RESPONSE: Denied, except that CPH admits that MSSF did some work on the Bank Facility in New York, but also did some work in Florida. Answering further, CPH states that the two other banks involved in the Bank Facility, First Union and Bank of America, were headquartered outside of New York and did work on the Bank Facility outside of New York.

245. MSSF prepared and disseminated the preliminary and final offering memorandum for the Bank Facility in New York.

RESPONSE: Denied.

246. On March 17, 1998, Sunbeam and MS & Co. held a "road show" for potential Sunbeam investors in New York.

RESPONSE: Denied.

247. On March 18, 1998, Sunbeam and MS & Co. held a "road show" for potential Sunbeam investors in New York.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

248. No "road shows" for potential Sunbeam investors were held in Florida.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry and located a document entitled "Sunbeam Road Show Itinerary" and produced by Morgan Stanley. That document indicates that no road shows took place in Florida. However, CPH is unable to verify the accuracy or completeness of this document, lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request, and therefore denies this request. Answering further, CPH states that the coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures issued by Sunbeam and marketed by Morgan Stanley were purchased by investors nationwide, including investors based in Florida. Moreover, upon information and belief, CPH states that Morgan Stanley caused the Offering Memorandum for the debentures issued by Sunbeam to be delivered to potential investors in Florida.

249. On March 19, 1998, the Note Offering closed in New York.

RESPONSE: Denied.

250. The press conference following the March 19, 1998 press release was held in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH objects to this request as vague and ambiguous because it does not identify a specific date or subject matter for the press conference. Several press conferences have taken place since March 19, 1998. Subject to and without waiving this objection, CPH states that it has made a reasonable inquiry into the document in its possession. That inquiry did not indicate a press conference held on or about March 19, 1998. CPH lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request and therefore denies this request.

251. On March 30, 1998, the Transaction closed in New York.

RESPONSE: Consistent with CPH's interpretation of the term "Transaction," admitted.

252. On March 31, 1998, the Bank Facility closed in New York.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

253. At the time of the Transaction, Sunbeam was listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

RESPONSE: Consistent with CPH's interpretation of the term "Transaction," admitted.

254. At the time of the Transaction, Coleman was listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

RESPONSE: Consistent with CPH's interpretation of the term "Transaction," admitted.

255. No meetings between MS & Co. and Coleman took place in Florida.

RESPONSE: Admitted. Answering further, CPH states that Morgan Stanley prepared Sunbeam representatives to meet with a Coleman representative in Florida.

256. No meetings between MS & Co. and CPH took place in Florida.

257. No meetings between MS & Co. and MAFCO took place in Florida.

RESPONSE: Admitted. Answering further, CPH states that Morgan Stanley prepared Sunbeam representatives to meet with MAFCO representatives in Florida.

258. No meetings between MSSF and Coleman took place in Florida.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

259. No meetings between MSSF and CPH took place in Florida.

RESPONSE: Denied.

260. No meetings between MSSF and MAFCO took place in Florida.

RESPONSE: Denied.

261. On April 27, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman met with Coopers & Lybrand and Sard Verbinnen at Coopers & Lybrand offices in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry and located a document prepared by Sunbeam that indicates that on April 27, 1998, Sunbeam, Coopers & Lybrand, and Sard Verbinnen representatives met at the Coopers & Lybrand offices in New York. However, CPH is unable to verify the accuracy or completeness of that document, lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request, and therefore denies this request.

262. On May 4, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman met with Coopers & Lybrand and Sard Verbinnen at Coopers & Lybrand offices in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry and located a document prepared by Sunbeam that indicates that on May 4, 1998, Sunbeam, Coopers & Lybrand, and Sard Verbinnen representatives met at the Coopers & Lybrand offices in New York. However, CPH is unable to verify the accuracy or completeness of that document, lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request, and therefore denies this request.

263. On May 6, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman held a special joint meeting of the respective Boards of Directors at Coopers & Lybrand offices in New York.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

264. On May 7-9, 1998, Sunbeam prepared for the May 11th presentation in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry and located a document prepared by Sunbeam that indicates that Sunbeam representatives were in New York on May 7-9, 1998. However, CPH is unable to verify the accuracy or completeness of that document, lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request, and therefore denies this request.

265. On May 11, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman made a special "Strategy for Growth" presentation to Wall Street analysts and investors in New York regarding the Sunbeam situation.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry and located a Sunbeam presentation entitled "Strategy for Growth" dated May 11, 1998. However, CPH is unable to verify the accuracy or completeness of that document, lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request, and therefore denies this request.

266. On June 9, 1998, the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam met in New York to discuss the June 8, 1998 article in Barrons concerning Sunbeam's accounting practices.

RESPONSE: Denied, except that CPH admits that on June 9, 1998, the Board of Directors of Sunbeam held a meeting in New York and the June 8, 1998 article in Barron's Magazine concerning Sunbeam's accounting practices was discussed.

267. On June 13, 1998, the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam met in New York to remove Albert Dunlap as CEO of Sunbeam.

RESPONSE: Denied, except that CPH admits that on June 13, 1998, the Board of Directors of Sunbeam held a meeting in New York and the Board of Directors removed Albert Dunlap as CEO of Sunbeam at that meeting.

268. On June 19, 1998, MS & Co., First Union, Bank of America and MAFCO met at MAFCO headquarters in New York to discuss the Sunbeam situation.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

269. On July 10, 1998, the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam held an organizational meeting at the offices of Reboul, MacMurray, Hewitt, Maynard & Kristol at 45 Rockefeller Plaza in New York to discuss the negotiations between Sunbeam and its lenders.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

270. On July 28, 1998, the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam met at the offices of Reboul, MacMurray, Hewitt, Maynard & Kristol at 45 Rockefeller Plaza in New York to discuss the status of the ongoing fact investigation at Sunbeam.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

271. On February 6, 2001, Sunbeam filed for bankruptcy in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

272. The adversary proceedings against Sunbeam were instituted in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry into the documents in its possession and has reviewed the docket sheet for the Bankruptcy Petition filed by Sunbeam on February 6, 2001 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. Neither of these inquiries indicated that adversary proceedings have been instituted against Sunbeam. CPH lacks information or knowledge sufficient to answer this request and therefore denies this request. Answering further, CPH states that more than 20 lawsuits concerning Sunbeam's fraudulent accounting practices have been filed in or transferred to Florida state and federal courts, including:

- a. Bird v. Sunbeam Corporation, et al., No. 98-8258 (S.D. Fla.)
- b. Frankel v. Sunbeam Corporation, et al., No. 98-8310 (S.D. Fla.)

1 Q Have you given deposition testimony as an
2 expert?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Have you been admitted by a court as an
5 expert?

6 A Yes.

7 Q How often that you recall?

8 A I haven't done it in ten or fifteen years, but 9 probably at least, as an expert, at least a half dozen
10 times.

11 Q And this is while you were employed at Arthur
12 Andersen?

13 A Yes.

14 Q You were never retained by Sunbeam as an 15 expert for litigation. Is that correct?

16 A That's correct.

17 Q You had no personal involvement with the 1996
18 or 1997 audit of Sunbeam. Correct?

19 A That's correct.

20 Q You had also no involvement related to 21 Sunbeam's original filing of their 10 K for 1997. Is
22 that correct?

23 A Correct.

24 Q Prior to June of 1998, did you have any 25 communication with anyone from Morgan Stanley about any

1 issue related to Sunbeam?

2 A No.

3 Q Prior to June of 1998, did you have any
4 communication with anyone from Morgan Stanley Senior
5 Funding regarding Sunbeam?

6 A No.

7 Q Prior to June 1998, did you have any
8 communication with anyone from or representing Coleman
9 Company regarding Sunbeam?

10 A No. Prior -- no. That's correct. Prior to 11 June I did not.

12 Q And you had no involvement with Arthur
13 Andersen's March 19, 1998 comfort letter. Is that
14 correct?

15 A That's correct. Other than my
16 responsibilities as the audit division head, but I
17 don't recall any specific -- I didn't look at any of 18 the documents, so there may have been something that 19 somebody asked me about during the process, but I
20 wasn't involved, nor did I -- charged no time to that 21 account, so I don't believe I had any involvement. I
22 don't recall any involvement.

23 Q And you don't have any specific recollection
24 of anyone consulting with you about that?

25 A No, no, I don't.

1 Q Is that also true with regard to the
2 March 25th, 1998 comfort letter?

3 A That's also correct, yes.

4 Q You had no involvement or consultation
5 regarding Sunbeam's offering memoranda for their notes
6 in March of 1998. Is that correct?

7 A That's correct.

8 Q Prior to June of 1998, had anyone expressed to 9 you any concern regarding the accuracy of Sunbeam's
10 financial statements?

11 A Not that I recall.

12 Q Prior to June of 1998, had anyone expressed 13 any concern to you regarding Sunbeam's financial 14 performance in 1998?

15 A Not that I recall.

16 Q Prior to June 1998, did you have any contact
17 directly with Sunbeam personnel in regards to Arthur
18 Andersen's work for Sunbeam?

19 A No.

20 MS. BROWN: This will be Morgan Stanley
21 Exhibit 13.

1 your conversations with Mr. Kersh, what topics were
2 discussed or what the purpose of your meeting him
3 was?

4 MR. JOHNSON: Objection to the form and
5 foundation.

6 A. I don't remember discussing anything with 7 him.

8 BY MR. CLARE:

9 Q. Do you remember what occasion you had to 10 talk to Mr. Kersh?

11 A. I met him at a baseball game.

12 Q. Other than social conversation, do you
13 recall discussing anything related to Sunbeam's
14 business or the work that Andersen was performing
15 for Sunbeam?

16 A. No, I do not.

17 Q. Did you ever speak with any of the 18 attorneys that were representing Sunbeam in 19 connection with the acquisitions that were going on 20 in the first quarter of '98?

21 A. No.

22 Q. Are you aware that in 1988 Sunbeam was 23 involved in acquiring three companies?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. What was the source of your awareness of

1 that?

2 A. I don't recall.

3 Q. Was it just general knowledge at the
4 company?

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. Did you have any involvement in any of the 7 work that was being done by Andersen in connection
8 with the acquisitions?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Did you have any conversations internally
11 with people at Andersen about the acquisitions?

12 A. No.

13 Q. I take it you were not involved in any 14 discussions or negotiations leading to those
15 acquisitions?

16 A. That's correct.

17 Q. Did you have conversations with Sunbeam
18 personnel relating to those acquisitions?

19 A. No.

20 Q. Did you ever meet with any of the 21 attorneys or investment bankers from the parties to 22 the companies that were being acquired, Coleman,
23 First Alert, Signature Rent?

24 A. No.

25 Q. Did you ever meet or speak with anyone

1 from the Coleman Company?

2 A. No.

3 Q. Did you ever meet or speak with anyone
4 from Thomas Lee?

5 A. No.

6 Q. Did you ever meet or speak with any
7 investment bankers representing Coleman Company?

8 A. No.

9 Q. Did you ever meet or speak with Credit
10 Suisse First Boston, CSFB?

11 A. No.

12 Q. Did you ever speak with attorneys who were 13 representing the Coleman Company?

14 A. No.

15 Q. Did you ever speak with anyone from the 16 law firm of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen and Katz?

17 A. No.

18 Q. Did you ever speak with anyone from 19 Coleman Parent Holding Company?

20 A. No.

21 Q. Did you ever meet or speak with anyone
22 from MacAndrews and Forbes?

23 A. No.

24 Q. As you sit here today, do you have an 25 understanding as to whether -- strike that.

1 In 1998 during the time that you were
2 working for Andersen on Sunbeam-related matters, did
3 you have an understanding that Sunbeam was preparing
4 to do a private placement of convertible notes?

5 A. No.

6 Q. Did you ever have any conversation with 7 anybody at Andersen about an offering of convertible
8 notes or debentures?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Did you ever discuss that with 11 Mr. Bornstein?

12 A. No.

13 Q. Or Mr. Pastrana?

14 A. No.

15 Q. Mr. Harlow?

16 A. No.

17 Q. Mr. Pruitt?

18 A. No.

19 Q. How about anybody from Sunbeam, did you
20 ever have any discussion with Sunbeam personnel
21 about Sunbeam's offering of convertible notes?

22 A. No.

23 Q. Do you recall reading any public
24 information about the offering?

25 A. No.

1 Q. Do you have an understanding what role, if
2 any, Andersen played in connection with the Sunbeam
3 debenture offer?

4 A. No, I do not.

5 Q. Did you have any personal involvement in 6 the offering of convertible debentures in the first
7 quarter of '98?

8 A. No.

9 Q. Did you play any role in drafting or 10 reviewing the offering on -- for the debentures?

11 A. No.

12 Q. Have you ever seen it before?

13 A. No.

14 Q. Are you aware from any source of the 15 content of that offering?

16 A. No.

17 Q. That was not something that was ever
18 discussed with you by Mr. Bornstein?

19 A. No.

20 Q. Or Mr. Pastrana?

21 A. No.

22 Q. Or anybody from Andersen?

23 A. No.

24 Q. Did you know, in March of 1998, what role,
25 if any, Morgan Stanley had in Sunbeam's offering of

1 convertible debentures?

2 A. No.

3 Q. Did you even know that Morgan Stanley had 4 a role in March of 1998?

5 A. No, I did not.

6 Q. Did you play any role in drafting any
7 comfort letters that were provided by Arthur
8 Andersen in connection with that offering?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Are you familiar with the term comfort
11 letter?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. Have you ever seen those comfort letters
14 before?

15 A. No.

16 Q. During the time that you were working on 17 Sunbeam-related engagements, did you ever meet or 18 speak with anybody from Morgan Stanley?

19 A. No.

20 MR. JOHNSON: Asked and answered.

21 BY MR. CLARE:

22 Q. Did you ever meet or speak with a
23 gentleman named Bill Strong from Morgan Stanley?

24 A. No.

25 Q. John Tyree?

1 A. No.

2 Q. Ruth Porat?

3 A. No.

4 Q. Or Michael Hart?

5 A. No.

6 Q. Were you ever, to your knowledge, on a
7 telephone conference call where anybody from Morgan
8 Stanley was identified as being on?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Did you ever instruct or direct anybody at 11 Arthur Andersen to contact or to communicate with 12 Morgan Stanley on any issue?

13 A. No.

14 Q. So is it fair to say in your dealings at 15 Andersen with regard to Sunbeam-related engagements,
16 you never communicated directly or indirectly with 17 anyone from Morgan Stanley?

18 A. That's correct.

19 (Morgan Stanley Exhibit No. 9 was marked
20 for identification.)

21 (Morgan Stanley Exhibit No. 10 was marked
22 for identification.)

23 A. Okay.

24 BY MR. CLARE:

25 Q. Mr. Kistler, I've handed you two

1 documents. Morgan Stanley Exhibit Number 9, it's a
2 March 19th letter from Arthur Andersen. And
3 Morgan Stanley Exhibit 10 is a March 25, 1998 letter
4 from Arthur Andersen. Have you seen either of these 5 documents before today?

6 A. No.

7 Q. I take it then that you did not play any
8 role in preparing Morgan Stanley Exhibit 9 or Morgan
9 Stanley Exhibit 10?

10 A. That's correct.

11 Q. On page three of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 9,
12 item 5-B includes the description of some sales
13 figures for December 29th, 1997 through
14 February 1, 1998?

15 A. Five what, B as in boy?

16 Q. Correct.

17 A. Okay.

18 Q. It's a table of sales.

19 A. Okay.

20 Q. Did you, as part of the work that you
21 performed, supply any of the information that went 22 into this?

23 A. No.

24 Q. Do you have any knowledge or information
25 about how this information was collected or compiled

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH
COUNTY, FLORIDA

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.,

Defendant.

DEFENDANT'S OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR A PROTECTIVE ORDER TO BAR CERTAIN NON-PARTY DISCOVERY

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Company Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley"), by and through its undersigned attorneys, respectfully submits this opposition to plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s ("CPH") Motion for a Protective Order to Bar Certain Non-Party Discovery and states:

CPH errs in seeking to block discovery relating to the due diligence and financial sophistication of its legal and financial advisors, Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz ("Wachtell") and Credit Suisse First Boston ("CSFB"). By filing this lawsuit alleging misrepresentation claims against Morgan Stanley, CPH has put its alleged reliance on Morgan Stanley (an advisor to CPH's counterparty) — and the reasonableness of that reliance — squarely at issue. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to fully explore the competence and sophistication of CPH's own paid legal and financial advisors, including the abilities of those advisors to counsel CPH on the very same issues for which it claims to have relied on Morgan Stanley.

Additionally, CPH wrongfully seeks to deny Morgan Stanley the very same categories of discovery that CPH itself has sought in this litigation. Having demanded reams of documents from Morgan Stanley and its law firm, CPH cannot now complain when Morgan Stanley seeks the same categories of documents from CPH's own advisors.

I. Wachtell Lipton Subpoena ¶ 10, Credit Suisse Subpoena ¶ 7.

It is elementary that, by alleging claims for fraudulent and negligent misrepresentation against Morgan Stanley, CPH has put its alleged "reliance" on Morgan Stanley — and the "reasonableness" of that alleged reliance — squarely at issue. (See May 8, 2003 Complaint ¶ 82 ("CPH reasonably and justifiably relied upon Morgan Stanley's representations concerning Sunbeam."), ¶ 95 ("CPH justifiably relied, on the information provided by Morgan Stanley.")) The experience and sophistication of CPH and its team of legal and financial advisors in acquisition transactions of this type, and the tasks that CPH ordinarily entrusts to its own advisors in such transactions, bear directly on the issue of whether CPH "reasonably relied" on Morgan Stanley in this context. See Hillcrest Pac. Corp. v. Yamamura, 727 So. 2d 1053, 1057 (Fla. 4th DCA. 1999) (noting financial sophistication of plaintiff in affirming dismissal of fraud claim); Chateau Communities, Inc. v. Ludtke, 783 So. 2d 1227 (Fla. 5th DCA 2001) (fraud claims are "factually distinct and require[] proof of matters individual to each plaintiff, such as proof of reasonable reliance and damages.").

Despite the fact that CPH had virtually unfettered access to Sunbeam's financial books and records, it is evident that CPH and its advisors conducted little or no due diligence of their own prior to closing the acquisition transaction with Sunbeam. Now that CPH has filed this lawsuit seeking to shift the blame for its due diligence failures to Morgan Stanley (an advisor on the other side of the acquisition transaction), Morgan Stanley is entitled to discover how the perfunctory due diligence conducted by CPH and its team of advisors for the Sunbeam transaction compares to the (presumably) more rigorous due diligence conducted by CPH and MAFCO in structurally similar transactions. To accomplish this, Morgan Stanley limited its request to due diligence documents prepared by CPH's advisors in substantially similar financial transactions "in which CPH or MAFCO received stock as part of the consideration for sale."

CPH's assertion that due diligence work performed by its advisors for transactions structurally similar to the Sunbeam / Coleman acquisition is irrelevant is belied by CPH's own discovery requests. For example, CPH requested that Morgan Stanley provide the "policies, procedures, manuals, guidelines, reference materials, or checklists" used by Morgan Stanley in "the performance of due diligence, including without limitation due diligence performed in connection with underwriting the sale of equity or debt securities." (May 9, 2003 CPH's 1st Req. for Prod. of Docs., Req. 43 (Ex. 1) (emphasis added).) In response to this request, Morgan Stanley agreed to produce — and did in fact produce — due diligence materials relating not only to the underwriting of Sunbeam's convertible debentures, but also general due diligence materials applicable to the performance of due diligence in substantially similar underwriting engagements. Having requested and received these materials from Morgan Stanley (which do not relate directly to the Sunbeam / Coleman acquisition), CPH should not be permitted to shield its own lawyers and bankers from providing information on transactions that are structurally similar to the one at issue here.

II. Wachtell Lipton Request No. 33, Credit Suisse Request No. 30

CPH next objects to Morgan Stanley's limited request for documents "sufficient to identify any work or services" performed by CSFB and Wachtell on behalf of CPH or MAFCO in 1997 or 1998. The relevance of these requests — which are designed to identify the other financial engagements that CPH and MAFCO entrusted to its financial and legal advisors during the same time period — is obvious, since the requests speak directly to the financial sophistication of CPH and MAFCO’s financial and legal advisors, and CPH and MAFCO’s willingness to rely on its advisors in other settings for the same types of information, advice and counsel that they improperly seek to foist on Morgan Stanley in this lawsuit.

Moreover, CPH’s objection to these requests is unseemly in light of the fact that CPH itself made an even broader request of Morgan Stanley. (See id. Req. 31 (“All documents concerning any work or services you performed for or on behalf of Sunbeam in 1997 or 1998, regardless of whether you were compensated for that work.”).) Precisely why the 1997 and 1998 records and documents of Sunbeam’s advisors are relevant but those of CPH’s advisors are not, CPH does not and cannot explain. Just as plaintiffs are entitled to discovery that may prove their factual and legal allegations, defendants such as Morgan Stanley are entitled to discovery that may disprove a plaintiff’s factual and legal claims — that is all that Morgan Stanley seeks.

CPH’s double-standard on this issue is confirmed by its demand for documents held by Davis Polk Wardwell (“Davis Polk”), the law firm that served as underwriter’s counsel to Morgan Stanley in connection with Sunbeam’s debenture offering. (See Sept. 2003 Subpoena to Davis Polk & Wardwell, Req. No. 3 (Ex. 2).) The subpoena issued to Davis Polk sought “[a]ll bills, invoices, and back-up statements of professional services rendered by [Davis Polk] and/or expenses incurred on behalf of Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley, or MSSF.” (Id.) CPH thus has demanded all documents, regardless of date, and regardless of connection to Sunbeam-related engagements, held by the lawyers who advised its counterparty’s underwriter. It strains credulity to assert that such documents are relevant while simultaneously contending that documents dating from the only relevant time period held by CPH's own lawyers are not. And yet, this is precisely what CPH argues.

III. Credit Suisse Requests Nos. 18, 35

CPH's third objection fares no better than the first two. CPH objects to Morgan Stanley's requests that CSFB — CPH's financial advisor for the transaction at issue — produce documents “in connection with any other proposed engagement involving the performance of due diligence” for CPH or MAFCO and related excerpts from CSFB personnel files. (Dec. 19, 2003 PIF's Mot. for a Protective Order to Bar Certain Non-Party Disc. ¶ 4.) Once again, however, CPH's arguments regarding the “irrelevance” of these documents are belied by the allegations in its Complaint — and its own efforts to obtain the very same documents from Morgan Stanley.

The type, extent and quality of financial due diligence work that CSFB performed for CPH and MAFCO relate directly to CPH's trust and confidence in CSFB for such work and the credibility of its claim that it “reasonably relied” upon Morgan Stanley — instead of CSFB or its own in-house merger and acquisition team — to conduct appropriate due diligence into Sunbeam. CSFB's representations to CPH and MAFCO about its own due diligence capabilities, and the sophistication and competence of the CSFB personnel who performed those tasks, are directly relevant to CPH's alleged reliance on Morgan Stanley for advice and information about whether to proceed with the proposed acquisition transaction.

An essential premise of CPH's theory of liability is that Morgan Stanley — Sunbeam's financial advisor — played a critical role in vetting the information presented by Sunbeam during negotiations, despite the fact that CPH had its own team of financial and legal advisors that was supposed to be performing that same function. It simply cannot be the case that the documents of one advisor to one party to the transaction are relevant, while those of another advisor to the other party are not.

Morgan Stanley therefore urges the Court to deny CPH's Motion for a Protective Order to Bar Certain Non-Party Discovery.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Documents shall be produced as they are kept in the usual course of business, or organized and labeled to correspond to the categories in this Request. Documents attached to each other should not be separated. Documents consisting of items previously produced in the Litigations, Arbitrations, and/or SEC Administrative Proceedings with Bates numbering shall be produced in Bates number order.

2. All documents shall be produced in the file folder, envelope or other container in which the documents are kept or maintained by you. If, for any reason, the container cannot be produced, produce copies of all labels or other identifying marks.

3. The relevant period, unless otherwise indicated, shall be from January 1, 1997 through the date of trial of this matter, and shall include all documents and information which relate in whole or in part to such period, or to events or circumstances during such period, even though dated, prepared, generated or received prior or subsequent to that period. Please supplement or correct your responses to these requests if, at any time, you become aware that your responses are incomplete or incorrect in any respect.

4. If you claim the attorney-client privilege, or any other privilege or work-product protection for all or any portion of a document, you shall provide a privilege log that describes the withheld material sufficiently to allow CPH to test the privilege or protection asserted.

5. The following rules of construction apply:

- a) The connectives "and" and "or" shall be construed either disjunctively or conjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of the discovery requests all responses that might otherwise be outside of their scope;
- b) The term "including" shall be construed to mean "without limitation";
and
- c) The use of the singular form of any word includes the plural and vice versa.

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.,

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

Pursuant to Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.380(a), Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") respectfully moves this Court for an order compelling Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") to respond to discovery concerning the financial competence and sophistication of the persons representing CPH in the Transaction at issue, and in particular to respond to Morgan Stanley's Third Set of Interrogatories, Interrogatory No. 1.

As grounds for this motion, Morgan Stanley states:

1. CPH has refused to respond to the following interrogatory related to the financial sophistication of MAFCO, CPH, and those MAFCO and CPH personnel involved with the financial review of Sunbeam's acquisition of the Coleman Company:

State with particularity the 1997 and 1998 net worth, income, revenue and global holdings (including non-MAFCO holdings) of MAFCO, CPH, Ronald Perelman, Howard Gittis, and any other MAFCO or CPH employee who participated in the due diligence or financial review of Sunbeam's acquisition of the Coleman Company.

(Oct. 13, 2003 MS 3d Set of Interrogs. to Plf. CPH, Req. 1 (Ex. 1).)

2. This interrogatory seeks information that will allow MS & Co. to assess the financial sophistication of CPH and MAFCO, such as the diligence with which they approach their equity investments, which is an issue CPH's Complaint places squarely on the table. At the outset, Morgan Stanley wishes to make it perfectly clear that it is only seeking relevant information that is necessary in order to refute Plaintiffs' own allegations in its Complaint and to allow Morgan Stanley to defend those very same allegations. Indeed, Morgan Stanley, at least initially, seeks to discover such information through a narrowly crafted interrogatory rather than through a more inclusive document request.

3. CPH objected to this Interrogatory and refused to respond on the ground that it seeks "personal information about entities and individuals not party to this lawsuit;" and because it is "not relevant to the litigation." (Nov. 12, 2003 CPH Resps. & Objs. to Def. MS 3d Set of Interrog., Resp. 1 (Ex. 2).)

4. As an initial matter, CPH cannot shield MAFCO and its employees from discovery. CPH is a holding company that, according to CPH's Rule 1.310 deposition witness (himself a MAFCO employee), has no employees of its own. Indeed, CPH's lawsuit against Morgan Stanley is premised on an acquisition transaction in which MAFCO, CPH's parent company, played a larger role in the transaction than CPH itself. If Morgan Stanley is unable to get discovery from MAFCO (whose employees negotiated the acquisition and exercised complete control over the actions of CPH), Morgan Stanley will not have access to important discoverable information about the claims alleged against it. CPH, as the plaintiff, cannot employ the resources of MAFCO to bring this litigation to bear, but then hide behind corporate formalities to deprive Morgan Stanley of information clearly relevant to the case.

5. There is no dispute that MAFCO personnel have pertinent discoverable information. CPH's own interrogatory response lists fourteen (14) MAFCO employees as having discoverable information relating to CPH's Complaint – but not a single CPH employee. (See CPH Resp. to MS 1st Set Interrogs., Resp. 1, served Sept. 2, 2003 and filed under seal.) In addition, CPH identified at least six (6) instances in which MAFCO representatives personally met with Morgan Stanley representatives to discuss or negotiate the Coleman Transaction, see CPH Resp. to MS 2d Set of Interrogs. & 2nd Req. for Prod. of Docs., Resp. 1, served Oct. 13, 2003 and filed under seal, and at least eleven (11) instances in which MAFCO representatives discussed the transaction with Morgan Stanley, see id. at Resp. 3. None of these discovery responses refer to any action by a CPH employee. In light of MAFCO's important role in the acquisition transaction and CPH's own admission that MAFCO personnel have discoverable information, CPH's refusal to respond to MAFCO-related discovery on the grounds that MAFCO and its employees are non-parties in this instance is groundless. Further, given the relationship between CPH and MAFCO, there can be no question that information that is available to MAFCO is also available to CPH. Pursuant to Rule 1.340, CPH is obligated to “furnish the information available to that party.”

6. Morgan Stanley's request for information regarding CPH and MAFCO's financial sophistication is entirely appropriate. CPH's Complaint alleges claims for fraudulent and negligent misrepresentation. An essential element of misrepresentation is justifiable “reliance.” See, e.g., Stow v. National Merchandise Co., 610 So. 2d 1378, 1382 (Fla. 1st DCA 1992) (fraudulent misrepresentation requires plaintiff to show it acted in reliance upon the representation). CPH's Complaint alleges that it “reasonably” and “justifiably” “relied” on Morgan Stanley in connection with the acquisition transaction. (See May 8, 2003 Complaint ¶ 82 (“CPH reasonably and justifiably relied upon Morgan Stanley’s representations concerning Sunbeam.”), ¶ 95 (“CPH justifiably relied, on the information provided by Morgan Stanley.”).) By making these allegations and bringing these claims, CPH has placed its alleged “reliance” on Morgan Stanley, and the “reasonableness” of that alleged reliance, squarely at issue. CPH’s experience and sophistication in financial investments and transactions of this sort bear directly on the issue of its “reasonable reliance” in this context. See Hillcrest Pac. Corp. v. Yamamura, 727 So. 2d 1053, 1057 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999) (noting sophistication of party in affirming dismissal of fraud claim); Chateau Communities, Inc. v. Ludtke, 783 So. 2d 1227, 1230 (Fla. 5th DCA 2001) (fraud claims are “factually distinct and require[] proof of matters individual to each plaintiff, such as proof of reasonable reliance and damages.”).

7. For example, CPH claims that CPH and MAFCO personnel were somehow “induced” into entering into the acquisition by a press release that contains numerous “Cautionary Statements” expressly warning investors against relying on “forward looking statements” contained in the press release, and cautioning that “actual results could differ materially” from those contained in the release. Morgan Stanley is entitled to rebut these ridiculous assertions by -- among other things -- showing that MAFCO and its principals are highly sophisticated investors; that they routinely engage in high-stakes merger and acquisition transactions; that they are highly-educated consumers of financial information; that they are advised and counseled by their own army of sophisticated lawyers, accountants, and investment bankers; that they make investment and financial decisions based on in-depth analysis and consideration of financial information (and not simply press releases); and that they have the financial competence, sophistication, and resources to conduct their own independent analysis of financial information presented to them during negotiations.

8. CPH's objection to divulging this so-called "personal" information is similarly unfounded. There is a Protective Order in place in this case that protects sensitive information disclosed by the parties during discovery. Moreover, CPH cannot have it both ways. CPH cannot simultaneously bring claims against Morgan Stanley and shield itself from disclosing relevant information. If CPH and MAFCO are squeamish about divulging this so-called "personal" information, CPH should not have brought this suit alleging that it "reasonably" and "justifiably" relied on Morgan Stanley's representations. Furthermore, MS & Co. is willing to accept alternative formulations of this request, as long as MS & Co. is able to discover information about CPH and MAFCO's investments that will allow MS & Co. to determine the reasonableness of CPH's alleged reliance in this case.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Morgan Stanley respectfully requests an order compelling CPH to respond to Morgan Stanley's Third Set of Interrogatories, Interrogatory No. 1.

IN AND FOR PALM BEACH
COUNTY, FLORIDA

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

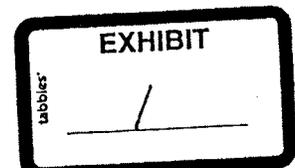

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S THIRD SET OF INTERROGATORIES TO PLAINTIFF COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.

Pursuant to the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280 and 1.340, Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co.") hereby requests that Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH") answer the following interrogatories and otherwise specify objections, if any, in accordance with the definitions and instructions contained herein.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. The connectives "and" and "or" shall be construed either disjunctively or conjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of the discovery request all responses that might otherwise be construed to be outside of its scope.
2. The use of the singular form of any word includes the plural and vice versa.
3. Each interrogatory should be answered separately and fully, unless it is objected to, in which event the reasons for the objections should be stated with specificity. The answers are to be signed by plaintiffs and the objections, if any, are to be signed by the attorney(s) making them. Where a complete answer to a particular interrogatory is not possible, the interrogatory should be answered to the extent possible and a statement should be made indicating why only a partial answer is given, the efforts made by you to obtain the information and the source from which all responsive information may be obtained, to the best of your knowledge or belief.

4. If it is claimed that information responsive to any interrogatory is privileged, work product, or otherwise protected from disclosure, state the nature and basis for any such claim of privilege, work product, or other ground for nondisclosure and identify: (a) the subject matter of any such information; (b) if the information is embodied in a document, the author of the document and each person to whom the original or a copy of the document was sent; (c) if the information was communicated orally, the person making the communication and all persons present at or participating in the communication; (d) the date of the document or oral communication; and (e) the general subject matter of the document or oral communication, within the time set forth in the agreed-upon order. Any part of an answer to which you do not claim privilege or work product should be given in full.

5. The term "identify" (with respect to documents) means to give, to the extent known, the (i) type of document; (ii) general subject matter; (iii) date of the document; and (iv) author(s), addressee(s) and recipient(s).

6. The term "identify" (with respect to persons) means to give, to the extent known, the person's full name, present or last known address, and when referring to a natural person, additionally, the present or last known place of employment. Once a person has been identified in accordance with this subparagraph, only the name of that person need be listed in response to subsequent discovery requesting the identification of that person.

7. When used in reference to a person other than a natural person, "identify" means: (a) to state its name; (b) to describe its nature (e.g., corporation, partnership, etc.); (c) to state the location of its principal place of business; and (d) to identify the person or persons employed by such entity whose actions on behalf of the entity are responsive to the interrogatory.

8. When used with respect to the identification of facts, acts, events, occurrences, meetings, telephone conferences or communications, "identify" means to describe with specificity the fact, act, event, occurrence, meeting, telephone conference, or communication in question, including, but not limited to: (a) identifying all participants in the fact, act, event, occurrence, meeting, telephone conference or communication; (b) stating the date(s) on which the fact, act, event, occurrence, meeting, telephone conference or communication took place; (c) stating the location(s) at which the fact, act, event, occurrence, meeting, telephone conference or communication took place; and (d) providing a description of the substance of the fact, act, event, occurrence, meeting, telephone conference or communication.

9. The terms "any," "all" and "each" shall be construed to mean "any," "all," or "each."

10. The term "including" shall be construed to mean "including but not limited to."

11. The present tense shall be construed to include the past and future tenses.

12. Unless otherwise indicated, these interrogatories request information for the period beginning January 1, 1996.

DEFINITIONS

1. "CPH" means Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and any of its officers, directors, former or present employees, representatives and agents.

2. "MAFCO" means MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. and any of its officers, directors, former or present employees, representatives and agents.

3. "MS & Co." means Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. and any of its officers, directors, former or present employees, representatives and agents.

4. The term "person" is defined as any natural person or any business, legal or governmental entity or association.

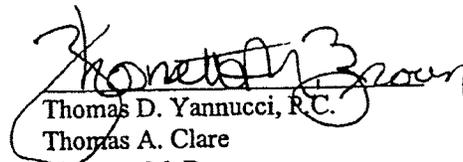

5. The terms "you" or "your" means "CPH" as defined in Definition 16.

INTERROGATORIES

1. State with particularity the 1997 and 1998 net worth, income, revenue and global holdings (including non-MAFCO holdings) of MAFCO, CPH, Ronald Perelman, Howard Gittis, and any other MAFCO or CPH employee who participated in the due diligence or financial review of Sunbeam's acquisition of the Coleman Company.

2. Identify all persons at CPH or MAFCO whose job responsibilities included, in 1997 or 1998, due diligence or financial review of proposed mergers and acquisitions, including a description of each person's educational and employment history, a description of any accounting or financial certifications or licenses held by such persons, and a description of any financial or business training they have had.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S RESPONSES AND OBJECTIONS TO DEFENDANT MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.'S
THIRD SET OF INTERROGATORIES

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys, and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280, 1.340 and 1.350, hereby responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") Third Set of Interrogatories ("Interrogatories") dated October 13, 2003 as follows:

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH incorporates by reference the Initial Objections set forth in its written response to Morgan Stanley's first set of interrogatories.

INTERROGATORY RESPONSES AND FURTHER OBJECTIONS

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: State with particularity the 1997 and 1998 net worth, income, revenue and global holdings (including non-MAFCO holdings) of MAFCO, CPH, Ronald Perelman, Howard Gittis, and any other MAFCO or CPH employee who participated in the due diligence or financial review of Sunbeam's acquisition of the Coleman Company.

RESPONSE: CPH notes that Interrogatory No. 1 constitutes multiple separate interrogatories. CPH objects to Interrogatory No. 1 as overbroad and not relevant to the litigation nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. CPH further objects to Interrogatory No. 1 because it seeks personal information about entities and individuals not party to this lawsuit, including Mafco, Ronald Perelman, Howard Gittis, and other individuals employed by Mafco or CPH.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Identify all persons at CPH or MAFCO whose job responsibilities included, in 1997 or 1998, due diligence or financial review of proposed mergers and acquisitions, including a description of each person's educational and employment history, a description of any accounting or financial certifications or licenses held by such persons, and a description of any financial or business training they have had.

RESPONSE: CPH notes that Interrogatory No. 2 constitutes multiple separate interrogatories. CPH objects to Interrogatory No. 2 insofar as it seeks information related to Mafco, a non-party to this lawsuit. CPH further objects to Interrogatory No. 2 as overbroad and as seeking information not relevant to the litigation nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence because Interrogatory No. 2 is not limited to individuals who performed due diligence concerning the transaction by which Sunbeam acquired CPH's interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. CPH further objects to Interrogatory No. 2 on the ground that it is vague, ambiguous, and overbroad insofar as it fails to define the term "due diligence" or otherwise identify with sufficient particularity the activities that might be encompassed by that term.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

ORDER ON PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR A PROTECTIVE ORDER TO BAR CERTAIN NON-PARTY DISCOVERY

THIS CAUSE came before the Court January 8, 2004 on Plaintiff's Motion for a Protective Order to Bar Certain Non-Party Discovery, with both parties well represented by counsel. In open Court Plaintiff's counsel stipulated that it will not call as a witness or offer any testimony at trial from an employee or affiliate of Plaintiff concerning whether Plaintiff breached a standard of care either in relying on representations from Defendant or in failing to perform, or retain others to perform, sufficient due diligence, prior to completion of the Coleman Transaction, as that term is defined in the subpoenas directed to non-parties Watchell, Lipton, Rosen and Katz ("Watchell, Lipton Subpoena") and Credit Suisse First Boston ("Credit Suisse Subpoena"). Based on the foregoing and the proceedings before the Court, it is

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Plaintiff's Motion for a Protective Order to Bar Certain Non-Party Discovery is Granted, in part, and Denied, in part. Defendant shall be entitled to receive only those documents requested in Paragraph 10 of the Wachtell Lipton Subpoena and paragraph 7 of the Credit Suisse Subpoena as if the subpoenas were amended by interlineation to insert "requests by Coleman, CPH, or any of either's affiliates or related entities to perform" immediately prior to "due diligence" and to delete "performed" in the first line thereof. Defendant shall not be entitled to receive any documents pursuant to paragraph 33 of the Wachtell Lipton Subpoena and paragraphs 18, 30, and 35 of the Credit Suisse Subpoena.

DONE AND ORDERED in West Palm Beach, Palm Beach County, Florida this 9 day of January, 2004.

MOTION FOR SPECIAL TRIAL SETTING

Plaintiff, COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC., by and through its undersigned attorneys, moves this Honorable Court for a special setting of the trial of the above-styled cause of action and a corresponding extension of pre-trial deadlines presently established in the Uniform Pre-Trial Order attached. In support of this Motion, the Plaintiff would show that the nature and anticipated length of the trial would require significant advance notice of the actual date of commencement of the trial. In addition, insufficient time is available between receipt of the attached Order and the deadlines imposed therein to permit timely and full compliance with the established filing deadlines

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff requests that this matter be re-set for trial approximately 90 days beyond its present setting with all pre-trial deadlines extended accordingly.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE AND OBJECTIONS TO DEFENDANT MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.'S
THIRD SET OF INTERROGATORIES

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys, and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280, 1.340 and 1.350, hereby responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") Third Set of Interrogatories ("Interrogatories") dated October 13, 2003 as follows:

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

CPH incorporates by reference the Initial Objections set forth in its written response to Morgan Stanley's first set of interrogatories.

INTERROGATORY RESPONSE

INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

Identify all persons at CPH or MAFCO whose job responsibilities included, in 1997 or 1998, due diligence or financial review of proposed mergers and acquisitions, including a description of each person's educational and employment history, a description of any accounting or financial certifications or licenses held by such persons, and a description of any financial or business training they have had.

RESPONSE:

Subject to and without waiving the Initial Objections, CPH states as follows: Review and analysis of available information relating to proposed merger or acquisition candidates is not the primary or sole function of either CPH, MAFCO or any CPH or MAFCO personnel. Furthermore, neither CPH nor MAFCO, during 1997-98, associated with any particular employee or job title any particular set of "job responsibilities." Finally, some MAFCO employees may have participated in the review or analysis of available information relating to one or more candidates during 1997-98 but not other candidates, for a variety of reasons. The following MAFCO employees generally participated in review or analysis of available information relating to one or more candidates during 1997-98:

Lorelei Joy Borland*
Terry C. Bridges*
Glenn P. Dickes*
Donald G. Drapkin*
Irwin Engelman*#
Norman J. Ginstling*#
Howard Gittis*
J. Eric Hanson
Anthony J. Ian
Robert I. Knibb
James R. Maher
William G. Nesbitt
Ronald O. Perelman
Joram C. Salig*
Paul G. Savas
Marvin Schaffer
Barry F. Schwartz*
Todd J. Slotkin
John A. Winkel
Gregory J. Woodland

In addition to the people previously identified, other MAFCO employees from time to time provided isolated information or performed isolated tasks with regard to particular transactions during 1997-98, but they were not involved generally in the process of review and analysis. Although it is impossible at this point to determine definitively from CPH and MAFCO records and employees who provided isolated information or performed tasks during 1997-98, those MAFCO employees may have included the following:

Gary L. Leshko*
Steven L. Fasman*
Lenny Ajzenman#
Laurence Winoker#

All of the people identified are college graduates. The people whose names are followed by a "*" are each admitted to practice law in at least one state. The people whose names are followed by a "#" are each licensed as a certified public accountant in at least one state. Ms. Borland and Messrs. Bridges, Drapkin, Gittis and Schwartz were all partners at law firms prior to working for MAFCO. Mr. Salig was an associate at a law firm prior to working for MAFCO.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S SECOND SET OF REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION

Pursuant to Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.370, Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") submits this second set of requests for admission to Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"). The specific requests are preceded by Instructions and Definitions which shall govern the specific requests. Morgan Stanley requests that Plaintiff answer, under oath, the following requests for admission in accordance with the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure, or within such shorter period as may be agreed by counsel, and submit them in writing to counsel for Morgan Stanley at the offices of Kirkland & Ellis LLP, 655 Fifteenth Street, NW, Suite 1200, Washington, DC 20005.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. The connectives "and" and "or" shall be construed either disjunctively or conjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of the discovery request all responses that might otherwise be construed to be outside of its scope.

2. The use of the singular form of any word includes the plural and vice versa.

3. If you cannot admit or deny a request for admission after making a reasonable inquiry and the information known or readily attainable by CPH is insufficient to enable CPH to admit or deny fully, so state and admit or deny to the extent possible, specifying your inability to answer the remainder; stating whatever information or knowledge you have concerning the unanswered portion; and detailing what you did in attempting to secure the information.

4. The terms “any,” “all,” and “each” shall be construed to mean “any,” “all,” or “each”.

5. The term “including” shall be construed to mean “including but not limited to.”

6. The present tense shall be construed to include the past and future tenses.

DEFINITIONS

1. “Advisors” means financial advisors, legal advisors, accountants, consultants, and any other third-party advising or assisting CPH, Coleman, or MAFCO (or any affiliate thereof) in any way with the Coleman Transaction.

2. “Coleman” means Coleman Company, Inc.

3. The “Coleman Transaction” means Sunbeam’s acquisition of Coleman Company, Inc. from CPH and all related communications, agreements, and transactions, including the February 27, 1998 Agreements and the March 30, 1998 closing.

4. “CPH” means Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and any of its officers, directors, former or present employees, representatives, and Advisors.

5. "February 27, 1998 Agreements" means (a) the Agreement and Plan of Merger dated February 27, 1998 between Sunbeam Corp., Laser Acquisition Corp., CLN Holdings, Inc., and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.; (b) the Agreement and Plan of Merger dated February 27, 1998 between Sunbeam Corp., Camper Acquisition Corp., and The Coleman Company, Inc.; and (c) all schedules, exhibits, and documents related to those Agreements.

6. "MAFCO" means MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. and any of its officers, directors, former or present employees, representatives and agents, and Advisors.

7. The term "person" is defined as any natural person or any business, legal or governmental entity or association.

8. "Sunbeam" means Sunbeam Corporation or any of its subsidiaries, divisions, predecessors, successors, present and former employees, representatives, and agents.

9. The term "Accounting Irregularities" refers to the accounting practices engaged in by Sunbeam during 1996, 1997, and the first quarter of 1998 that led to the restatement of Sunbeam's financial statements in October of 1998.

REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION

1. CPH retained Credit Suisse First Boston as its exclusive financial advisor for the Coleman Transaction.

2. Coleman retained Credit Suisse First Boston as its exclusive financial advisor for the Coleman Transaction.

3. MAFCO retained Credit Suisse First Boston as its exclusive financial advisor for the Coleman Transaction.

4. Credit Suisse First Boston had the ability in 1997 and 1998 to conduct a due-diligence investigation sufficient to detect Accounting Irregularities at Sunbeam.

5. Credit Suisse First Boston had the ability in 1997 and 1998 to conduct a due-diligence investigation sufficient to detect the falsity of the misrepresentations alleged in the Complaint.

6. CPH retained Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz as its legal advisor for the Coleman Transaction.

7. Coleman retained Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz as its legal advisor for the Coleman Transaction.

8. MAFCO retained Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz as its legal advisor in the Coleman Transaction.

9. Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz had the ability in 1997 and 1998 to conduct a due-diligence investigation sufficient to detect Accounting Irregularities at Sunbeam.

10. Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz had the ability in 1997 and 1998 to conduct a due-diligence investigation sufficient to detect the falsity of the misrepresentations alleged in the Complaint.

11. Any reasonable due-diligence investigation by Credit Suisse First Boston in the first quarter of 1998 would have been sufficient to detect Accounting Irregularities at Sunbeam.

12. Any reasonable due-diligence investigation by Credit Suisse First Boston in the first quarter of 1998 would have been sufficient to detect the falsity of the misrepresentations alleged in the Complaint.

13. Any reasonable due-diligence investigation by Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz in the first quarter of 1998 would have been sufficient to detect Accounting Irregularities at Sunbeam.

14. Any reasonable due-diligence investigation by Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz in the first quarter of 1998 would have been sufficient to detect the falsity of the misrepresentations alleged in the Complaint.

15. CPH did not ask Credit Suisse First Boston to perform a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

16. CPH did not ask Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz to perform a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

17. Coleman did not ask Credit Suisse First Boston to perform a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

18. Coleman did not ask Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz to perform a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

19. MAFCO did not ask Credit Suisse First Boston to perform a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

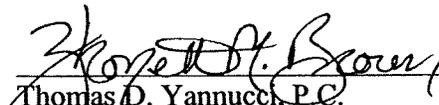

20. MAFCO did not ask Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz to perform a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

21. Credit Suisse First Boston did not conduct a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

22. Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz did not conduct a due-diligence investigation into Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998.

23. Neither CPH nor its attorneys are in possession of the letter alleged to have been faxed to Morgan Stanley from Arthur Andersen on March 17, 1998, as described in paragraph 56 in CPH's Complaint.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH
COUNTY, FLORIDA

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.,

Defendant.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S OPPOSITION TO COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS RELATING TO EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ("CPH") motion to compel the indiscriminate production of dozens of confidential personnel, compensation, and employment performance records from more than fifty Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") employees should be denied. Morgan Stanley has repeatedly attempted to resolve this discovery dispute with CPH and — indeed — already has offered to produce broad categories of employment-related documents responsive to CPH's requests. Unsatisfied with these efforts to compromise, CPH categorically rejected Morgan Stanley's good faith offers of production.

CPH's document requests are overbroad, would unnecessarily impair the effectiveness and confidentiality of Morgan Stanley's performance review process, and do not give appropriate consideration to the privacy concerns of current and former Morgan Stanley employees. For these reasons, CPH's requests are contrary to Florida law and should be denied.

1. CPH's Motion Is Moot As It Relates To Requests 45 and 46.

Morgan Stanley already produced documents in its possession responsive to CPH Request 45 on November 10, 2003 when it produced two manuals, entitled "Performance Evaluation 1997: Evaluator Guide" (MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 0082161-219) and "Performance Evaluation 1998: Evaluator Guide." (MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 0082062-160) These two manuals (totaling more than 150 pages) include comprehensive descriptions of Morgan Stanley's "performance evaluation criteria or guidelines" for 1997 and 1998. CPH's motion is therefore moot as to Request 45.

Similarly, with regard to CPH Request 46, Morgan Stanley has agreed to produce whatever 1997 and 1998 documents it might have concerning "compensation criteria or guidelines" for the Morgan Stanley divisions that performed work related to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman. (Feb. 17, 2004 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody (Ex. A).) CPH's motion is therefore moot as to Request 46.

2. CPH's Remaining Requests for Employee Personnel Files Are Overbroad, Unnecessarily Intrusive, And Thus Contrary to Florida Law.

With respect to CPH Request 44 (which seeks "all documents" relating to "employment contracts, performance evaluations, and/or personnel files" including "any documents" discussing "training, experience, competence, and accomplishments"), Morgan Stanley has already offered to produce the only categories of personnel file documents that are even remotely relevant to this action. Specifically, Morgan Stanley agreed to produce excerpts from employee personnel files addressing:

- all references (positive or negative) to work performed by the employee on Sunbeam-related engagements;
- all references (positive or negative) to the employee's performance in fee generation; and

- all references (positive or negative) to the employee's performance of due diligence activities.

(Sept. 25, 2003 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody (Ex. B).)

CPH never bothered to respond to Morgan Stanley's offer. Instead, more than four months later, CPH filed this Motion to Compel seeking the wholesale production of complete personnel files for more than 50 current and former Morgan Stanley employees. But these intrusive requests are improper and overbroad, as the overwhelming majority of the documents and information in those files are wholly irrelevant to this litigation and not reasonably calculated to lead to discovery of admissible evidence.

A. Florida Law Disfavors Indiscriminate Requests For The Wholesale Production Of Employee Personnel Records.

Florida courts have uniformly recognized the sensitivity and potential for misuse of information contained in employee personnel files — and have routinely refused to enforce blunderbuss requests for employers to produce complete, unredacted copies of employee personnel files.

In CAC-Ramsay Health Plans, Inc. v. Johnson, for example, the Third District Court of Appeal held that a request for complete personnel files is fatally overbroad. See CAC-Ramsay Health Plans, Inc. v. Johnson, 641 So. 2d 434 (3d DCA 1994). The Court held that the “production of the complete files ... would reveal extensive personal information which is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Clearly, some of those files do not contain information relevant to [the plaintiff's] claim.” Id. at 435.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal applies the same reasoning — and the same prohibition against wholesale requests for personnel files. Indeed, the Fourth District Court has held that a trial court “depart[s] from the essential requirements of law” when it requires “the production of the personnel files in toto.” Seta Corp. of Boca, Inc. v. Office of the Attorney General, Fla., 756 So. 2d 1093, 1094 (4th DCA 2000).

B. CPH’s Document Request Does Not Contain Any Meaningful Limitation To Relevant Issues.

CPH’s Request No. 44 does not — on its face — contain any relevancy limitation whatsoever. Apparently recognizing this fatal defect, CPH belatedly offers a “compromise.” But CPH’s proposed “compromise” — which demands the production of all documents containing “criticism” or “reprimands” (regardless of whether those “criticisms” or “reprimands” relate to work performed on Sunbeam-related matters or the performance of a task that is relevant to the issues in this case) — does not contain any meaningful limitation to the relevant issues. Instead, CPH’s proposed “compromise” is nothing more than an impermissible fishing expedition into MS & Co. employees’ confidential personnel files.

CPH’s proposed “compromise” involves narrowing Request No. 44 to the following three categories of personnel file documents:

- (1) Documents in employee personnel files that mention Sunbeam by name;
- (2) Documents in employee personnel files relating to fee generation; and
- (3) Documents in employee personnel files that “contain or concern criticisms or reprimands for work done by the relevant employees.”

(Aug. 28, 2003 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare (Ex. C); Feb. 11, 2004 CPH’s Mot. to Compel Prod. of Docs. Relating to Employee Performance at 2-3.) As noted above, Morgan Stanley has already indicated its willingness to produce the first two categories of documents. (Ex. B.) The only issue for the Court, therefore, is whether the third category of documents in CPH’s proposed “compromise” (“criticisms” and “reprimands”) is sufficiently tailored to the relevant issues in this case. The answer is clear. It is not.

As an initial matter, unless the request for “criticisms” or “reprimands” is limited to subjects relevant to the litigation, CPH’s proposed “compromise” to limit Request No. 44 is meaningless. Indeed, without a subject-matter limitation, virtually every negative entry in an employee’s personnel file (no matter how casual the reference or how unrelated to work activities relevant to this action) could be considered a “criticism” or “reprimand.” Like many companies, Morgan Stanley asks reviewers to identify the “strengths” and “weaknesses” of employees in particular categories, and to suggest areas where improvement might be warranted. Under CPH’s approach, every “weakness” and performance area identified for improvement would constitute a “criticism” that would need to be reviewed and produced.

CPH’s request for all “criticisms” and “reprimands” also is hopelessly overbroad, sweeping within its ambit a broad range of potentially embarrassing (but ultimately irrelevant) information in employment files. For example, under CPH’s formulation, even minor “criticisms” and “reprimands” would need to be produced, including those relating to minor employment offenses such as excessive tardiness, unauthorized absences, or excessive personal phone or Internet usage. Clearly, that is not what the Florida District Courts of Appeal had in mind when they cautioned trial courts against requiring the production of confidential personnel documents unrelated to plaintiffs’ claims.

Rather than produce confidential personnel documents reflecting generalized “weaknesses” and irrelevant “criticisms” or “reprimands” concerning unrelated employment activities, Morgan Stanley reasonably offered to produce all “criticisms” and “reprimands” related to the performance of due diligence — the issue that lies at the heart of CPH’s Complaint in this case. (Ex. B.) In addition, to the extent that such entries exist, Morgan Stanley is willing to produce excerpts of personnel files that constitute “criticisms” or “reprimands” relating to an individual employee’s honesty.

CPH’s position — that simply by alleging “negligence” it may pry into every “criticism” or “reprimand” in more than fifty employee personnel files — is untenable. In the context of personnel files, the Florida Supreme Court has explained that “[e]ven though the scope of discovery is broad, [the request for personnel file documents] must be relevant to issues properly framed by the pleadings in the litigation.” Alterra Healthcare Corp. v. Estate of Shelley, 827 So. 2d 936, 946 (Fla. 2002). Here, CPH’s Complaint alleges claims for fraud and negligent misrepresentation. These claims, as interpreted by CPH’s counsel, require proof that (1) “[Morgan Stanley] actually knew about Sunbeam’s fraudulent accounting and negligently failed to disclose what it new [sic]” or (2) that “[Morgan Stanley] negligently failed to discover the fraud.” (Jan. 8, 2004 CPH Hearing Hand-up Ex. D.) To be relevant, therefore, any “criticism” or “reprimand” must relate to the truthfulness of the employee in the first scenario, or the performance of due diligence by the employee in the second. That is precisely the information Morgan Stanley has offered to produce. This compromise correctly balances the relevance and privacy interests inherent in the release of information from personnel files.

C. CPH’s Overbroad Request Would Impermissibly And Unnecessarily Invade The Privacy Of More Than Fifty Morgan Stanley Employees.

In CAC-Ramsay Health Plans, the District Court of Appeal recognized the dangers of requiring employers to produce confidential personnel file documents — i.e. the indiscriminate production of “extensive personal information” unrelated to the subject of the litigation. CAC-Ramsay Health Plans, 641 So. 2d at 435. Here, that danger exists for more than fifty current and former Morgan Stanley employees — many of whom played only a minor role in Morgan Stanley’s Sunbeam-related engagements, and the vast majority of whom had no contact whatsoever with CPH during the negotiations leading to the acquisition transaction described in the pleadings.

Quite apart from the unnecessary invasion of privacy of individual current and former Morgan Stanley employees, the indiscriminate disclosure of confidential personnel file information would undermine the integrity and effectiveness of Morgan Stanley's review process. Like many companies, Morgan Stanley utilizes an anonymous "360 degree" review process in which employees are reviewed (anonymously) by supervisors and subordinates alike. Requiring Morgan Stanley to produce the "criticisms" of heretofore "anonymous" reviewers creates the very real possibility that the "anonymous" nature of Morgan Stanley's review process (which is designed to encourage candor in reviews) will be destroyed as its employees are confronted — in depositions and elsewhere — with the negative remarks of their co-workers. CPH's overbroad requests, which are not limited to Sunbeam-related references or the performance of relevant tasks, do not justify this unwarranted disruption of Morgan Stanley's review process.

CPH's citation of Alterra Healthcare Corp. is misleading. The Alterra Court specifically held that "the trial court should fully consider the employees' alleged privacy interest — in the context of determining the relevancy of any discovery request which implicates it." Alterra Healthcare Corp., 827 So. 2d at 947. Here, Morgan Stanley is not seeking to block production of relevant, discoverable information based solely on the privacy rights of its current and former employees. Rather, Morgan Stanley seeks to prevent CPH from indiscriminately seeking broad categories of irrelevant (but highly confidential) employee personnel file information without the required connection to a relevant issue in this case.

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, CPH's Motion to Compel Production of Documents Relating to Employee Performance should be denied. At a minimum, however, CPH's requests for production should be limited to the categories of documents that Morgan Stanley has agreed to produced, an limited to the relevant time period of 1997 and 1998.

Dear Mike:

I write in regard to Request No. 46 of CPH's First Request for Production. Morgan Stanley agrees to produce any documents it may have concerning 1997 or 1998 "compensation criteria or guidelines" for the Morgan Stanley division that performed work related to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman. This request will therefore not need to be addressed during the February 19, 2004 hearing on the Motion To Compel Production of Documents Relating to Employee Performance.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.
MSSF v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. et al.

Dear Mike:

I write in response to your September 18 letter regarding employee personnel files. Because of Hurricane Isabel and the closure of our D.C. office, I did not receive your letter until the office reopened on September 22.

CPH's document requests on these issues (even as narrowed in your August 28, 2003 letter) are overbroad and seek sensitive personal information that is neither relevant to the subject matter of the litigation nor reasonably likely to lead to the discovery of relevant information. Even with the protective order in place, the blunderbuss approach suggested by your letter would result in the disclosure of broad categories of irrelevant personal information -- and an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of the employees involved.

With regard to employee personnel files, we are willing to produce, with respect to employees directly involved in Sunbeam related engagements, redacted copies of the personnel files that will allow you to see: (1) all references (positive or negative) to work performed by the employee on Sunbeam-related engagements; (2) all references (positive or negative) to the employee's performance in fee generation; and (3) all references (positive or negative) to the employee's performance of due diligence activities. If this compromise approach is acceptable, we will begin to prepare the documents for production.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
*Morgan Stanley Senior Funding v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al.

Dear Tom:

I write in an attempt to reach agreement on one outstanding discovery issue. In discovery requests to Morgan Stanley ("MS & Co.") and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ("MSSF"), CPH sought personnel and compensation documents relating to the individuals who worked on the Sunbeam transactions. MS & Co. and MSSF objected to these requests.

In an attempt to avoid bringing this matter to the Court, and without prejudice to later renewing our requests for the full scope of documents encompassed by our requests, we propose to limit Request 44 served upon MS & Co. and Request 69 served upon MSSF to those documents that are responsive to these requests and mention Sunbeam by name, relate to fee generation (or the lack of it), or contain or concern criticisms or reprimands for work done by the relevant employees. We continue to seek all documents responsive to Requests 45 and 46 upon MS & Co. and Requests 71 and 72 upon MSSF, which are more general in nature.

Please reconsider your objections. If you do not do so by September 3, 2003, we will bring this to the attention of the Court.

Very truly yours,

Michael T. Brody

Exhibit D

NEGLIGENT MISREPRESENTATION

Issue: Was MS negligent in misrepresenting Sunbeam's financial condition to CPH

CPH proves its case only by establishing:

1. MS actually knew about Sunbeam's fraudulent accounting and negligently failed to disclose what it new

OR

2. MS negligently failed to discover the fraud

COMPARATIVE NEGLIGENCE

Issue: Was CPH negligent

1. In choosing to rely on MS without conducting its own due diligence

OR

2. In conducting an inadequate due diligence investigation

MS' CONTENTION

- "Entitled to fully explore the competence and sophistication of CPH's own paid legal and financial advisors"

Issue is not what CPH and its advisors had the capacity to do BUT WHAT THEY IN FACT DID.

MS Memo Page 2: "It is evident that CPH and its advisors conducted little or no due diligence of their own prior to closing the acquisition transaction with Sunbeam" (Defendant's emphasis)

CONFIRMS DEFENDANTS ARE NOT QUESTIONING OUR CAPACITY TO CONDUCT DUE DILIGENCE BUT RATHER OUR CHOICE TO RELY ON THEIR REPRESENTATIONS BASED ON THEIR DUE DILIGENCE.

It would be logically absurd for Plaintiff to argue that Wachtel Lipton or Credit Suisse were incapable of discovering fraud but MS could.

Our position must be that any reasonably prudent due diligence investigation would have detected the fraud and we reasonably relied upon MS to have conducted such an investigation.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH
COUNTY, FLORIDA

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant.

JOINT SUBMISSION OF THE PARTIES FOR FEBRUARY 20, 2004 CASE MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE

Pursuant to the Court's order of January 13, 2004, Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") and Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") hereby submit the following Joint Submission in advance of the February 20, 2004 Case Management Conference.

I. Agreed-Upon Statement Of Background And Procedural History

The following is the parties' agreed-upon summary of the two companion cases now pending before this Court. Although the two cases have not yet been consolidated for trial, in the interest of judicial economy, the parties agree that consolidation would be appropriate.

(Case No. 03 CA-005045 AI)

Background. This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which CPH sold its 82% interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Morgan Stanley served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the acquisition.

CPH's Complaint alleges claims arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy. CPH's Complaint has sought damages of at least $485 million and has reserved the right to seek punitive damages. Morgan Stanley denies the material allegations in CPH's Complaint and also denies CPH's entitlement to damages.

Procedural History. CPH filed its Complaint on May 8, 2003 (the "CPH Action"). Morgan Stanley filed its Answer on June 23, 2003 and, on June 25, 2003 filed its Motion to Dismiss Pursuant To Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.061 Or, In the Alternative, For Judgment On The Pleadings. The Court held a hearing on these motions on December 12, 2003. On December 15, 2003, the Court issued an Order denying both motions. On January 9, 2004, Morgan Stanley timely filed a Notice of Appeal regarding the denial of its motion to dismiss. See Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.130(a)(3)(A) (providing for interlocutory appellate review of non-final orders "concerning venue").

(Case No. 03 CA-005165 AI)

Background. This action arises out of the same series of financial transactions as the CPH Action. In 1998, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") and other lenders entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide senior secured financing to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and two smaller companies.

MSSF's Complaint alleges that, in the course of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, Defendants MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MAFCO") and CPH provided false information to MSSF about the “synergies” that Sunbeam would achieve from the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. MSSF alleges that Defendant’s inflated synergy projections caused Sunbeam to pay a higher price to acquire Coleman and consequently caused Sunbeam’s lenders (including MSSF) to make larger loans to finance the acquisition. MSSF’s Complaint alleges that it suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages when Sunbeam declared bankruptcy in February 2001 and defaulted on acquisition-related loans. MSSF has alleged claims for fraud and negligent misrepresentation, and has reserved the right to seek punitive damages. CPH denies the material allegations in MSSF’s Complaint and also denies MSSF’s entitlement to damages.

Procedural History. MSSF filed its Complaint against MAFCO and CPH on May 12, 2003 (the “MSSF Action”). The MSSF Action was initially assigned to Division AG. Because the MSSF Action and the CPH Action involve the same series of financial transactions and arise from a common set of operative facts, the parties agreed that the two cases are companion cases under Local Rule 2.009 and requested a transfer to Division AI, where the first-filed, lower numbered CPH Action was assigned. The motion to transfer was granted on June 9, 2003. Defendants CPH and MAFCO filed their Answer on June 25, 2003.

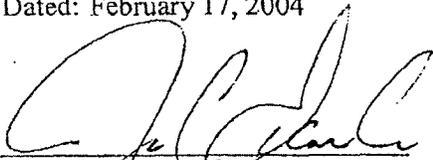

II. Report On Discovery In The Two Cases

CPH, MAFCO, Morgan Stanley, and MSSF are actively pursuing written and deposition discovery. The parties have exchanged hundreds of thousands of pages of documents, have served and answered multiple sets of interrogatories and requests for admission, and have deposed more than a dozen party and non-party witnesses. Discovery is ongoing in both cases.

III. Proposed Pretrial Schedule

The parties have conferred on the issue of a proposed pretrial schedule, but have been unable to agree. CPH's proposed schedule is attached hereto as Exhibit 1. Morgan Stanley's proposed schedule is attached hereto as Exhibit 2.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH
COUNTY, FLORIDA

CASE NO: 03 CA-005045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant.

ORDER SETTING PRETRIAL SCHEDULE AND DIRECTING PRETRIAL AND MEDIATION PROCEDURES

THIS CAUSE having come before the Court for a Case Management Conference on February 20, 2004, and having considered the issues and scheduling proposals tendered by the parties, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the parties shall comply with the following pretrial schedule and procedures:

TRIAL SCHEDULE

1. Jury Trial. This action shall be specially set for a three-week jury trial commencing on February 28, 2005 at 9:30 a.m..
2. Final Pretrial Conference. A final pretrial conference shall be held in this matter on February 21, 2005 at 9:30 a.m., at which time trial counsel for both parties shall appear and be prepared to discuss the Joint Pretrial Statement described in Paragraph 19 of this Order.

3. Trial Date, Final Pretrial Procedures, and Final Pretrial Conference Contingent Upon Disposition of Appeal. The trial date established by Paragraph 1 of this Order, the date for the Final Pretrial Conference established by Paragraph 2 of this Order, and the dates for the Final Pretrial Procedures established by Paragraphs 16 through 22 of this Order, shall depend upon the final disposition — prior to January 7, 2005 — of the interlocutory appeal filed by Defendant regarding Defendant's Motion to Dismiss Pursuant To Rule 1.061. Defendant shall notify the Court in writing promptly upon the disposition of the appeal. If Defendant's appeal has not been decided by January 7, 2005, the parties shall promptly file a joint status report and appear before the Court during Uniform Motion Calendar so that the trial date and the Final Pretrial Conference can be re-set. All other dates established by this Order shall not depend on the disposition of the appeal, and shall not be re-set or extended unless approved by the Court.

PLEADINGS

4. There shall be no motions to amend the pleadings or add additional parties after April 16, 2004 except with leave of Court for good cause shown.

CHOICE OF LAW

5. On or before May 28, 2004, each party shall file a brief (not to exceed 30 double-spaced pages) addressing the substantive state law that it contends should be applied by the Court to the claims then pending before the Court in the pleadings. Opposition briefs on the choice-of-law question (not to exceed 20 double-spaced pages) shall be filed no later than June 18, 2004. The Court shall hold a hearing on the choice-of-law question during a specially set hearing during the week of June 21, 2004, at which time the Court will decide the substantive state law to be applied to the parties' then-pending claims.

DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

6. Completion Of Fact Discovery. Fact discovery shall be completed on or before September 3, 2004. For purposes of this Order, "completed" shall mean that interrogatories, requests for production, and requests for admission must be served so that responses thereto will be due on or before September 3, 2004. All depositions shall be noticed and completed — and all subpoenae issued for discovery shall be returnable — on or before the completion date. All motions to compel further responses to discovery, including objections thereto, shall be filed no later than September 17, 2004, or shall be deemed waived.

7. Proponent Expert Disclosures. On or before August 6, 2004, any party having the burden of proof upon an issue as to which potential Florida Statute §§ 90.702, 90.703, or 90.705 evidence is expected to be offered shall identify the expert witnesses to be proffered upon such issues and provide, for each expert identified:

- (a) Name and business address;
- (b) The subject matter about which the expert will testify;
- (c) The substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert will testify;
- (d) A summary of the grounds for each opinion;
- (e) A copy of any written reports issued by the expert regarding this case;
- (f) A copy of the expert's curriculum vitae;
- (g) A list of all cases in which the expert has testified during the past five years;
- (h) A list of all produced documents relied on by the expert; and
- (i) Copies of all non-produced documents relied on by the expert.

8. Opponent Expert Disclosures. On or before September 3, 2004, any party intending to proffer an expert intended solely to respond to, contradict or rebut evidence on the same subject matter disclosed by another party pursuant to Paragraph 7 of this Order shall identify the expert witnesses to be proffered upon such issues and, as to each expert identified, provide:

- (a) Name and business address;
- (b) The subject matter about which the expert will testify;
- (c) The substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert will testify;
- (d) A summary of the grounds for each opinion;
- (e) A copy of any written reports issued by the expert regarding this case;
- (f) A copy of the expert's curriculum vitae;
- (g) A list of all cases in which the expert has testified during the past five years;
- (h) A list of all produced documents relied on by the expert; and
- (i) Copies of all non-produced documents relied on by the expert.

9. Completion Of Expert Depositions. All expert depositions shall be completed on or before September 24, 2004.

SUMMARY JUDGMENT AND OTHER PRETRIAL MOTIONS

10. Summary Judgment. Motions for summary judgment, and other motions that would potentially dispose of any claim or affirmative defense, shall be filed on or before October 22, 2004. Oppositions to motions for summary judgment shall be filed on or before November 12, 2004. Reply memoranda shall be filed on or before December 3, 2004. The Court shall hold a hearing on any motions for summary judgment during a specially set hearing during the week of January 10, 2005.

11. Motions In Limine / Motions Directed To Expert Testimony. All motions in limine, including all motions to exclude expert testimony intended to be introduced by either party, shall be filed on or before January 21, 2005. Oppositions to motions in limine shall be filed on or before February 2, 2005. The Court will hear argument on motions in limine during the Final Pretrial Conference on February 9, 2005.

MEDIATION PROCEDURES

12. Mandatory Mediation. All parties are required to participate in mediation pursuant to Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.700 et seq. Completion of mediation is a prerequisite to trial.

13. Mediator / Mediation Schedule. The parties shall agree upon on a mediator by December 3, 2004. If they are unable to agree, any party may apply to the Court for appointment of a mediator in accordance with Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.720(f). The mediation shall take place at a location and time convenient for all parties and counsel during the week of December 20, 2004. Plaintiff's counsel shall file and serve on all parties and the mediator a Notice of Mediation giving the time, place and date of the mediation and the mediator's name.

14. Mediation Statement. At least one week before the mediation conference, all parties shall submit to the mediator a mediation statement not to exceed 20 pages (double spaced) in length. The mediation summary shall remain confidential unless the submitting party chooses to provide it to opposing counsel.

15. Mediation Statements To Be Privileged And Confidential. All discussions, representations, and statements made at the mediation conference shall be privileged consistent with Florida Statutes §§ 44.102 and 90.408.

FINAL PRETRIAL PROCEDURES

16. Witness Lists and Trial Exhibits. No later than January 28, 2005, the parties shall exchange lists of all trial exhibits, names and addresses of all trial witnesses, including expert witnesses, rebuttal and impeachment witnesses. The parties exhibit and witness lists shall be specific; "catch-all" categories are prohibited.

17. Deposition Designations. No later than January 28, 2005, each party shall serve its designation of depositions, or portions of depositions, that it intends to offer as testimony during its case-in-chief. No later than February 4, 2005, each opposing party shall serve its counter-designations to portions of designations, together with objections to the depositions, or portions thereof, originally designated. No later than February 9, 2005, each party shall serve its objections to counter designations served by an opposing party.

18. Meet-And-Confer. On or before February 9, 2005, trial counsel for the parties shall meet-and-confer to (a) discuss settlement; (b) attempt to simplify the issues for trial by stipulating, in writing, to as many facts and issues as possible; and (c) prepare a Pretrial Stipulation that complies with Paragraph 19 of this Order; and (d) list all objections to trial exhibits.

19. Joint Pretrial Statement. It shall be the duty of counsel for the Plaintiff to see that the Joint Pretrial Statement is drawn, executed by counsel for all parties, and filed with the Clerk no later than February 14, 2005. Unilateral Pretrial Statements are disallowed, unless approved by the Court, after notice and hearing showing good cause. Counsel for all parties are charged with good faith cooperation in the preparation of the Joint Pretrial Statement, which shall contain, in separately numbered paragraphs:

- (a) A list of all pending motions requiring action by the Court;
- (b) Stipulated facts that require no proof at trial, and which may be read to the jury;
- (c) A statement of all issues of fact for determination at trial;
- (d) A statement of all issues of law for determination by the Court;
- (e) Each party's numbered list of trial exhibits with specific objections thereto;
- (f) Each party's numbered list of trial witnesses, including a statement of whether each witness will be offered through live testimony or by deposition, together with any objections thereto;
- (g) Each party's deposition designations and counter-designations pursuant to Paragraph 17 of this Order;

- (h) A statement of estimated trial time;
- (i) Names of the attorneys who will try the case;
- (j) Number of peremptory challenges per party.

Failure to file the Joint Pretrial Statement or a Court-Approved Unilateral Stipulation as above provided may result in the case being stricken from the Court's Calendar or other sanctions.

20. Additional Exhibits, Witnesses Or Objections. At trial, the parties shall be strictly limited to exhibits and witnesses disclosed and objections reserved in the Joint Pretrial Statement prepared in accordance with Paragraph 19 of this Order, absent agreement specifically stated in the Joint Pretrial Statement or order of the Court upon good cause shown. Failure to reserve objections in the Joint Pretrial Statement shall constitute a waiver. A party desiring to use an exhibit or witness discovered after counsel have conferred pursuant to Paragraph 18 of this Order shall immediately furnish the Court and other counsel with a description of the exhibit or with the witness' name and address and the expected subject matter of the witness' testimony, together with the reason for the late discovery of the exhibit or witness. Use of the exhibit or witness may be allowed by the Court for good cause shown or to prevent manifest injustice.

21. Pre-marking Exhibits. Prior to trial, each party shall meet with and assist the clerk in marking for identification all exhibits, as directed by the clerk.

22. Jury Instructions. A trial by jury has been demanded. Proposed typewritten jury instructions, with authorities in support thereof, shall be delivered to the Clerk on or before the Final Pretrial Conference on the first day of trial.

CPH'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S FIFTH REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280 and 1.350, hereby responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") Fifth Request for Production of Documents to Plaintiff ("Requests for Production") dated January 30, 2004:

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH objects to the Requests for Production, including all Definitions and Instructions, to the extent that they purport to impose upon CPH any requirements that exceed or are inconsistent with the requirements of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable rule or court order. For example, CPH will not comply with Instructions Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 16 or Definition No. 4 to the extent that they purport to impose on CPH obligations that are not required by Florida rules and case law. CPH will comply with the applicable rules and law.

2. CPH objects to the Requests for Production to the extent that they seek the production of any documents or information protected from discovery by reason of the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege, doctrine, immunity, or rule. CPH reserves the right to assert any and all privileges to which CPH is entitled under the law. CPH will provide a log of documents withheld from production on the basis of the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege, doctrine, immunity, or rule.

3. CPH objects to the extent that any Request for Production seeks documents that are in the public domain and accessible to all parties. In responding to the Requests for Production, CPH will produce publicly available documents to the extent that copies exist in CPH's files of otherwise non-public information responsive to these requests.

4. CPH objects to the definition of "CPH" and "You" to the extent that it includes CPH's counsel in this litigation. CPH interprets these definitions to exclude Jenner & Block LLP and Searcy Denney Scarola Barnhart & Shipley P.A., and their respective attorneys.

5. By stating that CPH will produce documents responsive to a particular document request, CPH does not represent that any such documents exist. Rather, CPH is responding that to the extent such documents are located, they will be produced.

6. By stating that CPH will produce responsive documents, CPH does not concede the relevance of any of the produced documents to the subject matter of this litigation or to the admissibility of those documents at trial.

7. CPH's objections and responses are based on a good-faith search for documents within CPH's possession, custody, and control. CPH expressly reserves the right to amend and/or modify its objections and responses.

8. CPH responds to Morgan Stanley's document requests without waiving the Initial Objections. CPH incorporates, as though fully set forth therein, these Initial Objections into each of the Responses and Objections set forth below.

RESPONSES AND FURTHER OBJECTIONS

REQUEST NO. 1: All documents concerning any instructions, guidelines, rules, bylaws or other guidance or direction provided by Coleman, Coleman Worldwide Corp., CLN Holdings Inc., CPH, New Coleman Holdings, MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc., Mafco Holdings, Inc. and any other entity owed [sic] directly or indirectly by Mafco Holdings, Inc. which also had a direct or indirect ownership interest in Coleman to the respective members of their Board of Directors.

RESPONSE: CPH objects to this request on the grounds that it is ambiguous, overbroad, and seeks documents that are not relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiving these objections and the foregoing Initial Objections, CPH will produce documents responsive to this request.

REQUEST NO. 2: All documents concerning any compensation provided by Coleman, Coleman Worldwide Corp., CLN Holdings, Inc., CPH, New Coleman Holdings, MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc., Mafco Holdings, Inc. and any other entity owed [sic] directly or indirectly by Mafco Holdings, Inc. which also had a direct or indirect ownership interest in Coleman to the respective members of their Board of Directors.

RESPONSE: CPH objects to this request on the grounds that it is ambiguous, overbroad, and seeks documents that are not relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiving these objections and the foregoing Initial Objections, CPH will produce documents responsive to this request.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that a true and correct copy of the foregoing has been served by facsimile and mail to all counsel on the attached Service List, this 1st day of March, 2004.

MORGAN STANLEY SENIOR FUNDING INC.'S AMENDED RESPONSES AND OBJECTIONS TO DEFENDANT COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDING INC.'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES

Plaintiff Morgan Stanley Senior Funding Inc. ("MSSF"), by its attorneys, and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280 and 1.340, hereby amends its responses and objections to Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ("CPH") First Set of Interrogatories as follows:

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Identify with particularity all alleged misrepresentations by CPH and/or Mafco that intends to rely upon at trial, and state, with respect to each such alleged statement, the date and time the alleged misrepresentation was made; the document, setting, or circumstances in which the alleged misrepresentation was made; the individual(s) who made the alleged misrepresentation; the exact wording of the alleged misrepresentation; and all reasons why MSSF believes the alleged misrepresentation was false when it was made.

RESPONSE: MSSF objects to Interrogatory No. 2 as a premature contention interrogatory that would be more appropriate after further discovery has been conducted. Indeed, the full extent of Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s ("CPH") and MacAndrews and

Forbes Holdings, Inc.'s ("MAFCO") fraudulent scheme is still being investigated and pursued through discovery at this point. MSSF further notes that Defendant's Interrogatory No. 2 constitutes at least six separate requests. Subject to and without waving its general and specific objections, MSSF provides the following response:

MAFCO and its wholly-owned subsidiary, CPH, provided Sunbeam and its lenders with a series of false information about the "synergies" that Sunbeam could expect to achieve from an acquisition of Coleman. MAFCO and CPH carried out this concerted scheme to defraud MSSF and other lenders during the negotiation and due diligence phases associated with Sunbeam's proposed acquisition of Coleman. MAFCO and CPH knew or should have known that, unless the proposed acquisition of Coleman would create substantial synergies, Sunbeam would either refuse to acquire Coleman or insist on paying significantly less for Coleman than what MAFCO and CPH expected to receive, thereby preventing MAFCO and CPH and their respective senior management teams from receiving a windfall premium on their shares of Coleman stock. MAFCO and CPH thus endeavored to convince Sunbeam and its financial team that most, if not all, of the financial difficulties experienced by Coleman could be offset by merging its operations with those of Sunbeam, knowing that such representations would greatly increase Coleman's acquisition value.

As part of this illicit campaign, MAFCO and CPH made a series of false statements to Sunbeam and its financial team (including MSSF) regarding the post-closing synergies that Sunbeam would achieve annually if it proceeded with the proposed acquisition of Coleman. Specifically, throughout the negotiations, MAFCO and CPH repeatedly and falsely represented that the acquisition would result in post-closing synergies of $150.5 million per year.

MAFCO and CPH presented these fraudulent synergy representations to Sunbeam and MSSF verbally and in writing during the negotiations leading up to the acquisition.

On or about December 12, 1997, Sunbeam and Coleman representatives held a meeting at MAFCO's offices in New York to discuss the Coleman acquisition and the benefits that would accrue to Sunbeam if the deal went forward. This meeting was attended by, among others, Jerry W. Levin, Coleman's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Joseph P. Page, Coleman's Chief Financial Officer, and Paul E. Shapiro, Coleman's General Counsel. Representatives of Sunbeam included Russell A. Kersh, Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer, David C. Fannin, Sunbeam's Chief Legal Officer, and Peter Langerman, a director of Sunbeam and representative of its then-largest shareholder, Franklin Mutual Advisors, Inc. Coleman's financial advisors were also present for the meeting.

During this meeting, CPH and MAFCO representatives provided Sunbeam with a detailed written schedule identifying 15 different areas of synergies between Sunbeam and Coleman, predicting that the acquisition would result in post-closing synergies totaling $150.5 million per year. To maintain the credibility of this representation, CPH and MAFCO's written schedule included detailed synergy figures for each of the 15 areas of purported synergies, and a detailed "build-up" of these 15 areas totaling $150.5 million:

#	Purported Synergy	Amount
1	"Transfer BBQ License"	$13 million
2	"Synergies re CG BBQ"	$1.5 million
3	"Corporate Staff"	$15 million
4	"International Group Staff"	$2 million
5	"Latin America Staff"	$2 million
6	"[Coleman] Europe Network Sells [Sunbeam] Products"	$20 million
7	"[Coleman] Japan Network Sells [Sunbeam] Products"	$5 million
8	"Factory Outlet Staff"	$1 million
9	"S Catalytic Appliance Line"	$ 2 million
10	"Consolidate Division HQ To [Del Ray Beach, FL]"	$33 million
11	"Consolidate Domestic Salesforces"	$20 million
12	"Eliminate $20 million Oracle Expense"	$6.5 million
13	"Additional $25M Writeoffs"	$8.5 million
14	"Global Sourcing Raw Materials"	$10 million
15	"Consolidation Logistics & Warehousing"	$10 million
	Total:	$150.5 million
		Operating Income

In the course of the December 12, 1997 meeting, agents and representatives of CPH and MAFCO verbally supplemented and affirmed the synergy figures contained in this schedule by providing additional information and detail about each of the fifteen line-items. These verbal representations purported to confirm the facts built into each figure and affirmed that the total calculation of $150.5 million was a fair and prudent estimate of synergies to be gained annually from Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

Thereafter, as the negotiation of the Coleman acquisition progressed, CPH and MAFCO repeatedly and consistently vouched for the $150.5 million figure represented in their December 12, 1997 synergy schedule, as well as the factual basis from which that figure was purportedly derived. Defendants repeated these false synergy representations during negotiations leading up to the Coleman acquisition.

Specifically, on or about January 29, 1998, representatives of Sunbeam and Coleman held another meeting at MAFCO's New York offices to discuss the proposed acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, to update the parties' discussions of synergies from the December 12, 1997 meeting, and to discuss the benefits that would accrue to Sunbeam from the proposed acquisition of Coleman. Representatives from MS & Co. also attended the meeting on behalf of Sunbeam, including Tyrone Chang, Alex Fuchs, and Jim Stynes. Senior officials from the CPH and MAFCO, including MAFCO executives James Maher and William Nesbitt, attended the meeting on behalf of Coleman. (See also documents bearing the bates labels CPH1427188-97, MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 0033256-63, and MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 0027053-86).

During the January 29, 1998 meeting, the parties once again discussed synergies of the proposed acquisition. Once again, CPH and MAFCO' agents and representatives discussed, affirmed, and ratified the synergy information contained in their December 12, 1997 schedule. Specifically, CPH and MAFCO's agents and representatives affirmatively declared to both Sunbeam and MS & Co. that $150.5 million was the fair and prudent projection of annual synergies to be gained through Coleman's acquisition by Sunbeam.

The synergy figures presented by CPH and MAFCO were false. CPH and MAFCO knew — as Coleman's former CEO has since confirmed — that Coleman's $2.2 billion acquisition price was inflated by more than $1 billion on account of MAFCO's and CPH's false statements. CPH and MAFCO further knew — as Coleman's former CEO has since confirmed — that annual synergy gains following Coleman's acquisition by Sunbeam could not reach $50 to $75 million per year, let alone $150 million. Despite this knowledge, and with a specific intent to defraud, CPH and MAFCO repeatedly and consistently doubled and/or tripled their estimated synergy figures in their representations to Sunbeam and MSSF in order to establish a premium price for Coleman that was twice what MAFCO and CPH knew Coleman to be worth.

MSSF's investigation is ongoing. MSSF may identify other misrepresentations, as well as further details with respect to the facts surrounding these misrepresentations, through discovery in this action.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION TO COMPEL CONCERNING E-MAILS AND OTHER ELECTRONIC DOCUMENTS

Pursuant to Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.380(a)(1), Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") respectfully requests that the Court direct Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") to: (1) search the information in their possession (including backup tapes and hard drives) for e-mail messages and other electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests for the period 1997-1998, and (2) produce within 14 days any e-mail and other electronic documents that are located. In support of this motion, CPH states as follows:

1. This motion is being brought because Morgan Stanley and MSSF refuse to retrieve and produce e-mail and other electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests. All of CPH's document requests have stated that Morgan Stanley's productions should include those materials. See, e.g., Definition No. 7 of CPH's First Document Request to Morgan Stanley (defining “documents” to include “computer tapes, computer drives or memories, computer diskettes or disks, e-mail, CD-ROMs, or any other tangible thing on which any handwriting, typing, printing, photostatic, electronic, or other form of communication or information is recorded or reproduced.” But in the tens of thousands of pages of documents that Morgan Stanley and MSSF have produced so far, there has been only a small handful of e-mail messages.

2. The apparent reason why Morgan Stanley has produced so few e-mail messages is because, until January 2001, Morgan Stanley had an internal policy of overwriting back-up tapes after one year thereby creating a substantial risk of deleting relevant e-mails. That internal policy was contrary to federal law, which requires regulated entities like Morgan Stanley to retain e-mail in a readily accessible fashion and for a longer period of time. As a result, the SEC, NASD, and the New York Stock Exchange launched an investigation into Morgan Stanley’s e-mail non-retention policy and Morgan Stanley ended up paying a $1.65 million fine.

Morgan Stanley’s Backup Tapes

3. Despite Morgan Stanley’s pre-2001 policy of overwriting backup tapes after one year, we have learned that Morgan Stanley still has backup tapes that likely contain e-mail messages from 1997-1998, the period in which many of the events relevant to this litigation took place. The backup tapes that likely contain those relevant e-mails are the tapes generated in connection with the earliest full backup that Morgan Stanley has performed. We are not certain of the precise number of tapes involved, but based on what Morgan Stanley has told us, we estimate that 25-100 back-up tapes must be searched. Morgan Stanley, however, has refused to attempt to retrieve responsive e-mail and other electronic documents from the backup tapes, despite the likelihood that such materials still exist.

4. In their interrogatory responses, Morgan Stanley and MSSF have identified 36 employees who worked on various aspects of the transaction whereby Sunbeam Inc. ("Sunbeam") acquired The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"). See Response Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 in Morgan Stanley's Responses to CPH's First Set of Interrogatories and Response Nos. 1, 4, 5, and 6 in MSSF's Responses to Defendants' First Set of Interrogatories. With respect to those 36 individuals, Morgan Stanley and MSSF should be required to search their backup tapes for e-mail and other electronic documents created during 1997-1998, the period when Morgan Stanley and MSSF were involved with Sunbeam and the Coleman transaction.

No Undue Burden Exists

5. Morgan Stanley has not disputed that our request for e-mail and other electronic documents seeks information that could lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. The only ground on which Morgan Stanley has objected to our request is undue burden. Specifically, Morgan Stanley has complained of the alleged burden involved both in retrieving e-mail and other electronic documents, and in reviewing the retrieved materials for responsiveness and privilege. Neither objection withstands scrutiny.

A. With respect to the alleged burden associated with retrieving e-mail, there is no indication that the burden would be undue or unfair. Based on our deposition of Morgan Stanley's Rule 1.310 representative, we know that Morgan Stanley backs up its e-mail several times a week and that, for the three-year period starting in January 2000, Morgan Stanley has about 40,000 backup tapes. We are not asking Morgan Stanley and MSSF to search all of those backup tapes. We are asking Morgan Stanley to search only the earliest full backup that they have — a search that will require a review of only a minuscule fraction of the tapes. Although CPH is not sure of the exact number of tapes involved, based on the total number of backups performed and the total number of tapes generated over a three-year period, we estimate that the number of tapes to be searched is probably in the range of 25-100.

The expense associated with that limited search cannot be great, and Morgan Stanley and MSSF should bear that cost entirely. Indeed, Morgan Stanley's Rule 1.310 witness acknowledged that the burden is limited: (a) if the date range of the backup to be searched is short, as is the case here, given that only the earliest full backup, which was performed on a single day or weekend, needs to be searched; and (b) if the number of employees' e-mail to be located is confined, as it is here, given that we are requesting e-mail for only 36 employees.

Nonetheless, if Morgan Stanley decides that it does not want to conduct the search itself at its own expense, then we propose that a mutually agreed-upon third party conduct the search, and split the cost evenly between Morgan Stanley/MSSF and CPH — with the understanding that the expense incurred by the prevailing party in connection with this discovery would be a taxable cost at the conclusion of this case. Given the choice we are proposing — Morgan Stanley can conduct the search itself at its own expense, or if Morgan Stanley so elects, a mutually agreed-upon third party can conduct the search and split the bill 50-50 — Morgan Stanley's objection to the burden associated with retrieving lost e-mail is not well-taken.

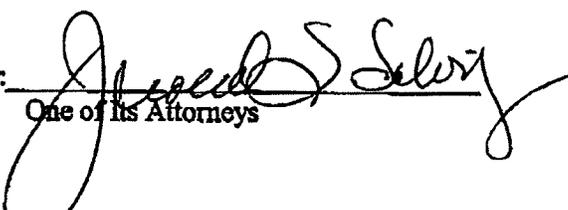

B. With respect to the alleged burden associated with reviewing the retrieved e-mail and other electronic documents, that is a baseless contention, because parties customarily bear their own costs when attorneys review materials for responsiveness and privilege. The review of retrieved e-mail and other electronic documents should not be dealt with any differently, especially given that Morgan Stanley has not shown that the review of the still-existing 1997-1998 e-mail and other electronic documents for the 36 employees involved would be unusual or onerous.

WHEREFORE, CPH requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley and MSSF to search the information in their possession (including backup tapes and hard drives) for e-mail messages and other electronic documents responsive to CPH's document requests, for the period 1997-1998, for the 36 individuals listed in Morgan Stanley's and MSSF's interrogatory responses. At the election of Morgan Stanley and MSSF, the search may be conducted by them at their sole expense, or by a third party mutually agreed-upon by the parties, with the resulting bill to be split evenly between Morgan Stanley/MSSF and CPH. CPH further requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley and MSSF to produce within 14 days any e-mail and other electronic documents that are located.

MORGAN STANLEY SENIOR FUNDING, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MACANDREWS & FORBES HOLDINGS, INC.,
Defendant(s).

MOTION TO COMPEL MORGAN STANLEY'S CONSENT TO THIRD PARTY PRODUCTION OF RESPONSIVE E-MAILS

Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") respectfully requests the Court to direct Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. (collectively, "Morgan Stanley") to consent to the production of e-mail documents responsive to a subpoena CPH served on Bloomberg, Inc. ("Bloomberg"). Bloomberg has in its possession e-mails sent or received by various Morgan Stanley employees who worked on the Sunbeam transaction and who used Bloomberg e-mail accounts. Bloomberg has advised CPH that Bloomberg will not produce the documents without Morgan Stanley's consent. Morgan Stanley, however, has limited its consent to preclude Bloomberg from producing all documents responsive to the subpoena. In further support of this motion, CPH states as follows:

Morgan Stanley Has Refused To Permit Bloomberg
To Produce All Documents Responsive To CPH's Subpoena

1. Throughout discovery in this case, CPH has attempted to discover e-mails sent or received by Morgan Stanley employees concerning the events at issue. In a deposition of Morgan Stanley taken pursuant to Florida Rule 1.310, Morgan Stanley disclosed that certain of its employees used e-mail services provided by Bloomberg, an independent company.

2. CPH thereafter subpoenaed Bloomberg to obtain copies of e-mails sent or received by the 36 individuals Morgan Stanley identified by name in response to interrogatories in this case as having worked on various aspects of the Sunbeam transaction. Of the 36 employees Morgan Stanley identified, 18 maintained Bloomberg e-mail accounts. Ten had accounts before January 1, 2000; the remainder opened their Bloomberg accounts after that date.

3. In response to CPH's subpoena, Bloomberg took the position that under federal law, Bloomberg was unable to produce responsive e-mail without the consent of Morgan Stanley. Specifically, Bloomberg contended that the Federal Electronic Communications Privacy Act prevented Bloomberg from disclosing the e-mails without Morgan Stanley's permission.

4. In response to the position taken by Bloomberg, CPH requested Morgan Stanley to consent to the disclosure of the e-mails.

5. In two material respects, Morgan Stanley has declined to consent to the disclosure of its employees' e-mails:

- First, Morgan Stanley has refused to consent to the disclosure of any e-mails sent or received after January 1, 2000;

- Second, Morgan Stanley has refused to consent to the disclosure of any e-mails concerning the employees that Bloomberg does not believe maintained Bloomberg e-mail accounts.

As shown herein, Morgan Stanley's refusal to consent to the disclosure of responsive e-mails by Bloomberg is unjustified.

Morgan Stanley's Refusal To Consent Is Unjustified

6. First, Morgan Stanley's refusal to consent to the production of e-mails sent or received after January 1, 2000 is unjustified. E-mails created after January 1, 2000 that refer to issues in this case, or which summarize or describe events concerning Sunbeam that took place at an earlier time, are plainly responsive. There is no basis for Morgan Stanley to prevent Bloomberg from producing those responsive documents.

7. An obvious example illustrates this point. To resolve a recent motion to compel, Morgan Stanley agreed to produce documents created after Sunbeam filed for bankruptcy in February 2001. Nonetheless, in refusing to grant consent for Bloomberg to produce e-mail that was created after January 1, 2000, Morgan Stanley has prevented Bloomberg from producing e-mails that Morgan Stanley itself has agreed to produce if those documents were in Morgan Stanley's files.

8. Morgan Stanley has attempted to justify its refusal to consent on the ground that the production CPH seeks would be burdensome. That claim is wholly unsubstantiated. Because the e-mails at issue are in the possession of Bloomberg, Morgan Stanley cannot describe, divine, or complain about any supposed burden involved in their production.

9. Moreover, the subpoena calls for Bloomberg to produce responsive documents. The only "burden" is of Morgan Stanley's own making. Morgan Stanley wants Bloomberg to produce responsive documents to Morgan Stanley, so that Morgan Stanley can review them before they are produced to CPH. We have no objection to Morgan Stanley undertaking a privilege review, if Morgan Stanley chooses to do so, but that is not a reason for Morgan Stanley to withhold its consent. Indeed, Morgan Stanley has gone further, asserting that it plans to conduct a review for responsiveness. There is no legitimate reason for Morgan Stanley to insert itself into the Bloomberg production for any such screening process.

10. Second, Morgan Stanley's refusal to consent to the production of any e-mails from 18 of its employees is unjustified. Morgan Stanley has refused to consent to the production of any e-mails from those 18 employees based on a representation from Bloomberg's counsel to Morgan Stanley that those individuals did not have Bloomberg accounts. If Bloomberg has no responsive documents concerning an individual named in the subpoena, Bloomberg will have no such documents to produce, regardless of Morgan Stanley's consent. That consent is relevant only if Bloomberg has responsive documents. By refusing to consent to the disclosure of documents, Morgan Stanley's action will stand in the way of Bloomberg producing documents responsive to CPH's subpoena, should they be found. CPH is entitled to know that Bloomberg has produced the documents it has, not simply the documents Morgan Stanley consents to having produced.

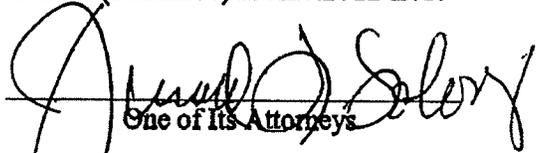

For the foregoing reasons, CPH respectfully requests that this Court direct Morgan Stanley to consent to the production -- without limitation -- to CPH of e-mail responsive to the subpoena CPH served upon Bloomberg.

IN THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH, COUNTY,
FLORIDA

CASE NO. CA 03-5045 AI

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,

Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,

Defendant(s).

CASE NO. CA 03-5165 AI

MORGAN STANLEY SENIOR FUNDING, INC.,

Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MACANDREWS & FORBES HOLDINGS, INC.,

Defendant(s).

RESPONSE AND OBJECTIONS TO MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S SIXTH REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS TO PLAINTIFF

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280 and 1.350, hereby responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") Sixth Request for Production of Documents to Plaintiff ("Requests for Production"):

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH objects to the Requests for Production, including all Definitions and Instructions, to the extent that they purport to impose upon CPH any requirements that exceed or are inconsistent with the requirements of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable rule or court order. For example, CPH will not comply with Instructions Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 16 or Definitions No. 9 to the extent that they purport to impose on CPH obligations that are not required by Florida rules and case law. CPH will comply with the applicable rules and law.

2. CPH objects to the Requests for Production to the extent that they seek the production of any documents or information protected from discovery by reason of the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege, doctrine, immunity, or rule. CPH reserves the right to assert any and all privileges to which CPH is entitled under the law. CPH will provide a log of documents withheld from production on the basis of the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege, doctrine, immunity, or rule.

3. CPH objects to the definition of "Coleman Transaction" because Morgan Stanley's definition mischaracterizes the transaction that closed on March 30, 1998 and because the definition is vague and ambiguous to the extent it includes "all related communications, agreements, and transactions." CPH will construe the term "Coleman Transaction" to mean the transaction by which CPH transferred its interest in The Coleman Company to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam").

4. CPH objects to the extent that any Request for Production seeks documents that are in the public domain and accessible to all parties. In responding to the Requests for Production, CPH will produce publicly available documents to the extent that copies exist in CPH's files of otherwise non-public information responsive to these requests.

5. CPH objects to the definition of "CPH" to the extent it includes CPH's counsel in this litigation. CPH interprets these definitions to exclude Jenner & Block LLP and Searcy Denney Scarola Barnhart & Shipley P.A., and their respective attorneys.

6. By stating that CPH will produce documents responsive to a particular document request, CPH does not represent that any such documents exist. Rather, CPH is responding that to the extent such documents are located, they will be produced.

7. By stating that CPH will produce responsive documents, CPH does not concede the relevance of any of the produced documents to the subject matter of this litigation or to the admissibility of those documents at trial.

8. CPH's objections and responses are based on a good-faith search for documents within CPH's possession, custody, and control. CPH expressly reserves the right to amend and/or modify its objections and responses.

9. CPH responds to Morgan Stanley's document requests without waiving the Initial Objections. CPH incorporates, as though fully set forth therein, these Initial Objections into each of the Responses and Objections set forth below.

DOCUMENTS TO BE PRODUCED

1. All documents that evidence the recognition of revenue or loss of CPH, MAFCO or affiliate company, and the tax treatment or consequences thereof from the sale of Coleman common stock to Sunbeam, including any recognition of revenue concerning the settlement with Sunbeam.

ANSWER: CPH objects to this request as overbroad, burdensome, and not reasonably calculated to call for the discovery of admissible evidence. Documents showing the recognition of revenue or loss by CPH, Mafco, or any affiliated companies, or the tax treatment and consequences thereof, are not relevant issues in this case and their production would require the disclosure of highly confidential information that has no bearing on the issues in this case. Moreover, CPH has not placed its tax treatment of the Coleman Transaction at issue, and Morgan Stanley has failed to show that documents relating to CPH's tax treatment of the Coleman Transaction are likely to provide information that is unavailable from other sources.

2. All documents concerning Scott Paper, including internal or third party analysis of its financial performance and acquisition by Kimberly-Clark.

ANSWER: Subject to and without waiving the foregoing initial objections, CPH will produce documents responsive to this request.

3. All documents concerning Albert Dunlap, including documents referring to his professional employment history.

ANSWER: Subject to and without waiving the foregoing initial objections, CPH will produce documents responsive to this request.

4. All documents concerning the issuance of private placement notes by Revlon Escrow Corporation in February 1998.

ANSWER: CPH objects to this request as overbroad, burdensome, and not reasonably calculated to call for the discovery of admissible evidence. CPH further notes that Morgan Stanley has taken the position in this case that documents relating to transactions other than the Coleman Transaction are not relevant and need not be produced.

5. All documents concerning any transaction contemplated or consummated between October 1, 1997 and March 30, 1998 by or among CPH, MAFCO, or any subsidiary or affiliate regarding Aames Financial Corporation, Bushnell, Day International, Golden State Bancorp, Gucci, Panavision, Timber REITs, or any other transaction contemplated or consummated between October 1, 1997 and March 30, 1998 where the value of consideration offered or received was expected to, or did, exceed $5 million.

ANSWER: CPH objects to this request as overbroad, burdensome, and not reasonably calculated to call for the discovery of admissible evidence. CPH further notes that Morgan Stanley has taken the position in this case that documents relating to transactions other than the Coleman Transaction are not relevant and need not be produced.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that a true and correct copy of the foregoing has been served by facsimile and mail to all counsel on the attached Service List, this 9th day of April, 2004.

JOINT SUBMISSION OF THE PARTIES FOR APRIL 16, 2004 CASE MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE

Pursuant to the Court's Order of February 24, 2004, the parties in the above-referenced action hereby submit the following Joint Submission in advance of the April 16, 2004 Case Management Conference.

I. Agreed-Upon Statement Of Background And Procedural History

The following is the parties' agreed-upon summary of the two companion cases now pending before this Court, which have been consolidated for trial.

(Case No. 03 CA-005045 AI)

Background. This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") sold its 82% interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the acquisition.

CPH's Complaint alleges claims arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy. CPH's Complaint has sought damages of at least $485 million and has reserved the right to seek punitive damages. Morgan Stanley denies the material allegations in CPH's Complaint and also denies CPH's entitlement to damages.

Procedural History. CPH filed its Complaint on May 8, 2003 (the "CPH Action"). Morgan Stanley filed its Answer on June 23, 2003 and, on June 25, 2003 filed its Motion to Dismiss Pursuant To Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.061 Or, In the Alternative, For Judgment On The Pleadings. The Court held a hearing on these motions on December 12, 2003. On December 15, 2003, the Court issued an Order denying both motions. On January 9, 2004, Morgan Stanley timely filed a Notice of Appeal regarding the denial of its motion to dismiss. See Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.130(a)(3)(A) (providing for interlocutory appellate review of non-final orders "concerning venue"). On February 20, 2004, the Court consolidated CPH's action against Morgan Stanley with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's action against CPH and MacAndrews & Forbes, Holdings Inc.

B. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al. (Case No. 03 CA-005165 AI)

Background. This action arises out of the same series of financial transactions as the CPH Action. In 1998, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") and other lenders entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide senior secured financing to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and two smaller companies.

MSSF's Complaint alleges that, in the course of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, Defendants MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MAFCO") and CPH provided false information to MSSF about the "synergies" that Sunbeam would achieve from the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. MSSF alleges that Defendant's inflated synergy projections caused Sunbeam to pay a higher price to acquire Coleman and consequently caused Sunbeam's lenders (including MSSF) to make larger loans to finance the acquisition. MSSF's Complaint alleges that it suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages when Sunbeam declared bankruptcy in February 2001 and defaulted on acquisition-related loans. MSSF has alleged claims for fraud and negligent misrepresentation, and has reserved the right to seek punitive damages. CPH denies the material allegations in MSSF's Complaint and also denies MSSF's entitlement to damages.

Procedural History. MSSF filed its Complaint against MAFCO and CPH on May 12, 2003 (the "MSSF Action"). The MSSF Action was initially assigned to Division AG. Because the MSSF Action and the CPH Action involve the same series of financial transactions and arise from a common set of operative facts, the parties agreed that the two cases are companion cases under Local Rule 2.009 and requested a transfer to Division AI, where the first-filed, lower numbered CPH Action was assigned. The motion to transfer was granted on June 9, 2003.

Defendants CPH and MAFCO filed their Answer on June 25, 2003. On February 20, 2004, the Court consolidated MSSF's action against CPH and MAFCO with CPH's action against Morgan Stanley.

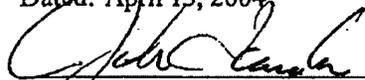

II. Report On Discovery In The Two Cases

CPH, MAFCO, Morgan Stanley, and MSSF are actively pursuing written and deposition discovery. The parties have exchanged hundreds of thousands of pages of documents, have served and answered multiple sets of interrogatories and requests for admission, and have deposed more than a dozen party and non-party witnesses. Discovery is ongoing in both cases.

III. Pretrial Schedule

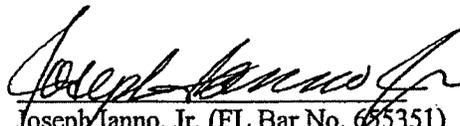

On February 24, 2004, the Court entered an order setting this matter for trial in January 2005, and on March 23, 2004, this Court entered an Agreed Order setting the pretrial schedule in this matter and scheduling trial to begin on January 18, 2005.

ORDER ON PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR A RULE TO SHOW CAUSE

THIS CAUSE came before the Court April 30, 2004 on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Motion for a Rule to Show Cause, with all parties well represented by counsel.

On July 31, 2003, the Court entered its Stipulated Confidentiality Order ("Order"). Paragraph 9 (b) of the Order limited dissemination of Confidential materials to counsel to the parties, including co-counsel of record for the parties actually assisting in the prosecution or defense of this litigation, and the legal associates and clerical or other support staff who are employed by such counsel or attorneys and are working under the express direction of such counsel or attorneys.

Paragraph 3 provided that

Litigation Materials [which includes Confidential materials] and the information derived therefrom shall be used solely for the purpose of preparing for and conducting this litigation, and shall not be disclosed or used for any other purpose.

By Order dated December 4, 2003, the Court required Coleman to disclose to Morgan Stanley & Co. its settlement agreement with Arthur Andersen, with limited information redacted. The agreement was designated as Confidential under the Order's terms.

On March 1, 2004 various Morgan Stanley entities, including Morgan Stanley & Co., acting under other than counsel of record here, filed suit against Arthur Andersen. Coleman claims that counsel in this case provided a copy of the settlement agreement to counsel for the Morgan Stanley entities in the Arthur Andersen litigation; that counsel in that case named Morgan Stanley & Co., the Defendant here, as a co-plaintiff; that Morgan Stanley & Co. does not have a colorable claim against Arthur Andersen; that Morgan Stanley & Co. was included as a co-plaintiff to trigger an indemnification obligation in the settlement agreement in order to apply pressure on Coleman in this case; that this constituted an impermissible "use" under the Order; and that Morgan Stanley may have provided the settlement agreement or information about its terms to third parties to induce them to sue Arthur Andersen and trigger the indemnification provision.

The Court determines that (i) the Order prohibited disclosure of the Confidential materials to counsel not actively representing the parties in the current litigation; (ii) there is a disputed issue of fact concerning whether counsel were representing Morgan Stanley & Co. in this litigation at the time the settlement agreement was disclosed; (iii) there is a disputed issue of fact concerning whether the contents of the settlement agreement may have been disclosed to third parties; and (iv) Morgan Stanley's alleged use may, depending on the facts developed, not be for a legitimate purpose. See In re: Dual-Deck Video Cassette Recorder, 10 F. 3d 693 (9th Cir. 1993).

Morgan Stanley's counsel argued that a Motion for Rule to Show Cause is procedurally improper; that Coleman should have filed a Motion for Contempt; and that if the Motion for Rule to Show Cause was deemed a Motion for Contempt, it should either be stricken as legally insufficient or denied, for lack of evidence.

The Court concludes that a Motion for Contempt is the proper procedural vehicle to challenge an alleged violation of an order where the movant seeks to compel compliance, not punish. See Trawick, Fla. Prac. and Proc., §27-6 (2004); JPG Enterprises, Inc. v. Viterito, 841 So. 2d 528 (Fla. 4th DCA 2003), rev. den. 855 So. 2d 621 (Fla. 2003); cf. Rule 3.840, Fla. R. Crim. P. The Motion, though, sufficiently places Morgan Stanley on notice of Coleman's contention that Morgan Stanley has violated the Order and the December 4, 2003 Order on Defendant's Motion to Compel Production of Settlement Agreement and its request that Morgan Stanley be held in contempt. It would be patently unfair to construe the Motion as a Motion for Contempt and deny it for lack of evidence presented at the April 30, 2004 hearing, when Morgan Stanley failed to raise the procedural defect in its Opposition to CPH's Motion for Rule to Show Cause.

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion for Rule to Show Cause is deemed a Motion for Contempt. Defendant's ore tenus Motion to Strike the Motion for Contempt is Denied. Either side may set the Motion for Contempt for an evidentiary hearing, once discovery is complete. The Court shall rule on the permissible scope of discovery as disputes arise.

DONE AND ORDERED in West Palm Beach, Palm Beach County, Florida this 14th day of May, 2004.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDING, INC.'S REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS CONCERNING ITS MOTION FOR CONTEMPT

Pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280 and 1.350 and the Court's May 14, 2004 Order, Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") requests that Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS & Co.") and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") produce the following documents, according to the following definitions and instructions, at the office of Searcy Denney Scarola Barnhart & Shipley P.A., 2139 Palm Beach Lakes Blvd., West Palm Beach, Florida, within (30) thirty days of service.

DEFINITIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS

1. The terms "documents" and "concerning" have the meaning ascribed to them in Plaintiff's [CPH's] First Request for Production of Documents.
2. "Arthur Andersen" means Arthur Andersen LLP; Andersen Worldwide, Société Coopérative; Arthur Andersen & Co. (Canada); Ruiz, Urquiza Y Cia, S.C.; Piernavieja, Porta, Cachafeiro & Avocados [Asociados]; Arthur Andersen (U.K.); Phillip Harlow; Lawrence Bornstein; William Pruitt; and/or Donald Denkhaus.

3. "Morgan Stanley Entities" means MS & Co., MSSF, Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co., and/or any entity owned in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, by Morgan Stanley.
4. "Settlement Agreement" means the settlement agreement between, inter alia, CPH and Arthur Andersen LLP, compelled to be produced and designated as Confidential by the Court on December 4, 2003.
5. CPH incorporates the instructions set forth in Plaintiff's [CPH's] First Request for Production of Documents.

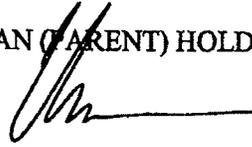

DOCUMENTS REQUESTED

1. All documents relating to (a) whether and when Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans P.L.L.C. ("Kellogg Huber") began representing MS & Co. and/or MSSF in the above-captioned consolidated litigation; (b) whether, when, and what information contained in the Settlement Agreement was disclosed to Kellogg Huber; and/or (c) the scope of responsibilities assumed by Kellogg Huber with respect to the above-captioned consolidated litigation.
2. All documents concerning why firms other than Kirkland & Ellis LLP and Carlton Fields were being retained in the above-captioned consolidated litigation.
3. All documents concerning why firms other than Kirkland & Ellis LLP and Carlton Fields were being retained to file suit against Arthur Andersen.
4. All documents relating to why Morgan Stanley Entities waited until March 1, 2004 to sue Arthur Andersen.
5. All documents relating to whether the contents of the Settlement Agreement, and/or any other material designated "Confidential," were disclosed to third parties.
6. All documents referring to any portion of the Settlement Agreement.
7. All documents relating to Morgan Stanley Entities' use of the Settlement Agreement.
8. All documents relating to Morgan Stanley Entities' purpose in using the Settlement Agreement.
9. All drafts of complaints by any Morgan Stanley Entities against Arthur Andersen, including all versions reflecting any handwritten comments or marginalia, and all documents reflecting when and/or by whom each draft and version was prepared.
10. All documents relating to any damages that MS & Co. seeks to recover in its claim against Arthur Andersen.

- 11. All documents referring to any advantages Morgan Stanley Entities hope(d) to obtain in the above-captioned consolidated litigation by suing Arthur Andersen.
- 12. All documents relating to, or that were a source of information used in preparing, any answers to the interrogatories served on March 19, 2004 and/or on May 28, 2004.
- 13. All documents, including all time sheets and billing records, reflecting time expended and/or the nature of services rendered by Kellogg Huber in either the above-captioned consolidated litigation and/or Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., et al. v. Arthur Andersen LLP, et al., No. 50-2004-CA-2257-xxxx-NB, from the inception of such services to and including March 1, 2004.

MORGAN STANLEY'S MOTION TO REMOVE CONFIDENTIAL DESIGNATION FROM INTERROGATORIES

Pursuant to Paragraph 14 of the July 31, 2003 Stipulated Confidentiality Order, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. (collectively "Morgan Stanley") respectfully request that this Court remove the confidentiality designation placed on Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s ("CPH") Further Interrogatories Concerning Its Motion For Contempt. In support of its motion, Morgan States as follows:

1. On May 28, 2004, CPH served Morgan Stanley with "Further Interrogatories Concerning Its Motion For Contempt." (May 28, 2004 CPH's Further Interrogs. Concerning Its Mot. for Contempt (Ex. 1) ("May 28 Interrogatories").)

2. The May 28 Interrogatories do not qualify for "Confidential" treatment under the July 31, 2003 Stipulated Confidentiality Order. Specifically, the May 28 Interrogatories do not contain, reveal or reflect "proprietary or confidential trade secrets or technical, business, financial or personnel information of a current nature,” as required by Paragraph 4 of the Stipulated Confidentiality Order. (July 31, 2003 Stipulated Confidentiality Order ¶ 4 (Ex. 2).)

3. The May 28 Interrogatories do not reveal any of the terms of the Settlement Agreement between CPH and Arthur Andersen, which was designated as “Confidential” by the Court in its December 4, 2003 Order. Indeed, the May 28 Interrogatories are substantially similar in scope and detail (and in some cases nearly identical) to the Interrogatories served by CPH on March 19, 2004, which were not designated as “Confidential.” (March 19, 2004 Notice of Propounding Interrogs. to Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. (Ex. 3); March 19, 2004 Notice of Propounding Interrogs. to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. (Ex. 4).)

4. Morgan Stanley requests that the “Confidential” designation be removed from the May 28 Interrogatories so that attorneys from the law firm of Kellogg, Huber, Hansen Todd & Evans P.L.L.C. (“KHHTE”) may assist in the preparation of objections and responses. KHHTE was retained by Morgan Stanley to be co-counsel with Kirkland & Ellis LLP in these consolidated actions. KHHTE also is counsel to Morgan Stanley in Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. v. Arthur Andersen LLP., No. 502004CA002257XXXXMB (15th Jud. Dist. Fla.) (Miller, J.). The May 28 Interrogatories request information regarding Morgan Stanley’s retention of KHHTE and the filing of Morgan Stanley’s lawsuit against Arthur Andersen, subjects that are within the (in some cases exclusive) knowledge of KHHTE and its attorneys.

5. On June 1, 2004, counsel for Morgan Stanley sent a letter to counsel for CPH requesting that CPH remove the “Confidential” designation from the May 28 Interrogatories. (June 1, 2004 Letter from T. Clare to M. Brody (Ex. 5).)

6. On June 4, 2004, CPH “declined” Morgan Stanley’s “invitation” to remove the confidentiality designations. (June 4, 2004 Letter from M. Brody to T. Clare (Ex. 6).)

For the foregoing reasons, Morgan Stanley requests that this Court remove the confidentiality designation placed on the May 28 Interrogatories.

STIPULATED CONFIDENTIALITY ORDER

The parties hereto hereby stipulate and agree to the following Confidentiality Order:

1. Scope of Order. This Order shall apply to all non-public and Confidential (as hereinafter defined) materials produced in this litigation and all testimony given in any deposition by any party to the litigation or by any person or entity that is not a party hereto (a "non-party"), to all non-public and Confidential information disclosed by any party hereto during the course of the captioned litigation and to all non-public information disclosed to any party hereto by any non-party in response to the service of a subpoena or notice of deposition on a non-party in connection with the captioned litigation ("Litigation Materials").

2. This Order shall not apply to any document, testimony or other information that (a) is already in a receiving party's possession at the time it is produced, (b) becomes generally available to the public other than as a result of disclosure in violation of this Order or in breach of any other legal obligation, or (c) becomes available to a party other than through voluntary or required production from a person or party who obtained the document, testimony or other information without any confidentiality restriction.

3. Litigation Materials and the information derived therefrom shall be used solely for the purpose of preparing for and conducting this litigation, and shall not be disclosed or used for any other purpose.

4. Any party or non-party may designate as "Confidential" any Litigation Materials or portions thereof which the party or non-party believes, in good faith, constitute, contain, reveal or reflect proprietary or confidential trade secrets or technical, business, financial or personnel information of a current nature. If a party or non-party produces Litigation Materials that have been produced in another litigation or to any government entity and such Litigation Materials have been designated confidential or were accompanied by a request that confidential treatment be accorded them, such Litigation Materials shall be deemed to have been designated "Confidential" for purposes of this Stipulation and Order.

5. Any documents or other tangible Litigation Materials may be designated as "Confidential" by marking every such page "Confidential" or by informing the other party in writing that such material is Confidential. Such markings will be made in a manner which does not obliterate or obscure the content of the document or other tangible Litigation Material. If Litigation Material is inspected at the choice of location of the party or non-party producing or disclosing Litigation Materials (a "producing party"), all such Litigation Material shall be presumed at such inspection to have been designated as Confidential by the producing party until such time as the producing party provides copies to the party that requested the Litigation Material. Production of Confidential Material for inspection and copying shall not constitute a waiver of confidentiality.

6. Depositions or other testimony may be designated "Confidential" by any one of the following means:

(a) stating orally on the record, with reasonable precision as to the affected testimony, on the day the testimony is given that this information is "Confidential"; or

(b) sending written notice designating, by page and line, the portions of the transcript of the deposition or other testimony to be treated as "Confidential" within 10 days after receipt of the transcripts.

7. The entire transcript of any deposition shall be treated as Confidential Material until thirty days after the conclusion of the deposition. Each page of deposition transcript designated as Confidential Material shall be stamped, as set forth in paragraph 5 above, by the court reporter or counsel.

8. In the event it becomes necessary at a deposition or hearing to show any Confidential Material to a witness, any testimony related to the Confidential Material shall be deemed to be Confidential Material, and the pages and lines of the transcript that set forth such testimony shall be stamped as set forth in paragraph 5 of this Stipulation.

9. Litigation Materials designated "Confidential" and any copies thereof, and the information contained therein, shall not be given, shown, made available or communicated in any way to anyone except:

(a) The Circuit Court of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida (the "Court") (including Clerks and other Court personnel). Litigation Materials designated "Confidential" and any copies thereof, and the information contained therein, that are filed with the Court or any pleadings, motions or other papers filed with the Court, shall be filed under seal in a separate sealed envelope conspicuously marked "Filed Under Seal – Subject to Confidentiality Order," or with such other markings as required by Court rules, and shall be kept under seal until further order of the Court. Where possible, only those portions of filings with the Court that disclose matters designated "Confidential" shall be filed under seal;

(b) counsel to the parties, including co-counsel of record for the parties actually assisting in the prosecution or defense of this litigation, and the legal associates and clerical or other support staff who are employed by such counsel or attorneys and are working under the express direction of such counsel or attorneys;

(c) parties and current officers and employees of parties to the extent reasonably deemed necessary by counsel disclosing such information for the purpose of assisting in the prosecution or defense of this litigation;

(d) outside photocopying, graphic production services, litigation support services, or investigators employed by the parties or their counsel to assist in this litigation and computer personnel performing duties in relation to a computerized litigation system;

(e) any person who is a witness or deponent, and his or her counsel, during the course of a deposition of testimony in this litigation;

(f) any person who is a potential fact witness in the litigation, provided, however, that a person identified solely in this subparagraph shall not be permitted to retain copies of such Litigation Material;

(g) court reporters, stenographers, or videographers who record deposition or other testimony in the litigation;

(h) experts or consultants retained in connection with the litigation;

(i) any person who is indicated on the face of a document to have been an author, addressee or copy recipient thereof, provided, however, that a person identified

solely in this subparagraph shall not be permitted to retain copies of such Litigation Material; and

(j) any other person, upon written consent from the party or person who designated such Litigation Materials "Confidential."

10. Before any person included in paragraph 9(f) or (h) is given access to Litigation Materials designated "Confidential," and before any person included in subparagraph 9(e) is permitted to retain any copy of Litigation Materials designated Confidential, such person shall be provided with a copy of this Order and shall acknowledge in a written statement, in the form provided as Exhibit A hereto, that he or she read the Order and agrees to be bound by the terms thereof. Such executed forms shall be retained in the files of counsel for the party who gave access to Litigation Materials to the person who was provided such access. Such executed forms shall not be subject to disclosure under the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure unless a showing of good cause is made and the Court so orders.

11. The inadvertent production of privileged or arguably privileged materials shall not be determined to be either: (a) a general waiver of the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine or any other privilege; or (b) a specific waiver of any such privilege with respect to documents being produced or the testimony given. Notice of any claim of privilege as to any document claimed to have been produced inadvertently shall be given within a reasonable period of time after discovery of the inadvertent production, and, on request by the producing party, all inadvertently produced materials as to which a claim of privilege is properly asserted and any copies thereof shall be returned promptly.

12. Nothing in this Order shall prevent any producing party from disclosing or using its own "Confidential" Litigation Materials as it deems appropriate, and any such disclosure shall not be deemed a waiver of any party's right or obligations under this Order with respect to any other information. If a party or non-party that designates information "Confidential" discloses or uses such "Confidential" Litigation Materials in a manner inconsistent with the claim that such information is confidential, any party may move the Court for an order removing such "Confidential" designation pursuant to paragraph 15 herein. Nothing in this Stipulation and Order shall impose any restrictions on the use or disclosure by any party of documents, materials, testimony or other information produced as Litigation Material obtained by such party independently of discovery in this litigation.

13. The parties do not waive any right to object to any discovery request, or to the admission of evidence on any ground, or seek any further protective order, or to seek relief from the Court from any provision of this Order by application on notice on any grounds.

14. If any party objects to the designation of any Litigation Materials as "Confidential," the party shall first state the objection by letter to the party that made such designations. The parties agree to confer in good faith by telephone or in person to attempt to resolve any dispute respecting the terms or operation of this Order. If the parties are unable to resolve such dispute within 5 days of such conference, any party may then move the Court to do so. Until the Court rules on such dispute, the Litigation Materials in question shall continue to be treated as "Confidential," as designated.

15. Upon motion, the Court may order the removal of the "Confidential" designation from any information so designated. In connection with any motion concerning the propriety of a "Confidential" designation, the party making the designation shall bear the burden of proof.

16. Within 60 days of the conclusion of this litigation as to all parties, all Litigation Materials designated "Confidential" and all copies or notes thereof shall be returned to counsel for the producing party who initially produced the Litigation Materials, or destroyed, except that counsel may retain their work product and copies of court filings, transcripts, and exhibits, provided said retained documents will continue to be treated as provided in this Order, as modified by rulings of the Court. If a party chooses to destroy documents after the litigation has concluded, that party shall certify such destruction in writing to the producing party upon written request for such certification by the producing party.

17. The failure of any party to challenge the designation by another production party of Litigation Material as "Confidential" during the discovery period shall not be a waiver of that party's right to object to the designation of such material at trial.

18. This Stipulation applies to all non-parties that are served with subpoenas in connection with this litigation or who otherwise produce documents or are noticed for deposition in connection with this litigation, and all such non-parties are entitled to the protection afforded hereby upon signing a copy of this agreement and agreeing to be bound by its terms.

19. Any party may move to modify the provisions of this Order at any time or the parties may agree by written stipulation, subject to further order of the Court, to modify the provisions of the Order. Should any non-party seek access to the Confidential Material, by request, subpoena or otherwise, the party or recipient of the Confidential Material from whom such access is sought, as applicable, shall promptly notify the producing party who produced such Confidential Materials of such requested access and shall not provide such materials unless required by law or with the consent of the producing party.

20. This Order shall not apply to any Litigation Materials offered or otherwise used by any party at trial or at any hearing held in open court. Prior to the use of any Litigation Materials that have been designated Confidential at trial or any hearing to be held in open court, counsel who desires to so offer or use such Confidential Material shall take reasonable steps to afford opposing counsel and counsel for the producing party who produced such Confidential

Material a reasonable opportunity to object to the disclosure in open court of such Confidential Material, and nothing herein shall be construed a wavier of such right to object.

21. Written notice provided pursuant to this Order shall be made to counsel of record by facsimile.

22. The provisions of this Order shall survive the final termination of the case for any retained Confidential Litigation Material thereof.

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.
MSSF v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. et al.

Dear Mike:

Pursuant to Paragraph 14 of the Stipulated Confidentiality Order, we object to the designation of CPH's Further Interrogatories Concerning Its Motion For Contempt as "Confidential." CPH's interrogatories do not contain, reveal, or reflect "proprietary or confidential trade secrets or technical, business, financial or personnel information of a current nature" as required by Paragraph 4 of the Stipulated Confidentiality Order, and do not otherwise qualify for confidential treatment under Florida law. Please let me know whether you will consent to the removal of the "Confidential" designation for this document, or promptly inform me of your refusal to do so.

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Clare

Re: Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. v. Morgan Stanley & Co.
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., et al.

Dear Tom:

We received your letter concerning the confidentiality designation of the interrogatories served last Friday. The interrogatories are designated confidential because certain interrogatories reference confidential aspects of the Andersen settlement agreement, which Judge Maass ordered to be "Confidential." Accordingly, we decline your invitation to remove the confidentiality designation from the interrogatories.

Very truly yours,

vs.

MACANDREWS & FORBES HOLDINGS, INC.,
Defendant(s).

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S EIGHTH REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS

Pursuant to Rules 1.280 and 1.350 of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co.") and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF) request that Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH") and MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("MAFCO") produce the documents and things referred to in the following specific requests. The specific requests are preceded by Instructions and Definitions which shall govern the specific requests. Documents and things responsive to these requests should be produced at the law firm of Carlton Fields, P.A., 222 Lakeview Avenue, Suite 1200, West Palm Beach, FL 33401, within the time required by Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.350(b) or as otherwise agreed to by the parties or specified by the Court.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. The connectives “and” and “or” shall be construed either disjunctively or conjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of the discovery request all responses that might otherwise be construed to be outside of its scope.

2. The use of the singular form of any word includes the plural and vice versa.

3. Documents requested and to be produced include all Documents in the possession, custody or control of the plaintiff including, but not limited to, any agents, employees, contractors, attorneys, and consultants or experts working for or in favor of the plaintiff or its attorneys.

4. If, in responding to this Request for Production, you encounter any ambiguities when construing a request or definition, the response shall set forth the matter deemed ambiguous and the construction used in responding.

5. Whenever in this Request you are asked to identify or produce a document which is deemed by you to be properly withheld from production for inspection or copying under claim of privilege (including, but not limited to, the work product doctrine), provide a privilege log that includes: the type of document, the general subject matter of the document, the date of the document, and such other information as is sufficient to identify the document, including, where appropriate, the author, addressee, custodian, and any other recipient of the document, and where not apparent, the relationship of the author, the addressee, custodian, and any other recipient to each other, in a manner that, without revealing the information claimed to be protected, will enable this party to assess the applicability of the privilege protection claimed by you. The privilege log shall be provided within the time set forth in the agreed-upon order.

6. If production of any requested document(s) is objected to on the grounds that production is unduly burdensome, describe the burden or expense of the proposed discovery.

7. When a document contains both privileged and non-privileged material, the non-privileged material must be disclosed to the fullest extent possible without disclosing the privileged material. If a privilege is asserted with regard to part of the material contained in a document, the party claiming the privilege must clearly indicate the portions as to which the privilege is claimed. When a document has been redacted or altered in any fashion, identify as to each document the reason for the redaction or alteration. Any redaction must be clearly visible on the redacted document.

8. If a responsive document exists but is no longer in your possession, custody, or control, state: its date, author(s), recipient(s), subject matter, what disposition was made of the document, and the person or entity, if any, now in possession, custody, or control of the document. If a responsive document has been destroyed, identify the date of destruction, the person who destroyed the document and the person who directed that the document be destroyed and state the reason for its destruction.

9. Produce all of the documents responsive to the numbered requests below either as they are kept in the usual course of business or by custodian.

10. If any of these documents cannot be produced in full, you are requested to produce them to the fullest extent possible, specifying clearly the reasons for your inability to produce the remainder and stating any information, knowledge, or belief you have concerning the unproduced portion.

11. If the requested documents are maintained in a file, the file folder is included in the request for production of those documents.

12. The terms "any," "all" and "each" shall be construed to mean "any," "all," or "each".
13. The term "including" shall be construed to mean "including but not limited to."
14. The present tense shall be construed to include the past and future tenses.
15. The specificity of any request herein shall not be construed to limit the generality or reach of any other request herein.
16. Unless otherwise specified, these requests call for the production of documents created, delivered, distributed, sent, received, accessed, or modified for the period beginning January 1, 1996 to the date of your response to these requests.

DEFINITIONS

1. "Arthur Andersen" shall mean Arthur Andersen LLP and any of its current or former partners, officers, directors, employees, representatives and agents.
2. "CLN Holdings" means CLN Holdings Inc. and any of its current or former officers, directors, employees, representatives, and agents.
3. "Coleman" means The Coleman Company, Inc. and any of its current or former officers, directors, employees, representatives, and agents.
4. "Concerning" shall mean relating to, referring to, describing, evidencing, or constituting.
5. "CPH" shall mean Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and any of its current or former officers, directors, employees, representatives and agents.
6. "Document" shall mean any recording in any tangible form of any information, whether handwritten, typed, printed, stored on computer disks, tapes, or databases, or otherwise reproduced. "Document" or "documents" also includes electronic documents whether stored on servers or hard drives, e-mail, backup tapes, voicemail and video and audio recordings. A draft or non-identical copy is a separate document within the meaning of this term.

7. "MAFCO" shall mean MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. and any of its current or former officers, directors, employees, representatives and agents.

DOCUMENTS TO BE PRODUCED

1. All documents prepared by Arthur Andersen and received by the Coleman Company, CPH, CLN Holdings, or MAFCO between February 27, 1998 and March 30, 1998.

2. All documents concerning the comfort letters described in Section 7.3(b) of the Agreement and Plan of Merger among Sunbeam Corporation, Camper Acquisition Corp. and The Coleman Company Inc. (Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117).

ANSWER OF MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co.") responds to Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s ("CPH") Complaint by denying generally that MS & Co. engaged in any fraudulent or negligent misrepresentations, any conspiracy to defraud, that MS & Co. assisted Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") or any employee, director or agent of Sunbeam in the commission of a fraudulent scheme, or that MS & Co. otherwise defrauded CPH in any manner. Specifically, MS & Co. responds to CPH's allegations as follows:

Nature of the Action

1. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 1.
2. MS & Co. admits that, beginning in mid-1997, MS & Co. served as an investment banker for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that it attempted to identify a party interested in purchasing Sunbeam, and that those efforts were ultimately unsuccessful. MS & Co. admits that it recommended that Sunbeam's management consider acquiring other companies instead and suggested, as is common in corporate mergers and acquisitions, that Sunbeam consider, among other options, using Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for such an acquisition. MS & Co. denies that it had any knowledge as to the accuracy of the value of Sunbeam's stock, or that

MS & Co. knew (or even suspected) that the value of Sunbeam's stock had been "fraudulently inflated." MS & Co. admits that it facilitated communications between Sunbeam and Coleman, but denies that it in any way "persuaded" CPH to sell its interest in Coleman. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 2 and consequently denies them.

3. MS & Co. admits that it agreed to serve as underwriter of a $750 million debenture offering for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that, as an advisor to Sunbeam, it had access to certain financial documents, and further states that those same documents were made available to CPH during the acquisition negotiations. Further, in that regard, MS & Co. specifically disclaimed any independent evaluation of Sunbeam's financial records, and expressly stated that it relied solely on documentation and information provided by Sunbeam and Sunbeam's audited financial statements. MS & Co. admits that on March 18, 1998, it learned that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "soft." Sunbeam insisted that its sales would meet expectations, but MS & Co. insisted that Sunbeam issue a press release to warn the market of the softening sales. Additionally, MS & Co. received two "comfort letters" from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. performed all of its obligations as an underwriter of Sunbeam securities. MS & Co. denies that it had any role in the accounting judgments described in the complaint, or any obligations to audit or independently examine Sunbeam's accounting records. MS & Co. denies that it owed any duties to CPH. MS & Co. denies that it had any independent knowledge as to the reasons behind Sunbeam's soft sales, that Sunbeam had a "practice of accelerating sales," or that it "materially misrepresent[ed]" information to CPH. Further, MS & Co. specifically denies that it in any manner assisted Sunbeam in concealing its 1998 first quarter sales numbers in order to close the transaction. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 3 and consequently denies them.

4. MS & Co. admits that CPH has brought this action against MS & Co. alleging fraudulent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting, conspiracy, and negligent misrepresentation, but denies that there is any merit to the suit. MS & Co. specifically denies that it made any fraudulent or negligent representations to CPH, that it in any way aided or abetted a fraudulent scheme against CPH, or that it participated in a conspiracy to defraud CPH. MS & Co. denies that any losses that CPH suffered resulted from fraud or any wrongful conduct on the part of MS & Co. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 4.

5. MS & Co. admits that CPH purports to seek compensatory damages against MS & Co., but denies that such claim is valid, for MS & Co. denies that it was engaged in any wrongful conduct. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 5.

Jurisdiction and Venue

6. MS & Co. admits the allegations contained in Paragraph 6. MS & Co. further admits that it is incorporated in Delaware and has its principal place of business in New York.

7. MS & Co. denies that venue is proper in this district.

Parties and Other Key Participants

8. MS & Co. admits that CPH represented, in negotiations with Sunbeam, that it owned, directly or indirectly, approximately 82% of Coleman prior to March 30, 1998. MS & Co. admits that on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired CPH's interest in Coleman by paying CPH with 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock and other consideration, including a cash payment by Sunbeam to CPH in the amount of $159,956,756.00. (See Feb. 27, 1998 Merger Agmt. § 3.1(a)(i) (Ex. 1).) MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 8 and consequently denies them.

9. MS & Co. admits that it is an investment banking firm providing financial and securities services. MS & Co. admits that, as part of its business operations, it at times provides advice on mergers and acquisitions, and raises capital in equity and debt markets, depending on the needs of its clients. MS & Co. admits that it served as Sunbeam's investment banker for certain aspects of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, and served as underwriter of certain securities issued by Sunbeam in connection with the acquisition. MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 9.

10. MS & Co. admits that Sunbeam was a publicly-traded company which manufactures and markets household and specialty consumer products, including outdoor cooking products. MS & Co. admits that Sunbeam marketed these products under several brand names, including Sunbeam and Oster. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 10 and consequently denies them.

11. MS & Co. admits that Albert Dunlap had served as the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 11 and consequently denies them.

12. MS & Co. admits that Russell Kersh had served as the Executive Vice President of Sunbeam. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 12 and consequently denies them.

13. MS & Co. admits that Arthur Andersen LLP served as Sunbeam's auditors and provided independent/outside accounting services to Sunbeam. MS & Co. further admits that, during the performance of its engagement, it received "comfort letters" from Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. never served as auditor for Sunbeam, and never provided Sunbeam with any accounting or accounting-related services. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to know the location of Lawrence Bornstein or to form a belief as to the truth of any allegations pertaining to him, and consequently denies them. MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 13.

Factual Background

14. MS & Co. admits the allegations contained in Paragraph 14.

15. MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 15 pertain to publicly available information, and refers to such information for the truth or falsity of such allegations. To the extent that further response is required, MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 15 and consequently denies them.

16. MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 16 pertain to publicly available information, and refers to such information for the truth or falsity of such allegations. To the extent that further response is required, MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 16 and consequently denies them.

17. MS & Co. admits, on information and belief, that Albert Dunlap was hired as Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer on or about July 18, 1996. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 17 and consequently denies them.

18. MS & Co. admits, on information and belief, that Russell Kersh was hired as Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 18 and consequently denies them.

19. MS & Co. admits, on information and belief, that Albert Dunlap and members of his senior management team entered into employment agreements with Sunbeam. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 19 and consequently denies them.

20. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 20 and consequently denies them.

21. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 21 and consequently denies them.

22. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 22 and consequently denies them.

23. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 23 and consequently denies them.

24. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 24 and consequently denies them.

25. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 25 and consequently denies them.

27. MS & Co. admits, on information and belief, that Sunbeam reported a loss of $18.1 million in the third quarter of 1996, and that it had a $34.5 million gain in the third quarter 1997. MS & Co. further admits, on information and belief, that Sunbeam reported an increase in profits from $6.5 million in 1996 to $67.7 million in 1997. MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 27 regarding stock prices pertain to publicly available information and MS & Co. refers to such information for the truth or falsity of such allegations. To the extent that further response is required, MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 27 and consequently denies them.

28. MS & Co. admits that it was engaged by Sunbeam to explore a possible sale of Sunbeam's core business and/or the initiation of one or more acquisitions. MS & Co. denies that it ever served as Dunlap's "shill." MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 28 and consequently denies them.

29. MS & Co. admits that William Strong and other MS & Co. employees met with Sunbeam in the spring of 1997 to discuss Sunbeam's investment banking requirements. Further, MS & Co. admits that, although it was not engaged in a previous relationship with Sunbeam,

William Strong had worked with Dunlap before, during Strong's previous employment with Salomon Brothers. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 29 and consequently denies them.

30. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 30 and consequently denies them.

31. MS & Co. admits that William Strong and other MS & Co. employees met with Sunbeam in the spring of 1997 to discuss Sunbeam's investment banking requirements. MS & Co. admits that it was engaged by Sunbeam to explore a possible sale of Sunbeam's core business and/or the initiation of one or more acquisitions. MS & Co. admits that it initially sought a buyer for Sunbeam. To the extent this Paragraph alleges that MS & Co. was motivated to participate in a fraud in order to retain a single client and receive a customary fee, that allegation is foreclosed, among other reasons, by the fact that MS & Co.'s own affiliate lent hundreds of millions of dollars to Sunbeam two days after the Coleman acquisition closed. (June 1998 Credit Facilities Mem. (Ex. 2).) MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 31.

32. MS & Co. admits that it searched for a buyer for Sunbeam. MS & Co. further admits that it assembled marketing materials based on financial documentation and audited financial statements provided to MS & Co. by Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen, for use in meetings with potential acquirers. MS & Co. admits that, despite contacting many companies, it was unable to find a buyer for Sunbeam. MS & Co. specifically denies CPH's allegation that MS & Co. knew that it would not be compensated if "it failed to deliver a major transaction," or that "Davis and Chase were standing by . . . to reclaim their position as Dunlap's investment banker of choice." MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 32.

33. MS & Co. denies that it provided the "solution" to any "problem" alleged in Paragraph 33. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 33 and consequently denies them.

34. MS & Co. admits after its unsuccessful attempts to locate a purchaser for Sunbeam, it suggested that Sunbeam acquire one or more other companies instead. MS & Co. admits that it proposed to Sunbeam, among other options, the possibility of paying for any such acquisition in part with Sunbeam's stock. MS & Co. specifically denies any knowledge to the effect that a "failure to find a buyer for Sunbeam could prove fatal to [their] relationship." MS & Co. further denies any involvement in or knowledge of fraudulently inflated Sunbeam stock or concealment of any fraud at Sunbeam. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 34 and consequently denies them.

35. MS & Co. admits that, beginning in mid-1997, MS & Co. served as an investment banker for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that it attempted to identify a party interested in purchasing Sunbeam, and that those efforts were ultimately unsuccessful. MS & Co. admits that it recommended that Sunbeam's management consider, among other options, acquiring other companies instead and suggested, as is common in corporate mergers and acquisitions, that Sunbeam consider using Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for such an acquisition. MS & Co. denies that it developed "acquisition strategies" for Sunbeam or that the services or potential transactions it discussed with Sunbeam's management were deceptive or in any way designed to facilitate fraud. MS & Co. specifically denies that it in any way knew of or knowingly assisted Dunlap to "camouflage Sunbeam's results" thereby making it "difficult to detect any shortfall in Sunbeam's performance," or that it knew of or assisted Dunlap in taking "new massive restructuring charges," which thereby created increased "cookie jar reserves." MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 35.

36. MS & Co. admits that, in its capacity as advisor to Sunbeam, it identified Coleman as a potential acquisition candidate. MS & Co. admits that it communicated with representatives of Coleman to discuss a potential acquisition, but denies that it "persuade[d] CPH to sell its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam." MS & Co. admits that CPH represented, in negotiations with Sunbeam, that it owned, directly or indirectly, approximately 82% of Coleman prior to March 30, 1998. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 36.

37. MS & Co. admits that it facilitated a meeting between representatives from Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("MAFCO") in December 1997. MS & Co. admits that it prepared Sunbeam's representatives for that meeting. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 37 and consequently denies them.

38. MS & Co. admits that discussions between Sunbeam, MAFCO and CPH resumed in early 1998. MS & Co. further admits that its Managing Directors James Stynes and Robert Kitts worked on MS & Co.'s engagement for Sunbeam. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 38 and consequently denies them.

39. MS & Co. denies that it "persuade[d]" CPH to sell Coleman in exchange for Sunbeam stock. MS & Co. denies that it "prepared" financial information for CPH. There is, in any event, no factual allegation contained in Paragraph 39 or elsewhere that identifies such alleged information at all, let alone with particularity. MS & Co. further denies that it knowingly "provided" CPH with false financial and business information, or otherwise knowingly relayed false information to CPH which created an appearance that "Sunbeam was prospering and that Sunbeam's stock had great value." Specifically, MS & Co. denies that it knowingly provided CPH with false 1996 and 1997 sales and revenue figures or with false projections. MS & Co. denies that it "falsely assured CPH that Sunbeam's 'early buy' sales program would not hurt Sunbeam's future revenues," that "Sunbeam would meet or exceed" first quarter 1998 estimates, that 1998 earnings estimates were accurate, that a plan to earn $2.20/share was attainable or even low, or that it "specifically advised CPH that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were 'tracking fine' and running ahead of analysts' estimates."

In any event CPH could not have relied on such alleged representations in light of (i) the Merger Agreement's representations and warranties (Merger Agmt. §§ 5.1-5.4), none of which refer to any alleged representation contained in this Paragraph, (ii) the representations and warranties in a separate agreement that was executed by Coleman and Sunbeam (Feb. 27, 1998 Company Merger Agmt. § 5.1-5.12 (Ex. 3)), which are expressly incorporated into the Merger Agreement and none of which refer to any alleged representation contained in this Paragraph, and (iii) the Merger Agreement's broad integration clause which forecloses reliance on any alleged representation contained in this Paragraph (Merger Agmt. § 12.5). MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 39 and consequently denies them.

40. MS & Co. admits that CPH agreed to sell its shares in Coleman to Sunbeam, and that CPH agreed to accept Sunbeam stock as partial payment for the sale, but denies that MS & Co. "persuaded" CPH to make the deal. CPH is a sophisticated party and was represented by its own expert advisors and attorneys. (Id. §§ 1.1; 4.11.) CPH and its advisors also enjoyed full access to Sunbeam's "books, records, properties, plants and personnel." (Id. § 6.7.) CPH also expressly disclaimed reliance on statements allegedly made during negotiations. (Id. § 12.5.) MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 40 regarding stock value pertain to publicly available information, and refers to such information for the truth or falsity of such allegations. To the extent that further response is required, MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 40 and consequently denies them.

41. MS & Co. admits that on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam's Board of Directors met at Morgan Stanley's New York offices to discuss Sunbeam's possible purchase of Coleman. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 41.

42. MS & Co. admits it made a presentation during the February 27, 1998 Sunbeam Board of Directors Meeting. MS & Co. further admits that MS & Co. representatives, including William Strong, Robert Kitts, James Stynes and Ruth Porat, were present at this meeting. MS &

Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 42 and consequently denies them.

43. MS & Co. admits that at that February 27, 1998 New York meeting, it provided Sunbeam with a written "fairness opinion" regarding the fair acquisition price of Coleman. This opinion was based on financial information provided to MS & Co. by Sunbeam, Coleman, and Arthur Andersen, and on synergy analyses which MS & Co. received from CPH. The written fairness opinion explicitly stated that MS & Co. "[has] not made any independent valuation or appraisal of the assets or liabilities of [Sunbeam]." (Feb. 27, 1998 Fairness Op. at 3 (Ex. 4).) MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 43.

44. MS & Co. admits that the Sunbeam Board of Directors approved the Coleman acquisition at the February 27, 1998 meeting in New York. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 44 and consequently denies them.

45. MS & Co. admits that it continued to provide investment banking services to Sunbeam after the Coleman acquisition was approved. MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 45.

46. MS & Co. admits that the Coleman acquisition was announced on March 2, 1998. MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 46 regarding stock prices pertain to publicly available information, and refers to such information for the truth or falsity of such allegations. To the extent that further response is required, MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 46 and consequently denies them.

47. MS & Co. admits that it agreed to serve as underwriter for Sunbeam's subordinated debentures. The "cash portion" of the consideration set forth in the Merger Agreement was also financed in part through a $680 million loan made by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, an affiliate of MS & Co. (See Credit Facilities Mem.) MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 47 and consequently denies them.

48. MS & Co. admits that the money raised from the sale of the debentures was used in part to finance Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

49. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 49 and consequently denies them.

50. MS & Co. admits that the convertible debentures were presented to potential investors at a series of "road show" meetings and conference calls. MS & Co. admits that it reviewed and commented on the offering memorandum and other materials used to present the debentures to potential investors. MS & Co. denies that it "misrepresented Sunbeam's financial performance" or "emphasized Dunlap's purported 'turnaround' accomplishments." To the contrary, the offering memorandum expressly stated that MS & Co. assumed no responsibility for the accuracy or completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial information and warned investors not to rely on any projections of future performance. (March 19, 1998 Note Offering Mem. at 2-3, 12-17, 72 (Ex. 5).) MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 50.

51. MS & Co. admits that it launched the debenture offering with a presentation to the Morgan Stanley sales force, but denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 51.

52. MS & Co. admits that the debenture offering was increased from $500 million to $750 million. MS & Co. admits that the debentures were offered to investors nationwide. MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 52.

53. MS & Co. admits that its employees traveled on one occasion to Sunbeam's Florida offices. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 53, except to the extent that they constitute legal conclusions to which no response is required.

54. MS & Co. admits that William Strong worked on MS & Co.'s engagement for Sunbeam. MS & Co. also admits that Strong has provided deposition testimony discussing conversations with Sunbeam officials. MS & Co. denies that Strong or any other MS & Co.

employee was accurately apprised of Sunbeam's financial condition because MS & Co. at all times relied on information provided by Sunbeam management and Arthur Andersen, including Sunbeam's audited financial statements. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 54 and consequently denies them.

55. MS & Co. denies CPH's allegation that it was "telling CPH and the investing public . . . that Sunbeam's turnaround was a success, that Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 were ahead of expectations of outside analysts, and that Sunbeam was poised for record sales." Furthermore, any information communicated by MS & Co. was based on financial data and information provided to it by Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen — a fact that MS & Co. regularly publicized through disclaimer statements. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 55 and consequently denies them.

56. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 56.

57. MS & Co. admits that it received a facsimile schedule regarding Sunbeam's finances on or about March 18, 1998. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 57 and consequently denies them.

58. MS & Co. admits that on or about March 18, 1998, it received a faxed financial schedule which reflected that Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales were below those of January and February 1997. MS & Co. denies that it made assertions or otherwise disseminated information to CPH or others that it knew to be false. MS & Co. denies any knowledge of the fact that Sunbeam had not undergone a successful turnaround, or that Sunbeam's financial performance had not improved in the manner presented by Sunbeam's management and audited financial statements. MS & Co. admits that on March 18, 1998, it learned that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "soft." Sunbeam insisted that its sales would meet expectations, but MS & Co. insisted that Sunbeam issue a press release to warn the market of the softening sales.

Additionally, MS & Co. received two "comfort letters" from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. performed all of its obligations as an underwriter of Sunbeam securities. MS & Co. denies that it had any role in the accounting judgments described in the complaint, or any obligations to audit or independently examine Sunbeam's accounting records. MS & Co. denies that it owed any duties to CPH. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 58 and consequently denies them.

59. MS & Co. admits that on March 18, 1998, it learned that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "soft." Sunbeam insisted that its sales would meet expectations, but MS & Co. insisted that Sunbeam issue a press release to warn the market of the softening sales. Additionally, MS & Co. received two "comfort letters" from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. performed all of its obligations as an underwriter of Sunbeam securities. MS & Co. denies that it had any role in the accounting judgments described in the Complaint, or any obligations to audit or independently examine Sunbeam's accounting records. MS & Co. denies that it owed any duties to CPH. MS & Co. denies all remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 59.

60. MS & Co. admits that Sunbeam issued a press release on March 19, 1998 that included language selectively quoted in Paragraph 60. MS & Co. further states that the March 19, 1998 press release contained the following additional statement, omitted in the Complaint:

Cautionary Statements - Statements contained in this press release, including statements relating to the Company's expectations regarding anticipated performance in the future, are "forward looking statements," as such term is defined in the Private Securities Litigation Reform act of 1995. Actual results could differ materially from the Company's statements in this release regarding its expectations, goals or projected results, due to various factors, including those set forth in the Company's Cautionary Statements contains in its Annual Report on Form 10-K for its fiscal year ended December 31, 1997 filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

(March 19, 1998 Press Release (Ex. 6).)

61. MS & Co. admits that Sunbeam issued a press release on March 19, 1998 that included language selectively quoted in Paragraph 61. MS & Co. further states that the March 19, 1998 press release contained the following additional statement, omitted in the Complaint:

Cautionary Statements - Statements contained in this press release, including statements relating to the Company's expectations regarding anticipated performance in the future, are "forward looking statements," as such term is defined in the Private Securities Litigation Reform act of 1995. Actual results could differ materially from the Company's statements in this release regarding its expectations, goals or projected results, due to various factors, including those set forth in the Company's Cautionary Statements contains in its Annual Report on Form 10-K for its fiscal year ended December 31, 1997 filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

(Id.) MS & Co. denies all remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 61.

62. MS & Co. denies the allegation that it knew that the "shortfall from analysts' estimates was . . . caused by Sunbeam's acceleration of 1998 sales into the fourth quarter of 1997." MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 62 and consequently denies them.

63. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 63.

64. MS & Co. specifically denies that it "knew that a full and truthful disclosure . . . would doom the debenture offering," or that it had any knowledge that the press release was untruthful or otherwise misleading. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 64.

65. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 65. To the extent that this Paragraph quotes the Merger Agreement, that document speaks for itself and contradicts the allegations contained in the Complaint.

66. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 66 and consequently denies them.

67. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 67.

68. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 68 and consequently denies them.

69. MS & Co. admits that it continued to serve as Sunbeam's investment banker, and continued to prepare to close the debenture offering and the acquisition of Coleman, but denies any knowledge as to the alleged falsity of the March 19, 1998 press release. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 69.

70. MS & Co. admits that throughout its service to Sunbeam, MS & Co. employees, including Tyree, spoke via telephone with representatives of Sunbeam. MS & Co. denies any knowledge that the press release was untruthful or otherwise misleading. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 70 and consequently denies them.

71. MS & Co. admits that it received "comfort letters" from Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. denies the allegation that it knew that "Sunbeam's earnings for the first quarter of 1998 were going to miss Wall Street analysts' earning expectations." MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 71 and consequently denies them.

72. MS & Co. admits that it continued to prepare to close both the debenture offering and the acquisition of Coleman. MS & Co. denies any allegation of its "having directly participated in misleading CPH and other investors." MS & Co. responds that the allegation that MS & Co. "had a duty to disclose the true facts" to CPH is a legal conclusion to which no response is required. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 72.

73. MS & Co. admits that it received compensation for investment banking work performed by MS & Co. for Sunbeam. MS & Co. denies the allegation that it facilitated Sunbeam's fraud. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 73 and consequently denies them.

74. MS & Co. admits that on March 19, 1998, Sunbeam issued a press release which stated that "net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million." MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 74 and consequently denies them.

75. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 75 and consequently denies them.

76. MS & Co. admits that it advocated issuing a press release to warn the market of the softening sales, but denies that it represented that Sunbeam's sales would exceed analysts' projections. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 76.

77. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 77 and consequently denies them.

Count I – Fraudulent Misrepresentation

78. MS & Co. repeats and realleges its responses to Paragraphs 1 through 77 as if set forth herein.

79. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 79.

80. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 80.

81. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 81.

82. MS & Co. denies the allegation contained in Paragraph 82.

83. MS & Co. denies the allegation contained in Paragraph 83.

Count II – Aiding and Abetting Fraud

84. MS & Co. repeats and realleges its responses to Paragraphs 1 through 77 as if set forth herein.

85. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 85 and consequently denies them.

86. MS & Co. denies the allegation contained in Paragraph 86.

87. MS & Co. admits that, beginning in mid-1997, MS & Co. served as an investment banker and underwriter for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that it attempted to identify a party interested in purchasing Sunbeam, and that those efforts were ultimately unsuccessful. MS & Co. admits that it recommended that Sunbeam's management consider acquiring other companies instead and suggested, as is common in corporate mergers and acquisitions, that Sunbeam consider using Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for such an acquisition. MS & Co. denies that it had any knowledge as to the accuracy of the value of Sunbeam's stock, or that MS & Co. knew (or even suspected) that the value of Sunbeam's stock had been "fraudulently inflated."

MS & Co. admits that it facilitated communications between Sunbeam and Coleman, but denies that it in any way "persuaded" CPH to sell its interest in Coleman.

MS & Co. admits that on March 18, 1998, it learned that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "soft." Sunbeam insisted that its sales would meet expectations, but MS & Co. insisted that Sunbeam issue a press release to warn the market of the softening sales. Additionally, MS & Co. received two "comfort letters" from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. performed all of its obligations as an underwriter of Sunbeam securities.

MS & Co. admits that the convertible debentures were presented to potential investors at a series of "road show" meetings and conference calls. MS & Co. admits that it reviewed and commented on the offering memorandum and other materials used to present the debentures to potential investors. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 87.

88. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 88.

Count III – Conspiracy

89. MS & Co. repeats and realleges its responses to Paragraphs 1 through 77 as if set forth herein.

90. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 90.

91. MS & Co. admits that it served as a financial advisor to Sunbeam and an underwriter of Sunbeam securities, but denies that it in any way committed "overt acts in furtherance of a conspiracy." MS & Co. denies that it performed an independent financial analysis of Sunbeam; to the contrary, MS & Co. informed CPH that it was relying solely on financial data and information provided to it by Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. admits that it underwrote the $750 million convertible debenture offering. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 91.

92. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 92.

Count IV – Negligent Misrepresentation

93. MS & Co. repeats and realleges its responses to Paragraphs 1 through 77 as if set forth herein.

94. MS & Co. admits that it served as a financial advisor to Sunbeam and an underwriter of Sunbeam securities. MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 94 constitute legal conclusions to which no response is required. Alternatively, MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 94.

95. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 95.

96. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 96.

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

In addition to the foregoing responses, MS & Co. asserts the following affirmative defenses to the claims stated in CPH's Complaint. MS & Co. does not assume the burden of proof on these defenses where the substantive law provides otherwise.

First Affirmative Defense

CPH's claims must be dismissed on forum non conveniens grounds pursuant to Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.061(a).

Second Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

Third Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, by the doctrine of laches.

Fourth Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, by the doctrine of estoppel.

Fifth Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, by the doctrine of waiver.

Sixth Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, by the doctrine of unclean hands.

Seventh Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, by plaintiff's failure to mitigate its damages.

Eighth Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred because CPH has experienced no damages, and any claimed loss is speculative and/or was avoidable.

Ninth Affirmative Defense

CPH's alleged claims are barred, in whole or in part, because the claimed injuries were not proximately caused by any acts or omissions of MS & Co.

Tenth Affirmative Defense

To the extent CPH's fraud claim relies on non-disclosure, that claim is barred, in whole or in part, because MS & Co. was under no duty to disclose.

Eleventh Affirmative Defense

CPH's claims are barred, in whole or in part, because of MS & Co.'s repeated disclaimers of reliance.

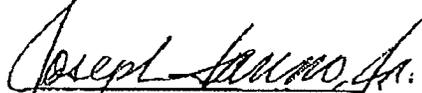

Twelfth Affirmative Defense

Any future claim by CPH for punitive damages is barred, in whole or in part, because (i) the allegedly tortious conduct is not gross, wanton, willful, or otherwise morally culpable; and (ii) the alleged conduct was not part of a pattern directed at the public generally.

WHEREFORE, MS & Co. denies that CPH is entitled to any relief whatsoever, and to the extent that CPH should recover any damage award, that award should be offset by CPH's failure to take appropriate steps to mitigate its damages. MS & Co. respectfully requests that the Court enter judgment for MS & Co. dismissing the complaint with prejudice, award MS & Co. its attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, and grant such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

STIPULATED CONFIDENTIALITY ORDER

The parties hereto hereby stipulate and agree to the following Confidentiality Order:

1. Scope of Order. This Order shall apply to all non-public and Confidential (as hereinafter defined) materials produced in this litigation and all testimony given in any deposition by any party to the litigation or by any person or entity that is not a party hereto (a "non-party"), to all non-public and Confidential information disclosed by any party hereto during the course of the captioned litigation and to all non-public information disclosed to any party hereto by any non-party in response to the service of a subpoena or notice of deposition on a non-party in connection with the captioned litigation ("Litigation Materials").

2. This Order shall not apply to any document, testimony or other information that (a) is already in a receiving party's possession at the time it is produced, (b) becomes generally available to the public other than as a result of disclosure in violation of this Order or in breach of any other legal obligation, or (c) becomes available to a party other than through voluntary or required production from a person or party who obtained the document, testimony or other information without any confidentiality restriction.

3. Litigation Materials and the information derived therefrom shall be used solely for the purpose of preparing for and conducting this litigation, and shall not be disclosed or used for any other purpose.

4. Any party or non-party may designate as "Confidential" any Litigation Materials or portions thereof which the party or non-party believes, in good faith, constitute, contain, reveal or reflect proprietary or confidential trade secrets or technical, business, financial or personnel information of a current nature. If a party or non-party produces Litigation Materials that have been produced in another litigation or to any government entity and such Litigation Materials have been designated confidential or were accompanied by a request that confidential treatment be accorded them, such Litigation Materials shall be deemed to have been designated "Confidential" for purposes of this Stipulation and Order.

5. Any documents or other tangible Litigation Materials may be designated as "Confidential" by marking every such page "Confidential" or by informing the other party in writing that such material is Confidential. Such markings will be made in a manner which does not obliterate or obscure the content of the document or other tangible Litigation Material. If Litigation Material is inspected at the choice of location of the party or non-party producing or disclosing Litigation Materials (a "producing party"), all such Litigation Material shall be presumed at such inspection to have been designated as Confidential by the producing party until such time as the producing party provides copies to the party that requested the Litigation Material. Production of Confidential Material for inspection and copying shall not constitute a waiver of confidentiality.

6. Depositions or other testimony may be designated "Confidential" by any one of the following means:

(a) stating orally on the record, with reasonable precision as to the affected testimony, on the day the testimony is given that this information is "Confidential"; or

(b) sending written notice designating, by page and line, the portions of the transcript of the deposition or other testimony to be treated as "Confidential" within 10 days after receipt of the transcripts.

7. The entire transcript of any deposition shall be treated as Confidential Material until thirty days after the conclusion of the deposition. Each page of deposition transcript designated as Confidential Material shall be stamped, as set forth in paragraph 5 above, by the court reporter or counsel.

8. In the event it becomes necessary at a deposition or hearing to show any Confidential Material to a witness, any testimony related to the Confidential Material shall be deemed to be Confidential Material, and the pages and lines of the transcript that set forth such testimony shall be stamped as set forth in paragraph 5 of this Stipulation.

9. Litigation Materials designated "Confidential" and any copies thereof, and the information contained therein, shall not be given, shown, made available or communicated in any way to anyone except:

(a) The Circuit Court of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida (the "Court") (including Clerks and other Court personnel). Litigation Materials designated "Confidential" and any copies thereof, and the information contained therein, that are filed with the Court or any pleadings, motions or other papers filed with the Court, shall be filed under seal in a separate sealed envelope conspicuously marked "Filed Under Seal - Subject to Confidentiality Order," or with such other markings as required by Court rules, and shall be kept under seal until further order of the Court. Where possible, only those portions of filings with the Court that disclose matters designated "Confidential" shall be filed under seal;

(b) counsel to the parties, including co-counsel of record for the parties actually assisting in the prosecution or defense of this litigation, and the legal associates and clerical or other support staff who are employed by such counsel or attorneys and are working under the express direction of such counsel or attorneys;

(c) parties and current officers and employees of parties to the extent reasonably deemed necessary by counsel disclosing such information for the purpose of assisting in the prosecution or defense of this litigation;

(d) outside photocopying, graphic production services, litigation support services, or investigators employed by the parties or their counsel to assist in this litigation and computer personnel performing duties in relation to a computerized litigation system;

(e) any person who is a witness or deponent, and his or her counsel, during the course of a deposition of testimony in this litigation;

(f) any person who is a potential fact witness in the litigation, provided, however, that a person identified solely in this subparagraph shall not be permitted to retain copies of such Litigation Material;

(g) court reporters, stenographers, or videographers who record deposition or other testimony in the litigation;

(h) experts or consultants retained in connection with the litigation;

(i) any person who is indicated on the face of a document to have been an author, addressee or copy recipient thereof, provided, however, that a person identified

solely in this subparagraph shall not be permitted to retain copies of such Litigation Material; and

(j) any other person, upon written consent from the party or person who designated such Litigation Materials "Confidential."

10. Before any person included in paragraph 9(f) or (h) is given access to Litigation Materials designated "Confidential," and before any person included in subparagraph 9(e) is permitted to retain any copy of Litigation Materials designated Confidential, such person shall be provided with a copy of this Order and shall acknowledge in a written statement, in the form provided as Exhibit A hereto, that he or she read the Order and agrees to be bound by the terms thereof. Such executed forms shall be retained in the files of counsel for the party who gave access to Litigation Materials to the person who was provided such access. Such executed forms shall not be subject to disclosure under the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure unless a showing of good cause is made and the Court so orders.

11. The inadvertent production of privileged or arguably privileged materials shall not be determined to be either: (a) a general waiver of the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine or any other privilege; or (b) a specific waiver of any such privilege with respect to documents being produced or the testimony given. Notice of any claim of privilege as to any document claimed to have been produced inadvertently shall be given within a reasonable period of time after discovery of the inadvertent production, and, on request by the producing party, all inadvertently produced materials as to which a claim of privilege is properly asserted and any copies thereof shall be returned promptly.

12. Nothing in this Order shall prevent any producing party from disclosing or using its own "Confidential" Litigation Materials as it deems appropriate, and any such disclosure shall not be deemed a waiver of any party's right or obligations under this Order with

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s),

vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).

ORDER ON DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

THIS CAUSE came before the Court November 25, 2003 on Defendant's Motion to Compel Production of Settlement Agreement, with all parties and Arthur Andersen well represented by counsel. Based on the proceedings before the Court, it is,

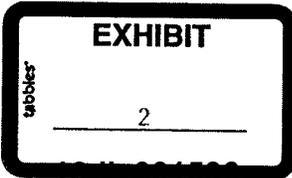

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the Motion is Granted, in part, and Denied, in part. Defendant shall have access to that document attached hereto as Exhibit 1, excluding those portions redacted by the Court. The Court has sealed a complete copy of the Settlement Agreement and placed it in the Court file. The sealed envelope shall not be unsealed or removed from the Court file without further order of this or an appellate court. The undersigned's Judicial Assistant shall supply Plaintiff's counsel with a conformed copy of this Order on request made no earlier than 12:00 noon on December 5, 2003. The undersigned's Judicial Assistant shall supply Defendant's counsel with a conformed copy of this Order on request made no earlier than 4:00 p.m. on December 8, 2003. The Court file shall not be released from the undersigned's Chambers before 4:00 p.m. on December 9, 2003. It is further ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Exhibit 1 is hereby deemed "Confidential" and subject to the terms of the parties' Stipulated Confidentiality Order entered July 31, 2003.

DONE AND ORDERED in West Palm Beach, Palm Beach County, Florida, this 4 day of December, 2003.

1 BE IT REMEMBERED that the foregoing
2 proceedings were had before the HONORABLE ELIZABETH
3 MAASS, in the Palm Beach County Courthouse, West Palm
4 Beach, Florida, on November 25, 2003, starting at 5 4:37 p.m., with appearances as hereinabove noted,
6 to wit:

8 THE COURT: This is Coleman and Morgan
9 Stanley. It's defendant's motion, I think, to 10 compel production of a settlement agreement.

11 MR. IANNO: That's correct.

12 MR. CLARE: That's correct.

13 THE COURT: You-all can have a seat.

14 The first motion I have though, and I
15 apologize, I didn't have time to go through the 16 files to try to find this, I see that defendant
17 has filed certain things under seal or has 18 tendered certain things under seal, and I hope
19 that none of them have been filed yet. Was there
20 an order entered that permitted that procedure?

21 MR. IANNO: Yes, Your Honor. Joe Ianno:
22 I believe that the confidentiality order that was 23 entered in this case provided for that.

24 THE COURT: You're going to have to tell me,
25 because I thought --

1 MR. IANNO: I didn't bring the
2 confidentiality order with me.

3 THE COURT: Because, obviously, under the 4 Rules of Judicial Administration, things can't get
5 filed under seal --

6 MR. IANNO: Without notice to media.

7 THE COURT: And all that. And I thought when
8 I looked at the proposed order in this case,
9 either I struck through that stuff or I mailed it
10 back to you guys and said I can't sign this. And 11 if I haven't done that yet, that's why we need to 12 find that order.

13 I haven't looked at any of the stuff that was 14 given to me under seal. I need to just give it
15 back to you. It's not my policy to look at things
16 that can't be part of the court record absent a
17 clear order that permits me to do so.

18 It could be somehow I signed it and I forgot.

19 MR. IANNO: I don't believe that the motion
20 at issue though, Your Honor, was filed under seal.

21 THE COURT: No, just some of the stuff. I'll 22 give you guys -- Whoever gave me this stuff, I'm 23 just going to give it back.

24 MR. SCAROLA: I think what was filed under 25 seal was your reply memorandum.

MR. IANNO: It could be.

THE COURT: I have a couple things under seal. I got this (indicating).

MR. IANNO: If I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And then you gave me a copy of it, which I don't want. And then I got this (indicating). I don't know if that's all of it or not.

MR. IANNO: Okay. This was not filed under seal, Your Honor (indicating).

THE COURT: I thought it's telling me it's a copy of what was filed under seal for me. No?

MR. IANNO: That must have been a mistake, Your Honor, because that was not filed under seal.

THE COURT: You're comfortable it wasn't? Do you want to show it to Mr. Scarola?

MR. IANNO: I think it may have been filed. It is a response.

I think that was just a mistake, Your Honor, on this one. That was our reply to Mr. Scarola's opposition.

THE COURT: Okay. And have you seen this (indicating)?

MR. SCAROLA: I have, yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Thanks.

1 MR. IANNO: These are other motions, Your
2 Honor, that are not at issue today.

3 THE COURT: So when it says confidential
4 under seal, it was a misnomer?

5 MR. IANNO: Yes. It was a mistake. That one
6 was not intended to be filed under seal.

7 THE COURT: Do we know if it was filed?

8 MR. IANNO: It may have been.

9 THE COURT: What if it wasn't? Do you want
10 me to do directions to the clerk saying --

11 MR. IANNO: You can file that.

12 THE COURT: The whole thing says
13 confidential.

14 MR. IANNO: That can be filed. That does not 15 need to be under seal.

16 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

17 What did you want to say in support of your
18 motion?

19 MR. CLARE: Good morning, Your Honor.
20 Tom Clare from Kirkland and Ellis in Washington on 21 behalf of the defendant, Morgan Stanley. This is 22 our motion to compel the production of the 23 settlement agreement.

24 THE COURT: Right.

25 MR. CLARE: I think to understand the context

0007

1 of the motion, it's helpful to go back in time and
2 understand the events that led up to this lawsuit
3 and the litigations that came before this
4 settlement agreement is the subject of the motion.

5 In March of 1998, Mr. Scarola's client sold
6 its interest in the Coleman Company to Sunbeam.
7 My client, Morgan Stanley, was the financial
8 advisor to Sunbeam for part of that deal. Arthur
9 Andersen was the auditor to Sunbeam at the time.
10 After the acquisition was closed, there were 11 accounting problems discovered at Sunbeam,
12 management was fired, the auditors were changed
13 and litigation ensued.

14 Morgan Stanley was never sued by anybody
15 until Coleman Parent Holdings Company sued us
16 earlier this year, but all the other litigation
17 ensued, including claims that were brought or 18 threatened to be brought by the plaintiff in this
19 case against Sunbeam, and then a second suit
20 against Arthur Andersen. Both of those cases were 21 settled.

22 The settlement agreement between Coleman
23 Parent Holdings and Sunbeam was public, a matter
24 of public record, publicly filed with the SEC
25 filings. The settlement agreement between Coleman

1 and Arthur Andersen was not.

2 Andersen has been identified as an important
3 critical witness in this case. There are partners
4 and former partners of Arthur Andersen who are
5 identified in the Complaint as providing a factual
6 basis for the fraud and negligent
7 misrepresentation counts that are brought against
8 us, and there's an issue of setoff. Very clearly
9 in the case, they were seeking to recover the same
10 damages from us as they've already recovered from 11 Arthur Andersen stating the same allegations of 12 reliance and the same damages allegations.

13 So we're entitled to know, under the City of 14 Homestead case in the Third District Court of 15 Appeals that came down, the position that was 16 recently re-affirmed by the Nester case that came 17 down a month ago in the Court of Appeals in 18 support of that. It's relevant.

19 As well, Your Honor, potentially to the forum
20 non conveniens and choice of law motion that we're 21 going to be back arguing before Your Honor on 22 December 12th, to the extent that --

23 THE COURT: How would it be relevant to 24 choice of law?

25 MR. CLARE: To the extent that Coleman

0009

1 Parent, which is headquartered in New York, and
2 its parent company, which is headquartered in 3 New York, agreed to settle this litigation and 4 enforce the settlement agreement in the courts of 5 New York or agreed to be bound by the choice of 6 law provision that specifies New York law should 7 apply, that's relevant to whether New York is an 8 inconvenient forum for them to litigate this case.
9 THE COURT: So it's not a choice of law, it's 10 just an inconvenient forum argument?
11 MR. CLARE: Well, there's both.
12 THE COURT: How is it choice of law, so I
13 understand?
14 MR. CLARE: On December 12th, we'll be
15 back --
16 THE COURT: Right.
17 MR. CLARE: -- to argue our motion to 18 dismiss, and it's our view that the substantive 19 law of the State of New York applies to their 20 claims.
21 THE COURT: Right, but how is -- I'm sorry.
22 I thought I understood you to say that potentially 23 the settlement agreement between Coleman and 24 Arthur Andersen will have some bearing on the 25 choice of law to be applied in this case.

1 MR. CLARE: I may have misspoken.

2 THE COURT: Maybe I misunderstood it.

3 MR. CLARE: We're not a party to that
4 agreement, so obviously, it doesn't bear directly
5 on it, but I do think it is relevant to their 6 expectation that events giving rise to this
7 controversy arising out of the Sunbeam transaction
8 will be governed at least in part by New York law.

9 So that's an additional reason why we think
10 it's relevant. But the primary reasons are the 11 setoff, the damages claims, we're going to need
12 our experts to prepare damages reports at some 13 point to submit our expert testimony on damages
14 and also to evaluate our position, our potential
15 liability exposure. Without knowing what the 16 setoff is, it's impossible for my client to --

17 THE COURT: So are you saying the only part
18 of the agreement you need access to is the dollar
19 amount?

20 MR. CLARE: No, actually, that's not correct.
21 Under the City of Homestead case, the Court said
22 the amount and the terms need to be disclosed.

23 I can't conjure up all of the reasons why it
24 might be relevant. Those are the reasons that 25 I've identified here. There may be a denial of 0011

1 liability by Arthur Andersen. There may be an
2 admission of liability by Arthur Andersen. There
3 may be a release of claims coming back the other
4 direction against Coleman Parent. I just don't 5 have any idea without seeing the agreement to 6 understand the relevance of it. And that's why
7 the procedures that Mr. Scarola has suggested,
8 which is to delay and defer production of this 9 settlement agreement until later in the case, is 10 not appropriate, nor is an in camera inspection to 11 review, because having access to the discovery,
12 wanting to take the depositions of Arthur Andersen
13 people, there's no way that we can tell from an in 14 camera review or by delaying months and months
15 until trial whether we'll be able to effectively
16 cross examine witnesses during depositions and the 17 like.

18 It would be a different case if they had not 19 identified Arthur Andersen as critical to the 20 establishment of their case.

21 THE COURT: Okay. Let me see what
22 plaintiff's position is. Thank you.

23 MR. SCAROLA: Good afternoon, Your Honor.
24 Jack Scarola on behalf of Coleman Parent Holdings
25 Company.

0012

1 If I may, let me present both the defense and
2 the Court with copies of some highlighted cases
3 that I would like to discuss, Your Honor, in the 4 course of our presentation.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

6 MR. SCAROLA: Let me begin, Your Honor, by 7 acknowledging that as the defendants themselves
8 have stated, Rule 1.280(b)(1) permits discovery of 9 all relevant evidence; that is, evidence relevant
10 to the subject matter of the case, but that 11 evidence must also be either admissible or 12 reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of 13 admissible evidence. And we must concede that the 14 principal case relied upon by the defense, the 15 City of Homestead, would require Your Honor to 16 compel disclosure of the amount of this
17 settlement.

18 There is language in the City of Homestead
19 case that has been accurately quoted in the 20 defendant's brief, and it is that the settlement
21 terms and amount must be disclosed.

22 But if Your Honor takes a look at that
23 opinion, and we're going to go through it together
24 if you'll indulge me for just a moment, you'll 25 find that the reference to terms is pure dicta.

1 This is a case involving the wrongful death
2 of a seven-year-old, and there were two defendants
3 named in the lawsuit; an entity called
4 Meda-Therapy Institute and the City of Homestead.
5 The case, while pending, was settled with 6 Meda-Therapy Institute and proceeded against the 7 city. There was a confidential settlement
8 agreement -- excuse me. There was a settlement
9 agreement that was entered into, and the city,
10 according to the opinion, and this appears under 11 headnote 1, the last sentence in the paragraph,
12 quote, the city filed a motion to compel
13 disclosure of the settlement amount. The Court
14 denied the motion.

15 The opinion then goes on to say, the motion
16 to compel should have been granted, the settlement
17 terms and amount must be disclosed.

18 There was never even, according to the 19 opinion, a request for the terms, there was a 20 request for the amount. And the rationale in the 21 opinion was that the amount may be relevant to 22 setoff and the remaining defendant was entitled to 23 know what that amount was for that reason.

24 So the only issue before the Court was 25 whether the amount should be disclosed. There is

1 no reference to any confidentiality provisions in
2 the settlement agreement, so the case is
3 distinguishable from the standpoint that there was
4 no contractual obligation imposed upon any party,
5 at least based upon the opinion, to keep the terms
6 of the settlement confidential.

7 And the Court also observed that a factor
8 that was taken into consideration in this case was 9 that the defendant seeking this discovery was a
10 public entity, and the Court found that to be a 11 relevant factor. In the last sentence of the 12 opinion, the Court says, the case for disclosure
13 is especially strong, whereas here the plaintiffs
14 are suing a public entity.

15 The precedent upon which this case is based,
16 the one cited authority is the case of Smith vs.
17 TIB Bank of The Keys, another Third DCA opinion.
18 And in that case, a plaintiff was seeking
19 certiorari review of an order compelling answers
20 during the course of a deposition. The plaintiff
21 had been involved in a prior unrelated lawsuit
22 arising out of the plaintiff's employment with an
23 entirely separate entity, and the plaintiff
24 settled that unrelated claim and entered into a
25 settlement agreement that did have contractual

0015

1 requirements that the terms of the settlement
2 remain confidential.

3 When the questions were asked during
4 deposition, the plaintiff declined to answer those 5 on the basis that answering the questions would 6 place the plaintiff in violation of the 7 confidentiality provisions in the earlier order.

8 The trial court entered an order which 9 recognized the obligation for the plaintiff to 10 decline to answer questions that were within the 11 scope of the confidentiality provision of the 12 order, and the trial court fashioned an order that 13 was expressly designed to give maximum effect to 14 the rights of privacy that arose out of the 15 confidentiality provision and at the same time
16 provide the defendant seeking the discovery with 17 relevant and material information.

18 So the Court basically said you must answer
19 these questions, you are within your rights to 20 decline to answer questions that fall within the 21 scope of the confidentiality provision.

22 And if you take a look at the opinion, you
23 will see that the Court has weighed the right of 24 privacy and the expectation of privacy arising out
25 of the confidentiality provisions in the

1 settlement agreement and balanced those against
2 the rights for discovery, which we think is what
3 appropriately must be done.

4 We have also provided the Court with a Fourth
5 DCA case that recognizes a general principal that 6 materials sought to be discovered must properly be
7 related to the issues involved in the litigation.
8 That's a case that has been cited in our brief and 9 recognizes the fact that Rule 1.280(b)(1) is not
10 to be used simply for gathering information
11 regarding settlement possibilities.

12 And we have given the Court two federal cases
13 that interpret the identical provisions in the 14 federal rules and weigh the privacy rights against 15 the rights to disclosure and approve a procedure
16 whereby the Court has conducted an in camera
17 inspection to make a determination as to whether 18 any provisions in the settlement agreement must be 19 disclosed because they have the possibility of 20 providing grounds for impeachment of the settling
21 party.

22 We think that that's the appropriate
23 procedure for the Court to follow under these 24 circumstances.

25 There have been a number of arguments that

0017

1 have been made as to potential reasons for the 2 disclosure of information contained within the 3 settlement agreement. Those are contained within 4 the reply memo that Your Honor has not yet had an
5 opportunity to see, but if you turn to page 6,
6 there are individual bullet points that catalog
7 the bases --

8 THE COURT: I'm sorry, this is contained
9 where?

10 MR. SCAROLA: In the reply memo that was 11 filed by defendants. I'll just give Your Honor my 12 copy.

13 There are various bullet points at the top
14 that talk about things that reasonably might 15 appear within a settlement agreement and might 16 provide a basis for some argument that portions of 17 the settlement agreement are relevant or material.

18 We are prepared to provide the settlement
19 agreement to Your Honor for in camera inspection.
20 I have it with me today. It's relatively brief,
21 and you can look at it quickly. You're going to 22 find, to corroborate the representations we have 23 already made to the Court, there are no
24 cooperation provisions in the agreement, there are 25 no provisions that require Arthur Andersen to

1 produce witnesses in a particular forum.
2 THE COURT: How many pages is it?
3 MR. SCAROLA: It's about four or five.
4 THE COURT: Any objection to my looking at it
5 now?
6 MR. CLARE: No, Your Honor.
7 THE COURT: Okay.
8 It's more than four or five.
9 MR. IANNO: Even with my eyes, Your Honor, it
10 looks single spaced.
11 THE COURT: I saw that.
12 MR. SCAROLA: It is single spaced.
13 I tried to tab the paragraphs that I thought
14 might be of particular concern to the Court, and 15 some of it you'll be able to see just by the 16 nature of the subject matter dealt with in the 17 paragraph.
18 THE COURT: Can you give me just one second
19 to look at it?
20 MR. SCAROLA: Sure.
21 THE COURT: Because I want to get a sense of 22 what we're talking about.
23 MR. SCAROLA: Absolutely.
24 Your Honor, may I interrupt for just one
25 moment?

16div001556

0019

1 THE COURT: Sure.

2 MR. SCAROLA: I would appreciate if Your
3 Honor would order me to produce that for in camera
4 inspection.

5 THE COURT: Oh, yes, I just did. I'm sorry.

6 MR. SCAROLA: Thank you. I thought that's
7 what you were doing.

8 THE COURT: That's what I was doing.

9 MR. SCAROLA: Thank you.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MR. SCAROLA: To conclude, Your Honor, in 12 addition to those items that are listed in the 13 reply memo, there has, for the first time, been a
14 suggestion that if there were a choice of forum
15 provision contained within that agreement, that it
16 might have some relevance to the issues with 17 respect to forum non conveniens, and I think
18 Your Honor will see from a review of the document
19 that there is no stipulation with regard to an 20 appropriate forum for litigation concerning that 21 agreement.

22 So I think that upon review of the document,
23 there is only one provision in the document that 24 has any relevance or materiality with respect to 25 this litigation, and that is the issue of the

0020

1 amount of the settlement which relates solely to
2 the issue of setoff, and upon court order, we are
3 prepared to make a confidential disclosure of the 4 amount of that settlement under the terms of the 5 confidentiality agreement previously entered. We
6 would designate that as confidential information
7 in order to restrict its proper use to this case
8 and make the disclosure with regard to that
9 amount.

