request for a status conference, we respectfully submit that the Court is not permitted to proceed with any matters, including Plaintiff's request, until the mandate from the appellate court has been complied with and the final judgment is entered in favor of Morgan Stanley. After the judgment has been entered, we believe that the Court should hold a short hearing of thirty minutes or less to determine what additional hearings will be necessary, including Morgan Stanley's pending motions to tax costs.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Sincerely,

Joseph Ianno, Jr.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.'S
MOTION FOR ENTRY OF FINAL JUDGMENT

Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley"), hereby asks this Court to vacate the prior final judgment entered on June 23, 2005 in favor of Plaintiff and enter final judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley pursuant to the Fourth District Court of Appeal's directions in its decision dated March 21, 2007. Plaintiff's consolidated motion for rehearing, rehearing en banc and for certification was denied by the Fourth District on June 4, 2007. The Fourth District issued its mandate on June 22, 2007. A proposed final judgment is attached hereto as Exhibit "A."

WHEREFORE, Morgan Stanley hereby requests that this Court vacate the June 23, 2005 final judgment and enter a final judgment in favor of Morgan Stanley, while reserving jurisdiction to consider Morgan Stanley's claims, as prevailing party, for appellate and trial court costs.
