FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NOBLE Applauds Ketanji Brown Jackson, First Black Woman Ever Nominated for the U.S. Supreme Court

Alexandria, Va. – February 28, 2022 – The National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE) is honored to endorse President Joe Biden’s nomination of Federal Appeals Court Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson to become the first Black woman to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

NOBLE, made up of over 3,400 members nationwide, applauds President Biden’s historical nomination to the country’s highest court. The selection of Judge Jackson by President Biden fulfills his promise to select a Black woman for the role. The Senate will now decide whether to confirm her to be seated.

“This is a watershed moment in our nation’s history,” President Thomas said. “Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson is a stellar nominee with an extraordinary background. NOBLE is honored to support a Black woman of this stature who, if confirmed, will participate in deciding pivotal legal cases impacting the lives of all people across this mosaic of a nation.”

A graduate of Harvard Law School, Judge Jackson’s long and impressive resume includes her background in public service, experience as a federal public defender, and federal judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; throughout her career, Judge Jackson has demonstrated deep knowledge and respect for the law, balanced judgment, and unwavering commitment to justice. She is eminently qualified to serve on the highest bench in the land.