10 THE COURT: Any objection to my making a
11 photocopy of it?

12 MR. SCAROLA: No, not at all.

13 THE COURT: Thanks.

14 Was the settlement consummated?

15 MR. SCAROLA: Yes.

16 THE COURT: Under its terms?

17 MR. SCAROLA: Yes.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 Do you accept that representation?

20 MR. CLARE: That it was consummated under its 21 terms?

22 THE COURT: Yeah.

23 MR. CLARE: I don't have any reason to 24 believe or not believe that that's incorrect.

25 I would say that this is a non-privileged

1 contract that's no different than any other
2 contract, that I'd like the opportunity to examine
3 the document to understand and pressure test the 4 assertions that Mr. Scarola has made about the
5 document, the nuances associated with it that I
6 would like to explore.

7 And, you know, the Florida courts --

8 MR. SCAROLA: I'm sorry, before there's a
9 rebuttal --

10 THE COURT: I'm sorry, you weren't done.

11 MR. SCAROLA: There's just one last point
12 that I want to make.

13 THE COURT: Sure.

14 MR. SCAROLA: And that is that Florida does 15 have a constitutionally-recognized right to 16 privacy. This is private economic information.
17 There must be a balancing test between that right
18 to privacy and the defendant's rights in this 19 lawsuit, and that right to privacy needs to be 20 taken into careful consideration before any other 21 terms of this agreement were to be disclosed. And 22 I suggest that upon reading the agreement, it is 23 abundantly clear that none of the stated purposes
24 for which this discovery is sought would be served
25 by the disclosure of any other provision in that

1 document at all.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MR. SCAROLA: Thank you.

4 THE COURT: What did you want to respond,
5 sir?

6 MR. CLARE: Just on that last point, Your 7 Honor, there's --

8 MR. SCAROLA: I'm sorry. Just one last
9 thing.

10 Mr. Jackson has been rehearsing all day long
11 to be able to say with credibility I agree with 12 everything Mr. Scarola just said, so could we just 13 give him the opportunity to do that on behalf of 14 Arthur Andersen?

15 MR. JACKSON: Your Honor, Hank Jackson on
16 behalf of Arthur Andersen.

17 THE COURT: Okay. I'm glad to know that 18 you're here. I didn't realize you were here for 19 Arthur Andersen.

20 MR. JACKSON: I'm from Holland & Knight.
21 We represented Arthur Andersen in the previous 22 lawsuit and were part of the settlement
23 negotiations and the settlement.

24 I'd just like to reiterate that the 25 confidentiality provision was a material term of

1 that agreement, and we believe that to the extent
2 permissible by law, that it should be enforced,
3 and it should only be breached or allowed to come
4 out in the open to the extent that it is clearly
5 established that it is relevant. And we believe
6 that the proper procedure is for the Court to look
7 at it in camera and to make that judgment, and 8 we'd ask that you do that.

9 THE COURT: What did you want to respond,
10 sir?

11 MR. CLARE: On Mr. Scarola's final point,
12 with the Court's permission, I'll hand to counsel
13 and to Your Honor just some citations to Florida
14 cases that are all cited in our brief that make 15 the point that a contractual confidentiality
16 provision cannot be used to subvert discovery.

17 There's a protective order in this case. We 18 will agree to be bound by the full extent of the 19 confidentiality order in terms of disclosing it.
20 We will go one step further and agree to make it
21 attorney's eyes only with the proviso that I be
22 able to show it to a limited number of in-house
23 attorneys at Morgan Stanley for the purposes of 24 evaluating it for the purposes that I've
25 identified for Your Honor.

0024

1 So with the confidentiality order, the
2 balancing test that Mr. Scarola has already
3 identified has already been done. Those privacy
4 considerations that Arthur Andersen is worried
5 about about disclosure, nothing's going to be in 6 the open. This is all going to be treated as the 7 highest degree of confidentiality under the 8 protective order that Your Honor has already 9 signed, and we agree and are willing to accept
10 those restrictions on our use of it.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Let me take another
12 advisement, okay?

13 Thank you very much.

14 MR. SCAROLA: Your Honor, there is one
15 additional brief matter, if we could impose upon
16 the Court. We had actually set it for an 8:45
17 hearing this morning, and because of Your Honor's
18 crowded calendar, we hoped that we might just 19 bring it to you this afternoon.

20 THE COURT: Sure. What is that?

21 You can take this back, sir. Thanks.

22 MR. SCAROLA: Your Honor, it relates to the 23 exchange of correspondence with which we barraged
24 you concerning the entry of an order --

25 THE COURT: Oh, yeah. Okay.

1 MR. SCAROLA: -- arising out of a stipulated
2 agreement between the parties.

3 If I could hand Your Honor the transcript of 4 the earlier hearing.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Is it your position there
6 was a stipulation?

7 MR. SCAROLA: It is absolutely my position
8 that there was an on-the-record stipulation, yes,
9 Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MR. SCAROLA: This is the motion for entry of 12 an order upon stipulation of the parties, and I'll 13 pull Your Honor's attention to those specific and 14 brief provisions that indicate that there was 15 indeed a stipulation.

16 If we begin at page 2, I am addressing the 17 Court at line 13, "We have come to an agreement,
18 specifically with regard to the motion to compel
19 production of e-mails."

20 Going down to line 18, "For the record, my 21 name is Jack Scarola. I'm here on behalf of the 22 plaintiff, Coleman Parent Holdings. There are two 23 motions. The first is a motion to compel directed
24 to the production of e-mails. The agreement that 25 we have reached is that the defendant, Morgan

0026

1 Stanley, will produce a witness who is
2 knowledgeable with respect to the retention and
3 retrieval -- the retention policies and retrieval
4 capabilities with regard to e-mails. They will 5 also produce all documents that were submitted to
6 federal regulators with regard to Morgan Stanley's
7 e-mail retention policies and retrieval
8 capabilities."

9 Morgan Stanley was sued by government
10 regulators and paid in excess of a million dollars
11 for violating document retention policies, and we 12 wanted to get the documents that the federal 13 government obtained in connection with that 14 proceeding. So there's an agreement that they're 15 going to produce a witness.

16 The next part of the agreement appears at
17 page 5.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. SCAROLA: Mr. Clare is speaking.

20 Mr. Clare addresses the Court at line 14. He 21 says, beginning at line 12, "Just in the interest
22 of completeness and while we're waiting for the 23 schedule," because there was another motion we 24 were discussing, "Mr. Scarola described in broad 25 outlines what the agreed-upon order would be on

0027

1 this other motion. There is one caveat I
2 explained to Mr. Scarola in the hallway, and we
3 will work it out between the parties before we
4 submit an agreed-upon order to Your Honor. I am
5 not aware as I sit here right now what limitations
6 there are right now without disclosing to 7 Mr. Scarola's client information we provided to 8 federal regulators."

9 And I think that "without" is supposed to be 10 "about" disclosing, "there are right now about 11 disclosing."

12 THE COURT: You're saying if there were 13 regulations in place that would prohibit them from 14 disclosing them.

15 MR. SCAROLA: That's right.

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. SCAROLA: What Mr. Clare is saying is 18 there may be some restrictions and I don't know
19 what they are and I need --

20 THE COURT: We may not be able to do some of 21 this stuff.

22 MR. SCAROLA: That's correct. So he is
23 saying that.

24 He says, "We agreed to provide whatever it is 25 we can provide."

1 Okay? So he's saying, whatever documents
2 we're allowed to provide, we'll give to you.

3 He then goes on to say at line 6 on page 6,
4 "I know there are materials we can provide, I just
5 don't know the scope of it."

6 I then speak, and I say, "The only caveat to 7 that is that there's a commitment that they will 8 provide good faith cooperation in obtaining 9 whatever information is necessary in order to make 10 full disclosure."

11 And Mr. Clare says, "That's correct."

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MR. SCAROLA: Now, that was the agreement.
14 We're going to both provide witnesses that are 15 going to talk about e-mail retention procedures
16 and capabilities, and the second part is, they're 17 going to give us everything that they gave to the 18 federal government except to the extent that they 19 are prohibited from doing so. And if there are 20 prohibitions, they are going to provide good faith
21 cooperation in an effort to try to give us full
22 disclosure.

23 That's the order that I submitted to the 24 Court, and there has been an effort now to recede
25 from that agreement and to change it.

1 THE COURT: Do you have a copy of your
2 proposed order?
3 MR. SCAROLA: Yes, Your Honor, I do.
4 I provided the Court separately the original --
5 THE COURT: It's attached? Oh, this is it.
6 Okay.
7 MR. SCAROLA: Did I give it to Your Honor?
8 THE COURT: I assume so. Yeah. It's
9 attached to the transcript.
10 MR. SCAROLA: That's the one, yes.
11 THE COURT: Okay. That's fine. Let me just 12 look at it.
13 MR. SCAROLA: Sure.
14 THE COURT: Okay. And what's the objection?
15 MR. IANNO: Judge, Joe Ianno. This dispute
16 centers around one thing.
17 THE COURT: What's that?
18 MR. IANNO: The submission that Mr. Scarola
19 wants that was provided to the federal regulators
20 is right now the subject of a motion pending in 21 the Federal Court in the Southern District to 22 prevent its disclosure. By providing it to 23 Mr. Scarola, we would be violating or mooting that 24 motion that was filed by a co-defendant in that 25 case.

16div001567

0030

1 What we've told Mr. Scarola --

2 THE COURT: I'm sorry, tell me a little bit
3 more about what you're saying.

4 MR. IANNO: Okay. There is a motion right
5 now that is pending, an action in the Federal
6 District that we've cited in our response. It's 7 entitled --

8 THE COURT: I don't have your response. If 9 you have it, that would be great.

10 MR. IANNO: I do. Here's a copy of our 11 response, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: Thank you. Okay.

13 MR. IANNO: And we've attached a proposed 14 alternate order to our response. And the case in 15 the federal court is styled In Re: Initial Public
16 Offering Securities Litigation, it's pending in 17 the Southern District of New York in Federal 18 Court. That motion is directed -- it's filed by a
19 co-defendant of Morgan Stanley's in that case --
20 to prevent the disclosure of what is called the 21 Wells Submission, which is the document that 22 Mr. Scarola is attempting to get.

23 THE COURT: I'm sorry, who is trying to 24 prevent the disclosure of this?

25 MR. IANNO: A co-defendant. There is another

0031

1 underwriting defendant.

2 THE COURT: A private party?

3 MR. IANNO: Another private party. They're
4 saying that this document is prohibited from 5 disclosure because it's settlement discussions.
6 It's the negotiations leading up to the settlement
7 with the SEC, and they're saying that settlement
8 discussions, not the final agreement, but the 9 settlement discussions leading up to the SEC
10 settlement are prohibited from being disclosed in 11 discovery.

12 That motion, to my understanding, has been 13 fully briefed and is awaiting ruling by Judge
14 Scheindlin in New York.

15 THE COURT: These are documents that your 16 client provided?

17 MR. IANNO: To the SEC, I believe that's 18 correct, yes, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Okay.

20 MR. IANNO: And this underwriting defendant,
21 co-defendant, is saying these documents are not
22 discoverable in the federal court. We're
23 waiting --

24 THE COURT: Were they documents drafted for 25 the SEC or just documents provided to the SEC?

1 MR. IANNO: They were drafted for the SEC in
2 connection with the settlement discussions of the 3 SEC action that Mr. Scarola referenced in his 4 argument.

5 THE COURT: These are e-mails?

6 MR. IANNO: No. It's a document describing
7 Morgan Stanley's e-mail retrieval and retention.

8 THE COURT: Oh, I see.

9 MR. IANNO: It's discussing how e-mails are 10 stored, how they're backed up, how they're 11 retrieved, things of that nature. It's about a 12 40 or 50-page document is my understanding of that 13 document. And it's submitted in connection with 14 the SEC claims against Morgan Stanley and other
15 defendants, as I understand that.

16 What Mr. Clare said when we were here on 17 November 6th, and it's reflected in the 18 transcript, is he did not know, and he's here to 19 speak to that, but what was our ability to waive
20 at the time. And what Mr. Scarola didn't read
21 from the transcript is when Mr. Clare was here on
22 page 6 --

23 THE COURT: Let me get to that. Okay. What 24 line?

25 MR. IANNO: It's line 8. And it's where

0033

1 Mr. Scarola stopped. "And I don't want to
2 represent to the Court that we're waiving or even
3 have the ability to waive protections that I'm not
4 aware of right now."

5 Specifically, this case came up after we went
6 back and consulted with the client. If you look
7 just above that on line 4, Mr. Clare says he 8 doesn't know all the details without consulting
9 the client.

10 What we had agreed to do on November 6th is 11 go back and draft a proposed agreed order. That's 12 reflected back on page 2, I believe, where the 13 Court asks you, you expect me to remember this 14 when you submit a proposed agreed order. That's 15 what we were talking about.

16 What we've told Mr. Scarola repeatedly and 17 what we've said in our proposed order, once the 18 judge rules in New York, if we're permitted to 19 disclose it, we'll give it to you within five
20 days. That's the only dispute.

21 If the judge rules that it's not
22 discoverable, we can't produce it in this case
23 without violating that court order. And what 24 Mr. Scarola wants us to do, he says, well, I want
25 you to go in and waive that protection and waive

0034

1 the judge's ruling, because if the judge has ruled
2 today --
3 THE COURT: He's saying you already did.
4 Is that right?
5 MR. SCAROLA: Absolutely.
6 MR. IANNO: But Mr. Clare when he was here
7 specifically told the Court, and we knew, and the 8 Court recognized indeed that there may be other
9 problems with the disclosure of this document.
10 THE COURT: Well, let me ask you this.
11 The way I read that transcript, you-all were 12 agreeing that unless some federal regulation
13 prohibits the disclosure, you'll make it, and if 14 it does, you'll apply, you know, to permit a
15 disclosure.
16 MR. IANNO: And we've waived confidentiality.
17 We have done the good faith cooperation and waived
18 the confidentiality. The only thing we can't 19 waive is this federal court proceeding at this
20 time.
21 THE COURT: Why not?
22 MR. IANNO: Because there's a --
23 THE COURT: Because you don't want to, or 24 because there's something else going on?
25 MR. IANNO: It's another defendant that

16div001572

0035

1 brought the motion, Judge. We would be mooting
2 the co-defendant's motion at that point in time.
3 All the details, I'm not a party, I'm not a member
4 of the Bar in New York, I don't know all the 5 details going on in the New York case and why or 6 why not this document is being prohibited from
7 disclosure.

8 But, for instance, if this court rules that
9 we should disclose the Wells Submission to Scarola
10 and at the same time the federal court has ruled
11 that it can't be disclosed --

12 THE COURT: Can't be disclosed to whom?

13 MR. IANNO: To anyone.

14 As I understand the motion in New York, it's 15 to prohibit disclosure of this document in 16 discovery.

17 THE COURT: Well, but that's different than 18 saying it can't be disclosed to a non-party.

19 MR. IANNO: Well, I think it's saying you
20 can't disclose this document to anyone.

21 MR. CLARE: Your Honor --

22 MR. IANNO: And maybe Mr. Clare --

23 MR. CLARE: I only have a little bit better
24 of an understanding of this, because I'm also not
25 a party to this New York action.

1 we had requested in the Wells Process, which is an
2 enforcement action, that we had to maintain its 3 confidentiality.

4 THE COURT: As against whom; the world?

5 MR. CLARE: As against the world, sure.

6 And if we had produced it to the New York
7 Times or provided it to third parties, then we
8 were waiving this protection, this Wells
9 Regulatory Process that we had in place.

10 And so we're willing to waive that. Morgan
11 Stanley has said, for the good of this agreement,
12 we are more than happy to waive that request. The 13 only thing -- There's this judicial proceeding
14 that is determining what is this Wells Process
15 about. It is exactly the federal regulatory 16 enforcement process that's being interpreted by 17 Judge Scheindlin in New York, what is the Wells
18 Process.

19 When you get to a certain stage in the Wells
20 Process and the parties are contemplating a
21 settlement, do materials that are exchanged
22 between the SEC and the potential targets of an 23 investigation, do they take on the conduct of 24 settlement negotiations such that they're not
25 discoverable by third parties? That is the issue

0038

1 that's being --

2 THE COURT: What do you mean they're not
3 discoverable by third parties? If I enter into a
4 settlement agreement, while there may be limits or 5 there may be privileges attached as to what gets 6 said in the settlement, nothing prohibits me in 7 general from going and telling everybody else what
8 happened.

9 MR. CLARE: And the Wells Process, in order
10 to maintain that confidentiality, which is a
11 confidentiality in the Wells Process that 12 implicates enforcement considerations that it
13 might get us crosswise with the SEC if we were to 14 disclose during settlement discussions with the 15 SEC, if we were to go out and say here's what 16 we're talking about the SEC, here's the 17 enforcement proceedings that's underway, here's 18 what they're looking at, that would get my client
19 potentially crosswise with the SEC.

20 So there's a lot of issues at stake with the 21 integrity of the Wells Process.

22 THE COURT: But the SEC is not saying you
23 can't disclose this?

24 MR. CLARE: The SEC is not a party to the 25 pending action in New York.

0040

1 is somehow related to Morgan Stanley. It's a
2 Morgan Stanley subsidiary or affiliate.

3 Now, they can't come before Your Honor and
4 say we're going to provide you with good faith
5 cooperation to get all these documents while at 6 the same time through a subsidiary they're trying 7 to get a New York court to enter an order that
8 would prohibit us from getting the documents.

9 And the bottom line is, this proposed order
10 asks them to do nothing that would violate any 11 existing obligation of confidentiality, but if 12 there is no existing obligation of 13 confidentiality, they're required to turn over
14 everything that they have the authority to turn
15 over. If the authority exists today to turn it
16 over, we should get it. If it doesn't exist
17 today, we can't get it, but they're required to 18 provide good faith cooperation in helping us to 19 get it.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. SCAROLA: That's all that we're asking.
22 That's what they agreed to.

23 THE COURT: Let me take another advisement.
24 It's his motion, he goes first and last.

25 MR. IANNO: I have an alternative order,

3 THE COURT: Good afternoon. Have a seat.
4 This is Coleman and Morgan Stanley. Where do we 5 want to start?

6 MR. SCAROLA: Your Honor, Jack Scarola on 7 behalf of Coleman Parent. With me is Mr. Jerry
8 Solovy, Mr. Ron Marmer, and this is Steve Fastman
9 (ph), our corporate representative.

10 And I think that we are probably in 11 agreement that the first issue to be dealt with,
12 which can be dealt with rather easily, is a
13 determination as to the consolidation of the two 14 related pending cases. And I think that both
15 parties are in agreement that it is appropriate,
16 both for purposes of discovery and trial, to 17 consolidate these related matters.

18 THE COURT: Is that accurate?

19 MR. BEMIS: Good afternoon, Your Honor.
20 Lawrence Bemis with Kirkland & Ellis on behalf of 21 Morgan Stanley and Morgan Stanley Senior
22 Funding.

23 The answer is, yes, I think we all agree to
24 that.

25 THE COURT: I'm just trying to think,

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 mechanically, how do we want to do that?

2 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor, there is no separate
3 order on that. We did submit a proposed order
4 which was based on what we understood was a
5 sample pretrial compliance order for case
6 management conference Your Honor had entered, but 7 the consolidation issue, for reasons which escape
8 me, was not put in there, so we will need a
9 separate order ordering consolidation.

10 THE COURT: Right. But I'm just trying to 11 figure out mechanically what we want the clerk to 12 do with the files and how we would like to 13 proceed with the pleadings.

14 MR. BEMIS: I think the way it's done is we 15 put both case captions on each and file them
16 accordingly.

17 MR. SCAROLA: Either that or Your Honor's
18 order can simply direct us to file all pleadings
19 under the lower case number and we'll just style
20 everything under the lower case number. I think 21 what otherwise happens is that the clerk requires
22 us to file duplicates.

23 THE COURT: We don't want to do that. I
24 want to have one place where we look for 25 everything.

1 MR. BEMIS: What I would like, Your Honor,
2 is not to have the single number on the cases,
3 but that both numbers appear, for reasons I'm 4 going to explain. There may be additional 5 counsel in this case who will be only in one of 6 the cases and not the other.

7 THE COURT: So are we agreeing we're
8 consolidating for all purposes?

9 MR. SCAROLA: Yes, Your Honor, both
10 discovery and trial.

11 MR. BEMIS: Yes, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: For discovery and trial. Okay.
13 So we will use a joint caption, but with the 14 lower number listed first, and you'll direct the 15 clerk to place everything from now on in the 16 lower-numbered case?

17 MR. SCAROLA: I think that works.

18 MR. BEMIS: That's fine, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Okay. Is there a written motion
20 to consolidate? If so, who filed it?

21 MR. BEMIS: It is not, Your Honor. But it
22 would normally be something that under Rule 1.200
23 we would take up at this time.

24 THE COURT: No, no. I'm just trying to 25 think. I'm writing my notes so I can do the

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 order and whether I had to say it was a joint or
2 was it written or oral --

3 MR. SCAROLA: Pursuant to oral stipulation
4 of the parties.

5 THE COURT: So we agree it is a joint ore
6 tenus motion to consolidate?

7 MR. BEMIS: Actually, it's in our joint
8 written statement to the Court, as you ordered,
9 that we agreed to it, so it's actually pursuant
10 to a written statement.

11 THE COURT: Okay. What next?

12 MR. SCAROLA: Your Honor, I think that the 13 next matter appropriately addressed is the issue
14 of the trial date. I think that once Your Honor
15 has made a determination as to when this case
16 will be tried, then the parties are going to be 17 able to come to an agreement with regard to 18 establishing other related deadlines based upon
19 that trial date.

20 And Your Honor may recall from a review of 21 our submissions, that not surprisingly on this
22 side of the courtroom we have requested an August 23 trial date and on that side of the courtroom they 24 have suggested a February 2005 trial date.

25 I will tell Your Honor, that from the

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 Plaintiff's perspective, we are prepared to split
2 the difference with the defense and choose a date
3 between the August and February date, taking into
4 account these considerations; the Jewish Holidays
5 are in September and it would be difficult for us
6 to select a date that was either during or very 7 close to the September Jewish Holidays, and,
8 obviously I think that all parties would be
9 concerned in terms of our ability to select a
10 jury if we start bumping up against Thanksgiving,
11 Christmas and the New Year. What that means,
12 since we anticipate 15 trial days, three weeks of 13 trial, is that a date approximately the middle of 14 October would be far enough away from the 15 September holidays and also far enough away from 16 Thanksgiving that we would be able to comfortably
17 complete the trial in that period. So our 18 suggestion, in light of the requests that have 19 been made on both sides, if it fits in with Your 20 Honor's calendar, we are suggesting that a date
21 be selected in the beginning, approximately mid
22 October.

23 THE COURT: I guess a more fundamental
24 preliminary question, are we at issue yet?

25 MR. BEMIS: We are in --

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 MR. SCAROLA: We are currently at issue.

2 THE COURT: Although you still plan to file
3 a motion to amend punitive damages?

4 MR. SCAROLA: That is correct, we are
5 anticipating filing a motion to amend to add
6 punitive damages.

7 I will tell Your Honor that it is our
8 position that that motion does not, because it
9 only goes to the relief sought, place the case in 10 a position where this matter is not at issue and 11 could not be set for trial.

12 THE COURT: Your suggestion is this be set
13 for trial in mid October?

14 MR. SCAROLA: That's correct.

15 THE COURT: That strikes me, quit honestly,
16 as pretty ambitious for a case this size.

17 MR. SCAROLA: Well, Your Honor, we have been 18 proceeding very quickly with regard to the 19 discovery in this matter. As Your Honor is well
20 aware, this is not the first litigation that 21 arises out of these related circumstances, so
22 discovery has been expedited by virtue of the 23 fact that we have been able to exchange documents
24 previously compiled in relation to other
25 litigation and rely upon prior deposition

16div001587

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 testimony taken in connection with other
2 litigation. And while this certainly is a
3 matter of substantial magnitude, we feel very 4 comfortable about our ability to be ready for 5 trial in early August and certainly anticipate no
6 problem whatsoever in being ready to go to trial
7 in October. So I don't think it is as ambitious
8 as might appear at first blush.

9 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor, may I use the 10 podium?

11 THE COURT: However you're more comfortable
12 is fine.

13 MR. BEMIS: I'm used to a podium.

14 Your Honor, as you're aware, there are two 15 calendars. And I won't go in the intermediate 16 base because I do agree with Mr. Scarola, that 17 once we have a trial date, we can work
18 backwards. And whatever date you select, we'll 19 deal with that offline and not take the Court's
20 time.

21 I didn't know until just now that they're in 22 agreement that it's a three-week trial. So it's 23 a jury trial.

24 THE COURT: Well, the only thing I will
25 point out is we're not in trial on Fridays. So

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 if we're talking about 15 trial days, it's really
2 a four-week trial.

3 MR. BEMIS: So it's a four-week trial, Your
4 Honor.

5 Based on the original schedule, we proposed
6 a date approximately 12 months forward. And I
7 thought that was a very aggressive schedule, for 8 reasons I'm going to tell you, and I question
9 whether we can meet it. And the reason is,
10 overall, while they say this has been done
11 before, it is true that they have done it before,
12 as I'm going to explain, but Morgan Stanley and 13 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding haven't been a 14 party to any of the other litigation and we 15 haven't gone through all of this before, so they 16 had a huge head start in terms of their
17 preparation for the case.

18 Even an October schedule, Your Honor, I
19 think is extraordinarily unrealistic for a number 20 of reasons. First of all, it is a huge case and 21 it's not old. I mean, these cases were filed in 22 May of 2003. It was on the very eve of the 23 running of the statute of limitations, which had 24 already been extended by --

25 THE COURT: That's not relevant to what

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 we're looking at, but go ahead, sir.

2 MR. BEMIS: But the point of it is that
3 there are no equities in this case that require
4 us to go on a crazy track of double tracking
5 depositions and creating all kinds of logistical
6 difficulties when a pace of one year to get this 7 case finished is not unreasonable, given its 8 size. We have $2 billion of damages asserted on 9 one side; $680 million on our side. You have 10 five sets of parties to this case: You have the 11 parties to the acquisition, we have the 12 accountants, we have the law firm, investment
13 bankers, financial advisors. There are three 14 sets of either litigation or proposed litigation
15 that were massive that preceded this. There was 16 the Coleman claims against Sunbeam, which did not 17 result in litigation, but there was a lot of 18 paperwork generated there. Coleman sued Arthur
19 Anderson. There was a big settlement there.
20 You're familiar with that because we had an issue
21 over the production of the settlement agreement.
22 There was a shareholder suit for Sunbeam. SEC
23 investigation. We received in August 400 boxes
24 of documents in the case. There have been 210
25 witnesses who have given testimony in these cases

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 over 400 plus days. And we have had eight
2 months at this point to try to work ourself
3 through that.

4 Now the parties have been moving quickly.
5 I've been on the case only three or four weeks.
6 And I was brought in because it has been moving
7 quickly and because I've also -- I practiced in 8 Florida for 18 years. This case -- in nine
9 months we have accomplished an extraordinary
10 amount of written discovery. I could go through 11 it, but I think you're aware of it. We have many 12 document requests, hundreds of requests for 13 admissions, interrogatories. And that's on both
14 cases. We've been doing both cases
15 simultaneously. We've had 18 depositions taken
16 already. There are 28 deposition notices or 17 commissions pending today. Twenty-eight. Now
18 in terms of motion practice, you're well familiar
19 with that. And on top of what we've 20 accomplished, we have the pending appeal on the 21 venue issue. Now Your Honor's ruled on that 22 issue on December 15th. The first appellant
23 brief, Your Honor, is due February 25th. And if 24 we assume the 40/40 -- or excuse me -- 20/20 plus 25 extensions, if any are requested, we still have

16div001591

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 the briefing, their oral argument, which we'll be
2 requesting. I frankly -- my experience in the 3 Fourth DCA is that we probably won't have a
4 decision by either August or October. Now I
5 could be wrong on that. But the last case I had,
6 which the decision came down in October of last
7 year, it took 18 months from oral argument to get
8 an opinion and it's now on rehearing. So I
9 think we're kidding ourselves that we're going to 10 get that issue resolved. Now why is that 11 important? Two reasons. One is, you can't enter
12 a final judgement in the case, even if you triad
13 (ph) the verdict, for either party. You'd have 14 to stay entry of the judgement. If the court of 15 appeals were to disagree with Your Honor -- and 16 respectfully that is a possibility --

17 THE COURT: Sure.

18 MR. BEMIS: -- the entire trial is a nullity,
19 under the Supreme Court's decision in Leroy
20 versus Great Western United at 443 U.S. 173. It
21 was a case under the Williams Act. I don't 22 believe there's any Florida case directly on 23 point, but I know that's Federal law and I
24 believe that would be the law in Florida.

25 Also, Your Honor, there's going to be an

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 additional party requested to be added. Morgan
2 Stanley Senior Funding intends to add Arthur
3 Anderson as a defendant to the case in the Morgan
4 Stanley Senior Funding case. The claims there
5 will be essentially duplicative, in the sense
6 that they will mirror the claims that Coleman
7 filed against Arthur Anderson and resulted in the 8 settlement agreement that you reviewed. We have 9 proposed a date of April 16th to get that 10 resolved.

11 One of the reasons why we need additional 12 time is that Kirkland & Ellis cannot represent 13 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in that action.
14 We have a conflict. And so Morgan Stanley Senior 15 Funding is reviewing counsel now and they're 16 going to have to handle that matter. The 17 significance of this I think Your Honor would be 18 aware of, having reviewed the settlement
19 agreement, which is subject to a protective order
20 so I don't want to go into the terms of it
21 because it would, I think, violate the terms of 22 it, unless we did an in camera in chambers, but I
23 think Your Honor would know the reason we would 24 bring them in now that we have the settlement
25 agreement, which we didn't get, by the way, until

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 December, so it's a fairly recent development in
2 the case.

3 Another reason, Your Honor, about what is 4 going to happen in terms of scheduling, is just
5 the sheer number of depositions in this case. I
6 did say there have been 18 taken to date. There
7 are now requested, and that means notices are out
8 or commissions have been requested, so we're
9 manipulating dates and witness availability --
10 and, by the way, these have been set without 11 witnesses being asked whether they're available,
12 28 of them in 10 states. We intend to request a
13 total of 42 more depositions and they're located
14 all over the United States. In summary, we've 15 got 28 pending, most of which are by the 16 Plaintiffs. There are some that we have 17 commissions for and we're going to request a
18 total of 42. That's 70 depositions. It's not 19 possible to take 70 depositions in the time that 20 was originally proposed, August 2nd, for trial.
21 That would be one deposition a day, because 22 there's only 70 days left until their proposed 23 discovery cutoff. It's not going to happen. And 24 even extending the discovery cutoff on fact
25 discovery, it is a maniacal schedule that is not

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 conducive to justice in the case. It just isn't
2 necessary when there are no equities to
3 advancement.

4 There are issues you're going to have to
5 resolve, whether it be by summary judgement,
6 which is likely on somebody's part on some of the 7 claims, and we are going to respectfully renew
8 our request that the choice of law issue be 9 resolved prior --

10 THE COURT: Let me ask you all this: I
11 mean, in all honesty, I think October is two 12 months ambitious of a date realistically. What I would 13 like to do is, I'm looking -- can I have a 2005
14 calendar?

15 I believe a good day to start it would be 16 January 27th. That would be the first day of the 17 new docket for me. In my experience, that's a 18 good time to get jurors. Their vacations are 19 done; they're not in that spring vacation mode
20 yet. I just want to double-check that that is a 21 Monday. January 27th is a Monday. I don't 22 know if it's a holiday.

23 MR. BEMIS: It's President's Day.

24 THE COURT: Well, no, I think it might be 25 Martin Luther King's Birthday. It's a holiday.

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 MR. BEMIS: It's one of those days.
2 President's Day is February.

3 THE COURT: That may be Martin Luther King
4 Day. If it is, we'll be starting on a Tuesday.

5 But assuming we take that as a trial date to 6 start, let's work backwards from there.

7 MR. BEMIS: My suggestion on that would be
8 to adopt Mr. Scarola's offer, and that is, that 9 we meet on that and not ask you to take the time
10 today to beat out 30 days, because there are a
11 lot of days --

12 MR. SCAROLA: I agree, Your Honor. That's 13 not likely to create a problem between us.
14 We'll be able to come to an agreement with regard 15 to the dates that fall working backwards from 16 that trial date.

17 THE COURT: That's fine. The only other two 18 things I would like to do then, if we're going to 19 sort of take that as a trial date, is take, I
20 would imagine, at least a day -- you all are 21 going to have to tell me if it needs to be longer
22 than that -- maybe a week or two weeks before the 23 trial date to do all the motions in limine and to 24 do any objections to deposition testimony, and,
25 we need to talk about the procedure for

1 designating both deposition testimony and
2 objections to it. But the only thing that
3 upsets me, particularly if there's a long trial
4 like that, is if we inconvenience the jurors and
5 ask them to wait and waste their time to do
6 things that we, frankly, didn't do ahead of 7 time.

8 MR. BEMIS: I think the proposed schedule
9 that we had put before Your Honor does deal with 10 all those issues. And we'll make sure that it
11 conforms to your suggestion.

12 THE COURT: What I would want to do now,
13 quite honestly, is pick out the time at a minimum
14 for subsequent case management conference
15 hearings and that hearing time we know we're 16 going to need a week or two before the trial gets 17 started. You all then can back into whatever 18 scheduling you want as long as it's before me in 19 a timely manner. But I want the hearing time
20 carved out so we know we have it.

21 MR. SCAROLA: Your Honor, I anticipate that 22 as a consequence of the nature of the litigation
23 and the geographic diversity of the witnesses
24 involved, there will be substantial testimony
25 presented by way of videotape. That will require

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 considerable judicial labor, in terms of page and
2 line designations, and rulings on objections far
3 enough in advance of trial to be able to complete
4 the editing process.

5 THE COURT: Right.

6 MR. SCAROLA: So even the idea that that
7 might be done in a day I think is probably --

8 THE COURT: How long do you think we need?

9 MR. SCAROLA: I'm strictly -- I'm 10 guesstimating based on prior experience in 11 dealing with that kind of situation before. And 12 I would think that we're probably looking at 13 three or four days.

14 THE COURT: That's fine. I'm just 15 looking.

16 MR. SCAROLA: I might suggest that that 17 might be an appropriate task for a special
18 master. That's not something I've discussed with 19 my client or cocounsel yet, but it may be.

20 THE COURT: I don't mind doing that. My 21 only concern would be that requires you to 22 designate the depositions far enough ahead of 23 time so the master can listen to it, issue a 24 report, give time for objections, and then give 25 me time to do whatever I need to do after the

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 objections.

2 MR. SCAROLA: I understand. And, again, I
3 haven't thought about the logistics of that, but
4 it's a suggestion that I think both sides needs
5 to consider. That may help to expedite things
6 ultimately.

7 THE COURT: The only thing I'm wondering,
8 and you all can tell me, my personal experience
9 is that nothing much happens right before or 10 after Christmas. And I'm looking, December 24th
11 is a Friday, whether we want to try to set aside
12 that Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, so now
13 we know we have that time. It's sitting there
14 and if we can use it. . .

15 MR. SCAROLA: That works for us, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: We can do all the motions in 17 limine and any other objections I'm going to have 18 to rule on we have it ready then.

19 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor, if you do that, I'm 20 going to be stuck here for Christmas.

21 THE COURT: You can't get out the 23rd?
22 You're going the wrong way. Where are you
23 going?

24 MR. BEMIS: I'm going back to the west
25 coast. You said the 24th --

16div001599

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 MR. SCAROLA: That'll be the 20th, the 21st
2 and the 22nd.

3 THE COURT: Just those three days.

4 MR. BEMIS: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is 5 fine.

6 THE COURT: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.
7 That would take us only to the 22nd, those three 8 days.

9 MR. SOLOVY: I can think of worse places to 10 be stuck than Palm Beach, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Most people are coming down
12 here.

13 MR. BEMIS: Thank you, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. SOLOVY: That's a great time to get this 16 stuff done.

17 THE COURT: That way we have it done going
18 into the New Year, motions in limine and 19 objections to -- in your proposed timetable, you
20 give time frames for you all to do designations
21 of deposition testimony, objections and --

22 MR. BEMIS: Yes. And then we'd have to 23 present that as a package. We need to work out
24 the logistics of that. Mr. Scarola and I have 25 been through it, I'm sure, and can figure out a

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 way to do it. It isn't easy and it won't be
2 easy for you no matter how we do it.

3 THE COURT: That's fine.

4 I know Defendant had a concern about at some
5 point reaching a determination on what
6 substantive law applies. Are we thinking we 7 would do this by summary judgement or by what 8 mechanism?

9 MR. BEMIS: My suggestion to that, and it's 10 in our schedule, that we brief that issue
11 separately.

12 THE COURT: Tell me procedurally how we're 13 doing it.

14 MR. BEMIS: It's called a motion. We file
15 an undifferentiated motion for choice of law
16 based on the claims. There are four claims in 17 the case. And those four claims state the 18 substantive law -- will determine the substantive
19 law that apply.

20 THE COURT: I hate to do this -- and it's 21 just the way I think. I apologize -- what kind
22 of motion is this? Is it declaratory
23 judgement? Is it summary? What are we calling
24 it?

25 MR. BEMIS: It's just a motion, Your Honor.

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 Just under Florida Rules you can have an
2 undifferentiated motion for anything that
3 requires an order in the case. And Your Honor
4 has to decide the issue at some point. We can't
5 do jury instructions.

6 THE COURT: I agree we need to decide it.
7 Is this something that would require evidence be
8 considered?

9 MR. BEMIS: You can take evidence on it.
10 In fact, we cited some cases in the motion to 11 dismiss. I didn't argue that, but I read the 12 briefs. And it is possible, and not only is it
13 possible, but it should be done that way for your 14 benefit, as well as the parties. Because when we 15 get to the point of summary judgement, the jury
16 instructions, we need to know this issue. And 17 we've put a date in our order to brief the issue.

18 THE COURT: Does Plaintiff agree that this
19 should be done by a motion?

20 MR. SCAROLA: No, Your Honor. As a matter
21 of fact, you may recall that this same suggestion
22 has been made repeatedly by the Defense in 23 earlier hearings and Your Honor's reaction was 24 exactly the same as the reaction you're now
25 having.

16div001602

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 The choice of law issue needs to be
2 determined in a factual context. And you
3 expressly stated that it seems to you that the 4 correct procedural presentation of that issue was 5 by way of motion for summary judgement.

6 THE COURT: Let me ask you this: Do we
7 agree that this is a decision that needs to be --
8 we certainly don't want to be making it in the 9 middle of trial.

10 MR. SCAROLA: We absolutely agree that it
11 needs to be made in advance of trial. And I
12 agree with the suggestion that Your Honor has 13 made repeatedly in the past, the way to address
14 it is by way of summary judgement.

15 THE COURT: Well, why can't I do this: What
16 if there's disputed issues of fact on a summary
17 judgement so we can't reach it on summary
18 judgement. Then what happens?

19 MR. SCAROLA: Well, in the presentation of 20 the summary judgment motion we still need to make 21 a determination, based upon the facts presented
22 to the court, as to the standard that is going to 23 be applied. So the facts can be presented to the 24 court in the context of a summary judgement
25 motion and you'll then be able to determine which

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 law applies. Even if you ultimately determine,
2 that because there are disputed issues of fact,
3 under the law that applies, no summary judgement
4 can be granted. But I really think that Your 5 Honor needs to have a factual context in which to 6 make that determination. It cannot be done in 7 the abstract.

8 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor, the issue of the 9 substantive law that is applicable to the case
10 does not turn on contested issues of who said
11 what to whom. They turn on the gravity of the 12 claims in the sense of the restatement. Those 13 issues can be resolved, you may take evidence on 14 those issues, and you're not going to decide any 15 liability or damages.

16 THE COURT: I understand that.

17 MR. BEMIS: And that should be determined
18 before we go into the process of briefing summary
19 judgment, because it will complicate the matter
20 immeasurably for us to try to prepare for this 21 case for trial with 80 some depositions if we 22 don't know what the controlling law is.

23 When Your Honor first considered this -- and 24 I've read the transcript. I understand you had 25 some difficulties with it. I think the reason

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 for it was -- and I'm not putting my words into
2 your head, but as I read it, it was the
3 combination of the venue issue and trying to deal
4 with what you do with that and the facts related
5 to that and how that would interplay with the 6 summary judgement, as well as a feeling that 7 perhaps you need to have the summary judgement of 8 who said what to whom framed when you were 9 deciding choice of law. And I think
10 fundamentally that's not right. And this one
11 I've heard -- and you'll tell me if you disagree
12 -- I think the process should be, look at the 13 gravity of the claims. Those gravity issues are 14 not dispositive of summary judgement. And we can 15 decide. Who said what to whom will be on summary
16 judgement. What law applies to who said what to 17 whom and when they did it, those are summary
18 judgement issues. The rest is a substantive
19 legal issue that you need to decide as a
20 precursor for deciding summary judgement, if 21 those motions are filed. And that should be 22 decided as promptly as possible, given your 23 schedule.

24 THE COURT: Tell you what, neither one of 25 you is going to convince me today that one

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.

27

1 approach is correct or incorrect. But I'm just
2 telling you, I still have the same concerns I've 3 had all along, which is something to suggest we
4 do an evidentiary hearing on this kind of point.

5 MR. BEMIS: I don't think it's an
6 evidentiary hearing. I think gravity of claims
7 is like personal jurisdiction, for the most
8 part. You know, those are not dispositive to the 9 case. It's, where did it happen.

10 THE COURT: That's still evidentiary.

11 MR. BEMIS: This is a case about who said
12 what to whom. We need to know what law applies
13 to those representations.

14 THE COURT: Nobody's suggesting it's not an 15 important issue. All we're suggesting is, how do
16 we want to do this.

17 MR. BEMIS: My suggestion is, Your Honor,
18 let's brief the issue. We're the ones doing the 19 work, other than you reading the brief. If you
20 conclude, I can't decide it, I think it's 21 improper without an evidentiary hearing or I'm 22 not going to have an evidentiary hearing, so be 23 it. Then we'll proceed to the next step. But we 24 ought to be given an opportunity to put the issue
25 --

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 THE COURT: So what you are suggesting --

2 MR. SCAROLA: Is an advisory opinion from 3 the Court.

4 MR. BEMIS: No.

5 THE COURT: Well, I'm still trying to figure
6 out how we want to do this. I understand the 7 point you're making, but I also -- let me ask you
8 this: Are you all in agreement on the timetable
9 when this needs to be determined?

10 MR. SCAROLA: It is our belief that it only
11 needs to be determined in the context of whatever
12 summary judgment motions are filed. If the 13 choice of law issue is not dispositive of a
14 claim, then how could it affect the presentation
15 of evidence at trial?

16 THE COURT: No. I understand that you all
17 don't want to be briefing the substantive motion
18 for summary judgement and have to brief it under 19 both law because I haven't made a decision on 20 which one's going to apply.

21 MR. SCAROLA: On the contrary, I believe
22 that's exactly what we should be doing. I think
23 that we should be briefing the summary judgment
24 motions in the context of conflicting laws
25 because the decision doesn't need to be made,

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 except as the laws in fact conflict with regard
2 to a particular set of facts. If there's no
3 difference in the law under Set of Facts A and 4 Set of Facts B, then Your Honor doesn't need to 5 determine which law applies.

6 THE COURT: Yes. But on the other hand,
7 then I'm going through the mental exercise of 8 looking at two different state's laws and 9 deciding whether they're the same or not; and 10 then if they're different, having to go the step
11 to decide -- and I'm doing that on every point of 12 law I'm having to consider, while making the 13 fundamental decision of are we going to apply New 14 York or Florida substantive law. Then we're only 15 looking at one law from then on.

16 MR. SCAROLA: Except that the authorities
17 suggest that this needs to be an issue-by-issue
18 determination.

19 MR. BEMIS: It is an issue-by-issue by 20 claim. There are four claims in the case.
21 Whether they're our claims or their claims or our 22 claims against Arthur Anderson, there are four 23 claims. They're all "who said what to who"
24 claims. You need to decide the gravity of the 25 law that applies to those claims before we get

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 into trying to briefing whether the "who said
2 what to who" gives rise to a liability.

3 THE COURT: I understand what you're saying
4 and I will tend to agree, although I'm still hung
5 up on procedurally how we're going to get to 6 where we need to go.

7 MR. BEMIS: Just brief it and make a
8 decision whether we're right or wrong and one way
9 or the other we live with it and we go on with 10 the case.

11 MR. SCAROLA: Respectfully, Your Honor, if 12 we're briefing something, don't we have to brief
13 it in the context of some kind of motion? And if 14 it's not a summary judgment motion, what is it?

15 MR. BEMIS: There is no rule in Florida that 16 motions have to be summary judgement or anything
17 else. Any request for an order is a motion.

18 THE COURT: I would agree that there are 19 certain requests to the court that simply aren't 20 appropriate. And if I could only have labels on 21 the motions that are appropriate, we know they're 22 appropriate, and there's procedures in place for 23 considering them.

24 MR. BEMIS: Well, that's true, because they 25 have a certain set we review all of the time.

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 But every case has peculiar issues and we don't
2 have choice of law in most cases so we have to
3 have an order telling us. How do you do that?
4 You do it by motion. And any request in Florida
5 for an order by the court is done by motion.
6 Some we have labels for and we have specific
7 standards for. The case law on choice of law,
8 there's a law for that, isn't in the rules, it's 9 in the cases. And there are cases talking about 10 what you consider to determine choice of law,
11 which, again, is not a question of who said what 12 to who, but where's the gravity of the law and 13 how we apply it.

14 THE COURT: Here's what I think we need to 15 do: I think we need to set a deadline for you
16 all to file whatever motions you're going to be 17 filing seeking for determination on choice of 18 law. And if we decide it should be done on 19 summary judgement, you're doing your summary
20 judgement. If somehow I can do a hearing that's 21 not a summary judgment, you file an appropriate
22 motion. If you think it's evidentiary, you put 23 that in a motion.

24 MR. BEMIS: We have a date for that in our 25 proposed order. It's June 21st. But we're going

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 to have to move it in light of your change of the
2 date. But we do have a date for that, which
3 would allow us to get the issue teed up.

4 THE COURT: I think what we need to do now
5 then is to set aside the hearing time for hearing
6 these motions so we know where we're going.

7 MR. BEMIS: We had set the week of June 21st
8 for the hearing. We had a little bit earlier
9 date for this, but we can --

10 MR. SCAROLA: The order anticipates, Your
11 Honor, that there will be a deadline for filing
12 motions and then a period of time shortly
13 following that when those motions --

14 THE COURT: What I'm suggesting, though, is 15 this is a motion that needs to be sped up. This 16 will not be sort of a generic motion for summary
17 judgement.

18 MR. BEMIS: No. What we had contemplated in 19 our order -- and again, we may have to advance
20 this in light of the trial date -- but we had 21 suggested May 28th as the briefing date,
22 responses on June 18th, and a hearing on the week
23 of June 21st. We're perfectly willing to live
24 with that schedule, or we can advance it if we 25 have to. We're far enough in advance of the

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 trial preparation and summary judgement to get
2 that done.

3 So the week of June 21st was our hearing.
4 We were going to suggest that week. We didn't
5 know what your calendar held.

6 THE COURT: Frankly, I'm busy on that day.

7 MR. SCAROLA: We were hoping it was August.

8 THE COURT: And it's sort of hard because 9 right now we don't know how long it would take.

10 MR. BEMIS: I would suggest that we're
11 talking probably an hour, an hour hearing, 30
12 minutes. I mean, if the United States Supreme 13 Court can -- Bush versus Gore was argued 20
14 minutes per side.

15 THE COURT: Sure. But I assume that we're 16 assuming then that we're not taking any
17 evidence.

18 MR. BEMIS: If we do, we'd have to come
19 back. We're far enough in advance we can tell
20 you, Your Honor, the next time we meet with you
21 we're suggesting, I think, at your suggestion, a
22 monthly conference. This is an issue we could 23 address --

24 THE COURT: If you're suggesting we not
25 carve out the time now, that's fine.

16div001612

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 MR. BEMIS: Give us a date during the week
2 of June 21st. We'll live with that and work
3 against it.

4 THE COURT: The week of June 21st we
5 actually have a judges conference. I'm looking
6 at Monday, June 28th, nine-thirty.

7 MR. BEMIS: That's fine. I'm not that busy
8 yet.

9 MR. SCAROLA: Obviously, Your Honor, we need
10 to see what the motion is in order to make a
11 determination as to whether it is an appropriate
12 way in which to present these issues to the 13 Court. And we can't judge that until we see the 14 motion.

15 MR. BEMIS: We do have a provision for reply
16 in responses to the motion.

17 THE COURT: That is all motions seeking a
18 determination of choice of law.

19 MR. BEMIS: And we'll have those on file by 20 -- I think the 18th would be a completion date,
21 which would give Your Honor 10 days in advance.
22 You'd have all the materials, which I would hope
23 would be adequate for consideration.

24 THE COURT: Okay.

25 MR. SCAROLA: Your Honor, just so that I'm

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 sure I understand what you have just said. If
2 it is the Plaintiff's position that choice of law
3 issues need to be resolved in the context of 4 summary judgment motions --

5 THE COURT: What I'm saying is, no, that
6 we're not going to be doing -- to the extent --
7 if at some point you're going to be seeking a
8 determination from me prior to trial of the 9 appropriate substantive law to apply, those 10 motions are going to be heard that day.

11 MR. SCAROLA: Well, our position is that
12 Florida Law applies.

13 THE COURT: Then you wouldn't be seeking any
14 other determination other than Florida Law.

15 MR. SCAROLA: But what I'm trying to 16 determine is, if it is our position that Florida
17 Law applies and consequently we are not filing a 18 choice of law motion, but rather only planning on 19 presenting our summary judgment motions pursuant 20 to Florida Law, is there any --

21 THE COURT: Assuming you won't be arguing in 22 those same motions that Florida Law is the law
23 that gets applied.

24 MR. SCAROLA: Well, clearly whenever we file
25 a summary judgement motion we're arguing that

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 Florida Law applies.

2 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor --

3 THE COURT: You're arguing Florida Law
4 applies, but there is not -- please understand,
5 that what I don't want is motions for summary
6 judgement filed by the Plaintiff in October which
7 both argue Florida Law and argue that Florida Law
8 is the applicable law. The point of this is to 9 determine, for the purposes of this case, the 10 substantive law that will apply. And after this,
11 we won't be arguing which substantive law applies
12 for various claims because we will already, my 13 hope is, have determined that.

14 MR. SCAROLA: And so that the Court
15 understands what our position is, it is our 16 position that the choice of law determination
17 cannot be made in the abstract, but only in the 18 context of specific issues presented in either a 19 summary judgment motion or some other motion that 20 is fact specific.

21 THE COURT: But we already have your claims,
22 correct?

23 MR. SCAROLA: You do have our claims,
24 absolutely. Yes, they're stated in our
25 complaint.

1 THE COURT: Right. And so presumably
2 they're going to be determined by substantive law
3 of New York or Florida.

4 MR. SCAROLA: We presume they're going to be
5 determined by Florida Law.

6 MR. BEMIS: And we presume New York, and 7 that's what we're going to thrash out. Who said
8 what to who will be determined in summary
9 judgement, but the gravity of law will be 10 determined by you as a matter of law, which is 11 your responsibility --

12 THE COURT: But please understand, so you
13 know what I'm trying to say, if we get into 14 October and you file something seeking summary
15 judgment on Florida Law, you can argue Florida
16 Law to me, but you won't be able to argue the 17 applicability of the Florida Law.

18 MR. SCAROLA: Because you will have already
19 made that determination --

20 THE COURT: Because that's the point -- on 21 this point, I agree with Defendant. This is a 22 threshold issue we need to reach, both for the 23 economy of your client and for the economy of the 24 court. It's simply not an efficient way to run a
25 case, not to know which substantive law applies.

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 MR. SCAROLA: I think I understand what the
2 Court's intention is. I'm just having a little
3 bit of difficulty understanding, as a practical
4 matter, how that motion is going to be -- the 5 procedural manner in which that motion is going
6 to be presented to the Court, other than by way
7 of summary judgment.

8 THE COURT: Obviously I share that concern
9 and I'm sure we're going to get educated.

10 MR. BEMIS: Thank you, Your Honor.

11 MR. SCAROLA: Okay.

12 MR. BEMIS: Are there any other critical
13 dates of the pretrial schedule that Your Honor
14 would like to address?

15 THE COURT: Hold on. I just want to finish
16 my notes.

17 And we agree this is a 15-day trial?

18 MR. BEMIS: Fifteen trial days, Your Honor,
19 yes.

20 THE COURT: Is that including jury
21 selection?

22 MR. BEMIS: Yes. I mean, that's our best
23 guess. I mean, at this point it's tough to tell,
24 but that's our best guess. And apparently Mr.
25 Scarola agrees that 15 days appears to be what

1 we're going to need.

2 MR. SCAROLA: I believe so, Your Honor.

3 Your Honor, I'm sorry to go back one more
4 time, but I do want to be certain that I
5 understand.

6 If it is our position that Florida Law does
7 apply in this case, is it necessary for us to be
8 filing something affirmatively?

9 THE COURT: Only if -- please understand --
10 I can't think of how to say it more clearly. Let 11 me think if I can -- that you would be precluded
12 then from arguing later on in your motions for 13 summary judgement the applicability of Florida
14 Law; this would simply be an assumption that it
15 did apply. But if there were disputed issues
16 about whether it did, we wouldn't be arguing it
17 then.

18 MR. SCAROLA: I only need to understand
19 where the burden lies. If nobody does anything
20 between now and the time of filing of motions for 21 summary judgement, I would assume that the law
22 that would have to be applied, based upon what
23 Your Honor just said, is the Law of Florida.

24 THE COURT: No. I would not have a law to 25 apply. And if you go back, that meant that you

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 didn't follow the order following the case
2 management conference.

3 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor, we're going to file
4 a motion that it's New York Law.

5 THE COURT: Right, and that becomes moot,
6 because you're going to force the issue.

7 MR. SCAROLA: If there's a clear
8 understanding that they're forcing the issue,
9 then that's fine. I know that they're going to 10 file a motion to which we're going to respond.

11 But it seems to me, that in the absence of 12 their assuming the burden of demonstrating that 13 New York Law applies, the law that ordinarily 14 applies to Florida cases is Florida Law. So I
15 just need to make sure that we're counting on 16 them filing a motion. And if they don't file a
17 motion --

18 MR. BEMIS: We will. And it will say that 19 New York Law applies and they will respond that 20 Florida Law applies and Your Honor will make a
21 judicial ruling and we'll follow up.

22 MR. SCAROLA: That's fine. The record is 23 clear as to how that's going to happen then.

24 THE COURT: All right. It strikes me, we 25 need to stop abusing 8:45's and carve up some

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

41.

1 reasonable hearing time.

2 MR. BEMIS: We have, Your Honor, what I call
3 a modest proposal to reduce frequent flyer miles
4 from our standpoint, and that is, that we take 5 you up on your suggestion of setting aside an 6 hour or if you believe more -- I don't know the 7 appropriate frequency, whether it should be once
8 a month or whether every three weeks, depends on 9 your calendar and what's pending, and then have 10 everything scheduled at one time. I would 11 suggest a seven-and-two rule, where seven days in 12 advance all motions are filed, two days before
13 that responses are filed and Mr. Scarola and I
14 can take alternating responsibility for providing 15 Your Honor with the materials several days in 16 advance. Then we just go through them seriatim.

17 THE COURT: It strikes me that every three
18 weeks may be about right. I'm afraid every month
19 may not be often enough.

20 MR. BEMIS: Three weeks is fine with us.

21 MR. SCAROLA: May I have just one moment?

22 THE COURT: Sure.

23 MR. SCAROLA: Is it Your Honor's intent that 24 there will be no uniform motion calendars during

25 --

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 THE COURT: Well, that's something we can
2 talk about. We've had a number of hearings on 3 the uniform motion calendar that probably
4 shouldn't have been set there. In all honesty,
5 you guys are sophisticated enough attorneys, I
6 would be shocked if you had a motion that clearly
7 was probably not a UMC. It strikes me, you guys
8 will work it out. On the other hand, if there is 9 one, I certainly don't mind hearing it.

10 MR. SCAROLA: I only asked that question
11 because it'll make a difference in terms of what 12 we think appropriate frequency to be.

13 THE COURT: Sure. We're talking about 14 frequency and length of the hearing, whether we 15 think it should be an hour, an hour and a half or 16 two hours, and that depends on how frequently
17 we're going to do it.

18 MR. BEMIS: Your Honor, my proposal is three 19 weeks, two hours. We'll know in advance. I love
20 your suggestion, so that's fine with us.

21 THE COURT: Why don't we just cross out all
22 our time for this case.

23 MR. BEMIS: Actually, Your Honor, your
24 suggestion yesterday is really, in my experience
25 here, it is really the most expeditious way, and

1 the state courts, big cases, just carve it out --

2 THE COURT: I agree with that. Two hours
3 every three weeks is fairly aggressive, but if
4 that's what it needs. I don't want to put all
5 the things in place to have a specially set trial
6 and discover that we didn't have to, a sufficient
7 hearing would have been fine.

8 MR. SCAROLA: Our past experience, our track
9 record thus far is, that we would not consume two 10 hours of Your Honor's time every three weeks. I
11 would also anticipate, however, that as discovery
12 heats up in this case, that we might consume that 13 much time. My suggestion would be that we might 14 want to start out at an hour and then increase
15 the time as we get farther on down the road,
16 because we'll probably need additional time
17 later.

18 MR. BEMIS: That's fine with me, Your Honor.

19 MR. SCAROLA: And we can let you know at one
20 of those one-hour hearings the point in time in 21 which we anticipate we're going to now need two
22 hours.

23 THE COURT: Frankly, by that time it's too
24 late to give you the two hours. I'm going to set
25 the time up right now.

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.
(561) 820-9066

1 MR. SCAROLA: Well then that's great. Then
2 we'll take the two hours now.

3 THE COURT: So first of all, we want mid
4 March. Is that what we're talking about first?

5 MR. SCAROLA: That's fine.

6 THE COURT: I can give you an hour at 7 three-thirty on March 19th. I don't have
8 anything in the morning. Do you want that one?

9 MR. BEMIS: Three-thirty is fine with us.

10 MR. SCAROLA: That's fine.

11 THE COURT: 3/19/04, three-thirty, one
12 hour.

13 The next one is going to be early April. I
14 can do four o'clock on April 16th.

15 MR. BEMIS: April 16th, 4 p.m.

16 THE COURT: Then we got May.

17 We could do it May 7th. Would you prefer
18 morning or afternoon, if given a choice?

19 MR. BEMIS: Frankly, we'd prefer the 20 mornings, so we can come in the night before.

21 THE COURT: I could do eight o'clock on May 22 7th?

23 MR. BEMIS: Fine.

24 THE COURT: All right. And after that we'll 25 start the two-hour ones. So we're looking the

PINNACLE REPORTING, INC.

1 beginning of June. That's May 28th. We prefer
2 8 a.m. again?

3 MR. BEMIS: That's fine, Your Honor. What
4 day of the week is May 28th?

5 THE COURT: These are all Fridays, because
6 those are all the special set.

7 MR. BEMIS: May 28th, is that the Friday
8 before Memorial Day?

9 THE COURT: It is the Friday before Memorial 10 Day.

11 MR. BEMIS: Either come up or go back from 12 the 28th, because Memorial Day is very difficult
13 to get in and out.

14 THE COURT: June 4th, 8 a.m., still two
15 hours.

16 MR. BEMIS: Fine.

17 THE COURT: You probably don't want July
18 2nd?

19 MR. BEMIS: July 2nd is okay. That will be 20 okay with us.

21 THE COURT: You sure?

22 MR. BEMIS: Yes.

23 THE COURT: That's a little more than --
24 that's four weeks instead of three.

25 MR. BEMIS: I think by summer we're going to

2 THE COURT: 8 a.m., two hours.

3 Late July. July 23rd?

4 MR. BEMIS: Fine.

5 THE COURT: That would be 9 a.m.

6 We're in mid August.

7 MR. IANNO: Your Honor, July 23rd was 9

8 a.m.?

9 THE COURT: Yes.

10 Do you want August 13th or August 20th?

11 MR. SCAROLA: 13th, please.

12 MR. BEMIS: 13th is fine.

13 THE COURT: August 13th, '04, 8 a.m.

14 Early September. September 3rd. That would

15 be one-thirty for two hours.

16 MR. BEMIS: Where is that in relation to 17 Labor Day?

18 THE COURT: You want to avoid that?

19 MR. BEMIS: It's so hard to travel on those 20 holidays.

21 THE COURT: I know. I generally go away for 22 a long weekend right after that.

23 MR. SCAROLA: Last week in August.

24 THE COURT: We already have August 13th.

25 MR. BEMIS: If we could just move it to

2 that's a vacation period for a lot of people and
3 a holiday weekend.

4 THE COURT: But then we're up to September

5 --

6 MR. SCAROLA: 10th.

7 THE COURT: No. That's the weekend I
8 usually go away. September 17th or go back in 9 late August.

10 MR. BEMIS: The 17th is fine with us.

11 THE COURT: Isn't the 16th Rosh Hashanah.

12 MR. SOLOVY: Yes it is, and the 17th. So
13 why don't we go the end of August, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: That's fine. We can go back to 15 August 27th.

16 MR. BEMIS: That's fine.

17 THE COURT: And that we can do 8 a.m.
18 again.

19 And then we're in late September.

20 September 25 -- oh, Yom Kipper.

21 MR. SOLOVY: And that's a Saturday anyway,
22 Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Oh, that's right. Could you do
24 the 24th? You can't do it first thing in the 25 morning?

1 MR. SOLOVY: No, that will be too hard for
2 me. The only way, if we could intrude upon your
3 Thursday the 23rd, that would work. Anything
4 earlier that week.

5 THE COURT: I could do it the afternoon of 6 the 23rd. I couldn't do it the morning.

7 MR. BEMIS: That's fine.

8 MR. SOLOVY: That would work.

9 THE COURT: 3 p.m.

10 October 15th.

11 MR. BEMIS: That's fine.

12 THE COURT: 8 a.m.

13 November 5th, 8 a.m.

14 And then I think our last one would be early 15 December. December 3rd.

16 MR. BEMIS: That's fine.

17 MR. SOLOVY: Fine.

18 THE COURT: 8 a.m. Okay. We'll get all
19 those done.

20 MR. SCAROLA: Thank you.

21 Your Honor, we do have by agreement one
22 discovery dispute set on the uniform motion
23 calendar for next Thursday I believe, which we 24 would want to be able to --

25 THE COURT: We'll do it then.

1 MR. BEMIS: I think there are actually two

5 MR. SCAROLA: We do not want to delay ours.

6 THE COURT: Let me see next week's
7 calendar.

8 Tell you what, I think I could do it
9 nine-thirty on Thursday. Do you want to do that,
10 and then I could give you more time?

11 MR. SCAROLA: I am in trial in front of 12 Judge Miller and we generally begin at 13 nine-thirty.

14 MR. BEMIS: Could I have one second, Your 15 Honor?

16 THE COURT: Sure.

17 I don't mind if you come and we try to do
18 them. I really haven't looked at them so I don't 19 know what they are.

20 MR. BEMIS: First of all, I can't come next
21 week, but I can come on the 19th on this one.
22 It's my anniversary and I'm going to be on 23 vacation.

24 THE COURT: March 19th?

25 MR. BEMIS: I can't be here, but I'm going

9 MR. SCAROLA: Is Your Honor planning on 10 sending out a notice with respect to that

12 THE COURT: Yes. We'll just include it in 13 this.

14 MR. CLARE: Your Honor, clarification:
15 There are two motions that are pending. There is 16 one filed by the Plaintiff and one filed by the
17 Defendant.

18 THE COURT: That's why I wanted to make sure
19 there was a notice of hearing, so my order
20 wouldn't be referencing something else.

23 Your Honor, one additional matter that I

11 MR. BEMIS: We don't have any objection to

22 MR. SCAROLA: Thank you very much, Your

COMPLAINT

In March 1998, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., and Morgan Stanley (collectively, "Morgan Stanley") — in direct reliance on certified financial statements audited by the Arthur Andersen defendants ("Andersen")¹ — underwrote a multi-million dollar offering of convertible notes and provided a $680 million loan to Sunbeam

¹ Defendants Arthur Andersen LLP; Andersen Worldwide, Société Coopérative (a Swiss cooperative); Arthur Andersen & Co. (a Canadian company); Arthur Andersen & Co. (a Hong Kong company); Ruiz, Urquiza y Cia, S.C. (a Mexican Company); Piernavieja, Porta, Cachafeiro & Avocados (a Venezuela company); Arthur Andersen (a United Kingdom company), Phillip E. Harlow, William Pruitt, and Donald Denkhaus are hereinafter collectively referred to as "Andersen." Unless otherwise stated, allegations made against "Andersen" are made against each of these defendants jointly and severally.

Corporation, Inc., in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of three companies. As Sunbeam's subsequent restatement of its financial results showed, the financial statements that Andersen certified grossly misrepresented Sunbeam's true financial condition. Andersen had full knowledge of these misstatements, and it intended that Morgan Stanley would rely on its unqualified audit opinions. Morgan Stanley — as a direct consequence of Andersen's deceit — has lost hundreds of millions of dollars. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley brings this action against Andersen and alleges the following:

Nature of Action

1. In March 1998, Sunbeam acquired The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") and two smaller companies. In order to finance this acquisition, Morgan Stanley underwrote a $750 million offering of convertible notes, and it also directly provided Sunbeam with an additional $680 million in secured financing.

2. In serving as an underwriter and in agreeing to extend the loan, Morgan Stanley relied on Sunbeam's financial statements, which had been audited and certified by Andersen, as well as Andersen's continued opinions about Sunbeam's financial condition. The Sunbeam financial statements painted a picture of Sunbeam as a company in the midst of an extraordinary financial turnaround.

3. In reality, unbeknownst to Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam's "turnaround" was an illusion. As became apparent in the summer of 1998 and as confirmed by Sunbeam's subsequent restatement of its financial results, the 1996 and 1997 statements that Andersen had certified — and upon which Morgan Stanley had relied — did not conform with generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"). Andersen, with full knowledge of the material misstatements contained in Sunbeam's financial reports, issued unqualified audit opinions for both 1996 and 1997. In so doing, it failed to perform its audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards ("GAAS").

4. As Andersen knew, the statements that it audited and certified were replete with accounting improprieties. As a consequence, Sunbeam's true financial condition was misstated by millions of dollars. In November 1998, when it restated its 1996 and 1997 financial results, Sunbeam revealed that, in 1996, it had overstated its operating losses by at least $40 million, thereby establishing an overly bleak financial backdrop against which the company's performance in 1997 would be measured. In 1997, by contrast, Sunbeam dramatically overstated its earnings. When 1997 operating earnings were eventually corrected and restated, they were $95 million less than the earnings originally reported — and approximately half of the figure that Andersen had previously certified.

5. Andersen's fraud ultimately forced Sunbeam and several of its subsidiaries to seek relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in February 2001. As part of the bankruptcy court-approved reorganization plan, Morgan Stanley's $680 million loan to Sunbeam was discharged in full, and Morgan Stanley received Sunbeam stock valued at a small fraction of the original loan. In addition, as a result of Andersen's actions, the convertible notes issued by Sunbeam and held by Morgan Stanley had been rendered substantially less valuable.

6. As the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") subsequently determined, in auditing and certifying Sunbeam's financial statements, Andersen completely disregarded its professional and legal obligations. It certified Sunbeam financial statements that it knew grossly mischaracterized the company's true financial condition. It ignored its duty to maintain independence from its client, Sunbeam. It did so with full knowledge that Morgan Stanley would be harmed immensely by Andersen's deception.

7. By this complaint, Morgan Stanley seeks compensatory damages of several hundreds of millions of dollars. In addition, Morgan Stanley reserves the right to seek leave to amend its complaint pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 768.72 to assert claims for an additional recovery of punitive damages in excess of $1.2 billion as allowed by law.

THE PARTIES AND OTHER RELEVANT ENTITIES

8. Plaintiff Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co.") is a financial services firm that engages in underwriting, investment banking, financial advisory services, securities sales and trading, and research. In late 1997 and early 1998, MS & Co. assisted Sunbeam in identifying potential acquisition targets and served as Sunbeam's financial advisor with respect to certain aspects of Sunbeam's acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. MS & Co. also served as the underwriter of a $750 million offering of convertible notes that Sunbeam used to finance these acquisitions. MS & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York.

9. Plaintiff Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") is a company that provides credit services to its clients. In 1998, MSSF entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide a loan to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and two smaller companies. Pursuant to the credit agreement, Sunbeam borrowed $680 million from MSSF, with the borrowings used by Sunbeam to fund certain costs relating to the acquisitions. MSSF is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York.

10. Plaintiff Morgan Stanley is a financial services company. It owns 100 percent of the stock of both MS & Co. and MSSF. Morgan Stanley is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York. In this complaint, the term "Morgan Stanley" is used collectively to describe both Morgan Stanley and its two wholly-owned subsidiaries, MS & Co. and MSSF.

11. Defendant Andersen Worldwide, Société Coopérative Switzerland was a partnership organized under the Swiss Federal Code of Obligations. Its partners included more than 2,000 individuals from 390 offices in 84 countries. Various individuals who were partners of Andersen-Worldwide participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits. Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-US dictated the policies and procedures to be used within Andersen throughout the world.

12. Defendant Arthur Andersen & Co. ("Andersen-Canada") was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Canada participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

13. Defendant Arthur Andersen & Co. ("Andersen-Hong-Kong") was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Hong Kong participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

14. Defendant Ruiz, Urquiza y Cia, S.C. ("Andersen-Mexico") was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Mexico participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

15. Defendant Piernavieja, Porta, Cachafeiro & Avocados ("Andersen-Venezuela") was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Venezuela participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

16. Defendant Arthur Andersen ("Andersen-UK") was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-UK participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

17. Defendant Arthur Andersen LLP ("Andersen-US") was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-US is a partnership formed under the laws of the State of Illinois. Once one of the world's largest accounting firms, almost all of its partners have left the firm. Andersen-US participated in and coordinated the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits. In addition, Andersen-US partners and employees provided consulting services to Sunbeam as part of due diligence work performed in conjunction with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, as well as on other projects.

18. Defendant Phillip E. Harlow was a partner at Andersen-US and was also a partner of Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the engagement partner on the audits of Sunbeam's financial statements from 1993 to 1998. As engagement partner, Harlow had primary responsibility for supervising the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam, including overseeing the activities with respect to the Sunbeam work performed by numerous persons at Andersen. Harlow also participated as a member of Sunbeam's due diligence team in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

19. Defendant William Pruitt at all times material hereto was a partner of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the concurring partner on the Sunbeam audits for at least 1996 and 1997.

20. Defendant Donald Denkhaus at all times material hereto was a partner of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide. Denkhaus served as the engagement partner on the Sunbeam's ultimate restatement of its financial statements, as Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region.

21. The Coleman Company, Inc. was a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Coleman was a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in Kansas. Prior to March 30, 1998, Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("Coleman-Parent") owned 44,067,520 shares (or approximately 82 percent) of Coleman. Coleman-Parent is a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in New York and is a wholly-owned subsidiary of MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("MAFCO"). MAFCO is a global investment firm owned and operated by financier Ronald O. Perelman. Through its various subsidiaries and affiliates, MAFCO owns and/or controls a number of multi-billion dollar global corporations, including Revlon, Inc., the international consumer cosmetics company. MAFCO is a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in New York.

22. Sunbeam Corporation through its operating subsidiaries and affiliates, manufactured, marketed, and distributed durable household and outdoor leisure consumer products through mass-market and other consumer channels. In 1998, Sunbeam purchased Coleman-Parent's controlling interest in Coleman for $2.2 billion. On February 6, 2001, Sunbeam and several of its affiliates filed a petition for relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. Sunbeam has since emerged from bankruptcy and now operates under the name American Household.

23. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of this action pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 26.012(2)(a) because Plaintiff seeks damages in excess of $15,000 exclusive of interest, costs and attorneys' fees. This Court has jurisdiction over Andersen-US, Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela, and Andersen-UK pursuant to Fla. Stat. §§ 48.193(1)(a) and (f), (2) and/or (5).

24. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Andersen pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 48.193(2) because Andersen engaged in substantial business activities in the State of Florida. Additionally, this Court has personal jurisdiction over Andersen pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 48.193(1)(a) because the cause of action arises out of Andersen's activities in the State.

25. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to Fla. Stat. §§ 47.011 and 47.021 because, when the actionable conduct described herein occurred, Andersen maintained an office with more than 30 employees and partners in West Palm Beach and therefore resided in Palm Beach County.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Andersen and Sunbeam's Fraudulent Scheme

26. In July 1996, to address its growing financial difficulties, Sunbeam hired Albert Dunlap as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Dunlap was a well-known "turnaround" specialist who had a history of brief tenures at other companies. He was nicknamed "Chainsaw Al" because of his practice of cutting staff and closing plants to achieve quick turnaround results.

27. Immediately after joining Sunbeam, Dunlap replaced almost all of top management with his own selections, hiring Russell A. Kersh (Chief Financial Officer); Donald R. Uzzi (Vice President, Marketing and Product Development, and later Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide); Lee B. Griffith (Vice President, Sales); and Robert J. Gluck (Principal Accounting Officer).

28. Immediately after he was hired, Dunlap publicly predicted that, as a result of the Company's restructuring, Sunbeam would attain significant increases in its margins and sales.

29. Unbeknownst to the public and to Morgan Stanley, senior management established an overly dismal financial backdrop against which the company's performance in 1997 would be measured. Management decided to accomplish this task by recording improper expenses and taking unjustified accounting write-offs in their 1996 financial statements. In order to convince the public that their 1996 losses were real, however, Sunbeam needed an outside auditor to validate their financial reports.

30. Andersen stood ready to assist Sunbeam in its scheme. Andersen had a significant stake in retaining Sunbeam, a long-time major client. The company generated substantial income for Andersen, paying over $1 million in fees for its 1995 audit alone. Andersen also hoped to continue to receive lucrative consulting assignments from Sunbeam. Moreover, being dropped by a high-profile client such as Sunbeam would have been a severe blow to Andersen's reputation. Indeed, Andersen was so eager to keep Sunbeam as its client that it agreed to a 30 percent reduction in its 1996 audit fees.

31. After Dunlap assumed control of Sunbeam, Andersen had reason to fear that its relationship with Sunbeam was in jeopardy. Phillip Harlow, the Andersen engagement partner, knew that Dunlap had employed Coopers & Lybrand, one of Andersen's major competitors, as a financial consultant and independent auditor in past turnaround assignments. In fact, Dunlap had already engaged Coopers & Lybrand to assist in planning Sunbeam's massive restructuring.

32. Ultimately, Andersen's desire to retain a valuable client overrode any sense of duty or professionalism, and it capitulated to Sunbeam's demand that it sanction the improper accounting treatments used by the company's senior management.

Andersen's Worldwide Operations

33. Andersen operated through a global network of international offices, branches and subsidiaries of the U.S. partnership, a structure called the Andersen Worldwide Organization. The Andersen network worked as "one firm" and maintained this "one firm" identity through a variety of mechanisms. Partners (or equivalents) in its various branches were also partners of Andersen-Worldwide, resulting in a global partnership of more than 2,000 individuals from 390 offices in 84 different countries. In addition to overlapping partners, Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-US shared officers in common. Moreover, Andersen-Worldwide set uniform professional standards for all its offices and required its international offices to agree to be bound by those professional standards and principles. Andersen-Worldwide coordinated the sharing of costs and allocation of revenues and profits among its partners and its offices around the world. Andersen-Worldwide operated under a worldwide tax structure. In addition, Andersen-Worldwide handled all borrowing on behalf of its international offices and maintained those offices' financial records, payroll, and employee health benefits plans. All of Andersen's offices also shared global computer operations and training facilities.

34. Andersen applied the "one firm" approach in its work with Sunbeam. Top partners responsible for the Sunbeam audits and restatement were partners of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide, including the engagement partner on the Sunbeam audits, Phillip Harlow; the concurring partner on those audits, William Pruitt; and the engagement partner on the Sunbeam restatement, Donald Denkhaus.

35. In addition, various international offices of Andersen-Worldwide did substantial work for Sunbeam. Sunbeam was a multinational corporation with operations in Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, Hong Kong, and Europe. The engagements required the participation of auditors from each of those countries and numerous American cities. Harlow, on behalf of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide, developed work plans that he circulated to Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela, and Andersen-UK. Those offices worked together with Harlow and others to complete the tasks outlined in the plan and sent their work product to Harlow for inclusion in an Andersen-Worldwide Management Letter.

The Fraudulent 1996 Financial Statements

36. In 1996, after Dunlap took control of Sunbeam, Andersen permitted Sunbeam management to employ numerous accounting practices that — as Sunbeam's restatement of its 1996 financial statements and an SEC investigation later showed — did not comply with GAAP.

37. Among other things, Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements, certified by Andersen, did not comply with the accounting principles of (1) reliability, Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 58-97; Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Statement No. 4, §§ 109, 138, 189; (2) completeness, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 79, 80; APB Statement No. 4, § 94; (3) conservatism, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 91-97; APB Statements No. 9, §§ 35, 71; (4) neutrality, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 98-110; or (5) relevance, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 47, 48.

38. Among the accounting frauds that Andersen knowingly allowed was the artificial inflation of Sunbeam's reserves. Because the reserves were charged as an expense against income, this accounting practice allowed Sunbeam to overstate the 1996 loss against which its 1997 financial results would be compared.

39. For example, Sunbeam created a $338 million reserve for "restructuring" charges. As the November 1998 restatement made clear, included in these charges were costs of redesigning product packaging; costs of relocating employees and equipment; bonuses to be paid to employees who were told that they were being laid off but were asked to stay on temporarily; advertising expenses; and certain consulting fees. Because these items benefited future activities, GAAP did not permit them to be classified as restructuring charges. Andersen also permitted Sunbeam to violate GAAP by creating a $12 million reserve for a lawsuit alleging that Sunbeam was liable for cleanup costs associated with a hazardous waste site, even though Sunbeam's estimated liability was, at best, half that amount.

40. Andersen also permitted Sunbeam improperly to write down its household products inventory in 1996. In connection with the restructuring, Sunbeam had decided to eliminate half of Sunbeam's product lines and to liquidate its inventory of those product lines. Although only half of Sunbeam's product lines were eliminated, Andersen allowed Sunbeam to apply, at year-end 1996, the special accounting treatment that it had accorded the eliminated lines to its entire inventory of household products. As a result, as the November 1998 financial restatement later showed, Sunbeam understated the balance sheet value of its inventory at year-end 1996 by approximately $2 million and overstated its 1996 loss by the same amount.

41. Andersen also allowed management improperly to recognize, as a 1996 expense, $2.3 million in 1997 advertising expenses and related costs. In addition, Andersen permitted

Sunbeam to manipulate its 1996 liabilities for "cooperative advertising." It was Sunbeam's practice to fund a portion of its retailers' costs of running local promotions. As required by GAAP, Sunbeam accrued its estimated liabilities for this expense. At year-end 1996, Sunbeam set its cooperative advertising accrual at an inflated value of $21.8 million. According to the November 1998 restatement, this accrual was improper under GAAP because it was approximately 25 percent higher than the prior year's accrual amount, without a proportional increase in sales providing a basis for the increase. Ultimately, as the November 1998 restatement showed, $5.8 million of that excessive accrual was used (without disclosure) to inflate Sunbeam's 1997 income.

Andersen's 1996 Unqualified Audit Opinion

42. In the course of auditing Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements, Andersen became aware of these improper accounting practices. Indeed, it questioned a Sunbeam employee about the restructuring reserves and was told that the reserve included "everything but the kitchen sink." Harlow, the Andersen engagement partner, raised the issues with Kersh and Gluck and proposed that Sunbeam reverse certain of its improper entries. But when Kersh and Gluck rejected these proposals, Andersen backed down.

43. In March 1997, Andersen issued an unqualified audit opinion regarding Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements and authorized the inclusion of its audit opinion in Sunbeam's 1996 Form 10-K filed with the SEC. Despite its knowledge of the many improper accounting practices that Sunbeam's management had employed, Andersen's opinion stated:

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards.

Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements . . . present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 29, 1996 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

44. Andersen also knowingly provided false descriptions of certain of Sunbeam's specific accounting practices. For example, it characterized Sunbeam's treatment of its restructuring charges in Note 2 to the audited 1996 consolidated financial statements as follows:

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is allocated as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations: $154.9 million to Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs as further described below; $92.3 million to Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs from the reduction in SKUs and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $42.5 million to Selling, General and Administrative expenses principally for increases in environmental and litigation reserves (see Notes 12 and 13) and other reserve categories; and the estimated pre-tax loss on the divestiture of the Company's furniture business of approximately $47.9 million.

In fact, however, Andersen knew that Sunbeam had improperly inflated its restructuring costs by millions of dollars.

45. Andersen's 1996 audit violated GAAS because, among other things, Andersen failed (1) to perform the audits with an attitude of professional skepticism as required by the Statement on Auditing Standards ("SAS") No. 53; (2) to conclude that there was a significant risk that Sunbeam management would intentionally distort the company's financial statements, in violation of American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Professional Standards, AU §§ 316.10 and 316.12; (3) to recognize that the accounting policies employed by Sunbeam were not acceptable in the circumstances, in violation of AU § 316.19; (4) to obtain sufficient competent evidential matter through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmations to afford a reasonable basis for its opinions regarding Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of AU § 150.02; (5) to exercise due professional care in the performance of the audit, in violation of AU § 150.02; (6) to plan the work adequately to uncover the errors and irregularities in Sunbeam's accounting information, in violation of AU § 150.02; and (7) to obtain a sufficient understanding of Sunbeam's internal control structure to plan the audits and to determine the nature, timing, and extent of tests to be performed, in violation of AU § 150.02.

46. In addition, in conducting the 1996 audit, Andersen (1) improperly relied on management representations rather than applying the auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion on Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of SAS No. 19 (AU § 333.02); (2) failed to recognize that misstatements resulting from misapplication of GAAP, departures from fact, and omissions of necessary information, in aggregate, caused Sunbeam's financial statements to be materially misstated, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.04); (3) failed to issue a qualified or adverse opinion, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.31); and (4) improperly concluded that the accounting principles applied by Sunbeam were appropriate in the circumstances and that Sunbeam's financial statements were informative of matters that could affect their use, understanding, and interpretation, in violation of SAS No. 69 (AU §§ 411.04(b) and (c)).

47. In all, the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen were materially false and misleading and overstated Sunbeam's operating losses for 1996 by at least $40 million. Moreover, Andersen's unqualified audit opinion was false in at least two material respects. First, the financial statements that Andersen audited did not "fairly" present Sunbeam's financial position in conformity with GAAP, as it represented. Second, Andersen had not, as it claimed, conducted its audit in accordance with GAAS.

The Fraudulent 1997 Financial Statements

48. The accounting frauds in which Andersen permitted Sunbeam to engage in 1997 were aimed at inflating the company's earnings. To accomplish this — as the November 1998 restatement and an SEC investigation subsequently showed — Andersen allowed Sunbeam to record fraudulent sales, to account improperly for one-time events, and improperly to use “cookie-jar” reserves, all in violation of GAAP.

49. Among other things, Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, certified by Andersen, did not comply with the accounting principles of (1) reliability, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 58-97; APB Statement No. 4, §§ 109, 138, 189; (2) completeness, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 79, 80; APB Statement No. 4, § 94; (3) conservatism, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 91-97; APB Statements No. 9, §§ 35, 71; (4) neutrality, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 98-110; or (5) relevance, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 47, 48.

50. According to the November 1998 restatement, one of the revenue inflation tactics permitted by Andersen in 1997 was Sunbeam's improper accounting for “bill-and-hold” sales. A bill-and-hold sale occurs when a seller bills a customer for a purchase while retaining the merchandise for later delivery. During 1997, Dunlap's management team offered financial incentives to various customers to purchase products. Under GAAP, revenue under bill-and-hold transactions may be recognized only if, among others things, the buyer — not the seller — requests a sale on that basis. As Andersen subsequently learned in the course of its 1997 audit, the purported bill-and-hold customers had not requested that treatment, and, in numerous cases, the risks of ownership and legal title were never passed to the customer. According to the November 1998 restatement, Sunbeam added more than $29 million to Sunbeam's 1997 sales and $4.5 million to income by improperly accounting for these transactions.

51. Another income-boosting tactic that Andersen sanctioned was Sunbeam's improper use of its inflated 1996 reserves, which the November 1998 restatement later showed artificially increased the company's 1997 income by almost $5 million. Andersen also let Sunbeam improperly treat $19 million that it received from the sale of discounted and obsolete inventory as ordinary income. Although the recognition of that revenue was permitted under GAAP, Sunbeam was required to disclose that revenue as a non-recurring event. Sunbeam failed to do so, again with Andersen's blessing.

52. In addition, Andersen allowed Sunbeam's Hong Kong and Canadian subsidiaries to book sales that violated applicable accounting principles because they included an unlimited right to return unsold merchandise and because the amount of future returns on such sales could not reasonably be estimated. The November 1998 restatement showed that, on Andersen's watch, Sunbeam's Hong Kong subsidiary improperly recorded sales revenue of $8.6 million from various sales made during the fourth quarter of 1997.

53. Andersen also permitted Sunbeam to employ several improper accounting tricks with respect to its Mexican subsidiary. According to the November 1998 restatement, that subsidiary engaged in $900,000 in bill-and-hold transactions in 1997 that should not have been recognized as income until 1998. In addition, the subsidiary's inventory was overvalued by $2 million, and the financial statements for Sunbeam's Mexico operations failed to include $3 million expense for the profit sharing obligations of that business. According to the November 1998 restatement, Sunbeam's Venezuela subsidiary also improperly valued its inventory.

54. As a result of these and other improper accounting devices, in 1997, Sunbeam reported $186 million in income, much of which was, according to the November 1998 restatement, improper under GAAP. In all, the overstatements included over $90 million of improper net income, including approximately $10 million from a sham sale of inventory to a contractor, approximately $4.5 million from non-GAAP bill-and-hold sales, approximately $35 million in income derived from the use of non-GAAP reserves and accruals taken at year-end 1996 and approximately $6 million from improper revenue recognition.

Sunbeam's Purchase of Coleman

55. Toward the end of 1997, Sunbeam's senior management initiated an effort to sell the company. Sunbeam engaged Morgan Stanley to advise it with respect to the possible sale of its core businesses and/or the initiation of one or more major acquisitions. Ultimately, Coleman, Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. were identified as three companies interested in being acquired by Sunbeam.

56. On January 28, 1998, Sunbeam announced its financial results for 1997, reporting total revenues of $1.168 billion, and total earnings from continuing operations of $189 million (or $1.41 per share). Sunbeam's announcement coincided with Andersen's purported completion of the field work for its audit of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, although Andersen's work in fact continued for more than a month.

57. On February 3, 1998, Harlow met with key officers of Sunbeam to discuss the acquisition of Coleman and its financial impact on Sunbeam. By that time, as a result of reviewing Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements in the course of its audit, Andersen knew that Sunbeam's 1997 results were false.

58. On February 20, 1998, Andersen agreed to act as a Sunbeam financial advisor and perform financial due diligence in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, further compromising its duty as an auditor to maintain its independence from its client. In agreeing to undertake that assignment, Andersen became an active member of the team working to assist Sunbeam in its acquisitions. Andersen employees who worked on Sunbeam's audit also served as members of Sunbeam's due diligence team in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

59. On February 27, 1998, Sunbeam's Board of Directors met in New York to discuss Sunbeam's possible purchase of Coleman. During the February 27, 1998 meeting, Morgan Stanley provided Sunbeam's Board of Directors with a written "fairness" opinion regarding the fair acquisition price of Coleman. The opinion made clear that, even in the context of issuing a fairness opinion on the Coleman acquisition price, Morgan Stanley had relied upon Andersen's representations regarding Sunbeam's financial health. The fairness opinion explicitly stated that Morgan Stanley had reviewed "certain publicly available financial statements and other information" of Sunbeam. The opinion advised that Morgan Stanley had "assumed and relied upon without independent verification the accuracy and completeness of the information reviewed by us for the purposes of this opinion."

60. The Sunbeam Board of Directors approved the Coleman acquisition. That same day, Coleman-Parent — the 82 percent shareholder of Coleman — agreed to sell Coleman to Sunbeam for a purchase price of $2.2 billion. Sunbeam agreed to provide Coleman-Parent with $160 million in cash, to assume $584 million in Coleman-related debt, and to provide Coleman-Parent with 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam stock. Sunbeam also agreed to purchase Signature Brands and First Alert for approximately $300 million.

61. In the first week of March 1998, shortly after the agreement for Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman was signed, but before the transaction closed, Andersen rendered an unqualified audit opinion for Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. With Andersen's express consent, management included that opinion in Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K filed with the SEC on March 6, 1998.

62. Andersen was well aware of the potential for fraud in Sunbeam's 1997 books, including the risk that Sunbeam management would attempt to claim profits and revenue on transactions before the earnings process was completed. Harlow specifically advised Andersen's foreign offices (including Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela and Andersen-UK), for example, that Dunlap had made promises to the public regarding earnings-per-share to be attained in 1997, and that management had a vested interest in achieving the promised earnings levels because management's primary form of compensation was based on the company's stock price. Harlow also noted the presence of the possibility of a third-party purchase of the company's stock or assets.

63. In the course of its audit of Sunbeam's 1997 financial records, Andersen learned Harlow's concerns were well founded. It discovered that Sunbeam had improperly accounted for certain bill-and-hold sales, had misused its reserves, and had overvalued its inventories. Andersen discussed these problems with Sunbeam's senior management and proposed that Sunbeam reverse these improper entries. But Sunbeam's senior management refused to do so. Rather than insisting that the adjustments be made, Andersen permitted the entries.

64. Once again, Andersen gave Sunbeam a clean bill of financial health. In its opinion concerning Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, Andersen stated:

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements . . . , present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

65. In fact, Andersen's 1997 audit violated GAAS because, among other things, Andersen had failed (1) to perform the audits with an attitude of professional skepticism as required by SAS No. 53; (2) to reach a conclusion that there existed a significant risk of intentional distortion of financial statements by Sunbeam management, in violation of AU §§ 316.10 and 316.12; (3) to recognize that the accounting policies employed by Sunbeam were not acceptable in the circumstances, in violation of AU § 316.19; (4) to obtain sufficient competent evidential matter through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmations to afford a reasonable basis for its opinions regarding Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of AU § 150.02; (5) to exercise due professional care in the performance of the audit, in violation of AU § 150.02; (6) to plan the work adequately to uncover the errors and irregularities in Sunbeam's accounting information, in violation of AU § 150.02; and (7) to obtain a sufficient understanding of Sunbeam's internal control structure to plan the audits and to determine the nature, timing, and extent of tests to be performed, in violation of AU § 150.02.

66. In addition, in conducting the 1997 audit, Andersen (1) improperly relied on management representations rather than applying the auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion on Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of SAS No. 19 (AU § 333.02); (2) failed to recognize that misstatements resulting from misapplication of GAAP, departures from fact and omissions of necessary information, in aggregate, caused Sunbeam's financial statements to be materially misstated, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.04); (3) failed to issue a qualified or adverse opinion, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.31); (4) improperly concluded that the accounting principles applied by Sunbeam were appropriate in the circumstances and that Sunbeam's financial statements were informative of matters that could affect their use, understanding and interpretation, in violation of SAS No. 69 (AU §§ 411.04(b) and (c)); and (5) failed to report that a change in the application of accounting principles in Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements had materially affected their comparability with the financial statements for prior periods, especially 1996, due to a different treatment of sales and reserves in those periods, in violation of SAS Nos. 1 and 43 (AU § 420.02).

67. In all, the 1997 financial statements audited by Andersen reported operating income of $186 million — an overstatement of at least 50 percent. Like its 1996 unqualified audit opinion, Andersen's 1997 opinion was false in two material respects. First, the financial statements Andersen audited did not "fairly" present Sunbeam's financial position in conformity with GAAP, as it represented. Second, Andersen had not, as it claimed, conducted its audit in accordance with GAAS.

Morgan Stanley's Reliance on Andersen's Unqualified Audit Opinions

68. After it agreed to acquire Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, Sunbeam needed to raise approximately $2.3 billion to refinance existing debt and to fund these acquisitions. To accomplish these financing objectives, Sunbeam's management elected to issue $500 million in subordinated convertible notes (an amount later increased to $750 million) (the "Convertible Note Offering") and enter into a new $2 billion senior credit agreement (later reduced to $1.7 billion) with secured lenders (the "Bank Facility"). Morgan Stanley served as the lead underwriter for the Convertible Note Offering and as the Syndication Agent for the Bank Facility. Morgan Stanley also coordinated the Bank Facility with First Union and Bank of America, Sunbeam's other secured lenders.

69. Andersen knew of these proposed financing arrangements. Specifically, Andersen knew that the Coleman and other acquisitions would not close unless Sunbeam secured the financing necessary to cover the acquisition prices. Moreover, Andersen knew that Morgan Stanley was a principal participant in the Bank Facility, and that Morgan Stanley would be relying on the representations Andersen made regarding Sunbeam's financial condition. Indeed, Andersen knew that documents issued in connection with the Convertible Note Offering clearly stated that "[Sunbeam] is currently negotiating the terms of the New Credit Facility with a group of banks which [Sunbeam] expects will provide for borrowings by [Sunbeam] or one or more of its subsidiaries in the aggregate principal amount of $2.0 billion. The New Credit Facility is being arranged by an affiliate of [Morgan Stanley]."

70. In addition to its knowledge of Morgan Stanley's role in Sunbeam's acquisitions, Andersen had many reasons to know that Morgan Stanley would rely on Sunbeam's audited financial statements. To begin with, Andersen, in its substantial experience working on multi-billion dollar mergers and acquisitions, understood that Sunbeam's lenders and underwriters would rely on an auditor's certification of Sunbeam's financial condition. As would any lender engaged in a deal of this scale, Morgan Stanley looked to the financial statements provided by Sunbeam and audited by Andersen to evaluate annual cash flow and to assess Sunbeam's ability, following the acquisition, to promptly and comfortably pay interest and ultimately pay back the loan. Indeed, reasonable and professional lenders such as Morgan Stanley, Bank of America, and First Union would not have loaned over $1 billion dollars to any person or entity without strong assurance that their money would be returned.

71. Not only was Andersen aware that any prudent business in Morgan Stanley's position would rely on Andersen's financial statements, but Andersen also knew that Morgan Stanley was specifically relying on Andersen's certifications. Indeed, Andersen itself had expressly represented to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's financial statements were truthful and that Andersen's unqualified audit opinions were reliable. On March 19, 1998, Andersen sent Morgan Stanley a "comfort" letter stating that, in Andersen's opinion, "the consolidated financial statements [for 1996 and 1997] audited by [Andersen] and included in the Offering Memorandum comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of the [Securities Act of 1933] and the related published rules and regulations." In a follow-up letter dated March 25, 1998, Andersen reaffirmed its previous representation.

72. In addition, Andersen participated in meetings and telephone calls in which it represented to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate.

73. Andersen also knew that Morgan Stanley had stated in a February 27, 1998 "fairness" letter that Morgan Stanley presented to Sunbeam's Board of Directors that Morgan

Stanley had assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial statements.

74. In addition, Andersen knew that Sunbeam had expressly represented, in loan negotiations with Morgan Stanley, that Andersen's audit opinions were accurate. Specifically, Andersen knew that, in the Sunbeam-Morgan Stanley credit agreement, Sunbeam warranted that it had provided Morgan Stanley with accurate information regarding Sunbeam's consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. According to Sunbeam, its financial statements — certified by Andersen — "present[ed] fairly, in all material respects, the financial position and results of operations and cash flows . . . in accordance with GAAP."

75. Similarly, Andersen knew that, in connection with the Convertible Note Offering, Sunbeam had included its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998 offering memorandum and had represented to Morgan Stanley that its audited financial statements were reliable.

76. Andersen also knew that, as part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam had represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate and not misleading, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date. Sunbeam further represented that its audited financial statements were prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that at the time of the closing of the transaction, that representation would continue to be true and correct.

77. Significantly, although it knew that Morgan Stanley had based multi-million dollar financing decisions on its representations, Andersen did not tell Morgan Stanley of the accounting concerns that it had raised with Sunbeam management in the course of its 1996 and 1997 audits or that Sunbeam's financial statements had not been fairly stated in 1996 and 1997.

78. On March 25, 1998, the $750 million Convertible Note Offering closed.

79. Sunbeam closed its acquisition of Coleman on March 30, 1998. On that date, Sunbeam, through a wholly owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81 percent of the then-outstanding shares of Coleman common stock. These shares were acquired by Sunbeam in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam's common stock and approximately $160,000,000 in cash. In addition, Sunbeam assumed or repaid approximately $1,016,000,000 in debt belonging to Coleman and Coleman-Parent. Included in the repaid debt portion of the transaction was an immediate cash payment by Sunbeam to Coleman-Parent of $590 million.

80. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam closed the Bank Facility on March 31, 1998. In accordance with the terms of the Bank Facility, Morgan Stanley — unaware of the falsity of Sunbeam's financial statements and Andersen's audit reports — loaned Sunbeam $680 million in immediately available funds to be used for the acquisitions. First Union, which served as the Administrative Agent for the Bank Facility, loaned Sunbeam an additional $510 million. Bank of America, which served as the Documentation Agent for the Bank Facility, loaned Sunbeam an additional $510 million.

81. As Andersen knew, Morgan Stanley had relied on Sunbeam's report of $186 million in income in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and to loan Sunbeam $680 million. Moreover, Andersen knew that the Sunbeam-Morgan Stanley credit agreement provided that a condition precedent to Morgan Stanley's obligations under the agreement was the absence of any event, change, or development that would have a material adverse effect on the business, results of operation, or financial condition of Sunbeam. Andersen knew that an additional condition precedent to Morgan Stanley's obligations was the absence of any material misrepresentation or omissions in Sunbeam's SEC filings, including Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audit reports in the Form 10-Ks.

82. But for Andersen's fraud and its failure to issue qualified or adverse reports exposing the falsity of Sunbeam's financial statements, Morgan Stanley would have had notice of an adverse material change affecting Sunbeam before funding, and of a material misstatement in Sunbeam's SEC filings. Not only would Morgan Stanley never have agreed to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering, but Morgan Stanley's obligation to loan Sunbeam $680 million also would have been discharged by the failure of conditions precedent to its obligations under the credit agreement. Andersen's fraud directly caused the extensive losses that Morgan Stanley suffered.

Andersen's Improper Accounting and Misrepresentations Are Revealed

83. In an April 3, 1998 conference call with securities analysts, Sunbeam revealed that sales for the first quarter of 1998 were 5 percent below reported sales for the same period of the prior year.

84. On April 22, 1998, a class of Sunbeam shareholders sued Sunbeam and its senior officers in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, alleging that the company had violated the securities laws by issuing materially false and misleading statements regarding Sunbeam's financial condition. Andersen was subsequently added as a defendant in this lawsuit.

85. On June 8, 1998, an article was published in Barron's that raised serious questions regarding Sunbeam's apparent success under Dunlap, suggesting that it was the result of "accounting gimmickry." On June 15, 1998, Sunbeam's Board announced that it had removed Dunlap as Chairman and CEO. On June 17, 1998, Sunbeam received a letter from the SEC informing it that the SEC had initiated an investigation into the company.

86. Andersen continued to stand behind its fraudulent audit opinions. On June 15, 1998, Andersen allowed Sunbeam's Board of Directors to assert that Andersen had "assured the Board that Sunbeam's audited financial statements [were] accurate in all material respects." It was not until June 25, 1998 — when Andersen withheld its consent for use of its 1997 audit opinion in a registration statement that was to have been filed with the SEC — that Andersen gave any hint that its unqualified audit opinions were unreliable.

87. On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the Audit Committee of its Board of Directors would conduct an inquiry into the accuracy of its 1997 financial statements. The Audit Committee subsequently retained Deloitte & Touche LLP to assist in the review, in addition to Andersen. Sunbeam stated that "pending the completion of the review, its 1997 financial statements and the report of Arthur Andersen LLP should not be relied upon." Sunbeam added that the review "could result in a restatement of the 1997 financial statements and the first quarter 1998 Form 10-Q."

88. On August 6, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its Audit Committee had determined that Sunbeam would be required to restate its audited financial statements for 1997 and possibly for 1996, as well as its unaudited financial statements for the first quarter of 1998. On October 20, 1998, Sunbeam and Andersen announced a restatement of its 1996 and 1997 financial statements.

89. Holders of the convertible notes sued Sunbeam on October 30, 1998, and Andersen was later named as a defendant in that suit.

90. On November 12, 1998, Sunbeam released its restated 1996 and 1997 financial results, again audited by Andersen. The restated 1996 financial statements reported operating losses for 1996 that were approximately $40 million less than originally reported, losses from continuing operations that were approximately $26 million less than previously reported and net losses that were approximately $20 million less than previously reported.

91. For 1997, the restated financial statements reported operating earnings that were approximately $95 million less than originally reported, earnings from continuing operations that were approximately $70 million less than previously reported and net earnings that were approximately $70 million less than previously reported. The new operating income figure for 1997 was approximately half the amount that Andersen had previously certified.

Sunbeam Declares Bankruptcy

92. On February 6, 2001, as a direct result of the deceit that Andersen had facilitated, Sunbeam and several of its subsidiaries were forced to seek relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. As part of the bankruptcy court-approved reorganization plan, Morgan Stanley's $680 million loan to Sunbeam was discharged in full, and Morgan Stanley received Sunbeam stock valued at a fraction of the original loan. In addition, as a result of Andersen's actions, the convertible notes issued by Sunbeam and held by Morgan Stanley had been rendered substantially less valuable.

Subsequent Censure of Andersen's Conduct

93. Both courts and regulators have scrutinized Andersen's facilitation of Sunbeam's fraud. In their judgments against the firm and Harlow, they have denounced Andersen's conduct.

94. In December 1999, for example, the federal court presiding over the Sunbeam shareholders' class action lawsuit refused to dismiss the claims against Andersen. The court concluded that the class plaintiffs had alleged sufficient facts "to demonstrate that Arthur Andersen had acted with severe recklessness in issuing its misleading [1997] Unqualified Audit Opinion." In re Sunbeam Sec. Litig., 89 F. Supp. 2d 1326, 1344 (S.D. Fla. 1999). Andersen subsequently settled this lawsuit in 2001 for $110 million.

95. On May 15, 2001, the SEC filed a civil action in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida against five former Sunbeam officers and Harlow, Andersen's engagement partner.

96. In January 2003, the SEC settled its charges with Harlow. In its settlement order, it made numerous factual findings regarding Harlow and Andersen's improper conduct. It concluded that Harlow had proposed, on many occasions, adjustments to rectify Sunbeam's false financial statements. After management refused to make these adjustments, Harlow improperly acceded to that decision. In re Phillip E. Harlow, Rel. No. 34-47261, 2003 WL 169818, at 1-3 (SEC Release Jan. 27, 2003).

97. The SEC's assessment of Harlow's conduct was damning. Among many other things, it concluded that Harlow (1) "failed to exercise professional skepticism when performing audit procedures and gathering and analyzing audit evidence"; (2) "accepted uncorroborated representations of Sunbeam's management in lieu of performing appropriate audit procedures"; (3) "failed to exercise due professional care in performing the audit and preparing the audit report"; (4) "failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to determine whether the financial statements were in conformity with GAAP," even after he had "identified a number of audit risks and accounting issues associated with the Sunbeam engagement"; and (5) "failed to obtain sufficient competent evidential matters through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmation to afford a reasonable basis for an audit opinion." Id. at *4. Based on these factual findings, the Commission concluded that the 1996 and 1997 financial statements that Harlow had audited were not in conformity with GAAP, and the audit was not performed in accordance with GAAS. Id. (citing AU §§ 410, 411, 508.07).

98. Other participants in the Coleman acquisition have also sued Andersen for its fraudulent conduct. On July 1, 2001, Coleman-Parent sued Andersen for fraudulent misrepresentation, fraudulent inducement to contract, and negligent misrepresentation. Andersen subsequently agreed to settle that dispute for an undisclosed amount.

COUNT I

Fraudulent Misrepresentation

99. Paragraphs 1 through 98 are repeated and realleged as if set forth herein.

100. Andersen consented to the publication of its audit reports to the public and business world by permitting Sunbeam to include them in Sunbeam's SEC filings. Given that publication, Andersen knew and intended that the public — including Morgan Stanley — would rely on Andersen's representations.

101. Andersen knew of Morgan Stanley's role in Sunbeam's acquisitions. Andersen also knew that Morgan Stanley would rely and had relied upon Andersen's 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions for the particular purpose of determining whether to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and to provide Sunbeam with a loan for $680 million. Andersen itself invited Morgan Stanley to rely on its unqualified audit opinions, expressly representing to Morgan Stanley, in letters dated March 19, 1998, and March 25, 1998, that Sunbeam's financial statements were truthful and that Andersen's unqualified audit opinions were reliable. Moreover, Andersen knew that Morgan Stanley had provided Sunbeam's Board of Directors with a "fairness" letter expressly stating that Morgan Stanley had assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial statements.

102. Andersen also knew of Sunbeam's proposed financing arrangements, and it participated in meetings and telephone calls in which it represented to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate.

103. In addition, Andersen knew that Sunbeam had expressly represented, in loan negotiations with Morgan Stanley, that Andersen's audit opinions were accurate and that, in the Sunbeam-Morgan Stanley credit agreement, Sunbeam had warranted that it had provided Morgan Stanley with accurate information regarding its consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. Similarly, Andersen knew that, in connection with the Convertible Note Offering, Sunbeam had included its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998 offering memorandum and had represented to Morgan Stanley that its audited financial statements were reliable.

104. Andersen also knew that, as part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam had represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate, not misleading, and prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date.

105. Andersen knew that Sunbeam's financial statements were replete with accounting irregularities and that the information in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements was materially false and misleading. Those material misrepresentations included, among other things, overstatements of (a) Sunbeam's 1996 operating losses by approximately $40 million; (b) its 1996 losses from continuing operations by approximately $26 million; (c) its 1996 net losses by approximately $20 million; (d) its 1997 operating earnings by approximately $95 million; (e) its 1997 earnings from continuing operations by over $70 million; (f) its 1997 net earnings by approximately $70 million; and (g) its 1997 operating income figure by approximately 50 percent.

106. In addition, Andersen knew that its 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions were materially false and misleading. Andersen knew that it had falsely stated, among other things, that (a) Sunbeam's financial statements fairly presented the financial position of Sunbeam during 1996 and 1997; (b) Sunbeam's financial statements fairly presented the results of Sunbeam's operations and cash flows during 1996 and 1997; (c) Sunbeam's financial statements conformed with GAAP; and (d) its audits of Sunbeam were conducted in accordance with GAAS.

107. Although Andersen knew that Morgan Stanley would rely and had relied on its false statements, it did not inform Morgan Stanley that the unqualified audit opinions it had provided were materially false or that Sunbeam's financial statements contained numerous misstatements of material facts.

108. Andersen made its materially false representations regarding its unqualified audit opinions and the accuracy of Sunbeam's financial statements with the intent to deceive Morgan Stanley.

109. Andersen knew that the false information that it had provided to Morgan Stanley, and its intentional failure to correct the misrepresentations contained in Sunbeam's financial statements, would be critical to Morgan Stanley's decision to participate in the financing of Sunbeam's acquisitions. But for Andersen's fraudulent representations, Morgan Stanley would not have underwritten the Convertible Note Offering, nor would it have loaned Sunbeam $680 million.

110. As a direct result of Andersen's fraud, Morgan Stanley has suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages.

COUNT II
Fraudulent Inducement To Contract
(Conspiracy and Concerted Action)

111. Paragraphs 1 through 110 are repeated and realleged as if set forth herein.

112. Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements contained false statements of material fact. Those material misrepresentations included, among other things, overstatements of (a) Sunbeam's 1996 operating losses by approximately $40 million; (b) its 1996 losses from continuing operations by approximately $26 million; (c) its 1996 net losses by approximately $20 million; (d) its 1997 operating earnings by approximately $95 million; (e) its 1997 earnings from continuing operations by over $70 million; (f) its 1997 net earnings by approximately $70 million; and (g) its 1997 operating income figure by approximately 50 percent.

113. Andersen knew that its 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions were materially false and misleading. Andersen knew that it had falsely stated, among other things, that (a) Sunbeam's financial statements fairly presented the financial position of Sunbeam during 1996 and 1997; (b) Sunbeam's financial statements fairly presented the results of Sunbeam's operations and cash flows during 1996 and 1997; (c) Sunbeam's financial statements conformed with GAAP; and (d) its audits of Sunbeam were conducted in accordance with GAAS.

114. Both Sunbeam and Andersen knew that their representations regarding Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements were false when made and/or made these representations with reckless disregard as to their truth.

115. Andersen, Harlow, Dunlap, Kersh, and other senior Sunbeam executives acted in concert and wrongfully conspired to create the appearance that Sunbeam was performing at a high level in order artificially to inflate the stock price of Sunbeam and make it attractive for a sale to another company. Andersen explicitly or implicitly by acquiescence agreed to become part of that conspiracy and committed overt acts in furtherance of its fraudulent scheme in order to retain Sunbeam as a client.

116. In furtherance of that conspiracy, Dunlap and the other Sunbeam executives decided to acquire Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands. In furtherance of that scheme, in March 1998, Andersen committed the overt acts of issuing Andersen's false and misleading unqualified audit opinion with respect to Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements and of consenting to its publication to the SEC as part of Sunbeam's Form 10-K filing on March 6, 1998.

117. To induce Morgan Stanley into underwriting the Convertible Note Offering and to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance its acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, Andersen and Sunbeam represented to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's audited financial statements and Andersen's audit opinions were accurate and not misleading. Andersen invited Morgan Stanley to rely on its unqualified audit opinions, expressly representing to Morgan Stanley, in letters dated March 19, 1998, and March 25, 1998, that Sunbeam's financial statements were truthful and that Andersen's unqualified audit opinions were reliable. Both Andersen and Sunbeam management knew that Morgan Stanley had provided Sunbeam's Board of Directors with a "fairness" letter expressly stating that Morgan Stanley had assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial statements.

118. In connection with the Convertible Note Offering and the Bank Facility, Andersen and Sunbeam participated in meetings and telephone calls in which they represented to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate.

119. In addition, Sunbeam expressly represented, in loan negotiations with Morgan Stanley, that Andersen's audit opinions were accurate. It further warranted, in the Sunbeam-Morgan Stanley credit agreement, that it had provided Morgan Stanley with accurate information regarding its consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. Likewise, in connection with the Convertible Note Offering,

Sunbeam included its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998 offering memorandum and represented to Morgan Stanley that its audited financial statements were reliable.

120. Also, as part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate, not misleading, and prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date.

121. Andersen knew that its audit opinion would be used by Sunbeam to induce Morgan Stanley to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and to induce Morgan Stanley to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance Sunbeam's acquisition of a controlling stake in Coleman. Andersen's audit report furthered the conspiracy between Andersen and Sunbeam by actively perpetuating the illusion that Sunbeam was a financially healthy company, which helped to support the company's artificially inflated stock price. In doing so, Andersen committed the tortious act of fraudulent inducement in concert with Dunlap and the other Sunbeam executives pursuant to a common design.

122. In reasonable and justifiable reliance on Andersen's and Sunbeam's representations that Sunbeam's financial statements and Andersen's audit reports were accurate and truthful, Morgan Stanley agreed to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering, and Morgan Stanley agreed to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

123. As a direct result of this conspiracy of fraudulent inducement, Morgan Stanley has suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages.

COUNT III

Aiding and Abetting Fraud

124. Paragraphs 1 through 123 are repeated and alleged as if set forth herein.

125. Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements contained false statements of material fact. Those material misrepresentations included, among other things, overstatements of (a) Sunbeam's 1996 operating losses by approximately $40 million; (b) its 1996 losses from continuing operations by approximately $26 million; (c) its 1996 net losses by approximately $20 million; (d) its 1997 operating earnings by approximately $95 million; (e) its 1997 earnings from continuing operations by over $70 million; (f) its 1997 net earnings by approximately $70 million; and (g) its 1997 operating income figure by approximately 50 percent.

126. Andersen's 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions were materially false and misleading. Andersen falsely stated, among other things, that (a) Sunbeam's financial statements fairly presented the financial position of Sunbeam during 1996 and 1997; (b) Sunbeam's financial statements fairly presented the results of Sunbeam's operations and cash flows during 1996 and 1997; (c) Sunbeam's financial statements conformed with GAAP; and (d) its audits of Sunbeam were conducted in accordance with GAAS.

127. To induce Morgan Stanley into underwriting the Convertible Note Offering and to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance its acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, Sunbeam represented to Morgan Stanley in loan negotiations that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate and not misleading. In addition, in the Sunbeam-Morgan Stanley credit agreement, Sunbeam warranted that it had provided Morgan Stanley with accurate information regarding its consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. Likewise, in connection with the Convertible Note Offering, Sunbeam included its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998 offering memorandum and represented to Morgan Stanley that its audited financial statements were reliable.

128. Also, as part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam expressly represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate, not misleading, and prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date.

129. Sunbeam knew that its representations regarding its 1996 and 1997 financial statements were materially false when made and/or made these representations with reckless disregard as to their truth. In addition, Sunbeam knew that Andersen's 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions were materially false and misleading.

130. Sunbeam knew that Morgan Stanley would rely on its representations in determining whether to act as Sunbeam's underwriter and to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance its acquisitions. Although Sunbeam knew that Morgan Stanley would rely and had relied on its false statements, it did not inform Morgan Stanley that the unqualified audit opinions it had provided were materially false or that Sunbeam's financial statements contained numerous misstatements of material facts.

131. Sunbeam made its materially false representations regarding its financial statements and Andersen's unqualified audit opinions with the intent to deceive Morgan Stanley and to induce Morgan Stanley to participate in the financing of Sunbeam's acquisitions.

132. Sunbeam knew that the false information that it had provided to Morgan Stanley, and its intentional failure to correct the misrepresentations contained in Sunbeam's financial statements, would be critical to Morgan Stanley's decision to participate in the financing of Sunbeam's acquisitions. But for Sunbeam's fraudulent representations, Morgan Stanley would not have underwritten the Convertible Note Offering, nor would it have loaned Sunbeam $680 million.

133. Andersen knowingly and substantially assisted Sunbeam in its fraud. Andersen itself expressly represented to Morgan Stanley, in letters dated March 19, 1998, and March 25, 1998, that Sunbeam's financial statements were truthful and that Andersen's unqualified audit opinions were reliable. In addition, Andersen participated in meetings and telephone calls in which it represented to Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate. Moreover, Andersen knew that Morgan Stanley had provided Sunbeam's Board of Directors with a "fairness" letter expressly stating that Morgan Stanley had assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial statements. Andersen did not tell Morgan Stanley of the accounting concerns that it had raised with Sunbeam management in the course of its 1996 and 1997 audits.

134. As a direct result of Sunbeam's fraud, aided and abetted by Andersen, Morgan Stanley has suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages.

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs Morgan Stanley demand judgment against Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-US, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela, Andersen-UK, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, jointly and severally, as follows:

- A. Compensatory damages in an amount to be determined at trial;
- B. Attorneys' fees and costs incurred in this and related litigation;
- C. Pre-judgment interest; and
- D. All other relief this Court may deem just and appropriate.

Plaintiffs expressly reserve the right to seek leave to amend its complaint pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 768.72 to assert claims for punitive damages in excess of $1.2 billion as allowed by law.

Venezuela"); ARTHUR ANDERSEN, a United Kingdom Company ("Andersen-UK") (Andersen-US, Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong-Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela and Andersen-UK are collectively referred to herein as "Andersen")¹; PHILLIP E. HARLOW, individually ("Harlow"), LARRY BORNSTEIN, individually ("Bornstein"), GREGORY B. WILDER, individually ("Wilder"), MIGUEL A. FONSECA, individually ("Fonseca"), DONALD DENKHAUS ("Denkhaus") and WILLIAM PRUITT ("Pruitt") (Harlow, Bornstein, Wilder, Fonseca, Denkhaus and Pruitt are collectively referred to herein as the "Individual Defendants"), and states:

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. This action arises out of Wachovia's agreeing to lend up to $600 million to Sunbeam Corporation, Inc. ("Sunbeam") in connection with a $2.0 billion credit agreement (the "Credit Agreement") executed by Sunbeam on or about March 30, 1998 and funded in excess of $400 million by Wachovia on or after March 31, 1998.

2. In deciding to extend credit to Sunbeam, Wachovia relied on Sunbeam's financial statements, which were audited by Andersen and certified on behalf of Andersen by Andersen-US. Andersen promoted itself as the largest accounting firm in the world at the time of the audits.

3. However, unbeknownst to Wachovia, Andersen had audited and certified financial statements that it knew to be inaccurate and misleading at the time the financial statements were certified. Those audited financial statements painted a false picture of Sunbeam, depicting it as a company in the midst of an impressive financial turnaround. The reality was that Sunbeam's turnaround was a sham, and when the truth emerged, Sunbeam's stock lost virtually all of its value.

¹ Unless otherwise stated, allegations made against "Andersen" are made against each of Andersen-US, Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela and Andersen-UK jointly and severally.

4. By relying upon the financial statements improperly certified by Andersen, Wachovia has suffered losses exceeding $100 million.

5. By holding itself out as Sunbeam's independent certified public accountant and certifying Sunbeam's financial statements, Andersen knowingly assumed a responsibility that transcended its relationship with Sunbeam as a client. Indeed, Andersen specifically knew that Wachovia was relying upon its work as Sunbeam's independent certified public accountants. As an independent certified public accountant auditing Sunbeam's financial statements, Andersen owed a duty to Wachovia who it knew was relying upon Andersen's certification that Sunbeam's reports fairly depicted Sunbeam's financial status. Andersen was required to maintain independence from its client, Sunbeam, and speak with total honesty befitting the trust that had been placed in its word. In carrying out its audit of Sunbeam's financial statements, Andersen utterly failed to live up to that responsibility. To the contrary, Andersen's audits were not performed in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards ("GAAS"), and the financial statements it certified were not, as Andersen claimed, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"). Even more egregious, Phillip Harlow, the audit partner on the Sunbeam account, and others at Andersen, including Pruitt, knew the financial statements were not prepared in conformity with GAAP, but Andersen certified them nonetheless.

6. Defendants' motivation was simple — to do whatever was necessary to retain a major client and earn significant fees. Andersen had served as Sunbeam's independent auditor for many years. In 1993, Andersen's Fort Lauderdale, Florida, office took charge of the account, and Sunbeam became one of the few Fortune 500 clients in that office. Sunbeam's audits generated significant fees. For example, Sunbeam paid Andersen more than $1 million for its 1995 audit. Over the years, in addition to auditing work, Sunbeam also generated numerous consulting engagements and their accompanying fees. Defendants were motivated to preserve the Sunbeam relationship not only to ensure that audit engagements would continue but also to reinforce the opportunity to perform lucrative consulting work. In addition, maintaining the relationship with Sunbeam was important to defendants because being dropped by a high-profile client such as Sunbeam would have brought negative publicity to the Ft. Lauderdale office and to Andersen.

7. However, in 1996 that relationship was threatened by Sunbeam's new CEO, Albert Dunlap. Dunlap was eager to show a turnaround at Sunbeam in order to position the company for a quick sale, as he recently had done at Scott Paper. To accomplish that goal, Dunlap's new management team knowingly employed improper accounting methods that first overstated the company's loss in 1996 and then inflated the company's income in 1997. In total abrogation of its responsibility as an independent auditor, Andersen permitted — indeed, blessed those improper accounting treatments, rather than risk losing Sunbeam's audit business to Dunlap's accountant of choice, Coopers & Lybrand.

8. Ironically, the financial results certified by Andersen for 1996 and 1997 drove the price of Sunbeam stock so high that new management could not locate a willing buyer for a quick sale of the company, as had been hoped. As a result, Sunbeam was forced to shift gears and pursue acquisitions of other companies, including Coleman Company, in the hope that those mergers would obscure Sunbeam's true financial position and forestall revelation of the accounting gimmickry. To effectuate that plan, some of the very same Andersen partners and employees who were functioning as Sunbeam's "independent" auditors (including Harlow, Wilder, Fonseca and Bornstein) added another role and joined Sunbeam's due diligence team for the acquisitions.

9. Because of the dual roles as auditor and acquisitions consultant that defendants played, defendants knew full well not only that the Credit Agreement was being executed, but that

Wachovia was relying on the financial statements certified by Andersen. Nonetheless, defendants took no steps before the Credit Agreement was executed and funded to correct the grossly misleading impression created by its certifications.

10. Within weeks of Sunbeam's execution of the Credit Agreement on or about March 30, 1998, the deception facilitated by Andersen began to unravel. On April 3, 1998, just four days after the closing, Sunbeam's management issued a press release announcing that, despite having predicted positive quarterly results in another press release just two weeks earlier, Sunbeam now would show a loss for the first quarter of 1998. On April 22, 1998, a class of Sunbeam shareholders sued Sunbeam and its senior officers in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida alleging that the company violated the securities laws by issuing materially false and misleading statements regarding Sunbeam's financial condition. Andersen was subsequently added as a defendant in this lawsuit. On May 11, 1998, Sunbeam issued an earnings release for the first quarter of 1998 reporting a loss of 52 cents per share, compared with a gain of 8 cents per share in the same quarter of 1997. Press coverage ensued in the following month questioning whether Sunbeam had utilized and Andersen had approved manipulative and improper accounting practices in order to create the ruse of a turnaround.

11. In June 1998, the Sunbeam board of directors began an inquiry into Sunbeam's accounting practices. On June 15, 1998, the board announced that it had removed Dunlap as Chairman and CEO of Sunbeam. On June 25, 1998, Andersen withheld its consent for use of its unqualified 1997 audit opinion in a registration statement that was to have been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam acknowledged that it had undertaken a review of its financial statements and the review could result in a restatement of the financial statements. On October 20, 1998, Sunbeam and Andersen announced a restatement of the financial statements. Thereafter, Andersen issued a new unqualified audit opinion for Sunbeam reporting only $93 million in operating earnings for 1997. That amount was approximately half of the figure that Andersen previously certified.

12. In February 2001, Sunbeam filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

13. In order to retain the Sunbeam account and lucrative auditing and consulting fees, Andersen turned its back on its professional and legal obligations and certified Sunbeam financial statements that it knew to be false and misleading. It did so with full knowledge that Wachovia would be harmed immensely by Andersen's misstatements and omissions. As a direct and foreseeable result of Andersen's actions, Wachovia has sustained damages in excess of $100,000,000.

14. By this complaint, Wachovia seeks recovery of over $100 million in compensatory damages. In addition, Wachovia reserves the right to seek leave to amend its complaint pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 768.72 to assert claims for an additional recovery of punitive damages.²

15. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of this action pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 36.012(2)(a) because Plaintiff seeks damages in excess of $15,000.00 exclusive of interest, costs and attorneys' fees. This Court has jurisdiction over Andersen-US, Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela, Andersen-UK, Harlow Wilder, Fonseca and Bornstein pursuant to Fla. Stat. §§ 48.193(1)(a) and (f), (2) and/or

² On or about April 24, 2001, Arthur Anderson, LLP and all of its successors, predecessors, affiliates, assigns, partners, employees, agents, officers or directors, non-party Morgan Stanley (f/k/a Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co.), non-party Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., non-party Bank of America, N.A. and Wachovia Bank, N.A. (f/k/a First Union National Bank), and all of their respective successors, predecessors, subsidiaries, affiliates and assigns (collectively, the "Parties") entered a tolling agreement, tolling the statute of limitations from April 24, 2001, through April 23, 2002. The Parties entered into further tolling agreements dated as of April 23, 2002, October 16, 2002, April

16. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to Fla. Stat. §§ 47.011 and 47.021 because Andersen maintained an office with more than 30 employees and partners in West Palm Beach, Florida, and therefore resides in Palm Beach County. In addition, Bornstein is a resident of Palm Beach County, Florida.

PARTIES

17. Wachovia is a national banking association, authorized and conducting business in Palm Beach County, Florida.

18. Andersen Worldwide Société Coopérative Switzerland ("Andersen-Worldwide") at all time material hereto was a partnership organized under the Swiss Federal Code of Obligations. Its partners included more than 2,000 individuals from 390 offices in 84 countries. Various individuals who were partners of Andersen-Worldwide participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam, and in the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits. Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-US dictated the policies and procedures to be used within Andersen throughout the world.

19. Arthur Andersen LLP ("Andersen-Canada") at all times material hereto was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Canada participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

of Andersen Worldwide. Andersen-Mexico participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

22. Piernavieja, Porta, Cachafeiro & Avocados ("Andersen-Venezuela") at all time material hereto was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Venezuela participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

23. Arthur Andersen ("Andersen-UK") at all time material hereto was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-UK participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

24. Arthur Andersen LLP ("Andersen-US") at all time material hereto was part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-US is a partnership formed under the laws of the State of Illinois. The partners of Andersen-US were residents of Florida and numerous other states. Andersen-US participated in and coordinated the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits. In addition, Andersen-US partners and employees provided consulting services to Sunbeam as part of due diligence work performed in conjunction with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company, and on other projects.

25. Phillip E. Harlow ("Harlow") at all times material hereto was a partner at Andersen-US since 1983, and also is a partner of Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the engagement partner on the audits of Sunbeam's financial statements from 1993 to 1998. As engagement partner, Harlow had primary responsibility for supervising the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam, including overseeing the activities with respect to the Sunbeam work, performed by numerous persons at Andersen.

26. Gregory B. Wilder ("Wilder") at all times material hereto was a tax partner at Andersen-US and, upon information and belief, was a partner of Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the tax partner in connection with the audits of Sunbeam's financial statements for at least 1996 and 1997. Wilder served on the Anderson team involved in the negotiation of the Credit Agreement and acquisition of First Alert, Inc., Coleman Company and Signature Brands USA, Inc.

27. Miguel A. Fonseca ("Fonseca") at all times material hereto was a tax manager at Andersen-US. He served under Wilder in connection with the audits of Sunbeam's financial statements for at least 1996 and 1997. Fonseca served on the Anderson team involved in the negotiation of the Credit Agreement and acquisition of First Alert, Inc., Coleman Company and Signature Brands USA, Inc.

28. Larry Bornstein ("Bornstein") at all times material hereto was a senior audit manager at Andersen US. He served under Harlow in connection with the audits of Sunbeam's financial statements for at least 1996 and 1997. Bornstein served on the Anderson team involved in the negotiation of the Credit Agreement and acquisition of First Alert, Inc., Coleman Company and Signature Brands USA, Inc.

29. William Pruitt ("Pruitt") at all times material hereto was a partner of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the concurring partner on the Sunbeam audits for at least 1996 and 1997.

30. Donald Denkhaus ("Denkhau"s") at all times material hereto was a partner of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide. Denkhau served as the engagement partner on the Sunbeam's ultimate restatement of its financial statements, as Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region.

ANDERSEN AS "ONE FIRM"

31. In 1913, an accounting and consulting partnership was formed in Illinois under the name "Arthur Andersen & Co." The company began to expand internationally in the 1930s. At all times material hereto, Anderson operated on a global scale through a network of international offices branches and subsidiaries of the U.S. partnership premised under a "one firm" concept.

32. In 1977, as Andersen increased its global presence, it created a new structure: the Andersen Worldwide Organization ("AWO"), comprised of Andersen-Worldwide, the individual partners of Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-Worldwide's offices around the globe, operating as a single global partnership or joint venture. The AWO structure was and is designed to maintain the "one firm" concept, and was and is intended to foster the belief that Andersen operates as a single entity. At all material times hereto, in its promotional literature, including its web site, Andersen-Worldwide marketed itself as "one firm," "a single worldwide operating structure" that "think[s] and act[s] as one."

33. Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto was the instrumentality through which the "one firm" concept became a reality. It achieved this in four distinct ways.

(a) Partner Overlap: Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto was a partnership made up of more than 2,000 individuals from 390 offices in 84 different countries worldwide. Simultaneously, the partners of Andersen-Worldwide also were partners (or the equivalent) in the entities that made up those offices. Thus, all of those offices were managed by individuals who were both local partners (or the equivalent) and partners of Andersen-Worldwide.

(b) Global Setting of Professional Standards: Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto purported to establish the professional standards and principles under which its offices operated. Andersen-Worldwide's international offices entered into a standard agreement with Andersen-Worldwide under which they agreed to be bound by those professional standards and principles. An office of Andersen-Worldwide that breached the agreement was subject to removal from the organization. The Assurance Professional Standards Group had firm-wide responsibility for providing guidance on the professional standards to be followed by Andersen-Worldwide's offices.

(c) Sharing of Costs and Profits: Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto coordinated the sharing of costs and allocation of revenues and profits among its partners and its offices around the world.

(d) Infrastructure and Administration: Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto handled all borrowing on behalf of its international offices, and maintained the financial records, payroll and employee and health benefits for those international offices as well. All of Andersen's offices shared global computer operations, a worldwide tax structure and training facilities.

34. By establishing a legal, financial and administrative infrastructure, at all material times hereto, Andersen-Worldwide enabled each of its Offices around the world to function as, and to appear to clients as, an extension of a single, global entity.

35. Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto managed, directed and controlled its international offices in two overlapping groups: by practice areas (also known as "lines of service") and by geographic location.

36. At all times material hereto, each practice group was managed by a global practice director who oversaw, directed and controlled the operations of each practice group worldwide. Regional practice directors reported to the global practice director and managed, directed and controlled the practice group within their regions. The global practice director and managing partner for the audit practice group of Andersen-Worldwide was C.E. Andrews, a United States-based partner.

37. In addition, Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto grouped its offices into several geographic regions and assigns a managing partner to each region.

38. Andersen-Worldwide at all times material hereto grew to be one of the world's largest accounting firms. The Andersen-Worldwide organization employed over 77,000 professionals in fields such as accounting, taxation, business consulting, corporate finance, risk management and business fraud investigation. Andersen-Worldwide's global revenues for the fiscal year ending August 31, 2001 totaled more than $9.3 billion.

39. Andersen-US at all times material hereto was dominant within Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Worldwide was largely controlled by its U.S.-resident partners, who also were partners of Andersen-US. Approximately half of the partners of Andersen-Worldwide were also partners of Andersen-US. Likewise, approximately half of the partners of Andersen-US were partners of Andersen-Worldwide.

40. The engagement partner on the Sunbeam audits, Harlow, and the concurring partner on those audits, William Pruitt, were, at all material times hereto, partners of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide. The engagement partner on the Sunbeam restatement, Donald Denkhaus, who as Audit Division Head also was manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, also was a partner of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide.

41. In addition to overlapping partners, Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-US at all material times hereto shared officers in common as well. For example, the Chief Executive Officer and Managing Partner of Andersen-Worldwide was Joseph Berardino, who also was the Chief Executive Officer and Managing Partner of Andersen-US. In addition, Andrew Pincus was the General Counsel of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide. The Andersen-Worldwide regional managing partner for North America was Terry E. Hatchett, who also was the country managing partner for Andersen-US.

42. Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-US at all material times hereto shared more than partners and officers — they shared the same address. In its promotional literature, Andersen-Worldwide stated its headquarters were located at 33 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois 60603. That was the same address as the headquarters of Andersen-US.

43. At all times material hereto, Andersen-Worldwide and its affiliates demonstrated the "one firm" concept not only through their actions relative to the outside world, but also internally within the Andersen organization itself.

44. At all times material hereto, the components of the Andersen organization ignored corporate formalities in referring to themselves or to each other. Documents by Andersen-US often bore the insignia and logos of Andersen-Worldwide, including "Andersen Worldwide," "Andersen," and "Arthur Andersen Co., SC". In its promotional literature, Andersen used the names "Andersen Worldwide," "Andersen," and "Arthur Andersen LLP" interchangeably. In addition, Andersen sometimes used only the name "Andersen" and did not differentiate between Andersen-Worldwide and its offices around the globe. Some promotional literature stated, "Arthur Andersen will now be known simply as Andersen." Indeed, when Joseph F. Berardino appeared before Congress in December 2001, he supplied written testimony that identified him as "Managing Partner — Chief Executive Officer, Andersen" (emphasis added).

45. At all times material hereto, Andersen took the same approach in work relating to Sunbeam. The auditors used Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen-US stationery and logos interchangeably, or otherwise used the identifier "Arthur Andersen," on internal correspondence, on correspondence with Sunbeam and on presentation materials for Sunbeam. Top partners responsible for the Sunbeam audits and restatement were partners of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide.

46. Andersen's audits and restatement work for Sunbeam illustrate the "one firm" concept in action. Sunbeam was a multinational corporation with operations in Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, Hong Kong and Europe. The engagements required the participation of auditors from each of those countries and numerous American cities. Harlow, on behalf of both Andersen-US and Andersen-Worldwide, developed work plans that he circulated to Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela and Andersen-UK. Those offices worked together with Harlow and others to complete the tasks outlined in the plan, and sent their work product to Harlow for inclusion in an Andersen Worldwide Management Letter.

SUBSTANTIVE ALLEGATIONS

47. In the years leading up to 1996, Sunbeam had experienced increasing financial difficulties and growing losses. In an effort to remedy the situation, Sunbeam's board of directors undertook a change in Sunbeam's management in July 1996. The management team the board brought in was headed by Albert Dunlap, a person who had earned a reputation as a turnaround specialist through brief terms as Chief Executive Officer of a number of publicly traded corporations. Based on his penchant for rapidly slashing personnel and closing plants to achieve quick turnaround results, Dunlap is widely known as "Chainsaw AL."

48. Sunbeam hired Dunlap on July 18, 1996 and installed him as its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Immediately after joining Sunbeam, Dunlap hired Russell A. Kersh as Sunbeam's principal financial officer. Kersh had been associated with Dunlap for over 15 years, and had served as a senior executive during various Dunlap turnaround engagements.

49. Dunlap also brought in other handpicked executives to make up his senior management team.

50. Dunlap hired Donald R. Uzzi as Vice President, Marketing and Product Development. Uzzi later became Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide. Dunlap also hired Lee B. Griffith as Vice President, Sales. Dunlap retained Robert J. Gluck, formerly Controller of Sunbeam, as Sunbeam's Principal Accounting Officer.

51. Dunlap and the senior members of his management team entered into lucrative employment agreements that gave them a strong financial incentive to cause Sunbeam's stock price to increase and then to sell the company quickly. All stood to make many millions of dollars if that happened. Andersen was fully aware of those audit risks and the fact that a disproportionate share of those executives' potential earnings was dependent on stock options or restricted shares of stock.

52. In addition to the personal financial incentives deriving from his employment contract, Dunlap also had his reputation as a turnaround specialist to protect and advance. Dunlap used his reputation as a specialist in turning around troubled companies to make aggressive promises about Sunbeam's future performance and support false and misleading announcements of record performance — results that were rendered credible because Andersen had certified Sunbeam's financial statements.

53. To lay the foundation for the appearance of a successful turnaround in 1997, Sunbeam's new senior management team decided to take improper expenses and record unjustified accounting write-offs in 1996, thus lowering the benchmark for measuring their ultimate "success" in turning Sunbeam around.

54. Dunlap and his team needed the help of Sunbeam's auditors in approving the improper accounting tactics or the scheme would have had no chance of success. Andersen's Phillip Harlow, among others, was such a willing participant. Harlow knew of Dunlap's reputation as a fast-moving turnaround specialist who was quick to fire anyone who did not advance his agenda. Harlow also knew that in other highly publicized turnaround engagements, Dunlap had employed Coopers & Lybrand, one of Andersen's major competitors, as a financial consultant and independent auditor. Consistent with past practice, one of the first things Dunlap did after joining Sunbeam was to hire Coopers & Lybrand as a financial advisor with the lucrative assignment of planning Sunbeam's massive restructuring, which led to the firing of nearly half of Sunbeam's 12,000 employees. Andersen — and especially Harlow — was keenly aware that this did not bode well for the future of Andersen's relationship with Sunbeam.

55. Sunbeam had been a major client of Andersen's for many years and Sunbeam had paid Andersen over $1 million in fees for its 1995 audit alone. Harlow had been the Sunbeam engagement partner since 1993. When Dunlap took control of Sunbeam and hired Coopers & Lybrand for the restructuring, Harlow became concerned that Dunlap would fire Andersen as the company's independent auditor and hire Coopers & Lybrand instead. Indeed, Harlow was so concerned about the possible loss of Sunbeam as a client that he agreed to a 30% reduction in Andersen's fee for 1996. A reduction in audit fees was simply one price Andersen had to pay in order to keep Sunbeam as a client.

56. When Harlow began work on the audit of Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements, Harlow and Andersen learned the true price of keeping Sunbeam as an audit client. In addition to reducing its audit fees, Andersen was required to accept the improper and misleading accounting treatments used by Sunbeam's senior management to create the illusion of a successful turnaround. In the end, Andersen's desire to retain a valuable client overrode any sense of duty or professionalism. To keep Sunbeam as an Andersen client, Harlow and Andersen ignored numerous accounting improprieties Andersen knew had been employed. Even when Harlow expressly identified certain of management's bogus accounting treatments, he ultimately acquiesced in management's refusal to correct the improprieties, and Andersen issued unqualified or "clean" audit opinions. Andersen did so despite the harm it knew would be inflicted on all who relied upon Andersen's audit opinions.

57. As set forth below, Andersen and the Individual Defendants permitted management to employ numerous accounting practices in 1996 that did not comply with GAAP.

58. One of the accounting practices permitted by Andersen was the creation of a massive $338 million non-GAAP reserve for restructuring charges. Although certain types of restructuring reserves may be proper, the reserves created by management included improper reserves and accruals, excessive write-downs and prematurely recognized expenses that were not proper restructuring reserves under GAAP. Those intentionally inflated reserves served two purposes. First, because the reserves were charged as an expense against income, they allowed Sunbeam to overstate its 1996 loss, and lower the benchmark for measuring the eventual success of Sunbeam's turnaround. Second, the inflated restructuring reserves created a "cookie-jar" of overstated liabilities on Sunbeam's books that Dunlap could reduce in the years after 1996, purportedly to correct the overstatements, and at the same time increase income in the year of the corrections. Those adjustments, too, fostered the illusion of a successful turnaround.

59. One of the largest components of the Sunbeam "cookie-jar" reserves permitted by Andersen and Harlow was millions of dollars in items that benefited future activities, and hence were not properly part of the restructuring reserve. Those items included costs of redesigning product packaging, costs of relocating employees and equipment, bonuses to be paid to employees who were told that they were being laid off but were asked to stay temporarily, advertising expenses and certain consulting fees. Note 2 to the audited 1996 financial statements falsely described the restructuring charges as follows:

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is allocated as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations: $154.9 million to Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs as further described below; $92.3 million to Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs from the reduction in SKU's and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $42.5 million to Selling, General and Administrative expenses principally for increases in environmental and litigation reserves (see Notes 12 and 13) and other reserve categories; and the estimated pre-tax loss on the divestiture of the Company's furniture business of approximately $47.9 million.

As Sunbeam's eventual restatement of its financial statements showed, those reserves were materially inflated and were not recorded in accordance with GAAP.

60. In connection with the audit of Sunbeam's 1996 year-end financial statements, Harlow discovered that certain components of Sunbeam's restructuring reserves were not being recorded in compliance with GAAP and proposed that the company reverse several of the accounting entries establishing those reserves. As Harlow told Kersh and Gluck, under GAAP, entries that benefited Sunbeam's future results were not considered to be proper restructuring charges in 1996. But Kersh and Gluck refused to reverse those items. Instead of standing firm, as professional ethics required, Harlow turned a blind eye to his duties as an independent auditor and caused Andersen to acquiesce in management's refusal to reverse those non-GAAP reserves. Those improper reserves caused Sunbeam's 1996 audited financial statements to be materially false and misleading.

61. In connection with the 1996 audited financial statements, Andersen and Harlow also permitted management to create an excessive $12 million reserve for a lawsuit alleging that Sunbeam was liable for a portion of the cleanup costs for a hazardous waste site. In fact, that reserve overstated Sunbeam's estimated liability by at least 100%, and provided Sunbeam with an inflated reserve that could be drawn down to boost income figures artificially in later periods.

62. Andersen and Harlow also permitted Sunbeam to write down its household products inventory in 1996. In connection with the restructuring, Dunlap's management team planned to eliminate half of Sunbeam's product lines and to liquidate Sunbeam's inventory of eliminated product lines at a substantial discount. Notwithstanding that the change affected only half of Sunbeam's product lines, Andersen and Harlow permitted management to reduce the cost basis for Sunbeam's entire inventory of household products at 1996 year end, without distinction between eliminated and continuing product lines (including inventories that were later sold in the ordinary course of business). As a result, the balance sheet value of Sunbeam's inventory at year-end 1996 was understated by approximately $2 million, and Sunbeam overstated its 1996 loss by the same amount. Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that (a)

Sunbeam had understated the carrying value of its household products inventory; (b) the understatement had contributed to the material misstatement of Sunbeam's financial statements at year-end 1996 and (c) the understatement would improperly increase Sunbeam's income during 1997 when household products were sold at artificially inflated margins.

63. Andersen and Harlow also permitted management improperly to recognize $2.3 million in 1997 advertising expenses and related costs as a 1996 expense. Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that the accounting treatment would contribute to the material overstatement of Sunbeam's 1996 year-end loss and exaggerate Sunbeam's so-called turnaround by the same amount in 1997.

64. Finally, Andersen and Harlow permitted Sunbeam to manipulate its 1996 liabilities for cooperative advertising. In addition to buying national advertising to create demand for its products, Sunbeam funded a portion of its retailers' costs of running local promotions. As required by GAAP, Sunbeam accrued its estimated liabilities for such "cooperative advertising," and then charged its expenses in relation to its sales revenue during the year. At year-end 1996, Sunbeam set its cooperative advertising accrual at $21.8 million, an amount that was approximately 25% higher than the prior year's accrual amount, without any basis for the increase. Harlow learned of the inflated accrual for cooperative advertising in connection with Andersen's audit of Sunbeam's year-end 1996 financial statements and discussed it with Kersh and Gluck. Nevertheless, Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts concerning the lack of a proper basis for the accrual and the likelihood that the excess accrual would be released into income in early 1997. In fact, $5.7 million of that excessive accrual was used (without disclosure) to inflate Sunbeam's 1997 income.

65. In March 1997, Andersen issued an unqualified audit opinion regarding Sunbeam's

1996 financial statements and authorized the inclusion of its audit opinion in Sunbeam's 1996 Form 10-K filed with the SEC. Andersen's opinion stated:

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements . . . present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 29, 1996 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

66. Andersen's unqualified audit opinion was false in two material respects. First, the financial statements Andersen audited did not "fairly" present Sunbeam's financial position in conformity with GAAP, as it represented. Second, Andersen did not, as it claimed, conduct its audit in accordance with GAAS.

67. In all, the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen were materially false and misleading, and overstated Sunbeam's loss for 1996. Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that (a) Andersen's unqualified audit opinion was incorrect; (b) Sunbeam's financial statements were materially false and misleading and not in conformity with GAAP and (c) Andersen had failed to perform an audit in accordance with GAAS.

68. During 1997, Sunbeam's senior management continued to use improper accounting to create the illusion that a successful turnaround was underway at Sunbeam. By maintaining that illusion, Dunlap's management team hoped to position Sunbeam for a quick sale. However, the illusion proved too convincing to the market, and the price of Sunbeam stock was driven so high that no willing buyer could be found. Management was aware that, absent a sale, it would be unable to sustain the appearance of a successful turnaround. Therefore, in late 1997, Sunbeam sought to acquire other businesses, in order to consolidate their results with Sunbeam's and thereby continue to obscure Sunbeam's past accounting improprieties. Once again, Sunbeam management required Andersen's assistance in perpetuating the deception.

69. In early December 1997, officers and directors of Sunbeam met with various officers of Coleman Company regarding a potential combination with Sunbeam. After that initial overture was rejected, Dunlap's representative returned with another proposal in January 1998. At that point, Coleman Company indicated it was willing to discuss a potential transaction.

70. On January 28, 1998, Sunbeam announced its financial results for 1997, reporting total revenues of $1.168 billion, and total earnings from continuing operations of $189 million (or $1.41 per share). Sunbeam's announcement coincided with Andersen's purported completion of the fieldwork for its audit of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, although, its work continued for more than a month.

71. On February 3, 1998, Harlow met with key officers of Sunbeam to discuss the acquisition of Coleman Company and its financial impact on Sunbeam. By that time, Harlow knew that Sunbeam had utilized improper accounting to achieve its 1997 results. Harlow also knew lenders such as Wachovia financing Sunbeam's acquisition would insist on reviewing Andersen's 1997 audit opinion before agreeing to finance any transaction.

72. On February 20, 1998, Andersen agreed to act as a Sunbeam financial advisor and perform financial due diligence in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company and two other companies, First Alert, Inc. and Signature Brands USA, Inc. In agreeing to undertake that assignment, Andersen became an active member of the team working to assist

WPE:17463:1

Sunbeam in acquiring Coleman Company.

73. Between February 23 and 25, 1998, representatives of Andersen, including Harlow, conducted due diligence concerning Coleman Company and the other target companies on behalf of Sunbeam.

74. On February 27, 1998, Harlow met with Sunbeam executives in New York to discuss Andersen's due diligence. That afternoon, Sunbeam and Coleman reached an agreement for the sale of Coleman Company.

75. As part of the Coleman Company acquisition agreement, Sunbeam represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate and not misleading, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date, which was expected to be several weeks later. Sunbeam also represented that its audited financial statements were prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that at the time of the closing of the transaction, its representation would continue to be true and correct. Andersen was fully aware of those representations and warranties when the merger agreement was executed on February 27, 1998.

76. As a result of Andersen's involvement in the Coleman Company acquisition transaction, it knew that Wachovia would rely on Sunbeam's audited financial statements (1) in deciding to finance the transaction, and (2) in advancing over $1 billion on behalf of Sunbeam. Moreover, as an independent certified public accountant, Andersen had a duty to disclose to Wachovia that Sunbeam's audited financial statements in fact were neither accurate nor reliable. Throughout Wachovia's due diligence, Andersen remained mute regarding the true financial condition of Sunbeam and the improprieties buried in Sunbeam's audited financial statements.

77. In the first week of March 1998, shortly after the agreement for Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman Company was signed, but before the transaction closed, Andersen updated its audit work to reflect Sunbeam's acquisitions. The same individuals who also were working as consultants on the Sunbeam acquisitions did that work. The three acquisitions were specifically described in Note 14 to the audited financial statements. The description included the fact that Sunbeam was paying for the Coleman Company shares with Sunbeam common stock as well as cash and assumption of debt. Andersen then rendered an unqualified audit opinion for Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. With Andersen's express consent, management included that opinion in Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K filed with the SEC.

78. In its opinion concerning Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, Andersen stated:

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion. In our opinion, the financial statements . . . present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

79. Andersen's 1997 audit opinion was false in two material respects. First, the financial statements Andersen audited did not "fairly" present Sunbeam's financial position in conformity with GAAP, as it represented. Second, Andersen did not, as it claimed, conduct its audit in accordance with GAAS.

80. In all, the 1997 financial statements audited by Andersen were materially false and misleading in that they overstated Sunbeam's operating income for the year by 50%. Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that (a) Andersen's unqualified audit opinion was incorrect; (b) Sunbeam's financial statements were materially false and misleading and not in conformity with GAAP and (c) Andersen had failed to perform an audit in accordance with GAAS.

81. Harlow was well aware of the potential for fraud and irregularities in Sunbeam's 1997 books, including the risk that Sunbeam management would attempt to claim profits and revenue on transactions before the earnings process was completed. Harlow specifically advised Andersen's foreign offices (including Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela and Andersen-UK), for example, that Dunlap had made promises to the public regarding earnings-per-share to be attained in 1997, and that management had a vested interest in achieving the promised earnings levels because management's primary form of compensation was based on the company's stock price. Harlow also noted the presence of the possibility of a third party purchase of the company's stock or assets.

82. Despite having specifically noted key reasons to employ heightened scrutiny in the 1997 audit, Harlow and Andersen permitted Sunbeam to engage in improper "earnings management" practices designed to achieve exactly the result Harlow had warned the Andersen audit team to watch for.

83. One of the most flagrant accounting abuses Andersen and Harlow permitted in 1997 was to allow Sunbeam to record a profit on a sham sale of its warranty and spare parts business to its spare parts provider, EPI Printers, Inc. Prior to 1997, EPI satisfied spare parts and warranty requests of Sunbeam customers on a fee basis. To raise additional revenue at year-end 1997, however, Sunbeam entered into a sham sale of the warranty and spare parts inventories already in EPI's warehouse. As a result of the transaction, management fraudulently recognized millions of dollars of phony sales and profits in 1997.

84. The problem with the EPI transaction was that the transaction was not a sale at all, for at least three reasons. First, there was never a final agreement between Sunbeam and EPI. The closest the parties ever came to a meeting of the minds was the execution of a mere "agreement to agree." Second, by its terms, the proposed sale was to terminate on January 23, 1998, with no payment obligation on the part of EPI, absent a subsequent agreement between Sunbeam and EPI on the value of the inventory. In other words, the sale could be completely unwound just after year-end without EPI ever having paid a cent. Third, Sunbeam had agreed as part of the proposed sale to pay certain fees to EPI and to guarantee a 5% profit to EPI on the eventual resale of the inventory. In essence, even after the proposed sale, EPI remained a contractor compensated by Sunbeam on a fee basis for its services. In sum, the relationship between EPI and Sunbeam was not fundamentally altered by the purported "sale."

85. Harlow became aware of the true nature of the EPI transaction and raised it with management as part of Andersen's 1997 year-end audit. Harlow proposed that Sunbeam reverse the accounting entries reflecting the revenue recognition for that transaction, having concluded that the profit guarantee and the indeterminate value of the contract rendered revenue recognition inconsistent with GAAP. Simply stated, there was no revenue to recognize because the transaction was illusory. Kersh and Gluck refused to reverse the transaction. Instead of refusing to lend Andersen's name to management's fraudulent revenue recognition, Harlow again acquiesced in management's actions. As a result, Sunbeam's 1997 audited financial statements reflect almost $10 million of phony profit on the sham EPI transaction.

86. The EPI transaction raised a clear red flag that should have — and must have — alerted Andersen to the need for greater scrutiny regarding all of Sunbeam's revenue recognition decisions. At a minimum, Andersen should have been on guard as to all items Harlow previously identified as proposed audit adjustments (but which Harlow eventually acquiesced in), and any previously recognized improper items that were ultimately dismissed as "immaterial."

87. Another 1997 revenue inflation scheme permitted by Andersen and Harlow was Sunbeam's use of improper "bill-and-hold" transactions. A bill-and-hold transaction is a transaction in which the seller bills a customer for a purchase while holding the merchandise for later delivery. During 1997, Dunlap's management team offered financial incentives to various customers to make purchases earlier than they would otherwise have done so. Management then proposed that Sunbeam hold the merchandise until the normal time for delivery.

88. Under certain limited circumstances, bill-and-hold transactions may be permitted for revenue recognition purposes. However, bill-and-hold transactions must meet specific stringent accounting criteria satisfying GAAP. The relevant criteria include, among others: a requirement that the buyer, not the seller, requested a sale on a bill-and-hold basis; that the buyer had a substantial business purpose for ordering the goods on a bill-and-hold basis; and that risks and rewards of ownership passed to the buyer at the time of the bill-and-hold sale.

89. Bill-and-hold transactions improperly added in excess of $29 million to Sunbeam's 1997 sales and $4.5 million to income. In the course of the audit of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, Andersen and Harlow discovered that the purported bill-and-hold customers had not requested the bill-and-hold treatment, and that in numerous cases involving rights of return "the risks of ownership and legal title" were not actually "passed to the customer." Nevertheless, Andersen negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that bill-and-hold transactions did not satisfy the required revenue recognition criteria. Ultimately, Andersen acquiesced in Sunbeam's decisions to recognize revenue for all of those non-GAAP sales in 1997, and to misdescribe the company's bill-and-hold practices in the financial statements as customer-driven legitimate sales.

90. Another income inflation tactic Sunbeam management used in 1997 was to decrease the inflated 1996 reserves to create the illusion of 1997 income. By decreasing the reserves in 1997, management increased Sunbeam's 1997 income by almost $5 million. In connection with Andersen's year-end audit of Sunbeam's financial statements, Harlow discovered that tactic and concluded that it was improper. Harlow proposed reversing management's misuse of the reserves, but management refused to do so. Rather than insisting that the adjustments be made, Andersen gave Sunbeam a pass, and permitted the entries. In doing so, Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that the improper accounting materially distorted Sunbeam's reported results of operations for 1997.

91. Another of Sunbeam's 1997 accounting gimmicks was to record income from non-recurring events as ordinary income. In connection with Andersen's work on the 1997 audit, Harlow learned that management had arranged for the sale of deeply discounted and obsolete inventory during 1997, creating $19 million in non-recurring revenue. Although the recognition of that revenue was permitted under GAAP, Sunbeam was required to disclose in its financial statements that the income from the sale was a non-recurring event. Sunbeam failed to do so. Notwithstanding that material omission, Andersen certified Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements.

92. In addition, during Andersen's 1997 audit, Harlow proposed adjustments to reverse $2.9 million related to a Sunbeam inventory overvaluation and $563,000 in additional items. Management again refused to make appropriate adjustments, and Andersen and Harlow acquiesced in the refusal to reverse those errors. In doing so, Andersen and Harlow negligently or fraudulently disregarded facts indicating that those items contributed to the misstatement of Sunbeam's 1997 reported results of operations.

93. International sales represented a significant proportion of Sunbeam's overall income from sales. However, part of Sunbeam's reported income from international sales was artificially inflated. Several of Sunbeam's foreign subsidiaries engaged in guaranteed sales that could not have been booked under applicable accounting principles because they included an unlimited right to return unsold merchandise and because the amount of future returns on such sales could not reasonably be estimated.

14. Sunbeam's Hong Kong subsidiary recorded sales revenue of $8.6 million from various guaranteed sales made during the fourth quarter of 1997. However, that revenue should not have been recognized because sales were made with an unlimited right of return and because the amount of future returns could not reasonably be estimated. Indeed, in 1998 much of the product "sold" in 1997 was returned. Nevertheless, Andersen allowed those sales to be booked in 1997.

15. Sunbeam's Canadian subsidiary similarly engaged in guaranteed sales with an unlimited right of return. The revenue from those sales could not have been recognized because the amount of future returns could not reasonably be estimated. Nevertheless, Andersen permitted those sales to be booked.

16. Sunbeam's Mexican subsidiary engaged in $900,000 in bill-and-hold transactions that should not have been recognized as income until 1998. However, Andersen permitted the full amount of such sales to be booked in 1997. Harlow and Andersen identified a total of $2.9 million in adjustments relating to inventory overvaluation that were proposed to Sunbeam. Management refused to make those adjustments; Andersen and Harlow nevertheless issued clean audit opinions. In addition, the financial statements for Sunbeam's Mexico operations failed to include an expense for the profit sharing obligations of that business, an adjustment that reduced the earnings of that business by more than $3 million when Sunbeam later restated its 1997 results.

17. Sunbeam's Venezuela subsidiary also improperly valued inventory. Its books reflected purchased raw materials that were held at various suppliers. Andersen failed to confirm that the booked amounts represented materials actually in the possession of suppliers. If Andersen had done so, Andersen would have discovered that the materials did not exist. Nevertheless, Andersen permitted the full amount to be included on Sunbeam's financial statements.

98. In the end, Andersen's 1997 audit opinion certified financial statements that reported Sunbeam's income to be $186 million, much of which was improper under GAAP. The overstatements included in all over $90 million of improper net income including, without limitation, approximately $10 million from the sham sale to EPI, approximately $4.5 million from non-GAAP bill-and-hold sales, approximately $35 million in income derived from the use of non-GAAP reserves and accruals taken at year-end 1996 and approximately $6 million from improper revenue recognition.

99. As Andersen and Harlow knew, Wachovia relied on Sunbeam's report of $186 million in income in deciding to execute and fund the Credit Agreement. If Andersen had not issued a materially false and misleading audit report, and instead had complied with GAAP and GAAS, Sunbeam's 1997 operating income would have been approximately half of what Andersen certified in the financial statements.

100. The Credit Agreement provided that a condition precedent to Wachovia's obligation to fund the transaction was the absence of any event, change, or development that would have a material adverse effect on the business, results of operation, or financial condition of Sunbeam. The funding also was conditioned on the absence of any material misrepresentation or omissions in Sunbeam's SEC filings, including Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audit reports in the Form 10-Ks. If Andersen had not been negligent or fraudulent in performing its audits, and had issued qualified or adverse reports exposing the falsity of Sunbeam's financial statements, Wachovia would have been put on notice of an adverse material change affecting Sunbeam before funding, and of a material misstatement in Sunbeam's SEC filings. Wachovia's obligation to fund the transaction with Sunbeam would have been discharged by the failure of a condition precedent, and Wachovia never would have suffered the extensive losses they suffered. Wachovia directly relied on Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audit reports when they decided to execute the Credit Agreement with Sunbeam and to fund the transaction.

101. Andersen was fully aware of the terms and conditions of the Credit Agreement and of Wachovia's anticipated and actual reliance upon Andersen's unqualified 1996 and 1997 audit opinions.

102. On March 30, 1998, unaware of the falsity of Sunbeam's financial statements and Andersen's audit reports, Wachovia executed the Credit Agreement with Sunbeam and funded Sunbeam's transaction with First Alert, Coleman and Signature Brands USA.

103. Almost immediately after the execution of the Credit Agreement, Sunbeam's facade of financial health began to crumble.

104. In an April 3, 1998 conference call with securities analysts, Sunbeam revealed that sales for the first quarter of 1998 were 5% below reported sales for the same period of the prior year. Only two weeks earlier, on March 19, 1998, Sunbeam had issued a press release in which it announced that sales for the first quarter of 1998 were "expected to exceed" sales for the same period of the prior year.

105. On April 22, 1998, a class of Sunbeam shareholders sued Sunbeam and its senior officers in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, alleging that the company violated the securities laws by issuing materially false and misleading statements regarding Sunbeam's financial condition.

106. On June 6, 1998, an article was published in Barron's that raised serious questions regarding Sunbeam's apparent success under Dunlap, and suggested it was the result of "accounting gimmickry." On June 15, 1998, Sunbeam's Board announced that it had removed Dunlap as Chairman and CEO.

107. Andersen continued to stand behind its fraudulent audit opinions. On June 15, 1998, Andersen allowed Sunbeam's Board of Directors to assert that Andersen had "assured the Board that Sunbeam's audited financial statements [were] accurate in all material respects." It was not until June 25, 1998 — when Andersen withheld its consent for use of its 1997 audit opinion in a registration statement that was to have been filed with the SEC — that Andersen gave any hint that its unqualified audit opinions were unreliable.

108. On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the Audit Committee of its Board of Directors would conduct an inquiry into the accuracy of its 1997 financial statements. The Audit Committee subsequently retained Deloitte & Touche LLP to assist in the review, in addition to Andersen. Sunbeam stated, "pending the completion of its review, its 1997 financial statements and the report of Arthur Andersen LLP should not be relied upon." Sunbeam added that the review "could result in a restatement of the 1997 financial statements and the first quarter 1998 Form 10-Q."

109. On August 6, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its Audit Committee had determined that Sunbeam would be required to restate its audited financial statements for 1997 and possibly for 1996, as well as its unaudited financial statements for the first quarter of 1998.

110. On November 12, 1998, Sunbeam released its restated 1996 and 1997 financial results, again audited by Andersen. The restated 1996 financial statements reported operating losses for 1996 that were approximately $40 million less than originally reported, losses from continuing operations that were approximately $26 million less than previously reported and net losses that were approximately $20 million less than previously reported.

111. The restated 1997 financial statements reported operating earnings for 1997 that were approximately $95 million less than originally reported, earnings from continuing operations that were approximately $70 million less than previously reported and net earnings that were approximately $70 million less than previously reported. The new operating income figure for 1997 was approximately 50% less than the amount Andersen previously certified.

112. In the wake of Dunlap's firing, new management was unable to overcome the devastating effects of the manipulation and distortion of Sunbeam's business.

113. On February 5, 2001, Sunbeam filed a voluntary petition for Chapter 11. Pursuant to Sunbeam's Court approved reorganization plan, Wachovia's loan to Sunbeam was discharged in full.

114. Both courts and regulators have scrutinized Andersen's facilitation of Sunbeam's fraud. In their judgments against the firm and Harlow, they have denounced Andersen's conduct.

115. In December 1999, for example, the federal court presiding over the Sunbeam shareholders' class action lawsuit refused to dismiss the claims against Andersen. The court concluded that the class plaintiffs had alleged sufficient facts "to demonstrate that Arthur Andersen had acted with severe recklessness in issuing its misleading [1997] Unqualified Audit Opinion." In re Sunbeam Litig., 89 F. Supp. 2d 1326, 1344 (S.D. Fla. 1999).

116. On May 15, 2001, the SEC filed a civil action in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida against five former Sunbeam officers and Harlow, Andersen's engagement partner.

117. In January 2003, the SEC settled its charges with Harlow. In its settlement order, it made numerous factual findings regarding Harlow and Andersen's improper conduct. It concluded that Harlow had proposed, on many occasions, adjustments to rectify Sunbeam's false financial statements. After management refused to make these adjustments, Harlow improperly acceded to that decision. In the Matter of Phillip E. Harlow, SEC Rel. No. 34-47261, 2003 WL 169818, at 1-3 (Jan. 27, 2003).

118. The SEC's assessment of Harlow's conduct was damning. Among many other things, it concluded that Harlow (1) "failed to exercise professional skepticism when performing audit procedures and gathering and analyzing audit evidence"; (2) "accepted uncorroborated representations of Sunbeam's management in lieu of performing appropriate audit procedures"; (3) "failed to exercise due professional care in performing the audit and preparing the audit report"; (4) "failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to determine whether the financial statements were in conformity with GAAP," even after he had "identified a number of audit risks and accounting issues associated with the Sunbeam engagement"; and (5) "failed to obtain sufficient competent evidential matters through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmation to afford a reasonable basis for an audit opinion." Id. at *4. Based on these factual findings, the Commission concluded that the 1996 and 1997 financial statements that Harlow had audited were not in conformity with GAAP, and the audit was not performed in accordance with GAAS. Id. (citing AU §§ 410, 411, 508.07).

19. As a result of having been fraudulently induced into executing the Credit Agreement and funding Sunbeam's transactions with First Alert, Coleman and Signature Brands USA, Wachovia has suffered direct damages in excess of $100,000,000.

20. The objectives of financial reporting are to provide information that is useful in investment and credit decisions, information that is useful in assessing cash flow prospects and information about enterprise resources, claims to those resources and changes in them. ("Objectives of Financial Reporting by Business Enterprises," Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 1 (Financial Accounting Standards Board, November 1978)). In order to minimize misinterpretation of financial statements, the accounting profession has developed sets of standards regarding financial reporting and auditing practice that are generally accepted and universally practiced. Those standards are known as GAAP and GAAS. The development of common standards for auditing and financial reporting has provided businesspeople and investors with a valuable frame of reference in evaluating the financial condition of enterprises.

21. Auditors know they must adhere to GAAP and GAAS, or the standards would cease to have any meaning. Consistent with the objectives of the profession in developing those standards, the public has come to understand the importance of GAAP and GAAS in enhancing the reliability of audited financial statements. As a result, when an auditing firm represents that it has conducted an audit of a company in accordance with GAAS, and opines that such company's financial statements present the company's financial condition fairly in conformity with GAAP, readers of those financial statements have the right to rely on the integrity of those financial statements.

122. In auditing Sunbeam in 1996 and 1997, issuing unqualified opinions regarding Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements and assisting with Wachovia's due diligence prior to the execution and funding of the Credit Agreement, Andersen and the Individual Defendants did not adhere to the standards of the profession. Although Andersen's audit opinions stated that the firm had conducted its audits of Sunbeam in accordance with GAAS, and based on those audits had concluded that Sunbeam's financial statements presented the company's financial condition fairly in conformity with GAAP, that simply was not true.

23 Q. What type of arrangement does that
24 involve?
25 A. Some equity investments made in

Page 8

1 Smith
2 some transactions I worked on.
3 Q. When will you know whether you will
4 be receiving any additional funds from Morgan
5 Stanley?
6 A. I have no idea.
7 Q. Do you know over what period of 8 time those investments may yield returns to 9 you?
10 A. No
11 Q. Is it possible that some of those 12 investments will yield returns to you in the 13 next year?
14 A. Don't know.
15 Q. You don't know whether it's 16 possible then?
17 You have to answer audibly.
18 A. I don't know if it is possible.
19 Q. You are represented today by Morgan
20 Stanley -- is there any other financial 21 arrangement, relationship of any sort today
22 that you have with Morgan Stanley?
23 A. Nope.
24 Q. You are represented today by a
25 Morgan Stanley attorney; is that correct?

Page 9

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. How did that come about?
4 A. How did that come about? Morgan
5 Stanley contacted me when they said I might 6 be asked to testify, and volunteered to be my
7 counsel.
8 Q. Is Morgan Stanley paying for Mr.
9 Clare's time today?
10 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
11 A. I have no idea.
12 Q. Are you paying for it?
13 A. I'm not paying for it.
14 Q. Who called you from Morgan Stanley
15 to advise you that you would be deposed in 16 this case?
17 A. I don't remember the exact name.
18 Q. Was it somebody in the law
19 department at Morgan Stanley?
20 A. Somebody in the law department.
21 Q. What's your education, Mr. Smith?
22 A. In terms of degrees? BS from
23 the -- undergraduate Air Force Academy, MA
24 from Fletcher School at Tufts, and MBA from 25 Harvard.

Page 10

1 Smith
2 Q. Can you summarize for me your
3 employment history prior to your first
4 employment with Morgan Stanley?
5 A. Employment history prior to Morgan
6 Stanley was in the air force for six years.
7 I was going to business school, joined
8 Bankers Trust, I was there I think 17 or 18
9 years, and then Morgan Stanley.
10 Q. When did you leave the air force?
11 A. Oh, 1976.
12 Q. And from there you went to business
13 school?
14 A. Uhm-hmm.
15 Q. And from business school you went 16 to Bankers Trust?
17 A. Right.
18 Q. When would that have been?
19 A. 1978.
20 Q. And you were at Bankers Trust until 21 1996, approximately?
22 A. Yup, 1996.
23 Q. What were your responsibilities at 24 Bankers Trust?
25 A. I was in charge of loan capital

Page 11

1 Smith
2 markets and distribution.
3 Q. Was that your final assignment?
4 A. Uhm-hmm.
5 Q. What do you mean by "loan capital
6 markets," what does that activity involve?
7 A. That activity involves structuring,
8 pricing transactions, and then I distributed
9 them.
10 Q. What kind of transactions are you
11 referring to?
12 A. Mostly leveraged loans.
13 Q. What is a leveraged loan?
14 A. It would be a loan to a
15 noninvestment grade company.
16 Q. And what's a noninvestment grade
17 company?
18 A. It would be a company that was
19 rated less than double -- BBB minus or BAA 3
20 by the two rating agencies, Moody's and S&P.
21 Q. You indicate that your activity
22 also involved distributing the investment if 23 you want, correct?
24 A. Uhm-hmm.
25 Q. What is distributing?

Page 12

1 Smith
2 A. Selling.
3 Q. What does selling mean in this
4 context?
5 A. Selling loans to potential
6 investors.
7 Q. Selling participations in the loan
8 that you've --
9 A. Selling either the participations
10 or the loans themselves.
11 Q. Is that sometimes referred to as
12 syndicating a loan?
13 A. Sometimes referred to as
14 syndicating a loan.
15 Q. Syndicating meaning something
16 distinct in this context, or is that a
17 generic term used to describe the process of 18 selling participations in a loan transaction?
19 A. I think it would probably be 20 generic.
21 Q. At Bankers Trust how large would
22 you say the largest leveraged loan
23 transactions were that you were involved in 24 structuring and syndicating?
25 A. Billions. Billions.

Page 13

1 Smith
2 Q. How many billion dollar plus loan
3 syndications were you involved in while you
4 were at Bankers Trust?
5 A. I don't remember.
6 Q. Would it have been more than five
7 would you say?
8 A. Yup.
9 Q. Why did you leave Bankers Trust?
10 A. Better opportunity at Morgan
11 Stanley.
12 Q. Were you recruited at Morgan
13 Stanley, or did you make an overture to
14 Morgan Stanley?
15 A. Recruited.
16 Q. Who recruited you?
17 A. Steve Newhouse.
18 Q. You had known Mr. Newhouse before
19 that?
20 A. No.
21 Q. Do you know how he came to know of 22 you?
23 A. No.
24 Q. How did he contact you?
25 A. Through an executive recruiter.

4 (Pages 10 to 13)

Page 14

1 Smith
2 Q. How long before you joined Morgan
3 Stanley do you recall being first contacted
4 by the executive recruiting firm?
5 A. Gee, months.
6 Q. Were you being recruited to fill a
7 particular position at Morgan Stanley?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. What was that?
10 A. To get them into the loan business.
11 Q. What do you mean by getting them in 12 the loan business?
13 A. They wanted to have a lending
14 capability and they hired me to develop that 15 capability for them.
16 Q. Is it your understanding that 17 before you joined Morgan Stanley, Morgan
18 Stanley did not engage in originating loans?
19 MR CLARE: Objection, calls for
20 speculation.
21 Q. I'm asking your understanding.
22 A. I don't know.
23 Q. Did you have an understanding one
24 way or the other when you joined Morgan
25 Stanley, whether Morgan Stanley at the time

Page 15

1 Smith
2 you were being recruited had not engaged at
3 all in origination of loans?
4 A. Again I don't know.
5 Q. What were you told concerning
6 Morgan Stanley's business objectives with 7 respect to creating a capability of being in
8 the loan business?
9 A. I was told they, that they felt it
10 was important strategically to have a loan
11 origination distribution capability.
12 Q. In what way was it important
13 strategically to Morgan Stanley to have the 14 ability to originate and distribute loans?
15 A. They felt it was necessary to, they 16 felt that was necessary to compete against 17 the commercial banks.
18 Q. It was necessary to have this
19 capability to compete against the commercial
20 banks in what areas?
21 A. In leveraged finance, particularly
22 high yield.
23 Q. Did you -- was it your
24 understanding that Morgan Stanley believed it
25 was important to have the ability to

Page 16

1 Smith
2 originate and distribute loans in order to
3 compete with commercial banks for investment
4 banking assignments?
5 A. I don't know.
6 Q. Did Bankers Trust provide
7 investment banking services to its clients in 8 addition to the loan services?
9 A. They provided high yield.
10 Q. High yield investment banking
11 services?
12 A. High yield debt raising
13 capabilities.
14 Q. But did they engage in providing
15 investment banking services of the same sort
16 that firms such as Morgan Stanley provide to 17 clients?
18 A. They had investment banking
19 services.
20 Q. Was it your understanding that
21 Bankers Trust used its ability to also assist 22 clients in raising funds for purposes of 23 financing investment banking transactions to 24 compete for the investment banking side?
25 A. Is it my understanding, is that the

Page 17

1 Smith
2 question?
3 Q. Correct. Let me take a step back,
4 sir.
5 While you were at Bankers Trust you
6 were involved in assisting Bankers Trust
7 clients that didn't have investment grade
8 ratings in raising funds, correct?
9 A. Uhm-hmm.
10 Q. Did those activities involve
11 raising funds in connection with business
12 acquisitions?
13 A. Normally.
14 Q. In those transactions was it
15 sometimes the case that Bankers Trust was 16 also providing investment banking services?
17 A. Sometimes.
18 Q. Was it your experience that Bankers
19 Trust used your ability to assist clients in 20 raising funds for purposes of financing
21 acquisitions to also obtain the investment
22 banking side?
23 A. No.
24 Q. You were never involved in making
25 presentations with other Bankers Trust

5 (Pages 14 to 17)

Page 18

1 Smith
2 representatives who were seeking the
3 investment banking assignment, in which your 4 services were described as an additional 5 benefit that clients could realize by
6 retaining Bankers Trust for the investment
7 banking?
8 A. No.
9 Q. When you went to Morgan Stanley,
10 was it your experience that Morgan Stanley
11 used your ability to assist in raising funds
12 as a way in which to increase its 13 opportunities to be retained to provide
14 investment banking services?
15 A. No.
16 Q. When you first joined Morgan
17 Stanley, what efforts did you engage in to 18 assist Morgan Stanley in developing the 19 capability of originating and distributing
20 loans?
21 A. I set up the group to do that, so
22 recruited and hired people.
23 Q. How large a group did you assemble?
24 A. Probably about 20 at the peak.
25 Q. What would the peak point of time

Page 19

1 Smith
2 have been in terms of the staffing?
3 A. I would say about, probably around
4 2000-ish or so, plus or minus a year.
5 Q. When you joined Morgan Stanley what
6 was your title?
7 A. Managing director.
8 Q. Did you have any other titles?
9 A. I think I was president of Morgan
10 Stanley Senior Fund.
11 Q. Do you know during what time period
12 you had that title?
13 A. Pretty much the whole time I was
14 there.
15 Q. Did you hold any other titles?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Was Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
18 an entity that existed when you first joined
19 Morgan Stanley?
20 A. No.
21 Q. By what Morgan Stanley entity were
22 you employed?
23 A. The dealer-broker.
24 Q. Do you know the name of that
25 entity?

Page 20

1 Smith
2 A. No.
3 Q. Do you know if it is Morgan Stanley
4 & Company, Inc.?
5 A. I don't know.
6 Q. Do you know if you were an employee
7 of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
8 A. No.
9 Q. Let me ask a better question.
10 Were you an employee of Morgan
11 Stanley Senior Funding?
12 A. I don't know.
13 Q. Did you receive any compensation
14 for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
15 A. No.
16 Q. What were your responsibilities and 17 duties during the period you were employed by
18 Morgan Stanley?
19 A. To manage the loan origination and 20 distribution of it.
21 Q. Did you have any other duties?
22 A. I don't think so.
23 Q. Do you know if you were considered
24 to be assigned to the Morgan Stanley
25 Investment Banking Division?

Page 21

1 Smith
2 A. We were in a joint venture between
3 banking and fixed income.
4 Q. What was the nature of the joint
5 venture?
6 A. It was -- what do you mean?
7 Q. Well, you indicated that you were 8 involved in a joint venture between
9 investment banking and fixed income, correct?
10 A. Uhm-hmm.
11 Q. What was that joint venture?
12 A. Joint venture was, was capital
13 markets.
14 Q. Capital markets function was 15 considered to be a joint venture between 16 investment banking and fixed income?
17 A. Uhm-hmm.
18 Q. And capital markets included what,
19 sir?
20 A. Included the loan origination
21 business.
22 Q. Did it include anything else?
23 A. High yield origination, or high
24 yield capital markets is a better word to 25 think about it.

6 (Pages 18 to 21)

Page 22

1 Smith
 2 Q. Anything else?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Loan origination would have been
 5 your function, sir?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. High yield capital markets, would
 8 that have been part of your responsibilities
 9 also?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Who was responsible for that
 12 activity while you were at Morgan Stanley?
 13 A. A couple of people. Steve Newhouse
 14 and Bill Kourakos.
 15 Q. Do you know how Mr. Kourakos spells
 16 his name?
 17 A. No. K-O-U-R-A-K-A-S.
 18 Q. What does high yield capital
 19 markets involve?
 20 A. They are the liaisons between the 21 traders in high yield, the bankers that cover
 22 the clients as well as the clients.
 23 Q. High yield --
 24 A. Is not investment grade securities.
 25 Q. How is it different from the

Page 23

1 Smith
 2 leveraged loans that you described?
 3 A. They are securities, they weren't
 4 loans.
 5 Q. Can you give me an example of a
 6 high yield security?
 7 A. A bond.
 8 Q. You indicated you were president of 9 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
 10 A. Uhm-hmm.
 11 Q. And if I understood your testimony,
 12 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding did not exist
 13 when you first joined Morgan Stanley?
 14 A. Right.
 15 Q. When was it formed?
 16 A. It was formed pretty shortly after
 17 I got there.
 18 Q. Do you know why it was formed?
 19 A. They -- it was felt -- we wanted,
 20 the firm wanted a separate entity through
 21 which to conduct its lending business.
 22 Q. Whose idea was that?
 23 A. Don't know.
 24 Q. I take it it wasn't yours?
 25 A. Unh-unh.

Page 24

1 Smith
 2 Q. Do you know what entity within
 3 Morgan Stanley owned Morgan Stanley Senior
 4 Funding?
 5 A. Nope.
 6 Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley
 7 Senior Funding had any employees?
 8 A. I don't know.
 9 Q. What were your responsibilities as 10 the president of Morgan Stanley Senior
 11 Funding?
 12 A. My responsibilities was to, to 13 manage the loan origination business, and so
 14 really nothing different than what I did.
 15 Q. Do you know what businesses Morgan
 16 Stanley Senior Funding engaged in?
 17 A. It was a funding vehicle for loans.
 18 Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
 19 engage in any business activities other than 20 the origination and distributing,
 21 distribution of the leveraged loans that you
 22 were responsible for?
 23 A. Not that I know of.
 24 Q. So as far as you're aware, the 25 entire business activity of Morgan Stanley

Page 25

1 Smith
 2 Senior Funding was the business activity for
 3 which you were responsible at Morgan Stanley?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. Do you know where Morgan Stanley
 6 Senior Funding is incorporated, what state?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Do you know if it's considered to
 9 have a headquarters?
 10 A. Do not.
 11 Q. Do you know if it's considered to 12 have a principal place of business in a
 13 particular location?
 14 A. Do not.
 15 Q. Were you ever a director of Morgan
 16 Stanley Senior Funding?
 17 A. I don't remember.
 18 Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
 19 hold meetings of its board of directors?
 20 A. Don't know.
 21 Q. Other than yourself, do you know of 22 any individuals who held officer positions
 23 with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
 24 A. Yes, Steve Newhouse, Bill Kourakos.
 25 Q. Anyone else?

Page 26

1 Smith

2 A. I'm sure there were other names. I

3 don't know if I remember.

4 Q. You know there were other officers,

5 you just don't know who they are at this

6 point?

7 A. No.

8 Q. Were you responsible as president

9 of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, for 10 designating individuals as officers of that

11 entity?

12 A. No.

13 Q. Do you know who was?

14 A. No.

15 Q. Were the officers of Morgan Stanley

16 Senior Funding all employees of other Morgan

17 Stanley entities?

18 A. I -- to the best of my knowledge

19 they were all employees of Morgan Stanley. I

20 don't know anything more about it.

21 Q. Did any of your business

22 responsibilities, sir, at Morgan Stanley

23 involve activities other than the activities

24 of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

25 A. No.

Page 27

1 Smith

2 Q. How did your employment at Morgan

3 Stanley end?

4 A. What do you mean?

5 Q. You indicated your employment at

6 Morgan Stanley ended a couple of months

7 before you started at Bear Stearns, correct?

8 A. Uhm-hmm.

9 Q. And you indicated you didn't have a

10 position at Bear Stearns at the time you left

11 Morgan Stanley, correct?

12 A. Right.

13 Q. Were you asked to leave Morgan

14 Stanley?

15 A. Yup.

16 Q. When were you first asked to leave

17 Morgan Stanley?

18 A. Prior to Christmas of '02.

19 Q. Tell me the circumstances.

20 A. I was told that they were reducing

21 staff and I was going to be let go.

22 Q. With whom did you have that

23 conversation?

24 Was it a face-to-face conversation

25 with someone?

Page 28

1 Smith

2 A. No.

3 Q. Did you receive a written

4 communication?

5 A. Nope.

6 Q. Telephone call?

7 A. Telephone call.

8 Q. From whom did you receive the

9 telephone call?

10 A. Steve Newhouse.

11 Q. How long did your conversation with 12 Mr. Newhouse last?

13 A. 15 minutes.

14 Q. Tell me everything you can recall

15 Mr. Newhouse telling you during that

16 15-minute telephone call.

17 A. Described the situation facing the 18 company and it was a hard decision, but they

19 were reducing staff and that I was part of

20 that.

21 Q. Did Mr. Newhouse tell you anything

22 about how you were identified as one of the 23 people who would be let go?

24 A. No.

25 Q. Did he tell you anything about

Page 29

1 Smith

2 other people within your business group who

3 were being let go?

4 A. No.

5 Q. Were other people within your

6 business group at that time being let go at 7 the same time?

8 A. Not at that time.

9 Q. Now, at this point in time, Mr.

10 Smith, were you still president of Morgan

11 Stanley Senior Funding?

12 A. I was.

13 Q. Were you still the person primarily

14 responsible and in charge of the leveraged

15 loan business at Morgan Stanley?

16 A. No.

17 Q. Who was in charge of the business

18 at that point?

19 A. The fella in charge was, ultimately

20 was a fellow named Mitch Petrick.

21 Q. Can you recall anything else that

22 Mr. Newhouse told you during your 15-minute

23 conversation with him?

24 A. No.

25 Q. Did he offer you a severance

Page 30

1 Smith
2 package of any sort?
3 A. The firm did.
4 Q. What was that severance package?
5 A. The severance package was some
6 weeks of salary and some cash.
7 Q. Have you received all of those
8 payments?
9 A. I have received all of those
10 payments.
11 Q. Were they made as a lump sum at 12 some point?
13 A. They were.
14 Q. Do you recall the amount of the 15 payment?
16 A. I -- let's see. Yes, partially.
17 Q. What do you recall the lump sum
18 severance payment being?
19 A. It was about -- the gross was 20 about, I don't know, $875,000.
21 Q. Other than the lump sum severance
22 payment, did you receive anything else by way
23 of a severance package?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Did Mr. Newhouse tell you that Mr.

Page 31

1 Smith
2 Petrick agreed with his decision?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Did Mr. Petrick's name come up
5 during the conversation?
6 A. No.
7 Q. Before this conversation with Mr.
8 Newhouse, had you at any point been asked to 9 consider looking elsewhere for
10 opportunities --
11 A. No.
12 Q. -- by anyone within Morgan Stanley?
13 A. No.
14 Q. Did this come, did Mr. Newhouse's
15 call to you come as a surprise?
16 A. Yup.
17 Q. Had your performance at Morgan
18 Stanley Senior Funding been criticized in any 19 way prior to your conversation with Mr.
20 Newhouse?
21 A. No.
22 Q. Did Mr. Newhouse explain why you
23 were the person chosen to be let go at that
24 point?
25 A. No.

Page 32

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you have any understanding
3 yourself today why you were the person chosen
4 to be let go in December of 2002?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Do you know if Mr. Petrick agreed
7 with Mr. Newhouse's decision to let you go?
8 A. No.
9 Q. Did you have any conversations with 10 Mr. Petrick concerning your conversation with 11 Mr. Newhouse?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. When were those?
14 A. Right after the phone call with Mr.
15 Newhouse.
16 Q. Did you call Mr. Petrick?
17 A. Went to see him, yes.
18 Q. You had a face-to-face meeting with 19 Mr. Petrick?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. Where was that?
22 A. In his office.
23 Q. And where is that?
24 A. At -- what is the address over
25 there? At Morgan Stanley.

Page 33

1 Smith
2 Q. It is here in Manhattan?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. When did that meeting take place?
5 A. Right after the -- within a couple
6 of days of the phone call with Mr. Newhouse.
7 Q. So we are still before Christmas of 8 2002?
9 A. Before Christmas of 2002.
10 Q. Was anyone else present for your
11 meeting with Mr. Petrick?
12 A. No.
13 Q. Was the meeting in his personal
14 office?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. How long did that meeting last?
17 A. Probably about five minutes.
18 Q. How was the meeting arranged?
19 Was there a prior arrangement? Let 20 me ask that question first.
21 A. I don't remember.
22 Q. You don't remember calling and 23 making an appointment to see Mr. Petrick or 24 telling him you wanted to be seen?
25 A. It might have been that, but pretty

Page 34

1 Smith
2 informal.
3 Q. Tell me everything you can recall
4 about your meeting with Mr. Petrick.
5 A. He asked if I had spoken to Mr.
6 Newhouse and then we talked about the 7 mechanics of the departure.
8 Q. Did you ask for an explanation for 9 the decision?
10 A. No.
11 Q. Did he offer one?
12 A. No.
13 Q. What was the purpose for your
14 wanting to meet with Mr. Petrick?
15 A. To go over the mechanics of the 16 departure.
17 Q. What were the mechanics that you
18 discussed with him?
19 A. When, and hand off of transactions
20 that I was working on to other members of the 21 team.
22 Q. What was agreed upon with respect
23 to the timing?
24 A. The first of February departure.
25 Q. And who took your responsibilities

Page 35

1 Smith
2 for the matters that you were handling?
3 A. It varied depending on who I was
4 working with on what transaction.
5 Q. At that point did you have any
6 administrative responsibilities for managing
7 the business?
8 A. No.
9 Q. When did Mr. Petrick become
10 president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
11 A. I don't know. Don't know.
12 Q. Do you recall when he assumed your 13 responsibilities for managing the business
14 group?
15 A. It was in the middle, I think
16 middle of '02.
17 Q. The middle of October 2002?
18 A. No, middle of '02.
19 Q. Oh, middle of '02, I'm sorry.
20 Who made that decision?
21 A. Don't know.
22 Q. Was it your choice?
23 A. No.
24 Q. Had Mr. Petrick been working within 25 the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding business

Page 36

1 Smith
2 group?
3 A. No, he had been in high yield.
4 Q. How were you advised that he would
5 be assuming your responsibilities?
6 A. By one of his bosses.
7 Q. Do you recall who that was?
8 A. Zoe Cruz.
9 Q. Could you move your hand down from
10 there?
11 A. Sure.
12 Q. Sorry.
13 Zoe Cruz you said?
14 A. Uhm-hmm.
15 Q. Is Zoe Cruz a woman?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. What did Miss Cruz tell you?
18 A. That they had -- she had decided,
19 the firm had decided to let Mr. Petrick run
20 the loan business.
21 Q. Did you have a face-to-face
22 conversation with Miss Cruz?
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. Was anyone else present for that?
25 A. No.

Page 37

1 Smith
2 Q. How long before Mr. Petrick took
3 over your responsibilities did this
4 conversation occur?
5 A. Oh, days I guess.
6 Q. But very shortly?
7 A. Very shortly.
8 Q. What did Miss Cruz tell you for the 9 reason for this change of assignment?
10 A. That he was very capable, that they 11 wanted to expand the effort and that she
12 wanted him to do it.
13 Q. What did she mean by "expand the 14 effort," the firm wanted to expand the 15 effort?
16 MR CLARE: Objection, calls for
17 speculation.
18 Q. What was your understanding?
19 A. They wanted to get into the 20 investment grade lending business.
21 Q. Did she say that to you during this 22 meeting?
23 A. No.
24 Q. That was your understanding though?
25 A. Uhm-hmm.

10 (Pages 34 to 37)

Page 38

1 Smith
2 Q. Were you pleased with this change
3 of circumstances?
4 A. Not entirely.
5 Q. Did you express any disappointment
6 to Miss Cruz?
7 A. Nope.
8 Q. Why were you not entirely pleased?
9 A. Because it would be a change in my
10 situation.
11 Q. Did you consider this to be a
12 demotion?
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. Did you discuss this change of 15 assignment with anyone else in senior
16 management Morgan Stanley, other than Miss
17 Cruz?
18 A. No.
19 Q. Prior to the assignment, your
20 reassignment and Mr. Petrick's appointment to 21 the position of president of Morgan Stanley
22 Senior Funding, had you been asked to attempt
23 to expand the business activities of Morgan
24 Stanley Senior Funding in ways that you had 25 been unable to accomplish?

Page 39

1 Smith
2 A. No.
3 Q. Who evaluated your performance at
4 Morgan Stanley? Excuse me, during the time
5 you were employed at Morgan Stanley, 1996
6 through February of 2003, who was responsible
7 for evaluating your performance?
8 A. Various people.
9 Q. Can you identify them for me?
10 A. Steve Newhouse, Bill Kourakos.
11 Take a step back. Normally I would have two 12 evaluators, so it would be Newhouse and 13 somebody from fixed income and Kourakos and 14 somebody from fixed income. Towards the end
15 it was Alan Jones and Mitch Petrick.
16 Q. Was Mr. Petrick the fixed income
17 representative?
18 A. He was the fixed income
19 representative.
20 Q. And the other person responsible
21 for your evaluation was from what part of the 22 business?
23 A. That would be from the high yield
24 capital markets area.
25 Q. Were you evaluated on an annual

Page 40

1 Smith
2 basis?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. More often than annual?
5 A. I don't think so.
6 Q. What was the form this evaluation
7 took?
8 A. It was written and it was a
9 meeting.
10 Q. Prior to February '03 do you
11 remember receiving any criticism relating to 12 any aspect of your work during your annual 13 evaluations?
14 A. No.
15 Q. Do you consider yourself to be --
16 let me focus on the time period that we're
17 talking about here, Mr. Smith.
18 In 1998 did you consider yourself
19 to be highly sophisticated with respect to 20 underwriting leveraged loans?
21 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
22 the question.
23 A. I don't know what you mean.
24 Q. Had your career up until 1998, Mr.
25 Smith, involved underwriting leveraged loans?

Page 41

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. How experienced did you consider
4 yourself to be in the first part of 1998 with 5 respect to that business activity?
6 A. Pretty experienced.
7 Q. Would you consider yourself to be
8 highly knowledgeable with respect to the 9 process of underwriting large leveraged loans
10 first quarter of 1998?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. That had been your entire career,
13 had it not?
14 A. Well, I used to fly helicopters.
15 Q. Subsequent to leaving the air force
16 that had been your entire business career,
17 correct?
18 A. The last half of the Morgan
19 Stanley -- I mean the last half of Bankers
20 Trust, yes.
21 Q. So approximately?
22 A. Ten years.
23 Q. Ten years at Bankers Trust?
24 A. Trust.
25 Q. Plus three years of Morgan Stanley?

Page 42

1 Smith
2 A. Uhm-hmm.
3 Q. Have you ever been deposed before,
4 Mr. Smith?
5 A. I have.
6 Q. On how many occasions?
7 A. I guess a couple.
8 Q. What did those occasions involve?
9 A. One was a personnel matter and the 10 other was about this.
11 Q. What did the personnel matter
12 involve?
13 A. Oh, lawsuit.
14 Q. By a Morgan Stanley employee?
15 A. Nothing to do with Morgan Stanley.
16 Q. Was it at Bankers Trust?
17 A. Bankers Trust.
18 Q. What kind of personnel lawsuit was
19 it?
20 A. I don't really know. I was just 21 called in as a witness.
22 Q. What was your involvement, why were 23 you called as a witness?
24 A. I worked with the individual.
25 Q. Were any of the claims being made

Page 43

1 Smith
2 in that employment dispute by the Bankers
3 Trust employee related to your treatment of 4 the individual?
5 A. No.
6 Q. You indicated you have been deposed
7 previously relating to Sunbeam?
8 A. Uhm-hmm.
9 Q. When was that?
10 MR CLARE: A point of
11 clarification, I'm not sure the witness is 12 using deposed in the same way that you are,
13 so you may want to ask a clarifying question
14 or give a clarifying answer to make sure
15 we're clear about the terms we are using.
16 MR MARKOWSKI: I'll try to do
17 that.
18 Q. Have you testified previously
19 relating to Sunbeam?
20 A. I have.
21 Q. What were the circumstances?
22 A. With the U.S. Attorney.
23 Q. Have you testified in a Grand Jury
24 proceeding?
25 A. No.

Page 44

1 Smith
2 Q. What was the nature of the U.S.
3 Attorney's, what was the nature of the 4 testimony you gave relating to activities of 5 the U.S. Attorney's Office?
6 MR. CLARE: I'll object. Maybe I
7 can shortcut some of this. And you're free
8 to follow up with him. Mr. Smith gave an
9 interview to the U.S. Attorney's Office. It
10 was not testimony in any formal sense, it was 11 an interview that was granted.
12 THE WITNESS: Thank you.
13 Q. Was a court reporter present?
14 A. No.
15 Q. Do you remember when this occurred?
16 A. Three or four years ago.
17 Q. How -- the Sunbeam transactions, to 18 put this in context, closed in the first
19 quarter of 1998?
20 A. Uhm-hmm.
21 Q. Do you recall how soon in
22 relationship to first quarter of 1998 you
23 were interviewed by the U.S. Attorney's
24 Office?
25 A. I assume it would be three or four

Page 45

1 Smith
2 years ago. It would be around '01 or '00, so
3 it would be two or three years afterwards,
4 but that is a very hazy recollection.
5 Q. So that was years after the close
6 of the transactions that you were interviewed
7 by the U.S. Attorney's Office?
8 A. Uhm-hmm.
9 Q. Do you know why U.S. Attorney's
10 Office wanted to interview you?
11 MR CLARE: Objection, calls for
12 speculation.
13 A. No.
14 Q. How much time did you spend in this 15 interview?
16 A. About a day and a half.
17 Q. Were you represented by counsel?
18 A. I was.
19 Q. Was it an in-house attorney by
20 Morgan Stanley?
21 A. No.
22 Q. Who represented you?
23 A. Wachtel, I think.
24 Q. Were any in-house Morgan Stanley
25 lawyers present for the interview?

Page 46

1 Smith
2 A. I don't think so.
3 Q. What subjects were you interviewed
4 about?
5 A. Different facets of the
6 transaction.
7 Q. "The transaction" in this case
8 being what?
9 A. Being the Sunbeam acquisition and
10 financing.
11 Q. The Sunbeam acquisition you're 12 referring to is what?
13 A. Of Coleman and the other two
14 properties.
15 Q. And the financing in this context?
16 A. Would be the loan.
17 Q. The senior loan?
18 A. The senior loan.
19 Q. When you refer to "senior loan,"
20 the senior loan is the loan that Morgan
21 Stanley Senior Funding made to Sunbeam in 22 connection with the acquisition?
23 A. Along with two other existing
24 lenders, Bank of America and Wachovia, yeah.
25 Or First Union at the time.

Page 47

1 Smith
2 Q. Were there any other matters that
3 you were interviewed about other than those
4 two general topics?
5 A. Nope.
6 Q. Do you know how you were chosen for 7 this interview?
8 A. I have no idea.
9 Q. Do you know if you were volunteered
10 by Morgan Stanley or --
11 A. I have no idea.
12 Q. Excuse me, or someone at the U.S.
13 Attorney's Office specifically requested you?
14 A. Don't know.
15 Q. Do you know what the U.S.
16 Attorney's Office was attempting to 17 investigate?
18 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for
19 speculation.
20 A. No.
21 Q. What was your understanding?
22 A. Didn't have any.
23 Q. Were you told whether Morgan
24 Stanley's conduct was in question?
25 MR. CLARE: Object. You can

Page 48

1 Smith
2 answer the question, but I would instruct you
3 to limit your answer to exclude any
4 conversations or any other information that
5 you learned from in-house Morgan Stanley
6 counsel or outside counsel representing 7 Morgan Stanley at the time. Those
8 conversations are privileged, you're not
9 required to disclose them. I'm instructing
10 you not to disclose them.
11 To the extent you have an 12 understanding outside of any of those 13 privileged communications you are free to 14 answer Mr. Markowski's question.
15 A. What is your question again?
16 Q. Did you have any understanding
17 whether Morgan Stanley's conduct was in
18 question?
19 A. No comment.
20 Q. Sorry?
21 A. No comment.
22 Q. No comment? I'm not sure I know
23 what no comment means.
24 A. I guess I would be following his 25 advice.

Page 49

1 Smith
2 Q. Is your testimony that other than
3 things you were told by Morgan Stanley's
4 attorneys, you don't have any independent
5 understanding whether Morgan Stanley's
6 conduct was under investigation?
7 A. That would be right.
8 Q. Sir, I think it would be useful for 9 the court reporter if you let me finish my
10 questions before you start to answer them. I
11 know it is very natural for you to anticipate
12 where I'm going and provide the answer.
13 A. You're right, I'm sorry.
14 Q. But it is easier for the court
15 reporter if we speak one at a time.
16 THE WITNESS: Do you think we can
17 take a break now?
18 MR. CLARE: Sure.
19 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
20 10:21, we're going off the record.
21 (Recess taken.)
22 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
23 10:26, we're back on the record.
24 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
25 Q. Mr. Smith, other than this day and

Page 50

1 Smith
2 a half interview with the U.S. Attorney's
3 Office, have you been interviewed by anybody
4 else relating to the Sunbeam transactions?
5 A. No.
6 Q. The U.S. Attorney's Office involved
7 in your interview, was that U.S. Attorney's
8 Office here in Manhattan?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. Do you know if any representatives
11 of the Securities and Exchange Commission
12 were present for that interview?
13 A. I don't recall.
14 Q. Do you remember with whom at U.S.
15 Attorney's Office you met?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Did you take any notes of the 18 discussion that you had with U.S. Attorney's
19 Office?
20 A. No.
21 Q. Can you tell me generally what the 22 U.S. Attorney's Office was interested in 23 learning from you?
24 A. They were interested in issues
25 surrounding the financing of the loan that

Page 51

1 Smith
2 we, Bank of America and First Union, made.
3 Q. Do you know if this inquiry being
4 conducted by the U.S. Attorney's Office was
5 being initiated at the request of Morgan
6 Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
7 MR CLARE: Objection, calls for
8 speculation.
9 A. I do not know.
10 MR CLARE: Make sure you just
11 give me a chance to give my objection.
12 THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.
13 Q. Do you know if it was initiated at 14 the request of First Union or Bank of 15 America?
16 MR CLARE: Same objection.
17 A. Don't know.
18 Q. During the course of the day and a
19 half that you spent with the U.S. Attorney's
20 Office with this interview, Mr. Smith, did
21 you express the view that Morgan Stanley
22 Senior Funding had been the victim of fraud
23 in connection with the loan that it made to
24 Sunbeam?
25 A. I'm sorry, say that again, please.

Page 52

1 Smith
2 Q. During the course of this day and a
3 half interview at the U.S. Attorney's Office
4 did you express the view that Morgan Stanley
5 Senior Funding had been the victim of fraud
6 with respect to the loan it made to Sunbeam?
7 A. I don't really remember.
8 Q. As you sit here today, you don't
9 remember whether during the day and a half
10 interview with the U.S. Attorney's Office you
11 indicated that you believe Morgan Stanley
12 Senior Funding had been the victim of a loan,
13 the victim of a fraud with respect to its
14 loan to Sunbeam; is that correct?
15 A. Well, what, I think a better way to 16 put it was that the three banks were -- I
17 don't know if I ever used the word "fraud" --
18 were misled by what we were told with the 19 financial condition of the company.
20 Q. Financial condition of the company
21 in this context is Sunbeam?
22 A. Sunbeam.
23 Q. Do you recall that you did indicate
24 that you believe Morgan Stanley Senior
25 Funding had been misled by Sunbeam related to

Page 53

1 Smith
2 its financial condition?
3 A. I think I said that Morgan Stanley
4 and the other lenders were misled.
5 Q. Did you explain what, in what way
6 you thought Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had 7 been misled?
8 A. I remember that I said that I felt
9 that the three banks were misled by the 10 financial statements as well as 11 representations made by the company.
12 Q. The financial statements you are 13 referring to are the audited financial 14 statements of Sunbeam?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. What representations by management
17 did you tell the U.S. Attorney's Office you
18 believe were misleading?
19 A. I don't remember the specifics.
20 Q. Do you remember if you offered
21 specifics to the U.S. Attorney's Office with 22 respect to statements made to Morgan Stanley
23 Senior Funding by Sunbeam management that you
24 considered to be misleading?
25 A. No, I cannot remember.

Page 54

1 Smith
2 Q. Did you indicate to the U.S.
3 Attorney's Office whether any of the
4 information that Morgan Stanley had received
5 from or relating to Coleman company was
6 misleading?
7 A. I don't recall.
8 Q. So as you sit here today you don't
9 recall telling the U.S. Attorney's Office
10 that you remember receiving misleading
11 information from Coleman?
12 A. I don't recall ever telling them
13 that.
14 Q. Is the only misleading information
15 you advised the U.S. Attorney's Office you
16 believe Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had 17 received had come from Sunbeam and related to 18 Sunbeam; is that correct?
19 MR. CLARE: Objection, misstates
20 his testimony.
21 A. It what?
22 MR. CLARE: I objected that it
23 misstates your prior testimony. You can
24 answer.
25 THE WITNESS: What was my prior

Page 55

1 Smith
2 testimony?
3 MR. MARKOWSKI: Can you read the
4 pending question, please.
5 (Record read.)
6 A. Well, no, because they also had the
7 financial statements.
8 Q. Let me break it down.
9 You told the U.S. Attorney's Office
10 that you believe Morgan Stanley Senior
11 Funding had received misleading information
12 from Sunbeam management, correct?
13 A. Yeah, the three banks had received
14 misleading information.
15 Q. And that misleading information
16 related to Sunbeam itself, correct?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. And you also told the U.S.
19 Attorney's Office that you believe Sunbeam's
20 own financial statements were misleading,
21 correct?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. And those financial statements
24 relate to Sunbeam itself, correct?
25 A. Yes.

Page 56

1 Smith
2 Q. Is there any other misleading
3 information that you recall advising the U.S.
4 Attorney's Office of that related to the
5 loans that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
6 received?
7 A. I don't recall anything.
8 Q. Are you familiar with the lawsuit
9 that my client Coleman (Parent) Holdings has 10 filed against Morgan Stanley, sir?
11 A. You mean the one we are here for 12 now?
13 Q. Correct.
14 A. A little bit.
15 Q. What's your understanding of that
16 lawsuit?
17 A. That you're suing Morgan Stanley,
18 that is about it.
19 Q. Do you have any understanding of 20 what the nature of the claims are that my 21 client's asserting against Morgan Stanley?
22 A. Not directly.
23 Q. When you say "not directly," what
24 do you mean?
25 A. No, not -- no.

Page 57

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you understand that my client is
3 alleging that Morgan Stanley misled Coleman
4 (Parent) Holdings in connection with the sale
5 of its interest in Coleman company to
6 Sunbeam?
7 A. Yes, I guess I have heard that.
8 Q. Have you had any discussions with 9 Morgan Stanley personnel relating to Coleman
10 (Parent's) lawsuit?
11 A. No. Well, I guess we had that 12 lawyer from Morgan Stanley, the guy who
13 contacted me, the people who contacted me
14 about showing up here. That would be it.
15 Q. Okay. Other than being advised
16 that we wanted to take your deposition, you
17 have not?
18 A. Nope.
19 Q. Sir, if you let me finish my 20 questions, --
21 A. I'm sorry.
22 Q. -- we'll try and get through this.
23 Other than the telephone call you
24 received from an in-house lawyer at Morgan
25 Stanley advising you we wanted to take your

Page 58

1 Smith
2 deposition, you have not had any discussions
3 with any Morgan Stanley personnel relating to
4 my client's claims against Morgan Stanley?
5 A. Had a face-to-face meeting with a
6 lawyer from Morgan Stanley.
7 Q. When was that?
8 A. It was yesterday.
9 Q. That was to prepare for your
10 testimony today?
11 A. That was to prepare for the
12 testimony today.
13 Q. Other than that conversation, have
14 you had any discussions with anyone at Morgan
15 Stanley relating to my client's claims?
16 A. No.
17 Q. What did you do to prepare for your 18 testimony today, sir?
19 A. Sat down with counsel and reviewed
20 documents.
21 Q. And on what occasions did you meet
22 with counsel to prepare for today?
23 A. I'm sorry, on what occasion?
24 Q. Right.
25 A. You mean like when?

Page 59

1 Smith
2 Q. Yes.
3 A. Yesterday.
4 Q. Any other occasions?
5 A. No.
6 Q. With whom did you meet yesterday?
7 A. With this attorney from Morgan
8 Stanley and counsel.
9 Q. With Mr. Clare?
10 A. Mr. Clare.
11 Q. Do you remember the name of the 12 in-house person at Morgan Stanley?
13 A. Jim Doyle?
14 MR. CLARE: If you remember.
15 A. That's all I remember.
16 Q. Anyone else present at the 17 meetings?
18 A. No.
19 Q. Where did it take place?
20 A. It took place at Bear Stearns.
21 Q. How long did you meet with him?
22 A. About several hours.
23 Q. Can you tell me approximately how 24 many?
25 A. Three-plus.

Page 60

1 Smith
2 Q. Did they show you some documents?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. Did any of those documents refresh
5 your recollection on matters?
6 A. In a limited way I guess.
7 Q. What documents did they show you
8 that refreshed your recollection?
9 A. There was a variety of documents.
10 It included the offering memorandum on the 11 bank transaction, some press releases, that 12 type of thing.
13 Q. Did they review any testimony of 14 others with you?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Did they review notes of the 17 meeting that had taken place at the U.S.
18 Attorney's Office?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Do you know if either Mr. Doyle or 21 Mr. Clare had notes relating to the interview
22 you had given to the U.S. Attorney's office?
23 A. No idea.
24 Q. Other than the documents that you
25 were shown during the course of this session

Page 61

1 Smith
2 yesterday with Mr. Doyle and Mr. Clare, did
3 you spend any other time reviewing documents?
4 A. No.
5 Q. Did you use E-mail to communicate
6 back in 1998, sir, while you were at Morgan
7 Stanley?
8 A. No, I don't remember doing it.
9 Q. Did you ever use E-mail while you
10 were at Morgan Stanley?
11 A. Limitedly, in a limited manner.
12 Q. During what time period?
13 A. Mostly towards the last two or 14 three years.
15 Q. When you left Morgan Stanley in 16 2003 did you have a personal computer at the 17 office?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. Do you know whether there were any
20 E-mails or electronic documents on that 21 computer that related in any way to the 22 Sunbeam transactions?
23 A. I do not.
24 Q. So it is possible that your
25 personal computer could have had E-mails or

16 (Pages 58 to 61)

Page 62

1 Smith
2 electronic documents relating to the Sunbeam
3 transaction?
4 A. I'm not a computer genius, but the
5 computer I had was, I only had for a couple
6 of years, so I guess it is not.
7 Q. But you don't know?
8 A. Don't know for sure, no.
9 Q. When you left do you know what
10 happened to your personal computer?
11 A. I do not.
12 Q. You didn't take it with you?
13 A. No, it wasn't mine.
14 Q. Do you know if anyone took any 15 steps to preserve the contents of that 16 computer when you left?
17 A. I do not.
18 Q. Do you know if that computer was
19 reviewed at any time after my client filed
20 its lawsuit against Morgan Stanley in 2003,
21 to determine whether it had on it any
22 documents relating to Sunbeam?
23 MR. CLARE: Objection, no
24 foundation, calls for speculation.
25 A. No idea.

Page 63

1 Smith
2 Q. You don't know one way or the
3 other?
4 A. No.
5 Q. You have no knowledge of it being
6 reviewed at least; is that correct?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Mr. Smith, when did you first
9 become aware that a team of Morgan Stanley
10 investment bankers was working with Sunbeam?
11 A. Tough to say, long time ago. My 12 recollection would be that it would be early
13 '98.
14 Q. Is there a particular event that
15 you relate your first knowledge of Morgan
16 Stanley investment bankers working with 17 somebody?
18 A. The event would be a phone call
19 from Bill Strong inquiring whether our 20 interest in arranging a potential financing
21 for Sunbeam in connection with some
22 acquisitions.
23 Q. Did he identify the potential
24 acquisitions?
25 A. I don't recall.

Page 64

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you recall if those acquisitions
3 turned out to be the acquisition of Coleman
4 company, First Alert, Signature Brand?
5 A. Could have been. It is very
6 general and the conversation like this I had
7 all the time about potential acquisitions, so
8 I think in this case it is still a formative
9 stage.
10 Q. You don't recall as you sit here
11 today whether this call from Mr. Strong
12 related to whether you were interested in 13 potentially structuring financing for 14 Sunbeam's acquisition for some company other
15 than the three companies it ended up
16 acquiring?
17 A. Maybe I'll put it a different way.
18 I think those companies were mentioned. It
19 was unclear whether it was going to be all
20 three, two of them or one.
21 Q. But it ended up being, the 22 financing that Mr. Strong was inquiring about
23 ended up being the financing that was in fact
24 put in place by your group, right?
25 A. For those three properties.

Page 65

1 Smith
2 Q. Did you have any knowledge that Mr.
3 Strong and others were working with Sunbeam
4 earlier with respect to other potential
5 target companies?
6 A. Not then.
7 Q. Were you involved in any Sunbeam
8 activities in 1997 that you can recall?
9 A. 1997, no. I do not recall being
10 involved.
11 Q. Do you believe that you were not?
12 A. I believe I was not.
13 Q. Were you aware that Morgan
14 Stanley's ability to arrange large amounts of 15 financing was being promoted to Sunbeam by 16 Morgan Stanley investment bankers as a reason
17 for retaining Morgan Stanley to provide
18 investment banking services?
19 A. I was not.
20 Q. Were you aware that in August of 21 1997 you were identified as a member of the 22 Morgan Stanley Sunbeam team?
23 A. No.
24 Q. Would it surprise you that without 25 your knowledge you have been identified by

Page 66

1 Smith
 2 Morgan Stanley investment bankers as being a
 3 member of the Sunbeam team?
 4 MR. CLARE: Objection to form and
 5 foundation. You can answer.
 6 A. I don't know how to answer. Does
 7 it surprise me? A little bit I guess.
 8 Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you
 9 what we're going to mark as Coleman (Parent)
 10 Holdings Exhibit 151, it's a document that
 11 bears Bates number Morgan Stanley
 12 confidential 65651 through 6574.
 13 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
 14 151, document that bears Bates number
 15 Morgan Stanley confidential 65651
 16 through 6574, marked for
 17 identification, as of this date.)
 18 Q. I would like you to look at it
 19 briefly just to tell me, first of all,
 20 whether you recall ever seeing that document
 21 before.
 22 A. Is this all one document or is this
 23 several put together?
 24 Q. As far as I'm aware it is one
 25 document, but I could be mistaken about that.

Page 67

1 Smith
 2 It is the way we received it.
 3 A. I don't recollect seeing this.
 4 Q. You see it's labelled in the first
 5 page "Project Laser Discussion Material
 6 August 8, 1997"?
 7 A. Uhm-hmm.
 8 Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley's work
 9 for Sunbeam was referred to as Project Laser?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. Let me direct your attention to the 12 page where it has Bates number 65772, it is 13 towards the end of the document.
 14 A. Towards the end of it?
 15 Q. 772, correct.
 16 A. Uhm-hmm.
 17 Q. Do you see that page is entitled
 18 "Project Laser, the Morgan Stanley team"?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. You see in the bottom left-hand
 21 corner there is a box for debt capital
 22 markets banks?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. And your name appears there,
 25 correct?

Page 68

1 Smith
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Along with Michael Hart's and
 4 Michael McLaughlin, right?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. Can you tell me who Michael Hart
 7 and Michael McLaughlin are?
 8 A. Michael Hart and Michael McLaughlin
 9 were vice presidents who worked as loan
 10 originators in the loan capital, for me in 11 the loan group.
 12 Q. They were two Morgan Stanley
 13 employees who worked for you?
 14 A. Right.
 15 Q. Does this refresh your recollection
 16 that you're identified Sunbeam in the summer
 17 of 1997, as part of the Morgan Stanley team
 18 for Project Laser?
 19 A. I guess I would put it another way
 20 since I have never seen this before, so this 21 is my first observation of this and I see my 22 name as well as 15 other people here.
 23 This looks very similar to a lot of 24 the pitches Morgan Stanley put together just 25 listing people in different areas.

Page 69

1 Smith
 2 You will also notice here they had
 3 people from the credit function and people
 4 from Princess Gate on this, so I would view
 5 this as a very generic pitch page.
 6 Q. Do you know what the purpose would
 7 be of listing your group?
 8 A. No, I would not.
 9 Q. Let me direct your attention to the
 10 next page of this document, it bears Bates
 11 65773. It is entitled "Project Laser Global 12 Leveraged Lending Capabilities." It states
 13 "Morgan Stanley has the ability to provide
 14 below investment grade clients with financing
 15 at every level of the capital structure."
 16 Do you understand that?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. Was it your understanding that
 19 Sunbeam was a below investment grade company?
 20 MR. CLARE: During what time
 21 period?
 22 MR. MARKOWSKI: 1997, 1998.
 23 A. Again I didn't know that this was
 24 done. I don't know what Sunbeam's credit
 25 ratings were at that time, investment grade,

Page 70

1 Smith
2 noninvestment grade.
3 Q. Do you see the entry that reads
4 "seasoned leverage lending professionals"?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. I would like you to read that, the 7 description next to that to yourself. It has 8 the words "Groups of 12 dedicated 9 professionals"?
10 A. Uhm-hmm.
11 Q. Does that accurately describe your 12 group at the time?
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. Below that there is another heading
15 that reads "Armed With One-Stop Shopping."
16 Do you see that?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. Would you read that to yourself
19 also. Let me read it into the record, so it
20 is clear what we're talking about.
21 It reads "Seamless execution
22 coordinated among MSSF, Morgan Stanley's
23 bridge and private equity funds and top rank
24 high yield public equity M&A groups."
25 Do you see that?

Page 71

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. Do you have any understanding what
4 the reference to one-stop shopping means in
5 the context of this statement?
6 A. The, again this was a standard
7 pitch page that was included in a lot of 8 presentations to companies.
9 The idea here was that a variety of
10 services could be provided by Morgan Stanley,
11 very similar to what our competitors were 12 also tallying at the time.
13 Q. And those activities would range
14 from what, sir, to what in this context?
15 A. In this context where you just read
16 it would include Morgan Stanley Senior
17 Funding, Morgan Stanley bridge, private
18 equity, high yield, public equity, and M&A.
19 Q. The reference to M&A is to what
20 function, sir, do you know?
21 Do you have any understanding?
22 A. I guess it would be mergers and
23 acquisitions.
24 Q. Is that sometimes referred to as
25 the investment banking function?

Page 72

1 Smith
2 A. I think the investment banking
3 function is broader, but I don't know.
4 Is there investment banking listed
5 here?
6 Q. Was it common for Morgan Stanley
7 investment bankers to represent to potential
8 clients that Morgan Stanley both could
9 provide investment banking advisory services
10 and then assist the company directly or 11 indirectly in raising the funds necessary to 12 complete the acquisitions that were arranged
13 through the investment banking group?
14 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for
15 speculation.
16 A. Yes, I mean I obviously wasn't on 17 every page so I have no idea how common or 18 uncommon it was.
19 Q. You were part of the financing
20 activity. Was it something that you
21 understood to be taking place?
22 A. When you say "taking place," do you
23 mean taking place 1 percent of the time, 2
24 percent of the time.
25 Q. Common?

Page 73

1 Smith
2 A. I don't know what common means.
3 Q. Was it your understanding that
4 Morgan Stanley -- let me take a step back,
5 sir.
6 Was it your understanding that one
7 of the reasons why Morgan Stanley wanted you
8 to come to Morgan Stanley to establish the 9 ability to fund leveraged loans and to
10 syndicate them, was to assist Morgan Stanley
11 in obtaining investment banking related
12 engagements?
13 A. My understanding was that they want
14 to have the leverage loan capability to help
15 them garner more high yield business per se.
16 Q. Did you understand another
17 objective was to obtain more investment
18 banking engagements as a result of the 19 ability to provide that kind of funding?
20 A. No.
21 Q. That was never expressed to you as 22 an objective?
23 A. No, it was not.
24 Q. Were you aware that --
25 A. Excuse me, are we finished with

Page 74

1 Smith
 2 this?
 3 Q. Yes.
 4 Q. You were aware that the Morgan
 5 Stanley investment banking team was concerned
 6 that it might lose the financing assignments
 7 relating to any acquisitions Sunbeam obtained
 8 to Chase Securities?
 9 A. I don't know if I would have worded
 10 it that way. I think they felt that Chase
 11 was a competitor that could get the financing
 12 business because of their existing
 13 relationship with Sunbeam.
 14 Q. You understood that Chase
 15 Securities had an existing relationship with
 16 Sunbeam?
 17 A. Yes, I did, as did First Union and 18 Bank of America.
 19 Q. What was the nature of Chase
 20 Securities' relationship with Sunbeam?
 21 MR. CLARE: Objection. Objection,
 22 no foundation. You can answer if you know.
 23 A. The only thing that I know that 24 they had were they were the lead on their 25 bank loan. And by "the lead" I mean their

Page 75

1 Smith
 2 agent or the administrative agent.
 3 Q. The bank loan is what, sir?
 4 A. They had a, I think a small
 5 revolving credit, multi-year. Chase was the 6 admin agent. First Union, Bank America were 7 two large lenders, participants in that, two
 8 syndicate members.
 9 Q. Do you know who Mark Davis is?
 10 A. From where?
 11 Q. Chase Securities.
 12 A. No, I don't think so.
 13 Q. You were never told that Mark Davis
 14 of Chase Securities had a relationship with 15 Mr. Dunlap as a result of work that Mr. Davis
 16 had done for Mr. Dunlap at other companies?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. Have you ever seen the engagement
 19 letter between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam,
 20 sir?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. When did you see that?
 23 A. I think at various times.
 24 Q. What would have been your reason
 25 for seeing that engagement letter?

Page 76

1 Smith
 2 A. One, getting ready for this, and
 3 then when the letter was issued to, as
 4 normally as, or I think in this case so it
 5 kind of after the fact or right before they
 6 signed the final one.
 7 Q. I show you what we marked
 8 previously as CPH Exhibit 70, it is a letter
 9 dated September 5, 1997 Morgan Stanley
 10 stationery from Bill Strong to Albert Dunlap.
 11 A. Okay.
 12 Q. Take a moment to look at this for 13 me, sir.
 14 A. Okay.
 15 Q. Do you recall seeing the Morgan
 16 Stanley engagement letter prior to September
 17 5, 1997, sir?
 18 A. I do not recall seeing it prior to 19 September 5, 1997.
 20 Q. So is it your recollection you did
 21 not see the engagement letter prior to it
 22 being entered into?
 23 A. Yes, that's my recollection.
 24 Q. Do you recall now having looked at 25 it, how soon after September 1997 you first

Page 77

1 Smith
 2 saw the engagement letter?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Do you recall that in fact you did
 5 see it prior to the closing of the 6 transactions in the first quarter of 1998?
 7 A. I'm not sure.
 8 Q. Were you aware that as part of the 9 Sunbeam engagement letter, Sunbeam had agreed
 10 to retain Morgan Stanley on mutually 11 agreeable terms to assist in connection with 12 any necessary financing?
 13 MR. CLARE: Objection to the 14 extent it mischaracterizes the document.
 15 A. That's not what this says.
 16 Q. Let me direct your attention to the 17 second -- the first full paragraph on the 18 third page of the letter.
 19 A. Uhm-hmm.
 20 Q. It reads "If in connection with
 21 this assignment Sunbeam effects a repurchase
 22 of or public sale or private placement of any 23 equity referred or debt securities, or
 24 Sunbeam effects real estate financings, asset
 25 or property sales and some reasonable portion

Page 78

1 Smith
2 of investment banking services, in connection
3 with Sunbeam agrees to offer Morgan Stanley
4 on mutually agreeable terms to assist it with 5 such transaction."
6 Is it your understanding that that
7 did not encompass --
8 A. This is boilerplate. Mutually
9 acceptable terms means you have to come with 10 the transaction so both sides have to agree,
11 so there is nothing that ties them, Sunbeam
12 to Morgan Stanley, to do this.
13 Q. Is it your understanding this 14 didn't create a binding obligation on 15 Sunbeam's part?
16 A. Not at all. This is boilerplate.
17 Q. Is it your understanding that this 18 does relate to the financing activities that 19 Sunbeam may need in the event that it engages 20 in an acquisition covered by the terms of 21 this engagement letter?
22 A. Why don't you say that again.
23 Q. Is it your understanding that the 24 language that I just read to you from this 25 engagement letter pertains to financing

Page 79

1 Smith
2 activities related to any acquisition that
3 Sunbeam executes, that is covered by this
4 engagement letter?
5 A. Well, again I guess I don't know
6 what you're driving at or mean. One, this is 7 boilerplate. Two, what this states is that 8 if there is some financing by the way we, we 9 might be able to strike a mutually acceptable
10 deal with them to help provide the financing.
11 Q. Is it typical that Morgan Stanley
12 seeks to involve itself in financing aspects
13 of the investment banking transactions?
14 A. I'm sorry, do you say is it usual?
15 Q. Yes.
16 A. Don't know.
17 Q. Is the opportunity to provide
18 financing another way that Morgan Stanley
19 realizes fee income?
20 A. Yes, as do other institutions.
21 Q. You're aware, sir, that in first
22 quarter of 1998 Sunbeam signed an agreement
23 to acquire my client's interests in Coleman
24 company?
25 A. Yes.

Page 80

1 Smith
2 Q. And in connection with that
3 transaction Morgan Stanley was in fact
4 retained by Sunbeam to provide financing for 5 it, correct?
6 A. I don't know about the chronology,
7 but -- well, you know what, I don't know if
8 that is right. I don't know when we were 9 retained by them to do the financing.
10 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam retained
11 Morgan Stanley to arrange financing for its 12 acquisition of Coleman company prior to the 13 closing of the acquisition of my client's
14 interest in Coleman?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. Who within Morgan Stanley, sir, was 17 involved in the financing arrangements
18 relating to the acquisition of my client's
19 interests in Coleman company?
20 A. The financing arrangements? Do you
21 mean specifically the loan?
22 Q. Any aspect of the financing.
23 A. Would that include the convertibles
24 as well?
25 Q. Yes.

Page 81

1 Smith
2 A. Then my list would be limited
3 because I don't know all of the people that
4 were involved.
5 Conceptually there were people from
6 our group which would be the Morgan Stanley
7 senior loan, there would be people from 8 credit, there would be people from high yield
9 research, there would be people from the 10 convertible desk, there would be people from 11 equity capital market, and I don't even know
12 if that is exhaustive, as well as the 13 execution group. So to summarize, many, many 14 people involved.
15 Q. Who from the leveraged finance
16 group is involved?
17 A. There were probably three or four
18 of us, myself, Michael Hart -- Michael Hart,
19 Tom Burchill, and towards the end Simon
20 Rankin.
21 Q. Do you recall who was involved in 22 the equity capital markets group?
23 A. I do not.
24 Q. Did you have any interaction with 25 them in connection with the underwriting of

1 Smith
 2 the senior loan?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. So you didn't exchange
 5 information -- let me take a step back.
 6 Do you recall if Ruth Porat was
 7 involved in convertible debt?
 8 A. I do, yes.
 9 Q. Did you have any communication with 10 her at any point prior to the closing on the 11 senior loan relating to Sunbeam?
 12 A. Did I have any communications prior
 13 to the closing of the loan, yes.
 14 Q. What do you recall about those 15 communications?
 16 A. Well, a couple of things. The --
 17 because this was a large financing and many 18 individuals at Morgan Stanley from many 19 groups were involved. There was a sharing of
 20 information.
 21 Number two, when, just before we
 22 closed the loan there was some issues
 23 regarding sales in the first quarter, some 24 press releases and so worked with the firm I
 25 guess, and she was one of the members of the

1 Smith
 2 group in terms of investigating this.
 3 Q. Do you recall any other
 4 communications that you had with anyone else
 5 in equity capital markets relating to
 6 Sunbeam?
 7 A. I do not.
 8 Q. So the only point of contact you
 9 had was with Ruth Porat?
 10 A. To the best of my recollection.
 11 Q. Do you know if other people within 12 leveraged finance had communications with 13 Miss Porat?
 14 A. I do not know.
 15 Q. Do you know whether other people
 16 within the leveraged finance group had
 17 communications with anyone else in equity
 18 capital markets relating to this?
 19 A. I do not.
 20 Q. You indicated that there was 21 sharing of information relating to the 22 financings between leveraged finance and 23 equity capital markets.
 24 Did I understand that correctly?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Smith
 2 Q. What was the nature of the 3 information being shared?
 4 A. Let me be more specific. At Morgan
 5 Stanley there was a group, I don't know what
 6 they call it now, the execution group. I
 7 think they called it CSG then. And once the 8 transaction was one, then they were the 9 people that chaperoned the process, knew all
 10 of the transactions. They were the 11 executioners as we called them.
 12 John Tyree was the representative
 13 from CSG who was the quarterback of putting 14 together a lot of this. And in this capacity
 15 he was the point person and we were able to,
 16 we being the loan group as well as equity
 17 capital markets, use a lot of the work that 18 he did. And a lot of this we did together,
 19 some of it we relied on him, sometimes he 20 relied on us.
 21 Again it was a massive effort on 22 the part of the firm. At any one time 10 to 23 20 people working on this thing.
 24 Q. We're going to go through that in 25 more detail.

1 Smith
 2 In the first quarter of 1998 what
 3 was the nature of your personal activity
 4 relating to the underwriting of the Sunbeam
 5 loan?
 6 A. Well, as the manager of the group,
 7 the ultimate responsibility was, and decision
 8 I guess was at least -- decision is the wrong
 9 word. The ultimate responsibility was mine.
 10 We had a very strenuous credit approval
 11 process with many of the individuals that I
 12 had mentioned before as part of the credit
 13 committee at the time that got involved with 14 the final yes or no.
 15 It was our group that was 16 responsible, the people that work for me that 17 were responsible for doing a lot of the due
 18 diligence and the structuring and then the 19 rest on the loan. So in that way it was in a
 20 supervisory capacity.
 21 Q. Do you recall what activities you
 22 personally engaged in?
 23 A. Partly I guess. Worked with the,
 24 specifically on the loan side, what was the 25 right structure, i.e., how much A loan, how

Page 86

1 Smith
2 much B loan, what should be the prices, what
3 should be the fees. More generically asking
4 questions about the credit, the combined
5 entity.
6 And once when one of the team
7 members was unable to attend I went down for 8 a, one of the due diligence meetings down in 9 Florida.
10 Q. There are two principal aspects of 11 the Sunbeam financing which was ultimately
12 put in place, correct, sir, the senior loan
13 and the convertible debenture offering?
14 A. Uhm-hmm.
15 Q. You have to answer audibly.
16 A. I'm sorry, yes.
17 Q. Who was involved in the 18 decision-making with respect to how much
19 money would be raised through the convertible
20 debenture offering and how much money would 21 be provided through the senior loan?
22 A. I'm sorry, you say who made that
23 decision?
24 Q. Yes.
25 A. It was kind of a group, a group

Page 87

1 Smith
2 decision. Obviously people at Morgan Stanley
3 had, were involved as well as the company.
4 Q. Were you involved in that process?
5 A. Tangentially.
6 Q. Did you provide a recommendation
7 concerning how much of the debt should be
8 raised through the senior loan and how much
9 of it should be raised through the
10 convertible debenture?
11 A. Initially we did, which was the 12 original structure, and then when the 13 convertible increased in size, then had input
14 into terms of how much to take of the, or how 15 much they should use and then how to reduce 16 the loan to take advantage of the extra money
17 they were able to raise in the convertible
18 market.
19 Q. What you are referring to is the 20 fact that originally it was contemplated that 21 500 million would be raised through the 22 convertible debenture offering?
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. And subsequently that was changed
25 to be something more like 750 million?

Page 88

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. Were you involved in any
4 decision-making or involved in making
5 recommendations with respect to that change?
6 A. No.
7 Q. Do you know who made that decision?
8 A. I think the company eventually made
9 that decision. It is only speculation on my 10 part.
11 Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan
12 Stanley had a view on that issue?
13 A. No.
14 Q. Did you have a view?
15 A. Not really.
16 Q. Did you consider it to be a good
17 development with respect to the senior loan
18 or a negative development with respect to the 19 senior loan, that the company had raised an 20 additional $250 million through the
21 convertible debenture?
22 A. I thought it was a positive
23 development.
24 Q. Why is that?
25 A. Because it was more junior capital

Page 89

1 Smith
2 in the, in the capital structure so the loans
3 were, were more, were better off.
4 Q. Is that sometimes referred to as
5 there being more cushion?
6 A. I have heard people use that
7 expression.
8 Q. Is that an expression you've used?
9 A. I don't recall.
10 Q. In any event, you consider it to be 11 the fact that the company raised an
12 additional $250 million through the
13 convertible debenture offering to be a
14 positive development with respect to Morgan
15 Stanley's exposure on the senior loan?
16 A. I viewed it as a positive
17 development in terms of a senior lender to 18 the company, which would be ourselves and 19 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Bank of 20 America and First Union. I thought it also 21 enhanced our ability to distribute it.
22 Q. You thought in general senior
23 lenders would view that as a positive?
24 A. As a positive outcome.
25 Q. What due diligence activity did you

Page 90

1 Smith
2 personally engage in prior to the closing of
3 the senior loan, sir?
4 A. It was rather limited. We had
5 other people tasked with the job and in my 6 cart, but I did go on that one trip down to
7 Florida.
8 Q. Do you recall if that one trip took
9 place in early March?
10 A. I don't remember. That's probably
11 about right.
12 Q. Let me see if we can pin this down
13 in time a little bit.
14 Let me show you, sir, what was
15 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 74.
16 It is a letter dated March 5, 1998 on Morgan
17 Stanley stationery, signed by you, directed
18 to Russell Kersh at Sunbeam.
19 Can you tell me what this letter
20 is, sir?
21 A. Give me a second, please.
22 Q. Sure.
23 A. This looks like a highly confident
24 letter.
25 Q. Do you recall whether you provided

Page 91

1 Smith
2 this letter to Sunbeam before or after your
3 trip to Florida?
4 A. I don't recall.
5 Q. Let me show you what we marked
6 previously as CPH Number 37. It is a
7 two-page document bearing Bates Morgan
8 Stanley confidential 45317 through 45318. It
9 is an itinerary for Mr. Tyree's travel to 10 Florida on March 4 and March 5, 1998, sir?
11 A. Uhm-hmm.
12 Q. You see that in the third line
13 there is a reference to you, Seth Shaan, Tom 14 Burchill and Michael Hart as part of the 15 team?
16 A. I do.
17 Q. Do you believe this is a reference
18 to the trip to Florida that you took?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Do you recall that Mr. Tyree was 21 part of the team at the Florida meeting?
22 A. I do.
23 Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Hart was
24 there?
25 A. I believe he was not.

Page 92

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you recall if Seth Shaan, Tom
3 Burchill were there?
4 A. I don't recall.
5 Q. Is the reason why you went on this
6 trip that Michael Hart could not?
7 A. That is my recollection.
8 Q. Prior to the trip to Florida in 9 early March where you visited Sunbeam, had 10 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding itself done
11 any, do any due diligence relating to the 12 possibility of structuring a senior loan to
13 Sunbeam?
14 A. I don't recall the exact sequencing
15 of it, but we did have -- we -- so I don't 16 remember when we started getting involved in 17 terms of looking at the, looking at the 18 projections and thinking about loan
19 structures.
20 Q. Would it be fair to say that by the 21 time you sent your March 5, 1998 highly 22 confident letter to Mr. Kersh, that Morgan
23 Stanley Senior Funding had substantially
24 completed its due diligence related to the 25 financing?

Page 93

1 Smith
2 A. Oh, quite the contrary. We had
3 looked at a lot of the available information
4 and accepted it at face.
5 As you see here in the letter, we
6 said there is a lot more work to do. We said
7 this is our preliminary understanding, that
8 we had lots of work to do to include getting,
9 completing due diligence. That no way this
10 was -- and that's I guess that first full
11 paragraph on the second page where we talk
12 about material address change in conditions
13 and business results and the prospects of the
14 company.
15 I think we also had in here
16 someplace about the, we have to complete the 17 due diligence. And that no way could this be 18 construed to be a commitment by Morgan
19 Stanley to lend the money or to underwrite
20 the deal.
21 And I think the operative paragraph
22 here is that we were highly confident that 23 this could be syndicated in the general known
24 market.
25 Q. Have you finished your answer?

24 (Pages 90 to 93)

Page 94

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. Sir, is it your testimony, sir,
4 that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had not
5 substantially completed its due diligence as 6 of the time it provided Sunbeam with a highly
7 confident letter?
8 A. It is my testimony that it had not
9 completed its due diligence prior to issuing
10 this letter.
11 Q. Right.
12 A. With the caveats that I just 13 mentioned.
14 Q. My question is whether it was 15 substantially complete by this point in time?
16 A. I don't know what that might mean,
17 but there was a lot more to do and I think
18 this letter reflected that.
19 Q. Let me put it this way: Did you
20 think that most of Morgan Stanley Senior
21 Funding's due diligence relating to the 22 underwriting of the senior loan was completed
23 by the time you provided the highly confident
24 letter to Mr. Kersh on March 5, 1998?
25 A. I don't think that most had been

Page 95

1 Smith
2 done by then, but that is a very vague term.
3 Q. Was it the policy of Morgan Stanley
4 that highly confident letters relating to
5 financings should not be issued until
6 substantially all necessary due diligence was
7 completed?
8 A. It -- why don't we say that again.
9 What did you say?
10 Q. Was it the policy of Morgan Stanley
11 that highly confident letters relating to
12 financings should not be issued by the firm
13 until substantially all necessary due
14 diligence had been completed?
15 A. There -- I don't follow you.
16 Q. Was it the policy of Morgan
17 Stanley -- I think it is a fairly simple
18 statement, sir.
19 A. Why don't you go slow.
20 Q. I will. Was it the policy of 21 Morgan Stanley that highly confident
22 letters --
23 A. Like this.
24 Q. -- relating to financing should not
25 be issued until such time as substantially

Page 96

1 Smith
2 all necessary due diligence was completed?
3 A. Well, I'm having a brain aneurysm,
4 I don't know what you're trying to get to.
5 Q. You don't know one way or the other
6 as you sit here today whether Morgan
7 Stanley's policy was --
8 A. I'm not commenting on Morgan
9 Stanley's policy.
10 Q. I'm asking you --
11 A. No comment, no idea.
12 Q. My question is this and I want your
13 knowledge, I'm entitled to your knowledge.
14 A. As best as I can remember.
15 Q. Yes. Is it your testimony that you
16 have no knowledge as you sit here today,
17 whether it was the policy of Morgan Stanley
18 in March of 1998 that the firm should not 19 issue highly confident letters relating to 20 potential financing until such time as 21 substantially all necessary due diligence was
22 completed?
23 A. My understanding was that there
24 would be letters like this issued after it
25 was vetted internally, and the amount of due

Page 97

1 Smith
2 diligence completed before the issuance of
3 this letter would vary.
4 Q. You have no knowledge that there
5 was a requirement that substantially all of 6 necessary due diligence be complete?
7 A. Those are your terms and I'm not
8 aware of any of those, that concept.
9 Q. Who made the decision to issue the 10 highly confident letter on March 5?
11 A. This was a group decision that was 12 vetted by many of the senior people at the 13 firm.
14 Q. You didn't have the authority
15 yourself to issue the March 5 letter?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Who needed to provide approval?
18 A. This would --
19 Q. Let me ask you a different
20 question. Who did provide approval?
21 A. I don't recall exactly, but it
22 would be the people on the Credit Committee,
23 I don't even remember who was the head then
24 of the Credit Committee, and then other
25 senior members of the Credit Committee.

 3 a break and change the tape.
 4 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is

 9 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 10 Q. Mr. Smith, back to the March 5
 11 highly confident letter.
 12 Describe to me the process that was 13 used at Morgan Stanley in reaching a decision
 14 to issue this letter.
 15 A. The decision would be a, would be
 16 similar to the credit approval process,
 17 realizing that we had less than the complete
 18 information that we would need to make a
 19 credit decision.
 20 And by that I mean that a lot of 21 the due diligence would be ongoing, not yet
 22 complete, that our views expressed in these 23 highly confident letters such as this, are 24 dated March 5, would, would relate to taking 25 a lot of the information given to us at face

Page 99

1 Smith
 2 value, i.e., the audited financials, i.e.,
 3 the projections, and the rest.
 4 And then based on that was our, we
 5 would then come up with a decision on the 6 part of the firm, voiced to the Credit
 7 Committee, whether we would be authorized to 8 send out a highly confident letter such as 9 the one here.
 10 Q. Was there any sign-off process in 11 place that required that formal written
 12 approval be given for letters such as this?
 13 A. It was not a sign-off procedure.
 14 It was a meeting that was, that we had a
 15 chairman and that approved credits as well as 16 sending out these highly confident letters.
 17 Q. That committee was the Leveraged
 18 Finance Committee?
 19 A. It sounds right, but don't hold me
 20 a hundred percent for the name. It changed a
 21 lot.
 22 Q. Were you on that committee?
 23 A. I was on the committee.
 24 Q. Were you the chairman?
 25 A. I was not the chairman.

Page 100

1 Smith
 2 Q. Do you know who was in 1998?
 3 A. I think it had been Mr. Steve
 4 Newhouse.
 5 Q. How did that process work, did the 6 committee take a vote with respect to whether 7 a letter -- let me ask you a specific
 8 question.
 9 Do you recall that a committee vote
 10 was taken with respect to the authorization
 11 issued on March 5 had the confident letter
 12 disseminated?
 13 A. I don't remember specifically
 14 whether there was a vote. I don't remember.
 15 Q. Is that typically the way the 16 process works, the committee takes a vote
 17 with respect to whether to approve the 18 issuance of a highly confident letter or a
 19 credit, or is it something other than that?
 20 A. That is typically how it would
 21 work.
 22 Q. Who initiated the process with 23 respect to review of the question whether to 24 issue a highly confident letter to Sunbeam;
 25 did you?

Page 101

1 Smith
 2 A. Initiate's a funny word. Probably
 3 Mr. Strong and myself were the, would take 4 the lead on this.
 5 Q. Why Mr. Strong?
 6 A. The procedure at Morgan Stanley was 7 that the banker, i.e., the person who was 8 responsible for the client would be actively 9 involved in all, in proposing extensions of 10 credit or underwritings for their client.
 11 Q. So Mr. Strong had to endorse this 12 as part of the internal procedure Morgan
 13 Stanley?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. Do you recall that Mr. Strong asked
 16 you to consider to issue a highly confident
 17 letter to Sunbeam?
 18 A. I recall that he wanted a highly 19 confident letter from Morgan Stanley to
 20 Sunbeam.
 21 Q. How did you know that Mr. Strong
 22 wanted a highly confident letter?
 23 A. I think he -- we talked about it
 24 and we thought that was helpful in helping us
 25 secure the financing.

Page 102

1 Smith
2 Q. So you and Mr. Strong discussed
3 whether Morgan Stanley should issue a highly
4 confident letter?
5 A. No, Mr. Strong and I discussed
6 whether we should go seek approval from
7 Morgan Stanley to issue a highly confident
8 letter.
9 Q. And Mr. Strong wanted Morgan
10 Stanley to issue a highly confident letter
11 because he thought it would be helpful to 12 Morgan Stanley in obtaining the assignment to 13 arrange for the financing, correct?
14 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for
15 speculation.
16 A. I can't comment for sure what he
17 was thinking.
18 Q. Did Mr. Strong say to you in words
19 or substance I would like us to be able to 20 issue a highly confident letter to Sunbeam in 21 connection with the financing for the Coleman
22 acquisition because that will be helpful to
23 us in our efforts to obtain that engagement?
24 A. I think he said to the committee
25 that form and substance about what you said,

Page 103

1 Smith
2 that this would be useful in positioning
3 ourselves to seek the financing if that's
4 what we wanted to do.
5 Q. Now, was it clear to the committee
6 in connection with the issuance of -- let me
7 ask a foundational question.
8 Was there an actual meeting of the 9 committee in connection with the decision to 10 issue the March 5 highly confident letter?
11 A. Don't recall for sure, but I
12 believe so.
13 Q. Do you recall being present at such 14 a meeting?
15 A. I do recall, yes. If there was a
16 meeting I was there. And I think there was a
17 meeting.
18 Q. To discuss the issuance of the
19 March 5 --
20 A. To discuss the issuance of this
21 highly confident letter.
22 Q. Do you recall whether the committee
23 at that meeting was advised that a
24 substantial amount of due diligence remained
25 to be done before Morgan Stanley could

Page 104

1 Smith
2 actually commit to make the loan?
3 A. I don't know if I would use the
4 word "substantial." They were certainly 5 aware that there was ongoing work and work to 6 be done.
7 And also what happened here is that
8 once that work was complete it was understood
9 because this was the policy, is to come back
10 to the Credit Committee for approval of what 11 exactly was being asked for.
12 Q. How would issuing a highly
13 confident letter be helpful in Morgan
14 Stanley's efforts to obtain the financing
15 engagement?
16 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for
17 speculation.
18 A. I don't know what Bill was thinking
19 with the company. I don't know.
20 Q. Did Mr. Strong explain his thinking
21 to you?
22 A. No.
23 Q. Do you have any views of your own,
24 based on your many years of experience in 25 this business that would provide you with a

Page 105

1 Smith
2 basis for understanding how the issuance of a
3 highly confident letter might assist Mr.
4 Strong in obtaining the financing engagement
5 from Sunbeam?
6 A. Not really. It's also situational,
7 so personal, and I had no knowledge of Kersh
8 or Dunlap before that.
9 Q. Before this March 5 letter was 10 issued did you have any direct communications
11 with Mr. Kersh or Mr. Dunlap personally?
12 A. I'm hesitating because the -- I'm
13 trying to remember the first time I met him
14 and that might have been at the board
15 meeting, and I don't remember when that day
16 was.
17 Q. The itinerary for the trip to 18 Florida indicates --
19 A. They might have even been there.
20 Does it say that? I'm sorry.
21 Q. We'll get there. Here is my 22 question: The itinerary for the trip to 23 Florida indicates that the meetings were 24 scheduled for March 4 and March 5. The date
25 of your highly confident letter is March 5.

27 (Pages 102 to 105)

Page 106

1 Smith
2 Do you recall bringing the highly
3 confident letter with you and delivering it
4 personally to Mr. Kersh or Mr. Dunlap during
5 your visit to Florida?
6 A. I don't think so. I think the
7 itinerary is wrong. I think I was only there
8 for a day in and out, I didn't spend the 9 night, and so I don't believe I had this with 10 me to give them when I was down there.
11 Q. Was there something about your trip
12 to Florida that, on March 4 that bears on the 13 timing of the issuance of the letter on March 14 5?
15 A. I don't recall.
16 Q. Do you recall you were holding onto 17 the highly confident letter until your trip
18 to Florida?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Do you recall how far in advance of 21 the issuance of a highly confident letter on 22 March 5 that Mr. Strong first approached you
23 about his desire to have Morgan Stanley
24 provide Sunbeam with such a letter?
25 A. I do not.

Page 107

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you remember if it was more than 3 a week?
4 A. I do not.
5 Q. Is it possible that it was less
6 than a week?
7 A. I can't remember.
8 Q. Was there any disagreement on the 9 part of any members of the committee
10 responsible for making the decision to issue
11 this letter, concerning whether it should be 12 sent?
13 A. Not that I recall.
14 Q. Did you have any reservations
15 personally about it?
16 A. No.
17 Q. I believe you testified earlier
18 that it was your recollection, it is your
19 recollection today that your activity
20 relating to Sunbeam started in the first
21 quarter of 1998?
22 A. That's the best of my recollection.
23 Q. Was it your understanding at the 24 outset of your involvement in first quarter
25 of 1998 relating to Sunbeam, that Mr. Dunlap

Page 108

1 Smith
2 had claimed to have accomplished a
3 significant improvement in Sunbeam's
4 performance and prospects?
5 A. I'm sorry, did you say prior to my
6 involvement?
7 Q. I'll ask a new question.
8 Was it your understanding at the 9 time you became involved in your work
10 relating to Sunbeam in the first quarter of 11 1998, that Mr. Dunlap had been claiming to 12 have accomplished a significant improvement
13 in Sunbeam's performance and prospects in 14 1997?
15 A. After I got involved, yes.
16 Q. Were you aware that Morgan
17 Stanley's presentation to other companies
18 concerning Sunbeam emphasized the success of 19 Mr. Dunlap's turn-around efforts at Sunbeam?
20 A. I didn't have any knowledge of
21 that.
22 Q. Did you ever become familiar, sir,
23 with statements made by Morgan Stanley to my
24 client concerning the success of Mr. Dunlap's
25 turn-around activities of the Sunbeam?

Page 109

1 Smith
2 A. No knowledge at all.
3 Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you
4 what we previously marked as CPH Deposition
5 Exhibit Number 71. It's a October 22, 1997
6 interoffice memorandum from the Sunbeam
7 corporation team to Morgan Stanley Worldwide
8 IBD professionals. It bears Bates stamps
9 Morgan Stanley confidential 5984 through 10 5995.
11 I would like you to take a look at 12 this, sir, and tell me whether you have ever
13 seen this document before.
14 A. I, I don't recall.
15 Q. If in fact this Morgan Stanley
16 interoffice memorandum was sent to all
17 Worldwide IBD professionals, would that have 18 included you?
19 A. I think it might have.
20 Q. IBD is a reference to Investment
21 Banking Division?
22 A. Uhm-hmm.
23 Q. You have to answer audibly.
24 A. I'm sorry, yes.
25 Q. In the ordinary course a memorandum

Page 110

1 Smith
2 directed to all IBD professionals would have
3 gone on to you as well?
4 A. That is true, as well as thousands
5 of other things, so, so I don't remember
6 seeing it.
7 Q. Let me direct your attention to the
8 third page of the document.
9 A. This one?
10 Q. The Sunbeam corporation investment
11 rationale.
12 A. Uhm-hmm.
13 Q. Read for me the four main bullet
14 points on this page. "Sunbeam represents an 15 attractive growth story in investment
16 opportunity. Sunbeam has undergone a
17 profound transformation since the arrival of 18 new management in July 1996. Tremendous 19 intrinsic value in the company. And,
20 finally, valuable opportunity to penetrate
21 and become a global market leader of branded
22 consumer devices."
23 Do you see those four bullet
24 points?
25 A. I do.

Page 111

1 Smith
2 Q. Was that consistent with your
3 understanding with the claims Sunbeam was
4 making in the first quarter of 1998
5 concerning the success of its turnaround?
6 A. Consistent with what Sunbeam was 7 representing? I think, yes. Probably 8 consistent.
9 Q. Do you know if these statements are
10 consistent with the statements that Morgan
11 Stanley was making to third parties on behalf
12 of Sunbeam?
13 MR CLARE: Objection.
14 A. I have no idea.
15 MR CLARE: No foundation. You
16 can answer.
17 Q. Do you know if the purpose of this
18 memorandum to all investment banking
19 professionals was to communicate to them
20 selling points that they should make to third
21 parties relating to Sunbeam?
22 MR CLARE: Same objection,
23 foundation, calls for speculation.
24 A. Don't know.
25 Q. Do you have any knowledge as you

Page 112

1 Smith
2 sit here today, whether statements of this
3 sort were made by Morgan Stanley to my
4 client?
5 A. No idea.
6 Q. Were any statements of this sort,
7 sir, relating to Sunbeam's financial
8 condition and prospects made to you by any
9 members of the Sunbeam investment banking --
10 excuse me, let me start over.
11 Were any statements of the sort
12 contained in CPH Exhibit 71 which I just read
13 to you, made to you by any Morgan Stanley
14 personnel?
15 MR. CLARE: You're asking
16 specifically with regard to the third page of 17 the exhibit?
18 MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes, the third
19 page.
20 A. I think that elements of the third
21 page were, were talked about by members of 22 the team during the process.
23 Q. So there were members of Morgan
24 Stanley personnel who were involved in the 25 investment banking activities for Sunbeam,

Page 113

1 Smith
2 who made statements similar to those we see
3 on the third page of this document to you?
4 A. Yes, and -- but don't forget, if 5 you look at page 3 a lot of these are 6 factual.
7 Number one market share in gas
8 grills. So if somebody tells me they're 9 number one in market share in gas grills, I
10 see it in two or three other places so that's 11 kind of a fact.
12 You can see what they have done in 13 terms of improving profitability and selling
14 some unprofitabilizations. Those are all
15 facts so, yes, a lot of this information was 16 shared by the team with people that weren't
17 as close to the company.
18 Q. Did the members of the Morgan
19 Stanley investment banking team say to you
20 that Sunbeam had accomplished a successful
21 turnaround during Mr. Dunlap's tenure?
22 A. I don't remember anybody saying
23 that specifically to me in words of that. I
24 do remember, however, conversations where we 25 look at the financials and see that margins

Page 114

1 Smith

2 had improved, profits had gone up and the

3 rest.

4 Q. Did anybody on the Morgan Stanley

5 investment banking team say to you in

6 connection with your underwriting review that

7 Mr. Dunlap had accomplished some, Mr. Dunlap

8 had accomplished a substantial improvement in

9 Sunbeam's performance?

10 A. I don't know if anybody said it

11 like that, but again any comments would have

12 come up as we looked at the numbers. Again

13 those were pretty black and white in terms of 14 what you had been able, what the numbers

15 represented that the company had done under

16 his stewardship.

17 Q. Do you recall anybody on the Morgan

18 Stanley investment banking team saying to you

19 that Mr. Dunlap had accomplished great

20 success during his tenure as the CEO of

21 Sunbeam?

22 A. Never anything like that.

23 Q. That Sunbeam represented an

24 attractive growth story?

25 A. No.

Page 115

1 Smith

2 Q. That Sunbeam represented an

3 attractive investment opportunity?

4 A. Never exactly I guess those words.

5 Q. In substance?

6 A. It was more again looking at the

7 numbers, seeing what the, what that looked

8 like and then commenting, and then commenting

9 on the, what the numbers look like over the 10 last couple of years that he had been there.

11 Q. Had anyone on the investment

12 banking team suggested to you that Mr. Dunlap

13 had successfully transformed Sunbeam?

14 A. No, I don't remember those words.

15 Q. That there was tremendous intrinsic

16 value at Sunbeam?

17 A. I don't remember those words.

18 Q. Were you aware of Mr. Dunlap's

19 prior history before becoming the CEO of

20 Sunbeam?

21 A. Just very peripheral.

22 Q. Did you have any knowledge of his

23 tenure at Scott Paper?

24 A. No, other than what I read in the 25 newspapers.

Page 116

1 Smith

2 Q. Did you have any -- what was your

3 understanding generally of Mr. Dunlap's

4 reputation in the first quarter of 1998?

5 A. Generally was that he was a, he was

6 a -- I don't know how to put it. I think his

7 public image was, it was my understanding his

8 public image was he was pretty bottoms line

9 oriented and was focused on cost-cutting and

10 paring out unprofitable ventures in the

11 company.

12 Q. Was it your understanding that Mr.

13 Dunlap's reputation was as a turn-around

14 specialist?

15 A. I guess you could use that concept,

16 that word. I think that was his general

17 persona. It is certainly now his general

18 persona.

19 Q. That is the way he presents

20 himself, correct?

21 A. Yes, in all of the public stuff.

22 Q. Did you prior to the close on the

23 acquisition of my client's interest in

24 Coleman company at the end of March 1998,

25 have any reason to question Mr. Dunlap's

Page 117

1 Smith

2 turn-around accomplishments at either Sunbeam

3 or any of the other companies he had been

4 previously employed at?

5 A. No.

6 Q. Did you make any inquiry concerning

7 Mr. Dunlap's tenure at Scott Paper?

8 A. I did not personally.

9 Q. Did you have anyone do that for

10 you?

11 A. I did not specifically ask anybody

12 to do that for me.

13 Q. Did you receive any reports

14 regarding Mr. Dunlap's tenure at Scott Paper?

15 A. Not that I recall.

16 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley ever

17 suggest to you that Mr. Dunlap's

18 accomplishments at Scott Paper were phony or

19 exaggerated?

20 A. Not that I recall.

21 Q. Let me show you, Mr. Smith, what we

22 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 68.

23 It is out of a Business Week article entitled

24 "Did CEO Dunlap Save Scott Paper Or Just

25 Pretty It Up."

Page 118

1 Smith
2 A. Is this July of '97, is that what
3 this says at the bottom?
4 Q. I think there are two dates on this
5 document, sir. The upper left-hand corner is 6 a January 15, 1996 date.
7 A. Okay.
8 Q. And then in the bottom right-hand
9 corner there is a July 16, 1997 date.
10 A. Uhm-hmm.
11 MR. CLARE: Bram, don't mark on
12 the document.
13 Q. It bears Bates number Morgan
14 Stanley 3995 through 4001. Take a moment to 15 look at this.
16 A. Okay.
17 Q. Have you ever seen this before?
18 A. I don't recall directly. Maybe.
19 Q. Do you recall seeing this in 20 connection with your review of Sunbeam prior 21 to the close of Sunbeam's acquisition of my 22 client, client's interests in Coleman
23 company?
24 A. One, I don't remember if I saw it
25 so you can't ask me to speculate when I might

Page 119

1 Smith
2 have seen it.
3 Q. Did you ask, does this refresh your
4 recollection whether you asked any members of 5 the Morgan Stanley due diligence team to
6 investigate reports relating to Mr. Dunlap's
7 tenure at Scott Paper?
8 A. I did not ask anybody to do that.
9 Q. Do you recall being aware that
10 there were questions being raised publicly
11 relating to Mr. Dunlap's claimed
12 accomplishments at Scott Paper?
13 A. I guess tangentially. I knew he
14 was a controversial figure.
15 Q. At the time the transactions closed
16 at the end of March 1998 did you have any 17 personal reason to question on the 18 turn-around claims that Mr. Dunlap had made
19 at Sunbeam?
20 A. Did I personally have any, no.
21 Q. Do you have any reason to question
22 his reputation as a turn-around specialist?
23 A. No.
24 Q. I'm sorry if I asked this
25 previously, but did you have any personal

Page 120

1 Smith
2 contact with Mr. Dunlap in connection with
3 your Sunbeam activities?
4 A. I think you asked that before. I'm
5 trying to remember the first time I met him,
6 it might have been at a board meeting in New
7 York.
8 Q. Was that the board meeting at which 9 the Sunbeam board voted to approve the 10 acquisition of my client's interests in
11 Coleman company?
12 A. Yes, I believe it was.
13 Q. Other than at that meeting, did you
14 have any personal involvement with Mr.
15 Dunlap?
16 A. Did you say prior?
17 Q. Other than at that meeting, prior 18 to or after.
19 A. Other than, yes. Probably on the 20 phone and maybe some face to face, certainly 21 in getting, putting together the presentation
22 for the bank investors' meeting.
23 Q. Prior to March 30 when the
24 acquisition of my client's interests in
25 Coleman company closed, had you had any

Page 121

1 Smith
2 personal contact with Mr. Dunlap other than
3 the board meeting in February?
4 A. I don't recall.
5 Q. Is it the case that most of your
6 contact with Mr. Dunlap postdated the 7 acquisition of my client's interests in the
8 Coleman company?
9 A. Yes, I think that is true.
10 Q. And that would have meant that it
11 also postdated the closing on the senior loan
12 facility, correct?
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. Did you speak at the February 1998
15 Sunbeam board meeting?
16 A. I did not. To the best of my
17 knowledge, to the best of my memory I don't 18 think I made a presentation. I might have 19 responded to questions at the board meeting.
20 Q. What was the purpose for your
21 attending the meeting?
22 A. I think to be there for questions
23 regarding the doability of the financing.
24 Q. Who asked you to attend?
25 A. Mr. Strong.

Page 122

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you recall whether you were
3 asked any questions relating to the doability
4 of the financing?
5 A. I think I was, but I can't remember
6 whether it was before or after the meeting.
7 Probably both.
8 Q. When you say before, after the 9 meeting, you mean before --
10 A. I misspoke. During the meeting and 11 then after the meeting.
12 Q. Are you referring to further
13 discussions that occurred that day?
14 A. That day, immediately after the 15 meeting when the meeting broke.
16 Q. Who do you recall asking questions
17 relating to the doability of the financing,
18 whether at the meeting itself or shortly
19 after?
20 A. The doability I think was maybe
21 from one of the board members or from Al
22 himself, and was a very short response to 23 that which was an affirmative.
24 And then after the meeting it
25 wasn't so much about the doability, it was

Page 123

1 Smith
2 more tactical with Kersh.
3 Q. So do you recall having a more
4 in-depth conversation with Mr. Kersh the same
5 day as the Sunbeam board meeting relating to 6 financing strategy?
7 A. Yes, and it was primarily related
8 to financing the syndication of this loan.
9 Q. Who else was present for that
10 discussion?
11 A. Might have been, I think it was 12 just Bill, Bill and myself and Kersh.
13 Q. Bill Strong?
14 A. Bill Strong.
15 Q. Where did that discussion take
16 place?
17 A. I think it happened right there in 18 the boardroom after it broke.
19 Q. Was that board meeting at Morgan
20 Stanley's office?
21 A. I believe it was right here in New
22 York.
23 Q. Did Mr. Kersh initiate the
24 conversation?
25 A. Mr. Strong and I might have

Page 124

1 Smith
2 initiated the conversation as I remember.
3 Q. And what was the purpose for
4 talking to Mr. Kersh on that subject?
5 A. The purpose was to outline or 6 briefly outline our thoughts in terms of who 7 would be suitable partners in the 8 underwriting of this, of this loan. And we 9 specifically mentioned Bank of America and 10 First Union.
11 Q. What was Mr. Kersh's reaction?
12 A. I guess noncommittal but
13 appreciative of the input, and I don't think
14 he really cared or thought too much about it.
15 Q. Now, what would -- at that point in 16 time, in February of 1998, what was Morgan
17 Stanley's contemplation with respect to the 18 potential role of Bank of America and First 19 Union concerning the senior loan?
20 A. As partners.
21 Q. What do you mean?
22 A. Co-underwriters.
23 Q. What would that involve?
24 A. That would involve the three of us
25 who would commit to lend the company the

Page 125

1 Smith
2 required amount of bank debt it needed to 3 accomplish these acquisitions. It meant that 4 they would participate alongside us on all of 5 the due diligence, that we could lever all of 6 them because they had been existing more --
7 not more, but existing lenders and I think
8 long-term relations.
9 So there was some institutional
10 knowledge that those institutions had about a
11 company that we could lever off of in terms
12 of in our own due diligence as well as the 13 marketing of the transaction.
14 Q. Was it contemplated that at least
15 initially those three institutions, Morgan
16 Stanley, Bank of America and First Union,
17 would provide the entire senior financing?
18 A. When you say "was it contemplated," 19 it was certainly our hope, our thought to 20 have both of them there. And the idea was 21 that we would approach both and if one said
22 no, that was still okay.
23 Q. And the financing would then be
24 provided entirely?
25 A. By ourselves and one of the others.

Page 126

1 Smith
2 Q. Is it typical that in a loan that
3 is intended to be syndicated to a larger
4 group of banks -- to a large group of banks,
5 that in the first instance the financing will 6 be entirely provided by a smaller number, in 7 this case one or two, possibly three banks,
8 or is the syndication usually in place before
9 the funding occurs?
10 A. Well, you have asked a few
11 questions. What would normally happen is 12 that you would have a group of two, maybe
13 three banks underwrite or commit to the 14 entire loan facility. It is easier for the 15 company because they don't have to negotiate
16 with so many people.
17 And then those institutions, the 18 underwriters would then normally syndicate
19 for maybe a year prior to the close of the 20 loan and then a close of the transaction.
21 Q. Is it more typically the place that 22 the syndication occurs before the close?
23 A. Yes, it is.
24 Q. Is it fair to say that the 25 situation that you were contemplating with

Page 127

1 Smith
2 respect to Sunbeam, where Morgan Stanley
3 either by itself or perhaps with one or two 4 other banks would provide all of the 5 financing, was unusual?
6 A. I don't know about unusual, but it
7 is not the majority of the cases in the 8 United States.
9 Q. Why is it more typical that the 10 syndication takes place before the funding?
11 A. Because normally you have more time
12 and it's just really driven by the time that 13 was agreed to in the -- or the details or the 14 requirements of the deal.
15 Q. Was it the case here that there
16 wasn't sufficient time to put a syndication
17 in place before the funding was needed?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. Did you suggest to Mr. Strong or to 20 anyone else that it would be preferable for 21 the syndication to be put in place before the 22 funding was required?
23 A. I don't know if I suggested. We
24 certainly talked about it because it was a
25 certain risk profile to close and then

Page 128

1 Smith
2 syndicate than the flip, than the reverse.
3 But the terms of the mergers
4 required that they needed the money by that
5 certain date, not allowing us to syndicate.
6 Q. Do you know why the transactions
7 themselves were scheduled, were structured
8 that way?
9 A. I do not.
10 Q. Did you ask anyone why the need to 11 rush to close the acquisitions before the 12 funding could be obtained through the
13 syndication?
14 MR. CLARE: I object to the form
15 of the question.
16 A. I don't recall. I recall talking
17 about it, but I don't remember who or I can't 18 remember what the, you know, the final answer
19 was other than that was the terms of the 20 deal.
21 Q. Do you remember talking to -- Mr.
22 Strong in this case was the relationship
23 person at Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam,
24 correct?
25 A. I believe so.

Page 129

1 Smith
2 Q. And you indicated earlier that in
3 terms of Morgan Stanley's internal processes,
4 he was viewed as the responsible person with 5 respect to significant aspects of the 6 financing activity, correct?
7 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
8 the question. I think that misstates his
9 prior testimony. You can answer.
10 A. Help me out, repeat that thing for 11 me.
12 Q. Let me rephrase it.
13 Mr. Strong was viewed -- let me ask
14 a more general question.
15 From your perspective what was Mr.
16 Strong's responsibility for the various
17 aspects of Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam?
18 A. He was the person responsible at 19 the firm for the, for the Sunbeam
20 relationship and -- full stop. So that 21 included M&A or other products, then he was 22 responsible to show those to the company.
23 Q. With respect to Morgan Stanley's
24 internal work, what were Mr. Strong's
25 responsibilities relating to Sunbeam?

Page 130

1 Smith
2 A. His internal work, as I think we
3 talked before, is that the banker, the
4 relationship manager in this case, Mr. Strong
5 has to be an advocate internally and endorse
6 a transaction for his client, and in that
7 role he did that on the senior loan.
8 Q. And he endorsed in this case this
9 plan to have Morgan Stanley loan, if
10 necessary, the entire amount of the senior 11 financing necessary to complete the 12 acquisition of my client, Coleman?
13 A. I don't know if that is exactly
14 right. I think he advocated Morgan Stanley
15 taking a leadership role, maybe even a
16 majority role. I don't remember him ever
17 suggesting that we do the whole, do the whole
18 thing.
19 Q. Did you approach Mr. Strong and 20 inquire whether it would be possible to 21 adjust the schedule for the closing of the 22 acquisitions to permit you the time necessary
23 to complete a syndication of the senior
24 financing before funding was required?
25 A. I remember having conversations

Page 131.

1 Smith
2 with the team to include Mr. Strong about the 3 term, of why the need for the fast close.
4 I frankly don't remember what was
5 driving it, whether it was a tax or 6 regulatory or something else. But it was 7 deemed by the group, that's the team, that it
8 was not possible to extend, delay the close
9 to allow for the syndication of the loan.
10 Q. Was it your understanding that 11 Sunbeam wanted the transaction to close as 12 quickly as scheduled?
13 A. I wasn't that close to it, do not
14 know.
15 Q. But your understanding was someone
16 wanted these transactions to close very
17 quickly, correct?
18 MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
19 A. Don't know.
20 Q. In your conversations with Mr.
21 Dunlap, did you ever learn from Mr. Dunlap
22 that it was Mr. Dunlap who wanted the 23 acquisition of Coleman company to close
24 before the first quarter of 1998 was 25 completed?

Page 132

1 Smith
2 A. No.
3 Q. Did you ever learn from your
4 conversations with Mr. Kersh, that it was Mr.
5 Kersh and Mr. Dunlap who wanted the 6 transaction involving the acquisition of my
7 client's interests in Coleman to close before
8 the first quarter of 1998?
9 A. No.
10 Q. In the period leading up to the
11 closing of the acquisition of my client's
12 interests in Coleman company, Mr. Smith, did
13 you have any communications on any subject
14 with Coleman company management?
15 A. I don't believe so.
16 Q. Did you have any communications
17 with my client, Coleman (Parent), or its 18 representatives?
19 A. I don't believe so.
20 Q. Credit Suisse First Boston was the 21 investment banking firm for my client.
22 Did you have any communications
23 with CS First Boston?
24 A. I do not remember any 25 conversations.

Page 133

1 Smith
2 Q. My client is owned by McAndrews &
3 Forbes, are you aware of that?
4 A. Yes.
5 Q. Did you have any communications
6 with any representatives of McAndrews &
7 Forbes prior to the close of Sunbeam's
8 acquisition of my client's interests in
9 Coleman company?
10 A. I don't believe so.
11 Q. Did you have any conversations with 12 Ronald Perelman?
13 A. No.
14 Q. With Howard Gittis?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Jim Maher?
17 A. No.
18 Q. William Nesbitt?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Do you know Jim Maher?
21 A. I don't think so.
22 Q. Have you ever spoken directly with 23 Mr. Perelman on any subject?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. What was the nature of that?

Page 134

1 Smith
2 A. Gee, I can't remember all of them
3 for various transactions or various meetings.
4 Q. Have you ever been involved in
5 providing financing to any McAndrews & Forbes
6 related entities?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Have you ever sought the business
9 of McAndrews & Forbes?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Unsuccessfully I take it?
12 A. Unsuccessfully.
13 Q. For whom were you working on those 14 occasions?
15 A. Morgan Stanley and Bear Stearns.
16 Q. On what occasions while you were at 17 Morgan Stanley did you seek to obtain
18 business from McAndrews & Forbes?
19 A. I don't recall them now, but -- I
20 don't remember the specifics.
21 Q. Were you working with Morgan
22 Stanley investment bankers in connection with 23 that activity?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Do you remember who that was?

Page 135

1 Smith
2 A. The one, the name was -- what was
3 his name? I'm sorry, Bill Reid.
4 Q. Do you remember if that was before
5 the Sunbeam-related one?
6 A. I think it was.
7 Q. Since going to work at Bear Stearns
8 you have tried to get business from McAndrews
9 & Forbes?
10 A. Yes, I have.
11 Q. What did that relate to?
12 A. The most recent one was a
13 refinancing for PanaVision, a company that 14 McAndrews & Forbes owns.
15 Q. When was that?
16 A. That was last summer and last fall.
17 Q. Any other occasions?
18 A. We're currently working on one now,
19 trying to secure the business.
20 Q. Are you working with Bear Stearns
21 investment bankers in connection with that?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. Who is that?
24 A. I'm sorry?
25 Q. Who is that person?

Page 136

1 Smith
2 A. Larry Alletto.
3 Q. How does he spell his last name?
4 A. A-L-L-E-T-T-O.
5 Q. Are there any other occasions that
6 you can recall speaking to Mr. Perelman
7 directly?
8 A. Just to be clear, did not speak to 9 Mr. Perelman regarding the PanaVision and not 10 the current transaction. But no, don't 11 remember speaking to him.
12 Q. Now, you remained -- we'll get into 13 this in some more detail, but I want to cover
14 this point here.
15 After the senior loan closed in
16 March of 1998, you had continuing involvement
17 with respect to Morgan Stanley Senior
18 Funding's loan to Sunbeam, correct?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Did you have any communications
21 with anyone from Coleman (Parent) or
22 McAndrews & Forbes in connection with that 23 activity?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Who was that?

Page 137

1 Smith
2 A. Who at McAndrews & Forbes, Howard
3 Gittis. Who is the other guy? Irwin
4 somebody or other. I guess those would be
5 the major ones.
6 Q. I'm sorry, who was the third
7 person?
8 A. His first name was Irwin. I can't
9 remember his last name.
10 Q. We'll get into that in more detail.
11 Were you aware that in late 1997
12 Mr. Dunlap had had a meeting with Mr.
13 Perelman in Florida to discuss Sunbeam's
14 acquisition of Coleman, the possibility of 15 that?
16 A. No.
17 Q. No one has ever reported to you on 18 that meeting?
19 A. Oh, I'm sorry, I misunderstood your
20 question. I didn't know that they had met
21 during a, when we were doing the financing,
22 but reviewing for this case for today found
23 that out.
24 Q. Other than what you learned in 25 preparing for your deposition, do you have

Page 138

1 Smith
2 any knowledge concerning Mr. Perelman's
3 meeting with Mr. Dunlap?
4 A. No.
5 Q. Who at Morgan Stanley, sir, was
6 responsible for making sure that all
7 necessary due diligence was performed?
8 A. I think if you're going to look at 9 it organizationally, it was probably John
10 Tyree. And then in addition to his efforts
11 we basically had a, a person from our group,
12 from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, in this 13 case Mike Hart, assisted by Burchill and 14 Simon to assist in that effort and do the due 15 diligence from our vantage point, from the 16 financing point.
17 Q. What individuals performed the due
18 diligence in connection with this MSSF?
19 A. Those are the three I just 20 mentioned, Mike Hart, Tom Burchill and Simon
21 Rankin.
22 And I also want to add that the 23 process also included a representative from 24 the credit department.
25 Q. What was the function of the credit

Page 139

1 Smith
2 department with respect to the senior loan?
3 A. They were a, viewing it in a more
4 traditional credit role since our policy
5 stated internally and externally was that we
6 would hold a piece, sometimes a substantial
7 piece of every loan that we made.
8 And it was the credit department's 9 function, role, not only to pass on the 10 underwriting, I need to okay that, but also 11 the long-term view of being a long-term
12 lender to these opportunities such as
13 Sunbeam.
14 So it would not be unusual, I can't 15 remember the name, not be unusual to have 16 them on phone calls, show up at meetings, et 17 cetera, to participate in the due diligence.
18 Q. What portion of the senior loan did
19 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding intend to keep?
20 A. That's -- I'll have to think about
21 that for a second. We committed to 40
22 percent of the transaction and I think we 23 thought that it would probably end up being
24 about 50 to $60 million.
25 Q. So at the end of the day after the

Page 140

1 Smith
2 loan was fully syndicated, you anticipated
3 that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding would hold
4 about 50 or $60 million?
5 A. That is my recollection, at least
6 when the syndication stopped it was
7 completed.
8 Q. And how quickly was it contemplated
9 that would occur?
10 A. Normally from the time you start
11 until you are able to syndicate takes about 12 six to eight weeks.
13 Q. The transactions here closed at the 14 end of March. In terms of the schedule that 15 you envisioned at the time the loan was 16 closed, when did you expect the senior, that 17 the syndication of the senior loan to be
18 completed?
19 A. By the end of May.
20 Q. And at that point Morgan Stanley
21 would be holding about 50 or $60 million of 22 the debt?
23 A. If things went as anticipated.
24 Could be luckier, could be a little less
25 lucky.

Page 141

1 Smith
2 Q. Luckier in this context means what,
3 having less?
4 A. Yeah.
5 Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any
6 obligation to Sunbeam or anybody else to hold
7 any particular amount of the financing?
8 A. No, other than our stated practice
9 which we communicated to Sunbeam and 10 communicated to other lenders, as well as 11 Bank of America and First Union, that we 12 would end up holding some.
13 Q. But there was no commitment as to 14 the amount?
15 A. No.
16 Q. In terms of the due diligence that 17 Morgan, was done from Morgan Stanley Senior
18 Funding, I don't understand how this worked.
19 The individuals involved were Mr.
20 Hart and Mr. Burchill and Mr. Simon, correct?
21 A. Simon Rankin.
22 Q. Simon Rankin?
23 A. Assisted by a representative of the 24 credit department.
25 Q. There were other people at Morgan

Page 142

1 Smith
2 Stanley involved in doing due diligence,
3 correct?
4 A. Yes.
5 Q. Miss Porat's group, for example?
6 A. Right.
7 Q. Mr. Tyree?
8 A. Uhm-hmm.
9 Q. Was it the responsibility of Mr.
10 Hart, Mr. Burchill and Mr. Rankin to 11 independently review all of the due diligence
12 that was being done on all aspects of Morgan
13 Stanley's due diligence, or did it work in a
14 different way?
15 A. Well, since I wasn't them it's 16 tough to say what exactly they did. They 17 would -- but what would normally happen is 18 they do some of their own and then work with 19 and look at the information that other parts
20 of the firm had gotten.
21 Q. Was it their responsibility to 22 familiarize themselves with all of the due
23 diligence that was being done by other parts
24 of the firm?
25 A. It was I guess to familiarize and

Page 143

1 Smith
2 take advantage of the other due diligence
3 done on other parts of the firm.
4 Q. That is what you expected of them?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. To whom did Mr. Hart, Mr. Burchill
7 and Mr. Rankin report relating to their due
8 diligence work?
9 A. Well, they worked for me. They,
10 however, were, in cases like this they
11 basically report and stand behind their work
12 to the Credit Committee, which is the final
13 grantor, if you will, of credit authority.
14 Q. Were you giving them direction with 15 respect to the due diligence activity that 16 they were engaged in?
17 A. I don't know about direction. Mike
18 was a very experienced transactor so we would 19 consult, respond to questions from him. We 20 would talk about specific issues that might 21 come up.
22 Q. Did you give him any specific
23 direction to investigate any particular
24 aspect of Sunbeam?
25 A. Not that I recall.

Page 144

1 Smith
2 Q. Did you give any specific direction
3 to any Morgan Stanley personnel to
4 investigate any particular aspect of Sunbeam?
5 A. Not that I recall.
6 Q. The transactions were scheduled to 7 close before the end of the first quarter of 8 1998, correct, sir?
9 A. I believe so.
10 Q. Did you believe it was an important
11 part of the financing due diligence to obtain
12 information regarding Sunbeam's performance
13 in the first quarter of 1998?
14 A. I think that was one element of the 15 overall due diligence.
16 Q. To find out how Sunbeam was doing
17 so far in the first quarter of '98, correct?
18 A. Sure, to get an update on their
19 performance.
20 Q. Did you direct anybody to obtain
21 information concerning Sunbeam's first
22 quarter 1998 performance?
23 A. Not that I recall.
24 Q. Do you recall what information you
25 received relating to Sunbeam's first quarter

Page 145

1 Smith
2 1998 performance, if anything?
3 A. I think we had some phone calls,
4 maybe even some documents regarding how they
5 were doing versus the, versus plan and versus
6 last year.
7 Q. When you went to Florida for the
8 meeting at the beginning of March in 1998,
9 did you personally receive any information
10 from Sunbeam at that point relating to how 11 they had done so far in the first quarter?
12 A. I don't believe so.
13 Q. Did you ask any questions on that
14 subject while you were in Florida?
15 A. In Florida it was a different type
16 of due diligence. It was more specific on 17 the appliance business. So we were looking 18 at more granular, different product lines and 19 in the groups they had it then versus how 20 they were doing versus the first two months
21 in the year.
22 Q. So you don't recall asking while
23 you were present in Florida how have you guys
24 done so far in January or February?
25 A. No.

37 (Pages 142 to 145)

Page 146

1 Smith
2 Q. You don't recall anybody from
3 Sunbeam offering any information on that?
4 A. No
5 Q. When do you recall first receiving
6 information relating to how Sunbeam was doing
7 in the first quarter of 1998?
8 A. I think it was the last half of,
9 the last half of March.
10 Q. When you wrote the highly confident
11 letter to Sunbeam on March 5 did you have any 12 information at all about how Sunbeam had been 13 doing in the first two months of 1998?
14 A. To the best of my recollection, no.
15 Q. Did that concern you?
16 A. I'm sorry, what?
17 Q. Were you concerned when you issued
18 the highly confident letter on March 5, that 19 you personally didn't have any information on 20 how Sunbeam had done in January or February
21 of 1998?
22 A. No, because again you go back to
23 that letter, there was still a lot of due
24 diligence to do.
25 We would have been -- we would

Page 147

1 Smith
2 have -- that would have come up in the
3 general course on how they were, on how they
4 were doing.
5 Q. How high on your list of pieces of 6 information to get would have been obtaining
7 a report from Sunbeam on how they were doing
8 in the first two months of 1998?
9 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
10 the question.
11 A. I don't know how you would say
12 high. It is just one of the bits of 13 information that go into coming up with the 14 ultimate credit decision, so it's important.
15 Is it more important than something else,
16 less important than something else, it just
17 goes into the mix.
18 Q. Well, did you think in light of 19 Sunbeam's claims that it had substantially
20 improved its performance in 1997, that it was 21 especially important for you in connection
22 with your review of the senior loan to obtain
23 good information about how Sunbeam was doing
24 in the first months of 1998?
25 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

Page 148

1 Smith
2 A. Again I think it was part of the 3 overall view, the overall information we
4 needed to come up with a credit decision on
5 how the company was performing, whether it
6 was a good credit.
7 So to isolate something like that
8 in and of itself as being the talisman of 9 something, that is the go or no-go decision,
10 it is kind of tough to do that out of
11 context.
12 Q. You wouldn't say it was an 13 especially important piece of information to 14 know?
15 A. I didn't say that. I said it was 16 many bits of information that go into making
17 the ultimate credit decision on whether 18 you're comfortable and willing to go ahead
19 with the underwriting.
20 Q. Was it an important bit or was it
21 an important piece of information?
22 A. I'm not a lawyer, so maybe I would
23 put it in between that. So I would say it is 24 important, I would leave it at that.
25 Q. Would you say that knowing how

Page 149

1 Smith
2 Sunbeam had done in the first weeks of 1998
3 was an essential thing for Morgan Stanley to 4 know before it closed on the senior loan?
5 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
6 the question.
7 A. Like I think I said before, it was 8 an important, you know, consideration to, in 9 terms of making the overall judgment.
10 Q. Would you say you wouldn't agree to 11 close on a loan unless you had that
12 information?
13 A. I don't know if I would say that.
14 Q. Do you know that Morgan Stanley had 15 requested a comfort letter from Sunbeam's
16 auditors?
17 A. Yes, I did.
18 Q. When did you know that?
19 A. I think I knew it back then.
20 Q. What's the purpose for a comfort
21 letter?
22 A. Well, I didn't ask for it and I'm
23 not on the security side, so...
24 Q. What's your understanding?
25 A. I think it's part of the closing

Page 150

1 Smith
2 process for, involving securities.
3 Q. Do you know that one of the things
4 that the auditors do in connection with the 5 comfort letter is to report on the company's
6 most recent financial results for periods
7 that are not yet complete?
8 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
9 A. No.
10 MR. CLARE: If we're getting to a
11 transition point, maybe we should break for 12 lunch.
13 MR. MARKOWSKI: We can do that if 14 you would like.
15 MR. CLARE: Okay.
16 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
17 12:35, we're going off the record.

2 AFTERNOON SESSION
3 (Time noted: 1:18 p.m.)
4 R. BRAM SMITH, resumed and
5 testified as follows:
6 THE VIDEOGRAHER: The time is
7 1:18, we're back on the record.
8 EXAMINATION BY (Cont'd.)
9 MR. MARKOWSKI:
10 Q. Mr. Smith, when we broke I had
11 asked you whether you were aware that Morgan
12 Stanley had requested a comfort letter from 13 Sunbeam's outside auditor, Arthur Andersen.
14 Let me show you a copy of what we
15 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 17.
16 It's a letter to Morgan Stanley from Arthur
17 Andersen dated March 19, 1998.
18 A. Uhm-hmm.
19 Q. Take a moment to look at this
20 letter, and my first question to you is going
21 to be whether you have ever seen it before.
22 A. Okay.
23 Q. Have you seen this letter before,
24 sir?
25 A. Yup.

Page 152

1 Smith
2 Q. When did you first see it?
3 A. I don't remember when. I do know I
4 saw it yesterday and I don't know whether I
5 saw all of this before or not.
6 Q. Could you take your hand down?
7 A. Oh, sorry.
8 Q. You're not certain as you sit here
9 today, whether you saw this letter back in
10 March of 1998?
11 A. I don't know if I saw the whole
12 thing in March of 1998, yup.
13 Q. Is it possible that you saw
14 portions of this or information drawn from it
15 in March of 1998?
16 A. It might have been.
17 Q. There has been testimony that Mr.
18 Tyree received the signed copy of this letter
19 from Arthur Andersen.
20 Did Mr. Tyree report to you on the 21 substance of the information contained in 22 this March 19 letter?
23 A. Not that I remember.
24 Q. Do you know if anyone working for 25 you received a copy of Arthur Andersen's

Page 153

1 Smith
2 March 19, 1998 comfort letter?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Do you believe it to be the case
5 that the individuals working for you did not
6 receive a copy of the March 19 comfort
7 letter?
8 A. Don't know.
9 Q. Do you know if the people working
10 for you, Mr. Hart and others received a 11 briefing from Mr. Tyree concerning the 12 substance of the March 19 comfort letter?
13 A. Don't know.
14 Q. Did you receive a report from Mr.
15 Hart or the other individuals conducting due
16 diligence for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
17 concerning the substance of the March 19
18 comfort letter?
19 A. Did not receive a report.
20 Q. Let me draw your attention to 21 paragraph 6C.
22 A. 6E?
23 Q. 6C. It is at the page 5 of the 24 letter. Would you read that to yourself,
25 please.

39 (Pages 150 to 153)

Page 154

1 Smith
2 Have you done it?
3 A. I'm just finishing up here. Okay.
4 Q. This portion of the March 19
5 comfort letter advises that Sunbeam's sales
6 for the first two months of 1998 are 7 substantially below Sunbeam's sales for the 8 first two months of 1997, correct?
9 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
10 A. Well, they list the two numbers for 11 the two different periods, yes.
12 Q. Do you agree with me that the 13 substance of this paragraph advises that
14 Sunbeam sales for the first two months of '98
15 are substantially below Sunbeam sales for the 16 first two months of 1997, or is that 17 something about which you disagree?
18 A. It shows me the two numbers, 72
19 versus 143, so...
20 Q. It advises that the sales for the 21 first two months of 1998 are about $72
22 million, correct?
23 A. Correct.
24 Q. And the sales for the first two
25 months of 1997 were about 143-1/2 million,

Page 155

1 Smith
2 correct?
3 A. Uhm-hmm.
4 Q. That's about, the sales for the 5 first two months of 1998 are about half of 6 what they had been in the first two months of
7 1997, correct?
8 A. Yup.
9 Q. Would you agree with me that is a
10 substantial decline in sales for a two-month
11 period?
12 A. A substantial difference in sales,
13 yup.
14 Q. It's a substantial negative
15 variance, correct, substantial decline?
16 A. Decline, uhm-hmm.
17 Q. You agree with me that the decline
18 is substantial, or are you disagreeing?
19 A. I guess I agree.
20 Q. Were you aware that Wall Street was 21 expecting Sunbeam to accomplish sales in the 22 first quarter of 1998 that were substantially
23 greater than the sales that Sunbeam had 24 accomplished in the first quarter of 1997?
25 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Page 156

1 Smith
2 Q. As of mid-March 1998?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Did anyone report to you, sir, the
5 information that we've just read in paragraph
6 6C of the Andersen comfort letter, that
7 Sunbeam sales for the first two months of
8 1998 were about half of what they had been in
9 the first two months of 1997?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. When did you first receive that 12 report?
13 A. Don't remember.
14 Q. Was it before the close of the 15 transaction by which Sunbeam acquired my 16 client's interest in Coleman company?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. From whom did you receive a report
19 that Sunbeam sales in the first two months of 20 1998 were about half of what they had been in
21 the first two months of 1997?
22 A. I don't know if I would use the
23 word "report," but through the process with 24 the team, both the leveraged finance team and 25 others, that this issue came up.

Page 157

1 Smith
2 Q. Well, who told you?
3 A. It's a big group so it is unclear
4 to me, I can't remember who told me, but
5 talked about it to several people.
6 Q. Do you recall that you first
7 learned this information at a group meeting?
8 A. I can't recall how I or when I
9 first learned it.
10 Q. So you may have learned it at a
11 group meeting or it may have been given to 12 you individually in some way?
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. Do you recall if it was given, this 15 information was given to you in writing?
16 A. The -- no, I don't.
17 Q. But you do recall talking about it
18 with others within Morgan Stanley before the 19 closing of Sunbeam's acquisition of my 20 client's interests in Coleman?
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. With whom within Morgan Stanley do
23 you recall discussing the fact that Sunbeam
24 sales in the first two months of the quarter
25 were about half of what they had been in the

Page 158

1 Smith
2 first two months of '97?
3 A. Mike Hart for sure and maybe,
4 probably others, but I don't recollect who
5 those were.
6 Q. Do you recall discussing it with
7 Miss Porat?
8 A. No.
9 Q. Do you believe you did not discuss
10 this information with Miss Porat?
11 A. I believe I did not.
12 Q. Did you discuss it with Mr. Strong?
13 A. I believe I might have.
14 Q. Do you believe that Mr. Strong is 15 the person who first advised you of this
16 information?
17 A. No recollection.
18 Q. Do you believe it was Mr. Hart?
19 A. Don't recall.
20 Q. What do you recall discussing, what
21 do you recall about your discussions with Mr.
22 Hart concerning the decline in Sunbeam's
23 sales for the first two months of 1998?
24 A. What I recall is the discussing
25 what happened and the impact of this on their

Page 159

1 Smith
2 projections for 1998.
3 Q. When did these discussions take
4 place?
5 A. After we got notice that their
6 sales were $72 million for the first two
7 months.
8 Q. And that is before the closing of 9 the transactions, correct?
10 A. Before the closing of the
11 transaction.
12 Q. Was it your belief you discussed
13 this with Mr. Hart privately, or was it with 14 a larger group?
15 A. Probably both.
16 Q. How many times do you recall
17 discussing it with Mr. Hart?
18 A. Gee, it's tough. I guess more than 19 several.
20 Q. Do you recall over what period of 21 time you had these conversations, what length
22 of period of time?
23 A. Probably days, but that's a hazy
24 guess.
25 Q. You indicated that you probably

Page 160

1 Smith
2 discussed this with Mr. Hart both privately
3 and with a larger group.
4 Who do you believe was involved in
5 larger group discussions on this topic where 6 both you and Mr. Hart participated?
7 A. Mr. Strong, maybe Mr.
8 Burchill/Rankin, whoever was there at the 9 time, probably somebody from credit, and then
10 a -- I'm sure I kept my bosses involved too.
11 Q. Your bosses would be who during 12 this time period?
13 A. Newhouse, Sippelle and Rankowitz.
14 Q. I'm sorry, I missed the second
15 name.
16 A. Mr. Sippelle.
17 Q. What is Mr. Sippelle's first name?
18 A. Dwight.
19 Q. And the third person?
20 A. Michael Rankowitz.
21 Q. Those are individuals to whom you
22 reported during this time period?
23 A. Uhm-hmm. Yes.
24 Q. Tell me everything you can recall
25 about your conversations on the subject of

Page 161

1 Smith
2 the decline of Sunbeam sales in the first two
3 months of 1998?
4 A. I think the focus of the discussion
5 was really what had happened, what was going 6 to happen for the first quarter, and the 7 implications of that for the full year. When 8 I say that, achieving their projections for 9 the, for 1998.
10 Q. What do you recall being said on 11 each of those topics?
12 A. A lot of questions and then -- a
13 lot of questions and it was basically with 14 members of the team, that would be the big 15 Morgan Stanley team, focus on trying to find
16 these answers.
17 Q. You participated in meetings where 18 people raised questions, correct?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. And the questions are what's
21 happened so far in the first quarter that 22 caused this, right?
23 A. Yup.
24 Q. What's the full quarter going to 25 look like?

41 (Pages 158 to 161)

Page 162

1 Smith
2 A. Uhm-hmm.
3 Q. And what are the implications of 4 this for 1998, correct?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. Why were you interested in those
7 things?
8 A. Just as part of our continuing due
9 diligence to make sure we understood what
10 happened.
11 Q. Do you recall getting answers to 12 the questions?
13 A. I recall getting, yes, some answers
14 to the questions from the team.
15 Q. Who provided answers?
16 A. I think it was probably Mr. Hart,
17 who was the -- where I got most of my
18 information. And I don't know how, where did
19 he get it. And he didn't get his directly, I
20 think he was relating from the bigger Morgan
21 Stanley team.
22 Q. Do you recall getting information
23 from anybody other than Mr. Hart concerning
24 answers to these questions?
25 A. No.

Page 163

1 Smith
2 Q. What do you recall Mr. Hart
3 reporting to you?
4 A. Let me go back here. I think
5 probably talked to Strong as well, and in 6 terms of what, what had happened here is 7 that, is that the understanding was that they 8 had some anticipated revenues that were going
9 to come in in the third quarter -- excuse me,
10 the third month of the quarter, the third
11 month of the quarter, and that they would 12 make up a lot of this shortfall then.
13 Q. That's what Mr. Strong reported to
14 you?
15 A. I think that was a combination. We 16 were doing a lot of this in groups of people.
17 Change in composition. So it is very 18 difficult to recall for you exactly who was 19 at each and every one of these meetings.
20 Q. But your best recollection as you
21 sit here is that Mr. Strong said the 22 substance of this to you?
23 A. No. My recollection is that was 24 kind -- that was bits of information that 25 came out of the Morgan Stanley due diligence

Page 164

1 Smith
2 effort that would involve those two
3 individuals at different times and different
4 degrees of involvement as well as others.
5 Q. Did you attempt to speak directly
6 with Sunbeam yourself?
7 A. I did not.
8 Q. Did you direct Mr. Hart to do that?
9 A. I did not.
10 Q. Do you know if Mr. Hart had any
11 direct communications with Sunbeam?
12 A. I do not know.
13 Q. On this topic I'm focusing on?
14 A. I do not know.
15 Q. What do you recall Mr. Hart telling 16 you relating to what had happened in the 17 first two months of the quarter, what the 18 expectations were for the rest of the quarter
19 and what the implications were for '98?
20 A. It's tough for me to remember
21 specifically what his contribution was to 22 that. I think it's more generic, that the 23 Morgan Stanley due diligence team came up
24 with the answers that I described before,
25 that the company was highly confident that

Page 165

1 Smith
2 they were going to make their -- were going
3 to achieve results that were I guess ahead of 4 last year, and that they felt that the rest
5 of the year would come on pretty close to 6 where the projections that they had provided
7 us were going to be.
8 Q. Those are the conclusions that had
9 being provided to you, correct?
10 A. Those were the conclusions
11 provided, yes, by the company to the Morgan
12 Stanley team.
13 Q. Do you know what factual foundation
14 Morgan Stanley had for any of those 15 propositions?
16 A. I think we had gotten some 17 additional information from them, the 18 company, showing how the projected sales for 19 the rest of the quarter.
20 Q. Did you see that information
21 yourself?
22 A. I think so.
23 Q. I thought you had indicated
24 previously that you understood that Miss
25 Porat was assigned to conduct an inquiry

Page 166

1 Smith
2 relating to some of those issues.
3 Did I misunderstand you?
4 A. Did I say that? I think that if 5 she was, she would have been part of the 6 overall Morgan Stanley team. Again I can't
7 overemphasize that it's a -- it was a huge
8 commitment of resources by the part of the 9 firm. At any given time there were 10 or 20
10 people working on it at different levels of 11 seniority.
12 Certainly Ruth was one of the more
13 senior people involved and so at various 14 times she might be in the lead, and sometimes 15 it's Mr. Strong or others.
16 Q. With respect to the question what 17 had happened in the first two months of the 18 quarter, were you told by anyone in the 19 Morgan Stanley team that the primary reason
20 for the shortfall in January and February in 21 sales was that Sunbeam had accelerated first 22 quarter revenue into the fourth quarter of 23 1998?
24 A. No. What we were told was that 25 they were trying to sell more, more of these

Page 167

1 Smith
2 grills, and accelerated the sales faster to
3 get the jump on the competition.
4 Q. I didn't ask about the reason for
5 doing it, but I asked whether you were told
6 that the reason why Sunbeam sales in January
7 and February were so far below 1997 levels
8 was that Sunbeam had accelerated the sale of 9 products into the fourth quarter of 1997.
10 A. No.
11 Q. Let me direct your attention to the 12 March 19 letter, CPH Exhibit 17 which you
13 have in front of you.
14 A. Uhm-hmm.
15 Q. To page 4, paragraph 6B. Let me
16 read the first sentence for you. "For the 17 period from December 29, 1997 through March 18 16, 1998 consolidated net sales decreased as 19 compared to the corresponding period of the 20 preceding year, primarily due to the 21 company's new early buy program for outdoor
22 grills which accelerated outdoor grill sales
23 into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997."
24 Do you see that statement?
25 A. Uhm-hmm.

Page 168

1 Smith
2 Q. At any time prior to the close of
3 Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's
4 interests in Coleman company, were you
5 advised of the facts contained in that
6 sentence?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. And who advised you of that?
9 A. Somebody from the team.
10 Q. What were you told?
11 A. That the company had accelerated
12 the sales of grills to capture market share.
13 Q. Accelerated the sale of grills into 14 the four quarter of 1997, correct?
15 A. 1997, yeah.
16 Q. And that the effect of that was to 17 diminish the sales the company had realized
18 in the first two months of 1998?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. You don't know who told you that?
21 A. No.
22 Q. Do you know if it was part of a
23 group meeting?
24 A. No, I don't recall.
25 Q. Do you know if it was Mr. Strong

Page 169

1 Smith
2 who told you that?
3 A. Don't recall.
4 Q. Do you know if it was Mr. Tyree?
5 A. Don't recall.
6 Q. Miss Porat?
7 A. Don't recall.
8 Q. Mr. Hart?
9 A. Don't recall.
10 Q. Did the fact that Sunbeam's sales
11 had declined so substantially in the first 12 two months of 1998, sir, as a result of 13 activities that resulted in accelerating the 14 sale of grills in the fourth quarter of 1997,
15 cause you to have any questions relating to 16 the turn-around claims that Mr. Dunlap was 17 making?
18 A. No.
19 Q. Why is that?
20 A. That was because that's one bit of 21 information, and to look at it in the overall
22 context of what the company was doing, their 23 performance, where they -- and what that
24 looked like was going to happen in the rest
25 of '98 is all part of the decision.

Page 170

1 Smith
2 Q. Did learning that Sunbeam had
3 engaged in activities to enhance its 1997
4 revenues cause you to believe that Morgan
5 Stanley needed to make further inquiry into
6 Sunbeam's turn-around claims?
7 MR. CLARE: I object to the form
8 of the question.
9 A. Focus of our inquiry was to test
10 the, or to find out more information about 11 the use of these early sales to enhance, you
12 know, market share and total revenues of the 13 grills. That was the emphasis of the 14 inquiry.
15 Q. Did you think this was potentially 16 good news?
17 A. Didn't know enough.
18 Q. You didn't necessarily conclude
19 that the decline in Sunbeam sales in the 20 first two months of 1998 was a negative
21 development?
22 A. I didn't know enough. And again
23 you want to look at this in the context of 24 all of the information we had.
25 Q. In what way would a 50 percent

Page 171

1 Smith
2 decline in sales of the first two months of
3 1998 be a potentially positive development
4 for Sunbeam?
5 A. I don't know about positive. You
6 asked me if it was potentially negative. It
7 could be a host of things that are going on.
8 Again, I think you have to look at 9 all of the facts you have available to you to 10 come up with any view. Very difficult I
11 think to pick out one item and then make that 12 be the linchpin of everything you are trying 13 to do.
14 Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that
15 when you were advised that Sunbeam's net
16 sales for the first two months of 1997 were 17 half of what they had been in the first two 18 months of 1997, and that the reason for that 19 was that Sunbeam had accelerated -- did I
20 misspeak?
21 MR. CLARE: I think you might have
22 said 1997 in both parts of your question.
23 Q. Let me start over.
24 Is it your testimony, sir, that
25 when you learned that Sunbeam's sales in the

Page 172

1 Smith
2 first two months of 1998 were about half of
3 what they had been in the first two months of 4 1997, and that the reason for that was that
5 Sunbeam had accelerated sales from the first
6 quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of
7 1997, you thought that was potentially a
8 positive piece of information relating to
9 Sunbeam's --
10 MR. CLARE: I object to the form,
11 and also to the extent it misstates his prior
12 testimony.
13 Q. -- performance and financial
14 condition?
15 A. Well, your first question before
16 was did I view that negatively. I don't
17 think I said I viewed it positively. Again
18 it is just another bit of information that 19 comes out in this due diligence process, and 20 you put that together with all of the other
21 information that we had. And again emphasize 22 the "we" because we had a big group working
23 on this, coming at it from many angles.
24 Q. Putting aside the prior testimony,
25 I'm asking a standalone question here.

Page 173

1 Smith
2 Is it your testimony, sir, that
3 when you learned that Sunbeam sales for the 4 first two months of 1997 were about half --
5 excuse me, for the first two months of 1998
6 were about half of what they had been in the
7 first two months of 1997, that the reason for 8 that was that Sunbeam had accelerated first
9 quarter sales back into the prior fiscal 10 period, that you thought that was potentially
11 a good thing for Sunbeam?
12 A. I wouldn't characterize it. Didn't
13 even approach it as a potentially good thing,
14 just a potential let's find out what goes on.
15 Q. Because it was a potential concern,
16 right?
17 A. No, because I wanted to find out
18 what was going on.
19 Q. Were you concerned?
20 A. It could have been good, it could
21 have been bad.
22 Q. Did you think it was potentially a
23 negative development?
24 A. As is many things, it could be
25 potentially good, potentially bad, just goes

Page 174

1 Smith
2 back into the mosaic of what we are trying to
3 find out here and ascertain what is happening
4 with the company.
5 Q. So you agree with me that when you
6 learned this information, you recognize that 7 it was potentially a bad piece of 8 information, correct?
9 A. I didn't know enough. It could 10 have been good, it could have been bad.
11 Q. That is my question.
12 Were you -- did you know?
13 A. Didn't know enough at the time.
14 Q. To know whether it was either
15 potentially good or potentially bad?
16 A. Not on the basis of this.
17 Q. So why did you want to make further
18 inquiry?
19 A. To find out.
20 Q. Because it might be potentially
21 bad, correct?
22 A. And it might be potentially good.
23 My job is to find out what is going on.
24 Q. You wanted to find out what was 25 going on with respect to this particular

Page 175

1 Smith
2 information because it was something
3 potentially negative with respect to
4 Sunbeam's --
5 A. Could have been potentially
6 negative.
7 Q. -- condition and performance,
8 correct?
9 MR. CLARE: Objection, asked and
10 answered.
11 A. Could have been potentially
12 negative.
13 Q. I'm sorry, could have been
14 potentially what?
15 A. Whatever you said, negative.
16 Q. Negative. While we're waiting for 17 a document, sir, did you wait for Mr. Hart to 18 obtain further information relating to this
19 so you could understand the potential
20 significance of this disclosure?
21 A. We talked about it and agreed, yes,
22 and asked him to find out as much as he
23 could. And he wanted to do that as well,
24 anyway.
25 Q. So you did ask Mr. Hart to find out

Page 176

1 Smith
2 more information relating to this for you,
3 correct?
4 A. Well, when you say for me, for the
5 firm and do what he could, yes.
6 Q. I'm trying to understand if you
7 spoke to Mr. Hart and said we need to get
8 more information about this, asking him to do
9 that?
10 A. You have to remember I met with Mr.
11 Hart like 50 times a day for weeks on this 12 thing, so I'm sure this would come up as part
13 of the conversation.
14 Q. Was the information, was this
15 information consistent with -- let me ask a
16 foundation question.
17 Had you received any information
18 prior to the time you learned that Sunbeam
19 sales for the first two months were about 20 half that they had been the prior fiscal 21 year, about how Sunbeam was doing in the
22 first quarter of 1998?
23 A. I don't recall. Don't think so.
24 Q. Do you think this was the first
25 information you received from Sunbeam

Page 177

1 Smith
2 relating to its performance in 1998?
3 A. I believe so.
4 Q. When you learned it, did you
5 believe that you had been in some way misled
6 by Sunbeam management concerning how things
7 were going in the first portion of 1998?
8 A. I did not.
9 Q. Did you think that Sunbeam
10 management should have advised you of these 11 facts earlier?
12 A. I had no opinion.
13 Q. Did anyone express the view that
14 Sunbeam, anyone within Morgan Stanley express
15 the view that Sunbeam management should have 16 advised Morgan Stanley of these facts earlier
17 in the process?
18 A. I don't recall.
19 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam issued a
20 press release on March 19 relating to the 21 status of its first quarter sales?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. And did you have any involvement in 24 the events relating to the issuance of that 25 press release?

Page 178

1 Smith
2 A. The only involvement I may have had
3 was, was either on the phone or walking in 4 and out when a phone call was going on to 5 discuss this.
6 Q. What phone call are you referring
7 to?
8 A. A internal phone call.
9 Q. Who was on that phone call?
10 A. Members of the team. I was not
11 directly on the call, I was walking in and 12 out, I had other stuff going on.
13 Q. This occurred before the issuance
14 of the March 19 press release?
15 A. It is all part and parcel of that.
16 Q. Do you know if anyone other than 17 Morgan Stanley personnel were on this phone
18 call you heard part of?
19 A. No, I think it was only Morgan
20 Stanley people.
21 Q. Do you have any recollection of 22 hearing Sunbeam -- let me ask a more general
23 question.
24 Did you have any communications
25 yourself directly with Sunbeam management

Page 179

1 Smith
2 relating to what had happened in the first
3 quarter of 1998 prior to the issuance of the 4 March 19 press release?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Can you identify any of the 7 individuals who are on the Morgan Stanley
8 team who were part of this phone call?
9 A. Not with a hundred percent
10 certainty.
11 Q. Who did you believe was involved?
12 A. I would have imagined that it would
13 have been Mike Hart, John Tyree, Bill Strong,
14 probably Tom Burchill/Rankin, maybe somebody
15 from the credit department.
16 Q. Did you make any statements during 17 the phone call?
18 A. I don't believe so.
19 Q. What do you remember hearing
20 discussed?
21 A. I remember hearing discussed, and
22 again in and out kind of what we were talking 23 about, what happened, what's the impact of 24 this for the year.
25 Q. Was there discussion about whether

Page 180

1 Smith
2 the company would issue a press release that
3 you heard?
4 A. Yes.
5 Q. What do you remember hearing?
6 A. That should the company issue a
7 press release and what would be the impact of
8 that.
9 Q. So you participated in at least a
10 portion of a conversation where there was 11 internal discussion at Morgan Stanley
12 concerning whether Sunbeam should be asked to 13 issue a press release?
14 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of 15 the question, misstates his testimony about 16 his participation.
17 A. Again I'm in and out. I do think
18 that the concept of a press release was 19 mentioned. I don't know if they were 20 responding to some thoughts that Sunbeam had,
21 some thoughts that they had or anything.
22 Again, I'm not a good witness on that phone
23 call.
24 Q. What do you remember being said by 25 the participants in that phone call

Page 181

1 Smith
2 concerning the pros and cons of a press
3 release and the potential impact?
4 A. I know that they discussed the,
5 discussed the press release, but it wasn't
6 there long enough or consistently enough to 7 pick up any of the pros or cons.
8 Q. What about the potential impact?
9 A. Not that I know of.
10 Q. Did you see a copy of --
11 Let me show you what has previously
12 been marked as CPH Exhibit 14. It's a copy
13 of the March 19 press release that I have 14 been referring to.
15 A. Uhm-hmm.
16 Q. Take a moment to read it.
17 Did you see this press release when
18 it was issued, sir?
19 A. I believe I did.
20 Q. Did you see it prior to its 21 issuance?
22 A. I may have seen a draft.
23 Q. What do you remember about the 24 possibility of seeing a draft of this press
25 release?

Page 182

1 Smith
2 A. Not much. The draft just before it
3 was finalized, it was circulated among the 4 team members.
5 Q. Did you offer comments to anyone
6 concerning the draft?
7 A. I don't think so. But again this
8 is from Sunbeam, right? This is a Sunbeam
9 press release?
10 Q. Yes.
11 A. I offered no comments to Sunbeam on 12 this.
13 Q. Do you recall from whom you
14 received the draft?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Do you recall any discussions
17 within Morgan Stanley relating to the draft
18 press release?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Did you offer comments to anyone
21 relating to press release of any sort of,
22 whether it was a suggestion for a change to
23 it or any other observation about it?
24 A. No. And again this is a Sunbeam
25 press release, not a Morgan Stanley press

Page 183

1 Smith
2 release.
3 Q. I'm asking not only for comments
4 you may have had concerning the language, but 5 observations you had about it.
6 A. No.
7 Q. Did you think the press release
8 adequately disclosed the information that 9 Morgan Stanley was aware of relating to 10 Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance when 11 you read it?
12 MR. CLARE: Objection to
13 foundation. Go ahead, you can answer.
14 A. That is up to Sunbeam, that is 15 their statement, have no opinion.
16 Q. My question to you, sir, is do you
17 think this press release adequately disclosed
18 the information, let me start with you, that 19 you were aware of relating to the status of 20 Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
21 A. Why don't you repeat your question
22 again.
23 Q. Do you think the Sunbeam March 19,
24 1998 press release --
25 A. This thing?

Page 184

1 Smith
2 Q. Correct -- fairly disclosed the
3 information that you, Bram Smith, were aware
4 of on March 19, 1998 concerning the status of
5 Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
6 A. I think I want to take a break.
7 I'll answer that later.
8 Q. No, you have to answer the question
9 before you take a break.
10 A. No comment then.
11 MR. MARKOWSKI: Keep the camera
12 rolling, we are still on the record.
13 MR. CLARE: The witness has asked
14 to take a break. We're going to go off the 15 record.
16 MR. MARKOWSKI: We're not going
17 off the record. It is my record and this 18 camera is going to roll until he comes back.
19 MR. CLARE: Okay, suit yourself.
20 (Witness and counsel leave the 21 conference room at this time.)
22 Q. Are you prepared to answer my
23 question, Mr. Smith?
24 THE WITNESS: Please repeat it.
25 (Record read.)

Page 185

1 Smith
2 THE WITNESS: And what did I say
3 before?
4 (Record read.)
5 A. So I said I had no opinion.
6 Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that you
7 have no opinion concerning whether the March
8 19, 1998 press release fairly disclosed the
9 information concerning Sunbeam's first
10 quarter 1998 performance that you personally
11 were aware of?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. The press release contains no
14 statement whatsoever that Sunbeam sales in 15 January and February were below to any extent
16 the sales in January and February of 1997,
17 correct?
18 A. Yup.
19 Q. Contains no statement that Sunbeam
20 had accelerated revenue from the first
21 quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of
22 1997, does it?
23 MR. CLARE: I object. The 24 document speaks for itself. It is a waste of 25 time. You can answer.

Page 186

1 Smith
2 A. It does not relate to that.
3 Q. It doesn't disclose that, does it?
4 A. No.
5 Q. Those are facts you were aware of,
6 correct, on March 19, 1998?
7 A. Those are facts that I was aware
8 of.
9 Q. Those were facts that you were 10 aware might be potentially significant to 11 Morgan Stanley, correct?
12 MR. CLARE: Objection,
13 argumentative and lack of foundation. You
14 can answer.
15 A. Those were, as we discussed before,
16 things we wanted to find out more about.
17 Q. Let me show you, sir --
18 MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you want to 19 change the tape?
20 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Yes. The time
21 is 2:06, this completes tape number 2. Thank
22 you.
23 (Pause in the proceedings.)
24 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
25 2:07, this begins tape number 3 of the

Page 187

1 Smith
2 videotaped deposition of Mr. Bram Smith.
3 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
4 Q. Mr. Smith, I show you a one-page
5 document that we'll marked as CPH Deposition
6 Exhibit Number 152. It bears Bate numbers
7 LAB 43.
8 (Cleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
9 152, document bearing Bates number LAB
10 43, marked for identification, as of 11 this date.)
12 Q. You testified earlier, sir, that
13 you believe you received some information
14 from Sunbeam relating to sales for the 15 balance of the first quarter of 1998; is that
16 correct?
17 A. I think I said for the balance of
18 the quarter.
19 Q. If I didn't say that, that is what 20 I meant. I'm sorry.
21 A. Okay.
22 Q. Is this the document?
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. How did you receive this?
25 A. From the team.

Page 188

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you know when you received it in
3 relationship to Sunbeam's press release?
4 A. My guess is before.
5 Q. Did you participate in any
6 discussions within Morgan Stanley relating to 7 the information contained on CPH Exhibit 152?
8 A. I believe I did.
9 Q. With whom did you discuss it?
10 A. Again members of the greater due
11 diligence team.
12 Q. Can you identify any particular
13 people who you have a recollection of 14 discussing Exhibit 152 with?
15 A. Aside from Mike Hart, the people
16 come and go, so no.
17 Q. What do you recall concerning the 18 discussions that you had with Morgan Stanley
19 personnel relating to the information
20 contained on CPH Exhibit 152?
21 A. The discussion was seeing how they 22 had performed and where the sales were coming
23 from to get to their -- to exceed last year's 24 numbers.
25 Q. What conclusions did you personally

Page 189

1 Smith
2 come to after receiving CPH Exhibit 152?
3 A. I don't recall.
4 Q. Did you conclude, based on your 5 review of CPH Exhibit 152, that Sunbeam would 6 realize all of the sales listed on this page?
7 A. I don't recall.
8 Q. Did you understand that $86 million
9 of sales listed on this page as of the date
10 of this document had not even been ordered
11 yet by Sunbeam customers?
12 A. I'm sorry, did you ask if I was 13 aware of that?
14 Q. Yes. Were you aware that $86
15 million of sales listed on this page had not 16 even been ordered yet by Sunbeam customers?
17 A. I don't recall.
18 Q. Did you come to any conclusions
19 after reviewing this page, concerning how 20 probable it was that Sunbeam would exceed its 21 first quarter 1997 sales?
22 A. No.
23 Q. Were you able to come to any
24 conclusion after receiving CPH Exhibit 152,
25 concerning how likely it was that Sunbeam

Page 190

1 Smith
2 would exceed first quarter 1997 sales?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Did you ask for additional
5 information?
6 A. I don't believe I asked for any
7 additional information.
8 Q. If you couldn't come to any
9 conclusion after reviewing CPH Exhibit 152,
10 sir, why didn't you ask for additional
11 information?
12 A. You have got to remember that I'm 13 one of a large group and that there were 14 other people who were taking the lead on 15 investigating this, talking to the company
16 and then comment back to the group, and that 17 wasn't me.
18 Q. So is the reason why you didn't ask
19 for additional information, the fact that you
20 didn't consider it to be your responsibility
21 to pursue this?
22 A. No. The reason I didn't pursue it
23 was other people were taking the lead on 24 this, had more day-to-day contact with the 25 client.

Page 191

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley
3 sought additional information from Sunbeam,
4 beyond the information contained on CPH
5 Exhibit 152, concerning the likelihood that
6 Sunbeam would exceed first quarter 1997
7 sales?
8 A. I didn't have any firsthand
9 knowledge of that.
10 Q. You don't know one way or the other
11 whether Sunbeam pursued any additional 12 information on that subject?
13 MR. CLARE: Or whether Morgan
14 Stanley.
15 A. Or whether Morgan Stanley.
16 Q. Sorry, I misspoke.
17 You don't have any knowledge,
18 sitting here today, whether after receiving
19 CPH Exhibit 152 Morgan Stanley pursued any 20 additional information from Sunbeam in order
21 to allow Morgan Stanley to form an opinion
22 concerning the likelihood of Sunbeam
23 exceeding first quarter 1997 sales in the
24 first quarter of 1998?
25 A. I know that there were subsequent

Page 192

1 Smith
2 phone calls with the company. I was not part
3 of it.
4 Q. What do you know about those phone
5 calls?
6 A. That they were had to follow up on
7 this.
8 Q. Do you know whether those phone
9 calls took place before or after the press
10 release?
11 A. I think it was before the press
12 release.
13 Q. Do you know who from Morgan Stanley
14 was involved in those phone calls?
15 A. Again a subset of the team.
16 Q. You don't know any of the people?
17 A. Not directly, not specifically.
18 Q. Do you know with whom they spoke?
19 A. No.
20 Q. Do you know, other than telephone
21 calls with Sunbeam management before the 22 press release was issued concerning CPH
23 Exhibit 152, Morgan Stanley received any 24 other documentary evidence concerning
25 Sunbeam's sales prospects for the balance of

Page 193

1 Smith
2 the first quarter of 1998?
3 A. I am not aware.
4 Q. Did you ever see any?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Is CPH Exhibit Number 152 the sole
7 piece of documentary information you received
8 from Sunbeam relating to its sales prospects
9 for the first quarter of 1998?
10 A. To the best of my memory.
11 Q. Did anyone within Morgan Stanley,
12 sir, to your knowledge express doubts
13 concerning whether Sunbeam was likely to 14 exceed first quarter 1997 sales results in 15 the first quarter of 1998?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Did anyone express an opinion on 18 that subject one way or the other to you?
19 A. Not that I remember.
20 Q. Do you remember anyone saying they 21 had concluded that it was probable or likely 22 that Sunbeam would be able to exceed first
23 quarter 1997 sales results in the first
24 quarter of 1998?
25 A. I don't remember any individual

Page 194

1 Smith
2 saying that.
3 Q. Did you ask for assurances on that
4 subject from anyone within Morgan Stanley?
5 A. Well, again the team was coming up
6 with the answers and that was just part of,
7 that was part of the process to talk to the 8 company about their numbers and their -- and 9 what they were, how competent, how 10 comfortable they were in telling us this was 11 going to happen.
12 Q. My question to you, sir, is whether 13 you asked the team or any particular person
14 on the team whether Morgan Stanley had 15 reached a conclusion that it was probable or 16 likely that Sunbeam would exceed its first
17 quarter 1997 sales results in the first
18 quarter of 1998?
19 A. I don't remember asking any
20 specific member of the team.
21 Q. Do you remember asking the people
22 generally for their view on that?
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. When did you ask that question?
25 A. As part of this process.

Page 195

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you remember a specific occasion
3 where you asked that question?
4 A. No.
5 Q. Do you remember a particular
6 meeting where you asked that question?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Do you remember whether you asked
9 that question before or after the press
10 release was issued?
11 A. Prior to the press release.
12 Q. Do you remember someone responding
13 to your question?
14 A. Not specifically.
15 Q. Do you remember receiving a
16 response to your question?
17 A. I remember people talking about the 18 issue.
19 Q. Do you remember whether as a group,
20 the Morgan Stanley team reached a consensus
21 that it was probable or likely that Sunbeam
22 would exceed first quarter 1997 sales
23 results?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Do you remember that in fact was

Page 196

1 Smith
2 the conclusion reached?
3 A. I -- that's my recollection.
4 Q. But you don't remember any
5 particular person expressing that opinion to 6 you, correct?
7 A. I do not.
8 Q. Did you personally have enough
9 information that would permit you to form
10 that opinion?
11 A. No, again I was part of the bigger
12 group and not directly involved with pursuing 13 this avenue of inquiry.
14 Q. So you personally didn't know one
15 way or the other whether that was a
16 reasonable conclusion, correct?
17 A. Did not have any firsthand
18 knowledge of that and was relying on greater
19 due diligence effort of the firm.
20 Q. Did you offer anyone your views
21 concerning the likelihood of Sunbeam
22 exceeding first quarter 1997 sales results?
23 A. I did not because I was too far
24 removed from the direct contact with the 25 company to go over this particular, you know,

Page 197

1 Smith
2 area of inquiry.
3 Q. Do you recall that there was a
4 meeting of the Leveraged Finance Committee on
5 March 20, 1998 to discuss whether approval
6 would be given to underwrite the senior loan
7 of Sunbeam?
8 A. Do I remember the meeting then?
9 Q. Yes.
10 A. I remember we had a meeting, I
11 don't remember for sure when it was.
12 Q. I'm going to show you, Mr. Smith,
13 what we have previously marked as CPH Exhibit
14 Number 76. The cover page is a memorandum
15 dated March 19, 1998 from R.B. Smith to
16 Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee,
17 subject Sunbeam, and it is a document that
18 bears Bates number Morgan Stanley 25829
19 through 25886.
20 I'd like you to look at this
21 document sufficiently, Mr. Smith, to tell me
22 whether you have ever seen it before.
23 A. Yes, I have.
24 Q. Can you tell me what it is?
25 A. It is the Commitment Committee memo

50 (Pages 194 to 197)

Page 198

1 Smith
2 that we, that the leveraged finance, the firm
3 had put together in acquiring or requesting
4 credit approval from the Leveraged Finance
5 Committee.
6 Q. And the credit approval that is the 7 subject of this material is the senior loan
8 of Sunbeam, correct?
9 A. Is the senior loan, yes.
10 Q. You're the author of the March 19
11 cover memo, correct?
12 A. I am the sender of this, yes.
13 Q. And your memorandum advises that
14 there will be a Leveraged Finance Commitment
15 Committee meeting regarding Sunbeam on 16 Friday, March 20 at 7:30 a.m., correct?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. Did that meeting in fact take
19 place?
20 A. I believe it did. Let me say it
21 again. It did take place. Can I say it took 22 place on the 20th at 7:30, I don't remember.
23 Q. Did you attend the meeting?
24 A. I did.
25 Q. Now, there are a list of people on

Page 199

1 Smith
2 the bottom of that memorandum under the
3 heading Distribution.
4 Do you see that?
5 A. I do.
6 Q. Can you tell me who those
7 individuals are?
8 A. Starting at the top?
9 Q. Yes.
10 A. Dwight Sippelle and Mike Rankowitz
11 were co-head of high yield sales and trading.
12 Bill Kourakos was I think at the time the 13 deputy head of high yield capital markets.
14 Rick Felix was the head of the credit
15 department. You have myself. Steve Newhouse
16 was at the time the head of high yield
17 capital markets. Leslie Bradford was the 18 deputy head of the credit department. Joel
19 Feldmann was a senior member of the high
20 yield capital markets group. S. Brown, I
21 don't remember that. Ralph Pellicchio was a
22 senior lawyer. Steve Munger was one of the 23 senior M&A professionals. Terry Mequid ran
24 IBD. Bill Sanders was his deputy. Ann
25 Short, I don't remember what function she

Page 200

1 Smith
2 might have had. And then there is Bill
3 Strong.
4 Q. Are the members of the Leveraged
5 Finance Commitment Committee included among 6 that list?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. Who among this group was on the 9 Leveraged Finance Committee?
10 A. To the best of my recollection it
11 was Sippelle, Rankowitz, Kourakos, Felix,
12 Smith, Newhouse were the core members.
13 In addition to that you would have
14 maybe Munger and -- I'm sorry, not Munger.
15 Meguid and maybe Ralph.
16 Q. Why do you distinguish between 17 those two people and the people you referred 18 to as the core group?
19 A. Because they would come
20 periodically to larger transactions or harder
21 transactions or something. They wouldn't 22 come all the time. Whereas the first five or 23 six that I mentioned there were there all the 24 time.
25 Q. Why were the other individuals

Page 201

1 Smith
2 included on the distribution list here?
3 A. Because they were participating.
4 Normally the way -- I don't know specifically
5 why these fellows were, but normally other
6 people would be, receive copies because they
7 were going to participate in this particular,
8 in a particular Leveraged Finance Commitment
9 Committee meeting.
10 For example, Bill Strong doesn't
11 show up all the time, but he would show up if 12 it was his client.
13 Q. Mr. Strong is somebody who is on
14 the Sunbeam team, correct?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. There is no one else on this list
17 that was part of the Sunbeam engagement team,
18 is there?
19 A. I don't think so.
20 Q. Why then a larger group than the 21 core group for purposes of this particular
22 Leveraged Finance Committee meeting?
23 A. This was not unusual to have other
24 people there, so I can't comment other than 25 as a matter of fact we'd have additional

Page 202

1 Smith
2 faces there.
3 Leslie Bradford, for example, the
4 deputy head of credit, was there most of the 5 time anyway, whether Rick was there or not.
6 Q. Who made the decision whether to 7 add additional people in this particular
8 Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee
9 meeting?
10 A. I don't know. This was pretty much
11 boilerplate.
12 Q. Were you instructed to include
13 additional people?
14 A. I was not to the best of my
15 recollection.
16 Q. Did you make the choice?
17 A. No, I don't remember.
18 Q. Was there something about the size
19 or nature of this loan that made it one where 20 a group larger than the core group would be 21 involved in the decision-making process?
22 A. I would say that there were -- I
23 don't think it was size per se that got 24 everybody's attention. Just a very, very --
25 what's the word, kind of a -- it was a deal

Page 203

1 Smith
2 that had a lot of visibility outside and
3 inside.
4 Q. Were all of these people then going
5 to be responsible for voting yes or no with 6 respect to this proposed credit arrangement?
7 A. Not all the people on the 8 distribution.
9 Q. Who would have voting rights?
10 A. Sipprelle, Rankowitz, Kourakos,
11 Felix, Smith and Newhouse. And then if
12 Meguid showed up, he would have a vote too.
13 Q. Do you remember what the vote was 14 with respect to this particular loan, the
15 Sunbeam loan?
16 A. The vote here was unanimous to go
17 forward.
18 Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on 19 the first page of this document?
20 A. I do.
21 Q. Whose is it?
22 A. Mine.
23 Q. Do you recall when you put this
24 handwriting on this document?
25 A. I think I put it on the document

Page 204

1 Smith
2 during the meeting.
3 Q. These are notes that you took of
4 things that were said during the Leveraged
5 Finance Commitment Committee meeting?
6 A. Notes might be too strong a word.
7 Doodling.
8 Q. But these are writings you added to 9 this document --
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. -- during the course of the 12 Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee
13 meeting relating to the review of the Sunbeam
14 senior loan?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. And you believe they reflect things
17 that were being said during the course of the 18 meeting?
19 A. No.
20 Q. These are things that you wrote for 21 what reason then?
22 A. I think it would be the
23 combination, things that I was thinking
24 about, things that might have been said,
25 things to follow up on, reminders to myself.

Page 205

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you recall that -- what, tell me
3 what these notes refer to.
4 A. I don't know. Don Uzzi I think is
5 somebody from the company. I don't know why
6 that came up.
7 Q. It says underneath his name "VP
8 sales"?
9 A. God, you have better eyes than I
10 do. Yup. Then these look like ranges of 11 numbers. So that might have been the street
12 estimates and then in terms of what their 13 first sales were going to be.
14 I don't know what the addition on 15 the other side, the 21, 15 and 10 is. That 16 could be some things that had to do with 17 these. And then the rest of it I don't know.
18 Q. The first entry at the top that is 19 circled is the number 112.5, correct?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. And the word next to that is the 22 word "short"?
23 A. That is what it looks like.
24 Q. Do you recall that that entry
25 relates to the, to how short street

Page 206

1 Smith
2 expectations for sales Sunbeam was as of
3 March 20?
4 A. No, I don't recall.
5 Q. Do you recall that at the Leveraged
6 Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March
7 20 there was discussion relating to the fact
8 that Sunbeam sales for January and February
9 were substantially below the sales for
10 January and February of 1997?
11 A. I believe that was discussed.
12 Q. Who made that point?
13 A. Oh, I think it was -- I don't know
14 who specifically made it. Somebody from the 15 team would have brought that up.
16 Q. Do you recall if it was Mr. Strong
17 who made that statement?
18 A. I do not recall who brought it up.
19 Q. Do you recall if it was you?
20 A. I believe it was not me.
21 Q. Do you recall if it was Mr. Hart?
22 A. I don't recall.
23 Q. Is there anyone else on this list
24 that it could have been in your view other
25 than you, Mr. Hart or Mr. Strong?

Page 207

1 Smith
2 A. This list here on the front page
3 may not have been all the people that
4 attended. There may have been other folks
5 from other disciplines that were there, for
6 example, like John Tyree or the credit person
7 who did the work. So I don't remember
8 everybody who was there, so necessarily who
9 brought it up and/or what type of discussion
10 followed and how many people participated in 11 that discussion.
12 Q. But you do recall that the 13 Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee was 14 advised that Sunbeam sales in January and 15 February of '98 were substantially below --
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. -- Sunbeam sales for January of 18 '97?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Do you recall that they were 21 advised that the primary reason for that was 22 that Sunbeam had accelerated the sale of 23 first quarter product into the fourth quarter
24 of 1997?
25 A. I don't remember exactly how it was

Page 208

1 Smith
2 described to the committee.
3 Q. Do you remember whether any
4 statements were made to the committee to 5 explain the reason why Sunbeam sales in the 6 first two months of 1998 were so far below
7 1997 sales results?
8 A. I remember a lot of conversation
9 about it. I think that some of the causes
10 were discussed, one of them being the sale of 11 the grills earlier, as well as expecting 12 sales at the last half of the month here to 13 get them close -- to get them above, excuse
14 me, where they thought they, where they were 15 last year.
16 Q. Now, there is a list of names at 17 the top of the second page.
18 A. Uhm-hmm.
19 Q. That's a memorandum to Leveraged
20 Finance Committee meeting?
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. Leveraged Finance Committee dated
23 March 20, 1998, correct?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Do you recall if any of the

Page 209

1 Smith
2 individuals listed on the top portion of this
3 memorandum participated in the Leveraged
4 Finance Committee's meeting?
5 A. I don't -- I don't remember
6 specifically who's there from this group. As
7 I mentioned before, it was a bigger, a better
8 attended meeting than, than the norm because 9 of the visibility. So I think there were 10 members from other groups there. I'm pretty
11 sure there are members from other groups
12 there, but I couldn't specifically tell you
13 who was and who wasn't.
14 Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Strong
15 participated?
16 A. Yes, he did. I do remember him
17 participating.
18 Q. Do you remember if he was there in
19 person?
20 A. I thought he was there in person,
21 but I'm not a hundred percent sure.
22 Q. He might have participated by 23 telephone?
24 A. He could have participated by
25 conference call.

53 (Pages 206 to 209)

Page 210

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you remember if Mr. Strong was
3 asked for his recommendation that the company
4 proceed with the senior loan?
5 A. Mr. Strong, whether he was asked or 6 not, advocated going forward with the senior
7 loan.
8 Q. Do you have any memory of Mr. Tyree
9 being present?
10 A. I thought he was also.
11 Q. Now, if this meeting took place on 12 March 20, it's the day after Sunbeam's March 13 19 press release, correct?
14 A. Yes.
15 Q. Do you recall if Mr. Tyree made any
16 statement -- let me ask a more general
17 question before we get to this particular
18 meeting.
19 Did Mr. Tyree or anyone else, sir,
20 ever advise you that Arthur Andersen had 21 taken the position that the statements
22 contained in Sunbeam's March 19 press release
23 were incomplete and misleading?
24 A. You're question is did Mr. Tyree
25 share that with me?

Page 211

1 Smith
2 MR. MARKOWSKI: Would you read
3 that question back, please.
4 (Record read.)
5 A. No.
6 Q. You have never heard that from 7 anyone?
8 A. No, this is the first time I'm
9 hearing it.
10 Q. Do you think it was appropriate
11 that the Leveraged Finance Commitment
12 Committee was advised of the performance of 13 Sunbeam in January and February of 1998 in 14 connection with evaluating the proposed loan
15 to Sunbeam?
16 A. I think it was appropriate in the 17 context of a, the overall due diligence and 18 in this part of the underwriting.
19 Q. Do you recall whether there was any
20 discussion at the Leveraged Finance
21 Committee's meeting concerning how quickly
22 Morgan Stanley would be able to syndicate its 23 position in the Sunbeam loan?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. Were you asked to address that?

Page 212

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. Do you recall who asked you to
4 address that?
5 A. No, but it would have -- not 6 specifically, but it would have been one of 7 the senior members of the committee.
8 Q. One of the core group members?
9 A. One of the core group.
10 Q. Do you recall what you said?
11 A. My best recollection is that we
12 thought it would take six to eight weeks,
13 which is pretty standard, to syndicate this
14 once we, once we got going.
15 Q. That is the same target date you
16 gave me earlier, correct, syndicating the 17 position by the first part of May?
18 A. I think we said the last part of 19 May. Yes.
20 Q. That was your view at that point in
21 time?
22 A. Yes, it was.
23 Q. And you expressed that view to the 24 members of the committee?
25 A. I did.

Page 213

1 Smith
2 Q. Did anyone during the course of the
3 Leveraged Finance Committee's meeting raise
4 the question of deferring or delaying the
5 decision?
6 A. The credit decision?
7 Q. Yes.
8 A. Not that I remember.
9 Q. Did anyone raise a question
10 concerning whether the timing of the 11 financing could be delayed so that the 12 closing would occur later?
13 A. I don't recall.
14 Q. Did anyone express any reservations
15 about proceeding with the loan?
16 A. The vote again was unanimous, so I
17 think the committee was on board to go
18 forward.
19 Q. Other than the final vote, did
20 anyone express any questions or concerns
21 about proceeding that reflected in your view
22 a reservation about the decision?
23 A. There were plenty of questions. I
24 wouldn't classify any of them as any 25 reservations.

54 (Pages 210 to 213)

Page 214

1 Smith
2 Q. Did anyone express any concerns
3 concerning the adequacy of the March 19 press
4 release as a disclosure to Sunbeam
5 shareholders?
6 A. I don't think that came up.
7 Q. After, sir, you became aware of the 8 substantial decline in Sunbeam sales in
9 January and February of 1998, did you raise a
10 question concerning the possibility of 11 deferring the financing to a later point?
12 A. I don't know.
13 Q. You didn't go back to Mr. Strong,
14 for example, and say perhaps we should 15 consider delaying the timing of the loan to 16 Sunbeam?
17 A. No.
18 Q. Did anyone else to your knowledge
19 make, raise such a question?
20 A. No.
21 Q. Did you have any reservation, sir,
22 about proceeding with the Sunbeam loan?
23 A. No.
24 Q. Did you give any thought yourself,
25 whether you expressed it to anyone or not,

Page 215

1 Smith
2 whether it might be advisable to delay the
3 financing until Sunbeam's first quarter 1998
4 results were known?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Why not?
7 A. Because we the firm, big team, had
8 done the due diligence and the firm with all
9 of those resources employed was comfortable
10 that this was the, this was a prudent
11 decision. As part of that, but not the front
12 line, I agreed with the decision.
13 Q. You would think it was a prudent
14 decision whether or not Sunbeam in fact was 15 able to exceed its first quarter 1997 sales
16 results in the first quarter of 1998?
17 MR. CLARE: I object to the form
18 of the question. I'm not sure I understand
19 what you're asking.
20 MR. MARKOWSKI: I want to make 21 sure I'm clear on this because it is an
22 important question.
23 Q. Did you think, sir, that the loan
24 to Sunbeam was a prudent decision even if it
25 turned out to be the case that Sunbeam failed

Page 216

1 Smith
2 to exceed its 1997 sales results in the first
3 quarter of 1998?
4 A. I think whether the net exceeded or 5 was off a little bit was just one of many
6 factors and wouldn't have changed anybody's
7 opinion about whether to go forward.
8 Q. Well, you knew based on the 9 information we see on CPH Exhibit 152, that 10 Sunbeam had a lot of work to do, right, in 11 order to exceed first quarter 1997 sales
12 results?
13 Is that a fair statement?
14 MR. CLARE: Objection.
15 A. Sales?
16 Q. Yes.
17 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
18 the question.
19 Q. A lot of orders to get and a lot of 20 sales to make.
21 A. They had to make some sales to beat
22 last year's.
23 Q. And they had about 10 days to get
24 that done, right?
25 A. Uhm-hmm.

Page 217

1 Smith
2 Q. Did you know it was uncertain at
3 that point whether Sunbeam would have in fact
4 exceeded its first quarter 1997 sales results
5 in the first quarter of 1998?
6 A. First of all, I wasn't part of the 7 phone call of checking with the company; and,
8 number two, everything's uncertain so who
9 knows.
10 It was represented to us, it was 11 represented to members of the team that 12 weren't on the phone call, by people who were 13 on the phone call, that the company had every 14 anticipation of achieving the numbers that 15 they had on that piece of paper.
16 Q. Would you then have prepared to 17 endorse going forward with the Sunbeam loan
18 on March 20, sir, if you knew that Sunbeam
19 would fail to exceed its first quarter 1997
20 sales results?
21 MR. CLARE: Objection, incomplete
22 hypothetical and calls for speculation. You
23 can answer if you can.
24 A. Tough to -- you can't make that
25 call in a vacuum. You have to get more

Page 218

1 Smith
2 information.
3 Q. What more information?
4 A. Why, how far were they off, what's
5 going on, those types of issues.
6 Q. What if they would have been $20
7 million short?
8 A. Again it's just a -- out of context
9 like that it's -- that doesn't mean much.
10 Q. What if they would have been $20
11 million short and the primary reason that 12 they were $20 million short was that they had 13 accelerated first quarter 1998 sales into the 14 fourth quarter of 1997, under those
15 circumstances would you have been comfortable
16 endorsing the senior loan to Sunbeam?
17 MR. CLARE: Same objections.
18 A. Hypothetical, it's -- I don't have 19 a view.
20 Q. You don't have any ability to offer
21 a view on that?
22 A. No.
23 Q. Did you consider that possibility
24 that Sunbeam might be $20 million short?
25 A. Based on what the team had found

Page 219

1 Smith
2 out from the company, that while always a
3 possibility, didn't think it was anywhere
4 near a probability.
5 Q. But if Sunbeam -- your view was
6 even though it was uncertain whether Sunbeam
7 would exceed its first quarter 1997 sales in 8 the first quarter of 1998, you were still 9 comfortable recommending to the management of 10 Morgan Stanley making this loan, correct?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Let me direct your attention to
13 page 16.
14 A. Page 16 is it?
15 Q. Of the March 20 memo.
16 A. Yup.
17 Q. You see a listing at the top of 18 this page with a heading Coleman Synergy,
19 Synergies Rationale 118 million?
20 A. Yes, I do.
21 Q. Do you see several bullet points
22 below that heading?
23 A. I do.
24 Q. What is your understanding of what
25 those bullet points represent?

Page 220

1 Smith
2 A. Give me a second to refresh my
3 memory.
4 Q. Sure.
5 A. These look like -- the 118 looks
6 like it is the synergy number and then the 7 bullet points below that, for at least the 8 Coleman situation, are specific actions or 9 events that were going to happen, that the 10 company was going to take to realize the net.
11 Q. So these are the synergies that
12 this document reflects Sunbeam will realize
13 upon the acquisition of Coleman company.
14 Is that what this is intended to 15 describe to the members of the Leveraged
16 Finance Committee?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. And this is the -- below that $118
19 million total on page 16 is the detail
20 concerning the actions or restructuring
21 events that will generate the $118 million in
22 synergies?
23 A. I wouldn't say the detail, but 24 bullet points where they think the 25 savings/synergies is going to come from.

Page 221

1 Smith
2 Q. And these were the synergies being
3 presented to the Leveraged Finance Committee
4 as those that would pertain to the Coleman
5 acquisition, correct?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. Do you know if any of the items
8 that are identified, the bullet point items
9 identified there originated with Coleman
10 company management?
11 A. I wasn't part to any of that. I
12 have no idea.
13 Q. Do you know if any of the ideas
14 listed there originated with my client,
15 Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
16 A. No, no idea.
17 Q. Do you know if any of the items
18 listed on the top of page 116 concerning
19 potential Coleman synergies originated with 20 McAndrews & Forbes?
21 A. No idea.
22 Q. Or Mr. Perelman personally?
23 A. No idea.
24 Q. Mr. Gittes?
25 A. No idea.

Page 222

1 Smith
2 Q. Or Jerry Levin?
3 A. No idea.
4 Q. I think I mispronounced his name.
5 Jerry Levin.
6 Do you know who Jerry Levin is?
7 A. Yes, I do.
8 Q. And in March of 1998, the first
9 part of 1998 he was the chief executive
10 officer of Coleman company, correct?
11 A. I believe so.
12 Q. Did you ever have any discussions
13 with Jerry Levin concerning potential
14 synergies?
15 A. Not until after he was in charge of 16 the Sunbeam.
17 Q. After he became chief executive
18 officer of Sunbeam you had some discussions
19 with him about synergies?
20 A. A variety of discussions.
21 Q. But prior to the funding of the 22 senior loan to Sunbeam, you had no
23 discussions with Mr. Levin --
24 A. No discussions.
25 Q. -- concerning potential synergies?

Page 223

1 Smith
2 A. I never met the man.
3 Q. Did you have discussions with any
4 member from Coleman company regarding 5 potential synergies before the senior loan
6 closed?
7 A. I did not.
8 Q. Anybody with Coleman (Parent)?
9 A. I did not.
10 Q. Or McAndrews & Forbes?
11 A. I didn't.
12 Q. Do you remember anyone at the 13 Leveraged Finance Committee -- excuse me.
14 Do you remember anyone at the 15 Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee's 16 meeting saying that with respect to the 17 potential Coleman synergies, we're relying on 18 Coleman management for those concepts or the 19 values associated with them?
20 A. No.
21 Q. Do you recall there being
22 discussion at the Leveraged Finance
23 Commitment Committee's March 20 meeting
24 concerning the fact that the funds raised
25 through the convertible debenture offering

Page 224

1 Smith
2 had been increased from 500 million to $750
3 million?
4 A. I think it came up during the
5 meeting.
6 Q. You have expressed the view that
7 that was a positive development with respect
8 to the security that the senior lenders had,
9 correct?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Was that, is that view also
12 expressed at the Leveraged Finance Commitment
13 Committee's meeting?
14 A. I don't know about directly, but if 15 there is less debt and more junior capital,
16 that's always, that's always a positive from 17 the lender's point of view.
18 Q. Let me direct your attention to 19 page 2 of this memo.
20 A. Page 2.
21 Q. It has Bates number MS 25831.
22 Do you see that?
23 A. Uhm-hmm, yes.
24 Q. There is a box at the bottom, it
25 says "Expected economics."

Page 225

1 Smith
2 Do you see that?
3 A. Uhm-hmm.
4 Q. Above that there is a statement in 5 typed text that reads "We're asking the 6 committee to approve underwriting 2 billion
7 in senior secured credit facilities"?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. And underneath that there are two
10 boxes, one with the word "April" handwritten 11 in and then an arrow to another box that has 12 the word "mid-May," the words "mid-May"
13 written in it.
14 Do you see that?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. Is that your handwriting?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. What is that a reference to?
19 A. The syndication timetable.
20 Q. And does April mean?
21 A. Starting April.
22 Q. What does mid-May refer to?
23 A. Mid-May when it finishes up.
24 Q. And that would be the point by 25 which Morgan Stanley's participation in the

Page 226

1 Smith
2 Sunbeam loan would be reduced to the 50 to
3 $60 million range that you referred to
4 previously?
5 A. Yes, that is when the syndication
6 should be completed.
7 Q. Now, there is several notes made in
8 or around the box that is labeled "Expected
9 Economics."
10 Do you see that?
11 A. I do.
12 Q. Are those your notes again?
13 A. Yes, they are.
14 Q. Can you interpret them for me?
15 A. The -- I think this was trying to 16 go ahead and come up with or play with how 17 much in terms of fees that Morgan Stanley
18 would make for the, for entering into this
19 underwriting.
20 Q. And what does this show?
21 A. Well, let's see. I think in the 22 memo it shows 5-1/2 to 6. My handwriting is 23 6 to 9. For whatever reason I had 5 -- 8-1/2
24 to 9-1/2, just doing, playing around with the 25 numbers in terms of the total compensation

Page 227

1 Smith
2 for us for taking 40 percent of this loan.
3 Q. Does that include, does Morgan
4 Stanley receive additional fees when the loan
5 is syndicated?
6 A. No, no.
7 Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what
8 we're marking as CPH Deposition Exhibit
9 Number 153. It's another version, another
10 copy of your March 19 memorandum and another
11 copy of the March 20 memorandum to the 12 Leveraged Finance Committee. It bears Bates
13 number Morgan Stanley 18885 through 19 --
14 excuse me -- 18942.
15 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
16 153, document bearing Bates number
17 Morgan Stanley 18885 through 18942,
18 marked for identification, as of this
19 date.)
20 Q. My question, sir, is whether you
21 can identify the handwriting on the first
22 page of this exhibit?
23 A. I cannot.
24 Q. It is not your handwriting?
25 A. Not mine.

Page 228

1 Smith
2 Q. Not any portion of it?
3 A. I haven't looked through every
4 page, but certainly not the first page.
5 Q. I'm just talking about the first
6 page.
7 Did you attend any -- did you
8 understand Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in 9 connection with the marketing of the 10 convertible debentures?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Morgan Stanley was the sole
13 underwriting with respect to the convertible
14 debentures, correct?
15 A. I believe so.
16 Q. And a road show was held to assist
17 Sunbeam in marketing those securities,
18 correct?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Did you attend any of the road show
21 presentations?
22 A. I don't believe so.
23 Q. Are you aware of any statements
24 made subsequent to the issuance of the March
25 19 press release, by either Morgan Stanley or

Page 229

1 Smith
2 by Sunbeam representatives, that attempted to
3 minimize the significance of the March 19
4 press release to potential investors and
5 convertible debentures?
6 A. No, I wasn't part of.
7 Q. No one ever reported such
8 statements were being made to you?
9 A. I didn't know.
10 Q. After the March 19 press release,
11 sir, did you think it was especially
12 important for Morgan Stanley to track Sunbeam
13 sales activity in the closing days of the 14 quarter?
15 A. I thought it was important to 16 continue and complete our due diligence
17 before we close the loan.
18 Q. Did you get any undated information
19 after the March 19 press release concerning
20 Sunbeam's efforts to achieve sales at least 21 as great as the first quarter of 1997; for 22 example, a report on how many sales had been
23 made since the March 19 press release?
24 A. I don't recall seeing anything like
25 that.

Page 230

1 Smith
2 Q. Did you request daily reports on
3 Sunbeam sales activities?
4 A. I did not. I don't know if the 5 team requested it.
6 Q. Did you receive any reports between 7 the March 19 press release and the closing of 8 my client, the sale of my client's interest
9 in Coleman company, concerning the status of 10 Sunbeam's first quarter sales efforts?
11 A. I don't remember what I got or what 12 the team got.
13 Q. So between -- let me focus your 14 attention to the time period I'm talking
15 about.
16 Between March 19, 1998 and March
17 30, 1998 do you recall receiving any 18 information concerning the status of 19 Sunbeam's sales activities subsequent to
20 March 19?
21 A. I don't -- I remember -- I don't
22 recall getting anything written, but I think
23 members of the teams who were spending time
24 with the company -- maybe I should have said
25 it before, it wasn't just us.

Page 231

1 Smith
2 We focused a hundred percent on the
3 Morgan Stanley efforts. We have two partners
4 here, First Union, Bank of America, going
5 through the same thing. So they, so
6 everybody I think is talking about this and 7 we're thinking about it.
8 And I don't remember any pieces of 9 paper or being part of any particular
10 conversations myself with anybody from the
11 company.
12 Q. Well, let me make sure we're clear
13 on this. Regardless of what the source was,
14 whether it was Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley, Bank
15 of America or First Union or someone else, do
16 you recall whether you received any
17 information subsequent to Sunbeam's March 19
18 press release, prior to the closing of the 19 acquisition of my client's interest in
20 Coleman company on March 30, relating to 21 Sunbeam's sales efforts between March 19 and
22 March 30?
23 A. I don't remember anything specific.
24 Q. Do you remember anything generally?
25 A. No

Page 232

1 Smith
2 Q. Did you instruct anyone to contact
3 any of the customers that were listed on CPH
4 Exhibit Number 152, sir, to find out what
5 their plans were for making purchases from
6 Sunbeam?
7 A. I would not, that would not have
8 been my function.
9 Q. Do you know whether anyone from 10 Morgan Stanley was asked to do that?
11 A. I do not know.
12 Q. Do you disagree, sir, that on 13 monitoring Sunbeam's end of the quarter sale
14 effort should have been Morgan Stanley's
15 highest priority at that point in time?
16 MR CLARE: I object to the form
17 of the question, argumentative.
18 A. I guess I do disagree.
19 Q. Why?
20 A. Because I think that is one part of 21 the continuing due diligence that we were 22 performing right up until the, right up until 23 the end.
24 Q. As you sit here you don't have any 25 recollection of getting any information from

Page 233

1 Smith
2 any source, including the Morgan Stanley due
3 diligence team, relating to Sunbeam's sale
4 efforts between March 19 and March 30,
5 correct?
6 A. No
7 Q. You don't have any recollection of
8 that?
9 A. No, I do not. But again the team,
10 the big team is there doing that work and I
11 have a lot of confidence in the team all the 12 way from the leveraged finance people to the 13 John Tyree and people from the credit
14 department, so that I think the firm was ably 15 served by those folks and its efforts to 16 parse through this.
17 Q. Are you aware, sir, that the agenda
18 prepared by the due diligence team for -- are 19 you familiar with the concept of bring-down
20 due diligence?
21 A. Yes, I am.
22 Q. And what does that term mean to
23 you?
24 A. Just before you close, to get on 25 the phone with the company, maybe sometimes

Page 234

1 Smith
2 their auditors, to make sure and have the
3 opportunity to ask them kind of the last
4 questions, if there has been any changes from 5 what we all thought had been going on in the 6 last -- since the last time we did it.
7 Q. Were you advised by anyone that
8 Sunbeam's -- that Morgan Stanley's bring-down
9 due diligence agenda was revised after March
10 19 to omit the subject of Sunbeam's views
11 concerning its prospects for the second
12 quarter of 1998?
13 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
14 the question, lack of foundation. I think it
15 also assumes facts not in evidence. You can
16 answer.
17 A. No, no knowledge at all.
18 Q. No one told you that the due
19 diligence team had been told not to make 20 inquiry into Sunbeam's views of its prospects
21 for the first -- second quarter of 1998 after 22 the March 19 press release was issued?
23 MR. CLARE: Same objections.
24 A. Nobody told me that.
25 Q. Do you think that would be an

Page 235

1 Smith
2 appropriate subject to drop?
3 A. I would be flabbergasted if that
4 ever happened to Morgan Stanley.
5 Q. Do you think that would be an
6 important area to keep inquiring about right
7 up to the time the loan closed?
8 A. I would think that would be part of 9 the continuing due diligence process until 10 the loan closed.
11 Q. So you would be shocked if that 12 subject was specifically omitted from the 13 bring-down due diligence agenda?
14 A. Again I'm not part of the 15 bring-down due diligence agenda process, but 16 I would be shocked that that wasn't part of 17 the continuing due diligence.
18 And again I have no knowledge of 19 that document that you're referring to or 20 what was in or taken out.
21 Q. But you didn't participate in any
22 discussion where people discussed dropping
23 that subject?
24 A. No. No, I had no knowledge of it.
25 Q. Well, the senior loan closed on

Page 236

1 Smith
2 March 30, 1998, correct?
3 A. I believe that's right.
4 Q. Did Morgan Stanley make efforts to 5 move forward with the syndication process at 6 that point?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. Had efforts been undertaken even 9 prior to the closing of the loan, to initiate 10 the syndication process?
11 A. No.
12 Q. And why is that?
13 A. We didn't have enough time. We 14 were too busy scrambling to complete the due
15 diligence, do all the documentation, complete
16 the loan agreement, which was essentially
17 before we could advance the money.
18 There was a time line, I mean a
19 deadline, so that was the primary focus.
20 Once that was completed, then we shaped our 21 resources to putting together, to put
22 together materials to start the syndication
23 of the loan.
24 Q. When did that start?
25 A. Probably the day after we closed

Page 237

1 Smith
2 the loan.
3 Q. Who was responsible for that
4 effort?
5 A. It was under my supervision, then
6 assisted by the team of Mr. Hart, I guess Mr.
7 Rankin by then, and then we also had our two 8 other banks that were taking pieces of the 9 underwriting.
10 Q. First Union and Bank of America?
11 A. First Union, Bank of America.
12 Q. Were the efforts to syndicate the 13 loan, the senior loan, disrupted?
14 A. I'm sorry, were they --
15 Q. Disrupted? Did something happen to 16 affect the plan for completing the 17 syndication of the loan by mid-May?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. What was that?
20 A. Well, we had to -- we had to right
21 the book and continue to get information. We 22 were trying to remember what happened, it was 23 a long time ago, six years ago, is that bits
24 of information came out and then we started
25 getting more and more, had more and more

Page 238

1 Smith
2 questions for the company back and forth.
3 Q. Do you recall that, do you recall
4 if something happened that affected your 5 objective of completing the syndication by 6 mid-May?
7 A. I don't remember specifically, but
8 there were, as I remember there were a series
9 of events that precluded us from going right
10 when we wanted to, which in the normal course
11 would have been two to three weeks after we 12 closed the loan.
13 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam issued a
14 press release on or about April 3, 1998 in 15 which it announced that it had failed to 16 exceed first quarter 1997 sales results?
17 A. I'm sure I saw it, but I don't
18 remember what it said.
19 Q. Did that have, did that 20 announcement have any effect on the timing
21 for the syndication?
22 A. I think that it was part of the,
23 part of the series of events. It could have 24 been the first series of events. Part of the 25 series is the 3rd is only four days after the

Page 239

1 Smith
2 fact. So we are in the midst of preparing
3 our offering memorandum and the rest.
4 Q. I just want to try and understand
5 what effect that announcement had, if any, on 6 the timing.
7 The objective was to complete the
8 syndication by mid-May, correct, that is what
9 is being told to the Leveraged Finance
10 Committee?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Sunbeam issues a press release on 13 April 3 announcing that it had failed to 14 exceed first quarter 1997 sales results?
15 A. Uhm-hmm.
16 Q. That announcement in and of itself,
17 did that have any effect on your views
18 concerning the achievability of the May 15
19 date for completing the syndication?
20 A. Not then.
21 Q. Do you recall that in the first
22 part of May Sunbeam and the three banks
23 agreed to amend the senior loan agreement to 24 reduce the amount of the financing being 25 provided?

Page 240

1 Smith
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. What precipitated that change in
4 the loan arrangement?
5 A. Let's see. I guess they were able
6 to raise more on the convertible so they
7 didn't need quite so much bank debt. We --
8 and I think they revised the amount of 9 revolving credit they think they needed, so
10 we were able to reduce the bank loan
11 accordingly. I think that's what happened
12 then. Plus --
13 Q. I'm sorry, did you have something
14 else you wanted to say?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Did Sunbeam's first quarter 1998
17 results have any bearing on the amendment to 18 the credit agreement to reduce the amount of 19 the financing?
20 A. It was part of the process.
21 Q. Did the fact that Sunbeam had
22 failed to exceed first quarter 1997 sales
23 cause the banks to request Sunbeam to reduce 24 the amount of the financing from 2 billion to 25 1,700,000,000?

Page 241

1 Smith
2 A. No, I think that is a simplistic
3 version of it. I think as more and more
4 information came out and more and more work
5 was done that the banks got, and then the 6 company agreed to reduce the amount of the 7 facilities.
8 Q. What I'm trying to understand, sir,
9 is whether -- Sunbeam, as we discussed,
10 raised an additional $250 million through its 11 convertible debenture?
12 A. Right.
13 Q. What I'm trying to understand is 14 whether that was the reason why the senior 15 loan facility was reduced by $300 million, or 16 whether there was something about the 17 Sunbeam's financial performance that caused 18 the banks to reduce the amount of the
19 financing?
20 A. I'm sorry, I misunderstood your
21 question. The, they only needed so much
22 money to make these acquisitions and the --
23 if they were able to raise more money in the 24 convertible market, then they needed less
25 bank debt, so as -- and the company made the

61 (Pages 238 to 241)

Page 242

1 Smith
2 decision to take more of the convertible, and
3 so consequently we reduced the bank debt.
4 Q. So the reason why the bank debt, at
5 least as far as you can recall, was reduced
6 from 2 billion to 1,700,000,000 was the fact
7 that Sunbeam had raised additional funds
8 through the convertible debenture offering
9 and didn't need the $2 billion until the 10 financing?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Let me show you what we are marking
13 as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 154, sir.
14 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
15 154, document bearing Bates number FUNB
16 188 through 189, marked for
17 identification, as of this date.)
18 Q. CPH Exhibit Number 154 is a
19 two-page document that is a memorandum from 20 Thomas L. Molitar and Andrew J. Gamble to 21 distribution, and bears Bates number FUNB 188
22 through 189.
23 I assume you have never seen this,
24 sir, but correct me if I'm wrong.
25 A. I have never seen this, this is not

Page 243

1 Smith
2 one of ours.
3 Q. Do you know who Tom Molitar and 4 Andrew Gamble are?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. Who are they?
7 A. They worked at First Union. And
8 Tom was on the leveraged finance as corporate
9 side, corporate lending side, and Andrew,
10 Andy was on the syndication side.
11 Q. Did you work with them in 12 connection with the loan to Sunbeam?
13 A. I did.
14 Q. Do you see there are a series of 15 numbered paragraphs in this memorandum?
16 A. I do.
17 Q. I want to focus your attention on 18 the second one.
19 A. Uhm-hmm.
20 Q. It starts with the statement "The 21 parties have agreed to amend the credit
22 agreement that will reduce FUNB exposure from 23 600 million to 510 million."
24 Do you see that statement?
25 A. I do.

Page 244

1 Smith
2 Q. I would like you to explain to me
3 the different items, bullet point items that
4 appear below that with respect to the changes
5 to the Sunbeam senior loan arrangement.
6 A. Okay.
7 Q. The total credit line, you see that
8 bullet?
9 A. Uhm-hmm.
10 Q. From 2 billion to 1.7 billion, that 11 reflects the $300 million reduction we are 12 talking about?
13 A. Yes.
14 Q. The second item, LIBOR spread, 150
15 EPS to 225 EPS?
16 A. Yup.
17 Q. Can you explain that to me?
18 A. This is the LIBOR, the spread over
19 LIBOR. So originally LIBOR plus 150 loan to 20 LIBOR plus 225 loan. I'm guessing here
21 because this isn't mine, I haven't seen this
22 before, but that's how I --
23 Q. That's how you interpret this?
24 A. Uhm-hmm.
25 Q. And the reference here is to the

Page 245

1 Smith
2 interest rate being charged?
3 A. Yes, to the company.
4 Q. And this reflects an interest rate
5 increase of about three-quarters of a
6 percent?
7 A. It does.
8 Q. Do you recall why that change was 9 made?
10 A. I think what happened here, I guess
11 this is refreshing my memory a little bit, is 12 they came out with some new numbers and new 13 projections and so the banks were, thought it 14 important to change the rate to enhance their 15 ability to sell this.
16 Q. What -- could you move your hand
17 down from your face, sir. I'm sorry.
18 What power did the banks have under
19 the credit agreement to increase the interest
20 rate being charged on the loan?
21 A. I can't remember whether we had --
22 I don't know what contractual right we had,
23 but... So the, our ability to get them to 24 agree to this, I don't remember all of the 25 bells and whistles that we did to make this

62 (Pages 242 to 245)

Page 246

1 Smith
2 happen.
3 Q. Do you remember if it was, if there
4 was, whether Sunbeam resisted the bank's
5 desire to increase the interest rate on the
6 senior loan?
7 A. I think they negotiated, but I
8 don't see resisted here.
9 Q. You believe it is possible the 10 banks had the right to impose an interest
11 rate increase?
12 A. No, I don't think so. I don't
13 think it was that easy.
14 Q. So you think there was a subsequent 15 negotiation with Sunbeam that resulted in an 16 increase in the interest rate?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. What was the reason why the banks
19 wanted to increase the interest rate?
20 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of 21 the question, calls for speculation with 22 regard to the other banks.
23 MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me rephrase
24 the question.
25 Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding

Page 247

1 Smith
2 support the increase in the interest rate on
3 the senior loan?
4 A. Yes, we did.
5 Q. And why?
6 A. To assist our ability to sell the 7 loan into the market.
8 Q. So it would help Morgan Stanley
9 Senior Funding and the others banks sell off
10 their, sell off portions of their loan to 11 Sunbeam to other banks?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. The last statement in this section
14 says "Our up-front fees have been affected by 15 the facility reduction. Those are effective
16 up-front fees, now 132 basis points up from 17 112.5 basis points."
18 Do you see that?
19 A. Yes, I do.
20 Q. Would it have been typically the 21 case that if a facility was reduced so
22 quickly after the loan is made, that the 23 up-front fees would be adjusted accordingly?
24 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
25 the question.

Page 248

1 Smith
2 A. Well, I guess I would argue that
3 the up-front fees were adjusted. All that 4 happened was they reduced the amount of the 5 facility from 2 to 1.7 and the lenders kept a
6 piece.
7 Q. Right. The up-front fees are
8 typically a percentage of the loan amount,
9 correct?
10 A. Right, the original commitment.
11 Q. And here the commitment is being 12 reduced?
13 A. Right.
14 Q. Shortly after the loan was made?
15 A. Uhm-hmm.
16 Q. Would it typically be the case that 17 the up-front fees would be adjusted under 18 those circumstances or not?
19 A. Well, this is an unusual situation,
20 so I don't know if there is anything
21 customary or normal.
22 The company in Canada, as you
23 probably know, reduced the amount of these 24 commitments at any time and they, as part of 25 this process they elected to do this and

Page 249

1 Smith
2 that's what happened.
3 Q. Did Sunbeam save any money by
4 reducing the amount of the loan commitment
5 from a billion 7 to -- excuse me, from 2
6 billion to 1,700,000,000?
7 MR. CLARE: Objection, no
8 foundation.
9 A. Well, what happened is they reduced
10 their revolving credit I guess and so they 11 didn't have to pay any unfunded on whatever
12 they reduced that to.
13 Q. Sunbeam didn't draw down the full
14 $2 billion or the full $1.7 billion
15 immediately, correct?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Were there fees being charged or 18 interest being charged on the unfunded
19 portion of the facility?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. So by reducing the facility from 2
22 billion to 1.7 billion would Sunbeam realize
23 a savings on those fees?
24 A. They would realize a savings on 25 those fees, but the net total financing fees

Page 250

1 Smith
2 on an annual basis would have gone up because
3 of a change in the interest rates. It would
4 far eclipse that savings.
5 Q. There is a statement -- let me
6 direct your attention to the second page,
7 Exhibit 154.
8 After the last numbered paragraph
9 there is a paragraph that starts with the 10 following sentence: "As a result of the 11 amendments to the credit agreement, we 12 believe that this facility will be syndicated
13 as originally expected."
14 Do you see that statement?
15 A. I do.
16 Q. Was that your view also as of May 17 8, 1998?
18 A. Oh, gee, I have no idea.
19 Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you
20 what we're marking as Coleman (Parent)
21 Holdings Deposition Exhibit Number 155. It's 22 a document, it bears the cover page Sunbeam
23 $1.7 Billion Senior Secured Credit Facilities
24 Confidential Information Memorandum, it is 25 dated June 1998, and it bears Bates number

Page 251

1 Smith
2 FUNB 10440 through 10557.
3 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
4 155, document bearing Bates number FUNB
5 10440 through 10557, marked for
6 identification, as of this date.)
7 Q. My first question, Mr. Smith, is 8 whether you can identify this document for
9 me.
10 A. It appears to be the offering
11 memorandum that was put together for the 12 syndication of the $1.7 billion Sunbeam loan.
13 Q. And the purpose of this would have 14 been what?
15 A. The purpose of this would have been 16 to provide this information to banks and 17 institutional investors who are interested in 18 buying, in being part of the syndicate of 19 this loan.
20 Q. Let me direct your attention to 21 page number 8 of the document.
22 A. I'm sorry.
23 Q. Page number 8 of the document.
24 A. Okay.
25 Q. There is a calendar.

Page 252

1 Smith
2 A. Uhm-hmm.
3 Q. A schedule, correct? Timetable?
4 A. Yes.
5 Q. And the timetable reflected here is
6 the timetable for completing the syndication,
7 correct?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. And it starts with a lender meeting
10 on June 9 and it ends with the closing and 11 funding on July 9, correct?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. Now, this schedule is somewhat
14 different from the one that you were 15 contemplating when the loan was approved by 16 the Leveraged Finance Committee on March 20,
17 correct?
18 A. Yes, it is.
19 Q. And what caused this change in 20 schedule to a target of completing the 21 syndication by July 9 instead of mid-May?
22 A. The biggest change, as I remember,
23 was that the company came up with a new set
24 of projections.
25 Q. And how did that affect the timing?

Page 253

1 Smith
2 A. Well, we wanted to make sure, this
3 is now the three lenders, the three
4 underwriters, that they understood completely
5 what was going on, that they had a full
6 knowledge of what was transpiring here, and 7 that we felt very comfortable based on the 8 due diligence and continued talks with the 9 company that these projections were in fact
10 achievable, and so we -- because we wanted
11 that to stop moving around, so we had 12 something we could incorporate into the 13 offering memo to get that into the market.
14 Q. As of the time this document was 15 provided to potential participants in the 16 syndication, was it your view personally that 17 it was still going to be possible -- well, 18 that it would be possible to complete the 19 syndication by July 9?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. Was it your expectation at that 22 point in time also that Morgan Stanley would 23 be able to reduce its participation in the 24 Sunbeam loan to the 50 to $60 million
25 arrangement that you identified as your

Page 254

1 Smith
2 objective previously?
3 A. Yes. And I believe it was also the
4 view of the other two underwriters.
5 Q. Let me direct your attention to
6 page 25.
7 A. 25? Okay.
8 Q. You see the second paragraph on 9 page 25 reads as follows, at least the 10 starting part of it. "On May 11, 1998
11 Sunbeam announced the integration with 12 expected annual cost savings of $253 million
13 to be achieved by the middle of 1999.
14 "The company also announced that it
15 expects to achieve incremental revenue of 16 $265 million as a result of revenue
17 opportunities."
18 Do you see those two statements?
19 A. I do.
20 Q. Do you know what the source was of 21 the statement here that the company expected
22 to achieve $253 million in cost savings and 23 $265 million in enhanced revenue through its
24 acquisitions?
25 A. The source I believe was Sunbeam

Page 255

1 Smith
2 because they are intimately, they, the
3 company, the issuer, intimately involved when
4 they put the offering memorandum together.
5 They provided a lot of the information. In 6 fact, most of the information, especially the 7 nonpublic information, this is a nonpublic
8 document. And they review all of this,
9 oftentimes have their lawyers review it. So
10 this to the best of my recollection came
11 right from there.
12 Q. Do you know that, are you aware
13 that Sunbeam was working with Coopers &
14 Lybrand in the spring of 1998 to develop a
15 restructuring plan for Sunbeam and the three 16 companies that it had acquired?
17 A. I, I was aware that they were
18 working on it. I'm not a hundred percent
19 sure when that happened in the March, April,
20 May context.
21 Q. Are you aware that it was Coopers &
22 Lybrand that estimated that the company could
23 expect to achieve $253 million in cost
24 savings and $265 million in enhanced revenues
25 as a result of its three acquisitions?

Page 256

1 Smith
2 A. I may have known that then, but
3 frankly I had forgotten it now.
4 Q. The 253 in cost savings and $265
5 million in revenue opportunities, are those
6 synergies from the three acquisitions?
7 Is that what this is describing?
8 A. I can't remember.
9 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam in the 10 spring of 1998 announced that it expected to 11 achieve synergies resulting from its
12 acquisitions of Coleman company, Signature
13 Brand, First Alert that substantially
14 exceeded the synergies that were estimated
15 when the acquisitions were first announced?
16 A. No
17 Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what
18 we're marking as CPH Deposition Number 156.
19 It's a document that bears the cover page
20 Sunbeam 1.7, 1,700,000,000 Senior Secured
21 Credit Facilities Lender Meeting June 9,
22 1998, it bears Bates number FUNB 10583
23 through 10650.
24 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
25 156, document bearing Bates number FUNB

Page 257

1 Smith
2 10583 through 10650, marked for
3 identification, as of this date.)
4 Q. Have you seen this document before,
5 sir?
6 A. I have.
7 Q. Can you tell me what it is?
8 A. This looks to me to be copies of 9 the slide show that we put on for the loan
10 syndication meeting.
11 Q. Was a loan syndication meeting in 12 fact held on June 9, 1998?
13 A. To the best of my knowledge, yes.
14 Q. Did you participate?
15 A. I was in attendance.
16 Q. Who prepared this document, sir?
17 A. That's an interesting concept. We,
18 the banks would be putting the pages together
19 and then sending them to the company, that 20 would add an awful lot of its comments to 21 check the veracity of the numbers because it
22 was basically their presentation to the 23 banking community, not something for -- it is 24 their document. We assisted.
25 Q. The document itself is actually

Page 258

1 Smith
2 assembled by the bankers; is that correct?
3 A. Assembled I would say in terms of 4 printed, in terms of returns, but the 5 information, the content, the tone and all
6 the rest is really set by the company.
7 Q. And the third page of the document,
8 sir?
9 A. The third page?
10 Q. Has the agenda for the meeting?
11 A. Yes, it does.
12 Q. It indicates that Michael Hart at 13 Morgan Stanley make the initial remarks and 14 also make the concluding remarks, correct?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. Do you recall if that is in fact
17 what took place that day?
18 A. I believe so.
19 Q. Did you speak at all at the 20 lenders' meeting?
21 A. I don't think so.
22 Q. Do you recall how many banks
23 attended?
24 A. Not specifically, but it was a lot.
25 Many institutions. My guess was there were

Page 259

1 Smith
2 50 to 75 between institutions both in person
3 and on the phone.
4 Q. Was it your expectation at the end
5 of the bankers' meeting that day that Morgan
6 Stanley would still be able to successfully
7 complete the syndication of the Sunbeam loan
8 by July 9?
9 A. Yes, it was.
10 Q. Did you think the bankers' meeting
11 went well that day?
12 A. I think the bankers' meeting went 13 fine. We had $500 million worth of 14 commitments from some of the major
15 institutional players, so that was a very
16 nice start to the syndication.
17 Q. Who had made initial commitments?
18 A. The testimony I'm remembering now,
19 my recollection might have been people like 20 VKM, Merrill Lynch, Eaton Vance, that type of 21 institution, but I don't remember
22 specifically.
23 Q. What would be the form of the 24 commitment; how would that have been
25 communicated to you?

Page 260

1 Smith
2 A. That would have been communicated
3 over the phone like you do for a bond.
4 Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you
5 what we're marking as CPH Exhibit Number 157.
6 It is a two-page document, it bears Morgan
7 Stanley Bates number 18702 to 703, and it
8 appears to be a printout of a Bloomberg press
9 announcement relating to the loan
10 syndication.
11 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
12 157, document bearing Morgan Stanley
13 Bates number 18702 to 703, marked for
14 identification, as of this date.)
15 Q. Have you seen this document before,
16 sir?
17 A. I don't remember. Let me
18 familiarize myself here. Okay, I have seen
19 this before.
20 Q. What is it?
21 A. It is a -- I guess it is a
22 Bloomberg, right? A Bloomberg article that
23 came out on the 11th of June, was it,
24 regarding the loan and the syndication
25 thereof.

Page 261

1 Smith
2 Q. You are quoted in this, correct?
3 A. It looks like it.
4 Q. Do you remember making the
5 statements attributed to you in this article?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. Does the article accurately
8 reflect --
9 A. Excuse me, can we turn this off?
10 MR. MARKOWSKI: Sure, we can go
11 off the record.
12 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
13 3:34 and this completes tape number 2.
14 (Recess taken.)
15 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is
16 3:39, this begins tape number 3 of the
17 videotaped deposition of Mr. Bram Smith.
18 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
19 Q. Mr. Smith, we were looking at the 20 June 11 Blumberg article, you have it right
21 there.
22 Do you have it in front of you,
23 sir?
24 A. I do.
25 Q. And I believe you indicated that

Page 262

1 Smith
2 the statements that are attributed to you in 3 this article accurately reflect the
4 statements that you made at the time?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. The third paragraph contains a
7 quote attributed to you that reads: "It is a
8 very good fundamental story, said R. Bram
9 Smith."
10 Do you see that?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. The very fundamental story that you
13 are referring to there was a reference to the 14 bank syndication?
15 A. No, I was referring to the company,
16 to the Sunbeam story with its financial 17 strength, cash flow, good market condition in 18 many brands.
19 Q. It was still your view as of June
20 11 that Morgan Stanley and the other two 21 banks would be able to successfully complete
22 the syndication by July 9?
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. Now, a couple of paragraphs further 25 down there is a statement that the company is

Page 263

1 Smith
2 being shared by shareholders.
3 Do you see that?
4 A. I do.
5 Q. The fact that there was a
6 shareholder lawsuit didn't affect your 7 thinking with respect to the ability of 8 Morgan Stanley and the other banks that
9 syndicated the senior debt?
10 A. Well, I thought that we would still 11 be able to achieve our targets. I did
12 mention in that paragraph that you cited
13 before that it will be a challenge for some 14 lenders to get approval, and that's part of 15 the reason I thought that it might be a
16 challenge to get some of the numbers,
17 especially the banks to participate in this.
18 But we had the flexibility of 19 increasing the terminal in B, which went to 20 the institutional market, and reducing the 21 amount that went into the bank market, so I
22 think all three of us, it would be ourselves,
23 First Union and Bank of America, felt that we 24 would be able to achieve our syndication
25 targets by the time advertised to, whatever

Page 264

1 Smith
2 you said, July 9.
3 Q. Right. So the shareholder lawsuit
4 didn't affect that in light of the 5 flexibility you had to sell more of the loan
6 to institutional investors?
7 A. I think it made it more of a
8 challenge, but it was still achievable in our 9 view.
10 Q. There is also a statement that
11 Sunbeam stock price had fallen more than 50
12 percent and Sunbeam shares were trading at 13 18-1/2.
14 Do you see that?
15 A. Oh, yes, I do.
16 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam shares
17 had been higher than even $50 a share in
18 March of 1998?
19 A. I don't recall that, but I'll take
20 your word for it.
21 Q. The fact that Sunbeam share price
22 had fallen so substantially did not mean that 23 you would be unsuccessful in your efforts to 24 syndicate the bank loan?
25 A. That was not my opinion at the

Page 265

1 Smith
2 time. Again we're looking at this from a
3 senior creditor's point of view. We thought
4 that the cash flow story, the market story --
5 excuse me, the market position story, their 6 balance sheet story and the rest were, made
7 this a very syndicable loan.
8 Q. Clearly Sunbeam's shares had been 9 adversely affected by the news that had been 10 coming out about the company since March of
11 1998, correct?
12 A. It looks like that.
13 Q. But the fact that its share price
14 was being adversely affected did not mean
15 that the senior lending aspect of the March
16 transactions would be adversely affected?
17 A. It doesn't necessarily move in 18 concert.
19 Q. And why is that?
20 A. Well, because banks are senior
21 secured lenders, the leverage was relatively 22 low on a bank basis. The equity is the, are 23 the owners and they take all of the residual 24 risk.
25 So the impact of a high stock price

Page 266

1 Smith
2 or a low stock price on the creditworthiness
3 and the cash flow characteristics of the 4 company are sometimes not related, oftentimes
5 not related.
6 Q. So, for example, Sunbeam's ability
7 to maintain a $50 share price or $40 share
8 price wouldn't be something that was 9 necessarily significant to you in evaluating
10 the creditworthiness of Sunbeam for the 11 purposes of the senior loan?
12 MR. CLARE: Object to the form of
13 the question. You can answer.
14 A. When we evaluate the feasibility of 15 doing these loans, we look at the balance
16 sheet and the business position, cash flow
17 and all the rest, not necessarily.
18 What's going on in the stock
19 market, whether the stock goes up or down is 20 not going to affect the balance sheet of the
21 company.
22 Q. There is a statement right below
23 that under Loan Division, the heading Loan
24 Division.
25 Do you see that?

Page 267

1 Smith
2 A. Yes, I do.
3 Q. The loan is divided in a $750
4 million portion typically sold to
5 institutional investors and a $950 million
6 piece that is typically sold to banks.
7 That is something you just alluded
8 to, correct?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. The portion from which you had
11 already received an indication of interest
12 that you referred to earlier in your
13 testimony was which piece of this?
14 A. The 750 million piece.
15 Q. And your recollection today is that 16 you had commitments for about 500 million of
17 that 750?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. Had you received any commitments
20 for the bank piece?
21 A. Not to the best of my recollection.
22 Normally the banks move much, much slower.
23 Q. Now, two days after this, on June
24 13 Mr. Dunlap was terminated.
25 Do you recall that happening?

Page 268

1 Smith
2 A. Yes, I do.
3 Q. Did that have an effect on the
4 syndication?
5 A. Yup.
6 Q. In what way?
7 A. Well, that would be a -- having the 8 CEO be fired by the board makes it an 9 extremely challenging situation, a lot of 10 uncertainty.
11 Q. Do you know why Sunbeam's board
12 determined that it was appropriate to 13 terminate Mr. Dunlap?
14 MR. CLARE: Objection, no
15 foundation, calls for speculation.
16 A. No.
17 Q. Let me show you a one-page
18 document, sir, that we are going to mark as 19 CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 158, it bears
20 Bates number CPH 1392612 and it is a June 15,
21 1998 article from the American Banker. It
22 bears the headline "Morgan Stanley Secures
23 500 Million Commitment for 1.7 Billion
24 Sunbeam Loan."
25 (Cleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit

Page 269

1 Smith
2 158, document bearing Bates number CPH
3 1392612, marked for identification, as
4 of this date.)
5 Q. Have you seen this document before,
6 this article before, sir?
7 A. Yup.
8 Q. There are several statements
9 attributable to you in this article.
10 Do they accurately report the
11 statements that you made to the reporter?
12 A. Give me a second and I'll look at 13 it. Okay.
14 Q. This article is dated June 15,
15 1998. Do you know if you made your
16 statements before or after -- the pending
17 question was does the article accurately
18 reflect the statements you made to the 19 reporter?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. Do you know if you made those 22 statements before or after Mr. Dunlap was 23 terminated?
24 A. Don't remember.
25 Q. As of the time you made these

Page 270

1 Smith
2 statements to the American Banker reporter,
3 were you still optimistic that Morgan Stanley
4 would be able to complete the loan
5 syndication successfully?
6 A. When was he terminated?
7 Q. On June 13, which was a Saturday I
8 believe.
9 A. I think when you say confident we
10 would be able to do this, I think increasing,
11 some concern that that's going to be a
12 challenge.
13 Q. Do you know if this interview took
14 place before the news of Mr. Dunlap's
15 termination --
16 A. I can't remember.
17 Q. -- had been disclosed?
18 A. Can't remember.
19 Q. How did you learn that Mr. Dunlap
20 had been terminated?
21 A. I think I might have gotten a phone
22 call from Bill Strong over the weekend.
23 Q. What did Mr. Strong tell you?
24 A. That he had been, that Mr. Dunlap
25 had been terminated.

Page 271

1 Smith
2 Q. Did he say anything else?
3 A. Not that I, not that I recall. The
4 news was stunning and very new and I can't
5 remember whether they picked an interim CEO
6 or what they were going to do.
7 Q. Did Mr. Strong tell you how he had
8 learned this news?
9 A. I don't recall.
10 Q. Did Mr. Strong tell you why the 11 Sunbeam board had taken this action?
12 A. Not that I recall.
13 Q. Did he offer his thoughts
14 concerning why it may have happened?
15 A. Not that I recall.
16 Q. Did you and Mr. Strong have any 17 discussion about the effect this would have 18 on the syndication?
19 A. Not that I recall, but I'm sure we 20 did.
21 Q. Did Mr. Dunlap's termination have
22 an immediate effect on Morgan Stanley's plans
23 to syndicate the senior loan?
24 A. I'm going to confuse a little bit
25 of the timing here, but pretty shortly or

Page 272

1 Smith
2 during this period we decided, that would be
3 the three of us, the three underwriters
4 decided to cease the syndication of the loan.
5 So did that happen on the 15th or 6 16th or whenever I don't remember, but it was 7 all in that period of time.
8 Q. Let me show you what we're going to 9 mark as CPH Exhibit 159, it's a one-page
10 document, it bears Bates number CPH 1392969.
11 It appears to be an American Banker article
12 dated June 17, 1998, and it bears the 13 headline "Morgan Stanley Withdraws Loan To 14 Sunbeam After CEO's Firing."
15 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
16 159, document bearing Bates number CPH
17 1392969, marked for identification, as
18 of this date.)
19 Q. Have you finished reviewing it,
20 sir?
21 A. I did, uhm-hmm.
22 Q. Have you seen this before?
23 A. I must have. I don't really
24 remember.
25 Q. Are the statements attributed to

Page 273

1 Smith
2 you in this article accurate?
3 A. I don't think so because I'm
4 confused, I don't know what this one
5 statement attributed to me means.
6 "But I would say the flow of 7 information is typical of today's
8 lender-borrower relationship." A better word
9 might be disappointed, it doesn't even flow.
10 I'm quoted to sell down the loan
11 eventually, I think that is kind of probably 12 true. Am I quoted again?
13 I don't understand what the first
14 one means, I don't remember saying that.
15 Q. You don't remember saying "But I
16 would say the flow of information is typical 17 of today's lender-borrower relationship"?
18 A. No, and then certainly not jump the 19 position to the next sentence I'm imputed to 20 have made when a better word might have been 21 disappointed.
22 Q. What about the statement in the 23 next paragraph that "Morgan Stanley as well
24 as the co-syndicators, Bank of America Corp.
25 and First Union Corp., were not giving up on

69 (Pages 270 to 273)

Page 274

1 Smith
2 the deal"?

3 A. That is not my statement.
4 Q. It says "Mr. Smith stressed."
5 A. But again it is not a quote, that's
6 the writer.
7 Q. Do you recall saying to the author
8 of this article that Morgan Stanley and other
9 banks were not giving up on syndication?
10 A. I don't know what not giving up on 11 the deal means. It says here in my copy not 12 giving up on the deal versus not giving up on 13 the syndication, so this is -- the Sunbeam
14 had our money so it is kind of a meaningless
15 concept, that statement.
16 Q. Well, let me direct your attention
17 to the right-hand column.
18 A. Uhm-hmm.
19 Q. One, two, three, four, five, sixth
20 paragraph. It says "Mr. Smith said his team
21 will have to meet with Sunbeam's new
22 management to develop a strategy. Pending
23 that meeting a new run at the market is 24 likely later this year he said."
25 Do you recall making that

Page 275

1 Smith
2 statement?

3 A. I remember alluding to the fact
4 that they had 'o get to the bottom of what
5 was going on and then try to restart the 6 syndication some time, yeah.
7 Q. So your plan as of June 17, in any
8 event, Mr. Smith, was to attempt to go back
9 to the syndication market at some point in 10 the future?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Did you have any idea as of this 13 point in time how quickly you would be able 14 to do that?
15 A. No.
16 Q. Did you have any hope concerning
17 how quickly you would be able to do that?
18 A. Any what?
19 Q. Hope.
20 A. I always have hope. Remember what
21 happened here. Dunlap's fired, right, there
22 is nothing about any numbers, so the issue is 23 who is going to be the new CEO and what is 24 going to be the new strategy, so we have to 25 sort that out and see who that's going to be

Page 276

1 Smith
2 and then, and then get ready and take it to
3 market some time later. Can't do it too much
4 in the summer, so that's what I meant.
5 Q. Now, Mr. Levin had been announced
6 as Mr. Dunlap's replacement by this point; is
7 that correct?
8 A. I don't remember. Is that what it
9 says here? If not, it was pretty darn close.
10 Q. I'm looking for it, I think it is 11 in here somewhere.
12 Putting that aside, whether it is 13 in the article or not, do you recall that 14 fairly shortly, within a matter of days after 15 Mr. Dunlap was terminated, Mr. Levin was 16 identified as the new chief executive officer
17 of Sunbeam?
18 A. Yes, in the fourth paragraph. Yes,
19 I thought it was pretty close, within days if 20 not a week.
21 Q. Did you have any reaction to the 22 appointment of Mr. Levin as the replacement
23 for Mr. Dunlap?
24 A. Not really. I didn't know him.
25 Q. Do you recall anyone at Morgan

Page 277

1 Smith
2 Stanley expressing at this point in time
3 objections to Mr. Levin's appointment as the 4 new chief executive officer of Sunbeam?
5 A. Not that I'm aware of.
6 Q. Or any reservations about that?
7 A. Not that I'm aware of.
8 Q. What, sir -- move to a different
9 topic.
10 What did Morgan Stanley Senior
11 Funding do to attempt to assess the potential
12 synergies that Sunbeam could realize by
13 acquiring Coleman company?
14 A. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding --
15 let's see -- took advantage of what the 16 firm's effort had been on trying to 17 understand the synergies.
18 Also at the time we were exploring
19 the synergy of potential with the other two 20 underwriting banks, because again all of the 21 due diligence regarding the loan was done
22 with them as well.
23 Q. Do you agree that the evaluation of 24 potential synergies when combining two
25 companies, like combining Sunbeam and Coleman

Page 278

1 Smith
2 company, is highly dependent on the plans of
3 management?
4 A. The synergy strategy and plans and
5 the execution would rely on the management,
6 yes.
7 Q. So, for example, was Morgan Stanley
8 Senior Funding in a position where it could
9 independently assess the potential synergies
10 that Sunbeam could achieve by combining
11 itself with Coleman company?
12 A. Morgan Stanley, the other two banks
13 would probe the management and ask questions
14 on their synergy plans, remember those are 15 their plans, and therefore test, ask
16 questions to them about their ability to 17 execute it, those synergies on the timetable
18 given.
19 Q. So Sunbeam developed its plan for 20 combining itself with Coleman, correct?
21 A. That is normally how it works, and 22 to the best of my recollection that is how it
23 worked here.
24 Q. And they told Morgan Stanley what 25 their expectations were with respect to

Page 279

1 Smith
2 potential cost savings, correct?
3 A. And First Union and Bank of
4 America.
5 Q. Do you know if any of Sunbeam's
6 plans were estimates of potential cost
7 savings dependent upon ideas or information
8 that Sunbeam obtained from Coleman company?
9 A. I have --
10 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation,
11 call for speculation. You can answer.
12 A. I have no idea.
13 THE WITNESS: Sorry.
14 Q. Did you have any discussions
15 yourself with Sunbeam on the subject of 16 potential synergies prior to the funding of 17 the senior loan?
18 A. I don't believe so.
19 Q. Did, do you know if Mr. Hart did?
20 A. I don't know.
21 Q. Did Mr. Hart ever tell you that
22 Sunbeam's plans for potential cost savings
23 had originated with Mr. Levin?
24 A. I don't recall that.
25 Q. In connection with the position you

Page 280

1 Smith
2 took with the Leveraged Finance Committee
3 concerning approval of the senior loan to 4 Sunbeam, did you place any weight at all on
5 any information that Sunbeam or Morgan
6 Stanley had received from Mr. Levin
7 concerning potential synergies?
8 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
9 A. Not that I'm aware of.
10 Q. Do you have any basis today, sir,
11 for saying that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
12 was defrauded as a result of false statements
13 made either to it or Morgan Stanley or to 14 Sunbeam, by Jerry Levin concerning potential
15 synergies?
16 MR. CLARE: Foundation, calls for
17 a legal conclusion.
18 A. I missed that, could you read that
19 back to me.
20 Q. I'll state it again, sir.
21 As you sit here today, do you have
22 any factual basis for -- let me start over.
23 As you sit here today, sir, do you
24 believe that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
25 was defrauded as a result of statements made

Page 281

1 Smith
2 by Jerry Levin to either Sunbeam, Morgan
3 Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
4 concerning potential synergies that Sunbeam
5 might realize by acquiring Coleman?
6 MR. CLARE: Same objections.
7 A. I have no idea.
8 Q. As you sit here today, sir, do you
9 believe that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
10 was misled by any statements made by Jerry 11 Levin to Morgan Stanley, to Sunbeam, or to 12 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding concerning
13 potential synergies?
14 MR. CLARE: Same objections.
15 A. No idea.
16 Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what
17 we're marking as CPH Deposition Exhibit
18 Number 160, it is a one-page document that
19 bears Bates number Morgan Stanley
20 confidential 3143.
21 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
22 160, document bearing Bates number
23 Morgan Stanley confidential 3143,
24 marked for identification, as of this
25 date.)

Page 282

1 Smith
2 Q. Have you ever seen this document
3 before, sir?
4 A. I don't know. It doesn't look
5 familiar.
6 Q. Put aside the handwriting. Have
7 you ever seen the typed portion of this
8 document before?
9 A. Yes, I guess I did. I guess I
10 have.
11 Q. When was that?
12 A. I saw it yesterday. And I can't 13 remember if I saw it when, during the
14 transaction.
15 Q. As you sit here today, you have no
16 recollection of seeing this during your work
17 in February and March of 1998?
18 A. No, not really.
19 Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
20 A. No.
21 Q. Looking at the, this list of 15
22 items, sir, --
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. -- do you know whether in
25 connection with Morgan Stanley Senior

Page 283

1 Smith
2 Funding's evaluation of potential synergies,
3 that any of the items on this list were taken
4 into account?
5 A. I really don't know.
6 Q. You have no knowledge that they
7 were, correct, sir?
8 A. I have no knowledge they were, I
9 have no knowledge they weren't.
10 Q. Do you have any information to 11 suggest that the items on this list in any 12 way affected the price that Sunbeam paid for
13 Coleman company?
14 MR. CLARE: Objection, no
15 foundation.
16 A. No, no idea.
17 Q. Do you have any basis for believing
18 that the items on this list were critical to 19 Sunbeam's assessment of Coleman's fair
20 acquisition value?
21 MR. CLARE: Same objection.
22 A. No idea.
23 Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley or 24 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ever suggest to 25 you, sir, that information that Sunbeam or

Page 284

1 Smith
2 Morgan Stanley had received from Coleman
3 relating to potential synergies was grossly
4 overstated?
5 MR. CLARE: Objection to form and
6 foundation.
7 A. I have no idea.
8 Q. Now, you indicated that the 9 syndication was pulled from the market upon
10 Mr. Dunlap's termination, correct?
11 A. It was shortly thereafter, the 12 Monday or Tuesday after the weekend.
13 Q. And the reason for pulling the 14 syndication from the market was Mr. Dunlap's
15 termination, correct?
16 A. That was the, that was the 17 catalyst.
18 Q. It didn't have anything to do with 19 any information that Coleman company had
20 provided to Sunbeam or to Morgan Stanley
21 relating to potential synergies, did it?
22 A. No, not that I was aware of.
23 Q. Your decision to pull the 24 syndication from the market didn't have
25 anything to do with any information that you

Page 285

1 Smith
2 had, you or anyone else from Morgan Stanley
3 had received from the Coleman company related
4 to the synergies?
5 A. No, it did not.
6 Q. Did you ever express to anyone that
7 Jerry Levin should not continue to serve as
8 the chief executive officer of Sunbeam
9 because he had exaggerated the potential
10 synergies that Sunbeam might achieve by
11 acquiring Coleman company?
12 A. No.
13 Q. Do you have any knowledge
14 concerning what synergies Sunbeam in fact did
15 realize as a result of acquiring Coleman
16 company?
17 A. I do not.
18 Q. Do you have any reason to believe
19 that Mr. Perelman and others at McAndrews &
20 Forbes did not expect Sunbeam to achieve
21 substantial synergies from Coleman company?
22 A. Did you say did not?
23 Q. I'll ask the question over.
24 Do you have any reason to believe
25 that Mr. Perelman or others at McAndrews &

Page 286

1 Smith
2 Forbes or Coleman (Parent) Holdings did not
3 expect Sunbeam to achieve substantial
4 synergies as a result of its acquisition of
5 Coleman company?
6 MR CLARE: Objection, calls for
7 speculation.
8 A. I really have no idea.
9 Q. My question is whether you have any
10 reason to believe that today?
11 A. I have no reason to believe that
12 today.
13 Q. In your communications with the 14 bankers at Bank of America or First Union,
15 did you ever indicate that the synergy
16 figures that MSSF was relying upon in 17 connection with evaluating the senior loan to 18 Sunbeam had originated with Mr. Levin?
19 A. I don't believe so.
20 Q. Or the Coleman company?
21 A. I don't believe so.
22 Q. Or with McAndrews & Forbes?
23 A. I don't believe so.
24 Q. Or with Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
25 A. I don't believe so.

Page 287

1 Smith
2 Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what
3 we're going to mark as Coleman (Parent)
4 Exhibit 161, a three-page document, it bears
5 Bates number CPH 1010442 to 444.
6 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
7 161, document bearing Bates number CPH
8 1010442 to 444, marked for
9 identification, as of this date.)
10 Q. Earlier today, sir, you were 11 attempting to recall the name of someone at 12 McAndrews & Forbes named Irwin.
13 Was that Mr. Engelman?
14 A. I believe so. Isn't he the CFO?
15 Q. The reason I'm trying to assert, is 16 this is a memo from Mr. Engelman to Mr. Levin
17 concerning plans for a bank meeting on June 18 19.
19 Do you see that?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. And there is a list of attendees
22 that are anticipated to have attended that 23 meeting from Morgan Stanley, from Bank of 24 America and from First Union.
25 Do you see that?

Page 288

1 Smith
2 A. I do.
3 Q. And you're listed as an attendee,
4 do you see that?
5 A. I do.
6 Q. Do you recall attending a bank
7 meeting on June 19 with representatives of 8 McAndrews & Forbes, Mr. Levin?
9 A. Had a lot of meetings and my guess
10 is I was probably there.
11 Q. Do you recall attending a meeting
12 shortly after Mr. Dunlap's termination at 13 McAndrews & Forbes offices in Manhattan where 14 Mr. Hart, Mr. Smith, with you, Mr. Rankin and 15 Mr. Kitts were present from Morgan Stanley?
16 A. I remember going to McAndrews &
17 Forbes that week. I couldn't swear that 18 those were the fellows in attendance.
19 Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what
20 we're going to mark for identification as CPH
21 Exhibit Number 162. It's a document that
22 bears Morgan Stanley Bates number 268988
23 through 891 and it's a Bank of America
24 letterhead, memorandum from Deirdre Doyle to 25 John H. Shannahan.

Page 289

2 (Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit
3 162, document bearing Morgan Stanley
4 Bates number 268988 through 891, marked
5 for identification, as of this date.)
6 Q. I'm not going to ask you to read
7 the whole document, sir, but I'm going to 8 refer you to a couple of entries in this
9 document.
10 The first sentence indicates this
11 is a report on a meeting held by McAndrews &
12 Forbes offices on June 1998. Representatives
13 of Bank of America, First Union and Morgan
14 Stanley attended.
15 Do you see that statement?
16 A. Yes, I do.
17 Q. And there is a list of McAndrews &
18 Forbes participants.
19 Do you see that?
20 A. Yes, I do.
21 Q. Does this refresh your recollection
22 concerning your participation in a meeting at 23 McAndrews & Forbes offices on June 1998?
24 Mr. Gittis, Mr. Levin, Mr. Shapiro,
25 Mr. Engelman, Mr. Slotkin and Mr. Lipton of

Page 290

1 Smith
2 Wachtel Lipton were present?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. Is it your recollection now that
5 you were in fact present at that meeting?
6 A. Yes. I thought you were referring
7 to a different meeting. I don't remember
8 Kitts, for example, being at this meeting.
9 Q. Do you recall -- put the document
10 down for a second, sir.
11 Do you recall at this meeting that
12 Mr. Levin addressed his views of analysis
13 that Coopers & Lybrand had done for Sunbeam
14 relating to potential synergies or cost
15 savings that Sunbeam might realize through 16 the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman
17 company?
18 A. Do I remember him commenting on it?
19 Q. Yes.
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. What do you remember Mr. Levin
22 saying?
23 A. I think -- it is a long time ago.
24 I think he had doubts about how realistic
25 those were.

Page 291

1 Smith
2 Q. Do you remember what words he used?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Do you remember how strongly he
5 expressed his doubts?
6 A. No.
7 Q. Let me direct your attention to the
8 bottom third of the first page of Exhibit
9 162. It starts out, there is a bullet point
10 that starts "In reviewing Dunlap's 1998 EPS
11 expectations for Sunbeam"?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. I would like you to read beginning
14 there through the bottom of the page.
15 A. Okay.
16 Q. Does this refresh your recollection
17 at all on statements made by Mr. Levin
18 concerning his views of the Coopers & Lybrand
19 synergy analysis?
20 A. Not really. I just remembered at 21 the meeting he was pretty derogatory toward 22 the whole thing. I really can't say that it
23 does jog my memory.
24 Q. Do you recall being advised that
25 Coopers & Lybrand had been fired?

Page 292

1 Smith
2 A. I think I do.
3 Q. And that the company was going to
4 refuse to pay Coopers & Lybrand's fee?
5 A. I think I heard that too. I think
6 I heard that too, yes.
7 Q. And the company was considering an 8 action to recover the fees that Coopers &
9 Lybrand had been paid?
10 A. I don't know about that.
11 Q. And did you understand, sir, from 12 anything Mr. Levin had said concerning 13 Coopers & Lybrand's study, that Mr. Levin was 14 expressing the view that information or ideas
15 that he had provided to Sunbeam concerning
16 potential synergies before the acquisition
17 took place were in any way exaggerated or 18 unreasonable?
19 A. I don't remember him addressing
20 that issue.
21 Q. When you left the meeting did you
22 think that Mr. Levin had confessed to 23 misleading Morgan Stanley --
24 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
25 Q. -- relating to potential synergies?

Page 293

1 Smith
2 A. I had no, no view on that. I
3 wasn't part of the original synergy
4 discussion way back when. He didn't comment
5 here to the best of my recollection.
6 Q. I'm asking what your take-away was 7 from the meeting.
8 When you walked out did you think
9 that Jerry Levin just told us that he misled
10 Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam concerning the 11 potential synergies that Sunbeam might
12 achieve by acquiring Coleman company?
13 A. That was not my impression.
14 Q. At any point, sir, after Mr.
15 Dunlap's termination were you advised that
16 Coleman (Parent) Holdings wanted to rescind
17 the sale of its interest in Coleman company,
18 get the stock back?
19 A. I think so.
20 Q. What do you recall about that?
21 A. Not much. Basically what you said,
22 that is what they wanted to do.
23 Q. What was Morgan Stanley's or Morgan
24 Stanley Senior Funding's position with 25 respect to whether that was an advisable

Page 294

1 Smith
2 thing to do for Sunbeam?
3 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
4 A. I don't remember.
5 Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley or 6 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding taking the 7 position that Sunbeam should refuse to
8 rescind the acquisition of Coleman company?
9 A. No.
10 Q. Do you recall coming to the 11 conclusion that it would adversely affect 12 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's exposure on 13 the senior loan if Sunbeam agreed to rescind
14 the acquisition of my client's interest in 15 Coleman?
16 A. No, I don't remember.
17 Q. When, sir, did Morgan Stanley --
18 let me ask a foundational question.
19 The Sunbeam senior loan has never 20 been syndicated; is that correct?
21 A. True.
22 Q. When did you finally conclude that 23 it would not be possible to syndicate the 24 senior loan?
25 A. I don't know if I had posed it that

Page 295

1 Smith
2 way. I think probably came to the conclusion
3 you couldn't syndicate it in '98, sometime in 4 the fall, and I don't know when we, when I
5 decided that it would be very problematic to 6 syndicate it in its current form.
7 Q. Do you recall whether you still
8 thought throughout the course of 1999 that it
9 might be possible yet to complete the 10 syndication of the loan?
11 A. I didn't think it would be possible
12 to syndicate the loan in the format that we 13 had.
14 Q. And what do you mean by "the format
15 that we had"?
16 A. As an all senior bank deal.
17 Q. What alteration did you think would 18 be necessary?
19 A. I didn't know what would work, but
20 I knew that you couldn't sell that much bank
21 debt into the bank market, so that the bank
22 debt was reduced by a form of, by form of 23 capital markets, high yield or something.
24 Q. When did you come to that
25 conclusion?

Page 296

1 Smith
2 A. I don't remember.
3 Q. Do you think it was sometime in
4 1999?
5 A. It might have been.
6 Q. It might have been later than that?
7 A. I don't think so. Probably
8 mid-'99.
9 Q. Did you have any continuing
10 responsibility for monitoring the Morgan
11 Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam after 12 the loan closed in March of 1998?
13 A. The monitoring at Morgan Stanley
14 somebody covered for it.
15 Q. Did you have any continuing
16 responsibility of any sort after March of 17 1998 relating to the loan?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. What was that?
20 A. That was to -- you said after 21 March, so of course go through the 22 syndication, restructuring, probably said
23 syndicate it, pull it, talk to the other
24 banks and to the -- to Levin about what might 25 be -- what might be done, series of

Page 297

1 Smith
2 amendments and waivers, then my involvement
3 lessens as the credit folks and Mitch Petrick
4 get more and more involved.
5 Q. Mitch Petrick's involvement was on
6 behalf of the credit department?
7 A. No, it was on the part of the fixed
8 income/high yield department. He had some,
9 good experience on workouts, so they wanted
10 to take advantage of that because it migrated
11 from a distribution exercise to a recovery
12 phase.
13 Q. Did you ever communicate in writing
14 after March of 1998 relating to the Sunbeam
15 loan?
16 A. I don't believe so.
17 Q. Did you ever communicate by E-mail?
18 A. I don't believe so.
19 Q. Did you ever receive E-mails after 20 March of 1998 relating to the Sunbeam loan?
21 A. I can't recall.
22 Q. Is it possible that you did?
23 A. I guess some possibility.
24 Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
25 have any sort of system for rating the loans

Page 298

1 Smith
2 in its portfolio?
3 A. That was a credit department
4 function, so I don't recall. I mean if it
5 was, it was a credit department function and
6 I don't recall.
7 Q. You don't recall whether there was
8 a rating system of any sort?
9 A. Right.
10 Q. Do you know if the Sunbeam loan had 11 some initial sort of rating or evaluation
12 from the credit department when you first 13 met?
14 A. Not specifically, but as part and
15 parcel they would sign off and have to say
16 that they were okay. I don't -- I can't
17 recall what, if any, rating they put on it
18 because I don't remember when the rating
19 system started there.
20 Q. Before you left Morgan Stanley
21 Senior Funding was there a rating system in 22 place?
23 A. I believe so.
24 Q. How large a portfolio of loans does
25 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding maintain?

Page 299

1 Smith
2 MR. CLARE: Objection. What time
3 period?
4 A. I don't know.
5 Q. Let's say in 1998. Apart from the
6 Sunbeam loan, do you know how large a loan
7 portfolio Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had
8 at that point?
9 A. Not really, can't remember.
10 Q. Was it modest?
11 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
12 A. I can't recall the numbers. I
13 guess you could ask them.
14 Q. You just don't have a recollection
15 one way or the other?
16 A. Yes, it's a long time ago.
17 Q. Was part of the business strategy
18 of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to maintain
19 a substantial loan portfolio?
20 MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
21 A. The strategy of Morgan Stanley was 22 to make loans, distribute them, hold a piece,
23 that was the strategy.
24 Q. And the piece that you would hold
25 would be the smallest piece you could

Page 300

1 Smith
2 possibly hold?
3 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
4 A. No, it would be a meaningful,
5 meaningful piece.
6 Q. The pieces that were held after the
7 initial syndication, were those sometimes
8 later marketed?
9 A. Depending on the price, depending 10 on the amounts, sometimes.
11 Q. You were the president of Morgan
12 Stanley Senior Funding, --
13 A. Uhm-hmm.
14 Q. -- correct, sir?
15 But you didn't have any
16 responsibility with respect to monitoring the 17 performance of the loans in the Morgan
18 Stanley Senior Funding portfolio?
19 A. That was a function that was the 20 responsibility of the credit department.
21 Q. Who in the credit department would 22 be responsible for evaluating the loans in,
23 that were being carried in the Morgan Stanley
24 Senior Funding portfolio?
25 A. I don't know the specific person

Page 301

1 Smith
2 who was tasked with that responsibility, but
3 the person who had the overall responsibility
4 for the credit department to include the loan
5 portfolio was Rick Felix.
6 Q. Were your views sought at any point
7 by the credit department relating to the 8 quality of any of the loans in the MSSF
9 portfolio?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Were your views sought concerning
12 the quality of the Sunbeam loan at any point?
13 A. I wouldn't say the quality. Views
14 on what to do, sure, all the time.
15 Q. Was there a point, if there was a
16 point, where Sunbeam -- excuse me, where 17 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding wrote off some 18 portion of the Sunbeam senior loan, took a
19 reserve against it?
20 A. I think there were several points
21 that they took off.
22 Q. Do you remember when that took
23 place?
24 A. No, can't remember.
25 Q. Was your input sought at that time

Page 302

1 Smith
2 when the company first took a --
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. What was done, was there a
5 write-off, was there a reserve?
6 A. It was a mark-to-market so we just
7 wrote it down.
8 Q. Do you recall the amount of the 9 first write-down?
10 A. I do not.
11 Q. Do you recall whether it took place
12 in 1999?
13 A. Do not.
14 Q. Do you recall whether it took place
15 later than that?
16 A. I don't remember.
17 Q. Let me go back to 1998. Do you
18 recall whether Morgan Stanley wrote off any 19 portion of the Sunbeam loan in 1998?
20 A. Don't know. I can't remember.
21 Just can't remember.
22 Q. Have you ever seen any reports
23 relating to how much, if any amounts Morgan
24 Stanley Senior Funding has lost on the senior
25 loan of Sunbeam?

Page 303

1 Smith
2 A. No.
3 Q. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding now
4 owns a substantial portion of Sunbeam's
5 successor, American Household, correct?
6 A. Yes, to the best of my
7 understanding.
8 Q. Do you know at what value Morgan
9 Stanley Senior Funding carries its equity
10 ownership in American Household?
11 MR. CLARE: Objection, no
12 foundation, calls for speculation.
13 A. I have no idea.
14 Q. At the time you left Morgan Stanley
15 do you know what Morgan Stanley Senior 16 Funding's plans were for its investment in 17 American Household?
18 A. No idea.
19 Q. You indicated that Mitch Petrick
20 became involved in aspects of the senior
21 loan, correct?
22 A. The senior loan of Sunbeam, yes.
23 Q. And do you know what the nature of 24 his activities has been?
25 MR. CLARE: Objection.

Page 304

1 Smith
2 A. Regarding the Sunbeam loan?
3 Q. Correct.
4 MR. CLARE: Objection on
5 foundation grounds, calls for speculation.
6 A. Not lately.
7 Q. What was it prior to the time you
8 left Morgan Stanley?
9 A. Don't, can't comment about that.
10 Can comment about that summer he started to 11 get involved with the credit people in terms
12 of the meetings with the other banks and then
13 McAndrew, basically Jerry and the company.
14 Q. That, you refer to "that summer,"
15 referring to the summer of 1998?
16 A. Summer of 1998.
17 Q. Did Mr. Petrick remain involved
18 with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to 19 Sunbeam through the entire time you were at
20 Morgan Stanley?
21 A. To varying degrees I believe that's 22 true.
23 Q. Do you know if he is still involved
24 today?
25 A. Under supervisory conditions would

Page 305

1 Smith
2 be my guess, but that is speculation on my
3 part.
4 Q. But that's your belief, correct?
5 MR. CLARE: Well, objection on 6 foundation grounds.
7 A. That is my speculation.
8 Q. That was the case when you left
9 Morgan Stanley, correct?
10 A. I believe so.
11 Q. Did Mitch Petrick ever express the 12 view to you that Jerry Levin had misled
13 Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam relating to the 14 potential synergies that Sunbeam could
15 achieve in acquiring Coleman company?
16 A. No, I do not believe so.
17 Q. Was there ever a time, sir, where 18 you were asked to preserve any documents or 19 electronic records you had that related to 20 the Sunbeam transactions?
21 A. I believe there were.
22 Q. Do you recall when that first
23 occurred?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Do you recall who made that, gave

Page 306

1 Smith
2 you that direction?
3 A. I think it would be somebody from
4 the legal department, so I don't have a name.
5 Q. Do you recall if it was shortly
6 after the transactions closed?
7 A. I, my best recollection is it was
8 late '98, but that's just an educated guess.
9 Q. Do you recall getting a written
10 direction?
11 A. I believe so, as well as
12 telephones, calls.
13 Q. What, if anything, did you do to 14 preserve the documents and electronic
15 records?
16 A. I gathered them up, gave them to 17 whomever wanted them.
18 Q. Do you have a recollection as to 19 who you gave them to?
20 A. Not any specific individual. I
21 think it was somebody in the credit
22 department. Excuse me, somebody in the legal 23 department.
24 Q. Did you gather the materials
25 personally?

Page 307

1 Smith
2 A. Part of them were personal, part of
3 them I had my assistant get.
4 Q. Who was your assistant back then?
5 A. I don't remember. The timing, I
6 don't remember who it was.
7 Q. Is it someone who worked solely for 8 you or did she work for other people also?
9 I'm assuming it is a woman, but I
10 may be incorrect.
11 Was it a woman?
12 A. It was a woman and she worked for 13 the group.
14 Q. Did she also work for Mr. Hart?
15 A. Yes, but more indirectly.
16 Q. Do you recall if there were other
17 occasions after that initial inquiry, where 18 you were asked to gather materials you had
19 relating to Sunbeam?
20 A. My memory is faulty, but I would
21 bet that I was asked at least two more times.
22 When I say "I," anybody involved with the 23 Sunbeam transaction.
24 Q. Why do you say that?
25 A. Why do I say everybody?

Page 308

1 Smith
2 Q. No, why do you say it happened at
3 least two more times?
4 A. Just my recollection that
5 periodically something would come up from the 6 legal department, or we get more phone calls
7 saying are you sure you have given us
8 everything, please double-check.
9 Q. Did you update your search, see if 10 you had any new materials that you didn't
11 have before?
12 A. We would research the files and the 13 desks and all.
14 Q. Do you recall whether you received
15 any such inquiry after my client filed this
16 lawsuit against Sunbeam -- against Morgan
17 Stanley -- I'm going to start over.
18 Do you recall whether you received
19 an inquiry from the legal department after my 20 client filed its lawsuit against Morgan
21 Stanley in 2003, concerning whether you had 22 any additional Sunbeam-related documents or 23 electronic records?
24 A. When in 2003 was the suit filed?
25 Q. The spring of 2003.

Page 309

1 Smith
2 A. So I was no longer there.
3 Q. You left Morgan Stanley?
4 A. First of February.
5 Q. February. How many communications
6 or meetings, sir, would you say that you had
7 with Sunbeam management in 1998 after Mr.
8 Dunlap was terminated?
9 A. Probably 12 to 15.
10 Q. So 12 to 15 what, meetings?
11 A. Meetings.
12 Q. How many telephone conversations
13 would you say you had?
14 A. Double that number probably. And 15 let me be clear. Many of those meetings and 16 almost all of those phone calls were
17 conference calls, so there would be myself,
18 two or three people from Morgan Stanley, the 19 folks from the other banks.
20 Q. Were you cautioned at all, sir, by 21 anyone not to maintain a written record of 22 any of your communications with post Dunlap
23 management at Sunbeam?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Did you make an effort to document

78 (Pages 306 to 309)

Page 310

1 Smith
2 in any way the substance of your
3 communications with Sunbeam management during 4 that time period?
5 A. I did not.
6 Q. Why was that?
7 A. There were other members of the 8 team that were there to take the notes and 9 write any memos that we wanted or needed.
10 Q. Who was doing that?
11 A. Again unclear at any particular
12 time, but it would be folks like Michael 13 Hart, Simon Rankin, or maybe a more junior
14 person assigned to our group.
15 Q. In 1998, sir, were you expecting
16 litigation to arise out of the loan that 17 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding made to
18 Sunbeam?
19 A. I personally was not.
20 Q. What about internal communications
21 within Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley Senior 22 Funding, sir, were you cautioned not to 23 memorialize in notes or in memos internal 24 communications relating to the Sunbeam
25 transactions?

Page 311

1 Smith
2 A. No
3 Q. Were you instructed to keep any
4 documents and notes or E-mails that you had,
5 that you were generating and receiving in 6 connection with your communications with 7 Sunbeam management, after Mr. Dunlap was
8 terminated?
9 A. I don't remember.
10 Q. It's possible that you were
11 receiving things or generating things
12 relating to your communications with Sunbeam
13 management, but not preserving them --
14 MR. CLARE: Objection.
15 Q. -- during the time period after Mr.
16 Dunlap was terminated?
17 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
18 Calls for speculation.
19 A. I don't think so.
20 Q. Do you think whatever you had or 21 whatever you generated would still exist
22 today?
23 A. If some -- if somebody took it or 24 we turned it in, then they should have it.
25 Is that what you mean?

Page 312

1 Smith
2 Q. Well, I'm asking you whether if you
3 received any written communication of any
4 sort relating to communications with Sunbeam
5 management after Mr. Dunlap was terminated,
6 took any notes relating to any of those
7 communications, whether you believe that
8 those materials should still exist today, or 9 whether in the ordinary course you may have 10 discarded them from time to time?
11 A. I really don't know. Anything I
12 had when we got these requests were turned 13 in.
14 Q. But in between requests if you were 15 receiving things or generating things, were 16 you under instruction to preserve it, or did
17 you think if you had no need for it at that 18 point in time for your personal use you could 19 discard it?
20 A. Don't recall.
21 Q. Are you familiar with Morgan
22 Stanley's policy with respect to document
23 destruction?
24 A. Not really.
25 Q. Are you familiar with Morgan

Page 313

1 Smith
2 Stanley's policy that employees are to
3 discard drafts, notes, notebooks, diaries,
4 telephone logs, message slips and other
5 documents when they are no longer considered
6 useful?
7 A. Yes, I guess I'm aware of that.
8 Q. Is that the policy that you
9 personally followed while you were at Morgan
10 Stanley?
11 A. Got rid of a lot of stuff when you
12 no longer needed it.
13 Q. Do you recall doing that on any 14 occasion relating to the work you did
15 concerning Sunbeam?
16 A. No, I do not.
17 Q. Did you give instructions to the 18 people in your group to maintain any
19 documentation they had relating to any aspect
20 of the work that was being done relating to
21 Sunbeam?
22 A. No, I did not.
23 Q. You have indicated, sir, that you
24 took one trip to Florida, correct?
25 A. I took one trip to Florida in early

Page 314

1 Smith
 2 March, yes.
 3 Q. Any other occasions relating to
 4 work that you did for Sunbeam where you
 5 traveled to Florida?
 6 A. I think on at least one more
 7 occasion.
 8 Q. When was that?
 9 A. I think it was sometime in 1998.
 10 It could have been more, but at least one.
 11 Q. What was the occasion for that 12 trip?
 13 A. The occasion was a bank meeting for 14 the three banks and the Sunbeam management.
 15 Q. Do you recall whether that was 16 before or after Mr. Dunlap was fired?
 17 A. It was after he was fired. This is 18 with Mr. Levin and the team.
 19 Q. Do you recall whether there were 20 any other occasions where you visited in 21 Florida concerning work being done for
 22 Sunbeam?
 23 A. Like I say, at least once, could
 24 have been twice, could have been three times,
 25 but the years kind of blend.

Page 315

1 Smith
 2 Q. Is it the case that before the
 3 loans closed, the only occasion for you to
 4 travel to Florida was your meeting in March?
 5 A. That is the best of my
 6 recollection.
 7 Q. What about other forms of
 8 communication in Florida prior to the closing
 9 of the transaction at the end of March 1998?
 10 MR. CLARE: The State of Florida?
 11 MR. MARKOWSKI: With Sunbeam in
 12 Florida.
 13 A. I thought we went over that a
 14 little bit before, but participate either
 15 partly in some of these conversations,
 16 conference calls with the company.
 17 Q. So there were occasions where you
 18 spoke by telephone with people at Sunbeam?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Prior to the loan closing?
 21 A. Prior to the closing.
 22 Q. And we have seen your March 5
 23 letter to Mr. Kersh, the highly confident
 24 letter you sent to Mr. Kersh in Florida?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 316

1 Smith
 2 Q. Were there any other occasions
 3 where you corresponded with anyone in Florida
 4 prior to the closing of the loans?
 5 A. You mean Sunbeam in Florida?
 6 Q. Yes.
 7 A. Not to the best of my recollection.
 8 Q. What about receiving materials from 9 Sunbeam prior to the closing of the loan
 10 transaction?
 11 A. Not to the best of my knowledge,
 12 none.
 13 Q. Sir, when you left the room earlier
 14 while I had a question pending, did you
 15 discuss with Mr. Clare how to respond to the 16 pending question?
 17 MR. CLARE: I instruct the witness
 18 not to answer the question.
 19 A. So I won't.
 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't have
 21 anything further.
 22 MR. CLARE: Neither do I.
 23 THE VIDEOGRAHER: The time is
 24 4:49 and this completes the videotaped
 25 deposition of Mr. Bram Smith.

 4 as follows:
 6 EXAMINATION
 8 BY MR. O'CONNOR:
 9 Q. Mr. Yoo, could you please state your full name
 10 and spell it for the record.
 11 A. Full name is Eugene Kim Yoo, E-u-g-e-n-e, middle 12 name is K-i-m, the last name is spelled Y-o-o.
 13 Q. And what is your current address?
 14 A. 99 Waltham Street, Unit Number 1, Boston, Mass.,
 15 02118.
 16 Q. Mr. Yoo, have you ever been deposed before?
 17 A. No, I have not.
 18 Q. Let's go over some of the basic ground rules.
 19 First, if you don't understand any of the 20 questions that I ask you just let me know and 21 I'll try and rephrase or help you out. If you
 22 need to take a break, that's fine, I just ask
 23 that you don't take breaks while a question is 24 pending. Are those acceptable?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 7

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Okay. And also, if you could not answer
 3 questions until I've completed the question, it
 4 will just make the job easier for the court
 5 reporter --
 6 A. Sure.
 7 Q. -- so she can get our answers and our questions.
 8 Have you ever given testimony under oath
 9 before?
 10 A. No, I have not.
 11 Q. Okay. And do you realize that you're under oath
 12 today?
 13 A. Yes, I do.
 14 Q. You're represented today by the law firm of 15 Kirkland and Ellis?
 16 A. Yes, I am.
 17 Q. Are you paying for that representation?
 18 A. No, I am not.
 19 Q. Are you aware of who is paying for that 20 representation?
 21 A. I am not.
 22 Q. Do you understand that they, that Miss Brown
 23 represents Morgan Stanley and Morgan Stanley
 24 Senior Funding in this case?
 25 A. Yes, I do.

Page 8

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Okay. Did those attorneys ever ask you to 3 search for documents in your possession that 4 might --
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. I'm sorry. -- that might relate to Sunbeam or 7 the Sunbeam and Coleman transaction?
 8 A. Yes, they did.
 9 Q. Did you have any documents in your possession?
 10 A. No, I did not.
 11 Q. Before we get started on some of the more
 12 interesting questions, I would like to go
 13 through some of your personal background. Not 14 that that's not interesting. But I would like 15 to ask you a few questions about your education
 16 after high school.
 17 A. Sure.
 18 Q. Where did you attend college?
 19 A. I went to Boston College for my undergrad
 20 degree.
 21 Q. And what was your degree in?
 22 A. Computer science and business.
 23 Q. What year did you graduate from Boston College?
 24 A. 1990.
 25 Q. Upon graduation what did you do?

Page 9

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I started at Goldman Sachs Co. in New York, I
 3 was in their operations group for four years.
 4 Q. So until 1994?
 5 A. Correct.
 6 Q. And where did you go after Goldman Sachs?
 7 A. I attended Columbia Business School.
 8 Q. Did you graduate from Columbia?
 9 A. Yes, I did.
 10 Q. And in what year?
 11 A. 1996.
 12 Q. With an M.B.A.?
 13 A. Yes, I did.
 14 Q. Any specialization in that program?
 15 A. I concentrated in finance.
 16 Q. Upon graduation what did you do?
 17 A. I started work full-time at Morgan Stanley in 18 their investment banking division.
 19 Q. Was that directly after graduation?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. You no longer are currently employed with Morgan
 22 Stanley?
 23 A. That's correct.
 24 Q. Okay. When did your employment with Morgan
 25 Stanley cease?

Page 10

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. In February of 2000.
 3 Q. When you left Morgan Stanley what did you do?
 4 A. I went to work at Bank of America in their
 5 investment banking group.
 6 Q. Was that in New York?
 7 A. Yes, it was.
 8 Q. Are you still employed with Bank of America?
 9 A. No, I am not.
 10 Q. When did you leave Bank of America?
 11 A. In January of 2002.
 12 Q. And what did you do when you left Bank of 13 America?
 14 A. I was an independent consultant for about three 15 years. I should say two years.
 16 Q. Is that your current employment?
 17 A. No, I'm currently a small business owner.
 18 Q. And what type of business do you own?
 19 A. It's a retail shop.
 20 Q. Any other education other than what you've 21 testified to this morning?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. Okay. In 1996 when you first joined Morgan
 24 Stanley what was your position at that time?
 25 A. I actually started as an intern while I was at

Page 11

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Columbia and I worked there during my second
 3 semester in their debt capital markets group.
 4 Then I started full-time in August in the
 5 investment banking division, I was an associate
 6 at that time.
 7 Q. That's August of 1996?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. And I'm sorry, your first position was 10 associate?
 11 A. First full-time position was associate.
 12 Q. Okay. Did you ever receive a promotion at
 13 Morgan Stanley?
 14 A. No. I left prior to being up for promotion.
 15 Q. Can you explain the duties and responsibilities
 16 of an associate in the investment banking
 17 division at Morgan Stanley back in 1996?
 18 A. Well, I guess it's hard to explain because there
 19 are a lot of different positions for associates
 20 within the investment banking division.
 21 Q. I'll make it easier. What were your 22 responsibilities in 1996 as an associate?
 23 A. My responsibilities were to manage the deal
 24 team, at least manage the analyst at the lower
 25 level members of the team and to work as a

Page 12

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 liaison between the lower level team and the 3 managing directors or the senior members of the 4 team.
 5 Q. And the same responsibilities in 1997?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. And in 1998 did your responsibilities change?
 8 A. Well, the description probably is the same, but 9 the scope probably expanded a little bit.
 10 Q. And what would -- what did it expand to?
 11 A. Well, in 1996 my, during my first year I was 12 rotating through different groups so I was 13 essentially riding alongside with other
 14 associates and learning from them and as we 15 moved into 1997 and 1998 I began to take more of 16 that on my own.
 17 Q. Okay. I'm sorry, the analysts that you
 18 supervised, those typically were college
 19 graduates without an M.B.A.?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. What -- who did you report to in 1997 when you
 22 were working as an associate?
 23 A. There were several people. The ones that I can
 24 remember specifically, Bob Kitts, Jim Stynes; I
 25 don't remember anybody else.

Page 13

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Alex Fuchs?
 3 A. Alex Fuchs. David McCreary (ph.). that's it.
 4 Q. In 1997 do you recall the names of the analysts
 5 that you supervised?
 6 A. I remember some of them. Tyrone Chang, Lilly
 7 Rafii, Andreas Boquist. It's been awhile. I
 8 don't remember anybody else, actually.
 9 Q. Okay. Why did you leave Morgan Stanley in 10 February of 2000?
 11 A. I decided to change my career direction a little 12 bit. I was going down a generalist path at 13 Morgan Stanley and I wanted to focus a little 14 bit more on a particular industry. And an 15 opportunity came up with a friend to go to Bank
 16 of America and work in the telecom group, which 17 I was very interested in.
 18 Q. Your departure from Morgan Stanley was unrelated
 19 to the Sunbeam transaction?
 20 A. It was not related at all.
 21 Q. Okay. Mr. Yoo, when I refer to the Sunbeam
 22 transaction do you understand that to mean
 23 Morgan Stanley's engagement with Sunbeam
 24 Corporation in 1997 and 1998 and Sunbeam's
 25 efforts to sell the company or acquire other

Page 14

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 businesses?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Sir, are you familiar with, with my client
 5 Coleman Parent Holdings, Inc. which prior to the 6 sale to Sunbeam owned approximately 82 percent
 7 of the stock of Coleman Company, Inc.?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. Okay. Are you familiar, sir, with my client's
 10 claims against Morgan Stanley and Company?
 11 A. I am somewhat familiar with them.
 12 Q. What is your understanding of that lawsuit?
 13 MS. BROWN: I'm going to object and 14 instruct you not to answer to the extent that 15 your answer would reveal any communications that 16 you had with counsel.
 17 A. I guess I can't answer that.
 18 Q. Okay. Are you aware, sir, that Morgan
 19 Stanley -- let me ask you. Are you familiar
 20 with the entity Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
 21 A. Somewhat familiar.
 22 Q. Okay. What is your understanding of that
 23 entity?
 24 A. From what I understand it is an organization set
 25 up within Morgan Stanley to provide senior

Page 15

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 lending to clients.
 3 Q. Were you ever employed, sir, by Morgan Stanley
 4 Senior Funding?
 5 A. No, I was not.
 6 Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
 7 has filed a lawsuit against Coleman Parent
 8 Holdings and MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings?
 9 A. Yes, I was.
 10 Q. Are you familiar with that lawsuit?
 11 A. Not very familiar.
 12 Q. Okay. What is your understanding of that
 13 lawsuit?
 14 A. From what I understand Morgan Stanley Senior 15 Funding is suing in an effort to recover some of 16 the loan proceeds it had lent out.
 17 Q. Have you read that Complaint?
 18 A. No, I have not.
 19 Q. Did anyone consult you about that Complaint
 20 prior to its filing?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Mr. Yoo, when you left Morgan Stanley in 23 February of 2000 did you take any documents with 24 you?
 25 A. No.

Page 16

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. What happened to your documents when you left
 3 the company?
 4 A. All of my deal-related documents were left in my
 5 office. They were in my files on my, in my
 6 bookshelf. I don't know what happened to them
 7 after that.
 8 Q. Were you told to leave your deal documents in 9 your office?
 10 A. I was never really told anything specifically
 11 about them, but I just assume that they were 12 documents that I shouldn't be taking with me.
 13 Q. Mr. Yoo, when was the first time that you were 14 contacted by attorneys for Morgan Stanley or 15 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with 16 these lawsuits?
 17 A. I don't remember precisely. I believe it was 18 sometime in early 2004.
 19 Q. Do you remember who you spoke with?
 20 A. Tom Clare.
 21 Q. Did you speak with any other attorneys for
 22 Morgan Stanley?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Did any in-house attorneys from Morgan Stanley
 25 contact you concerning this case?

Page 17

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Mr. Yoo, do you have any continuing contact with 4 your former colleagues at Morgan Stanley?
 5 A. I keep in touch with a few folks on a sporadic
 6 basis but I don't really talk to anyone on a
 7 regular basis. Just whoever I happen to run
 8 into.
 9 Q. Do you recall any of those people; the names of 10 those people?
 11 A. Xavier Stationberg (ph.). Who else did I run
 12 into? Davis McCreary, Tyrone Chang. That's 13 probably about it.
 14 Q. When is the last time that you spoke with 15 Mr. Change?
 16 A. Let's see, almost a year ago now. It was late
 17 spring of last year when I was in Los Angeles.
 18 Q. Have you spoken to any current or former Morgan
 19 Stanley employees concerning these lawsuits or 20 your testimony here today?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Sir, do you have any business relationships,
 23 existing business relationships with Morgan
 24 Stanley as a result of any of your prior deals
 25 or current business relationships?

Page 18

1 EUGENE YOO
2 A. No, nothing.
3 Q. What did you do to prepare for your deposition
4 today?
5 A. I met yesterday with Zhonette Brown and she 6 filled me in on the details of the case and what
7 was --
8 MS. Brown: You don't need to reveal
9 communications between counsel.
10 A. Right.
11 Q. Did you review any documents?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. Did any of those documents refresh your 14 recollection of any of the facts or events
15 concerning the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?
16 A. Not really.
17 Q. Did you review any deposition testimony?
18 A. No, I did not.
19 Q. Was any deposition testimony read to you or 20 described to you?
21 A. No.
22 Q. How long did you meet with Miss Brown?
23 A. Just a few hours.
24 Q. Have you ever been contacted by any state or 25 federal regulators in connection with your

Page 19

1 EUGENE YOO
2 employment at Morgan Stanley?
3 A. No.
4 Q. While you were employed at Morgan Stanley did
5 you use e-mail?
6 A. Yes, I did.
7 Q. Did you ever print out any of the e-mail
8 messages that you sent or received?
9 A. I'm sure I printed some at some point.
10 Q. Did you personally create any documents in 11 connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
12 A. Yes, I did.
13 Q. What did you do with those documents?
14 A. It depends on what documents you're talking
15 about specifically.
16 Q. Well, the deal, the deal documents, --
17 A. I mean.
18 Q. -- other than keeping them in your office when 19 you walked out?
20 A. The original files I guess were at Morgan
21 Stanley still in electronic format; I don't have 22 any of the hard copies.
23 Q. While you were employed at Morgan Stanley were 24 you aware of any document retention or 25 destruction policies?

Page 20

1 EUGENE YOO
2 A. There was a document retention policy which, at 3 least for the MNA group; I don't recall what it
4 was now.
5 Q. Did you file those policies?
6 A. I hope I did.
7 Q. Did you receive any specific instructions on 8 preserving e-mail?
9 A. No, not really.
10 Q. Mr. Yoo, I'm going to show you what's been 11 previously marked as CPH Exhibit 6. Mr. Yoo,
12 have you seen this document before?
13 A. No, I haven't seen this one.
14 MS. Brown: Just for the record, when you
15 ask him whether he's seen documents before, he 16 will exclude any documents that he saw during 17 his preparation.
18 MR. O'CONNOR: Correct. That's fine.
19 Q. Sir, could I point your attention to the first 20 paragraph under file maintenance or it reads,
21 "file should be kept lean and unnecessary
22 material should be discarded on a regular 23 basis." Do you see that?
24 A. Yes, I do.
25 Q. Do you recall that being part of the document

Page 21

1 EUGENE YOO
2 retention policy at Morgan Stanley while you
3 were employed at the company?
4 A. I do recall that, yes.
5 Q. Do you have an understanding of why files should
6 be kept lean at Morgan Stanley?
7 A. I don't know precisely why.
8 Q. Did you keep your files lean in accordance with 9 this policy, sir?
10 A. Well, I mean, I would throw out things that I
11 thought were unnecessary on an ongoing basis.
12 You know, paper tends to pile up pretty quickly.
13 Q. How would you make the decision whether to 14 retain or keep documents in connection with the 15 Sunbeam engagement?
16 A. I don't know what my -- I don't know if there
17 was a methodology. Anything that I considered
18 to be a finished product I usually kept anything
19 that was a work in progress or if there were 20 final versions of it I usually throw out.
21 Q. Were you instructed by anyone to discard
22 documents that were not in their final form?
23 A. No. I was never instructed in any way to 24 discard anything, or not to discard anything.
25 Q. You can set that aside.

Page 22

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Mr. Yoo, do you recall that Morgan Stanley
 3 began working with Sunbeam in the spring of 1997
 4 to identify opportunities for the sale of
 5 Sunbeam Corporation?
 6 A. Yes, I do.
 7 Q. When was your first involvement on the Sunbeam
 8 engagement?
 9 A. I was involved nearly from the beginning when we 10 first began to pitch for the business with 11 Sunbeam, when Al became, Al Dunlap became CEO.
 12 Q. Do you recall who asked you to join the team to 13 prepare that pitch?
 14 A. At the time I was an associate in the associate 15 pool and I was doing my MNA rotation and I was 16 next up for the assignment when it came up.
 17 Q. What do you recall doing to assist Morgan
 18 Stanley in preparing the pitch to Sunbeam?
 19 A. Do you want me to go through all of it?
 20 Q. Sure.
 21 A. We, we, from what I can remember we went through 22 the history of, you know, where Sunbeam was at 23 that time and the difficulties that it was in.
 24 The reasons they had brought on Al Dunlap as 25 CEO. We did some research on Al Dunlap's prior,

Page 23

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 prior work at places like Kimberly-Clark or
 3 Scott Paper, I guess, to just kind of get a
 4 sense of who he was and what he had done. We
 5 did quite a bit of analysis on Sunbeam itself;
 6 financial analysis.
 7 Q. Anything else that you can recall?
 8 A. No, not really.
 9 Q. Okay. What was the purpose of this research
 10 into Sunbeam and Al Dunlap in connection with 11 this pitch to Sunbeam?
 12 A. Well, it was really just to make sure that we 13 knew all of the facts before we went into the 14 meeting, to make sure that we knew the 15 situation, knew everything about who it was that 16 we were presenting to and making sure that the 17 presentation was, you know, on top of
 18 everything.
 19 Q. Do you recall when this presentation occurred?
 20 A. I don't know specifically. It was sometime in 21 the spring of 1997.
 22 Q. Who else worked with you on preparing this
 23 pitch?
 24 A. Alex Fuchs, Bob Kitts, Jim Stynes, Tyrone Chang.
 25 Q. Anyone else?

Page 24

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Were you aware at that time, sir, that Morgan
 4 Stanley was in competition with other investment
 5 banks for the Sunbeam engagement?
 6 A. I didn't have any firsthand knowledge about who
 7 else was in competition for the business.
 8 Q. But part of this exercise -- part of this
 9 exercise, sir, was to show Sunbeam why Sunbeam
 10 should choose Morgan Stanley as its investment
 11 bankers as opposed to another company; is that
 12 correct?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. Do you recall when Sunbeam formally engaged
 15 Morgan Stanley as its advisers?
 16 A. Again, I don't know the exact date; I believe it
 17 was somewhere around September or October of 18 '97.
 19 Q. Do you recall, sir, how many hours you worked on 20 the Sunbeam matter prior to that formal
 21 engagement?
 22 A. I don't know exactly how many.
 23 Q. Would it be in the hundreds of hours?
 24 A. That's most likely correct.
 25 Q. Okay. Did you ever keep track of your time

Page 25

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 working on Sunbeam, the Sunbeam matter?
 3 A. We kept time sheets as a regular process in our
 4 time keeping process in the U.S. banking group.
 5 Q. What information did you record on those time
 6 sheets?
 7 A. Just the hours that we, we would bill our hours
 8 for different clients. That's about it.
 9 Q. You wouldn't provide descriptions, general or 10 detailed descriptions of the work that you
 11 performed?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. Okay. Was that time submitted on a regular 14 basis? Like a weekly basis?
 15 A. I don't remember exactly. I think it was either
 16 weekly or biweekly.
 17 Q. Okay. I'm going to show you what's been 18 previously marked as CPH Exhibit 163. My first 19 question, sir, is have you ever seen this
 20 document before?
 21 A. No, I have not.
 22 Q. You'll notice on the first page of Exhibit 163
 23 is a listing of employees at Morgan Stanley and 24 you'll see that the second to the last is your 25 name, Gene Yoo?

Page 26

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. Okay. If you follow the line over to 4 year-to-date hours there's an entry for 356?

5 A. Okay.

6 Q. And it appears that this document reflects as

7 you'll see in the right hand, just below the

8 upper right-hand corner for fiscal year 1997?

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. Does that number seem accurate for your work on 11 the Sunbeam engagement in 1997?

12 A. I couldn't tell. But it seems right.

13 Q. Okay. If you would flip, sir, to the last page

14 of this document. You'll see that there are

15 entries across from your name for August,

16 September and October of 147 in August, 115 in 17 September and 94 in October. Do you see those,

18 sir?

19 A. Yes, I do.

20 Q. Okay. And if you flip to the page previous to 21 that which is 80429. And across from your name

22 for April, May, June and July there are no hours

23 entered?

24 A. Uh-huh.

25 Q. Do you know why there would be no hours entered

Page 27

1 EUGENE YOO

2 in for those months in 1997?

3 A. I don't know.

4 Q. Did you work on the Sunbeam engagement in April

5 through July of 1997?

6 A. Yes, I did.

7 Q. Okay. So then on the first page of CPH Exhibit

8 163 the year-to-date hours of 356 probably is

9 not an accurate representation of the hours that

10 you worked on the Sunbeam engagement in 1997?

11 A. I couldn't tell. I'm not sure how the, the time

12 keeping department allocated the hours to the 13 months.

14 Q. Set that aside. I'm trying to get a sense of an

15 overview of the scope of your involvement on the 16 Sunbeam engagement. You testified that you were

17 involved in preparing the pitch to Sunbeam;

18 after that assignment what did you work on?

19 A. For Sunbeam?

20 Q. Yes.

21 A. After the pitch I guess it was just continuing

22 to try to come up with ideas for Sunbeam and

23 seeing if there were any other situations that

24 came up that might peak their interests. But we

25 weren't really formally engaged for I think

Page 28

1 EUGENE YOO

2 about five or six months between.

3 Q. Between the time that you, that Morgan Stanley

4 provided the pitch to Sunbeam and the formal

5 engagement agreement, did you continue to work

6 on the Sunbeam transaction identifying these

7 ideas?

8 A. I don't recall specifically. But, you know, I

9 would think that, I think -- I'm pretty sure I

10 did work on it somewhat. I don't know how much.

11 Q. When you say you worked on ideas for Sunbeam,

12 what do you mean by that?

13 A. Well, in coming out of, coming out of the 14 initial meeting, you know, the idea was that

15 they were either looking to sell the company or

16 to find targets, at least, you know, that was

17 the thought. And so were trying to come up with 18 ideas that might turn into something more

19 tangible in terms of a transaction.

20 Q. Did you attend that pitch to Sunbeam?

21 A. No, I did not.

22 Q. Okay. Do you know what Morgan Stanley's primary

23 mission was coming out of that meeting with

24 Sunbeam?

25 MS. Brown: Object to form.

Page 29

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. I don't know exactly what came out of the

3 meeting. I wasn't there. I didn't hear what

4 they said.

5 Q. Did anyone tell you that the primary focus in

6 1997 was to find a buyer for Sunbeam to sell

7 Sunbeam Corporation?

8 A. They never said that that was the primary focus.

9 Q. Other than identifying these other potential

10 ideas for Sunbeam what else did you do on the

11 engagement?

12 A. From what I remember, before being formally

13 engaged most of the work was really just keeping

14 up with current events on the company or the 15 industry, making sure that we were, you know, on

16 top of getting all of the latest financial

17 filings or earnings releases, any news that came

18 out, any announcements that they made.

19 Q. Did you ever attend any meetings with potential

20 buyers or acquisition targets?

21 A. I personally did not attend any of those

22 meetings.

23 Q. Did you prepare any documents for other members

24 of the Morgan Stanley team in connection with

25 exploring strategic alternatives for Sunbeam?

Page 30

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. Yes, I did.
 3 Q. What are the types of documents that you recall
 4 drafting?
 5 A. Again, I don't recall specifically, but the 6 documents mostly were descriptive materials
 7 about Sunbeam, describing the company,
 8 financials, that's about it.
 9 Q. Did you prepare any of the transaction documents
 10 related to the acquisition of the Coleman
 11 Company?
 12 MS. Brown: Object to the form.
 13 A. I'm not sure what you mean by --
 14 Q. Purchase agreement.
 15 A. No, I did not.
 16 Q. Were you involved in preparing any of the 17 financing documents in connection with that 18 deal?
 19 A. No, I was not.
 20 Q. Were you involved in preparing any documents
 21 analyzing potential synergies of a combination
 22 involving Sunbeam and another company?
 23 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 24 A. I'm not sure what documents you're referring to.
 25 Q. Are you aware of the concept of synergies?

Page 31

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Okay. Did you personally prepare any documents
 4 that sought to analyze potential synergies,
 5 assuming the transaction would occur between
 6 Sunbeam and another company?
 7 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 8 Q. Or perform a synergies analysis.
 9 A. I'm sure we did some that were part of the 10 standard investment banking analysis. I don't 11 recall specifically which documents we did.
 12 Q. Did you perform any due diligence of Sunbeam?
 13 A. The Morgan Stanley team did.
 14 Q. What did you do personally, if anything, to 15 conduct due diligence on Sunbeam?
 16 A. From what I remember we had, we had done
 17 interviews of the management team, the senior 18 management team, and we also visited their 19 headquarters in Florida. We also met with the 20 heads of all of the different divisions. We 21 were given a presentation on their new business
 22 plan. We spent some time with Russ Kirsch the 23 CFO and Don Oosi, I believe he was the COO, and 24 they spent a good deal of time giving us a lot
 25 of the detail on the turn around plan and the

Page 32

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 growth plan going forward.
 3 Q. Any other aspects of due diligence that you
 4 recall that you performed?
 5 A. And then just the standard, you know, MNA type
 6 of due diligence, going through financial
 7 filings, public documents.
 8 Q. As part of that financial due diligence did you
 9 look at anything other than publicly filed
 10 documents?
 11 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 12 A. I'm not sure what you mean.
 13 Q. Well, what types of public documents would you
 14 look at in conducting the MNA due diligence that 15 you spoke of?
 16 A. For -- again, for this transaction, from what I
 17 remember, the types of things we looked at were 18 filings with the SEC, any press releases that 19 the company put out or any other, any of the 20 other companies in its industry, any new stories
 21 that came out on any of the relevant companies.
 22 Any, you know, any publicly available equity
 23 research.
 24 Q. In addition to those sources of information did
 25 you look at any non-public information in

Page 33

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 conducting this MNA financing due diligence?
 3 A. Again, I'm not sure what you mean by.
 4 Q. Documents that someone on the street wouldn't 5 have access to. Not filed with the SEC or 6 otherwise publicly available.
 7 A. I can't think of anything.
 8 Q. Were you involved on the roadshow for the 9 debenture offering?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Do you recall that happening?
 12 A. I sort of recall, you know, the time it was 13 happening. But I wasn't part of it at all. I
 14 wasn't part of the financing process.
 15 Q. Do you recall when the deal closed, the Coleman
 16 deal closed?
 17 A. I think it was spring of 2000. I'm sorry.
 18 Spring of 1998.
 19 Q. After that transaction closed did you continue
 20 to work on the Sunbeam engagement?
 21 MS. Brown: Object to the form.
 22 A. It depends on how you define Sunbeam engagement.
 23 Q. I'm just trying to get a sense of every aspect
 24 of the engagement that you worked on. After 25 Sunbeam acquired the Coleman Company did you

Page 34

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 continue to work for Sunbeam in developing
 3 strategic options for the company?
 4 A. No.
 5 Q. Did you work on any other deals other than 6 Sunbeam when you were an associate in 1997 and 7 1998?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. What were those deals?
 10 A. I can't recall specifically what was happening
 11 at the time. We were -- I think the only two 12 that I can remember specifically we were working 13 on a sale of a division for General Motors and 14 we were looking at strategic alternatives for a
 15 technology client on the west coast.
 16 Q. In 1997 what percentage of your time did you
 17 devote to the Sunbeam engagement?
 18 A. In 1997?
 19 Q. Yes.
 20 A. My best guess, somewhere between a third and a
 21 half.
 22 Q. In the first three months of 1998 do you recall
 23 what percentage of your time was devoted to the 24 Sunbeam engagement?
 25 A. Again, my best guess is about the same.

Page 35

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. A third to a half of your time?
 3 A. (Witness nods in the affirmative.)
 4 MR. O'CONNOR: I'll ask the court reporter
 5 to mark the next exhibit as CPH 217.
 6 (Deposition Exhibit 217 marked for
 7 identification.)
 8 Q. Mr. Yoo, you've been handed what's been marked
 9 as CPH Exhibit 217. This is what appears to be 10 a 1998 fiscal year hours report.
 11 A. Uh-huh.
 12 Q. You'll see again that your name is listed as an 13 employee with year-to-date hours of 1,286. And 14 if you turn, sir, to the second page of this 15 document. For your hours report for December
 16 indicates 361; January, 289; February, 123; in 17 March, 106. Do you believe, sir, that to be an 18 accurate representation of the time that you
 19 worked on the Sunbeam engagement in those 20 months?
 21 A. And I -- I couldn't tell you for sure.
 22 Q. And if you could turn then to page 80433 of 23 Exhibit 217. You'll see across from your name
 24 for April it reflects 169 hours. The same for 25 May and then 69 hours in June. Do you recall,

Page 36

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 sir, what you were working on in April, May and
 3 June of 1998 for Sunbeam?
 4 A. From what I can remember I believe what this is
 5 was we were looking at, or we were in the middle
 6 of selling one of the Coleman divisions.
 7 Q. And that was after Sunbeam acquired the Coleman
 8 Company?
 9 A. That was post closing, yes.
 10 Q. Do you recall why Sunbeam was, attempted to sell
 11 divisions of Coleman after the transaction was 12 closed in March?
 13 A. I don't know the reasons behind it. They were 14 very small, though.
 15 Q. Small divisions?
 16 A. Very small divisions, yes.
 17 Q. In the spring of 1997 while you were preparing
 18 the pitch to Sunbeam, did you know why Sunbeam
 19 intended to pursue these strategic alternatives?
 20 MS. Brown: Objection. Foundation.
 21 A. I have no idea.
 22 Q. No one ever expressed Sunbeam's intentions to 23 you in the spring of 1997?
 24 MS. Brown: Objection. Form.
 25 A. I'm not sure what you mean by that.

Page 37

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Mr. Kitts or Mr. Stynes never advised the team
 3 at Morgan Stanley why they were preparing a
 4 pitch to Sunbeam other than to get the business
 5 from Sunbeam?
 6 A. For me at the time? I was a first year
 7 associate and it was my first MNA transaction.
 8 And I was more concerned with just getting the 9 work done.
 10 Q. Did you have a lot of contact, sir, with 11 Mr. Kitts or Mr. Stynes?
 12 A. Not in the spring of 1997.
 13 Q. When did you begin to have more contacts with 14 those individuals?
 15 A. It sort of grew over the year. Probably came 16 more regular by the end of 1997.
 17 Q. Who did you regularly report to in 1997?
 18 A. For the Sunbeam transaction?
 19 Q. Correct.
 20 MS. Brown: Asked and answered.
 21 A. For the most part it was Alex Fuchs.
 22 Q. So if you had a question typically would you go
 23 see Mr. Fuchs?
 24 A. Typically.
 25 Q. Okay. Sir, I'm handing you what's been

Page 38

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 previously marked as CPH Exhibit 77. It's a
 3 one-page document that appears to be a news
 4 release dated April 4th of 1997. Have you seen
 5 this document before? Or this press release.
 6 Not necessarily in this form.
 7 A. I don't recall exactly.
 8 Q. In the first paragraph you'll see that it
 9 states, "that Sunbeam Corp. has begun
 10 interviewing investment bankers to consider
 11 options that include making hostile takeovers of 12 as much as five billion or selling the company,
 13 chairman Al Dunlap said." Does that refresh
 14 your recollection of Sunbeam's intention in the 15 spring of 1997 in pursuing strategic 16 alternatives?
 17 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 18 A. Again, I don't really remember. I don't really
 19 remember much about, you know, the reasoning
 20 behind a lot of what we were doing at the time.
 21 Q. If you look at the last paragraph where it lists
 22 the names of some companies. Chase Manhattan,
 23 Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan and Company; does that 24 refresh your recollection, sir, of the other
 25 banks that were competing with Morgan Stanley

Page 39

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 for the Sunbeam engagement?
 3 A. At the time, like I said, I really didn't know
 4 who else was competing for the business.
 5 Q. Set that aside. I'm going to show you what's
 6 been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 78. CPH
 7 Exhibit 78 is a, it's a two part e-mail, the 8 first is dated April 13th of 1997, authored by 9 Tyrone Chang and the second is dated April 15th
 10 of 1997. Have you seen this e-mail before?
 11 A. No, I've never seen this.
 12 Q. You did not direct Mr. Chang to send out this 13 e-mail?
 14 A. I don't recall.
 15 Q. Did Mr. Chang report to anyone else besides
 16 yourself on the Sunbeam engagement?
 17 A. He also reported directly to Alex Fuchs on 18 occasion. Alex and Tyrone were part of a 19 subgroup called business development. And I was 20 on loan on my rotation to business development.
 21 Q. Okay. Set that aside. In 1997 what was your 22 understanding of Al Dunlap's business
 23 reputation?
 24 A. I didn't know much about him prior to being 25 brought onto the assignment.

Page 40

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. You testified earlier this morning that you
 3 researched Al Dunlap and his history with other
 4 companies; --
 5 A. (Witness nods in the affirmative.)
 6 Q. -- is that correct?
 7 A. That's correct.
 8 Q. What did you learn about Mr. Dunlap in 9 conducting that research?
 10 A. It's a long time ago. I don't remember much
 11 about the specifics of what we learned.
 12 Generally speaking he had a reputation for 13 turning around troubled companies.
 14 Q. Did you understand that his involvement at 15 Sunbeam as the CEO was intended by the board of 16 Sunbeam to utilize his turn around capabilities?
 17 A. I don't know anything about what the board
 18 intended.
 19 Q. In your review of Sunbeam's historical financial 20 information did you learn that Sunbeam prior to 21 Mr. Dunlap's arrival was in need of financial or 22 business restructuring?
 23 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 24 A. I'm not sure -- can you be a little more
 25 specific with that?

Page 41

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Do you have any recollection, sir, of why
 3 Mr. Dunlap was hired by the Sunbeam board to be
 4 the CEO of Sunbeam in 1996?
 5 MS. Brown: Objection. Foundation.
 6 A. I don't recall.
 7 Q. I'm sorry?
 8 A. I don't recall -- I don't recall anything about
 9 that.
 10 Q. Did you review any documents or speak to anyone
 11 in order to determine whether Mr. Dunlap was 12 performing a turn around of Sunbeam?
 13 MS. Brown: Objection. Form.
 14 A. I, as far as what Al was brought in to do at 15 Sunbeam, again, we didn't, you know, until we 16 had started working on the project I didn't
 17 really know much about it. I had just, I knew 18 there was a headline about it, but that was 19 about it.
 20 Q. And my question was once you started digging
 21 into the information about Sunbeam's historical 22 and anticipated growth, did you come to learn
 23 that Al Dunlap was touting the turn around of 24 the Sunbeam Corporation under his leadership?
 25 MS. Brown: Object to form.

Page 42

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I'm not sure what he was touting.
 3 Q. Let me show you, sir, what's been previously
 4 marked as CPH Exhibit 170. My first question,
 5 Mr. Yoo, is whether you've seen this document
 6 before?
 7 A. I don't believe I have.
 8 Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley was 9 involved in drafting this document?
 10 A. I don't know.
 11 Q. I'm going to show you what's previously been 12 marked as CPH Exhibit 80. This is a document
 13 entitled Memorandum Regarding the Information
 14 Request. Subject: Allen Dunlap's track record.
 15 Have you seen this document before?
 16 A. I don't think so. It doesn't look familiar.
 17 Q. Did you read Mr. Dunlap's book Mean Business in 18 connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
 19 A. Actually, I did not.
 20 Q. Did you read any portions of that book?
 21 A. I think I did read portions of it. But I didn't
 22 think there was much in there to gain so I
 23 didn't really read much, most of it.
 24 Q. Did you ask Mr. Chang to research Mr. Dunlap's
 25 track record?

Page 43

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I don't remember if it was me specifically who
 3 asked him or if it was something that Bob or 4 Alex had asked.
 5 Q. In the second paragraph there's a reference to a
 6 Cavenham Forest Industries?
 7 A. Uh-huh.
 8 Q. And, quote, the turn around orchestrated by 9 Albert Dunlap and completed under his leadership
 10 culminating in the sale of the company in 1990.
 11 Do you see that, sir?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. Did you investigate the -- did you investigate
 14 Dunlap's turn around of Cavenham Forest
 15 Industries in connection with the Sunbeam
 16 engagement?
 17 A. Could you be a little bit more specific when you
 18 say "investigate."
 19 Q. Did you do anything to review the financial or 20 business condition of that company before and 21 after Al Dunlap's arrival at that company to 22 orchestrate a turn around?
 23 A. I don't remember specifically what analysis we 24 had done on his prior tenures.
 25 Q. Mr. Yoo, when you testified earlier that you

Page 44

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 conducted research on Mr. Dunlap, who he was and
 3 what he did, what did you do?
 4 A. Mostly from what I remember it was, again, going
 5 through prior financials from his past companies
 6 or pulling up news articles from, from his prior 7 deals.
 8 Q. But you don't recall doing that for Cavenham?
 9 A. Again, I don't remember specifically what we did
 10 for Cavenham.
 11 Q. If you could turn back to CPH Exhibit 170. The 12 second paragraph. There's a discussion of 13 Mr. Dunlap's tenure at Scott Paper Company?
 14 A. Uh-huh.
 15 Q. Take a second to read that, please.
 16 A. (Witness reviewing.) Okay.
 17 Q. Do you recall reviewing Scott Paper's financial 18 condition or news reports about Scott Paper in 19 connection with your work on the Sunbeam
 20 engagement?
 21 A. I do recall that we did do some, some work on 22 looking at Scott. I think that was the, the 23 biggest of the, or the most notable of his turn
 24 around.
 25 Q. Did you confirm, sir, that Mr. Dunlap indeed

Page 45

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 conducted a successful turn around of Scott
 3 Paper Company?
 4 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 5 A. How do you define successful?
 6 Q. Well, what do you recall doing to review
 7 Dunlap's turn around of Scott Paper Company?
 8 A. The only thing I can remember for sure was sort 9 of a before and after look at the financials of 10 Scott before Dunlap had arrived. And Scott
 11 after it had arrived. And the return to the 12 Scott shareholders.
 13 Q. What do you recall learning?
 14 A. I'm sorry.
 15 Q. What do you recall learning from that exercise?
 16 A. At the time it seemed like it was a good deal
 17 for the Scott shareholders. I don't know how it
 18 turned out now, but.
 19 Q. Do you recall why you believed that at the time?
 20 A. I don't know any specifics. I don't remember
 21 anything.
 22 Q. Have you come across any information subsequent 23 to that investigation of Scott Paper that leads 24 you to believe that Dunlap did not complete a
 25 successful turn around of the company?

Page 46

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. Brown: Object to the form.
 3 A. I haven't really, you know, I haven't really
 4 looked at it since.
 5 Q. What was the purpose of Morgan Stanley's
 6 research into Mr. Dunlap's background and his 7 performance in turning around companies prior to
 8 Sunbeam?
 9 MS. Brown: Asked and answered.
 10 A. I'm sorry, could you repeat that again.
 11 Q. Sure. Could you read back the question.
 12 (Prior testimony read back.)
 13 "What was the purpose of Morgan
 14 Stanley's research into
 15 Mr. Dunlap's background and his
 16 performance in turning around
 17 companies prior to Sunbeam?"
 18 A. I think as I said before we were trying to make 19 sure that we understood, you know, we fully 20 understood all of the aspects of the meeting, of 21 the company and the situation and AI before
 22 going into the meeting.
 23 Q. Were you also trying to understand whether 24 Dunlap's turn around of companies, where he was 25 CEO prior to Sunbeam were in fact true turn

Page 47

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 arounds of those companies?
 3 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 4 A. I don't know.
 5 Q. No one ever mentioned to you that there might be 6 some question as to whether his turnaround at 7 Scott Paper was successful or real?
 8 A. No, not as far as I can remember, that never 9 came up.
 10 Q. What did you do with the information that you
 11 learned about Mr. Dunlap beyond preparing the 12 pitch to Sunbeam?
 13 A. All of the information pretty much went to Alex
 14 and Bob and Jim.
 15 Q. That's Mr. Fuchs, Mr. Kitts and Mr. Stynes?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Do you know what they did with that information?
 18 A. I don't know.
 19 Q. Did you know, Mr. Yoo, that Morgan Stanley had a 20 prior relationship with Mr. Dunlap before his 21 arrival at Sunbeam?
 22 A. I didn't know.
 23 Q. Do you know Bill Strong at Morgan Stanley?
 24 A. I met him a few times.
 25 Q. So you were not aware at the time that Bill

Page 48

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Strong had a relationship with Mr. Dunlap prior
 3 to Dunlap's arrival at Sunbeam?
 4 A. No, I didn't know that.
 5 Q. I'm handing you what's previously been marked as
 6 CPH Exhibit 68. Have you seen this document
 7 before, Mr. Yoo?
 8 A. Yes, I have.
 9 Q. When do you recall seeing this document?
 10 A. I don't know exactly, but it was maybe a few
 11 weeks after the article was published.
 12 Q. So that would be a few weeks after January 15th
 13 of 1996?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. Do you recall why you saw this document?
 16 A. No, I don't.
 17 Q. Did you read this document in connection with 18 the Sunbeam engagement or did you read it
 19 outside of your work at Morgan Stanley?
 20 A. I don't recall.
 21 Q. Did you read the entire article in 1996?
 22 A. In 1997?
 23 Q. In 1996.
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Just so we're clear, sir, the, it appears the

Page 49

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 article was written in January of 1996, in the
 3 upper left-hand corner.
 4 A. Oh, okay.
 5 Q. There's also a date on the bottom right-hand
 6 corner of July 16th of 1997. Just so we're
 7 clear, sir, do you recall reading this document
 8 a couple of weeks after January 15th of 1996 or 9 a couple of weeks after July 16th of 1997?
 10 A. I don't know, I don't remember exactly when I
 11 read it. But probably sometime around the time
 12 that it was published.
 13 Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone at 14 Morgan Stanley about the contents of this
 15 article?
 16 A. I don't remember anything specifically.
 17 Q. Anything generally?
 18 A. Not about this article itself.
 19 Q. What do you recall discussing with members at 20 Morgan Stanley about Mr. Dunlap's performance at 21 Scott Paper?
 22 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 23 A. Other than the analysis that we had done there
 24 wasn't really much other discussion on that.
 25 After the first meeting we didn't really spend a

Page 50

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 lot of time looking back at Scott.
 3 Q. You don't recall any discussions about the 4 accuracy of the information in this article?
 5 A. Not, there were no discussions about the 6 accuracy of the article.
 7 Q. Do you recall what your reaction was after 8 reading this article?
 9 A. I recall thinking that it was humorous at the 10 time. And I don't know who I was talking to,
 11 but the only thing I can remember talking about 12 the article was how people who went into turn
 13 around situations tended to get a bad
 14 reputation. But that was the only thing I could 15 remember.
 16 Q. Why did you think that the article was humorous?
 17 A. The, some of the outrageous, I think if this is 18 the one I'm thinking about, some of the 19 outrageous numbers or some of the things that 20 they were saying about AI seemed to be funny.
 21 Q. When you say "outrageous numbers" are you
 22 referring to the numbers relating to Scott Paper
 23 in the turn around?
 24 A. No, just the, you know, they're talking about,
 25 for instance, here, 225 percent stock gain and

Page 51

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 adding 6.3 billion of company value; it was just
 3 kind of funny that, you know, it was all being
 4 linked to one event, so.
 5 Q. And why was that funny to you?
 6 A. I don't know. The -- there are a lot of things
 7 that can take place over a long period. I just 8 thought it was funny they were putting it all on 9 one thing.
 10 Q. What was that one thing?
 11 A. It seemed like they were attributing it all to 12 AI.
 13 Q. Did you believe that Mr. Dunlap was not
 14 responsible for the stock price increase?
 15 A. I mean, I didn't know either way. It seemed 16 like that was the assumption that they were 17 making in the article.
 18 Q. Did you ever investigate whether Mr. Dunlap had 19 indeed added 6.3 billion in value in stock, or 20 to Scott Paper?
 21 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 22 A. I don't, I don't remember -- I didn't really
 23 know either way, you know.
 24 Q. So other than thinking that it was funny that 25 they had attributed these increases to

Page 52

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Mr. Dunlap, you don't recall ever seeking out
 3 information to confirm or deny that information?
 4 A. I don't think there was any way we could prove
 5 either way.
 6 Q. Did you ask Mr. Dunlap?
 7 A. I didn't really talk to him about this.
 8 Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Dunlap?
 9 A. I did speak to him probably once or twice.
 10 Q. Did you ever discuss his performance at Scott
 11 Paper?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. What did you discuss with Mr. Dunlap?
 14 A. Nothing, really. It was just, he would walk
 15 into a meeting that I was attending and we would 16 say hello. He would ask how things were going
 17 and that's it.
 18 Q. Did you discuss with anyone the information
 19 contained in the Shredder article?
 20 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 21 A. Again, I don't remember ever talking to anyone
 22 specifically about this article. You know, just 23 talking about Sunbeam in general and that's part
 24 of the deal.
 25 Q. Did you ever tell anyone at Morgan Stanley that

Page 53

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 you thought that this article was humorous?
 3 A. I don't remember. I don't remember who I was
 4 talking to.
 5 Q. Do you recall talking to anyone at Morgan
 6 Stanley about the outrageous numbers in this
 7 article?
 8 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 9 Mischaracterization.
 10 A. No, I don't really. I just remember, again, I
 11 think this was -- I don't recall where -- I
 12 don't recall when exactly I read this in 13 relation to the time line. Yeah, I don't recall
 14 ever talking about this article specifically, or 15 bringing this up or anything about this article
 16 before.
 17 Q. You also said that after reviewing this article
 18 you thought that people who did turn around work
 19 received bad reputations; why is that?
 20 MS. Brown: Objection. Vague sentence,
 21 mischaracterizes his testimony.
 22 A. I don't remember exactly who it was, but I just 23 remember, I think there were a few articles that 24 came out at that time about people who were 25 involved in, you know, difficult situation at

Page 54

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 companies. That's the only thing I can remember
 3 about that connection or that aspect of it. For 4 some reason I just happened to read a few
 5 articles at the time that talked about different
 6 people doing, or working in similar situations.
 7 And they all seemed to be very negative about
 8 those people.
 9 Q. Did you believe that Mr. Dunlap was receiving a
 10 bad reputation as a result of his turn around
 11 work?
 12 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 13 A. I didn't really know. I mean, I didn't really 14 know, at least at the time I was reading the 15 article I wasn't really thinking about, I wasn't
 16 concentrating on the specifics of his work.
 17 Q. Was that information you sought to acquire in 18 your review of his performance at companies
 19 prior to Sunbeam?
 20 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 21 A. I'm not sure what you mean.
 22 Q. Well, as part of your research into Mr. Dunlap's
 23 history did you feel that it was important for 24 you to determine whether Mr. Dunlap received,
 25 unfairly received a bad reputation for his turn

Page 55

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 around work?
 3 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 4 A. As part of our work at Morgan Stanley, you know,
 5 we weren't really looking at his reputation, you
 6 know, whether, we weren't looking really at that
 7 angle of it, we were just looking at his results
 8 and what had he actually done.
 9 Q. Was his reputation immaterial to your work in 10 connection with Sunbeam, the Sunbeam engagement?
 11 MS. Brown: Object to form. Argumentative.
 12 A. I mean, I don't know what it related to in terms
 13 of the engagement with Morgan Stanley and 14 Sunbeam. My part of it was just, you know, my 15 focus at that time in that deal was just to 16 perform the analysis on what we looked at at 17 Scott.
 18 Q. What was your conclusion after performing that
 19 analysis?
 20 A. As I said before, I think at the time it looked 21 like the numbers were pretty good.
 22 Q. And what do you mean by "pretty good"? That 23 they were accurate?
 24 A. I don't know what you mean by "accurate."
 25 Q. Whether Mr. Dunlap truly turned around Scott

Page 56

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Paper prior to its sale?
 3 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 4 A. That's his opinion.
 5 Q. Did you ever reach that opinion one way or the 6 other?
 7 A. Did I personally reach that opinion?
 8 Q. Right.
 9 A. Like I said, at the time I thought he had done a
 10 good job. You know, the numbers seemed to work
 11 out.
 12 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley disagree with that 13 opinion to your knowledge?
 14 A. Not that I can remember.
 15 MS. Brown: Let's take a break.
 16 MR. O'CONNOR: Can I go for about two more
 17 minutes?
 18 MS. Brown: Okay.
 19 Q. Sir, I'm going to show you a copy of an exhibit
 20 previously marked CPH 148. Have you seen this
 21 document, sir?
 22 A. Yes, I have.
 23 Q. When did you first see this document?
 24 A. I believe I wrote it.
 25 Q. This is your handwriting?

Page 57

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I think so.
 3 Q. Do you recall why you prepared this document?
 4 A. I don't know exactly. It looks like I'm taking
 5 notes on something.
 6 Q. It appears that you're taking notes on 7 Mr. Dunlap's performance at Scott Paper; is that
 8 fair to say, --
 9 MS. Brown: Objection.
 10 Q. -- in the left hand column?
 11 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 12 Mischaracterization.
 13 A. I think I was actually taking notes on the 14 article, from the news article.
 15 Q. If you flip back to CPH Exhibit 68. The next to 16 the last paragraph which appears on Morgan
 17 Stanley 3996. There's information in that 18 paragraph concerning 11,000 people that were 19 eliminated, 11,000 jobs eliminated at Scott
 20 Paper, 71 percent headquarter staff, 50 percent
 21 of the managers and 20 percent of the hourly
 22 workers. That information is also contained in 23 your handwriting notes on CPH Exhibit 148; is
 24 that correct?
 25 A. Which page are you on? I'm sorry.

Page 58

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. It's page 2 of the Shredder article, CPH Exhibit

3 68.

4 A. Okay.

5 Q. It's the next to the last paragraph.

6 A. Okay. Okay.

7 Q. And my question, sir, was the information

8 contained in this article in that paragraph

9 that's also reflected in your handwritten notes

10 in CPH 148 correct?

11 A. It appears to be.

12 Q. Do you recall, sir, why when thinking that this

13 information was humorous you were taking notes

14 of that information as reflected in CPH Exhibit

15 148?

16 MS. Brown: Object to form.

17 Mischaracterization. Assumes facts not in

18 evidence.

19 A. I don't know, again, I don't recall when I read

20 the article the first time. And I don't know

21 when I wrote this.

22 Q. Do you have any general recollection of when you

23 wrote the information on CPH Exhibit 148?

24 A. I don't know specifically. I would have to 25 guess.

Page 59

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. You also see on Exhibit CPH Exhibit 148 fourth

3 from the bottom there is an asterisk which

4 states "volume driven plan, arrow, prop up for 5 sale."

6 A. Uh-huh.

7 Q. Do you know what that refers to?

8 A. Again, I don't know. I think it was just

9 something that I had written from the news

10 article.

11 Q. You don't recall whether you investigated,

12 whether Dunlap pursued a volume driven plan at 13 Scott Paper to prop it up for sale?

14 A. There's nothing here. There was no discussion

15 of that kind of, that I know of.

16 Q. On CPH Exhibit 148 there is a column entitled

17 Kimberly-Clark. Do you recall, sir, that Scott

18 Paper was sold to Kimberly-Clark?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And you'll see there's a hand notation of 600

21 million in synergies and cost reductions?

22 A. Uh-huh.

23 Q. Synergies and cost reductions appear in quotes.

24 Do you recall why you made that notation?

25 A. Which -- why did I write that line?

Page 60

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. Correct.

3 A. Again, I think I was just taking notes from the

4 article. I think that's what actually happened

5 or what they were saying they had achieved.

6 Q. Did you ever investigate whether there were 600

7 million in synergies and cost reductions as a

8 result of that transaction?

9 A. Again, I don't remember the specifics of how we

10 did the analysis on Scott Paper, I would think

11 that we went back and looked at, you know, some

12 of the financial performance of both. But I

13 don't remember exactly what we did.

14 Q. And you don't recall why you prepared this

15 document which has been marked as CPH Exhibit

16 148?

17 A. No. I think that, you know, I don't remember

18 why exactly.

19 Q. Do you remember what was done with this

20 document?

21 A. No.

22 Q. Did you provide it to anybody?

23 A. No. I wouldn't have given something like this

24 to anyone.

25 Q. Was it used to create any documents in

Page 61

1 EUGENE YOO

2 connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

3 A. Not that I know of. I'm sure some of the 4 factual information went into some documents.

5 But, you know.

6 Q. Okay. This is a good time to take a break.

7 VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is ten fifty-eight,

8 we're off the record.

9 (Short break taken.)

10 VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record,

11 this is tape number two and the time is seven

12 minutes after eleven.

13 Q. Mr. Yoo, I'm going to show you what's previously

14 been marked as CPH Exhibit 81. This is a

15 document titled, Project Laser, Laser

16 Corporation, Restructuring and Growth Plans. Do

17 you recall, sir, that the code name for the 18 Sunbeam engagement was Project Laser?

19 A. Yes, I do.

20 Q. Okay. Have you seen this document before?

21 A. I think I have.

22 Q. When did you see this document?

23 A. I think at the time that we, it was prepared.

24 Q. Did you prepare it?

25 A. I didn't personally prepare this, no.

Page 62

1 EUGENE YOO
2 Q. Do you know who did?
3 A. I don't know.
4 Q. What was the purpose of preparing this document?
5 A. I don't remember.
6 Q. If you look at the document page 36394, where it
7 says "restructuring plan." Do you know where
8 this information -- do you know where the person
9 that drafted this document obtained this
10 information?
11 A. No, I don't.
12 Q. And the same question for the growth targets; do
13 you know the source of that information?
14 A. No.
15 Q. Under "growth targets" the first bullet point
16 says "doubling of 1996 sales of about 984
17 million to almost 2 billion by 1999 without 18 acquisitions; do you see that, sir?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Did you ever investigate how Sunbeam was going
21 to achieve that growth goal?
22 MS. Brown: Object to form.
23 A. I'm not sure what you mean.
24 Q. Well, do you recall that Sunbeam had a growth
25 target which included doubling its 1996 sales to

Page 63

1 EUGENE YOO
2 almost 2 billion by 1999 without acquisitions?
3 A. I don't remember any of their growth targets or 4 what their plans were. It was such a long time
5 ago.
6 Q. Do you remember conducting any investigation to 7 determine whether Sunbeam's growth targets were 8 attainable?
9 A. We did talk to several people at Sunbeam about 10 the numbers they had given us. We talked to 11 Russ Kirsch and Rich Goudis. Again, I think we 12 spent a day at their office talking to the 13 different division heads about the, their budget
14 plan for the year.
15 Q. Did the information you received from these 16 individuals comport with the growth plans that 17 are indicated in CPH Exhibit 81?
18 A. Again, I don't know if they matched up with 19 this. But I do remember that we were very 20 comfortable with the detailed information they 21 had given us behind their growth plans.
22 Q. Do you recall how you became comfortable with
23 that information?
24 MS. Brown: Object to form.
25 A. How we became comfortable?

Page 64

1 EUGENE YOO
2 Q. Right.
3 A. I'm not sure what you mean.
4 Q. Did you take it on face value what they were
5 saying; did you do something to investigate
6 those statements to confirm you were comfortable
7 with their growth plans?
8 A. We did our investigation as far as we typically 9 do. I mean, there's only so far that we go on 10 an MNA transaction, at some point we're relying 11 on the company and the information they give us
12 to be accurate.
13 Q. And in this respect what, what did you do to 14 become comfortable with the information they 15 were providing you? Do you recall any specific 16 things that you did?
17 MS. Brown: Object to form.
18 A. I don't remember specifically what we did.
19 Q. What typically does Morgan Stanley do in a deal
20 like this to become comfortable with the growth
21 plans provided to them by the company?
22 A. It depends on the company and it depends on the
23 transaction.
24 Q. Okay. In a transaction of this magnitude what 25 does Morgan Stanley typically do?

Page 65

1 EUGENE YOO
2 A. Again, my experience has only been with, and for
3 me this was probably one of the larger
4 transactions that I worked on. So, you know, I
5 can only speak about what I had done.
6 Q. What have you done in the past on deals similar
7 to Sunbeam to determine whether Morgan Stanley
8 is comfortable with the growth plans given to 9 them by the company that's retained them to 10 provide investment counseling or acquisition
11 counseling for the sale of the company?
12 MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.
13 A. I guess, it's been a long time since I've done
14 it. I can only really talk about what I've 15 done. But from what I remember on this, as I
16 said, we went through the growth plan, tried to 17 get the detail behind the numbers they were 18 giving us with Russ and with Rich Goudis and we 19 met with the division heads and they walked 20 through how they were going to achieve their 21 numbers. And that's probably pretty typical for 22 any investment bank on an MNA transaction.
23 Q. Is there any independent analysis that Morgan
24 Stanley conducts to confirm the information
25 provided to them by the company?

Page 66

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 3 A. I don't know what else they do.
 4 Q. You indicated that you spoke with division heads
 5 at Sunbeam, who were the individuals that you
 6 spoke with?
 7 A. I don't remember specifically.
 8 Q. Did you speak with Don Oosi?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. And did Mr. Oosi provide you with any documents
 11 to back up the growth targets that are indicated
 12 in CPH Exhibit 81?
 13 A. I believe he did.
 14 Q. Do you recall the form of those documents?
 15 A. No. I don't remember what he gave us.
 16 Q. Other than Mr. Kirsch and Mr. Goudis did you
 17 meet with anyone else in senior management at 18 Sunbeam to determine whether the growth targets
 19 were attainable?
 20 MS. Brown: Object to form.
 21 Mischaracterization testimony.
 22 A. Our primary contact was with Russ and Rich on 23 almost anything that was deal related, on almost 24 anything that was Sunbeam related, I should say.
 25 And, you know, the managing directors had

Page 67

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 contact with AI, it was -- I don't recall if
 3 there was anyone else in senior management that
 4 we talked with, you know, above the division
 5 heads.
 6 Q. If you turn to page 2 of that document which is 7 Morgan Stanley 36395. This is a slide entitled
 8 Scott Paper Restructuring and Growth Plans. If 9 you take a look at the information under 10 restructuring plan; do you recall the source of 11 this information?
 12 A. (Witness shakes head in the negative.) I don't 13 know specifically, no.
 14 Q. If you look at the fourth bullet point where it
 15 reads, "reduce work force by over 35 percent
 16 with approximately 11,000 layoffs, --
 17 A. Uh-huh.
 18 Q. -- 71 percent of headquarter staff, 50 percent
 19 managers, 20 percent hourly workers and 60
 20 percent R and D." Do you recall, sir, that that 21 information is contained in CPH Exhibit 148 and 22 CPH Exhibit 68 that we looked at a few moments
 23 ago?
 24 A. Yeah, they appear to be the same.
 25 Q. Your testimony is that you did not draft this

Page 68

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 document; is that correct?
 3 A. I don't know for sure. I don't think I did.
 4 Q. Do you know what was done with this document,
 5 CPH Exhibit 81?
 6 A. I don't remember.
 7 Q. Do you recall if this document was provided to 8 any potential buyers?
 9 A. I couldn't say for sure, I don't know.
 10 Q. Or its potential acquisition targets?
 11 A. Again, I don't know. I didn't attend any of 12 those meetings.
 13 Q. Handing you what's been previously marked as CPH
 14 Exhibit 69, the cover page reads "Project Laser
 15 Discussion Materials, September 11, 1997,
 16 Conference Call." Setting aside the handwriting
 17 on this document, Mr. Yoo, do you recall seeing
 18 this document?
 19 A. I may have seen this. I couldn't say for sure,
 20 but it's possible.
 21 Q. Do you recall seeing the document with the 22 handwriting?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. You'll notice in the upper right-hand corner
 25 there's the notation MS and then a list of names

Page 69

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 and the fifth name down appears to be Yoo,
 3 Y-o-o?
 4 A. Uh-huh.
 5 Q. Do you recall attending a September 11, 1997
 6 conference call?
 7 A. I don't remember specifically, but it's 8 possible.
 9 Q. Do you recall who -- I'm sorry. Withdrawn.
 10 Do you recognize the handwriting on this
 11 document?
 12 A. No, I'm not sure who it is.
 13 Q. On the first page in handwriting off to the 14 left-hand side right above "Morgan," there's a 15 handwritten notation "Coopers and Lybrand to 16 calibrate synergies"?
 17 A. Oh, okay, yeah.
 18 Q. Do you see that. Do you recall, sir, that
 19 Coopers and Lybrand was providing synergy
 20 analysis to Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley in 21 connection with the Sunbeam engagement in 1997?
 22 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 23 A. I don't remember exactly what it was that they 24 were providing us. I do know that they had 25 worked with AI in the past and I don't remember

Page 70

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 their exact role in this transaction. But from
 3 what I remember I think they were working with
 4 Al on the turn around plan. On developing a
 5 plan, I think, but I don't remember for sure.
 6 Q. That's the turnaround plan at Sunbeam?
 7 A. At Sunbeam, right.
 8 Q. If you could turn to page 3 of the document
 9 which is Morgan Stanley 3897. It's a slide
 10 entitled Overview of Proposed Selling Process?
 11 A. Uh-huh.
 12 Q. Do you see on the left-hand side, sir,
 13 handwriting, it says "just get it done"? To the 14 left of Overview of Proposed Selling Process.
 15 A. Okay. Yeah.
 16 Q. Does that refresh your recollection, sir, of 17 participating in this conference call? Someone
 18 making the statement "just get it done"?
 19 A. No. I don't know.
 20 Q. You don't know what that means?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. In about the middle of the page looking at the 23 handwriting again there is two asterisks, the 24 second asterisk says "Kimberly/Scott - won't see 25 anything." Do you recall anyone making that

Page 72

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Stanley prepared a document entitled Strategic
 3 Plan or contained the words strategic plan in 4 the title of the document?
 5 A. I don't know for sure. I mean, we produced a
 6 lot of documents.
 7 Q. I'm sorry. How about long range strategic plan;
 8 do you recall that document?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. And then in the middle of page 3906 of CPH
 11 Exhibit 69 there's a box around some 12 handwriting, and the handwriting states "beef up
 13 sex appeal." And there's an arrow to "future
 14 growth opportunities." Do you know what that 15 refers to?
 16 A. I couldn't say for sure.
 17 Q. Do you recall anyone at Morgan Stanley
 18 discussing beefing up the sex appeal of Sunbeam
 19 by touting future growth opportunities?
 20 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 21 A. No. I mean, there was really no discussion
 22 about that.
 23 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley refer to Sunbeam
 24 management as amateurs?
 25 A. Not that I can remember, no.

Page 71

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 statement at Morgan Stanley?
 3 A. No, I don't, I don't recall anything about that.
 4 Q. You don't know what that means?
 5 A. No. I, I don't know what that means.
 6 Q. If you can turn to page 12 of the document which 7 is Morgan Stanley 3906. In much larger
 8 handwriting on the top left of that page it says
 9 "amateurs" and it's underlined; do you see that?
 10 A. Okay.
 11 Q. Does that refresh your recollection of this 12 September 11th conference call?
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. Do you know what -- do you know what that refers
 15 to?
 16 MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation.
 17 A. No. I'm not sure.
 18 Q. To the right-hand side in handwriting there's an 19 asterisk with 20 to 25 pages, Strat Plan;
 20 possibly strategic plan. Does that --
 21 A. Okay.
 22 Q. Does that refresh your recollection of this call
 23 and discussion of a Sunbeam strategic plan?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Were you aware, sir, that Sunbeam and Morgan

Page 73

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. If you take a moment, sir, to flip through the
 3 rest of the document. My question for you is 4 whether you recall preparing any portions of
 5 this document?
 6 A. (Witness reviewing.) I don't know specifically
 7 where, but I'm sure I had a hand in helping to 8 prepare this somewhere.
 9 Q. You mean you don't recall any specific pages
 10 that you have a recollection of preparing?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam advise 13 Morgan Stanley to not contact Kimberly-Clark in 14 connection with Morgan Stanley's work in trying 15 to find a buyer or an acquisition target for
 16 Sunbeam?
 17 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
 18 A. No, there was no discussion of that kind.
 19 Q. That you recall?
 20 A. That I recall.
 21 (Deposition Exhibit 218 marked for
 22 identification.)
 23 Q. Sir, you've been handed what's been marked as
 24 CPH Exhibit 218.
 25 A. Uh-huh.

Page 74

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. Do you recall this document?

3 A. I think I do, yeah. It's sort of familiar.

4 Q. Did you draft this document?

5 A. I think I helped write it up.

6 Q. Who assisted you in writing up this document?

7 A. I think it was Alex Fuchs and Tyrone Chang.

8 Q. What was the purpose of drafting this document?

9 A. I don't know what the end goal or the end

10 product was to be, but I think this was part of 11 our due diligence on Sunbeam. Just

12 understanding their growth plan.

13 Q. Why was it important for Morgan Stanley

14 personnel to understand Sunbeam's growth plan?

15 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

16 Characterization.

17 A. I don't remember what the end product was to be 18 or the end goal was here.

19 MR. O'CONNOR: Mark this.

20 (Deposition Exhibit 219 marked for

21 identification.)

22 Q. Do you know if CPH Exhibit 218 was ever sent to

23 Mr. Fannin and Mr. Goudis?

24 A. I don't know for sure.

25 Q. Sir, I'm handing you what's been marked as CPH

Page 75

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Exhibit 219. It's a document bearing Bates

3 label Morgan Stanley 36347 through 36349; do you

4 recall this document?

5 A. Uh-huh. Yes.

6 Q. This appears to be a later version of CPH

7 Exhibit 218, does that refresh your recollection

8 that you may have changed Exhibit 218 in a

9 matter reflected in CPH Exhibit 219?

10 A. I, again, I don't remember exactly what the 11 reasoning was. I think we were just

12 reorganizing the questions into categories to 13 make it easier for them to gather the

14 information.

15 (Deposition Exhibit 220 marked for

16 identification.)

17 Q. Do you recall drafting that document, CPH

18 Exhibit 219 or revising the document that we

19 marked as CPH Exhibit 218?

20 A. I don't remember that specifically, no.

21 Q. I'm handing you what's been marked as CPH

22 Exhibit 220. CPH Exhibit 220 bears Bates labels

23 CPH 467090 through 467126. I'll represent to 24 you that this is the way the document appears in

25 the files, I'm not sure if the first three pages

Page 76

1 EUGENE YOO

2 of CPH Exhibit 220 were physically attached to

3 the following document. But do you know, sir,

4 whether that was the case? Whether these two

5 documents were in fact attached?

6 A. I don't know.

7 Q. Does your handwriting appear on the first page,

8 the fax cover sheet on CPH Exhibit 220?

9 A. No, that's not my handwriting.

10 Q. Is that Mr. Chang's handwriting?

11 A. I don't know whose that is.

12 Q. But you're listed as the author of the fax?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. On page 2 of that document, CPH 220, under 15 Financial Projections; do you see that?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. First bullet point reads "please provide backup

18 numbers to all the new revenue stream graphical

19 charts." Do you see that?

20 A. Yes, I do.

21 Q. What was the purpose of attaining that

22 information?

23 A. Again, I don't know if there was any other

24 reasoning behind it other than just typical due

25 diligence and trying to make sure that we fully

Page 77

1 EUGENE YOO

2 understand and are comfortable with their

3 projections.

4 Q. Do you recall whether you received materials

5 that were responsive to the request under

6 "financial projections"?

7 A. I do know we received some documents from them,

8 I don't know for sure we got all of them or not.

9 Q. Did you ever make an effort to determine whether

10 they provided you with all of the information

11 requested in this September 19, 1997 memo?

12 A. I believe we did follow up with them on some

13 outstanding items, yeah. I don't recall if

14 those were ever followed through or not.

15 Q. Looking at the product development R and D

16 pipeline section, the third bullet point. The 17 second dash reads, "is 30 new products a year a

18 reasonable number to achieve." Do you recall

19 receiving any comfort or a response to that

20 inquiry?

21 A. I don't remember specifically.

22 Q. Did you believe that 30 new products a year was 23 an unreasonable number to achieve?

24 A. I had no idea. I didn't really know the 25 industry.

Page 78

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. On the third page of the document, CPH 467092,

3 there's a category entitled, not category,

4 /channel/pricing; do you see that?

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. And the fourth bullet point it reads "definition

7 of category management? Does it differ from

8 channel management?" Do you recall inquiring

9 into Sunbeam's channel management?

10 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

11 A. I'm not sure. I mean, I still don't fully know

12 what channel management is. That's part of the 13 question was trying to work through their

14 terminology, understanding what it is they were

15 talking about.

16 Q. Did you ever come to an understanding of 17 Sunbeam's channel management practices?

18 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

19 A. Again, I'm not really sure, you know, what

20 channel management, you know, it's more of a

21 marketing term, I believe. I'm not really sure

22 what channel management is.

23 Q. There's another category entitled Other at the 24 bottom of that same page. And next to the 25 fourth bullet point it reads "provide examples

Page 79

1 EUGENE YOO

2 of how the company has repositioned itself

3 (manufacturing, shipping and billing, R and D

4 and other systems and processes.) For growth as

5 opposed to being viewed as a cost cutter." Do

6 you recall obtaining information in response to

7 this inquiry?

8 A. I don't remember specifically what we got back

9 on this one.

10 Q. Do you recall whether you received any comfort

11 on whether the company repositioned itself for 12 growth as opposed to simply cost cutting?

13 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

14 A. I don't recall.

15 Q. The following document is a list of documents in 16 data room, CPH 467093?

17 A. Uh-huh.

18 Q. And it appears that this document runs through

19 the rest of this exhibit through CPH 467126. Do

20 you recall seeing that document?

21 A. No, I don't think I've seen this before.

22 Q. Did you ever go into a data room in connection

23 with your due diligence of Sunbeam?

24 A. Not that I can remember.

25 Q. Do you know if anyone did?

Page 80

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. As far as I remember there was, at least for the

3 Morgan Stanley due diligence, I don't believe

4 there was a formal data room set up. I don't

5 recall if there was ever one set up during the

6 transaction, during the actual consummation of 7 the transaction.

8 Q. Did you, did you ever have any contact with the

9 law firm Skadden Arps in connection with the 10 Sunbeam engagement?

11 A. I believe so, yes.

12 Q. Do you recall that Skadden represented Sunbeam

13 in the transaction?

14 A. That sounds familiar, yeah.

15 Q. Okay. Did you have any discussions with Skadden

16 in connection with the due diligence that you

17 performed?

18 A. I don't think we talked about that, no.

19 Q. Do you recall when you started your due

20 diligence of Sunbeam?

21 A. I mean, for a client -- I'm sorry.

22 Q. No, go ahead.

23 A. For a client I don't think it's a one time

24 event. It's sort of an ongoing thing. As I

25 said, we were learning about the company when we

Page 81

1 EUGENE YOO

2 did our first pitch and then from then it was

3 sort of an ongoing process of trying to stay on

4 top of the progress of the company.

5 Q. Is September 19, 1997 a significant date to you

6 in connection with your due diligence work?

7 When the memo that's attached to CPH Exhibit 220

8 was faxed to Mr. Goudis and Mr. Fannin at

9 Sunbeam?

10 A. I don't recall anything specific or anything

11 special about that day.

12 Q. Did Sunbeam ever refuse to provide any

13 information that you requested in connection

14 with your due diligence work?

15 A. No. Not as far as I can remember.

16 Q. Did Sunbeam limit Morgan Stanley's access to any

17 of Sunbeam's customers or employees?

18 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

19 A. There was no -- there was no attempt on 20 Sunbeam's part to limit our access to any of the 21 customers.

22 Q. Did you interview any customers at Sunbeam?

23 A. I did not personally, no.

24 Q. Do you know if anyone did?

25 A. I don't believe anyone did. But I don't think

Page 82

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 that's -- it's not really part of the normal due
 3 diligence process for an MNA transaction.
 4 Q. You've never contacted companies' customers as 5 part of due diligence?
 6 A. I haven't personally and I don't know of anyone
 7 that has. I can't think of anybody that has.
 8 Q. Okay. How about lower level employees,
 9 employees below the division heads, did you have 10 any contact with those employees in connection
 11 with your due diligence?
 12 A. Occasionally here and there. I don't remember
 13 anyone directly.
 14 Q. Do you recall any of those employees that you
 15 spoke with?
 16 A. No.
 17 Q. Do you recall the subjects of your conversations
 18 with those employees?
 19 A. No. It was mainly in the context of when we 20 would request information or specific documents
 21 most of our contact was with senior or mid level
 22 management and they would have some of their 23 subordinates do the actual work to provide us
 24 the information. That was really the main
 25 context of our contact with them.

Page 83

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. So is it your testimony that you never spoke to
 3 those employees, you just obtained information
 4 from them through their superiors?
 5 MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes.
 6 A. I don't recall the nature our conversations with 7 them. You know, there was some contact, I don't
 8 really remember what it was.
 9 MR. O'CONNOR: Mark the next exhibit.
 10 (Deposition Exhibit 221 marked for
 11 identification.)
 12 Q. Mr. Yoo, you've been handed what's been marked
 13 as CPH Exhibit 221; do you recall this document?
 14 A. No, I don't think I've seen this one.
 15 Q. Do you recall traveling to Sunbeam's
 16 headquarters in Florida on September 22nd
 17 through the 24th, 1997?
 18 A. I don't know the dates that I was down there. I
 19 made several trips down there.
 20 Q. How many trips do you think you made to Florida
 21 in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
 22 A. I have to guess. Maybe four or five.
 23 Q. And each time you traveled to Florida did you,
 24 did you go to Sunbeam's headquarters in Del Ray
 25 Beach?

Page 84

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. Yes, I believe so.
 3 Q. What were the purposes of your trips to Florida?
 4 A. They were all different. We were down there for 5 different reasons.
 6 Q. Did you go to the beach?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Was this a part of your due diligence of
 9 Sunbeam?
 10 A. Some of it was for due diligence, yes.
 11 Q. Besides due diligence why else did you go to
 12 Sunbeam?
 13 A. Some of it was, I believe there was one meeting
 14 or one presentation we made to them and I think
 15 one was a, I remember we went down there for a,
 16 sort of a preparation session. I think they 17 were having a meeting with someone, I don't 18 recall who.
 19 Q. Was this a potential buyer?
 20 A. I don't remember who it was. It was really --
 21 Jim Stynes was the one that went with me in that 22 meeting and they were asking for Jim's help in 23 just preparing for a meeting.
 24 Q. In the presentation, of the trip for the 25 presentation was that for the pitch to Sunbeam?

Page 85

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. No. What was that about? I think it was --
 3 Q. That's my next question.
 4 A. I think it was just an update of the progress to 5 that point. Where we were in our discussions.
 6 Q. Do you recall when that trip occurred?
 7 A. I think it was in the fall sometime that I
 8 remember.
 9 Q. Do you recall Mr. Dunlap being unhappy with 10 Morgan Stanley because Morgan Stanley could not
 11 find a buyer for Sunbeam?
 12 A. I never knew, I mean, I never, like I said, I
 13 never talked to him.
 14 Q. You never talked to him ever?
 15 A. About the transaction. It was really just 16 formalities and greetings.
 17 Q. Does CPH Exhibit 221 read in connection with CPH
 18 Exhibit 220, refresh your recollection that your 19 trip to Florida from September 22nd to the 24th
 20 of 1997 was in connection with the information
 21 that you requested in the September 19, 1997
 22 memo?
 23 A. Okay. I believe we did go down there for that 24 trip for a due diligence session.
 25 Q. What do you recall about that trip?

Page 86

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. It was pretty nondescript. I mean, it was just

3 information gathering, going through

4 documentation they had given us, a few

5 presentations. Actually, this may have been the

6 trip where we met with the various division

7 heads and they were giving us their growth plan

8 for the year.

9 Q. Do you recall any of the information they

10 provided you on those growth plans?

11 A. No.

12 Q. Do you recall looking at any documents during

13 this trip that you requested in the September

14 19, 1997 memo?

15 A. We did go through quite a few documents during 16 this time. I don't, again, I couldn't tell you

17 specifically what.

18 Q. Did you find any information in those documents

19 that caused you any concern about Sunbeam's turn

20 around or the future growth projections?

21 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

22 A. No. At the time there was nothing really that

23 raised any red flags for us.

24 Q. Was there anything that raised any yellow flags?

25 A. No.

Page 87

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. Did Mr. Chang accompany you on this trip to

3 Florida in September?

4 A. I believe he did.

5 Q. Did anyone else go to Florida with you on this

6 trip, or did you meet anyone from Morgan Stanley

7 down in Florida on this trip?

8 A. I don't remember. I don't think so, but I'm not

9 sure.

10 Q. CPH Exhibit 221 indicates that you spent

11 Tuesday, September 23rd, at Sunbeam?

12 A. Uh-huh.

13 Q. And you were to see Rich Goudis. And it shows

14 your departure on Wednesday, September 24th, six

15 fifteen flight.

16 A. Uh-huh.

17 Q. Does that refresh your recollection on how much

18 time you spent at Sunbeam's headquarters

19 reviewing documents and meeting with division

20 heads?

21 MS. BROWN: On this trip?

22 Q. On this trip. Thanks.

23 A. I thought we were there for a few days, maybe

24 two days or three days. And -- I've got to look

25 at the time line here. Yeah, it looks like

Page 88

1 EUGENE YOO

2 that, it was probably two days.

3 Q. Do you recall whether this trip in late

4 September of 1997 preceded this presentation

5 that you spoke about earlier?

6 A. Which presentation?

7 Q. The trip to Florida where you were involved in a

8 presentation to Sunbeam to update them on the 9 progress?

10 MS. BROWN: With Mr. Stynes.

11 A. I don't remember the exact chronology.

12 Q. How long were you in Florida for that

13 presentation?

14 A. I think it was just a day.

15 Q. In that preparation session?

16 A. I think it was just a day.

17 Q. Other than the trip to Florida on September

18 22nd, do you recall any other trips to Florida

19 in 1997 during which time you performed due

20 diligence of Sunbeam?

21 A. I couldn't say for sure. I don't know.

22 Q. I'm handing you what's been previously marked as

23 CPH Exhibit 71.

24 A. (Witness reviewing.)

25 Q. Have you seen this document before?

Page 89

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. Yes, I have.

3 Q. When did you see this document?

4 A. I actually helped put this together.

5 Q. Okay. The first two pages of CPH Exhibit 71 are

6 contents of an e-mail authored by Tyrone Chang

7 dated October 23, 1997, attaching an October 22,

8 1997 memo to worldwide IBD Professionals; do you

9 see that?

10 A. Yes, I do.

11 Q. Do you recall the purpose of sending this e-mail

12 and the attached documents at this time? At 13 that time.

14 A. This was a standard announcement that we would

15 send out when we were engaged by a client.

16 Q. What's the purpose of sending out that 17 announcement?

18 A. I think it was just informative for the rest of 19 the investment banking division.

20 Q. You said that you prepared the materials that

21 are attached to that e-mail?

22 A. Well, I helped put this together.

23 Q. When you say you helped put it together, what

24 does that mean?

25 A. I think most of the actual documentation on the

Page 90

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 project, the person who actually physically sat
 3 there and drafted these was Tyrone, and I was 4 overseeing that and then Alex was overseeing us,
 5 Alex Fuchs.
 6 Q. Did you physically type the information that's
 7 contained on Morgan Stanley 5986?
 8 A. 86? No, I didn't type this.
 9 Q. Do you know who did?
 10 A. I don't know.
 11 Q. Do you recall reading the investment rationale
 12 that appears on this page at this point in time?
 13 A. I believe I did read this.
 14 Q. The first bullet point reads, "Sunbeam
 15 represents an attractive growth story and 16 investment opportunity"?
 17 A. Uh-huh.
 18 Q. Do you know the basis for that statement?
 19 A. I don't know.
 20 Q. Did you do anything in connection with your due
 21 diligence of Sunbeam to confirm that Sunbeam in 22 fact represented an attractive growth story and
 23 investment opportunity?
 24 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 25 A. Well, all of these I think are just opinion

Page 91

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 about the quality of the company. I think the
 3 growth aspect was coming out of the growth plan
 4 that Sunbeam had.
 5 Q. So the statements, the four bullet point
 6 statements that appear on Morgan Stanley 5986
 7 are Morgan Stanley's opinion of the condition of 8 Sunbeam Corporation at this time?
 9 MS. BROWN: Object. Mischaracter --
 10 Q. I'm sorry. At the time that the document was 11 circulated to the worldwide IBD Professionals?
 12 MS. BROWN: Objection.
 13 Mischaracterization. Foundation.
 14 A. At the time that this was drafted based on the 15 information that we had from the company and 16 what we knew about the company, you know, we 17 felt that these were reasonably accurate.
 18 Q. Do you recall anything specifically that you did
 19 to confirm that Sunbeam had undergone a profound
 20 transformation since the arrival of new
 21 management in July of 1996?
 22 A. I don't remember specifically.
 23 Q. For the next bullet point "tremendous intrinsic
 24 value, outpacing nearest competitors"?
 25 A. Uh-huh.

Page 92

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. You testified earlier as part of your due
 3 diligence you were keeping an eye on other
 4 companies in the industry?
 5 A. (Witness nods in the affirmative.)
 6 Q. Is that part of what you did to confirm that
 7 Sunbeam presented a tremendous intrinsic value?
 8 A. I can't say for sure, but that's a possibility.
 9 Q. If you turn, sir, to page 5991, a few pages back
 10 in CPH Exhibit 71. There's a summary of recent 11 analyst commentary.
 12 A. Uh-huh.
 13 Q. And that spans for several pages. Did you draft
 14 those pages of this document?
 15 A. Actually, I don't think that I worked on this
 16 part of it.
 17 Q. Did you perform any research into analyst
 18 commentaries on Sunbeam or did someone else take 19 care of that?
 20 A. Most of that was actually done by the, by our,
 21 our financial analysts, Tiruse (ph.), Tyrone and 22 Louie.
 23 Q. You can set that aside. During your trip to 24 Sunbeam in September, late September of 1997 did
 25 you ever meet with any of the company's internal

Page 93

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 auditors?
 3 A. No, I don't think we did.
 4 Q. You never spoke to Tom Hartshorn?
 5 A. Harshorn?
 6 Q. Thank you.
 7 A. I don't recall ever meeting him face to face. I
 8 think I may have spoken to him on the phone once
 9 or twice.
 10 Q. What did you discuss with him?
 11 A. I don't recall.
 12 Q. How about Deirdre Dadando, did you ever speak
 13 with her on the phone?
 14 A. I don't recall that name.
 15 Q. Did you ever review Sunbeam's internal audit
 16 papers?
 17 A. I don't believe we did.
 18 Q. Did you ever review the audit work papers
 19 prepared by Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's
 20 accountant?
 21 A. I don't think we did. We typically don't review
 22 the audit papers.
 23 Q. Why is that?
 24 A. We rely on the auditors who provide us with a
 25 comfort on the financials. We couldn't do that

Page 94

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 on every transaction to go in and review their
 3 work.
 4 Q. Did you ever speak to anyone at Arthur Andersen
 5 in connection with your due diligence?
 6 A. I don't think we did.
 7 Q. You don't recall speaking to Larry Bornstein?
 8 A. No. I may have on the phone once, but I don't 9 really remember. I didn't really deal with 10 Larry.
 11 Q. Do you know who Larry Bornstein is? Have you
 12 met him?
 13 A. I've never met him, no.
 14 Q. Phil Harlow?
 15 A. Phil I think I've spoken to. I think he was the 16 person I talked to more.
 17 Q. You don't recall what you discussed with 18 Mr. Bornstein?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Do you recall what you discussed with 21 Mr. Harlow?
 22 A. I don't remember specifically. It was more in 23 connection with the acquisitions that Sunbeam
 24 was making.
 25 Q. Was part of your due diligence of Sunbeam and

Page 95

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 its financial condition you didn't have
 3 conversation with Mr. Harlow or Mr. Bornstein?
 4 MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes.
 5 A. I don't believe we did.
 6 Q. Sir, I'm handing you what's previously been 7 marked as CPH Exhibit 84. Have you seen this
 8 document?
 9 A. I don't believe I have.
 10 Q. This is a document that was produced by Morgan
 11 Stanley and it appears to be the chronology of 12 the events, some of the events, Project Laser.
 13 On page 2 of the chronology next to the date of 14 September 23rd and 24th, the event reads "MS due 15 diligence at SOC"?
 16 A. Uh-huh.
 17 Q. First, SOC refers to Sunbeam's stock ticker
 18 symbol; correct?
 19 A. Correct.
 20 Q. And the participants of that due diligence
 21 session at Sunbeam are listed as yourself and
 22 Mr. Chang --
 23 A. Uh-huh.
 24 Q. -- at Sunbeam's headquarters? Do you recall
 25 traveling to Sunbeam on September 23rd and 24th

Page 96

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 as part of your due diligence? I'm sorry. I
 3 withdraw that question.
 4 Is that the same -- does that refer to the 5 trip that we discussed in CPH Exhibit 221?
 6 A. I believe that's the same trip, yes.
 7 Q. And then the next page lists October 29th?
 8 A. Uh-huh.
 9 Q. "MS due diligence regarding growth strategies
 10 and strategic plan at Sunbeam's headquarters in 11 Florida" and your name, Mr. Chang's name and 12 Miss Rafii's name are listed there. Do you
 13 recall traveling to Sunbeam in Florida on 14 October 29th to conduct due diligence on 15 Sunbeam's growth strategies and strategic plan?
 16 A. I vaguely remember making the trip.
 17 Q. Do you recall what you did on that trip?
 18 A. I just remember part of it being sitting with 19 Rich Goudis and with Russ and some of the backup
 20 financials they had to the growth plan,
 21 understanding how they built up to their final,
 22 final numbers. I don't recall what else we did
 23 on that trip.
 24 Q. Did they provide you with documents reflecting
 25 that build up?

Page 97

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. Yes, I believe they did.
 3 Q. Do you recall what those documents contained?
 4 A. I don't remember now, no.
 5 Q. Did you speak with anyone besides Mr. Goudis and 6 Mr. Kirsch during that trip?
 7 A. I may have. I think there was somebody else
 8 that worked for Russ that we actually dealt with 9 on a more regular basis for the financials. And 10 we may have talked to, we may have talked to Don
 11 as well, Don Oosi.
 12 Q. Did you speak with anyone below senior
 13 management on that trip to discuss the back up
 14 for the strategic plan or the growth strategies?
 15 A. I don't recall.
 16 Q. Do you recall anything else about that trip or 17 the information you learned?
 18 A. No. I don't recall anything else about that.
 19 Q. Did anyone else from Morgan Stanley go down to 20 Florida for that trip other than yourself and
 21 Mr. Chang and Miss Rafii?
 22 A. I don't know. I don't remember.
 23 Q. Handing you what's been previously marked as 24 Exhibit CPH 173. Do you recall traveling to 25 Sunbeam's headquarters in Florida on January

Page 98

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 5th?
 3 A. January 5th? I don't remember what the trip was 4 for.
 5 Q. You don't recall going down to Florida shortly
 6 after New Year's, 1998?
 7 A. I may have. I mean....
 8 Q. If you turn to CPH Exhibit 84, --
 9 A. Uh-huh.
 10 Q. -- page 33259.
 11 A. Uh-huh.
 12 Q. Next to January 5th there's an entry that states
 13 "meeting with SOC to prepare for potential sell
 14 side management presentation to Phillips." Does 15 that refresh your recollection of your trip to 16 Florida on January 5th?
 17 A. I'm sorry, I'm drawing a blank on that. I don't
 18 remember.
 19 Q. Mr. Yoo, did you create any documents to reflect
 20 the information that you learned during the due
 21 diligence trips to Sunbeam?
 22 MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
 23 A. The, I mean, on which trip? On --
 24 Q. Any of the trips.
 25 A. I may have taken notes. That's all I know.

Page 99

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Was it your practice to take handwritten notes
 3 while you were conducting due diligence while
 4 reviewing documents and speaking with people?
 5 A. Generally I took notes, yeah.
 6 Q. But you don't recall doing so in this case?
 7 A. Again, I'm speculating. I'm assuming I did but
 8 I don't have anything.
 9 Q. Nobody at Morgan Stanley was designated as the 10 point person who was responsible for keeping
 11 notes of the due diligence activities?
 12 A. Typically the analysts were the ones that were 13 responsible for making sure that any and all
 14 information that we gathered on a due diligence
 15 trip made it back with us to New York. Whether 16 that was notes or physical documents that we 17 received or discs or anything like that.
 18 Q. Did the analysts on the Sunbeam engagement do
 19 that?
 20 A. I believe they did.
 21 Q. Do you know where those notes or documents were 22 stored once they were carried back to New York?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Did you ever look at those documents at a
 25 subsequent time after the due diligence trip?

Page 100

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I'm pretty sure we went through some of them
 3 again at some point.
 4 Q. You didn't create any summaries of your due
 5 diligence findings?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. In 1997 and 1998 did Morgan Stanley have any
 8 policies documenting due diligence?
 9 A. Not that I knew of.
 10 Q. Did you receive any training at Morgan Stanley
 11 on conducting due diligence or documenting due
 12 diligence?
 13 A. There was no formal training class on due
 14 diligence. You know, just like almost anything
 15 else on the job it's sort of learning on the 16 job, learning with somebody else who knows what 17 they're doing. In this case, especially in this 18 case because it was my first MNA transaction, I
 19 was working with Alex and also Tyrone who had 20 actually more experience than I did in the MNA
 21 group.
 22 Q. Were you ever given a manual at Morgan Stanley
 23 which provided policies and recommendations on
 24 conducting due diligence?
 25 A. I don't think we ever received anything like

Page 101

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 that. I don't remember anything like that.
 3 Q. Other than the trips that we've looked at on 4 your itineraries or in this chronology, do you
 5 recall any other trips to Sunbeam in 1997 where 6 you performed due diligence?
 7 A. No. I don't recall any, anything specific.
 8 Q. Mr. Yoo, did you prepare presentation books for 9 potential acquisition targets in the Sunbeam
 10 engagement?
 11 A. I believe we did.
 12 Q. Did you personally?
 13 A. I am pretty sure that I helped work on them.
 14 Q. Who else was involved in preparing presentation
 15 books?
 16 A. I guess it depends on the book.
 17 (Deposition Exhibit 222 marked for
 18 identification.)
 19 Q. You've been handed what's been marked as CPH
 20 Exhibit 222, which is a Morgan Stanley document
 21 Bates labeled 3431 through 3464. Have you seen
 22 this document before, sir?
 23 A. Yes, I believe I have.
 24 Q. Did you draft this document?
 25 A. I helped put it, I helped put it together.

Page 102

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Do you recall when you did that?
 3 A. No, I don't remember.
 4 Q. If you look on the lower left-hand corner of the 5 document there's a computer file stamp and a
 6 date; do you see that?
 7 A. Uh-huh. Yes.
 8 Q. It appears that the date is December 11, 1997.
 9 Does that refresh your recollection as to the 10 time that you helped prepare this document?
 11 A. Yes, a little bit.
 12 Q. What's the purpose of this document?
 13 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
 14 A. Who were we presenting this to, or?
 15 Q. Why was that document created?
 16 A. I can't be certain but I think it might have 17 been to inform or, I guess, educate Sunbeam on 18 the Coleman Company.
 19 Q. Do you know if this document was given to
 20 Sunbeam?
 21 A. I don't know that for sure.
 22 Q. If you turn back, sir, to CPH Exhibit 84, the 23 chronology.
 24 A. Okay.
 25 Q. There's an entry there for December 11th.

Page 103

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 "Meeting with Sunbeam management to discuss
 3 potential Coleman transaction. Sunbeam --
 4 A. Okay.
 5 Q. -- initiated talks with Coleman without MS
 6 knowledge background presentation on Coleman and 7 preliminary financial analysis presented"?
 8 A. Okay.
 9 Q. Does that refresh your recollection, sir, on 10 what was done with this document?
 11 A. Well, I wasn't actually at the meeting, I don't 12 know what they used this for. It could have 13 either been to inform Sunbeam or sometimes our 14 own team use it to make sure we knew all of the 15 answers if anybody had any questions on Coleman,
 16 if they asked us what the sales were last year
 17 or anything like that.
 18 Q. Do you recall when you first started researching 19 the Coleman Company in connection with the
 20 Sunbeam engagement?
 21 A. No. I mean, there were so many things happening
 22 at the time, I don't remember.
 23 Q. If you could turn, sir, to the third page of CPH
 24 Exhibit 222. In the overview of the Coleman
 25 Company the section entitled Overview of the

Page 104

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Coleman Company. There's a document entitled
 3 the Coleman Company, Inc. Transaction Rationale.
 4 Did you prepare this page?
 5 A. I don't think I did. It doesn't look familiar.
 6 Q. There's a column entitled Issues and there's a
 7 bullet point, second bullet point under that
 8 column indicates "research earnings, estimates
 9 already include 50 million of cost savings"?
 10 A. Okay.
 11 Q. Do you have any recollection of looking into
 12 that information?
 13 A. "Looking into" meaning what?
 14 Q. Determining whether that was in fact the case.
 15 A. I don't know. I don't remember looking into it.
 16 Q. If you flip ahead, sir, to Morgan Stanley 3452.
 17 That page is entitled Synergy and Price
 18 Analysis; did you prepare this page?
 19 A. No. This was part of the model that Tyrone was 20 working on.
 21 Q. This page in the upper left-hand corner
 22 indicates that this is, this purports to be a
 23 chart relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of 24 Coleman with synergies; do you see that?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 105

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Is it your testimony that you were not involved
 3 in preparing model outputs that analyzed an 4 acquisition of the Coleman Company and the 5 synergies that are assumed in such an
 6 acquisition?
 7 MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
 8 Mischaracterizes.
 9 A. No, that's not what I am saying. I certainly 10 helped work on a good portions of the model.
 11 This particular one, though, is one I didn't 12 really work on.
 13 Q. When you say you worked on portions of the 14 model, what do you mean by that?
 15 A. Well, I was overseeing Tyrone as he would run
 16 various analyses.
 17 Q. Did you tell Tyrone what data to input into the 18 model?
 19 MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
 20 A. I didn't, I didn't give him the specific numbers
 21 to put in, but I would help him tell, you know,
 22 help him figure out where the sources were.
 23 Q. What were the sources of that data?
 24 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 25 A. I mean, the data for the inputs?

Page 106

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Correct. For the synergy analysis.
 3 A. I don't know what the data for the synergy
 4 analysis was. Generally for the model we used
 5 publicly available financials.
 6 Q. Did you ask Mr. Tyrone where he obtained the 7 data to perform synergy and price analysis that
 8 appears on Morgan Stanley 3452?
 9 A. No. I think this was something that he was 10 running with Alex. But I can't be certain. But 11 I don't really recall anything about this page.
 12 Q. Flip ahead to Morgan Stanley 3454. This is a
 13 chart entitled Transaction Structure Analysis?
 14 A. Uh-huh.
 15 Q. And the upper left-hand corner indicates "SOC
 16 acquires Coleman without synergies"?
 17 MS. BROWN: Coleman, SOC.
 18 Q. Thank you. Did you prepare this document?
 19 A. I don't know if I helped prepare this specific 20 one. This is again a page from our standard
 21 model which we've run hundreds of times. I
 22 don't know if this specific version is one that 23 I worked on.
 24 Q. Again, you don't know the source of the data --
 25 I'll withdraw that.

Page 107

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 If you turn to the next page, Morgan
 3 Stanley 3455. It's another transaction
 4 structure analysis. This time it says, "SOC
 5 acquires CLN with synergies." Do you see that?
 6 A. Uh-huh.
 7 Q. And the synergies assumptions in the bottom
 8 left-hand corner states, "includes synergies of 9 95.1 million." Do you know where that number 10 came from?
 11 A. No, I don't know.
 12 Q. Turn to the next page. Morgan Stanley 3456.
 13 That analysis includes synergies of 126.8
 14 million. Do you see that?
 15 A. Yes, I do.
 16 Q. Do you know where that number came from?
 17 A. I can take a guess but it's just a guess. I
 18 don't know for certain.
 19 Q. Well, where do you believe it came from? What's 20 your guess?
 21 MS. BROWN: Objection. Calls for
 22 speculation.
 23 A. And just, it looks like it comes off of this
 24 chart you first showed me, the synergy and price
 25 analysis.

Page 108

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. What page is that?
 3 A. 3452.
 4 Q. And that page you don't recall where those, that 5 synergy data came from?
 6 A. I don't know.
 7 MS. BROWN: Chris, are we going to take a
 8 lunch break?
 9 MR. O'CONNOR: Yeah, I'm close to moving on 10 so let's finish this up. I would like that 11 marked the next document.
 12 (Deposition Exhibit 223 marked for
 13 identification.)
 14 Q. Sir, you've been handed what's been marked as 15 CPH Exhibit 223; do you recall this document?
 16 A. I think I do, yes.
 17 Q. Did you draft this document?
 18 A. I can't be certain. I don't know.
 19 (Deposition Exhibit 224 marked for
 20 identification.)
 21 Q. Sir, you've been handed what's been marked as
 22 CPH Exhibit 224.
 23 A. Uh-huh.
 24 Q. I'll represent to you, sir, that the first two 25 pages of this document contain meta data from

Page 109

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 file produced to us by Morgan Stanley. Are you
 3 familiar with the concept of meta data?
 4 A. Not very, no.
 5 Q. Okay. Information contained in the file that
 6 was provided to us indicates that you created
 7 this document on December 11, 1997, as indicated
 8 by your name after author, y-o-o-g?
 9 A. Uh-huh.
 10 Q. And under Document Statistics, Creation Date.
 11 Does this refresh your recollection of your 12 drafting of this document?
 13 A. Again, I can't be certain, but it's possible I
 14 drafted it.
 15 Q. Do you know why this document was drafted on
 16 December 11, 1997?
 17 A. On the 11th? I don't remember exactly why.
 18 Q. Did you attend a December 12, 1997 meeting
 19 between Sunbeam management and MacAndrews and 20 Forbes Holdings Company to discuss a potential
 21 transaction involving those two companies?
 22 A. No. I never met with MacAndrews and Forbes.
 23 Q. At anytime?
 24 A. I met with somebody from MacAndrews and Forbes
 25 after the acquisition when we were selling the

Page 110

1 EUGENE YOO
2 spa business.
3 Q. Were you aware of the meeting on December 12th?
4 A. Sure. I'm pretty sure I was.
5 Q. Do you know if Sunbeam used Exhibits 222, 223
6 and 224 in connection with their meeting with
7 MacAndrews and Forbes?
8 A. I don't know.
9 MS. BROWN: Hold on. 224?
10 MR. O'CONNOR: I'm sorry, Exhibit 222 and 11 Exhibit 223. Thank you.
12 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
13 A. I don't know.
14 Q. Do these documents refresh your recollection,
15 sir, that Morgan Stanley was analyzing potential
16 synergies of a Sunbeam/Coleman transaction prior 17 to the first meeting between Sunbeam and 18 MacAndrews and Forbes on December 12, 1997?
19 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Object to 20 foundation. And also I believe mischaracterizes
21 the facts in evidence.
22 A. I mean, I don't know. I mean, which synergies, 23 which?
24 Q. We looked at two documents that indicated that 25 someone at Morgan Stanley, perhaps Mr. Chang,

Page 111

1 EUGENE YOO
2 perhaps yourself, were compiling information
3 analyzing potential transaction between Sunbeam
4 and Coleman; correct?
5 A. It appears that way, yes.
6 Q. And those documents are dated December 11, 1997;
7 right?
8 A. Okay, yeah.
9 Q. Okay. My question for you is do you recall
10 yourself or Mr. Chang or anyone else at Morgan
11 Stanley analyzing the potential synergies of a
12 transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam before
13 December 12, 1997?
14 MS. BROWN: Object to the form. Compound.
15 And also foundation.
16 A. Again, I don't remember specifically what we 17 were looking at with Coleman prior to the 18 meeting. I don't really remember the chronology
19 of the meetings with Coleman.
20 Q. But although you don't know the source of the 21 synergy data that appears in CPH Exhibit 222
22 that document reveals that someone at Morgan
23 Stanley was inputting synergy assumptions into 24 models to determine a potential transaction with 25 the Coleman Company; correct?

Page 112

1 EUGENE YOO
2 A. It appears that way.
3 Q. A good time to take a lunch break?
4 VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is twelve thirty,
5 we're off the record.
6 (Lunch break taken.)
7 VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record.
8 This is tape number 3, the time is eleven
9 minutes after one.
10 Q. Mr. Yoo, before the lunch break you testified 11 that you had no contacts with representatives of 12 MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings until, except for 13 after the transaction closed; is that correct?
14 A. As far as I can remember that's correct.
15 Q. If you can turn back to CPH Exhibit 84, the 16 chronology.
17 A. Okay.
18 Q. And on page 33259 of that document there's an 19 entry for January 23rd. And next to that entry
20 there is a description, "meeting with Mavco,
21 reinstate talks, Ray Coleman." The location it
22 says Emco headquarters, I believe that to be 23 Mavco headquarters in New York. Your name is 24 listed as an attendee. Is that an error or do
25 you recall meeting with Mavco on January 23rd?

Page 113

1 EUGENE YOO
2 A. I don't recall that meeting at all. I don't
3 think I've ever been to their headquarters.
4 Q. If you turn to the next page there's an entry
5 for January 29th, there are a lot of names
6 listed there, yours is not among them.
7 A. Okay.
8 Q. Reflecting another meeting with Coleman and 9 Mavco. You were not present in that meeting as 10 well, at Revlon's headquarters?
11 A. I was not there.
12 Q. And again, on February 6th there's an entry for 13 a meeting with Mavco to negotiate the Coleman
14 transaction at Mavco's headquarters. Mr.
15 Chang's name is listed but yours is not, you did
16 not attend that meeting?
17 A. Again, I don't believe I ever went there. I
18 don't think I've ever been to the Mavco
19 headquarters.
20 Q. If you can turn to the next page, Morgan Stanley
21 33261. There's an entry dated February 23rd,
22 "strategic due diligence meeting with Coleman,
23 review strategic plan in 1998 projections,
24 arrange for facility visits, due diligence on 25 Sunbeam by Coleman and CSFB." Again, your name

Page 114

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 is not listed there, do you have any
 3 recollection of any meetings on February 23rd
 4 involving those individuals?
 5 A. No, I don't.
 6 Q. You don't recall any discussions involving
 7 MacAndrews and Forbes or anyone from Coleman
 8 with members of Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam
 9 concerning any details of the transaction such 10 as the price, the timing, the consideration that 11 would be paid?
 12 A. No, I don't remember being part of any of those
 13 meetings.
 14 Q. I'm handing you what's been previously marked as 15 CPH Exhibit 9. Do you recall this document,
 16 sir?
 17 A. Yes, I think I do.
 18 Q. What is this document?
 19 A. I think this was our, our company description of 20 Sunbeam and its current situation.
 21 Q. Do you call this a presentation book?
 22 A. I guess -- what do you mean by presentation
 23 book? It appears to be in presentation format.
 24 Q. Do you know if this document was provided to 25 Coleman Company representatives or MacAndrews

Page 115

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 and Forbes representatives in February of 1998?
 3 A. I don't know what they were given.
 4 Q. If you could turn to page 26290, which is the 5 fifth page in on Exhibit 9.
 6 A. Okay.
 7 Q. Do you recognize that document, sir, as the same
 8 document that was circulated to Worldwide IBD
 9 Professionals at Morgan Stanley back on October
 10 22nd of 1997?
 11 MS. BROWN: What's the Exhibit number?
 12 MR. O'CONNOR: CPH Exhibit 71.
 13 (Prior testimony read back.)
 14 "Do you recognize that document,
 15 sir, as the same document that was
 16 circulated to Worldwide IBD
 17 Professionals at Morgan Stanley
 18 back on October 22nd of 1997?"
 19 A. Okay, they look to be the same page?
 20 Q. And this particular page it was prepared by you?
 21 A. You know, again, I don't remember if I prepared
 22 this one specifically.
 23 Q. But you recall -- you recall that document being
 24 prepared in connection with attempting to find a
 25 buyer or acquisition targets for Sunbeam?

Page 116

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Document or page?
 3 MR. O'CONNOR: Page.
 4 A. This page, yes. I do recall that.
 5 Q. What's the purpose of preparing this document,
 6 the discussion materials marked as CPH Exhibit
 7 9?
 8 A. I don't know specifically what meeting this is 9 for or who the audience was.
 10 Q. Was this document an effort by Morgan Stanley to 11 in essence sell Sunbeam Corporation -- I
 12 withdraw.
 13 Is this document in essence materials
 14 prepared to provide prospective buyers or 15 acquisition targets with information concerning
 16 Sunbeam's existing financial and business
 17 condition?
 18 A. I don't know if that was the purpose here.
 19 Q. Do you know of any other purpose --
 20 A. It could have been. I'm sorry.
 21 Q. Do you know of any other purpose this document
 22 would serve?
 23 A. February of '98. It could have been given,
 24 again, just speculating, it could have been 25 given to anyone just to update them or inform

Page 117

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 them about Sunbeam. Just their current
 3 situation.
 4 Q. For what purpose?
 5 A. Oh, I don't know.
 6 Q. As you flip through this document, Mr. Yoo, did
 7 you prepare, do you recognize any pages in this
 8 document that you prepared?
 9 A. I didn't put any of these pages together myself.
 10 But I worked with Tyrone and Lilly in putting 11 them together.
 12 Q. Did Mr. Chang and Miss Rafii provide you with 13 the materials that they were preparing for your 14 review?
 15 MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
 16 A. They provided me with these pages, you mean?
 17 Q. Were you asked to review the work product of
 18 Mr. Chang and Miss Rafii?
 19 A. Yes, I did review their work.
 20 Q. And if there were any errors or inconsistencies
 21 would you correct those or send the document
 22 back to them to change?
 23 MS. BROWN: Are you referring specifically
 24 to this document?
 25 Q. Generally the documents that they were

Page 118

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 preparing.
 3 A. I'm sorry, what was the question?
 4 Q. In general the documents that were prepared by 5 Mr. Chang and Miss Rafii for your review, if you
 6 found any inconsistencies or errors in those
 7 documents did you change those documents or did
 8 you send them back down to those individuals for 9 editing?
 10 A. I would give them the changes to make.
 11 Q. Showing you what has been previously marked as 12 CPH Exhibit 187. Do you recognize that
 13 document?
 14 A. I think I do.
 15 Q. When do you recall seeing that document?
 16 A. I don't know the exact date. But I think I saw 17 this or some version of this presentation in the 18 fall of 1997.
 19 Q. Did you prepare any of the pages in this
 20 document?
 21 A. I don't think so.
 22 Q. Do you know who did?
 23 A. I don't know.
 24 Q. The same question for CPH Exhibit 9, do you know
 25 who compiled the materials to create this

Page 119

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 discussion material packet?
 3 A. CPH 9?
 4 Q. Correct.
 5 A. The raw data and information that was used to 6 produce this was probably collected by Lilly and 7 Tyrone.
 8 Q. What did you do to confirm that the information
 9 contained in CPH Exhibit 9 and CPH Exhibit 187
 10 was accurate?
 11 A. Accurate meaning?
 12 Q. True.
 13 A. Was it actually -- okay. Not that these and 14 this were the same, or?
 15 Q. Correct. Let's take them one at a time.
 16 A. Okay.
 17 Q. CPH Exhibit 9. What did you do to confirm that 18 the information contained in CPH Exhibit 9 was 19 accurate?
 20 A. Okay. Again, I couldn't give you specific 21 examples, but for the most part we would go back
 22 or I would go back and check the file output of 23 the product, a page like this versus whatever
 24 source data I could get my hands on. Mostly 25 looking for accuracy and figures and text.

Page 120

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Do you recall any instance where you found
 3 inaccuracies in their materials that you had to 4 change?
 5 A. There were a few instances of typographical
 6 errors or just misinterpreting of some numbers,
 7 maybe. But not many.
 8 Q. And again, with CPH Exhibit 187, what did you do
 9 to confirm that the statements contained in this
 10 document were accurate?
 11 MS. BROWN: Objection. Assumes facts not
 12 in evidence.
 13 Q. I'm sorry, what was the --
 14 (Prior testimony read back.)
 15 "And again, with CPH Exhibit 187,
 16 what did you do to confirm that 17 the statements contained in this
 18 document were accurate?"
 19 A. I don't remember the specific steps that we 20 took. Many of the things in here are just 21 statements that, I don't think anybody can 22 verify one way or the other. The financials, to 23 the extent they're in here, I don't believe we 24 really even used because they're too general and 25 too broad.

Page 121

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. If someone -- I'm sorry.
 3 A. We may have used some of these but I don't
 4 really think we relied on these very much.
 5 Q. If somebody outside of Morgan Stanley or 6 somebody wanted to confirm the accuracy of these
 7 statements, what would they do?
 8 MS. BROWN: Objection. Hypothetical.
 9 Calls for speculation.
 10 A. Well, I mean, in the few cases that I had where 11 we had questions with a company's numbers we 12 would ask for any kind of backup data that they 13 had to support the final numbers that they were 14 showing us and how did they arrive at that 15 particular number, what was the methodology.
 16 Q. So if an individual investor wanted to confirm 17 the accuracy of these statements they would have 18 to ask somebody for the backup information; is 19 that your testimony?
 20 MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes.
 21 Also a hypothetical.
 22 A. I don't think an individual investor would ever
 23 see this presentation, but I don't know. I
 24 don't know who it's given to.
 25 Q. If you can turn to page CPH 254636 in Exhibit

Page 122

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 187.
 3 A. Okay.
 4 Q. That page is entitled Long Range Strategic 5 Objectives Earnings From Continuing Operations.
 6 At the bottom of that table there's EPS,
 7 earnings per share, estimated at two dollars and 8 twenty cents in 1998; do you see that?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. What did you do to confirm that that estimate
 11 was accurate?
 12 A. I don't remember specifically what we did on
 13 that.
 14 Q. The same question for 1999 and 2000; do you
 15 recall what you did to confirm the accuracy of 16 two seventy-five a share and three thirty a
 17 share?
 18 A. Again, on these financials and this presentation
 19 I'm not sure if we relied on these numbers as 20 much. Generally speaking, going back to what I
 21 said before, if there were numbers in any of the 22 financials we got back from a client that we had
 23 questions on or were unsure of we would go back
 24 and ask for the backup data and then we would 25 try to rebuild that to try to see if we agreed

Page 123

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 with their conclusions on their numbers.
 3 Q. Do you recall if in 1998 you believe that
 4 Sunbeam's plan to achieve EPS of two twenty a
 5 share in 1998 was attainable?
 6 A. I can't remember any reason why we thought it
 7 was not attainable.
 8 Q. But you can't recall what you did to confirm 9 that it was attainable?
 10 A. Not specifically, no. I mean, we had our own
 11 models that we ran.
 12 Q. Where did you obtain the data to run those 13 models?
 14 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 15 A. For the models that we ran here on Sunbeam, some 16 of the information was again from public
 17 information, some of the information was from 18 analysts reports, equity analyst reports.
 19 Q. Was the data also provided by Sunbeam itself?
 20 MS. BROWN: Objection.
 21 A. It depends on when.
 22 Q. I'm sorry?
 23 A. It depends on what time period you're talking
 24 about.
 25 Q. In the first quarter of 1998.

Page 124

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. In 1998 we may have been using some financials
 3 from Sunbeam.
 4 Q. How about 1997?
 5 A. Definitely not before we were engaged.
 6 Q. But after -- well, do you mean formally engaged
 7 in the fall of 1997 or starting in April of 1997
 8 when Morgan Stanley began preparing materials in 9 connection with the pitch and the engagement?
 10 A. Before the formal engagement.
 11 Q. If you could turn to page CPH 254639. It's 12 entitled net sales growth analysis. At the 13 bottom it indicates a net sales plan of 1.6
 14 billion in 1998, 2.0 billion in 1999, 2.4
 15 billion in 2000; do you see those numbers?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. What did you do to confirm that Sunbeam --
 18 withdrawn.
 19 What did you do to confirm that these net
 20 sales were attainable?
 21 A. I don't remember about this page specifically.
 22 Or these specific numbers. But in confirming
 23 their growth plan in general, when we went 24 through the backup financials that they had to 25 build up to the sales, and we also met with the

Page 125

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 division heads to talk about the growth plans
 3 that they had for each individual, each
 4 individual division, how they were going to get
 5 that.
 6 Q. Were their plans for sales consistent with 7 what's reflected on page CPH 254639?
 8 A. Were whose plans?
 9 Q. Sunbeam. Sunbeam management. The folks that 10 you spoke to.
 11 A. These numbers came from them, so I don't 12 remember exactly what the numbers were at the 13 time.
 14 Q. If you turn to the next page, CPH 254640. What 15 did you do, if anything, to confirm the 16 attainability of first quarter 1998 earnings as 17 indicated on this page?
 18 A. I think it was the same process. For our first 19 quarter '98 we were probably also able to 20 compare the numbers to analyst reports at the 21 time and their projections for the 1998 first
 22 quarter.
 23 Q. Did you ever speak to any analysts about their 24 reports?
 25 A. We never spoke to any research analysts. At

Page 126

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 least I did not.
 3 Q. You don't know anyone else who did?
 4 A. I don't believe anyone did.
 5 Q. Did Morgan Stanley attempt to verify or 6 challenge any of the statements made by the 7 analysts?
 8 MS. BROWN: Object. Foundation.
 9 A. I don't know.
 10 Q. And, again, you don't recall if either of these 11 documents were provided to Coleman or MacAndrews
 12 and Forbes?
 13 A. I don't know.
 14 Q. Mr. Yoo, I'm handing you what's previously been 15 marked as CPH Exhibit 92. My first question for 16 you, Mr. Yoo, actually is not related
 17 specifically to that document, but other than 18 reviewing the work performed by Mr. Chang and 19 Miss Rafii, were you involved in assessing or 20 estimating the potential synergies of 21 contemplated a transaction involving Sunbeam and
 22 Coleman?
 23 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 24 A. I, you know, I was not involved in developing 25 any kind of estimates or coming up with any kind

Page 127

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 of projections on synergies. Our role was
 3 simply using synergy numbers that others were 4 providing to us.
 5 Q. Who provided you with those synergy numbers?
 6 A. I don't remember specifically who. But I think
 7 generally synergy numbers were provided by 8 Sunbeam or Coopers and Lybrand.
 9 Q. And Coopers was retained by Sunbeam or Morgan
 10 Stanley to assist with preparing synergy
 11 analyses?
 12 MS. BROWN: Object? Facts not in evidence.
 13 A. I don't know -- I'm pretty sure they weren't 14 retained by Morgan Stanley. I don't think they 15 were working for us.
 16 Q. Other than Sunbeam and Coopers who else provided
 17 synergy numbers for Morgan Stanley's models?
 18 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 19 Q. If any.
 20 A. Well, as far as I knew for the potential
 21 transactions we were contemplating there were, I
 22 don't think there were any other sources for the 23 synergy numbers.
 24 Q. Who was involved at Morgan Stanley with taking 25 that data and reviewing it or manipulating it or

Page 128

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 entering it into financial models?
 3 MS. BROWN: Object. Compound.
 4 A. The actual handling of the models was done by 5 the analysts, mostly Tyrone. But all of his
 6 work was then ultimately reviewed by either
 7 myself or Alex.
 8 Q. Other than Mr. Chang do you know of anyone else
 9 that was involved with preparing synergy models?
 10 A. Preparing models using the synergy numbers?
 11 Q. Correct.
 12 A. Not that I can think of, no.
 13 Q. Turning to the document that I handed you, CPH
 14 Exhibit 92. Do you recall this document?
 15 A. I think I do, yes.
 16 Q. Do you recall reviewing this document in 1997 in 17 connection with proposed transactions involving 18 Black and Decker, any other companies listed in 19 here?
 20 A. I do recall that.
 21 Q. In the second paragraph on the first page of 22 Exhibit 92, it states, "enclosed please find our 23 initial attempts at determining the likely
 24 synergies associated with the change of control.
 25 For each targeted company we have made estimates

Page 129

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 as to the range of attainable synergies and
 3 their ensuing financial impact on the combined
 4 company." Is that consistent with what Morgan
 5 Stanley was doing in connection with the 6 potential transaction with Coleman?
 7 A. I'm not sure what you mean by that.
 8 Q. Well, in analyzing a potential transaction
 9 involving Sunbeam and Coleman, did Morgan
 10 Stanley make estimates as to the range of 11 attainable synergies in their financial impact
 12 as is indicated in CPH Exhibit 92?
 13 MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.
 14 A. The analysis here is a little different from 15 what might have been done in the Coleman
 16 transaction. This is a preliminary look before 17 we had any contact with any company before we 18 have any potential transaction even showing any 19 signs. These were just ideas. And these 20 synergies were also flushed out. We made
 21 guesses here at this point and then talked with 22 the Sunbeam management team to make sure that 23 they were reasonable and they adjusted our 24 estimates, our original estimates to what they 25 thought were, you know, at least on a first

Page 130

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 broad brush, reasonable assumptions. You know,
 3 at the point with, where we were with Coleman it
 4 was a much more, I don't want to use the word
 5 precise, but it was a different kind of synergy
 6 estimate. It wasn't something that we were
 7 coming up with. At that point we were relying
 8 on Sunbeam or Coopers to give us a more refined
 9 number. Where there was an actual tangible
 10 transaction. At this point there were just too
 11 many companies we were considering.
 12 Q. Okay. In the last sentence of that second 13 paragraph it states, "we have also included the 14 background on Scott Paper and Sunbeam which we 15 used as templates for our analysis"?
 16 A. Uh-huh.
 17 Q. Do you recall if Morgan Stanley used the 18 background information it possessed on Scott
 19 Paper in analyzing potential synergies in a
 20 transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman?
 21 A. I don't recall that happening.
 22 Q. Do you know why Morgan Stanley was using Scott
 23 Paper as a template for potential synergies?
 24 MS. BROWN: Objection.
 25 Q. Involving the companies that are listed in these

Page 131

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 materials?
 3 MS. BROWN: Object to form. "These
 4 materials" being CPH 92?
 5 MR. O'CONNOR: Yes. Thank you.
 6 MS. BROWN: I still object to form.
 7 A. From what I can recall I'm not sure if this is 8 the only reason behind it, but. It was one of 9 the more recent transactions that Al Dunlap had 10 been involved with and one of the bigger ones,
 11 and it was a closer fit to the transactions that 12 we were contemplating at the time. But other
 13 than that I can't, I don't recall any other
 14 reasons.
 15 Q. Is Sunbeam's restructuring and growth plans
 16 relevant to analyzing potential synergies in a
 17 transaction involving Sunbeam and another
 18 company?
 19 MS. BROWN: Can I hear that question back.
 20 (Prior testimony read back.)
 21 "Is Sunbeam's restructuring and 22 growth plans relevant to analyzing
 23 potential synergies in a
 24 transaction involving Sunbeam and
 25 another company?"

Page 132

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 3 A. I'm not sure I understand the question.
 4 Q. Well, if you turn to page Morgan Stanley 3414.
 5 Included in this package that was sent to
 6 Sunbeam was the Sunbeam restructuring and growth
 7 plans which we've seen before. Two pages prior 8 to that are Scott paper restructuring plans and 9 growth projects. Is that information important
 10 for Morgan Stanley to consider in attempting to 11 estimate a range of attainable synergies in a
 12 potential transaction involving Sunbeam and
 13 another company?
 14 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 15 Q. Such as the companies that are analyzed in CPH
 16 Exhibit 92?
 17 MS. BROWN: The same objection.
 18 A. For this analysis I don't know how relevant they 19 are or not. I'm trying to remember what we were 20 doing here. I can't read the numbers. Again, I
 21 don't know specifically what we were doing. I
 22 can't remember what we were doing on this 23 analysis. I would think that's, the 24 restructuring plan and the growth targets might 25 have some impact on potential synergies, but I

Page 133

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 wouldn't know how to incorporate that into an
 3 analysis.
 4 Q. I show you what's been previously marked as CPH
 5 Exhibit 93. The first two pages are meta data
 6 for the attached document which is entitled 7 Sunbeam Corporation Executive Summary. The
 8 third page in which is entitled Sunbeam
 9 Corporation Synergies Analysis, do you recognize 10 this document? This page of this document.
 11 A. Yes, I think I do.
 12 Q. Did you prepare this or review this page?
 13 A. I believe I did review this page.
 14 Q. And then the following page is entitled Sunbeam
 15 Corporation Sources of Synergies.
 16 A. Okay.
 17 Q. Do you see that?
 18 A. Yes, I do.
 19 Q. And the last bullet point on that page reads,
 20 "total potential synergies of over one hundred
 21 and 50 million from Sunbeam with 50 percent
 22 recognized in year one and the remainder by year
 23 two." Do you recall reviewing that statement
 24 back in 1997?
 25 A. Again, I think I do. I'm not sure exactly what

Page 134

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 presentation this was in.
 3 Q. Looking at those two pages, the synergy analysis
 4 and sources of synergies, is that information,
 5 is the information contained on those pages
 6 relevant to Morgan Stanley's analysis of 7 potential synergies involving Sunbeam and the
 8 transaction involving Sunbeam and another
 9 company?
 10 MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.
 11 A. Some of these are somewhat useful. But most of 12 this is not something that we could use in a 13 quantitative form for a model or any kind of 14 quantitative analysis.
 15 Q. Do you recall how Morgan Stanley came up with 16 the total potential synergies of 150 million
 17 dollars involving Sunbeam?
 18 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation. Form.
 19 A. No, I don't recall where the 150 million dollar
 20 figure came from.
 21 Q. Do you recall asking Mr. Chang? I'll represent 22 to you that the meta data on the first page of 23 CPH Exhibit 93 indicates that Mr. Chang drafted
 24 this document in October of 1997.
 25 A. Okay.

Page 135

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Do you ever recall -- do you recall ever
 3 speaking with Mr. Chang about where he obtained
 4 the information that's contained in this, on the 5 pages entitled Synergies Analysis and Sources of
 6 Synergies?
 7 A. I don't recall ever having that conversation
 8 with him.
 9 (Deposition Exhibit 225 marked for
 10 identification.)
 11 Q. You've been handed what's been marked as CPH
 12 Exhibit 225, this is a letter from Coopers and 13 Lybrand addressed to yourself dated October 3,
 14 1997. Do you recognize this document?
 15 A. I think I've seen the matrix before.
 16 Q. Do you recall the purpose of, the purpose behind
 17 Coopers sending you this information?
 18 A. I believe this was the initial response back
 19 from Coopers and Lybrand from our request for 20 more detail and backup on synergies.
 21 Q. So as of October 3rd of 1997 Coopers was 22 actively engaged in providing its expertise on 23 analyzing synergies to Morgan Stanley or 24 potential transaction involving Sunbeam?
 25 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

Page 136

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Mischaracterization.
 3 A. I don't know what the relationship with Coopers
 4 was. There was no formal relationship that I
 5 knew of between Coopers and Morgan Stanley and I
 6 wasn't aware of what the relationship was 7 between Coopers and Sunbeam. I didn't know when 8 they were brought on board or what the 9 arrangement was with them.
 10 Q. But you knew why they were sending you this
 11 document on October 3rd; right?
 12 A. At the time I knew, yeah. I knew they were 13 sending it to us, I knew that they were working
 14 on a project with us.
 15 Q. And that project was a potential transaction
 16 involving Sunbeam; right?
 17 A. Right.
 18 Q. And analyzing potential synergies that might 19 arise from those transactions; correct?
 20 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 21 Characterization.
 22 A. Well, for, we were trying to narrow down the 23 field of potential companies that we would 24 consider to begin looking at potential
 25 transactions. I think at this point it was a

Page 137

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 little too premature, we weren't looking at
 3 transactions with all of these companies.
 4 Q. Do you recall when Coopers first started
 5 providing information to Morgan Stanley
 6 concerning potential synergies?
 7 A. No. I didn't know when they were signed by, or 8 when they were brought on board by Sunbeam. I
 9 didn't know what their role was.
 10 Q. All you knew is that they were providing you
 11 with information on potential synergies
 12 involving other companies?
 13 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 14 A. I don't remember the first contact I had with 15 them or knew about them. We just started
 16 receiving information from them one day.
 17 Q. You had no advanced notice that they were going 18 to start working in --
 19 A. I don't remember.
 20 Q. Working on providing you with information on 21 potential synergies involving a transaction with
 22 Sunbeam and another company?
 23 A. I don't remember what we knew about Coopers; we 24 weren't really focusing on them.
 25 (Deposition Exhibit 226 marked for

Page 138

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 identification.)
 3 Q. Mr. Yoo, you've been handed what's been marked
 4 as CPH Exhibit 226 which is a fax cover sheet
 5 for Coopers and Lybrand to Gene Yoo dated
 6 October 23, 1997 attaching several pages of 7 documents. Do you recall receiving this fax?
 8 A. I think I do recall this.
 9 Q. Do you recall the purpose behind this
 10 information?
 11 A. I don't remember specifically what we requested
 12 this for.
 13 Q. Is this the type of information that Coopers was 14 providing Morgan Stanley in 1997 on various 15 potential strategic alternatives for Sunbeam?
 16 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 17 A. I couldn't say if this was typical or not.
 18 Q. Do you recall if they prepared a similar 19 document for a potential acquisition of the 20 Coleman Company?
 21 A. I don't remember.
 22 Q. Do you recall Al Dunlap ever stating that he 23 believed the transaction -- strike that.
 24 Do you recall Al Dunlap ever saying that 25 Sunbeam could attain 2 hundred million dollars

Page 139

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 in synergies as a result of an acquisition of
 3 the Coleman Company?
 4 A. I don't recall anything like that at all.
 5 Q. Do you recall any statements made by any Sunbeam
 6 personnel regarding their beliefs on the 7 potential to obtain synergies in a transaction
 8 involving the acquisition of the Coleman
 9 Company?
 10 A. I can't remember specifically what anybody said.
 11 Q. Generally?
 12 A. I think the only thing that I can remember was 13 that some of the potential cost savings were 14 already implemented on the Coleman side. I
 15 don't remember the amount, but that's the only
 16 thing that I can remember about the Coleman
 17 situation.
 18 Q. How did you know that?
 19 A. I didn't know it; I remember somebody saying
 20 that.
 21 Q. You remember someone telling you that some cost
 22 savings had already been implemented at Coleman?
 23 A. I don't know if it was cost savings or if it was 24 some of the restructuring plan in place at 25 Coleman were already underway.

Page 140

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. As compared to what?
 3 A. As compared to Sunbeam coming in and
 4 implementing their own restructuring plan and a
 5 target company.
 6 Q. Were those potential savings that were
 7 identified by Morgan Stanley?
 8 A. No. We didn't identify any savings that I can
 9 remember.
 10 Q. Were the savings that had already been
 11 implemented at Coleman part of the synergies
 12 estimates provided by Sunbeam?
 13 MS. BROWN: Object to foundation.
 14 A. From what I remember of the synergy estimates we 15 actually segregated out, I thought, the cost
 16 savings that were already achieved or part of 17 the restructuring plan that was already in 18 place. I thought we had done that.
 19 Q. Do you recall ever receiving any synergy
 20 estimates or ideas from the Coleman Company?
 21 A. I don't recall what we got from Coleman.
 22 Q. You don't recall any particular number, an 23 amount of synergies thought to be attainable,
 24 where that information came from Coleman or 25 MacAndrews and Forbes?

Page 141

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. No. I don't remember any specific numbers.
 3 Q. I show you what's been previously marked as CPH
 4 Exhibit 95. Do you recall this document?
 5 A. Yes, I do.
 6 Q. Did you prepare this document?
 7 A. I don't remember if I did this document or not.
 8 Q. Where do you recall seeing this document?
 9 A. I think this came up somewhere during the 10 negotiations with Coleman, but I don't remember
 11 exactly at what point in time.
 12 Q. The first column is entitled Item and there are 13 15 items listed under that column. Do you know
 14 where those items came from?
 15 A. I don't remember the source of the data, no.
 16 Q. And the same question with respect to the column
 17 entitled original and the numbers listed in that 18 column, do you know the source of those numbers?
 19 A. No, I don't. I don't recall.
 20 Q. And then with the revision count, do you know
 21 the source of those revised numbers?
 22 A. Nope. I don't remember.
 23 Q. Do you know what was done with this document, if
 24 anything?
 25 A. I don't remember what we did this for.

Page 142

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. You can't recall if Morgan Stanley relied on

3 this document in preparing any synergies

4 analysis?

5 MS. BROWN: Objection. Form and

6 foundation.

7 A. I don't remember what the ultimate use of this

8 was for.

9 Q. Do you recall any conversations that you had

10 with people at Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam

11 concerning the items or the dollar amounts on

12 CPH Exhibit 95?

13 A. No, we never really had any discussions that I

14 can remember about this.

15 Q. Okay. Showing you what's previously been marked

16 as CPH Exhibit 97. Do you recall seeing this

17 document?

18 A. I'm not sure if I've seen this one.

19 Q. In this document there's an additional column, a 20 second revised column. You don't know where 21 those numbers came from?

22 A. No.

23 Q. And on the far right-hand side there's a column

24 entitled Comments. Did you draft any of those

25 comments for this particular document?

Page 143

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. I don't believe I did.

3 Q. Do you know who did?

4 A. No.

5 Q. Let me ask a better question. Do you know

6 anyone involved in analyzing potential synergies

7 involving these items that would provide these

8 types of comments?

9 MS. BROWN: Can you....

10 (Prior testimony read back.)

11 "Do you know anyone involved in

12 analyzing potential synergies

13 involving these items that would

14 provide these types of comments?"

15 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

16 A. At this level of detail we most likely were

17 relying on Sunbeam and/or Coopers for this

18 information.

19 Q. Do you recall having any conversations with

20 anyone at Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam involving

21 these types of comments or issues related to 22 these potential synergy ideas?

23 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

24 A. I don't recall any conversations.

25 Q. Do you recall if Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam used

Page 144

1 EUGENE YOO

2 CPH Exhibit 97 in connection with the Sunbeam

3 and Coleman transaction?

4 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

5 A. I don't know.

6 Q. I'm handing you what's been previously marked as

7 CPH Exhibit 62. Do you recall seeing this

8 document with this handwriting?

9 A. No, I don't think I've seen this before.

10 Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?

11 A. No, I'm not sure who it is.

12 Q. Okay. Set that aside. I'm handing you what's

13 been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 139. Do

14 you recognize this document?

15 A. The first page is familiar, the second page is 16 familiar. I'm not sure I've seen the last two

17 pages.

18 Q. You did not prepare the last two pages on CPH

19 Exhibit 139?

20 A. I don't think I did. They're not familiar.

21 Q. If you look at the last page which is labeled

22 Morgan Stanley 26544.

23 A. Okay.

24 Q. It's a page entitled Project Laser Overview of 25 Synergy Analysis Camper. Do you recall the code

Page 145

1 EUGENE YOO

2 name for Coleman Company was Camper?

3 A. I believe that was the case, yes.

4 Q. And on this chart there are three boxes, the 5 first box on the left next to the words

6 estimated annual synergies reflects 100 million

7 dollars in the top of the box; do you see that?

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. And the middle box shows 150 million and the 10 third box shows 200 million?

11 A. Uh-huh.

12 Q. Do you recall the source of those synergy

13 estimates?

14 A. No. I don't, no.

15 Q. You don't recall any conversations with Sunbeam

16 or Morgan Stanley in which the synergy estimates

17 were discussed? The 100, 150 and 200 million

18 dollar estimates?

19 A. Those numbers aren't familiar to me, I don't

20 recall anything about them.

21 Q. Do you recall anyone at Morgan Stanley reaching

22 a decision on the amount of potential synergies

23 that could be attained as a result of Sunbeam's

24 acquisition of the Coleman Company?

25 MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.

Page 146

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. As far as I knew we really didn't make any

3 conclusions or decisions on what the synergies

4 were going to be.

5 Q. Do you recall if anyone at Sunbeam came to any

6 conclusion on the amount of potential synergies

7 that could be attained in the acquisition of the 8 Coleman Company by Sunbeam?

9 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

10 A. I don't recall who, I don't recall if Sunbeam

11 came up with any definitive answers on the

12 synergies.

13 Q. Do you recall whether anyone at Sunbeam came to 14 a decision as to a range of synergies?

15 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

16 A. For the most part as far as any synergy

17 discussions we were relying on Russ and it was

18 from the Sunbeam side. We were relying on Russ

19 Kirsch.

20 Q. Relying on him for what?

21 A. For guidance on synergies or potential synergies

22 in a transaction.

23 Q. Why were you relying on Mr. Kirsch for that?

24 A. He seemed to have the , from our position, he

25 seemed to have the best knowledge of what

Page 147

1 EUGENE YOO

2 potential synergies could be with these

3 different target companies.

4 Q. Why did you believe that to be true?

5 A. He seemed to have a level of knowledge of the 6 companies that was deeper than our view as an

7 outside adviser.

8 Q. Knowledge of Sunbeam?

9 A. Of Sunbeam and of the industry in general.

10 Q. Other than Mr. Kirsch anyone else that Morgan

11 Stanley relied on in obtaining guidance on

12 potential synergies?

13 MS. BROWN: Objection. Form and

14 foundation.

15 A. From Sunbeam, you mean?

16 Q. Correct.

17 A. From the Sunbeam side?

18 Q. Correct.

19 A. Russ was our main point of contact. I don't

20 know if there was anyone else at Sunbeam who was

21 working on coming up with the numbers.

22 Q. I'm handing you what's previously been marked as

23 CPH Exhibit 205. Do you recall this document?

24 A. I'm not sure if I've seen this before or not.

25 Q. The top of CPH Exhibit 205 contains a fax line

Page 148

1 EUGENE YOO

2 where it says "sent by C and L" and then across

3 the top it reads "Coopers and Lybrand, dated

4 2/27/98." Does that refresh your recollection

5 with respect to who created this document?

6 A. No. I don't remember this. I may have seen it

7 but I don't remember.

8 Q. I'm sorry. Were you aware that Coopers

9 estimated potential synergies of 118 million

10 with respect to an acquisition of the Coleman

11 Company by Sunbeam?

12 MS. BROWN: Objection. Form, foundation.

13 Assumes facts not in evidence.

14 A. I did know that Coopers was working in some form

15 on developing the synergy estimates. I didn't

16 know, or at least I don't remember now what the 17 ultimate number was that they came up with.

18 Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at

19 Coopers concerning potential synergies involving

20 an acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam?

21 A. I don't remember.

22 Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley had

23 communications with Coopers on that issue?

24 A. I couldn't say for sure.

25 Q. Do you know if anyone at Coleman or MacAndrews

Page 149

1 EUGENE YOO

2 and Forbes came to any conclusion on the

3 synergies that could be attained in an

4 acquisition of the Coleman Company by Sunbeam?

5 MS. BROWN: Can I have that question back.

6 (Prior testimony read back.)

7 "Do you know if anyone at Coleman

8 or MacAndrews and Forbes came to

9 any conclusion on the synergies

10 that could be attained in an

11 acquisition of the Coleman Company

12 by Sunbeam?"

13 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

14 A. I don't know any conclusions or anything about 15 what they decided or concluded.

16 Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley offer to you their

17 opinion on the level of synergies that could be

18 attained in an acquisition of Coleman by

19 Sunbeam?

20 A. Not that I can recall.

21 Q. Mr. Chang didn't ever give you his opinion on 22 the synergies that might be attained?

23 A. I don't remember. No, I don't remember.

24 Q. Mr. Yoo, did you attend the meeting of the 25 Sunbeam board of directors on February 27, 1998

Page 150

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 where the issue of acquisition of Coleman was
 3 discussed?
 4 A. I was present for a part of the meeting. I was 5 not there for the first half of the meeting.
 6 Q. Why did you arrive after the start of the
 7 meeting?
 8 A. There were, I believe, five presentations that 9 Morgan Stanley put together for that meeting and 10 I was finishing the last two while the meeting
 11 began.
 12 Q. What do you recall being discussed at the board
 13 meeting while you were in attendance?
 14 A. At the point that I walked in I think Jim Stynes
 15 was talking about the details of either
 16 FirstAlert or Signature Brands in an 17 acquisition. And then I think, I think after 18 that Bill Strong was talking about financing
 19 alternatives. After that I think it was just a 20 general Q and A, or open discussion with the 21 board, I don't remember any of the details after
 22 that.
 23 Q. Do you recall any of the specifics, anything
 24 specific that Mr. Strong told the board in 25 regard to financing alternatives?

Page 151

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I don't remember any specifics. Mostly it was 3 just laying out alternatives and views from our 4 capital market people.
 5 Q. Anything else you can remember being discussed
 6 at the meeting?
 7 A. No. I was pretty tired at that point.
 8 Q. Do you recall any discussion of Sunbeam's
 9 financial performance in January and February of 10 1998?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Any discussions of Sunbeam's projected financial 13 performance, for example, second quarter of 14 1998?
 15 A. No, I don't remember anything like that.
 16 Q. Mr. Yoo, I'm handing you what's been previously
 17 marked as CPH Exhibit 89. Do you recall this 18 document, sir?
 19 A. Yes, I do.
 20 Q. What is this document?
 21 A. This is the presentation that we put together
 22 for the Sunbeam board outlining the potential
 23 acquisition of Coleman.
 24 Q. On the first page of CPH Exhibit 89 up in the 25 upper right-hand corner there's a designation of

Page 152

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 preliminary draft, do you have any knowledge if
 3 there was drafts subsequent to this that would 4 have been presented to the board or if this was
 5 in fact the final version?
 6 A. I couldn't say definitively if this was the 7 final version or not. Yeah, I don't know.
 8 Q. If you could just take a moment to flip through
 9 it. My question would be do you have any reason
 10 to believe this was not the final version?
 11 A. No, there's no reason to believe it's not the 12 final version.
 13 Q. If you could please turn to page 16 of the 14 presentation, which is Morgan Stanley 83982.
 15 A. Okay.
 16 Q. This page is entitled Summary of Camper
 17 Evaluation Analyses. Section 4 on this page is 18 entitled Estimated Value of Synergies, and below
 19 this there's 100 million pre tax, 150 million
 20 pre tax and 200 million pre tax. Do you see
 21 that?
 22 A. Yes, I do.
 23 Q. Do you recall any discussions about the 24 potential for Sunbeam to realize between 100 and 25 200 million in pre tax synergies at this board

Page 153

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 meeting?
 3 A. No, I don't recall. I don't think I was even
 4 there for the presentation on Coleman.
 5 Q. Would you please turn to page Morgan Stanley
 6 84007. That page is entitled Review of 7 Anticipated Combination Synergies. The next
 8 page appears to be the same document that I
 9 showed you earlier. Does that refresh your 10 recollection with respect to who created that 11 document or the use of that document?
 12 A. No, not really. I don't really remember this
 13 page.
 14 Q. And then the next page, Morgan Stanley 840009.
 15 It appears to be the same document we looked at 16 earlier?
 17 A. Uh-huh.
 18 Q. Does that refresh your recollection with respect
 19 to who prepared that document or what the 20 document was to be used for?
 21 A. No. Again, I don't really remember this page.
 22 Q. If you turn to page 84011, entitled Scott Paper
 23 Restructuring Growth Plans. Does the inclusion
 24 of this page in the board book refresh your
 25 recollection with respect to Morgan Stanley's

Page 154

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 use of Scott Paper restructuring in estimating
 3 potential synergies in a transaction involving 4 Coleman?
 5 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Assumes facts
 6 not in evidence.
 7 A. As far as Scott Paper I think the only time we 8 actually ever used it to develop any kind of 9 synergy estimates was at the very beginning when 10 we were first pitching for Al's business. From 11 what I remember this was placed here only as a
 12 reference point just to show that he has done
 13 similar types of restructurings at other places,
 14 that it wasn't completely out of the ballpark
 15 that he could try to do something similar at 16 Coleman.
 17 Q. So Dunlap's ability to restructure companies was 18 important to determining the anticipated
 19 combination of synergies of this transaction?
 20 MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
 21 Mischaracterizes.
 22 A. I'm not sure if we used it to develop the 23 numbers. But it was to show that the idea of Al
 24 Dunlap and his team going in and trying to 25 restructure a company was not something that was

Page 155

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 unfathomable. It was really more the use here.
 3 It's something that they've been through before
 4 and they may or may not be successful again, but 5 it's something that they've done before. They 6 had a track record.
 7 Q. Can you recall anything else from board of 8 directors meeting on February 27th on the issue
 9 of synergies?
 10 A. No, not synergies.
 11 Q. Was there any discussion of the value of the 12 Coleman Company and the price that Sunbeam was 13 paying for the acquisition of the Coleman
 14 Company?
 15 A. No, I, as far as I can remember I wasn't present
 16 for that part of the discussion.
 17 Q. Did you participate at all in the discussion
 18 that day at the board meeting?
 19 A. No, I didn't.
 20 Q. What was your role at that board meeting?
 21 A. I was there simply to observe.
 22 Q. Do you recall working with a public relations 23 firm in connection with announcing the 24 transactions that the board approved on February
 25 27, 1998?

Page 156

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I, I didn't work with a, anyone from a public
 3 relations firm that I can remember. There may 4 have been one that was retained at some point
 5 prior to the announcement, but I don't know for
 6 sure.
 7 Q. Does the name Hilden Knowlton (ph.) ring a bell?
 8 A. I know the company but I don't recall if they 9 were specifically involved in this or not.
 10 Q. Okay. Were you involved in preparing any 11 statements or responses to potential questions
 12 that may be asked at the public announcement of 13 the transaction involving the Coleman Company?
 14 A. No. Not that I can recall.
 15 Q. I'm handing you what's been previously marked as 16 CPH Exhibit 142. Do you recall seeing this
 17 document?
 18 A. I don't think I've seen this before.
 19 Q. If you turn to page 3 of the document which is 20 CPH 253549.
 21 A. Okay.
 22 Q. Paragraph 13 reads, "what's your first quarter
 23 going to look like? Are you comfortable with 24 analyst estimates?" Do you remember discussing 25 the response that should be given to that

Page 157

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 question upon the announcement of the
 3 transaction?
 4 A. No, I don't think I was ever part of any
 5 discussion on this.
 6 Q. Okay. Between the board meeting on February 27,
 7 1998 and the announcement, were you involved in 8 any discussions or meetings concerning Sunbeam's
 9 first quarter 1998 sales?
 10 A. No, not that I can recall.
 11 Q. I show you one more previously marked as CPH
 12 143. Page 3 of 12. Paragraph 15. If you can
 13 just read that to yourself.
 14 A. (Witness reviewing.)
 15 Q. Do you have any knowledge of why the response
 16 changed from CPH Exhibit 142 to what's shown on
 17 CPH Exhibit 143?
 18 A. No, I don't know why it changed.
 19 Q. Okay. Set those aside. Mr. Yoo, did you ever
 20 speak to John Tyree in connection with your work
 21 on the Sunbeam engagement?
 22 A. Yes, I did.
 23 Q. What did you discuss with Mr. Tyree?
 24 A. John was taking over on the Sunbeam project once
 25 they moved into the financing phase and I was

Page 158

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 handing off to him.
 3 Q. What were you handing off to Mr. Tyree?
 4 A. Mostly, I think the only involvement I had with 5 him was with regard to gathering company
 6 information and industry information. They were 7 putting some of the standard descriptions into,
 8 I guess, the offering document and he was 9 looking to me to help him fill it in.
 10 Q. And the reason for that was because you were the 11 one who had been working with Sunbeam --
 12 A. Right
 13 Q. -- all along, gathering the information about
 14 the company?
 15 A. Right. So I had some of that information
 16 readily available and I could give it to him
 17 rather than having him look it up himself.
 18 Q. Were you involved in drafting any portion of the 19 debenture offering memorandum?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. And you understand what the debenture offering
 22 memorandum was in this deal?
 23 A. The convertible notes?
 24 Q. Correct.
 25 A. Yes.

Page 159

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Other than Mr. Tyree do you know who was
 3 involved in drafting that memo?
 4 A. No. I wasn't involved with that.
 5 Q. Okay. Did you ever speak to Mr. Tyree in 6 connection with any due diligence that may have
 7 been performed on Sunbeam's accounting?
 8 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 9 A. I never really spoke to him about the financials
 10 as far as I can remember.
 11 Q. Let me show you what's been previously marked as 12 CPH Exhibit 31. This is a memo from John Tyree
 13 to the Sunbeam financing team dated March 7,
 14 1998 referencing an accounting due diligence
 15 conference call on March 12th; you did not 16 participate in that call; correct?
 17 A. I don't believe I did.
 18 Q. And you had no conversations with Mr. Tyree or 19 Shani Boone concerning the accounting due
 20 diligence call?
 21 A. Not that I can remember, no.
 22 Q. You don't recall seeing any documents
 23 summarizing what was discussed on that call or 24 the information they learned on that call?
 25 A. No.

Page 160

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. You don't remember that ever being discussed at 3 Morgan Stanley in any meetings, the results of 4 that conference call?
 5 A. No. My involvement with Sunbeam after the 6 announcement was limited and then once the 7 transaction closed it was really only focused on 8 the sale of the spa business coming out of 9 Coleman.
 10 Q. Okay.
 11 VIDEOGRAPHER: Can we take a break for one
 12 second? The time is two thirty-seven, we're off
 13 the record.
 14 (Short break taken.)
 15 VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record.
 16 This is tape number four, the time is two 17 forty-two.
 18 MR. O'CONNOR: I'll ask the court reporter
 19 to please mark the next exhibit.
 20 (Deposition Exhibit 227 marked for
 21 identification.)
 22 Q. Mr. Yoo, take a few minutes to look at what's 23 been marked as CPH Exhibit 227. Do you
 24 recognize this document, sir?
 25 A. Yes, I do.

Page 161

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. What was the purpose of Skadden Arps sending you
 3 this document?
 4 A. I believe this was part of the due diligence
 5 process as we were trying to, I don't know if we
 6 were just -- this was post announcement or pre
 7 announcement? We were trying to get to a
 8 closure on the deal.
 9 Q. Were you responsible for conducting legal due
 10 diligence of Sunbeam?
 11 A. I personally was not responsible for legal due
 12 diligence, but one of my roles was helping to 13 make sure that the due diligence process moved
 14 forward smoothly.
 15 Q. Do you know who was responsible for legal due
 16 diligence?
 17 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 18 A. I believe it was Skadden. I don't remember who 19 specifically at Skadden.
 20 Q. Do you know why Skadden would be sending this 21 document to you if they were responsible for 22 conducting legal due diligence?
 23 A. In this case I think they were asking for any 24 documents that we may have collected already in 25 our work so they didn't have to go gather it

Page 162

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 again.
 3 Q. Are they asking you to request documents from
 4 Sunbeam for the due diligence review?
 5 MS. BROWN: Object to form. And
 6 foundation.
 7 A. In this case, no, I don't believe so. As far as 8 I can remember we were just assisting them, but 9 they were the ones ultimately responsible for 10 the due diligence, for the legal due diligence.
 11 Q. Okay. I guess I'm confused by the first 12 sentence of her memo. Which states, "the 13 following items should be included as part of 14 your due diligence request for Project Laser."
 15 Do you have any understanding of what that 16 means?
 17 A. Oh, I do, actually. We were compiling a master
 18 list for the due diligence and we were getting
 19 lists from the legal team, from, I believe it
 20 was Arthur Andersen and our own, we had included
 21 our own prior list that we had sent to Sunbeam
 22 so that we could, rather than sending four or 23 five different lists from different sources we 24 were going to send them one list for the due
 25 diligence.

Page 163

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Okay. Who were you sending the list to, the
 3 master list?
 4 A. Let's see, I think this was going to, I think
 5 this was going to Coleman or somebody from the 6 Coleman side.
 7 Q. Okay. And what exactly were you compiling for 8 this master list, what would this master list
 9 include?
 10 A. I'm not sure what you mean.
 11 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 12 Q. Well, maybe we're miscommunicating. You
 13 referred to a master list, what is the master
 14 list?
 15 A. A list of all of the items that we would be 16 requesting as part of the due diligence for the 17 MNA transaction. And rather than sending a list
 18 for the legal due diligence and a list for the 19 accounting due diligence and a list for any 20 other due diligence, financing, whatever, we 21 were going to send them one list that they could 22 use to compile their information. We were 23 trying to make the process as easy for the other
 24 side as possible.
 25 Q. Okay. And part of this master list was this due

Page 164

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 diligence, legal due diligence list?
 3 A. I believe that was the case, if I remember
 4 correctly.
 5 Q. What else was included in the list?
 6 A. I think there was a section that came from 7 Arthur Andersen, I don't recall whether or not 8 there was a section that came from Coopers. We 9 had a -- I believe we had a list that Morgan
 10 Stanley worked with Sunbeam to compile for their 11 portion of the due diligence.
 12 Q. What materials did you obtain from Arthur
 13 Andersen?
 14 A. We -- I'm not sure what you mean by "materials."
 15 Q. When you said you believe they provided a
 16 section?
 17 A. Well, they provided a list for us to give to the 18 other side.
 19 Q. Okay. My question is what was that list?
 20 A. I don't know now.
 21 Q. Is it one document?
 22 A. I think it was just a few pages they sent us of 23 items that they were looking for from the other 24 side.
 25 Q. Looking for from who?

Page 165

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. From the Coleman side.
 3 Q. Seeking information from Coleman?
 4 A. Right.
 5 Q. Okay. I'm handing you what's been previously
 6 marked as CPH Exhibit 28. Do you recognize this
 7 document?
 8 A. I think I do. I think I've seen this.
 9 Q. Where do you recall seeing this document?
 10 A. I don't remember the specific instance when I
 11 had seen this, but I think this was part of our
 12 update process with Sunbeam, just making sure
 13 that we were current on company events.
 14 Q. And why was that important to you?
 15 MS. BROWN: Object. Characterization.
 16 A. Again, I don't remember the specific impetus for 17 this meeting, but generally, especially if we're
 18 going to go out and talk to other companies
 19 about Sunbeam, which I think this is when it was 20 happening. I don't remember.
 21 Q. There's a reference there in paragraph 1 to 22 "recent developments review." And in the third
 23 line down is "high dependence of recent sales
 24 growth on grilles." Do you recall why that was 25 an issue to explore?

Page 166

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. The only thing I can think of was that the sales

3 mix had changed a little bit and we were just

4 curious as to why.

5 Q. Do you recall what response you received from

6 Sunbeam on this issue?

7 A. I don't remember the response.

8 Q. Do you know who was responsible for obtaining

9 the information that is listed in this agenda?

10 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

11 A. I'm not sure if there was anyone responsible, or

12 any single person responsible for getting this

13 information. I think this was just a guide for 14 us to hold a discussion with them.

15 Q. Do you know who created this document?

16 A. No, I don't know.

17 Q. Do you recall any discussions with anyone at

18 Morgan Stanley about the contents of this

19 document?

20 A. No.

21 Q. Paragraph 5, "financial forecast review" lists

22 five items --

23 A. Uh-huh.

24 Q. -- for inquiry. Do you remember obtaining any 25 information on those issues?

Page 167

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. I think we did get most of this at some point.

3 I don't know if it was directly as a result of 4 this. Other than maybe the sensitivity

5 analysis, I don't seem to remember anything

6 about that.

7 Q. Why is this information important to Morgan

8 Stanley?

9 A. In this case, or?

10 Q. Correct.

11 A. I'm not sure when it was. You know, I think it

12 was really just part of our making sure that our

13 financial models were accurate, that we were

14 representing the company and our analyses in the 15 right way.

16 Q. And why is that important?

17 MS. BROWN: Objection.

18 A. We need to make sure we're presenting accurate

19 data.

20 Q. Who were you presenting the accurate data to?

21 MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

22 A. I'm not sure who it was in this case.

23 Q. Is this the type of information that was being

24 provided to potential acquisition targets?

25 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

Page 168

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. I don't know. I don't know if any of this

3 information was presented to them.

4 Q. Were you concerned about ensuring the accuracy

5 of the presentation books that were being

6 prepared by Morgan Stanley?

7 MS. BROWN: Object to form.

8 A. What do you mean by "concern"?

9 Q. Was one reason why you were performing this due

10 diligence -- withdrawn.

11 Was it important to you that the 12 information contained in presentation

13 statements, or presentation materials provided

14 to third parties was accurate?

15 A. Generally speaking, I mean, that was, I guess,

16 part of my job was to make sure that to the best

17 of our knowledge what we were presenting was

18 accurate.

19 Q. And one way to do that is to conduct due

20 diligence of the company; correct?

21 A. That's correct.

22 Q. And does this agenda reflect the issues that

23 Morgan Stanley needed to explore in order to 24 ensure that the information it had about the 25 company that it was providing to third parties

Page 169

1 EUGENE YOO

2 was accurate?

3 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Can I hear

4 that back, actually.

5 (Prior testimony read back.)

6 "And does this agenda reflect the

7 issues that Morgan Stanley needed

8 to explore in order to ensure that

9 the information it had about the

10 company that it was providing to

11 third parties was accurate?"

12 A. Again, I don't remember the specific instance

13 when we were using this, but this seems like

14 something we would use more, not to verify

15 accuracy, but more just to stay updated on the 16 company. It wasn't really -- this didn't seem

17 to be a matter of going back and questioning

18 anything that we thought was wrong. This is 19 just trying to make sure that we were as current

20 on the company as possible.

21 Q. If in attempting to remain current on the

22 company you discovered information that was

23 inconsistent with what you were communicating to 24 third parties, what would you do?

25 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Improper

Page 170

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 hypothetical.
 3 A. I don't know. I haven't been in that situation.
 4 I haven't had to deal with that yet.
 5 Q. In this transaction you never came across any 6 information about Sunbeam's business or 7 financial condition that was inconsistent with 8 what was being presented to third parties by
 9 Morgan Stanley?
 10 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 11 A. As far as I knew there were no inconsistencies
 12 between what we were presenting and information
 13 that we were getting from Sunbeam.
 14 Q. And had you come across that information what 15 would you have done?
 16 MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
 17 Improper hypothetical.
 18 A. Again, I don't know. I haven't been in that 19 situation before, so I don't know.
 20 Q. You may have answered this question as well; you
 21 don't recall who was responsible for obtaining
 22 this information from Sunbeam?
 23 A. I don't think it was any single person. Again,
 24 I don't think this was really a list of items to 25 gather, it was really more just talking points

Page 171

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 for a meeting or a discussion with them.
 3 Q. Who was responsible for ensuring that all the 4 appropriate due diligence was completed by
 5 Morgan Stanley?
 6 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 7 A. On the MNA side? Or --
 8 Q. We can start there.
 9 A. Okay. For this transaction or, I guess, MNA in 10 general, I don't think there's any person
 11 assigned to oversee the completion of due
 12 diligence. It's part of our process just, you
 13 know, in order to be able to complete all of our 14 work, to have all of the information that we 15 need it's sort of fundamental that we have all
 16 of the due diligence completed, and also we have 17 all the information we need.
 18 Q. If no one is responsible how does your 19 department know that all of the due diligence
 20 has been conducted?
 21 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 22 Mischaracterization.
 23 A. Like I said, in order for us to be able to 24 complete our work and to be able to do our 25 assignment properly that due diligence sort of

Page 172

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 gets completed as a matter of course. If we
 3 don't complete that we don't have the 4 information we need to do our work and we're not
 5 able to provide our service to our clients.
 6 Q. Who is responsible for conducting the follow-up
 7 due diligence?
 8 A. I'm not sure what you mean by follow-up.
 9 Q. Well, you testified earlier that part of your 10 due diligence function was to keep up with 11 current events of the company, their latest 12 filings, earnings and announcements. Who was 13 responsible for ensuring that all of that was 14 reviewed?
 15 A. It was really the whole deal team, really.
 16 Q. Who was responsible at Morgan Stanley for 17 conducting the accounting due diligence?
 18 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 19 A. The accounting due diligence -- well, to a 20 certain extent we would do due diligence on the 21 financials, but typically on an MNA transaction
 22 we didn't do any detailed accounting due
 23 diligence, we were relying on the auditors to do
 24 that for us and provide us comfort.
 25 Q. Were you involved in that process?

Page 173

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 3 A. In which process?
 4 Q. In the due diligence process in reviewing the 5 financial information and reviewing the 6 auditor's comfort that it was providing to
 7 Morgan Stanley?
 8 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 9 A. Well, we didn't review the auditors, but we were 10 reviewing financials that they had signed off
 11 on.
 12 Q. I guess my question is did you review those 13 financials?
 14 A. Yes, we did.
 15 Q. You personally?
 16 A. I looked at some of them.
 17 Q. Okay. And those were publicly available
 18 documents?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Any other documents that weren't publicly
 21 available?
 22 MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
 23 A. In terms of financials?
 24 Q. Correct.
 25 A. There were the growth plans and budget that they

Page 174

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 had shown us.
 3 Q. Did you ever review a comfort letter provided by 4 Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley in connection
 5 with this transaction?
 6 A. In connection with the MNA transaction?
 7 Q. With -- well, in connection with the acquisition
 8 of the Coleman Company in the subsequent
 9 financing of that transaction.
 10 A. I don't think I've seen that.
 11 Q. Let's find it. I'm handing you what's 12 previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 17. Do
 13 you recall seeing this document?
 14 A. I don't think I've seen this.
 15 Q. While conducting your due diligence did you
 16 discover any information indicating that Sunbeam
 17 was employing bill and hold transactions?
 18 A. I'm sorry, what was the question again?
 19 Q. In conducting your due diligence of Sunbeam did
 20 you acquire any information indicating that
 21 Sunbeam was employing bill and hold practices?
 22 A. There was nothing in anything that we had seen
 23 that indicated that there was any kind of fraud
 24 or anything else going on that was out of the 25 ordinary, just, you know, regular normal course

Page 175

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 of business.
 3 Q. At that time were you familiar with the concept
 4 of a bill and hold transaction?
 5 A. At the time I was not.
 6 Q. Are you now aware of what a bill and hold
 7 transaction is?
 8 A. Vaguely.
 9 Q. Okay. How did you come to that information?
 10 A. I, in reading about what had happened with 11 Sunbeam through the newspapers.
 12 Q. While conducting your due diligence did you
 13 acquire any information indicating that Sunbeam
 14 was engaging in other aggressive revenue
 15 recognition practices?
 16 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 17 A. Again, as far as I could see there was really
 18 nothing that I saw that was out of the ordinary
 19 course of business.
 20 Q. Okay. How about with respect to restructuring
 21 reserves. Did you find anything that indicated
 22 that they were improperly reserving?
 23 A. No. Not that I can remember.
 24 Q. You never had any conversations with Mr. Tyree
 25 on those issues?

Page 176

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound.
 3 A. No. I never really talked to John that much
 4 about, you know, the Sunbeam transaction. I
 5 actually really didn't see him that much,
 6 period.
 7 Q. And your testimony is you have not seen the 8 March 19, 1998 comfort letter before today?
 9 A. I don't think I have. It doesn't look familiar.
 10 Q. Do you recall reviewing any drafts of this
 11 letter?
 12 A. I don't think so, no.
 13 Q. Was the information about Sunbeam's existing 14 financial condition, business and financial
 15 condition in January and February of 1998
 16 relevant to the due diligence that you were 17 performing?
 18 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 19 A. Are you talking about the due diligence for the 20 MNA transaction?
 21 Q. Any due diligence that you performed on Sunbeam.
 22 A. The financial condition of the company was 23 something that I guess is relevant, but in our 24 case it was something that we were, for the 25 transaction itself something that we were less

Page 177

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 focused on. We had spent a lot of time with
 3 them and had grown comfortable with their
 4 numbers and when a transaction became tangible
 5 we were more focused on the financials of the 6 target companies.
 7 Q. Did you ever ask to see the comfort letter
 8 Arthur Andersen was providing to Sunbeam?
 9 A. I did not personally, no.
 10 Q. Did you know in January or February -- strike
 11 that.
 12 Did you know at any point in the first
 13 quarter of 1998 that Sunbeam was experiencing a
 14 significant decline in sales?
 15 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 16 A. I didn't know that there was any difficulty of 17 the company in the first quarter.
 18 Q. Is that information that you should have known
 19 in conducting your due diligence?
 20 MS. BROWN: Object to form. And also to 21 the extent it calls for a legal conclusion.
 22 A. Based on the numbers that we were getting from 23 the company everything seemed to be in order.
 24 Whether those numbers were accurate or not it
 25 was difficult for us to tell from our vantage

Page 178

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 point.
 3 Q. What numbers do you recall receiving from 4 Sunbeam the first quarter of 1998 with respect
 5 to its first quarter sales?
 6 A. First quarter sales? I don't remember exactly
 7 what we got from them.
 8 Q. If you could turn, sir, to CPH Exhibit 17, page
 9 MS377. I'm sorry, the bottom of MS378 to the 10 top of 379. Paragraph 6.
 11 A. Okay.
 12 Q. And 6B. I'm sorry, 6C, which runs over onto 13 MS379. "Although the company has not provided
 14 us with any financial statements as of any date
 15 or for any period subsequent to February 1, 16 1998, management has provided net sales from 17 December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998 which 18 were 17,018,000 as compared to 143,499,000 for 19 the corresponding period of the preceding year."
 20 Do you see that?
 21 A. Yes, I do.
 22 Q. Did you have that information in your possession
 23 in the first quarter of 1998 while you were 24 conducting due diligence for Sunbeam?
 25 A. I don't believe we did.

Page 179

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Is that information that would have been 3 relevant to the tasks you were performing in
 4 conducting due diligence?
 5 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 6 A. If we had that information it probably would 7 have been relevant.
 8 Q. If someone at Morgan Stanley had that 9 information would you expect that person to 10 advise you about a 50 percent decrease in net
 11 sales over that period of time?
 12 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Hypothetical.
 13 A. I don't know what they would do. I can't 14 speculate what they would do with that.
 15 Q. But is that something you would have liked to 16 have known?
 17 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 18 A. As an adviser on the transaction, you mean?
 19 Q. Yes.
 20 A. Yeah, it would have been good to know if we had 21 known that at the time.
 22 Q. What would you have done with that information?
 23 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Hypothetical.
 24 A. Again, I don't know. I haven't really been in 25 that situation.

Page 180

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. You have no idea what you would do?
 3 A. If I had been given this?
 4 Q. Uh-huh.
 5 A. I don't know. I guess it just depends on what
 6 was going on at the time and how I found out
 7 and, you know, what we were doing.
 8 Q. In the context of what you were doing and what
 9 information was being communicated to third
 10 parties in connection with your efforts to find
 11 a buyer or an acquisition target for Sunbeam, is 12 this the kind of information that would be 13 important to -- strike that.
 14 Would this information be relevant to those 15 third parties?
 16 MS. BROWN: Object to form and calls for
 17 speculation.
 18 A. I think it might be important.
 19 Q. Why is that?
 20 A. Because the, I don't know why it would be 21 important to them. If I were to see this, if 22 the sales numbers were significantly different
 23 from what I thought they were going to be that
 24 might be something important to let people know.
 25 Q. Do you recall, sir, what Wall Street's

Page 181

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 expectations were of Sunbeam with respect to
 3 first quarter of 1998 sales?
 4 A. No, I don't.
 5 Q. Does the range of 285 to 295 million refresh
 6 your recollection?
 7 A. It might be, I don't know for sure.
 8 Q. You don't recall anyone at Morgan Stanley
 9 discussing the contents of this comfort letter
 10 or the subject of Sunbeam's sales shortfall
 11 prior to the closing of the Coleman transaction?
 12 MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.
 13 A. I don't recall anything about that letter.
 14 Q. The contents of the letter?
 15 A. I think there was a public announcement by 16 Sunbeam to that extent or something along those 17 lines around that time. But again, at that 18 point my involvement with Sunbeam was pretty 19 limited.
 20 Q. You were not involved in preparing or reviewing
 21 a press release in March of 1998?
 22 A. No, I didn't have anything to do with that.
 23 Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked as
 24 CPH Exhibit 14.
 25 A. All right.

Page 182

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. Do you recall reading this press release at

3 anytime?

4 A. I do recall reading this maybe the day or the 5 day after that it came out.

6 Q. And again, you were not involved in any

7 discussions concerning the issuance of this

8 press release?

9 A. No.

10 Q. You were not involved in any conferences on

11 March 18th, the day before the press release

12 concerning Sunbeam's sales shortfall?

13 A. Not that I remember.

14 Q. What was your reaction to reading this press

15 release?

16 A. Surprise. That's probably about it, just very

17 surprised.

18 Q. Why were you surprised?

19 A. From what I remember up until that point I

20 thought things were going very well. I thought

21 they were on track for a good first quarter.

22 Q. Reading the first paragraph of that press

23 release, what particular language in the press

24 release surprised you?

25 A. It says its possible that its net sales for the

Page 183

1 EUGENE YOO

2 first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the

3 range of analyst estimates.

4 Q. That came as a surprise to you?

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. With respect to the, the language, "the

7 shortfall from analysts estimates, if any, would

8 be due to changes in inventory management in

9 order patterns at certain of the companies major

10 retail customers." Did that statement surprise

11 you?

12 A. Actually, I didn't really understand that

13 statement as much as part of the operations of 14 the company that we weren't really involved in.

15 That was the area where we started to rely more

16 on the management team and team at Coopers to 17 help us understand. But we weren't really

18 involved at that level.

19 Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at

20 Morgan Stanley about this press release?

21 A. I think the only person I talked to about it was 22 Tyrone Chang.

23 Q. What did you and Mr. Chang discuss?

24 A. Well, he was the one that brought it to my

25 attention, I believe. And we were both just

Page 184

1 EUGENE YOO

2 talking about how we were surprised, because we

3 were both very involved in the numbers in the 4 model beforehand.

5 Q. Do you recall what specifically Mr. Chang said?

6 A. I don't remember specifically what he said.

7 Q. Did you feel misled when you read this press

8 release?

9 A. I think at this point I wasn't quite sure what

10 was happening, so I didn't know what to think.

11 Q. Did you talk to anybody at Sunbeam about this

12 press release?

13 A. No. I hadn't really had any contact with 14 anybody from Sunbeam since the board meeting.

15 Q. Other than Mr. Chang did you talk to anyone

16 about the press release; Mr. Fuchs, Mr. Stynes,

17 Mr. Kitts?

18 A. No, not Mr. Kitts. Not Mr. Stynes. I don't

19 believe I talked to Alex about it.

20 Q. Did you tell anyone at Morgan Stanley that the 21 information contained in the press release was

22 inconsistent with what you were being told by

23 Sunbeam?

24 A. I never really -- I'm not sure what you mean.

25 Well.

Page 185

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Q. Well, you said you were surprised to learn of 3 this press release.

4 A. Right.

5 Q. Did you convey that surprise to anyone besides

6 Mr. Chang?

7 A. Not that I can remember, no.

8 Q. And you didn't do anything to follow up on the 9 information contained in the press release?

10 A. No, I didn't.

11 Q. Now, CPH Exhibit 14 does not contain the 12 information on the status of Sunbeam's sales in

13 January and February of 1998 as reflected in the 14 comfort letter; is that correct?

15 A. Can you read that back.

16 (Prior testimony read back.)

17 "Now, CPH Exhibit 14 does not

18 contain the information on the

19 status of Sunbeam's sales in

20 January and February of 1998 as

21 reflected in the comfort letter;

22 is that correct?"

23 A. I believe that's correct.

24 Q. There's no discussion in CPH 14 about the 50

25 percent decline in sales in the first two months

Page 186

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 of 1998; right?
 3 A. Not that I can see here, no.
 4 Q. Again, that's information that was not provided
 5 to you either by Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley or 6 Arthur Andersen for the --
 7 A. Where do you get your information?
 8 Q. The 50 percent decline of sales in the first two
 9 months of 1998.
 10 A. That's correct. As far as I can remember that's 11 not, that was not provided to us.
 12 Q. And you couldn't, you couldn't tell that sales
 13 had declined by 50 percent by reading the press
 14 release on CPH Exhibit 14; correct?
 15 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 16 A. I don't know what anybody else could interpret.
 17 I couldn't interpret it from that.
 18 Q. In fact, the press release indicates that it was 19 still possible that Sunbeam could reach Wall
 20 Street's estimates of 285 to 295 million; right?
 21 A. I don't know. I can't say what other people
 22 would interpret it.
 23 Q. Well, how do you interpret the first sentence?
 24 "Sunbeam Corporation said today that it is 25 possible that its net sales for the first

Page 187

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of 3 Wall Street analysts estimates of 285 million to 4 295 million, but net sales are expected to
 5 exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of 253.4
 6 million. Do you read that to indicate that 7 Sunbeam would not make Wall Street estimates of
 8 285 to 295?
 9 A. The way I read it myself personally, I thought
 10 there was a reasonably good chance that they 11 were not going to be able to make sales in the 12 range of 285 to 295.
 13 Q. But it's not out of the question as worded in
 14 the press release?
 15 A. It's a possibility it is, based on what the 16 press release says.
 17 Q. Did you talk to Mr. Tyree about this press
 18 release?
 19 A. I don't believe I did.
 20 Q. At the time you read the press release were you
 21 aware that he had conducted accounting due
 22 diligence of Sunbeam?
 23 A. I was not aware of that.
 24 Q. I'm handing you what's previously been marked as 25 CPH Exhibit 112. Have you seen this document

Page 188

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 before?
 3 A. No, I don't think so.
 4 Q. This is a March 25, 1998 letter from Arthur
 5 Andersen updating the March 19th comfort letter;
 6 correct?
 7 A. That appears to be the case.
 8 Q. This document was not provided to you at 9 anytime?
 10 A. I don't believe so, no.
 11 Q. Handing you what's previously been marked as CPH
 12 Exhibit 16. Do you recognize this document?
 13 A. I'm not sure. I don't think I've seen this.
 14 Q. This isn't a document that you obtained from 15 Sunbeam management during your review of their 16 expectations for sales in 1998?
 17 A. I don't think I've ever seen this.
 18 Q. Do you recall seeing any build up of sales,
 19 whether it related to the first quarter of 1998
 20 or the entire year of 1998?
 21 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 22 A. As far as I can remember for 1998 I don't 23 believe we ever saw any build up like this for 24 sales. We had seen some historical numbers that 25 they gave us for 1997.

Page 189

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. They didn't show you any documents that showed 3 how they were going to reach their sales
 4 expectations for 1998?
 5 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 6 Mischaracterization.
 7 A. For 1998 I don't remember exactly what we saw,
 8 but I believe the breakdowns were based on 9 product lines or divisions. But I don't
 10 remember exactly what it was we saw. And I
 11 don't think at the time, at least up until the 12 point of the transaction they even had very much
 13 data available for first quarter.
 14 Q. Except what's contained in the Arthur Andersen
 15 comfort letters; right?
 16 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 17 Mischaracterization. Do you want to put a date
 18 on what you're asking?
 19 Q. First quarter of 1998 sales.
 20 A. The -- well, my involvement tailed off after the 21 board meeting which I think was early March. Up
 22 until that point I don't think we had much
 23 information on the first quarter. After the 24 board meeting up until closing I had really had 25 little to do with the transaction until after

Page 190

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 the closing.
 3 Q. What did you do to ensure that others were 4 looking at Sunbeam's first quarter sales after 5 your involvement with the transaction tailed 6 off?
 7 A. I'm not sure if there was anything I did
 8 specifically to point people towards first
 9 quarter sales.
 10 Q. Who assumed your responsibilities on the matter
 11 after the board meeting?
 12 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 13 A. There was the financing team which basically 14 took over from the point the transaction was 15 approved by the board. And then I think the 16 legal team took over in terms of getting the 17 deal closed.
 18 Q. Who were the members of the finance team?
 19 A. I don't know the whole team. I only really 20 interacted with John Tyree.
 21 Q. Ruth Porat?
 22 A. I do believe she was involved at some point, I
 23 don't know how much.
 24 Q. What were the other members of the MNA team
 25 doing after the board meeting on February 27th?

Page 191

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Object to form. Calls for
 3 speculation. Foundation.
 4 Q. I'll clarify. What were they doing with respect
 5 to following Sunbeam's performance in 1998?
 6 MS. BROWN: Object to foundation.
 7 A. I don't know. I don't know what they were doing
 8 specifically. I don't know if there was 9 anything they were doing at all.
 10 Q. Is it typical that the MNA team stops working on 11 the deal after the deal has been approved by the 12 company's board?
 13 A. Once the deal is approved there isn't much for 14 us to do, we hand it off to mostly the legal 15 team to get the closing completed. But most of 16 our advisory work is completed at that point and 17 then the team usually moves on to the next
 18 transaction.
 19 Q. Who were the members of the legal team?
 20 A. Skadden Arps, I believe. And I don't know who 21 else.
 22 Q. Is there anyone else in-house at Morgan Stanley
 23 that was working on the legal aspects of the 24 deal?
 25 A. Not that I can remember.

Page 192

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. Do you recall the law firm of the name Davis
 3 Polk?
 4 A. I know who they are, yes.
 5 Q. Do you recall they were representing Morgan
 6 Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam
 7 engagement?
 8 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 9 A. I don't recall their involvement.
 10 Q. Skadden represented Sunbeam; right?
 11 A. Yes, I think that's the case.
 12 Q. Other than members of the finance team and the 13 legal team, was there anyone else at Morgan
 14 Stanley who was responsible for monitoring
 15 Sunbeam's business and financial condition after 16 the board approved the transaction on February
 17 27th?
 18 MS. BROWN: Object to the form and 19 characterization with regard to the legal team
 20 and Morgan Stanley.
 21 A. I mean, anybody from the Morgan Stanley MNA
 22 team? Or everybody from Morgan Stanley in 23 general, or?
 24 Q. Well, you testified that members of the finance
 25 team and the legal team continued to perform due

Page 193

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 diligence of Sunbeam after the board meeting on
 3 February 27th; is that correct?
 4 A. I'm not sure -- I'm not sure what, I'm assuming 5 they were doing due diligence in preparing for 6 the offering, but I wasn't involved with it at 7 all.
 8 Q. Other than those two groups of people, do you
 9 know of anyone else that would have been working
 10 on the Sunbeam transaction after the board
 11 approved the acquisition of Coleman?
 12 A. As far as I know from the MNA side I don't think 13 there was anyone really actively working on
 14 Sunbeam.
 15 Q. Were you involved in any bring down due
 16 diligence?
 17 A. I was not.
 18 Q. You did not participate in any bring down due
 19 diligence conference calls?
 20 A. No, I don't believe so.
 21 Q. I'm showing you what's been previously marked as 22 CPH Exhibit 36. Have you seen this document
 23 before?
 24 A. I don't think I saw it in this format. But I
 25 think I did review the press release when it was

Page 194

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 released.
 3 Q. What was your reaction to Sunbeam's April 3rd
 4 press release?
 5 A. Actually, at this point on the announcement of 6 the financials, the sales shortfall, I actually
 7 really didn't think much of it at that point. I
 8 guess based on the prior press release I knew
 9 that there was a possibility that they were 10 going to disappoint. So it didn't surprise me
 11 too much.
 12 Q. It didn't surprise you that they were now
 13 announcing that first quarter sales were 14 expected to be below 1997 levels based on what
 15 you read in the March 19th press release?
 16 A. From my perspective I wasn't really paying 17 attention to that portion of the press release.
 18 I just knew that the sales were disappointing,
 19 that's all I remember from reading the press
 20 release at that time. I was more focused on 21 just Rich Goudis leaving, that was the part that 22 I was more focused on.
 23 Q. Why did you have an interest in his departure?
 24 A. Well, he was the person that I had the most 25 contact with from Sunbeam and I had gotten along

Page 195

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 quite well with him. I thought he was a good
 3 guy.
 4 Q. You said Rich Goudis?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. Where in this press release does it discuss
 7 Goudis's departure?
 8 A. I think it was -- maybe it wasn't in this one.
 9 Don had left. Maybe it wasn't in this one.
 10 Q. Were you surprised that Mr. Oosi was terminated?
 11 A. I guess at the time I don't think I was that 12 surprised. It didn't seem like he had a great
 13 relationship with Al. I didn't really know him
 14 that well, but, and they seemed to only bring 15 him out in certain situations. He wasn't really
 16 present at all of the meetings.
 17 Q. Did you believe that their explanation for the 18 shortfall was accurate?
 19 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 20 A. You know, again, that's kind of getting to a
 21 level of business that we weren't all that 22 involved with. Their inventory management it
 23 seems like.
 24 Q. Did you discuss this press release with anyone
 25 at Morgan Stanley after it was released?

Page 196

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. Again, I think the only person I really spoke
 3 about it with was Tyrone Chang, along the same
 4 lines as the prior ones. And I think he was the 5 one that brought it to my attention.
 6 Q. What did the two of you discuss?
 7 A. I don't really recall what we said at that 8 point. I think for us Sunbeam was pretty far in 9 the rearview mirror at that point.
 10 Q. Do you recall hearing that the March, the 11 contents of the March 19, 1998 press release
 12 were included in the debenture offering memo?
 13 A. I didn't know that they were.
 14 Q. Did you hear that Arthur Andersen objected to 15 the inclusion of the press release language into 16 the offering memo?
 17 A. I didn't know anything about that.
 18 Q. No one ever told you about a confrontation
 19 between Mr. Bornstein of Anderson and Mr. Tyree
 20 on March 18th or 19th --
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. -- regarding the contents of the press release
 23 or the offering memo?
 24 A. No, I didn't know anything about that.
 25 Q. Okay. Do you know anything about that now?

Page 197

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. (Witness shakes head in the negative.) No, this
 3 is the first time I'm hearing about it.
 4 Q. Have you ever heard Mr. Tyree use profanity
 5 around the office?
 6 A. Not really. I didn't really work with him that
 7 much. I probably talked to him three or four 8 times total in my four years there. I think he 9 was a former, he came out of the Navy or the 10 Army.
 11 Q. One of the services?
 12 A. Yeah. That's all I really knew about him. I
 13 don't think combined I spent more than 30
 14 minutes with him in four years.
 15 Q. You testified earlier you did not participate on 16 the roadshow; is that correct?
 17 A. That's correct.
 18 Q. Do you recall hearing that Mr. Kirsch or 19 Mr. Dunlap were downplaying the significance of 20 the March 19th press release during the 21 roadshow?
 22 A. I don't think I heard anything about that.
 23 Q. Did you have any communications with Andrew 24 Conway at Morgan Stanley on the issue of 25 synergies?

Page 198

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. I never talked to Andrew about synergies.

3 Actually, I never even spoke to Andrew.

4 Q. You know who he is?

5 A. I believe he's the equity research analyst.

6 Q. Do you know if Mr. Chang ever spoke to

7 Mr. Conway?

8 A. I don't know.

9 Q. Did you have any involvement preparing materials

10 for the leverage finance commitment committee at 11 Morgan Stanley; materials in connection with the 12 debenture offering or the financing of the 13 acquisition of Coleman?

14 MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound.

15 A. Not that I know of.

16 Q. On either of those issues?

17 A. No.

18 Q. And let me show you what has previously been

19 marked as CPH Exhibit 129. This is a fairly

20 long document. I don't have many questions

21 about it. But do you see that your name is

22 listed, it's spelled incorrectly, under Mar?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. And this is a March 10, 1998 equity commitment,

25 a memo to the equity commitment committee?

Page 199

1 EUGENE YOO

2 A. Right.

3 Q. And it's listed -- the authors are listed as

4 many individuals at Morgan Stanley including

5 yourself?

6 A. Uh-huh.

7 Q. Did you prepare any of the pages of this memo?

8 A. I think I helped draft the background

9 information. I don't recall who wrote the 10 original version, but I think I helped edit it.

11 Q. What pages?

12 A. One and 2.

13 Q. Were you involved in the preparation of the 14 highly confidential letter with regard to the 15 financing of the acquisitions?

16 A. No, I don't believe so.

17 Q. Did you attend any meetings of the equity

18 commitment committee and the leverage finance

19 commitment committee?

20 A. No, I did not.

21 Q. Are those two entities the same; are they

22 referred to as the same?

23 A. I think they're separate entities.

24 Q. Okay. Would you turn to page 516, page 4 of the 25 memo of Exhibit 129. There's a paragraph called

Page 200

1 EUGENE YOO

2 Restructuring?

3 A. Okay.

4 Q. The second sentence, "the restructuring portion

5 of the plan has been substantially completed

6 with only the final, quote, refinement, unquote,

7 stage remaining." Do you see that?

8 A. Maybe I have the wrong page number.

10 A. Page 4.

11 Q. Right. Restructuring?

12 A. Second sentence, I'm sorry. Right.

13 Q. Do you see that? Do you know what that refers

14 to? The final refinement stage.

15 MS. BROWN: Object. Speculation.

16 A. I can't say for certain.

17 Q. You didn't draft this paragraph, to your

18 knowledge?

19 A. No, not this page, not this paragraph.

20 Q. If you turn to page 11 of the memo, which is

21 Morgan Stanley 523.

22 A. Okay.

23 Q. Under "equity valuation," third bullet point,

24 "the company's current trading levels are

25 warranted given the level of expected synergies,

Page 201

1 EUGENE YOO

2 150 million pre tax." Do you know the basis --

3 MS. BROWN: And it continues from there.

4 Q. I'm sorry? And it continues from there.

5 Do you recall the basis for that?

6 MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation.

7 A. For the 150 million?

8 Q. Right.

9 A. I don't know.

10 Q. If you turn to page 17 of the memo, page 529,

11 paragraph 5. Take a moment to read that,

12 please.

13 A. (Witness reviewing.) Okay.

14 Q. Do you recall the basis for that paragraph?

15 MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation.

16 A. No, I couldn't say for certain where it came

17 from.

18 Q. Sorry. You didn't draft that?

19 A. No, I didn't write this.

20 Q. Okay. The last sentence refers to Sunbeam

21 management informing -- well, let's see. It

22 shouldn't say that. It refers to a "they," I'm

23 not sure if it's referring to Sunbeam management

24 or who, but "they informed Sunbeam board of 25 directors that the synergies are likely to be in

Page 202

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 the 225 to 275 million pre tax range." Do you
 3 have any knowledge of where those numbers came 4 from?
 5 A. No, I don't.
 6 Q. Showing you what's previously been marked as CPH
 7 Exhibit 100. It's another lengthy document
 8 entitled The Selling Memorandum, dated March 12,
 9 1998. Have you seen this document before?
 10 A. I don't think I've seen this before. It doesn't
 11 look familiar.
 12 Q. You don't recall preparing any of the pages that 13 are contained in this document?
 14 A. Let me see. I may have prepared some of these 15 pages at some point, but not specifically for 16 this document.
 17 Q. Okay.
 18 A. This looks like a collection of other pages.
 19 Q. Do you know what the purpose of -- strike that.
 20 Do you know if the selling memorandum was 21 used in connection with the debenture offering?
 22 A. I have no idea.
 23 Q. Okay. If you can turn to page 22 of the memo
 24 which is Morgan Stanley 62882.
 25 A. Okay.

Page 203

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Q. The paragraph "ability to attain synergies."
 3 The last sentence reads "in addition, while
 4 Andrew Conway has modeled 150 million in 5 synergies in 1998 he feels that there could be 6 an upside to this figure." Do you recall any
 7 conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley
 8 concerning this modeling by Andrew Conway?
 9 A. No, I didn't know anything about this.
 10 Q. And again you never had any conversations with 11 him about that?
 12 A. I never talked to Andrew, no.
 13 Q. Showing you what's previously been marked as CPH
 14 Exhibit 76. Have you ever seen this document?
 15 A. No, I don't think so.
 16 Q. The first page is a memorandum to the leverage
 17 finance commitment committee from RB Smith or 18 Braum Smith?
 19 A. Right.
 20 Q. It references a meeting of that committee on 21 March 20th. Did you attend that meeting?
 22 A. No, I didn't.
 23 Q. Do you know if during that meeting the 24 commitment committee discussed Sunbeam's sales
 25 shortfall?

Page 204

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
 3 A. I don't know what they discussed at the meeting,
 4 no.
 5 Q. No one ever talked to you about what was
 6 discussed at that meeting?
 7 A. No. As far as I remember I've never heard
 8 anything about it.
 9 Q. I'm handing you what's previously been marked
 10 CPH Exhibit 135. In connection with your work
 11 on potential divestiture of certain aspects of 12 Coleman or the new Sunbeam, did you attend the 13 analyst meeting on May 11, 1998?
 14 A. I don't think I did.
 15 Q. Have you seen this document before?
 16 A. No, I haven't.
 17 Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley prepared any of 18 the slides that are contained in this document?
 19 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
 20 A. I don't think we helped them with this. I
 21 couldn't tell you.
 22 Q. If you could turn to page, Morgan Stanley 63748,
 23 please.
 24 A. Okay.
 25 Q. This indicates an original cost savings and.

Page 205

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 synergies of 150 million dollars and it purports
 3 to be an actual cost savings of synergies of 291
 4 million. Do you have any knowledge of this page
 5 or the, or the 291 million dollar figure that
 6 appears on that page?
 7 A. No. I don't know either one.
 8 Q. Please turn to page 63751. It's entitled 9 Sources of Growth. "Potential 1999 impact of 10 265 million." Do you have any knowledge of the 11 basis for that synergy estimate?
 12 A. No, I don't know.
 13 MS. BROWN: Object to the characterization.
 14 Q. Would you please turn to Morgan Stanley 63755
 15 entitled Savings Summary. There's a list of 16 savings on this page with total savings of 17 acquired companies 201 million, Sunbeam sourcing
 18 strategy of 52 million with a grand total
 19 savings of 253 million. Do you have any 20 knowledge of the basis for that calculation?
 21 A. No, I'm not sure where they came up with these
 22 numbers.
 23 Q. You don't know if Morgan Stanley was involved in 24 providing any of that type of data to Sunbeam?
 25 MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.

Page 206

1 EUGENE YOO
2 A. I don't know, I don't know if Morgan Stanley was 3 involved at all or not.
4 Q. Set that aside. Mr. Yoo, were you involved in
5 conducting any due diligence of the Coleman
6 Company prior to the close of the transaction?
7 A. I had some involvement with that, yes.
8 Q. And what was your role?
9 A. At that point it was more of a coordination
10 role, I think, between Skadden and Arthur
11 Andersen and Coopers. There were teams that 12 were going through the various corporate
13 documents or visiting various sites around the 14 country and our job at that point was to make
15 sure that people were going to the right places
16 and all the right information was getting 17 gathered.
18 Q. Did you actually attend any of these site
19 visits?
20 A. I did not personally, no.
21 Q. Did you review any documents provided by Coleman
22 as part of the due diligence process?
23 A. I don't recall what documents I went through.
24 Q. But you did in fact go through some documents,
25 or you just can't recall if you looked at any

Page 207

1 EUGENE YOO
2 documents?
3 A. I know we went through some of the financials
4 and some of the projections, but we had already
5 gone through some of that before. I don't
6 recall if there was anything else that we went
7 through or I went through personally.
8 Q. Did you ever request any information from 9 Coleman that you didn't receive?
10 A. Not that I can remember.
11 Q. Did you ever form an opinion on the value of the 12 Coleman Company?
13 MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
14 A. Did I personally --
15 Q. Correct.
16 A. -- come up with an opinion? I probably came up
17 with some, some opinion of what it was worth. I
18 don't recall what it was.
19 Q. Do you have any recollection, ballpark range?
20 A. No. I don't remember anything about it being 21 significantly different from the transaction.
22 Q. You never formed an opinion that Sunbeam was 23 overpaying for the Coleman Company?
24 A. (No response.)
25 Q. I sorry, I didn't hear your answer.

Page 208

1 EUGENE YOO
2 MS. BROWN: He didn't yet.
3 A. I didn't answer. No, I don't think I ever
4 really had that opinion.
5 Q. Did anyone express that opinion to you at
6 anytime?
7 A. Not, not during the transaction, no.
8 Q. After the transaction closed?
9 A. I think I remember hearing some people talking
10 about the value that was ultimately paid, or I
11 guess the price, the dollar price of the stock
12 that was announced.
13 Q. What do you recall hearing?
14 A. I don't remember exactly what they said, but it
15 was something along the lines of, it was a, it
16 was a good price for Pearlman.
17 Q. What did you take that to mean?
18 A. I think at the time that I had heard it I was 19 thinking that the, you know, one could argue
20 that the price was maybe high based on 21 traditional valuation techniques, but we thought
22 that it was still a good deal for Sunbeam, you
23 know.
24 Q. But in your work prior to the close of the 25 transaction in reviewing information about

Page 209

1 EUGENE YOO
2 Coleman's business and Sunbeam's business, you
3 never reached that conclusion; right?
4 A. Which?
5 Q. The conclusion that -- I'll withdraw it.
6 During the time that you were reviewing
7 Coleman's financial and business information and
8 Sunbeam's business and financial information
9 prior to the closing of the transaction, you
10 never formed the conclusion that Sunbeam was 11 overpaying for Coleman; correct?
12 A. No, I never really thought that.
13 Q. Did you hear what the basis was for these people
14 that were saying that, saying that Pearlman,
15 Mr. Pearlman had received whatever it was that 16 they were saying?
17 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
18 Q. It was a bad question. Other than hearing that 19 some people were saying that Mr. Pearlman --
20 I'll withdraw that.
21 Did the people that spoke to you about the 22 Coleman purchase price, did they provide any 23 basis for the statements that they were making
24 about what Sunbeam paid for Coleman?
25 A. I don't really remember the conversation. If I

Page 210

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 remember correctly it was a comment that really
 3 wasn't directed towards me. I just happened to 4 overhear it.
 5 Q. Do you recall who made the statements?
 6 A. I don't know. Actually, I don't think it was
 7 somebody that I knew.
 8 Q. Where did you overhear this information?
 9 A. I think it was just in passing in the hallway or 10 somewhere.
 11 Q. This was at Morgan Stanley's offices?
 12 A. No. Where was it? I believe it was either at 13 the restaurant or the gym across the street,
 14 somewhere over there.
 15 Q. Can you recall when you heard these comments?
 16 A. No. Again, it was sometime after the 17 announcement, and I think it was, I don't recall
 18 if it was before or after the closing.
 19 Q. But it was sometime in 1998?
 20 A. It was somewhere around that time, yeah.
 21 Q. Who was responsible for conducting the due
 22 diligence of Coleman?
 23 MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
 24 A. Again, there's no real single person that's 25 assigned that particular task, it's just sort of

Page 211

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 the responsibility of the whole team.
 3 Q. Have you ever heard of the phrase "fast track
 4 due diligence"?
 5 A. I don't think I've heard that.
 6 Q. You've never used it before?
 7 A. I don't think I've used it.
 8 Q. If I can have just a couple of seconds to look
 9 over my notes. Take a short break.
 10 A. Okay.
 11 VIDEOGRAPHER: It's one minute after four.
 12 We're off the record.
 13 (Short break taken.)
 14 VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record.
 15 The time is nine minutes after four.
 16 Q. Mr. Yoo, earlier this morning I asked you if you
 17 had ever been given any manuals, due diligence
 18 manuals or policies by Morgan Stanley and I
 19 believe you indicated that you didn't recall
 20 receiving any such thing; is that correct?
 21 A. Yes, that's correct.
 22 Q. I'm going to show you what's been marked as CPH
 23 Exhibit 29. I'll represent to you, sir, that 24 this is a compilation of various documents, the 25 index is complete on the first few pages of this

Page 212

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 exhibit, but if you flip through CPH Exhibit 29,
 3 do you recall receiving or seeing any of those
 4 materials, either in a larger document or
 5 separately?
 6 A. No. I haven't seen this. No, I don't think
 7 I've seen any of these pages.
 8 Q. At any point, sir, did anyone ever suggest that 9 the transaction, the, Sunbeam's acquisition of 10 the Coleman Company be delayed until the end of 11 the first quarter of 1998 at Sunbeam?
 12 A. That the transaction be delayed?
 13 Q. Right. The close of the transaction be delayed
 14 into and pushed back into April until after the 15 close of the first quarter of 1998?
 16 MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
 17 A. As far as I know I wasn't aware of any 18 discussions about timing of the closing of the
 19 transaction.
 20 Q. Okay. Were you aware or did you -- strike that.
 21 Were you aware that Sunbeam extended the 22 first quarter of 1998 until after the close of 23 the transaction in order to capture additional 24 sales in the remaining days of the calendar
 25 year, the calendar of March of 1998?

Page 213

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 MS. BROWN: Object to the characterization.
 3 A. I was not aware that that had happened.
 4 Q. I asked a slightly different question earlier
 5 today with respect to synergies, but do you know
 6 what synergy estimates, if any, the Sunbeam
 7 board relied on in approving the acquisition of 8 the Coleman Company?
 9 A. I don't have any idea what numbers they were 10 using.
 11 MR. O'CONNOR: Let's mark two more
 12 exhibits, please.
 13 (Deposition Exhibits 228 and 229 marked for
 14 identification.)
 15 Q. You've been handed two exhibits, one is marked
 16 CPH Exhibit 228 which is a 1997 firm wide
 17 performance evaluation, a self-evaluation from 18 1997. Do you recall completing a
 19 self-evaluation in 1997 as part of your
 20 performance reviews at Morgan Stanley?
 21 A. Yes, I do.
 22 Q. I refer you to paragraph 3 of your
 23 self-evaluation, the last sentence in that
 24 paragraph where it reads, "I have shown
 25 repeatedly that am able to perform under

Page 214

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 difficult and demanding situations. Two
 3 particular examples are Odyssey and Sunbeam
 4 where I helped produce high quality work within 5 extremely short time periods and under less than 6 optimal conditions." Do you see that sentence?
 7 MS. BROWN: Two sentences.
 8 Q. Two sentences thank you. What did you mean by 9 "less than optimal conditions"?
 10 A. I think with regard to the Sunbeam transaction
 11 what I was referring to was actually two things,
 12 one, the fact that we were going down two
 13 parallel paths with Sunbeam for quite some time.
 14 And the fact that once we actually got to a
 15 tangible transaction it was actually three 16 transactions in one, we sort of tripled the 17 work.
 18 Q. Other than that aspect of the transaction, I'm 19 sorry, of the engagement, was there anything
 20 else about the Sunbeam engagement that made it
 21 difficult or demanding?
 22 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 23 A. For me personally I think what was difficult
 24 about it was that it was my first real live MNA
 25 transaction and so it was a learning experience

Page 215

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 and the fact that it was somewhat higher profile
 3 than most just made it more important for me to
 4 not screw up in any way. And so I just felt a
 5 little bit more pressure to perform on that one.
 6 Q. Did Mr. Fuchs provide you with adequate guidance
 7 in the Sunbeam engagement?
 8 A. I believe he did. He was with me pretty much
 9 side by side on everything.
 10 Q. You can set that aside. And take a look at 11 what's been marked as CPH Exhibit 229, which is 12 your self-evaluation for the 1998 firm wide
 13 performance evaluation.
 14 A. Okay.
 15 Q. And in the first paragraph under section 2,
 16 let's see, I believe it's the second full
 17 sentence, "as we carried on concurrent
 18 negotiations with the sellers, numerous issues
 19 and alternatives arose which rippled through 20 each aspect of the deal. Complicating matters
 21 were the complex ownership structure of Coleman,
 22 the volatile personalities involved, Al Dunlap,
 23 Ron Pearlman, and the extremely tight deadline,
 24 we had to announce before 1Q earnings
 25 announcement, had to close before the end of

Page 216

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 second quarter." First, I believe that you were
 3 mistaken, the transaction closed before the end
 4 of the first quarter. But that's --
 5 A. Right. I may have -- I think I misspoke on
 6 that.
 7 Q. Okay. My question actually is what about the 8 volatile personalities of Mr. Dunlap and
 9 Mr. Pearlman complicated the deal?
 10 A. Well, I think it was just being able to perform
 11 on a normal professional level with two sort of 12 larger than life people, and I don't know if 13 you've ever met Al Dunlap, and I think I only 14 met Ron Pearlman once. But they were sort of 15 both very strong and very dominating
 16 personalities. And with one -- when you're 17 dealing with only one, that's fine. But when 18 you have two and two that are on opposite sides
 19 and going in opposite directions it's hard to be 20 the person in the middle sometimes. And that's 21 kind of what I was referring to there. I think
 22 at one point they were sort of slinging insults
 23 at each other through us.
 24 Q. Was there any aspect of Mr. Dunlap's personality
 25 which presented problems with Morgan Stanley

Page 217

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 with respect to closing the deal?
 3 MS. BROWN: Object to form.
 4 A. I'm not sure what you mean.
 5 Q. Was Morgan Stanley under any pressure from 6 Mr. Dunlap to make a deal happen in the first
 7 quarter of 1998?
 8 MS. BROWN: Form and foundation.
 9 Objection.
 10 A. As far as I knew there was no direct order from 11 Al or anything like that to get something done.
 12 Just me personally I got the sense that he was 13 getting a little impatient, but I think that was 14 just sort of his personality.
 15 Q. What gave you that impression?
 16 A. Well, he, I don't know he, but Bob and Jim would 17 sort of step up their efforts a little bit to 18 make sure that we were staying on top of 19 everything with the deal and make sure that 20 nothing was falling behind. They just wanted to 21 make sure there was nothing we were doing that 22 was holding up any potential transaction.
 23 Q. And when did you first start to feel that
 24 stepping up by Mr. Kitts and Mr. Stynes?
 25 A. Mr. Stynes. It was probably towards the end of

Page 218

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 the year. No, the end of 2000. I'm sorry, the
 3 end of 1997.
 4 Q. Okay. And when you refer to the "extremely
 5 tight deadline, paren, we had to announce before
 6 1Q '98 earnings announcement;" what does that 7 mean? And I'm sorry. "And had to close before
 8 end of second quarter." Actually, first
 9 quarter.
 10 A. Yeah.
 11 MS. BROWN: Close paren.
 12 Q. Close paren.
 13 A. I don't recall what I was referring to with the 14 second half of that with the closing. As far as 15 the first quarter announcement -- I think this
 16 was, again, I can't be entirely sure about it, I
 17 think this was a case where along with the 18 earnings announcement Al Dunlap wanted to be 19 able to announce something along with that that 20 was above and beyond the typical earnings
 21 announcement. He wanted to say -- he wanted to 22 show he was really making progress and he wanted
 23 to do something to show that it's not just a
 24 first quarter but, you know, we're making
 25 progress, we're actually doing something here at

Page 219

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 Sunbeam.
 3 Q. And when did he want that announcement to occur?
 4 A. Well, the first time he mentioned it was when he
 5 first engaged us and he wanted to have something
 6 announced day one. As he, you know, he was 7 joking around with us on the first day. But,
 8 you know, for him the sooner the better.
 9 Q. But this reference to 1Q '98 earnings
 10 announcement, your testimony is that doesn't
 11 refer to Sunbeam sales in the first quarter?
 12 A. No, I don't think -- this here, this reference
 13 doesn't have anything to do with that sales
 14 reference. Again, from what I remember this was 15 about -- he had already gone through two or 16 three earnings announcements at Sunbeam with 17 regard to the turn around of the company. And I
 18 think he was looking for something to add on to 19 just the fact that he turned the company around.
 20 He was doing something company transforming.
 21 Q. So these earnings announcements were 22 prospective, what he expected the company to 23 earn in the first quarter of 1998, and that 24 announcement was sometime before the close of 25 the first quarter?

Page 220

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 A. I don't know the timing.
 3 Q. You don't know whether he wanted an announcement
 4 of the transactions and other announcements
 5 about its first quarter 1998 prospects to happen
 6 at the same time before the close of the
 7 quarter?
 8 MS. BROWN: Objection. Form and
 9 foundation.
 10 Q. I guess I'm just confused as to your reference
 11 to the first quarter '98 announcement.
 12 A. Yeah, I'm not sure about the timing. It doesn't 13 seem, maybe I wrote this incorrectly, it doesn't
 14 seem to work.
 15 Q. The sentence following "a great deal of negative
 16 publicity had surrounded our client focused
 17 mainly on the operations and accounting of the 18 company. Also, there is still the outstanding 19 issue of the convertibles that were sold and the 20 outstanding bank debt. Nevertheless, the 21 acquisitions are still looked upon favorably and 22 the MNA was certainly positive." Do you believe
 23 that to be true today?
 24 MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound and form.
 25 Q. Let me try and clarify it. Do you believe today

Page 221

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 that the acquisitions are still looked upon
 3 favorably?
 4 MS. BROWN: Objection. Calls for
 5 speculation.
 6 A. I mean, it depends who you ask, I guess.
 7 Q. When did you write this self-evaluation?
 8 A. Let's see, this would be at the end of 1998.
 9 Q. That was after Mr. Dunlap was terminated by the 10 Sunbeam board?
 11 A. I believe it was.
 12 Q. And after Jerry Levin took over at the new
 13 Sunbeam?
 14 A. I think that's the case, yes.
 15 Q. When you say that there was a great deal of 16 negative publicity focused mainly in operations
 17 and accounting of the company, what did you mean
 18 by that?
 19 A. What I was referring to was all of the negative
 20 press that the company had received, I'm not 21 sure exactly what point during the year, but 22 some point during the year surrounding the sales
 23 shortfall with Al leaving the company, the drop
 24 in the stock price, the accounting issues. So
 25 it was just a lot of negativity surrounding

Page 222

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 anything related to Sunbeam.
 3 Q. In light of what you learned throughout the rest
 4 of 1998 and before you wrote this, is there
 5 anything you would have done differently?
 6 A. Done differently where?
 7 Q. At any point in the Sunbeam engagement.
 8 A. I don't think there's really anything that I
 9 would have done differently. I don't think
 10 we -- we went through the entire deal process
 11 pretty thoroughly and thought.
 12 Q. I have no further questions at this time.
 13 MS. BROWN: Just a couple of quick
 14 questions.
 15 EXAMINATION
 16
 17 BY MS. BROWN:
 18 Q. I think you already told Mr. O'Connor that you
 19 do not -- do you know -- strike that.
 20 Do you know what information Sunbeam relied 21 on when it determined to acquire Coleman?
 22 A. Do I know?
 23 Q. What information Sunbeam management or board
 24 relied on when it determined to acquire Coleman?
 25 A. I don't know firsthand what information they had

Page 223

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 or what they were using.
 3 Q. Do you know what information Morgan Stanley
 4 Senior Funding relied upon when it provided a
 5 bank facility to Sunbeam?
 6 A. No, I can't say with certainty I know.
 7 Q. Were you involved in the team that was providing 8 the underwriting service for the convertible
 9 note offering?
 10 A. No, I was not involved.
 11 Q. Are you familiar with the due diligence
 12 performed by that team?
 13 A. No, not really.
 14 Q. Are you familiar with any due diligence
 15 performed by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding
 16 before giving the bank facility to Sunbeam?
 17 A. No, I don't believe so.
 18 Q. No further questions.
 19 EXAMINATION
 20
 21 BY MR. O'CONNOR:
 22 Q. Mr. Yoo, in response to the question of whether 23 you have knowledge of what Morgan Stanley Senior 24 Funding relied on in providing financing for the 25 acquisition, your response was "not with

Page 224

1 EUGENE YOO
 2 certainty." Are you aware of any, anything that 3 Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relied on?
 4 A. I can assume that they were using most of the 5 same information that we had, but I don't know.
 6 Q. So other than that assumption you don't know?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Okay. No further questions.
 9 VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is four
 10 twenty-eight. We're off the record.

 7 ---
 8 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going on video
 9 record. The time on the monitor is 9:05 a.m.
 10 (Thereupon, the case was introduced by the 11 court reporter.)
 12 MR. MARKOWSKI: Bob Markowski from Jenner &
 13 Block on behalf of Coleman (Parent) Holdings.
 14 MR. O'CONNOR: Chris O'Connor from Jenner &
 15 Block on behalf of plaintiff, Coleman (Parent)
 16 Holdings.

 18 Kirkland & Ellis, LLP on behalf of the defendant,
 19 Morgan Stanley & Company.
 20 MR. MOSCATO: Mark Moscato from Curtis Mallet
 21 on behalf of the witness, Larry Bornstein.
 22 Thereupon,
 23 (LAWRENCE A. BORNSTEIN)
 24 having been first duly sworn or affirmed, was 25 examined and testified as follows:

Page 5

1 DIRECT EXAMINATION
2 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
3 Q. Mr. Bornstein, as you know, my name is Bob
4 Markowski. I'm one of the attorneys for Coleman
5 (Parent) Holdings in its lawsuit here in Palm Beach
6 County against Morgan Stanley.
7 Mr. Bornstein, would you please state your 8 full name?
9 A. Lawrence Alan Bornstein.
10 Q. Mr. Bornstein, where were you employed in 11 1998?
12 A. Arthur Andersen.
13 Q. Where was your office location?
14 A. West Palm Beach, Florida.
15 Q. How long had you been employed by Arthur
16 Andersen at that time?
17 A. '98, approximately ten years.
18 Q. What was your position?
19 A. I believe at the time I was an experience
20 manager, I think was the title.
21 Q. And in general, what were the 22 responsibilities in 1998 that you had as a senior
23 manager at Arthur Andersen?
24 MR. MOSCATO: Experience manager?
25 MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me, experience

Page 6

1 manager.
2 THE WITNESS: Supervising and performing
3 tests, audit functions primarily.
4 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
5 Q. How long had you been employed in the West
6 Palm Beach office?
7 A. I believe approximately, probably six years.
8 Q. At that time did you hold any licenses?
9 A. Yes, a CPA, licensed in Massachusetts.
10 Q. When did you obtain your licenses as a
11 certified public accountant?
12 A. I believe in '91 or '92.
13 Q. Mr. Bornstein, do you recall that in the 14 first quarter of 1998 Sunbeam made three acquisitions?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. Do you recall the names of the three 17 companies that Sunbeam acquired in the first quarter of 18 1998?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Can you tell me what they are?
21 A. Coleman -- I don't know the exact name, but 22 Coleman was one. First Alert was another. And I
23 believe the third was Signature Brands.
24 Q. Do you recall that Coleman was the largest of 25 the three companies that Sunbeam acquired at that time?

Page 7

1 A. Yes.
2 Q. Do you recall as part of the Coleman
3 acquisition that Sunbeam acquired all of the Coleman
4 stock that my client, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, owned?
5 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
6 THE WITNESS: I don't know, I don't know
7 exactly who owned what and where and when, to be
8 honest with you.
9 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
10 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam acquired the 11 Coleman company stock that Coleman (Parent) Holdings
12 had as part of the transaction?
13 A. I don't remember the exact structure, but I
14 do believe they acquired a good chunk of it during that 15 time period.
16 Q. From Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
17 A. I believe so, yes.
18 Q. Did you perform any work relating to the 19 transaction by which Sunbeam acquired the Coleman
20 company stock?
21 A. I did a limited amount of work, yes.
22 Q. What were the nature of the projects that you
23 were involved in concerning Sunbeam's acquisition of
24 Coleman company?
25 A. I accompanied various management of Sunbeam

Page 8

1 at the time in a due diligence, limited due diligence
2 process.
3 Q. Were there other activities that related in 4 any respect to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman that
5 you were involved in?
6 A. A limited amount of review of, I believe
7 their pro forma financial statements or pro forma
8 projections that was done by, I believe it was done by
9 Morgan Stanley.
10 Q. Do you recall being involved in activities
11 related to Sunbeam's financing of the acquisition?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. And what was your involvement in the 14 financing aspect of the transaction?
15 A. Assisting in the preparation of a 140
16 section, I think it was Section 144 document, bond
17 offering document.
18 Q. That's the document by which Sunbeam sold
19 convertible debentures to finance the acquisition?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. Do you recall what your involvement was in 22 that process?
23 A. Assisting in the preparation of the pro forma
24 financial statements that were within the document,
25 drafting the document, the body of the document prior

Page 9

1 to the pricing of the bonds, coordinating and assisting
 2 the other accounting firms in getting the information
 3 that's needed in the document. That's pretty much all
 4 I can remember.
 5 Q. That activity all took place in the first
 6 quarter of 1998?
 7 A. For the most part, yes.
 8 Q. Do you recall when during the first part of 9 1998 that activity was occurring?
 10 A. I think it was middle to end of February
 11 through late March of I guess -- my year, I think it
 12 might have been, I think '98.
 13 Q. Mr. Bornstein, did Arthur Andersen -- let me
 14 take a step back.
 15 Arthur Andersen was involved in these 16 activities because it served as the outside auditor for 17 Sunbeam during that time period; is that correct?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. Did Arthur Andersen, in connection with its 20 function as the outside auditor for Sunbeam, do
 21 anything special at the end of the first quarter of 22 1998 to monitor Sunbeam's product shipments at the end
 23 of the first quarter?
 24 MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
 25 THE WITNESS: Can you --

Page 10

1 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 2 Q. I can restate it.
 3 At the end of the first quarter of 1998, in
 4 its capacity as the outside auditor for Sunbeam, did
 5 Arthur Andersen do anything special to monitor the 6 shipments of Sunbeam's products at the end of the first
 7 quarter?
 8 MR. CLARE: Same objection.
 9 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 10 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 11 Q. What do you recall that involving?
 12 A. I would call them expanded cutoff procedures,
 13 expanded I would say shipping and receiving type of 14 procedures at the end of the first quarter.
 15 Q. Did you have any role in making the decision
 16 to cause those procedures to be implemented?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And what was the role?
 19 A. It was my decision to expand procedures
 20 sufficient enough to conclude that shipments were made
 21 in a timely fashion prior to the end of the quarter and 22 that they were in fact built, shipped and ordered by 23 customer.
 24 Q. Now at that point in the first quarter of 25 1998, were you the senior Arthur Andersen person

Page 11

1 responsible for the Sunbeam audits?
 2 A. No, I was not.
 3 Q. Who was?
 4 A. The partner was Phil Harlow.
 5 Q. Did you recommend to Mr. Harlow that these 6 procedures be used or did you make the decision on your 7 own?
 8 A. I recommended to Mr. Harlow that the 9 procedures be done.
 10 Q. And what was his reaction to your
 11 recommendation?
 12 A. I don't remember.
 13 Q. But were the procedures in fact employed?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. When did you decide that Arthur Andersen --
 16 excuse me, when did you decide that Arthur Andersen
 17 should use these expanded cutoff procedures at the end
 18 of the first quarter of 1998?
 19 A. I don't know the exact date, but probably 20 March 17th or 18th.
 21 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm going to show you what
 22 we're going to mark as Coleman (Parent) Exhibit
 23 Number 118. It's a March 21 e-mail from you to William
 24 Biese, B-i-e-s-e. It bears Bates number AA120304.
 25

Page 12

1 (CPH Exhibit No. 118 was marked for
 2 identification.)
 3 MR. CLARE: Do you have a copy? Thanks.
 4 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 5 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'd like you to take a moment
 6 to look at Exhibit 118.
 7 Can you tell me what this document is?
 8 A. Correspondence with a, I believe, I believe,
 9 I think he was the partner for Arthur Andersen that
 10 worked, I think he -- let me think about this. He, I
 11 think he resided in Mexico City. He was the partner in 12 charge of the work that was done in Mexico for Sunbeam.
 13 And based on reading this, it's a memorandum
 14 letting him know that we're going to be doing
 15 additional work at the end of the quarter on cutoff
 16 procedures.
 17 Q. The memorandum is dated March 21, 1998; is 18 that correct?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Sunbeam had facilities in Mexico City, or in 21 Mexico? Excuse me.
 22 A. Yeah, they had facilities in Mexico City and 23 I think I recall them having one or two in, I think it
 24 was called Maquiladora and a couple of other locations
 25 in surrounding Mexico City.

Page 13

1 Q. What was the purpose of your sending this
2 memo to Mr. Biese?
3 A. I believe -- I mean reading this right now,
4 it's to let him know what was going on, let him know
5 there was going to be additional work for him, and then
6 to advise him of, that additional cutoff procedures
7 were going to be needed. And in reading this at this
8 time, it talks about bill and hold transactions as well
9 as the emphasis on sales.
10 Q. Does your memorandum to Mr. Biese explain why
11 Andersen would be conducting additional cutoff
12 procedures at the end of the first quarter of 1998?
13 A. No, not specifically.
14 Q. Does it provide the background concerning the 15 reasons why you wanted to implement additional 16 procedures to monitor cutoffs?
17 A. Not specifically.
18 Q. Does it do it in general terms?
19 A. I believe it does, yes.
20 Q. And what did you advise Mr. Biese as the 21 reason for your desire to do the additional cutoff
22 procedures at the end of the first quarter?
23 A. I don't remember specifically telling him
24 anything, but looking at this memorandum, it's clear
25 that it talks about where they, where they were going,

Page 14

1 where they were planning on going in sales and where
2 they were. And the notation, as you can see, there is
3 a big push on sales and we've been told that they
4 having bill and hold transactions.
5 Q. When you say it says where the company
6 expected to go in sales for the quarter, what are you
7 referring to?
8 A. The company just released an early warning to 9 the street that sales are not going to meet
10 expectations of 285 to 295 million for the quarter.
11 That's specifically where it talks about
12 that.
13 Q. And what does it say about where the company
14 in fact was at that point in time in terms of sales?
15 A. 72 million as of March 1st.
16 Q. And how does, how do those figures relate to 17 your desire to do additional end-of-the-quarter
18 shipping cutoff procedures?
19 A. There is obviously a big spread between what 20 was, what was recorded through March 1st and what the 21 expectations of the company were.
22 So that spread led me to believe that we 23 should be doing additional work at the end of the first
24 quarter.
25 Q. And what is it about that spread that caused

Page 15

1 you to come to that conclusion, that it was appropriate
2 to do additional work at the end of the first quarter?
3 A. I believe that the spread was extremely 4 aggressive and that it warranted additional work to 5 make sure that they -- mentioned earlier that the 6 product was ordered, was built, and it was properly
7 shipped.
8 Q. What was your concern?
9 MR. MOSCATO: I object. I think he just said
10 so.
11 Do you have anything to add?
12 THE WITNESS: No, I don't believe I have
13 anything.
14 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
15 Q. How did monitoring cutoff procedures have a
16 relationship to what you've just described?
17 A. Monitoring cutoff procedures would in fact
18 give you a much greater assurance that a customer had 19 requested that the product be sold to them; i.e., to 20 clear purchase order, and that the product was in fact
21 built and shipped.
22 Q. Were you concerned that in order to increase
23 the reported sales for the first quarter of 1998, that
24 Sunbeam might attempt to claim shipments had taken
25 place during the first quarter when in fact they had

Page 16

1 not?
2 A. Can you repeat that, please?
3 Q. Were you concerned that because of the great
4 spread as of this point in time between Sunbeam's sales
5 for the first two months of the first quarter and 6 Sunbeam's original expectations for sales for the first
7 quarter, that in order to close the gap between those
8 two numbers, that Sunbeam might attempt to claim 9 shipments in the first quarter that had actually not
10 occurred?
11 MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
12 THE WITNESS: I don't believe that that was 13 my thought process at the time. I wanted to make 14 sure that they were actually going to ship the 15 product and the product was ordered.
16 So I guess in thinking about that, then there
17 is a possibility the concern was that there, you
18 know, that it was a possibility that they would 19 ship product that wasn't ordered, as well as 20 logistically being able to ship that much product
21 in such a short period of time, based on my 22 experience with the company at that point in time.
23 MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Bornstein, I'll show you
24 what we're marking as CPH Exhibit 119. It's a
25 memorandum from Dennis Pastrana to you dated

Page 17 1 March 24, 1998. The subject is cutoff testing, 2 and it bears Bates number AA55758 through -- 3 actually it looks like it's made up of two 4 documents, first. First page is AA55758, and then 5 the pages behind it are AA36921 through 36925. 6 (CPH Exhibit No. 119 was marked for 7 identification.) 8 THE WITNESS: These are just extra copies? 9 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 10 Q. Yes, right, thank you. If you would, I'd 11 like you to take a moment to take a look at CPH Exhibit 12 Number 119. 13 Mr. Bornstein, can you tell me what CPH 14 Exhibit Number 119 is? 15 A. I apologize. I'm getting a cold, so it's 16 kind of hard for me to hear. Can you repeat that? 17 Q. Can you tell me what CPH Exhibit Number 119 18 is? 19 A. Appears to be a draft of a memorandum 20 outlining the additional procedures on cutoff and 21 shipping that was performed at the end of the first 22 quarter of '98. 23 Q. These are instructions relating to what we've 24 been discussing, the implementation of additional 25 procedures to monitor Sunbeam's	Page 19 1 only and is not to be shared with client personnel at 2 the facilities you visit. Sunbeam's first quarter 3 fiscal 1998 will end on March 29, 1998," in brackets, 4 "the Sunday closest to the end of the month," end of 5 brackets. "As of March 1, 1998, the company reported 6 sales of approximately 72 million versus 143 million 7 for the corresponding period of the preceding year. 8 Despite this decrease, management has announced to the 9 public that it expects first quarter sales for 1998 to 10 exceed first quarter 1997 sales of 253.5 million. That 11 means that the company expects to ship over 12 181 million," in brackets, "greater than 70 percent 13 expected sales for the quarter," end of brackets, "in 14 the month of March." 15 Q. Now the, did you believe the statement that 16 the company had sales of $72 million through the first 17 two months of the year to be an accurate statement? 18 A. I believe at the time domestically the 19 $72 million was the number. 20 Q. Do you know what that number was based on? 21 Let me ask a different question. I asked that poorly. 22 Do you know how Andersen determined that 23 Sunbeam sales for the first two months of 1998 totaled 24 approximately $72 million? 25 A. I believe based on the company's financial
Page 18 1 end-of-the-first-quarter shipping practices? 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. Who is Dennis Pastrana? 4 A. He was, he was the senior auditor who worked 5 for me during the Sunbeam audit, who, for lack of a 6 better term, did, supervised the field work on a 7 day-to-day basis. 8 Q. Did you ask Mr. Pastrana to prepare 9 instructions for the additional cutoff procedures? 10 A. Yes, based on this memorandum. I don't 11 recall specifics, but based on this, I would say the 12 answer is yes. 13 Q. Did you provide Mr. Pastrana with guidance 14 concerning what you wanted the procedures to involve? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. The -- let me direct your attention to the 17 page that has Bates number 36293. The heading starts 18 General Information. 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. Do you have that page in front of you? 21 A. Yes. 22 Q. Would you read the first two paragraphs under 23 General Information out loud, please. 24 A. "Although the information that follows is 25 public information, it is summarized here for your use	Page 20 1 information that was given to us. 2 Q. Now a statement is made at the beginning of 3 that two paragraphs that I had you read that the 4 information that follows is public information. 5 Do you know whether in fact Sunbeam had 6 announced to the public as of this point in time that 7 its sales for the first two months of 1998 were only 8 $72 million? 9 A. I don't believe it was. I'm not 100 percent 10 sure, though. 11 Q. You don't have any recollection of the 12 company publicly making that statement, correct? 13 A. No. 14 Q. I'd like to direct your attention down to the 15 bottom third of the page. There is a heading that 16 reads Revenue Recognition Policy. Do you see that? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. Would you read that first paragraph into the 19 record, please. 20 A. "Because of management pressures to meet 21 earnings expectations, we are taking additional steps 22 in connection with our quarterly review work to ensure 23 that the client achieves a proper sales cutoff." 24 Q. Does that statement accurately reflect the 25 reasons why you decided that Andersen should implement

1 additional cutoff testing procedures at the end of the
 2 first quarter of 1998?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Now, Mr. Bornstein, I note that this document
 5 indicates that Sunbeam's first quarter will end on
 6 March 29, 1998.
 7 Do you see that statement at the top of the
 8 page?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. Did Sunbeam's first quarter in fact end on
 11 March 29, 1998?
 12 A. I don't believe it did, no.
 13 Q. Do you recall what happened?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. Can you explain?
 16 A. One second, I'm sorry.
 17 Q. Sure.
 18 A. As I recall, Sunbeam decided to extend the 19 quarter, I believe it was I think two days, in order
 20 to -- because they were going to close the Coleman
 21 acquisition I believe on March 31st, they wanted to 22 include the additional two days of revenue related to 23 Coleman in their first quarter.
 24 Q. Would extending the quarter also permit
 25 Sunbeam to count its first quarter sales, additional

Page 22

1 sales that Sunbeam itself made during those three days?
 2 A. I believe that was their intention, yes.
 3 Q. As of the time -- this memorandum appears to 4 have been written on or about March 29 -- well, excuse
 5 me, March 24, I believe.
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. As of that point in time, had the first
 8 quarter been extended?
 9 A. No, I don't believe so.
 10 Q. So the decision to extend the first quarter
 11 that Sunbeam made was sometime between the time this 12 memorandum was prepared and the end of the quarter?
 13 A. Yeah, I believe I testified, somewhere in the 14 records I'm sure there is a paper trail of the date,
 15 because I specifically remember the phone call I had.
 16 My daughter was in the hospital sick, and I remember
 17 getting the phone call related to the request to extend
 18 the quarter.
 19 Q. Who did you get that call from?
 20 A. I don't recall specifically.
 21 Q. Do you recall that it was Bob Gluck that 22 called you?
 23 A. It's possible that it was Bob Gluck, yes.
 24 Q. Who is Bob Gluck?
 25 A. He was the corporate controller of Sunbeam.

Page 23

1 Q. Did the fact that Sunbeam advised you that it
 2 wished to extend the first quarter of 1998 have any
 3 effect on your thinking concerning the need to conduct
 4 additional cutoff procedures for the quarter?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. And what was your thought in that regard?
 7 A. Honestly, at that point in time I believe
 8 that they needed to come up with some additional ways
 9 to make the quarter on the revenue side, and that was 10 one of them, one of a couple as opposed to -- I'm 11 sorry, but that was one of them.
 12 Q. And how did that conclusion affect your 13 thinking with respect to the cutoff procedure project?
 14 A. The cutoff procedure project was already 15 implemented, but it emphasized the need to do it.
 16 Q. Were you concerned that Sunbeam might play
 17 games with respect to its first quarter numbers?
 18 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
 19 THE WITNESS: I don't consider it playing 20 games, but there was never a clear definition of 21 whether or not they intended to include Coleman
 22 sales or not when they made their press releases.
 23 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 24 Q. Was the fact that Sunbeam had advised you
 25 that it wished to extend the first quarter consistent

Page 24

1 with your conclusion that management was being pressed
 2 to do whatever it could to maximize first quarter sales
 3 results?
 4 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
 5 THE WITNESS: That they needed to be 6 aggressive, yes. That is the way I would 7 characterize it.
 8 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 9 Q. And they needed to be aggressive for what
 10 reason, Mr. Bornstein?
 11 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
 12 MR. MOSCATO: You're asking him what his view
 13 is, not his trying to read their minds?
 14 MR. MARKOWSKI: That's correct.
 15 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 16 Q. Why did you think Sunbeam needed to be 17 aggressive with respect to its first quarter sales
 18 activities?
 19 A. Because again, that was a big spread of sales 20 that were in fact recorded at March 1st, and what they 21 had told the public they planned on doing for the first
 22 quarter.
 23 Q. Mr. Bornstein, in general, what did -- let me
 24 ask a foundational question. In fact, Andersen did
 25 take additional steps to monitor Sunbeam's first

1 quarter sales shipments at the end of the quarter?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. In general, what did Andersen do?
 4 A. We sent people out to a number of material
 5 locations, manufacturing locations, where Sunbeam in 6 fact built and shipped product at the end of the first
 7 quarter.
 8 Q. What did those people, what were those people
 9 asked to do?
 10 A. It's pretty much detailed in the memorandum,
 11 but basically to monitor the shipment of product, to 12 make sure the product was actually shipped at the end
 13 of a quarter, to obtain shipping and receiving
 14 documents, to physically observe the shipping
 15 locations, to do additional work on additional bill and 16 hold transactions that the company had told us that 17 they were entering into, and to basically make sure
 18 that the product was there and ready to be shipped or 19 shipped and do all the cutoff work that we talked
 20 about.
 21 Q. We've been using the term cutoff. What does
 22 cutoff mean?
 23 A. It's just, cutoff means, it's just a period
 24 of time that you take a snapshot. You freeze the, kind
 25 of freeze that period in time and you, exactly what it

Page 26

1 sounds, cut off when a sale is made and when a sale is
 2 not made.
 3 Q. And the cutoff moment in this instance was 4 what?
 5 A. I believe the policy, the revenue recognition
 6 policy was that it had to have been placed in a truck
 7 and the truck needed to either be filled or pushed off
 8 the dock and title passed to the customer.
 9 Q. By what moment in time?
 10 A. Technically, midnight of whatever the date
 11 was. I think it was March 31st that the quarter ended.
 12 Q. It ultimately was March 31st, correct?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. At the time this memo was written, the end of 15 the quarter would have been March 29?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. And it was the extension of the quarter by 18 three days from the 29th to the 31st that resulted in 19 that change, correct?
 20 A. Yes, being the 31st as opposed to the 29th,
 21 yes.
 22 Q. All right. Now did Andersen staff or,
 23 Andersen staff ask to be physically present on the 24 Sunbeam shipping docks at midnight on the last day of 25 the quarter?

Page 27

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And the purpose for that was so that they
 3 could do what?
 4 A. To make sure that the process I just
 5 explained was adhered to.
 6 Q. Verify it with their own eyes, correct?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. Now is that something that Andersen did at 9 the end of each Sunbeam quarter?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. And the reason for the difference here was 12 what you've already described, the gulf between where 13 Sunbeam sales were at the end of March – or excuse me,
 14 at the end of February, and where the company had told 15 the public it would end up at the end of the first
 16 quarter, correct?
 17 A. Yes. It was, as I explained earlier, a
 18 decision I made sometime in March, March 18th, 19th,
 19 that that was something I was going to have done.
 20 Q. Mr. Bornstein, let me show you what we 21 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 20. Bears
 22 Bates number CPH 0129292 through 192296.
 23 A. Okay.
 24 Q. Can you tell me what this document is?
 25 A. Just give me a couple of minutes to look at

Page 28

1 it.
 2 Q. Sure.
 3 A. It's a, looks like a memo from Vance Kistler,
 4 who was a, I don't know, a staff accountant or it might
 5 have been a higher level, maybe a senior accountant, on 6 his inventory observation work at Hattisburg.
 7 Q. Who was Vance Kistler again? I'm sorry, he's 8 an Andersen employee?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. Does this report relate to the sales cutoff
 11 procedures that we've been talking about?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. Does this reflect Mr. Kistler's work and the 14 work of others at the Hattisburg facility?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. Hattisburg was a Sunbeam facility?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And what did Sunbeam do at Hattisburg, do
 19 you know?
 20 A. I don't remember specifically what they built
 21 there, but they manufactured equipment and had a
 22 distribution center where product was put on trucks and 23 shipped to customers.
 24 Q. Do you recall that Hattisburg is one of the 25 more significant facilities that Sunbeam had for

Page 29 1 shipping product? 2 MR. CLARE: Objection to form. 3 THE WITNESS: Yes, I believe their largest at 4 the time. 5 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 6 Q. Mr. Bornstein, let me show you what we've 7 also previously marked as CPH Exhibit 113. 8 A. Does anyone else who lives in Florida need 9 air conditioning in this room? Is there any way we can 10 do that? Us Floridians need air conditioning. 11 Q. If at any point, Mr. Bornstein, you need to 12 take a break or need something else like air 13 conditioning, just let us know. We'll try to make sure 14 you are comfortable. 15 A. Thank you. 16 Q. If you would take a moment to look at CPH 17 Exhibit Number 113, my first question is going to be if 18 you can identify it for me, tell me what it is. 19 A. Okay. 20 Q. The question was if you can identify the 21 document for me. 22 A. The document, after reading it, appears to be 23 a documentation of work done by -- I'm not sure who 24 this guy is, but another employee of Arthur Andersen on 25 cutoff work done at a warehouse in DC, a warehouse in	Page 31 1 Mr. Bornstein. 2 A. Sure. 3 Q. Was that huge effort in your mind justified? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. And why did you think that huge effort was 6 justified under the circumstances that you were 7 confronted with? 8 A. You know, based on the spread, the 9 aggressiveness of management and the spread between 10 what was recorded as sales, as well as what was, what 11 was out on the street, we talked about them extending 12 the quarter. 13 Another thing that happened post the 14 March 18th time frame was the announcement or the 15 information to us that they were going to, Sunbeam was 16 in the process of implementing an additional bill and 17 hold series of transactions, I guess. 18 So again, that was kind of the second thing 19 that, that kind of emphasized that additional work 20 needed to be done. 21 Q. And the work needed to be done in order to do 22 what you thought necessary to assure that Sunbeam 23 properly reported its sales for the quarter? 24 A. Yes. 25 Q. And didn't report more sales than it was
Page 30 1 Aurora. I think that might have been a, I believe that 2 was a third-party warehouse. 3 And again, work, additional work done on 4 cutoff, shipping cutoff, as well as additional work 5 done on bill and hold sales. 6 Q. And this relates to the project we've been 7 talking about, correct? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. The monitoring of Sunbeam's end-of-quarter 10 sales shipments, correct? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. Is it fair to say that it took a fair amount 13 of effort, Mr. Bornstein, to arrange and implement the 14 additional cutoff monitoring procedures? 15 A. I would characterize it as a huge amount of 16 effort. Probably more effort on a quarterly inventory 17 cutoff than -- probably safe to say on probably any 18 work that was done probably for the previous 15 years 19 in auditing history. 20 Q. And the huge effort was warranted because of 21 what again, Mr. Bornstein? 22 MR. MOSCATO: I object. 23 You can answer again, Larry. 24 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 25 Q. Let me ask a different question,	Page 32 1 entitled to report, correct? 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. When did you first learn, Mr. Bornstein, that 4 Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1998 were 5 about half of what Sunbeam's sales had been for the 6 first two months of 1997? 7 MR. MOSCATO: The question is focused on the 8 first two months? That's your question? 9 MR. MARKOWSKI: That's correct. 10 MR. MOSCATO: First two months. 11 THE WITNESS: I believe sometime towards 12 maybe the first, the end of the first week of 13 March. Maybe the second, I'd say anywhere between 14 March 7th and maybe March 10th to 13th, in that 15 time frame. 16 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 17 Q. And how did you learn that information? 18 A. From Dennis Pastrana, the senior accountant 19 working for me. 20 Q. Do you recall whether you were present in a 21 room with Mr. Pastrana? 22 A. No, it was via telephone. 23 Q. Where were you at? 24 A. I was working on the 144 offering, I believe 25 in New York.

1 Q. And where was Mr. Pastrana?
2 A. In Delray Beach, Florida, at Sunbeam's
3 location.
4 Q. Do you recall whether he called you or
5 whether you called him in connection with that phone
6 call?
7 A. No, I don't recall.
8 Q. What do you recall Mr. Pastrana telling you?
9 A. Just the fact of where they were, where they
10 were from a revenue standpoint. And I don't recall
11 anything else specifically.
12 Generally he was doing work to support the 13 work that we were doing up in New York. He was working 14 on a comfort letter, which entailed reviewing the 15 company's financial information for the most recent 16 periods.
17 Q. Did you consider the information he provided
18 to you about Sunbeam's sales for the first two months
19 of 1998 to be significant in any way?
20 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
21 THE WITNESS: Did I think it was significant,
22 the information that he gave me?
23 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
24 Q. Correct, concerning Sunbeam's sales for the 25 first two months of the first quarter of '98.

Page 34

1 A. Yes, I did.
2 Q. In what way?
3 A. That it was much lower than the previous 4 year.
5 Q. Do you know if the public was expecting
6 Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 to be 7 lower than Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 8 1997?
9 MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
10 THE WITNESS: Did I know at that time?
11 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
12 Q. Right. Did you know if the financial 13 community was expecting Sunbeam's sales in the first
14 quarter of 1998 to be lower or higher than Sunbeam's
15 sales for the first quarter of 1997 had been?
16 MR. CLARE: Same objection.
17 THE WITNESS: I knew that they were expecting
18 I believe to be higher than the previous year.
19 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
20 Q. Your understanding was the financial 21 community was expecting Sunbeam's sales to grow in the 22 first quarter of 1998 over the first quarter of 1997
23 results, correct?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. You said that Mr. Pastrana was doing work

Page 35

1 relating to the preparation of a comfort letter?
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. What's a comfort letter?
4 A. A comfort letter is, for lack of a better
5 word, it gives the underwriters and underwriter's
6 counsel comfort that the numbers that are within the 7 bond offering are derived from the company's books and
8 records.
9 Q. Now the letter is prepared by whom?
10 A. By Arthur Andersen.
11 Q. And it goes to whom in this case?
12 A. I believe it goes to underwriter's counsel.
13 So I'm not sure who exactly it's addressed to, to be 14 honest with you, but I believe it was underwriter's
15 counsel.
16 Q. The underwriting you are referring to in this 17 case was whom?
18 A. Morgan Stanley.
19 Q. And Morgan Stanley is underwriting what in 20 this context, just so we're clear?
21 A. The bond offering.
22 Q. And by underwriting, what do you mean?
23 A. They were the ones helping the company sell
24 the bonds.
25 Q. Why was Andersen preparing a comfort letter

Page 36

1 for Morgan Stanley relating to the bond offering?
2 A. It was requested by Morgan Stanley to 3 prepare.
4 Q. Do you know why Sunbeam was issuing the 5 bonds?
6 A. In order to finance a portion of the three
7 acquisitions you talked about earlier.
8 Q. Including the acquisition of Coleman Company,
9 correct?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. What's the relevance of Sunbeam's sales
12 results in January and February of 1998 to the work
13 Mr. Pastrana was doing on the comfort letter?
14 A. The comfort letter asked for -- the standard 15 comfort letter, there are certain things that are 16 required to be disclosed and certain things that aren't 17 required to be disclosed, but, for example, you'd have 18 to look at net worth of the company compared to the 19 prior year. I forget the exact one. Net assets of the 20 company compared to the prior year. Really any 21 material variation from the same period of the prior 22 year required to disclose to the, to put in the 23 document, put in the comfort letter.
24 Again, the standard things, I don't know what 25 they are. And then if there is anything that's out of

Page 37 1 the ordinary, typically that might go in there. 2 Q. Mr. Bornstein, in connection with -- as I 3 understand your prior testimony in connection with the 4 Sunbeam audits, you were the second-most senior person 5 assigned in the audit; is that correct, the audit team? 6 A. There was a, there were, I think a concurring 7 partner was also assigned to the team, but that partner 8 didn't actually do the field work. He was more of an 9 advisory partner. So I would consider myself probably 10 the third senior person on the team. 11 Q. All right. In connection with the work you 12 did as the third most senior Andersen person on the 13 Sunbeam audit, if we include Mr. -- the concurring 14 partner was Mr. Pruitt; is that correct? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. And the engagement partner was Mr. Harlow, 17 the audit partner? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. And Mr. Harlow would have been more actively 20 involved in the actual audit process than Mr. Pruitt, 21 correct? 22 A. Correct. 23 Q. In connection with the work that you did 24 regarding Andersen's audits of Sunbeam, did you try to 25 keep abreast of statements that Sunbeam made to the	Page 39 1 Q. When Mr. Pastrana advised you that Sunbeam's 2 sales for the first two months of 1998 were about half 3 of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, 4 did you report that information to anyone else at 5 Arthur Andersen? 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. To whom did you report it? 8 A. I think you can see in the memorandums that 9 we reported that to whoever was on the engagement team 10 working on the cutoff procedures, Mr. Harlow, 11 Mr. Pruitt. I don't specifically remember anyone else, 12 but I'm sure I mentioned it to other people. 13 Q. Did you make certain personally that 14 Mr. Harlow knew that Sunbeam's sales in the first two 15 months of '98 were about half of what they had been in 16 the first two months of '97? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. Did you personally make sure that Mr. Pruitt 19 knew that as well? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. Do you recall when you informed Mr. Harlow of 22 that fact? 23 A. As soon as I was aware of it. 24 Q. Do you recall when you advised Mr. Pruitt of 25 that?
Page 38 1 financial community relating to its performance? 2 A. Yes, I did. 3 Q. And is it in that connection that you had an 4 understanding that Sunbeam had led the financial 5 community to expect that its first quarter 1998 sales 6 would be higher than its first quarter 1997 sales? 7 MR. CLARE: Objection to form. 8 THE WITNESS: It was a combination of a lot 9 of things, newspaper reports, the budgets, 10 statements Mr. Dunlap had made to the financial 11 community and the world on growth projections. 12 So I mean it's a combination of things how you 13 keep track of things like that. 14 Andersen at the time had a system in place 15 where you would get, you know, consensus, first 16 call type of information that can be supplied 17 also. 18 So I mean we were kept pretty -- you know, it 19 was part of our job to be in tune to that 20 information. 21 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 22 Q. And you considered yourself in the first 23 quarter of 1998 well informed on those issues as they 24 related to Sunbeam? 25 A. Yes.	Page 40 1 A. I believe not until March 17th or 18th. The 2 night before the, the date before the press release 3 went out and prior to the bonds being priced. 4 Q. Can you tell me what the context of that 5 conversation was? Was it a conversation? 6 A. Yes, just in -- Mr. Pruitt, as part of his 7 responsibility, needed to read the comfort letter in 8 its entirety. And I do recall pointing that out to him 9 specifically, that sales were half of what they were, 10 and -- 11 Q. Where were you both at? 12 A. He was in Miami. I believe I was, I was in 13 West Palm Beach. 14 And I recall the conversation that, that the 15 company was at 72 million versus 143 million, and 16 explained to him where they were versus their estimates 17 on the street. And I don't remember specifically the 18 conversation, but I do recall letting him know that I 19 wasn't 100 percent sure if all parties involved in the 20 transaction were informed of that information. 21 Q. What did Mr. Pruitt say to you? 22 A. He told me that he was going to talk to 23 Mr. Harlow and discuss the issue. 24 Q. And did you tell Mr. Pruitt who you weren't 25 certain -- let me rephrase that.

Page 41 1 You indicated, if I understood you correctly, 2 Mr. Bornstein, that you raised with Mr. Pruitt an issue 3 concerning whether everyone involved in the debenture 4 offering was aware of the difference between Sunbeam's 5 sales in the first two months of '98 and the first two 6 months of '97, correct? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. Was there somebody specific you had in mind? 9 A. I wasn't 100 percent sure if Morgan Stanley 10 and Morgan Stanley's counsel, as well as any of the 11 other people working on the transaction other than the 12 people at Sunbeam, knew where the company sales were at 13 that point in time. 14 Q. Did you want to make certain that Morgan 15 Stanley was advised of that information? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. Is that what you told Mr. Pruitt? 18 A. I didn't tell him that specifically, no. 19 (Thereupon, a cellphone rang.) 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: Can we go off the record. 21 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off the 22 video record. The time on the monitor, 10:05 a.m. 23 (Discussion held off the record.) 24 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video 25 record. The time on the monitor, 10:05 a.m.	Page 43 1 Q. Have you seen this letter before? 2 A. I don't remember the specific one, but I've 3 seen the form letter before. 4 Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley had 5 written to Arthur Andersen to formally request Arthur 6 Andersen provide it with a comfort letter? 7 A. Yes, I was. 8 Q. In connection with the Sunbeam debenture 9 offering? 10 A. Yes. I believe we requested that this form 11 letter be provided to Arthur Andersen. 12 Q. I see. So it was Andersen's request that 13 Morgan Stanley provide it with a written request for a 14 comfort letter? 15 A. Yes, because the issue was that this was a 16 144 offering and not in accordance with the, 17 specifically what -- similar to like an IPO or a 33 Act 18 filing, I believe a 144 offering was a 34 Act filing, 19 which is a requirement of Andersen to make sure that 20 the underwriter would sign off on a letter requesting 21 that they were doing the same amount of work that would 22 have been required in the 33 Act filing. 23 Q. That's what Morgan Stanley represented to 24 Andersen in connection with this bond offering? 25 A. Yes.
Page 42 1 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 2 Q. Mr. Bornstein, did you specifically tell 3 Mr. Pruitt you weren't certain if Morgan Stanley knew 4 these facts? 5 A. No, I didn't specifically say that. 6 Q. Okay. What did Mr. Pruitt say to you when 7 you raised an issue with respect to whether everyone 8 was on notice of this drop in Sunbeam's sales? 9 A. He told me that if everyone wasn't aware, 10 that we wouldn't issue a comfort letter. 11 Q. And did Mr. Pruitt give you any instruction? 12 A. No. 13 Q. Did Mr. Pruitt tell you he intended to take 14 some action? 15 A. He told me he was going to talk to 16 Mr. Harlow. 17 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm going to show you what we 18 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 12. It's a 19 two-page document on Morgan Stanley stationery bearing 20 Bates number AA31057 through 058, and it's a letter 21 dated March 11, 1998, from John D. Tyree of Morgan 22 Stanley to Arthur Andersen; attention, Phil Harlow. 23 Would you take a moment to take a look at CPH 24 Exhibit Number 12 for me, Mr. Bornstein. 25 A. Okay.	Page 44 1 Q. Did Andersen wait to receive this letter 2 before beginning work on the comfort letter? 3 A. No, I don't believe so. 4 MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Bornstein, I'm going to 5 show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit 6 Number 120. It's a three-page document on Sunbeam 7 stationery dated March 16, 1998, bearing Bates 8 number AA31053 through 055. 9 (CPH Exhibit No. 120 was marked for 10 identification.) 11 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 12 Q. If you would take a moment, sir, I'd like you 13 to review this document, and my first question is 14 whether you can identify it for me. 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. Can you tell me what it is? 17 A. It's a management representation letter from 18 Sunbeam to Arthur Andersen utilized to issue our 19 comfort letter. 20 Q. This is the comfort letter that you've been 21 referring to that Morgan Stanley requested? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. In connection with the debenture offering, 24 correct? 25 What's the purpose of this letter?

1 A. When you, any time you're, basically you're 2 bringing -- let me back up.
 3 The purpose of this letter again is to issue
 4 a comfort letter. And basically what you're doing is
 5 enough, the same amount of work sufficient that if you
 6 were going to issue a consent to update your opinion on 7 the financial statements that were whatever the 8 previous period was.
 9 So it's mainly analytical work and work done
 10 sufficient to issue a comfort letter.
 11 Q. Does this document contain information
 12 relating to Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 13 1998?
 14 A. Yes, it does.
 15 Q. Where do you see that?
 16 A. On paragraph 9C.
 17 Q. Would you read that into the record, please?
 18 A. "Net sales from December 29, 1997, through 19 March 1, 1998, were 72 million, 72,018,000, as compared 20 to 143,499,000 for the corresponding period of the 21 preceding year."
 22 Q. That's the information that we've been 23 talking about that showed that Sunbeam's sales for the 24 first two months of 1998 were approximately half of 25 what they had been in the prior year period, correct?

Page 46

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And this letter is signed by who, sir?
 3 A. Signed by Albert Dunlap, Russell Kersh, David
 4 Fanin and Bob Gluck, who were all senior executives of
 5 Sunbeam.
 6 Q. Mr. Dunlap's position at this time was what?
 7 A. States here chairman and chief executive
 8 officer.
 9 Q. Of Sunbeam?
 10 A. Of Sunbeam, yes.
 11 Q. Mr. Kersh was what?
 12 A. Executive vice-president of finance and 13 administration.
 14 Mr. Fanin was executive vice-president,
 15 general counsel.
 16 Mr. Gluck was vice-president and chief
 17 accounting officer.
 18 Q. Four very senior Sunbeam executives, correct?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Does this letter offer an explanation for the 21 primary reason for the substantial decline in Sunbeam's
 22 sales for the first two months of '98 compared to the
 23 first two months of '97?
 24 MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
 25 THE WITNESS: In the preceding paragraph, 9B,

Page 47

1 I believe it does.
 2
 3 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 4 Q. What does it say? Would you read that into
 5 the record, sir?
 6 A. "For the period from December 29th, 1997,
 7 through March 16, 1998, consolidated net sales
 8 decreased as compared to the corresponding period of 9 the preceding year primarily to the company's Early Buy
 10 program for outdoor grills which accelerated outdoor 11 grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997.
 12 Additionally, decreased consolidated net sales during 13 the period as compared to the corresponding period of 14 the preceding year results, in part, from a
 15 nonrecurring sale in January of 1997 of discontinued
 16 stock keeping units and excess and obsolete inventory
 17 in connection with the company's November 1996
 18 restructuring. Net income decreased primarily due to 19 the aforementioned sales decrease and a first quarter
 20 compensation charge from restricted stock issued in 21 connection with new employment agreements for key
 22 officers."
 23 Q. And this is a statement being made to Arthur
 24 Andersen by the senior management of Sunbeam, correct?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. What does it mean to be accelerating outdoor
 2 grill sales into the fourth quarter of 1997, sir?
 3 A. It talks -- what it means is just what it
 4 says, accelerating sales of grills to the fourth
 5 quarter of the previous year.
 6 Q. How does that affect first quarter sales?
 7 MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
 8 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 9 Q. I'm just trying to understand what the 10 reference to accelerating sales means so that the jury
 11 can understand.
 12 A. Right. The Early Buy program and the bill
 13 and hold program that they had in effect at the end of 14 1997, you know, based on the facts as of the end of 15 February, showed that it did have an impact on moving 16 some of the sales that might have previously been 17 recorded in the fourth quarter -- in the first quarter,
 18 excuse me, of the corresponding year might have been 19 accelerated into the previous quarter.
 20 Q. So sales that otherwise would have normally
 21 taken place in the first quarter of 1998 had in fact
 22 already occurred in the fourth quarter of 1997?
 23 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
 24 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 25

Page 49

1 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 2 Q. That's identified here as the primary reason
 3 for the drop in Sunbeam's sales in the first two months
 4 of 1998, correct?
 5 A. That's what it states, yes.
 6 THE WITNESS: Could we take like a
 7 five-minute break for the restroom?
 8 MR. MARKOWSKI: Sure.
 9 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video
 10 record. The time on the monitor is 10:17 p.m.
 11 (Thereupon, a recess was taken.)
 12 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video
 13 record. The time on the monitor is 10:29 a.m.
 14 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 15 Q. Mr. Bornstein, as you just testified, Albert
 16 Dunlap was the chief executive officer of Sunbeam in 17 the first quarter of 1998, correct?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap at that point
 20 had been the chief executive of Sunbeam for something
 21 less than two years?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. Are you aware of Mr. Dunlap's reputation at 24 that time as a turnaround specialist?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 50

1 Q. What do you know about that? Let me go back
 2 to 1998. Back in the first quarter of 1998, what was
 3 your understanding of Mr. Dunlap's reputation for 4 turnarounds?
 5 A. That he had a reputation for cutting costs,
 6 turning around companies and selling them.
 7 Q. And doing that all in very short order?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. And were you aware of any public statements
 10 that Mr. Dunlap had made about his success in turning
 11 Sunbeam around during his tenure as Sunbeam's chief
 12 executive officer? Focusing again on what your 13 knowledge was in the first quarter of 1998.
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. What was your understanding of what
 16 Mr. Dunlap had said publicly on that subject?
 17 A. That it was turned around and headed for 18 brighter and greater pastures.
 19 Q. Mr. Dunlap was projecting significant growth
 20 in sales and profits for 1998 for Sunbeam?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. Compared to its 1997 performance?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. Did you have any personal doubts about that
 25 in the first quarter of 1998?

Page 51

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And what were those doubts based upon?
 3 A. The financial performance really through the 4 first two months of the, of '98, and as well as me, as 5 well as my observation and review of at least the 6 operations that I had seen, which included several of 7 the domestic facilities as well as the Mexico City
 8 facility.
 9 Q. First quarter of 1998, did you consider
 10 yourself to be familiar with Sunbeam's financial 11 results and performance?
 12 A. For what period of time?
 13 Q. For the prior year.
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And for the first two months of 1998?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. And did you consider yourself generally
 18 familiar with Sunbeam's management?
 19 A. Some of management, yes, from a corporate
 20 standpoint.
 21 Q. And you considered yourself to be familiar
 22 with Sunbeam's facilities?
 23 A. As I mentioned, domestically and in Mexico,
 24 part of Mexico anyway.
 25 Q. Did you think Mr. Dunlap was overstating his

Page 52

1 accomplishments at Sunbeam?
 2 A. I thought there was a possibility that he
 3 was, yes.
 4 Q. And that was your belief in the first quarter
 5 of 1998, correct?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. Mr. Bornstein, let me show you what we've
 8 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 17. It's a
 9 document on Arthur Andersen stationery bearing Bates
 10 numbers MS375 through 381.
 11 If you could take a moment, my first question
 12 is going to be whether you can identify that document
 13 for me.
 14 A. Yeah, this is a copy of a, a copy of the 15 comfort letter.
 16 Q. And it's a letter dated March 19, 1998,
 17 correct?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. And it's from Arthur Andersen to Morgan
 20 Stanley & Company, Inc.?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. And it's signed Arthur Andersen LLP, correct?
 23 A. Yes. I believe it's my handwriting.
 24 Q. You believe you signed the name Arthur
 25 Andersen LLP to the letter?

Page 53

1 A. This was signed about five o'clock in the 2 morning on the 19th, I believe, the night of the 3 pricing of the bonds, the following subsequent a.m.
 4 Q. So that process I think from prior testimony
 5 started on the 19th, if it was 5:00 a.m., it would have
 6 been 5:00 a.m. on the 20th?
 7 A. 20th, I believe.
 8 Q. Even though the letter is dated the 19th,
 9 correct?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. Were you authorized to sign this letter on 12 behalf of Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, I misspoke.
 13 Were you authorized to sign this letter on
 14 behalf of Arthur Andersen?
 15 A. Yes, I was.
 16 Q. And who provided you with that authorization?
 17 A. Phil Harlow.
 18 Q. And Mr. Harlow was the engagement partner, as 19 you've previously testified, correct?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And the letter is addressed to Morgan
 22 Stanley.
 23 Do you know if the letter was delivered to
 24 Morgan Stanley?
 25 A. Yes, it was.

Page 54

1 Q. When did that occur? I'm talking about this
 2 version of it signed by you.
 3 A. Four or five o'clock in the morning on the
 4 20th.
 5 Q. And how do you know it was delivered to 6 Morgan Stanley at that time?
 7 A. I handed it to them.
 8 Q. Who did you hand it to?
 9 A. Probably Bob Lurie. Bob Lurie was an
 10 attorney from Davis Polk, I believe.
 11 Q. I believe Mr. Lurie's name may be James.
 12 A. Maybe. Robert, wasn't it? No?
 13 Q. Maybe I'm mistaken, but Mr. Lurie from Davis
 14 Polk?
 15 A. It's been six years, so yeah.
 16 Q. And he was acting at that time as counsel for
 17 Morgan Stanley?
 18 A. I believe so, yes.
 19 Q. Does the March 19 comfort letter contain 20 information relating to Sunbeam's sales results for the 21 first two months of 1998?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And can you tell me where that appears?
 24 A. Six, paragraph 6C.
 25 Q. Does this contain the identical language that

Page 55

1 you've read into the record from the March 16 letter
 2 from Sunbeam management to Arthur Andersen?
 3 A. It's similar. It's not identical.
 4 Q. CPH Exhibit Number 120. Are the figures
 5 identical?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. And the, just so the record is clear,
 8 Mr. Bornstein, would you read paragraph 6C into the 9 record.
 10 A. Says, "Although the company has not provided
 11 us with any financial statements as of any date or for 12 any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, management
 13 has provided net sales from the December 29, 1997,
 14 through March 1st, 1998, which was 72,018,000 as 15 compared to 143,499,000 for the corresponding period of 16 the preceding year."
 17 Q. And that again reflects a decline of about 18 50 percent in sales for the first two months of 1998
 19 from the first two months of 1997, correct, sir?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And does this letter also repeat the 22 explanations management provided to Arthur Andersen for 23 that decline?
 24 A. Yes, the previous paragraph, 6B.
 25 Q. And what is the primary reason that

Page 56

1 management provided again?
 2 A. I believe this is the exact wording.
 3 "Primarily due to the company's new Early Buy program
 4 for outdoor grills, which accelerated outdoor grills
 5 sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997."
 6 Q. Sir, you indicated that you personally handed
 7 this to Morgan Stanley's counsel --
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. -- in the early morning hours of March 20th,
 10 correct?
 11 A. Yes, I believe so, yes.
 12 Q. Do you know if this letter with these facts
 13 and figures, the ones that you've just testified about,
 14 had been provided to Morgan Stanley at any earlier
 15 point, either that evening or otherwise?
 16 MR. MOSCATO: You mean a prior draft?
 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: Correct.
 18 THE WITNESS: I believe that it was, but I
 19 can't be certain.
 20 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 21 Q. Had you discussed these numbers with anyone
 22 from Morgan Stanley earlier in the evening on 23 March 19th?
 24 A. Yes, I had.
 25 Q. Who did you discuss them with?

Page 57

1 A. I think his name was John Tyree, specifically
 2 from Morgan Stanley. I don't remember anyone else from 3 Morgan Stanley being there.
 4 Q. I'm going to take you back in time a little
 5 bit from that moment, Mr. Bornstein.
 6 You indicated that you had had a conversation
 7 two or three days earlier, as I understand it, with 8 Phil Pruitt relating to these facts, correct?
 9 A. Bill Pruitt.
 10 Q. I'm sorry, Bill Pruitt, the concurring
 11 partner on the Sunbeam audit engagement.
 12 A. I believe the 17th, two days earlier.
 13 Q. And Mr. Pruitt advised you that he was going 14 to speak with Mr. Harlow concerning making sure that 15 everyone involved in the transactions that were 16 underway had notice of these facts, correct?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. What's the next thing you recall happening
 19 bearing on this subject?
 20 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
 21 THE WITNESS: Personally, I remember that on 22 the, I think the 19th -- let me think about this,
 23 17th, 18th, 19th.
 24 I believe the 19th I recall was the next time
 25 I got any information on the subject, when I was

Page 58

1 in a hotel room in New York waiting to go to the
 2 printer.
 3 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 4 Q. Do you recall what hotel you were in?
 5 A. I think it was the Helmsley Palace Hotel.
 6 Q. You said you were getting ready to go to the 7 printer. What printer?
 8 A. I think it was Global Financial Press is 9 where we were doing the work. And I was with an
 10 associate of mine, Mark Brockelman.
 11 Q. What was going to be happening at the 12 printer?
 13 A. We were going to be finalizing the bond
 14 offering. I believe the bonds were being priced. The 15 quantity of the bonds was, what was being sold was 16 going to be finally determined, the interest rate.
 17 And we were going to basically change
 18 whatever numbers needed to be changed in the document
 19 as a result of the pricing, as well as issue a final
 20 comfort letter.
 21 Q. The document that was being finalized was 22 what?
 23 A. The 144 offering memorandum.
 24 Q. That's the document that would be provided to 25 potential purchasers of the bonds?

Page 59

1 A. Yes. So that's when I found out about it. I
 2 was, saw it on TV.
 3 Q. You were there with Mr. Brockelman, you
 4 indicated?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. Mr. Brockelman, what was -- he was employed
 7 by Arthur Andersen?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. And his reason for being there with you was 10 what?
 11 A. To assist me in the process, to have an extra
 12 set of eyes looking at numbers when they changed.
 13 Q. And what happened while you were at the 14 hotel?
 15 A. We were watching or I was watching CNBC and 16 saw the crawler on the bottom that Sunbeam had released
 17 an early warning release that they weren't going to 18 make the number. I forget what the numbers were, but 19 they were still going to exceed, I think it was first
 20 quarter of the prior year. I think that was the, I
 21 think that's what it was. I'd have to look at the 22 press release again.
 23 And then I, I think I saw a notation that the 24 stock went down significantly.
 25 Q. So you recall that there was some notice on

Page 60

1 the CNBC broadcast concerning an announcement by
 2 Sunbeam concerning its first quarter performance?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. And when you saw that, what was your
 5 reaction?
 6 A. My reaction was to learn more about what the 7 release was.
 8 Q. What did you do?
 9 A. I believe I called Mr. Harlow or I called 10 someone back, back at Arthur Andersen. Possibly could 11 have been Bob Gluck, I don't remember, but I wanted to 12 physically get a copy of the press release.
 13 Q. Did you speak with someone? Did you succeed
 14 in reaching someone to talk to them about the contents
 15 of the press release?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. You can't remember at the moment whether that 18 was Mr. Harlow or Mr. Gluck?
 19 A. It might have been Dennis Pastrana. I don't 20 remember who, to be honest with you, I spoke with.
 21 Q. But you spoke with someone who had the press
 22 release itself?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. Let me show you what's been previously marked
 25 as CPH Exhibit Number 14, Mr. Bornstein. It's a

Page 61

1 two-page document that bears Bates number Morgan
 2 Stanley confidential 16944 through 945. And it's
 3 headed "For Immediate Release, Sunbeam states that
 4 first quarter revenues may be lower than street
 5 estimates."
 6 I'd like you to take a moment to take a look
 7 at this document for me, sir.
 8 A. Okay.
 9 Q. Can you tell me what this is?
 10 A. This appears to be the press release that I
 11 was referring to earlier.
 12 Q. And do you recall while you were at the hotel
 13 you succeeded in reaching someone who read to you the 14 contents of this document?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. Would you read the first sentence of this
 17 press release into the record for me, sir.
 18 A. "Sunbeam Corporation said today that it's 19 possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 20 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street
 21 analysts' estimates of 285 million to 295 million, but 22 net sales are expected to exceed 1997's first quarter
 23 net sales of 253.4 million."
 24 Do you want me to keep going?
 25 Q. Well, does this document explain the reason

Page 62

1 why Sunbeam thought that sales might be lower than Wall
 2 Street analysts' estimates of 285 to 295 million for
 3 the quarter?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. What does it say on that subject?
 6 A. It says, "The shortfall from analysts'
 7 estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory
 8 management and order patterns at certain of the 9 company's major retail customers. The company further
 10 stated"-- well, actually that's a different sentence,
 11 but that's the sentence they put in there.
 12 Q. It doesn't mention the Early Buy program,
 13 does it?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. And it was the Early Buy program that 16 management's letter to Sunbeam identified as the 17 primary reason for sales shortfall in the first quarter
 18 of 1998, correct?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Did Andersen, to your knowledge, sir, have 21 any involvement in the preparation of the Sunbeam
 22 March 19 press release?
 23 A. Not that I'm aware of, no.
 24 Q. Did you personally have any involvement?
 25 A. No.

Page 63

1 Q. Did you advise Sunbeam in any way what the
 2 March 19 press release should say?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Did you see it before it was issued?
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. Did anyone from Sunbeam or anyone from any 7 other entity read to you or provide you any information
 8 concerning the contents of the March 19 press release
 9 before it was issued?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Mr. Bornstein, is this the kind of press
 12 release that you would have expected Sunbeam management
 13 to review with Andersen before it was released
 14 publicly?
 15 MR. MOSCATO: I object.
 16 MR. CLARE: I join in the objection.
 17 THE WITNESS: In my opinion, yes.
 18 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 19 Q. And what is that based on?
 20 A. Just previous, previous experience and kind 21 of joint, joint coordination and understanding of the 22 relationship between the auditor and the client.
 23 Q. On prior occasions had Sunbeam previously
 24 shown Andersen drafts of press releases relating to 25 financial information before they were publicly

Page 64

1 disclosed?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Do you know why that was not done in this
 4 case?
 5 A. No, I do not.
 6 Q. Mr. Bornstein, does the press release, the 7 March 19 press release, CPH Exhibit Number 14, set
 8 forth the January and February sales results numbers
 9 that are contained in management's representation
 10 letter to Andersen?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Does the press release state that Sunbeam's
 13 January and February sales were one half of 1997 sales
 14 for the same time period?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. Does it state in any way that Sunbeam's sales
 17 for the first two months of 1998 were below to any 18 extent Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 19 1997?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. Does the press release state that Sunbeam had 22 in fact determined that it could not accomplish Wall
 23 Street analysts' estimates of 285 million to 24 295 million in sales for the quarter?
 25 A. They said it's possible.

Page 65

1 Q. They don't say it's not going to happen, do
2 they?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Does the press release say anything about not
5 meeting Wall Street's expectations for earnings for the
6 first quarter of 1998?
7 A. No, it does not.
8 Q. Does the press release say anything about
9 Sunbeam's earnings for the first two months of 1998
10 being below earnings for the first two months of 1997?
11 A. No.
12 Q. Given what you knew at the time, sir, still 13 focusing on the hotel room, the time you were at the 14 hotel room, what was your reaction to what was read to 15 you concerning the contents of Sunbeam's March 19 press
16 release?
17 A. Thought it was very poorly written and 18 described and thought that it was still very 19 aggressive.
20 Q. When you say it was very aggressive, what in 21 particular are you focusing on, sir?
22 A. Exceeding 1997 first quarter sales of
23 253.4 million.
24 Q. When you say you think that's aggressive or 25 at the time you thought that was aggressive, what do

Page 66

1 you mean?
2 A. Based on, again, the sales where they were 3 for the first two months at 72 million, they needed to 4 sell 100 and whatever it is, 180 million to meet that 5 number.
6 Q. To meet the minimum $253 million number?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. And by aggressive, you mean that it would be
9 difficult to achieve?
10 A. Less likely than not. How's that?
11 Q. You thought it was not probable that Sunbeam
12 could achieve 253 million in sales for the first
13 quarter of 1998?
14 MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
15 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
16 THE WITNESS: I thought it was aggressive.
17 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
18 Q. Were you skeptical?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. And the reason why you were skeptical was 21 because Sunbeam had so far to go? Is that basically
22 it?
23 A. That, and based on my review of the 24 facilities and the distribution capabilities of the 25 company.

Page 67

1 Q. And your knowledge generally of Sunbeam's
2 operations?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. If you were skeptical of Sunbeam's ability to 5 achieve $253 million in sales, Mr. Dunlap -- excuse me,
6 Mr. Bornstein. Let me start over with that again.
7 A. I wish I had his money.
8 Q. No offense.
9 MR. MOSCATO: Not his personality.
10 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
11 Q. No offense intended, sir.
12 A. No problem.
13 Q. If you were skeptical, Mr. Bornstein, of 14 Sunbeam's ability to accomplish $253 million in net
15 sales for the first quarter of 1998, what was your view
16 of the company's likelihood of accomplishing 285 to 17 $295 million in net sales for the quarter?
18 A. Never considered it. It was, I didn't think 19 the 253 was likely, so I never really even, never 20 really went to the higher number, to be honest with
21 you.
22 Q. Did you think Sunbeam had any chance of 23 achieving 285 to 295 million in sales?
24 MR. MOSCATO: Now I object. He just answered
25 the question.

Page 68

1 THE WITNESS: Never gave it any thought.
2 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
3 Q. I assume you thought it was less likely than 4 accomplishing 253, right?
5 A. Logic would say that.
6 Q. Even more difficult, even more aggressive?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. After the contents of the press release was 9 read to you, Mr. Bornstein, what happened next?
10 A. We went to the printer's. Mark Brockelman
11 and I took a taxi to the printer's.
12 Q. Do you remember what time of the day that
13 was?
14 A. I believe it was between five and 6:00 p.m.
15 Q. And the printer is Global Financial Press?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. Who else was there that evening?
18 A. Myself and Mr. Brockelman, John Tyree from 19 Morgan Stanley, Mr. Lurie from Davis Polk. There were 20 two, I think two attorneys from Scadden Arps.
21 Q. Do you remember their names?
22 A. One guy was foreign, I think his name was 23 Adrien Dietz. I don't remember where he was from.
24 Another guy, I think Todd Freed maybe, and I believe
25 Davis Polk had one or two other people there.

Page 69

1 Q. Do you recall if there was more than one
2 person for Morgan Stanley?
3 A. No, I don't recall.
4 Q. The person you recall from Morgan Stanley
5 being there is John Tyree?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. Was anyone there from Sunbeam?
8 A. No.
9 Q. What happened when you arrived at the 10 printer?
11 A. I think we, we met in a conference room. I
12 don't remember specifically the, what first happened.
13 I know we were told about the success of the offering
14 and that they, it was oversubscribed and that they 15 increased the size to -- I think we were informed about 16 that earlier, but that they, even the fact of the 17 warning release, that everything was still a go.
18 And again, it was oversubscribed and there
19 was no issues.
20 Q. Do you remember how much the offering was 21 originally expected to raise?
22 A. I think the net was about 500 million, I
23 think.
24 Q. And you were told on the 19th when you got to 25 the printer that the marketing activity had been very

Page 70

1 successful; is that correct?
2 A. Yes.
3 Q. That's manage Morgan Stanley's effort to 4 market the debentures on behalf of Sunbeam?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. So you were being told that Morgan Stanley
7 has had great success in marketing Sunbeam's debentures
8 to potential investors, correct?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. So successful that the debenture offering is 11 being substantially increased in size, correct?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. I'm sorry, did you say what the increased
14 amount was?
15 A. I think it was 750 million net.
16 Q. So people are feeling pretty good about the 17 success of the marketing activity, I take it, correct?
18 MR. CLARE: Object to the form and
19 foundation.
20 THE WITNESS: Yeah, they were very excited
21 and pleased with the marketing effort.
22 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
23 Q. That was being expressed to you at the 24 meeting?
25 A. Yes.

Page 71

1 Q. Do you recall who was expressing that to you?
2 A. It was Tyree and Bob Lurie. Bob? Robert?
3 James? Whatever, Mr. Lurie.
4 Q. Let's call him Mr. Lurie today.
5 A. I don't remember his first name.
6 Q. Did the subject at some point of the March 19
7 press release come up?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. How did that happen?
10 A. I asked a couple of questions about, you
11 know, the reaction of the press release when marketing
12 the bonds and doing the final allocation and asked
13 about the press release.
14 And they went into the story of kind of how 15 the press release came to be and what time of the night
16 it was and how difficult it was between Scadden Arps
17 and Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam to actually disclose
18 this information and agree on the wording.
19 Q. Can you paint the picture for me a little bit
20 about the setting? You're in a conference room?
21 A. Yeah, it's a very very large, large
22 conference room, probably similar at the time one we're 23 in now at the printer there, multiple locations of 24 different size conference rooms, hallways. There was 25 also rooms for where there is pool and TV and things

Page 72

1 like that, pool table.
2 So this would be kind of to the side, a side
3 conversation with myself and Mr. Lurie and Mr. Tyree.
4 And then everybody else would be sitting around the 5 conference room table.
6 Q. When you asked Mr. the March 19 press
7 release, with whom were you speaking?
8 A. Mr. Tyree and Mr. Lurie.
9 Q. And Mr. Lurie is Mr. Tyree's, Morgan
10 Stanley's attorney?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. And what were you told?
13 A. That it was a very difficult night. It
14 lasted to the morning. And that Mr. Dunlap was 15 incensed and irate and crazed, I guess, for lack of 16 better terminology, and made the comment that he was 17 going to lose $100 million because of this, I think was 18 what I recall.
19 Q. So they told you the background leading up to 20 the issuance of the press release, correct?
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. Did you ask any other questions concerning
23 the press release?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Was there any discussion about putting the

Page 73

1 information from the press release in any way into the
 2 offering memorandum that you were in the process of 3 finalizing?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. How did that subject come up?
 6 A. I asked the question of what they intended on 7 putting into the document to disclose where the company
 8 was with their sales forecast and what their revised
 9 estimates were going to be.
 10 Q. So you asked a general question, what the 11 company intended to disclose relating to its 12 performance in the first part of 1998, correct?
 13 A. It wasn't really what the company was going 14 to disclose. I mean I understand -- no one from the 15 company was present, but what the consensus of the 16 group was.
 17 Q. What would be disclosed in the offering
 18 memorandum?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. So you asked a general question, what is the 21 offering memorandum going to say about Sunbeam's
 22 performance so far in the first quarter of 1998?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. And who did you ask that question of?
 25 A. I think it was a general question to Tyree,

Page 74

1 to the Scadden Arps folks, because I believe they -- I
 2 don't even remember who the hell they were
 3 representing. They were representing Sunbeam, right?
 4 MR. MOSCATO: Scadden, yes.
 5 THE WITNESS: And Mr. Tyree.
 6 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 7 Q. And what was the response?
 8 A. That they were going to put the press release
 9 in verbatim into the document.
 10 Q. Who said those words to you?
 11 A. I think it was Mr. Lurie.
 12 Q. Did anyone disagree with that when Mr. Lurie
 13 made that statement?
 14 A. I did.
 15 Q. Did anyone else other than you disagree?
 16 A. No, I don't recall.
 17 Q. How far into the evening is this conversation
 18 taking place?
 19 A. Early.
 20 Q. What did you say to Mr. Lurie in response to 21 Mr. Lurie's statement to you that the intention was to 22 include the contents of the press release as the 23 disclosure relating to Sunbeam's performance to that 24 point in the first quarter of '98?
 25 A. I didn't think it was -- I told him I didn't

Page 75

1 think it was appropriate to put in there.
 2 Q. Who was present when you made that statement
 3 to Mr. Lurie?
 4 A. I made the statement to whoever was in the 5 room at the time.
 6 Q. Was Mr. Tyree there?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. What did you say, do you remember?
 9 A. I said I don't think it's appropriate to put 10 this in the, in the 2 billion-dollar bond offering,
 11 that it was an extremely forward-looking statement, it
 12 was aggressive, and that I didn't think it was a good
 13 idea.
 14 Q. Do you remember anything else you said at 15 that point?
 16 A. That I was going to discuss this with Sunbeam
 17 as well as Mr. Harlow.
 18 Q. What was the reaction from the others
 19 present, Mr. Tyree, Mr. Lurie, the Scadden lawyers?
 20 A. At that point I don't know. I left the room.
 21 Q. Did anyone say to you at that point that your 22 views didn't change their thinking?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Okay. So the next thing that happened is you
 25 left the room?

Page 76

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And you left the room for what purpose, sir?
 3 A. To call Mr. Harlow to discuss the issue of 4 what was going to go into the offering memorandum and
 5 to get in touch with Sunbeam, Mr. Gluck.
 6 Q. When you said to discuss with him what was 7 going to go into the offering memorandum, were you
 8 focusing on what was going to be said in the offering
 9 memorandum relating to Sunbeam's first quarter '98
 10 performance?
 11 A. Yes, the sales numbers.
 12 Q. Did you succeed in reaching Mr. Harlow?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. Where was he located, do you know?
 15 A. I believe he was at his house.
 16 Q. In Florida?
 17 A. In Florida.
 18 Q. And what did you tell Mr. Harlow when you got 19 him on the phone?
 20 A. Similarly, that they wanted to put the press
 21 release into the document and that I didn't think it
 22 was a good idea, given the aggressiveness and the 23 forward-looking statement that was being made.
 24 Q. Do you recall what Mr. Harlow said to you?
 25 A. He agreed with me, and we got Mr. Gluck on

Page 77

1 the phone.
2 Q. How did you get Mr. Gluck on the phone?
3 A. I don't recall. I don't believe I -- I'm not
4 sure if I had the capability or Phil dialed him in, but 5 we had a three-way conversation.
6 Q. So Mr. Gluck, Mr. Harlow and you are all on 7 the telephone together at that point?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. Was anyone else on the phone?
10 A. No.
11 Q. Was anyone else present in the room with you
12 when you had this conversation that you can recall?
13 A. No. I was in the pool room.
14 Q. And as far as you can recall now, you were by 15 yourself?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. Tell me what you can recall of the 18 conversation that you had with Mr. Gluck and Mr. Harlow
19 at that point.
20 A. Just went through the press release, it was 21 aggressive and wasn't clear. And it was a very large
22 forward-looking statement and that it wasn't
23 appropriate in a bond offering.
24 And the consensus was at the time that we all
25 agreed; however, that because I don't think Mr. Gluck

Page 78

1 was involved in the press release, he deferred to get
2 in touch with Mr. Fanin, and I think her name was Janet
3 Kelly.
4 Q. So Mr. Gluck -- is it your testimony that 5 Mr. Gluck agreed with you and Mr. Harlow that it would
6 be inappropriate to include the contents of the press
7 release as the statement concerning where Sunbeam was 8 at so far in the first quarter of '98?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. Did Mr. Gluck tell you whether he had been 11 involved in preparing a press release?
12 A. I recall he said he was not intimately
13 involved. I don't know if he was at all. I think he 14 knew about it, but he wasn't really involved.
15 Q. Did Mr. Gluck say anything to you about his 16 views of the press release by itself? Taking it out of 17 the context of whether it's going to go into the 18 offering memorandum, did he offer any views concerning
19 the statements made in the press release?
20 A. Generally I recall that he didn't like the 21 way that it was written. I don't remember specifically
22 on the numbers or anything like that.
23 Q. You don't have a recollection of what he 24 said, but you remember he didn't like the contents of 25 the press release?

Page 79

1 A. Yes.
2 Q. So did that conclude your conversation with
3 Mr. Gluck at that point?
4 A. Yes. Mr. Gluck and Mr. Harlow continued the 5 conversation. I got off the phone to go back to the 6 room to relay that, that my partner as well as 7 Mr. Gluck agreed with me, and that they were going to 8 continue the conversation and get in touch with
9 Mr. Fanin.
10 Q. Who did you make that statement to?
11 A. When I walked back in the room, to the,
12 again, to whoever was in the room.
13 Q. Do you remember if Mr. Tyree was there?
14 A. Yes, he was.
15 Q. What happened at that point that you recall?
16 A. My colleague, Mr. Brockelman, asked me to 17 leave the room with him. And he informed me that the 18 conversation around the table was, was very derogatory
19 towards me and that a lot of bad language was being
20 used about me, who the fuck do I think I am and why
21 didn't he tell me about this prior? And basically that 22 I was, you know, cocky, and so on and so forth.
23 Q. You said it was bad language being used about 24 you, derogatory language.
25 Did Mr. Brockelman tell you what was being

Page 80

1 said? Did he use any of the words?
2 A. Basically "Who the fuck does this guy think
3 he is," basically is what I recall.
4 Q. What happened after you had this side
5 conversation with Mr. Brockelman?
6 A. I remember walking back into the conference
7 room and asking Mr. Lurie and Mr. Tyree to have a side
8 conversation in the conference room but over to the 9 side, and asking Mr. Tyree if he had anything to say to 10 me.
11 I said, you know, "My colleague says that you
12 have some words to say about me, and if you have 13 something to say, say it to my face."
14 And he basically asked me, he says, "Are 15 these guys fucking with me," was the exact quote. "Is 16 Sunbeam fucking with us? Is Sunbeam fucking with me?
17 And are these guys, you know, going to make their
18 numbers?"
19 And, you know, I was obviously very upset and 20 pissed off about the comments and the tone. And, you
21 know, obviously we were in disagreement with the press
22 release.
23 Q. I'm sorry, whose comments and tone are you
24 referring to?
25 A. Mr. Tyree specifically.

Page 81 1 And I basically said to Mr. Tyree that, you 2 know, "I'm a conservative accountant, that, you know, I 3 can't specifically answer if they're fucking with you. 4 I haven't seen any of the sales projections that you've 5 seen or whatever it is that they have given you, that 6 I've done basic math, that they have done a million 7 dollars in sales a day for the first 72 days and now 8 they have to do" -- whatever it was, 12 to $15 million 9 in sales for the next-- it was, I don't remember the 10 date, but it was, you know, let's say 17 days, whatever 11 the numbers were, and that I was very skeptical, that I 12 remember saying to him that I don't think this 13 company's turned around. 14 No one has ever seen an Al Dunlap company 15 ever turned around, and if it is turned around and he 16 has the numbers, he's going to make the numbers. And 17 I'm going to make sure that they make the numbers and 18 I'm going to send people to every shipping dock in the 19 country in the world that I have to, if I have to, to 20 make sure that they do make the numbers. 21 I said to him, "You better hope to God that 22 they do, because if not, you're all going to get sued." 23 And I left the room. 24 Q. Did anyone before you left the room say 25 anything in response to your comments to you?	Page 83 1 specifically if I was faxed or handed this by the folks 2 from Morgan Stanley after our conversation that I just 3 discussed with you. 4 Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked 5 as CPH Exhibit Number 16, sir. It's a one-page 6 document, bears Bates number Morgan Stanley 7 confidential 28858. 8 Is that the document that was handed to you 9 that night? 10 MR. MOSCATO: Well, can I just clarify one 11 thing? Are you asking the basic form of the 12 document? Does your question include all of the 13 writing on the document? 14 MR. MARKOWSKI: For now I'm including 15 everything right now. 16 MR. MOSCATO: So the question is do you 17 recall whether this document containing all the 18 writing on the document was handed to you? 19 THE WITNESS: The handwriting, I'm not sure. 20 I mean I've seen several renditions of the same 21 document with different handwriting on it. 22 What I've seen, what I recall is the actual 23 typed numbers and words as well as the writing on 24 the bottom. 25 MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me show you what we're
Page 82 1 A. No, not that I recall. 2 Q. Were your comments well received by 3 Mr. Tyree, as far as you could tell? 4 A. I left the room. He was, for lack of a 5 better word, stunned. 6 Q. Mr. Bornstein, did you tell Mr. Tyree that 7 night that you intended to have Andersen personnel 8 monitor Sunbeam's shipping docks at the end of the 9 first quarter of 1998? 10 A. Yes, I did. 11 Q. Did you explain to him why you intended to do 12 that? 13 A. To make sure that they had borders and the 14 product was built and shipped. 15 Q. Did anyone that night, Mr. Bornstein, provide 16 you with any documents concerning Sunbeam's sales plan 17 for the rest of the first quarter? 18 A. Yeah, I believe after that conversation, I 19 went back and made another phone call. And I believe, 20 as a result of Mr. Fanin, them calling Mr. Fanin and 21 discussing it, that a document or one-page spreadsheet 22 was provided to myself, Phil. I'm not sure who else 23 got it. I know that the folks from Morgan Stanley had 24 it. 25 And I believe I was faxed -- I don't recall	Page 84 1 going to mark for identification as CPH Exhibit 2 Number 121. It also is a one-page document, bears 3 Bates number LAB43. 4 MR. MOSCATO: There is no question pending. 5 MR. MARKOWSKI: We're going to change the 6 videotape right now. 7 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video 8 record on tape number one. We'll be back on tape 9 number two. The time on the monitor is 11:15 a.m. 10 (Discussion held off the record.) 11 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video 12 record. It is tape number two. The time on the 13 monitor, 11:15 a.m. 14 (CPH Exhibit No. 121 was marked for 15 identification.) 16 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 17 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I've handed you CPH Exhibit 18 Number 121. 19 Have you seen this document before? 20 A. 121, I don't specifically remember. Again, 21 I've seen the general, this general -- this is what I 22 got. I believe the actual copy I got, I attached to a 23 memorandum that I drafted sometime after the night at 24 the printer's. 25 Q. The typed portion of this, does this appear

1 to be the information that was provided to you at the
2 printer --
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. -- on the night of March 19th?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. When you saw this, did it give you comfort
7 with respect to Sunbeam's ability to accomplish Wall
8 Street's expectations for first quarter sales?
9 A. No, it did not.
10 Q. What conclusions did you reach after 11 reviewing this document that night?
12 A. That the numbers were even more aggressive
13 than I thought.
14 Q. And they were more aggressive than you had 15 thought for what reason, sir?
16 A. Because they had close to $100 million of 17 sales that haven't been ordered yet.
18 Q. Built into their sales plan for the balance
19 of the quarter?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. So Sunbeam was counting in its plan to get to 22 at least $253 million, by your count, approximately 23 $100 million in product sales that hadn't even been 24 ordered yet at that point, correct?
25 MR. MOSCATO: Well, you know, I object to the

Page 86

1 rounding, but you can answer.
2 THE WITNESS: I'm okay with the rounding,
3 sorry. 86 rounds up to 100 million to me.
4 Yeah, it was just numbers on the page to me.
5 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
6 Q. So this document didn't cause you looking at 7 it to conclude that Sunbeam's statements in the press
8 release about its expectations for the first quarter
9 were reasonable, correct?
10 A. No.
11 Q. What was your reaction, sir, to the manner in 12 which Mr. Tyree had treated you that night?
13 A. Can you repeat the question?
14 Q. What was your reaction, sir, to the manner in 15 which Mr. Tyree had treated you on the night of 16 March 19th when these issues came up?
17 A. I was, felt like I was being treated
18 disrespectfully, not being listened to.
19 Q. Did you think that Mr. Tyree was trying to 20 steamroll you in any way?
21 MR. CLARE: Object to the form and object to 22 foundation, calls for speculation, what Mr. Tyree
23 was trying to do.
24 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
25 Q. By that I mean, sir, do you think he was

Page 87

1 trying to get you to back off of the statements that
2 you had made?
3 MR. CLARE: Same objection.
4 THE WITNESS: I believe he was, yes.
5 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
6 Q. Did you?
7 A. No, I did not.
8 Q. What was the final decision that night, sir,
9 concerning what would be put in the offering memorandum
10 relating to Sunbeam's performance to that point in the
11 first quarter of 1998?
12 MR. MOSCATO: Number one, I object. I would 13 like some clarification when you answer as to 14 whose decision it was, who made the decision.
15 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
16 Q. Let me ask a little different, maybe more
17 pointed question, sir.
18 What was ultimately put in the offering
19 memorandum concerning Sunbeam's performance to that 20 date for the first quarter of 1998?
21 A. I believe it was the press release, the 22 wording from the press release, but I'd have to look at
23 the document.
24 Q. I'm going to show you, Mr. Bornstein, what 25 previously has been marked as CPH Exhibit Number 10.

Page 88

1 It's a document entitled Offering Memorandum,
2 214 billion-dollar Sunbeam zero coupon convertible
3 senior subordinated debentures, due 2018, dated
4 March 19, 1998, bears Bates number CP33169 through
5 33240.
6 A. I just want to check the press release.
7 I believe the first paragraph of the press
8 release was put in verbatim into the document.
9 Q. And where do you see that, sir?
10 A. On Recent Announcements, page eight of the 11 offering memorandum, Exhibit CPH 10.
12 Q. So the contents of the press release
13 ultimately were placed into the offering memorandum,
14 correct?
15 A. Right. And I recall that the last paragraph 16 on page eight was something that I insisted on being 17 put in there.
18 Q. The last paragraph refers to what, sir?
19 A. It's a reference to the forward-looking 20 statement and risk factor sections, which basically it
21 reads, "Actual results could differ materially from the 22 statements in the press release due to various factors,
23 including those set forth in risk factors, management
24 discussion analysis and financial condition end results
25 of operation and business. See forward-looking

Page 89 1 information." 2 Q. Was it your decision, sir, to repeat the 3 contents of the March 19 press release in the offering 4 memorandum as in the manner we see here on page eight? 5 A. No, it was Sunbeam, the company's decision to 6 do that. 7 Q. Did you recommend, by the end of the evening 8 had you changed your mind with respect to that being 9 appropriate? 10 A. No. 11 Q. Did at any point in the evening to your 12 knowledge Arthur Andersen advise the company that that 13 was the appropriate form of disclosure concerning 14 Sunbeam's first quarter results? 15 A. Not that I recall. 16 Q. Do you know, how was that decision 17 communicated to you, the decision to put the contents 18 of the press release in the offering memorandum over 19 the objections that you had raised? 20 A. I don't remember specifically. I think I got 21 a phone call late in the evening, two, three o'clock in 22 the morning from, either directly from Janet Kelly or 23 from Phil Harlow saying that it was the company's 24 decision to put the same wording in. 25 Q. Were you personally at the end of the evening	Page 91 1 answer the question based on those conversations, 2 don't attempt to read his mind. 3 THE WITNESS: Again, I alluded to a 4 memorandum that I wrote about the night, and I 5 believe that would refresh my memory, but I do 6 believe Mr. Harlow was in agreement with myself. 7 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 8 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm not going to ask you to 9 read the entire offering memorandum while we sit here. 10 It will speak for itself on this issue, but do you know 11 from your recollection of having worked on it whether 12 that document contains the specific information that's 13 set forth in the management March 16 representation 14 letter to Arthur Andersen and Andersen's March 19 15 comfort letter relating to Sunbeam's actual sales 16 results for the first two months of 1998? 17 MR. CLARE: Object to the form. 18 THE WITNESS: I don't believe that it does, 19 no. 20 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 21 Q. Do you know if it contains a statement that 22 Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1998 are 23 below Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1997? 24 A. I don't believe that it does, no. 25 Q. Do you know if it states that the reason why
Page 90 1 satisfied with that conclusion? 2 A. No, I was not; however, I have the caveat 3 that again, I went along, I went along with the 4 decision by the company. It was the company's 5 decision, the company's document, and that I would 6 strongly advise not putting it in, and also putting 7 the, if it was going to be put in, that it would be 8 cross referenced to the risk factors and have a 9 statement that, you know, that the actual results could 10 differ materially from the wording here. 11 Q. So at the beginning of the evening on 12 March 19 it was your personal view that it was a bad 13 idea to repeat the contents of the press release in the 14 offering memorandum, and it remained your view that 15 that was a bad idea right through the finalization of 16 the document; is that right? 17 MR. CLARE: Object to the form. 18 THE WITNESS: Yes. 19 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 20 Q. Do you know did if Mr. Harlow's views changed 21 on that subject? 22 MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation. 23 MR. MOSCATO: Don't speculate. Just answer 24 the question if you can based on conversations you 25 had with Mr. Harlow that evening. If you can't	Page 92 1 Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be 2 lower than Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 3 1997 at the end of that quarter, that the primary 4 reason for that was Sunbeam's acceleration of grill 5 sales into the fourth quarter of 1997? 6 A. Specifically, no, but someone who actually 7 reads the statement might come to that conclusion. 8 Q. But that statement is not made; is that 9 correct, sir? 10 A. This statement is about the Early Buy 11 program, but one would have to make a thesis that that 12 could in fact be the reason. 13 Q. But the specific statement in the management 14 representation letter that that is the primary reason 15 for the shortfall is not made, correct? 16 A. I don't believe so, no. 17 Q. Let me show you what's been marked as CPH 18 Exhibit Number 122 sir, a two-page document, bears 19 Bates AA105868 -- excuse me. 20 Let me show you a document that we've put 21 together. It's got two different Bates numbers that 22 aren't consecutive, but I believe the document is, was 23 originally part of a single two-page memo. It bears 24 Bates number AA105868 and AA105248, and ask you if 25 you've seen this document before, sir.

Page 93 1 (CPH Exhibit No. 122 was marked for 2 identification.) 3 THE WITNESS: No, I don't recall ever seeing 4 this document. 5 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 6 Q. I take it you don't recognize the 7 handwriting? 8 A. No. 9 Q. It's not yours? 10 A. No, it's not. 11 Q. Mr. Bornstein, let me show you what we 12 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 114. 13 A. I'm sorry, I just want to -- just figuring 14 out what this is, but that's okay. 15 Q. There is nothing you want to add to your 16 prior answer? 17 A. No, it appears this was probably something 18 that was used to draft the paragraph that went into 19 this document. 20 Q. That's why I asked you about it, if you 21 remembered seeing it before. 22 A. I don't remember seeing itself, no. 23 Q. Let me show you what we previously marked as 24 CPH Exhibit Number 114, sir. It's a two-page document, 25 the first page of which, the Bates numbers on the	Page 95 1 Q. Can I refer you back, sir, to Exhibit 121? 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. The two documents are the same, are they not, 4 sir? 5 A. Yeah, one is a better copy than the other. 6 Q. All right. 7 MR. MOSCATO: Counsel, do you have a copy of 8 this that you could actually read all of the 9 handwritten notes? 10 MR. MARKOWSKI: I think that's the best we've 11 been able to do. 12 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 13 Q. For what purpose did you prepare your 14 March 31 memorandum, Mr. Bornstein? 15 A. To document the material events that occurred 16 the night at the printer. 17 Q. Did you want to have a record of what you had 18 said to Mr. Tyree? 19 A. Yes, I did. 20 Q. And why was that? 21 A. I thought it was a prudent thing to do, given 22 the differences of opinion that transpired the night at 23 the printer. 24 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I want to move on to something 25 different for a moment.

Page 97 1 update the document. So I believe the due 2 diligence call that you're talking about was done 3 prior to the first document. 4 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 5 Q. Before the road show started? 6 A. Yes. 7 MR. MOSCATO: Sorry, counsel. I just wanted 8 to -- 9 MR. MARKOWSKI: That's fine, appreciate it. 10 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 11 Q. Let me show you what we previously marked, 12 sir, as CPH Exhibit 31. It's a one-page memorandum on 13 Morgan Stanley letterhead from John Tyree to Sunbeam 14 Financing Team; subject, accounting due diligence call, 15 dated March 7, 1998. Bears Bates number SASMF10709. 16 Have you seen this document before, sir? 17 A. I don't remember specifically, no. 18 Q. Does it appear to relate to the accounting 19 due diligence call you participated in? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. Do you see that there is an entry -- there is 22 a schedule on this document, correct? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. And there is an entry for a time for a 25 conference call with Arthur Andersen, correct?	Page 99 1 Mr. Harlow and myself went through the list and made 2 notations or discussed what was going to be said on the 3 call. 4 Q. And then Mr. Harlow ultimately was the 5 spokesperson when the call took place? 6 A. Yeah, he did 98 percent of the speaking, and 7 I filled in when necessary. 8 Q. Were you two together when the call took 9 place? 10 A. No. 11 Q. Where was Mr. Harlow? 12 A. He was in Florida in his office. 13 Q. And where were you? 14 A. I was at Global Financial Press working on 15 the document. 16 Q. Just an earlier occasion when you were at the 17 printer working on the offering memorandum? 18 A. Yeah, there was probably several days that we 19 were working at the printer, that being one of them. 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me show you, 21 Mr. Bornstein, what we'll mark as CPH Exhibit 22 Number 123. It's a four-page document, bears 23 Bates number AA55761 through 55764, first page of 24 which is on Arthur Andersen letterhead and is a 25 memorandum from Lawrence A. Bornstein, West Palm
Page 98 1 A. Correct. 2 Q. And that time is 12:00 p.m. on March 12? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. And the name identified there is yours, 5 correct? 6 A. Correct. 7 Q. Do you recall, do you see that the time for 8 the next call with KPMG is scheduled for 12:30? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. Do you recall there was approximately 30 11 minutes allotted to this accounting due diligence call 12 with Morgan Stanley? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. Were you in fact the spokesperson for Arthur 15 Andersen during that telephone call? 16 A. No, I was not. 17 Q. Who was? 18 A. Phil Harlow. 19 Q. What -- did you do anything, sir -- were you 20 involved in the call? Did you personally participate? 21 A. Yes, I was. 22 Q. What did you do to prepare for the call, if 23 anything? 24 A. I believe we were provided a list of 25 questions that were going to be asked, and that	Page 100 1 Beach, to the files; subject, due diligence call 2 with Morgan Stanley. 3 (CPH Exhibit No. 123 was marked for 4 identification.) 5 6 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 7 Q. Can you identify this document for me, sir? 8 A. Yeah, let me take a minute to read it. 9 Q. Sure. 10 A. Okay. 11 Q. Can you identify it for me, sir. 12 A. It was a memorandum that I put together to 13 document the due diligence call from, I guess it's 14 March 12th. Looks like -- I have noted here the 15 request is March 7th, so these dates coincide with the 16 previous exhibit. 17 Q. Right. The March 7th -- your memorandum 18 indicates, CPH Exhibit Number 123 indicates that 19 Andersen was requested on March 7 to participate in a 20 due diligence call with Morgan Stanley, correct? 21 A. Right. 22 Q. And we were just looking at CPH Exhibit 23 Number 31 that set up a date for that call to occur on 24 March 12, correct? 25 A. Correct.

Page 101 1 Q. And the date of that memo is March 7? 2 A. Yes. And then in addition is the list of 3 questions that I mentioned earlier that we were 4 provided with my notations of what was going to be said 5 on the call. 6 You can see a number of the items are crossed 7 out, which means that they were discussed. 8 Q. So the document has two, there is two pieces 9 to the document, sir? 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. First two pages are a memo that you prepared 12 in July of '98? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. And the second two pages are the list of 15 questions that Morgan Stanley provided to Andersen in 16 advance of the call? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. And the notations there relating to what 19 would be said? 20 A. Yeah, and again, I believe that everything on 21 here was, was discussed. 22 Q. And you and Mr. Harlow had agreed that in 23 response to these questions, this is the information 24 that Morgan Stanley would be provided, correct? 25 A. For the most part, yes.	Page 103 1 Q. Someone from Bank of America was on the call, 2 but you don't have that name, correct? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. That's the same John Tyree that you had, you 5 met with and spoke with on March 19 at Global 6 Financial, correct? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. Did anyone, sir, from Morgan Stanley suggest 9 to you either during this call or at some other point 10 that it would be inappropriate for Mr. Gluck, as a 11 representative of Sunbeam management, to listen in on 12 Morgan Stanley's due diligence call with Sunbeam's 13 outside auditors? 14 MR. CLARE: Object to the form. 15 THE WITNESS: No, I don't recall that. 16 BY MR. MARKOWSKI: 17 Q. That issue wasn't raised that you can recall? 18 A. No. I believe we were required to have 19 someone from the company present. 20 Q. Morgan Stanley didn't object, to your 21 knowledge? 22 A. Not that I recall. 23 Q. Do you recall, sir, that Mr. Harlow was 24 asked, among other things, to comment on how aggressive 25 Sunbeam was in its accounting policies?
Page 102 1 Q. Now there is a gap between the time this call 2 took place, sir, on March 12 and your preparation of 3 this memo on July 2. Correct? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. Can you explain that? 6 A. I believe it was just going back and making 7 sure that all the documentation was in the file, and at 8 the time I thought it was a good idea to note, to 9 memorialize what happened at the meeting. 10 Q. And you had had your notes from back at that 11 time, correct? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. And you prepared the memo later, but you 14 dated it later, correct? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. And July 2 is the date on which this 17 memorandum was in fact prepared? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. Now the participants in the call, sir, in 20 your memo are identified as whom? 21 A. Mr. Harlow and myself, Bob Gluck from 22 Sunbeam, John Tyree from Morgan Stanley, Bob Lurie from 23 Davis Polk, Andy Savart from Morgan Stanley, George 24 Scott, First Union, and then I have a name, I don't 25 know the name, representative from Bank of America.	Page 104 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. You say that's item eight on the checklist, 3 agenda? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. So you and Mr. Harlow knew that question 6 would be asked in advance of the telephone call, 7 correct? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. Do you recall what Mr. Harlow said in 10 response to that question during the conference call 11 itself? 12 A. I believe he said that the accounting, some 13 of the accounting policies were aggressive. 14 Q. Do you recall that he identified any 15 particular examples of that? 16 A. Bill and hold was one. And I have a note 17 here of Encore, and I have 100 percent right of return, 18 which I believe was one of the issues from the audit. 19 There was an adjustment recorded, but I'm not 20 100 percent certain. 21 Then it keeps going on, a couple of other 22 ones. EPI was another one where we had an adjustment. 23 It was a transaction that occurred at the end of the 24 year and was aggressive. 25 Q. The end of 1997?

1 A. '97.
 2 Q. Can you read the fourth item on that, on your
 3 handwritten note, sir?
 4 A. Yeah, I think it's -- no, I would be
 5 speculating. The first three I can read. It says
 6 aggressive/bill and hold, Encore 100 percent right of 7 return, EPI printer's.
 8 The fourth one I can't -- it's my
 9 handwriting. If you want to give me a few minutes, I
 10 can probably figure it out.
 11 Q. I'll come back. Let me focus on the first 12 three for a moment.
 13 A. Right.
 14 Q. The first three entries, aggressive/bill and 15 hold, Encore 100 percent right of return, and EPI
 16 printers were all things said by Mr. Harlow to Morgan
 17 Stanley during this March 12 conference call as 18 examples of Andersen's view that Sunbeam at least on 19 occasion was aggressive in its accounting positions?
 20 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
 21 THE WITNESS: Yes, I believe so.
 22 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 23 Q. All of those items related to events that 24 occurred in 1997; is that correct?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. All of them relate to revenue recognition; is
 2 that correct?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Do you recall that on Encore and EPI -- well,
 5 let me pause for a moment on bill and hold.
 6 Do you recall that Andersen had raised its
 7 reservations with Sunbeam relating to Sunbeam's
 8 extensive use of bill and hold accounting for sales in 9 1997?
 10 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
 11 MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
 12 THE WITNESS: Can you repeat the question?
 13 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 14 Q. Do you recall that Andersen had raised with 15 Sunbeam its reservations about Sunbeam's business
 16 practice of using extensively bill and hold accounting
 17 and sales transactions for 1997 sales?
 18 MR. MOSCATO: I object.
 19 Larry, you don't have to adopt his language
 20 in answering the question. Answer it in your own
 21 words.
 22 THE WITNESS: I don't consider it
 23 reservation, but understanding of the accounting
 24 policy in making sure that it met the rules and 25 that the appropriate testing was done.

Page 107

1 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 2 Q. I'm putting aside the accounting.
 3 Do you recall that Mr. Harlow or yourself
 4 told Sunbeam that it was a poor business practice to 5 engage extensively in bill and hold sales?
 6 MR. MOSCATO: I object again.
 7 You can answer in your own words.
 8 MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
 9 THE WITNESS: I believe at one point that it
 10 was said, but probably later than this.
 11 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 12 Q. Okay. Do you recall -- with respect to 13 Encore and EPI, do you recall that Andersen took the 14 position that Sunbeam should reverse the accounting
 15 treatment on these two transactions and not recognize 16 the sales revenue and profits in 1997?
 17 A. I believe that was the case, yes.
 18 Q. And do you recall that Sunbeam refused to do
 19 that?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. In connection with finalizing the 1997 audit?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And you advised or Mr. Harlow advised Morgan
 24 Stanley of those three situations during the March 12
 25 conference call, correct?

Page 108

1 MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
 2 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 3 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 4 Q. Let me go to the fourth note that you've got
 5 there that you're having some trouble deciphering.
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. You said you could speculate, and I guess I
 8 invite that at this point, because maybe that will help
 9 us figure out what that might be a reference to.
 10 Do you have some thought with respect to what 11 this entry is either from your recollection or what you
 12 can read here?
 13 A. Looks like something, discount accurate,
 14 either accuracy or accounting reports. I'm not -- I
 15 don't know.
 16 Q. Okay.
 17 A. Sorry.
 18 Q. During the March 12 conference call, sir, did
 19 Morgan Stanley request an opportunity to review
 20 Andersen's 1997 audit work papers?
 21 A. I don't remember that specifically, no.
 22 Q. Do you remember at any point Morgan Stanley
 23 requesting an opportunity to review Andersen's 1997
 24 audit work papers?
 25 A. No.

Page 109

1 Q. Do you remember at any point Andersen asking
 2 to review -- excuse me, do you remember at any point
 3 Morgan Stanley asking to review Andersen's list of 4 proposed audit adjustments relating to the 1997
 5 financial statements of Sunbeam?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. Is it your recollection that Morgan Stanley
 8 in fact did not request an opportunity to review your 9 work papers?
 10 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
 11 THE WITNESS: I don't believe so.
 12 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 13 Q. When you say you don't believe so, you don't
 14 believe that request was ever made?
 15 A. No, I don't believe it was ever made.
 16 MR. MOSCATO: Counsel, when you come to a
 17 logical breaking point, can we take a two- or 18 three-minute break?
 19 MR. MARKOWSKI: I can be finishing up I think 20 in the next ten minutes or so.
 21 MR. MOSCATO: That's fine.
 22 MR. MARKOWSKI: If you'd like to break
 23 sooner, we can do that and finish up.
 24 MR. MOSCATO: I'm indifferent.

Page 110

1 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 2 Q. Mr. Bornstein, do you recall that Arthur
 3 Andersen provided a second comfort letter to Morgan
 4 Stanley in connection with the debenture offering?
 5 A. No. Could be a bring-down letter, but I'm
 6 not sure. Have to look at it.
 7 MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me show you, sir, what
 8 we'll mark as CPH Exhibit Number 124. It's a
 9 three-page document bearing Bates number AA30995
 10 through 997. And it's a letter on Sunbeam
 11 stationery dated March 23, 1998, to Arthur
 12 Andersen.
 13 (CPH Exhibit No. 124 was marked for
 14 identification.)
 15 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 16 Q. Can you identify this document for me, sir?
 17 A. This appears to be an updated representation
 18 letter from Sunbeam to Arthur Andersen in connection
 19 with the comfort letter.
 20 Q. And this letter is signed by Mr. Dunlap,
 21 Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fanin and Mr. Gluck; is that correct?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. The same four people that signed the March 16
 24 representation letter, correct?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 111

1 Q. This letter contains the same information
 2 relating to Sunbeam sales for the first two months of 3 1998, correct? Net sales figures? If you look at 4 paragraph eight.
 5 A. Yes. This is updated through, has the same
 6 sales number, but it actually has net income or loss
 7 through March 1st.
 8 Q. Right. In addition, it also provides the net
 9 income for Sunbeam's performance in January and 10 February 1998, correct?
 11 A. Correct.
 12 Q. The March 16 letter only had net income
 13 information for January; is that right?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 MR. MOSCATO: March 19 letter.
 16 MR. MARKOWSKI: March 19 letter, I'm sorry.
 17 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, it was the March --
 18 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 19 Q. The March 16 representation letter and the 20 March 19 comfort letter both only had net income
 21 information through January, correct?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And this letter provides net income
 24 information for both January and February of 1998,
 25 correct?

Page 112

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And it compares Sunbeam's net income for
 3 January and February of 1998 to Sunbeam's net income
 4 for the first two months of 1997, correct?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. And it does that in paragraph eight?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. And what does that comparison show us?
 9 A. Net income for the two months ended
 10 March 2nd, 1997, of 9,765,000 and net loss of 11 41,190,000 for the two months ended in March of '98.
 12 Q. So in the first two months of 1997 --
 13 A. I mean ended February, excuse me, first two
 14 months of '98.
 15 Q. So for the first two months of 1997, Sunbeam,
 16 according to this document, had a profit of $9,765,000,
 17 correct?
 18 A. Correct.
 19 Q. And in the first two months of 1998, this 20 document shows that Sunbeam had a net loss of
 21 $41,190,000, correct?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. Swaying of more than $50 million; is that
 24 correct?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 113

1 Q. In a negative direction, correct?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm going to show you what
 4 was -- I'm sorry, it was already marked.
 5 Mr. Bornstein, let me show you what has been
 6 previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 112. It's a
 7 four-page document bearing Bates number CPH 129613
 8 through CPH 129616.
 9 A. Okay.
 10 Q. We'll mark this and I'll ask you if you can 11 identify it for me.
 12 MR. CLARE: I thought this was previously
 13 marked.
 14 MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm sorry, I got myself
 15 confused again.
 16 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 17 Q. Sir, let me show you what we previously
 18 marked as Exhibit Number 112. It bears Bates number 19 129613 through 129616, and ask you if you can identify 20 that document for me.
 21 A. This appears to be the bring-down letter to 22 Morgan Stanley related to the bond offering.
 23 Q. And this letter is dated March 25, 1998; is
 24 that correct?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 114

1 Q. And in paragraph E of the letter --
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. -- at the top of the second page of the 4 letter itself?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. The net sales information and net income
 7 information for the first two months of 1998 is 8 provided, correct?
 9 A. Correct.
 10 Q. And that's the same information that Sunbeam
 11 provided to Morgan Stanley that we just reviewed in the 12 March 23 representation letter, correct?
 13 MR. CLARE: Object to the form. I think you
 14 misspoke, Bob.
 15 THE WITNESS: Yeah, you provided to Arthur
 16 Andersen, not Morgan Stanley.
 17 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 18 Q. I'm sorry. Let me ask a new question.
 19 The net income and net sales information in 20 paragraph E of Exhibit CPH Exhibit 112 for the first
 21 two months of 1998 is the same as the net sales and net
 22 income information contained in the Sunbeam
 23 representation letter to Arthur Andersen dated
 24 March 23, 1998, correct?
 25 A. Correct.

Page 115

1 Q. And it shows a $50 million decline in profits
 2 for that time period from the first two months of 1997,
 3 correct?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And it shows the net sales for the first two
 6 months of 1998 are about 50 percent of Sunbeam's net
 7 sales for the first two months of 1997, correct?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. Do you know who signed this letter on behalf
 10 of Arthur Andersen?
 11 A. Doesn't look like my handwriting. It might 12 have been Phil Harlow's.
 13 Q. Do you know what the purpose of this letter
 14 dated March 25 is, Mr. Bornstein?
 15 A. I don't specifically know, to be honest with 16 you. It's typical that you issue a bring-down letter.
 17 I don't recall specifically if this is when the money
 18 is released to Sunbeam or not.
 19 Q. Do you recall that the debenture offering
 20 closed on March 25, 1998?
 21 A. It might have. I don't recall.
 22 Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam requested that 23 Arthur Andersen give Morgan Stanley a bring-down due 24 diligence letter prior to the actual closing of the 25 bond offering?

Page 116

1 A. I don't recall who requested it, if it was
 2 Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley.
 3 Q. But you do recall that a request was made
 4 either by Morgan Stanley or by Sunbeam that Morgan
 5 Stanley provide an updated comfort letter at the time
 6 of the closing of the bond offering?
 7 A. I believe that's the case, yes.
 8 Q. Do you know whether this letter was delivered
 9 to Morgan Stanley prior to the close of the bond
 10 offering?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Do you know who would have been responsible
 13 for delivering this letter to Morgan Stanley?
 14 A. It could have been myself or Dennis Pastrana.
 15 Q. And as you sit here, you can't recall
 16 precisely when this letter was delivered to Morgan
 17 Stanley?
 18 A. No.
 19 Q. Do you know that it was?
 20 A. Specifically, no.
 21 Q. Would it have been signed by Arthur Andersen
 22 if it wasn't finalized for delivery to Morgan Stanley?
 23 MR. CLARE: Objection to the form, calls for
 24 speculation.
 25 THE WITNESS: I don't know.

Page 117

1 MR. MARKOWSKI: Why don't we take our break
 2 right now and I'll see if I'm finished.
 3 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video
 4 record. The time on the monitor is 12:03 p.m.
 5 (Thereupon, a recess was taken.)
 6 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video
 7 record. The time on the monitor, 12:18 p.m.
 8 MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Bornstein, that concludes
 9 my examination for this morning.
 10 THE WITNESS: Okay, thank you.
 11 CROSS (LAWRENCE A. BORNSTEIN)
 12 BY MR. CLARE:
 13 Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Bornstein. Again, my 14 name is Tom Clare. I'm with the law firm of Kirkland &
 15 Ellis in Washington, D.C., and I represent Morgan
 16 Stanley in this matter, and I'm going to ask you some 17 questions this afternoon.
 18 If you don't understand any of my questions
 19 or want me to rephrase them, I'll be happy to do it.
 20 I know you've been deposed numerous times before and 21 know the rules.
 22 A. Okay.
 23 Q. But make sure that you understand my question
 24 before you answer it and I'll be happy to try to 25 rephrase and make things more clear.

Page 118

1 Mr. Bornstein, were you contacted earlier
 2 this year by attorneys representing Coleman (Parent)
 3 Holdings about this lawsuit?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And can you place in time for me when you
 6 were contacted?
 7 A. It was probably two or three months ago.
 8 Q. And do you remember the name of the person
 9 that called you?
 10 A. Not specifically, no.
 11 Q. Was it somebody from Mr. Markowski's firm,
 12 Jenner & Block?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. And you said you think this was a few months
 15 ago?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Are you aware that Andersen had entered into 18 a settlement agreement with Coleman (Parent) Holdings
 19 relating to these transactions?
 20 Were you aware of that fact?
 21 A. No, I was not.
 22 Q. So you don't have an understanding one way or 23 the other of the timing of when that settlement
 24 agreement would have taken place?
 25 A. No.

Page 119

1 Q. Was this a telephone conversation or an
 2 in-person meeting?
 3 A. Telephone.
 4 Q. Was it a single telephone conversation or 5 multiple?
 6 A. I believe it was two phone conversations.
 7 Q. Same person on both calls?
 8 A. I believe so.
 9 Q. And you don't recall the name of the person
 10 on either call?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. During these telephone conversations, both
 13 conversations were with lawyers from Mr. Markowski's
 14 firm, Jenner & Block?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. Were there more than one lawyer on the phone?
 17 A. I believe there were.
 18 Q. And tell me what you remember about those 19 telephone calls, what was said, what they said to you
 20 and what you said back.
 21 A. The first one was that they were going to be
 22 sending me some documentation and wanted me to take a
 23 look at it if I didn't mind, and then give them a call
 24 back once I had a chance to look at it, because they 25 wanted to ask me a few questions.

Page 120

1 They asked me if I was represented by counsel
 2 at the time. At the time I told them no, I was not,
 3 and that I would be willing to give them some time.
 4 Q. Did they tell you that Coleman (Parent)
 5 Holdings had filed a lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?
 6 A. I believe they did, yes.
 7 Q. And did they ask whether you would be willing
 8 to be a witness against Morgan Stanley in that lawsuit?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. So just to make sure I understand correctly,
 11 the first telephone call was fairly short, they asked
 12 you if you would be willing to spend some time looking 13 at some documents?
 14 A. Yes. I believe they were going to tell me
 15 they -- they were going to send me the, I think there
 16 were two lawsuits, one I think Coleman suing Morgan
 17 Stanley, and another one where I think it was Morgan
 18 Stanley suing Coleman maybe.
 19 I'm not sure. It was two separate lawsuits.
 20 Q. Was there anything else discussed on that 21 first telephone call?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. And did they in fact send you some documents
 24 to look at?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 121

1 Q. Do you recall what the documents were?
2 A. I believe it was the two lawsuits that we, I
3 mentioned earlier.
4 Q. So the complaint that was filed by Coleman
5 against Morgan Stanley was one of the documents?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. And then a complaint that was filed by Morgan
8 Stanley against Coleman?
9 A. I believe so.
10 Q. Were those the only two documents that you
11 were sent?
12 A. I believe so.
13 Q. Did you receive any of the documents that you
14 were questioned about this morning that were sent to 15 you?
16 A. No.
17 Q. During the second telephone call, did they 18 ask you questions about the lawsuit or the documents
19 that they had sent you?
20 A. No, not specifically.
21 Q. Tell me what you remember about the second
22 telephone call.
23 A. They asked me some general questions on the 24 timing of the comfort letters, when those were released
25 and delivered to Morgan Stanley.

Page 122

1 And then asked me some questions about my
2 conversation with Mr. Tyree.
3 Q. Is that all you remember?
4 A. Yes.
5 Q. Did you read the documents that they sent
6 you?
7 A. I believe I did, yes.
8 Q. Did you notice that your name was included in 9 the complaint that Coleman had filed against Morgan
10 Stanley?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Did you have any discussion with the lawyers
13 about that, the fact that your name had been included?
14 A. No, not specifically, no.
15 Q. Did anybody from Coleman, and I'm
16 specifically referring to their lawyers, ask you if you
17 would mind if your name and a description of your 18 testimony was included in the complaint that they were 19 going to file against Morgan Stanley before it was 20 filed?
21 A. No.
22 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the
23 question.
24 THE WITNESS: No, it wasn't.
25

Page 123

1 BY MR. CLARE:
2 Q. So your name was put in the complaint without
3 your permission, without your knowledge?
4 A. Yes.
5 Q. Did, during either of these telephone calls,
6 did anyone representing Coleman ask whether you agreed
7 with the statements that were made in the complaint
8 that was filed against Morgan Stanley?
9 A. No.
10 Q. Did they ask whether you had a belief that 11 Morgan Stanley had conspired with Sunbeam to commit
12 fraud?
13 A. No.
14 Q. Do you believe that Morgan Stanley conspired
15 with Sunbeam to commit fraud as you sit here today?
16 A. I have no knowledge of that, no.
17 Q. So the answer is no, you don't believe that 18 Morgan Stanley conspired with Sunbeam to commit fraud?
19 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 20 question, misstates his testimony.
21 THE WITNESS: You're asking me if I have an
22 opinion today in hindsight?
23 BY MR. CLARE:
24 Q. I'm asking based on everything that you know
25 about the interactions that you had with Morgan Stanley

Page 124

1 and the interactions that you had with Sunbeam, whether
2 you think that Morgan Stanley conspired with Sunbeam to
3 commit fraud.
4 A. I have no idea. I have my opinions of the 5 work that Morgan Stanley did, but I have no idea if 6 they conspired to commit fraud.
7 MR. MOSCATO: Just answer the specific
8 question.
9 THE WITNESS: No, I do not.
10 BY MR. CLARE:
11 Q. And no, you don't have an opinion, or no, you
12 do not believe that Morgan Stanley conspired with 13 Sunbeam to commit fraud?
14 MR. MOSCATO: I think he said he didn't have 15 an opinion.
16 THE WITNESS: I don't have an opinion.
17 BY MR. CLARE:
18 Q. Okay. Do you have any evidence or
19 information in your mind that Morgan Stanley conspired
20 with Sunbeam to commit fraud?
21 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry.
22 MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form of the
23 question.
24 MR. MOSCATO: I don't understand.
25

Page 125

1 BY MR. CLARE:
 2 Q. I asked if you had a belief or an opinion,
 3 and you stated that you did not have an opinion or 4 belief.
 5 MR. MOSCATO: And you're not happy with that
 6 answer?
 7 MR. CLARE: No, I'm fine with that answer,
 8 but regardless of whether or not you have an 9 opinion or a belief, is there any information in 10 your mind, is there any evidence in your mind that 11 there was such a conspiracy between Morgan Stanley
 12 and Sunbeam, or similarly, do you have no view on
 13 that?
 14 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 15 question. Are you asking him whether any of the 16 facts he knows are consistent with that? Is that 17 what you're trying to ask?
 18 MR. CLARE: No, I'm asking -- he says he has 19 no opinion one way or the other on that.
 20 THE WITNESS: I have no idea if they
 21 committed fraud. I believe that they were 22 reckless and --
 23 MR. MOSCATO: Larry, answer the question,
 24 please.
 25 THE WITNESS: I have no idea if they

Page 126

1 committed fraud or not. I can't answer that.
 2 MR. MARKOWSKI: That's for the jury to
 3 decide. I don't know why we're asking
 4 Mr. Bornstein to rule on that.
 5 MR. MOSCATO: Larry, you have to be very
 6 disciplined on that. It's getting late in the 7 morning, but answer the specific question that
 8 you're being asked, please, all right? Thank you.
 9 BY MR. CLARE:
 10 Q. Putting aside the question of fraud, let me
 11 ask a more simple question.
 12 Do you have any evidence that Morgan Stanley
 13 was, intended to deceive Coleman?
 14 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 15 question. He's testified about the evidence that 16 he has, and someone else will make a judgment
 17 about its legal significance.
 18 MR. CLARE: That's fine.
 19 THE WITNESS: Will you repeat the question?
 20 BY MR. CLARE:
 21 Q. Do you have any evidence that Morgan Stanley
 22 conspired with Sunbeam to deceive anybody?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Did the lawyers representing Coleman ask if 25 you'd be willing to sign any documents, declaration or

Page 127

1 an affidavit of any kind?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Is there anything else about those telephone
 4 calls that you remember?
 5 A. I believe I made a comment about the lawsuit
 6 that was being filed by Morgan Stanley against Coleman
 7 with respect to representations about synergies. I
 8 think I made a comment about that.
 9 Q. What was your comment about that?
 10 A. That I thought it was a silly thing to make
 11 an accusation about, because I never, I never had seen
 12 a seller make representation of cost savings, so I just 13 thought that was interesting and not on point, I guess.
 14 Q. Do you have any personal knowledge based on 15 your experience in 1997 or 1998 what representations
 16 were made by Coleman to Sunbeam about synergies?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. So you don't have any firsthand evidence or 19 comment on that?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. It was a comment on the legal theory?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. I want to talk about March 1998, and 24 specifically the very beginning of March 1998, the 25 first week. There was some testimony about that this

Page 128

1 morning.
 2 You were in New York working on the offering
 3 memorandum for the debenture offering?
 4 A. I believe I was, yes.
 5 Q. Mr. Pastrana was in Florida doing some post
 6 audit work?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. Including working on the comfort letters?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. And was Mr. Pastrana also working with your 11 company to close the books for Sunbeam for January and 12 February?
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. As part of Mr. Pastrana's work for the bond
 15 offering, was one of the things he was tasked to look
 16 at were sales figures for January and February 1998?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And Mr. Pastrana reported to you at some 19 point that the January and February 1998 sales figures
 20 were lower than they were in the previous year,
 21 correct?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And that was the first time you had heard
 24 that information from anyone at Sunbeam?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 129

1 Q. Did you know from any source at the end of
 2 January whether the January '98 sales were lower than
 3 the January '97 sales?
 4 A. No, I don't remember specifically.
 5 Q. Did in that time period Sunbeam close its 6 books every month so that January sales would have been
 7 available separate from February?
 8 A. I believe they were, yes.
 9 Q. So January 1998 figures would have been 10 available at some point in February?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. And the February sales would have been 13 available at some point in early March?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And I think you said you believed this was in 16 the first week of March 1998 that you heard this about
 17 January and February 1998?
 18 A. Might have been the second one week. I'm not 19 100 percent sure.
 20 Q. If we had a calendar from March 1998, would 21 that help you in placing the date?
 22 A. Probably not.
 23 Q. You discussed with Mr. Pastrana that 24 Sunbeam's lower year-over-year sales performance should
 25 be disclosed to Morgan Stanley, correct?

Page 130

1 A. Say that again.
 2 Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Pastrana whether
 3 Sunbeam's lower year-over-year sales performance needed
 4 to be disclosed to Morgan Stanley?
 5 A. I don't recall specifically talking to 6 Mr. Pastrana about that.
 7 Q. But you do remember talking to Mr. Harlow
 8 about it?
 9 A. I remember talking to Mr. Harlow that the 10 company should be disclosing it to Morgan Stanley, yes.
 11 Q. And you also had a conversation with 12 Mr. Gluck about that?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. And those conversations took place within a 15 day or two of you first learning this information from 16 Mr. Pastrana?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. Now you were in New York at the time working 19 on the bond offering?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And you were there working with
 22 representatives from Morgan Stanley?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. And you were at Global Financial Press
 25 attending drafting sessions?

Page 131

1 A. Right.
 2 Q. And Morgan Stanley personnel were there?
 3 A. Right.
 4 Q. Was there any consideration given to you
 5 informing Morgan Stanley there and then during the 6 drafting session?
 7 MR. MARKOWSKI: Consideration by whom?
 8 BY MR. CLARE:
 9 Q. By you, Mr. Bornstein.
 10 A. No. The question was never asked of me.
 11 Q. Was that discussed with Mr. Harlow or 12 Mr. Gluck whether that might be one way to communicate
 13 this information to Morgan Stanley?
 14 MR. MOSCATO: The question was whether you
 15 discussed that with Mr. Harlow and Mr. Gluck.
 16 THE WITNESS: No.
 17 BY MR. CLARE:
 18 Q. Was there any discussion about how this
 19 information should be disclosed to Morgan Stanley?
 20 MR. MOSCATO: Objection, I think he answered
 21 that a couple of questions ago, but go ahead.
 22 THE WITNESS: That the company should
 23 disclose it to them.
 24 BY MR. CLARE:
 25 Q. When you say the company, you're referring to

Page 132

1 Sunbeam?
 2 A. Sunbeam.
 3 Q. So it was your view and Mr. Harlow's view
 4 that Sunbeam needed to disclose this information to
 5 Morgan Stanley?
 6 A. Yeah, to be honest with you, I'm not
 7 100 percent sure they were aware of it or not, but it
 8 was the company's responsibility to disclose the
 9 information.
 10 Q. And you and Mr. Harlow communicated that view
 11 to Mr. Gluck at Sunbeam?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. And you communicated to Mr. Gluck that you
 14 believed it was Sunbeam's responsibility to communicate
 15 this information to Morgan Stanley?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Did Mr. -- did you tell Mr. Gluck that you,
 18 Arthur Andersen, were not going to tell Morgan Stanley
 19 and that you were waiting for Sunbeam to disclose that
 20 information?
 21 MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
 22 Did you say those words to Mr. Gluck?
 23 THE WITNESS: No.
 24 BY MR. CLARE:
 25 Q. Did Mr. Gluck -- I'll withdraw that.

Page 133

1 Was there any discussion with Mr. Harlow or
 2 Mr. Gluck when this disclosure would be made to Morgan
 3 Stanley?
 4 MR. MARKOWSKI: By whom?
 5 MR. CLARE: By the company.
 6 THE WITNESS: Again, I had no idea if Morgan
 7 Stanley knew or didn't know. I just know they 8 never asked me the question.
 9 BY MR. CLARE:
 10 Q. But you and Mr. Harlow wanted to assure
 11 yourselves that Morgan Stanley had been informed?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. And you and Mr. Harlow told Mr. Gluck that 14 you thought it was the company's responsibility to tell
 15 Morgan Stanley?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. And as part of those conversations, did you
 18 or Mr. Harlow express a view as to when the company
 19 ought to provide that information to Morgan Stanley?
 20 A. As soon as possible.
 21 Q. And did you communicate that to Mr. Gluck?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. You and Mr. Harlow told Mr. Gluck that that
 24 information should be provided by Sunbeam to Morgan
 25 Stanley as soon as possible?

Page 134

1 A. I believe so.
 2 Q. Are you able to put a date, an approximate
 3 one, on that conversation with Mr. Gluck where you
 4 communicated that information?
 5 A. Maybe March 12th, March 13th.
 6 Q. Okay. And did you, did Mr. Gluck -- what did
 7 Mr. Gluck say about what the company was going to do
 8 with this information as far as providing it to Morgan
 9 Stanley?
 10 A. I don't remember.
 11 Q. Did he tell you in words or in substance that 12 he agreed and that the company would provide this 13 information to Morgan Stanley?
 14 A. Again, I don't recall.
 15 Q. Do you recall, now moving forward a couple of 16 days, that there was a follow-up discussion with 17 Mr. Gluck about whether this information had been 18 communicated to Morgan Stanley?
 19 A. I don't recall.
 20 Q. Do you know when, if at all, Sunbeam told 21 Morgan Stanley this information about January and
 22 February 1998 sales?
 23 A. I know they were aware of it March 17th or 24 18th, prior to the press release going out.
 25 Q. How do you know that?

Page 135

1 A. I believe a draft, I believe a draft of the
 2 comfort letter was delivered or it was communicated by
 3 either -- I don't remember specifically. I just, like
 4 I testified earlier, that when I found out about it, my
 5 last thing was having a conversation with Bill Pruitt.
 6 The next thing I knew, I was seeing it on TV.
 7 Q. You testified a moment ago and then also this 8 morning about a belief that a draft comfort letter was 9 provided to Morgan Stanley on March 17th or 10 thereabouts.
 11 Did you personally fax or send a draft of the 12 comfort letter to Morgan Stanley?
 13 A. I don't remember.
 14 Q. As you sit here today, do you have any 15 recollection of having done that?
 16 A. Me personally, no.
 17 Q. Did anybody tell you at Andersen that they 18 had faxed a copy of the comfort letter, a draft of the 19 comfort letter to Morgan Stanley or its counsel?
 20 A. No, I'm not aware of that.
 21 Q. And so do you have any personal knowledge as 22 you sit here today whether, that a draft comfort letter
 23 was actually sent to Morgan Stanley or its counsel?
 24 A. Prior to March 19th, no.
 25 Q. So as far as you are able to testify, the

Page 136

1 first time a comfort letter was physically provided to
 2 Morgan Stanley or faxed or sent was March 19th, 1998,
 3 at Global Financial Press?
 4 A. I do recall going through certain portions of 5 the comfort letter with underwriter's counsel as to the 6 form of pieces of it, but I don't recall specifically
 7 issuing them a draft comfort letter personally.
 8 Q. These recollections that you have, were these 9 in-person meetings with underwriter's counsel?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. During these in-person meetings, did you
 12 observe that underwriter's counsel had a draft of the 13 comfort letter in front of them?
 14 A. I don't recall if they had a draft of other 15 comfort letters that they used as a sample or if it was 16 ours, but there was definitely wording, substantive
 17 wording, examples communicated back and forth.
 18 Q. But as you sit here today, can you testify
 19 from your own personal knowledge that Morgan Stanley or 20 its lawyers were provided with a draft of the 21 March 19th comfort letter before March 19th?
 22 A. Prior to the night at the printer, no.
 23 Q. And you testified about meetings that you had 24 with underwriter's counsel to go through the language.
 25 A. Uh huh.

Page 137 1 Q. And am I correct that you don't know whether 2 the documents that underwriter's counsel had in front 3 of them were in fact a draft of the March 19th letter 4 or perhaps sample comfort letters from other 5 transactions and other companies? 6 You just don't know one way or the other? 7 A. No. Again, the only thing I recollect is 8 finalizing the draft that night and them having a draft 9 early that night, if not, if not -- I don't recall 10 sooner than me physically being there that a draft was 11 delivered to them. 12 My point is it wasn't like at five o'clock in 13 the morning, said here it is. As soon as we got there, 14 they had it, you know, and they were making changes and 15 we made changes on realtime. 16 Q. So you were working on the comfort letter 17 with underwriter's counsel at Global Financial Press 18 the night of the 19th? 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. These meetings that you described with 21 underwriter's counsel were that evening, March 19th, at 22 the print shop? 23 A. As well as previously. 24 Q. Okay. And those are the meetings that you're 25 just not sure what documents underwriter's counsel had	Page 139 1 A. I am aware that as I sit here today, that the 2 document with the earnings forecast was provided to 3 Morgan Stanley the night before the, the night of the 4 press release going out. 5 Q. When you say the document of an earnings 6 forecast, you're referring to a sales buildup sheet 7 that Mr. Markowski showed you this morning? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. In the form of document that was marked as 10 CPH Exhibit 121? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. That form of document? 13 A. Yes, I'm aware that that was provided to, or 14 at least represented to me that it was provided to 15 Morgan Stanley. 16 Q. And Mr. Tyree told you that? 17 A. No, Mr. Fanin told me that. 18 Q. So Mr. Fanin informed you that the sales 19 buildup, CPH 121, or a document in that form, was sent 20 to Morgan Stanley the day before the press release was 21 issued? 22 A. I don't know if the day before or the night 23 of. That was subsequent to that night. 24 Q. Is that the only information that you have 25 about disclosures that were made by Sunbeam to Morgan
Page 138 1 with them? 2 A. Correct. 3 Q. But you know that that evening at the print 4 shop, you worked on the draft of the comfort letter and 5 it was shared and exchanged -- 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. -- between underwriter's counsel and you? 8 A. Correct. 9 Q. And I think I asked you this, but I can't 10 recall your answer. 11 Do you know when, if at all, anybody from 12 Sunbeam told Morgan Stanley about lower year-over-year 13 sales? 14 A. No, other than prior to the press release 15 going out, I'm not aware of any other time. 16 Q. Okay. What information do you have about 17 disclosures that were made by Sunbeam to Morgan Stanley 18 prior to the press release going out? 19 A. I don't. 20 Q. You don't have any information? 21 A. No. 22 Q. So from your own personal knowledge, you 23 don't have any information about when, if at all, 24 Sunbeam disclosed lower year-over-year sales to Morgan 25 Stanley?	Page 140 1 Stanley about first quarter 1998 sales? 2 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, can I have the 3 question back? 4 I'm concerned there is a little confusion as 5 the timing here. But I just need to hear the last 6 question. 7 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 8 was read by the reporter.) 9 THE WITNESS: I am, other than what I 10 testified earlier that I was told by Mr. Tyree at 11 the printer that they were informed the night 12 before about the sales forecast. 13 BY MR. CLARE: 14 Q. So what Mr. Tyree told you at the printer was 15 consistent with what Mr. Fanin had told you, that 16 Sunbeam had provided this information to Morgan Stanley 17 the night before the press release? 18 MR. MOSCATO: Objection, that's where the 19 confusion is. I'm not sure he said Fanin told him 20 prior to this happening or Fanin told him after. 21 THE WITNESS: It was after. It was during 22 the restatement work when things, things kind 23 of -- I don't remember. I do recall Mr. Fanin 24 specifically drafting a memo and handing me this 25 document and after the fact and wanted it to get

Page 141 1 into the files. 2 BY MR. CLARE: 3 Q. And I appreciate that. I'm not trying to 4 confuse you on the timing. I just want to make sure 5 that I understand that what Mr. Fanin told you was 6 consistent with what Mr. Tyree told you about when 7 Morgan Stanley was provided this information by 8 Sunbeam. 9 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 10 question. I think the reference to this 11 information at this point is kind of detached from 12 what you're referring to. 13 MR. CLARE: Okay, let me address that, 14 because I think that point is well taken. 15 BY MR. CLARE: 16 Q. Mr. Fanin told you that Sunbeam provided 17 information about its January and February 1990 sales 18 to Morgan Stanley the day or night before the press 19 release was issued, correct? 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you misspoke there in 21 terms of the date. 22 THE WITNESS: Yes. You said 1990. 23 MR. CLARE: Thanks. 24 THE WITNESS: I believe so, yes. 25	Page 143 1 MR. MOSCATO: Can we have the question again 2 then? 3 MR. CLARE: Let me rephrase it. 4 MR. MOSCATO: My client made a distinction 5 between Tyree's knowledge and Morgan Stanley's 6 knowledge. I'm afraid -- listen, we're a neutral 7 party here. I just want there to be a clean 8 record, and that's why I'm making these 9 objections. I just want clarity. So if you can 10 ask the question again, I'd appreciate it. 11 MR. CLARE: Sure. 12 BY MR. CLARE: 13 Q. Let me ask it this way and hopefully we can 14 cut through it. 15 Do you have any information from any source 16 that Morgan Stanley or Mr. Tyree or anybody 17 representing Morgan Stanley was advised of Sunbeam's 18 first quarter 1998 sales before the day or the night 19 before the press release was issued? 20 A. No, I'm not aware of anything else. 21 Q. The only information that you have is what 22 you previously testified to about, Mr. Fanin's 23 conversation with you? 24 A. Yes. 25 Q. And what Mr. Tyree told you at the print

Page 145 1 A. For the most part, yes. 2 Q. And during that five or six-day time period, 3 am I correct that you never discussed with Morgan 4 Stanley or its counsel Sunbeam's January and 5 February 1998 sales performance? 6 A. Not that I recall, no. 7 Q. And it was because you believed it was 8 Sunbeam's responsibility to disclose that information 9 to Morgan Stanley? 10 A. Or if Morgan Stanley asked the question, I 11 would answer it truthfully. 12 Q. But Morgan Stanley didn't bring it up? 13 A. Right. 14 Q. And to your knowledge, Sunbeam did not tell 15 Morgan Stanley at any point during that five or six-day 16 period? 17 MR. MOSCATO: Do you know one way or the 18 other? 19 THE WITNESS: I don't know one way or the 20 other if they did or not. 21 BY MR. CLARE: 22 Q. But again, the only information you have 23 about that topic is that Sunbeam informed Morgan 24 Stanley and John Tyree the day before the press release 25 was issued?	Page 147 1 Global Financial Press. 2 Q. Did you attend any meetings at the offices of 3 Morgan Stanley? 4 A. No. 5 Q. Were representatives of Morgan Stanley 6 present for those meetings, some of them? 7 A. Yeah, I believe Tyree and there might have 8 been someone else in the first couple, but after that, 9 there wasn't anybody there. 10 Q. So the only person that you remember being 11 present at those sessions was John Tyree? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. Do you remember anything about your 14 conversations with John Tyree during those drafting 15 sessions? 16 Does anything stick out as having been 17 discussed with Mr. Tyree? 18 A. The form of the pro forma, financial 19 statements and probably certain disclosures or certain, 20 the way certain things were presented. Specifically I 21 remember talking with Mr. Tyree. 22 Q. Now the pro forma information that was put 23 into the offering memorandum, was that pro forma 24 information that was prepared by Andersen? 25 A. No. It was the company's pro formas, but we,
Page 146 1 MR. MOSCATO: Do you really want to keep 2 asking the same question over and over? 3 MR. CLARE: Yeah, I do. I just want to make 4 sure that we're all on the same page. 5 MR. MOSCATO: One last time. Answer the 6 question one more time, Larry. 7 THE WITNESS: Can you read that question 8 again. 9 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 10 was read by the reporter.) 11 THE WITNESS: Yes. 12 BY MR. CLARE: 13 Q. Mr. Bornstein, we talked about these drafting 14 sessions that you attended in New York. How many days 15 were you in New York in that first two- or three-week 16 period in March 1998, approximately? 17 A. I don't know, probably between four and six 18 days. 19 Q. And all of the time that you spent there in 20 New York was working on the bond offering documents? 21 A. For the most part, yes. 22 Q. And where did those meetings take place? 23 A. The preliminary ones took place I believe at 24 Scadden Arps' office, and then there was a, as they 25 further went down the line, I think they moved over to	Page 148 1 we assisted in preparing them. 2 Q. When you say the company's, it was Sunbeam's 3 pro formas? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. So this morning in response to a question 6 from Mr. Markowski, and I may have misheard you, I 7 think you said that the pro forma information was 8 prepared by Morgan Stanley. And I wanted to ask you 9 about that. 10 Was any of the pro forma information that you 11 were reviewing prepared by Morgan Stanley? 12 A. I reviewed pro forma information that 13 included cost savings and synergies that was supplied 14 by a guy named Tyrone Chang from Morgan Stanley. Those 15 were separate and different from pro formas that went 16 into the bond offering, because the pro formas going 17 into the bond offering were specific to the 18 transaction, and the new debt, those types of things, 19 but don't have anything to do with cost savings or 20 synergies or any of those types of things. 21 Q. The information that you indicated Mr. Chang 22 provided, for what purpose were you reviewing that? 23 A. I reviewed it for, if they needed help on the 24 tax treatment to how to show the tax benefit. I don't 25 remember anything else other than that from my review

1 of the pro formas.

2 Q. But none of the pro forma information that

3 was prepared or provided to you by Mr. Chang was put

4 into the offering memo?

5 A. Not that I'm aware of, no.

6 Q. So the pro forma information that you

7 discussed, reviewed and that was ultimately included in

8 the offering memorandum was prepared by Sunbeam?

9 A. Sunbeam, and as well as the other companies

10 that were involved. There was Signature Brands, First

11 Alert, Coleman. They were all involved in preparing

12 the pro formas.

13 Q. But as far as the information that went into

14 the offering memorandum, you don't have any information

15 to suggest that Morgan Stanley was involved in 16 preparing those pro forma financial statements?

17 A. As it relates to the numbers, no, but to the 18 disclosures and the footnotes, yes.

19 Q. And you remember discussing those with Morgan

20 Stanley?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. And there was give and take during those

23 sessions where you discussed with John Tyree, the 24 lawyers at Scadden, about the narrative of the offering

25 memorandum?

Page 150

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. And the disclosures that needed to be made?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. And during that time everybody was making

5 suggestions and edits to the document?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. And that was the purpose of that six-day time

8 period that you believe you were in New York was to do

9 that work on the offering memorandum?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Now during that time you were in New York,

12 you were aware that Sunbeam's January and February 1998

13 sales were lower than for the prior time period in

14 1997, correct?

15 A. Honestly, I don't remember the timing of it.

16 I believe so, but I'm not certain.

17 Q. Is it fair to say that for at least a portion

18 of those drafting sessions, you were aware of that

19 information?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And were you in any way frustrated that you

22 had this information, but Morgan Stanley did not?

23 MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.

24 You can answer.

25 THE WITNESS: I don't know if I was, I

Page 151

1 wouldn't call it frustrated, but unsure if they

2 did or not.

3 BY MR. CLARE:

4 Q. Okay. And you had recommended that to

5 Mr. Gluck or told Mr. Gluck that you believed Sunbeam

6 should disclose that information to Morgan Stanley?

7 A. Yes.

8 MR. MARKOWSKI: Isn't that where we started

9 about half an hour ago?

10 BY MR. CLARE:

11 Q. Were you frustrated that Sunbeam hadn't

12 followed through on that while you were at these

13 drafting sessions working day and night with the people

14 from Morgan Stanley and so far as you could tell, they

15 didn't appear to know?

16 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, I have to object to 17 that. That's, I think that's a real compound

18 question.

19 BY MR. CLARE:

20 Q. Okay. Were you frustrated that you couldn't

21 tell whether Morgan Stanley knew this information or

22 not?

23 A. I said I wasn't frustrated. I just at the 24 time found it amazing that it wasn't a topic of 25 conversation of theirs. No one asked the question. I

Page 152

1 wasn't aware if they knew or didn't know. I just know

2 that it wasn't something that was discussed.

3 Q. Okay. Did you have any follow-up

4 conversations with Mr. Gluck during that time period

5 about whether Sunbeam had provided that information to

6 Morgan Stanley?

7 A. I don't recall specifically, no.

8 MR. MOSCATO: While you're doing that, is

9 there any way we can get a little air in here?

10 BY MR. CLARE:

11 Q. And you testified that at some point during

12 the same time period, you had a discussion with 13 Mr. Pruitt about the same subject matter?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. And during that discussion, Mr. Pruitt made a

16 reference to withholding the comfort letter if Sunbeam

17 did not disclose this information to Morgan Stanley?

18 A. I believe I did say that, yes.

19 Q. Is that consistent with your recollection?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And you were a part of that conversation?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. Did you agree with Mr. Pruitt that that was

24 an appropriate thing to do if Sunbeam did not disclose

25 the information to Morgan Stanley about its January and

Page 153

1 February 1998 sales?
 2 A. Did I have an opinion? Is that what you
 3 said?
 4 No, I left it up to him.
 5 Q. Okay. But you didn't think it was
 6 inappropriate for Mr. Pruitt to reach that conclusion?
 7 A. Honestly, I was unaware whether or not
 8 Sunbeam had advised Morgan Stanley at that time. I
 9 was, my understanding was that they did not.
 10 Q. Your understanding was that Sunbeam had not
 11 advised Morgan Stanley?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. And your conversation with Mr. Pruitt was 14 that if that situation wasn't remedied, that Andersen
 15 would withhold its comfort letter?
 16 A. That's what he told me, yes.
 17 Q. Some questions this morning about an 18 accounting due diligence call that you had with Morgan
 19 Stanley during this time period.
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. You participated in that call?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And that was a due diligence call that was 24 requested by Morgan Stanley?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 154

1 Q. You and Mr. Harlow were the participants for
 2 Andersen?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Do you recall, as of the date of the 5 accounting due diligence call, whether Mr. Pastrana had
 6 already advised you about the January and February 1998
 7 sales? Does that help you place in time --
 8 A. Yeah, I'm not sure. I'm not 100 percent sure
 9 that I knew about this on the 12th.
 10 Q. Mr. Gluck was on the call for Sunbeam?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. Was there anybody else on the phone from
 13 Sunbeam?
 14 A. Not that I'm aware of, no.
 15 Q. Am I correct that you requested Mr. Gluck be 16 on the call?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And why?
 19 A. I believe it was an Andersen policy to have 20 someone present from the company on the call or at the
 21 meeting.
 22 Q. Was it, and this is a standard practice, at 23 least at the time that you were at Andersen, to have 24 somebody from the company on the call with underwriters
 25 in a due diligence situation like this?

Page 155

1 A. That was my understanding, yes.
 2 Q. Was there any discussion with Morgan Stanley
 3 about this topic, about whether Mr. Gluck would be on 4 the call or not?
 5 A. Not that I recall.
 6 Q. Was there any discussion between you and
 7 Mr. Harlow about Mr. Gluck's presence on the call?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. And you had been on other due diligence calls
 10 with underwriters where there had been representative
 11 from management on the phone with you?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. In accordance with Andersen's policy?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. Was it your hope at the time that if
 16 Mr. Gluck was on the line with you during this due
 17 diligence call, that he might take that as an 18 opportunity to tell Morgan Stanley about the company's 19 performance in the first two months of 1998?
 20 A. No. I'm not -- no. That wasn't my hope.
 21 Q. Okay. I'm going to show you some of your 22 prior deposition testimony on this subject and see if 23 that refreshes your recollection about that topic and 24 I'll ask you some follow-up questions about it.
 25 MR. CLARE: Let's mark this as Morgan Stanley

 2 (MS Exhibit No. 55 was marked for
 3 identification.)
 4 THE WITNESS: Okay, where would you like me
 5 to look?
 6 BY MR. CLARE:
 7 Q. I'm going to invite your attention to page
 8 780 of this transcript.
 9 A. Can you just, someone tell me when and where 10 this took place? Which one was this?
 11 Q. Sure.
 12 MR. MARKOWSKI: We're celebrating the third
 13 anniversary of it.
 14 THE WITNESS: Is it really that long?
 15 BY MR. CLARE:
 16 Q. This is a deposition transcript taken on 17 Monday, January 15, 2001. Appears to be day five of 18 your deposition testimony.
 19 A. Okay. Where would you like me to turn?
 20 Q. And you can read as much it as you'd like to 21 see if it refreshes your recollection, but specifically
 22 I want to invite your attention to page 780 at the top
 23 of the page. And it might be helpful if you back up to 24 page 778 for context.
 25 A. Okay.

Page 157 1 Q. Have you had an opportunity to review a few 2 pages of your deposition from January of 2001? 3 MR. MARKOWSKI: I think we should be specific 4 about what portion of this he's -- 5 MR. MOSCATO: Now Larry, you've reviewed it. 6 Now close the transcript. 7 BY MR. CLARE: 8 Q. I don't know exactly which pages you reviewed 9 but I invited your attention to pages 778 through 780. 10 A. Yes, that's what I read. 11 Q. Okay. And does having reviewed that 12 deposition testimony, does that refresh your 13 recollection in any way about the sequence of events 14 that we've been discussing; specifically, your 15 conversation with Mr. Gluck about the need to disclose 16 this information to Morgan Stanley and the March 12, 17 1998 accounting due diligence call? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. Okay. And now testifying from your refreshed 20 recollection, is it correct that you had discussed this 21 issue with Mr. Gluck prior to March 12, 1998? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. And prior to March 12, 1998, you and 24 Mr. Harlow had informed Mr. Gluck that Sunbeam's 25 January and February 1998 sales information needed to	Page 159 1 A. No. 2 Q. And Mr. Gluck didn't raise it? 3 A. No. 4 Q. And you didn't raise it and Mr. Harlow didn't 5 raise it? 6 A. Correct. 7 Q. Were the answers that you provided -- strike 8 that. 9 Were you answers that you and Mr. Harlow 10 provided on the March 12, 1998, accounting due 11 diligence call any different because Mr. Gluck was on 12 the line? 13 A. No. 14 Q. If Mr. Gluck had not been on the line, would 15 you or Mr. Harlow have volunteered information about 16 Sunbeam's first quarter sales performance to date? 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: May I have the question back, 18 please. 19 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 20 was read by the reporter.) 21 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object, calls for -- 22 MR. MOSCATO: Answer as to yourself. 23 MR. MARKOWSKI: I would object that it calls 24 for speculation. 25 THE WITNESS: I can't answer for Harlow. If
Page 158 1 be disclosed to Morgan Stanley? 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. And is it correct that at least one of the 4 reasons that you wanted Mr. Gluck on the line for the 5 accounting due diligence call was a hope that he would 6 disclose information about Sunbeam's first quarter 7 performance to Morgan Stanley? 8 A. If the question came up, yes. 9 Q. Okay. But it was your view, independent of 10 whether the question came up, that Sunbeam had a 11 responsibility to disclose it to Morgan Stanley? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. And was it your hope that independent of 14 whether the question came up, that Mr. Gluck might take 15 this opportunity of talking with Morgan Stanley to 16 disclose that information? 17 A. I believe so, yes. 18 Q. Did Mr. Gluck tell Morgan Stanley about 19 Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales on the 20 March 12, 1998, accounting due diligence call? 21 A. I don't believe so, no. 22 Q. Do you have any recollection of that topic 23 coming up? 24 A. No. 25 Q. Morgan Stanley didn't raise it?	Page 160 1 asked the question, I would have answered it 2 truthfully. I wouldn't have volunteered anything. 3 BY MR. CLARE: 4 Q. Because you thought it was Sunbeam's 5 responsibility to tell that information? 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. But your willingness or unwillingness to 8 volunteer that information had nothing to do with 9 whether Mr. Gluck was on the line or not? 10 A. No. 11 Q. Were you any less truthful with Morgan 12 Stanley because Mr. Gluck was on the phone with you for 13 the March 12, 1998, due diligence call? 14 A. No. 15 Q. Were you any less candid with Morgan Stanley 16 because Mr. Gluck was on that call? 17 A. No. 18 Q. If Morgan Stanley had asked the question on 19 March 12, 1998, about Sunbeam's first quarter 20 performance, would you have deferred the response to 21 that question to Mr. Gluck, since he was on the line? 22 A. I have no idea what I would have done. 23 Q. But you believed it was Sunbeam's 24 responsibility to provide that information? 25 A. Yes.

Page 161 1 Q. Was there any discussion before the March 12, 2 1998, accounting due diligence call how you or 3 Mr. Harlow would respond if Morgan Stanley asked that 4 question? 5 MR. MARKOWSKI: Any discussion between 6 Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow? 7 MR. CLARE: That's correct. 8 THE WITNESS: Specifically on that point, I 9 don't recall. 10 BY MR. CLARE: 11 Q. Even generally? 12 A. No. 13 Q. How about between you and Mr. Harlow or with 14 Mr. Gluck? 15 A. No. 16 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm going to ask you to dig 17 out CPH Exhibit 123 that we marked and looked at this 18 morning. 19 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, which one was 123? 20 MR. CLARE: CPH Exhibit 123 is the July 2nd, 21 1998. 22 THE WITNESS: This one right on the top. 23 MR. MOSCATO: This one? 24 BY MR. CLARE: 25 Q. And Mr. Markowski asked you some questions	Page 163 1 out were placed on there during the call. 2 Q. Okay. 3 MR. MOSCATO: The items were placed there or 4 the crossing out? 5 THE WITNESS: The crossing out. 6 BY MR. CLARE: 7 Q. So the items, the handwriting of the specific 8 items were discussed with you and Mr. Harlow before the 9 call, and then during the call as issues came up, you 10 crossed them off as they were discussed? 11 A. Some of them. These I recall were important 12 issues that I wanted to make sure were discussed. 13 Q. If there is handwriting on pages three and 14 four that's not crossed off, does that mean that they 15 weren't discussed on the call or you just didn't cross 16 them off? 17 A. No, I know that a lot more of these were 18 discussed, but these were items that I wanted to make 19 sure that were discussed by Harlow. 20 Q. Now the date of CPH Exhibit 123 is July 2nd, 21 1998, correct? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. And that's the date that you prepared the 24 memo documenting your March 12, 1998, accounting due 25 diligence call?
Page 162 1 about the delay between the date of the call and the 2 date that you started to prepare the memo. Is that 3 correct? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. And you can tell me again if I've got this in 6 any way wrong, but you said you felt it was important 7 to have a record of what was said during that call. 8 A. Yeah, I thought it was more important than, 9 you know, to have something other than the 10 contemporaneous documentation from the call. 11 Q. And that contemporaneous documentation were 12 the handwritten notes that appear on the third and 13 fourth page of CPH Exhibit 123? 14 A. Yes. 15 Q. And those notes that were placed on the third 16 and fourth page of CPH Exhibit 123, some of those notes 17 were prepared there in advance of the call as a result 18 of discussions between you and Mr. Harlow about how you 19 would respond to the questions? 20 A. Yeah, they were all prepared prior. It was 21 all prepared prior to. 22 Q. That's my next question. You anticipated it, 23 whether any of the handwriting on the third or fourth 24 page of Exhibit 123 was placed there during the call. 25 A. I think some of the items that are crossed	Page 164 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. Did you start working on this memo at any 3 point before July 2nd, 1998? 4 A. I don't think so, no. 5 Q. So you did not document your discussions with 6 Morgan Stanley for the accounting due diligence call in 7 this memo format at least until July 2nd, 1998? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. And that was after Mr. Dunlap had been fired 10 from Sunbeam on June 15, 1998? 11 A. I believe so, yes. 12 Q. And after Sunbeam had announced that the SEC 13 was investigating its accounting practices on 14 June 22nd, 1998? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. And that was after Sunbeam announced that it 17 was delaying an SEC filing relating to the debenture 18 offering? 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. And that was after Sunbeam had announced that 21 its 1997 financial statement should not be relied upon? 22 A. I believe so, yes. 23 Q. That was -- 24 A. I think that was June 30. 25 Q. That was June 30?

Page 165 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. So you did not begin to document that 3 conversation with Morgan Stanley until after Sunbeam 4 announced that its 1997 financial statement could not 5 be relied upon? 6 A. Yes. 7 MR. MARKOWSKI: Can I have the question back, 8 please. 9 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 10 was read by the reporter.) 11 MR. MARKOWSKI: I object, mischaracterizes 12 his prior testimony with respect to this. 13 BY MR. CLARE: 14 Q. So you did not begin to document your 15 discussions with Morgan Stanley in memo form until 16 after Sunbeam had announced that its 1997 financial 17 statements should not be relied upon? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. Same question, after Sunbeam announced that 20 its 1997 financial statements may need to be restated, 21 that was also on June 30, 1998. 22 A. I believe so, yes. 23 Q. In drafting your July 2nd, 1998 memo, did you 24 consult with Mr. Harlow about his recollection of what 25 was said on the call?	Page 167 1 their entirety and the responses were as follows." 2 Do you see that? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. Item 4A -- 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. Question four relates to the adequacy of 7 internal controls. Do you see that on the agenda? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. And the response that was indicated on your 10 memo says in part, "No material weaknesses in internal 11 controls were noted." 12 Do you see that? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. Do you recall Mr. Harlow telling Morgan 15 Stanley that no material weaknesses in internal 16 controls were noted by Andersen? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. That's consistent with your recollection of 19 the call? 20 A. I believe so, yes. 21 Q. Do you remember Morgan Stanley asking that 22 question and Mr. Harlow providing that answer? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. Number eight asks, "How aggressive is the 25 company in its accounting policies?"
Page 166 1 A. He reviewed it. I don't specifically 2 remember asking him. 3 Q. So you prepared a draft and Mr. Harlow 4 reviewed it? 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. Do you remember any discussions with 7 Mr. Harlow about the draft that you had prepared or any 8 changes that he asked to be made to your draft? 9 A. I don't recall, no. 10 Q. What about Mr. Gluck? Did you provide a 11 draft of the July 2nd, 1998, memo to Mr. Gluck? 12 A. No. 13 Q. Why not? 14 A. It was for Arthur Andersen's files. 15 Q. The typewritten memo that's the first two 16 pages of CPH Exhibit 123, this was your effort to 17 distill from the notes the questions that were asked 18 and the responses that were given on the call? 19 A. For the most part, yes. 20 Q. The third paragraph says, "Attached is the 21 agenda as well as notes from that meeting. Mr. Savori 22 and Mr. Lurie asked the questions and Mr. Harlow 23 provided responses." 24 A. Yes. 25 Q. "The questions from the agenda were asked in	Page 168 1 Do you see that? 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. There was some testimony this morning about 4 bill and hold and Encore and EPI, and those items are 5 crossed off on page three. 6 A. Right. 7 Q. Do you see that? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. Looking at your typewritten memo, the 10 response that appears after item eight, "On a scale of 11 one to ten, around a five or six." 12 Do you see that? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. Do you recall Mr. Harlow ranking how 15 aggressive Sunbeam's accounting policies are on a scale 16 of one to ten? 17 A. Yes. That's, I recall him addressing 18 initially the issue that way. 19 Q. Okay. 20 A. And then going into some of the detail we 21 talked about earlier. 22 Q. But it's your recollection that on a scale of 23 one to ten, Mr. Harlow told Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam 24 was about a five or six in terms of the aggressiveness 25 of its accounting policies?

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And Mr. Harlow's ranking of the 3 aggressiveness of the accounting policies were part of 4 the same conversation when he was discussing bill and
 5 hold, Encore, EPI?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. Item ten on the agenda asks whether any major
 8 adjustments were recommended.
 9 A. Yes.
 10 MR. MOSCATO: Material.
 11 MR. CLARE: Thank you, material.
 12 BY MR. CLARE:
 13 Q. Item ten on the agenda -- my copy says major.
 14 THE WITNESS: Material.
 15 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry. You're right. My 16 object apologies.
 17 MR. CLARE: That's okay.
 18 THE WITNESS: The Morgan Stanley letter
 19 requesting the question is major and on my 20 typewritten it's material.
 21 BY MR. CLARE:
 22 Q. Okay. So just to make sure we're all clear,
 23 on page three of CPH Exhibit 123, item ten, the 24 question that Morgan Stanley provided to you in writing
 25 was whether any major adjustments were recommended.

Page 170

1 A. Correct.
 2 Q. And in handwriting under that it says, "Not
 3 material, Encore or EPI."
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. Do you remember discussing that issue with 6 Morgan Stanley; in other words, Andersen's view that
 7 the Encore and EPI adjustments were not material?
 8 A. Yes, I do remember that.
 9 Q. And that recollection is in fact recorded on 10 point 10 of your typewritten memo, which says no
 11 material adjustments were recorded?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. Now page three of the Exhibit CPH 123 has a
 14 header on it that says Project One Time accounting due 15 diligence. Do you see that?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. What does Project One Time refer to?
 18 A. I have no idea.
 19 Q. Are you aware that the project name that 20 Sunbeam had given to these acquisitions was Project
 21 Laser?
 22 A. Yeah, I recollected that from something I
 23 just looked at earlier, yes.
 24 Q. But that's consistent with your recollection
 25 from 1998?

Page 171

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. Do you have an understanding as to why the
 3 sheet that you have here as part of your exhibit says
 4 Project One Time, when the project name was Project
 5 Laser?
 6 A. You'd have to ask the person who put it
 7 together and sent it to me. I have no idea.
 8 Q. That was my question. You don't have any 9 understanding of that?
 10 A. No, no idea.
 11 Q. I will represent to you and I can show you
 12 the documents that other people who were on the call --
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. -- got an agenda sheet that said the word
 15 Project Laser --
 16 A. Really? Interesting.
 17 Q. -- on it, and I wanted to know if you had any 18 explanation for why the document that was attached to 19 CPH 123 from your files says Project One Time.
 20 A. No.
 21 MR. MARKOWSKI: When you represent, Tom, that 22 other people on the call got a different agenda,
 23 what call are you referring to, the Arthur
 24 Andersen call, or the call with the other
 25 accounting firms?

Page 172

1 MR. CLARE: I'm representing the Arthur
 2 Andersen call. In fact, why don't we just mark
 3 those as exhibits and I'll ask you about it
 4 specifically, the two documents.
 5 THE WITNESS: Okay.
 6 MR. CLARE: This is 56.
 7 (MS Exhibit Nos. 56 and 57 were marked for
 8 identification.)
 9 THE WITNESS: Okay.
 10 BY MR. CLARE:
 11 Q. And I'm showing you what's been marked as 12 Morgan Stanley Exhibit 56 and Morgan Stanley 57. These 13 are a series of faxes, two faxes from Shani Boone at 14 Morgan Stanley to Mr. Freed at Scadden Arps in 15 Exhibit 56 and Mr. Molitor at First Union in 57.
 16 Do you see that?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. Just looking at Exhibit 56 for a moment, the 19 second page of it is the agenda that Mr. Markowski went 20 through with you this morning.
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. And it shows a series of accounting due
 23 diligence calls beginning at 11:30 a.m. and going
 24 through start time of 1:00.
 25 A. Yes.

Page 173

1 Q. And then after that, there are documents, an
 2 agenda for those calls --
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. -- that are similar in form to the ones that
 5 we were just looking at attached to your typewritten
 6 memo?
 7 A. Yes, similar.
 8 Q. Similar in form, but not identical?
 9 A. I don't believe identical, but I haven't
 10 proofed them both.
 11 Q. One of the ways in which they are not
 12 identical is the header on the documents that were sent 13 to Mr. Freed and Mr. Moliter say Product Laser 14 accounting due diligence, and the agenda that is 15 attached to your July 2nd memo says Project One Time.
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Do you see that?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. And there are other differences in the agenda
 20 are that are, speak for themselves.
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. And do you have any explanation for why your 23 agenda was different than other participants in the 24 call?
 25 A. No. It would only be speculation.

Page 174

1 Q. But you don't have any explanation for the 2 discrepancy between the agenda that First Union and
 3 Scadden Arps had and the agenda that's attached to your
 4 July 2nd --
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. -- '98 memo?
 7 MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you've assumed
 8 something that you haven't proved yet at this 9 point in time, which is the agenda used in 56 and 10 57 was in fact the agenda used by those other 11 parties in connection with the call as opposed to 12 a draft of what was ultimately sent to 13 Mr. Bornstein and to Mr. Harlow.
 14 MR. CLARE: All I'm trying to do is 15 understand whether Mr. Bornstein has any 16 information about that, and he has told me -- and 17 correct me if I'm wrong -- that you don't have any 18 understanding or explanation for why others that 19 were on the call had a different agenda than the 20 one attached to your July 2nd.
 21 MR. MARKOWSKI: Well, that's the fact I'm 22 saying, I'm objecting to on the ground it assumes 23 facts not in evidence. You haven't shown that the 24 documents attached to 56 and 57 were in fact the 25 agendas used by Scadden or by First Union in

Page 175

1 connection with the telephone call.
 2 MR. CLARE: Okay. Well, I'll show that
 3 through different witnesses, and we'll take that
 4 up not on Mr. Bornstein's time.
 5 THE WITNESS: I have no idea.
 6 BY MR. CLARE:
 7 Q. Do you recall -- you don't have any
 8 explanation for that discrepancy as you sit here today?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. I want to go back to your July 2nd, 1998,
 11 memo for a moment.
 12 Question 16 on the agenda asks the question,
 13 "Company is conservative and leans to full disclosure,"
 14 question mark. Do you see that?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. And your handwritten note says yes, and it's 17 circled. Do you see that?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. On July 2nd, 19 -- I'm sorry, new question.
 20 On March 12, 1998, did you or Mr. Harlow tell
 21 Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam was conservative and leans
 22 toward full disclosure?
 23 A. As it relates to their financial statements,
 24 yes.
 25 Q. Okay. Is there a distinction there? Did you

Page 176

1 make any discussion with Morgan Stanley about ways in
 2 which Sunbeam was not conservative and leaned towards
 3 full disclosure on the call?
 4 A. No, not that I'm aware of.
 5 Q. So the question was asked the company is 6 conservative and leans to full disclosure, and the 7 answer that you and Mr. Harlow gave was yes.
 8 A. I believe as it relates to the financial 9 statements is what we were talking about.
 10 Q. Okay. But did you say that, do you have a
 11 recollection of saying that on the call?
 12 A. No, I don't.
 13 Q. And in fact, your typewritten memo
 14 memorializing the answers that were given to Morgan
 15 Stanley answers the question yes?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. And that's consistent with your recollection
 18 of what was said on the call?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 MR. CLARE: We need to take a short break to 21 change the videotape.
 22 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off
 23 videotape number two. We'll be back on videotape
 24 number three. The time on the monitor is
 25 1:30 p.m.

Page 177 1 (Discussion held off the record.) 2 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video 3 record. This is tape number three. The time on 4 the monitor, 1:31 p.m. 5 BY MR. CLARE: 6 Q. Mr. Bornstein, just before the break, I was 7 asking you about item 16 from your July 2nd, 1998 memo. 8 And this relates to the question that Morgan 9 Stanley asked about whether Sunbeam was conservative 10 and leans to full disclosure. 11 On the March 12, 1998 accounting due 12 diligence call, did you tell Morgan Stanley that 13 Sunbeam had resisted including disclosures of its bill 14 and hold sales in its 1997 10K? 15 A. Did we tell Morgan Stanley -- 16 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, repeat that 17 question. 18 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 19 was read by the reporter.) 20 MR. MOSCATO: Answer the question yes or no. 21 Did you? 22 THE WITNESS: No. 23 BY MR. CLARE: 24 Q. Did you tell Morgan Stanley on the March 12, 25 1998 call that Mr. Gluck was resistant about disclosing	Page 179 1 Q. And one of them related to bill and hold 2 sales? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. And one of them related to the 5 reclassification of restructuring reserves? 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. And there were other times that you 8 approached Mr. Gluck about disclosure issues? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. And during those approaches to Mr. Gluck, in 11 several of those conversations Mr. Gluck told you to 12 fuck off when you raised those issues with him? 13 A. Yeah, that was pretty common. 14 Q. And it happened on a number of occasions 15 when you raised disclosure issues with Mr. Gluck? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. On the March 12, 1998, accounting due 18 diligence call with Morgan Stanley, did you tell Morgan 19 Stanley in words or in substance that Mr. Gluck had 20 told you to fuck off when you had raised disclosure 21 issues with him? 22 A. No. 23 Q. Now the March 12, 1998, telephone 24 conversation was not the only time that you had an 25 opportunity to talk about Sunbeam with Morgan Stanley,
Page 178 1 Sunbeam's bill and hold sales from the first day that 2 you had raised the issue with them until the day that 3 the 10K was filed? 4 A. I don't know about the time period. 5 Q. But you didn't say that to Morgan Stanley? 6 MR. MOSCATO: Did you say those words to 7 Morgan Stanley? 8 THE WITNESS: No, I did not. 9 BY MR. CLARE: 10 Q. Did you say anything like that to Morgan 11 Stanley about Sunbeam's bill and hold disclosures? 12 A. No 13 Q. Did you tell Morgan Stanley in words or in 14 substance that Sunbeam had resisted disclosing its 15 reclassification of restructuring reserves in 16 connection with its 10K? 17 A. No 18 Q. And, Mr. Bornstein, I've read your prior 19 deposition testimony, and there are a series of 20 discussions that are reflected in that testimony that I 21 want to ask you about. 22 On several occasions during your interactions 23 with Sunbeam you approached Mr. Gluck relating to 24 disclosure issues; is that correct? 25 A. Yes.	Page 180 1 correct? 2 A. Correct. 3 Q. You had participated in drafting sessions for 4 the offering memo in New York? 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. And during that session or sessions, did 7 Morgan Stanley ask additional questions of you about 8 Sunbeam? 9 A. No. 10 Q. Is there any documentation of those 11 conversations? 12 A. No. 13 Q. So in the course of preparing the offering 14 memorandum and the back and forth that occurred, your 15 testimony is that at no point during those discussions 16 did Morgan Stanley ask you for information about 17 Sunbeam or its financial statements? 18 A. They asked questions, but nothing specific 19 that I can recall. 20 Q. Okay. But they asked you questions during 21 those drafting sessions? 22 A. Right. 23 Q. And there was a give and take in preparing 24 the offering memorandum? 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. And that give and take related to the subject
 2 of Sunbeam?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. And that how Sunbeam would be described in 5 the offering memorandum that you were collectively
 6 working on?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. March 19, 1998, the meeting you had with 9 Mr. Tyree and others at Global Financial Press, that 10 was another opportunity that you had time to spend with
 11 Morgan Stanley?
 12 A. Yes.
 13 Q. And how many hours would you say that you
 14 spent with Morgan Stanley that evening?
 15 A. Ten.
 16 Q. And during that evening, did Morgan Stanley
 17 and its representatives ask you questions about
 18 Sunbeam?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Mr. Bornstein, this morning and in prior
 21 depositions you've offered your opinion about Morgan
 22 Stanley's due diligence, correct?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. And your opinion is that Morgan Stanley's due
 25 diligence in connection with the bond offering is poor?

Page 182

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. Can you give me the basis for your belief
 3 that Morgan Stanley's due diligence for the bond
 4 offering was poor?
 5 A. Basically that they never asked very simple
 6 questions that should have been asked and that, at 7 least my understanding of the people that were 8 involved, which was basically Mr. Tyree, that he was 9 very distracted and had a lot of other things going on 10 and didn't really know what the hell was going on with 11 this deal basically.
 12 Q. So you've identified two reasons why you
 13 think Morgan Stanley's due diligence was poor.
 14 Are there any others that you can think of?
 15 A. You know, that they were aware that the due
 16 diligence, financial due diligence that was performed
 17 by Arthur Andersen & Company of First Alert, Signature
 18 Brands and Coleman was limited at best, and probably,
 19 you know, was in a four or five-day period of time.
 20 Q. Now you're talking, in your answer to my last 21 question, you're answering specifically with regard to 22 the due diligence that was performed by Morgan Stanley
 23 on the target companies, correct?
 24 A. I'm not sure what Morgan Stanley did on the 25 target companies, but they were aware of the limited

Page 183

1 amount of due diligence that the company had done on
 2 the three target acquisition companies.
 3 Q. Okay. Anything else that forms the basis for 4 your opinion that Morgan Stanley's due diligence was 5 poor?
 6 A. No, not that I can think of.
 7 Q. What were the simple questions that Morgan
 8 Stanley should have asked in your opinion but didn't?
 9 A. How is the company doing now? Simple as
 10 that.
 11 Q. Is that the only one?
 12 A. They probably should ask more questions on 13 the financial statement. They should have probably 14 asked more detailed questions on bill and hold
 15 transactions. They probably should have asked a lot
 16 more questions on the estimates and the projections
 17 that Mr. Dunlap had touted. I forget what they were,
 18 but basic questions.
 19 Q. Were all of the questions that you've just 20 identified suggested by the public statements that 21 Sunbeam had made?
 22 A. I don't understand the question.
 23 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
 24 BY MR. CLARE:
 25 Q. You asked, you said that Morgan Stanley

Page 184

1 should have asked additional questions about the
 2 financial statements, correct?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. And the assumptions that went into the
 5 financial statements?
 6 A. They should ask some questions on the 7 financial statements, yes.
 8 Q. These were Sunbeam's audited financial 9 statements that you're referring to?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. And those financial statements at least for 12 1997 were publicly available?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. You said that Morgan Stanley should have 15 asked some additional questions about bill and hold.
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Bill and hold transactions were also publicly
 18 disclosed by Sunbeam in its 1997 10K, correct?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. And were there any other questions that you
 21 think Morgan Stanley should have asked that they didn't 22 beside the ones you've testified to?
 23 A. Specifically, no.
 24 Q. Do you have any knowledge or information
 25 about the trip that Morgan Stanley made to Sunbeam

Page 185

1 headquarters on March 4th and 5th to conduct due
 2 diligence?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. You weren't present for any of those
 5 meetings?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. Did anybody ever report to you what was
 8 discussed during that due diligence meeting?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Do you have any knowledge or information
 11 about Morgan Stanley's bring-down due diligence
 12 telephone conference with Sunbeam's management?
 13 A. I don't recall if I was part of that. I
 14 don't believe so.
 15 Q. I don't believe you were either, but do you
 16 have any knowledge or information about that?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. Did anybody report to you what was said or 19 discussed during those telephone calls?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. Specifically, the bring-down telephone calls
 22 that were done with Sunbeam management by Morgan
 23 Stanley to conduct due diligence.
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Do you have any knowledge or information

Page 186

1 about trips that were taken by Morgan Stanley to
 2 Sunbeam in September of 1997 to conduct due diligence
 3 on Sunbeam?
 4 A. No.
 5 Q. Were you present for any of those meetings?
 6 A. I don't believe so, no.
 7 Q. And nobody has reported to you what was said
 8 or discussed during those due diligence meetings?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Do you have any knowledge or information
 11 about what documents Morgan Stanley requested and 12 received from Sunbeam management?
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. Were you involved in communicating either
 15 requests from Morgan Stanley to Sunbeam management or 16 communicating those documents back from Sunbeam
 17 management to Morgan Stanley?
 18 A. No.
 19 Q. So you don't know one way or the other what 20 documents were requested and received by Morgan
 21 Stanley?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. Are you, do you have any knowledge or 24 information about the documents that were provided to 25 Morgan Stanley by Scadden Arps as part of the due

Page 187

1 diligence process?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Do you have any knowledge or information
 4 about other documents that Morgan Stanley reviewed as 5 part of the due diligence process?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. And so your opinion about Morgan Stanley's
 8 due diligence is based strictly on your personal
 9 interaction with representatives from Morgan Stanley?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. So do you have any basis one way or another
 12 to evaluate the overall due diligence conducted by 13 Morgan Stanley in connection with the bond offering?
 14 A. No.

 10 CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued)
 11 BY MR. CLARE:
 12 Q. Mr. Bornstein, before the break we were
 13 talking about your opinions about Morgan Stanley's due
 14 diligence. You indicated in response to one of my 15 questions that one of the bases for your opinion was 16 your observation that Mr. Tyree was distracted.
 17 Do you have any basis for that other than 18 your personal observation?
 19 A. During the time period trying to communicate
 20 with him and talk to him, he was working on another
 21 deal I think at the time, I believe, and it was 22 difficult to get in touch with him if needed.
 23 Q. Other than the fact that it was difficult to 24 get in touch with Mr. Tyree, do you have any basis for 25 your opinion that he was distracted?

Page 192

1 A. The lack of knowledge of what I saw of what
 2 he knew about the company.
 3 Q. But again --
 4 A. That's --
 5 Q. Please.
 6 A. That's just my opinion.
 7 Q. But you don't know what steps Mr. Tyree took 8 outside of your presence to obtain information or 9 knowledge about the company?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. And do you know whether Mr. Tyree was 12 performing Sunbeam-related duties on some of the 13 occasions when you could not get in touch with him or 14 on another deal?
 15 A. No, I have no idea.
 16 Q. You don't know one way or the other?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. I want to switch now to a different topic.
 19 Back in the first quarter of 1998, you knew
 20 that Sunbeam was acquiring the Coleman company,
 21 correct?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And you knew that the acquisition was a stock
 24 and cash deal?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 193 1 Q. And by that, I mean that Sunbeam would be 2 providing to the owners of Coleman cash as a portion of 3 the purchase price and stock as a portion of the 4 purchase price? 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. And that is Sunbeam stock? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. And did you know that the acquisition 9 required for Coleman (Parent) Holdings Company which 10 owned a portion of Coleman to receive over 14 million 11 shares of Sunbeam stock as part of the purchase price? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. You knew that back in the first quarter of 14 1998? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. And did you also know that after the sale had 17 taken place that Coleman (Parent) Holdings Company 18 would be a significant shareholder of Sunbeam? 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. Were you informed in the first quarter of 21 1998 by anybody that Coleman and its corporate parents 22 would be conducting their own due diligence on Sunbeam? 23 A. I wasn't aware of anything, no. 24 Q. You were not told anything by the people at 25 Sunbeam that Coleman or its parent corporations would	Page 195 1 representatives as part of the acquisition transaction? 2 A. No. 3 Q. You were not part of any in-person meetings 4 with Coleman (Parent) Holdings or any of its 5 representatives for that purpose? 6 A. No. 7 Q. Any telephone conferences? 8 A. No. 9 Q. Were you ever asked to participate in an 10 accounting due diligence call with Coleman (Parent) 11 Holdings like the one that Morgan Stanley had conducted 12 that you participated in? 13 A. Not that I recall. 14 Q. Were you aware that Coleman (Parent) Holdings 15 was, and Coleman were being represented in the 16 transaction by Credit Suisse First Boston as their 17 investment advisor? 18 A. No. 19 Q. Did you have any dealings with CSFB during 20 the first quarter of 1998? 21 A. No. 22 Q. Did you receive any inquiries from CSFB 23 during the first quarter of 1998 about Sunbeam or its 24 financial performance? 25 A. No.
Page 194 1 be conducting due diligence? 2 A. Not that I'm aware of, no. 3 Q. Were you ever informed by any source that 4 Morgan Stanley had been tasked to perform due diligence 5 on behalf of Coleman and its corporate parent? 6 A. No. 7 Q. Did you receive any instructions from Sunbeam 8 about any inquiries that you might get from Coleman 9 (Parent) Holdings and its corporate parent? 10 A. No. 11 Q. Did anybody ever tell you in words or in 12 substance not to provide Coleman (Parent) Holdings and 13 its corporate parent with any information that they 14 requested? 15 A. No. 16 Q. Did anybody ever instruct you to channel all 17 information for Coleman (Parent) Holdings through 18 Morgan Stanley? 19 A. No. 20 Q. Do you have a recollection of any inquiry 21 that you received that you understood to be made on 22 behalf of Coleman (Parent) Holdings? 23 A. No. 24 Q. Are you aware of any due diligence that was 25 performed by Coleman (Parent) Holdings or its	Page 196 1 Q. Are you aware of any inquiries that Andersen 2 received, even if you were not personally involved, 3 from anybody representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings? 4 A. Not that I'm aware of. 5 Q. Are you aware of any inquiries from Coleman 6 (Parent) Holdings on the subject of Sunbeam's bill and 7 hold sales? 8 A. No. 9 Q. Are you aware of any inquiries from anyone 10 representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings about the bill 11 and hold disclosures that were in Sunbeam's 1997 10K? 12 A. No. 13 Q. Or whether Sunbeam was engaged in bill and 14 hold sales in the first quarter of 1998? 15 A. No. 16 Q. Or Sunbeam's Early Buy program? 17 A. No. 18 Q. Or the Early Buy program disclosures that 19 were in the 1997 10K? 20 A. No. 21 Q. Or the impact of Sunbeam's Early Buy program 22 on Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales? 23 A. No. 24 Q. Or Sunbeam's quarter-to-date sales in the 25 first quarter of 1998?

1 A. No.
 2 Q. At any point in time?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Are you aware of any inquiries from anyone
 5 representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings after the 6 March 19, 1998, press release about Sunbeam's first
 7 quarter performance?
 8 A. Can you repeat the question?
 9 (Thereupon, a portion of the record
 10 was read by the reporter.)
 11 THE WITNESS: No, not until after Mr. Dunlap
 12 was terminated.
 13 BY MR. CLARE:
 14 Q. When you say not until after Mr. Dunlap was 15 terminated, it was at that point that a new management
 16 team was installed?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And then inquiries were made by the new 19 management team?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. But limiting ourselves to the first quarter
 22 of 1998 and inquiries that may have been received from 23 Coleman (Parent) Holdings during the first quarter of 24 1998, are you aware from any source of any inquiries
 25 that were made by Coleman (Parent) Holdings or any of

Page 198

1 its representatives after the March 19, '98 press
 2 release?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. So no inquiries between March 19, 1998, and
 5 the end of the first quarter?
 6 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the
 7 question.
 8 THE WITNESS: Not that I'm aware of, no.
 9 BY MR. CLARE:
 10 Q. Are you aware that on April 3rd, 1998,
 11 Sunbeam announced that its first quarter 1998 sales
 12 were, had fallen short of the first quarter 1997? Were 13 you generally aware of that?
 14 A. I believe it was the second press release. I
 15 don't remember specifically what it said.
 16 Q. But you're aware that shortly after the first
 17 quarter, Sunbeam issued a press release like the one I
 18 just described?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Were you aware of any inquiries from Coleman
 21 (Parent) Holdings or anyone representing
 22 Coleman (Parent) Holdings after that April 3rd, 1998
 23 press release?
 24 MR. MARKOWSKI: I want to make sure we're 25 clear here. You've been focusing on inquiries of

Page 199

1 Andersen. Are you broadening the question now?
 2 MR. CLARE: No. Any inquiries that
 3 Mr. Bornstein is aware of, made to anyone, but 4 specifically within his knowledge.
 5 MR. MARKOWSKI: So an inquiry to anyone, not
 6 specifically to Arthur Andersen?
 7 MR. CLARE: Correct.
 8 THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of anything.
 9 BY MR. CLARE:
 10 Q. In 1998, the first quarter, as you prepared
 11 to assist Sunbeam with these acquisition transactions,
 12 did you have an expectation that Coleman or its 13 corporate parent might want it ask questions of Arthur
 14 Andersen?
 15 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the
 16 question.
 17 THE WITNESS: I thought it was possible, yes.
 18 BY MR. CLARE:
 19 Q. So that thought did occur to you back in the 20 first quarter of 1998?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. And you testified that you're not aware of 23 any inquiries that were made to Andersen and certainly 24 not to you from Coleman (Parent) Holdings or its 25 corporate parent?

Page 200

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. In the first quarter of 1998, did you, were
 3 you surprised by the lack of inquiry from Coleman
 4 (Parent) Holdings or its corporate parent?
 5 A. I'd say yes.
 6 Q. And did you form an opinion about the quality
 7 of due diligence done by Coleman (Parent) Holdings on 8 Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998?
 9 MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection, lack of
 10 foundation.
 11 THE WITNESS: I wasn't aware of any that they
 12 did, so if you want to repeat the question, I
 13 don't know if I answered it.
 14 BY MR. CLARE:
 15 Q. Sure. You were surprised that they didn't do
 16 any due diligence, to your knowledge?
 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 18 question. Mischaracterizes his answer.
 19 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 20 BY MR. CLARE:
 21 Q. If there had been inquiries that were made by
 22 Coleman (Parent) Holdings or any of its representatives
 23 to Sunbeam -- strike that, withdrawn.
 24 If there had been any inquiries made by
 25 Coleman (Parent) Holdings or any of its representatives

Page 201

1 to Andersen about Sunbeam, would you have expected to
 2 be notified?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. And because you were the number three person
 5 on the Andersen team advising Sunbeam at the time?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. And because you were the point person for 8 these acquisition transactions and working with Morgan
 9 Stanley on its due diligence, you and Mr. Harlow?
 10 A. We were working for Sunbeam on the due
 11 diligence, not Morgan Stanley.
 12 Q. Correct, but you were working with Morgan
 13 Stanley in responding to their inquiries as part of 14 their due diligence?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. And so you would expect that if there were 17 inquiries from Coleman (Parent) Holdings, that you and 18 Mr. Harlow would also be involved in those?
 19 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the
 20 question.
 21 THE WITNESS: I would think so, yes.
 22 BY MR. CLARE:
 23 Q. Okay. Based on the total lack of due
 24 diligence that you observed from Coleman (Parent)
 25 Holdings, would you agree with me that Morgan Stanley's

Page 202

1 due diligence of Sunbeam was more comprehensive than
 2 Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
 3 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object, lack of foundation.
 4 BY MR. CLARE:
 5 Q. From your observation.
 6 A. From my observation, yes.
 7 MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
 8 BY MR. CLARE:
 9 Q. Sorry?
 10 A. From where I stood, yes.
 11 Q. So from your perspective, Morgan Stanley
 12 spent more time conducting due diligence of Sunbeam
 13 than Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
 14 MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection, lack of
 15 foundation.
 16 THE WITNESS: From my vantage point, yes.
 17 BY MR. CLARE:
 18 Q. And from your vantage point -- and again,
 19 that's all I'm asking you about is what you have 20 personal knowledge of -- from your vantage point,
 21 Morgan Stanley conducted more comprehensive due
 22 diligence than Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
 23 MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
 24 THE WITNESS: I would have to say more. I
 25 don't know how comprehensive it was, but more.

Page 203

1 BY MR. CLARE:
 2 Q. It was more comprehensive than the due
 3 diligence performed by Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
 4 MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
 5 THE WITNESS: I wasn't aware of any due
 6 diligence done by Coleman that I was aware of.
 7 BY MR. CLARE:
 8 Q. So Morgan Stanley did due diligence and 9 Coleman (Parent) Holdings did not, from your 10 perspective?
 11 MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
 12 THE WITNESS: From my perspective, yes.
 13 BY MR. CLARE:
 14 Q. And you were surprised by the fact that 15 Coleman (Parent) Holdings had not done any due
 16 diligence that had been directed to you?
 17 MR. MOSCATO: I'm not going to make a big 18 deal of it. I kind of have an objection of 19 repeating the same question numerous times.
 20 You can answer, Larry.
 21 THE WITNESS: I think I just stated I was
 22 surprised.
 23 BY MR. CLARE:
 24 Q. And you were surprised back in the first
 25 quarter of 1998?

Page 204

1 A. Yes.
 2 MR. MOSCATO: Part of my objection goes to
 3 the fact that he's a busy man. I really would 4 appreciate it if you are making points, just not
 5 to belabor them.
 6 MR. CLARE: I understand. I just want to 7 make sure, as you pointed out earlier, that the 8 record is clear about Mr. Bornstein's testimony.
 9 MR. MOSCATO: I think it's more than clear at 10 this point. Go ahead, I'm sorry to interrupt.
 11 MR. CLARE: That's okay.
 12 BY MR. CLARE:
 13 Q. Have you had experience in other engagements
 14 when you were at Andersen in which you were advising
 15 the client that was involved in an acquisition?
 16 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry.
 17 BY MR. CLARE:
 18 Q. In other words, besides Sunbeam, were you
 19 involved in other acquisition transactions while you
 20 were at Andersen?
 21 MR. MOSCATO: Is that your question?
 22 MR. CLARE: Yes.
 23 MR. MOSCATO: My objection was to advising
 24 the client about an acquisition, because I don't
 25 think there is any testimony --

Page 205 1 MR. CLARE: That's fine, I withdraw that. 2 MR. MOSCATO: Okay. 3 BY MR. CLARE: 4 Q. Were you involved in any engagement at 5 Andersen in which Andersen was involved in responding 6 to due diligence inquiries in an acquisition setting 7 besides the Sunbeam one? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. And in those situations, were you involved in 10 receiving or responding to requests that were made by 11 the party that was investing in Andersen's client? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. And were you involved in those other 14 situations in responding to requests from the 15 investor's financial advisors? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. And their lawyers? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. And in those situations, you had also met 20 with the investing company's accountants? 21 A. Yes. 22 Q. But none of that happened in connection with 23 the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman; is that right? 24 MR. MARKOWSKI: None of what? 25 MR. CLARE: None of those items that I just	Page 207 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. Did you think you had done an adequate job of 3 conducting due diligence on Coleman from an accounting 4 perspective? 5 MR. MOSCATO: I object. 6 BY MR. CLARE: 7 Q. Did you have a view at the time? 8 A. I didn't think it was adequate, no. 9 Q. And did you inform anybody of your view that 10 it was inadequate? 11 A. The people I was traveling with. Yes, the 12 answer is yes. 13 Q. Who? 14 A. Bob Gluck. 15 Q. So you told -- 16 A. Janet Kelly, there was another guy there, Bob 17 Tottie, I believe his name was. 18 Q. Was there anybody from Morgan Stanley present 19 at that meeting? 20 A. No. 21 Q. Did you ever express that view to Morgan 22 Stanley that you thought the due diligence that had 23 been done on Coleman by Sunbeam was inadequate? 24 A. I believe I probably did, yeah. 25 Q. As you sit here today, do you have a
Page 206 1 described. 2 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 3 question. 4 THE WITNESS: That's all over the place, the 5 question, I'm sorry. 6 BY MR. CLARE: 7 Q. Okay. Did you accompany -- let me withdraw 8 that. 9 Were you involved in conducting due diligence 10 on Coleman? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. And you met with Coleman's outside 13 accountants as part of that due diligence? 14 A. Yes. 15 Q. And you asked questions of them about 16 Coleman's financial condition? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. And how many days did you spend doing that 19 with Coleman specifically? 20 A. One. 21 Q. And then you spent one day each with the 22 other acquisition targets? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. And that was as part of Sunbeam's due 25 diligence on Coleman, that one day of due diligence?	Page 208 1 recollection of when and where and to whom that 2 information was provided at Morgan Stanley? 3 A. No, not specifically, no. 4 Q. Generally? 5 A. No. 6 Q. So you can't testify about a particular 7 conversation that you had or a particular document that 8 was written to communicate that information to Morgan 9 Stanley? 10 A. No. 11 Q. I want to switch topics to focus on the day 12 at the print shop. 13 A. Okay. 14 Q. And I want to start where you started earlier 15 this morning about when you were in the hotel room with 16 Mr. Brockelman watching television. 17 And again, just to be clear, this was 18 March 19, 1998, the day that the press release was 19 issued? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. And you were watching television with 22 Mr. Brockelman? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. And it was a report on CNBC? 25 A. I believe so, yeah.

Page 209 1 Q. And your recollection is it was a text 2 crawler on the bottom of the screen? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. It was not a news report with a live 5 interview or a news person that was communicating this 6 information, to the best of your recollection? 7 A. Yeah, I think I do remember alive 8 conversation on it, but I'm not 100 percent sure. 9 Q. And you recall that the news report indicated 10 that the first quarter 1998 sales might not meet 11 analysts' expectations? That was part of the news 12 report that you remember hearing? 13 A. Honestly, I just remember early morning 14 release Sunbeam's sales reports, sales are going to be 15 below expectations. I don't remember anything specific 16 about it. 17 Q. That was my question, was whether you 18 remember whether the statement in the press release 19 about first quarter 1997 sales was part of the report 20 that you saw. 21 A. I don't remember. 22 Q. You don't remember one way or the other? 23 A. No. 24 Q. Was there any mention of Morgan Stanley in 25 the press release, the press report that you saw on	Page 211 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. So this news report on CNBC was not the first 3 time you were hearing that information? 4 MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm going to object. He said 5 he can't remember whether the information about 6 the first quarter of '97 was part of the 7 announcement. 8 MR. CLARE: And I didn't ask him about that. 9 MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question 10 back, please. 11 MR. CLARE: Fair enough. Now I understand 12 your objection, Bob, I'm sorry. 13 BY MR. CLARE: 14 Q. Was Mr. Brockelman present when you called 15 Mr. Harlow to ask him about the, what had happened? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. About the press release? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. And you said you couldn't remember whether it 20 was Mr. Harlow or Mr. Gluck that you ultimately got in 21 touch with from your hotel room? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. Did either Mr. Harlow or Mr. Gluck read you 24 the entire press release over the phone? 25 A. I don't remember if they did or if I got it
Page 210 1 CNBC? 2 A. I don't remember. 3 Q. Do you remember if there were any mention of 4 the debenture offering? 5 A. No. 6 Q. Or the pending acquisitions? 7 A. I don't recall anything, no. 8 Q. Was CNBC reporting on the reaction of the 9 stock to this news? 10 A. I believe so, yeah. 11 Q. And what do you recall was the stock price 12 that day? 13 A. I thought it went down significantly. I 14 don't remember exactly what it was. 15 Q. Is that all you remember about the press 16 report that you saw? 17 A. On TV? 18 Q. Yes. 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. And at the time that you saw the press 21 release -- sorry, withdrawn. 22 At the time that you saw the press report on 23 CNBC, you knew from your prior conversation with 24 Mr. Pastrana that Sunbeam sales for the first two 25 months of 1998 were lower than the prior year, right?	Page 212 1 faxed, I don't recall. 2 Q. Did you learn from any source during that 3 phone conversation who had drafted the press release? 4 A. I don't remember. 5 Q. During that telephone conversation, was there 6 any discussion about what role, if any, Morgan Stanley 7 had in the decision to issue the press release or its 8 content? 9 A. At the hotel room, no. 10 Q. The first time you had a discussion on that 11 topic was at the print shop with Mr. Tyree? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. During that initial telephone call that you 14 had in your hotel room, was there any discussion with 15 Mr. Harlow or Mr. Gluck about Sunbeam's ability to 16 exceed first quarter 1997 sales? 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that back? 18 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 19 was read by the reporter.) 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: You're talking about 21 discussion other than reading the text of the 22 press release? 23 MR. CLARE: That's correct. Any discussion 24 about the achievability. 25 THE WITNESS: Not that I'm aware.

1 BY MR. CLARE:
 2 Q. Was there any discussion between you and
 3 Mr. Harlow and Mr. Gluck about whether the press
 4 release that Sunbeam had issued should be retracted or
 5 withdrawn?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. Did you think that the press release should 8 be retracted or withdrawn?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Did you think the press release was false?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Did you think the press release was 13 misleading?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. Did you discuss your view that the press
 16 release was misleading with either Mr. Harlow or
 17 Mr. Gluck?
 18 A. Again, at the hotel room, talking about the 19 hotel room?
 20 Q. Yes, I am.
 21 A. Not that I'm aware of.
 22 Q. Was there any discussion about withholding
 23 Andersen's comfort letter as a result of the issuance
 24 of the press release, again focusing on the 25 conversation in the hotel room?

Page 214

1 A. Not that I'm aware of, no.
 2 Q. Was there any discussion about what
 3 disclosure needed to be made in the offering memorandum
 4 of the press release with Mr. Harlow or Mr. Gluck?
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. So the first time that topic was raised was 7 later at the print shop?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. Was there a discussion with you and 10 Mr. Harlow and Mr. Gluck about approaching Morgan
 11 Stanley with that question?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. You testified that you did ask Mr. Tyree and 14 Mr. Lurie about what would be included in the offering
 15 memorandum, correct?
 16 A. Yeah, I did that myself.
 17 Q. That was on your own initiative?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. In other words, prior to that, you had not 20 had a discussion with anybody from Andersen about 21 asking that question?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. Or anybody from Sunbeam?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. You stated that you held a view that the

Page 215

1 press release was misleading.
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. But you never asked Sunbeam to withdraw or 4 retract the press release, did you?
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. And you did not express that suggestion to 7 anybody internally at Sunbeam?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. And/or anybody internally at Andersen?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Or anybody at Morgan Stanley?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. And the reason that you thought it was 14 misleading is because you thought it was aggressive?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. Is there any other reason that you thought it
 17 was misleading?
 18 A. The language about the reasons for it were I
 19 thought misleading.
 20 Q. In what way?
 21 A. Just I'd have to look at it again, but --
 22 Q. Let's pull it out. It's Exhibit Number 14.
 23 A. Just the wording, changes in inventory
 24 management and order patterns. I'm not really sure
 25 exactly how that impacts sales.

Page 216

1 Q. Could that be a reference to Sunbeam's Early
 2 Buy program?
 3 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the
 4 question.
 5 THE WITNESS: I have no idea exactly at this
 6 point.
 7 BY MR. CLARE:
 8 Q. But is that the way you understood it?
 9 A. Yes, and then the whole comment about new 10 products, because I don't believe that at that time any 11 of the new products had significant sales, the new 12 products that they talked about here.
 13 Q. Now you testified earlier that you discussed
 14 with Morgan Stanley and the Davis Polk lawyers your 15 belief that you had that the statement in the press
 16 release was aggressive, correct?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. Did you discuss with Morgan Stanley or Davis
 19 Polk these additional concerns that you had about the 20 wording of the reasons for the softer sales?
 21 A. I don't remember specifically.
 22 Q. As you sit here today, can you recall any 23 discussion that you had with Morgan Stanley or Davis
 24 Polk about the reasons stated in the press release for 25 the softer sales?

Page 217

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Did you discuss that issue with Mr. Gluck or
 3 Mr. Harlow in your hotel room?
 4 MR. MARKOWSKI: That issue being the
 5 statement made in the press release?
 6 MR. CLARE: About the reasons, yes.
 7 THE WITNESS: No.
 8 BY MR. CLARE:
 9 Q. Did you raise that issue with anybody?
 10 A. The reasons in the press release? I don't 11 remember. I just, I just remember focusing on the 12 $253 million number that I didn't think that was going 13 to be met and that they should have just left it at 14 lower, it's going to be lower basically.
 15 Q. They, Sunbeam should have just left it at
 16 that?
 17 A. Yeah.
 18 Q. Did anyone ever tell you that Morgan Stanley
 19 had been involved in drafting the press release?
 20 A. Drafting specifically, no, but Tyree
 21 mentioned that they were involved in the conversation
 22 that led up to the issuance of the release.
 23 Q. With regard to the particular wording of the 24 press release --
 25 A. I have no idea.

Page 218

1 Q. You have no idea what role, if any, Morgan
 2 Stanley played in the drafting of the press release
 3 from any source?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. Yes, you have --
 6 A. I have no idea.
 7 Q. You have no idea, thank you.
 8 When was the first time you saw a hard copy
 9 of the press release? Was it in your hotel room or at 10 the printer?
 11 A. I think it was in my hotel room.
 12 Q. Were you informed by anyone who had decided 13 to include the statement about expecting to exceed 1997
 14 first quarter sales in the press release?
 15 MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that back for 16 me, please?
 17 (Thereupon, a portion of the record
 18 was read by the reporter.)
 19 THE WITNESS: No.
 20 BY MR. CLARE:
 21 Q. That was the portion of the press release
 22 that you objected to, correct?
 23 A. For the most part, yes.
 24 Q. And you don't have any understanding as to 25 who put that clause in the press release?

Page 219

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Mr. Tyree didn't tell you?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Or Mr. Gluck or anybody?
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. I want to go back to the discussion that you
 7 had with Mr. Tyree at the print shop. So we're leaving
 8 your hotel room now, and you and Mr. Brockelman go to 9 Global Financial Press.
 10 You said that there was a meeting that you
 11 had with the individuals present where you discussed
 12 the subscription for the bond offering, the fact that 13 it was oversubscribed? That was the first thing that 14 you remember when you arrived at the print shop?
 15 A. Yeah, I was very surprised it was 16 oversubscribed.
 17 Q. Why were you surprised?
 18 A. Because we just had pretty devastating news
 19 about the results of the company and the stock price
 20 was going down significantly and the bonds were 21 oversubscribed and they were convertible bonds into 22 stocks, so I just thought it was ironic at best that it
 23 was, the bonds were oversubscribed.
 24 Q. And did the discussion of the press release 25 and what should be put in the offering memo about the

Page 220

1 press release come up during that conversation?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. When did that issue come up? Did it come up
 4 in the course of working through the offering
 5 memorandum in the manner that you described?
 6 A. No, I'd say the first 15 minutes of the 7 conversation were about the surprise of the size of the 8 offering, and then the conversation about what happened
 9 the night before and Dunlap yelling and screaming.
 10 The next 15 minutes were based on what was 11 going to be put in the offering related to the 12 disclosure of the press release.
 13 Q. Tell me about the conversation with Mr. Tyree
 14 and others about the night before. Tell me everything
 15 you remember about that discussion.
 16 A. Just that there was a lot of yelling and 17 screaming, and Dunlap would say, "Who the hell do these 18 guys think they are making us disclose this? We're 19 going to lose $100 million. They don't know our 20 business." Those types of things.
 21 Q. So it was your understanding that Mr. Dunlap
 22 was reluctant to issue the press release?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. It was your understanding that Morgan Stanley
 25 had insisted that Sunbeam issue the press release, is

Page 221 1 that what Mr. Tyree told you? 2 A. No, nothing about insisting. 3 Q. Or had suggested? 4 A. I have no idea who suggested it. 5 Q. Well, what I'm trying to get at is you 6 referenced a statement by Mr. Dunlap, "Who do these 7 guys think they are, making me lose $100,000?" 8 A. I think they were talking about Arthur 9 Andersen. 10 Q. So it was your understanding that Mr. Dunlap 11 was upset with Andersen? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. Now I'm a little confused, because I thought 14 to your knowledge Andersen had not played any role in 15 the decision to issue the press release or the drafting 16 of it. 17 A. No. The decision was that the information 18 needed to be disclosed to Morgan Stanley and the 19 public, or else they weren't getting that comfort 20 letter. 21 Q. Okay. And so you understood Mr. Dunlap to be 22 upset with Andersen for insisting that it be disclosed 23 to Morgan Stanley? 24 A. And the public. 25 Q. And the public?	Page 223 1 caveat to the $253 million in sales. 2 BY MR. CLARE: 3 Q. And that's the objection that you raised with 4 Morgan Stanley? 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. You didn't raise any of your other objections 7 about the wording with Morgan Stanley? 8 A. I don't remember specifically. 9 Q. You don't remember doing it? 10 A. I don't think any of it should be in other 11 than really the facts as they were. 12 Q. Which was what? 13 A. They weren't going to make the top number. 14 Q. So you didn't have any objection to that 15 information being disclosed? 16 A. No. 17 Q. You see here on the second page of CPH 18 Exhibit 14 there is a cautionary statement. 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. You're familiar with those cautionary 21 statements? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. In the press release that you saw on 24 March 19th, the hard copy that you saw included these 25 cautionary statements?
Page 222 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. And it was your understanding that unless 3 that information was disclosed to the public, that 4 Andersen would withhold its comfort letter? 5 A. Unless reasonable disclosure was made, yes. 6 Q. And that if reasonable disclosure was made, 7 that Andersen would issue its comfort letter? 8 A. That's my understanding, yes. 9 Q. In terms of the discussion about what portion 10 of the press release ought to be included in the 11 offering memorandum, you didn't have any objection to 12 including the statement that Sunbeam might miss the 13 expectation of Wall Street analysts, did you? 14 Did you have any objection to including that 15 portion of the press release in the offering 16 memorandum? 17 A. No. 18 Q. Your only objection was the clause that 19 follows that about net sales being expected to exceed 20 1997 first quarter sale? 21 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 22 question, mischaracterizes what he has said about 23 his views of various other statements in this. 24 MR. MOSCATO: Well, answer the question. 25 THE WITNESS: My main objection was the	Page 224 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. And these are akin to the cautionary 3 statements that you wanted to be included in the 4 offering memorandum -- 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. -- to accompany the press release disclosure? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. You didn't have any objection to including 9 those cautionary statements in the offering memorandum? 10 A. No. 11 Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk 12 object to your suggestion that you include cautionary 13 language in the offering memorandum about 14 forward-looking statements or risk factors? 15 A. Not that I'm aware of, no. 16 Q. Do you remember anybody resisting that idea? 17 A. No. 18 Q. You testified that after this initial 19 conversation with Mr. Tyree where you raised these 20 objections, it was Mr. Lurie who said the press release 21 would be going in verbatim? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. Did Mr. Tyree say anything during that 24 conversation that you remember? 25 A. No, not specifically.

1 Q. Do you have any recollection of, even without
 2 recalling his specific words, what his position on that
 3 was?
 4 A. No.
 5 Q. Did he ever say he disagreed with you?
 6 A. I don't remember.
 7 Q. You don't remember him saying that?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. Did you have that impression that he
 10 disagreed with you?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. But you can't recall what it was that he
 13 said?
 14 A. It was his counsel sitting right next to him
 15 that disagreed with me and he didn't differ his 16 opinion, so --
 17 Q. Did Mr. Lurie explain the reasons for his 18 statement that the press release would go in verbatim?
 19 A. That those were the company's 20 representations.
 21 Q. So Mr. Lurie told you that these were 22 Sunbeam's representations and that they would be
 23 included in Sunbeam's bond offering; is that a fair
 24 summary?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 226

1 Q. Did Mr. Lurie express an independent view of 2 whether it ought to be included or not?
 3 A. He -- yes, he said he -- yes.
 4 Q. But he was -- let me put it this way. Did
 5 Mr. Lurie communicate to you whether the company
 6 believed the press release ought to be included
 7 verbatim?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. Did you think Mr. Lurie was the final
 10 decision maker as to what would go in the offering
 11 memorandum?
 12 A. No, I thought it was the company's decision.
 13 Q. So you didn't think it was Mr. Lurie?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. You didn't think it was anybody from Davis
 16 Polk?
 17 A. Anybody could have said the deal's not going
 18 through if we put this in. I mean it's their decision.
 19 Q. My question is different. My question is who 20 was the, who was the final decision maker about what 21 would be included in the Recent Development section of 22 the offering memorandum?
 23 And I believe your testimony is you believe
 24 that it was the company's decision ultimately.
 25 A. Yeah, I believe so.

Page 227

1 Q. Okay. Did, so you didn't think it was
 2 Mr. Tyree's decision to make ultimately?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. You testified that there were at least one
 5 and maybe more lawyers from Scadden Arps present for 6 this discussion, correct?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. And they were there as lawyers to Sunbeam?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. Did they participate in this discussion?
 11 A. I don't specifically remember.
 12 Q. Do you remember any of the lawyers from 13 Scadden expressing a view as to what ought to be 14 included in the Recent Development section?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. Do you remember them agreeing or disagreeing
 17 with the objection that you made?
 18 A. No.
 19 Q. Did you solicit their view?
 20 A. I'm pretty sure that I did. I don't remember
 21 specifically, though.
 22 Q. Do you have an impression about the position
 23 that the Scadden lawyers had on this issue that you
 24 were discussing with Mr. Lurie and Mr. Tyree?
 25 A. I think I was the only one in the room that

Page 228

1 had a difference of opinion about what should be in
 2 there.
 3 Q. So it wasn't just Morgan Stanley and Davis
 4 Polk. Your impression was that Sunbeam's lawyers,
 5 Scadden Arps --
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. -- had the same view?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. Is there anything else about that discussion
 10 that we haven't talked about today --
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. -- that you can recall?
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. At that point you left the room and you went 15 into the pool room?
 16 A. Uh huh.
 17 Q. And you called Mr. Harlow?
 18 A. (Witness nods head up and down.)
 19 Q. Is that a yes?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. I'm sorry, the court reporter has to take 22 down your verbal answers.
 23 A. Sorry, I'm eating ice.
 24 Q. And Mr. Harlow conferenced in Mr. Gluck?
 25 A. Yes.

Page 229

1 Q. How long did you talk to Mr. Harlow before he
 2 conferenced in Mr. Gluck?
 3 A. Ten minutes probably.
 4 Q. Do you remember anything that you discussed
 5 with Mr. Harlow specifically before you brought in
 6 Mr. Gluck?
 7 A. Other than the fact as we discussed earlier
 8 about my opinion not to put that in.
 9 Q. Mr. Harlow shared your view?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. And why did you conference in Mr. Gluck?
 12 A. To get an understanding of the company's,
 13 what they believed what should be included, as well as 14 to get more information on the basis for making the 15 statement.
 16 Q. Because it was the company's decision about
 17 what would be included in the offering memorandum?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. And that was the reason you went to the 20 company for that?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. Did you and Mr. Harlow attempt to or discuss 23 conferencing in anybody else from Morgan Stanley?
 24 A. No. They were in the next room. They knew
 25 what I was doing, so they knew who I was speaking with.

Page 230

1 Q. I understand that, but you or Mr. Harlow
 2 didn't suggest to conference in somebody perhaps more
 3 senior from Morgan Stanley to discuss this issue?
 4 A. Never met anybody more senior from Morgan
 5 Stanley so --
 6 Q. That was my next question. Did you know
 7 anybody from Morgan Stanley who was working on the deal
 8 other than Mr. Tyree?
 9 A. And Tyrone Chang, no.
 10 Q. Other than what you testified to this
 11 morning, do you remember anything about the discussion
 12 that you had with Mr. Gluck?
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. And Mr. Harlow?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. Mr. Harlow told you he was going to follow up
 17 with Mr. Fanin?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. Did he say why he was going to follow up with
 20 Mr. Fanin?
 21 A. To discuss the issue and get support for the 22 sales estimates.
 23 Q. And Mr. Gluck had not been involved in the 24 discussion of the sales estimates the night before?
 25 A. I have no idea.

Page 231

1 Q. But you thought Mr. Fanin had --
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. -- some additional information on that?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And was there a consideration or discussion
 6 that the question about what should be included in the 7 offering memorandum might have legal implications, and 8 that's why it made sense to bring somebody from 9 Sunbeam's legal department into the conversation?
 10 A. I don't know what the thought process was, to 11 be honest with you.
 12 Q. Did that thought occur to you?
 13 A. No, my understanding was he was part of the 14 discussion in the press release.
 15 Q. But did that thought occur to you that the 16 question of what ought to be included in the offering
 17 memorandum might have legal implications for Sunbeam
 18 and therefore a Sunbeam lawyer needed to be involved in 19 the decision making?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. That thought occurred to you that night?
 22 A. As well as other counsel that were there,
 23 yes.
 24 Q. But again, it was the company's decision
 25 about what would be included in the offering

Page 232

1 memorandum?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. And so it would make sense that the company's
 4 lawyers were involved in that decision?
 5 A. Correct.
 6 Q. And in fact, later in the evening it was the 7 company's lawyers that communicated to you the 8 company's decision to include the press release
 9 verbatim, correct?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. And that was either Mr. Fanin or Miss Kelly?
 12 A. I believe it was Miss Kelly to Harlow, Harlow
 13 to me.
 14 Q. But it was your understanding that Miss Kelly
 15 was the ultimate decision-maker on including the press
 16 release verbatim?
 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection, lack of
 18 foundation.
 19 THE WITNESS: My belief, it was Fanin's
 20 decision. It was legal counsel, Sunbeam's legal 21 counsel.
 22 BY MR. CLARE:
 23 Q. Sunbeam's legal counsel?
 24 A. In-house legal counsel.
 25 Q. Just to be clear action, it's your testimony

Page 233

1 that the final decision to include the entire text of
2 the press release verbatim in the press release was
3 made by Sunbeam's in-house legal counsel?
4 A. Yes.
5 MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to lack of
6 foundation.
7 BY MR. CLARE:
8 Q. But from your perspective, that was true?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. You returned to the room with Mr. Brockelman
11 and Mr. Tyree and Mr. Lurie and the Scadden lawyers 12 were and you had a side bar conversation with 13 Mr. Brockelman?
14 A. Outside of the room, yes.
15 Q. And Mr. Brockelman told you that Mr. Tyree
16 was making derogatory comments to you?
17 A. Yes.
18 MR. MARKOWSKI: When you say to you --
19 THE WITNESS: Toward me.
20 BY MR. CLARE:
21 Q. Directed towards you while you were outside
22 of the room?
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. Did Mr. Brockelman tell you what he thought
25 Mr. Tyree was upset about?

Page 234

1 A. I think it was the fact that he wasn't aware
2 of the results of the sales for the first two months,
3 where the company was.
4 Q. And it was, was that your sense as well? Did
5 you share that sense that that's what Mr. Tyree was 6 upset about?
7 A. Yes.
8 Q. So Mr. Tyree, in using profanity that was 9 directed towards you outside of your presence and then
10 again to you in your presence, it was your sense that 11 he was upset about not knowing this information sooner?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. He wasn't using this profanity in an argument
14 with you over your objection to including the text of 15 the press release?
16 A. No.
17 Q. That wasn't the context of Mr. Tyree's
18 profanity?
19 A. Not that I believe.
20 Q. How about raising his voice?
21 A. I don't think so.
22 Q. Did Mr. Tyree ever say to you during that 23 discussion after you had reentered the room that he 24 believed that the press release should be included
25 verbatim in the offering memorandum?

Page 235

1 A. I don't recall specifically him saying that.
2 Q. Do you recall him saying that in substance?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. After you came back into the room?
5 A. Yes.
6 Q. And did he elaborate on his reasons for that?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Did Mr. Tyree ever indicate to you that it
9 was his decision to make?
10 A. No.
11 Q. Did he ever say to you, "I don't care what 12 you think, Mr. Bornstein, we're putting it in," in 13 words or in substance?
14 A. For the most part, yeah, that was the gist of 15 what was being told to me.
16 Q. And did you tell Mr. Tyree that the issue had 17 been submitted to Sunbeam's legal counsel?
18 A. He was aware of that, yes.
19 Q. Because you told him?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. You told him that you had spoken with
22 Mr. Fanin?
23 A. I never spoke to Fanin, but someone had, yes.
24 Q. You told Mr. Tyree that Andersen had raised
25 the issue with Mr. Fanin?

Page 236

1 A. Yes.
2 Q. And at that point, what happened with regard
3 to this issue? Did everybody sit and wait for --
4 A. People kept working and it was several hours
5 later that the decision finally came back.
6 Q. So people kept working on other issues
7 related to the offering memorandum?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. At that point in time when Mr. Tyree had this 10 discussion with you, no decision had been made about
11 what would be included in the offering memorandum?
12 A. Correct.
13 Q. During that same discussion with Mr. Tyree,
14 you indicated that he said, "Are these guys fucking
15 with me? Are they going to make their numbers or not?"
16 Is that correct?
17 A. Yes.
18 Q. Best of your recollection of what he said?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. Who did you understand Mr. Tyree to be 21 referring to when he said these guys?
22 A. Sunbeam.
23 Q. So he wasn't saying Andersen? He wasn't
24 referring to Andersen?
25 A. No.

Page 237

1 Q. And he wasn't suggesting that you or
2 Mr. Brockelman might be fucking with him about the
3 numbers?
4 A. Correct.
5 Q. He seemed to be directing his anger towards
6 Sunbeam in raising this question?
7 A. Yeah. It was these guys, so it wasn't you.
8 Q. Okay. And you understood him to be referring
9 to Sunbeam?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Did you -- what did you understand him to be 12 asking, less colloquially, when he asked you that
13 question?
14 A. If I thought they were going to be able to 15 make these numbers.
16 Q. Did you think it was appropriate for him to 17 ask that question?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. Did you think it was legitimate for Mr. Tyree
20 and Morgan Stanley to want to know that information?
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. Did he appear sincere to you in wanting to 23 know that information?
24 A. He seemed very upset and nervous about it.
25 Q. Did he appear to you to be concerned that

Page 238

1 Sunbeam's management was fucking with him about their
2 ability to meet the numbers?
3 A. He had a concern, yes.
4 Q. And did you think that, in asking that 5 question, Mr. Tyree was being diligent in wanting to 6 find out that information?
7 MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
8 BY MR. CLARE:
9 Q. Did you have an impression about that?
10 A. No. I don't think he was being diligent
11 about it.
12 Q. But you thought it was appropriate for him to 13 ask that question?
14 A. Sure.
15 Q. And what did you tell him in response to that
16 question?
17 A. I told him what I said before. I didn't
18 think -- I thought it was a stretch.
19 Q. Did you tell him in words or in substance
20 that Sunbeam was lying to Morgan Stanley about its 21 sales objectives for the quarter?
22 A. No.
23 Q. Did you think that Sunbeam was lying to 24 Morgan Stanley about its sales objectives for the 25 quarter?

Page 239

1 A. I thought it was aggressive.
2 Q. But did you think that Sunbeam's management
3 was lying to Morgan Stanley about its sales objectives?
4 A. No.
5 Q. Did you have any basis to suspect that that 6 was the case?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Did Mr. Tyree discuss with you in any detail
9 the schedule of sales that's been marked at least in 10 form as CPH Exhibit 121?
11 A. No.
12 Q. Did you have any discussions about these 13 numbers beyond you expressing the view that they were
14 aggressive?
15 A. I believe I mentioned that I think they were 16 numbers on a page and they were aggressive at this
17 point in time.
18 Q. Did Mr. Tyree tell you where this document
19 had come from?
20 A. No.
21 Q. Was there any discussion about the fact that 22 Morgan Stanley had spent several hours on the phone the 23 night before going through this document with Sunbeam's
24 management?
25 A. No.

Page 240

1 Q. Was there any discussion about the fact that
2 Mr. Uzzi and several members of Sunbeam's sales team
3 had given a presentation to Morgan Stanley about this
4 document?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Was there any discussion about Sunbeam's
7 confidence in meeting these numbers that are reflected 8 on the buildup, CPH 121?
9 A. Not that I recall.
10 Q. Did Mr. Harlow ever tell you that Mr. Uzzi
11 was very confident about exceeding the first quarter
12 1997 numbers?
13 A. I believe he did toward later in the night.
14 Q. So later in the evening Mr. Harlow reported
15 back to you that as a result of his additional 16 inquiries, he had been informed that Mr. Uzzi was very 17 confident that Sunbeam would exceed its first quarter
18 1990 sales numbers?
19 MR. MARKOWSKI: You said 1990 again.
20 MR. CLARE: Okay. I apologize.
21 THE WITNESS: I believe that the board got 22 back to Phil. I don't know who he spoke to 23 specifically. I don't know, I don't think he 24 spoke to Uzzi directly.
25

Page 241

1 BY MR. CLARE:
 2 Q. Okay. Did you provide any other response to 3 Mr. Tyree about the sales buildup document except for 4 what you just testified about to say that it was
 5 aggressive?
 6 MR. MARKOWSKI: Other than what he testified
 7 about this morning?
 8 MR. CLARE: Well, let me ask you that.
 9 BY MR. CLARE:
 10 Q. Did you tell Mr. Tyree that you believed,
 11 having seen this document, that it was even more
 12 aggressive for Sunbeam to be projecting these sales?
 13 A. I don't know about more aggressive, but I, as 14 I testified to earlier, I said if they are going to 15 make it, they are going to make it legitimately,
 16 because I'm going to do additional procedures to ensure 17 that they do.
 18 Q. We're going to get to that part of the 19 conversation in just a second. I just want to focus on 20 CPH Exhibit 121 and the sales buildup sheet.
 21 A. Okay.
 22 Q. Let me know when you have that in front of 23 you.
 24 A. Okay.
 25 Q. You testified a moment ago that you told

Page 242

1 Mr. Tyree that you believed the numbers on CPH
 2 Exhibit 121 were just numbers on a page; is that right?
 3 A. For lack of a better definition, yeah,
 4 because I didn't see support for it.
 5 Q. Okay. But you didn't know, Mr. Tyree didn't
 6 tell you that he had additional support beyond this
 7 document --
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. -- from Sunbeam sales force?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. I want to get as close as I can to the exact
 12 word that you told Mr. Tyree in response to this 13 document. Can you tell me what your best recollection 14 is?
 15 A. I think I've already testified to that.
 16 Q. Okay. Can you tell me again, please.
 17 A. That I thought it was aggressive and a bunch
 18 of numbers on a page.
 19 Q. Now this morning, in response to a question
 20 from Mr. Markowski, you testified to a belief that you
 21 had after seeing this document, that it was even more
 22 aggressive.
 23 And I want to know, did you communicate that 24 belief to Mr. Tyree that your skepticism about the 25 numbers escalated after having seen the sales buildup

Page 243

1 that's CPH 121?
 2 A. I don't recall specifically.
 3 Q. Do you recall at all discussing that issue
 4 with Mr. Tyree?
 5 A. That it was escalated above where it was
 6 before? No.
 7 Q. Did you provide Mr. Tyree or any of the Davis
 8 Polk lawyers with any information about any of the 9 customers that are listed here on CPH Exhibit 121?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. For example, did you tell Morgan Stanley
 12 anything that you or Arthur Andersen knew about 13 potential orders at Wal-Mart?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. Or past sales to that customer?
 16 A. No.
 17 Q. Or ordering patterns?
 18 A. No.
 19 Q. Or trends?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. Did you have this information in your mind
 22 about any of the customers that are listed here on CPH
 23 Exhibit 121?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Did you have any specific information about

Page 244

1 the sales or ordering patterns for these customers that
 2 night on March 19, 1998?
 3 A. No.
 4 MR. MOSCATO: Is it possible to take 30
 5 seconds and hunt up a cup of coffee?
 6 MR. CLARE: Sure, let's go off the record.
 7 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video
 8 record. The time on the monitor, 3:01 p.m.
 9 (Thereupon, a recess was taken.)
 10 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video
 11 record. The time on the monitor is 3:11 p.m.
 12 BY MR. CLARE:
 13 Q. Mr. Bornstein, before the break we were 14 talking about your discussions with Mr. Tyree at the 15 print shop on the evening of March 19th.
 16 You testified that you told Mr. Tyree you
 17 were skeptical of Sunbeam's abilities to exceed first 18 quarter 1997; is that correct?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. Other than the word skeptical, did you use
 21 any other word with Mr. Tyree to describe your views
 22 about the achievability of that sales objective?
 23 A. I might have used the word conservative.
 24 Q. In referring to yourself as a conservative
 25 accountant?

Page 245

1 A. I believe so, yes.
 2 Q. And did you tell Mr. Tyree in words or in
 3 substance that it was impossible for Sunbeam to exceed 4 its first quarter 1997 sales objective, of exceeding --
 5 let me rephrase.
 6 Did you tell Mr. Tyree in words or in
 7 substance that it would be impossible for Sunbeam in 8 the first quarter of 1998 to exceed first quarter 1997
 9 sales?
 10 A. I don't believe I used the word impossible.
 11 I think I used the words logistically difficult.
 12 Q. Okay. So we have skeptical and logistically
 13 difficult.
 14 A. I think those are the words I used.
 15 Q. Are there any other words that you used in 16 talking to Mr. Tyree to describe your view of the 17 achievability of that sales objective?
 18 MR. MARKOWSKI: He already -- are you
 19 excluding what he already testified to this 20 morning? Just to get him to repeat it as a memory
 21 test? Because he testified on this.
 22 BY MR. CLARE:
 23 Q. No, I'm asking you whether you remember using 24 any other exact words. I'm asking you for exact words.
 25 A. I don't remember the exact words, to be

Page 246

1 honest with you, so many years.
 2 (Thereupon, a cellphone rang.)
 3 MR. CLARE: Let's go off the record.
 4 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off the
 5 video record. The time on the monitor is
 6 3:12 p.m.
 7 (Discussion held off the record.)
 8 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video
 9 record. The time on the monitor, 3:18 p.m.
 10 BY MR. CLARE:
 11 Q. Mr. Bornstein, before the break I was asking
 12 you to the best of your ability to tell me the exact
 13 words that you used with Mr. Tyree and Mr. Lurie in 14 describing your views on the achievability of Sunbeam's
 15 objective to exceed first quarter 1997 sales.
 16 And can you testify beyond what you've 17 already told me that you used the word skeptical and 18 logistically difficult to describe your exact words?
 19 A. Healthy skepticism. I did the math for them,
 20 and I think I testified to everything else I've said.
 21 Q. As you sit here today, other than just do the 22 math, skepticism or healthy skepticism and logistically
 23 difficult, do you remember any of the exact words that 24 you used with Mr. Tyree or with Mr. Lurie?
 25 A. No.

Page 247

1 Q. Now when you said you did the math for them,
 2 that was basis for your skepticism; is that correct,
 3 the gap that existed at that point in time between 4 sales to date and the number of days left in the 5 quarter? Is that the math that you're referring to?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. And you went through that with Mr. Tyree and 8 Mr. Lurie?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. Other than that calculation that you did, let 11 me ask you this. Did you actually physically do it out
 12 on paper with Mr. Lurie and Mr. Tyree?
 13 A. No. I did it in my head.
 14 Q. And that's your testimony where you said they 15 would have to ship between 10 and $15 million a day for 16 the rest of the quarter?
 17 A. Correct.
 18 Q. And that was the basis for your statements to 19 Mr. Tyree and Mr. Lurie about your skepticism?
 20 A. That, and I've been to every location
 21 throughout the country and thought it would be 22 difficult to ship that much product --
 23 Q. Okay.
 24 A. -- so quickly.
 25 Q. Was it based on anything else besides that?

Page 248

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Had you done any study or analysis of sales
 3 trends at Sunbeam?
 4 MR. MOSCATO: You mean like a formal study or
 5 analysis or any kind of understanding?
 6 MR. CLARE: Any kind of understanding.
 7 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 8 BY MR. CLARE:
 9 Q. And what had you done?
 10 A. Just looked at quarterly results and looked 11 at sales by month.
 12 Q. Did you have an understanding that there was 13 a history at Sunbeam of sales being back-ended at the 14 end of the quarter?
 15 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the
 16 question.
 17 THE WITNESS: There was a recent history,
 18 yes.
 19 BY MR. CLARE:
 20 Q. An uptake of sales in the last few days or 21 weeks of a quarter?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. And you knew that on March 19th?
 24 A. Yes.
 25 Q. Was your skepticism based on anything you

Page 249

1 knew about a particular customer of Sunbeam's?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. You didn't have any additional information
 4 about a customer?
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. Did you know anything, did you have any 7 additional information about the likelihood of the 8 sales coming in based on a particular customer or 9 conversation that you had had with a customer?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Or with a member of Sunbeam's sales staff?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. You testified that you told Mr. Tyree and 14 Mr. Lurie and, in the Scadden lawyer's presence, that 15 you were going to be conducting some additional 16 procedures at the end of the quarter, correct?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And I believe you said that your statement
 19 was something to the effect that if they are going to 20 make their revenue number, they are going to make it,
 21 because I'm going to be sending people out to every 22 shipping dock all over the country at midnight at the 23 end of the quarter, correct?
 24 A. Yes.
 25 Q. Those were the additional procedures that you

Page 250

1 were describing?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. And those are the procedures that you
 4 discussed with Mr. Markowski this morning?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. What was your intent of telling that to 7 Morgan Stanley? Why did you tell Morgan Stanley you
 8 were going to be doing that?
 9 A. Because I was skeptical that they were going
 10 to be able to make the numbers.
 11 Q. And you wanted to take additional steps to 12 make sure that the first quarter 1998 sales numbers
 13 that Sunbeam reported were right; is that correct?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And that was due in part to the pressure that 16 you believed management was putting on the sales staff
 17 to get product out the door?
 18 A. Yes, for the most part, my decision to do
 19 that was made at that point in time because of the way
 20 I was being treated by the people in the room and my 21 conservatism and wanting to make sure that it was 22 actually going to be achieved.
 23 Q. Because you wanted the numbers that Sunbeam
 24 reported at the end of the quarter to be right?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. And you meant it when you said it, right?
 2 A. I meant it.
 3 Q. And you actually followed through on it?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And did anybody from Morgan Stanley or Davis
 6 Polk object to Andersen conducting those additional
 7 procedures?
 8 A. Not that I'm aware of, no.
 9 Q. Well, did they say anything to you in 10 response to your statement that you intended to carry
 11 out those additional procedures?
 12 A. No, they didn't say a word.
 13 Q. But they didn't object?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. Do you think it would be fair for the people
 16 in the room to believe that you were serious about
 17 wanting to carry through on that statement?
 18 A. I have no idea what they wanted to believe or 19 not.
 20 Q. But you said it in a serious way, you weren't 21 joking around?
 22 A. Right.
 23 Q. Did you, in doing the math with Mr. Tyree and 24 Mr. Lurie, did you ever indicate a particular number
 25 that you believed could be shipped on a per-day basis

Page 252

1 through the end of the quarter by Sunbeam?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. And did you have a particular number in your
 4 mind about how much could be shipped by Sunbeam on a
 5 per-day basis through the end of the first quarter?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. So you didn't say that for the Neosho
 8 facility?
 9 A. I don't remember specifically talking about
 10 any specific facility other than I visited, I think I
 11 specifically listed off the names of the locations I
 12 had visited.
 13 Q. Well, that's why I'm asking you the question,
 14 because you testified you told Morgan Stanley that you
 15 had been to Neosho.
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Did you ever tell Morgan Stanley that the 18 Neosho facility can only ship x dollars' worth of 19 product per day?
 20 A. No. Specifically, no.
 21 Q. Generally?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. How about the Hattiesburg facility?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Did you ever tell anyone from Morgan Stanley

Page 253

1 that you believed that only x dollars' worth of product
 2 could be shipped from the Hattiesburg facility on a
 3 per-day basis?
 4 A. No.
 5 Q. You testified that you said that night at the 6 printer that "I hope to God they do make their sales
 7 numbers; otherwise, you're all going to get sued."
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. Do you recall that testimony?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. That statement is not documented in your 12 March 31st, 1998, memo.
 13 A. Correct.
 14 Q. And you previously testified that this was an 15 off-the-cuff comment that you had made.
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Do you think the people in the room
 18 understood it that way in the context of the discussion
 19 that you had?
 20 A. I have no idea.
 21 Q. Is that the way you intended it to be taken,
 22 was as an off-the-cuff comment?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. Did you really think that everybody was going
 25 to get sued?

Page 254

1 A. Possibility if the numbers didn't come in,
 2 yeah.
 3 Q. And did you tell anyone at Andersen of your
 4 belief that everybody was going to get sued if the 5 numbers didn't come in?
 6 Did you discuss that with anyone internally
 7 at Andersen?
 8 A. Not before making that comment, no.
 9 Q. How about afterwards?
 10 A. I don't recall specifically.
 11 Q. You didn't tell Mr. Harlow that?
 12 A. I'm sure at some point in time I did, that I
 13 made the comment, but I don't remember specifically.
 14 Q. At that point in time, March 19, 1998, did
 15 you think it was necessary to delay the bond offering 16 as a result of Sunbeam's sales performance to date in
 17 the first quarter of 1998?
 18 A. In March?
 19 Q. Uh huh.
 20 A. What part of March?
 21 Q. On March 19th, that night at the print shop.
 22 A. No, I didn't know it was a decision that I
 23 needed to make, to be honest with you.
 24 Q. Did you, did that thought ever occur to you
 25 that the bond offering should be delayed as a result of

Page 255

1 the slower sales performance through that point in the
 2 quarter?
 3 A. I was surprised that the bond offering was 4 going forward that night, and I made that perfectly
 5 clear to people.
 6 Q. How did you make that perfectly clear?
 7 A. Just surprised how, that the bond offering
 8 was continuing to go on and that the amount was much
 9 higher given the recent developments.
 10 Q. Okay. But I want to be clear.
 11 You said you were surprised that the bond
 12 offering was going forward because of the announcement
 13 that had been made that day.
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And it was bad news that was announced,
 16 correct?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. It was an early warning to the markets about 19 Sunbeam's financial performance?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And you were surprised that the pricing and 22 the subscription of the bonds had gone as well as it
 23 did in light of that news?
 24 A. Yes.
 25 Q. Were you surprised that Sunbeam was

Page 256

1 continuing to go forward with the bond offering?
 2 That's a separate question.
 3 A. Not surprised that Sunbeam was, no.
 4 Q. Were you surprised that Sunbeam decided to 5 continue, given the fact that it had a fully subscribed
 6 bond offering?
 7 A. No, I was surprised that Morgan Stanley was 8 continuing with it, not Sunbeam.
 9 Q. Did you tell Morgan Stanley that you were 10 surprised they were continuing with it?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. What did you say?
 13 A. That I was surprised that things were 14 proceeding the way they were, given what was going on.
 15 Q. Okay. Tell me exactly what you told Morgan
 16 Stanley in that regard.
 17 MR. MOSCATO: If you remember the exact
 18 words, use the exact words. If you remember in 19 substance, just give the substance.
 20 THE WITNESS: That was in the first 15
 21 minutes of the conversation, we talked about the 22 oversubscriptions of the bonds and what happened
 23 that night. I don't know the exact words.
 24 BY MR. CLARE:
 25 Q. But I want to be clear. Your testimony is

Page 257 1 that you told Morgan Stanley that the bond offering 2 should be cancelled or delayed in light of the Sunbeam 3 sales situation? 4 A. No. 5 MR. MOSCATO: I object. 6 THE WITNESS: I said I was surprised that it 7 was continuing to go on. I never said it should 8 be cancelled or delayed. 9 BY MR. CLARE: 10 Q. Did you think it should be cancelled or 11 delayed? 12 MR. MOSCATO: I thought he answered that a 13 couple of minutes ago. I mean you keep getting 14 yourself in this because you ask the same question 15 five times. 16 Larry, answer the question again, please. 17 I would really ask you for your sake, if 18 nothing else, not to keep covering the same 19 territory again and again. It's not helpful. 20 BY MR. CLARE: 21 Q. Well, I'm entitled to understand the surprise 22 that you expressed. And I understand and I'm not, have 23 no intention to ask you more questions about your 24 surprise that the bond offering was oversubscribed, 25 okay? We've covered that.	Page 259 1 have an opinion other than being surprised. 2 Q. And as you sit here today, you don't have an 3 opinion one way or the other about whether Morgan 4 Stanley should have delayed or cancelled the bond 5 offering? 6 A. As I sit here today, my opinion is they 7 should have, yes. 8 Q. With the benefit of hindsight. 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. As you sat there in the conference room on 11 March 19, 1998, did you have an opinion as to whether 12 Morgan Stanley should have cancelled or delayed the 13 bond offering? 14 A. No. 15 Q. That opinion was formed after Sunbeam 16 imploded? 17 A. Yes. That's a good way to put it. 18 Q. Do you need to attend to your -- 19 A. No, I'm okay. I'll do it on the next break. 20 Q. You testified that you received a telephone 21 call later that evening from somebody informing you 22 that a decision had been made to include the press 23 release verbatim in the offering memorandum? 24 A. Yes. 25 Q. Up until that point in time, the group was
Page 258 1 A. Okay. 2 Q. And I understand that you were surprised that 3 the bonds had been priced the way they were, right? 4 A. Right. 5 Q. And you were surprised that the bond offering 6 had been oversubscribed. 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. Were you surprised that Morgan Stanley had 9 decided to go forward with the bond offering apart from 10 those two points? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. Why were you surprised? 13 A. Just was, given that the stock price went 14 down and the recent announcement of the information of 15 the sales of not meeting their original forecast. 16 Q. So what did you think Morgan Stanley should 17 have done? 18 MR. MOSCATO: Objection. Did you have a 19 feeling as to what Morgan Stanley should do or 20 were you just surprised? 21 THE WITNESS: I was just surprised. 22 BY MR. CLARE: 23 Q. Did you have a feeling what Morgan Stanley 24 should have done? 25 A. No, I've never sold bonds myself, so I didn't	Page 260 1 working on other aspects of the offering memo. 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. You received a telephone call? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. And then you came back into the room? 6 A. I don't remember if I left the room or not. 7 Q. And did you inform those present that the 8 decision had been made? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. And what did you say? 11 A. That the decision has been made to use the 12 press release verbatim. 13 Q. And did you inform those present who had made 14 that decision? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. And what did you say? 17 A. That it was made by Janet Kelly. I have 18 no -- don't remember if they corroborated that or not 19 directly with them. 20 Q. Was there any other discussion beyond your 21 informing the room about Miss Kelly's decision? 22 A. Other than to make sure that the 23 forward-looking statement information was cross 24 referenced. 25 Q. And do you know who physically accomplished

Page 261 1 that? 2 In other words, who put in the 3 forward-looking statement cross referencing that you 4 had asked to be included? 5 A. I think I pulled the information and gave it 6 to, I think Todd Freed was the guy that was taking 7 control of what was getting put into the printer and 8 taken out. 9 Q. Mr. Freed was an attorney at Scadden? 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. Later in the morning you signed and delivered 12 a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. Did you disagree with the decision of 15 Andersen to issue a comfort letter in connection with 16 the bond offering? 17 A. No. 18 Q. Did you disagree with the decision that was 19 made by Miss Kelly to include the press release 20 verbatim in the offering memorandum? 21 A. I think I've already said that I disagreed 22 that it shouldn't have been in there. 23 Q. Was it your understanding that your 24 objections to that conclusion had been overruled by the 25 company?	Page 263 1 bond offering to go forward. 2 MR. MOSCATO: I don't think there is anything 3 in the record that the bond offering, that that 4 somehow was a prerequisite to the bond offering 5 going forward. 6 BY MR. CLARE: 7 Q. Did you understand that Morgan Stanley had 8 requested a comfort letter from Andersen in connection 9 with the bond offering? 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. Did you understand that the offering 12 memorandum would include Sunbeam's audited financials? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. Did you understand that that bond offering 15 memorandum would be registered at some later point in 16 time? 17 A. Portions of it would have. 18 Q. Including the portions that included the 19 audited financials? 20 A. The audited financials would definitely be 21 included. I'm not sure about the rest of it. 22 Q. And you knew that evening on, at the print 23 shop that Andersen would have to issue its consent to 24 allow those audited financials to be included in that 25 registered memorandum, correct?
Page 262 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. And is that why you were comfortable in 3 issuing the press release, that your objections had 4 been considered and then rejected by the company? 5 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, in issuing the press 6 release? 7 MR. CLARE: In issuing the comfort letter. 8 MR. MOSCATO: Why don't you start again? 9 BY MR. CLARE: 10 Q. Is that the reason why you were comfortable 11 in issuing the comfort letter, because your objections 12 had been considered by the company and overruled? 13 MR. MOSCATO: I don't understand the 14 question. 15 BY MR. CLARE: 16 Q. Here's what I'm getting at. 17 You disagreed with the conclusion of the 18 press release in the offering memorandum. We've 19 covered that. 20 A. Yeah. 21 Q. But you signed and delivered a comfort letter 22 to Morgan Stanley on behalf of Arthur Andersen that 23 allowed the bond offering to go forward. 24 MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. 25 THE WITNESS: I don't know if it allowed the	Page 264 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. So did you believe that Andersen should have 3 withheld its consent for the offering memorandum to be 4 finalized with the audited financials that night at the 5 print shop? 6 MR. MOSCATO: Objection, he didn't give his 7 consent to this offering memorandum. They just 8 didn't. So I object. No foundation to your 9 question. 10 BY MR. CLARE: 11 Q. You didn't have an objection to giving the 12 comfort letter to Morgan Stanley that evening? 13 A. No. 14 Q. And you knew when you delivered the comfort 15 letter to Morgan Stanley that Andersen audited 16 financial statements would be included in that offering 17 memo? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. And you knew that Andersen's name was going 20 to be used in the offering memorandum as Sunbeam's 21 auditor? 22 A. Yes. 23 Q. And you had looked at those pages that night 24 at the print shop? 25 A. The audited financials?

Page 265

1 Q. Yes.
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. And in fact, you read through the offering
 4 memorandum and made cross preferences, you had been
 5 working on that for the last couple of days leading up
 6 to that, correct?
 7 A. Correct, but you're not opining on the 8 information on the front of the document.
 9 Q. But again, you knew that Andersen's name was 10 in the offering memorandum?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. And you knew that that document was going to 13 be provided to the debenture investors?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And you knew that at some later point in time
 16 portions of that offering memorandum would be 17 registered?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. In fact, you worked on the registration
 20 process in June, didn't you?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. And you knew that as part of the registration
 23 process, Andersen would have to issue a consent?
 24 A. Yes.
 25 THE WITNESS: I need to get this faxed.

Page 266

1 MR. CLARE: Go off the video record.
 2 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off the
 3 video record. The time on the monitor is
 4 3:39 p.m.
 5 (Discussion held off the record.)
 6 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video
 7 record. The time on the monitor, 3:42 p.m.
 8 BY MR. CLARE:
 9 Q. Mr. Bornstein, after the last conversation
 10 that we discussed, the one where you informed the 11 participants in the room that night that a decision had 12 been made about the Recent Development section, did you
 13 work amicably with Mr. Tyree for the rest of the 14 evening?
 15 A. For the most part, yeah.
 16 Q. There were no other issues, no other issues
 17 that you can recall as you sit here today that came up
 18 that night?
 19 A. Three o'clock in the morning, they wanted to 20 change the way that we put our debits and credits in 21 the pro formas, and I said no. That was the only other
 22 issue I know that came up. It just never would have,
 23 you know, just never would have gotten done.
 24 Q. Other than that, is there anything else that 25 you remember?

Page 267

1 A. No.
 2 Q. When you left the print shop that night, did
 3 you take with you a copy of the document CPH
 4 Exhibit 121 in that form, the buildup that was provided
 5 to you?
 6 A. I believe so, yes.
 7 Q. And what, if anything, did you do with it
 8 after leaving the print shop?
 9 A. I don't remember specifically what I did with 10 it.
 11 Q. Generally.
 12 A. Put it in a file.
 13 Q. Did you discuss it with anybody at Sunbeam?
 14 A. I don't remember.
 15 Q. Did you perform any additional procedures or 16 testing on this document, CPH Exhibit 121?
 17 A. No, not that I'm aware of.
 18 Q. Putting aside the document, did you have any 19 discussions with anybody from Sunbeam after you left
 20 the print shop about Sunbeam's first quarter 1998
 21 sales?
 22 MR. MARKOWSKI: Ever?
 23 MR. CLARE: Between March 19th or 20th, 1998,
 24 and the end of the quarter.
 25 THE WITNESS: Yeah.

Page 268

1 BY MR. CLARE:
 2 Q. Who did you talk to?
 3 A. Bob Gluck. I don't remember if it was before
 4 or after the end of the quarter, but before anything
 5 was released, Al LaFever, Lee Griffith, Russ Kersh. I
 6 believe counsel from Scadden Arps on the Coleman issue,
 7 extra two days of sales before the end of the quarter,
 8 a few people.
 9 Q. Specifically in any of those conversations
 10 did you discuss your skepticism that Sunbeam would 11 exceed its first quarter 1997 sales in the first
 12 quarter of 1998?
 13 MR. MARKOWSKI: Can you read back the prior
 14 question and answer please for me? Sorry.
 15 (Thereupon, a portion of the record
 16 was read by the reporter.)
 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: Now your question was about 18 Sunbeam. Mr. Bornstein gave you an answer that 19 included people other than Sunbeam.
 20 Your follow-up question concerns what now,
 21 Tom? Sunbeam conversations?
 22 MR. CLARE: Yes. My follow-up question is 23 any conversations between March 19th and the end
 24 of the first quarter with anyone from Sunbeam
 25 about Sunbeam's ability to exceed first quarter

Page 269 1 1997 sales. 2 THE WITNESS: Not specifically that I can 3 recall between that period of time. 4 The Coleman stuff we talked about. The sales 5 were probably after March 31st. 6 BY MR. CLARE: 7 Q. You are aware that Andersen issued a 8 bring-down letter to Morgan Stanley, and the date of 9 that was March 25th, 1998, correct? 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. And you looked at that. At any point between 12 the March 19, 1998, comfort letter and the March 25th, 13 1998 comfort letter, did you receive from any source 14 information about Sunbeam's progress in making sales? 15 A. I don't remember. 16 Q. Do you remember receiving any? 17 A. I don't remember. 18 Q. And then I'll ask the same question between 19 the time of the bring-down comfort letter and the end 20 of the quarter, do you remember receiving any 21 information about Sunbeam's progress and making sales 22 in the first quarter? 23 A. No, not specifically. 24 Q. Generally? 25 A. I don't remember.	Page 271 1 any discussions with anyone from Sunbeam before the end 2 of the quarter about the pace at which orders were 3 coming in? 4 A. Not that I'm aware of, no. 5 Q. Or that shipments were being made? 6 A. Not that I'm aware of, no. 7 Q. So the next information that you had about 8 that was not until after the end of the quarter and 9 after the additional procedures were done by either of 10 your colleagues to do the sales cutoff testing; is that 11 right? 12 A. Sorry, can you repeat that? Losing my train 13 of thought here. 14 (Thereupon, a portion of the record 15 was read by the reporter.) 16 MR. MOSCATO: What do you mean by that? What 17 is that? 18 MR. CLARE: About Sunbeam, about the amount 19 of product that was being shipped by Sunbeam. 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: Tom, why don't you ask at 21 this point a cohesive question so it's clear in 22 the record what you're asking. 23 MR. CLARE: Sure. 24 BY MR. CLARE: 25 Q. At any point after -- let me put it this way.
Page 270 1 Q. During that time period, again, before the 2 end of the first quarter, in any of your conversations 3 with Sunbeam, did you ever have them in words or in 4 substance what was the basis for their expectation that 5 was expressed in the press release about exceeding 6 first quarter 1997 sales? 7 A. This was basically it at the time. 8 Q. That was your understanding as to what it 9 was? 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. Did you ask anybody from Sunbeam about that 12 document, the document you just indicated, CPH 13 Exhibit 121? 14 A. Specifically, no, but specifically about 15 sales I know between -- you know, you asked 16 specifically, but generally, you know, we were informed 17 after this they were going to continue to do both bill 18 and hold. So there was conversation about that and 19 procedures that needed to be done to ensure that that 20 was in accordance with the rules, and confirmations 21 were going to be signed off, et cetera. 22 Q. And that the bill and hold sales that Sunbeam 23 did would be accounted for properly? 24 A. Correct. 25 Q. But putting aside that question for a moment,	Page 272 1 At any point before the end of the first 2 quarter, did you have any other information besides 3 what is reflected here on CPH Exhibit 121 about actual 4 or potential sales by Sunbeam in the first quarter? 5 A. I think we got information on the bill and 6 hold sales that were going to take place prior to the 7 end of the quarter. 8 Q. But other than the bill and hold sales, did 9 you have any other information? 10 A. Not that I'm aware of. 11 Q. And when did you first learn that Sunbeam had 12 not in fact exceeded its first quarter 1997 sales in 13 the first quarter of 1998? 14 A. Wasn't there a second press release that was 15 sent out? Does anyone have a copy of that? 16 Q. Yes, I can show it to you, but was that the 17 first time you were informed? 18 A. I think it was and I believe that -- I don't 19 believe that that press release was shown to Arthur 20 Andersen either, to be honest with you, so I think that 21 was the time that the company decided that they weren't 22 going to -- I don't know what they said. 23 MR. MOSCATO: So in answer to his question, 24 the April 3rd press release is the first time you 25 learned that Sunbeam in fact was not going to

1 exceed in first quarter 1998 its first quarter
 2 1997 sales figures?
 3 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 4 MR. CLARE: Let's mark that press release.
 5 (MS Exhibit No. 58 was marked for
 6 identification.)
 7 BY MR. CLARE:
 8 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm showing you what's been 9 marked as Exhibit 58. It's a multi-page document. I
 10 recognize the first page is a fax cover sheet that you
 11 probably have never seen before.
 12 A. No. Can I read it, though?
 13 Q. Sure.
 14 A. I don't want to really read this whole thing,
 15 to be honest with you.
 16 MR. MOSCATO: Just answer the question.
 17 THE WITNESS: What was the question?
 18 MR. MOSCATO: Quickly and succinctly, please.
 19 MR. CLARE: Well, I do want a complete answer
 20 to my questions.
 21 MR. MOSCATO: Well, succinctly does imply
 22 completeness.
 23 BY MR. CLARE:
 24 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I've handed you what's been 25 marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58. It's a fax cover

Page 274

1 sheet. Attached to it is an April 3rd, 1997 press
 2 release by Sunbeam. Have you seen that?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Have you ever seen this entire document
 5 before; in other words, with the cover sheet on it?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. But you have seen the press release that's 8 attached to it before?
 9 A. I don't -- I remember -- I don't remember
 10 seeing the press release. I remember hearing or 11 reading the first paragraph about it.
 12 Q. What was your reaction to hearing that news?
 13 A. That these guys were all a bunch of fucking
 14 morons. How's that?
 15 Q. Which guys are you referring to?
 16 A. Mostly the people from Sunbeam and their 17 attorneys.
 18 Q. Because they had issued the prior press
 19 release?
 20 A. Right, and they did, they had the same
 21 moronic caveat again that we're not going to make this 22 number, but they are still going to make this number.
 23 Q. Was it your understanding that -- withdrawn.
 24 The April 3rd press release reports that
 25 Sunbeam sales expected to be approximately 5 percent

Page 275

1 below first quarter of '97. Do you see that?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Did you think, did you have a reaction to 4 that figure?
 5 A. Yeah. I, I wasn't sure at that point in time
 6 if that was accurate or not.
 7 Q. The five percent figure?
 8 A. Yes.
 9 Q. Why not?
 10 A. Because they hadn't closed their books for 11 March yet.
 12 Q. Okay. Did you have a reaction as to whether 13 or not you thought that Sunbeam would even be able to 14 get that close to '97 numbers, given where they were on 15 March 19th when you had these discussions with 16 Mr. Tyree?
 17 A. At what point in time? In April?
 18 Q. Yes.
 19 A. I didn't know, I didn't -- it was the same
 20 rationale and thought process. I wasn't sure until -- 21 I wasn't sure whether or not they would or would not.
 22 Work was still being done.
 23 Q. Did you ever get any information as to how 24 close Sunbeam had come at the end of the first quarter
 25 to achieving first quarter 1997 sales?

Page 276

1 A. At what point in time?
 2 Q. In April of '97.
 3 A. Eventually I did, yes.
 4 Q. And do you recall in order of magnitude what
 5 percentage they were close to reaching first quarter
 6 '97 sales?
 7 A. At that point in time, no.
 8 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm handing you what we
 9 previously marked yesterday as Morgan Stanley
 10 Exhibit 42 and ask that you take a look at it.
 11 Do you recognize this document?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. Do you recognize this form of document?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. Is the signature on the third page over
 16 engagement partner or manager, is that your signature?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. So you don't recognize this document at all
 19 or this form of document, what it was used for at 20 Andersen? That's going to be my question.
 21 A. No, I believe it's a document that you sign
 22 after you had a document referenced. Any document
 23 where it was issued by Andersen that was needed to be 24 referenced by an independent person to make sure that
 25 the form of the letter is in accordance with the rules

Page 277 1 and the numbers tie back, et cetera. 2 Q. And does this document, Morgan Stanley 42, 3 appear to be the form for the documentation of those 4 procedures for the comfort letter dated March 19, 1998? 5 A. Appears that way, yes. 6 Q. Do you recall that comfort letter being 7 referenced in the manner that you described? 8 A. I don't remember specifically, no. 9 Q. Do you know who the person is whose initials 10 appear on pages two and apparently performed these 11 procedures? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. Who is that? 14 A. Her name was Patricia Rich. 15 Q. And did you work with Miss Rich on the 16 March 19th, '98 comfort letter? 17 A. She referenced it. I don't remember 18 specifically working with her on it. 19 Q. And when you say she referenced it, can you 20 describe for those not familiar with that procedure 21 what that means? 22 A. You would read the document, make sure it's 23 in accordance with the specific language that's 24 required by -- I don't know what rules they are 25 anymore, to be honest with you, and then to make sure	Page 279 1 A. Those are the letters that we looked at 2 earlier that were on Sunbeam letterhead issued to 3 Arthur Andersen. 4 Q. And as part of Andersen's work on comfort 5 letters, Andersen requests a management representation 6 letter for the items that are discussed in the comfort 7 letter; is that correct, at least some of them? 8 A. Some of them, yeah. 9 Q. And would Andersen be able to issue a comfort 10 letter unless it had a management representation 11 letter? 12 In other words, did Andersen procedures allow 13 that, to your knowledge? 14 A. I don't believe so, but I'm not certain. 15 Q. Have you ever been involved in issuing a 16 comfort letter where there wasn't a management 17 representation letter that would back it up? 18 A. Not that I recall. 19 Q. What role does Andersen have in drafting 20 management representation letters typically? 21 A. They draft quite a bit of it. 22 Q. So the initial draft of a management 23 representation letter is done at Andersen, worked on, 24 and then at some point provided to management for 25 review, approval and signature?
Page 278 1 that the numbers tie back to the supporting work papers 2 at Andersen's work. 3 Q. And it was Miss Rich that performed those 4 procedures for the March 19th comfort letter, to the 5 best of your recollection? 6 A. Yes, what it says here. 7 Q. You don't have a recollection of working with 8 her on that? 9 A. No. 10 Q. Do you have a recollection of Miss Rich 11 raising any issues with you in her work done 12 referencing the March 19th comfort letter? 13 A. I don't recall one way or the other. 14 Q. On the second page, item number four, 15 procedure states that "If applicable, trace information 16 regarding contingencies, litigation or uncertainties to 17 the financial statements and to legal or management 18 representation letters or other source documents in the 19 working papers." 20 Do you see that? 21 A. Yes. 22 Q. Is that one of the referencing procedures 23 that you just described? 24 A. That's what it says here. 25 Q. What's a management representation letter?	Page 280 1 A. I don't know the procedure, but if it's at 2 Andersen or at the client, but yeah. 3 Q. Do you recall that being done in connection 4 with these comfort letters and these management 5 representation letters that were in March of 1998 in 6 connection with the bond offering? 7 A. I don't recall specifically, but I'm sure 8 that that is what happened. 9 Q. I'm going to hand you the next document that 10 was marked yesterday as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 43. 11 A. This is a good one. 12 MR. MOSCATO: I'll give you my copy. 13 THE WITNESS: Keep that for my files. Okay. 14 BY MR. CLARE: 15 Q. I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan 16 Stanley Exhibit 43, a document entitled Post Audit 17 Review for Subsequent Material Transactions and Events 18 After the Date of the Auditor's Report. 19 Do you see that title on the page? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. And do you recognize the handwriting on the 22 bottom of the first page to be yours? 23 A. For the most part, yeah. Phil Harlow, looks 24 like he signed it also. 25 Q. So there is some handwriting and then there

Page 281 1 is a signature by you and a date? 2 A. Yeah, the handwriting is mine. 3 Q. And then there is a signature by Mr. Harlow? 4 A. Correct. 5 Q. And the writing there appears to be the date, 6 is that a three, is that March '98? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. What is this document and how is it used 9 internally at Andersen? 10 A. It's a checklist that's done to go through 11 their requirements to do a post audit review and allow 12 Andersen to issue a consent to update their opinion. 13 Q. And a document like this and the procedures 14 that are described in this document are used in 15 connection with -- 16 A. The registration statement, I think a 133 17 registration statement, or 33 Act registration 18 statement. 19 Q. It was your understanding in March of '98 20 that the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering would 21 be registered in that way? 22 A. Eventually, yes. 23 Q. And did you prepare or mark on this document 24 in March of 1998 in anticipation of that work on the 25 registration?	Page 283 1 Q. Is that the date that you would have made 2 that notation on the document? 3 A. I don't know what I, if I reviewed it the 4 same day or not. 5 Q. Would this document have to be completed 6 under Andersen's internal procedures before a comfort 7 letter like the one on March 19th could be issued to 8 Morgan Stanley? 9 A. The form might not necessarily have to be 10 filled out, but the work should have been done. 11 Q. So that these procedures that are described 12 here in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 43 would need to be 13 completed in March of 1998 before the offering 14 memorandum could be completed? 15 MR. MOSCATO: The offering memorandum or the 16 comfort letter? 17 BY MR. CLARE: 18 Q. Well, let's start with the comfort letter. 19 Before the comfort letter could be issued? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. And before the offering memorandum would be 22 finalized? 23 A. I don't recall specifically about that. 24 Q. Your handwriting here indicates that the post 25 audit work and AP187 work was done in its entirety as
Page 282 1 A. No. 2 Q. The handwriting at the bottom of the first 3 page, can you read that as best you can for me? 4 A. Says, "No consent required on section 144 5 offering; however, PAR," which means post audit review, 6 "work and AP 187 work done in its entirety as the 7 firm's name appears in the financial statements 8 included with this document. Work done herein 9 sufficient as if we were to issue our consent." 10 Q. What are you communicating here? 11 MR. MOSCATO: I object. It's perfectly 12 clear. 13 Are you communicating anything other than 14 what's written in the plain wording of this note? 15 THE WITNESS: No. 16 BY MR. CLARE: 17 Q. And you wrote those words in March of 1998? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. And you signed your name below those words in 20 March of 1998? 21 A. Yes. 22 Q. And the date on the front of the document 23 that discusses post audit review having been completed 24 is March 16, 1998, do you see that? 25 A. Yes.	Page 284 1 the firm's name appears in the F1. 2 Can you tell me what AP187 -- 3 A. That's financial statements. 4 Q. Appears in the financial statements included 5 with this document. 6 A. Yeah. 7 Q. Can you tell me what AP187 refers to? 8 A. This document. If you look on the bottom 9 left-hand corner, it says AA & Company, AP187. 10 Q. I see. So you're stating here in the 11 handwritten notation that the post audit work that was 12 done by Andersen and the procedures that were performed 13 that are described in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 43 were 14 done as if Andersen would be issuing a formal consent 15 for the inclusion of its audited financials in the 16 financial offering memorandum; is that correct? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. So the standard of care that Andersen used in 19 going through its internal procedures was the same as 20 if it were required to issue a formal consent? 21 A. Yes. 22 Q. That's what you're communicating here in 23 March of 1998? 24 A. Yes. 25 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We have to change the

 9 BY MR. CLARE:
 10 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I want to have you turn over
 11 to the second page of Exhibit 43. And the first 12 procedure, I'd like to ask you to read that, please, to 13 yourself.
 14 A. Okay.
 15 Q. And this procedure requires that somebody
 16 from Andersen read the entire registration statement
 17 including the prospectus and perform certain
 18 procedures, correct?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. And it requires Andersen to cross reference
 21 amounts in the narrative section to similar amounts in 22 the audited financials, correct?
 23 A. Correct.
 24 Q. And ascertain that there are no
 25 inconsistencies or conflict between the narrative

Page 286

1 section and the audited financials, correct?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. And your initials are listed to the right?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And did you perform those procedures with 6 regard to the offering memorandum?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. And you performed those procedures in March
 9 of 1998?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. On March 19th, 1998, or before? In other 12 words, before the offering memorandum was finalized or 13 printed at Global Financial Press?
 14 A. Before and during.
 15 Q. Those procedures were not carried out any 16 time after that evening at the printer?
 17 A. They were performed after, but on different
 18 documents.
 19 Q. Correct, but with respect to the offering
 20 memorandum, those procedures were performed before you
 21 left the printer that morning?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. I'm going to hand you the next exhibit.
 24 That's Morgan Stanley Exhibit 44.
 25 This is another copy of the March 16, 1998

Page 287

1 management representation letter that you looked at
 2 this morning with Mr. Markowski.
 3 A. Is it exactly the same or is it different?
 4 Q. It's another copy.
 5 A. Okay.
 6 Q. And you see it's signed on page three by the 7 same group of individuals that you discussed this
 8 morning.
 9 A. Okay.
 10 Q. What role did you personally play in drafting
 11 the management representation letters for the comfort
 12 letters that were issued to Morgan Stanley in the first
 13 quarter of 1998?
 14 A. I don't remember specifically.
 15 Q. Do you remember having seen drafts?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Before they were issued and commenting on 18 them?
 19 A. I believe so, yes.
 20 Q. Did you discuss as part of your work on the 21 management representation letters with Sunbeam
 22 management the contents of the letter?
 23 A. I don't remember specifically myself doing
 24 that.
 25 Q. Who was working with you on the management

Page 288

1 representation letter?
 2 A. I believe Dennis Pastrana.
 3 Q. Did, as far as you know and can recall, did
 4 you have any discussions with Mr. Pastrana about what
 5 Sunbeam management would or would not be willing to 6 represent in the management letter?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone in 9 Sunbeam management about what Sunbeam management would 10 be willing or not willing to represent in a management
 11 letter?
 12 A. Not that I recall.
 13 Q. I hand you the next document, Morgan Stanley
 14 Exhibit 45. Just let me know when you're ready.
 15 A. Okay.
 16 Q. This is an undated draft, appears to be an 17 undated draft of the management representation, of a
 18 management representation letter. Do you see that?
 19 A. Yes.
 20 Q. If you look in format and style, it's similar 21 to the representation letter that we just looked at.
 22 A. Okay.
 23 Q. If you turn over and look at the second page 24 of the document on item eight, there is a table of 25 information there. Do you see that?

Page 289

1 A. Table of information?
2 Q. Well, there is net sales and net income
3 information for two different time periods.
4 A. I'm sorry, what page?
5 Q. On the second page.
6 A. Right, okay.
7 Q. Okay? And you discussed with Mr. Markowski
8 this morning that net income and loss information was 9 one item that would be included in the management
10 representation letter; do you see that?
11 A. Right.
12 Q. Are you able to place this draft of the 13 management representation letter in time in any way by 14 looking at this?
15 A. No.
16 Q. And you recall that there were two different
17 management representation issues issued? There was one
18 in connection with the first comfort letter and then a 19 second one that was issued in connection with the 20 bring-down letter?
21 Do you remember that from this morning?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. Are you able to recognize this as a draft of 24 the second management comfort letter?
25 MR. MOSCATO: One way or the other? Yes or

Page 290

1 no.
2 THE WITNESS: This is a draft of the second?
3 BY MR. CLARE:
4 Q. Yes.
5 A. No, I can't.
6 Q. You can't tell which version it's a draft of?
7 MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm sorry, I missed the
8 thread here. Are you asking whether this is a
9 version of the March 25?
10 MR. CLARE: I'm asking if he can place it in 11 time as to whether it's a draft of the initial 12 March 16th management representation letter or 13 whether it's a draft of the March 25
14 representation letter.
15 MR. MARKOWSKI: Actually I guess it's 16 March 23. I'm sorry to mislead you. I think it
17 was March 23.
18 THE WITNESS: I have no idea one way or the 19 other.
20 BY MR. CLARE:
21 Q. Okay. If you turn to the last page of the 22 document -- next-to-the-last page, page marked Bates
23 number CPH 00441653, item ten.
24 A. Right.
25 Q. It states, "Despite the decrease in net sales

Page 291

1 described in the preceding paragraph, management
2 believes that net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 3 1998 will exceed net sales of the first quarter of 4 fiscal 1997."
5 Do you see that?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. And that's a similar statement to the one
8 that was included in the press release?
9 A. Correct.
10 Q. Do you recall in your work on the management
11 representation letter discussing that provision?
12 A. No, I don't. Sorry.
13 Q. Do you recall any discussion about whether 14 Andersen wanted a representation, an affirmative
15 representation from Sunbeam's management that it had 16 that expectation?
17 A. It was already made in the press release. I
18 don't believe so.
19 MR. MOSCATO: The answer is yes or no. It's 20 getting late in the day.
21 THE WITNESS: I think the answer was no. Can
22 you answer -- read the question again.
23 (Thereupon, a portion of the record
24 was read by the reporter.)
25 THE WITNESS: I don't, I don't remember.

Page 292

1 BY MR. CLARE:
2 Q. I'm going to hand you the next exhibit that's
3 Morgan Stanley Exhibit 46. It appears to be another
4 draft of the management representation letter. Do you
5 see that?
6 A. Uh huh.
7 Q. And this document, Exhibit 46, has a fax line
8 across the top of the page indicating it was faxed on 9 March 23rd, 1998. Do you see that?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Do you recognize that fax number?
12 A. Yeah, I, it looks vaguely familiar. I don't 13 know exactly where it is.
14 Q. It appears that this fax was sent by somebody
15 on March 23rd, 1998.
16 Is this your handwriting on Morgan Stanley
17 Exhibit 46?
18 A. On page one it is, but not on page four, I
19 guess, on the top.
20 Q. So the edit that's made on the first page is 21 an edit that you made, correct?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. And the edit that was made to paragraph ten,
24 somebody else's handwriting?
25 A. Right.

Page 293

1 Q. Do you know whose handwriting that is? Do
 2 you recognize it?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Again, on the last page. The edited
 5 paragraph ten.
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. I'd like you to keep that in front of you for
 8 just a minute while I hand you the next document,
 9 Morgan Stanley Exhibit 47, which is the March 23rd,
 10 1998 management representation letter.
 11 A. Okay.
 12 Q. Now we've looked at a couple of drafts of 13 representation letter, Exhibits 45 and 46, that 14 included a paragraph --
 15 A. Right.
 16 Q. -- stating that management believed it would
 17 exceed first quarter sales in 1997. Correct?
 18 A. I'm sorry, just give me one minute so I can
 19 get my bearing here. Say it again.
 20 Q. The drafts that we've been looking at,
 21 Exhibits 45 and 46, have a paragraph ten that states an 22 expectation by management regarding net sales in the 23 first quarter of 1998 exceeding net sales in the first
 24 quarter of 1997.
 25 A. Right.

Page 294

1 Q. But that paragraph does not appear in the
 2 March 23rd, 1998 representation letter as it was
 3 finally signed.
 4 Do you have any knowledge or information
 5 about how that paragraph got deleted?
 6 A. Actually I, it's actually coming back to me
 7 what happened here.
 8 I remember, I remember getting -- I do
 9 remember getting this fax and starting to review it.
 10 Q. Okay. Just to be clear --
 11 A. Fax, I remember getting the fax that's dated 12 whatever it is, 3/23/98.
 13 Q. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 46?
 14 A. Yeah.
 15 Q. Okay. I remember reading the first page, I
 16 read the first paragraph, and then basically just 17 stopping and calling and saying we've already done a
 18 rep letter dated March 16th. You guys are pulling from 19 the wrong file. I remember I stopped reviewing this.
 20 Follow me?
 21 There is a rep letter dated the 16th.
 22 Q. Right.
 23 A. We had updated the 23rd. So whoever started
 24 working on this pulled a different file to start
 25 updating.

Page 295

1 MR. MOSCATO: You mean this was -- what you
 2 wanted someone to do was do a draft of the
 3 bring-down, and they pulled the comfort instead?
 4 THE WITNESS: No, no. What I'm saying is we
 5 did a rep letter, March 16th.
 6 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry.
 7 THE WITNESS: So I know we did a rep letter
 8 the 16th with the $2 billion on there, or whatever
 9 the number was.
 10 And I remember reviewing this one and it
 11 showing 1.3 million, which was the original
 12 amount.
 13 So after reading the first paragraph, I just 14 said this is the wrong one. You must be updating 15 the wrong file. And I never reviewed the rest of 16 it.
 17 BY MR. CLARE:
 18 Q. Okay. Well, the March 16th rep letter that 19 you have in front of you, which is Morgan Stanley
 20 Exhibit 44, as the final version also does not contain 21 that paragraph that we were looking at in drafts.
 22 A. Yeah, I never saw that paragraph before.
 23 Q. So you don't have any information about who 24 put it in?
 25 A. No.

Page 296

1 Q. Or why it was taken out?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Or why it does not appear in the March 16th
 4 version of the rep letter?
 5 A. None whatsoever.
 6 Q. Or the March 23rd version?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Now you worked on the 1997 audit?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. Do you believe as you sit here today that 11 Sunbeam withheld material information from you in 12 connection with the 1997 audit?
 13 A. As I sit here today? Yes.
 14 Q. And now those subjects, the audit and the 15 work that was done on the restatement were covered in 16 detail in your prior depositions, and I'm not going to 17 ask you to go through them in detail, but in general,
 18 do you believe that Sunbeam withheld material
 19 information from Andersen regarding its reserves?
 20 MR. MOSCATO: I'm going to make an objection.
 21 Years ago in front of the SEC he gave exhaustive
 22 testimony about what he thought Sunbeam had 23 misrepresented and concealed from him and what 24 they didn't.
 25 I really think it's unfair and really not

Page 297 1 terribly productive to get into it again now. 2 There is a full, complete record of his testimony 3 on that subject when it was a lot closer to the 4 events. 5 And my concern is any testimony he gives now 6 will necessarily be incomplete. I don't believe 7 he has reviewed any of that testimony, and it's 8 been six years now. 9 MR. CLARE: Okay. 10 MR. MOSCATO: That's my objection. So, you 11 know, I guess I'll let him answer, but under the 12 caveat that I can't imagine he is capable of 13 giving anything close to a complete answer at this 14 time. 15 MR. CLARE: Okay, I will accept that, and as 16 I mentioned to you at the outset of this 17 questioning, I'm not going to belabor the point. 18 I've read that prior testimony and I believe that 19 it is a complete recount, recitation of your 20 testimony in this regard, and I'm not intending to 21 replow it and I'm not trying to play gotcha with 22 you and identify other areas. 23 I'm just trying to understand the general 24 subject areas, we talked about a number of them 25 today, in connection with what information Morgan	Page 299 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. And you did a number of additional 3 procedures? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. And those interviews and those additional 6 procedures resulted in you and Andersen having 7 information about Sunbeam that it didn't have in 8 connection with the 1997 audit; is that correct? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. A lot more information? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. Okay. And those interviews and those 13 additional procedures also resulted in Andersen and you 14 having information about Sunbeam that it didn't have in 15 the first quarter of 1998? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. And it was at that point that you concluded 18 that Sunbeam had withheld material information from 19 Andersen? 20 MR. MOSCATO: That point being during the 21 restatement process? 22 MR. CLARE: During the restatement process. 23 THE WITNESS: For the most part, yes. 24 BY MR. CLARE: 25 Q. Is that a fair statement?
Page 298 1 Stanley asked about and what information we had 2 when we, Morgan Stanley, were doing the due 3 diligence. 4 BY MR. CLARE: 5 Q. So I guess let me just ask you this general 6 question. 7 As you sit here today, do you have any reason 8 to know that Morgan Stanley had more information than 9 Andersen in the first quarter of 1998? 10 MR. MARKOWSKI: On what subject? 11 MR. CLARE: Well, on any subject. 12 THE WITNESS: I have no idea what they had or 13 didn't have. 14 BY MR. CLARE: 15 Q. You felt, though, that Sunbeam had withheld 16 material information from Andersen on a number of 17 different areas, correct? 18 MR. MOSCATO: Objection, can you please pin 19 down when he came to that frame of mind? 20 BY MR. CLARE: 21 Q. You worked on the restatement investigation, 22 correct? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. And as part of the restatement investigation, 25 you conducted interviews of Sunbeam employees?	Page 300 1 A. That made it pretty iron clad that that was 2 the case, yes. 3 Q. Did you consider the information that was 4 withheld by Sunbeam from Andersen to be material? 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. And as you sit here today, do you consider 7 the information that was withheld by Sunbeam from 8 Andersen to be important to an understanding of 9 Sunbeam's business? 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. And as you sit here today, do you have any 12 reason to believe as a result of your work on the 13 restatement investigation that Morgan Stanley had 14 information about Sunbeam that was withheld from 15 Andersen? 16 A. I have no idea. 17 Q. Do you have any information that occurs to 18 you today as a result of your work on the restatement 19 investigation where you said Morgan Stanley knew x 20 facts and we, Andersen, did not? 21 MR. MOSCATO: Larry, the question is do you 22 have any information? So the answer is either 23 yes, you do have information, or no, you don't 24 have information. 25 THE WITNESS: I think there is information --

1 I've come to understand that there was information
 2 given to Morgan Stanley that wasn't given to
 3 Arthur Andersen. Is that your question?
 4 BY MR. CLARE:
 5 Q. Sure. Now tell me what that information was.
 6 A. Just reading the -- you know, I can't tell
 7 you if it's true or not. Reading the complaints.
 8 Q. Oh, the complaints that were filed in this
 9 lawsuit?
 10 A. Right.
 11 Q. So putting aside the allegations that are 12 made in the complaints that were filed in this lawsuit,
 13 and I want you to exclude them from your mind, because 14 those are legal allegations that were made and have not
 15 been proven and there is no evidence has been submitted
 16 yet to support them, but based than your own personal
 17 knowledge and recollection of the events --
 18 A. I think --
 19 MR. MOSCATO: Let him finish.
 20 BY MR. CLARE:
 21 Q. Based on your own personal knowledge and 22 events, involved in these events, are you aware of any 23 information that Morgan Stanley had in 1997 or the 24 first quarter of 1998 that Andersen did not?
 25 A. I believe there were, there is correspondence

Page 302

1 and documentation of previous meetings with Coleman and
 2 Al Dunlap, and I recall specifically after going
 3 through all of the documents that were furnished to the 4 SEC.
 5 Q. I'm not sure I understand your answer.
 6 A. Well, I believe that there were documents. I
 7 reviewed all the documents that were given to the SEC
 8 by everybody, all of Sunbeam, whatever, first, second,
 9 third phase.
 10 And there was documentation on various
 11 meetings and conversations and initial meeting,
 12 conversation with Dunlap and representatives of 13 Coleman. I don't remember specifically, but I believe 14 there were also people from Morgan Stanley at those 15 meetings.
 16 Q. You're saying that these were documents that 17 related to negotiations between Sunbeam and Coleman for 18 the acquisition?
 19 A. Before the contemplated acquisition in March,
 20 there was I think another series of conversations
 21 before the end of the year. That's all I can recall
 22 specifically.
 23 Q. Okay. So putting aside information that 24 related to the acquisition, and I want to focus on your 25 work on the restatement investigation, you reviewed the

1 restatement report that was issued by Andersen?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Are you generally familiar with the areas in 4 which a restatement of Sunbeam's financial statements
 5 were done?
 6 A. Generally, yes.
 7 Q. Bill and hold transactions and reserves and 8 supplier rebates, those type of areas?
 9 A. Correct.
 10 Q. In any of the areas that were covered by the 11 restatement investigation and the subsequent 12 restatement report, did you learn any information that
 13 Morgan Stanley had that was not available to Andersen?
 14 A. I believe there were forecasts and detailed 15 information that was given to Morgan Stanley that we 16 didn't get copies of.
 17 Q. Can you identify them?
 18 A. Not specifically. I remember meetings with,
 19 having meetings with Lisa Galbarth, I think her name
 20 was, or I think the -- I forget the name of the other
 21 one, a number of documents to go through the forecast
 22 and as such to get ready for the bank syndicate.
 23 So there were a lot of documents that we 24 never saw, but that we knew were supplied to Morgan
 25 Stanley.

Page 304

1 Q. What about information that related to the
 2 specific restatement items? Putting aside the fact
 3 that Andersen -- that Sunbeam may have provided
 4 documents that were different than the documents that
 5 were provided to Andersen, was there any information
 6 relevant to your restatement inquiry that Morgan
 7 Stanley had that Andersen did not?
 8 A. I have no idea.
 9 Q. You don't recall any as you sit here today?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. As part of the work that you did on the 12 restatement, did you discover any evidence or 13 information that Morgan Stanley was involved in any of 14 the accounting judgments that led to the restatement?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. Or any of the individual transactions that 17 are described in the restatement report?
 18 A. I don't believe so, no.
 19 Q. We've talked about a couple of them today,
 20 EPI and Encore and some of those. Did you uncover any 21 information that Morgan Stanley was involved in any of 22 those transactions?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. As part of the work that you did on the
 25 restatement, you interviewed Sunbeam employees,

Page 305 1 correct? 2 A. Some. 3 Q. And you participated in a number of those 4 interviews? 5 A. Yes. 6 Q. You've seen more than 30 interviews. Can you 7 estimate how many of those you participated in? 8 A. I don't know, six to twelve maybe. 9 Q. And those interviews were conducted in 10 connection, in conjunction with the attorneys at 11 Scadden Arps? 12 A. Among others, yes. 13 Q. And they were conducted after Al Dunlap had 14 been fired? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. And after Kersh was gone? 17 A. I believe so, yes. 18 Q. This was after Mr. Levin had been installed 19 as the CEO? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. After Mr. Levin had instituted what became 22 known as the amnesty program? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. Are you familiar with the amnesty program 25 that Mr. Levin instituted generally?	Page 307 1 A. I don't know. 2 Q. We've seen reports in the production showing 3 that you spent more than 1,000 hours on the restatement 4 investigation. Does that sound about right? 5 A. Probably. 6 Q. And in addition to the interviews that we 7 described, you did additional accounting procedures? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. One of the interviews that you conducted was 10 Deborah MacDonald? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. Were you present for that interview? 13 A. I believe so, yes. 14 Q. Do you recall Miss MacDonald telling you that 15 the only contact that people from Sunbeam had with 16 investment bankers was through Mr. Kersh and 17 Mr. Goudis? 18 A. Sounds familiar, but I'm not 100 percent 19 sure. 20 MR. CLARE: Mark this as the next exhibit, 21 please. 22 (MS Exhibit No. 59 was marked for 23 identification.) 24 25
Page 306 1 A. I think I might have been the first one to 2 let an employee know about it. 3 Q. But the -- 4 A. Speak now or forever hold your peace type 5 thing. 6 Q. The purpose was to encourage employees to be 7 candid with Andersen and Scadden in conducting these 8 interviews as part of the restatement? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. Because Andersen wanted to get as much 11 information as possible from Sunbeam about what was 12 really going on? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. Can you describe just generally what your 15 role was in the restatement? 16 A. To help coordinate the efforts, to interview 17 the people you mentioned, to do some additional work 18 myself, to deal with Deloitte & Touche, Scadden Arps, 19 the management team, and basically review and look for 20 items, things that were withheld from Arthur Andersen. 21 Q. And you discovered items that were withheld 22 from Arthur Andersen, correct? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. How much time did you spend, roughly, on the 25 restatement investigation?	Page 308 1 BY MR. CLARE: 2 Q. I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan 3 Stanley Exhibit 60. 4 A. Okay. 5 Q. It's a July 24th, 1998, memo from Donald 6 Denkhaus to the files, memorializing an interview 7 conducted with Deborah MacDonald. 8 Have you seen this document before? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. The document states in the first paragraph 11 that "On July 21st, 1998, Larry Bornstein and Chris 12 Malloy, attorney with Scadden Arps, and Mr. Denkhaus 13 conducted an interview." 14 Do you recall being present in the interview 15 with Miss MacDonald? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. Flip to page five of the interview memo. 18 Top of the page says, "MacDonald indicated that the 19 only contact that the investment bankers, Morgan 20 Stanley, had with the company was through Kersh and 21 Goudis." 22 Do you see that? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. Do you recall Miss MacDonald telling you 25 that?

Page 309 1 A. Not specifically, no. 2 Q. Do you recall generally her telling you that? 3 A. No. 4 Q. In the course of the work that you did on the 5 restatement investigation, did you learn that Morgan 6 Stanley had contact with Sunbeam employees other than 7 Mr. Kersh and Mr. Goudis? 8 A. No, not specifically, no. 9 Q. Is what Miss MacDonald -- let me withdraw 10 that. 11 It's reported here in the interview memo, 12 Miss MacDonald's statement, that all the information 13 for Morgan Stanley had to go through Mr. Kersh and 14 Mr. Goudis. 15 Is that consistent -- well, I don't want 16 to -- is that consistent with what you learned in the 17 restatement investigation about how Sunbeam's 18 management controlled information from outsiders? 19 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 20 question. 21 MR. MOSCATO: I have to object. 22 THE WITNESS: Are you going to object? 23 MR. MOSCATO: I already did object. 24 THE WITNESS: Sorry about that. 25	Page 311 1 so internally inconsistent, I'm not sure what 2 generalizations you can make out of this document 3 and I'm not sure how you can generalize the 4 generalizations in this document to what happened 5 with Andersen. I just think it's very confusing 6 and I don't think it's a fair question as posed. 7 MR. CLARE: Well, I'm not trying to confuse. 8 All I'm trying to get at is if this were in fact 9 the case. 10 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, what? 11 THE WITNESS: If it was the case. 12 BY MR. CLARE: 13 Q. Were you surprised, are you surprised to 14 learn that Sunbeam employees thought that information 15 they had was withheld from Morgan Stanley? 16 Does that surprise you based on what you 17 heard in the restatement investigation? 18 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 19 question. 20 MR. MOSCATO: You can answer that question. 21 THE WITNESS: No. 22 BY MR. CLARE: 23 Q. Why doesn't that surprise you? 24 A. Based on where we sit today, what happened. 25 Q. Okay. Is one of the reasons it doesn't
Page 310 1 BY MR. CLARE: 2 Q. Here's my question. You testified before 3 that material information had been withheld from 4 Andersen during 1997 and the first quarter of 1998, 5 correct? 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. And that information was withheld from 8 Andersen by members of Sunbeam management, right? 9 A. In some cases, yes. 10 Q. Okay. And information that was known to 11 other employees at Sunbeam was shielded from Andersen, 12 correct? 13 A. In some cases, yes. 14 Q. So you, as part of the restatement 15 investigation, you concluded that Sunbeam employees had 16 information that was not provided to Andersen. And 17 what I'm asking is what Miss MacDonald is reporting 18 here, that information had to be channeled through 19 senior management to go to Morgan Stanley, is that 20 consistent with what, the conclusion you formed about 21 how Sunbeam controlled information from outsiders? 22 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 23 question. 24 MR. MOSCATO: I have to object to it. I even 25 object to -- I don't know, the memo itself is just	Page 312 1 surprise you is because information was also withheld 2 from Andersen? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. As part of the restatement investigation, did 5 Andersen ultimately reach an opinion as to whether 6 Sunbeam's internal controls were adequate in 1997 and 7 the first quarter of 1998? 8 A. As part of the restatement? I believe they 9 did. 10 Q. And do you recall what that opinion was? 11 A. Not specifically, no. 12 Q. And as part of the restatement investigation, 13 did Andersen reach an opinion as to whether Sunbeam was 14 able to produce accurate financial statements in 1997 15 and the first quarter of 1998? 16 A. I believe we did, yes. 17 Q. And do you know what that opinion was? 18 A. Which opinion is this? 19 Q. Regarding Sunbeam's ability to produce 20 accurate financial statements in 1997, in the first 21 quarter of -- 22 A. I don't remember specifically what the 23 opinion said. 24 Q. Isn't it true that Sunbeam concluded -- 25 strike that.

1 Isn't it true that Andersen concluded at the
 2 conclusion of the restatement investigation that
 3 Sunbeam's internal controls were inadequate in 1997 and
 4 the first quarter of 1998?
 5 A. I believe so, yes.
 6 Q. And isn't it true that Andersen concluded at 7 the end of the restatement investigation that Sunbeam
 8 was unable to produce accurate financial statements in 9 1997 and the first quarter of 1998?
 10 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
 11 THE WITNESS: I'm not sure exactly if that's 12 the way it -- I know there was a restatement, so I
 13 don't remember what the opinion says.
 14 MR. CLARE: I'm going to hand you the next
 15 exhibit we'll mark as Morgan Stanley 61.
 16 THE REPORTER: 60.
 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: If that's right, you might 18 want to adjust the numbering, because he was 19 testifying about a document you were calling 60
 20 already, so you might want to make this one 59 and 21 that one 60.
 22 THE WITNESS: The Deborah MacDonald document
 23 was 59.
 24 MR. MARKOWSKI: But it was referred to in the 25 transcript as 60.

Page 314

1 MR. MOSCATO: Why don't we just correct the
 2 transcript then.
 3 MR. MARKOWSKI: Either one, one way or the
 4 other.
 5 MR. CLARE: Let's mark this as 61.
 6 (MS Exhibit No. 60 was marked for
 7 identification.)
 8 MR. MARKOWSKI: What are we doing about the 9 MacDonald exhibit?
 10 MR. CLARE: We'll correct it in the 11 transcript.
 12 THE WITNESS: She put 60 on here.
 13 MR. CLARE: Let's re-mark the October 16,
 14 1998 management letter as Morgan Stanley
 15 Exhibit 61.
 16 (Thereupon, the document was re-marked 61.)
 17 THE REPORTER: So there is no 60?
 18 MR. CLARE: Not yet. And let's re-mark the 19 Deborah MacDonald interview memo as Exhibit 60 to 20 conform with testimony.
 21 (MS Exhibit No. 60 was marked for
 22 identification.)
 23 BY MR. CLARE:
 24 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I'm handing you what has now
 25 been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 61, a document,

Page 315

1 first page says Sunbeam Corporation Management Letter,
 2 October 16, 1998.
 3 Have you seen this document before?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And if you turn to the third page of the 6 exhibit, it's a letter dated October 16, 1998, from 7 Andersen addressed to the board of directors,
 8 management of Sunbeam Corporation.
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. If you look at page two of the letter, which 11 is Bates number CPH 0084409, second full paragraph, I
 12 ask you to read that to yourself.
 13 A. Okay.
 14 Q. The last sentence there expresses the opinion
 15 that "The company's design and effectiveness of its 16 internal controls were inadequate to detect material
 17 misstatements in the preparation of the company's 1997
 18 annual and quarterly financial statements."
 19 Do you see that?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. That was a conclusion that Andersen reached
 22 in October of 1998?
 23 A. Yes, that's what it says here.
 24 Q. Okay. This was at the conclusion of the 25 restatement investigation?

Page 316

1 A. I believe so.
 2 Q. And did you share that conclusion in
 3 October 1998?
 4 A. I don't specifically remember if I did or
 5 didn't, but I was part of the engagement team, so --
 6 Q. In 1997 while you were working on the Sunbeam
 7 audit, did you have any reason based on the work that
 8 you performed to question the design or effectiveness
 9 of Sunbeam's internal controls?
 10 A. In some areas, yes.
 11 Q. Can you tell me what they were?
 12 A. There was a draft of a management letter that 13 was, I don't think it was ever issued, but given to 14 people from Sunbeam that probably had several of these 15 in there.
 16 Q. This was provided to Sunbeam management in 17 19, in connection with the 1997 audit?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. And did you believe that the conditions that 20 were described in the draft management letter were 21 material weaknesses as that term is defined in Morgan
 22 Stanley Exhibit 61?
 23 A. Not at that time, no.
 24 Q. At that time those were suggestions by 25 Andersen on how internal control could be improved?

Page 317

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. But the conclusion that there was a material
 3 weakness was not reached by you or Andersen until 4 October 1998; is that correct?
 5 A. I don't know the specific date, but that's 6 when the report was given.
 7 Q. The report here identifies -- you can flip 8 through it -- a number of areas that are identified as 9 material weaknesses. Do you see that?
 10 A. I do.
 11 Q. Okay. Were any of the material weaknesses
 12 that are identified as material weaknesses in this 13 report known to you in 1997?
 14 A. Any of the material weaknesses known to me
 15 during when?
 16 MR. MOSCATO: Any material weaknesses?
 17 MR. CLARE: Correct.
 18 BY MR. CLARE:
 19 Q. I'm asking you while you were working on the 20 1997 audit, were you aware of anything that rose to the 21 level of a material weakness of Sunbeam's internal
 22 controls?
 23 MR. MOSCATO: I thought he answered that.
 24 MR. CLARE: The answer is no?
 25 THE WITNESS: That's what I answered a few

Page 318

1 minutes ago.
 2 BY MR. CLARE:
 3 Q. In the first quarter of 1998, were you aware
 4 of any material weaknesses in Sunbeam's internal
 5 controls?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. In 1997, did you believe that Andersen -- I'm 8 sorry, did you believe that Sunbeam was incapable of 9 producing reliable financial statements?
 10 A. No.
 11 Q. Did you believe that in the first quarter of 12 1998?
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. Did you have any reason in the first quarter
 15 of 1998 to believe that Sunbeam was incapable of 16 producing reliable financial statements?
 17 MR. MOSCATO: I object. I just don't see the 18 difference between that question and one he just 19 answered two minutes ago. I'm really, I have to 20 object in the strongest terms of repeating the 21 same thing over and over.
 22 We're getting near the eight-hour limit, and 23 I'd ask you to be just a little less repetitive in 24 your questioning. And I do that in all respect.
 25 I think you're conducting a very professional

Page 319

1 examination. I just think it's a little
 2 repetitive.
 3 MR. CLARE: This is my last question in this
 4 area and I plan to move on, so the objection took
 5 longer than the repetitive questioning.
 6 MR. MOSCATO: I think it needs to be said,
 7 though, but go on.
 8 MR. CLARE: Can you reread my question,
 9 please. We'll get an answer and move on to the 10 next topic.
 11 (Thereupon, a portion of the record
 12 was read by the reporter.)
 13 THE WITNESS: No.
 14 BY MR. CLARE:
 15 Q. In August of 1998 were you aware of a
 16 settlement between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. Did you have any involvement in --
 19 A. Actually, say that again, in August of -- 20 Q. 1998, were you aware of a settlement that 21 took place in that time period between Sunbeam and 22 MacAndrews & Forbes?
 23 A. Generally I did, yeah.
 24 Q. And this was a settlement whereby MacAndrews
 25 and Forbes received warrants to purchase additional

Page 320

1 shares of Sunbeam stock?
 2 A. I believe so.
 3 Q. Did you have any involvement or do any work
 4 on behalf of Sunbeam in connection with that
 5 settlement?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. Did you have any involvement in valuing those 8 warrants?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Or disclosing that settlement in Sunbeam's
 11 financial statements?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. Have you ever seen any documents or reports
 14 relating to the valuation of those warrants?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. You were involved in drafting the disclosures
 17 that were in the 1997 10K, weren't you, some of them?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. And specifically you were involved in the 20 drafting of disclosures in the 10K about Sunbeam's bill
 21 and hold sales?
 22 A. I don't know about drafting, but recommending
 23 that something be put in there.
 24 Q. Okay. At one of your prior depositions you
 25 said that you were involved in at least reviewing and

Page 321 1 commenting on the disclosures. Is that correct? 2 A. Yeah, I think that's fair. 3 Q. And the deposition you indicated that you 4 thought those disclosures were very good disclosures. 5 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 6 question. 7 THE WITNESS: I don't know if they were very 8 good, I don't remember what I said, very good or 9 good, but -- 10 BY MR. CLARE: 11 Q. But you thought they were either very good or 12 good? 13 A. Well, they were reasonable. 14 Q. Okay. And at the time were you aware of any 15 bill and hold transactions beyond those that had been 16 disclosed in the 1997 10K? 17 A. No. 18 Q. And do you think that the disclosures that 19 you reviewed and that ultimately ended up in the 1997 20 10K adequately informed investors that Sunbeam had 21 engaged in hold sales? 22 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 23 question. 24 THE WITNESS: Yes. 25	Page 323 1 BY MR. CLARE: 2 Q. If you look at the document, the Bates number 3 at the bottom, CPH 1409071. 4 A. Okay. 5 Q. The paragraph at the top of the page, 6 carryover paragraph, if you just read that to yourself. 7 My question is going to be whether you had any 8 involvement in drafting this disclosure. 9 THE WITNESS: I don't remember having any 10 specific involvement in that specific paragraph. 11 BY MR. CLARE: 12 Q. Do you recognize that paragraph as in part a 13 disclosure of the Sunbeam's Early Buy program and the 14 risks associated with the Early Buy program? 15 A. One of the risks. 16 Q. And that risk is that it increases the 17 company's risk of collecting accounts receivable? 18 A. Correct. 19 Q. And this is, this disclosure is contained in 20 the section labeled Cautionary Statements of the 10K? 21 A. Couldn't tell you. There is like eight 22 different fonts here. 23 Q. If you look at the page before, page seven? 24 MR. MOSCATO: I object. You don't need 25 Mr. Bornstein to say where in a publicly-filed
Page 322 1 BY MR. CLARE: 2 Q. Are you aware that the 1997 10K includes 3 disclosures about Sunbeam's Early Buy program? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. You were involved in drafting those 6 disclosures, too? 7 A. I don't remember specifically. 8 Q. Did you play a similar role as you just 9 described with regard to bill and hold? 10 A. I don't remember. 11 Q. This morning Mr. Markowski asked you some 12 questions about the Early Buy program and the, what it 13 means to accelerate sales from one quarter into an 14 earlier quarter. Do you recall that? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. Do you recall that that subject, the 17 possibility of sales being advanced into an earlier 18 quarter, was among the information contained in the 19 disclosures? 20 MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the 21 question, lack of foundation. 22 THE WITNESS: I'd have to look at it. 23 MR. CLARE: Let's look at what was previously 24 marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 12. 25	Page 324 1 document with the SEC a particular paragraph 2 exists. This is really becoming abusive now. 3 Can you please ask him factual questions 4 other than identifying that particular words exist 5 in a particular document that's publicly filed. 6 BY MR. CLARE: 7 Q. Do you see on page seven it says the words 8 Cautionary Statements? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. So the disclosure that you just read appears 11 in that section? 12 A. Yes. 13 Q. If you turn to the next page, two pages 14 later, page nine of the 10K, the third bullet from the 15 bottom, the bullet that begins "Sales of certain of the 16 company's products," do you see that? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. Read that bullet to yourself, and I'm going 19 to ask you if you were involved in drafting that 20 disclosure. 21 A. I don't remember having any involvement in 22 drafting that. 23 Q. The discussion that you had with 24 Mr. Markowski this morning about accelerating sales in 25 one quarter or one financial period into an earlier

Page 325 1 period -- 2 A. Yes. 3 Q. Is the paragraph that you just read on page 4 nine of the 10K, is that a disclosure that, of that 5 phenomena that you were describing? 6 A. I have no idea. I can read it 100 times. 7 It's too late in the day to give you a conclusion on 8 that. 9 Q. Well, this morning, in response to questions 10 from Mr. Markowski, you testified that in looking at 11 various iterations of the comfort letter -- 12 A. The comfort letter? 13 Q. Yes. There was a discussion there about 14 reasons for the shortfall -- 15 A. Right, right. 16 Q. -- in January and February of 1998. Do you 17 recall that? 18 A. Yes. 19 Q. And you testified this morning about the 20 impact of an Early Buy program and how one of the 21 reasons identified in the comfort letter was the 22 acceleration of sales into an earlier time period. 23 Do you recall that? 24 A. Right. 25 Q. And my question is does this disclosure that	Page 327 1 A. I'm not sure about him. Mr. Lurie was. 2 Q. Mr. Lurie was also on the call? 3 A. He was physically present. 4 Q. And he was physically present with you in New 5 York. 6 And the only in-person meeting that you had 7 with Morgan Stanley was the one at Global Financial 8 Press in New York? 9 A. Several meetings, yes. 10 Q. A series of meetings? 11 A. And Scadden Arps. 12 MR. CLARE: Let's take a two-minute break and 13 I think we may be done or close to done. 14 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video 15 record. The time on the monitor is 5:05 p.m. 16 (Thereupon, a recess was taken.) 17 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video 18 record. The time on the monitor, 5:11 p.m. 19 BY MR. CLARE: 20 Q. Mr. Bornstein, I appreciate your patience. A 21 few final items for now. 22 You discussed earlier in your testimony the 23 decision by Sunbeam to extend first quarter of 1998, do 24 you recall that? 25 A. Yes.
Page 326 1 we've just looked at in the middle of page nine, is 2 that the same phenomena that you were discussing with 3 Mr. Markowski this morning, to your knowledge? 4 MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection, asked and 5 answered, and object to the form of the question. 6 THE WITNESS: It could be similar. 7 BY MR. CLARE: 8 Q. The statement specifically that such a 9 program, meaning the Early Buy program, could have a 10 negative impact on future financial performance. 11 THE WITNESS: Yes, you can read that well. 12 Same thing I read. 13 BY MR. CLARE: 14 Q. You don't have a view one way or the other as 15 to whether that's the same phenomena that you were 16 describing with Mr. Markowski? 17 A. Similar. 18 Q. Similar. Did you ever have an in-person 19 meeting with Morgan Stanley in the state of Florida? 20 A. No. 21 Q. The accounting due diligence call that you 22 participated in, you participated in from New York? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. Was Mr. Tyree with you physically at the 25 printer during that due diligence call?	Page 328 1 Q. Did you have any discussions with Morgan 2 Stanley on that subject? 3 A. Bob Lurie and I did, but not Morgan Stanley. 4 Q. And this conversation with Mr. Lurie, was 5 that after Global Financial Press? 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. That issue didn't arise until closer to the 8 end of the quarter? 9 A. Yes. 10 Q. And tell me about your conversation with 11 Mr. Lurie. 12 A. I don't remember specifics about it, to be 13 honest with you. 14 Q. Did you have an understanding one way or the 15 other about whether Morgan Stanley had a position on 16 extending the quarter? 17 A. No. 18 Q. You described this morning in response to 19 questions from Mr. Markowski and again in response to 20 questions by me this afternoon about the additional 21 procedures, the sales cutoff testing that was done at 22 your direction. 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. At the end of the first quarter. Do you 25 recall that?

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Do you recall either from the documents that

3 we looked at today or from your recollection whether

4 there were any inconsistencies or irregularities that

5 were reported to you as a result of that cutoff

6 testing?

7 A. Not, no irregularities. There was nothing

8 that wasn't resolved.

9 Q. So the additional procedures that you asked

10 to be performed were in fact performed?

11 A. Yes.

12 Q. To your satisfaction?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. And Mr. Kistler or the other individuals that

15 were informed in those procedures never advised you

16 specifically of an issue with regard to the cutoff

17 testing that led you to believe that Sunbeam's cutoff

18 had been done improperly?

19 A. No.

20 MR. CLARE: Those are all the questions that

21 I have for now.

22 THE WITNESS: Okay.

23 REDIRECT (Lawrence Bornstein)

24 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

25 Q. Mr. Bornstein, hopefully just a few brief

Page 330

1 items.

2 Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58 in

3 front of you? It's the April 3 press release

4 announcing the fact that Sunbeam had missed

5 accomplishing first quarter 1997 sales levels.

6 MR. CLARE: Take this one, Larry.

7 THE WITNESS: Okay.

8 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

9 Q. Do you see the first paragraph purports that

10 Sunbeam expected to be approximately five percent below

11 1997's first quarter net sales result?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. And I think you testified that the books had 14 been close at that point, correct?

15 A. Correct.

16 Q. Do you recall that the actual shortfall was 17 greater than five percent?

18 A. At that point, at the end of the day, you

19 mean?

20 Q. At the end of the day do you recall that the 21 actual shortfall was something greater than

22 five percent?

23 A. It depend how it was defined.

24 Q. That's what I was going to get at next.

25 Whatever the shortfall was, do you recall that Sunbeam

Page 331

1 in its first quarter 1998 net sales results was

2 including Coleman Company sales?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. For the three-day or two-day period at the 5 end of the quarter after the closing of the Coleman

6 transaction, correct?

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. So there was an amount of sales that didn't

9 come from Sunbeam's business, but yet came from the 10 business that Sunbeam had acquired Coleman Company,

11 correct?

12 A. Correct.

13 Q. Do you recall approximately how many millions

14 of dollars that was?

15 A. No.

16 MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.

17 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

18 Q. But you recall that was part of what Sunbeam

19 claimed at its first quarter sales results, correct?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And that was as a result of extending the

22 quarter?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. And there were additional days of Sunbeam

25 sales included first quarter results too, correct?

Page 332

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Do you recall as you sit here today what the

3 shortfall from 1997 first quarter results was if

4 Sunbeam had not extended the quarter, thereby including

5 Coleman Company sales and additional days of Sunbeam

6 sales?

7 A. No.

8 Q. But the shortfall would be even greater as a

9 result of that adjustment, correct?

10 A. I don't even know if it was a shortfall. I

11 don't know what the numbers were.

12 Q. Well, this press release announces that there

13 is a shortfall.

14 A. Five percent lower, yeah, right.

15 Q. Without waiving my objection to the questions

16 that Mr. Clare asked on these subjects, you recall that

17 he asked you questions concerning whether you had

18 information indicating that Morgan Stanley had been

19 involved in committing a fraud on my client.

20 Do you recall those questions?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. With respect to that, do you have any

23 knowledge, sir, concerning the statements that Morgan

24 Stanley made to my client concerning the success of 25 Sunbeam's turnaround?

Page 333

1 A. That Morgan Stanley -- can you read that
 2 back?
 3 Q. Let me ask it again.
 4 Do you have any knowledge, Mr. Bornstein, of 5 the statements that were made by Morgan Stanley to my
 6 client concerning the success of Mr. Dunlap's
 7 turnaround of Sunbeam?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. You don't have any knowledge of what Morgan
 10 Stanley said to my client on that subject, do you?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Do you have any knowledge of what Morgan
 13 Stanley said to my client on Sunbeam's performance in 14 the first quarter of 1998?
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. Or that Sunbeam said to my client concerning
 17 its performance in the first quarter of 1998 in Morgan
 18 Stanley's presence?
 19 A. No idea.
 20 Q. Do you have any knowledge of the statements
 21 that were made by Morgan Stanley to my client about
 22 Sunbeam's prospects for 1998?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Do you have any knowledge of the statements
 25 made in Morgan Stanley's presence by Sunbeam concerning

Page 334

1 Sunbeam's prospects for the full fiscal year 1998?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. When you left -- Mr. Clare asked you some 4 questions about the statement that you made to 5 Mr. Tyree that you hoped to God that Sunbeam at least 6 accomplished sales equal to first quarter 1997 sales or 7 otherwise people should expect to be sued.
 8 Do you recall the questions on that, relating
 9 to this comment?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. You did make a comment to that effect during 12 the session at Global Financial Press on March 19,
 13 correct?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. And you made that comment to Mr. Tyree,
 16 correct?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. When you made it, were you joking?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Was Mr. Tyree laughing?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Was it said in jest?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. When you said it was an off-the-cuff
 25 statement, was it something that you didn't understand

Page 335

1 to be a real risk at that point in time?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. And that's the way you meant it when you said
 4 it to Mr. Tyree, correct?
 5 A. Yes.
 6 Q. You said, sir, that you found it amazing that
 7 Morgan Stanley during the course of its communications
 8 with you or contacts with you didn't inquire about the 9 status of Sunbeam's first quarter sales results.
 10 Do you recall that testimony today?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. Why did you find it amazing that Morgan
 13 Stanley didn't make that inquiry during the various 14 times it was in contact with you or others from Arthur
 15 Andersen?
 16 A. Should have been the first question on the 17 list.
 18 Q. And why did you think that, sir?
 19 A. Why did I think that?
 20 Q. Why did you think it was the first question
 21 that Morgan Stanley should have been asking you?
 22 A. Because they were selling bonds based on 23 current and future performance.
 24 Q. Now we're getting a document that I want to 25 use for another question, sir.

Page 336

1 Mr. Clare asked you whether Morgan Stanley
 2 objected during, to your statement, during the session
 3 at the printer on March 19, to your statement that you
 4 intended to implement special procedures to monitor
 5 Sunbeam's end-of-the-quarter shipments.
 6 Do you recall that?
 7 A. That they objected?
 8 MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, say that again?
 9 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 10 Q. Do you recall that Mr. Clare asked you
 11 whether Morgan Stanley objected when you told Mr. Tyree
 12 that you intended to implement special procedures to 13 monitor Sunbeam's shipments at the end of the first
 14 quarter? Do you recall that question?
 15 MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
 16 THE WITNESS: I remember the question, yes.
 17 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 18 Q. Did Morgan Stanley say to you when you told
 19 Mr. Tyree -- strike that.
 20 Did Mr. Tyree say to you when you told him
 21 that that was your intention that he thought that was a
 22 good idea and that you should for sure go ahead and do
 23 that?
 24 A. No, they were silent.
 25 Q. Did the lawyers from Davis Polk say that's a

Page 337

1 great idea, go ahead and do that?
 2 A. No. Silent.
 3 Q. That list of, the sales buildup that you were 4 shown for -- let me see if I can get it in front of 5 me -- that you were provided at the printer on 6 March 19th, the one-page list of potential sales, do
 7 you recall that?
 8 MR. MOSCATO: Does he need it in front of him
 9 for this question?
 10 THE WITNESS: I have it here.
 11 MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me see if I can find it.
 12 MR. MOSCATO: He's got it.
 13 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 14 Q. Have you got it?
 15 A. Yeah.
 16 Q. Did -- one of the things you said you told 17 Mr. Tyree was he should just do the math with respect
 18 to trying to determine whether this was a reasonable
 19 forecast of Sunbeam's sales expectations for the first 20 quarter, correct?
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. Mr. Clare asked you this morning or this 23 afternoon questions concerning the fiscal capability of 24 Sunbeam's facilities to ship a certain level of product
 25 per day.

Page 338

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. Do you recall those questions?
 3 Did the fact that some substantial portion,
 4 approximately $86 million, as I read this chart, of 5 these potential sales had not been booked as orders by 6 this point in time have an effect on your thinking with 7 respect to the feasibility of Sunbeam being able to 8 accomplish this level of sales in the remaining days of 9 the quarter?
 10 MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
 11 MR. MOSCATO: I object to that too.
 12 THE WITNESS: I don't remember specifically
 13 if that was my thought process.
 14 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 15 Q. Well, if the sales had all been in and
 16 recorded at that point in time, would you have had a --
 17 strike that. Let me put it this way.
 18 When you read this chart, did you understand
 19 that Sunbeam was going to be able to divide into equal
 20 daily segments the amount of product that needed to be 21 shipped out each day in order to accomplish at least
 22 $254 million in sales?
 23 MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
 24 MR. MOSCATO: I object.
 25 THE WITNESS: I did a straight line division,

Page 339

1 calculation in my head, yes.
 2 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 3 Q. Okay. Do you know whether that was in fact
 4 what Sunbeam would be able to do based on where it
 5 stood with respect to having booked orders for product?
 6 Did you know that one way or the other?
 7 MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
 8 THE WITNESS: No.
 9 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 10 Q. I don't think we need to mark this as an 11 exhibit, sir, but I want to show you your, a transcript
 12 of your testimony before the, your prior testimony on 13 October 13, 1999, in connection with related
 14 proceedings.
 15 MR. MOSCATO: Counsel, for what purpose are 16 you showing him the document?
 17 MR. MARKOWSKI: There is just one question I
 18 want to show him to see if I can refresh his 19 recollection to a particular aspect of the 20 testimony.
 21 MR. MOSCATO: If you can ask the question
 22 first.
 23 MR. MARKOWSKI: It was asked. I'll ask it
 24 again.
 25

Page 340

1 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 2 Q. Do you recall, sir, that Mr. Tyree, when you
 3 told him your views concerning whether the substance of 4 the press release should be put in the offering
 5 memorandum, that Mr. Tyree said to you --
 6 MR. MOSCATO: Wait, Larry, don't look at 7 anything yet.
 8 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 9 Q. "You know, this is going in. I don't care
 10 what you say. This is going in."
 11 A. As I sit here, I don't recall him saying
 12 that, but if I said that, if it's in the testimony from 13 four or five years ago, it's a lot closer to the time.
 14 Q. Let me give you a chance to take a look at 15 that specific question and answer. It's on page 492
 16 and 493, if you could just read.
 17 MR. MOSCATO: You're asking him to refresh
 18 his recollection?
 19 MR. MARKOWSKI: Right.
 20 MR. MOSCATO: Okay.
 21 MR. MARKOWSKI: Whether he recalls today
 22 Mr. Tyree in fact saying those words to him.
 23 MR. MOSCATO: Read it, Larry, then close it
 24 up, and then testify as to whether or not that 25 actually refreshes your recollection.

Page 341

1 MR. CLARE: I'm sorry, what page are you
 2 asking him to read?
 3 MR. MARKOWSKI: The questioning starts at 4 492, carries over onto 493 at the top.
 5 THE WITNESS: Okay.
 6 MR. MOSCATO: Wait for a question.
 7 BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
 8 Q. Sir, does that refresh your recollection that
 9 in response to your objection to including the press
 10 release in the offering memorandum, the March 19 press
 11 release in the offering memorandum, that Mr. Tyree said 12 to you, "You know, this is going in. I don't care what 13 you say, this is going in."
 14 A. It doesn't refresh my memory.
 15 Q. Did I accurately read that statement from 16 your prior testimony?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. And that testimony was given at a point in 19 time closer to the events than today, correct?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. Do you have any reason to believe your 22 testimony at that time was inaccurate on that point?
 23 A. No.
 24 MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't have any further
 25 questions.

Page 342

1 RE-CROSS (LAWRENCE BORNSTEIN)
 2 BY MR. CLARE:
 3 Q. Mr. Bornstein, you responded to a question
 4 from Mr. Markowski about Morgan Stanley's due
 5 diligence. He asked you why you were amazed at Morgan
 6 Stanley's due diligence. Do you recall that?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. Let me ask you the same question that he
 9 asked you with regard to inquiries from Nafco,
 10 MacAndrews and Forbes and Coleman (Parent) Holdings.
 11 And you told me earlier that you were surprised that 12 you didn't receive any inquiries from Coleman (Parent)
 13 Holdings or its representatives in connection with the 14 acquisition, correct?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. And was your statement that an inquiry about 17 how the company was doing should have been the first 18 question on the list, does that apply equally to 19 inquiries that you would have expected to receive from 20 Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Would you have expected that to be
 23 unimportant question that you would receive?
 24 A. That me personally would receive? I wasn't
 25 with them, so the answer is no.

Page 343

1 Q. But my question is in terms of your surprise
 2 at not receiving any inquiries, would that question,
 3 how is the company doing, be among the inquiries that 4 you would have expected to receive in connection with 5 diligence that was done by Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
 6 A. If any questions were asked, that would have 7 been one of them that I would have believed should have 8 been asked.
 9 Q. It would have been on the list?
 10 A. It would have been on the list.
 11 Q. And it would have been an important question
 12 on the list?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 MR. CLARE: That's all I have.
 15 MR. MARKOWSKI: One more question.

FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT

In March 1998, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co."), Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF"), and Morgan Stanley — in direct reliance on certified financial statements that were audited by Defendant Arthur Andersen LLP (an Illinois limited-liability partnership) ("Andersen") with the assistance of and in coordination with the other Defendants named in this Complaint¹ — underwrote a multi-million dollar offering of convertible notes and provided a $680 million loan to Sunbeam Corporation, Inc., in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of three companies. As Sunbeam's subsequent restatement of its financial results showed, these certified financial statements grossly misrepresented Sunbeam's true financial condition. Andersen and the other Defendants had full knowledge of these misstatements, and they intended that MS & Co. and MSSF would rely on these unqualified audit opinions. Plaintiffs — as a direct consequence of this deceit — have lost hundreds of millions of dollars. Accordingly, Plaintiffs bring this action and allege the following:

Nature of Action

1. In March 1998, Sunbeam announced the acquisition of The Coleman Company, Inc., Signature Brands USA, Inc., and First Alert, Inc. In order to finance these acquisitions, Sunbeam issued $750 million of convertible notes, which MS & Co. underwrote, and borrowed $1.2 billion in secured financing, including a loan of $680 million from MSSF.
2. In serving as an underwriter (which required MS & Co. to act as the initial purchaser of the convertible notes) and in agreeing to extend the loan, MS & Co. and MSSF relied on the accuracy of Sunbeam's financial statements, including its 1996 and 1997 financial statements that had been audited and certified by Andersen, as well as other representations made to them by Andersen. The Andersen-certified Sunbeam financial statements portrayed Sunbeam as a financially sound company in the midst of an extraordinary financial turnaround.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

3. In reality, unbeknownst to Plaintiffs, Sunbeam's "turnaround" was an illusion facilitated by the Defendants. As became apparent in the summer of 1998 and as confirmed by Sunbeam's subsequent restatement of its financial results, the 1996 and 1997 statements that Andersen had certified — and upon which MS & Co. and MSSF had relied — did not, contrary to the representations that Andersen made to MS & Co. and MSSF, conform with generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"). Andersen, with full knowledge of the material misstatements contained in Sunbeam's financial reports, issued unqualified audit opinions for both 1996 and 1997. In so doing, it failed to perform its audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards ("GAAS").

4. In fact, the statements that Andersen audited and certified as in compliance with GAAP and as representing Sunbeam's true financial condition, were replete with accounting improprieties. As a consequence, and contrary to the representations that Andersen made to MS & Co. and MSSF, Sunbeam's true financial condition was misstated by millions of dollars.

5. Andersen's fraud was knowingly caused by Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus. Harlow (the Sunbeam engagement partner) and Pruitt (the Sunbeam concurring partner) were senior partners of Andersen and members of Andersen-Worldwide and undertook direct responsibility for directing, managing, and approving the work that was done on the Sunbeam audits. Denkhaus, who also was a senior partner of Andersen and a member of Andersen-Worldwide, was the Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region and in this role undertook responsibility for supervising and monitoring the work performed at Harlow's and Pruitt's direction. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus each knew or recklessly disregarded the accounting violations contained in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus also knew or recklessly disregarded that the erroneous financial statements that they had caused Andersen to certify would be relied upon by MS & Co. in deciding to underwrite the convertible notes and by MSSF in deciding to loan Sunbeam hundreds of millions of dollars.

First Amended Complaint

6. This fraud was also knowingly perpetrated by the foreign Andersen branches named in this complaint, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, and Andersen-Venezuela (collectively, the "Foreign Andersen Branches"). Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches reviewed and audited financial statements prepared for Sunbeam's foreign subsidiaries for 1997, all of which contained significant accounting violations. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches knew of or recklessly disregarded the fact that the financial statements that they had reviewed and audited were not prepared in accordance with GAAP or reviewed in accordance with GAAS. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches also knew that the financial statements that they had audited would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that lenders, such as MSSF, and underwriters, such as MS & Co., would rely on these financial statements.

7. The fraud was also knowingly perpetrated by Andersen-Worldwide through the actions of its members, including Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhau, and its member firms, including Andersen and the Foreign Andersen Branches.

8. This fraud ultimately forced Sunbeam and several of its subsidiaries to seek relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code, in February 2001. As part of the bankruptcy court-approved reorganization plan, MSSF's $680 million loan to Sunbeam was discharged in full, and MSSF received Sunbeam stock valued at a fraction of the original loan. In addition, the convertible notes issued by Sunbeam and held by MS & Co. had been rendered substantially less valuable.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

9. By this complaint, Plaintiffs seek compensatory damages of several hundreds of millions of dollars.

THE PARTIES AND OTHER RELEVANT ENTITIES

10. MS & Co. is a financial services firm that engages in underwriting, investment banking, financial advisory services, securities sales and trading, and research. In late 1997 and early 1998, MS & Co. assisted Sunbeam in identifying potential acquisition targets and served as Sunbeam's financial advisor with respect to certain aspects of Sunbeam's acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands, and First Alert. MS & Co. also served as the underwriter of a $750 million offering of convertible notes that Sunbeam used to finance these acquisitions. MS & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York.

11. MSSF is a company that provides credit services to its clients. In 1998, MSSF entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide a loan to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, Signature Brands, and First Alert. Pursuant to the credit agreement, Sunbeam borrowed $680 million from MSSF, with the borrowings used by Sunbeam to fund certain costs relating to the acquisitions. MSSF is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York.

12. Morgan Stanley is a financial services company. It owns 100 percent of the stock of both MS & Co. and MSSF. Morgan Stanley is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

13. Andersen was a member in or business unit of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen is a partnership formed under the laws of the State of Illinois. Once one of the world's largest accounting firms, almost all of its partners have left the firm. Andersen participated in and coordinated the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits. In addition, Andersen's partners and employees provided consulting services to Sunbeam as part of due diligence work performed in conjunction with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, as well as on other projects.

14. Andersen-Worldwide is a cooperative corporation organized under the laws of Switzerland. Its members included more than 2,000 individuals from 390 offices in 84 countries. Various individuals who were members of Andersen-Worldwide participated in the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam and the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits. Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen dictated the policies and procedures to be used by Andersen members and affiliates throughout the world. Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide at all relevant times (a) held themselves out to the public as a single, integrated, full-service, professional business enterprise comprising "one firm" with "one voice" and "common values and vision," (b) completely dominated and controlled each other's assets, operations, policies, procedures, strategies, and tactics, (c) failed to observe corporate formalities, and (d) used and commingled the assets, facilities, employees, and business opportunities of each other, as if those assets, facilities, employees, and business opportunities were their own.

15. Andersen-Canada was a member in or part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Canada is a partnership organized under the laws of the province of Ontario, Canada. Andersen-Canada audited the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's Canadian subsidiary for inclusion in

First Amended Complaint

Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements. It also participated in the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

16. Andersen-Hong-Kong was a member in or part of Andersen-Worldwide.

Andersen-Hong Kong is a partnership organized under the laws of Hong Kong. Andersen-Hong Kong audited the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's Hong Kong subsidiary for inclusion in Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements. It also participated in the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

17. Andersen-Mexico was a member in or part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Mexico is a partnership organized under the laws of Mexico. Andersen-Mexico audited the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's Mexican subsidiary for inclusion in Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements. It also participated in the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

18. Andersen-Venezuela was a member in or part of Andersen-Worldwide. Andersen-Venezuela is a partnership organized under the laws of Venezuela. Andersen-Venezuela audited the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's Venezuelan subsidiary for inclusion in Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements. It also participated in the 1998 restatement of the reports of those audits.

19. Defendant Harlow is a resident of Florida and at all times material hereto was a partner in Andersen and a member in Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the engagement partner on the audits of Sunbeam's financial statements from 1993 to 1998. As engagement partner, Harlow undertook the primary responsibility for supervising the 1996 and 1997 audits of Sunbeam, including directing and overseeing the activities with respect to the Sunbeam work performed by numerous persons at Andersen. Harlow also participated as a member of Sunbeam's due diligence team in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

First Amended Complaint

20. Defendant Pruitt is a resident of Florida and at all times material hereto was a partner in Andersen and a member of Andersen-Worldwide. He served as the concurring partner on the Sunbeam audits for at least 1996 and 1997. As such, he undertook responsibility for independently reviewing the Sunbeam audit work that had been conducted under Harlow's supervision and ensuring that it complied with GAAP and GAAS.

21. Defendant Denkhaus is a resident of Florida and at all times material hereto was a partner in Andersen and a member of Andersen-Worldwide. Denkhaus was Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region. As such, Denkhaus undertook responsibility for ensuring that the audit work performed by Andersen in the South Florida region was conducted in accordance with GAAP and GAAS. Denkhaus also served as the engagement partner on Sunbeam's ultimate restatement of its financial statements.

22. At all times material hereto, Sunbeam Corporation was headquartered in Palm Beach County, Florida. Sunbeam Corporation, through its operating subsidiaries and affiliates, manufactured, marketed, and distributed durable household and outdoor leisure consumer products through mass-market and other consumer channels. On February 6, 2001, Sunbeam and several of its affiliates filed a petition for relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. Sunbeam has since emerged from bankruptcy and now operates under the name American Household.

23. The Coleman Company, Inc. was a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Coleman was a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in Kansas. Prior to March 30, 1998, Coleman (Parent)

Holdings Inc. ("Coleman-Parent") owned 44,067,520 shares (or approximately 82 percent) of Coleman. Coleman-Parent is a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in New York and is a wholly-owned subsidiary of MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("MAFCO"). MAFCO is a global investment firm owned and operated by financier Ronald O. Perelman. Through its various subsidiaries and affiliates, MAFCO owns and/or controls a number of multi-billion dollar global corporations, including Revlon, Inc., the international consumer cosmetics company. MAFCO is a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in New York.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

24. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of this action pursuant to section 26.012(2)(a), Florida Statutes, because Plaintiff seeks damages in excess of $15,000 exclusive of interest, costs, and attorneys' fees.

25. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, and Andersen-Venezuela pursuant to section 48.193(1)(a), (b), and (f), Florida Statutes, because each of them, directly or through its partners, members, agents, or employees, (1) operated, conducted, engaged in, or carried on a business or business venture in Florida from which the acts and injuries complained of in this action arose, (2) committed within Florida the tortious acts complained of in this action, or (3) by an act or omission outside of Florida, caused the complained-of injuries to Plaintiffs to occur within Florida at or about the time that it was engaged in service activities in Florida or that its services were used or consumed within Florida in the ordinary course of commerce, trade, or use.

26. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, because each of them is a resident of Florida.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

27. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to section 47.011, Florida Statutes, because Andersen maintained an office with more than 30 employees and partners in Palm Beach County, and the cause of action accrued in Palm Beach County.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Andersen's and Sunbeam's Fraudulent Scheme

28. In July 1996, to address its growing financial difficulties, Sunbeam hired Albert Dunlap as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Dunlap was a well-known "turnaround" specialist who had a history of apparent success at other companies. He was nicknamed "Chainsaw Al" because of his practice of cutting staff and closing plants to achieve quick turnaround results.

29. Immediately after he was hired, Dunlap publicly predicted that, as a result of the Company's restructuring, Sunbeam would attain significant increases in its margins and sales. Dunlap replaced almost all of top management with his own selections, hiring Russell A. Kersh (Chief Financial Officer); Donald R. Uzzi (Vice President, Marketing and Product Development, and later Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide); Lee B. Griffith (Vice President, Sales); and Robert J. Gluck (Principal Accounting Officer).

30. Unbeknownst to the public and to Plaintiffs, Sunbeam's new senior management embarked upon a scheme designed to misrepresent Sunbeam's financial condition. Sunbeam's subsequent November 1998 restatement of its 1996 and 1997 financial statements revealed the plan that Sunbeam's management had adopted and Andersen facilitated. In 1996, Sunbeam's management, with Andersen's knowing assistance, caused Sunbeam to overstate its operating losses by at least $40 million, thereby establishing an overly bleak financial backdrop against which the company's performance in 1997 would be measured. In 1997, by contrast, management caused Sunbeam dramatically to overstate its earnings. When 1997 operating earnings were eventually corrected and restated, they were $95 million less than the earnings originally reported — and approximately half of the figure that Andersen had previously certified.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXMB
First Amended Complaint

31. In order to convince the public that Sunbeam's turnaround was real, Sunbeam needed an outside auditor to validate its financial reports. Andersen — desperate to retain a valuable client — stood ready to assist Sunbeam in its scheme.

32. After Dunlap assumed control of Sunbeam, Andersen had reason to fear that its relationship with Sunbeam was in jeopardy. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew that Dunlap had employed Coopers & Lybrand, one of Andersen's major competitors, as a financial consultant and independent auditor in past turnaround assignments. In fact, Dunlap had already engaged Coopers & Lybrand to assist in planning Sunbeam's massive restructuring.

33. Andersen had a significant stake in retaining Sunbeam, a long-time major client. Being dropped by a high-profile client such as Sunbeam would have been a severe blow to Andersen's reputation. The company generated substantial income for Andersen's Florida office, paying over $1 million in fees for its 1995 audit alone and providing it with substantial income from lucrative consulting assignments. Indeed, Andersen was so eager to keep Sunbeam as its client that it agreed to a 30-percent reduction in its 1996 audit fees.

34. Andersen's fees were particularly important to Andersen's partners, whose incomes were dependent on the continued business from Sunbeam. Andersen tied part of its audit partners' compensation to the solicitation and marketing of non-audit consulting services, and created other revenue-sharing arrangements between audit and consulting partner groups.

First Amended Complaint

35. Andersen put tremendous pressure on partners to generate more fees. A "depth chart" was developed for each audit client based upon the level of services provided to that client. Partner compensation was determined based on the additional services sold, and the ability of an Andersen partner to increase his income depended directly upon the level of fees that the partner "controlled" or sold to his or her assigned clients. These pressures led directly to a conflict of interest for the auditors on the Sunbeam engagement and were a significant factor that caused Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, as well as the Foreign Andersen Branches, to abandon their independence, objectivity, and integrity on the Sunbeam financial statement audits and reviews.

Andersen's Worldwide Operations

36. Andersen was formed in Illinois in 1913 as an accounting and consulting partnership under the name "Arthur Andersen & Co." In 1977, as Andersen increased its global presence, it created a new structure called the "Andersen Worldwide Organization." The Andersen Worldwide Organization was overseen by Andersen-Worldwide, which acted as an umbrella organization for the Andersen, the other Andersen Worldwide Organization member firms, the members and contract partners of Andersen-Worldwide, and the individual members and partners of the Andersen Worldwide Organization member firms. The model adopted by the Andersen Worldwide Organization was intended to preserve "The Heart of Partnership Culture," including income sharing among the member firms of the Andersen Worldwide Organization and a common governance model. Thus, partners (or equivalents) in the various branches of the Andersen Worldwide Organization were also members of Andersen-Worldwide, resulting in a global partnership of more than 2,000 individuals from 390 offices in 84 different countries. In addition to overlapping partners and members, Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen shared officers in common. For example, the former CEO and Managing Partner of Andersen-Worldwide, Joseph Berardino, was also the CEO and Managing Partner of Andersen.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

37. Andersen-Worldwide and Andersen also shared the same address. In its promotional literature, Andersen-Worldwide stated that its headquarters were located at 33 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois 60603. That is the same address as the headquarters of Andersen.

38. Andersen-Worldwide set uniform professional standards for all its offices and required the members and partners in its international offices to agree to be bound by those professional standards and principles. Andersen-Worldwide coordinated the sharing of costs and allocation of revenues and profits among its members and partners and its offices around the world. Andersen-Worldwide operated under a worldwide tax structure. In addition, Andersen-Worldwide handled all borrowing on behalf of its international offices and maintained those offices' financial records, payroll, and employee health-benefits plans. All of Andersen's offices also shared global computer operations and training facilities.

39. The components of the Andersen Worldwide Organization ignored corporate formalities in referring to themselves and each other. For example, personnel affiliated with Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide regularly exchanged correspondence and e-mails that were labeled "Andersenwo" — short for "Andersen World Organization." Documents prepared by Andersen often bore the insignia and logos of Andersen-Worldwide, including "Andersen-Worldwide," "Andersen," and "Arthur Andersen." In its promotional literature, Andersen used the names "Andersen Worldwide," "Andersen," and "Arthur Andersen" interchangeably. In addition, Andersen sometimes used only the name "Andersen" when referring to all or part of the

First Amended Complaint

Andersen Worldwide Organization and did not differentiate between Andersen-Worldwide and its offices around the globe.

40. In promotional literature, Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, and the member firms of the Andersen Worldwide Organization marketed themselves as "one firm," "a single worldwide operating structure," that "think[s] and act[s] as one."

41. News releases issued by Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, and other member firms confirmed that the Andersen Worldwide Organization and Andersen operated as a single worldwide organization:

- Andersen referred to the brand identity adopted by the member firms of the Andersen "global client service network."
- "With world-class skills in assurance, tax, consulting and corporate finance, Arthur Andersen has more than 77,000 people in 84 countries who are united by a single worldwide operating structure that fosters inventiveness, knowledge sharing, and a focus on client success."
- "Arthur Andersen is significantly different from the other firms in structure, governance and culture — differences which can be pivotal in terms of the quality of service a client company receives. Important distinctions mark our firm from the rest. We have evolved a unique organizational culture that today unites the people of Andersen Worldwide. We are the only true global firm, sharing knowledge and doing business across borders, sharing costs which fund methodologies, research and development, lines and industry groups."
- Andersen spokesman David Tabolt stated: "We conduct more than 30,000 audits around the world every year."
- "AA is already much more integrated globally than the rest of the Big Five. As Mr. Berardino [Andersen-Worldwide's former CEO, who resigned in March 2002] points out, 'there is one name over the door. We're not an alphabet soup.' The cohesiveness of AA's culture has been a source of humor to outsiders, who have labeled its bean counters 'Androids.' While some rivals are still struggling with a complicated array of national partnerships, and thus different systems for sharing pay, AA partners enjoy a single, and possibly unique, system of remuneration: they receive a list of what each of them has earned in the past year."

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB

- “Arthur Andersen is a global professional services organization consisting of over 100 member firms and more than 61,000 people united by a single worldwide operating structure and a common culture of innovation and knowledge sharing. This unique ‘one-firm’ approach qualifies the people of Arthur Andersen to serve clients by bringing together any of more than 40 competencies in a way that transcends geographic borders and organizational lines. Arthur Andersen’s people provide effective business solutions to over 100,000 clients in 81 countries around the world. Since its beginning in 1913, Arthur Andersen has realized 85 years of uninterrupted growth. With revenues of more than US $6 billion, it stands today as a world leader in professional services. Arthur Andersen is a business unit of Andersen Worldwide.”

The Andersen-Worldwide website (Andersen.com) confirmed that there was a single worldwide organization:

- “Our 390 offices may be scattered amid 84 different countries, but our voice is the same. No matter where you go, or who you talk to, we act with one vision. Without boundaries.”
- “One world. One organization.”

Andersen’s recruiting brochures reflected that it was a single worldwide organization:

- “We will, in Arthur Andersen’s own words, ‘act as one firm and speak with one voice. It is a united family that operates across hierarchies, geographical boundaries, client groupings, service lines and competencies and feels the kinship of understanding and shared responsibility.”

42. Andersen-Worldwide managed its operations by practice groups, as well as by geographical region. Each practice group was headed by a global practice director who oversaw, directed, and controlled the operations of each practice group worldwide. Regional practice directors (e.g., Denkhous was the director of Andersen-Worldwide’s audit practice in South Florida) reported to the global practice director and managed the practice group within their regions.

43. As a result of the "one firm" approach, all actions taken by members of Andersen-Worldwide, as well as all actions taken by member firms of Andersen-Worldwide, may be attributed to Andersen-Worldwide.

44. Andersen applied the "one firm" approach in its work with Sunbeam. Top partners responsible for the Sunbeam audits and restatement were partners of Andersen and members of Andersen-Worldwide, including the engagement partner on the Sunbeam audits, Harlow, the concurring partner on those audits, Pruitt, and the Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, Denkhaus.

45. In addition, various international offices of Andersen-Worldwide did substantial work for Sunbeam. Sunbeam was a multinational corporation with operations in Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, and Hong Kong. The Sunbeam engagement required the participation of auditors from each of those countries and numerous American cities. Harlow, on behalf of both Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide, developed work plans that he circulated to Andersen's branches in other countries, including the Foreign Andersen Branches. Those offices worked closely with Harlow and others within Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide to complete the tasks outlined in the plans. They sent their work product to Harlow for inclusion in an Andersen-Worldwide Management Letter, as well as for incorporation in Andersen's audit work.

The Fraudulent 1996 Financial Statements

46. In 1996, after Dunlap took control of Sunbeam, Andersen permitted Sunbeam management to employ numerous accounting practices that — as Sunbeam's November 1998 restatement of its 1996 financial statements and an SEC investigation later showed — did not comply with GAAP. The objective of these accounting violations was to set an artificially bleak financial backdrop against which Sunbeam's 1997 performance would be judged.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

47. Among other things, Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements, certified by Andersen, did not comply with the accounting principles of (1) reliability, Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 58-97; Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Statement No. 4, §§ 109, 138, 189; (2) completeness, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 79; 80; APB Statement No. 4, § 94; (3) conservatism, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 91-97; APB Statements No. 9, §§ 35, 71; (4) neutrality, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 98-110; or (5) relevance, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 47, 48.

48. Among the accounting frauds that Andersen knowingly allowed was the artificial inflation of Sunbeam's reserves. Because the reserves were charged as an expense against income, this accounting practice allowed Sunbeam to overstate the 1996 loss against which its 1997 financial results would be compared.

49. For example, Sunbeam created a $338 million reserve for "restructuring" charges. As the November 1998 restatement made clear, included in these charges were costs of redesigning product packaging; costs of relocating employees and equipment; bonuses to be paid to employees who were told that they were being laid off but were asked to stay on temporarily; advertising expenses; and certain consulting fees. Because these items benefited future activities, GAAP did not permit them to be classified as restructuring charges. Andersen also permitted Sunbeam to violate GAAP by creating a $12 million reserve for a lawsuit alleging that

First Amended Complaint

Sunbeam was liable for cleanup costs associated with a hazardous waste site, even though Sunbeam's estimated liability was, at best, half that amount.

50. Andersen also permitted Sunbeam improperly to write down its household products inventory in 1996. In connection with the restructuring, Sunbeam had decided to eliminate half of Sunbeam's product lines and to liquidate its inventory of those product lines. Although only half of Sunbeam's product lines were eliminated, Andersen allowed Sunbeam to apply, at year-end 1996, the special accounting treatment that it had accorded the eliminated lines to its entire inventory of household products. As a result, as the November 1998 financial restatement later showed, Sunbeam understated the balance sheet value of its inventory at year-end 1996 by approximately $2 million and overstated its 1996 loss by the same amount.

51. Andersen also allowed management improperly to recognize, as a 1996 expense, $2.3 million in 1997 advertising expenses and related costs. In addition, Andersen permitted Sunbeam to manipulate its 1996 liabilities for "cooperative advertising." It was Sunbeam's practice to fund a portion of its retailers' costs of running local promotions. As required by GAAP, Sunbeam accrued its estimated liabilities for this expense. At year-end 1996, Sunbeam set its cooperative advertising accrual at an inflated value of $21.8 million. According to the November 1998 restatement, this accrual was improper under GAAP because it was approximately 25 percent higher than the prior year's accrual amount, without a proportional increase in sales providing a basis for the increase. Ultimately, as the November 1998 restatement showed, $5.8 million of that excessive accrual was used (without disclosure) to inflate Sunbeam's 1997 income.

Andersen's 1996 Unqualified Audit Opinion

52. In the course of auditing Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements, Andersen became aware of these and other improper accounting practices. Indeed, an Andersen employee questioned a Sunbeam employee about the restructuring reserves and was told that the reserve included "everything but the kitchen sink." Harlow, the Andersen engagement partner, knew of this statement.

53. Harlow informed Kersh and Gluck, who were part of Sunbeam's senior management, that certain of the restructuring reserves that Sunbeam had established were not properly accounted for as restructuring costs under GAAP because they benefited Sunbeam's future operations. He proposed that Sunbeam reverse the accounting entries on its books and records reflecting the establishment of these reserves. However, when Kersh and Gluck refused to reverse these items, Harlow caused Andersen to acquiesce to Sunbeam's fraudulent accounting for the reserves.

54. In March 1997, Andersen issued an unqualified audit opinion regarding Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements and authorized the inclusion of its audit opinion in Sunbeam's 1996 Form 10-K filed with the SEC. A copy of the 1996 Audit Opinion is exhibit "A" attached hereto. Consistent with Andersen's internal procedures, the Audit Opinion was issued at the direction of Harlow and Pruitt. Denkhous, as Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, had undertaken responsibility for supervising the audit work performed in Andersen's South Florida region and thus also bore responsibility for the issuance of this opinion.

55. Despite its knowledge of the many improper accounting practices that Sunbeam's management had employed, Andersen's opinion stated:

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards.

Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements . . . present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 29, 1996 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

56. Andersen also knowingly provided false descriptions of certain of Sunbeam's specific accounting practices. For example, it characterized Sunbeam's treatment of its restructuring charges in Note 2 to the audited 1996 consolidated financial statements as follows:

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is allocated as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations: $154.9 million to Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs as further described below; $92.3 million to Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs from the reduction in SKUs and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $42.5 million to Selling, General and Administrative expenses principally for increases in environmental and litigation reserves (see Notes 12 and 13) and other reserve categories; and the estimated pre-tax loss on the divestiture of the Company's furniture business of approximately $47.9 million.

In fact, however, Andersen knew that Sunbeam had improperly inflated its restructuring costs by millions of dollars.

CASE NO. S02004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

57. Andersen's 1996 audit violated GAAS because, among other things, Andersen failed (1) to perform the audits with an attitude of professional skepticism as required by the Statement on Auditing Standards ("SAS") No. 53; (2) to conclude that there was a significant risk that Sunbeam management would intentionally distort the company's financial statements, in violation of American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Professional Standards, AU §§ 316.10 and 316.12; (3) to recognize that the accounting policies employed by Sunbeam were not acceptable in the circumstances, in violation of AU § 316.19; (4) to obtain sufficient competent evidential matter through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmations to afford a reasonable basis for its opinions regarding Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of AU § 150.02; (5) to exercise due professional care in the performance of the audit, in violation of AU § 150.02; (6) to plan the work adequately to uncover the errors and irregularities in Sunbeam's accounting information, in violation of AU § 150.02; and (7) to obtain a sufficient understanding of Sunbeam's internal control structure to plan the audits and to determine the nature, timing, and extent of tests to be performed, in violation of AU § 150.02.

58. In addition, in conducting the 1996 audit, Andersen (1) improperly relied on management representations rather than applying the auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion on Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of SAS No. 19 (AU § 333.02); (2) failed to recognize that misstatements resulting from misapplication of GAAP, departures from fact, and omissions of necessary information, in aggregate, caused Sunbeam's financial statements to be materially misstated, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.04); (3) failed to issue a qualified or adverse opinion, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.31); and (4) improperly concluded that the accounting principles applied by Sunbeam were appropriate in the circumstances and that Sunbeam's financial statements were informative of matters that could affect their use, understanding, and interpretation, in violation of SAS No. 69 (AU § 411.04(b) and (c)).

First Amended Complaint

59. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew of or recklessly disregarded numerous red flags that should have caused them to prevent Andersen from certifying Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements. However, they did nothing to stop Andersen's unqualified 1996 audit opinion from being included in Sunbeam's Form 10-K filing with the SEC, despite the fact that they knew or were reckless in not knowing that the financial statements that Andersen had certified were materially misleading. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus also knew that the false financial statements that they had caused Andersen to issue would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that lenders, such as MSSF, and underwriters, such as MS & Co., would rely on these financial statements.

60. In all, the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen were materially false and misleading and overstated Sunbeam's operating losses for 1996 by at least $40 million. Moreover, Andersen's unqualified audit opinion was false in at least two material respects. First, the financial statements that Andersen audited did not "fairly" present Sunbeam's financial position in conformity with GAAP, as it represented. Second, Andersen had not, as it claimed, conducted its audit in accordance with GAAS.

The Fraudulent 1997 Financial Statements

61. The accounting frauds in which Andersen permitted Sunbeam to engage in 1997 were aimed at inflating the company's earnings. To accomplish this — as the November 1998 restatement and an SEC investigation subsequently showed — Andersen allowed Sunbeam to record fraudulent sales, to account improperly for one-time events, and improperly to use "cookie-jar" reserves, all in violation of GAAP.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

62. Among other things, Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, certified by Andersen, did not comply with the accounting principles of (1) reliability, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 58-97; APB Statement No. 4, §§ 109, 138, 189; (2) completeness, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 79, 80; APB Statement No. 4, § 94; (3) conservatism, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 91-97; APB Statements No. 9, §§ 35, 71; (4) neutrality, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 98-110; or (5) relevance, FASB Statement of Financial Accounting Concepts No. 2, §§ 47, 48.

63. One of the revenue inflation tactics permitted by Andersen in 1997 was improper accounting for "bill-and-hold" sales. A bill-and-hold sale occurs when a seller bills a customer for a purchase while retaining the merchandise for later delivery. During 1997, Dunlap's management team offered financial incentives to various customers to purchase products. Under GAAP, revenue under bill-and-hold transactions may be recognized only if, among other things, the buyer — not the seller — requests a sale on that basis. As Andersen subsequently learned in the course of its 1997 audit, the purported bill-and-hold customers had not requested that treatment, and, in numerous cases, the risks of ownership and legal title were never passed to the customer. Sunbeam added more than $29 million to its 1997 sales and $4.5 million to income by improperly accounting for these transactions.

64. Another income-boosting tactic that Andersen sanctioned was Sunbeam's improper use of its inflated 1996 reserves, which artificially increased the company's 1997 income by almost $5 million. Andersen also let Sunbeam improperly treat $19 million that it received from the sale of discounted and obsolete inventory as ordinary income. Although the recognition of that revenue was permitted under GAAP, Sunbeam was required to disclose that revenue as a non-recurring event. Sunbeam failed to do so, again with Andersen's blessing.

First Amended Complaint

65. In addition, Andersen and Andersen-Hong Kong allowed Sunbeam's Hong Kong subsidiary to book sales that violated applicable accounting principles because they included an unlimited right to return unsold merchandise and because the amount of future returns on such sales could not reasonably be estimated. On Andersen's and Andersen-Hong Kong's watch, Sunbeam's Hong Kong subsidiary improperly recorded sales revenue of $8.6 million from various sales made during the fourth quarter of 1997. Andersen and Andersen-Hong Kong also permitted Sunbeam's Hong Kong subsidiary to under-provide for warranty and product liability expenses; improperly to include in 1997 net sales of $0.5 million of goods that were not shipped until 1998; and improperly to defer 1997 advertising costs to future periods.

66. Andersen and Andersen-Canada also permitted Sunbeam's Canadian subsidiary improperly to book sales that did not meet the applicable sales recognition criteria because they included an unlimited right to return unsold merchandise and because the amount of future returns on such sales could not reasonably be estimated.

67. Andersen and Andersen-Mexico also permitted Sunbeam to employ several improper accounting tricks with respect to its Mexican subsidiary. Sunbeam's Mexican subsidiary engaged in $900,000 in bill-and-hold transactions in 1997 that should not have been recognized as income until 1998. In addition, the subsidiary's inventory was overvalued by $2 million, and the financial statements for Sunbeam's Mexico operations failed to include a $3 million expense for the profit-sharing obligations of that business.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

68. Andersen and Anderson-Venezuela also permitted Sunbeam's Venezuela subsidiary improperly to value its inventory of raw materials. Its books reflected purchases of raw materials that were held at various suppliers. Andersen failed to confirm that the booked amounts represented materials that were actually in the possession of suppliers. Had it done so, it would have discovered that the materials did not exist.

69. One of the most egregious accounting abuses that Andersen permitted in 1997 was to allow Sunbeam to record a profit on a sham sale of its warranty and spare parts business to its spare parts provider, EPI Printers, Inc. Prior to 1997, EPI satisfied spare parts and warranty requests of Sunbeam customers on a fee basis. To raise additional revenue at year-end 1997, however, Sunbeam entered into a sham "sale" of the warranty and spare parts inventories already in EPI's warehouse. As a result of the transaction, management fraudulently recognized millions of dollars of bogus sales and profits in 1997.

70. The problem with the EPI transaction was that the transaction was not a sale at all, for at least three reasons. First, there was never a final agreement between Sunbeam and EPI. The closest the parties ever came to a meeting of the minds was the execution of a mere "agreement to agree." Second, by its terms, the proposed sale was to terminate on January 23, 1998, with no payment obligation on the part of EPI, absent a subsequent agreement between Sunbeam and EPI on the value of the inventory. In other words, the sale could be completely unwound just after year-end without EPI ever having paid a cent. Third, Sunbeam had agreed as part of the proposed sale to pay certain fees to EPI and to guarantee a 5-percent profit to EPI on the eventual resale of the inventory. In essence, even after the proposed sale, EPI remained a contractor compensated by Sunbeam on a fee basis for its services. In sum, the relationship between EPI and Sunbeam was not materially altered by the purported "sale."

First Amended Complaint

71. As a result of these and other violations of accounting standards, in 1997, Sunbeam reported $186 million in income, much of which was, according to the November 1998 restatement, improper under GAAP. In all, the overstatements included over $90 million of improper net income, including approximately $10 million from a sham sale of inventory to a contractor, approximately $4.5 million from non-GAAP bill-and-hold sales, approximately $35 million in income derived from the use of non-GAAP reserves and accruals taken at year-end 1996, and approximately $6 million from improper revenue recognition.

Sunbeam's Purchase of Coleman

72. Toward the end of 1997, Sunbeam engaged MS & Co. to advise it with respect to the possible sale of its core businesses and/or the initiation of one or more major acquisitions. Ultimately, Coleman, Signature Brands, and First Alert were identified as three companies interested in being acquired by Sunbeam.

73. On January 28, 1998, Sunbeam announced its financial results for 1997, reporting total revenues of $1.168 billion, and total earnings from continuing operations of $189 million (or $1.41 per share).

74. On February 3, 1998, Harlow met with key officers of Sunbeam to discuss the acquisition of Coleman and its financial impact on Sunbeam. By that time, as a result of reviewing Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements in the course of its audit, Harlow and Andersen knew that Sunbeam's 1997 results were false.

75. On February 20, 1998, Andersen agreed to act as a Sunbeam financial advisor and perform financial due diligence in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, further compromising Andersen's duty as an auditor to maintain its independence from its client. In agreeing to undertake that assignment, Andersen became an active member of the team working to assist Sunbeam in its acquisitions. Harlow and other Andersen employees who worked on Sunbeam's audit also served as members of Sunbeam's due diligence team.

First Amended Complaint

76. On February 27, 1998, Sunbeam's Board of Directors met in New York to discuss Sunbeam's possible purchase of Coleman. During the February 27, 1998 meeting, MS & Co. provided Sunbeam's Board of Directors with a written "fairness" opinion regarding the fair acquisition price of Coleman. The opinion made clear that, even in the context of issuing a fairness opinion on the Coleman acquisition price, MS & Co. had relied upon Andersen's representations regarding Sunbeam's financial health. The fairness opinion explicitly stated that MS & Co. had reviewed "certain publicly available financial statements and other information" of Sunbeam. The opinion advised that MS & Co. had "assumed and relied upon without independent verification the accuracy and completeness of the information reviewed by us for the purposes of this opinion."

77. The Sunbeam Board of Directors approved the Coleman acquisition. That same day, Coleman-Parent — the 82-percent shareholder of Coleman — agreed to sell Coleman to Sunbeam for a purchase price of $2.2 billion. Sunbeam agreed to provide Coleman-Parent with $160 million in cash, to assume $584 million in Coleman-related debt, and to provide Coleman-Parent with 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam stock. Sunbeam also agreed to purchase Signature Brands and First Alert for approximately $300 million.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

Andersen's 1997 Unqualified Audit Opinion

78. In the first week of March 1998, shortly after the agreement for Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman was signed, but before the transaction closed, Andersen rendered an unqualified audit opinion for Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. With Andersen's express consent, management included that opinion in Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K filed with the SEC on March 6, 1998.

79. Andersen was well aware of the potential for fraud in Sunbeam's 1997 books, including the risk that Sunbeam management would attempt to claim profits and revenue on transactions before the earnings process was completed. Harlow had specifically advised Andersen's foreign offices (including Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, and Andersen-Venezuela), for example, that Dunlap had made promises to the public regarding earnings-per-share to be attained in 1997, and that management had a vested interest in achieving the promised earnings levels because management's primary form of compensation was based on the company's stock price. Harlow had also noted the presence of the possibility of a third-party purchase of the company's stock or assets.

80. In the course of its audit of Sunbeam's 1997 financial records, Andersen learned that Harlow's concerns were well-founded. It discovered that Sunbeam had improperly accounted for certain bill-and-hold sales, had misused its reserves, and had overvalued its inventories. Harlow discussed these problems with Sunbeam's senior management and proposed that Sunbeam reverse these improper entries.

81. For example, as part of Andersen's 1997 year-end audit, Harlow raised with Sunbeam's management the improper accounting treatment accorded to the EPI transaction. He proposed that Sunbeam reverse the accounting entries reflecting the revenue recognition for that transaction, pointing out that the profit guarantee and the indeterminate value of the contract rendered revenue recognition inconsistent with GAAP. Kersh and Gluck refused to reverse the transaction. Harlow caused Andersen to acquiesce in management's actions. As a result, Sunbeam's 1997 audited financial statements reflect almost $10 million of false profit on the sham EPI transaction.

82. Harlow also raised with Kersh and Gluck Sunbeam's inappropriate use of reserves and recorded the full $4.9 million of costs that Sunbeam had improperly offset against reserves on the list of proposed audit adjustments. Kersh and Gluck, however, refused to make the proposed adjustments. Harlow again failed to insist on honest, accurate accounting. Instead, he caused Andersen to acquiesce in Sunbeam's refusal to reverse these improper reductions in current-period costs, although he knew or recklessly disregarded facts indicating that this improper accounting would materially distort Sunbeam's reported results of operations. In fact, this use of reserves increased 1997 fourth-quarter income by almost 8 percent.

83. Harlow also proposed adjustments to reverse $2.9 million related to Sunbeam's inventory overvaluation by its Mexican subsidiary and $563,000 related to various miscellaneous terms. Kersh and Gluck refused to make appropriate adjustments, and Harlow again caused Andersen to acquiesce in their refusal to reverse these errors — despite the fact that these items added over 5.4 percent to Sunbeam's reported earnings for the fourth quarter and contributed to the larger misstatement of Sunbeam's reported results of operations stemming from the fraudulent conduct of Sunbeam's management.

84. These improper accounting techniques raised clear red flags that should have — and must have — alerted Andersen to the need for greater scrutiny regarding all of Sunbeam's revenue recognition decisions. At a minimum, Andersen should have been on guard as to all of the proposed audit adjustments that Harlow initially proposed but later rejected, and any previously recognized improper items that were ultimately dismissed as "immaterial."

First Amended Complaint

85. Despite these clear red flags, Andersen once again gave Sunbeam a clean bill of financial health, issuing an unqualified audit opinion regarding Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements and authorized the inclusion of its audit opinion in Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K filed with the SEC. A copy of the 1997 Audit Opinion is exhibit "B" attached hereto. The Audit Opinion is signed by Andersen. Consistent with Andersen's internal procedures, the Audit Opinion was issued at the direction of Harlow and Pruitt. Denkhaus, as Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, had undertaken responsibility for supervising the audit work performed in Andersen's South Florida region and thus also bore responsibility for the issuance of this opinion.

86. In this opinion, Andersen stated:

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements . . . , present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

87. In fact, Andersen's 1997 audit violated GAAS because, among other things, Andersen had failed (1) to perform the audits with an attitude of professional skepticism as required by SAS No. 53; (2) to reach a conclusion that there existed a significant risk of intentional distortion of financial statements by Sunbeam management, in violation of AU §§ 316.10 and 316.12; (3) to recognize that the accounting policies employed by Sunbeam were not acceptable in the circumstances, in violation of AU § 316.19; (4) to obtain sufficient competent evidential matter through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmations to afford a reasonable basis for its opinions regarding Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of AU § 150.02; (5) to exercise due professional care in the performance of the audit, in violation of AU § 150.02; (6) to plan the work adequately to uncover the errors and irregularities in Sunbeam's accounting information, in violation of AU § 150.02; and (7) to obtain a sufficient understanding of Sunbeam's internal control structure to plan the audits and to determine the nature, timing, and extent of tests to be performed, in violation of AU § 150.02.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

88. In addition, in conducting the 1997 audit, Andersen (1) improperly relied on management representations rather than applying the auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion on Sunbeam's financial statements, in violation of SAS No. 19 (AU § 333.02); (2) failed to recognize that misstatements resulting from misapplication of GAAP, departures from fact and omissions of necessary information, in aggregate, caused Sunbeam's financial statements to be materially misstated, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.04); (3) failed to issue a qualified or adverse opinion, in violation of SAS No. 47 (AU § 312.31); (4) improperly concluded that the accounting principles applied by Sunbeam were appropriate in the circumstances and that Sunbeam's financial statements were informative of matters that could affect their use, understanding and interpretation, in violation of SAS No. 69 (AU § 411.04(b) and (c)); and (5) failed to report that a change in the application of accounting principles in Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements had materially affected their comparability with the financial statements for prior periods, especially 1996, due to a different treatment of sales and reserves in those periods, in violation of SAS Nos. 1 and 43 (AU § 420.02).

First Amended Complaint

89. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew of or recklessly disregarded numerous red flags that should have caused them to withhold Andersen's unqualified certification of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. However, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus did nothing to stop Andersen's unqualified 1997 audit opinion from being included in Sunbeam's Form 10-K filing with the SEC, despite the fact that they knew or were reckless in not knowing that the financial statements that Andersen had certified were materially misleading. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus also knew that the false financial statements that they had caused Andersen to issue would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that MSSF, as a lender, and MS & Co., as an underwriter, would rely on these financial statements.

90. The Foreign Andersen Branches also knew of or recklessly disregarded the fact that the financial statements of Sunbeam's foreign subsidiaries, which they had reviewed and audited, were not prepared in accordance with GAAP or reviewed in accordance with GAAS. The Foreign Andersen Branches nevertheless certified that their audit work complied with GAAP and GAAS. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches also knew that the false financial statements that they had audited would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that lenders, such as MSSF, and underwriters, such as MS & Co., would rely on these financial statements.

91. In all, the 1997 financial statements audited by Andersen reported operating income of $186 million — an overstatement of at least 50 percent. Like its 1996 unqualified audit opinion, Andersen's 1997 opinion was false in two material respects. First, the financial statements Andersen audited did not "fairly" present Sunbeam's financial position in conformity with GAAP, as it represented. Second, Andersen had not, as it claimed, conducted its audit in accordance with GAAS.

Reliance by Plaintiffs on Andersen's Unqualified Audit Opinions

92. After it agreed to acquire Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, Sunbeam needed to raise approximately $2.3 billion to refinance existing debt and to fund these acquisitions. To accomplish these financing objectives, Sunbeam's management elected to issue $500 million in subordinated convertible notes (an amount later increased to $750 million) (the "Convertible Note Offering") and to enter into a new $2 billion senior credit agreement (later reduced to $1.7 billion) with secured lenders (the "Bank Facility"). MS & Co. served as the lead underwriter for the Convertible Note Offering. MSSF served as the Syndication Agent for the Bank Facility and coordinated the Bank Facility with First Union and Bank of America, Sunbeam's other secured lenders.

93. Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhous knew of these proposed financing arrangements. Specifically, they knew that the Coleman and other acquisitions would not close unless Sunbeam secured the financing necessary to cover the acquisition prices. They knew that MS & Co. would underwrite a notes offering that Sunbeam would use to finance the transaction. Moreover, they knew that MSSF was a principal participant in the Bank Facility, and that MSSF would be relying on the representations Andersen made regarding Sunbeam's financial condition.

94. In addition, Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhous knew that documents issued in connection with the Convertible Note Offering clearly stated that "[Sunbeam] is currently negotiating the terms of the New Credit Facility with a group of banks which [Sunbeam] expects will provide for borrowings by [Sunbeam] or one or more of its subsidiaries in the aggregate principal amount of $2.0 billion. The New Credit Facility is being arranged by an affiliate of [Morgan Stanley]." Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew that the affiliate referred to in this document was MSSF.

95. In addition to their knowledge of MS & Co.'s and MSSF's roles in Sunbeam's acquisitions, Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus had many reasons to know that MS & Co. and MSSF would rely on Sunbeam's audited financial statements. To begin with, Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, in their substantial experience working on multi-billion dollar mergers and acquisitions, understood that Sunbeam's lenders and underwriters would rely on an auditor's certification of Sunbeam's financial condition. As would any lender engaged in a deal of this scale, MSSF looked to the financial statements provided by Sunbeam and audited by Andersen to evaluate annual cash flow and to assess Sunbeam's ability, following the acquisition, to promptly and comfortably pay interest and, ultimately, pay back the loan. Indeed, reasonable and professional lenders such as MSSF, Bank of America, and First Union would not have loaned over $1 billion dollars to any person or entity without strong assurance that their money would be returned. Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew that MS & Co., the underwriter of the Convertible Note Offering, would similarly refuse to underwrite a $750 million offering without strong assurance that Sunbeam's financial condition was sound.

96. Not only were Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus aware that any prudent business in MS & Co.'s or MSSF's position would rely on Andersen's financial statements, but they also knew that MS & Co. and MSSF were specifically relying on Andersen's certifications. In a letter dated March 11, 1998, MS & Co. wrote a letter to Andersen — to the attention of

Harlow — notifying Andersen that MS & Co. would be “reviewing certain information relating to Sunbeam that will be included in the Offering Memorandum.” MS & Co. requested that Andersen deliver to it a “‘comfort’ letter concerning the financial statements” of Sunbeam.

97. In response to this request, Andersen expressly represented to MS & Co. that Sunbeam’s financial statements were truthful and that Andersen’s unqualified audit opinions were reliable. On March 19, 1998, Andersen sent MS & Co. a “comfort” letter stating that, in Andersen’s opinion, “the consolidated financial statements [for 1996 and 1997] audited by [Andersen] and included in the Offering Memorandum comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of the [Securities Act of 1933] and the related published rules and regulations.” Andersen knew that MS & Co. would rely on the comfort letters in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering. Andersen also knew that Sunbeam’s acquisitions were contingent on Sunbeam’s obtaining the necessary financing for the transactions, including the underwriting of the convertible notes. Andersen knew that, absent its representations, MS & Co. would not have underwritten the notes, and therefore the financing, including MSSF’s loan to Sunbeam, would not have gone forward. A copy of the March 19, 1998 letter is exhibit “C” attached hereto.

98. Harlow and Pruitt authorized the issuance of the March 19, 1998 comfort letter, which was signed by Andersen. Upon information and belief, Denkhaus knew of this letter and did nothing to stop its issuance.

99. In a follow-up letter to MS & Co. dated March 25, 1998, Andersen reaffirmed its previous representation, stating that it “reaffirm[ed] as of the date hereof (and as though made on the date hereof) all statements made in that letter.” Again, Andersen knew that MS & Co. would rely on the comfort letters in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and that,

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

absent its representations, the financing, including MSSF's loan to Sunbeam, would not have gone forward. A copy of the March 25, 1998 letter is exhibit "D" attached hereto.

100. Again, Harlow and Pruitt authorized the issuance of this letter, which was likewise signed by Andersen. Upon information and belief, Denkhaus also knew of this letter and did nothing to stop its issuance.

101. In addition to Andersen's written representations regarding Sunbeam's financial condition, Andersen partners and employees, including Harlow, participated in meetings and telephone calls in which they represented to MS & Co. and MSSF that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate. For example, on March 12, 1998, representatives of MS & Co. participated in a conference call with Harlow and another Andersen employee to discuss Sunbeam's financial statements. In this call, Harlow assured MS & Co.'s representatives that there were no material inaccuracies in Sunbeam's financial statements. Upon information and belief, Harlow made these statements with the knowledge and approval of Pruitt and Denkhaus.

102. Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus also knew that MS & Co. had stated in a February 27, 1998 "fairness" opinion that MS & Co. had presented to Sunbeam's Board of Directors that MS & Co. had assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial statements that were available at that time.

103. In addition, Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew that Sunbeam had expressly represented, in loan negotiations with MSSF, that Andersen's audit opinions were accurate. Specifically, Andersen knew that, in the Sunbeam-MSSF credit agreement, Sunbeam had warranted that it had provided MSSF with accurate information regarding Sunbeam's consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. According to Sunbeam, its financial statements — certified by

Andersen --- "present[ed] fairly, in all material respects, the financial position and results of operations and cash flows . . . in accordance with GAAP."

104. Similarly, Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew that, in connection with the Convertible Note Offering, Sunbeam had included its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998, offering memorandum and had represented to MS & Co. that its audited financial statements were reliable.

105. Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus also knew that, as part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam had represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate and not misleading, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date. Sunbeam further represented that its audited financial statements were prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that at the time of the closing of the transaction, that representation would continue to be true and correct.

106. Although it knew that MS & Co. and MSSF had based multi-million dollar financing decisions on its representations, Andersen did not tell Plaintiffs' of the accounting concerns that it had raised with Sunbeam management in the course of its 1996 and 1997 audits or that Sunbeam's financial statements had not been fairly stated in 1996 and 1997.

107. On March 25, 1998, the $750 million Convertible Note Offering closed. In justifiable reliance on Andersen's 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions, on Andersen's March 19, 1998, and March 25, 1998, "comfort" letters, and on the oral representations made by Harlow and other partners, members or employees of Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide, MS & Co. underwrote this offering to finance Sunbeam's acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands, and First Alert.

CASE NO. S02004CA002257XXXMB
First Amended Complaint

108. Sunbeam closed its acquisition of Coleman on March 30, 1998. On that date, Sunbeam, through a wholly owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81 percent of the then-outstanding shares of Coleman common stock. These shares were acquired by Sunbeam in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam's common stock and approximately $160,000,000 in cash. In addition, Sunbeam assumed or repaid approximately $1,016,000,000 in debt belonging to Coleman and Coleman-Parent. Included in the repaid debt portion of the transaction was an immediate cash payment by Sunbeam to Coleman-Parent of $590 million.

109. MSSF and Sunbeam closed the Bank Facility on March 31, 1998. In accordance with the terms of the Bank Facility, MSSF — unaware of the falsity of Sunbeam's financial statements and Andersen's audit reports and in justifiable reliance on Andersen's representations — loaned Sunbeam $680 million in immediately available funds to be used for the acquisitions. First Union, which served as the Administrative Agent for the Bank Facility, loaned Sunbeam an additional $510 million. Bank of America, which served as the Documentation Agent for the Bank Facility, loaned Sunbeam an additional $510 million.

110. As Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus knew, MS & Co. had relied on Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering. Andersen, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus further knew that MSSF had relied on Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements in deciding to loan Sunbeam $680 million. Moreover, they knew that the Sunbeam-MSSF credit agreement provided that a condition precedent to MSSF's obligations under the agreement was the absence of any event, change, or development that would have a material adverse effect on the business, results of operation, or financial condition of Sunbeam. Andersen knew that an additional condition precedent to

MSSF's obligations was the absence of any material misrepresentation or omissions in Sunbeam's SEC filings, including Andersen's 1996 and 1997 audit reports in the Form 10-Ks.

111. But for Andersen's fraud and its failure to issue qualified or adverse reports exposing the falsity of Sunbeam's financial statements, MS & Co. and MSSF would have had notice of an adverse material change affecting Sunbeam before funding, and of a material misstatement in Sunbeam's SEC filings. Not only would MS & Co. never have agreed to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering, but MSSF's obligation to loan Sunbeam $680 million also would have been discharged by the failure of conditions precedent to its obligations under the credit agreement. Andersen's fraud directly caused the extensive losses that Plaintiffs suffered.

112. Andersen's fraud was knowingly caused by Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus. Harlow, as engagement partner, and Pruitt, as concurring partner, had direct responsibility for directing, managing, and approving of the work that was done on the Sunbeam audits. They caused Andersen to represent to MS & Co. and MSSF that Sunbeam's financial statements were reliable. Denkhaus, who was a senior partner of Andersen and a member of Andersen-Worldwide, as well as the Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, had undertaken responsibility for supervising and monitoring the work that was performed at Harlow's and Pruitt's direction. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus each knew of or recklessly disregarded the accounting violations contained in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. They each also knew that the financial statements that they had caused Andersen to certify would be relied upon by MS & Co. in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and by MSSF in deciding to loan Sunbeam hundreds of millions of dollars.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXMB

113. This fraud was also knowingly perpetrated by the Foreign Andersen Branches. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches reviewed and audited financial statements prepared for Sunbeam's foreign subsidiaries for 1997, all of which contained significant accounting violations. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches knew of or recklessly disregarded the fact that the financial statements that they had reviewed and audited were not prepared in accordance with GAAP or reviewed in accordance with GAAS, but nevertheless certified that their audit work complied with these standards. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches also knew that the financial statements that they had audited would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that lenders, such as MSSF, and underwriters, such as MS & Co., would rely on these financial statements.

114. The fraud was also knowingly perpetrated by Andersen-Worldwide through the actions of its members, including Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, and its member firms, including Andersen and the Foreign Andersen Branches.

Andersen's Improper Accounting and Misrepresentations Are Revealed

115. In an April 3, 1998 conference call with securities analysts, Sunbeam revealed that sales for the first quarter of 1998 were 5 percent below reported sales for the same period of the prior year.

116. On April 22, 1998, a class of Sunbeam shareholders sued Sunbeam and its senior officers in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, alleging that the company had violated the securities laws by issuing materially false and misleading statements regarding Sunbeam's financial condition. Andersen was subsequently added as a defendant in that lawsuit.

117. On June 8, 1998, an article was published in Barron's that raised serious questions regarding Sunbeam's apparent success under Dunlap, suggesting that it was the result of "accounting gimmickry." On June 15, 1998, Sunbeam's Board announced that it had removed Dunlap as Chairman and CEO. On June 17, 1998, Sunbeam received a letter from the SEC informing it that the SEC had initiated an investigation into the company.

118. Andersen continued to stand behind its fraudulent audit opinions. On June 15, 1998, Andersen allowed Sunbeam's Board of Directors to assert that Andersen had "assured the Board that Sunbeam's audited financial statements [were] accurate in all material respects." Andersen made this statement knowing that it was false. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhau likewise knew the statement was false, but caused Andersen to make this statement. It was not until June 25, 1998 — when Andersen withheld its consent for use of its 1997 audit opinion in a registration statement that was to have been filed with the SEC — that Andersen gave any hint that its unqualified audit opinions were unreliable.

119. On June 30, 1998, Sunbeam announced that the Audit Committee of its Board of Directors would conduct an inquiry into the accuracy of its 1997 financial statements. The Audit Committee subsequently retained Deloitte & Touche LLP to assist in the review, in addition to Andersen. Sunbeam stated that "pending the completion of the review, its 1997 financial statements and the report of Arthur Andersen LLP should not be relied upon." Sunbeam added that the review "could result in a restatement of the 1997 financial statements and the first quarter 1998 Form 10-Q."

120. On August 6, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its Audit Committee had determined that Sunbeam would be required to restate its audited financial statements for 1997 and possibly for 1996, as well as its unaudited financial statements for the first quarter of 1998. On

October 20, 1998, Sunbeam and Andersen announced a restatement of its 1996 and 1997 financial statements.

121. Holders of the convertible notes sued Sunbeam on October 30, 1998, and Andersen was later named as a defendant in that suit.

122. On November 12, 1998, Sunbeam released its restated 1996 and 1997 financial results, again audited by Andersen. The restated 1996 financial statements reported operating losses for 1996 that were approximately $40 million less than originally reported, losses from continuing operations that were approximately $26 million less than previously reported and net losses that were approximately $20 million less than previously reported.

123. For 1997, the restated financial statements reported operating earnings that were approximately $95 million less than originally reported, earnings from continuing operations that were approximately $70 million less than previously reported and net earnings that were approximately $70 million less than previously reported. The new operating income figure for 1997 was approximately half the amount that Andersen had previously certified.

Sunbeam Declares Bankruptcy

124. On February 6, 2001, as a direct result of the deceit that Andersen had committed, with the knowledge and assistance of the other Defendants named in this Complaint, Sunbeam and several of its subsidiaries were forced to seek relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. As part of the bankruptcy court-approved reorganization plan, MSSF's $680 million loan to Sunbeam was discharged in full, and MSSF received Sunbeam stock valued at a fraction of the original loan. In addition, as a result of Andersen's actions, the convertible notes issued by Sunbeam and held by MS & Co. had been rendered substantially less valuable. The shareholders of Sunbeam saw the value of their stock decline by over $5 billion from its peak in early March 1998 to February 5, 2001.

Subsequent Censure of Andersen's Conduct

125. Both courts and regulators have scrutinized Andersen's facilitation of Sunbeam's fraud. In their judgments against the firm and Harlow, they have denounced Andersen's conduct.

126. In December 1999, for example, the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, which presided over the Sunbeam shareholders' class action securities fraud lawsuit, refused to dismiss any claims against Andersen. The court found that the plaintiff class had, by alleging the material misstatements made by Andersen in its unqualified audit opinions, describing the violations of GAAP and GAAS that had occurred, and setting forth why the statements in the audit opinions were false and misleading, pled fraud against Andersen with sufficient particularity to satisfy Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b)'s pleading requirements. See In re Sunbeam Sec. Litig., 89 F. Supp. 2d 1326, 1344 n.11 (S.D. Fla. 1999).

127. The In re Sunbeam court also rejected Andersen's argument that the plaintiffs had merely alleged that Andersen violated GAAP and GAAS and had not set forth facts sufficient to show that it acted with knowing fraudulent intent or recklessness. The court ruled that Andersen's arguments "fail[ed] to appreciate the breadth" of the plaintiffs' allegations, which described much more than "innocent auditing and accounting slip-ups." In re Sunbeam Sec. Litig., 89 F. Supp. 2d at 1344. The court concluded (id. at 1344-45) that the following facts established that Andersen had acted with requisite scienter:

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

- Andersen violated a GAAS requirement that it have a sufficient understanding of Sunbeam's internal control structure;
- Andersen failed to adhere to GAAS by not identifying numerous fraud risk factors suggesting that there was a significant risk that Sunbeam had fraudulently misstated its financials;
- Andersen was alerted by Sunbeam employees to material misstatements in Sunbeam's financial statements;
- Andersen failed to stop Sunbeam from recognizing, in violation of GAAP, revenues from guaranteed sales and consignment transactions, with the result that its sales were substantially overstated;
- Andersen ignored a June 8, 1998, Barron's article that accused Sunbeam of accounting improprieties, continued to stand behind its audit opinions, and did not give any hint that its unqualified audit opinions were unreliable until June 25, 1998, when it withheld consent to the use of its audit opinion in an SEC registration statement; and
- The sheer magnitude of the restatements of Sunbeam's financial statements indicated that Andersen was at least severely reckless not to know that its unqualified audit opinions were misleading.

128. The United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida concluded that these facts were sufficient to "demonstrate that Arthur Andersen acted with severe recklessness in issuing its misleading Unqualified Audit Opinion," and therefore supported a valid federal securities law fraud claim. In re Sunbeam Sec. Litig., 89 F. Supp. 2d at 1344. Andersen subsequently settled this lawsuit in 2001 for $110 million.

129. On May 15, 2001, the SEC filed a civil action in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida against five former Sunbeam officers and Harlow, Andersen's engagement partner. The SEC alleged that Harlow, by causing Andersen to issue materially incorrect audit opinions, had engaged in fraud in violation of the federal securities laws.

130. In January 2003, Harlow consented to an injunction and agreed not to contest the SEC's charges against him. In the SEC's consent order, it made numerous factual findings regarding Harlow's improper conduct. It concluded that Harlow had proposed, on many occasions, adjustments to rectify Sunbeam's false financial statements. After management refused to make these adjustments, Harlow improperly acceded to that decision. In re Phillip E. Harlow, Rcl. No. 34-47261, 2003 WL 169818, at *1-*3 (SEC Rel. Jan. 27, 2003).

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

131. The SEC's assessment of Harlow's conduct was damning. Among many other things, it concluded that Harlow (1) "failed to exercise professional skepticism when performing audit procedures and gathering and analyzing audit evidence," (2) "accepted uncorroborated representations of Sunbeam's management in lieu of performing appropriate audit procedures," (3) "failed to exercise due professional care in performing the audit and preparing the audit report," (4) "failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to determine whether the financial statements were in conformity with GAAP," even after he had "identified a number of audit risks and accounting issues associated with the Sunbeam engagement," and (5) "failed to obtain sufficient competent evidential matters through inspection, observation, inquiries, and confirmation to afford a reasonable basis for an audit opinion." Id. at *4. Based on these factual findings, the Commission concluded that the 1996 and 1997 financial statements that Harlow had audited were not in conformity with GAAP, and the audit was not performed in accordance with GAAS. Id. (citing AU §§ 410, 411, 508.07).

132. Other participants in the Coleman acquisition have also sued Andersen for its fraudulent conduct. On June 8, 2001, Coleman-Parent sued Andersen and Harlow for fraudulent misrepresentation, fraudulent inducement to contract (conspiracy and concerted action), and negligent misrepresentation. See Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. v. Arthur Andersen LLP, No. 502001CA006062XXOCAN (Fla. 15th Cir. Ct., filed June 8, 2001). That case was assigned to Judge Stephen A. Rapp. Andersen and Harlow moved to dismiss. However, after an October 29, 2001, hearing on their motion, Andersen and Harlow answered Coleman-Parent's complaint. On March 15, 2002, the complaint in this matter was amended to add Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela, and Andersen's United Kingdom branch as defendants. See Amended Complaint, CPH v. Andersen (filed Mar. 15, 2002). The Court denied Andersen-Worldwide's Motion To Dismiss on June 19, 2002, and the matter was voluntarily dismissed on January 28, 2003, after the parties had settled for an undisclosed amount.

Tolling Agreements

133. On March 8, 2001, Morgan Stanley, MSSF, and all of "their respective successors, predecessors, subsidiaries, affiliates, and assigns" executed the first of a series of tolling agreements with the Defendants. Additional tolling agreements were executed on April 4, 2001, April 19, 2001, April 24, 2001, April 23, 2002, October 16, 2002, April 10, 2003, and October 21, 2003. Copies of these Tolling Agreements are exhibits "E" through "L" attached hereto.

134. These agreements were signed by Andersen. The individuals that signed the agreements on behalf of Andersen represented that they had the "authority to bind and act on behalf of" Andersen and all of its "successors, predecessors, subsidiaries, affiliates, assigns, partners, employees, agents, officers, or directors."

135. Taken together, these agreements show that, in consideration for forbearance from commencing an action against the Defendants, Andersen agreed to toll from March 8, 2001, to March 1, 2004, the statute of limitations on all Morgan Stanley entities' claims against Andersen, its partners and agents (including Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhau), and its affiliates (including

140. Andersen knew that Sunbeam's financial statements were replete with accounting irregularities and that the information in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements and in Andersen's 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions was materially false and misleading.

141. Although Andersen knew that MS & Co. and MSSF would rely and had relied on its false statements, it did not inform MS & Co. or MSSF that the unqualified audit opinions it had provided were materially false or that Sunbeam's financial statements contained numerous misstatements of material facts.

142. Andersen made its materially false representations regarding its unqualified audit opinions and the accuracy of Sunbeam's financial statements with the intent to deceive Plaintiffs.

143. Andersen knew that the false information that had been provided to Plaintiffs would be critical to Plaintiffs' decisions to participate in the financing of Sunbeam's acquisitions. But for Andersen's fraudulent representations, MS & Co. would not have underwritten the Convertible Note Offering, nor would MSSF have loaned Sunbeam $680 million.

144. Andersen's fraud was knowingly caused by Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus. Harlow, as engagement partner, and Pruitt, as concurring partner had direct responsibility for directing, managing, and approving of the work that was done on the Sunbeam audits. Denkhaus, who was a senior partner of Andersen and a member of Andersen-Worldwide, as well as the Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, had undertaken responsibility for supervising and monitoring the work performed at Harlow's and Pruitt's direction. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus each knew of or recklessly disregarded the accounting violations contained in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. They each also knew that the financial statements that they had caused Andersen to certify would be relied senior Sunbeam executives to create the appearance that Sunbeam was performing at a high level. The purpose of this conspiracy was artificially to inflate the stock price of Sunbeam and thereby to induce MS & Co. to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and MSSF into loaning Sunbeam $680 million to finance Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands. Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, the Foreign Andersen Branches, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus agreed to become part of the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiffs and committed overt acts in furtherance of this fraudulent scheme.

150. In furtherance of the conspiracy, Dunlap, Kersh, Gluck, and the other Sunbeam executives agreed to misstate Sunbeam's true financial condition by millions of dollars in order to create the illusion that Sunbeam had undergone a radical financial turnaround. Pursuant to this scheme, Dunlap, Kersh, Gluck, and other Sunbeam executives caused Sunbeam, in 1996, to overstate its operating losses by at least $40 million, thereby establishing an overly bleak financial backdrop against which the company's performance in 1997 would be measured. In 1997, by contrast, Dunlap, Kersh, Gluck, and the other Sunbeam executives caused Sunbeam dramatically to overstate its earnings.

151. In late 1997 to early 1998, in furtherance of the conspiracy, Dunlap, Kersh, Gluck, and the other Sunbeam executives decided to acquire Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands. They communicated this decision to Andersen and Harlow. Thereafter, Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, the Foreign Andersen Branches, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus agreed to become part of the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiffs.

152. In March 1998, in furtherance of the conspiracy, Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide, through their partners/members Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, committed overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy, including, but not limited to, issuing Andersen's false and provided MSSF with accurate information regarding its consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. They caused Sunbeam to include its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998, offering memorandum and to represent to MS & Co. that its audited financial statements were reliable. As part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, they caused Sunbeam to represent and warrant that all of Sunbeam's filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate, not misleading, and prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date. Andersen and the other Defendants named in this Complaint had full knowledge and approved of these false representations.

157. In reasonable and justifiable reliance on the co-conspirators' representations that Sunbeam's financial statements and Andersen's audit reports were accurate and truthful, MS & Co. agreed to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering, and MSSF agreed to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman. But for the co-conspirators' fraudulent representations, MS & Co. would not have underwritten the Convertible Note Offering, nor would MSSF have loaned Sunbeam $680 million.

158. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus had full knowledge of and participated in this conspiracy. Harlow, as engagement partner, and Pruitt, as concurring partner, had direct responsibility for directing, managing, and approving of the work that was done on the Sunbeam audits. Denkhaus, who was a senior partner of Andersen and a member of Andersen-Worldwide, as well as the Audit Division Head and manager of Andersen's audit practice for the entire South Florida region, had undertaken responsibility for supervising and monitoring the work performed at Harlow's and Pruitt's direction. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus each knew of or recklessly disregarded the accounting violations contained in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. They each also knew that the financial statements that they had caused Andersen to certify would be relied upon by MS & Co. in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and by MSSF in deciding to loan Sunbeam hundreds of millions of dollars.

159. The Foreign Andersen Branches also knowingly participated in this scheme. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches reviewed and audited financial statements prepared for Sunbeam's foreign subsidiaries for 1997, all of which contained significant accounting violations. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches knew or recklessly disregarded the fact that the financial statements that they had reviewed and audited were not prepared in accordance with GAAP or reviewed in accordance with GAAS, but nevertheless certified their audit work as in compliance with these standards. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches also knew that the financial statements that they had audited would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that lenders, such as MSSF, and underwriters, such as MS & Co., would rely on these financial statements.

160. Andersen-Worldwide also participated in this conspiracy through the actions of its members, including Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, and its member firms, including Andersen and the Foreign Andersen Branches.

161. As a direct result of this conspiracy of fraudulent inducement, Plaintiffs have collectively suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages.

COUNT III

Aiding and Abetting Fraud

162. Paragraphs 1 through 135 are repeated and alleged as if set forth herein.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

163. To induce MSSF into loaning Sunbeam $680 million to finance its acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands, Sunbeam represented to MSSF in loan negotiations that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate and not misleading. In the Sunbeam-MSSF credit agreement, Sunbeam warranted that it had provided MSSF with accurate information regarding its consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows, as well as its consolidated balance sheets. Sunbeam included its 1996 and 1997 audited financial statements in its March 19, 1998, offering memorandum and represented to MS & Co. and MSSF that its audited financial statements were reliable.

164. As part of the Coleman merger agreement executed on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam expressly represented and warranted that all of its filings with the SEC, which included the 1996 financial statements audited by Andersen, were accurate, not misleading, and prepared in accordance with GAAP, and that they would continue to be accurate and not misleading as of the transaction's closing date. Sunbeam knew that its many representations regarding its 1996 and 1997 financial statements were materially false when made and/or made these representations with reckless disregard as to their truth. It also knew that Andersen's 1996 and 1997 unqualified audit opinions were materially false and misleading.

165. Sunbeam knew that MS & Co. would rely on Sunbeam's representations in determining whether to act as Sunbeam's underwriter and that MSSF would rely on its representations in deciding to loan Sunbeam $680 million to finance its acquisitions. Although Sunbeam knew that MS & Co. and MSSF would rely and had relied on its false statements, it did not inform them that the unqualified audit opinions it had provided were materially false or that Sunbeam's financial statements contained numerous misstatements of material facts.

CASE NO. 502004CA002257XXXXMB
First Amended Complaint

166. Sunbeam made its materially false representations regarding its financial statements and Andersen's unqualified audit opinions with the intent to deceive MS & Co. and MSSF and to induce them to participate in the financing of Sunbeam's acquisitions.

167. Sunbeam knew that the false information that it had provided to MS & Co. and MSSF, and its intentional failure to correct the misrepresentations contained in Sunbeam's financial statements, would be critical to their decision to participate in the financing of Sunbeam's acquisitions. But for Sunbeam's fraudulent representations, MS & Co. would not have underwritten the Convertible Note Offering, nor would MSSF have loaned Sunbeam $680 million.

168. Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide, through their partners/members Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, knowingly and substantially assisted Sunbeam in its fraud. Andersen itself expressly represented to MS & Co., in letters dated March 19, 1998, and March 25, 1998, that Sunbeam's financial statements were truthful and that Andersen's unqualified audit opinions were reliable. In addition, employees, partners, and members of Andersen and Andersen-Worldwide, including Harlow, participated in meetings and telephone calls in which they represented to MS & Co. and MSSF that Sunbeam's audited financial statements were accurate.

169. Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus substantially and knowingly assisted Sunbeam's fraud. They each knew of or recklessly disregarded the accounting violations contained in Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. They each also knew that the financial statements that they had caused Andersen to certify would be relied upon by MS & Co. in deciding to underwrite the Convertible Note Offering and by MSSF in deciding to loan Sunbeam hundreds of millions of dollars.

First Amended Complaint

170. The Foreign Andersen Branches substantially and knowingly assisted Sunbeam's fraud. They each reviewed and audited financial statements prepared for Sunbeam's foreign subsidiaries for 1997, all of which contained significant accounting violations. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches knew of or recklessly disregarded the fact that the financial statements that they had reviewed and audited were not prepared in accordance with GAAP or reviewed in accordance with GAAS, but nevertheless certified their audit work as in compliance with these standards. Each of the Foreign Andersen Branches also knew that the financial statements that they had audited would be incorporated into Sunbeam's consolidated financial statements and that lenders, such as MSSF, and underwriters, such as MS & Co., would rely on these financial statements.

171. As a direct result of Sunbeam's fraud, aided and abetted by Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, the Foreign Andersen Branches, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, MS & Co., MSSF, and Morgan Stanley collectively have suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs, MS & Co., MSSF, and Morgan Stanley, demand judgment against Andersen, Andersen-Worldwide, Andersen-Canada, Andersen-Hong Kong, Andersen-Mexico, Andersen-Venezuela, Harlow, Pruitt, and Denkhaus, jointly and severally, for:

- (A) compensatory damages;
- (B) prejudgment interest;
- (C) attorneys' fees and costs; and
- (D) such other relief as may be just and appropriate.

Plaintiffs reserve the right to amend their complaint pursuant to section 768.72, Florida Statutes, to assert claims for punitive damages in excess of $1.2 billion as allowed by law.

Supreme Court, Appellate Division, First
Department, New York.

Kenneth ABRAHAMI, et al., Plaintiffs-
Appellants,

v.

UPC CONSTRUCTION CO., INC., et al.,
Defendants,

and

Howard Lee, et al., Defendants-Respondents.

Sept. 19, 1991.

Action was brought alleging fraudulent misrepresentation of facts by defendants with respect to inducing plaintiffs to invest in corporation. Motion to dismiss two causes of action was granted in part by the Supreme Court, New York County, Fingerhood, J., and plaintiffs appealed. The Supreme Court, Appellate Division, held that: (1) complaint failed to satisfy specificity and particularity requirements with respect to pleading fraud as to all but one defendant, and (2) complaint failed to allege claim for money had and received as to moving defendants.

Affirmed.

MEMORANDUM DECISION.

180 Order, Supreme Court, New York County (Shirley Fingerhood, J.), entered December 14, 1990, as amended and supplemented by order of the same court and justice, entered January 17, 1991, granting, in part, defendants' motion, pursuant to CPLR 3016(b), to dismiss the first cause of action of plaintiffs' verified complaint, and moving defendants' motion, pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(7), to dismiss the second cause of action of the verified complaint, unanimously affirmed, without costs.

[1] Plaintiffs' verified complaint alleges, inter alia, that defendants fraudulently misrepresented facts with respect to UPC's profitability, in order to induce plaintiffs to invest $750,000 in UPC. The Court properly dismissed the first cause of action, sounding in fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud, as against the moving defendants, except Heo Peh Lee. While Lee was alleged to have made false representations to plaintiffs on various occasions, the verified complaint failed to satisfy the specificity and particularity requirements of CPLR 3013 and 3016(b) as to the other moving defendants, since there were no factual allegations alleging that these defendants had made any fraudulent representations to plaintiff or allegations of fact from which it could be inferred that they had agreed or entered into an understanding with the other defendant (against which particular acts of fraud were alleged) to cooperate in any fraudulent scheme. AES CORP., Appellant
v.
THE DOW CHEMICAL COMPANY; Dynegy
Power Corporation f/k/a Destec Energy Inc.

No. 01-3373.

Argued May 23, 2002.
Filed April 14, 2003.

Buyer of corporation brought securities fraud action against majority shareholder of parent of acquired corporation, alleging misrepresentations concerning value of acquired corporation, and asserting various state-law claims. The United States District Court for the District of Delaware, 157 F.Supp.2d 346, Joseph J. Farnan, J., granted majority shareholder's summary judgment motion, and buyer appealed. The Court of Appeals, Stapleton, Circuit Judge, held that: (1) federal law governed issue of whether buyer had anticipatorily waived federal securities fraud claims, and (2) non-reliance clauses in confidentiality and asset purchase agreements could not be enforced so as to bar as a matter of law buyer's securities fraud claims.

Reversed and remanded.

Wallace, Senior Circuit Judge, filed concurring and dissenting opinion.

OPINION OF THE COURT

STAPLETON, Circuit Judge.

I. Introduction

The AES Corporation ("AES") operates power facilities. AES alleges that Dow Chemical Company ("Dow") and its subsidiary, Destec Energy, Inc. ("Destec"), [FN1] violated Sections 10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the "Exchange Act") in connection with a transaction in which AES purchased the stock of one of Destec's subsidiaries, Destec Engineering, Inc. ("DEI"). DEI's sole asset was a contract to design and construct a power plant in The Netherlands (the "Elsta *176 Plant"). According to AES, Dow and Destec conspired to sell DEI at an artificially inflated price by making misrepresentations material to an evaluation of DEI.

FN1. Destec has since changed its name to Dynegy Power Corporation.

During the pendency of this case in the District Court, AES and Destec entered into a settlement agreement. Thus, only the claims against Dow remain. There has been no discovery. Dow moved for summary judgment, relying solely on documents relating to the transactions in which AES acquired DEI's stock. In response, AES filed a Rule 56(f) affidavit requesting discovery in identified areas. The District Court nevertheless granted Dow's summary judgment motion. The District Court held that certain clauses in the transaction documents rendered AES's reliance on the alleged misrepresentations unreasonable as a matter of law.

II. Background

Dow formed Destec to build and run power plants that would supply power to Dow Chemical facilities and third-party users. In 1996, after determining that it could not profitably run Destec as its subsidiary, Dow retained Morgan Stanley to perform a valuation of Destec in order to initiate a public sale.

Morgan Stanley issued a Confidential Offering Memorandum on behalf of Destec. As a precondition to receiving the Offering Memorandum, AES signed a Confidentiality

Agreement that provided in part:

We [AES] acknowledge that neither you [Destec], nor Morgan Stanley [Destec's Investment Banker] or its affiliates, nor your other Representatives, nor any of your or their respective officers, directors, employees, agents or controlling persons within the meaning of section 20 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, make any express or implied representation or warranty as to the accuracy or completeness of the Information, and we agree that no such person will have any liability relating to the Information or for any errors therein or omissions therefrom. We further agree that we are not entitled to rely on the accuracy or completeness of the Information and that we will be entitled to rely solely on any representations and warranties as may be made to us in any definitive agreement with respect to the Transaction, subject to such limitations and restrictions as may be contained therein.

App. at 197, ¶ 5. Dow was not a party to the Confidentiality Agreement but is alleged to have been a "controlling person" of Destec within the meaning of § 20(a) of the Exchange Act.

The Offering Memorandum included projections and estimates about the future performance of Destec's businesses, including DEI and the Elsta Plant. Like the Confidentiality Agreement, the Offering Memorandum warned readers that they were not to rely on the accuracy or completeness of information contained therein. It further stated:

[o]nly those particular representations and warranties which may be made to a purchaser in a definitive agreement, when, as, and if executed, and subject to such limitations and restrictions as may be specified in such definitive agreement, shall have any legal effect.

App. at 7 (alteration in original).

Dow and Destec provided information about Destec to potential bidders in several other ways. First, Destec officers gave a presentation to potential bidders, which AES representatives attended. Dow and Destec also sent certain documents to potential bidders and made others available in a room at a Destec facility in Houston, *177 Texas. Further, Dow and Destec gave potential bidders a computer model to value the Destec assets. This model included assumptions about the expenses and revenues of the Elsta Plant. Lastly, Dow and Destec allowed AES, as part of its due diligence, to visit the Elsta Plant.

AES contacted Dow about the possibility of purchasing the international assets of Destec. Dow responded that it would prefer to sell all of Destec, rather than dispose of it piecemeal. As a result, AES approached NGC Corporation ("NGC") to propose submitting a joint bid for all of Destec, and a joint bid was subsequently made.

The AES/NGC joint bid was accepted by Dow. The transaction took place in two steps. First, NGC acquired all of the stock of Destec pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Merger Agreement") entered into by Dow, Destec, and NGC. Second, AES purchased all of the international assets of Destec, including all of DEI's outstanding stock, pursuant to an Asset Purchase Agreement between AES and NGC.

Section 4.6 of the Merger Agreement, to which AES was not a party, provided as follows:

Except for the representations and warranties contained in this Article IV, neither Dow nor any other person makes any other express or implied representation or warranty on behalf of Dow.

App. at 235. Article IV of the Merger Agreement contained two pages of representations and warranties of Dow. It warranted that it was duly organized as a corporation; that it was authorized to enter the agreement; that the execution and consummation of the agreement would not violate the terms of any court order or Dow contract; that no government approval was necessary; and that no broker was entitled to a fee in connection with the transaction. Article IV contained no representation or warranty with respect to the Elsta Plant.

Similarly, Section 3.4 of the Asset Purchase Agreement, signed by NGC and AES, states that "except for the representations and warranties contained in this Article III, neither NGC nor any other person (as defined in the Merger Agreement) makes any other express or implied representation or warranty on behalf of NGC." App. at 280-81, Section 3.4. The Merger Agreement defines "Person" to "mean an individual, partnership, joint venture, trust, corporation, limited liability company or other legal entity or Governmental Entity." App. at 216. Article III of the Asset Purchase Agreement contains limited representations and warranties by NGC very similar to those made by Dow in the Merger Agreement.

The Merger Agreement provided that "[t]his Agreement and the Confidentiality Agreement, and certain other agreements executed by the parties hereto as of the date of this Agreement, constitute the entire agreement, and supersedes (sic) all prior agreements and understandings (written and oral), among the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof." App. at 265, Section 9.9.

According to AES, shortly after purchasing DEI and Destec's other international assets, it realized that the Elsta Plant would cost far more to complete than its due diligence investigation had indicated and would open for operation much later than Dow and Destec had represented it would. Instead of providing the predicted $31 million in profit, the project ultimately occasioned a $70 million loss. AES contends that Dow knew specific facts about the Elsta Plant that contradicted the representations it had made prior to and during due diligence. Its complaint *178 alleges fourteen affirmative misrepresentations and eight material omissions upon which it relied. Some involved profit and cost projections, but others involved currently existing facts. Further, AES contends that, as part of the scheme to defraud, Dow concealed the true state of the Elsta Plant and frustrated its due diligence efforts by causing Destec and its employees to provide false and misleading information to AES.

The District Court's opinion refers to all of the above quoted provisions of the transaction documentation and "concludes that the 'no representation/non-reliance' clauses in the agreements between Dow and AES are enforceable." App. at 15. The reference to "agreements between Dow and AES" is not clear to us, but we assume for present purposes that AES's commitment in the Confidentiality Agreement was made for the benefit of Dow and, if enforceable, is enforceable by it. In that document, AES "acknowledge[d]" that no "express or implied representations or warranty as to the accuracy or completeness of the Information" had been made and agreed (1) that Destec and Dow would not have "any liability relating to the Information" and (2) that AES would be entitled to rely solely on the representations and warranties it would be able to secure in "any definitive agreement." App. at 197, ¶ 5. In order to avoid further repetition of this acknowledgment and agreement, we will refer to them hereafter as the "non-reliance" clause.

III. Analysis

A. The Federal Law

[1] Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act prohibits the "use or employ, in connection with the purchase or sale of any security[,] ... [of] any manipulative or deceptive device or contrivance in contravention of such rules and regulations as the Commission may prescribe." 15 U.S.C. § 78j(b). Rule 10b-5, which was promulgated to implement Section 10(b), makes it unlawful for anyone engaged in the purchase or sale of a security to:

- (a) To employ any device, scheme, or artifice to defraud,
- (b) To make any untrue statement of a material fact or to omit to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which the were made, not misleading, or
- (c) To engage in any act, practice, or course of business which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon any person[.] 17 C.F.R. § 240.10b-5. "To state a valid claim under Rule 10b-5, a plaintiff must show that the defendant 'made a misstatement or an omission of a material fact (2) with scienter (3) in connection with the purchase or the sale of a security (4) upon which the plaintiff reasonably relied and (5) that the plaintiff's reliance was the proximate cause of his or her injury.' " Semerenko v. Cendant Corp., 223 F.3d 165, 174 (3d Cir.2000).

[2][3] The "reasonable reliance" element of a Rule 10b-5 claim requires a showing of a causal nexus between the misrepresentation and the plaintiff's injury, as well as a demonstration that the plaintiff exercised the diligence that a reasonable person under all of the circumstances would have exercised to protect his own interests. Straub v. Vaisman and Co., Inc., 540 F.2d 591, 597-98 (3d Cir.1976). In Straub, we identified a non-exclusive set of factors to aid in determining whether a party's reliance was reasonable under all of the circumstances. We noted that courts may consider (1) whether a fiduciary relationship existed between the parties; (2) whether the plaintiff had *179 the opportunity to detect the fraud; (3) the sophistication of the plaintiff; (4) the existence of long standing business or personal relationships; and (5) the plaintiff's access to the relevant information. See id. at 598.

The District Court held that as a result of AES's contractual commitment not to rely on any representations other than those incorporated in the final agreements, its alleged reliance was unreasonable as a matter of law. AES insists that this holding is incorrect in light of Section 29(a) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a). Section 29(a) provides: "Any condition, stipulation, or provision binding any person to waive compliance with any provision of this title or of any rule or regulation thereunder, or of any rule of an exchange required thereby shall be void." 15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a). That is, by its terms, Section 29(a) "prohibits waiver of the substantive obligations imposed by the Exchange Act." Shearson/American Express, Inc. v. McMahon, 482 U.S. 220, 228, 107 S.Ct.

2332, 96 L.Ed.2d 185 (1987). The underlying concern of this section is "whether the [challenged] agreement weakens [the] ability to recover under the Exchange Act." Id. at 230, 107 S.Ct. 2332 (quotation omitted).

B. The Applicable Law

[4] AES emphasizes that the Merger and Asset Purchase agreements stipulated that Delaware law would govern their interpretation and insists that we must look to that law to determine the effect to be given the non-reliance clause. While we will not rule out the possibility that state law may play a role in some situations involving a Rule 10b-5 claim, we conclude that it has no role here. Reasonable reliance is an element of a federal law claim and what constitutes such reliance is a matter of federal law. Federal law calls for the determination of reasonableness to be made on a case-by-case basis based on all of the surrounding circumstances. The terms of any agreement between the parties may be among these relevant circumstances and, if there is a material dispute about what the parties agreed to, reliance on state contract law may be appropriate to resolve that dispute.

[5] The Delaware cases relied upon by AES, however, do not involve rules of contract interpretation. Primary reliance, for example, is placed upon Norton v. Poplos, 443 A.2d 1 (Del.1982), which involved a contract to sell commercial real estate in which the parties had represented that they "do not rely on any written or oral representations not expressly written in the contract." Id. at 6. The Delaware Supreme Court held that Delaware law will not enforce such a clause to bar a common law rescission claim based on fraudulent, or "innocent but material[,] misrepresentation by a seller." Id. AES and Dow dispute whether this is an across-the-board rule of Delaware law or whether its application is limited to non-negotiated contracts between unsophisticated parties. [FN2] We need not resolve that issue; the issues of what constitutes an anticipatory waiver of a federal securities claim and whether a purported anticipatory waiver of such a claim is enforceable are matters of federal law. See Newton v. Rumery, 480 U.S. 386, 107 S.Ct. 1187, 94 L.Ed.2d 405 (1987) ("the agreement purported to waive a right to sue conferred by a federal statute. The question whether the policies underlying that statute may in some circumstance *180 render that waiver unenforceable is a question of federal law.").

FN2. Compare, e.g., Progressive International Corp. v. E.I. duPont deNemours & Co., 2002 WL 1558382, 2002 Del. Ch. LEXIS 91 (Del. Ch., July 9, 2002), and Great Lakes Chem. Corp. v. Pharmacia Corp., 788 A.2d 544 (Del.Ch.2001), with S.C. Johnson & Son, Inc. v. Dowbrands, Inc., 167 F.Supp.2d 657, 674 (D.Del.2001).

C. The Role of the Non-Reliance Clause

[6] This brings us back to Section 29(a) of the Exchange Act which forecloses anticipatory waivers of compliance with the duties imposed by Rule 10b-5. We believe the conclusion inescapable that enforcement of the non-reliance clauses to bar AES's fraud claims as a matter of law would be inconsistent with Section 29(a).

As we have noted, reliance is an essential element of a Rule 10b-5 claim. It necessarily follows that, if a party commits itself never to claim that it relied on representations of the other party to its contract, it purports anticipatorily to waive any future claim based on the fraudulent misrepresentations of that party. The same is true if the commitment is more limited, e.g., a promise not to claim reliance on any representation not set forth in the agreement. The scope of the anticipatory waiver is more limited, but it is nevertheless an anticipatory waiver of potential future claims under Rule 10b-5.

We, thus, find ourselves in agreement with the conclusion of the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit in Rogen v. Ilikon, 361 F.2d 260 (1st Cir.1966). There, a stockholder and former officer and director of the defendant company brought suit alleging that during negotiations for the sale of his stock after his separation from the company, officers and directors of the defendant corporation failed to disclose material information about the possibility of new prospects for the company. In the agreement to sell his stock, plaintiff represented that he was familiar with the business of the company and that he was not relying on any representations of the purchaser or its agents. In addressing the propriety of this type of contractual provision under the Exchange Act, the Court concluded:

This [type of contract clause] is not, in its terms, a "condition, stipulation, or provision binding ... [plaintiff] to waive compliance" with the Securities Act of 1934 as set forth in Section 29(a) of the Act, (15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a)). But, on analysis, we see no fundamental difference between saying, for example, "I waive any rights I might have because of your representations or obligations to make full disclosure" and "I am not relying on your representations or obligations to make full disclosure." Were we to hold that the existence of this provision constituted the basis (or a substantial part of the basis) for finding non-reliance as a matter of law, we would have gone far toward eviscerating Section 29(a). 361 F.2d at 268 (alterations in original).

As the Rogen court noted, this is not to say that a plaintiff's declaration in a contract of an intent not to rely may not be evidence that he or she did not rely on representations of the defendants. That declaration, alone or in conjunction with other evidence of non-reliance, may establish an absence of reliance and, when un rebutted, may even provide a basis for summary judgment in the defendant's favor. Thus, in this case, the non-reliance clauses are some evidence of an absence of reliance. However, the District Court did not find that the evidence of non-reliance was un rebutted. Indeed, Dow does not contend that the information provided by it and its associates played no material role in AES's decision to enter the agreement.

Dow does contend, and we understand the District Court to have held, that the non-reliance clauses establish as a matter of law that any reliance of AES was unreasonable reliance. We find the same tension between

Section 29(a) and this argument, however, as we have found between *181 Section 29(a) and the argument that the non-reliance clauses foreclose an assertion by AES that it relied. If all of the evidence bearing on the reasonableness of AES's reliance does not entitle Dow to summary judgment under traditional summary judgment principles, it would offend Section 29(a) to bar its claim based solely on a contractual commitment not to claim reliance.

IV. The Issue for Decision on Remand

This leaves for resolution the issue of whether, viewing all of the relevant circumstances and applying the reasonable reliance standard set forth in Straub, a reasonable trier of fact could only conclude that AES failed to exercise ordinary care in protecting its own interest. We decline to address that issue, however, because we conclude that it is premature to do so.

Dow did not argue to the District Court that it was entitled to summary judgment because an application of the principles of Straub to all of the relevant circumstances of this case could lead only to one conclusion. It candidly acknowledged that the record was undeveloped with respect to AES's investigation and its failure to discover the facts it learned after settlement. It insisted, however, that the record had established the only fact necessary to require summary judgment in its favor - the existence of the non-reliance clause. Stated otherwise, Dow's argument is that it is impossible for a buyer to show reasonable reliance in any case where there is a non-reliance clause. Faced with this argument, AES understandably did not file affidavits or verify its complaint, although it did file a Rule 56(a) affidavit pointing out the need for discovery.

The non-reliance clauses are, of course, among the circumstances to be considered in determining the reasonableness of any reliance here. Importantly, they reflect the fact that the seller was unwilling to vouch for the accuracy of the information it was providing and the fact that the buyer was willing to undertake to verify the accuracy of that data for itself. Clearly, in such circumstances, a buyer who relies on seller-provided information without seeking to verify it has not acted reasonably. Clearly, a buyer in a non-reliance clause case will have to show more to justify its reliance than would a buyer in the absence of such a contractual provision. For this reason, cases involving a non-reliance clause in a negotiated contract between sophisticated parties will often be appropriate candidates for resolution at the summary judgment stage. We are unwilling, however, to hold that the extraction of a non-reliance clause, even from a sophisticated buyer, will always provide immunity from Rule 10b-5 fraud liability.

AES's complaint alleges that Dow and its subsidiaries were in exclusive control of the information necessary to accurately evaluate the Elsta Plant. It further alleges that, as a part of its fraudulent scheme to sell DEI to someone at a price far above its worth, Dow controlled release of the relevant information to AES both initially as well as during the period that it was conducting its investigation to determine the accuracy of the information initially disclosed. Much of that information involved projections and other "soft" data that a seller dealing in good faith would understandably be unwilling to guarantee. According to AES, it conducted a diligent investigation that was reasonably calculated to determine the reliability of Dow's representations but revealed no reason to suspect that Dow was intentionally misleading it. Dow allegedly saw to it that all information received by AES would reassure it of the reliability of the earlier supplied data; Dow allegedly also prevented *182 AES from securing the data in Dow's and Destec's files that would have disclosed the fraud.

In its Rule 56(e) affidavit, AES seeks discovery of information in the exclusive possession of Dow to support AES's claim that Dow and Destec intentionally concealed their fraudulent conduct, restricted its access to truthful information, and accelerated the transaction to prevent AES from discovering the true status of the construction at the Elsta

Plant.

With this as background, AES points to our observation in Straub:

[A] sophisticated investor is not barred [from] reliance upon the honesty of those with whom he deals in the absence of knowledge that the trust is misplaced. Integrity is still the mainstay of commerce and makes it possible for an almost limitless number of transactions to take place without resort to the courts.

Straub, 540 F.2d at 598 (citations omitted). AES argues that a reasonable investor, in its position, trusting in the integrity of the seller, would have understood the seller's unwillingness to guarantee the truth of the supplied data as something other than a warning that it was unreliable [FN3] and would have been willing to rely upon an unimpeded investigation of its own.

FN3. In Semerenko, 223 F.3d at 181, we upheld the dismissal of some of the plaintiffs' Rule 10b-5 claims against the accounting firm of Ernst & Young on the ground that the plaintiffs could not reasonably have relied upon its audit opinions after the company publicly announced the discovery of accounting irregularities and warned investors not to rely on its prior financial statements and audit reports. Dow cites Semerenko for the proposition that there is no need here to consider all of the circumstances in determining the reasonableness of plaintiff's reliance. The cases are not analogous, however. Dow was not saying to potential investors that it was supplying unreliable data that should not be relied upon. Rather, it was communicating only that it was not willing to absorb the risk of guaranteeing the data it was tendering to potential investors for use in evaluating DEI without having been paid for doing so as part of the contract price.

While AES may have an uphill battle here and summary judgment for the defendants may be appropriate at some point, we decline to give controlling significance to the existence of a non-reliance clause in a vacuum. We fully appreciate that the avoidance of costly discovery is one of the objectives of negotiating such clauses. Nevertheless, to hold that a buyer is barred from relief under Rule 10b-5 solely by virtue of his contractual commitment not to rely would be fundamentally inconsistent with Section 29(a). Given this legislative directive, parties in Dow's position will have to rely upon discovery management and the summary judgment process to ameliorate the discovery burden.

In reaching this conclusion, we have not been unmindful of the decision of the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Harsco Corp. v. Segui, 91 F.3d 337 (2d Cir.1996). The court there affirmed the dismissal of a Rule 10b-5 security fraud claim based on a stipulation in the stock purchase agreement that the sellers were "not [to] be deemed to have made ... any representation or warranty other than as expressly made by" the sellers in the agreement. Id. at 342. The Harsco court rejected the purchaser's argument that the District Court's dismissal had violated Section 29(a). Although acknowledging that "the underlying concern of § 29(a) is 'whether the agreement weakens the ability to recover under the Exchange Act' " and that the agreement before it could accurately be described as doing precisely that, the Court nevertheless found the "no other representation" clause enforceable:

Thus, the Agreement can be described as weakening Harsco's ability to recover *183 under § 10(b) of the Exchange Act. We think, however, that in the circumstances of this case such a "weakening" does not constitute a forbidden waiver of compliance. Here there is a detailed writing developed via negotiations among sophisticated business entities and their advisors. That writing, we conclude, defines the boundaries of the transaction. Harsco brings this suit principally alleging conduct that falls outside those boundaries.

* * * * *

Harsco bought Section 2.04's fourteen pages of representations. Unlike a contractual provision which prohibits a party from suing at all, the contract here reflects in detail the reasons why Harsco bought Multi-Serv-in essence, Harsco bought the representations and, according to Sections 2.05 and 7.02, nothing else. This means that there are fourteen pages of representations, any of which, if fraudulent, can be the basis of a fraud action against the sellers. But Harsco specifically agreed that representations not made in those fourteen pages were not made. Thus, it is not fair to characterize Sections 2.05 and 7.02 as having prevented Harsco from protecting its substantive rights. Harsco rigorously defined those rights in Section 2.04.

This analysis becomes a question of degree and context. Harsco has not waived its rights to bring any suit resulting from this deal. Each representation in Section 2.04 is a tooth which adds to the bite of Sections 2.05 and 7.02. In different circumstances (e.g., if there were but one vague seller's representation) a "no other representations" clause might be toothless and run afoul of § 29(a). But not here.
Id. at 343, 344.

We find Harsco's reasoning unpersuasive. Section 29(a) is not intended to protect substantive rights created by contract. It is designed to protect rights created by the Exchange Act, and it expressly forecloses contracting parties from "defin[ing] the boundaries of the[ir] transaction" in a way that relieves a party of the duties imposed by that Act. We do not dispute that there may be economic efficiency in allowing private parties the freedom to fashion their own bargains. But Congress has made a decision to limit that freedom when it comes to anticipatory waivers of Exchange Act claims. Accordingly, we conclude that we must side with the First Circuit Court of Appeals in Rogen rather than with the Harsco court. [FN4]

FN4. The Harsco court distinguishes Rogen on the grounds that it did not involve sophisticated parties or as detailed an agreement as that before it. We do not understand Rogen to turn on these factors. Nor do we believe § 29(a) to be susceptible of reading that would make an exception for sophisticated parties and detailed agreements.

In addition to Harsco, Dow relies on One-O-One Enters., Inc. v. Caruso, 848 F.2d 1283

(D.C.Cir.1988), Jackvony v. RIHT Finan. Corp., 873 F.2d 411 (1st Cir.1989), and Rissman v. Rissman, 213 F.3d 381 (7th Cir.2000). None of these cases address § 29(a). Moreover, as we read them, each provides some support for the approach we hold that the District Court should have taken here - treat the existence of the non-reliance clause as one of the circumstances to be taken into account in determining whether the plaintiff's reliance was reasonable. See the analysis of these decisions in Rissman, 213 F.3d at 387-389 (Rovner, J., concurring). As the District of Columbia Court of Appeals has observed in commenting on One-O-One, a contrary reading "would leave swindlers free to extinguish their victims' *184 remedies simply by sticking in a bit of boilerplate." Id. at 388.

V. Conclusion

The judgment of the District Court will be reversed and this matter will be remanded for further proceedings consistent with this opinion.

CLIFFORD, Senior Circuit Judge.

I agree the case should be reversed, but disagree on the evidentiary use of the stipulations and waivers on remand.

Section 29(a), 15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a), states, "Any ... stipulation ... binding any person to waive compliance with [the Securities Exchange Act] ... shall be void." AES and Dow's stipulations are waivers of compliance, and under the express terms of section 29, they are "void." The majority holds that the void stipulation can nonetheless be evidence of the reasonableness of AES's reliance. I write separately because I cannot join in the majority's interpretation of the word "void."

A void clause is "of no effect whatsoever." BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 1568 (7th ed.1999). It is "an absolute nullity." ID. It is "ineffective," "useless," "having no legal force or validity." THE AMERICAN HERITAGE DICTIONARY 911 (4th ed.2001). If we permit the void stipulation to have evidentiary value, it is no longer a nullity, ineffective, or useless.

Instead, it becomes a very potent weapon in the 10b-5 defendant's arsenal. This is precisely what section 29(a) prohibits.

END OF DOCUMENT

At its core, section 29 seeks to prevent parties from contractually avoiding the requirements of Rule 10b-5. If the void stipulation may be evidence in a later Rule 10b-5 claim, how likely is it that the seller of securities will lose the 10b-5 claim? Imagine the mountains of evidence the 10b-5 plaintiff will need to compete with the evidence of the stipulation. Realistically, how will a plaintiff convince a reasonable juror that he reasonably relied on a representation when he signed a provision that stated otherwise? To permit the void stipulation to serve as evidence of a lack of reasonable reliance would be to take the teeth out of section 29. It would make a 10b-5 claim logically possible, but essentially hopeless. Congress meant more when it enacted section 29(a).

OPINION AND ORDER

LOWE, District Judge.

*1 Before this Court are motions for summary judgment filed February 28, 1992 by Thomas Mellon Evans and Evans & Co., Inc. (together the "Evans defendants"), and March 2, 1992 by Rajan K. Pillai and Pillai, Brick & Roseman (together the "Pillai defendants"). [FN1] Also before the Court is the motion filed February 11, 1993 by plaintiff Leslie L. Alexander ("Alexander") for permission to file a reply to defendants' opposition to Alexander's objections to Magistrate Judge Buchwald's Report & Recommendation ("R & R"). For the following reasons, Alexander's motion for permission to file a reply is denied, and the defendants' motions for summary judgment are granted in part and denied in part according to the terms of the opinion and conclusions below.

BACKGROUND

Defendants' summary judgment motions were referred to Magistrate Judge Naomi Reice Buchwald, and her R & R was entered on October 23, 1992. Plaintiff filed objections to the R & R pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), and defendants filed oppositions to plaintiffs' objections. The R & R contains a detailed account of the undisputed facts in this case. A brief review will suffice.

A. The Parties

Medi-Rx America, Inc. ("Medi-Rx") was a start-up company in the field of mail order prescriptions, a promising field in the late 1980s. The remaining defendants are identified in the R & R as follows:

Medi-Rx was founded by defendants Sidney Karabel, who served as its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer; Burton Zweigenhaft, who served as its President and Chief Operating Officer; Gary Takata, who served as its Secretary; and Ronald Urvater, who served as its Treasurer. Defendant [Evans & Co., Inc. was] a New York City brokerage firm, which served as the underwriter for [Medi-Rx's] Initial Public Offering and as the placement agent for [Medi-Rx's] private placement, pursuant to which plaintiff invested his funds in the company. Defendant Thomas Mellon Evans is the founder and chairman of [Evans & Co., Inc.], as well as its largest shareholder. Defendant Pillai, Brick & Roseman ... is a New York City law firm, which served as counsel for Medi-Rx during the period at issue, and defendant Rajan K. Pillai ... was the partner at [Pillai, Brick & Roseman] in charge of Medi-Rx. Third-party defendant, Albert Barbara, sued by the Evans

Defendants for contribution and indemnity, was the broker at [Evans & Co.] who handled the Medi-Rx underwriting.

R & R at 5.

B. The Rise of Medi-Rx: Capital Attraction and Representations

Medi-Rx raised capital on several different occasions: first, it raised about $770,000 in a private placement in March 1986; second, it raised about $4,400,000 in a public offering between August and October 1986; and third, it raised $1,000,000 in a private placement in February 1986. Alexander participated in the second and third of these transactions, purchasing over $960,000 worth of Medi-Rx common stock in the public offering, and investing $1,000,000 in the later private placement.

*2 Representations were made during these fundraising efforts about the officers of the company and about the company's prospects for the future. Generally, the officers were depicted as having reassuringly strong and unblemished credentials, and the company's prospects were depicted as uncertain but potentially rewarding.

1. Officers' Backgrounds

The officers' backgrounds were first described in a private placement memorandum ("PPM") associated with the first private placement. The PPM stated that company president Burton Zweigenhaft ("Zweigenhaft") "had never been an officer or director of a company which filed for bankruptcy protection," and otherwise attributed only positive characteristics to Zweigenhaft and chairman and chief executive officer Sidney Karabel ("Karabel"). Second Am.Compl. ¶¶ 19, 21; R & R at 6. The prospectus accompanying the public offering essentially continued this respectable portrait. Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 3 at 15. Finally, regulatory filings did not revise the portrait between the time of the public offering and the time of the second private placement.

A July 1987 article in Forbes magazine--after all three transactions were complete--raised serious questions about the existing portraits of Zweigenhaft and Karabel, and thus about the adequacy of disclosure in the transactions. Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 6. Specifically, the article reported prior business failings of Zweigenhaft and Karabel, and suggested that they might be involved in "drug diversion"--a practice of dubious legality. [FN2]

Evans Co. employee Albert L. Barbara ("Barbara") read an advance copy of the Forbes article to Alexander by telephone on or before July 10, 1987. Barbara also read to Alexander a Medi-Rx press release denying the allegations of drug diversion. Alexander alleges that Evans & Co. representatives offered further general reassurances that the Forbes article was baseless. Pl.'s R. 3(g) Counterstatement, Alexander Aff. ¶ 4(e).

2. Company Prospects

Medi-Rx issued statements on the company's financial condition and prospects. The prospectus accompanying the public offering stated that "[t]he company expects to fund its marketing operations and other capital needs for approximately the next two years from existing funds and the proceeds of this offering." Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 3 at 4. [FN3] The public offering was reported in the company's next quarterly SEC filing, and the opinions on the company's prospects were reiterated:

The net proceeds of the offering amounted to $4,248,000. At that time, management anticipated that the proceeds of the offering would allow the company to continue operations for a period of approximately two years. During the three month and six month periods ended September 30, 1986, the Company utilized approximately $500,000 and $1,060,000, respectively for purchases of capital equipment, inventory and other operating and marketing expenses. These expenses are in keeping with management's projection as set out in the Company's prospectus.

*3 Second Am.Compl. ¶ 39 (quoting Form

10-Q filed Nov. 14, 1986). Two years from the public offering would have been August 1988. As it turned out, Medi-Rx was acquired by another pharmaceutical company in December 1987, and filed for bankruptcy in June 1988. And even that duration was managed only with the help of an additional $1,000,000 raised by the February 1987 private placement, and another $500,000 raised in August 1987 as discussed below.

C. The Fall of Medi-Rx

The Forbes article in July 1987 had a minor impact on the price of Medi-Rx stock. The price dropped temporarily, but then recovered. Medi-Rx's prospects further improved in August 1987, when the company entered an agreement with two other companies that were to invest $2,500,000 in Medi-Rx. One of those companies invested an initial $500,000 that month. The rest of the deal, however, collapsed in October 1987.

The price of Medi-Rx stock declined rapidly in November and December 1987. Alexander actually bought additional shares during this period, but then sold all of his shares in December 1987. In December 1987, Flex Rx Pharmacy Services, Inc. ("Flex Rx") acquired Medi-Rx, "essentially in exchange for ... assuming Medi-Rx's debt." R & R at 13. Medi-Rx filed for bankruptcy six months later.

D. This Action

Alexander filed suit on July 29, 1988. He alleges violations of several federal statutes: the Securities Act of 1933 ("the 1933 Act"), the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("the 1934 Act"), and the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"). He also brings claims under State law for fraud, negligence, and breach of fiduciary duty.

The original and amended complaints both alleged that Alexander first became aware of the failure to disclose material information on July 30, 1987 as a result of the Forbes article. In an earlier opinion in this case, The Honorable John M. Walker denied a motion to dismiss because a question of fact existed concerning the reasonableness of Alexander's alleged unawareness before July 30, 1987. Alexander v. Evans, No. 88 Civ. 5309, 1989 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9041 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 4, 1989).

After additional discovery, defendants filed the present motions for summary judgment on the grounds that Alexander's 1933 Act and 1934 Act claims are time-barred; that Alexander's allegations regarding financial projections are not actionable; that Alexander's allegations regarding the officers' backgrounds are not actionable; that causation has not been sufficiently alleged; that Evans was not a controlling person; that the Pillai defendants do not meet the requirements for either primary violators or aiders and abettors; that Alexander failed to state a claim under RICO or for common law fraud; and for lack of jurisdiction over the State law claims.

The summary judgment motions were referred to Magistrate Judge Naomi Reice Buchwald pursuant to a prior Order of Reference assigning to her all substantive motions in the case. Magistrate Judge Buchwald held oral argument on the motions on August 11, 1992, and entered her R & R on October 23, 1992, recommending that defendants' motions be granted in their entirety and that the action be dismissed.

*4 Alexander filed timely objections to the R & R. Six general objections are made in Alexander's submission: (1) that the R & R erroneously recommends a finding that no material issue of fact exists regarding causation; (2) that the R & R erroneously recommends a finding that Alexander's 1933 Act claims are time-barred; (3) that the R & R erroneously recommends a finding that the financial projections are not actionable as a matter of law; (4) that the R & R erroneously recommends a finding that Evans lacks control person liability; (5) that the R & R erroneously recommends a finding that the complaint fails to state a claim for a RICO violation; and (6) that the R & R contains miscellaneous errors, including failure to mention certain evidence, erroneous characterization of Judge Walker's prior opinion, and improper findings of fact. [FN4]

The Evans defendants and the Pillai defendants filed oppositions to Alexander's objections. Alexander then filed his motion seeking permission to file a reply to defendants' oppositions.

DISCUSSION
I. THE MOTION FOR PERMISSION TO FILE A REPLY

The R & R was entered on October 23, 1992. Objections were timely filed. Opposition papers were received. Alexander moves for permission to file another set of papers in reply to the opposition papers.

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure clearly contemplate the filing of objections to a report and recommendation, and opposition to those objections. Whether the rule should be read to permit the filing of a reply to opposition papers is less clear. Rule 72(b) states:

Within 10 days after being served with a copy of the recommended disposition, a party may serve and file specific, written objections to the proposed findings and recommendations. A party may respond to another party's objections within 10 days after being served with a copy thereof. The district judge to whom the case is assigned shall make a de novo determination upon the record, or after additional evidence, of any portion of the magistrate's disposition to which specific written objection has been made in accordance with this rule. The district judge may accept, reject, or modify the recommended decision, receive further evidence, or recommit the matter to the magistrate with instructions.

Fed.R.Civ.P. 72(b).

No explicit provision is made for reply papers. The rule permits a judge to accept additional evidence, and in that instance it would make sense to permit additional argument. But the rule is permissive rather than mandatory. A judge has discretion whether to receive further evidence, and therefore further argument. See Pan Am.

World Airways, Inc. v. International Bhd. of Teamsters, 894 F.2d 36, 40 n. 3 (2d Cir.1990). [FN5]

The Court has reviewed the R & R, the objections, and the opposition to the objections, and finds no need for additional evidence or argument--especially in view of the exceedingly voluminous submissions already available. Alexander's motion for permission to file a reply to the opposition to the objection to the R & R is denied.

II. THE MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT, THE REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION, AND THE OBJECTIONS

*5 The standards for deciding a summary judgment motion are well-settled. A court may grant summary judgment only when it is clear that no genuine issue of material fact remains to be resolved at trial and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed.R.Civ.P. 56; Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 250 (1986). Ambiguities must be resolved against the movant. Lopez v. S.B. Thomas, Inc., 831 F.2d 1184, 1187 (2d Cir.1987) (citing United States v. Diebold, Inc., 369 U.S. 654, 655 (1962)). Summary judgment is granted "only where the entire record would inevitably lead a rational trier of fact to find for the moving party." National R.R. Passenger Corp. v. City of New York, 882 F.2d 710, 713 (2d Cir.1989).

The party opposing summary judgment, however, "may not rest upon mere allegation or denials of his pleading." Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256; see Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(e). Rather, that party "must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial." Id. The mere existence of a factual issue does not preclude summary judgment. Only a genuine issue precludes summary judgment--that is, one that would permit a reasonable jury to return a verdict for the nonmoving party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248. No reasonable jury could return a verdict for a nonmoving party who fails to offer "any significant probative evidence tending to support" factual contentions. First Nat'l

Bank v. Cities Serv. Co., 391 U.S. 253, 290 (1968).

A. Objection No. 1: [FN6] Actionability of Financial Projections

Alexander objects to the R & R's recommended finding that the financial projections are not actionable as a matter of law. The R & R cites a number of cases demonstrating that financial projections are rarely actionable when they are accompanied by sufficient warnings about the uncertainty of future performance. R & R at 28-29. The reason for this rule is obvious; as Magistrate Judge Buchwald explained, "[t]he mere fact that projections ultimately prove to be inaccurate does not mean that they were fraudulent." R & R at 29.

Projections are nevertheless actionable in cases where a plaintiff " 'point[s] to ... facts suggesting that the difference [between projections and actual performance] is attributable to fraud.' " R & R at 29 (quoting DiLeo v. Ernst & Young, 901 F.2d 624, 627-28 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 111 S.Ct. 347 (1990)). Fraud has been equated with a statement made without genuine belief or reasonable basis. See, e.g., Barrios v. Paco Pharmaceutical Servs., Inc., 816 F.Supp. 243, 251 (S.D.N.Y.1993); see also 17 C.F.R. § 230.175(a) (stating that a forward-looking statement "shall be deemed not to be a fraudulent statement ... unless it is shown that such statement was made or reaffirmed without a reasonable basis or was disclosed other than in good faith.").

This Court doubts whether lack of a "reasonable basis" alone can support a § 10(b) violation. The Supreme Court ruled in Ernst & Ernst v. Hochfelder, 425 U.S. 185 (1976), that the securities laws do not regulate negligent behavior. The Second Circuit, for its part, has never endorsed a reasonable basis test except to the extent that lack of a reasonable basis permits an inference that the conclusions drawn were known to be false. See Luce v. Edelstein, 802 F.2d 49, 57 (2d Cir.1986) (holding that claims "relating to projections or expectations offered to induce investments must allege particular facts demonstrating the knowledge of the defendants at the time that such statements were false") (emphasis added); Rolf v. Blyth, Eastman Dillon & Co., 570 F.2d 38, 46 n. 13 (2d Cir.) (noting that New York law permits a finding of fraud in the case of "an opinion based on grounds so flimsy as to lead to the conclusion that there was no genuine belief in its truth"), cert. denied, 439 U.S. 1039 (1978). [FN7] Knowing falsehood and ungenueine belief are terms of rather high scienter and not (like reasonableness) terms of negligence.

*6 The Court nevertheless will entertain Alexander's "reasonable basis" arguments as an exercise in caution against premature summary judgment. The question, then, is whether Alexander has offered evidence sufficient to permit a jury to find that the projections were made without genuine belief or reasonable basis. The Court finds that he has not.

1. Projections in the August 1986 Prospectus

Alexander contends that the two year expected life of Medi-Rx was not genuinely believed. He supports that contention with references to deposition testimony. Pl.'s Obj. at 66-67. But that testimony does not support the conclusion that Medi-Rx personnel did not believe the two year estimate. It simply illustrates that the personnel were constantly concerned with the financial viability of the company, as might well be expected in any start-up company.

Alexander contends that the two-year expected life of Medi-Rx had no reasonable basis. He contends that neither party has come forward with evidence of what the basis of the projections was, and that in such a circumstance, the Court should find that an issue of fact exists regarding reasonableness. Pl.'s Obj. at 70 ("[N]o record exists of what was done, and the traditional reasonable negative inference from the failure by defendants to produce documents in their possession, is that nothing was done.").

Alexander's contention that no evidence exists regarding the basis for the projections is belied by his own argument that the projections lacked a reasonable basis. [FN8] For example, Alexander criticizes Medi-Rx's expectation regarding capital outlays for telephone equipment. Pl.'s Obj. at 72-75. More important, the record contains extensive evidence that Medi-Rx personnel ran numerous financial projections. Pl.'s Exs. 37-39, 41, 42, 46, 48; Kolleeny Reply Aff.Ex. 5 at 230-37, 399-403, 646-47 (testimony of Sidney Karabel). Those projections were reviewed by Evans & Co. and found acceptable. See, e.g., Kolleeny Reply Aff.Ex. 3 at 508-09 (testimony of Albert L. Barbara). Medi-Rx official Sidney Karabel testified:

When we made a projection, it was our best estimate of what would occur. But as I told you, we spent more money than planned after going into the offering to meet the requirements of the market. So we certainly, I believe, have the right as management of the company to allocate resources to generate revenues to maximize stockholder return in the best interests of the company.

We reviewed our situation and decided again to speed up expenditures to meet business condition environments, so if we needed additional cash, it was against our plan, spending additional, and we certainly weren't hiding it from anyone. It was reflected in the income statements, balance sheets on a quarterly basis. So I don't think the projections were false, misleading or unreasonable.

Kolleeny Reply Aff.Ex. 5 at 646-47. See also Kolleeny Reply Aff.Ex. 7 at 258-59 (testimony of Ronald M. Urvater).

*7 Alexander does not refute this testimony. Instead, he selects ambiguous quotes from other deposition testimony, such as Medi-Rx official Gary Takata's statement that the company "was always undercapitalized, from day one." Pl.'s Ex. 16 at 228. Closer inspection reveals the ambiguity of this "damning" admission. Takata was asked: "Was there some point, in your memory, where you thought that Medi-Rx had financial difficulties?" He replied: "Well, it depends on how you define financial difficulties. I am talking about, when I say financial difficulties, I mean the company was always undercapitalized, from day one." Id.

The Court finds this (and the other evidence before the Court) insufficient to establish a genuine issue whether fraud was committed in the use of the financial projections in the public offering. Medi-Rx may have been undercapitalized, but that does not mean it had no life expectancy. The question is what the life expectancy was, or more accurately, whether the two year estimate was genuinely held and had a reasonable basis. The evidence just does not permit a negative conclusion to that question. Capital--the lifeblood of a start-up company--is exhausted at a rate that depends upon the aggressiveness of management. Karabel testified (and Alexander has not refuted) that the company's strategy changed and became more aggressive. Capital is necessarily exhausted more quickly in such circumstances. The only reasonable conclusion in this case is that capital was consumed more rapidly than had been expected, not that the expectations lacked any reasonable basis.

The expectation was that the company would last twenty-four months [FN9] with existing funds and the proceeds of the public offering--about $4,400,000 altogether. As it turned out, the company raised and spent at least $1,500,000 extra and lasted only sixteen months. This is a significant discrepancy, but fraud is not contingent upon fortune.

Numerous precedents in this circuit inveigh against claims of fraud based on financial projections where, as here, projections are accompanied by provisos that "bespeak caution." Luce, 802 F.2d at 56; Barrios, 816 F.Supp. 243; Haggerty v. Comstock Gold Co., 765 F.Supp. 111, 114 (S.D.N.Y.1991). A narrow exception is available for projections that are not genuinely believed, and perhaps for those that have no reasonable basis. Alexander has not submitted evidence that would permit a reasonable factfinder to conclude that either of those exceptions apply to the projections in the August 1986 prospectus.

2. Projections in the November 1986 10-Q

Alexander also alleges misrepresentation in the November 1986 10-Q filing, which stated:

At that time [when the prospectus was issued in August 1986], management anticipated that the proceeds of the offering would allow the Company to continue operations for a period of approximately two years. During the three month and six month periods ended September 30, 1986, the Company utilized approximately $500,000 and $1,060,000, respectively for purchases of capital equipment, inventory and other operating and marketing expenses. These expenses are in keeping with management's projection as set out in the Company's prospectus. Management expects only such decreases in liquidity as would result from further projected expenditures towards purchase of equipment, inventory and funding of operating and marketing efforts of the Company.

*8 Pl.'s R. 3(g) Counterstatement ¶ 49. According to Alexander, the 10-Q statements were false and misleading because "revenues were far less than had been projected, ... costs were far higher than had been projected, Medi-Rx was doing much worse than had been projected, and its liquidity was worse than had been projected." Id. ¶ 50. Alexander supports this allegation by quoting Medi-Rx official Gary Takata, who testified that "[t]he company was not doing as well [from September--December 1986] as had been projected." Id.

Alexander's evidence does not support his claims. How "well" the company was doing does not bear on whether the 10-Q was truthful in stating that expenses were in keeping with projections. And the company's performance from September to December 1986 is mostly irrelevant to analysis of the 10-Q for the period ended September 30, 1986. Alexander attempts to attribute certain higher costs to the relevant month of September, [FN10] but he neither pins them to September 1986 nor establishes that they rendered baseless the reaffirmed projection. [FN11] A 10-Q is a formal document, and its terms must be read literally. Alexander cannot attack the 10-Q on the basis of several cost overruns during September 1986 and a few others that had not even been incurred yet.

Alexander has failed to submit evidence from which a reasonable jury could conclude that the 10-Q filing was inaccurate, much less fraudulent.

3. Projections in the February 1987 Private Placement

Alexander claims that the financial projections are actionable insofar as they were not corrected in the February 1987 Proposal for Private Placement ("PPP"). The PPP referred to the prospectus for a "detailed description of the Company's business and its management team, audited financial statements for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1986 and unaudited financial statements for the quarter ended June 30, 1986," and referred to the November 1986 10-Q filing for "[u]naudited financial statements for the quarter ended September 30, 1986." Second Am. Compl. Ex. E.

Medi-Rx's plans rapidly changed in the fall of 1986. Expenses increased in accordance with a revised business plan that foresaw larger contracts. The company developed a faster "burn rate"--it spent money more rapidly--at the same time it sought additional capital. These facts were eventually and accurately reflected in the company's April 1987 10-K filing. But at the time of the PPP, the available documents did not reflect the changed condition of Medi-Rx.

Securities laws apply to omissions as well as misrepresentations. Alexander presents evidence that Medi-Rx underwent substantial material changes in its financial condition during the fall of 1986, and that the financial projections in the August 1986 prospectus were no longer genuinely believed by the time of the private placement. See, e.g., Pl.'s Ex. 19 at 424-25 (testimony of Sidney Karabel);

Pl.'s Ex. 14 at 238-39 (testimony of Rajan K. Pillai). A reasonable factfinder could conclude that an investor like Alexander should have been informed of those changes, not simply sent copies of the old, outdated materials.

*9 Alexander further alleges that Evans & Co. made oral representations to him that Medi-Rx was meeting or surpassing its projections and that Evans & Co. would perform due diligence for him in connection with the private placement. Pl.'s R. 3(g) Counterstatement, Alexander Aff. ¶¶ 4(a)-(c), 12. The Evans defendants (and the Pillai defendants) deny these allegations. See Evans Defs.' R. 3(g) Statement ¶¶ 9-10; Pillai Defs.' R. 3(g) Statement ¶¶ 28-29. They assert that Alexander was thoroughly informed about the condition of the company.

The Court cannot resolve these issues of fact on a motion for summary judgment. The differences present a genuine issue of material fact.

Defendants insist that the PPP, the prospectus, and the 10-Q were not the only information given or available to Alexander. They point to the private placement agreement ("PPA") that Alexander signed, which contains the following statement:

Purchaser ... acknowledges that the Company has provided Purchaser with, or given Purchaser access to, full and fair disclosure of all material information including, without limitation, a copy of its Registration Statement ... as well as copies of its reports on Form 10-Q and Forms 8-K filed in September, November and December, 1986, respectively. Purchaser further acknowledges that the Company has given Purchaser access to any and all information regarding the Company requested by Purchaser....

Second Am.Compl.Ex. F at 4.

Several decisions have held that defendants can rebut a plaintiff's claim of reliance on misrepresentations or omissions by demonstrating that the plaintiff had "access to and knowledge of the omitted information." Wollins v. Antman, 638 F.Supp. 989, 995 (E.D.N.Y.1986) (citing Fisher v. Plessey Co., 103 F.R.D. 150, 156 (S.D.N.Y.1984)). On the other hand, the Second Circuit has stated that the obligation to "state all material facts necessary to make other statements not misleading ... is not discharged merely by giving the purchaser access to company records and letting him piece together the material facts if he can." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Ross, 509 F.2d 930, 933 (2d Cir.1975) (citations omitted).

The PPA's disclaimer is evidence that Alexander was fully informed, but it cannot bar a suit for violation of the securities laws. See 15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a) (voiding "[a]ny condition, stipulation, or provision binding any person to waive compliance" with the securities laws). Alexander alleges that material information about the company's officers and financial condition was omitted and misrepresented. Defendants disagree. A genuine issue of fact exists. The allegations will have to be overcome by convincing a factfinder that they are false, or that the information was not actually relied upon because Alexander had access and knowledge. The allegations cannot be overcome simply by invoking the disclaimer.

In sum, the Court finds no genuine issue of material fact regarding the financial representations in connection with the August 1986 public offering. Summary judgment is granted on those claims. The Court does, however, find genuine issues of material fact in connection with the February 1987 private placement.

B. Objection No. 2: 1933 Act and Statute of Limitations

*10 Alexander objects to the R & R's recommended finding that Alexander's 1933 Act claims are time-barred. [FN12] The R & R recommends a finding that the claims are barred by the one year statute of limitations that runs from the time that a plaintiff "should have discovered the general fraudulent scheme." Arneil v. Ramsey, 550

F.2d 774, 780 (2d Cir.1977) (quoting Berry Petroleum Co. v. Adams & Peck, 518 F.2d 402, 410 (2d Cir.1975)).

Alexander contends that the statute of limitations issue depends on whether he exercised reasonable diligence in discovering the fraud, and that a factfinder must resolve the question of reasonable diligence. Pl.'s Obj. at 46-49. He further contends that he was lulled into acquiescence by the defendants' assurances that the Forbes article was false, and that in any event, the Forbes article could have put him on notice regarding only the allegedly misrepresented backgrounds of Zweigenhaft and Karabel, not the allegedly fraudulent financial projections.

1. Backgrounds of Zweigenhaft and Karabel

The R & R relied on the Forbes article as conclusive evidence that Alexander had discovered the possibility of fraud with respect to the backgrounds of Zweigenhaft and Karabel. The Court agrees that the article constituted notice for purposes of the limitations period applicable to 1933 Act claims. No reasonable person could have required more information about the backgrounds of Zweigenhaft and Karabel to become aware that important omissions might have been made in the offering documents and public filings.

2. Financial Projections

The R & R cites the Forbes article and Medi-Rx public filings as conclusive evidence that, over one year before filing suit, Alexander discovered or should have discovered the possibility of fraud in the alleged representations regarding Medi-Rx's financial status. The Court concerns itself only with the alleged representations in the February 1987 private placement, because summary judgment has been found appropriate on all other financial projection claims.

Alexander alleges that he was fraudulently induced into the private placement by misrepresentations and omissions concerning the financial performance and prospects of Medi-Rx. Specifically, he alleges misrepresentations and omissions concerning the company's performance and prospects during the period between the public offering in August 1986 and the private placement in February 1987. Alexander alleges that the defendants misrepresented that the company expected to grow without Alexander's investment and to grow even faster with it, Pl.'s Obj. at 75, and that "Medi-Rx was faring better financially than had been projected when, in fact, it was faring much worse." Pl.'s Obj. at 76. Alexander alleges that the August 1986 prospectus and November 1986 10-Q should have been supplemented to reflect the changed condition of the company.

The R & R recommends a finding that the possibility of these alleged misrepresentations and omissions should have been discovered as a result of the Forbes article and the pre-July 1987 public filings that reported the company's financial condition. The Court adopts the recommendation of the R & R. Alexander claims he was misled regarding the financial status of the company. Any divergence between his expectations and reality was made clear upon filing of Medi-Rx's 1986 annual report on Form 10-K in April 1987, Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 21; its 1987 first quarter report on Form 10-Q in May 1987, Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 22; and the Forbes article that repeated the company's financial straits and poor first quarter performance. [FN13]

3. Lulling

*11 Alexander maintains that he was lulled into inaction by denials of the Forbes article and by "rosy press releases" and other "statements that Medi-Rx's business was good." Pl.'s Obj. at 76. The R & R recommends a finding that Alexander--or any other investor--cannot rely on the representations of those who are implicated in the alleged fraud. R & R at 18 (citing Gilck v. Berk & Michaels, No. 90 Civ. 4230, 1992 WL 178621, at *3, 1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10056, at *8-*9 (S.D.N.Y. July 10, 1992)). Alexander insists that Evans & Co. was not implicated in the fraud at that point. The Court finds that argument specious, especially in view of the central role that Alexander now alleges the Evans defendants to have played in the public offering and private placement. Besides, the positive statements cited by Alexander did not detract from the hard facts reported in the 10-K filing, the 10-Q filing, and the Forbes article.

Alexander's 1933 Act claims are barred by the statute of limitations.

C. Objection No. 3: Causation

Alexander objects to the R & R's recommended finding that no material issue of fact exists regarding causation. The R & R recommends a finding that Medi-Rx equities lost value because the October 19, 1987 crash of the stock market caused the collapse of additional financing for Medi-Rx. R & R at 11-12 (citing Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 1 at 310-11, 316 (testimony of Leslie L. Alexander)). Alexander maintains that a genuine issue of fact exists regarding the cause of the decline in late 1987, and in any event, claims damages not only for the loss in late 1987 but for the artificially high price he paid in the first place.

The Court finds that the issue of causation cannot entirely be resolved on a motion for summary judgment. Alexander advances three separate theories of causation. First, he submits that the price he paid in the public offering would have been less had he and the rest of the market known the true facts regarding Medi-Rx management, and that the price he paid in the private placement would similarly have been less had he known the true facts regarding the company's financial condition and Evans & Co.'s alleged failure to perform due diligence. Second, Alexander submits that the failure of Medi-Rx and the lost value of Medi-Rx securities in late 1987 are attributable to the facts that were concealed or misrepresented. Third, he submits that the value of Medi-Rx securities dropped in late 1987 more than it would have if the concealed or misrepresented facts were known.

The Court agrees with the R & R that the value lost in late 1987 is so clearly attributable to other factors that no reasonable factfinder could conclude that the loss was due to the alleged misrepresentations and omissions. The R & R recommends a finding that the operative event precipitating the decline of Medi-Rx stock in October 1987 was the withdrawal of prospective investors from Medi-Rx. Alexander offers the alternative explanation that the investors withdrew not because they had been crippled by the crash, but because of the information available in the five month old Forbes article and the many public filings documenting the company's dubious financial progress. The Court agrees with the R & R that no reasonable factfinder could accept Alexander's explanation. As the R & R states, the record is "devoid of evidence from which a reasonable jury could conclude that, absent defendants['] alleged misrepresentations and omissions, the price of Medi-Rx stock would not have plummeted in October 1987." R & R at 27. Crucially, Alexander fails to show any contemporaneous attention to the alleged misrepresentations and omissions that could explain the lost value as a function of his preferred (and perhaps not by coincidence, likely more lucrative) theory.

*12 The Court nevertheless believes that the R & R should have more seriously considered the claim that the alleged misrepresentations and omissions caused Alexander to pay an inflated price for his securities. The R & R recommended rejection of this theory because a plaintiff who buys a security as a result of fraud should not be permitted to claim loss when: (1) the fraud is discovered; (2) the security can be sold for at least the purchase price; and (3) the plaintiff does not sell and recoup the purchase price. The R & R thus recommends that a plaintiff be required to mitigate damages.

Alexander counters that the R & R cites no authority for such a rule of decision, and that established authority holds to the contrary. Thus, he cites Voegel v. Ackerman, 364 F.Supp. 72, 73 (S.D.N.Y.1973), for the proposition that an increase in the price of a stock after it is purchased is irrelevant to the question of damages for fraudulently induced purchase. Defendants respond by citing Marbury Management, Inc. v. Kohn, 470 F.Supp. 509 (S.D.N.Y.1979), aff'd in pertinent part, 629 F.2d 705 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1101 (1980), where it is stated that "if the plaintiff continues to hold the stock after the discovery of the fraud, he can be deemed to have made a 'second investment decision' based on the total mix of information now available." Id. at 516 n. 13 (citation omitted).

Alexander certainly held his securities well beyond the point at which he became responsible for the information he claims was denied him when he purchased. The facts of management background were substantially revealed by the Forbes article, and the facts regarding financial performance were revealed in the 1987 quarterly statements and other public filings. This Court agrees with the "second investment decision" approach as applied to damages occurring after fraud is revealed. See Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. v. Schipa, 585 F.Supp. 245, 249-50 (S.D.N.Y.1984) ("[W]here one receives actual notice that he has been injured as a result of another party's fraudulent conduct, he will be disabled from recovering for injuries occurring thereafter which he could have avoided in the exercise of reasonable diligence."). Alexander's conscious decision in this case to hold the securities after the alleged fraud was discovered constituted a new decision on his investments. The law does not insure his investments against loss. He made a fully informed decision to retain his investment.

But the mitigation principle cannot dispose of Alexander's claims for out-of-pocket damages. Mitigation applies only when damage is incomplete and the plaintiff can still do something to cut losses. The Morgan court referred to notice and to damages "occurring thereafter." 585 F.Supp. at 249-50. Out-of-pocket damage--the amount by which the price paid exceeds true value--is done at the time of purchase. It cannot be mitigated. Sirota v. Solitron Devices, Inc., 673 F.2d 566, 577 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 838 (1982);

Voegel, 364 F.Supp. at 73; 5D Arnold S. Jacobs, Litigation and Practice Under Rule 10b-5 § 260.03[f][iv], at 11-171--11-173 (1992).

*13 In addition, the portion of Alexander's holdings that was acquired through the private placement was restricted. Pl.'s Obj. at 44. No market existed in which he could have sold his interest and mitigated his damages. See Jacobs, supra, at 11-175 ("A plaintiff cannot mitigate by buying or by selling securities of a privately held company on an established market. It follows that no duty to mitigate should be imposed if the fraud involves securities which are not publicly held at the time that duty would otherwise exist.").

Summary judgment is denied to the extent that Alexander alleges out-of-pocket damages, and granted to the extent of all other theories of causation.

D. Objection No. 4: Control Person Liability

Alexander objects to the R & R's recommended finding that Evans lacks control person liability. According to the R & R, "no issue of fact is in dispute with respect to Mr. Evans's involvement.... [P]laintiff fails, in the many thousands of pages submitted in opposition to highlight a single fact indicative of meaningful or culpable involvement in the underwriting." R & R at 31.

The R & R correctly explains the law in this circuit. "In order to prove a controlling person claim plaintiff must show a primary violation of the securities laws and demonstrate that Mr. Evans: (1) had the ability to control the primary wrongdoer, and (2) was 'i[n] some meaningful sense' a 'culpable participant' in the alleged conduct." R & R at 30 (quoting Lanza v. Drexel & Co., 479 F.2d 1277, 1299 (2d Cir.1973) (en banc)).

Alexander argues that "numerous recent cases hold[] that 'culpable participation' is not an element of control person liability." Pl.'s Obj. at 89. Alexander is mistaken. The recent cases do not substitute a "control status" standard for the "culpable participation" standard. Rather, the cases affect the pleading requirement and burden allocation. Alexander's primary authority, Borden, Inc. v. Spoor Behrins Campbell & Young, 735 F.Supp. 587 (S.D.N.Y.1990), takes care to explain that permitting a plaintiff to state a claim based on control status "does not conflict with the statute's aim to hold liable only those controlling persons 'who are in some meaningful sense culpable participants in the fraud perpetrated by controlled persons.'" Id. at 590 (quoting Lanza, 479 F.2d at 1299).

The present motion is for summary judgment. Borden, by contrast, involved a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, and indeed distinguished itself from cases involving summary judgment. Id. at 590 (distinguishing Index Fund, Inc. v. Hagopian, 609 F.Supp. 499 (S.D.N.Y.1985)). A defendant still can prevail on a control person issue by pointing out that there is an absence of evidence to permit a reasonable factfinder to conclude that the defendant was a culpable participant in the alleged fraud. See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 325 (1986). Evans has carried that burden here.

*14 Alexander recites a litany of powers and responsibilities held by Evans at Evans & Co. Pl.'s Obj. at 82-83 (quoting Pl.'s R. 3(g) Counterstatement ¶¶ 35-36). Few of these allegations involve Evans specifically in the Medi-Rx dealings: Evans approved the overall deal, as he did for every underwriting pursued by Evans & Co., Pl.'s R. 3(g) Counterstatement ¶ 35(a); Evans appeared at a Medi-Rx due diligence meeting, although "he did not stay," Pl.'s Ex. 15 at 223 (testimony of Albert L. Barbara, Dec. 11, 1991); and Evans reviewed the Medi-Rx file and approved renewed support for the company after the Forbes article. The Evans defendants themselves note that Evans had one fifteen or twenty minute meeting about the public offering with Albert L. Barbara, who was primarily responsible for the Medi-Rx deals at Evans & Co. Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 4 at 211-12 (testimony of Albert L. Barbara).

The Evans defendants do not view the foregoing as culpable participation. They further note that Evans was retired before the events at issue in this suit, Def.'s Opp'n to Obj. at 34; that Alexander never met or even spoke with Evans, Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 1 at 73-74; that Evans had no meeting whatsoever with Barbara about the private placement, id. at 262-63; [FN14] and that it was Barbara who was responsible for, and who put into place, due diligence arrangements. Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 4 at 196-99, 203-06 (testimony of Albert L. Barbara); Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 30 at 134-35 (testimony of Caesar Fraschilla).

The Court agrees with the R & R that the allegations cannot support a finding that Evans was a control person with respect to the Medi-Rx dealings. Evans had only superficial involvement, not culpable participation, in Medi-Rx transactions. His review of the company file after the Forbes article does not support a finding of culpable participation in the alleged violations. Cf. Griffin v. McNiff, 744 F.Supp. 1237, 1252 (S.D.N.Y.1990) ("[A]llegations of post-purchase activity alone are insufficient to establish liability as either a primary violator or an aider and abettor."). The R & R's recommendation on control person liability is adopted, and summary judgment is granted in favor of defendant Thomas Evans.

E. Objection No. 5: RICO

Alexander objects to the R & R's recommended finding that the complaint fails to state a claim for a RICO violation.

As the R & R explained, a plaintiff under RICO "must demonstrate '(1) that the defendant (2) through the commission of two or more acts (3) constituting a pattern (4) of racketeering activity (5) directly or indirectly invests in, or maintains an interest in, or participates in (6) an enterprise (7) the activities of which affect interstate or foreign commerce.'" R & R at 32 (quoting Moss v. Morgan Stanley, Inc., 719 F.2d 5, 17 (2d Cir.1983), cert. denied sub nom. Moss v. Newman, 465 U.S. 1025 (1984)).

The present case turns on the "pattern"

requirement. The pattern requirement does not require proof of multiple illegal schemes, only multiple illegal acts. H.J. Inc. v. Northwestern Bell Tel. Co., 492 U.S. 229, 236 (1989). But " 'while two acts are necessary, they may not be sufficient.' " Id. at 237 (quoting Sedima, S.P.R.L. v. Imrex Co., 473 U.S. 479, 496 n. 14 (1985)). A pattern requires both a relationship between alleged racketeering acts, and also that the acts "themselves amount to, or that they otherwise constitute a threat of, continuing racketeering activity." Id. at 240. Continuing activity can be either "a closed period of repeated conduct, or ... past conduct that by its nature projects into the future with a threat of repetition." Id. at 241.

*15 The Pillai defendants contend that the alleged acts connected with the August 1986 public offering and the February 1987 private placement are insufficient to support a RICO violation. The Court agrees. Alexander alleges that the Pillai defendants assisted in the omission of information concerning the backgrounds of Zweigenhaft and Karabel in the August 1986 public offering; that they repeated that omission when they sent the prospectus and 10-Q filing in connection with the private placement; and that they assisted in the misrepresentation of the company's financial condition and prospects in connection with the private placement. These three acts clearly meet the relatedness requirement for a RICO pattern. But they are insufficient to support a finding of continuous activity.

"A pattern is not formed by 'sporadic activity.' " Id. at 239 (quoting S.Rep. No. 617, 91st Cong., 1st Sess. 158 (1969)). The present case involves nothing more than a few sporadic predicate acts "extending over a few ... months and threatening no future criminal conduct." Id. at 242. The alleged omissions and misrepresentations concerning Medi-Rx's condition and prospects in late 1986 and early 1987 were limited; the truth of the company's condition was inevitably revealed soon thereafter in further public filings. The information about Zweigenhaft and Karabel similarly was revealed upon publication of the Forbes article. The few sporadic repetitions of that same omission do not, in this case, support a pattern of racketeering activity. See Airlines Reporting Corp. v. Aero Voyagers, Inc., 721 F.Supp. 579, 584 (S.D.N.Y.1989) ("Although the defendants allegedly committed some fifty racketeering acts of mail fraud, those acts were identical to one another.").

The Pillai defendants further assert that Alexander has not submitted evidence of a conspiracy, so summary judgment should be granted on his RICO conspiracy claim. Pillai Defs.' Mem. in Supp. of Summ.J. at 53-55 (citing Andreo v. Friedlander, Gaines, Cohen, Rosenthal & Rosenberg, 651 F.Supp. 877 (D.Conn.1986)). The conspiracy claim falls with the primary RICO claim, but summary judgment would be proper anyway. The Second Circuit has held in the context of a motion to dismiss that a complaint must allege "some factual basis for a finding of a conscious agreement among the defendants." Hecht v. Commerce Clearing House, Inc., 897 F.2d 21, 26 n. 4 (2d Cir.1990). Alexander responds to Hecht by discussing matters other than the "conscious agreement" element. Pl.'s Mem. in Opp'n to Summ.J. at 125-27. He cites no evidence of a conscious agreement.

Summary judgment on Alexander's RICO claims will be granted.

F. Objection No. 6: Miscellaneous Errors

Alexander objects to the R & R on several miscellaneous grounds: first, that the R & R failed to mention certain evidence; second, that the R & R erroneously characterized Judge Walker's prior opinion in this case; and third, that the R & R improperly found facts. The Court has considered the submissions de novo. There is no need to question the R & R's analysis on these points in the wake of the present Opinion and Order.

G. Other Objections and Grounds for Summary Judgment

1. Other Objections: Common Law Fraud Claims

*16 Alexander objects to the R & R's recommendation that the common law fraud claims be dismissed. The Evans defendants moved for summary judgment on those claims based on an asserted absence of factual issues regarding loss causation. The R & R agreed with the Evans defendants, and recommended that summary judgment be granted on all claims, including the common law claims. R & R at 25-28. This Court, however, has determined that summary judgment cannot be granted to the extent that Alexander claims "out-of-pocket" damages. Summary judgment therefore cannot be granted on the common law claims.

2. Other Grounds for Summary Judgment: Materiality, Causation and Reliance

a. Materiality

The Evans defendants and the Pillai defendants assert that the information about Zweigenhaft and Karabel was immaterial. The Court does not agree that the issue is so clear as to be resolvable on a motion for summary judgment.

Materiality is a mixed question of law and fact, and a complaint may not properly be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) (or even pursuant to Rule 56) on the ground that the alleged misstatements or omissions are not material unless they are so obviously unimportant to a reasonable investor that reasonable minds could not differ on the question of their importance.

Goldman v. Belden, 754 F.2d 1059, 1067 (2d Cir.1985).

The Evans defendants break down the Zweigenhaft and Karabel background information into three parts: two lawsuits against Zweigenhaft; the bankruptcy of a company at which Zweigenhaft served as an officer and Karabel and Rajan K. Pillai ("Pillai") were principal stockholders; and congressional hearings that mentioned Zweigenhaft's companies, with which Karabel was associated, in connection with drug diversion. Each of these matters, according to the Evans defendants, is immaterial. Evans

Defs.' Mem. in Supp. of Summ.J. at 53-57.

The Evans defendants correctly observe that Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") regulations, as far as they shed light upon these matters, suggest that disclosure was not required. Bankruptcies are to be disclosed if they are less than five years old. 17 C.F.R. § 229.401(f)(1). Lawsuits against a director or executive officer are to be disclosed if the suits are less than five years old, involved securities, and resulted in an unfavorable judgment. 17 C.F.R. § 229.401(f)(5). The regulations do not address congressional hearings. The Evans defendants cite GAF Corp. v. Heyman, 724 F.2d 727, 739-40 (2d Cir.1983), to support their position that the regulations should guide the Court's decision.

Alexander, on the other hand, maintains that materiality is a question that cannot be resolved simply by referring to the regulations. This view is supported by the GAF decision. 724 F.2d at 739 ("In our view, the regulation's emphasis ... strongly suggests that ... unadjudicated allegations ... should not automatically be deemed material."). The Court doubts the materiality of the alleged omissions, but is not certain of the opinion that a reasonable investor would hold. [FN15] Summary judgment cannot be based upon lack of materiality.

b. Causation and Reliance

*17 The Pillai defendants assert that Alexander has failed to allege facts supporting causation or reliance with respect to the common law fraud claims. Causation was addressed above, and the Court finds no merit in the reliance argument.

The Pillai defendants assert that Alexander should not have relied on their alleged misrepresentations and omissions because he is a sophisticated investor who could have discovered the truth himself. Pillai Defs.' Mem. in Supp. of Mot. for Summ.J. at 36-37. It may be true that "[t]he securities laws were not designed to protect sophisticated businessmen from their own errors of judgment." Hirsch v. DuPont, 553 F.2d 750,

763 (2d Cir.1977). But it is equally true that the reliance requirement was not designed to shield perpetrators of fraud by forcing investors to conduct exhaustive research every time they invest money, lest the seller be manipulative or deceptive. The Court cannot say as a matter of law that Alexander's alleged reliance was unreasonable. Summary judgment cannot be granted on Alexander's common law fraud claims.

3. Other Grounds for Summary Judgment: The Pillai Defendants

The Pillai defendants assert that they cannot be held liable as either primary wrongdoers or aiders and abettors of the alleged fraud. This, too, is an issue that cannot be resolved on summary judgment. Although an attorney generally has no obligation to disclose information to third parties with whom the attorney has no relationship, Alexander has adduced evidence showing that Pillai was aware of the background information concerning Zweigenhaft and Karabel prior to issuance of the prospectus, Pl.'s Ex. 21 at 218-38; Pl.'s Ex. 19 at 97-114; Pl.'s Ex. 23 at 33-44, and that Pillai was aware at the time of the private placement that Medi-Rx could not meet the earlier financial projections. Pl.'s Ex. 14 at 238-39.

The Pillai defendants cite Schatz v. Rosenberg, 943 F.2d 485 (4th Cir.1991), cert. denied, 112 S.Ct. 1475 (1992), which held that "a lawyer or law firm cannot be held liable for misrepresentation under section 10(b) for failing to disclose information about a client to a third party absent some fiduciary or other confidential relationship with the third party." Id. at 490. This Court finds such a strict rule incompatible with the prevailing view in this circuit. "In appropriate circumstances, an attorney can be subject to liability for aiding and abetting. Although an attorney cannot be held liable merely for failing to 'tattle' on his clients, silence consciously intended to facilitate a fraud can create secondary liability." SEC v. Forma, 117 F.R.D. 516, 526 (S.D.N.Y.1987) (citations omitted). [FN16]

The concern is not that the Pillai defendants merely failed to edify themselves about Medi-Rx and to pass along the gained knowledge to the investing public. The concern is that the Pillai defendants might have known of specific misstatements or omissions and yet willingly assisted in their dissemination. Cf. Morin v. Trupin, 747 F.Supp. 1051, 1072 (S.D.N.Y.1990) (finding no support for law firm liability where "firm was unaware of the facts" when private placement memorandum was prepared); Friedman v. Arizona World Nurseries, Ltd., 730 F.Supp. 521, 534 (S.D.N.Y.1990) (finding no scienter where attorneys had no knowledge of falsity of statements), aff'd, 927 F.2d 594 (2d Cir.1991). A genuine issue of fact exists regarding whether the Pillai defendants are liable, as either primary or secondary violators, for the alleged misrepresentations and omissions.

*18 Summary judgment cannot be granted with respect to the claims against the Pillai defendants.

CONCLUSION

Alexander's motion for permission to file a reply to the opposition to Alexander's Objections to the R & R is denied.

Defendants' motions for summary judgment are granted with respect to the 1933 Act and RICO claims.

Defendants' motions for summary judgment are denied with respect to the State common law claims.

Defendants' motions for summary judgment with respect to the § 10(b) claims are resolved as follows: (1) summary judgment is denied to the extent that the § 10(b) claims are based upon alleged omission or misrepresentation of the backgrounds of Zweigenhaft and Karabel in connection with the August 1986 public offering and the February 1987 private placement; (2) summary judgment is denied to the extent that the § 10(b) claims are based upon alleged omission or misrepresentation of Medi-Rx's financial condition or prospects in connection with the February 1987 private placement; and (3) summary judgment is granted to the extent that Alexander's § 10(b) claims rest on all other factual bases.

Summary judgment is granted with respect to the surviving § 10(b) and state law claims to the extent they rest on a theory of causation other than "out-of-pocket" damages.

The Evans defendants' motion for summary judgment is granted with respect to Alexander's claims against Thomas Mellon Evans.

The parties are directed to submit their Joint Pre-Trial Order on or before November 15, 1993.

It Is So Ordered.

FN1. Defendant Burton Zweigenhaft moved for summary judgment on March 17, 1992, for the reasons stated in the Evans defendants' and Pillai defendants' motions.

FN2. The Forbes article described drug diversion as follows: "A drug has been diverted if it has not been obtained directly from the manufacturer or from an authorized distributor. Diverted drugs can be subpotent, outdated or, worse, outright ineffectual counterfeits." Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 6 at 2. Medi-Rx took measures to correct the impression left by the Forbes article. Zweigenhaft resigned (purportedly for the good of the company and not as any admission of impropriety) and Medi-Rx hired the accounting firm of Deloitte Haskins & Sells ("Deloitte") to ascertain whether drug diversion had taken place. A press release at the end of July 1987 stated that the Deloitte audit confirmed "that Medi-Rx ha[d] purchased all pharmaceutical products directly from U.S. based manufacturers or U.S. based licensed and authorized wholesalers and distributors." Second Am.Compl.Ex. G at 2.

FN3. The prospectus also contained a somewhat different estimate: The proceeds of this offering will be used to purchase inventory of approximately $700,000 and additional property and equipment of approximately $1,050,000. In addition, approximately $350,000 of the proceeds of this offering will be used to open a branch marketing office and an additional dispensing facility. The remainder will be added to working capital, and combined with existing funds, are expected to fund operations until approximately the end of March 1988. Kolleeny Aff.Ex. 3 at 8 (emphasis added). The prospectus thus contained a projection of well under two years.

FN4. Alexander structures a background section of his Objections around thirteen alleged misleading statements. Pl.'s Obj. at 3-22. The "thirteen statements" are ill-defined, and virtually useless as a framework for discussion.

FN5. The rule is even less clear if no additional evidence has been submitted. In the present case, Alexander submits three new affidavits with his proposed reply papers.

FN6. This Opinion's numeration of Alexander's objections differs from the numeration used in his submission. The change is one of sequence, not substance.

FN7. Some decisions cite Virginia Bankshares, Inc. v. Sandberg, 111 S.Ct. 2749 (1991), as support for the reasonable basis requirement. E.G., Schwartz v. System Software Assocs., Inc., 813 F.Supp. 1364, 1366 (N.D.Ill.1993); In re AnnTaylor Stores Sec. Litig., 807 F.Supp. 990, 1000 (S.D.N.Y.1992). But Virginia Bankshares is not so clear on the point. That case involved rule 14a-9, which prohibits misleading statements. The Court observed that statements recommending a stock buyout price as "fair" and "high value" can be "reasonably understood to rest on a factual basis that justifies them as accurate, the absence of which renders them misleading." 111 S.Ct. at 2758. The Court did not say how indefensible a factual basis must be to support a finding of fraud under § 10(b). If § 10(b) is violated when a projection has an unreasonable basis, then plaintiffs like Alexander are free to engage in a rather wide-open second-guessing game. This Court suspects that the correct formulation would require not just an unreasonable basis, but a grossly unreasonable basis, or a basis so lacking as to permit an inference that the projection was known to be false—that is, not genuine.

FN8. Alexander heavily relies on an expert witness affidavit (the Zofnass Affidavit) challenging the reasonableness of the company's financial estimates. That affidavit was not before Magistrate Judge Buchwald, and will not be considered here for its substance. Pan Am., 894 F.2d at 40 n. 3.

FN9. Again, it should be noted that the prospectus also contained a substantially shorter estimate as well. See supra note 3.

FN10. The Court is referred to a phone system that cost $134,000 rather than $70,000, an unbudgeted security system that cost $60,000, software that cost $250,000 more than expected--a nearly $500,000 "variance in capital requirements." Pl.'s Rule 3(g) Counterstatement at 31; Pl.'s Ex. 19 at 342 (testimony of Sidney Karabel).

FN11. The testimony on the cited costs revolved around a budget dated September 22, 1986. Pl.'s Ex. 44; Pl.'s Ex. 19 at 308-12 (testimony of Sidney Karabel). Most of the items had not been purchased, and Alexander has not offered any evidence that $500,000 had been spent by September 30, 1986. The extra costs that had been incurred as of September 22, 1986, as far as the evidence shows, add up to $78,180. Pl.'s Ex. 44. The charge that the 10-Q was false and misleading is therefore a bit misleading itself.

FN12. Magistrate Judge Buchwald recommended a finding that the 1934 Act claims are not barred by the applicable statute of limitations. Defendants have not objected to that recommendation.

FN13. Uncontested evidence indicates the Forbes article was read to Alexander on or before July 10, 1987, the 10-K was filed April 1987 and the 10-Q was filed May 1987. All three events were more than one year prior to filing suit on July 29, 1988.

FN14. The Evans defendants suggest, with some support from Alexander's own arguments, that Evans is named as a defendant only because he is a "deep pocket"--indeed, one of the only pockets, now that Evans & Co. and Medi-Rx are defunct. See Pl.'s Mem. in Opp'n to Summ.J. at 39.

FN15. The Court notes that the release of the Forbes article precipitated a drop in Medi-Rx stock. Although the price recovered, and the dramatic effect of a well-written article must not be underestimated, the effect on the market at least suggests that materiality is not a matter for the Court to adjudge.

FN16. The Pillai defendants contend that "something more than an ordinary business purpose is required to allege substantial assistance in aiding and abetting securities fraud." Pillai Defs.' Mem. in Supp. of Mot. for Summ.J. at 44 (citing Thornock v. Kinderhill Corp., 749 F.Supp. 513, 517 (S.D.N.Y.1990)). But the Thornock decision begins by recognizing that " 'substantial assistance' [always] exists where the alleged aider and abettor has played an active role in furthering the securities violation." Thornock, 749 F.Supp. at 516. Motive becomes important only when the alleged assistance is in the form of a refusal to act. Id. at 517 (emphasized alteration added).

Supreme Court, Appellate Division, First
Department, New York.

AMERICAN BAPTIST CHURCHES OF METROPOLITAN NEW YORK, et al.,

Plaintiffs-
Appellants,

v.

T. Eric GALLOWAY, et al., Defendants-
Respondents.

May 9, 2000.

Not-for-profit corporation and two of its subsidiaries brought action against former officer, a consultant hired to help corporation develop a facility for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) patients, and directors of a rival corporation, alleging that defendants had wrongfully seized control of a corporate project. The Supreme Court, New York County, Ira Gammerman, J., dismissed the plaintiffs' claims, and they appealed. The Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Rosenberger, J.P., held that: (1) as a matter of first impression, corporation could sustain compensable damages from the loss of a corporate opportunity, and (2) corporation's allegations were sufficient to state claims for misappropriation of a corporate opportunity, breach of his fiduciary duty of loyalty and good faith, fraud, and tortious interference with prospective contractual relations.

Affirmed as modified.

West Headnotes

[1] Corporations 319(5)
101k319(5)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's two wholly-owned subsidiaries were not real parties in interest in corporation's action against former officer who allegedly misappropriated a corporate opportunity by seizing control of a corporate project, where the subsidiaries were not involved in the project, and any proceeds received in connection with the project would have inured to the benefit of the corporation alone.

[2] Corporations 315
101k315

Not-for-profit corporation could sustain compensable damages from the loss of a corporate opportunity.

[3] Corporations 3
101k3

"Not-for-profit corporation" is not the same as a corporation that loses money; it is simply a corporation that devotes whatever proceeds it receives from its operations to charitable causes rather than disbursing the funds as dividends to shareholders and compensation to executives. McKinney's N-PCL § 102(a)(5).

[4] Corporations 319(6)
101k319(6)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegations that, as result of former officer's misconduct in seizing control of a corporate project, it lost a $144,000 development fee and $1.2 million from its planned sale of tax credits were sufficient allegations of monetary damage to support its claim against the former officer for misappropriation of a corporate opportunity.

[5] Corporations 319(6)
101k319(6)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegation that former officer secretly created a competing organization to seize control of a corporate project and exploit work already done by the corporation on developing the project was sufficient to state claim against the former officer for breach of his fiduciary duty of loyalty and good faith.

[6] Principal and Agent 69(1)
308k69(1)

Agent may not divert or exploit for his own benefit an opportunity that is an asset of his principal, nor may he make use of the principal's resources or proprietary information to organize a competing business.

[7] Brokers 43(2)
65k43(2)

Statute requiring contract to procure a loan or negotiate a real estate purchase to be in writing did not apply to not-for-profit religious corporation's contract with consultant to assist corporation in developing a facility for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) patients and possibly another property. McKinney's General Obligations Law § 5-701.

[8] Fraud 16
184k16

Cause of action for fraud may be based on a fiduciary's intentional concealment of a material fact.

[9] Religious Societies 31(4)
332k31(4)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegations that its former officer, a consultant, and the consultant's executive director concealed actions that were adverse to its interest in facility the consultant was hired to develop, including the creation of a competing entity and the alteration of a purchase contract, alleged the defendants' misrepresentations with sufficient detail to support a fraud claim.

[10] Religious Societies 31(4)
332k31(4)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegations that its former officer, a consultant, and the consultant's executive director, in furtherance of their scheme to divert and delay a corporate project, relied on their prior relationship with the owner of property on which the project was to be located to induce the owner to renege on its previous intention to sell to the corporation at an affordable price sufficiently alleged causation to support corporation's fraud claim.

[11] Corporations 319(6)
101k319(6)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegations that rival corporation was incorporated under false pretenses, for no purpose other than to help its organizers seize control of a corporate project were sufficient to establish the elements of a veil-piercing claim against the organizers.

[12] Torts 12
379k12

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegation that its former officer, a consultant, and the consultant's executive director used deceptive actions in derogation of their fiduciary duties to induce a property owner not to sell property to the corporation on previously agreed terms was sufficient to state a claim against the defendants for tortious interference with prospective contractual relations.

[13] Religious Societies 31(4)
332k31(4)

Not-for-profit religious corporation's allegations that rival corporation was formed months before corporation's scheduled closing on a property and immediately moved to take over the corporation's project when one of its officers resigned was sufficient to state claim against the rival corporation's organizers for aiding and abetting former officer's breach of fiduciary duty, diversion of corporate opportunity and fraud, on theory that the organizers acted in concert.

[14] Conspiracy 1.1
91k1.1

While in New York there is no separate tort of conspiracy, allegations of conspiracy are permitted to connect the actions of separate defendants with an otherwise actionable tort.

[15] Corporations 319(6)
101k319(6)

Not-for-profit corporation's allegations that the directors of a rival not-for-profit corporation formed that corporation to assist an officer in seizing control of a corporate project precluded determination that the directors were entitled to statutory immunity as a matter of law. McKinney's N-PCL § 720-a.

ERNST H. ROSENBERGER, J.P.,

ANDRIAS and DAVID FRIEDMAN, JJ.

*14 ROSENBERGER, J.P.

This action involves the alleged misappropriation of a corporate opportunity by an officer of a charity, who was retained to help the charity develop an AIDS care facility but seized control of the project himself. The main issue presented is whether the IAS court erred in dismissing the complaint on the grounds that a not-for-profit corporation could never sustain compensable damages from the loss of a corporate opportunity.

Plaintiff American Baptist Churches of Metropolitan New York ("ABC Metro") is a not-for-profit religious corporation whose charitable work includes operating Flemister House, an outreach program for AIDS patients, through two wholly-owned subsidiaries ("the Flemister plaintiffs"). ABC Metro had retained defendant Settlement Housing Fund ("SHF") in 1994 as a consultant to help develop an additional facility similar to Flemister House, namely the Noah House project at issue in the instant case.

Defendant T. Eric Galloway was first employed by SHF and later hired by ABC Metro in 1995 as Executive Director of the Flemister entities. One of his chief duties was to spearhead the Noah House project. When he was still employed by SHF, both *96 Galloway and SHF Executive Director Carol Lamberg had developed contacts with Great Wall Development Corp, which owned a site that appeared suitable for Noah House. ABC Metro directed Galloway to proceed with negotiations and Galloway reached an oral agreement with Great Wall to purchase the property for $250,000.

Galloway also aided ABC Metro in obtaining all the necessary government approvals and securing financing for the Noah House project. Some funding was to come from a $5.6 million loan from New York City. Additionally, a private investor agreed to invest $1.8 million in return for the right to take advantage of ABC Metro's Federal income tax credits. Of these proceeds, $1.2 million would be available to ABC Metro for use in its charitable work. (As a developer of low-income housing, ABC Metro was entitled to Federal income tax credits, but it could not use them directly because it pays no Federal income taxes, so it planned to sell them to an investor in exchange for a partnership interest in the project.) ABC Metro also expected to receive a $144,000 developer's fee at closing.

By May 1996, the approvals and financing were in place. The closing of the loan from the City was contingent on a signed contract to purchase the property from Great Wall. According to the complaint, once Galloway had completed all the development work on ABC Metro's behalf, he embarked on a scheme to seize control of the Noah House project and cut ABC Metro out of the transaction entirely. Without telling ABC Metro or the Flemister plaintiffs, Galloway instructed ABC Metro's legal counsel to incorporate Community Lantern Corp. ("CLC"), a not-for-profit corporation, with himself and defendants Carol Lamberg and Craig Harwood as directors. Then, once again without plaintiffs' consent, Galloway instructed the law firm to substitute CLC's name for ABC Metro's on the purchase contract with Great Wall, and to tell Great Wall's counsel to delay the purchase.

On July 7, 1996, Galloway informed plaintiffs that he was resigning and that CLC was taking control of the Noah House project. Because of his prior relationship with Great Wall, he claimed, the property owner would not sell to ABC Metro against Galloway's wishes. Indeed, Great Wall did refuse to go through with the sale, not wishing to be caught in the dispute between CLC and ABC Metro. Great Wall subsequently offered to sell the property to ABC Metro for $350,000 if defendants approved, but ABC Metro could not finance the transaction at this substantially higher price.

*97 The Noah House project never came to fruition. Without a signed contract, ABC 15 Metro could not obtain the loan from the City. ABC Metro alleges that as a result, it lost the $144,000 development fee and the use of $1.2 million in proceeds from the transfer of the Noah House tax credits.

Plaintiffs then brought this action alleging fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, misappropriation of corporate opportunity, and tortious interference with prospective contractual relations. In addition to challenging the sufficiency of the 17 causes of action in the Amended Complaint on substantive grounds, defendants also argued that the Flemister plaintiffs had no standing because they had no interest in the Noah House project. The IAS court agreed, and dismissed the Flemister entities from the lawsuit on this basis. With respect to ABC Metro, the IAS court dismissed all its claims on the sole grounds that "[a]s a not-for-profit corporation, ABC Metro cannot satisfactorily allege damages, which would otherwise be based on lost profits." The court cited no legal authority for this proposition.

[1] The Flemister plaintiffs were properly dismissed from the action. Since they were not involved in the Noah House project, any proceeds received in connection with the project, such as the New York City loan or the developer's fee, would have inured to the benefit of ABC Metro alone. Thus, they were not real parties in interest (see, Columbus Nat'l Leasing Corp. v. Perkin-Elmer Corp., 177 A.D.2d 1035, 578 N.Y.S.2d 50).

[2][3] However, the order below should be modified to reinstate all but two of ABC Metro's claims. The IAS court erred in concluding that a not-for-profit corporation could never sustain compensable damages. First of all, as a matter of public policy, it would be unfair and counterproductive for a charitable organization to have no recourse against a dishonest fiduciary who thwarts the organization's endeavors and renders futile the expenditures of time and money invested in developing the project. Second, the IAS court's ruling rests on a fundamental misunderstanding of the nature of a not-for-profit corporation. A not-for-profit corporation is not the same as a corporation that loses money. It is simply a corporation that devotes whatever proceeds it receives from its operations to charitable causes rather than disbursing the funds as dividends to shareholders and compensation to executives. Just as the goal of a for-profit corporation is to make money for its investors, the goal of a not-for-profit is to make money that can be spent on furthering its social welfare objectives. Both types of *98 companies have suffered an injury when a fiduciary's misconduct frustrates these goals.

The foregoing analysis is supported by the New York Not-For-Profit Corporation Law, which clearly contemplates that not-for-profit corporations may receive income and even make an incidental profit. What distinguishes a not-for-profit is not whether it receives money, but what it does with the money. Not-For-Profit Corporation Law § 102(a)(5) defines a not-for-profit as a corporation which is organized "exclusively for a purpose or purposes, not for pecuniary profit or financial gain," and "no part of the assets, income or profit of which is distributable to, or enures to the benefit of, its members, directors or officers except to the extent permitted under this statute" (emphasis added). Section 508 allows a not-for-profit to earn an "incidental profit" from fees or charges, so long as such profits are "applied to the maintenance, expansion or operation of the lawful activities of the corporation," and not "divided or distributed in any manner whatsoever among the members, directors, or officers of the corporation."

Not-for-profit corporations in New York routinely bring actions seeking damages for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty and fraud (e.g., Nate B. & Frances Spingold Foundation v. Wallin, Simon, Black & Co., 184 A.D.2d 464, 585 N.Y.S.2d 416; Cobble Hill Nursing Home v. Henry and Warren Corp., 196 A.D.2d 564, 568-569, 601 N.Y.S.2d 334, lv. denied 83 N.Y.2d 16 756, 614 N.Y.S.2d 386, 637 N.E.2d 277). While no New York case appears to have dealt with a not-for-profit's claim for diversion of a corporate opportunity, a number of cases from other states recognize that a not-for-profit may bring such a claim (e.g., White Gates Skeet Club v. Lightfine, 276 Ill.App.3d 537, 213 Ill.Dec. 115, 658 N.E.2d 864; Valle v. North Jersey Automobile Club, 141 N.J.Super. 568, 359 A.2d 504 [N.J.App.], modified 74 N.J. 109, 376 A.2d 1192; Lutherland, Inc. v. Dahlen, 357 Pa. 143, 53 A.2d 143). By contrast, there is no case law supporting the IAS court's contrary conclusion.

[4] Here, ABC Metro pleaded at least two specific items of monetary damage flowing from defendants' alleged misconduct: the loss of ABC Metro's expected $144,000 development fee and the loss of the $1.2 million from the planned sale of Noah House's tax credits. Defendants dispute whether ABC Metro satisfied the conditions precedent to receiving these funds, but these are questions for the trier of fact. In addition, ABC Metro alleges that it has lost the money it expended to develop a project that never came to fruition because of defendants' interference. These allegations are sufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss.

*99 Turning now to the merits of the individual causes of action, we conclude that the first through ninth and the eleventh through sixteenth causes of action asserted by ABC Metro should be reinstated.

[5] Most of the claims encompass essentially the same allegations, phrased differently. The first cause of action alleges that Galloway breached his fiduciary duty of loyalty and good faith by secretly creating a competing organization to seize control of Noah House and exploiting the work already done by ABC Metro on developing the project. The second cause of action alleges that SHF and its Executive Director Lamberg, as consultants hired by ABC Metro, breached their duty of good faith in that, after being involved in negotiating for the purchase of the property from Great Wall, SHF and Lamberg attempted to take control of both the project and the property. The third cause of action asserts a breach of contract claim against SHF based on the same allegations. The fourth and fifth causes of action are asserted against Galloway and against SHF and Lamberg, respectively, for diversion of corporate opportunity.

[6] An agent may not divert or exploit for his own benefit an opportunity that is an asset of his principal (Alexander & Alexander of N.Y. v. Fritzen, 147 A.D.2d 241, 246, 542 N.Y.S.2d 530). Nor may he make use of the principal's resources or proprietary information to organize a competing business (Schneider Leasing Plus v. Stallone, 172 A.D.2d 739, 741, 569 N.Y.S.2d 126, lv. dismissed 78 N.Y.2d 1043, 576 N.Y.S.2d 211, 582 N.E.2d 594). It would be a breach of fiduciary duty if an agent of a corporation secretly established a competing entity so as to divert opportunities away from his principal (Wolff v. Wolff, 67 N.Y.2d 638, 641, 499 N.Y.S.2d 665, 490 N.E.2d 532).

In support of dismissal, Galloway argues that he owed no fiduciary duty to ABC Metro because he was an employee of the Flemister entities, not of ABC Metro. To the contrary, the facts as alleged in the complaint indicate that he was acting as ABC Metro's agent with respect to Noah House, in addition to whatever services he performed for the Flemister entities. Moreover, he cannot have it both ways: to defeat the Flemister plaintiffs' standing, he asserts that they had no relation to his work on Noah House, but to defeat ABC Metro's claims, he asserts that he was the Flemisters' agent. At the very least, this inconsistency concerning the relationship between the parties must be resolved in further proceedings.

[7] SHF argues that the contract with ABC Metro is void under General Obligations Law § 5-701 because a contract to procure a loan or negotiate a real estate 17 purchase must be in writing. However, the complaint alleges that SHF's role was broader *100 than this, namely that SHF was employed as a paid consultant to assist in developing Noah House and possibly another property. Thus, the claim for breach cannot be dismissed at this stage.

[8][9][10] The sixth and seventh causes of action allege that Galloway, Lamberg and

(Cite as: 271 A.D.2d 92, *100, 710 N.Y.S.2d 12, 17)

SHF committed fraud. Defendants argue that the complaint does not list the alleged misrepresentations in sufficient detail, and that, in any event, the loss of the project was proximately caused by Great Wall's decision to raise the purchase price, not by defendants' actions (see, Williams v. Upjohn Health Care Servs., 120 A.D.2d 729, 730, 503 N.Y.S.2d 68 [requiring causal link between misrepresentations and injury]). However, a cause of action for fraud may be based on a fiduciary's intentional concealment of a material fact (see, Mobil Oil Corp. v. Joshi, 202 A.D.2d 318, 609 N.Y.S.2d 214). Here, ABC Metro has adequately alleged that defendants concealed a series of actions that were adverse to ABC Metro's interest in Noah House, including the creation of CLC and the alteration of the purchase contract. As to causation, the complaint alleges that in furtherance of defendants' scheme to divert and delay the project, they relied on their prior relationship with Great Wall to induce Great Wall to renege on its previous intention to sell to ABC Metro at an affordable price.

[11] The eighth cause of action seeks to pierce the corporate veil against Galloway, Lamberg and Harwood, on the grounds that CLC was incorporated under false pretenses, for no purpose other than to help them seize control of Noah House. These allegations establish the elements of a veil-piercing claim, namely that the owners completely dominated the corporation and that such domination was used to commit a wrong against the plaintiff (Morris v. N.Y. State Dep't of Taxation & Finance, 82 N.Y.2d 135, 141, 603 N.Y.S.2d 807, 623 N.E.2d 1157). Nothing in the record indicates any other purpose for CLC's existence.

[12] The ninth cause of action against all defendants for tortious interference with prospective contractual relations should also be reinstated. ABC Metro has alleged that defendants used wrongful means, namely deceptive actions in derogation of their fiduciary duties, to induce Great Wall not to sell the property on the previously agreed terms (see, Guard-Life Corp. v. Parker Hardware Mfg. Corp., 50 N.Y.2d 183, 191, 428

N.Y.S.2d 628, 406 N.E.2d 445). This is not a situation where an arm's-length competitor uses ordinary free-market means to persuade a third party not to transact business with the plaintiff. However, the tenth cause of action for tortious interference with existing contractual relations *101 was properly dismissed because no contract for the sale of the property was ever signed (see, NBT Bancorp v. Fleet/Norstar Financial Group, 87 N.Y.2d 614, 620-621, 641 N.Y.S.2d 581, 664 N.E.2d 492).

[13] The eleventh through sixteenth causes of action charge the defendants other than Galloway with aiding and abetting his breach of fiduciary duty, diversion of corporate opportunity and fraud. Defendants argue that these causes of action are deficient because the complaint does not contain sufficient allegations that they knew or should have known about Galloway's misconduct, nor that they rendered substantial assistance to him. However, the pleadings support a theory that all defendants acted in concert. According to the complaint, CLC was formed by the individual defendants months before ABC Metro's scheduled closing date on the Noah House project, and immediately moved to take over the project when Galloway resigned. Defendants also allegedly exploited Great Wall's prior relationship with SHF to frustrate the sale. In any event, what the parties actually knew is a matter for discovery, since much of the information is in defendants' control.

18 [14] Finally, the seventeenth cause of action for civil conspiracy was properly dismissed because it was redundant. While in New York there is no separate tort of conspiracy, allegations of conspiracy are permitted "to connect the actions of separate defendants with an otherwise actionable tort" (Alexander & Alexander of N.Y. v. Fritzen, 68 N.Y.2d 968, 969, 510 N.Y.S.2d 546, 503 N.E.2d 102). Here, ABC Metro's other claims have already pleaded these torts and defendants' alleged collusion to commit them.

[15] With respect to all causes of action asserted against them in their capacity as directors of CLC, Lambert and Harwood argue that they have immunity under Not-For-Profit Corporation Law § 720-a as uncompensated directors of a not-for profit corporation. Yet, the statute contains an exception where the director's harmful conduct was grossly negligent or intentional. It would be premature to find that Lamberg and Harwood have immunity as a matter of law, since ABC Metro has alleged in detail that these defendants formed CLC so as to assist Galloway's deceptive scheme and appropriate the Great Wall property for themselves. This would come within the statutory exception for intentional misconduct.

Accordingly, the order of the Supreme Court, New York County (Ira Gammerman, J.), entered November 13, 1998, granting defendants' motion to dismiss the amended complaint, should be modified, on the law, to reinstate the first through ninth and the eleventh through sixteenth causes of action, only *102 to the extent asserted by plaintiff American Baptist Churches of Metropolitan New York, and otherwise affirmed, without costs.

All concur.

United States Court of Appeals,
Second Circuit.

AMERICAN PROTEIN CORPORATION,
Plaintiff-Appellee,

v.

AB VOLVO and Volvo Lastvagnar AB, as successors in interest to Beijerinvest AB,
Beijer Industries, Inc. and Bo Lycke,
Defendants-Appellants.

No. 331, Docket 87-7560.

Argued Dec. 3, 1987.
Decided April 8, 1988.

Plaintiff, an American corporation, brought suit arising out of contract with American subsidiary of Swedish parent corporation. The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, Howard B. Turrentine, J., awarded plaintiff $3 million in damages in varying amounts against defendants for breach of contract, tortious interference of contract and negligent misrepresentation, and defendants appealed. The Court of Appeals, Cardamone, Circuit Judge, held that: (1) existence of interlocking directorates was insufficient to pierce corporate veil between original contracting party and its great-grandparent; (2) evidence was insufficient to establish that president of original contracting party made any guaranty of original contracting party's performance; (3) decision of corporate executives to "wind down" affairs of subsidiary did not constitute tortious interference with plaintiff's contract with subsidiary; and (4) even assuming that contracting party's president's statements were negligently spoken, there was no cause of action for negligent misrepresentation.

Reversed.

Before NEWMAN, CARDAMONE, and PIERCE, Circuit Judges.

CARDAMONE, Circuit Judge:

We are presented on this appeal with the issue of when the contractual default of a subsidiary corporation may be visited upon its parents. The question takes on added importance because the parents are Swedish corporations without a presence in New York but nonetheless were held liable for the obligations of their New York subsidiary. Legal liability was fastened on one foreign parent in part because the corporate veil between it and its subsidiary was pierced. The primary liability of the parents was based on the fact that two of one parent's officers and directors--also directors of the subsidiary--came to New York and voted at the subsidiary's Board of Directors meeting to "wind down" the subsidiary's affairs, resulting in the subsidiary's default on a contract. Of course, it is entirely appropriate for directors of a parent corporation to serve as directors of its subsidiary, and that fact alone may not serve to expose the parent corporation to liability for its subsidiary's acts. Here, other facts in addition to interlocking directorates are alleged.

BACKGROUND

A. Facts

This diversity case arises from the breach of a contract for the sale of edible dried blood derived from the slaughter of cattle and pork. Plaintiff, American Protein Corporation (American Protein), brought the instant action in the Southern District of New York against the defendants AB Volvo and Volvo Lastvagnar AB (Lastvagnar) (formerly Beijerinvest AB), Beijer Industries, Inc., and Bo Lycke.

American Protein is an Iowa corporation with its principal place of business at Lytton, Iowa. Defendant Volvo is Sweden's largest corporation, with its principal place of business in Gothenburg, Sweden. In May 1982 Volvo acquired Beijerinvest AB *58 and changed its name to Volvo Lastvagnar AB which, operating as a wholly owned subsidiary of Volvo, is located in Stockholm. Lastvagnar (f/k/a Beijerinvest) owns 100 percent of the stock of Beijer, Handel & Industri, a Swedish corporation which owns 100 percent of the stock of defendant Beijer Industries, Inc., a New York corporation. Beijer, Inc.--also a

New York corporation--was, in turn, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Beijer Industries. Volvo is therefore the parent of all the members of the Beijer family of corporations.

Walter Lauridsen, an agronomist living in Iowa, had for 20 years been interested in utilizing the blood run-off from the slaughter of cattle and pork as a source of protein for humans. Over the years he had developed a concept of spray-drying the blood into a powdered form which, when combined with water, creates a bouillon-like food fit for human consumption. To effectuate his ideas, Mr. Lauridsen organized American Protein. In 1980 he contacted Beijer, Inc. with his idea. The principals of that company expressed interest in his project and invited him to New York City to discuss it further. There he met with defendant Lycke, president of Beijer, Inc., who, according to Lauridsen, told him that Beijer's Swedish parent would back a contract, take all of his output, and use its world-wide marketing capacity to distribute the dried blood product.

Prior to signing a contract Lauridsen asked for a written guarantee from Beijer, Inc.'s (great grand)parent corporation, Beijerinvest, for the performance of Beijer, Inc.'s obligation. Lycke told Lauridsen that no such guarantee could be given. Subsequently, on March 2, 1982 American Protein and Beijer, Inc. entered into a three-year, fixed price, outputs contract for the sale of edible dried blood. The agreement provided practically all of American Protein's business as Beijer, Inc. was to purchase the entire output of blood products from American Protein's Lytton, Iowa plant. Lauridsen put up his own and borrowed funds--totalling nearly $1 million--to convert an old dairy into a sanitary spray-drying plant capable of producing a product fit for human consumption and made commitments to buy the blood run-off from a slaughterhouse. The March 2d contract forms the basis of the instant action.

About two months after Beijer, Inc. contracted with American Protein--on May 11, 1982--Volvo purchased Beijerinvest and, therefore, the Beijer family of companies.

After a number of months of performing the contract--and continuously losing money--Beijer, Inc. ran out of cash and stopped buying and paying for the dried blood product. On October 19, 1982 the Board of Directors of Beijer, Inc. met in New York and discussed the corporation's finances and business prospects. At the same meeting, the status of the dried blood project and Beijer, Inc.'s general marketing efforts were reviewed. As a result, the Board decided not to take on any new business, but instead voted to "wind down" Beijer, Inc.'s activities. All of the members of the Board--Bo Lycke, as Beijer, Inc.'s president; Pehr Gyllenhammar, chief executive officer of Volvo; and Ulf Linden, another high ranking officer of Volvo--were present.

On December 31, 1982 Lycke sold Beijer, Inc. to a company controlled by Lyster Carney, a former employee of Beijer, Inc. for $1,000 plus a $2 million note. Carney, in turn, went to Lauridsen and told him that if he would not renegotiate the blood products contract and take over the marketing function Carney would have to declare bankruptcy. Lauridsen attempted without success to obtain redress in Iowa against Carney's company.

B. Proceedings Below

American Protein then sued Volvo, Lastvagnar, and Lycke in the instant action. In a seven-count complaint filed in 1984 plaintiff sought recovery of damages from defendants Volvo, Lastvagnar, and Beijer Industries for breach of express written contract (Count I), from Volvo and Lastvagnar for breach of express oral contract (Count II), for breach of implied contract (Count III), for breach of an alleged quasi-contract (Count IV), and for tortious interference *59 with contractual relations (Count V), and from defendant Lycke for fraud (Count VI) and negligent misrepresentation (Count VII).

The case was tried before district court Judge Howard B. Turrentine (formerly Chief Judge for the Southern District of California) and a jury from May 21 to May 26, 1987. At the close of the evidence the trial court dismissed the claim for quasi-contract (Count IV). It also dismissed the contract claims alleged in Counts I, II and III against Volvo. No cross-appeal has been taken by plaintiff from those dismissals. All the other claims were submitted to the jury. The jury returned a $3 million verdict for the plaintiff against Volvo for tortious interference with the contract (Count V), against Lastvagnar for breach of contract (Counts I, II and III) and for tortious interference (Count V), and against Lycke for negligent misrepresentation (Count VII), but not for fraud (Count VI). Beijer Industries, the parent of Beijer, Inc. was charged only in Count I and none of the damages awarded plaintiff were assessed against Beijer Industries. Compensatory damages were awarded plaintiff in the amount of $1 million against Volvo, $1.8 million against Lastvagnar and $200,000 against Lycke.

On May 29, 1987 all defendants moved unsuccessfully for judgment n.o.v. or, in the alternative, for a new trial. A judgment was entered on June 1, 1987 and an amended judgment was entered on June 16, 1987 that computed prejudgment interest in accordance with Iowa law. Defendants appealed this adverse judgment on June 26, 1987.

DISCUSSION

Defendants raise a number of arguments. Volvo and Lastvagnar claim that plaintiff lacked jurisdiction over them and that the evidence does not support the verdict finding them liable for tortious interference with plaintiff's contract; Lastvagnar contends that the issue of piercing the corporate veil should have been decided by the trial court rather than the jury, and that, in any event, there was insufficient evidence to submit this issue to a jury; Lycke claims that he was erroneously found liable for misrepresentation; and, finally, all argue that the damage award lacks a sound basis. Analysis of these issues will be set forth in a discussion of Counts I, II, III, V and VII of the complaint.

I

The first three counts charged defendant Lastvagnar with breach of an express written, an express oral, and an implied contract. Plaintiff's success on these three counts is evidenced by the $1.8 million verdict it obtained against Lastvagnar, the (great grand)parent of the now-defunct Beijer, Inc., the original contracting party. The predicate for success on the express written contract count (Count I) resulted from the trial court's submitting to the jury the question of whether the corporate veil between Beijer, Inc. and Lastvagnar should be pierced.

[1] Lastvagnar's first contention is that piercing the corporate veil, as an equitable remedy, must be decided by the court and not the jury, as occurred in the trial below. Such is not the law. Granted, the relief is equitable in nature, that is, imposing the remedy redresses a wrong by the expedient of ignoring the legal fiction that a corporation's existence is separate from that of its owner. Yet Lastvagnar cites no case to support its position and, in fact, the issue of corporate disregard is generally submitted to the jury. See, e.g., Walter E. Heller & Co. v. Video Innovations, Inc., 730 F.2d 50, 53 (2d Cir.1984) (listing appropriate criteria for jury to decide whether corporate veil should be pierced); FMC Fin. Corp. v. Murphree, 632 F.2d 413, 421 & n. 5 (5th Cir.1980) (collecting cases); see generally Byrd v. Blue Ridge Rural Elec. Coop., 356 U.S. 525, 537, 78 S.Ct. 893, 900, 2 L.Ed.2d 953 (1958) (jury resolution of disputed question of fact in diversity cases favored). Accordingly, submission of this issue to the jury was not error.

Turning to appellant's second argument, that the evidence on the issue of piercing *60 the corporate veil was insufficient to go to the jury, we begin with several legal propositions. A corporation is an entity that is created by law and endowed with a separate and distinct existence from that of its owners. Because a principal purpose for organizing a corporation is to permit its owners to limit their liability, there is a presumption of separateness between a corporation and its owners, see, e.g., Crown Cent. Petroleum v. Cosmopolitan Shipping Co., 602 F.2d 474, 476 (2d Cir.1979), which is entitled to substantial weight. Further, disregarding corporate separateness as an equitable remedy is one that differs with the circumstances of each case. See FMC Fin. Corp., 632 F.2d at 422.

Because the arguments in this diversity case are made under New York law, we look to that forum to see when a parent may be held liable for the acts of its subsidiary. Control is the key. The parent must exercise complete domination "in respect to the transaction attacked" so that the subsidiary had "at the time" no separate will of its own, and such domination must have been used to "commit fraud or wrong" against plaintiff, which proximately caused plaintiff's injury. Lowendahl v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R., 247 A.D. 144, 157, 287 N.Y.S. 62 (1st Dept.), aff'd, 272 N.Y. 360, 6 N.E.2d 56 (1936), quoted with approval in Gorrill v. Icelandair/Flugleidir, 761 F.2d 847, 853 (2d Cir.1985). To satisfy the control element, American Protein must have demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that Beijer, Inc. was controlled and dominated by Lastvagnar with respect to its contract for dried blood to such an extent that it had no separate will of its own or, stated another way, that Beijer, Inc. was a mere instrumentality of its parent. To meet the second element, plaintiff must show that Beijer, Inc. was used by Lastvagnar to commit a fraud or wrong that caused American Protein unjustly to suffer a loss. See Williams v. McAllister Bros., 534 F.2d 19, 21 (2d Cir.1976).

[2] Factors indicating that a parent corporation controls its subsidiary include lack of normal corporate formality in the subsidiary's existence, under-capitalization, and personal use of the subsidiary's funds by the parent or owner. See Walter E. Heller & Co., 730 F.2d at 53. The record reveals that none of these factors were present in the instant case. Beijer, Inc. maintained its own corporate and financial records, held independent board meetings, and maintained separate corporate offices. While concededly Lastvagnar supplied its subsidiary with working capital from time to time, there is no evidence that Beijer, Inc. received such financing specifically for the dried blood project. Nor did Lastvagnar make use of Beijer, Inc.'s corporate funds for its own benefit.

The strongest piece of evidence to support control was the existence of interlocking directorates. This commonplace circumstance of modern business does not furnish such proof of control as will permit a court to pierce the corporate veil. See Berger v. Columbia Broadcasting Sys., 453 F.2d 991, 995 (5th Cir.) (subsidiary's board's being completely comprised of employees of parent is insufficient basis to pierce corporate veil), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 848, 93 S.Ct. 54, 34 L.Ed.2d 89 (1972). Beyond that, American Protein presented no evidence to suggest that Lastvagnar used Beijer, Inc. to commit a fraud or wrong causing American Protein to suffer an unjust loss. Without more reasons to disregard corporate separateness than those shown here, a subsidiary's default may not cast its shadow of liability on its parent. Accordingly, we reverse the verdict against Lastvagnar on Count I.

II

[3] Lastvagnar's liability on Counts II (breach of express oral contract) and III (breach of implied oral contract) was predicated on the theory that Lycke guaranteed to American Protein that Beijerinvest would guarantee Beijer's performance of the contract. Under Count II, Lycke allegedly acted on behalf of Beijerinvest. Under Count III, Beijerinvest's knowledge of Lycke's action created an implied contract without resort to an agency theory. Overlooking the inherent logical contradiction in *61 a finding of liability on both of these counts, the evidence was insufficient to establish that Lycke made any guarantee to American Protein. A contrary conclusion cannot stand in light of the facts that Lauridsen requested that Beijerinvest guarantee Beijer, Inc.'s performance and that Lycke informed him that no such guarantee could be given. The verdict against Lastvagnar on Counts II and III therefore is also reversed.

III

We turn now to Count V, which alleged that Volvo and Lastvagnar tortiously interfered with American Protein's contract with Beijer. The jury found such interference by both parties and awarded plaintiff $1 million against Volvo and, presumably, a portion of the total $1.8 million verdict against Lastvagnar. Before analyzing the merits of this claim, a threshold issue must be considered. American Protein argues that the defendants are not entitled to raise this issue on appeal because they failed to move for a directed verdict at the close of all the evidence pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 50(b).

A. Compliance With Fed.R.Civ.P. 50(b)

[4] Rule 50(b) provides "[w]henver a motion for a directed verdict made at the close of all the evidence is denied or for any reason is not granted, the court is deemed to have submitted the action to the jury subject to a later determination of the legal questions raised by the motion." A motion for judgment n.o.v. after the jury's verdict generally may be made under this Rule only when a motion for a directed verdict has been made at the close of all the evidence and before the case is sent to the jury. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 50(b) advisory committee's note. One of the main reasons for the rule, of course, is to give the nonmoving party notice of defects in its proof so that it can cure the deficiencies before the case is submitted.

It is undisputed on this record that defendants made an appropriate motion for a directed verdict of dismissal at the close of the plaintiff's evidence on the same grounds as those later asserted in their judgment n.o.v. motion, including the tortious interference ground. After plaintiff rested and defendants made the motion to dismiss, the trial judge reserved decision. Later, it ruled on the motion at the close of all the evidence, specifically denying the motion with regard to the tortious interference claim. When defendants made the judgment n.o.v. motion the experienced district judge stated to defendants' counsel that he "thought" they had "preserved [their] right" to make the postjudgment motion, despite their failure to renew their motion for a directed verdict at the close of all the evidence.

[5] Professor Moore's treatise observes that a postjudgment motion as a general rule may be made even when the moving party has failed to renew a directed verdict motion at the close of all the evidence provided two criteria are met: the trial court indicates it is not necessary to move in order to preserve the right, and the nonmoving party's evidence following the unrenewed motion was "brief and inconsequential." See 5A J. Moore & J. Lucas, Moore's Federal Practice ¶ 50.08 (2d ed. 1987). In Ebker v. Tan Jay Int'l, Ltd., 739 F.2d 812 (2d Cir.1984), we adopted Professor Moore's first criterion, but reformulated his second one. Instead of evaluating whether evidence subsequent to the unrenewed motion was "brief and inconsequential," the trial court should determine whether the nonmoving party could reasonably believe it was safe to rest on its oars. Or, as we put it in Ebker, whether the party having notice of a motion directed against the sufficiency of its proof could reasonably believe in light of the proof following the unrenewed motion that it need do nothing further to be free from the risk of judgment n.o.v. Id. at 823-24; see Best Brands Beverage, Inc. v. Falstaff Brewing Corp., 842 F.2d 578, 587 n. 3 (2d Cir.1987). Although in Ebker the nonmoving party did not object to the district court's entertaining the postverdict motion, while here counsel for American Protein vigorously disputed the propriety of the trial court's entertaining defendants' postverdict *62 judgment n.o.v. motion, we believe Ebker's approach appropriate. Since the grounds of the motion were the same as those spelled out in the unrenewed motion for a directed verdict, plaintiff is not prejudiced here by defendants' failure to renew at the close of all the evidence. Ebker, 739 F.2d at 824.

Drawing from the trial court's comments, it is plain that the first criterion was met. The Ebker approach is particularly appropriate here since the motion for a directed verdict at the end of the plaintiff's case was not denied until the end of all the evidence. It would be a pointless formality to require a defendant at that point to renew the motion. We think the second criteria as amended by Ebker has also been satisfied. American Protein had notice after it rested that defendants believed its proof on the tortious interference count deficient. Detailed arguments on appellants' motion at the close of plaintiff's case were entertained and decision was reserved by the trial court. Defendants' evidence in no way strengthened plaintiff's case. More importantly, American Protein claimed neither that it would have nor that it could have presented any additional evidence to compensate for deficiencies in its proof. As a consequence, defendants' right to make a postjudgment motion was preserved.

B. Merits of Jurisdiction/Tortious Interference

1. Jurisdiction: Having hurdled the procedural obstacle, we now turn to the substance of the jurisdiction/tortious interference issue. We consider jurisdiction first. Jurisdiction over Volvo must be established by American Protein by a preponderance of the evidence. In this diversity case New York provides the applicable law. Arrowsmith v. United Press Int'l, 320 F.2d 219, 223 (2d Cir.1963) (en banc). Jurisdiction apparently was based on N.Y.Civ.Prac. L. & R. 302(a)(2) (McKinney 1972), which provides that a New York court may exercise jurisdiction over any nondomiciliary who in person or through an agent "commits a tortious act within the state." The jury found that Volvo committed a tortious act within New York when its two executives attended the October Beijer, Inc. Board of Directors meeting in New York City and at that meeting ordered its subsidiary to "wind down" its affairs. Beijer, Inc. then breached the contract with plaintiff, allegedly with Volvo's approval, constituting a tortious interference by Volvo and Lastvagnar with performance of Beijer, Inc.'s contract with American Protein. Jurisdiction is thus intertwined with the merits of Volvo's liability. See United States v. Montreal Trust Co., 358 F.2d 239, 242 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 384 U.S. 919, 86 S.Ct. 1366, 16 L.Ed.2d 440 (1966). Volvo argues that its executives who were also Beijer, Inc. directors were merely performing their duties as corporate fiduciaries and that their actions were justified under New York law.

These contentions frame two issues: (1) did the decision of the Volvo executives to "wind down" the affairs of Beijer, Inc. constitute tortious interference with American Protein's contract, and (2) if so, are the actions of these executives attributable to Volvo or did they act solely in their capacities as directors of Beijer, Inc.? Since, as will appear, we conclude that no tortious interference occurred, we need not consider the somewhat metaphysical question of whether a person serving as director of both a subsidiary and a parent corporation can subject the parent to liability by voting at a meeting of the subsidiary's board.

[6] 2. Tortious Interference: Turning to the merits of the tortious interference claim, we must apply New York conflicts law in this diversity action, see Klaxon Co. v. Stentor Elec. Mfg. Co., 313 U.S. 487, 496, 61 S.Ct. 1020, 1021-22, 85 L.Ed. 1477 (1941), which holds that the law of the forum with the most paramount interest in the application of its law should be selected, see Knieriemen v. Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., 74 A.D.2d 290, 293, 427 N.Y.S.2d 10 (1st Dep't), appeal dismissed, 50 N.Y.2d 1021, 431 N.Y.S.2d 812, 410 N.E.2d 745 (1980). This forum clearly is New York, as the acts constituting the alleged tort occurred in New York and a New York corporation (Beijer, Inc.) was *63 implicated. Accordingly, the trial court properly applied New York law to the tortious interference claim.

The law of New York provides an applicable rule when a possible conflict arises between a director's duty to honor corporate contractual obligations and simultaneously to protect the stockholders' best interests. In such an event, directors of parent companies are released from liability for the contract's dishonor when it results from an effort to protect stockholders, absent a malicious motive. Felsen v. Sol Cafe Mfg. Corp., 24 N.Y.2d 682, 686, 301 N.Y.S.2d 610, 249 N.E.2d 459 (1969).

In Felsen the New York Court of Appeals--reversing a judgment on a claim similar to the instant one--explained that the plaintiff could not recover unless it established that the defendant's actions were "motivated by malice toward the plaintiff rather than by the preservation of its own economic interest...." Id. at 686-87, 301 N.Y.S.2d 610, 249 N.E.2d 459. In adopting that proposition, the court continued, an individual with an economic stake in the business of another may interfere with a contract that the other business has with a third person if the purpose is to protect the individual's own stake. In other words, terminating a corporate contract in furtherance of an equally important right to act in its own economic interests justifies what would otherwise be actionable. Id. at 687, 301 N.Y.S.2d 610, 249 N.E.2d 459.

[7] There is no evidence on the record before us of malice toward American Protein on the part of either Volvo or Lastvagnar. Plaintiff failed to establish a prima facie case of tortious interference with contractual relations because the evidence showed only that Volvo executives on the board of Beijer, Inc. endorsed terminating Beijer, Inc.'s contract with plaintiff for the legitimate business reason that it was losing money. Consequently, the verdicts against Volvo and Lastvagnar for tortious interference with a contractual relationship under Count V of plaintiff's complaint must fail as a matter of law. Those verdicts are reversed.

IV

We consider finally Counts VI and VII of the complaint, which charged Lycke with fraud and negligent misrepresentation. The jury exonerated Lycke of fraud, but awarded American Protein $200,000 for negligent misrepresentation.

Here the alleged misrepresentations submitted for the jury's assessment by the trial court--unfortunately not in interrogatory form--were as follows:

(1) Beijer, Inc. was a division of a worldwide network of companies operated by Beijerinvest and that Beijerinvest funded the projects undertaken by these companies;

(2) Beijerinvest intended to fund the project and to insure Beijer, Inc. satisfied its obligations under the blood products contract;
(3) Beijer, Inc. had wide experience in marketing food products;
(4) Beijer, Inc. would be able to market all of American Protein's projected output under the blood products contract for three years; and
(5) Beijerinvest's other food companies in Sweden could alone absorb one-third of American Protein's projected output under the blood products contract.

[8] Under New York conflicts law, a court must apply the substantive tort law of the state having the most significant relationship with the occurrence and with the parties. Babcock v. Jackson, 12 N.Y.2d 473, 482, 240 N.Y.S.2d 743, 191 N.E.2d 279 (1963); see Machleder v. Diaz, 801 F.2d 46, 51 (2d Cir.1986), cert. denied, --- U.S. ---, 107 S.Ct. 1294, 94 L.Ed.2d 150 (1987). Given that Lycke is president of a New York corporation and that many of the alleged misrepresentations originated in New York, we conclude that New York law applies. The law of negligent misrepresentation, as enunciated in New York, recognizes that "generally there is no liability for words negligently spoken" but that "there is an exception when the parties' relationship suggests a closer degree of trust and reliance than that of the ordinary buyer and seller." Coolite Corp. v. American Cyanamid Co., 52 A.D.2d 486, 384 N.Y.S.2d 808, 811 (1st Dep't 1976). The speaker must be "bound by some relation of duty, arising out of contract or otherwise." White v. Guarente, 43 N.Y.2d 356, 363, 401 N.Y.S.2d 474, 478, 372 N.E.2d 315, 319 (1977). See Mallis v. Bankers Trust Co., 615 F.2d 68, 81-82 (2d Cir.1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1123, 101 S.Ct. 938, 67 L.Ed.2d 109 (1981). If in the course of contract negotiations an employee of one party makes a fraudulent misrepresentation, of course a fraud claim is available, but here the jury rejected APC's fraud claim. In the absence of fraud and in the absence of a special relationship giving rise to a duty, it is up to the party hearing words he deems important to make them part of the contract.

[9] Even assuming that the statements set out above were negligently spoken, no cause of action exists under the facts of the instant case. APC fails to allege that there was a special relationship between it and Beijer, Inc. before the contract was signed. Rather, APC took the risk that all contracting parties face: that the other party to the contract might end up in bankruptcy. Since APC alleges nothing more than ordinary arm's length negotiations, its negligent misrepresentation claim fails as a matter of law. Accordingly, the jury award on Count VII of the complaint must be reversed.

Finally, our resolution of the counts above obviates the need for addressing appellants' argument that the jury's overall damage award was inconsistent.

CONCLUSION

In sum, the verdict against Lastvagnar on Count I on a theory of piercing the corporate veil, and on Counts II and III is reversed. The verdict against Volvo and Lastvagnar for tortious interference with plaintiff's contract with Beijer, Inc. under Count V is reversed. The verdict against Lycke for negligent misrepresentation under Count VII is also reversed.

Judgment reversed.

Respondents-Appellants,

v.

ERNST & YOUNG, LLP, Appellant-
Respondent,
Cap Gemini Ernst & Young U.S., LLC,
Appellant.

Jan. 21, 2003.

Customer brought contract action against accounting firm, its successor in interest, and overseer of implementation of computer accounting system for distribution center. The Supreme Court, Suffolk County, Costello, J., denied accounting firm's motion to dismiss. On appeal, the Supreme Court, Appellate Division, held that: (1) New York law would not recognize cause of action to recover damages for professional malpractice by computer consultants; (2) fiduciary relationship would not exist between customer and accounting firm; and (3) customer failed to state consequential damages claim.

Affirmed as modified.

547 In an action, inter alia, to recover damages for breach of contract, the defendant Ernst & Young, LLP, appeals, as limited by its brief, from so much of an order of the Supreme Court, Suffolk County (Costello, J.), dated December 17, 2001, as denied those branches of its motion pursuant to CPLR 3016(b) and CPLR 3211(a)(7) which were to dismiss the plaintiffs' second, fifth, and sixth causes of action insofar as asserted against it and so much of the third cause of action as sought consequential damages, the defendant Cap Gemini Ernst & Young U.S., LLC, separately appeals, as limited by its brief, from so much of the same order as denied those branches of its motion pursuant to CPLR 3016(b) and CPLR 3211(a)(7) which were to dismiss so much of the plaintiffs' fourth cause of action as sought consequential damages, and the sixth cause of action insofar as asserted against it, and the plaintiffs cross-appeal from so much of the same order as granted that branch of the motion of the defendant Ernst & Young, LLP, which was to dismiss the first cause of action pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(7).

ORDERED that the order is modified by (1) deleting the provision thereof denying those branches of the motion of the defendant Ernst & Young, LLP, which were to dismiss the second cause of action, the fifth cause of action, so much of the third 548 cause of action as sought consequential damages, and so much of the sixth cause of action as sought punitive damages, and substituting therefor a provision granting those branches of the motion, and (2) deleting the provision thereof denying those branches of the motion of the defendant Cap Gemini Ernst & Young U.S., LLC, which were to dismiss the fourth cause of action insofar as it sought consequential damages and the sixth cause of action insofar as asserted against it and substituting therefore a provision granting those branches of the motion; as so modified, the order is affirmed insofar as appealed and cross-appealed from, with one bill of costs to Cap Gemini Ernst & Young U.S., LLC, payable by the plaintiffs.

The plaintiff Atkins Nutritionals, Inc. (hereinafter Atkins), entered into an agreement with the accounting firm Ernst & Young, LLP (hereinafter E & Y), in which E & Y was to assist Atkins in selecting a computer accounting system for its new distribution center. In April 2000, E & Y recommended that Atkins acquire a computer software system called Cayenta. In May 2000 E & Y sold its consulting services component to Cap Gemini, S.A., and acquired shares in the new entity Cap Gemini Ernst & Young U.S., LLC (hereinafter CGEY).

In June 2000 E & Y recommended that Atkins engage CGEY to oversee implementation of the Cayenta system. Atkins and CGEY entered into such an agreement in August 2000. After numerous problems with the Cayenta system, Atkins and its majority shareholder Dr. Robert Atkins commenced this action against E & Y and CGEY.

[1][2] The Supreme Court properly dismissed the first cause of action asserted *322 against E & Y, as it alleged a claim to recover damages for malpractice in the selection and implementation of a computer system. E & Y was acting as a computer consultant, and the courts of this state do not recognize a cause of action to recover damages for professional malpractice by computer consultants (see Richard A. Rosenblatt & Co. v. Davidge Data Sys. Corp., 295 A.D.2d 168, 743 N.Y.S.2d 471).

Even though E & Y is an accounting firm, it had a conventional business relationship with Atkins with respect to the computer consulting services which did not create a fiduciary relationship independent of the contract (see RKB Enters. v. Ernst & Young, 182 A.D.2d 971, 582 N.Y.S.2d 814). The fact that E & Y performed personal accounting services for Dr. Atkins did not give rise to a fiduciary relationship with Atkins, the corporate entity.

[3][4] The lack of a special relationship distinct from and independent of the contract also precludes the second cause of action against E & Y to recover damages for negligent misrepresentation *549 (see WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, 282 A.D.2d 527, 724 N.Y.S.2d 66; Andres v. LeRoy Adventures, 201 A.D.2d 262, 607 N.Y.S.2d 261; RKB Enters. v. Ernst & Young, supra; cf. Kimmell v. Schaefer, 89 N.Y.2d 257, 652 N.Y.S.2d 715, 675 N.E.2d 450). "It is a well-established principle that a simple breach of contract is not to be considered a tort unless a legal duty independent of the contract itself has been violated" (Clark-Fitzpatrick, Inc. v. Long Is. R.R. Co., 70 N.Y.2d 382, 389, 521 N.Y.S.2d 653, 516 N.E.2d 190). Similarly, an arms-length business relationship does not give rise to a fiduciary duty. Therefore, the fifth cause of action sounding in breach of a fiduciary duty asserted against E & Y should have been dismissed (see WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, supra).

[5][6] E & Y and CGEY argue that the breach of contract causes of action should be dismissed insofar as the plaintiffs seek consequential damages. In order to recover consequential damages, the plaintiffs were required to plead that those damages were the natural and probable consequences of the breach, and were contemplated at the time the contract was executed (see Kenford Co. v. County of Erie, 73 N.Y.2d 312, 540 N.Y.S.2d 1, 537 N.E.2d 176; Rose Lee Mfg. v. Chemical Bank, 186 A.D.2d 548, 588 N.Y.S.2d 408). As the complaint failed to allege that those damages were within the contemplation of the parties at the time the contract was executed, the claim for consequential damages should be dismissed. Moreover, CGEY's contract with Atkins limited its liability to the fees paid to it, and the contract should be enforced according to its terms (see Sommer v. Federal Signal Corp., 79 N.Y.2d 540, 583 N.Y.S.2d 957, 593 N.E.2d 1365; Peluso v. Tauscher Cronacher Professional Engrs., 270 A.D.2d 325, 704 N.Y.S.2d 289).

[7] The sixth cause of action to recover damages for fraud should also have been dismissed insofar as it was asserted against CGEY. The claimed fraudulent representations related to CGEY's intention to perform its obligations under the contract and were not designed to induce Atkins to enter into that contract. Therefore, Atkins cannot maintain both a fraud and breach of contract cause of action against CGEY (see WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, supra; Gordon v. Dino De Laurentiis Corp., 141 A.D.2d 435, 529 N.Y.S.2d 777).

The Supreme Court properly denied that branch of the motion of E & Y which was to dismiss the sixth cause of action to recover damages for fraud insofar as asserted against it, as the allegations in the complaint sufficiently state a cause of action 323 for fraud in the inducement (see WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, supra; RKB Enters. v. Ernst & Young, supra). However, the claim for punitive damages should have been dismissed, as the plaintiffs failed to allege facts sufficient to demonstrate that the conduct of E & Y rose to the level of moral culpability which must be reached to support a claim for punitive damages (see *550 Rose Lee Mfg. v. Chemical Bank, supra; RKB Enters. v. Ernst & Young, supra).

Nos. 817, 982, Dockets 94-7571, 94-7595.

Argued Jan. 19, 1995.
Decided May 11, 1995.

Assignee of participating bank brought action against lead lender for rescission of participation agreement. The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, Robert J. Ward, J., 819 F.Supp. 1282, granted motions for summary judgment in part and, 850 F.Supp. 1199, entered judgment for lead bank. Assignee of participating bank appealed. The Court of Appeals, Jacobs, Circuit Judge, held that: (1) under New York law, assignment transferred tort claims arising from contract as well as contractual interests, but (2) lead bank had no duty to disclose facts surrounding delay and regulatory approval of borrower's condominium conversion plan.

Affirmed.

West Headnotes

[1] Assignments 73
38k73

[1] Assignments 90
38k90

Participating bank's assignment of loan participation agreement to its parent included related tort claims so that parent had standing to seek rescission; language of assignment transferred all "rights, title and interest" in the participation agreement, and in the participating bank's participation in the loan.

[2] Assignments 31
38k31

[2] Assignments 73
38k73

Under New York law, assignment of right to assert contract claims does not automatically entail right to assert tort claims arising from that contract; however, New York law does not require specific boilerplate language to accomplish transfer of causes of action sounding in tort, and any acts or words are sufficient which show intention of transferring chose in action to the assignee.

[3] Fraud 3
184k3

[3] Fraud 17
184k17

To prove common law fraud under New York law, plaintiff must show that defendant made material false representation, that defendant intended to defraud plaintiff thereby, that plaintiff reasonably relied upon representation, and that plaintiff suffered damage as result of such reliance; in addition, to establish fraudulent concealment, plaintiff must also prove that defendant had duty to disclose material information.

[4] Fraud 58(1)
184k58(1)

Under New York law, each element of fraud claim must be shown by clear and convincing evidence.

[5] Contracts 94(8)
95k94(8)

Lead lender had no duty to disclose to participating bank state Attorney General's objections to borrower's condominium conversion plan; objections took relatively little time to resolve, bore no reflection on borrower, and, therefore, were not material, and participation agreement expressly absolved lead bank of any duty to provide information relevant to independent credit analysis and funding decision.

[6] Contracts 94(2)
95k94(2)

State Attorney General's objections to borrower's condominium conversion plan were not "material" to participating bank's decision to join in loan agreement, for purposes of determining whether lead bank's failure to disclose such objections warranted rescission of participation agreement, where such objections were resolved in relatively short period of time and did not reflect on borrower's character or capacity.

[7] Fraud 17
184k17

In business negotiations, affirmative duty to disclose material information may arise from need to complete or clarify one party's partial or ambiguous statement or from fiduciary or confidential relationship between the parties.

[8] Fraud 17
184k17

Disclosure obligations may be modified by contract.

[9] Contracts 94(8)
95k94(8)

Lead bank did not have such superior knowledge of facts surrounding regulatory delay in approval of borrower's condominium conversion plan as would have created duty to disclose the issue to participating bank, absent showing that lead bank knew that participating bank acted in reliance on mistaken knowledge regarding the issue or that lead bank also deemed issue critical to its investment decision.

[10] Contracts 94(5)
95k94(5)

Participating bank could not have reasonably relied on lead bank to disclose facts surrounding incremental delay in regulatory approvals for borrower's condominium conversion plan, where prospect of such delay was a known and disclosed risk and information regarding status of conversion plan was readily accessible to any interested party who cared to make inquiries; accordingly, nondisclosure did not amount to fraudulent concealment warranting rescission of the participation agreement.

[11] Fraud 13(3)
184k13(3)

Under New York law, plaintiff may not recover for negligent misrepresentation absent special relationship of trust or confidence between the parties.

[12] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Generally, banking relationships are not viewed as special relationships giving rise to heightened duty of care.

[13] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

No such special relationship existed between lead bank and participating bank with regard to loan participation agreement as would have given rise to heightened duty of care and subjected lead bank to liability for negligent misrepresentation, where banks engaged in arm's length negotiations and participation agreement explicitly disclaimed any reliance by participating bank on lead bank's information regarding its credit analysis and funding decision.

Before: WALKER, JACOBS, and CALABRESI, Circuit Judges.

JACOBS, Circuit Judge:

In 1988, Maryland National Bank ("MNB") financed a real estate venture for the conversion of several New York City apartment buildings to cooperative or condominium ownership, and sold participations in that $35 million mortgage loan to other banks. A $10 million participation was sold to BAII Banking Corporation ("BAII"), an American subsidiary of Banque Arabe et Internationale D'Investissement ("Banque Arabe"). Banque Arabe, as transferee from BAII, asserts (among other things) that MNB fraudulently failed to disclose that the developer was experiencing a regulatory delay in obtaining necessary approvals for the conversions at the time Banque Arabe made its funding decision. On a motion for summary judgment, the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (Ward, J.) dismissed Banque Arabe's claim for negligent misrepresentation, among others. We affirm the dismissal of the negligent misrepresentation claim. Following a bench trial on the sole remaining count--common law fraud--Judge Ward determined that Banque Arabe lacked standing as a transferee to assert the fraud claim and that, in any event, Banque Arabe failed to prove scienter or fraudulent intent. Judgment was entered dismissing the complaint. We affirm the dismissal of the fraud claim and the judgment; *148 however, we do so on the somewhat different ground that, as a matter of law, MNB had no duty under the terms of Banque Arabe's participation to disclose the current regulatory status of the conversions, and that Banque Arabe could not have relied reasonably on MNB for readily available information concerning a disclosed regulatory risk.

I. Background

A detailed account of the events and transactions in this case is set forth in Judge Ward's opinion granting in part and denying in part MNB's motion for summary judgment, Banque Arabe et Internationale D'Investissement v. Maryland Nat'l Bank, 819 F.Supp. 1282 (S.D.N.Y.1993) (Banque Arabe I), and in Judge Ward's opinion granting judgment in favor of MNB, Banque Arabe et Internationale D'Investissement v. Maryland Nat'l Bank, 850 F.Supp. 1199 (S.D.N.Y.1994) (Banque Arabe II). We iterate only those facts that bear upon and are necessary to resolve the issues raised on appeal.

On June 23, 1988, MNB extended a mortgage loan in the principal amount of $35 million to eight real estate partnerships owned and controlled by Robert K. Marceca (the "Marceca Loan"). The loans were secured by mortgages on eight rent-controlled or rent-stabilized apartment buildings in New York City (the "Marceca Properties"). The proceeds of the loans were to be used to refinance, renovate and convert the buildings to cooperative or condominium ownership. After packaging the loans, MNB arranged the sale of four participation interests, totalling $25 million, to other unaffiliated banks. The fourth and last participation agreement, in the principal amount of $10 million, was sold on September 29, 1988 to BAII, which was then Banque Arabe's American subsidiary (the "Participation Agreement").

MNB had first approached BAII concerning the Marceca Loan in May 1988. The following month, as part of the ensuing arm's length negotiations, MNB gave BAII a projected loan repayment schedule prepared by Marceca. Both parties understood that the projected principal payments were to be funded out of the proceeds of converting the Marceca Properties to cooperative or condominium ownership. In addition, BAII was aware that the repayment schedule was based on a number of assumptions, including: (a) that the first projected repayment allocable to each building would be made at the time of the closing of the conversion of the building to either cooperative or condominium ownership; and (b) that the closing of the conversion of each building would occur approximately 90 days after an offering plan for the conversion was accepted for filing by New York State's Department of Law ("Department of Law"). [FN1]

FN1. The Department of Law for the State of New York is the division of the Attorney General's Office responsible for regulating New York's real estate market, including the conversion of properties to cooperative ownership.

In June and July, BAII conducted its own due diligence and credit analysis of the Marceca Loan. Officers of BAII reviewed documents provided by MNB, conducted numerous conversations with MNB, and met individually with Marceca. After completing its due diligence on or about July 13, BAII decided to purchase the $10 million participation interest and so advised MNB. As a condition to its participation, however, BAII required that the Marceca Loan be "cross-collateralized" such that the proceeds from the sale of each apartment in any building would be applied fractionally to all of the eight partnerships. The cross-collateralization negotiations lasted nearly two months. At no time during its due diligence investigation or subsequent negotiations did BAII request any information or documents from MNB, Marceca or the Department of Law concerning the progress in obtaining regulatory approvals for converting the Marceca Properties.

No apartment building may be converted to cooperative ownership in New York State until the conversion plan has been accepted for filing by the Department of Law. As detailed in the district court opinions, the conversion occurs in several steps. First, the sponsor submits a draft proposal, referred to as a "red herring," to which the Department of Law must respond within six months. The Department of Law can accept *149 it in the form proposed, reject it outright, or issue a deficiency letter and allow the sponsor an opportunity to cure. Once the Department of Law determines that the conversion plan fully and fairly discloses the nature of the transaction and satisfies other regulatory and statutory requirements, the sponsor is notified that the plan will be accepted upon submission of the final corrected version, called a "black book". The conversion plan does not become final, however, until a designated percentage of a building's occupants enter into subscription agreements to acquire their apartments. Once that percentage is achieved, the sponsor files an amendment with the Department of Law, the conversion is declared effective, and the closing on the conversion may then take place. After the conversion plan is accepted, a minimum of 90 days typically elapses before the closing.

At the time the Marceca Loan closed on June 23, 1988, Marceca had submitted red herrings for two of the eight properties. As of July 13, the date BAII completed its due diligence, the regulatory status of the Marceca Properties was unchanged. On August 9, however, the Department of Law issued a deficiency letter informing Marceca that, because the mortgage agreement afforded MNB the right to approve the terms of the conversion plan, MNB was deemed a "co-sponsor" and should have been identified as such in the red herring's disclosure of sponsorship. This deficiency is referred to hereinafter as "the co-sponsorship issue". Marceca informed MNB of the co-sponsorship issue soon thereafter. On August 18, MNB wrote to the Department of Law explaining that MNB was a lender and was not actively involved with the conversion of the Marceca Properties. In mid-September, Marceca informed MNB that the Department of Law would be considering the co-sponsorship issue at a hearing scheduled for September 22 and that Marceca expected the issue to be resolved quickly. The co-sponsorship issue, however, remained unresolved until January 1989, when MNB agreed to modify the loan documents to eliminate the offending term of the mortgage.

On September 29, 1988, BAII executed the Participation Agreement committing it to purchase $10 million of the Marceca Loan. The Participation Agreement specifically addressed issues of disclosure and due diligence:

The Participant [BAII] acknowledges that it has reviewed all such relevant documents and financial statements as it deemed appropriate or necessary at the time and has had access to all of the records of the Borrowers and of the Lender [MNB] it wished to have, and an opportunity to make such inquiry of the Lender as to the Borrowers' financial conditions and as to the arrangements between the Borrowers and the Lender, and, has, in fact, made inquiry of the Lender in connection therewith to the extent the Participant felt such inquiry necessary or appropriate.

* * * * *

The Participant acknowledges that it has, independently and without reliance upon the Lender and based on such documents and information as the Participant has deemed appropriate or necessary, made its own credit analysis and decision to enter into this Participation Agreement. The Participant acknowledges that it has not relied upon any investigation performed by the Lender or upon any financial summaries, or credit memoranda or appraisals prepared by or on behalf of the Lender.... The Participant further acknowledges that it will, independently and without reliance upon the Lender and based on such documents and information as the Participant shall deem appropriate or necessary at the time, continue to make its own credit decisions in taking or not taking action under the Participation Agreement.

Paras. 1.2 and 5.3 (emphasis added). The Participation Agreement became effective on October 3, 1988 when BAI transferred $10 million to MNB.

Between Banque Arabe's completion of its due diligence review on July 13 and the October 3 transfer of the $10 million, BAI sought no information from anyone about the status of the proposed conversions. On the other hand, neither MNB nor Marceca volunteered information to Banque Arabe about the co-sponsorship issue or delays in obtaining the necessary regulatory approvals. On *150 August 24, however, MNB sent a revised status report (dated August 17) to those participants who had already funded the project, reporting that the Department of Law had been provided with new sponsor and refinancing information. The district court found that, if BAI had contacted the Department of Law to inquire about the status of the Marceca Properties, BAI would have been: (1) advised whether red herrings had been submitted to the Department of Law; (2) advised whether submitted red herrings had been accepted or rejected; and upon request, (3) provided with copies of red herrings submitted, all revisions and supporting documentation, and any deficiency letters and other correspondence between the Department of Law and the borrowers.

On November 10, 1988, MNB sent BAI an updated repayment schedule for the Marceca Loan, reflecting a four month delay in the principal payments. The November 10 letter attributed the delay to the fact that the Department of Law "failed to complete its review of the Red Herring Offering Plan ... in the statutorily required period of time (six months)." MNB did not tell BAI the reason for the delay, or mention the co-sponsorship issue by name, until January 19, 1989, when MNB sent BAI and the other participants a memorandum announcing that the issue had been resolved.

The New York City real estate market underwent a severe battering during the year 1989. As required by the Participation Agreement, BAI received monthly interest payments from October 3, 1988 to December 31, 1989. However, by reason of the regulatory delays caused by the co-sponsorship issue, as well as the industry's economic slide, the year 1989 ended without any of the Marceca Properties having been converted to tenant ownership. As a result, Marceca defaulted in January 1990. MNB foreclosed on the Marceca Properties in April 1991, and BAI received its pro rata share of the sale proceeds.

Early in 1990, Banque Arabe, BAI's French parent company, decided to transfer the assets of its American subsidiary and dissolve the BAI entity. On May 31, 1990, BAI executed an assignment agreement (the "Assignment") transferring its interests in the Participation Agreement to Banque Arabe. [FN2] As the party in interest, Banque Arabe commenced this action on October 3, 1990.

FN2. The Assignment provided, in relevant part, that: [A]s of May 31, 1990 [BAI] ("Assignor") ... has sold, assigned, transferred, and conveyed, and by these presents does sell, assign, transfer and convey unto [Banque Arabe] ("Assignee"), without recourse to the Assignor, all of [BAI's] rights, title and interest in (a) the Participation Agreement ... and (b) [BAI's] participation in a loan made by [MNB] on or about June 23, 1988 to [the Marceca

Properties] ... in the original principal amount of $35,000,000 Together with all of [BAII's] rights and interest in the transaction described in Paragraphs (a) and (b) above....

The complaint alleged numerous claims for relief against MNB, including: (1) rescission of the Participation Agreement on the ground of common law fraud and deceit; (2) negligent misrepresentation; (3) breach of contract; (4) gross negligence; and (5) breach of fiduciary duty. After Banque Arabe completed discovery, MNB moved for summary judgment. The district court granted summary judgment to MNB on all counts except Banque Arabe's claim for rescission. See Banque Arabe I, 819 F.Supp. at 1296. MNB contended that Banque Arabe lacked standing to assert the fraud claim underlying the demand for rescission, because the Assignment did not explicitly transfer tort claims to Banque Arabe. The district court expressly deferred ruling on that question, however, and proceeded to trial.

At the six-day bench trial, Banque Arabe pursued two theories of common law fraud: fraudulent misrepresentation and fraudulent concealment of material information. After trial, Judge Ward concluded that Banque Arabe lacked standing to raise a claim for rescission based upon fraud. Nevertheless, Judge Ward went on to address the merits of Banque Arabe's claim. As to fraudulent misrepresentation, the district court concluded that there was insufficient evidence of an affirmative misrepresentation, and no appeal is taken from that ruling. See *Banque Arabe 151 II, 850 F.Supp. at 1216. As to fraudulent concealment, Judge Ward concluded that Banque Arabe failed to prove that MNB had the requisite intent to defraud. In summary, Judge Ward found: (1) that MNB had a duty to disclose the existence of the co-sponsorship issue by reason of its "superior knowledge"; (2) that the co-sponsorship issue was material to BAII's funding decision and relevant to BAII's assessment of Marceca's creditworthiness; (3) that BAII reasonably relied on MNB's failure to disclose the co-sponsorship issue, which, if disclosed, would have been important to BAII's assessment of Marceca's character and ability to convert the properties; (4) that the delay in conversion attributable to the co-sponsorship issue was the proximate cause of the loss that BAII sustained; but (5) that Banque Arabe failed to prove by clear and convincing evidence that MNB intended to defraud BAII. Judge Ward declined to infer fraudulent intent from the fact that every dollar of BAII's participation reduced MNB's financial exposure in the Marceca transaction, and held that MNB's conduct was at worst an "error of judgment".

II. Discussion

Banque Arabe challenges two crucial rulings: (1) that Banque Arabe lacked standing to pursue a claim of rescission against MNB; and (2) that, in any event, Banque Arabe failed to establish that MNB had the requisite intent to defraud. In addition, Banque Arabe challenges the district court's grant of MNB's motion for summary judgment and the dismissal of Banque Arabe's claim for negligent misrepresentation. On cross-appeal, MNB challenges the following findings: (1) that MNB had a duty to disclose based on its alleged "superior knowledge" of the existence of the co-sponsorship issue; (2) that the co-sponsorship issue was material to Banque Arabe's funding decision and to its assessment of Marceca's creditworthiness; (3) that Banque Arabe reasonably relied on MNB's failure to disclose the co-sponsorship issue; and (4) that the delay in conversion due to the co-sponsorship issue was the proximate cause of the damages sustained by Banque Arabe. Since we hold that Banque Arabe has standing as transferee to seek rescission, we reach the merits of the claim. In so doing, however, we do not address the vexed issue of scienter, because we conclude as a matter of law that MNB had no duty to disclose the co-sponsorship issue and that Banque Arabe could not have reasonably relied on MNB for the disclosure of such information.

A. Standing

[1] The district court held that Banque Arabe lacked standing to assert BAII's tort claims against MNB, because, although the May 31, 1990 Assignment clearly transferred BAII's rights and interests in the Participation Agreement (and therefore any claims grounded in contract), the Assignment did not make an explicit assignment of BAII's claims in tort. We conclude that the Assignment transferred all of BAII's rights to Banque Arabe, tort as well as contract.

[2] Under New York law, the assignment of the right to assert contract claims does not automatically entail the right to assert tort claims arising from that contract. The district court relied principally on Fox v. Hirschfeld, 157 A.D. 364, 142 N.Y.S. 261 (1913), for the proposition that the assignment of fraud claims must be explicit. In Fox, the First Department held that the plaintiff-assignor had not relinquished his right to pursue claims for rescission or fraudulent misrepresentation notwithstanding his subsequent assignment to his wife of the real property at issue. Id. 142 N.Y.S. at 262-63. Fox has been construed to mean that, in the absence of an explicit assignment of a cause of action based on fraud, "only the ... assignor may rescind or sue for damages for fraud and deceit; the representations were made to [the assignor] and [the assignor] alone had the right to rely upon them." Nearpark Realty Corp. v. City Investing Co., 112 N.Y.S.2d 816, 817 (N.Y.Sup.Ct.1952). We assume that the doctrine expressed in Fox remains the law of New York and is not limited to real estate transactions.

As the district court recognized, New York law does not require specific boilerplate language to accomplish the transfer of causes of action sounding in tort. Rather, "any act or *152 words are sufficient which 'show an intention of transferring the chose in action to the assignee.'" Miller v. Wells Fargo Bank Int'l Corp., 540 F.2d 548, 557 (2d Cir.1976) (quoting Advance Trading Corp. v. Nydegger & Co., 127 N.Y.S.2d 800, 801 (N.Y.Sup.Ct.1953)). The district court concluded that the recitation transferring all "rights, title and interest" did not reflect a clear intention to transfer to Banque Arabe any tort claims arising out of either the Marceca Loan or the Participation Agreement. The district court therefore went on to consider extrinsic evidence. Officials of both BAII and Banque Arabe testified that they intended to transfer any and all rights, remedies and causes of action as part of the Assignment; however, on a subsequent occasion, when BAII sought to transfer existing litigation claims to an American parent holding company, BAII explicitly referenced such causes of action in the assignment agreement. [FN3] Judge Ward decided that BAII never "specifically and consciously" agreed to transfer its tort claims.

FN3. In an Assignment and Assumption Agreement dated April 10, 1992, BAII transferred all its litigation claims involving the accounts of Will Petroleum to BAII American Holding Corp. The Agreement stated: "The Liquidating Bank [BAII] hereby grants, assigns and conveys unto [BAII American Holding Corp.] all claims, accounts, actions, debts, causes of action and rights to pursue recovery of all sums...." Appellant asserts that the Will Petroleum Assignment was distinguishable because it referenced tort claims that had already been commenced and described the nature of each claim and the parties involved. Here, by contrast, when BAII executed the Assignment on May 31, 1990, there were no identified or existing claims between BAII and MNB.

We conclude that language in the Assignment alone is sufficient to demonstrate BAII's intent to transfer all of their rescission and fraud claims. Contract interpretation is generally a question of law and is subject to de novo review. See Goodheart Clothing Co. v. Laura Goodman Enters., Inc., 962 F.2d 268, 272 (2d Cir.1992); Network Publishing Corp. v. Shapiro, 895 F.2d 97, 99 (2d Cir.1990). A contract is not deemed ambiguous unless "it is reasonably susceptible of more than one interpretation, and a court makes this determination by reference to the contract alone." Burger King Corp. v. Horn & Hardart Co., 893 F.2d 525, 527 (2d Cir.1990); Breed v. Insurance Co. of N. Am., 46 N.Y.2d 351, 413 N.Y.S.2d 352, 385 N.E.2d 1280, 1282 (1978).

The May 31, 1990 Assignment transferred "all of [BAII's] rights, title and interest in (a)

the Participation Agreement." Standing alone, as the district court considered it, this reference to the contract may be deemed insufficient under Fox to transfer claims for rescission or fraud in the inducement. [FN4] However, the same provision of the Participation Agreement effects the transfer of all rights, title and interest in "(b) [BAII's] participation in [the Marceca Loan]." In order to ascribe meaning, if possible, to all of the contract terms, subparagraph (b) must be read to transfer something more than BAII's rights, title and interest in the Participation Agreement, as referenced in subparagraph (a). See United States Naval Inst. v. Charter Communications, 875 F.2d 1044, 1049 (2d Cir.1989) (citing Spaulding v. Benenati, 57 N.Y.2d 418, 456 N.Y.S.2d 733, 736, 442 N.E.2d 1244, 1247 (1982)). Elsewhere, the Assignment recites that transfer is being made of "all of [BAII's] rights and interest in the transaction described in Paragraphs (a) and (b)." (Emphasis added). We construe this interest in the "transaction" to be broader than an interest in the contract, and we predict that the New York Court of Appeals would deem this language sufficient to effect the assignment of tort claims based on fraud.

FN4. The language of the assignment agreement transferring the property from Fox to his wife stated: "For value received, I hereby sell, assign, transfer, and set over unto Melinea H. Fox all my right, title, and interest in and to the within contract." Fox, 142 N.Y.S. at 262. (Emphasis added).

In both Fox and Nearpark, the allocation of rights was a live issue because the question presented was whether the assignor or the assignee was the proper party to bring suit for rescission based on fraud. In this case, BAII drafted the Assignment in anticipation that BAII would be dissolved. The overall design and express commercial purpose of the Assignment transaction thereby reinforces our conclusion that the Assignment *153 contemplated the transfer of BAII's tort claims to Banque Arabe. A party about to become defunct has little incentive to reserve transactional rights when transferring its interests to its surviving parent corporation.

This conclusion is also consistent with the general trend in New York toward adopting principles of free assignability of claims, including those of fraud. See N.Y.Gen.Oblig.Law §§ 13-105 & 13-107 (McKinney 1978); see also ACLI Int'l Commodity Servs., Inc. v. Banque Populaire Suisse, 609 F.Supp. 434, 441-42 (S.D.N.Y.1984).

Because we conclude that the Assignment was effective, Banque Arabe is the real party in interest in this appeal. To this point, we have distinguished between BAII and Banque Arabe as separate entities. For the remainder of this discussion, however, we will refer to them without distinction as Banque Arabe.

B. Common Law Fraud

The district court concluded that Banque Arabe, having established every other element of its fraudulent concealment claim, failed to prove that MNB had the requisite intent to defraud when it withheld information concerning the co-sponsorship issue. [FN5] Banque Arabe argues on appeal that scienter need not always be shown to sustain a claim under New York law for rescission based on fraud. MNB's cross-appeal challenges the district court's conclusion, among others, (1) that MNB's "superior knowledge" created a duty to disclose the existence of the co-sponsorship issue, and (2) that Banque Arabe reasonably relied on MNB's failure to disclose the co-sponsorship issue.

FN5. Banque Arabe does not contest the district court's ruling that it failed to prove its claim of fraudulent misrepresentation.

[3][4] To prove common law fraud under New York law, a plaintiff must show that (1) the defendant made a material false representation, (2) the defendant intended to defraud the plaintiff thereby, (3) the plaintiff reasonably relied upon the representation, and (4) the plaintiff suffered damage as a result of such reliance. See Keywell Corp. v. Weinstein, 33 F.3d 159 (2d Cir.1994); Katara v. D.E. Jones Commodities, Inc., 835 F.2d 966, 970-71 (2d Cir.1987); see also Albert Apartment Corp. v. Corbo Co., 182 A.D.2d 500, 582 N.Y.S.2d 409, 410 (1992). To establish fraudulent concealment, a plaintiff must also prove that the defendant had a duty to disclose the material information. See Brass v. American Film Technologies, Inc., 987 F.2d 142, 152 (2d Cir.1993); Gurnee v. Hasbrouck, 267 N.Y. 57, 195 N.E. 683 (1935). Under New York law, each element of a fraud claim must be shown by clear and convincing evidence. Leucadia, Inc. v. Reliance Ins. Co., 864 F.2d 964, 971 (2d Cir.1988) (citing Hutt v. Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 95 A.D.2d 255, 466 N.Y.S.2d 28 (1983), cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1107, 109 S.Ct. 3160, 104 L.Ed.2d 1023 (1989)).

1. Scienter

On appeal, the parties dispute whether in New York scienter is a necessary element of a contract rescission claim premised on one party's withholding material information from the other. Banque Arabe relies on a line of cases involving "innocent misrepresentation." See, e.g., Seneca Wire & Mfg. Co. v. A.B. Leach & Co., 247 N.Y. 1, 159 N.E. 700 (1928). These cases generally hold that equitable considerations dictate that "an innocent misrepresentation of a material fact permits rescission even though made without the intent to deceive." Stern v. Satra Corp., 539 F.2d 1305, 1308 (2d Cir.1976); see also Seneca Wire, 247 N.Y. at 7-8; D'Angelo v. Bob Hastings Oldsmobile, Inc., 89 A.D.2d 785, 453 N.Y.S.2d 503 (1982), aff'd, 59 N.Y.2d 773, 464 N.Y.S.2d 724, 451 N.E.2d 471 (1983); West Side Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n of N.Y. City v. Hirschfeld, 101 A.D.2d 380, 476 N.Y.S.2d 292, 295 (1984), appeal denied, 65 N.Y.2d 605, 493 N.Y.S.2d 1028, 482 N.E.2d 1230 (1985). The district court characterized these "innocent misrepresentation" cases as a variant of the doctrine of mutual mistake: because both parties act under a false assumption (transmitted by one party) regarding a material issue of fact, rescission or reformation is available without a showing of scienter.

*154 The district court treated Banque

Arabe's allegations as a case of unilateral mistake, however, and held that Banque Arabe was therefore required to show either scienter or "wrongful conduct" on the part of MNB. See Allen v. WestPoint-Pepperell, Inc., 945 F.2d 40, 44 (2d Cir.1991). Banque Arabe cites Sheridan Drive-In, Inc. v. State of New York, 16 A.D.2d 400, 228 N.Y.S.2d 576 (1962), for the proposition that "there is a right of rescission for a unilateral mistake if the mistake was known to the other party at the time of the negotiation of the contract and was not corrected by it." Id. 228 N.Y.S.2d at 582. MNB responds that the facts in Sheridan describe the very type of "wrongful conduct" that the district court found lacking in this case.

[5] The cases we have reviewed do not allow us to predict with confidence how the New York Court of Appeals would reconcile these lines of cases on the facts presented. We decline to guess, and see no reason to certify the question, because (among other reasons) we can affirm the judgment of the district court on grounds pressed in MNB's cross-appeal. We hold that, under the circumstances of this case, MNB had no duty to disclose that the co-sponsorship issue might incrementally delay the approval of the conversion proposal for the Marceca Properties, and that Banque Arabe's reliance on MNB to disclose such information was not reasonable.

2. Materiality

[6] It is difficult to discuss MNB's duty to disclose, and the reasonableness of Banque Arabe's reliance on MNB's non-disclosure, without brief consideration of the undisclosed information-identified by the district court and Banque Arabe as the co-sponsorship issue-and its materiality to Banque Arabe's investment decision. [FN6] The co-sponsorship issue was ultimately resolved in January 1989 by MNB's agreement to modify the loan documents by relinquishing its right to approve certain aspects of the conversion plan. The problem was therefore remediable, and the remedy lay in the power of MNB, which had a great stake in the success of the transaction. There is therefore no reason to believe that the co-sponsorship issue would have been permitted to threaten MNB's investment or that of the participant banks.

FN6. The district court came to the diluted conclusion that had Banque Arabe possessed knowledge of the co-sponsorship issue it "would have been hesitant about funding." Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1224.

The materiality and significance of the co-sponsorship issue to Banque Arabe's funding decision has never been obvious. The complaint alleged that concealment of the co-sponsorship issue materially altered the June 1988 projected repayment schedule. Banque Arabe argued that these projections informed its credit analysis and were critical to its decision to fund. The district court, however, disagreed and squarely held that reliance on the June projections was unreasonable. See Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1222-23. At trial, Banque Arabe revised its theory of materiality, contending that the co-sponsorship issue was critical to its evaluation of Marceca's "character and capacity." The district court accepted Banque Arabe's altered theory of reliance, but we cannot see how the co-sponsorship issue would materially impact Banque Arabe's assessment of Mr. Marceca.

The co-sponsorship issue involved MNB's role in the conversion process, specifically, MNB's contractual power to approve the terms of the conversion plan. The Department of Law's concern about this arrangement had no moral overtone and shed no light on Marceca's character. Banque Arabe does not allege (nor is there any evidence) that Marceca consciously concealed from anyone that the Department of Law had raised the co-sponsorship issue or had issued a deficiency letter. To the contrary, Marceca informed MNB of both facts shortly after he received the letter. Nor is there any evidence that Marceca attempted to conceal the letter's effects. When asked by MNB, Marceca revised the projected repayment schedule on August 17, 1988 to reflect any delay that may be occasioned by the co-sponsorship issue. Marceca did not directly relay any information to Banque Arabe, but the district court found that this was because *155 Marceca did not think that the issue was material to the overall transaction. Id. at 1218-19.

Banque Arabe also contends that the co-sponsorship issue impacted its assessment of Marceca's capacity, meaning his "ability to convert" the properties to cooperative ownership based on his extensive experience in a "rather specialized form of property development," his "marketing savvy," and his "negotiating skills." Id. at 1224. Evaluation of this skill set, however, would not be affected by a relatively short incremental delay in receiving regulatory approvals: in fact, Marceca's ability to shepherd the conversion proposals through the regulatory process is one reason that he was entrusted with the conversion effort. His ability to resolve the co-sponsorship issue in four months is as much a tribute to his skill as evidence of any impaired capacity.

In short, the co-sponsorship issue was of doubtful materiality, a conclusion that bears upon the two related questions on which we decide this appeal: MNB's duty to disclose and the reasonableness of Banque Arabe's reliance.

3. Duty to Disclose

[7] In business negotiations, an affirmative duty to disclose material information may arise from the need to complete or clarify one party's partial or ambiguous statement, see Brass, 987 F.2d at 150 (citing Junius Constr. Corp. v. Cohen, 257 N.Y. 393, 400 (1931)), or from a fiduciary or confidential relationship between the parties, see id. (citing Allen v. WestPoint-Pepperell, Inc., 945 F.2d 40, 45 (2d Cir.1991)). Such a duty may also arise—as claimed here by Banque Arabe—where: (1) one party has superior knowledge of certain information; (2) that information is not readily available to the other party; and (3) the first party knows that the second party is acting on the basis of mistaken knowledge. See id. (citing Aaron Ferer & Sons Ltd. v. Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A., 731 F.2d 112, 123 (2d Cir.1984)); accord Young v. Keith, 112

A.D.2d 625, 627, 492 N.Y.S.2d 489 (1985).

[8] Of course, disclosure obligations may be modified by contract. See, e.g. Grumman Allied Indus. Inc. v. Rohr Indus., Inc., 748 F.2d 729, 734-35 (2d Cir.1984) (citing Danann Realty Corp. v. Harris, 5 N.Y.2d 317, 184 N.Y.S.2d 599, 157 N.E.2d 597 (1959)). In this case, Banque Arabe expressly recited in the Participation Agreement that it was not relying on MNB for information relevant to its independent credit analysis and funding decision, and would not so rely in the future. [FN7] "[W]here a party specifically disclaims reliance upon a representation in a contract, that party cannot, in a subsequent action for fraud, assert it was fraudulently induced to enter into the contract by the very representation it has disclaimed." Id. The Participation Agreement therefore operates as a waiver absolving MNB of responsibility to make affirmative disclosures concerning the financial risks of the Marceca Loan. See Banco Espanol de Credito v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank, 973 F.2d 51, 53, 56 (2d Cir.1992), cert. denied, 509 U.S. 903, 113 S.Ct. 2992, 125 L.Ed.2d 687 (1993). As the district court noted, however, even such an express waiver or disclaimer "will not be given effect where the facts are peculiarly within the knowledge of the party invoking it." Stambovsky v. Ackley, 169 A.D.2d 254, 572 N.Y.S.2d 672, 677 (1991) (citing Danann, 5 N.Y.2d at 322, 184 N.Y.S.2d 599, 157 N.E.2d 597).

FN7. In pertinent part, the Participation agreement recited that Banque Arabe had "independently and without reliance upon [MNB] ... made its own credit analysis and decision to enter into this Participation Agreement." Banque Arabe further acknowledged it would "independently and without reliance upon [MNB] ... continue to make its own credit decisions in taking or not taking action under the Participation Agreement."

[9] In this light, the district court held that MNB's "superior knowledge" created a duty to disclose the co-sponsorship issue to the extent that such information "was not readily available to [Banque Arabe] and was peculiarly within MNB's knowledge." Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1217. In order to recover on that ground, however, Banque Arabe was required to show that MNB knew that Banque Arabe was acting in reliance on mistaken knowledge regarding that issue. See *Frigitemp Corp. v. Financial Dynamics 156 Fund, Inc., 524 F.2d 275, 283 (2d Cir.1975). In the context of this case, Banque Arabe cannot make that showing.

MNB was a participant in the Marceca Loan as well as the loan syndicator, and therefore had every incentive to promote the success of the real estate venture. In so doing, MNB would necessarily keep its eye on the same set of factors and risks that the other participant banks would consider in evaluating the financial viability of the conversion project. We therefore cannot conclude that MNB "knew" that co-sponsorship-caused delay was critical to Banque Arabe unless we first conclude that MNB also deemed that issue critical to its own investment in the Marceca Loan. The record is uncontested, however, that MNB and Marceca considered the co-sponsorship issue unimportant, and did not expect its resolution to materially affect the timing of the pay-down schedule. Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1218-19. At any point after the issuance of the deficiency letter in August 1988, MNB had the power to cure the defect simply by deleting one paragraph from the conversion proposal, as it in fact did in January 1989. Although regulatory delay will sooner or later threaten this kind of real estate transaction, MNB could not have viewed with alarm a situation it could cure at will, and cannot be deemed to have "known" that Banque Arabe would attach so much greater importance to the delay.

Banque Arabe contends that MNB's economic interests were not in fact aligned with those of Banque Arabe, because MNB was the lead syndicating bank for the Marceca Loan. Thus Banque Arabe charges that MNB adopted a strategy to fraudulently induce Banque Arabe to participate in order to lay off $10 million of MNB's financial exposure (generating significant fee income at the same time). However, Banque Arabe does not explain why, if MNB was alarmed about the co-sponsorship issue, it would proceed to lay off part of its risk on an unsuspecting participant--and suffer the loss of its own remaining investment-- rather than simply cure the deficiency in the way it ultimately did. In any event, this sinister explanation of MNB's conduct is foreclosed by the district court's finding that MNB lacked scienter, and by the district court's refusal to infer any wrongdoing from the fact that MNB's loss was reduced by Banque Arabe's participation. [FN8] See id. at 1226.

FN8. The district court also found that MNB did not exhibit a conscious disregard of the truth when it failed to disclose the co-sponsorship issue. Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1226.

In summary, although the district court found that MNB had a duty to disclose the co-sponsorship issue, there is no basis in the record for concluding that MNB knew that Banque Arabe was either relying on MNB for that information or acting on the basis of mistaken information. Such knowledge is a prerequisite to a duty to disclose based upon superior knowledge and is therefore an indispensable element of Banque Arabe's claim. See Brass, 987 F.2d at 150.

4. Reasonable Reliance

[10] To prevail on its theory of fraudulent concealment, Banque Arabe was also required to establish that it actually relied on the disclosure or lack thereof, and that such reliance was reasonable or justifiable. See e.g., Harris v. Camilleri, 77 A.D.2d 861, 431 N.Y.S.2d 65, 68 (1980). Since the Participation Agreement expressly recited that Banque Arabe would not rely on information from MNB in making its "credit decisions" or in "taking or not taking action under the Participation Agreement," Banque Arabe could only rely on MNB to disclose information that was "peculiarly within the knowledge" of MNB. Stamovsky, 572 N.Y.S.2d at 677; see also Royal American Managers, Inc. v. IRC Holding Corp., 885 F.2d 1011, 1016 (2d Cir.1989) ("Where the representation relates to matters that are not peculiarly within the other party's knowledge and both parties have available the means of ascertaining the truth, New York courts have held that the complaining party should have discovered the facts and that any reliance under such circumstances therefore would be unjustifiable."); Mallis v. Bankers Trust, 615 F.2d 68, 80-81 (2d Cir.1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1123, 101 S.Ct. 938, 67 L.Ed.2d 109 (1981). We conclude that Banque Arabe could not have reasonably relied on MNB to *157 disclose the co-sponsorship issue because the prospect of an incremental delay in the regulatory approvals needed for converting those properties was a known and disclosed risk, and because information regarding the status of the conversion proposal for the Marceca Properties was readily accessible to any interested party who cared to make inquiry.

The deficiency letter was not a bolt from the blue, such as news that one of the apartment buildings under conversion had burned down, or that Marceca had died or filed for bankruptcy. The letter did not reject the conversion plan outright; it merely augured some lengthening of a regulatory process that would in no event be short and could not be expected to proceed without some active oversight or input by the Department of Law. The co-sponsorship issue, which was not by nature intractable or fatal, and was in fact disposed of simply by the renunciation of a non-essential contract provision, did not disrupt the calculus of known risks.

The district court treats the co-sponsorship issue specifically, and the delay attendant to that issue, as an unanticipated event. While no one apparently anticipated that the Department of Law would fix upon that specific issue, delay caused by regulatory oversight was a known risk. The regulatory process for converting apartments to cooperative ownership was disclosed by MNB and understood by Banque Arabe. Maurice Nahn, the Vice President responsible for conducting Banque Arabe's credit analysis, testified that he was fully aware of the mechanics of the regulatory procedures required to obtain approvals for conversion from the Department of Law. Nahn further testified that he had a basic understanding of the time it would take to obtain the approvals, and appreciated the risk that the Department of Law might issue a deficiency letter and that the sponsor would then be given time to respond and to cure the deficiency. At his deposition, Nahn stated that he was aware in June 1988 that obtaining the required regulatory approvals from the Department of Law was a "lengthy process." In describing the June 1988 projections, Nahn stated that they were premised on an aggressive estimate that the conversion of each building would take approximately nine months from the submission of the red herring to the closing.

No one could reasonably assume that the regulatory scrutiny of this complex transaction would be quick and free from incident, but only Banque Arabe could gauge how much regulatory delay or risk it could tolerate. Ultimately, Banque Arabe's position is untenable because the more it argues that the current regulatory status of the conversion plans was crucial to its funding decision, the more unaccountable becomes its failure to inquire about it.

Information concerning the co-sponsorship issue was not "peculiarly within the knowledge" of MNB, see Stambovsky, 572 N.Y.S.2d at 677, because it was readily available to Banque Arabe or any interested party who cared to ask. The district court found that had Banque Arabe contacted the Department of Law and inquired about the status of the Marceca Properties, the Department of Law

(a) would have advised [Banque Arabe] whether red herrings had been submitted and for which buildings; (b) advised [Banque Arabe] whether red herrings submitted to the Department of Law had been accepted or rejected; and (c) made available for review and copying by [Banque Arabe] the red herrings submitted by the Marceca borrowers, any revised versions thereof, any supporting documentation submitted by the Marceca borrowers to the Department of Law, and any deficiency letters and other correspondence between the Department of Law and the borrowers or their counsel and the Department of Law concerning any plans that had been rejected. See Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1204 (emphasis added). [FN9] The deficiency letter *158 would have told Banque Arabe--or alerted it to--all it needed to know. Banque Arabe also had private channels for inquiry concerning the status of the regulatory approvals. As part of Banque Arabe's due diligence, Nahn participated in meetings and conference calls with representatives of MNB and met individually with Marceca to discuss the transaction. Banque Arabe therefore had direct or indirect access to the people most familiar with the building conversions and the current status of regulatory approvals. At no time, however, during its due diligence investigation or subsequent negotiations did Banque Arabe request any information or documents from MNB or Marceca concerning the status of the conversion or the Marceca Properties.

FN9. In discussing the scope of MNB's duty to disclose, the district court stated the following: Clearly, MNB had to relay to [Banque Arabe] the existence of the co-sponsorship issue. [Banque Arabe] could not have learned of this information from the Department of Law, which does not comment publicly on a matter referred to the Enforcement Division. Even more definitely, [Banque Arabe] could not have received this information through communication with Marceca. Banque Arabe II, 850 F.Supp. at 1216-17. We find this conclusion to be clearly erroneous in light of the district court's finding of fact that Banque Arabe could have received a copy of the deficiency letter directly from the Department of Law detailing the objection to MNB's co-sponsorship of and participation in the conversion of the Marceca Properties.

In short, incremental regulatory delay was a known risk, the particulars of which at any given time Banque Arabe could have learned by inquiry from any of several sources. It was therefore unreasonable for Banque Arabe to rely on MNB to intuit Banque Arabe's sensitivity on this issue and volunteer information that Banque Arabe was not seeking. See, e.g., Grumman, 748 F.2d at 739 (rejecting plaintiff's claim of a duty of disclosure because plaintiff had access to the alleged omitted information).

C. Negligent Misrepresentation

Banque Arabe alleges that the district court improperly dismissed its claim of negligent misrepresentation.

[11] Under New York law, a plaintiff may not recover for negligent misrepresentation in the absence of a special relationship of trust or confidence between the parties. See Congress Financial Corp. v. John Morrell & Co., 790 F.Supp. 459, 474 (S.D.N.Y.1992); accord White v. Guarente, 43 N.Y.2d 356, 363, 401 N.Y.S.2d 474, 372 N.E.2d 315 (1977); Coolite Corp. v. American Cyanamid Co., 52 A.D.2d 486, 384 N.Y.S.2d 808, 811 (1976).

Summary judgment is appropriate where "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(c). We review a district court's grant of summary judgment de novo, viewing the evidence "in a light most favorable to ... the non-moving party, and draw[ing] all reasonable inferences in his favor." Aslanidis v. United States Lines, Inc., 7 F.3d 1067, 1072 (2d Cir.1993).

[12][13] Generally, banking relationships are not viewed as special relationships giving rise to a heightened duty of care. See Aaron Ferer, 731 F.2d at 122 (stating that the usual relationship of a bank and its customer is not a fiduciary one, but simply that of debtor and creditor). In the case of arm's length negotiations or transactions between sophisticated financial institutions, no extra-contractual duty of disclosure exists. See Banco Espanol de Credito v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank, 763 F.Supp. 36, 44 (S.D.N.Y.1991); see also Banco Espanol, 973 F.2d at 56. This same principle applies to loan participation agreements, in which there is deemed to be no fiduciary relationship unless expressly and unequivocally created by contract. See Banco Espanol, 763 F.Supp. at 45; see also First Citizens Fed.Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Worthen Bank & Trust Co., 919 F.2d 510, 513-14 (9th Cir.1990). Here, Banque Arabe and MNB engaged in arm's length negotiations and the Participation Agreement explicitly disclaims any reliance by Banque Arabe on MNB for information regarding its credit analysis and funding decision. Furthermore, as discussed above, access to the supposedly concealed information was in fact available to Banque Arabe in the course of its due diligence, and thereafter.

Because no "special relationship" exists between Banque Arabe and MNB, the district court properly dismissed Banque Arabe's claim for negligent misrepresentation.

*159 Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, we affirm the district court's judgment.

The BENJAMIN SHAPIRO REALTY
COMPANY, LLC, Plaintiff-Appellant,
v.
KEMPER NATIONAL INSURANCE
COMPANIES, et al., Defendants-Respondents.

March 18, 2003.

Landlord brought action against tenant's insurance broker, asserting negligent misrepresentation and negligence claims arising from broker's alleged issuance of certificates of insurance indicating landlord as additional insured even though there was no additional coverage for landlord's benefit. The Supreme Court, New York County, Karla Moskowitz, J., granted broker's motion for summary judgment and denied landlord's motion for leave to serve second amended complaint. On landlord's appeal, the Supreme Court, Appellate Division, held that: (1) insurance broker had no duty to landlord, and (2) trial court properly denied motion for leave to serve second amended complaint.

[1][2] The motion court properly held that defendant Tanenbaum-Harber Co., the insurance broker of plaintiff landlord's tenant, was under no duty to plaintiff and, accordingly, was not liable to plaintiff for negligent misrepresentation or negligence by reason of Tanenbaum's issuance of certificates of insurance representing that the tenant's insurance policy, naming plaintiff as an additional insured, contained rental coverage insurance for plaintiff's benefit, even though such coverage was not included in the policy. Plaintiff and Tanenbaum had no contractual relationship and the fact that plaintiff had contact with Tanenbaum in the course of obtaining the certificates of 246 insurance did not give rise to the sort of relationship, i.e., one approaching that of privity, requisite to the imposition of liability for negligent misrepresentation (see *Credit Alliance v. Nor was any triable issue presented as to whether plaintiff had enforceable rights as a third-party beneficiary of a contract between the tenant and Tanenbaum.

Since the causes that plaintiff sought to add against Tanenbaum were plainly without merit, the motion court properly denied plaintiff's cross motion for leave to serve a second amended complaint (see Koss v. Bd. of Trustees of the Fashion Inst., 281 A.D.2d 200, 727 N.Y.S.2d 303).

Any reliance by purchasers on listing agent's alleged misrepresentation that vendor had 15 acres to sell and that all 15 acres were included in purchase was not justified or reasonable, precluding claims of fraud or negligent misrepresentation, since vendor's ownership of only five acres was matter of public record, readily ascertainable from abstract of title provided to purchasers' attorney for her review prior to closing, and purchasers were chargeable with notice of discrepancies that their attorney failed to disclose to them.

MEMORANDUM:

Supreme Court erred in denying the motion of defendant Audrey Edelman & Associates (Edelman) seeking summary judgment dismissing the complaint and cross claims against it. This action arises from the purchase of real estate by plaintiffs from defendant Citicorp Mortgage, Inc. (Citicorp) in a transaction in which Edelman was the listing agent and defendant Commonfund Mortgage Corporation was the mortgagee. Plaintiffs commenced this action after discovering that the deed conveyed fewer acres than they expected. Plaintiffs seek damages from Edelman for fraud and negligent misrepresentation based on alleged misrepresentations by Edelman that Citicorp had 15 acres to sell and that all 15 acres were included in the purchase.

We agree with Edelman's contention that any reliance by plaintiffs upon those alleged misrepresentations was not justified or reasonable. Citicorp's ownership of only five acres was a matter of public record, readily ascertainable from the abstract of title provided to plaintiffs' attorney for her review prior to the closing. Indeed, the deed accurately sets forth the description and boundaries of the property. Plaintiffs "had the means available to [them] of knowing, by the exercise of ordinary intelligence, the truth concerning the description and boundar[ies] of the land ... [and, because they] failed to make use of such means, [they] will not be heard to complain that [they were] induced to enter into the purchase by misrepresentation" (Kurz v. Nicolo, 125 A.D.2d 993, 993, 510 N.Y.S.2d 390; see Mosca v. Kiner, 277 A.D.2d 937, 938, 716 N.Y.S.2d 543; Parkway Woods v. Petco Enters., 201 A.D.2d 713, 608 N.Y.S.2d 314). We reject the contention of plaintiffs that they are not charged with notice of the discrepancies *808 that their attorney failed to disclose to them (see Otsego Aviation Serv. v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 277 App.Div. 612, 618, 102 N.Y.S.2d 344). We therefore grant the motion of Edelman and dismiss the complaint and cross claims against it.

It is hereby ORDERED that the order so appealed from be and the same hereby is unanimously reversed on the law without costs, the motion is granted and the complaint and cross claims against defendant Audrey Edelman & Associates are dismissed.

OPINION AND ORDER

COTE, J.

*1 Plaintiff Bombardier Capital, Inc. ("BCI") brought this diversity action on December 24, 2002 against defendants Naske Air GMBH ("Naske Air"), Erbgemeinschaft/Ortwin R. Naske ("Naske Estate") and Wilmington Trust Company, as Owner Trustee ("Wilmington Trust") (collectively, "Borrowers"), for a collection of debt. BCI alleges that Naske Air defaulted under a loan agreement executed in connection with the purchase of an aircraft. BCI seeks monetary damages from Naske Air and the Naske Estate, and an order directing Wilmington Trust, as the aircraft's owner trustee, to relinquish possession of the aircraft.

On March 19, 2003, Borrowers filed an answer and counterclaim against BCI. BCI now moves to dismiss Borrowers' counterclaims and related affirmative defenses. For the reasons stated below, the motion is granted.

Background

The parties' pleadings allege the following. BCI is in the business of financing the purchase of commercial equipment, including aircraft. On or about May 9, 2001, Naske Air entered into a loan agreement with BCI ("Loan Agreement") in which BCI financed Naske Air's purchase and refurbishment of a 1981 Bombardier CL-600-1A11 aircraft ("Aircraft") for $6,075,000. The loan to Naske Air was guaranteed by Ortwin Naske ("Naske"), Naske Air's principal, pursuant to a Guaranty ("Guaranty") also dated the same day. Both the Loan Agreement and the Guaranty contained New York choice of law provisions, and named the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York as the proper venue for any legal action arising from the contracts.

In the summer of 2001, Naske died in an airplane crash. After Naske's death, Naske Air ceased making loan payments, and subsequently informed BCI orally and in writing that it would make no further payments. BCI demanded payment from the Naske Estate as Naske's successor under the Guaranty. The Naske Estate refused orally and in writing to make any payments to BCI.

In their answer, Borrowers assert counterclaims of fraudulent inducement, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of fiduciary duty. Borrowers allege that BCI fraudulently induced Naske Air to purchase the Aircraft at inflated prices because BCI, as the main creditor of the Aircraft's then-owner, had "an interest in substituting a more creditworthy entity, such as Naske Air, to take over the payment obligations for the Aircraft." Because of its expertise in the valuation of aircraft, BCI knew or should have known that the price paid by Naske Air was too high. Borrowers allege "upon information and belief" that "[BCI] ... was aware of the Aircraft's condition and fair market value." BCI made affirmative representations to the Borrowers with the intent to create reliance that the Aircraft was of sufficient value to collateralize the loan. BCI was under a duty to disclose the actual value of the Aircraft, and its failure to do so was fraudulent.

Borrowers' claim for negligent misrepresentation alleges that BCI's representations and omissions regarding the value of the Aircraft were made in a negligent, careless, and/or reckless manner, and that Naske Air relied upon such misrepresentations to their detriment. Finally, Borrowers allege that BCI breached its fiduciary duty to act in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner by preventing Naske Air from reselling the Aircraft. Upon Naske's death, Borrowers entered into a binding contract with a creditworthy third-party purchaser for a sale at a reasonable price. As part of the contract of sale, the third-party purchaser required that BCI allow it to assume the existing financing arrangement for the Aircraft. BCI, through one of its agents, agreed to this condition, but, after much delay, rescinded its promise. As a result, the third party purchaser withdrew its offer, and Naske Air was unable to complete the sale of the Aircraft.

*2 BCI has moved to dismiss Borrowers' three counterclaims on the following grounds: (1) the fraudulent inducement and negligent misrepresentation counterclaims are defectively pled in that they lack the specificity required under Rule 9(b), Fed.R.Civ.P., (2) the negligent misrepresentation counterclaim fails to allege the existence of a "special relationship" with Naske Air, as required by New York law for claims of negligent misrepresentation, and (3) the fiduciary duty claim fails as a matter of law because BCI owed them no such duty.

Discussion

A motion to dismiss is governed by Rule 12(b)(6), Fed.R.Civ.P. To dismiss a claim pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), a court must determine that "it appears beyond doubt, even when the [claim] is liberally construed, that the [moving party] can prove no set of facts which would entitle him to relief." Jaghory v. New York State Dep't of Educ., 131 F.3d 326, 329 (2d Cir.1997) (citation omitted). In construing a pleading, the court must "accept all factual allegations in the [claim] as true and draw inferences from those allegations in the light most favorable to the [pleader]." Id. "Given the Federal Rules' simplified standard for pleading, a court may dismiss a [claim] only if it is clear that no relief could be granted under any set of facts that could be proved consistent with the allegations." Swierkiewicz v. Sorema, N.A., 534 U.S. 506, 514, 122 S.Ct. 992, 152 L.Ed.2d 1 (2002) (citation omitted). The court need not credit general conclusory allegations that "are believed by more specific allegations of the [pleading]." Hirsch v. Arthur Andersen & Co., 72 F.3d 1085, 1092 (2d Cir.1995).

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure require that a pleading contain "a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief." Rule 8(a)(2), Fed.R.Civ.P. Pleadings are to give "fair notice" of a claim in order to enable the opposing party to answer and prepare for trial, and to identify the nature of the case. Simmons v. Abruzzo, 49 F.3d 83, 86 (2d Cir.1995); Salahuddin v. Cuomo, 861 F.2d 40, 42 (2d Cir.1988). "Rule 8(a)'s simplified pleading standard applies to all civil actions, with limited exceptions." Swierkiewicz, 534 U.S. at 513.

One of the exceptions to Rule 8's simplified pleading standard applies to claims of fraud. Claims of fraud are governed by Rule 9(b), Fed.R.Civ.P. Although "[m]alice, intent, knowledge, and other condition of mind of a person may be averred generally," Kalnit v. Eichler, 264 F.3d 131, 138 (2d Cir.2001), Rule 9(b) requires allegations of fraud to be stated with particularity. See Ganino v. Citizens Utils. Co., 228 F.3d 154, 168 (2d Cir.2000). The purpose behind Rule 9(b)'s heightened pleading requirement is to provide fair notice of a claim, to safeguard a party's reputation from improvident charges of wrongdoing, and to protect against the institution of a strike suit. See Acito v. IMCERA Group, Inc., 47 F.3d 47, 52 (2d Cir.1995). To comply with the requirements of Rule 9(b), an allegation of fraud must specify: "(1) those statements the plaintiff thinks were fraudulent, (2) the speaker, (3) where and when they were made, and (4) why plaintiff believes the statements fraudulent." Koehler v. Bank of Bermuda (New York) Ltd., 209 F.3d 130, 136 (2d Cir.2000).

Fraudulent Inducement

*3 [1] The Borrowers' claim of fraudulent inducement rests on two alternative theories. First, Borrowers assert that BCI's failure to disclose the "true value" of the Aircraft is a fraud by omission. Second, Borrowers allege misrepresentations by BCI that the "Aircraft was of sufficient value to fully collateralize the loan proceeds at the time of the sale to Naske." Under either theory, the claim of fraudulent inducement must be dismissed.

Under New York law, in order for an omission to be fraudulent, the party accused of fraud must have had a duty to speak. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. v. C.A. Reaseguradora Nacional de Venezuela, 991 F.2d 42, 47 (2d Cir.1993). Such a duty "ordinarily arises where the parties are in a fiduciary or other relationship signifying a heightened level of trust." Remington Rand Corp. v. Amsterdam-Rotterdam Bank, N.V., 68 F.3d 1478, 1483 (2d Cir.1995). For example, a duty to disclose may arise if "one party possesses superior knowledge, not readily available to the other, and knows that the other is acting on the basis of mistaken knowledge." Id. at 1484. See also Ceribelli v. Elghanayan, 990 F.2d 62, 64 (2d Cir.1993). The relationship between debtor and creditor is not, absent special circumstances, a fiduciary relationship. In Re Mid-Island Hospital, Inc., 276 F.3d 123, 130 (2d Cir.2002); Wiener v. Lazard Freres & Co., 241 A.D.2d 114, 672 N.Y.S.2d 8, 14 (1st Dept.1998). "When parties deal at arms length in a commercial transaction, no relation of trust or confidence sufficient to find the existence of a fiduciary relationship will arise absent extraordinary circumstances." In Re Mid-Island, 276 F.3d at 130.

The Borrowers have not pleaded sufficient facts from which to infer the existence of a fiduciary relationship between themselves and BCI. In particular, Borrowers fail to plead sufficient facts to show how BCI's knowledge of the value of the Aircraft was superior to their own. Borrowers' only allegation of superior knowledge is that "upon information and belief" BCI is an "expert" in the "evaluation of the market for various aircraft [sic]," while Naske Air "had no comparable expertise." These allegations are insufficient to support the necessary imbalance in light of the pleadings' averments that Naske Air is itself an airline company and the absence of any allegation that Naske Air was denied an opportunity to inspect the Aircraft. The claim of fraudulent inducement, to the extent it is based on an omission theory, is dismissed.

[2] Borrowers' alternative theory of fraudulent inducement is based upon a misrepresentation theory. Because a fraudulent inducement claim necessarily involves allegations of fraud, it must meet Rule 9(b)'s heightened pleading requirements. See Hoffenberg v. Hoffman & Pollok, 248 F.Supp.2d 303, 310-11 (S.D.N.Y.2003). Borrowers' conclusory allegations are not sufficient to meet Rule 9(b)'s pleading requirements. Borrowers fail to identify the allegedly fraudulent statements made by BCI, the speaker or speakers of the allegedly fraudulent statements, or when and where the statements were made.

*4 Borrowers admit that their fraudulent inducement claim is not pled with sufficient particularity, but contend that Naske's death entitles them to relief from the strictures of Rule 9(b) since Naske was the only person who had contact with BCI in negotiating the loan. They rely on the principle that facts peculiarly within the opposing party's knowledge may be pled on information and belief despite Rule 9(b)'s heightened pleading requirements. See IUE AFL-CIO Pension Fund v. Herrmann, 9 F.3d 1049, 1058 (2d Cir.1993) (need not plead those facts to which plaintiff was never privy); Wexner v. First Manhattan Co., 902 F.2d 169, 172 (2d Cir.1990) (exception is not a license for speculation). Even when facts are exclusively within the other party's control, however, a complaint must still contain specific facts supporting a strong inference of fraud. See, e.g., Wexner, 902 F.2d at 172; Elliott Assocs.,

L.P. v. Covance, Inc., No. 00-C4115 (SAS), 2000 WL 1752848, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Nov.28, 2000) (citing Devaney v. A.P. Chester, 813 F.2d 566, 569 (2d Cir.1987)). Naske's death does not relieve Borrowers of their obligation to plead the specific representations that constitute the fraud and to identify the speaker and date of the representations. Without such basic information, the allegations constitute little more than speculation. Borrowers' failure to plead any specific facts to support the claim of fraudulent inducement requires that this counterclaim and its associated affirmative defenses be dismissed.

Negligent Misrepresentation

[3] Under New York law, a claim for negligent misrepresentation requires proof that

(1) the defendant had a duty, as a result of a special relationship, to give correct information; (2) the defendant made a false representation that he or she should have known was incorrect; (3) the information supplied in the representation was known by the defendant to be desired by the plaintiff for a serious purpose; (4) the plaintiff intended to rely and act upon it; and (5) the plaintiff reasonably relied on it to her detriment.

Hydro Investors, Inc. v. Trafalgar Power Inc., 227 F.3d 8, 20 (2d Cir.2000). A "special relationship" is akin to a fiduciary relationship, but need not rise to that same level. See Lehman Bros. Commercial Corp. v. Minmetals Intern. Non-Ferrous Metals Trading Co., 179 F.Supp.2d 118 (S.D.N.Y.2000). Liability for negligent misrepresentation is imposed only on those "who possess unique or specialized expertise, or who are in a special position of confidence and trust with the injured party such that reliance on the negligent misrepresentation is justified." Kimmel v. Schaefer, 89 N.Y.2d 257, 263, 652 N.Y.S.2d 715, 675 N.E.2d 450 (1996). In commercial cases, there must be an "identifiable source of a special duty of care." Id. at 264, 652 N.Y.S.2d 715, 675 N.E.2d 450. "Whether the nature and caliber of the relationship between the parties is such that the injured party's reliance on a negligent misrepresentation is justified generally raises an issue of fact." Id. In determining whether justifiable reliance exists in a particular case, a fact finder should consider "whether the person making the representation held or appeared to hold unique or special expertise; whether a special relationship of trust or confidence existed between the parties; and whether the speaker was aware of the use to which the information would be put and supplied it for that purpose." Id.

*5 Using Kimmel's three-part analysis, Borrowers fail to plead justifiable reliance on BCI's misrepresentations. Although Borrowers allege that BCI had superior knowledge in the valuation of aircraft, that Borrowers had no comparable expertise, and that BCI obtained an independent appraisal listing the true value of the Aircraft as substantially less than Borrowers paid for it, in light of the entire pleading, these allegations do not suggest that BCI's expertise was sufficiently unique or special. As already noted, Naske Air is identified as an airline company and there is no allegation that it was denied an opportunity to inspect or appraise the Aircraft. Borrowers also fail to plead the existence of a special relationship of trust and confidence with BCI. Borrowers do allege that BCI made representations that the Aircraft was of sufficient value to collateralize the loan, and that BCI knew that Borrowers would rely on its expertise. Their adequate pleading of one of the three Kimmel factors, however, is insufficient to survive a motion to dismiss. See Suez Equity Investors, L.P. v. Toronto-Dominion Bank, 250 F.3d 87, 103-104 (2d Cir.2001) (adequate pleading of two of the three Kimmel factors sufficient to overcome a motion to dismiss).

Breach of Fiduciary Duty

As discussed supra, the counterclaims fail to plead that BCI and Borrowers were in a fiduciary relationship. Consequently, Borrowers' counterclaim for breach of fiduciary duty fails as a matter of law. Borrowers make only bare assertions of the existence of such a relationship between Naske Air and BCI. Conclusory assertions that one party is acting in a fiduciary capacity for another is not sufficient to plead the existence of a fiduciary relationship when the pleadings also contain allegations that the parties were in a borrower/lender relationship. Because the Borrowers do not adequately allege a fiduciary relationship, it is unnecessary to discuss whether BCI's failure to approve the third-party purchaser's application for credit constitutes a breach of fiduciary duty.

Conclusion

The motion by Bombardier Capital Inc. to dismiss the counterclaims and their associated affirmative defenses is granted.

Defendants.

No. 89 Civ. 8645 (WCC).

July 30, 1993.

As Amended Aug. 30, 1993.

Investors brought suit against investment advisor, claiming securities fraud and RICO violations arising out of investments in limited partnership. Parties moved for summary judgment. The District Court, William C. Conner, J., held that: (1) material issues of fact, precluding summary judgment for investors, existed as to whether advisor had failed to disclose that it was receiving commissions from partnerships, and (2) material issues of fact, precluding summary judgment for parent of advisor, existed as to whether parent could be found to have conspired with advisor in withholding information to investors.

Motions denied.

[1] Federal Civil Procedure 2465.1
170Ak2465.1

Regardless of whether trial of case is to be before judge or jury, standard for granting summary judgment remains the same, and is available only when, after drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of party opposing motion, no reasonable trier of fact could find for nonmoving party.

[2] Federal Civil Procedure 2511
170Ak2511

Material issues of fact, precluding summary judgment on behalf of investors, existed as to whether sellers of interests in investment had disclosed that they received commissions from promoters of investments; writings indicating that payments were made by promoters to seller used terms such as "fees," which were ambiguous and could be interpreted to mean either commissions for sales or fees in connection with other services, such as due diligence. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, § 10(b), 15 U.S.C.A. § 78j(b); 18 U.S.C.A. § 1961 et seq.

[3] Federal Civil Procedure 2511
170Ak2511

Material issues of fact, precluding summary judgment, existed as to whether investment advisor providing advice to executives of corporation had violated terms of agreement with corporation, by acting as seller of investment opportunities in limited partnerships while violating representation made to corporation that advisor was not seller of financial instruments; question whether advisor was seller would turn on whether advisor had received commissions from partnerships, issue which was "hotly contested." Conspiracies involving securities fraud may serve as predicate acts for RICO claims, even though there is some authority that no private rights of action for conspiracy exist for violations of Rule 10b-5. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, § 10(b), 15 U.S.C.A. § 78j(b); 18 U.S.C.A. § 1961 et seq.

[5] Conspiracy 2

91k2

Corporation was not entitled to summary judgment on conspiracy charges, based on claim that it could not have conspired with its subsidiary to defraud investors in limited partnerships being touted by subsidiary; alleged conspiracy involved third parties in addition to subsidiary.

[6] Conspiracy 2

91k2

To sustain conspiracy claim, plaintiff need show only that conspirators agreed on common purpose, and need not show that every conspirator conspired directly with every other member of conspiracy.

[7] Conspiracy 19

91k19

Direct proof of conspiracy is seldom available, therefore an illicit agreement may be shown by circumstantial evidence.

[8] Conspiracy 19

91k19

Proof of tacit, as opposed to explicit, understanding is sufficient to show agreement to conspire, and among factors fact finder may consider in inferring conspiracy are relationship of parties, proximity of time and place of acts, and duration of actors' joint activity.

[9] Conspiracy 2

91k2

To demonstrate conspiracy plaintiffs need not show that each conspirator agreed to every detail of conspiracy, but only that each agreed on essential nature of plan.

[10] Conspiracy 21

91k21

Material issues of fact, precluding summary judgment, existed as to claim by parent corporation of investment advisor firm that it was unaware that advisor was receiving commissions from limited partnership investments which it was touting and had consequently not engaged in conspiracy with subsidiary to defraud investors; there was evidence that subsidiary had provided parent with detailed information regarding each investment in question, showing that commission income was being received.

[11] Conspiracy 9

91k9

Term "placement fee" was synonymous with term "commissions" for purposes of determining whether parent of investment advisor, who had received information that advisor had been given "placement fee" in connection with investment in limited partnership, was participant in conspiracy to conceal from investors fact that partnerships had given advisor "commissions" for having touted investment.

[12] Conspiracy 19

91k19

There was evidence to support determination that parent of subsidiary which was investment advisor had committed acts in furtherance of conspiracy with advisor to keep investors from discovering that limited partnerships in which investments had been made upon advisor's recommendation were paying commissions to advisor; parent had omitted from filings with Securities and Exchange Commission any discussions of subsidiary's sales of those limited partnership interests.

218 OPINION AND ORDER

WILLIAM C. CONNER, District Judge:

Plaintiffs Borden, Inc., et al. bring this action against Spoor Behrins Campbell & Young, Inc. ("SBCY"), each of SBCY's principals (T. Richard Spoor, Kenneth R. Behrins, Robert L. Campbell, and Michael D. Young), First Interstate Investment Services, Inc. ("FIIS"), and First Interstate Bank, Ltd. ("FIB") for violations of section 10(b) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, 15 U.S.C. § 78j(b), and SEC Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder; [FN1] violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq.; and for numerous common law violations. The action is presently before the Court on the parties' cross motions for partial summary judgment. The motions are denied.

FN1. Plaintiffs state claims for direct securities fraud, aiding and abetting, control person liability, and conspiracy to commit securities fraud.

BACKGROUND

SBCY is a personal financial planning boutique established in 1978 which was acquired by FIB, through FIB's subsidiary FIIS, on May 25, 1983, and operated as a wholly owned subsidiary from that date until the end of 1987. On February 2, 1979, Borden, Inc. ("Borden") retained SBCY to provide financial advice to a selected group of its executives ("the individual plaintiffs") for a period of one year, and the contract was renewed annually through the end of 1985. During the course of this relationship, SBCY recommended that these Borden executives purchase interests in a number of limited partnerships as tax shelters. The gravamen of the complaint is that by failing to disclose payments SBCY received from each of these partnerships, defendants fraudulently induced 51 purchases by the individual plaintiffs of interests in 20 separate limited partnerships.

In support of the instant motions, plaintiffs argue that the undisputed facts show that SBCY received undisclosed commissions on 40 of their purchases in 15 of the limited partnership at issue, [FN2] and defendants FIB and FIIS ("the FIB defendants") argue that they can not be held liable for SBCY's alleged fraudulent behavior that occurred prior to their acquisition of SBCY. Both summary judgment motions are denied.

FN2. Investments in the following limited partnerships are the subject of this motion: Holiday Assoc. of Marathon Key ("Marathon Key"); Triangle Professional Assoc. ("Triangle"); Holiday

Assoc. of Mt. Vernon ("Mt. Vernon"); Holiday Assoc. of Lake Placid, Florida ("Lake Placid"); Transpac 1982-5, 1982-8; Transpac 1983-II; Historic Inns of Annapolis L.P. ("Historic Inns"); Mt. Ida Assoc. ("Mt. Ida"); Marbury Hotel Assoc. of Georgetown Ltd. ("Marbury"); Frick Building Investors. Ltd. ("Frick"); Holiday Assoc. of Sebring ("Sebring"); Market Street Investors L.P. ("Market St."); Searay Partners L.P. ("Searay"); 200 Main St., State Street ("200 Main St."); and T.W. Decisions. Pls.' Br. in Sup. at 5-6.

DISCUSSION

I. Plaintiffs' Motion For Partial Summary Judgment

[1] Plaintiffs seek partial summary judgment on the following claims: Rule 10b-5, (direct, aiding and abetting, and control person liability) (Counts I, II, XVI), RICO (Counts XIV, XV), common law fraud (Count IV), breach of fiduciary duty (Count VIII); aiding and abetting common law tort (Count XIII); breach of contract (Count VI); and imposition of a constructive trust (Count XII). [FN3] In urging us to grant their motion, plaintiffs argue that summary judgment in this case is particularly appropriate because if the case were to go to trial, the Court and not a jury would sit as the finder of fact. Pls.' Br. in Reply at 7. Contrary to plaintiffs' counsel's insinuation, the standard for granting summary judgment under Rule 56, Fed.R.Civ.P., remains the same whether a jury trial or a bench trial is anticipated. In either case summary judgment may be *219 granted only when, after drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of the party opposing the motion, no reasonable trier of fact could find for the nonmoving party. Lund's, Inc. v. Chemical Bank, 870 F.2d 840, 844 (2d Cir.1989). A summary judgment is not appropriate where material factual matters are in dispute. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Turtur, 892 F.2d 199, 203 (2d Cir.1989). In support of their motion, plaintiffs contend that the undisputed facts demonstrate that SBCY received undisclosed commissions on the investments at issue. However, a review of the discovery materials submitted pursuant to this motion reveals that the matter of SBCY's alleged commissions is hotly contested. Since only the finder of fact at trial may weigh the credibility of contradictory evidence, the submissions of plaintiffs' counsel are not the stuff of which summary judgments are made. [FN4]

FN3. It is not completely clear from plaintiffs' submissions which claims are subject to this motion. The claims for negligence and receiving commercial bribes (Counts VII, X) appear in some, but not all, of plaintiffs' headings but are not analyzed in the argument, while the claim for aiding and abetting common law tort (Count XIII) is not mentioned in the headings but is analyzed in the argument. We address only those claims that plaintiffs analyze in their discussion.

FN4. Defendants SBCY, T. Richard Spoor, Kenneth R. Behrins, Robert L. Campbell, and Michael D. Young do not file a memorandum of law in opposition to plaintiffs' motion, and counsel for these defendants has expressed a desire to rest on those arguments made in the brief filed by the FIB defendants. Although under local rule 3(b) failure to submit a memorandum of law may be deemed sufficient cause to grant a motion in default, it would be inappropriate to do so in this case where arguments and authority have been presented to the Court which require that plaintiffs' motion be denied as to all defendants.

A. There Is A Question Of Fact As To Whether SBCY Received Undisclosed Commissions.

[2] Defendants do not dispute that SBCY received fees from a number of the limited partnerships at issue for various types of services and, at trial, plaintiffs may contend that there was inadequate disclosure of each of these payments which created a conflict of interest for SBCY. However, plaintiffs' basis for the instant motion is much narrower. The evidence presented by plaintiffs shows only that, for the subset of investments at issue, SBCY did not disclose that it would receive any fees in the form of commissions. Plaintiffs unsuccessfully attempt to show from undisputed evidence that SBCY received commissions on these investments.

1. SBCY's Disclosure Of Payments Received From The Partnerships At Issue.

Pursuant to this motion the totality of SBCY's fee disclosure is not before the Court. Each of the 15 limited partnerships that are the subject of this motion was distributed pursuant to a private placement memorandum ("PPM"). However, out of these lengthy documents, plaintiffs submit only the two or three selected pages which discuss the commission, if any, that would be paid to purchasing representatives. As plaintiffs point out, none of the PPMs discloses commissions paid to SBCY. [FN5] In addition, purchasing questionnaires were executed by the individual plaintiffs in connection with a number of the limited partnerships at issue, and plaintiffs selectively cite these documents as well. The placement questionnaires for two of the limited partnerships are attached as exhibits to the motion, and plaintiffs' counsel purports to have copied into plaintiffs' brief selected paragraphs from the questionnaires for seven other limited partnerships. [FN6] Every excerpt plaintiffs cite from *220 SBCY's disclosure documents is designed to show that SBCY represented to plaintiffs that it would not receive commissions on their investments. Plaintiffs' limited analysis of SBCY's disclosure narrows the scope of this motion. In order to prevail, plaintiffs must demonstrate from the uncontested facts that SBCY received commissions pursuant to each investment at issue.

FN5. The PPMs for the Historic Inns, Mt. Ida, and 200 Main St. limited partnerships state that no commissions will be paid from the proceeds of the investments. See Pls.' Ex. 33, 34, 44 respectively. The PPM for the Triangle limited partnership is somewhat ambiguous. It states that no syndication fees will be paid and if any are incurred, they will be paid by the general partner, not by the partnership. See Pls.' Ex. 41 at note [3]. The remainder of the PPMs disclose some selling commissions but none states specifically that SBCY will receive any commission. See Pls.' Ex. 35-39, 41-43, 45-47; and Defs.' Ex. in Sup. 23.

FN6. Plaintiffs include Bernaro Nemtzow's purchasing questionnaire in the Frick limited partnership in which SBCY discloses that it will receive fees for due diligence, travel, and investment surveillance and Augustine Marusi's purchasing questionnaire for the Market St. limited partnership in which SBCY discloses that it will receive undetermined but substantial fees for financial consultation services. Pls.' Ex. 40. Plaintiffs quote from the purchasing questionnaires used in the Marathon Key, Lake Placid, Mt. Vernon, Sebring, Triangle, Marbury, and Transpac 1983-11 limited partnerships to show that SBCY only disclose fees received for due diligence, travel, and investment surveillance. These quotations are made to support plaintiffs' position that SBCY did not disclose any commission payments. Pursuant to a summary judgment motion it may be inappropriate to consider documents quoted in plaintiffs' brief that are not submitted as exhibits. However, since plaintiffs have failed to show that SBCY received commissions on the investments in question, we need not reach this issue.

2. The Undisputed Facts Do Not Show That SBCY Received Commissions On The Investments At Issue.

Plaintiffs fail to present the Court with undisputed evidence that SBCY received commissions on the investments that are the subject of this motion. Kenneth Behrins, the SBCY principal responsible for negotiating the fees with the general partners and promoters, and Michael Young, another SBCY principal, maintain that the fees received from the limited partnerships were paid for due diligence, surveillance, and monitoring, and therefore did not constitute commissions. Behrins Dep. at 163, 359; Young Dep. at 80-83. [FN7] Defendants also provide the Court with SBCY's response to plaintiffs' interrogatory in which SBCY lists the non-sales services performed for each limited partnership. Defs.' Ex. in Op. 47. The fact that plaintiffs submit a multitude of documents, in an attempt to impeach the evidence put forth by defendants, confirms the existence of a fundamental factual dispute which compels us to deny plaintiffs' motion. Nevertheless, we discuss plaintiffs' submissions and show why they fail to establish conclusively that SBCY received commissions on the investments at issue.

FN7. James Fox, CEO of FIIS and Dale Welton, CFO of FIIS, also understood that the fees were paid for non-sales services. Fox Dep. at 66-67; Welton Dep. at 54.

Many of the documents cited by plaintiffs use ambiguous terms such as "investment fees", Pls.' Ex. 15, or "placement fees" [FN8] to describe the payments that SBCY received from the limited partnerships. Nonetheless plaintiffs' counsel argues that these documents constitute undisputed evidence that SBCY received commissions on the investments in question. However, Kenneth Behrins' deposition states that the term "placement fees" was not intended to be synonymous with "commission", [FN9] and therefore these documents merely reveal a disputed issue of fact.

FN8. The term "placement fee" is used to describe SBCY's non-financial planning revenue in Pls.' Ex. 17, 21, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28.

FN9. Kenneth Behrins testified as follows at his deposition: Q. What do you think "placement fees" means? A. That was a term that I believe First Interstate used to distinguish the fees that we received for due diligence, surveillance, so forth from our financial counseling fees ... Behrins Dep. at 120.

Further, many of the documents that plaintiffs cite describe SBCY's aggregate revenue stream and thus fail unambiguously to support the conclusion that SBCY received commissions on the specific investments at issue. For example, plaintiffs make much of documents associated with Covington & Burling's (FIB's outside counsel) analysis of whether SBCY's activities required it to register as a broker/dealer. The first of these are some handwritten notes attributed to Phyllis Thompson, a Covington & Burling associate, which state that SBCY received fees for, among other things, finding investors for the general partners in limited partnerships. Pls.' Ex. 9. Thompson also received a letter from Young of SBCY that described the payments from the limited partnerships as investment management fees. Pls.' Ex. 6. Young's letter explained that the magnitude of these fees was dependent on two factors; first, the amount of time, travel, and expenses which would be incurred over the life of the investment, and second the amount the general partner would have received for placing the equity absent SBCY's services. [FN10] Id. Thompson then *221 wrote a memorandum which analyzed whether an investment advisory firm, which received commissions for acting as a purchasing representative for its clients' limited partnership tax shelter investments, was required to register as a broker/dealer. Pls.' Ex. 16. Even if we were to conclude that these documents demonstrate that SBCY had some commission income, there is no evidence that those commissions were received in connection with the investments that are the subject of the instant motion. Properly disclosed commissions may have been received by SBCY from a number of sources. Plaintiffs represent only about 10% of SBCY's total client base, [FN11] and commission revenue on SBCY's balance sheet may have resulted from commissions on investments by other SBCY clients. Moreover, SBCY may have received properly disclosed commissions on some of the plaintiffs' investments which are not part of this motion. For example plaintiffs do not seek summary judgment for their investments in the Virginia Square limited partnership, and plaintiffs admit that the PPM for this investment disclosed that SBCY would receive a 6% commission on the sale of each partnership interest. Pls.' Br. in Sup. at 17. [FN12] Thus, even if plaintiffs' evidence demonstrated that SBCY had some revenue from commissions, this does not support the conclusion that SBCY received commissions on the small subset of investments that are presently before the Court. [FN13]

FN10. Behrins disputes the accuracy of this portion of the letter, Behrins Dep. at 359, and Young explained at his deposition that the amount the general partner would otherwise receive was used only as a yardstick to assure that fees for due diligence, travel etc. would be paid out of the general partner's funds without dipping into the investors' contributions. Young Dep. at 82-83.

FN11. SBCY had 233 active clients, only 24 of which were obtained through its contract with Borden. See Pls.' Ex. 15.

FN12. Plaintiffs' counsel notes he hopes to demonstrate at trial that the portion of the Virginia Square PPM that disclosed SBCY's commission was redacted in the PPM's sent to plaintiffs. Pls.' Br. in Sup. at 17 n. 10.

FN13. Plaintiffs also cite the following documents which, either directly or indirectly, refer to SBCY's aggregate revenue stream: auditors' reports which discuss the revenue that SBCY received from "placement fees" (Pls.' Ex. 17, 21); a letter from Spoor of SBCY to Fox of FIIS breaking down SBCY's fee revenue to 65% financial planning fees and 35% "investment fees" (Pls.' Ex. 15); a hand written budget which predicts SBCY's "placement fee" revenue (Pls.' Ex. 24); and revenue projections for SBCY which break SBCY's fee revenue into various categories one of which is "placement fees" (Pls.' Ex. 27).

The few documents that specifically characterize the fees paid to SBCY by partnerships which are the subject of this motion do not conclusively establish that the payments were commissions. SBCY's cash receipts ledgers for 1985 and 1986 show that SBCY received $150,000 from the Searay limited partnership and $3,400 from the T.W. Decisions limited partnership both of which were entered under the column for "placement fees". Pls.' Ex. 25, 26; see also Pls.' Ex. 28 (discussing "placement fees" from the T.W. Decision limited partnership). However, as discussed above, defendants provided evidence that the term "placement fees" is not synonymous with the term "commissions". Behrins Dep. at 120. Similarly, there is a handwritten memorandum from Behrins of SBCY to Dale Welton, a financial officer of FIIS, in which Behrins states that SBCY expects to receive payments from the Transpac, Mt. Ida, Marbury, and Frick limited partnerships in early 1984, and Behrins asks Welton if this income might be looked upon as earned in 1983 for purpose of a calculation that was to be made with regard to FIB's acquisition of SBCY. Welton agreed to discuss the matter with James Fox, President and CEO of FIIS. Pls. Ex. 18. Welton's follow up memorandum to Fox describes these payments as "commissions/fees". Pls.' Ex. 19. The fact that Welton used the term "commissions/fees" suggests his uncertainty as to the actual nature of the fees; Welton's deposition states that the fees discussed in his memorandum were for due diligence and other similar services. Welton Dep. at 54. Therefore, this document is not unambiguous support for the conclusion that these payments were commissions as opposed to some other type of fee. [FN14] Even if it were, the *222 evidence would have to be weighed by the finder of fact against denials by Behrins and Young that any commissions were received by SBCY. Behrins Dep. at 163, 359; Young Dep. at 80-83.

FN14. The only unambiguous statement that SBCY received commissions was provided by Walter Kocher, General Counsel of Borden, who testified at his deposition that the general partner of the Historic Inns limited partnership told him that the partnership paid commissions to SBCY. Pls.' Ex 10 at 153. However, this hearsay may not be considered as evidence in support of plaintiffs' motion. Beyah v. Coughlin, 789 F.2d 986, 989 (2d Cir.1986).

The weakness of plaintiffs' motion is most clearly evident in their reply brief. Plaintiffs' counsel cites Behrins' deposition testimony discussing the various non-sales services provided in exchange for the fees received from the Historic Inns, Mt. Ida, and Searay limited partnerships. Pls.' Ex. R 35, 36, 33. Plaintiffs' counsel then contends that the Court should disbelieve this evidence because Behrins is an interested party and suggests that we draw a negative inference from defendants' failure to corroborate Behrins' statement with affidavits from the promoters of the limited partnerships. Pls.' Br. in Reply at 45-46. In resolving this motion we are required to draw all factual inferences in defendants' favor; plaintiffs' impeachment of Behrins' credibility must be reserved for the finder of fact at trial. As discussed above, whether SBCY received commissions pursuant to plaintiffs' investments in the limited partnerships at issue is a question of fact that may not be resolved upon summary judgment. [FN15]

FN15. Plaintiffs point out that the fees were not likely to have been paid for future services because SBCY did not put aside a reserve fund from which the costs of future services might have been paid. See Pls.' Br. in Sup. at 15-18. This evidence is submitted to impeach defendants' contention that the payments were not commissions but were paid for due diligence, surveillance, and monitoring. Behrins Dep. at 163, 359. As stated above, plaintiffs' cross examination evidence will be weighed at trial.

B. Since The Undisputed Facts Do Not Show That SBCY Received Undisclosed Commissions, Plaintiffs' Motion Must Be Denied.

Inadequate disclosure lies at the core of each claim on which plaintiffs seek summary judgment, and since plaintiffs have failed to show from the undisputed facts that SBCY received undisclosed commissions, their motion is denied. Plaintiffs' Rule 10b-5 and common law fraud claims obviously require some central fraudulent conduct, and fraud is also at the heart of the predicate acts supporting the RICO claims. Thus plaintiffs' motion must be denied as to these claims. Further, plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate SBCY's breach of fiduciary duty or any basis upon which to establish a constructive trust in plaintiffs' favor as a matter of law.

[3] Borden's breach of contract allegation against SBCY and its principals is the only claim that requires more analysis. Borden entered into a written agreement with SBCY to provide a number of its executives with financial planning services. Pls.' Ex. 2. Although the terms of this contract did not preclude SBCY from receiving payments from limited partnerships, SBCY represented in its initial letter to Borden that it was not a seller of financial instruments, and plaintiffs argue that this representation should be incorporated into the agreement. Pls.' Ex. 1. Even if we were to accept plaintiffs' interpretation of the agreement, summary judgment would not be appropriate because plaintiffs fail to show from the uncontested facts that SBCY received commissions from the limited partnerships and thus plaintiffs cannot demonstrate that SBCY "sold" securities to Borden executives in breach of this agreement. Plaintiffs' motion is therefore denied in full. [FN16]

FN16. Earlier in these proceedings, defendants moved the Court to rule that the statute of limitations on a number of plaintiffs' claims had lapsed. Our decision denied defendants' motion in part and noted some disputed issues of fact on which the timeliness of plaintiffs' claims depended. Borden, Inc. v. Spoor Behrins Campbell & Young, Inc., 778 F.Supp. 695, 700 (S.D.N.Y.1991). Plaintiffs' counsel now contends that the undisputed facts support the resolution of these matters in plaintiffs' favor. We need not reach this argument because the analysis above disposes of plaintiffs' motion. Similarly, defendants argue that we should deny plaintiffs' motion because plaintiffs' counsel has failed to proffer undisputed evidence supporting causation (both loss and transaction causation) and establishing plaintiffs' reliance on the alleged misstatements. Further, the FIB defendants argue that an issue of fact remains as to whether they had the requisite mental state to support summary judgment in plaintiffs' favor on a number of the claims. Again, pursuant to the analysis above we need not reach defendants' well-argued contentions.

223 II. The FIB Defendants' Motion For Partial Summary Judgment

The FIB defendants make their own motion for partial summary judgment. Of the 20 limited partnerships which are the subject of this action, nine were fully funded prior to FIB's, May 23, 1983, acquisition of SBCY. The FIB defendants seek partial summary judgment as to these investments. As movant, the FIB defendants now face the same obstacles that led to the denial of plaintiffs' motion. All inferences which our prior analysis made in defendants' favor now cut against granting defendants' motion because summary judgment is appropriate only if no reasonable fact finder could find for the nonmoving party. Lund's, 870 F.2d at 844.

[4] The conspiracy counts embody plaintiffs' primary theory for extending liability to the FIB defendants for pre-acquisition claims. [FN17] Plaintiffs contend that beginning in 1979, SBCY and the general partners and promoters of the various limited partnerships at issue formed a conspiracy to defraud investors, and that the FIB defendants joined this conspiracy on or about the time of their acquisition of SBCY and thereby became responsible for all of the conspiracy's past and future civil liabilities. Pls.' Br. in Op. at 29-31. [FN18] The FIB defendants do not contest the application of the "late joinder" rule to the case at bar, and argue only that parent and subsidiary corporations may not conspire with each other as a matter of law and, alternatively, that the undisputed facts do not support a finding that they conspired to defraud plaintiffs.

FN17. Plaintiffs set out the following conspiracy-based causes of action: conspiracy to violate Rule 10b-5 (count III); conspiracy to violate RICO and conspiratorial predicate acts to support their RICO claim (count XV); and a number of common law conspiracies (conspiracy to breach a fiduciary duty (count IX), conspiracy to commit common law fraud (count V), and conspiracy to cause SBCY to receive commercial bribes (count XI)). The FIB defendants point out that some courts have found that there is no private right of action for conspiracy to violate Rule 10b-5 and therefore count V of plaintiffs' complaint may not serve as a separate basis for relief. Huang v. Sentinel Gov't Sec., 709 F.Supp. 1290, 1295-96 (S.D.N.Y.1989); Kaliski v. Hunt Int'l Resources Corp., 609 F.Supp. 649, 653 (N.D.Ill.1985); but see Deppe v. Tripp, 863 F.2d 1356, 1367 (7th Cir.1988). However, the issue at this point is somewhat academic because conspiracies involving securities fraud may serve as predicate acts for plaintiffs' RICO claim. United States v. Weisman, 624 F.2d 1118, 1123-24 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 871, 101 S.Ct. 209, 66 L.Ed.2d 91 (1980) (the language of 18 U.S.C. § 1961(1)(D) is certainly broad enough on its face to include conspiracies involving securities fraud). Although Weisman was a criminal RICO case, conspiracy to commit securities fraud may support a civil RICO claim as well. Zola v. Gordon, 685 F.Supp. 354, 376 n. 28 (S.D.N.Y.1988); First Fed. Sav. and Loan v. Oppenheim, Appel, Dixon &

Co., 629 F.Supp. 427, 445 (S.D.N.Y.1986); Kronfeld v. First New Jersey Nat'l Bank, 638 F.Supp. 1454, 1472-73 (D.N.J.1986).

FN18. Plaintiffs also contend that their aiding and abetting and control person claims against the FIB defendants extend to three of the nine limited partnerships which are the subject of this motion because a reasonable fact finder may conclude that the FIB defendants' control over SBCY extended all the way back to the letter of intent executed with SBCY on July 1, 1982. However, we need not reach this point because defendants' motion for summary judgment on the conspiracy claims is denied.

A. A Finding That The FIB Defendants Conspired With Their Subsidiary Is Not Precluded As A Matter Of Law.

[5][6] The FIB defendants point to the parent-subsidiary relationship that existed between themselves and SBCY and argue that this eliminates the possibility of a conspiracy between defendants. To support their position, the FIB defendants largely rely on the Supreme Court's holding in Copperweld Corp. v. Independence Tube Corp., 467 U.S. 752, 104 S.Ct. 2731, 81 L.Ed.2d 628 (1984). We are not convinced that Copperweld's reasoning should be extended to the securities fraud, RICO, and common law conspiracies at bar; even if it were so extended, plaintiffs point to a number of third parties-with no corporate relationship to defendants-with whom a reasonable fact finder might find that defendants conspired.

In Copperweld, the Supreme Court held that a conspiracy in restraint of trade, in violation of section 1 of the Sherman Antitrust Act, could not be found where the players included only a parent corporation and its wholly owned subsidiary. The court *224 noted that vigorous competition, which is at the base of our free market economy, is dependent upon the ability of firms to execute unitary corporate policy and therefore concluded that concerted action within a firm or between a firm and its wholly owned subsidiary is not constrained by section 1 of the Sherman Act. Id. at 769-774, 104 S.Ct. at 2740-2743. Since we see no similar social benefit flowing either from agreements to commit securities fraud or to establish and maintain racketeering enterprises, or from joint tortious behavior, we question whether Copperweld should be extended to these contexts. Other courts have acknowledged that Copperweld's reasoning is specific to the antitrust context and have not applied it to RICO conspiracies. Rouse v. Rouse, 1990 WL 160194, *13 (N.D.N.Y.1990); Ashland Oil, Inc. v. Arnett, 875 F.2d 1271, 1281 (7th Cir.1989); Shearin v. E.F. Hutton Group, Inc., 885 F.2d 1162, 1166-67 (3d Cir.1989); Curley v. Cumberland Farms Dairy, Inc., 728 F.Supp. 1123, 1135 (D.N.J.1989); see Haroco, Inc. v. American Nat'l Bank and Trust Co., 747 F.2d 384, 403 n. 22 (7th Cir.1984), aff'd on other grounds, 473 U.S. 606, 105 S.Ct. 3291, 87 L.Ed.2d 437 (1985). The FIB defendants do not cite, nor have we discovered, any reliable authority stating whether New York law permits finding civil conspiracies between parent and subsidiary corporations. [FN19] There is some logic in the position that entities, which are made distinct by state corporate law, are also separate entities capable of entering into illicit agreements under state civil conspiracy law. However, we need not reach this issue because the conspiracy at bar includes participants with no corporate relationship to defendants.

FN19. The only case cited by the FIB defendants in support of their position is Valdan Sportswear v. Montgomery Ward & Co., 591 F.Supp. 1188 (S.D.N.Y.1984) which held that agents of a corporation taking action on its behalf can not be held liable for a common law conspiracy. Id. at 1191. This language does not support a holding that a parent corporation can not conspire with its subsidiary. The only other case cited by the FIB defendants does not apply New York law. Bunch v. Artec Int'l Corp., 559 F.Supp. 961 (S.D.N.Y.1983) (applying Pennsylvania and Oregon law).

Plaintiffs present a conspiracy which involved not only FIB, FIIS, and SBCY, but also the general partners and promoters of the various limited partners at issue. There is some evidence that the FIB defendants knew of, and agreed to participate in, a concerted action between SBCY and the partnership administrators to defraud plaintiffs. [FN20] The FIB defendants argue that they could not have engaged in such a conspiracy because they had no direct contact with the limited partnership promoters, participating in the affair only through their subsidiary, SBCY. However, to sustain a conspiracy claim, plaintiffs need show only that the conspirators "agreed on a common purpose" and need not show that every conspirator conspired directly with every other member of the conspiracy. United States v. Nerlinger, 862 F.2d 967, 973 (2d Cir.1988); United States v. Friedman, 854 F.2d 535, 562 (2d Cir.1988), cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1004, 109 S.Ct. 1637, 104 L.Ed.2d 153 (1989). [FN21] Since, as shown below, a reasonable fact finder may conclude that, through an agreement with SBCY, the FIB defendants conspired with third parties to defraud plaintiffs, the conspiracy claims are not invalid as a matter of law.

FN20. The FIB defendants contend that the undisputed evidence supports the conclusion that they did not conspire with SBCY, but this contention is analyzed below at length and rejected.

FN21. To refute plaintiffs' "chain conspiracy" theory, the FIB defendants argue that the holding in Copperweld dictates that a wholly owned subsidiary can not serve as the "link in the chain" which connects a parent corporation to a conspiracy with unrelated third parties. However, in this argument the FIB defendants stretch Copperweld beyond even its application in the antitrust context. Counsel for the FIB defendants seem to contend that under Copperweld, a parent corporation could conspire with its wholly owned subsidiary to establish a cartel among various unrelated firms, and as long as the parent corporation had no direct contact with the third party conspirators, it would be beyond the reach of section 1 of the Sherman Act. This contention is patently meritless. Copperweld holds only that, in the antitrust context, a parent and a subsidiary alone do not a conspiracy make. It does not stand for the proposition that a parent corporation can not conspire with third parties through its subsidiary.

225 B. The Undisputed Facts Do Not

Preclude A Finding That The FIB Defendants Conspired To Defraud Plaintiffs.

The FIB defendants argue that the undisputed facts demonstrate that they did not conspire with SBCY to defraud plaintiffs. A conspiracy is an agreement between two or more persons to accomplish an unlawful purpose. Morse v. Weingarten, 777 F.Supp. 312, 318 (S.D.N.Y.1991). The FIB defendants primarily argue that they did not know that SBCY was receiving undisclosed commissions and therefore could not have entered into an illicit agreement to defraud plaintiffs by concealing this fact; alternatively, they contend that even if they knew of SBCY's scheme to defraud, there is no evidence that they agreed to further these wrongful goals. Abrams v. Painewebber, Inc., 1991 WL 218106 (D.Conn.1991). Since the undisputed facts do not support these arguments, the FIB defendants' summary judgment motion is denied.

[7][8][9] As a preliminary matter, we point out that direct proof of a conspiracy is seldom available, and therefore an illicit agreement may be shown via circumstantial evidence. H.L. Moore Drug Exch. v. Eli Lilly and Co., 662 F.2d 935, 941 (2d Cir.1981), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 880, 103 S.Ct. 176, 74 L.Ed.2d 144 (1982). Proof of tacit, as opposed to explicit, understanding is sufficient to show agreement, and among the factors a fact finder may consider in inferring a conspiracy are the relationship of the parties, proximity in time and place of the acts, and the duration of the actors' joint activity. Diduck v. Kaszycki & Sons Contractors, Inc., 774 F.Supp. 802, 813 (S.D.N.Y.1991), aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, 974 F.2d 270 (2d Cir.1992). Further, to demonstrate a conspiracy, plaintiffs need not show that each conspirator agreed to every detail of the conspiracy but only that each agreed on the "essential nature of the plan". United States v. Rosenblatt, 554 F.2d 36, 38 (2d Cir.1977).

[10][11] The FIB defendants first contend that they had no knowledge of SBCY's fraud but admit that they knew that SBCY was receiving fees from the limited partnerships in which plaintiffs invested. In addition, because Dale Welton wrote a memorandum to James Fox in which he referred to SBCY fee income as income for "commissions/fees" and because the FIB defendants' outside counsel wrote a memorandum in which it analyzed whether SBCY's "commission" income would require SBCY to file with the SEC as a broker/dealer, a reasonable fact finder could also conclude that the FIB defendants knew that SBCY received commissions from the partnerships. See supra 11, 9. Thus, the FIB defendants argue only that they were not aware of SBCY's inadequate disclosure and always believed that SBCY was fully disclosing to its clients the commissions it received.

To support their position, the FIB defendants point to the depositions of James Fox (president and CEO of FIIS), Dale Welton (senior vice president and CFO of FIIS), and William Bogaard (executive vice president and general counsel of FIB) in which each states that, relying completely on oral representation by SBCY principals, he believed that SBCY was fully disclosing the fees received from the partnerships. Fox Dep. at 29; Welton Dep. at 83-84; Bogaard Dep. at 96. However, Michael Young testified at deposition that when he told representatives of the FIB defendants that the fees were fully disclosed, he was asked to provide documents to corroborate this representation, and in response he provided the FIB defendants with the file on every limited partnership containing SBCY's disclosure documents and its revenue data. Young Dep. 114-15. As plaintiffs have demonstrated in support of their motion a review of these documents would have revealed that SBCY was not disclosing the commissions it received on plaintiffs' investments, [FN22] and Young stated that pursuant to FIB's acquisition of SBCY a number of FIB's agents reviewed these documents. *226 Young Dep. 137. The FIB defendants contend that since Young admits he was not present during the review of these documents, Young Dep. 119, 138-39, his statements are not sufficient to show that any representative of the FIB defendants read the documents and detected the fraud.

However, given that these files were provided at the request of the FIB defendants, and in the context of a discussion of the adequacy of SBCY's fee disclosures, we believe a reasonable fact finder would be justified in concluding that representatives of FIB examined these documents with an eye towards the adequacy of SBCY's fee disclosures. [FN23]

FN22. See supra 219-20. As discussed in our analysis of plaintiffs' summary judgment motion, the question of whether SBCY perpetrated a fraud upon plaintiffs is dependent upon questions of fact to be resolved at trial. Therefore for the purposes of the FIB defendants' summary judgment motion we will assume that SBCY perpetrated these frauds unless the FIB defendants show otherwise from the uncontested facts.

FN23. In addition, Bogaard stated that he viewed disclosure as "critically important" which lends additional support to the conclusion that the FIB defendants were not likely to rely solely on the oral representations of SBCY to assure themselves that the fee disclosure was adequate. Bogaard Dep. at 96.

Further, as an investment advisor, SBCY was required to file ADV forms with the SEC and, after the acquisition, FIB undertook the responsibility of completing and filing these forms for SBCY. Pls.' Ex. 76 (Young Dep. at 104). In the ADV forms filed for 1986 and 1987 FIB made the following representation:

From time to time the applicant may have a financial interest through its advisory services rendered to an entity selling investment products to applicant's clients. In every such case a full written disclosure statement is provided to the client indicating the nature and extent of the potential conflict of interest and the extent of the financial interest.

Defs.' Ex. 32, 33 (emphasis added). The FIB defendants would have the Court rule that although FIB represented, in documents filed with the SEC, that SBCY disclosed the nature and extent of every conflict of interest through a "full written disclosure statement", no reasonable fact finder could conclude that FIB read these written disclosure statements. We find that a reasonable fact finder might easily draw the contrary inference that FIB read these documents pursuant to its preparation of these SEC filings.

The FIB defendants' argument that they knew of the existence and the nature of SBCY's commission revenue, but never knew that the revenue was inadequately disclosed, is undermined by the FIB defendants' detailed review of the disclosure documents in the Searay limited partnership. The FIB defendants admit that they examined the disclosure documents in the Searay limited partnership, and although the Searay PPM discloses substantial fees to be paid to SBCY, the fees are characterized not as commissions but as financial consultation fees. See Defs.' Ex. in Sup. 23. If a fact finder concludes, as one might, that the fees paid pursuant to the Searay limited partnership were commissions [FN24] and if the fact finder concludes that the FIB knew that the fees SBCY received from the limited partnerships were actually commissions, see supra 11, 9, the FIB defendants may then be found to have known of SBCY's fraudulent behavior.

FN24. Plaintiffs supply SBCY's cash receipt ledgers for 1985 and 1986 showing $150,000 received from the Searay limited partnership and categorized as "placement fees". Pls.' Ex. 25, 26. We feel that the plain meaning of the term "placement fee" is sufficiently similar to the term "commissions" that a reasonable fact finder may determine that the two are synonymous despite defendants Behrins' statements to the contrary. Behrins Dep. at 120.

[12] The FIB defendants contend that, even if they knew of the fraud perpetrated by SBCY, there is no evidence that they supported the conspiracy's illicit goal. Abrams, 1991 WL 218106; see In re Investors Funding Corp. of N.Y. Sec. Litig., 523 F.Supp. 550, 557 (S.D.N.Y.1980) (conspiracy requires a showing of knowing participation in and attachment to the conspiracy). The undisputed facts do not support this conclusion. The ADV forms filed by FIB represented that the only type of products "sold" by SBCY were financial planning packages for which SBCY received periodic fixed fees. Pls.' Ex. 56. FIB omitted from these filings any discussion of SBCY's sales of limited partnership interests and the commission income received therefrom. At trial, the fact finder may determine that these omissions evidence FIB's desire to conceal SBCY's fraud from the investing public, and therefore the omissions may be found to constitute *227 actions by FIB in furtherance of a conspiracy to defraud plaintiffs. [FN25] Cf. Newburger, Loeb & Co., Inc. v. Gross, 563 F.2d 1057, 1074 (2d Cir.1977), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1035, 98 S.Ct. 769, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978) (civil conspiracy found where corporation knowingly acquiesced in wrongful transfer of partnership assets).

FN25. In addition, FIB filed an application with the Federal Reserve Board ("the Fed") to obtain approval of its acquisition of SBCY. Defs.' Ex. in Op. 1. Although this application and the subsequent addendum to the application discuss the services provided by SBCY, they do not mention the sales services provided by SBCY to the tax shelter partnerships. See Defs.' Ex. in Op. 1, 12. These documents may not evidence an intent to mislead the Fed because Covington & Burling contemporaneously advised FIB as follows: We believe that services as an offeree representative (pursuant to a fee arrangement whereby the issuer pays a commission to the offeree representative) is so common an activity for investment advisory firms that our application to the [Fed] describing [SBCY] as an investment advisor fairly covers similar activity by [SBCY]. Pls.' Ex. 16 at 3. However, these documents are evidence that FIB was somewhat reluctant to use the word "commissions" in relation to SBCY in public documents, and may provide additional support for a finding that FIB wanted to conceal SBCY's fraudulent conduct.

In sum, there are sufficient facts to support a finding that the FIB defendants knew that SBCY was receiving commissions on plaintiffs' limited partnership investments, and that they knew those commission were inadequately disclosed to SBCY's clients. This, coupled with evidence that FIB actively attempted to conceal this fraud from the general public, is sufficient to support a finding that the FIB defendants conspired to defraud plaintiffs. Whether this evidence is sufficiently persuasive to produce a verdict in plaintiffs' favor on the conspiracy counts is a matter that may only be resolved at trial. However, as our analysis above indicates, plaintiffs have raised sufficient factual issues to defeat the FIB defendants' summary judgment motion.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the parties' cross motions for summary judgment are denied.

District Court of Appeal of Florida,
First District.

Joseph Louis BRYANT, Sinatria E. Williams,
Donald Jackson, Thomas Hicks and Frederick D. Goston, Appellants,
v.
SHANDS TEACHING HOSPITAL AND
CLINICS, INC., et al., Appellees.

No. BE-490.

Nov. 20, 1985.

Former employees of teaching hospital brought action against hospital following their dismissal. The Circuit Court, Alachua County, R.A. Green, Jr., J., granted hospital partial summary judgment, and employees appealed. The District Court of Appeal, Smith, J., held that: (1) statute relating to teaching hospital's transfer from public control to private control did not create statutory exception to at will employment doctrine, and (2) teaching hospital was not bound by personnel policies which allegedly gave employees right to dismissal only for cause.

Affirmed.

SMITH, Judge.

The issue on this appeal is whether Section 240.513(3)(b)2, Florida Statutes (1979), abrogates the at will employment doctrine for employees of Shands Teaching Hospital and Clinics, Inc. (Shands), a private non-profit corporation. The circuit court granted partial summary judgment in favor of Shands. We affirm.

Appellants, former employees of Shands Teaching Hospital and Clinics at the time the hospital was operated by the State Board of Education, became employees of appellee Shands in July 1980, when control of the hospital was transferred to Shands pursuant to Section 240.513, Florida Statutes (1979). Appellants were all terminated from their employment with the newly constituted employer, Shands, in February 1981, following an investigation conducted by Shands into the theft of hospital property. Criminal charges which were initially filed in the Circuit Court for the Eighth Judicial Circuit, Alachua County, as a result of the investigation were nolle prossed prior to trial. Seeking redress for their alleged wrongful termination from employment, appellants filed suit. Appellants' identical seven-count amended complaints sought relief based on theories of negligence, malicious prosecution, false arrest and imprisonment, defamation, breach of contract, and misrepresentation. Count 6 of the amended complaints alleged that appellants' dismissal from Shands was improper since Shands had purportedly adopted certain personnel policies which mandated that employees could be terminated only for "cause."

As previously noted, the statute delineating the transfer process was Section 240.513, Florida Statutes (1979). Section 240.513(3)(b)2, provided that the State Board of Education was to enter into a lease or other contract with the non-profit corporation that was to begin operating Shands to:

[provide for] [t]he orderly and just transition of hospital employees from state to corporate employment with the same or equivalent seniority, earnings, and benefits....

Prior to their transfer to Shands Hospital and Clinics, Inc., appellants each signed a document styled "offer of employment." This document listed the appellants' annual, weekly and hourly salary, but contained no specific term of employment. The document further carried an endorsement, purportedly applying to appellants as prospective Shands employees, stating that they had received information concerning employment benefits, wages, and seniority under the new Shands from their supervisors in the previous Shands organization. The endorsement indicated that certain benefits accrued under their former employer would be brought forward into the new Shands, as well as contemplated wage increases. Finally, the endorsement stated:

I acknowledge that I am fully aware of my wages, job title, benefits, and employment practices of the corporation, and wish to become a permanent member of [Shands]....

Shands moved for summary judgment, attaching in support an affidavit from Bryce A. Malsbary, director of personnel at Shands during all relevant times involved in this litigation. In his affidavit, Malsbary stated that Shands had no formal personnel policies, including procedures covering dismissals, until November 1980. Therefore, Malsbary's affidavit stated, appellants' former supervisors would not have been able to discuss personnel policies with their employees who contemplated continuing employment under the new Shands at the time the employees, including appellants, signed the "offer of employment" documents. Malsbary specifically averred that neither he nor any other management-level employee of Shands negotiated with prospective employees concerning grievance procedures that would be effective in the new Shands organization.

Appellants filed no documentary or other evidence in opposition to Shands' motion for summary judgment. In his order granting partial summary judgment in favor of Shands, the circuit judge found it undisputed that the contract of employment signed by appellants upon joining the *167 new Shands did not establish a definite term of employment between the parties. Noting Florida case law that, absent such an agreement, either party was free to terminate the employment contract at will, either with or without cause, the circuit judge found that appellants had failed to state a cause of action on their breach of contract claim. Accordingly, he granted Shands' motion as to Count 6 of the amended complaint. [FN1]

FN1. The order also notes that appellants conceded that there was no genuine issue of material fact as to Count 7 of the complaint, concerning breach of an employment contract via misrepresentation, and thus granted Shands' motion as to Count 7 as well. Appellants do not here challenge the correctness of this action by the trial court; therefore, we will not consider this point on appeal.

[1] Appellants challenge the circuit court's order on two separate grounds. First, they contend that Section 240.513(3)(b)2, directing the State Board of Education to insure the "orderly transition" of hospital employees constitutes a legislatively-mandated exception to the at will doctrine. Specifically, appellants assert that the term "benefits" as found in subsection (3)(b)2 indicates a legislative intent to transfer the "cause only" dismissal limitation existing by virtue of appellants' status as career service employees as a "benefit" of their status as employees of the new Shands. Alternatively, appellants contend that the trial court erroneously found no disputed issues of material fact regarding the existence of personnel policies dealing with "just cause" dismissal which, according to appellants, were a part of the contracts of employment they signed with the new Shands. On this latter point, appellants cite Falls v. Lawnwood Medical Center, 427 So.2d 361 (Fla. 4th DCA 1983). We find both arguments to be without merit.

Generally, an employee may be terminated at will, that is, without a showing of cause, where the employment contract between the parties is indefinite as to the period of employment. Perri v. Byrd, 436 So.2d 359, 361 (Fla. 1st DCA 1983); DeMarco v. Publix Supermarkets, Inc., 360 So.2d 134 (Fla. 3d DCA 1978), cert. den., 367 So.2d 1123 (Fla.1979), approved 384 So.2d 1253 (Fla.1980). Here, the "offer of employment" documents attached to appellants' amended complaint did not state a particular term of employment; therefore, the trial court correctly found that appellants' circumstances fall squarely within the rule recited above. [FN2]

FN2. Although appellants claim to be "permanent employees" as defined by certain personnel policy statements promulgated by Shands in November 1980, the mere fact that an employee is classified as permanent does not change operation of the at will doctrine where, as here, the employee's term of employment remains indefinite. Russell & Axon v. Handshoe, 176 So.2d 909 (Fla. 1st DCA 1965), cert. den., 188 So.2d 317 (Fla.1966).

[2] While it is true that the legislature may carve out exceptions to the at will doctrine, see Smith v. Piezo Technology & Professional Administrators, 427 So.2d 182 (Fla.1983), this court is not free to identify additional statutory modifications of the at will doctrine unless the legislature renders a clear statement of its intent to do so. Maguire v. American Family Life Assurance Company of Columbus, 442 So.2d 321, 323 (Fla. 3d DCA 1983), pet. for rev. den., 451 So.2d 849 (Fla.1984). Compared, for example, to the language found in Section 440.205 [FN3] (see Smith, supra), Section 240.513(3)(b) 2 can hardly be said to constitute a "clear statement" of another legislative exception to the at will doctrine carved out for former employees of the old Shands. Appellants offer nothing in the way of legislative history of the statute or otherwise indicating that the legislature contemplated requiring the new employer *168 to adopt a "just cause" termination policy. [FN4] Appellants' counsel conceded as much at oral argument, but urged this court to read such an intent into the statute in the interests of fairness since, it was argued, the failure to do so would allow Shands to terminate them without just cause, a result contrary to their alleged expectations in joining the new organization.

FN3. Section 440.205. Coercion of Employees. No employers shall discharge, threaten to discharge, intimidate, or coerce any employee by reason of such employee's valid claim for compensation or attempt to claim compensation under the workers' compensation laws. (emphasis supplied)

FN4. In fact, the statutory provision under consideration places the duty to assure a "just and orderly transition" of employee benefits, seniority, and wages on the State Board of Education, see Section 240.513(3)(b), and not on Shands, as appellants claim. In light of our disposition of this cause, we do not address Shands' argument that appellants did not name the proper party-defendant in their complaints. We do note, however, that the statutory language of Section 240.513(3)(b) does not purport to limit the Board of Education in its treatment of those employees who chose to transfer to the new employer.

We must reject appellants' suggestion that this court may act as a "law giver" out of some nebulous sense of fairness or equity. See Maguire, supra, 442 So.2d at 323. The law concerning the at will doctrine is well entrenched in the jurisprudence of this state, and may not be modified on any basis but a clear statutory abrogation of the rule. Smith

v. Piezo Technology & Professional Administrators, 427 So.2d 182, 184 (Fla.1983); accord, Hartley v. Ocean Reef Club, Inc., 476 So.2d 1327 (Fla. 3d DCA 1985) (no cause of action for retaliatory discharge allegedly contravening public policy). Other "equitable" arguments for a total or partial abrogation of the rule have been rejected, including the alleged unequal bargaining power between an employer and employee, Muller v. Stromberg Carlson Corp., 427 So.2d 266, 269-270 (Fla. 2d DCA 1983) and an employer's "bad motives" in terminating the employee. See DeMarco v. Publix Supermarkets, Inc., supra; see also Ponton v. Scarfone, 468 So.2d 1009 (Fla. 2d DCA 1985). Accordingly, we hold that Section 240.513(3)(b)2, Florida Statutes (1979) does not create a statutory exception to the at will doctrine in favor of employees of Shands Hospital and Clinics who transferred their employment to Shands Hospital and Clinics, Inc. As a result, the circuit court correctly granted partial summary judgment in favor of appellees on the basis of the at will doctrine.

[3] We also reject appellants' contention that we should remand this case to the trial court for a consideration of appellants' alternative argument that Shands, at the time of transfer, operated under certain personnel policies that gave appellants the right to dismissal only for cause. It is well-recognized that the non-moving party faced with a summary judgment motion supported by appropriate proof may not rely on bare, conclusory assertions found in the pleadings to create an issue and thus avoid summary judgment. Instead, the party must produce counter-evidence establishing a genuine issue of material fact. Jones v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Company, 109 So.2d 582 (Fla. 1st DCA 1959); Johnson v. Gulf Life Insurance Company, 429 So.2d 744 (Fla. 3d DCA 1983). Here, appellants proffered no evidence contrary to the affidavit of Bryce Malsbary that no explicit personnel policies existed in July 1980, the date appellants signed their contracts of employment with the new Shands. In such circumstances, the circuit court was entitled to find, as it implicitly did, that appellants' assertions that the alleged personnel policies were part of their contract of employment with the new Shands were mere unilateral expectations, rather than the explicit mutual promises necessary to create a binding contractual term. Berrian v. National Railroad Passenger Corp., 429 So.2d 1381 (Fla. 2d DCA 1983); Muller v. Stromberg Carlson Corp., 427 So.2d 266 (Fla. 2d DCA 1983). Falls v. Lawnwood Medical Center, relied on by appellants, is distinguishable in that a factual dispute existed concerning the existence of a "just cause" dismissal policy as part of the contract of employment involved in that case. No such genuine evidentiary uncertainty exists here.

For the reasons stated, the judgment appealed from is AFFIRMED.

United States District Court,

CITIBANK, N.A. and Citibank Canada,
Plaintiffs,

v.

ITOCHU INTERNATIONAL INC., and III
Holding Inc. f/k/a Copelco Financial Services Group, Inc., Defendants.

No. 01 Civ. 6007(GBD).

April 4, 2003.

Background: Purchasing corporation brought action against selling corporation and its officers and directors alleging violation of federal securities laws and state law.

Holdings: On defendants' motion to dismiss, the District Court, Daniels, J., held that: (1) indemnification clause was void to extent that it only provided one remedy; (2) purchaser stated common law fraud claim, and federal securities fraud claim under Private Securities Litigation Reform Act (PSLRA), with sufficient particularity; (3) purchaser adequately pleaded scienter against sellers; (4) punitive damages were not available to purchaser; and (5) purchaser could not state cause of action for negligent misrepresentation against sellers for failure to allege special relationship; (6) purchaser stated cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing; and (7) purchaser could not maintain claim for unjust enrichment.

Motion granted in part and denied in part.

West Headnotes

[1] Securities Regulation 35.24
349Bk35.24

Indemnification clause in agreement to purchase stock of corporation was void to extent that it only provided one remedy, although parties contracted for exclusive remedy provision; under New York law, parties could not use contractual limitation of liability clauses to shield themselves from liability for their own fraudulent conduct, and federal securities laws had anti-waiver provision which specifically made void any contractual clause that allowed party to waive compliance with federal securities laws. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, § 29(a), 15 U.S.C.A. § 78cc(a).

[2] Securities Regulation 60.53
349Bk60.53

Purchasing corporation stated common law fraud claim under New York law, and federal securities fraud claim under Private Securities Litigation Reform Act (PSLRA), with sufficient particularity against sellers of stock of acquired corporation, on allegations that sellers warranted that financial statements were prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) and past accounting practices of acquired corporation, and, instead, sellers devised and used accounting plan that was contrary to GAAP, and proffered inflated financial results to purchasers with intent to defraud them. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, § 21D, as amended, 15 U.S.C.A. § 78u-4; Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 9(b), 28 U.S.C.A.

[3] Securities Regulation 60.51
349Bk60.51

Purchasing corporation adequately pleaded scienter against sellers of stock of acquired corporation in accordance with Private Securities Litigation Reform Act (PSLRA), in that purchaser described set of facts and circumstances that, if proven, would have given rise to strong inference of fraud. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, § 21D, as amended, 15 U.S.C.A. § 78u-4; Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 9(b), 28 U.S.C.A.

[4] Corporations 121(7)
101k121(7)

Punitive damages were not available under New York law to purchasing corporation, for alleged fraud of sellers of acquired corporation, since alleged fraud was not aimed at public generally.

[5] Corporations 118
101k118

Purchasing corporation could not state cause of action for negligent misrepresentation under New York law against sellers of stock in acquired corporation, for failure to allege special relationship between parties; although relationship of confidence developed between parties during negotiation process and purchasers trusted sellers' representations to be accurate, purchasers' relationship with sellers was merely ordinary business relationship.

[6] Corporations 118
101k118

Purchasing corporation stated cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing under New York law against sellers of stock in acquired corporation, on allegations that sellers used accounting plan that was contrary to generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) and past accounting practices of acquired corporation, that sellers knew such plan was artificially inflating acquired corporation's financial figures, and that purchasing corporation relied on sellers' representations.

[7] Implied and Constructive Contracts 55
205Hk55

Purchasing corporation could not maintain claim for unjust enrichment under New York law against sellers of stock in acquired corporation, since valid, enforceable contract governed dispute; although purchaser argued that there could have been grounds for rescission of contract, purchaser did not include rescission as remedy in its complaint.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

DANIELS, J.

*1 Plaintiffs brought suit against defendants alleging violations of §§ 10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and pendent state law claims in connection with plaintiffs' purchase from defendants of all the common stock of Copelco Capital, Inc. Defendants thereafter filed a motion to dismiss. Plaintiffs oppose that motion. For the following reasons, defendants' motion to dismiss is granted in part, and denied in part.

Discussion

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) allows a party to move to dismiss a Complaint where the Complaint "fail[s] ... to state a claim upon which relief can be granted[.]" Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). In reviewing a motion to dismiss, this Court accepts the allegations in the Complaint as true and draws all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party. See Patel v. Searles, 305 F.3d 130, 134-35 (2d Cir.2002). However, bald contentions, unsupported characterizations, and legal conclusions are not well-pleaded allegations, and will not suffice to defeat a motion to dismiss. See Leeds v. Meltz, 85 F.3d 51, 53 (2d Cir.1996). Here, a motion to dismiss will only be granted if the plaintiffs can prove no set of facts in support of their claims that would entitle them to relief. See Citibank, N.A. v. K-H Corp., 968 F.2d 1489, 1494 (2d Cir.1992). A court may look at the Complaint and any documents attached to, or incorporated by reference in, the Complaint. See Dangler v. New York City off Track Betting Corp., 193 F.3d 130, 138 (2d Cir.1999).

Defendants contend that plaintiffs' securities fraud, common law fraud, and negligent misrepresentation claims are based upon statements defendants made in documents other than the Securities Purchase Agreement (the "Agreement"). Defendants argue that these claims must fail as a matter of law because the Agreement explicitly precludes plaintiffs from relying on any representations except those included in the Agreement.

By the plain language of the Agreement, plaintiffs are precluded from asserting reliance on any other statements made by defendants except those contained in the Agreement. Section 4.08 of the Agreement states that "Sellers [defendants] make no representation or warranties with respect to ... any other information or documents made available to Buyer [plaintiffs] or its counsel, accountants or advisors ... except as expressly set forth in this Agreement." Agreement at § 4.08. Plaintiffs are sophisticated business entities who were represented by counsel, and negotiated the Agreement at arm's length. This Court, therefore, will hold plaintiffs to the agreement to which they bargained. Plaintiffs' securities fraud, common law fraud, and negligent misrepresentation claims cannot be based upon representations outside of the Agreement.

Nevertheless, plaintiffs contend that their securities fraud, common law fraud, and negligent misrepresentation allegations still survive as their Complaint, in fact, also alleges violations of the Agreement. Section 3.08 of the Agreement warrants that Copelco's financial statements were prepared in conformity with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP"), while § 3.09 of the Agreement warrants that the financial statements were prepared consistent with past Copelco practices. At paragraph 21 of the Complaint, plaintiffs quote § 3.08 of the Agreement and then allege that defendants "knew, or should have known, that the 1999 audited financial statements had not been prepared in conformity with GAAP and did not fairly represent the financial position of Copelco." Complaint at ¶ 21. Further, the Complaint alleges in the next paragraph that "[d]efendants' conduct also rendered other statements made by Itochu International in the Stock Purchase Agreement deliberately false and misleading." Id. at ¶ 22. The Complaint then quotes the portion of § 3.09 of the Agreement where defendants warrant that the financial statements were prepared in accordance with past Copelco practices as an example of one such allegedly false and misleading statement in the Agreement. Id. Consequently, plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged violations of the Agreement, itself. Defendants' motion to dismiss the securities fraud, common law fraud, and negligent misrepresentation claims on the grounds that the Complaint does not allege a violation of the Agreement is therefore denied. [FN1]

FN1. As will be discussed later, plaintiffs' negligent misrepresentation claim ultimately fails on other grounds.

*2 [1] Next, defendants contend that plaintiffs' allegations are subject to the Agreement's exclusive remedy provision, which only provides for indemnification as a remedy in the event of a breach. Plaintiffs do not dispute the existence of the exclusive remedy provision. Rather, they argue that, regardless, a party may not contract out of liability for its own fraud.

Section 11.07 of the Agreement provides that "Sections 8.06 and 11.02 will provide the exclusive remedy for any misrepresentation, breach of warranty, covenant or other agreement ... or other claim arising out of this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby." Agreement at § 11.07. In turn, §§ 8.06 and 11.02 of the Agreement both provide only for indemnification in the event of a breach, and the terms which trigger such indemnification. See Agreement at §§ 8.06 and 11.02.

Although the parties contracted for this exclusive remedy provision, it is well settled that "parties cannot use contractual limitation of liability clauses to shield themselves from liability for their own fraudulent conduct." Turkish v. Kasenetz, 27 F.3d 23, 27-28 (2d Cir.1994). Further, the federal securities laws have an anti-waiver provision which specifically makes void any contractual clause that allows a party to waive compliance with the federal securities laws. Pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a), "[a]ny condition, stipulation, or provision binding any person to waive compliance with any provision of this chapter or of any rule or regulation thereunder, or of any rule of an exchange required thereby shall be void." 15 U.S.C. § 78cc(a).

The Second Circuit has had occasion to address the scope of the federal anti-waiver policy. In McMahan & Co. v. Warehouse Enter., Inc., 65 F.3d 1044 (2d Cir.1995), the Second Circuit analyzed the effect of a "no-action" contractual clause upon the plaintiffs' securities fraud claims. The "no-action" clause at issue provided that the plaintiffs could not bring suit against defendants unless certain procedural steps were followed, such as providing written notice to the defendants of a default. Plaintiffs failed to follow the procedural steps outlined, and defendants therefore claimed that plaintiffs waived their right to bring suit under the 1933 and 1934 Securities Exchange Acts. However, the Second Circuit upheld the district court's nullification of the "no-action" clause and found that "[t]he statutory framework of the 1933 and 1934 Acts compels the conclusion that individual security holders may not be forced to forego their rights under the federal securities laws due to a contract provision." McMahan, 65 F.3d at 1051.

Defendants rely on Harsco Corp. v. Segui, 91 F.3d 337 (2d Cir.1996) for the proposition that a waiver clause is permissible under the federal securities laws. However, defendants mischaracterize Harsco. Harsco did not involve a waiver clause that prohibited any and all fraud suits under the federal securities laws or under the common law. It involved a contract that specifically outlined the representations that plaintiff was relying upon when it bought defendant's company. That plaintiff's fraud claim was based upon representations made outside the contract.

*3 The Second Circuit was careful to distinguish the facts of Harsco from a contract provision which prohibits a party from suing at all under the federal securities laws. The court found that, in light of the carefully negotiated provision in the contract detailing the representations plaintiff relied upon, plaintiff may only bring a securities fraud suit based upon those specific representations included in the contract, and not based upon representations made outside the contract. The court found that "it is not fair to characterize [the representations agreed upon in the contract] as having prevented [plaintiff] from protecting its substantive rights. [Plaintiff] rigorously defined those rights in [the contract]." Harsco, 91 F.3d at 344. The Court found that "[plaintiff] has not waived its rights to bring any suit resulting from this deal." Id. Rather, plaintiff only waived its right to bring a federal securities suit based upon representations made outside the contract. See id.

Unlike the situation in Harsco, defendants here would have this court find that plaintiffs waived their right to bring any and all suits for fraud, even a suit concerning representations made within the contract. Such a broad-sweeping waiver clause is exactly the type of contractual provision that § 78cc(a) and the case law forbid. Therefore, the indemnification clause in the Agreement is void to the extent that it only provides one remedy, and defendants' motion to dismiss the securities fraud, common law fraud, and negligent misrepresentation claims based upon the indemnification clause is denied.

[2][3] Next, defendants argue that plaintiffs' fraud claims fail because the Complaint failed to both plead fraud with particularity, and adequately plead scienter, as required by Fed.R.Civ.P. 9(b) and the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act ("PSLRA"). It is well settled that a Complaint asserting securities fraud must satisfy the pleading requirements of Rule 9(b). [FN2] See Ganino v. Citizens Utilities Co., 228 F.3d 154, 167 (2d Cir.2000). Rule 9(b) requires that "the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake shall be stated with particularity." Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). Fraud allegations in a Complaint therefore must: "(1) specify the statements that the plaintiff contends were fraudulent, (2) identify the speaker, (3) state where and when the statements were made, and (4) explain why the statements were fraudulent." Shields v. Citytrust Bancorp, Inc., 25 F.3d 1124, 1128 (2d Cir.1994).

FN2. Generally, Rule 8(a)'s liberal pleading standard applies. However, where fraud is alleged, a court must evaluate the allegations under Rule 9(b)'s heightened pleading standard. See Swierkiewicz v. Sorema N.A., 534 U.S. 506, 513, 122 S.Ct. 992, 152 L.Ed.2d 1 (2002).

Further, a Complaint alleging fraud must also allege that the defendants acted with scienter. See Novak v. Kasaks, 216 F.3d 300, 306 (2d Cir.2000). A plaintiff must allege facts that give rise to a strong inference of fraudulent intent. See Shields, 25 F.3d at 1128; Novak, 216 F.3d at 311. A "strong inference" may be established "either (a) by alleging facts to show that defendants had both motive and opportunity to commit fraud, or (b) by alleging facts that constitute strong circumstantial evidence of conscious misbehavior or recklessness." Ganino, 228 F.3d at 168-69, quoting Shields, 25 F.3d at 1128. The inference may also arise where the Complaint sufficiently alleges that the defendants: "(1) benefitted in a concrete and personal way from the purported fraud; (2) engaged in deliberately illegal behavior; (3) knew facts or had access to information suggesting that their public statements were not accurate; or (4) failed to check information they had a duty to monitor." Novak, 216 F.3d at 311 (internal citations omitted).

*4 In this case, plaintiffs allege in their Complaint that they purchased from defendant Itochu International ("Itochu") in May 2000 all the common stock of Copelco. Plaintiffs allege that in purchasing Copelco, plaintiffs relied upon the accuracy of §§ 3.08 and 3.09 of the Agreement, which warranted that Copelco's financial statements and accounting practices were done in accordance with GAAP and consistent with past Copelco practices. Plaintiffs contend that after the closing, plaintiffs discovered that the accounting methods used by defendants artificially inflated Copelco's financial condition, in violation of GAAP and past Copelco practices.

Specifically, plaintiffs contend that, beginning in 1998 through May 16, 2000, Copelco's Chief Financial Officer and its Chief Operating Officer authorized and managed an accounting scheme by which uncollectible lease receivables were subjected to an internal charge-off limitation (the "Cap") above which no further receivables would be charged-off. Plaintiffs contend that the Cap was in violation of both GAAP and past Copelco accounting practices. The effect of the Cap was to appear to maintain Copelco's compliance with the rolling three month loss-to-liquidation rate required by its funding agreements with its various lenders. Failure to comply with this rate would have permitted Copelco's lenders to stop funding and, correspondingly, would have placed Copelco's access to financing with its various lenders at risk of termination, thereby potentially adversely impacting the value of Copelco's stock. Simply put, plaintiffs allege that lease receivables that should have been charged-off, in compliance with GAAP and past Copelco accounting practices, were not. Plaintiffs then contend that collections managers at Copelco engaged periodically in "horse-trading," where the total available charge-offs under the Cap were divided between the business groups. As a result of the Cap, plaintiffs contend that the overall collectibility of lease receivables was impaired.

Plaintiffs contend that the use of the Cap served not only to misrepresent actual rolling three month loss-to-liquidation rates, but also to overstate Copelco's income for the relevant period. Plaintiffs contend that the alleged misrepresentations caused Copelco's historical losses to be understated by at least $47 million at the time of the closing. Finally, plaintiffs contend that at all times relevant to the Complaint, defendants, by and through Copelco's officers and directors, knew that the Cap produced inflated numbers, and that plaintiffs relied upon the inaccurate information provided in the Agreement.

Plaintiffs' allegations are sufficiently pled to survive a motion to dismiss. First, plaintiffs have pled their fraud claims with particularity, in accordance with Rule 9(b). The Complaint identifies Copelco's allegedly fraudulent statements, namely §§ 3.08 and 3.09 which warranted that the financial statements were prepared in accordance with GAAP and past Copelco accounting practices. Those statements were clearly made in the Agreement, itself. The speakers are the defendants, the direct signatories to the Agreement. Plaintiffs have further explained why the statements are allegedly fraudulent, in that the CFO and COO of Copelco authorized the Cap plan, knew the Cap plan was contrary to GAAP and past Copelco accounting practices, and proffered the inflated numbers produced to plaintiffs with the intent to defraud them. Therefore, the requirements of Rule 9(b) have been met. Plaintiffs have also adequately pled scienter in accordance with the PSLRA, in that plaintiffs have described a set of facts and circumstances that, if proven, give rise to a strong inference of fraud. Therefore, defendants' motion to dismiss the securities fraud, and common law fraud claims is denied. [FN3]

FN3. Defendants' motion to dismiss with respect to plaintiffs' vicarious liability claim brought pursuant to § 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act is premised solely upon their assertion that the underlying securities fraud offense, § 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act, also fails. As discussed above, plaintiffs have met the pleading standards for their § 10(b) claim, and therefore, this Court accordingly denies defendants' motion to dismiss plaintiffs' § 20(a) claim.

*5 [4] With respect to the common law fraud claim, defendants alternatively argue that even if it survives, plaintiffs' demand for punitive damages should nevertheless be stricken as the alleged fraud was not aimed at the public generally. Punitive damages are available in a fraud claim where the plaintiff demonstrates that the harm was directed at the public generally. See Rocanova v. Equitable Life Assurance Society, 643 N.E.2d 940, 943 (N.Y.1994) (in cases evincing "a high degree of moral turpitude, and demonstrating such wanton dishonesty as to imply a criminal indifference to civil obligations, punitive damages are recoverable if the conduct was aimed at the public generally.") (internal quotation marks omitted); Manning v. Utilities Mutual Ins. Co., Inc., 254 F.3d 387, 400 (2d Cir.2001) (quoting Racanova). Here, plaintiffs have failed to allege any conduct aimed at the public generally. This was a contract between two private parties, where the alleged harm befell one of the parties. Defendants' motion to strike plaintiffs' demand for punitive damages with respect to the common law fraud claim is therefore granted.

[5] Defendants, further, argue that plaintiffs' claim for negligent misrepresentation fails as a matter of law because plaintiffs have not alleged a "special relationship" between plaintiffs and defendants. Plaintiffs, however, argue that a "special relationship" existed in that a relationship of confidence developed between the parties during the negotiation process and that plaintiffs trusted defendants' representations to be accurate.

In a negligent misrepresentation claim, a plaintiff must establish that the defendant had a duty to use reasonable care to convey correct information due to the existence of a "special relationship," that the information provided was incorrect or false, and that the plaintiff reasonably relied upon the information. See Fleet Bank v. Pine Knoll Corp., 290 A.D.2d 792, 736 N.Y.S.2d 737, 795 (App.Div.2002). "To that end, a special relationship requires a closer degree of trust than an ordinary business relationship." Id. (internal quotation marks omitted), quoting Busino v. Meachern, 270 A.D.2d 606, 704 N.Y.S.2d 690, 693 (App.Div.2000); Butvin v. Doubleclick, Inc., No. 99civ 4727, 2000 WL 827673, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. June 26, 2000) ("a plaintiff may only recover for negligent misrepresentation where the defendant owes him a fiduciary duty"). Here, the plaintiffs' relationship with defendants was merely an ordinary business relationship. There is no allegation in the Complaint to support a finding that a "special relationship" existed. Therefore, defendants' motion to dismiss the negligent misrepresentation claim is granted.

[6] Defendants next argue that plaintiffs' claim for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing should be dismissed on the grounds that there was no breach in the course of contract performance. The implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing encompasses the concept that "neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract." Dalton v. Educational Testing Serv., 87 N.Y.2d 384, 639 N.Y.S.2d 977, 663 N.E.2d 289, 291 (N.Y.1995), quoting Kirk La Shello Co. v. Paul Armstrong Co., 263 N.Y. 79, 188 N.E. 163, 167 (N.Y.1933). Plaintiffs have alleged that defendants engaged in an accounting plan that was contrary to GAAP and past Copelco accounting practices, that defendants knew the Cap plan was artificially inflating Copelco's financial figures, and that plaintiffs relied on defendants' representations. If these allegations are proven true, it can fairly be said that defendants' conduct had the effect of destroying or injuring plaintiffs' right to enjoy the fruits of the contract. Plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged, at this stage of the proceeding, a cause of action for breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing and defendants' motion to dismiss this claim is therefore denied.

2003 WL 1797847 (S.D.N.Y.), Fed. Sec. L.
Rep. P 92,403

END OF DOCUMENT

*6 [7] Lastly, defendants argue that plaintiffs' claim for unjust enrichment should be dismissed on the grounds that an unjust enrichment claim can not be maintained where there is a valid, enforceable agreement that governs the dispute. Plaintiffs argue, on the other hand, that an unjust enrichment claim can be maintained where there are grounds for rescission of the contract. "Under New York law, unjust enrichment is a quasi contractual claim that ordinarily can be maintained only in the absence of a valid, enforceable contract. Where a contract governs the subject matter involved, however, a claim for unjust enrichment should be dismissed ." Ohio Players, Inc. v. Polygram Records, Inc., No. 99 civ 0033, 2000 WL 1616999, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Oct.27, 2000) (citations omitted). In this case, a valid, enforceable contract (the Agreement) governs this dispute. Although plaintiffs have argued in their opposition brief to defendants' motion to dismiss that there could be grounds for rescission of the contract, they did not include rescission as a remedy in their Complaint. Therefore, defendants' motion to dismiss plaintiffs' claim for unjust enrichment is granted.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, defendants' motion to dismiss is GRANTED as to plaintiffs' negligent misrepresentation and unjust enrichment claims, as well as to plaintiffs' demand for punitive damages under the common law fraud claim. The motion to dismiss is DENIED with respect to all remaining claims.

Citibank, N. A., et al., Respondents,
v.
Allan R. Plapinger et al., Appellants.

Court of Appeals of New York

Argued September 3, 1985;

decided October 22, 1985

SUMMARY

Appeal from an order of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the First Judicial Department, entered January 22, 1985, which, by a divided court, affirmed a judgment of the Supreme Court (William P. McCooe, J.), entered in New York County, (1) striking defendants' affirmative defenses and counterclaims, (2) granting a motion by plaintiffs for summary judgment, and (3) awarding plaintiffs damages against defendants, jointly and severally, in the total sum of $19,211,889.14.

Citibank v Plapinger, 107 AD2d 627, affirmed.

HEADNOTES

Suretyship and Guarantee--Absolute and Unconditional Guarantee--Fraud in Inducement by Oral Representation as Defense--Misrepresentation by Guarantors--Applicability of Condition Precedent Rule (1) Fraud in the inducement of a guarantee by defendant corporate officers of the corporation's indebtedness is not a defense to an action on the guarantee when the guarantee recites that it is absolute and unconditional irrespective of any lack of validity or enforceability of the guarantee, or any other circumstance which might otherwise constitute a defense available to a guarantor in respect of the guarantee, those recitals being inconsistent with the guarantors' claim of reliance upon an oral representation that the plaintiff lending banks were committed to extend to the corporation an additional line of credit; thus, summary judgment was properly granted plaintiff banks because defendant guarantors were foreclosed from establishing reliance. The rule that fraud in the inducement vitiates a contract is subject to exception where the person claiming to have been defrauded has by his own specific disclaimer of reliance upon oral representations himself been guilty of deliberately misrepresenting his true intention; to permit defendants to rely on the claim that they were fraudulently induced to sign the guarantee by plaintiff banks' oral promise of an additional line of credit would in effect condone defendants' own fraud in deliberately misrepresenting their true intention when putting their signatures to their "absolute and unconditional" guarantee. Moreover, defendants may not rely upon the denial of the additional line of credit as a failure of a condition precedent because the alleged condition would contradict the express terms of the written agreement and, therefore, could not be proved by parol evidence.

Judgments--Summary Judgment--Triable Issue--Fraud in Inducement (2) In an action on the guarantee by defendant corporate officers of the corporation's indebtedness, where the guarantee recited that it is absolute and unconditional irrespective of any lack of validity or enforceability of the guarantee, or any other circumstance which might otherwise constitute a defense available to a guarantor in respect of the guarantee, the defendant guarantors' affidavits *91 contained evidence, uncontradicted by plaintiff lending banks, sufficient to raise a triable issue concerning fraud in the inducement, and, therefore, summary judgment should not have been granted plaintiffs based upon the insufficiency of defendants' evidence in opposition. However, the language of disclaimer in the guarantee is sufficiently specific to foreclose as a matter of law the defenses and counterclaims based on fraud, negligence or failure to perform a condition precedent asserted against plaintiff banks; accordingly, summary judgment was properly granted to plaintiffs on that ground.

OPINION OF THE COURT

Meyer, J.

(1, 2) Fraud in the inducement of a guarantee by corporate officers of the corporation's indebtedness is not a defense to an action on the guarantee when the guarantee recites that it is absolute and unconditional irrespective of any lack of validity or enforceability of the guarantee, or any other circumstance which might otherwise constitute a defense available to a guarantor in respect of the guarantee, those recitals being inconsistent with the guarantors' claim of reliance upon an oral representation that the lending banks were committed to extend to the corporation an additional line of credit. The order of the Appellate Division should, therefore, be affirmed, with costs.

I

Defendants are officers and directors of and own all the voting stock of United Department Stores, a holding company with a number of retail department store subsidiaries. Plaintiff, Citibank, N. A., and the other four plaintiff banks provided United with a $15,200,000 line of credit. After default by United, discussions took place concerning restructuring of the indebtedness as a term loan guaranteed by the defendants and the extension to United of an additional line of credit of $8,000,000. On August 10, 1981, the $15,200,000 term loan transaction closed, but the line of credit was never funded.

On January 25, 1982, United filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Plaintiff banks then declared the term loan principal and interest due and brought the present action against defendants on the guarantee. Defendants' answer set up defenses of fraud in the inducement, negligent misrepresentation and failure of a condition precedent and asserted counterclaims based upon fraud, negligent misrepresentation and breach of contract. On motion of plaintiff banks, Special Term struck the affirmative defenses and counterclaims and directed entry of judgment in favor of plaintiffs, holding that by the specific language of the unconditional guarantee defendants waived their right to assert the defenses and counterclaims. *93

On appeal to the Appellate Division, that court affirmed, the Presiding Justice dissenting. The majority found the evidence of fraud in the inducement contained in defendants' affidavits to consist of "shadowy and conclusory statements," but, also, as evidenced by its citation to page 138 of its own decision in Seaman-Andwall Corp. v Wright Mach. Corp. (31 AD2d 136, affd 29 NY2d 617), apparently held the disclaimer in the guarantee sufficiently specific to bar consideration of the defenses in any event. The Presiding Justice disagreed on both points. We agree with him that defendants' affidavits contained evidence, uncontradicted by plaintiffs, sufficient to raise a triable issue concerning fraud in the inducement, but also agree with Special Term and the Appellate Division majority that the language of disclaimer in the guarantee is sufficiently specific to foreclose as a matter of law the defenses and counterclaims [FN*] based on fraud, negligence or failure to perform a condition precedent asserted against plaintiff banks, under the rule of Danann Realty Corp. v Harris (5 NY2d 317). We therefore affirm.

FN* A further reason for dismissal of the counterclaims is that defendants lack standing to sue for an injury to the corporation even though it results in depreciation in the value of their shares of the corporation's stock. Normally a shareholder has no individual right of action for such an injury (Niles v New York Cent. & Hudson Riv. R. R. Co., 176 NY 119). Although exceptions to that rule have been recognized (Kono v Roeth, 237 App Div 252, lv denied 238 App Div 775; see, General Rubber Co. v Benedict, 215 NY 18; Vincel v White Motor Corp., 521 F2d 1113), the counterclaim in the instant case alleges nothing that would bring defendants within the exception.

II

(2) Defendants' papers on the summary judgment motion contain evidence in admissible form which, with the inferences that could reasonably be drawn therefrom, was sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact. The affidavit of Allan R. Plapinger states that before the commitment letter for the term loan was signed, he advised Froehler, the Citibank officer who was negotiating on behalf of all the banks, that neither he nor the other stockholders would sign the letter until the line of credit was agreed to and that "Froehler promised that we had the line," that the line of credit would be funded half by Citibank and half by National Bank of Detroit, that National Bank prepared papers for its share of the line of credit including a note which was signed on behalf of United by one of the defendants, that the Citibank officer who then took over the negotiations imposed additional conditions as to the line of credit which were accepted by United and defendants, that defendants relied on those representations and would not have entered into the guarantee had they not been made, and *94 that the representations were false when made or were recklessly made. In an unverified reply, Citibank, National Bank of Detroit and Equibank deny that they entered into the oral contract for the line of credit alleged in defendants' answer but filed no affidavit in support of that denial. People's Trust and Broad Street National, in a verified reply, likewise deny the allegations of the counterclaims and in an attorney's affidavit point out that their representatives are not alleged to have made any representations or been present when representations were made as to the line of credit, nor did defendants allege that they were to be participants in the line of credit. The undenied statement that defendants were told that they had the line of credit was a representation of present fact, not of future intent (Sabo v Delman, 3 NY2d 155), the falsity of which, in the absence of explanation, can reasonably be inferred from the refusal to extend the promised credit, and the attorney's affidavit submitted on behalf of People's Trust and Broad Street National does no more than raise a fact question concerning whether, in making the representation he is alleged to have made in order to obtain defendants' guarantee, the Citibank officer was acting in behalf of those banks. Summary judgment should not have been granted plaintiffs, therefore, based upon the insufficiency of defendants' evidence in opposition.

III

(1) Summary judgment was properly granted plaintiffs, however, because defendants were foreclosed by the rule of Danann Realty Corp. v Harris (5 NY2d 317, supra) from establishing reliance. In that case, expounding on our prior decision in Cohen v Cohen (13 NY2d 813, affg 1 AD2d 586, 588-589) and distinguishing our prior holding in Sabo v Delman (3 NY2d 155, supra) that a general merger clause is ineffective to exclude parol evidence of fraud in the inducement, we held the rule that fraud in the inducement vitiates a contract to be subject to exception where the person claiming to have been defrauded has by his own specific disclaimer of reliance upon oral representations himself been "guilty of deliberately misrepresenting [his] true intention" (5 NY2d, at p 323). And in later cases we have adhered to that rule (Seaman-Andwall Corp. v Wright Mach. Corp., 29 NY2d 617, affg 31 AD2d 136, supra; Wittenberg v Robinov, 9 NY2d 261) or distinguished the language involved as a general merger clause rather than a specific disclaimer (Barash v Pennsylvania Term. Real Estate Corp., 26 NY2d 77, 86). Millerton Agway Coop. v Briarcliff Farms (17 NY2d 57), relied on by defendants, is not to the contrary for, as examination of the record in that case reveals, the *95 guarantees there involved contained neither a general merger clause nor a specific disclaimer. Millerton held no more than that summary judgment should not have been granted plaintiffs in that case, defendants' affidavits having presented sufficient evidence of reliance on the claimed fraudulent representation to require a trial.

The Danann rule has been criticized as encouraging the use of boilerplate and likely to result in more verbose merger clauses (Calamari and Perillo, Contracts § 9-21 [2d ed]; Note, 47 Cornell LQ 655), a sounder distinction being between a negotiated clause and a standard form clause (Calamari and Perillo, loc. cit., supra). Here it cannot be said, as in Danann, that the defendants have "in the plainest language announced and stipulated that [they were] not relying on any representations as to the very matter [the additional line of credit] as to which [they] now [claim they were] defrauded" (5 NY2d, at p 320). But here we do not have the generalized boilerplate exclusion referred to by the commentators. Rather, following extended negotiations between sophisticated business people, what has been hammered out is a multimillion dollar personal guarantee proclaimed by defendants to be "absolute and unconditional." It is unrealistic in such circumstances to expect an express stipulation that defendants were not relying on a separate oral agreement to fund an additional multimillion dollar line of credit, when they themselves have denominated their obligation unconditional, and have reinforced that declaration by their agreement that the "absolute and unconditional" nature of their guarantee was "irrespective of (i) any lack of validity * * * of the * * * Restated Loan Agreement * * * or any other agreement or instrument relating thereto", or "(vii) any other circumstance which might otherwise constitute a defense" to the guarantee.

Though not the explicit disclaimer present in Danann, the substance of defendants' guarantee forecloses their reliance on the claim that they were fraudulently induced to sign the guarantee by the banks' oral promise of an additional line of credit. To permit that would in effect condone defendants' own fraud in "deliberately misrepresenting [their] true intention" (Danann Realty Corp. v Harris, 5 NY2d, at p 323) when putting their signatures to their "absolute and unconditional" guarantee.

Finally, to the extent that defendants rely upon the denial of the additional line of credit as a failure of a condition precedent, it is necessary only to note that in light of the above-quoted provisions the condition precedent rule is inapplicable because the alleged *96 condition would contradict the express terms of the written agreement and, therefore, could not be proved by parol evidence (Hicks v Bush, 10 NY2d 488, 491; Meadow Brook Natl. Bank v Bzura, 20 AD2d 287, 289; see, Long Is. Trust Co. v International Inst. for Packaging Educ., 38 NY2d 493, 497).

Accordingly, the order of the Appellate Division should be affirmed, with costs.

Chief Judge Wachtler and Judges Jasen, Simons, Kaye, Alexander and Titone concur.

Order affirmed, with costs. *97

Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Second
Department, New York.

Stephen Louis COHAN, et al., Appellants,
v.
Leon SICULAR, et al., Respondents.

April 17, 1995.

Purchasers of real property sued vendor, vendor's attorney and brokers for fraud, breach of contract and rescission of contract, alleging oral misrepresentation as to amount of real estate taxes and utility costs. Motions of defendants for summary judgment and to dismiss were granted by the Supreme Court, Nassau County, Levitt, J., and purchasers appealed. The Supreme Court, Appellate Division, held that merger clause precluded recovery against vendor and his attorney, but not against brokers who were not parties to the real estate contract.

Modified and affirmed.

West Headnotes

[1] Fraud 36
184k36

While general merger clauses are ineffective to exclude parol evidence of fraud in the inducement, specific disclaimer destroys allegations that agreement was executed in reliance on contrary oral misrepresentation.

[2] Fraud 36
184k36

Merger clause in real estate contract precluded purchasers' recovery against vendor and his attorney for alleged oral misrepresentation as to amount of real estate taxes and utility costs, though clause did not specifically reference real estate taxes or utility costs, where it did specifically state that "after full investigation, neither party [is] relying on any statement made by anyone else that is not set forth in this contract," and contract was negotiated at arm's length between parties who were represented by counsel.

[3] Brokers 102
65k102

Merger clause in real estate contract did not protect brokers, and thus purchaser sufficiently stated cause of action in fraud against brokers by allegation that they confirmed vendor's alleged misrepresentation as to amount of annual real estate taxes, where brokers were not parties to the real estate contract and commission agreement established contractual relationship between the purchasers and the brokers.

Before ROSENBLATT, J.P., and THOMPSON, PIZZUTO and SANTUCCI, JJ.

MEMORANDUM BY THE COURT.

637 In an action to recover damages for fraud, breach of contract, and rescission of the contract, the plaintiffs appeal, from an order of the Supreme Court, Nassau County (Levitt, J.), dated November 30, 1993, which (1) granted the motion of the defendants, Leon Sicular and Sheldon Feinstein, for summary judgment dismissing the complaint insofar as it is asserted against them, (2) granted the motions of the defendants, Prudential L.I. Realty, Burr Affiliates, Inc., Grace Slezak, Thomas Tullo, Daniel Gale Associates, Inc., and Elyse Underberg to dismiss the complaint insofar as it is asserted against them, and (3) denied the branch of the plaintiffs' cross motion which was to direct the escrow agent,

Sheldon Fienstein, to retain the contract deposit pending service of an amended complaint.

638 ORDERED that the order is modified by deleting the provision thereof which granted the motions of the defendants, Prudential L.I. Realty, Burr Affiliates, Inc., Grace Slezak, Thomas Tullo, Daniel Gale Associates, Inc., and Elyse Underberg to dismiss the complaint, and substituting therefor a provision denying those motions; as so modified, the order is affirmed, without costs or disbursements.

On December 15, 1992, the defendant, Leon Sicular (hereinafter the seller), the owner of a house in Lattingtown, New York, entered into a contract to sell the house to the plaintiffs Louis and Linda Cohan (hereinafter the buyers). The seller was represented by the defendant, Sheldon Feinstien, Esq. On the same date the buyers entered into a commission agreement with the remaining defendants who are the real estate brokerage companies and the individual listing and selling brokers involved in the transaction (hereinafter the brokers). The buyers allege that prior to executing the contract and commission agreement the seller told them, and the brokers confirmed, that the annual real estate taxes on the property were approximately $16,000 and the annual utility costs were approximately $6,000. Subsequent to their execution of the contract, and after receipt of the title search, the buyers learned that the real estate taxes were actually in excess of $21,000 and the utility costs were approximately $14,000. The buyers refused to close and thereafter brought suit against the seller, his attorney, and the brokers. The buyers alleged fraud in the inducement and sought rescission of the contract and the commission agreement, return of their down payment and consequential damages. The Supreme Court dismissed the complaint against all of the defendants holding that the contract's merger clause prohibited the buyers from introducing parol evidence to prove their claim.

[1][2] It is well-settled that "[w]hile general merger clauses are ineffective to exclude parol evidence of fraud in the inducement *280 * *

* a specific disclaimer destroys allegations that the agreements were executed in reliance upon contrary oral misrepresentations' " (LaBarbera v. Marion, 192 A.D.2d 697, 698, 597 N.Y.S.2d 137; see also, Citibank v. Plapinger, 66 N.Y.2d 90, 495 N.Y.S.2d 309, 485 N.E.2d 974; Sabo v. Delman, 3 N.Y.2d 155, 162, 164 N.Y.S.2d 714, 143 N.E.2d 906; Glenfed Fin. Corp., Commercial Fin. Div. v. Aeronautics & Astronautics Servs., 181 A.D.2d 575, 581 N.Y.S.2d 62; Marine Midland Bank v. Cafferty, 174 A.D.2d 932, 571 N.Y.S.2d 628). Although the language of the merger clause in the contract at bar was general in nature, it did specifically state that "after full investigation, neither party [is] relying upon any statement made by anyone else that is not set forth in this contract". Furthermore, the contract was 639 one which was negotiated at arm's length between parties who were represented by counsel. Therefore, it cannot be said that the merger clause failed to put the buyer on notice as to its intended effect simply because it did not specifically reference the real estate taxes or the utility costs (see, 198 Avenue B. Assocs. v. Bee Corp., 155 A.D.2d 273, 547 N.Y.S.2d 35; cf., Hi Tor Indus. Park v. Chemical Bank, 114 A.D.2d 838, 839, 494 N.Y.S.2d 751). Accordingly, the seller was entitled to summary judgment dismissing the buyers' complaint insofar as it is asserted against him and his attorney.

[3] However, the brokers were not entitled to summary judgment dismissing the complaint insofar as it is asserted against them based upon the merger clause since they were not parties to the real estate contract. Moreover, since the commission agreement established a contractual relationship between the buyers and the brokers, and since the buyers allege that the brokers confirmed the seller's alleged misrepresentation as to the amount of annual real estate taxes, the buyers have sufficiently stated a cause of action sounding in fraud against the brokers (cf., Hauser v. Lista, 201 A.D.2d 873, 607 N.Y.S.2d 516).

United States District Court,

COMPANIA SUD-AMERICANA de
VAPORES, S.A., Plaintiff,
v.
IBJ SCHRODER BANK & TRUST COMPANY, Defendant.

No. 90 Civ. 7220 (SWK).

Feb. 24, 1992.

Chilean company engaged in shipping goods internationally sued United States bank claiming fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, breach of contract and violations of Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) with respect to foreign currency exchange transactions. Bank moved for summary judgment. The District Court, Kram, J., held that: (1) under New York law, company failed to establish justifiable reliance with respect to bank's representations as to rates so as to establish fraud; (2) under New York law, company failed to establish that bank intended not to perform alleged promise to apply favorable rates at time promise was made so as to prove fraudulent intent; (3) confirmation slips were not part of scheme to defraud; (4) where fraudulent scheme was premised upon inadequate fraud claim, allegations of mail and wire fraud, as predicate acts for RICO violation, also failed; (5) bank did not owe company fiduciary duty; and (6) genuine issue of material fact as to whether oral agreement existed between bank and company regarding management by bank of conversion program for company's currencies precluded summary judgment in favor of bank on breach of contract claim.

Motion granted in part; denied in part.

West Headnotes

[1] Fraud 20
184k20

Under New York law, to establish fraud plaintiff must establish that his reliance was justifiable, both in sense that party claiming to have been defrauded was justified in believing representation and that he was justified in acting upon it.

[2] Fraud 23
184k23

Under New York law, plaintiff will be deemed to have been practically faced with facts so as to preclude justifiable reliance on defendant's representations if he has access to critical information.

[3] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Under New York law, plaintiff had access to critical information underlying its fraud claim against bank with respect to alleged misrepresentations as to rates it would charge for currency exchanges and, had it exercised ordinary intelligence or made simple inquiries, it would have been able to discover alleged misrepresentations, and thus, plaintiff failed to establish justifiable reliance, where plaintiff did not compare bank's rates with published interbank rate, did not ask other banks for quotations, and made no effort to inquire as to underlying facts despite availability of such information.

[4] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Plaintiff failed to prove that bank intended not to perform alleged promise to apply favorable currency exchange rates at time promise was made so as to establish fraudulent intent under New York law, where evidence established that bank charged favorable rates from 1979-1984, and there was no evidence that promises were to last indefinitely.

[5] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Under New York law, confirmations sent to plaintiff by bank with respect to currency exchanges a fortiori could not be part of any scheme to defraud, where there was no dispute that confirmations truthfully and accurately stated terms of foreign exchange contracts, which was all they were required to do, every confirmation slip contained rate of exchange and that rate was actual rate at which each currency exchange was executed, plaintiff would have discovered prevailing market rate of exchange and uncovered facts underlying alleged scheme to defraud if it had exercised ordinary intelligence or made simple inquires as required by New York law, and extent to which defendant's rate of exchange exceeded market rate was merely subtraction problem.

[6] Action 27(1)
13k27(1)

Under New York law, failing to disclose breach of promise does not transform contract action into one for fraud.

[7] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Under New York law, slips confirming currency exchanges were not fraudulent because slips did not disclose that bank was no longer applying favorable rates promised earlier or that bank was no longer in compliance with alleged promises made to plaintiff.

[8] Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations 6
319Hk6

[8] Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations 7
319Hk7

Predicate acts necessary for violation of Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) are acts indictable or punishable under various federal criminal statutes, and acts chargeable under certain state criminal laws; these include murder, kidnapping, arson, robbery, bribery, extortion, dealing in narcotics, securities fraud, mail fraud and wire fraud. 18 U.S.C.A. §§ 1341, 1343, 1961(1), 1962(c).

[9] Postal Service 35(2)
306k35(2)

[9] Telecommunications 362
372k362

Offenses of both mail and wire fraud require proof of same two elements: that defendant participated in scheme to defraud; and knowingly used mails (or wires) to further scheme.

[10] Postal Service 35(5)
306k35(5)

[10] Telecommunications 362
372k362

Proof of fraudulent scheme as element of mail or wire fraud requires evidence showing specific intent to defraud, which can be shown by proof that scheme was reasonably calculated to deceive persons of ordinary prudence and comprehension.

[11] Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations 10
319Hk10

Where fraudulent scheme underlying mail and wire fraud allegations is premised upon inadequate common-law fraud claim, allegations of mail and wire fraud fail as predicate acts for civil liability under Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO). 18 U.S.C.A. §§ 1341, 1343, 1961(1), 1962(c).

[12] Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations 70
319Hk70

Because common-law fraud claim against bank with respect to currency exchange agreement was dismissed, there were no valid allegations of fraud to underpin allegations of mail and wire fraud as predicate acts for civil liability under Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO). 18 U.S.C.A. §§ 1341, 1343, 1961(1), 1962(c).

[13] Postal Service 49(11)
306k49(11)

[13] Telecommunications 363
372k363

Plaintiffs failed to establish that bank had specific intent to defraud with respect to currency exchanges so as to establish fraudulent scheme under mail and wire fraud statutes, as predicate acts for civil violation of Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO); alleged fraudulent omissions in confirmation slips and fraudulent misrepresentations as to rates were not reasonably calculated to deceive persons of ordinary prudence and comprehension. 18 U.S.C.A. §§ 1341, 1343, 1961(1), 1962(c).

[14] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Under New York law, no fiduciary relationship existed between plaintiff and bank arising out of currency exchanges, where both plaintiff and bank were sophisticated parties and there was not a scintilla of evidence that agreements between parties were result of unequal bargaining power or that bank acquired any influence over plaintiff; mere fact that plaintiff and bank had long-standing business relationship of 50 years was insufficient to establish fiduciary relationship.

[15] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

"Nostro accounts" (foreign currency accounts) were not "special accounts" which turned debtor-creditor relationship between bank and plaintiff based on foreign currency exchanges into fiduciary one under New York law.

[16] Banks and Banking 100
52k100

Under New York law, fiduciary relationship was not established between bank and customer because bank held customer's currencies in "nostro accounts" (foreign currency accounts) for benefit of customer.

[17] Federal Civil Procedure 2487
170Ak2487

Genuine issue of material fact as to whether oral agreement existed between customer and bank regarding management by bank of conversion program for customer's foreign currencies precluded summary judgment in favor of bank on customer's breach of contract claim.

[18] Contracts 9(2)
95k9(2)

Under New York law, oral agreement for currency exchange between bank and customer was not too vague and indefinite to be enforceable, even though customer made varying claims as to what exchange rate was required by agreement, where customer was entitled to most favorable rate which could be determined by court by reference to interbank rates, fair profit margins, and rate bank gave to others.

[19] Sales 10
343k10

Under New York law, overarching management agreement between bank and customer with respect to currency exchanges was in essence contract for sale of goods subject to Article II of Uniform Commercial Code, where bank rendered services in connection with agreement only to facilitate sales and purchases of foreign currency, making provision of services incidental to contracts for sale of goods. N.Y.McKinney's Uniform Commercial Code §§ 2-101 et seq., 2-102, 2-105 comment.

[20] Sales 10
343k10

Under New York law, in order to determine whether contract is for sale of goods, or for services, court must look at essence or main objective of agreement; if provision of services or rendition of other performance predominates and is not merely incidental or collateral to sale of goods, then Uniform Commercial Code does not apply. N.Y.McKinney's Uniform Commercial Code §§ 2-101 et seq., 2-102, 2-105 comment.

[21] Evidence 400(3)
157k400(3)

Under New York law, confirmation slips representing conversions of currency could not be deemed integration intended as final expression of oral currency exchange agreement between bank and customer so as to preclude evidence of oral management agreement pursuant to parol evidence rule, where confirmation slips were not intended to reflect terms of alleged overriding agreement pursuant to which in excess of 1,000 transactions were conducted, nor to reflect single transaction to which both parties had orally agreed, there was no negotiation of terms that were later set forth in written confirmations nor any prior agreement to terms by customer, and customer never signed nor otherwise assented to written confirmations sent by bank. N.Y.McKinney's Uniform Commercial Code § 2-202.

[22] Evidence 397(2)
157k397(2)
